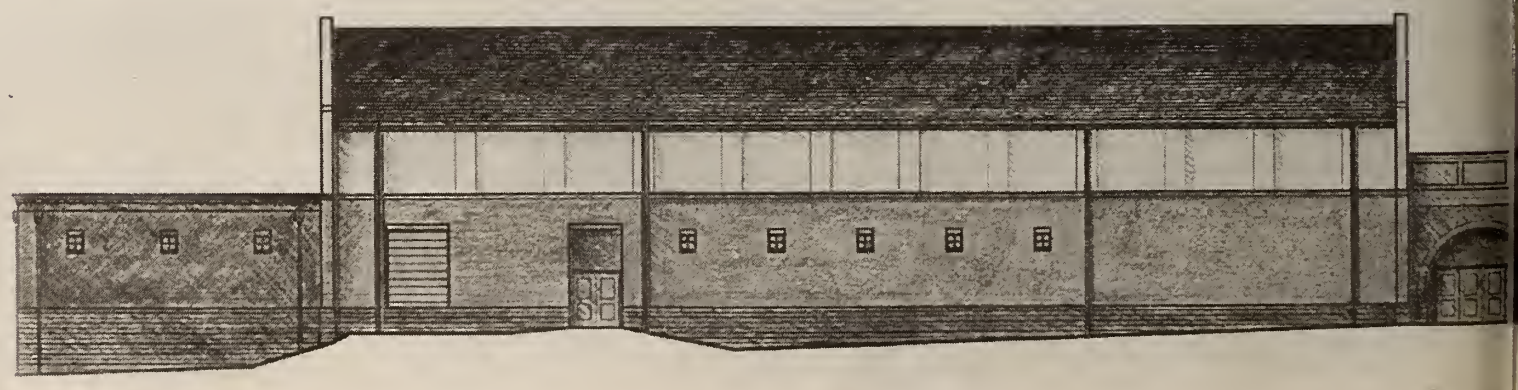
Since 1990, enrollment in Triad Catholic schools has grown by 33%, with enrollment in 6th through 8th grades up 44%. Demand for enrollment is expected to grow dramatically as the Catholic population in the Triad continues to soar.

Bishop McGuinness Memorial High School currently serves 310 students in a 40-year-old facility that was designed to accommodate 250 students. Overcrowding and aging of our facility, along with the need for a more diverse curriculum and expanded technological support, severely limit the school's ability to meet the challenges of the future.



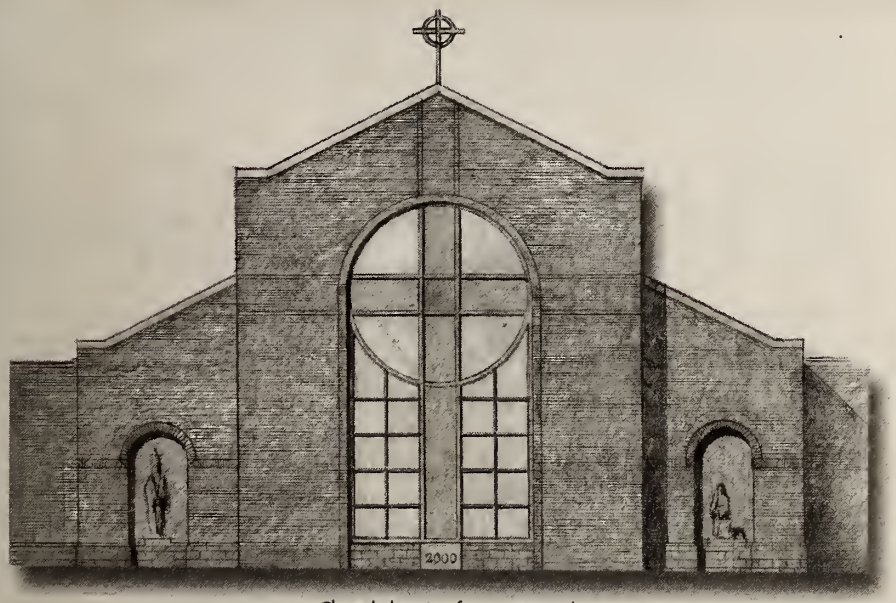
Laying New Foundations for Faith and Learning

Responding to the Need

Bishop Curlin at groundbreaking

On February 6, 2000, Bishop Curlin broke ground for the new Bishop McGuinness Memorial High School. Building a new, centrally located, state-of-the-art facility to serve over 800 students is the focus of Phase One of an expansion plan designed to meet the present and future needs of Triad families. Two new elementary schools are planned in a later phase. Site preparation is under way for this exciting project, with the new high school scheduled to open in August of 2001.

This carefully selected site is convenient to the entire Triad, with driving times of 15 minutes from Greensboro, High Point and Winston-Salem, and 10 minutes from the current campus location.



Chapel elevation from courtyard

Site and Building Facts

- Two-story school building, central courtyard and 225-seat chapel as focal point
- Athletic fields including soccer, track & field, baseball and softball
- Two full computer labs
- Science lecture/lab room combinations
- 900-seat gymnasium and stage
- Cafeteria with 320-seat capacity
- Instrumental music classroom and practice rooms
- Art classroom with dark room and supporting computer lab
- Student bookstore
- Large classrooms with superior technology support
- Teacher planning and conference rooms for each subject area

Main entrance elevation

Our Challenge to Continue the Tradition

A Message from Bishop William G. Curlin

Catholic education is an important part of our lives. I know that many of you, like me, have received the special benefits of a Catholic education. We owe much to those who provided that opportunity to us. Thea Bowman, FSPA, I think, puts it best:

"The active participation and cooperation of parents, teachers and concerned adults from a variety of cultural and religious traditions enable the Catholic school community to affirm and utilize the special giftedness of all its peoples as they work in love and harmony to create a better world."

Now it is our turn to provide the same opportunity for the generations yet to come.

Bishop William G. Curlin

Help Make the Dream a Reality

Bishop McGuinness Memorial High School Capital Campaign

Interior of chapel

The rich history and past accomplishments of Bishop McGuinness Memorial High School are but opening chapters to a far more exciting future. Relocation and expansion will allow the school to serve 800 students, more than double the current enrollment.

The benefits that Bishop McGuinness offers our young people, their families, the Catholic Church and our communities are well known. Those more familiar with the facilities of the present high school also know firsthand the serious shortage of space that limits enrollment and program expansion.

What could be more important than to guarantee that our children and grandchildren will be afforded the benefits of a Catholic education in a facility that has the resources to prepare them for a rapidly changing society?

We must act now to make this dream a reality. A Triad-wide capital campaign, "Laying New Foundations for Faith and Learning" will officially kick off in May 2000. We need your support. We invite you to make a generous investment of your time, talent and treasure to help accomplish this dream.

Campaign Leadership

Warren Corgan
General Chairman

Bob Davis
Greensboro Chairman

Ken Hughes
High Point Chairman

Bill Lawler
Winston-Salem Chairman

For more information, please call Bishop McGuinness Memorial High School at (336) 725-4247, or the campaign office at (336) 722-8238.

Attention
DIABETICS
with Medicare or Insurance
Save money on diabetic supplies!
1-800-337-4144
Diabetic National Service

VGA & SVGA Refurbished Computer Monitors
14" — $20-$25
15" — $35-$38
17" — $70-$125
20" Call for details
30 day warranty
Over 2000 monitors in stock!
MONITORS DEPOT
O.C. STAFFORD ELECTRONIC SERVICE & DEVELOPMENT COMPANY
408 Banner Ave., Greensboro, NC 27401
E-mail: urpac408@worldnet.att.net
(336) 274-9917

PBS special "Moms" re-run May 12 for Mother's Day

By GERRI PARE
Catholic News Service

NEW YORK (CNS) — Mothers of all ages and backgrounds have their say about the joys and terrors of being a parent in "Moms," to be rerun Friday, May 12, 9-10 p.m. EDT on PBS.

Filmmakers Louis Alvarez and Andrew Kolker talk with dozens of women across the country who relate — sometimes with unexpected candor — what pregnancy, childbirth and then the decadeslong adventure of raising children has meant to them. As one sums it up, "Nothing compares to having kids."

Most are upbeat, such as the mother of a retarded boy who originally envisioned her son graduating from Harvard, but has learned to enjoy his uniqueness without setting difficult goals for him.

Another mom of six runs her household with military efficiency and is proud of how Tyler, Taylor, Turner, Tanner, Tucker and T.K. are all subject to daily duties and discipline.

A bittersweet clip shows a recovering alcoholic who lost custody of her son when he was a toddler and is now steadily rebuilding the relationship on weekend visits.

Surprisingly, a few mothers mention how it wasn't love at first sight of their newborns, but over the course of a year or two the mother-child bonding rooted and blossomed.

"Moms"
May 12 9-10 p.m. EDT
on PBS

Different stages in the parenting process are covered, with special attention given to adolescence and the advice moms passed on about sex.

As might be expected in this patchwork-quilt format, the opinions of some moms prove interesting while others are overly familiar. One woman's conclusion that motherhood forces you to confront the best and worst in yourself is one of the more insightful remarks made, while another effuses, "There's no love like this; it's intense!"

Shots of adorable babies and moms singing lullabies seem, if not manipulative, then just padding to fill the documentary's hour length.

However, the end credits in which the crew members' actual mothers appear to announce their contributions, does make a fitting finale to this pleasant salute to the moms of America. ▼

Pare is director of the U.S. Catholic Conference Office for Film and Broadcasting.

Serving Charlotte with integrity for over 38 years!
The LaPointe Dealerships
Frank LaPointe, President, Member of St. Gabriel Church
HONDA
7001 E. Independence Blvd.
535-4444
MITSUBISHI MOTORS
Built For Living.™
6951 E. Independence Blvd.
531-3131

"Our Specialty Is Loving Your Pets"
Pineville Animal Hospital
10833 Pineville Road, Pineville, NC
(Near Carolina Pavilion/AMC 22 Theater)
(704) 552-2005
In addition to our complete medical care facility, we also offer:
Boarding Kennels
Professional Grooming
Thomas N. Buckley, DVM, owner
Member of St. Vincent's

Minds in bloom. How does your garden grow?
Now is the time to realize your full potential. Take advantage of the summer months to let your mind bloom! Whether you are an undergraduate, graduate or high school student, you can catch up on classes and boost your academic edge.
Register now.
First session: May 15-June 16
and May 15-June 24
Second session: June 26-Aug. 5
Pre-college programs available.
Contact the Office of Summer Sessions
202-319-5257 or cua-summers@cua.edu summer.cua.edu
The Catholic University Of America
Washington D.C.

Providing Quality Long Term Care ...With Great Love.
For half a century, Maryfield Nursing Home has provided outstanding nursing care in a Catholic environment. When you need more care than is available at your home, come visit us. We invite you to discover for yourself our many stimulating daily activities and services which make Maryfield the best possible choice for Long Term Care.
1315 Greensboro Road
High Point, NC 27260
336.886.2444 Fax 336.886.4036
www.greensboro.com/mnh
MARYFIELD
A Continuing Care Retirement Community

The Pope Speaks

POPE JOHN PAUL II

Pope, at audience, tells faithful to contemplate Transfiguration

By BENEDICTA CIPOLLA
Catholic News Service

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — Contemplation of the Lord's transfiguration represents an opportunity to live out Scripture in daily life, Pope John Paul II said.

"In Christ's resurrection, what was mysteriously concealed in the transfiguration on (Mount) Tabor becomes reality," the pope said April 26 at his weekly general audience.

Speaking to some 40,000 pilgrims on a warm spring morning in St. Peter's Square, he urged the faithful to ascend spiritually up Mount Tabor to immerse themselves in the light of God's mystery, "to listen to the word of Scripture and put it into practice."

Continuing a cycle of reflections on the Trinity at his weekly catechesis, the pope emphasized the threefold dimension of Jesus' transfiguration.

"The presence of the Father, with his revelatory voice, is explicit," he said. "Christian tradition also sees implicitly the presence of the Holy Spirit."

As the spirituality of the Eastern Church suggests, said the pope, "the liturgy of the Transfiguration presents, in the three apostles Peter, James and John, a human triad that contemplates the divine Trinity."

While the transfiguration foreshadows Christ's glorious coming, "it also reminds us that it is necessary to overcome many obstacles in order to enter into the Kingdom of God," he said.

Among those at the audience were prisoners on special leave from a jail in Palermo, Sicily.

In an April 24 press release, Palermo Mayor Leoluca Orlando said the unusual pilgrimage marked the first time prisoners would attend a papal audience.

"It seems to me a sign of civility and sensitivity on the part of the overseeing judge who granted authorization and the prison workers who will accompany (the prisoners) on this pilgrimage," he said.

Following the audience, the pope flew by helicopter to his holiday residence in Castel Gandolfo, where he had been resting since April 24. He was expected to return to Rome for the April 30 canonization of Blessed Faustina Kowalska, a Polish nun who inspired the Divine Mercy devotion.

Considering the source

You've probably noticed that a whole lot of people seem to have an interest in your life and your decisions. Everyone has an opinion about what you should do with your time, your money and your entire life.

Parents, teachers, religious figures, advertisers, magazine writers and even the people who dream up those motivational posters that paper the wall of your classroom: They all know, they all have the secret, they all will fill your ear with advice if you just let them. How do you know whose advice to listen to?

It's really not so difficult to figure out. Just remember this simple phrase and slip it into an easy-to-reach spot in your conscience: Consider the source. Think about who's talking and why.

For example, print, broadcast and billboard advertising don't come right out and order you to hand over your money for alcohol or cigarettes, but what they do is much more powerful. They employ experts in human behavior to figure out what combination of images and sounds will get you to associate their products with happiness.

From the time you could see, you've been surrounded by these images, and for some of you they've worked: You associate holding a stick of tobacco between your fingers with sophistication. Think of beer, and you think, in general terms, of good times, friends and relaxation.

It's the same with any product, even those less directly harmful than alcohol and tobacco: Product manufacturers who make everything from shoes to movies, from cars to soft drinks, work hard to get you into the habit of assuming that a part of your happiness and even more of your coolness depends on buying their stuff. Consider the source.

Next case: sex. You're surrounded by voices yelling, screaming and, of course, seductively whispering the message that sex is OK, no matter when or with whom. They tell you that sex isn't much more than one more casual pastime in this universe of fun things to do, and there's no harm that will come as long as you're "safe." Consider the source.

Think what would happen if, by some amazing miracle, every teen and young person decided to embrace chastity, not only in terms of their bodies, but in relation to their inner lives as well. What would happen if all of us chose to surround ourselves with sounds, images and words that help us shape our best selves rather than appeal to our basest instincts? Who'd lose?

The list of those who would lose is pretty long: condom companies; pharmaceutical corporations that manufacture birth-control pills; abortion clinics; Planned Parenthood; lots of record companies and movie studios; television networks, especially MTV, UPN and the WB; countless magazines.

Now, just for a moment, go over the messages from the other side: Be responsible, treasure sexuality as a sacred gift, treat your body with care and use your resources — talents, time and money — as if they're gifts. Who tells you all that stuff? Parents. Teachers. The church.

Do they have anything to gain if you buy it? Do they make any money or get rich? No.

So why are they so anxious for you to take it seriously? Maybe because they know it's true. Maybe because they want you to be the best person you can be. Maybe because they want you to find lasting, true happiness and peace. Maybe because they love you.

Like I said, consider the source.

Coming of Age

AMY WELBORN
CNS Columnist

Letters to the Editor

Send your Letters to the Editor to Joann S. Keane, 1123 South Church Street, Charlotte, NC 28203 or e-mail to jskeane@charlottediocese.org.We reserve the right edit all letters. Opinions expressed in letters or guest columns do not necessarily reflect the views of this newspaper or its publisher.

"Keeping the Faith"

I am writing to express a concern about the review of the movie "Keeping the Faith" by Anne Navarro in your April 14 issue. To use the author's word, I find one of the paragraphs in her article rather "troubling."

I am the Catholic partner in a Jewish/Catholic interfaith marriage and my wife and I have had the opportunity to see (and thoroughly enjoy) the movie.

Overall, I think the movie is a fine celebration of the richness in life that comes with interfaith dialogue and relationships. While I understand the concerns raised by Anne Navarro about how a Catholic priest is portrayed, another concern she expressed stopped my reading in my tracks. At the bottom of the second column, Navarro writes that "[Anna's] willingness to leave behind her implied Christian roots is troubling even though it is clear that she has only become interested in her own spirituality through Jake's influence."

I assume that the source of her comment is the storyline that Anna is taking classes about Judaism at the synagogue. The desire to learn about another's faith does not necessarily imply a desire to convert, or even a dissatisfaction with one's own faith. Learning about the things that are important to a significant other can be a tremendous sign of respect that should be encouraged. It is also the first step toward meaningful dialogue about differences in belief, whatever those beliefs may be.

Even if that learning leads to a spritual awakening and a conversion to another faith, I have a very difficult time labelling that process as troubling, as Navarro claims. If Navarro is standing in judgment of this kind of personal conversion as a representative of the Catholic Church, I would even say that I am offended. While I place tremendous personal value in the beliefs and teachings of the Catholic Church, I find it disrespectful to assume that another person cannot lead an authentically good and spiritual life simply because they follow another, non-Christian faith tradition.

Jim Donnelly
Greensboro, NC

P.S. I was particularly struck by the contrast of Navarro's comment with the "Tikkun Olam: 'Repairing the World'" article on Page 7, same issue, which very much seems to celebrate the success of the interfaith housing blitz held recently in Greensboro.

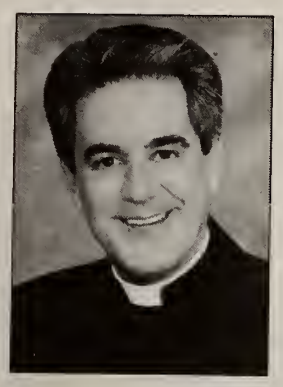
Picture of violence?

While it is necessary to report the religious war going on in Indonesia against Christians, I do not believe the picture you printed on (World Briefs — April 14) is very helpful.

The picture in question depicts a Muslim brandishing a daggar and seemingly full of rage. The picture may be accurate. However, in my opinion it lends to stereotyping, which in turn feeds prejudice, which in turn continues to feed the cycle of violence.

Our response must always be the gentle and humble Christ, who teaches us to love our enemies. Encouraging stereotypical thinking, whether intentional or not, should not be what we are about in our diocesan newspaper.

Rev. Joseph Zuschmidt, OSFS
Immaculate Heart of Mary Church
High Point, NC



Light One Candle

FATHER THOMAS J. McSWEENEY
Guest Columnist

Lessons from Mom School

Don't talk with your mouth full.

I don't care what they do at your friend's house. We don't do that here.

Be careful with that thing. You'll poke your eye out.

Go ahead. Have your own way. But don't blame me if you get hurt.

Let me kiss it and make it better.

I don't care what your brother/sister did/ said. You're older and should know better.

You probably recognize these as classic Mom lines. You have probably noticed that it makes no difference what cultural background or generation to which you belong. Some things just transcend personal differences. You could be in a grocery store or walking down the street and suddenly you hear a conversation between mother and youngster that transports you to your own childhood.

I don't quite understand it, but it's almost as though a new mother wakes up with a baby in her arms and sounding as though she just got an 'A' in Mom Talk 101. And, yes, dads often say the same things, and even have a few lines of their own. But there is still something about the way Mom says it ...

My favorite: I don't care if everybody's doing it. If everybody jumped off a cliff, would you do that, too?

Many mothers and fathers are legitimately concerned that peer pressure makes it too hard for their sons and daughters to resist going along with the crowd. After all, more than a few adults can't seem to help trying to keep up with those Joneses. Nobody ever said moms and dads have all the answers.

Speaking as a person who sees parenting only from a distance, it still strikes me that among the many things moms and dads have to worry about, encouraging youngsters to value their uniqueness and to think for themselves has to be high on the list. This is not to be confused with an "I've got to be me" attitude which can make individuality synonymous with insensitivity and selfishness. Unfortunately, some people in every generation feel that way, whatever they call it.

No. I am talking about two things: first, appreciating and using the God-given qualities that make us what we are; second, exercising our intellects to form critical judgments rather than merely accepting others' opinions. These things are not easy. Building a keen sense of self-worth that allows us to stand up for ourselves and our beliefs without trampling on the rights of others can be a challenge. Going that extra step in getting both reason and conscience to be our guides demands even more. It calls for character. And after parents have taken care of the basics of food, clothing and shelter, nothing is as necessary as developing a child's character.

Let me share a Chinese proverb that says a lot about the importance of what parents do: "If you are planning for one year, grow rice. If you are planning for twenty years, grow trees. If you are planning for centuries, grow individuals."

If you want to see the face of the future, you're looking at it every time you say: Don't forget your lunch. ...Pick up your clothes. Do I look like a maid? ...Because I say so, that's why. . . .

Happy Mother's Day!

Family Reflections

ANDREW & TERRI LYKE
Guest Columnist

Marriage and community

We've been ministering to the engaged for very long time, about eighteen years. Because our program is diocesan based, it's not common to reconnect with those we serve. Sometimes priests report to us that our program is well received. Rarely do we hear from the couples. However, when we do, they truly enrich us.

At a Lenten presentation Andrew gave at a parish a woman approached him and handed him a letter. In it she wrote that the PreCana she and her husband attend before their wedding, one that we facilitated, has positively affect their marriage. She thanked us for sharing our stories and inspiring them to seek adventure in their marriage. She said that we had been mentors for them.

That letter really made our day.

This got us thinking more about the relationship our marriage has with the community. Because of our work in marriage ministry, it's easy to see ourselves as mentors to the married and engaged we serve in the Church. But what about the other many marriages in our lives, in our families, our neighborhood, our parish, our workplaces? Does our light shine with them?

We thought about the many couples who have been mentors to us. Those that have touched us most deeply are those who resisted advice-giving, even when we asked for it. They were simply open and inviting. They opened their lives to us so that we could observe them; they invited us into their intimacy by sharing their faith, their trials and triumphs.

As we advance through the stages of family life, we find ourselves recalling notes from lessons learned from these mentors who allowed us to walk with them through their stages. It's like having a template ready for us to input our own unique story. We are better able to transition each phase with confidence, hope and faith because of what we have witnessed in them.

Thinking about how much we appreciated the woman's letter, we realized that we too have some letters to write, emails to send and phone calls to make.

None of us knows we are mentors until someone tells us. Mentors can neither volunteer nor be assigned. They are chosen.

Some questions to consider: Is your marriage open so others may see your light? Do you invite others into your intimacy to witness your broken-ness as well as your strengths? Do others have reason for confidence, hope and faith because of what they've witnessed in you?

Who are the marriage mentors in your life? Whose marriages have given you a template into which you have or will put your story? Think about them... then write or call them to say "Thank you."

You'll really make their day.

Andrew & Terri Lyke are coordinators of marriage ministry in the African-American community for the Archdiocese of Chicago.

Question Corner

FATHER JOHN DIETZEN
CNS Columnist

How important was Pontius Pilate?

Q. Why is Pontius Pilate so singularly featured in the Apostles' Creed? He certainly has received more than his 15 minutes of fame.

He's not that important, is he? Why this personal identification, rather than a generic "governor" or "Roman authority?"

A. I used to be greatly puzzled by this; too. He was a relatively minor, though obviously influential, figure in the earthly life of Jesus. Yet, in the Nicene creed as well, apart from Jesus and Mary, he is the only human being referred to by name.

One reason may be to affix the earthly life and death of Jesus firmly in human history. He did not drop into the story of the human family in some vague time or place. He had a mother and family, he ate, walked and lived among fellow humans, and he died in the clear context of, and involved in, the political and religious and military chaos that characterizes so much of the human story.

In this we would have something similar to Luke's listing (Chapter 3) of specific civil authorities, including Pontius Pilate by the way, at the beginning of Jesus' public life. Though Luke's dates for these officials were not entirely accurate, he obviously wished to situate the public presence and preaching of Jesus in a specific time frame of Jewish and Roman history.

Perhaps something similar was in mind when the major Christian creeds were formed.

Interestingly, Pilate comes off in the Gospels with a much better reputation than in other more official Roman records. He had an unenviable reputation as one of the cruelest, obstinate and harsh Roman officials.

He seems to have had a particular antipathy toward Jews and Samaritans. Because of Jewish religious objections to images, Roman authorities generally did not bring images of Caesar into their territory.

Once, however, Pilate sneaked some of these images into Judaea during the night. After five days of protest by a large number of Jewish authorities at his residence in Caesaria, Pilate assembled them in the stadium and released his soldiers to slaughter them.

When something similar happened to a religious procession in Samaria, Pilate was called to Rome, and we never hear of him again.

The apparent budding concerns he had about justice and personal integrity which we read of in the passion stories of the Gospels seem to have been out of character, unless his reactions at that time grew out of his resentment against the body of Jewish leaders.

A free brochure in English or Spanish answering questions Catholics ask about baptism practices and sponsors is available by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Father John Dietzen, Box 325, Peoria, IL 61651.

Questions may be sent to Father Dietzen at the same address, or e-mail: jjdietzen@aol.com.

India comes to diocese via women religious

By ALESHA M. PRICE
Staff Writer

HIGH POINT — Guests, diocesan officials and parishioners all squeezed into the quaint chapel in the newly renovated St. Vincent's Convent on the grounds of Christ the King Church on April 27. Those in attendance were able to catch a glimpse of the sisters in full habit who are now living in High Point. Bishop William G. Curlin traveled to celebrate Mass and bless the convent where women religious from the Congregation of the Sisters of Charity of St. Vincent de Paul from Kerala, India, have come to serve the needs of the Catholic community and people of other denominations in the area.

The bishop addressed the sisters during his homily: "Sisters, we welcome you to the Diocese of Charlotte, and we want to show you our love and support. You have given up your own country to travel many miles to help alleviate the hunger for God in this world. You bring with you a rich history of traditions and customs from your native land. I know they will become blessings for all of us through your devoted ministry."

From the bishop's invitation, the five sisters, Sister Philo, assistant superior, Sister Molly Jose, Sister Liza, Sister Pushpa, Sister Archana and Sister Maria Celine, superior, have settled into their new home in High Point with Father Philip Kollithanath, pastor of Christ the King Church. The five sisters had flown from India with Sister Primosa, superior general, earlier in the month to join Sister Maria Celine who has been living in High Point since October to help with the establishment of the Hispanic center at Christ the King Church.

"We have felt very welcomed by the people here, and we have positive feelings about the work that needs to be done for the people in this area," said Sister Primosa.

"We have felt very welcomed by the people here, and we have positive feelings about the work that needs to be done for the people in this area," said Sister Primosa.

The sisters will be working with primarily with the church's Hispanic center and the growing Hispanic population at the church and throughout the city. They will branch off into their specific jobs after they have become more familiar with the community and the city. Their areas of specialization include education, math, social work, counseling and others.

"There is serious work to be done, and the sisters will experience community life before deciding what to do," said Father Kollithanath. "The parish is excited and happy to have them here."

Sister Maria Celine, who is also the director of the Hispanic center, said, "We will work wherever we are needed in the parish and also in the community — whoever needs our help. We want to do the best work we can and provide our resources to everyone." ▼

Contact Staff Writer Alesha M. Price by calling (704) 370-3354 or e-mail amprice@charlottediocese.org.

Photo by Alesha M. Price

Women religious from the Congregation of the Sisters of Charity of St. Vincent de Paul from Kerala, India, are living in St. Vincent's Convent on the grounds of Christ the King Church in High Point and will be working within the community.

4PM SERVICES
T-SHIRTS-N-MORE
PROFESSIONAL SCREENPRINTING
CHURCH & COMPANY EVENTS
TEAM PRINTING
SCHOOL ACTIVITIES
AND MUCH MORE
T-SHIRTS, GOLF SHIRTS, CAPS
JACKETS, SWEAT SHIRTS
LONG SLEEVE T-SHIRTS
OFFICE 704-624-3244
TOLL FREE-877-237-4965
FAX 704-624-3244
PROUD MEMBER OF OUR LADY OF LOURDES

Groce
FUNERAL HOME & CREMATION SERVICE
1401 Patton Ave. Asheville, NC (828) 252-3535
72 Long Shoals Road Arden, NC (828) 687-3530
Assuring Absolute Integrity
Asheville's Catholic Funeral Directors
Dale Groce • John Prock
Toll-free (888) 874-3535
Pre-arrangements and obituaries on-line at www.grocefuneralhome.com

Classifieds

Classified ads bring results! Over 110,000 readers! Over 43,000 homes!
Rates: $.50/word per issue ($10 minimum per issue)
Deadline: 12 noon Wednesday, 9 days before publication date
How to order: Ads may be faxed to (704) 370-3382 or mailed to:
Cindi Feerick, The Catholic News & Herald, 1123 S. Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203.
Payment: Ads may be pre-paid or billed. For information, call (704) 370-3332.

EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES

Computer Teacher: K-8, for 2000-2001 at St. Leo Catholic School, 333 Springdale, Winston-Salem, NC 27104. NC certification required (or in process). Call (336) 748-8252 for application and information. Submit resume to Georgette Schraeder, principal.

Director of Life Teen Ministry: Vibrant, 4,000-family parish seeks a full-time Director for one of the largest Life Teen programs in the country, serving 200-300 high school teens weekly. Director works in collaboration with two other full-time staff members devoted to youth ministry and manages a wonderful team of 25-30 adult volunteers. Responsibilities include liturgical preparation for the Teen Mass, directing the "Life Night" program that provides teens with creative faith formation, and Confirmation preparation. Preferred candidates have education in ministry or theology, experience in youth ministry, and a heart for sharing Christ's love with young people. Contact Liz Riegel, St. Michael Catholic Church, 804 High House Road, Cary, NC 27513 (919) 468-6134; Fax: (919)468-6130, lizreigel@hotmail.com.

Teachers: Our Lady of the Assumption Catholic School in Charlotte has openings beginning in August for a Pre-School Teacher and a Transitional Kindergarten Teacher. Part-time positions. NC teacher certification required. Call (704)531-0067.

Teachers, Campus Minister and Library/Media Director: Charlotte Catholic High School has the following full-time teaching positions open for the 2000-2001 school year: Math, Chemistry, English, Religion, Social Studies, Spanish, and Drama. Must have NC Teaching Certification. Also, part-time Library/Media Director and part-time Campus Minister are needed. Call (704)543-1127.

Youth Minister: Our growing parish community of 1900 families is seeking a full-time Youth Minister for our established Total Youth Ministry program for youth grades 6 through 12. Responsibilities include spiritual and program development while working together with a committed team of 50 adults. Candidate should be: faith-filled, enthusiastic, organized, creative and team-oriented. Experienced with a B.A. in Theology or related field. Salary and benefits commensurate with degree and experience. Send a resume and a statement of your vision of Youth Ministry to: Search Committee, St. Paul the Apostle Catholic Church, 2715 Horse Pen Creek Rd., Greensboro, NC 27410 or fax to (336)294-6149.

Youth Minister: A half-time position as a Youth Minister is available at Immaculate Heart of Mary Parish in High Point, NC (1000 households). The parish has a Total Youth Ministry Program, which includes the Confirmation Program, for middle and high school youth. Applicants must be a practicing Catholic and a member of a Catholic parish. Experience in Youth Ministry and Religious Education is desirable. Send resume and references to Search Committee, IHM Church, 605 Barbee Ave., High Point, NC 27262. Fax (336)884-1849. For more information call (336)884-5212.

Youth/Young Adult Ministry Director: A tri-parish (including one Hispanic) Catholic community of 1800 families in a university setting is seeking a full-time Director of Youth and Young Adult Ministry to implement comprehensive youth ministry as described in "Renewing the Vision." Candidate should have prior ministry experience, and be able to work collaboratively with staff and members of parish community. Background in Theology, Christian Formation, and/or certification in youth ministry desired. Please contact Rev. Bernard Campbell, CSP, P.O. Box 112, Clemson, SC 29633 or (864)654-1757.

FREE TO A GOOD HOME

Beautiful, affectionate gray and white female cat looking for a good home. Three years old; fixed; up-to-date on shots. Found abandoned and brought inside. Needs a home without other animals. Please call Joyce: (704)896-0152.

FOR SALE

Queen Mattress Set: New, in plastic. Full warrantee. Retail $400; sell for $195. Call (704)556-9674.

SERVICES OFFERED

Home Care: In-hoime care for your loved one. Thorough background checks on all caregivers. Serving Henderson, Transylvania, Polk counties. COMPASSIONATE COMPANIONS, INC., (828)696-0946.

PRAYERS & INTENTIONS

Thanks to St. Jude, St. Joseph, and the Blessed Virgin Mary for prayers answered. B.F.

Catholic educators gather in Baltimore for annual NCEA convention

By CAROL ZIMMERMANN
Catholic News Service

BALTIMORE (CNS) — More than 12,000 Catholic educators spent four days of their spring break in Baltimore April 25-28 getting ideas on how they could do their jobs better.

At workshops and general sessions, participants in the 97th annual National Catholic Educational Association convention delved into the range of challenges they encounter now in their daily routines and those they will face in the future of Catholic education. Fifty-one administrators and teachers from 14 schools in the Diocese of Charlotte attended the convention.

They also received some recognition for their work.

"You do change lives, and I have no doubt you have saved lives," said the convention's opening speaker Tim Russert, Washington bureau chief of NBC News and moderator of the weekly program "Meet the Press."

"The secret of your success," he told the educators, "is that you believe in something — in your God, your values, yourselves, your students."

Russert said his father, who never finished high school, worked two jobs all his life so his four children could go to Catholic schools. And when Russert attended Canisius High School in Buffalo, N.Y., he said Sister Mary Lucille, founder of the school newspaper, appointed him as editor and had a major impact on his life.

Dr. Benjamin Carson, director of pediatric neurosurgery at Johns Hopkins Medical Institution in Baltimore, also credited teachers, along with his mother, for enabling him to be where he was today.

During the April 27 general session, Carson praised the fifth-grade science teacher who took an interest in him and "made a huge difference."

"Sometimes God puts us in people's live to reach out to them," he told the Catholic educators, encouraging them to always help their students realize their academic talents and live up to their God-given potential.

The closing keynote address, given by Patricia McGuire, president of Trinity College in Washington, emphasized the need to bring Catholic social teaching alive in today's classrooms.

Saying "social justice is at the heart of who we are," McGuire urged the educators not to merely pass on church teachings, but to instruct their students to be effective advocates for the poor and vulnerable.

She said students particularly need to understand the church's teaching on solidarity, the very opposite of what was experienced by the two teen-agers who shot down their classmates and teacher last year at Columbine High School. Those two young men, she said, felt the extremes of isolation and alienation.

McGuire was not the only one to mention the Columbine shooting during the convention.

At least 10 workshops focused on school safety and violence prevention. Some offered suggestions for school safety plans and pointed out potential warning signs for violence or gang and cult involvement. Other workshops emphasized how to teach students conflict resolution and the urgent need for students to respect those who are different.

"Unfortunately, it's only a matter of time before it's one of us" who will have to handle an outbreak of violence in school, said workshop presenter Sister Mary Angela Shaughnessy.

Sister Shaughnessy, a Sister of Charity of Nazareth, Ky., and an education professor at Spalding University in Louisville, said the time to figure out what to do in a crisis situation is before something actually happens.

During her workshop, a majority of hands went up when participants were asked how many had a crisis plan. The number was a noticeable shift from the previous year, she said, when only about half the participants acknowledged having such a plan.

Another big topic at this year's convention was technology. At least 25 workshops featured some aspect of what's out there, such as how to build a school Web page; using the Internet, video cameras or laptops in the classroom; and training teachers to become proficient in all of this.

Delegates could also not avoid technology at the convention's exposition hall.

This year's NCEA convention drew its largest number of exhibitors — 2,684. At least 80 booths sold some kind of technological wares — everything from computer hardware and software to Internet providers, online fund raisers, every range of equipment for the classroom, and the ever-necessary programs for teacher training.

Other groups that met during the NCEA convention included the National Association of Catechetical Directors, or NACD, and the Catholic Library Association.

At a banquet sponsored by the NCEA Department of Elementary Schools, Lorraine Málphurs, a teacher at St. Pius X School in Greensboro, received the NCEA Distinguished Teacher Award. She is the representative of the South Atlantic States Region.

Religious educators were urged to seek out help of families, teachers, pastors and others in the community in their work of forming people in the faith.

"We have to stop thinking we can do this all by ourselves," said Thomas Groome, Boston College theology professor, in a keynote address to the NACD.

Although how to best train people in the faith was the topic of many a workshop, some more practical issues were also raised during the convention.

Dr. Michael Skube, superintendent of schools, presented a session on "regional school boards and how they can be effective." Also, Joseph Marinello, diocesan school board member, attended workshops dealing with issues under discussion by the board.

NCEA officials released annual figures on Catholic school enrollment, showing a pattern of "slow and steady growth" in the 1999-2000 school year with an increase of 4,600 students over the previous year.

That increase came despite a net loss of 36 schools, with the closing or consolidation of 73 schools and the opening of 37 new schools. More than 3,700 of the nation's 8,144 Catholic schools currently have waiting lists for admission. ▼

Carolina Volkswagen
6625 E. Independence Blvd., Charlotte
(704) 537-2336 • (800) 489-2336

Biggest Selection — Drivers wanted. — Lowest Prices

"Nothing Could Be Finer" Members of St. Gabriel

#1 Volkswagen Dealer in Charlotte and all the Carolinas for customer sales and service satisfaction! C'mon in and see why!

The Diocese of Charlotte
Catholic Social Services
1123 South Church St.
Charlotte, NC 28203
www.cssnc.org

For information on specific programs, please call your local office.

Administration, Refugee, Justice & Peace, Special Ministries
Executive Director: Elizabeth Thurbee (704) 370-3228
(704) 370-3298 fax
Refugee Office: Cira Ponce (704) 370-6930
(704) 370-3290 fax
Justice & Peace: Joanne K. Frazer (704) 370-3225
(704) 370-3377 fax
Special Ministries: Gerard A. Carter (704) 370-3228
(704) 370-3377 fax
Charlotte Area Office
1123 South Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203
Geri King (704) 370-3232 (704) 370-3377 fax
Western Area Office
35 Orange Street, Asheville, NC 28801
Sr. Marie Frechette (828) 255-0146 (828) 253-7339 fax
Piedmont Triad Area Office
621 W. Second Street, P.O. Box 10962, Winston-Salem, NC 27108
Area Director: David Harold (336) 727-0705
(336) 727-9333 fax
Satellite Office
Greensboro, NC (336) 274-5577

Remain in control of your life.

Help protect yourself and your family from financial and emotional stress with Long Term Care insurance.

AIG Life Companies' Total LTC

Lets YOU decide what kind of care you want and need
Lets YOU decide where you will receive that care
Lets YOU decide how you will keep your independence

(800) 859-7847
(336) 768-4709
Call TOM PRYBYLO
RETIREMENT SPECIALIST
to customize a plan to fit your needs
Spelman and Co., Inc.
A SunAmerica Company
351 N. Peacehaven Road, Winston-Salem, NC 27104
Member NASD, SIPC Member St. Leo's parish

Bruce Springsteen dedicates song to PFADP, supports moratorium

RALEIGH — At two concerts in North Carolina over Easter weekend Bruce Springsteen encouraged, 44,000 fans to sign a petition for a moratorium on executions. At each concert he dedicated his song "Dead Man Walking" to People of Faith Against the Death Penalty, based in Chapel Hill.

During his acoustic set he encouraged the audience at Charlotte Coliseum Friday night to visit PFADP's table in the hall. "They have a petition for a moratorium on executions. No matter how you feel about the death penalty, this is your opportunity to be heard," Springsteen told his fans. "They can answer your questions.... This is for People of Faith Against the Death Penalty."

He repeated the dedication at Raleigh's Sports and Entertainment Complex on Saturday night. On both nights when he made the dedication, voices from the crowd cheered.

Volunteers with People of Faith Against the Death Penalty met members of the E Street Band backstage Saturday night. PFADP Executive Director Stephen Dear met with Springsteen backstage Saturday night and discussed the group's work and thanked him for his support. Dear gave Springsteen and his manager copies of the book "Unjust in the Much: The Death Penalty in North Carolina," PFADP t-shirts and other literature.

More than 500 people signed the petition. After Springsteen mentioned it each night people lined up to sign the petition.

"We are very grateful to Mr. Springsteen and his management for their support and hospitality this past weekend," Dear said. "He has helped to inform North Carolinians about this important issue."

Since 1984 Springsteen has plugged local food banks at all of his shows.

Although he reportedly does not like to tell his fans what to believe, he agreed to support PFADP after the group requested his help and familiarized him with its work to inform North Carolinians about problems with the death penalty.

PFADP is leading the NC Moratorium Now campaign to call for a moratorium on executions in recognition of widespread evidence of racial and class bias in the administration of the death penalty and the fact that so far 87 have been released from death row after being proven innocent.

PFADP is a statewide interfaith program of the N.C. Council of Churches and is supported by individual and congregation member dues and contributions. ▼

Song and Praise
Parishioners of Sacred Heart in Wadesboro believe, "a church without embrace is only a shadow of a church." This philosophy was part of an Afternoon of Song, Praise and Fellowship, a shared community celebration in Anson County. Teresa Yackley and Bonnie Stovall, choir members from St. James in Hamlet, raise their voices as participants in the April 30 celebration. The music feast included gospel music from Voices of Harmony, a family trio from Charlotte; and Notes of Praise, from Lilesville. Rounding out the afternoon was the children's choir from Sacred Heart.

PHOTO BY JOANN S. KEANE

VOCATIONS

Is God calling you?

Rev. Mr. Chris Gober
is a transitional deacon in the Diocese of Charlotte. He is completing formation at Theological College in Washington D.C. He will be ordained in June 2000.

"In high school, I never would have pictured myself preparing for the priesthood. Busy having fun with friends and sports, the future seemed too distant to be important.

After graduation, I starting wondering: 'What's life all about? What is my mission?'

As a child, I had been taught to pray: 'God help me to be what you want me to be.' Once again I prayed and God answered — and those deep, important questions, too. He led me to seek ordination to the priesthood!

I am here to tell you that seeking and doing God's will has given me more fulfillment and happiness than I could ever imagine! If we sincerely pray, 'God help me to be what you want me to be,' it works!

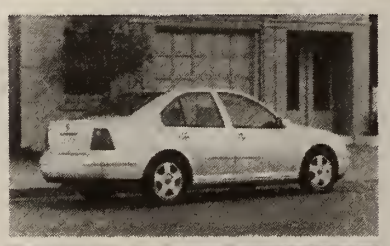
It's never to late to ask God what He wants you to be... just don't be shocked by His answer!"

... Are you answering His call?

For more information about serving God as a priest in the Diocese of Charlotte, please contact Father John Allen,
The Office of Vocations, The Roman Catholic Diocese of Charlotte, 1123 South Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203.
(704) 370-3353 • vocations@charlottediocese.org

JOHANNUS CHURCH ORGANS
America's best value in sound & price.
SYNTHIA MUSIC SYSTEMS
Catholic Hymns at the push of a button.
SOUND SYSTEMS
Totally wireless systems and hearing impaired devices.
CHURCH PIANOS
Quality pianos for affordable prices.
ELECTRONIC ORGAN SERVICE ON ALL MAKES

Music & Electronics, Inc.
Corner of Oak & Broad Streets, Mooresville, NC
(704) 663-7007 — (800) 331-0768



We Warn You: If You Drive One You're Gonna Want One!

Volkswagen and Audi...the only car companies to have every model named best in its class. Find out why. Come in for a thrill ride today.

Honest pricing, honest financing, and honest service on Europe's most exciting new cars. From the incredible New Beetle, to the all new Jetta IV and luxurious new generation of Audi, we have the right car for your pocketbook...and your lifestyle.

Volkswagen—Audi South
John Diederich, Owner
Member Saint Gabriel Parish

7401 South Boulevard . Charlotte . 704.552.6500 . 800.426.5347
www.vwsouth.com . www.audisouth.com

PERIODICALS
42083
NC COLLECTION
UNC
WILSON LIBRARY CB 3930
CHAPEL HILL NC 27599-0001
S316 P2

May 12, 2000
Volume 9 ▾ Number 35

The Catholic NEWS & HERALD

Serving Catholics in Western North Carolina in the Diocese of Charlotte

Inside

Catholic evangelist to headline tent revival
...PAGE 3

Perpetual adoration a key to eucharistic devotion
...PAGE 3

Three priests care for infant left on their doorstep
...PAGE 15

Local News

Teen retreat provides cultural and spiritual foundation
...PAGE 5

Living the Faith
Volunteer teacher absorbs culture and rediscovers roots
...PAGE 16

Every Week

Entertainment
...PAGES 10-11
Editorials & Columns
...PAGES 12-13

Faith Alive!

"Science and Faith"
...PAGES 8-9

— excerpt from "Mature Attention" in "The Place Within: The Poetry of Pope John Paul II"

PHOTO BY JOANN S. KEANE

Healing Mass offers glimpse of God's grace

BY ELLEN NEERINCX SIGMON
CORRESPONDENT

HICKORY — Formerly thought of as a rite reserved for those near death, the sacrament of anointing of the sick is now looked upon by the Church as a gift from God to assist in the healing of body, mind and soul.

During a healing Mass at St. Aloysius Church on Thursday, May 4, Father Ed Sheridan, pastor of the church, pointed out that the ages of those in attendance ranged from the very young to the very old.

"We are all in need of this sacrament — spiritually and physically," he said. "The idea is to give spiritual consolation and strength as well as physical healing — body and soul."

"It gives us all an opportunity to look and see in the life we live that there is suffering, there is sickness," he said. "We don't have to have a physical sickness. Sometimes physical sickness is not as bad as some of the other sicknesses we could have.

"I think all of us need the grace of God in our lives."

Father Sheridan referred to the biblical passage of James 5: 13-16 as the scriptural basis for the sacrament.

SEE HEALING MASS, PAGE 4

Funeral recalls Cardinal O'Connor's pro-life witness

BY TRACY EARLY
CATHOLIC NEWS SERVICE

NEW YORK (CNS) — The pro-life witness of Cardinal John J. O'Connor of New York continued to resound at his funeral, celebrated at St. Patrick's Cathedral May 8 by Cardinal Angelo Sodano, Vatican secretary of state and personal representative of Pope John Paul II.

A dramatic demonstration arose spontaneously when the homilist, Cardinal Bernard F. Law of Boston, said Cardinal O'Connor's "great legacy" was "his constant reminder that the church must always be unambiguously pro-life."

Some in the cathedral began applauding, others joined them and, as the applause went on and on, growing in volume, it seemed evident much of the congregation wanted to send a message to public officials and candidates for office in the front pews.

They included President Clinton and his wife, Hillary, as well as the two main candidates for the presidency, Vice President Al Gore and Texas Gov. George W. Bush.

Also attending were former President Bush, who sat in a pew with Cardinal O'Connor's family, New York Gov. George E. Pataki, New York City Mayor Rudolph W. Giuliani, and the state's two U.S. senators, Daniel Patrick Moynihan and Charles E. Schumer.

Giuliani has been planning to run against Mrs. Clinton to succeed Moynihan, but the funeral of Cardinal O'Connor, who died of cancer May 3, may have brought more personal reflections for the mayor, whose father died of prostate cancer and who recently announced that he has it, too.

As the two-minute ovation continued, people began standing in a wave that began at the back and quickly filled the entire church, including the hundreds of priests in the congregation and the dozens of cardinals, archbishops and bishops around the altar.

Eventually the Clintons and Gores also rose to their feet, although they did not applaud.

Cardinal Law took the standing

SEE CARDINAL O'CONNOR, PAGE 7

Jubilee year event draws 20,000 young people to Fenway Park

BOSTON (CNS) — Thousands of young Catholics were encouraged to commit their lives to Jesus and consider priestly and religious vocations April 29 at what was billed as the first nonsporting event at Boston's Fenway Park in 50 years. Teenagers, young adults and adult leaders began the day on the Boston Common with games, music, eucharistic adoration and vocations information, then marched to the home of the Boston Red Sox for talks, music and a twilight Mass at which 11 people were baptized and confirmed at home plate.

Rector says Fatima shrine briefly owned Nazi gold

FATIMA, Portugal (CNS) — The Marian shrine in Fatima, Portugal, briefly owned some gold bars bearing the Nazi insignia, but only 30 years after World War II ended, the rector of the shrine said. Father Luciano Guerra, the Fatima rector, said that in 1970 the shrine purchased gold as an investment and deposited it in a local bank. The bank, which has since failed, borrowed some of the shrine's deposit and repaid the loan in 1976 "with some bars which bore the mark of the Third Reich," Father Guerra said. Between 1982 and 1986, he said in a May 2 statement, the shrine "sold a considerable quantity" of its gold deposits to pay for construction projects. All the bars with Nazi markings were among those sold.

Tens of thousands in Mexico mark National Eucharistic Congress

MEXICO CITY (CNS) — With the sound of indigenous drums echoing loudly off walls, tens of thousands of Mexicans joined in the first religious procession in nearly 150 years through the historic center of their ancient city. The May 6 procession and an earlier Mass in the city's main plaza, the Zocalo, capped a weeklong National Eucharistic Congress. Mexico City, founded by the Aztecs in 1325, had not seen such events since before a series of "reform" laws beginning in 1855 restricted the role of the church: In 1857, marriage and divorce were removed from church jurisdiction; in 1873, outdoor religious ceremonies were prohibited; the country's 1917 constitution went still further by proclaiming that the Catholic Church did not exist.

CNS PHOTO FROM REUTERS

Outdoor Mass in Mexico An estimated 50,000 worshippers attend an outdoor Mass in Mexico City's main square May 6. It was the largest outdoor Mass held in more than 70 years in the capital's main square.

CRS hopes to make social justice a basic subject in school

BALTIMORE (CNS) — Social justice shouldn't be a foreign subject in Catholic schools, according to Catholic Relief Service officials who gave presentations at the National Catholic Educational Association convention in Baltimore. That's why the U.S. bishops' overseas relief and development agency has been recruiting teachers and parent-teacher organizations to become more familiar with the work of CRS around the globe. "We must bridge the gap. We must teach our students to care," said Patrice Harty, a teacher at Bishop Fenwick High School in Middletown, Ohio, who was among a group of presenters giving an NCEA workshop April 26.

Puerto Rican bishop sees continued peaceful protests over Vieques

CAGUAS, Puerto Rico (CNS) — Church-sponsored civil disobedience on Vieques will continue as long as the U.S. Navy uses the inhabited island as bombing range, said Puerto Rican Bishop Alvaro Corrada del Rio. "We are assessing the situation with the people of Vieques. We will return to areas where we can do civil disobedience," he said in a telephone interview several hours after federal agents removed scores of protesters from Vieques. Bishop Corrada is apostolic administrator of the Diocese of Caguas, which includes Vieques.

Colombian peace needs citizen effort, say activist, priest

WASHINGTON (CNS) — The proposed U.S. aid package for Colombia constitutes "a very high risk of escalating the war" in the country, and wider citizen involvement in peace efforts is greatly needed, said a Colombian peace activist. Meanwhile, a Colombian church official said the church aims to strengthen citizen participation in peace efforts, and, despite ongoing violence, people remain hopeful the war will end. President Clinton urged Congress May 2 to pass a $1.6 billion aid package, mostly military aid, to fight illegal drug trafficking in Colombia. He said the funding was to support Colombians in their fight to stop drug trade and drug-related violence.

Understanding Jewish roots key to reading Scripture, says priest

ROME (CNS) — When reading the New Testament, Catholics must remember that Jesus and his Apostles were believing and practicing Jews, said the secretary of the Pontifical Biblical Commission. Understanding the Jewish roots of the Christian faith is essential for an accurate interpretation of the New Testament and for a reading of the Scriptures that leaves no room for anti-Jewish or anti-Semitic sentiments, said Jesuit Father Albert Vanhoye. The Jesuit spoke to Catholic News Service May 3 during the annual meeting of the Pontifical Biblical Commission in Rome.

Survey finds pastors undercount Catholics with disabilities

WASHINGTON (CNS) — A new survey of U.S. pastors indicates most substantially underestimate how many Catholics with disabilities are in their parishes, said Mary Jane Owen, executive director of the National Catholic Office for Persons with Disabilities. "I'm not surprised at all," Owen added. "I don't think most pastors have been trained in who's out there, who needs to be welcomed. There are many people with disabilities who need to be welcomed home." She said many Catholics with disabilities are no longer visible to the church because they have repeatedly experienced "rejection, disrespect, in some case outrageous insults, or simply disinterest," leading them eventually to quit trying to connect with the parish.

The Catholic NEWS & HERALD

May 12, 2000
Volume 9 • Number 35
Publisher: Most Reverend William G. Curlin
Editor: Joann S. Keane
Associate Editor: Jimmy Rostar
Staff Writer: Alesha M. Price
Production Associate: Julie Radcliffe
Advertising Representative: Cindi Feerick
Secretary: Jane Glodowski
1123 South Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203
Mail: P.O. Box 37267, Charlotte, NC 28237
Phone: (704) 370-3333 FAX: (704) 370-3382
E-mail: catholicnews@charlottediocese.org

The Catholic News & Herald, USPC 007-393, is published by the Roman Catholic Diocese of Charlotte, 1123 South Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203, 44 times a year, weekly except for Christmas week and Easter week and every two weeks during June, July and August for $15 per year for enrollees in parishes of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Charlotte and $18 per year for all other subscribers. Second-class postage paid at Charlotte NC and other cities. POSTMASTER: Send address corrections to The Catholic News & Herald, P.O. Box 37267, Charlotte, NC 28237.

Episcopal calendar

Bishop William G. Curlin will take part in the following events:

May 15 — 7 pm
Confirmation
Our Lady of Mercy, Winston-Salem
May 16
Presbyteral Council Meeting
Pastoral Center
7 pm Confirmation
St. Dorothy, Lincolnton
May 17 — 9:30 am
Mass and May Procession
St. Ann, Charlotte
7:30 pm Confirmation
St. James, Concord
May 18
Foundation Board Meeting
Catholic Conference Center, Hickory
7 pm Confirmation
St. Patrick Cathedral, Charlotte
May 22 — 7 pm
Confirmation
St. Leo, Winston-Salem

Diocesan planner

May

16 WINSTON-SALEM — There is a natural family planning session at St. Leo the Great Church, 335 Springdale Ave., at 7:30 p.m. For details, call Tom and Mary Beth Young at (336) 922-0479.

17 CHARLOTTE — Jeff Cavins, Catholic apologist and host of the EWTN [illegible] and young adult program "Life on the Rock," is speaking about the Book of Revelation tonight at 7:30 p.m. at St. Vincent de Paul Church, 6828 Old Reid Rd. Call the church office at (704) 554-7088 for further information.

CHARLOTTE — Room at the Inn, a Catholic-sponsored home for unwed mothers providing a structured environment for pregnant women, is holding their annual Roman Gabriel Sports Benefit and Raffle tonight from 7-9 p.m. at St. Ann Church, 3635 Park Rd. The evening's festivities include a silent and live auction and a raffle for two PSL's (permanent seating licenses) to the Carolina Panthers' Stadium. All proceeds raised from the event will benefit the clients of Room at the Inn. For more information, contact Christine Lively at (704) 521-2774.

CHARLOTTE — Jesuit Father Gene McCreesh is the facilitator of "Spiritual Direction for Gays and Lesbians" tonight at 7 p.m. at St. Peter Church, 507 South Tryon. For more information, call the church office at (704) 332-5342.

18 CHARLOTTE — Spring Cursillo is an ongoing movement in the church for building a better Christian community. The men's weekend takes place through May 21 at St. Matthew Church, 8015 Ballantyne Commons Pkwy., and the women's weekend happens June 8-11 at St. Barnabas Church in Arden. For details, call Rosemary and Art Kingsley at (828) 274-0318.

19 GREENSBORO — "Living the Perpetual adoration a key to eucharistic devotion, say participants

By JIMMY ROSTAR
Associate Editor

Every late afternoon, Richard Cox of Charlotte makes his way to St. Gabriel Church to spend some quiet time in the presence of Jesus.

For several years, Cox has made the daily trek to the church as a participant in perpetual eucharistic adoration. In a chapel of the church, a consecrated host — the true, sacramental presence of Christ, in Catholic belief — is exposed in a vessel called a monstrance 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

The graces he receives from this ministry are plenty, Cox says.

"It's very helpful for me to come here," said Cox, whose wife, Loraine, died last year. "You know, there's a real bad period you go through after the loss of a spouse. Now, I feel closest to her at Mass and at adoration."

Outside of the Mass, adoration is one of the primary forms of devotion to the Eucharist. Three sites in this diocese host adoration perpetually, while many parishes have holy hours with exposition, as well as scheduled periods of time each month for adoration.

In the perpetual adoration chapels, people are scheduled to be in the chapels at all times, 365 days a year. Organizers schedule volunteers to adore, usually in one-hour periods. The spirit of volunteerism is essential to the program, from the adorers themselves to the organizers who coordinate specific time frames and oversee the ministry in their parishes.

Adorers spend their holy hours in a variety of ways, from reading prayer books to praying the rosary, from quiet meditation to reading from Scripture.

St. Gabriel Church, the chapel at Maryfield Nursing Home in High Point and a chapel on the grounds of Belmont Abbey in Belmont are three sites within the Diocese of Charlotte that host perpetual adoration. The ministry got its start in the diocese back in May 1989, when the Basilica of St. Lawrence in Asheville opened a perpetual adoration chapel.

Photo by Joann S. Keane

Adorers kneel in prayer before the Blessed Sacrament at the Basilica of St. Lawrence in Asheville.

The Asheville basilica still hosts adoration, daily from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

"Adoration has changed my life completely," said Jane Sorrells, an adorer and a coordinator of the adoration ministry at St. Lawrence. "It's made me so much more aware of what's going on around me. It has helped me to discern a lot of things."

Sorrells, who returned to the church in 1991 and has been a regular adorer since 1993, said eucharistic adoration helped her "absorb the truth" of the Catholic faith. She is now a daily communicant as well, a development in her faith life she owes to

See ADORATION, page 4

Catholic evangelist to headline tent revival

By JOANN S. KEANE
Editor

CHARLOTTE — If the notion of a tent revival conjures images of days gone by, and you enjoy a gospel celebration, mark your calendar for the weekend of June 23. Tent preaching is coming to town, Catholic style.

"Revival of the Spirit 2000, from everlasting to everlasting, God is still God" is the theme for this millennial celebration. It is, what the African American Affairs Ministry of the Diocese of Charlotte sees as a step towards breaking down misconceptions of Catholicism with their Protestant brothers and sisters.

Rev. Mr. Curtiss Todd, Vicar for African American Affairs, hopes a public display will bring in the neighbors. Moreover, Rev. Mr. Todd hopes to make this first-time revival a true diocesan event, with participation from across the diocese. With preaching and singing throughout the weekend — as well as food vendors and merchants selling African art, clothing and books on Saturday — Rev. Mr. Todd envisions a festival of the senses, culminating with Sunday liturgy.

"There are many converts to Catholicism that belonged to Protestant denominations where tent revivals were fairly commonplace," says Rev. Mr. Todd. "The revival is a connection back with history, and our roots."

Under what Rev. Mr. Todd calls "the biggest tent we can get," northwest Charlotte will sway with Our Lady of Consolation's gospel choir, and the acclaimed Kabaka drummers and dancers. If that's not enough to get folks out of their seats, the Pinn Memorial Baptist Choir from Philadelphia, African storytellers and a gospel rapper join the playbill as headliners for the weekend.

The weekend's esteemed visitor is a Franciscan from New York: Franciscan Father James Goode, nationally known as a Catholic evangelist preacher. "He's a revivalist," says Rev. Mr. Todd. "He's a preacher, not a homilist. He's not fire and brimstone preaching, but he is fervent."

Father Goode is president of the National Black Catholic Clergy Caucus. Last year, he was re-elected for a second term, becoming the first re-elected president in the three decades of the Caucus. He is president of the National Black Catholic Apostolate for Life. His vitae also lists him as Guardian of St. Clare Friary, the spiritual Leader for Solid Ground Ministry, a member of the National Black Congress and a commissioner for black Catholics in the Archdiocese of New York.

Father Goode is considered the founder of the black Catholic revival movement, preaching his first revival in 1974. "He is in great demand," says Rev. Mr. Todd. "We started planning this with him three years ago because his schedule is so tight." The jubilee year was the perfect timing for such a celebration, says Rev. Mr. Todd.

"Revival of the Spirit 2000, from everlasting to everlasting, God is still God" is scheduled for June 23 - 35, at the corner of Statesville Ave. and Oaklawn Ave. in Charlotte. While it is a free event, donations will be accepted to offset expenses. Blocks of rooms are reserved at both McDonald Travel Lodge and the Downtown Sheraton. Mention Tent Revival while making reservations. Rooms are limited, and early booking is encouraged. For more information, call Rev. Mr. Curtiss P. Todd, (704) 370-3339. ▼

Contact Editor Joann Keane by calling (704) 370-3336 or e-mail jskeane@charlottediocese.org.

Jubilee Year" is the theme for the annual Catholic Renewal Conference being held at Greensboro College, 815 West Market St. All are invited to share in this jubilee year gathering filled with music, praise and worship, speakers and morning Mass. A dorm lodging and meal package are available along with a weekend bookstore. The opening session starts tonight at 7:30 p.m. with sessions all day May 20. For more information, call Bette Steinkamp at (336) 882-9717 or e-mail for return message at Rstienkamp@infoave.net.

21 ASHEVILLE — The Catholic Association of Family Educators (C.A.F.E.), Western North Carolina's Catholic home school support group, is hosting a moms' evening tonight at 7 p.m. For more information, call Penny Tax at (828) 236-3216.

24 CHARLOTTE — There is a memorial Mass being held at St. Patrick Cathedral, 1621 Dilworth Rd. East, tonight at 7:30 p.m. for all those who have passed away during the month of May. Call the church office at (704) 334-2283 with the name(s) of loved ones so they can be remembered at Mass.

GREENSBORO — The Greensboro Council of Catholic Women is having their annual May luncheon at Sedgefield Country Club, beginning at 11:30 a.m. with a cash and spirits bar, fashion show featuring items from a local women's clothing store and raffle prizes. For May 18 deadline details and more information, call Janet Law at (336) 288-6022.

25 ASHEVILLE — All are invited to come to St. Joan of Arc Church, 919 Haywood Ave., for a healing Mass tonight at 7 p.m. Refreshments will follow the Mass. For more information, call the church office at (828) 252-3151.

Upcoming

CHARLOTTE — A volleyball camp will be held for rising sixth- through ninth-graders from July 17-20 from 9 a.m.-3 p.m. The coaches are going to be Tim Leary from CCHS and Bettie Berry, a former CCHS coach. For more information, call Bettie Berry at (704) 521-8721.

MAGGIE VALLEY — Augustinian Father Anthony M. Genovese is the facilitator of a retreat, "Take Courage and Be a Man," emphasizing male spirituality and how this experience has an influence on societal values, the pursuit of goals, dealing with failures and being open to God's call. For further information on the retreat being held June 9-11, call the Living Waters Catholic Reflection Center, 103 Living Waters lane, at (828) 926-3833.

ROCK HILL, S.C. — The Oratory: Center for Spirituality's annual conference on faith and doctrine is scheduled for June 11-14 at the Pope John Center at the Oratory. The conference, "Visions of Faith," is a yearly gathering for continuing education in doctrinal and moral faith for teachers and pastors involved in faith formation and parish, campus and social ministries. This year's speaker is Dr. Paul Wadell, theology professor at St. Norbert College in DePere, Wis., and author of several books. The seven sessions will be offered in the late afternoons from 4-5:30 p.m. and evenings from 7-9 p.m. For registration and other information, call Sarah Morgan at (803) 327-2097, weekday mornings.

ROCK HILL, S.C — The Oratory Religion Camp will hold two separate one-week sessions at Camp York in Kings Mountain State Park during the weeks of July 9-15 and July 16-22. Boys and girls under 12, entering grades 2-6 in Sept., can apply for consideration. For more information and application, write to: The Oratory Religion Camp, P.O. Box 11586, Rock Hill, S.C., 29731-1586. Those wishing to volunteer as counselors can write for a staff application.

Please submit notices of events for the Diocesan Planner at least 10 days prior to publication date.

PHOTO BY ELLEN NEERINCX SIGMON

Father Ed Sheridan, pastor of St. Aloysius Church in Hickory, and Father Bill Tanguay, pictured far left in background, administer the sacrament of anointing of the sick to parishioners during a healing Mass on May 4. Father Tanguay is in residence at St. Aloysius and is diocesan director of Hmong and Lahu ministries.

Healing Mass, from page 1

It reads, "Is anyone among you suffering? He should pray. Is anyone in good spirits? He should sing praise. Is anyone among you sick? He should summon the presbyters of the church, and they should pray over him and anoint [him] with oil in the name of Lord, and the prayer of faith will save the sick person, and the Lord will raise him up. If he has committed any sins, he will be forgiven. Therefore, confess your sins to one another and pray for one another, that you may be healed. The fervent prayer of a righteous person is very powerful."

Father Sheridan talked about how important the forgiveness of sins was in the healing of a person, and he discussed about how this forgiveness was part of the sacrament. He referred to a passage from the Gospel of Mark, the story of the paralyzed man whose friends lowered him through the roof on a pallet so that Jesus could heal him (Mark 2: 1-12). Before physically healing the man, Jesus forgave his sins.

"We see where the Lord took care of what was important," Father Sheridan said. "First things first — your sins are forgiven."

He also said that the rite was a powerful reminder to those who are suffering that they are not alone in their journey. "This sacrament gives us the grace to carry the cross," he added. "Suffering is a cross. The grace of God helps us to face it."

During the Mass, Father Sheridan and Father Bill Tanguay administered the sacrament to anyone who wished to receive it. They used oil to anoint the forehead and both palms of each person receiving the sacrament, and then held the person's hands together for a moment with their own. The oil they used during this Mass was among the oils blessed by Bishop William G. Curlin during the chrism Mass held at St. Patrick Cathedral in Charlotte on Tuesday, April 18, during Holy Week.

Each parish in the diocese recently received some of the oil to use during the year.

Father Sheridan said that he hopes to celebrate more healing Masses in the future, but that parishioners could stop by his office any time they felt in need of the sacrament. He said that a person could receive the sacrament as often as once a month, and suggested that parishioners stop by the church on the way to the hospital for tests or elective surgery.

"Take advantage of the grace of God," he said. ▼

Perpetual Adoration, from page 3

adoration.

For many adorers, a deeper sense of appreciation for the Mass and the sacramental life goes hand in hand with eucharistic adoration. Theresa Hansen, a coordinator of perpetual adoration at Maryfield Nursing Home in High Point, said adoration increases her hunger to participate in the eucharistic celebration of Mass.

"Once you've been at eucharistic adoration and you're there in (Jesus') presence, you know how special it is to have that time, gazing at the Lord," she said. "But when you're able to receive him into your very being during Mass, it's awesome. It's the best time of the day."

Marie Siebers, a coordinator of perpetual adoration at Belmont Abbey, said adoration allows participants to experience the mystery of the eucharistic Christ in a profound and intimate way.

"It's just the most wonderful thing in the world to be headed for the chapel and seeing somebody come from the chapel all aglow," said Siebers. "They'll look at you and say, 'I don't know what happens in there; I can't explain it. It's so wonderful.'"

Siebers herself is a devoted adorer, too.

"It (adoration) has carried me through a lot of storms," she said, referring in part to a period in which her husband, Eugene, faced and survived heart surgery and cancer. "It has helped me to trust the Lord more, knowing that God is there for me and that Jesus is taking care of me."

That kind of trust has strengthened Richard Cox, too. Other than receiving the Eucharist at Mass, he said, praying before the exposed Blessed Sacrament is "the ultimate" union with Christ.

"The Holy Father, all our theologians and all the priests teach that the heart of our church is the eucharistic sacrifice," he said. "That's what we're all about. This is the heart of our faith. It is what we are."

For more information on perpetual adoration at St. Gabriel Church in Charlotte, call call Kathleen Potter at (704) 366-5127; at Belmont Abbey in Belmont, call Marie Siebers at (704) 827-6734; and at the chapel at Maryfield Nursing Home in High Point, call Theresa Hansen at (336) 273-1507. For information on daily adoration at the Basilica of St. Lawrence in Asheville, call Jane Sorrells at (828) 298-0334. Adorers from any parish are welcome at any of the sites, and volunteers are always needed. ▼

Contact Associate Editor Jimmy Rostar by calling (704) 370-3334 or e-mail jtrostar@charlottediocese.org

Join us in serving God as priest or brother.

Our Oratorian Congregation was founded in Rome by St. Philip Neri in 1575. Known as "The Apostle of Joy," St. Phillip lived this virtue and brought people of all ages and backgrounds to the Church.

As a group of priests and lay men, we live a community life without vows and serve the people of God in various ministries:

- Parishes
- Retreat Work
- Nursing
- Campus Ministry
- Youth Summer Camp
- Hospital Chaplaincy

Like our ministries, our members are unique and come from across the United States and from Brazil.

For more information, please write:
Fr. Ed McDevitt, C.O. or Fr. Joe Pearce, C.O.
The Oratory
P.O. Box 11586
Rock Hill, SC 29731-1586

Investing Is Not as Simple as A, B, C.

Put our 113 years to work for you. Call A.G. Edwards today for your free copy of Equity Strategy.

Les Davaz
Member, St. Peter's

15800 John J. Delaney Dr.
Suite 100
Charlotte, NC 28277
(704) 341-3131 or (888) 769-3131
les.davaz@agedwards.com

A.G. Edwards
INVESTMENTS SINCE 1887
Member SIPC • 2000 A.G. Edwards & Sons, Inc.

[16784] RS-235-1100

Come One, Come All!

MACS Mecklenburg Area Catholic Schools
School Board Meeting

May 15, 7:00 p.m.
Holy Trinity Middle School Gym
3100 Park Road, Charlotte

Meitler Consultants will present the Study of Expansion Needs of MACS

The presentation will include the results of the surveys completed by parents and parishioners; the demographics study; projected enrollments; and recommended future directions.

Retreat provides cultural and spiritual foundation for African-American teens

By ALESHA M. PRICE
Staff Writer

CHARLOTTE — A mixture of nearly 100 participants, coordinators and volunteers gathered at the Johnston YMCA for a retreat filled with information, games and youth group performances from April 28-30. The Fourth Annual Sankofa African-American Heritage Weekend, coordinated by the Kabaka Dancers and Drummers of Our Lady of Consolation Church in Charlotte, drew approximately 65 teens away from their usual weekend activities to an Afro-centric experience of history and culture.

"This is a means by which our African-American children can learn about their culture, history and heritage, which they do not readily hear about in school," explained Sandy Murdock, co-founder of the Sankofa weekend and founder of the Kabaka Dancers and Drummers. "The intent of Sankofa is to have a positive effect on the lives of youth through exposure to educated adults close to their ages who own their own businesses and are working throughout the community and exposure to historical and cultural information they may not already know."

The word "sankofa," an Akan word, meaning "reaching backward in order to move forward," was reflected in this year's theme, "to know your roots is to know yourself." The Akan language is derived from the Kwa language of Southern Ghana.

The symbol of the sankofa bird with its head turned around to face those behind it was represented on the literature about the event, the t-shirts that each child and coordinator received and the advertisement posters. The idea is that knowing about one's background and history can have an effect on his or her present and future life, said Murdock.

The participants of various denominations from different areas of North and South Carolina were separated into small groups and led by two adult coordinators who guided them through introductory and closing presentations, a family tree activity, songs and talks from presenters, which included the Rev. Sheldon Shipman, pastor of Walls Memorial AME Zion Church in Charlotte, Ayaba Bey, owner and director of Sankofa Enterprises and Taharka, who combined poetry, rap and storytelling into his presentation.

The activities and talks were based on this year's featured movie "Roots," Alex Haley's multi-generational saga about his ancestral background from tribal Africa to slavery to modern times. From the showing of the first part of the mini-series, first shown on television in the 1970s, the guest speakers kept with the theme when presenting their supplemental historical facts about the black influence in all aspects of life.

"Events like these are important not only for African-American youth but for all youth because it serves as an informative and positive force in the larger community," said Father Mauricio West, vicar general and chancellor and the Sankofa steering committee chairman. "What the children learn at Sankofa is then spread to others, thereby enacting a positive chain of information."

The meals and other items were provided by a number of sponsor donations including Mecklenburg Area Catholic Schools (MACS), Urban Essentials, a local Afro-centric clothing store, House of Africa, a local store specializing in authentic African art, sculptures and clothing and national fast food chains. This is the third year that MACS has donated snacks, breakfast food and beverages to the event.

Joseph Willis, co-founder of Sankofa, said, "We want to plant a seed of curiousity in the minds of these youth, so somewhere along the way, even if they didn't necessarily absorb everything during the weekend, that seed will grow into a better apprecation of their history." ▼

Contact Staff Writer Alesha M. Price by calling (704) 370-3354 or e-mail amprice@charlottediocese.org.

Photo by Alesha M. Price

Tia Murdock from Our Lady of Consolation Church helps LaTayvia Moore with her family tree project at the Sankofa African-American Heritage Weekend from April 28-30 at the Johnston YMCA in Charlotte.

Jesuits welcome correction of U.S. report alleging terrorist ties

By JOHN NORTON
Catholic News Service

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — The Jesuit order welcomed the U.S. Department of State's prompt correction of a terrorism report which originally said Jesuit priests founded Colombia's largest terrorist group.

"We are very grateful that the State Department reacted so quickly," said Jesuit Father Jose de Vera, the Rome-based spokesman for the order worldwide.

In a statement May 5, the State Department said its annual terrorism report's allegation that Jesuit priests founded Colombia's National Liberation Army was "absolutely false."

"We sincerely regret the error," the statement said. "We offer our most sincere apologies to the Jesuit community and want to assure them that the Department of State had no intention of impugning the Society of Jesus or their pastoral work throughout the world."

The original report, "Patterns of Global Terrorism: 1999," released May 1, said that the guerrilla group, known by its Spanish acronym, ELN, was "formed in 1965 by Jesuit priests

See JESUITS, page 14

Is that your final answer?

A will is your final answer to the question:
"When I'm gone, who will receive the gifts God gave me?"

60-70% of Americans die without a valid will

If you die without a will, the laws of the state you live in will determine how your assets are divided.

Without a will or other charitable estate plan, charitable desires you may have for your parish, Catholic school, agency, diocese or the diocesan foundation will be ignored.

Don't let your final answer be silence...

To learn more, contact Cindy Rice, Diocese of Charlotte, 1123 South Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203 or call (704) 370-3320

THE ORATORY
434 Charlotte Avenue, P. O. Box 11586
Rock Hill, SC 29731-1586
(803) 327-2097

Horizons of The Spirit
Monday, July 17 through
12 noon Friday, July 21
Dr. Keith Egan
"The Landscape of the Soul and The Search for God"
Sr. Catherine Quinn, SHCJ
"Spirituality through Scripture and St. Ignatius"
Fr. Hal Weidner, C.O.
"Introduction to Edith Stein"

For more information write:
Horizons of The Spirit
P.O. Box 11586, Rock Hill, SC 29731-1586
(803) 327-2097

CFCC
Carolina Funeral & Cremation Center
Dignity
Affordability
Simplicity

5505 Monroe Rd. Charlotte, NC 28212
704-568-0023
www.carolinafuneral.com

Steven Kuzma
Owner/Director
Privately, Locally Owned
Member St. Matthew Church and Knights of Columbus

Bridgeport's Bishop Egan named Cardinal O'Connor's successor

By PATRICIA ZAPOR
Catholic News Service

WASHINGTON (CNS) — Pope John Paul II has appointed Bishop Edward M. Egan of Bridgeport, Conn., 68, as archbishop of New York, succeeding the late Cardinal John J. O'Connor, who died May 3.

Archbishop Gabriel Montalvo, apostolic nuncio to the United States, announced the appointment in Washington May 11.

Archbishop Egan is a Chicago-area native and canon lawyer who served 12 years as a judge in the Roman Rota, the church's central appellate court.

He was a New York auxiliary bishop for three years under Cardinal O'Connor and was archdiocesan vicar of education there before he was named to head the Bridgeport Diocese in November 1988. He was installed the following month.

In Bridgeport, he oversaw a program to regionalize the diocese's elementary schools and helped raise millions of dollars to support education programs and to support religious and homes for retired clergy.

He also was part of the creation by the state's bishops of the Connecticut Federation of Catholic Schools in 1990 to lobby for legislative support and encourage enrollment.

The Catholic population of Bridgeport has grown during his tenure there, from 331,000 in 1988 to 361,000 now, according to the Official Catholic Directory. But at the same time, the number of active diocesan priests has shrunk, from 223 to 183, and the number of parishes has gone from 91 to 88.

Archbishop Egan will be moving to the second largest U.S. archdiocese, which has a Catholic population of about 2.4 million and has 413 parishes and 585 active diocesan priests.

The New York Archdiocese, which includes Manhattan, Bronx and Staten Island and seven upstate counties, is home to 238 Catholic elementary schools, two diocesan seminaries, two seminaries run by religious orders and 12 Catholic colleges and universities. Archbishop Egan also will have the assistance of a half dozen auxiliary bishops in his new see.

Edward Michael Egan was born in Oak Park, Ill., on April 2, 1932. He studied at Quigley Preparatory Seminary in Chicago, St. Mary of the Lake Seminary in Mundelein, Ill., and the Gregorian University in Rome.

He was ordained a priest for the Archdiocese of Chicago in December 1957 and, after an early assignment to Holy Name Cathedral parish, served as assistant chancellor and secretary to Cardinal Albert Meyer of Chicago until 1960. Then he was named assistant vice rector of the North American College in Rome. While there, he earned a doctorate in canon law from Gregorian University.

Upon his return to Chicago in 1964, he served as assistant chancellor until 1968 and then as co-chancellor for human relations and ecumenism from 1968 to 1972. He also was secretary to Cardinal John Cody. In 1972 he returned to Rome as a judge in the Roman Rota.

While assigned to the Rota, he also taught juridical practice at its postgraduate school for canon law.

He also served in 1983 as a member of the committee of six canonists who reviewed the final draft of the revised Code of Canon Law with Pope John Paul.

In 1978, while on the Rota, then-Msgr. Egan was one of three U.S. priests among 88 noncardinals authorized to be inside the conclave that elected Cardinal Karol Wojtyla as Pope John Paul II.

CNS FILE PHOTO

Bishop Edward M. Egan is seen in an undated file photo. Several news outlets were reporting that Bishop Egan of Bridgeport, Conn., was at the top of the list to take the place of Cardinal John O'Connor as archbishop of New York. Cardinal O'Connor died May 3 at age 80.

His assignment at the conclave that October was to check material sent into and out of the conclave area. Other Americans allowed in were Franciscan Father Emmanuel Klump, English-language confessor in St. Peter's Basilica, and then-Father Donald Wuerl, now bishop of Pittsburgh. Bishop Wuerl then was secretary to Cardinal John Wright, who was recovering from surgery.

Until this year, Archbishop Egan chaired the U.S. bishops' Committee on Science and Human Values, of which he remains a member. He also is a member of the bishops' Ad Hoc Committee on Nomination of Conference Officers.

He is fluent in Latin, French and Italian and is said to be fond of swimming for exercise.

In 1994, Archbishop Egan was the homilist at the national Red Mass in Washington, held annually just before the Supreme Court term begins. He used the occasion to criticize what he said had become "politically correct" intolerance toward faith-based views on issues such as abortion and tax-funded support for religious schools.

He told the congregation of judges, lawyers, Cabinet members and others involved in the legal profession that lawyers should be "first and foremost" in insisting that minority and faith-based views be allowed "free and objective expression."

Archbishop Egan also received coverage of his 1997 decision to cancel a retreat in his diocese for Catholic parents of gays and lesbians that was to be led by Salvatorian Father Robert Nugent and Sister Jeannine Gramick, a School Sister of Notre Dame. Last July, after a lengthy investigation, the Vatican permanently barred the pair from continuing their ministry, citing "doctrinally unacceptable" positions regarding homosexuality.

A spokesman for then-Bishop Egan said at the time that the bishop thought it would be inappropriate for the pair to give a retreat in the Bridgeport Diocese in light of the ongoing investigation. ▼

People in brief

Priest urges action against 'campaign' to discredit Pius XII

ROME (CNS) — Catholics must react with clear and well-documented facts to "the campaign to denigrate" Pope Pius XII, said the Jesuit promoting his beatification. "The Holy See, and specifically the supreme pontiff Pius XII, made every possible effort to stop the crimes" of the Nazis and to help those whom the Nazis were persecuting, said Jesuit Father Peter Gumpel. The priest, the relator of Pope Pius' beatification cause, said communists, Masons and "some Jewish circles" had mounted a campaign against the pope, who reigned during World War II.

Church studies healing attributed to Blessed Padre Pio

SAN GIOVANNI ROTONDO, Italy (CNS) — Church authorities and doctors have begun studying a healing that might be the miracle needed for the canonization of Blessed Padre Pio. Capuchin Father Gianmaria Cocomazzi, guardian of the church where Padre Pio is buried, said a 6-year-old boy was healed of severe meningitis in January after thousands of people prayed for Padre Pio to intercede with God to heal the boy. Father Cocomazzi told of the boy's healing May 2 during celebrations at the Church of St. Mary in San Giovanni Rotondo marking the first anniversary of Blessed Padre Pio's beatification.

HOST AN EXCHANGE STUDENT from Europe, South America, Japan
You provide room, board and a little love... they come fully insured and ready to be a part of the family!
Many to choose from!
FSL
Foreign Study League
Call Jean McDaniel
(704) 544-7603

VGA & SVGA Refurbished Computer Monitors
14" — $20-$25
15" — $35-$38
17" — $70-$125
20" Call for details
30 day warranty
Over 2000 monitors in stock!
MONITORS DEPOT
O.C. STAFFORD ELECTRONIC SERVICE & DEVELOPMENT COMPANY
408 Banner Ave., Greensboro, NC 27401
E-mail: urpac408@worldnet.att.net
(336) 274-9917

Serving Charlotte with integrity for over 38 years!
The LaPointe Dealerships
Frank LaPointe, President, Member of St. Gabriel Church
HONDA
7001 E. Independence Blvd.
535-4444
MITSUBISHI MOTORS
Built For Living.™
6951 E. Independence Blvd.
531-3131

Cardinal O'Connor, from page 1

ovation as a sign of Cardinal O'Connor's continuing impact in the cathedral from which he became a national and international voice. As the applause finally died down he remarked: "I see he hasn't left the pulpit."

The message reached far beyond those in the cathedral, to crowds outside listening to loudspeakers and to far larger numbers across the city and nation who followed the two-hour service live on CNN or other broadcast media.

In the prepared text, Cardinal Law observed that Cardinal O'Connor "did not shy away from the task of preaching."

"He made this pulpit unique in the history of the Catholic Church in the United States," he said.

In a personal vein, Cardinal Law, one of Cardinal O'Connor's closest friends, told about joining family members and others in saying the prayers for the dying shortly before the cardinal's death.

"In the midst of those prayers, there was a moment of profound grief as each of us realized with a sudden clarity what was happening," he said. "Just as suddenly, we realized our tears were not for him, but for ourselves."

Cardinal Law said the Eucharist was "the source and summit" of Cardinal O'Connor's life, and told of concelebrating Mass with him in his private chapel "just a few weeks ago."

"It was clearly for him the highlight of that day, and for me it will remain a most precious memory," Cardinal Law said.

He said Cardinal O'Connor's illness had made it impossible for him to read by that point, but he recited the eucharistic prayer from memory. "So much was the Mass a part of his life that when some things began to fade, the Eucharist did not," he said.

If attendance at the Mass by a president and former president, neither Catholic, testified to the extraordinary place Cardinal O'Connor had gained in American life, his standing in Rome was confirmed by the decision of the pope to send the Vatican secretary of state to preside and serve as principal celebrant.

After a welcome from Auxiliary Bishop Robert A. Brucato, interim administrator of the archdiocese, Cardinal Sodano made introductory remarks expressing gratitude for "this great churchman who has done so much both for the Catholic community and for so many men and women of good will."

"His name will be forever etched on the annals of the history of the church," the secretary of state said.

Pope John Paul and Cardinal O'Connor were both born in 1920, the cardinal Jan. 15 and the pope May 18, and Pope John Paul ordained Cardinal O'Connor to the episcopacy in 1979 and made him a cardinal in 1985.

They developed a close working relationship and seemed to embody the same outlook on matters affecting the church, leading to a widespread impression that Cardinal O'Connor was the primary voice in the United States for the mind of the pope.

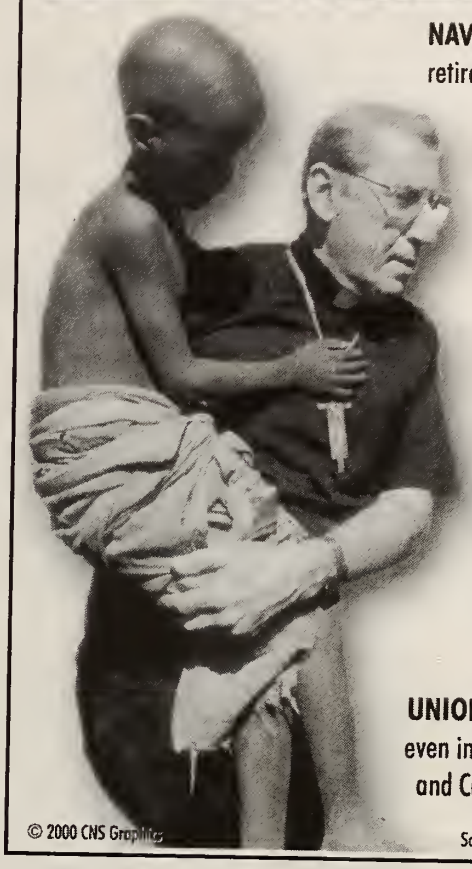
"As a sign of his profound esteem for the late Cardinal O'Connor, and to demonstrate concretely his spiritual union with the church in New York," Cardinal Sodano said, "the Holy Father sent me to represent him personally at this solemn liturgy."

Cardinal Sodano also expressed the pope's condolences to Cardinal O'Connor's two sisters, brother and other relatives present, as well as to "the entire archdiocesan family," and imparted an apostolic blessing at the conclusion of the service.

Cardinal William W. Baum, a Vatican official who was another of Cardinal O'Connor's close friends, spoke at the conclusion of the Mass. He cited Cardinal O'Connor's work for Christian unity, and called attention to retired Greek Orthodox Archbishop Iakovos, who was present along with his successor, Archbishop Demetrios, and officials of other churches and other religions.

Cardinal John J. O'Connor 1920-2000

Some of his ardent interests:



NAVY: First Catholic Navy chief of chaplains; retired from Navy as a rear admiral.

AIDS MINISTRY: Started church-based AIDS ministries, including a hospital dental clinic, a residence for babies and an acute care unit for prisoners.

MIDDLE EAST: Instrumental in improving Catholic-Jewish relations and negotiating peace in the Middle East.

RELIGIOUS ORDERS: Helped create three religious communities, the Franciscan Friars of the Renewal and Franciscan Sisters of the Renewal, and the Sisters of Life.

UNIONS: Supported workers' right to unionize, even in actions against an archdiocesan hospital and Catholic schools.

© 2000 CNS Graphics

Source: CNS reports; CNS photo by Chris Sheridan, Catholic New York

Cardinals Law and Baum both spoke of the Sisters of Life, an order established by Cardinal O'Connor to pray and work for the pro-life cause. Members of the order attended the many services held for Cardinal O'Connor over the weekend following his death, and at the funeral Mass their superior, Mother Agnes Donovan, read the first lesson from the Book of Wisdom, beginning, "The souls of the just are in the hand of God."

After Cardinal Baum spoke, the Book of the Gospels and the pall were removed from the coffin, made in upstate New York of red African mahogany from the Ivory Coast, and the cardinal was lifted onto the shoulders of six men for his final trip down the center aisle of his cathedral, and then back up another aisle to go down into the crypt.

There, under the high altar, with only family and a few church officials present, the coffin was deposited in the 13th of 21 vaults available.

The 12 previously placed there include seven former archbishops of New York; Coadjutor Archbishop John J. Maguire, who served under Cardinal Francis J. Spellman; Archbishop Fulton J. Sheen, who was identified with the cathedral in a special way through his preaching there; two former cathedral rectors; and Pierre Toussaint, whose remains were brought there after Cardinal O'Connor began his cause for canonization.

After the cardinal's body was deposited in its permanent resting place, Cardinal Sodano and the others returned for the end of the service.

After the final blessing, the organ and brass in the choir loft thundered forth with the introduction and accompaniment to one of Cardinal O'Connor's favorite hymns, one he had the congregation sing at his installation March 19, 1984:

"Lift high the cross, the love of Christ proclaim." ▼

Providing Quality Long Term Care ...With Great Love.

For half a century, Maryfield Nursing Home has provided outstanding nursing care in a Catholic environment. When you need more care than is available at your home, come visit us. We invite you to discover for yourself our many stimulating daily activities and services which make Maryfield the best possible choice for Long Term Care.

1315 Greensboro Road
High Point, NC 27260
336.886.2444 Fax 336.886.4036
www.greensboro.com/mnh

MARYFIELD
A Continuing Care Retirement Community

Cornerstones

Summer Camp for the young at heart!

Ages 50 and Up

June 4-9 July 9-14
June 18-23 July 23-28

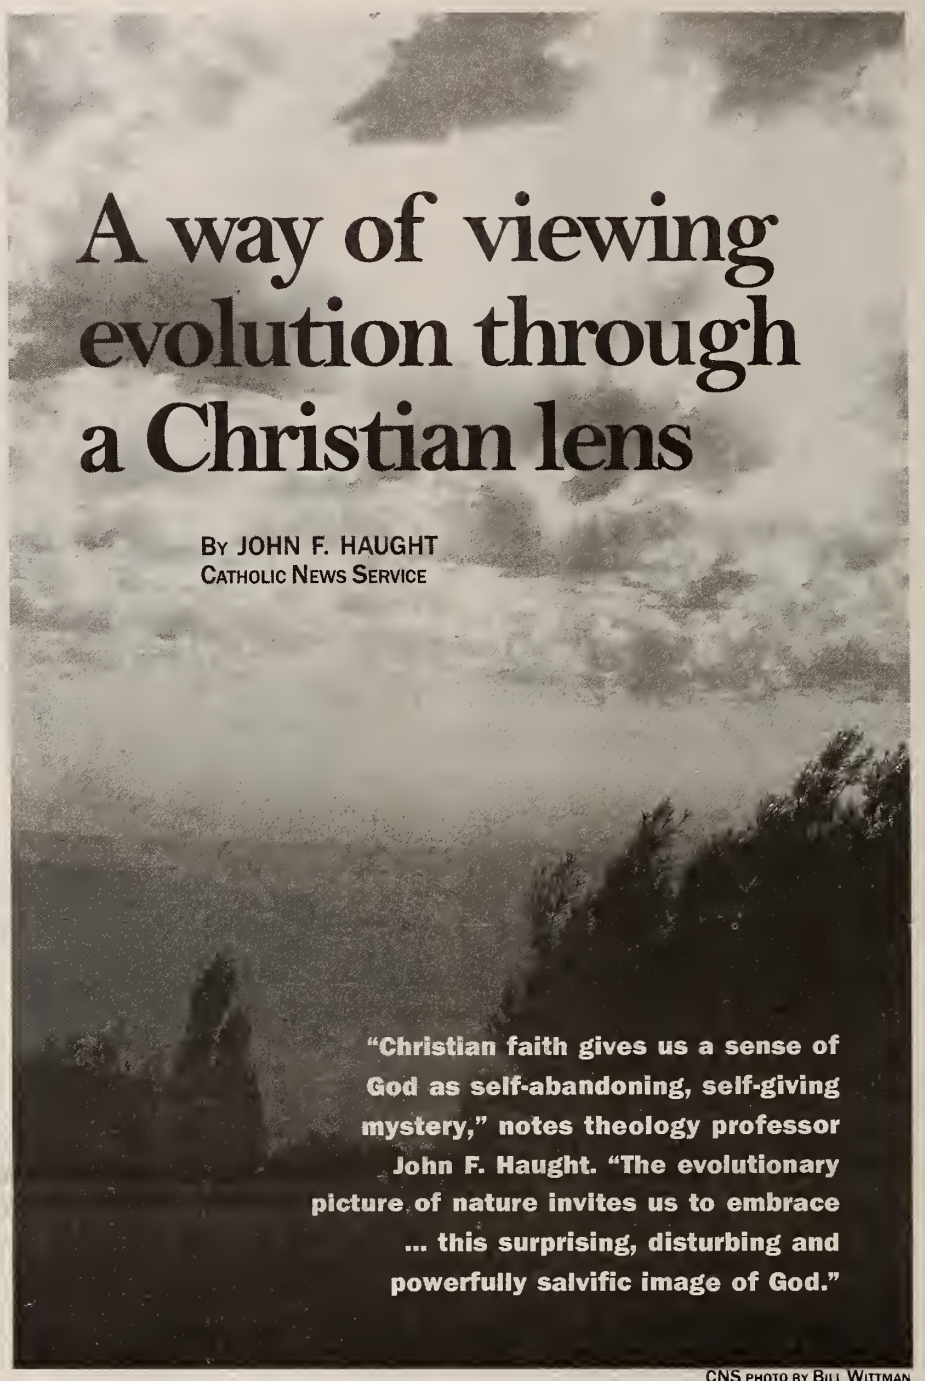
Deluxe lodging, delicious meals, college level curriculum, hands-on instruction, fun and entertaining events, field trips to neat places with great friends! Week-long fun at a very special place.

For more information, call toll-free
888-526-7441 or (828) 327-7441
E-mail: ccc@twave.net
www.catholicconference.org

The Catholic Conference Center
1551 Trinity Lane Hickory, NC

A way of viewing evolution through a Christian lens

By JOHN F. HAUGHT
Catholic News Service



"Christian faith gives us a sense of God as self-abandoning, self-giving mystery," notes theology professor John F. Haught. "The evolutionary picture of nature invites us to embrace ... this surprising, disturbing and powerfully salvific image of God."

CNS photo by Bill Wittman

Can science be reconciled with Christian faith in a loving, powerful, creative and redemptive God? Some would say no, others would be doubtful. But most of us have a hunch that science and religion can live together.

Still, it is not always clear how to make the science-faith connection, and much confusion comes from not doing it thoughtfully. Superficial liaisons are worse in the long run than an indefinite standoff. However, a standoff is hardly ideal either.

But won't exposure to new scientific information undermine my faith? Isn't it simpler to keep the timeless truths of faith carefully quarantined, sealed off from contact with the transitory views of scientists?

Can the most interesting scientific ideas, especially those having to do with evolution, ever be reconciled with religious belief? Finally, what does the evolution of life, or of the whole Big-Bang universe, possibly have to do with my trust in God?

Actually, when carefully separated from the materialist ideology in which some scientists package it, evolution may prove to be not so much a "danger" as a great gift to theology.

No matter how difficult the pursuit of truth is — and often it is difficult — believers can trust that it always will lead back to God. Embrace the truth, no matter how initially shocking it might be, and, as the French writer Simone Weil put it, you will fall into the arms of Christ.

In the past, prominent leaders in the church at times resisted genuine encounter with new scientific ideas. We need only recall the reactions by some to Copernicus, Galileo and Darwin. Even today many religious people turn away from the idea of evolution.

What fundamentally is at issue in the case of evolution is whether we any longer plausibly can think of the universe as a purposeful creation of God.

At first sight, the meandering, apparently blind and experimental character of life's lumbering terrestrial journey, along with the immensity of time it took for life and humans to emerge on this planet, might make us wonder what is going on in such a strange world.

Would an intelligent God have "fooled around" for 3.8 billion years after the first appearance of life before creating intelligent beings? Why so much cruelty and suffering, wasteful extinctions, discarding of the ill-adapted and survival of the reproductively "fit" along the way?

Evolution, we know today, is not unambiguously cruel and heartless. It also could be said to involve a wonderful cooperation of life with life; and Earth's life-story, viewed in its entirety, exhibits a breathtaking "grandeur" that enraptured Darwin himself.

Still, evolution is not always benign, and a sound Christian theology must face the harsh facts along with all the marvelous beauty nature has brought forth.

What I believe a theology of evolution will find is that the notion of God can be deepened and expanded by its encounter with biological evolution. The understanding of nature implied in Darwinian evolution demands that people abandon any view of God that ignores the self-giving and self-effacing character of the divine mystery.

This understanding affirms that all of the struggle and suffering in life's evolution is God's struggle and suffering too. Nature itself is cruciform.

According to this understanding, the God whose image radiates from the humble, self-giving, suffering love of Jesus is not one who overpowers the world, forcefully cramming it into a prefabricated frame. Instead the Creator wants a world that will flourish in a way that renders it distinct from God. Only such a world can enter into loving relationship with an infinite love.

Divine power, therefore, includes a measure of loving self-restraint in which the world is permitted to emerge over the course of time as something other than God. A world truly loved by God must have room to wander about, experimenting with various possibilities.

Love allows the universe to remain unfinished for now. If God had completed creation in such a way that the world was frozen into a deadness with no future, it would have been an extension of God's being rather than an independent creation.

Evolution, therefore, seems to me to be essential to a world truly loved by God. And this means that the life-story is permitted to be experimental. To be alive at all, life must have room to wander as it finds its way into God.

Christian faith gives us a sense of God as self-abandoning, self-giving mystery. The evolutionary picture of nature invites us to embrace, in a wider way than ever before, this surprising, disturbing and powerfully salvific image of God. ▼

Haught is chairman of the theology department at Georgetown University. His most recent book is "God After Darwin: A Theology of Evolution." Westview Press, 2000.

Discussion Point:

On the Jubilee Day for Scientists (May 25), what event is planned in your community?

"We list the jubilee intentions for the upcoming month in our parish bulletin and ask people to pray for them. Included in May are our prayers for the scientific community."

Dory Davis
Houston, Texas

"While we are not doing anything on May 25 per se, we are having a series of dialogues with community leaders. Our fourth such dialogue is scheduled with the scientific community for sometime in the fall. These talks are initiated by Bishop Carlos Sevilla, SJ, to build good will, to remind the secular leadership of their moral responsibility and to remind them that the church has an important contribution to make to their work."

Robert Fontana,
Director of Evangelization
Diocese of Yakima, Washington

"Besides including information about St. Albert the Great — our patron saint and the patron saint of scientists — on our Web site (www.albertusmagnus.org), we are sharing information about him with our students so that they might better appreciate the impact he has had on science."

Joseph Troy,
President
Albertus Magnus High school
Bardonia, N.Y.

FAITH alive!

Lend Us Your Voice

An upcoming edition asks:

What is a common, yet challenging, ethical issue that arises in ordinary daily life?

If you would like to respond for possible publication, please write:

Faith Alive!
3211 Fourth St. N.E.,
Washington, D.C.
20017-1100

May 25, 2000:

Jubilee Day for Scientists

By JOHN B. REYNOLDS
Catholic News Service

Two Catholic scientists recently shared their views on the relationship between faith and science. They are among a cadre of members of the scientific community who will be saluted on the church's Jubilee Day for Scientists May 25.

Francis Castellino is the dean of the College of Science at the University of Notre Dame in Indiana. He takes a pragmatic approach to the subject of the relationship between faith and science, explaining, "The church has always paid attention to science. Whether it always has supported it is another matter."

Castellino received his doctorate in biochemistry from the University of Iowa and completed post-doctoral work at Duke University. He now spends nearly half of his working hours at Notre Dame involved in blood-coagulation, molecular-biology and gene-targeting research. Much of his work, especially his gene-targeting activity, is related to the field of medicine.

Castellino is a member of Corpus Christi Catholic Church in South Bend, Ind. He reflects that faith and science perhaps do go hand-in-hand, albeit not in the most conscious of ways. He believes it is incumbent upon all individuals to develop their Godly gifts. Just as musicians are obligated to develop their individual talents, so too are scientists obligated to do so.

Scientists are obligated, he says for example, to find cures for disease, and in so doing to enhance the quality of human life. "To better understand God, we must better understand God's world," Castellino adds.

Peter Reilly is a distinguished professor in chemical engineering at Iowa State University. He is also a member of St. Thomas Aquinas Catholic Church, the church ministering to the university community on the campus in Ames, Iowa.

Reilly received his doctorate in chemical engineering from the University of Pennsylvania and was employed by DuPont and the University of Nebraska before arriving at Iowa State. His scientific duties there include instruction in chemical engineering along with his related research. Additionally, Reilly is a speakers' bureau member of the American Chemical Society and the American Institute of Chemical Engineers.

Reilly sees himself as both a scientist and a person of faith. When he speaks on his genetic-engineering and enzyme-structure research, such talks sometimes lead to inquiries about the existence of God. He is quick to respond that science cannot prove or disprove the question. "Science is science, while the existence of God is a matter of faith," he explains. ▼

Reynolds is a free-lance writer in Chicago, Ill.

The scientists in our midst

By DAVID M. BYERS
Catholic News Service

Pope John Paul II always has had the greatest respect for the scientific enterprise. In 1988, for example, he declared:

"Science can purify religion from error and superstition; religion can purify science from idolatry and false absolutes. Each can draw the other into a wider world, a world in which both can flourish."

The pope's attitude is thoroughly refreshing, since modern Catholics have no choice but to live their faith in a world dominated by science and technology.

Despite sometimes contradictory conclusions — studies show that eggs are bad for the heart one day, good the next — we have an unbounded faith in scientific pronouncements.

Like everyone else, Catholics derive much of their knowledge of the world from science, and technology is changing this world with astonishing speed. This cultural perspective poses a serious challenge for pastoral ministers and catechists in the church: how to speak of faith in terms that people understand today.

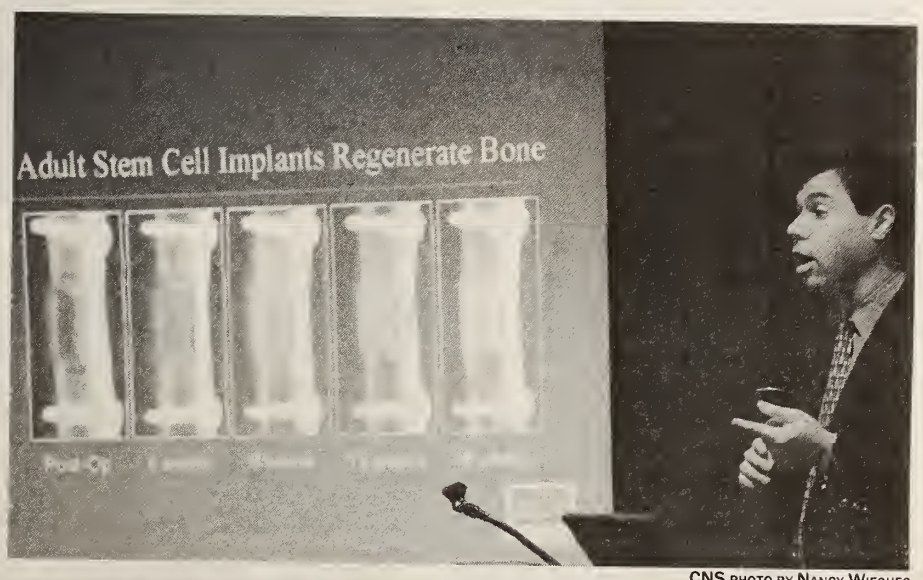
The number of babies born through various forms of assisted reproduction worldwide is approaching 1 million. Development of an artificial womb may make pregnancy obsolete for elite women in two or three generations. How will the church present its concerns so that the link between sex and reproduction will be understood?

Particular advances in technology present Catholics with new moral choices, because these advances often have unintended consequences. Splitting the atom produced new diagnostic tools for medical research, but also nuclear power plants, which some fear, and nuclear weapons, which all fear.

These days, the spotlight is on the biotechnologies. A few seem clearly unacceptable from a Catholic perspective.

Scientists have now succeeded in cloning five species of animals, and many consider human cloning inevitable. However, this technology involves the destruction of embryos, violating the right to life. Moreover, it raises issues of social justice. How shall we treat human clones? Would we be inclined to discriminate against them, as people now discriminate against others on racial grounds?

Some emerging biotechnologies promise benefits to humanity but at the same time pose serious moral questions.



CNS PHOTO BY NANCY WIECHEC

"Some emerging biotechnologies promise benefits to humanity but at the same time pose serious moral questions," writes David Byers.

Embryonic stem-cell research may allow science to probe the cellular origins of cancer, diabetes, spinal-cord injury, arthritis, and a host of other lethal or disabling illnesses and conditions. Yet the church must oppose such work because embryos are destroyed in the process of obtaining their cells.

A question in the future may go something like this: May a Catholic accept a lifesaving transplantation of embryonic stem cells, knowing their source?

Less controversial new technologies are likewise mixes of light and shadow. The church welcomes genetic testing when it functions as an extension of sound medical practice, giving physicians and patients the information they need to make sound treatment decisions. However, the information genetic testing reveals would be of great interest to insurance companies and potential employers; the potential for abuse is enormous.

The same is true of genetic screening, which scans large groups of people for defects. The principal medical justification for screening is as a tool for finding the incidence of disease in a population, opening the door to prevention or therapy. However, the same information can become the basis for selective abortion or even for eugenic policies aimed at "improving the human stock."

Faith and morality need to be fully aware of contemporary reality so that they do not gradually lose their power to guide Christians living in a scientific and technological world. ▼

Byers is the executive director of the U.S. bishops' Committee on Science and Human Values.

Food for Thought

Science and faith need each other, and each may suffer by "going it alone." The Jubilee Day for Scientists May 25 will accent that point.

Actually, this day now has become known as the Jubilee for Men and Women From the World of Learning because, as one Vatican official explained, by science is meant every exercise of human intellectual activity directed to the search for truth in a rational and methodical way.

Cardinal Paul Poupard, president of the Pontifical Council for Culture, announced plans for this jubilee day, calling for "a new season of dialogue between science and faith."

The jubilee for science "will take place in a profoundly different climate" than existed at the time of Galileo in the 17th century, the cardinal said.

A Vatican scientist, Jesuit Father George Coyne, director of the Vatican Observatory, said in a 1996 speech that today's religious and scientific leaders ought to be able to appreciate each others' benefits.

And Pope John Paul II said — also in 1996 — that "the need for dialogue and cooperation between science and faith has become ever more urgent and promising." ▼

David Gibson
Editor, Faith Alive!

FAITH alive!

In a Nutshell

Can science and religion live together happily? Can the most interesting scientific ideas be reconciled with religious belief?

It is not always clear how to make the science-faith connection. Yet the pursuit of truth always leads back to God.

Science and religion each can "draw the other into a wider world, a world in which both can flourish," Pope John Paul II said.

Book Review

National Shrine 'a uniquely American expression,' says author

By NANCY HARTNAGEL
Catholic News Service

WASHINGTON (CNS) — The Catholic basilica that dominates northeast Washington is "a uniquely American expression," said the author of a new history.

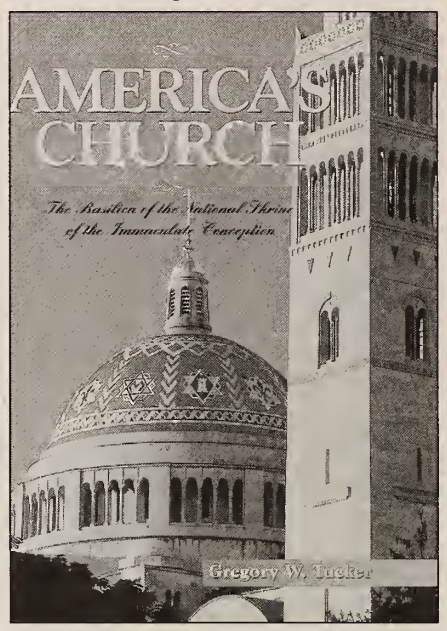
"Never before had American Catholics rallied for one such cause," said Gregory W. Tucker, who wrote "America's Church — The Basilica of the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception."

Early in the 20th century, the shrine became "a statement that Catholics had arrived in this country, and were in fact gaining acceptance and leaving an indelible imprint," he said.

The church's growth through immigration is reflected in the shrine's more than 65 chapels representing different cultures, pieties and devotions, and in the countless donor names inscribed in Memorial Hall, he said.

"Perhaps it's of a style of Catholicism that we'd roll our eyes at and say, 'Oh superstitious,'" he added, "but it all comes together under this great dome as a monumental expression of Catholicism in this country."

Tucker's pictorial narrative was published by Our Sunday Visitor in Huntington, Ind. A former shrine communications director, he currently directs public relations and community affairs for the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra.



Speaking with Catholic News Service by phone, Tucker said the initial plan was for a university chapel to accommodate growing needs at The Catholic University of America, begun in 1887.

As early as 1895, he said, the priest considered the shrine's founder, Father Thomas J. Shahan, "looked upon the sprawling campus and envisioned this monumental tribute to Mary." A church history professor, he

See BASILICA BOOK, page 14

Weekly Scripture

Readings for the week of May 14 - 20, 2000

Fourth Sunday of Easter, Acts 4:8-12, 1 John 3:1-2, John 10:11-18; Monday (St. Isidore the Farmer), Acts 11:1-18, John 10:1-10; Tuesday, Acts 11:19-26, John 10:22-30; Wednesday, Acts 12:24-13:5, John 12:44-50; Thursday (St. John I, pope, martyr), Acts 13:13-25, John 13:16-20; Friday, Acts 13:26-33, John 14:1-6; Saturday (St. Bernardine of Siena), Acts 13:44-52, John 14:7-14

Readings for the week of May 21 - 27, 2000

Fifth Sunday of Easter, Acts 9:26-31, 1 John 3:18-24, John 15:1-8; Monday, Acts 14:5-18, John 14:21-26; Tuesday, Acts 14:19-28, John 14:27-31; Wednesday, Acts 15:1-6, John 15:1-8; Thursday, Acts 15:7-21, John 15:9-11; Friday (St. Philip Neri), Acts 15:22-31, John 15:12-17; Saturday (St. Augustine of Canterbury), Acts 16:1-10, John 15:18-21

Word to Life

May 14, Fourth Sunday of Easter, Cycle B Readings:
1) Acts 4:8-12
Psalm 118:1, 8-9, 21-23, 26, 29
2) 1 John 3:1-2
3) Gospel: John 10:11-18

By BEVERLY CORZINE
Catholic News Service

One of the most familiar and comforting psalms in Scripture begins, "The Lord is my shepherd." Psalm 23 provides us with images of love and protection that extend beyond death into eternity.

The metaphor of the shepherd's tender care of his sheep frequently appears in Scripture. Jesus emphasizes in one of the Gospel stories the dedication of the shepherd who will search in the dead of night for the one lost sheep even though 99 are safely in the pen.

In this week's Gospel reading he again uses the figure of the shepherd. In his description of the "good shepherd," Jesus tells us that this is no ordinary person. The good shepherd is one who knows each animal; likewise, each animal knows the shepherd's voice. The shepherd Jesus describes would go so far as to sacrifice himself for the welfare of the sheep.

Though we can see through the eyes of Easter faith that Jesus is speaking about himself and his love and commitment to us, sometimes we ask ourselves what all these images about sheep and shepherds really mean to us.

Our knowledge about sheep may only come from movies centered on the conflict between sheep and cattle raisers. The agricultural images of the Bible often escape our life's experience. However, once in a while we have a graced moment when we make a discovery.

My moment of insight occurred last summer when my husband and I watched a man and his dog work as one to move his flock of sheep down a steep hillside in northern England. After working with his dog, the man explained the challenges of raising sheep in the modern world. He noted the harsh winters, declining prices and his responsibility for the flock.

While he talked about caring for his sheep, I could see the quiet pride he took in his flock when he told us he always knew exactly how many sheep he had. His years of hard work had left their mark on his face, but here was a man with the dignity of one who shares a bond with his animals, the earth and God.

I knew we had shared a conversation with a good shepherd.

Question:
Are you able to take comfort in an image of our relationship to God that emphasizes our total reliance on him for our safety, our comings and goings, our conduct through this world?

"I am the good shepherd. I know my sheep, and my sheep know me.... For these sheep I will give my life"
— John 10:13, 14b

© 1998 Wachovia Corporation
Tell your parents yo putting all the money you save on this account into CDs.
1 800 WACHOVIA
WWW.WACHOVIA.COM
The Wachovia College Account basically offers you free checking. VISA® Check Card with no monthly maintenance fee. Free online account access. No minimum balances. Even your very own credit card. And Wachovia has branches and ATMs all over the place
You've got enough on your mind with books, tuition and money for the latest CDs. You shouldn't have to worry about the cost of banking.
WACHOVIA
Let's get started.℠
THE COLLEGE ACCOUNT
FREE CHECKING FREE WACHOVIA ATM USE NO MINIMUM BALANCE UNLIMITED CHECK WRITING
Wachovia Bank is a member FDIC. Accounts subject to approval.

STOCKS, BONDS, MUTUAL FUNDS
FIXED & VARIABLE ANNUITIES
LIFE, DI & LTC INSURANCE
FINANCIAL PLANNING
RETIREMENT PLANNING
ESTATE PLANNING
ROLLOVERS & TRANSFERS
IRA'S & 401(K)'S
TAX PLANNING
RYAN ◆ HESS ◆ MORAIS
FINANCIAL ADVISORS, INC.
JOHN F. RYAN, JR., CFA — PARISHIONER, ST. VINCENT DEPAUL
CHRISTOPHER HESS, CFP — MEMBER, ST. JOHN'S EPISCOPAL
A. EDWARD MORAIS — PARISHIONER, ST. MATTHEW
SUITE 209 ◆ 7401 CARMEL EXECUTIVE PARK ◆ CHARLOTTE, NC 28226
PHONE 704-544-9009 FAX 704-543-4771
Registered Representatives offering securities through FFP Securities, Inc. - Member NASD/SIPC
Registered Investment Advisors offering services through FFP Advisory Services, Inc.

Mon-Fri 9:30am-5:30pm
Sat. 9:30am-3:00pm
Carolina Catholic Bookshoppe
First Communion & Confirmation
† Special Cards
† Veils
† Unique Gift Ideas
704-342-2878
Fax (704) 334-3313
4410-F Monroe Road, Charlotte, NC
We welcome mail orders and special orders!

Attention
DIABETICS
with Medicare or Insurance
Save money on diabetic supplies!
1-800-337-4144
Diabetic National Service

"Cirque du Soleil Journey of Man" comes to IMAX in impressive 3-D

By GERRI PARE
Catholic News Service

NEW YORK (CNS) — The emotional development of man from birth to maturity is symbolically realized in the large-format Imax film, "Cirque du Soleil Journey of Man" (Sony Classics).

Performers in Cirque du Soleil, founded in Quebec, have engaged the imagination on a universal level since 1984 with their startling live dance and acrobatic numbers.

"Cirque du Soleil Journey of Man" (IMAX)
The U.S. Catholic Conference classification is A-I — general patronage. The Motion Picture Association of America rating is G — general audiences.

Captured on film with a 3-D process on the huge Imax screen, the effect is so magnified it's initially almost overwhelming. The film's three-dimensional aspect requires wearing a headset with glasses, which does feel increasingly heavy on the head once the half-hour mark has passed. Even at its 38-minute running time, the movie would have benefited with a little trimming as some shots are held too long, losing some of their magical effect.

However, the visuals, with their reach-out-and-touch-me dimensionality, are glorious. Opening after a "Big Bang" explosion in the universe, a primitive cave is the setting for Taiko Drummers, who practice an ancient Japanese style of drum playing, as a child appears among them in awe of their boldly pulsating sounds. Synchronized swimmers follow with graceful underwater routines which seem a cross between ballet and old Esther Williams movies.

Abruptly, the youngster finds himself in a dense redwood forest where a clown-like couple guide him to experience his instincts and emotions as he enjoys the beauty of nature and the joys of carefree childhood.

Other scenes as the boy changes to a youth and finally reaches adulthood include segments of the Cirque du Soleil company: yellow bird-like Bungees diving from treetops; a Cube Man spinning a fiery giant metallic form; and the acrobatic feats of the Banquine performers.

A standout scene illustrates the bond between man and woman as the boy observes a statue of an entwined man and woman on a lily pad come to life with extraordinary movements that underline their trust and indivisibility, not to mention the unbelievable muscle control and strength on display.

The final scene is set before Berlin's Brandenberg Gate, a hopeful symbol the future as a voice-over intones that with dreams, faith and love anything is possible.

Filmed in numerous locations under trying conditions and with daunting technical challenges, the film is quite a eyeful, especially for anyone who has not seen the Imax format, a contemporary 3-D film or the remarkable Cirque du Soleil performers. It's colorful and captivating without relying on dialogue to explain the joyful images. ▼

Pare is director of the U.S. Catholic Conference Office for Film and Broadcasting.

CNS PHOTO FROM DREAMWORKS AND UNIVERSAL PICTURES

"Gladiator"

Actor Russell Crowe plays a former Roman general who was sold into slavery and trained as a gladiator in the Dreamworks action epic, "Gladiator." Set in 180 A.D., Rome's leading general (Russell Crowe) escapes the vicious new emperor's (Joaquin Phoenix) execution order but is enslaved as a gladiator and is determined to survive the bloodthirsty arena spectacles so he can wreak revenge by usurping the new ruler. As directed by Ridley Scott, gruesome mortal combat scenes suggest that might is right, but impassioned performances, an absorbing narrative and staggering visuals are nonetheless impressive in capturing the brutal era of human sacrifice as entertainment for the masses. Recurring stylized violence and a depiction of a character's incestuous longings. The U.S. Catholic Conference classification is A-IV — adults, with reservations. The Motion Picture Association of America rating is R — restricted.

MOVIE REVIEW LINE 1-800-311-4CCC

THE CATHOLIC COMMUNICATION CAMPAIGN

Now you can look film reviews up on America Online. Once you're connected to AOL, just use the keyword CNS to go to Catholic News Service's online site, then look for movie reviews.

New at the Box Office

"I Dreamed of Africa"

Underwhelming drama about the remarkable real-life story of Kuki Gallmann (Kim Basinger), a wealthy wife and mother who leaves her comfortable life in Italy for the adventures of Africa. Director Hugh Hudson's visually grand but narratively weak film fails to convey what drove the real Gallmann to suddenly transplant to Africa, while feebly drawn supporting characters and a sluggish tempo also undermine the film. Implied sexual encounters with shadowy nudity and brief violence. The U.S. Catholic Conference classification is A-III — adults. The Motion Picture Association of America rating is PG-13 — parents are strongly cautioned. Some material may be inappropriate for children under 13.

The Franciscan Center
Catholic Gift & Book Store
Hours: 9am - 5pm Mon- Fri
1st Communion — veils, missals, rosaries, gifts
Confirmation — special, unique gifts
(336) 273-2554 233 N. Greene St. Greensboro, NC 27401

Let stairs be our problem... not yours!
Ask about our Stairway lifts.
- Easily attached to steps (not walls)
- Folds out of the way
- Fits most stairways (straight & curved)
- Very affordable (rent or buy)
- We install

Chair & Equipment Rentals & Sales, Inc.
800 Central Ave. • Charlotte, NC • (800) 333-8431
Member of St. Thomas Aquinas

We Warn You: If You Drive One You're Gonna Want One!

Volkswagen and Audi...the only car companies to have every model named best in its class. Find out why. Come in for a thrill ride today.

Honest pricing, honest financing, and honest service on Europe's most exciting new cars. From the incredible New Beetle, to the all new Jetta IV and luxurious new generation of Audi, we have the right car for your pocketbook...and your lifestyle.

Volkswagen Audi South
John Diederich, Owner
Member Saint Gabriel Parish

7401 South Boulevard . Charlotte . 704.552.6500 . 800.426.5347
www.vwsouth.com . www.audisouth.com

The Pope Speaks

POPE JOHN PAUL II

Pope praises Cardinal O'Connor's years of 'courageous witness'

BY BENEDICTA CIPOLLA
CATHOLIC NEWS SERVICE

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — Pope John Paul II mourned the death of U.S. Cardinal John J. O'Connor, praising his "many years of dedicated and courageous witness to the Gospel."

"As a deeply spiritual man, a warm and zealous pastor, and effective teacher of the faith and a vigorous defender of human life, Cardinal O'Connor modeled his own life and ministry on the figure of the Good Shepherd who, to the end, gives his life for the flock," the pope said in a May 4 telegram to Auxiliary Bishop Robert A. Brucato of New York.

The pope expressed his appreciation for the late cardinal's efforts toward "better ecumenical and interreligious relations" and his work on behalf of the poor, calling him "a source of inspiration in serving God in our less fortunate brothers and sisters."

"Through the years he has been of great support to me in the service of the universal church," said the pope.

In a statement released May 4 at the Vatican, papal spokesman Joaquin Navarro-Valls said the pope was "deeply saddened by the news of Cardinal O'Connor's death."

"Cardinal O'Connor was an extraordinary figure in the Catholic Church in the United States," the statement said. "He was a truly faithful shepherd and an outstanding witness to faith and human dignity."

The pope was to send Cardinal Angelo Sodano, Vatican secretary of state, as his envoy to the funeral, scheduled for May 8 in New York's St. Patrick's Cathedral, the Vatican announced.

U.S. Cardinal Edmund C. Szoka told Catholic News Service he also planned to attend.

"He was a great churchman, an outstanding churchman, who gave his whole life to the service of the church as a priest, a bishop and a cardinal," said Cardinal Szoka.

"He was a man of great talents and touched the lives of countless people with own special charism," he said.

Cardinal Szoka said he admired Cardinal O'Connor for his communication skills and excellent work "as a proclaimer and defender of church teaching and church doctrine."

He said the late cardinal was "fearless in promoting and defending church teaching," even in the face of criticism.

A memorial Mass was being planned in Rome at the late cardinal's titular Church of Sts. John and Paul.

Msgr. Timothy Dolan, rector of the U.S. bishops' seminary in Rome, said the Mass was "for the benefit of the American community (in Rome), because so many people have expressed the desire to pray for the cardinal."

The Bottom Line

ANTOINNETTE BOSCO
CNS COLUMNIST

Tragedy leads family to help others

Carole Carrington never wanted to be in the public eye. But this California woman — mother of five and grandmother of nine — and her husband of nearly 50 years found their lives radically altered last year when tragedy made them the central survivors in a high profile murder case.

The story made the national news because it was so horrendous: A mother, a daughter and a friend from South America all were murdered during a visit to Yosemite National Park. They were the Carringtons' daughter Carole Sund, their granddaughter Julie Sund and a dear friend from Argentina, Silvino Pelosso.

I had the privilege of being a part of a two-day anti-violence conference in Connecticut where Carole Carrington was a keynote speaker. She said that having loved ones taken away "is the hardest thing that ever could have happened to me in my life."

I'm sure my readers remember this terrible story. Carole Sund had taken the two girls on a trip to show them the western United States. They expected to have a wonderful time visiting Yosemite National Park and then going for a grand finale at the Grand Canyon. Sund's husband would then join them with their other three children.

When the family couldn't contact Carole Sund, they knew something was wrong. It was more than a month before their rented car, burned beyond recognition, and their mutilated bodies were found. The family absolutely had to know what had happened to their loved ones. The Carringtons offered a reward for information. About five months later there was a break in the case; a man who had been the caretaker at Cedar Lodge where the women had stayed confessed.

From their pain, the Carringtons have reached out to help others. "We offer rewards for the safe return of missing people and to bring violent persons to justice. We also want to raise public awareness about missing persons and violent crime in this country. That's what I'm doing running around the country," talking to media and groups, something that would have been unheard of for her to do two years ago, she said.

Carole Carrington said she has learned there are some "very bad people" who should be "put away forever." But there are also "kind, generous people in this world," hundreds who have sent them cards and letters. She has also learned that she has "a whole lot more spirituality and faith than I thought I did." Speaking of the victims, she said, "I do believe they're all in a better place."

She spoke of receiving a poem saying that if a breeze came up as she was thinking of her loved ones, she would know they were there with her. They went back to Yosemite for a segment on the "Leeza Show," and when she mentioned this poem, there, on a still 95-degree day, "suddenly a breeze came up." There were other similar instances that all gave her "the overwhelming feeling that I was getting a message."

Working for the Sund/Carrington Memorial Reward Fund, she said, is showing them that helping other people is essential "for coping with this agony that will be with us for the rest of our lives — but we can go on."

Hispanic Ministry

FATHER VINCENT H. FINNERTY
GUEST COLUMNIST

Evaluating Hispanic Ministry

This month we want to examine "Lay participation and Leadership" in the 1998 study commissioned by the Secretariat for Hispanic Affairs of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops. The study offers the following:

On the plus side...

a) Hispanics already active in the church have increased their levels of participation. Seventy percent of the diocesan directors report that Hispanic men are more active in their parishes than in 1990.

Much of the credit is due to the expansion of the lay apostolic groups, particularly the cursillos and the charismatic renewal.

Seventy-seven percent of the directors also report that Hispanic women are in higher positions of diocesan and parish leadership than in 1990.

b) Forty-three percent of the dioceses administer a separate lay leadership institute or lay leadership program for Hispanics. Most of these new programs focus on the formation of leaders for parish ministry, though a few offer opportunities for advanced training and education. Some, and perhaps most, were established with assistance from regional training centers such as the Southeast Pastoral Institute, the Mexican-American Cultural Center, and Northeast Institute for Pastoral Formation, as well as smaller institutes such as Keno and Tepeyac.

On the down side...

a) The level of Hispanic leadership in the dioceses remains low. Sixty-three percent of the diocesan directors said their diocese was "not doing enough" to encourage Hispanics to become leaders; however, 60 percent also acknowledged that most Hispanics still lacked the leadership skills and experience to serve in diocesan administration.

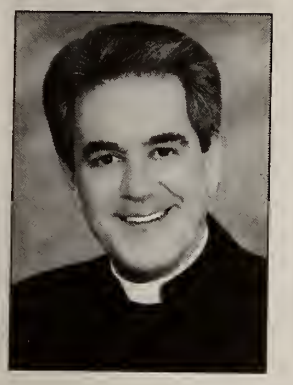
Sixty-three percent of the dioceses with Hispanic Ministry have no Hispanics in management positions in the central offices, and 73 percent have no Hispanics in the management of Catholic Charities.

b) Hispanic programs are most effective with Hispanic adults who speak Spanish. Only 18 percent of the diocesan directors said their diocese was not effectively reaching Spanish-speaking adults.

However, 37 percent of the dioceses are not reaching Spanish-speaking youth; 43 percent are not reaching English-speaking Hispanic adults; and 51 percent are not reaching English-speaking Hispanic youth.

We welcome your letters and comments.

Please send your Letters to the Editor to Joann S. Keane, The Catholic News & Herald, 1123 South Church Street, Charlotte, NC 28203.



Light One Candle

FATHER THOMAS J. McSWEENEY
GUEST COLUMNIST

Runway rudeness and the man in 21B

Life's little lessons come in unexpected ways. Like in a TWA cabin packed with LaGuardia-bound New Yorkers itching to pull away from the West Palm Beach terminal.

I knew the majority of passengers had to be New Yorkers. Everyone — and I mean everyone — was talking at once about the holdup. We had been strapped in our seats for 15 minutes but were still moored to the boarding ramp. A lady provoked loud applause when she boomed: "What gives! Somebody gonna tell us why we're just sittin' here?"

And then the drama began. A flight attendant's voice came over the PA system: "Passenger Herbert Brown in seat 21B, please collect your belongings and come to the exit." Every head swiveled to the center of the cabin. Mr. Brown (No, that is not his real name), a middle-aged fellow in a business suit, wasn't budging.

A stewardess, followed by a very pregnant young woman, marched down the aisle and quite audibly confronted Mr. Brown: "You see this woman?" she snapped, "She has a ticket for this seat. You were issued a boarding pass on a standby basis. You must give up this seat now, or else things could become very embarrassing for you!"

Mr. Brown flatly refused, "I have a ticket for this seat, and I am not giving it up."

The expectant mother stood silently, while a chorus of boos and variations of "Yougottabekiddingme!" filled the cabin. "Don't say I didn't warn you," the stewardess advised, "because the next person you will deal with is Security." In disbelief we all watched the attendant help the passenger-without-a-seat make her way back up the aisle, as the unmoved Mr. Brown coolly perused his flight magazine. The minutes had now turned into a half-hour delay that was clearly ticking off the captive audience. "Ah, come on, you dummy, you're making us all pay for your rudeness!" The buzz was intensifying rapidly.

Enter the Law — a security officer straight out of Central Casting, a Brian Dennehy in uniform. "You, sir, are going to get up and leave the plane. Now."

And in a second Mr. Brown was moving up the aisle with his carry-on luggage in his arms. All the way, he yelled, "I'll pay 300 dollars to anyone who gives me a seat!" The response was deafening: "Forgedaboutit!" "Shame! Shame!" "Swim home, you idiot!"

But the drama wasn't over. No sooner had Mr. Brown been ejected, when another man jauntily glided down the aisle and took seat 21B. Non-plussed we all wondered aloud about the pregnant lady's whereabouts. As we taxied out to the runway, the flight attendant's voice announced: "You may all be wondering about the man now seated in 21B. Well, you'll be happy to know that while we were all dealing with the notorious Mr. Brown, this terrific fellow gave up his seat in First Class to the mother-to-be."

No fanfare, no gallant speech, no fuss. He simply and quietly went about doing the right thing — get up and give the woman a seat. While we were cursing the villain, he was looking after the leading lady. While we were finding fault, he provided a solution.

If you try, there usually is some way to make a bad situation a little better. If you try.

Father Thomas J. McSweeney is director of The Christophers.

On the Light Side

DAN MORRIS
CNS COLUMNIST

All worked up over this hand-holding thing

One of the more traumatic aspects about attending Mass in the United States in this day and age is that it has become of paramount importance that you pay full attention to germs and your hands.

Actually, it is easier to monitor your hands because most germs are really, really tiny and hard to see with the naked eye, and most of us have eyes that are, to be candid and blunt, naked.

In the old days one could blithely saunter into a Mass (this was in a time before they were called eucharistic liturgies) and not worry about one's hands. You could pick up hymnals, touch the back of pews, touch the holy water font, open doors and even go "poink" on the nose of your or friends' children with the tip of your index finger.

However, if you "poink" your own or anyone else's children's noses now, the Hand Police will charge out of the corners of the church and scream at you: "Don't anyone touch this person during the Sign of Peace. He has 'poinked' the nose of a germ-laden child and wants to infect you. Cast him out."

And that's just at the Sign of Peace.

If you are in a parish where people form human chains during the Our Father, the hands/germs thing can get ugly. Much of this, of course, could be avoided if the U.S. Liturgy Gestapo would listen to my oft-repeated request that churches be cordoned off into "hand-holding" and "nonhand-holding" sections.

With decent signage and a couple of volunteers from the parish Scout troop equipped with cattle prods, parishes could easily funnel people into the appropriate pew areas.

I realize this would publicly acknowledge what we all know in our hearts is the truth. We are a church in schism. Some people like to shake hands, hold hands and use their hands to share the Communion cup. Others — you can tell who we are because we attend Mass with our hands in our pockets or behind our backs — do not.

The shake-hold-share crowd will argue that there is no more chance of spreading germs through such contact than, say, pushing open the church door where other folks have touched the door with the same hands that they will be shaking yours with.

But they totally forget the axiom that says, "But, duh, we were not thinking about it then."

I even had a friend claim that people who want to criticize shaking, holding and common-cupping will think nothing of going to a bowling alley and using a rental ball.

"Think about it," she said. "People go straight from eating pizza with their hands to sticking their fingers into those holes and then rolling that ball on the floor, and then back to eating pizza."

I could not help but think, as I was gagging, that it might be a nice thing if parishes started handing out latex gloves as we enter church, especially if there are any bowling alleys in the neighborhood.

Question Corner

FATHER JOHN DIETZEN
CNS COLUMNIST

Is it really possible to forgive?

Q. Through the years I have been very badly hurt by several people, especially when I was younger. I know there is a mandate from God that we are to forgive those who offend us, even those who do grave injustice against us. This is troubling me because I am finding it so difficult to forgive these people deep in my heart. What can someone like myself do?

A. The volume of mail I've been receiving in recent months on this subject surprises me. People, obviously very good people, find themselves spiritually frustrated and guilty because they, as you, feel they cannot forgive and don't know what to do about it.

From this mail, and from my own pastoral experience, it seems that a large part of the problem stems from the old admonition to forgive and forget. In most cases, especially when the hurt has been grievous, it is impossible to forget, even after many years.

The supposition then is that one has not forgiven the wrongdoer, and that is a mistake. We forgive others by letting go of resentment and the desire to take revenge, to inflict harm in return on those who have violated us.

Memory of what happened may remain. It is normal and healthy to be angry when someone does violence to us or to someone we love, and that anger may reappear when the memory of injuries recurs.

But again, that does not rule out forgiveness. Anger, just as the other normal human passions, is often necessary and proper. It's how we respond to it that is important. When we cease to harbor the desire for vengeance and give up our need to get even, to punish the other person for what he or she did, we are well on the road to forgiveness.

Two very ordinary actions can be signs that, however much we still hurt, we are in the process of forgiving.

— First, we can pray for the other person. When we do that we are also, even if we don't realize it, praying for our own healing.

— And second, we can be willing to treat the other person with civility and charity. We don't need to seek him or her out, and we don't need to be friends or buddies. But we should be open to simple Christian decency if the situation presents itself.

I know that many who say they cannot forgive have already reached this point. If not, it is something doable to aim at, much more sensible that attempting to suppress our memories.

Holy Days of obligation

Q. We have become totally confused about holy days of obligation, which ones apply and which do not. Now it seems Ascension Thursday is changed to Sunday in our area. What is the story?

A. Several years ago, the Vatican gave permission for five provinces (groups of dioceses) in the United States to transfer observance of the feast of the Ascension to the Sunday before Pentecost. Last year, the National Conference of Catholic Bishops authorized all ecclesiastical provinces to do the same. The purpose is to give more Catholics a greater opportunity to celebrate and reflect on this major feast of the church.

The bishops of your state are among many in this country who have implemented this change, beginning this year. Catholics in several other countries already follow this practice.

Basilica Book, from page 10

became university rector in 1909 and a bishop in 1914.

"He sent out the first appeal just to Catholic women in 1911," said Tucker. "He saw them as his soldiers in the task."

At a 1913 Vatican meeting, then-Msgr. Shahan got "all the approval he needed," Tucker continued. "Pius X was so taken with the notion that he enthusiastically endorsed it, and then reached into his desk drawer and presented Shahan what amounted to $400 in Italian lire as a down payment."

One architect proposed a French Gothic design, but Cardinal James Gibbons of Baltimore, university chancellor, favored the work of Charles Maginnis, a well-known architect of Catholic edifices.

Tucker said Maginnis preferred the Byzantine-Romanesque form as "truer to the earliest beginnings of Christianity" and "most harmonious and compatible with the architecture of Washington." Also, he didn't want to compete with Episcopalians who "were building a Gothic structure on the other side of town."

The crypt level — which once announced "National Shrine" in neon letters — was completed in 1924.

Then it sat until 1954, said Tucker, "looking more like an overgrown turn-of-the-century prison" than the largest Catholic church in the Western Hemisphere. "Bishops even talked about maybe demolishing it," he said.

The project had been slowed by Depression and war economies, as well as debts already incurred. Tucker said control of the project was "a constant issue" between university and shrine officials, until the shrine was separately incorporated in 1948.

Many prominent 20th-century Catholics are associated with the shrine story. But in Tucker's view, its greatest champion after Bishop Shahan was Bishop John F. Noll of Fort Wayne, Ind., founder of Our Sunday Visitor.

After World War II, Bishop Noll, chairman of the first episcopal committee for the shrine, took up its cause in the pages of his national newspaper and at annual bishops' meetings.

"You can almost see the bishops' eyes rolling back in their heads, saying, 'Here comes Noll again about the shrine,'" Tucker said.

The bishop appealed to all Catholics, even school children, and his fellow bishops eventually approved a plan of diocesan quotas to complete the building.

Construction resumed in 1954, and the shell of the Great Upper Church, plus the $1-million campanile from the Knights of Columbus, was finished in 1959.

Said Tucker: "It was completed in a very small window of opportunity in the '50s," as a response to atheistic communism, in gratitude for the end of war, and following the 1950 papal proclamation on Mary's Assumption.

The book details shrine construction, as well as the burst of ornamentation in marble, mosaics and stained glass that began in the '60s and ended in 1999 with installation of the "Universal Call to Holiness" sculpture.

It also tells the story of prominent visitors, from future popes and presidents to Dorothy Day, who said she found her vocation while praying in the Crypt Church on Dec. 8, 1930.

Tucker personally recalled unannounced visits by the wife of Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak. "She loved to go into Memorial Hall and kneel down at Our Lady of Mankind and pray," he said.

The "Catholic piety and mindset that made the shrine possible" are absent on a large scale today, he said. But the fact that hundreds of thousands of pilgrims come annually shows "that the shrine has a place still and somehow does express the deeply held sentiments of Catholics." ▼

Jesuits, from page 5

inspired by Fidel Castro and Che Guevara."

Father de Vera told Catholic News Service May 8 that the report caught the Jesuits by surprise. The order's provincial in Colombia, Father Oracio Arango, immediately sent a letter of protest to the country's U.S. ambassador, he said.

The report's original wording "was rather obnoxious to say that we are inspired by Fidel Castro," Father de Vera said. "We have other sources of inspiration to put our lives on the line."

The Jesuit spokesman said that the mistaken information also potentially put Colombian Jesuits in physical danger, given the country's ongoing civil war.

"To point to the Jesuits as the inspiration or foundation of a terrorist group was really a blow in the present situation and could be very dangerous indeed," he said.

When he learned of the correction, Father de Vera sent a note of thanks to Lindy Boggs, U.S. ambassador to the Holy See, he said.

In addition to issuing the statement, the State Department corrected its Internet version of the report to read instead that the ELN was "established in 1964 nominally as (a) military wing of (the) Colombian Communist Party." ▼

HAVE NEWS TO SHARE?

E-mail your news to The Catholic News & Herald at:

catholicnews@charlottediocese.org

We reach OVER 110,000 business people and families. ... Do YOU?

Our LOW rates let even the smallest business or individual put a message before the right audience.

Want to know more? Call Cindi Feerick, (704) 370-3332 The Catholic News & Herald

30 YEARS EXPERIENCE

PYANO MAN

HENRY C. ROZELL III

2nd Generation ♦ Piano Tuner/Technician

Piano Tuning, Repairs, Refinishing
Pianos Bought and Sold
FREE ESTIMATES

704-321-5843

Classifieds

Classified ads bring results! Over 110,000 readers! Over 43,000 homes!
Rates: $.50/word per issue ($10 minimum per issue)
Deadline: 12 noon Wednesday, 9 days before publication date
How to order: Ads may be faxed to (704) 370-3382 or mailed to:
Cindi Feerick, The Catholic News & Herald, 1123 S. Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203.
Payment: Ads may be pre-paid or billed. For information, call (704) 370-3332.

EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES

Administrative Assistant: Part-time. Approximately 12 hours/week. N/S with excellent communications, phone, computer skills. Prefer financial background. Resume and references to: MGH, 4801 E. Independence Blvd., Box 601, Charlotte NC 28212.

Computer Teacher: K-8, for 2000-2001 at St. Leo Catholic School, 333 Springdale, Winston-Salem, NC 27104. NC certification required (or in process). Call (336) 748-8252 for application and information. Submit resume to Georgette Schraeder, principal.

Cosmetologists/Barbers: Full-time and part-time. Charlotte area upscale salon seeking warm-hearted, skilled stylists and barbers. Convenient south Charlotte location. $12 per hour + tips. Please call (704) 341-4260.

Elementary and Middle School Positions: Immaculate Heart of Mary School has openings for the following positions for the 2000-2001 school year: Assistant Principal/Teacher (Master's in Administration, practicing Catholic): Middle School teachers of Social Studies, Language Arts, Science and Math; Grades 4 and 5 teachers. Interested certified teachers may contact Margene Wilkins, principal, 605 Barbee Avenue, High Point, NC 27262; or call (336)887-2613; or fax (336)884-1849.

Music Ministry Director: St. Aloysius Catholic Church is seeking a Director of Music Ministry for a well-established music program. Send resume and references to: Search Committee, St. Aloysius Catholic Church, 921 Second St. NE, Hickory, NC 28601.

Teachers: Our Lady of the Assumption Catholic School in Charlotte has openings beginning in August for a Pre-School Teacher and a Transitional Kindergarten Teacher. Part-time positions. NC teacher certification required. Call (704)531-0067.

Teachers, Campus Minister, Library/Media Director: Charlotte Catholic High School has the following full-time teaching positions open for the 2000-2001 school year: Math, Chemistry, English, Religion, Social Studies, Spanish, and Drama. Must have NC Teaching Certification. Also, Library/Media Director and part-time Campus Minister are needed. Call (704)543-1127.

Youth Minister: Our growing parish community of 1900 families is seeking a full-time Youth Minister for our established Total Youth Ministry program for youth grades 6 through 12. Responsibilities include spiritual and program development while working together with a committed team of 50 adults. Candidate should be: faith-filled, enthusiastic, organized, creative and team-oriented. Experienced with a B.A. in Theology or related field. Salary and benefits commensurate with degree and experience. Send a resume and a statement of your vision of Youth Ministry to: Search Committee, St. Paul the Apostle Catholic Church, 2715 Horse Pen Creek Rd., Greensboro, NC 27410 or fax to (336)294-6149.

Youth Minister: A half-time position as a Youth Minister is available at Immaculate Heart of Mary Parish in High Point, NC (1000 households). The parish has a Total Youth Ministry Program, which includes the Confirmation Program, for middle and high school youth. Applicants must be a practicing Catholic and a member of a Catholic parish. Experience in Youth Ministry and Religious Education is desirable. Send resume and references to Search Committee, IHM Church, 605 Barbee Ave., High Point, NC 27262. Fax (336)884-1849. For more information call (336)884-5212.

Youth/Young Adult Ministry Director: A tri-parish (including one Hispanic) Catholic community of 1800 families in a university setting is seeking a full-time Director of Youth and Young Adult Ministry to implement comprehensive youth ministry as described in "Renewing the Vision." Candidate should have prior ministry experience, and be able to work collaboratively with staff and members of parish community. Background in Theology, Christian Formation, and/or certification in youth ministry desired. Please contact Rev. Bernard Campbell, CSP, P.O. Box 112, Clemson, SC 29633 or (864)654-1757.

FREE TO A GOOD HOME

Beautiful, affectionate gray and white female cat looking for a good home. Three years old; fixed; up-to-date on shots. Found abandoned and brought inside. Needs a home without other animals. Please call Joyce: (704)896-0152.

FOR SALE

Queen Mattress Set: New, in plastic. Full warrantee. Retail $400; sell for $195. Call (704)556-9674.

SERVICES OFFERED

Home Care: In-home care for your loved one. Thorough background checks on all caregivers. Serving Henderson, Transylvania, Polk counties. COMPASSIONATE COMPANIONS, INC., (828)696-0946.

PRAYERS & INTENTIONS

Thanks to St. Jude, St. Joseph, and the Blessed Virgin Mary for prayers answered. B.F.

Three priests care for infant left on their doorstep

By PATRICIA RUDY
Catholic News Service

VIENNA, Va. (CNS) — As the three priests at St. Mark Church in Vienna were getting ready to turn in for the night one evening in late April, the sound of a baby crying came from outside.

Father Stewart Culkin, pastor, heard it from his room and Fathers Francis deRosa and Christopher Pollard, parochial vicars, noticed it from the living room.

"We all converged at the front door at the same time," said Father de Rosa.

Alone on the doorstep was a 4-month-old girl, Sadgi Gill. The priests learned later that she had been abducted from an apartment building in nearby Manassas shortly before 9 p.m. Her mother had left her briefly in her second-floor apartment, strapped in her car seat, while she went to unload groceries from her vehicle in the parking lot. The infant arrived at St. Mark's unharmed.

"It was tragic, but obviously there were some comical aspects to it," Father deRosa told the Arlington Catholic Herald, diocesan newspaper.

"We felt like three priests and a baby," he told the Fairfax Journal newspaper. "At first we felt bad for her. Then we thought we just might have an addition to our family. We even thought about raising her as a nun."

"It was like a movie," said Father Pollard. "At first we were incredulous, and then we thought, hey, maybe someone should pick up the baby. We're not taught about this in the seminary."

The priests brought her in and called Fairfax County police. The parents are not parishioners at St. Mark's. Father deRosa said that there is no known connection of the incident to the church.

Father Pollard, who does not have nieces and nephews, held her most of the time, said Father deRosa. "He did very well with the baby."

"I was born to be an uncle," said Father Pollard. "It's my God-given innate natural ability. It was kind of an adventure to have her there."

Father Culkin, for his part, said Father deRosa, was relieved that he had his two associates with him. In his nearly 29 years as a priest, the pastor said, nothing like this had ever happened to him.

After the baby had been there a while, "she started getting cantankerous and needed changing," said Father deRosa. Since no diapers or formula are kept at the rectory, the priests called a pediatrician parishioner whose daughter had a newborn child, and the needed supplies were brought.

For her name, "I chose Arizona, from the movie 'Raising Arizona,'" said Father Pollard. "Father deRosa chose Clotilde and Father Culkin didn't choose a name."

"We had given thought to keeping her and even baptizing her, but three priests and a baby is not enough," said Father Pollard. "It was the subject for my homily this week. In addition to being baptized, the faith has to be taught; (one is) not to be baptized and then live life as though it had never happened."

The baby was at the rectory for slightly over four hours, until the parents came to retrieve her. Since the infant's abduction and abandonment occurred in different counties, said Father Pollard, he understood that jurisdictional problems caused some time delay.

"It was a very happy ending that her parents were able to come so quickly," said Father Pollard. "It was nice to go back to bed at 2:30 a.m. and not lose any more sleep over it."

"The mother was very relieved to see her baby," said Father deRosa. The parents, believing that it was God's hand that brought the baby to the church, said, "She was in the hands of God," he recalled. ▼

Scholars report progress in study of Vatican's WWII documents

LONDON (CNS) — Catholic and Jewish scholars reported "substantial progress" in examining published Vatican documents related to World War II and the Holocaust.

"Collaborating as Catholic and Jewish scholars on a difficult and controversial subject, we are confident that our work will contribute to a deeper understanding of this painful subject," the scholars said in a statement May 7 after a four-day meeting in London.

The commission, established in October, includes scholars appointed by the Vatican's Commission for Religious Relations with the Jews and by the International Jewish Committee for Interreligious Consultation.

"We hope that our combined effort will take the discussion beyond the realm of heated polemics," the scholars said.

The commission was formed to study one of the thorniest issues in Catholic-Jewish relations: the activity of the Catholic Church and, particularly, of Pope Pius XII during World War II and the Holocaust.

Prominent Jewish organizations have called on the Vatican to open its wartime archives in order to clarify allegations that church leaders knew the extent of the Holocaust yet failed to raise their voices in defense of European Jews.

The Vatican responded by saying all relevant documents had already been published in an 11-volume collection prepared by Jesuit researchers, but that scholars had not taken the time to study the material thoroughly. ▼

VOCATIONS

Is God calling you?

Rev. Mr. Johnathan Hanic is a transitional deacon in the Diocese of Charlotte. He is completing formation at St. Mary's Seminary in Baltimore, MD He will be ordained in June 2000.

"My journey toward priesthood is enriched when I recognize Christ present within each and every person. Service of God's people is not about setting oneself over others, but about sharing real love, real faith, and real hope.

Discipleship is not about running away from the world. Discipleship is embracing the joys and sorrows of those we meet and serve, and authentically living the Gospel.

For the Christian disciple, a genuine love for others and self arises from a deep love for the Eucharist. I am in awe that the Eternal God would be so humbled as to become our food and drink. The Eucharist helps me to see Jesus in others.

I am confident that my return to the Charlotte diocese in priestly service will be with a deep sense of love and desire to live for others."

... Are you answering His call?

For more information about serving God as a priest in the Diocese of Charlotte, please contact Father John Allen,
The Office of Vocations, The Roman Catholic Diocese of Charlotte,
1123 South Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203.
(704) 370-3353 • vocations@charlottediocese.org

CATHOLIC NURSES WANTED!
The National Association of Catholic Nurses-USA is searching for Catholic nurses and allied health care workers to join with us in providing our patients with quality care with a Catholic perspective. Dues are just $25.00 per year for nurses, $20.00 for allied healthcare workers and $10.00 for students.

For further information, please write to NACN-USA, P.O. Box 3016, Lisle, IL 60532. E-mail: jsalihar@yahoo.com. Visit our Web site at www.smmp.com/NACN-USA. A membership form can be downloaded from the site.

N A C N U.S.A.

National Association of Catholic Nurses

Carolina Volkswagen
6625 E. Independence Blvd., Charlotte
(704) 537-2336 • (800) 489-2336

Biggest Selection — Lowest Prices

Drivers wanted.

"Nothing Could Be Finer" — Members of St. Gabriel

#1 Volkswagen Dealer in Charlotte and all the Carolinas for customer sales and service satisfaction!
C'mon in and see why!

Volunteer teacher absorbs culture and rediscovers roots

By ALESHA M. PRICE
Staff Writer

CHARLOTTE — Joe Tronco had traveled to Italy before on vacation but not to the less-explored Puglia region in Southern Italy and not to stand in front of a room of children for two weeks this past March.

Earlier this year, after reading about the work of supplemental English language instruction to children through Global Volunteers in Italy, Tronco wanted to be a part of that experience.

"It sounded like an interesting and creative way of giving service to a part of society I had never thought of," said Tronco, a St. Gabriel Church parishioner.

He had taught kids before, however, as a high school chemistry and biology teacher over 35 years ago. But, he said, "I felt comfortable with the idea because of that experience."

It is an alternative to a vacation of sitting on the beach and sipping flowery drinks in coconut shells. This "getaway" serves as a way to get more involved with different cultures and to experience life through others' eyes.

According to their website, Global Volunteers, based out of St. Paul, Minn., is a non-profit organization that arranges volunteer trips for more than 150 teams of volunteers in locations around the world like Africa, Asia, the United States and other places — a total of 20 countries.

The volunteer work is the actual vacation, tax-deductible in most cases and paid for by the volunteer, as expenses incurred if he or she were to travel elsewhere.

Tronco arrived in Italy to the predominantly Catholic town of Ostuni and was met with the sight of miles of olive and almond trees and the white homes and shops and the smell of the Adriatic Sea, approximately three miles from the small city where he lived for the duration. Ostuni is in the Puglia region located on the heel of the boot-shaped country.

Also upon his arrival, he met the rest of his team, a group that consisted of a Jewish person, a Serbian Catholic and those with no stated religion. Tronco said of the differences in religion of the volunteers and working in a traditional Catholic country, "We all embraced it in our own way. The Jewish person and the ones with no stated religion had done this work before. They were teachers by profession and had been on prior assignments."

The school provided a car for the group to travel the 25 miles from Ostuni to Martina Franca where the school was located. Tronco taught three junior high classes, some with and without his Italian language arts teacher and guide.

When not in class or doing extra volunteer English tutoring at the hotel, he and the other volunteers were invited on walking and bus tours in their honor to neighboring towns and cities to visit the massive cathedrals and other landmarks.

"When these fairly young children entered the cathedrals, their demeanors changed to one of reverence for their churches. They were proud of those cathedrals and wanted to show them off to us," added Tronco.

Global Volunteers gives their participants a teaching guideline, and the volunteers follow along with the textbook. The teaching consisted of exaggerated gestures and demonstrations to children who had already had between one and three years of English but have no one with which to practice. This is where the volunteers come in, as sounding boards and seemingly large vats of information for the American world with which the Italian children are acquainted.

Courtesy Photo

Joe Tronco is pictured with junior high school students in Martina Franca in the Puglia region of Italy. Tronco taught English to Italian students for two weeks in March as a part of the Global Volunteers program.

"The kids had practiced the questions they were asking. They wanted to know what types of sports I liked and other things about America and what I thought about certain topics," said Tronco.

The students were like any other students with the class clown, the best athlete, the one serious student. They embraced Tronco and, and he did the same. "It was such an exciting opportunity to be with people to learn more and broaden all of our lives," he said.

Tronco, whose family tree can be traced back to Southern Italy, not far from Puglia, is traveling back to visit some of the same areas and surrounding cities with his wife Katherine in July.

"When you spend those two weeks with them, you learn a lot more than you would as a tourist," he continued. "We all change as we become more aware. You go there to teach, but you realize that you have learned." ▼

Contact Staff Writer Alesha M. Price by calling (704) 370-3354 or e-mail amprice@charlottediocese.org.

June 26 - July 3
$1875.00*

Established 1918 COLLETTE TOURS Experience it!

shrines of eastern canada
With Bishop William G. Curlin

Combining Canadian Shrines and destinations with impressive accommodations makes this pilgrimage with Bishop William G. Curlin a wonderful experience in some of Eastern Canada's most beautiful cities:

Toronto
Montreal
Quebec City
Mont Tremblant
Ottawa
Niagara Falls

- St. Michael's Cathedral
- St. Joseph's Oratory
- Notre Dame Cathedral
- St. Anne De Beaupre
- Notre Dame Du Cap Shrine
- La Basilique Notre Dame

Limited space available. For reservations and registration, call Joann Keane, (704) 370-3336 or e-mail jskeane@charlottediocese.org.

Pricing based on double occupancy. Single Room Supplement: $500

The Diocese of Charlotte
CATHOLIC SOCIAL SERVICES

Executive Director:
Elizabeth Thurbee (704) 370-3228
Refugee Office:
Cira Ponce (704) 370-6930
Justice & Peace:
Joanne K. Frazer (704) 370-3225
Special Ministries:
Gerard A. Carter (704) 370-3250

Charlotte Area: 1123 South Church Street, Charlotte, NC 28203
Area Director: Geri King (704) 370-6155
Western Area: 50 Orange Street, Asheville, NC 28801
Area Director: Sister Marie Frechette (828) 255-0146
Piedmont-Triad Area: 621 W. Second Street, Winston-Salem, NC 27108
Area Director: David Harold (336) 727-0705
Greensboro Satellite Office: (336) 274-5577
High Point Hispanic Center: (336) 884-5858

For information on the following programs, please contact the number listed:

CCHD	(704) 370-3234	Natural Family Planning	(704) 370-3230
Casa Guadalupe	(336) 727-4745	Operation Rice Bowl	(704) 370-3231
Catholic Relief Services	(704) 370-3225	Prison Ministry (beeper)	(704) 581-7693
Disaster Relief	(704) 370-3250	Programa Esperanza	(704) 370-6928
Elder Ministry	(704) 370-3220	Respect Life	(704) 370-3229
Family Life	(704) 370-3250	Voices for Justice Legislative Network	(704) 370-3225
Hand to Hand	(336) 725-HAND
Host Homes	(336) 725-HOST	Widow/Separated/Divorced	(704) 370-3228
Marriage Preparation	(704) 370-3228

1123 South Church Street ⊙ Charlotte, NC 28203 ⊙ www.cssnc.org

A3-DIGIT 275
S320 P1
42083
MC COLLECTION
UNC
WILSON LIBRARY CB 3930
CHAPEL HILL NC 27599-0001

The Catholic
NEWS & HERALD
Serving Catholics in Western North Carolina in the Diocese of Charlotte

May 19, 2000
Volume 9 ▾ Number 36

Inside

Make world a better place, says visiting priest
...Page 3

Cardinal Hickey surprised by honorary degree
...Page 15

Living the Faith
In Italian film, knights embark on medieval quest for shroud
...Page 16

Local News

Bishop McGuinness on the air
...Page 5

Mission community grows with multi-cultural flair
...Page 7

Every Week

Entertainment
...Pages 10-11

Editorials & Columns
...Pages 12-13

The Fatima Beatifications
Pope beatifies Fatima children, has aide announce "Third Secret"
...Pages 8-9

The little sister that could

By ALESHA M. PRICE
Staff Writer

WINSTON-SALEM — Many people wish they had her spunk. She seems to go non-stop, and her co-workers, friends and the women religious in her sister community wonder where this 83-year-old gets her energy. She describes herself as a "little old nun doing the Lord's work," while the patients and workers at the hospital where she performs her ministry call her the "Mother Teresa of Baptist Hospital."

Sister of St. Joseph Dennis Eileen Gamber laughs at the comparison. "I am old and wrinkled like her, but that is where the similarity ends," she humbly joked. "I can't even be mentioned in the same sentence with her."

Sister Dennis, a parishioner of St. Leo the Great Church in Winston-Salem, hails from Pennsylvania, where she attended an all-girls' school. It was one of her teachers, a Sister of St. Joseph of Chestnut Hill, Pa., who inspired her to join the order herself.

She began teaching and received her bachelor's of arts in mathematics from Chestnut Hill College in 1947. She also received her master's of arts in mathematics from Villanova University and studied physics and other subjects at Catholic University and Loyola University of New Orleans. She spent most of her life teaching high school, a profession she enjoyed immensely.

When she moved to Winston-Salem in 1975, a decision, she said, that did not sit well with her immediately, she continued to teach math at Bishop McGuinness High School and began her hospital ministry part time. "I had to get used to being away from home," she said with a smile. In 1985, she retired from teaching and began to work full time at Baptist Hospital.

"I loved teaching math, and when I went into this work, I thought I would miss it. But, this work is a direct gift from God," said Sister Dennis of her work as a pastoral minister at Baptist Hospital and Forsyth Hospital.

She visits the patients and prays, talks and sits with the many Catho-

See SISTER DENNIS, page 4

Photo by Alesha M. Price

Sister of St. Joseph Dennis Eileen Gamber is presented with the Mother Teresa Memorial Award and a $500 check for AIDS Care Service from the Knights of Columbus State Council. Pictured left is Bob Singer, state deputy, and Father James Solari, pastor of St. Leo the Great Church.

Lay Ministry graduates complete personal faith journey

By ALESHA M. PRICE
Staff Writer

CHARLOTTE — Chris and Jo Gibbs have only recently learned what Catholicism is all about. Five years ago, Chris Gibbs came back to Catholicism after growing up Catholic but without a strong grounding in his faith. His wife, Jo, grew up Baptist and converted right before marrying. Both of them became involved with the diocesan lay ministry program to supplement the knowledge they already had.

"I wanted to learn more because I missed it growing up. I went to church only a couple of times I can remember," explained Mr. Gibbs. "The lay ministry program is an affirmation of what I believe already and has focused my faith and understanding of the church."

For Mrs. Gibbs, the coordinator of religious formation at St. Margaret Mary Church in Swannanoa, her involvement with lay ministry is a way for her to better prepare her students. "I will use what I have learned with the faith formation classes, and for me, learning about the history and evolution of the church fascinates me. I simply wanted to learn more," she said.

The Gibbses were two of the 98 graduates, representing 32 parishes, of the Lay Ministry Training Program who received their certificates at a Mass and ceremony on May 13 at St. Gabriel Church in Charlotte, one of the sites for the Saturday sessions.

"I commend the investment of their time and appreciate the generosity of family and friends in allowing them to participate because this is a two-year commitment," said Mercy Sister Mary Timothy Warren, diocesan director of lay ministry and vicar for women religious. "This academic program helps them to develop communicative skills and to practice their religious roles in the marketplace."

Anyone, regardless of his or her affiliation with the church, can become involved with the program. Faith formation and religion teachers as well as those who wish to become permanent deacons are required to complete the program, explained Sister Mary Timothy.

"We need the strength, gifts and talents given to you by God who calls you to this ministry of the church," said Bishop William G. Curlin, celebrant for the Mass. "You have been commissioned to bring the joy of Christ

See LAY MINISTRY, page 14

Vatican's U.N. nuncio applauds statement on Kissling group

NEW YORK (CNS) — The Vatican's U.N. nuncio said May 11 that a new statement from the U.S. bishops denouncing Catholics for a Free Choice for a campaign against the Vatican's U.N. permanent observer status will be useful in reminding leaders at the world body that the organization is not Catholic. The organization has consultative status as a nongovernmental organization at the United Nations, and its president, Frances Kissling, has been an active lobbyist at U.N. meetings. In a telephone interview, Archbishop Renato R. Martino commented on a May 10 statement issued by Bishop Joseph A. Fiorenza of Galveston-Houston, as president of the bishops' conference, that said the group's campaign against the Vatican's U.N. status is reminiscent of "other episodes of anti-Catholic bigotry." Archbishop Martino said the group's campaign has not affected church relations with the world body and that not one of the U.N.'s 180 member nations has indicated any support for it.

Donations, prayers urged for victims of New Mexico fire

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (CNS) — Archbishop Michael J. Sheehan of Santa Fe authorized a special collection to be taken up in parishes May 13-14 to aid residents who lost their homes and possessions when an intense fire surged through Los Alamos. The town, which is where the atomic bomb was built and is the site of Los Alamos National Laboratory, is 70 miles north of Albuquerque in the 61,000-square-mile Archdiocese of Santa Fe. The fire was started as a controlled burn May 4 to clear out brush in nearby Bandelier National Monument but dry, windy conditions caused it to quickly grow out of control. By May 12, it had raged through 28,000 acres and in Los Alamos destroyed 280 homes and forced 25,000 people to evacuate.

National Federation of Priests' Councils meets

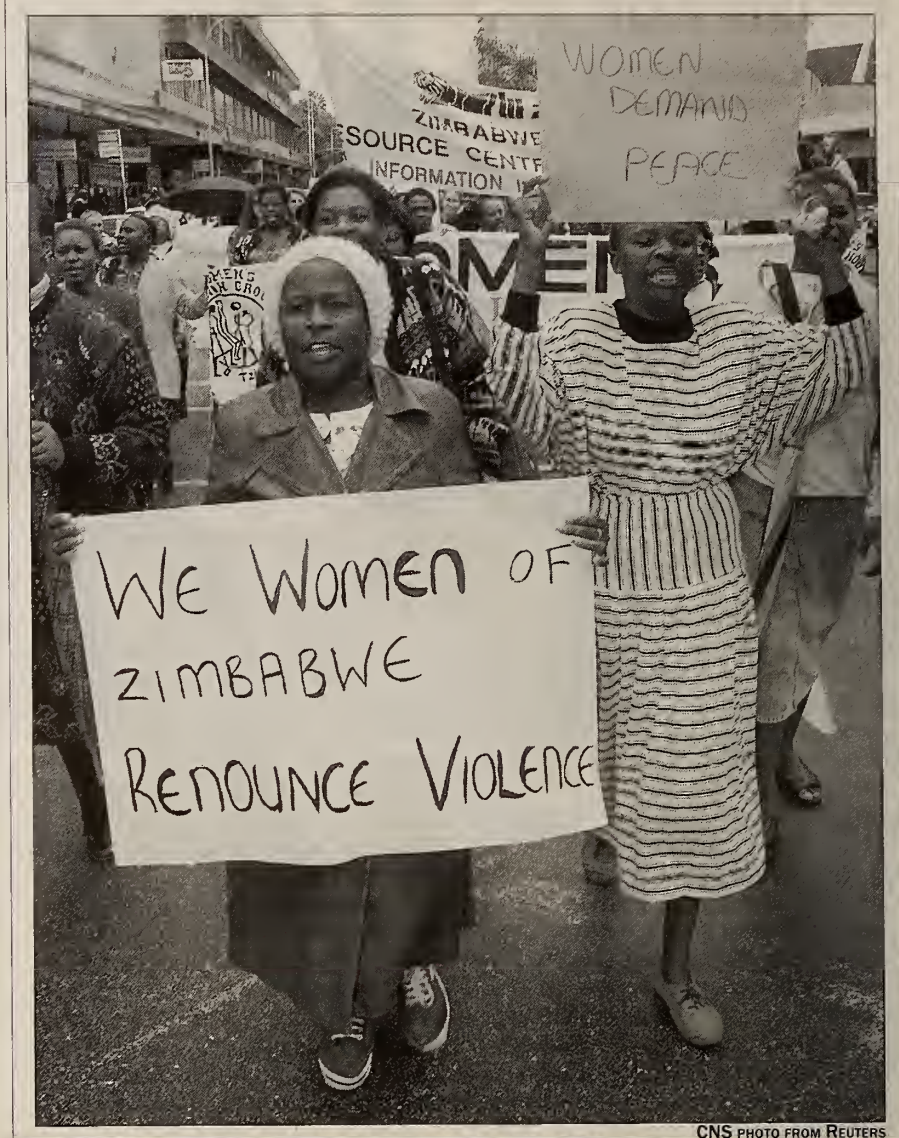
OAKLAND, Calif. (CNS) — The National Federation of Priests' Councils focused on the church's multicultural dimensions at its annual convention May 1-4 in Oakland. Bishop John S. Cummins of Oakland highlighted the importance of that focus in a talk May 2. "If we as a church do not succeed in our vision for the unity of the human family, there is little hope for the world," he said. Some 270 priests and church leaders gathered at the Oakland Marriott City Center Hotel for the federation's 32nd annual convention. The 2000 theme, "Ministry in a Church of Many Cultures," continued the 1999 theme, "From the Many, One Church."

Child soldiers said to have escaped rebels in Sierra Leone

FREETOWN, Sierra Leone (CNS) — As fighting resumed in Sierra Leone between rebels of the Revolutionary United Front and progovernment forces, about 100 child soldiers cared for by Caritas, the church's charitable agency, escaped from rebels. The supervisor of Caritas projects in Sierra Leone, John Thorley, told Catholic News Service that the children had been in a rehabilitation camp at Lunsar, in northern Sierra Leone. When rebels drove U.N. troops from the North and fought with progovernment forces May 8, the rebels attempted to lure former child soldiers into rejoining the conflict, but the children escaped, he said. They had walked about 50 miles when they were spotted by a helicopter and were airlifted to Freetown, Thorley said.

Vatican, Poland issue stamps to mark pope's 80th birthday

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — The Vatican and the Polish government have designed a commemoration of Pope John Paul II's 80th birthday that is expected to enter the homes of the humble and the offices of the mighty. Vatican City and Poland announced the joint issue of a series of three postage stamps honoring the Polish-born pope on his May 18 birthday. "It is with great pleasure and deep affection that Vatican City and Poland prepare to celebrate the pope's 80th birthday," said a statement from the Vatican's Philatelic and Numismatic Office.



CNS PHOTO FROM REUTERS

Women march in Zimbabwe

Women in Harare march to the Zimbabwe capital calling for an end to recent violence in their country. Nineteen people have been killed recently in clashes between war veterans and white owners of farms and in election-related violence.

Lithuanian agreements formalize Catholic Church status

WARSAW, Poland (CNS) — The Vatican has signed a series of agreements with Lithuania regulating the Catholic Church's position a decade after the collapse of communist rule. A church spokesman said the three texts, modeled on earlier accords with Croatia, signaled an end to the search for "complex, time-consuming concordats." "Most clauses confirm the existing situation here and should be seen as extending cooperation rather than providing protection," said Father Adolfas Gruzas, a spokesman for the Lithuanian bishops' conference.

The Catholic News & Herald

May 19, 2000
Volume 9 • Number 36

Publisher: Most Reverend William G. Curlin
Editor: Joann S. Keane
Associate Editor: Jimmy Rostar
Staff Writer: Alesha M. Price
Production Associate: Julie Radcliffe
Advertising Representative: Cindi Feerick
Secretary: Jane Glodowski
1123 South Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203
Mail: P.O. Box 37267, Charlotte, NC 28237
Phone: (704) 370-3333 FAX: (704) 370-3382
E-mail: catholicnews@charlottediocese.org

The Catholic News & Herald, USPC 007-393, is published by the Roman Catholic Diocese of Charlotte, 1123 South Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203, 44 times a year, weekly except for Christmas week and Easter week and every two weeks during June, July and August for $15 per year for enrollees in parishes of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Charlotte and $18 per year for all other subscribers. Second-class postage paid at Charlotte NC and other cities. POSTMASTER: Send address corrections to The Catholic News & Herald, P.O. Box 37267, Charlotte, NC 28237.

AWARD WINNER cpa 1998 CATHOLIC PRESS ASSOCIATION

Episcopal calendar

Bishop William G. Curlin will take part in the following events:

May 22 — 7 pm Confirmation
St. Leo, Winston-Salem

May 23 — 7 pm Confirmation
Our Lady of the Assumption
Charlotte

May 24-25
Pre-Ordination retreat for seminarians

May 27 — 10 am Confirmation
St. Paul, Greensboro

May 28 — 11 am Confirmation
Our Lady of Consolation, Charlotte

6 pm Confirmation
St. John Neumann, Charlotte

Diocesan planner

May

22 CHARLOTTE — The Alzheimer's/dementia support group for caretakers of memory-impaired family members and friends meets today from 2-3:30 p.m. at St. Gabriel Church, 3016 Providence Rd., in rooms D and E of the ministry center. Activities are available for the memory-impaired. For further details about the support group or the Shining Stars Adult Day Respite program, call Suzanne Bach at (704) 376-4135.

CHARLOTTE — St. John Neumann Church, 8451 Idlewild Rd., is celebrating the 100th anniversary of the canonization of St. Rita, Augustinian wife, mother and nun, known as "the saint of the impossible." All who have strife in their lives, need help in family relationships or feel they have an impossible situation are invited to the celebration and blessing of roses this morning for 9:15 a.m. Mass and tonight for 7:30 p.m. exposition, benediction and prayer. Call the church office at (704) 536-6520 or (704) 535-4197 with any questions.

GREENSBORO — The Greensboro Council of Catholic Women is having their annual May luncheon at Sedgefield Country Club, beginning at 11:30 a.m. with a cash and spirits bar, fashion show featuring items from a local women's clothing store and raffle prizes. For more information, call Janet Law at (336) 288-6022.

25 ASHEVILLE — All are invited to come to St. Joan of Arc Church, 919 Haywood Ave., for a healing Mass tonight at 7 p.m. Refreshments will follow the Mass. For more information, call the church office at (828) 252-3151.

28 CHARLOTTE — The Charlotte area monthly Ultreya meets today at St. Matthew Church, 8015

Make world a better place for God's people, visiting priest says

By ELLEN NEERINCX SIGMON
Correspondent

HICKORY — Father Thomas Coughlin, the first deaf person in North America to be ordained as a Roman Catholic priest, came from New York to North Carolina on Friday, May 5 to be the homilist at Lenoir-Rhyne College's baccalaureate service that evening, and also to deliver the homily during Sunday morning Mass at St. Charles Borromeo Catholic Church in Morganton.

In both places, the theme for his talk was Jesus as the good shepherd, which corresponded to the Gospel reading in Roman Catholic and Lutheran churches that weekend (John 10:11-18).

At Lenoir-Rhyne, Father Coughlin told the graduating class that "the more you wrestle with Christ's truth, the more you will prefer His truth to the so-called truth of this world.... Be not afraid to take up the challenges and struggles to make God's world a better place for His people. This world needs more good shepherds."

Father Coughlin has followed this advice himself for much of his life. Born deaf in 1947, he is the founder and director of the House of Studies for Deaf Seminarians in Yonkers, N.Y., and the founder of Camp Mark Seven, a camp for deaf children in upstate New York. Many times in his life his plans or ideas have been met with an answer of "no" because of his deafness, but he persisted anyway and found success.

In an interview after the Mass on Sunday, Father Coughlin talked about his life. He talked about the sisters who taught him at St. Joseph Catholic High School in Buffalo, N.Y. "Their values rubbed off well on me," he said.

He credited the nuns with helping him discern his vocation early on, depite the challenges he faced with his deafness. "I was 14, an age where I was very impressionable. I started reading other books and asking questions," he said.

After applying to several orders, he finally found a community to pursue his calling.

The Holy Trinity Fathers in Baltimore, Md., accepted him after a call from young Coughlin's school principal, but the student found it difficult to read lips in the classes. After a year, he left to attend Gallaudet University in Washington, D.C.

He kept in contact with Holy Trinity while working on his bachelor of arts degree in English at Gallaudet. He persevered in his studies, and finally he was ordained in 1977 after receiving his master's in religious studies from the Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C.

He also spent some time studying at the Alliance Francais in Paris, and is fluent in French and English, even though he has never heard either language, as well as American Sign Language.

After 15 years of being associated with the Holy Trinity Fathers, Father Coughlin became a diocesan priest, working with deaf people all over the world. Nineteen years ago he founded Camp Mark Seven to help deaf children learn about their deafness and their faith. The camp, which is entirely staffed by deaf people, also offers some programs for elderly deaf people, and people with drug or alcohol problems. Father Coughlin said the camp is planning to expand its programs to include hearing children of deaf parents.

One summer, the New York Department of Public Health threatened to close the camp down because they did not have a registered nurse on staff. They advertised, but could not find a nurse who knew sign language. "I said, 'Oh well, I'll go to school and become a nurse myself.'"

He said that learning about the inner workings of the human body increased his faith. "That science helped me to understand about God so much more clearly," he said.

Another nurse has taken over those duties at the camp now. He serves as her assistant, as an assistant to the camp's current director, as chaplain and as executive director.

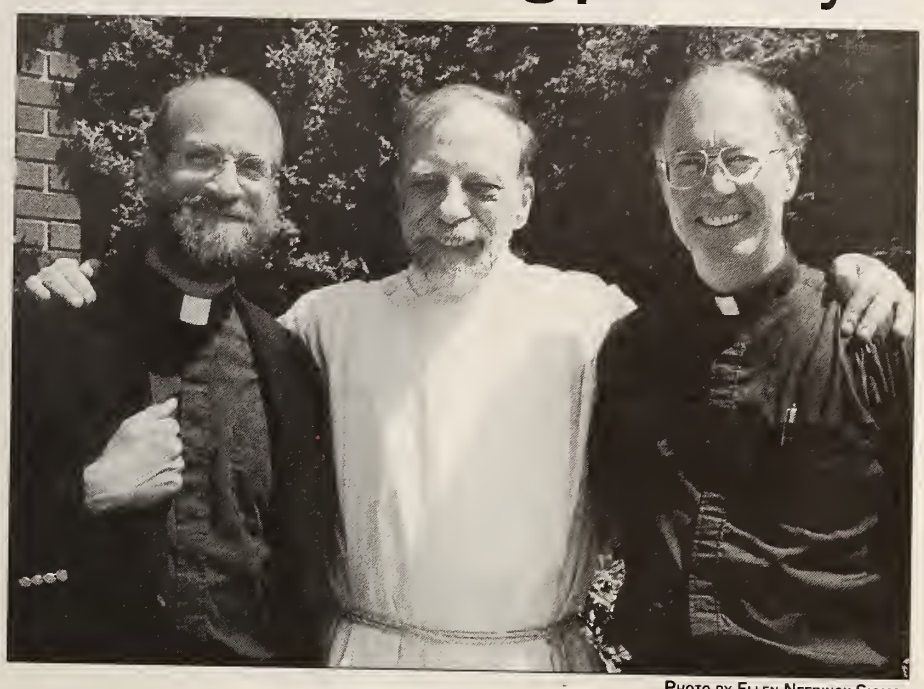


Photo by Ellen Neerincx Sigmon

Lutheran Pastor Andrew Weisner of Lenior-Rhyne College, Father Ken Whittington of St. Charles Borromeo in Morganton and Father Thomas Coughlin following Mass on May 14.

The camp keeps him busy in the summer, but during the rest of the year he works with his group of seminarians.

In 1997, he began his own community and started looking for a bishop to help. After sending several letters without getting any positive responses, he received a telephone call from New York archbishop Cardinal John O'Connor.

"I don't know how he found out," said Father Coughlin. "He asked me about it, and I explained the difficulties (that deaf seminarians and priests encountered) — interpretation, support systems. He showed surprise that this had never been done before in the whole world."

Cardinal O'Connor met with Pope John Paul II that year, made a proposal, and received approval to form a deaf seminary. Father Coughlin moved to New York and set up the program through St. Joseph's Seminary in Yonkers. They now have four seminarians and a nine-bedroom residence where sign language is the primary language. "Deaf people feel at ease there," said Father Coughlin.

Plans are in the works to form a religious community for deaf women as well.

Father Coughlin said that Cardinal O'Connor set up a $250,000 endowment so that the deaf seminarians there could get a free education. On May 21, 1999, Cardinal O'Connor came to bless the house and take a tour.

"He loved our deaf people, and he blessed us," said Father Coughlin, who attended the cardinal's funeral.

Father Coughlin is eager to continue his work of outreach.

"I want to be a producer, to make something," said Father Coughlin, who has been commended personally by Pope John Paul II for his outstanding ministry. "I have a certain drive inside of me. I'm very motivated to do many things before I die." ▼

Ballantyne Commons Pkwy., from 1:30-3 p.m. Call Bill Gold at (704) 339-2121 for more information.

HENDERSONVILLE — The St. Francis of the Hills Fraternity of the Secular Franciscan Order meets today at Immaculate Conception Church in the office wing on 6th Ave. West. Visitors and inquirers are welcome. Call Pat Cowan at (828) 884-4246 for more information.

June

2 ASHEVILLE — Catholic Association of Family Educators (C.A.F.E), Western North Carolina's Catholic homeschool support group, is having an "end of the year" picnic and potluck at CP&L Park this afternoon at 5:30 p.m. For more information, call Denise Vish at (828) 645-6990 or Sheryl Oligny at (828) 298-0336.

4 CHARLOTTE — In recognition of National Cancer Survivors' Day, St. Gabriel Church, St. Matthew Church and St. Vincent de Paul Church members invite all cancer survivors, caregivers, family and friends to attend Mass and to participate in anointing of the sick at 5:30 p.m. today at St. Matthew Church, 8015 Ballantyne Pkwy. For more information, call Bob Poffenbarger Sr. with the National Cancer Day Foundation at (704) 553-7000 or e-mail Rjpoffsr@aol.com.

CHARLOTTE — A special reception, sponsored by the Parent Teacher Organization, is being held for Mercy Sister Paulette Williams who is leaving her job as principal of Charlotte Catholic High School (CCHS) to begin a new ministry with the Sisters of Mercy. The reception takes place from 1-3 p.m. at CCHS, 7702 Pineville-Matthews Rd. For more information, call Vicki Britton at (704) 365-0312.

Upcoming

CHARLOTTE — A volleyball camp is being held for rising sixth- through ninth- graders July 17-20 from 9 a.m.-3 p.m. The coaches are going to be Tim Leary from CCHS and Bettie Berry, a former CCHS coach. For more information, call Bettie Berry at (704) 521-8721.

MAGGIE VALLEY — Augustinian Father Anthony M. Genovese is the facilitator of a retreat, "Take Courage and Be a Man," emphasizing male spirituality and how this experience has an influence on societal values, the pursuit of goals, dealing with failures and being open to God's call. For further information on the retreat being held June 9-11, call the Living Waters Catholic Reflection Center, 103 Living Waters Lane, at (828) 926-3833 or e-mail lwcrc@main.nc.us.

ROCK HILL, S.C. — The Oratory Religion Camp will hold two separate one-week sessions at Camp York in Kings Mountain State Park during the weeks of July 9-15 and July 16-22. Boys and girls under 12, entering grades 2-6 in Sept., can apply for consideration. Those wishing to volunteer as counselors can write for a staff application. For more information and application, write to: The Oratory Religion Camp, P.O. Box 11586, Rock Hill, S.C., 29731-1586.

Ongoing

CLEMMONS — The time for the Spanish Mass, being held at Holy Family Church, 4820 Kinnamon Rd., is being changed to 7 p.m. for the duration of the summer, starting in June and continuing through most of August. For details, call the church office at (336) 778-0600.

Please submit notices of events for the Diocesan Planner at least 10 days prior to publication date.

Sister Dennis, from page 1

lics and non-Catholics who request her presence. "There is a list of those who are Catholic that I see, and I know that many of the patients who appear on the list are not Catholic. I want to be able to minister to all I can," she said. "I feel their pain, and I am sensitive to their needs. I cry tears over what happened to some of them."

Sister Dennis touched one such non-Catholic patient so much so that she drives Sister Dennis wherever she needs to go when she can. She is one of several who volunteer to drive Sister Dennis to the hospitals and other destinations. "I used to walk everywhere before I had hip replacement surgery. I am still able to walk all over the hospital," she said.

In her "spare time," she works tirelessly with AIDS patients, especially those who are disadvantaged and in need of housing and food. She is on the board of trustees of AIDS Care Service in Winston-Salem, which helps low-income people afflicted with AIDS with shelter and care. She visits AIDS patients, conducts fund-raisers and wears the red ribbon symbol on her lapel as a sign of her dedication to AIDS awareness.

She is also the spiritual director of the St. Leo Church Christian Mothers' Group, where, as Ria Monteleone, the group's president, said, her presence is always needed and welcome.

"There is something very spiritual about her, and she has a quality of holiness that is profound. She comes every month to the meetings and opens with a prayer or reflective time. She is a remarkable woman who is more in touch with the topics related to us than many women I know," said Monteleone.

Because of her work with hospital and AIDS ministry, the Knights of Columbus State Council chose her as the recipient of the Mother Teresa Memorial Award. She is one of two recipients this year, one in the Diocese of Charlotte and one in the Diocese of Raleigh. The Knights of Columbus wrote to Missionaries of Charity Sister Nirmala, superior general, for her approval of using Mother Teresa's name and image.

"We wanted to recognize people who do good works and follow in Mother Teresa's example of what we are called to do. We want to preserve her memory," said John Harrison, past grand deputy and chairman of the Mother Teresa Memorial Award program. "This has been a very good program, and the recipients have always been near tears when they have received the award."

Since 1998, the Knights of Columbus have sent letters to the pastors of both dioceses to nominate someone from their parish for the award. Father James Solari, pastor at St. Leo Church, thought that Sister Dennis was deserving of the award:

"From many points of view, she is person who needed to be recognized for her dedication to ministry. She is an outstanding person in our community and is a dynamo to be spending time with patients at her age," said Father Solari. He said he tries to get her to slow down to no avail. "She need to rest sometimes, and I am trying to hold her back for the long haul."

She was presented with the award and a check for $500 for AIDS Care Service, her choice of charity, during the Mass on Mother's Day, May 14, at St. Leo Church. Members of the congregation rose to their feet and applauded through tears as she said, "I am so humbled and overwhelmed with gratitude for my God. I owe it all to my Lord. The greatest gift God has ever given me is to be able to serve the sick at Baptist Hospital and the AIDS patients."

Does Sister Dennis show any signs of slowing down? "I feel like I am about 60, and I never think about how old I am. I am doing the Lord's work and loving every minute of it." ▼

Contact Staff Writer Alesha M. Price by calling (704) 370-3354 or e-mail amprice@charlottediocese.org.

Belmont Abbey College hosts commencement ceremonies

BELMONT — Despite temperatures in the high 90s, spirits were high May 13 as 196 students received degrees from Belmont Abbey College. Commencement ceremonies, preceded by a Mass of the Holy Spirit, were held in front of the Basilica of Mary Help of Christians on the historic campus.

More than 2,000 guests were in attendance, including families and friends of six Abbey staff members receiving degrees.

Bishop Robert Baker, S.T.D., bishop of the Diocese of Charleston, S.C., was the principal homilist during the Mass. The audience was delighted when the bishop left the elevated stage and came to the level of students and guests to deliver his message with great drama and animation.

Bishop Baker was among three to receive honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degrees for his commitment to the Church and assistance to the needy. Also receiving honorary doctorates were Sister Charlotte Lange, O.S.B., principal of Saint Gertrude's High School in Richmond, Va., and Wallace Dalton of Lake Wylie, S.C. Mr. Dalton is a longtime supporter of Belmont Abbey, having served on numerous boards and committees. He established a scholarship honoring former college president Father John Bradley, for whom the college's Bradley Institute for the Study of Christian Culture is named.

During commencement, four retiring faculty members were recognized: Father John Oetgen, O.S.B., professor of English; Father Arthur Pendleton, O.S.B., professor of chemistry; Dr. Frank Murray, professor of history; and Stanley Dudko, associate professor of business and economics. ▼

Loyola Institute extension program to form new group

CHARLOTTE — The Loyola Institute for Ministry Extension Program is forming a new learning group in the Charlotte area. The Diocese of Charlotte is the sponsoring agency for this program, which yields master's degrees and certificates in religious education and pastoral studies. The distance-learning program is for anyone involved in ministry, and consists of 12 courses, each lasting 12 weeks. An informational session on the new learning group is June 5 at 7 p.m. at St. Gabriel Church in Charlotte, 3016 Providence Rd. For further information, call Connie Milligan at (704) 364-3344.

You can express your commitment to your Church by making a bequest to the Diocese of Charlotte or to your parish. Simply have the following statement included in your will:
"I leave to the Roman Catholic Diocese of Charlotte (or ____ parish, city) the sum of $____ (or____ percent of the residue of my estate) for its religious, educational and charitable works."

Remember God's Will In Yours.

"A valid Will stands as a continuing expression of our concern for loved ones, as well as an ongoing commitment to the Church and the community in which we live."
Bishop William G. Curlin

For more information on how to make a Will that works, contact Cindy Rice, Director of Planned Giving, (704) 370-3320, at the Diocese of Charlotte, 1123 South Church Street, Charlotte, NC 28203.

VOCATIONS

Is God calling you?

Rev. Mr. Shawn O'Neal
is a transitional deacon in the Diocese of Charlotte. He is completing formation at St. Meinrad School of Theology in Indiana He will be ordained in June 2000.

"Soon the greatly anticipated day will arrive: I will be invited to join my brother priests at the altar to share in the ministerial priesthood of Jesus Christ. What an honor! I am thrilled to have the opportunity to do God's saving work in the place I have called "home" most of my life.

My family moved to Charlotte in early 1981 and we were welcomed warmly into the Church where, as a teenager, I became involved in puppet ministry. Soon, my first Mass of Thanksgiving will be held at that very same altar at St. John Neumann.

Thank you for your prayers which helped me open my heart to God who was calling me to serve. Please continue to pray for me and for all my brothers that our joy will lead others to join in spreading this witness of hope."

... Are you answering His call?

For more information about serving God as a priest in the Diocese of Charlotte, please contact Father John Allen,
The Office of Vocations, The Roman Catholic Diocese of Charlotte, 1123 South Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203.
(704) 370-3353 • vocations@charlottediocese.org

Bishop McGuinness on the air in Piedmont Triad

By LARRY CHANCE
Correspondent

WINSTON-SALEM — When you are the chief fund-raiser for a growing Catholic high school, and you have the pipes to work for the BBC, why not put that talent to good use? That's just what Eddie Mitchell, director of institutional activities at Bishop McGuinness Memorial High School in Winston-Salem, had in mind when he began to produce and host a daily five-minute radio show about the activities of the school.

The program originates from the studios of WIST 98.3 FM in High Point, which targets adult listeners with an eclectic play list of pop favorites, ranging from Paul Anka to Louis Prima and Frank Sinatra.

Mitchell believes this audience takes an interest in the school, which recently broke ground for a new facility at a central location in the Piedmont Triad, and he programs the show to increase that interest.

He picked this station because many older BMHS alumni listen to the station, as do the parents of many alumni.

"The idea is to get the name Bishop McGuinness out ... it's about what makes the school different," said Mitchell. "I'm sure everyone in the Triad knows Bishop McGuinness; they don't know what goes on behind the doors." Mitchell feels that the radio show is an opportunity for people to get that message.

Photo by Larry Chance

Eddie Mitchell at the control board of WIST 98.3 FM.

The show covers topics such as upcoming special events like the recent auction, the new campus, interscholastic sports, fine arts and other Bishop McGuinness highlights. It begins at 9:02 a.m.

Mitchell said that the show gives the school a " ... chance to blow our own trumpet as far as the students are concerned."

A former professional soccer player in Great Britain, Mitchell began his broadcasting career for the BBC doing programs about the sport. "I used to do a program on Friday morning about the upcoming weekend soccer games," he said.

When he arrived in the United States, he worked for a radio station in Texas. Now, as the head fund-raiser for the rapidly growing school, he is able to apply his experience in a way that reaches far beyond the school community into the community at large.

With a distinctive British accent, the former Londoner feels he is blessed with a voice that people recognize. In the Western Piedmont, that usually means that once a day, someone comments about his accent. He believes that you cannot get enough publicity, so if his accent and the radio show combine to generate more interest in the school, he is happy.

The show is effective. One other hat that Mitchell wears is that of admissions, and he pointed out that one Kernersville parent who heard the first show called to register his child as a result of what he heard on the show.

Mitchell would like the show, which will resume production next September, to expand, so that he can keep spreading the word that Bishop McGuinness High School is what he believes to be an exciting place for students, abounding with opportunity. ▼

Father Vincent Donovan, C.S.Sp., of Our Lady of Lourdes dies suddenly

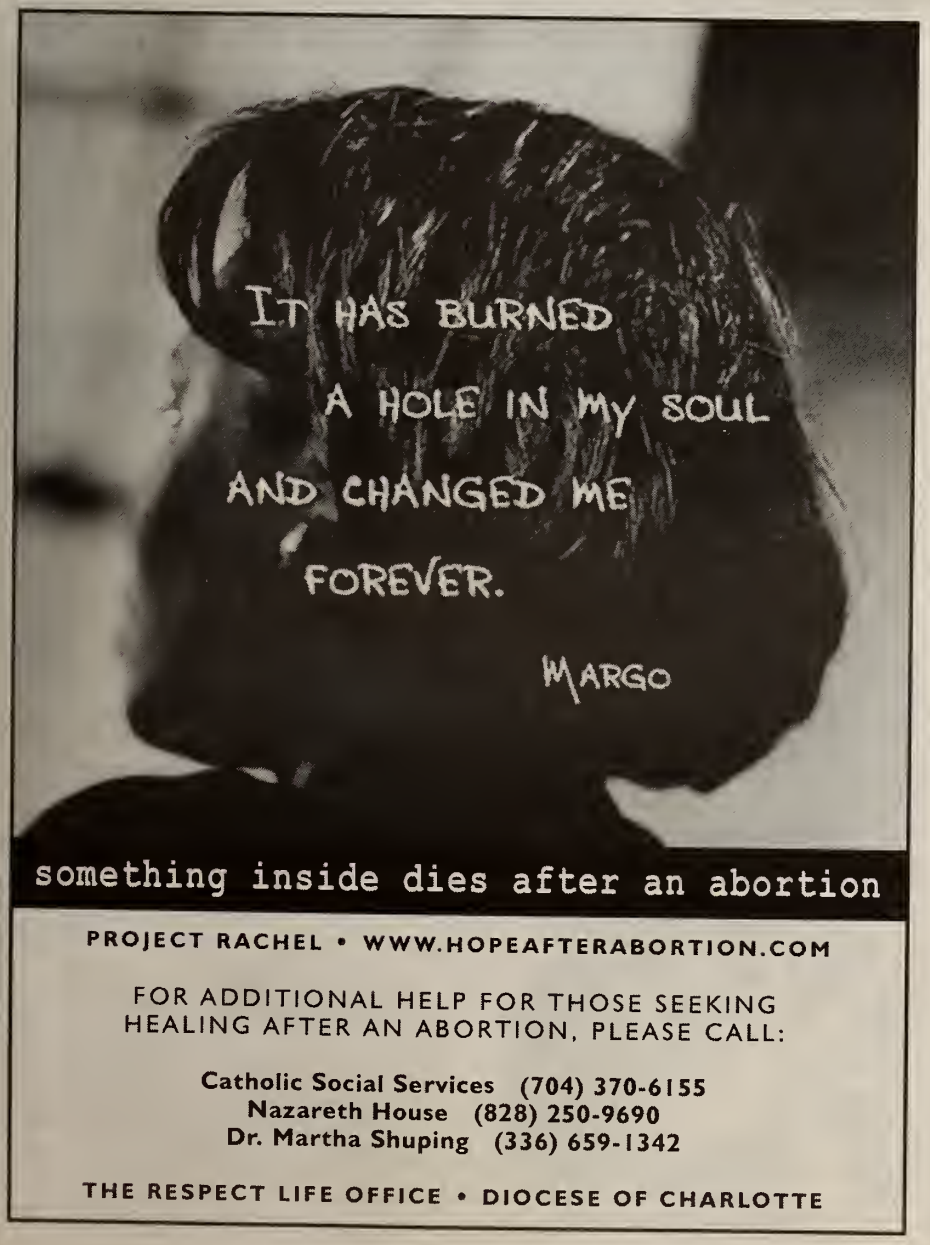
BETHEL PARK, Pa. — Father Vincent Donovan, C.S.Sp, died suddenly Saturday, May 13, 2000.

Father Donovan served as the parochial vicar at Our Lady of Lourdes Church in Monroe from April 1993 until February 2000.

Viewing was at Trinity Hall Chapel, Duquesne University, Pittsburgh on Wed., May 17. Mass of Christian Burial took place on Thurs., May 18 at 10 a.m. at Duquesne University Chapel with a luncheon following the service. Burial will be in St. Mary's Cemetery, O'Hara Township.

Father Donovan was preceded in death by his parents, William J. & Nora McCarthy Donovan and other siblings. He is survived by his sister Nora Koren and nephews and nieces.

Condolences may be sent to Mrs. Nora Koren at 1527 Fawcett Avenue, White Oak, Pa. 15131. ▼



CFCC
Carolina Funeral & Cremation Center
Dignity
Affordability
Simplicity
5505 Monroe Rd. Charlotte, NC 28212
704-568-0023
www.carolinafuneral.com
Steven Kuzma
Owner/Director
Privately, Locally Owned
Member St. Matthew Church and Knights of Columbus

"Our Specialty Is Loving Your Pets"
Pineville Animal Hospital
10833 Pineville Road, Pineville, NC
(Near Carolina Pavilion/AMC 22 Theater)
(704) 552-2005
In addition to our complete medical care facility, we also offer:
Boarding Kennels
Professional Grooming
Thomas N. Buckley, DVM, owner
Member of St. Vincent's

CNS PHOTO FROM REUTERS

World Day of Prayer for Vocations
Pope John Paul II lays his hands on the head of a priest ordained in St. Peter's Square May 14. The pope ordained 26 new priests for the Diocese of Rome during the service held on World Day of Prayer for Vocations.

Well-wishers to post birthday greetings to pope online

By BENEDICTA CIPOLLA
CATHOLIC NEWS SERVICE

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — Birthday well-wishers for Pope John Paul II won't have to garner tickets to a private papal audience to extend their congratulations: They can post them online.

A Web-based initiative, expected to be up and running by the pope's 80th birthday May 18, will allow Internet surfers to send their greetings via a special link, "Happy Birthday Pope John Paul II," available on popular portals like Yahoo! and msn.com.

Vatican officials said the link would be active for a minimum of a week but could be extended further, depending on how many people sign their names to the virtual birthday card.

The link, proposed by the Freiburg, Germany-based Ele Foundation and provided free of charge by the Web sites, will also include information on a Vatican charity fund for AIDS orphans in Africa.

According to the latest U.N. statistics, by the end of 2000, 13 million African children will have lost one or both parents to the AIDS pandemic.

The donations collected online by the Ele Foundation will then be delivered to the Vatican charity "Cor Unum."

Giovanni Bianchini, a "Cor Unum" official, said May 15 that the participation of major Web sites in the initiative represented a "small example of solidarity."

In a May 12 press release, "Cor Unum" called Africa's orphan problem a "unique and tragic crisis."

"Neither words nor statistics adequately capture this human tragedy," said the statement. ▼

French bishops express communion with Bishop Gaillot

LYONS, France (CNS) — In a sign of reconciliation with his fellow French bishops, controversial Bishop Jacques Gaillot expressed his thanks for an invitation to participate in an ecumenical meeting. In a May 10 letter to Archbishop Louis-Marie Bille of Lyons, president of the French bishops' conference, Bishop Gaillot said his colleagues' expression of brotherhood "touches me deeply and will bring joy to many." Archbishop Bille's letter of May 5, released by the French bishops' conference May 10, said the May 13 meeting in Lyons "could be an occasion to express the communion that we have felt for so long" and to heal the five-year-old wound caused by Bishop Gaillot's ouster from his diocese. The Vatican removed Bishop Gaillot from his post in Evreux in January 1995 after he publicly challenged church teaching on several issues.

Heyerdahl, with Vatican help, settles Ericson-Columbus debate

WASHINGTON (CNS) — Acclaimed navigator Thor Heyerdahl said a document in storage in the Vatican's archives gives evidence for the contention that Leif Ericson , not Christopher Columbus, was the first European to travel by boat to the New World. But cherished elements of the Ericson saga will have to be abandoned, Heyerdahl said in a May 11 address at the National Press Club in Washington. Ericson was not a Viking, nor did he pilot a Viking ship, although "he may have seen one" during his travels, said Heyerdahl, author of dozens of books, including "Kon-Tiki" and "The Ra Expeditions." What's more, Ericson, an Icelander, was converted to Catholicism by King Olaf of Norway and sent to Greenland to convert the "pagan" people living there, Heyerdahl said. "He took one priest and two catechists with him" on his craft, a merchant vessel more humble than a Viking ship, he added.

Cuban baseball team's visit to Catholic college hurt by defection

ST. PAUL, Minn. (CNS) — The Cubans came to play baseball, meet new American friends and see the sights and landmarks of Minnesota. They didn't expect to make the national headlines they did, thanks to a team member who broke away from the group and flew to Miami to seek asylum in the United States. And they didn't expect to be followed nonstop by news reporters and photographers who wanted pictures and reactions to the unfolding story of their teammate, 20-year-old Mario Miguel Chaoui. "It's had an impact," said Doug Hennes, a spokesman for the University of St. Thomas, which hosted the visit. "If he hadn't left the team, there would be a different atmosphere."

Ohio priest stabbed, hospitalized after hearing confession

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (CNS) — An Ohio priest who was stabbed while hearing his attacker's confession told police the seal of confession will prevent him from testifying against his assailant. According to a statement from Middletown police, Father Charles Mentrup, 41, an associate pastor at Incarnation Parish, was stabbed early May 5 at his residence while hearing his assailant's confession. The priest was transported to Middletown Regional Hospital, where he underwent surgery for a knife wound to the abdomen. He was in good condition May 9, a hospital official said. The priest was expected to be in the hospital for at least a week.

Carolina Volkswagen
6625 E. Independence Blvd., Charlotte
(704) 537-2336 • (800) 489-2336

Biggest Selection — Lowest Prices

Drivers wanted.

"Nothing Could Be Finer" — Members of St. Gabriel

#1 Volkswagen Dealer in Charlotte and all the Carolinas for customer sales and service satisfaction!
C'mon in and see why!

Remain in control of your life.

Help protect yourself and your family from financial and emotional stress with Long Term Care insurance.

AIG Life Companies' Total LTC

Lets YOU decide what kind of care you want and need
Lets YOU decide where you will receive that care
Lets YOU decide how you will keep your independence

(800) 859-7847
(336) 768-4709
Call TOM PRYBYLO
RETIREMENT SPECIALIST
to customize a plan to fit your needs
Spelman and Co., Inc.
A SunAmerica Company
351 N. Peacehaven Road, Winston-Salem, NC 27104
Member NASD, SIPC Member St. Leo's parish

Mission community grows with multi-cultural flair

By JIMMY ROSTAR
Associate Editor

KANNAPOLIS — Redemptorist Father Karl Aschmann looked out across the congregation and smiled. Excitement lilted his voice. "It's been such a wonderful celebration today," he said.

Father Aschmann, administrator of St. Joseph Church in Kannapolis, noted the many reasons to celebrate on this May 14 afternoon. Bishop William G. Curlin had come to preside at a bilingual liturgy. It was a sunny Mother's Day, and the church's Hispanic first Communion class was seated front and center, dressed in Sunday best. A family-style picnic dinner awaited.

Best of all, a few shovels of dirt signified a new beginning for a church community whose complexion is changing with the times.

Bishop Curlin, Father Aschmann and a host of St. Joseph parishioners took turns at the shovels during a groundbreaking ceremony that kicked plans into overdrive for a new church building.

The symbolism of the ceremony was twofold, as the mission plans for a new worship center while continuing to break ground in its ministry to a growing Hispanic population working, living and worshipping in the area.

"You know, for one reason or another, God sent them here," said Father Aschmann of the Hispanics, whom he ministers to alongside the church's Anglo parishioners. "They are good workers, they do love God and they try to be good people here."

Hundreds — perhaps thousands, guesses Father Aschmann — of Hispanics flock to St. Joseph Church for Mass and ministerial support in a land far from home. They have come to the area primarily for work or to escape political strife. Today, they far outnumber the Anglo parishioners who worship at St. Joseph's, a mission of St. James Church in Concord.

Many Hispanics struggle with language and culture differences in this area. But Father Aschmann said the Hispanic parishioners have taken ownership of their adopted church community, nevertheless.

More than 500 Hispanic families worship regularly at St. Joseph's, while about 160 Anglo families are registered.

Explosive growth in the community prompted the need to make plans for a new, larger church building. The present church has been a staple of St. Joseph's six-acre site since 1949, but especially in the past few years, the congregation outgrew the smallish white building.

The parish hall now serves the parishioners as a temporary worship space. Still, parishioners spill out onto the lawn.

An architect's blueprints now show plans for a new, 700-seat church. Construction could start in September.

Photo by Jimmy Rostar

Joe Ordoyne, left, and Matt Marbois take turns at the shovels as Bishop William G. Curlin looks on during a groundbreaking ceremony at St. Joseph Church in Kannapolis. Ordoyne and Marbois are members of the church's building commission.

"There is just no more room for us," said Father Aschmann. "We will begin to build a church very quickly, and everybody is so excited that we can do something like this. We are not a rich area, but we are a place that is very much united."

Looking ahead

"You're celebrating a marvelous event," said Bishop Curlin during his homily. "You're committing yourselves to building a house of the Lord."

With those words, Bishop Curlin commissioned the people of St. Joseph Church to look ahead with a determined sense of bringing Christ to all they encounter — to truly build the church of God.

"We have to say to ourselves, 'The church is not a building. The church is God's holy people.' You are the church," he said. "You are the ones who take the love of Jesus and you show it in your daily life by the way that you treat one another, by the way you help the poor, by the way you visit the sick and comfort the dying.

"The house that we build is what we build with our hearts, not just our hands ... It's a wonderful gift that you give to Jesus, that you would build with your hands and your hearts a worthy place to celebrate his presence." ▼

Contact Associate Editor Jimmy Rostar by calling (704) 370-3334 or e-mail jtrostar@charlottediocese.org.

Find inspiring images in Bible, Vatican official tells filmmakers

CANNES, France (CNS) — Filmmakers looking for great ideas for images and stories need look no further than their Bibles, said the president of the Pontifical Council for Social Communications.

Celebrating the opening Mass at the 53rd Cannes Film Festival May 14, U.S. Archbishop John P. Foley told festival participants that "images can inspire, guide, strengthen and console."

On a personal level, filmmakers should be able to grasp and be edified by "the beautiful images presented by Jesus," the archbishop said in his homily.

"But, in their creativity," they also should find ways to present the biblical images "to those seeking the way, the truth and the life and a vision which is truly and ultimately beatific," Archbishop Foley said at the Mass during the May 10-21 festival.

Filmmakers and others who deal with images daily should have a special appreciation for the Bible, especially the Gospel stories and parables, the archbishop said.

Action, controversy, the unexpected, joy and pain are all presented in the Bible's pages with images accessible to all, yet rich enough to challenge.

"While everything is not completely clear to us now and while we see only with the eyes of faith, everything will be perfectly clear to us, and we shall see God as he is," Archbishop Foley said.

"This vision, which we call 'beatific,'" points to the reality that God is "supremely beautiful," more beautiful than any created image can be, he said.

"We need the simplicity, the innocence and the faith of children to see a vision which is denied to those who have become blinded by sin," the archbishop said. ▼

The Franciscan Center
Catholic Gift & Book Store
BOOKS AND GIFTS FOR ALL OCCASIONS!
1st Communion, Confirmation, Bibles, Rosaries, Statues, Medals, and More!
Hours: 9am - 5pm Monday - Friday
(336) 273-2554 233 N. Greene St. Greensboro, NC 27401

COACH✕CEL
Spirit - Body - Mind
Hypnosis - Thought Field Therapy
Stop Smoking • Live Healthier
Manage Stress • Reduce Chronic Pain
Improve Job, Academic, Sports Performance
Call Today! 704-597-4184
John Connors LPC, NBCCH, TFT
Licensed Professional Counselor, National Board of Certified Clinical Hypnotherapists
Diplomate Certified - Thought Field Therapy

Schools
Institutions
Daycares
Churches
Sales Offices
Recreational Facilities
Banks
Medical Facilities
Member of: MODULAR BUILDING INSTITUTE
Offering turn-key and professional solutions with Custom Modular Buildings to meet your growing and changing needs!
MODULARCORP
1803 East Wendover Ave., Suite E
Greensboro, NC 27405
(336) 275-8274 (336) 275-8649 fax
E-mail: modular@greensboro.com
Daniel Murray, President — St. Pius X Parishioner
Visit our Web site! www.modularcorp.com

'Third secret' to be published; pope links it to assassination attempt

By CINDY WOODEN
Catholic News Service

FATIMA, Portugal (CNS) — Pope John Paul II, ordering the publication of the so-called "third secret of Fatima," believes part of it was a direct reference to the 1981 attempt on his life, said the Vatican secretary of state, Cardinal Angelo Sodano.

Cardinal Sodano, the highest-ranking official of the Roman Curia, said May 13 that the almost 80-year-old pope asked him to make "the solemn announcement" of the secret's contents at the end of the pope's Mass in Fatima, 19 years to the day after the assassination attempt.

The message was written down in 1943 by Sister Lucia dos Santos, the only surviving Fatima visionary, and placed in a wax-sealed envelope. She gave it to her bishop who sent it, unopened, to the Vatican, where it remained secret except to the popes and a few close aides.

Cardinal Sodano told an estimated 600,000 people at the shrine of Our Lady of Fatima that the third part of the message revealed to the three shepherd children in 1917 "concerns, above all, the war waged by atheist systems against the church and Christians."

But, it also includes reference to the ministry and suffering of a "bishop clothed in white," whom the children believed was the pope, Cardinal Sodano said.

The cardinal said the pope had directed the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith to prepare a commentary to help people understand the message, then to make the message and the commentary public.

Joaquin Navarro-Valls, the Vatican spokesman, told reporters on the papal flight back to Rome May 13 that publication was expected "within days, perhaps a week."

In the message, Cardinal Sodano said, as the pope "makes his way with great effort toward the Cross amid the corpses of those who were martyred — bishops, priests, men and women religious and many lay persons — he, too, falls to the ground, apparently dead under a burst of gunfire."

Mehmet Ali Agca, a Turk, tried to assassinate the pope in St. Peter's Square May 13, 1981.

Cardinal Sodano said that after the shooting "it appeared evident to His Holiness that it was 'a motherly hand which guided the bullet's path,'" saving the pope's life.

In his homily during the beatification Mass at Fatima, Pope John Paul renewed his thanks to God and to Our Lady of Fatima for saving his life, and he hinted at what Cardinal Sodano would reveal an hour later.

Speaking about the world wars, Nazi concentration camps, Soviet gulags, abortion and other 20th century "horrors," the pope said, "here in Fatima ... these times of tribulation were foretold, and Our Lady asked for prayer and penance to abbreviate them."

Cardinal Sodano said that Sister Lucia — whom the pope met with privately before the Mass to beatify her cousins, Jacinta and Francisco — confirmed the Vatican's interpretation.

Navarro-Valls said that several weeks before the beatification, Sister Lucia was informed of the pope's decision to reveal the secret and was asked to review the Vatican's interpretation of the message.

The spokesman would not say whom the pope sent to see Sister Lucia at the Carmelite cloister in Coimbra.

Navarro-Valls also said the pope had several reasons for delegating the announcement to Cardinal Sodano in addition to the fact that the cardinal is his top aide.

First, he said, it is because the pope is a subject in the messages and, second, "because it concerns a private revelation, which is different from a biblical revelation."

The "Catechism of the Catholic Church" explains that through Scripture and in Christ, in a full and exceptional way, God has revealed everything that is essential for faith.

However, it says, "Throughout the ages, there have been so-called private revelations, some of which have been recognized by the authority of the church. They do not belong, however, to the deposit of faith. It is not their role to improve or complete Christ's definitive revelation, but to help live more fully by it in a certain period of history."

Cardinal Sodano said the message would be published only with the commentary because "the text contains a prophetic vision similar to those found in Sacred Scripture, which do not describe with photographic clarity the details of future events," and, therefore, require an interpretation.

In announcing the planned publication, the cardinal told the crowd the pope came to Fatima to beatify the two children, but also to renew his thanks to Our Lady of Fatima "for her protection during these years of his papacy."

"This protection seems also to be linked to the so-called 'third part' of the secret of Fatima," he said.

In the late 1930s, Sister Lucia made public the first two parts of the messages from Mary, which the children kept secret.

The first two parts included the vision of hell shown to the children, along with prophecies concerning the outbreak of World War II, the rise of communism and the ultimate triumph of the Immaculate Heart of Mary, including over Russia if the country were consecrated to her Immaculate Heart.

In interviews after the announcement, Cardinal Sodano said the pope had been planning to reveal the secret "for some time. It was a matter of finding an opportune occasion. And that came with the beatification.

"But it is also a decision tied to the closing of the millennium, to the century just passed, a century full of suffering and tribulation," the cardinal told reporters.

In his public announcement, Cardinal Sodano said the pope wanted the message published because prayers for conversion and for divine assistance in responding to threats against the Christian faith are still necessary.

"The successive events of 1989 led, both in the Soviet Union and in a number of countries of Eastern Europe, to the fall of the communist regime which promoted atheism," he said.

"For this, too, His Holiness offers heartfelt thanks to the most holy Virgin," the cardinal said.

"Even if the events to which the third part of the Secret of Fatima refers now seem part of the past, Our Lady's call to conversion and penance, issued at the beginning of the 20th century, remains timely and urgent today," Cardinal Sodano said. ▼

CNS FILE PHOTO

Pope John Paul II is helped by aides after being shot in St. Peter's Square May 13, 1981. Following the beatification of two of the Fatima visionaries May 13, a Vatican official revealed the so-called third secret of Fatima. Cardinal Angelo Sodano said the pope believes it refers to the attempt on his life and the church's struggle against communism.

CNS PHOTO FROM REUTERS

Children greet Pope John Paul II at the shrine at Fatima, Portugal, May 12 upon his arrival for the beatification of two young Fatima visionaries.

Cardinal Sodano told an estimated 600,000 people at the shrine of Our Lady of Fatima that the third part of the message revealed to the three shepherd children in 1917 "concerns, above all, the war waged by atheist systems against the church and Christians." But, it also includes reference to the ministry and suffering of a "bishop clothed in white," whom the children believed was the pope, Cardinal Sodano said.

CNS PHOTO FROM REUTERS

A nun assists pilgrims kneeling before the shrine at Fatima May 11, prior to the visit of Pope John Paul II. The pope was to beatify two of three visionaries visited six times by the Virgin Mary there in 1917.

Pope, in Fatima, beatifies children, has aide announce "Third Secret"

By CINDY WOODEN
Catholic News Service

FATIMA, Portugal (CNS) — On the 19th anniversary of the attempt to assassinate him, Pope John Paul II listened as his top aide announced the pope's decision to reveal the so-called "third secret of Fatima."

Cardinal Angelo Sodano, Vatican secretary of state, told an estimated 600,000 people gathered in Fatima May 13 that the pope believes the secret refers to the assassination attempt and to the church's struggle against communism.

Pope John Paul had just finished celebrating Mass for the beatification of Jacinta and Francisco Marto, two of the shepherd children who saw Our Lady of Fatima in 1917.

During his homily, he once again thanked Our Lady of Fatima for saving his life when he was shot May 13, 1981, and he spoke of the "horrors" of the 20th century, which he said were foretold by Mary in the Fatima messages.

In making the announcement about the secret, Cardinal Sodano said it "concerns, above all, the war waged by atheist systems against the church and Christians."

But it also refers to the ministry and suffering of a "bishop clothed in white," whom the children believed was the pope, Cardinal Sodano said.

The cardinal said that in the secret, as the pope "makes his way with great effort toward the Cross amid the corpses of those who were martyred — bishops, priests, men and women religious and many lay persons — he, too, falls to the ground, apparently dead under a burst of gunfire."

Mehmet Ali Agca, a Turk, tried to assassinate the pope in St. Peter's Square on the feast of Our Lady of Fatima in 1981.

Cardinal Sodano said that after the shooting "it appeared evident to His Holiness that it was 'a motherly hand which guided the bullet's path,'" saving the pope's life.

Pope John Paul has directed the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith to prepare a commentary to help people understand the message, then to make the message and the commentary public, the cardinal said.

Joaquin Navarro-Valls, Vatican spokesman, told reporters on the papal flight back to Rome May 13 that publication was expected "within days, perhaps a week."

In his Mass homily, Pope John Paul said the Fatima children demonstrated how "little ones" may be able to grasp important truths more quickly than their elders.

In the course of the 20th century, the pope said, thousands and thousands of people died in the struggle between good and evil.

"My thoughts go to the horrors of the two 'great wars' and those of other wars in many parts of the world, to the concentration and extermination camps, the gulags, ethnic cleansing and persecutions, terrorism, kidnapping, drugs, the attacks on the unborn and on the family," he said.

In Mary's message at Fatima, the pope said, "these times of tribulation were foretold, and Our Lady asked for prayers and penance to abbreviate them."

"Today I want to thank heaven for the strength of the testimony" given by Jacinta and Francisco, he said.

"And, once again, I want to celebrate the Lord's goodness to me, when, seriously struck that May 13, 1981, I was saved from death," Pope John Paul said.

"I express my recognition also to Blessed Jacinta for her sacrifices and prayers for the Holy Father, whom she had seen suffer much," the pope said, referring to part of the Fatima message.

As a sign of his gratitude to Mary, the pope sent one of the bullets used in the assassination attempt to Fatima. It is now embedded in the crown on the statue of Our Lady of Fatima at the shrine.

Arriving in Fatima May 12, the pope knelt in prayer near the statue before leading a brief prayer service.

Approaching the statue, he left a small red box and an envelope at Mary's feet. The box contained the gold ring that the late Polish Cardinal Stefan Wyszynski of Warsaw gave him shortly after his election as pope.

The cardinal had told the pope that he would lead the church into the third millennium.

Italian and Portuguese newspaper and television reports were filled with speculation that the letter the pope left spoke of his resignation now that he had led the church into the Holy Year 2000.

Navarro-Valls, the papal spokesman, said the reports were "150 percent" wrong; the letter simply explains the history of the ring and its personal significance to the pope.

The ring, he said, "is one of the most precious things the Holy Father owns. The pope was trying to think of what to give Our Lady, and he decided on this precious ring. Any other interpretation is without foundation."

But the pope also received a special gift at Fatima. Carmelite Sister Lucia dos Santos, who along with her cousins, Jacinta and Francisco, saw Our Lady of Fatima in 1917, gave the pope 300 rosaries she had made.

The pope met privately with Sister Lucia in the basilica at the Fatima shrine before the beatification Mass.

Pope John Paul asked Sister Lucia how old she is, Navarro-Valls said. When the nun replied, "93," they both smiled.

As she sat by Francisco's tomb waiting for the pope, Sister Lucia responded briefly to reporters' questions. She said she was "very happy" that her cousins were being beatified.

Already informed of the pope's decision to reveal the secret, which she had written down in 1943 and placed in a wax-sealed envelope, Sister Lucia said, "It is a day of glory for God and for Our Lady."

She said the only thing she had to tell the world was: "Try to be faithful to God and thankful for his graces."

During the beatification Mass, the pope asked children to try to be like Jacinta and Francisco in listening to Mary and following her to Jesus.

Dozens of children in the crowd were dressed in costumes to look like the beatification photographs of Jacinta and Francisco — complete with dark scarves for the girls and floppy berets for the boys.

"Our Lady needs each of you to console Jesus, who is sad because of the injustices they do to him," he said. "She needs your prayers and your sacrifices for sinners."

Pope John Paul said that by listening to Mary, the newly beatified "reached the summit of perfection in a short time."

The pope said Francisco was preoccupied with Jesus being sad because of sinners. The boy's only desire was "to console Jesus and make him happy."

"Little Jacinta shared and lived this affliction of Our Lady," that is, Mary's worry for sinners who would end up in hell, the pope said. "All the mortifications and penances seemed a small price to her to save sinners."

The children prayed often, gave their lunches to poor children and wore rough ropes around their thighs in order to offer their sacrifices to Mary. And once people started hearing about the apparitions, the children endured harsh questioning at the hands of church and civil authorities, the doubts of their parents and the constant attention of the curious.

Francisco died in 1919 at the age of 10. Jacinta died shortly before her 10th birthday in 1920. With millions of Europeans, they were victims of the Spanish flu epidemic. ▼

CNS FILE PHOTO

Jacinta and Francisco Marto are pictured with their cousin Lucia dos Santos (right) in a file photo taken around the time of the 1917 apparitions of Mary at Fatima, Portugal. The Marto children died young. Lucia, a Carmelite nun, is still living.

CNS PHOTO FROM REUTERS

Carmelite Sister Lucia dos Santos, 93, smiles as she waits to meet with Pope John Paul II in Fatima, Portugal, May 13. She and her beatified cousins — Francisco and Jacinta Marto — witnessed six visions of the Virgin Mary in 1917 at Fatima.

Book Review

"Pope Fiction" answers myths and misconceptions about the papacy

REVIEWED BY PATRICIA ZAPOR
CATHOLIC NEWS SERVICE

If playing Scripture-citation hockey with fundamentalists is your idea of a good time, "Pope Fiction" was written for you.

Patrick Madrid, editor-in-chief of the Catholic apologetics magazine Envoy, has compiled detailed "answers to 30 myths and misconceptions about the papacy," as the subtitle reads.

Many of the chapters provide highly specific rebuttals of Scripture-based claims put forth by those who insist the Catholic Church misinterpreted the Bible in establishing the papacy. For instance, one chapter devotes 13 pages to analyzing the origins and possible interpretations of the Greek, Aramaic and Hebrew terms used in Matthew 16:18 with the phrase, "you are Peter, and on this rock I will build my church."

"Pope Fiction"
By Peter Madrid
Basilica Press (San Diego, 1999)
338 pp., $14.99.

Most American Catholics don't find themselves consumed by the quandary of whether the word Jesus used for "rock" was more accurately reported in Greek Scriptures as "petros," meaning "small rock," or "petras," meaning "large rock," and whether Matthew actually wrote in Greek or Aramaic.

Yet that's the kind of debate that Madrid relishes in these chapters, where he attempts to provide explanations nonscholars can use to answer some of the favorite Scripture-thumping arguments against the papacy.

There have been plenty of scholarly discussions on the scriptural foundations of the church. For quick reference, the "Catechism of the Catholic Church" explains this core teaching and refers to its theological basis. But for contemporary Catholics without the time or energy to read the work of theologians or who want a little more thorough explanation than the sections on church structure in the catechism, Madrid provides a middle ground.

For those who don't get involved in debates about the church with fundamentalists, these sections of "Pope Fiction" might provide interesting background that you missed while sleeping through ninth-grade religion classes. Others will find Madrid's dissection of anti-Catholic treatises — like the numerological argument that the pope's official Latin title adds up to the satanic number 666 — to be condescending and tiresome.

This particular chapter does include an interesting explanation of the truth behind an argument against the church used by some Seventh-day Adventists. But in getting there, Madrid resorts to a smirking, insulting tone that pervades his book.

"Alas, if only this gentleman's Latin were as good as his imagination," he says in countering one Adventist writer.

That's an unfortunate side-effect of Madrid's attempt to use a light, breezy tone to make his material appealing. Amid helpful discussions of topics like whether there was a "Pope Joan," and the origins of the Crusades and the Spanish Inquisition, Madrid crosses the line between a light tone and condescending pompousness. His explanations may be accurate, but it's hard to believe many people will be convinced of that when he takes such glee in being insulting while debunking their beliefs.

Also, at times, Madrid is so intent on explaining some of the darker chapters of church history that he comes across as justifying horrific actions. He notes, for instance, that the executions carried out during the Inquisition were not at the hands of the church authorities themselves, but by the civil government, and that the actual number executions was arguably exaggerated — as if either explanation makes the events less dubious.

It does help to have someone provide an explanation of these parts of the church's history, but readers of "Pope Fiction" should be wary of Madrid's belittling approach. As his magazine, Envoy, is fond of pointing out, apologetics doesn't have to be dry and academic. But perhaps a book aimed at a general audience also should be more careful about using gloating as a tool for evangelization. ▼

Zapor covers federal government issues for Catholic News Service.

Word to Life

May 7, Third Sunday of Easter, Cycle B Readings:
1) Acts 3:13-15, 17-19
Psalm 4:2, 4, 7-9
2) 1 John 2:1-5a
3) Gospel: Luke 24:35-48

BY DAN LUBY
CATHOLIC NEWS SERVICE

Peace. Terror. Doubt. Joy. Disbelief. Wonder. "Mixed feelings" hardly describes the dizzying roller coaster of emotion that rocketed the disciples in this week's Gospel from the stomach-churning descent into doubt to the neck-snapping curve around the edges of fear, to the awe-inspiring pinnacle of joy which was their encounter with the Easter Jesus.

I used to imagine, as a child, what I would do if the Lord appeared to me. I pictured myself happy, eager to display my virtuous deeds like some vain Boy Scout showing off a particularly impressive array of merit badges.

I imagined Jesus smiling kindly at me. And though I knew it wasn't likely — I'd never seen it in pious pictures or heard of it at home or church — I harbored the hope that, if I kept being a good boy, there might be a pony in my future soon. I did not imagine mixed feelings.

Now, with many more miles on my heart and soul, with flesh that's been bruised a time or two, and bones that sometimes creak and ache for no good reason, I find the picture of that emotionally volatile scene in the Upper Room compelling and real.

The fact is that when things have gone disastrously awry, when someone we love has been brutally hurt, and our hopes have been dashed and our shallowness and inconstancy mercilessly revealed, the unexpected arrival of the wounded loved one is bound to provoke a storm of emotion.

The good news is that, having failed our friend, our friend does not fail us. Patient, persistent forgiveness heals us of our fear and empowers us to be truer, more compassionate, more willing to risk our comfort and safety in the service of demonstrating not our brittle virtue, but the mercy of God.

Questions:
What part of the Gospel message do you occasionally hear with mixed emotions? What's one concrete way you can testify to the power of forgiveness?

Weekly Scripture

Readings for the week of May 21 - 27, 2000

Fifth Sunday of Easter, Acts 9:26-31, 1 John 3:18-24, John 15:1-8; Monday, Acts 14:5-18, John 14:21-26; Tuesday, Acts 14:19-28, John 14:27-31; Wednesday, Acts 15:1-6, John 15:1-8; Thursday, Acts 15:7-21, John 15:9-11; Friday (St. Philip Neri), Acts 15:22-31, John 15:12-17; Saturday (St. Augustine of Canterbury), Acts 16:1-10, John 15:18-21

Readings for the week of May 28 - June 3, 2000

Sixth Sunday of Easter, Acts 10:25-26, 34-35, 44-48, 1 John 4:7-10, John 15:9-17; Monday, Acts 16:11-15, John 15:26-16:4; Tuesday, Acts 16:22-34, John 16:5-11; Wednesday (Visitation of the Virgin Mary to Elizabeth), Zephaniah 3:14-18, Luke 1:39-56; Thursday (Ascension of Our Lord), Acts 1:1-11, Ephesians 1:17-23, Mark 16:15-20; Friday (St. Marcellinus, St. Peter), Acts 18:9-18, John 16:20-23; Saturday (St. Charles Lwanga and Companions), Acts 18:23-28, John 16:23-28

Mon-Fri 9:30am-5:30pm
Sat. 9:30am-3:00pm
Carolina Catholic Bookshoppe
First Communion & Confirmation
† Special Cards
† Veils
† Unique Gift Ideas
704-342-2878
Fax (704) 334-3313
4410-F Monroe Road, Charlotte, NC
We welcome mail orders and special orders!

You know how to put money into your IRA.
What's the best way to take it out?
Find out how to minimize taxes and penalties in our exclusive IRA Distribution Manual.
Call Jeanne O. McCulloch, Financial Consultant, (336) 721-9221 or (800) 334-4401 for your free copy of The Salomon Smith Barney IRA Distribution Manual.
SALOMON SMITH BARNEY
A member of citigroup
©1999 Salomon Smith Barney Inc. Member SIPC. Salomon Smith Barney is a service mark of Salomon Smith Barney Inc.

Providing Quality Long Term Care ...With Great Love.
For half a century, Maryfield Nursing Home has provided outstanding nursing care in a Catholic environment. When you need more care than is available at your home, come visit us. We invite you to discover for yourself our many stimulating daily activities and services which make Maryfield the best possible choice for Long Term Care.
1315 GREENSBORO ROAD
HIGH POINT, NC 27260
336.886.2444 FAX 336.886.4036
www.greensboro.com/mnh

MARYFIELD
A CONTINUING CARE RETIREMENT COMMUNITY

CNS PHOTO FROM MIRAMAX

Ethan Hawke and Diane Venora star in a modern adaptation of "Hamlet."

New at the Box Office

NEW YORK (CNS) — Following are recent capsule reviews issued by the U.S. Catholic Conference Office for Film and Broadcasting.

"Hamlet" (Miramax)

Pretentious adaptation of the Bard's masterpiece set in the greedy, consumerist world of 21st-century New York City in which the country of Denmark is replaced by the "Denmark Corp." and the story's hero (Ethan Hawke) is a mopey aspiring filmmaker. Director Michael Almereyda ambitiously fuses the contemporary world with classic Shakespearean dialogue and cuts the piece to a lean two hours, but the edgy feel of the modern world is lost in crowded staging and poor performances. Some violence. The U.S. Catholic Conference classification is A-III — adults. The Motion Picture Association of America rating is R — restricted.

"Battlefield Earth" (Warner Bros.)

Chaotic post-apocalyptic tale set on Earth in 3000 A.D. pits enslaved cavemen-like humans (led by Barry Pepper) against an occupying alien race personified by their corrupt security head (John Travolta). Director Roger Christian's virtually unwatchable adaptation of Scientology founder L. Ron Hubbard's 1982 sci-fi novel has no particular spiritual dimension in its silly jumble of one-dimensional characters in muddled action sequences. Much stylized violence, explosive mayhem and brief sexual innuendo. The U.S. Catholic Conference classification is A-III — adults. The Motion Picture Association of America rating is PG-13 — parents are strongly cautioned. Some material may be inappropriate for children under 13.

"Held Up" (Trimark)

Pointless comedy in which a Chicago man (Jamie Foxx) who, after being dumped by his fiancee (Nia Long) while vacationing in the Grand Canyon, is stranded in a desert convenience store and gets caught in the middle of a stick-up. As directed by Steve Rash, the tedious film's few funny moments are overshadowed by an absurd plot and vapid, predictable gags. A few sexual references, brief violence and intermittent crass language. The U.S. Catholic Conference classification is A-III — adults. The Motion Picture Association of America rating is PG-13 — parents are strongly cautioned. Some material may be inappropriate for children under 13.

Photographer Eastman profiled in PBS special

By GERRI PARE
Catholic News Service

NEW YORK (CNS) — The man who put cameras in the hands of the common man is profiled in "The Wizard of Photography," airing Monday, May 22, 9-10 p.m. EDT on PBS.

From age 3, George Eastman was fascinated with photography. But at 23, when he bought his first professional camera in 1877, he found it a bulky affair requiring fragile glass wet plates, a heavy tripod and cumbersome paraphernalia far from user-friendly.

Upon hearing British photographers were working on a dry-plate process, high-school dropout Eastman turned into an amateur chemist until he developed his own process and opened a dry plate factory in Rochester, N.Y. Not one to rest on his laurels, Eastman moved onto a bolder innovation: flexible, emulsion-coated paper film on a roll holder that he hoped would render the heavy glass plates obsolete.

When professional photographers found the film inferior, his invention was jeopardized, so Eastman decided his market should be ordinary folk who wouldn't be as picky — but would be delighted to take their own photos. The $25 Kodak camera with a 100-picture capacity debuted in 1888, although the cost was still too expensive for the average family.

Eastman's suspicious and demanding personality did not endear him to his factory employees, whose bathroom breaks he monitored. Devoted to his mother, he never married and was uncomfortable in social situations.

"The Wizard of Photography"
May 22, 9-10 p.m. EDT
on PBS

Setbacks and an economic depression nearly put him out of business, but in 1900 Eastman released the Kodak Brownie camera. At an affordable $1 purchase price, its success made him a millionaire and gave the country its most popular hobby.

As written, produced and directed by James A. DeVinney, Eastman proves much less fascinating than his innovations. Toward the end he began to give away some of his vast personal fortune before a painful illness prompted him to take his own life at age 72.

Eastman may have been an extraordinary entrepreneur but his legacy is really how his inventions enabled individuals to capture a moment in time in their own personal histories forever. ▼

Pare is director of the U.S. Catholic Conference Office for Film and Broadcasting.

TV programs of note — week of May 21

By GERRI PARE
Catholic News Service

NEW YORK (CNS) — Here are some television programs of note for the week of May 21:

Tuesday, May 23, 10-11 p.m. EDT (PBS) "The Battle Over School Choice." A "Frontline" documentary about the hot-button issue of school vouchers and whether public funds should be used to pay for private or parochial schools.

Wednesday, May 24, 8-9 p.m. EDT (CBS) "When Seconds Count: How to Survive a Disaster." Special shows clips of past catastrophes and offers tips on how to behave in a life-saving manner in the moments after such tragedies as a plane crash, a tornado or an inferno. Parental advice is also offered on what to tell children about potential child molesters.

Wednesday, May 24, 9-11 p.m. EDT (PBS) "Sahara." A look at the sun and sand, fiery heat and titanic windstorms of the 3,000-mile desert, and the wildlife that manages to live there.

Thursday, May 25, 8-9 p.m. EDT (PBS) "Love Letter to New York." Broadway stars Tommy Tune and Sandy Duncan, the New York Yankees' Orlando "El Duque" Hernandez and other celebrities talk about different aspects of living in the five boroughs of New York.

Pare is director of the U.S. Catholic Conference Office for Film and Broadcasting.

Serving Charlotte with integrity for over 38 years!
The LaPointe Dealerships
Frank LaPointe, President, Member of St. Gabriel Church
HONDA
7001 E. Independence Blvd.
535-4444
MITSUBISHI MOTORS
Built For Living.™
6951 E. Independence Blvd.
531-3131

JOHANNUS CHURCH ORGANS
America's best value in sound & price.
SYNTHIA MUSIC SYSTEMS
Catholic Hymns at the push of a button.
SOUND SYSTEMS
Totally wireless systems and hearing impaired devices.
CHURCH PIANOS
Quality pianos for affordable prices.
ELECTRONIC ORGAN SERVICE ON ALL MAKES
Music & Electronics, Inc.
Corner of Oak & Broad Streets, Mooresville, NC
(704) 663-7007 — (800) 331-0768

The Pope Speaks

POPE JOHN PAUL II

Unite sports with spiritual values, pope tells cyclists

By JOHN NORTON
Catholic News Service

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — Done well, sports become a significant expression of high human values, Pope John Paul II said.

Sporting activity "is a unique expression of the best interior energies of man and his capacity to overcome difficulties and to choose goals to be gained with sacrifice, generosity and perseverance in facing the challenges of competition," the pope said.

The pope made his remarks during a meeting with the 180 cyclists participating in the 2000 Giro d'Italia, a professional bicycle race that began May 13 in Rome and concludes June 4 in Milan. Race officials, sponsors, sports journalists and past winners of the race also attended the audience.

The jubilee year presents an important opportunity for reflection on and renewal of the necessary relationship between sports and spiritual values, the pope said. He highlighted the values of "rigor in preparation, perseverance in training, knowledge of the limits of the person's abilities, fairness in competition, acceptance of precise rules, respect for one's adversary, a sense of solidarity and altruism."

Though the pope praised technical advances designed to make sports more competitive, he warned that they must be placed at the service of the athlete, not the other way around.

In the audience's front row sat Marco Pantani, 1998 winner of the Giro and the Tour de France, who was disqualified from the 1999 Italian race on allegations of using illicit performance-enhancing drugs.

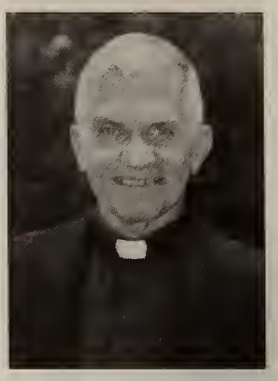
Pope offers moral support to Rwandan bishop facing death penalty

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — Pope John Paul II offered his moral support to a Rwandan bishop facing the death penalty in a trial on charges that he was an accomplice in genocide. Prosecutors in the trial of Bishop Augustin Misago of Gikongoro, 57, asked a Rwandan court May 9 to sentence the bishop to death. Pope John Paul sent the bishop a telegram May 10 "in the face of the painful news which has reached me about your detention in prison, which has gone on already 13 months, and even more in the face of the request for capital punishment."

Pope asks young people to make time to listen to Christ

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — Pope John Paul II asked young people to make time in their lives to listen to the voice of Christ and his plans for them. "I hope each one of you will know how to recognize, in the midst of the many voices of this world, that of Christ, who continues to address his call to the hearts of those who listen," the pope said May 10 during his weekly general audience. "Be generous in following him," Pope John Paul told young people at the end of the audience. "Do not be afraid of putting your energies and your enthusiasm at the service of the Gospel."

Priestly Life



FATHER JAMES HAWKER
Guest Columnist

The priest: A tool in the hand of Jesus Christ

The experience is etched deep in my memory. On Sunday, February 10, 1963, I was privileged to celebrate my first Mass at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross in Boston. It was in that parish that my faith had been nurtured and nourished over the years.

Since Cardinal Cushing, as the Ordinary of the Archdiocese, was the pastor of the Cathedral parish, he expressed a desire to preside and preach on that occasion. The words that His Eminence spoke during his homily have been with me throughout the 37 years that have unfolded since that memorable moment. I welcome this opportunity to share portions of his reflection with those to be ordained for service within this diocese as well as with each reader.

The Cardinal's initial remarks were a challenge to me as they would be to any priest. He said, "There are many ways in which spiritual writers describe a priest. Some call him an alter Christus, another Christ. My dear friends, every baptized Christian is another Christ. A baptized Christian is supposed to be a follower of Christ, a witness of Christ in the highways, by-ways and forums of the world. The priest is another Christ in the sense that he perpetuates the work of Christ. But he is not worthy of the title unless he strives to reproduce in his life, insofar as it is humanly possible to do so, the character, the image of Christ."

As Cardinal Cushing continued, he stated: "A priest is an instrument, a tool of Christ. You know what a tool is? Whether it's perfect or imperfect, new or old, stained and dark, sharp and bright, it cannot do a blessed thing of itself. But put it in the hand of a skilled craftsman, an artisan, and he can use that tool to reproduce, to create, as it were, a beautiful statue, a masterpiece or a simple table. The priest of himself can do nothing in the supernatural order unless he throws himself in the hands of the divine artisan, Jesus Christ."

The Cardinal then reminded me as well as all in the congregation, that each priest is unique. They are neither clones nor robots. He stated: "Now there are all kinds of priests. There are gifted orators, prolific writers, good administrators. There are priests who would probably be a success in many walks of life. There are priests who are very talented. There are priests who are fearless, who have tremendous courage. There are priests who are shy, aloof, quiet. You seldom, if ever, hear of them. There are priests of ordinary ability; priests who never seek the limelight, who do the best they can as living tools of Christ."

Before he concluded the homily, Cardinal Cushing stressed the importance and necessity of the priest having an active, dynamic relationship with Jesus Christ. He stated unhesitatingly that if the priest is to be fruitful in the fulfillment of his ministry he must strive not simply to know Christ, but to be intimate with Him. If the priest is to be a good tool in the hand of Christ, he must be converted to His Way, guided by His Truth and sustained by His Life.

As seven young men are ordained to the ministerial priesthood for the Diocese of Charlotte, the message shared by Cardinal Cushing 37 years ago during the first Mass of a newly ordained are well-worth pondering.

Father James Hawker is vicar for education for the Diocese of Charlotte.

The Bottom Line

ANTOINETTE BOSCO
CNS Columnist

When a child suffers loss

For the past seven years, Jim Emswiler has conducted the National Conference on Loss and Transition. After his wife died more than a decade ago, he could find little help for himself and his two children in how to cope with the pain of this loss, and so he decided to do something about it. He founded the New England Center for Loss and Transition, and has worked ever since to bring professionals together to learn better how to help people, especially children, who are hurting.

This year, his keynote speaker was Ted Kennedy Jr., who lost his leg from cancer when he was 12 years old. He is the son of Sen. Ted Kennedy of Massachusetts.

The younger Kennedy's story was riveting. He emphasized right off that his experience had been a "transforming event" that made him more compassionate. It also brought him to his life's work of promoting the disability rights movement to "enhance the dignity of all" who are in any way disabled.

He told us how back in 1973, when he was playing football, "everything that touched my leg would hurt abnormally." His pediatrician said the swelling that had developed below his knee was a calcium deposit. Before long, when the pain got excruciating, he was brought to the hospital for X-rays. The problem was cancer; his leg was removed the next day.

"When my dad told me, I was shocked and horrified. I couldn't imagine living without both my legs. I remember thinking I'd rather die. It was a tremendous loss of self-esteem. I was incredibly embarrassed about how I would look."

His family, trying to help, told him "Don't let it bother you," but it did. Kennedy, now a 38-year-old lawyer and father of two, said firmly, "Never say to a child, 'You shouldn't feel that way.' My feelings were never validated. People told me how brave I was, and paradoxically that isolated me. In the hospital my full-time job became to keep everybody cheered up.

"I was growing up in an Irish Catholic family, a culture where anger was unacceptable and sadness not allowed. The attitude was: Pull yourself up, and get over it. If I cried, I knew I'd be letting everybody down."

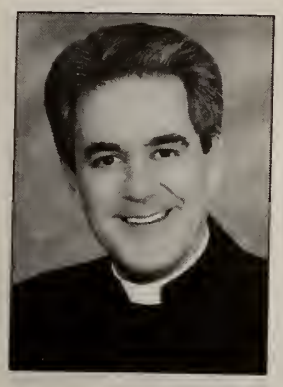
What a burden that was for a child! Kennedy says today that it took him years to "mourn his loss." Now he knows it's all right for a child to be angry over loss. "It's the weakling who keeps emotions in. They're scared. It takes incredible strength to process these feelings and emotions, and not be afraid of what others might think."

Now he works to promote "value and dignity in every life."

He also has learned the importance of acceptance. "The key to happiness is to live in the moment, to appreciate how wonderful life is, to be able to stay grateful, not to be afraid of emotions, not to intellectualize everything."

He speaks of how he "can use the Kennedy name to advance" his work for rights for the disabled, and for promoting value and dignity in every life.

"We help others by the power of example. Because of what happened to me, I became sensitized to a scope of issues. There's a tremendous amount of work to do around the world."



Light One Candle

FATHER THOMAS J. McSWEENEY
GUEST COLUMNIST

"Yes" — bit by bit

She lived unknown, until her murder thrust her into prominence. Cassie Bernall is the teenager many believe to be a martyr. Within a day of the Columbine High School tragedy, she was reported to have said "Yes" when asked by her killer if she believed in God.

More recently, police investigations have been published, pointing out a variety of discrepancies that suggest someone else may have actually uttered the celebrated "Yes." "Many of the kids were actually hiding under desks and hearing only bits and fragments of the conversation," one investigator explained. "It appears that exactly who they taunted, what questions were asked, and who replied what — may never be crystal clear."

Even so, Cassie's story, as recounted in her mother's best-selling book, "She Said Yes: The Unlikely Martyrdom of Cassie Bernall," continues to inspire believers and energize Christian youth movements around the world. In her retelling, Misty Bernall courageously discloses the more radical, even darker side of Cassie's turbulent adolescence and her slow, daily struggle to get right with God.

I met Misty and her husband, Brad, at the annual Christopher Awards ceremony honoring her book. I was eager to let Misty know how much I learned from her painful account of a once deeply rebellious daughter. Misty was equally eager to make clear that Cassie's spiritual awakening was accomplished not in a single "Yes" but in the small, everyday decisions that restored her life and faith bit by bit.

Indeed, Misty Bernall knows her daughter was no saint in life — Satanism, suicide and murder threats, sneaking out at night, drugs, lies and more lies were her way of life for a time. Her parents were forced to go to extraordinary lengths to help and protect her. But after a weekend religious retreat, Cassie seemed to want to turn her whole life around.

It began with her struggle to disassociate from her old life style, while still caring for old friends. Then a cascade of choices about her attitudes and her actions — to transfer to Columbine where she could make new friends, to understand how much her parents really loved her, to resist sarcasm and meanness, to stop judging others, to relish someone else's joy and accomplishment, to get a grip on her temper and pride.

Misty explains: "Cassie died daily over the two years before her death. Her affirmation of faith in God did not come out of the blue, but out of every choice she made along the way. She answered 'Yes' many times, and with each day the 'Yes' came deeper and deeper from her heart and mind and soul. Then there was the day that she smiled - really smiled — with eyes that glinted hope and promise."

The night before she was murdered, Cassie wrote to a friend: "Honestly, I want to live completely for God. It's hard and scary, but totally worth it." That she should have learned and lived this at such a young age is, for me, the real inspiration of her story.

I believe Cassie Bernall dares us to sacrifice all for Love's sake — not as a hero or a martyr — but consistently and with conviction, in the small, everyday things that make up a life worth living.

Father Thomas J. McSweeney is director of The Christophers.

Family Reflections

ANDREW & TERRI LYKE
CNS COLUMNIST

Summer family time

It's only a matter of weeks before the kids are out of school, and the time crunch of summer begins. As the kids get older, their lives are more involved outside the family. This makes finding time for family more difficult than when they were toddlers. Nonetheless, we must put great effort in creating sacred space for our family formation in the summer.

Looking at our family calendar, ours is a formidable task. Andrew, no longer working at DePaul University, doesn't get the summer off to devote to planning family fun. Terri, now back in school, will have even less time this summer. Andréa, graduating from high school, will spend a couple of weeks in Europe before leaving for college. It looks like it will be Marty, who will be mowing lawns for a little mad money this summer, who will be the "fun-master" this summer.

Ours has been a summer family for generations. Living not far from 31st Street Beach, Andrew's family would gather there very often on summer days. They were literally beach bums who made the lakeshore their home during summer. With aunts and uncles, cousins and friends, family gatherings at the beach would sometimes extend from morning to night.

It was in the summer of 1970 that our friendship turned to romance and our love began to flower. In the summer of 1978, our Marriage Encounter experience transformed us and set us on a journey of ministry. On an open-ended camping trip in 1979, we discovered Mackinac Island, the venue of annual family summer flings ever since. In the summer of 1982 we settled into parenthood with awe and wonder. Our "Lykes on Bikes" excursions have taken us on bicycle trails, rest stops, B&Bs and camp sites that have supplied our memories with treasures that will last a lifetime. The "dog days" are magical for us. We trace the thread of grace through many summer experiences as a family.

Rarely, if ever, have we been able to plan the many awe-inspiring summer experiences. We only needed to be present, awake and cooperative. The Spirit has guided us to many wonderful family summer adventures.

So, the calendar challenge is undaunting to us. We will have to seek quality rather than quantity. The guys plan a couple of brief fishing trips. The girls will probably do some power shopping. The "Lykes on Bikes" will spend a few days on Mackinac Island. With a few evenings of burgers on the grill, our summer family time will be rich. The rest we leave to the Spirit for the experiences of awe and wonder. Our task is to be present, awake and cooperative.

Andrew and Terri Lyke are coordinators of Marriage Ministry in the African-American community for the Archdiocese of Chicago.

Question Corner

FATHER JOHN DIETZEN
CNS COLUMNIST

Reincarnation

Q. I have a friend, a sincerely good person, who strongly believes in reincarnation. Can you suggest any arguments that would dissuade her from this belief?

A. I doubt that there are any such arguments for people who genuinely embrace this sort of belief, because it isn't one that is arrived at by logic or reasoning in our usual meaning of those words. It comes from a whole other approach to spirituality, a different perspective for viewing life, God, and such realities as death and eternity.

Reincarnation is an ancient idea, originating in Asia and integrated into Hindu thought around 600 B.C. According to this "doctrine," all living beings, from plants to human beings and even gods, go through a continuous cycle of deaths and rebirths.

By the law of "karma," which literally means action, the condition of life at each rebirth depends on the moral quality of actions in the previous life. The belief is predominant in Hinduism, Buddhism and other Eastern religions.

Today reincarnation is also a significant element in at least some major branches of the New Age movement in North America and Europe, which may be where your friend made contact with it.

As I said, since belief in reincarnation does not result from any systematic or structured theology, it is difficult to refute at that level. It is undoubtedly, however, entirely incompatible with traditional Christian and Catholic teaching.

For us Christians, death is a final, unrepeatable event, unique for every human being. As the letter to the Hebrews tells us, "It is appointed that human beings die once, and after this the judgment" (9:27).

As we read in the Gospel story of the rich man and the poor Lazarus, between those on this earth and those who have died lies a great chasm, over which no one may cross from one side to the other (Lk 16:26).

This understanding of the conclusiveness of death has never been seriously questioned or challenged in Christianity.

Confession

Q. Is it still a law of the church that every Catholic should go to confession at least once a year, during the Easter time? I am 85 years young, and it seems to me many people do not do that.

A. According to the Catechism of the Catholic Church (1457), all Catholics are obliged to "confess serious sins" at least once a year. In those words, the catechism repeats canon law (989) and the Introduction to the Rite of Penance (34).

In other words, the obligation for at least annual reception of the sacrament of penance, which goes back to the Fourth Lateran Council in 1215, does not apply to those who are not aware of an unconfessed mortal sin.

In all these statements, the church is not imposing a new obligation for confession, but simply prescribes a time within which mortal sins should be confessed so that, if for no other reason, the Eucharist might be received.

Canon law requires Catholics to receive Communion at least once a year, during the Easter season unless a serious reason forces it to be done at another time.

Lay Ministry, from page 1

into people's lives."

He urged them to continue their studies in order to learn more about their faith and to spread that knowledge to others.

"I congratulate you on this day, and I ask God to empower you through Christ's love that you may use your gifts generously, prayerfully and joyfully for the benefit of us all," he continued.

Expressing the need for more lay ministers not only in the Diocese of Charlotte but in other dioceses across the country, the bishop referred to the recent findings from the National Catholic Parish Survey, released on May 4. The survey showed that the laity, deacons and religious with church staff positions outnumber priests by nearly two to one. Also, the number of parishes with at least one lay minister on staff has grown from 30 to 68 percent since 1982. Researchers predicted the number and importance of lay ministers in parish staffing and parish life will only continue to grow in the coming years.

St. Paul the Apostle Church in Greensboro parishioner Mary Shaw, 18, holds the record for the youngest person to have completed the lay ministry program. Shaw, who wants to become involved with campus ministry, talked about how her youth helped her while attending class.

"I was able to offer the insight of youth during class discussions. Older people are sometimes surprised by what younger people think and feel about what goes on in the church and in the world," said Shaw. "I learned a lot about church history, things I never knew, and it (the program) taught me to look inside myself and see how I fit within the whole universal church."

Elizabeth Devaney from St. Barnabas Church in Arden is a bereavement counselor who wanted to better understand herself and how her faith fits in with her own life and the lives of others.

"Lay ministry helped me to dig deeper within myself and to come to peace. It has focused me in on my belief system, and I want to use what I have learned to be of service to women and single parents," said Devaney. "I want to be of service to the church and community and to help people with their spiritual needs."

"I learned a lot about church history, things I never knew, and it (the program) taught me to look inside myself and see how I fit within the whole universal church."
— Mary Shaw

The decade-old program has graduated 510 people from all over the diocese. Participants attend all-day classes for two calendar school years on particular Saturdays during the month and can choose which classes they would like to take. The classes include: Introduction to Ministry, Introduction to Scripture, Christology, the Church and Church History, Social Ministry, Vatican II Documents, Liturgy and Sacraments and Christian Morality. These classes comprise about 100 hours of instruction. The other two church sites for the classes are St. Barnabas Church in Arden and Our Lady of Grace Church in Greensboro.

For more information about the Lay Ministry Training Program, call Mercy Sister Mary Timothy Warren at (704) 370-3213. ▼

Contact Staff Writer Alesha M. Price by calling (704) 370-3354 or e-mail amprice@charlottediocese.org.

Jerry Filteau from Catholic News Service contributed to this story.

PHOTO BY ALESHA M. PRICE

Bishop William G. Curlin shakes the hand of Mary Shaw from St. Paul the Apostle Church in Greensboro as she receives her certificate of completion from the Lay Ministry Training Program at St. Gabriel Church in Charlotte on May 13.

The Diocese of Charlotte
CATHOLIC SOCIAL SERVICES
1123 South Church St.
Charlotte, NC 28203
www.cssnc.org

Executive Director:
Elizabeth Thurbee (704) 370-3228
Refugee Office:
Cira Ponce (704) 370-6930
Justice & Peace:
Joanne K. Frazer (704) 370-3225
Special Ministries:
Gerard A. Carter (704) 370-3250

Charlotte Area: 1123 South Church Street, Charlotte, NC 28203
Area Director: Geri King (704) 370-6155
Western Area: 50 Orange Street, Asheville, NC 28801
Area Director: Sister Marie Frechette (828) 255-0146
Piedmont-Triad Area: 621 W. Second Street, Winston-Salem, NC 27108
Area Director: David Harold (336) 727-0705
Greensboro Satellite Office: (336) 274-5577
High Point Hispanic Center: (336) 884-5858

For information on specific programs, please call your local office.

Attention
DIABETICS
with Medicare or Insurance
Save money on diabetic supplies!
1-800-337-4144
Diabetic National Service

VGA & SVGA Refurbished Computer Monitors
14" — $20-$25
15" — $35-$38
17" — $70-$125
20" Call for details
30 day warranty
Over 2000 monitors in stock!
MONITORS DEPOT
O.C. STAFFORD ELECTRONIC SERVICE & DEVELOPMENT COMPANY
408 Banner Ave., Greensboro, NC 27401
E-mail: urpac408@worldnet.att.net
(336) 274-9917

Looking for the best CD rates?

*Earn interest 1% higher than the national bank average with CDs from Salomon Smith Barney.

Our CDs offer some of the highest rates available. In fact, a national survey of bank CD rates show our CDs average a whole percentage point higher. Plus, with a broad range of maturities, you can easily arrange for a steady stream of income to fit your needs.

- FDIC-insured up to $100,000 per depositor, per institution
- Issued by more than 240 banks nationwide
- A flexible investment vehicle to reach your fixed-income goals
- We provide a secondary market on all CDs we sell

Term	Annual Percentage Yield
1 year	7.0%
5 year	7.6%
7 year	8.0%

Call Michael Grieco, Financial Consultant
at (704) 571-3362 for more information.
6101 Carnegie Boulevard, 2nd Floor
Charlotte, NC 28209

SALOMON SMITH BARNEY
SEE HOW WE EARN IT.SM

A member of citigroup

*The annual percentage yields (APYs) are effective as of 0/00/00 and are subject to availability and changes. APY interest can not remain on deposit in the same CD; interest will be paid semi-annually, monthly, or at maturity. FDIC insurance covers a maximum amount of $100,000 per deposit or per institution (principal and interest combined) in each insurable capacity. Minimum deposit $1,000. Although we are not required to do so, we endeavor to provide a secondary market so that CD holders can sell their CDs prior to maturity. The resale price in such a transaction may be less than the principal amount invested. National bank average determined by Bank Rate Monitor, a service mark of Bank Rate Monitor.

Salomon Smith Barney and "SEE HOW WE EARN IT." are service marks of Salomon Smith Barney Inc.
©2000 Salomon Smith Barney Inc. Member SIPC

Alumnus, wife give $1 million to Belmont Abbey College

BELMONT — Frank L. Johnson '71 and his wife, Linda, a 1972 graduate of Sacred Heart College, have made a $1 million unrestricted gift to Belmont Abbey College.

Citing the effect the Abbey has had on their lives and the part it has played in their success, Johnson said they are most happy to be able to make such a gift.

Johnson is president of JMS Southeast, Inc. of Statesville, NC, a company that makes thermocouples and temperature devices.

A member of the Abbey's Board of Trustees, Johnson has been very much involved with the college through the years. He has been a member of the Board of Advisors and has actively assisted the Abbey in its student recruitment efforts. Linda, as a Sacred Heart graduate, has likewise been active and supportive in Abbey affairs, from alumni gatherings to Bradley Institute functions.

"We always wanted to make a contribution to the Abbey, it's very important to us," said Johnson, who met Linda at a Greek Week event between Belmont Abbey and Sacred Heart College when she was a freshman.

Johnson majored in psychology at the Abbey and fondly remembers such teachers as Stanley Dudko, Fr. John Oetgen, O.S.B., the late Fr. Cuthbert Allen, and Jack Hanahan. His family is friends of Fr. John Bradley, a former president of Belmont Abbey College. Linda Johnson majored in primary education at Sacred Heart College and taught elementary school in Iredell County for 12 years.

The couple has two grown children: Mitch, an attorney in Charlotte; and Mary Catherine, a real estate professional in Gaston County.

Johnson was raised in Gaston County. His mother is buried in the cemetery on the Abbey grounds. "Belmont Abbey is more than a school," he said. "It's apart of our family."

Commenting on the gift, Robert Gallagher, chairman of the college's Board of Trustees, said, "I have known Frank Johnson all of my life. We grew up together. At an early age, Frank learned from his family the importance of honor, character, integrity, hard work and our Catholic faith. Linda shares those same virtues. This great gift is from their hearts. Everyone associated with our college benefits from who they are and what they do."

The gift will be used to support such initiatives as improving improving residence halls, athletic and academic facilities and the library, and other projects important to campus life. ▼

Catholic University surprises cardinal with honorary degree

By RICHARD SZCZEPANOWSKI
Catholic News Service

WASHINGTON (CNS) — Students, faculty and the board of trustees of The Catholic University of America surprised Cardinal James A. Hickey of Washington May 13 by presenting him with an honorary doctorate degree.

The honorary doctorate of humane letters was presented during the university's 111th annual commencement exercises. It was given to Cardinal Hickey, who as archbishop of Washington serves as university chancellor, in recognition of his "lifelong love of Catholic education."

Vincentian Father David M. O'Connell, Catholic University's president, said Cardinal Hickey was being honored in appreciation of his 54 years as a priest, his "great love for the church" and his devotion to Catholic education.

"His interest in and commitment to education (is) an enduring aspect of his life," Father O'Connell said.

Cardinal Hickey, who began studies at the university in 1942 and earned a licentiate in sacred theology there in 1946, said that he learned of the honor less than an hour before it was presented. "I guess they didn't want to give me time to prepare a long speech," he quipped.

"At my age, there are few surprises," the 79-year-old cardinal said after graduates, faculty and others at the ceremony gave him a sustained and prolonged standing ovation. "Yet, you managed to surprise me with this honorary doctorate, and you also brought me great joy."

Since 1980, when he was named archbishop of Washington, Cardinal Hickey has served as ex-officio chancellor of Catholic University and as chairman of the board of the Basilica of the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception. He called his service to the university during his tenure as chancellor "a labor of love" and said he fondly recalls his time as a student there more than half a century ago.

"I treasure the memories of my professors, and I treasure the memories of the associations I made with other students," Cardinal Hickey said. "This was a good place to be. This is a good place to be, and I am proud of that."

Cardinal Hickey's "interest in and commitment to education" that Father O'Connell spoke of in presenting the award has benefited students throughout the Archdiocese of Washington.

In 1994, Cardinal Hickey established Mary of Nazareth School in Darnestown, Md., to serve the growing Catholic population of northern Montgomery County. It was the first parish elementary school built in the

See HICKEY, page 16

Parents... why order school uniforms out of state?
A+™ school approved uniforms are as close as a drive to the lake!
Uniforms DIRECT 2U
Owner Ann Hoffman, Member of St. Therese
704-895-7474 www.uniformsdirect2u.com
Uniforms Direct 2U, 18505 Statesville Road, Suite 5-A, Cornelius, NC 28031

Groce
FUNERAL HOME & CREMATION SERVICE
1401 Patton Ave. Asheville, NC (828) 252-3535
72 Long Shoals Road Arden, NC (828) 687-3530
Assuring Absolute Integrity
Asheville's Catholic Funeral Directors
Dale Groce • John Prock
Toll-free (888) 874-3535
Pre-arrangements and obituaries on-line at www.grocefuneralhome.com

Classifieds

Classified ads bring results! Over 110,000 readers! Over 43,000 homes!
Rates: $.50/word per issue ($10 minimum per issue)
Deadline: 12 noon Wednesday, 9 days before publication date
How to order: Ads may be faxed to (704) 370-3382 or mailed to:
Cindi Feerick, The Catholic News & Herald, 1123 S. Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203.
Payment: Ads may be pre-paid or billed. For information, call (704) 370-3332.

EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES

Administrative Assistant: Part-time. Approximately 12 hours/week. N/S with excellent communications, phone, computer skills. Prefer financial background. Resume and references to: MGH, 4801 E. Independence Blvd., Box 601, Charlotte NC 28212.

Assistant Secretary: Asheville Catholic School. Attendance/First Aid Office. M-F, full time. CPR and First Aid certification required. Call (828)252-7896 for information. EOE.

Computer Teacher: K-8, for 2000-2001 at St. Leo Catholic School, 333 Springdale, Winston-Salem, NC 27104. NC certification required (or in process). Call (336) 748-8252 for application and information. Submit resume to Georgette Schraeder, principal.

Cosmetologists/Barbers: Full-time and part-time. Charlotte area upscale salon seeking warm-hearted, skilled stylists and barbers. Convenient south Charlotte location. $12 per hour + tips. Please call (704) 341-4260.

Custodian, Full-time: Begin work June 1, 2000. Asheville Catholic School. Call Randy Penland, Maintenance Supervisor at (828)252-7896. EOE.

Elementary and Middle School Positions: Immaculate Heart of Mary School has openings for the following positions for the 2000-2001 school year: Assistant Principal/Teacher (Master's in Administration, practicing Catholic); Middle School teachers of Social Studies, Language Arts, Science and Math; Grades 4 and 5 teachers. Interested certified teachers may contact Margene Wilkins, principal, 605 Barbee Avenue, High Point, NC 27262; or call (336)887-2613; or fax (336)884-1849.

Guidance Counselor: Part-time. Asheville Catholic School. Must be NC certified. Call (828)252-7896 for information. EOE.

Music Ministry Director: St. Aloysius Catholic Church is seeking a Director of Music Ministry for a well-established music program. Send resume and references to: Search Committee, St. Aloysius Catholic Church, 921 Second St. NE, Hickory, NC 28601.

Teacher: Asheville Catholic School seeks dynamic grade 5 teacher. Must hold or be eligible for NC license; teach religion and all academic subjects. Call (828) 252-7896. EOE.

Teacher and Librarian: Our Lady of Mercy has the following positions available: 8th grade homeroom to teach Language Arts, Social Studies, and Religion (if Catholic); Librarian for K-8th. Please call (910)722-7204.

Teachers, Campus Minister, Library/Media Director: Charlotte Catholic High School has the following full-time teaching positions open for the 2000-2001 school year: Math, Chemistry, English, Religion, Social Studies, Spanish, and Drama. Must have NC Teaching Certification. Also, Library/Media Director and part-time Campus Minister are needed. Call (704)543-1127.

Teachers: Sacred Heart School (PreK-8) in Salisbury has the following teacher openings beginning in August: Computer, Music, PE, Spanish, 3rd Grade, 5th Grade, and Middle School Language Arts. NC certification required. Call Kathleen Miller at (704)633-2841.

Youth/Young Adult Ministry Director: A tri-parish (including one Hispanic) Catholic community of 1800 families in a university setting is seeking a full-time Director of Youth and Young Adult Ministry to implement comprehensive youth ministry as described in "Renewing the Vision." Candidate should have prior ministry experience, and be able to work collaboratively with staff and members of parish community. Background in Theology, Christian Formation, and/or certification in youth ministry desired. Please contact Rev. Bernard Campbell, CSP, P.O. Box 112, Clemson, SC 29633 or (864)654-1757.

FOR SALE

Queen Mattress Set: New, in plastic. Full warrantee. Retail $400; sell for $195. Call (704)556-9674.

SERVICES OFFERED

Home Care: In-home care for your loved one. Thorough background checks on all caregivers. Serving Henderson, Transylvania, Polk counties. COMPASSIONATE COMPANIONS, INC., (828)696-0946.

In Italian film, knights embark on medieval quest for shroud

By BENEDICTA CIPOLLA
Catholic News Service

CAMPELLO SUL CLITUNNO, Italy (CNS) — Amid the verdant tranquillity of Italy's Umbrian hills, violent — albeit fictional — battle cries pierced the usual silence.

"Bravo, killer!" shouted the Italian film director Pupi Avati after calling a halt to the cameras.

He congratulated actor Marco Leonardi, clad in medieval chain mail and toting a sword, for a stabbing job well-done.

In "Knights of the Quest," Avati tells the story of five knights — three Italians, a Frenchman and an Englishman — who travel to Thebes, Greece, in 1271 to find the holy shroud.

With a $15 million budget, an English-speaking cast and a decidedly fast-moving, action-driven plot, the movie, due to be released in early 2001, is not typical Italian fare.

"I thought that this could be a chance to tell a story that wasn't just Italian, because this is a story that regards the West as a whole," Avati told Catholic News Service on the sidelines of the set May 11.

Produced by Antonio Avati, the director's brother, for DueA Films, and Tarak Ben Ammar and Mark Lombardo for Quinta Communications, "Knights of the Quest" continues shooting through the summer in Umbria, southern Italy and Tunisia and is expected to pick up a U.S. distributor.

With Holy Year 2000 in full swing, Avati's film seems well-timed, though the director says it was unintentional, as his idea sprang forth several years ago.

And while Pope John Paul II did not specifically mention the Crusades in his March 12 apology for sins committed by Christians through the ages, Avati said he wanted to take a critical look at the meaning of the bloody forays into the Holy Land.

"The story that I tell is set during a moment in the West in which the Crusades were becoming unpopular," he said.

"People understood that there were too many massacres," said Avati, a practicing Catholic.

Reflecting several years ago on what he terms the "dark moment" of the holy shroud's history, before accounts of its existence cropped up in the mid-1300s in France, Avati imagined the cloth's journey from the East.

"Many centuries ago, the West, in a certain way, saw in the relics of Christianity something that went beyond all else, and thus relics filled a life, an existence," the 61-year-old director said.

The shroud, commonly known today as the Shroud of Turin, is believed by many to have been Christ's burial cloth.

While in the Middle Ages, said Avati, people devoted entire lives to a quest, one single project or journey, "today our existence is filled by so many small things, not one big event."

Avati did his homework in addition to cultivating an already active imagination: He read more than 150 books on the period.

Starting with Jehan de Joinville, who chronicled the life of St. Louis IX, 13th-century king of France, and his ill-fated Crusade to the Holy Land, Avati tried to stick as close to historical truth as possible.

Costume designer Nana Cecchi, who has several medieval period films to her credit, said "Knights of the Quest" provided a fresh challenge.

"The way Pupi approaches the story is very realistic, very simple," she said after conferring with seamstresses diligently darning sackcloth tunics.

CNS PHOTO FROM DUEA FILMS

Italian director Pupi Avati, right, consults with actor Raoul Bova in the filming of "Knights of the Quest." The movie tells of a Medieval pursuit of the holy shroud, later known as the Shroud of Turin.

"There is a spiritual focus that I tried to render in the costumes, the five knights' search for their mission, which is manifested by the discovery of brotherhood among them," said Cecchi.

Though some of the knights are driven at first by commercial aims and hopes of political power, by the end of the voyage, Avati said, "they are touched by a sort of mysterious conviction that they are destined to fulfill this task."

"At a certain point, these knights discover that they are part of a design, and they ask themselves, 'Can it be possible that we have been chosen?'" he said. "It's very Gospel-like."

U.S. actor Edward Furlong, who plays a young Englishman eager for adventure, said he "got lost in the script" as soon as he picked it up.

"They're not making great epics like 'Excalibur' or 'Camelot' anymore," said Furlong, best known for his roles in "American History X" and the futuristic "Terminator 2."

"This asks questions about faith and being: being willing to die for your faith in God," he said. ▼ archdiocese in three decades.

Hickey, from page 15

In 1997, Cardinal Hickey Academy in Dunkirk was opened. Again, it was established to meet the needs of a growing Catholic population — this time in Southern Maryland's Calvert County.

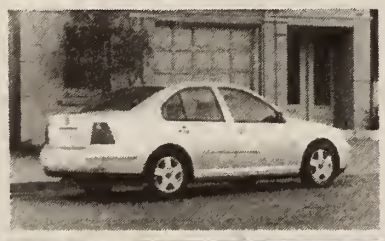
Also in 1997, the cardinal established the Center City School Consortium. An alignment of eight schools in the District of Columbia, the consortium was designed to revitalize the urban schools, providing them with upgraded school technology, expanded tuition assistance, affordable afternoon and evening programs for students and their parents, professional development for teachers, and school building improvements.

Earlier this spring, the Knights of Columbus, making a jubilee year pilgrimage to the national shrine, awarded Cardinal Hickey its highest honor, the "Gaudium et Spes" award, which included a $100,000 honorarium.

The cardinal said he would use that money to support Catholic schools in the city of Washington, especially those which are part of the Center City School Consortium. At the time, he said, it was his "determined effort" to make Catholic schools in the city be "centers of excellence and places of joy, and hope, serving as many young people as possible."

Father O'Connell, reading the honorary degree citation, praised Cardinal Hickey for being "well versed in theological disciplines," as well as "deeply committed" to the formation of priests.

After he was awarded the degree, Cardinal Hickey told the graduates, "You promise great things for the new century and for the new millennium. You have made me very happy today." ▼



We Warn You: If You Drive One You're Gonna Want One!

Volkswagen and Audi...the only car companies to have every model named best in its class. Find out why. Come in for a thrill ride today.

Honest pricing, honest financing, and honest service on Europe's most exciting new cars. From the incredible New Beetle, to the all new Jetta IV and luxurious new generation of Audi, we have the right car for your pocketbook...and your lifestyle.

Volkswagen — Audi South

John Diederich, Owner
Member Saint Gabriel Parish

7401 South Boulevard . Charlotte . 704.552.6500 . 800.426.5347
www.vwsouth.com . www.audisouth.com

COACHXCEL

A Personal Coach Is to Your Mind and Spirit What A Personal Trainer Is to Your Body.

- Achieve more success and significance both personally and professionally
- Earn more money while growing personally
- Attain better overall health with less stress
- Possess higher self confidence and reach your goals

For a complimentary consultation call
John Connors, LPC @ 704-597-4184
Licensed Professional Counselor

PERIODICALS
UNC
NC COLLECTION
WILSON LIBRARY CB 3930
CHAPEL HILL NC 27599-0001
42083
S323 P1
3-DIGIT 275

The Catholic
NEWS & HERALD
Serving Catholics in Western North Carolina in the Diocese of Charlotte

May 26, 2000
Volume 9 ▾ Number 37

Inside

Seven to be ordained at history-making Mass
...PAGE 5

From the Cover
Pope blends 80th birthday celebrations with Jubilee for Priests
...PAGE 7

Raleigh Diocese receives, disperses almost $2 million in disaster aid
...PAGE 15

Local News

Evangelism & catechesis
Guest speaker discusses link between them
...PAGE 3

Regional vicar dies unexpectedly at age 66
...PAGE 4

Every Week

Entertainment
...PAGES 10-11

Editorials & Columns
...PAGES 12-13

Pastoral Assignments Announced
...PAGE 16

Catholics join for Renewal Conference 2000

BY ANGELA CHANCE
CORRESPONDENT

GREENSBORO — In a spirit of praise and worship, Catholics from across the state joined May 19 and 20 to celebrate and experience the joy of the Jubilee Year 2000.

Greensboro College was the site of this year's Catholic Renewal Conference, an annual event made possible by the Catholic Renewal Service Team of the Diocese of Charlotte. The theme, befitting the year 2000, was "Living the Jubilee Year: Experiencing the Release and Fulfillment."

The conference proved to be a jubilant weekend designed to awaken and reaffirm a love for Jesus, and personified the message of this Jubilee Year, "Open Wide the Doors to Christ." Participants from all over North Carolina gathered to celebrate Mass and listen to the teachings of featured speakers, conduct prayer groups, enjoy live Christian music and pray together.

"When you come to one of these conferences, you'll leave with a spirit that is re-energized," said Father Ray Berg of Brevard, spiritual director of this year's Renewal Team and a retired diocesan priest. "They really help to get people more enthusiastic about our faith."

Father Berg presided at the Mass and Benediction on Saturday and delivered an inspiring homily that focused on the importance of being present in mind and heart while attending Mass, as well as in everyday life.

Featured conference speakers included Brent Heiser, president of Good

SEE RENEWAL, PAGE 5

PHOTO BY ANGELA CHANCE

Frank Dressel of Winston-Salem, pictured center, lifts his hands in worship and prayer during the Catholic Renewal Conference May 20 in Greensboro. The conference brought Catholics together to celebrate the joy of the jubilee year.

Opening up to Christ

Diocesan Support Appeal funds highest ever

BY ALESHA M. PRICE
STAFF WRITER

CHARLOTTE — Parishioners across the diocese opened their hearts and spirits to offer their support of this year's Diocesan Support Appeal. This year's jubilee theme, "Open Wide the Doors to Christ," was, in part, a reminder to people to commit to stewardship. Because of that generosity, the goal has been surpassed by the highest margin of the last 13 years of the appeal.

As of May 1, the target goal of $3,140,000 was exceeded by over 25 percent with 66 parishes or missions over their own goals. The total as of May 23 was $3,938,450. Five parishes were within 5 percent of their goals, and overall, a total of 19,842 donors thus far have given to help fund the 35 ministries that are supported by the DSA.

The main areas of focus include Catholic Social Services, Multicultural Ministries, Educational Ministries and Vocations. The goal is based on the yearly budgets of these ministries, not on the goal from the year before.

Barbara Rohrman, associate director of development and director of the DSA, attributes the high numbers to three main factors: "Informal evaluations from some parishes indicate that this year's video spoke to more people about the mission of the DSA, and the growth of the diocese also had much to do with the higher numbers. Also, more people embracing stewardship as a part of their spiritual lives," explained Rohrman. "We are still experiencing a great deal of growth, and as a result, the appeal itself has more donors and churches going over assessed target goals."

Churches that surpass their

SEE DSA FUNDS, PAGE 5

Purgatory's pain is separation from God, says Jesuit magazine

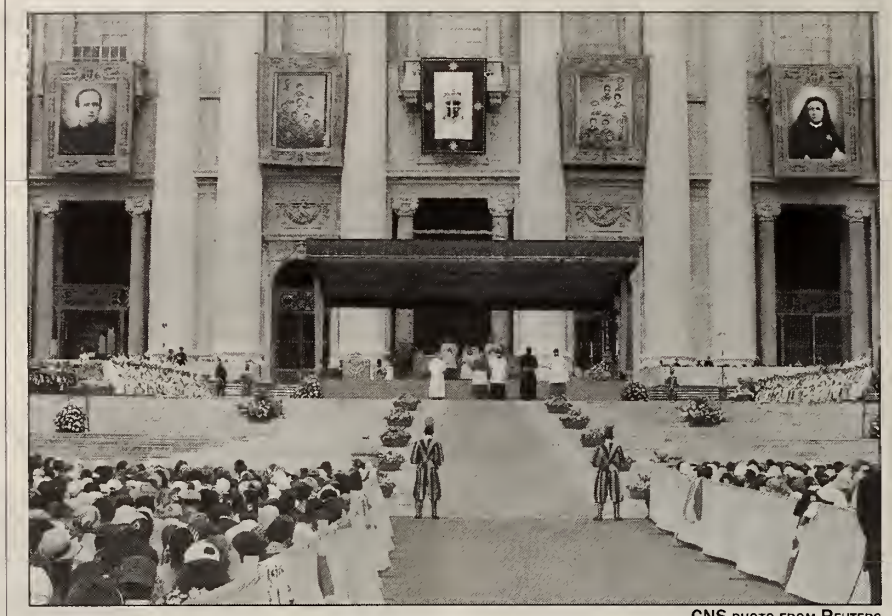
ROME (CNS) — Most Christians can expect to suffer in purgatory, but the pain will be more from separation than fiery flames, a Jesuit magazine said. In contrast with centuries of "grotesque" tales describing purgatory as a fetid underworld populated by demons, purgatory is not a place but a condition or state of being, the article said. And despite the recent attention on indulgences during the Holy Year, few Christians can expect to go straight to heaven without a period of purification in purgatory, it said. The article was published May 20 by La Civilta Cattolica (Catholic Civilization), a magazine whose contents are reviewed in advance by the Vatican.

SOA foes organize new efforts to fight plan to reorganize school

WASHINGTON (CNS) — After a narrow House vote to close the U.S. Army School of the Americas failed May 18, organizers planned new demonstrations and rallies over a Pentagon plan to rename and reorganize the training program for Latin American militaries. Maryknoll Father Roy Bourgeois, who began the campaign to close the school a decade ago, said even if Congress approves the reorganization plan, SOA Watch would continue to go after the new program because he said the change is only a cosmetic one.

Bill to end Cuban food, medicine embargo advances

WASHINGTON (CNS) — An effort to lift the 40-year-old U.S. embargo prohibiting sales of food and medicine to Cuba has picked up strength and bipartisan support, say its congressional sponsors. The House and Senate appropriations committees have approved language in the agriculture budget bills that would require a congressional vote before restrictions could be imposed on the sales of food or medicine to other countries. Church leaders from Pope John Paul II to the bishops of the United States and Cuba have pressed to end the embargo, saying it only makes life worse for the poor people and has no apparent weakening effect on its communist government.



CNS PHOTO FROM REUTERS

Images of Mexican saints hang from St. Peter's
Tapestries depicting 27 new Mexican saints hang from the facade of St. Peter's Basilica May 21 during their canonization ceremony. The tapestries in the center show 25 martyrs who died in Mexico's anti-Catholic persecution at the start of the 20th century. On the sides are images of Father Jose Maria de Yermo Parres and Sister Maria de Jesus Sacramentado Venegas, founders of religious orders.

Church leaders back forum on immigrant workers' rights

LOS ANGELES (CNS) — Auxiliary Bishop Gabino Zavala of Los Angeles was among dozens of community leaders and labor union representatives gathered May 10 to support an upcoming AFL-CIO Immigrant Workers' Rights Forum. In February, the AFL-CIO Executive Council unanimously passed an initiative calling for reforms to strengthen workplace rights of immigrants through a repeal of employer sanctions, a new blanket amnesty program to legalize the immigration status of undocumented workers already in this country, and other similar modifications.

Freeze in U.S. aid to Haiti suspends funds for CRS, other agencies

WASHINGTON (CNS) — Suspension of millions of dollars in U.S. government aid to Haiti has frozen funding for some Catholic Relief Services work in schools and has forced other U.S. aid agencies to close down projects, said the CRS country representative to Haiti. The money frozen is "part of about $4.75 million frozen for education," said Chris Hennemeyer, country representative for CRS, in a May 15 interview in Washington. In mid-March, Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, ordered more than $30 million in U.S. aid to Haiti suspended after the Haitian government fined the U.S.-owned Rice Corp. of Haiti $1.4 million for allegedly evading customs duties and smuggling rice into the country.

Catholic-Polish National Catholic dialogue held

WASHINGTON (CNS) — At their spring meeting members of the Polish National Catholic-Roman Catholic Dialogue discussed sacramental sharing and Petrine ministry and primacy. They also talked about reconciliation among divided Christians, developments in the Old Catholic churches regarding the ordination of women, and a recent German Catholic-Old Catholic agreement on the reception of clergy from one church into the service of the other. The meeting, hosted by the Roman Catholic Diocese of Scranton, Pa., was held at the diocesan chancery May 10-11.

Encuentro to explore 'new vision' for multicultural church

LOS ANGELES (CNS) — Los Angeles Auxiliary Bishop Gabino Zavala, national chairman of Encuentro 2000, said part of the focus of the national jubilee event is to "create a new vision" for the future of the Catholic Church. Encuentro 2000 is set for July 6-9 in Los Angeles. "How do we, as a church, acknowledge the diversity and gifts offered by an increasingly diverse church?" Bishop Zavala said in an interview with The Tidings, Los Angeles archdiocesan newspaper. "One goal of Encuentro 2000 is to have different ethnic groups dialogue with one another and share stories, so each can get to know who the other is, otherwise we can never come together."

Church in western Timor reports ongoing refugee intimidation

WASHINGTON (CNS) — Priests assisting people in western Timor's refugee camps say the "vast majority" want to return to East Timor, but intimidation by pro-Indonesia militias is keeping them there, said a U.S. human rights activist. Karen Orenstein of the Washington-based East Timor Action Network was co-leader of a delegation of congressional staffers, human rights activists, journalists and filmmaker John Sayles that made a weeklong fact-finding visit to Indonesia, western Timor and East Timor in late April. "In some areas, the refugee population outnumbers the indigenous community," said Orenstein. "The best solution to the refugee crisis, repeatedly voiced by humanitarian aid workers, is repatriation. The only way to increase the rate of repatriation is to remove militia intimidation and control of the camps."

The Catholic NEWS & HERALD

May 26, 2000
Volume 9 • Number 37
Publisher: Most Reverend William G. Curlin
Editor: Joann S. Keane
Associate Editor: Jimmy Rostar
Staff Writer: Alesha M. Price
Production Associate: Julie Radcliffe
Advertising Representative: Cindi Feerick
Secretary: Jane Glodowski
1123 South Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203
Mail: P.O. Box 37267, Charlotte, NC 28237
Phone: (704) 370-3333 FAX: (704) 370-3382
E-mail: catholicnews@charlottediocese.org

The Catholic News & Herald, USPC 007-393, is published by the Roman Catholic Diocese of Charlotte, 1123 South Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203, 44 times a year, weekly except for Christmas week and Easter week and every two weeks during June, July and August for $15 per year for enrollees in parishes of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Charlotte and $18 per year for all other subscribers. Second-class postage paid at Charlotte NC and other cities. POSTMASTER: Send address corrections to The Catholic News & Herald, P.O. Box 37267, Charlotte, NC 28237.

Episcopal calendar

Bishop William G. Curlin will take part in the following events:

May 30 — 7:30 pm
Baccalaureate Mass for Bishop
McGuinness Memorial High School
Holy Family, Clemmons
May 31 — 7 pm Confirmation
Holy Infant, Reidsville
June 1— 7:30 pm Mass
Ascension Thursday
St. Patrick Cathedral, Charlotte
June 3 — 11 am Ordination
St. Matthew, Charlotte
June 4 — 2 pm Confirmation
St. Gabriel, Charlotte
June 6 — 7 pm Confirmation
Queen of the Apostles, Belmont
June 7 — 7 pm Confirmation
St. Joseph, Asheboro
June 8 — 7:30 pm
CCHS Baccalaureate Mass and graduation
St. Matthew, Charlotte
June 9 — 7 pm Confirmation
St. Barnabas, Arden

Diocesan planner

June

2 ASHEVILLE — Catholic Association of Family Educators (C.A.F.E), Western North Carolina's Catholic homeschool support group, is having an "end of the year" picnic and potluck at CP&L Park this afternoon at 5:30 p.m. For more information, call Denise Vish at (828) 645-6990 or Sheryl Oligny at (828) 298-0336.

3 CLEMMONS — Holy Family Church, 4820 Kinnamon Rd., is sponsoring a "Grand Garage Sale" today from 8 a.m.-2 p.m. in the Family Center. The proceeds of the sale are being donated to the Cristo Rey Building Fund. To donate or to find out more about the sale, call Anne Harrison, chairperson, at (336) 712-4445 from 7:30 a.m.-2:30 p.m. Monday through Friday or e-mail A2harrison@aol.com.

GREENSBORO — The Annual Right to Life Yard Sale, sponsored by the Knights of Columbus Councils 939 and 11101, is being held at St. Pius X School at the corner of Cornwallis and Elm Streets. The sale begins at 8 p.m., and the proceeds are being used to fund Right to Life programs. For large item pick-ups, other information or to donate goods, call Marshal Perry at (336) 288-6091.

4 CHARLOTTE — St. Gabriel Church's Respect for Life rosary is being said in front of Our Lady's Grotto at 3016 Providence Rd. at 3 p.m. If rain should occur, then the rosary will be prayed in the daily chapel. For more information, call the church office at (704) 364-5431.

CHARLOTTE — In recognition of National Cancer Survivors' Day, St. Gabriel Church, St. Matthew Church and St. Vincent de Paul Church members invite all cancer survivors, caregivers, family and friends to attend Mass and to participate in anointing of the sick at 5:30 p.m. to-

Speaker discusses link between evangelization and catechesis

By ALESHA M. PRICE
Staff Writer

HICKORY — Diocesan faith formation and religion teachers spent the day at the Catholic Conference Center May 18 listening to a discussion of the impact of evangelization on catechesis in the past few years. With the "General Directory for Catechesis" as a guide, Norbertine Father Alfred McBride, like a performer, interweaved song, prayer and humor into his presentation, "Evangelizing Catechesis."

The main idea of the meeting was for teachers to receive a better understanding of how they can spread the message of Jesus to their students and enable the children to share that knowledge with others through catechesis, said Dr. Cris Villapando, director of programs for the Office of Faith Formation.

"This is important because it brings us back to our roots," said Villapando. "The reason for our being here is to share the Good News, and presentations such as Father McBride's can allow us to recover the full meaning of catechesis."

Father McBride, professor of theology and homiletics at Pope John XXIII Seminary in Weston, Mass., and author of more than 30 books, introduced his seven "essential points of evangelizing" to the participants and explained that evangelization and catechesis are interrelated.

Father McBride defined "evangelization" as a "proclamation of the creative and providential work of the Father, the redemptive work of Jesus Christ and the saving work of the Holy Spirit through the Church and the sacraments."

"Evangelizing is always an interpersonal relationship and involves saying 'yes' to Jesus Christ, his salvation, his kingdom, while catechesis is saying 'yes' to the meaning of Christ's deeds, message and the Church," explained Father McBride.

Father McBride used the "General Directory for Catechesis" as one of the reference documents for his presentation. The GDC comes from Rome and serves as a guide for pastors and bishops for catechetical ministry.

The focus of the new directory is evangelization because in order to catechize, evangelization has to take place at every stage of development and should be the framework for the passing on of faith to students, explained Marylin Kravatz, Southern Region coordinator for faith formation.

"Catechesis isn't just a process of memorizing and learning. The person being catechized must also be evangelized and guided toward a relationship with Jesus, which is a two-way street between head and heart," said Kravatz.

Photo by Alesha M. Price

Norbertine Father Alfred McBride speaks with Paul Kotlowski, diocesan director of youth ministry, at a gathering of parish catechetical leaders at the Catholic Conference Center in Hickory on May 18.

Father McBride said, "I would like for today's participants to gain a sense of hope that this is an exciting and beautiful new way to advance our faith to others. This serves as an example of how to combine evangelization with their work in religious education as catechists."

Elizabeth Girton, director of religious education at the Basilica of St. Lawrence in Asheville, said that she and the other faith formation staff members at the basilica have already implemented some of Father McBride's methods into their program and that she gained further insight from the presenter.

"Father McBride helped me to see how I can incorporate some of his ideas into my ministry. Instead of trying to get people to understand my viewpoint, I have to see where they are first, and together we can have a dialogue about living out Christ's message to the fullest," said Girton.

Joanna Jackson is going to look into developing family catechesis at her parish using the seven essential points of evangelization as a guide. "Father McBride was very specific and had good applications. I liked the way he went from evangelization to catechesis and his stress on the building of community," said Jackson, director of religious education at Immaculate Conception Church in Hendersonville. "I also liked his sense of humor," she added with a smile.

"I'm so grateful to Father McBride for having been with us today," said Father James Hawker, vicar for education. "He is recognized nationally not only as a scholar but as a devoted disciple and witness of the Lord. The vision of the bond between catechesis and evangelization he shared with the parish catechetical leaders is a lived experience in his life." ▼

Contact Staff Writer Alesha M. Price by calling (704) 370-3354 or e-mail amprice@charlottediocese.org.

Jubilee Days for June

June 4	Jubilee of Journalists/Media/Communications
June 11	Pentecost Sunday Day of Prayer for Collaboration Among Religions
June 18	Jubilee of Fathers
June 18-25	International Eucharistic Congress — Rome

day at St. Matthew Church, 8015 Ballantyne Pkwy. For more information, call Bob Poffenbarger Sr. with the National Cancer Day Foundation at (704) 553-7000 or e-mail Rjpoffsr@aol.com.

CHARLOTTE — A special reception, sponsored by the Parent Teacher Organization, is being held for Mercy Sister Paulette Williams who is leaving her job as principal of Charlotte Catholic High School (CCHS) to begin a new ministry with the Sisters of Mercy. The reception takes place from 1-3 p.m. at CCHS, 7702 Pineville-Matthews Rd. For more information, call Vicki Britton at (704) 365-0312.

5 CHARLOTTE — St. Vincent de Paul Church, 6828 Old Reid Rd., is having its cancer support group meeting tonight at 7 p.m. in the reception room of the activity center. All cancer survivors, families and friends are invited to attend. For more information or registration, call Bob Poffenbarger Sr. at (704) 553-7000.

CLEMMONS — There is a charismatic Mass being held at Holy Family Church, 4820 Kinnamon Rd., tonight at 7:30 p.m. For more information, call the church office at (336) 778-0600.

6 CHARLOTTE — St. Matthew Church, 8015 Ballantyne Commons Pkwy., is having its cancer support group meeting tonight at 7 p.m. in the conference room of the office building. All cancer survivors, families and friends are invited to attend. For more information or registration, call Bob Poffenbarger Sr. at (704) 553-7000.

7 CHARLOTTE — St. Gabriel Church's support group for those living with cancer and their families and friends is meeting tonight at 7 p.m. in the ministry center on the 3rd floor at 3016 Providence Rd. For further details, call Bob Poffenberger at (704) 553-7000 or Eileen Correll at (704) 362-5047, Ext. 217.

8 ARDEN — Spring Cursillo is an ongoing movement in the church for building a better Christian community. The women's weekend is taking place beginning today through June 11 at St. Barnabas Church, 109 Crescent Hill Dr. For details, call Rosemary and Art Kingsley at (828) 274-0318.

11 CHARLOTTE — St. Patrick Cathedral, 1621 Dilworth Rd. East, is having a charismatic Mass at 4 p.m. with prayer teams available at 3 p.m. and a potluck dinner at 5 p.m. For more information, call Josie at (704) 527-4676.

Upcoming

CHARLOTTE — A volleyball camp is being held for rising sixth- through ninth-graders July 17-20 from 9 a.m.-3 p.m. The coaches are going to be Tim Leary from CCHS and Bettie Berry, a former CCHS coach. For more information, call Bettie Berry at (704) 521-8721.

MAGGIE VALLEY — Rev. Mr. Keith Kolodziej and the Diocese of Charlotte Renewal Team is sponsoring a weekend retreat July 7-9, entitled "You Will Receive Power." The goal and purpose of the weekend is to renew God's people by studying sacred scripture, sacraments and the teaching of the church with great emphasis on personal prayer and worship devoted to the Holy Spirit and the metanoia and spiritual fruits which flow from it. Space is limited, so for registration and further details, contact Augustinian Father Terry Hyland at (828) 926-3833 or e-mail: lwcrc@main.nc.us.

Ongoing

CLEMMONS — The time for the Spanish Mass, held at Holy Family Church, 4820 Kinnamon Rd., is being changed to 7 p.m. for the duration of the summer, starting in June and continuing through most of August. For details, call the church office at (336) 778-0600.

Please submit notices of events for the Diocesan Planner at least 10 days prior to publication date.

World Wide Web brings world closer, just a click away

By JOANN S. KEANE
Editor

CHARLOTTE — Thanks to the World Wide Web, international pilgrimage travel for the Diocese of Charlotte now has a worldly connection.

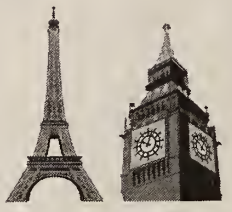
For three upcoming pilgrimages, the Internet is the first step for disseminating information. This gives the opportunity to reach out to every corner of the diocese — and the world — with greater detail of each of the upcoming destinations.

Holy Land

The long-awaited Holy Land Pilgrimage with Bishop William G. Curlin is planned for March 2001. This will be a Lenten journey, giving pilgrims a special time for reflection. This will be a return visit for Bishop Curlin, following a personal pilgrimage several years ago. His experience will add other dimensions to the trip as he shares reflections.

Italy

Rev. Mr. Curtiss Todd, vice chancellor and vicar for African American Affairs Ministry, will lead a pilgrimage to Italy Sept. 28 - Oct. 3, 2000. One of the highlights of this Italian experience will be the opportunity to be present when Pope John Paul II canonizes Blessed Katherine Drexel and Mother Josephine Bakhita on Oct. 1 in Saint Peter Square. Pilgrims will visit Assisi, Florence and Siena as well as the Eternal City. In Rome, visits to the four major basilicas will take on special significance during this holy year.



Paris-London

On Oct. 19, 2000, Father Mauricio West, chancellor and vicar general will lead a group from Paris to London on another eight day tour that will focus on these two key cities. In Paris, Father West's group will visit Notre Dame Cathedral, Sainte Chappelle and the Church of the Miraculous Medal, where Mary's appearance to a young novice led to the striking of the Miraculous Medal as it is known today. In London, Westminister Abbey is among the sites scheduled.

It is the Internet that will bring depth to the pilgrimage plans via links to international websites with details, photographs and drawings. Mother Josephine Bakhita's story takes on more meaning via the web, as does Blessed Katherine Drexel. Various parishes in the Diocese of Charlotte are direct recipients of the benevolence of Katherine Drexel, who took a special interest in Native and African Americans in the South.

Italy, Paris-London and Israel pilgrimages are now showing at www.charlottediocese.org/travel. ▼

Contact Editor Joann Keane by calling (704) 370-3336 or e-mail jskeane@charlottediocese.org.

Asheville deacon dies unexpectedly at age 66

ASHEVILLE — Rev. Mr. Jozef A. "Jos" Vandermeer, 66, of 15 Roberts Street, Weaverville, died unexpectedly Friday, May 19 at his home.

Rev. Mr. Vandermeer was born in Belgium and was a son of the late Henk and Barbara Peters Vandermeer. His family moved to Holland when he was five years old where he stayed until moving to Weaverville in 1960.

Reverend Mr. Jozef A. "Jos" Vandermeer

He was an art teacher at the Asheville School and retired as Professor Emeritus from UNC-A where he taught Fine Arts for 25 years.

In 1984, he was ordained as a deacon in the Diocese of Charlotte and served as deacon at St. Eugene Church in Asheville. He also served as a regional vicar in the diocese's permanent diaconate.

He also served as volunteer chaplain for Mountain Area Hospice for 14 years and at Mission/St. Joseph Hospital System and in prison ministry at Craggy. Jos had a very special gift in being able to minister to and comfort the ill and dying who received his gift of peace during their difficult times.

Along with his wife, he was a recipient of the Jefferson Award, which is presented annually by WYFF Television Station, Greenville, S.C., and they also received the Great American Family Award presented to them at the White House by Mrs. Nancy Reagan.

He is survived by his wife, Betsy Hoogma Vandermeer; eleven children, Miriam Harwood and her husband Larry of Leicester, Lydia Chiles and her husband Richard of Asheville, Magda O'Dell and her husband Michael of Greenville, S.C., Marie Myatt of Raleigh, Theresa Vandermeer of Barnardsville, Tevenia Vandermeer of Beaufort, S.C., and Sarah Williams, Chris Vandermeer, Scott Vandermeer, Kendra Vandermeer, and Latasha Vandermeer, all of Asheville; numerous foster children; eight grandchildren, Natasha Clabern, Anna Chiles, Jos O'Dell, Ariel Ramsey, Samantha Young, Michael Young, Jay Myatt and Tyquice Coddington; one sister, Magda Ficarra of Teaneck, NJ; and two brothers, Ad Vandermeer and Wim Vandermeer of the Netherlands.

A prayer service was held at 7 p.m. Monday, May 22 at St. Eugene Church after which his family received friends in the fellowship hall.

A celebration of Christian funeral memorial Mass was held at 11 a.m. Tuesday, May 23, at St. Eugene Church with Father Frank Cancro officiating.

Memorials may be made to Mountain Area Hospice, P.O. Box 16, Asheville, NC 28802, or to St. Eugene's Catholic Church Building Fund, P.O. Box 8160, Asheville, NC 28814. ▼

THE ORATORY
434 Charlotte Avenue, P. O. Box 11586
Rock Hill, SC 29731-1586
(803) 327-2097

Summer Bible Institute
Sunday, July 30 to
Friday, August 4

MORNINGS:
Mary Margaret Pazdan
New Testament:
"Corinthian Correspondence"
EVENINGS:
Antony Campbell
Old Testament:
"A Loving God: Faith's Challenge"

For more information write:
Summer Bible Institute, The Oratory
P.O. Box 11586, Rock Hill, SC 29731-1586

CFCC
Carolina Funeral & Cremation Center
Dignity
Affordability
Simplicity
5505 Monroe Rd. Charlotte, NC 28212
704-568-0023
www.carolinafuneral.com
Steven Kuzma
Owner/Director
Privately, Locally Owned
Member St. Matthew Church and Knights of Columbus

STOCKS, BONDS, MUTUAL FUNDS
FIXED & VARIABLE ANNUITIES
LIFE, DI & LTC INSURANCE
FINANCIAL PLANNING
RETIREMENT PLANNING
ESTATE PLANNING
ROLLOVERS & TRANSFERS
IRA'S & 401(K)'S
TAX PLANNING
RYAN ◆ HESS ◆ MORAIS
FINANCIAL ADVISORS, INC.
JOHN P. RYAN, JR., CFA — PARISHIONER, ST. VINCENT DEPAUL
CHRISTOPHER HESS, CFP — MEMBER, ST. JOHN'S EPISCOPAL
A. EDWARD MORAIS — PARISHIONER, ST. MATTHEW
SUITE 209 ◆ 7401 CARMEL EXECUTIVE PARK ◆ CHARLOTTE, NC 28226
PHONE 704-544-9009 FAX 704-543-4771
Registered Representatives offering securities through FFP Securities, Inc. - Member NASD/SIPC
Registered Investment Advisors offering services through FFP Advisory Services, Inc.

COACH XCEL
A Personal Coach Is to Your Mind and Spirit What A Personal Trainer Is to Your Body.
- Achieve more success and significance both personally and professionally
- Earn more money while growing personally
- Attain better overall health with less stress
- Possess higher self confidence and reach your goals

For a complimentary consultation call
John Connors, LPC @ 704-597-4184
Licensed Professional Counselor

Seven to be ordained during history-making Mass

By JIMMY ROSTAR
Associate Editor

CHARLOTTE — Less than a month after the Catholic Church's celebration of World Day of Prayer for Vocations and a jubilee day for clergy, Bishop William G. Curlin will ordain one of the single-largest groups of priests ever to serve the Diocese of Charlotte.

The June 3 ordination Mass, scheduled for 11 a.m. at St. Matthew Church in Charlotte, closes one chapter — and opens another — in the lives of the seminarians, who have completed their studies at three seminaries along the East Coast.

This year's class — Rev. Messrs. David Brzoska, Joseph Long Dinh, Christopher Gober, Matthew Kauth, Shawn O'Neal, Luis Osorio and Frank Seabo — is the among largest classes to be ordained at one liturgy for service in this diocese.

"This is a time for the whole diocese to come together and celebrate," Bishop Curlin said. "This is a great blessing for our church and a joyful moment for our diocese. We are truly thankful that the Lord has blessed us with this group of men."

This class is also among the largest of ordinands in the South this year, according to a recent survey by the National Conference of Catholic Bishops' Committee on Vocations. Only the Archdiocese of Atlanta has more — 12 men are to be ordained there, according to the report.

The ordinations come during the church's worldwide celebration of the jubilee year. Specially designated days earlier this month celebrated religious life, on May 14 with World Day of Prayer for Vocations and on May 18 with the Jubilee Day for Clergy.

This milestone is significant in a region where Catholics, though composing just three percent of the general population, are rapidly growing in number, Bishop Curlin said.

"The South is continuing to experience remarkable growth, and in order to serve the increasing population, we need an increasing number of priests," he said.

The diocesan class of ordinands reflects the ethnic variety found in the nationwide class of 2000.

The survey reported that 27 percent of the nation's class of 2000 identify themselves as members of racial or ethnic minorities. Two of Charlotte's seven men are immigrants to this country: Rev. Mr. Osorio, a native of Colombia, and Rev. Mr. Dinh, who hails from Vietnam.

"Our diocese is a mosaic of many cultures, and in order to properly serve our people, we must have priests who not only speak the languages, but understand the cultures and traditions," Bishop Curlin said. "Our diversity enhances and enriches our experience of being a universal church."

Nationwide, the average age of this year's newly ordained is 36. That holds true in this diocese, as the median age of this year's class — whose members range from 26 to 43 years old — is 35.

The seven men come from a variety of professional and educational backgrounds, and each comes with a unique and profound experience of faith leading them to priestly life, Bishop Curlin said.

"The ultimate relationship, whether you are a priest, religious or lay person, is the same: that deep relationship with God and the belief that God is with you," he added. "When one has faith in the presence of God in their life and truly understands this, they experience the peace and joy of the Spirit." ▼ original goal, assigned by the diocese, will receive that extra amount back from the diocese after all donations are sent in and tallied.

Contact Associate Editor Jimmy Rostar by calling (704) 370-3334 or e-mail jtrostar@charlottediocese.org.

DSA Funds, from page 1

The official appeal was conducted from the first weekend in February through Appeal Sunday weekend March 18 and 19. For some churches, where many parishioners come back to the diocese for the summer and have congregations made up of many summer visitors, their Appeal Sunday will be conducted when the majority of these travelers have settled in for the season.

According to Rohrman, the numbers will go up, and a final count will be determined at the end of August after these churches receive all of their donations.

"I firmly believe that as more parishes promote stewardship as a way of living out discipleship, people will continue to see the DSA as a way of truly living the corporal works of mercy — the key to the appeal," she continued.

However, the appeal is not only about dollars and cents. "During this great jubilee year, I am pleased to see so many opening wide the doors to Christ by serving Him in others through the appeal," said Bishop Curlin. ▼

Contact Staff Writer Alesha M. Price by calling (704) 370-3354 or e-mail amprice@charlottediocese.org.

Renewal, from page 1

News Ministries of North Carolina and co-founder of the Good News North Carolina School of Evangelization, and Hannah Hammer, parishioner of St. Pius X Church in Greensboro.

Tracks were also offered on youth ministry, Spirit-filled prayer life and a variety of discussions on the experience of Jesus in the lives of the faithful. Presenters included Rev. Mr. Keith Kolodziej of St. Matthew Church in Charlotte; Paul Kotlowski, diocesan director of youth ministry; and Catholic Renewal Service Team members Rev. Mr. Ron Steinkamp, Joyce Brown, Barbara Gardner, Joan Moran and Greg Smith.

Hammer, veteran teacher of Catholicism in the evangelical tradition, stepped in to speak in the place of an ailing Bill Wegner, president and founder of Good News International. She began by ecstatically proclaiming, "We've heard a lot of talk about Jubilee. Let me tell you something, I've been on a Jubilee all my life!" She went on to stress the value of forgiveness, humility and wonder in the face of God.

This and other inspirational messages were enhanced by the sound and presence of Redeemed, the Charlotte-based Christian music group which facilitated praise and worship sessions throughout the conference. Participants lifted their voices to songs like "Amazing Grace," "Let the Fire Fall" and "He Shall Reign." Redeemed is led by musicians Kathy Piontek and David Shoff.

With a thematic emphasis on the Jubilee Year, its meaning and significance, the Catholic Renewal Conference 2000 united evangelical Catholics from across the state to retreat in the revelry of worship, reflection and celebration.

In his speech, "Jesus, Leading us Back to the Father," Heiser ardently invited his audience to publicly share the Gospel, indicating that one may teach the Word by virtue of his or her baptism. He invoked a Vatican II document which states, "By our baptism, we are all called to be apostles."

"Every day, we have opportunities to enter into the message that Jesus came to bring us," he said. "He wants us to be more aware of God's presence on our lives, and more aware of where we are on the journey." ▼

SENTIRE CUM CHRISTO

The Most Reverend William G. Curlin cordially invites you to the Liturgy of Ordination to the Holy Priesthood on Saturday, the third of June, Two Thousand at eleven o'clock
at Saint Matthew Church
Charlotte, North Carolina

Providing Quality Long Term Care
...With Great Love.

For half a century, Maryfield Nursing Home has provided outstanding nursing care in a Catholic environment. When you need more care than is available at your home, come visit us. We invite you to discover for yourself our many stimulating daily activities and services which make Maryfield the best possible choice for Long Term Care.

1315 Greensboro Road
High Point, NC 27260
336.886.2444 Fax 336.886.4036
www.greensboro.com/mnli

MARYFIELD
A Continuing Care Retirement Community

Eritrean bishops appeal for help to end conflict with Ethiopia

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — Bishops of Eritrea have appealed to the international community to take urgent steps to halt the Eritrea-Ethiopia conflict, warning that the lives of innocent people were at stake. "A single day of delay could mean the extermination of an entire population and the devastation of its territory," the bishops said in a statement made public at the Vatican May 20. The escalation of the conflict came when Ethiopia launched a major offensive against Eritrea May 12, following two years of border skirmishes.

Cardinal Ratzinger says third Fatima secret 'not essential'

ROME (CNS) — The Vatican's top doctrinal official, Cardinal Joseph Ratzinger, said the third secret of Fatima contains no dogma of faith and, as other private revelations, is "not essential" for Christians. While praising Pope John Paul II's courage in announcing the secret May 13 and ordering its publication, Cardinal Ratzinger said Fatima needs to be kept in perspective to avoid "sensationalism." The cardinal commented in an interview in the May 19 Rome newspaper La Repubblica. He said his doctrinal congregation was working on a commentary on the Fatima messages and expected to publish it and the full text of the third secret by mid-June.

Retired general among 3 sentenced in Acteal massacre

MEXICO CITY (CNS) — A retired Mexican army general and two other security officials accused regarding the 1997 massacre of 45 indigenous people in Chiapas received prisons sentences of eight years, the federal attorney general's department said May 17. While the three men did not participate directly in the massacre, federal prosecutors charged them with "homicide by omission." The attorney general's office said they led a Chiapas state police detail posted on a highway near the hamlet of Acteal. It said the men admitted hearing shooting, but did not investigate the shots, calls from local leaders or from the Diocese of San Cristobal de las Casas.

CNS PHOTO FROM REUTERS

Passion Play in Oberammergau

Actors rehearse a scene from the famous Passion Play in Oberammergau, Germany, prior to its May 21 opening. Based on the life of Jesus Christ, the play has been staged there every 10 years in a 350-year-old tradition. About a half million people are expected at performances, which run for five months.

Anglican, Catholic bishops meet in Canada to review dialogue

MISSISSAUGA, Ontario (CNS) — Thousands of miles from London or Rome, 35 bishops from the Roman Catholic and Anglican churches met May 15-19 to discuss how to get past a 466-year-old split started by a king of England who could not get an annulment. Anglican Archbishop George Carey of Canterbury, England, head of the worldwide Anglican Communion, and Cardinal Edward Cassidy, head of the Pontifical Council for Promoting Christian Unity, led the meeting, which included bishops from around the English-speaking world. The bishops were to review 30 years of dialogue. Close observers said they were unlikely to focus on areas of contention such as women's ordination: Instead, they would explore how to get their previously released documents down to the grass roots of parish life.

Chinese bishops in communion with Rome ordain two more bishops

HONG KONG (CNS) — For the second time within two weeks, Chinese bishops in communion with Rome ordained new bishops in eastern China. A China-watcher at the Vatican said the ordinations were significant because they indicated a diminished influence of the government-approved Chinese Catholic Patriotic Association. The two new prelates of Ningbo Diocese were elected bishops by the diocese in December, reported UCA News, an Asian church news agency based in Thailand. Bishop Michael He Jinmin, 83, and Auxiliary Bishop Matthew Hu Xiande, 65, were ordained at Sacred Heart Cathedral in Ningbo, Zhejiang province. UCA News reported that a story on the ordinations appeared May 15 in the Ningbo Daily.

Christians in Pakistan sentenced to prison for blasphemy

LAHORE, Pakistan (CNS) — A judge sentenced two Christians to 35 years in prison and fined them $1,400 for insulting the prophet Mohammed, founder of Islam, and the Koran. Judge Rana Mohammad Yousaf, a sessions court judge in Pasroor, about 60 miles north of Lahore, sentenced Rashid Masih and his brother, Saleem Masih, to 35 years at hard labor May 12, reported UCA News, an Asian church news agency based in Thailand. Police arrested Rashid and Saleem twice after Maqsood Ahmed, a street vendor with whom the brothers had a scuffle, filed charges against them in May last year.

The Diocese of Charlotte

CATHOLIC SOCIAL SERVICES

Executive Director:
Elizabeth Thurbee (704) 370-3228
Refugee Office:
Cira Ponce (704) 370-6930
Justice & Peace:
Joanne K. Frazer (704) 370-3225
Special Ministries:
Gerard A. Carter (704) 370-3250

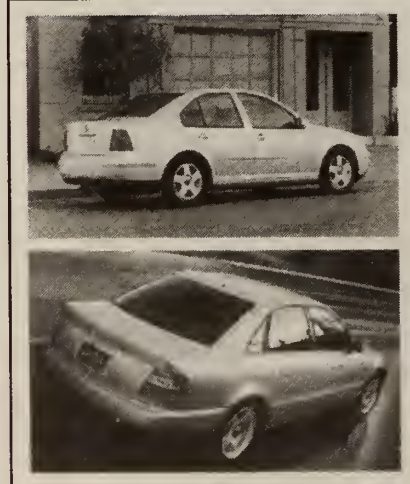
Charlotte Area: 1123 South Church Street, Charlotte, NC 28203
Area Director: Geri King (704) 370-6155
Western Area: 50 Orange Street, Asheville, NC 28801
Area Director: Sister Marie Frechette (828) 255-0146
Piedmont-Triad Area: 621 W. Second Street, Winston-Salem, NC 27108
Area Director: David Harold (336) 727-0705
Greensboro Satellite Office: (336) 274-5577
High Point Hispanic Center: (336) 884-5858

For information on the following programs, please contact the number listed:

CCHD	(704) 370-3234	Natural Family Planning	(704) 370-3230
Casa Guadalupe	(336) 727-4745	Operation Rice Bowl	(704) 370-3231
Catholic Relief Services	(704) 370-3225	Prison Ministry (beeper)	(704) 581-7693
Disaster Relief	(704) 370-3250	Programa Esperanza	(704) 370-6928
Elder Ministry	(704) 370-3220	Respect Life	(704) 370-3229
Family Life	(704) 370-3250	Voices for Justice Legislative Network	(704) 370-3225
Hand to Hand	(336) 725-HAND
Host Homes	(336) 725-HOST	Widow/Separated/Divorced	(704) 370-3228
Marriage Preparation	(704) 370-3228

1123 South Church Street ⊙ Charlotte, NC 28203 ⊙ www.cssnc.org

The Franciscan Center
Catholic Gift & Book Store
BOOKS AND GIFTS FOR ALL OCCASIONS!
1st Communion, Confirmation, Bibles, Rosaries, Statues, Medals, and More!
Hours: 9am - 5pm Monday - Friday
(336) 273-2554 233 N. Greene St. Greensboro, NC 27401



We Warn You: If You Drive One You're Gonna Want One!

Volkswagen and Audi...the only car companies to have every model named best in its class. Find out why. Come in for a thrill ride today.

Honest pricing, honest financing, and honest service on Europe's most exciting new cars. From the incredible New Beetle, to the all new Jetta IV and luxurious new generation of Audi, we have the right car for your pocketbook...and your lifestyle.

Volkswagen Audi South
John Diederich, Owner
Member Saint Gabriel Parish

7401 South Boulevard . Charlotte . 704.552.6500 . 800.426.5347
www.vwsouth.com . www.audisouth.com

Pope blends 80th birthday celebrations with Jubilee for Priests

By JOHN NORTON
Catholic News Service

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — Pope John Paul II blended celebrations of his 80th birthday with the Vatican's Jubilee for Priests, emphasizing the primacy of his priestly vocation in his life.

Though showered with greetings from political leaders and cultural icons from around the world, treated to a special London Philharmonia musical performance and feted with a sumptuous lunch, the pope seemed most pleased concelebrating a birthday Mass May 18 with some 8,000 priests.

During the liturgy in St. Peter's Square, which Vatican officials called the largest concelebrated Mass in history, the pope said that God "desired to link my existence to the grace of the priestly ministry, as bishop and successor of Peter, to be a witness of God's love for all humanity in these, our times, which are so fascinating."

He returned to his reflections on the priesthood at a birthday lunch with cardinals after the Mass, saying, "I am particularly happy to remember my birthday in this priestly dimension, which is the fundamental one of my life."

In his Mass homily, the pope praised God for the gift of priesthood, which he called a gift of love for all mankind. But he also acknowledged the struggles and weaknesses of ordinary priests and the growing threat of a priest shortage.

He asked for prayers for priests who have left the ministry and encouraged fallen-away priests to seek laicization, a Vatican dispensation officially releasing them from priestly duties.

Pope John Paul II is silhouetted against a sunny background in St. Peter's Square as he arrives for Mass on his 80th birthday May 18. The Mass was attended by some 8,000 priests from around the world.

CNS PHOTO FROM REUTERS

"I think also of those priests who, for different circumstances, no longer exercise the sacred ministry, though they continue to hold in themselves a special configuration to Christ through the indelible character of holy orders," the pope said.

Interrupted by applause, he said, "I also pray a great deal for them, and I invite everyone to remember them in prayer, so that, thanks also to a procedurally obtained dispensation," they remain committed Christians in communion with the church.

The pope said that priests must guide the church "not with force but with cheerfulness, not with the attitude of masters but by offering an exemplary witness."

Greeting priests during an evening prayer service May 17 in St. Peter's Square, the pope said the church in the 20th century was rich with the witness of saintly priests, some of whom even shed their blood exercising their ministry.

"Let us follow their footsteps, because the efficacy of our ministry depends on (saintliness)," he said.

During the May 14-18 Jubilee for Priests, two female saints were proposed as inspirations for priests seeking to faithfully live their vocations amid the challenges of the modern world.

In two different turbulent eras in the church, Sts. Catherine of Siena and Therese of Lisieux "knew how to speak to priests to stimulate them to live their vocations to the highest," said Cardinal Lucas Moreira Neves, prefect of the Congregation for Bishops, at a Mass May 17 in St. Peter's Basilica.

The liturgy was followed by a two-hour meditation on the saints' interaction with priests.

Maria Antonietta Falchi Pellegrini, a professor at the University of Genoa, said St. Catherine's numerous letters to popes, cardinals, monks and priests manifest a deep love and reverence for the dignity of the sacrament administered by priests, "matched only by the strength of her reprimands for those who disfigured the face of the church."

She said St. Catherine's examples teaches that "God always requires respect and reverence for priests, his 'christs,' whatever their human weakness might be, because any offense against them is an offense against God himself."

Discalced Carmelite Father Antonio Sicari said St. Therese became a Carmelite nun specifically to pray for the holiness of priests.

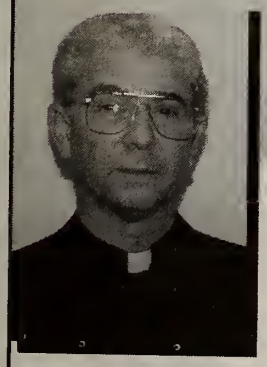
The saint lamented primarily "the fact that they might forget the exclusive love promised in their consecration, and that their purity not be that owed to the Eucharist which they hold between their hands."

The pope, ordaining 26 priests for the Diocese of Rome May 15, said the Eucharist was the mystery of divine love.

"Incessantly draw upon this mystery, above all in the celebration of the Mass, the spiritual energy to faithfully fulfill your mission," he told the new priests. ▼

VOCATIONS

Is God calling you?



Robert Ferris
Will be ordained to the transitional diaconate in the Diocese of Charlotte in summer 2000.

"Three years ago at age 57, I walked into Bishop Curlin's office to be interviewed as a potential candidate for the priesthood. He listened to me, asked a few questions, and gave me great encouragement. I walked out filled with joy ... and that joy has not stopped to this day!

My life in the seminary has been filled with opportunities to grow in my relationship with the Lord. In addition, at the Institute of Priestly Formation in Omaha and in Caritas Norwood Hospital and the Family Life Office in Boston's Archdiocese I have gained skills and knowledge which I look forward to bringing to those I will serve.

I anxiously await my ordination to Deacon this summer and my ultimate goal, ordination to the priesthood in 2001. I pray God will grant me the grace to accomplish this goal."

... Are you answering His call?

For more information about serving God as a priest in the Diocese of Charlotte, please contact Father John Allen,
The Office of Vocations, The Roman Catholic Diocese of Charlotte,
1123 South Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203.
(704) 370-3353 • vocations@charlottediocese.org

Learn Current Rates on a Number of Different Investments.

Call today for your free copy of Income Alert, our informative monthly rate sheet. Trusted advice. Exceptional service.

15800 John J. Delaney Dr.
Suite 100
Charlotte, NC 28277
(704) 341-3131 or (888) 769-3131
les.davaz@agedwards.com

Les Davaz
Member, St. Peter's

A.G. Edwards
INVESTMENTS SINCE 1887
Member SIPC • 2000 A.G. Edwards & Sons, Inc.

Serving Charlotte with integrity for over 38 years!

The LaPointe Dealerships

Frank LaPointe, President, Member of St. Gabriel Church

HONDA
7001 E. Independence Blvd.
535-4444

MITSUBISHI MOTORS
Built For Living.™
6951 E. Independence Blvd.
531-3131

CHARLOTTE CATHOLIC HIGH SCHOOL AND BISHOP McGUINNESS MEMORIAL HIGH SCHOOL
PROUDLY PRESENT THEIR GRADUATING SENIORS AND INTENDED COLLEGES

• Congratulations •

CCHS

Appalachian State U.
Matt Ausman
Katharine Bender
Alex Congdon
Luke Correll
Adrienne Crompton
Andrea Dries
Jeremy Engbretson
Chris Gipe
Michael Glankler
Laura Groover
Andrew Haden
Jeffrey Hansen
Beth Jarrell
Amy Mahedy
Michael Mowry
Christina Peralta
Andrea Rebhan
Liz Roberts
John Rummage
Lee Runey
Jason Sanfilippo
Amy Sleowsky
Patrick Soffera
Dominic Totman
Jenny Ulrich

Alabama U.
Juliana Littrell

Averett College, VA
Rachel Blank

Belmont Abbey College
Erin Brannon
Matthew Newey
Elizabeth Sweeney

Boston College
Brent Mathews
Thuvan Nguyen

Caldwell CC
Chris Carey

CPCC
David Besana
Jacqueline Dashner
Richard Jones
Thomas Popieniek
Julian Posse
Ashley Smith
Katrina Swartout
Amanda White

Clemson U.
Emilie Burke
Bobby Conrad

College of Charleston
Paula Garofalo
Courtney Harris

Columbia College (SC)
Kim Floyd
Heather Sherrod

Duke U.
Sarah Bratton

East Carolina U.
Emily Claiborne
Blake Gonzales
Matt Groomes
Benjamin Latterell
Heather Lynch
Kim Mullens
Angela Onofrietti
Chris Vandercook
Lark Williams

Elon College
Jeff Amann
Zach Hull
Morgan Kelso
Katrina Johnson
Mena Nickolopoulos
Diane Stephens

Embry-Riddle, AZ
Chris Andrews
Steve Garin

Embry-Riddle, FL
William Heybrook

Florida State
Moria Sheehan

Franciscan University
Mary Worthington

Furman U.
Joseph Rossi

Georgia Tech
Michael Chastain
Akash Shah
Ryan Smith

Georgetown U.
Kristine Johanson

Georgia, U.
Cullen Conly
Meredith Muse
Jonathon Weathers

LaSalle U.
Kristen Hall

Lehigh U.
Mary Kate Menze

Lenoir-Rhyne
Chris Matsui

Maryland Institute of Art
Elizabeth Merchant

Marymount College (NY)
Katherine Fee

University of Miami, Ohio
Marie Andresen

North Carolina State U.
Adam Amar
Anthony Belcastro
Nicole Campbell
Amanda Champagne
Ray Ciafardini
Alenna Clements
Annika Dollander
Emily Eichorn
Aleisa Gentle
Brian Gibson
Crystal Heaton
John Hugo
Shannon Kelly
Daniel Lentz
Alexa Loomis
Adam McGarity
Brian McMahon
Sara McMillan
Nicole Menninger
Sean Morrissey
Aisling O'Suilleabhain
Walter Penilla
Viktoria Peterson
Daniel Pydynowski
Liza Runey
Meg Ryan
Blake Short
Chris Simms
Karolina Sztyber
Brent Warnement
Rebecca Wayer
Jackie Willse
Maya Wozniak

North Country CC (NY)
Lauren Geraghty

Notre Dame
Elizabeth Zwickert

Oberlin (OH)
Logan Hegg

Ohio State
Kelly Street

Penn State
Stephanie Moser
Taylor Rhodes

Princeton
Joe Falencki

Queens College
Clint Chatman

Radford U. (VA)
Tara Santella

Rhodes College (TN)
Megan Jessee

Sarah Lawrence College (NY)
Bryan Ford

Savannah College of Art & Design
Brett Bainbridge
Alex Stegall

South Carolina, U
David Costello
Julie Emery
Lauren Green
Jimmy Tran

Stonehill College (MA)
Alicia Delamere

Tennessee, U.
Natalie Pernotto

Tulane
Majorie Britton
Brian Hitselberger

United States Naval Academy
Michael Bernard

United States Naval Nuclear Training Center
Michael Whitehead

University of the South
Thomas Manshack

Villanova University
Colleen Hogan
Zack Smith
Brian Vernarsky

Virginia Tech
Jason Borthen

Wake Forest U.
Michelle Bettin

Washington & Lee Baxter Webb

Western Carolina U.
Justin Berlak
Jason Collins
Stephan Janawsky
Beth Keber
Patrick Kesler

UNC-Chapel Hill
Catherine An Mitch Brigulio
John Bui
Dustin DeLuca
Moira Downey
Ashley Duncan
Victoria Elliot
Michael Forszen
Kerry Killoren
Courtney Kueser
Angie Machovec
Brian May
Robert Messing
Claire Miller
Mollie Ohlhaut
Annie Poskozim
Anne Sexton
Mollie Songco
Jonathan Yeomons

UNC-Charlotte
Priscilla Barbato
Lisa Berthiaume
Patricia Bristow
Meghan Faulkner
Jake Humphries
Martha Islas
Phillip Kobylanski
Paulina Loyo
Ashley Saln
Sarah Turza

UNC-Greensboro
Ned Parnell
Keith Ritter

UNC-Wilmington
Cristin Dunne
Erin Lail
Lisa Pasqualone

Undecided
Danielle Bingham
Robert Kaminski
Thomas Weber

BMHS

Appalachian State U.
Kristin Dickson
Sarah Fahey
Ryan Franck
Elizabeth Harrison
Joseph Hellinger
Brian Monteforte
Shannon Nitz
Molly Peterson
Lindsay Shepherd

Auburn U.
Amelia Knight

Barton College
Megan Johnson

Catawba College
Taylor Hege

College of Charleston
Matthew Ceneviva
Joseph Poston

Duquesne U.
Michelle Pavelka

East Carolina U.
Leilani Arias
Phillip Aylor
Timothy Geraghty
Kristie Petterson
Timothy Riley
Michael Speciale
Zachary Stein
Erin Wagner
Adam Zakaria

Elon College
Julia Whicker

Forsyth Technical CC
Zach Gibbons

George Washington U.
Daniel Riesser

Georgia Tech
Jesse Short

High Point U.
Jill Hennie
Dan Kalbaugh
Jared Kirby
Justin LeBlanc
Jorge Camilo Moreno

Johnson and Wales Culinary Institute
Michael Jacobs

Kettering U.
William Heckman

Lees-McRae College
Jesse Marion

Lenoir-Rhyne College
Ashley Lawless

Lynchburg College
Meredith Fievet

Meredith College
Meredith Burdock
Concetta Hinson

Michigan State U.
Christopher Kronner

Mount Mercy
Patrick Fleming

Mount St. Mary's College
Kristine Galiger

North Carolina State U.
Joseph Carley
Christine Davis
Chris DeVillers
Robert Fithian
Donna Nalevanko
Christina Nelson
Laura Smith
Krista Szafranski
Lauren Tryon

Patrick Henry CC
Carl Nathan Quate

Peace College
Pamela DePaulis
Amie Gauthier

Purdue U.
Jonathan Thompson

Randolph Technical CC
Jennifer Yuson

Rockingham Technical CC
Allison Lay

St. Louis U.
Travis Kindl

University of Dayton
Sarah Simmons

UNC - Asheville
Emily Day

UNC - Chapel Hill
Beth Adamski
Dene Davis
Justin Gach
Katie Gramling
Emilie Hendee
Laura Hoeing
Nico Pandi
Keri Prybylo
Meredith Roche
Stephanie Sherman

UNC - Charlotte
Kimberly Dedo
Kristen Keku

UNC - Wilmington
Christopher Fuhrmann

University of North Dakota
Brian Stevens

University of the Sciences in Philadelphia
John "Kenny" Schoolmeester

Virginia Tech
Vanessa Capobianco
Thomas Foreman

Wake Forest U.
Philip Albrecht
Michael Dedo
Mary Katherine Hurley
Lan Chi Tran

Western Carolina U.
Ryan Davis
James Haas, Jr.

Undecided
Jonathan Crover
Kevin Delury

Charlotte Catholic High School • 7702 Pineville-Matthews Road • Charlotte, NC • (704) 543-1127
Bishop McGuinness Memorial High School • 1730 Link Road • Winston-Salem, NC • (336) 725-6669

Fiorenza: Campaign against Vatican's U.N. status anti-Catholic

WASHINGTON (CNS) — The campaign by Catholics for a Free Choice to end the Vatican's permanent observer status at the United Nations is reminiscent of "other episodes of anti-Catholic bigotry," the head of the U.S. bishops said May 10.

Bishop Joseph A. Fiorenza of Galveston-Houston said Catholics for a Free Choice, which supports legal abortion, claims to be an authentic Catholic voice. He said "that claim is false."

The bishop, president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, issued a statement criticizing the group for "its rejection and distortion of Catholic teaching about the respect and protection due to defenseless unborn human life."

Frances Kissling, president of Catholics for a Free Choice, announced last year that her organization was launching a "See Change" campaign calling on the United Nations to end the Vatican's permanent observer status and put it on the same level as a nongovernmental organization — or NGO — such as the World Council of Churches.

In its current status, the Vatican does not have a vote at the United Nations but, after securing permission, it makes statements on issues the world body deals with, and uses other opportunities to influence delegates.

Kissling's group has a consultative status at the United Nations as an NGO and she has been an active lobbyist at U.N. meetings.

In mid-March a spokeswoman for the United Nations told Catholic News Service that the U.N. Secretary-General Kofi Annan cannot conduct the review of the Vatican's U.N. observer status called for by Catholics for a Free Choice.

Myriam Dessables, a staff member in the office of the spokesman for the secretary-general, said such a review could be conducted only if it was formally requested by the General Assembly and that, so far, no government has taken or proposed any action that could lead to a vote on such a request.

Bishop Fiorenza in his May 10 statement called the Catholics for a Free Choice campaign an effort to "silence the moral voice of the Holy See at the United Nations."

He pointed out that the NCCB has stated publicly a number of times that Catholics for Free Choice "is not a Catholic organization, does not speak for the Catholic Church, and in fact promotes positions contrary to the teaching of the church."

He said the group is primarily "an arm of the abortion lobby in the United States and throughout the world" funded by a number of powerful and wealthy private foundations to "promote abortion as a method of population control."

"The use of the name Catholic as a platform for promoting the taking of innocent human life and ridiculing the church is offensive not only to Catholics, but to all who expect honesty and forthrightness in public discourse."
— Bishop Joseph A. Fiorenza

"The use of the name Catholic as a platform for promoting the taking of innocent human life and ridiculing the church is offensive not only to Catholics," he said, "but to all who expect honesty and forthrightness in public discourse."

The Vatican released Bishop Fiorenza's statement in its daily press bulletin May 16.

Rep. Chris Smith, R-N.J., who has introduced legislation in the House to protect the Vatican's U.N. observer status, agreed in a separate statement with Bishop Fiorenza's remarks regarding Catholics for a Free Choice.

Smith said the group's current attempt to remove the Vatican from its position in the United Nations is a "flagrant anti-Catholic attempt by radical fringe groups to clear the way for their pro-abortion, anti-family agenda at the United Nations."

In his May 11 statement, Smith, who is Catholic, also said the Vatican is "under assault by those who desire to see the disintegration of the Catholic world view in our global governing body."

"We cannot allow this to happen," he said.

Kissling, responding in a May 12 statement to Bishop Fiorenza's comments, said Catholics for a Free Choice is not "motivated by anti-Catholicism" but by a "love of the church and a commitment to a vision of church that represents the conscience of every individual."

She described her group as "the voice of Catholics who disagree with the church on sexual and reproductive health and rights."

She also said she takes "small comfort" in the belief that her organization is criticized because it is "effective in presenting the views of many of the world's Catholics." ▼

Thinking of rolling over your CD?
WAIT!

Consider the benefits of a Charitable Gift Annuity to You and Your Church.

Gift Annuity Rates on a Single Life

Age	Rate	Age	Rate
65	7.0	80	9.2
70	7.5	85	10.5
75	8.2	90	12.0

Plant a seed that will bear fruit forever.

† High, fixed-income to you (and/or another) for life
† Income tax savings
† Partial tax-free income
† Capital gains tax savings
† Vital support to your parish, Catholic school, agency, diocesan ministry or foundation

For more information at no obligation, return the coupon below:

Name_____ Phone_____
Address_____
City_____ State_____ Zip_____
Parish_____ Birthdate_____

Mail to: Cindy Rice, Director of Planned Giving, Diocese of Charlotte, 1123 South Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203-4003, or call (704) 370-3320

COMMUNITY...

At Domino's Pizza of Charlotte we strive for just a little more than the perfect pizza.

We like to have a perfect relationship with our community.

Domino's is happy to partner and support the Catholic schools of Charlotte!

Domino's wishes the Catholic students of Charlotte a safe and happy summer!

Domino's Pizza®

Charlotte's Pizza Delivery Experts!

Book Review

Book offers look at the conclave which will elect the pope's successor

REVIEWED BY JAMES C. O'NEILL
CATHOLIC NEWS SERVICE

"The Next Pope" is a handy guide to the players at the next conclave which will elect the successor to the present Holy Father, Pope John Paul II.

This revised edition contains information and observations about most all of the cardinals who will be eligible to elect a new pope. Of course, if Pope John Paul names any new cardinals, as he is expected to do sometime this year, the book will need yet another update.

"The Next Pope"
By Peter Hebblethwaite, revised and updated by Margaret Hebblethwaite
Harper SanFrancisco
(San Francisco, 2000)
198 pp., $19.95.

Since most Catholics and others interested in Vatican/church affairs know little of these princes of the church who are spread around the world, there is a need for an informative volume such as this.

Its author, Peter Hebblethwaite, an English Catholic journalist who specialized on the Vatican, died in 1994, shortly after the book was first published. This revised edition was brought together by his widow, Margaret, the assistant editor of the British Catholic journal The Tablet.

Probably the most significant difference between the two editions is that in 1994 Peter Hebblethwaite was able to draw up a short list of "papabili." These are cardinals seen as having a strong chance of being elected because of their leadership qualities, such as Cardinal Carlo Martini of Milan. In 2000, these short-list candidates are six years older, and therefore less likely to attract the support they might have had in the past.

The result, according to Margaret Hebblethwaite, opens the election to a wider but less focused field of candidates. To handicap them, to use a racing metaphor, she applies criteria of age, nationality, and outlook.

In terms of age she all but rules out any cardinal over 75, although Pope John XXIII was elected at 76. Nationality brings up the often-debated question of an Italian or non-Italian successor to the Polish pope. The greatly diminished presence of Italian cardinals in the Sacred College of Cardinals makes the election of a "foreign pope" very possible.

As for cardinals from the United States, she thinks they are dead in their tracks.

"Unfortunately, the country suffers from the stigma of being a superpower" and is suspect of being "tainted with dangerous cultural values." The current cardinals from Poland are also out of luck simply because "as Poles (they) can be more decisively ruled out than anyone else."

The book claims that there are no great "liberals" of the past to be found in today's College of Cardinals, only what the book calls "moderate conservatives," "conservatives" and "ultra-conservatives."

While obviously a liberal herself, the editor/reviser lists the good qualities, leadership abilities, charm and spiritual strengths of each candidate.

Included in this volume is a history of past conclaves, a review of Pope John Paul's reform of the conclave rules, and an analysis of the current pope's legacy to the electors who will come together after his death. ▼

O'Neill covered the conclaves which elected Pope John XXIII and Pope Paul VI for CNS, formerly National Catholic News Service.

Word to Life

May 28, Sixth Sunday of Easter, Cycle B Readings:

1) Acts 10:25-26, 34-35, 44-48
Psalm 98:1-4
2) 1 John 4:7-10
3) Gospel: John 15:9-17

BY JEFF HENSLEY
CATHOLIC NEWS SERVICE

When Jesus speaks to his disciples about the new commandment to love one another here in John 15, it is the evening before his darkest hour. Judas has just left to betray him. He will soon go out to the Garden of Gethsemane where the three with him will fall asleep, while Jesus sweats blood as he anticipates doing the Father's will.

Jesus will be arrested, beaten about and ridiculed by the Roman authorities, and his disciples will turn away from him in fear.

"Love one another as I have loved you," he tells them. "There is no greater love than this; to lay down one's life for one's friends."

It's all a pretty tall order. And if Jesus had focused on the short-term results of his admonition as we so often do, he would have been sorely disappointed.

But he was not.

What sin have you or I committed that right at this moment is keeping us from appreciating God's love for us, and passing it along to our sisters and brothers, our friends, our families, our coworkers? Is it greater than Peter's denial? Is it worse than those who ran away at the time of Jesus' arrest?

Ditch your sin. Toss it onto Jesus. Let him carry the load.

All of those who failed Jesus miserably now carry the title of "Saint" before their names, except for the one who could not believe that God could forgive him.

It's the season of Easter, the season of hope. Without the resurrection, those men would have died defeated by the power of evil, but the power of Jesus overcoming death is the victory that brings both them and us to freedom.

Celebrate the victory. Jesus is Lord! He will redeem us as he redeemed them. It's what Easter is all about.

Question:
If you haven't already done it, won't you confess any sins that are currently blocking your access to God's love so he can pour his grace of forgiveness onto you, preparing you to serve him and others in love?

Weekly Scripture

Readings for the week of May 28 - June 3, 2000

Sixth Sunday of Easter, Acts 10:25-26, 34-35, 44-48, 1 John 4:7-10, John 15:9-17; Monday, Acts 16:11-15, John 15:26-16:4; Tuesday, Acts 16:22-34, John 16:5-11; Wednesday (Visitation of the Virgin Mary to Elizabeth), Zephaniah 3:14-18, Luke 1:39-56; Thursday (Ascension of Our Lord), Acts 1:1-11, Ephesians 1:17-23, Mark 16:15-20; Friday (St. Marcellinus, St. Peter), Acts 18:9-18, John 16:20-23; Saturday (St. Charles Lwanga and Companions), Acts 18:23-28, John 16:23-28

Readings for the week of June 4 - 10, 2000

Seventh Sunday of Easter, Acts 1:15-17, 20-26, 1 John 4:11-16, John 17:11-19; Monday (St. Boniface), Acts 19:1-8, John 16:29-33; Tuesday (St. Norbert), Acts 20:17-27, John 17:1-11; Wednesday, Acts 20:28-38, John 17:11-19; Thursday, Acts 22:30; 23:6-11, John 17:20-26; Friday (St. Ephrem of Syria), Acts 25:13-21, John 21:15-19; Saturday, Acts 28:16-20, 30-31, John 21:20-25

Summer Publishing Schedule

The Catholic News & Herald begins its summer schedule with this issue. The next issue will be June 9, 2000.

Attention
DIABETICS
with Medicare or Insurance
Save money on diabetic supplies!
1-800-337-4144
Diabetic National Service

Mon-Fri 9:30am-5:30pm
Sat. 9:30am-3:00pm
Carolina Catholic Bookshoppe
First Communion & Confirmation
† Special Cards
† Veils
† Unique Gift Ideas
704-342-2878
Fax (704) 334-3313
4410-F Monroe Road, Charlotte, NC
We welcome mail orders and special orders!

Carolina Volkswagen
6625 E. Independence Blvd., Charlotte
(704) 537-2336 • (800) 489-2336
Biggest Selection
Drivers wanted.
Lowest Prices
"Nothing Could Be Finer" Members of St. Gabriel
#1 Volkswagen Dealer in Charlotte and all the Carolinas for customer sales and service satisfaction!
C'mon in and see why!

'Seventh Heaven' actress says New Age spirituality of Hollywood holds no attraction

By STEVE VIVONA
Catholic News Service

HOLLYWOOD (CNS) — As a lifelong Catholic, actress Catherine Hicks says she has never been tempted to explore the New Age spirituality that seems to pervade Hollywood.

"I don't think people realize how spiritual the Catholic faith is," said Hicks, who plays Annie Camden, the wife of a Protestant minister, on the WB television series "Seventh Heaven."

She was interviewed in Hollywood before taping an appearance for "Personally Speaking," the Catholic Communication Campaign's interview program that airs on the Odyssey cable network.

Outsiders may perceive the Mass as boring, she observed, "but it's deeply contemplative if you're paying attention. Then there's the miracle of what happens on the altar."

Hicks inherited her powerful faith from her parents, who took the family to Mass regularly. She said today some Catholics claim they're too busy to go to Mass. "I think it's real important to go to God's house and get away from it all." Prayer, especially praying the rosary, was an integral part of her family life, Hicks said.

A native of Scottsdale, Ariz., Hicks attended Catholic grade school, "and I didn't have any horror stories." She said the sisters who taught her were real role models. "They were intellectual women who had careers and they encouraged us to develop our minds and our souls."

Hicks stressed that Catholics are not judgmental. "I don't like the feeling of fundamentalist (Christians) saying, 'We are better. We are saved. Jews are going to hell. (Catholics) aren't raised to say, 'We're saved and other people aren't.'"

"It's hard enough to work on just being good. Worry about charity to the homeless and hungry. Give some of your money away. Be their friend first and heal their wounds." Hicks said the Catholic Church is present wherever there is real poverty.

Worrying about who is saved and who isn't is not the issue, Hicks said. "It's hard enough to work on just being good. Worry about charity to the homeless and hungry. Give some of your money away. Be their friend first and heal their wounds." Hicks said the Catholic Church is present wherever there is real poverty.

Of her role in "Seventh Heaven," which premiered in 1996, Hicks said she constantly hears from parents who tell her that "for one hour a week they can sit down as a family on the sofa together and watch something and not worry about what they're going to see. (The series) promotes discussion and stimulates community."

Hicks is married to Kevin Yagher, a special-effects artist in Hollywood and they have an 8-year-old daughter, Catie.

An only child herself, Hicks tries to spend quality time with her mother as well as her daughter as often as possible. "I really care for my mother and worry and think about her as much as my daughter, although I don't shortchange my daughter."

Hicks said she makes breakfast for her daughter every morning "even if I have to make the batter at 5 o'clock."

Raising a child with the values her parents imparted to her is important, Hicks said. "If the parents stay together that's half the battle, that there is security in the home. She knows she's loved ... and we teach her along the way."

Sending her child to Catholic school was always a priority, Hicks said. "They pray at snack time. There's an awareness of something higher than video games."

Hicks started taking acting lessons while at St. Mary's College in Notre Dame, Ind., where she majored in both English and theology. After winning an acting scholarship to Cornell University, she began her career on the New York stage acting in plays based on the work of Arthur Miller and Tennessee Williams. Her first role on Broadway was opposite Jack Lemmon in the play "Tribute."

Her first TV role came in 1976 on the daytime series "Ryan's Hope." She portrayed Marilyn Monroe in the 1980 TV movie "Marilyn: The Untold Story." She was in the motion picture "Star Trek IV: The Voyage Home" in 1986 and has starred in films opposite Kathleen Turner, Dudley Moore and Ray Liotta.

During the lean years when acting jobs were sparse, Hicks said her faith and a confidence in her training helped keep hope alive that she would eventually succeed in the business. "It's a lonely path out there," she said.

"One thing that's great about being Catholic" is there is usually a church nearby, Hicks observed. "It's such a universal church and a global family. I really feel like I belong." ▼

CNS PHOTO BY DANNY FIELD FROM CATHOLIC COMMUNICATIONS CAMPAIGN

"Seventh Heaven" actress Catherine Hicks, a lifelong Catholic, plays the wife of a Protestant minister on the WB television series.

Got news?

Send your story ideas to catholicnews@charlottediocese.org or fax The Catholic News & Herald at (704) 370-3382

VGA & SVGA Refurbished Computer Monitors
14" — $20-$25
15" — $35-$38
17" — $70-$125
20" Call for details
Over 2000 monitors in stock!
30 day warranty
MONITORS DEPOT
O.C. STAFFORD ELECTRONIC SERVICE & DEVELOPMENT COMPANY
408 Banner Ave., Greensboro, NC 27401
E-mail: urpac408@worldnet.att.net
(336) 274-9917

Come find out about...
Natural Family Planning
Catholic Social Services
Introductory Classes: 2nd Tuesday of every month
Next class: June 13th
Upcoming classes: July 11th & Aug. 8th
Fee: $10
Call to pre-register
Classes held at 7pm at the Charlotte Diocese Pastoral Center
1123 South Church Street
(4 blocks from Ericsson "Panther" Stadium)
For information, other class locations and methods, please call (704) 370-3230.

30 YEARS EXPERIENCE
PYANO MAN
HENRY C. ROZELL III
2nd Generation ♦ Piano Tuner/Technician
Piano Tuning, Repairs, Refinishing
Pianos Bought and Sold
FREE ESTIMATES
704-321-5843

COACH XCEL
Spirit - Body - Mind
Hypnosis - Thought Field Therapy
Stop Smoking • Live Healthier
Manage Stress • Reduce Chronic Pain
Improve Job, Academic, Sports Performance
Call Today! 704-597-4184
John Connors LPC, NBCCH, TFT
Licensed Professional Counselor, National Board of Certified Clinical Hypnotherapists
Diplomate Certified - Thought Field Therapy

Let stairs be our problem... not yours!
Ask about our Stairway lifts.
• Easily attached to steps (not walls)
• Folds out of the way
• Fits most stairways (straight & curved)
• Very affordable (rent or buy)
• We install
Chair & Equipment Rentals & Sales, Inc.
800 Central Ave. • Charlotte, NC • (800) 333-8431
Member of St. Thomas Aquinas

The Pope Speaks

POPE JOHN PAUL II

Pope says time is right to reveal third secret of Fatima

BY BENEDICTA CIPOLLA
CATHOLIC NEWS SERVICE

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — Pope John Paul II said the time was right to reveal the so-called third secret of Fatima, which can help illuminate the many tribulations of the 20th century.

"In light of the Fatima apparitions, the events of this rather troubled historical period take on a singular eloquence," the pope said at his weekly general audience May 17.

The audience marked the first time the pope commented publicly on the third part of the message, revealed to three shepherd children in 1917.

"Seeming that the time was ripe, I felt it opportune to make public the content of the so-called third part of the secret," he said.

During a May 12-13 papal trip to Fatima, Cardinal Angelo Sodano, Vatican secretary of state, announced that the pope had ordered the publication of the third secret.

Cardinal Sodano said it included a reference to a bishop clothed in white, who "falls to the ground, apparently dead under a burst of gunfire." The pope believes the reference applies directly to the 1981 attempt on his life, the cardinal said in his announcement May 13.

Speaking to 40,000 pilgrims in St. Peter's Square May 17, the pope said his pilgrimage to Fatima represented an "opportunity to thank the Blessed Virgin for the protection she has given me throughout my pontificate."

He said the ring he placed at the foot of Mary's statue in Fatima symbolized his thanksgiving. The late Polish Cardinal Stefan Wyszynski of Warsaw gave Pope John Paul the ring shortly after his election as pope. The cardinal had told the pope that he would lead the church into the third millennium.

During his trip to Portugal, the pope beatified two of the children who witnessed the Marian apparitions.

Though Francisco and Jacinta Marto were not martyrs, the pope said at the audience, "they demonstrated a life of Christian virtues to a heroic degree, despite their tender age ... the heroism of children, but true heroism."

The pope emphasized that their beatification did not depend on their visions of Our Lady of Fatima, but on the "faithfulness and commitment with which they met the singular gift received from the Lord and from holiest Mary."

"They deserve not only to be recognized as credible witnesses of apparitions, but to become examples of life lived according to the Gospel," he said.

The third child visionary, Carmelite Sister Lucia Dos Santos, now 93, met with the pope during his trip. Sister Lucia placed the third part of the message in a sealed envelope in 1943 and delivered it to her bishop, who then sent it to the Vatican, where it remained secret except to the popes and a few close aides.

The third secret was expected to be published soon, along with commentary by the Vatican's Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith.

The Bottom Line

ANTOINNETTE BOSCO
CNS COLUMNIST

Jubilee — Year of forgiveness

Traditionally, a jubilee year is a time to make a fresh start, to throw off those chains that block one from God, to become free. It is a time of forgiveness for people carrying debts and burdens, resentments and hatreds. In a jubilee year the church offers an invitation to all to come, to ask for healing, and to be made whole and joyful.

Looking back over the past six months, I am inspired by the efforts to communicate this message of reconciliation, beginning with the marvelous example of Pope John Paul II in his writings, words and actions. Could we ever forget the photo of this pope, kneeling at the cross at St. Peter's Basilica in Rome, and his words: "Before Christ, who for love bore our sins, we are all invited to a deep examination of conscience. One of the characteristic elements of the great jubilee lies in what I have described as purification of memory. I ask that in this year of mercy, the church, strengthened by the holiness that she receives from her Lord, kneel before God and beg for forgiveness for past and present sins of her sons. We forgive, and we ask forgiveness."

In the spirit of this great jubilee year, a remarkable action took place in the Diocese of Rockville Center on Long Island, N.Y., during Holy Week. On that Monday, priests of all the diocese's 134 parishes were asked to be in the confessional from 4 p.m. to 10 p.m. so that everyone could have the opportunity to celebrate the sacrament of penance. That may sound strange, considering the declining numbers of Catholics going to confession in recent years.

The diocese did a radio and newspaper publicity blitz, emphasizing that the sacrament is "not about judgment, let alone condemnation. It's about forgiveness." A handbook for the public emphasized that examining one's conscience does not mean coming up with "a grocery list of sins," but rather "a reflection on the rhythms of one's daily life and the relationship that one has with oneself, with others and with God."

The diocese offered this invitation, and it was a gamble. No one could predict how it would turn out.

The response? All the parishes reported that streams of people came into the confessionals, hundreds of them responding to this first-time-ever massive invitation.

A priest I spoke to said the turnout was absolutely remarkable, that people had long hungered for such a call, anxious and ready to free themselves of what had kept them from God, some because of mere indifference, some for past serious sins.

In the weeks before this unusual day, The Long Island Catholic, the diocesan paper, invited people to send in their comments about confession. Most of the responses were negative, with comments like, "I never received advice nor consolation in confession — just a feeling of being very uncomfortable." If the jubilee year continues as it has begun, such comments may be filed away forever.

I like the beautiful words of one of the diocese's pastors, Msgr. Frank Gaeta. He said that in the sacrament of reconciliation the challenge of the church is to get away from legalism and go to the heart and mind of Jesus. The life of the church, he said, is about "table fellowship," a concept that stresses that everybody is welcome in God's house — which sometimes looks like a confessional.

Parish Diary

FATHER PETER DALY
CNS COLUMNIST

The unscripted moments of parish life

Often the unscripted moments in parish life are truly memorable. For instance, we've just had the annual confirmation of our young people. Some 36 teens were ushered into adulthood in the church by the abbot of the local Benedictine monastery.

All was suitably solemn until the photo session afterward. The photographer struggled to get everyone lined up on the auditorium risers as the abbot and I looked on. Just in front us was one of our senior high students, who helps with our confirmation class — a lad of irrepressible joy.

Unaware that his pastor and the abbot were at his elbows, he called out to the confirmation class, "All right now girls, show us a little more cleavage." For a second everything went into slow motion. The photographer looked at him, open-mouthed, like a fish. Without due reflection, I batted the offending teen over the head with my program.

Suddenly aware of his inopportune instruction, the young man turned liturgical red, appropriate to a confirmation ceremony. The abbot, who has taught high school boys for more than 40 years, was more sanguine than I. He grabbed our young director by the nape of the neck.

One mother, who helps teach our confirmation class, flew across the stage of the auditorium and breathed in the young man's ear, "The abbot has just saved your life, since I was coming across this stage to kill you."

Perhaps the only thing I will remember about that confirmation is the photo shoot. Sometimes it is the mistakes that make for the nice memories.

Like the fancy, society wedding I had for two doctors at a big parish in Washington. All was super elegant. They had photographers, flowers and limos for days. After the post-wedding photos were taken, the bridal party ran out of the church, jumped in the limos and drove off in a shower of rice. Assuming everyone was gone, I locked up the church and left.

But the bride and groom were still around the side of the church in the garden, with the photographer. They emerged to find all the limos and their hordes of guests departed. So they hailed a cab. The cab driver, amused, played a tape of Irving Berlin's "I'll be loving you always."

It is the cab ride they'll remember.

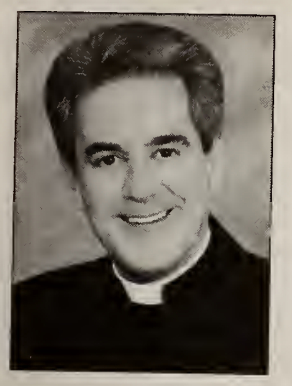
Sometimes the embarrassment becomes the show. Last year when our parish had a talent show, our preschoolers entertained us with a rendition of some song having to do with a frog and a lily pad.

One little girl, unaccustomed as she was to standing on a stage facing an auditorium full of clapping adults armed with cameras, decided that if she couldn't see us, we couldn't see her. In the middle of the song, she gabbed the hem of her party dress and lifted it over her head.

The other preschoolers, unfamiliar with these motions, paused momentarily in their gesturing to watch this little "cancan." Some thought it part of the play and joined in. Meanwhile their teachers, "Miss Karen" and "Miss Dot," tried bravely to get them to resume their aquatic fable. Some adults were gasping for breath between guffaws. No doubt about it, this was the showstopper.

That's life. The best memories are the things we do not plan. It's a lesson worth remembering as we go through this season of confirmations, first Communions, weddings, graduations, ordinations and anniversaries, when people are trying to get every detail just so.

It is the laughter we remember.



Light One Candle

FATHER THOMAS J. McSWEENEY
GUEST COLUMNIST

Marriage: Can we talk?

Until recently, my only image of Abigail Adams, the wife of this nation's second president, John Adams, came from the Broadway musical "1776" in which she appears as the only female character. She is the only person who could draw out the loving side of her husband's otherwise acerbic personality.

From time to time, the couple are seated at opposite ends of the stage writing letters that try to erase the distance forced upon them by the exigencies of the American Revolution. It's an evocative portrayal of marriage under extraordinary pressure in extraordinary times.

At the time I thought how enlightening the Adams correspondence would be for anyone interested in the institution's changes over time, even as it remains fundamentally the same.

So when I picked up Steve and Cokie Roberts' best-selling book "From This Day Forward" I was delighted to find not only the story of John and Abigail but also an assortment of other stories that illustrate the persistent issues of love and marriage, work and family, parents and children. What is particularly remarkable about the Roberts' treatment is their shared view that — despite all the hand-wringing and cynicism about the institution of marriage — there is every reason for hope.

For the Roberts, the Adams' letters reinforce a simple point: "Communication is to a marriage what sunlight is to a plant: a basic necessity." When the Adamses celebrated their golden anniversary, Abigail told the gathering that her only unhappiness with John came from that long separation during the Revolutionary years.

For instance, John and Abigail differed, sometimes heatedly, about the education of their daughters. Determined that girls not be deprived of an education, Abigail used every opening to argue the issue. In time John seems to acquiesce: "The education of our children is never out of my mind. Train them to virtue, habituate them to industry, activity and spirit... It is time, my dear, for you to teach them French."

But Abigail's concerns were not only domestic ones. Thinking ahead to the new laws of an Independent United States, Abigail wrote: "I desire you would remember the ladies, and be more favorable to them than your ancestors. Do not put such unlimited power into the hands of husbands. Remember all men would be tyrants if they could. If attention is not paid to the ladies we are determined to foment a rebellion."

John's response was less than tactful: "I cannot but laugh... in practice you know we [men] are the subjects. We have only the name of masters, and rather than give up this, which would completely subject us to the despotism of the petticoat, I hope General Washington... would fight."

Still, reading their letters, you get a sense of their ability to disagree without overstepping each other's bounds. You also learn that their love endured all things. Abigail wrote: "The age of romance has long ago past, but the affection of almost infant years has matured and strengthened." John signed off: "Yours, with more ardor than ever — The Happiest Man on Earth."

When a couple experiences the inevitable trials that come with decades of marriage, yet feel happiness and ardor, they are not lucky — they are committed. And that will be just as true in another two hundred years.

Coming of Age

AMY WELBORN
CNS COLUMNIST

Growing on the outside — and the inside

It's always fascinating to watch kids grow.

When I was a high school theology teacher, I was always amazed by the sight of boys returning from summer break, especially between their freshman and sophomore years.

Most of the boys, it seemed, had grown a foot over the summer. They'd left the classroom, most of them just a little taller than I, but when they returned, their heads seemed almost to scrape the ceiling. Girls grow too, of course, but their spurts come earlier, usually in late middle school.

So yes, everyone wants to grow. If you're a boy, you want to grow taller and to fill out. You want your chest and your shoulders to broaden, and you want to start shaving. If you're a girl, you want to start looking like a woman and not like a little girl.

It's funny, too, because you can tell that everyone is always quite relieved at starting to really shoot up and develop. Adulthood is on the way. Because, you know, no one wants to stay a kid forever.

The question is, are you as anxious to grow in other ways as you are to grow physically? Being adult is about a lot more than how you look. There are lots of overgrown kids walking around in adult bodies. They grew physically, which is effortless, but they forgot that they have to grow internally as well in order to be taken seriously as adults. But that's not effortless, so sometimes we forget to take care of it.

Good for you! You're growing physically. And during this summer filled with sunshine and exercise, you'll grow a lot more, and you, too, will shock your teachers next fall. But what about the other parts of you?

— Are you growing emotionally? Are you leaving childhood selfishness behind and beginning to understand that the world doesn't revolve around you and your needs?

— Are you growing intellectually? Are you reaching beyond the child's tendency to unquestioningly absorb what she's told and really trying to analyze, critique and understand the world around you?

— Are you growing in terms of responsibility? Are you taking more responsibility for your own life and your own choices, realizing that it's time to stop expecting your parents to run along behind you picking up the messes that you make?

— Are you growing spiritually? Are you taking the time in your life to relate to God in a more intimate way? Are you continuing to grow in faith, or do you not know much more about your faith than you did when you were 10?

I once had an acquaintance who told me that her son had grown a foot in a year. Imagine that — growing an inch a month. She said it was a very difficult time, because her son's body was getting beyond him. It was a year filled with awkwardness and even accidents. And, as you might imagine, growing that fast actually does cause real growing pains.

So yes, growing can hurt. Growing can be confusing and frightening. But if you want to be an adult, you've got to grow. And not just on the outside, either.

Question Corner

FATHER JOHN DIETZEN
CNS COLUMNIST

Why some Christians believe the end is near

Q. All those predictions we heard about the end of the world as the new millennium was starting are amusing, but also confusing. Television preachers still talk as if the time — they call it the rapture — will come any day now.

Where did this religion come from? Two of our friends are totally taken up with the idea and tell us we are in for a great and terrible surprise.

A. The belief that the final coming of Christ is near does have a curious, if brief, history.

The idea is not totally new, of course. We know from the New Testament that believers in the first decades of Christianity seriously anticipated Christ's return in glory before the death of people then alive.

It didn't take long, however, for the realization to sink in that Christianity was in for the long haul. As Jesus said, no one knows the day or the hour.

During the following centuries a variety of sects appeared, each claiming that the final time was at hand, but they all died away.

The modern, and longest lasting, millenarianist movements began in the 1830s. William Miller, a New York farmer and preacher, predicted the world would end on March 21, 1843, a year he decided upon by counting the years between the prophet Daniel (Daniel 8) and the restoration of Jerusalem in 457 B.C.

When that and other predicted days passed uneventfully, he lost a large segment of his clergy and lay followers, who had begun calling themselves Adventists ("coming").

Some maintained, however, that Christ truly did arrive in 1844, but invisibly; and they devoted themselves to spreading the word, transferring their day of worship to Saturday instead of Sunday.

Seventh Day Adventists now have grown into the millions, but the theme of their mission remains that the Second Coming is imminent. They do not forecast a specific time.

Jehovah's Witnesses are another offshoot of the Millerites and Adventists. Among other distinctive beliefs, they hold that Jesus returned invisibly in 1914, and Satan is preparing for the great battle with Jesus, which could occur any day now.

Additional millions of fundamentalist Christians are convinced that the "end" will first bring the rapture (the "great snatch") when God will take up the good people to reign with him. Then, after seven years of earthquake, famine and other tragedies, the battle of Armageddon will destroy multitudes of lives. A millennium of peace will follow, and finally, sometime, the conclusive total victory over Satan.

Generally, the millenarianists base their theories on a complexity of highly unconventional interpretations of apocalyptic passages in the books of Daniel, Ezekiel and Revelation, and, in the case of the rapture, First Thessalonians 4 and 5.

A common scenario lists three conditions before all this can happen. A new Jewish state will be founded (already fulfilled). Jews will repossess the old city of Jerusalem (also supposedly accomplished in the 1967 Arab-Israeli war). And the Jewish temple will be rebuilt on its ancient site.

SEE DIETZEN, PAGE 14

House approves gold medal for pope

WASHINGTON (CNS) — The House on May 23 voted 416-1 to award the Congressional Gold Medal to Pope John Paul II.

In statements on the House floor supporting the bill, several members of Congress cited the pope's battle against communism, his worldwide travels and ecumenical outreach as factors in the action.

"He is truly a world leader and an unparalleled champion of those who cannot speak for themselves: the poor, the unborn, those condemned to death and those whose basic rights as children of God are trampled upon by oppressive regimes," said Rep. Christopher Smith, R-N.J.

The Senate has yet to vote on its bill, which was introduced in April with 66 co-sponsors. The Senate Banking Committee was scheduled to take up the measure May 24.

The Congressional Gold Medal is the highest civilian honor Congress can bestow. Earlier this year, Congress approved and President Clinton signed into law a bill granting the medal to New York Cardinal John J. O'Connor. He was given a copy of the legislation at an informal ceremony shortly before his May 3 death. It typically takes about six months to design and cast the medals.

Mother Teresa also received the Congressional Gold Medal in 1997.

Rep. James A. Leach, R-Iowa, chairman of the house Banking and Financial Services Committee, cited the pope's dedication to "the freedom and integrity if every individual human being, his use of moral authority to hasten the fall of totalitarian regimes, his effort to reconcile Christendom and reach out with respect to people of all faiths, and most of all, his commitment to the teachings of Jesus Christ(as) a model of grace to all peoples of the world."

Leach said that although the pope has "begun to show the burdens of age" he has not lost the vigor that leads him to participate in lengthy liturgical celebrations and continue his global travels.

"In times singularly bereft of leaders of high moral stature, John Paul II stands out, a pontiff whose presence fills the great basilica of St. Peter and radiates out beyond," Leach said.

Rep. John LaFalce, D-N.Y., noted that when the pope speaks, people all over the world listen.

The single no vote by Rep. Ron Paul, R-Texas, has become typical. Paul has said he opposes spending the $30,000 it takes to commission and create the gold medal, no matter who the recipient. When the House voted on Cardinal O'Connor's gold medal, Paul instead invited his colleagues to each match his offer of a $100 personal donation to cover the cost. ▼

SPLUNGE 2000 registrations underway

CHARLOTTE — Registrations are being accepted for the Diocese of Charlotte Office for Youth Ministry's annual inner-city service project for youth ages 15 and up, which will take place in Charlotte July 21-26. SPLUNGE — Special People Living Uniquely Growthful Nourishing Experiences — offers spiritual reflection and learning opportunities to enhance the experience of service to the poor, hungry and those with special needs. The host site and lodging will be at St. Luke Church in Charlotte. For more details and to register, contact your parish youth minister or the diocesan Office for Youth Ministry, (704) 370-3243.

Dietzen, from page 13

These conditions explain much of the fundamentalist opposition to such associations as the United Nations and the European Union, and the militant alliance of Christian evangelical bodies with Israel in the Middle East peace initiatives, all of which are thought to delay the final battle with Satan and thus the final coming of Christ.

The third condition is particularly frightening. Previous Jewish temples occupied the site on which now stands the Dome of the Rock, the Mosque of Omar, an impressive structure which dominates the skyline of old Jerusalem. It has been a sacred place for Muslims for more than 1,300 years and is the second most hallowed shrine of the world of Islam.

Obviously, the temple could not be rebuilt without destruction of this holy place, which from any perspective today would be cataclysmic for world peace. The fundamentalist groups we're speaking of, however, believe it can, in fact must, happen to fulfill the plan of God.

Catholics and most other mainstream Christians believe, as we say in the acclamation at Mass, that Christ will come again. But we don't get heated up about when, and we don't organize our entire spiritual life around supposedly frightening implications of that event.

As bizarre as they may appear to most of us, these ideas persist for a significant part of Christianity. Of the countless books on the topic, "The Late Great Planet Earth," by Hal Lindsey, former activist of the Campus Crusade for Christ, is an unofficial "bible" of the movement. Published in 1970, tens of millions of copies have been purchased, and it's still selling.

Classifieds

Classified ads bring results! Over 110,000 readers! Over 43,000 homes!
Rates: $.50/word per issue ($10 minimum per issue)
Deadline: 12 noon Wednesday, 9 days before publication date
How to order: Ads may be faxed to (704) 370-3382 or mailed to:
Cindi Feerick, The Catholic News & Herald, 1123 S. Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203.
Payment: Ads may be pre-paid or billed. For information, call (704) 370-3332.

EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES

Assistant Secretary: Asheville Catholic School. Attendance/First Aid Office. M-F, full time. CPR and First Aid certification required. Call (828)252-7896 for information. EOE.

Computer Teacher: K-8, for 2000-2001 at St. Leo Catholic School, 333 Springdale, Winston-Salem, NC 27104. NC certification required (or in process). Call (336) 748-8252 for application and information. Submit resume to Georgette Schraeder, principal.

Cosmetologists/Barbers: Full-time and part-time. Charlotte area upscale salon seeking warm-hearted, skilled stylists and barbers. Convenient south Charlotte location. $12 per hour + tips. Please call (704) 341-4260.

Custodian, Full-time: Begin work June 1, 2000. Asheville Catholic School. Call Randy Penland, Maintenance Supervisor at (828)252-7896. EOE.

Director: Retreat Center, rural southwest Virginia. Ecumenical spirit, experience in retreat ministry, administration. Bachelor's or master's. Catholic in good standing. Living on site. Richmond Diocese, full-time. Application, job description: (540)623-5285, e-mail jomart@naxs.com or Search Committee, 19188 Jonesboro Road, Abingdon, VA, 24211. Applications June 27, postion opens August 15th.

Director of Adult Catholic Enrichment/Order of Christian Initiation: Holy Family Catholic Church of Marietta seeks a full-time salaried Director for Adult Catholic Enrichment (ACE) and the Order of Christian Initiation (OCI) programs. Applicants should have leadership experience in ACE/OCI areas and/or have religious education degreed background suitable to develop high quality programs and volunteer assistance in the community. Must be practicing Catholic. If interested, please submit resume and cover letter to Theresa Johnson, Director of Religious Education at Holy Family Catholic Church, 3401 Lower Roswell Rd., Marietta, GA 30068. Fax (770) 578-0475. Inquire at (770) 973-7400, ext. 21 with questions.

Director of Religious Education: Holy Family Catholic Church in Marietta seeks a full-time salaried Director for its Religious Education programs. Practical leadership experience in the continuing development of a full range of primary, secondary, young adult and adult based Religious Education programs is essential. The ability to encourage a spirit of volunteerism to meet broad community needs is a must. Should be competent in managing all educational levels and administrative staff functions. Must have bachelors and/or advanced degree in education and/or religious training. Must be practicing Catholic. Holy Family's Religious Education programs serve a multi-cultural community. Fluency in Spanish or equivalent background experience would be a useful asset. If interested, please submit resume and cover letter to Theresa Johnson, Director of Religious Education, Holy Family Catholic Church, 3401 Lower Roswell Rd., Marietta, GA 30068. Fax (770) 578-0475. Inquire at (770)973-7400, ext. 21 with questions.

Elementary and Middle School Positions: Immaculate Heart of Mary School has openings for the following positions for the 2000-2001 school year: Assistant Principal/Teacher (Master's in Administration, practicing Catholic): Middle School teachers of Social Studies, Language Arts, Science and Math; Grades 4 and 5 teachers. Interested certified teachers may contact Margene Wilkins, principal, 605 Barbee Avenue, High Point, NC 27262; or call (336)887-2613; or fax (336)884-1849.

Guidance Counselor: Part-time. Asheville Catholic School. Must be NC certified. Call (828)252-7896 for information. EOE.

Music Ministry Director: St. Aloysius Catholic Church is seeking a Director of Music Ministry for a well-established music program. Send resume and references to: Search Committee, St. Aloysius Catholic Church, 921 Second St. NE, Hickory, NC 28601.

Music Ministry Director: Immaculate Conception Catholic Church is seeking an organist/music director. Must be familiar with Catholic liturgy. Salary negotiable. Benefits available. Send resume and references to Immaculate Conception Church, 208 - 7 Ave. West, Hendersonville, NC 28791-3602.

Teacher: Asheville Catholic School seeks dynamic grade 5 teacher. Must hold or be eligible for NC license; teach religion and all academic subjects. Call (828) 252-7896. EOE.

Teacher and Librarian: Our Lady of Mercy has the following positions available: 8th grade homeroom to teach Language Arts, Social Studies, and Religion (if Catholic); Librarian for K-8th. Please call (910)722-7204.

Teachers, Campus Minister, Library/Media Director: Charlotte Catholic High School has the following full-time teaching positions open for the 2000-2001 school year: Math, Chemistry, English, Religion, Social Studies, Spanish, and Drama. Must have NC Teaching Certification. Also, full-time Library/Media Director and part-time Campus Minister are needed. Call (704)543-1127.

Teachers: Sacred Heart School (PreK-8) in Salisbury has the following teacher openings beginning in August: Computer, Music, PE, Spanish, 3rd Grade, 5th Grade, and Middle School Language Arts. NC certification required. Call Kathleen Miller at (704)633-2841.

Youth Minister: Our Lady of Grace Church in Greensboro, NC is seeking a full-time Youth Minister to coordinate all youth activities and programs. Applicants should have a degree in Religious Education or related field and three years' experience in Youth Ministry. Salary commensurate with experience and education. Send resume to Tom Johnson, Our Lady of Grace Church, 2205 West Market St., Greensboro, NC 27403.

Youth/Young Adult Ministry Director: A tri-parish (including one Hispanic) Catholic community of 1800 families in a university setting is seeking a full-time Director of Youth and Young Adult Ministry to implement comprehensive youth ministry as described in "Renewing the Vision." Candidate should have prior ministry experience, and be able to work collaboratively with staff and members of parish community. Background in Theology, Christian Formation, and/or certification in youth ministry desired. Please contact Rev. Bernard Campbell, CSP, P.O. Box 112, Clemson, SC 29633 or (864)654-1757.

FOR SALE

Queen Mattress Set: New, in plastic. Full warrantee. Retail $400; sell for $195. Call (704)556-9674.

FOR RENT

Beach Condo: 3 Bedroom, Myrtle Beach: July 8, August 12, August 19, and August 26. Also Sept. and October. (336)924-2842.

FOR RENT

Home Care: In-home care for your loved one. Thorough background checks on all caregivers. Serving Henderson, Transylvania, Polk counties. COMPASSIONATE COMPANIONS, INC., (828)696-0946.

Raleigh Diocese receives, disperses almost $2 million in aid

By JOHN STRANGE
NC Catholic

RALEIGH, N.C. (CNS) — After Hurricane Floyd faded into the northern Atlantic last fall, Russ Elmayan and Kathleen Walsh of the Raleigh Diocese were faced with a task that would make most people break out in a cold sweat.

Almost $2 million in disaster relief funds had poured into the diocese from all corners of the country.

The diocese and its Catholic Social Ministries office had to find a way to wisely and responsibly spend the $1,965,470 that parishes and individuals in the state and around the country, other dioceses, foundations, religious orders, and Catholic Charities USA had entrusted to them.

"It's a huge ethical responsibility," said Elmayan, chancellor of the Raleigh Diocese. "To some extent it was uncharted territory for us. We had to think on our feet."

By the beginning of May, the diocese had already dispersed just under $1.1 million in disaster relief and had committed the balance to other disaster relief initiatives.

"We generally know where it's going to be spent," Elmayan told the NC Catholic, Raleigh's diocesan newspaper.

What helped was a set of operating principles that he drew up and the bishop and his staff approved. The document basically set up a protocol for distributing disaster relief.

For example, the document sets forth that the diocese would "seek to provide disaster relief aid that government and other secular nonprofit agencies do not or cannot provide." Thus, funds would be used primarily to "address unmet needs, both immediately and over the longer haul."

At the same time, the document states, "we will err on the side of helping people now, as needs are identified, rather than purposefully saving resources until later. We will err on the side of being expeditious and liberal rather than conservative in how funds are disbursed for those in need."

Walsh, director of the Catholic Social Ministries office, said the operating principles gave them some guidelines to hold onto, especially in the early days of the relief efforts.

"The money came in quickly. And the needs came in quickly," she said. "It was our job to analyze whether the immediate needs and our responsibility for those needs were greater than our responsibility to be in it for the long haul. Because the church must always be there."

Even though the needs are initially overwhelming, she said, "we know from practical experience that the needs will be greater over a long time.... We want to help where we can, and where no one else is."

Elmayan said the diocese distributed much of the $1,084,000 in disaster relief through three major categories. Some $365,000 was sent to Hurricane Floyd Rebuilding Ministries, sponsored by Immaculate Conception in Durham.

In the second category, $471,000 was dispersed in grants to other parishes, deaneries and interfaith groups.

Walsh said that initially much of that money was spent on food and temporary shelter for hurricane victims. "It moved into some rebuilding efforts. And we've had some special grants, such as restoring contaminated wells in Tarboro," she told NC Catholic.

Most of the balance, Elmayan said, went to support disaster relief at the regional sites for Catholic Social Ministries.

Walsh said the distributions are a reflection of the diocese's operating principles, which state that parishes, local social ministries offices, and interfaith relief efforts are where most of the "action" will take place.

"There have been multiple examples of how parishes can reach out to other parishes," she said. "And we've learned from that. When parishes prepare for disasters now, it shouldn't be 'What if it hits us?' Now it should be, 'What if it hits anywhere in the diocese? How will we be prepared?'"

The diocese has also committed some $881,000 to another three or four major categories, Elmayan said. For example, $400,000 will be used for four separate community development projects.

Elmayan said the balance has been set aside for Catholic Social Ministries local offices to use in their work on unmet needs committees of the 26 counties most affected by the hurricane, disaster relief staff in three deaneries, and parish grants.

Walsh stressed that despite the fact that the disaster relief funds have been dispersed, the disaster relief work continues for the diocese and Catholic Social Ministries.

"We'll keep on developing new resources and working with what we have," she said. "And that's a message of hope. We don't necessarily know where the money for next December's family is going to come from, but we'll be around. We know we're in this for the long haul." ▼

N.C. dioceses sponsor leadership experience

SMITHFIELD, N.C. — The Catholic Dioceses of Charlotte and Raleigh co-sponsor "Faithful Servant: A Christ-Centered Leadership Experience" June 18-23 at the Short Journey Center in Smithfield. The goal of the program is to actualize the leadership potential of participants while heightening awareness of the dynamics and responsibilities of leadership roles in high school, parishes, youth ministry and beyond. It is designed for youth ages 15 and up. For further information and registration details, call the Diocese of Charlotte Office for Youth Ministry, (704) 370-3243.

Looking for the best CD rates?

Earn interest 1% higher than the national bank average with CDs from Salomon Smith Barney.*

Our CDs offer some of the highest rates available. In fact, a national survey of bank CD rates show our CDs average a whole percentage point higher. Plus, with a broad range of maturities, you can easily arrange for a steady stream of income to fit your needs.

- FDIC-insured up to $100,000 per depositor, per institution
- Issued by more than 240 banks nationwide
- A flexible investment vehicle to reach your fixed-income goals
- We provide a secondary market on all CDs we sell

Term	Annual Percentage Yield
1 year	7.0%
5 year	7.6%
7 year	8.0%

Call Michael Grieco, Financial Consultant
at (704) 571-3362 for more information.
6101 Carnegie Boulevard, 2nd Floor
Charlotte, NC 28209

SALOMON SMITH BARNEY
SEE HOW WE EARN IT.SM

A member of citigroup

*The annual percentage yields (APYs) are effective as of 0/00/00 and are subject to availability and changes. APY interest can not remain on deposit in the same CD; interest will be paid semi-annually, monthly or at maturity. FDIC insurance covers a maximum amount of $100,000 per deposit or per institution (principal and interest combined) in each insurable capacity. Minimum deposit $1,000. Although we are not required to do so, we endeavor to provide a secondary market so that CD holders can sell their CDs prior to maturity. The resale price in such a transaction may be less than the principal amount invested. National bank average determined by Bank Rate Monitor, a service mark of Bank Rate Monitor.
Salomon Smith Barney and "SEE HOW WE EARN IT." are service marks of Salomon Smith Barney Inc.
©2000 Salomon Smith Barney Inc. Member SIPC

CATHOLIC NURSES WANTED!
The National Association of Catholic Nurses-USA is searching for Catholic nurses and allied health care workers to join with us in providing our patients with quality care with a Catholic perspective. Dues are just $25.00 per year for nurses, $20.00 for allied healthcare workers and $10.00 for students.

For further information, please write to NACN-USA, P.O. Box 3016, Lisle, IL 60532. E-mail: jsalihar@yahoo.com. Visit our Web site at www.smmp.com/NACN-USA. A membership form can be downloaded from the site.

N A C N U.S.A.

National Association of Catholic Nurses

For more information, please write:
Fr. Ed McDevitt, C.O. or Fr. Joe Pearce, C.O.
The Oratory
P.O. Box 11586
Rock Hill, SC 29731-1586

Join us in serving God as priest or brother.

Our Oratorian Congregation was founded in Rome by St. Philip Neri in 1575. Known as "The Apostle of Joy," St. Phillip lived this virtue and brought people of all ages and backgrounds to the Church.

As a group of priests and lay men, we live a community life without vows and serve the people of God in various ministries:

- Parishes
- Retreat Work
- Nursing
- Campus Ministry
- Youth Summer Camp
- Hospital Chaplaincy

Like our ministries, our members are unique and come from across the United States and from Brazil.

New Priest Assignments

Bishop William G. Curlin announces the following pastoral assignments:

Effective July 6, 2000:

Rev. John Allen	From: Administrator, Saint Michael, Gastonia To: Pastor, Saint Michael, Gastonia
Rev. Msgr. Richard Allen	From:Pastor, Saint Ann, Charlotte To: Retirement at his request.
Rev. Joseph Ayathupadam	From: Administrator, Holy Spirit, Denver To: Pastor, Holy Spirit, Denver
Rev. Herbert Burke	From: Parochial Vicar, Saint Matthew, Charlotte To: Parochial Vicar, Saint Leo, Winston-Salem
Very Rev. Francis Cintula, VF	From: Pastor, Saint John, North Wilkesboro Saint Stephen, Elkin To: Retirement at his request
Very Rev. Thomas Clements, VF	From: Pastor, Sacred Heart, Salisbury To: Retirement at his request
Rev. James Collins	From: Administrator, Saint Joseph, Newton To: Pastor, Saint Joseph, Newton
Rev. Francis Connolly	From: Pastor, Saint Pius X, Greensboro To: Retirement at his request
Rev. Christopher Davis	From: Parochial Vicar, Saint Lawrence, Asheville To: Administrator, Holy Infant, Reidsville, Sacramental Minister, Saint Joseph, Eden
Rev. Andrew Draper, T.O.R.	From: Administrator, Saint Francis, Mocksville To: Pastor, Saint Francis, Mocksville
Rev. Thomas Field, Glenmary	From: Pastor, Saint Joseph, Bryson City Our Lady of Guadalupe, Cherokee To: Retirement at his request
Rev. John Hanic	From: Parochial Vicar, Saint Ann, Charlotte To: Parochial Vicar, Saint Gabriel, Charlotte
Rev. Conrad Hoover	From: Pastor, Saint Elizabeth, Boone Church of the Epiphany, Blowing Rock To: Pastor, Saint Ann, Charlotte
Very Rev. Peter Jugis, JV	From: In residence at Saint Mark, Huntersville To: In residence at the Bishop's house
Rev. Michael Kottar	From: Parochial Vicar, Saint Matthew, Charlotte To: Administrator, Saint John, North Wilkesboro Saint Stephen, Elkin
Rev. Mark Lawlor	From: Administrator, Saint Francis, Jefferson Saint Frances of Rome, Sparta To: Pastor, Saint Francis, Jefferson Saint Frances of Rome, Sparta
Rev. Anthony Marcaccio	From: Priest Secretary to Bishop Curlin To: Pastor, Saint Pius X, Greensboro
Rev. John Putnam	From: Administrator, Holy Infant, Reidsville Sacramental Minister, Eden To: Pastor, Sacred Heart, Salisbury
Rev. John Schneider	From: Sabbatical To: Pastor, Saint Elizabeth, Boone Church of the Epiphany, Blowing Rock
Very Rev. James Solari, VF	From: Pastor, Saint Leo, Winston-Salem To: Retirement at his request
Rev. Wilbur Thomas	From: Full time Vicar for Priests To: Pastor/Rector, Basilica of Saint Lawrence, Asheville and Vicar for Priests
Very Rev. Cecil Tice, VF	From: Pastor/Rector, Basilica of Saint Lawrence, Asheville To: Pastor, Saint Leo, Winston-Salem
Rev. John Tuller	From: Administrator, Our Lady of the Angels, Marion To: Retirement at his request
Rev. Ray Williams	From: Parochial Vicar, Saint Leo, Winston-Salem To: Administrator, Saint Joseph, Bryson City Our Lady of Guadalupe, Cherokee

Come & bring your neighbors to an

Old Fashion Tent Revival!

"Revival of the Spirit 2000:
From Everlasting to Everlasting, God is still God"

with Rev. Jim Goode, O.F.M., Revivalist

Friday, June 23rd through Sunday, June 25th

Corner of Statesville Avenue and Oaklawn Avenue, Charlotte

FEATURING

Performances by
The Perpetual Hope Gospel Choir
Our Lady of Consolation Catholic Church, Charlotte, NC
Pinn Memorial Baptist Church Gospel Choir
Philadelphia, PA

SCHEDULE

Friday, June 23rd
7:00 pm
Preaching by Fr. Jim Goode, O.F.M.
Music by The Perpetual Hope Gospel Choir

Saturday, June 24th
10:00 am - 5:00 pm
Special events all day!
African Storyteller, Kabaka Drummers and Dancers
Special for Youth: Gospel Rapper
Plus... vendors with food, clothing, books, artifacts and more!

5:00 p.m.
Concert by Pinn Memorial Baptist Church Gospel Choir

7:00 p.m.
Preaching by Fr. Jim Goode, O.F.M.
Music by Pinn Memorial Baptist Church Gospel Choir

Sunday, June 25th
11:00 a.m.
Liturgy and Closing Mass with Fr. Jim Goode, O.F.M.
Music by the combined Gospel choirs

For information, call Rev. Mr. Curtiss Todd
(704) 370-3339

For accomodations, mention "Tent Revival" for special group rates at:
McDonald's Travel Lodge and Suites: (704) 887-2900 OR Four Points Sheraton Hotel (uptown): (704) 372-7550

Sponsored by the African American Affairs Ministry, Diocese of Charlotte

FC 12
C363c

|||||||

Record gift of $20 million goes to Catholic women's college

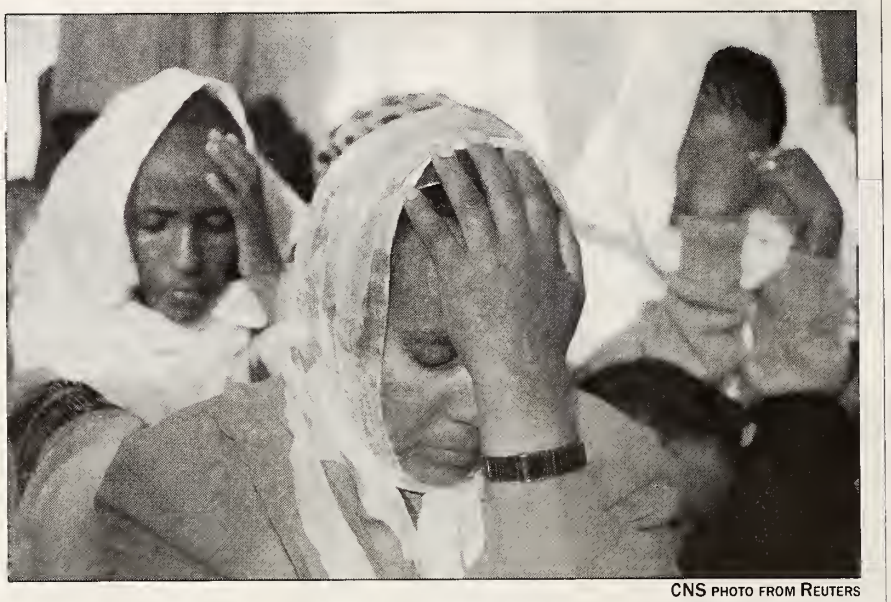
ST. PAUL, Minn. (CNS) — The Sisters of St. Joseph of Carondelet, who founded the College of St. Catherine nearly a century ago, presented the college with an unrestricted gift of $20 million June 2. Believed to be the largest unrestricted contribution ever made to a Catholic women's college, the $20 million is intended to support the college's vision "to be the world's pre-eminent Catholic college educating women to lead and influence." The United States and Canada have 74 women's colleges, according to the Women's College Coalition in Washington; there are 150 in the world.

New Web site offers guidance on Catholic books

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (CNS) — The founder of Domino's Pizza and the founder of Single Catholics Online have joined in a new Internet company that will evaluate, recommend and sell Catholic books judged faithful to the teaching authority of the church. The nonprofit company, called Tiber River, is based in Ann Arbor and a division of Ave Maria Communications. Tiber River and Ave Maria were founded by Thomas S. Monaghan, the former Domino's Pizza owner who also founded Legatus International, an organization of Catholic business leaders. Monaghan is chairman of Tiber River. President of the new company is Anthony Buono, who heads Single Catholics Online and formerly was general manager of Scepter Publishers in Princeton, N.J.

Indonesian Catholic official condemns church bombings

MEDAN, Indonesia (CNS) — A Catholic Church leader in North Sumatra, western Indonesia, strongly condemned bomb attacks on churches and asked Catholics to stay calm and keep alert. Capuchin Father Paulinus Simbolon, vicar general of Medan Archdiocese, said the local Catholic Church "strongly condemned all terrors, including the recent bomb terror and threats" that disturb religious practice, reported UCA News, an Asian church news agency based in Thailand. A homemade bomb blast rocked the Indonesian Protestant Christian Church May 28 at the start of Sunday liturgical service around 8:30 a.m. Forty-seven churchgoers were injured.



CNS PHOTO FROM REUTERS

Praying for peace

Catholic, Protestant and Orthodox Christian women pray for peace in Eritrea's capital of Asmara. The special prayer service coincided with peace talks taking place in Algiers between Ethiopia and Eritrea. The countries have been locked in a border war for at least two years.

Diocese in Sierra Leone traces children lost during war

KENEMA, Sierra Leone (CNS) — The Diocese of Kenema in eastern Sierra Leone has begun tracing lost children. The sporadic and surprising attacks on villages by rebels frequently causes parents and children to be separated while fleeing for their lives. "We thought it necessary to trace those children and reunite them with their families," said Father Ambrose Turay, coordinator of the Kenema diocesan development office. He said more than 1,400 children had been traced, and "most of them had resorted to begging to get their living," he said. He added that 29 children have already been reunited with their families.

Southern African bishops welcome bill to curb gun use

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (CNS) — The Southern African Catholic Bishops' Conference welcomed a new bill that aims to curb gun use and that would allow tough sentences for the unlicensed possession of firearms and ammunition. South Africa's Firearms Control Bill would increase the maximum sentence for the illegal possession of firearms from five to 15 years. A sentence of 25 years could be imposed for the possession of prohibited firearms, such as automatic weapons. "Many of the points we made in our submissions to parliament have been incorporated into the bill," said Father Peter-John Pearson, who heads the bishops' parliamentary liaison office.

Rapid growth seen in religious order associates

WASHINGTON (CNS) — There are now more than 25,000 lay associates of U.S. Catholic religious orders, says a new study by the Center for Applied Research in the Apostolate. The study found some 11,000 more associates than a similar study five years earlier. Respondents reported nearly 2,700 new associates currently in formation. Most formation programs are about one year. Those figures indicated that the American Catholics seeking to connect with the spirituality, life, prayer and mission of religious institutes form a significant and rapidly growing new presence in the U.S. church.

Vatican to publish document on world's prisons

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — Shortly before Pope John Paul II visits a Rome prison in July, the Vatican will publish a document examining the situation and needs of prisoners around the world. Joaquin Navarro-Valls, Vatican spokesman, said the document being prepared by the Holy Year coordinating committee should be released shortly before the July 9 celebration of the Jubilee for Prisoners. Navarro-Valls said the new document "will confront the theme of the condition of prisons around the world from the human, social and pastoral points of view, but above all it will provide some ideas about facing the problems and not only through the use of clemency."

Mexican cardinal calls for end to 'xenophobic attitudes' in U.S.

MEXICO CITY (CNS) — Cardinal Norberto Rivera Carrera of Mexico City asked an end to "xenophobic attitudes" in the United States that have contributed to recent violence and deaths for Mexicans who have tried to cross the border illegally. Speaking to reporters following a Mass May 28, the cardinal was especially critical of ranchers in southern Arizona who have organized vigilante groups to capture undocumented workers. "A fundamental human right is the right to work ... and I believe that the laws of countries and concrete attitudes must leave behind those xenophobic feelings and attitudes," he said.

The Catholic NEWS & HERALD

June 9, 2000
Volume 9 • Number 38
Publisher: Most Reverend William G. Curlin
Editor: Joann S. Keane
Associate Editor: Jimmy Rostar
Staff Writer: Alesha M. Price
Production Associate: Julie Radcliffe
Advertising Representative: Cindi Feerick
Secretary: Jane Glodowski
1123 South Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203
Mail: P.O. Box 37267, Charlotte, NC 28237
Phone: (704) 370-3333 FAX: (704) 370-3382
E-mail: catholicnews@charlottediocese.org

The Catholic News & Herald, USPC 007-393, is published by the Roman Catholic Diocese of Charlotte, 1123 South Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203, 44 times a year, weekly except for Christmas week and Easter week and every two weeks during June, July and August for $15 per year for enrollees in parishes of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Charlotte and $18 per year for all other subscribers. Second-class postage paid at Charlotte NC and other cities. POSTMASTER: Send address corrections to The Catholic News & Herald, P.O. Box 37267, Charlotte, NC 28237.

Episcopal calendar

Bishop William G. Curlin will take part in the following events:

June 12 — 15
Clergy Retreat
Diocese of Pittsburgh, Pa.

June 17 — 11 a.m.
Transitional Diaconate Ordination
St. Vincent de Paul, Charlotte

June 18 — 5:30 p.m.
Confirmation
St. Eugene, Asheville

June 19 - 23
Convocation of Priests
Asheville

June 25 — 3 p.m.
Corpus Christi
Mass and Procession
Maryfield Nursing Home, High Point

Diocesan planner

June

11 CHARLOTTE — St. Patrick Cathedral, 1621 Dilworth Rd. East, is having a charismatic Mass at 4 p.m. with prayer teams available at 3 p.m. and a potluck dinner at 5 p.m. For more information, call Josie at (704) 527-4676.

14 GREENSBORO — There is an Alzheimer's support group meeting this morning from 10 a.m.-noon at Guilford College Methodist Church. If anyone in your family has memory loss, this group can give you the support you need to help your loved one. St. Paul the Apostle Catholic Church is working with the Methodist Church to obtain information on Alzheimer's/ dementia for those who need it. For location and other information, call Colleen Assal at (336) 294-4696.

19 MAGGIE VALLEY — Augustinian Father Terry Hyland and Charity Sister Fran Grady are leading an art retreat entitled "Recreate in Us a New Spirit, Lord." This retreat is designed for those with artistic abilities to explore their talent and spirituality with the Smoky Mountains as a backdrop. It will serve as a time to reflect, pray, create and share unique creative and spiritual expression of the Divine Artist within. For more information on the retreat being held today through June 23, call Father Hyland at the Living Waters Catholic Reflection Center, 103 Living Waters Lane, at (828) 926-3833 or e-mail: lwcrc@main.nc.us.

20 WINSTON-SALEM — There is a natural family planning session being held at St. Leo the Great Church, 335 Springdale Ave., at 7:30 p.m. For more information, call Tom and Mary Beth Young at (336) 922-0479.

21 CHARLOTTE — Jesuit Father Gene McCreesh is the facilitator of

Web site offering online Mass-buying removed

By JERRY FILTEAU
Catholic News Service

WASHINGTON (CNS) — A site on the World Wide Web that offered to help people "buy" memorial Masses anywhere in the United States was dismantled June 7 after Catholic News Service informed the owner it violates church law.

Funeral home owner Peter Savage of Binghamton, N.Y., told CNS he was only trying to provide a service for people and did not intend to make any profit on the site.

He said the site had prompted a few inquiries, but he had not actually processed any orders for Masses.

A pop-up banner ad for eMasscard.com still comes up on the computer screen if someone uses "Catholic" as a search word on the America Online search engine.

But the former site — which offered to let people buy a memorial Mass anywhere in the United States for $20 by e-mail, online order form or toll-free telephone — has been replaced with a simple message in bold type: "Please contact your local church."

Before reaching Savage, CNS spoke with several church officials and a canon lawyer who found the original site's use of phrases like "buy a Mass" and "pay for the Mass" in violation of church law.

Church law makes clear that any offering made for a Mass intention must be treated strictly as an offering, not a payment or purchase. Many priests today refuse such offerings or apply them to charitable or apostolic works.

Franciscan Father Arthur Espelage, executive coordinator of the Canon Law Society of America, said he was "surprised and aghast that someone is selling Masses."

Upon viewing the original Web site, he said it clearly violated Canon 947 of the Code of Canon Law, which says, "Any appearance of trafficking or commerce is to be entirely excluded from Mass offerings."

Church law makes clear that any offering made for a Mass intention must be treated strictly as an offering, not a payment or purchase. Many priests today refuse such offerings or apply them to charitable or apostolic works.

Canon law permits priests to receive such offerings but devotes 14 canons to the topic, spelling out strict limits and obligations to prevent any abuse.

In a telephone interview late June 7, Savage said he first became aware of legal and theological problems posed by his site a short time earlier when he opened an e-mail from CNS asking him to comment on those issues.

He said he realized immediately that the site should be taken down. By the next morning it was gone. ▼

Youth promote parish pride, plan for Rome

By DIANNE RIGGS
Correspondent

ASHEVILLE — Young people from St. Eugene Church heading for World Youth Day in Rome this summer have come up with a unique way to raise funds for the trip. They are selling plastic license plates bearing the likeness of St. Eugene, according to Leksa and Katyn Chmielewski, two sisters who are among 10 from the church who plan to attend.

The license plates are for the front of a vehicle and will have a gray background with magenta writing and a picture of the church as it is going to look when the current building program is finished, said Katyn.

"We're glad we can inspire some pride in our church while we help ourselves go to Rome," said Leksa.

The St. Eugene youth are among 50 youth and adults from across the western half of North Carolina who plan to travel to Rome for World Youth Day, a part of the year long Jubilee 2000 celebration. The diocesan group will leave Aug. 11 and return on Aug. 23.

"We will get to see the Pope and also meet other Catholic youth from around the world," said Leksa.

"I think it is a neat idea to go on pilgrimage," said Kaytn. "A lot of people don't get that chance."

"It is exciting when youth get to participate in the Jubilee Year," said St. Eugene's pastor, Father Frank Cancro. "It is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity." He expects that for some it will be their first time to visit Europe, to get a sense of a different country and a different culture. Rome expects World Youth Day to draw some 800,000 young people, he said.

Father Cancro hopes to join the St. Eugene youth at some point in the trip and spend time in Assisi, helping them see some of the sights in the area. ▼

Newspaper takes honors in national CPA competition

By JOANN S. KEANE
Editor

BALTIMORE — The Catholic News & Herald was recognized for excellence during the 2000 Catholic Press Association newspaper awards competition held May 26.

Julie Radcliffe, production associate, took top honors nationally in the category of best single ad in the black and white category, for an ad designed for Catholic Social Service's marriage preparation program. Radcliffe's work was judged in a category that included all Catholic newspapers, both diocesan, and publications with national circulation.

Judges described her work as, "comprehensive but not cluttered and praised her selection of graphics."

Staff Writer Alesha Price received an honorable mention for a personality profile of Pauline Leeper, a Belmont woman, who tirelessly worked to bridge race relations in North Carolina. In her story, Price captured the essence of this Rosa Parks-of-a-woman noted for her efforts in civil rights issues.

The Catholic News Herald, which serves 46 counties in western North Carolina has a circulation exceeding 45,000. The diocesan newspaper has collected more than a dozen CPA awards since establishment of the publication in 1990.

CPA membership includes nearly 200 diocesan newspapers in the United States and Canada with a combined circulation of nearly 30 million. ▼

Contact Editor Joann Keane by calling (704) 370-3336 or e-mail jskeane@charlottediocese.org.

"Spiritual Direction for Gays and Lesbians" at St. Peter Church, 507 S. Tryon St., at 7 p.m. tonight. For more information, call the church office at (704) 332-5342.

25 SALISBURY — Sacred Heart Church, 128 N. Fulton St., is celebrating the jubilee year at the 9 a.m., 10:30 a.m. and noon Masses today with a blessing of the entrance doors, inspirational music and a gospel reading. For more information, call the church office at (704) 633-0591.

Upcoming

CHARLOTTE — UNC Charlotte's Office of International Programs is looking for volunteers to host visitors from Japan as they take part in an intensive study program. Volunteers are needed to host the following students for these upcoming dates: Japanese Bankers during the weekend of July 14-16 and Japanese English Teachers from Aug 4-19. If you have an interest in making international friends and would like to help the guests learn more about American culture and lifestyle, call Kathy Ballard, home stay coordinator, at (704) 663-5861 or Mark Beam at (704) 547-2597.

MAGGIE VALLEY — Rev. Mr. Keith Kolodziej and the Diocese of Charlotte Renewal Team are sponsoring a weekend retreat, entitled "You Will Receive Power," July 7-9 at Living Waters Catholic Reflection Center, 103 Living Waters Lane. The goal and purpose of the weekend is to renew God's people by studying sacred scripture, sacraments and the teaching of the church with great emphasis on personal prayer and worship devoted to the Holy Spirit and the metanoia and spiritual fruits which flow from it. Space is limited, so for registration and further details, contact Augustinian Father Terry Hyland at (828) 926-3833 or e-mail: lwcrc@main.nc.us.

ROCK HILL, S.C — The Oratory Religion Camp will hold two separate one-week sessions at Camp York in Kings Mountain State Park during the weeks of July 9-15 and July 16-22. Boys and girls under 12, entering grades 2-6 in Sept., can apply for consideration. Those wishing to volunteer as counselors can write for a staff application. For more information and application, write to: The Oratory Religion Camp, P.O. Box 11586, Rock Hill, S.C. 29731-1586 or call (803) 327-2097.

Ongoing

ASHEVILLE — The Basilica of St. Lawrence, 97 Haywood St., one of three jubilee year pilgrimage churches in the Diocese of Charlotte, hosts free tours of the historic church after each weekend Mass. The Masses are celebrated every Sat. at 5 p.m., and on Sun. at 9 a.m., noon and 5 p.m. For more information on scheduling guided tours, call Shirley Gregory at (828) 274-4592.

Why we're late...

Due to computer problems, this issue of The Catholic News & Herald was published several days behind schedule. We apologize to our readers for the delay.

BRYSON CITY — Beginning in July, the regular schedule for the St. Joseph Church thrift shop will resume every Wednesday, Thursday and Friday from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. and Saturday from 10 a.m.-2 p.m. For the month of June, the schedule is as follows: Wednesday, Friday and Saturday from 10 a.m.-1 p.m. and Thursday from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. For more information, call the church office, located at 316 Main St., at (828) 488-2266.

Please submit notices of events for the Diocesan Planner at least 10 days prior to publication date.

Friends and family say farewell to CCHS principal

By ALESHA M. PRICE
Staff Writer

CHARLOTTE — Alumni, family and friends gathered on June 4 to offer their best wishes to a petite powerhouse of a principal.

Mercy Sister Paulette Williams, who has spent 27 years with Charlotte Catholic High School, as a teacher and as principal for the past 20 years, has been appointed as the director of Marian Center, a skilled care facility for the Sisters of Mercy in Belmont.

The class of 2000 is Sister Paulette's last class as she steps down from her position as principal of CCHS to begin a new chapter in her life.

At a farewell reception in the school that Sister Paulette helped to build, the Parent Teacher Organization, Alumni Association, Athletic Organization and the CCHS Foundation all co-sponsored the gathering and coordinated the event.

"We wanted everyone who has ever come in contact with Sister Paulette to attend the reception and feel welcome," explained Vickie Britton, president of the PTO, whose oldest daughter is a CCHS graduate and whose middle daughter is graduating this year. "We sent hundreds of invitations because we wanted to reach everyone, and we pooled our resources to have one big reception."

The co-sponsors and those in attendance also pooled their resources to present a check for $7,000 to Sister Paulette in honor of her years of dedication to the school and the students.

Photo by Alesha M. Price

Mercy Sister Paulette Williams, principal of CCHS, accepts a check for $7,000 of funds collected from the support of the Alumni Association, Parent-Teacher Association, CCHS Foundation, Athletic Association and other supporters at a co-sponsored farewell reception on June 4. David Watson, treasurer of the PTO, presented the check.

A tearful Sister Paulette thanked everyone who had been a part of her life in academia: "I will always have strong ties to CCHS, and I will miss the family, friends and members of the community that have touched my life. I am most grateful to the diocese and the Sisters of Mercy, who many years ago, saved the school from closing. I wouldn't have been able to be a part of this if not for them. I feel that this ministry has been a real blessing in my life and that I have received more than I have given."

Mike Maher, president of the Athletic Association, whose son is a rising senior, said, "She did a terrific job when she was at the school, and we will miss her involvement in all aspects of the school."

Rob Keuten, a rising senior, is slowly growing accustomed to the fact that he will spend his last high school year without Sister Paulette.

"It will be hard for us because we are used to her system," he said. "Although I think that this is good for her to make this decision at this time in her life, I will miss her unbelievably. At first, she seems tough, but after a certain amount of time, you realize that everything she does is for you."

The faculty and staff party for Sister Paulette was held on May 4, complete with skits depicting the years, jeers and tears of "Sister Smallette," as the staff and students affectionately call their principal, and a gift of a computer and printer from the faculty.

Sister Paulette taught Debbie Stathakis math and religion when she attended CCHS and helped Stathakis obtain a job as a teacher at her alma mater.

"I will miss her wit, honesty and genuine concern for others," said Stathakis, sophomore and senior Spanish teacher. "Her dreams for the CCHS family came to life because she didn't view her role as principal as a job. To her, it helped to perpetuate a living ministry of faith and education started by the Sisters of Mercy."

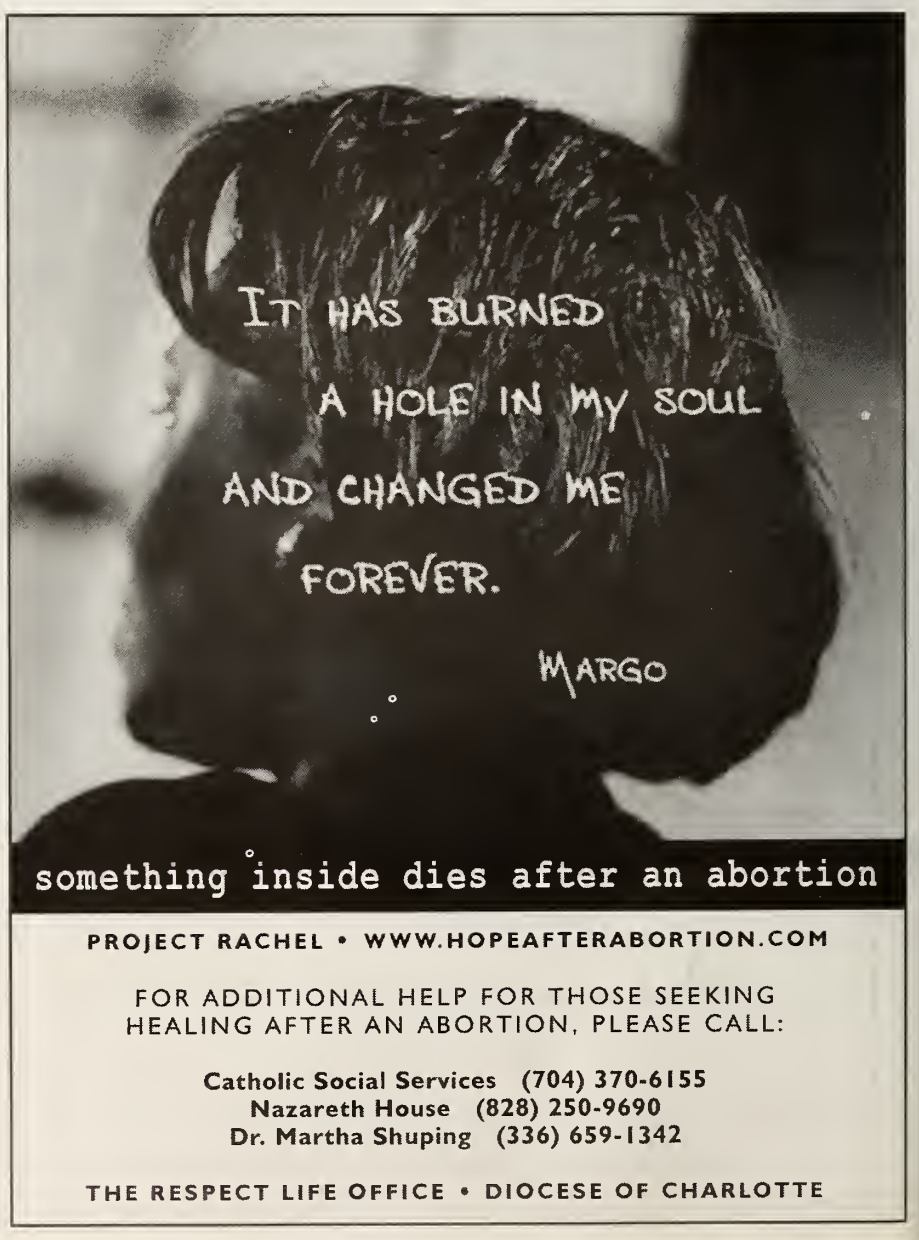
Dr. Michael Skube, superintendent of schools, commented on her skill and prowess as a principal: "Sister Paulette has contributed an enormous amount of leadership not only to CCHS but also for our entire diocese. She served 20 years as principal and seven years prior to that as a teacher and helped to build the school to the point where we are now. We certainly wish her well and we will be counting on her to help to smooth the transition."

Steve Carpenter, assistant principal, said, "She has been an amazing role model, and we are very grateful to have had her for as long as we did and are happy that she is moving on to her new ministry." ▼

Contact Staff Writer Alesha M. Price by calling (704) 370-3354 or e-mail amprice@charlottediocese.org.

Photo by Alesha M. Price

Oscar and Rina Goco, whose son Timothy is a student at CCHS, offer good luck to Mercy Sister Paulette Williams.



Catholic Social Services agency fosters family connections

By JIMMY ROSTAR
Associate Editor

CHARLOTTE — Photographs adorn the walls of Jean Davis' office: smiling babies with Santa Claus, toddlers at their first birthday parties, young men and women in formal family portraits. Years of history decorate this space — years of history and hundreds of stories.

They are stories interwoven with love: children in need of loving parents, parents who want to offer that love, and a human services agency that makes it all possible.

An adoption social worker for Catholic Social Services of the Diocese of Charlotte, Jean Davis has spent more than 18 years helping make those connections a reality for children and parents alike. She said ensuring that family bond through the years is a number-one priority in the adoption program.

"We have a lot invested in our boards around here," Davis said, referring to the families pictured on bulletin boards in the CSS offices. "We feel it's very important that there is a family continuity."

Catholic Social Services' domestic adoption program is coordinated by social workers in Asheville, Winston-Salem and Charlotte. The program works with Catholic and non-Catholic adoptive families, and with birth parents of any faith.

Catholic Social Services also operates an international adoption program which has been featured in past issues of The Catholic News & Herald.

The CSS domestic adoption program serves couples wanting children but who face infertility. Prospective parents work with the agency through an extensive process ensuring that the right matches are made.

An adoption committee meets once a month to study new applications, and members decide how to best address those inquiries. Once initial approval is given, social workers begin the comprehensive interview and home assessment process with prospective parents.

CSS' domestic adoption program aims to nurture the family relationship from the parents' point of inquiry into the child's early adulthood and beyond.

"We try not to have too many families waiting," said Davis. "We do try to have a good number of families because we have children of all different needs. ... We have to keep a balanced pool of families as best we can — from the Winston area, from the Asheville area, from the Charlotte area."

The program hosts several gatherings each year to keep connections going, including a Christmas party and a springtime picnic. In addition, the agency facilitates a support group for prospective parents going through the process.

"I think both Lisa and I were a little apprehensive about coming in and wondering whether they are going to put you under a spotlight," said Brian Perry of the interview phase. He and his wife are near the end of the home assessment with CSS. "But they have made us feel very comfortable," he said. "It's just like talking to a friend, and it feels very natural."

Photo by Jimmy Rostar

Lisa and Brian Perry, who had been trying to start a family four years before contacting CSS, said the domestic program does indeed offer that sense of family Davis speaks so highly of.

"When you are a child coming into an adoptive situation, you're not only getting a new mom and dad, but you're getting an extended family," Brian said. "You meet them every year at the picnic, or here at Catholic Social Services."

Lisa added that the support system offered by CSS has calmed nerves and renewed hope for a future with children.

"We see that there has been — and is going to be — a lot of support through the whole process," she said. "It's very personalized. And I know that we can call here at any point after we are fortunate enough to adopt."

There are volumes upon volumes of paperwork chronicling the agency's work. Each case must be documented thoroughly; many aspects in the lives of the children, birth parents and adoptive families are extensively detailed and regularly updated. Every contact between the families and the agency is recorded.

And through it all, the program keeps that open-door policy to families, both new and old, who seek counseling, information and friendly chats for years after the children's placement.

"We stop in periodically, and send notes and pictures so they can see the progress," said Kate Jones, who with husband Ray adopted two children through CSS nearly two decades ago. "This agency is really concerned about the adoptive families. There really are caring and nurturing people who work there, who are concerned for the existing family and how it changes when a child is placed with them."

"We are still here for families," Davis said with a smile. "We work with families all the time. We laugh with our families and say, 'When you hooked up with us that first time, you didn't realize it was a lifetime commitment, did you?'

"But that's the way we choose to look at it. We are here forever for families if they need us." ▼

Contact Associate Editor Jimmy Rostar by calling (704) 370-3334 or e-mail jtrostar@charlottediocese.org.

VOCATIONS

Is God calling you?

Rev. Mr. Kurt Fohn
Will be ordained to the Holy Priesthood in the Diocese of Charlotte in 2001.

"My faith journey as a Catholic began in Germany where I was born and grew up. As a textile chemist with BASF (a multinational chemical company), I converted to Catholicism two years before coming to Charlotte in 1966 with my wife and two children.

In 1989, I was ordained a Permanent Deacon, serving at St. Vincent de Paul parish in Charlotte. One year after my wife's death from cancer I retired, and in 1996, I began studying for the priesthood at Pope John XXIII National Seminary in Weston, MA.

Early in my journey I began to fall in love with the Church and to realize that Christ chose it to be his sacramental instrument. Through years of intense prayer, I have been drawn to Mary and the Eucharist, now the center of my life. I have found much joy, happiness and peace in the silent presence of the Blessed Sacrament and know that God intends our sanctification through an active living of the sacraments."

... Are you answering His call?

For more information about serving God as a priest in the Diocese of Charlotte, please contact Father John Allen,
The Office of Vocations, The Roman Catholic Diocese of Charlotte, 1123 South Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203.
(704) 370-3353 • vocations@charlottediocese.org

Parents... why order school uniforms out of state?
A+™ school approved uniforms are as close as a drive to the lake!

Uniforms DIRECT 2U
Owner Ann Hoffman, Member of St. Therese

704-895-7474 www.uniformsdirect2u.com
Uniforms Direct 2U, 18505 Statesville Road, Suite 5-A, Cornelius, NC 28031

CLOSED MONDAYS THRU LABOR DAY
Tues-Fri 9:30am-5:30pm
Sat. 9:30am-3:00pm

Carolina Catholic Bookshoppe

† Special Cards
† Religious Articles
† Unique Gift Ideas

704-342-2878

Fax (704) 334-3313
4410-F Monroe Road, Charlotte, NC

We welcome mail orders and special orders!

What are the 24 core stocks every investor should own?

Find out which U.S. companies we believe form the foundation of a successful portfolio.

Call Jeanne O. McCulloch, Financial Consultant
(336) 721-9221 or (800) 334-4401
for your free copy of
"The 24 Core Stocks Every Investor Should Own."

SALOMON SMITH BARNEY

A member of citigroup

© 1999 Salomon Smith Barney Inc. Member SIPC. Salomon Smith Barney is a service mark of Salomon Smith Barney Inc.

Nation's oldest woman religious dies at age 111

GREEN BAY, Wis. (CNS) — Imagine seeing the Catholic Church in three different centuries. Franciscan Sister Martha Pellow did. At age 111, she was the oldest religious sister in the United States. She died June 2 at her motherhouse in Bay Settlement, just north of Green Bay. She entered her community, the Sisters of St. Francis, on June 10, 1908. "Sister was well prepared for her death. She was longing eagerly to meet her God face to face," Sister Sally Ann Brickner, community superior, told The Compass, Green Bay's diocesan newspaper.

Former Treasury Secretary Simon, prominent Catholic, dies

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (CNS) — Former U.S. Secretary of the Treasury William E. Simon, a prominent investment banker, philanthropist and activist in Catholic causes, died June 3 at Cottage Hospital in Santa Barbara. He was 72. He died of complications from pulmonary fibrosis, a chronic lung disease. His funeral was to be celebrated June 8 at St. Patrick's Cathedral in New York. Simon, who proudly described himself as "an outspoken conservative," was widely regarded as a leading spokesman for free enterprise and limited government. In the 1980s he was one of the most prominent critics of the U.S. bishops' 1986 pastoral letter, "Economic Justice for All."

Montreal cardinal describes 'The Rocket' as man of passion

MONTREAL (CNS) — Montreal Cardinal Jean-Claude Turcotte described former hockey star Maurice Richard as a humble man of quiet passion who gave his all for his team, his family and his fans. The cardinal said "The Rocket," as Richard was known, kept the religious values transmitted to him in childhood all his life. "He wanted to be faithful to God. That is why his funeral is taking place in a church," the cardinal told more than 3,000 mourners, including Canadian Prime Minister Jean Chretien, packed into Notre Dame Basilica May 31. Richard died May 27 at the age of 78 after a three-year battle with cancer.

CNS PHOTO BY JOHN WHITMAN, COURTESY BASILICA OF THE NATIONAL SHRINE

New oratory dedicated at National Shrine
Sisters of the Daughters of St. Mary of Providence gather with Chicago Auxiliary Bishop Thad Jakubowski in the new oratory dedicated to the Mother of Divine Providence at the Basilica of the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception in Washington June 5.

Bush blocks execution of inmate to allow new DNA use

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (CNS) — Texas Gov. George W. Bush approved a 30-day delay in the scheduled execution of convicted killer Ricky McGinn June 1 to allow a review of DNA evidence that the inmate and his lawyers say will exonerate him. Bush's action came about a week after he reiterated his strong support for the death penalty in remarks to Catholic journalists gathered in Baltimore, but also told them "if DNA helps to settle a case or raise any doubts, of course we ought to be using it." The reprieve for McGinn came less than 30 minutes before the death-row inmate was scheduled to die by lethal injection for the May 1993 rape and ax slaying of his 12-year-old stepdaughter.

Cardinal honored for efforts in Catholic-Jewish dialogue

WASHINGTON (CNS) — The Anti-Defamation League awarded Cardinal James A. Hickey of Washington its second annual Jan Karski Award for his efforts to "strengthen relations between Catholics and Jews and for his fighting anti-Semitism." "The cardinal has seen the viciousness of hatred, and he has been a progressive leader against that hatred," said David Friedman, regional director of the ADL. The ADL was created to fight anti-Semitism through programs and services that counteract hatred, prejudice and bigotry. The ADL, in presenting the award May 23, singled out Cardinal Hickey's efforts to establish "Bearing Witness," a program that trains Catholic school educators in how to teach about the Holocaust.

Former Pennsylvania Gov. Robert P. Casey dies at age 68

SCRANTON, Pa. (CNS) — Former Pennsylvania Gov. Robert P. Casey, whose outspokenness against abortion cost him the chance to speak at the 1992 Democratic National Convention, died May 30 at Mercy Hospital in Scranton from what was described as an infection. He was 68. Casey had suffered from familial amyloidosis, which systematically destroys major organs. The condition led him to get a rare heart-liver transplant in 1993. News reports said he learned in 1997 he had prostate cancer and underwent radiation treatment for it and that he had been in and out of the hospital over the past year.

Archbishop celebrates Mass for former hostages

CALI, Colombia (CNS) — Archbishop Isaias Duarte Cancino of Cali celebrated Mass for 175 former hostages of the National Liberation Army, marking a year since their kidnapping at the Church of La Maria. Archbishop Duarte invited the 38 hostages held by the National Liberation Army for the longest time to sit in the front pews. The May 30 Mass was preceded by a minute of silence and prayer in memory of Yaslin Duran Cordoba, the bodyguard killed by the guerrillas when he tried to prevent his boss from being kidnapped.

Our Lady of Guadalupe is carved into old palm tree

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (CNS) — Alfredo Gutierrez's philosophy is "You don't know what you can do until you try." And what he has tried to do recently has made people stop and take a closer look at the 6-foot-tall statue of Our Lady of Guadalupe carved from the stump of a palm tree next to a smaller Juan Diego statue kneeling before her. Gutierrez, who has no formal training in carving or sculpture, says, "I guess God gave me a little talent." He is carving the statues on a small mound of earth in the corner of a vacant lot next to his home near Our Lady of Guadalupe Parish in Sacramento.

Schools
Institutions
Daycares
Churches
Sales Offices
Recreational Facilities
Banks
Medical Facilities

Offering turn-key and professional solutions with Custom Modular Buildings to meet your growing and changing needs!

MODULARCORP

1803 East Wendover Ave., Suite E
Greensboro, NC 27405
(336) 275-8274 (336) 275-8649 fax
E-mail: modular@greensboro.com

Daniel Murray, President — St. Pius X Parishioner

Member of: MODULAR BUILDING INSTITUTE

Visit our Web site! www.modularcorp.com

Remain in control of your life.

Help protect yourself and your family from financial and emotional stress with Long Term Care insurance.

AIG Life Companies' Total LTC

Lets YOU decide what kind of care you want and need
Lets YOU decide where you will receive that care
Lets YOU decide how you will keep your independence

(800) 859-7847
(336) 768-4709
Call TOM PRYBYLO
RETIREMENT SPECIALIST
to customize a plan to fit your needs
Spelman and Co., Inc.
A SunAmerica Company
351 N. Peacehaven Road, Winston-Salem, NC 27104
Member NASD, SIPC Member St. Leo's parish

Immaculata community raises barn, spirits

By DIANNE RIGGS
Correspondent

HENDERSONVILLE — There is nothing like an old-fashioned "barn raising" to draw folks together and build community. That is exactly what happened at Immaculata School in Hendersonville. In three short weeks, a beautiful 13-by-20 foot cedar barn-like outbuilding was built on the school grounds by parents, teachers and children, and by volunteers from Immaculate Conception Church.

In a last-minute revision of a grant proposal to the Henderson County Partnership for Children Quality Enhancement Project, what would have been just a standard, pre-fab structure built to house tricycles, was changed by lead Pre-K teacher and curriculum coordinator Trish Formichella into a teaching-learning event involving the whole school.

All of that would not have happened had Formichella not met Reid Tessler, general contractor and former shop teacher. "We talked for one and a half hours and the idea mushroomed," said Formichella. "He suggested involving the pre-school and the upper grades." And that is what began the project of which students took full ownership.

The grant, for almost $5,200, funded material for the shed, the tricycles and helmets for the Pre-K students. It funded part of Tessler's salary as well.

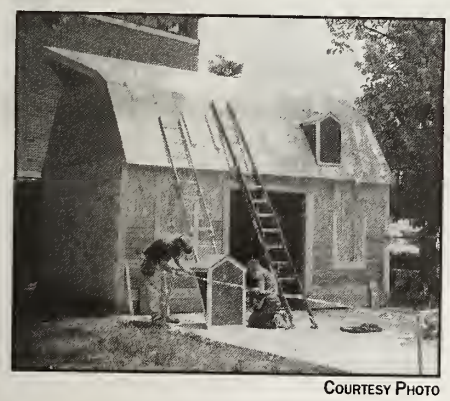
"It gave me and the other teachers the idea of 'what can we do next?'" said Formichella. "If you believe in abundance, you find abundance.

Tessler became contractor and carpenter for the structure. The first thing he did was have the school children draw a picture of a barn. Their ideals were incorporated into the design, he said. "The concept was to get the whole school involved, so it wasn't just hammers and carpentry," said Tessler.

The seventh-grade class took a field trip to the County Building to get the building permit pulled on Tessler's license and had a lesson on zoning and permit requirements for the city and county, said Tessler. The fifth- and seventh-grade classes had a lesson on loads common to buildings.

"They were smart," Tessler said of the students. "They realized there is not just a down load, but a wind load."

The children also compared the differences in stability between a rectangle and triangle — and then built the trusses, which are a series of triangles, he said.



Courtesy Photo

The new barn structure at Immaculata School will be used to house tricycles and helmets for the Pre-K students.

Photo by Dianne Riggs

Reid Tessler lifts Josh Horowitz of Immaculata School as he hammers at the new barn structure at the school. Tessler, a general contractor and former shop teacher, became contractor and carpenter for the building.

"The kids helped with everything except work on the high ladder, for safety reasons," said Tessler.

Remarkably, even the youngest children helped with the barn, said Formichella. Like the older ones, they were involved with clearing the ground, digging the foundation, hauling dirt, spreading gravel, pouring cement, hammering studs, siding, trusses and doors, and carrying materials, all done with age-appropriate tools, until the barn was complete.

Parents and other adults from the church were involved in all phases, said Formichella. Also, local community suppliers, who desired to remain anonymous, donated materials. Upper-grade children who helped on the physical structure mainly did so during the after-school program, and Pre-K kids came with a parent on Saturday mornings.

Some children kept journals of the event, and others took pictures, so there is a record of the process. "I think it helped the children involved, with their self-esteem," said Formichella.

The next phase of the project is the painting. Currently the art teacher, Lois Hansen, and children are working on a mural for one outside wall of St. Francis and animals. They are also going to do pictures on the two false windows.

"The biggest satisfaction for me was the process of the job," said Formichella. "Whatever I needed was brought to me instantly. Reid would say, 'We need plywood and shingles' and then he would call a little later and say, 'They're delivering this afternoon.' Or, 'We need someone to help put up the roof,' and at church that Sunday, there they were!"

"It gave me and the other teachers the idea of 'what can we do next?'" said Formichella. "If you believe in abundance, you find abundance." ▼

STOCKS, BONDS, MUTUAL FUNDS
FIXED & VARIABLE ANNUITIES
LIFE, DI & LTC INSURANCE

FINANCIAL PLANNING
RETIREMENT PLANNING
ESTATE PLANNING

ROLLOVERS & TRANSFERS
IRA'S & 401(K)'S
TAX PLANNING

RYAN ◆ HESS ◆ MORAIS
FINANCIAL ADVISORS, INC.

JOHN F. RYAN, JR., CFA
PARISHIONER, ST. VINCENT DEPAUL

CHRISTOPHER HESS, CFP
MEMBER, ST. JOHN'S EPISCOPAL

A. EDWARD MORAIS
PARISHIONER, ST. MATTHEW

SUITE 209 ◆ 7401 CARMEL EXECUTIVE PARK ◆ CHARLOTTE, NC 28226
PHONE 704-544-9009 FAX 704-543-4771

Registered Representatives offering securities through FFP Securities, Inc. - Member NASD/SIPC
Registered Investment Advisors offering services through FFP Advisory Services, Inc.

COACH XCEL

A Personal Coach Is to Your Mind and Spirit
What A Personal Trainer Is to Your Body.

- Achieve more success and significance both personally and professionally
- Earn more money while growing personally
- Attain better overall health with less stress
- Possess higher self confidence and reach your goals

For a complimentary consultation call
John Connors, LPC @ 704-597-4184
Licensed Professional Counselor

We'll beat any advertised price... Let us prove it!

The LaPointe Dealerships

Serving Charlotte with integrity for over 39 years!

MITSUBISHI MOTORS
6951 E. Independence Blvd.
531-3131

HONDA
7001 E. Independence Blvd.
535-4444

Frank LaPointe, President, Member of St. Gabriel Church

Msgr. John Francis Xavier Roueche, senior priest for the diocese, dies

HIGH POINT — Msgr. John Francis Xavier Roueche knew North Carolina as well as any priest who ever served in the state — and better than most. A native of Salisbury and a descendant of that city's first Catholic resident, he served in 11 parishes from New Bern to Asheville during his 42 years of active priesthood.

For several of those years, he also directed the Missionary Fathers Apostolate in North Carolina and was director of the Missionary Trailer Chapels, which served rural areas of the state where there were no Catholic churches.

Msgr. Roueche was born Nov. 7, 1906, in Salisbury, where his family long was active in Sacred Heart parish. After graduation from Belmont Abbey College, he entered St. Mary's Seminary in Baltimore under the sponsorship of Bishop William J. Hafey of the Diocese of Raleigh. He was ordained by Bishop Hafey at Sacred Heart Church in Salisbury on June 11, 1933.

Father Roueche's first assignment was as an assistant at Holy Trinity parish in Kinston. After a year in Kinston, he was assigned to the Missionary Fathers Apostolate, then based at Nazareth Orphanage in Raleigh. He was at Nazareth until January 1938, when he was assigned to Blessed Sacrament parish in Burlington with additional summer duties as a substitute chaplain at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

ARCHIVE PHOTO

Msgr. John Francis Xavier Roueche
1906-2000

With America's involvement in World War II fast approaching, he entered the U.S. Army in March 1941, as a chaplain at Camp Lee, Virginia. In 1942, he was promoted to captain and became chaplain at an army hospital in Hawaii. Following the invasion of Normandy in 1944, he took part in campaigns in northern France and Germany.

Following his discharge early in 1946, Father Roueche served briefly as pastor of St. Joan of Arc in Asheville and then became pastor of Sacred Heart parish in Dunn where he served for three years.

From March 1949 to June 1952, he was director of the Apostolate residence at Wake Forest. He then became pastor of St. John's in North Wilkesboro as well as training director of the Apostolate and director of the Missionary Trailer Chapels. He also directed the Trailer Chapel serving western North Carolina.

In November of that year, the Apostolate headquarters was shifted to Newton Grove, and Father Roueche served as pastor there for a year. In November 1954, he was appointed pastor of St. Paul's in New Bern and dean of the New Bern Deanery. On May 5, 1955, he was elevated to the rank of Domestic Prelate with the title of monsignor.

In January 1958, Msgr. Roueche became pastor of St. Lawrence in Asheville and dean of the Asheville Deanery. In September 1962, he was appointed rector of Sacred Heart Cathedral in Raleigh, dean of the Raleigh Deanery and consultor to Bishop Vincent S. Waters.

He served as pastor of Queen of the Apostles parish in Belmont from March 1967 until July 1971, when he became pastor of St. Vincent de Paul in Charlotte. He became a priest of the Diocese of Charlotte when the new diocese was established in January 1972.

From January 1973 until his retirement on May 9, 1975, Msgr. Roueche served as pastor of St. John the Baptist parish in Tryon. Following his retirement, he made his home in Southern Pines, prior to moving to Maryfield Nursing Home in High Point.

Bishop William G. Curlin presided at the funeral Mass June 7 at the Basilica of Mary Help of Christians [Belmont Abbey]. Burial was in the Abbey cemetery. ▼

www.charlottediocese.org/travel
Your first stop for pilgrimage information!

School Board Openings for MACS

Mecklenburg Area Catholic Schools

The MACS School Board has four school board vacancies beginning 2000-01 school year. One vacancy is as representative of Our Lady of the Assumption School and three representatives are for atlarge positions. The School Board is a consultative body to the Bishop's representative, the Diocesan Superintendent of Schools.

To be eligible to serve, a board member must:
1. Be a practicing Catholic. A letter of verification and recommendation by the pastor is required.
2. Be a participating parishioner of a MACS parish. One exception shall be that, at most, one board position may be designated for a participating member of a parish outside of MACS. This would be an atlarge position.
3. Be a parent of children in a MACS school or have had a child in a MACS school. Parents who are enrolling a child in the school for the upcoming year are eligible. Atlarge members are exceptions to this qualification.
4. Be 25 years of age or older.
5. Have a genuine interest and commitment to Catholic schools.
6. Be able to work effectively with others in achieving consensus.
7. Be able and willing to make necessary and substantial time commitments to attend meetings and related board activities including active participation on a board committee.

Members shall serve terms of three years.

Individuals having MACS committee, PTO, Athletic Association, MACS Foundation or other school experience are particularly encouraged to apply by sending a resume stating professional background and parish/school participation and letter stating why you would like to serve by June 23 to:

MACS
Mecklenburg Area Catholic Schools

MACS Board Nomination Committee
Catholic Schools Office
1123 South Church Street
Charlotte, NC 28203

Feel free to contact Dr. Michael Skube, Superintendent of Schools, with questions or comments at 7043703271.

What's the Road Like Up Ahead?

The road we have to travel is very different for each of us. The only certainty is that we all must end the journey some day.

If you take the time to prepare for that journey's end now, your family and favorite parish, school, and diocesan ministry will be supported.

A will is an essential part of that overall plan for your life's journey.

For the free booklet "How to Make a Will that Works," call Jim Kelley at (704) 370-3301 or send the coupon below.

Please send me the booklet "How to Make a Will that Works"

NAME _____

ADDRESS _____

CITY _____ STATE _____ ZIP _____

PHONE _____

E-MAIL _____

Mail to: Jim Kelley, Director of Development, Diocese of Charlotte, 1123 South Church Street, Charlotte, NC 28203

Father Joseph Schaefer, O.S.F.S., served diocese, dies at 75

WILMINGTON, Del. — Father Joseph Schaefer, 75, died of heart failure at Annecy Hall, an assisted living care center for convalescent Oblates, at the De Sales Centre in Childs, Maryland at 1 p.m. on Monday, June 5, 2000.

Father Schaefer was born March 28, 1925 in Philadelphia, Pa. and was a son of the late Mr. John H. Schaefer and the late Mrs. Bridged Mellon Schaefer.

He graduated from Immaculate Conception Parochial School in Germantown, Philadelphia, Pa. in 1939.

He graduated from St. Joseph High School in Princeton, NJ in 1943. He received a BA in Philosophy from Niagara University in Niagara, N.Y., in 1949.

Following graduation from high school, Father Schaefer joined the Vincentians Fathers and studied with the Vincentians until he joined the Oblates in 1951.

The Vincentians Fathers administer Niagara University where Father probably encountered the Oblates of St. Francis de Sales who attended school there.

He completed his Theological Studies at the De Sales Hall School of Theology in Hyattsville, Md., in 1956.

He entered the Oblates in Aug. 1951, made his first profession of vows Sept.13, 1951, and perpetual profession of vows Sept. 14, 1954.

His ordination was June 9, 1956, in St. Anthony of Padua Church in Wilmington, Delaware by Bishop Edmond J. FitzMaurice, Bishop of the Diocese of Wilmington.

Among his pastoral assignments were Our Lady of the Rosary Parish in Lexington from 1983-1995 and St. Francis of Assisi Parish in Lenoir from 1990-1995.

Viewing was Friday, June 9 from 3:00-4:30p.m. at Our Lady of Light Chapel at The De Sales Centre in Childs, Md. Mass of Christian Burial followed the viewing at 4:30p.m.

Interment took place in the Oblate Cemetery located on the grounds of The De Sales Centre in Childs, Md., following the Mass at 5:30 p.m.

Father Schaefer is survived by one sister, Mrs. Nancy Hill of Orange Park, Fla. He is also survived by many nieces and nephews. He was preceded in death by one sister and two brothers.

The Oblates request that, in lieu of flowers, contributions be sent to the Oblate Retirement Fund, 2200 Kentmere Parkway, Wilmington, Del. 19806.

In addition to his ministry in North Carolina, Father Schaefer's assignments included time in Maryland, Washington, Pennsylvania, Michigan, New York, Ohio and Virginia.

During much of this time, Father Schaefer ministered as a teacher of Latin and English.

From February of this year until his death, he resided at Annecy Hall in Childs, Md. ▼

Rev. Mr. Edward Morovich, retired deacon of Our Lady of the Rosary Church, dies at 79

LEXINGTON — Rev. Mr. Edward Morovich, 79, of Lexington, died June 1 at Wake Forest University Baptist Medical Center.

Rev. Mr. Morovich was a retired deacon at Our Lady of the Rosary Church in Lexington. He was born in Fayette County, Pa. on November 25, 1920, to John George Morovich and Mary Elizabeth Krupa Morovich.

He was retired and a member of Central Carolina Civitans, Knights of Columbus, American Legion Post 8, VFW Post 3074. At Our Lady of the Rosary Church he was a member of the Deacons Organization and served on the Chaplaincy Board at the Davidson County Correctional Center. He was a veteran of the U.S. Army and served during WW II.

He was preceded in death by his wife, Margaret Rose Kobe Morovich and a brother, John Raymond Morovich.

He is survived by his sons John Morovich of Alexandria, Louisiana and Mark Em Morovich of Bensenville, Ill.; a daughter, Susan Decker of Elgin, Ill.; four grandchildren and two great grandchildren; and two sisters, Margaret Eleanor Popovich of Canonsburg, Pa., and Elizabeth Ann Hammer of Gibsonia, Pa.

The family received friends from 6-8 p.m. Saturday, June 3, with a Rosary Service at 7 p.m. at Davidson Funeral Home in Lexington.

A celebration of Christian funeral memorial Mass was held at 4 p.m. Sun., June 4, at Our Lady of the Rosary Church with Father Albert Gondek, O.S.F.S. officiating. Burial took place at National Cemetery in Salisbury with a graveside service at 2 p.m. Monday, June 5, with Military Graveside Rites by VFW Post 3074.

Notes of sympathy may be sent to the Morovich Family at 5414 E. US Highway 64, Lexington, N.C. 27292-8075. ▼

Looking for the best CD rates?

Earn interest 1% higher than the national bank average with CDs from Salomon Smith Barney.*

Our CDs offer some of the highest rates available. In fact, a national survey of bank CD rates show our CDs average a whole percentage point higher. Plus, with a broad range of maturities, you can easily arrange for a steady stream of income to fit your needs.

- FDIC-insured up to $100,000 per depositor, per institution
- Issued by more than 240 banks nationwide
- A flexible investment vehicle to reach your fixed-income goals
- We provide a secondary market on all CDs we sell

Term	Annual Percentage Yield
6 month	6.75%
1 year	7.0%
5 year	7.25%

Call Michael Grieco, Financial Consultant at (704) 571-3362 for more information.
6101 Carnegie Boulevard, 2nd Floor
Charlotte, NC 28209

SALOMON SMITH BARNEY
SEE HOW WE EARN IT.SM

A member of citigroup

*The annual percentage yields (APYs) are effective as of 0/00/00 and are subject to availability and changes. APY interest can not remain on deposit in the same CD; interest will be paid semi-annually, monthly, or at maturity. FDIC insurance covers a maximum amount of $100,000 per deposit or per institution (principal and interest combined) in each insurable capacity. Minimum deposit $1,000. Although we are not required to do so, we endeavor to provide a secondary market so that CD holders can sell their CDs prior to maturity. The resale price in such a transaction may be less than the principal amount invested. National bank average determined by Bank Rate Monitor, a service mark of Bank Rate Monitor.

Salomon Smith Barney and "SEE HOW WE EARN IT." are service marks of Salomon Smith Barney Inc.

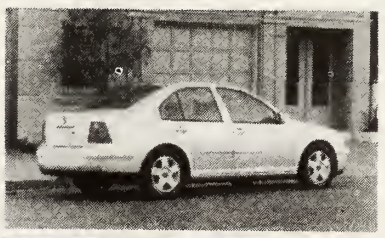
©2000 Salomon Smith Barney Inc. Member SIPC

K OF C

Congratulations to the newly ordained priests!

Rev. David Brzoska
Rev. Joseph Long Dinh
Rev. Christopher Gober
Rev. Matthew Kauth
Rev. Shawn O'Neal
Rev. Luis Osorio
Rev. Frank Seabo

Sponsored by the Knights of Columbus



We Warn You: If You Drive One You're Gonna Want One!

Volkswagen and Audi...the only car companies to have every model named best in its class. Find out why. Come in for a thrill ride today.

Honest pricing, honest financing, and honest service on Europe's most exciting new cars. From the incredible New Beetle, to the all new Jetta IV and luxurious new generation of Audi, we have the right car for your pocketbook...and your lifestyle.

Volkswagen Audi South
John Diederich, Owner
Member Saint Gabriel Parish

7401 South Boulevard . Charlotte . 704.552.6500 . 800.426.5347
www.vwsouth.com . www.audisouth.com

Vatican clears U.S. Catholic higher education norms

By JERRY FILTEAU
Catholic News Service

Participants in the debate struggled to achieve a delicate balance of institutional autonomy for the university, academic freedom for its professors and the right and responsibility of the bishop to safeguard the faithful teaching of Catholic doctrine to the people of God in his diocese.

WASHINGTON (CNS) — The National Conference of Catholic Bishops announced June 7 that the Vatican has approved the U.S. bishops' particular norms for Catholic colleges and universities.

They will take effect May 3, 2001, one year from the date of the Vatican decree of "recognition" or approval.

Bishop Joseph A. Fiorenza of Galveston-Houston, NCCB president, said the purpose of the U.S. norms "is, above all, to strengthen our Catholic colleges and universities, especially by helping them to maintain their Catholic identity."

The bishops approved the norms at their general meeting last November in a document titled "'Ex Corde Ecclesiae': An Application to the United States."

The Latin part of that title, which means "from the heart of the church," comes from the name of Pope John Paul II's 1990 apostolic constitution on Catholic higher education.

The papal document set out a vision of the mission and role of Catholic institutes of higher learning and established general norms applicable to such institutions worldwide. It called on bishops' conferences to develop more specific applications of the papal text to the situation of Catholic colleges and universities in their own countries.

In a statement sent to bishops June 1 and released June 7, Bishop Fiorenza said the yearlong period before the U.S. application takes effect will be used to resolve questions and deal with "practical matters of implementation."

During that time, he said, "the issues behind many of these inquiries will be addressed in dialogue with college and university presidents, theologians and canonists."

The application discusses the theological and pastoral principles of the role of Catholic institutions of higher learning in the life of the church and the civic community.

It says what Catholic identity means for those institutions and spells out ways in which that Catholic identity and inspiration is to be nurtured in a university's foundational documents, board, administration, faculty and student body, in campus life, service to others and academics, research and interaction with culture.

It speaks of the collaboration, mutual trust and ongoing dialogue that must mark the relationship between the university and church authorities.

Throughout years of development of the U.S. application, one of the most vigorously debated issues was how to apply in the U.S. context the general church law that theology professors need a "mandatum," or mandate to teach, from the competent ecclesiastical authority, the diocesan bishop.

Participants in the debate struggled to achieve a delicate balance of institutional autonomy for the university, academic freedom for its professors and the right and responsibility of the bishop to safeguard the faithful teaching of Catholic doctrine to the people of God in his diocese.

The Vatican approved the principles the bishops adopted for the "mandatum" — including their theological and legal description of what it is and is not and their principle that ordinarily once a theologian has received a "mandatum" it goes with him, even if he takes up a new post in a different diocese.

The "mandatum," as described in the norms:

— "Is fundamentally an acknowledgment by church authority that a Catholic professor of a theological discipline is a teacher within the full communion of the Catholic Church."

— "Should not be construed as an appointment, authorization, delegation or approbation of one's teaching by church authorities. Those who have received a 'mandatum' teach in their own name in virtue of their baptism and their academic and professional competence, not in the name of the bishop or of the church's magisterium."

— "Recognizes the professor's commitment and responsibility to teach authentic Catholic doctrine and to refrain from putting forth as Catholic teaching anything contrary to the church's magisterium."

In a footnote to the norm on how the "mandatum" is to be construed, the document says that "it is not the responsibility of a Catholic university to seek the 'mandatum'; this is a personal obligation of each professor."

It adds, "If a particular professor lacks a 'mandatum' and continues to teach a theological discipline, the university must determine what further action may be taken in accordance with its own mission and statutes."

The norms also discuss the process by which a 'mandatum' is granted, denied or removed.

They say the bishop of the diocese where the institution is located is the competent authority to grant it, he may do so personally or through a delegate, and conferral, denial or revocation should be in writing.

The norms also say, "Without prejudice to the rights of the local bishop, a 'mandatum,' once granted, remains in effect wherever and as long as the professor teaches unless and until withdrawn by competent

See HIGHER EDUCATION, page 17

School Board Openings for the Diocesan School Board

The Diocesan School Board has two school board vacancies beginning 2000-01 school year. The School Board is a consultative body to the Bishop's representative, the Diocesan Superintendent of Schools.

The Board meets monthly from September to May at various schools throughout the Diocese. The meetings take place during the week beginning at 6:30 p.m. and ending by 9:00 p.m.

To be eligible to serve, a board member must:

1. Be a practicing Catholic. A letter of verification and recommendation by the pastor is required.
2. Be a participating parishioner of a parish in the Diocese of Charlotte.
3. Have a genuine interest and commitment to Catholic schools.
4. Be able to work effectively with others in achieving consensus.

Members shall serve terms of three years.

Individuals having school committee, board, PTO, Athletic Association or other school experience are particularly encouraged to apply by sending a resume stating professional background and parish/school participation and letter stating why you would like to serve by June 30 to:

Dr. Michael Skube
Superintendent of Schools
Catholic Schools Office
1123 South Church Street
Charlotte, NC 28203

Feel free to contact Dr. Michael Skube with questions or comments at (704) 370-3271.

Changing Jobs or Retiring?

Call A.G. Edwards for alternatives on how you can receive and manage your distribution from your company's retirement plan.

Les Davaz
Member, St. Peter's

15800 John J. Delaney Dr.
Suite 100
Charlotte, NC 28277
(704) 341-3131 or (888) 769-3131
les.davaz@agedwards.com

A.G. Edwards
INVESTMENTS SINCE 1887

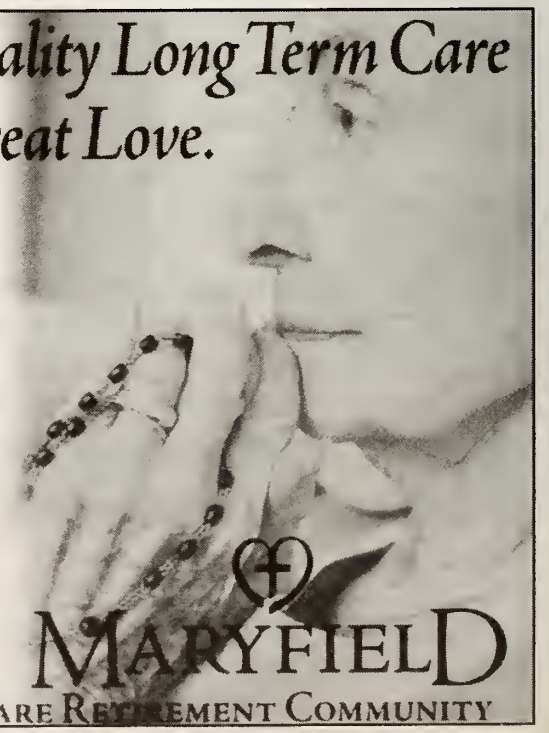
Member SIPC • 2000 A.G. Edwards & Sons, Inc.

[16784] DTR-130-1100

Providing Quality Long Term Care ...With Great Love.

For half a century, Maryfield Nursing Home has provided outstanding nursing care in a Catholic environment. When you need more care than is available at your home, come visit us. We invite you to discover for yourself our many stimulating daily activities and services which make Maryfield the best possible choice for Long Term Care.

1315 Greensboro Road
High Point, NC 27260
336.886.2444 Fax 336.886.4036
www.greensboro.com/mnh



MARYFIELD
A Continuing Care Retirement Community

SEVEN ORDAINED TO PRIESTHOOD IN DIOCESE OF CHARLOTTE

By JIMMY ROSTAR
Associate Editor

CHARLOTTE — In a spirited message to seven candidates for priesthood in the Diocese of Charlotte, Bishop William G. Curlin focused on the mystery of holy orders and the responsibility that comes with the sacrament.

Rev. Messrs. Frank Seabo, Luis Osorio, Shawn O'Neal, Matthew Kauth, Christopher Gober, Joseph Long Dinh and David Brzoska became the diocese's newest priests during a two-hour Mass June 3 at St. Matthew Church.

The ordination of the seven men was a historic occasion for a 28-year-old diocese that has never before had this many men ordained for priestly service at a single liturgy.

The ordination class was also among the largest in the South this year, second in size only to the Archdiocese of Atlanta, according a 2000 survey of the U.S. bishops' Committee on Vocations.

But Bishop Curlin said the true significance of the gathering was the entrance of seven men into priestly service, men who will leave behind the trappings of a worldly life to bring Christ to others.

"You stand before all these wonderful people of God, and you're willing to give all this up in loving someone you have never seen with your eyes or touched," the bishop told the candidates during his homily. "And you've recognized his voice calling you to this sacred ministry, which is the priesthood of Jesus Christ."

The bishop cited the inspiration of joyful priests and the influence of parents among the ways men consider answering that call to priesthood.

"To live this life, you have to realize, my brothers, you're living a mystery," the bishop said. "It is the mystery of Christ extending his ministry in you."

As priests, the seven must remember to lead and live by example while remembering their own faults and weaknesses, Bishop Curlin said.

"Never ask of God's people anything you would not do yourself — any sacrifice, any penance, any challenge, any new thrust of spirituality," he said. "We must preach what we live."

More than 1,100 lay people, candidates' parents, clergy, religious and seminarians gathered for the Mass, which was punctuated several times with rounds of applause. Members of the Knights of Columbus, the Order of Malta and the Order of the Holy Sepulcher — fraternal and chivalric organizations well-known for acts of charity and faith — joined in the procession.

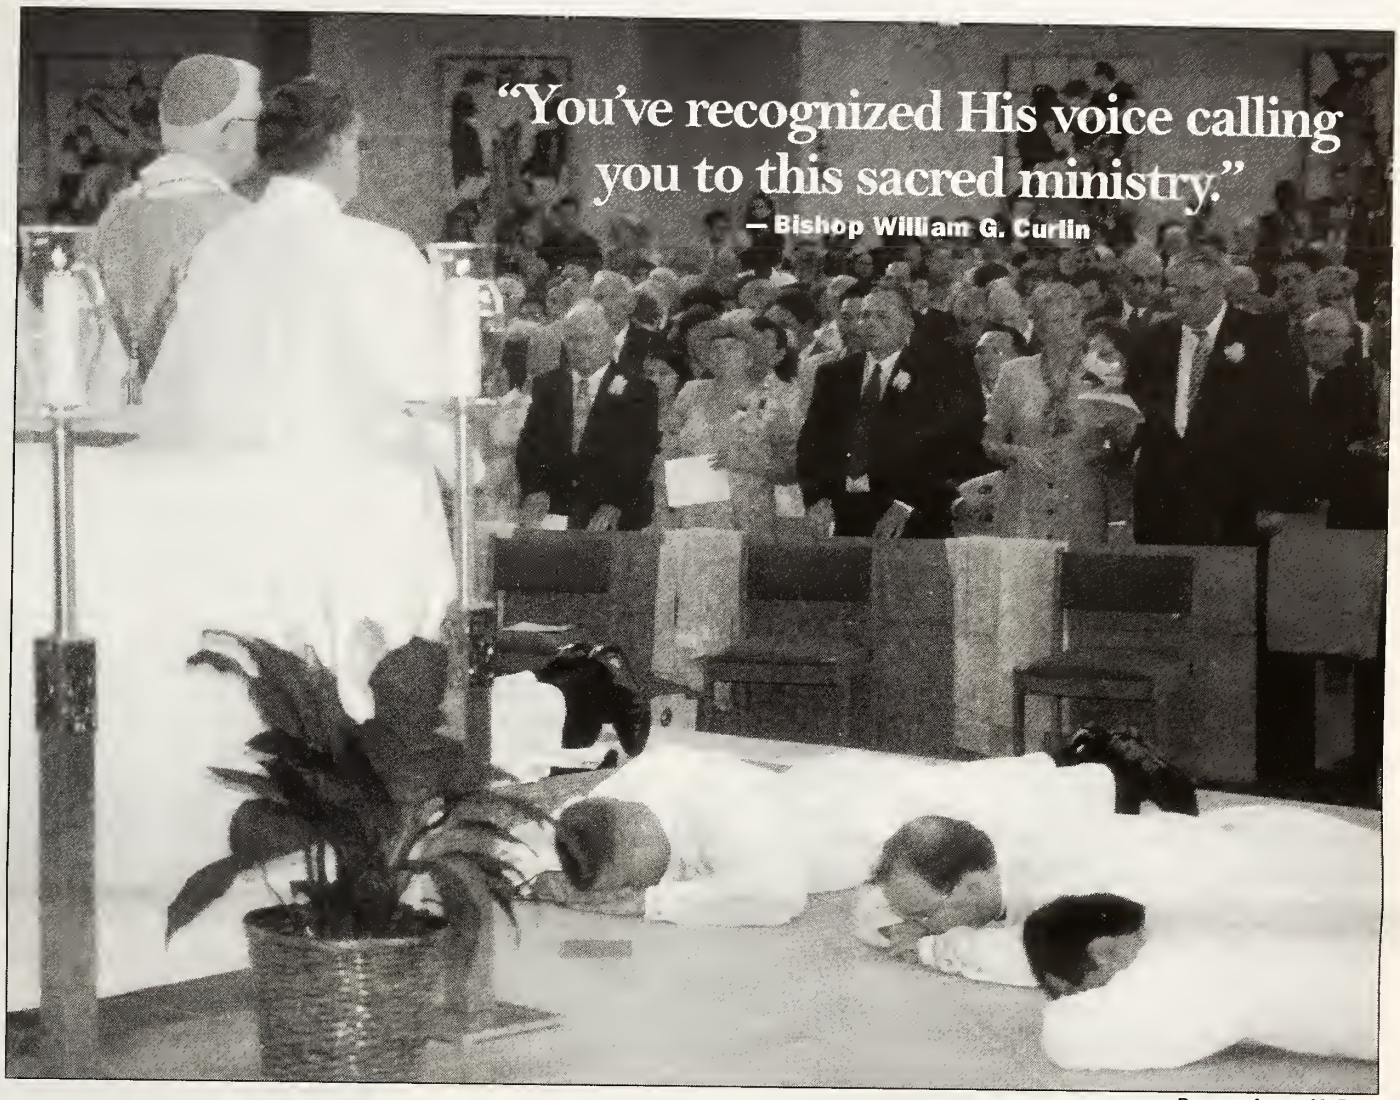


Photo by Alesha M. Price

Special guests also included the Friends of Seminarians, a group who financially supports vocations in the Diocese of Charlotte.

In addition to the seven ordinands and diocesan, religious and visiting priests, concelebrants included Abbot Placid Solari of Belmont Abbey and Father Mauricio West, diocesan vicar general and chancellor.

A multilingual liturgy, with readings, prayers and hymns in Spanish, Vietnamese, English and Latin, reflected both the ethnic variety in this year's ordination class and of a diocese whose multicultural makeup is becoming more varied.

Two of this year's ordinands, Fathers Osorio and Dinh, are immigrants to this country: Father Osorio is from Colombia, South America, while Father Dinh was born in Vietnam.

During the Rite of Ordination, the candidates affirmed their promise to fulfill the office of priesthood. Kneeling, each man placed his hands between Bishop Curlin's hands in a promise of obedience to him and his successors.

The congregation was invited to join in prayer for the entire church and its people as the candidates lay prostrate during the singing of the Litany of the Saints.

During the rite's most solemn moment, the candidates knelt in silence before Bishop Curlin, who laid his hands on their heads. The celebration of the sacrament of holy orders was completed as the bishop extended his hands over the kneeling candidates and prayed the prayer of consecration.

Each new priest was vested with a stole and a chasuble, outer garments of the priestly office, and was presented with a chalice signifying his role as a celebrant of the Eucharist.

The seven men joined their brother priests to concelebrate the Mass, thus opening new chapters in their lives — lives of service to a rapidly growing Catholic population in the western half of North Carolina.

For Father Frank O'Rourke, a veteran priest of the diocese and a former vocations director, the ordination liturgy was a special time of celebration.

"It's a wonderful experience to be at an ordination, and especially this one," said Father O'Rourke, pastor of Holy Family Church in Clemmons. "I know all of these men, and this certainly makes you have a great sense of hope the future. It touches at our own ordinations, and gives a great sense of oneness in the Lord and the awesomeness of that vocation." ▼

Contact Associate Editor Jimmy Rostar by calling (704) 370-3334 or e-mail jtrostar@charlottediocese.org.

"TO LIVE THIS LIFE, YOU HAVE TO REALIZE, MY BROTHERS, YOU'RE LIVING A MYSTERY... IT IS THE MYSTERY OF CHRIST EXTENDING HIS MINISTRY IN YOU."

— Bishop William G. Curlin

SEVEN MEN

By ALESHA M. PRICE
Staff Writer

CHARLOTTE — This is the story of seven men, chosen by God to lead His flock, in the Diocese of Charlotte.

On one historic day, seven men answered their call to God and were ordained as priests at the ordination liturgy on June 3 at St. Matthew Church in Charlotte.

The events that led this "class of 2000" to the priesthood differ yet are similar in many ways.

Father David Brzoska

Father David Brzoska had spent nearly a decade in a career with a manufacturer of disposable hospital plastics in various positions as a technical coordinator, product manager and assistant to the company vice president before considering the priesthood as an alternate way of life.

Born and raised in Norristown, Pa., as the youngest of four children, he graduated from Penn State in 1984 with a bachelor's degree in biochemistry. After working in New Jersey for three years, the company transferred him to Newton, N.C., in 1987, which, unbeknownst to him at the time, was a life-changing decision.

Father Brzoska began attending St. Aloysius Church in Hickory, where Father Wilbur Thomas was pastor at the time.

He began to feel unfulfilled and dissatisfied with his profession; however, parish work with Bible study, adult education and AIDS ministry and talks with Father Thomas and Father Frank O'Rourke, then the director of vocations, helped to propel him in the direction of priesthood and to remain in the diocese.

He entered St. Vincent Seminary in Latrobe, Pa., in 1994 and completed his studies in May 2000. His new parish home is St. Mark Church in Huntersville, where he wants to share with the parishioners the love and support he received in his own life and the grace from his strong relationship with Jesus.

In his spare time, Father Brzoska, 37, has a special interest in art museums. He enjoys hiking, playing sports like tennis, golf and softball and attending movies.

Photo by Joann S. Keane

Father Dave Brzoska offers Bishop Curlin a blessing prior to the recessional.

Father Joseph Long Dinh

Father Joseph Long Dinh, 40, felt the calling to the priesthood at an early age in his hometown of Hue in Central Vietnam at a time of political and social upheaval. Father Dinh, 11 years old at the time, entered minor seminary with his family's blessings.

As he grew up, he further explored his vocational choice and graduated from high school seminary in 1977, an event his father sadly missed. His father had died in a concentration camp a year earlier.

Young Dinh was sent to a forced labor camp for three years and had to postpone his seminary studies. With the seminary closed and his health in poor condition after the rigors of the camp, he struggled to leave Vietnam after several years and attempts and fled the country on a small boat to Thailand to refugee camps.

He arrived in California in 1989, sponsored by a Michigan priest, with his dream of becoming a priest still intact. He worked to send money to his family in Vietnam, and later entered Divine Word College Seminary in Epworth, Iowa, in 1990.

His family was able to immigrate to the United Stated to Charlotte after his graduation.

While helping his family to become acclimated to their new surroundings, he began to view the Diocese of Charlotte as a home. He believes that God with His divine providence has propelled him along his difficult journey and that putting his fate into God's hands ensured his survival and helped with his work in seminary.

He has also received his master's of divinity from St. Mary's Seminary in Baltimore, Md.

Father Dinh wants to bring the gospel message of love to all and to share the Good News with the congregation at Sacred Heart Church in Salisbury.

Music and sports are of special interest to Father Dinh when he is able to catch a few extra moments.

Father Christopher Gober

Father Christopher Gober, a Kewanee, Ill., native, graduated fromhigh school with a couple of ideas for a major in mind, sports medicine or physical therapy. During that time, he traveled with his pastor and a group to Rome, where the thoughts of priesthood first entered into his mind.

After talking with several priests in Rome and discussion with his parish priest, he began to attend daily Mass, and his life path became clearer.

From left, Fathers Chris Gober, Luis Osorio, Shawn O'Neal, Frank Seabo, Joe

At the advice of priests in the Diocese of Peoria, Gober came to the Diocese of Charlotte and met Bishop William G. Curlin, who invited him to become a diocesan priest. Father Gober was interested in this area of the country because of the rapid growth of Catholics and the need for priests in the Diocese of Charlotte.

He says that prayer led him to make that decision, a difficult one, but fully rewarding to him. Father Gober entered St. Charles Borromeo Seminary in Philadelphia and earned a bachelor's degree in philosophy.

He attended the Theological College of the Catholic University of America in Washington D.C and completed his S.T.B., bachelor's degree of sacred theology.

Father Gober, 26, feels that his youth and vitality will be an asset to him as he serves members of St. Michael Church in Gastonia, as parochial vicar. Prayer and a steadfast belief in the need for daily Mass are two focal points in his life. He says that he looks forward to teaching the truth of the faith, helping others know Jesus and administering the sacraments, especially the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass.

This middle child, flanked by an older brother and a younger sister, enjoys playing sports and reading during his free time hours.

Father Matthew Kauth

Father Matthew Kauth, now 26, was a high school senior, planning to go to college and have the life that he always thought he would, complete with a job and a family. However, he began to question if that life was what he truly wanted. He had first heard the call to priesthood as a young altar boy but ignored it and went on with his high school activities.

After high school graduation, prayer, soul-searching and talks with priests in his home diocese of Peoria led him to St. Charles Borromeo Seminary, where he earned his bachelor's degree in philosophy.

He earned his S.T.B., bachelor's degree of sacred theology, from the Theological College of the Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C.

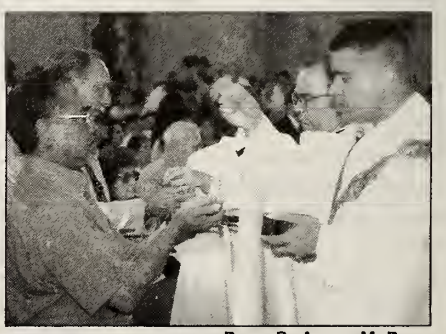

Photo By Alesha M. Price

Father Matt Kauth, foreground, and Father Shawn O'Neal distribute Communion during Mass.

ONE DREAM

PHOTO BY JOANN S. KEANE

Dave Broszka, and Matt Kauth with Bishop Curlin following the ordination.

Meeting Bishop William G. Curlin and talking with him about missionary work was a significant occurrence in his life and compelled him to want to be a diocesan priest.

Father Kauth says that through prayer and dedication to God people can find inner peace and derive strength.

He will share what he has learned through his prayer life and deep devotion to God with members of St. Matthew Church in Charlotte.

His concern is that over the last 15 to 20 years, that truth is presented as over and against love, when the opposite was the case in years past.

He hopes that people will work to make truth and love a binding force in their spiritual lives in upcoming years.

Father Kauth reads and plays basketball and other sports in his down time.

Father Shawn O'Neal

Father Shawn O'Neal was born in Metairie, a suburb outside of New Orleans and made his way to the Diocese of Charlotte when he, his twin sister and his parents moved to Charlotte. He, like many other young men, decided to attend college and chose Appalachian State University in Boone and completed his history degree in 1991.

He decided to attend graduate school at UNCC to pursue a master's in education and had been working as a journalist when he heard his calling. He entered St. Meinrad Seminary in St. Meinrad, Ind., and completed his studies in May 2000.

PHOTO BY JOANN S. KEANE

Father Frank O'Rourke helps Father Shawn O'Neal with vestments during the ordination.

He hopes to preach in a way that meets people where they are and helps people to view the church as not only God's house but their home as well. He is interested in youth ministry and helping to prepare young people be joyful witnesses to gospel living.

Father O'Neal wants to reiterate to parishioners at St. Elizabeth Church in Boone, his new home parish, that the church is not only a refuge but is also a source of joyous living for all to see and share.

He hopes to be a sign of hope and peace for all, especially in the sacrament of reconciliation, and wants to contribute to the community as a visible servant and leader.

Father O'Neal, 30, is now learning more about classical music and also enjoys an occasional street hockey game. He also loves to read travel essays and Spanish and South American history.

Father Luis Osorio

Father Luis Osorio, 42, was born in Colombia, South America, where he spent most of his life with his three sisters and one brother, never considering life in the priesthood. His parents worked to send him to Libre of Perira University, and he graduated with a bachelor of science degree in political economics.

He lived his personal and professional life in South America working in the newspaper, government and factory fields.

After his sister moved to Statesville, N.C., he also immigrated to the area and became acquainted with Father Joseph Waters, who was pastor of St. Philip the Apostle Church in Statesville at the time.

Impressed with Father Waters' work with Hispanics in the diocese and his dedication to his congregation, he began to work with Hispanic ministry, assisting with retreats, workshops and lay ministry.

It was during this period when Father Osorio began to seriously consider the priesthood, and he entered St. Vincent's Seminary in Latrobe, Pa.

His main focus will be the Hispanic population with whom he will use his bilingualism to the fullest.

He states that his understanding of the Spanish language and culture will be of great benefit to him as he begins his life as parochial vicar of Our Lady of Lourdes Church in Monroe.

Father Osorio says he will work to help the diocese in the areas of evangelization and inculturation.

Ministering to the Hispanic culture and other cultures, serving as a bridge between cultures through language and teaching people about others' needs is what he would like to do within the Diocese of Charlotte.

Father Frank Seabo

Father Frank Seabo, 42, was born and raised in Vineland, N.J., with his two other siblings.

He earned bachelor's degree in finance and master's degree in business administration from Drexel University in Philidelphia, Pa. He moved to North Carolina and worked in law enforcement education and in other areas of business for 14 years.

He taught faith formation classes and became active with his parish and the Knights of Columbus, eventually becoming a Grand Knight in the Raleigh area.

PHOTO BY JOANN S. KEANE

Father Luis Osorio blesses one of the faithful who attended the ordination liturgy at St. Matthew Church.

He found that he enjoyed teaching and helping others in a parish setting. Friends noticed his dedication and love of working and serving in the church.

They suggested life in the priesthood, and he also began to ponder the idea.

Through their support and ardent prayer, he entered the Theological College at the Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C., four years ago and completed his studies in May 2000.

His assignment, the Basilica of St. Lawrence in Asheville, will be the place where Father Seabo will be able to continue his work with faith formation, youth ministry and Hispanic ministry and share with the parishioners his devout prayer life. ▼

Contact Staff Writer Alesha M. Price by calling (704) 370-3354 or e-mail amprice@charlottediocese.org.

PHOTO BY JIMMY ROSTAR

Father Frank Seabo smiles as he processes from the church.

Parental praises for priests, pleased with professions

BY ALESHA M. PRICE
STAFF WRITER

CHARLOTTE — Alice and Bernard Brzoska were surprised to the point of laughter when their youngest son announced that he was going to become a priest.

"I was waiting for the punchline," said Mrs. Brzoska. "Dave had been living in Hickory and working in Newton for about eight years and decided at the age of 32 that he, our youngest child, was going to try 'something else' in life. I was stunned."

That "something else" was the vocation of priesthood.

Father Dave Brzoska and six other men pledged their lives to God at the ordination liturgy on June 3. Their parents, family, friends and the diocesan Catholic community were on hand to witness the event.

PHOTO BY JOANN S. KEANE

Elizabeth and Thomas O'Neal participated in the presentation of the gifts for Mass.

"We are excited and so honored about his becoming a priest," continued Mrs. Brzoska. "I hope he will touch other people's lives through the priesthood the way he has touched the lives of his family members."

The Kauths, not unlike the Brzoskas, admitted they were really not aware of Father Matthew Kauth's desire to become a priest until he informed them of his decision.

"We were surprised but very happy that God would find us worthy enough to call Matt and that he would answer that call," said Rev. Mr. Richard Kauth, who credits the family's devotion to the Blessed Mother as their son's main inspiration. "I hope he will not be just a priest but also a holy man of God who can remember that he is called to serve the people."

"We have been waiting eight years for this, and now, today, everything is just overwhelming. We are both quite pleased," added Mrs. Kauth.

O'Neal that "something special" would be in store for their boy and girl twins. "Shawn weighed one pound and nine ounces and survived. I knew there was a special calling for him," explained Mr. O'Neal. "We want him to be truthful, honest and happy, which is all any of us can hope for."

Mrs. O'Neal said that Father Shawn O'Neal has a particularly special mission in his life as a priest. "We have been to other ordinations before, but to have your own son involved is special. As parents, we hope to continue supporting him in whatever way we can."

"I feel very blessed that he would choose this vocation in life," said Mary Gober about her son, Father Christopher Gober, being ordained to the priesthood.

PHOTO BY JOANN S. KEANE

Father Chris Gober shares a sign of peace with his parents, Craig and Mary Gober, during the ordination liturgy.

Craig Gober echoed the sentiments of many of the parents of the new priests.

"I pray that he remain humble and keep the Lord in his soul and mind every day," he said. "I hope that he can wake up saying 'how can I be of service to the Lord and my fellow man today?' I hope that he is the best priest that he can be and sets examples for humanity so other people might follow in his footsteps." ▼

Contact Staff Writer Alesha M. Price by calling (704) 370-3354 or e-mail amprice@charlottediocese.org.

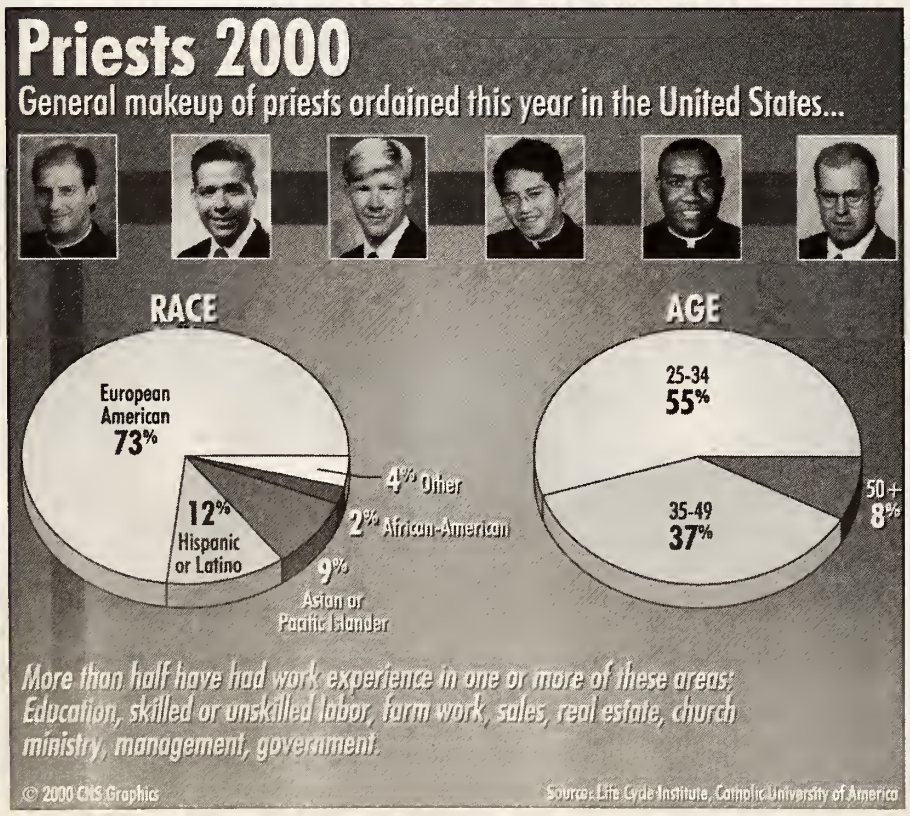

PHOTO BY JOANN S. KEANE

Bay Cao Dinh carries vestments for her son, Father Joe Dinh, in the procession into St. Matthew Church for the ordination liturgy.

Bishops to vote on national plan for priests' formation

By JERRY FILTEAU
CATHOLIC NEWS SERVICE

WASHINGTON (CNS) — The U.S. bishops will vote on a National Plan for the Ongoing Formation of Priests when they meet in Milwaukee June 15-17.

The 138-page document explores specific formation needs at different stages of life as well as ongoing formation concerns regardless of a priest's age or office.

About half the text is devoted to key stages in priestly life, the specific issues accompanying each, and programmatic responses of formation to help the priest meet new challenges he faces and grow with them.

The five stages it identifies are:

— The first years of priesthood.

— Transition, when a priest receives a change of assignment.

— The first pastorate.

— Midlife, a period of re-examining one's identity, values and direction.

— The "third age" or senior years, when advancing age and retirement bring a realignment of activity and responsibility.

Bishop Richard C. Hanifen of Colorado Springs, Colo., chairman of the Committee on Priestly Life and Ministry, is to present the plan at the meeting. Passage requires approval by two-thirds of the nation's active bishops.

Father J. Cletus Kiley, the committee's staff director in Washington, said in an interview that in the past the bishops have addressed various aspects of continuing education of clergy, but "to date they have not done anything as comprehensive as this."

He said much of the inspiration for the national plan comes from "Pastores Dabo Vobis" ("I Will Give You Shepherds"), Pope John Paul II's 1992 apostolic exhortation on priestly formation, which addressed ongoing formation after ordination as well as seminary training.

He said the exhortation "gave us a fuller understanding of what formation involved" with its perspective that comprehensive formation should bring growth in one's human, spiritual and ministerial dimensions as well as intellectual.

What was once called "continuing education" has evolved into "ongoing formation" as bishops and priests became more aware of the multiple dimensions of growth that need to be addressed, Father Kiley said.

He said the plan presents guidelines for priests and bishops to discuss and to use in assessing strengths and weaknesses in their current ongoing formation policies and programs.

Part of the plan is a discussion of what it calls "10 significant contexts" underlying formation needs of U.S. priests at the start of the 21st century. It summarizes these as:

— An "incomplete shift in sacramental consciousness" since the Second Vatican Council: "As a church, we have not completed the shift from a narrow focus on the event of the sacrament to the process of living out the sacrament."

— "Divisions in presbyterates," with differences in age, background, theological perspective and formation requiring priests to work consciously for common ground and unity.

— "Diminishing numbers of priests."

— The "dramatic contrast" between priestly commitments and "current cultural sexual mores, values."

— "International priests and multiculturalism in the United States."

— "Social shifts and realignment of church resources," making new demands on priestly ministry with communities in transition.

— "Social engagement of the church in matters of justice, life and reconciliation" at a time when Americans tend "to privatize religion and to separate it, at least implicitly, from public life."

— "The new evangelization," challenging priests to re-evangelize Catholics who are only "weakly or loosely connected with faith and church."

— "Fluidity and polarization in the post-Vatican (II) church," in which renewal is not only an ongoing task but a source of division and contrasting interpretations.

— "Sharing many ministries," as the growth of lay ministry makes new demands on priestly leadership and challenges priests to a deeper understanding of their own identity.

Father Kiley said primary responsibility for ongoing formation lies with each priest personally, but the plan also highlights the role of the bishop and of the presbyterate as a whole.

He said the diminishing number of priests — which is also to be a separate topic of discussion during the Milwaukee meeting — has its impact on priests' ongoing formation in a number of ways.

When a diocese's ordination classes are smaller and more diverse in age and background, he said, one can no longer assume the kind of esprit de corps that once bonded priests.

He added that with ever more one- and two-priest parishes, the mentoring of younger priests by more experienced priests in a large rectory can no longer be presumed either, so dioceses are developing explicit mentoring programs. ▼

Gerald Costello named interim administrator of The Christophers

NEW YORK (CNS) — Gerald M. Costello, retired editor in chief of Catholic New York newspaper, has been appointed interim administrator of The Christophers.

Costello, whose new duties begin July 1, will also chair the search committee for a new director to replace Msgr. Thomas J. McSweeney, who has been recalled to his home diocese of Erie, Pa.

"I hope that this will be a brief period of interim service, and that our search for a new director will be short and successful," Costello said.

During the interim period, Msgr. McSweeney will continue writing The Christophers' "Light One Candle" column and serving as host of the "Christopher Closeup" television series.

Costello, founding editor of both Catholic New York and The Beacon, newspaper of the Diocese of Paterson, N.J., has been a member of the board of The Christophers since 1980.

The Christophers, founded in 1945 by Maryknoll Father James Keller, uses the media to spread a message of hope and understanding to people of all faiths and those of no particular faith. It also presents the annual Christopher Awards to honor films, TV programs and books that "affirm the highest values of the human spirit." ▼

COACH XCEL
Spirit - Body - Mind
Hypnosis - Thought Field Therapy
Stop Smoking • Live Healthier
Manage Stress • Reduce Chronic Pain
Improve Job, Academic, Sports Performance
Call Today! 704-597-4184
John Connors LPC, NBCCH, TFT
Licensed Professional Counselor, National Board of Certified Clinical Hypnotherapists
Diplomate Certified - Thought Field Therapy

The Diocese of Charlotte
CATHOLIC SOCIAL SERVICES
1123 South Church St.
Charlotte, NC 28203
www.cssnc.org
Executive Director:
Elizabeth Thurbee (704) 370-3228
Refugee Office:
Cira Ponce (704) 370-6930
Justice & Peace:
Joanne K. Frazer (704) 370-3225
Special Ministries:
Gerard A. Carter (704) 370-3250
Charlotte Area: 1123 South Church Street, Charlotte, NC 28203
Area Director: Geri King (704) 370-6155
Western Area: 50 Orange Street, Asheville, NC 28801
Area Director: Sister Marie Frechette (828) 255-0146
Piedmont-Triad Area: 621 W. Second Street, Winston-Salem, NC 27108
Area Director: David Harold (336) 727-0705
Greensboro Satellite Office: (336) 274-5577
High Point Hispanic Center: (336) 884-5858
For information on specific programs, please call your local office.

For more information, please write:
Fr. Ed McDevitt, C.O. or Fr. Joe Pearce, C.O.
The Oratory
P.O. Box 11586
Rock Hill, SC 29731-1586
Join us in serving God as priest or brother.
Our Oratorian Congregation was founded in Rome by St. Philip Neri in 1575. Known as "The Apostle of Joy," St. Phillip lived this virtue and brought people of all ages and backgrounds to the Church.
As a group of priests and lay men, we live a community life without vows and serve the people of God in various ministries:
♦ Parishes ♦ Campus Ministry
♦ Retreat Work ♦ Youth Summer Camp
♦ Nursing ♦ Hospital Chaplaincy
Like our ministries, our members are unique and come from across the United States and from Brazil.

Pope thanks journalists for keeping world informed of his work

By CINDY WOODEN
Catholic News Service

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — Pope John Paul II thanked journalists who, for almost 22 years, have kept the world informed about what he says and what he does.

Waving his cane to acknowledge journalists' applause while showing them he is not quite as frail as they sometimes report him to be, the 80-year-old pope concluded the June 1-4 Jubilee for Journalists.

Pope John Paul said he owed "a personal debt of gratitude to the numerous professionals who, throughout the years of my pontificate, have worked to make known the words and facts of my ministry."

"For this commitment, for the objectivity and courtesy which have characterized the majority of this service, I am deeply grateful," he said.

The pope told an estimated 7,000 journalists and family members that with their "vast and direct influence on public opinion" comes an equally weighty responsibility to report the truth and to turn people's attention to the needs of the weak and poor.

Journalism, he said, cannot be guided only by profit, popularity or politics.

The means of communication must be used "for the good of all and particularly for the good of the weakest sectors of society: from children to the poor, from the sick to people who are on the margins and discriminated against," the pope said.

"It is possible to be authentic Christians and excellent journalists at the same time," he said.

Celebrating the jubilee Mass June 4, French Cardinal Roger Etchegaray said that to fulfill their responsibility as voices for their fellow citizens, journalists have a right and obligation to make ethical demands on media owners.

Journalists must fight against the tendency to make news judgments based on the results of owners' politics or of opinion polls, said the cardinal, president of the Vatican's jubilee committee.

They also must resist "the tendency toward conformity" which results when one newspaper or program plagiarizes another and they all end up using the same source and providing the same point of view, he said.

Cardinal Etchegaray asked the journalists to "struggle against the dictatorship of urgency, of instant news, which is by no means a guarantee of truth."

With their questions and their potential impact on public opinion, he said, journalists can break "the circles of collective shortsightedness" and draw the world's attention to the needs of the poor and the victims of war.

The cardinal also paid "homage to those journalists who with courage have obtained great victories against fear, injustice, violence, hunger (and) illiteracy."

Like the pope, Cardinal Etchegaray had special thanks for the journalists who cover the Vatican; "thanks to them, the jubilee is truly a religious event which counts for all humanity."

Cardinal Edward I. Cassidy, president of the Pontifical Council for Promoting Christian Unity, and representatives of the World Council of Churches led a June 3 ecumenical prayer service for the journalists.

In his homily, the cardinal said journalists "are frequently called upon to report divisions and violence between members of a family, of opposing groups, of nations."

In reporting those kinds of events, Cardinal Cassidy said, journalists have a role in making reconciliation possible by providing information that can help people overcome prejudice and ignorance.

Journalism is a "powerful instrument for good or evil, for bringing opposed peoples together or confirming them in their divisions," he said.

The journalists' jubilee also included a June 2 evening press conference broadcast live to Washington, Mexico City, Manila, Philippines, and Johannesburg, South Africa. Technical difficulties prevented most participants outside the Vatican from asking questions.

Cardinal Angelo Sodano, Vatican secretary of state, introduced the press conference with a brief explanation of the Vatican's role in promoting peace and justice in the world.

"There are those who would like public denunciations and those who would prefer the Holy See to dedicate itself to a profound and silent work with those who have the fate of people in their hands," the cardinal said.

"The methods vary in every case," he said. "But one thing is certain: I can assure you that the Holy See's commitment in favor of peace will never diminish. The fate of humanity is at stake."

Bishop Diarmuid Martin, secretary of the Pontifical Council for Justice and Peace, told the journalists the Vatican had not given up hope that its efforts to convince rich countries to forgive the foreign debt of the world's poorest countries would bear fruit.

"There is almost a unanimous opinion that the reduction of the debt, or the elimination of the debt of the poorest countries of the world is a real necessity, a moral necessity and also an economic necessity," he said.

However, he said, the world's richest countries have not kept their promises to forgive or restructure the debt and provide development aid to the poorest nations.

"We cannot have a just international system if countries make promises they do not live up to," Bishop Martin said.

"My hope is that by the end of this jubilee year we will have gotten ourselves out of this current inertia, because there is a real danger that we will lose the gains we have made," he said. ▼

The Franciscan Center
Catholic Gift & Book Store
Over 700 Book Titles, plus Bibles, Rosaries, Statues, Medals, Tapes, CD's, Plaques, & much, much more!
Hours: 9am - 5pm Monday - Friday
(336) 273-2554 233 N. Greene St. Greensboro, NC 27401

"Our Specialty Is Loving Your Pets"
Pineville Animal Hospital
10833 Pineville Road, Pineville, NC
(Near Carolina Pavilion/AMC 22 Theater)
(704) 552-2005
In addition to our complete medical care facility, we also offer:
Boarding Kennels
Professional Grooming

Thomas N. Buckley, DVM, owner
Member of St. Vincent's

CFCC
Carolina Funeral & Cremation Center
Dignity
Affordability
Simplicity
5505 Monroe Rd. Charlotte, NC 28212
704-568-0023
www.carolinafuneral.com
Steven Kuzma
Owner/Director
Privately, Locally Owned
Member St. Matthew Church and Knights of Columbus

We Invite You To Join Us In Prayer Honoring Mary
Beginning July 16, the feast of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, the Carmelite Friars will offer 60 days of Prayers and Masses for the special intentions of those devoted to Our Heavenly Mother. Please send us your personal intentions to be included in all the prayer remembrances at the National Shrine of Our Lady of Mount Carmel during this glorious celebration.

A Special Offer for the Devoted...

For those especially devoted to Our Lady, we are making available a unique, rectangular Scapular Pendant Necklace featuring the images of Our Lady of Mount Carmel and the Sacred Heart of Jesus. The gold-tone pendant hangs on a 20" chain and is blessed here at the National Shrine.
For those enrolled in the Scapular, the Pendant Necklace can be worn in place of the Scapular. Made in Italy, the beautiful Scapular Pendant Necklace comes boxed for gift giving or you may wish to wear it yourself to express your devotion to Our Lady.

Father Matthew, O. Carm.
National Shrine of Our Lady of Mount Carmel™
PO Box 868 • Carmelite Drive
Middletown, NY 10940-0868
(914) 344-0876 (Calling Hours: 8:30am-4:30pm EST Mon-Fri)
Dear Father Matthew,
Please include my intentions in the devotions honoring Our Lady of Mount Carmel beginning July 16:
_____
_____
_____
_____
☐ I have enclosed an offering in support of Carmelite Ministry.
☐ $12 ☐ $20 ☐ $50 ☐ $_____
☐ My gift is $12 or more. Please send me the Blessed Scapular Pendant Necklace.
(A donation of $12 or more is suggested for each necklace requested.)
☐ Please send a FREE Blessed Scapular.
Please check boxes to receive items.
Name _____ (please print)
Address _____
City _____ State _____ Zip _____
Phone (____) _____
Your gift is tax deductible to the extent of the law.
CNH-00

Higher Education, from page 10

ecclesiastical authority."

In one of the few changes made to the original text in the consultations preceding final Vatican approval, a new footnote was added at that point explaining the standard canonical phrase "without prejudice to the rights of the local bishop."

The footnote says, "Although the general principle is that, once granted, there is no need for the 'mandatum' to be granted again by another diocesan bishop, every diocesan bishop has the right to require otherwise in his own diocese."

The final text of the application includes a few minor editorial revisions, such as substituting "universal law of the church" for "canon law" in one place and adding "students" to a sentence that omitted them in listing the various groups that form the university community.

Most of the changes consisted of inserting additional references to church documents in some of the footnotes.

The Vatican decree of recognition came from the Congregation for Bishops, which oversees the work of bishops' conferences worldwide. It said it found the norms valid and in conformity with church law after consultation with the Congregation for Catholic Education and the Pontifical Council for the Interpretation of Legislative Texts. ▼

Vatican refutes claim to end support for women

By TRACY EARLY
Catholic News Service

NEW YORK (CNS) — Charges by Amnesty International that the Vatican entered into an "unholy alliance" with some U.N. members to undermine support for women's rights are absolutely false, the Vatican's U.N. nuncio said.

Archbishop Renato R. Martino said in an interview June 7 that the Vatican was "always on the side of women" and supports the view that human rights applied to women and men alike.

Amnesty International made its allegations in a statement from its London headquarters June 5 regarding a special session of the U.N. General Assembly held to review implementation of the Plan of Action adopted at the 1995 Beijing Conference on Women.

Known as Beijing +5, the special session at U.N. headquarters in New York June 5-9 was arranged as one of a series to review results of recent international conferences after five years.

A review of the 1994 Cairo Conference on Population and Development was held in New York last year, and a review of the 1995 Copenhagen Conference on Social Development is to be held in Geneva June 26-30.

"The unholy alliance formed by the Holy See, Iran, Algeria, Nicaragua, Syria, Libya, Morocco and Pakistan has attempted to hold ransom women's human rights," Amnesty International charged regarding preparations for Beijing +5.

Pierre Sane, a native of Senegal who is the organization's general secretary, made similar comments in a speech June 4 at a forum at Columbia University in New York.

He charged that the Vatican and its allies had played "a very obstructive role" in negotiations at the United Nations and tried to renegotiate agreements reached in Beijing.

Archbishop Martino said the accusations from a human rights agency showed lack of awareness of what actually happened in the preparatory process, and were surprising because the Vatican had always supported human rights "in every respect."

Differences arose when some countries tried to impose the concept that practices such as same-sex marriage or abortion were human rights, he said.

He added that pressure on those points generally came from the wealthier countries, and that in confrontations at the United Nations on economic questions such as sanctions and the right to development, the Vatican was characteristically supporting the rights of the poorer countries.

The General Assembly was expected to issue a statement at the end of the special session, but the proposed document was still under negotiation.

Archbishop Martino said Sane was operating with a predetermined idea of how the document should be written when he accused some delegates of being obstructive.

If a committee had difficulty reaching agreement on what was supposed to be a consensus document, it would be no more valid to accuse one side of "obstructive" tactics than the other, the archbishop said.

He also denied that the Vatican had entered into any special alliances. "Absolutely not," he said. "We walk on a path, and sometimes we find companions walking on the same path."

If these companions are governments subject to criticism on other points, it does not make the relationship "unholy," the nuncio said.

Archbishop Martino said that on issues as protection of life and defense of the family, the Vatican sometimes supported language proposed by other delegations and the others sometimes supported Vatican proposals.

"When governments take positions that uphold basic principles inscribed in human nature, these have to be appreciated," the Vatican representative said.

Archbishop Martino said charges by Amnesty International that the Vatican and governments in agreement with it were trying to renegotiate positions adopted at Beijing really applied to the other side.

At Beijing, professor Mary Ann Glendon of the Harvard Law School, who chaired the Vatican delegation, said the document adopted there was flawed by "exaggerated individualism" and by giving "disproportionate attention to sexual and reproductive health."

As a result, the Vatican could accept the consensus language only in a partial way and with reservations specified in a document submitted for inclusion with her statement, she said.

However, in responding to the charges by Amnesty International, Archbishop Martino said the Vatican was not now attempting "to change anything adopted in Beijing."

On the contrary, the other side was attempting to "go beyond Beijing" and get acceptance of language not used there, he said. And he said this violated the ruling, given by the General Assembly when it voted to have the special session, that there should be no attempt to reopen the issues debated at Beijing. ▼

VGA & SVGA Refurbished Computer Monitors
14" — $20-$25
15" — $35-$38
17" — $70-$125
20" Call for details
30 day warranty
Over 2000 monitors in stock!

O.C. STAFFORD ELECTRONIC SERVICE & DEVELOPMENT COMPANY
408 Banner Ave., Greensboro, NC 27401
E-mail: urpac408@worldnet.att.net
(336) 274-9917

30 YEARS EXPERIENCE

PYANO MAN
HENRY C. ROZELL III
2nd Generation ◆ Piano Tuner/Technician
Piano Tuning, Repairs, Refinishing
Pianos Bought and Sold
FREE ESTIMATES
704-321-5843

JOHANNUS CHURCH ORGANS
America's best value in sound & price.
SYNTHIA MUSIC SYSTEMS
Catholic Hymns at the push of a button.
SOUND SYSTEMS
Totally wireless systems and hearing impaired devices.
CHURCH PIANOS
Quality pianos for affordable prices.
ELECTRONIC ORGAN SERVICE ON ALL MAKES
Music & Electronics, Inc.
Corner of Oak & Broad Streets, Mooresville, NC
(704) 663-7007 — (800) 331-0768

June 16 1-9 pm
June 17 8 am-6 pm

St. Pius X High School
Atlanta, GA
Catholic Home Educators of Georgia presents
Regional Catholic Home Education Conference and Curriculum Fair
FEATURING:
Fr. Andrew Apostoli, keynote speaker (Fri.) And celebrant at Mass (Sat.)
Mary Hasson, author of "Catholic Education, Homeward Bound"
Laurie Gill, author of several books on Catholic family traditions
Also: Kathleen Julicher, Jeff Minick, Fr. Jack Durkin, Fr. Kevin Peek, Dr. Kathleen Raviele,
Workshops, 25 topics, including how to get started, curriculum, family life
A Vendor Fair, 20 vendors, including Catholic bookstores with textbooks, toys and more!
REGISTRATION & INFORMATION:
(770) 504-3136 or e-mail kadonald@juno.com

Book Review

Bishop offers hope for moral decline, contends other eras have been worse

By LOU JACQUET
Catholic News Service

As the year 2000 nears its halfway point, more than a few commentators have been heard to say that America is in a state of serious moral decline.

In such a climate, Bishop Thomas G. Doran of Rockford, Ill., brings a refreshing take on the problems of the day. Things have been much worse in previous eras, the bishop contends, and may be worse again in the future.

But the Catholic Church offers a time-tested prescription for the world's ills that works in every age and outlasts even the most overwhelming problems of the day. He urges Catholics to avoid despair and pessimism and take the longer view.

This volume, compiled and edited from the bishop's speeches and writings, seeks to counteract what the author calls the "religion of secularism and atheism" espoused by the nation's media.

Bishop Doran considers the many changes in our fast-paced modern world, noting that "not all change is for the better" and expressing concern that today's Americans have in some respects "left a declining quality of life for the next generation."

But there is hope, he stresses, because those who follow the direction set by the Ten Commandments cannot help but build a better society. The timeless truths found therein can make a genuine difference in the lives of individuals and American society at large if these truths were but better articulated and better understood, he believes.

The book is full of common-sense thought articulated in direct and forceful fashion. "We accept things in contemporary society that we know in the depths of our being are terribly, terribly wrong," Bishop Doran writes, "and we do not want to talk about them."

Bishop Doran clearly respects church teaching; perhaps one of his most important contributions here for those in the pews involves his ability to tackle complex issues in a readable and understandable manner with down-to-earth examples to illustrate his points.

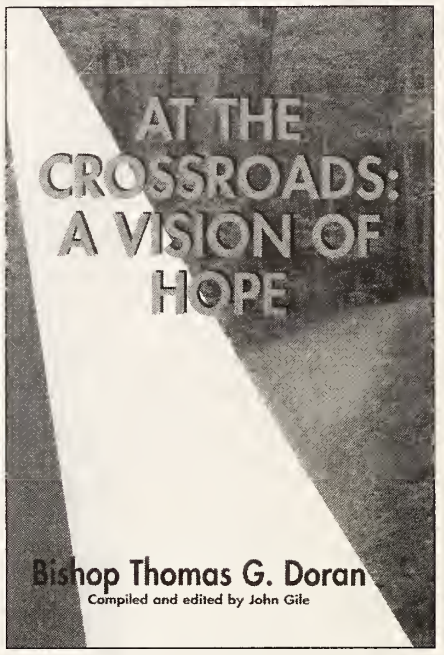
He draws an interesting distinction between law and faith, noting that law settles arguments but "is not for forging a people." He stresses the importance of the Judeo-Christian tradition in keeping human dignity at the forefront of discussion in the United States, though he acknowledges that the quality of life in the United States is now too often based on materialism, consumerism and individualism.

In the strongest section of the work, he asserts that "taking God out of the picture has sent us on a false quest, a mistaken trip, a journey to nowhere." His discussion on the failure of materialism, consumerism and individualism to satisfy would provide a good beginning for discussion on those topics in religious education classrooms or small faith-sharing groups.



"At the Crossroads: A Vision of Hope"
By Bishop Thomas G. Doran
JCG/United Publishing Corps (Rockford, Ill., 2000)
173 pp., $19.95.

Readers will find Bishop Doran's ruminations filled with interesting sidelights. Among them: that the United States has 50 million illiterate people; that the Nicene Creed, composed about 325 A.D., has articulated core Catholic truths down to our own day without need of updating; that the 1347-51 "Black Death" in Europe led to a later flowering of the catechetical movement because it wiped out many who knew the faith and could articulate it.

His cultural commentary is drop-dead accurate: "Adultery has become, on daytime TV, a major indoor sport."

Bishop Doran clearly respects church teaching; perhaps one of his most important contributions here for those in the pews involves his ability to tackle complex issues in a readable and understandable manner with down-to-earth examples to illustrate his points.

Finally, though not many Catholics seem to think of becoming a saint these days, Bishop Doran rightly suggests that "there is no one who cannot become a saint by using the helps available through the church."

He writes that it has been his intention to introduce a few of the "basic, vital treasures" of the church "with the intention of providing a solid base from which (the reader) may launch or continue (his or her) own exploration and "discover many more reasons for hope."

That is a worthwhile reason to compile a book, and this one has thought-provoking depth. Mission accomplished. ▼

Jacquet is editor/general manager of The Catholic Exponent, newspaper of the Diocese of Youngstown, Ohio.

Word to Life

June 11, Pentecost Sunday, Cycle B Readings:

1) Acts 2:1-11
Psalm 104:1ab, 24ac, 29bc-30, 31, 34
2) 1 Corinthians 12:3b-7, 12-13
3) Gospel: John 20:19-23

By BEVERLY CORZINE
Catholic News Service

Several years ago a friend and I were driving past St. Michael's Catholic Community in Bedford. Out in front of the church, festive red banners and long red streamers were flying joyously in a snappy spring breeze. The mere sight of all that red said "celebration" and inspired an unexpected conversation between two friends of different faiths about the Pentecost events recorded in Acts that will be proclaimed this weekend.

The reading is filled with vivid images of a house filling with the noise of a great wind and tongues of fire hovering over the people gathered inside. Outside the house others express amazement and confusion when they hear about the "mighty acts of God" stated publicly to them by a group of unsophisticated but Spirit-filled Galileans.

The question that seems to occupy the passersby in Acts is the same question that my friend and I found fascinating: Who are these Galileans?

We agree that we are exceedingly grateful for the few verses that precede today's Acts reading. For us it always has been wonderful to know that Jesus' mother was there, along with the apostles, the women who had followed Jesus and a number of unnamed others who bring the total count up to about 120.

Some of the 120 we imagine have questionable backgrounds. Most probably none of the power elite are gathered there on this particular day. They are ordinary people who have been blessed with an extraordinary encounter with Jesus and have received his promised gift of the Holy Spirit.

Indeed, who are these Galileans? They are ordinary people who open themselves completely to the Holy Spirit and change the world.

My friend and I remember the words in a book titled "Oh the Places You'll Go!" by Dr. Seuss. We often read it to our senior students a few days before graduation.

The opening words from this familiar children's book connect with the festive spirit of the red Pentecost banners we saw fluttering in the wind. Moreover, we agree that the words echo the message those seemingly unimportant Galileans received so long ago in the Upper Room: "Congratulations! Today is your day. You're off to great places! You're off and away!"

Question:
Have you sought the Holy Spirit's guidance to lead you into the service of God, of his word, of his people, of the poor?

"When you send forth your spirit, they are created, and you renew the face of the earth"
— Psalm 104:30

Weekly Scripture

Readings for the week of June 11 - 17, 2000

Pentecost Sunday, Acts 2:1-11, 1 Corinthians 12:3-7, 12-13, John 20:19-23; Monday, 1 Kings 17:1-6, Matthew 5:1-12; Tuesday (St. Anthony of Padua), 1 Kings 17:7-16, Matthew 5:13-16; Wednesday, 1 Kings 18:20-39, Matthew 5:17-19; Thursday, 1 Kings 18:41-46, Matthew 5:20-26; Friday, 1 Kings 19:9, 11-16, Matthew 5:27-32; Saturday, 1 Kings 19:19-21, Matthew 5:33-37

Readings for the week of June 18 - 24, 2000

Trinity Sunday, Deuteronomy 4:32-34, 39-40, Romans 8:14-17, Matthew 28:16-20; Monday (St. Romuald), 1 Kings 21:1-16, Matthew 5:38-42; Tuesday, 1 Kings 21:17-29, Matthew 5:43-48; Wednesday (St. Aloysius Gonzaga), 2 Kings 2:1, 6-14, Matthew 6:1-6, 16-18; Thursday (Sts. John Fisher and Thomas More), Sirach 48:1-14, Matthew 6:7-15; Friday, 2 Kings 11:1-4, 9-18, 20; Matthew 6:19-23; Saturday (Birth of St. John the Baptist), Isaiah 49:1-6, Luke 1:57-66, 80

Catholic Bestsellers List for June 2000

According to the Catholic Book Publishers Association.

Hardcover

1. "Lamb's Supper." Scott Hahn (Doubleday)
2. "She Said Yes." Misty Bernall (Plough Publishing)
3. "Why Forgive." Johann Christoph Arnold (Plough Publishing)
4. "Francis of Assisi," Vol. 2: The Founder. Regis Armstrong (New City Press)
5. "Catechism of the Catholic Church." (Our Sunday Visitor)
6. "Imitation of Christ." Thomas a Kempis (Catholic Book Publishing)
7. "Life of the Beloved." Henri J.M. Nouwen (Crossroad)
8. "St. Alphonsus & His Brothers." Hamish Swanston (Liguori)
9. "Lives of the Saints" Vol. 1. Hugo Hoever (Catholic Book Publishing)
10. "Witness to Hope." George Weigel (HarperCollins)

Video reviews

NEW YORK (CNS) — The following are home videocassette reviews from the U.S. Catholic Conference Office for Film and Broadcasting. Each videocassette is available on VHS format. Theatrical movies on video have a U.S. Catholic Conference classification and Motion Picture Association of America rating. All reviews indicate the appropriate age group for the video audience.

"As Good as It Gets" (1997)

Acerbic comedy in which a misanthropic author (Jack Nicholson) tries to rejoin the human race after falling in love with a tolerant waitress (Helen Hunt) and befriending a broke homosexual artist (Greg Kinnear). Directed by James L. Brooks, the thin plot begins with the mean-spirited humor of Nicholson's nasty, self-centered sociopath, then turns mushy as he attempts to reform but the proceedings are overlong and only sporadically amusing. Stylized violence, sexual situations, recurring rough language and occasional profanity. The U.S. Catholic Conference classification is A-IV — adults, with reservations. The Motion Picture Association of America rating is PG-13 — parents are strongly cautioned. Some material may be inappropriate for children under 13.

"Comfort and Joy" (1984)

The melancholy-comic chronicle of the worst Christmas week ever spent by an aging Scottish disc jockey (Bill Peterson) who, deserted by his mistress, throws himself into his work and becomes involved as mediator in a local ice cream war. Directed by Bill Forsyth, there's not much of interest here except for the Glasgow locale. The U.S. Catholic Conference classification is A-II — adults and adolescents. The Motion Picture Association of America rating is PG — parental guidance suggested.

"Crucible of Empire: The Spanish-American War" (1999)

Thoughtful documentary chronicles how the United States, encouraged in part by Hearst newspaper accounts of Spanish brutality in Cuba, entered the war with Spain in 1898 and became a colonial power as a result. The visually splendid and well-assembled documentary revisits the debate over American imperialism as historians provide provocative commentary from many perspectives. The U.S. Catholic Conference classification is A-II — adults and adolescents. Not rated by the Motion Picture Association of America.

"Five Easy Pieces" (1970)

Jack Nicholson gives an outstanding performance as a young man who has lost his sense of identity and is wasting his life searching and unsatisfied. Directed with precision by Bob Rafelson, the movie's best scene is when Nicholson breaks down and confesses his loneliness to his stroke-victim father. The movie's moral ambiguity makes it more suitable for serious viewing rather than casual entertainment. The U.S. Catholic Conference classification is A-IV — adults, with reservations. The Motion Picture Association of America rating is R — restricted.

"The Little Shop of Horrors" (1986)

Low-budget comic chiller in which a dim florist's clerk (Jonathan Haze) nurtures a small carnivorous plant, then winds up killing people to feed its insatiable appetite as it grows to monstrous size. Directed by Roger Corman, the tongue-in-cheek proceedings range from the weird to the gruesome, including a masochist (Jack Nicholson) who enjoys visiting dentists and a plant that calls out, "Feed me," when it's hungry. Comic violence, menacing situations and sexual innuendo. The U.S. Catholic Conference classification is A-III — adults. Not rated by the Motion Picture Association of America.

"Man on the Moon" (1999)

Uninvolving biography about 1970s-80s comedian Andy Kaufman (Jim Carrey), whose peculiar sense of humor, elaborate charades and the abrasive style of his vulgar alter-ego character drew some ardent admirers but an increasingly indifferent public by the time of his death at age 35. As directed by Milos Forman, no insights emerge about the oddball entertainer and despite Carrey's uncanny performance viewers may wonder why this minor figure merited a major motion picture biography. Sexual situations with nudity, a live-in relationship, brief wrestling violence, occasional profanity and sporadic rough language. The U.S. Catholic Conference classification is A-III — adults. The Motion Picture Association of America rating is R — restricted.

"One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" (1975)

Screen version of the Ken Kesey novel about an abortive rebellion in a mental institution led by a drifter (Jack Nicholson) feigning mental illness to avoid being sent to a prison farm. Director Milos Forman's smooth, low-keyed movie about life in an asylum is filled with colorful, often amusing incidents and characterizations, but the central confrontation between the sane drifter and the repressed and repressing nurse (Louise Fletcher) is too contrived to evoke a strong emotional response. Some violence, very rough dialogue and an incident presenting loveless sexual intercourse as therapeutic. The U.S. Catholic Conference classification is A-IV — adults, with reservations. The Motion Picture Association of America rating is R — restricted.

PBS biopic covers last years of German minister who stood up to Nazi regime

By GERRI PARE
Catholic News Service

NEW YORK (CNS) — A German minister stands up to the Nazi regime at great personal cost in the fact-based "Bonhoeffer: Agent of Grace," airing Wednesday, June 14, 9:30-11 p.m. EDT on PBS.

This well-crafted biopic covers the last six years of the life of Dietrich Bonhoeffer (Ulrich Tukur), a highly respected Lutheran theologian who returned from the States to 1939 Berlin, where he spoke out against Hitler's policies, especially his virulent anti-Semitism.

Although watched closely by the Nazis, Bonhoeffer was recruited for the Abwehr, a German military agency, which gave him cover to be active in the Resistance. As a secret courier, he smuggled Jews out of Germany while continuing to write about his burning philosophical concern, ethics.

At the same time the 37-year-old Bonhoeffer fell in love with and became engaged to 18-year-old Maria von Wedemeyer (Johanna Klante).

The drama intelligently presents how Bonhoeffer was conflicted by the violence around him that he opposed, but reluctantly gave his blessing to, a Hitler assassination plot.

Despite his status within military intelligence, Bonhoeffer came under suspicion and was arrested in 1943. In prison he found a new sense of ministry and refused opportunities to escape, feeling he was needed by his fellow prisoners. Maria's visits sustained him emotionally as he steadfastly refused to divulge any information about the Resistance.

As his faith deepened in the appreciation of the sufferings of those around him united to Christ on the cross, he was transferred from the Gestapo prison in Berlin to Buchenwald, where he was hanged in April 1945.

"Bonhoeffer: Agent of Grace"
June 14, 9:30-11 p.m. EDT
on PBS

Director Eric Till gives the philosophical issues a fine human dimension and a sense of urgency in this inspiring true story. The sole fault is that the cast often speaks at a whisper level, requiring viewers to listen carefully to understand their dialogue. That, added to their accents, can be daunting at times but the concentration is worth the effort. Bonhoeffer is seen facing several ethical quandaries that tax his beliefs as he struggles to be truly Christian and an example to his cell mates.

Tukur's bland face nonetheless manages to convey his desire to live and raise a family with his beloved Maria, but not at a cost of betraying anyone — not even his own conscience.

This is a quality picture that many should find worthwhile. ▼

Pare is director of the U.S. Catholic Conference Office for Film and Broadcasting.

The Pope Speaks

POPE JOHN PAUL II

Pope says Rome is place for worldwide spiritual renewal

By JOHN NORTON
Catholic News Service

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — The huge flow of pilgrims to Rome for the jubilee underscores the city's unique vocation as a spiritual reference point for Christians and the whole world, said Pope John Paul II.

"Numerous pilgrims from every part of the earth are coming to (Peter's) tomb to celebrate the jubilee of the Lord's incarnation and to profess Peter's same faith in Christ," he said.

"This demonstrates once again the particular vocation which Divine Providence reserved to Rome: that of being a reference point for the communion and unity of all the church, and of the spiritual renewal of all humanity," he said.

The pope made his remarks during a Mass May 28 in St. Peter's Square on the Jubilee for the Diocese of Rome, attended by some 70,000 Romans.

Christ's commandment to his followers to love one another as he loved them should strike Romans with particular force, he said.

"Does not the church of Rome have perhaps the specific duty to 'preside in charity' in the entire Christian communion? Yes, the commandment of love commits our church of Rome with a special force and urgency," he said.

He called Romans to express this love in their "joyful and kind" welcoming of pilgrims. More than 20 million people from around the world, seven times Rome's population, were expected to visit during the jubilee year.

In a greeting before the Mass, Cardinal Camillo Ruini, vicar of the Rome Diocese, announced the dedication of a new parish to St. Charles Borromeo, the pope's patron saint, as a "gesture of best wishes" for the pope's 80th birthday May 18. The new parish brought to the total number of Roman parishes to 330, of which the pope has visited 291.

Pope donates $50,000 to fight hunger, poverty in North Korea

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — Pope John Paul II has made the first donation in response to an appeal from Catholic charities to fight hunger and poverty in North Korea.

The pope gave $50,000 to the campaign to raise $3.6 million to augment food supplies, assist farmers and provide health care and education, reported Fides, the news agency of the Congregation for the Evangelization of Peoples.

The papal donation was made through the Pontifical Council "Cor Unum," the Vatican council that coordinates and encourages charitable giving, Fides said June 2.

Executive pay mirrors an ugly system

In 1998 Michael Eisner, CEO of Disney, commanded the highest compensation package of any CEO, $576 million. In comparison, just ten years before, he topped the highest paid list when his pay package hit $40 million.

Between 1990 and 1998, average CEO pay rose 443 percent, while workers' pay rose only 28 percent. Some other ugly comparisons: In 1999, Microsoft CEO Bill Gates, Berkshire Hathaway CEO Warren Buffett, and former Microsoft executive Paul Allen possessed a combined wealth of $156 billion more than the combined GNP's of the poorest 43 nations on earth.

The 475 people worldwide worth over a billion dollars in 1999 (totaling beyond $1.7 trillion) surpassed the combined incomes of the world's poorest half of humanity.

The unprecedented level of wealth and inequality of CEOs comes from the system of compensation. Stock options play a key role, since salary and bonuses now represent only 20 percent of top executives' pay. Because of the compensation structure, U.S. CEOs of major companies earned 419 times the pay of the average blue collar worker in 1998, whereas the ratio in Japan approached 20 to 1 and in Great Britain 35 to 1.

Critics of excessive executive pay recognize the power of money in the political process. The wealthy contribute to the candidates and get disproportional political access and influence. Other critics focus on the economic negatives. Excessive CEO pay hurts employee morale. It undermines the bottom line of corporate earnings. And it shifts the tax burden from the corporation to the taxpayer by allowing corporate deductions for executive salaries, benefits and perks as business expenses.

While respecting the arguments against excessive pay in regard to democracy and effective business practices, people of faith raise two additional considerations: Greed and community.

Paul reminds Timothy: "For the love of money is the root of all evils" (I Tim. 6:10.) Yet, the entire American culture shows a preoccupation with money. During the work day, the media hourly reports the movements of the stock market. TV and radio programming focuses on getting rich and personal money matters. Financial advisers counsel

Economy of Faith

FATHER JOHN RAUSCH
Guest Columnist

middle class couples to amass a million dollars just for a modest retirement. A society based on rugged individualism will feed greed because few can feel truly financially secure.

Yet, community can alleviate excessive greed. Images like the vine and the branches, the body of Christ, and brothers and sisters in the Lord offer a security for those disregarded by the economic system.

John Paul II expresses this common bond: "On the basis of his work, each person is fully entitled to consider himself a part-owner of the great workbench at which he is working with everyone else." (Laborem Exercens, par. 14.6.)

Ron, not a CEO but an executive with a Fortune 500 company, watched his firm restructure and reduce his department by 25 percent a few years back. His personal secretary of ten years, a female minority worker struggling as a single parent to raise a teenage daughter, became support staff for seven people.

When Ron's department exceeded its production goals at year's end, he got a bonus. Support staff, although essential to helping bosses meet their goals, did not qualify for bonuses. Ron, however, recognized the hypocrisy, took out his checkbook and shared his bonus with his secretary.

Until shareholder campaigns prevail against excessive executive pay, or legislation limits the deductibility of executive compensation, people of faith will need the creativity of Ron to limit the greed of the system and promote the community of all workers.

Glenmary Father John S. Rausch writes, teaches and organizes in Appalachia.

Advice for grads

TOM SHERIDAN
Guest Columnist

This is graduation time; thousands of Catholic students — from public and parochial high schools and universities — are listening, perhaps endlessly, to commencement speeches. They are being encouraged to change the world, to make it better, to be successful, to maybe earn lots of money in the process.

Many, if we're to be honest about it, would rather the speeches just be over so they can get on with their lives. As one who's heard, and given, a commencement address or three, I understand that impatience. The world beckons.

What the graduates don't deserve, however, is a commencement-address view of the world that strips it from all things spiritual. And I don't just mean the feel-good-inside-no-matter-what-shows-outside kind of spirituality that sometimes passes for reality these days.

Oh, there will be plenty of that, sometimes wrapped in pleasing packages like the talk given by Oprah Winfrey at Roosevelt University. No knock on her talk; it said many of the right things. She told the grads that life is a "contract with the Creator." And, asking that "higher power," "What would you have me do?"

Of course, those are bits of good advice. It's a mantra that certainly has worked for Winfrey. But it's just a little incomplete.

Spirituality is a component of faith; without faith, mere spirituality could get lonely.

Too many commencement speakers appeal to the go-it-alone, shoulder-the-load, take-on-the-world sense of entrepreneurial individualism fostered in our culture these day, the "I can do it; if it's to be, it's gotta be me" attitude.

Faith is more complex — and perhaps more difficult — because it calls people to community, without surrendering their individuality.

Here's an unsolicited nugget for grads of the Class of 2000: Succeed? Certainly. Change the world? It sure can use changing. Earn a good living? At least enough to live. More important, though, find someone to hold hands with while you do all that. And then find a community of faith to support, and be supported by.

The world — and you — will be better for it.

Tom Sheridan is editor and general manager of The Catholic New World, newspaper of the Archdiocese of Chicago.

Send your Letter to the Editor to Joann S. Keane, The Catholic News & Herald, 1123 South Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203 or e-mail: jskeane@charlottediocese.org.

Light One Candle

FATHER THOMAS J. McSWEENEY
GUEST COLUMNIST

Fatherhood means being there

I guess maybe it is because I have never had to balance my job with the responsibilities of being a parent, but I just don't get it! What does all this talk about having "quality" time with your kids mean?

My dad's idea of parenting was about "quantity" time. I cannot recall one event or moment in my childhood, or early adult life, when I felt, wished, or thought my father should be there and wasn't. From those frigid winter mornings helping me on my paper route to when I had my first car breakdown in the middle of the night, somehow my dad was always there for me, in every sense of the term.

Sadly, today's statistics on parenting reveal that everyone does not have the kind of father I did. Fewer and fewer men are living up to the honor and responsibilities of fatherhood. Between 1960 and 1990, the percentage of kids living apart from their biological fathers more than doubled from 17 to 36 percent. To me that means the image of any father, let alone a loving father, is becoming an abstract concept to many of our youngest generation. And many youngsters who do live with their dads do not experience the warm, close relationship that can mean so much to a child's well-being and character.

Even so, I am convinced that millions of men are doing a great job of being dads. And I believe that examples of fathers who take their roles seriously just might inspire other men to reassess their duties as dads.

That is exactly what John Ream was compelled to do when he asked one of his daughters to share some memory about him from when she was growing up. She replied bluntly: "To tell you the truth, Dad, you were gone a lot."

Ream, a former Marine and retired president of a large financial institution, owned up to the fact that he was gone a lot — both physically and emotionally. But his daughter's words motivated him to dedicate himself to his family and to help young fathers. He teaches lessons in parenting through his crash course, "The Effective Father Seminar," an informal gathering that gets men back on track with their children and their wives.

Some high profile dads have decided to scale back their careers to benefit their kids and themselves as family. Glenn McCleod, senior bank executive, was able to cut back his hours. He led his two sons' Boy Scout troop, volunteered for community activities and spent more time with his wife. He says he has gained a new self-confidence as a father and feels "a lot richer in life, and a tremendous increase in energy, to tackle whatever comes along." William Galston, a former presidential policy advisor, says, "I have never had a moment's regret" since resigning in order to join a university faculty. "I am indispensable in one place and only one place," he insists — "at home."

Not every father can, or should, change careers. But every father can make some choices about how and where he spends his time. Many parents try very hard to give their children "everything." But if everything does not include their time and presence, they do their youngsters and themselves an injustice.

So, Dads, I wish you a good time this Father's Day. Mostly, I just wish you time — with your family.

Father Thomas J. McSweeney is director of The Christophers.

Planned Giving

JIM KELLEY
GUEST COLUMNIST

Memorial gifts honor loves ones

Spring is a time our thoughts turn to cherished loved ones. Mother's Day, Memorial Day, graduations and Father's Day lead us to reflect on the impact those who are dearest to us have had on our lives and our communities.

Many people search for an appropriate means of remembering loved ones through a memorial gift in their honor. The church offers many opportunities for memorial giving of which you may not be aware.

One family combined their resources to establish an endowment in the diocesan Foundation to honor their father's life. The Robert F. Moeller endowment was established through his children's gifts to the Foundation and will make grants in his name to those seeking financial assistance for elder living arrangements.

Some families choose to make memorial gifts directly to a parish. Others may choose to make a gift to their favorite Catholic school to honor a retiring teacher or administrator. Charlotte Catholic High School recently established an endowment in the diocesan Foundation to honor Sister Paulette Williams for her many years as principal.

Gifts made in honor of a loved one are most often made in the form of a check. This is a convenient method for the giver, provides a tax deduction within allowable limits for those who itemize their deductions, and can readily be put to good use by the church.

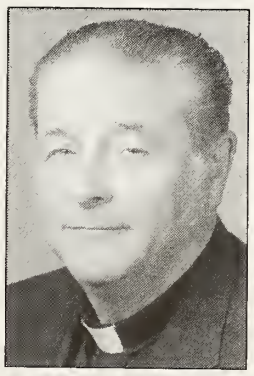
But, cash is only one of many funding sources for memorial gifts. Assets such as stocks, bonds and mutual funds that have increased in value can also be used to make gifts in honor of others. In addition, by using appreciated assets to create a memorial or honor gift, you can receive extra tax savings.

When you fund a memorial gift with an appreciated stock you have owned for more than one year, you can deduct the entire market value from your taxable income. Plus, you avoid any capital gains tax on the stock because you donated it for charitable use. These additional tax savings are why many people prefer to make memorial gifts using assets other than cash.

Another means of creating a memorial is to do so through a gift that is completed through your will or long-range estate plan. One couple who lost a daughter many years ago made a provision through their will to create an endowment in the diocesan Foundation as a means to memorialize her too brief life.

From having a Mass said in your loved one's honor to establishing a permanent endowment through the Foundation, there are several different ways to memorialize someone dear to you. If you are searching for a way to create a lasting memorial to a loved one in your life, or if you are looking for a meaningful gift for a graduation, Mother's Day or Father's Day, consider a gift that will tangibly benefit the entire Catholic community. Perhaps the right gift is a gift in memory or tribute to your parish, Catholic school, agency, the diocese or the Foundation. Please contact me for additional information on memorial giving opportunities: Jim Kelley, Director of Development, (704) 370-3301, 1123 S Church St, Charlotte, NC 28203.

Question Corner



FATHER JOHN DIETZEN
CNS COLUMNIST

Notes about celiac disease

Dear Father Dietzen: It was good to read in a recent column your discussion of celiac disease, a problem we faced years ago in a vacuum. Good also to know we came to similar conclusions.

In the late '60s, our youngest son was diagnosed as probably having celiac/sprue disease, a malabsorption syndrome in which the small intestine cannot absorb food nutrients in the presence of gluten. This means they cannot tolerate wheat and several other grains.

As for receiving wine, in correspondence with some industry people in Canada I learned that only wine fermented by wild yeast is safe, since "domestic" yeast is grown with the forbidden grains.

I was advised to use foreign wines, because wine makers in Europe generally used wild yeast, at least at that time. Thank you for your help.

I am grateful to this mother and the dozens of other readers who responded with their experiences, diet suggestions, frustrations, and some disagreements with parts of my column.

From all this, I learned at least three lessons.

— First, there are far more people suffering from this complicated and often very dangerous disease than I imagined. Nearly 100,000 men, women and children are known to have it. It is thought the sickness remains unrecognized for many thousands of others. The complex of symptoms seems often not easy for physicians to identify and diagnose.

— Second, celiacs report amazingly diverse, sometimes contradictory, experiences of what they can and cannot bear. For example, a number easily tolerate part (some even all) of a Communion host; for others even a tiny piece excites the allergy.

Some can tolerate no wine, especially if it contains sulfates. Others say they can take only American, or only European, wine. And so on.

Obviously, each one's regimen needs to be worked out in consultation with a personal physician.

One thing all agree on. They feel there should be some way they could receive the Eucharist without endangering their health, if not their lives.

— Third, on a different plane, it is astonishing to me that some Catholics' eucharistic theology on this subject is, to put it at its kindest, so greatly confused. Several wrote reminding me quite firmly that after the consecration at Mass, bread is no longer present. It has become the body of Christ. Therefore, to speak of someone being affected by wheat in the bread is effectively to deny the Catholic faith.

The same argument is raised when I bring up the point that recovering alcoholics usually do not receive Communion from the cup. This group insists that the wine (alcohol) which was in the chalice is no longer there. It is now the blood of Christ and thus could have no alcoholic effect on a believer.

Most Catholics are aware, of course, that this notion contradicts Catholic teaching, that in the Eucharist the substance of the bread and wine is changed but the "accidents," the physical characteristics of bread and wine, remain.

Apart from this, however, it tends to lay an unjust guilt trip on celiac sufferers, implying that their problem is in fact nothing but a lack of faith.

Fortunately, good resources are available for celiac patients and their families, particularly from the Celiac Sprue Association, Omaha, Neb. 68131-0700. Their Web site (www.csaceliacs.org) is also loaded with helpful background and practical information.

Nun named head of National Religious Retirement Office

WASHINGTON (CNS) — Sister Andree Fries, a member of the Sisters of the Most Precious Blood of O'Fallon, Mo., has been named director of the National Religious Retirement Office.

Sister Fries, 58, had for the past 20 months served as the office's project director for retirement services.

She succeeds Sister Mary Leahy, a member of the Sisters of Providence of St. Mary of the Woods, Ind., who had been director for the past three years.

Sister Fries also had served with the National Religious Retirement Office as associate director and director of allocations from 1987 to 1991, when the office was known as the Tri-Conference Retirement Project.

She was superior general of her order for two terms, 1980-86 and 1992-98, and vicar general and member of its administrative council, 1974-80. In additions, she was her order's director of financial planning, 1970-74.

Sister Fries, who entered religious life in 1959, is a past president of the Leadership Conference of Women Religious, 1994-96.

In the Archdiocese of St. Louis, she served on its finance council and its strategic pastoral planning committee, both 1995-98, and as a trustee of the archdiocesan cemetery board, 1993-98.

From 1995 to 1998, Sister Fries was one of three elected U.S. representatives to the International Union of Superiors General in Rome.

Sister Fries co-founded the National Association of Treasurers of Religious Institutes and served as on the national board, 1977-81, including as its vice president, 1979-81.

She holds a master's degree in business administration from southern Illinois University and a bachelor's degree in business from Quincy College (now a university) in Illinois.

The National Religious Retirement Office is jointly sponsored by the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, the Leadership Conference of women Religious, the Conference of Major Superiors of Men and the Council of Major Superiors of Women Religious.

The office is responsible for publicizing the annual Retirement Fund for Religious national collection, held the second weekend of December in most U.S. dioceses. ▼

Classifieds

Classified ads bring results! Over 110,000 readers! Over 44,000 homes!
Rates: $.50/word per issue ($10 minimum per issue)
Deadline: 12 noon Wednesday, 9 days before publication date
How to order: Ads may be faxed to (704) 370-3382 or mailed to:
Cindi Feerick, The Catholic News & Herald, 1123 S. Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203.
Payment: Ads may be pre-paid or billed. For information, call (704) 370-3332.

EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES

Administrative Assistant: Part-time. Approximately 12-20 hours per week. Non-smoker with good communications, phone, computer skills. Prefer financial background. Resume and references to Hook Financial Group, 4801 E. Independence Blvd., Box 601, Charlotte NC 28212.

Assistant Secretary: Asheville Catholic School. Attendance/First Aid Office. M-F, full time. CPR and First Aid certification required. Call (828)252-7896 for information. EOE.

Campus Ministry Openings: Internship in Campus Ministry for Wingate University; $600/month stipend; Room/Board; $2,000 graduate school tuition grant. Send resume, three reference letters, cover letter to: Director of Campus Ministry, 1123 S. Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203-4003 by June 16th.

Clerk, Human Resources: Full-time position at the Diocese of Charlotte Pastoral Center. Hours are 9am to 5pm, Monday through Friday. Applicant must be well organized and detail-oriented, have strong verbal and interpersonal skills. Must be proficient in Microsoft Office. Excellent benefits and work environment. Application should be made by June 23 to: Diocese of Charlotte, Human Resources Department, 1123 S. Church St., Charlotte NC 28203.

Cosmetologists/Barbers: Full-time and part-time. Charlotte area upscale salon seeking warm-hearted, skilled stylists and barbers. Convenient south Charlotte location. $12 per hour + tips. Please call (704) 341-4260.

Counselor: Part-time. St. Pius X Catholic School, Greensboro. Practicing Catholic with master's in counseling and guidance. NC certification required. Experience preferred. Benefits included. Send resume to: C. Usischon, 2200 N. Elm St., Greensboro, NC 27408 or Fax (336)273-0199.

Custodian, Full-time: Begin work June 1, 2000. Asheville Catholic School. Call Randy Penland, Maintenance Supervisor at (828)252-7896. EOE.

Director: Retreat Center, rural southwest Virginia. Ecumenical spirit, experience in retreat ministry, administration. Bachelor's or master's. Catholic in good standing. Living on site. Richmond Diocese, full-time. Application, job description: (540)623-5285, e-mail jomart@naxs.com or Search Committee, 19188 Jonesboro Road, Abingdon, VA, 24211. Applications June 27, postion opens August 15th.

Director of Adult Catholic Enrichment/Order of Christian Initiation: Holy Family Catholic Church of Marietta seeks a full-time salaried Director for Adult Catholic Enrichment (ACE) and the Order of Christian Initiation (OCI) programs. Applicants should have leadership experience in ACE/OCI areas and/or have religious education degreed background suitable to develop high quality programs and volunteer assistance in the community. Must be practicing Catholic. If interested, please submit resume and cover letter to Theresa Johnson, Director of Religious Education at Holy Family Catholic Church, 3401 Lower Roswell Rd., Marietta, GA 30068. Fax (770) 578-0475. Inquire at (770) 973-7400, ext. 21 with questions.

Director of Religious Education: Holy Family Catholic Church in Marietta seeks a full-time salaried Director for its Religious Education programs. Practical leadership experience in the continuing development of a full range of primary, secondary, young adult and adult based Religious Education programs is essential. The ability to encourage a spirit of volunteerism to meet broad community needs is a must. Should be competent in managing all educational levels and administrative staff functions. Must have bachelors and/or advanced degree in education and/or religious training. Must be practicing Catholic. Holy Family's Religious Education programs serve a multi-cultural community. Fluency in Spanish or equivalent background experience would be a useful asset. If interested, please submit resume and cover letter to Theresa Johnson, Director of Religious Education, Holy Family Catholic Church, 3401 Lower Roswell Rd., Marietta, GA 30068. Fax (770) 578-0475. Inquire at (770)973-7400, ext. 21 with questions.

Elementary and Middle School Positions: Immaculate Heart of Mary School has openings for the following positions for the 2000-2001 school year: Assistant Principal/Teacher (Master's in Administration, practicing Catholic): Middle School teachers of Social Studies, Language Arts, Science and Math; Grades 4 and 5 teachers. Interested certified teachers may contact Margene Wilkins, principal, 605 Barbee Avenue, High Point, NC 27262; or call (336)887-2613; or fax (336)884-1849.

Faith Formation Coordinator: Our Lady of Assumption parish has an immediate opening for a full-time coordinator of its Faith Formation programs. Candidates with parish involvement in teaching and/or administration in FF ministry, and/or possessing a college background in theology/religious studies are eligible. The competitive candidate will possess a vision of FF that mainly focuses on grade schoolers through high schoolers, yet encompasses adults, evidences good administrative skills, exemplary written and oral communication skills, ability with Word Perfect software, and able to work as a diocesan and parish team player. Salary in high $20s commensurate with experience and good benefits under diocesan coverage. Send resume with names of references to FF Search Committee: c/o Father Gillespie, SJ, 4207 Shamrock Drive, Charlotte NC 28215. (704)535-9965.

Guidance Counselor: Part-time. Asheville Catholic School. Must be NC certified. Call (828)252-7896 for information. EOE.

Music Ministry Director: Immaculate Conception Catholic Church is seeking an organist/music director. Must be familiar with Catholic liturgy. Salary negotiable. Benefits available. Send resume and references to Immaculate Conception Church, 208 - 7 Ave. West, Hendersonville, NC 28791-3602.

Music Ministry Director: Full-time position for a growing 1100-family parish near Charlotte. Responsible for 4 weekend liturgies plus holy days, weddings and funerals. Adult and children's choirs, cantors, instrumentalists, new contemporary choir, and handbell choir. Rogers electronic organ, Yamaha upright piano, two-octave set of Malmark handbells. Ideal candidate is practicing Catholic with music degree, experience, music performance skills (organ/piano/voice), choral and cantor skills, knowledge of Catholic liturgical music. Salary commensurate with experience. Full benefits. Send/fax resume to Music Search, Saint Therese Parish, 217 Brawley School Rd., Mooresville, NC 28117. Phone (704)664-3992; Fax: (704)660-6321.

Music Ministry Director: St. Bede Catholic Church in Williamsburg, VA seeks professional with bachelor's degree (or above) in music; in-depth knowledge of Roman Catholic liturgy; and vocal, piano, organ skills. Should be pastoral individual with appreciation of broad range of music styles. Full-time position with benefits; salary dependent upon experience. Complete job description posted at www.bedeva.org. Application deadline: July 15. Send resume, references, salary history to: Attn: DMM Search Committee, St. Bede Catholic Church, 10 Harrison Avenue, Williamsburg, VA 23185. stboffice@bedeva.org

Organist(s): Needed for weekend Masses. Saint Jude Catholic Church in Sapphire Valley and Our Lady of the Mountains Catholic Church in Highlands are seeking an organist(s) for weekend Masses. During summer, Masses at St. Jude are 4pm Sat. and 9am Sunday; at Our Lady of the Mountains, 6pm Sat. and 11am Sun. (November thru May, St. Jude is at 4pm Sat. only; Our Lady of the Mountains is at 11am only.) Please call Diane at (828)526-2418.

Teacher: Asheville Catholic School seeks dynamic grade 5 teacher. Must hold or be eligible for NC license; teach religion and all academic subjects. Call (828) 252-7896. EOE.

Teacher and Librarian: Our Lady of Mercy has the following positions available: 8th grade homeroom to teach Language Arts, Social Studies, and Religion (if Catholic); Librarian for K-8th. Please call (910)722-7204.

Teachers, Library/Media Specialist: Charlotte Catholic High School has the following openings beginning August, 2000: full-time teaching positions for Chemistry, Drama, English, Math, Spanish, and full-time Library/Media Specialist. Must have NC Certification. Also, part-time Guidance Secretary is needed. Call (704)543-1127 for application.

Teachers: Sacred Heart School (PreK-8) in Salisbury has the following teacher openings beginning in August: Computer, Music, PE, Spanish, 3rd Grade, 5th Grade, and Middle School Language Arts. NC certification required. Call Kathleen Miller at (704)633-2841.

Teachers: St. Patrick's School in Charlotte is accepting applications for part-time Music teacher and part-time Spanish teacher. Please contact school principal, Mrs. Angela Montague, (704) 333-3174 for interview. NC certification required.

Teachers: Full-time. St. Pius X Catholic School, Greensboro, has openings for 2000-2001 school year: Spanish, Kindergarten, 1st grade, 2nd grade, Middle School Religion, Middle School Language Arts. Must be practicing Catholic with NC certification in field. Experience preferred. Benefits included. Send resume to C. Usischon, 2200 N. Elm St., Greensboro, NC 27408 or fax: (336)273-0199.

Teachers: St. Michael's School in Gastonia, NC is currently seeking dynamic teachers for the following positions: Full-time Middle School Language Arts/Social Studies; Full-time Kindergarten; and part-time Art teacher. NC Certification required. Please call Joseph Puceta at (704)865-4382 for more information.

Youth Coordinator: St. John Neumann Church seeks part-time Coordinator of Youth Programs to work with parent/youth teams to plan, implement, oversee youth programs; grades 9-12. Call (704)535-4197. Send resume to St. John Neumann Church, Connie Milligan, 8451 Idlewild Road, Charlotte, NC 28227 or fax(704)536-3147.

Youth Minister: Our Lady of Grace Church in Greensboro, NC is seeking a full-time Youth Minister to coordinate all youth activities and programs. Applicants should have a degree in Religious Education or related field and three years' experience in Youth Ministry. Salary commensurate with experience and education. Send resume to Tom Johnson, Our Lady of Grace Church, 2205 West Market St., Greensboro, NC 27403.

Youth/Young Adult Ministry Director: A triparish (including one Hispanic) Catholic community of 1800 families in a university setting is seeking a full-time Director of Youth and Young Adult Ministry to implement comprehensive youth ministry as described in "Renewing the Vision." Candidate should have prior ministry experience, and be able to work collaboratively with staff and members of parish community. Background in Theology, Christian Formation, and/or certification in youth ministry desired. Please contact Rev. Bernard Campbell, CSP, P.O. Box 112, Clemson, SC 29633 or (864)654-1757.

Youth Ministry Director: Saint James Catholic Church, 1700 families located in Savannah, Georgia, is seeking a full-time salaried director of youth ministry. Candidate must be a practicing Catholic. Practical leadership experience in the continuing development of a youth ministry program is essential. Must have bachelors and/or advanced degree in education and/or religious training or equivalent. Please submit resume to Father John Kenneally, 8412 Whitfield Ave., Savannah, GA 31406.

FOR RENT

Beach Condo: 3 Bedroom, Myrtle Beach: July 8, August 12, August 19, and August 26. Also Sept. and October. (336)924-2842.

SERVICES OFFERED

Home Care: In-home care for your loved one. Thorough background checks on all caregivers. Serving Henderson, Transylvania, Polk counties. COMPASSIONATE COMPANIONS, INC., (828)696-0946.

Jesuit tells catechists to teach students how to understand, they're children of God

By PATRICK JOYCE
Catholic News Service

STOCKTON, Calif. (CNS) — When he was growing up in Philadelphia and preparing to go to a Jesuit high school, Jesuit Father J-Glenn Murray was worried about how he would introduce himself to his new classmates.

His grandmother knew what to say. Decades later he still relies on her words and tells others to rely on them: "If anybody asks who you are, tell them you're a child of God."

Speaking a group of Stockton catechists, the priest, who is director of worship for the Cleveland Diocese, burst into song as he recalled his grandmother's advice: "If anybody asks me who I am ... I tell them I'm a child of God."

"We who believe in God ... our responsibility is to hold fast to that belief, especially in our culture," Father Murray said at an annual dinner hosted by the Stockton Diocese to honor the people who bring the word of God to youngsters.

Their mission is particularly important today, he said, in an era of "riots in streets, violence in the home, corruption in high places, justice for sale, children slaughtering one another, dying in their mother's womb. The homeless, the poor, people of color treated as enemies of society. The comfortable abandoning the poor in their misery. We do not make a pretty picture.

"Yet we who are gathered here this evening recognize that we do indeed believe in a God who sits high but looks low. This is what we believe," he added.

Father Murray noted that as Pope John Paul II came of age in the shadow of the Holocaust, the conviction grew in him that "to be human is to be a moral agent. ... The great struggle of any life is to surrender the person I am to the person I ought to be."

"Evil has made itself manifest in the world in such distinctly modern enterprise as the Holocaust and the Gulag," Father Murray said. "But we believe that evil did not have the final word because at the center of the human problem is Christ who entered into human existence."

Karol Wojtyla, the future Pope John Paul II, believed that Christ-centered hope should be at the center of our lives, he said, "or as my grandmother said, 'There must be a God somewhere.'"

"We believe that this God came down from heaven and pitched his tent among us or, as some African-American teen-agers would say, took up residence in the 'hood,'" Father Murray continued.

"Jesus Christ was born in hellish conditions. ... He was rejected by religious leaders, misunderstood by his family. betrayed by a friend, abandoned by his followers," he said. "But the story did not end there.

"On Sunday morning he rose from the grave. All of us in this room know that no matter how burdensome life gets ... he says to us, 'Come. Bring your anguished hearts. Earth has no sorrow that heaven cannot heal.'"

All Christians are commissioned, Father Murray said, "to go out into the world and tell everyone what we know to be true, and you as catechists are asked to do what every Christian is asked to do and more. ... We try to get people to know about Christ but we try desperately to get people to know Christ."

He asked the catechists to lead their people to the Eucharist because it is in the Eucharist that they come to know Jesus.

"We can talk about Christ Jesus but unless we celebrate Christ Jesus and encounter Christ Jesus in the Eucharist, it is sound and fury signifying nothing," he said. "In the Eucharist we tell the world who we are and who we hope to become."

Then, for one last time, Father Murray sang out his message: "If I can tell somebody as I travel on. I can cheer one body with a word. ... If I can keep one body from going wrong, then my living shall not be in vain." ▼

Let stairs be our problem... not yours!
Ask about our Stairway lifts.
- Easily attached to steps (not walls)
- Folds out of the way
- Fits most stairways (straight & curved)
- Very affordable (rent or buy)
- We install

Chair & Equipment Rentals & Sales, Inc.
800 Central Ave. • Charlotte, NC • (800) 333-8431
Member of St. Thomas Aquinas

Carolina Volkswagen
6625 E. Independence Blvd., Charlotte
(704) 537-2336 • (800) 489-2336
Biggest Selection
Drivers wanted.
Lowest Prices
"Nothing Could Be Finer" Members of St. Gabriel
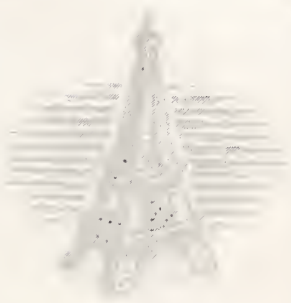
#1 Volkswagen Dealer in Charlotte and all the Carolinas for customer sales and service satisfaction!
C'mon in and see why!

Monet
Matisse
Manet
Mo
www.charlottediocese.org/travel


Paris - London
October 19 - 26
très cool

THE ORATORY
434 Charlotte Avenue, P. O. Box 11586
Rock Hill, SC 29731-1586
(803) 327-2097
Horizons of The Spirit
Monday, July 17 through
12 noon Friday, July 21
Dr. Keith Egan
"The Landscape of the Soul and The Search for God"
Sr. Catherine Quinn, SHCJ
"Spirituality through Scripture and St. Ignatius"
Fr. Hal Weidner, C.O.
"Introduction to Edith Stein"
For more information write:
Horizons of The Spirit
P.O. Box 11586, Rock Hill, SC 29731-1586
(803) 327-2097

Attention
DIABETICS
with Medicare or Insurance
Save money on diabetic supplies!
1-800-337-4144
Diabetic National Service

Groce
FUNERAL HOME & CREMATION SERVICE
1401 Patton Ave. Asheville, NC (828) 252-3535
72 Long Shoals Road Arden, NC (828) 687-3530
Assuring Absolute Integrity
Asheville's Catholic Funeral Directors
Dale Groce • John Prock
Toll-free (888) 874-3535
Pre-arrangements and obituaries on-line at www.grocefuneralhome.com

Friday, June 23rd through Sunday, June 25th

Corner of Statesville Ave. & Oaklawn Ave.

Come & bring your neighbors to an

Old Fashion Tent Revival!

"Revival of the Spirit 2000:
From Everlasting to Everlasting, God is still God"

with Rev. Jim Goode, O.F.M., Revivalist

Friday, June 23rd through Sunday, June 25th

Corner of Statesville Avenue and Oaklawn Avenue, Charlotte

FEATURING

Performances by

The Perpetual Hope Gospel Choir of Our Lady of Consolation Catholic Church, Charlotte, NC

Pinn Memorial Baptist Church Gospel Choir of Philadelphia, PA

Bring your family & friends!

Worship Music Food

SCHEDULE

Friday, June 23rd

6:30 pm

Preaching by Fr. Jim Goode, O.F.M. Music by The Perpetual Hope Gospel Choir

Saturday, June 24th

10:00 am - 5:00 pm Special events all day!

African Storyteller, Kabaka Drummers and Dancers

Special Gospel Rapper for Youth! Plus...vendors with food, clothing, books, artifacts and more!

5:00 p.m.

Concert by Pinn Memorial Baptist Church Gospel Choir

7:00 p.m.

Preaching by Fr. Jim Goode, O.F.M. Music by Pinn Memorial Baptist Church Gospel Choir

Sunday, June 25th

11:00 a.m.

Liturgy and Closing Mass with Fr. Jim Goode, O.F.M. Music by the combined Gospel choirs

Fr. Mauricio West, Vicar General & Chancellor, principal celebrant

For more information, please call Rev. Mr. Curtiss Todd (704) 370-3339

For accomodations, mention "Tent Revival" for special group rates at:

McDonald's Travel Lodge and Suites: (704) 887-2900 OR Four Points Sheraton Hotel (uptown): (704) 372-7550

Sponsored by the African American Affairs Ministry of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Charlotte

42083
MC COLLECTION
UNC
WILSON LIBRARY CB 3930
CHAPEL HILL NC 27599-0001
S323 P2

The Catholic
NEWS & HERALD
Serving Catholics in Western North Carolina in the Diocese of Charlotte

June 23, 2000
Volume 9 ▾ Number 39

Inside

Graduation
Diocese's two high schools congratulate Class of 2000
...PAGES 4-5

Highlights of the U.S. bishops' meeting
...PAGE 15

Local News

Schools to benefit from tax-exempt bonds
...PAGE 3

Father Guy Morse dies at 83
...PAGE 9

Living the Faith
Mountain parish makes community strides
...PAGE 16

Every Week

Entertainment
...PAGES 10-11

Editorials & Columns
...PAGES 12-13

The Feast of the Immaculate Heart of Mary is July 1

COURTESY PHOTO BY WENDY MURRAY

Father John Pagel of St. Joan of Arc parish in Asheville blesses the crowd during a community-wide Pentecost celebration.

The Spirit is a-movin'

BY ALESHA M. PRICE
STAFF WRITER

ASHEVILLE — "When the day of the Pentecost came, all the believers were gathered together in one place. Suddenly there was a noise from the sky which sounded like a strong wind blowing, and it filled the whole house where they were sitting ... ." (Acts 2:1-2.)

Nearly 1,500 Catholics overtook downtown Asheville as area churches cancelled Masses, and parishioners gathered en mass at the Asheville Civic Center on June 11 for Pentecost Sunday — the day the Church celebrates the descent of the Holy Spirit upon the Apostles and his people.

St. Joan of Arc Church, the Basilica of St. Lawrence and St. Eugene Church, all in Asheville, and St. Margaret Mary Church in Swannanoa assembled for a jointly held Mass in honor of the Church's birthday. Members of the Asheville Vicariate joined in song and prayer for the first time to celebrate Mass and engage in fellowship in the presence of the Holy Spirit.

Father Cecil Tice, rector of the basilica, presided over the Mass, and Father Frank Cancro, pastor of St. Eugene, Father Andy Latsko, pastor of St. Margaret Mary, Father John Pagel, pastor of St. Joan of Arc, Father John Schneider, Father Chris Davis, parochial vicar for the basilica, and Father Wilbur Thomas, vicar for priests, all concelebrated the Mass in

SEE PENTECOST, PAGE 3

Bishop ordains three to transitional diaconate

BY JOANN S. KEANE
EDITOR

CHARLOTTE — The road to the priesthood is marked by a series of milestones: Lector, acolyte, transitional deacon, priestly ordination. Three men stepped forward June 16, shifting into the last year of their journey to the priesthood, ordained transitional diaconate.

This year's class and anticipated priests in 2001 — Rev. Messrs. Duc Duong, Tien Duong and Robert Ferris — were welcomed to holy orders, "the first deacons in this great jubilee year," said Bishop William G. Curlin.

St. Vincent de Paul parish hosted the bilingual celebration, intertwining English with the native Vietnamese of two of the transitional deacons. Brothers Duc and Tien Duong, now the Rev. Messrs. Duong, became the first brothers ordained in a joint celebration. Moreover, the two Vietnamese refugees join the swell of multiculturalism embraced by the diocese.

Rev. Mr. Robert Ferris, a widower, father of six and grandfather to three, represents another growing

SEE TRANSITIONAL, PAGE 7

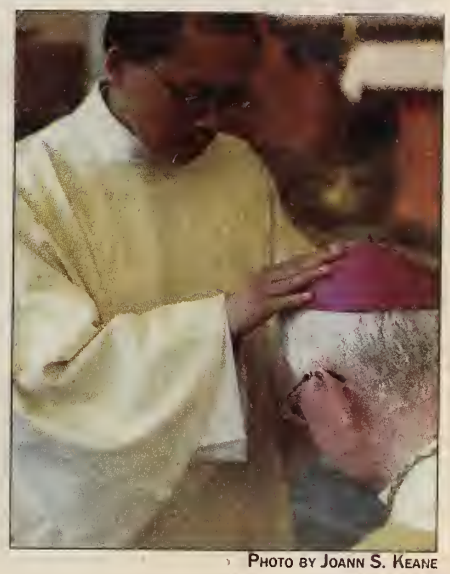

PHOTO BY JOANN S. KEANE

Rev. Mr. Tien Duong bestows a blessing on Bishop William G. Curlin following the transitional diaconate ordination.

Prayer before public school football games overruled

WASHINGTON (CNS) — In rejecting a Texas school district's plan for allowing student-led prayers at high school football games, the Supreme Court June 19 added to case law limiting organized prayer in school settings. The court's 6-3 ruling found that the Santa Fe Independent School District policy established "an improper majoritarian election on religion, and unquestionably has the purpose and creates the perception of encouraging the delivery of prayer at a series of important school events." The policy created a system in which students would vote on whether to elect a student to deliver a pre-game inspirational message before each home game, replacing a previous system that involved a student council chaplain. It was never actually instituted because of ongoing litigation.

Suspect arrested in murder of Washington archdiocesan pastor

WASHINGTON (CNS) — A 25-year-old Maryland man has been charged with first-degree murder in the June 8 stabbing death of a popular Washington archdiocesan pastor. Robert Paul Lucas of Clarksburg, Md., was arrested June 17 and charged with the murder of Msgr. Thomas Wells, who was pastor of Mother Seton Parish in Germantown, Md., a Washington suburb. He was being held without bail in the Montgomery County (Md.) Detention Center. Police say Lucas, who is homeless, has confessed to the crime.

Mexican bishops say voting best way to prevent electoral fraud

MEXICO CITY (CNS) — Mexicans head to the polls July 2 amid fears that the country will see a repeat of the electoral fraud that has marred earlier efforts for democratic change and guaranteed victory for a party that has held power since 1929. Mexican church leaders insist that the best way to beat those who would perpetrate fraud is to participate in the voting process. With other Mexican bishops, Cardinal Norberto Rivera Carrera of Mexico City has repeatedly encouraged Mexicans to vote. The head of the archdiocesan justice and peace commission, Father Francisco Javier Acuna, said June 13 that to abstain from voting is "social sin."

CNS PHOTO FROM POOL

Installation of Archbishop Egan in New York

New York Archbishop Edward M. Egan greets people outside St. Patrick's Cathedral following his Mass of installation June 19. He became the ninth archbishop of New York and successor to the late Cardinal John O'Connor.

Vatican official calls for solutions to unemployment problems

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — Criticizing the negative effects of globalization on poor countries, the Vatican's envoy to the International Labor Organization called for solutions to persistent problems affecting employment. Addressing the organization at its Geneva headquarters June 12, Archbishop Giuseppe Bertello highlighted issues of unemployment, child labor and the dangerous consequences of globalization and new technologies. Technological advances, he said, create a gap "between rich and poor countries and, within each country individually, between a minority capable of making a profit from globalization and the others, in large part the least qualified workers, who are left at the margins of economic processes.

Catholic official hails AMA vote as protecting conscience rights

CHICAGO (CNS) — The American Medical Association's rejection of a resolution aimed at forcing Catholic hospitals to provide sterilizations and contraception was a vote in support of freedom of conscience, said the head of the Catholic Health Association. Father Michael D. Place, president and CEO of the Catholic group, said the June 15 vote by the AMA's House of Delegates on a substitute resolution "is also a victory for women" because the proposed Resolution 218 could have caused Catholic hospitals to end all obstetric services or even to close their doors.

Annan says Vatican having U.N. status not unfair to other groups

UNITED NATIONS (CNS) — U.N. Secretary-General Kofi Annan said June 14 that he does not think the Vatican's permanent observer status at the United Nations gives it an unfair advantage over other religious groups. Other religious bodies do not have that status, but all are "free to come and go" at the world body, he said. Annan, recipient of this year's Path to Peace Award, said that while the church uses "prayers and education and social morality," the United Nations works through negotiations and diplomacy. "But in the end, we both try to improve the conditions of people and understand the human condition," he said following a special session of the U.N. General Assembly reviewing results of the 1995 Beijing Conference on Women.

Study questions effectiveness of death penalty system

WASHINGTON (CNS) — A nationwide study of how the American capital punishment system has worked over the last 23 years found a pattern of errors resulting in the reversal of nearly 70 percent of capital convictions. The study by Columbia Law School professor James S. Liebman looked at all of the nearly 5,500 capital convictions and appeals between 1973 and 1995. One finding concluded that nearly every state with the death penalty had such serious mistakes in capital convictions that more than half their death sentences were overturned. When cases with errors were retried, 82 percent resulted in a sentence less than death. Seven percent of cases that were retried ended with verdicts of innocence.

CHA award honors Mercy nun

SAN FRANCISCO (CNS) — A Mercy nun whose work has improved health care for migrants, the poor and uninsured, the people of Australia and thousands of others has received the Catholic Health Association's lifetime achievement award. Mercy Sister Mary Maurita Sengelaub, who has been involved in Catholic health for nearly 60 years, received the honor June 11 at the CHA assembly in San Francisco. The award is presented annually to recognize a lifetime of service to the Catholic health ministry.

The Catholic NEWS & HERALD

June 23, 2000
Volume 9 • Number 39

Publisher: Most Reverend William G. Curlin
Editor: Joann S. Keane
Associate Editor: Jimmy Rostar
Staff Writer: Alesha M. Price
Production Associate: Julie Radcliffe
Advertising Representative: Cindi Feerick
Secretary: Jane Glodowski
1123 South Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203
Mail: P.O. Box 37267, Charlotte, NC 28237
Phone: (704) 370-3333 FAX: (704) 370-3382
E-mail: catholicnews@charlottediocese.org

The Catholic News & Herald, USPC 007-393, is published by the Roman Catholic Diocese of Charlotte, 1123 South Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203, 44 times a year, weekly except for Christmas week and Easter week and every two weeks during June, July and August for $15 per year for enrollees in parishes of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Charlotte and $18 per year for all other subscribers. Second-class postage paid at Charlotte NC and other cities. POSTMASTER: Send address corrections to The Catholic News & Herald, P.O. Box 37267, Charlotte, NC 28237.

Episcopal calendar

Bishop William G. Curlin will take part in the following events:

June 25 — 3 p.m.
Feast of Corpus Christi
Mass and procession
Maryfield Nursing Home, High Point
July 8 — 5:30 p.m.
Mass and groundbreaking ceremony
St. Therese Church, Mooresville
July 10-14
Meeting of provincial bishops in the Carolinas and Georgia, Region IV
Asheville
July 16
Parish 50th Anniversary Mass
Our Lady of the Mountains Church, Highlands
July 17-21
Seminarian retreat
Catholic Conference Center, Hickory

Diocesan planner

June

25 SALISBURY — Sacred Heart Church, 128 N. Fulton St., is celebrating the jubilee year at the 9 a.m., 10:30 a.m. and noon Masses today with a blessing of the entrance doors, inspirational music and a gospel reading. For more information, call the church office at (704) 633-0591.

26 CHARLOTTE — There is an Alzheimer's/dementia caretakers' support group meeting today from 2-3:30 p.m. in the ministry center of St. Gabriel Church, 3016 Providence Rd. Activities are being provided for the memory-impaired. For more information, call Suzanne Bach at (704) 376-4135.

28 CHARLOTTE — St. Patrick Cathedral, 1621 Dilworth Rd. East, invites all families who have suffered a loss to a monthly memorial Mass tonight at 7:30 p.m. Call the church office at (704) 334-2283 with the name(s) of loved ones so they can be remembered at Mass.

29 GREENSBORO — The Franciscan Center, 233 North Greene St., is hosting Franciscan Father David Hyman, pastor of St. Mary of the Angels in Anderson, S.C., and director of the Justice, Peace and Integrity of the Creation Committee of the Holy Name Province. Father Hyman is presenting "Exploring Church Leadership with Fewer Clergy" today from 12:10-1 p.m. at the downtown center. Lunch is included along with an offering from the attendants, and for more information or pre-registration, call the center at (336) 273-2554.

July

2 CHARLOTTE — St. Luke Church, 13700 Lawyers Rd., is hosting the Newmann Singers, 30 performers of Christian music, from the University of Iowa, at all Masses on July 1 and 2. The singers are also giving a free concert this evening at 5 p.m. with a love offering taken their red liturgical vestments.

Pentecost celebration, from page 1

"This was the first time we have come together as Catholics to celebrate who we are, rich in our diversity," said Father Cancro of St. Eugene. "Unlike in the Charlotte and Triad areas, there is a small percentage of Catholics here, so anytime we can make ourselves visible shows our empowerment, which is what Pentecost is all about."

Jerry Bergeron, a St. Eugene parishioner, helped with the planning of the area event. "The whole purpose for the Mass was unification, to bring people together so we could worship as one," he explained. "This showed a visible and strong Catholic presence, one that is a witness of people praying and worshipping the same God together."

All of the churches contributed to make the Mass a community effort. Rita Pisano, music director of the vicariate choir and director of youth and children's music plus at St. Eugene and Chuck Taft, director of liturgy and music at St. Eugene, handled the musical aspect of the Mass, Dave Hazinski, a member of St. Eugene, created the collapsible altar, and many others contributed their time and effort to the structure of the Mass. There was an 80-member choir including people from the four churches and members of the local Hispanic choir.

"This was a special celebration because of the jubilee year, and anytime we can come together as Catholics and worship, we all benefit," said Taft. "It is great for us to stand together, no matter the differences, we can all worship as one."

The Mass did celebrate the various cultures found in Asheville and surrounding areas with bilingual readings in recognition of the growing Hispanic population.

Father Cancro's homily touched upon love that fosters communication and bridges gaps among people. He began with a song, an old blues tune from 1936, Billy Hill's "That's the Story of Love." Father Cancro interweaved the song's message of "giving and taking love" into his words after the gospel reading.

"We must understand that love gives us insight into the love of God, where the Spirit dwells. Love of ourselves and sharing that love with others is a sign of God's love. Love entails the kinds of extremes that the song speaks on; love, although complicated is still an important value, which deepens us in the Holy Spirit ... . We must see and seek the face of God in others and be the face of Christ for others ... ," said Father Cancro.

Dr. Bob McGrattan and his son Michael, parishioners at St. Eugene Church, helped with setting up the arena to turn it into a place of worship.

"I believe this event strengthened the vicariate, and it is important for all of us to come together to start some cooperation among the parishes," he said. "It is good to have the Catholic community since we are such a minority in this section of the country.

"Seeing my parishioners there was important to me as a pastor," said Father Latsko of St. Margaret Mary. "This was a good witness to the church in Asheville and was exciting to see all of the people. It was a special moment, and we must not let the spirit die down; we must continue that feeling of community and spirit." ▼

Contact Staff Writer Alesha M. Price by calling (704) 370-3354 or e-mail amprice@charlottediocese.org.

Diocesan schools to benefit from tax-exempt bonds

By JIMMY ROSTAR
Associate Editor

CHARLOTTE — As the Diocese of Charlotte proceeds with plans to build one new high school and refinance its debt on another, financial help through tax-exempt bonds could save the diocese nearly $3 million.

Through the North Carolina Educational Facilities Finance Agency, the Diocese of Charlotte was issued $19.7 million in tax-exempt bonds this month for use in projects at the diocese's two high schools. The bulk of the funding will go to the new Bishop McGuinness High School, currently under construction in the Triad. A smaller amount will help refinance the existing debt on Charlotte Catholic High School.

Bonds are certificates of debt, issued by a government or corporation that guarantee payment of the initial amount, plus interest by a specified future date. The interest rate on tax-exempt bonds is significantly lower than through other means of borrowing.

"Tax-exempt bonds will allow us to borrow funds at one-third below market interest rates," said Bill Weldon, chief financial officer for the Diocese of Charlotte. "Investors are willing to accept a lower interest rate because the interest they earn on the bonds is exempt from income tax."

The estimated savings, in today's dollars, is projected to be $2.8 million, according to Weldon. The interest saved will directly benefit the schools, he said.

The bonds will be repaid over 17 years, having a due date of June 1, 2017.

Once the bonds have been issued by the state agency, an underwriter purchases them and resells them, primarily to institutional investors and typically in amounts ranging in the millions. A trustee then takes responsibility for the funds and invests them on behalf of the borrower until the funds are needed for the project.

"This is an exciting development," said Weldon. "We are able to borrow the needed funds with an interest rate that is so much lower than conventional financing. Ultimately, we will be saving millions of dollars in interest."

Funding is generated through this sale of bonds to the public, and neither state nor federal money is involved.

The North Carolina Educational Facilities Finance Agency has been issuing tax-exempt bonds to finance non-profit North Carolina schools below the collegiate level since July 14, 1998. Prior to the passage of a bill that added these schools, only institutions for higher education were allowed the issuance of these bonds.

Because of the curriculum structure of the diocese's 14 elementary schools, funding was not a possibility for projects in those schools. But after carefully separating inherently religious facilities from the educational ones that will be financed in the two high schools, the agency issued the bonds for the diocese.

"The only restriction is that we cannot use the parts of the schools that have been financed with these bonds for religious purposes," Weldon said. "We cannot teach religion in a math classroom, for instance."

See SCHOOLS-BONDS, page 8

during the event. For further details, call the church office at (704) 545-1224.

3 CLEMMONS — Holy Family Church, 4820 Kinnamon Rd., is celebrating a charismatic Mass tonight at 7:30 p.m. For more information, call the church office at (336) 778-0600.

7 HIGH POINT — Christ the King Church, 1505 East Kivett Dr., is celebrating the following Masses today and tomorrow: a Latin Mass at 7 p.m. tonight followed by adoration of the blessed Sacrament and benediction and a holy Mass in the Syro-Malabar Rite in Malayalam at 6:30 p.m. on July 8. For more information, call the church office at (336) 884-0244.

MAGGIE VALLEY — Rev. Mr. Keith Kolodziej and the Diocese of Charlotte Renewal Team are sponsoring a weekend retreat, entitled "You Will Receive Power," at Living Waters Catholic Reflection Center, 103 Living Waters Lane. The goal and purpose of the weekend is to renew God's people by studying sacred scripture, sacraments and the teaching of the church with great emphasis on personal prayer and worship devoted to the Holy Spirit and the metanoia and spiritual fruits which flow from it. Space is limited, so for registration and further details, contact Augustinian Father Terry Hyland at (828) 926-3833 or e-mail: lwcrc@main.nc.us.

9 ROCK HILL, S.C. — The Oratory Religion Camp is holding two separate one-week sessions at Camp York in Kings Mountain State Park starting this week through July 15 and continuing July 16-22. Boys and girls under 12, entering grades 2-6 in Sept., can apply for consideration. Those wishing to volunteer as counselors can write for a staff application. For more information and application, write to: The Oratory Religion Camp, P.O. Box 11586, Rock Hill, S.C. 29731-1586 or call (803) 327-2097.

10 CHARLOTTE — Churches in the Charlotte area are having their July cancer support group meetings on the following days because of the Independence Day holiday weekend: St. Vincent de Paul Church, 6828 Old Reid Rd., tonight at 7 p.m., St. Matthew Church, 8012 Ballantyne Commons Pkwy., on July 11 at 7 p.m. and St. Gabriel Church, 3016 Providence Rd., on July 12 at 7 p.m. For more information, call these contacts: St. Vincent - Betty Childers at (704) 554-0733, St. Matthew - Marilyn Borrelli at (704) 542-2283 and St. Gabriel - Eileen Cordell at (704) 352-5047, Ext. 217. For further information, call Bob Poffenbarger, Sr., coordinator, at (704) 553-7000.

14 CHARLOTTE — UNC Charlotte's Office of International Programs is looking for volunteers to host visitors from Japan as they take part in an intensive study program. Volunteers are needed to host the following students for these dates: Japanese Bankers for this weekend and Japanese English Teachers from Aug 4-19. If you have an interest in making international friends and would like to help the guests learn more about American culture and lifestyle, call Kathy Ballard, home stay coordinator, at (704) 663-5861 or Mark Beam at (704) 547-2597.

Upcoming

CONYERS, Ga. — A Cistercian (Trappist) vocation awareness retreat for prayerful single men of all ages is taking place Aug. 7-11 at Holy Spirit Monastery. The retreat is free, but space is limited. For reservations and details, call Natalie Smith at (954) 752-1332.

Ongoing

HIGH POINT — Christ the King Church, 1505 East Kivett Dr., celebrates two Masses in other languages every Sunday. The Spanish Mass is held at 12:30 p.m., and the Korean Mass is held at 6 p.m. For further details, call Susie Romanowski at (336) 885-8435.

Please submit notices of events for the Diocesan Planner at least 10 before publication date.

CCHS graduates step into new world, new lives

By ALESHA M. PRICE
Staff Writer

CHARLOTTE — It is a time of beginnings and endings, smiles through tears — the solemn but celebratory end of high school days. The night sky was dotted with 187 mortarboards flying through the air as Charlotte Catholic High School students ceremoniously tossed their high school days into the wind after the Mass recessional, signaling the beginning of the next phase of their lives.

"I hope that you see this not as an ending but as a beginning; this is the start of your journey in life," said Bishop William G. Curlin, the celebrant at the baccalaureate Mass held at St. Matthew Church on June 8.

During his homily, the bishop told the students to take the knowledge they have learned and share it in society.

"God has blessed each of you with wonderful talents and unique gifts. Use those gifts and enrich our world," he said. "Young people like yourselves must use your education to help make people's lives better, and remember that you possess the presence of the living God — the greatest gift you will ever receive."

The church was filled to capacity with family and friends to watch the students as they accepted their diplomas and participated in the Mass as lector and commentator, choir members and gift bearers.

The navy gowns were donned with small purple ribbons as a reminder of a special graduate not able to attend the evening's festivities.

Photo by Alesha M. Price

A CCHS graduate waits as his fellow classmates process into St. Matthew Church for the baccalaureate Mass on June 8.

In a gesture of solidarity and support for a fellow graduate, the students silently rose out of their seats as Angela "Angie" Machovec's name was called in absentia. Machovec was hit by a car while jogging on the evening of May 30, and at press time, her condition was listed as serious but improving, according to Mary Jayne Dawson, campus minister.

At the awards ceremony held at the school the evening before, William "Cullen" Conly, this year's valedictorian, talked about Machovec in his speech: "Angie Machovec's recent accident has shown me more about this class than anything in the past four years. Many of those who didn't even really know her rallied behind her and her family in support ... . All of this showed just how easily we come together as a caring body, and I know we will continue to do so long after we receive our diplomas."

As the students stepped up to the altar to receive their diplomas from the bishop, Mercy Sister Paulette Williams, principal, and Dr. Michael Skube, diocesan superintendent of schools, many of them gave their final hugs to their principal, who is also bidding a fond farewell this year to CCHS.

"This year's class has shown exceptional leadership abilities and have contributed tremendous amounts of time and talent to building the CCHS community, especially outside of the school setting," said Sister Paulette. "Their positive leadership ability is the hallmark of this class."

Julia Emery, salutatorian for the class of 2000, said she and her classmates' experiences at CCHS have prepared them for their lives in college and in the workforce.

"As we reflect on the bittersweet memories, we should remember that, in closing this chapter of our lives, we must reflect upon our priorities in life. Hopefully, we have emerged not only smarter but wiser, academic endeavors balanced with lasting friendships, a better understanding of family and a deeper appreciation of faith ... ."

"I am confident that our class can and will overcome all obstacles that may lie ahead," continued Emery.

Recent graduate Joseph "Joe" Falencki is ready for the next four years of his life and appreciates the

CCHS GRADUATION, PAGE 8

STOCKS, BONDS, MUTUAL FUNDS
FIXED & VARIABLE ANNUITIES
LIFE, DI & LTC INSURANCE
FINANCIAL PLANNING
RETIREMENT PLANNING
ESTATE PLANNING
ROLLOVERS & TRANSFERS
IRA'S & 401(K)'S
TAX PLANNING

RYAN ◆ HESS ◆ MORAIS
FINANCIAL ADVISORS, INC.

JOHN F. RYAN, JR., CFA
PARISHIONER, ST. VINCENT DEPAUL
CHRISTOPHER HESS, CFP
MEMBER, ST. JOHN'S EPISCOPAL
A. EDWARD MORAIS
PARISHIONER, ST. MATTHEW

SUITE 209 ◆ 7401 CARMEL EXECUTIVE PARK ◆ CHARLOTTE, NC 28226
PHONE 704-544-9009 FAX 704-543-4771

Registered Representatives offering securities through FFP Securities, Inc. - Member NASD/SIPC
Registered Investment Advisors offering services through FFP Advisory Services, Inc.

Grow in your faith.

Be affirmed in your present ministry.
Upgrade your certification as catechist and religion teacher.
Fulfill the pre-requisite for the Permanent Diaconate.

If you have these special desires, please join the 2000-2001 Lay Ministry Training Program, a two-year academic program designed to help you appreciate and understand more fully the call to ministry by virtue of your baptism.

LAY MINISTRY
TRAINING PROGRAM

Registration deadline is August 1, 2000
Year one will begin in Fall 2000 in Arden, Charlotte, and Greensboro

For more information, send name, address and phone number to:
Office of Lay Ministry
Diocese of Charlotte
1123 South Church Street
Charlotte, NC 28203
(704) 370-3213

VOCATIONS

Is God calling you?

Leo Byron Fowler
Will be ordained to the Holy Priesthood in the Diocese of Charlotte in 2003.

"When most boys wanted to be cowboys or firemen, as far back as I can remember I wanted to be a priest. As soon as I was old enough to be an altar boy, I told the priest I wanted to serve because I wanted to be a priest."

Despite this strong desire, things just kept getting in the way of my dream. Some of the delays were probably my detours when not following God's way. Some, I now see, were probably God's plans for me on my way to His altar, and these experiences undoubtedly will make me a better priest. Now that I am in the seminary, I am very much at peace knowing that I am doing God's will.

I am very anxious to start serving Christ in the Diocese of Charlotte at my summer assignment at St. Francis of Assisi in Lenoir. This will be a further step toward realizing my lifetime goal: service for The Lord and to His Holy Church."

... Are you answering His call?

For more information about serving God as a priest in the Diocese of Charlotte, please contact Father John Allen,
The Office of Vocations, The Roman Catholic Diocese of Charlotte,
1123 South Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203.
(704) 370-3353 • vocations@charlottediocese.org

Bishop McGuinness graduates told they're the light of the world

By SUSAN deGUZMAN
Correspondent

WINSTON-SALEM — During commencement exercises for Bishop McGuinness Memorial High School, 90 graduating students gathered Friday, June 2 at the Stevens Center in Winston-Salem to receive their diplomas and hear final words of wisdom from peers and others close to the school community.

During the evening, those gathered heard messages of praise for the people who have made the Bishop McGuinness experience special for the students and messages of hope for a happy future.

"In receiving your diploma, you are accepting the challenge to contend to move ahead, to claim all the possibility and prize that life holds for you," said Father Mauricio W. West, diocesan vicar general and chancellor, who offered welcoming remarks. 'You are the salt of the earth; you are the light of the world. Your light must shine before all.'"

The president of the class of 2000, John Thompson, made a special presentation in honor of Father West, who was recognized by the senior class as an outstanding teacher who offered valued guidance at their senior retreat.

The evening provided speakers with a chance to share throughts on growth and learning at the Triad-area school.

In her salutatory speech, Christine Davis reflected upon her four years at Bishop McGuinness. She began by recalling how small she felt in the halls of the school as a "frosh," and added, "It is all the differences we possess that have enabled us to help each other grow."

Davis also spoke about the class' senior retreat, a two-day event at the Catholic Conference Center in Hickory. She said of the retreat, "It was perhaps the first time we realized the impact we've had on each other." She said the retreat also "gave us . . . the understanding that we are moving on but not leaving behind the things we have gained."

In his valedictory speech, Daniel Riesser concentrated on the future. Despite what has seemed to be an increase in violence in schools and among youth and a strong sense of urgency about it by officials and the media, Riesser painted a different picture of youth.

"When you look at the news, you get discouraged," he said. "When you look at Bishop McGuinness, you get a different picture about the youth of today."

Riesser spoke about the positive role models his parents have been to him and also praised his teachers for offering guidance, noting he learned far more from them than just the subjects that they taught.

In an effort to expand Bishop McGuinness' resources in the arts, the school has been working to cultivate a relationship with the North Carolina School of the Arts. For this reason and because of his extensive and successful background, Dale Pollock was asked to deliver the commencement address.

Pollock has been a successful and prolific film producer with 13 feature films (including "The Beast," "Mighty Quinn," "Mrs. Winterborne," and one filmed in High Point nine years ago, "House of Cards.") Prior to his film career, Pollock was an award-winning journalist and worked for the Los Angeles Times. He now serves as dean of the School of Filmmaking at the North Carolina School of the Arts.

PHOTO BY SUSAN deGUZMAN

Father Mauricio W. West, diocesan vicar general and chancellor, conferred diplomas during commencement exercises the graduating class of Bishop McGuinness Memorial High School in Winston-Salem.

Pollock's message to the graduates was to be aware of how they interact with technology. While having prepared his speech with the help of his "palm pilot" and "iMac," Pollock shared a warning about the effects of technology as seen in the example of Theodore Kaczynski, better known as the Unabomber.

Pollock also offered a view that advertising today is promoting a self-centered ideology in our society. While he admitted that it is inherently natural and important for children to grow up thinking they are the center of the world, Pollock said, "We're supposed to abandon this

BMHS GRADUATION, PAGE 8

Parents... why order school uniforms out of state?
A+™ school approved uniforms are as close as a drive to the lake!

Uniforms DIRECT 2U
Owner Ann Hoffman, Member of St. Therese

704-895-7474 www.uniformsdirect2u.com
Uniforms Direct 2U, 18505 Statesville Road, Suite 5-A, Cornelius, NC 28031

Please join us...
Catholic Heritage Society

Honoring the generosity of Catholic friends who provide for the future of the Church through a planned gift to the Diocese of Charlotte or a diocesan parish, school, agency, or diocesan foundation.

Become a member by making:
- A bequest in your will
- A gift from a retirement plan
- A gift of life insurance
- A gift of an annuity
- A gift of a trust
- A gift of real estate

For more information, call
Jim Kelley, Director of Development
(704) 370-3301

The Diocese of Charlotte
CATHOLIC SOCIAL SERVICES

Executive Director:
Elizabeth Thurbee (704) 370-3228
Refugee Office:
Cira Ponce (704) 370-6930
Justice & Peace:
Joanne K. Frazer (704) 370-3225
Special Ministries:
Gerard A. Carter (704) 370-3250

Charlotte Area: 1123 South Church Street, Charlotte, NC 28203
Area Director: Geri King (704) 370-6155
Western Area: 50 Orange Street, Asheville, NC 28801
Area Director: Sister Marie Frechette (828) 255-0146
Piedmont-Triad Area: 621 W. Second Street, Winston-Salem, NC 27108
Area Director: David Harold (336) 727-0705
Greensboro Satellite Office: (336) 274-5577
High Point Hispanic Center: (336) 884-5858

For information on the following programs, please contact the number listed:

CCHD	(704) 370-3234	Natural Family Planning	(704) 370-3230
Casa Guadalupe	(336) 727-4745	Operation Rice Bowl	(704) 370-3231
Catholic Relief Services	(704) 370-3225	Prison Ministry (beeper)	(704) 581-7693
Disaster Relief	(704) 370-3250	Programa Esperanza	(704) 370-6928
Elder Ministry	(704) 370-3220	Respect Life	(704) 370-3229
Family Life	(704) 370-3250	Voices for Justice Legislative Network	(704) 370-3225
Hand to Hand	(336) 725-HAND
Host Homes	(336) 725-HOST	Widow/Separated/Divorced	(704) 370-3228
Marriage Preparation	(704) 370-3228

1123 South Church Street ⊙ Charlotte, NC 28203 ⊙ www.cssnc.org

Enigma of Agca: Papal assailant leaves trail of confusion

By JOHN THAVIS
Catholic News Service

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — When would-be papal assassin Mehmet Ali Agca was released from an Italian prison and flown back to his native Turkey in mid-June, he left behind a trail of mystery and mystification.

On a human level, most people — including Pope John Paul II, who long ago forgave his assailant — were pleased for the 42-year-old Agca, whose white hair, gaunt frame and downcast demeanor have made him a pathetic figure in the eyes of many Italians.

But for those who spent years investigating the stories Agca spun, the presidential pardon was bittersweet.

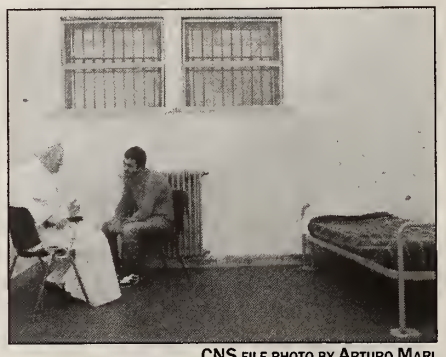
"The truth about the attack on the pope is flying away with him," one-time Agca prosecutor Antonio Marini said wistfully.

Inside a Vatican apartment, meanwhile, a retired papal usher and his family sat by the telephone with new, fragile hope that their daughter, Emanuela Orlandi, might turn up after 17 years. After the girl disappeared one summer day in Rome, Agca claimed she had been abducted by his terrorist accomplices and would be freed when he was allowed to leave prison.

"Agca has been pardoned, and maybe this will bring some good news for us, too," said Ercole Orlandi, the father of the missing girl.

Arrested immediately after he shot and wounded the pope in St. Peter's Square May 13, 1981, Agca was tried and sentenced to life in prison. A few years later, he began tantalizing magistrates with tales of plots, Soviet-bloc agents and a network of accomplices.

Heavily spotlighted by U.S. media, the "Bulgarian connection" theory alleged that the papal assassination attempt was carried out by Agca on the orders of Bulgarian intelligence officials, with the direct support of Bulgarian diplomats in Rome and a handful of Turkish terrorists.



CNS FILE PHOTO BY ARTURO MARI

Pope John Paul II talks with his would-be assassin Mehmet Ali Agca in a Rome prison in 1983, two years following the attempt on the pontiff's life. Italy granted Agca clemency June 13 after he served 19 years for the assassination attempt.

Prosecutor Marini was driven to exasperation during the famous "Bulgarian connection" trial of 1985-1986. Agca at first seemed to relish the limelight in the packed bunker-courtroom, adding new details about alleged contacts with a Soviet agent. But he began spicing his testimony with outrageous statements delivered in a weird monotone, alternately claiming to be Jesus Christ, an angel or God's prophet. Then he backed off the Bulgarian story altogether, saying he had made it up.

Prosecutor Marini accused Agca of feigning insanity; others were not so sure, as they listened to the Turk ramble incoherently about World War III and the dogma of the Assumption.

The defendants were acquitted for lack of evidence and Agca returned to prison, where he later said Italian intelligence agents had fed him information about the "Bulgarian connection." But the investigation and trial still left a dominant impression at the Vatican, echoed time and again by high church officials: Agca could not have acted alone.

"A mystery remains, which Agca himself has nurtured," Italian Cardinal Achille Silvestrini commented after the Turk left Italy.

As the years went by, Agca grew more and more interested in the story of the Marian apparitions at Fatima, Portugal. He was impressed with the pope's own belief that Mary had saved his life during the papal shooting, which occurred on the feast of Our Lady of Fatima.

Soon Agca was proclaiming himself an agent in a divine plan. He read about Fatima and discovered that in 1960, the year in which the third secret of Fatima was to have been divulged by Pope John XXIII, his own sister was born. Her name was Fatma (Fatima), a Muslim name which now took on new significance.

"A mystery remains, which Agca himself has nurtured."
— Italian Cardinal Achille Silvestrini

Agca's newfound religious role did not impress Italian investigators, however, who considered it yet another mask. They were convinced the Turk was continuing to hide the truth about the papal shooting; when the presidential pardon came, in fact, investigators were still pursuing the case, adding new documentation to the tens of thousands of pages already sitting in storage.

In the Vatican, the Orlandi family was suddenly hopeful about their daughter. Their optimism was fueled June 14 when a one-time Agca investigator, Judge Ferdinando Imposimato, told Italian media he was sure that Emanuela — who today would be 32 years old — was still alive. He said she had indeed been kidnapped by Agca's right-wing "Gray Wolves" organization, and that she had been reliably reported to have been in France and Turkey at various times.

Those remarks provoked a storm of criticism from people who believe the Orlandi family's hopes were once again being exploited. The investigator who declared the Orlandi case closed a few years ago, Adele Rando, said there has never been any real evidence to link Agca to the girl's disappearance.

Agca has said for years that there was no basis to his story about Emanuela Orlandi. But as always with Agca, there are many versions from which to choose.

As he landed in his native Turkey to face a 10-year sentence for the 1979 murder of a newspaper editor and a possible trial for an armed robbery, Turkish authorities voiced the hope that Agca would be able to shed light on some of the country's past crimes and political intrigues.

One chief question was how Agca managed to walk out of a maximum security prison in Istanbul in 1979, and whether he had the cooperation of prison or police officials.

But if Turkey is looking for answers from this man, it is likely to be disappointed. Agca once remarked that he has told so many variations of his story that he doesn't know which is real anymore. In a caveat to investigators, he also voiced his personal philosophy: "I never said there existed an absolute truth." ▼

CFCC
Carolina Funeral & Cremation Center
Dignity
Affordability
Simplicity
5505 Monroe Rd. Charlotte, NC 28212
704-568-0023
www.carolinafuneral.com
Steven Kuzma
Owner/Director
Privately, Locally Owned
Member St. Matthew Church and Knights of Columbus

THE ORATORY
434 Charlotte Avenue, P. O. Box 11586
Rock Hill, SC 29731-1586
(803) 327-2097
Summer Bible Institute
Sunday, July 30 to
Friday, August 4
MORNINGS:
Mary Margaret Pazdan
New Testament:
"Corinthian Correspondence"
EVENINGS:
Antony Campbell
Old Testament:
"A Loving God: Faith's Challenge"
For more information write:
Summer Bible Institute, The Oratory
P.O. Box 11586, Rock Hill, SC 29731-1586

THE Independent Advantage
SPELMAN & CO., INC.
A SunAmerica Company
351 N. Peacehaven Road, Winston-Salem, NC 27104
Local: (336) 768-4709
Fax: (336) 778-1444
Toll-free: (800) 859-7847

THOMAS M. PRYBYLO
Retirement Specialist
Member NASD, SIPC
Press: Extension 11 for free e-mail newsletter
Extension 12 for LongTerm Care brochure
Extention 13 for daily stock market update
WEB SITES:
For realtime quotes & financial calculators:
www.prybylofinancial.com
For LongTerm Care/Disability Insurance:
kestlerfinancial.com/agents/prybylo.htm
For Term/Family Life Insurance:
agentslink.com/tpryb/

The Brazilians are coming...
566-1009

PHOTO BY JOANN S. KEANE

Bishop William G. Curlin offers a blessing to the three men ordained to the transitional diaconate during the liturgy at St. Vincent de Paul Church in Charlotte on June 17.

The harvest is rich

Transitional diaconate, from page 1

segment to the priesthood: those entering the ministry as a second career.

"The rich experiences of these three men bring marvelous history to this holy grace," said Bishop Curlin in his homiletic address.

"You are being ordained to serve others," said the bishop. "You're asking God to take your life and use it in service, and you ask nothing in return."

When the transitional deacons return to their respective seminaries this fall for their final year of instruction, they will have the opportunity to add a practical dimension to their priestly studies. These men will apply themselves in parish-based ministry.

Rev. Mr. Duc Duong is in seminary at the Theological College at the Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C., brother Tien attends St. Vincent Seminary in Latrobe, Pa., and Rev. Mr. Ferris is in formation at St. John XXIII National Seminary in Weston, Mass.

As deacons, they can preach; assist priests at the altar during the Liturgy of the Eucharist; officiate at weddings, baptisms and funerals and administer blessings during certain liturgical rites.

The priestly class of 2001 includes a permanent deacon, ordained in 1989. Rev. Mr. Kurt Fohn, a seminarian with Rev. Mr. Ferris at St. John XXIII National Seminary in Weston, Mass., Rev. Mr. Fohn participated in the liturgy, reading the Gospel. "The harvest is rich but the laborers are few," read Rev. Mr. Fohn from the teaching Gospel of Luke.

In the Diocese of Charlotte, the laborers are on the increase. Earlier this month, Bishop Curlin ordained a record seven to the priesthood. ▼

Contact Editor Joann Keane by calling (704) 370-3336 or e-mail jskeane@charlottediocese.org.

Jubilee Days for July 2000

JUBILEE
CHRIST YESTERDAY TODAY FOREVER ™
2000

July 4
Jubilee of Religious Freedom

July 8
Jubilee Celebration of Cultural Diversity

July 9
Jubilee in Prisons

July 6-9
National Encuentro 2000

School Board Openings for the Diocesan School Board

The Diocesan School Board has two school board vacancies beginning 2000-01 school year. The School Board is a consultative body to the Bishop's representative, the Diocesan Superintendent of Schools.

The Board meets monthly from September to May at various schools throughout the Diocese. The meetings take place during the week beginning at 6:30 p.m. and ending by 9:00 p.m.

To be eligible to serve, a board member must:

1. Be a practicing Catholic. A letter of verification and recommendation by the pastor is required.
2. Be a participating parishioner of a parish in the Diocese of Charlotte.
3. Have a genuine interest and commitment to Catholic schools.
4. Be able to work effectively with others in achieving consensus.

Members shall serve terms of three years.

Individuals having school committee, board, PTO, Athletic Association or other school experience are particularly encouraged to apply by sending a resume stating professional background and parish/school participation and letter stating why you would like to serve by June 30 to:

Dr. Michael Skube
Superintendent of Schools
Catholic Schools Office
1123 South Church Street
Charlotte, NC 28203

Feel free to contact Dr. Michael Skube with questions or comments at (704) 370-3271.

Your Estate Belongs to Your Family — Not the IRS.

Unless you plan carefully, the IRS can take a large amount of money from your heirs. Call today for your free copy of "Planning Your Estate," and avoid problems.

Les Davaz
Member, St. Peter's

15800 John J. Delaney Dr.
Suite 100
Charlotte, NC 28277
(704) 341-3131 or (888) 769-3131
les.davaz@agedwards.com

A.G. Edwards
INVESTMENTS SINCE 1887

Member SIPC • 2000 A.G. Edwards & Sons, Inc.

[16784] EP-116-1100

COACH XCEL

A Personal Coach Is to Your Mind and Spirit What A Personal Trainer Is to Your Body.

- Achieve more success and significance both personally and professionally
- Earn more money while growing personally
- Attain better overall health with less stress
- Possess higher self confidence and reach your goals

For a complimentary consultation call
John Connors, LPC @ 704-597-4184
Licensed Professional Counselor

CCHS graduation, from page 4

sense of community that he said CCHS provided and made him the person he is today.

The former football team captain and founder of BRIGHTf - By Reading Imaginations Grow and Have a Future, a children's reading program, said, "I am ready to get my life started but I am also a little nervous, even scared about losing old friendships and making new friends when I am at college. What I liked about CCHS is that I was around others who had the same faith as I did, which contributed to my faith even more."

Falencki will be attending Princeton University in the fall where he will major in physics or political science.

Kristine Johanson, who will begin classes at Georgetown University as an international politics major, agreed, "Being able to talk about God in the classroom and having discussions about religion and Catholicism made CCHS special for me."

Johanson, who was editor in chief of the school's newspaper, retreat coordinator for peer ministry and a theater enthusiast, said that she will take the sense of pride and the memories that CCHS instilled in her to college.

"I am looking forward to college being exciting and challenging but also scary because I don't know what to expect," she continued. "I hope to be successful, and I hope not to lose track of the values and confidence that CCHS gave me." ▼

Contact Staff Writer Alesha M. Price by calling (704) 370-3354 or e-mail amprice@charlottediocese.org.

BMHS graduation, from page 5

when we grow up and become responsible, productive members of society, contributing to the greater good, as well as to personal self-enrichment."

Pollock encouraged the students by saying, "If you were to live up to the potential that exists in each of you, it won't be thanks to the computer, . . . or a website. It will come from what's inside your brain, in your heart and the moral choices you make about how to live your real and electronic lives."

The invocation was given by Rev. Mr. Thomas O'Connell, a permanent deacon of the diocese and a retiring religion teacher at the school. Principal George L. Repass offered welcoming remarks along with Father West. Dr. Michael Skube, superintendent of schools, introduced the speaker.

Bishop William G. Curlin had earlier celebrated a baccalaureate Mass for the graduates, on May 30 at Holy Family Church in Clemmons. ▼

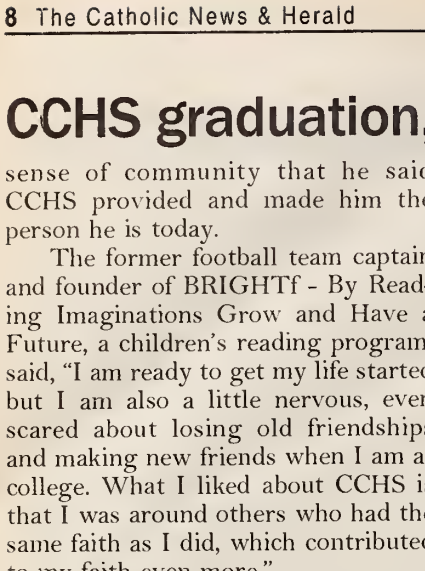
Schools-Bonds, from page 3

However, the school communities need not worry that the use of the funding will in any way alter the Catholicity of the schools in terms of their function, appearance or purpose, said Weldon.

Other Catholic educational institutions in the region have used tax-exempt bonds in capital projects during the past couple of years. In 1998, Belmont Abbey College was issued bonds for a variety of projects, and last year the Archdiocese of Atlanta and the Dioceses of Raleigh and Charleston each received bonds for high school-related projects.

"This is an exciting development," said Weldon. "We are able to borrow the needed funds with an interest rate that is so much lower than conventional financing. Ultimately, we will be saving millions of dollars in interest." ▼

Contact Associate Editor Jimmy Rostar by calling (704) 370-3334 or e-mail jtrostar@charlottediocese.org.



For more information, please write:
Fr. Ed McDevitt, C.O. or Fr. Joe Pearce, C.O.
The Oratory
P.O. Box 11586
Rock Hill, SC 29731-1586

Join us in serving God as priest or brother.

Our Oratorian Congregation was founded in Rome by St. Philip Neri in 1575. Known as "The Apostle of Joy," St. Phillip lived this virtue and brought people of all ages and backgrounds to the Church.

As a group of priests and lay men, we live a community life without vows and serve the people of God in various ministries:

- Parishes
- Retreat Work
- Nursing
- Campus Ministry
- Youth Summer Camp
- Hospital Chaplaincy

Like our ministries, our members are unique and come from across the United States and from Brazil.

DIOCESE OF CHARLOTTE
JUBILEE 2000 — CHRIST YESTERDAY TODAY FOREVER
ITALY
Sept. 25-Oct. 3, 2000
with Rev. Mr. Curtiss Todd
For registration package, call Joann Keane, (704) 370-3336 or visit
www.charlottediocese.org/travel

Carolina Volkswagen
6625 E. Independence Blvd., Charlotte
(704) 537-2336 • (800) 489-2336
Biggest Selection — Lowest Prices
Drivers wanted.
"Nothing Could Be Finer" Members of St. Gabriel
#1 Volkswagen Dealer in Charlotte and all the Carolinas for customer sales and service satisfaction!
C'mon in and see why!

Let stairs be our problem... not yours!
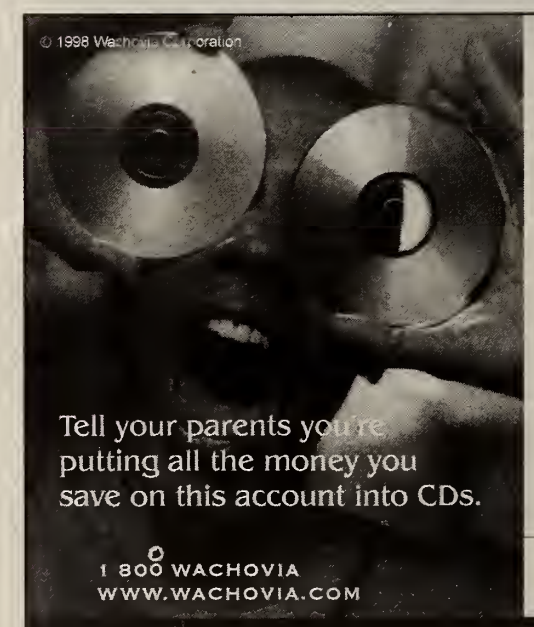
Ask about our Stairway lifts.
- Easily attached to steps (not walls)
- Folds out of the way
- Fits most stairways (straight & curved)
- Very affordable (rent or buy)
- We install

Chair & Equipment Rentals & Sales, Inc.
800 Central Ave. • Charlotte, NC • (800) 333-8431
Member of St. Thomas Aquinas



The Wachovia College Account basically offers you free checking. VISA® Check Card with no monthly maintenance fee. Free online account access. No minimum balances. Even your very own credit card. And Wachovia has branches and ATMs all over the place

You've got enough on your mind with books, tuition and money for the latest CDs. You shouldn't have to worry about the cost of banking.

WACHOVIA
Let's get started.℠

THE COLLEGE ACCOUNT
FREE CHECKING FREE WACHOVIA ATM USE NO MINIMUM BALANCE UNLIMITED CHECK WRITING
Wachovia Bank is amember FDIC. Accounts subject to approval.

Father Guy Morse, veteran priest of Charlotte Diocese, dies at age 83

ALBANY, N.Y. — Father Guy E. Morse, a veteran priest of the Diocese of Charlotte and a resident of the Teresian House in Albany, N.Y., died June 10, 2000, at the age of 83. Born on Jan. 11, 1917, in Harford, N.Y., he was the son of the late Bert S. and Anna G. Morse.

His early experiences on the family dairy farm in Harford and his employment as a bookkeeper for a Cortland, N.Y., veterinarian piqued Father Morse's interest in veterinary medicine. Subsequently, he enrolled at Cornell University's School of Veterinary Medicine and was awarded his doctor of veterinary (DVM) degree in 1942.

While practicing veterinary medicine in Windsor, N.Y., he met and married Anne Suflita of Johnson City, N.Y. After 12 years of practice, he became a professor and researcher in large animal medicine at Cornell University. In 1961, he accepted a teaching and research position at the University of Pennsylvania's large animal facility in Kennett Square, Pa.

Following the death of his wife in 1973, and after undergoing coronary bypass surgery three years later, Father Morse's career took another path. His strong faith, the encouragement of Father William Wright and the support of the Catholic community of St. Patrick Church in Kennett Square prompted him to explore opportunities for religious vocations. At the age of 60, he entered Sacred Heart School of Theology in Hales Corners, Wis., to pursue a master's of divinity degree. After completion of his studies, he was ordained a Catholic priest in 1981 by Bishop Emeritus Michael J. Begley of the Diocese of Charlotte, N.C.

He served as deacon and associate pastor at Our Lady of the Assumption Church in Charlotte, N.C.; pastor of St. John the Baptist Church in Tryon, N.C.; and pastor of Immaculate Heart of Mary Church in High Point, N.C. He retired from active ministry following a stroke in 1990.

Father Morse is survived by his brother, Roger S. Morse, of Auburn, N.Y.; his sister, Ruth Goodale, of Cortland, N.Y.; his three children: Nadine M. Noble, of Dover, Del.; Alan G. Morse, of San Diego, Calif.; and Adele O'Connell, of Albany, N.Y.; his five grandchildren; and several nieces and nephews.

The funeral Mass was celebrated at St. Vincent de Paul Church in Albany on Wednesday, June 14. Interment was June 15 following a memorial Mass at St. Patrick Church in Kennett Square, Pa.

In lieu of flowers, Father Morse's family suggests that donations be made to St. John the Baptist Catholic Church, 600 Laurel Ave., Tryon, N.C. 28782, or to the Teresian House, 200 Washington Ave. Extension, Albany, N.Y. 12203. ▼

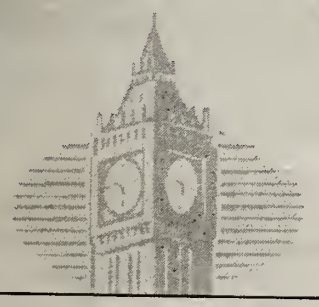
FILE PHOTO

Father Guy Morse

Monet
Matisse
Manet
Mo

www.charlottediocese.org/travel

Paris - London
October 19 - 26
très cool



Living Water flows through a diocesan endowment.

When you establish an endowment with the diocesan foundation, you...

Enable Perpetual Support
Every year, your "living water" flows with financial aid to the ministry you choose.

Ensure a Strong Future
Allow a parish, school, agency or the diocese to look ahead and plan with confidence.

Enact a Lasting Legacy
Provide your loved ones with a continuing reminder of your values: Your faith and the mission of the Church.

Those who drink the water that I will give them will never be thirsty again. — John 4:14

For more information, call Jim Kelley, Director of Development for the Diocese of Charlotte at (704) 370-3301

You know how to put money into your IRA.
What's the best way to take it out?

Find out how to minimize taxes and penalties in our exclusive IRA Distribution Manual.

Call Jeanne O. McCulloch, Financial Consultant, (336) 721-9221 or (800) 334-4401 for your free copy of The Salomon Smith Barney IRA Distribution Manual.

SALOMON SMITH BARNEY

A member of citigroup

© 1999 Salomon Smith Barney Inc. Member SIPC. Salomon Smith Barney is a service mark of Salomon Smith Barney Inc.

We reach OVER 115,000 business people and families. ... Do YOU?

Advertise in The Catholic News & Herald.
Call Cindi Feerick (704) 370-3332

JOHANNUS CHURCH ORGANS
America's best value in sound & price.
SYNTHIA MUSIC SYSTEMS
Catholic Hymns at the push of a button.
SOUND SYSTEMS
Totally wireless systems and hearing impaired devices.
CHURCH PIANOS
Quality pianos for affordable prices.
ELECTRONIC ORGAN SERVICE ON ALL MAKES

Music & Electronics, Inc.
Corner of Oak & Broad Streets, Mooresville, NC
(704) 663-7007 — (800) 331-0768

Attention
DIABETICS
with Medicare or Insurance

Save Money on Diabetic Supplies!

For more information call:
1-800-337-4144

Medicare also pays for pump & pump supplies

"Our Specialty Is Loving Your Pets"
Pineville Animal Hospital
10833 Pineville Road, Pineville, NC
(Near Carolina Pavilion/AMC 22 Theater)
(704) 552-2005
In addition to our complete medical care facility, we also offer:
Boarding Kennels
Professional Grooming

Thomas N. Buckley, DVM, owner
Member of St. Vincent's

Book Review

Comprehensive book examines Mary as revealed in apparitions

Reviewed by DIMITRA C. BOLGER
Catholic News Service

In a remarkably succinct, clear and comprehensive new book, journalist and author Roy Abraham Varghese examines Mary, the mother of Jesus, specifically as she reveals herself through the medium of apparitions.

Varghese provides an in-depth examination of 2,000 years of Marian apparitions. "God-Sent: A History of the Recorded Apparitions of Mary" narrows its scope from the onset by examining only 34 apparitions — 30 of which are fully church approved and four which are still undergoing investigation.

"God-sent: A History of The Accredited Apparitions of Mary"
By Roy Abraham Varghese
Crossroads Publishing Company (New York, 2000). 228 pp., $39.95.

The book begins with a laudable overview of Mariology, briefly outlining who Mary is in Catholic teaching, an explanation of dogmas concerning Mary, and a study of her according to Scripture and the early church fathers.

Varghese then examines in detail the 34 apparitions, highlighting the messages, phenomena and fruits of each.

In a third and final part of the book, he studies the teachings and messages of Mary, delving into the content of the messages to discover why she has appeared so many times and in so many places to spread her messages.

I would definitely recommend the book to anyone who wants a lucid, comprehensive and intelligent approach to Marian apparitions. The book possesses several strengths.

First, Varghese has the remarkable ability to explore more than 2,000 years of developed Catholic teachings on Mary and present the information in a cogent and easily understandable manner without marring critical distinctions. His explanation of the five Marian dogmas would earn the respect of any respectable Mariologist.

Second, Varghese's book stands apart from others because he searches all parts of the world to report on their experiences of Mary. Most readers would expect that he would examine the big four: Guadalupe, Lourdes, Fatima and Medjugorje. But many well-educated Catholics might find themselves surprised to learn of some other approved apparitions. Ever hear of Our Lady of Vailankanni, in India in the 16th and 17th centuries? Or how about Our Lady of LaVang, in Vietnam in 1798?

Third, Varghese takes a rigorously academic approach throughout the book, avoiding the oversentimentalism to which so many Marian books fall prey.

And finally, he follows with four appendices (I wish they would be developed into books or larger chapters) which give solid philosophical responses to some of the most difficult questions in theology on subjects such as the existence of God and the historical reality of Jesus.

Not explaining the criteria by which the church decides the validity of an apparition is a major flaw because the book proposes to be a defense and explanation of Marian apparitions for all people — Catholics, Protestants, atheists, and any other interested person. Does the church use varying criteria in different centuries? Among different populations? Under different circumstances? It would have been helpful if he at least addressed these questions.

And yet, despite this criticism, Varghese is able to retain the inextricable beauty and mystery of Mary the Mother of Jesus, not reducing her to a mere object of a philosophical and theological analysis. ▼

Bolger recently received a bachelor's degree in theology, philosophy and Great Books from Franciscan University of Steubenville. She is a staff assistant at the U.S. Catholic Conference and continues her studies of Mariology.

Word to Life

June 25, Feast of the Most Holy Body and Blood of Christ, Cycle B Readings:

1) Exodus 24:3-8
Psalm 116:12-13, 15-18
2) Hebrews 9:11-15
3) Gospel: Mark 14:12-16, 22-26

By JEFF HENSLEY
Catholic News Service

When my wife and I were VISTA volunteers, working in rural Arkansas many years ago, I was coming to the end of my "quest for the major truths of life" induced agnosticism.

It had started during my senior year of high school, when the God Is Dead movement had begun making headlines in the major news magazines, but ended in large part in response to the stars; finding an answer to the question: "What things are of eternal importance, and what institution is encouraging attention to those things?"; and a searching of the Scriptures.

All of which is to beg the question of God's invitation to my heart to receive his love, the underlying, but as always, motive force.

Even so, lying back on a redwood picnic bench on the gravel drive in front of my rural rent house, staring up at billions upon billions of stars had a huge role in my conversion, or rather re-conversion, back to the faith of my childhood.

I was in total awe before this evidence of the majesty of God. And in that awe, in that sense of my smallness before all of this grandness, I found comfort in the message of Scripture: God is love, and he who created all of this has given all that he is to prove my significance and my worth.

Weekly Scripture

Readings for the week of June 25 - July 1, 2000

Corpus Christi Sunday, Exodus 24:3-8, Hebrews 9:11-15, Mark 14:12-16, 22-26; Monday, 2 Kings 17:5-8, 13-15, 18, Matthew 7:1-5; Tuesday (St. Cyril of Alexandria), 2 Kings 19:9-11, 14-21, 31-36, Matthew 7:6, 12-14; Wednesday (St. Irenaeus), 2 Kings 22:8-13; 23:1-3, Matthew 7:15-20; Thursday (Sts. Peter and Paul), Acts 12:1-11, 2 Timothy 4:6-8, 17-18, Matthew 16:13-19; Friday (Sacred Heart of Jesus), Hosea 11:1, 3-4, 8-9, Ephesians 3:8-12, 14-19, John 19:31-37; Saturday (Immaculate Heart of Mary), Lamentations 2:10-14, 18-19, Luke 2:41-51

Readings for the week of July 2 - 8, 2000

Sunday, Wisdom 1:13-15; 2:23-24, 2 Corinthians 8:7, 9, 13-15, Mark 5:21-43; Monday (St. Thomas the Apostle), Ephesians 2:19-22, John 20:24-29; Tuesday (St. Elizabeth of Portugal), Amos 3:1-8, 4:11-12, Matthew 8:23-27; Wednesday, Amos 5:14-15, 21-24, Matthew 8:28-34; Thursday (St. Maria Goretti), Amos 7:10-17, Matthew 9:1-8; Friday, Amos 8:4-6, 9-12, Matthew 9:9-13; Saturday, Amos 9:11-15, Matthew 9:14-17

The Franciscan Center
Catholic Gift & Book Store
Over 700 Book Titles, plus Bibles, Rosaries, Statues, Medals, Tapes, CD's, Plaques, & much, much more!
Hours: 9am - 5pm Monday - Friday
(336) 273-2554 233 N. Greene St. Greensboro, NC 27401

Providing Quality Long Term Care ...With Great Love.

For half a century, Maryfield Nursing Home has provided outstanding nursing care in a Catholic environment. When you need more care than is available at your home, come visit us. We invite you to discover for yourself our many stimulating daily activities and services which make Maryfield the best possible choice for Long Term Care.
1315 Greensboro Road
High Point, NC 27260
336.886.2444 Fax 336.886.4036
www.greensboro.com/mnh
MARYFIELD
A Continuing Care Retirement Community

Cornerstones
Fall Camp for the young at heart!
Ages 50 and Up
September 24-29
Deluxe lodging, delicious meals, college level curriculum, hands-on instruction, fun and entertaining events, field trips to neat places with great friends! Week-long fun at a very special place.
For more information, call toll-free
888-526-7441 or (828) 327-7441
E-mail: ccc@twave.net
www.catholicconference.org

The Catholic Conference Center
1551 Trinity Lane Hickory, NC

CNS PHOTO FROM DREAMWORKS PICTURES

"Chicken Run"

Delightful clay animation feature about a plucky chicken (voice of Julia Sawalha) and her hen pals cooped up in a British egg farm who, with the help of a flying Yankee rooster (voice of Mel Gibson), must escape the cruel clutches of the egg farmer (voice of Miranda Richardson) before she turns them into chicken pies. Though the story lags in parts and some jokes may go over children's heads, fantastic anthropomorphized features and the narrative's witty details make directors Peter Lord and Nick Park's first full-length feature both visually pleasing and cleverly amusing despite a few intense moments. The U.S. Catholic Conference classification is A-I — general patronage. The Motion Picture Association of America rating is G — general audiences.

Jackson reinvents dynamic police detective in "Shaft"

By ANNE NAVARRO
Catholic News Service

NEW YORK (CNS) — Shaft is back. Can you dig it?

The dynamic figure of John Shaft is reinvented in the slick action drama "Shaft" (Paramount).

In the 21st century, John Shaft (Samuel L. Jackson) is a New York City police detective and nephew to his namesake, the infamous John Shaft (Richard Roundtree reprising his role). This time around, the younger Shaft is out to get Walter Wade (Christian Bale), the arrogant son of a real estate mogul who skips bail and spends two years skiing in the Alps after being caught for the racially motivated murder of a young black man.

When Wade tries to sneak back into the country, Shaft is there to haul him back into custody. But the judge grants bail — and Wade's rich daddy once again posts it — and he's out on the streets within hours. Feeling betrayed by the system, Shaft decides to turn in his badge and use his street smarts to bring Wade to justice.

The only witness to Wade's brutal crime was bartender Diane Palmieri (Toni Collette), whose bird's-eye view of the murder has forced her into hiding. Without her, Shaft had no hope of a conviction, but he must find her before Wade does.

Through an interesting turn of events, Wade teams up with Peoples Hernandez (Jeffrey Wright), a feisty Dominican drug lord who rules his corner of the New York City streets with a Machiavellian hand. Peoples is all too willing to help the preppy rich kid since he is interested in exacting revenge after Shaft humiliated him in front of his posse.

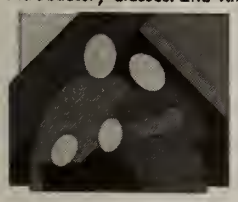
Yet despite magnetic performances and an absorbing narrative that keeps surprising the viewer, "Shaft" is marred by repeated brutality. Guns seem to be drawn — and used — constantly. Nevertheless, the movie does walk a fine line in depicting violence in an exciting manner without actually glamorizing it.

Jackson plays Shaft with all the coolness, attitude and seething anger one would expect. Yet the real surprise performance comes from Wright, who gives his ambitious mambo-king thug vitality and believability. His bad-boy swagger and thick Dominican accent (which makes the golf pro's name sound like Tiga Woo) give his character authenticity, making him seem right at home in his surroundings.

Disappointingly, women are given little to do. Vanessa L. Williams as the narcotic cop who helps out Shaft is little more than the token woman in the business. And although her character is pivotal to the plot, Collette's Diane is given minimal screen time.

The film realistically portrays the

See "SHAFT," page 14

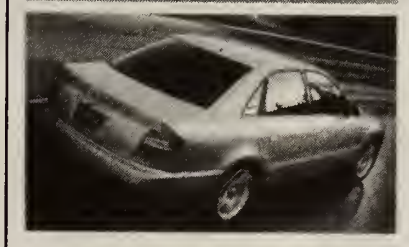
Come find out about...
Natural Family Planning
Catholic Social Services
Introductory Classes: 2nd Tuesday of every month


Next class: July 13th
Upcoming classes: Aug. 8th & Sept. 12
Fee: $10
Call to pre-register
Classes held at 7pm at the Charlotte Diocese Pastoral Center
1123 South Church Street
(4 blocks from Ericsson "Panther" Stadium)
For information, other class locations and methods, please call (704) 370-3230.

CLOSED MONDAYS THRU LABOR DAY
Tues-Fri 9:30am-5:30pm
Sat. 9:30am-3:00pm
Carolina Catholic Bookshoppe
† Special Cards
† Religious Articles
† Unique Gift Ideas
704-342-2878
Fax (704) 334-3313
4410-F Monroe Road, Charlotte, NC
We welcome mail orders and special orders!

Steve Hughes
House Painting & Pressure Washing
Interior/Exterior
Also specializing in interior painting, wall murals and children's rooms!
(704) 225-8188
References Provided
St. Gabriel Parishioner

COACH-XCEL
Spirit - Body - Mind
Hypnosis - Thought Field Therapy
Stop Smoking • Live Healthier
Manage Stress • Reduce Chronic Pain
Improve Job, Academic, Sports Performance
Call Today! 704-597-4184
John Connors LPC, NBCCH, TFT
Licensed Professional Counselor, National Board of Certified Clinical Hypnotherapists
Diplomate Certified - Thought Field Therapy



We Warn You: If You Drive One You're Gonna Want One!
Volkswagen and Audi...the only car companies to have every model named best in its class. Find out why. Come in for a thrill ride today.
Honest pricing, honest financing, and honest service on Europe's most exciting new cars. From the incredible New Beetle, to the all new Jetta IV and luxurious new generation of Audi, we have the right car for your pocketbook...and your lifestyle.
Volkswagen Audi South
John Diederich, Owner
Member Saint Gabriel Parish
7401 South Boulevard . Charlotte . 704.552.6500 . 800.426.5347
www.vwsouth.com . www.audisouth.com

The Pope Speaks

POPE JOHN PAUL II

Pope hopes summit will help reunite North, South Korea

BY JOHN THAVIS
CATHOLIC NEWS SERVICE

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — Pope John Paul II said he hoped the historic summit between North and South Korea would open the way to reconciliation and help reunite long-separated families on the peninsula.

The pope, speaking at a Sunday blessing June 11, said that if the three-day summit were successful, it would offer cause for "joyous hope" for all humanity.

North Korean leader Kim Jong-il and South Korean President Kim Dae-jung were scheduled to meet in the North Korean capital of Pyongyang.

"I join all people of good will in thanking the leaders of the two countries for this initiative, in the hope that dialogue and exchange of views can contribute to the reconciliation of the two populations, to the reunion of families separated for half a century and to the renewed stability and prosperity of the entire Korean peninsula," the pope said.

"Only through a generous commitment in favor of the common good will it be possible to overcome the problems and reach a positive result," he added.

Western leaders were hopeful that the summit marked an attempt by North Korea to reach out from its international isolation and bring a lasting peace to the peninsula, where a 1950-53 war ended without a treaty.

Catholic leaders in South Korea have welcomed the summit, particularly because it could open the way to reuniting the thousands of separated families. South Korean officials say that after the Korean War began in 1950, some 690,000 people fled to the South, leaving families in the North.

South Korean church leaders have also said the summit could help lead to more accurate outside monitoring of humanitarian aid distribution in the North, where famine has recurred in recent years.

South Korean Archbishop Nicholas Cheong Jin-suk of Seoul, apostolic administrator of Pyongyang, said that although political reunification may be an unrealistic goal for the immediate future, economic and cultural exchanges could begin between North and South.

"Thank God the summit is taking place," he told Fides, the Vatican's missionary news agency.

South Korean Cardinal Stephen Kim Souhwan, retired archbishop of Seoul, said North-South unification will be possible only if it happens in a peaceful manner.

"The success of the summit depends on a prior commitment of reconciliation and cooperation. But what is necessary above all is the consensus of the entire population, both in the North and in the South," Cardinal Kim told Fides.

Vatican officials have made four visits to North Korea in recent years, to follow the work of humanitarian assistance programs. In June the pope donated $50,000 to a Catholic charities campaign to raise $3.6 million to fight hunger and poverty in North Korea.

Parish Diary

FATHER PETER DALY
CNS COLUMNIST

A modern seminarian

This summer I have a seminarian living in the rectory. His name is George. He is helping out in our parish as part of his "deacon's summer," which is part of most seminary training these days. Next spring George will be ordained to the priesthood.

While his summer training is rather typical, his profile would have been unusual 20 years ago. George is 67. He is the father of 12 children and grandfather of 17. George's wife, Mary Ann, died eight years ago at the age of 59 from cancer. Their youngest child had just finished college at the time his wife died.

George is a former lawyer. He practiced law for nearly 35 years in suburban Washington. He is studying at Pope John XXIII seminary just outside Boston. It is a seminary designed for men over 50.

At a time in life when most people are slowing down, George is speeding up. Soon he will take on the stresses and strains of being a parish priest. In this era that often sees men half his age burn out, we certainly need his wisdom and his help.

George is remarkable. He is unattached to material things, which the world associates with a lifetime of accomplishment. He sold the big house where he and his wife raised their family to one of their children. Now he accommodates himself well to the simplicity of a dorm room or the impersonal quality of rectory life.

It requires humility to begin again. It is humbling to be a student and hard to be an "apprentice" again, so late in life, particularly when your "pastor" is not much older than one of your children.

George prepared for life as a priest through a life of devotion as a layman. He and his wife were daily communicants throughout their marriage. Entering the priesthood is a way of continuing and deepening the spirituality he shared with his wife.

The spiritual journey of our summer seminarian tells a little something about what is happening to the priesthood in 21st-century America. While once it was rare to find a seminarian over 30, now it is the norm.

Today about 60 percent of seminarians are over age 30, according to the Center for Applied Research in the Apostolate at Georgetown University in Washington. About 18 percent are over the age of 40.

A recent issue of Washingtonian magazine did a profile of recently ordained area priests. It is an exceptional bunch, including former dentists, engineers, contractors, civil servants, military officers, doctors, policemen, professors, lawyers and even a stockbroker. Several had raised families.

In some ways, what is happening in the 21st century is a reversion to the first-century pattern of priestly vocations. Our word "priest" derives from presbyter, which means "elder." In the church's early days, the men who presided at the liturgy and had care of the local church were literally the "elders" of the community.

They had proven by a life a holiness that they were ready to assume the role of pastor. Their gray heads gave them respect in the community of believers. Their lives as sober, stable husbands and fathers were seen as a sign of spiritual maturity, as Paul writes in his first letter to Timothy.

While it is true that the long training required of priests today is different from ancient days and may discourage many men in later life, I think this new pattern of vocations presents the church with a real opportunity. Perhaps it is the work of the Holy Spirit finding elders of our community among the "fathers" in our flock.

The Bottom Line

ANTOINETTE BOSCO
CNS COLUMNIST

The roots of road rage

I was driving home, slowing down, signaling that I was about to turn left into my driveway. A car was very close behind me, with the driver obviously annoyed that I had slowed down. Suddenly, as I was about to turn, he zoomed to pass me, gesturing with his finger as he did so. But for the grace of God, I was able to jam on my brakes, avoiding a deadly collision.

I have seen anger on the road many times. Now we have a name for it: "road rage." Incidents are reported in the news where a driver, enraged at another driver, smashes in the rear window, bangs in the back of the car, even takes out a gun and shoots.

A recent story told of a woman driving on a rainy night in bumper-to-bumper traffic, who hit the car ahead of her. The driver got out, infuriated. She pulled down her window, and as she did so her little dog jumped into her lap. The man grabbed the dog and threw it into heavy traffic. It was hit and killed, and the man got back into his car and drove away.

What is this phenomenon of road rage anyway? Recently I met the Rev. Richard Kirby at an anti-violence conference put on by Connecticut's Survivors of Homicide. He has studied what he calls "this pathological form of releasing anger."

Rage, he says, is leaking out over all sectors of society. You read about people even on airlines who yell out because the person in the next row puts his seat back or the coffee is too hot. There's a "hemorrhaging of good will that is revealing a change in cultural law." This change, Kirby said, is the result of a "cheapening ... of the worth of human life."

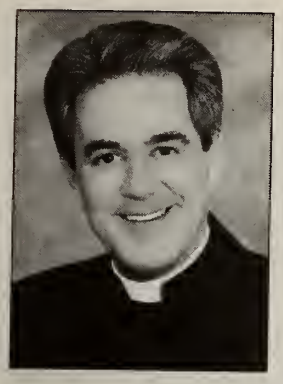
Kirby said that "road rage is a form of violence. As a nation we're becoming, for some reason, more and more angry" and choosing to lash out.

Road rage accounts now for some 200 homicides and 300,000 injuries. We have the perfect formula for aggressive driving: more cars in less space and new cultural norms that treat people as objects, not persons. We "have to say stop" to this, said Kirby, a minister who is executive director of the Stuart C. Dodd Institute for Social Innovation based in Seattle, Wash.

With Leon James, a professor in Hawaii, Kirby in 1995 launched a program called Youth Against Road Rage. It begins with an incredible approach. "We tell them, 'Get into your car, turn your key and now begin a journey to love.'" That's the only solution, says this very spiritual man. "The antidote to rage is love."

The youth record their reactions to what they encounter on the road, be it aggressive driving, hateful gesturing, cutting off, blocking, chasing. If they react in an "I'm not going to stand for that" mode, they are shown how this stems from false pride, adds to anger and makes things worse. Instead, "they could make a 'de-escalating' decision," which is a response of love.

If we could get 1 million young people to join Youth Against Road Rage, it would be a youth "power engine to initiate safe driving," Kirby said. This, he said, is his mission. "I'm a wandering minstrel, going from place to place singing a song of a better society."



Light One Candle

FATHER THOMAS J. McSWEENEY
GUEST COLUMNIST

"Encore!"

"The show must go on!" is one of those theatrical clichés to which every actor who has ever performed on stage can relate. When something goes wrong — and invariably something does — you screw up your courage and keep going. The trick is to keep the audience from noticing the gaffe.

But there was no way to disguise the disaster visited on Manoel Feliciano, the understudy who got his first chance to strut his stuff as Judas in the new Broadway production of Jesus Christ Superstar. The actor who regularly plays the role took ill, and Manoel donned his costume and headed for the footlights with the energy of a star itching to be born.

Some five minutes into the show, Manoel launched into his first big solo number with stunning bravado and conviction. His vocal authority stirred the audience immediately. But he lost sight of where he was standing, and took one giant step toward the audience, plunging head first into the orchestra pit.

The music came to a crashing halt, the audience held its collective breath, while the follow-spot flit about the stage for the actor who seemed to have evaporated into thin air. Within a heartbeat, Manoel reappeared, catapulted back onstage by several musicians; the conductor signaled a downbeat and everyone picked up at precisely the point where Judas lost his footing.

The show must go on!

We could see Manoel was injured and in pain. A bruised lump over his left eye was growing to the size of a grapefruit with each measure, and his left arm moved stiffly. Yet his magnificent voice was unaffected and confident. At the end of the number, the grateful spectators awarded him with thunderous applause. Bravos for this debut performance — from the ground up!

Beaming back at us, Manoel did a remarkable thing. He blessed himself with the sign of the cross. He may have gestured unintentionally, but in his heart he was clearly thanking God for seeing him through what had to be one of the most startling accidental exits any actor ever made.

His love for his craft did not go unnoticed: the applause swelled even louder.

David Matthews, artistic director at the Erie Community Theatre back in my hometown in Pennsylvania, tells the actors on each opening night: "Remember, if you love your audience, they will love you back." And it's true.

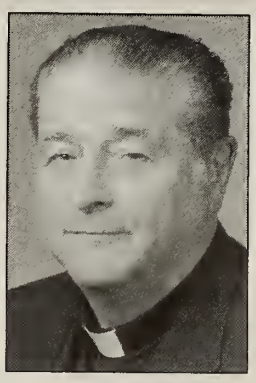
But I believe that audience was also showing its genuine appreciation for the actor's acknowledgement of God's role in seeing him through a tough moment. Manoel's awesome recovery proves that even when things don't go quite as you plan or rehearse them that there is still the opportunity for personal grace.

It is precisely at those critical moments when your love for others, your faith in yourself and, above all, your reliance on God can make all the difference.

And deep within, you just may hear His voice saying, "Encore! Encore!"

Father Thomas J. McSweeney is director of The Christophers.

Question Corner



FATHER JOHN DIETZEN
CNS COLUMNIST

What do we say about Mary and sin?

Q. We profess that Mary was conceived, and lived, free of sin. Yet, the Easter Sunday Sequence says Christ was the only person completely sinless. I'm confused.

A. The prayer you refer to, which includes the words "Christ, who only is sinless," is an optional part of the Liturgy of the Word at Easter. This English translation is a poetic one, however, and is not entirely accurate.

In the official Latin text of this majestic sequence, which goes back to the 11th century, the line reads, "Christus innocens Patri reconciliavit peccatores," literally "the innocent Christ has reconciled sinners with the Father."

Dealing with abortion

Q. I'm responding to your recent answer to a woman dealing with guilt after an abortion. It would have been helpful also to let her know there are many other ways out there of being helped.

Project Rachel is experiencing a tremendous increase of women in need of healing. A women's center offers the "blanket of love," allowing women to name their children (many women have a sense of the sex of their child) and embroider a quilt square in their honor.

A Protestant organization offers a bronze plaque with a name, date and inscription. All these programs allow women to claim "ownership" of their child, their grief, their guilt and their forgiveness.

I had to bury two babies, one year apart, who did not survive birth. They are buried side by side, and each one has played a powerful part in my emotional healing. These sons of mine continue to live because their short lives are still saving others from despair.

Not so for the mothers of aborted babies, until they can claim their babies' lives in some fashion. One woman told me she has confessed her sin so many times the priest told her not to mention it again as she is forgiven. Yes, she is forgiven, but she is not healed. For women in this situation it is not enough to talk with a friend. Fortunately, we are trying to put programs in place to receive them.

A. I am grateful to this reader and to the dozens of others who wrote in the same vein urging that women who have had an abortion be informed of the assistance and support that is available. I have mentioned a number of these, including Project Rachel, often in the past. They are increasingly well and professionally developed, and at least some of them are available in every state.

One excellent program I recently learned of from another reader is the Rachel's Vineyard retreat. This Catholic weekend offers opportunity for the sacraments and spiritual reflection for mothers and/or fathers of aborted children, and also for other parents who have lost a child through miscarriage or an accident.

It began in Pennsylvania, but is already available in several states and is growing. Much information, including locations and dates, is available from their Website (www.rachelsvineyard.org), or by phone (877-467-3463).

The national number for Project Rachel is 800-593-2273. Information on available post-abortion assistance can also be obtained, of course, from the chancery office of each diocese.

Questions may be sent to Father John Dietzen, Box 325, Peoria, IL 61651, or e-mail: jjdietzen@aol.com.

Guest Column

FATHER JOHN C. AURILIA, OFM CAP
GUEST COLUMNIST

The politics of Jesus

We all know that Jesus is God and Savior, but we may stretch the humanity of Jesus to the point of calling him "political philosopher and thinker." Some may even say that this is impossible because Jesus explicitly says: "My kingdom is not of this world." (Jn. 18:36). Jesus was right when he stated that his kingdom was totally different from our government, and yet, Jesus does have a policy and a theory, which makes sense even on our planet earth.

Jean Jacques Rousseau in his "Social Contract" (bk. 2, ch.7) writes: "in the march of time, to look forward to a distant glory, and, working in one century, to be able to enjoy in the next, it would take gods to give men laws." Sorry, Mr. Rousseau, that would be an imperfect chaos because your "gods" are more imperfect than we are.

The prophet Isaiah (9:6) had a better idea a few thousand years before us. He said: "the government will rest on his shoulder... there will be no end to the increase of his government."

St. Paul goes even further when he says that Christ was relevant to Athens because He is the God of all nations. The Acts of the Apostles have what we may call a mission statement of Jesus' political relevance: "He made from one, every nation of mankind to live on all the face of the earth, having determined their appointed times, and the boundaries of their habitation, that they should seek God ... because He has fixed a day in which he will judge the world in righteousness through a Man whom He has appointed, having furnished proof for all people by raising Him from the dead." (Acts 17:26-27, 30-31)

The political arena of Jesus revolves around social issues in the simplest terms ever written and lived throughout the history of the world "I was hungry and you fed me, I was thirsty and you gave me drink. I was a stranger and you welcomed me." (Mt. 2 5:3 5) Then social injustice came along to feed the rich and to starve the poor, then racism came along to identify human beings by the color of their skin. All this was not included in Jesus' mission statement.

Jesus is indeed present in our political arena today, but in a reverse cycle. If Jesus returned today, he would be wanted and relentlessly pursued by:

— The IRS for not reporting his annual income.

— The FDA for turning water into wine without a license.

— The EPA for not filling out the appropriate forms revealing the precise location where some people are burning in hell.

— The Occupational Safety and Health Administration for walking on water without a life jacket.

— The ANIA for practicing medicine wihtout a license.

— SACS for teaching without a proper degree and a teacher's certification.

SEE POLITICS OF JESUS, PAGE 14

Politics of Jesus, from page 13

— The American Psychiatric Association for healing depressed and psychotic people without a state license.

— The ACLU for praying in public places.

— The Sheriff's department for opening graves and raising people from the dead.

— The County Health Department for feeding 5,000 people in the wilderness without a permit.

— The Society for the Prevention and Cruelty to Animals for driving pigs into the sea.

— The fast-food industry for telling people to fast.

— End-Times Prophets of doom for telling people to "be of good cheer" and not to be anxious about tomorrow.

— Psychoanalysts for telling people not to look backwards.

And the list may go on and on. Yes, Jesus' politics makes sense today as it made sense 2,000 years ago. Today we would find Jesus on the hills of Edneville, N.C., where Mexicans pick up apples and strawberries for $40 a week under the scorching sun.

Father John C. Aurilia, OFM Cap., is pastor at Immaculate Conception Church in Hendersonville.

"Shaft," from page 11

racial tensions both among the officers on the police force and out on the streets. But it also takes a swipe at New York City cops, presenting some as dirty, looking the other way or doing jobs for the same hoodlums they are supposedly trying to put behind bars.

It is good to hear the original version of Isaac Hayes' funky theme song intact with the renowned singer's sultry voice crooning away. The rest of the score is in sync with both the story line and Hayes' style, and together with sleek dissolves between scenes and taut editing, the film's streetwise attitude is enhanced.

Due to recurring violence, constant rough language and fleeting shadowy nudity, the U.S. Catholic Conference classification is A-IV — adults, with reservations. The Motion Picture Association of America rating is R — restricted. ▼

Navarro is on the staff of the U.S. Catholic Conference Office for Film and Broadcasting.

Classifieds

Classified ads bring results! Over 115,000 readers! Over 45,000 homes!
Rates: $.50/word per issue ($10 minimum per issue)
Deadline: 12 noon Wednesday, 9 days before publication date
How to order: Ads may be faxed to (704) 370-3382 or mailed to:
Cindi Feerick, The Catholic News & Herald, 1123 S. Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203.
Payment: Ads may be pre-paid or billed. For information, call (704) 370-3332.

EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES

Accounting Clerk: Payroll/General Ledger. The Diocese of Charlotte is accepting applications for a full-time accounting clerk. Responsibilities primarily include processing and entering payroll and general ledger transactions for the Mecklenburg Area Catholic Schools system. Applicants must be proficient with Excel and have two years of relevant experience. EOE. Please forward resume and salary history by July 4, 2000 to: Controller, 1123 S. Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203-4003.

Administrative Assistant: Part-time. Approximately 12-20 hours per week. Non-smoker with good communications, phone, computer skills. Prefer financial background. Resume and references to Hook Financial Group, 4801 E. Independence Blvd., Box 601, Charlotte NC 28212.

Assistant Secretary: Asheville Catholic School. Attendance/First Aid Office. M-F, full time. CPR and First Aid certification required. Call (828)252-7896 for information. EOE.

Cosmetologists/Barbers: Full-time and part-time. Charlotte area upscale salon seeking warm-hearted, skilled stylists and barbers. Convenient south Charlotte location. $12 per hour + tips. Please call (704) 341-4260.

Counselor: Part-time. St. Pius X Catholic School, Greensboro. Practicing Catholic with master's in counseling and guidance. NC certification required. Experience preferred. Benefits included. Send resume to: C. Usischon, 2200 N. Elm St., Greensboro, NC 27408 or Fax (336)273-0199.

Custodian, Full-time: Begin work immediately. Asheville Catholic School. Call Randy Penland, Maintenance Supervisor at (828)252-7896. EOE.

Director of Adult Catholic Enrichment/Order of Christian Initiation: Holy Family Catholic Church of Marietta seeks a full-time salaried Director for Adult Catholic Enrichment (ACE) and the Order of Christian Initiation (OCI) programs. Applicants should have leadership experience in ACE/OCI areas and/or have religious education degreed background suitable to develop high quality programs and volunteer assistance in the community. Must be practicing Catholic. If interested, please submit resume and cover letter to Theresa Johnson, Director of Religious Education at Holy Family Catholic Church, 3401 Lower Roswell Rd., Marietta, GA 30068. Fax (770) 578-0475. Inquire at (770) 973-7400, ext. 21 with questions.

Director of Religious Education: Holy Family Catholic Church in Marietta seeks a full-time salaried Director for its Religious Education programs. Practical leadership experience in the continuing development of a full range of primary, secondary, young adult and adult based Religious Education programs is essential. The ability to encourage a spirit of volunteerism to meet broad community needs is a must. Should be competent in managing all educational levels and administrative staff functions. Must have bachelors and/or advanced degree in education and/or religious training. Must be practicing Catholic. Holy Family's Religious Education programs serve a multi-cultural community. Fluency in Spanish or equivalent background experience would be a useful asset. If interested, please submit resume and cover letter to Theresa Johnson, Director of Religious Education, Holy Family Catholic Church, 3401 Lower Roswell Rd., Marietta, GA 30068. Fax (770) 578-0475. Inquire at (770)973-7400, ext. 21 with questions.

Faith Formation Coordinator: Our Lady of Assumption parish has an immediate opening for a full-time coordinator of its Faith Formation programs. Candidates with parish involvement in teaching and/or administration in FF ministry, and/or possessing a college background in theology/religious studies are eligible. The competitive candidate will possess a vision of FF that mainly focuses on grade schoolers through high schoolers, yet encompasses adults, evidences good administrative skills, exemplary written and oral communication skills, ability with Word Perfect software, and able to work as a diocesan and parish team player. Salary in high $20s commensurate with experience and good benefits under diocesan coverage. Send resume with names of references to FF Search Committee: c/o Father Gillespie, SJ, 4207 Shamrock Drive, Charlotte NC 28215. (704)535-9965.

Junior Accountant: The Diocese of Charlotte is accepting applications for a junior accountant. This position is primarily responsible for the monthly general journal entries, cash receipts, and month-end reporting for Catholic Social Services. Applicants must be proficient with Excel and have an associate's degree with a concentration in Accounting or 5 years of relevant experience. EOE. Please forward resume and salary history by July 4, 2000 to: Controller, 1123 S. Church St., Charlotte NC 28203-4003.

Music Ministry Director: Immaculate Conception Catholic Church is seeking an organist/music director. Must be familiar with Catholic liturgy. Salary negotiable. Benefits available. Send resume and references to Immaculate Conception Church, 208 - 7 Ave. West, Hendersonville, NC 28791-3602.

Music Ministry Director: Full-time position for a growing 1100-family parish near Charlotte. Responsible for 4 weekend liturgies plus holy days, weddings and funerals. Adult and children's choirs, cantors, instrumentalists, new contemporary choir, and handbell choir. Rogers electronic organ, Yamaha upright piano, two-octave set of Malmark handbells. Ideal candidate is practicing Catholic with music degree, experience, music performance skills (organ/piano/voice), choral and cantor skills, knowledge of Catholic liturgical music. Salary commensurate with experience. Full benefits. Send/fax resume to Music Search, Saint Therese Parish, 217 Brawley School Rd., Mooresville, NC 28117. Phone (704)664-3992; Fax: (704)660-6321.

Music Ministry Director: St. Bede Catholic Church in Williamsburg, VA seeks professional with bachelor's degree (or above) in music; in-depth knowledge of Roman Catholic liturgy; and vocal, piano, organ skills. Should be pastoral individual with appreciation of broad range of music styles. Full-time position with benefits; salary dependent upon experience. Complete job description posted at www.bedeva.org. Application deadline: July 15. Send resume, references, salary history to: Attn: DMM Search Committee, St. Bede Catholic Church, 10 Harrison Avenue, Williamsburg, VA 23185. stboffice@bedeva.org

Principal, Elementary: St. Francis of Assisi Catholic School. PreK-8th grade serving 200-350 students in military/coastal/community of Jacksonville, NC. Competitive salary. Send resume by July 15th to: Search Committee, Infant of Prague Parish, 205 Chaney Ave., Jacksonville, NC 28540. mbpoole@hotmail.com

Regional Consultant: The Diocese Office of Faith Formation seeks an interim part-time Regional Consultant for the Smoky Mountain Vicariate for FY 2000-2001. We seek an individual with 3-5 years' experience of coordinating parish programs and great ability to work with people. The part-time salary for this person is $12,000-$14,000. Preference will be given to persons with some background in the field of Catechetics and Adult Faith Formation. Please send two letters of recommendation to: Dr. Cris Villapando, Office of Faith Formation, 1123 S. Church Street, Charlotte, NC 28203-4003. For more information call (704) 370-3246.

Teacher: Asheville Catholic School seeks dynamic pre-K teacher. Must hold or be eligible for NC license. Call (828) 252-7896. EOE.

Teachers, Library/Media Specialist: Charlotte Catholic High School has the following openings beginning August, 2000: full-time teaching positions for Chemistry, Drama, English, Math, Spanish, and full-time Library/Media Specialist. Must have NC Certification. Also, part-time Guidance Secretary is needed. Call (704)543-1127 for application.

Teachers: Sacred Heart School (PreK-8) in Salisbury has the following teacher openings beginning in August: Computer, Music, PE, Spanish, 3rd Grade, 5th Grade, and Middle School Language Arts. NC certification required. Call Kathleen Miller at (704)633-2841.

Teachers: St. Patrick's School in Charlotte is accepting applications for part-time Music teacher and part-time Spanish teacher. Please contact school principal, Mrs. Angela Montague, (704) 333-3174 for interview. NC certification required.

Teachers: Full-time. St. Pius X Catholic School, Greensboro, has openings for 2000-2001 school year: Spanish, Kindergarten, 1st grade, 2nd grade, Middle School Religion, Middle School Language Arts. Must be practicing Catholic with NC certification in field. Experience preferred. Benefits included. Send resume to C. Usischon, 2200 N. Elm St., Greensboro, NC 27408 or fax: (336)273-0199.

Teachers: St. Michael's School in Gastonia, NC is currently seeking dynamic teachers for the following positions: Full-time Middle School Language Arts/Social Studies; Full-time Kindergarten; and part-time Art teacher. NC Certification required. Please call Joseph Puceta at (704)865-4382 for more information.

Teachers: Computer, Math, P.E. for 2000-2001 at St. Leo School, 333 Springdale Ave., Winston-Salem, NC 27104. NC Certification required (or in process). Call 336-748-8252 for application and information. Submit resume to Georgette Schraeder, Principal.

Teachers: Immaculate Heart of Mary School has openings for the following positions for the 2000-2001 school year: Middle School teachers of Social Studies, Science and Math; Grade 5 Teacher. Interested certified teachers may contact Margene Wilkins, principal, at 605 Barbee Avenue, High Point, NC 27262; call 336-887-2613; or fax 336-884-1849.

Youth Coordinator: St. John Neumann Church seeks part-time Coordinator of Youth Programs to work with parent/youth teams to plan, implement, oversee youth programs; grades 9-12. Call (704)535-4197. Send resume to St. John Neumann Church, Connie Milligan, 8451 Idlewild Road, Charlotte, NC 28227 or fax(704)536-3147.

Youth Minister: Our Lady of Grace Church in Greensboro, NC is seeking a full-time Youth Minister to coordinate all youth activities and programs. Applicants should have a degree in Religious Education or related field and three years' experience in Youth Ministry. Salary commensurate with experience and education. Send resume to Tom Johnson, Our Lady of Grace Church, 2205 West Market St., Greensboro, NC 27403.

Youth/Young Adult Ministry Director: A tri-parish (including one Hispanic) Catholic community of 1800 families in a university setting is seeking a full-time Director of Youth and Young Adult Ministry to implement comprehensive youth ministry as described in "Renewing the Vision." Candidate should have prior ministry experience, and be able to work collaboratively with staff and members of parish community. Background in Theology, Christian Formation, and/or certification in youth ministry desired. Please contact Rev. Bernard Campbell, CSP, P.O. Box 112, Clemson, SC 29633 or (864)654-1757.

Youth Minister: 25 hours per week; salaried. Located 45 minutes north of Charlotte. Practicing Catholic, experienced with youth. Responsible for 9th-12th graders; coordinate social and service activities, and recruit and train other young adults to work with teens. Must be willing to accommodate flexible week including nights and weekends. Submit resume by July 31st: Martha Drennan, 217 Brawley School Rd., Mooresville NC 28117. Information: (704)664-7762.

Youth Ministry Director: Saint James Catholic Church, 1700 families located in Savannah, Georgia, is seeking a full-time salaried director of youth ministry. Candidate must be a practicing Catholic. Practical leadership experience in the continuing development of a youth ministry program is essential. Must have bachelors and/or advanced degree in education and/or religious training or equivalent. Please submit resume to Father John Kenneally, 8412 Whitfield Ave., Savannah, GA 31406.

FOR RENT

Beach Condo: 3 Bedroom, Myrtle Beach: July 8, August 12, August 19, and August 26. Also Sept. and October. (336)924-2842.

FOR SALE

Personalized Candy Bars. For ALL Occasions. CHERUBS-N-CHOCOLATE. To request a catalog, please visit web site at www.Cherubs-N-ChocolatebyDeb.com or call (919)689-9925.

Highlights of U.S. bishops' meeting include ongoing formation, media

MILWAUKEE (CNS) — Here are some highlights of the U.S. bishops' June 15-17 meeting in Milwaukee.

— Ongoing formation of the ordained: They approved a directory for the formation, life and ministry of permanent deacons, a national plan for ongoing formation of priests and guidelines for sabbaticals by bishops.

— Fewer priests: They discussed changes in parishes and how to plan pastorally for coming years with fewer priests but flourishing lay ministries and more permanent deacons.

— Media: They adopted statements on families in cyberspace and on civility in the media, a pledge for Catholics to encourage morality in the media, and a voluntary protocol for media which wish to present themselves or some of their programs as Catholic.

— Catechetics: They decided to develop a national adult catechism, issued a statement of support for those in catechetical ministry and agreed to a basic timeline for producing a National Directory for Catechesis.

— Conference restructuring: They approved new bylaws and a revised Committee Handbook for the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops, which will soon replace the current National Conference of Catholic Bishops and U.S. Catholic Conference.

— Liturgy: They discussed proposed changes in the constitution of the International Commission on English in the Liturgy to give bishops more hands-on involvement in liturgy translations.

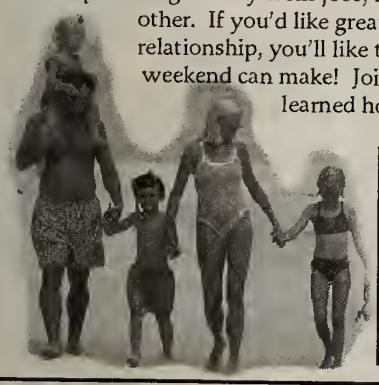
— Criminal justice: They reviewed a first draft of a statement, to come back for a vote this fall, which sharply criticizes the current U.S. criminal justice system and calls for major changes in structures and attitudes.

— Higher education: Archbishop Daniel E. Pilarczyk of Cincinnati was named head of a committee to develop the process for bishops to give or withdraw the ecclesiastical "mandatum," or mandate for theologians to teach.

— Archbishop Gabriel Montalvo, papal nuncio to the United States, spoke to the bishops on the life and witness of Pope John Paul II, who recently turned 80. ▼

Mothers in Love + Fathers in Love =
Families in Love

Your whole family deserves the love Mom and Dad discover on a Worldwide Marriage Encounter weekend! Marriage Encounter is 44 hours where married couples can get away from jobs, kids, chores and phones — and focus on each other. If you'd like greater depth, growth and enrichment in your relationship, you'll like the difference a Worldwide Marriage Encounter weekend can make! Join millions of couples worldwide who have learned how to keep their marriage vibrant and alive.



Next Marriage Encounter Weekend:
Sept. 8, 9, 10
Holiday Inn Airport, Charlotte
Call Tom & Emilie Sandin
(336) 274-4424
See Diocesan Planner for further info

VGA & SVGA Refurbished Computer Monitors

14" — $20-$25
15" — $35-$38
17" — $70-$125
20" Call for details
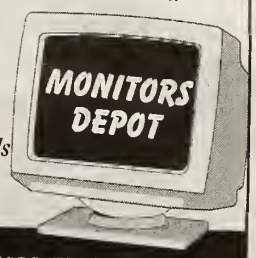
30 day warranty

Over 2000 monitors in stock!



O.C. STAFFORD ELECTRONIC SERVICE & DEVELOPMENT COMPANY
408 Banner Ave., Greensboro, NC 27401
E-mail: urpac408@worldnet.att.net
(336) 274-9917

30 YEARS EXPERIENCE

PYANO MAN
HENRY C. ROZELL III
2nd Generation ◆ Piano Tuner/Technician
Piano Tuning, Repairs, Refinishing
Pianos Bought and Sold
FREE ESTIMATES
704-321-5843

Looking for the best CD rates?

*Earn interest 1% higher than the national bank average with CDs from Salomon Smith Barney.

Our CDs offer some of the highest rates available. In fact, a national survey of bank CD rates show our CDs average a whole percentage point higher. Plus, with a broad range of maturities, you can easily arrange for a steady stream of income to fit your needs.

- FDIC-insured up to $100,000 per depositor, per institution
- Issued by more than 240 banks nationwide
- A flexible investment vehicle to reach your fixed-income goals
- We provide a secondary market on all CDs we sell

Term	Annual Percentage Yield
6 month	6.75%
1 year	7.0%
5 year	7.3%

Call Michael Grieco, Financial Consultant
at (704) 571-3362 for more information.
6101 Carnegie Boulevard, 2nd Floor
Charlotte, NC 28209

SALOMON SMITH BARNEY
SEE HOW WE EARN IT.SM

A member of citigroup

*The annual percentage yields (APYs) are effective as of 0/00/00 and are subject to availability and changes. APY interest can not remain on deposit in the same CD; interest will be paid semi-annually, monthly, or at maturity. FDIC insurance covers a maximum amount of $100,000 per deposit or per institution (principal and interest combined) in each insurable capacity. Minimum deposit $1,000. Although we are not required to do so, we endeavor to provide a secondary market so that CD holders can sell their CDs prior to maturity. The resale price in such a transaction may be less than the principal amount invested. National bank average determined by Bank Rate Monitor, a service mark of Bank Rate Monitor.
Salomon Smith Barney and "SEE HOW WE EARN IT." are service marks of Salomon Smith Barney Inc.
©2000 Salomon Smith Barney Inc. Member SIPC

K OF C

Please pray for the following priest who died during the month of July:

Rev. Bertrand Pattison
1992

Sponsored by the Knights of Columbus

Schools
Institutions
Daycares
Churches
Sales Offices
Recreational Facilities
Banks
Medical Facilities

Offering turn-key and professional solutions with Custom Modular Buildings to meet your growing and changing needs!

MODULAR CORP

1803 East Wendover Ave., Suite E
Greensboro, NC 27405
(336) 275-8274 (336) 275-8649 fax
E-mail: modular@greensboro.com

Daniel Murray, President — St. Pius X Parishioner

Member of:
MODULAR BUILDING INSTITUTE

Visit our Web site! www.modularcorp.com

Mountain parish makes community strides

By JOANITA M. NELLENBACH
Correspondent

BRYSON CITY — Father Tom Field and St. Joseph Church are willing to do whatever it takes to make the community better.

Parishioners are involved with other Bryson City residents in completing the first of three Habitat for Humanity houses they hope to build this summer. They realized the need when a building near the church was converted into a bed and breakfast. The people living in the 13 low-rent apartments in the building had to find other accommodations. Although the parishioners weren't able to help those people, they decided to do what they could to make sure others had adequate and affordable housing.

"We realized we weren't going to solve the whole thing," Father Field said. He talked the matter over with the ministerial group he meets with. Out of that came the Swain/Qualla Habitat for Humanity.

Some 219 people recently paid tribute to Father Field, a Glenmary priest, and his community involvement at a farewell dinner in his honor. He's leaving the Charlotte Diocese and will move to Madisonville, Tenn., where he'll serve as sacramental minister at a storefront church a lay Glenmary couple are starting.

About 115 of the attendees were Father Field's parishioners. The rest were from other churches and from the community in general. Rev. John Tagliarini, pastor of Bryson City First Baptist Church, said the blessing before the dinner. Bruce Finn, Rotary president, presented Father Field with a plaque in honor of his community service. The testimonials would have gone on far into the night, but after several people had spoken, Father Field called a halt to the accolades. Parkinson's disease tires him easily.

The parish is involved with Meals on Wheels, works with the local Hispanic community and collects food for the Bryson City Food Pantry. This last, the parish has been doing for 17 years. They also transport people to doctors' appointments or minister to people right where they are.

Anyway, he prefers to focus on what his parish has done, rather than his own involvement.

"We are part of the founders of SAFE, which is a center for victims of domestic violence," he said. The parish is involved with Meals on Wheels, works with the local Hispanic community and collects food for the Bryson City Food Pantry. This last, the parish has been doing for 17 years. They also transport people to doctors' appointments or minister to people right where they are.

"A man who had been exposed to Agent Orange and had cancer needed to be able to be with people more," Father Field said. "We found out he liked double-deck pinochle. So, we started the ministry of double-deck pinochle. Sometimes we start a game with a Communion service. One day he was going to the hospital, so we anointed him at a restaurant. It was easier than driving 17 miles (to his house)."

For the past several years, the youth group from St. Raphael Church in Raleigh has spent a week in the parish each summer conducting vacation Bible school and participating in community projects Father Field lines up for them. They raise their own money to make the trip and one year took some of that money to make a garden for an elderly local resident.

St. Joseph Church was established in 1941. The Glenmarys have been raising money to help pay parish expenses. The parish also has a mission church, Our Lady of Guadalupe in Cherokee.

"We're into a little bit of everything," Father Field said of the Bryson City parish.

"When you make something happen, it's fun," he said.

Father Field, a former electrician, was ordained 23 years ago in his late 30s. He considered joining a cloistered order, but "Glenmary appealed to me because I was looking for something where I could use my hands. I was looking for a small community. Glenmary is definitely that. I've said Mass in tellers' cages."

Photo by Joanita M. Nellenbach

Kyle Norcross, a parishioner at St. Joseph Church, kids Father Tom Field during his farewell dinner.

But his community involvement hasn't always been looked on favorably.

"When I was in Fayette, Ala., I had a note from the Klan saying they were going to shoot me. I backed off for a couple days, but then I said, 'I'm not going to let them scare me.' What had happened was, I'd intervened to stop a Klansman who was beating his wife.

"About a year later I got another note saying they'd been observing me, and they thought I was doing OK. I said, 'Gee, if the Klan likes me, I must be doing something wrong.'" ▼

Groce
FUNERAL HOME & CREMATION SERVICE
1401 Patton Ave. Asheville, NC (828) 252-3535
72 Long Shoals Road Arden, NC (828) 687-3530
Assuring Absolute Integrity
Asheville's Catholic Funeral Directors
Dale Groce • John Prock
Toll-free (888) 874-3535
Pre-arrangements and obituaries on-line at www.grocefuneralhome.com

We'll beat any advertised price... Let us prove it!
The LaPointe Dealerships
Serving Charlotte with integrity for over 39 years!
MITSUBISHI MOTORS
6951 E. Independence Blvd.
531-3131
HONDA
7001 E. Independence Blvd.
535-4444
Frank LaPointe, President, Member of St. Gabriel Church

Pope John Paul II

Conakry, Guinea — As if they were answering the prayers of devotees around the world, the Post Office has released a new Limited Edition set of 9 Official Postage Stamps honoring His Holiness Pope John Paul II, the most admired and revered man of the 20th century. Collectors and admirers of the Pontiff all around the world are suddenly scrambling to obtain one of the few remaining sets from this awe-inspiring tribute.

"Collector demand for these John Paul II stamps has been unbelievable," said George Hubbard of ICS, distributor of the stamps and national clearinghouse for rare Limited Edition stamp issues. "Ever since that historic day in 1978 when he became the 264th head of the Roman Catholic Church, Pope John Paul II has symbolized peace, wisdom, devotion, and love. Now his fans everywhere are taking advantage of this rare opportunity to express their love for him."

Collectors are already predicting that in the very near future these Pope John Paul II stamps will be far more sought after and more difficult to come by than even the most popular commemorative postage stamps of all time.

"Over 500 million United States stamps were issued in 1964 to honor President John F. Kennedy. When you compare that to these Pope John Paul II stamps, which are issued in a strictly Limited Edition of just thousands worldwide, you can see the irresistible appeal these stamps have both to collectors and to the Pope's many admirers," said Hubbard.

See it in color at: www.icsNOW.com

Each of the nine colorful stamps is about four times the size of a regular U. S. stamp. They're legal for postage in the nation of Guinea and they're recognized by every postal authority around the world.

They're available for a short time at $9.95 (plus $3 p&h) for the complete set of nine different stamps, accompanied by a Certificate of Authenticity attesting to their Limited Edition status. The most you can buy is six sets. Send your check or money order to ICS. 10045 Red Run Blvd., Suite 350CJWVT, Owings Mills, MD 21117. Credit card holders may call toll free 1-800-506-0070.

42083
NC COLLECTION
UNC
WILSON LIBRARY CB 3930
CHAPEL HILL NC 27599-0001
*3-DIGIT 275
S853 P1

The Catholic
NEWS & HERALD
Serving Catholics in Western North Carolina in the Diocese of Charlotte

July 7, 2000
Volume 9 ▾ Number 40

Inside

Priests celebrate ministry at convocation
...Page 5

The Third Secret
Vatican underlines theological distinctions on private revelation
...Page 7

Local News

Catholic youth learn Christian leadership skills
...Page 4

Banquet teaches lessons about world hunger
...Page 16

Every Week

Entertainment
...Pages 10-11
Editorials & Columns
...Pages 12-13

"Tomorrow's adults are the children of today. To overlook this elementary fact not only compromises the future of the child, but that of society as such."

— Pope John Paul II, 1993

Revival of the Spirit

...Pages 8-9

Photo by Alesha M. Price

Crown Jewels

Sisters celebrate diamond and golden anniversaries

By JOANN S. KEANE
Editor

CHARLOTTE — In 1950, it is said, there were more Catholics in China than in the entire state of North Carolina. With the Catholic population of one-third of one percent constituting the entire Catholic population of the Tarheel state, that story might just be true.

For six local women to join a community of women religious at that point in time in the South is nothing short of a miracle. A miracle of mercy.

On June 24, these Sisters of Mercy celebrated 50 years as women religious. Further enhancing the celebration, a diamond jubilarian shone in their midst. Seven women — members of the Regional Mercy Community of North Carolina — celebrated anniversaries in the year of the great jubilee.

"Today, this community of the Sisters of Mercy celebrates our sisters who have declared by their lives that they belong only to God," said Mercy Sister Rosalind Picot, regional president of the Sisters of Mercy of North Carolina. One by one, Sister Rosalind called the sisters forward to renew

See SISTERS, page 3

Moral cautions greet human genome mapping

By JERRY FILTEAU
Catholic News Service

WASHINGTON (CNS) — The mapping of the human genome is an enormous advance in knowledge that carries "potential for good, but also enormous potential for harm," said Dr. Edmund Pellegrino, professor of medicine and medical ethics at Georgetown University in Washington.

James J. Walter, professor of bioethics at Loyola Marymount University in Los Angeles, said he was "cautiously optimistic about this enterprise," but it poses "a number of very serious ethical questions."

A White House press briefing was called June 26 to announce completion of what is being termed a "rough draft" — a 97-percent-completed map — of the entire human genome, all the DNA strands in the 46 chromosomes found in human cells. The genome-mapping project, begun in 1990, involves sequencing some 3.15 billion "letters," or chemical bases, of the DNA code.

Francis Collins, director of the National Institutes of Health, announces the completion of initial sequencing on the human genome at the White House. Decoding the 3 billion chemical "letters" in human DNA is seen as a great scientific milestone.

In telephone interviews Pellegrino and Walter discussed some of the ethical concerns raised by the near-completion of the massive Human Genome Project.

Both advised caution in deciding how to apply the world's new knowledge about the human genetic make-up.

Walter noted that some people have compared the mapping of the human genome to landing on the moon. He said it is far bigger than that — "This is the Holy Grail of the human person."

CNS photo from Reuters

The genome mapping exemplifies "the kinds of problems we'll be facing continuously in the future," Pellegrino said. He said the basic

See HUMAN GENOME, page 3

Ruling on gay Scout leaders seen as victory for private groups

WASHINGTON (CNS) — The Supreme Court's June 28 ruling upholding the right of the Boy Scouts not to accept a homosexual Scout leader was hailed as affirming the rights of private organizations to decide their internal business. The court ruled 5-4 that the Boy Scouts are not required under New Jersey law to permit a homosexual man to serve as a Scout leader. New Jersey's Supreme Court had found that the Scouts were a "place" of public accommodation and therefore subject to its anti-discrimination requirement. Chief Justice William Rehnquist said although homosexuality has become more socially accepted, that "is scarcely an argument for denying First Amendment protection to those who refuse to accept these views.""The fact that an idea may be embraced and advocated by increasing numbers of people is all the more reason to protect the First Amendment rights of those who wish to voice a different view," Rehnquist wrote.

Supreme Court upholds library, computer aid to parochial schools

WASHINGTON (CNS) — In what was quickly hailed as a landmark ruling for school choice, the U.S. Supreme Court has upheld use of federal funds to supply computer hardware and software and library and media materials to religiously affiliated schools. By a 6-3 decision June 28 the court reversed the judgment of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, which had said it was unconstitutional to include religious schools among the private schools receiving such aid in Jefferson Parish, La. The case is titled Mitchell vs. Helms. Four of the six-justice majority proposed what in effect would be a new, simpler neutrality test for the constitutionality of public aid to private schools. Two justices agreed that the Louisiana aid was constitutional but sharply opposed the other four's view of how the court should test such cases. The three dissenters also opposed revising the neutrality test.

CNS PHOTO BY DAVID KAMBA, CATHOLIC NEW WORLD

"Field of Faith"

Dance troupe Horizontes Mexicanos leads the opening procession at the Chicago Archdiocesan "Field of Faith" Mass June 24. The celebration drew an estimated 30,000 people to Chicago's Soldier Field.

Nebraska abortion ruling called frightening, barbaric

By PATRICIA ZAPOR
CATHOLIC NEWS SERVICE

WASHINGTON (CNS) — The Supreme Court's June 28 ruling striking down Nebraska's ban on partial-birth is "a frightening development," according to the chairman of the U.S. bishops' Committee for Pro-Life Activities.

Baltimore Cardinal William H. Keeler said it is "inconceivable that the highest court in our land could find that our Constitution protects the brutal destruction of innocents almost fully delivered."

A sharply divided court ruled 5-4 that Nebraska's law infringes unconstitutionally on a woman's right to abortion. The ruling said the state law failed to pass constitutional muster by inadequately defining which procedure was being outlawed and by not including an exception to the ban for cases of medical necessity.

Helen Alvare, director of planning and information for the U.S. bishops Pro-Life Secretariat, found little comfort in the suggestion by Justice Sandra Day O'Connor that laws banning partial birth abortion might be upheld if they are more specific and include health exceptions. O'Connor's concurring opinion specifically cited laws of Kansas, Utah and Montana as avoiding "a principal defect of the Nebraska law" by including the health exception.

But Alvare told Catholic News Service that O'Connor's suggestion would eviscerate the effectiveness of laws.

"Justice (Anthony) Kennedy said it brilliantly in his dissent," Alvare said. "Health exceptions can be interpreted to mean any kind of abortion you want."

On the other hand, Alvare predicted some state legislatures would take O'Connor's comments and her previous opinions on what states may do to regulate abortion as guidelines for how to craft laws that might meet her standards for constitutionality, reversing the 5-4 balance on the court.

Cardinal Keeler's statement said the court showed "utter disdain for the moral judgment of Americans who, through their elected representatives, have voted by wide margins to stop this practice in 30 states and at the federal level."

He said the ruling should be a wake-up call to Americans that "Roe vs. Wade continues to operate as nothing less than a license to destroy innocent human life."

Bishop James T. McHugh of Rockville Centre, N.Y., said in a statement that the court's opinion in Stenberg vs. Carhart addresses only Nebraska's law and that therefore the debate will continue.

"But the atmosphere is clouded by the confusion regarding the procedures and by the strength of the pro-abortion forces in this nation, which deny any recognition of the humanity of the unborn child," said Bishop McHugh, who is a member of the Pro-Life Activities Committee.

In Chicago, Cardinal Francis E. George said the ruling "is a victory for barbarism. It pits the court and the Constitution itself against the legal protection of children who are not wanted."

Virgil C. Dechant, supreme knight of the Knights of Columbus said in a statement that the court majority "has moved beyond Roe vs. Wade and has overridden the reasonable and democratically expressed judgment of ordinary American citizens." ▼

The Catholic NEWS & HERALD

July 7, 2000
Volume 9 • Number 40
Publisher: Most Reverend William G. Curlin
Editor: Joann S. Keane
Associate Editor: Jimmy Rostar
Staff Writer: Alesha M. Price
Production Associate: Julie Radcliffe
Advertising Representative: Cindi Feerick
Secretary: Jane Glodowski
1123 South Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203
Mail: P.O. Box 37267, Charlotte, NC 28237
Phone: (704) 370-3333 FAX: (704) 370-3382
E-mail: catholicnews@charlottediocese.org

The Catholic News & Herald, USPC 007-393, is published by the Roman Catholic Diocese of Charlotte, 1123 South Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203, 44 times a year, weekly except for Christmas week and Easter week and every two weeks during June, July and August for $15 per year for enrollees in parishes of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Charlotte and $18 per year for all other subscribers. Second-class postage paid at Charlotte NC and other cities. POSTMASTER: Send address corrections to The Catholic News & Herald, P.O. Box 37267, Charlotte, NC 28237.

Episcopal calendar

Bishop William G. Curlin will take part in the following events:

July 10-14
Meeting of provincial bishops in the Carolinas and Georgia Region IV
Asheville
July 16
Parish 50th Anniversary Mass
Our Lady of the Mountains Church, Highlands
July 17-21
Seminarian retreat
Catholic Conference Center, Hickory
July 18
Catholic Social Services board meeting
Catholic Conference Center, Hickory
July 23 — 11 am Confirmation
St. John, Waynesville
July 29 — 12:30 pm Cofirmation
Cristo Rey, Yadkinville

Diocesan planner

July

9 CHARLOTTE — St. Patrick Cathedral, 1621 Dilworth Rd. East, is celebrating a charismatic Mass today at 4 p.m. with prayer teams available at 3 p.m. and a potluck dinner at 5 p.m. For more information, call Josie at (704) 527-4676.

10 CHARLOTTE — Churches in the Charlotte area are having their July cancer support group meetings on the following days because of the Independence Day holiday weekend: St. Vincent de Paul Church, 6828 Old Reid Rd., tonight at 7 p.m., St. Matthew Church, 8012 Ballantyne Commons Pkwy., on July 11 at 7 p.m. and St. Gabriel Church, 3016 Providence Rd., on July 12 at 7 p.m. For more information, call these contacts: St. Vincent - Betty Childers at (704) 554-0733, St. Matthew - Marilyn Borrelli at (704) 542-2283 and St. Gabriel - Eileen Cordell at (704) 352-5047, Ext. 217. For further information, call Bob Poffenbarger, Sr., coordinator, at (704) 553-7000.

12 CHARLOTTE — The 50+ Club of St. John Neumann Church, 8451 Idlewild Rd., is meeting this morning at 11 a.m. in the parish center. Bingo is featured today with a small love offering required for those wanting lunch. For more information, call Gloria Silipigni at (704) 821-1343.

CHARLOTTE — St. Gabriel Church, 3016 Providence Rd., is offering free classes for the public on various topics throughout the summer. Father Matthew Leonard, parochial vicar, is facilitating the following classes in July, all held from 7:30-8:45 p.m. in the parish ministry center: "The Spirit of John" - July 12, "Unity in the Holy Spirit" - July 19 and "Fruit in the Spirit" - July 26. For more information, call the church office at (704) 364-5431.

Human genome, from page 1

question it poses is, "How do we use our knowledge wisely and within ethical constraints?"

Walter raised the "slippery slope" argument, saying that someone preparing to ski down a slippery slope needs to make sure there is some plateau ahead to stop on.

"The scientists will always convince us to get on the slope, saying 'We're going to use this for humane ends, we're going to cure disease.' But the same technology we use to cure disease is the technology we will use to engineer ourselves," he said. "How do we stop at curing and not move on to engineering?"

He said those who think the genome project goes too far would argue that "there are no logical plateaus here that will stop society from moving from therapy to engineering."

When asked if he would hold that view, he said, "I think we should go forward, but we are going to have to show that there are an awful lot of unethical roads here. This is not all a bed of roses."

Pellegrino said because of the global availability of the human genome data on the Internet, "there needs to be some concerted effort by the human species to see that there are ethical constraints" on the use of that knowledge.

He confessed that he did not know how that would be done, however. Within the United States, he said, he suspected that at present there would be little or no consensus on what the ethical constraints should be.

"The American impulse is, if you can do it, do it. That has to be restrained," he said.

"Another thing to be very concerned about is commercialization," he said, noting that there are ethical questions about ownership and patenting of genetic information.

Walter warned that while the genome map may greatly accelerate discovery of the genetic factors of a disease, it does not mean that a cure will be found right away, or even in 50 or 100 years.

He said he would support genetic therapy in principle "as long as it is safe and effective," but he warned that any such procedures are likely to be "enormously expensive, at least in our lifetime."

That raises questions of accessibility and social justice — compounded by the fact that already some 75 million Americans are uninsured or underinsured medically, he said.

Walter also warned that there is a major difference ethically between somatic gene therapy and germ line therapy, in which the egg or sperm is genetically altered to prevent transmission of a genetic defect to the offspring.

He asked how one corrects a mistake "if you mess up at the germ line."

In addition, he said, "our ability to change genes is moving us into an arena that will blur the line between therapy and enhancement."

He noted that some parents are already using growth hormones on teen-age children because being short is regarded as a defect.

He said when Louise Brown, the first test-tube baby, was born in 1978, he and other ethicists immediately questioned whether the procedure's use for heterosexual married couples with fertility problems would be extended to other areas such as lesbian couples having children, or use of surrogate wombs for women who did not want a pregnancy to interrupt their career, or using frozen sperm of a dead family member to produce a child.

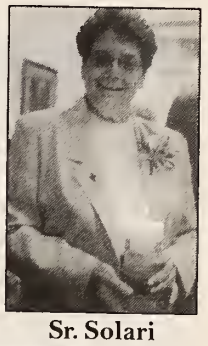
Just as those things happened with in vitro fertilization, he predicted that "very quickly" the use of genetic knowledge will cross moral boundaries.

"Because we cannot negotiate our moral differences, we turn (the decision) over to every person, saying it's your choice," he said. ▼

Sr. Donovan

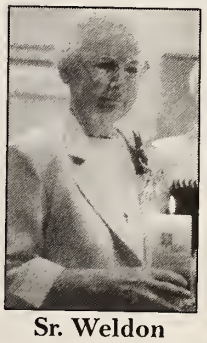
Sr. McNally

Sr. Godurn



Sr. Solari

Sr. Boulus



Sr. Weldon

Sr. Martinez

Photos by Joann S. Keane

Mercy Sisters, from page 1

their vows: Sister Mary Gertrude Weldon, celebrating 60 years; and Sisters Mary Michel Boulus, Mary Gerard Donovan, Mary Julia Godwin, Mary Mark Martinez, Jeanne-Margaret McNally and Mary Agnes Solari, marking 50 years as Sisters of Mercy.

A moment was taken to pay tribute to two sisters, who were planning to be here but called away unexpectedly, said Mercy Sister Jeanne Marie Kienast, pastoral associate at St. Matthew parish. Sister Veronica Shumacher died in December leaving us with a legacy in health care ministry, especially in Western North Carolina. The second, Sister Mary Barbara Sullivan died in February. Known for her outstanding educational leadership, [Sister] Barbara expanded her concerns to the elderly for affordable housing and for younger women with children who were homeless. "We know those women are with us today," said Sister Jeanne Marie.

Close to 750 — friends, family members and sisters in community — came to St. Gabriel Church for a late-morning Mass in honor of the jubilarians. The celebration was moved from their Belmont motherhouse chapel to accommodate all those wishing to pay tribute to the women who have touched so many lives in so many different ways.

Roots of the Sisters of Mercy are deep in North Carolina; their contributions dot the diocesan landscape. It is virtually impossible to find a community within the 46-county Diocese of Charlotte not counted as recipient of at least one of their ministries.

"Over the past 50 years, this particular class has contributed to the growth and vitality of the church, particularly to the quality of Catholic education both here in North Carolina and on the island of Guam," said Sister Jeanne Marie. "The roll call of these women could easily read as a who's who in education, social work or health care."

"In the wisdom of God, we have been blessed with amazingly gifted women," said Sister Jeanne Marie. ▼

Contact Editor Joann Keane by calling (704) 370-3336 or e-mail jskeane@charlottediocese.org.

14 CHARLOTTE — UNC Charlotte's Office of International Programs is looking for volunteers to host visitors from Japan as they take part in an intensive study program. Volunteers are needed to host the following students for these dates: Japanese bankers for this weekend and Japanese English teachers from Aug 4-19. If you have an interest in making international friends and would like to help the guests learn more about American culture and lifestyle, call Kathy Ballard, home stay coordinator, at (704) 663-5861 or Mark Beam at (704) 547-2597.

15 CHARLOTTE — "Christians in Career Transition" is a ministry devoted to helping people in career crises. The group meets every first and third Monday from 7-9 p.m. in the office area of St. Matthew Church parish center, 8015 Ballantyne Commons Pkwy. There are two Saturday sessions taking place today and July 22 on "interview skills to get the job." For further information, call Rev. Mr. Jim Hamrlik at (704) 542-6459.

18 GREENSBORO — Franciscan Father Louis Canino, director of the Franciscan Center, is presenting "We All Have Unique Personalities: Discover the Form of Prayer Best Suited to You" at the Franciscan Center for the noontime dinner and discussion session today from 12:10-1 p.m. at 233 North Greene St. For details about the love offering needed for lunch and other information, call the center at (336) 273-2554.

23 ARDEN — All cursillistas in the Western part of the diocese are invited to take part in an ultreya at St. Barnabas Church, 109 Crescent Hill Dr., at 2 p.m. For more information, call Tommy Barnhart at (336) 766-0377 or e-mail tbarnhar@bellsouth.net.

HENDERSONVILLE — The St. Francis of the Hills Fraternity of the Secular Franciscan Order meets today from 3-5 p.m. at Immaculate Conception Church, 208 7th Ave. West, in the office wing. Visitors and inquirers are welcome, so for more information, call Pat Cowan at (828) 884-4246.

Upcoming

CHARLOTTE — Diocesan Lay Ministry Training classes are beginning in August. These classes are designed for men and women who desire to grow in competence and confidence in their faith journey and for those pursuing the permanent deaconate and those who wish to enhance their catechetical and religious teaching training. For more information, call Mercy Sister Mary Timothy Warren at (704) 370-3213.

CHARLOTTE — The Worldwide Marriage Encounter is scheduled for the weekend of Sept. 8-10 and will be held at a local Holiday Inn. The marriage encounter consists of 44 hours where married couples can get away from jobs, kids and other issues to focus on each other for growth and enrichment in a married relationship. For details, call Tom and Emilie Sandin at (336) 274-4424.

Ongoing

HIGH POINT — Christ the King Church, 1505 East Kivett Dr., celebrates two Masses in other languages every Sunday. The Spanish Mass is held at 12:30 p.m., and the Korean Mass is held at 6 p.m. For further details, call Susie Romanowski at (336) 885-8435.

WAYNESVILLE — St. John the Evangelist Church, 234 Church St., offers English as a Second Language Class every Sunday evening from 6:30-7:30 p.m. in the church hall. For more information, call the church office at (828) 456-6707.

WINSTON-SALEM — Natural family planning classes have been cancelled for the summer and will resume in the fall. For further details, call Tom and Mary Beth Young at (336) 922-0479.

Please submit notices of events for the Diocesan Planner at least 10 days prior to publication date.

St. Paul the Apostle Church breaks ground for addition

By SUSAN deGUZMAN
Correspondent

GREENSBORO — It was on Pentecost Sunday, June 10, that St. Paul the Apostle parishioners in Greensboro broke ground for their new Family Life Center. Father Jim O'Neill, an Oblate of St. Francis de Sales and pastor of the parish, remarked, "It is appropriate that the birth of this new building coincides with Pentecost, the birth of the church."

The new structure will be two stories, with 22,800 square feet. Father O'Neill explained that, "The building will bring us together for prayer, education, faith formation and socializing." Tom Valentino, a parishioner who has been involved with the building plans, said that growth in the parish has really boomed in the past 10 years, doubling to the current approximate 2,000 families currently registered. Each year, Valentino added, a couple hundred additional families have been joining.

The ceremony took place following the 11:30 a.m. Mass.

Kenneth Shahbaz, who was involved in the past two building projects for the church, elaborated that the structure will consist of about 10,000 square feet for a gymnasium, and the rest will be for rooms for classes, meetings and offices. The gymnasium will be designed to serve as a multipurpose room with a drop ceiling, acoustics and special flooring to accommodate Mass, other religious activities and social events.

The classroom portion of the building was originally designed as a one-story structure. However, in light of the growth rate of the parish, the idea was proposed of making this portion two-story, matching the roof to that of the gymnasium, and "roughing-in" the second floor at a future date. In the long run, such a plan would cost less than to rebuild for an addition later on.

As previous pastoral council chairperson and architect for the building, Joe Anatrella explained that this addition was part of the master plan designed 25 years ago when the church was first built. The sanctuary had been added in 1993. Current construction should be complete by the fall of 2001, he said.

Some of the activities for which the building will be used include more options for adult education, boys and girls basketball teams and open play, adult leagues for basketball and volleyball and Boy and Girl Scouting.

Following the introductions of key individuals who worked on the building committee, the group processed out of the church through a celebratory arch to the building site. Father O'Neill prayed, "Bless all those who have worked or contributed to provide all that we need to prepare for this. ... Today may we rejoice in a work just begun and may you, oh God, through your Holy Spirit, the giver of life, give success to all of our efforts. ..."

The pastor then lifted his shovel and commenced digging the first bit of earth. About 20 people with shovels — large, small, metal and plastic — also took turns participating in this symbolic ceremony. ▼

Photo by Susan deGuzman

Father Jim O'Neill, OSFS, is pastor of St. Paul the Apostle Church in Greensboro. The parish broke ground on Pentecost Sunday for a new family life center.

Catholic youth gather to learn lessons in Christian leadership skills

By MATT DOYLE
NC Catholic

SMITHFIELD — The 60 or so young people were urged to "step forward to create a lifestyle of holiness and grace." They came from the Dioceses of Raleigh and Charlotte to spend a week together at Short Journey Center. They wanted to improve their leadership skills in a Christian environment. On June 22 they were sorting through what they had learned in the program called "Faithful Servant."

> "We have lived like holy people. We are God's Church."
>
> — Paul Kotlowski, Charlotte's director of youth ministry

Paul Kotlowski, diocesan director for youth ministry in the Diocese of Charlotte, cajoled, coaxed and led the young people to reflect on what they had experienced together. His ultimate goal was to make them realize their week together was all part of learning to be Jesus to one another and to the world.

They had gathered because they were either already in leadership roles or had been identified as possessing leadership qualities. The training was to hone the skills and give them a Christian perspective.

They were strangers who grew close in a week. In group discussion several noted how they had met for the first time, yet they immediately felt welcomed and accepted. They expressed the great freedom they found in knowing they were not being judged.

For Colleen Lindstrand of St. James Church in Hamlet, the gathering went deeper. Because she lives in a small, rural community, she often feels alone in her faith, particularly in her high school.

"I feel blessed," she said, "to be with a group of Catholic youth." She said they shared the same values and that eased her concern of feeling like "an outsider."

Christelle Geisler of St. Aloysisus Church in Hickory said she has always been strong in her faith, but the week had been good for her. "It excites me to know there are others (Catholic youth) out there."

Kotlowski told them they were "identifying the gracious presence of God." Now he suggested it was time to understand what it meant to be holy.

Holy, he said, was to feel and recognize the person of Jesus in their lives. Kotlowski suggested that the good qualities they identifying in one another and in the group as a whole was in fact the young people being "Jesus for each other."

"We have lived like holy people," he told them. "We are God's Church."

More is needed, however, than just to recognize their own goodness. Kotlowski told them they must now take that into the world.

See FAITHFUL SERVANT, page 14

We Warn You: If You Drive One You're Gonna Want One!

Volkswagen and Audi...the only car companies to have every model named best in its class. Find out why. Come in for a thrill ride today.

Honest pricing, honest financing, and honest service on Europe's most exciting new cars. From the incredible New Beetle, to the all new Jetta IV and luxurious new generation of Audi, we have the right car for your pocketbook...and your lifestyle.

Volkswagen Audi South
John Diederich, Owner
Member Saint Gabriel Parish

7401 South Boulevard . Charlotte . 704.552.6500 . 800.426.5347
www.vwsouth.com . www.audisouth.com

MEDJUGORJE COMES TO GREENSBORO
Michael O'Brien in
"Sounds of Medjugorje"
Wednesday, July 26th 7:30 p.m.
St. Paul the Apostle Church
2715 Horsepen Creek Road, Greensboro
Call Jean Berry (336) 282-1853 or Gordon Forester (336) 668-4388 for tickets or reservations. Tickets: $5.00

STOCKS, BONDS, MUTUAL FUNDS
FIXED & VARIABLE ANNUITIES
LIFE, DI & LTC INSURANCE
FINANCIAL PLANNING
RETIREMENT PLANNING
ESTATE PLANNING
ROLLOVERS & TRANSFERS
IRA'S & 401(K)'S
TAX PLANNING

RYAN ◆ HESS ◆ MORAIS
FINANCIAL ADVISORS, INC.

JOHN F. RYAN, JR., CFA — PARISHIONER, ST. VINCENT DEPAUL
CHRISTOPHER HESS, CFP — MEMBER, ST. JOHN'S EPISCOPAL
A. EDWARD MORAIS — PARISHIONER, ST. MATTHEW

SUITE 209 ◆ 7401 CARMEL EXECUTIVE PARK ◆ CHARLOTTE, NC 28226
PHONE 704-544-9009 FAX 704-543-4771

Registered Representatives offering securities through FFP Securities, Inc. - Member NASD/SIPC
Registered Investment Advisors offering services through FFP Advisory Services, Inc.

Priests celebrate ministry at convocation

By JIMMY ROSTAR
Associate Editor

ASHEVILE — For Father Wilbur Thomas, a veteran priest of the Diocese of Charlotte, a sense of fellowship with his brother priests continues to be vital in his ministry.

At a convocation in Asheville, Father Thomas joined with priests serving in the Diocese of Charlotte to celebrate their call to priestly ministry while learning more about each other.

The gathering was the first such meeting of priests in this diocese since 1985. For the more than 140 priests who now minister in these 46 counties, the event gave an opportunity to affirm the gifts they bring to the spirituality and ministry in this diocese, and to develop a deeper sense of the brotherhood that exists in priestly life.

"Isolation can easily creep in if you don't feel part of something bigger," said Father Thomas, diocesan vicar for priests, who was instrumental in planning the gathering. "We can say that we are a fraternity of priests, but we need to actually be in the presence of each other. Then, we appreciate more who we are."

As vicar for priests, Father Thomas strives to keep his finger on the pulse of the priesthood here. And as is the case in his own experience, he said his brother priests yearn for that same feeling of fraternity.

"One of the major needs in the presbyterate of this diocese is a strong sense of community," said Father Thomas. "Many of us are in parishes by ourselves, so having this opportunity to be together and share ideas helps us to get to know one another."

Priests ordained to serve in the Charlotte Diocese and those of religious orders who minister here attended the convocation in Asheville from June 19-23. Prayer, presentations, discussions and Mass highlighted each day.

Photo by Joann S. Keane

Bishop William G. Curlin presided at several Masses during the priests' convocation in Asheville June 19-23. The theme of the gathering was "Celebrating the Priesthood in Our Diocese."

Participants ranged from the newly ordained preparing for their first assignments to retired priests who traveled from other states to attend.

Conventual Franciscan Father Canice Connors, a priest of a religious community serving in the diocese who has been a pastor in Winston-Salem, led sessions on important issues in priestly life. The issues dealt with a range of topics, from collaboration in ministry to the priest's relationship with the bishop.

Father Connors now serves as superior of the Immaculate Province of the Conventual Franciscans, based in Rensselaer, N.Y. He is a popular retreat leader and priests' convocations facilitator.

Members of the Priestly Life and Ministry Committee, a subcommittee of the diocesan presbyteral council, also facilitated. And Chuck Taft, director of music and liturgy at St. Eugene Church in Asheville, assisted with the Masses and music of the week.

Bishop William G. Curlin presided at a liturgy that honored priests celebrating 25 years or more of service this year. A half-dozen retiring or senior priests were also recognized.

During his homily at the closing liturgy June 23, Bishop Curlin shared stories from his four-decades-plus of priesthood and urged his audience to recommit themselves to one another as brothers in Christ.

"I pray that if one thing comes out of this (convocation), it would be a new beginning in our relationship with one another, and that we would build upon it," he said. "Look at each other — not past each other, or around each other — and realize that, in God's divine providence, we were all brought here into the priesthood in this church of the Lord to work together in building the body of Christ.

"Let us be light for each other."

Almost 70 men currently serve in active parish ministry as diocesan priests, while another 15 or so are retired, on leave or in the military.

Since the Diocese of Charlotte was established in 1972, a number of priests from religious orders have also played key roles in the building up of a missionary territory. Today, 13 congregations of religious priests are represented at parishes and missions throughout the diocese.

For Father George Kloster, who is pastor of the diocese's westernmost churches, the gathering was valuable on a number of levels.

"This was a very good experience, and it certainly did help us to appreciate the common priesthood that we share," said Father Kloster, pastor of St. William Church in Murphy and Immaculate Heart of Mary Church in Hayesville. He also chairs the Priestly Life and Ministry Committee.

"This convocation focused both on the priesthood as an institution and on the priest as a person," he said. "This is a far-flung diocese, and having everybody in the same place to discuss the issues we're facing certainly does help to do some bonding." ▼

Contact Associate Editor Jimmy Rostar by calling (704) 370-3334 or e-mail jtrostar@charlottediocese.org.

Editor Joann Keane contributed to this story.

Parents... why order school uniforms out of state?
A+™ school approved uniforms are as close as a drive to the lake!

Uniforms DIRECT 2U
Owner Ann Hoffman, Member of St. Therese

704-895-7474 www.uniformsdirect2u.com
Uniforms Direct 2U, 18505 Statesville Road, Suite 5-A, Cornelius, NC 28031

COACH XCEL

Spirit - Body - Mind
Hypnosis - Thought Field Therapy

Stop Smoking • Live Healthier
Manage Stress • Reduce Chronic Pain
Improve Job, Academic, Sports Performance

Call Today! 704-597-4184
John Connors LPC, NBCCH, TFT
Licensed Professional Counselor, National Board of Certified Clinical Hypnotherapists
Diplomate Certified - Thought Field Therapy

Advertise here! Call (704) 370-3332

Create a winning event

Having your meeting or conference at the center makes you a winner every time!

We can help you turn an ordinary conference, meeting, retreat, or banquet into a special event! You plan the event, we'll provide the environment!

1551 Trinity Lane, Hickory, NC
(828) 327-7441 or toll-free at
(888) 536-7441
E-mail: ccc@twave.net
www.catholicconference.org

The Catholic Conference Center

Cuban-Americans react to Elian's return to Cuba

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (CNS) — Cuban-Americans across Florida reacted to Elian Gonzalez's return to Cuba with disappointment but said they also hope that they will eventually understand God's hand in the seven-month ordeal. The 6-year-old Cuban refugee, along with his father, Juan Miguel Gonzalez, returned to Cuba June 28 after the U.S. Supreme Court refused to consider his Miami relatives' appeal to keep the child here. "I am very depressed right now, and I have cried a lot today," said Laura Santos, a vice president and general manager at four Telemundo media outlets in central Florida and a member of St. James Cathedral in Orlando. "I see this as a victory for a very evil dictator, and a defeat for democracy. ... If this was (God's) will, then I accept that, even though it is breaking my heart," she told The Florida Catholic diocesan newspaper.

Indian archbishop dies in car accident in Poland

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — Archbishop Alan de Lastic of Delhi, president of the Catholic Bishops' Conference of India, died in a car crash in Poland June 20. He was 70 years old. According to a statement from the Indian bishops' conference, the archbishop died instantly when the car he was in swerved off the road to avoid a cyclist. He was traveling to Warsaw from Krakow, where he had visited the shrine of the Black Madonna. The conference's vice president, Archbishop Mar Basileos of Trivandrum, said in the statement, "We have lost an extraordinary leader in him who gave leadership not only to the Catholic community in India but to all the Christians in the country." Cardinal Jozef Tomko, prefect of the Congregation for the Evangelization of Peoples, told Catholic News Service that "for India, (the archbishop's death) is a very heavy loss."

Winner of U.S. Catholic Award calls 2000 'year of the Latino'

CHICAGO (CNS) — Calling 2000 "the year of the Latino," theologian Jeanette Rodriguez-Holguin applauded efforts to recognize the gifts and talents of Latinos, but challenged church leaders to hear and honor the often unheard voices of Latina women and to invest in Hispanic youths. "I believe in this community," Rodriguez-Holguin said June 19, accepting this year's U.S. Catholic Award in Chicago. "I believe this community has a contribution to make, both to church and to society. I believe it is a community that really reflects 'el rostro de Dios,' the face of God." Rodriguez-Holguin was honored with the annual award from the editors of U.S. Catholic magazine for groundbreaking work focusing on the grass-roots theology of Latina women. She has collected their stories and retold them in her two books, "Our Lady of Guadalupe: Faith and Empowerment Among Mexican-American Women" and "Stories We Live/Cuentos Que Vivimos."

N.Y. Auxiliary Bishop Austin B. Vaughan dies

NEW YORK (CNS) — New York Auxiliary Bishop Austin B. Vaughan died June 25 at St. Joseph's Hospital in Yonkers after a series of illnesses and after suffering a severe heart attack 10 days earlier. Bishop Vaughan, 72, was widely known for his frequent arrests while protesting abortion since the late 1980s. He also was the focus of national attention in 1988 after he told New York Gov. Mario Cuomo, a Catholic, that he "seriously risks going to hell" for his position on legal abortion. That same year, Bishop Vaughan made a public announcement of his intention to drop out of the Democratic party because of its stance on abortion.

Archbishop Flores freed; alleged captor surrenders

CNS FILE PHOTO

SAN ANTONIO (CNS) — Archbishop Patrick F. Flores of San Antonio was freed before dusk June 28 after being held hostage for nine hours in his own chancery building. Archbishop Flores, 70, walked out under his own power from the chancery building at about 7 p.m. CDT, about nine hours after he was allegedly accosted by Nelson Escolero. About 20 minutes after the archbishop appeared, Escolero, 40, surrendered to police without incident. Escolero was charged with two counts of aggravated kidnapping, with a $1 million bond set for each count. Archbishop Flores' secretary, Myrtle Sanchez, had also been held hostage for about two hours. Much of the tension centered on the hostage-taker's claim that he had a grenade. The device was later determined to be a fake. According to police, Escolero, a native of El Salvador who is a legal resident of the United States, was upset over his possible deportation for driving with a suspended license.

Gorbachev hails late Vatican official's dialogue with communists

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — Former Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev praised the late Cardinal Agostino Casaroli for his role in drawing back the Iron Curtain and called the former Vatican diplomat a "man of dialogue." Speaking through an interpreter June 27 at a news conference marking the release of Cardinal Casaroli's memoirs, "The Martyrdom of Patience: The Holy See and Communist Countries (1963-89)," Gorbachev said he was struck by the Vatican diplomat's "great vision and great openness." Gorbachev, whose own policy of "perestroika" during his 1985-1991 term as president of the Soviet Union helped bring an end to the Cold War, said, "Cardinal Casaroli made the first steps toward a new Europe."

Steve Hughes
House Painting & Pressure Washing
Interior/Exterior
Also specializing in interior painting, wall murals and children's rooms!
(704) 225-8188
References Provided
St. Gabriel Parishioner

JOHANNUS CHURCH ORGANS
America's best value in sound & price.
SYNTHIA MUSIC SYSTEMS
Catholic Hymns at the push of a button.
SOUND SYSTEMS
Totally wireless systems and hearing impaired devices.
CHURCH PIANOS
Quality pianos for affordable prices.
ELECTRONIC ORGAN SERVICE ON ALL MAKES
Music & Electronics, Inc.
Corner of Oak & Broad Streets, Mooresville, NC
(704) 663-7007 — (800) 331-0768

Monet
Matisse
Manet
Mo
www.charlottediocese.org/travel
Paris - London
October 19 - 26
très cool

CLOSED MONDAYS THRU LABOR DAY
Tues-Fri 9:30am-5:30pm
Sat. 9:30am-3:00pm
Carolina Catholic Bookshoppe
† Special Cards
† Religious Articles
† Unique Gift Ideas
704-342-2878
Fax (704) 334-3313
4410-F Monroe Road, Charlotte, NC
We welcome mail orders and special orders!

VGA & SVGA Refurbished Computer Monitors
14" — $20-$25
15" — $35-$38
17" — $70-$125
20" Call for details
30 day warranty
Over 2000 monitors in stock!
MONITORS DEPOT
O.C. STAFFORD ELECTRONIC SERVICE & DEVELOPMENT COMPANY
408 Banner Ave., Greensboro, NC 27401
E-mail: urpac408@worldnet.att.net
(336) 274-9917

Vatican underlines theological distinctions on private revelation

By JOHN THAVIS
Catholic News Service

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — With the publication of the third secret of Fatima, the Vatican's doctrinal officials took care to explain that such private revelations can be a spiritual help to Catholics, but are in no way matters of faith.

Unlike its statements on dogma, the church does not have an "official definition or official interpretation" of the Fatima visions, Cardinal Joseph Ratzinger, prefect of the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith, said at a Vatican press conference June 26.

Cardinal Ratzinger's 12-page commentary on "The Message of Fatima" applied several theological distinctions to a subject that has prompted decades of popular conjecture.

He said the text of the third secret of Fatima "will probably prove disappointing or surprising after all the speculation it has stirred."

"No great mystery is revealed; nor is the future unveiled," he wrote.

That is as it should be, he went on to explain, because the church believes that God's "public" revelation was completed in the Old and New Testament, fulfilled in the death and resurrection of Christ.

Cardinal Ratzinger said there was need for some "basic clarification" about how events like the Fatima visions are to be included in the life of the church. One key point, he said, is that such private revelations are not supposed to complete the Gospel, but help people live it.

"The authority of private revelations is essentially different from that of the definitive public revelation. The latter demands faith," he said.

He quoted Pope Benedict XIV's classic statement on private revelations: "An assent of Catholic faith is not due to revelations approved in this way; it is not even possible."

Cardinal Joseph Ratzinger talks to journalists about the so-called third secret of Fatima during a press conference at the Vatican June 26. The prefect of the Congregation for the Doctrine of Faith said the secret is a symbolic prophecy of the church's 20th-century struggles with evil political systems and its ultimate triumph.

Instead, Cardinal Ratzinger said, a private revelation considered genuine by the church may be accepted by the faithful with prudence. Because it can help them understand the Gospel, it should "not be discarded."

"It is a help which is offered, but which one is not obliged to use," he said.

Cardinal Ratzinger said that prophetic elements in visions such as those at Fatima should be understood in the biblical sense of prophecy, not of predicting the future but of explaining "the will of God for the present," in order to show the right path for the future.

He listed three basic forms of perception or vision in such private revelations: sensory experience, interior perception and spiritual vision. At Fatima, he said, the visions were clearly of the second type, an inner vision that for the visionary "has the force of a presence."

CNS PHOTO FROM REUTERS

"Interior vision does not mean fantasy. ... It means rather that the soul is touched by something real, even if beyond the senses," the cardinal said. He said children are perhaps more open to such visions because "their interior powers of perception are still not impaired."

Cardinal Ratzinger said it was a misconception to think that the Fatima visions, including that of hell, were like a "film preview" of events to come. That would be a limitation of human freedom, he said, and "the whole point of the vision is to bring freedom onto the scene and to steer freedom in a positive direction."

The importance of these visions was in their symbolic meaning as a whole, he said.

In offering his own comments on the Fatima visions, Cardinal Ratzinger was not as specific as other Vatican officials have been in interpreting the vision of a bishop in white struggling up a hill amid corpses of slain martyrs, who then falls dead after being shot by soldiers.

Cardinal Angelo Sodano, Vatican secretary of state, said it was believed the vision referred to Pope John Paul II, who fell wounded in an assassination attempt in 1981, and to a "war" waged by atheistic systems against the church.

In his commentary, Cardinal Ratzinger connected the third secret with the suffering of the church in various wars and persecutions of the 20th century, and suggested that the figure of the "bishop in white" might represent a "convergence" of several 20th-century pontiffs who helped the church ward off the dangers.

In any case, Cardinal Ratzinger told reporters, the church has no intention of imposing an official interpretation of the Fatima vision. ▼

Mass Times phone number, Web site report jump in usage

WASHINGTON (CNS) — A toll-free number and a Web site giving information on Sunday Mass times at churches across the United States reported a jump in usage from 1998 to 1999.

The toll-free number, (800) 627-7846, received 100,000 phone calls, up from 66,000 in 1998. In addition, 120,000 "hits" were recorded on the www.masstimes.org Web site.

Close to 22,500 U.S. parishes, missions and other Mass sites are included in the Mass Times database, an increase over the past year from 80 percent of the country to 99 percent.

An announcement from the U.S. Catholic Conference Department of Communications credited a Catholic News Service article and promotion of the toll-free number to diocesan directors of information with the upsurge in phone calls.

The phone number and the Web site are a joint effort of the Catholic Communication Campaign and the 1-800 Mass Times Trust.

The recorded information on the toll-free number, which began in 1994, is now supplemented by a live-operator option reachable by calling (305) 382-5758. Callers who have difficulty with touch-tone phone options or are not hooked up to the Internet can talk to an operator in either English or Spanish.

The Web site now includes information about Masses by city, Mass in languages other than English, various religious devotions and adoration of the Blessed Sacrament, as well as wheelchair accessibility. It also highlights Masses in or near places such as campgrounds, national and state parks, retreat houses, and air, bus or train terminals. ▼

THE
Independent Advantage
SPELMAN & CO., INC.
A SunAmerica Company

351 N. Peacehaven Road, Winston-Salem, NC 27104
Local: (336) 768-4709
Fax: (336) 778-1444
Toll-free: (800) 859-7847

THOMAS M. PRYBYLO
Retirement Specialist
Member NASD, SIPC

Press:
Extension 11 for free e-mail newsletter
Extension 12 for LongTerm Care brochure
Extention 13 for daily stock market update

WEB SITES:
For realtime quotes & financial calculators:
www.prybylofinancial.com

For LongTerm Care/Disability Insurance:
kestlerfinancial.com/agents/prybylo.htm

For Term/Family Life Insurance:
agentslink.com/tpryb/

We'll beat any advertised price... Let us prove it!

The LaPointe Dealerships

Serving Charlotte with integrity for over 39 years!

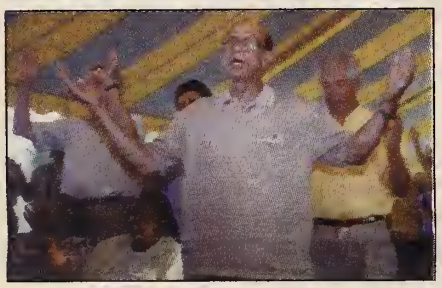
MITSUBISHI MOTORS
6951 E. Independence Blvd.
531-3131

HONDA
7001 E. Independence Blvd.
535-4444

Frank LaPointe, President, Member of St. Gabriel Church

Photos by Alesha M. Price

Pictured left, Obakunle Akinlana and Rita Colón make music for the Saturday crowd. Above, Willis Joseph calls the Sunday congregation to worship on the djembe drum, which originated in Guinea, West Africa.



Clockwise from left, Charles Knight and the Perpetual Hope Gospel Choir raise their hands in praise. The Pinn Memorial Baptist Choir, below, lend their voices in song. Left, Nanette Lide anoints the crowd with a cow tail used all over Africa in religious ceremonies dipped in holy water.

Excerpts

Father James E. Goode, OFM

— "Through our communion with Christ, the head of the Mystical Body, we enter into a living communion with all believers ... the Eucharist — the Bread of Life and the Cup of Salvation — is the living and lasting center around which the entire community of the Church gathers. ..."

— "... How blessed are we that God dispatched his Son, put him down on earth to walk up a hill called Calvary, to hang on a cross and shed some blood for you and me, so that we might have a right to the Tree of Life and be free from our burdens of sin. ..."

— "Jesus calls on us as descendants of slaves, Africans and African-Americans and people of all colors and creeds to begin to be disciples anew ... and to create a world without prejudice and discrimination, to see everyone created in the image and likeness of God."

— "At the end of the jubilee year, let us keep the doors of our churches open so that freedom, justice and liberation; healing and mercy; the motherless, fatherless and abandoned; the left-out and leftover; heavy-burdened and weary; and people of every color and creed might come in ... and find peace and happiness in the body and blood of Christ."

— "You need to do more than just come to church on Sunday, but ... go out everyday and proclaim 'Jesus is the Bread of Life, come to the table of the Lord and have your spirit revived.'"

— "We gather today to celebrate our faith, to celebrate our belief in a loving, living and life-nourishing God and our gift in being black, Catholic and Christian. ... We celebrate being Eucharistic people, for we are proud of our heritage and are proud to be a people of the Word of God, and we boldly stand to say 'we love the Lord.'"

COACH XCEL
A Personal Coach Is to Your Mind and Spirit
What A Personal Trainer Is to Your Body.
• Achieve more success and significance both personally and professionally
• Earn more money while growing personally
• Attain better overall health with less stress
• Possess higher self confidence and reach your goals
For a complimentary consultation call
John Connors, LPC @ 704-597-4184
Licensed Professional Counselor

Caring for Charlotte Area Catholic Families in Their Hour of Need Since 1926
McEwen Funeral Service, Inc.
Charlotte 704-334-6421
Pineville 704-544-1412
Mint Hill 704-545-4864
Derita 704-596-3291

Attention
DIABETICS
with Medicare or Insurance
Save Money on Diabetic Supplies!
For more information call:
1-800-337-4144
Medicare also pays for pump & pump supplies

Spirits revived at weekend gathering

By ALESHA M. PRICE
Staff Writer

CHARLOTTE — From under the large, yellow and white-striped tent on the edge of uptown Charlotte, one could watch the cars slow to a crawl as they looked at the massive structure sitting in the middle of a usually empty field. People rolled down their car windows to hear the preaching and singing coming from the direction of the tent, and from a distance, watch the crowd stand in praise with arms raised and palms outstretched.

Some passers-by joined in, while some remained in the background of the lively event, sponsored by the African-American Affairs Ministry of Charlotte and Our Lady of Consolation Church in Charlotte. The tent revival, "Revival of the Spirit 2000: From Everlasting to Everlasting, God is Still God," was three years in the making and finally came to fruition the weekend of June 23.

"The purpose of the revival was to breakdown some of the misconceptions that black non-Catholic brothers and sisters have about black Catholic worship and Catholicism in general," explained Rev. Mr. Curtiss Todd, vice chancellor and vicar for the African American Affairs Ministry, who served as weekend master of ceremonies. "As the theme suggests, we wanted to truly have a 'revival of the spirit' because we believe, with the state that society is in at this time, especially in the African-American community, we certainly need to go back to our tradition of spiritually based healing and spirituality of the mind and body."

Approximately 1,200 people, with a nearly full attendance of 500 people for the liturgy on Sunday, gathered under the tent for a weekend of preaching, praise, worship and fellowship.

Franciscan Father James E. Goode, Ph.D., served as the weekend revivalist and preacher, as he charmed the crowd with his stirring words of inspiration and hope.

Father Goode is president of the National Black Catholic Clergy Caucus, president of the National Black Catholic Apostolate for Life and the Guardian of St. Claire Friary. He founded the National Day of Prayer for the African-American Family and preached at the first revival 25 years ago.

Photo by Alesha M. Price

Franciscan Father James E. Goode prays the Eucharistic prayer with Father Mauricio W. West, Rev. Mr. Curtiss Todd and Capuchin Father Jude Duffy at the tent revival on June 23-25.

Attendants braved the soaring weekend temperatures and listened as Father Goode, a nationally known Black Catholic evangelist, belted out his favorite hymn "Blessed Assurance" with his rich baritone voice. He led the crowd in song throughout the weekend.

On Friday evening, Father Goode opened the revival with crowd interaction and the laying on of hands at the end of his sermon.

As he led the people in singing "Jesus Lifted Me," a much-needed breeze, stirred by the giant fans placed around the perimeter, blew through the tent, ruffling his brown Franciscan robe and the kente cloth stole draped around his neck.

"If we allow the spirit of God to move us and use us as he used our ancestors, then the Diocese of Charlotte is in for great blessings," said Father Goode. "The spirit of the Lord has brought us together tonight that everyone of every race, creed and color can gather under the big tent to worship the Lord."

Father Goode reminded the crowd that if they have a dedication and commitment to Jesus that their lives will remain on the right path.

"We can't stay in low places if we are connected to God because we are forever reaching up to him. I know somebody that hears our cries, heals our hurts, who is the same yesterday, today and forever, and his name is Jesus, our Savior, our all, our Lord. ... I invite you all to become acquainted with this great Savior that brings us peace and joy. ..."

The same spirit drifted throughout the weekend into Saturday and Sunday. On Saturday, vendors with religious goods and Afro-centric clothing and foods prepared and sold by Our Lady of Consolation Church members, young and old. People feasted on chicken wings, croaker plates, grilled corn and snowballs while they listened to Sister Ayaba Bey tell stories and sing songs, watched the Kabaka Dancers and Drummers perform and listened to Obakunle Akinlana tell African folktales.

"Father Goode is very spiritually motivated and is definitely a chosen person whose spirit is moving a lot of people," said Andre K. Andrews, a tenor in the Pinn Memorial Baptist Church Choir of Philadelphia, special guests of the Perpetual Hope Gospel Choir of Our Lady of Consolation Church. "I have never heard a Catholic priest like him. He reminded us that even though we are of different denominations, we are all going for the same goal of being in the presence of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ."

On Sunday, Father Mauricio West, vicar general and chancellor, presided over the Mass, with Capuchin Father Jude Duffy, pastor of Our Lady of Consolation Church, and Capuchin Father Martin Schratz, parochial vicar of St. Thomas Aquinas Church in Charlotte, concelebrating and Rev. Mr. Todd serving as deacon.

Father Goode ended the weekend on Sunday with another rousing sermon centered on the feast day of the Body and Blood of Christ.

"Today, we gather as Eucharistic people around the table of the Lord at the table of the Eucharist to celebrate our communion and union with God," said Father Goode. "We are here to proclaim with joy and a firm faith that God is Communion — Father, Son and Holy Spirit — and he calls us to share in that same Communion."

"I would like to see this become an annual event that will grow with people attending from all over the diocese of all nationalities and various faiths," commented Rev. Mr. Todd on the possibility of future revivals. "People came in from off the street who we reached, and we had people stop by to ask what was going on and if they could participate. I recognized their faces during the weekend. One of our goals was to reach out to the community, and I believe we achieved that goal." ▼

Contact Staff Writer Alesha M. Price by calling (704) 370-3354 or e-mail amprice@charlottediocese.org.

JUBILEE 2000
CHRIST YESTERDAY TODAY FOREVER
DIOCESE OF CHARLOTTE
ITALY
Sept. 25-Oct. 3, 2000
with Rev. Mr. Curtiss Todd
Featuring the canonization ceremony in St. Peter's Square of Mother Katherine Drexel and Mother Josephine Bakhita.
For registration package, please call Joann Keane, (704) 370-3336 or visit www.charlottediocese.org/travel

30 YEARS EXPERIENCE
PYANO MAN
HENRY C. ROZELL III
2nd Generation ♦ Piano Tuner/Technician
Piano Tuning, Repairs, Refinishing
Pianos Bought and Sold
FREE ESTIMATES
704-321-5843

What are the 24 core stocks every investor should own?
Find out which U.S. companies we believe form the foundation of a successful portfolio.
Call Jeanne O. McCulloch, Financial Consultant
(336) 721-9221 or (800) 334-4401 for your free copy of "The 24 Core Stocks Every Investor Should Own."
SALOMON SMITH BARNEY
A member of citigroup
©1999 Salomon Smith Barney Inc. Member SIPC. Salomon Smith Barney is a service mark of Salomon Smith Barney Inc.

Word to Life

July 9, Fourteenth Sunday in Ordinary Time, Cycle B Readings:

1) Ezekiel 2:2-5
   Psalm 123:1-4
2) 2 Corinthians 12:7-10
3) Gospel: Mark 6:1-6

By BEVERLY CORZINE
Catholic News Service

All three readings this Sunday deal with some of the consequences in store for one who is chosen to proclaim "Thus says the Lord God!" Embedded somewhere within his message, Ezekiel tells us that it was only the "spirit" entering him that gave him the strength to get on his feet and receive the message he was to deliver.

After begging three times to have his "thorn in the flesh" removed, which is seemingly ignored by the Lord, St. Paul writes to the community at Corinth that his weaknesses and persecutions have, paradoxically, become his strengths through Christ.

The Gospel reading presents us with the jarring truth that many of the people who probably had known Jesus the longest were astonished by his message and began to take "offense at him."

The picture is a human one. We can imagine someone saying, "Isn't this the guy that built cabinets for my wife two summers ago?" Moreover, Jesus himself is "amazed at their lack of faith" and utters one of the most familiar quotes in the Bible: "A prophet is not without honor except in his native place and among his own kin and his own house."

Who are the prophets who move in and out of our lives each day? I am not talking about people who are distanced from us like Dr. King and Mother Teresa. I am talking about someone each of us knows who is really a truth-teller whether we want to admit it or not.

Who are the prophets we have ridiculed — people we now realize were speaking the truth all along? Whom do we ourselves scorn, not because they are wrong, but because deep down we know they are right?

On the other hand, we might be the people chosen to be the prophets or the truth-tellers in our own villages. Ironies exist where prophets are concerned. Some of us don't want to deliver the message, some of us don't want to hear the message, but in the words of Ezekiel, "I am sending you.... Whether they heed or resist — for they are a rebellious house — they shall know that a prophet has been among them."

Question:
What is the message that the Lord has entrusted each of us to deliver?

Weekly Scripture

Readings for the week of July 9 - 15, 2000

Sunday, Ezekiel 2:2-5, 2 Corinthians 12:7-10, Mark 6:1-6; Monday, Hosea 2:16-18, 21-22, Matthew 9:18-26; Tuesday (St. Benedict), Proverbs 2:1-9, Matthew 9:32-38; Wednesday, Hosea 10:1-3, 7-8, 12, Matthew 10:1-7; Thursday (St. Henry), Hosea 11:1-4, 8-9, Matthew 10:7-15; Friday, Hosea 14:2-10, Matthew 10:16-23; Saturday (St. Bonaventure), Isaiah 6:1-8, Matthew 10:24-33

Readings for the week of July 16 - 22, 2000

Sunday, Amos 7;12-15, Ephesians 1:3-14, Matthew 6:7-13; Monday, Isaiah 1:10-17, Matthew 10:34-11:1; Tuesday (St. Camillus de Lellis), Isaiah 7:1-9, Matthew 11:20-24; Wednesday, Isaiah 10:5-7, 13-16, Matthew 11:25-27; Thursday, Isaiah 26:7-9, 12, 16-19, Matthew 11:28-30; Friday (St. Lawrence of Brindisi), Isaiah 38:1-8, 21-22, Matthew 12:1-8; Saturday (St. Mary Magdalene), Micah 2:1-5, John 20:1-2, 11-18

"Our Specialty Is Loving Your Pets"
Pineville Animal Hospital
10833 Pineville Road, Pineville, NC
(Near Carolina Pavilion/AMC 22 Theater)
(704) 552-2005
In addition to our complete medical care facility, we also offer:
Boarding Kennels
Professional Grooming

Thomas N. Buckley, DVM, owner
Member of St. Vincent's

CFCC
Carolina Funeral & Cremation Center
Dignity
Affordability
Simplicity
5505 Monroe Rd. Charlotte, NC 28212
704-568-0023
www.carolinafuneral.com
Steven Kuzma
Owner/Director
Privately, Locally Owned
Member St. Matthew Church and Knights of Columbus

The Diocese of Charlotte
CATHOLIC SOCIAL SERVICES
1123 South Church St.
Charlotte, NC 28203
www.cssnc.org
Executive Director:
Elizabeth Thurbee (704) 370-3228
Refugee Office:
Cira Ponce (704) 370-6930
Justice & Peace:
Joanne K. Frazer (704) 370-3225
Special Ministries:
Gerard A. Carter (704) 370-3250
Charlotte Area: 1123 South Church Street, Charlotte, NC 28203
Area Director: Geri King (704) 370-6155
Western Area: 50 Orange Street, Asheville, NC 28801
Area Director: Sister Marie Frechette (828) 255-0146
Piedmont-Triad Area: 621 W. Second Street, Winston-Salem, NC 27108
Area Director: David Harold (336) 727-0705
Greensboro Satellite Office: (336) 274-5577
High Point Hispanic Center: (336) 884-5858
For information on specific programs, please call your local office.

The Franciscan Center
Catholic Gift & Book Store
Over 700 Book Titles, plus Bibles, Rosaries, Statues, Medals, Tapes, CD's, Plaques, & much, much more!
Hours: 9am - 5pm Monday - Friday
(336) 273-2554 233 N. Greene St. Greensboro, NC 27401

Providing Quality Long Term Care ...With Great Love.
For half a century, Maryfield Nursing Home has provided outstanding nursing care in a Catholic environment. When you need more care than is available at your home, come visit us. We invite you to discover for yourself our many stimulating daily activities and services which make Maryfield the best possible choice for Long Term Care.
1315 Greensboro Road
High Point, NC 27260
336.886.2444 Fax 336.886.4036
www.greensboro.com/mnh

MARYFIELD
A Continuing Care Retirement Community

For more information, please write:
Fr. Ed McDevitt, C.O. or Fr Joe Pearce, C.O.
The Oratory
P.O. Box 11586
Rock Hill, SC 29731-1586

Join us in serving God as priest or brother.
Our Oratorian Congregation was founded in Rome by St. Philip Neri in 1575. Known as "The Apostle of Joy," St. Phillip lived this virtue and brought people of all ages and backgrounds to the Church.
As a group of priests and lay men, we live a community life without vows and serve the people of God in various ministries:
- Parishes
- Campus Ministry
- Retreat Work
- Youth Summer Camp
- Nursing
- Hospital Chaplaincy

Like our ministries, our members are unique and come from across the United States and from Brazil.

Carolina Volkswagen
6625 E. Independence Blvd., Charlotte
(704) 537-2336 • (800) 489-2336

Biggest Selection Lowest Prices

Drivers wanted.

"Nothing Could Be Finer" Members of St. Gabriel

#1 Volkswagen Dealer in Charlotte and all the Carolinas for customer sales and service satisfaction!
C'mon in and see why!

The Brazilians are coming... 566-1009

You can express your commitment to your Church by making a bequest to the Diocese of Charlotte or to your parish. Simply have the following statement included in your will:
"I leave to the Roman Catholic Diocese of Charlotte (or ____ parish, city) the sum of $____ (or____ percent of the residue of my estate) for its religious, educational and charitable works."

Remember God's Will In Yours.

"A valid Will stands as a continuing expression of our concern for loved ones, as well as an ongoing commitment to the Church and the community in which we live."
Bishop William G. Curlin

For more information on how to make a Will that works, contact Jim Kelley, Director of Development, (704) 370-3301, at the Diocese of Charlotte, 1123 South Church Street, Charlotte, NC 28203.

Vinny's Painting Inc.

Free estimates (704) 846-0747

Interior/Exterior • Residential/Commercial
Licensed and Insured

Member of St. Matthew Church

Let stairs be our problem... not yours!
Ask about our Stairway lifts.
- Easily attached to steps (not walls)
- Folds out of the way
- Fits most stairways (straight & curved)
- Very affordable (rent or buy)
- We install

Chair & Equipment Rentals & Sales, Inc.
800 Central Ave. • Charlotte, NC • (800) 333-8431
Member of St. Thomas Aquinas

CNS PHOTO BY MIKE NELSON, THE TIDINGS

Franzak's "Saints"

Catholic musician Tom Franzak performs at the Los Angeles Archdiocese's religious education conference in April. His latest CD "Saints"' is a musical look at the lives of nine saints plus Dorothy Day and Archbishop Oscar Romero.

CD of pope's personal prayers to include famous musicians

By BENEDICTA CIPOLLA
CATHOLIC NEWS SERVICE

ROME (CNS) — Commuters weary of listening to the radio on the way to work will soon be able to pop in a CD of Pope John Paul II's prayers instead.

But the soon-to-be-released CD collection of the pope's personal prayers also will include names from many Top 40 stations' playlists.

Among those lending their voices to the recordings, produced by Maxx International, Inc. and expected in stores in September on Columbia Records, are teenage crooner Britney Spears, "boy band" 'N Sync, Canadian hitmeister Celine Dion and country music star Vince Gill.

Also scheduled to appear are actors Jennifer Love Hewitt, Brooke Shields and Dennis Franz, while Spanish and Italian versions of the CDs will boast native talent like Latin pop sensation Enrique Iglesias and Spanish tenor Placido Domingo.

R&B singer-songwriter Robert Kelly, better known as R. Kelly, will serve as the album's producer in addition to providing musical backing to the prayers and a full-length song titled "World Voices."

Maxx International founder Rick Garson said his original plan was to publish the prayers in book form in several languages, but he then decided to "take it a step further and make it into a spoken-word CD."

"Everybody thought I was a little crazy," he told Catholic News Service in a telephone interview June 23.

Garson obtained the rights to the prayers and the pope's voice from the Vatican with the help of Father Nunzio Spinelli of the Rogationists' Rome-based publishing house.

Still at the negotiations stage are a two-hour TV special, a Hallmark-licensed greeting card collection and a "pope phone line" in Latin America, where callers can hear recordings of either the pope's voice or a celebrity's reciting the prayers.

"As we all know, this pope loves the arts and music and children. And what better way to get the message out, and to introduce Catholicism and spirituality to young people and to, let's say, a new audience, (than) through entertainers — not the traditional way, but a very effective way," said Garson. ▼

Schools
Institutions
Daycares
Churches
Sales Offices
Recreational Facilities
Banks
Medical Facilities

Offering turn-key and professional solutions with Custom Modular Buildings to meet your growing and changing needs!

MODULARCORP

1803 East Wendover Ave., Suite E
Greensboro, NC 27405
(336) 275-8274 (336) 275-8649 fax
E-mail: modular@greensboro.com

Daniel Murray, President — St. Pius X Parishioner

Member of: MODULAR BUILDING INSTITUTE

Visit our Web site! www.modularcorp.com

The Pope Speaks

POPE JOHN PAUL II

Pope urges earthly purification in preparation for heaven

By BENEDICTA CIPOLLA
Catholic News Service

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — Pope John Paul II urged the faithful to purify themselves on earth in preparation for heaven and the full glory of the Trinity.

"Even now, weighed down as we are at times by sin and suffering, we still catch glimpses of the splendor that awaits us in heaven," the pope said June 28 at his weekly general audience, continuing a series of teachings on the Trinity.

"But if we are to reach the heavenly Jerusalem, we have to be purified on our earthly journey," he told an estimated 30,000 pilgrims gathered in St. Peter's Square.

The liturgy, he said, offers a "taste of that light, that contemplation of perfect love."

Comparing the church to a "pilgrim in a foreign land," the pope said earthly lives were a journey "to our true home, the heavenly Jerusalem."

"Beyond the frontier of history," he said, "the luminous and full epiphany of the Trinity awaits us."

In heaven, while above all we will meet the Father, he said, "in the center of that city will also rise up the Lamb, Christ, to whom the church is tied with a nuptial bond."

"The Holy Spirit pushes us toward that city," said the pope.

"It is the Holy Spirit who sustains the chosen people's dialogue of love with Christ," he said.

In the heavenly Jerusalem, said the pope, "we shall finally see the full glory of the Trinity, when every tear will be wiped away."

Pope urges end to anti-Christian violence in India, Indonesia

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — Appealing for an end to anti-Christian violence in Indonesia and India, Pope John Paul II called on people to strive for interreligious harmony. "I dare to hope that those who enact (violence) or instigate it understand that we cannot kill and destroy in the name of religion, nor manipulate religion to serve personal interests," the pope said June 28 following his weekly general audience. "I ask those in power to take firm action so that the situation improves; I ask all people to lay down hatred and to work tirelessly for the re-establishment of religious harmony, in reciprocal respect and love," he said to some 30,000 people gathered in St. Peter's Square.

Send Letters to the Editor to:
Joann S. Keane
The Catholic News & Herald
1123 South Church Street
Charlotte, NC 28203 or e-mail: jskeane@charlottediocese.org.

The Bottom Line

ANTOINNETTE BOSCO
CNS Columnist

Selling the family home

The day my father, had he lived, would have been 98 years old — June 1, 2000 — we had to close the deal on selling our family home. My sister Rosemary and I, the oldest siblings in our family of eight, found ourselves sharing memories of this home that our Dad bought nearly 60 years ago, feeling a bit depressed even as we knew we had no choice but to sell.

It happens to a lot of families. A parent dies, and the remaining parent, aging, needs full-time care. The major asset, the family home, must be sold to pay for medical care and a nursing home. Our mom, nearly 92, unable to care for herself, is well cared for in a home literally a block from our family house. She says she's happy we found a buyer.

On the surface, all is well. But deeper down, in the heart, all is not so blissful. Rosemary and I keep remembering how excited Dad was the day we moved into our two-family city house, across the street from Lincoln Park in Albany, N.Y.

Almost in unison we said, "Do you remember how his eyes were shining, and how he walked from room to room, so excited that he had finally achieved his dream of having his very own house for his family?"

We were budding teen-agers, not old enough, perhaps, to really understand what owning a house meant to someone who had come to America from Italy at age 16 without a penny, all alone.

We shared a room when we were kids, but Rosemary and I have shared so much more. I think the expression "soul sisters" was created to describe our relationship.

This house was our father's dream, and he always wanted to share those dreams with us. I think the one that affected us most was his love of music. He recognized Rosemary's great talent for music and right away found a teacher for her, who to this day remains her friend. Rosemary shared her gift with me, teaching me the joy of opera, symphonies, concertos. And as we thought of Dad's birthday and the pending closing on the house, we felt the happy/sad paradox we all encounter at times in our life: remembering how happy we made Dad with our music in our house, a house that would now belong to others.

It took several months to find a buyer. But the man buying it is a father. He wants the house for his son, who will be attending a pharmacy college about a half mile away. They have told our family that they love the house and plan to do some major, beautifying work on it.

When we heard this, Rosemary and I felt our depression somewhat subsided. Could it be just a coincidence that it is another father buying this house that our Dad so loved? Could it also be a coincidence that the transfer of the house occurred on our Dad's birthday? We don't think so.

We think Dad had a hand in this. We think he had something to do with seeing to it that his house would not be trashed in any way, that it would be occupied by people who care for it, as he did.

It's the end of an era when the family house is no longer there. But that's life, a journey, where we're always moving on, but carrying our memories with us.

On the Light Side

DAN MORRIS
CNS Columnist

The secrets of the "Survivor"

I have been mulling and stewing and snacking over the phenomenon of the "Survivor" television series and how its ratings are probably going to eclipse "I Love Lucy" reruns over time. Everyone is talking about this thing.

I think we can all agree that — other than perhaps the last episodes of "Cheers" and "Seinfeld" — this is one of the greatest marketing successes in pop-culture history. OK, the O.J. Simpson trial is in there too, but you know what I mean.

We all know the winner is ultimately going to run for governor of California and win. This will be preceded, however, by books by and about him or her; Nike endorsements; appearances on "Tonight" and "Letterman," and, of course, making the cover of Time.

For the three of you who might not have seen or heard of "Survivor," it is a series based on 16 total strangers — who become two teams (called tribes) of eight each — being dropped on a deserted island and forced to survive on their own (with the help of plane drops of supplies like garlic and hunting knives) at the same time they are pitted against the other team and, of course, one another, because one person is eliminated by vote each week until only one person "survives," and he or she will win $1 million.

Simple, eh?

How do they think up this stuff? I can only imagine a table of Hollywood wannabees sitting around sharing adult beverages, and one of them says, "What do you think of making a show that is a cross between 'Lord of the Flies' and 'Gilligan's Island'?"

"Not enough sex," slurs one of them.

"You're right. Let's add in 'Days of Our Lives' and infocommercials for the 'Ab Tightener.'"

I have written the producers and asked if the winner, or even the runner-up, might make a guest appearance at our parish men's club fund-raiser. So far I have not heard back despite the fact I did promise all the grub (or grubs if they prefer) the person could gobble and slurp.

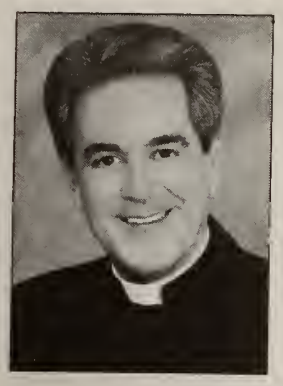
You know the question that really haunts me is, "Why can't my parish fund-raising committee find marketing geniuses like this?"

Actually, that's the back-up question. What I am really curious about is what the next table of Hollywood wannabees is going to think up. We have already bellied-up big time to the spectacle of a total knucklehead, fake millionaire choosing a bride from a giggling bevy of intellect-challenged young women.

The heroes who sit for hours behind a camera to film beautiful animals for us to marvel at on the Discovery Channel must be shaking their heads. Maybe they should let a few of them loose on "Survivor's" island. Talk about yet another ratings boost.

I wonder if the producers would be willing to pay the Discovery Channel folks the $1 million if only a mamma lion was left at the end. She'd get my vote.

Comments are welcome. Write Dan Morris at 441 Church St., San Francisco, CA 94114; or e-mail: cnsuncle@yahoo.com.



Light One Candle

FATHER THOMAS J. McSWEENEY
GUEST COLUMNIST

The Cardinal Rule

Many of us in New York and elsewhere have our personal Cardinal John O'Connor stories which we have treasured since his death.

I had been in my new job as the head of The Christophers just two days when I looked out the window of my office in Manhattan, and there he was walking unhurriedly along East 48th Street. He smiled broadly as two passers-by reached out to him and struck up a conversation. The Archbishop of New York was doing what he liked most — being out and about the neighborhood of his beloved Saint Patrick's.

As the pair moved on, the Cardinal stood facing Christopher headquarters, took a quick look at his watch, and seemed to be considering an impromptu visit. As soon as he started to navigate the traffic, I sprinted down three flights in time to greet him at the door. "So, you must be the new guy, McSweeney is it? Welcome to the center of the universe!"

His greeting was warm and generous. Before I could speak, he arched his eyebrow and began looking at me intently. "Tsk! Tsk! Tsk! This will never do!" he intoned. "Excuse me, your Eminence, is something wrong?" I started checking for whatever might be askew.

"Well," he declared, "Father Keller, the distinguished founder of The Christophers, always struck us poor kids from Philadelphia as the definitive clerical dandy because he had a starched hankie planted in the breast pocket of his immaculately pressed suit coat — very impressive! Where's yours?!" Then, without losing a beat, his broad smile reappeared with a hearty guffaw.

If you never heard the Cardinal laugh, you were denied one of his most winning qualities. But as easily as he had just 'broken the ice,' his demeanor became serious.

He stepped closer and touched my arm. Lowering his voice, he spoke in those deliberate, measured phrases. "Tom, in truth, I envy you. You get to do something publicly as a Christopher that I don't get to do in the pulpit of the cathedral. You get to speak in the trenches, in the marketplace! And like the true missionary that Keller was, you don't start by arguing dogma or doctrine, but rather with the good you see in people no matter what their religious background. At Saint Pat's I must carve out and teach the Catholic position. The Christopher mandate is to get into the thick of things and mix it up. I envy you!"

I was speechless. When I started to mumble something erudite about the difference between the pre-evangelistic work of missionaries versus the evangelization of the baptized, the Cardinal interrupted me, "By the way, where are you saying Mass?"

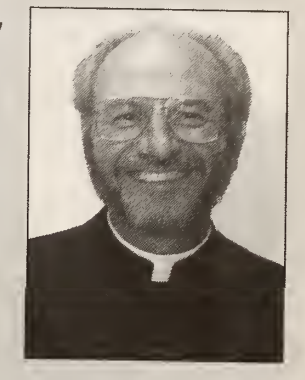
"Well, your Eminence, I've contacted the pastor up at St..."

"Oh, that won't work," he broke in, "you'll be joining us at Saint Patrick's. I'm sure Monsignor Dalla Villa, the rector, will be in touch with you soon." And with that, he shook my hand, turned toward the curb and shot back, "And forget the hankie!"

Cardinal O'Connor did indeed have a particular pulpit from which to speak. Yet, he always treated each person he met as a unique, valued individual. I have no doubt that Father Keller himself would have recognized the Cardinal as another "Christopher," a true Christ-bearer.

Father Thomas J. McSweeney is director of The Christophers.

Economy of Faith



FATHER JOHN S. RAUSCH
GUEST COLUMN

Rising gas prices raise awareness

As gas prices rise from $1.50 closer to $2.00 a gallon, consumers with large fuel tanks reel from the shock of a $50 fill-up. No matter that gas at $1.50 a gallon equals half the price Europeans pay, and today's price adjusted for inflation rivals that of the early 1970s, the unexpected jump sparks a rethinking in consumers on a tight budget. Owners of sports utility vehicles and light trucks exempt from certain fuel-efficiency standards wonder if they need all that power or utility when their vehicle gets only ten to 15 miles per gallon. From market theory the price hike should nudge consumers to more fuel-efficient vehicles. Yet, from a theological perspective, the spiraling cost offers people of faith an opportunity to assess their responsibility toward the environment and their stewardship of the world's resources.

Burning oil produces greenhouse gases, and scientists paint a grim picture from our current patterns of consumption. During most of the Twentieth Century, the earth was warming at a rate of one degree Fahrenheit per century, but since 1980, that rate accelerated to four degrees per century. With a hotter atmosphere comes more violent weather. El Ninos become more severe, while the earth's glaciers retreat at accelerated rates. Last year two uninhabited western Pacific islands were submerged beneath rising sea levels.

Reactions to these findings range from denial to urgency. The Global Climate Coalition composed of major oil and energy companies dismiss global warming as a threat. To them the science proves inconclusive. Yet, last December the chief meteorologist of the United Kingdom and the head of the U.S. National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration declared jointly the climate situation to be critical. They urged immediate reduction in the use of coal and oil throughout the world.

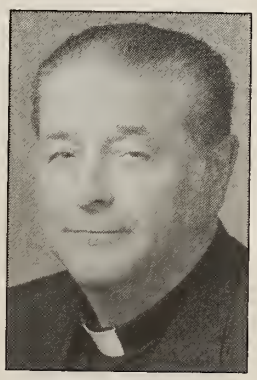
Some environmentalists believe a switch away from oil and coal to renewable and high-efficiency energy sources will require little decline in our standard of living. An economy based on hydrogen, fuel cells, natural gas, solar and wind could supply our energy needs and gradually become competitive to oil and coal through mass markets and mass production. The federal government which subsidizes fossil fuels by $20 billion annually could begin favoring clean energy sources, and thus, provide incentives for energy companies to develop climate-friendly technologies. While any switch in an energy source requires capital investment up front, long-term renewable energy will cost less for the future.

In December 1995 a fire destroyed the main plant at Malden Mills in Lawrence, Massachusetts. CEO Aaron Feuerstein attracted national attention when he declared he would rebuild the plant on the old site, promising his 1,400 workers future employment. He gave workers idled by the fire a $275 holiday bonus, extended their health benefits for 90 days plus met their payroll for over a month.

When Feuerstein rebuilt, he installed a high-efficiency natural gas turbine to provide low-cost electricity and steam to the new plant.

RISING GAS PRICES, PAGE 14

Question Corner



FATHER JOHN DIETZEN
CNS COLUMNIST

How is the Bible normative for Catholics?

Q. Your column some time ago said that the Bible, the Old and New Testaments, are "normative" for Christian belief. What does that mean?

Catholics, and I think other Christians also, accept certain truths or doctrines that are not found stated in the Bible, for example the assumption and the immaculate conception. If that is true, how can you say the Bible is the "norm" for our religion?

A. The Constitution on Divine Revelation, promulgated at Vatican Council II, affirmed that the church has always, and will always, regard the Scriptures, along with sacred tradition, as the supreme rule of faith.

"All the preaching of the church," it continues, "must be nourished and ruled by sacred Scripture." The Bible, in other words, is a controlling presence in our understanding and reception of God's revelation, what God wished to teach in these writings for our salvation ("Dei Verbum," 21).

This is what is meant by the Scriptures being normative for Christian belief. Putting it in a somewhat shorthand way, it means that no truly Christian teaching can contradict the Bible, which is not the same, however, as saying that every authentic Christian belief must be found in the Bible.

If the Scriptures are, as we believe them to be, the word of God transmitted to us in human language under the guidance of the Holy Spirit, then those Scriptures are without error. Properly interpreted then, there can be no contradiction between these Scriptures and any authoritative teaching of the church, which by definition we believe would be inspired by that same Spirit.

Since the holy Scriptures are written under the direction of the Holy Spirit, we believe that they must also be read and interpreted under the Spirit's guidance. Three criteria generally are indicated to guarantee that kind of interpretation.

First, the interpretation must reflect the unity and content of the whole of the Bible.

Second, it must be in accord, in harmony, with the living tradition of the whole church, as the Holy Spirit inspires and supports it down through the centuries.

And third, the interpretation must respect what is called the "analogy of faith," the coherence and harmony that must exist between the different teachings of the faith. Again, one Christian teaching cannot contradict another teaching, or one of them, at least, must be wrong.

Something the same can be said for other truths about which someone may object, "Where do you find that in the Bible?" If it does not contradict what is in the Bible, and if it generally fulfills those criteria for interpretation — In other words, if it is coherent with other teachings of faith, consistent with the living tradition of Christianity and does not conflict with the content and unity of the Bible — a particular teaching may be accepted without violating the normative function sacred Scripture holds in the Christian religion.

As you must be aware, this has happened frequently in the history of Christianity. The explanation of the place of Scripture in the church may be found a bit more fully in the Vatican II constitution mentioned above (especially Sections 12 and 21) and in the article on sacred Scripture in the Catechism of the Catholic Church.

Rising gas prices, from page 13

By using occupancy sensors and more efficient lighting in the warehouse, he reduced energy consumption for lighting by 96 percent. Malden Mills' $350,000 energy bill shrank to under $35,000. On balance, the company cut annual carbon dioxide emissions by 30,000 tons.

Catholic social teachings emphasize the rights and responsibilities of each person. Everyone has a right to a decent environment and a responsibility to protect it.

Aaron Feuerstein, a businessman, creatively saw his responsibility to his workers and the environment. Today people of faith, urged by market forces, can also hear their call to responsibility every time they fill up at the pump.

Glenmary Father John S. Rausch writes, teaches and organizes in Appalachia.

Faithful Servant, from page 4

He reminded them of their responsibility to continue to learn about such things as Catholic social teaching that offers guidelines for implementing the Gospel in everyday life. Kotlowski said that Christian leadership — such as they learned in Faithful Servant — coupled with Catholic social teaching equaled world transformation.

The world, he said, was filled with both scary events and wondrous opportunities. Christian leadership means "we are part of the solution. It is our calling."

Jeanie Campbell traveled five hours from her home parish at St. Barnabas in Arden. She said she discovered there was "more than one kind of leader; a leader needed to be well-rounded." Closer to home, Cory McManus of Immaculate Conception Church in Durham, said he had attended to meeting to "learn how to serve my community as a leader."

While learning to be an effective leader is vital, there is also the need for humility. That fact was emphasized in the motto of Bishop Joseph Gossman of Raleigh: "To serve not be served." ▼

Matt Doyle is assistant editor of NC Catholic, newspaper for the Diocese of Raleigh.

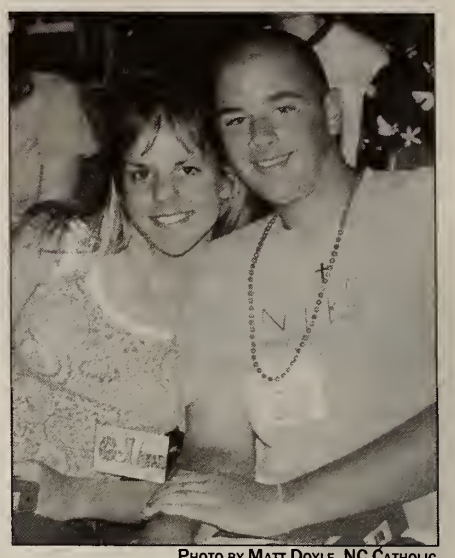


PHOTO BY MATT DOYLE, NC CATHOLIC

"I feel blessed to be with a group of Catholic youth," said Colleen Lindstrand, left, of St. James Church in Hamlet.

Classifieds

Classified ads bring results! Over 115,000 readers! Over 45,000 homes!
Rates: $.50/word per issue ($10 minimum per issue)
Deadline: 12 noon Wednesday, 9 days before publication date
How to order: Ads may be faxed to (704) 370-3382 or mailed to:
Cindi Feerick, The Catholic News & Herald, 1123 S. Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203.
Payment: Ads may be pre-paid or billed. For information, call (704) 370-3332.

EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES

Accounting Assistant, Part-time: Catholic High School seeks person with accounting experience who works well with others to work part-time in the Business Office. Responsibilities include processing tuition receivables and vendor payables. Provides assistance to Business Manager in reconciling and managing monthly accounts. Good organizational and analytical skills required. Mon-Fri, 8 am - 12 pm. Send letter of application and resume by 7/28 to: BMHS Employee Search, 1730 Link Road, Winston-Salem, NC 27103. EOE.

Accounting Clerk: Payroll/General Ledger. The Diocese of Charlotte is accepting applications for a full-time accounting clerk. Responsibilities primarily include processing and entering payroll and general ledger transactions for the Mecklenburg Area Catholic Schools system. Applicants must be proficient with Excel and have two years of relevant experience. EOE. Please forward resume and salary history by July 14, 2000 to: Controller, 1123 S. Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203-4003.

Administrative Assistant: Part-time. Approximately 12-20 hours per week. Non-smoker with good communications, phone, computer skills. Prefer financial background. Resume and references to Hook Financial Group, 4801 E. Independence Blvd., Box 601, Charlotte NC 28212.

Administrative Support Person: The Diocesan Office of Justice and Peace has an opening for a part-time administrative support person (4 hours, 3 days/week). Functions include: clerical, database management, excel spreadsheets, internet research and related skills, coordinating meeting arrangements, and bulk mailing. Must be proficient in Windows 98 and Office 97 and possess organizational and communications skills. Submit a one-page resume by July 26th to: Office of Justice and Peace, 1123 S. Church St., Charlotte NC 28203.

Assistant Secretary: Asheville Catholic School. Attendance/First Aid Office. M-F, full time. CPR and First Aid certification required. Call (828)252-7896 for information. EOE.

Cosmetologists/Barbers: Full-time and part-time. Charlotte area upscale salon seeking warm-hearted, skilled stylists and barbers. Convenient south Charlotte location. $12 per hour + tips. Please call (704) 341-4260.

Counselor: Part-time. St. Pius X Catholic School, Greensboro. Practicing Catholic with master's in counseling and guidance. NC certification required. Experience preferred. Benefits included. Send resume to: C. Usischon, 2200 N. Elm St., Greensboro, NC 27408 or Fax (336)273-0199.

Custodian, Full-time: Begin work immediatcly. Asheville Catholic School. Call Randy Penland, Maintenance Supervisor at (828)252-7896. EOE.

Director of Adult Catholic Enrichment/Order of Christian Initiation: Holy Family Catholic Church of Marietta seeks a full-time salaried Director for Adult Catholic Enrichment (ACE) and the Order of Christian Initiation (OCI) programs. Applicants should have leadership experience in ACE/OCI areas and/or have religious education degreed background suitable to develop high quality programs and volunteer assistance in the community. Must be practicing Catholic. If interested, please submit resume and cover letter to Theresa Johnson, Director of Religious Education at Holy Family Catholic Church, 3401 Lower Roswell Rd., Marietta, GA 30068. Fax (770) 578-0475. Inquire at (770) 973-7400, ext. 21 with questions.

Director of Religious Education: Holy Family Catholic Church in Marietta seeks a full-time salaried Director for its Religious Education programs. Practical leadership experience in the continuing development of a full range of primary, secondary, young adult and adult based Religious Education programs is essential. The ability to encourage a spirit of volunteerism to meet broad community needs is a must. Should be competent in managing all educational levels and administrative staff functions. Must have bachelors and/or advanced degree in education and/or religious training. Must be practicing Catholic. Holy Family's Religious Education programs serve a multi-cultural community. Fluency in Spanish or equivalent background experience would be a useful asset. If interested, please submit resume and cover letter to Theresa Johnson, Director of Religious Education, Holy Family Catholic Church, 3401 Lower Roswell Rd., Marietta, GA 30068. Fax (770) 578-0475. Inquire at (770)973-7400, ext. 21 with questions.

Director, Office of Justice and Peace, Catholic Social Services, Diocese of Charlotte: Director to supervise staff and administer program areas including: CCHD, CRS/ORB, Office of Economic Opportunity, social justice formation and education, and public policy activities. The director serves on the CSS management team while maintaining working relationships with other diocesan offices and with parishes. Knowledge of Catholic social teaching, as well as the ability to articulate and apply it, is essential. Experience at diocesan level as well as a graduate degree in related field preferred. Send resumes by July 26th to: Office of Justice and Peace, CSS, 1123 S. Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203.

Junior Accountant: The Diocese of Charlotte is accepting applications for a junior accountant. This position is primarily responsible for the monthly general journal entries, cash receipts, and month-end reporting for Catholic Social Services. Applicants must be proficient with Excel and have an associate's degree with a concentration in Accounting or 5 years of relevant experience. EOE. Please forward resume and salary history by July 14, 2000 to: Controller, 1123 S. Church St., Charlotte NC 28203-4003.

Music Ministry Director: Full-time position for a growing 1100-family parish near Charlotte. Responsible for 4 weekend liturgies plus holy days, weddings and funerals. Adult and children's choirs, cantors, instrumentalists, new contemporary choir, and handbell choir. Rogers electronic organ, Yamaha upright piano, two-octave set of Malmark handbells. Ideal candidate is practicing Catholic with music degree, experience, music performance skills (organ/piano/voice), choral and cantor skills, knowledge of Catholic liturgical music. Salary commensurate with experience. Full benefits. Send/fax resume to Music Search, Saint Therese Parish, 217 Brawley School Rd., Mooresville, NC 28117. Phone (704)664-3992; Fax: (704)660-6321.

Music Ministry Director: St. Bede Catholic Church in Williamsburg, VA seeks professional with bachelor's degree (or above) in music; in-depth knowledge of Roman Catholic liturgy; and vocal, piano, organ skills. Should be pastoral individual with appreciation of broad range of music styles. Full-time position with benefits; salary dependent upon experience. Complete job description posted at www.bedeva.org. Application deadline: July 15. Send resume, references, salary history to: Attn: DMM Search Committee, St. Bede Catholic Church, 10 Harrison Avenue, Williamsburg, VA 23185. stboffice@bedeva.org

Parish Secretary/Receptionist: St. John Neumann. 9am - 4:30pm, Monday through Friday. Secretarial skills and experience, computer-literate, personable. Salary negotiable. Benefits. Contact Fr. Thom Meehan, (704)536-6520 or send resume and references: St. John Neumann Church, 8451 Idlewild Road, Charlotte, NC 28277. Fax: (704)536-3147.

Regional Consultant: The Diocese Office of Faith Formation seeks an interim part-time Regional Consultant for the Smoky Mountain Vicariate for FY 2000-2001. We seek an individual with 3-5 years' experience of coordinating parish programs and great ability to work with people. The part-time salary for this person is $12,000-$14,000. Preference will be given to persons with some background in the field of Catechetics and Adult Faith Formation. Please send two letters of recommendation to: Dr. Cris Villapando, Office of Faith Formation, 1123 S. Church Street, Charlotte, NC 28203-4003. For more information call (704) 370-3246.

Teacher: Asheville Catholic School seeks dynamic pre-K teacher. Must hold or be eligible for NC license. Call (828) 252-7896. EOE.

Teachers, Library/Media Specialist: Charlotte Catholic High School has the following openings beginning August 2000: full-time teaching positions for Religion, Drama, English, Math, Spanish, and full-time Library/Media Specialist. Must have NC Certification. Also, part-time Guidance Secretary is needed. Call (704)543-1127 for application.

Teachers: Sacred Heart School (PreK-8) in Salisbury has the following teacher openings beginning in August: PE, Spanish, 5th Grade, and Middle School Language Arts. NC certification required. Call Kathleen Miller at (704)633-2841.

Teachers: St. Patrick's School in Charlotte is accepting applications for part-time Music teacher and part-time Spanish teacher. Please contact school principal, Mrs. Angela Montague, (704) 333-3174 for interview. NC certification required.

Teachers: Full-time. St. Pius X Catholic School, Greensboro, has openings for 2000-2001 school year: Spanish, Kindergarten, 1st grade, 2nd grade, Middle School Religion, Middle School Language Arts. Must be practicing Catholic with NC certification in field. Experience preferred. Benefits included. Send resume to C. Usischon, 2200 N. Elm St., Greensboro, NC 27408 or fax: (336)273-0199.

Teachers: St. Michael's School in Gastonia, NC is currently seeking dynamic teachers for the following positions: Full-time Middle School Language Arts/Social Studies; Full-time Kindergarten; and part-time Art teacher. NC Certification required. Please call Joseph Puceta at (704)865-4382 for more information.

Teachers: Math, P.E. for 2000-2001 at St. Leo School, 333 Springdale Ave., Winston-Salem, NC 27104. NC Certification required (or in process). Call 336-748-8252 for application and information. Submit resume to Georgette Schraeder, Principal.

Teachers and Guidance Counselor: Immaculate Heart of Mary School has openings for the following positions for the 2000-2001 school year: Part-time Guidance Counselor; Middle School Science Teacher; and Grade 5 Teacher. Interested certified teachers may contact Margene Wilkins, principal, at 605 Barbee Avenue, High Point, NC 27262; call 336-887-2613; or fax 336-884-1849.

Youth Coordinator: St. John Neumann Church seeks part-time Coordinator of Youth Programs to work with parent/youth teams to plan, implement, oversee youth programs, grades 9-12. Call (704)535-4197. Send resume to St. John Neumann Church, Connie Milligan, 8451 Idlewild Road, Charlotte, NC 28227 or fax(704)536-3147.

Youth Minister: Our Lady of Grace Church in Greensboro, NC is seeking a full-time Youth Minister to coordinate all youth activities and programs. Applicants should have a degree in Religious Education or related field and three years' experience in Youth Ministry. Salary commensurate with experience and education. Send resume to Tom Johnson, Our Lady of Grace Church, 2205 West Market St., Greensboro, NC 27403.

Youth Minister: 25 hours per week, salaried. Located 45 minutes north of Charlotte. Practicing Catholic, experienced with youth. Responsible for 9th-12th graders; coordinate social and service activities, and recruit and train other young adults to work with teens. Must be willing to accommodate flexible week including nights and weekends. Submit resume by July 31st: Martha Drennan, 217 Brawley School Rd., Mooresville NC 28117. Information: (704)664-7762.

FOR SALE

Personalized Candy Bars. For ALL Occasions. CHERUBS-N-CHOCOLATE. To request a catalog, please visit web site at www.Cherubs-N-ChocolatebyDeb.com or call (919)689-9925.

OLC youth head south for regional conference

By ALESHA M. PRICE
Staff Writer

CHARLOTTE — The Youth in Action group from Our Lady of Consolation Church in Charlotte traveled to Cajun Country to spice up their spiritual lives.

New Orleans, an area of the country with a large concentration of African-American Catholics, was this year's host site for Unity Explosion 2000 held from June 15-18, sponsored by the Office for Black Catholics and the Office of Religious Education of the Archdiocese of New Orleans.

"...It (the conference) has given me a different perspective and strengthened my beliefs as a black Catholic."
— Jermaine Dennis

Twenty young adults and nine chaperones joined approximately 1,200 youth and adults from Arkansas, Mississippi, Alabama, Florida, Texas and other states for a conference geared toward African-American Catholics.

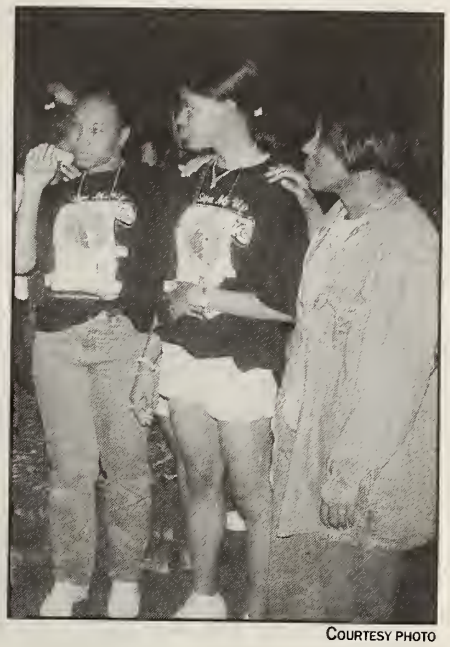
The conference was established in 1989 and was originally created by African-American Catholic lay people in Dallas, Texas, who wanted to have a conference in the Southern region that would be accessible and wholly enriching for their spiritual lives, said Richard Cheri, the New Orleans Unity Explosion chair and the associate director for parish youth catechesis in the archdiocese.

This year's theme reflected the jubilee spirit of the new millennium — "Sign Me Up for the Christian Jubilee" — a song popular among various African-American denominations.

"Our name has been put on the role, and we are preparing ourselves for when Jesus comes," said Nanette Lide, Youth in Action youth minister, reciting the song's words.

"Because there are so few black Catholics in this area, and the kids have so few opportunities to share their faith with other young black Catholics, this served as a way for them to rejoice in who they are and to take part in the workshops which were about leadership and pulled from our history," continued Lide. "The workshops were enlightening and informational, and we are planning our Youth Mass in September to be inclusive of the spirit we received at this retreat."

Adults, teens and children attended sessions designed with their age group in mind. The youth were able to take part in African and liturgical dance and drumming workshops, youth mass choir and other sessions such as "YM2K — Youth Ministry in the Year 2000" and "Get Some R & R: Relevance in Religion." The young men and women had their own separate breakout sessions and were exposed to gender-specific, spiritually based training and instruction.



COURTESY PHOTO

Leslie Johnson, youth minister, and Jalilah James lay hands on Cirsten Nimmons, center, during the Youth Plenary Session at the Unity Explosion 2000 Conference in New Orleans.

Cirsten Nimmons, 16, said she enjoyed the conference, which was a life-altering experience for her. "I learned the truth about being Catholic and what it really means to be a black Catholic. It changed my whole attitude and was a wake-up call for me; even though I am young, I am the future for the upcoming youth. I need to 'get ready and get right for God.'"

The conference was also inspiring for eighteen-year-old Jermaine Dennis who said he felt the spirit of Jesus all around him. "I feel as if a burden has been lifted off me and as if I can understand the point of the whole conference. It has given me a different perspective and strengthened my beliefs as a black Catholic. With the help of the Lord, I can overcome any obstacles and be stronger for him."

Several African-American Catholic speakers from New Orleans and around the country and local students served as facilitators and session leaders, including Dr. Diana L. Hayes, associate professor of theology at Georgetown University in Washington D.C. and the first African-American woman to receive an S.T.D. degree, doctor of sacred theology, and Benedictine Father Cyprian Davis, professor of church history at St. Meinrad School of Theology in Indiana and author of "The History of Black Catholics in the United States." ▼

Contact Staff Writer Alesha M. Price by calling (704) 370-3354 or e-mail amprice@charlottediocese.org.

Looking for the best CD rates?

Earn interest 1% higher than the national bank average with CDs from Salomon Smith Barney.*

Our CDs offer some of the highest rates available. In fact, a national survey of bank CD rates show our CDs average a whole percentage point higher. Plus, with a broad range of maturities, you can easily arrange for a steady stream of income to fit your needs.

- FDIC-insured up to $100,000 per depositor, per institution
- Issued by more than 240 banks nationwide
- A flexible investment vehicle to reach your fixed-income goals
- We provide a secondary market on all CDs we sell

Term	Annual Percentage Yield
1 year	6.9%
3 year	7.1%
5 year	7.2%

Call Michael Grieco, Financial Consultant
at (704) 571-3362 for more information.
6101 Carnegie Boulevard, 2nd Floor
Charlotte, NC 28209

SALOMON SMITH BARNEY
SEE HOW WE EARN IT.SM

A member of citigroup

*The annual percentage yields (APYs) are effective as of 0/00/00 and are subject to availability and changes. APY interest can not remain on deposit in the same CD. Interest will be paid semi-annually, monthly, or at maturity. FDIC insurance covers a maximum amount of $100,000 per deposit or per institution (principal and interest combined) in each insurable capacity. Minimum deposit $1,000. Although we are not required to do so, we endeavor to provide a secondary market so that CD holders can sell their CDs prior to maturity. The resale price in such a transaction may be less than the principal amount invested. National bank average determined by Bank Rate Monitor, a service mark of Bank Rate Monitor.

Salomon Smith Barney and "SEE HOW WE EARN IT." are service marks of Salomon Smith Barney Inc.
©2000 Salomon Smith Barney Inc. Member SIPC

VOCATIONS

Is God calling you?

Lawrence M. LoMonaco
will be ordained to the Holy Priesthood in the Diocese of Charlotte in 2002.

"We know that all things work for good for those who love God, who are called according to his purpose." (Romans 8:28) This has become my motto in pursuing my vocation. Raised Catholic in upstate New York, I graduated from college in industrial engineering and became an Air Force officer. There the seeds of my vocation were first planted when, purely "by chance," I spent a week on Guam with a priest who shared valuable insights with me.

After the service, the Holy Spirit led me to Charlotte's St. Vincent de Paul Church where I was guided along my vocational path. Although my calling remains a mystery to me, I realize I've been blessed with God's abundance along the way as answered prayers have overcome every obstacle. I know of no greater joy than serving God through my ministry to his people. I truly appreciate what it means to walk by faith because God knows the way, and the benefits of faithful service are out of this world.

... Are you answering His call?

For more information about serving God as a priest in the Diocese of Charlotte, please contact Father John Allen,
The Office of Vocations, The Roman Catholic Diocese of Charlotte,
1123 South Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203.
(704) 370-3353 • vocations@charlottediocese.org

Banquet teaches lessons about world hunger

By JOANITA M. NELLENBACH
Correspondent

BREVARD — The lucky few got a complete dinner, a few others ate less and most had nearly nothing. No, this wasn't the scene in some third-world country. This was a hunger banquet at Sacred Heart Church.

Tiffany Gallozzi, parish director of music and youth, came up with the idea after reading materials that accompanied the church's Operation Rice Bowl materials for Lent this year. She wanted to make a point: that most of the world's population subsists on starvation rations and that even in America, people go hungry every night.

Operation Rice Bowl is a Lenten sacrificial giving program sponsored by Catholic Relief Services, the overseas aid and development agency of U.S. Catholics.

Gallozzi had done some research and learned from UNICEF that one in four families in the United States skips meals because they can't afford food. She also learned that the five richest people in the world have assets totaling $1 trillion, the amount of assets of the five poorest countries in the world.

"I was originally going to do a refugee camp and the Community Life Committee agreed to help me," Gallozzi said, "but then they ... thought a hunger banquet would be better."

The committee cooked and served the food and cleaned up after the event, which was held in the church hall.

Some 35 youth-group members and their families participated. As they arrived at the church hall, each person drew a colored ticket from a bag. Gallozzi wanted to emphasize that food is not evenly allocated among the world's population.

Five people, symbolizing 10 percent of the world's population, drew white tickets, which represented the first world. Gallozzi welcomed each of these five warmly and escorted them to a table set with a tablecloth, china, glassware, silver and a candle. The first-world people were served first. They could have as much as they wanted of a dinner of meat loaf, green beans, steamed carrots, rice, rolls, juice and fresh fruit.

Another 13 people, 30 percent of the attendees, drew yellow tickets, representing the second world. No one escorted them to their tables. Gallozzi simply told them, "It's nice to see you. Sit over there." They had to go to the kitchen service window to get one small serving (no seconds) of meatloaf, rice, green beans and water. They ate from paper plates and used plastic utensils.

The other 17 attendees, the 60 percent who represented the third world, drew pink tickets. "I turned a cup over in a (Styrofoam) bowl, put a paper towel on top of that, and said, 'Here. Sit over there,'" Gallozzi said. "Over there" was the floor in a corner of the room. These people had to serve themselves from a pot; their fingers were their only utensils.

Gallozzi had done some research and learned from UNICEF that one in four families in the United States skips meals because they can't afford food. She also learned that the five richest people in the world have assets totaling $1 trillion, the amount of assets of the five poorest countries in the world.

Gallozzi had her hunger statistics distributed to each table, and the diners had to read them aloud during the meal. "I didn't want them to socialize," she said. "I wanted them to focus on what we were doing."

Another aspect was that six of the white and yellow tickets had chalice-and-host stickers on their backs. These tickets allowed the holders to give food to help those in need. Four of the pink tickets also had stickers; two of them could automatically get help, while the other two had to beg if they wanted more food than they had originally dished up from the pot.

Two of the third-world people who had received extra food did share what they had with their companions.

"The reason I used the Eucharist symbol was to connect to the fact that we are the Body of Christ and that that's what Eucharist is for, and that if we believe that's what it's for, we need to reach out," Gallozzi said.

Gallozzi said that while her youth-group members are involved as lectors, ushers and greeters, she wanted the hunger banquet to make a connection to the world community.

"I wanted them to learn, first, that no matter how bad off they think they are, they're not in a portion of the world that's scrapping for existence," she said.

The message did get across, to children and their parents. Mary Sweat and her three sons were at the banquet. Mary sat on the floor; her son Elliot was one of the fortunate five who sat at the first-world table.

"Being in a room where others had and you had none — it really makes you think," Mary said. "You don't think about it when you're at your own table."

Elliot gave his mother a strawberry, and she wanted to share it with those in her third-world group, but, she said, "I didn't know what to do with it. I didn't have anything to cut it up with." After the dinner, she gave it to one of the children in her group.

Gallozzi statistics had included information about the number of people fed at the soup kitchen in Brevard. Mary had known about the kitchen but said she hadn't realized that so many people in her own community were hungry.

"It made me more aware," Mary said of the banquet. "You see people on TV who are starving, but that's far away." ▼

Cardinal links deacon's service of charity, Word

MORAGA, Calif. (CNS) — The service of charity and ministry of the Word are intimately linked in "the unique and inestimably valuable ministry of the deacon in today's church," Cardinal Roger M. Mahony of Los Angeles told a record national gathering of 920 deacons and wives."It is in the service of the deacon that the whole church's service in charity is sacramentalized," said Cardinal Mahony, one of the keynoters at the June 21-25 Third Tri-Annual National Catholic Diaconate Conference in Moraga. Cardinal Mahony challenged deacons to serve the whole local church and not let their ministry be tied too much to one parish.

He also suggested that the ministry of married deacons may call for "greater attention to the ways in which the grace of the sacrament of marriage might affect and enrich our understanding of holy orders."

Since the diaconate was restored as a permanent, distinct ministry in the church in the late 1960s, U.S. dioceses have ordained some 13,000 deacons — about half the total worldwide. ▼

Grow in your faith.

Be affirmed in your present ministry.
Upgrade your certification as catechist and religion teacher.
Fulfill the pre-requisite for the Permanent Diaconate.

If you have these special desires, please join the 2000-2001 Lay Ministry Training Program, a two-year academic program designed to help you appreciate and understand more fully the call to ministry by virtue of your baptism.

LAY MINISTRY
TRAINING PROGRAM

Registration deadline is August 1, 2000
Year one will begin in Fall 2000 in Arden, Charlotte, and Greensboro

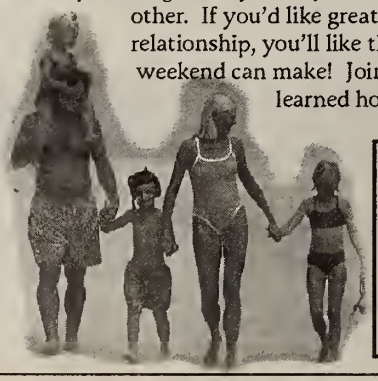
For more information, send name, address and phone number to:
Office of Lay Ministry
Diocese of Charlotte
1123 South Church Street
Charlotte, NC 28203
(704) 370-3213

Groce
FUNERAL HOME & CREMATION SERVICE
1401 Patton Ave. Asheville, NC (828) 252-3535
72 Long Shoals Road Arden, NC (828) 687-3530

Assuring Absolute Integrity
Asheville's Catholic Funeral Directors
Dale Groce • John Prock
Toll-free (888) 874-3535
Pre-arrangements and obituaries on-line at www.grocefuneralhome.com

Mothers in Love + Fathers in Love =
Families in Love

Your whole family deserves the love Mom and Dad discover on a Worldwide Marriage Encounter weekend! Marriage Encounter is 44 hours where married couples can get away from jobs, kids, chores and phones — and focus on each other. If you'd like greater depth, growth and enrichment in your relationship, you'll like the difference a Worldwide Marriage Encounter weekend can make! Join millions of couples worldwide who have learned how to keep their marriage vibrant and alive.



Next Marriage Encounter Weekend:
Sept. 8, 9, 10
Holiday Inn Airport, Charlotte
Call Tom & Emilie Sandin
(336) 274-4424
See Diocesan Planner for further info

PLEASE DO NOT REMOVE THIS BOOKPLATE
UNC
NC COLLECTION
WILSON LIBRARY CB 3930
CHAPEL HILL NC 27599-0001
42083
S873 P2
3-DIGIT 275

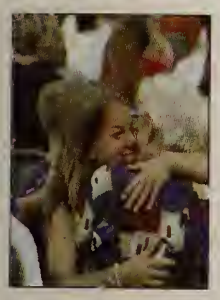
The Catholic
NEWS & HERALD
Serving Catholics in Western North Carolina in the Diocese of Charlotte

July 21, 2000
Volume 9 ▾ Number 41

Inside



Teens find joy in summer service
...Page 3

Prison ministry leads to six confirmations in Raleigh
...Page 7

Local News

Prayer experience centers the faithful
...Page 5

Mooresville parish center becomes reality
...Page 9

Background helps volunteer
...Page 16

Every Week

Entertainment
...Pages 10-11

Editorials & Columns
...Pages 12-13

Iron rusts from disuse, stagnant water loses its purity, and in cold weather becomes frozen; even so does inaction sap the vigors of the mind.
— Leonardo da Vinci

Mountain church celebrates 50 years

Photos by Jimmy Rostar

Above, Father C. Morris Boyd reads the text of a commemorative plaque honoring the 50th anniversary of Our Lady of the Mountains Church in Highlands July 16, as Bishop William G. Curlin prepares to bless it. Bishop Curlin also confirmed this year's confirmation class.

By Jimmy Rostar
Associate Editor

HIGHLANDS — During a gathering to celebrate a faith community's golden anniversary, the diocese's spiritual leader told the congregation that the true reason for celebration is the bringing of Christ's presence into the world.

Bishop William G. Curlin presided at a Mass honoring the 50th anniversary of Our Lady of the Mountains Church July 16. The congregation packed into the mountain church for the anniversary liturgy, during which five youth were confirmed and the spirit of Catholic life was pondered.

"What does it mean to be a Catholic?" Bishop Curlin posed to the congregation. "It means that Christ walks the earth in us. It is through our words, our deeds, our lifestyle that people begin to realize that God is alive in us." For 50 years, the Catholic community of Highlands has brought Christ to this corner of the world.

A half-century after the building of its church, the community of

See Highlands, page 4

"Encuentro 2000" celebrates diversity

By Agostino Bono

LOS ANGELES (CNS) — "Encuentro 2000" opened with Native American drums calling the participants from across the nation to gather in assembly.

At the end of its final liturgy, 5,000 worshippers tied ribbons to one another's wrists, a traditional Hmong sign of sending forth.

In between, the different languages and styles of dress, music, art and worship celebrated the many-textured, many-hued richness of Catholic life in the United States.

The Eucharist brings unity to that diversity, Cardinal Roger M. Mahony of Los Angeles said at the final Mass. "It is here that we take up the gift and task of being a people whose lives are committed to reconciliation, peace and unity," he said.

Five-thousand Catholics from 150 dioceses converged on the Los Angeles Convention Center July 6-9 for "Encuentro 2000: Many Faces in God's House," the only national event of the jubilee year sponsored by the U.S. bishops. More than 150 countries of origin were represented.

"The idea of Encuentro is after seeing all of the beauty, pageantry and traditions that make up the American Church, that the participants would take those ideas back to their individual dioceses and make that diocese a reflection of all cultures and traditions," said Rev. Mr. Curtiss Todd, vice chancellor and vicar for African American Affairs Ministry of the Diocese of Charlotte, in attendance at the conference. "The key was having many different cultures represented in order to enact active, open and willing acceptance of the presence of many traditions and contributions of various groups of people."

"'Encuentro 2000' marks the first national gathering to lift up the riches of the church's racial, ethnic and cultural diversity in the United States," Cardinal Mahony said. Encuentro is the Spanish word for encounter or meeting.

Auxiliary Bishop Gabino Zavala of Los Angeles, chairman of the Encuentro organizing committee, told reporters, "We will see that the music of the Latinos makes the Anglos' feet move, the incense of the Asians reminds Europeans of the transcendence of God and the drumbeat of the Native Americans pulsates in the hearts of all."

Sprinkled through the meeting were liturgical ceremonies indigenous to various groups of U.S. Catholics.

Among participants at the four-day meeting were 82 U.S. bishops and several from Latin America.

"It was truly a God-experience of being in the presence of the bishops and thousands of members of the church from different nations and races," said Mercy Sister Maureen Meehan, director of religious formation of schools in the Diocese of Charlotte. "We became unified and truly

See ENCUENTRO, page 4

African leaders urge churches to welcome HIV/AIDS patients

DURBAN, South Africa (CNS) — Church leaders in Kwazulu-Natal province urged churches to become a "welcoming home" for those infected with HIV/AIDS. The statement on the role churches should be playing in response to the pandemic was issued to coincide with the international AIDS conference in Durban July 9-14. Kwazulu-Natal province includes Durban and is the South African province with the highest rate of HIV/AIDS. Paddy Kearney, who heads the ecumenical organization Diakonia in Durban, said the statement was drawn up partly in response to the problem that many people infected with HIV/AIDS experience churches as hostile.

Chiapas bishop says trust must be rebuilt with government

MEXICO CITY (CNS) — Although Mexican President-elect Vicente Fox Quezada said during his campaign he would meet as soon as possible with leaders of a rebel group in Mexico's southern Chiapas state, a local bishop said more time is needed. Bishop Felipe Arizmendi Esquivel of San Cristobal de las Casas said trust must be rebuilt between the federal government and leaders of the mostly indigenous Zapatista National Liberation Army before they can meet. "We all understand that we are in a hurry to resolve this problem, but we cannot march against history. We have to go bit by bit and, above all, recovering trust that was lost, that was so fundamental," he said in an impromptu news conference after Mass July 9 in San Cristobal's Cathedral of Peace.

Berlin Archdiocese to investigate WWII slave labor

COLOGNE, Germany (CNS) — The Archdiocese of Berlin plans to set up a commission to investigate the extent to which the church employed slave labor under the Nazi regime. A spokesman for the archdiocese said the new commission would ask to see the papers discovered by the Protestant Church. Catholic documentation was probably not available because the archives were destroyed by bombing during World War II. The archdiocesan commission also will examine the files of the Nazi state security service, the SS, which criticized Catholic priests for standing up for slave laborers.

CNS PHOTO FROM REUTERS

Israelites Demonstrate in Tel Aviv Rally

Tens of thousands of Israelis take part in a demonstration against Prime Minister Ehud Barak's participation in the Camp David summit July 16. The rally in Tel Aviv was held under the slogan, "Uprooting settlements tears the people apart."

Debt relief funding vote in House called 'amazing victory'

WASHINGTON (CNS) — A House vote to more than triple the amount of debt relief for poor countries that had been recommended by its appropriations committee was "an amazing victory," said the head of the U.S. bishops' Department of Social Justice and World Peace. The official, John Carr, said the 216-211 vote July 13 to increase debt relief funding in the Foreign Operations bill for fiscal 2001 from $69 million to $225 million "surprised the House leadership" and others who considered efforts to boost the funding "a fool's errand."

Catholics in Laos struggle to keep faith alive, bishop says

MILWAUKEE (CNS) — Bishop Jean Khamse Vithavong of Vientiane, Laos, feels the grip of the communist regimes that have held his country since 1973. "We cannot run (Catholic) schools anymore. No social work, no hospitals, nothing," he said in an interview with the Catholic Herald, Milwaukee archdiocesan newspaper. "Just pastoral work with our people." Besides himself, there are only four other priests to minister to about 12,000 Catholics in Laos, many of them living in remote rural areas. Foreign missionaries are sometimes let into the country on tourist visas, but the bishop said they would be deported if their identities as priests were discovered by the government. During a July visit to Milwaukee, Bishop Vithavong was at St. Michael Parish to participate in a national gathering of four cultures — Laotian, Hmong, Lahu, and Khmu — hosted by the Archdiocese of Milwaukee.

New U.S. Book of the Gospels approved

WASHINGTON (CNS) — A new Book of the Gospels can be used liturgically in U.S. dioceses beginning Sept. 30, according to a decree by Bishop Joseph A. Fiorenza of Galveston-Houston, president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops. When the Book of the Gospels is used at Mass, it is carried in the opening procession and placed on the altar. In a decree dated June 29 and made public in July, Bishop Fiorenza said the new book can be used as of Sept. 30 and must replace any other version as of Dec. 3, the first Sunday of Advent. The bishops approved an original introduction to the Book of the Gospels at their meeting last November and sent it to the Holy See for confirmation, as is required for all liturgical texts. The Vatican confirmation was dated May 23.

Belfast bishop says Northern Ireland risks sliding into anarchy

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (CNS) — Northern Ireland is in danger of sliding into anarchy, a Belfast bishop warned as protests about the banned Protestant march in Drumcree continued. "What is happening across the whole of Northern Ireland is intolerable," said Bishop Patrick Walsh, whose Down and Connor Diocese includes Belfast. "We are in danger of sliding into anarchy. Entire communities are being harassed and intimidated, and many families are living in dread. Once more, dark clouds envelop our streets." In a comment directed at Portadown district Orangemen who called for loyalist protests against the banned march, Bishop Walsh said: "Those who are orchestrating violence and fomenting passions and hatred by bitter speeches bear an awesome responsibility. What they are doing cannot be justified. What they are doing is morally wrong."

The Catholic NEWS & HERALD

July 21, 2000
Volume 9 • Number 41
Publisher: Most Reverend William G. Curlin
Editor: Joann S. Keane
Associate Editor: Jimmy Rostar
Staff Writer: Alesha M. Price
Production Associate: Julie Radcliffe
Advertising Representative: Cindi Feerick
Secretary: Jane Glodowski
1123 South Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203
Mail: P.O. Box 37267, Charlotte, NC 28237
Phone: (704) 370-3333 FAX: (704) 370-3382
E-mail: catholicnews@charlottediocese.org

The Catholic News & Herald, USPC 007-393, is published by the Roman Catholic Diocese of Charlotte, 1123 South Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203, 44 times a year, weekly except for Christmas week and Easter week and every two weeks during June, July and August for $15 per year for enrollees in parishes of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Charlotte and $18 per year for all other subscribers. Second-class postage paid at Charlotte NC and other cities. POSTMASTER: Send address corrections to The Catholic News & Herald, P.O. Box 37267, Charlotte, NC 28237.

Episcopal calendar

Bishop William G. Curlin will take part in the following events:

July 23 — 11:30 a.m.
Mass and picnic
St. John, Waynesville
July 29 — 12:30 p.m.
Confirmation Mass
Cristo Rey, Yadkinville
July 30 — 11:30 a.m.
Mass / Installation of Father Anthony Marcaccio as pastor
St. Pius X, Greensboro
July 31- Aug. 3
National Knights of Columbus Convention
Boston
Aug. 5
Permanent diaconate ministry of acolyte installation
St. Joseph, Newton

Diocesan planner

July

23 HENDERSONVILLE — The St. Francis of the Hills Fraternity of the Secular Franciscan Order meets today from 4-7 p.m. in the Immaculata School Gym, 711 Buncombe St., with a covered dish dinner following the meeting. Next month's meeting on Aug. 27 will be held at Immaculate Conception Church, 208 7th Ave. West, in the office wing, at the regularly scheduled time from 3-5 p.m. Visitors and inquirers are welcome, so for more information, call Pat Cowan at (828) 884-4246.

26 CHARLOTTE — The 5th Annual St. Ignatius Day Welcome Mass for Gays and Lesbians is taking place tonight at 7 p.m. at St. Peter Church, 507 S. Tryon St., with Monsignor Richard Allen as homilist. For more information, call Jesuit Father Gene McCreesh at (704) 332-5342.

GREENSBORO — St. Paul the Apostle Church, 2715 Horse Pen Creek Rd., is hosting Michael O'Brien as he presents the "Sounds of Medjugorje," songs inspired by his pilgrimages to the city and his faith journey, tonight at 7:30 p.m. For more information, call Jean Berry at (336) 282-1853.

28 BELMONT — The Royal School of Church Music is presenting a concert at 7 p.m. at the Basilica at Belmont Abbey, 100 Belmont-Mt. Holly Rd. The concert is free and open to the public. For more information, call Beth Bargar at (704) 825-6890.

30 ROCK HILL, S.C. — Dominican Sister Mary Margaret Pazdan, professor of biblical studies at the Aquinas Institute of Theology in St. Louis, Mo., and Jesuit Father Antony Campbell from the Jesuit Theological College in Parkville, Australia, are the guest faculty for the 19th Summer Bible Institute at the Oratory begin-

Summer in the city

Teens find inner joy in spirit of service to those in need

By Joann S. Keane
Editor

CHARLOTTE — Picture this: A couple hundred teens working in soup kitchens, doing yardwork, sorting clothes at a shelter, and helping a group of nuns with a neighborhood summer camp.

Think about this: These teens are giving up part of their precious summer vacation to sleep on the floor of Holy Trinity Middle School. Rising at the crack of dawn, the teens work through the mid-afternoon, returning to the concrete-and-tile flooring of classrooms-turned-dorms.

The clincher: They aII paid to take part in this servitude for those in need. And, they're loving every minute of the seven-day experience.

The National Catholic HEART [Helping Everyone Attain Relief Today] Workcamp came to Charlotte July 9-15, bringing nearly 300 teens from across the country together for a week of community service under a sweltering Carolina sun.

Mark Disney's mother signed him up for the Catholic HEART experience. "I didn't really know what I was getting into," says Mark. The 15-year-old from St. Paul the Apostle parish in Greensboro spent his days trimming trees, mowing lawns, painting and assisting with various odd jobs to help elderly in need. "Our group worked pretty hard, and we got the job done." In return, Mark says it was good to know "we were giving back to the community and helping out."

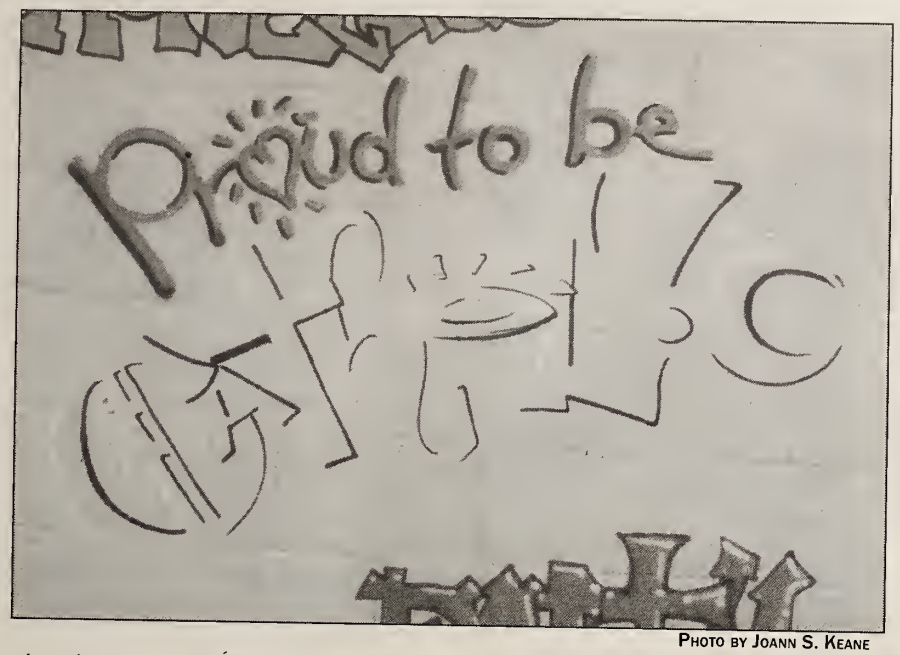


Photo by Joann S. Keane

Community service is nothing new to 16-year-old Marlies Kruetzberger. She's lent a helping hand to the mission trips to Jamaica and Kentucky her mother coordinates for St. Ann parish in Charlotte for a number of years. However, she found a new perspective as she spent her days working side by side with her peers. For a week, Marlies helped out at a local boys and girls club. She was probably less than half an hour away from the comforts of her own home, but a world away as she discovered community needs — not on impoverished Caribbean Islands, but right in her own backyard.

Emily Schaeffer came prepared to expend energy outside. "I brought all my tools," she says. Instead, Emily and her group were assigned to a food bank. Not exactly what the 15-year-old from St. Vincent de Paul parish in Charlotte had in mind, but she found it to be a rewarding experience. Perhaps most inspiring was her time with the other teens coming from the likes of Virginia, Maryland, Ohio, Michigan and Louisiana, and the evening festivities that permeate each and every participant.

Evenings are the heart of the workcamp. Following a day of community service, evenings bring up the volume before slowing to a prayerful mode that ends each day. "After serving people, then you serve yourself," says Emily.

As the sun goes down, multi-media interactive adolescent fun takes over, and seems to be right on target. "These are year 2000 kids," says Lisa Walker, co-founder of the Catholic HEART workcamp. They are used to an entertainment culture. Not that HEART sets out to appease the senses; it does set a tone conducive to reach this savvy generation.

Lisa and her husband Steve established the workcamp in 1993 with one underlying goal in mind: Never bore a kid. As an outreach to their then-parish youth ministry in Florida, the Walkers regularly took teens to summer workcamps. "Our parish is very social justice oriented, and we were challenged to serve the poor in everything we did," says Lisa. What the Walkers found was fulfilling yet frustrating. "We went to help others, but there was that element of not being able to receive Eucharist, to celebrate together, as Catholics, as the body of Christ." Quite simply, there were no Catholic camps.

What started with 100 teens in its first year has grown to 16 camps nationwide with close to 5,000 participants giving of themselves to help others.

"When we give teens something that is worth their while, it builds their self esteem and they literally see what it means to be Jesus to people, and their faith sticks," says Lisa. "They leave with an unbelievable feeling of God's love for them."

"We plant seeds and challenge them," says Lisa. "Then we hope and pray they go to the next level and learn about Catholic social teachings."

Contact Editor Joann Keane by calling (704) 370-3336 or e-mail jskeane@charlottediocese.org

JUBILEE 2000
CHRIST YESTERDAY TODAY FOREVER ™

DIOCESE OF CHARLOTTE
ITALY

Sept. 25-Oct. 3, 2000
with Rev. Mr. Curtiss Todd

For registration package, call Joann Keane, (704) 370-3336 or visit
www.charlottediocese.org/travel

ning tonight through Aug. 4. The summer course serves as a way for people to learn more about scripture study and enrichment, an introduction for newcomers to scripture and a spiritual renewal for all participants. For reservations and other information, call (803) 327-2097 or write The Oratory: Center for Spirituality, P.O. Box 11586, Rock Hill, S.C., 29731-1586.

August

2 CHARLOTTE — St. Gabriel Church, 3016 Providence Rd., is offering free classes for the public on various topics throughout the summer. Father Matthew Leonard, parochial vicar, is facilitating the following classes in Aug., all held from 7:30-8:45 p.m. in the parish ministry center: "The Spirit of Luke," being held tonight, "The Gifts of the Spirit" - Aug. 9 and "The Baptism of the Holy Spirit" - Aug. 23. For more information, call the church office at (704) 364-5431.

4 HOT SPRINGS — Mercy Sister Margaret Verstege, director of the Jesuit House of Prayer, and Jenni Violi, campus minister from the University of Ohio at Dayton, are leading an overnight retreat entitled "Jonah: An Unlikely Candidate for Reconciliation." Also, there is a six-day Ignatian-directed retreat scheduled from Aug. 6-12 with Jesuit Father George Hohman and Jesuit Father Joseph McGovern. For more information, call Sister Margaret at (828) 622-7366. The House of Prayer, 289 NW Hwy. 25/70, is open most of the year and offers private and Ignatian-directed retreats.

7 CONYERS, Ga. — A Cistercian (Trappist) vocation awareness retreat for prayerful single men of all ages takes place today through Aug. 11 at Holy Spirit Monastery. The retreat is free, but space is limited. For reservations and details, call Natalie Smith at (954) 752-1332, write to 6311 NW 47 Ct., Coral Springs, Fla., 33067 or e-mail deserttraveler@aol.com.

Upcoming

CROZET, Va. — A Cistercian (Trappist) vocation awareness retreat for prayerful single women of all ages is taking place Sept. 1-5 over Labor Day Weekend at Our Lady of the Angels Monastery. The retreat is free, but space is limited. For reservations and details, call Natalie Smith at (954) 752-1332, write to 6311 NW 47 Ct., Coral Springs, Fla., 33067 or e-mail deserttraveler@aol.com.

Ongoing

ASHEVILLE — The Basilica of St. Lawrence, 97 Haywood St., hosts daily adoration from 9 a.m.-6 p.m. For more information, call Jane Sorrells at (828) 298-0334.

BELMONT — Belmont Abbey, 100 Belmont-Mt. Holly Rd., hosts perpetual adoration in a chapel located on the grounds. For volunteer and other information, call Marie Siebers at (704) 827-6734.

CHARLOTTE — All are invited to St. Gabriel Church, 3016 Providence Rd., for perpetual adoration. For volunteer and other information, call Kathleen Potter at (704) 366-5127.

HIGH POINT — Maryfield Nursing Home, 1315 Greensboro Rd., hosts perpetual adoration in the chapel. For volunteer and other information, call Theresa Hansen at (336) 273-1507.

SYLVA — Eucharistic adoration takes place every first Saturday at St. Mary Church, 22 Bartlett St., following 9 a.m. Mass until 3 p.m. Upcoming dates are as follows: Aug. 5 and Sept. 2. For more information, call Annette Leporis at (828) 497-7464.

Please submit notices of events for the Diocesan Planner at least 10 days prior to publication date.

Encuentro, from page 1

walked the bridge to the new millennium through liturgy, prayer and song."

Numerous workshops and breakout sessions each day gave participants a chance to interact in smaller groups and focus on areas of special interest to them.

CNS PHOTO BY NEIL JACOBS

Young people of the Archdiocese of Los Angeles join the Los Campos de Nati Mariachi Band during the opening service of ``Encuentro 2000'' in Los Angeles June 6.

Father James Moroney, executive director of the U.S. bishops' Secretariat for the Liturgy, said there is a constant wrestling between unity and diversity as people seek to incorporate different cultural and ethnic traditions in the liturgy while respecting universal church norms.

At a reconciliation service ending the second day of the meeting, several representatives of minority groups spoke movingly of their faith despite their experiences of discrimination in the church.

Bishop Donald E. Pelotte of Gallup, N.M., the country's first Native American bishop, spoke of growing up in "dire poverty, dilapidated housing. ..."

"Many of our native people were baptized, but in the process vast numbers were robbed of their cultural identity," he said.

Oblate of Providence Sister Mary Paul Lee, granddaughter of a slave owned by Jesuits, told of having to leave her native Philadelphia to become a nun because at that time no women's order in the archdiocese would accept an African-American.

K. LaVerne Redden, an African-American and president of the National Council of Catholic Women, sobbed as she described the embarrassment of knowing she could not drink from the Communion cup in many parishes because if she did "nobody else would touch it."

Sister of St. Francis Linda Scheckelhoff, coordinator of Hispanic Ministry in the Boone Vicariate in the Diocese of Charlotte, attended the gathering along with several others involved with Hispanic Ministry from across the diocese. She cited the reconciliation service as being one of the most powerful for her.

"It made me aware of how I sometimes participate in injustices and how there is a need for reconciliation. We are not aware of how we sometimes take part in racism and sexism, and we need to ask forgiveness," said Sister Linda. "This makes me want to work further with Hispanics, Anglos and those of other races in the areas of common worship and learning to appreciate diversity."

Staff Writer Alesha M. Price contributed to this story.

Highlands, from page 1

Our Lady of the Mountains paused to think back and celebrate the present. "A 50th anniversary is a very special event in the life of a faith community," said Father C. Morris Boyd, pastor of St. Francis of Assisi Church. That parish, located in nearby Franklin, has had a fruitful relationship with the Highlands church for years.

"In this great year of Jubilee, it is a special (time) for us here in the mountains," said Father Boyd, who concelebrated the Mass with Father William Evans, sacramental minister at Our Lady of the Mountains.

In 1950, the few Catholics who formed the Our Lady of the Mountains community opened the doors to its new church for the first time, adding a new chapter in the life of that mission, established five years earlier. Over the decades, a slow but steady influx of new parishioners — especially those who settled in North Carolina's southwestern mountains during summers — boosted the congregation size into the hundreds during the hotter months of the year.

About 100 parishioners now make up the church community year-round. In summer, the number can quadruple.

George and Marie Schmitt came from Long Island, N.Y., to Highlands in 1965 to help start a family homebuilding company. They quickly found a parish home at Our Lady of the Mountains. George said to be a part of this vibrant faith family has been "quite an experience."

"When we came here in April of 1965, we doubled the parish," he recalled with a smile. "It's always been a wonderful thing here. It is a very, very beautiful family atmosphere, both with the church members and with the priests here."

Diane Small, pastoral associate for the past five years, agreed the church community is special. "The people are wonderful," she said after the Mass. "It's family, and through the years we've built more family."

Today, she said, Our Lady of the Mountains blossoms with both young families and those who have been here for several of the five decades the church has stood here. Nearby on the church grounds, families lined up under a massive tent for a reception organized by the church's St. Elizabeth's Guild. At the entrance of the church, a commemorative plaque just blessed by Bishop Curlin glistened in the summer sun.

And the community continued its celebration.

The church's presence has been appreciated in ecumenical circles as well, as testified to in statements from local faith communities read at the closing of the Mass.

"May God grant you his richest blessings as you face the wonderful future of another 50 years of spreading, in word and deed, the good news of God's redeeming love," went one statement, from the First Presbyterian Church in town. "We ... are blessed to be part of the fellowship of believers that truly exhibits a spirit of unity."

Contact Associate Editor Jimmy Rostar by calling (704) 370-3334 or E-mail jtrostar@charlottediocese.org

THE
Independent Advantage
SPELMAN & CO., INC.
A SunAmerica Company

351 N. Peacehaven Road, Winston-Salem, NC 27104

Local: (336) 768-4709
Fax: (336) 778-1444
Toll-free: (800) 859-7847

THOMAS M. PRYBYLO
Retirement Specialist
Member NASD, SIPC

Press: Extension 11 for free e-mail newsletter
Extension 12 for LongTerm Care brochure
Extention 13 for daily stock market update

WEB SITES:
For realtime quotes & financial calculators:
www.prybylofinancial.com

For LongTerm Care/Disability Insurance:
kestlerfinancial.com/agents/prybylo.htm

For Term/Family Life Insurance:
agentslink.com/tpryb/

The Diocese of Charlotte
CATHOLIC SOCIAL SERVICES
1123 South Church St.
Charlotte, NC 28203
www.cssnc.org

Executive Director:
Elizabeth Thurbee (704) 370-3228
Refugee Office:
Cira Ponce (704) 370-6930
Justice & Peace:
Joanne K. Frazer (704) 370-3225
Special Ministries:
Gerard A. Carter (704) 370-3250

Charlotte Area: 1123 South Church Street, Charlotte, NC 28203
Area Director: Geri King (704) 370-6155
Western Area: 50 Orange Street, Asheville, NC 28801
Area Director: Sister Marie Frechette (828) 255-0146
Piedmont-Triad Area: 621 W. Second Street, Winston-Salem, NC 27108
Area Director: David Harold (336) 727-0705
Greensboro Satellite Office: (336) 274-5577
High Point Hispanic Center: (336) 884-5858

For information on specific programs, please call your local office.

MEDJUGORJE COMES TO GREENSBORO

Michael O'Brien in

"Sounds of Medjugorje"

Wednesday, July 26th 7:30 p.m.

St. Paul the Apostle Church
2715 Horse Pen Creek Road, Greensboro

Call Jean Berry (336) 282-1853 or Gordon Forester (336) 668-4388 for tickets or reservations. Tickets: $5.00

Prayer experience centers the faithful, says visiting priest

By JIMMY ROSTAR
Associate Editor

MARS HILL — The path to God through prayer is an intimate and varied experience, a Trappist priest explained to an ecumenical group gathered at St. Andrew the Apostle Catholic Church July 14.

Father Thomas Keating, co-founder of the practice called centering prayer, told those gathered at the church that contemplating God's presence in their lives involves a deeply personal relationship with him.

"Prayer is not a 'single' thing," said Father Keating. "There are myriad expressions of prayer, and the essence of prayer is not the particular method that you use but the relationship with God that you express."

Centering prayer is a modern form of contemplative prayer, an ages-old tradition practiced across the world and by some of religious history's best-known visionaries.

Rather than a replacement for certain kinds of prayer, centering prayer is designed to add new perspective on how people pray. It involves a process toward divine union, say its practitioners — an internalizing of the mystery of God's presence.

Father Keating explained the practice of centering prayer to his audience, noting the importance of becoming aware of God in a way that defies explanation and consciousness.

The steps involved, he explained, are:

— Choose a "sacred word" — for example, God, Jesus, Mary, mercy, faith or trust — as the symbol of intention to accept God's internal presence and action.

— In silence and sitting comfortably with eyes shut, introduce the sacred word internally as a symbol of consent to God's presence.

— Once aware of thoughts or sensory perceptions, gently go back to the sacred word.

— At the end of the prayer period, which should last at least 20 minutes, remain in silence with eyes closed for several more minutes.

Father Keating suggests trying centering prayer twice a day — once in the morning after waking up, and again later in the day or evening.

"It appeals to what is common and perhaps most profound in everybody's tradition, which is the experience of God — not just the concept of God," Father Keating said in an interview. "It expresses the values of the Christian contemplative heritage, which is common to all of the traditions. It belongs to everybody."

Father Keating said that periods of contemplative prayer focus on the move from conversation with God to communion with him.

Photo by Jimmy Rostar

Father Thomas Keating, seen here chatting with an audience member July 14, was in Mars Hill and Asheville for two speaking engagments.

A Trappist monk who entered monastic life more than a half-century ago, Father Keating developed an interest in approaching contemplative prayer from a simple, Christian perspective.

With two brother priests, Father Keating thus co-developed a way to present the teaching of an earlier form and apply to it a certain order and regularity.

"Contemplative prayer is not new, in monasteries especially," said a smiling Father Keating, who served as abbot at St. Joseph Abbey in Spencer, Mass., and now resides at St. Benedict Monastery in Snowmass, Colo. "I was brought up on it. We just put it into a form to make it accessible to lay people.

"We saw how the Eastern religions were successful in making their wisdom available, and we saw people going to the East in great numbers. Many didn't know that the contemplative vision was right at home."

The ecumenical gathering at St. Andrew the Apostle was one of two speaking engagements by Father Keating in the North Carolina mountains July 14-15. His visit was sponsored by St. Eugene Catholic Church and First Baptist Church in Asheville, Grace Episcopal Church in Mars Hill and the Advent Center for Spirituality at Mars Hill College.

Popular in ecumenical circles across the nation, Father Keating has spoken to diverse audiences about centering prayer in locales ranging from parishes to prisons.

"Contemplative prayer happens to be the most fundamental and most accessible (form) to everyone," he said. "Different forms of method may have a certain appeal to one temperament more than another, or because of inculturation.

"But what is common to everybody is the place of silence, which is totally receptive to the divine presence. We become capable of extraordinary development and growth."

Contact Associate Editor Jimmy Rostar by calling (704) 370-3334 or E-mail jtrostar@charlottediocese.org

Parents... why order school uniforms out of state?
A+™ school approved uniforms are as close as a drive to the lake!
Uniforms DIRECT 2U
Owner Ann Hoffman, Member of St. Therese
704-895-7474 www.uniformsdirect2u.com
Uniforms Direct 2U, 18505 Statesville Road, Suite 5-A, Cornelius, NC 28031

Grow in your faith.
Be affirmed in your present ministry.
Upgrade your certification as catechist and religion teacher.
Fulfill the pre-requisite for the Permanent Diaconate.
If you have these special desires, please join the 2000-2001 Lay Ministry Training Program, a two-year academic program designed to help you appreciate and understand more fully the call to ministry by virtue of your baptism.
LAY MINISTRY
TRAINING PROGRAM
Registration deadline is August 1, 2000
Year one will begin in Fall 2000 in Arden, Charlotte, and Greensboro
For more information, send name, address and phone number to:
Office of Lay Ministry
Diocese of Charlotte
1123 South Church Street
Charlotte, NC 28203
(704) 370-3213

Caring for Charlotte Area Catholic Families in Their Hour of Need Since 1926
McEWEN FUNERAL SERVICE, INC.
Charlotte 704-334-6421
Pineville 704-544-1412
Mint Hill 704-545-4864
Derita 704-596-3291

CLOSED MONDAYS THRU LABOR DAY
Tues-Fri 9:30am-5:30pm
Sat. 9:30am-3:00pm
Carolina Catholic Bookshoppe
† Special Cards
† Religious Articles
† Unique Gift Ideas
704-342-2878
Fax (704) 334-3313
4410-F Monroe Road, Charlotte, NC
We welcome mail orders and special orders!

Steve Hughes
House Painting & Pressure Washing
Interior/Exterior
Also specializing in interior painting, wall murals and children's rooms!
(704) 225-8188
References Provided
St. Gabriel Parishioner

Man who attacked Buffalo, N.Y., priest sentenced to 42 months

BUFFALO, N.Y. (CNS) — A man who severely beat and stabbed a Buffalo priest last February pleaded guilty to third-degree assault and was given a 42-month sentence. By entering the plea, Frank Ciamarra, 27, avoided prosecution on a charge of attempted murder in the second degree and on other assault and weapons charges for attacking Father Arthur J. Mattulke, 30, of St. Margaret's Church. Msgr. David Lee, director of communications for the Buffalo Diocese, said that since the Feb. 14 attack, church officials have been concerned about justice and mercy. "The diocese feels the plea bargain meets all of those concerns," he said.

Pro-life spokeswoman resigning, heads to CUA

WASHINGTON (CNS) — If the fight against abortion were seen as a war, many would consider Helen Alvare a war hero. But her own admiration goes to the foot soldiers in the pro-life movement. Alvare, director of planning and information for the U.S. bishops' Secretariat for Pro-Life Activities since 1990, is preparing to hand over the role of chief Catholic pro-life spokeswoman to someone else. The Philadelphia-born attorney recently announced that she will become a law professor at The Catholic University of America in the fall.

Vatican confirms pope intervened for Agca's release

LES COMBES, Italy (CNS) — One month after the extradition to Turkey of Pope John Paul II's would-be assassin, the Vatican confirmed that the pope personally intervened in the gunman's release from Italian prison. Speaking to reporters July 16 at the pope's vacation spot in the Italian Alps, Vatican spokesman Joaquin Navarro-Valls said the pontiff had written a letter in May to Italian President Carlo Azeglio Ciampi. Ciampi signed a clemency order for Mehmet Ali Agca June 13, immediately after which Italian justice ministry officials issued the extradition decree. Agca flew to Turkey that evening and entered a prison there in the early hours of June 14.

CNS PHOTO FROM REUTERS

Bolivia Procession

Women carry statues of the Virgin of Carmen following Mass at the San Francisco Cathedral in La Paz, Bolivia, July 16. The Mass was marked by a special observance of the 193rd anniversary of the country's first bid for freedom from Spanish colonizers.

Father Hesburgh awarded Congressional Gold Medal

WASHINGTON (CNS) — Honored for 35 years as president of the University of Notre Dame and a career of public service, Holy Cross Father Theodore Hesburgh accepted the Congressional Gold Medal July 13 with the comment, "I have much to be humble about." In a ceremony in the rotunda of the U.S. Capitol, Father Hesburgh, 83, was showered with praise for public service that has included serving as a charter member of the U.S. Civil Rights Commission, involvement in the Middle East peace process and participating in a United Nations fact-finding mission on refugees in Kosovo.

San Diego nun to direct Catholic evangelization council

SAN DIEGO (CNS) — San Diego bids goodbye to Sister Priscilla Lemire at the end of July as she ends 23 years of service to the diocese. Sister Lemire, a Religious of Jesus and Mary, is relocating to Washington to be executive director of the National Council for Catholic Evangelization. While she is excited by her new post, Sister Lemire said it will be difficult to leave behind the diocese as well as friends and acquaintances. During her time in the diocese, she spent 16 years as a parish director of catechetical ministry. She was a pioneer in the Rite of Christian Initiation of Adults program in the diocese, working with it for 22 years. She also worked at the pastoral center as director for evangelization.

End Cuba embargo, Cardinal Law says

WASHINGTON (CNS) — The U.S. embargo against Cuba should be ended now, said Cardinal Bernard F. Law of Boston, chairman of the U.S. bishops' International Policy Committee. In a statement released July 13 he called the 40-year-old economic embargo "outmoded and unjustified" and said it has "long exhausted the moral legitimacy it may once have had." "At present, the only significant beneficiaries of this embargo are the leaders of the Cuban government for whom it provides an endlessly invoked excuse for the devastating failure of its economic system," he said. He added that the embargo "harms mostly the poorest."

Armed checkpoints, desperate people fill border pastor's days

WASHINGTON (CNS) — Like missionaries in war-torn parts of the world, Father Robert Carney's day-to-day life includes celebrating Mass, stopping at checkpoints staffed by armed men, hearing parishioners' confessions, and trying to help needy people on the run. But Father Carney faces those circumstances in Douglas, Ariz., not in some far-off mission territory. With his parishioners at St. Luke's Catholic Church feeling like their town on the Mexican border is "under occupation," Father Carney joined a delegation to Washington in late June, seeking changes in federal immigration and economic policies that have effectively squeezed three states' worth of illegal border crossing into their area.

Senate committee approves gold medal for pope

WASHINGTON (CNS) — The Senate Banking Committee on July 13 approved a bill to award the Congressional Gold Medal to Pope John Paul II. The bill, which has 66 cosponsors, now goes to the full Senate. As of July 14, a parallel bill had not been introduced in the House. The Senate legislation cites the pope for "having transcended the bounds of religion, race and political thought" as a champion, "uniter" and defender in the world's struggle for peace and basic human rights.

Schools
Institutions
Daycares
Churches
Sales Offices
Recreational Facilities
Banks
Medical Facilities

Offering turn-key and professional solutions with Custom Modular Buildings to meet your growing and changing needs!

MODULARCORP

1803 East Wendover Ave., Suite E
Greensboro, NC 27405
(336) 275-8274 (336) 275-8649 fax
E-mail: modular@greensboro.com

Daniel Murray, President — St. Pius X Parishioner

Member of: MODULAR BUILDING INSTITUTE

Visit our Web site! www.modularcorp.com

STOCKS, BONDS, MUTUAL FUNDS
FIXED & VARIABLE ANNUITIES
LIFE, DI & LTC INSURANCE

FINANCIAL PLANNING
RETIREMENT PLANNING
ESTATE PLANNING

ROLLOVERS & TRANSFERS
IRA'S & 401(K)'S
TAX PLANNING

RYAN ◆ HESS ◆ MORAIS
FINANCIAL ADVISORS, INC.

JOHN F. RYAN, JR., CFA — PARISHIONER, ST. VINCENT DEPAUL
CHRISTOPHER HESS, CFP — MEMBER, ST. JOHN'S EPISCOPAL
A. EDWARD MORAIS — PARISHIONER, ST. MATTHEW

SUITE 209 ◆ 7401 CARMEL EXECUTIVE PARK ◆ CHARLOTTE, NC 28226
PHONE 704-544-9009 FAX 704-543-4771

Registered Representatives offering securities through FFP Securities, Inc. - Member NASD/SIPC
Registered Investment Advisors offering services through FFP Advisory Services, Inc.

COACHXCEL

A Personal Coach Is to Your Mind and Spirit What A Personal Trainer Is to Your Body.

- Achieve more success and significance both personally and professionally
- Earn more money while growing personally
- Attain better overall health with less stress
- Possess higher self confidence and reach your goals

For a complimentary consultation call
John Connors, LPC @ 704-597-4184
Licensed Professional Counselor

Prison ministry leads to six confirmations by Raleigh bishop

By Matt Doyle
NC Catholic

RALEIGH — North Carolina's death row was the scene of a joyful celebration this summer.

Raleigh Bishop F. Joseph Gossman confirmed six death-row inmates in late June in a celebration that has reached beyond the walls of Raleigh's Central Prison.

Franciscan Father Dan Kenna said celebrating the sacrament "affirmed (the inmates) as human beings."

Father Kenna, along with Fathers James Nero and Mark Reamer, all friars at St. Francis of Assisi Church in Raleigh, visit the prisoners once a week for Mass and catechesis.

Some of the 228 men on North Carolina's death row have established a faith community that Father Kenna said includes the friars.

The friars say that sense of community is important, because the men have little or no contact with the outside world, except for the priests. Nevertheless, the men have established an identity as church.

"What we share with them is an opportunity to reflect on our faith together," Father Reamer told the NC Catholic, newspaper of the Raleigh Diocese. He compared their existence to a monastic setting, where the men, their own choosing, have unlimited time for prayer, reflection and introspection.

That often results in a profound understanding of Scripture, according to the priests. From that context, six of the inmates sought confirmation in the Catholic Church. After eight months of catechesis, Bishop Gossman came to celebrate that sacrament with them.

One inmate, Lyle May, became unofficial spokesman for the group. He thanked the bishop "for reaching out to us with open arms, so that we too may have open arms and open hearts to fully receive the Holy Spirit."

After his visit to death row, Bishop Gossman embraced a recent call by retired South African Anglican Archbishop Desmond Tutu for the United States to reject capital punishment, as his country has.

May went on to tell the bishop, "it is not common for us to (have) fellowship with men of your stature, though we understand that God knows our needs."

The six candidates for confirmation — May, Terry Bell, Angel Guiverra, Henry Lee Hunt, Eric Murillo and Elias Syriani — were presented by Franciscan Sister Claudia Bronsing, Bell's sponsor and a parish pastoral administrator, and Jeff Meyer, another death-row inmate, who served as sponsor for the other five. death row, he said.

"Their life story is important and cannot be banished into anonymity," said Father Kenna.

Father Reamer said the confirmation liturgy was uplifting, with the men practicing their songs for several weeks.

"It was a source of hope and faith for me," he said. "Music really does lift the heart."

The men also thanked Bishop Gossman for his strong stand against the death penalty, in public statements, pastoral letters and requests for clemency for death-row inmates.

"We are so very grateful for your opposition to capital punishment," May told the bishop. "It means a lot to all of the death-row inmates to know that the Catholic Church and your diocese turn away from and denounce such killing."

After his visit to death row, Bishop Gossman embraced a recent call by retired South African Anglican Archbishop Desmond Tutu for the United States to reject capital punishment, as his country has.

Bishop Gossman said he agreed with Archbishop Tutu that a country that has stood firmly for human rights around the world should abandon the death penalty.

Father Reamer said he finds it discouraging that Catholics differ little from the general public in their majority support for capital punishment. That means they have not been greatly influenced by the church's social teaching, he said.

But for now, church leaders continue to seek a change on the death penalty and the inmates at the confirmation service sang words of optimism: "The Lord has promised good to me, his word my hope secures."

Bishops thank Clinton for execution delay

WASHINGTON (CNS) — The U.S. bishops thanked President Clinton for postponing the first scheduled federal execution in 37 years and encouraged him to "take the next step" by commuting the sentence to life imprisonment.

Clinton on July 7 agreed to postpone the Aug. 5 execution of Juan Raul Garza pending a Justice Department update of clemency guidelines in the federal sentencing system.

"We hope that this action will lead to a further reconsideration of the use of the death penalty in our modern society," read a letter to Clinton from Bishop Joseph A. Fiorenza of Galveston-Houston, president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops.

"In our view, the next appropriate action would be to impose a moratorium on the use of the death penalty at the federal level," he continued.

The last execution by the federal government was in 1963. Garza is one of 21 prisoners who have been sentenced to death under federal statutes since the Supreme Court ruled in the late 1970s that some death penalty statutes could be constitutional.

"We want Mr. Garza to have an opportunity to submit a request for clemency," White House spokesman Jake Siewert told reporters. "We want to make sure that there are firm guidelines in place."

Clinton has long supported the death penalty, although he said at a recent press conference that he is concerned about the "disturbing racial composition of those who've been convicted ... and the fact that almost all of the convictions are coming out of just a handful of states."

The letter encouraged the president to impose a moratorium on federal executions "not only because it will spare the lives of the condemned, but because of what it will symbolize to everyone in our nation and beyond — that all human life is of inestimable value."

The Brazilians are coming...
566-1009

The LaPointe Dealerships
We'll beat any advertised price... Let us prove it!
Serving Charlotte with integrity for over 39 years!
MITSUBISHI MOTORS
6951 E. Independence Blvd.
531-3131
HONDA
7001 E. Independence Blvd.
535-4444
Frank LaPointe, President, Member of St. Gabriel Church

Groce
FUNERAL HOME & CREMATION SERVICE
1401 Patton Ave. Asheville, NC (828) 252-3535
72 Long Shoals Road Arden, NC (828) 687-3530
Assuring Absolute Integrity
Asheville's Catholic Funeral Directors
Dale Groce • John Prock
Toll-free (888) 874-3535
Pre-arrangements and obituaries on-line at www.grocefuneralhome.com

30 YEARS EXPERIENCE
PYANO MAN
HENRY C. ROZELL III
2nd Generation • Piano Tuner/Technician
Piano Tuning, Repairs, Refinishing
Pianos Bought and Sold
FREE ESTIMATES
704-321-5843

Come find out about...
Natural Family Planning
Catholic Social Services
Introductory Classes: 2nd Tuesday of every month
Next class: Aug. 8th
Upcoming classes: Sept. 12 & Oct. 10
Fee: $10
Call to pre-register
Classes held at 7pm at the Charlotte Diocese Pastoral Center
1123 South Church Street
(4 blocks from Ericsson "Panther" Stadium)
For information, other class locations and methods, please call (704) 370-3230.

At age 100, priest has witnessed dramatic changes

By CATHOLIC NEWS SERVICE

LINCOLN, Neb. (CNS) — In his 65 years as a priest of the Lincoln Diocese, Msgr. Denis Barry has witnessed some dramatic changes in the church and in society.

He is the first priest in the diocese's 113-year history to reach his 100th birthday, which he celebrated July 12 at Lincoln's Madonna Rehabilitation Hospital, where he lives.

The event was marked with a Mass celebrated by Lincoln Bishop Fabian W. Bruskewitz.

Family and friends gathered later for cake and ice cream and to hear the memories of a priest who has known all eight bishops of the diocese.

Msgr. Barry grew up in Agnew, one of six children. From an early age, young Denis had firsthand experience with hard work.

He inherited the job of running the family farm when he was only 13, five years after his father died.

In those years, he points out, "everything was done by horses or by hand."

When he was 18, he was eligible for the draft for World War I. "I was called to the local draft board four days after the armistice was signed," he told the Southern Nebraska Register, Lincoln's diocesan newspaper.

With the war over and the United States withdrawing its troops, he was not called up for service.

After he finished school, he was undecided about what to do with his life. He credits his mother's influence for him eventually recognizing his calling to the priesthood.

"My mother was always encouraging me to consider the vocation to the priesthood," Msgr. Barry said. "She prayed for me a lot."

CNS PHOTO FROM SOUTHERN NEBRASKA REGISTER

Msgr. Denis Barry of the Diocese of Lincoln, Neb., catches up on some letter-writing in this photo from 1996. The priest was the first in the diocese's history to celebrate his centennial year, turning 100 on July 12.

He studied for the priesthood at Kenrick Seminary near St. Louis and was ordained for the Diocese of Lincoln in 1935.

In 58 years of active ministry, Msgr. Barry has served the people of southern Nebraska in a variety of ways, including as a pastor and head of a deanery.

But there were a "couple of times I almost didn't make it," he said, referring to a fall from a 12-foot-high ladder and to his bout with abdominal cancer.

He has met every one of Lincoln's eight bishops, beginning with Bishop Thomas Bonacum, who headed the diocese from 1887-1911.

"Bishop Bonacum came to Agnew for the sacrament of confirmation in 1910, and he came to our house for dinner," Msgr. Barry said. "It was something to have the bishop come to our house."

Msgr. Barry met Bishops J. Henry Tihen and Charles O'Reilly during parish activities and Bishop Francis Beckman while he was studying for the priesthood.

He would later work closely with Bishops Louis Kucera, James Casey and Glennon Flavin during his years as a parish priest.

Bishop Bruskewitz, the current head of the diocese, was installed in Lincoln in March 1992.

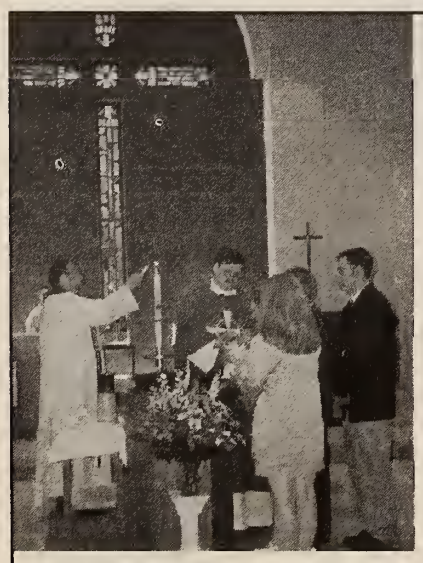
Msgr. Barry said perhaps the two biggest changes in his lifetime in the church and in the world was the Second Vatican Council and the automobile.

"Vatican II was a milestone in the church — for priests and the laity," Msgr. Barry said. "Many of the laws, which governed different practices, were modified and the laity assumed a larger role in the participation of the church."

The automobile, because of the mobility it provided, Msgr. Barry said, might have had the greatest impact on society in the 20th century.

"When I was taking care of our farm I walked behind a single row plow and a single row cultivator," Msgr. Barry said. "We never traveled far from home.

His home town of Agnew had only 60 residents, "but it had a general store, two grain elevators, a blacksmith shop and a doctor," he recalled.



For more information, please write:
Fr. Ed McDevitt, C.O. or Fr. Joe Pearce, C.O.
The Oratory
P.O. Box 11586
Rock Hill, SC 29731-1586

Join us in serving God as priest or brother.

Our Oratorian Congregation was founded in Rome by St. Philip Neri in 1575. Known as "The Apostle of Joy," St. Phillip lived this virtue and brought people of all ages and backgrounds to the Church.

As a group of priests and lay men, we live a community life without vows and serve the people of God in various ministries:

- Parishes
- Retreat Work
- Nursing
- Campus Ministry
- Youth Summer Camp
- Hospital Chaplaincy

Like our ministries, our members are unique and come from across the United States and from Brazil.

JOHANNUS CHURCH ORGANS
America's best value in sound & price.
SYNTHIA MUSIC SYSTEMS
Catholic Hymns at the push of a button.
SOUND SYSTEMS
Totally wireless systems and hearing impaired devices.
CHURCH PIANOS
Quality pianos for affordable prices.
ELECTRONIC ORGAN SERVICE ON ALL MAKES

Music & Electronics, Inc.
Corner of Oak & Broad Streets, Mooresville, NC
(704) 663-7007 — (800) 331-0768

We reach OVER 115,000 business people and families. ... Do YOU?
Advertise in The Catholic News & Herald.
Call Cindi Feerick (704) 370-3332

You know how to put money into your IRA.
What's the best way to take it out?
Find out how to minimize taxes and penalties in our exclusive IRA Distribution Manual.
Call Jeanne O. McCulloch, Financial Consultant, (336) 721-9221 or (800) 334-4401 for your free copy of The Salomon Smith Barney IRA Distribution Manual.
SALOMON SMITH BARNEY
A member of citigroup
© 1999 Salomon Smith Barney Inc. Member SIPC. Salomon Smith Barney is a service mark of Salomon Smith Barney Inc.

Mooresville parish center becomes a reality

By ALESHA M. PRICE
Staff Writer

MOORESVILLE — The afternoon sun greeted St. Therese Church parishioners as they gathered to recognize their growth as a parish. Members filled their church to capacit,y while the overflow sat in the narthex for their parish life center groundbreaking Mass, ceremony and picnic on June 8.

Lewis Mack, a founding member of the church, has grown along with his church and remembered the parish in its various stages. From its beginnings in a parishioner's home to the cement stone building dedicated in 1950 on the main thoroughfare in the expanding town of Mooresville to the present day structure dedicated in 1988, St. Therese has gone through many changes. The parish's newest endeavor is the life center, expected to be completed next summer.

Bishop Curlin and others were on hand to cast the symbolic gold and silver shovels into the ground to start the construction process on its way. "We are not simply blessing a building," said the bishop. "We are here to continue to build our relationships with Jesus. ... Remember that you are gathered here to build a place where you can be strengthened in the presence of Christ."

Bishop William G. Curlin served as celebrant with Jesuit Father James McAndrews, pastor, concelebrating, and Rev. Mr. John Sims serving at the Mass.

Photo by Alesha M. Price

Bishop William G. Curlin, center, Jesuit Father James McAndrews, right center, church members and others cast shovels at the St. Therese Church family life center groundbreaking on July 8 in Mooresville.

"The parish is very vibrant, and I am especially gratified that we have so many young people interacting with the older members, which gives a sense of continuity to the ideas about how we should build into the future," said Father McAndrews.

The two-story, 25,000 square feet life center will consist of 14 faith formation classrooms; offices for the faith formation director, youth minister and secretary; a library; break room; choir room and kitchen. The large gathering area is designed for multi-purpose functions such as liturgies, dances, meals and meetings, described Greg Pollak, current chair of the parish building committee and church member since 1988.

Marlene Stowe, chair of the capital campaign committee, Father McAndrews, members of the capital campaign committee and 180 volunteers joined for a group effort in raising thus far two-thirds of the $3.2 million needed for completion of the building through personal visits with the parishioners.

"As a parish, we like to gather and have community functions," said Stowe. "I am enthused and excited about the upcoming center. Many of our activities have been hampered because of a lack of space. We have planning this for many years, and it has been a long time coming."

Contact Staff Writer Alesha M. Price by calling (704) 370-3354 or e-mail amprice@charlottedioces.org.

Archbishop Flores' secretary called 'hero for all of us'

By MAURA CIARROCCHI
Catholic News Service

SAN ANTONIO (CNS) — Myrtle Sanchez, secretary to San Antonio Archbishop Patrick F. Flores, is "a hero for all of us," says Msgr. Lawrence Stuebben, vicar general and moderator of the curia for the San Antonio Archdiocese.

Usually, words like "quiet," "loyal," "unassuming," and "cheerful" would be used to describe Sanchez, but her composure during a hostage situation involving her and her boss has earned her the title "angel."

Sanchez was held hostage for about two hours of a nine-hour hostage ordeal involving Archbishop Flores June 28 at the archdiocesan chancery.

Today's Catholic, newspaper of the San Antonio Archdiocese, and the Society of St. Vincent de Paul were to give Sanchez a Guardian Angel Award July 19 in a ceremony airing on the archdiocesan-run TV station.

Nelson Escolero, a 40-year-old Salvadoran immigrant, was charged with aggravated kidnapping for holding Archbishop Flores and Sanchez. Escolero, a native of El Salvador who is a legal resident of the United States, apparently had approached the archbishop June 27 outside the chancery for help with a passport problem. The next day, he retunred to the archbishop's office.

Once inside the archbishop's office, he demanded the archbishop and later Sanchez make calls on his behalf. During the nine-hour ordeal, much of the tension centered on Escolero's claim that he had a grenade. The device was later determined to be a fake.

Throughout the two-hour ordeal, Sanchez said, she prayed to St. Anthonyand also quietly diverted the captor's attention at times.

Archbishop Flores has remarked that by putting up with him all these years, Sanchez is on her way to being a saint.

Let stairs be our problem... not yours!
Ask about our Stairway lifts.
- Easily attached to steps (not walls)
- Folds out of the way
- Fits most stairways (straight & curved)
- Very affordable (rent or buy)
- We install

Chair & Equipment Rentals & Sales, Inc.
800 Central Ave. • Charlotte, NC • (800) 333-8431
Member of St. Thomas Aquinas

Carolina Volkswagen
6625 E. Independence Blvd., Charlotte
(704) 537-2336 • (800) 489-2336
Biggest Selection — Lowest Prices
Drivers wanted.
"Nothing Could Be Finer" — Members of St. Gabriel
#1 Volkswagen Dealer in Charlotte and all the Carolinas for customer sales and service satisfaction!
C'mon in and see why!

CFCC
Carolina Funeral & Cremation Center
Dignity Affordability Simplicity
5505 Monroe Rd. Charlotte, NC 28212
704-568-0023
www.carolinafuneral.com
Steven Kuzma
Owner/Director
Privately, Locally Owned
Member St. Matthew Church and Knights of Columbus

"Our Specialty Is Loving Your Pets"
Pineville Animal Hospital
10833 Pineville Road, Pineville, NC
(Near Carolina Pavilion/AMC 22 Theater)
(704) 552-2005
In addition to our complete medical care facility, we also offer:
Boarding Kennels
Professional Grooming
Thomas N. Buckley, DVM, owner
Member of St. Vincent's

Book Review

Priest explores morality and spirituality in new book

What is the good life? In "The Good Life: Where Morality and Spirituality Converge," Sulpician Father Richard M. Gula defines it as "a life of friendship with God."

Father Gula says that we "become friends with God and with one another to the extent that we develop character and virtues." He writes this book to discuss biblical themes that offer guidance in becoming more moral and spiritual.

The Good Life: Where Morality and Spirtuality Converge,
By Father Richard M. Gula
SS. Paulist Press
(Mahwah, N.J., 1999).
132 pp.$9.95

The author, a moral theology professor at the Franciscan School of Theology at the Graduate Theological Union in Berkeley, Calif., begins by saying that morality and spirituality are related and must be practiced. "The greatest predictor of how we will behave when moments of special choice come along is to be found in how we behave every day because daily behavior shapes character," he says.

Father Gula first addresses the biblical theme of being created in God's image, which he calls "not only a gift but also a responsibility." Referring to the parable of the talents, he says, "Living the good life involves taking a risk on the gifts that have been entrusted to us."

Then he addresses the biblical theme of being called to a covenant with God. He focuses on the worth of our relationship with God, the unconditional love of God, and the value of self-esteem.

The author emphasizes, too, the importance of solidarity in a covenant relationship. He identifies three principles of Catholic justice: the dignity of individuals, concern for the common good, and concern for the poor. He suggests we imitate God in his love for "the lost, the least, and the last."

Faithfulness to the covenant also remains essential, Father Gula says. He cites God's call to "faithfulness, not sacrifice." When we are not faithful, he says, we not only do something that is not good but we become people who are not good.

GOOD LIFE, PAGE 14

Weekly Scripture

Readings for the week of July 23 - 29, 2000

Sunday, Jeremiah 23:1-6, Ephesians 2:13-18, Mark 6:30-34; Monday, Micah 6:1-4, 6-8, Matthew 12:38-42; Tuesday (St. James), 2 Corinthians 4:7-15, Matthew 20:20-28; Wednesday (St. Joachim and Anne), Jeremiah 1:1, 4-10, Matthew 13:16-17; Thursday, Jeremiah 2:1-3, 7-8, 12-13, Matthew 13:10-17; Friday, Jeremiah 3:14-17, Matthew 13:18-23; Saturday (St. Martha), Jeremiah 7:1-11, Luke 10:38-42

Readings for the week of July 30 - Aug. 5, 2000

Sunday, 2 Kings 4:42-44, Ephesians 4:1-6, John 6:1-15; Monday (St. Ignatius of Loyola), Jeremiah 13:1-11, Matthew 13:31-35; Tuesday (St. Alphonsus Liguori), Jeremiah 14:17-22, Matthew 13:36-43; Wednesday, Jeremiah 15:10, 16-21, Matthew 13:44-46; Thursday, Jeremiah 18:1-6, Matthew 13:47-53; Friday (St. John Mary Vianney), Jeremiah 26:1-9, Matthew 13:54-58; Saturday (Dedication of St. Mary Basilica in Rome), Jeremiah 26:11-16, 24, Matthew 14:1-12

Word to Life

July 23, Sixteenth Sunday in Ordinary Time, Cycle B Readings:
1) Jeremiah 23:1-6
Psalm 23:1-6
2) Ephesians 2:13-18
3) Gospel: Mark 6:30-34

By JEFF HENSLEY
Catholic News Service

"Word to Life" is listed on the CNS Web site according to the date of the Sunday to which it is geared. This week's "Word to Life" is geared to the readings for Sunday, July 23.

This column is offered, in cooperation with the North Texas Catholic of Fort Worth, Texas, as a bonus to CNS subscribers during the Jubilee of the Year 2000.

This material is located on the CNS Web site under "Columns." Three files are found for each week under "Word to Life": an image file, containing the art; a PDF file, showing the complete layout; and the text file.

In addition, the "Word to Life" logo can be downloaded by clicking on the logo in the CNS Web site.

Scattering and gathering, scattering and gathering — but what God is spreading broadly and pulling into sheaves in this week's readings is people, not seeds and grain.

The readings speak of good shepherds who gather their sheep to care for them and, at least in the Jeremiah reading, of evil shepherds who scatter God's sheep and drive them away.

But the image that is repeated is of the shepherd who gathers and tends his own. Jesus teaches the 5,000 on the shore of the lake because "he pitied them, for they were like sheep without a shepherd; and he began to teach them at great length."

The familiar and always comforting Psalm 23 gives us an image of the shepherd continuing his care, even as the sheep face danger from their enemies, need oil to heal them, and must rely on his rod and staff to deliver them from fear.

A friend in Birmingham, Ala., recently sent an e-mail describing a Pentecost event in her area in a large arena that brought Catholics and Protestants together to worship and celebrate their unity in Christ. Patsy's message brimmed with joy as she told about this celebration.

Jubilee 2000, she wrote, had been organized by the Catholic Diocese of Birmingham and was coordinated by a Benedictine nun. Protestant churches, she said, had responded to the Catholic invitation to plan it, participate in it and worship together.

Although she doesn't close her account with the feeding of the many thousands gathered, I have to believe that the Father in heaven, who sends forth shepherds to gather his people into one, was fed a heavenly meal of unity on the birthday of his church.

QUESTIONS:

When you have contact with Protestants, are you able to focus on the things that unite us without fear? Are you able to pray with those who will pray with you and for those who resist being joined by our mutual faith in Christ?

Providing Quality Long Term Care ...With Great Love.

For half a century, Maryfield Nursing Home has provided outstanding nursing care in a Catholic environment. When you need more care than is available at your home, come visit us. We invite you to discover for yourself our many stimulating daily activities and services which make Maryfield the best possible choice for Long Term Care.

1315 Greensboro Road
High Point, NC 27260
336.886.2444 Fax 336.886.4036
www.greensboro.com/mnh

MARYFIELD
A Continuing Care Retirement Community

The Franciscan Center
Catholic Gift & Book Store
Over 700 Book Titles, plus Bibles, Rosaries, Statues, Medals, Tapes, CD's, Plaques, & much, much more!
Hours: 9am - 5pm Monday - Friday
(336) 273-2554 233 N. Greene St. Greensboro, NC 27401

COACHXCEL
Spirit - Body - Mind
Hypnosis - Thought Field Therapy
Stop Smoking • Live Healthier
Manage Stress • Reduce Chronic Pain
Improve Job, Academic, Sports Performance
Call Today! 704-597-4184
John Connors LPC, NBCCH, TFT
Licensed Professional Counselor, National Board of Certified Clinical Hypnotherapists
Diplomate Certified - Thought Field Therapy

X-Men surprisingly absorbing, entertaining sci-fi thriller

By ANNE NAVARRO
Catholic News Service

NEW YORK (CNS) — Outcast human beings whose genetic mutations give them superpowers are pitted against evil mutants intent on ruling over humanity in the entertaining sci-fi thriller "X-Men" (20th Century Fox).

Director Bryan Singer's long-awaited live-action film is surprisingly absorbing. Based on the comic book series published by Marvel Comics, "X-Men" sets up the premise that in the not-too-distant future, human beings will genetically mutate to form a new race with superpowers, which will coexist with the other "normal" humans.

Early on, the viewer understands that humans already fear and hate the race of mutants. U.S. Sen. Robert Kelly (Bruce Davison) has introduced legislation designed to expose the possible "dangers" these scientific oddities can cause. And it is this legislation — and the prevailing prejudicial attitude — that forces Magneto (Ian McKellen), one of the world's most powerful mutants and master of magnetism, to turn his back on society. Together with his evil brotherhood, he seeks to rule over all of humanity before they wipe out the mutant race.

On the other end of the spectrum of these superhuman creatures is Magneto's one-time friend, Professor Charles Xavier (Patrick Stewart), who has unparalleled telepathic abilities. Under his tutelage are a group of students whom he calls his X-Men. Unlike Magneto and his rebel mutants, the X-Men use their powers to serve humanity. When Magneto attempts world domination, the two opposing groups square off in a battle of good vs. evil.

Several issues run through the film's multilayered narrative, including prejudice, intolerance and fear. The film also leans heavily on the outcasts-of-society theme, trying to establish common ground between the viewer and the mutants by asking, "Hasn't everyone felt like an outcast at one point or another?"

It is interesting to note that there is also a Christian message of compassion and mercy in the film. Xavier has established a school to teach mutants how to control and direct their powers for the greater good of mankind. The school is a safe haven for those the world considers deviants and misfits. And he and his X-Men fight to protect a world that ridicules and even hates them.

The film largely concentrates on the characters of Wolverine (Hugh Jackman), a loner with regenerative powers whose retractable steel claws come out whenever his short, mean fuse is lit, and Rogue (Anna Paquin), who is able to absorb the powers and memories of anyone she touches. Both actors acquit themselves well, especially Jackman.

The other X-Men characters are weakly developed, particularly Storm (Halle Berry), and even less attention is given to members of Magneto's evil brotherhood such as Toad (Ray Park) and Mystique (Rebecca Romijn-Stamos) who together only have a few scant lines.

Stewart and McKellen are formidable. As a survivor of World War II, Magneto believes he is preventing another Holocaust. McKellen gives the character the depth to be both malicious and childlike. Stewart's commanding presence on screen, not to mention his bald head which makes him look like the comic book character, brings to Xavier a sophistication and worldliness.

Although the film treats its subject quite seriously, it also manages to laugh at itself with some self-deprecating humor. Fans of the comic book will chuckle at a joke about Wolverine's yellow tights. And while the ending is predictable, getting there is certainly fun. The last scenes also leave the door wide open for one or more sequels.

While sci-fi violence is part of the package, sharp editing and imaginative special effects and stunts suggest that it should not be taken literally. In fact, the action is well-paced and therefore does not overcome the story but complements it.

Compelling enough to intrigue newcomers as well as fans of the Marvel comic book series, "X-Men" is a diverting outing to the movies. The Motion Picture Association of America rating is PG-13 — parents are strongly cautioned. Some material may be inappropriate for children under 13.

Navarro is on the staff of the U.S. Catholic Conference Office for Film and Broadcasting.

CNS PHOTO FROM 20TH CENTURY FOX

Halle Berry stars in the science-fiction thriller "X-Men." The U.S. Catholic Conference classification is A-II -- adults and adolescents. The Motion Picture Association of America rate is PG-13.

TV programs of note

NEW YORK (CNS) — Here are some television programs of note for the week of July 30:

Thursday, Aug. 3, 10-11 p.m. EDT (A&E) "Danger — Fallout." An "Investigative Reports" examines the threat from radioactive fallout from the Cold War years of nuclear testing in the Nevada desert that went into the atmosphere and drifted across the country.

Friday, Aug. 4, 9-11 p.m. EDT (PBS) "Vaudeville." A rebroadcast of an "American Masters" special exploring the popular entertainment form that preceded movies, TV and even radio, and dominated American culture for four decades, crossing racial and class boundaries in the process.

Vinny's Painting Inc.
Free estimates (704) 846-0747
Interior/Exterior • Residential/Commercial
Licensed and Insured
Member of St. Matthew Church

Cornerstones
Fall Camp for the young at heart!
Ages 50 and Up
September 24-29
Deluxe lodging, delicious meals, college level curriculum, hands-on instruction, fun and entertaining events, field trips to neat places with great friends! Week-long fun at a very special place.
For more information, call toll-free 888-526-7441 or (828) 327-7441
E-mail: ccc@twave.net
www.catholicconference.org
The Catholic Conference Center
1551 Trinity Lane Hickory, NC

We Warn You: If You Drive One You're Gonna Want One!
Volkswagen and Audi...the only car companies to have every model named best in its class. Find out why. Come in for a thrill ride today.
Honest pricing, honest financing, and honest service on Europe's most exciting new cars. From the incredible New Beetle, to the all new Jetta IV and luxurious new generation of Audi, we have the right car for your pocketbook...and your lifestyle.
Volkswagen Audi South
John Diederich, Owner
Member Saint Gabriel Parish
7401 South Boulevard . Charlotte . 704.552.6500 . 800.426.5347
www.vwsouth.com . www.audisouth.com

The Pope Speaks

POPE JOHN PAUL II

Pope says immigrants need welcome from people like Cabrini

BY CINDY WOODEN
CATHOLIC NEWS SERVICE

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — Like the poor who immigrated to the United States in the late 1800s, many of today's immigrants arrive in a new country looking for a better life but find only poverty and discrimination, Pope John Paul II said.

New immigrants need people like St. Frances Cabrini to welcome them, educate them and help them spiritually, the pope said in a letter to the religious order Mother Cabrini founded.

The letter, released at the Vatican July 15, marked the 150th anniversary of the birth of Mother Cabrini and the 50th anniversary of her being proclaimed patron of immigrants.

Mother Cabrini, an Italian who became a U.S. citizen, ministered to Italians and other European immigrants all over the United States, as well as in Nicaragua, Brazil and Argentina.

Canonized in 1946, just 21 years after her death, she was the first U.S. citizen to be proclaimed a saint.

The pope's letter to the Sacred Heart missionaries said today's immigrants have needs similar to those of immigrants 100 years ago: assistance getting residence permits, language lessons, help fitting into a new society and special care for illegal immigrants being held in detention centers.

Modern migration patterns have led the sisters to adapt "with creativity and generosity the spirit of Mother Cabrini," the pope said.

"Armed with unique boldness she started schools, hospitals and orphanages from nothing for the masses of poor who set off for the new world in search of work, lacking knowledge of the language and the means to insert themselves in a dignified way into American society, often becoming the victims of people without scruples," Pope John Paul said.

Mother Cabrini was not afraid, he said, and because of her courage and "maternal heart" she is still the object of "a surprisingly lively devotion" in the United States.

The pope asked the Missionaries Sisters of the Sacred Heart and the lay people who work with them "to learn to listen to the cry of the poor in order to give adequate responses to their material and spiritual problems."

Listening the way Mother Cabrini did, he said, will help them "at the beginning of a new millennium rich in expectations and hopes, but also marked by wounds which have stained the living body of humanity with blood, especially in the poorest countries of the world."

The Bottom Line

ANTOINETTE BOSCO
CNS COLUMNIST

A New Dimension of Mother Love

Some stories hit you right in the heart. That was my reaction when I met Ann Stone, who told of the tragedy that struck her family when Ralph, one of her five sons, was murdered in his condominium in Washington, D.C. But then she went on to talk of what she did in his memory.

Ralph Stone, 37, was the director of training for the Center for Development and Population Activities in Washington and had been working on his doctorate at Georgetown University. He had finished all his academic requirements and completed most of the interviews needed for his dissertation on the important and unusual subject of "Women Leaders in Kenya: A Description of Women in Practical Leadership in Non-Government Organizations."

"When I realized that his dissertation wasn't going to be finished, I said to his director that maybe I could finish it," his mother told me. She wanted her son to have his degree, even though it would be posthumous.

A grandmother of four, who holds a master's degree in Hospital Administration, Stone was willing to take on this heavy task, explaining, "I had some experience in analyzing and writing because I work for the state of Connecticut reviewing certificates of need for hospitals when they want to expand."

He often went overseas to do pioneering work to "establish the empowerment of women" in Third World countries. In his research he looked for common backgrounds of successful women, identified barriers to women's advancement and determined what further research was needed to help women achieve professional goals.

Ann Stone's task was enormous. Her son had left a microtape with interviews he had done with women in Kenya in nongovernmental jobs, "but they all had to be transcribed," she said. Ann Stone found a woman who had done some transcribing for her son, but on many of the tapes the African accents were heavy and she couldn't understand them.

But, coincidentally, this woman had an acquaintance from Ghana. "It turned out she grew up in Kenya and knew all the tribal accents," Stone said.

With the tapes transcribed, she was able to complete the manuscript. She then had to meet with the Georgetown faculty to defend it. "They said it should be published," she said, adding that the Center for Development and Population Activities will use her son's research to further their work.

Stone and her husband Fred also felt honored that the university established the Ralph Upson Stone Achievement Award in their son's honor to recognize people who work selflessly for human resources development.The Stones say that witnessing the honor given to their son brings them some joy.

Their son's killer still is unidentified, though the police have a strong suspect. Ralph Stone's brothers, his twin Dave, along with Doug, Brad and Rick, are a great support to their parents.

I've seen mother love, but Ann Stone truly took this to a new dimension in the honor she gave her son by completing the work he had begun.

Coming of Age

CHRISTOPHER CARSTENS
CNS COLUMNIST

Teens and Their Friends' Parents

As a teen-ager, your freedom often depends on adults — and not just your mother or father. Can you spend the night at a friend's? Sure you need your parent's permission, but it also depends on whether or not your friend's folks are comfortable having you around.

You're attracted to a "certain someone" at school, and you meet each other at the mall once or twice. Will you become a long-term item? Even if you like each other, much will depend on how your potential partner's parents feel about you.

It's in your best interest for your friend's parents to like you. Good relationships increase your freedom to do what you want. Maybe it seems like a no-brainer, but lots of teens somehow miss this basic point.

There are some things in your life that you simply can't control. This isn't one of them. Surprisingly, you're almost completely in charge of whether or not adults like you.

What's the key? Your attitude! It may seem amazing, but simply maintaining a positive attitude toward adults and treating them with courtesy virtually guarantees that grown-ups will like you.

As a child and adolescent psychologist, I also have talked with literally thousands of parents about their teens, and their teens' friends. Their comments reflect my own impressions.

The key is having short conversations on a regular basis. For example, you might spend two or three minutes talking with a friend's mother whenever you hang out at their house. If you're dating somebody, have a brief conversation whenever you run into his or her parents.

Stand up when you're talking to an adult. The identical conversation while slouching on the couch doesn't communicate the same air of respect.

Shake hands when you first meet an adult. That's a very important action. Grown-ups associate it with maturity and trustworthiness. It shows respect, and it accentuates your adult side.

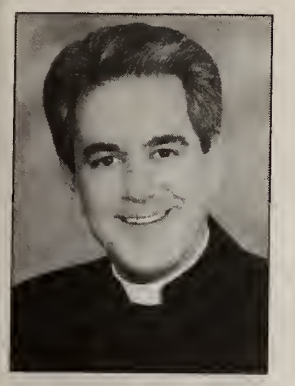
Smile. You can't imagine how many teens simply scowl at grown-ups or act as if the grown-ups weren't even there. Studies show that smiling makes you much more socially attractive. People like people who smile at them.

Ask at least one question during each brief conversation. You aren't conducting an interview here, but are showing your interest in the adult as a person. The questions can be as simple as, "How's your back yard coming?" or "Did you see the baseball game last night?"

Pay attention to the answers because they'll contain clues for your next conversation. For example, if you learn that your friend's father is restoring an old car, asking about progress on the project now and then makes you golden.

Finally, don't ever swear around an adult. That's verbal poison. When you use poor language, you are seen as less intelligent, less sophisticated and less reliable.

Good manners are the lubricant that makes social wheels turn. Your goal isn't making friends with these grown-ups, but you want them to like and respect you.



Light One Candle

FATHER THOMAS J. McSWEENEY
Guest Columnist

When I'm 65...

A well-meaning friend sent me a copy of John Jerome's new book about aging, "On Turning Sixty-Five," with the "Sixty" crossed out and replaced by a "Fifty."

A taunting note was attached: "Monsignor, it's never too early to start respecting gray hairs, especially your own! Happy Fifty-Fifth!"

My first impulse was to phone and disinvite my friend from my birthday party, but instead I peeked inside and spotted Jerome's incentive for writing his book. He explains that during a slow recovery from neck surgery he began to see his 65th year as "a kind of forced matriculation in Old Man's School."

He goes on: "Sixty-five happens to be, in society's definition, the moment when geezerhood kicks in. A certain amount of despair, even panic, can be expected to follow — not to mention hair transplants, convertibles, trophy wives. We don't deal well with 65 in this culture."

Old Man's School?! Geezerhood? Despair?! Wait a minute, I thought, this doesn't square with my personal experience of my older relatives and friends who may complain of an occasional stiffness or sleepless night but generally seem in high spirits and are unquestionably happy and productive. I think of Pope John Paul II who, despite his own age-related limitations, proclaimed recently, "I continue to enjoy life!"

He said: "Arriving at an older age is to be considered a privilege: not simply because not everyone has the good fortune to reach this stage of life, but also, and above all, because this period provides real possibilities for better evaluating the past, for knowing and living more deeply the Paschal Mystery, for becoming an example for the whole people of God."

What an example this Pope has been. He lives his old age with the greatest openness. Far from concealing it, he places it before everyone's eyes. With extreme simplicity, he says of himself, "I'm an elderly priest." He lives his old age in faith, as he has his whole life, acknowledging changes but not letting himself be overwhelmed by them.

Indeed, having spiritual faith appears to be the singular, vital factor in the way many people successfully navigate old age. Much of what I have learned about my faith derives from my own grandparents when I was young and from older friends now. For me they have been a point of stability, a steadfast example of faith deepened by the joys and heartaches of life. It is not decline that their age reveals to me, but rather the first days of immortality. Or as St. Simon puts it: "The Golden Age is not behind us, but before us."

What younger person, fortunate to witness the grace-filled final days of a parent or grandparent, cannot be attracted to that same faith? Today one person in eight — a total of 33.2 million Americans — is at least 65. A person who reaches 65 can expect to live for seventeen more years, and many live well beyond that. Some will have good health and financial comfort. Some will not. There is no denying their importance, though we can never completely control them. Still, each one of us does get to choose our beliefs and attitudes.

My friend was right. It's never too early to consider: "Just what kind of person do I want to be when I turn 65?"

Father Thomas J. McSweeney is director of The Christophers.

Family Reflections

ANDREW & TERRI LYKE
Guest Columnists

Covenant-Like Marriages

Earlier this week I (Andrew) spoke before a group of inner-city youths at a summer education program. I was asked to speak about relationships and sexuality. However, I chose to make the central theme of my presentation the "'M' Word"-marriage.

My reasoning for making marriage the center of discussion is that too often marriage education begins at engagement. By then the individuals' concepts of marriage have been formed. This was an opportunity to plant some seeds in their minds that may harvest a different crop of married persons years from now.

I began my presentation to the group of seventeen male high school sophomores by explaining the difference between a contractual relationship and a covenant relationship. Most of them saw marriage as contractual. A young man explained it this way, "When the marriage isn't happy, you don't have to stay in it. You should get a divorce."

I described for them the covenant relationship we have with God, and suggested that when a marriage strives for that kind of relationship, it becomes a manifestation of God's love. Sex was described as a gift from God that makes promises that only marriage can keep. I told the young men that the greatest gift parents give their children is their love for each other.

I asked them to think about the people they knew who had covenant-like marriages. When I asked them to tell me about those people, no one responded.

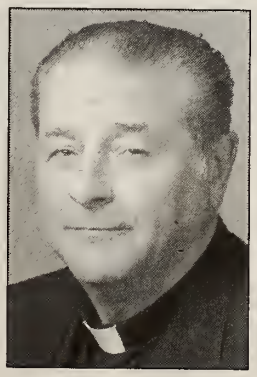
From all indications, it seemed that these young men had no reasons in their lives to believe anything I had said to them. For them covenant marriage was all fantasy and not applicable to the real world or real relationships.

In the deafening silence I saw in my right periphery a young man hesitantly raising his hand. I asked him if he had a question. He said in a very soft voice, "My parent-my mother and father have that kind of relationship." His assertion was almost sheepish, as though he was at risk for saying it. I insisted he stand up and repeat what he said clearly and boldly. He stood and repeated, "My mother and father have a covenant marriage."

That evening the two of us discussed this after dinner. We both surmised that the young man's hesitance to identify his family as a "matrimonial family" is the very same reason so many covenant marriages are so quiet. Covenant marriage is countercultural in a society that is hostile to it. Not only is God-centered marriage under siege, the children of such relationships are, as well.

I thanked the young man for standing in the face of disbelief to bear witness to a truth that was evident in his life. I encouraged him to continue to challenge others with the truth. We offer the same challenge to all members of matrimonial families. When our young people seek out covenant marriages, those marriages must be visible. So, stand up! A whole generation needs you.

Question Corner



FATHER JOHN DIETZEN
CNS Columnist

The Custom of Circumcision

Q. Why is circumcision mentioned so often in the Bible, and why was it so important for the Jews? Jewish men had to be circumcised, and the Gospels say that even Jesus was. How did this practice get started?

A. Not long ago I would have had to say no one knows the answer. Perhaps this is still true, but some archeological discoveries in recent decades point to a possible explanation.

Circumcision, it seems, may be closely related to human sacrifice, which was widespread in some ancient Mideast cultures (including, at certain periods, the Jews) as a way of placating and supplicating the gods.

Several years ago archeologists in the Near East discovered an interesting document apparently written by a Phoenician priest.

The text tells how a god named El, to prevent destruction of his city, sacrificed his son to his father, a god named Heaven. El then circumcised himself, and commanded all his followers to be circumcised, thus saving their home.

In this tradition, at least, circumcision seems to take the place of human sacrifice. A part of the body is substituted for the whole. Since an intimate relationship was seen between individuals and the entire community or tribe, circumcision, involving part of the male organ of procreation, proclaimed that the whole nation, the whole clan, present and future, was consecrated to the god it worshipped.

In this context, it is easier to see why the descendants of Abraham came to view circumcision as a fitting and necessary expression of their covenant with the God of Israel.

Q. Someone in our parish has been distributing a leaflet that tells us receiving Communion in our hands is wrong and against God's will. Most of the ideas I have no trouble dealing with, but one statement puzzles me.

She claims Mother Teresa once stated that one of the greatest harms to the church was the start of Communion in the hand, and that she believed it is wrong and should never be done. When did Mother Teresa say that?

A. That rumor has been in circulation for at least 15 years that I know of. I have no idea how it started, but as with all such rumors, the people who spread it do not hesitate to keep it going.

For years I was deluged with letters urging me to tell people how Mother Teresa felt. I had strong suspicions about the claim. But at last, not long before her death, I contacted the officials of her community in India about it, describing what she was quoted as saying.

Their response informed me that Mother Teresa never said anything like that. In fact, they added, receiving Communion in the hand is not forbidden even for her own sisters.

As I indicated, it isn't likely, from my experience, that this fact will hinder those who are determined to keep the rumor circulating.

A free brochure in English or Spanish answering questions Catholics ask about baptism practices and sponsors is available by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Father John Dietzen, Box 325, Peoria, IL 61651. Questions may be sent to Father Dietzen at the same address, or e-mail: jjdietzen@aol.com.

Good Life, from page 10

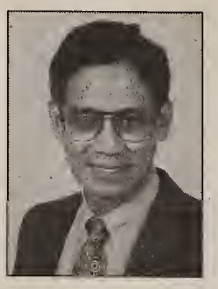
The author next addresses the call to discipleship. He says, "The question that ought to guide authentic discipleship today, then, is not 'What would Jesus do?' but 'How can I be as faithful to God in my life as Jesus was in his?'" He advises renouncing "surrogate loves" — conformity, fear, materialism, money, position, power, prestige, and pride.

Finally, he focuses on the call to community. He says that "to become good we need to be surrounded by goodness, to witness it, and then to imitate it." We do this through friends who "sustain us by their example, wisdom, encouragement, support, and challenge." He reflects on the beatitudes and on love, forgiveness and hospitality.

"The Good Life: Where Morality and Spirituality Converge" is a practical guidebook for individuals and groups. The author offers sound advice and includes interesting anecdotes and allusions to the Bible, theology, literature, and film. His end-of-chapter questions can help readers apply what they have learned.

Diocesan faith formation official named to the United States Catholic Conference Committee on Catechesis

CHARLOTTE — Dr. Cris V. Villapando, director of faith formation programs for the Charlotte Diocese, recently was appointed to the United States Catholic Conference Committee on Catechesis.



Bishop Donald W. Wuerl, the Chairman on the Committee on Education, asked Villapando to serve for three years, citing his "background, experience, and expertise." The purpose of this committee is "to review and make recommendations on the objectives, plans, programs and policies" for the Department of Education for final approval by the Administrative Board of the Conference. The Committee is composed of an episcopal chair, three bishops, and other experts in the field of catechesis.

Classifieds

Classified ads bring results! Over 115,000 readers! Over 45,000 homes!
Rates: $.50/word per issue ($10 minimum per issue)
Deadline: 12 noon Wednesday, 9 days before publication date
How to order: Ads may be faxed to (704) 370-3382 or mailed to:
Cindi Feerick, The Catholic News & Herald, 1123 S. Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203.
Payment: Ads may be pre-paid or billed. For information, call (704) 370-3332.

EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES

Accounting Assistant, Part-time: Catholic High School seeks person with accounting experience who works well with others to work part-time in the Business Office. Responsibilities include processing tuition receivables and vendor payables. Provides assistance to Business Manager in reconciling and managing monthly accounts. Good organizational and analytical skills required. Mon-Fri, 8 am - 12 pm. Send letter of application and resume by 7/28 to: BMHS Employee Search, 1730 Link Road, Winston-Salem, NC 27103. EOE.

Accounting Clerk: Payroll/General Ledger. The Diocese of Charlotte is accepting applications for a full-time accounting clerk. Responsibilities primarily include processing and entering payroll and general ledger transactions for the Mecklenburg Area Catholic Schools system. Applicants must be proficient with Excel and have two years of relevant experience. EOE. Please forward resume and salary history by July 28, 2000 to: Controller, 1123 S. Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203-4003.

Administrative Assistant: Part-time. Approximately 12-20 hours per week. Non-smoker with good communications, phone, computer skills. Prefer financial background. Resume and references to Hook Financial Group, 4801 E. Independence Blvd., Box 601, Charlotte NC 28212.

Administrative Support Person: The Dioccsan Office of Justice and Peace has an opening for a part-time administrative support person (4 hours, 3 days/week). Functions include: clerical, database management, excel spreadsheets; internet research and related skills; coordinating meeting arrangements; and bulk mailing. Must be proficient in Windows 98 and Office 97 and possess organizational and communications skills. Submit a one-page resume by July 26th to: Office of Justice and Peace, 1123 S. Church St., Charlotte NC 28203.

Assistant Secretary: Asheville Catholic School. Attendance/First Aid Office. M-F, full time. CPR and First Aid certification required. Call (828)252-7896 for information. EOE.

Cosmetologists/Barbers: Full-time and part-time. Charlotte area upscale salon seeking warm-hearted, skilled stylists and barbers. Convenient south Charlotte location. $12 per hour + tips. Please call (704) 341-4260.

Custodian, Full-time: Begin work immediately. Asheville Catholic School. Call Randy Penland, Maintenance Supervisor at (828)252-7896. EOE.

Director of Adult Catholic Enrichment/Order of Christian Initiation: Holy Family Catholic Church of Marietta seeks a full-time salaried Director for Adult Catholic Enrichment (ACE) and the Order of Christian Initiation (OCI) programs. Applicants should have leadership experience in ACE/OCI areas and/or have religious education degreed background suitable to develop high quality programs and volunteer assistance in the community. Must be practicing Catholic. If interested, please submit resume and cover letter to Ret Siefferman, Director of Religious Education at Holy Family Catholic Church, 3401 Lower Roswell Rd., Marietta, GA 30068. Fax (770) 578-0475. Inquire at (770) 973-7400, ext. 21 with questions.

Director of Planned Giving: The Diocesan Office of Development has an opening for a part-time director of planned giving. Candidate must be a college graduate with a degree in marketing, business administration, or related field; and 3 years specific experience in planned giving or related experience. Applicants should have strong interpersonal and communications skills and the ability to interact well with diverse groups. Responsibilities include organizing and directing efforts to assist parishioners in developing and implementing long-range financial plans for their benefit, the benefit of their family, their parish and/or the diocese. Part-time position for 21 hours per week; beginning August. Please submit resume to: Jim Kelley, Office of Development, 1123 South Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203-4003.

Director of Religious Education: Holy Family Catholic Church in Marietta seeks a full-time salaried Director for its Religious Education programs. Practical leadership experience in the continuing development of a full range of primary, secondary, young adult and adult based Religious Education programs is essential. The ability to encourage a spirit of volunteerism to meet broad community needs is a must. Should be competent in managing all educational levels and administrative staff functions. Must have bachelors and/or advanced degree in education and/or religious training. Must he practicing Catholic. Holy Family's Religious Education programs serve a multi-cultural community. Fluency in Spanish or equivalent background experience would be a useful asset. If interested, please submit resume and cover letter to Ret Siefferman, Director of Religious Education, Holy Family Catholic Church, 3401 Lower Roswell Rd., Marietta, GA 30068. Fax (770) 578-0475. Inquire at (770)973-7400, ext. 21 with questions.

Director, Office of Justice and Peace, Catholic Social Services, Diocese of Charlotte: Director to supervise staff and administer program areas including: CCHD, CRS/ORB, Office of Economic Opportunity, social justice formation and education, and public policy activities. The director serves on the CSS management team while maintaining working relationships with other diocesan offices and with parishes. Knowledge of Catholic social teaching, as well as the ability to articulate and apply it, is essential. Experience at diocesan level as well as a graduate degree in related field preferred. Send resumes by July 26th to: Office of Justice and Peace, CSS, 1123 S. Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203.

Junior Accountant: The Diocese of Charlotte is accepting applications for a junior accountant. This position is primarily responsible for the monthly general journal entries, cash receipts, and month-end reporting for Catholic Social Seryices. Applicants must be proficient with Excel and have an associate's degree with a concentration in Accounting or 5 years of relevant experience. EOE. Please forward resume and salary history by July 28, 2000 to: Controller, 1123 S. Church St., Charlotte NC 28203-4003.

Music Ministry Director: Full-time position for a growing 1100-family parish near Charlotte. Responsihle for 4 weekend liturgies plus holy days, weddings and funerals. Adult and children's choirs, cantors, instrumentalists, new contemporary choir, and handbell choir. Rogers electronic organ, Yamaha upright piano, two-octave set of Malmark handbells. Ideal candidate is practicing Catholic with music degree, experience, music performance skills (organ/piano/voice), choral and cantor skills, knowledge of Catholic hturgical music. Salary commensurate with experience. Full benefits. Send/fax resume to Music Search, Saint Therese Parish, 217 Brawley School Rd., Mooresville, NC 28117. Phone (704)664-3992; Fax: (704)660-6321.

Music Ministry Director: Holy Infant Catholic Church is in search of a full-time Director of Music. Located in Durham, North Carolina, a dynamic and growing area of the country near Research Triangle Park, this Vatican II parish consists of 900 households that are committed to ongoing liturgical renewal. Holy Infant Parish embraces its call to be hospitable, inclusive and Christ-centered. This position works closely with the Pastor and a collaborative and supportive staff. Requires a minimum of a bachelor's degree in a relevant field although a master's degree is preferred. Must have music performance skill (e.g. piano, voice); choral directing; cantor training; knowledge of Catholic rites and rituals. Available no later than November 1, 2000. Salary commensurate with education and experience. Benefits package included. Send resume to: DOMM Search Committee, Holy Infant Catholic Church, 5000 Southpark Dr., Durham, NC 27713. Fax 919/544-1799. References required at time of application for consideration for this position.

Parish Secretary/Receptionist: St. John Neumann. 9am - 4:30pm, Monday through Friday. Secretarial skills and experience, computer-literate, personable. Salary negotiable. Benefits. Contact Fr. Thom Meehan, (704)536-6520 or send resume and references: St. John Neumann Church, 8451 Idlewild Road, Charlotte, NC 28277. Fax: (704)536-3147.

Principal, Elementary: Blessed Sacrament School, located in historic Savannah, Georgia and nearby Atlantic Ocean beaches, is seeking a principal beginning as soon as possible. Candidates must be Catholic and be able to enhance this family-oriented school with strong communication, leadership and financial management skills. Candidates must have a master's degree in education and be certifiable by the state of Georgia. Salary is commensurate with experience and credentials. Request application, and mail or fax resume to: Blessed Sacrament Search Committee, Diocese of Savannah, 601 E. Liberty St., Savannah, GA 31404. Phone (912)238-2344 or Fax(912)238-2339.

Regional Consultant: The Diocese Office of Faith Formation seeks an interim part-time Regional Consultant for the Smoky Mountain Vicariate for FY 2000-2001. We seek an individual with 3-5 years' experience of coordinating parish programs and great ability to work with people. The part-time salary for this person is $12,000-$14,000. Preference will he given to persons with some background in the field of Catechetics and Adult Faith Formation. Please send two letters of recommendation to: Dr. Cris Villapando, Office of Faith Formation, 1123 S. Church Street, Charlotte, NC 28203-4003. For more information call (704) 370-3246.

Teacher: Asheville Catholic School seeks dynamic pre-K teacher. Must hold or be eligible for NC license. Call (828) 252-7896. EOE.

Teachers, Library/Media Specialist: Charlotte Catholic High School has the following openings beginning August 2000: full-time teaching positions for Religion, Drama, English, Math, Spanish, and full-time Library/Media Specialist. Must have NC Certification. Also, part-time Guidance Secretary is needed. Call (704)543-1127 for application.

Teachers: Sacred Heart School (PreK-8) in Salisbury has the following teacher openings beginning in August: PE, Spanish, 5th Grade, and Middle School Language Arts. NC certification required. Call Kathleen Miller at (704)633-2841.

Teachers: St. Patrick's School in Charlotte is accepting applications for part-time Music teacher and part-time Spanish teacher. Please contact school principal, Mrs. Angela Montague, (704) 333-3174 for interview. NC certification required.

Teachers: St. Michael's School in Gastonia, NC is currently seeking dynamic teachers for the following positions: Full-time Middle School Language Arts/Social Studies; Full-time Kindergarten; and part-time Art teacher. NC Certification required. Please call Joseph Puceta at (704)865-4382 for more information.

Teachers and Guidance Counselor: Immaculate Heart of Mary School has openings for the following positions for the 2000-2001 school year: Part-time Guidance Counselor; Middle School Science Teacher; and Grade 5 Teacher. Interested certified teachers may contact Margene Wilkins, principal, at 605 Barbee Avenue, High Point, NC 27262; call 336-887-2613; or fax 336-884-1849.

Youth Coordinator: St. John Neumann Church seeks part-time Coordinator of Youth Programs to work with parent/youth teams to plan, implement, oversee youth programs; grades 9-12. Call (704)535-4197. Send resume to St. John Neumann Church, Connie Milligan, 8451 Idlewild Road, Charlotte, NC 28227 or fax(704)536-3147.

Youth Minister: Our Lady of Grace Church in Greensboro, NC is seeking a full-time Youth Minister to coordinate all youth activities and programs. Applicants should have a degree in Religious Education or related field and three years' experience in Youth Ministry. Salary commensurate with experience and education. Send resume to Tom Johnson, Our Lady of Grace Church, 2205 West Market St., Greensboro, NC 27403.

Youth Minister: 25 hours per week; salaried. Located 45 minutes north of Charlotte. Practicing Catholic, experienced with youth. Responsible for 9th-12th graders; coordinate social and service activities, and recruit and train other young adults to work with teens. Must be willing to accommodate flexible week including nights and weekends. Submit resume by July 31st: Martha Drennan, 217 Brawley School Rd., Mooresville NC 28117. Information: (704)664-7762.

Youth Minister, Part-time: St. Patrick Cathedral is in great need of a part-time Youth Minister to plan, implement, and oversee weekly activities for parish youth. Undergraduate degree in a youth related field and experience preferred. Please send resume and cover letter to St. Patrick Cathedral, Attn: Joanna Catabui, 1621 Dilworth Road E., Charlotte NC 28203 or Fax: (704) 377-6403.

FOR SALE

Personalized Candy Bars. For ALL Occasions. CHERUBS-N-CHOCOLATE. To request a catalog, please visit web site at www.Cherubs-N-ChocolatebyDeb.com or call (919)689-9925.

COURTESY PHOTO

A learning group from the Diocese of Charlotte was among this year's graduates of the Loyola Institute for Ministry program, a graduate distance learning program offered by Loyola University in New Orleans, La., that awards master's degrees in pastoral studies and religious education. Pictured in front from left are Carl Ross, Peg Ruble, Monica Friedman, Ann Rowe and Julie Platte; second row, from left, are Don Allen, Elena Ziegler, Gretchen Gantzer, Stephanie Nealy, Jan Blodgett and Clarence Fox. Not pictured are Brother John Kummer and group facilitators Joanna Case and Connie Milligan.

Knights help fund LIMEX

The North Carolina State Council of the Knights of Columbus recently presented a check to Bishop William G. Curlin for $2,000 to help the Diocese of Charlotte fund scholarships for participants in the LIMEX program.

PHOTO BY JIMMY ROSTAR

In Brief ...

Charlotte student ambassador visits Great Britain

CHARLOTTE — Timothy M. Ellis, a student at Holy Trinity Catholic Middle School, was selected by the People to People Student Ambassador Program to visit Great Britain this summer for two weeks, learning about the government, economy and culture of England, Wales and Scotland. The delegation of 11 middle school students from North Carolina was to participate in briefings at embassies and ministries, discussions with industry and trade officials, visits to the headquarters of international organizations and meetings with youth clubs. The Student Ambassador Program is operated under People to People International, a nonpolitical, private-sector organization founded by President Dwight Eisenhower in 1956 to further international goodwill and understanding. Participants are chosen based on recommendations, including school references and personal interviews. Ellis is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael E. Ellis, parishioners of St. Gabriel Church in Charlotte.

Holy Angels official receives community spirit award

BELMONT — Regina Moody, president and chief executive officer of Holy Angels, recently received the Myrtle School Community Spirit Distinguished Woman of the Year Award. Vicky Clinton, president and founder of the grassroots community-based program, presented the award to Moody and two other recipients. The program, which focuses on youths and targets drug prevention and crime, has been in existence for 11 years in a northwest Gastonia neighborhood. Moody, a former school principal, has served in her current position at Holy Angels since 1998. Her history with the private, nonprofit corporation began 17 years ago, when she came aboard as executive director. In addition to her work at Holy Angels on behalf of children and adults with mental retardation and physical disabilities, Moody serves on several boards of directors and committees in Gaston County which make decisions or recommend policies that affect the services and programs available to children and families.

Group to discuss Life Chain plans

CHARLOTTE — The Charlotte Area Right to Life chapter is holding its monthly meeting today at 7 p.m. at the University City Regional Library, 301 East W.T. Harris Blvd. Today's meeting will focus on the organization of this year's Life Chain. For details, call Irene Manning at (704) 598-8877.

OFFICE OF PLANNED GIVING

This is a Test.

	True	False
I would rather let the state decide how to distribute my estate than make those decisions myself.	☐	☐
I would rather have an outdated estate plan that inadequately expresses my desires than endure the hassle of bringing the documents up to date.	☐	☐
I would rather pay estate taxes, if required, than make a deductible bequest to my church.	☐	☐

How did you do? If you answered "True" to any of these questions, please do not proceed. If you answered otherwise, please call the number below and request our free no-obligation brochure, "Your legacy...Planning for a Better Tomorrow." Or you may write us at: Office of Planned Giving, Diocese of Charlotte, 1123 South Church Street, Charlotte, NC 28203.

For a free information packet, please call Jim Kelley, Director of Development (704) 370-3301

Looking for the best CD rates?

*Earn interest 1% higher than the national bank average with CDs from Salomon Smith Barney.

Our CDs offer some of the highest rates available. In fact, a national survey of bank CD rates show our CDs average a whole percentage point higher. Plus, with a broad range of maturities, you can easily arrange for a steady stream of income to fit your needs.

- FDIC-insured up to $100,000 per depositor, per institution
- Issued by more than 240 banks nationwide
- A flexible investment vehicle to reach your fixed-income goals
- We provide a secondary market on all CDs we sell

Term	Annual Percentage Yield
1 year	6.85%
3 year	7.05%
5 year	7.1%

Call Michael Grieco, Financial Consultant
at (704) 571-3362 for more information.
6101 Carnegie Boulevard, 2nd Floor
Charlotte, NC 28209

SALOMON SMITH BARNEY
SEE HOW WE EARN IT.SM

A member of citigroup

*The annual percentage yields (APYs) are effective as of 0/00/00 and are subject to availability and changes. APY interest can not remain on deposit in the same CD; interest will be paid semi-annually, monthly, or at maturity. FDIC insurance covers a maximum amount of $100,000 per deposit or per institution (principal and interest combined) in each insurable capacity. Minimum deposit $1,000. Although we are not required to do so, we endeavor to provide a secondary market so that CD holders can sell their CDs prior to maturity. The resale price in such a transaction may be less than the principal amount invested. National bank average determined by Bank Rate Monitor, a service mark of Bank Rate Monitor.

Salomon Smith Barney and "SEE HOW WE EARN IT." are service marks of Salomon Smith Barney Inc.
©2000 Salomon Smith Barney Inc. Member SIPC

VGA & SVGA Refurbished Computer Monitors

14" — $20-$25
15" — $35-$38
17" — $70-$125
20" Call for details
30 day warranty

Over 2000 monitors in stock!

O.C. STAFFORD ELECTRONIC SERVICE & DEVELOPMENT COMPANY
408 Banner Ave., Greensboro, NC 27401
E-mail: urpac408@worldnet.att.net
(336) 274-9917

Attention
DIABETICS
with Medicare or Insurance

Save Money on Diabetic Supplies!

For more information call:
1-800-337-4144

Medicare also pays for pump & pump supplies

Legal background helps volunteer with social work

By Alesha M. Price
Staff Writer

CHARLOTTE — Imagine yourself as a child who has been placed into a maze of lawyers, police, social workers and judges because of a less than desirable home environment, marred by drug, sexual or physical abuse or neglect. Then, place yourself into those small shoes, and think of the relief you would feel if someone would be on your side. That is the sole purpose of the volunteers of the Guardian ad Litem or GAL program — to serve as a voice for the represented children.

One of those voices is John Pastryk, a GAL for nearly a decade. Pastryk has an inside track on his duties as a GAL. He is senior counsel for a commercial and private equipment production company, and his knowledge of the law helps him with his cases.

"I have worked with 11 cases consisting of about 14 boys, who have been either abandoned or neglected by alcoholic parents. Many have suffered physical abuse, and a small number of my cases have involved sexual abuse," explained Pastryk. "Regrettably, because most of my cases involve pre-teens and teens, few of the children are eventually adopted. I try to assist the boys until they reach the age of 18."

Because of his dedication, Pastryk was recognized as the 2000 GAL Volunteer of the Year for Mecklenburg County.

"The one overriding ingredient for a volunteer is to have some degree of caring for the children," said Pastryk.

The term "ad litem" means "this litigation or for this case," and in other states, the GAL is known as a "Court Appointed Special Advocate or CASA." The GAL accompanies the young clients into court and has access to all accompanying files and reports. They conduct interviews with the child, family members and others to derive a better understanding of the child's life. Although prior legal or social work experience is not a prerequisite, the volunteers must go through approximately 30 hours of training to help them with speaking in court on the child's behalf and writing reports.

"John is extremely level-headed and can go into any situation and be very objective," said Lisa Hughes, Charlotte GAL program supervisor, who nominated Pastryk for his honor. "He thoroughly follows his cases until they close."

Judi Strause, corporate resource development specialist for the GAL program, said, "John has the ability to work effectively with teenage boys, a hard group to work with, and he has been very capable of advocating what is best for these young people. He is a committed and effective volunteer who has been willing to take cases."

Pastryk said that spending time with the kids provides insight into lives that are vastly different from one's own experience. "You get to know them very well, and this program gives them someone who will listen. At least I can be a common denominator in their lives," he said.

Working for the GAL program is only part of Pastryk's volunteer efforts. He and his wife Linda work with marriage preparation through their parish, St. Gabriel Church.

"There are times as a GAL when you see some ugly things," he admitted, "but my Catholic faith helps me to find God in other people," said Pastryk, a recent convert to Catholicism.

Pastryk said that intervention is the key. "If we can get to the children early in their lives, then a whole manifest group of problems can be prevented. They are the most innocent of our society, and early involvement can affect their lives profoundly."

Contact Staff Writer Alesha M. Price by calling (704) 370-3354 or e-mail amprice@charlottediocese.org.

Working for the GAL program is only part of Pastryk's volunteer efforts. He and his wife Linda work with marriage preparation through their parish, St. Gabriel Church.

"There are times as a (guardian ad litem) when you see some ugly things," he admitted, "but my Catholic faith helps me to find God in other people," said Pastryk....

K OF C

Please pray for the following priests who died during the month of August:

Rev. Msgr. Felix R. Kelaher	1998
Rev. Henry J. Becker	1992
Rev. John F. Parsons	1993

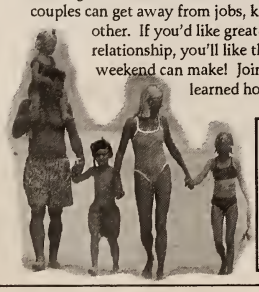
Sponsored by the Knights of Columbus

Mothers in Love + Fathers in Love =
Families in Love

Your whole family deserves the love Mom and Dad discover on a Worldwide Marriage Encounter weekend! Marriage Encounter is 44 hours where married couples can get away from jobs, kids, chores and phones — and focus on each other. If you'd like greater depth, growth and enrichment in your relationship, you'll like the difference a Worldwide Marriage Encounter weekend can make! Join millions of couples worldwide who have learned how to keep their marriage vibrant and alive.



Next Marriage Encounter Weekend:
Sept. 8, 9, 10
Holiday Inn Airport, Charlotte
Call Tom & Emilie Sandin
(336) 274-4424
November Weekend: 17th-19th

VOCATIONS

Is God calling you?

J.Chapin Engler, Jr. Will be ordained to the Holy Priesthood in the Diocese of Charlotte in 2002.

Many people I meet today are not happy and are searching for peace in the craziest ways. As the secular world constantly bombards us with anti-Gospel messages, many see the Church as unapproachable. They completely miss the fact that God has so many blessings He wants to give us if only we would let Him.

I want to become a priest to communicate the joy of Christ to a world that doesn't know Him and I feel the best way to do this is to live a life exemplary of the Gospel. I hope to exude Christ's joy and serve as His light for a dark world, a beacon who makes people ask, "What makes that guy so happy?" Then I'll be able to share about all the blessings God has given me, and more importantly, about all the incredible graces He wishes to bestow on them if only they would let Him.

There is so much work to be done and I'm very excited to serve the rapidly expanding Charlotte Diocese.

... Are you answering His call?

For more information about serving God as a priest in the Diocese of Charlotte, please contact Father John Allen,
The Office of Vocations, The Roman Catholic Diocese of Charlotte,
1123 South Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203.
(704) 370-3353 • vocations@charlottediocese.org

F0282.
C362

CHAPEL HILL NC 27599-0001
WILSON LIBRARY CB 3930
UNC
NC COLLECTION
42083
S892 P1

The Catholic
NEWS & HERALD
Serving Catholics in Western North Carolina in the Diocese of Charlotte

August 4, 2000
Volume 9 ▾ Number 42

Inside

Pope says tourism a means to greater global union
...Page 3

Addressing the needs of young adults
...Page 5

Witnesses support Infant Protections Act
...Page 7

Local News

Celebrating jubilee
Smoky Mountain Vicariate plans commemoration
...Page 3

Diocese to launch leadership program
...Page 8

Every Week

Entertainment
...Pages 10-11

Editorials & Columns
...Pages 12-13

The Transfiguration of Jesus: August 6

"And he was transfigured before them, and his clothes became dazzling white, such as no fuller on earth could bleach them."
— Mark 9: 3

New Roman Missal instruction brings minor changes

By JERRY FILTEAU
Catholic News Service

WASHINGTON (CNS) — The Vatican's new General Instruction of the Roman Missal, replacing the one issued in 1975, will not make big changes in the way churches are set up or Mass is celebrated in most places, but it will bring a number of small changes.

"These changes will bring us to a greater awareness of the sacredness of God's presence in the Mass," said Bishop William G. Curlin. "Jesus is our liturgy, and these rules are to make us more fully conscious of that reality."

Some of these are new rules, some are clarifications or greater emphasis in areas where some rules were sometimes ignored or subject to various interpretations.

Here are highlights of some of the areas where the 22,400-word Latin document, released July 28, gives new or clearer direction on the arrangement of the church and conduct during Mass:

— In the entrance procession, a deacon or reader may carry the Book of the Gospels, "slightly elevated." "The Lectionary is never carried in procession." No book is carried in the closing procession.

— Both the processional cross and, if there is one, the fixed cross on

See MISSAL, page 9

CNS photo courtesy Museo Vittoriano

An eighth-century mosaic titled "Ecclesia Romana" portrays a woman. The work is among the items in the exhibit "Women in the Times of the Jubilee" on display at Rome's Museo Vittoriano through Oct. 1. See page 9 for a related story.

Mass opens doors to gay and lesbian faithful

By JIMMY ROSTAR
Associate Editor

CHARLOTTE — During a year the Catholic Church is urging its faithful to be fully open to the experience of Christ, a Mass for lesbian and gay Catholics and those of other faith traditions reaffirmed their right to participate in church life in an atmosphere of welcome.

"A Celebration of Unity in the Spirit" was the theme of the July 26 Mass, celebrated at St. Peter Church by a half-dozen diocesan and religious priests serving the Diocese of Charlotte. The annual Mass for gays, lesbians, parents and supporters was sponsored by the diocese's Commission for Gay and Lesbian Ministry.

Among the commission's purposes is to foster a sense of welcome to those who often feel ostracized in church and societal settings. Especially in the past quarter-century, the Catholic Church has increased outreach to gays and lesbians while incorporating church teachings and pastoral concern.

"You are heroes for me," Jesuit Father Gene McCreesh, St. Peter Church parochial vicar and a committee member, told the ecumenical group during the Mass at which he presided. "This decade has been a beautiful one for me in my meeting you folks and seeing you staying there, believing and hoping...."

Father McCreesh's reference to heroes continued a theme set by Msgr. Richard Allen in his homily.

"Our world is built upon heroes," said Msgr. Allen, a retiring diocesan priest who would later receive a standing ovation for his ministry to gay and lesbian people. "They are made because of talents. They are made because of how they present themselves to people, to one another."

Msgr. Allen spoke of the heroic struggle people endure in the face of prejudice, injustice and controversy. That challenge, he added, can sometimes be better addressed by turning inward — and always by asking God's help as people of faith.

"This is a jubilee year, and although there is a lot of celebration

See WELCOME, page 9

Catholic health executives lobby on Medicare cuts

WASHINGTON (CNS) — More than 100 officials of Catholic health systems nationwide went to Congress July 18 to ask for help in staying afloat in the face of severe Medicare cuts. Their message was grim: The cuts in Medicare funding mandated by the Balanced Budget Act of 1997 for the years 1997-2002 have already left more than a third of U.S. hospitals struggling to maintain services and forced some home health agencies and nursing homes to cut services or close. The health care executives, all members of the Catholic Health Association, argued that the effects of the Balanced Budget Act have been unexpectedly and unintentionally harsh on those who receive funds from the Medicare program for the nation's elderly and the Medicaid program that pays for health care for low-income or disabled Americans.

Argentine bishop says illegal immigrants need amnesty

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (CNS) — Bishop Ruben Frassia, head of the Argentine bishops' migration and tourism commission, said tens of thousand of illegal immigrants should be included in a jubilee amnesty. "The bishops expect from the government a wide and generous amnesty for those undocumented immigrants who have come to Argentina looking for a better life," said Bishop Frassia at the end of a July 17-19 meeting on migration in the Andean city of Bariloche.

Altar honors U.S. missionary women killed in El Salvador

MARYKNOLL, N.Y. (CNS) — An altar honoring the four missionary women killed in El Salvador has been donated to the Maryknoll Sisters. Ursuline Sister Diane Therese Pinchot, who made the altar, told Catholic News Service she did not envision it for celebration of the Mass, but as a symbol of the sacrifice of life that had been offered up. It commemorates the four women killed by the El Salvador military on Dec. 2, 1980: Maryknoll Sisters Maura Clark and Ita Ford, Ursuline Sister Dorothy Kazel and a lay woman, Jean Donovan. The altar was on exhibit at the headquarters of the Maryknoll Fathers and Brothers from July 9. A service July 20 marked the presentation of the altar to the Maryknoll Sisters.

CNS PHOTO FROM REUTERS

South American mural

Residents of Macuto, Venezuela, pass a mural of Christ painted on a building destroyed by flooding and mudslides late last year. Despite record unemployment and crime in the South American country, President Hugo Chavez was re-elected in the July 31 presidential election. He has been in office since Febrary 1999.

Catholic agencies enlist foster care for former child soldiers

FREETOWN, Sierra Leone (CNS) — Two Catholic agencies in Sierra Leone have placed hundreds of former child soldiers in foster homes to help them readjust to society. Antisocial habits and violent tendencies of the former child soldiers, as well as the ongoing war in Sierra Leone, have made it difficult to reunite them with their families. Often the families are displaced, or they reject their children, said spokesmen for the two agencies, Caritas and the Family Homes Movement. "We decided to put them under foster parents so that they will be able to adjust in society," said Sunkari Koroma, project manager for Caritas.

Papal nuncio asks Ugandan youths to ignore advice on condom use

KAMPALA, Uganda (CNS) — The papal representative to Uganda has asked youths to ignore people who urge them to use condoms to prevent the spread of AIDS. Archbishop Christoph Pierre, apostolic nuncio to Uganda, made the appeal just two weeks after Ugandan Vice President Speciosa Wandira Kazibwe criticized religious leaders who oppose the use of condoms. Archbishop Pierre, celebrating Mass for Uganda Martyrs High School day July 29, said condoms are not a solution to AIDS.

Study finds teens benefit from religious, social justice programs

WASHINGTON (CNS) — A report funded by the Ford Foundation gives high marks to a program directing teens toward service, social justice and spiritual values. The program, E Pluribus Unum, brings together about 60 Protestant, Catholic and Jewish high school graduates for an intense three-week seminar about putting their faith into action. The program's name comes from the Latin phrase on U.S. coins which means, "Out of the many, one." It is sponsored by the Washington Institute for Jewish Leadership and Values, based in Rockville, Md., in cooperation with the National Federation for Catholic Youth Ministry and the National Council of Churches. The program is funded by the Lilly Endowment, the Ford Foundation and the Righteous Persons Foundation.

Anchorage Archdiocese helps young Russians get to World Youth Day

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (CNS) — At the request of Bishop Jerzy Mazur, eastern Siberia's apostolic administrator, the Anchorage Archdiocese will provide monetary assistance to send 45 young Russians to World Youth Day in Rome. The archdiocese's Russian Desk will contribute $20,000 in air and ground transportation costs for the Russians, according to director Brian Kuzel. He is preparing an appeal to area Catholics to help support the mission. The young Russians will join 60 youths from the archdiocese and hundreds of thousands from around the world at the Aug. 15-20 World Youth Day.

Middle East church leaders regret failure of peace talks

JERUSALEM (CNS) — Members of the Middle East Council of Churches said they "regret (the) painful failure" of U.S. brokered peace talks between Israeli and Palestinian leaders. In a statement issues July 26, the council members said they felt saddened "by the inability of the national leaders of Israel and Palestine — with the deft facilitation of the USA — to reach a just and long-lasting accord that will pave the way for a true resolution of this conflict." "We applaud the ... efforts of all leaders. We also remain convinced that peacemaking requires courage," said the statement.

The Catholic NEWS & HERALD

August 4, 2000
Volume 9 • Number 42
Publisher: Most Reverend William G. Curlin
Editor: Joann S. Keane
Associate Editor: Jimmy Rostar
Staff Writer: Alesha M. Price
Production Associate: Julie Radcliffe
Advertising Representative: Cindi Feerick
Secretary: Jane Glodowski
1123 South Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203
Mail: P.O. Box 37267, Charlotte, NC 28237
Phone: (704) 370-3333 FAX: (704) 370-3382
E-mail: catholicnews@charlottediocese.org

The Catholic News & Herald, USPC 007-393, is published by the Roman Catholic Diocese of Charlotte, 1123 South Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203, 44 times a year, weekly except for Christmas week and Easter week and every two weeks during June, July and August for $15 per year for enrollees in parishes of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Charlotte and $18 per year for all other subscribers. Second-class postage paid at Charlotte NC and other cities. POSTMASTER: Send address corrections to The Catholic News & Herald, P.O. Box 37267, Charlotte, NC 28237.

Episcopal calendar

Bishop William G. Curlin will take part in the following events:

Aug. 5
Permanent diaconate candidates installation to ministry of acolyte
St. Joseph, Newton

Aug. 13 — 4 p.m.
Charismatic Mass
St. Patrick Cathedral, Charlotte

Aug. 17 — 10 a.m.
Foundation board meeting
Catholic Conference Center, Hickory

Aug. 19-20
Homilist for the 300th anniversary of St. Peter Church, Waldorf, Md.
Cardinal James Hickey, celebrant

Aug. 21 — 5:30 p.m. Mass
Farewell celebration for Sister of Charity Loretto John Meehan Hayesville

Diocesan planner

August

5 HAYESVILLE — The Immaculate Heart of Mary Church Women's Club is holding its annual White Elephant Sale today from 8 a.m.-2 p.m. in the church commons, located on Hwy. 64, approximately one mile west of the traffic light. Furniture, small appliances, tools, household goods and books will be on sale, as well as sweets, coffee, homemade preserves, fresh vegetables and baked goods for the attendants. For further details, call Jerrie Kearney at (828) 389-1019.

7 CONYERS, Ga. — A Cistercian (Trappist) vocation awareness retreat for prayerful single men of all ages takes place today through Aug. 11 at Holy Spirit Monastery. The retreat is free, but space is limited. For reservations and details, call Natalie Smith at (954) 752-1332, write to 6311 NW 47 Ct., Coral Springs, Fla., 33067 or e-mail deserttraveler@aol.com.

9 CHARLOTTE — The 50+ Club of St. John Neumann Church, 8451 Idlewild Rd., is having a meeting today at 11 a.m. in the parish center with speaker Ruth Silverman. Lunch is being served, and a love offering is being taken during the meeting. For more information, call Gloria Silipigni at (704) 821-1343 or Louise Brewer at (704) 566-1200.

10 GREENSBORO — Franciscan Sister Bernadette Svatos, diocesan coordinator for Northern Region faith formation, is presenting "To Be a Mirror of Christ Was St. Claire's Way of Preaching the Gospel" at the Franciscan Center, 233 North Greene St., during the noontime session today from 12:10-1 p.m. Lunch is being served, and a love offering is being taken. For more information, call the center at (704) 273-2554.

12 HIGH POINT — Christ the King Church, 1505 East Kivett Dr., is celebrating a Mass in the Syro-Malabar

Smoky Mountain Vicariate to commemorate jubilee year

SMOKY MOUNTAIN VICARIATE — In a gesture of fellowship and solidarity in celebration of the jubilee year, the diocese's westernmost parishes are gathering for an outdoor jubilee Mass and picnic with Bishop William G. Curlin on Labor Day, Sept. 4, at the Swain County Recreation Park in Bryson City.

After the morning Mass, beginning at 11 a.m., where area candidates will receive the sacrament of confirmation, the community will gather for a covered dish feast in the park.

The vicariate invites the diocese to join them for a celebration of faith during the new millennium.

The Smoky Mountain Vicariate consists of the following churches: Holy Redeemer in Andrews, Immaculate Conception in Canton, Our Lady of Guadalupe in Cherokee, St. Francis of Assisi in Franklin, Immaculate Heart of Mary in Hayesville, Our Lady of the Mountains in Highlands, St. Margaret in Maggie Valley, St. William in Murphy, Prince of Peace in Robbinsville, St. Mary in Sylva, St. John in Waynesville and Catholic campus ministry from Western Carolina University in Cullowee.

For more information, call the St. Francis of Assisi Church office at (828) 524-2289.

Pastoral Assignments

Bishop William G. Curlin announces the following pastoral assignments:

Effective July 25, 2000:

New Vicars

Asheville Vicariate:	Very Rev. John Aurilia, OFM Cap., VF
Boone Vicariate:	Very Rev. John Schneider, VF
Gastonia Vicariate:	Very Rev. Eric Houseknecht, VF
Salisbury Vicariate:	Very Rev. John Smyth, CSSR, VF
Winston-SalemVicariate:	Very Rev. Francis O'Rourke, VF

Effective Sept. 1, 2000:

Rev. Edward Vilkauskas, CSSp	From: Pastor of Our Lady of Lourdes, Monroe To: Reassignment by religious community
Rev. Carlo Tarasi	From: Ministry outside diocese To: Pastor of Our Lady of Lourdes, Monroe

Tourism is means to greater global solidarity, pope says

PHOTO BY JOANN S.KEANE

BY JOHN NORTON
CATHOLIC NEWS SERVICE

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — Tourists open to encountering new people and situations play an important role in advancing a culture of global solidarity necessary for the 21st century, Pope John Paul II said.

In a message for the World Day of Tourism 2000, he noted that increased mobility brought on by technological advances has made tourism a more effective tool in breaking down cultural barriers.

"Tourism, which now takes on international dimensions, can thus become a precious contribution for the culture of solidarity and can promote that international cooperation which the jubilee encourages," he said.

The pope's message, addressed to Archbishop Stephen Fumio Hamoa, president of the Pontifical Council for Migrants and Travelers, was released at the Vatican Aug. 1 only in Italian.

The annual U.N.-sponsored World Tourism Day will be celebrated Sept. 27. This year's theme is "Technology and Nature: Two Challenges for Tourism at the Dawn of the 21st Century."

The pope said the jubilee's call to reconciliation with others invites all people to work for social justice and mutual understanding.

"In this way, the jubilee message pushes pilgrims and tourists to have eyes capable of 'seeing' the reality," he said, "especially when one has the opportunity to visit places and situations in which the people live in precarious human conditions or where the aspiration for fair development is seriously undermined by factors of environmental unbalance or structural injustice."

Bishop William G. Curlin will lead a pilgrimage to the Holy Land in March of 2001. The 10-day pilgrimage will depart Charlotte March 12, returning on the 21st. For registration information, send your name, address and phone number to: Editor Joann Keane, The Catholic News & Herald, 1123 S. Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203.

Rite in Malayalam at 6:30 p.m. tonight. For further details, call the church office at (336) 884-0244.

13 CHARLOTTE — Bishop Curlin is the celebrant at a charismatic Mass at St. Patrick Cathedral, 1621 Dilworth Rd. East, this afternoon at 4 p.m. with prayer teams available at 3 p.m. and a potluck dinner after the Mass in the school cafeteria. For more information, call Josie Backus at (704) 527-4676.

16 CHARLOTTE — Jesuit Father Gene McCreesh is facilitating "Spiritual Direction for Gays and Lesbians" at 7 p.m. tonight at St. Peter Church, 507 South Tryon St. For details, call Father Gene at (704) 332-5342.

18 HOT SPRINGS — There is a women's AA retreat being held at the Jesuit House of Prayer, 289 NW Hwy 25/70, this weekend. For all those in need of spiritual guidance and healing from the effects of alcoholism, write the Jesuit House of Prayer, P.O. Box 7, Hot Springs, N.C., 28743, or call (828) 622-7366.

19 MORGANTON — There is a Grand Ultreya for all cursillistas in the diocese, beginning with Mass at 10 a.m. this morning at St. Charles Borromeo Church, 714 West Union St., and followed by fellowship and potluck lunch with church community-donated dishes and beverages. More fellowship follows at Steele Creek Park after the event. For more information, call Tommy Barnhart at (336) 766-0377 or e-mail tbarnhar@bellsouth.net.

21 MAGGIE VALLEY — Augustinian Father Terry Hyland, director of the Living Waters Catholic Reflection Center, 103 Living Waters Lane, and Charity Sister Fran Grady, are hosting "Nature Retreat: Drink the Living Water" beginning today through Aug. 27. The purpose of the retreat is to hear the voices of infinity in the silence of the woods and to reacquaint one's self with the God of creation. For more information, call the center at (828) 926-3833 or e-mail lwcrc@main.nc.us.

25 WINSTON-SALEM — St. Leo the Great Church, 335 Springdale Ave., is having its semi-annual fall and winter children's clothing sale from 9 a.m.-1 p.m. this morning and 8 a.m.-noon tomorrow in the activity center. The proceeds from this sale will benefit church and outreach programs. To donate or for more information, call Linda Hutchinson at (336) 748-8277 or Liz Matthews at (336) 768-6641.

Upcoming

CROZET, Va. — A Cistercian (Trappist) vocation awareness retreat for prayerful single women of all ages is taking place Sept. 1-5 over Labor Day Weekend at Our Lady of the Angels Monastery. The retreat is free, but space is limited. For reservations and details, call Natalie Smith at (954) 752-1332, write to 6311 NW 47 Ct., Coral Springs, Fla., 33067 or e-mail deserttraveler@aol.com.

Ongoing

GLOVERVILLE, S.C. — The Daughters of Charity of St. Vincent de Paul invites single Catholic women between the ages of 19-55 to partner with them to aid the poor or needy, for one week, anytime throughout the year. This live-in program includes communal prayer, volunteer ministry to needy people and time for reflection on the Vincentian spirit of love. Opportunities to serve are in the following states: Washington D.C., Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and northern Florida. For further information, call Daughter of Charity Sister Maureen Houlihan at (803) 593-5158 or write P.O. Box 358, Gloverville, S.C., 29828.

Please submit notices of events for the Diocesan Planner at least 10 days prior to publication date.

Ex-missionary eager to work with students at Charlotte Catholic

By STEVE LYTTLE
The Charlotte Observer

CHARLOTTE — The Rev. James Cassidy's resume includes time served as a missionary in Nicaragua during the Contra war two decades ago.

The latest addition to that resume is principal at Charlotte Catholic High School.

Cassidy, 54, was named to the position earlier this month by Bishop William Curlin of the Charlotte Diocese.

Curlin said Cassidy "was among several candidates considered" by a selection committee.

> "I have the utmost respect for young Christians, because of the challenges and temptations they face."

Cassidy, a native of Manhattan, N.Y., is an Augustinian priest who frequently wears his order's robe as he works.

He said he enjoys working with youths and respects their special set of problems.

"I have the utmost respect for young Christians, because of the challenges and temptations they face," he said.

And the example set by adults is key in the growth of children, he said. "What we do tells our young people what we are about."

Cassidy follows Sister Paulette Williams, who was principal at Catholic High for 20 years and oversaw the move of the school from cramped quarters on Park Road to a new facility on N.C. 51 near Carmel Road.

Sister Paulette retired as an educator in June to take over an outreach ministry with the Sisters of Mercy.

Cassidy has considerable experience as an educator, most recently as dean of students and director of the guidance department at St. Augustine Prep in Richland, N.J., outside Philadelphia. He also was an administrator at Catholic schools in Washington and Miami.

From May 1986 to September 1987, he served as a missionary in Peru and then in Nicaragua. "I saw the Contra war up close," he said.

The Catholic Diocese also has announced that Reverend Stephen Hoyt, who was popular among students as chaplain at Catholic High several years ago, is returning to that post.

Reprinted with permission of The Charlotte Observer. Steve Lyttle is a staff writer with The Charlotte Observer and parishioner at St. John Neumann Catholic Church in Charlotte.

Catherine's House receives award honoring sister

BELMONT — The first Sister Mary Barbara Sullivan Award was presented recently to Catherine's House in the Legislative Building of State Congress in Raleigh by the North Carolina Low Income Housing Coalition.

The honor is bestowed for commitment to the needs of very low-income individuals in the state. In the spirit of the award's namesake, this achievement marks an organization's exemplary efforts in the field.

Catherine's House, a ministry of the Sisters of Mercy of North Carolina, provides transitional housing for women and children who are homeless.

As the first official award recipient, Catherine's House was honored at a formal press conference at the State Capitol that also included recognition of two state legislators who have worked diligently for the causes of the North Carolina Low Income Housing Coalition over the past year. Sister Rosalind Picot, president of the Sisters of Mercy of North Carolina, accepted the award along with Sister Maureen Dees, a long-time volunteer and supporter of Catherine's House.

Father John Murphy, OSFS, dies at age 69

HIGH POINT — Oblate of St. Francis de Sales Father John S. Murphy, who ministered and lived in the Triad area of North Carolina for more than 20 years, died Monday, July 24, 2000, at High Point Regional Hospital. He was 69 years old.

An educator, pastor and chaplain during his ordained life, Father Murphy served as pastor of Our Lady of the Highways Church in Thomasville and chaplain of Maryfield Nursing Home in High Point from 1977-97. From 1997-99, he continued his role as chaplain at Maryfield, where he was a resident until his death.

Prior pastoral and educational assignments took him to Maryland, New York, Pennsylvania and Washington, D.C.

Oblate assignments included a postulate novitiate from July 1947 to September 1947; a novice noviate from September 1947 to September 1948; study from 1948-52 at De Chantal Hall in Lewiston, N.Y.; a teacher of mathematics and chemistry at Northeast Catholic High School in Philadelphia from 1952-54; theology study at De Sales Hall School of Theology in Washington from 1954-58; teacher of mathematics at Father Judge High School in Philadelphia from 1958-64; a teacher of mathematics at the Allentown College of St. Francis de Sales in Center Valley, Pa., from 1964-72; and parish work in Wernersville, Pa., and in Thomasville, N.C.

The son of the late John B. Murphy Sr. and the late Jeanne D. Murphy of Philadelphia, Pa., Father Murphy was born Nov. 30, 1930, in Philadelphia. He received a bachelor's degree in Latin from Niagara University in Niagara, N.Y., in 1952, and a master's in mathematics from the Catholic University of America in Washington in 1956. He then pursued graduate studies at Villanova University in Villanova, Pa., and at the University of Philadelphia.

He entered the Oblates of St. Francis de Sales in July 1947, made his first profession a year later and made his perpetual profession Nov. 20, 1951. He was ordained to the priesthood on June 8, 1957, at St. Anthony of Padua Church in Wilmington, Del.

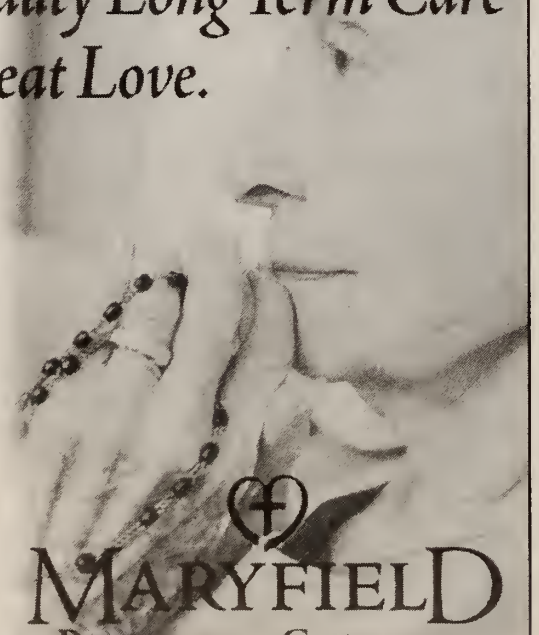
Always an avid golfer, Father Murphy qualified to compete in many amateur tournaments, including the 1972 National Amateur Championship Tournament at the Charlotte Country Club in Charlotte.

Bishop William G. Curlin presided at a memorial Mass at Maryfield Nursing Home July 26 following a viewing there. A Mass of Christian burial was celebrated July 28, following a viewing, at Our Lady of Light Chapel at the De Sales Center in Childs, Md. Interment was in the Oblate cemetery on the De Sales Center grounds.

Father Murphy is survived by a sister, Madeline Magee; two brothers, John Rent and Frank Murphy; and many nieces and nephews.

In lieu of flowers, the Oblates request that memorial contributions be sent to Oblate Retirement Fund, 2200 Kentmere Parkway, Wilmington, DE 19806.

Providing Quality Long Term Care ...With Great Love.



For half a century, Maryfield Nursing Home has provided outstanding nursing care in a Catholic environment. When you need more care than is available at your home, come visit us. We invite you to discover for yourself our many stimulating daily activities and services which make Maryfield the best possible choice for Long Term Care.

1315 Greensboro Road
High Point, NC 27260
336.886.2444 Fax 336.886.4036
www.greensboro.com/mnh

MARYFIELD
A Continuing Care Retirement Community

THE Independent Advantage
SPELMAN & CO., INC.
A SunAmerica Company

351 N. Peacehaven Road, Winston-Salem, NC 27104
Local: (336) 768-4709
Fax: (336) 778-1444
Toll-free: (800) 859-7847

THOMAS M. PRYBYLO
Retirement Specialist
Member NASD, SIPC

Press:
Extension 11 for free e-mail newsletter
Extension 12 for LongTerm Care brochure
Extention 13 for daily stock market update

WEB SITES:
For realtime quotes & financial calculators:
www.prybylofinancial.com

For LongTerm Care/Disability Insurance:
kestlerfinancial.com/agents/prybylo.htm

For Term/Family Life Insurance:
agentslink.com/tpryb/

Representatives gather to address young adult needs

BY ALESHA M. PRICE
STAFF WRITER

CHARLOTTE — Colleen McDermott, diocesan director of campus and young adult ministry, was one of 50 invited participants to the "futuring symposium" entitled "Meeting the Challenges of Ministry with Young Adults in a New Millennium."

The conference, held July 17-20 in Omaha, Nebraska, was sponsored by the Center for Ministry Development, the National Association of Campus Ministry and the National Association of Young Adult Ministry and underwritten by the Louisville Institute. The conference results will help shape the direction of diocesan young adult ministry for the next decade.

"The idea was to look at the research about Catholic young adults, their experiences, education level and their knowledge about their religion and develop a plan for the next 10 years," explained McDermott, a board member of the National Association of Diocesan Directors of Campus Ministry. "The point was to, in a focused way, bring people together from around the country to look at the findings and get them published in order to assist those involved with young adult ministry."

Colleen McDermott

Young adult, parish and campus ministers, military chaplains, ecumenical leaders, affiliates from Catholic organizations from around the country and Bishop Kevin Britt, chairman of the Subcommittee on Youth and Young Adults of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, met to study and discuss materials collected over a six-year span about the needs of young adults in the Catholic Church. The result was a guideline, depicting the "ideal church" of the next decade, to assist campus and young adult ministers, national Catholic organizations and other groups to better understand the younger generation.

"The ideal church, open to young adults, would be justice-oriented and diverse by design. It would reach out to others and be made up of evangelizing, intergenerational and authentic communities," explained McDermott.

Over the course of the six years, "Ministry with Young Adults - A National Catholic Initiative," a research project of the Catholic Campus Ministry Association and the National Catholic Young Adult Ministry Association, consisted of conferences, development of writing resources geared for young adults, ages 18 to 39, and individual diocesan in-service workshops. Funded by the Raskob Foundation, the findings were compiled by the Center for Applied Research in the Apostolate or CARA from Georgetown University. The purpose of last month's symposium, a culmination of the six-year endeavor, was to figure out what is next, a "where-do-we-go-from-here" approach.

One of the general findings was many young adults do not have the religious vocabulary that the previous generation had and that many do not have the faith experience of earlier generations, said McDermott.

"The young adults of this postmodern culture, ages 39 and under, were raised differently in terms of cultural changes and education," she said. "There is a hunger for spirituality, but it is not being recognized.

SEE MCDERMOTT, PAGE 8

Miss Donna's School of Dancing
Tap Ballet Jazz
Lyrical
Classes Start Sept 5
Ages 2 to Adult
Yearly Recital at Ovens Auditorium

Serving Charlotte for 44 years. Call any of Our Locations for More Info
*Amity Gardens Shopping Ctr. 537-1344
*Matthews Area 847-4333
*Oakdale/Coulwood 399-7052
*Harrisburg 455-9408
*Carmel/Pineville 451-5042
NATIONAL COMPETITION WINNERS

Vinny's Painting Inc.
Free estimates (704) 846-0747
Interior/Exterior • Residential/Commercial
Licensed and Insured
Member of St. Matthew Church

Advertise here!
Call (704) 370-3332 for details.

VGA & SVGA Refurbished Computer Monitors
14" — $20-$25
15" — $35-$38
17" — $70-$125
20" Call for details
30 day warranty
Over 2000 monitors in stock!
MONITORS DEPOT
O.C. STAFFORD ELECTRONIC SERVICE & DEVELOPMENT COMPANY
408 Banner Ave., Greensboro, NC 27401
E-mail: urpac408@worldnet.att.net
(336) 274-9917

Caring for Charlotte Area Catholic Families in Their Hour of Need Since 1926
McEWEN FUNERAL SERVICE, INC.
Charlotte 704-334-6421
Pineville 704-544-1412
Mint Hill 704-545-4864
Derita 704-596-3291

The Center is centrally located in the Piedmont of North Carolina. Located only an hour's drive from three major cities assures meeting planners and attendees a meeting that is more accessible than ever. Being accessible to the country and a peaceful setting is a meeting place only we can offer!
1551 Trinity Lane
Hickory, NC 28602
(828) 327-7441
Toll-free (888) 536-7441
ccc@twave.net
www.catholicconference.org

Lutheran layman channels millions to Catholic education

PORTLAND, Ore. (CNS) — When Warne Nunn looks out his office window at St. Mary's Academy, he sees two things that make him smile. One is the Portland all-girls' Catholic high school where his Lutheran-raised granddaughter received a "great education." The other is that the venerable red-brick academy looks especially good these days, in part because two years ago he helped funnel $1 million of Meyer Memorial Trust money to remodel it. Nunn is past board chairman of the trust, which has $535 million in assets and is one of Oregon's largest foundations aiding not-for-profit organizations. "I'm hooked on Catholic schools," he told the Catholic Sentinel, newspaper of the Archdiocese of Portland and Diocese of Baker.

German Archbishop Dyba dies of heart failure at age 70

COLOGNE, Germany (CNS) — Archbishop Johannes Dyba of Fulda, whose outspokenness sometimes put him at odds with fellow bishops, died of heart failure July 23. He was 70. Bishop Karl Lehmann of Mainz, chairman of the German bishops' conference, said Archbishop Dyba's death early the morning of July 23 "left a big gap" in the conference. Archbishop Dyba had always "spoken passionately for a decisive way of being a Christian, and an unambiguous position for the church. Although we often argued with him, his humanity and humor often helped us," said Bishop Lehmann.

Nebraska coach hands off signed football to archbishop

OMAHA, Neb. (CNS) — Football players with the University of Nebraska Cornhuskers had a gift for retired Archbishop Daniel E. Sheehan of Omaha that he couldn't pass up: a signed football. Head coach Frank Solich handed off the ball — bearing the signatures of players on the preseason team — to the archbishop at the Alegent Health Mercy Care Center in Omaha July 15. The 83-year-old prelate is staying at the center while being treated for a malignant brain tumor. "I've been reading some football magazines and you're rated No. 1 by some of them," said Archbishop Sheehan, wearing a red polo shirt with the word "Huskers" on the pocket. "So I've heard, but I don't read those magazines," the Nebraska coach said with a smile. "We've got a long season ahead of us and that's what I'm concentrating on."

CNS PHOTO BY DAVE HRBACEK, CATHOLIC SPIRIT

Volunteer makes quilts for newborns

Roman Friendshuh prepares quilt material for sewing at his home in St. Michael, Minn. The 86-year-old retiree and his wife have sewn more than 6,000 quilts for newborns along the Texas-Mexico border.

In Jerusalem, U.S. Catholic educators study Holocaust

JERUSALEM (CNS) — Thirteen Catholic educators from throughout the United States spent an intensive month at the International School for Holocaust Studies at Jerusalem's Yad Vashem Holocaust memorial. It is the 12th year groups of Catholic educators have participated in the program through the Seton Hill Catholic Institute for Holocaust Studies, founded in 1987 by Sister Gemma del Duca, a member of the Sisters of Charity of Seton Hill, and Seton Hill President JoAnne Boyle. Sister del Duca, originally from Greensburg, Pa., is a former associate professor of history and chair of the history department at Seton Hill College, Greensburg, Pa., and has lived in Israel since 1975.

Hong Kong Cardinal Wu celebrates 25th anniversary as bishop

HONG KONG (CNS) — Cardinal John Baptist Wu Cheng-chung of Hong Kong, joined by 106 concelebrants, celebrated Mass marking his 25th anniversary as a bishop. About 1,000 local and expatriate clergy, religious and laity packed the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception July 25 for the anniversary Mass. The cardinal, who turned 75 in March, prayed for God's blessing so that Catholics in the diocese be "united in communion to share our faith and proclaim Christ, to serve the community and work together to make Hong Kong a better place in which to live — free, just and more humane."

What's the Road Like Up Ahead?

The road we have to travel is very different for each of us. The only certainty is that we all must end the journey some day.

If you take the time to prepare for that journey's end now, your family and favorite parish, school, and diocesan ministry will be supported.

A will is an essential part of that overall plan for your life's journey.

For the free booklet "How to Make a Will that Works," call Jim Kelley at (704) 370-3301 or send the coupon below.

Please send me the booklet "How to Make a Will that Works"

NAME _____

ADDRESS _____

CITY _____ STATE _____ ZIP _____

PHONE _____

E-MAIL _____

Mail to: Jim Kelley, Director of Development, Diocese of Charlotte, 1123 South Church Street, Charlotte, NC 28203

The Franciscan Center

Catholic Gift & Book Store

Over 700 Book Titles, plus Bibles, Rosaries, Statues, Medals, Tapes, CD's, Plaques, & much, much more!

Hours: 9am - 5pm Monday - Friday

(336) 273-2554 233 N. Greene St. Greensboro, NC 27401

The Diocese of Charlotte

CATHOLIC SOCIAL SERVICES

1123 South Church St.
Charlotte, NC 28203
www.cssitc.org

Executive Director:
Elizabeth Thurbee (704) 370-3228
Refugee Office:
Cira Ponce (704) 370-6930
Justice & Peace:
Joanne K. Frazer (704) 370-3225
Special Ministries:
Gerard A. Carter (704) 370-3250

Charlotte Area: 1123 South Church Street, Charlotte, NC 28203
Area Director: Geri King (704) 370-6155
Western Area: 50 Orange Street, Asheville, NC 28801
Area Director: Sister Marie Frechette (828) 255-0146
Piedmont-Triad Area: 621 W. Second Street, Winston-Salem, NC 27108
Area Director: David Harold (336) 727-0705
Greensboro Satellite Office: (336) 274-5577
High Point Hispanic Center: (336) 884-5858

For information on specific programs, please call your local office.

Witnesses back bill to protect infants who survive abortions

By NANCY FRAZIER O'BRIEN
Catholic News Service

WASHINGTON (CNS) — An abortion survivor, a Princeton professor and a nurse who has comforted infants born after botched abortions testified before a House subcommittee July 20 about a bill that would entitle those infants to medical care.

The testimony on H.R. 4292, the proposed Born Alive Infants Protection Act of 2000, came before the House Judiciary Committee's subcommittee on the Constitution, chaired by Rep. Charles Canady, R-Fla., chief sponsor of the legislation.

"If a child born alive after a botched abortion does not receive the protection of the law, what is to prevent an abortionist from simply delivering a child and killing it?" Canady asked at the hearing.

The bill was approved by the House Judiciary Committee by a 22-1 vote July 26.

Witnesses included Gianna Jessen, a 23-year-old survivor of a late-term saline abortion; Robert P. George, a professor of jurisprudence in the department of politics at Princeton; and Jill L. Stanek, a registered nurse who works in the labor and delivery department at Christ Hospital in Oak Lawn, Ill.

All three spoke in favor of the legislation, but the National Abortion and Reproductive Rights Action League said in a statement at the hearing that the bill "attempts to inject Congress into what should be personal and private decisions about medical treatment."

Helen Alvare, director of planning and information for the U.S. bishops' Secretariat for Pro-Life Activities, said the NARAL comment demonstrated a "frightening opinion" that "the decision to kill a fully born infant, at any stage of development, is a personal and private medical decision."

"Nothing could prove more persuasively the need for Congress to reaffirm the obvious fact that live-born infants are persons," Alvare said. "If our lawmakers do not take a stand now, whose life will be next?"

The Born Alive Infants Protection Act states that any infant "who is completely expelled or extracted from her mother and who is alive" is a person under federal law, regardless of the child's lung development, his or her expected chances of survival or whether the baby survived an abortion.

"When the freedoms of one group of helpless citizens are infringed upon, such as the unborn, the newborn, the disabled and so-called 'imperfect,' what we do not realize is that our freedoms as a nation and individuals are in great peril."
— Gianna Gessen

"We as people of faith must educate ourselves about the facts, and the facts are frightening," said Maggie Nadol, program director for Respect Life Ministry in the Diocese of Charlotte. "NARAL is arguing that Congress is infringing on personal and medical issues with the Born Alive Infants Protection Act. Obviously, their agenda goes beyond abortion rights. It is appalling that we are even at the point where we need a bill to recognize a newborn as a fully-formed human being."

Jessen's testimony recounted the details of her birth in a California abortion clinic after 18 hours in a saline solution.

"When the freedoms of one group of helpless citizens are infringed upon, such as the unborn, the newborn, the disabled and so-called 'imperfect,' what we do not realize is that our freedoms as a nation and individuals are in great peril," she added.

Born with cerebral palsy because of a lack of oxygen to the brain, Jessen said she now has only "a slight limp" after using a walker or leg braces for years.

George spoke about the views of fellow Princeton professor Peter Singer, who he said has recognized "a class of human beings, including newborn infants, who are, in effect, nonpersons" and thus could be killed.

"The legitimization of infanticide constitutes a grave threat to the principle of human equality at the heart of American civil rights ideals," George added.

Stanek, who has worked for five years at Christ Hospital, said a procedure called "live-birth abortion" is used there and "it is not uncommon" for live aborted babies to survive "for an hour or two or even longer."

Aborted children born alive receive "no medical assessments or care" but get only the "comfort care" of being wrapped in a blanket, Stanek said.

She recalled one night when a nursing colleague was taking a Down syndrome baby who was born alive to the hospital's soiled utility room "because his parents did not want to hold him, and she did not have time to hold him."

"I could not bear the thought of this suffering child dying alone in a soiled utility room, so I cradled and rocked him for the 45 minutes that he lived," she said.

"Something is very wrong with a legal system that says doctors are mandated to pronounce babies dead but are not mandated to assess babies for life and chances of survival," Stanek said. "No other children in America are medically abandoned like this."

In a July 25 letter to members of Congress, Gail Quinn, executive director of the bishops' pro-life secretariat, urged swift enactment of the legislation to deter moves by abortion advocates to expand abortion "rights" to encompass killing after birth.

The Supreme Court's majority opinion on Nebraska's partial-birth abortion law "has made it clear that until the court's own thinking changes or a constitutional amendment can be passed, no child in the womb (or even partly in the womb) will have meaningful legal protection," Quinn wrote.

"Our immediate task, as this Congress nears its end, is to ensure that the lethal mentality of Roe (vs. Wade) does not claim new victims — vulnerable human beings struggling for their lives outside the womb," she added.

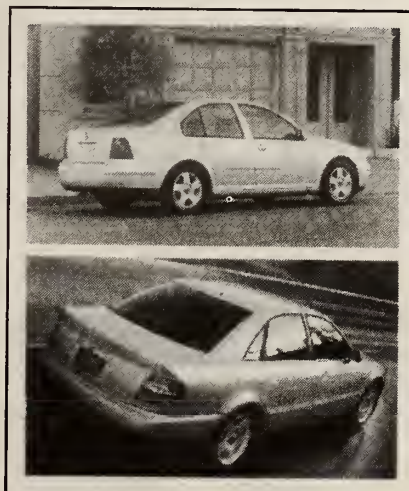
ANNUITY OWNERS READ THIS!

Many annuity owners lose 50% of the value of their annuity when it pays off! Will this happen to you?

It's true. Annuities and IRAs can be double-taxed assets (subject to income taxes PLUS estate taxes). After estate taxes and income taxes, there can be as little as 50% of the value remaining.

You can learn how to avoid the loss in the FREE educational booklet "Annuity Owner Mistakes." The booklet is FREE and shows how to avoid double taxation and get more benefits from your existing annuity value.

For your FREE copy
CALL
1-800-291-2048
Charlotte



We Warn You: If You Drive One You're Gonna Want One!

Volkswagen and Audi...the only car companies to have every model named best in its class. Find out why. Come in for a thrill ride today.

Honest pricing, honest financing, and honest service on Europe's most exciting new cars. From the incredible New Beetle, to the all new Jetta IV and luxurious new generation of Audi, we have the right car for your pocketbook...and your lifestyle.

Volkswagen — Audi South
John Diederich, Owner
Member Saint Gabriel Parish

7401 South Boulevard . Charlotte . 704.552.6500 . 800.426.5347
www.vwsouth.com . www.audisouth.com

The Brazilians are coming...
566-1009

Leadership training program to be launched in Charlotte Diocese

CHARLOTTE — A pilot leadership program geared for lay ministers in the Diocese of Charlotte will launch this fall, the diocese's Education Vicariate announced recently.

The new program will feature three tracks focusing on leadership skills, law issues and ministerial skills for people primarily in educational ministry, said Father James Hawker, diocesan vicar for education.

The program is sponsored by the Education Vicariate and will differ from the diocesan lay ministry program currently in operation.

"This program is designed to assist those in leadership in parishes to be more effective in their roles and responsibilities," said Father Hawker.

"We are inviting people who are involved in a variety of education ministry — youth ministers, parish catechetical leaders, campus ministers, school principals and so forth," he added.

A panel of diocesan and professional leaders has been assembled to lead the workshops, scheduled for Nov. 3-5 at the Diocese of Charlotte Pastoral Center, 1123 S. Church St. in Charlotte.

The program is also scheduled for March 2001.

Presenters include a diverse team of business leaders from the area who will facilitate workshops on leadership skills, including leadership models, organizational and listening skills, conflict management, and volunteer recruitment and management.

Diocesan officials include Rev. Mr. Curtiss Todd, vice chancellor, who will discuss employment issues; Richard Lucey, diocesan attorney, who will lead a workshop on civil law; and Father Peter Jugis, judicial vicar, who will address canon law. A range of legal concerns will be addressed in this track.

In another track, issues of catechetical ministry will be discussed. Joanna Case, an educator, will discuss facilitating the faith experience. Terry Aiken will discuss developing skills for multicultural sensitivities. A third workshop will focus on advocacy skills for marginalized people.

Workshops will run from 7 to 9:30 p.m. on Nov. 3; 9 a.m. to noon on Nov. 4; and 1 to 4 p.m. on Nov. 4.

Brochures and registration information will be available Sept. 15.

For more information, contact the Diocese of Charlotte Education Office, 1123 S. Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203, (704) 370-3244.

COURTESY PHOTO

Abbot Placid Solari, abbot of Belmont Abbey, recently presided at his first celebration of the sacrament of confirmation since his election, at St. John the Baptist Church in Tryon. Pictured with Abbot Placid and the confirmation class is Father Gregg Littleton, far left, administrator of St. John the Baptist Church.

McDermott, from page 5

Young adults are asking for more spiritual education but are not receiving it."

Also, the tendency of these young adults to move from place to place has an effect on their parish and diocesan affiliations, she continued. "Many young adults tend to not register in the churches they attend because of their mobility. I have been trying to make sure we are reaching out to all colleges in the diocese; however, I think we are missing many young adults who have graduated and those in the workforce."

One way that McDermott hopes to reach these young adults is through diocesan and regional gatherings where people can discuss issues that affect them and to become acquainted with other Catholics in their age range. Moreover, she would like for vocation directors from religious communities to be in attendance at the gatherings.

"I would like for that background of faith formation and religious education, of which many young adults are not aware, to be present at the gatherings, and for the attendants to be exposed to priests, deacons and women religious," she said.

McDermott hopes that through diocesan endeavors, a yearly conference, retreats and the sustained involvement of vocational directors, young adult ministry will continue to develop and grow in the near future.

Contact Staff Writer Alesha M. Price by calling (704) 370-3354 or e-mail amprice@charlottediocese.org.

COACHXCEL
A Personal Coach Is to Your Mind and Spirit What A Personal Trainer Is to Your Body.
• Achieve more success and significance both personally and professionally
• Earn more money while growing personally
• Attain better overall health with less stress
• Possess higher self confidence and reach your goals
For a complimentary consultation call
John Connors, LPC @ 704-597-4184
Licensed Professional Counselor

Schools
Institutions
Daycares
Churches
Sales Offices
Recreational Facilities
Banks
Medical Facilities
Offering turn-key and professional solutions with Custom Modular Buildings to meet your growing and changing needs!
MODULARCORP
1803 East Wendover Ave., Suite E
Greensboro, NC 27405
(336) 275-8274 (336) 275-8649 fax
E-mail: modular@greensboro.com
Daniel Murray, President — St. Pius X Parishioner
Member of: MODULAR BUILDING INSTITUTE
Visit our Web site! www.modularcorp.com

30 YEARS EXPERIENCE
PYANO MAN
HENRY C. ROZELL III
2nd Generation • Piano Tuner/Technician
Piano Tuning, Repairs, Refinishing
Pianos Bought and Sold
FREE ESTIMATES
704-321-5843

Attention
DIABETICS
with Medicare or Insurance
Save Money on Diabetic Supplies!
For more information call:
1-800-337-4144
Medicare also pays for pump & pump supplies

Groce
FUNERAL HOME & CREMATION SERVICE
1401 Patton Ave. Asheville, NC (828) 252-3535
72 Long Shoals Road Arden, NC (828) 687-3530
Assuring Absolute Integrity
Asheville's Catholic Funeral Directors
Dale Groce • John Prock
Toll-free (888) 874-3535
Pre-arrangements and obituaries on-line at www.grocefuneralhome.com

Last Call: Italy pilgrimage

By JOANN S. KEANE
Editor

CHARLOTTE — The unique opportunity of being witness to canonization ceremonies in St. Peter Square is still within reach.

When Blessed Katherine Drexel and Mother Josephine Bakhita are canonized on Oct. 1, pilgrims from the Diocese of Charlotte will be present as Pope John Paul II conducts the canonization in St. Peter Square.

Rev. Mr. Curtiss Todd, vice chancellor and vicar for African American Affairs will lead the group who will first visit Assisi and Florence before spending several days in Rome.

Blessed Katherine Drexel, who walked among the African-American and Native American people of her time, heard the cries of injustice, listened to hopes for unity and dreams of peace.

While a young woman, Katherine became aware of the desperate plight of African-Americans and Native Americans for whom she built 14 boarding schools in nine different states, including North Carolina.

Blessed Josephine Bakhita was born in Sudan in 1869 and died in Vicenza, Italy in 1947.

This African flower who knew the anguish of kidnapping and of slavery, bloomed marvelously in Italy, in response to God's grace, close to the Daughters of Charity. In Vicenza, where she spent many years of her life, everyone still calls her "our Black Mother."

She was guided from her Sudanese slavery through innumerable and unspeakable suffering to human freedom and to the freedom of faith, and finally to the consecration of her whole life to God.

A few slots on this pilgrimage are still available. This eight-day trip is $2,190 per person, based on double occupancy, and includes hotel, air, breakfast and dinner daily as well as admission fees and local travel.

Contact Editor Joann Keane by calling (704) 370-3336 or e-mail jskeane@charlottediocese.org

Welcome, from page 1

to it ... there is a time for introspection," Msgr. Allen said. "We must also come to terms with places that we have failed, the times that we have not lived up to our hero status."

The congregation he addressed is blessed, he said, because they gather with "a knowledge and an appreciation of who God is." Opportunities like this, he added, are not merely for socializing, but rather for feeling "a real sense of holiness in this place" and "to experience how that is lived out" in daily life.

Msgr. Allen also took time to acknowledge the families, friends and supporters of people who are gay. "It is a wonderful thing to know that you seek God's blessing in a special way in what it is that you do for those who are your own flesh and blood," he added to family members.

The Mass of welcome is one of several events and services the diocesan commission is involved in each year. The commission's primary goal is to advise the bishop on matters of pastoral care of gay and lesbian people, ensuring their welcome in the church community.

At the recommendation of the diocese's presbyteral council, Bishop William G. Curlin established the commission as a board of consulters and advisers in the fall of 1996. The ministry, say commission members, is based on the Gospel message, church teachings and pastoral care, and is attentive to the insights of the current human sciences.

Contact Associate Editor Jimmy Rostar by calling (704) 370-3334, or E-mail jtrostar@charlottediocese.org.

Missal, from page 1

or near the altar are to have the figure of the crucified Christ on them.

— One way the people express their unity is by "uniformity in their gestures and postures"; they "are to shun any appearance of individualism or division."

— The tabernacle may be either in a chapel of reservation or in the sanctuary, but it is not to be on the altar where Mass is celebrated.

— There is to be one free-standing altar for celebrating Mass, and the priest celebrates facing the people "whenever possible."

— If the Eucharist is reserved in the sanctuary, the priest and all ministers involved in the celebration genuflect toward it only at the beginning and end of Mass, never during the celebration. Cross and candle bearers bow their heads instead of genuflecting at those times. If the Eucharist is not reserved in the sanctuary, priest and ministers bow their body toward the altar.

— Instead of standing at the prayer over the gifts before the preface, the people stand when the priest invites them, "Pray that our sacrifice...."

— During the eucharistic prayer, "as a general rule" the deacon assisting at the altar kneels from the epiclesis, or invocation of the Spirit, until the elevation of the chalice.

— The priest may exchange the sign of peace with the ministers around the altar and "for a good reason" with a few of the faithful, but he should not leave the sanctuary.

— The breaking of the bread before Communion "is reserved to the priest and the deacon."

— Lay eucharistic ministers do not approach the altar until the priest has received Communion.

— Whether after Communion or after Mass, only a priest, deacon or formally instituted acolyte is to cleanse the sacred vessels.

— A genuflection "signifies adoration" and is made only to the Blessed Sacrament and, on Good Friday and Holy Saturday, in solemn adoration of the cross.

The U.S. bishops' Committee on the Liturgy prepared the English study translation of the text and devoted the June-July issue of its newsletter to a commentary on it.

By agreement with the Holy See, the committee planned to post the official Latin text of the instruction on the Internet as soon as it was released, for viewing or downloading free. It can be found under the liturgy deppartment section of the Web site www.nccbuscc.org.

The instruction is meant to accompany the third edition of the Roman Missal and will take effect with the promulgation of that missal, which is expected to be published later this year.

In general the new text gives increased emphasis to the proper blessing and care of those things intended for use in the liturgy.

Let stairs be our problem... not yours!

Ask about our Stairway lifts.

- Easily attached to steps (not walls)
- Folds out of the way
- Fits most stairways (straight & curved)
- Very affordable (rent or buy)
- We install

Chair & Equipment Rentals & Sales, Inc.
800 Central Ave. • Charlotte, NC • (800) 333-8431
Member of St. Thomas Aquinas

For more information, please write:
Fr. Ed McDevitt, C.O. or Fr. Joe Pearce, C.O.
The Oratory
P.O. Box 11586
Rock Hill, SC 29731-1586

Join us in serving God as priest or brother.

Our Oratorian Congregation was founded in Rome by St. Philip Neri in 1575. Known as "The Apostle of Joy," St. Phillip lived this virtue and brought people of all ages and backgrounds to the Church.

As a group of priests and lay men, we live a community life without vows and serve the people of God in various ministries:

- Parishes
- Retreat Work
- Nursing
- Campus Ministry
- Youth Summer Camp
- Hospital Chaplaincy

Like our ministries, our members are unique and come from across the United States and from Brazil.

Carolina Volkswagen
6625 E. Independence Blvd., Charlotte
(704) 537-2336 • (800) 489-2336

Biggest Selection — Drivers wanted. — Lowest Prices

"Nothing Could Be Finer" Members of St. Gabriel

#1 Volkswagen Dealer in Charlotte and all the Carolinas for customer sales and service satisfaction!
C'mon in and see why!

Weekly Scripture

Readings for the week of Aug. 6 - 12, 2000

Sunday (Transfiguration of the Lord), Daniel 7:9-10, 13-14, 2 Peter 1:16-19, Mark 9:2-10; Monday (Sts. Sixtus II & Companions), Jeremiah 28:1-17, Matthew 14:13-21; Tuesday (St. Dominic), Jeremiah 30:1-2, 12-15, 18-22, Matthew 14:22-36; Wednesday, Jeremiah 31:1-7, Matthew 15:21-28; Thursday (St. Lawrence), 2 Corinthians 9:6-10, John 12:24-26; Friday (St. Clare), Nahum 2:1, 3; 3:1-3, 6-7, Matthew 16:24-28; Saturday, Habakkuk 1:12-2:4, Matthew 17:14-20

Readings for the week of Aug. 13 - 19, 2000

Sunday, 1 Kings 19:4-8, Ephesians 4:30-5:2, John 6:41-51; Monday (St. Maximilian Kolbe), Ezekiel 1:2-5, 24-28, Matthew 17:22-27; Tuesday (The Assumption of Mary), Revelation 11:19; 12:1-6, 10, 1 Corinthians 15:20-27, Luke 1:39-56; Wednesday (St. Stephen of Hungary), Ezekiel 9:1-7; 10:18-22, Matthew 18:15-20; Thursday, Ezekiel 12:1-2, Matthew 18:21-19:1; Friday (St. Jane Frances de Chantal), Ezekiel 16:1-15, 60, 63, Matthew 19:3-12; Saturday (St. John Eudes), Ezekiel 18:1-10, 13, 30-32, Matthew 19:13-15

Best Sellers

Here is the hardcover Catholic Bestsellers List for August 2000, according to the Catholic Book Publishers Association.

1. "Lamb's Supper." Scott Hahn (Doubleday)
2. "Life of the Beloved." Henri J.M. Nouwen (Crossroad)
3. "Catechism of the Catholic Church." (Our Sunday Visitor)
4. "She Said Yes." Misty Bernall (Plough Publishing)
5. "Imitation of Christ." Thomas a Kempis (Catholic Book Publishing)
6. "Butler's Lives of the Saints," December. Kathleen Jones (Liturgical Press)
7. "Witness to Hope." George Weigel (HarperCollins)
8. "Why Forgive." Johann Christoph Arnold (Plough Publishing)
9. "Lives of the Saints" Vol. 1. Hugo Hoever (Catholic Book Publishing)
10. "Expositions of the Psalms, 1-32." Augustine of Hippo (New City Press)

Word to Life

August 6, The Transfiguration of the Lord,

Cycle B Readings:

1) Daniel 7:9-10, 13-14
Psalm 97:1-2, 5-6, 9
2) 2 Peter 1:16-19
3) Gospel: Mark 9:2-10

BY BEVERLY CORZINE
CATHOLIC NEWS SERVICE

Years ago in West Texas when oil caused whole towns to rise from the mesquite-covered landscape, stories of instant wealth, diamonds, long sumptuous limousines and fabulous shopping sprees in far-off Dallas flourished.

One of my favorite stories from this era comes from a friend who worked in a bank during those boom days, now long past.

The lull in the day's business had arrived. Outside her window the furious spring wind sent pedestrians scurrying for cover as a time-worn green station wagon rolled to a stop some few feet from the bank's double front doors.

She watched a pudgy woman struggle to free herself from the driver's seat and from the wind's unseen hand that made opening the vehicle door an act of monumental strength.

My friend recalled, "I wondered what this poor woman was doing out on a day like this. Surely she was not coming into the bank, but in she came.

She headed straight toward my desk, frizzled gray hair standing on end, old run-over brown shoes and a faded blue dress that had seen better days, with about an inch and a half of white slip flapping down behind, but with the kindest twinkling eyes."

Slowly, my friend realized that sitting in front of her was a woman of immense wealth who was having the time of her life giving it away to colleges, churches and people in need.

When they finished their business, the woman said with a smile: "Honey, the Lord put those old dinosaurs under my worthless dry land so I could help folks out. You didn't imagine I had a dime, did you? Now, let's not tell anyone," she said, smiling. "I'll be back soon so we can move some more money!"

Her encounter with the unexpected over, my friend vowed to give up making snap judgments as she watched the woman pass through the double doors and begin her struggle with wind and machine once more.

Generally, most of us love tales of the unexpected. The Gospel today is one such story. Peter, James and John learn on the mountain that their close friend and teacher is someone far beyond their comprehension.

They will spend the rest of their lives making sense of who he really is — making sense of the unexpected.

QUESTIONS:

Have you seen God use what we sometimes label the weak and foolish to accomplish his will?

Has God ever surprised you with his ways of "making things happen"?

We'll beat any advertised price... Let us prove it!
The LaPointe Dealerships
Serving Charlotte with integrity for over 39 years!
MITSUBISHI MOTORS
6951 E. Independence Blvd.
531-3131
HONDA
7001 E. Independence Blvd.
535-4444
Frank LaPointe, President, Member of St. Gabriel Church

CLOSED MONDAYS THRU LABOR DAY
Tues-Fri 9:30am-5:30pm
Sat. 9:30am-3:00pm
Carolina Catholic Bookshoppe
† Special Cards
† Religious Articles
† Unique Gift Ideas
704-342-2878
Fax (704) 334-3313
4410-F Monroe Road, Charlotte, NC
We welcome mail orders and special orders!

You know how to put money into your IRA.
What's the best way to take it out?
Find out how to minimize taxes and penalties in our exclusive IRA Distribution Manual.
Call Jeanne O. McCulloch, Financial Consultant, (336) 721-9221 or (800) 334-4401 for your free copy of The Salomon Smith Barney IRA Distribution Manual.
SALOMON SMITH BARNEY
A member of citigroup
©1999 Salomon Smith Barney Inc. Member SIPC. Salomon Smith Barney is a service mark of Salomon Smith Barney Inc.

Mothers in Love + Fathers in Love = Families in Love
Your whole family deserves the love Mom and Dad discover on a Worldwide Marriage Encounter weekend! Marriage Encounter is 44 hours where married couples can get away from jobs, kids, chores and phones — and focus on each other. If you'd like greater depth, growth and enrichment in your relationship, you'll like the difference a Worldwide Marriage Encounter weekend can make! Join millions of couples worldwide who have learned how to keep their marriage vibrant and alive.

Next Marriage Encounter Weekend:
Sept. 8, 9, 10
Holiday Inn Airport, Charlotte
Call Tom & Emilie Sandin
(336) 274-4424
November Weekend: 17th-19th

Parents... why order school uniforms out of state?
A+™ school approved uniforms are as close as a drive to the lake!
Uniforms DIRECT 2U
Owner Ann Hoffman, Member of St. Therese
704-895-7474 www.uniformsdirect2u.com
Uniforms Direct 2U, 18505 Statesville Road, Suite 5-A, Cornelius, NC 28031

Movie Capsules

NEW YORK (CNS) — Following are recent capsule reviews issued by the U.S. Catholic Conference Office for Film and Broadcasting.

"The Eyes of Tammy Faye" (Lions Gate)

Strangely appealing documentary about the chaotic, campy life of former televangelist Tammy Faye Bakker. Frequently melodramatic, directors Fenton Bailey and Randy Barbato's shamelessly flattering film ignores objectivity while presenting the human side of Tammy Faye, who was often ridiculed for her exaggerated makeup and hair. Shadowy nudity and references to adultery. The U.S. Catholic Conference classification is A-III — adults. The Motion Picture Association of America rating is PG-13 — parents are strongly cautioned. Some material may be inappropriate for children under 13.

"The In Crowd" (Warner Bros.)

Dreadfully dull thriller about a young woman (Lori Heuring) working at a country club who is brought into the exclusive social circle of upper-crust college students by a charismatic socialite (Susan Ward) who is harboring dark secrets. Director Mary Lambert's glossy film bores with a skimpy narrative, one-dimensional characters and laughable suspense-builders that lead to an obvious conclusion. Some violence, a few sexually implied encounters and lesbian innuendo, frequent substance abuse and some crass language with an instance of rough language. The U.S. Catholic Conference classification is A-III — adults. The Motion Picture Association of America rating is PG-13 — parents are strongly cautioned. Some material may be inappropriate for children under 13.

"Loser" (Columbia)

Lame romance in which a sweetly nerdy college student (Jason Biggs) pines over a classmate (Mena Suvari) who is foolishly involved with their snooty literature professor (Greg Kinnear). Writer-director Amy Heckerling's bland blend of teen angst tinged with a few frail comic moments is instantly forgettable. An implied affair, fleeting violence, crass expressions and an instance of rough language. The U.S. Catholic Conference classification is A-III — adults. The Motion Picture Association of America rating is PG-13 — parents are strongly cautioned. Some material may be inappropriate for children under 13.

"Thomas and the Magic Railroad" (Destination)

Disappointing children's movie adapted from the television series in which Thomas the Tank Engine (voice of Eddie Glen) and his engine friends on the magic railroad fear destruction by a surly diesel engine (voice of Neil Crone). Not even is Mr. Conductor (Alec Baldwin) able to help since he has run out of his powerful sparkle dust. Combining live action, digital effects and traditional animation, writer-director Britt Allcroft's whimsical film works best when the animated engines are the focus, but human performances are weak and the plot runs out of steam. The U.S. Catholic Conference classification is A-I — general patronage. The Motion Picture Association of America rating is G — general audiences.

"What Lies Beneath" (DreamWorks)

Plodding ghost story in which a wife (Michelle Pfeiffer) feels haunted by a menacing spirit who turns out to have been involved with her geneticist husband (Harrison Ford). Director Robert Zemeckis attempts to generate Hitchcock-like suspense but falls far short with glaring plot holes and an abundance of thriller cliches. Some violence, sexual situations with implied adultery, occasional profanity and an instance of rough language. The U.S. Catholic Conference classification is A-III — adults. The Motion Picture Association of America rating is PG-13 — parents are strongly cautioned. Some material may be inappropriate for children under 13.

CNS PHOTO FROM WARNER BROS. PICTURES

"Pokemon the Movie 2000"

Silly Japanese animated film based on the television cartoon series in which a human teen trainer of Pokemons is the only hope for a doomed world when the peaceful co-existence of three powerful Pokemon birds, who keep in balance the elements of fire, lightning and ice, is disturbed. With colorful but unexceptional animation, director Michael Haigney's film has a nonsensical plot, which will likely not matter to the hordes of child fans, but is a snore for adults accompanying the tykes. The U.S. Catholic Conference classification is A-I — general patronage. The Motion Picture Association of America rating is G — general audiences.

"Girl on the Bridge" (Paramount Classics)

Enchanting French romantic comedy about a young woman (Vanessa Paradis) contemplating suicide on the railing of a Paris bridge when an itinerant professional knife thrower (Daniel Auteuil) recruits her to be his new human target. The black and white film has exciting thriller elements with stylish camera work and an eclectic score, but the intriguing premise disappoints with an anti-climactic conclusion. Subtitles. Some sexual encounters, mild violence and a few instances of rough language. The U.S. Catholic Conference classification is A-III — adults. The Motion Picture Association of America rating is R — restricted.

"Nutty Professor II: The Klumps" (Universal)

Sluggish comedy sequel in which the upcoming marriage of a gentle, overweight professor (Eddie Murphy) to a beautiful colleague (Janet Jackson) is threatened by his obnoxious alter ego, "Buddy Love," who is also after the professor's miraculous youth serum. Few laughs are garnered as Murphy reprises his roles as the whole Klump clan in director Peter Segal's flat film filled with unnecessary subplots, tasteless body-function jokes and ho-hum special effects. Frequent sexual references, crude toilet humor, mild fleeting violence, and several instances of crass language. The U.S. Catholic Conference classification is A-III — adults. The Motion Picture Association of America rating is PG-13 — parents are strongly cautioned. Some material may be inappropriate for children under 13.

Steve Hughes
House Painting & Pressure Washing
Interior/Exterior
Also specializing in interior painting, wall murals and children's rooms!
(704) 225-8188
References Provided
St. Gabriel Parishioner

COACH XCEL
Spirit - Body - Mind
Hypnosis - Thought Field Therapy
Stop Smoking • Live Healthier
Manage Stress • Reduce Chronic Pain
Improve Job, Academic, Sports Performance
Call Today! 704-597-4184
John Connors LPC, NBCCH, TFT
Licensed Professional Counselor, National Board of Certified Clinical Hypnotherapists
Diplomate Certified - Thought Field Therapy

JOHANNUS CHURCH ORGANS
America's best value in sound & price.
SYNTHIA MUSIC SYSTEMS
Catholic Hymns at the push of a button.
SOUND SYSTEMS
Totally wireless systems and hearing impaired devices.
CHURCH PIANOS
Quality pianos for affordable prices.
ELECTRONIC ORGAN SERVICE ON ALL MAKES
Music & Electronics, Inc.
Corner of Oak & Broad Streets, Mooresville, NC
(704) 663-7007 — (800) 331-0768

The Pope Speaks

POPE JOHN PAUL II

Experiencing God requires patience, pope says at audience

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — To see how God works in the world and to experience his love, people must be patient, watchful and willing to be surprised, Pope John Paul II said.

"God does not disappoint the deep longing for him which exists in all of us," the pope said at his weekly general audience July 26 in St. Peter's Square.

"He does not leave us to wander far from his ways, nor does he let our hearts harden forever," the pope told an estimated 20,000 visitors.

At the same time, he said, God may remain hidden if one is not interested in finding him.

The pope said people must be attentive, awake and watching for God.

The necessary attitudes are "the opposite of the distraction which, unfortunately, is our almost habitual condition, especially in a rushed and superficial society like ours," he said.

People also must avoid the temptation to rush their relationship with God, he said.

"Nine months are needed for the birth of a human creature," Pope John Paul said. "To compose a book or music of value often requires years of patient searching. This is also the law of the spirit."

In addition, he said, experiencing God's presence requires an ability to stand before creation in "awe and marvel."

But, Pope John Paul said, technology and materialism make it hard for people to look beyond what they see and discover God at work.

"We must be pure and simple like children, capable of admiration, surprise, wonder and being enchanted by the divine gestures of love and of closeness to us," the pope said.

At the end of the audience, which took place on the feast of Sts. Joachim and Anne, parents of Mary, the pope offered special prayers for elderly couples.

He prayed that the saints would strengthen older couples "in their mission of supporting their families, comfort them in their pain and, together with Mary, intercede to obtain special grace for them at the moment of their passage to eternal life."

Pope to leaders: Be mindful of Jerusalem's spiritual meaning

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy (CNS) — As Israeli and Palestinian leaders meeting in the United States tried to agree on the status of Jerusalem, Pope John Paul II encouraged them to keep the spiritual meaning of the city in mind. Speaking to visitors at his summer residence July 23, the pope said he knew the negotiations between Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat and Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Barak were not easy, but he asked "the leaders to continue their efforts." U.S.-mediated negotiations began two weeks earlier at Camp David in Thurmont, Md., and seemed to be mired in the details of an agreement on Jerusalem, which Israelis and Palestinians have claimed as their capital.

Coming of Age

AMY WELBORN
CNS COLUMNIST

Slim Pickins on That Summer Job?

Ah, the pleasures of the summer job.

My first real summer job was at a large store the name of which I'll keep anonymous except for the last part: "-mart." There. That gives you at least two choices to keep you guessing.

I worked in the "deli" — the small little box in the front of the store where customers could buy popcorn, slushees and their choice of three kinds of sandwiches.

Most days I had to work something like 11:30 a.m. to 9:00 p.m., with a few breaks to make it come out to eight hours. The trouble was that I quickly lost any semblance of a life. If you're on your feet all day, the most you can do when you get home, even if you're a teen-ager, is collapse, sleep and then get up just in time to go back to work.

I hated it, except for the money. Just like my oldest son hates his summer job right now stocking in a grocery store. The hours are getting to him. He usually works from around 3 p.m. to 10 at night, and his work involves a lot of physical labor. Unfortunately, it also involves a lot of boredom.

And since he's not yet 18, either union or government rules restrict him from using certain kinds of equipment, even the box cutter! So there are lots of things he can't do, and he gets bored.

Now my younger son, who's just turned 15, is trying to get a job. Unfortunately, he's presently infected with the same disease my oldest son had for a while, before necessity stepped in and cured him: He has to get a job that is, for lack of a better word, at what he conceives is the exalted level of his own existence.

So his first choice would be working at a golf course. Fast food, except for maybe a sub shop, is absolutely not on his list. Bagging groceries? Nope.

I don't exactly know what that leaves. I do believe that if he had his way, he'd find a law firm to take him on for the summer.

But that's not the way it is. For most of us, the summer job involves long hours, hard, repetitive work, not the greatest pay in the world, and the lessons that come with all of that:

First, you're not as fabulous and above it all as you think you are. Sure, you think you're too good for this job, but how can that be when this "demeaning" job is the only job you can get?

The truth is, there's nothing wrong with any of those jobs. They're necessary and just as important as any "profession," and the people who spend their lives depending on that kind of work for a living have just as much dignity, strength and character as anyone who goes to work in a suit. (Maybe more).

Second, this is what life is. All teens have the hope and fantasy that they'll spend the rest of their lives in the perfect job, doing exactly what they want.

For most of us, that just doesn't happen. Even if you find a job you like, there are aspects of it that will frustrate you.

So good luck with that summer job. Instead of complaining, say a prayer of thanks for the opportunity you have — and take comfort in a fact that you never thought would ever give you comfort:

School's just around the corner. Now. Don't you feel better?

Planned Giving

JIM KELLEY
GUEST COLUMNIST

What to do with "obsolete" insurance

Do you have a life insurance policy you purchased years ago to provide financial protection — and no longer need it? If so, it may be a great asset to give your parish, Catholic school, agency, the Diocese of Charlotte or the diocesan Foundation.

Consider the benefits when you irrevocably name the church as both the owner and the beneficiary of the policy:

You can receive an income tax deduction.

When you fill out your itemized tax return, you can claim a charitable deduction for the cost basis of the policy or an amount approximately equal to the cash surrender value. For deduction purposes, the gift is treated as though it were cash.

This means you can deduct the gift up to 50 percent of your adjusted gross income. And if you can't use the full deduction in the first year, you can carry the unused portion up to five additional years.

You reduce the size of your estate.

At death, the face value of most life insurance policies is includable in the taxable estate of the deceased. For some estates, this can mean a significant increase in estate taxes.

However, transferring the policy during life will remove this "hidden" asset and reduce the size of your estate and any applicable taxes.

You leave your current home undisturbed.

Many people desire to give more to Catholic entities, but are concerned about their own cash flow and any unforeseen emergencies. They are reluctant to reduce investment assets.

We do not want any of our parishioners to jeopardize their security in making charitable gifts. At the same time, it's quite possible that you have either forgotten about an "obsolete" life insurance policy or consider it an unneeded asset.

In any case, the beauty of giving such a policy is that it doesn't affect your current income stream.

You make a gift that is immediate.

The proceeds are paid in cash immediately at death. Life insurance gifts generally are not subject to possible shrinkage from probate costs, nor do delays in settlement usually occur unless the death proceeds are payable to the estate.

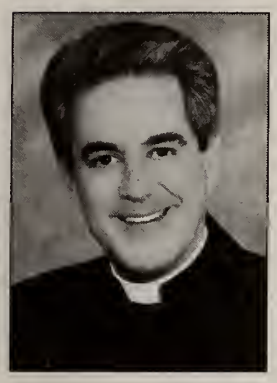
Also, you make a gift that is private. A life insurance policy is not a matter of public record; thus, your total privacy in giving may be assured.

Finally, you make a gift that is convenient. You probably already have policies that have served their original purposes and are now available to give. Changing beneficiaries may be simpler than creating a trust, making a will or arranging other forms of giving.

Making a gift of life insurance is easier than you might think. Your life insurance professional can help you obtain a transfer form from the insurance company or you can contact the company directly.

Of course, we are ready to assist you as well.

Please contact me for additional information on life insurance: Jim Kelley, director of development, (704) 370-3301, 1123 S. Church St., Charlotte, N.C. 28203.



Light One Candle

FATHER THOMAS J. McSWEENEY
GUEST COLUMNIST

One Public Christian

Is there a question you hope you will never be asked?

Most people have something that we would prefer not to reveal. For most Germans who were adults during the Second World War, it might be "Where were you and what did you do?" Chances are you won't find many who admit they fought on the Western Front or knew what was happening to the Jews.

Shame does not begin or end with a single group. Gary Wills's recent book "Papal Sin" excoriates the bishops and priests who were supportive of the Nazis. Controversy still rages over the alleged "silence" of Pope Pius XII. Not long ago Pope John Paul II begged forgiveness for those Christians who "were not strong enough to raise their voices in protest."

While there were countless acts of private heroism by people of every background, few spoke out. But there can be no disputing where Franz Jaegerstaetter stood. An Austrian farmer, devoted husband and father, he not only saw the evil of Nazism but also publicly refused to cooperate with that evil in any way.

Jaegerstaetter had been a rough and tumble youth who found work in the Steiermark iron mines. Then, in the late 1930s, he experienced a religious re-conversion, if you will, to the Catholic faith of his childhood. He married a devout young woman and settled down in his village of St. Radegund where he tended his parent's little farm. From his meager subsistence, he regularly gave generously to the poor.

According to historian Rev. Boniface Hanley, OFM, Jaegerstaetter became open about his hatred of all things Nazi when he voted against the German annexation of Austria. His village priest warned Franz that he was courting serious danger, since Nazis brooked no opposition, and advised him that he risked putting his family in harm's way by not voting "yes." The farmer answered, "Father, I believe that God asks me to live by my conscience. If I do what I think He wants me to do, then I know He will take care of my wife and family."

When he refused military service after being drafted, the local police chief offered to try to get him a noncombatant post. "Please don't put me in the terrible position of having to arrest such a good man as you!" the chief pleaded. Again Franz Jaegerstaetter was determined: "I cannot believe that just because one has a wife and children, he is free to offend God. Did not Christ himself say 'He who loves father, mother or children more than me is not deserving of my kingdom'?"

One witness recalls how the clergy and guards wept openly at his steadfast spirit. "To the end, his eyes shined with joy and confidence, his face was full of peace."

On Aug. 9, 1943, Franz Jaegerstaetter was beheaded by guillotine, with no blindfold, his face upwards toward the blade. His family was left unharmed.

As a child of the light, his conscience would not let him serve the powers of evil. At the end, he knew exactly what he had done with his life: God's will.

Campus Ministry

FATHER JUDE DeANGELO, OFM Conv.
GUEST COLUMNIST

Packing for school

The art of packing for college is not a gift. It is a skill that is usually earned by discussion, modeling and, well, trial and error. Many times parents take an active role in teaching the art and guiding the process of the "packing for college" experience.

The sight of son and daughter preparing today may resurrect ancient memories of late summer nights with clothes, mementos and appliances being stuffed into boxes, suitcases and trunks — some of which are gathering dust in attics or basements.

For some parents, assisting a child with their college packing brings closure to an important phase of family life. They know in their hearts that when their child goes off to school, nothing will be the same again.

Parents use the art of packing to have long discussions about remembrances of yesterdays that they thought would always be present.

Mothers tend to speak in coded messages of concern — reminding their children of past lessons learned. Fathers give warnings about possible dangers of college life and impart caution to their son or daughter about the great big world out there.

As sound systems find their way into hollowed tabernacles of plastic bubble wrap and cardboard, as arguments ensue about the need for four sweaters instead of three, and talks wear on about the need for cold remedies "just in case," don't forget to remind your son or daughter to pack all the tools of character and virtue in with the latest CD's and sportswear.

Remind them to carry with them the love of God and respect for neighbor. Work into those "packing talks" reminders about connecting with God and the Catholic community through Mass and social interactions.

Between the roller blades and the khakis might be a good place to place the Scriptures and the small crucifix or medal of the Blessed Virgin Mary.

And, don't forget to place a small mirror in the essentials for campus life. Attached to the mirror might be a note which states that as this object is used each day, let the reflection that is revealed be an image filled with dignity and self-respect, acceptance of failures and realizations that each day is a new beginning filled with hope and promise.

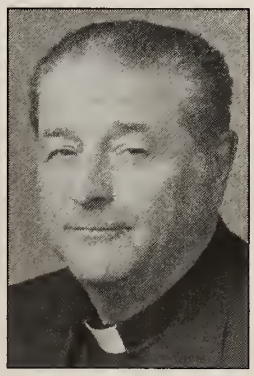
More simply phrased, the note on the mirror might read, "A son or daughter of a loving God."

Packing for college? Parents may never feel that they've packed enough.

It's the student's greatest challenge to unpack all the gifts they've been given.

Father DeAngelo is the Catholic campus minister for Wake Forest University, Salem College and North Carolina School of the Arts in Winston-Salem.

Question Corner



FATHER JOHN DIETZEN
CNS Columnist

The Church's Position on Indulgences

Q. My question concerns indulgences. As a convert to the Catholic faith 10 years ago, I don't remember hearing any discussion about them.

I understand that during this jubilee year we have several indulgences available, but I'm still not sure what they mean. What is an indulgence? Even now we don't hear much about them.

A. It's true that the church is extremely careful in speaking of indulgences today, partly because this aspect of our faith has been so badly misunderstood in the past.

Catholic tradition on the subject is founded on the fact that every sin is not only a disobedience of God's law; it also violates the harmony of creation established by God and is, at least to some degree, a rejection of his love.

Forgiveness then requires not only conversion, but a reintegration of that divine order, which itself normally involves some sort of pain and cleansing (purgation) before entering the eternal presence of God.

In 1967, Pope Paul VI called for a reform and better understanding of the whole indulgence structure. In light of the doctrine of the Communion of Saints, he said, the church "undertook various ways of applying the fruits of our Lord's redemption to the individual faithful and of leading them to cooperate in the salvation of their brothers so the entire body of the church might be prepared" for the fullness of God's kingdom (Doctrine of Indulgences, No. 6).

Remission of temporal (as distinct from eternal) punishment for sins has been called "indulgence" for hundreds of years. Indulgences were formally attached by the church to certain prayers and actions, and could be applied to oneself or to one who has died.

A few important points should answer most of your questions. First, The number of permanent indulgenced prayers and works has been drastically reduced. Why was this?

Pope Paul VI explained the reason. "The main concern," he wrote, "has been to attach greater importance to a Christian way of life and lead souls to cultivate a spirit of prayer and penance, and to practice the theological virtues (faith, hope and charity) rather than merely repeat certain formulas and acts" (Enchiridion of Indulgences, 1968).

Second, partial indulgences, as distinct from plenary, are granted using only those words, with no determination of days or years as was common previously.

This avoids confusion, among other things. Contrary to what many Catholics believed, an indulgence of one year, for example, did not mean "one year off of purgatory."

It meant, rather, whatever alleviation of purgation or punishment might be achieved by one year of fasting or other penance. Thus it did not directly address the subject of time in purgatory.

Great pains are taken in recent years, by Pope John Paul II and other leaders, to keep the understanding of indulgences in harmony with the Gospel and with other Catholic teachings.

Remember that in all its devotional practices, including indulgences, the church desires that we, the faithful, "will be more effectively moved to live holier and more useful lives, thus healing the division between the faith which many profess and their daily lives" (Enchiridion, observations 4).

Diocese to co-sponsor RCIA workshop

BROWN SUMMIT — The Diocese of Charlotte's RCIA Commission recently announced a workshop for all who are actively ministering in the Rite of Christian Initiation of Adults, the process by which men and women fully enter the Catholic Church.

The Diocese of Charlotte and the North American Forum on the Catechumenate will co-sponsor the workshop at The Summit — An Episcopal Center, in Brown Summit Sept. 14-16. The workshop, called "The Initiating Community: Developing the Ministries," will offer parish ministers the opportunity to deepen their understanding of the Rite of Christian Initiation of Adults, to implement and strengthen the initiation process in their parishes, to celebrate the liturgical rites well, to provide formation for ministry teams, and to grow in understanding of the assembly's ministry. The gathering will explore the foundations of initiation ministry as the ministry of all the baptized, and ways to invite others to share their gifts for the life of the community.

General sessions will be offered as well as four ministry tracks exploring specific areas of the RCIA process: catechesis for adults, children of catechetical age, liturgists and musicians, and priests and parish coordinators.

The North American forum on the Catechumenate is an international network of pastoral ministers, liturgists, catechists and theologians who share their knowledge of the Rite and their experience of the RCIA process with those who minister at the parish level.

The members of the workshop team are among the nation's most experienced pastoral minsters, liturgists, catechists and theologians:

— Steve Janco, an editorial staff member of World Library Publications, composer and music staff member of the Chicago Office for Divine Worship;

— Eliot Kapitan, director of worship for the Diocese of Springfield, Ill., and a teacher, writer and workshop presenter on liturgy and catechumenal ministry;

— Jeannette Lucino, associate professor of religious education, director of the master of arts program in pastoral studies, and director of field education at the Catholic Theological Union in Chicago;

— Mickey Main, an active RCIA minister at the parish, diocesan and national level for 20 years, and a North American Forum member.

For registration information and other details, call Linda Licata at (336) 294-4696, ext. 27, E-mail llicata@sprynet.com, or call the diocesan Office of Faith Formation at (704) 370-3244.

In Brief...

GREENSBORO — The charismatic Mass, held in the chapel of Maryfield Nursing Home, 1315 Greensboro Rd., needs volunteers before the monthly services can be scheduled for the fall and winter months. Call Rev. Mr. Ron or Bette Steinkamp at (336) 882-9717 for more information or to be a volunteer.

WINSTON-SALEM — Conventual Father Paul Lininger, Ph.D., is facilitating three all-day sessions based on Stephen R. Covey's "The Seven Habits of Highly Effective People" from Oct. 17-19 from 8 a.m.-5 p.m. at Our Lady of Mercy Church, 1919 S. Main St. The goal of the program is to assist participants in personal development and the strengthening of ministerial effectiveness. Call the church office at (336) 722-7001 to reserve a space and for more information.

Classifieds

Classified ads bring results! Over 115,000 readers! Over 45,000 homes!
Rates: $.50/word per issue ($10 minimum per issue)
Deadline: 12 noon Wednesday, 9 days before publication date
How to order: Ads may be faxed to (704) 370-3382 or mailed to:
Cindi Feerick, The Catholic News & Herald, 1123 S. Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203.
Payment: Ads may be pre-paid or billed. For information, call (704) 370-3332.

EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES

Administrative Assistant: Applications are being accepted for administrative assistant at the Diocese of Charlotte Pastoral Center/MACS. Responsibilities include PC data entry, maintenance of cash receipts files, processing financial reports, maintaining records log. Minimum of high school degree required. Detail-oriented with Microsoft Excel experience. Send resume and salary history to: Business Office Administrator, PO Box 36776, Charlotte, NC 28236

Assistant Secretary: Asheville Catholic School. Attendance/First Aid Office. M-F, full time. CPR and First Aid certification required. Call (828)252-7896 for information. EOE.

Custodian, Full-time: Begin work immediately. Asheville Catholic School. Call Randy Penland, Maintenance Supervisor at (828)252-7896. EOE.

Director of Adult Catholic Enrichment/Order of Christian Initiation: Holy Family Catholic Church of Marietta seeks a full-time salaried Director for Adult Catholic Enrichment (ACE) and the Order of Christian Initiation (OCI) programs. Applicants should have leadership experience in ACE/OCI areas and/or have religious education degreed background suitable to develop high quality programs and volunteer assistance in the community. Must be practicing Catholic. If interested, please submit resume and cover letter to Ret Siefferman, Director of Religious Education at Holy Family Catholic Church, 3401 Lower Roswell Rd., Marietta, GA 30068. Fax (770) 578-0475. Inquire at (770) 973-7400, ext. 21 with questions.

Director of Planned Giving: The Diocesan Office of Development has an opening for a part-time director of planned giving. Candidate must be a college graduate with a degree in marketing, business administration, or related field; and 3 years specific experience in planned giving or related experience. Applicants should have strong interpersonal and communications skills and the ability to interact well with diverse groups. Responsibilities include organizing and directing efforts to assist parishioners in developing and implementing long-range financial plans for their benefit, the benefit of their family, their parish and/or the diocese. Part-time position for 21 hours per week; beginning August. Please submit resume to: Jim Kelley, Office of Development, 1123 South Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203-4003.

Director of Religious Education: Holy Family Catholic Church in Marietta seeks a full-time salaried Director for its Religious Education programs. Practical leadership experience in the continuing development of a full range of primary, secondary, young adult and adult based Religious Education programs is essential. The ability to encourage a spirit of volunteerism to meet broad community needs is a must. Should be competent in managing all educational levels and administrative staff functions. Must have bachelors and/or advanced degree in education and/or religious training. Must be practicing Catholic. Holy Family's Religious Education programs serve a multi-cultural community. Fluency in Spanish or equivalent background experience would be a useful asset. If interested, please submit resume and cover letter to Ret Siefferman, Director of Religious Education, Holy Family Catholic Church, 3401 Lower Roswell Rd., Marietta, GA 30068. Fax (770) 578-0475. Inquire at (770)973-7400, ext. 21 with questions.

Music Ministry Director: Holy Infant Catholic Church is in search of a full-time Director of Music. Located in Durham, North Carolina, a dynamic and growing area of the country near Research Triangle Park, this Vatican II parish consists of 900 households that are committed to ongoing liturgical renewal. Holy Infant Parish embraces its call to be hospitable, inclusive and Christ-centered. This position works closely with the Pastor and a collaborative and supportive staff. Requires a minimum of a bachelor's degree in a relevant field although a master's degree is preferred. Must have music performance skill (e.g. piano, voice); choral directing; cantor training; knowledge of Catholic rites and rituals. Available no later than November 1, 2000. Salary commensurate with education and experience. Benefits package included. Send resume to: DOMM Search Committee, Holy Infant Catholic Church, 5000 Southpark Dr., Durham, NC 27713. Fax 919/544-1799. References required at time of application for consideration for this position.

Parish Secretary/Receptionist: St. John Neumann. 9am - 4:30pm, Monday through Friday. Secretarial skills and experience, computer-literate, personable. Salary negotiable. Benefits. Contact Fr. Thom Meehan, (704)536-6520 or send resume and references: St. John Neumann Church, 8451 Idlewild Road, Charlotte, NC 28277. Fax: (704)536-3147.

Principal, Elementary: Blessed Sacrament School, located in historic Savannah, Georgia and nearby Atlantic Ocean beaches, is seeking a principal beginning as soon as possible. Candidates must be Catholic and be able to enhance this family-oriented school with strong communication, leadership and financial management skills. Candidates must have a master's degree in education and be certifiable by the state of Georgia. Salary is commensurate with experience and credentials. Request application, and mail or fax resume to: Blessed Sacrament Search Committee, Diocese of Savannah, 601 E. Liberty St., Savannah, GA 31404. Phone (912)238-2344 or Fax(912)238-2339.

Teacher: Asheville Catholic School seeks dynamic pre-K teacher. Must hold or be eligible for NC license. Call (828) 252-7896. EOE.

Teachers, Library/Media Specialist: Charlotte Catbolic High School has the following openings beginning August 2000: full-time teaching positions for Religion, Drama, English, Math, Spanish, and full-time Library/Media Specialist. Must have NC Certification. Also, part-time Guidance Secretary is needed. Call (704)543-1127 for application.

Teachers: Sacred Heart School (PreK-8) in Salisbury has the following teacher openings beginning in August: PE, Spanish, 5th Grade, and Middle School Language Arts. NC certification required. Call Kathleen Miller at (704)633-2841.

Teachers: St. Patrick's School in Charlotte is accepting applications for part-time Music teacher and part-time Spanish teacher. Please contact school principal, Mrs. Angela Montague, (704) 333-3174 for interview. NC certification required.

Teachers: St. Michael's School in Gastonia, NC is currently seeking dynamic teachers for the following positions: Full-time Middle School Language Arts/Social Studies; and part-time Art teacher. NC Certification required. Please call Joseph Puceta at (704)865-4382 for more information.

Youth Minister, Part-time: St. Patrick Cathedral is in great need of a part-time Youth Minister to plan, implement, and oversee weekly activities for parish youth. Undergraduate degree in a youth related field and experience preferred. Please send resume and cover letter to St. Patrick Cathedral, Attn: Joanna Catabui, 1621 Dilworth Road E., Charlotte NC 28203 or Fax: (704) 377-6403.

FOR SALE

Personalized Candy Bars. For ALL Occasions. CHERUBS-N-CHOCOLATE. To request a catalog, please visit web site at www.Cherubs-N-ChocolatebyDeb.com or call (919)689-9925.

Organ: Excellent Conn organ. For home or Family Center. Bench and sheet music included. $250/OBO. Call (704)825-1229.

COURTESY PHOTO

St. Gabriel group extends hearts to Florida

CHARLOTTE — A group of 27 youth and adults from St. Gabriel Church in Charlotte traveled to Winter Park, Fla., last month to take part in a national Catholic HEART (Helping Everyone Attain Relief Today) Workcamp.

The mission trip put the group, along with 130 other teens from across the country, in touch with the needy in the form of home-renewal projects, crisis center ministry and other outreach work in the Orlando vicinity.

The workcamps are hosted annually throughout the nation.

The campers turned a local middle school into home base for the week, participating in group prayer, Mass and a variety of spiritual and social programs.

The program helps low-income people attain a dignified standard of living while participants help build the kingdom of God, said Alex Barraza, parish youth minister.

"I am very thankful for our young people's receptiveness to God throughout this week," said Barraza. "Our young parishioners became poor to serve the poor; in a way, they learned how Jesus became poor to serve the poor."

Priest known for healing ministry coming to diocese

CHARLOTTE — Servite Father Peter Rookey, a priest who travels extensively to bring his healing ministry to large audiences, will visit North Carolina this month.

Father Rookey will preside at Masses and healing services Aug. 21-23 at three locations in the diocese:

— St. Matthew Church, 8015 Ballantyne Commons Parkway in Charlotte, on Aug. 21;

— St. Thomas Aquinas Church, 1400 Suther Rd. in Charlotte, on Aug. 22;

— Immaculate Conception Church, 208 Seventh Ave. West in Hendersonville, on Aug. 23.

A rosary focusing on the seven sorrows of Mary will be prayed each day at 6:30 p.m., followed by Mass, a healing service and exposition of the Blessed Sacrament beginning at 7:30.

Ordained to the priesthood in 1941, Father Rookey had known the power of prayer since being blinded at age 8 by a firecracker. He credits God with restoring his sight, a process filled with family prayer led by his mother.

"She led the family in prayer every evening, saying that if we prayed for a miracle the Lord would provide one," Father Rookey said. "I asked theLord to heal me and I promised him that if he gave me back my sight I would become a priest.

"And gradually, despite the doctors' warnings that we were hoping in vain, my sight began to return until it was finally restored."

As director of Benburb College in Northern Ireland, Father Rookey became well-known for his healing ministry.

After leaving Northern Ireland in the 1950s, he has served in various Servite missions and ministries through the years.

He has been involved in healing ministry full-time since 1986. At age 84, the priest continues an extensive schedule.

"The Spirit of God flows where it will, but in many cases I believe it's a great grace to have a gradual healing rather than an instantaneous one, in the sense that as I pray for my healing ... I am enriched by my continual prayer and I am becoming holier that way," he has said.

"They're all seeking peace and healing," he said of those who attend his services. "We are all looking for that, especially peace.

"Actually, that's the greatest gift, to have the peace of Christ. You can face anything, even serious sickness and pain."

For more information on Father Rookey's visit to the Diocese of Charlotte, call Terri DeLuca at (704) 888-6050.

VOCATIONS

Is God calling you?

Matthew Buettner
Will be ordained to the Holy Priesthood in the Diocese of Charlotte in 2002.

In today's post-modern society, few vocations are as counter-cultural as the priesthood; few vocations are as misunderstood as the priesthood; few vocations are as needed as the priesthood.

Often I am humbled by the awesome mystery of God in light of the gift of His priesthood to the Church. During these times, I also am made uniquely aware of my unworthiness of such a noble calling. However, I receive much joy and consolation through my friendship with Christ and His Church in prayer and the sacraments.

Although I am originally from Peoria, Illinois, I have spent the last two summers in Charlotte parishes where I have enjoyed getting to know the wonderful people whom I will serve in the future. I am very grateful for the opportunity that God has given me to share my gifts with His people in the Charlotte Diocese. At the beginning of this new millennium, I look forward with great expectation to serving Christ and His Church for the salvation of souls.

... Are you answering His call?

For more information about serving God as a priest in the Diocese of Charlotte, please contact Father John Allen,
The Office of Vocations, The Roman Catholic Diocese of Charlotte, 1123 South Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203.
(704) 370-3353 • vocations@charlottediocese.org

STOCKS, BONDS, MUTUAL FUNDS
FIXED & VARIABLE ANNUITIES
LIFE, DI & LTC INSURANCE

FINANCIAL PLANNING
RETIREMENT PLANNING
ESTATE PLANNING

ROLLOVERS & TRANSFERS
IRA'S & 401(K)'S
TAX PLANNING

RYAN ◆ HESS ◆ MORAIS
FINANCIAL ADVISORS, INC.

JOHN F. RYAN, JR., CFA
PARISHIONER, ST. VINCENT DEPAUL

CHRISTOPHER HESS, CFP
MEMBER, ST. JOHN'S EPISCOPAL

A. EDWARD MORAIS
PARISHIONER, ST. MATTHEW

SUITE 209 ◆ 7401 CARMEL EXECUTIVE PARK ◆ CHARLOTTE, NC 28226
PHONE 704-544-9009 FAX 704-543-4771

Registered Representatives offering securities through FFP Securities, Inc. - Member NASD/SIPC
Registered Investment Advisors offering services through FFP Advisory Services, Inc.

CFCC
Carolina Funeral & Cremation Center
Dignity
Affordability
Simplicity
5505 Monroe Rd. Charlotte, NC 28212
704-568-0023
www.carolinafuneral.com
Steven Kuzma
Owner/Director
Privately, Locally Owned
Member St. Matthew Church and Knights of Columbus

"Our Specialty Is Loving Your Pets"
Pineville Animal Hospital
10833 Pineville Road, Pineville, NC
(Near Carolina Pavilion/AMC 22 Theater)
(704) 552-2005
In addition to our complete medical care facility, we also offer:
Boarding Kennels
Professional Grooming
Thomas N. Buckley, DVM, owner
Member of St. Vincent's

FIRE TRIED GOLD

A Docudrama about the Catholic Church in South Carolina from 1820 to the beginning of the new millennium.

FIRE TRIED GOLD, a one-hour docudrama about Catholics in South Carolina, will air August 13, from 1:00 to 2:00 pm on various stations in South Carolina, North Carolina and Georgia.

Catholics in the Diocese of Charlotte share a common heritage with the faithful in South Carolina since originally South Carolina, North Carolina and Georgia were one Catholic diocese with Bishop John England as its first leader. Produced by Visual Edge Productions in Bethesda, Maryland, FIRE TRIED GOLD presents the story of Bishop John England's vision of a free church in a free society, follows the ravages of the Civil War and its aftermath as blacks and whites struggled to learn about equality and social justice, and concludes with a look at Catholics today as they enter a new millennium. Though small in number, Catholics in South Carolina were forged together by dedicated leaders. They have contributed to the state's growth and history in a significant way and are as much a part of the land as the fabled Carolina live oak tree. FIRE TRIED GOLD is their story.

FIRE TRIED GOLD will air in North Carolina on:

Sunday, August 13
1:00 to 2:00 pm
on
WCNC-TV Charlotte (NBC)

FIRE TRIED GOLD was produced by Paulist Father John Geaney, co-producer of the television documentary Trappist with WTVI-TV in Charlotte, N.C. It features interviews with S.C. Supreme Court Justice Jean Toal, Charleston Mayor Joseph Riley, College of Charleston President Alex Sanders, renowned Lutheran theologian Martin Marty, Slaves in the Family author Edward Ball, Rt. Rev. Francis Kline, Abbot of Mepkin Abbey, and others.

EXECUTIVE PRODUCER - JOHN GEANEY, CSP; PRODUCER - GONZALO ACCAME; MUSIC BY MICHAEL WHALEN; WRITTEN BY: JOHN GEANEY, CSP AND JOHN LANDERS; DIRECTOR OF PHOTOGRAPHY: BRUCE LIFFITON; NARRATOR: JOEL KRAGER.

CHAPEL HILL NC 27599-0001
WILSON LIBRARY CB 3930
UNC
NC COLLECTION
42083
S878 P3
3-DIGIT 275

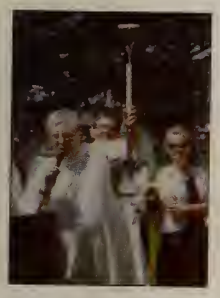
The Catholic NEWS & HERALD

Serving Catholics in Western North Carolina in the Diocese of Charlotte

August 18, 2000
Volume 9 ▾ Number 43

Inside



Breaking ground
Monroe parish prepares for new church

...PAGE 3

Catholic awardee inspired by Jesus' birth

...PAGE 7

Local News

Diocesan priest "retires" to Alaska

...PAGE 5

Youth experience faith through arts and music

...PAGE 15

Quilting connects parishioners to heritage

...PAGE 16

Every Week

Entertainment

...PAGES 10-11

Editorials & Columns

...PAGES 12-13

"Our society must ... combat discrimination based on sex, race, ethnicity, or age. Such discrimination constitutes a grave injustice and an affront to human dignity."
-- U.S. Catholic Bishops' Administrative Board, "Faithful Citizenship: Civic Responsibility for a New Millennium," p. 22

Costa Rican feast celebrated in Lincolnton

PHOTO BY JOANN S. KEANE

Dancers added to the festivities at St. Dorothy Church in Lincolton during a Costa Rican celebration.

BY JOANN S. KEANE
EDITOR

LINCOLNTON — Angels led the procession into St. Dorothy parish. From the tiniest babe adorned with feathery wings, to prepubescent cherubs with halos, the heavenly band of angels left a trail of fragrant flower petals in their wake.

For this largely Costa Rican community, it was the feast celebration to honor the patroness of their homeland. In the Central American country, the second of August would be a national holiday. Hundreds of thousands trek a pilgrim route to the basilica of Our Lady of Los Angeles — the home of La Negrita, a small black statue, a likeness of this Costa Rican patron saint.

But today, on the Aug. 6 liturgical feast of the Transfiguration of our Lord, Our Lady of Los Angeles was included in the celebration. It was a little bit of Central America in the heart of Lincoln County.

"Lincolnton is an area where all the Costa Ricans have gathered," said Rev. Mr. Carlos Medina, permanent deacon for St. Dorothy parish. "This is a Costa Rican niche."

Celebrating culture "gives the people a sense of belonging," said Rev. Mr. Medina. "They belong to the church, the parish in Lincolnton, St. Dorothy's. This is their parish, and Catholicity is very well expressed by the people."

Roughly translated as "the little black one," La Negrita — as the Costa Ricans reverently call her —was solemnly crowned in the 1920s, nearly 300 years from the date she revealed herself in the community of Cartago. Stories of her appearance vary, but it's generally accepted the Holy Virgin became visible to a young peasant girl in 1635.

A shrine, a Byzantine-style

SEE LINCOLNTON, PAGE 8

Charlotte City Council to discuss moratorium issue

BY JIMMY ROSTAR
ASSOCIATE EDITOR

CHARLOTTE — In a move praised by death penalty moratorium proponents as progress toward a teaching moment, Charlotte's City Council on July 24 voted to discuss the moratorium issue at its next meeting.

The council voted 9-2 in favor of the discussion, slated for its next meeting on Aug. 28. At hand will be whether the city should adopt a resolution that supports a moratorium, a period during which the death penalty is suspended to allow time for study of capital punishment, its implementation and its possible faults.

Five city councils in North Carolina, including the town of Davidson's within the Charlotte Diocese, have already adopted resolutions.

Members of local faith communities and others supporting a moratorium in this state lauded the Charlotte City Council's vote as an opportunity to take a hard look at what continues to be a controversial topic in the United States.

"Our challenge has been to get faith congregations to sign a resolution on a moratorium," said Ted Frazer, a parishioner of St. Peter Catholic Church and a member of the Charlotte Coalition for a Moratorium Now (CCMN), a grassroots advocacy group spearheading local moratorium efforts.

"Our challenge now is to offer good, articulate reasons why the council ought to be concerned about and vote unanimously on this issue," he added. "Our hope is that by bringing the dialogue to the Charlotte City Council, that other people will become interested in the issue."

He voiced hope that supporters of a moratorium will attend the meeting in droves. "We encourage people to come down to the meeting and show support," he said.

Critics of the vote said a city council is not the proper vehicle for a discussion on the moratorium

SEE COUNCIL, PAGE 4

PHOTO BY JOE BENTON

Msgr. Lawrence McInerny (left), pastor of Stella Maris Church, and the Rev. James A. Holmes (right) of Washington United Methodist Church joined clergy from the Lutheran and Episcopal churches. See story, page 9.

Missionaries scarce in northern Vietnam, says church official

SON TAY, Vietnam (CNS) — A church official in northern Vietnam said many non-Christians in his diocese have expressed their wish to become Catholics, but there are not enough missionaries to help them. While compiling a book called "One Hundred Years of Hung Hoa Diocese, 1895-1995," Father Joseph Nguyen Van Dinh, coordinator of parish councils for Hung Hoa Diocese, estimated that some 40,000 people have expressed their desire to become Catholics, reported UCA News, an Asian church news agency based in Thailand. "However, the problem is that there are not enough qualified church workers to teach catechism," he told UCA News recently. He added that the local church currently relies on catechists to do the evangelization work.

Friars, U.S. park service meet over Appalachian Trail dispute

NEW YORK (CNS) — The head of the Franciscan Friars of the Atonement said that a productive meeting with National Park Service representatives should help the two parties reach agreement on a property dispute involving the Appalachian Trail. The hiking trail, which stretches for more than 2,000 miles from Georgia to Maine, goes across the property of the Atonement Friars in New York. The meeting was about the park service's efforts to take about 20 acres of the friars' property by the power of eminent domain to increase protection for the trail area. Father Arthur M. Johnson, the friars' minister general, said that, pending efforts to work out a solution, the park service would suspend its earlier move to have the Justice Department pursue the case legally.

Church leaders welcome Nigerian Senate leader's removal

LAGOS, Nigeria (CNS) — Nigerian church officials welcomed the removal of the president of the Senate after a parliamentary inquiry into corruption. The vice president of the Catholic Bishops' Conference of Nigeria, Archbishop Felix Job of Ibadan; Archbishop Peter Jatau of Kaduna; and Msgr. Festus Okafor all described the removal of Senate President Chuba Okadigbo as a means by which God is purifying and purging Nigeria. Archbishop Job said Aug. 9 the removal of Okadigbo is a development that bodes well for the country's nascent democracy and that "God is really at work in Nigeria."

CNS PHOTO FROM REUTERS

Iraqi boy joins call for end of sanctions

An Iraqi boy puts up a poster outside the U.N. office in Baghdad Aug. 6 demanding a stop in bombing and end to U.N. sanctions. Sanctions were imposed on Iraq after its 1990 invasion of Kuwait.

Fides reports Chinese Catholic protest at defiance against Rome

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — Chinese Catholics protested the ordination of four priests without Vatican approval in early August, highlighting a growing dissatisfaction among the faithful toward church leaders who defy Rome, said Fides, the Vatican's missionary news agency. Four priests — three for the Diocese of Beijing and one for the Diocese of Nanjing — were ordained Aug. 6 in an early morning liturgy at Beijing's "official" Nantang cathedral. During the service's entrance procession, "part of the faithful abandoned the church" in protest, said Fides in an Aug. 7 report. Out of a usual Mass attendance of 1,500 parishioners, only 700 turned out for the ordination, the news agency said.

Knights gather in Boston for 118th international meeting

BOSTON (CNS) — Following a golden crucifix into the Cathedral of the Holy Cross, Cardinal Bernard F. Law of Boston and dozens of other members of the Catholic hierarchy celebrated a special liturgy for some 2,000 Knights of Columbus and their family members. The Knight's Aug. 1-3 gathering in Boston for their 118th annual international meeting drew a rare assemblage of 75 cardinals, archbishops and bishops from the United States, Canada and places as far away as Rome and Guam. "My brother Knights, how appropriate it is in this jubilee year that your supreme convention should lift high the cross," Cardinal Law said in his homily to a packed cathedral during the Aug. 1 Mass.

Please join us...

Catholic Heritage Society

Honoring the generosity of Catholic friends who provide for the future of the Church through a planned gift to the Diocese of Charlotte or a diocesan parish, school, agency, or diocesan foundation.

Become a member by making:
- A bequest in your will
- A gift from a retirement plan
- A gift of life insurance
- A gift of an annuity
- A gift of a trust
- A gift of real estate

For more information, call Jim Kelley, Director of Development (704) 370-3301

The Catholic NEWS & HERALD

August 18, 2000
Volume 9 • Number 43
Publisher: Most Reverend William G. Curlin
Editor: Joann S. Keane
Associate Editor: Jimmy Rostar
Staff Writer: Alesha M. Price
Production Associate: Julie Radcliffe
Advertising Representative: Cindi Feerick
Secretary: Jane Glodowski
Freelance Production Associate: Fred Stewart Jr.
1123 South Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203
Mail: P.O. Box 37267, Charlotte, NC 28237
Phone: (704) 370-3333 FAX: (704) 370-3382
E-mail: catholicnews@charlottediocese.org

The Catholic News & Herald, USPC 007-393, is published by the Roman Catholic Diocese of Charlotte, 1123 South Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203, 44 times a year, weekly except for Christmas week and Easter week and every two weeks during June, July and August for $15 per year for enrollees in parishes of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Charlotte and $18 per year for all other subscribers. Second-class postage paid at Charlotte NC and other cities. POSTMASTER: Send address corrections to The Catholic News & Herald, P.O. Box 37267, Charlotte, NC 28237.

Episcopal calendar

Bishop William G. Curlin will take part in the following events:

August 27 - 11 a.m.
Mass
St. Patrick, Charlotte
1:30 p.m.
Address to LIMEX students
St. John Neumann, Charlotte
August 28 - 10 a.m.
Mass
Bishop McGuinness, Winston-Salem
September 4 - 11 a.m.
Smoky Mountain Vicariate Celebration Mass and Confirmation
St. Joseph, Bryson City
September 6 - 7 p.m.
Mass and installation of Father John T. Putnam as pastor of Holy Infant, Reidsville

Diocesan planner

August

21 CHARLOTTE — Servite Father Peter Mary Rookey, known as the "healing priest," is celebrating Mass at St. Matthew Church, 8015 Ballantyne Commons Pkwy., beginning tonight at 6:30 p.m. with a Servite rosary service. Father Rookey will also be the celebrant at Mass at St. Thomas Aquinas Church, 1400 Suther Rd., in Charlotte on Aug. 22, and at Immaculate Conception Church, 208 7th Ave. West, in Hendersonville on Aug. 23. For more information, call Terri DeLuca at (704) 888-6050.

23 CHARLOTTE — All families who have suffered a loss are invited to St. Patrick Cathedral, 1621 Dilworth Rd. East, for a memorial Mass in honor of those who have passed away during the month. Call the church office at (704) 334-2283 for more information and with the name(s) of loved ones so that they may be remembered at Mass.

25 WINSTON-SALEM — St. Leo the Great Church, 335 Springdale Ave., is having its semi-annual fall and winter children's clothing sale from 9 a.m.-1 p.m. this morning and from 8 a.m.-noon tomorrow in the activity center. The proceeds from this sale will benefit church and outreach programs. To donate or for more information, call Linda Hutchinson at (336) 748-8277 or Liz Matthews at (336) 768-6641.

27 CHARLOTTE — The Youth in Action group from Our Lady of Consolation Church, 2301 Statesville Ave., is sponsoring a dedication and blessing of the newly renovated cultural center today after 11 a.m. Mass. Refreshments are being served after the ribbon-cutting ceremony. For more information, contact Nanette Lide, youth minister, at (704) 536-

Monroe Catholic community breaks ground for new church

By JIMMY ROSTAR
Associate Editor

MONROE — Within a painted outline of a church yet to be built, the parish of Our Lady of Lourdes celebrated both its history and a new beginning.

In the next couple of years, parishioners will move into a new church in the shadows of the current worship space. The parish broke ground Aug. 12 during a bilingual ceremony that reflected the community's faithful optimism and its multi-cultural heritage.

Anglo and Latino parishioners prayed and sang as parish and diocesan officials presided at the ceremony. Spiritan Father Ed Vilkauskas, the pastor of the Monroe church, called the occasion a sacred moment.

"Both soil and souls are being turned upward," said Father Vilkauskas. "With shovels in hand, scores of families ... have come from throughout the parish in Union County as a community of faith."

The new 450-seat church will serve the needs of a parish whose roots are embedded in the time of World War II. It was in 1942 that priests of the Fathers of Mercy from Brooklyn, N.Y., arrived in Monroe to start a church here. Nearby Camp Sutton had previously been established, and at that camp,— hundreds of soldiers — Catholics among them — trained.

Our Lady of Lourdes parish was established May 10, 1942. The community, still mostly composed of soldiers and their spouses, gathered at local venues for Mass until a church was built on the current property on Franklin and Deese streets. Bishop Vincent S. Waters of Raleigh dedicated the church April 24, 1946.

The parish grew over the years, despite the departure of the soldiers after the war. The Spiritan Fathers, with Father Vilkauskas as pastor, have staffed the parish since 1988. At the end of this month, Father Vilkauskas enters a new assignment at the direction of his community, and the parish will be staffed with diocesan personnel. Father Luis Osorio-Salazar, one of the diocese's newly ordained, has already assumed his role as parochial vicar here.

Photo by Jimmy Rostar

Parishioners of Our Lady of Lourdes Church in Monroe were invited to bring soil from their own property to add to the groundbreaking ceremony.

Especially in recent years, the parish has seen an influx of Latino parishioners who bring a different culture but the same sense of being a faith community that has existed here for more than a half-century.

It is that sense of community that Father Vilkauskas called special attention to during the ceremony.

"The work we're beginning today, then, should enliven our faith and make us grateful," said Father Vilkauskas. "We know the familiar words of the psalm: 'If the Lord does not build a house, in vain do the laborers labor.'"

"Whenever we look to the interests of our neighbors, the community, and serve them, then we are in a sense God's own co-workers," he added.

The pastor urged the congregation to seek God's grace during this special time in the history of the parish.

"This will be a privileged place where God can dwell with his people for years and years to come," he said. "This will be a place of music. This will be a place of poetry. This will be a place of prayer ... wherein God draws all the human corners to center, into a unity — many people, many gifts, but one in Christ Jesus, around his table."

In addition to their own shovels to overturn soil at the groundbreaking, parishioners were invited to bring soil from their property to pour into an opening in the ground over which the altar will someday reside in the new church. The gesture, said Father Vilkauskas, added to the sense of community and ownership all communities of faith share.

Latino parishioners led a special procession in honor of Our Lady of Guadalupe, patroness of the Americas, to whom a shrine will be dedicated in the new church. Carrying a statue of Mary and jars of earth brought from the original Our Lady of Guadalupe shrine in Tepeyac, Mexico, the Latino parishioners offered their prayers for a faith-filled future in the Monroe parish as well.

"This event ends a few years and many months of planning, prayer, dreaming and hard work on the part of many people," said Father Vilkauskas, giving special thanks to the pastoral council, church planning committee, the capital campaign committee, architects John and Anna Lewandowski, builders John S. Clark Construction, and diocesan officials including Father Mauricio W. West, vicar general and chancellor.

The pastor also took time to thank the parish, whose faithfulness and dedication has inspired the pastor in his more than a decade of service in Monroe.

In this jubilee year, he said, the parish has a special reason to be thankful — and to continue being that strong family devoted to God.

"This year is a time of grace for all Christians and certainly for this community of faith, this parish," he said. "(It is) a celebration of the rebirth of Christ among us, in the holy temple of glory made not by human hands but by hearts in love with Christ and connected to his service."

Contact Associate Editor Jimmy Rostar by calling (704) 370-3334 or e-mail jtrostar@charlottediocese.org.

Elder Ministry schedules "Fall Days"

Catholic Social Services' Elder Minstry has announced three regional Fall Days of Reflection for seniors at the following locations: Catholic Conference Center in Hickory, Oct. 12; St. Mark Church in Huntersville on Oct. 19; and St. Elizabeth Church in Boone on Oct. 26.

All times are 9:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m., and registration is $8 per person. Advance registration is required by Sept. 26 for Hickory, Oct. 4 for Huntersville and Oct. 18 for Boone. Space is limited at the Hickory and Boone locations.

For further information, call Sandra Breakfield at (704) 370-3220 or Meg Smith at (828) 464-8442.

2340.

CHARLOTTE — The Charlotte area monthly ultreya meets today from 1:30-3 p.m. at St. Matthew Church, 8015 Ballantyne Commons Pkwy., in the parish center. For more information, contact Dan Hines at (704) 339-2076.

HENDERSONVILLE — The St. Francis of the Hills Fraternity of the Secular Franciscan Order meets today from 3-5 p.m. at Immaculate Conception Church, 208 7th Ave. West, in the recently added office wing. Visitors and inquirers are welcome, so for more information, call Pat Cowan at (828) 884-4246.

28 CHARLOTTE — There is a support group meeting for caregivers of family and friends suffering from Alzheimer's/ dementia today from 2-3:30 p.m. in rooms D and E of the ministry center at St. Gabriel Church, 3016 Providence Rd. Activities for the memory-impaired are also being provided. For more information about the meeting or about the Adult Day Respite Program for the memory-impaired, which meets every Monday and Wednesday from 8:30 a.m.- 1 p.m., call Suzanne Bach at (704) 376-4135.

September

1 HIGH POINT — Christ the King Church, 1505 East Kivett Dr., is holding a Latin Mass at 7 p.m. tonight followed by benediction and adoration of the Blessed Sacrament. All are welcome to attend, and for more information, call the church office at (336) 884-0244.

2 SYLVA — Eucharistic adoration takes place today at St. Mary Church, 22 Bartlett St., following 9 a.m. Mass until 3 p.m. For more information, call Annette Leporis at (828) 497-7464 or Linda Knauer at (828) 631-3561.

4 CLEMMONS — There is a charismatic Mass being held at Holy Family Church, 4820 Kinnamon Rd., tonight at 7:30 p.m. For more information, call the church office at (336) 778-0600.

8 HOT SPRINGS — "A Spiritual Retreat for a Creative Mind" is a women's retreat being led by Mercy Sister Soledad Aguilo, artist and educator, and being held at the Jesuit House of Prayer, 289 NW Hwy. 25/70, today through Sept. 10. For more information, call Mercy Sister Peggy Verstege, director, at (828) 622-7366.

10 CHARLOTTE — The St. Matthew Church, 8015 Ballantyne Commons Pkwy., cancer support group invites all to attend a special Mass at 5:30 p.m. for the sick and their families and friends with the sacrament of anointing of the sick being administered after Mass. For more details, call Marilyn Borrelli at (704) 542-2283 or Bob Poffenbarger Sr. at (704) 553-7000.

11 CHARLOTTE — Churches in the Charlotte area are having their September cancer support group meetings for survivors, family and friends on the following days because of the Labor Day weekend: St. Gabriel Church, 3016 Providence Rd., tonight at 7 p.m. in the conference room of the ministry center, St. Matthew Church, 8015 Ballantyne Commons Pkwy., on Sept. 12 at 7 p.m. in the conference room of the office building and St. Vincent de Paul Church, 6828 Old Reid Rd., on Sept. 14 at 7 p.m. in the activity center in classroom 5. For more information, call these contacts: St. Vincent - Betty Childers at (704) 554-0733, St. Matthew - Marilyn Borrelli at (704) 542-2283 and St. Gabriel - Eileen Cordell at (704) 352-5047, Ext. 217. For further information, call Bob Poffenbarger, Sr., coordinator, at (704) 553-7000.

Please submit notices of events for the Diocesan Planner at least 10 days prior to the publication date.

BMHS capital campaign exceeds goal as plans continue

By ALESHA M. PRICE
Staff Writer

WINSTON-SALEM — As returning students start anew in their familiar surroundings at Bishop McGuinness High School for the year, plans for a new high school in the Triad area are well underway. In the summer of 2001, the school will be completed, thanks in large part, to the generosity of individuals and businesses.

The capital campaign goal of $2 million has been exceeded by nearly a million dollars, to place the total at $2.9 million as of Aug. 14, stated Warren Corgan, general BMHS capital campaign committee chairman. "All pledges were solicited by a three-city team, headed up by Bob Davis in Greensboro, Ken Hughes in High Point and Bill Lawler in Winston-Salem, which included approximately 150 volunteers from throughout the Triad area, and promotional work by John Ceneviva, communications chairman."

Corgan added that one of the keys to the success of the campaign was the donations from corporations and other organizations.

"One of the things I am most gratified about is the level of support from businesses and foundations who played a major role in guaranteeing the success of the campaign and seeing them step forward in support of this effort," agreed George Repass, principal of BMHS. "We feel richly blessed to have this kind of response from businesses and foundations, which is a testimony of the faith in the future of BMHS's unique contribution to education in the Triad."

The new school, now in its steel frame and cement phase, will also contribute to the growing Catholic population in the Piedmont-Triad area. Located on Highway 66, south of Interstate 40, the two-story building will be able to accommodate 800 students at its capacity, with a chapel seating 225 and a cafeteria seating 320. Amenities include a media center, music and art classrooms, computer labs, bookstore and athletic fields for baseball, soccer, track and field and softball.

"The new high school will be in centralized location and will provide a vehicle that will allow families to send their children to a school that fosters a faith-based education," said Corgan.

The present 40-year-old structure, which was designed to hold about 250 students, has been expanded as much as the building will allow by dividing large classrooms and adding temporary classrooms. With 310 students enrolled for this new school year and more teens waiting to become a part of the Catholic education system, the new building could not be coming at a better time.

"One of the earliest requests I received when installed as bishop in April 1994 was a petition to build a new high school in the Triad area," said Bishop William G. Curlin. "I take this opportunity to express my prayerful and heartfelt gratitude to all who devoted their time, energy and talents in making this possible."

"I am especially mindful of the leadership of Warren Corgan, the three city chairmen, George Repass and the effort of the committees," said Bishop Curlin. "I look forward to the joyful occasion when we will formally bless the new BMHS building."

Contact Staff Writer Alesha M. Price by calling (704) 370-3354 or e-mail amprice@charlottediocese.org.

Council, from page 1

matter, but rather the issue is one to take up at the state and federal levels.

Frazer emphasized that a key goal for moratorium proponents who attend the council meeting will be to point out why this is a matter that should be of concern at the city government level. At a recent meeting of CCMN, members discussed that challenge and noted that the moratorium issue is a city issue on several counts:

— Suggesting that the city council discuss a moratorium on — rather than abolition of — the death penalty, members pointed out that Charlotte takes pride in a history of deliberate and civil dialogue on public policy. As a logical first step in approaching the state government, they said, the city council can encourage the General Assembly to begin a comprehensive study of the death penalty allowed within a moratorium.

— The death penalty, they said, is the only government program that calls for a citizen's life to be deliberately taken by the state. The execution of the condemned is the ultimate form of direct government action, they added.

— Members pointed out that the United States is the only western democracy still employing capital punishment, and even within this country, only a subset of the states that do authorize it actually use the death penalty.

— Members also say that the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Police Department plays a key role involved in the administration of death penalty cases in the city. City employees, they said, are thus directly involved in the death penalty policy's enforcement.

Internationally to locally, the Catholic Church is among those making headlines in the moratorium debate, which has been heightened of late with growing scrutiny by those on all sides of the issue.

Pope John Paul II has endorsed an international moratorium on and the end of capital punishment, calling the death penalty during a 1999 visit to the United States "both cruel and unnecessary."

On Good Friday of this year, North Carolina Catholic Bishops William G. Curlin of Charlotte and F. Joseph Gossman of Raleigh joined a growing number of U.S. bishops who are releasing official statements calling for a moratorium, and ultimately, an end to the death penalty.

"This is not an easy issue," the N.C. bishops wrote in their letter. "All of us need to consider how we will stand up for life for all human beings, how we will stand with the victims of crime and how we can work for a society that imposes justice without violence."

Want to go?

The Charlotte Coalition for a Moratorium Now urges those in favor of a moratorium to attend the Charlotte City Council Meeting Aug. 28 beginning at 6 p.m. at the Government Center, 600 E. 4th St. Parking is available in the deck at 232 Davidson St. At press time, the agenda for the meeting was not available.

Jim Cooney, an attorney and member of CCMN, and Peter Gilchrist, Mecklenburg County district attorney, will lead an open discussion on whether North Carolina needs a moratorium Aug. 27 from 4–5:30 p.m. at Providence United Methodist Church, 2810 Providence Rd. in Charlotte.

Contact Associate Editor Jimmy Rostar by calling (704) 370-3334 or e-mail jtrostar@charlottediocese.org

COACH XCEL
Spirit - Body - Mind
Hypnosis - Thought Field Therapy
Stop Smoking • Live Healthier
Manage Stress • Reduce Chronic Pain
Improve Job, Academic, Sports Performance
Call Today! 704-597-4184
John Connors LPC, NBCCH, TFT
Licensed Professional Counselor, National Board of Certified Clinical Hypnotherapists
Diplomate Certified - Thought Field Therapy

Vinny's Painting Inc.
Free estimates (704) 846-0747
Interior/Exterior • Residential/Commercial
Licensed and Insured
Member of St. Matthew Church

THE Independent Advantage
SPELMAN & CO., INC.
A SunAmerica Company
351 N. Peacehaven Road, Winston-Salem, NC 27104
Local: (336) 768-4709
Fax: (336) 778-1444
Toll-free: (800) 859-7847
THOMAS M. PRYBYLO
Retirement Specialist
Member NASD, SIPC
Press: Extension 11 for free e-mail newsletter
Extension 12 for LongTerm Care brochure
Extention 13 for daily stock market update
WEB SITES:
For realtime quotes & financial calculators:
www.prybylofinancial.com
For LongTerm Care/Disability Insurance:
kestlerfinancial.com/agents/prybylo.htm
For Term/Family Life Insurance:
agentslink.com/tpryb/

Diocesan priest "retires" to Alaskan mission circuit

By JIMMY ROSTAR
Associate Editor

CHARLOTTE — It's common for priests to celebrate three or four Masses on any given Sunday. But when they travel several hundred miles by plane, car or snowmobile to celebrate those Masses, the term ordinary time takes on a new meaning.

Msgr. Richard Allen, a retiring priest of the Diocese of Charlotte, leaves the swelter of the Queen City this month for Anchorage, Alaska, where he has become the newest "circuit priest" in an archdiocese that covers nearly 140,000 square miles. Long-known for his devotion to missionary work and a spirit of adventure, Msgr. Allen said this new opportunity takes him back a half-century.

"When I first came to North Carolina in the early '50s, the thing that attracted me to this place was small parishes, the small number of Catholics in relation to the population and the religious atmosphere of North Carolina," said Msgr. Allen, a native of upper New York State. "It was a very inviting thing."

With an invitation from Anchorage Archbishop Francis Hurley, Msgr. Allen felt a tug toward Alaska, which he has visited several times. In his encounters there, he drew connections to his southern home.

"They truly have a sense of church," he said of the people within the archdiocese's territory, adding that about 10 percent of the population in that region is Catholic. "It's like it was here in North Carolina years ago — most of the churches that we say Mass in are shared with another denomination, or we borrow from them.

"You make do with what you have, and it's wonderful to be able to do that. There's a great openness."

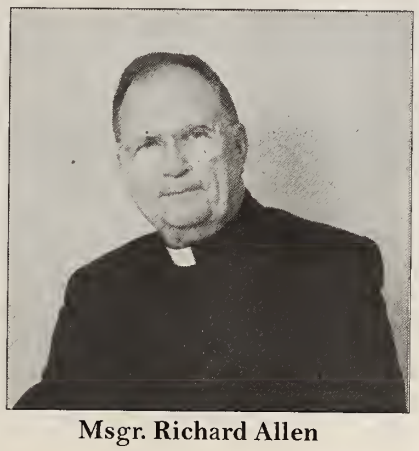
Msgr. Allen, 70, joins eight priests from other dioceses who compose the circuit mission in the Anchorage Archdjocese. While they might assist at the archdiocese's 20 parishes when needed, most of the circuit priests' work is done in mission outposts scattered through some of the region's most rural locales.

"We get there however we can — by car, by snowmobile, by dogsled, by airplane. You name it. Even snowshoes. I've got to learn how to use those," Msgr. Allen said with a chuckle.

He recalled one weekend visit last October when he celebrated Mass on a Saturday afternoon, spent the evening with a homesteader's family, flew to two sites the next morning for Mass, visited a hospital, said another afternoon Mass and returned to Anchorage Sunday evening.

The priests rotate through the missions, and Msgr. Allen noted that one priest seldom visits the same place each week.

The mission farthest from Anchorage is 900 miles away. The archdiocese, which covers the south-central section of the state, also has a mission in Magadan, Russia.



Msgr. Richard Allen

"The whole nature of the new frontier is something I've always liked, and I really like the people who are part of that and the church that's part of it."

—Msgr. Richard Allen

Although a licensed pilot himself, Msgr. Allen said he hopes to let others take the controls of the small planes over the Alaskan landscape. "I could use my flying skills, but I am a fair-weather flyer, and there's not much fair weather on a consistent basis in Alaska," he said.

Lay people or religious usually serve as administrators of the missions, taking care of running the churches during the week. The circuit priests offer sacramental and pastoral ministry when they arrive: celebrating Mass, visiting hospitals, marrying couples, conversing with parishioners.

On weekdays, the priests help however they can in the city of Anchorage, where Msgr. Allen said the Catholic Church's presence is growing. The church owns the medical center there, and has an archdiocesan grade school and high school in town, too. The church also has a hand in the local homeless shelter, as well as Covenant House, a shelter for runaway youth.

Ordained in 1956 by Bishop Vincent Waters of Raleigh, Msgr. Allen said an early pastoral stint at St. Ann Church in Smithfield, N.C., fostered his appreciation for connection with people and places.

"Those folks taught me an awful lot about church, and they taught me an awful lot about the importance of being in touch with people and being involved in the community," he said of his former parish, then composed of about 60 families.

He'd later spend summers on the road, as part of a "motor mission" that brought the church to then-rural spots like Mooresville, Statesville and Mocksville. Today, parishes bustle in all three of those places.

Through the years, Msgr. Allen's pastoral assignments included moves into larger parishes like St. Patrick Cathedral and St. Ann Church in Charlotte, but he never lost that missionary spirit. It is the same spirit that draws him to Alaska.

"The whole nature of the new frontier is something I've always liked," he said. "And I really like the people who are part of that and the church that's part of it."

He will dearly miss the friends and associations he has made in western North Carolina, he said. But Msgr. Allen, who has never taken a sabbatical in his 44 years as a priest, said the opportunity to learn something new summons him.

"I look forward to being patient enough, to taking the time to let the people and the mountains talk to me for a little bit, and tell me where I need to be," he said. "I don't go up there with a lot of agenda, and I'm sure I'll make mistakes. But nonetheless, I think it'll probably be like starting over — like when I first came to North Carolina."

Contact Associate Editor Jimmy Rostar by calling (704) 370-3334 or e-mail jtrostar@charlottediocese.org

Living Water

flows through a diocesan endowment.

Those who drink the water that I will give them will never be thirsty again.
— John 4:14

When you establish an endowment with the diocesan foundation, you...

Enable Perpetual Support
Every year, your "living water" flows with financial aid to the ministry you choose.

Ensure a Strong Future
Allow a parish, school, agency or the diocese to look ahead and plan with confidence.

Enact a Lasting Legacy
Provide your loved ones with a continuing reminder of your values: Your faith and the mission of the Church.

For more information, call Jim Kelley, Director of Development for the Diocese of Charlotte at (704) 370-3301

The Brazilians are coming...
566-1009

The Franciscan Center
Catholic Gift & Book Store
Over 700 Book Titles, plus Bibles, Rosaries, Statues, Medals, Tapes, CD's, Plaques, & much, much more!
Hours: 9am - 5pm Monday - Friday
(336) 273-2554 233 N. Greene St. Greensboro, NC 27401

The Diocese of Charlotte
CATHOLIC SOCIAL SERVICES
1123 South Church St.
Charlotte, NC 28203
www.cssnc.org

Executive Director:
Elizabeth Thurbee (704) 370-3228
Refugee Office:
Cira Ponce (704) 370-6930
Justice & Peace:
Joanne K. Frazer (704) 370-3225
Special Ministries:
Gerard A. Carter (704) 370-3250

Charlotte Area: 1123 South Church Street, Charlotte, NC 28203
Area Director: Geri King (704) 370-6155
Western Area: 50 Orange Street, Asheville, NC 28801
Area Director: Sister Marie Frechette (828) 255-0146
Piedmont-Triad Area: 621 W. Second Street, Winston-Salem, NC 27108
Area Director: David Harold (336) 727-0705
Greensboro Satellite Office: (336) 274-5577
High Point Hispanic Center: (336) 884-5858

For information on specific programs, please call your local office.

Pope tells youths to open their hearts to missionary spirit

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy (CNS) — With the stage set for a week of World Youth Day activities in Rome, a smiling Pope John Paul II welcomed the first of an expected 1.2 million young people and told them to open their hearts to the missionary spirit. "Christ needs souls who know how to witness to the world the radical newness of the Gospel," he told thousands of young jubilee volunteers Aug. 12. "I ask you to open your hearts to him with generosity, so that after your stay in Rome you can return to your homes even more filled with an apostolic spirit, to be courageous missionaries of the new evangelization," he said.

Bishops to head U.S. church delegation to African countries

WASHINGTON (CNS) — Three U.S. bishops will lead a fact-finding delegation to five African nations in late August to assess the situation of displaced people and discuss ways to improve global assistance to the countries. The delegation will travel Aug. 18-30 to Burundi, Rwanda, Congo, the Republic of Congo and Kenya. Bishop Phillip F. Straling of Reno, Nev., and Auxiliary Bishop Thomas G. Wenski of Miami, representing the bishop's Committee on Migration, will head the delegation with Bishop Donald E. Pelotte of Gallup, N.M., representing Catholic Relief Services, the bishops' international relief and development agency.

Priest sees church changed by growing number of Latinos

FRANKLIN, Wis. (CNS) — The growing number of Latino Catholics is transforming the Catholic Church in the United States, a Hispanic theologian told participants at a summer theology institute in the Milwaukee Archdiocese. But the North American church needs to treat Latinos pastorally and not "run roughshod" over their sensitivities and popular religiosity in a drive for theological consistency, he said. Jesuit Father Allan Figueroa Deck, executive director of the Loyola Institute for Spirituality in Orange, Calif., and theology professor at Loyola Marymount University in Los Angeles, spoke Aug. 3 at Sacred Heart School of Theology in Franklin.

CNS PHOTO BY KAREN CALLAWAY, NORTHWEST INDIANA CATHOLIC

Solo pilgrim walks, prays along Indiana road

Sue Korlan of South Bend, Ind., makes her way down state route 41 near Lowell, Ind., in late July. A member of the Pilgrim Cross Ministries, she walks over 15 miles a day in an attempt to visit all jubilee churches and shrines in the state.

Noted labor priest gets Medal of Freedom

WASHINGTON (CNS) — Msgr. George G. Higgins, since the 1940s one of America's most noted labor priests, received the Presidential Medal of Freedom in White House ceremonies Aug. 9. "For more than 60 years now, he has organized, marched, prayed and bled for the social and economic justice of working Americans," President Clinton said in conferring the award. "His faith and his courage have strengthened not only our nation's labor unions, but our American union," Clinton added. The award citation focused mainly on Msgr. Higgins' work in the labor movement, but it also highlighted his pioneering efforts in Catholic-Jewish relations and his leadership in civil rights and religious tolerance.

CUA vice president struck and killed by vehicle

WASHINGTON (CNS) — A memorial Mass was celebrated Aug. 4 for Vincent P. Walter, 62, vice president and general secretary of The Catholic University of America, who was killed Aug. 3 when a van went out of control and struck him as he walked along a sidewalk. Witnesses reported the van swerved to avoid a car that was leaving a parking spot on a busy Washington street. It clipped the car, hit a second car, and then jumped the curb and struck Walter, who was pinned underneath the vehicle. Walter died not long after being struck. Bystanders pulled him from underneath the van and tried to revive him.

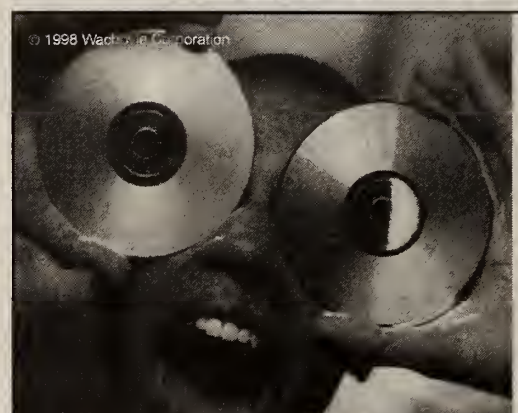
Bishop Kaniecki of Fairbanks, 65, dies of heart attack

EMMONAK, Alaska (CNS) — Bishop Michael J. Kaniecki of Fairbanks, 65, died of an apparent heart attack Aug. 6 while in the western Alaska village of Emmonak to celebrate a confirmation Mass. Father Patrick Bergquist, a member of the diocesan Presbyteral Council, told the Anchorage Daily News that shortly before the Mass, Bishop Kaniecki "had complained of a headache, took some aspirin and went for a short walk outside the church." Parishioners said they saw the bishop collapse outside Sacred Heart Church. Local health aides tried cardiopulmonary resuscitation for a time but with no success, and the bishop was pronounced dead at 11:45 a.m. local time in consultation with a physician from a regional hospital.

Groce
FUNERAL HOME & CREMATION SERVICE
1401 Patton Ave. Asheville, NC (828) 252-3535
72 Long Shoals Road Arden, NC (828) 687-3530
Assuring Absolute Integrity
Asheville's Catholic Funeral Directors
Dale Groce • John Prock
Toll-free (888) 874-3535
Pre-arrangements and obituaries on-line at www.grocefuneralhome.com

STOCKS, BONDS, MUTUAL FUNDS
FIXED & VARIABLE ANNUITIES
LIFE, DI & LTC INSURANCE
FINANCIAL PLANNING
RETIREMENT PLANNING
ESTATE PLANNING
ROLLOVERS & TRANSFERS
IRA'S & 401(K)'S
TAX PLANNING
RYAN ◆ HESS ◆ MORAIS
FINANCIAL ADVISORS, INC.
JOHN F. RYAN, JR., CFA — PARISHIONER, ST. VINCENT DEPAUL
CHRISTOPHER HESS, CFP — MEMBER, ST. JOHN'S EPISCOPAL
A. EDWARD MORAIS — PARISHIONER, ST. MATTHEW
SUITE 209 ◆ 7401 CARMEL EXECUTIVE PARK ◆ CHARLOTTE, NC 28226
PHONE 704-544-9009 FAX 704-543-4771
Registered Representatives offering securities through FFP Securities, Inc. - Member NASD/SIPC
Registered Investment Advisors offering services through FFP Advisory Services, Inc.

We'll beat any advertised price... Let us prove it!
The LaPointe Dealerships
Serving Charlotte with integrity for over 39 years!
MITSUBISHI MOTORS
6951 E. Independence Blvd.
531-3131
HONDA
7001 E. Independence Blvd.
535-4444
Frank LaPointe, President, Member of St. Gabriel Church



The Wachovia College Account basically offers you free checking. VISA® Check Card with no monthly maintenance fee. Free online account access. No minimum balances. Even your very own credit card. And Wachovia has branches and ATMs all over the place
You've got enough on your mind with books, tuition and money for the latest CDs. You shouldn't have to worry about the cost of banking.
WACHOVIA
Let's get started.℠
THE COLLEGE ACCOUNT
FREE CHECKING FREE WACHOVIA ATM USE NO MINIMUM BALANCE UNLIMITED CHECK WRITING
Wachovia Bank is a member FDIC. Accounts subject to approval.

Catholic Magsaysay awardee inspired by Jesus' birth

By CATHOLIC NEWS SERVICE

MUMBAI, India (CNS) — Jockin Arputham, winner of this year's Ramon Magsaysay Award for international understanding, attributes the inspiration for his work among slum dwellers in Mumbai to Jesus' humble birth.

"A poor woman without a house reminds me of Mary, who had no place to give birth to Jesus, and I feel like doing something to help her own her own home," Arputham, 53, told UCA News, an Asian church news agency based in Thailand.

The Catholic social worker, who lives in a slum in the western Indian city of Mumbai, sees his "little humble work" as "a manifestation of Jesus reaching out to the poor."

Arputham said providing houses to slum women is rewarding work, as it helps them realize their dream of owning a house they can turn into a home.

He describes the Magsaysay award as a recognition "of the existence of the poor and the squalid squatter settlements" that dot the pavements and railway tracks of Mumbai, formerly Bombay.

The Manila-based Ramon Magsaysay Award Foundation cited Arputham for "extending the lessons of community building in India to Southeast Asia and Africa and helping the urban poor of the two continents improve their lives by learning from one another."

The Catholic social worker, who lives in a slum in the western Indian city of Mumbai, sees his "little humble work" as "a manifestation of Jesus reaching out to the poor."

Other awardees are Aruna Roy of India for community leadership; Jesse Robredo of the Philippines for government service; Liang Congjie, who founded China's first environmental group, for public service; and Atmakusumah Astraatmadja of Indonesia for journalism.

Arputham, a native of Bangalore, recalled that he came to work as a carpenter in Mumbai, India's commercial capital, in 1963 and lived in its first legal slum, Mankhurd Janata (People's) Colony.

He said the filth and garbage that filled the colony of mostly displaced people made him want to do something about it.

Since the civic council did not come to clear the rubbish, Arputham gathered some youths and dumped it before the council office at 7 a.m. every day. After a few days, the council sent a van to collect the garbage.

Arputham said he set up the National Slum Dwellers Federation in 1975 to liaise with government and volunteer agencies. He has provided more than 5,000 homes for migrant workers and slum and pavement dwellers in Mumbai since then.

"Slum dwellers are treated like dogs, as they have no place in society," Arputham said, adding that the federation now has 600 "slum pockets" and that it has united several slum groups to cover 230,000 families in the city.

In 1985 he formed the Mahila Milan (Women's Union) in slums because "women alone can change a family's life for the better." The women's union now encourages people to save money daily to buy their houses. Families build the tenements or buy them mainly from their savings, Arputham said.

"Owning a house has given them self-respect and dignity," said Arputham, who lives in a two-room unit in a slum with his wife Rita and daughter Gloria, 21.

Arputham said he will donate the $50,000 award money to the Mahila Milan to build houses for the poor in Mumbai.

The awardee said he took social work seriously in 1964 when authorities evicted him from his slum.

"I realized the need for unity and formed a front to fight for our rights," he recalled.

He now encourages women to fight for drinking water, toilets and electricity because he is convinced that "qualitative change in slums" is impossible without women's initiative.

"I began my life living in a slum and one must be close to one's cause," Arputham said.

The Magsaysay Awards, often referred to as the "Asian Nobel Prizes," were established in honor of former Philippine president Ramon Magsaysay, who died in a 1957 plane crash.

Miss Donna's School of Dancing

Tap Ballet Jazz
Lyrical
Classes Start Sept 5
Ages 2 to Adult
Yearly Recital at Ovens Auditorium

Serving Charlotte for 44 years. Call any of Our Locations for More Info

*Amity Gardens Ctr. 537-1344
*Oakdale/Coulwood 399-7052
*Matthews 847-4333
*Harrisburg 455-9408
*Mooresville 664-7544
*Carmel/Pineville 451-5042

NATIONAL COMPETITION WINNERS

Schools
Institutions
Daycares
Churches
Sales Offices
Recreational Facilities
Banks
Medical Facilities

Member of: MODULAR BUILDING INSTITUTE

Offering turn-key and professional solutions with Custom Modular Buildings to meet your growing and changing needs!

MODULARCORP

1803 East Wendover Ave., Suite E
Greensboro, NC 27405
(336) 275-8274 (336) 275-8649 fax
E-mail: modular@greensboro.com

Daniel Murray, President — St. Pius X Parishioner

Visit our Web site! www.modularcorp.com

CFCC
Carolina Funeral & Cremation Center

Dignity
Affordability
Simplicity

5505 Monroe Rd. Charlotte, NC 28212
704-568-0023
www.carolinafuneral.com

Steven Kuzma
Owner/Director
Privately, Locally Owned
Member St. Matthew Church and Knights of Columbus

"Our Specialty Is Loving Your Pets"

Pineville Animal Hospital

10833 Pineville Road, Pineville, NC
(Near Carolina Pavilion/AMC 22 Theater)
(704) 552-2005

In addition to our complete medical care facility, we also offer:
Boarding Kennels
Professional Grooming

Thomas N. Buckley, DVM, owner
Member of St. Vincent's

Lincolnton, from page 1

PHOTO BY JOANN S. KEANE

The Costa Rican community of St. Dorothy Church brings a multi-cultural flair to the Lincoln County parish. Pictured is the parish planning committee.

basilica, was erected and its interior is literally covered with demure likenesses of body parts; little metallic images left in thanks for cures and miracles attributed to Our Lady of Los Angeles. Pope Pius XI named the site as the shrine of Queen of the Angels in 1935.

Back in Lincolnton, an overflow gathering filled the 350-seat parish. People spilled into the narthex and further into the parish hall for the celebration of Mass. From the closing procession, parish members, their families and friends squeezed into the parish hall for a secondary celebratory feast: native cuisine.

A line quickly formed, and piles of rice, beans and chicken scooped onto disposable plates disappeared as quickly as it was served.

Young women danced to the Latin beat as their colorful costumes swirled into a blend of kaleidoscopic tones and hues. The little angels donned their wings as they joined their friends caught up in the festive pace.

It took a month of planning for this culinary feast, with a committee comprised of: Yolira and Luis Pochet, Luis Angel Ugalde, Alvaro Rodriguez, Blanca Vargas, Alexandra Sibaja, Juan Vega, Maria Elena, Alexis Rosales, Victor Quesada Lopez, Ligia Jara Mora, Eduardo Casbro, Lrian Sanchez, and Edwin Araya. This group coordinated the fiesta, as they, and other parish members took responsibility for the lavish layout of traditional Costa Rican food and drink.

PHOTO BY JOANN S. KEANE

Ty Mashburn, age 1 1/2, played one of the angels at the celebration.

For many, it was an opportunity to celebrate and perhaps visit with friends not seen for some time. Moreover, Rev. Mr. Medina says, it is a richness of faith not just localized, but universal and expressed among, and shared with the community.

Contact Editor Joann Keane by calling (704) 370-3336 or e-mail jskeane@charlottediocese.org

Operation Rice Bowl Mini-Grants Awarded

CHARLOTTE — Like ripples in a pond each year the Operation Rice Bowl mini-grant awards spread Catholic social teachings to broader areas of the diocese. This year 13 recipients will use the grants for strengthening relationships with communities in Nicaragua, El Salvador and with immigrant and migrant populations right here in western North Carolina.

The seven-member Catholic Relief Services Diocesan Committee awards the grants from the 25 percent of the annual Operation Rice Bowl contributions that remains in the diocese. The remaining 75 percent of each year's collection is forwarded to national CRS for its worldwide programs. During this ORB 25th anniversary year Catholics in the Charlotte diocese contributed $52,053.06.

Promoting solidarity between local church and school communities and global communities is the focus of the mini-grant program, established in 1997 by the CRS Diocesan Committee. Recipients this year include:

St. Joseph Vietnamese parish, Charlotte, for text books and supplies to be used in the faith formation program; St. Aloysius parish, Hickory, for materials used in an English as a Second Language (ESL) program for the Lahu Adult Literacy Program; St. Andrew parish, Mars Hill, for materials to train immigrant leaders to more fully participate in sacraments, liturgy and faith formation; Holy Angels parish, Mt. Airy, to purchase materials to enhance a rapidly increasing Hispanic population; St. Joseph parish, Bryson City, for materials in Spanish to promote parish activities and involvement among Hispanics; St. Elizabeth parish, Boone, to provide materials for ESL classes for migrant workers; St. Francis of Assisi parish, Jefferson, for materials to nurture the spiritual growth and just working conditions for the Hispanic population; All Saints Catholic School, Charlotte, to assist with shipment of school supplies they will collect for children in Nicaragua; St. Luke parish, Mint Hill, to support a parish-wide, intergenerational program to foster greater interaction with other cultural groups, particularly Centro Hispanico; Sacred Heart parish, Salisbury, to encourage service by confirmation candidates to immigrants who are poor in the local community; St. James parish in Hamlet and Sacred Heart parish in Wadesboro, to provide materials for nurturing involvement of the Hispanic community in the local parishes; St. Peter parish, Charlotte, to strengthen the relationship between St. Peter parishioners and residents of Ciudad Segundo Montes in El Salvador.

Join us in serving God as priest or brother.

Our Oratorian Congregation was founded in Rome by St. Philip Neri in 1575. Known as "The Apostle of Joy," St. Phillip lived this virtue and brought people of all ages and backgrounds to the Church.

As a group of priests and lay men, we live a community life without vows and serve the people of God in various ministries:

- Parishes
- Retreat Work
- Nursing
- Campus Ministry
- Youth Summer Camp
- Hospital Chaplaincy

Like our ministries, our members are unique and come from across the United States and from Brazil.

For more information, please write:
Fr. Ed McDevitt, C.O. or Fr. Joe Pearce, C.O.
The Oratory
P.O. Box 11586
Rock Hill, SC 29731-1586

Let stairs be our problem... not yours!

Ask about our Stairway lifts.

- Easily attached to steps (not walls)
- Folds out of the way
- Fits most stairways (straight & curved)
- Very affordable (rent or buy)
- We install

Chair & Equipment Rentals & Sales, Inc.
800 Central Ave. • Charlotte, NC • (800) 333-8431
Member of St. Thomas Aquinas

Carolina Volkswagen
6625 E. Independence Blvd., Charlotte
(704) 537-2336 • (800) 489-2336

Biggest Selection — Lowest Prices

Drivers wanted.

"Nothing Could Be Finer" — Members of St. Gabriel

#1 Volkswagen Dealer in Charlotte and all the Carolinas for customer sales and service satisfaction!
C'mon in and see why!

Charleston hosts interreligious homecoming for Hunley crew

By JORDAN MCMORROUGH
New Catholic Miscellany

NORTH CHARLESTON — When the Confederate submarine H.L. Hunley rose to the surface from its resting place at the bottom of the Atlantic Ocean near Charleston Harbor the morning of Aug. 8, it was completing a journey begun more than 130 years ago.

And, after arriving at the Warren Lasch Conservation Center at the former Charleston Naval Base to begin perhaps a decade of restoration work, an ecumenical service provided the final ceremony to honor the nine members of the Hunley crew, whose remains are inside the submarine.

Taking part in the ceremony was Msgr. Lawrence McInerny, pastor of Stella Maris Church; the Rev. Edward Counts of St. John's Lutheran Church; the Rev. Alvin F. Kimel Jr., Church of the Holy Communion; and the Rev. James A. Holmes of Washington United Methodist Church.

The event consisted of Scriptures, specifically Psalm 130, a lesson from St. John, a prayer of consecration, a litany for the departed and a sprinkling rite or aspersion used in funeral services.

"It's an honor to be here," said Msgr. McInerny before the ceremony. "This is a reminder that this (the Hunley) is not an artifact. It is a tomb and has been a tomb for more than 130 years. It is a solemn occasion."

The monsignor added that the tale of the Hunley "is a beautiful story of history, valor, and solemnity. It appeals to everyone."

At Stella Maris Parish, bell ringers were the harbinger of the news that the recovery barge carrying the Confederate submarine was entering Charleston Harbor, as crowds lined the beaches at Fort Moultrie to witness a part of history.

Deacon Michael Osbourne of Stella Maris coordinated the bell ringing of churches on Sullivan's Island for the occasion. "We were the lookout," said Msgr. McInerny. "The sentiment expressed by everyone was one of gratitude."

A formal funeral service for the sailors whose remains are still aboard the Hunley will be conducted at a later date, perhaps a year. Currently, interment is planned at Magnolia Cemetery in Charleston.

Republican State Sen. Glenn McConnell spoke briefly prior to the religious service. "We are committed to dealing with the remains with the deepest respect," he said. "This ceremony has no precedent, this blessing of the Hunley."

At the close of the 15-minute reception, a bugler, a Confederate reenactor in a white period naval uniform, blew taps.

Catholic Campus Ministry in the Diocese of Charlotte

Here is a list of the Catholic Campus Ministers in the Diocese of Charlotte:

Diocesan Director of Campus Ministry
Colleen McDermott
1123 South Church Street
Charlotte, NC 28203
704-370-3212
campusministry@charlottediocese.org

Director of Development for Campus Ministry
Reverend Dr. Frederick Dobens
1123 South Church Street
Charlotte, NC 28203
704-370-3371
fdobens@hotmail.com

Appalachian State University, Boone
Campus Minister: Dr. Sal Inglese
828-265-9698

Belmont Abbey College, Belmont
Campus Minister: Katy Volponi
704-829-7196
kponitale@juno.com

Bennett College, Greensboro
Campus Minister: Alberta Hairston
336-272-5868
theahouse1@juno.com

Brevard College, Brevard
Campus Minister: James Gensch
828-883-9572
gallivant@citcom.net

Catawba College, Salisbury
Local Parish Contact: Lynda Cody
704-633-0591

Davidson College, Davidson
Campus Minister: Barbara Bagnall
704-892-2917
BB195@aol.com

Greensboro College: See UNCG
Guilford College: See UNCG

Johnson C. Smith/Barber Scotia College, Charlotte
Parish Contact: Nanette Lide
704-536-2340

Lenoir-Rhyne College, Hickory
Campus Contact: Rosalie Richards
828-328-7171

Livingstone College:
See Catawba College

Mars Hill College, Mars Hill
Local Parish: St. Andrew the Apostle
828-689-3719

North Carolina A&T University:
See Bennett College

North Carolina School of the Arts: See Wake Forest

Salem College: See Wake Forest

Wake Forest University, Winston-Salem
Camp Minister: Father Jude DeAngelo, OFM Conv.
Associate CM: Julie Ostergaard
336-758-5018
jdeang8015@aol.com

Western Carolina University, Cullowhee
Campus Minister: Gloria Schwiezer
828-293-9374
cath_stu@wcu.edu

UNC Asheville
Local Parish: St. Eugene
828-254-5193

UNC Charlotte
Campus Minister: Mary Wright
704-547-4069

UNC Greensboro
Campus Minister: Douglas Campbell
336-334-5548
dcamp66@aol.com

COACHXCEL
A Personal Coach Is to Your Mind and Spirit What A Personal Trainer Is to Your Body.
• Achieve more success and significance both personally and professionally
• Earn more money while growing personally
• Attain better overall health with less stress
• Possess higher self confidence and reach your goals
For a complimentary consultation call
John Connors, LPC @ 704-597-4184
Licensed Professional Counselor

JOHANNUS CHURCH ORGANS
America's best value in sound & price.
SYNTHIA MUSIC SYSTEMS
Catholic Hymns at the push of a button.
SOUND SYSTEMS
Totally wireless systems and hearing impaired devices.
CHURCH PIANOS
Quality pianos for affordable prices.
ELECTRONIC ORGAN SERVICE ON ALL MAKES
Music & Electronics, Inc.
Corner of Oak & Broad Streets, Mooresville, NC
(704) 663-7007 — (800) 331-0768

Providing Quality Long Term Care ...With Great Love.
For half a century, Maryfield Nursing Home has provided outstanding nursing care in a Catholic environment. When you need more care than is available at your home, come visit us. We invite you to discover for yourself our many stimulating daily activities and services which make Maryfield the best possible choice for Long Term Care.
1315 Greensboro Road
High Point, NC 27260
336.886.2444 Fax 336.886.4036
www.greensboro.com/mnh

MARYFIELD
A Continuing Care Retirement Community

Book Review

Part of ethics series, new book offers reflections on dying

Reviewed by DIMITRA C. BOLGER
Catholic News Service

A book on death is not exactly the kind one likes to mention at parties. Neither is it likely to become the subject of an afternoon book-discussion group.

Although death is not the usual topic of discussion among friends, "The Eternal Pity: Reflection on Dying" still stands out as a recommended book — particularly for discussion in classrooms or book groups.

Edited by Father Richard John Neuhaus, who was named by U.S. News and World Report as one of the 32 "most influential intellectuals in America," the book consists of 26 selections on various aspects of death — our own death and the death of loved ones.

"The Eternal Pity: Reflections on Dying" edited by Father Richard John Neuhaus. University of Notre Dame Press (Notre Dame, Ind., 2000).

208 pp., $15.00.

The work is commendable for two key reasons: first because of the qualities of the selections themselves, and second because the work fulfills what it endeavors to do — namely, to invite the reader to look at the morality and ethics involved with death.

The book begins with a thought-provoking and insightful introduction in which Father Neuhaus relates his own experiences with life-threatening cancer and chemotherapy. From there, Father Neuhaus invites the reader to explore 26 thought-provoking reflections.

He divides the selections into three parts: "Thinking About Death: Twelve Classic Visions," "When We Die," and "When Others Die."

The readings themselves come in various forms — poetry, literature, essays, and philosophical discourses.

They represent thinkers from many religious and philosophical backgrounds.

As an editor, Father Neuhaus stays true to his role and does not attempt to instruct or convince the reader of any specific viewpoint or argument.

Rather, he merely presents excerpts from a diverse group of thinkers and allows readers to then reach their own conclusions.

More important however is the significance of this book as a learning tool. "The Eternal Pity" is part of a series entitled "Ethics of Everyday Life," edited by members of the Institute on Religion and Public Life in New York.

The series aims to take everyday subjects — such as leadership, work, teaching, and romance — and provides anthologies of reflections on each.

Are these works the best of what prose and poetry have to offer on these subjects? One could always make an argument for adding or removing a reading.

But on a whole, the readings stand out as excellent. Contributions by C.S. Lewis, Pieter de Vries, and Milton Himmelfarb are especially exemplary.

"The Eternal Pity" succeeds because it is a good selection of easy-to-read, diverse and thought-provoking essays.

More important however, the book stands out as an invitation to true intellectualism, as readers are encouraged to think for themselves and to enter into the dialogue which has been ignited by means of these essays and reflections.

Death may never be a favorite topic at parties, but if people read books such as this, death is definitely going to be talked of much more.

Bolger recently received a bachelor's degree in theology, philosophy and Great Books from Franciscan University of Steubenville. She is a staff assistant at the U.S. Catholic Conference and continues her studies of Mariology.

Word to Life

Aug. 20, 20th Sunday in Ordinary Time. Cycle B Readings:

1) Proverbs 9:1-6
   Psalm 34:2-7
2) Ephesians 5:15-20
3) Gospel: John 6:51-58

By JEFF HENSLEY
Catholic News Service

This week's Scriptures remind me of my own adult conversion to the Christian faith. Or perhaps, I should say my appropriation of the faith as my own, not simply what I was handed as a child.

When the Proverbs reading admonishes the simple who lack understanding to "come, eat of my food and drink of the wine I have mixed! Forsake foolishness that you may live," I am there.

When I first read these and similar invitations to wisdom when I was in my early 20s and an agnostic, they spoke to my hunger to find that which was solid, that which would lead me to a spiritual maturity I could only long for with the soft-edged longing of the seeker who knows there is something more in life than yet has been grasped.

As I turned to Scripture and prayer, even in my nascent belief, I found that I could say with the psalmist in Psalm 34:5, "I sought the Lord, and he answered me and delivered me from all my fears," and I came to be able to join with him in the next phrase, as I came to faith: "Look to him that you may be radiant with joy, and your faces may not blush with shame."

And in time, as the road to full union with the church became possible for me as my interior barriers fell, I came to understand something of what Jesus meant when he uttered the mysteries in the John reading: "Just as the Father who has life sent me, and I have life because of the Father, so the man who feeds on me will have life because of me."

Despite my weakness and foolishness, I came to understand that the fullness of being in God consists in continuing the eucharistic act of offering to God what we are that we may become the bread and wine that we consume — for others.

Question:
Have you taken time lately to remember the first blush of adult faith when you no longer took for granted the goodness of God and the abundance of his mercy toward you?

Weekly Scripture

Readings for the week of Aug. 20 - 26, 2000

Sunday, Proverbs 9:1-6, Ephesians 5:15-20, John 6:51-58; Monday (St. Pius X), Ezekiel 24:15-24, Matthew 19:16-22; Tuesday (The Queenship of Mary), Ezekiel 28:1-10, Matthew 19:23-30; Wednesday (St. Rose of Lima), Ezekiel 34:1-11, Matthew 20:1-16; Thursday (St. Bartholomew), Revelation 21:9-14, John 1:45-51; Friday (St. Louis, St. Joseph Calasanz), Ezekiel 37:1-14, Matthew 22:34-40; Saturday, Ezekiel 43:1-7, Matthew 23:1-12

Readings for the week of Aug. 27 - Sept. 2, 2000

Sunday, Joshua 24:1-2, 15-18, Ephesians 5:21-32, John 6:60-69; Monday (St. Augustine), 2 Thessalonians 1:1-5, 11-12, Matthew 23:13-22; Tuesday (Martyrdom of St. John the Baptist), 2 Thessalonians 2:1-3, 14-17, Mark 6:17-29; Wednesday, 2 Thessalonians 3:6-10, 16-18, Matthew 23:27-32; Thursday, 1 Corinthians 1:1-9, Matthew 24:42-51; Friday, 1 Corinthians 1:17-25, Matthew 25:1-13; Saturday, 1 Corinthians 1:26-31, Matthew 25:14-30

CLOSED MONDAYS THRU LABOR DAY
Tues-Fri 9:30am-5:30pm
Sat. 9:30am-3:00pm

Carolina Catholic Bookshoppe

† Special Cards
† Religious Articles
† Unique Gift Ideas

704-342-2878

Fax (704) 334-3313
4410-F Monroe Road, Charlotte, NC

We welcome mail orders and special orders!

Caring for Charlotte Area Catholic Families in Their Hour of Need Since 1926

McEWEN FUNERAL SERVICE, INC.

Charlotte 704-334-6421
Pineville 704-544-1412
Mint Hill 704-545-4864
Derita 704-596-3291

Cornerstones

Fall Camp for the young at heart!
Ages 50 and Up

September 24-29

Deluxe lodging, delicious meals, college level curriculum, hands-on instruction, fun and entertaining events, field trips to neat places with great friends! Week-long fun at a very special place.

For more information, call toll-free
888-526-7441 or (828) 327-7441
E-mail: ccc@twave.net
www.catholicconference.org

The Catholic Conference Center
1551 Trinity Lane Hickory, NC

Video Reviews

NEW YORK (CNS) — The following are home videocassette reviews from the U.S. Catholic Conference Office for Film and Broadcasting. Each videocassette is available on VHS format. Theatrical movies on video have a U.S. Catholic Conference classification and Motion Picture Association of America rating. All reviews indicate the appropriate age group for the video audience.

This column looks at the films of Alec Guinness, a Catholic convert, who died Aug. 5 in London at age 86.

"The Bridge on the River Kwai" (1957)

Epic World War II adventure based on Pierre Boulle's novel about British POWs in Burma who build a military supply bridge for their Japanese captors while British commandos make their way through the jungle to blow it up. Though the anti-war ending is more hollow than ironic, director David Lean excels in depicting the rigors of prison camp life, the military discipline that sustains the prisoners and, at the story's center, the battle of wills between the British commander (Alec Guinness) and his Japanese counterpart (Sessue Hayakawa) over who will command the work details. Some wartime violence and harrowing camp punishments. The U.S. Catholic Conference classification is A-I — general patronage. Not rated by the Motion Picture Association of America. (Columbia TriStar)

"The Horse's Mouth" (1958)

Wacky satire from the Joyce Cary novel in which a cantankerous artist (Alec Guinness) moves into the empty residence of an art collector (Robert Coote) and gradually turns it to rubble as he pursues his obsession of painting a giant mural, despite the best efforts of his caring friends (notably Renee Houston). Scripted by Guinness and directed by Ronald Neame, the story is subsidiary to the portrait of the artist as slightly mad, entirely egocentric and yet, for all his nastiness, an endearing old reprobate touched with genius — a challenging role not for all tastes. Some sexual innuendo and disdain for property rights and people in general. The U.S. Catholic Conference classification is A-III — adults. Not rated by the Motion Picture Association of America. (New Line)

"Kind Hearts and Coronets" (1949)

Stylish black comedy set in Edwardian England where eight members of an aristocratic family (all played by Alec Guinness) die in fatal accidents arranged by a distant relative (Dennis Price) in order to attain the dukedom he believes is rightfully his. Robert Hamer directs the proceedings with wit, elegance and much irony as related in flashbacks by the smoothly caustic perpetrator on the eve of his execution, though Guinness steals the show with his satirical parade of stuffy, doomed aristocrats. Cynical attitude toward murder. The U.S. Catholic Conference classification is A-III — adults. Not rated by the Motion Picture Association of America. (Facets, (800) 331-6197)

"The Lavender Hill Mob" (1951)

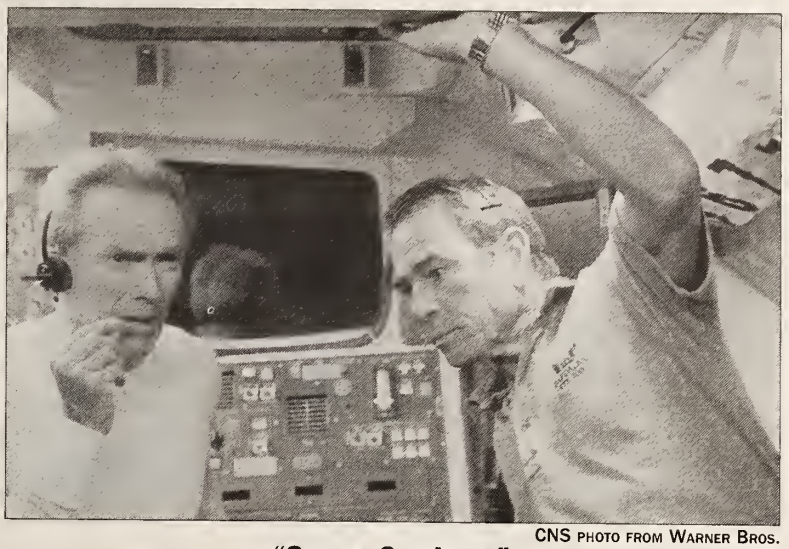
British comedy classic in which a timid bank employee (Alec Guinness) concocts a scheme to hijack a shipment of gold bullion with the aid of professional crooks (Sidney James and Alfie Bass), then melt it down in the foundry of an accommodating sculptor (Stanley Holloway) and recast it as Eiffel Tower souvenirs for export to Paris. Scripted by T.E.B. Clarke and directed by Charles Crichton, it's a tongue-in-cheek depiction of a perfect crime that has one hilarious flaw after another, culminating in a wild police chase through London and a neat twist ending in South America. Comic crime caper and mild menace. The U.S. Catholic Conference classification is A-II — adults and adolescents. Not rated by the Motion Picture Association of America. (Facets (800) 331-6197)

"Lawrence of Arabia" (1963)

Set within the frame of a grand adventure is this interesting study of British hero-author T.E. Lawrence (Peter O'Toole), whose World War I exploits in leading the Arabs against the Turks made his literary works popular in the 1920s. Director David Lean focuses on the diverse aspects of the man with an ambiguity suitable to the mystery still surrounding this mythic figure. Bloody wartime battles and implications of a homosexual incident. The U.S. Catholic Conference classification is A-II — adults and adolescents. The Motion Picture Association of America rating is PG — parental guidance suggested. (Columbia TriStar)

"Scrooge" (1970)

British musical version of the Christmas classic concentrates on poor old misanthropic (Albert Finney), a thoroughly craven humbug whose is never believable and hence all the more fun to watch. Directed by Ronald Neame, it's light and amusing fun, using song and dance sparingly but well. The ghosts (Alec Guinness, Edith Evans and Kenneth Moore) are especially imaginative and the mood of the piece is caught by Ronald Searle's delightful caricatures appearing with the credits. For all who still have enough of the child within them to enjoy an old-fashioned bit of make-believe. The U.S. Catholic Conference classification is A-I — general patronage. The Motion Picture Association of America rating is G — general audiences. (Fox Video)



CNS PHOTO FROM WARNER BROS.

"Space Cowboys"

Enjoyable action-adventure flick about four retired Air Force pilots (Clint Eastwood, Tommy Lee Jones, James Garner and Donald Sutherland) sent into space 40 years past their prime because only their technical knowledge can stop a malfunctioning Russian satellite from smashing into Earth. While the narrative's plausibility is questionable, director Eastwood's casually paced film maintains interest with colorful characters, impressive visual effects and slight intrigue as well as an unexpected conclusion. Brief menace with intermittent crass language and some profanity. The U.S. Catholic Conference classification is A-II — adults and adolescents. The Motion Picture Association of America rating is PG-13 — parents are strongly cautioned. Some material may be inappropriate for children under 13.

"Star Wars" (1977)

Set in a galaxy other than our own, a desperate struggle takes place between evil usurpers of empire and a dedicated band of rebels (Carrie Fisher, Mark Hamill, Harrison Ford and Alec Guinness). Written and directed by George Lucas, the outcome never is in doubt because the movie's conventions are as old-fashioned as its story of good triumphing over evil. The special effects are stunning, the characters imaginative and the narrative intriguing. Much stylized violence. The U.S. Catholic Conference classification is A-II — adults and adolescents. The Motion Picture Association of America rating is PG — parental guidance suggested. — (Fox Video)

Mothers in Love + Fathers in Love =
Families in Love

Your whole family deserves the love Mom and Dad discover on a Worldwide Marriage Encounter weekend! Marriage Encounter is 44 hours where married couples can get away from jobs, kids, chores and phones — and focus on each other. If you'd like greater depth, growth and enrichment in your relationship, you'll like the difference a Worldwide Marriage Encounter weekend can make! Join millions of couples worldwide who have learned how to keep their marriage vibrant and alive.

Next Marriage Encounter Weekend:
Sept. 8, 9, 10
Holiday Inn Airport, Charlotte
Call Tom & Emilie Sandin
(336) 274-4424
November Weekend: 17th-19th

Attention
DIABETICS
with Medicare or Insurance
Save Money on Diabetic Supplies!
For more information call:
1-800-337-4144
Medicare also pays for pump & pump supplies

30 YEARS EXPERIENCE

PYANO MAN
HENRY C. ROZELL III
2nd Generation • Piano Tuner/Technician
Piano Tuning, Repairs, Refinishing
Pianos Bought and Sold
FREE ESTIMATES
704-321-5843

The Pope Speaks

POPE JOHN PAUL II

Pope condemns violence in Russia, Spain, Indonesia

By JOHN NORTON
Catholic News Service

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — Pope John Paul II condemned separate terrorist acts in Russia and Spain and appealed for an end to Christian-Muslim violence in Indonesia.

"I hope with all my heart that every form of violence, the source of mourning and suffering, ceases and that hearts turn toward thoughts of intense and peaceful coexistence," he said Aug. 9 at the end of his weekly general audience in St. Peter's Square.

Referring to a bomb attack in central Moscow Aug. 8 which killed at least eight people, the pope expressed "my strongest condemnation for this serious attack, while I assure my solidarity, which I accompany with prayer."

Russian police blamed Chechen rebels for the rush-hour blast that struck commuters in a pedestrian underpass. The rebels, waging a guerrilla war against Russian troops in the Caucasus region, were also blamed for last year's wave of Russian apartment bombings that killed hundreds of people.

The pope also condemned a fresh series of bomb blasts across Spain attributed to the Basque separatist group ETA.

He said he extended his prayers "to the victims of the attacks which, unfortunately, continue in Spain."

Three bomb explosions rocked the country in a 24-hour period, leaving five people dead and at least 10 injured. An Aug. 8 blast in a northern residential district of the capital, Madrid, wounded 10 people, including two children. The same day, a car bomb in the northern Spanish town of Zumaya killed a leading businessman, Jose Maria Korta. On Aug. 7, a suspected ETA commander and three accomplices were killed as explosives they were transporting by car detonated in the northern city of Bilbao.

In late July, the pope vigorously condemned ETA's murder of a Spanish politician and emphasized that "no idea or political or social project can be imposed with violence."

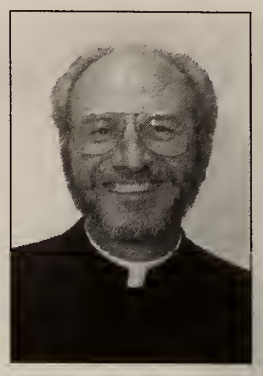
During his Aug. 9 audience, the pope also asked prayers for an end to continuing violence in the Indonesian Molucca Islands. Hundreds of people have been killed and thousands have been forced from their homes. In the fighting between Christians and Muslims, dozens of churches and mosques have been burned.

"We want to send thoughts of intense spiritual closeness to those suffering from the death of their loved ones, the loss of the goods necessary for existence and the destruction of their places of worship," he said.

Many inhabitants had been forced to flee the islands, "where they have a right to live in dignity and security," he said.

Pope John Paul prayed that order would be established in the Moluccas, that "the harmony of former days be found again soon, and that Christians and Muslims succeed at coexisting in peace."

Economy of Faith



FATHER JOHN S. RAUSCH, Glenmary
Guest Columnist

Transforming the marketplace

For two years I attended a Tuesday Night Group with a dozen business people. We read the Sunday's Scriptures and reflected about the office, factory and marketplace. The group told stories and focused on making the Gospel concrete in everyday life.

Stuart, one of the members, said he worked for an accounting firm in Atlanta. Every year his firm threw a lavish Christmas party in a swank hotel. Inspired by the group, he told his boss he would skip the party because he saw a conflict. On Wednesday nights he and his wife worked at the homeless shelter in downtown Atlanta, and he could not reconcile his Wednesday ministry among Atlanta's poorest with the Christmas party and its elegance. In fact, he challenged the firm to donate his portion of the expenses to the shelter. At first his boss resisted, saying the request would set a precedent, but Stuart prevailed. The amount the firm would have spent on one couple fed 35 people at the shelter.

The challenge for believers today comes frequently as creative opportunities to transform the marketplace. The economic system promotes frivolous consumption, while advertisements further products based on vanity, power, prestige and greed. The market lacks a moral compass and cannot differentiate between profits from authentic creation of wealth, or from the exploitation of workers, the environment or communities. But, people of faith can make a difference.

One need not be a Christian to be honest, fair or respectful. And, reasons for virtue may cover the spectrum from "it's just good business" to a personal conviction about human dignity and the common good. To the casual observer, both a Christian in business and a highly ethical person may act the same.

However, the difference lies in a vision. The person of faith sees God's power at work in the world and believes that power can transform society. God's forgiveness can heal violence, God's generosity can share wealth and God's love can insure a dignified life for every human person. Believers act like the hands and feet of God in the marketplace. But, the hands and feet of the Body of Christ need one another.

There is a follow-up to Stuart's story. When he returned to the office the Monday after the Christmas party, he felt like a pariah. Folks avoided the company conscience. Gradually, on an individual basis, co-workers approached him with their own stories. One told how he supported a boys home for nearly 20 years, another how his spouse volunteers half-time with the Red Cross. Slowly Stuart realized the overtures did not focus on Carribean vacations or new red sports cars.

By his action, Stuart had transformed the level of awareness at the office from self-indulgence to service of others. Believers need their own Tuesday Night Group. Meeting weekly, believers will find time for prayer and reflection. They will maintain their personal values and challenge one another to live a spirituality that will ultimately transform the marketplace.

Glenmary Father John S. Rausch writes, teaches and organizes in Appalachia.

On the Light Side

DAN MORRIS
CNS Columnist

Saintly tattoos

As you know, the problem with having a large tattoo of St. Francis of Assisi ensconced on your left shoulder is that you might change your mind later and decide that St. Therese of Lisieux is actually your favorite saint. Then where would you be?

Naturally you would have to have a tattoo of the Little Flower memorialized on your right shoulder. This is only fair.

Yet, as fickle as some of us can be, what if you next developed an incredibly deep devotion to St. Anthony? Put him on your shoulder blade?

A person could run the risk of becoming the record book's entry for "most tattoos of saints on his or her body."

I am not aware of this being addressed in either canon law or the catechism, so we Catholics fascinated by the current tattoo craze are kind of on our own on this.

It does make one think of those young World War II sailors who had the names of their girlfriends tattooed on their forearms. More than a couple of those men had those relationships fall through, and they were faced with some sticky options: Tell the new girlfriend that "Bettylu" was hs mother's name; date only girls named "Bettylu"; have "just kidding" tattooed alongside "Bettylu"; change his named to "Bettylu"; always wear long-sleeve shirts.

Truthfully, it would be nice to think some of the young folks taking part in the tattoo fad would have asked these men's advice prior to securing their own skin art, things like, "Do you think having barbed wire tattooed around my neck will present fashion accessorizing challenges in the future?". Or, "To anticipate my body changing a little in a decade or three, do you think a frog, lizard or iguana would warp least and look least like a map of South America on my biceps?"

Of course there is a presumption here: that a tattoo was an informed decision rather than something done after consuming enough "adult" beverage to significantly alter one's vision and ability to snap one's fingers.

Actually, the problem with saint tattoos, according to my friend Winston who knows these things, is finding any at all. And if you have one done, people would probably think St. Francis was Darth Vader. It is definitely a challenge for folks interested in religious art tattoos.

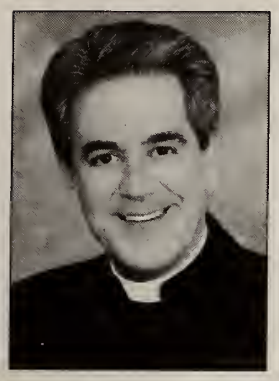
On the positive side, I suspect it will not be long before you will be able to find lick-and-stick temporary tattoos of saints and other religious art in Christian bookstores. This just makes sense.

As a matter of fact, if I were a development or vocations director for the Franciscans or the Carmelites (St. Therese, remember?), I would be hopping on this one.

Can you imagine how popular temporary tattoos of things Catholic could become in Catholic schools and religious education programs across the country? Talk about fund-raising potential.

The Jesuits should be careful, though, if they were thinking about St. Ignatius of Loyola tattoos given the fact that images of their founder do, I am sorry to say, look a lot like Vincent Van Gough or a character from an Ann Rice novel.

Clearly this is an area in need of much more theological reflection and spiritual discernment.



Light One Candle

FATHER THOMAS J. McSWEENEY
Guest Columnist

Bon Voyage

About halfway through the blockbuster movie "The Perfect Storm," I broke out in a cold sweat that sent "shivers up me timbers." Instinctively my heart and stomach bonded with the screen characters being helplessly thrashed by the unforgiving sea. In effect, each waterlogged scene stirred up a flashback to my own terror-filled memories of sailing Lake Erie.

From time to time, most of us are bitten by the "travel bug," and usually the bite is not without its pain, especially for those who put out to sea. For sailors and boaters, it is a rare trip on which nothing goes wrong. They understand why the English word "travel" comes from the French word meaning "to suffer."

My hometown is Pennsylvania's port city to the Great Lake of the same name — Erie. During the summers, we natives get the chance to give in to the travel bug by sailing across the lake's borderless wide expanse to visit the shores of Canada. It can be both exhilarating and hazardous.

Exhilarating because on a day when the wind direction and speed are just right, you can trim your sails to reach Long Point, Ontario, within 5 hours of shoving off from Erie's shores. It's just another 20 miles to the always friendly and inviting port of Dover where Canadians really express the Good Neighbor Policy.

Lake Erie is hazardous because it is the most shallow of all the Great Lakes. You might recall Herman Melville's mention of Erie in Moby Dick as an example of how the highest waves are produced by the shallowest waters. In a few seconds, the wind can stir up a nearly placid lake into 12-foot swells.

I recall vividly a cloudless afternoon when the lake was absolute glass. Just as I disconnected the halyard, a line attached to the mainsail, a sudden gust of wind churned up frothy whitecaps that hurled the boat into roller coaster bobs. The halyard snapped from my hand whiplike and flew perpendicular to the mast like a taut clothesline.

My sailing mate, reaching for the line with a pole, lost his balance, slid to the side of the boat, flipped over the lifeline, and plunged headfirst overboard. If it weren't for the pole he took with him, I don't know how I would have retrieved him. Holding it high enough for me to grab as he bodysurfed back to the boat, I was able to hoist him to the side.

Such are the days when everything seems to conspire against you: fog so thick you can't read the compass, an atmospheric charge that electrifies the mast so that a green spark ("St. Elmo's fire") shoots clean down to the keel, water spouts that threaten to rip your sails into tatters. A journey can be difficult, even life-threatening, yet it is part of our nature to believe that risks are ultimately outweighed by potential benefits.

There are many times in life when we keep going purely out of faith and hope. But we have good reason. We proceed, not on our own, but as followers of Jesus who has both laid out the course and followed it. Our ability to recover from setbacks, our power to make the right choices, our stamina to travel through rough weather — all derive from Him. If Jesus could calm a storm at sea with the words, "Peace! Be still!" (Mark 4:30), surely He can calm our troubled souls and guide us home.

The Bottom Line

ANTOINETTE BOSCO
CNS Columnist

Insights from a fisherman on the spirituality of work

I've heard many a fish story in my day, but few caught my attention the way one did recently. I was at one of those nice, big family get-togethers and happened to get in on a discussion about a relatively new way fishermen can now have their fish and eat them too.

A soft-spoken young man named Joe Grieco was showing photos of truly artistically mounted fish, only these weren't real fish bodies preserved by a taxidermist. They were fish reproductions, put together so perfectly that the eye-catching completed product looked absolutely lifelike.

I asked Grieco what I suppose was a poor question to ask a fisherman: What's the allure of fishing for you? He gave me an unexpected answer. "Jesus was a fisherman, and so were most of his disciples. There has to be something very special about fish. At least that's how I feel."

I looked at the photos again, and this time the mounted fish, all Grieco's work, seemed even more alive than before. I was reminded of a conversation I'd had recently with a priest who told me our work should be less about making money and more about finding how we can subtly serve the Lord through our work.

Grieco told me that his father had been a taxidermist and had taught him the skill of preserving animals in a lifelike mode. After his father died, Grieco had carried on the work part time as Joe's Taxidermy, but found himself always choosing to work with fish.

He feels there's something almost spiritual about fish, he says. "The fish was so important in the early church. It was the sign of belonging to Christ."

I remembered that well, because the nuns often told us that the early Christians identified themselves secretly to one another by drawing a fish, frequently using their toes, in the sand of the roads.

When he learned that new processes had been developed for replicating fish, Grieco said he felt this was the direction his work should take.

Another positive side of fish reproductions, Grieco pointed out, is that a taxidermist can do a mounting from a photo.

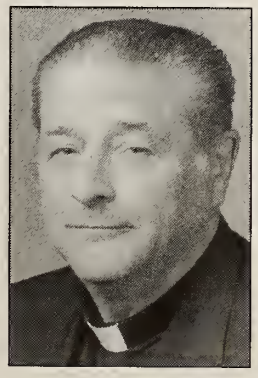
As we talked, I felt this young man was a gentle teacher. He had studied to be a Franciscan brother for a while after high school, and his Catholic faith has remained his great source of strength ever since.

"The best part was learning that we were there in the monastery to help, to uplift one another," he said, "which is what we must also do in the world."

A devoted husband and father of two, he emphasized how Christ became and has remained his trusted companion and refuge. "I feel Christ holds me, and then I, in turn, must hold others."

Recently I have been reading a lot about the spirituality of work. I felt talking with Joe Grieco about what he does with fish, and why, was a textbook on the subject.

Question Corner



FATHER JOHN DIETZEN
CNS Columnist

How is justice related to forgiveness?

Q. Your answer to "Is Forgiveness Really Possible?" was very enlightening. It's not surprising you receive so much mail because this is a very common problem.

To take this one step further, what about justice? My brother committed various crimes against me and my parents, which ultimately caused my father's death. I forgive him for what he did to me, but that he caused our father's death is something I cannot accept.

I feel I must get justice for my parents. Saying God will punish him is a cop-out. I want to turn to the district attorney, but I keep asking myself whether I am really seeking revenge in disguise.

If we sit and "forgive" everyone's crimes, we may as well abolish the police, courts and jails. Should we not attempt to stop the evil in this world? Revenge seeks to harm. Justice seeks restitution. Can you help me figure this out?

A. First of all, I'm going to assume that when you say crime you mean crime. Crime is an activity, usually quite serious, punishable by law. So not every injustice, even a grave one, is a crime.

Did your brother directly cause your father's death? Or did he bring about a family situation that, as you see it, occasioned the death? These kinds of facts will be significant.

Since you speak of approaching the district attorney, it seems you consider what your brother did as carrying legal sanctions.

If you're not positive, it would be good to find out for sure before beginning a move to the courts. For all this, of course, you will need the advice of an attorney.

You omit in your letter some morally critical information, but a few prudential questions will be essential in any case.

To begin with, you need to identify clearly what you wish to accomplish. You say you do not want revenge or punishment, but restitution. Is this money or something else? How much?

Then, is what you plan to do likely to be successful? For example, is the money, or whatever else, there to be returned?

Is what you want to do likely to accomplish more good than harm for you? Your mother? The rest of the family? Will it bring some closure or just reopen old wounds? Are other avenues possible to achieve your purpose?

This may seem a rather cold approach to an emotional situation. But these are basic, common sense questions to ask if you hope to arrive at prudent and otherwise virtuous decisions that will accomplish something positive for everyone concerned.

After we have reflected and done the best we can, leaving the rest to God is no cop-out. All life on this earth is imperfect, which means that, even morally, everything is not balanced or, if you wish, fair.

That full truth is, and can be, revealed only in eternity is still part of our faith and hope.

Questions may be sent to Father Dietzen at the same address, or e-mail: jjdietzen@aol.com.

Shroud of Turin unveiled in Italy for Holy Year showing

By CATHOLIC NEWS SERVICE

TURIN, Italy (CNS) — The Shroud of Turin, the controversial cloth believed by many to have wrapped the body of the crucified Christ, was unveiled in northern Italy for a special two-month showing during the Holy Year.

About 6,000 young people from around the globe, on their way to World Youth Day celebrations in Rome, were on hand for the unveiling Aug. 12 at the Turin cathedral. Hundreds of thousands were expected to view the shroud before the display ends Oct. 22.

Pope John Paul II, speaking from his summer residence outside Rome Aug. 13, said the linen was a "singular witness of Christ."

"Whenever there is an opportunity to contemplate it, one remains deeply moved. This has happened to me, too," he said, recalling his visit to see the shroud in 1998, during its last public showing.

The 17-foot-long cloth, venerated by Christians for centuries, bears the faint imprint of a man and the apparent signs of wound marks that correspond to the crucifixion.

Kept permanently in a special case in the Turin cathedral, it has been shown publicly only four times in the last 100 years.

Carbon-14 testing in 1988 dated the cloth to the Middle Ages, suggesting that the image on the linen was a fake.

But several experts have since questioned the reliability of the 1988 tests, pointing to the possibility of chemical or biological contamination. Meanwhile, church officials have not ruled out future dating attempts.

"The church is not afraid of science," said Turin Archbishop Severino Poletto, who favors additional research on the cloth.

Bruno Barberis, president of a shroud study institute in Turin, told Vatican Radio that he thought additional tests would be carried out on the shroud.

But he doubted that the question of the shroud's authenticity would ever be settled.

In his opinion, he said, there is already enough evidence to identify the image on the shroud with that of Christ.

The church has not pronounced on the authenticity of the shroud, but the pope has asked scientists to keep an open mind as they investigate its properties and origins.

Classifieds

Classified ads bring results! Over 115,000 readers! Over 45,000 homes!
Rates: $.50/word per issue ($10 minimum per issue)
Deadline: 12 noon Wednesday, 9 days before publication date
How to order: Ads may be faxed to (704) 370-3382 or mailed to:
Cindi Feerick, The Catholic News & Herald, 1123 S. Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203.
Payment: Ads may be pre-paid or billed. For information, call (704) 370-3332.

EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES

Administrative Assistant: Applications are being accepted for administrative assistant at the Diocese of Charlotte Pastoral Center/MACS. Responsibilities include PC data entry, maintenance of cash receipts files, processing financial reports, maintaining records log. Minimum of high school degree required. Detail-oriented with Microsoft Excel experience. Send resume and salary history to: Business Office Administrator, PO Box 36776, Charlotte, NC 28236

Assistant Secretary: Asheville Catholic School. Attendance/First Aid Office. M-F, full time. CPR and First Aid certification required. Call (828)252-7896 for information. EOE.

Custodian, Full-time: Begin work immediately. Asheville Catholic School. Call Randy Penland, Maintenance Supervisor at (828)252-7896. EOE.

Director of Adult Catholic Enrichment/Order of Christian Initiation: Holy Family Catholic Church of Marietta seeks a full-time salaried Director for Adult Catholic Enrichment (ACE) and the Order of Christian Initiation (OCI) programs. Applicants should have leadership expericnce in ACE/OCl areas and/or have religious education degreed background suitable to develop high quality programs and volunteer assistance in the community. Must be practicing Catholic. lf interested, please submit resume and cover letter to Ret Siefferman, Director of Religious Education at Holy Family Catholic Church, 3401 Lower Roswell Rd., Marietta, GA 30068. Fax (770) 578-0475. Inquire at (770) 973-7400, ext. 21 with questions.

Director of Music: Full-time position as Director of Music for growing parish of 650 families that love to sing! Responsibilities include: Liturgy preparation and planning; playing for 5 weekend masses, holy days, funerals. Weddings negotiated; directing and developing adult mixed choir; organizing and directing children's choir; attend conferences and workshops for continued education and renewal; and attend weekly parish staff meetings. Competitive salary and benefits. Experience a plus, but musical accompaniment skills (piano & organ) a must. Send resume to Search Committee, Sacred Heart Church, 128 N. Fulton St., Salisbury, NC 28144, or fax to 704-647-0126.

Director of Planned Giving: The Diocesan Office of Development has an opening for a part-time director of planned giving. Candidate must be a college graduate with a degree in marketing, business administration, or related field; and 3 years specific experience in planned giving or related experience. Applicants should have strong interpersonal and communications skills and the ability to interact well with diverse groups. Responsibilities include organizing and directing efforts to assist parishioners in developing and implementing long-range financial plans for their benefit, the benefit of their family, their parish and/or the diocese. Part-time position for 21 hours per week, beginning August. Please submit resume to: Jim Kelley, Office of Development, 1123 South Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203-4003.

Director of Religious Education: Holy Family Catholic Church in Marietta seeks a full-time salaried Director for its Religious Education programs. Practical leadership experience in the continuing development of a full range of primary, secondary, young adult and adult based Religious Education programs is essential. The ability to encourage a spirit of volunteerism to meet broad community needs is a must. Should be competent in managing all educational levels and administrative staff functions. Must have bachelors and/or advanced degree in education and/or religious training. Must be practicing Catholic. Holy Family's Religious Education programs serve a multi-cultural community. Fluency in Spanish or equivalent background experience would be a useful asset. If interested, please submit resume and cover letter to Ret Siefferman, Director of Religious Education, Holy Family Catholic Church, 3401 Lower Roswell Rd., Marietta, GA 30068. Fax (770) 578-0475. lnquire at (770) 973-7400, ext. 21 with questions.

Music Ministry Director: Holy Infant Catholic Church is in search of a full-time Director of Music. Located in Durham, North Carolina, a dynamic and growing area of the country near Research Triangle Park, this Vatican II parish consists of 900 households that are committed to ongoing liturgical renewal. Holy Infant Parish embraces its call to be hospitable, inclusive and Christ-centered. This position works closely with the Pastor and a collaborative and supportive staff. Requires a minimum of a bachelor's degree in a relevant field although a master's degree is preferred. Must have music performance skill (e.g. piano, voice); choral directing; cantor training; knowledge of Catholic rites and rituals. Available no later than November 1, 2000. Salary commensurate with education and experience. Benefits package included. Send resume to: DOMM Search Committee, Holy Infant Catholic Church, 5000 Southpark Dr., Durham, NC 27713. Fax 919/544-1799. References required at time of application for consideration for this position.

Parish Secretary/Receptionist: St. John Neumann. 9am - 4:30pm, Monday through Friday. Secretarial skills and experience, computer-literate, personable. Salary negotiable. Benefits. Contact Fr. Thom Meehan, (704) 536-6520 or send resume and references: St. John Neumann Church, 8451 Idlewild Road, Charlotte, NC 28277. Fax: (704) 536-3147.

Principal, Elementary: Blessed Sacrament School, located in historic Savannah, Georgia and nearby Atlantic Ocean beaches, is seeking a principal beginning as soon as possible. Candidates must be Catholic and be able to enhance this family-oriented school with strong communication, leadership and financial management skills. Candidates must have a master's degree in education and be certifiable by the state of Georgia. Salary is commensurate with experience and credentials. Request application, and mail or fax resume to: Blessed Sacrament Search Committee, Diocese of Savannah, 601 E. Liberty St., Savannah, GA 31404. Phone (912)238-2344 or Fax(912)238-2339.

Teacher: Asheville Catholic School seeks dynamic pre-K teacher. Must hold or be eligible for NC license. Call (828) 252-7896. EOE.

Teachers, Library/Media Specialist: Charlotte Catholic High School has the following openings beginning August 2000: full-time teaching positions for Religion, Drama, English, Math, Spanish, and full-time Library/Media Specialist. Must have NC Certification. Also, part-time Guidance Secretary is needed. Call (704)543-1127 for application.

Teachers: Our Lady of Grace Catholic School in Greensboro, NC (Grades K-8) has openings for a full-time Second Grade teacher, a full-time Middle School Social Studies/Religion teacher, a part-time Middle School Spanish teacher, and a part-time Middle School Computer teacher. lf interested, please contact Ms. Roberta Hutchcraft, Principal, at (336) 275-1522. Applications are available in the school office (2205 W. Market St., Greensboro, NC 27403) between the hours of 9:00-3:00 p.m., Mon. thru Fri.

Teachers: Sacred Heart School (PreK-8) in Salisbury has the following teacher openings beginning in August: PE, Spanish, 5th Grade, and Middle School Language Arts. NC certification required. Call Kathleen Miller at (704)633-2841.

Teachers: St. Patrick's School in Charlotte is accepting applications for part-time Music teacher and part-time Spanish teacher. Please contact school principal, Mrs. Angela Montague, (704) 333-3174 for interview. NC certification required.

Teachers: St. Michael's School in Gastonia, NC is currently seeking dynamic teachers for the following positions: Full-time Middle School Language Arts/Social Studies; and part-time Art teacher. NC Certification required. Please call Joseph Puceta at (704)865-4382 for more information.

Youth Minister, Part-time: St. Patrick Cathedral is in great need of a part-time Youth Minister to plan, implement, and oversee weekly activities for parish youth. Undergraduate degree in a youth related field and experience preferred. Please send resume and cover letter to St. Patrick Cathedral, Attn: Joanna Catabui, 1621 Dilworth Road E., Charlotte NC 28203 or Fax: (704) 377-6403.

FOR SALE

Personalized Candy Bars. For ALL Occasions. CHERUBS-N-CHOCOLATE. To request a catalog, please visit web site at www.Cherubs-N-ChocolatebyDeb.com or call (919)689-9925.

PRAYERS & INTENTIONS

Thanks to St. Jude for prayers answered. L.A.B.

Youngsters experience faith through arts and music

BY ALESHA M. PRICE
STAFF WRITER

CHARLOTTE — Parents and family friends beamed with pride as they clapped for their little ones, and cameras flashed as the young group performed with stars, rainbows and band-aids painted on their faces with their eyes shielded with sunglasses.

It was the final day of the "Gifts of Spirit Here" or GOSH! Arts and Music Camp at St. Luke Church, which lasted from July 31 through Aug. 4, and the young participants were taking part in a play in culmination the week's activities.

This was the first year for the camp, which included about 58 parish children ages 5-10, separated into groups according to age. The youngest children were called the "Smiling Spirit" group, while the other groups were called "Happy Spirits" and "Glad Spirits."

Gail Hunt Violette, the camp coordinator, was inspired with the idea for the camp while sitting in Mass and listening to a homily by Father Joe Mulligan, pastor, about sharing talents with others.

"I wanted to involve St. Luke parishioners and thought about who could work with children to help them to bring out their talents," she said. "Our children are gifts from God, and everyone has special gifts to share.

Violette enlisted the help of Marti Dushak, parish director of music, to offer her ideas and begin each day with a group song. Dushak said she decided to focus on songs that the children were familiar with from Mass and other church events.

PHOTO BY ALESHA M.PRICE

Volunteers Maureen Baisley, 17, and Brian DuBois, 17, lead the Smiling Spirits, five- and six-year-olds, in a song with hand motions at the GOSH! Arts and Music Camp at St. Luke Church in Charlotte.

"I wanted to keep the music upbeat so that the kids could move and dance. I knew that they would be sharing their gifts with everyone at the ending performance," explained Dushak.

Each day began with a daily scripture, and the first quote from Psalm 127:3 was a direct reflection of the idea of the camp: "Children are a gift from God, they are His reward ..."

The children participated in two classes per day based around the day's Scripture, including pencil drawing and sketching, a visit from and elderly residents and Kelly Gibson, director of activities, dressed as a clown, from the Little Flower Assisted Living Community, watercolor and oil pastel painting, photography and videography.

The final day was filled with singing, liturgical dancing and a theatrical performance led by the five- and six-year-old children, explained Violette.

"I liked the singing the most," said Magdlena Rabiipour, 8. "It made me think about the love of Jesus and how great he is."

Violette also had the aid of several parent and teen volunteers who helped to keep the children going in the right direction from class to class and to lead the singing and activities.

"This ties arts and music to our religion," said Michele Raskob, who helped with the younger children and face painting.

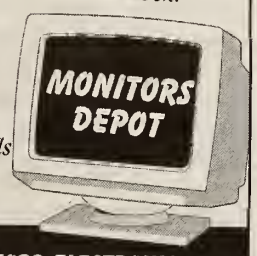
"Our children need validation because they are oftentimes ignored as far as their spirituality is concerned. This is one way that the children can feel good about their religion and their church."

Mary-Brigid Spence, a parent volunteer who discovered she possessed artistic talent she did not realize she had, agreed, "The kids had the opportunity to get to know other kids in the church, which helps them want be a part of the community, and knowing that they are part of the community helps them to develop their spirituality by sharing and showing how much God means to them and one another."

Contact Staff Writer Alesha M. Price by calling (704) 370-3354 or e-mail amprice@charlottediocese.org.

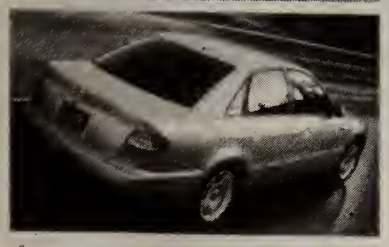
Parents... why order school uniforms out of state?
A+™ school approved uniforms are as close as a drive to the lake!
Uniforms DIRECT 2U
Owner Ann Hoffman, Member of St. Therese
704-895-7474 www.uniformsdirect2u.com
Uniforms Direct 2U, 18505 Statesville Road, Suite 5-A, Cornelius, NC 28031

VGA & SVGA Refurbished Computer Monitors
14" — $20-$25
15" — $35-$38
17" — $70-$125
20" Call for details
30 day warranty
Over 2000 monitors in stock!



O.C. STAFFORD ELECTRONIC SERVICE & DEVELOPMENT COMPANY
408 Banner Ave., Greensboro, NC 27401
E-mail: urpac408@worldnet.att.net
(336) 274-9917

What are the 24 core stocks every investor should own?
Find out which U.S. companies we believe form the foundation of a successful portfolio.
Call Jeanne O. McCulloch, Financial Consultant
(336) 721-9221 or (800) 334-4401
for your free copy of "The 24 Core Stocks Every Investor Should Own."
SALOMON SMITH BARNEY
A member of citigroup
©1999 Salomon Smith Barney Inc. Member SIPC. Salomon Smith Barney is a service mark of Salomon Smith Barney Inc.



We Warn You: If You Drive One You're Gonna Want One!
Volkswagen and Audi...the only car companies to have every model named best in its class. Find out why. Come in for a thrill ride today.
Honest pricing, honest financing, and honest service on Europe's most exciting new cars. From the incredible New Beetle, to the all new Jetta IV and luxurious new generation of Audi, we have the right car for your pocketbook...and your lifestyle.
Volkswagen—Audi South
John Diederich, Owner
Member Saint Gabriel Parish
7401 South Boulevard . Charlotte . 704.552.6500 . 800.426.5347
www.vwsouth.com . www.audisouth.com

K OF C
Please pray for the following priests who died during the month of September:

Rev. Edward F. O'Doherty	1998
Rev. James King	1978
Rev. Msgr. Hugh Dolan	1981
Rev. John J. Murray	1997

Sponsored by the Knights of Columbus

Quilting query quickens quite a quest

BY ALESHA M. PRICE
STAFF WRITER

SPENCER MOUNTAIN — The night sky shines with a blanket of stars, and with the North Star as a guide, African-Americans held in bondage on Southern plantations and farms travel via the Underground Railroad to the North. Along the way, homemade quilts draped over porch railings with particular patterns help to serve as secret signposts for their freedom journey.

Certain quilts that mirror the nighttime star pattern act as a celestial map, and other quilts depict disguised signs. "A bear's paw trail" patch, a square with four triangles, signals to follow the northern trail of a bear, while the "flying geese pattern," a series of eight triangles, shows which direction the slave had to travel with two darkened triangles.

Most of these original freedom quilts have not lasted throughout the years because of heavy use, just as the need for the Underground Railroad has dissipated.

In the quiet recesses of a small mountain town, parishioners from St. Helen Church are creating quilts, inspired by the past and a trip to an area museum, that symbolize family and faith. Under the direction of Ann Gardin, a seamstress by profession, women are making smaller versions of the quilts used by their ancestors for warmth, and for some, as part of an escape route.

PHOTO BY ALESHA M.PRICE

Photos of Ann Gardin's grandparents adorn this quilt, crafted in memory of her caretakers.

Prompted by a church outing to the Mint Museum of Craft + Design in Charlotte in April, Gardin and several others visited the exhibition "Spirits of the Cloth: Contemporary Quilts by African-American Artists." Fifty quilts created by 30 members of the Women of Color Quilter's Network, a national organization of over 1,000 male and female quilters, were on display at the museum with explanations of the origins and themes of the cloth creations.

"We wanted to get a feel of the spirits of the people who made those quilts," said Gardin.

The tradition of African-American quilting has its roots in the production of textiles among various African tribes in Central and West Africa, where the male members of the community used colors and patterns distinct to their region in their weaving to distinguish themselves from other tribes. After Africans were brought to America on slave ships, the African weaving traditions were passed onto the women and were intermingled with the quilting being done by slave owners' wives and mothers.

African-American women had to make their own family quilts with leftover material scraps, as their daughters and granddaughters watched and helped. Those skills have filtered down the generations through the years.

Musetta Glenn, a St. Helen member, who stressed that she does not have "much sewing experience," is working on a family quilt with her daughter Dabney Wilson and her granddaughters Deshawna Wilson and Alexandria Wilson after Sunday Masses. Their navy- and melon-colored and flowered quilt includes biblical quotes and family pictures.

"I wanted my children to know who they were and to know Jesus," explained Glenn. "This quilt is about faith, and if I can implant in them the roots of their heritage as African-American Christians, then they can handle anything. The quilt tells where we have been and where we continue to go, and I can pass this down from generation to generation."

Glenn's daughter, Dabney, agreed, "I can keep up with this better than a scrapbook or a photo album. After my mother hands it down to me, I can pass this to my daughter Deshawna, and she can pass it on to her child."

Three-year-old Deshawna cries, "I want to make my own quilt." So, Gardin cuts a piece a fabric onto which she can glue pieces of pipe cleaner. While Deshawna is occupied, Gardin explains the group of quilts that she has created.

One of the nearly completed quilts entitled "Homegoing: Celebrating the Lilies in the Valley" has miniaturized, laminated versions of the obituaries of St. Helen Church members and other family members with colored beads representing the number of children they left behind attached onto the pastel patches. One quilt dedicated to her grandparents includes pictures of fruit representing her grandfather, who sold fruit from a truck, and another red-flowered quilt reminds people to "stop, meditate and pray."

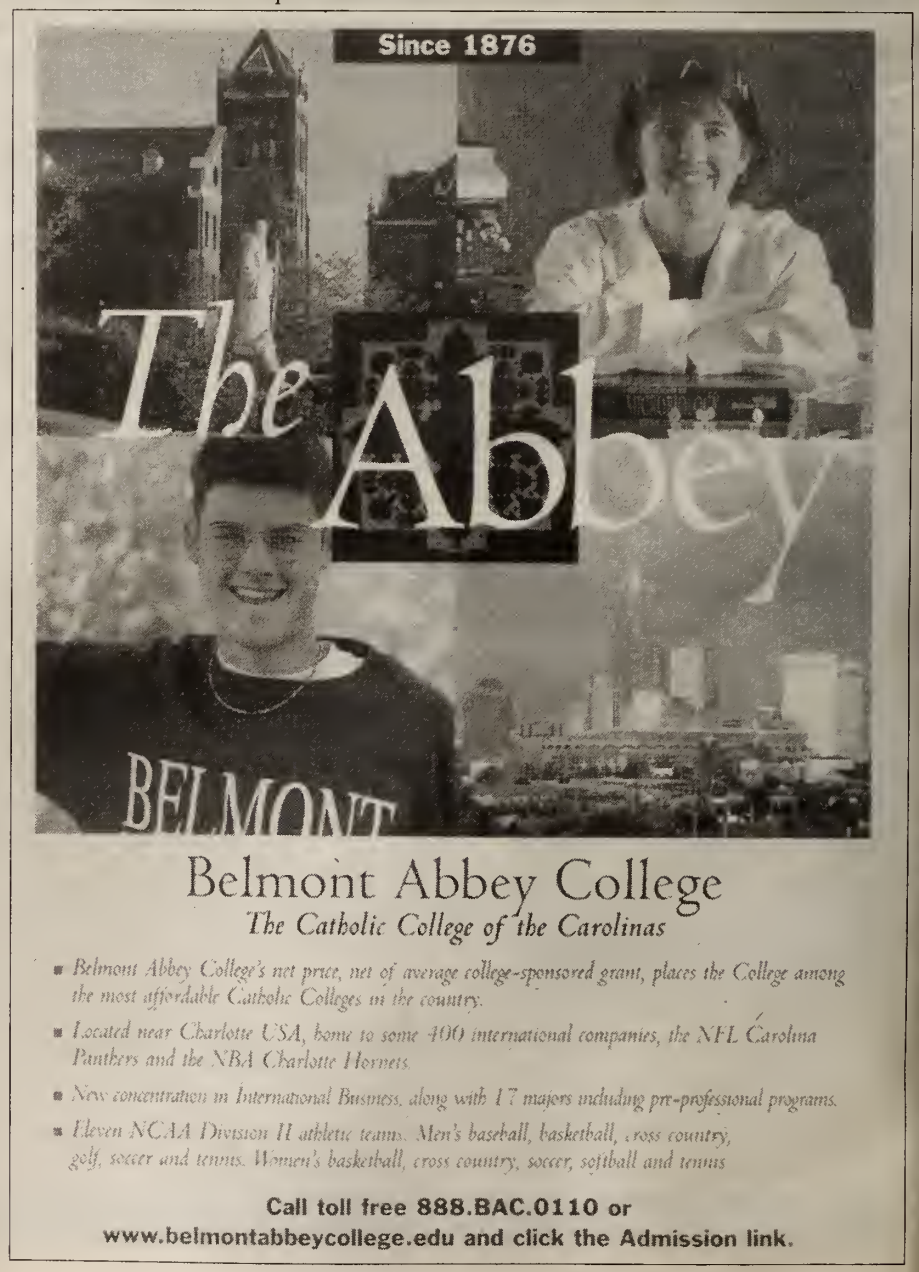
Even though she has no daughters to which she can pass along the skill of quilting, her niece Renata Gardin, 14, joined the after Mass sessions. Moreover, a quilt dedicated to Gardin's son Taurus now resides with him at his home on a wall on display, explained Gardin, smiling with pride.

PHOTO BY ALESHA M. PRICE

Three generations work on their family quilt. Dabney Wilson holds her daughter Deshawna, while Dabney's mother Musetta Glenn pastes a picture of her granddaughter onto the fabric.

The first quilts will be completed by October to be hung on display in the church and during an upcoming fund-raiser. Gardin hopes that more church members will become involved with the quilting. "Our church is made up of family, and quilting is something that we can do as a project to further strengthen our family ties."

Contact Staff Writer Alesha M. Price by calling (704) 370-3354 or e-mail amprice@charlottediocese.org.



FC 262
C 2162 2
CHAPEL HILL NC 27599-0001
WILSON LIBRARY CB 3930
UNC
NC COLLECTION
42083
S875 P2
3-DIGIT 275

The Catholic NEWS & HERALD

Serving Catholics in Western North Carolina in the Diocese of Charlotte

September 1, 2000
Volume 9 ▾ Number 44

Inside

World Youth Day 2000
Papal Mass, vigil mark culmination of international event
...PAGE 5

Faithful Citizenship

Bishops urge advancing of common good
...PAGE 7

Local News

Rev. Dr. Fred Dobens dies at age 65
...PAGE 6

Servite priest prays for healing of body, soul
...PAGE 16

Every Week

Entertainment
...PAGES 10-11

Editorials & Columns
...PAGES 12-13

"Human work proceeds directly from persons created in the image of God and called to prolong the work of creation by subduing the earth, both with and for one another."

— Catechism of the Catholic Church

Labor Day statement focuses on globalization, immigrants

WASHINGTON (CNS) — Today's good times of economic prosperity "can mask the growing gap between rich and poor," the chairman of the U.S. bishops' Domestic Policy Committee warned in a message for Labor Day 2000.

Cardinal Roger M. Mahony of Los Angeles said the jubilee year observance of the U.S. holiday, celebrated Sept. 4 this year, "is a good time to reflect on the progress and problems of the American economy and how it can serve all of God's children."

Among the issues raised in his two-page message were:

— The need for a "Catholic conversation on economic globalization," especially about "who it lifts up and who it leaves behind."

— The responsibility of Catholic voters to "raise the ethical and moral questions surrounding the dignity of work and the rights of workers" during the 2000 campaign.

— The obligation to seriously consider "a general amnesty for those workers who come to the U.S. fleeing oppression and destitution and who make significant contributions to our society."

The cardinal said immigrant workers deserve "the dignity and honor afforded all people."

"Many of these workers, regardless of their immigration status, have contributed greatly to the

SEE LABOR DAY, PAGE 14

PHOTO BY FRANK BRADLEY

In celebration of giving

A family-style celebration honoring Sister Loretto John Meehan included naming a bridge in her honor. The Catholic sister, pictured at left, served for three decades in the western mountains. See stories, pages 8-9.

Priests' Retirement and Benefits Collection thanks those giving the best years of their lives

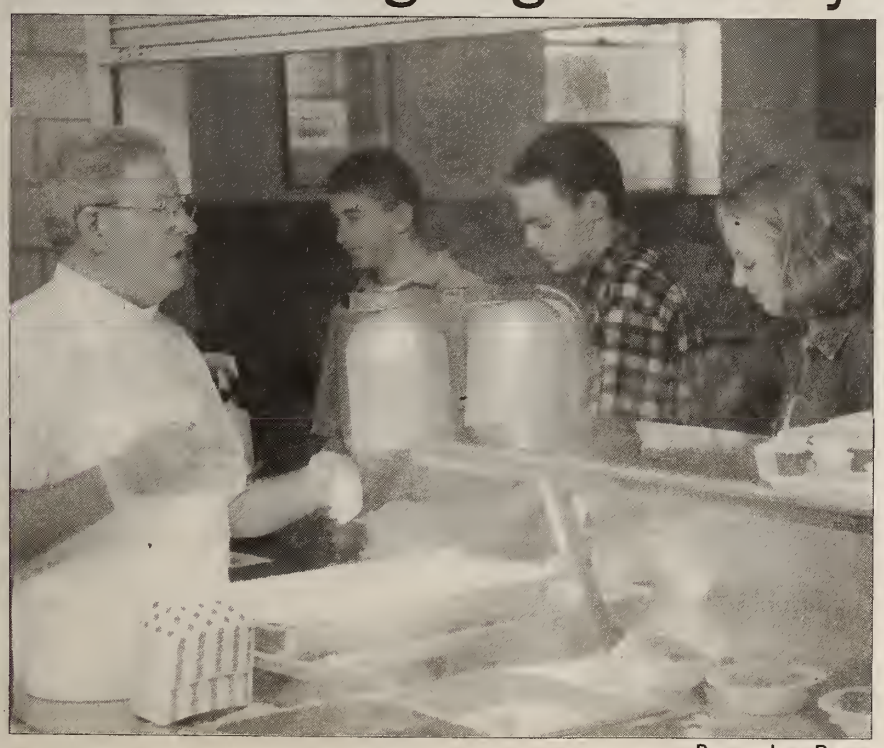

PHOTO BY JIMMY ROSTAR

BY JIMMY ROSTAR
ASSOCIATE EDITOR

Decades apart in age and years of priestly service, Fathers Joseph Kelleher and Christopher Davis nonetheless share a common bond — as servants of God who bring Christ to the faithful of western North Carolina.

Priests of the Diocese of Charlotte, the two have chosen paths that bridge a sacred union between Christ and his people through innumerable ways: the sacraments, the celebration of Mass, pastoral outreach, a helping hand.

For the priests who serve in

SEE RETIREMENT, PAGE 11

Father Joseph Kelleher serves up some fries at Bishop McGuinness High School. The diocesan priest firmly believes in what he calls a ministry of presence.

California to honor Cesar Chavez with paid holiday

LOS ANGELES (CNS) — California has become the first state to honor the late Cesar Chavez of the United Farm Workers with an official state holiday. "Cesar Chavez brought hope and inspiration to tens of thousands of farmworkers, some of the hardest working people on the planet earth," said California Gov. Gray Davis. He made the comments Aug. 18 in Los Angeles as he signed a bill establishing March 31 as an annual holiday to honor Chavez, a lifelong Catholic who was a legendary labor leader and human rights advocate.

Manifold issues make wars hard to resolve, says Vatican official

MAPUTO, Mozambique (CNS) — Some current conflicts are more difficult to resolve than past wars because they involve economic, not just political issues, said Bishop Diarmuid Martin, secretary of the Pontifical Council for Justice and Peace. Bishop Martin was among more than 60 participants at a Vatican-organized meeting in Mozambique where church leaders from Africa, Latin America and the Vatican discussed ways to end the dozens of civil conflicts around the world. Talks at the Aug. 22-28 conference in Maputo, Mozambique's capital, noted that illegal drug trafficking and interests in national resources play a role in some conflicts that may appear to be ideological, he said in an Aug. 22 telephone interview.

Ugandan VP warns against taking religion classes out of schools

KAMPALA, Uganda (CNS) — Ugandan Vice President Speciosa Wandira Kazibwe, who as a girl attended Catholic schools, criticized an Education Ministry proposal to remove religious education from classrooms. "I have heard that they want to scrap the teaching of religious studies in schools. But as a staunch Catholic, I cannot allow this to happen. We should give religion priority," she said Aug. 20 at the opening of St. Mary's Chapel at a leading Ugandan girls' school, Mount St. Mary's College, Namagunga. Kazibwe is a former student of the school. The ceremony — attended by Ugandan officials, members of the diplomatic corps and the papal nuncio to Uganda, Archbishop Pierre Christophe — began with a Mass celebrated by Bishop Matthias Ssekamaanya of Lugazi.

CNS PHOTO BY VALERIE O'SULLIVAN

Monks hold texts from early monastery
In County Kerry, Ireland, monks hold up old texts on Innisfallen Island, where ruins of a sixth-century abbey are found. Early Celtic Christian spirituality is engaging modern believers in the United States.

Military archbishop asks prayers for Kursk crew, families

WASHINGTON (CNS) — The head of the U.S. Archdiocese for the Military Services has requested prayers for the crew of the sunken Russian submarine, the Kursk, and for their families. Archbishop Edwin A. O'Brien asked Catholic military personnel and families around the world to offer their weekend Mass Aug. 19-20 for the 118 Russian sailors presumed lost aboard the Kursk and for their loved ones in Russia. According to Auxiliary Bishop John J. Glynn of the Military Archdiocese, the archbishop's message to Catholic chaplains was appended to an e-mail from the office of the Chief of Chaplains at the Pentagon to U.S. military chaplains worldwide. The e-mail also sought prayers for victims of the Kursk disaster.

South Korean official says North willing to invite cardinal

SEOUL, South Korea (CNS) — Seoul's retired Cardinal Stephen Kim Sou-hwan and Archbishop Nicholas Cheong Jin-suk of Seoul "can soon visit" North Korea, a South Korean government official said upon returning from Pyongyang. Culture and Tourism Minister Park Jie-won told media Aug. 14 in Seoul that North Korean government officials responded positively to the possibility of a visit by the two South Korean Catholic prelates, reported UCA News, an Asian church news agency based in Thailand. Park, a Catholic, and 46 heads of South Korean news media visited North Korea Aug. 5-12, upon the invitation of North Korean leader Kim Jong-il.

Union honors Cardinal O'Connor's commitment to workers

NEW YORK (CNS) — New York's largest union of health care workers has produced a 12-page booklet to honor the memory of the late Cardinal John J. O'Connor of New York and his commitment to workers. The booklet, which hails the cardinal as the "patron saint of working people," was produced by New York's Health and Human Service Union, which is Local 1199 of the Service Employees International Union. It notes that Cardinal O'Connor, who died in May of cancer, stressed his "bone-deep" commitment to working people, the labor movement and the poor in his annual Labor Day Masses at St. Patrick's Cathedral and in many of his speeches and writings.

Vatican document stresses Catholic Church's unique identity

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — Addressing what it called common misuses of the phrase "sister churches" in ecumenical dialogue, the Vatican's doctrinal congregation issued a document stressing the Catholic Church's unique identity as "mother" of all local churches. The document said clarification was necessary because an ambiguous use of the phrase, putting the Catholic Church on equal footing with other churches, had become "prevalent in contemporary writings on ecumenism." The four-page document, accompanied by a letter from Cardinal Joseph Ratzinger, prefect of the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith, was signed June 30 and distributed to the heads of bishops' conferences. Catholic News Service obtained a copy of the letter and the document Aug. 23. The document said the expression "sister churches" could only be properly used as a way of describing the relationship between local Catholic churches, like "the church of Rome," and non-Catholic churches.

The Catholic NEWS & HERALD

September 1, 2000
Volume 9 • Number 44

Publisher: Most Reverend William G. Curlin
Editor: Joann S. Keane
Associate Editor: Jimmy Rostar
Staff Writer: Alesha M. Price
Production Associate: Julie Radcliffe
Advertising Representative: Cindi Feerick
Secretary: Jane Glodowski
Freelance Production Associate: Fred Stewart Jr.
1123 South Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203
Mail: P.O. Box 37267, Charlotte, NC 28237
Phone: (704) 370-3333 FAX: (704) 370-3382
E-mail: catholicnews@charlottediocese.org

The Catholic News & Herald, USPC 007-393, is published by the Roman Catholic Diocese of Charlotte, 1123 South Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203, 44 times a year, weekly except for Christmas week and Easter week and every two weeks during June, July and August for $15 per year for enrollees in parishes of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Charlotte and $18 per year for all other subscribers. Second-class postage paid at Charlotte NC and other cities. POSTMASTER: Send address corrections to The Catholic News & Herald, P.O. Box 37267, Charlotte, NC 28237.

Episcopal calendar

Bishop William G. Curlin will take part in the following events:

September 6 - 7 p.m.
Mass and installation of Father John T. Putnam as pastor of Sacred Heart, Salisbury
September 10 - 6 p.m.
Mass and listening session with laborers in poultry industry
St. John, North Wilkesboro
September 12
Priests' meeting, Introduction to Hispanic culture and language
Catholic Conference Center, Hickory
September 18 - 7 p.m.
Confirmation
Our Lady of Grace, Greensboro
September 19 - 10 a.m.
Presbyteral council meeting
Pastoral Center, Charlotte

Diocesan planner

September

4 CLEMMONS — There is a charismatic Mass being held at Holy Family Church, 4820 Kinnamon Rd., tonight at 7:30 p.m. For more information, call the church office at (336) 778-0600.

8 HOT SPRINGS — "A Spiritual Retreat for a Creative Mind" is a women's retreat being led by Mercy Sister Soledad Aguilo, artist and educator, and being held at the Jesuit House of Prayer, 289 NW Hwy. 25/70, today through Sept. 10. For more information, call Mercy Sister Peggy Verstege, director, at (828) 622-7366.

10 CHARLOTTE — The St. Matthew Church, 8015 Ballantyne Commons Pkwy., cancer support group invites all to attend a special Mass at 5:30 p.m. for the sick and their families and friends with the sacrament of anointing of the sick being administered after Mass. For more details, call Marilyn Borrelli at (704) 542-2283 or Bob Poffenbarger Sr. at (704) 553-7000.

CHARLOTTE — There is a charismatic Mass being held at St. Patrick Cathedral, 1621 Dilworth Rd. East, at 4 p.m. with prayer teams available at 3 p.m. and a potluck dinner at 5 p.m. in the St. Patrick School cafeteria. Also, a series of teachings of the gifts of the Holy Spirit is being offered beginning today before the charismatic Mass at 3 p.m. For more information about the Mass or the classes, call Josie Backus at (704) 527-4676.

11 CHARLOTTE — Churches in the Charlotte area are having their September cancer support group meetings for survivors, family and friends on the following days because of the Labor Day weekend: St. Gabriel Church, 3016 Providence Rd., tonight at 7 p.m. in the confcrence room of the ministry center, St. Matthew

Balancing act: Popes to be beatified were very different

By JOHN THAVIS
Catholic News Service

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — A new chapter in saint-making history will be written Sept. 3 when Popes John XXIII and Pius IX are beatified in a single ceremony.

The joint beatification marks an intersection in the lives of two very different figures, and the contrast was apparent as Rome prepared to host hundreds of thousands for the outdoor liturgy.

At religious shops near the Vatican, photos and prayer cards of John XXIII were being snapped up, and bookstores filled whole display tables with new volumes and videos on "Papa Giovanni," the pontiff who convened the Second Vatican Council and set in motion a series of modern church reforms.

"Everybody asks for him. He's the most popular pope of all," said Amelia Astrologo, who runs a religious souvenir store in the shadow of St. Peter's Square.

Two Italian TV specials were being prepared to honor Pope John, highlighting his humble beginnings, his sense of humor and his social conscience.

Pius IX, on the other hand, remained uncelebrated in Italy, despite his impending step toward sainthood. Best known for trying to hold on to temporal power, for overseeing the proclamation of papal infallibility and for castigating modern thinking with his "Syllabus of Errors," he has not enjoyed widespread popular devotion.

Several shop owners said they've never carried prayer cards of him and that no one's ever asked for one, either.

The joint beatification marks an intersection in the lives of two very different figures, and the contrast was apparent as Rome prepared to host hundreds of thousands for the outdoor liturgy.

At the tomb of John XXIII on the lower level of St. Peter's Basilica, a crowd of about 40 people waited in line to kneel and pray. Flowers had been laid before his tomb, a practice that has been going on since his death in 1963.

On the other side of Rome, at the Basilica of St. Lawrence, the tomb of Pius IX was under lock and key in August, as workmen tried to solve a mildew problem.

The common wisdom about the pairing of these two "blesseds" is that it's a balancing act, an effort by the Vatican to move forward two sainthood causes that individually might provoke political opposition in the church.

For many, John XXIII is still seen as the guiding light and Pius IX is remembered as a holdout against modernity.

Ironically, however, Pope John favored Pope Pius' sainthood cause and considered him a truly holy man, according to Pope John's former secretary, Archbishop Loris Capovilla. In 1961, in fact, Pope John spoke at a general audience about the possibility of seeing Pope Pius canonized one day.

If Pius IX was known in some circles as the last "pope king" of the 19th century, John XXIII is still remembered by many as the most human of pontiffs to reign in the 20th century. During the Cuban missile crisis in 1962, he seemed to be the voice of the people when he pleaded for superpower peace. When Time magazine named him "Man of the Year" at the end of that year, it said his "warmth, simplicity and charm" had won the hearts of Catholics and non-Catholics around the world.

Pope Pius reigned for almost 32 years, the longest pontificate since the days of St. Peter, spanning a period of intense church-state tension in Italy.

Pope John, elected at age 77, ruled for less than five years. He was chosen as a transitional pope, yet he ended up recasting the church's relationship with the modern world. It wasn't just Vatican II, but the way Pope John exercised his authority — as he put it, he wanted to be known as a "good shepherd" defending truth and goodness.

He was the first to break free of the Vatican city-state in a systematic way, making more than 140 trips to jails, orphanages, churches and schools. He wrote groundbreaking encyclicals, including "Mater et Magistra" on Christianity and social progress and "Pacem in Terris" on the need for global peace and justice.

He let it be known that the church was not afraid of science or its discoveries, and he sparked an ecumenical revival by reaching out to separated Christian churches.

After Pope John died during Vatican II, some participants wanted to proclaim him a saint by acclamation, thus giving the world a sign that the church did not consider him a "dreamer." That idea was shot down by the Roman Curia, and Pope John's sainthood cause slipped into the Vatican's painstakingly slow process of verification and documentation.

In linking the beatification of the two popes, Pope John Paul may want to highlight a certain continuity between the First Vatican Council, which was called by Pope Pius, and Vatican II.

But that risked being overshadowed by yet another contrast between the two papacies. Jewish organizations have recently criticized the Vatican for promoting the cause of Pius IX, who, in what is viewed as a supreme act of religious intolerance, in 1858 approved the seizure of a baptized Italian Jewish boy from his parents and arranged for his forced education in the church.

A century later, John XXIII met with U.S. Jews at the Vatican and told them: "I am your brother. ... We are all sons of the same Father."

For the church, sainthood goes beyond personality traits and papal policies. When these two popes are beatified Sept. 3, perhaps Pope John Paul II will offer some insight into how such different figures can both be deemed universal models of holiness.

Parents... why order school uniforms out of state?
A+™ school approved uniforms are as close as a drive to the lake!
Uniforms DIRECT 2U
Owner Ann Hoffman, Member of St. Therese
704-895-7474 www.uniformsdirect2u.com
Uniforms Direct 2U, 18505 Statesville Road, Suite 5-A, Cornelius, NC 28031

Church, 8015 Ballantyne Commons Pkwy., on Sept. 12 at 7 p.m. in the conference room of the office building and St. Vincent de Paul Church, 6828 Old Reid Rd., on Sept. 14 at 7 p.m. in the activity center in classroom 5. For more information, call these contacts: St. Vincent - Betty Childers at (704) 554-0733, St. Matthew - Marilyn Borrelli at (704) 542-2283 and St. Gabriel - Eileen Cordell at (704) 352-5047, Ext. 217. For further information, call Bob Poffenbarger, Sr., coordinator, at (704) 553-7000.

CHARLOTTE — St. Gabriel Church, 3016 Providence Rd., is hosting a LIMEX Information Session tonight at 7 p.m. for anyone interested in the program. The Loyola Institute for Ministry Extension Program or LIMEX in New Orleans offers a master's of religious education or a master's of pastoral studies to students in partnership with a sponsoring diocese. For more information, call Julie Platte at (704) 847-8047 or Connie Milligan at (704) 535-4197.

13 CHARLOTTE — For those in bereavement ministry or those who are experiencing grief in their own lives, Janice Olive from Hospice of Charlotte is presenting "Bereavement Education: Stages and Tasks of Grief" tonight from 7-8:30 p.m. in the St. Gabriel Church Ministry Center, 3016 Providence Rd. For further details, call the church office at (704) 364-5431.

CHARLOTTE — The 50+ Club of St. John Neumann Church, 8451 Idlewild Rd., is having its monthly meeting this morning at 11 a.m. with lunch and a program presented by the members. A love offering is also being taken from the attendants. For more information, call Gloria Silipigni at (704) 821-1343.

14 GREENSBORO — Rev. Timothy J. Patterson, rector of Holy Trinity Episcopal Church and founder of the Servant Leadership School of Greensboro, is presenting "Servant Leadership: Christian Vision for the Third Millennium" at the Franciscan Center, 233 N. Greene St. A love offering is being taken at this lunchtime session held from 12:10-1 p.m., and for further information, call the center at (336) 273-2554.

16 CHARLOTTE — The Ancient Order of Hibernians, Sons of Erin Division, is having its annual "Halfway to St. Patrick's Day" party to raise funds in support of the annual St. Patrick's Day Parade. The party begins at 5 p.m. this evening and lasts until 10 p.m. at the St. Matthew Church Ministry Center, 8015 Ballantyne Pkwy., with dinner and music provided by the Celtic Folkers and entertainment by area Irish dancers. For ticket and other information, call Mike Callinan at (704) 841-9195, Tim Lawson at (704) 522-9728 or Gene McCarthy at (803) 831-8381.

FOREST CITY — The Health Council of Immaculate Conception Church, 1024 W. Main St, is sponsoring its "Unity Fiesta" today from 10 a.m.-3 p.m. The event includes health screenings, Polish and Mexican foods, homemade ice cream and games and prizes for children. Proceeds will benefit the church fund. For more information, call Claire Feldmeth, parish nurse coordinator, at (828) 245-4017.

21 BELMONT — Catherine's House, 402 Mercy Dr., hosts its First Millennium Open House today at 2 p.m. The open house will showcase many of the new programs, offer tours of the facility and present the Mercy Sister Barbara Sullivan Volunteer of the Year Award to Mercy Sister Maureen Dees. Catherine's House provides transitional housing for women and children who are homeless. For further details, call (704) 825-9599.

Please submit notices of events for the Diocesan Planner at least 10 days prior to the publication date.

Charlotte City Council votes in favor of moratorium resolution

CHARLOTTE — In front of an emotional crowd of hundreds, the Charlotte City Council on Aug. 28 voted 8-3 in favor of endorsing a moratorium on capital punishment in North Carolina.

Charlotte became the seventh town in North Carolina to approve a resolution asking the state government for a moratorium, or suspension, of the death penalty to allow for intense study of the issue and time to address alleged injustices therein.

More than 200 people flooded the council chamber to attend the meeting, at which people on both sides of the issue spoke about or applauded their stance. Speakers included clergy, concerned citizens and family members of murder victims.

"Innocent people have been sentenced to die in North Carolina," said James Ferguson, a member of the Charlotte Coalition for a Moratorium Now (CCMN) and president of the N.C. Academy of Trial Lawyers. "We know that race is a factor in the death penalty. ... No one who believes in fairness could allow such a system to go on."

Charlotte Mayor Pat McCrory, who has steadfastly opposed the city council's involvement in a debate he says has no place within the city council's jurisdiction, vetoed the council's decision. Because of the veto, the council will vote on the issue again — at its next meeting Sept. 5. Seven votes will be needed to override the veto.

"With all respect to all those involved, I think this is a poorly written resolution," McCrory said. "I do not think it belongs on the Charlotte City Council's agenda. I believe if you want to deal with this issue, ask the two gubernatorial candidates where they stand, ask your state legislators where they stand, make this an issue in the November election — because those are the decision makers in this process, and you have every right to do just that."

Among the arguments voiced by those in favor of the moratorium resolution, however, was that a city council is a first step in reaching lawmakers at the state level on an issue that affects local citizens.

In an Aug. 25 letter to McCrory, Bishop William G. Curlin urged the mayor and city council to support the moratorium resolution.

"I have served in ministry for over forty-three years and have been witness to many tragedies in human life," Bishop Curlin wrote. "I have comforted many families who have borne the tragic killing of a loved one. However, I have also witnessed the tragedy of those who have been put to death though innocent of a crime. One such death alone calls for a careful study of the penal system that can lead to executions of possible innocent people."

Like the death penalty itself, the moratorium issue is making headlines nationwide as scrutiny of capital punishment grows. Ted Frazer, chair of CCMN, voiced hope that the city council debate will help shed light on an imperfect institution and that the government will allow time to study such a vital issue.

"This issue is trying to create fewer victims, not more victims," Frazer said. "We're talking about human life in this state, and we're talking about shaping a society in a positive way that is more fair than what we have now."

Associate Editor Jimmy Rostar and Stephen Dear of People of Faith Against the Death Penalty contributed to this story.

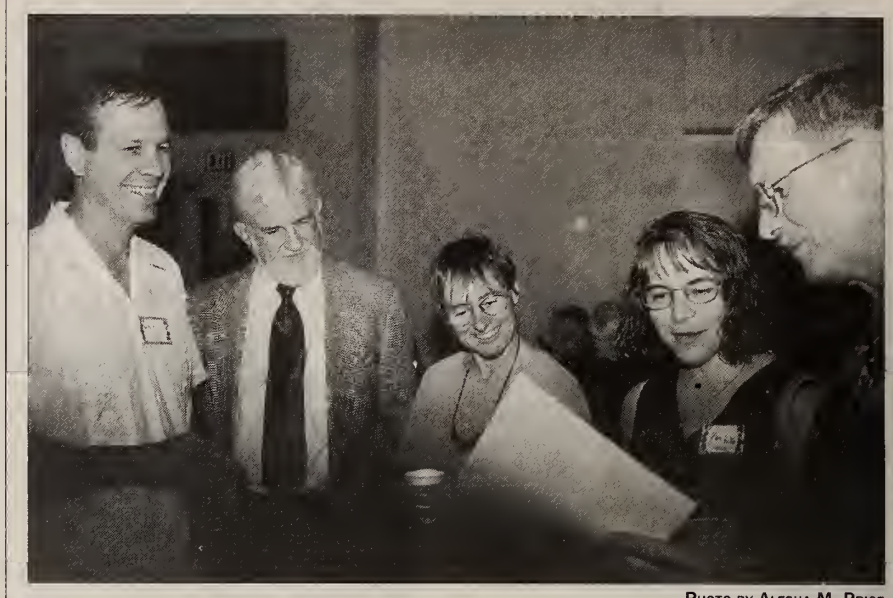

PHOTO BY ALESHA M. PRICE

LIMEX participants discuss program

At a LIMEX gathering session at St. John Neumann Church in Charlotte, from left to right, Jay Mazaleski, a member of the North Wilkesboro learning group; Marianist Father Bernard Lee, Ph.D., professor of theology at Loyola University in New Orleans; Linda Schlensker, a facilitator for the Asheville area group; Peg Ruble, diocesan Central Regional Coordinator of Faith Formation and a facilitator for the North Wilkesboro group; and Clarence Fox, a facilitator for the North Wilkesboro group, look at a recent LIMEX graduation picture. Father Lee, former director of the LIMEX program, was the featured speaker, along with Bishop William G. Curlin, at the gathering session on Aug. 27. The Loyola Institute for Ministry Extension Program, or LIMEX, offers a master's of religious education or a master's of pastoral studies to students in partnership with a sponsoring diocese. In the Diocese of Charlotte, there are currently five learning groups with certified facilitators, with Joanna Case and Connie Milligan serving as the diocesan LIMEX liaisons.

ANNUITY OWNERS READ THIS!

Many annuity owners lose 50% of the value of their annuity when it pays off! Will this happen to you?

It's true. Annuities and IRAs can be double-taxed assets (subject to income taxes PLUS estate taxes). After estate taxes and income taxes, there can be as little as 50% of the value remaining.

You can learn how to avoid the loss in the FREE educational booklet "Annuity Owner Mistakes." The booklet is FREE and shows how to avoid double taxation and get more benefits from your existing annuity value.

For your FREE copy
CALL
1-800-291-2048
Charlotte

Join the Carmelite Friars in Prayer as We Honor Saint Therese, The Little Flower

Celebrating 75 Years of Sainthood

In celebration of the Little Flower's life and spirituality, we would like to include your intentions in two Novena Masses from October 2-10 at the National Shrine of Our Lady of Mount Carmel and the Basilica of Saint Therese in Lisieux, France.

During this special time of prayer, you may want to honor and petition Saint Therese by using this lovely Little Flower Rose Petal Chaplet.

- Made of genuine rose petals, compressed into rose scented beads.
- Silver-tone Saint Therese medal and chain.
- Comes with an instructional prayer card.

Novena Prayer to Saint Therese
(To be said every day for nine days.)

O Saint Therese, to you all life was a miracle! I pray to you, Powerful Intercessor, to lighten my burdens by miraculous intervention. You have promised to let a "shower of roses fall from Heaven." Let your love wash over me and heal me—physically, emotionally and spiritually. When I am alone, reach into my heart with peace and comfort, and when I am afraid, bring me new hope and strength in the Lord. With confidence, I place in your hands this special favor (state petition). ~ Amen.

Father Matthew, O. Carm.
National Shrine of Our Lady of Mount Carmel™
P.O. Box 868 • Carmelite Drive
Middletown, NY 10940-0868
(845) 344-0876 (Hours: 8:30a.m.-4:30p.m. EST M-F)

Dear Father Matthew,
Please include my intentions in your devotions honoring St. Therese beginning October 2:

_____
_____
_____
_____

❑ I have enclosed:
❑ $12 ❑ $20 ❑ $50 ❑ $___
to support Carmelite Ministry.

❑ My gift is $12 or more. Please send me the blessed Rose Petal Chaplet.
(The suggested offering is $12 for each Chaplet requested.)

❑ Please send a FREE blessed Scapular.
Please check boxes to receive items.

Name _____
(please print)
Address _____
City _____ State _____ Zip _____
Phone (_____) _____

Your gift is tax deductible to the extent of the law
CNH-TH00

Papal Mass, vigil mark culmination of World Youth Day

By JOHN THAVIS
Catholic News Service

ROME (CNS) — Joining 2 million young people on the outskirts of Rome, Pope John Paul II closed a week of World Youth Day festivities with a call to change the world by embracing the Gospel.

Buoyed by an enthusiastic crowd that was far bigger than expected, the 80-year-old pontiff joked, laughed, shed a few tears and even sang an impromptu prayer as he presided over a celebratory vigil Aug. 19 and the concluding Mass Aug. 20.

The young people suffered through heat that at times reached above 100 degrees but, like the pope, seemed to enjoy every minute.

The two events on an 800-acre tract of university hillside marked the culmination of Holy Year 2000's biggest and longest encounter. Young people from 160 nations made pilgrimages through the Holy Door of St. Peter's Basilica, confessed their sins in the dust of an ancient Roman racetrack, attended religious talks by dozens of bishops, and marched in a Way of the Cross down the streets of the Eternal City.

"From what I witnessed, it was a positive experience for everyone. For our kids to gather with kids from 160 countries, to interact, share faith and show love for the Holy Father, was a source of inspiration and revitalization," said Paul Kotlowski, director of youth ministry for the Diocese of Charlotte. Kotlowski and a diocesan group of 19 teens traveled to Rome, along with several parish groups. "Ultimately, it was important for us to come together and recognize our power as a united young Church and to experience church that is bigger than our own diocese and our country."

The pope played host, welcoming the youths in rousing ceremonies Aug. 15 and sending them home at the end of the week with an invitation to accept Christ and change their societies with his spirit of sacrifice.

"Our society desperately needs this sign, and young people need it even more so, tempted as they often are by the illusion of an easy and comfortable life, by drugs and pleasure-seeking, only to find themselves in a spiral of despair, meaninglessness and violence. It is urgent to change direction and to turn to Christ," he said in his closing sermon.

CNS PHOTO BY NANCY WIECHEC

As confetti falls around him, Pope John Paul II rides into St. Peter's Square Aug. 15 to begin World Youth Day celebrations. A Swiss Guard keeps an eye on the young people reaching out for the pope.

In a speech that he jokingly described as "too long," the pope spoke about the faith and feelings of doubt that all people experience, especially in a society marked by injustice, war and attacks on life.

To long cheers from his audience, the pope praised their resolve to build a better world, one in which "you will not let yourselves be made into tools of violence and destruction."

"You will not resign yourself to a world where other human beings die of hunger, remain illiterate and have no work. You will defend life at every moment of its development," he said.

In opening ceremonies Aug. 15, split between the basilicas of St. John Lateran and St. Peter, the pope said the journey of faith is "part of everything that happens in our lives," and he pointed to his own youth and his priestly vocation as an example.

Outstripping all predictions, more than 700,000 people turned out for the opening events, including 400,000 people at St. Peter's — the largest assemblage ever at the Vatican.

From the front of St. Peter's Basilica, lines stretched for nearly a mile as Vatican officials desperately tried to move 8,000 people an hour through the Holy Door, a highlight of the jubilee pilgrimage. The rush prompted church officials to designate a second, temporary "holy door" in the basilica.

"To walk where the early martyrs and Paul and Peter walked, to go through the holy doors, was powerful. Every day was full of profound grace," said Kotlowski.

Participants waited hours to pass through the doors at St. Peter's. A pilgrimage to St. Peter's is one way to earn a jubilee indulgence — a remission of the temporal punishment for sin that has been forgiven in confession.

Rome's Circus Maximus, a racetrack during the early Christian era, was transformed into a giant open-air confessional for hundreds of thousands of youths. Priests conversant in 30 languages worked nonstop in two-hour shifts and said they were surprised at the heavy turnout.

On Aug. 18, some 300 youths from strife-torn nations led 500,000 others in a torch lit Way of the Cross through the streets of ancient Rome to the Colosseum, where prayers were offered for victims of violence — including those killed in World War II, criminals put to death by capital punishment and pastors slain in service to the church, like the late Salvadoran Archbishop Oscar Romero.

"It was powerful to hear witnesses from countries torn by internal war, conflict or poverty and to experience Catholic Christian solidarity because of our one baptism with people who are so much more challenged by life," said Kotlowski.

Canada's young participants were spotlighted in two ways: when the pope invited some of them to stay at his summer residence with him, and when he announced that the next World Youth Day would take place in Toronto in 2002.

Contributing to this story were Benedicta Cipolla and John Norton in Rome.

Staff Writer Alesha M. Price contributed to this story

You can express your commitment to your Church by making a bequest to the Diocese of Charlotte or to your parish. Simply have the following statement included in your will:
"I leave to the Roman Catholic Diocese of Charlotte (or ____ parish, city) the sum of $____ (or ____ percent of the residue of my estate) for its religious, educational and charitable works."

Remember God's Will In Yours.

"A valid Will stands as a continuing expression of our concern for loved ones, as well as an ongoing commitment to the Church and the community in which we live."
Bishop William G. Curlin

For more information on how to make a Will that works, contact Jim Kelley, Director of Development, (704) 370-3301, at the Diocese of Charlotte, 1123 South Church Street, Charlotte, NC 28203.

The Diocese of Charlotte
CATHOLIC SOCIAL SERVICES

Executive Director:
Elizabeth Thurbee (704) 370-3228
Refugee Office:
Cira Ponce (704) 370-6930
Justice & Peace:
Joanne K. Frazer (704) 370-3225
Special Ministries:
Gerard A. Carter (704) 370-3250

Charlotte Area: 1123 South Church Street, Charlotte, NC 28203
Area Director: Geri King (704) 370-6155
Western Area: 50 Orange Street, Asheville, NC 28801
Area Director: Sister Marie Frechette (828) 255-0146
Piedmont-Triad Area: 621 W. Second Street, Winston-Salem, NC 27108
Area Director: David Harold (336) 727-0705
Greensboro Satellite Office: (336) 274-5577
High Point Hispanic Center: (336) 884-5858

For information on the following programs, please contact the number listed:

CCHD	(704) 370-3234	Natural Family Planning	(704) 370-3230
Casa Guadalupe	(336) 727-4745	Operation Rice Bowl	(704) 370-3231
Catholic Relief Services	(704) 370-3225	Prison Ministry (beeper)	(704) 581-7693
Disaster Relief	(704) 370-3250	Programa Esperanza	(704) 370-6928
Elder Ministry	(704) 370-3220	Respect Life	(704) 370-3229
Family Life	(704) 370-3250	Voices for Justice Legislative Network	(704) 370-3225
Hand to Hand	(336) 725-HAND
Host Homes	(336) 725-HOST	Widow/Separated/Divorced	(704) 370-3228
Marriage Preparation	(704) 370-3228

1123 South Church Street ⊙ Charlotte, NC 28203 ⊙ www.cssnc.org

Rev. Dr. Frederick Dobens, deacon at St. Gabriel Church, dies at age 65

CHARLOTTE — The Rev. Dr. Frederick Dobens, 65, of Charlotte died Thursday evening, August 24, 2000, at the Carolinas Medical Center.

Born in Manchester, N.H., he was the son of the late Eleanor Holt and Frank Dobens. After graduating from Pinkerton Academy, he earned a bachelor's degree from Indiana State University.

Rev. Dr. Frederick Dobens

He received his doctorate of theology from the Pittsburgh Theological Seminary. He served with the U.S. Army's 2nd Armor Division from 1954-1955.

Rev. Dr. Dobens had dedicated his life to education, spending more than 30 years in a variety of administrative and educational roles at Rutgers University, Colgate University, Siena Heights College, St. Joseph's University and Belmont Abbey College.

He remained active in the national fraternity, Pi Lambda Phi, holding several offices over the years.

In 1978, Dr. Dobens was ordained a permanent deacon in the Catholic Church and had served in St. Gabriel Church since 1993, after relocating here with his wife, Muchie, of 38 years.

He served as principal of St. Gabriel Catholic School from 1994 to 1999, when he retired.

Since then, he had been working for the Diocese of Charlotte as a director of development for campus ministry.

Rev. Dr. Dobens is survived by his wife, Muchie, of the home; son Max, his wife Jacky and their two sons, Aiden and Sean; and son Christopher, all of New York City; and a sister, Judy Andrews of Springfield, Mass.

Funeral services took place on Monday, August 28, 2000, at 11 a.m. at St. Gabriel Catholic Church, 3016 Providence Road, with the Most Reverend William G. Curlin, D.D., Bishop of Charlotte, presiding the Mass of Christian Burial.

The family received friends on Sunday, August 27, at the church.

The family has asked that in lieu of flowers you honor the Rev. Dr. Dobens with a donation to the American Heart Association, 1229 Greenwood Cliff, Suite 109, Charlotte, NC 28204, or to the American Cancer Society, 500 East Morehead St., Suite 211, Charlotte, NC 28202.

Sister Mary Carmel Fitzpatrick dies at age 91

BELMONT — Sister Mary Carmel Fitzpatrick, RSM, 91, died Sunday, Aug. 20, 2000, at Marian Center at Sacred Heart Convent, Belmont. She was received as a Sister of Mercy on February 2, 1930, and was in her 61st year as a Sister of Mercy.

The wake service was held at 7 p.m., Tuesday, Aug. 22, 2000, in the Cardinal Gibbons Chapel at Sacred Heart Convent, Belmont. Visitation followed the wake. A Mass of Christian burial was held Wednesday, Aug. 23, 2000, at the Cardinal Gibbons Chapel, with burial at the Belmont Abbey Cemetery.

Sister Mary Carmel Fitzpatrick, RSM

Sister Mary Carmel was born Sept. 22, 1908, in Rochester, N.Y. Her birth name was Mary Elizabeth Fitzpatrick; she took the name Sister Mary Carmel upon entering the religious order of the Sisters of Mercy on February 12, 1938.

Sister Mary Carmel is a graduate of Sacred Heart Junior College and continued her studies at Mercy School of Nursing, Pittsburgh. Later, she attended the Catholic University of America, earning her bachelor's degree in nursing education in 1947.

From 1947 through 1966, her ministry assignments included posts as a nursing arts instructor at Mercy Hospital School of Nursing in the nutrition, diet therapy and pharmacology departments. Additionally, she served as a supervisor in the medical/surgical department of Mercy Hospital. From 1966-67, she was in charge of the girls' dormitory at Nazareth Orphanage, Raleigh. She returned to hospital health care in 1967 at St. Joseph's Hospital, Asheville, where she served as a Sister visitor and as a pre-admission nurse. In 1975, Sister Carmel took over as an infirmarian in Marian Hall, Belmont.

Sister Carmel was quite well known by the nursing students she supervised for her strict interpretation of "hospital corners," her commitment to perfection in delivering medications properly and her kindness to the indigent and poor who were ill. Her efforts at organization were paramount and her penchant for note writing and labeling was both highly developed and appreciated.

In spite of her physical infirmity of recent years, Sister Carmel's incredible memory ranks close to legendary status. Until recently, she was capable of recalling the most obscure dates with ease.

Jeanne-Margaret McNally, RSM, homilist at Sister Carmel's Diamond Jubilee on Aug. 8, 1999, described the essence of Sister Carmel through a quote from Teilhard de Chardin: "that the value and interest of life is not so much to do conspicuous things ... as to do ordinary things with the perception of their enormous value."

Sister Mary Carmel was the daughter of the late John S. Fitzpatrick and Catherine Strobert Fitzpatrick.

Memorials may be made to the Sisters of Mercy of North Carolina, 100 Mercy Drive, Belmont, NC 28012.

THE
Independent Advantage
SPELMAN & CO., INC.
A SunAmerica Company

351 N. Peacehaven Road, Winston-Salem, NC 27104

Local: (336) 768-4709
Fax: (336) 778-1444
Toll-free: (800) 859-7847

THOMAS M. PRYBYLO
Retirement Specialist
Member NASD, SIPC

Press:
Extension 11 for free e-mail newsletter
Extension 12 for LongTerm Care brochure
Extention 13 for daily stock market update

WEB SITES:
For realtime quotes & financial calculators:
www.prybylofinancial.com

For LongTerm Care/Disability Insurance:
kestlerfinancial.com/agents/prybylo.htm

For Term/Family Life Insurance:
agentslink.com/tpryb/

CFCC
Carolina Funeral & Cremation Center
Dignity
Affordability
Simplicity
5505 Monroe Rd. Charlotte, NC 28212
704-568-0023
www.carolinafunerals.com
Steven Kuzma
Owner/Director
Privately, Locally Owned
Member St. Matthew Church and Knights of Columbus

THE ORATORY
434 Charlotte Avenue, P. O. Box 11586
Rock Hill, SC 29731-1586
(803) 327-2097

Contemplative Prayer
A Continuing Silence
A continuing community of prayer support gathers every quarter at the Oratory.
All sessions: 8 PM Friday to 3PM Saturday
Sept. 8-9
Dec. 1-2
Mar. 23-24
June 2-3

All interested in contemplation and quiet prayer are welcome. We encourage Friday evening arrival for rest and calming quiet. Saturdays include early morning Taize prayer, several sessions of silent contemplation, noon Eucharist, and option for silence or conversation during meals.

Joan Thome of Winston-Salem has trained with Contemplative Outreach and helps guide these sessions.

Cost: $60.00 overnight - $30.00 commuters

For more information write:
Summer Bible Institute, The Oratory
P.O. Box 11586, Rock Hill, SC 29731-1586

The Brazilians are coming...
566-1009

Test of party platforms is how they touch the person, advance common good, say U.S. bishops

WASHINGTON — Party platforms "should be measured by how they touch the human person," according to testimony submitted this summer to the Democratic and Republican party platform committees by the nations' Catholic bishops.

The testimony is the text of "Faithful Citizenship: Civic Responsibility for a New Millennium," the bishops' quadrennial political responsibility statement, which summarizes the church's moral teachings on important policy issues. "Faithful Citizenship" was issued last October.

"The bishops seek the support of people of good will of every religious or political persuasion for our policy positions, since we firmly believe that they advance the common good of all," said Msgr. Dennis M. Schnurr, general secretary of the U.S. Catholic Conference, in his letter of transmittal. "In addition, it has been our experience that our moral framework does not easily fit the categories of any political party."

The USCC is the public policy agency of the nation's Catholic bishops. Like other national organizations, the conference presents its public policy positions every four years to the platform committees of the two major political parties.

Msgr. Schnurr urged the members of both parties' platform committees to study "Faithful Citizenship" carefully as they prepared for their conventions.

The bishops use their political responsibility statement to highlight themes of Catholic social teaching that shape Catholic thinking about public policy issues.

"We believe that every human life is sacred from conception to natural death; that people are more important than things; and that the measure of every institution is whether or not it enhances the life and dignity of the human person," they said.

The bishops explore how this teaching has been applied to specific issues under the headings of Protecting Human Life, Promoting Family Life, Pursuing Social Justice and Practicing Global Solidarity.

Faithful Citizenship

The statement also exhorts Catholics to take their civic responsibilities seriously:

"Every believer is called to faithful citizenship, to become an informed, active, and responsible participant in the political process," they note.

"As Catholics, we are not free to abandon unborn children because they are seen as unwanted or inconvenient; to turn our backs on immigrants because they lack the proper documents; to turn away from poor women and children because they lack economic or political power," they said. "Nor can we neglect international responsibilities because the Cold War is over. ... No polls or focus groups can release us from the responsibility to speak up for the voiceless, to act in accord with our moral convictions."

The bishops' testimony was directed to the chairmen of each party's platform committee: U.S. Senator Richard Durbin and Mayor Sales Belton of the Democratic Party, and Governor Thomas Thompson of the Republican Party.

A "Faithful Citizenship" packet was distributed by the USCC last fall to more than 19,000 U.S. parishes and dioceses across the country. Since then, an additional 65,000 printed copies have been distributed.

In western North Carolina, ongoing educational efforts sponsored by the Office of Justice and Peace in the Diocese of Charlotte continue. Joan Rosenhauer, special projects coordinator for the U.S. bishops' social development office, visited the diocese in March to speak to parishioners, priests, permanent deacons and Catholic Social Services personnel about the document.

The statement is being widely used as a guide to an authentically Catholic and non-partisan exercise of political responsibility. Without endorsing candidates or parties, the bishops pressed Catholics to be active participants in the political process.

"The next millennium requires a new kind of politics, focused more on moral principles than on the latest polls, more on the needs of the poor and vulnerable than the contributions of the rich and powerful, more on the pursuit of the common good than the demands of special interests," they state.

This story was submitted by the United States Catholics Conference.

Investing Is Not as Simple as A, B, C.

Put our 113 years to work for you. Call A.G. Edwards today for your free copy of Equity Strategy.

Les Davaz
Member, St. Peter's

15800 John J. Delaney Dr.
Suite 100
Charlotte, NC 28277
(704) 341-3131 or (888) 769-3131
les.davaz@agedwards.com

A.G. Edwards
INVESTMENTS SINCE 1887
Member SIPC • 2000 A.G. Edwards & Sons, Inc.

[16784] RS-236-1100

Jubilee Days for September 2000

JUBILEE CHRIST YESTERDAY TODAY FOREVER 2000

September 4
Jubilee of Workers, Crafters, Builders & Tradespeople (USA)

September 10
Jubilee of Teachers & Professors

September 17
Jubilee of Catechists (USA)

September 24
Jubilee of Senior Citizens (USA)

Share your day and lunch with friends!

Fall Day of Reflection for Seniors

3 dates/locations to choose from: 9:30-3:30

Thurs., Oct 12— Catholic Conference Ctr.
Deadline: Sept 26th (limited space)
Thurs., Oct 19— St. Mark, Huntersville
Deadline: Oct. 4th
Thurs., Oct 26— St. Elizabeth, Boone
Deadline: Oct. 18th (limited space)

For more information, call Sandra Breakfield (704) 370-3220 or Meg Smith (828) 464-8442
Sponsored by Catholic Social Services, Elder Ministries

To register, send form and $8.00 fee (includes lunch) to:
Sandra Breakfield, Catholic Social Services
1123 South Church Street, Charlotte, NC 28203

Name _____ Phone _____
Address _____
City _____ Parish _____
Date & Location Preferred _____
 Registration deadlines: See above dates
$8 fee per person — Make checks payable to Catholic Social Services

Group registration forms and directions are available at church offices and with Club leaders.

COACH XCEL

A Personal Coach Is to Your Mind and Spirit What A Personal Trainer Is to Your Body.

- Achieve more success and significance both personally and professionally
- Earn more money while growing personally
- Attain better overall health with less stress
- Possess higher self confidence and reach your goals

For a complimentary consultation call
John Connors, LPC @ 704-597-4184
Licensed Professional Counselor

Sister John Meehan recognized for 30 years of service

By FRANK BRADLEY
Smoky Mountain Sentinel

HAYESVILLE — "What I (first) noticed about Sister John was she never talked about herself, she talked about other people," Bishop William Curlin said Monday during a celebration honoring the Glenmary nun who has spent almost 30 years serving the people in Clay and Cherokee counties.

"Your life is your sermon," Curlin, who is bishop of the Diocese of Charlotte, said. "Thirty years of tremendous love and service you have given to people. We can only try to express our gratitude. You are the Mother Teresa of the mountains."

"You are carved on all our souls, all our minds. We see you as the presence of Jesus. God spoke to you, and you said, 'Here I am, Lord.'"

"You visited the sick, were concerned about the poor and cared about people nobody wants," the bishop continued. "You put in our heart your heart."

The occasion was a Mass and farewell celebration in honor of Sister Loretto John Meehan, held at Immaculate Heart of Mary Catholic Church in Hayesville. The celebration and dinner that followed lasted almost three hours with many in the church and in the community paying tribute to Sister John.

Today, Sister John is scheduled to make her departure from these mountains and return to her native New York.

"When I came to this area, I had no idea where I was going," she said last week during a ceremony naming a bridge in her honor. "When asked 'how did you get down here?' I said blame it on the Holy Spirit," she said.

Sister John's parents were born in Ireland and immigrated to New York. Sister John was one of four children. She became a Glenmary nun and came to Hayesville in 1971 to work with two other nuns as part of Glenmary Nursing Service.

"She provided competent and kindly care to our patients for years and years," Dr. Brian Mitchel said at the bridge dedication. "She has done much to bridge the gap between health care in the hospital and in the home, and to bridge the gap between generations."

Photo by Mary Carol Campbell

Sister Loretto John Meehan has always been known for her hearty laugh. Here she shares laughs and memories with good friends.

Judy Wilson, a nurse who worked with Sister John for 15 years, said John's "biggest gift was her personal interaction with the patient. Her natural caring enabled her to do anything for anybody," Wilson said. "She set an example we should all strive for in the care for others."

During the bridge ceremony, N.C. Secretary of Transportation David McCoy said in dedicating the bridge on U.S. Highway 64 crossing over the Hiwassie River in her honor, "She has given her all as a home health nurse, as a spiritual advisor and as a friend."

Sister John was also awarded the governor's "Order of the Long Leaf Pine," which was presented by Senator Bob Carpenter; she received a special blessing from Pope John Paul, which was presented by her roommate, Sister Terry, who joked, "The pope was sorry he couldn't make it (the ceremony) but his popemobile couldn't travel the mountains."

She also received a letter from Mayor Rudolph Giuliani of New York City welcoming her return. Then Gwen Kincaid, a CNA with Good Shepherd, paid tribute to Sister John with a musical tribute to her with an emotional rendition of the Battle Hymn of the Republic.

During the church service on Monday, several hundred friends turned out to bid Sister John farewell. Most stayed for a dinner in the parish hall. Sister John was attired in a "Carolina blue suit," one she had worn earlier for the bridge dedication. And at both celebrations, she exuded the warmth and care for others that has so endeared this New York Yankee to the hearts of the people in these parts.

This story, which originally ran in the Smoky Mountain Sentinel & Business Report on Aug. 23, is reprinted with permission.

Carolina Volkswagen
6625 E. Independence Blvd., Charlotte
(704) 537-2336 • (800) 489-2336

Biggest Selection — Lowest Prices

Drivers wanted.

"Nothing Could Be Finer" — Members of St. Gabriel

#1 Volkswagen Dealer in Charlotte and all the Carolinas for customer sales and service satisfaction!
C'mon in and see why!

VOLUNTEER MINISTRY

Pastoral Care Training

This program is designed to train parish volunteers to provide pastoral care to the elderly in retirement facilities, assisted living facilities, nursing homes, memory-impaired facilities, and homebound. Through the four-week training, volunteers will be exposed to the following concepts:

Each two-hour session held from 7-9 pm.

Monday, Oct. 9th Parish Ministry	BJ Dengler Pastoral Coordinator
Monday, Oct. 16th Eucharistic Ministry	Msgr. John McSweeney St. Matthew, pastor
Monday, Oct. 23rd Senior Sensitivity	Bernadette Ford Gerontologist
Monday, Oct. 30th Confidentiality, Compliance, Consistency	Sr. Jeanne Marie Kienast, R.S.M. Pastoral Associate

All sessions will be held at:
St. Gabriel Catholic Church Ministry Center
3016 Providence Road, Charlotte (at Sharon Amity)
Free training but registration required, call 364-5431

Sponsored by Catholic Social Services, Elder Ministry, St. Gabriel Church, St. Matthew Church

In celebration of giving: Sister Loretto John Meehan

By JO ANN ALBERTS
Smoky Mountain Sentinel

HAYESVILLE — In August Sister Loretto John Meehan will be completing a circle as she returns to Mount St. Vincent, New York, to begin a new assignment.

Anna Josephine, called Jo at home, was born in Harlem, New York, to Irish immigrants. After high school in the late '40s, Jo entered the Sisters of Charity of New York at Mount St. Vincent, went to college there, and then on to St. Joseph School of Nursing. Upon becoming a sister, she was given the name Sister Loretto John Meehan. Her first nursing assignment was among the retired sisters of the Convent of Mary the Queen in Yonkers, N.Y.

Sister John was interested in Appalachia, did her own research for a particular place in which to serve, and reported her findings to her authority. Like her parents who had left family and familiar surroundings to move into a foreign environment and culture, Sister John left the big city and moved into rural Appalachia. She arrived in Asheville, N.C., in 1971 en route to the town of Hayesville. She resided with the Glenmary Sisters in a building across from Clay Farmer's Exchange.

In 1954, Bishop Vincent Waters had set up a parish to serve Cherokee, Clay and Graham counties, and had invited the Glenmary Home Missioners to staff it. Rev. Joseph Dean, a Glenmary priest, had become the first pastor. In 1958 Bishop Waters had asked the Glenmary Sisters of Cincinnati, Ohio, to come live and work in Hayesville. He purchased a motel where the sisters lived. A chapel was set up and the small number of local Catholics could attend Mass. In the third wing of the motel, the sisters established the Glenmary Sisters' Home Nursing Service. Their primary mission was commitment to physical, emotional and spiritual healing while respecting the dignity of all persons, and then to work for the Church in both parish and diocese.

Every day began with a trip to Murphy for Mass at the old Providence Hospital where Ivie Funeral Home is now.

Photo by Frank Bradley

The new community center, formerly occupied by Good Shepherd Home Health, was named in Sister John's honor. It will be used to house non-profit service organizations in Clay County.

In the early days, Sister John drove with a camper, which better suited her since she might be called on to be carpenter, plumber, cook, undertaker, supply clerk and more. She had to be resourceful to acquire needed clothing for a patient to wear to a hospital or to provide (or obtain) transportation for a very ill patient to receive more medical attention.

A very moving article by Father Patrick O'Donnell in the "Glenmary Challenge" in 1974 revealed one aspect of Sister John's work. He wrote, "Most of what happens at the Glenmary Sisters' Home Nursing Service is not startling ... but it adds up to a staggering work of charity. Occasionally, little miracles creep into the scene, like when the medical profession was ready to throw in the towel on little Carleen Medford. The sisters at Hayesville were asked to do their best with physical therapy blended with spiritual comfort and hope. Sr. John found Carleen in a wheelchair, her head to one side, unable to move hands or feet. 'Raise your arm, Carleen.'

"'I can't.' 'Please try,' encouraged Sister. Sr. John dropped in daily, working patiently with the child in professional physical therapy, spiked with love. Finally, a finger would move, then a hand, an arm, and eventually a leg. The child was excited. In three months Carleen was walking, laughing, and chattering like a magpie. ..."

In the Sisters of Charity's Newsletter by Sister Florence Speth, a regional superior reported and visited Sister John in Hayesville in 1980. Each patient was treated as an individual with a very special dignity. I don't believe a queen in a golden palace could be treated with more care and respect than the nurse showed. She entered a home because of her professional skills, but more important than the medicine she brought was her own presence to the lonely old folks. The nurse "wastes time" on her patients ... and this proved to be the best medicine of all.

In 1984 hundreds of her friends and admirers turned out for a Saturday Jubilee on the Georgia Mountain Fair; many drove in from other states to pay tribute to a lady who had touched their lives in some way with her kindness and generosity. The Town Council declared it "Sr. John's Day." And how did she respond at the end of the picnic and day of celebration in her honor? She danced a mountain clog solo for the crowd!

"Sister John is the best thing that has happened to Hayesville in twenty years," said Sister Rose Mary Commerford.

The local Civitan Club named her "Citizen of the Year 1994" for her outstanding achievement and unselfish service in the betterment of our community.

In 1996 Sister John was honored with the "Nurse of the Year award in Home Health for the State of North Carolina." In that same year, she celebrated the 25th year of her Appalachian mission.

Through the years many changes have occurred in Cherokee and Clay counties. The Glenmary Sisters' Home Nursing Service became an agency of the Catholic Diocese of charlotte and had its name changed to Good Shepherd Home Health Agency, Inc. It has now moved under the wing of Murphy Medical Center.

This story, which originally ran in the Smoky Mountain Sentinel & Business Report on Aug. 23, is reprinted with permission.

JOHANNUS CHURCH ORGANS
America's best value in sound & price.
SYNTHIA MUSIC SYSTEMS
Catholic Hymns at the push of a button.
SOUND SYSTEMS
Totally wireless systems and hearing impaired devices.
CHURCH PIANOS
Quality pianos for affordable prices.
ELECTRONIC ORGAN SERVICE ON ALL MAKES
Music & Electronics, Inc.
Corner of Oak & Broad Streets, Mooresville, NC
(704) 663-7007 — (800) 331-0768

Attention
DIABETICS
with Medicare or Insurance
Save Money on Diabetic Supplies!
For more information call:
1-800-337-4144
Medicare also pays for pump & pump supplies

"Our Specialty Is Loving Your Pets"
Pineville Animal Hospital
10833 Pineville Road, Pineville, NC
(Near Carolina Pavilion/AMC 22 Theater)
(704) 552-2005
In addition to our complete medical care facility, we also offer:
Boarding Kennels
Professional Grooming
Thomas N. Buckley, DVM, owner
Member of St. Vincent's

Book Review

Book offers insight, profiles of courage for youth in civil rights movement

REVIEWED BY CAROLE NORRIS GREENE
CATHOLIC NEWS SERVICE

It is difficult to talk about that which is shameful. Harder still to articulate to children the incomprehensible cruelty of some people toward others whose skin is a different color. Yet this is precisely what Mary C. Turck has skillfully done in her book "The Civil Rights Movement for Kids: A History with 21 Activities."

"The Civil Rights Movement for Kids: A History with 21 Activities", by Mary C. Turck. Chicago Review Press, Inc. (Chicago, 2000). 190 pp., $14.95.

This comprehensive learning resource includes profiles of the courageous black and white leaders in the civil rights movement who struggled to change the oppressive laws which ordered one not to eat with someone, ride the bus with someone, go to school with someone, live among or marry someone because of race.

The book includes sidebars with intriguing facts and historical anecdotes, haunting photographs, stories, speeches, a timeline, learning activities for kids in each chapter, and the texts of Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and of the Voting Rights Act of 1965. Web sites for youths, civil rights organizations, videos on the topic and books for further reading are also included.

The timeline starts in 1948 with

SEE REVIEW, PAGE 14

Word to Life

September 3, Twenty-Second Sunday in Ordinary Time

Cycle B Readings:

1) Deuteronomy 4:1-2, 6-8
   Psalm 15:2-5
2) James 1:17-18, 21b-22, 27
3) Gospel: Mark 7:1-8, 14-15, 21-23

BY BEVERLY CORZINE
CATHOLIC NEWS SERVICE

It is a Sunday evening as my 2-year-old granddaughter, Olivia, my daughter-in-law, Laura, and I enter their living room to admire Laura's new curio cabinet.

Standing before us is an elegant cabinet, crafted out of a rich cherry wood and stunning glass. Family treasures rest safely behind glass doors in just the right position to catch the light and spark a conversation among three generations.

Laura and I discuss the history and beauty of the objects that lie before us. Olivia punctuates our adult conversation with her own words of praise for the items that catch her sparkling brown eyes.

As I kneel down so that I can be on her eye level and affirm her choices, I am aware of the gift of this moment.

Champagne flutes, china, a special book are all there for her admiration. I look at Olivia and feel her warm little hand grasping my finger as she names the items before us and tells me they are pretty.

For a moment I am reminded of my own mother and her love of beautiful dishes and glassware. I think of her pink Depression glass that rests in a hallowed space in my own home. I wonder what it is that seems to link generations of women and the objects of beauty they pass along down the generations.

Then Olivia's eyes fall on Laura's crystal Celtic cross. "Mommy's cross. Pretty. Pretty."

"Yes," I say, nodding in agreement. "It's very pretty."

"Very pretty!" echoes back to me. Laura and I exchange an understanding smile. The moment passes.

Later when I leave, I catch a glimpse of the Celtic cross that Olivia has wisely called "Mommy's cross." Its message is crystal clear.

We as parents and grandparents have been entrusted with great responsibility to pass on the mystery and the good news of God's love for us. It's our job.

We are part of a living tradition that stretches back in time for thousands of years.

I ponder the gift of family and the importance of the sacred traditions we pass on to our children and our children's children.

I think of Olivia, a tiny little girl with brown curly hair, who is a blessed link between my future and my past.

Question:

Whether you are the first link in your family's chain or the 15th, how are you passing your faith along to your children and grandchildren?

Weekly Scripture

Readings for the week of Sept. 3 - 9, 2000

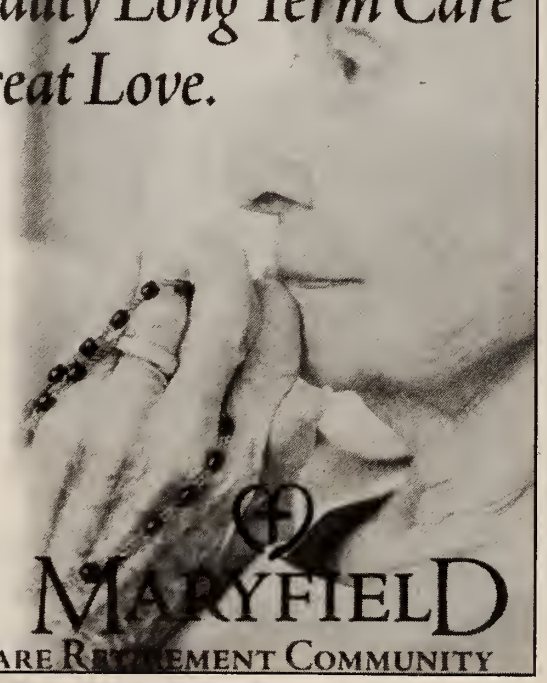
Sunday, Deuteronomy 4:1-2, 6-8, James 1:17-18, 21-22, 27, Mark 7:1-8, 14-15, 21-23; Monday, 1 Corinthians 2:1-5, Luke 4:16-30; Tuesday, 1 Corinthians 2:10-16, Luke 4:31-37; Wednesday, 1 Corinthians 3:1-9, Luke 4:38-44; Thursday, 1 Corinthians 3:18-23, Luke 5:1-11; Friday (Birth of the Virgin Mary), Micah 5:1-4, Matthew 1:1-16, 18-23; Saturday (St. Peter Claver), 1 Corinthians 4:9-15, Luke 6:1-5

Readings for the week of Sept. 10 - 16, 2000

Sunday, Isaiah 35:4-7, James 2:1-5, Mark 7:31-37; Monday, 1 Corinthians 5:1-8, Luke 6:6-11; Tuesday, 1 Corinthians 6:1-11, Luke 6:12-19; Wednesday (St. John Chrysostom), 1 Corinthians 7:25-31, Luke 6:20-26; Thursday (Triumph of the Cross), Numbers 21:4-9, Philippians 2:6-11, John 3:13-17; Friday (Our Lady of Sorrows), 1 Corinthians 9:16-19, 22-27, Luke 2:33-35; Saturday (Sts. Cornelius and Cyprian), 1 Corinthians 10:14-22, Luke 6:43-49

The Franciscan Center
Catholic Gift & Book Store
Over 700 Book Titles, plus Bibles, Rosaries, Statues, Medals, Tapes, CD's, Plaques, & much, much more!
Hours: 9am - 5pm Monday - Friday
(336) 273-2554 233 N. Greene St. Greensboro, NC 27401

Providing Quality Long Term Care ...With Great Love.



For half a century, Maryfield Nursing Home has provided outstanding nursing care in a Catholic environment. When you need more care than is available at your home, come visit us. We invite you to discover for yourself our many stimulating daily activities and services which make Maryfield the best possible choice for Long Term Care.

1315 Greensboro Road
High Point, NC 27260
336.886.2444 Fax 336.886.4036
www.greensboro.com/mnh

MARYFIELD
A Continuing Care Retirement Community

Create a winning event

Having your meeting or conference at the center makes you a winner every time!

We can help you turn an ordinary conference, meeting, retreat, or banquet into a special event! You plan the event, we'll provide the environment!

1551 Trinity Lane, Hickory, NC
(828) 327-7441 or toll-free at
(888) 536-7441
E-mail: ccc@twave.net
www.catholicconference.org

The Catholic Conference Center

Retirement, from page 1

these 46 counties, the community of faith becomes an extended family. And with the annual Priests' Retirement and Benefits Collection, scheduled in parishes for Sept. 9-10 this year, the diocesan family of faith can offer its thanks to those ministers of Christ who give the best years of their lives in priestly service.

For Father Kelleher, who has served in North Carolina since 1966, "retirement" is a relative term. Now a Winston-Salem resident, he continues an active schedule of filling in at parishes on the weekends, and his ministry to young and elderly alike brings countless smiles to many.

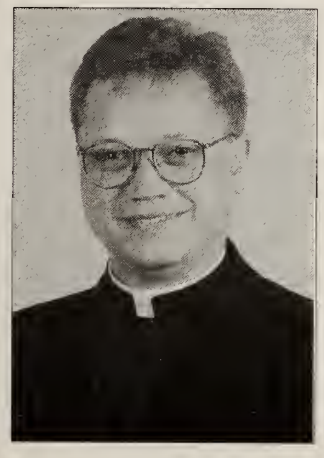
"On weekends, I go all over the place — not just in the Triad, but throughout the diocese," said Father Kelleher. "Sometimes," he adds with a chuckle, "I get calls and I have to say, 'I'm sorry, I've been booked for two months.'"

Visits to Maryfield Nursing Home in High Point keep him in touch with some of the diocese's senior priests and residents, including Bishop Emeritus Michael J. Begley. And ongoing involvement at Bishop McGuinness High School in Winston-Salem — from celebrating Mass in the school chapel to serving fries on the cafeteria lunch line — continues a presence that he and the school community appreciate.

"To give these people a real presence and to be there for them in reality is very important," said Father Kelleher, who remains in contact with BMHS graduates into their college years and beyond. "I hope to offer a presence that lasts long after they're gone from school."

The Priests' Retirement and Benefits Collection is designed to provide sound financial security to priests of the diocese and the 11 religious orders who serve here, as they enter their retirement years.

The collection's goal this year is $776,000, according to Bill Weldon, chief financial officer for the Diocese of Charlotte. Two-thirds of the funds will be used for diocesan clergy, and a third for the retirement funds of the religious order priests who serve here.



"To receive the care and concern that people give in a very real and tangible way as a way of showing how they appreciate their priests is a very heartwarming thing to see."

— Father Christopher Davis

The amount of the collection factors in 3 percent of each parish's annual offertory income.

Twenty-two retired diocesan priests currently benefit from the collection, which also helps provide for those 71 diocesan priests in current active ministry who will someday be eligible for retirement benefits.

Among those in active ministry is Father Davis, who in July entered a pastoral assignment as administrator of Holy Infant Church in Reidsville and sacramental minister at St. Joseph of the Hills Church in Eden.

Father Davis credits Father Conrad Kimbrough, a senior priest in the diocese, for fostering his calling to converting to Catholicism — and, later, to the priesthood.

It was as the organist at St. Benedict Church in Greensboro that Father Davis — then a college student considering a future in music — had important conversations with Father Kimbrough about the Catholic faith. After a lengthy period of prayer and consideration he converted. That led him to yet another path of discernment — one that led him to the priesthood.

"During my college years at UNC Greensboro, I was trying to figure out what I really wanted to do with my life," said Father Davis, who was ordained in 1998. "And about the only thing that really gave me a sense of peace was to really think about being a priest and the ministry of celebrating the sacraments and the Mass."

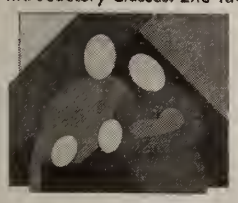
Both Fathers Kelleher and Davis said that to serve the family of faith in the diocese — a family who in turn will provide for their well-being in their times of need — brings a humble sense of gratitude.

"There are many, many times during the day when I thank God for having what I have, and I ask him to bless the people who provide for me," said Father Kelleher. "I'm grateful for that, and I hope to still be available to pray and to work for their salvation."

"To receive the care and concern that people give in a very real and tangible way as a way of showing how they appreciate their priests is a very heartwarming thing to see," added Father Davis. He thanked those senior priests in the diocese who worked so diligently "to persevere to make the church that we have inherited today."

"We're living off the fruit of their work and labor," he said, "and it's just very awe-inspiring."

Contact Associate Editor Jimmy Rostar by calling (704) 370-3334 or e-mail jtrostar@charlottediocese.org

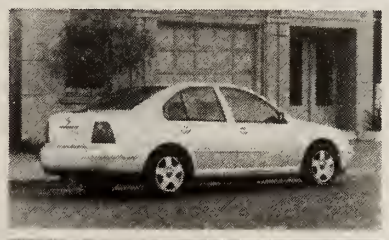
Come find out about...
Natural Family Planning
Catholic Social Services
Introductory Classes: 2nd Tuesday of every month


Next class: Sept 12th
Upcoming classes: Oct 10 & Nov.14
Fee: $10
Call to pre-register
Classes held at 7pm at the Charlotte Diocese Pastoral Center 1123 South Church Street (4 blocks from Ericsson "Panther" Stadium)
For information, other class locations and methods, please call (704) 370-3230.

CLOSED MONDAYS THRU LABOR DAY
Tues-Fri 9:30am-5:30pm
Sat. 9:30am-3:00pm
Carolina Catholic Bookshoppe
† Special Cards
† Religious Articles
† Unique Gift Ideas
704-342-2878
Fax (704) 334-3313
4410-F Monroe Road, Charlotte, NC
We welcome mail orders and special orders!

Steve Hughes
House Painting & Pressure Washing
Interior/Exterior
Also specializing in interior painting, wall murals and children's rooms!
(704) 225-8188
References Provided
St. Gabriel Parishioner

COACHXCEL
Spirit - Body - Mind
Hypnosis - Thought Field Therapy
Stop Smoking • Live Healthier
Manage Stress • Reduce Chronic Pain
Improve Job, Academic, Sports Performance
Call Today! 704-597-4184
John Connors LPC, NBCCH, TFT
Licensed Professional Counselor, National Board of Certified Clinical Hypnotherapists
Diplomate Certified - Thought Field Therapy



We Warn You: If You Drive One You're Gonna Want One!
Volkswagen and Audi...the only car companies to have every model named best in its class. Find out why. Come in for a thrill ride today.
Honest pricing, honest financing, and honest service on Europe's most exciting new cars. From the incredible New Beetle, to the all new Jetta IV and luxurious new generation of Audi, we have the right car for your pocketbook...and your lifestyle.
Volkswagen Audi South
John Diederich, Owner
Member Saint Gabriel Parish
7401 South Boulevard . Charlotte . 704.552.6500 . 800.426.5347
www.vwsouth.com . www.audisouth.com

The Pope Speaks

POPE JOHN PAUL II

Pope says World Youth Day exceeded 'all expectations'

By JOHN NORTON
Catholic News Service

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — Pope John Paul II thanked God for a World Youth Day celebration he said exceeded "all human expectations" and prayed that the young people would ignite the world with God's love.

"I will never be able to forget the enthusiasm of those young people," he told pilgrims at his weekly general audience in St. Peter's Square Aug. 23.

"I would have liked to have embraced them all and expressed to each one the affection which ties me to the youth of our time," he said.

More than 2 million young people from 160 countries crowded an 800-acre field on Rome's outskirts Aug. 19-20 for a prayer vigil with the pope and Mass with him the following morning. It was city's largest gathering of people in living memory.

"Flying over the area in the helicopter," said the pope, referring to his arrival and departure from the field, "I admired from above a singular and impressive sight: an enormous human carpet of joyful people, happy to be together."

The youths' community and personal experience of encountering Christ during the event, he said, showed that the young people felt themselves "a living part of the church" and "a people of God in journey."

The pope said the young people were not afraid of their own human frailties and limitations "because they count on the love and mercy of the heavenly Father, who sustains them in daily life."

"Beyond every race and culture, they feel like brothers gathered by a single faith, by a single hope, by a single mission: to ignite the world with God's love," he said.

"To all the young people I would like to repeat: Be proud of the mission which the Lord has entrusted to you and carry it forward with humble and generous perseverance," the pope said.

"Christ and his church count on you!" he said.

Pope announces 2002 World Youth Day will be in Toronto

ROME (CNS) — As Pope John Paul II drew World Youth Day 2000 to a clamorous close in Rome, he announced the next site for the gathering would be in Toronto, Ontario, in 2002. "Right from now I invite the young people of the world to set out for Toronto," the pope told a 2 million-strong crowd that convened on a university campus on Rome's outskirts for the climax of this year's youth day observance. "I offer a special greeting to the Canadian delegation, who wanted to be here at this celebration to accept the task which will be theirs," he said Aug. 20 as Canadian flags began waving furiously.

Labor Day: Then and Now

When Labor Day became a federal holiday in 1894, workers marched in major cities to demonstrate the strength of labor organizations in their communities. In the afternoon after the parades, workers and their families enjoyed recreation together in parks and other public places.

One hundred years ago workers, especially in railroad and steel, regularly worked twelve-hour shifts six days a week. In 1880 one-sixth of American workers (1,118,000) were children under the age of 16. In 1889 alone, 22,000 railroad workers were killed or injured on the job. Because wages fluctuated with the economy, the Carnegie Steel Company in 1892 cut pay between 18 percent and 26 percent leading to the Homestead Strike that ended in bloody violence.

Only a century ago the human dignity of American workers was sacrificed to the new wave of industrialization.

A sense of solidarity and purpose gripped union members that first Labor Day with slogans like "an injury to one is an injury to all." They were optimistic about making a difference. The issues at the time included securing the eight-hour workday, eliminating child labor, minimizing unsafe work conditions and mandating a fair wage. Labor Day 2000 finds most workers in the U.S. living a middle-class life.

The eight-hour day has become standard and child labor is outlawed. Yet, 10 million workers still receive minimum wage and vast numbers work with no health insurance. While companies cannot easily change wages according to economic highs and lows, they can employ a contingent workforce of temps, part-timers and contract labor. In today's market system, workers see themselves as independent entrepreneurs selling their work skills to the highest bidder. Even well-educated workers recognize they will work for numerous companies before retirement and possibly change careers two or three times. The social fabric of loyalty between many workers and employers appears shredded.

But, the single greatest difference between the first Labor Day and Labor Day 2000 remains the global economy. Today that arrangement weakens the rights of workers everywhere. Corporations are free to move capital across international borders, finding countries with low wages to produce goods.

The International Labor Organization, an arm of the U.N., adopted resolutions covering five basic human rights for all workers. They include the right to organize unions and the right to bargain collectively with employers.

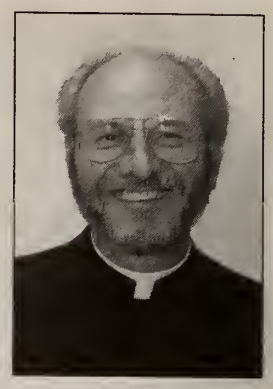
Today over 46 million children under 14 work in factories and fields and millions of adult workers log 70 hours a week on assembly lines. Prison labor is forced to produce for international markets and women suffer discrimination in the workplace. Many times these labor abuses translate into cheap prices for American discount stores.

Labor Day today usually signals the end of summer for American workers. For people of justice it offers a time to pause and reflect about how far labor has come and what issues remain.

Father Rausch writes, teaches and organizes in Appalachia.

Economy of Faith

GLENMARY FATHER
JOHN RAUSCH
Guest Columnist



Family Reflections

ANDREW & TERRY LYKE
Guest Columnists

Launching stages in family life

As lay ministers who have worked with families for many years, our view of the various stages of family life can be skewed by theory when our experience at a stage is lacking.

For example, our only understanding about raising teens was what we had heard and seen in others, and what we scarcely remembered from our own adolescence. Now in the midst of adolescence, our family experiences give us practical wisdom into which we may apply some of the learned theory.

Frankly, we now know the "real deal" about raising teens.

We are entering a new stage of family life of which we are learning the lesson of experience — the launching stage.

Our older child, Andréa, is leaving for college. With the similar trepidation of her first day of kindergarten, we are enrapt with this experience of launching.

As clinicians of family life, we have prepared for this stage for years. We understand its functions and purpose.

Yet there is an ever-present anxiety that gnaws in our gut. Transitioning previous family life stages have taught us something important that we will use to maneuver this phase.

Welcoming a new child into our family setting for the first time was scary. Though we were excited and well prepared, there was so much we didn't know. There were so many "what-ifs" to consider that we found ourselves sometimes stuck in fear. Watching Andréa board the school bus for the first time gave us pangs of fear, a sense of loss, a remorseful knowing that things will not be the same.

And so it has been for each stage we have traversed: pangs of fear, a sense of loss.

Experience tells us that standing still and bemoaning our loss are not healthy options. Our children are ever-evolving, whether we like it or not. To "get with the program," we have had to trust in God. At each stage thus far, there was a "letting go and letting God" factor that got us through.

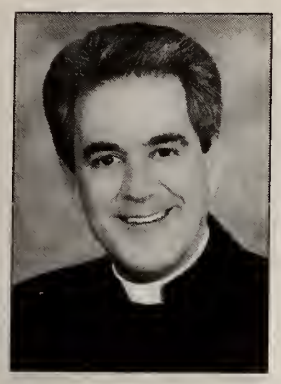
There is a pattern of the Paschal Mystery at work here: bearing the cross of change, entering the tomb of anxiety and embracing the resurrection of newness in family life.

Having lived this pattern through the previous stages of family life, we anticipate the joy of watching Andréa evolve as a young adult college student.

It tempers the anxiety and gives us hope.

So, again, as with other families sending their first-borns off to school — kindergarten or college — we are learning to let go in brand new ways. We are also trusting that God is with us through every step and every stage of family life.

Andrew & Terry Lyke are coordinators of marriage ministry for the Archdiocese of Chicago.



Light One Candle

MSGR. THOMAS J. McSWEENEY
Guest Columnist

White Lies

White lie, n. a minor or harmless lie. Who hasn't at some time found an excuse for fibbing? Either the truth would embarrass the other person or be too inconvenient for ourselves, so we lie. From "Tell him I'm not here!" to "Honestly, you look thinner in that dress!" — harmless, face-saving lies. No big thing.

No big thing unless you read St. Augustine (354-430 A.D.), Bishop of Hippo, Doctor of the Church and one of the most intriguing and influential Christian writers of all time.

He makes the case that even the slightest intention to mislead others in their pursuit of truth is a sin. His stand is unequivocal — whenever you tell a lie, you violate your sacred obligation to the truth. You cannot be a liar and still pretend to serve God who is himself truth. But what about those times when we are just silent and keep the truth to ourselves? Silence is vague. Somebody can take from your silence whatever they want. That isn't lying, is it? Well, to Augustine it is.

Many of us would probably quibble, saying that we cannot be held responsible for the way someone interprets our silence. We might argue that it would be the same as a listener getting a different meaning than we intended because a word we use has more than one meaning.

The crux of the matter is our intention: neither silence nor vagueness protects us from lying if we intend to deceive our listener. Oh, by the way, should our deception fail, we are still lying because that was what we were trying to do. According to Augustine, even if we speak the truth but know that for some reason it won't be believed and that is what you want, you have lied.

Wow! You would have to be a saint to live up to that standard!

But if we see a lie, the intention to deceive, as a betrayal of our shared search for truth, Augustine's arguments are understandable. Lying is a barrier to that search.

Studies in the dynamics of communication show that people who lie often begin to believe their lies are truth. A sort of cognitive dissonance sets in whereby one's mind becomes so conflicted that truth is unrecognizable. Lying also affects relationships. Once a deception has been practiced in matters where all should be fair and open, confidence can never be completely restored. Indeed, the worst of all deceptions is to think one thing and say another. It cheats both the other and one's self. Other sins are easier after that.

Augustine would be the first to say he knew something about sins. His mother Monica prayed for his conversion, even as he lived a rather earthy life. Yet, he struggled for years with his own search for truth. Finding his answer in God, he then spent the rest of his life trying to live out his belief in the One Eternal Truth.

I suspect that most people aren't ready to swear off the occasional "white lie." But as we travel on our own search, we might reflect a little more not only on what truth is, but Who Truth is. As Augustine prayed: O Omnipotent Good, who cares for each of us as if no one else existed and for all of us as if we were all but one! Your law is truth and truth is Yourself. You made me for Yourself, and my heart is restless until it rests in You.

The Bottom Line

ANTOINNETTE BOSCO
CNS Columnist

Why people like being Catholic

Being Catholic means being part of a family which has given us "a way of seeing," a new book titled "I Like Being Catholic" (Doubleday) shows through the words of scores of people — famous and not famous, clergy and laity.

The book's authors are Michael Leach and Therese Borchard (Doubleday). Borchard, summarizing the conviction of so many others, writes: "My faith opens my eyes to the good and the beautiful in everything around me. Everything that I enjoy in an average day is pregnant with the goodness of God."

Some of the testimony is a sheer, soaring love story, like this by journalist Brian Doyle: "I like being Catholic because Catholicism is about light. Because all of Christ's message can be boiled down to a single word: 'love.' Because I need to believe in a future driven by love and in a life after this life defined wholly by love. Because divinity is everywhere and in everything, and Catholic saints above all others have articulated this with passion and poetry. Because more than any other faith, it is about hope beyond sense."

And a Maryland postal worker, Quentin Cupp, affirms: "I like being Catholic because you are forgiven for everything. You can start all over again."

The authors have assembled an incredible array of affirmations about being Catholic from people living and dead: Martin Scorsese, Maria Shriver, Babe Ruth, Knute Rockne, Bob Newhart, Flannery O'Connor, Father Andrew Greeley and Gary Cooper. Read these, and you know we are relatives, family. "The bloodstream of every Catholic — liberal, conservative or confused — traces back to the same pool of blood at the foot of a cross," writes Leach.

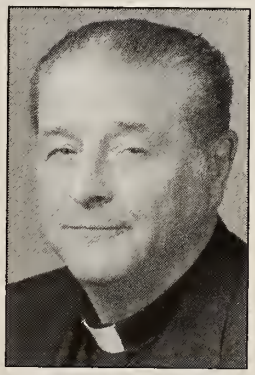
The power of this book is that it helps us remember who we are because of our baptism, which connected us with something magnificent. As life hands us confusion, blows, boredom, temptation, whatever, we sometimes walk away from the "noble family" we belong to, to use the words of the famed convert Clare Booth Luce.

A priest once told me that when a couple came to him saying they wanted a divorce, he would say: "Once you two loved each other so much you wanted to spend the rest of your lives together. Can you remember that? Can you regain that beautiful time?" I feel that if people who have put the Catholic Church aside would read this book, they would remember the original love story they had in their life and perhaps yearn to find it again.

In a final essay about tomorrow's Catholics, Leach sees "signs of new life everywhere" among the young. The church they shape may look different in some ways, but, he affirms, "there is nothing to fear.... The center is Christ, and it is he who draws all things together and makes them new. To be Catholic is to appreciate change and to see the face of Christ in everyone."

The new century of Catholicism, he writes, "may be more filled with faith, hope and charity than any before it."

Question Corner



FATHER JOHN DIETZEN
CNS Columnist

Parents of Homosexual Children

Q. We have four grown children, all raised Catholic with a Catholic education, and we enjoy a good, loving relationship with all of them.

Today, the two who are, and have been, the most gentle and caring, and most spiritual, are self-proclaimed homosexuals. Both of them, one son and one daughter, claim to have known from an early age they were different. As their mother, I believe this is true.

I don't know the details of their personal lives, but does my church tell me that if these two are not able to abstain they are going to hell? How can God, who gave them such beautiful gifts and strong human urges reject them?

I have always sought and loved a God who is compassionate and merciful, a God we cannot understand or know everything about. Have I been wrong?

A. No, you are not wrong. You are thinking and hoping and fearing in the same way as many thousands of other parents in the same circumstances, including Catholics like yourselves.

One of the most caring and helpful documents ever issued by the bishops of the United States was titled "Always Our Children." First published in September 1997 and intended primarily for parents of homosexuals, it considers, as gently and as honestly as possible, many crucial points for families of homosexuals.

It is impossible to go into great detail in this column, but their opening summary of what they desire to offer mothers and fathers is itself constructive. Their message, the bishops affirm, speaks of "accepting yourself, your beliefs and values, your questions and all you may be struggling with at the moment; of accepting and loving your child as a gift of God; and of accepting the full truth of God's revelation about the dignity of the human person and the meaning of human sexuality.

"Within the Catholic moral vision there is no contradiction among these levels of acceptance, for truth and love are not opposed. They are inseparably joined and rooted in one person, Jesus Christ."

God does not love someone any less simply because he or she is homosexual, says the letter, and that love is always and everywhere offered to those who are open to receiving it. St. Paul's well-known passage is quoted that nothing can separate us from the love of God that comes to us in Christ Jesus (Rom. 8:39).

The bishops repeat the church's teaching that same-sex genital behavior is objectively immoral. Whether such activity is subjectively sinful, however, whether an individual actually sins personally in engaging in these activities, depends on several factors.

Traditionally, a grave sin must involve a serious matter, and must be done with full knowledge and deliberate consent. (The Catechism of the Catholic Church discusses these briefly in Nos. 1856-61.) Whether and how these conditions may be present in an individual circumstance is often extremely difficult to unravel, even for the individual involved, let alone for anyone else.

As the bishops significantly note, our sexual orientation, heterosexual or homosexual, is only one component of our self-identity. "Our total personhood," they note, "is more encompassing overall economy," he said. "In exchange for their willingness to work in difficult jobs with little pay and few benefits, they are often mistreated and abused."

See DIETZEN, page 14

Labor Day, from page 1

Commenting on the prosperity of our times, Cardinal Mahony said, "Just beneath the surface of economic prosperity lies the reality of what our bishops have described as three economies living side-by-side.

"A first economy finds many people prospering in this new information age and global marketplace," he said.

"A second economy includes people who are doing well by some measure, but are squeezed by declining incomes, struggle to afford health care, and worry about the cost of a college education or Catholic schools for their children."

In the third economy, he said, there are "a substantial number of people who are left behind and cannot escape poverty."

"For Christians, these realities represent not just troubling statistics, but the struggles of brothers and sisters, members of one human family," Cardinal Mahony said.

"The values of our faith call us to shape economic policies that protect human dignity, promote strong families and create vibrant communities."

Rapid globalization of finance, trade and work — which can cause "both economic growth and economic dislocation" — present a real challenge today, the cardinal said.

"Retraining of dislocated workers to allow them to engage in the developing technologies should be a top priority," he said.

"At the same time, workers, particularly those in the growing service industry, must be assured of their right to choose whether to organize and join unions or other associations to promote and defend their dignity," Cardinal Mahony said.

"The church has long stood and continues to stand with workers and their unions in the struggle for justice, decent wages and a meaningful voice in economic life."

"The values of our faith call us to shape economic policies that protect human dignity, promote strong families and create vibrant communities."

-- Cardinal Roger M. Mahony

Cardinal Mahony said the U.S. bishops' conference is "exploring ways to encourage a Catholic conversation on economic globalization framed by our traditions and values."

The conversation would include business and labor leaders, economists and theologians, "those who shape globalization and those touched by it," he said.

"We must join together — workers and employers, entrepreneurs and union leaders, tradespeople and policy-makers — to build a society that respects each person and their work," the cardinal said.

"This is our continuing challenge and our necessary work as we begin this new millennium."

The full text of the Labor Day statement is available on the Web at www.nccbuscc.org/sdwp/laborday2000.htm.

Dietzen, from page 13

than sexual orientation. Human beings see the appearance, but the Lord looks into the heart."

Sometimes, according to the letter, the best approach may be a "wait and see" attitude, while you try to maintain a trusting relationship and provide various kinds of support, information and encouragement.

The bishops' message includes numerous suggestions and insights which, in my experience, have proven helpful to parents of homosexual children. It is available from the U.S. Catholic Conference Publication and Promotion Service. Phone 800-235-8722. Ask for "Always Our Children," Publication 5-131.

A free brochure answering questions Catholics ask about receiving the holy Eucharist is available by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Father John Dietzen, Box 325, Peoria, IL 61651.

Questions may be sent to Father Dietzen at the same address, or e-mail: jjdietzen@aol.com.

Review, from page 10

President Harry Truman ordering integration of the armed forces and ends with the assassination of the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. in 1968. Highlights in between include school integrations, lynchings, boycotts, lunch counter sit-ins, landmark court decisions, police dogs "tearing human flesh," the Birmingham church bombing that left four little girls dead, assassinations and voter registrations.

Young people will read about high school student Claudette Colvin, who was arrested on March 2, 1955, and jailed for refusing to go to the back of the bus in Montgomery, Ala. She was more than willing to allow her case to test segregation laws, but her lawyers determined that she was too young and vulnerable to bear the burden of the challenge. Then, on Dec. 1, 1955, a soft-spoken, 42-year-old seamstress who had studied nonviolence tactics and was a leader in the local NAACP took her seat on the bus and refused to give it up. While Rosa Parks knew Colvin, writes Turck, she couldn't have known it at the time that "her challenge would change the country forever."

The hands-on projects devised to help children appreciate the civil rights movement and what they themselves can do today to influence current civil rights issues include:

— Organizing a walk to raise money for an organization that is working for justice today.

— Conducting a workshop to learn about nonviolence.

— Enacting a play to re-create the drama of a lunch counter sit-in in the early 1960s in the South.

— Writing a freedom ride journal.

— Sharing a freedom feast with friends.

Turck dedicates her book to the "the people of Cabrini Green, among whom I lived and ... learned from 1967 to 1973, ... and (to) the sister, brothers, priests, and parish of St. Dominic." She stresses that the civil rights movement "is not a part of history, but a part of present-day political reality."

Classifieds

Classified ads bring results! Over 115,000 readers! Over 45,000 homes!
Rates: $.50/word per issue ($10 minimum per issue)
Deadline: 12 noon Wednesday, 9 days before publication date
How to order: Ads may be faxed to (704) 370-3382 or mailed to:
Cindi Feerick, The Catholic News & Herald, 1123 S. Church St., Charlotte, NC 28203.
Payment: Ads may be pre-paid or billed. For information, call (704) 370-3332.

EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES

Childcare Needed: New to Winston-Salem. In need of babysitter for 2 children while Mom (and Dad) in labor. Any day now! One time, on-call commitment for that special person/couple. Call Peggy or Steve Morse at (336)794-0007.

Director of Adult Catholic Enrichment/Order of Christian Initiation: Holy Family Catholic Church of Marietta seeks a full-time salaried Director for Adult Catholic Enrichment (ACE) and the Order of Christian Initiation (OCI) programs. Applicants should have leadership experience in ACE/OCI areas and/or have religious education degreed background suitable to develop high quality programs and volunteer assistance in the community. Must be practicing Catholic. If interested, please submit resume and cover letter to Ret Siefferman, Director of Religious Education at Holy Family Catholic Church, 3401 Lower Roswell Rd., Marietta, GA 30068. Fax (770) 578-0475. Inquire at (770) 973-7400, ext. 21 with questions.

Director of Music: Full-time position as Director of Music for growing parish of 650 families who love to sing! Responsibilities include: Liturgy preparation and planning; playing for 5 weekend masses, holy days, funerals. Weddings negotiated; directing and developing adult mixed choir; organizing and directing children's choir; attend conferences and workshops for continued education and renewal; and attend weekly parish staff meetings. Competitive salary and benefits. Experience a plus, but musical accompaniment skills (piano & organ) a must. Send resume to Search Committee, Sacred Heart Church, 128 N. Fulton St., Salisbury, NC 28144, or fax to 704-647-0126.

Director of Religious Education: Holy Family Catholic Church in Marietta seeks a full-time salaried Director for its Religious Education programs. Practical leadership experience in the continuing development of a full range of primary, secondary, young adult and adult based Religious Education programs is essential. The ability to encourage a spirit of volunteerism to meet broad community needs is a must. Should be competent in managing all educational levels and administrative staff functions. Must have bachelors and/or advanced degree in education and/or religious training. Must be practicing Catholic. Holy Family's Religious Education programs serve a multi-cultural community. Fluency in Spanish or equivalent background experience would be a useful asset. If interested, please submit resume and cover letter to Ret Siefferman, Director of Religious Education, Holy Family Catholic Church, 3401 Lower Roswell Rd., Marietta, GA 30068. Fax (770) 578-0475. Inquire at (770) 973-7400, ext. 21 with questions.

Director of Music Ministry: Holy Infant Catholic Church is in search of a full-time Director of Music. Located in Durham, North Carolina, a dynamic and growing area of the country near Research Triangle Park, this Vatican II parish consists of 900 households that are committed to ongoing liturgical renewal. Holy Infant Parish embraces its call to be hospitable, inclusive and Christ-centered. This position works closely with the Pastor and a collaborative and supportive staff. Requires a minimum of a bachelor's degree in a relevant field although a master's degree is preferred. Must have music performance skill (e.g. piano, voice); choral directing; cantor training; knowledge of Catholic rites and rituals. Available no later than November 1, 2000. Salary commensurate with education and experience. Benefits package included. Send resume to: DOMM Search Committee, Holy Infant Catholic Church, 5000 Southpark Dr., Durham, NC 27713. Fax 919/544-1799. References required at time of application for consideration for this position.

House Cleaners Needed: $12 per hour. Are the kids back in school? Do you want to set your own schedule? Work 9-30 hours per week Monday - Friday. Call Maid in Heaven. (704) 904-8326.

Teaching Assistants: St. Patrick's School in Charlotte is accepting applications for part-time teaching assistants. Available immediately. Please contact school principal, Mrs. Angela Montague, (704) 333-3174 for interview.

PRAYERS & INTENTIONS

Thanks to St. Rita of Cascia for a favor received. P.M.

Vatican condemns use of embryos for stem-cell research as immoral, unnecessary

By JOHN NORTON
Catholic News Service

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — Calling it immoral and unnecessary, the Vatican condemned the production and use of human embryos for stem-cell research, despite its humanitarian aims.

In a seven-page statement released Aug. 24, the Vatican's Pontifical Academy for Life encouraged adult stem-cell research, which does not pose ethical problems and which has seen recent published successes.

The Vatican's statement followed an Aug. 23 decision by the U.S. government to release federal funds for embryonic stem-cell research projects. In mid August, England's chief medical officer recommended allowing scientists to obtain stem cells by cloning human embryos, a process known as "therapeutic cloning."

Stem cells are basic undifferentiated cells that replicate repeatedly, producing cells that can form various body tissues. Because of the cells' ability to generate different body tissues, scientists believe they hold promise in treating various diseases, especially the degenerative diseases of age.

The Vatican statement said the production and use of embryos to harvest stem cells amounts to viewing a human life — the embryo — as "a simple accumulation of cells" rather than a subject with rights.

"As a 'human individual,' it has a right to its own life; and, therefore, any intervention which is not for the good of that embryo is a detrimental act to that right," the statement said.

"As a 'human individual,' it has a right to its own life; and, therefore, any intervention which is not for the good of that embryo is a detrimental act to that right."

The process of removing the stem cells "seriously and irreparably damages the human embryo, cutting its development short," the statement said, making it "a seriously immoral act, and therefore, gravely prohibited."

Citing the same ethical concerns, the statement explicitly condemned "therapeutic cloning," by which embryos are produced for stem-cell harvesting.

Other common sources of embryonic stem cells are embryos left over from "in vitro" fertilization and frozen embryos originally created for use by infertile couples.

The Vatican said it was immoral for scientists to use embryonic stem cells even if the scientists were not involved in removing the cells from the embryo. Doing so involves "a close material cooperation in the production and manipulation of human embryos," it said.

Speaking on Vatican Radio Aug. 24, Bishop Elio Sgreccia, vice president of the Pontifical Academy for Life, criticized the U.S. government's decision to fund embryonic stem-cell research and said it represented "a yielding to the pressures of the industries that want to commercialize human material."

He said existing U.S. laws that prohibit federal funds for research involving the destruction of human embryos were "a hypocrisy."

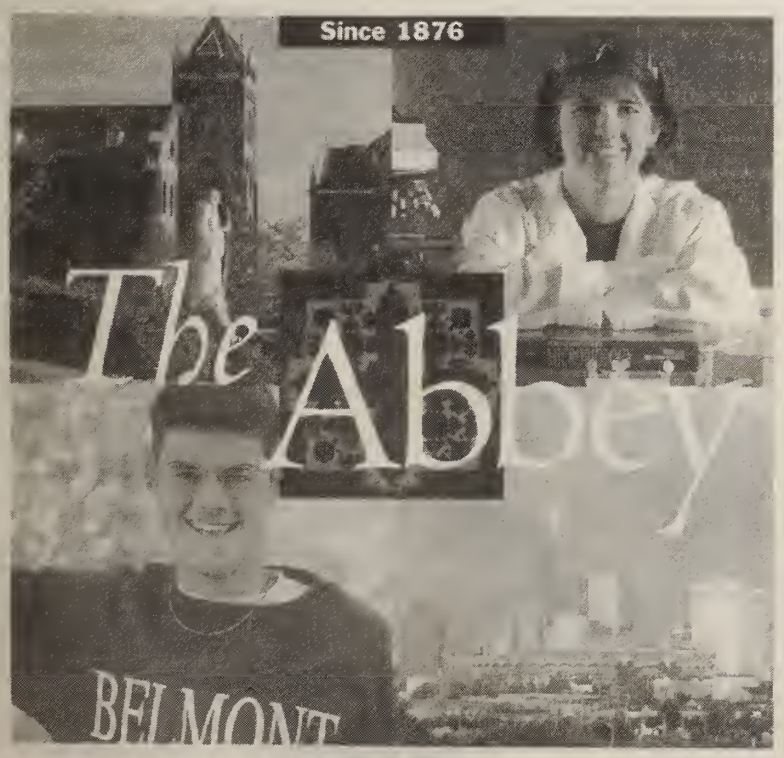
"When frozen embryos are collected (for stem cells), they are destroyed by these researchers. They, too are human embryos," he said.

Pastoral care training sessions scheduled

CHARLOTTE — Those currently involved in volunteerism or those who would like to become involved in the ministry will have the opportunity to attend free training sessions in pastoral care for the elderly in October. The program, sponsored by Catholic Social Services, Elder Ministry, St. Gabriel Church in Charlotte and St. Matthew Church in Charlotte, is designed to train volunteers to provide pastoral care to the homebound and elderly men and women living in retirement facilities, assisted living facilities, nursing homes and memory-impaired facilities.

Throughout the four-week training in two-hour sessions from 7-9 p.m., volunteers will be able to learn about parish ministry from B.J. Dengler, pastoral coordinator; Eucharistic ministry from Monsignor John McSweeney, pastor of St. Matthew Church; senior sensitivity and confidentiality from Bernadette Ford, a local gerontologist; and compliance and consistency from Mercy Sister Jeanne Marie Kienast, pastoral associate at St. Matthew Church.

The training sessions will be held at St. Gabriel Church, 3016 Providence Rd., in the ministry center every Monday beginning October 9. For more information about the required registration, call (704) 364-5431.



Belmont Abbey College
The Catholic College of the Carolinas

- Belmont Abbey College's net price, net of average college-sponsored grant, places the College among the most affordable Catholic Colleges in the country
- Located near Charlotte USA, home to some 400 international companies, the NFL Carolina Panthers and the NBA Charlotte Hornets
- New concentration in International Business, along with 17 majors including pre-professional programs.
- Eleven NCAA Division II athletic teams: Men's baseball, basketball, cross country, golf, soccer and tennis. Women's basketball, cross country, soccer, softball and tennis

Call toll free 888.BAC.0110 or www.belmontabbeycollege.edu and click the Admission link.

Make a private retreat in the woods at
New Creation Monastery

Boonville, NC

Plan a weekend for up to 6 people for only $200 - 90 minutes north of Charlotte, 30 minutes northwest of Winston-Salem. Call Duke Oxford at (704) 846-6816.

"All that matters is that each of us becomes a NEW CREATION in Christ"
Galatians 6:15

VGA & SVGA Refurbished Computer Monitors

14" — $20-$25
15" — $35-$38
17" — $70-$125
20" Call for details
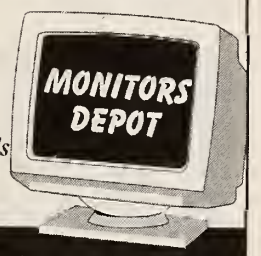
30 day warranty

Over 2000 monitors in stock!



O.C. STAFFORD ELECTRONIC SERVICE & DEVELOPMENT COMPANY
408 Banner Ave., Greensboro, NC 27401
E-mail: urpac408@worldnet.att.net
(336) 274-9917

Schools
Institutions
Daycares
Churches
Sales Offices
Recreational Facilities
Banks
Medical Facilities

Offering turn-key and professional solutions with Custom Modular Buildings to meet your growing and changing needs!

MODULARCORP

1803 East Wendover Ave., Suite E
Greensboro, NC 27405
(336) 275-8274 (336) 275-8649 fax
E-mail: modular@greensboro.com

Daniel Murray, President — St. Pius X Parishioner

Member of: MODULAR BUILDING INSTITUTE

Visit our Web site! www.modularcorp.com

Servite priests prays for healing of body, soul

By JOEY REISTROFFER
Correspondent

HENDERSONVILLE — A wheelchair-bound woman suffering from lupus was brought up to the altar at Immaculate Conception Catholic Church last Wednesday night. After a special blessing by Servite Father Peter Mary Rookey, she stood up, took a few tentative steps, then walked back down the aisle, pushing her wheelchair.

Only the Lord knows whether she was cured, but Father Rookey's healing Mass in Hendersonville Aug. 23 certainly bolstered her faith.

About 1,000 people from Tennessee to Florida flocked to see Father Rookey in the North Carolina hill country on Wednesday. They came with aches and pains. They came with terminal diseases. They came on crutches, and they came with canes.

They had heard about this Servite priest who has been celebrating healing Masses all over the world for decades.

He did not disappoint in Hendersonville.

He described the curing of a Down syndrome child in Belfast, Northern Ireland. He also talked about once blessing a blind girl in Northern Ireland, who then regained her sight.

These are the stories that brought the crowd of believers to Immaculate Conception.

The day before, Father Rookey had filled the pews at St. Thomas Aquinas Catholic Church in Charlotte. He also packed St. Matthew Catholic Church in Charlotte on Monday.

Photo by Joey Reistroffer

Father Peter Mary Rookey blesses a pilgrim during a healing Mass Aug. 23 at Immaculate Conception Church in Hendersonville. Father Rookey, a Servite priest, celebrated three healing Masses in the diocese recently. He is popular throughout the world for a healing ministry he brings to many.

"They come looking for healing — either physical or spiritual," said Jim Hrechko, Father Rookey's assistant. "And they stay until the bitter end."

In Hendersonville, the service began at 6:30 p.m. with Father Rookey leading the Servite Rosary, the Seven Sorrows of Mary.

Then he celebrated Mass, followed by witness testimonies to healings and finally the laying on of hands. The gathering did not wind down until 11 p.m.

Through it all, Father Rookey kept the evening fresh with his humorous wit and his humble appeal to the Lord.

During the Seven Sorrows of Mary, he said, "My mother and father had 13 sorrows, and I was one of the worst ones, I'm afraid."

One woman leaned over and said, "You can tell he thoroughly enjoys what he's doing."

Father Rookey brings people closer to God.

"It was an enlightening experience," Neil Boland described the healing Mass. "It shows the power of the Lord."

Beatrice Ferrenger, who is being treated for cancer, agreed. "I've been to several healing Masses. This one, by far, is the best. It inspired me. I've never met anyone like him before."

Rev. Mr. Patrick Crosby said Father Rookey's healing Mass "was awesome." He was close by when Father Rookey laid hands on the woman with lupus. "He kept touching her legs and asked if she could feel warmth in her legs. Finally he asked if she wanted to get up, and she said yes," Rev. Mr. Crosby said.

Father Rookey, however, takes no credit. He gives it to the Lord. "The spirit was powerful tonight," he said. "The spirit does all the work, not me. I'm almost 84 (years old.)"

Yet for almost five hours, Father Rookey blessed people seeking healing and anointed them with oil.

Once blessed, many in the crowd fell backward in what Father Rookey called a "resting of the spirit."

In this state, he said, they are fully conscious, intimately touched by the healing power of the Holy Spirit, and experience great peace and restfulness.

"Many times there can be a physical healing," Father Rookey explained, "but many times a healing won't take place until later. Let Jesus be your guest tonight. Let Him work His work in you."

Then he urged the people at Immaculate Conception to "be humble like a little child" and have courage, saying "Courage, thy faith has made ye whole."

Perhaps courage, faith in the Lord and a humble spirit made the woman with lupus whole.

Only God knows for sure, and miracles do happen in His name.

Groce
FUNERAL HOME & CREMATION SERVICE
1401 Patton Ave. Asheville, NC (828) 252-3535
72 Long Shoals Road Arden, NC (828) 687-3530
Assuring Absolute Integrity
Asheville's Catholic Funeral Directors
Dale Groce • John Prock
Toll-free (888) 874-3535
Pre-arrangements and obituaries on-line at www.grocefuneralhome.com

We'll beat any advertised price... Let us prove it!
The LaPointe Dealerships
Serving Charlotte with integrity for over 39 years!
MITSUBISHI MOTORS
6951 E. Independence Blvd.
531-3131
HONDA
7001 E. Independence Blvd.
535-4444
Frank LaPointe, President, Member of St. Gabriel Church

DOMINICAN SISTERS OF HAWTHORNE
New York • Ohio • Pennsylvania • Massachusetts • Georgia • Minnesota

We are a Catholic Congregation of religious women living in community. We take vows of poverty, chastity and obedience, and pursue a deep prayer life. Our unified apostolate witnesses to the sanctity of life at all stages. We nurse incurable cancer patients in seven modern nursing homes. All care is free. Many who enter our Community have no prior nursing experience.

Christ, Himself, invites us to imitate the Good Samaritan who, on seeing a suffering man... "had compassion... bound up his wounds... and took care of him." Pope John Paul II

Interested women are invited to visit throughout the year.
For more information: call or write, Sr. Teresa Marie, O.P.,
Dominican Sisters of Hawthorne, 600 Linda Avenue, Hawthorne, NY 10532 • Tel: (914) 769-4794 or (914) 769-0114
Visit our WEB site – http://www.hawthorne-dominicans.org
Name _____ Phone ( ) _____
Address _____
City _____ State _____ Zip _____

Bridgeport National
Bindery, Inc.
APR. 2002