Life comes first. After that knowledge. And the Bible is more a book of life than it is a book of knowledge. A few scholars apply their knowledge, and say the Book is weak, waning and must fail. A million believers hug it to their hearts, apply it to their own lives, and declare in deed and daring that the Book is the Word of God and must live. The former may be your higher critics; but the latter are your highest critics. The final appeal in this world below is not knowledge and thought, but love and life. That which increases my love and deepens my life I will have, cling to and abide by, knowledge, or no knowledge.

I passed along the road by a humble cottage the other Sunday afternoon. In the lengthening shadows sat an aged pair, the man and his wife, rich in experience and ripe now for eternity. The husband bent over the pages, large printed pages, of the well worn family Bible. Contentment was there, for they read from the Book the words which were to them eternal life. I said then, I say yet, that here are the highest critics of the Bible on earth, and the arguments of higher criticism must all go down before the demands of love and the requirements of life. When the shams are thrown aside, and the stern realities have come, then the Bible is called for, and it responds invariably with its resources of boundless sympathy, matchless pity and infinite love.

This writer was called to see a dying man awhile ago. The man was rational, looked death in the face like a hero, and had no fear. We drew from a near by table a much handled book, and turning to the twenty-third Psalm began to read, "The Lord is my shepherd: I shall not want. He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: he leadeth me beside the still waters. He restoreth my soul: he leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for his name's sake. Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me: thy rod and thy staff they comfort me." I looked up and the good man's eyes filled with tears. "You have no idea," said he, "what a strength and stay those words are to my soul now as I walk through the valley of the shadow of death." I said then, I say yet, that men cannot dispense with the Book and its word. It is truly a light unto our pathway. The higher critics may try to darken and becloud it, but these highest critics, these souls that breathe and burn it into their lives, know, feel, realize that it is a light unto the pathway, a light that burns brighter even as the pathway leads down into the valley of the shadow of death.

We can put up with the rant of the higher critics as long as the life and the love of the highest critics abide with and in the Book.

---

ELON COLLEGE CATALOGUE.

---

The Catalogue Number of the Elon College Bulletin for 1909 has been published and is being distributed. We have received and read the Bulletin with genuine pleasure and profit.

Many people look upon a college catalogue much as they do a medical almanac, or government statistical table, that is to say, a dry-as-dust affair. Now in truth it is anything else on earth but that. A college catalogue represents, as a rule, the very finest and best work of the very finest and best scholars. The language is chosen and chaste, the sentences are brief, bristling and comprehensive, and all matters treated are dignified, concise, and to the point. Some of the very finest reading we have ever found is in a college catalogue. Whether a man, woman, boy or girl, is going to college or not, has been to college or will never go, makes no sort of difference. The college is a factor, one of the most important and powerful in all our civilization, and no one can know what the colleges are doing, planning or purposing to do unless one reads the college catalogue.

Why, a college catalogue is the best free reading that ever came to a man's table. This is one great blessing, benefit and favor colleges confer on the public, they issue catalogues for free distribution and for the enlightenment of the public.

The present number of the Elon Catalogue is no exception to the general rule of such good publications, save in its excellence and superiority. It is no discredit to previous numbers to say this is the best the college has sent out, and that is saying much. It is a splendid book of nearly one hundred pages, and from College Calendar to Index there is not a dull page in it. One who will read this book will get such a grasp of what Elon is doing, and how it is growing, and what it is planning, as one can get from no other source whatever. This is indeed a dignified publication with a high motive and a holy aim in view. Young men and women who aspire to a college course should read it for encouragement and inspiration; others should read it for useful information and valuable facts contained therein. President Moffitt of Elon College will, we feel sure, send a copy to any one on receipt of a card with request and address. So valuable a publication cannot otherwise be purchased for a penny.

We congratulate the Elon College Faculty on its 1909 catalogue number and twentieth annual announcement. Such publications cannot be issued and sent forth in vain.

---

—Bishop Gallaway, a leading pulpit orator, and the most prominent of the Bishops of the M. E. Church, South, died of pneumonia at his home, Jackson, Miss., May 12.

SUFFOLK LETTER.

I have just spent a few days with Rev. H. W. Elder, the champion church builder of the Southern Christian Convention. He has just completed his seventeenth church building. It is located on Waverly Terrace in Columbus, Georgia. It is of brick, cathedral glass windows, seated with opera chairs, with lifting doors separating auditorium and Sunday-school department. I presume four hundred could be seated when the whole space is open. The value of the property is estimated at eight thousand dollars, and is located in what promises to be a fine part of the city. The debt on the property is about fourteen hundred dollars and brother Elder assumed this himself so that the house could be dedicated last Sunday. The services continued till Wednesday night with increasing interest, but other duties compelled us to close at that time.

Columbus and its suburbs contain about sixty-five thousand people. It is laid out on a magnificent scale, the avenues being wide and straight for four or five miles in length. A row of trees along the sidewalk then a wide space in grass and another row of trees; then a paved section; then a wide space of grass in the center bordered by rows of trees through which plat of grass the street car lines run; then the other side or half of the avenue finished out in the same way. The streets run at right angles to these avenues. I have seen no city laid out better or more beautiful than Columbus. The Chattahoochee river and cotton make Columbus. Three stone dams within three miles and two of them in the city, harness the never-failing power of the river. The upper dam is seventy-five feet high and generates many hundred horsepower of electricity. The great mills become producers of wealth under the energy of this stream. Much cotton is handled here besides what is converted into thread and cloth. From these falls on to the gulf the river is navigable. Many other kinds of manufactures are carried on. A good street car and railroad service add to the present activity and future prospects of the city. It is growing rapidly and is not overchurched. Good schools, news papers, and trade complete the interesting city life.

Rev. G. O. Lankford is pastor of Highland Christian church in Columbus, and the church in Girard just across the river in Alabama. He is holding a meeting in that church this week assisted by Rev. B. F. Young. It was my good fortune to meet Revs. E. M. Carter, G. O. Lankford, B. F. Young, Whit Elder, and to eat at brother Lankford's table. My home was with brother J. L. Redmond and wife near the church; and brother Lankford and his wife occupy a part of the same house. Their kindness was hearty and Christian during my stay.

L. G. Biggers of the Columbus Ledger said many nice things about the meeting and published what I said on Sunday in explanation of the Principles of the Christian Church. In consequence of this R. v. Dr. Hugh F. Oliver, pastor of the Baptist church at Buena Vista, Ga., thirty-six miles away, came to hear me two nights, and seemed to enjoy the meetings very much. We all enjoyed his coming and his association, and felt highly honored by his presence and good words. Other ministers were there and took part. News papers can do much good by favorable notice of religious services and giving their influence to the cause of Christ.

I went home with Rev. H. W. Elder on Thursday and preached to a good congregation at night. Brother Elder and his good wife have an interesting family of six children. One son, James Staley, will graduate in the High School next week and will probably enter Elon in the fall.

I left Richland for Savannah at twelve o'clock that night and arrived at nine o'clock Friday morning. I went to Savannah to visit Dr. M. X. Corbin whose father was a Christian minister in Virginia, and who was himself the first convert in our church in Suffolk after I became pastor. He still holds membership in our church and sends a fifteen dollar check every Easter. He is a successful doctor in Savannah, keeps two automobiles, wastes no time, and is one of the prominent physicians of the city. He carried me over the city, over the twenty-six mile race course, where the great automobile races were held last fall; to Bethesda, an orphanage founded by Rev. Geo. Whitfield in 1739, and which is said to be the oldest in the world. It has been conducted without cessation for one hundred and seventy years and is supported by members who pay five dollars a year. It has two thousand members at the present time and some other revenue. He carried me to the Hermitage, a famous rice plantation on the Savannah river above the city. The place of the mansion, grounds shaded by live oaks, the orderly rows of cottages for the slaves, the widespread fields where the rice was cultivated, all tell of happy and prosperous years when master and slave lived, labored, and dwelt together in peace. Emancipation has changed it all into a solitary ruin almost as desolate as the art-ruins of Greece. The great river rolls by, the great oaks shade the grounds, a few poor negroes inhabit a house or two, but the glory of that civilization is gone forever. The place ought to be preserved as a splendid ruin of conditions that can return no more.

The roads of Chatham county are perhaps the best in the United States. No doubt that is why they were chosen for the great auto races. They are built of gravel brought nearly three hundred miles. The mixture is so perfect that a good rain, after the roads are graded and the gravel put on, puts the road in perfect condition. In the races some of the autos made two miles a minute or one hundred and twenty miles an hour; that will give some idea of the perfection of the county roads around Savannah. Good roads, including railroads and steamboat lines, have done more to develop the world than any other one thing. Good roads increase the intelligence, the intercourse, the wealth, and the unity of mankind. They reduce distance, time, expense, and inconvenience, and increase values more than taxes. One great enterprise for the next hundred years will be roadbuilding. Savannah has hers already built.

I visited also, Dr. Oscie Brinkley of Nansemond county, Va., the only skin specialist in Savannah; Dr. Lewis A. Hines of Suffolk, and nephew of Rev. James W. Wellons, who is an expert and very successful optician; and Hamlin Saunders, another Nansemond county young man.

I left Savannah on a midnight train after spending fourteen hours very delightfully and profitably with Dr. Corbin and his dear family of a wife and four children. I am now trying to write as our train is rocking and hastening through the pine hills of North Carolina. The world grows upon me as I see more of it. The Book grows upon me as I read more of it, and life grows upon me as I live more of it; but the future of the church may grow into the limitless and endless in Christ.

W. W. Staley.

—Bro: R. S. Petty's appeal, elsewhere in The Sun this week, for help to finish paying the indebtedness of our Greensboro church is a worthy one and should have liberal and hearty response. Our Greensboro brethren have wrought well, sacrificed most nobly, and accomplished wonders. They want to dedicate their handsome house of worship clear of debt first Sunday in June and the response of friends will make such an event possible. Read what Bro. Petty says and feel if you can the deep need that moves him to make such an appeal.

THE CHRISTIAN ORPHANAGE DEPARTMENT.

Board of Trustees.

Rev. J. O. Atkinson, D. D., Pres., Elon College, N. C.

Rev. I. W. Johnson, Sec., Suffolk, Va.

Hon. W. H. Carroll, Burlington, N. C.

L. M. Clymer, Greensboro, N. C.

C. D. West, Newport News, Va.

Elijah Moffitt, Esq., Asheboro, N. C.

G. S. Watson, M. D., Elon College, N. C.

Treasurer—Prof. J. T. Cobb.

Superintendent—Jas. L. Foster, Elon College, N. C.

CHILDREN'S CORNER.

The Band of Cousins.

Jas. L. Foster, Sec., Elon College, N. C.

"He that hath pity on the poor lendeth unto the Lord, and his good deed will He pay him again."—Prov. 19:17.

Total Reported Last Week $3077.22
Monthly Dues

Charles E. Newman, Jr. . . .10
Hannah Clare Newman . . .10
Annie Pearl Way . . . . .10
Helen S Foster . . . . .10
T. Clifford Foster . . . . .05
Susie R Watson . . . . .10

Monthly S. S. Offering

Shallow Well, N. C. . . . 1.58
Youngsville, N. C. . . . .1.00
Wake Chapel, N. C. . . . 2.06
Palm Ct. Greensboro, N. C. 1.46
Timber Ridge, Va.

April and May . . . . 2.50
Wentworth, N. C. . . . .2.60
Mt. Auburn, N. C. . . . .1.00
Graham, N. C. . . . .1.00

Special Offering.

Mrs. Bettie Cates on support of children . . . . .3.00
Mt. Auburn, N. C. . . . .6.44
Sale of 1 bu. S. . . . .70

Amt. 17th week, 1909 . . . $23.89

Total . . . . . $3101.11

Elon College, N. C., May 12, 1909.

My Dear Children and Friends:

We have a nice report this week. We are glad to have amounts under each division (children, Sunday-schools, and specials). It shows that our work touches all departments of the church. Indeed the orphanage work is becoming one of the most hopeful fields of Christian service. We thank these children, schools and friends for their faithful help.

The following donations have been received:

Bros. Geo. and S. Y. Spain, water-mellon seeds, Manson, N. C.; The Proximity Manufacturing Company, Greensboro, N. C., 150 yards of heavy overall goods for our "Farmer boys." This indeed is a splendid gift. It will furnish our boys working clothes for 12 months. The Messrs. Cone, who own and operate this mill gave us a similar gift in 1908, and we wrote asking to buy, but the goods were shipped "prepaid" and "no charges." These gentlemen prove their sympathy for the orphan child by their liberal gifts. We thank them sincerely.

Give us a liberal report for next week and many nice letters. Fondly yours,
Uncle Jim.

Henderson, N. C., April 30, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:

We are lonesome to-night. Daddy is away. We are both fond of daddy. He makes such a good horse. He doesn't whip either. Mother does some times. Hannah Clare has on short dresses and enjoys playing with her pretty bootees Aunt Anna Apt sent her. We send our dimes and love. Hope to see you one month from now. Lovingly,

Charles E. Newman, Jr.,
Hannah Clare Newman.

Well, if Baby Hannah keeps "growing" she'll be grown before we get a peep at her. Hurry and come. We want to see you both.

Sanford, N. C., May 6, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:

Here I come with my dime for May. Our school is out and I am having a good time. We have a little calf. We named it Star. I close with much love to you and all the cousins.

Annie Pearl Way.

A pretty name for the baby calf Annie. Wish you could see our little calves.

Crewe, Va., May 7, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:

Here I come with my little mite. Hope the little orphans are enjoying these lovely spring days. Enclosed find 15 cents. Love to you and the cousins
Your little niece,

Helen S. Foster,
T. Clifford Foster.

House cleaning is our favorite occupation these days Helen, but base-ball and "I spy" a little more so.

Toro, Va., May 7, 1909

Dear Uncle Jim:

I will write and send my dime for May. My school will close the last Friday in this month.

With best wishes for you and the orphans, I remain,
Yours truly,

Susie Roach Watson.

Then what a time! Vacation days are bright for the little folks. Tea parties and doll babies under big oak trees is a pretty picture, isn't it?

DO YOU WANT TO GO TO COLLEGE? If so we can help you. We have already put hundreds through college by means of our plan. Write today for full information regarding our offer of a free scholarship in any school or college. Address, Robert J. Sherlock, 29-31 East 22nd Street, New York City.

YOUNG MEN! If you want to know why you should become telegraph operators and what school to attend, write to SOUTHERN SCHOOL OF TELEGRAPHY, Newman, Ga., for free Catalogue "A." EVERY BOY should read it. Positions positively guaranteed.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.
Address: F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, Ohio.
Sold by Druggists, 75c.

FREE DEAFNESS CURE.

A remarkable offer by one of the leading ear specialists in this country, who will send two month's medicine free to prove his ability to cure Deafness, Head Noises, and Catarrh. Address Dr. G. M. Branaman, 1100 Walnut Street, Kansas City, Mo.

SPRING TIME.

The time for gardening is here and you need garden tools. We can supply you at lowest prices.

Poultry Wire.

The best assorted stock in the county Four different styles and weight.

Come and See.

Remember plumbing and bath room fixtures, a speciality. You will find us on Davis St. third door from Post office.

BURLINGTON HARDWARE CO.

PIEDMONT

"IS THE BEST."
Write for Catalogue
Piedmont Business College
Lynchburg, Va.

USE OUR MONEY AS A SNAP For LIVE ARGUMENTS

Establish a profitable and lasting business of your own. Be your own boss. We furnish everything, including Sample Outfit valued at $3.50. We began with nothing; are now worth $100,000; what we did you can do; we will gladly help you. Big Catalog, Plans and Sample Outfit now ready and ALL FREE. Write now. Consolidated Portrait & Frame Co.
200-19 W. 4th St. N. Y. C.

Self-Sharpening Shears

Always ready to cut anything from wet tissue paper to heavy cloth. New simple idea. Cuts clean and sharp to the points of blades. Will last for years. Don't pay 25c for shears but get this one mailed to your address on receipt of 50c. Positively guaranteed.

(Begun on page 7.)

do not deny any of the points to which I had called their attention:—

“We ***** are glad to have your favorable opinion of the American Standard Bible. With regard to the typographical errors about which you write, we would say that these have all been discovered previously, and the plates corrected so that the future editions will be all right.”

Instead of shutting up the Sunday-schools to the new version, if it were not impracticable on account of space, it would be better to print still other versions: for one translation is a valuable commentary on another, because of comparison; different theologians having different ideas of the truth, and of the meaning of the original tongue. It is no uncommon thing for me in my own study, to examine the Roman Catholic version, the Baptist version, Alexander Campbell's version, or others.

But to print many versions in the lesson leaves is evidently impracticable. Therefore the S. S. editor does well to print the two which are especially before the public:—the old one because of the people's love for it, and the new one because of its superiority, and the consequent probability that it will make its way to general use, gradually displacing the old.

But the trustees must be governed, not by prejudice, either of scholars or non-scholars; but by business reasons, where such reasons are righteous. And there can be no question that the throwing out of the old translation would result in business loss: for many schools would immediately throw out our literature, and adopt some other, containing the old version. And the profits on our S. S. literature now help the House to bear important losses in other departments. The trustees are correct in sustaining the S. S. editor in printing both versions.

Dayton, Ohio. J. J. Summerhell.

HIS CALL TO THE MINISTRY.

Awhile since in traveling we fell in with the Rev. T. T. Mutchler, M. D., Corresponding Secretary of the Philadelphia Sabbath Association. Naturally we got into conversation, which led to some questions as to his giving up medicine and entering the ministry. The answer was so interesting that we publish it. This is what he said:

My Call to The Ministry.

“Medicine was my chosen profession. I graduated in 1871 and began practicing in Broadway, New Jersey, and succeeded in building up a good practice. For more than two years previous to December, 1876, I was convinced of my call to the ministry.

When the question of entering the ministry was thought of, I realized that the doors of the conferences were crowded with young men, well equipped for the work, whose education had been directly in the line of the ministry, while my education had been in the line of medicine; then I was married, had three children, had a home, and a practice paying me from $2,500 to $3,000 per year, and my friends urged me to remain where I was and not to think of entering the ministry.

Notwithstanding this, as time passed the call to leave the work I enjoyed so well and enter the ministry became more and more positive. At last, almost in despair, having in a great measure lost my appetite and power to sleep, I was brought face to face with the fact that I was disobeying God.

My conviction for sin and my consciousness of forgiveness when converted were not more clear and positive than my call to the ministry. To doubt the latter was to doubt the former. After more than two years of struggle, my temporal interests bidding me stay where I was and my sense of duty before God calling me to the ministry, I yielded and decided to go out, not knowing what was before me.

I sold my practice, instruments, medicine and home, placing my all in the hands of Him who had called me, believing that He who made clear my duty would open the way for me. I procured the necessary books and began my preparation for entering the Conference. One morning, while calling upon Rev. Dr. Ellison, then stationed at Washington, N. J., after we had talked over my experience and what I had done, he said, “I am impressed with the thought that there's work for you in the Philadelphia Conference, and if you desire me to, I will give you a letter of introduction to the Rev. Wm. B. Wood, D. D., presiding elder of the Lehigh District in that conference.”

As I was awaiting orders and expecting the Lord to open a way for me, I gladly took the letter and placed it in the hands of Dr. Wood. After he had read it and heard of my experience he said, “I have an appointment on my district, namely, the Delaware Water Gap, a place the pastor appointed last Spring has left in disgust. The sheriff is about to sell the property on account of a mortgage debt, a constable has levied on the goods in the parsonage and is about to sell them for debts. If you care to go to such a charge you can, but be sure and take enough money along to pay your return fare and go early enough in the day so you can return the same day if they will not keep you over night. I will allow you to go and take charge of the place if you desire to do so, but I will not appoint you to it, as I would not want in later years to have it said I appointed any man to a charge in the condition in which that one is.”

I felt it was the Lord's leading and went gladly. They received me with as hearty a welcome as could be expected under the circumstances. This was in December, 1876. Before Conference in March, 1877, we had a good revival. Our creditors gave us time in which to pay the debts. The members were encouraged. God blessed us in every line so that when I returned from Conference that March, we all went to work. We paid $1,400 on the mortgage debt, paid off the small debt and they gave me $360 for the year as salary. We were deprived of many of the comforts of life, but a happier man than I was that year could not be found.

I was returned the following Conference and remained with that people as long as the time limit would permit. The years were years of sacrifice, but the consciousness of having listened to the Lord's call and of doing his will compensated for all the sacrifices involved, and now, after more than thirty years, I look back with great satisfaction to the time when I received and obeyed ‘My call to the Ministry.’”

To follow conscience is to overtake real happiness. To fight against the Spirit of God is to commit spiritual suicide. The foregoing testimony applies to all situations where men do what they see to be right.—N. Y. Christian Advocate.

—Dispatches of May 13 give this triumph of inventive genius: The Omaha Electrical Show was last night lighted by wireless current, this being the first time that a lighting current has been sent without wires. The current came from the Government wireless station at Fort Omaha, five miles from the auditorium where the show was being held. There were 4,000 incandescent lamps and for four hours those lamps were lighted by the wireless current. The system by which the experiment was made was discovered of Dr. Frederick Miller, wireless expert of the Union Pacific Railroad.

—Several churches in our neighboring town of Burlington are planning improvements and additions to their houses of worship. The News says, among them being the Christian church, which contemplates adding Sunday-school rooms.

HELP WANTED.

Dear Friends:—On the first Sabbath in June we wish to dedicate our Christian Church here in Greensboro. Our membership, which is not large or financially strong, raised between eleven and twelve hundred dollars toward the balance due of $1600.00. And to get the required balance we are compelled to ask our brethren in our various congregations to help us. This assistance and what we can get miscellaneously here in the city is our only hope. I have written some of our friends and others of our congregation are writing personal letters. Let us have your help without much persuasion. It is your church and ours, probably for your son and daughter to use in worship. Probably you will live here and surely for you when in our city. Understand we are asking nothing of the conference. The congregation has assumed the debt, but we need help. To give will be your pride as well as ours. If we fail you will feel it, we will be distressed. This is a critical moment. Help is essential. It will be a good investment as we can in return help our churches and institutions. Mail your contribution to S. A. Caviness or to the writer.

Yours fraternally,
Greensboro, N. C. R. S. Petty.

ELON COLLEGE NOTES.

Miss Bertha Isely of class 1907, who has been teaching in Indiana, spent some time with friends here last week.

Prof. W. A. Harper returned Sunday evening from Damascus, where he delivered a memorial address.

Miss Alma Newman of class 1901, who has been teaching music at Clio, Ala., is home for vacation.

Miss Maud Taylor of Semora, N. C., of class 1905 is here for commencement season.

Miss H. J. Allen of the department of Eloquence, returned from Creedmore Sunday evening, where she gave a recital, Saturday evening.

The certificate recital of Miss Ruth Harriet Steviek (pianist) and Mr. Junius H. Reitzel, baritone, assisted by the college glee club, was a very enjoyable event here Saturday evening. The programme was a varied one, the rendition of each number did credit to the singer and performer.

The graduation recital of Mrs. J. W. Patton, Mrs. W. A. Harper and Miss Ethel Clements, of the music department, will be given in the college auditorium Thursday evening, May 20th.

E. T. H.

—The Suffolk, Va. Herald says that

Suffolk is the largest peanut distributing market in the world, over two thirds of the earth's crop being shipped from that vicinity to both hemispheres.

NORFOLK LETTER.

Deacon J. A. Turrentine of the Burlington church visited his son here last week. He is one of the strong friends of the Christian Church. It is a pleasure to talk with him. He can tell you a good deal of the history of some of our oldest and most prominent ministers. We hope to have the pleasure of another visit from him.

I had the pleasure of a very pleasant call one day last week from Bro. and Sister Irvine Weldon, Conneaut, Ohio. Sister Weldon is secretary of the Conneaut church, and called to answer in person my letter relative to the Porto Rico church building fund. They are interested in the work and their church was among the first if not the first to send in a contribution for the Salinas Church after the Quadrennial Convention. They have a daughter living at Farmville, Va., whom they had been visiting. They came to Norfolk from Richmond, down the historic James river, a trip I would advise any one to take if you have never done so. They were favorably impressed with Norfolk and what they saw here. We hope they will come again.

Bro. Ryan received a member at the Temple at the Sunday morning service. He reports a good day at both the Temple and at Rosemont.

Our meeting commenced at the Third Church Sunday and will continue for two weeks or more. As noted last week, Rev. H. W. Elder of Richland, Ga., is to do the preaching. Bro. Thompson filled his regular appointment at Providence. He reports the sick, of whom there have been several in that congregation, improving.

Are you praying about the Porto Rico church fund? Have you faith? The word says, "Faith without works is dead." Are you working then, or is your faith a dead faith? Tell us about it.
J. W. Manning.

THE SIN THAT SHUTS CHRIST OUT.

There is no hope for the man who does not believe that Christ can help him, while he continues in that unbelief. A man who was making the fight of his life to conquer his worst weaknesses, and who was rejoicing in the God-given victories that he was winning day by day, suddenly went down in unexpected and disastrous failure. So complete was his failure that his discouragement was complete also, and he told a friend that he saw now that God himself could not help him. He paid a costly price for that unbelief, for other failures followed thick and fast, which need not have been had he turned from the earlier failure immediately back to God in the confident belief that God was as ready and able to help him as ever. It has been well said that the unforgivable sin of Judas Iscariot was not his betrayal of Christ,—Christ would have forgiven Judas as completely as he did Peter,—but his refusal to believe that Christ could or would forgive him. That sin Christ himself cannot overcome for us, until we turn from it and seek him again. Let us not for an instant of time, no matter how discouraging and overwhelming our sin-disasters are, yield to the sin of doubting Christ's forgiving and healing power. He is greater than our greatest failures.—S. S. Times.

CANCER CAN BE CURED.

Personal or Home Treatment. Both successful. Scores of testimonials, from persons who gladly write to those now suffering, all tell of permanent cures. My Mild Combination Treatment destroys growth and eliminates the disease from the system. Free book "Cancer and Its Cure" and 125-page book of testimonials from cured patients in all parts of the country. No matter how serious your case, how many operations you have had, or what treatment you have taken, don't give up hope, but write at once Dr. Johnson Remedy Co., 125 Grand Ave., Kansas City, Mo. Physicians treated free.

RALEIGH & SOUTHPORT RY. Co.

P. M.	A. M.	STATIONS.	A. M.	P. M.
1:15	6:00	Raleigh	8:30	3:45
1:54	6:24	McCullers	7:52	3:03
2:11	6:59	Willow Sp'gs	7:37	2:45
2:23	7:14	Varina	7:27	2:34
2:35	7:26	Fuquay Sp'gs	7:19	2:25
2:55	7:45	Kipling	7:00	2:05
3:15	8:05	Lillington	6:41	1:44
3:41	8:28	Linden	6:15	1:17
4:30	9:15	Fayetteville	5:30	12:30

JNO. A. MILLS, Pres. and Gen. Mgr

MEDICINE.

We prepare as good medicine, the very best medicine that the finest, freshest, most potent drugs and chemicals will produce when carefully and skilfully compounded by an expert prescription man—just such medicine as your physician means that you should have, medicine of the utmost possible effectiveness. May we prepare your medicine?

FREEMAN DRUG CO.,
Burlington, N. C.

—Farming in Italy is attended with excitements and possibilities unknown in America, as Signor Carmine, a Neapolitan, discovered a few months ago. For two thousand dollars he bought a tract of land a few miles from Rome, and used it for raising artichokes. One of his workmen, while digging in the ground, struck a large stone, and called for assistance in getting it out. Signor Carmine responded, but the stone was still too big to be moved. They scraped the soil away and discovered that it was marble, with the figure of a woman sculptured on one side of it. Two or three other men were called, and they got it out and put it in the barn. Six other similar marbles were found, which evidently formed the base of a statue or part of a foundation. Now the government in Italy has a claim to one-fourth of all such antiquities, and the official archeologists, when they heard of his find, offered Signor Carmine sixty thousand dollars for his share in his marble crop. He refused the offer, and demanded seventy-five thousand dollars. The government has not yet agreed to pay so much, but the farmer has a good prospect of making a handsome profit from his investment in land in the Roman suburbs. No one knows how many other antiquities are still buried in the artichoke-field—Ex.

DR. JNO. H. BROOKS,
—DENTIST—

Nine years practice. Recent degree from Philadelphia Dental College and Garretson Hospital of Oral Surgery.

ENTIRELY WELL OF ECZEMA—TETTERINE DID THE WORK.

"I had eczema on my chest for seven years and it looked like a piece of rusty iron; the torture was almost unbearable. One of your salesmen offered to pay for the Tetterine if it did not cure me. I used less than three boxes and am entirely well."

Clem Kinard, Ruffin, S. C.

Tetterine cures Eczema, Tetter, Ring Worm, Gyp and Itch, Infant's Sore Head, Pimples, Boils, Rough Scaly patches on the Face, Old Itching Sores, Dandruff, Cankered Scalp, Bunions, Corns, Chilblains, and every form of Skin Disease. Tetterine 50c; Tetterine Soap 25c. Your druggist, or by mail from the manufacturer,

The Shuptrine Co., Savannah, Ga.

STOVES

Direct From Factory At Factory Prices.

We pay the freight. First-class goods and a saving of from 25 to 50 per cent. Guaranteed. Write for catalogue and prices.

DeLOACH SALES CO., Bridgeport, Ala.

PRAISES TETTERINE FOR ECZEMA.

"Have been troubled with eczema on the face for nearly two years, and a few applications of Tetterine and the use of Tetterine Soap has entirely cured me. I cannot say too much for its praise, as it has done more than my physician did."

Mrs. S. A. Haskins, Myricks, Mass.

Tetterine cures Eczema, Tetter Ring Worm, Ground Itch, Infant's Sore Head, Pimples, Boils, Rough Scaly Patches on the Face, Old Itching Sores, Dandruff, Cankered Scalp, Bunions, Corns, Chilblains, and every form of Skin Disease. Tetterine 50c; Tetterine Soap 25c. Your druggist, or by mail from the manufacturer. The Shuptrine Co., Savannah, Ga.

Books for Every Christian Home.

Do you know why you are a member of the Christian Church?
Do you understand what the church stands for and teaches?
If not, send and get a copy of the "Principles and Government of the Christian Church," just revised and greatly improved by order of the Southern Christian Convention.

- Cloth binding per copy, post paid 50 cts.
  - Limp Cloth binding per copy, post paid 35 cts.
  - Paper binding per copy, post paid 25 cts.
  - Handsome Persian Morocco, with name in gilt $1.25.
  - The Southern Christian Convention also Ordered Another Book Published, PREPARING THE SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER TO TEACH. Edited by Profs. W. A. Harper, W. C. Wicker and W. P. Lawrence.
  - The book is neatly printed and bound and is invaluable to the Sunday-school worker, 236 pages.
  - Paper binding per copy, postpaid, 60 cts.
  - Cloth binding per copy, postpaid, 90 cts.
  - To Sunday-schools, paper binding 50 cts. cloth 75 cts.
  - Have You Read That Thrilling and Inspiring Story of His Own Life, MOTHER'S ANSWERED PRAYER, BY REV. P. H. FLEMING, D. D.?
  - Cloth binding, postpaid 55 cts.
- All these books should be in your home. Order at once
For sale by. THE CHRISTIAN SUN, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

IT'S INTERESTING

to hear the different comments on different Shoes. All shoes have some good points; Style or comfort or service.

WALK-OVER SHOES

have all the good points; style and comfort and service and their price is the best point of all. $3.59, 4.00 & 5.00.

Foster Shoe Co., Burlington, N. C.

Dry Goods, Notions, Ready Made Clothing.

When in Burlington visit our large store, supplied always with the very best and latest styles and novelties.

Our Dry Goods are of latest designs, and our Ready Made Clothing cannot be surpassed in quality and price.

Come, See. Be Convinced.

B. A. SELLARS & SONS. BURLINGTON. N. C.

Don't Ask your Back

... the dust. This dust pain...
No more of spilling contents because the dust is automatically washed out at so ordinary dust...
A useful article will be given free to any housewife for a minute of her time. Address for particulars.

MARRIED.*Madren-Michael.

April 25, 1909, Mr. Marvin Madren and Miss Lula Michael were united in marriage, in the presence of only a few invited friends and relatives. The ceremony was performed by their pastor, Rev. L. I. Cox, of Elon College, N. C.

DIED.*Smith.

Ida Elzora Smith (nee Ida Elzora Fowler), wife of John B. Smith departed this life, April 25, 1909, after a year of declining health. Consumption ended her life. Her parents died when she was very young, and Sister Smith had no record of her age but was about 27 years old. She was married to John B. Smith Oct. 17, 1897 and to them were born four children, two boys and two girls; two of whom, one boy and one girl preceded their mother to the spirit land.

Sister Smith professed faith in Christ only a few years ago, and united with Berea Christian Church. She was fully conscious of the approaching end, and expressed a willingness to go and be with the Lord, in whom she was fully trusting, and died rejoicing. Funeral services were conducted from Bethlehem Church by her former pastor, the writer, and all that was mortal of Sister Smith was laid to rest in the church cemetery to await the resurrection morn. She leaves a husband, one small girl, one little boy, one brother and one sister with many friends to mourn their loss.

May the dear ones left behind live close to Jesus and meet her in heaven.

L. I. Cox.

Brown.

Inasmuch as it has pleased the all wise Creator to take from our midst a much beloved and highly esteemed neighbor and friend, a member of Union Grove Christian church, Mrs. Lula E. Brown, we desire to express to relatives and friends our love and sympathy, and our reverent respect for the sacred memory of our departed sister. Therefore be it resolved,

1st. That we deeply deplore the great loss sustained by her family and the community in which she lived.

2nd. That we strive to emulate her life and character with a blessed hope of meeting her beyond the skies.

3rd. That in her death our church has lost a faithful member, the husband a devoted wife and the children a faithful mother.

4th. That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon our church records, a copy sent to the Christian Sun and each of the county papers.

Mrs. Sefina Brown,
Miss Mamie Smith,
Miss Ethel Brown,
Committee.

Blake.

Bro. Frank Blake, son of W. T. and Sarah Ann Blake, died at the home of his father, April 14, 1909. He was born March 2nd, 1885 and was 24 years, 1 month and 12 days old.

He was a member of Ebenezer Christian church having united with this church July 28, 1906. He was a faithful member attending church and Sunday-school regularly as long as he was able. He bore his sufferings with patience and persuaded with those who were not ready to prepare for that journey beyond the skies. He died of consumption. He leaves a father, mother, six brothers and two sisters.

May our heavenly Father who knoweth and doeth all things well comfort those who mourn and draw them closer to himself.

M. J. Carlton.

Craven.

Inasmuch as it has pleased our heavenly Father to take from us one of our much beloved and highly esteemed members of Union Grove Christian church, Mrs. Alice Craven, we bow in humble submission to His will, feeling that He doeth all things well. Therefore we submit this tribute of respect:

Resolved, 1st. That in the death of this member, Union Grove church deeply feels the loss of one whose interest was always made manifested by acts of kindness and deeds of love.

2nd. That her meek and patient endurance of sickness and suffering to which she was so long subjected shall ever inspire us to greater faith and a more complete submission surrender to the will of God.

3rd. That it becomes us to bow with reverence and humility to this dispensation of Providence and say, "Thy will be done."

4th. That we extend our heartfelt sympathy in this hour of sad bereavement.

5th. That a copy of these resolutions be spread on the church record, a copy sent to the family of the deceased, also a copy sent to The Christian Sun and county paper for publication.

Mrs. Zora Brown,
Miss Myrtice Philip,
Miss Mina Bird,
Committee.

Jordan.

Fannie Elizabeth, infant of J. S. and S. B. Jordan, born May 21st, 1908 and died May 7th, 1909, at the parental home, Halifax Co., Va. Little Fannie Elizabeth's career was not long on earth, but long enough to deepen the sympathy, increase the love and multiply the devotion of one home at least and bind that earthly home to the heavenly home with ties that time cannot sever. All that tenderness, kindness

"The Oxford Teachers' par excellence

JUST ISSUED!

OXFORD

Teachers' Bibles and S. S. Scholars' Bibles

With New 20th Century Helps arranged in One Alphabetical Order.

THE HELPS

The Christian Advocate, Nashville, says: "The helps are real helps. Unlike those in many of the cheap Bibles, they are not simply thrown together in hodge-podge fashion, but represent the freshest and ablest work of the foremost modern scholars."

Address Christian Sun, Elon College, N. C.

Bible is the Bible of the World."

NOW READY!

SIX NEW EDITIONS

OXFORD

Black Faced Type BIBLES

Three on Oxford White Paper. Three on the famous Oxford India Paper.

Pearl 32mo. A wonderful clear type in a small-size book.

Minion 16mo. Ready October 1907. A model hand Bible.

Brevier 16mo. Large type in small compass. "A quart in a pint measure."

"The new Bible just published by the Oxford Press is, without doubt, the finest product of the kind ever given to the public."

ASK FOR THE OXFORD EDITION

REMEMBER: That we guarantee satisfaction and sell to you cheaper than the publisher and dealers do. Our business is by mail and express and prices quoted are the prices of goods delivered to you. We can furnish you the Oxford, or the Holman Teacher's Bible at prices ranging from $1.35 to $4.00. Send for our catalogue or write us what you want. Address and care could do was done to prolong the life of the little sufferer, but God knew best and wanted her as His own among the angel band. May God bless the bereaved family. A Friend.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN, Elon College, N. C.

Grissom.

Mrs. Annie Grissom, daughter of John and Julia Grissom, was born August, 1852 and died April 29, 1909, aged 56 years and 8 months. She was married in 1875 to John Grissom. There are three daughters and four sons living—one son died in infancy—and ten grand-children.

About three years ago sister Grissom United with Fuller's church. The writer conducted the funeral from the home on the afternoon of April 3rd and the burial was in Union Chapel cemetery.

The prayer of their pastor is that the faith in which our sister died may be given to sorrowing ones together with the hope of meeting again.

C. E. Newman.

Lawrence.

Death has passed through our congregation at Pine Plains and laid claim to one of our members, Sister M. C. Lawrence. We the members of Pine Plains Christian Church humbly bow to the will of Him who doeth all things well.

In her death the husband has lost his bosom companion, the children a fond mother, the church a member and the Sunday-school one of the most active and useful teachers it had.

She for several years attended the E. N. C. Conference, but will be there no more.

Be it resolved: That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the Christian Sun for publication, a copy to her husband, and a copy spread upon the Sunday-school record. God bless the bereaved family.

Henry G. Franklin, Supt. of S. S.
Nancy Merchison, Mem. S. S. class, P. T. Klapp, Pastor.

Committee.

CURED OF PERSISTENT CASE OF ECZEMA,

St. Louis, Mo., Sept., 1, 1905.

Mr. J. T. Shuptrine, Savannah, Ga.

Dear Sir:—I have been a very great sufferer from eczema for four or five years, and have used many remedies and have been treated by the most prominent specialist here for skin diseases with-

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup

Has been used for over SIXTY-FIVE YEARS by MILLIONS of MOTHERS for their CHILDREN WHILE TEETHING, with PERFECT SUCCESS. It SOOTHES the CHILD, SOFTENS the GUMS, ALLAYS all PAIN; CURES WIND COLIC, and is the best remedy for DIARRHOEA. Sold by Druggists in every part of the world. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Guaranteed under the Food and Drugs Act, June 30th, 1906. Serial Number 1098. AN OLD AND WELL TRIED REMEDY.

The Centennial of Religious Journalism

EDITED BY J. PRESLEY BARRETT, D. D.
Editor Herald of Gospel Liberty

This is without doubt the most generally interesting publication sent out by the Christians. Its centennial, historical and denominational features make it not only unique in character, but interesting as well. From beginning to end it claims the interested attention of the reader.

We have not space here to give the table of contents, but suffice it to say, that beginning with the "Discussion of the conditions which made the organization of the Christian Church a necessity," the reader will follow with interest and profit, the "History of the Herald of Gospel Liberty," "The One Hundred Editorial Gems," "Historical Sketches of One-Hundred-Year-Old Churches," "A Symposium—A Hundred Years of Progress," setting forth in well prepared papers the development of the various enterprises of the Christian Church, and with a heart full of optimistic hope he will peruse "The Future Outlook of the Christian Church."

And all this, and more, in a book of nearly 659 pages, handsomely bound, with gold titles, while the price is only $1.00 for cloth binding and $2.00 for Morocco, with your name printed in gold. Postage, 15 cents extra. Send your order at once to

J. N. HESS, Publishing Agent

Dayton, Ohio

Shears That Are Shears.

We want your renewal to The Christian Sun and we want you to have a pair of our Shears. They never wear loose. They never get too light for heavy cloth. They never get too lose for thin cloth. They always make a straight clean cut, the full length of the blade. Guaranteed for five years.

Remember These Shears Are Self Sharpening

HOW YOU MAY GET THE SHEARS FREE

Just go to your neighbor who is not a subscriber and get him to subscribe for The Christian Sun one year for $1.50. Send us the $1.50 and the name and 10 cents for mailing, packing, etc., and you will get the shears.

Or Go Out Among Your Neighbors and Get

three renewals of The Sun for a year. You may count your own renewal as one of the three. Send us the $4.50 and you will get the shears, or if you have already paid your subscription since January 1, 1909, send us two renewals with $3.00 and you will get the shears. Lose no time. This offer may last for only a few days.

THIS PAIR OF SHEARS RETAILS FOR $1.00. WE GUARANTEE THEM TO BE AS RECOMMENDED.

ADVERTISING DEPARTMENT

For Advertising Rates Apply
Religious Press Advertising Syndicate
(Jacobs & Company)

Home Office, Clinton, S. C., who have charge of the advertising department of this paper.

Jacobs & Company, J. F. Jacobs, J. D. Jacobs. Home Office, Clinton, S. S...

Women in Burlington call at
T. H. STROUD'S

Store for DRUGS, SOFT DRINKS, and anything desired in drugs and Toilet Articles.

To Drive Out Malaria and Build up the System.

Take the Old Standard GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC. You know what you are taking. The formula is plainly printed on every bottle, showing it is simply Quinine and Iron in a tasteless form, and the most effectual form. For grown people and children. 50c.

PERSONALLY CONDUCTED
TOUR

"AROUND THE CONTINENT"

Over the Rocky Mountains to the Pacific, the Alaska-Yukon Exposition, Los Angeles During the Elks National Convention and through the Yellowstone National Park—Via the

SEABOARD AIR LINE RAILWAY
in charge of

Mr. C. H. Gattis, District Passenger Agent, Raleigh, N. C., and Chaperoned by Mrs. C. H. Gattis over the entire trip.

Leaves July 3rd, returns August 6th, circling the United States in a solid Pullman train composed of the highest grade and modern design of sleeping compartment observation cars and Pullman dining cars.

The most inexpensive trip ever operated from the Southeast, through Atlanta, Birmingham, Memphis, stopping at Kansas City, Denver, Colorado Springs, Salt Lake, Los Angeles, Santa Barbara, Montgomery, Santa Cruz, San Francisco, Portland, Seattle, Tacoma, Spokane, through Yellowstone National Park, St. Paul, Chicago, returning home through Cincinnati and C. & O. through Richmond.

Trip cost will include railroad and Pullman fares, hotels, dining car meals, stage ride of five (5) and one-half (1/2) days through the Yellowstone National Park, transfers, side trips, carriage and automobile rides at stop-over points and all actual expenses necessary.

Side trips will be arranged at all stop-over points to places of interest, all details being arranged in advance and looked after enroute.

An attractive 33-day trip through the "Greatest Country in the World" covering a distance of 8,755 miles of travel in a modern Pullman train with superb dining car service, eating and sleeping in the best of hotels, sight-seeing "The Wonders of the West" leisurely, with all details arranged in advance is a lux-

1908—ANOTHER RECORD BREAKING YEAR FOR THE
Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co.

GROWTH OF COMPANY.

New Business Paid For. (Not Including Additions.)

1904 Largest Year in Previous History of the Company .....	$73,876,037.00
1905 Largest Year in Previous History of the Company .....	$99,334,038.00
1906 Largest Year in Previous History of the Company .....	$93,885,273.00
1907 Largest Year in Previous History of the Company .....	$102,242,289.00
1908 Largest Year in Previous History of the Company .....	$109,773,709.00

SURPLUS ACCOUNT DECEMBER 31st, 1908.

Dividends apportioned for payment in 1909 .....	$11,199,411.56
Deferred dividends on policies maturing after 1909 .....	$16,847,000.00
Total Future (assigned) Dividends .....	$28,046,411.56
Unassigned Surplus .....	$4,465,646.40
Total Surplus Funds (on basis of values furnished by New York and Massachusetts Insurance Departments .....	$32,512,057.96

T. ARCHIBALD GARY,

Gen'l Agent for Virginia and North Carolina,
601 Mutual Assurance Society Building,
Richmond, Va.

During 1908

(As in previous years)

We want you in our business, for we have what you want in your homes—the very best, most substantial and handsome furniture at bottom prices. We are also the undertakers.

Burke Furniture and Coffin Company

BURLINGTON, N. C.

Southern Railway

Operating Over 7,000 Miles of Railway. Quick Route to all Points North, South, East and West.

For Speed, Comfort, Courteous Employees, travel via the Southern Railway.

Rates, Schedules and other information furnished by any of the undersigned.

R. L. VERNON, Trav. Pass. Agt., J. H. WOOD, Dist. Pass. Agt.,
Charlotte, N. C. Asheville, N. C.

S. H. HARDWICK, P. T. M., W. H. TAYLOE, G. P. A.,
Washington, D. C.

Elon College.

Co-educational. Established 1890.

Thorough College courses leading to M. A., A. B., Ph. B. and Lit. B. degrees. Strong and experienced Faculty with highest University training. Good Library, Reading Room, Laboratories, Literary Societies. Excellent Music, Art and Business Departments.

Beautiful and healthful location, 17 miles east of Greensboro, on Southern Railway. Best moral and religious influence. No hazing. New students met by reception committees from young people's Christian organizations connected with the college. Good equipment. A large new dormitory, with modern conveniences, has recently been built to meet the requirements of growing patronage.

EXPENSES UNUSUALLY MODERATE.

For catalogue or further information, address

EMMETT L. MOFFITT, LL. D., President.

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

Write at once to the undersigned for cost of trip, schedule and itinerary. If maps, timetables and booklets of the lines over which the party will travel, are desired, send 30 cents in stamps.
C. H. GATTIS,
District Passenger Agent,
Raleigh, N. C.

The Christian Sun.

In Essentials—Unity, in Non-Essentials—Liberty, in All Things—Charity. State Library

ESTABLISHED 1844.

GREENSBORO N. C., WEDNESDAY, MAY 26, 1906

VOLUME LXI. NUMBER 21.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

Church Colleges and Cash.—The church colleges need money, but they are not yet to sell their birthright, we fancy. Many of them need, and would like to have, several of Rockefeller's and Carnegie's millions, but if they are to pay too dear a price, the millions will have to stay and perish with their owners. It is a bold and daring scheme, this of the two great "educational philanthropists." These brethren are willing to turn loose $68,000,000 on the denominational colleges provided these colleges may be placed under control of fifteen men who are independent of the church. A great scheme that. We admire it for its audacity. The devil sometimes makes us praise him for his perilous and persistent pursuits. This strikes us as a case in point. This $68,000,000, with a string of colleges across the continent is the biggest and boldest trust we have read about. Having captured the peoples' purse with "Trusts," they now propose to capture their intellects.

Elon College is poor and weak and needy. Several thousand would be most welcome. But, thank God, it is free and bows and bends to no man. That freedom is worth more than millions. It has through the years struggled along some how and managed to live. Let it struggle for a thousand years to come rather than sell a whit of its loyalty and freedom for ever so many thousands.

Automobiles.—A wealthy citizen, a loyal Catholic of course, dying recently, in another State, left in his will a large sum of money to be used in having masses said "for the repose of the souls of victims of automobiles." Some of the papers think that if mass is to be said over every poor soul suddenly sent to the other world by the mad rush of the automobile, the priests will have little time for other duties. What good saying mass for a dead man will do is not for us to decide, but the loyal Catholic's motive was, without doubt, pure and unquestionable.

It has not been decided whether the automobile does more harm than good. There are very many sharp thorns on the stems of most fragrant roses you know. The good of the automobile has been summarized thus: "The automobile has been a most useful contribution to civilization. It has increased industrial wealth, provided a new source of income for tens of thousands of workmen, added an invaluable convenience to locomotion and a new pleasure to life. It has fostered the development of many minor lines of manufacture, opened other avenues to employment and supplied the state with new revenues."

Its evils have been thus depicted: "The automobile's progress has been accomplished at the cost of many human lives. The automobile has increased the work of the hospitals and the courts, added to the bulk of criminal legislation, made the streets unsafe, furnished a new menace to vehicular traffic, put new burdens on the police, torn up the highways and entailed heavy expenses for street repair, befouled the parks and injected a new element of disorder into the night life of the city. It has aroused class antagonisms and fomented discord in labor relations."

A Profane Ex-Judge.—North Carolina suffers the exceeding humility, not to say the deep disgrace, of having upon its roster of ex-Judges—by the grace and favor of the people just an ex now—a man whose chief glory seems to be his ability to use vile oaths and revolting language. We seldom, if ever, see this man quoted in the papers that his speech does not smell of sulphur and teem with profanity. For one we blush to think that so vain and vile a man, in thought and speech, as W. S. O. B. Robinson, Goldsboro, was ever elevated, by the suffrages of a free people, to the position of Judge. If the papers quote him correctly he revels in the anarchy of speech, and glories in his power to swear and curse in the most shocking manner.

If Robinson were only a private citizen, and had been so always, no one would quote or read his ranting, but having once been a Judge the papers quote him and the people read him. We wish he could know that hundreds read him in pity, and in disgust. It satisfies some profane babblers to swear now and then, but this filthy speech, oath reeking citizen seems to delight, in all his utterances, in dragging his mother tongue to the lowest and in saturating his speech with profanity.

Of late President Taft has done something to displease this self-constituted censor. Forthwith a new collection of oaths is handed out to the papers and vile epithets are hurled at the Chief Executive of the Nation.

Descent citizenship, to say nothing of the Word of God, teaches us to respect our superiors in office, and hold in due reverence the rulers of the people. But this man Robinson would teach every youth, who reads the papers, in this broad land to disregard every high place and hold in contempt, on the least provocation, any official that dares differ with him. But, this man boasts of always saying what he thinks, and fearlessly. We never knew a vain babbling and vile swearer who did not make the self-same boast.

Will the papers not give a suffering public a much needed rest from this man Robinson's vile profanity? Let us hope.

A warning to Saloons.—Well did you ever! Actually the saloon folks have turned to preaching, some of them. A saloon paper gives this bit of personal advice to barkeepers: "There is too much cursing and swearing in the saloons, and you give too much credit. Credit urges men to drink to the extent that their wives and children are neglected and made to suffer. If the associations will pledge themselves to uphold the law and drive the bad element out of business, God will bless them and much of the prejudice now resting against you will pass away!" There is a lesson on economy, also one on morality, a further on religion. We would call this good doctrine from a bad source, but for the fact that men cannot gather figs of thistles. The object, therefore, is to elevate the saloon so that it will attract more decent and wholesome and purse-filled people.

If ever the devil made a daring and desperate fight, he is making it in our day to overcome the tidal wave of righteous indignation that is sweeping the saloon off the face of the earth.

FROM THE FIELD.

Holy Neck.

The third Sunday was the annual reunion day at Holy Neck, better known as "May day." The congregation was very large, visitors being present from Franklin, Whaleyville, Suffolk, Portsmouth, Norfolk, etc. The annual offering for conference assessments was $114.35. A beautiful mission program was well rendered in the afternoon by the children of the Sunday-school. The special music by the choir at both services was appropriate and well rendered. We feel deeply grateful to all who in anyway contributed to success of the day.

Holland, Va. N. G. Newman.

Spring Hill.

The annual Memorial service of Spring Hill church was held Tuesday afternoon May 18, 1909. The service was sweet and inspiring. A much larger congregation than the regular attendance was present and each one seemed to contribute to the service in a silent and reverential way. "A note of facts" written by Rev. M. B. Barrett in the year 1854, which is all the history of the church we have from its organization about the first of the century till the date above; and a sketch of history compiled by the present pastor and secretary, were read for the benefit of the congregation. The most of those who have made this history, with particular reference to that of the middle of the last century, now sleep in the church cemetery or elsewhere; therefore the reading was fitting and full of interest. This sketch is spread on the first pages of the new record book recently purchased.

Rev. C. C. Jones of Wakefield, was present by invitation and delivered an inspiring address. Prof. J. J. Lincoln, of the Wakefield High School, was also expected but was not present.

Flowers in profusion and nearly every grave was decorated. As the little groups of families and friends gathered about the mounds of their loved ones, 'twas a solemn picture. The retrospective thought of each one was written in the countenance, while at the same time each was conscious of a sacred nearness to eternity,—that it will not be long before some may be gathered about our mound. A memorial should have its teachings as well as its devotions. The most youthful and the most vigorous of health walk closer to eternity than we are apt to think. There is but a veil, and it has been known that so small a thing as a fly interrupted life and a strong robust man was in eternity. "Prepare to meet thy God."

H. E. Rountree, Pastor.

Waverly, Va., May 20, 1909.

Alabama Letter.

I am serving New Harmony and Rock Springs churches this year. New Harmony has been sleeping for about five years under a heavy burden which has almost sapped its spiritual life and greatly impeded its progress. This case was like many others that have caused the downfall of so many churches. It was of such delicate nature that every one was afraid to take hold of it and the general cry was: "If they don't do something with that thing, I am coming out," or, "I'll quit," when the truth of the business was, they had already "quit," and were "out" so far as practical use to the church and service to God was concerned. But right in the darkest day of her trial, when it seemed that the prophecy of her enemies was about to come true, and in imagination we could hear the funeral procession bearing the corpse and leaving the dear old church house to the bats and the owls, the church realizing its true condition awoke out of its slumber, took on the spirit of progress, placed faith and trust in God for the right and with one united effort set face to the future and to glory.

Our hearts go up in gratitude for the change. Congregations are larger and more attentive. Saturday attendance will compare favorably with any country church. The music sounds better; prayers are more fervent; the spirit of liberality is greater; and, it seems to me that I can preach better. (Now, don't read that last sentence too loud). There is now a brighter day for New Harmony.

Rock Springs held its annual Memorial services last Saturday and Sunday. A large attendance, flowers in great profusion. The dinner was excellent order fine, music grand, preaching Saturday. My son, J. D., spoke Sunday assisted by "Uncle Tom" Elder. Uncle Tom's health is not good but he is much improved to what he was a few months ago, but he is cheerful and full of faith, hope and love—at least, that was his subject Sunday.

We have some as loyal members at Rock Springs as there are anywhere. My work, at present, is in what I call fine shape, and I am expecting great success this year. C. M. Dollar.

Bethlehem.

Our memorial exercises at Bethlehem third Sunday in May were attended by a very large concourse of people. The day was pleasant, and every one seemed to enjoy the occasion. For a number of years the church has observed Memorial Day with increasing interest and attendance. The cemetery had been nicely cleaned off, and many beautiful flowers were placed upon the graves. At the close of the morning service a large number of children formed in ranks, and marched into the cemetery hearing the flowers, and after two songs by the choir, decorated the graves. The great congregation then viewed the decorations and whiled away the time in conversation and hearty hand-shake and friendly greeting. Old friends met and renewed acquaintances of other days. Memorial day is fast becoming a fixed custom with this congregation, and many who cannot attend oftener may be seen at Bethlehem on the third Sunday in May. To such the occasion proves a very helpful, spiritual uplift. It calls up much of life's past, and the review is both inspiring and instructive to the Christian. Pious Christian memorials are a very helpful means of grace. To see again our loved ones is a part of true Christian hope. Reviewing the past inspires the present and fortifies us for the future. In the afternoon Rev. A. F. Iseley preached a good sermon to an attentive congregation. Thus passed our memorial day at Bethlehem. May many more such pleasant days be accorded to the good people who worship there. J. W. Holt.

Berkley Letter.

Our revival meeting was a success. Rev. H. H. Butler of Suffolk, was with us two weeks. His sermons were attractive and teemed with feeling illustrations drawn from his own experience with restless sinners and hopeful Christians. The people heard him gladly. The conversions numbered about twenty, and at the conclusion of the meetings nine united with the church. The church is greatly revived and prospects are growing brighter all the time.

Our Sunday-school has increased more during this quarter than since I have been pastor. Our "United Bible Class" now numbers thirty-seven with an average attendance for this quarter of twenty.

The week following 1st Sunday in this month I assisted Rev. R. H. Peel in a revival at Ivor, Va. We had a delightful week. The people there are all brethren and treat one as such. There were about fifteen conversions and nine joined the church. Others will join later. Mrs. Naomi Varner, who used to be our organist here, presided at the organ. Mr. Varner is the principal of the graded school there and is much beloved by the people. Our church is taking on new life in that vicinity since Bro. Peel accepted its call. M. L. Bryant.

Valley Letter.

Some time has elapsed since a letter appeared in the Sun under the above caption. This apparent neglect has not been due to carelessness however, but to heavy work. The writer has been in revival meetings almost continually since last fall. It has been a long season of hard, earnest work, but pleasant and I trust, very profitable. I have just closed the last one for this conference year and am now at home for a few days of much needed study and rest.

All of my meetings have been reported to the Sun except the last two held: viz., at Dry Run and at Linville.

At Dry Run our cause was considered practically dead until recently. The meeting there gave the work new impetus and revived the church considerably. There were eight conversions and nine additions to the church. Nearly all of these are heads of families, and are among the best people of the community. They add much to the strength of the church in many ways. There is a strong probability of others coming into the church before long.

At Linville we were confronted with some conditions rather adverse to a successful meeting, but we have reason to believe that through persistent work and the power of God these conditions were to some extent met and conquered. So far as we were able to count there were twenty-four conversions and reclamations, and sixteen additions to the church. Aside from these, many others appear to have been much revived and strengthened. Rev. W. T. Walters and Edward French each preached two or three able sermons during the meeting.

Second Sunday in this month I baptized two candidates at Wood's Chapel and held communion service at Whistler's Chapel for Bro. French, he filling my appointments that day at Antioch and Linville. Third Sunday we exchanged pulpits again; he preached for me at Mt. Olivet (R) Bethel and Mt. Lebanon, and I preached for him, held communion service and baptized three candidates at Newport. I was glad to meet old friends again at all these places. Bro. French reports packed congregations at Bethel and Mt. Lebanon. The congregations at Bethel have greatly increased since the revival meeting there last February.

Brethren and sisters of the Valley, Va. Central Conference, don't forget about that Conference Missionary Association that was organized at the last session of the conference. You have been asked to take a membership in it. The fee for men is $5.00 and for women $2.50. Have you responded yet? Remember the Association needs you. If you love the church and the cause of Christ in the Valley do your best in giving it your support.

A. W. Andes.

May 18, 1909.

Windsor Notes.

A meeting was held at Ivor Christian Church week following first Sunday in May. Rev. M. L. Bryant of Berkley did the preaching. The meeting resulted in several professions and renewals and eight additions to the church. While we have but few members at this church, we have some consecrated members and the church is doing good work for its strength.

Four members have been received at Johnson's Grove since the Annual Conference. This church has a good Sunday-school and is doing good work.

We have received one member by letter into the Windsor Church since Conference. This church is in as good condition as it has been since I took charge, now nearly six years ago. The Sunday school is interesting and the attendance is good, often being nearly double the church membership. The Ladies Aid Society is doing excellent work. Within the last several months the Society has built a nice choir stand and has recently purchased pulpit furniture.

The church at Isle of Wight Court House is progressing nicely. I have been pastor of this church only a few months, but have found here some earnest, zealous, consecrated members. The congregations are good and attentive. At our conference third Sunday in May, the week following third Sunday in September was set apart to hold a revival meeting. The church has an interesting Sunday school with a Teacher Training class.

The church at Barretts is moving on quietly. The Sunday school has been organized for the summer and fall and is starting up with good prospects. We have some earnest members at this point. This is one of the oldest churches in the conference, being over one hundred years old. Rev. Joseph Thompson tells of having preached at this point more than one hundred years ago.

R.H. Peel.

PROGRAM.

S. S. Convention, Ga. and Ala. Conference, Girard Church, June 12, 13, 1909
Saturday, 2:30 o'clock P. M.

1. Religious Services, Rev. Holder.
2. Organization, Election of Officers.

3. Address of Welcome, Rev. G. O. Lankford.

4. Response, Rev. E. M. Carter.

5. Address, The Sunday Schools of this Conference and What they Need, Rev. H. W. Elder.

6. Address, The Sunday Schools of this Conference and What they can Do, Rev. E. M. Carter.

7. Missions and the Sunday School, General Discussion.

Saturday 7:30 o'clock P. M.

1. Devotional Services, W. T. Beggs.
2. The Sunday School and the Christian Orphanage, Rev. J. W. Elder.
3. Sermon, Rev. J. H. Milam.

Sunday 9:30 o'clock A. M.

1. Religious Exercises, Rev. J. W. Short.

2. Address, The Negligent Teacher, Rev. J. H. Milam.

3. Address, Successful Teaching, Rev. G. D. Hunt.

4. Address, The Teacher Improving, Rev. B. F. Young.

5. Address, The School Growing, Rev. H. W. Elder.

6. Sermon, Rev. E. M. Carter.

Sunday 2:30 o'clock P. M.

1. Devotional Services, Rev. B. F. Young.

2. Song Service, Revs. E. M. Carter and J. L. Cox.

3. Praise Service and Heart to Heart Talks.

Sunday 7:30 o'clock P. M.

Sermon, Rev. G. D. Hunt.
Adjournment.

J. F. Hill, Jr.,

C. B. Terrell,

Committee.

PERSONAL.

Dear Brother Atkinson:

Allow me to say to the readers of The Sun that I am now at Fuquay Springs on a short vacation with my wife for her health. She has been suffering since last September. We arrived yesterday. She stood the trip very well. We ask an interest in the prayers of the beloved church for her recovery. The singing of the birds and the running of the little brooklet remind one of days of yore, in the absence of noisy street cars and the constant rumbling of the wheels on hard paved streets. One is almost inclined to be lonesome, notwithstanding the pleasant breeze and the cool shade in which we rest and rejoice. The pleasant people and cordial welcome are all that is necessary to make one feel at home around the often visited and long cherished spring where health flows in liquid form. A. P. Barbee.

—Our Greensboro first church is to be dedicated Sunday, June 6.

NOTES AND PERSONALS.

—The Senate has defeated an amendment to the tariff schedule to bring in free lumber. The house already having spoken for protection, assures a vote for a duty on lumber.

—The New York Tribune is authority for the statement that Mr. Roosevelt has sixty skins of wild animals to his credit and is still in the jungles slaying the fierce and vicious.

—The Georgia railroad is (Monday 24) completely tied up by a strike, all trains on the lines being cancelled. The Georgia Ry. is 171 miles long from Atlanta to Augusta and branch lines and employs over 2,400 men.

—This is commencement season. Schools and colleges are closing for the summer. The closing of school a commencement, the commencement of practical work-a-day life. To the hundreds who are to commence shortly we wish all success and usefulness.

—R. v. G. O. Lankford, Columbus, Ga., writes, "We are having an interesting meeting with our Girard church. Bro. Young assisted us a few days last week, but I have no help this week, Bro. Hunt failing to reach us on account of sickness in his family."

—A short while before his death H. H. Rogers, the capitalist, gave to his son, and each of his three daughters, $4,000,000. The bulk of his estate is to be divided by his will, not yet made public.

—The Press says Philadelphia has a greater diffusion of its realty ownership than any other city in the world. Now York has 100,000 tax-payers; Boston, 8,000; Chicago 97,100, Philadelphia 150,000. Philadelphia is a city of home owners.

—Next Tuesday, June 1, the "world's fair" at Seattle, Washington, "The Alaska-Yukon Exposition," will be formally opened. The managers claim that the exposition in all its parts is complete, a thing not known heretofore at the opening of expositions.

—Dr. Charles William Elliot, President of Harvard University for forty full and eventful years, laid aside the robe of his office May 18, and became a private citizen. Dr. Elliot is seventy-five and has more than earned the rest that his remaining years may bring.

—Have you read, and have you in your home for reference, a copy of the recently revised Government and principles of the Christian Church? It is a book worth knowing. Cloth 50 cts., limp cloth 35 cts., paper 25 cts. Send us your order. The Christian Sun Elon College.

—The Young People's Convention and the Elon College commencement Saturday p. m., May 29-June 2, will attract many agreeable and delightful visitors to Elon, and here is hoping that all will have a glorious and happy time.

—Of the 15,000 people who live in Raleigh, the State capital, only 5,000 are church members, says the assistant pastor of the Second Baptist church. This being true, some of Raleigh's very many churches might with profit do home mission work.

—Clifford W. Hartridge, attorney of Hary K. Thaw in his trial for the murder of Stanford White, being called upon by court to itemize his $70,000 expense account declares that he spent $40,000 in trying to defend and protect Thaw's reputation. Which may be called high protection for a low purpose.

—Kansas is moving some on the tobacco question also. A new law in that State forbids the manufacture and sale of cigarettes and cigarette paper, forbids the use of tobacco in any form to minors, any minor using tobacco in any form in any public place being liable to a fine of $10.00. Score another for Kansas.

—Among the lecturers at Defiance Christian College, Defiance, Ohio, at the commencement this week we note the name of the venerable and beloved Dr. Thomas M. McWhinney, Yellow Springs, Ohio. This indicates that Dr. McWhinney is in better health and strength than was reported recently, a welcome item of news to his hosts of admiring friends.

—A private letter brings the unwelcome information that Col. A. Savage is in quite feeble health at his home in Norfolk, Va. In planning and building the Memorial Temple, Norfolk, Col. Savage was one of the leading and most useful laymen. He has served his day and church in many influential capacities and is held in highest esteem by a great circle of brethren and friends who will wish devoutly for his recovery.

—Three-fourths of the tariff revenue is collected on twelve classes of articles, including sugar, manufacturers of cotton, wool and silk, leaf tobacco and manufacturers of iron and steel. Sugar paid sixty million dollars' duties in 1907, the cotton manufacturers nearly forty million dollars, manufacturers of wool and of silk about twenty millions each, and iron and steel twelve millions. But sugar yields more revenue than any other two groups of imports.—Ex.

—Mr. H. H. Rogers, vice-president and acting head of the Standard Oil Company, also builder and owner of the Virginia Railroad, died at his New York home, from a stroke of apoplexy May 20. The interment was at Mr. Roger's home town, Fairhaven, Conn., May 22. Mr. Rogers was a philanthropist as well as a great capitalist and did much to help many charities. His greatest work was that of building the Virginia Railroad from Norfolk to Roanoke.

—President Taft's visit to Virginia and North Carolina last Wednesday and Thursday was received with cordial welcome by tens of thousands, and his speeches at Petersburg and Charlotte, the two objective points, were sane, sensible, seasonable and were received with hearty approval and applause. The consensus of opinion is that so far Mr. Taft has made good as President and that his public utterances last week added to, rather than subtracted ought from, his good name in these parts.

—Secretary Wilson, Department of Agriculture, Washington, declares emphatically that there is no shortage in the wheat crop, if reports made to him are correct. The present crop is estimated authentically at 140,000,000 bushels. True the crop last year went to 148,000,000 bushels but that was unusual. Secretary Wilson says the only theory that he has for high wheat is the manipulation of the market by the Chicago operators. The high price, however, seems firmly entrenched, and shows no sign of declining.

—The Supplement to The New York Financier just received gives the honor roll of the 619 State Banks of the United States with surplus and profits in excess of capital. On this honor roll it is pleasing to note that The Farmers Bank of Nansmond, Suffolk, Va., occupies first place, having a larger percentage of surplus than any State bank in the United States, the capital stock being $20,000, the surplus and profits, $613,000, a percentage of 3,065. Hearty congratulations to Cashier W. H. Jones, Jr., and the core of able and efficient officers who have carried this Institution to first place and seem determined to keep it there.

—Following is from the Greensboro Daily Record: "Mr. and Mrs. Silas Aldin Holleman announce the engagement of their daughter, Martha Pearl, to Mr. Charles C. Robbins, of High Point, the wedding to be solemnized Wednesday evening, June 23, at eight o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, 301 Wainman street, Greensboro, N. C." The bride-elect was for some years a resident and student of Elon College, her father being several years the popular Professor of Mathematics in the institution. Miss Martha Pearl has a host of friends among Sun readers who will join with us in extending very best wishes.

—Three young men are contemplating earning a Christian Sun scholarship in Elon College, N. C., for next session, one from the Western N. C. Conference, one from the Ga. and Ala. Conference, one from the Eastern Va. Conference. No one has yet written about a contract to work the Eastern N. C. Conference, and the N. C. and Va. Conference, thus leaving open as yet two fine opportunities for some ambitious and worthy young man or young woman who wants to go to Elon at The Sun's expense next year. Read our proposition on fifth page of Sun and write us at once. The workers should begin at an early date now.

—The recent trial against the American Sugar Refining Company brought out evil practices the like of which we had not known before. No wonder the company on a verdict of $134,000 has paid already $2,000,000 and would be glad to get off at that. This description of the steal is given by an exchange: "It was shown at the trial that each of the company's 17 scales at the docks in Brooklyn, where sugar was weighed prior to the payment of duty, was provided with a spring, which the company checker pressed with his left hand, while with his right he recorded the weight, the effect being to reduce the weight registered. Hence the suit was known as 'the case of the 17 holes.'" The government was preparing to press its claims to a much larger sum, as the frauds had extended over many years; but it accepted the $2,000,000 as a compromise. The arrangement does not affect criminal prosecutions, which the government now intends to press."

—Some wild, as well as domestic, animals like music, some do not. There is no scientific basis of grouping. A friend of the writer said recently that he was sure his hog enjoyed the gramophone. It was recently discovered at the New York Zoological Gardens that uncivilized dogs, or wolves, are displeased with music. A gramophone was taken about the garden, and selections, vocal and instrumental, were played upon it before the cages of the lions and tigers, elephants and camels, birds and monkeys, as well as the wolves. The wolves did not like it, but the tigers and lions were delighted. One lion rose on his hind legs and kept time with his front paws. The camels crowded round the instrument and listened with rapt attention. They even stuck their noses in the horn to discover where the music came from. The elephants kept time to the harmony by flapping their ears, and would now and then trumpet their applause. The orangoutang listened in ecstasy, although a blue-nosed baboon was manifestly offended, and scolded all the time. A blue-coated macaw in the bird-house danced a cake-walk to the "Wearing of the Green."

NOTICE.

Those who expect to attend the S. S. Convention at Girard, June 12, 13, will notify J. F. Hill, Jr., Phenix, Ala., so that entertainment can be provided for you. Write Bro. Hill not later than June 5th stating what time you will arrive in the city.

G. O. Lankford, Pastor.

DO NOT FORGET.

Last week we made a request through this paper to our friends and brethren for some help with which to cancel our church debt. We now have less than two weeks in which to finish this work. Please mail us your $25.00 or your $15.00 or your $10.00 or your $5.00 or your $2.00 or your $1.00. The last two named amounts may ease your conscience but will not do much in raising our debt. Send your contribution now. Bring your self and see the church dedicated the first Sabbath in June. R. S. Petty.

For Committee.

OBEDIENCE THE KEY.

Disobedience is the only real destroyer of power. God intends us all to have power; he creates us with power, and he continues to make it available for us so long as we live. Yet few have power in any such conspicuous way as they ought. Paul had it,—to a greater degree, perhaps, than any one after Jesus Christ. And it has been pointed out that Paul revealed the reason for this. In laying his whole life before King Agrippa, he described the vision which had challenged him into the unconditional service of Christ, and then he added, "I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision." That was all that was needed to make him both a spiritual and a temporal dynamo whose force shook the Roman empire and is felt to-day after nineteen hundred years. That is all that we need to realize our highest longings for power. We have all had our heavenly vision; we have a fresh one every time a duty presents itself for our attention. Are we obedient to our vision?—S. S. Times.

Willie (coming into the house breathlessly)—Papa, hurry up! There's a man with a wagon outside to see you about putting in the coal."

Slimson—"Tell him I'm busy just now, Willie. I'll go out to see him in a few minutes."

Willie—"But you mustn't keep him waiting, papa. You don't know who he is. He is the father of the pitcher of our base-ball team."—Woman's Home Companion for June.

DO YOU WANT TO GO TO COLLEGE NEXT YEAR?

Then Here is Your Opportunity.

We want to help you: You can help us, and by so doing help your self.

READ OUR OFFERS.

To any young man or young woman, approved of good moral character and recommended by his or her pastor, sending us 300 new subscribers to The Christian Sun for one year at $1.50 each, by Sept. 1, 1909, we will give a scholarship in Elon College for the scholastic year of 1909, and 1910—one full school year. This scholarship will include Board, Furnished Room, Tuition, Matriculation and Library Fees. (Board and Room at either of the college dormitories, or with private family as individual may prefer):

Or, For 225 New Subscribers $1.50 each, Board and Room at any place individual may select; or Board, and vacant room at Young Men's Boarding Club, Tuition Matriculation and Library Fees.

For 180 new subscribers at $1.50 each, Tuition in Literary Branches and in Music, Matriculation and Library Fees.

For 140 new subscribers at $1.50 each, Board and Vacant Room at Young Men's Boarding Club.

For 120 new subscribers, Tuition, Matriculation and Library Fees.

This is a golden opportunity to any young man or young woman desiring to go to college next year who hasn't the means to go upon. By doing the work you give the individual subscriber full value received for his $1.50 and he in turn helps you in a most estimable and worthy manner. You can ask your friends to help you in such a work as this—and they will be glad to help.

Further, If you work you shall not lose out. For, if you fail to get the required number we will give you a liberal cash reward on all work done. See your Pastor at once and ask him for a letter to send along with your own to us. Write today. No time to be lost.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEPARTMENT
—of the—
SOUTHERN CHRISTIAN CONVENTION.

W. P. Lawrence, Editor, Elon College.

HOW TO TEACH THE S. S. LESSON
FOR JUNE 6, 1909.

A Few Suggestions.

The Power of the Tongue.

Jos. 3:1-12.

Golden Text:—Whosoever keepeth his mouth and his tongue keepeth his soul from troubles, Prov. 2:33.

Review.—Review the previous lesson thoroughly and also what has been taught regarding the life, character, and influence of James.

Incidental Instruction.—It will be well to explain to the class the ambition of the Jews to be teachers or masters, which ambition many of them had, when converted, carried into the Christian Church. This ambition, especially when it possessed men who were narrow bigots or otherwise disqualified to teach, was doing the Church incalculable harm and it is against this practice that James raises his voice. A teacher should never be self-appointed.

The Lesson.—The lesson to-day divides into three parts, which write on the board as an outline as they are developed in the teaching.

I. The Power of the Tongue, verses 1-5. (Before the questions on the lesson begin, call for the recitation of the lesson by the two pupils to whom you assigned alternating verses of it last time. This exercise might, however, be postponed until after the lesson has been recited.) Find what James exhorts his brethren not to be, why, how we offend, who is the perfect man, why, how we rule horses, how govern ships, how these are types of the tongue. Here call for assigned work on the power of the tongue from Prov. 18:21 and Jas. 3:2-13.

II. The Nature of the Tongue, verses 6-8. Find what the tongue is like, what it defiles, what it sets on fire, of what it is itself set on fire, what man has tamed, what he has not tamed, why.

III. The use of the tongue, verses 9-12. Find whom we bless by the tongue, whom we curse, what proceed out of the same mouth, what statement James now makes, what illustration of this principle is cited from the fountain, from the fig tree, from the vine, what statement is then made respecting the fountain. Here call for assigned work on Right Speaking from Psa. 145:5-12; Prov. 12:-

22; Eccl. 3:7; Mal. 3:16; Gal. 4:6; I Pet. 3:9-10; on Ignoble Speech from Job 38:2; Psa. 70:3; Prov. 18:7,13; Matt. 12:36-37; I Tim. 5:3; 2 Pet. 2:10; on swearing from Ex. 20:7; Lev. 19:12; Jer. 23:10; Matt. 5:33-37; Jas. 5:12; on How to Govern the Tongue from Judges 8:1-3; Job 13:5; Matt. 5:22; 12:34; Eph. 4:29-32; Jas. 1:19,26.

Review the lesson by the topic method.

For Class Discussion.—The Responsibility of the Religious Teacher. Whether the Man who Controls his Tongue is a Perfect Man.

Truths and their Application.—1. James seems to be speaking as much to present day men and women as to those of the first Christian century. Two thousand years have hardly changed the human tongue. Slander is just as prevalent now as then and just as harmful. There is no way to get restitution for calumny. You may prove yourself innocent, you may gain a verdict in the courts, still the evil reports continue to damage your reputation, and will make against you perhaps where you least expect it. It is a frightful thing to speak evil untruthfully of the good name of a fellow being.

2. A thing may be true, and yet it may be sinful to tell it. A man may have made a mistake and may have heartily repented of his deed and be leading a consistent Christian life. The recollection of his past sin is source of shame and humiliation to him, even if the community forgets it. But if it is the talk of the town, if it is constantly buzzing in his ears, the Christian life is much harder for him to live. We need to forgive and to forget—we cannot truly forgive unless we do forget. No true Christian will tell of the past sins of a fellow Christian in a detracting way.

3. It is equally wrong to withhold the good report which a friend or neighbor deserves. A man who does not bestow praise where it is deserved is not the honest man he thinks he is. He is unwilling to pay his debts. The Bible enjoins us to pay our debts. Not eloquent eulogies said over the corpse, not fragrant flowers placed on his bier, will answer the demands of the Christian tongue for praise that is deserved of it. Praise can become flattery, sycophancy; it is then sinful. But deserved praise, expressed with becoming grace, is a Christian duty.

4. Out of the same mouth proceed praises to God and curses to man, said James. And he was right. This is true of every good thing: it can be perverted. The height of our heaven measures the depth of our hell. There is no virtue which may not become a vice by perversion. We should be very watchful that our tongues should always be a blessing to our fellows and to ourselves.

Assignments for Next Sunday.—Ask one to be prepared on Abraham's offering of Isaac, Gen. 22:1-19 and James 2:21; a second on Isaac's blessing of Jacob and Esau, Gen. 27:1-40; a third on Jacob's blessing of Joseph's sons, Gen. 48:1, 5, 16, 20; a fourth on Joseph's command concerning his bones, Gen. 50:24-26; Ex. 13:19; Josh. 24:32; a fifth on Moses' life as an illustration of faith, Ex. 1:16-22; 2:2; 2:11-15; Psa. 89:50-51; Heb. 2:2; I Cor. 2:9; Ex. 12:50-51; 13:17-22; Num. 12:7-8; Ex. 12:21-29; Psa. 106:9; 114:5; Isa. 43:16; 51:10; Ex. 14:22-29.

W. A. Harper.

Elon College, N. C.

THE S. S. LESSON FOR MAY 30, 1909.

Believing and Doing.

James 2:14-26.

Golden Text:—Faith without works is dead, James 2:20.

Doing is an outward expression. For happiness to be more than a sham, there must be something within. There must needs be faith believing. To depend for happiness upon works with believing is to assume a great risk and happiness is apt to wane as you make much of doing. When the heart believes and is filled with love it is happy. You need not hide your tears and put on smiles. You cannot help being happy.

In regard to faith or believing that a good or wicked heart is the result of previous bad conduct, which has formed a habit of sin, perhaps it is yet independently of the conduct whether external or internal acts are meant by that term, there is a state of heart from which that conduct flows.

The heart is not independent of our control in such a sense as to free us from moral obligation or accountability. We must look to God with a feeling of distrust of ourselves and a conviction that help can only come from him. Then we are ready for Christian action. Faith will not only show itself by works but works will increase faith. Let a person make an effort to relieve a sufferer and he becomes more and more interested. He first sends him a little food or a little fire when he is sick, and he finds that this does good, it relieves the pressure and brings cheering encouragement to the family, before just ready to despair. The benefactor then becoming interested, sends a physician when the patient is cured he procures business for him, and he goes on step by step until perhaps he feels a greater interest in that one case of suffering than probably in all the misery of the entire town.

This sympathy was brought about by a benevolent effort. Go forward in doing good; set your heart upon it, and cause your faith to grow.

G. W. T.

DO YOU HEAR JOY AND GLADNESS?

I never saw nature adorn herself in a mourning dress. It puts on green—the figures, painted with so many admirable colors, representing life, growth, development, make the heart glad as they are seen in the sunlight and rustle with such modest pride in the soft air as it floats on swift wings all around us. Even when the leaves turn loose their native stem in the autumn and fall off forever, their departing beauty and attractive colors are still objects of much admiration. They look cheerful to a lover of nature as they close their short and beautiful life, making the earth richer for a more luxuriant growth of leaves for each returning spring. No black, unhealthy costume do the trees wear when their foliage is dead. They never put on mourning but appear bright in their last departing hour.

Weeping—mourning is not conducive to health, neither is dress nor anything else that is an unpleasant reminder of a happy past. When those, who are near, pass over the great divide, think of them pleasantly, but not sadly. For it is only a matter of time and all will be on the other side of the dividing line.

While sojourning here stay on the bright side of life, air yourself in the breezes, stay much out of doors, take in the sunshine, and live in the realms of joy and gladness as much as possible. Your own heart must cheer you. However, much will depend upon right eating and drinking, good deep breathing, elevating thinking, proper bathing, enough cleanliness, and right living to insure the greatest amount of earthly happiness. There is a charm in these things which practice alone can give, but it will pay a liberal reward to every one who applies himself with persistence and industry. A suggestion may move to thinking and then cause action to perform its duty. For action, action, action, is the great means by which the world is moved on to success. If each would act his part well on the stage of life it would be a beautiful and attractive play.

David said, Make me to hear joy and gladness, that the bones which thou hast broken may rejoice. Do we listen for gladness? Or do we listen for that which will bring sadness? Whatever we sow we will be most likely to reap. Sow good, clear seed if you expect a good crop. Be as careful as you may, some thistles and weeds will spring up. It is difficult to keep clear of them. Some time an enemy puts them in your field while you sleep—those dangerous, rapid-growing thistles that bear nothing but thorns. These thistles are to be feared, because they are senseless and dangerous. It takes care and toil to cultivate a crop—to keep down the weeds—for they grow and grow so fast, and spread and spread all over the field, until you have trouble in rooting them up.

Amid the din of the conflicting elements of the world hear the trumpet voice of joy and gladness ringing out above the noise in welcome tones. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid. And at once it inspires fresh hope and new courage to engage in the conquest for a just and righteous victory. All up and down the line of march from this to the better land the refrain is caught and echoed in thunderous tones from end to end. You must be charmed by inspiration and charged with confidence to grasp the superlative joys that invite you upward. Then when you are filled with the fullness of joy and gladness you may rise to the highest height.

The whole of this fifty-first Psalm is filled with penitential supplication. Its author had a very sore, broken heart. He prays for complete pardon, for he knows full well that the way of the transgressor is hard. The pain here of a bruised, broken heart is compared to broken bones, but He who smites and wounds, heals and binds up, cleanses and causes the broken bones to be set that they may grow together and be whole again. If any one is suffering with broken bones, with a broken heart apply the bandage of faith and the lotion of salvation, and bind the glad promises around your heart and get well. It is not worth while to go with broken bones all of life when you can have them mended and made whole.

You are not always glad, neither do you feel like rejoicing every day. Some time your physical condition will depress you, but keep right on cultivating a spirit of joy and after a time streams of gladness will flow into your lives, and you will be greatly refreshed by them. Listen for it, until you hear its cheerful sound, and feel its helpful presence. Be on the lookout for it to come to you. Rejoice evermore. Make melody in your heart. Let the elevating themes which you consider cause you to hear joy and gladness.

Do not be satisfied with present attainments in any department of life—look for better, brighter and more joyful times, let the past alone, and give more and better attention to the present, remembering as you go onward that, after pain comes relief, after sorrow comes joy; after night comes day; and after death comes life. You rather hear joy and gladness than anything else—because they fill your life with peace.

Do not stop because one victory has been gained. There are other battles before you, and other engagements to meet. Some more problems to work out, which demand more thought and investigation before the work is completed. One thought suggests another, one step prepares the way for others to follow, one experience qualifies you for more and better work. Arm yourself therefore with confidence and bravery that you may be able to go right through to success.

Cause me to hear joy, make me to hear joy. Keep your heart in proper tune. Unstop the ear that is deaf to joy, so that the sweet melody of joy may be wafted into it. Listen to have the discord displaced by the presence of joy. Then when rapture and peace take possession of the soul it will exult in a stronger faith and a full assurance of grace. If you can get joy in trouble it will give more spiritual power. "Every bird can sing in a clear heaven in a temperate spring, that one is most commended that sings many notes in the midst of a shower or in the dead of winter." As these words plead with God for joy and gladness may every one who uses them be drawn to Him for a new and a full supply. Once a woman sought all her happiness in worldly pleasure till a profound melancholy seized her which nothing could relieve. One day a shoe maker waited on her in compliance with her orders. A single glance at his countenance as he took her measure showed her that he was as happy as she was miserable. She could not forbear saying, "My friend, are you happy?" To which he replied with a face on which peace sat enthroned: "I am the happiest of men." His looks and his words deeply impressed her, nor could she rest until she had sought him out, and learned the secret of his joy. He was a devout man and gladly sought the opportunity of preaching Christ to her. She also received the "anointing," and to the close of her life served the Lord with gladness, diffusing in her turn the same saving blessing to others—the sick and the titled among whom she associated.

May our meditation of the Lord be sweet and pleasant and as we look up to Him from whom every blessing comes, may the joy of His great salvation help us to pray,—“Make me to hear joy and gladness that the bones which thou hast broken may rejoice.”

Windsor, Va.

J. T. Kitchen.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

Founded 1844 by Elder Daniel W. Kerr.
Organ of the Southern Christian
Convention.

Entered at the postoffice at Greensboro, N. C., as second-class matter.

Terms of Subscription.

One Year .....	$1.50
Six Months .....	.75
Four Months .....	.50
Advertising rates given on application.

J. O. Atkinson, Editor and Publisher.

Important Notice.—As readers will see, The Christian Sun is now published at Greensboro, N. C. The office of publication there is 302½ South Elm Street. Our editorial office, however, remains at Elon College, N. C., to which all letters and communications to the Editor should be addressed, as heretofore.

THE PRESENCE OF EVIL.

Thoughts and opinions vary much as touching the principle, and the promoter, of evil. What and who is Satan? What of his origin, and how did he come to be in a system of "free grace and never dying love?" Some how the devil has always been a disturbing factor. Men of thought do not know how to locate and explain him: men of love and emotion cannot analyze him: and men of wickedness and sin fear and dread him; and we all feel uncomfortable about him. He is a strange, disturbing element in all the events and issues of men.

So our modern thought has about abolished him. Some are declaring that it was all a myth and a figment to have had him. He should never have been. Science, philosophy and religion could have all gotten along so much better and easier without him. It is a pity he ever was. In order to make the books plain, life easy, and this world a happy abode for merry mortals he, satan, the wicked one, will have to be ruled out, should have never been ruled in, came in fact as the idle dream of a mistaken race and ignorant theologues. How easily philosophy and history could have been written if ignorant ancestors had not made the egregious blunder of supposing into being a hideous monster called the Devil. He is all too low and base and vulgar for this delectable and highly cultured age. A Devil? Perish such a mythical thought of an age that is dead—Bah!

But, dear brethren, what are we going to do about this evil that abides. I saw in the paper this morning that a son did his father to death in a dual of bullets yesterday. I saw yesterday that a husband brained his innocent wife with an axe the day before. I saw the same day that a mother deserted her husband and forsook her children to go off with another man. I saw in the same paper that a wife had poisoned her husband, and that four men in a drunken spree had two of their number shot to death. I see every day that they are waging a terrible war for the open saloon on the Sabbath in New York, and the low dives and gambling places are wide open nights, Sundays and all in a hundred places of our Christian land. I see sons going to wreck, daughters plunging into ruin, fathers staggering to the mire and mothers reeking with shame and sin and crime.

What are we going to do about these? It is well enough to argue away Satan from the thought and theory of things. What are we going to do with this sin and wickedness and shame and crime that is dragging man down to the low and vile depths? Oh, my brother, sin and shame do yet abide, devil or no devil.

RELIGION AND LIFE.

It is about the forms and ceremonies of religion that men differ. About religion itself, not fame, but as life, men are forever agreed. That which raises the fallen, cheers the faint, heals the sick and leads the blind is universal, is life, is real religion.

About this men cannot differ. For, as we are told, religion is the life of God in the soul of man, God expressing Himself in human facts and relationships. Here there is no religion and life: religion is life.

So many come to think of religion as a narrow, mean, meager thing. How vain indeed the thought. Religion means life: that which gives the mind new energy, the heart new hope, the soul new aspiration, and every day new and untold joys and delights.

Religion is not barren, but fruitful. It continually opens up new fields for further flights and larger pursuits. New delights engage the mind and heart each day. There is no sameness; and the way is not a weary one. It is sweeter and sweeter as the journey advances and the religion of today is always sweeter and better than that of yesterday. This because it is life, even the life of God unfolding itself in the soul of man.

THE GRACE OF GIVING.

Many do not get any pleasure out of their giving. That is because they have not cultivated the art and grace of giving. All good and useful arts come by cultivation and practice. Giving is no exception. It is an art that must be carefully and persistently cultivated if it is to bring best results.

Two men sit beside each other when the collection is taken. Both are equally able and each contributes a dollar. One goes away glad, the other sad. One enjoyed the collection, the other regretted it and really suffered pain from its consequence. The difference? One had cultivated the art of giving, the other had not. One gave willingly, the other grudgingly.

How acquire the art? The great Moody was not far wrong, "Give until it hurts, and then keep on giving until it stops hurting." Many give just enough to make it hurt, and stop there. That is the reason they think giving a bad practice.

Some one has said that to feel you have given too much is right good evidence you have not given enough. There is a limit. But few indeed come close enough to the limit to get the real joy of giving. Giving as a part of church service, should be enjoyed as much as any other part of the service, and it may be, if the art is acquired and developed.

THE CHURCH ORDINANCES.

We shall never understand them, these sacred rites and ordinances established of our Lord for and in His church. Baptism seems an insignificant thing. Some water, a brief ceremony, a candidate and a minister, and the work is done. All natural, simple, visible, tangible. Yet the weight and the wonder of this simple service through the ages. Somehow it is, it abides, and its power is invincible. By it men are made more loyal to the church, more willing to obey, more ready to yield and to do for Christ. And through it the church is built up and magnified.

The sacrament of the Lord's supper, a very silent, quiet, unobtrusive sort of service. It would look like this could not prevail. Yet, it abides with wondrous worth and weight. It unites the brotherhood, drives out unselfishness, keeps the church in unison and brings heaven closer earth. Strange, wonderful, majestic, mysterious. Demons have ranted, fiends cursed, and the powers of hell have thundered against it. Yet it is, abides, is steadfast. It will one day in its silent majesty and might shake the foundations of hell and put to flight all forces of evil.

These quiet, silent, salient, church ordinances, simple and insignificant in their seeming: how wondrous, how mighty, how majestic in their deep reality. It behooves the children of God to properly and appropriately observe these sacraments.

SUFFOLK LETTER.

Monuments are erected, orations are delivered, and books are written to commemorate the deeds of heroes in war, and it is well that it is so. The unveiling of the Wirz monument at Andersonville, Ga., May 12th, and of the Hart-rauft monument at Petersburg, May 19, are recent examples of what states do for their dead heroes. The air of the Republic is full of music praising the men who have suffered or achieved great things for their country. Heaven knows that no honest man would take down a single shaft, blot out a single line, or hush a single note in all that this nation has done to honor Revolutionary or Civil War heroes; but there is a class of heroes unhonored and unsung—the plain, every day tiller of the soil. I am not now thinking of the man who owns many acres and has them tilled; but am thinking of the man who owns a small farm, has a large family, does his own work chiefly, pays his bills from the proceeds of the field, and looks only to his land for all that he buys and all that he enjoys. This small farmer is a hero equal if not superior, to any who lead armies in time of war. This farmer rises early, works late, follows the plow in the field, feeds his horses, hogs, and cows; cuts the wood to cook the meals; goes to town and to mill; fixes the fences, gates, and doors; greases the wagons and buggies; helps his neighbors when they are behind with their work; sits up with the sick at night; and goes to Sunday-school and church on Sunday. He has no capital but his energy and his faith in God and the soil. He buys his fertilizer on time, runs an account at the store; borrows money for special purchases, and promises to pay "in the fall." If his crops fail, he is two years behind. When sickness comes on top of this load or he loses a horse or a cow, then days look dark and times seem hard, and they are. To lead an army when backed by a nation and cheered by an host of soldiers is easy compared with the courage such a farmer needs. Yet thousands of men go forth to the field with such burdens and plow when the crops give no promise of good harvests. With poor stand, poor growth, and no rain, it takes a hero to plow; a hero in courage and a hero in faith. Such a man must have faith in the field, faith in himself, and faith in God; and there are millions of such heroes in this great country. And beside every such hero is a heroine who might be mentioned with Florence Nightingale and Joan of Arc. These farmers' wives share in all the struggle and toil of their husbands and eat with him the bread made sacred by honest work. The soldier in the camp has an easy time compared with this daughter of care. No wonder she enjoys an hour in God's house, the sermon that tells of rest, and the songs that tell of joy and the heavenly home. The rigid demands of life upon such honest souls develops character more solid than refined. No wonder their children are trained to obedience, temperance, and economy; they need no book on economy, because their life is the author of economy every day. God has raised the mountains as monuments to the sons and daughters of toil, and the flowers of the earth mark their graves. It seems to be a pity that the firm does not give a larger return to those who plow and hoe; but, as "virtue is its own reward" so honest work seems to be its own reward. The appetite, the sleep, the contentment, the independence that belong to the tillers of the soil may contain riches that profit and luxury know nothing of. The lowing of cattle, the bleating of sheep, the squealing of swine, the barking of dogs, the crowing and cackling of fowls, and the song of birds may be as good for the soul as the screaming of whistles, the clatter of wheels, the tramp of feet, and the music of the playhouse where city folk lose their sleep and their strength. To live in touch with Nature's great heart may be as good as to live in touch with the engine and dynamo. The heroes and heroines of the farm deserve a place in fame's best temple, and a seat high up in the temple of God.

Rev. J. W. Wellons of Elon College dropped in and was with us at Wednesday night service, May 19th, took part by making a good talk, spent the night with Col. J. E. West and family, and left Suffolk Thursday morning for Smithfield, N. C. He is gathering material in the history of the Wellons family and carries his eighty-three and a half years as gracefully as a daisy carries a dewdrop, and enjoys life and friends with all the vigor of a young man.

W. W. Staley.

NORFOLK LETTER.

Bro. Ryan reports the largest congregation at Rosemont that they have had for quite a while. A good day at the Temple, with one young man uniting with the church at the evening service.

The many friends of Col. A. Savage will regret to know that he is very ill with a trained nurse attending him. He has been a strong, loyal friend to the Christian church. He realizes that in the natural course of events he can not be with us much longer and is just waiting the call to come up higher.

The meeting at the Third Church, under the preaching of Rev. H. W. Elder, is growing in interest. He is preaching some powerful sermons, full of rich thoughts. His effort has been principally directed to the strengthening of the church.

The weather was very inclement the last three nights during the week, which interfered with the congregation somewhat. The Sunday evening service had a fine congregation. In the afternoon Bro. Elder spoke to men at the Naval Y. M. C. A. His subject was "True Manhood." He handled it in a masterly way, and was listened to with rapt attention by the men present as he showed to them what constituted true manhood. J. W. Manning.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTIONS NEXT.

By the time this week's Christian Sun reaches the majority of its subscribers delegates will have left their homes for the Young People's Convention at Elon College, May 29-31. A much larger delegation has been reported to the entertainment committee than I had expected. The Convention promises to be of considerable interest. An account of its proceedings will appear in the Christian Sun of June 9th.

The next gatherings among the young people of the church are the Sunday-school conventions. These are to be held during the summer months. It is time the various secretaries of these conventions were earnestly at work on the attendance from the various schools. This department of the Sun is open to the presidents and secretaries of Sunday-school conventions, and also to other interested brethren for the purpose of working up the best possible conventions.

There is a feeling among the laity in many parts of the Southern Christian Convention that a large part of the ministers have been too careless about attending the Sunday-school conventions. The most aggressive churches have good Sunday-schools and are usually represented in the Sunday-school convention. If the pastor is also in the Convention and takes an active and helpful part, this conduct of his endears him not only to his Sunday-school but to his church, as well. Let it become so strongly demanded of pastors that they attend the Sunday-school Convention, as to make it necessary for them to do so, or else forfeit prospects of the highest usefulness in the church, and forfeit also the prospects of promotion to better churches. W. P. L.

—Government and Principles of the Christian Church; cloth 50c., paper 25c.

THE CHRISTIAN ORPHANAGE DEPARTMENT.

Board of Trustees.

Rev. J. O. Atkinson, D. D., Pres., Elon College, N. C.
 Rev. I. W. Johnson, Sec., Suffolk, Va.
 Hon. W. H. Carroll, Burlington, N. C.
 L. M. Clymer, Greensboro, N. C.
 C. D. West, Newport News, Va.
 Elijah Moffitt, Esq., Asheboro, N. C.
 G. S. Watson, M. D., Elon College, N. C.
Treasurer—Prof. J. T. Cobb.
Superintendent—Jas. L. Foster, Elon College, N. C.

CHILDREN'S CORNER.

The Band of Cousins.

Jas. L. Foster, Sec., Elon College, N. C.

“He that hath pity on the poor lendeth unto the Lord, and his good deed will He pay him again.”—Prov. 19:17.

Total Reported Last Week. $3101.11
Monthly Dues.

Iola Timberlake ..... .05
 Jessie Penny ..... .05
 Pauline Penny ..... .05

Monthly S. S. Offering.

Burlington, N. C. .... 6.17
 Rosemont, Va. .... 1.06
 Suffolk, Va. .... 15.19
 Shallow Ford, N. C. .... .40

Special Offerings.

Amelia Chris. Ch., N. C., 2.26
 Miss Beulah Fowler ..... 8.00
 on support of brother.
 1 bu. S. potatoes ..... .70
 Mt. Hermon Christian Church:
 Mrs. John Broughton .... 1.00
 J. J. Sanderford ..... 1.00
 A. C. Penny ..... 1.00
 Miss Elsie Penny ..... 1.00
 C. T. Bryan ..... 1.00
 Mrs. Geo. Williams ..... .50
 Collection ..... 3.40

Amt. 18th week, 1909 ..... $42.83
Total ..... $3143.94.

Elon College, N. C., May 19, 1909

My Dear Children and Friends:

This has been a very busy week at the Orphanage. The farm work is on in full force; with stumping, ditching and breaking of new land for late planting. We will have about 12 or 14 acres more for cultivation this year than last: this extra land is new-ground, thickets and old meadow land. My it takes work!

The Supt. was at Mt. Hermon 3rd Sunday and had a good day, presenting the orphanage work in the p. m.—owing to threatening rain many men left or possibly we would have received more money. We are thankful to the kind friends who helped us, and enjoyed the visit. The dinner served was great, and the neighbors and friends co-mingled and seemed to enjoy the day and were happy.

In looking over books we find that quite a number of Sunday-schools are contributing monthly amounts, which would equal or nearly so $1,000.00 endowment; i. e., over $60.00 per year or $5.00 about what we claim actual cash spent per month. The Suffolk, Va., leads, averaging about $15.00, Burlington, N. C., makes the next largest, with Ber: a Nansemond close up, sometimes a little over $5.00 and again under; with Greensboro, Henderson, Wentworth, Catawba Springs, Wake Chapel, Waverly, Va., all averaging up well; with many others with different amounts. If all schools would join in it would give the Orphanage a much more continuous and liberal support—for which we would be thankful.

With best wishes to all,
 Yours for work, Uncle Jim.

Wake Forest, N. C., May 17, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:

I am a little late this time. I will try to do better next time. We had an ice cream supper Saturday night for the sunbeams. We had a nice time. Enclosed find five cents. Iola Timberlake.

I guess the little “sun beams” melted the cream too, and made it go fast. Didn't they, Iola?

Raleigh, N. C., May 14, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:

Since we wrote to you last we have had a great sorrow in our home. Our oldest brother, Garland, died with pneumonia, May 1. Enclosed find our dues for this month.

Your little nieces,
 Jessie Penny,
 Pauline Penny.

Ah, girls, Uncle Jim's heart goes out in much sympathy for you and your family in this sorrow which has darkened your home in the early spring time.

MEDICINE.

We prepare as good medicine, the very best medicine that the finest, freshest, most potent drugs and chemicals will produce when carefully and skilfully compounded by an expert prescription man—just such medicine as your physician means that you should have, medicine of the utmost possible effectiveness. May we prepare your medicine?

FREEMAN DRUG CO.,
 Burlington, N. C.

Don't break your Back

In sweeping up the dust. This dust pan has a long handle and its edges fit in tightly. No danger of spilling contents because it tilts back automatically when pushed. Will outlast 20 ordinary dust pans. Sent postpaid on receipt of 10c. FREE—A useful article will be given free to any housewife for a minute of her time. Address for particulars.

Smith Singleton Mdse. Co., Box 100, Lawrence, Mass.

DO YOU WANT TO GO TO COLLEGE? If so we can help you. We have already put hundreds through college by means of our plan. Write today for full information regarding our offer of a free scholarship in any school or college. Address, Robert J. Sherlock, 29-31 East 22nd Street, New York City.

YOUNG MEN! If you want to know why you should become telegraph operators and what school to attend, write to SOUTHERN SCHOOL OF TELEGRAPHY, Newman, Ga., for free Catalogue “A.” EVERY BOY should read it. Positions positively guaranteed.

FREE DEAFNESS CURE.

A remarkable offer by one of the leading ear specialists in this country, who will send two month's medicine free to prove his ability to cure Deafness, Head Noises, and Catarrh. Address Dr. G. M. Branaman, 1100 Walnut Street, Kansas City, Mo.

SPRING TIME.

The time for gardening is here and you need garden tools. We can supply you at lowest prices.

Poultry Wire.

The best assorted stock in the county. Four different styles and weight.

Come and See.

Remember plumbing and bath room fixtures, a speciality. You will find us on Davis St. third door from Post office. BURLINGTON HARDWARE CO.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup

Has been used for over SIXTY-FIVE YEARS by MILLIONS of MOTHERS for their CHILDREN WHILE TEETHING, with PERFECT SUCCESS. It SOOTHES the CHILD, SOFTENS the GUMS, ALLAYS all PAIN; CURES WIND COLIC, and is the best remedy for DIARRHŒA. Sold by Druggists in every part of the world. Be sure and ask for “Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup,” and take no other kind. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Guaranteed under the Food and Drugs Act, June 30th, 1906. Serial Number 1088. AN OLD AND WELL TRIED REMEDY.

SONG WRITERS and POETS

We arrange, compose, revise and publish vocal and instrumental music. Send us your poems and manuscripts for free advice and best terms. WINTER KEENE CO., CHICAGO

RALEIGH & SOUTHPORT RY. Co.

P. M.	A. M.	STATIONS.	A. M.	P. M.
1:15	6:00	Raleigh	8:30	3:45
1:54	6:24	McCullers	7:52	3:03
2:11	6:59	Willow Sp'gs	7:37	2:45
2:23	7:14	Varina	7:27	2:34
2:35	7:26	Fuquay Sp'gs	7:19	2:25
2:55	7:45	Kipling	7:00	2:05
3:15	8:05	Lillington	6:41	1:44
3:41	8:28	Linden	6:15	1:17
4:30	9:15	Fayetteville	5:30	12:30

JNO. A. MILLS, Pres. and Gen. Mgr

DR. JNO. H. BROOKS,
 —DENTIST—

Nine years practice. Recent degree from Philadelphia Dental College and Garretson Hospital of Oral Surgery.

THE REPLY.

(We published recently the greetings from Christian Churches in the South to Christian Churches in New England, which resulted in all becoming one body. Below is printed the reply of the New England Churches.)

The Elders of the Christian Churches, in the New England States, assembled at Portsmouth, N. H., June 23rd, 1809. —To their brethren in the Southern States, in Christian fellowship,—sendeth Greeting.

Beloved Brethren in Christ Jesus our Glorious Lord,—Your epistle dated May 27th, was received by us with the same spirit of love by which it was dictated; and it rejoices our hearts, that there are such a number of our brethren in the Southern States, who receive Christ as only King and Head of his Church, to the exclusion of Popes, Cardinals, Bishops, Archbishops, or any body of men invested with legislative authority for the Church of God.

We understand according to the New Testament, that the Church is the "Body of Christ," and Christ the "Head of the Body," and we praise our God that he has given Jesus, "a leader and commander to the people;" that "the government is upon his shoulder;" that we have a law-giver who is able to save and to destroy;" we therefore have, and do reject all human heads, laws, articles of religion, confessions of faith, disciplines, creeds, catechisms, etc., etc., etc., which have been invented by men, not only because they are the foundation of the unhappy disputes which have arisen among the children of God, and a lessening of the divine authority of our master Jesus to command us in all things; but because we find his law perfect in all things and sure, a "perfect law of liberty," not of bondage—yes brethren, liberty to obey him in all things, whose yoke is easy, and whose burden is light.

We have not rejected these things without mature consideration, and were not altogether unapprised of the opprobrium which would be cast upon us for our conduct, by those who are so closely attached to them; but believing in our King as a Saviour as well as law-giver—we ventured upon him with the same confidence we did when we found him a deliverer from sin, firmly believing we should see an increase of those, who take Jesus for their commander, and his law, as contained in the New Testament as their only rule, without addition or diminution; and we have not been disappointed in our expectation, for

"Although despised by men
A little feeble band,
Protection we've obtained,
From our Redeemer's hand,
Though oft' our foes would us devour
We've stood upheld by Jesus' power," and God has very gloriously increased our numbers, to the praise of his holy name; and while our dear brethren are groaning under a yoke which they are not able to bear; we rejoice that we can raise the Christian standard, proclaim Jesus as our King, and Jesus as our Law-giver, to the exclusion of all others, and praised be God we see the ensign waving farther and farther, and volunteers coming from far off and near, while the North gives up, and the South does not keep back.

We feel willing with you, yea, we rejoice to take the despised name of Christians, because the Church which is the Lamb's wife should be called by his name. "He was despised and rejected of men" and "the servant should not be above his master."

We firmly believe the happy time will arrive when there shall be one Lord, and his name one through all the earth; and it is our fervent prayer, that we be not Christians in name only, nor almost persuaded Christians as Felix was, but that we be Christians indeed, that is disciples of Jesus partaking of the divine nature.

Dear Brethren, we do most sincerely desire your prosperity and happiness. O, that the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ may pour out his holy spirit upon us, that we may honor the Christian name, serve God acceptably, finish our course with joy that when he who is our life shall appear, we may be presented with you immortal, being the children of God and the resurrection to praise God and the Lamb in perfect strains, world without end, Amen.

We are, dear brethren, yours in the kingdom and patience of Jesus.

William Ramzey, Ebenezer Levet, Uriah Smith, Moses Safford, Elias Cobb, John Rand, Douglas Farnam, Elias Smith, Zephaniah Crossman, Peter Young, Joseph Boody.

The following Elders not being at the above meeting, having since seen, and approving of the above letter, add their names with the others.

Daniel Hix, Phillip Hathaway, John Lawrence, Ira Phillips, Ebenezer Easty.

(The conference framing the above met at Portsmouth, N. H., June 23rd, 24th, 1809, thus showing the letter to be almost one hundred years old. It was printed in The Herald of Gospel Liberty, Vol 1, page 95. Respe. H. E. McClenney, Suffolk, Va.)

THE CONDUCTOR'S BUSINESS.

One night on our way from Dubuque, Ia., to Cedar Rapids on the Illinois Central Railroad, our attention was called to young ladies who seemed to have come from rural regions. Another woman entered about whose face there was something sinister and deceitful. From their conversation we gathered that the girls were going to Cedar Rapids to work. The woman directed them to a boarding place.

After a while we looked back and saw the conductor in conversation with them. They were crying. When he came for our tickets I said, "What is the trouble back there, Mr. Hart?" He and I had been good friends for a number of years—ever since I first boarded his train and, with a smile, he said cheerily: "Good morning, sir! May I see your ticket?" I remembered that I looked up to see from whence the sunshine emanated and gazed into a face round and clean and as smiling as a May morning. Then I noticed also that on his sleeve he wore a number of gold stripes, marking him as one of the oldest and most faithful of employees. On the lapel of his coat was a little button with a pitcher on it, telling me that he belonged to that splendid corps of traveling men, "Gideon's Band," who have done so much to lift the traveling men to a place of honor and respect. That button became the link which bound us and our hands clasped in real brotherhood.

In reply to my question he said: "I found that those girls were going to work in the Cedar Rapids factory and had been directed by some woman to a boarding house which has an evil reputation. I knew if they ever went there, they would be lost before morning. My wife is with me on the train and we will take them home with us over night and find them a safe home." I said, "That is a fine thing for you to do and rather exceptional for a man in your busy life." He replied, as he put his hand on my shoulder: "That is my business. I feel that I am not only responsible to the Illinois Central for the fares of my passengers, but I am responsible to Jesus Christ for their souls. My business is to serve Jesus Christ—I am working for the Illinois Central to cover expenses."

A few months after I again boarded the train of my friend and asked him about the fate of the girls. There came a light of a greater joy than I had seen in his face before as he said: "We took the girls home and the next day found them a safe boarding place. We took them to our church and last Sunday they were baptized into our communion as members. They belong now to Him." I was not surprised a little later to find that his first name was "Andrew," for I remembered: "And Andrew first findeth his own brother-Simon and saith to him, We have found the Christ. And he brought him to Jesus."—Congregationalist

MEMORIAL DAY OBSERVATIONS. Bethlehem Church, Alamance, Co., N. C.

There are 670 graves in the cemetery at Bethlehem.

Julius Tickle (Son of Lewis and Sallie Tickle) was born June 17, 1836, died Nov. 20, 1851, aged 15 years. His was the first grave made here.

June 21, 1852, Sarah Simpson, daughter of Tobias Waynick and wife of Faucitt Simpson was buried here. The second grave.

The cemetery was begun in November, 1851.

Peter Geringer was the oldest man buried here, he being 90 years and 3 days old.

Sarah Strader, Daniel Waynick and Wm. Ireland date back for their birth to 1790.

Possibly Rev. Alfred Iseley and Peter Geringer were the two most prominent men of their day that are buried here. Susan Gilliam was the oldest person buried here. She was 98 years old, and lived in her last days at Geo. Kernodle's. She was an aunt of Mrs. Kernodle who raised her..

Men buried here who made history for this immediate section, previous to and during the Civil War were Rev. Alfred Iseley, Peter Geringer, John Ireland, Michael Strader, Daniel Waynick, Michael and Lewis Tickle, and Jas. Gilliam. Characteres more prominent during the civil war and since, who saw the wounds of the war, lived to almost or quite see them healed, are Samuel Ireland, Asa Iseley, James Barber, George Kernodle, Philip Waynick and others

In my way of looking at it, the death of Bro. David Michael and Sister Ida Kernodle was as great a loss to this church organization as it has sustained in recent years.

The deaths of Bro. Daniel Geringer, Sisters Essie Gilliam and Daisy Shepherd, were the saddest to me, of all the recent deaths in our church, dying as they did just at a time when it looked to me that we were so much in need of young men and women of character. At the time of Miss Daisy's death I wrote, "for a girl so pure in life there could be no home but heaven.

Sister Margaret McCray's death was a great loss to Bethlehem though she was a member of Union. She lived near Bethlehem and was a regular attendant and a faithful and well read Bible student. A good worker in our Sunday-school.

L. D. Rippey.

Alamance, N. C.

DIMPY DOT AND HER IDEALS.

My Dearest Angy:—A thousand blessings on your sweet self for answering my letter so soon. Don't, please don't, scold me any more for having different tastes from you in the matter of worship. You are the darlingest of saints, I know. But, Angy, I am perfectly miserable sometime when I think that you are not a society Methodist like poor little me. I somehow feel that you are missing the best of life.

How can you stand that old-fashioned service in your church? The time I was there the sermon took up at least one-half of the service. That was simply awful—not the sermon, because I didn't listen to the man. The sermon was not over thirty-five minutes, but just think of its having taken so much of the time that might have been given to the beautiful service that we have in our church!

I just know that you are all making your church too serious a thing. We young people here believe that the church is just a kind of frill on the garment of life. (I nearly dropped into poetry, didn't I, and I just hate it?) I don't think a sermon ought to be allowed to mar our beautiful service by its length or its nature. Our preacher doesn't preach on anything that brings an unpleasant thought. He is a true follower of—what do you call him? Arnold Matthews who said something about—oh, I can't remember it, but something about sweetness in light. That's my idea, Angy dear.

You ask me about George C. Why, I hardly know him, you silly thing; and, Angy, you positively must not use my name with his when you are talking to any of my set. He did call on me one time, and that was the last. He is good-looking, and they say he is mighty smart. Uncle John says he is the most promising young man in town. What do you reckon he wanted to talk about when he called? Nothing but plain, dull things like books, and travel, and politics, and things you read about in the horrid old reviews. He happened to mention Wilbur Wright and his machine, and I positively laughed in his face when I told him I had never heard of Wilbur Wright in my life. But, oh, Angy, would you believe it? When I yawned and proposed a game of cards, he said that he didn't know one card from another. Hadn't had time to fool with such things. Oh, Angy, that was the straw that broke the elephant's back. Just think of a man in this day that won't and can't play cards. Ain't that the limit? He must have saw the disgust in my face, for he soon left, and I ain't seen him since. Uncle John told me next day when I spoke of it, that George was capable of taking a big part

THIS
O.I.C.
SOW WEIGHED 932 LBS.
AT 23 MONTHS OLD
IONIA GIRL

I have started more breeders on the road to success than any man living. I have the largest and finest herd in the U. S. Every one an early developer, ready for the market at six months old. I want to place one hog in each community to advertise my herd. Write for my plan. "How to Make Money from Hogs." G. S. BENJAMIN, R. F. D. 27 Portland, Mich.

Let Us Send You This Switch ON APPROVAL

or any other article you may select from our large new Catalog, illustrating all the latest

Paris Fashions in Hair Dressings

Our immense business, the largest of its kind in the world, enables us to buy and sell at big money-saving prices. These switches are extra short stem, made of splendid quality selected human hair, and to match any ordinary shade.

2 oz. 20 in. Switch	.....	$ .95
2 oz. 22 in. Switch	.....	1.25
2 1-2 oz. 24 in. Switch	.....	2.25
20 in. Light Weight Wavy Switch	.....	2.50
Our 28 in. Wavy Switch	.....	5.65
Featherweight Stemless Switch, 22 in., natural wavy	.....	4.95
Fluffy Ruffler, Natural Curly	.....	5.00
Directoire Braid, 2 3-4 oz. finest long natural wavy hair	.....	6.75
Chignon Choiffure, full back piece, curly hair, dressed in 14 puffs, as worn in illustration	.....	4.95
890 other sizes and grades of Switches	.....	60c to $25
Pompadour, Natural curly	.....	2.85
Wigs, Ladies' & Men's	.....	$5 to $50.00

Illustrated Beauty Book FREE

Send sample of your hair and describe article you want.

We will send prepaid On Approval. If you find it perfectly satisfactory and a bargain, remit the amount. If not, return to us. Rare, peculiar and gray shades are a little more expensive; write for estimate. Our Free Catalog also contains valuable directions on "The Proper Care of the Hair." Write us today.

PARIS FASHION CO., Dept. 825, 209 State Street, CHICAGO
Largest Mail Order Hair Merchants in the World.

RAISE MONEY FOR YOUR CHURCH.

We offer you an easy method. Send us a photograph of your church or your pastor, and we will send you 500 high grade post cards, with photograph on each card, and scripture verse if desired. Sell these cards at 10 cents each. When sold, remit us $20.00 and keep the balance. You can do this in a week. We will return photograph.

LAKE SHORE SUPPLY CO.,
225 Broad St., St. Joe, Michigan.

in the game of brains and energy and manhood (I believe they were the words). But, Angy, dear, deliver me from the man that can't play cards and dance.

That last word reminds me of Laney. Now, there's a darling for you. Poor boy! He's not much of a business man and won't let his mother and sisters sponge on him. But, Angy, you ought to see him in a ball-room. He is positively delicious when you see him in full dress and leading the German. He's the dearest man in a dance and other functions I know of. Mamma don't like him. She says he has got no money and owes nearly everybody in town. Uncle John don't like him because he's got no brains, he says. But he's just a darling of a dresser and dancer, and that's enough for this girl. I'll catch him if I can.

But you are tired of this, I know, dearest of girls. I may run up to see you in a few days. I don't see how I'm to stand it here until we go to Atlantic City for the summer. (Oh, Laney is going, too!) I'm out nearly every night at some card party or dance, but that is getting dull, as it is the same people. I stay in bed till eleven. Then I get up and manage to worry through dinner. Then I take a nap. Then I go shopping or driving, and then it is time for some social function at night. It is dull, but I feel that I am learning a heap, and that I am developing what Uncle John calls womanhood. Don't you think so?

But, dear, this is positively the last line of this letter.

Your own, Dimpy Dot.
—In Raleigh Christian Advocate.

In the chapter on "Giving" in the Mahabharata, the great epic of India, it is written: "A man who has ten cows should give one, and the man who has one hundred cows should give ten, and the man who has one thousand should give one hundred, all giving proportionately."

Die! no; God's children never die,
But after this brief life is spent
They live 'mid possibilities
Made perfect and with power to grasp
The infinite.
Nor is this all—when the green sod
Hath hid from mortal eye the form
Of clay, they still live, by impress
They have made on lives of others.
Every upward aspiration is God's angel
undefiled;
And in every "O my Father," slumbers deep a "Here, my child." —Sel.

TO KEEP LIGHT DRESSES CLEAN.

Magnesia may be obtained either in powder or in square cakes, and it is very effective in cleaning laces and delicate fabrics. Sift or rub it on the parts to be cleaned, and lay them away in a box or drawer where they will be undisturbed for a day or so, and then shake them out. It is a very good plan to apply the magnesia in this way when putting away party dresses that have become slightly soiled. The magnesia absorbs the dust, and when you take the dresses out to wear them the next time, they will be fresh and dainty. The magnesia is also effective, when applied in the same way, for removing grease-spots.—Woman's Home Companion for June.

STOVES

Direct From Factory At Factory Prices.

We pay the freight. First-class goods and a saving of from 25 to 50 per cent. Guaranteed. Write for catalogue and prices.

DeLOACH SALES CO., Bridgeport, Ala.

Books for Every Christian Home.

Do you know why you are a member of the Christian Church?
Do you understand what the church stands for and teaches?
If not, send and get a copy of the "Principles and Government of the Christian Church," just revised and greatly improved by order of the Southern Christian Convention.

Cloth binding per copy, post paid 50 cts.

Limp Cloth binding per copy, post paid 35 cts.

Paper binding per copy, post paid 25 cts.

Handsome Persian Morocco, with name in gilt $1.25.

The Southern Christian Convention also Ordered Another Book Published, PREPARING THE SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER TO TEACH. Edited by Profs. W. A. Harper, W. C. Wicker and W. P. Lawrence.

The book is neatly printed and bound and is invaluable to the Sunday-school worker, 236 pages.

Paper binding per copy, postpaid, 60 cts.

Cloth binding per copy, postpaid, 90 cts.

To Sunday-schools, paper binding 50 cts. cloth 75 cts.

Have You Read That Thrilling and Inspiring Story of His Own Life, MOTHER'S ANSWERED PRAYER, BY REV. P. H. FLEMING, D. D.?

Cloth binding, postpaid 55 cts.

All these books should be in your home. Order at once

For sale by: THE CHRISTIAN SUN, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

IT'S INTERESTING

to hear the different comments on different shoes. All shoes have some good points; Style or comfort or service.

WALK-OVER SHOES

have all the good points; style and comfort and service and their price is the best point of all. $3.50, 4.00 & 5.00.

Foster Shoe Co., Burlington, N. C.

Dry Goods, Notions, Ready Made Clothing.

When in Burlington visit our large store, supplied always with the very best and latest styles and novelties.

Our Dry Goods are of latest designs, and our Ready Made Clothing cannot be surpassed in quality and price.

Come, See. Be Convinced.

B. A. SELLARS & SONS. BURLINGTON, N. C.

DIED.*Hofler.

In Gates Co., N. C., March 25, 1909, Townsend Mofler departed this life. Born in 1842. On June 11, 1862, he was married to Miss Sallie A. Holfer, who survives him. May the grace of God comfort and sustain her in these dark hours of sorrow and bereavement.

J. M. Roberts.

Hamlet.

Little Virgie Hamlet passed from time to the great beyond on Saturday before the first Sunday in May. She was three years old, a sweet, bright little girl, loved by every one that knew her.

On Saturday before third Sunday, Vernon Hamlett, 21 months old was called from the same home to join his sister in praising the heavenly Father in song, this being the last child in the home of Brother Benn Hamlet and his wife.

Felton.

Richard Felton died March 3, 1909, in the 75th year of his age. For about 30 years he had been a devout member of Eure's Christian church, Gates Co., N. C., and for a number of years one of her most faithful deacons.

His devoted wife and five dutiful children are left to mourn their loss. Four children have gone before. May God bless and comfort them in their sorrow.

Sunbury, N. C. J. M. Roberts.

Hensley.

William Finley Hensley, infant son of Edward and Pattie Hensley, of Burlington, N. C., May 2, 1909, aged 10 months, and 9 days. The little one had been sick since about the first of the year. He was a bright little child and a great joy to his parents. The funeral services were conducted by the writer at Bethel, Caswell county, and the interment was made in the church cemetery at that place. May God bless and comfort the bereaved parents.

P. H. Fleming.

Mebane.

Whereas the supreme Ruler of the universe has in his infinite wisdom removed from among us our worthy and esteemed brother, Joseph H. Mebane, and whereas his faithful duties in helping to support the church have ceased, making it eminently proper that we record our appreciation of his service,

Be it resolved, 1st, That the wisdom and ability which he exercised in the aid of the church will be held in high remembrances of him.

Resolved 2nd, That the removal of such a member from among us leaves a vacancy and a shadow that will be deeply realized by all the members and friends of the church of which he was a faithful member.

Resolved 3rd, That we extend to the bereaved family and relatives of our deceased brother our deepest sympathy and express our hope that even so great a loss to us may be overruled for good in this world by Him that doeth all things well.

Resolved 4th, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the records of the Church book, a copy printed in the Christian Sun, also a copy in the South Boston News, and one sent to the bereaved family.

Respectfully submitted.

R. D. Thompson, Sr.,
N. T. Farmer,
Committee.

Self.

The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Self, of Burlington, N. C., May 17, 1909, aged 3 years, 4 months and 2 days. Her death was quite a shock to her fond parents. She had been sick, but was thought to be doing well until Sunday before she died on the following Monday. She was the baby in the home, and will be greatly missed by those who knew her and loved her. The services were conducted from the home by the writer, and the interment was made in Pine Hill cemetery. May the God of consolation comfort the hereaved.

P. H. Fleming.

A NIGHT OF PRAYER.

Just out of Boston a young girl came to me and asked: "Do you believe that God would save my brother, if my mother and I should pray all night for him?" I told her that I believed God had put the question in her mind, and that I would advise her to put Him to the test.

She told me afterwards that they returned from the meeting about ten o'clock, and that they began their prayer at that hour. They continued in prayer until midnight, and until two o'clock, and almost three. Then, believing God had heard and would answer, they went to sleep.

To my certain knowledge that young man had not before that been within four miles of the place of meeting; but the next night, with never a word spoken to him, he was in the meeting, and at the first opportunity he arose and said: "I wish you would pray for me. I have been deeply convicted of sin, and all night I felt the greatest desire to be a Christian." The young man was converted that night, and has since been a consistent member of the church.

Such illustrations might be multiplied without limit and they all prove this—God only waits for us to prove Him, and He is more willing to give than we are to receive.—(Author unknown)

—Ex-Governor Glenn, in his recent tour, raised $25,000 for home missions. He is engaged to help New Jersey and South Carolina in their fight for prohibition.

"The Oxford Teachers' par excellence"

JUST ISSUED!

OXFORD

Teachers' Bibles and S. S. Scholars' Bibles

With New 20th Century Helps arranged in One Alphabetical Order.

THE HELPS

The Christian Advocate, Nashville, says: "The helps are real helps. Unlike those in many of the cheap Bibles, they are not simply thrown together in hodge-podge fashion, but represent the freshest and ablest work of the foremost modern scholars."

Address Christian Sun,
Elon College, N. C.

Bible is the Bible of the World.

NOW READY!
SIX NEW EDITIONS

OXFORD

Black Faced Type BIBLES

Three on Oxford White Paper. Three on the famous Oxford India Paper.

Pearl 32mo. A wonderful clear type in a small-size book.

Minion 16mo. Ready October 1907. A model hand Bible.

Brevier 16mo. Large type in small compass. "A quart in a pint measure."

"The new Bible just published by the Oxford Press is, without doubt, the finest product of the kind ever given to the public."

ASK FOR THE OXFORD EDITION

REMEMBER: That we guarantee satisfaction and sell to you cheaper than the publisher and dealers do. Our business is by mail and express and prices quoted are the prices of goods delivered to you. We can furnish you the Oxford, or the Holman Teacher's Bible at prices ranging from $1.35 to $4.00. Send for our catalogue or write us what you want. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN, Elon College, N. C.

FOLKS, PLACES AND THINGS.

A Chicago attorney who says modestly that he tries to improve every fair opportunity for conversation on religion with men of his acquaintance testifies that men are constantly growing more and more willing to talk about religious matters. "One rainy day some years ago," he recalled, "going down one of the principal streets of Chicago, I suddenly ran into a member of the City Council. 'Say,' he said bluntly, 'are you a candidate for any-thing this campaign?' I didn't really intend to say it, but quick as a flash the words popped out of my mouth: 'Me? I'm a candidate for heaven.' The man gripped my arm nervously and pulled me into a doorway out of the rain. 'Look here,' he said tensely, 'what made you say that to me?' 'I don't know, I'm sure,' I answered. 'It flashed into my mind all of a sudden. I wasn't planning it. I mean it, though.' 'Well, you've knocked me all in a heap,' he said huskily. 'I'm a candidate for heaven too, but I've come pretty near forgetting it. I'm a church member, and I thought I was a pretty good Christian when I went into politics. I haven't done anything very shameful yet, but I have been losing sight of my religion and getting awful careless. This Council business hasn't been good food for me. I've been kept out late nights, and I always go with the boys for supper at some restaurant after Council meetings are over. They're a hilarious crowd, and we go bumming around the town more than is good for anybody. I've neglected my family and neglected my church, and this thing you've said brings it all back over me. I'm going to do better. I don't have to let this political business lead me off. I'm glad that thing was put into your head to say to me. I needed it.'

"One day," continued the attorney. "I had been working with another lawyer over a case; and when we finally wrapped up the papers and he was ready to leave, the words slipped out of my mouth sort of musingly: 'Well, all so; 'the wages of sin is death.'" He whirled around and stared at me fiercely. "What do you mean by that? You trying to preach to me?" "Not a bit of it," I answered. "What are you getting excited about? That's in the Bible. Don't you think it's true?" He paused and studied several seconds. "Yes, it is true," he answered slowly. "I know it's true. And I haven't been living like I ought to; I know that. There are a lot of things I have been doing that I wouldn't dare to have my wife know. I'm going to try to cut them out. I don't want the wages.'"—The Interior.

ADVANCE ORDERS

ARE NOW BEING TAKEN FOR

ABRAHAM SNETHEN

"THE BAREFOOT PREACHER"

This is a most remarkable and wonderful book. Full of thrilling incidents and hairbreadth escapes, with nothing short of divine protection. His actual life experiences were miraculous and more thrilling than a romance.

Now is the time to get the book, and after reading it you will not want to part with it for two times its cost. The book will contain about 275 pages. Large clear print on good, heavy paper, and handsomely bound in cloth.

Only one edition will be printed, and the price is $1.00. But until July 1, 1909, we will receive your

ADVANCE ORDERS AT 75 CENTS

Christian Publishing Association

J. N. Hess, Agent, Dayton, Ohio

GIPSY SMITH: HIS LIFE AND WORK.

By Himself.

This is a grand record of achievement. A poor lad, born in a gipsy camp, has been used as an instrument in God's hands to awaken multitudes throughout the world to spiritual consciousness. He tells in this book of 330 pages his rich and varied experiences from birth through years of success in soul-winning. The style of the book is not boastful; it is a humble attempt to satisfy the persistent requests of his friends for a history of his romantic career. The narrative is prefaced by appreciative introductions by Dr. Alexander McLaren and G. Campbell Morgan. Several illustrations add to the interest of the book.

We offer "Gipsy Smith" handsomely bound in cloth as a premium for two new subscriptions to The Christian Sun at $1.50 each; or for one new subscription and 45 cents additional. We will sell it in combination with a renewal to The Sun for $2.20. The book alone will be sent to any address for $1.10, postpaid.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

ADVERTISING DEPARTMENT

For Advertising Rates Apply
Religious Press Advertising Syndicate
(Jacobs & Company)

Home Office, Clinton, S. C., who have charge of the advertising department of this paper.

Jacobs & Company, J. F. Jacobs, J. D. Jacobs. Home Office, Clinton, S. S...

When in Burlington call at

T. H. STROUD'S

Store for DRUGS, SOFT DRINKS, and anything desired in drugs and Toilet Articles.

To Drive Out Malaria and Build up the System.

Take the Old Standard GROVE'S CASTELESS CHILL TONIC. You know what you are taking. The formula is plainly printed on every bottle, showing it is simply Quinine and Iron in a tasteless form, and the most effectual form. For grown people and children. 50c.

PERSONALLY CONDUCTED
—TOUR—

"AROUND THE CONTINENT"

Over the Rocky Mountains to the Pacific, the Alaska-Yukon Exposition, Los Angeles During the Elks National Convention and through the Yellowstone National Park—Via the

SEABOARD AIR LINE RAILWAY
in charge of

Mr. C. H. Gattis, District Passenger Agent, Raleigh, N. C., and Chaperoned by Mrs. C. H. Gattis over the entire trip.

Leaves July 3rd, returns August 6th, circling the United States in a solid Pullman train composed of the highest grade and modern design of sleeping compartment observation cars and Pullman dining cars.

The most inexpensive trip ever operated from the Southeast, through Atlanta, Birmingham, Memphis, stopping at Kansas City, Denver, Colorado Springs, Salt Lake, Los Angeles, Santa Barbara, Montgomery, Santa Cruz, San Francisco, Portland, Seattle, Tacoma, Spokane, through Yellowstone National Park, St. Paul, Chicago, returning home through Cincinnati and C. & O. through Richmond.

Trip cost will include railroad and Pullman fares, hotels, dining car meals, stage ride of five (5) and one-half (1/2) days through the Yellowstone National Park, transfers, side trips, carriage and automobile rides at stop-over points and all actual expenses necessary.

Side trips will be arranged at all stop-over points to places of interest, all details being arranged in advance and looked after enroute.

An attractive 33-day trip through the "Greatest Country in the World" covering a distance of 8,755 miles of travel in a modern Pullman train with superb dining car service, eating and sleeping in the best of hotels, sight-seeing "The Wonders of the West" leisurely, with all details arranged in advance is a lux-

1908—ANOTHER RECORD BREAKING YEAR FOR THE
Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co.

GROWTH OF COMPANY.

New Business Paid For. (Not Including Additions.)

1904 Largest Year in Previous History of the Company .....	$73,876,037.00
1905 Largest Year in Previous History of the Company .....	$90,334,038.00
1906 Largest Year in Previous History of the Company .....	$93,885,273.00
1907 Largest Year in Previous History of the Company .....	$102,242,289.00
1908 Largest Year in Previous History of the Company .....	$109,773,709.00

SURPLUS ACCOUNT DECEMBER 31st, 1908.

Dividends apportioned for payment in 1909 .....	$11,199,411.56
Deferred dividends on policies maturing after 1909 .....	$16,847,000.00
Total Future (assigned) Dividends .....	$28,046,411.56
Unassigned Surplus .....	$4,465,646.40
Total Surplus Funds (on basis of values furnished by New York and Massachusetts Insurance Departments .....	$32,512,057.96

T. ARCHIBALD GARY,

Gen'l Agent for Virginia and North Carolina,
601 Mutual Assurance Society Building,
Richmond, Va.

During 1908

(As in previous years)

We want you in our business, for we have what you want in your homes—the very best, most substantial and handsome furniture at bottom prices. We are also the undertakers.

Burke Furniture and Coffin Company

BUKLINGTON, N. C.

Southern Railway

Operating Over 7,000 Miles of Railway. Quick Route to all Points North, South, East and West.

For Speed, Comfort, Courteous Employees, travel via the Southern Railway.

Rates, Schedules and other information furnished by any of the undersigned.

R. L. VERNON, Trav. Pass. Agt., J. H. WOOD, Dist. Pass. Agt.,
Charlotte, N. C. Asheville, N. C.

S. H. HARDWICK, P. T. M., W. H. TAYLOE, G. P. A.,
Washington, D. C.

Elon College.

Co-educational. Established 1890.

Thorough College courses leading to M. A., A. B., Ph. B. and Lit. B. degrees. Strong and experienced Faculty with highest University training. Good Library, Reading Room, Laboratories, Literary Societies. Excellent Music, Art and Business Departments.

Beautiful and healthful location, 17 miles east of Greensboro, on Southern Railway. Best moral and religious influence. No hazing. New students met by reception committees from young people's Christian organizations connected with the college. Good equipment. A large new dormitory, with modern conveniences, has recently been built to meet the requirements of growing patronage.

EXPENSES UNUSUALLY MODERATE.

For catalogue or further information, address

EMMETT L. MOFFITT, LL. D., President.

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

Write at once to the undersigned for cost of trip, schedule and itinerary. If maps, timetables and booklets of the lines over which the party will travel, are desired, send 30 cents in stamps.

C. H. GATTIS,
District Passenger Agent,
Raleigh, N. C.

State Library

The Christian Sun.

In Essentials—Unity, in Non-Essentials—Liberty, in All Things—Charity.

ESTABLISHED 1844.

GREENSBORO N. C., WEDNESDAY, JUNE 2, 1909.

VOLUME LXI.

NUMBER 22.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

Idiots and Missions. There came down a man from the mountains the other day who tells the Lexington Dispatch a very shocking story of an idiot near Round Knob, in McDowell County, N. C. This pitiable and helpless mortal is tied out to a tree, says the informant, in the day time and led back to the parental cabin and tied in one end of it at night. This has been going on for years, and the State takes no steps to take and keep the unfortunate being.

Now all that is very deplorable, and our sympathies are with the idiot and our condemnation is for a system that allows such. But the informant, concludes The Dispatch, "grew sarcastic in his reference to the matter and spoke of the idea of sending money to heathen countries for foreign missions 'while we allow such human suffering as this, allow an idiot to be cared for in this style, hitched out like a beast, right under our noses.'"

When we read that conclusion we decided there were two idiots instead of one in the story. No sensible and sane man, if half informed, and capable of any sort of logical reasoning, could possibly connect the "poor heathens" with this North Carolina idiot.

We wonder if this informant could possibly conceive of how a single dollar withheld from foreign missions would have helped or benefited in the least this poor unfortunate mountaineer? And we wonder if it ever entered the wisdom of this Solomon to consider that the very folks who give most liberally to foreign missions would be the very first and foremost to give for the benefit and blessing of this poor idiot?

Once there came a woman bearing an alabaster box of ointment, precious, fragrant, costly. This box the woman brake and anointed the Master. Immediately protest was made that here was waste, that this woman had wrought wrongfully, that her money could have been put to better use. The Master rebuked them and said let her alone. The greed of that gang, not the desire to save and benefit, called forth the Master's protest. That same protest has been sending up its howl ever since.

If ever any money was spent to good intent and purpose, that money was for missions. But how the worldly and the idiotic have howled and protested against it. And you may put it down, when and where you will, that those who give for missions are the readiest and the willingest to give for other good and benevolent purposes; and conversely, those who withhold most closely from giving to missions will withhold most closely in giving to other good and benevolent purposes. There is serious doubting if the "sarcastic" informant of The Dispatch ever gave a dollar to foreign missions in all his life. He talks like a man who has not given to that, and that poor mountain idiot will stay chained to that tree the rest of his unfortunate and unhappy life if men like this are to be depended upon to give him support and comfort in better quarters.

Missionaries and Men.—Many otherwise wellinformed people persist in having their own beliefs about missions and missionaries without stopping to consider or trying to find out. There has been so much soft sentiment in connection with missionary effort and enterprise that many will not read what a paper prints, or hear what a speaker says, about missions. They think that the whole business is one of sentiment.

Now in truth there is no problem more practical than that of missions. There is no money, from a business point of view, that brings larger returns. The sentiment is only the outgushing of over anxious souls. The practical fact abides. We found this noble sentiment in an editorial of the Youth's Companion recently and it appeals so forcibly to heart and mind that we give this portion of it:—

For weeks the papers have been teeming with news of slaughter in Asia Minor. No one knows how many Christians the Mohammedans have killed, and no one ever will know; but one thing is known of all men: that the American missionaries, as usual, stayed at their posts. Some of them lost their lives. All endured hardship; but not one flinched or ran or weakened; and during the worst period of the massacres the missionary compounds were the only refuge for thousands of Christian men, women, and children.

It was the same in China during the "Boxer" outbreak; it has been the same everywhere and in all times, so that to speak of the courage of missionaries is to utter a commonplace.

But that is not all. Wherever Christian missionaries are stationed—and especially American missionaries—they are sowing seeds of patriotism; cultivating a spirit of love for country and implanting the idea of duty toward country among natives who never dreamed of it before. They are healing the sick and supplanting old superstitions with a scientific knowledge of medicine. They have stopped the ravages of smallpox in China. They are lifting the burden of centuries of oppression from the shoulders of mothers and giving to children the only possible hope of education. The atrocities of Congo were brought to public attention by missionaries, and such measure of alleviation as has been attained was due to the efforts of missionaries.

Men give money cheerfully and lavishly to the sufferers from a Johnstown flood, and San Francisco fire or a Messina earthquake. The money contributed to foreign missions in any one year relieves more physical suffering and creates more material happiness than the funds raised for all three of those great disasters.

—A ten months old child at Roanoke, Va., fell into a dishpan in which the water was two inches deep, and drowned May 27.

—Petersburg, Va., has the unhappy distinction of voting "wet" by a large majority in a local option election last Thursday.

—The International Reform Bureau, of Washington, D. C., has sent out a call to all Sunday schools of our country to observe June 27 as Temperance Sunday.

—Count Zeppelin, the German inventor, staid in the air with his dirigible airship 22 hours, traversing in the time 256 miles and alighting at will. This surpasses all previous records of the dirigible type of balloons.

FROM THE FIELD.

Shiloh.

We held memorial services on last second Sunday. The congregation was large and the tribute of flowers placed on the graves impressed one with the love and respect that is cherished in the heart for those who have passed over. "Dead, but not forgotten," is the message that loving friends bring in their beautiful wreaths on memorial day.

I am now well into the second year of my work with the Shiloh people, and my association with them in the Master's work has been pleasant. Increased interest is manifested along some lines, especially in the Sunday-school. Under the superintendency of Prof. T. M. Wright the Sunday-school has greatly increased in numbers and interest. A successful Baracca class has been organized, which adds great interest to the work among the young. An adult class has also been recently organized.

Antioch.

The membership here is not large, but we have some earnest and faithful workers. The congregations are good, and we are praying for a great harvesting of the young people into the Lord's garner.

Shady Grove.

I am serving my second year with this church. We held impressive memorial services here on last third Sunday, with a large congregation. The work here is moving on in an even tenor. We have some good people here who have treated us very kindly, and seem willing to stand up for Jesus and fight the good fight. We pray for a gracious and powerful outpouring of the Holy Spirit that shall bring the entire membership into the Lord's service.

Liberty.

I find here a small, but faithful and loyal band of workers. They seem to have the cause of the Master at heart, and are striving to build up His kingdom. The kind reception and consideration they have given me is a source of cheer and inspiration to greater service.

I ask the prayers of the brotherhood that I may be a faithful under shepherd of the flocks over which He has placed me.

R. L. Williamson.

Alabama Letter.

When at Lanett I promised to write at an early date to the Sun. We had in many respects a fine meeting at Lanett, in which great good was accomplished. The closing service was truly inspiring. I shall never forget that occasion: God be praised for such meetings. Since then I have been with Rev.

B. F. Young at Riverview for a few days where we had a good meeting, but do not know as to results. I have held good meetings at all my churches the past month and in some respects my work is in fine condition. That was indeed an impressive service at Antioch last second Saturday, Memorial Day. Antioch observes this occasion on Saturday before the second Sunday in May of each year. I think the last was the most impressive of any that I have attended. The recitations were appropriate and to the point, the music was excellent. In fact I may say for Antioch in many things they are doing well.

We hold memorial services next third Saturday at McGuire's Chapel and at New Hope on the fourth Saturday. All parties interested will please observe the date and meet with us and help make the service a success. We will meet early in the morning and put the cemetery in order, and begin service at 11 a. m. and decorate the graves in the afternoon.

We are expecting a great service at each place. We are expecting a fine meeting at Pleasant Grove next Sunday. The Missionary Rally is to be at that church at that time.

Our Mission Work at Wadley is in a very hopeful condition. We are getting ready to build a house of worship at that place. The committee on plans will meet tonight, and make definite arrangements as to the kind of building we will erect. It is our purpose to build a neat, comfortable house, and while we know it will require an effort, we are determined by the help of the Lord to succeed.

Now brethren if there is one in the church north or south, east or west that feels an interest in our work at Wadley, Ala., and can do so, will you please aid us with a contribution the size of which you may determine yourself with God's help. I assure you it will be appreciated. We are expecting to have our building ready for dedication by the time our conference meets next fall.

I have been very busy this year, Bro. Editor, but will try to write more often in future.

G. D. Hunt.

Wadley, Ala.

Columbus, Ga. Letter.

The dedicatory services at the Waverly Terrace Christian church the second Sunday instant was an occasion of joy to many a heart. Mention of Dr. W. W. Staley's being present to conduct these services has already been made through the Sun. While in the city Dr. Staley preached five sermons at the new church. On account of being engaged in a series of meetings in Girard, it was the writer's privilege to hear him only once. It was indeed a pleasure to have Dr. Staley in our midst and those who heard him preach were edified, uplifted and inspired by his earnest, masterly discourses. Of his sermons one of our daily papers said:

"Last evening at the new Christian church on Waverly Terrace, the Rev. W. W. Staley of Suffolk, Va., edified and entertained a congregation of earnest men and women with one of the most lucid expositions of the character of Matthew the evangelist it has ever been the pleasure of the writer to hear.

Dr. Staley is a minister of great force and power, appealing as he does to the intellect, reason and judgment of his audience rather than to their emotions, and with the earnestness of teacher of righteousness who is absolutely sure of his position, he leaves impressions on their minds and hearts that cannot but make deeper and more consistent believers in the religion he expounds. His simplicity of manner, purity of diction, clearness of expression, soundness of logic, all appeal irresistibly to a thinking man and makes his sermons gems of the first water. To listen to him expound the eternal truths of the Word once is to create an unquenchable desire to hear him again."

Our meeting at Girard began on Sunday night, the 9th instant. Rev. B. F. Young of Lanett, Ala., came to our assistance on the following Tuesday and remained until Saturday. Bro. Young was at one time pastor of this church and is much beloved by the people. His sermons were greatly enjoyed. We had planned to have with us the second week Rev. G. D. Hunt, Truett, Ala., who, on account of not being well and there being sickness in his family, failed to come. The meeting continued, however, until the fourth Sunday night, the writer doing all the preaching during the last week. Today we are thankful because the church was much revived and a good meeting was ours to enjoy. Seven members were added to the church.

Last Sunday at 11 a. m. and again at 7:30 p. m., Rev. J. W. Elder preached for North Highland church. His sermons were much enjoyed and highly appreciated by the congregation.

Bro. C. B. Terrell, Treasurer of our North Highlands church, is very feeble. He has been in poor health for several months. We are hoping and praying for his recovery.

The writer is under special obligations to Bro. J. F. Posey for a handsome twelve-dollar set of the "Self Interpreting Bible" received as a present a few days ago. Bro. Posey is Supt. of our Girard Sunday-school.

G. O. Lankford.

Columbus, Ga., May 26, 1909.

Greensboro.

Bro. Editor:—Please excuse me for failing to write oftener. The work here is holding up very nicely. Several members have been received since my last writing. We are looking forward with much interest to our dedication the first Sunday in June, hoping it may be a kind of reunion of those that were identified with the work in its early history. Come one, come all, and let us have a grand time, but above all, pray for the Lord's blessing upon the work.

J. W. Bolton.

CHURCH LOAN FUND.

We wish to acknowledge receipt of the following; O'Kelly's Chapel: Jessie Massey, $1.00; Vallie D. Massey, $1.00. Bethlehem church: Sunday-school, $5.00; total $7.00.

Thank you R. S. Petty Sec.

TIME.

Turn to the third chapter of Ecclesiastes and study the first eight verses, and learn what they say about time. The first verse is a natural introduction to them and begins with, To everything there is a season, and a time to every purpose under the heaven. If these verses are studied they will be found very interesting and instructive. It will take too much space to comment on these verses, so will consider mainly the one leading thought, time.

The children of years ago were fond of playing with the hour glass to see the sand run out the limited hour. Then they would turn it on the other end of the glass time piece to repeat the same over again. Thus they would play and turn until they tired of it—not thinking how fast time was running away and bearing them on the other side. When life was new and feet were nimble how glad were they to be jolly and playful—waiting with glad hearts for the years which would bring maturity, accomplishment and success. Bounding over the way on quick errands, or romping in the lawn amid flower beds and sweet sented breezes the happy days of many a child was spent. They excelled each other in thoughtless acts and natural simplicity.

We have a past, and a living present but no future time is given. This very moment is all we have of it—and it will be the last and only time to many. Have heard it stated that "time is money." But it is better than money—it is worth more than anything else we possess, because it gives us the opportunity of being rich in the faith of Christ, and to abound in the fullness of his grace. It waits for none but conveys them silently on to the end. While it is passing it will be a wise thing to make the very best use of it.

For more than six thousand years it has been running into the ocean of eternity—it has been an everflowing stream draining the centuries and flooding the ages for eternity. The meaning of time is not so well understood nor its worth so fully realized and appreciated until it is gone—flown from our reach forever. Then some begin to wish it had been better spent and more wisely improved, as they see its true meaning and better understand its proper relation to them. So much of it has been wasted in unnecessary sleeping and dreaming that we wake up to its responsibility with great fear and much trembling. A dying pilgrim was once heard to repeat the word "lost," as he rolled in restless confusion on his bed. It was a surprise to his companion, and she inquired of him what he meant by using the word "lost," as he was a professing Christian. "I," said he, "I feel that the Saviour loves me and I love him, but I have lost so much time, so many golden opportunities have passed forever away from me—I have lost so much in doing nothing, it troubles me and disturbs me when I ought to be taking a peaceful rest before entering the unknown state." No doubt this will be the unpleasant experience of many more; it is the regret of so many to-day. It will be a blank place in their lives, and a deep sorrow down to the last. If any one is touched by these reflections let him try to redeem his time and shun the days which are evil and full of anxious forebodings. As these lines flow from an anxious pen some one looks up to our Father breathing prayerful thoughts somewhat like these: "Our Father, I want to be true and pure. I love Thee and desire to have the indwelling of Thy spirit. Help me, cleanse me, save me. Give a sweet-spirited life, and bless me now and forever."

Time has been a friend to us and lavished many blessings upon us. He has become very gray with the passing ages, but will not die until, "The angel which I saw stand upon the sea and upon the earth, lifted up his hand to heaven and swore by him that liveth forever and ever, who created heaven, and the things that therein are, and the earth and the things that therein are, and the sea, and the things which are therein, that there should be time no longer."

Time never turns backward—on its wheels it continues to go forward—they cannot be reversed, and unlike all other wheels they never stop by the way until their race is run. The right name would be perpetual motion until stopped by the power which first gave the motion. "The wheels of nature are not made to roll backward, everything presses on toward eternity, from the birth of time an impetuous current has set in, which bears all the sons of men toward that interminable ocean. Meanwhile Heaven is attracting to itself whatever is congenial to its nature, is enriching itself by the spoils of earth and collecting within its capacious bosom, whatever is pure, permanent and divine." So then while on the journey never look backward, nor think backward too much but look to Him who tenderly says, Whosoever will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me. This has been done, can be, and will be done again by great multitudes who love and serve their Leader. It will require thought, time, faith, prayer, and a strong will to follow Him on to victory, but through Him all things can be done which are necessary for salvation.

Time may be compared to a ring cut in two. Thus giving it two ends, one end representing the beginning of time, and the other one showing its final ending. Then cometh the end of everything mortal, when this mortal will be robed with immortality, and the things which are seen will give place to the things which are not seen. Eternity may be compared to a solid ring, it being round has no end. Eternity is round forever. It has no beginning of days nor ending of years, but will exist in a perennial state. The circle of time will be broken, but the circle of eternity is like one endless chain.

J. T. Kitchen.

Dr. Cocheran, of Philadelphia, Secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Education, made these rather pointed, not to say caustic, remarks before the Presbyterian General Assembly at Denver, May 24:

"Why can't we get the young men to preach?" asked Dr. Cocheran. "I'll tell you. In the first place, there is but little Christianity in the home. If there is any, it is gone by the time the young man is ready for an education.

"Does he go for his education to a Christian school? A Presbyterian school? No. He goes to a Godless State university, and when he returns to his home town he puts religion at low ebb. And if you ministers find your churches at low ebb, know where to place the blame.

"The need in this board of education is not for more money, but for men. We cannot christianize these State universities, but we can put a shepherd in charge, and in this way keep these boys in the flock.

NOTES AND PERSONALS.

—The Board of Trustees of the Christian Orphanage hold their annual session at the Orphanage this week.

—The Sun will carry next week full accounts of the Young People's Meeting and the Annual commencement at Elon College.

—The Elon College Commencement is on this week. The hosts are foregathered from far and near. The Sun will tell next week of the exercises.

—Rev. S. L. Baugher, pastor of the historic Christian church of Conshohocken, Pa., delivered last Sunday afternoon the memorial address at Valley Forge. Bro. Baugher is a busy, consecrated and successful pastor.

—"A Christian Endeavor Society in Every Church, a Teacher Training and Organized Class in Every Sunday School of the Southern Christian Convention." How is that for a motto for the young people of our churches and Sunday schools? To that end we are to labor with determined zeal till the work is done.

—We acknowledge with appreciation an invitation of Mr. and Mrs. Elisha Lee Everett, to the marriage of their daughter, Lucifine Jennings, to Mr. Alexander Savage Hargroves Wednesday June 9, 1909, 3 p. m., at Berea Christian Church, Driver, Va. We extend hearty congratulations and the best of good wishes to these good friends.

—Among the interested and faithful pastors who attended the Young People's Convention at Elon Saturday, Sunday and Monday last we were glad to meet and have conversation with Revs. S. B. Klapp and W. H. Bolton, Greensboro, Revs. W. T. Walters and A. W. Andes, of the Virginia Valley Conference, Rev. H. Scholtz, of Macon, Revs. C. C. Jones, C. H. Rowland, and C. E. Newman, of the Eastern Virginia Conference, and Rev. J. D. Wicker, of Sanford. These are among the pastors anxious and deeply interested about the work of young people in their churches.

—Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Maynard have issued invitations to the marriage of their daughter, Mary Alice, to Mr. D. L. Boone Wednesday, June 9, 1909, at 3:30 p. m. The marriage will be solemnized at the bride's home, near Mebane, N. C. Miss Mary is a most charming and accomplished woman, a graduate of Elon College and held deservedly in high esteem by a host of friends and admirers, and our friend "De" Boone, reared and educated at Elon College, and now a very prosperous and successful druggist of Durham, is to be congratulated in winning a hand and heart so fair and gracious.

—Bro. R. S. Petty, Greensboro, N. C., writing for the Committee of his church makes this worthy and meritorious appeal:—

"Our church is to be dedicated next Sunday, June 6. We need some more subscriptions and cash. Will you, kind reader, send yours in this week. We will greatly appreciate it if you will do this. The Greensboro Christian Church responds to every call and always will. So help us to pay off this debt that we may be of more service in the general work." Bro. Petty makes this appeal not without cause, for the Greensboro people have wrought to good purpose.

—We were mistaken in inferring last week from a printed program that Dr. McWhinney was well enough to be at a college commencement shortly. A personal letter brings the unwholesome news that Dr. McWhinney is a very sick man and that his condition is serious. The grand and good old man is full of years, honors, loyalty, and love.

NORFOLK LETTER.

Rev. J. W. Barrett and his people at Lambert's Point enjoyed a good meeting which closed about a week ago. Bro. Barrett was assisted by Rev. Mr. Ramsey of Berkley. There were fifteen or more conversions.

Sunday was a big day for our South Norfolk brethren. They were celebrating their fifth birthday. They have a good, strong, healthy young church, with a nice little house and church property costing them about $4,000 with all paid out except about $1,000.

They had prepared a special program covering the whole services for the day. Mr. C. W. Baines, Sec. State Sunday School Association, made the main address of the morning. Col. J. E. West, of Suffolk, Chairman of the Home Mission Com. of the E. Va. Conference, made a fine address in the afternoon on the subject of "Tithing."

Revs. W. H. Thompson, C. C. Ryan, and H. W. Elder participated in the afternoon service. Rev. M. L. Bryant of the Main St. Church, Berkley, filled the pulpit at night, preaching on the subject "Seeing Both Sides."

The Memorial Temple and the Third Church Sunday schools will join in their annual picnic on Tuesday, June 22, at Cape Henry.

The Third Church Sunday school had the largest attendance of its history as a morning school.

We have just closed a splendid meeting. Bro. Elder has preached some strong, forceful sermons. They were well received by those who heard them. The attendance has not been large. That is one of the greatest troubles with getting men and women saved in our cities today. They are not willing to put themselves under the influence of the gospel message and under the influence of a powerful meeting. In other words so many are not willing to be saved just yet—"not tonight, I'll get saved by and by" seems to be the thought of so many.

I am also persuaded that the modern methods of evangelists have had much to do with driving men and women from attending the services during revivals, not content to "preach Jesus and Him crucified," and depend on the Holy Spirit to cause conviction, but by every conceivable sort of proposition compel one to take a stand whether he will or not—thereby making them conspicuous before they are sufficiently under the power of the Spirit to rest under it, but it makes them resentful and they stay away from the services altogether. Bro. Elder's method of work is free from that, but he presents the message, gives an opportunity to accept or reject, and leaves the result with them and God.

We had fifteen conversions during the past week and all from our Sunday schools except three. Sunday we had a glorious day; at the close of the morning service ten united with the church and five more at the close of the evening service. For the special benefit of their friends and acquaintances that they may bear them up in prayer, I give their names: Mrs. May Green, Mrs. Margaret Green, Miss Evaline Deans, Lois Nichols, Ethel Nichols, Roy Nichols, Ruth Nichols, Vaneta Green, Robert Fanny, Addie Moore Davidson, Willmer Dennis, Edward Chroder, Wymer Manning, Lucile Manning, and Aurelia Manning.

We feel that the power and influence of this meeting will be felt in the years to come.

Bro. Ryan received two young men in the Memorial Temple Sunday night.

J. W. Manning.

FIELD NOTES.

Pleasant Hill.

The first Saturday and Sunday in May I filled my regular monthly appointment at Pleasant Hill. On Saturday we held our regular quarterly conference. The deacons reported the work of the church as being in a favorable condition.

On Sunday we had two services. In the morning service we made a special effort to raise funds for our conference apportionments. Uncle Welborn was with us, and gave us a very pointed talk on the subject of giving, after which a collection was taken, to the amount of about fourteen dollars. This collection with the amount that we already had on hand, brings our conference apportionments up to a little more than half. We expect to go up to Conference this fall with the finances of our church paid up in full, and if every member will do his or her part, as they ought to do, Pleasant Hill will be a banner church.

In the afternoon we had preaching by the pastor, and communion service, which was beautifully and impressively conducted by Uncle Wellons, who is much loved by the people of Pleasant Hill. And we all would be glad if he could honor us with his presence more often.

We have decided to hold our protracted meeting at Pleasant Hill week following the first Sunday in September, and I am hoping and praying that we may have one of the best meetings that we have had there for a number of years. We hope by that time to get a recess pulpit built, the aisles carpeted, and the interior of the church painted. These improvements will add greatly to the beautifying of our church. I am glad to say that we have the money in hand to do the work.

This is the second year that I have been serving these people, and I feel very much encouraged with the progress that we have made for the advancement of God's cause, and pray that God may continue to bless us and use us for still greater usefulness in extending His kingdom.

Shallow Ford.

On the second Sunday in each month I go to Shallow Ford. Here I meet with a very faithful and loyal people. The work here I consider as being very encouraging. The Sunday school and Christian Endeavor Society are doing noble work towards training the young people in active church service, and I pray that the good work may continue, for we need more young people to take active part in the work of the church.

The second Sunday in May we had a splendid Memorial Day at Shallow Ford. Uncle Wellons and Prof. Harper, of Elon College, were with us, and they both added considerable to the success of the occasion. At eleven o'clock Prof. Harper favored us with a very able and instructive memorial address, which was thoroughly enjoyed by the large congregation present. After the address, the children and many of the older people gathered up the many beautiful bouquets of flowers and marched to the well-kept cemetery, and after an appropriate song and prayer service, a bouquet of flowers was deposited on each grave. And then after an intermission of an hour or more, we returned to the house and had preaching and communion service. Uncle Wellons conducted the communion service, and it was done in a most impressive manner. A very large number communed, and the most of this number were young people. I don't think I ever felt the solemnity of such an occasion more in my life, and I trust that the impressions made in that service may be lasting to us all.

This is my first year to serve the Shallow Ford people, and so far I am favorably impressed with the work we have been able to do. My prayer is that we may be able to do even greater things for the Lord in the future than we have done in the past. There is one thing about the Shallow Ford people that I think is worthy of mention, and that is, they are up and ahead with their pastor's salary. If this could be said of all churches, the preachers would feel more like smiling.

W. J. Wells.

Elon College, N. C.

"The stars shine over the earth,
The stars shine over the sea.
The stars look up to God above,
The stars look down on me.
The stars shall shine for a thousand years,

A thousand years and a day,
But God and I will live and live
When the stars are passed away."

THE ALTERED QUESTION.

Voices, sad with sin and suffering,
From the lands beyond the sea,
Ever came in pleading accents,
Till they seemed to call to me;
But I strove to answer, "No,"
As I questioned, "Must I go?"

Still I mused, till growing pity
Touched and filled my inmost soul,
I could tell the "old, old Story"
Of the Love that maketh whole;
Yet I wavered to and fro,
Pondering always, "Shall I go?"
Then I saw as in a vision,
One who stood with outstretched hands,
And a face of tender yearning
Turned towards those heathen lands;
At his feet I bent me low,
Whispering softly, "May I go?"

There I leave it—anxious questions
Are forever more at rest,
Here or there, or work or waiting,
His the choice, and that is best,
For I know that day by day,
He himself will show the way.

—Alice J. Jarvin.

If a man be a pillar in the temple of his God, by and by, he must be some kind of a prop in God's house today.—Babcock.

DO YOU WANT TO GO TO COLLEGE NEXT YEAR?

Then Here is Your Opportunity.

We want to help you: You can help us, and by so doing help your self.

READ OUR OFFERS.

To any young man or young woman, approved of good moral character and recommended by his or her pastor, sending us 300 new subscribers to The Christian Sun for one year at $1.50 each, by Sept. 1, 1909, we will give a scholarship in Elon College for the scholastic year of 1909, and 1910—one full school year. This scholarship will include Board, Furnished Room, Tuition, Matriculation and Library Fees. (Board and Room at either of the college dormitories, or with private family as individual may prefer):

Or, For 225 New Subscribers $1.50 each, Board and Room at any place individual may select; or Board, and vacant room at Young Men's Boarding Club, Tuition Matriculation and Library Fees.

For 180 new subscribers at $1.50 each, Tuition in Literary Branches and in Music, Matriculation and Library Fees.

For 140 new subscribers at $1.50 each, Board and Vacant Room at Young Men's Boarding Club.

For 120 new subscribers, Tuition, Matriculation and Library Fees.

This is a golden opportunity to any young man or young woman desiring to go to college next year who hasn't the means to go upon. By doing the work you give the individual subscriber full value received for his $1.50 and he in turn helps you in a most estimable and worthy manner. You can ask your friends to help you in such a work as this—and they will be glad to help.

Further, If you work you shall not lose out. For, if you fail to get the required number we will give you a liberal cash reward on all work done. See your Pastor at once and ask him for a letter to send along with your own to us. Write today. No time to be lost.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEPARTMENT
—of the—
SOUTHERN CHRISTIAN CONVEN-
TION.

W. P. Lawrence, Editor, Elon College.

HOW TO TEACH THE S. S. LESSON
FOR JUNE 13, 1909.

A Few Suggestions.

Heroes of Faith.

Heb. 11:1-3, 17-29.

Golden Text.—Faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen. Heb. 11:1.

Review.—Review the previous lesson and impress its practical teachings for our present-day life. Review Paul's first sermon as recorded in Acts 13:13-52, and see its doctrinal centre, justification by faith. Review the Lesson of May 30th, "Believing and Doing." Jas. 2:14-26, and see how James' idea of Christian works and Paul's of a vital faith agree. State that today's lesson is a protest against not having any faith as well as an encouragement to faith by citation of notable examples.

Chronology.—The epistle to the Hebrews is the last of the doctrinal letters of St. Paul (if, as most scholars believe, he is the real author.). In it he is addressing the Christians of his own race and showing them how the ritual of the Mosaic system is fulfilled in the priesthood of Christ. He warns them to exercise vital faith and cites examples from their own race of men whose lives were beautiful by faith. The epistle was written while Paul was in prison at Rome in the year 63 A. D. or thereabouts.

Incidental Instruction.—Explain the place of the staff in the patriarch's life. It was the ensign of his authority and he kept it always near him. It was for old age also a stick for assistance in walking and in resting. In Gen. 47:31, Jacob is represented as bowed upon his bed's head, but as the word bowed also means the attitude of worship and as the word for bed is very much like the word for staff, there is real agreement between the Genesis account and that in verse 21 of the lesson. How could Moses esteem the reproach of Christ great riches? Easily. The Egyptians among whom he was reared and educated would scoff at his coming Messiah. Then the Jews thought of three classes of "reproach of Christ"—those which He would Himself suffer, those which his followers would suffer before his advent, and those which would suffer after his advent. Explain the Passover and its modern representative in the sacraments of the Church.

The Lesson.—The lesson divides naturally into two divisions which write on the board as the outline as they are developed in the teaching.

I. What Faith Is, verses 1-3. Ask what Paul's definition of faith is, what the elders attained through it, how the world was framed, with what result.

(Verses 4-16 inclusive of this Roll-Call of the faithful are omitted. Open your Bible and read them or have one of the pupils to do so, adding enough comment to make the meaning clear and illuminating.)

II. What Faith Has Done, verses 17-29. Find who is cited as the first instance of faith, in what way his faith was tested, how he stood the test, how he received Isaac restored to him, the meaning of this, (Here call for assigned work on Abraham's Offering of Isaac, Gen. 22:1-19; Jas. 2:21), who is cited as the second instance of faith, in what his faith was shown, (Here call for Isaac's Blessing of Joseph's Sons, Gen. 48:1, 5, 16, 20), who is the fourth instance, the manner in which his faith was shown, (Here call for Joseph's Command Concerning his Bones, Gen. 50:24-26; Ex. 13:19 and Josh. 24:32), the fifth instance of faith, the circumstances of Moses's birth, his decision when a man, why he forsook Egypt, how he kept the passover, the circumstances of the passing of the Red Sea, (Here call for assigned work on Moses' life as an illustration of faith, Ex. 1:16-22; 2:2; 2:11-15; Psalms 89:50-51; Heb. 2:2; 1 Cor 2:2; Ex. 12:50-51; 13:17-23; Num. 12:7-8; Ex. 12:21-29; Psalms 106:9; 114:5; Isa. 43:16; 51:10; Ex. 14:22-29.)

(Verses 30-40 inclusive are also omitted from our lesson, but be certain to read these verses and explain briefly to the class.) Review the lesson by the Topic Method.

For Class Discussion:—The Authorship of the Hebrews. Is Faith on the Decline? How the instances cited are illustrations of Faith. Modern Heroes of Faith.

Truths and Their Application:—I. Faith is not only the foundation of religious experience. It is the foundation of everything, material or intellectual. There can be no knowledge where there is no faith. Even the most exact science—mathematics—presupposes faith, faith in verity of certain axioms. No physicist or chemist can do without faith, faith in the verity of his molecule in the one case or in his atom in the other. We would never sleep at night nor journey by day nor eat a meal, did we not have faith—and thus "faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen" just as Paul declared it was. Pity the man who has no faith. Nay, can such a man exist?

2. Faith manifests obedience. The truly obedient child obeys its parents not through fear, but through faith. It is a poor sort of parent that you are, if your children do not have faith in you. The true Christian obeys Christ not through fear of the grave and hell, but through faith in his ability to save. This was the source of Abraham's obedience to God, the inspiration of Paul's obedience to the heavenly vision. Do you have faith? Do you obey because of it?

3. Faith lays hold on the precious promises of God's Word. Isaac had a large faith through which he was enabled to bless his sons concerning things to come. So of Jacob. We today are paupers in faith. We try to run the Church on business and social principles. We consequently lose the blessing pronounced on the cheerful giver. We in many ways rob ourselves of spiritual blessings, because of unbelief. Our faith is not large enough to allow us to prove the promises of God.

4. Faith is essential to great leadership. This has always been true. John D. Rockefeller and Andrew Carnegie are instances of men of great faith among the captains of modern industry. Moses was a man of monster faith. So was Joseph. So was David. So was Paul. Men of faith are always leaders; no man can be a capital leader who is not profoundly faithful. Men of great faith can see plainly where men of limited horizon grovel in the dust. Be a man of large faith.

Assignments for Next Time.—Next Sunday is review Sunday. Ask all to bring their note-books. If you announced three months ago that you would give an examination. Otherwise you may use the lesson method or the spiritual teaching method, or the "recitation" method or review, or any other that may suggest itself to you. Whatever your method, make assignments ahead that the review may be an interesting one. I think the other methods suggested would be plain to any one; perhaps a word of explanation may be in order relative to the "recitation" method. According to this method the teacher will write off the facts of the lesson and of the interviewing events in this own words in from 15 to 20 sections of equal length and assign them to the class to be memorized and recited the next Sunday. This would make an ideal review method before the whole school instead of the superintendent's talk.

W. A. Harper.

Elon College, N. C.

THE S. S. LESSON FOR JUNE 6, 1909.*The Power of the Tongue.

James 3:1-12.

Jolden Text.—Whoso keepeth his mouth and his tongue keepeth his soul from troubles, Prov. 21:23.

The fault which James reproves in the greater part of this chapter, is a natural manifestation of the egotism of sinful human nature, a fault which, although suppressed was by no means fully overcome among the Christians. It would seem that as elsewhere, there were many among the first readers of this Epistle in particular of whom the author knew, or at least was afraid that they were more fond of speaking and teaching than of receiving instruction themselves. He therefore seizes the fault by the root, at the same time pointing out that those who set themselves up as teachers, are in the greatest danger of bringing upon themselves greater condemnation than their hearers.

The Power of the Tongue.

The tongue was intended for an organ of divine praise. This little member is small but by it all the thoughts and purposes of the heart are made known. By its use the affairs of the family, or the nation are disclosed. It acts as naturally as thought. It can proclaim good or evil. It has the force and power of fire within itself. It is capable of many uses.

The Untameableness of the Tongue.

Man can exercise his superior power over the animal kingdom and institute devices by which unruly animals are to submit, and become tame; but his own tongue he cannot tame. He cannot get at the power back of that little member. When he would speak well, his tongue utters perverse things. His soul must be redeemed from the exceeding sinfulness of sin, and by a power outside of his own. A gracious father, a merciful redeemer, a silent comforter, must unite to help the man to rule his spirit and find power to control the tongue. The Father, Son and Holy Ghost are charged with changing his vile nature and purify his heart and thus prevent the existence of evil within and thereby control the tongue. Only divine grace is sufficient for the training of the tongue.

Reason may be convinced that God lives to bless mankind while the heart remains unchanged; therefore the heart may declare the mercy of God and in the same breath blaspheme his holy name.

A person may know much and declare his great knowledge and yet not have wisdom or that power to bring to his use those things that make for him security in this life and the next. To be positively a Christian is to be single-minded having one great purpose ever before his eyes to glorify God in his body and spirit which are his. This will make the song of praise one sweet strain from day to day and year to year. There is no other way open, no power given, but that which the Almighty Father has provided, in which the powers of man can be brought into harmony with God, and his life a constant proof of that inwrought work.

"Discretion in speech is more than eloquence," says Bacon.

"The tongue, because it is full of evil, should not be silenced or destroyed, but it needs the correcting, renewing power of divine grace. As on the day of Pentecost, it can be filled and inspired so as to be a tongue of celestial fire.

G. W. T.

CONVERSION OF OUR SUNDAY SCHOOL CHILDREN— HOW IT MAY BE SECURED.*Personal Preparation.

Having seen that the Holy Spirit is the only Worker (John 3:5); that the Saviour solved the problem of how best to fit His disciples for the Holy Spirit to work through them, by leading them to become filled with the Spirit (Luke 24:49, Acts 1:8 and 2:4); whereupon 3000 were converted at the first sermon (Acts 2:41); and Dr. Torrey having pointed out the steps by which each of us may obtain the Holy Spirit in personal experience, and how to retain Him; and having seen some of the ways in which to profit by Him in the inner life, we have come to

II. How to Profit by the Great Helper;—in One's Work.

1st. Undertake nothing without first asking God to fit you for it.

2nd. Ask Him for a fresh filling for each special matter. Don't even speak to a person on religion, or write a letter on that subject, without first asking for a special fitting and a special filling for that purpose.

Before asking Him for this, if you have aught against anyone,—ask God to help and cause you to forgive him; and then forgive him. Ezek. 36:27, R. V., "And I will cause you to walk in my statutes, and ye shall keep mine ordinances and do them." Mark 11:25, R. V., "And whosoever ye stand praying, forgive, if ye have aught against anyone, that your Father also who is in heaven may forgive you your trespasses."

And if any have aught against you, go and first be reconciled to him. Matt. 5:23, 24, R. V., "If therefore thou art offering thy gift at the altar and there rememberest that thy brother hath aught against thee, leave there thy gift before the altar, and go thy way, first be reconciled to thy brother, and then come and offer thy gift."

Then ask God to forgive you; to cleanse you (Acts 15:9, R. V., "Cleansing their hearts by faith"; to grant that the Holy Spirit fill every part of your nature; and if He has aught to say through you to anyone, to empty of self; to fit you so that He and the Holy Spirit can make use of you; to speak through you; that the Holy Spirit may go before and prepare the hearts to receive His message; and that it may sink deep into them and bring forth fruit to Life Eternal.

A short prayer will cover all this.

"Heavenly Father, help and cause me to forgive all against whom I have aught, as Thou forgivest me,"—(and then forgive them);—"and forgive me my debts as I have forgiven my debtors. Cleanse me and grant that the Holy Spirit take possession of every part of my nature."

"And now, Heavenly Father, if Thou hast aught to say through me to anyone, empty me of self; fit me so that Thou and the Holy Spirit can make use of me, and wilt Thou and the Holy Spirit speak through me, and I not utter a word Thou wouldest not have me say; and may the Holy Spirit go before and prepare the hearts to receive Thy message; may it sink deep into them and bring forth fruit to Life Eternal, for Christ's sake. Amen."—Contributed.

TREASURE IN HEAVEN.

Every coin of earthly treasure
We have lavished upon earth
For our simple worldly pleasure
May be reckoned something worth;
For the spending was not losing,
Though the purchase was but small;
It has perished with the using,
We have had it—that is all.
All the gold we leave behind us
When we turn to dust again—
Though our avarice may blind us—
We have gathered quite in vain,
Since we neither can direct it,
By the winds of fortune tossed,
Nor in other worlds expect it,
What we hoarded we have lost.
But each merciful oblation,—
Seed of pity wisely sown,—
What we gave in self-negation,
We may safely call our own;
For the treasure freely given
Is the treasure that we hoard,
Since the angels keep in heaven
What was sent unto the Lord.

—John G. Saxe.

The Mohammedans have a saying the threshold weeps forty days when a girl is born.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

Founded 1844 by Elder Daniel W. Kerr.
Organ of the Southern Christian
Convention.

Entered at the postoffice at Greensboro, N. C., as second-class matter.

Terms of Subscription.

One Year .....$1.50
Six Months ..... .75
Four Months ..... .50
Advertising rates given on application.

J. O. Atkinson, Editor and Publisher.

Important Notice.—As readers will see, The Christian Sun is now published at Greensboro, N. C. The office of publication there is 302½ South Elm Street. Our editorial office, however, remains at Elon College, N. C., to which all letters and communications to the Editor should be addressed, as heretofore.

THE YOUNG PEOPLE'S
CONVENTION.

The first session of the Young People's Convention under the auspices of the Young People's Department of the Southern Christian Convention convened in the Elon College Chapel Saturday P. M. May 29 and held several successive sessions adjourning finally, Monday P. M., May 31. The Minutes of this Convention should go before Sun readers in full and will be so given next week. This is a movement full of vigor, vim, and vitality and the whole Sun family should know what was accomplished. This explains why there is this partial report this week.

But this must be said. Our young people have met in convention and a great work has begun. There was determination. There were plans. There will be execution. Here is the object and the motto of the Convention adopted by unanimous vote: A Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor in every church, a Teacher Training and an Organized class in every Sunday school of the Southern Christian Convention. To the accomplishment of this task the young people of our churches are to bend their efforts and utilize their energies. There were many plans laid and much actual work done, but deciding upon this definite purpose was the great climax of the Convention. To this end Committees were created, addresses delivered, collections taken, secretaries and officers elected.

A Field Secretary and Editor of the Young People's Department in the Christian Sun was provided for and a hundred dollars raised in cash and pledges with which to partly compensate such officer for his services.

There was intelligent and interesting discussion as to methods of organizing and conducting Endeavor Societies, Missionary Societies, Teacher Training classes, and class movements in the Sunday school. There were enrolled nearly a hundred delegates and the interest in the Convention deepened as the sessions advanced. It is enough now to say that the Convention was held and was a success. Much good will come of it and a brief report of all its proceedings will appear in the columns next week.

THE PURCHASE PRICE.

Many think that if salvation could be purchased they would buy. Since it is a matter of free gift (free grace) and not one of purchase price it is considered too cheap to be worth much.

Let it be borne in mind that the highest price ever paid for anything was paid for the salvation of the souls of men. Jesus the Christ paid the purchase price with his own unutterable pain and suffering on the cross. Salvation is cheap, free, to the receiver, but it cost an untold and infinite sum to the giver.

This incident is related in a current magazine: A preacher entered a mine to talk to the miners about their souls. At the end the foreman accompanied him out. The preacher asked him, "What think you of the Gospel I gave the miners?" "It's too cheap," said he. The preacher then said, "What do you do to get out of this mine?" "Nothing but enter the cage." "Don't need to draw yourself up even?" "No." "But the managers had great expense to make this possible." "Yes, thousands of dollars to go a thousand feet to the depth of the mine." "Then," said the preacher, "remember too, while Christ is offered you for believing, it cost Him the infinite price of dying before the race could receive the offer."

A TEACHER TRAINING CLASS AT WORK.

There is no speech as eloquent as success. And there is no plea as powerful as achievement.

With that preface in mind let us note again that much has been said in these and other columns of late about preparing Sunday school teachers to teach. But, after the saying, what of the doing? All admit that what the Sunday school of today needs is efficient teachers. What is being done in actual fact to fit and furnish these teachers?

With this in view the editor has thought it worth while now, after a season of service, to give in detail the actual work done by one class at work in a teacher training course. We had such a class at Elon College. Going to the secretary of this class we asked for the record, without coloring or comment, as it stood in the recording secretary's book.

Here it is as then written verbatim:

The Elon College Teacher Training Class began work November 29, 1908, with Prof. W. A. Harper teacher and Ivie D. Andes, secretary. Twenty-two members were enrolled. Four left the class for good reasons, and one other was added, leaving an enrollment of nineteen. Average attendance, sixteen.

January 10, 1909, the following officers were elected: president, E. T. Hines; vice-president, W. G. Cobb; corresponding secretary, Nannie B. Farmer; treasurer, Bessie McPherson; organist, Ruth Stevick; chorister, Nannie B. Farmer; chairman of social committee, Affie Griffin; chairman of membership committee, R. P. Crumpler.

We are using the book on teacher training prepared by the committee authorized by the Southern Christian Convention at its last session.

We have studied it as far as the end of the fifth chapter. We have taken three tests on the work gone over. All who took the first test also took the others and have done creditable work.

Subject of chapter 1: "Seven Lessons on the Sunday School Teacher." The test questions were:

1. What should be the teacher's fundamental purpose?
2. What are the chief characteristics of the teacher?
3. What should be the teacher's general preparation include?
4. How should the teacher prepare his lesson?
5. What are the methods of testing?
6. What are the three kinds of questions to be avoided?
7. What are the three methods of designating the pupil to recite?
8. What is the ideal question?
9. What are the steps in teaching the lesson?
10. What means of self-improvement are open to the teacher?

The average grade of work was 94 percent.

Subject of Chapter II: "Six Lessons on the Pupil." Test questions were:

1. Why is it necessary for the teacher to understand the pupil?
2. How may the teacher understand the pupil?
3. Define by age limits the four classes of pupils.
4. How does the infant develop?
5. What is character and how may the teacher assist in its development?
6. What are the chief characteristics of childhood? What kind of Bible characters most interest pupils of this age?

7. What are the chief characteristics of youth and how may the teacher assist here? Why do the boys leave the Sunday school at this age?

8. What are the types of religious experience?

9. How may the teacher be of assistance to the adult? Why do so few adults attend Sunday school?

10. What are the methods of acquiring knowledge? How do these methods affect the teacher?

The average grade of work 99 percent.

Subject of Chapters III and IV: "Three Lessons on the History and Organization of the Sunday School," and "Three Lessons on the Institutional Sunday School," respectively. Test questions:

1. Give a brief account of the origin and development of the Sunday school.

2. Name the chief officers of a Sunday school and give their qualifications.

3. What is the relation of the Sunday school to the home?

4. What is the relation of the Sunday school to the church?

5. What part should the pastor take in the Sunday school?

6. Define the Cradle Roll and give the method of its organization as well as its advantages.

7. Do likewise of the Home Department.

8. Do likewise of the organized class movement.

The average grade of work was 98½ percent. Total average on all tests, 97 percent.

The above will answer the question, Is a teacher training course practicable?

Prof. Harper, the teacher, informs us that he has been a teacher in schools and college many years, but has never had a class in any branch that took the interest and deep concern that this class in teacher training has taken. He has employed the same methods of grading this class that he employs in college work, but this class has made far higher grades than any class he has ever taught.

Prof. S. M. Smith, of Raleigh, head of the Teacher Training Work of the Southern Christian Convention, declared publicly that if all the work and agitation in teacher training had produced nothing else but Prof. Harper's class at Elon College, the results were worth the pains and the price.

Will teacher training work? The above record answers that as nothing else can. And what it will mean to have even these nineteen young men and young women go out into our Sunday schools as teachers eternity alone can reveal.

SUFFOLK LETTER.

I visited a man in jail condemned to death. He told me of his early religious experiences; how he was converted at sixteen and joined the church; how he had wandered from the true path; and how he had reviewed his life in prison and saw the folly of evil-doing. Among other things he said: "I started to pray this morning, and I found I had bad feelings in my heart toward a person for something he had said about me. I knew I could not pray with that feeling in me; so I set to work to get that out of my heart. Later in the day I succeeded and then went to my knees with nothing in my heart against anybody and I enjoyed my prayer." Then I remembered what David said in the sixty-sixth Psalm: "If I regard iniquity in my heart, the Lord will not hear me." That is the common experience with Christians. This work of removing hate from the heart is man's own work. One thing is essential to real prayer and that is right feelings towards men. The expression, "Get right with God," is very common in these days; but "Get right with man" is often fully as important. The Christian needs a "conscience void of offense toward God and man." Nothing is more unsatisfactory in religious experience than trying to pray when we have hard feelings towards others. It is mockery—it mocks God and mocks our own conscience.

Herein lies much of the evil in the church. All sorts of real and imaginary insults, neglects, injustices, rise up in human hearts and estrange people in their thought and feelings and then it grows. People attend church, try to pray, work in the vineyard, and yet do not enjoy worship nor peace. They pray more and try to work off the bad feeling by religious effort. Real forgiveness toward some person would relieve the situation, bring peace into the heart, and make prayer a delight. You often hear people say: "Pray for me that I may be a better Christian," when they know that they are not on good terms with a neighbor or a member of the church. "Be ye reconciled" applies to our relation to men as well as to God. Jesus carries it still further in His sermon on the Mount: "If thou bring thy gift to the altar, and there rememberest that thy brother hath aught against thee; leave there thy gift before the altar, and go thy way; first be reconciled to thy brother, and then come and offer thy gift." Do all in thy power to restore good feeling between thyself and others before thou presume to worship God whose love was made manifest in this, that while we were yet sinners Christ died for us." "Love one another" is the key phrase to larger happiness and truer religion. There is no tenable ground on which Christians can entertain hard feelings toward others; and yet the church is cursed with this gross form of sin. It is often the worst evil in a community. It separates old friends. It divides families. It disrupts churches. It prevents revival meetings. It creates factions. It shuts out God and robs the soul of peace. Hate in the church is equal to war in the state. Brethren, if some one has offended you, forgive; if some one has snubbed you, forgive; if some one has injured you, forgive; for "if ye forgive not men their trespasses, neither will your Father forgive you your trespasses." You cannot treat men right until you have forgiveness in your heart; and nothing gives such sweet relief as forgiveness.

W. W. Staley.

The Boers and Christianity. That "God works in a mysterious way, His wonders to perform," is not more fully demonstrated than by certain events and issues of the late war in South Africa between Boers and Britons.

Recently great revivals have broken out and accomplished great things in the churches of South Africa. During the Boer war hundreds of South African farmers were captured and sent as prisoners of war to Ceylon, St. Helena and some other places in the colonies. These prisoners having abundant leisure gave much time to hearing the Gospel and were mightily moved thereby. After the war was over these prisoners were liberated and returned to their homes, not a few of them preachers and advocates of the gospel of Jesus Christ. Many of these became earnest evangelists among their own people, with the result that thousands have been saved by the power of the Word. The work grows and spreads, and the full results are not yet seen. War is awful, deadly, destructive, ruinous. Yet God overrules its evil consequences to many good results and issues.

—Well the Commissioner of Immigration has done one wise thing under the sun. He barred an immigrant and his wife from landing whose avowed object and single means of support was to exhibit a child born without arms or legs. The morbid curiosity to look at and gloat over "freaks" and the abnormal is degrading in the extreme.

THE CHRISTIAN ORPHANAGE DEPARTMENT.

Board of Trustees.

Rev. J. O. Atkinson, D. D., Pres., Elon College, N. C.

Rev. I. W. Johnson, Sec., Suffolk, Va.

Hon. W. H. Carroll, Burlington, N. C.

L. M. Clymer, Greensboro, N. C.

C. D. West, Newport News, Va.

Elijah Moffitt, Esq., Asheboro, N. C.

G. S. Watson, M. D., Elon College, N. C.

Treasurer—Prof. J. T. Cobb.

Superintendent—Jas. L. Foster, Elon College, N. C.

CHILDREN'S CORNER.

The Band of Cousins.

Jas. L. Foster, Sec., Elon College, N. C.

"He that hath pity on the poor lendeth unto the Lord, and his good deed will He pay him again."—Prov. 19:17.

Total Reported Last Week $3143.94

Monthly Dues.

- Willie Jackson Everett . . .10
Baird Moffitt . . . . .15
Catherine Moffitt . . . . .10
Maryon Saunders . . . . .20
Sallie Dollar . . . . .50
Jesse Dollar . . . . .05

Monthly S. S. Offerings.

- Waverly, Va . . . . . 8.92
Linville, Va. . . . . .72
Henderson, N. C. . . . . 2.55
Dendron, Va.
Mar., Apr., May . . . . 8.25
Greensboro, N. C. . . . . 2.23

Special Offering.

- Plymouth church . . . . . 2.26
Jr. C. E. So., Elon College .27
19 bu. S. potatoes . . . . 12.10
4 bu. peanuts . . . . . 5.50

Amt. 19th week, 1909 . . . . $43.45

Total . . . . . 3187.39.

Elon College, N. C., May 26, 1909.

My Dear Children and Friends:

Still our work continues nicely, and a good financial report. The past week has been one of rain, and clouds. The weather has been very fine for some crops, but too cold and too much rain for others, but on a whole crops are looking well, and we have a nice prospect for harvest.

The commencement at Elon College will be on when this letter goes out, we expect some company and many visitors. We shall welcome all to inspect the work being done at the Orphanage.

We are grateful to the following friends for donations:

Edward J. Briekhouse, Jr., Norfolk, Va., one box books, magazines, and play things for the children. Thank you Edward—the children are already busy. Mr. C. H. Buchaunon, Monroe, N. C., one fine 2 month's old "O. I. C." pig. We thank you, Mr. Buekhannon and hope the pig will grow well. It is certainly a fine one now. Mrs. Annie Faucett, Altemboro, N. C., 2 chickens. Chickens are always in order says Dr. Atkinson, even for a preacher, but children love them as well. Thank you, Mrs. Faucett.

Say, friends, we have heavy bills for new furniture (it's too hot for 3 to the bed) and a few dollars would help us just now. Thank you in advance.

With best wishes, I am, Yours for the work, Uncle Jim.

Wedowee, Ala. May 18, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:

I will send my dues for May. I missed last month. I will try and do better next time. Papa has sold five gallons of strawberries. Enclosed please find five cents, my dues for may. Love to all the little cousins. Your nephew, Jesse Dollar.

Well Jesse, I would love to have eaten strawberries with you. We had some this year. Hope next year the yield will be greater.

Elon College, N. C., May 20, 1909

Dear Uncle Jim:

I have been so busy playing out doors and working in my garden that I failed to write my April letter. Didn't mean to April-fool you. I'll send dues this time for April and May.

Devotedly, J. Maryon Saunders.

Dig away, old man, that's what makes strong men out of little boys. Hope your garden is doing well.

Holland, Va., May 24, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:

I am that same little six years old girl. I am a little late this time. I have been home with mama for the last few weeks. Auntie had fried chicken yesterday for the first time. My chickens are growing fast, they will soon be ready for market. I have missed eating strawberries with auntie this spring, but never the less I expect to enjoy some of the good things yet. Enclosed please find ten cents for the cousins.

Your loving niece, Willie Jackson Everett.

You are ahead of us Willie, with your fried chicken. Ours do not grow so rapidly.

Wedowee, Ala., May 14, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:

I will send my dues for May. I haven't written but once. I will try to do better next time. You and the little cousins ought to be down here to eat strawberries with me. We certainly have a nice strawberry garden. Enclosed please find 5c for the little orphans. With much love to you and all the little cousins, Your loving niece, Sallie Dollar.

We hope this little Ala. cousin will write more often for we love to hear from the Southland.

Asheboro, N. C., May 17, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:

I will write and send you mine and sister's money for the band. How do you like this spring weather? My Sunday-school teacher is going to take us on a picnic tomorrow and I do hope it will not rain. I go to the Methodist Sunday-school now, since our church was blown down by the storm.

Love for you and the cousins. Your little nephew, Baird Moffitt.

Hope you enjoyed your picnic, Baird. The weather here lately is so cold and rainy we have had to have fire. Hope soon to see the sun and have the warmth of spring.

DO YOU WANT TO GO TO COLLEGE? If so we can help you. We have already put hundreds through college by means of our plan. Write today for full information regarding our offer of a free scholarship in any school or college. Address, Robert J. Sherlock, 29-31 East 22nd Street, New York City.

YOUNG MEN! If you want to know why you should become telegraph operators and what school to attend, write to SOUTHERN SCHOOL OF TELEGRAPHY, Newman, Ga., for free Catalogue "A." EVERY BOY should read it. Positions positively guaranteed.

FREE DEAFNESS CURE.

A remarkable offer by one of the leading ear specialists in this country, who will send two month's medicine free to prove his ability to cure Deafness, Head Noises, and Catarrh. Address Dr. G. M. Branaman, 1100 Walnut Street, Kansas City, Mo.

RALEIGH & SOUTHPORT RY. Co.

Table with 4 columns: P. M. A. M., STATIONS, A. M. P. M. Rows include Raleigh, MeCullers, Willow Sp'gs, Varina, Fuquay Sp'gs, Kipling, Lillington, Linden, Fayetteville.

JNO. A. MILLS, Pres. and Gen. Mgr.

"OPPORTUNITY."

They do me wrong who say I come no more

When once I knock and fail to find you in;

For every day I stand outside your door,
And bid you wake and rise to fight and win.

Wail not for precious chances passed away,

Weep not for golden ages on the wane;
Each night I burn the records of the day,
At sunrise every soul is born again.
Laugh like a boy at splendors that have sped;

To vanished joys be blind and dear and dumb;

My judgments seal the dead past with its dead,

But never bind a moment yet to come.
Though deep in mire, wring not your hands and weep,

I lend my arm to all who say "I can."
No shamefaced owest ever sank so deep

But he might rise and be again a man.
Dost thou behold thy youth all aghast?
Dost reel from righteous retribution's blow?

Then turn from blotted archives of the past

And find the future's pages white as snow.

Art thou a mourner? Rouse thee from thy spell!

Art thou a sinner? Sins may be forgiven.

Each morning gives thee wings to flee from hell,

Each night a star to guide thy feet to heaven.

—Robert B. Malone.

BRINGING FORTH FRUIT.

Bring forth therefore fruits worthy of repentance. St. Luke 3:8.

A tree is not considered as meeting expectations, tho it be profusely covered with leaves, or yet blossoms. Not till the ruddy fruit, inviting to the gratification of the appetite, develops its character and worth, is it highly esteemed. Barren trees are worthless trees, cumberers of the ground only.

So in religion. As we look upon a tree God looks upon us. We may profess what we please, God sees only leaves. We may inwardly resolve, but God sees only blossoms. Until we come to acts, works, out-and-out deeds, all goes for nothing. Then, however, life is widened.

Our doings are our fruits. Doings which God and men may taste, so to speak. Real, living actions that go from us, as the fruit hangs on the bough.

We must "bring forth fruit worthy of repentance." Such actions as will obliterate from the mind of God and man all trace of the remembrance of the evils committed against them.

It does not follow that we must always accomplish great deeds, for we may be so situated that such are impossible; but in the little daily opportunities of life we must strive to do as we think our Saviour would have us do. A kindly word spoken when needed, a tender look, or tear of sympathy to some sorrowing one, a hand outstretched to aid the feeble, even the cup of cold water given for the Master's sake, are "fruits worthy of repentance."

Unkind acts, revengeful feelings, criminal conduct, all go to show that the heart is not right in the sight of God. sin has not been repented of, and that the tree is utterly barren.

When sin is not genuinely repented of, it must stand against the sinner. Repentance is only genuine when we not only cease to do evil, but strive to do good.

May we repent our evil ways,
And nevermore wrong things pursue.
Lord! let us spend remaining days
As Thou wouldst ever have us do!
—Christian Work and Evangelist.

BIBLES FOR SALE.

I am selling, in Alamance County, Wilmore's New Analytical Reference Bible, the most thorough and complete Book for all who wish to study and understand the Bible on the market today. Sold only by subscription and I shall be glad to show it to you. Thousands of copies are being sold. Alfred Apple, Jr., Elon College, N. C.

CANCER CAN BE CURED.

Personal or Home Treatment. Both successful. Scores of testimonials, from persons who gladly write to those now suffering, all tell of permanent cures. My Mild Combination Treatment destroys growth and eliminates the disease from the system. Free book "Cancer and Its Cure" and 125-page book of testimonials from cured patients in all parts of the country. No matter how serious your case, how many operations you have had, or what treatment you have taken, don't give up hope, but write at once Dr. Johnson Remedy Co., 125 Grand Ave., Kansas City, Mo. Physicians treated free.

DR. JNO. H. BROOKS,
—DENTIST—

Nine years practice. Recent degree from Philadelphia Dental College and Garretson Hospital of Oral Surgery.

MEDICINE.

We prepare as good medicine, the very best medicine that the finest, freshest, most potent drugs and chemicals will produce when carefully and skilfully compounded by an expert prescription man—just such medicine as your physician means that you should have, medicine of the utmost possible effectiveness. May we prepare your medicine?

FREEMAN DRUG CO.,
Burlington, N. C.

SPRING TIME.

The time for gardening is here and you need garden tools. We can supply you at lowest prices.

Poultry Wire.

The best assorted stock in the county. Four different styles and weight.

Come and See.

Remember plumbing and bath room fixtures, a speciality. You will find us on Davis St. third door from Post office.
BURLINGTON HARDWARE CO.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup

Has been used for over SIXTY-FIVE YEARS by MILLIONS of MOTHERS for their CHILDREN WHILE TEETHING, with PERFECT SUCCESS. It SOOTHES the CHILD, SOFTENS the GUMS, ALLAYS all PAIN; CURES WIND COLIC, and is the best remedy for DIARRHOEA. Sold by Druggists in every part of the world. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Guaranteed under the Food and Drugs Act, June 30th, 1906. Serial Number 1008. AN OLD AND WELL TRIED REMEDY.

PIEDMONT

"IS THE BEST."
Write for Catalogue
Piedmont Business College
Lynchburg, Va.

USE OUR MONEY
A SNAP
For LIVE AGENTS

Establish a profitable and lasting business of your own. Be your own boss. We furnish everything, including Sample Outfit valued at $3.50. We began with nothing; are now worth $100,000; what we did you can do; we will gladly help you. Big Catalog, Plans and Sample Outfit now ready and ALL FREE. Write now, Consolidated Portrait & Frame Co., 250-10 W. Adams St., Chicago, Ill.

BIG PHONOGRAPH OFFER

The original Thomas A. Edison Phonograph. Unequaled as an entertainer and fun maker. Sold on easy monthly payments. Plays waltz, ragtime, sacred and concert music, operas everything. Price every 1 w. I ship on approval. Write today for my Big Free Catalogue. EUGENE CLINE
55 Dearborn St., Chicago.

RAISE MONEY FOR YOUR CHURCH.

We offer you an easy method. Send us a photograph of your church or your pastor, and we will send you 500 high grade post cards, with photograph on each card, and scripture verse if desired. Sell these cards at 10 cents each. When sold, remit us $20.00 and keep the balance. You can do this in a week. We will return photograph.

LAKE SHORE SUPPLY CO.,
225 Broad St., St. Joe, Michigan.

"THROW OUT THE LIFE-LINE."

By Amos R. Wells.

Dr. Cuyler, when he heard Mr. Sankey sing the stirring song, "Throw Out the Life-Line," remarked, "There is more electricity in that song than in any other I have heard." It is indeed a rousing appeal, and it has done and is doing a mighty work in moving the consciences of men.

The writer of the song, Rev. Edward Smith Ufford, is still alive, travelling widely and giving illustrated religious lectures based upon his great hymn. He uses his fine collection of life-saving apparatus as a series of object-lessons, pressing home spiritual truths in a very forceful way. He is a man of noble Christian character, and personal contact with his strong faith, and burning zeal has been a tonic for many thousands.

Mr. Ufford was born in Newark, N. J., in 1851. He was educated at Stratford Academy in Connecticut, and at Bates Theological Seminary, Maine. He has held several pastorates in Baptist churches, and has edited several song-books.

"Throw Out the Life-Line" was prompted by a drill which Mr. Ufford witnessed at the life-saving station on Point Allerton, near Boston. A ship had been wrecked near the place, and the memory of that, together with the sight of the life-line flung out far over the water and the energetic action of the life-saving crew, put the thought of the song into Mr. Ufford's mind.

When he reached home he wrote the song rapidly, and then sat down to his organ (for he is a musician as well as poet), and in fifteen minutes he had composed the world-famous melody. In 1888 the song was published in sheet-music form, and in 1890, harmonized by Mr. Stebbins, it was published in a song-book. Here are the thrilling words:

Throw out the life-line across the dark wave;

There is a brother whom some one should save;

Somebody's brother: oh, who then will dare

To throw out the life-line, his peril to share?

Throw out the life-line with hand quick and strong:

Why do you tarry, why linger so long? See! he is sinking; oh, hasten to-day

And out with the life-boat! away, then, away!

Throw out the life-line to danger-fraught men

Sinking in anguish where you've never been;

Winds of temptation and billows of woe Will soon hurl them out where the dark waters flow.

Soon will the season of rescue be o'er; Soon will they drift to eternity's shore;

Haste, then, my brother, no time for delay,

But throw out the life-line and save them to-day.

Mr. Ufford tells many stories of the results that have come from the singing of this hymn. Once in Pennsylvania a set of men were playing cards and drinking in a club-room. Another room in the same building had been rented for religious meetings, and suddenly the words of "Throw Out the Life-Line," sung sweetly by a young woman, with a strong chorus taking up the refrain, broke in upon their merriment. The revelry was hushed. At last one player threw down his cards. "If what they are singing is right," he said, "then we are wrong." He went home, and before long the others followed his manly example. The club was broken up by that one song. In countless other instances the hymn has been used to arouse men to a sense of their sin.

But of course its chief use has been to prompt Christians to take up evangelistic work. In this it has been exceedingly successful. Thousands of Christians have been moved by its tender pleading to leave their selfish endeavors, go down to the tempest-torn beach, and do their best to rescue those that are battling with the waves of sin. How many "Life-Line Leagues" and similar organizations have been named from this hymn no one knows. It has done a glorious work.—In C. E. World.

A PARTIAL PASTOR.

Many a pastor has made a great mistake by being distinctly partial in his attentions to his people. He has shown a marked preference for certain members, even to the extent of neglecting others whose claims on his services were just as great and reasonable as were those of the specially favored ones. I have always regarded this course as being censurable, and also very detrimental to the pastor himself. Some pastors, who make a practice of calling upon their people, will confine such calls to a comparatively few members,—those whom they particularly like. It is difficult for me to understand how it is that a genuinely Christian pastor can allow himself to act thus. Rev. Dr. Smith Baker, in an article in The Morning Star, says: "It is not good sense to be a partial pastor. A minister recently lost his church because he called upon only about one-fourth of his parish; and we presided at a council once, where the great fault found with the pastor was, as the chairman of the church committee said, that about a dozen women in the church had a minister, and the rest of the people wanted one. It is surprising how common an occasion

ADVANCE ORDERS

ARE NOW BEING TAKEN FOR

ABRAHAM SNETHEN*"THE BAREFOOT PREACHER"

This is a most remarkable and wonderful book. Full of thrilling incidents and hairbreadth escapes, with nothing short of divine protection. His actual life experiences were miraculous and more thrilling than a romance.

Now is the time to get the book, and after reading it you will not want to part with it for two times its cost. The book will contain about 275 pages. Large clear print on good, heavy paper, and handsomely bound in cloth.

Only one edition will be printed, and the price is $1.00. But until July 1, 1909, we will receive your

ADVANCE ORDERS AT 75 CENTS

Christian Publishing Association

J. N. Hess, Agent, Dayton, Ohio

of dissatisfaction this is, that about a quarter of the congregation are called upon, and the rest neglected. The minister goes where it is agreeable. Such is not good sense, and it ruins many a pastorate." It would be much better for a pastor not to make any calls at all than to be so partial as to make only a comparatively few calls. And what does a partial pastor think about in relation to his office? It would appear that he has a very narrow conception of it. It seems that he is not thinking of his obligations to all of his flock. He is not concerning himself about the spiritual welfare of all members. Really, is he actually concerned for the highest good of those whom he does visit? Is he not regarding his own pleasure as the chief object of his visitations? The true pastor will serve all without partiality.

C. H. Wetherbe.

A MOTHER TO HER BOYS.

I hope that neither of you will drink or smoke. Drink has wrecked and ruined many homes. It leads downward and you will make no mistake to leave drink and tobacco alone.

It may be, often, difficult at the club or dinner to decline, and you may feel that an exception to the rule can be made this time; but don't do it. As time passes you will be the more respected, and retain your own self-respect, which is the important point, by being the abstainer rather than the drinker. You will also again and again realize the wisdom of your choice. Better never smoke; it is an injurious, expensive and unnatural habit, and difficult to indulge at all unless to extremes. To become which not to chara kind and to w of self-control may grow and increase in its power. Live simply and within your means and strength. Begin and end each day with God. Spend all the time you can out-of-doors. Choose your books and your friends carefully; they have vast influence over your life and future. Make your home a foretaste of heaven—love its atmosphere; refuge of peace and trust from the world. God will help you in the battle against the flesh, the world and the devil, and to continue His faithful servant to your life's end.—Southern Churchman.

Recently, in Liverpool, England, twelve Chinamen were baptized in the presence of a large congregation. This ceremony took place in Christ Church, connected with the Reform Episcopal Church of England. Religious services are now held in Liverpool for the Chinese, their own language being used.

"The storms that gather round my path way,
May hide the next step from my sight,
But faith can walk with God in darkness
And He will guide that step aright."

Books for Every Christian Home.

Do you know why you are a member of the Christian Church?
Do you understand what the church stands for and teaches?
If not, send and get a copy of the "Principles and Government of the Christian Church," just revised and greatly improved by order of the Southern Christian Convention.

Cloth binding per copy, post paid 50 cts.

Limp Cloth binding per copy, post paid 35 cts.

Paper binding per copy, post paid 25 cts.

Handsome Persian Morocco, with name in gilt $1.25.

The Southern Christian Convention also Ordered Another Book Published, PREPARING THE SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER TO TEACH. Edited by Profs. W. A. Harper, W. C. Wicker and W. P. Lawrence.

The book is neatly printed and bound and is invaluable to the Sunday-school worker, 236 pages.

Paper binding per copy, postpaid, 60 cts.

Cloth binding per copy, postpaid, 90 cts.

To Sunday-schools, paper binding 50 cts cloth 75 cts.

Have You Read That Thrilling and Inspiring Story of His Own Life, MURDER'S ANSWERED PRAYER, BY REV. P. H. FLEMING, D. D.:

Cloth binding, postpaid 55 cts.

All these books should be in your home. Order at once

For sale by THE CHRISTIAN SUN, ELON COLLEGE, N.C.

MARRIED.*Loflin-Hayes.

May 20th, Mr. A. B. Loflin and Miss Fleta Hayes were united in matrimony in the presence of a few friends at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hayes. Mr. and Mrs. Loflin will reside in Concord, N. C. May God's blessings attend them.

Cox-Moffitt.

Mr. R. E. Cox and Miss Josie Moffitt drove to the writer's home on the 17th inst. and were joined together in love's sacred bond. Mr. Cox is in business in Greensboro. The bride is the daughter of Rev. H. T. Moffitt.

May the Lord bless and keep them in all their ways. R. L. Williamson.

DIED.*Roney.

Mrs. Sallie Roney, wife of C. H. Roney, departed this life May 24th, 1909, aged 52 years, 7 months and 14 days. Her husband and four children are left to mourn her death. Sister Roney had been a worthy member of the Christian church since early in life, and at the time of her death was a member at the First Baptist Chapel. Funeral services were held at her home by Rev. P. H. Fleming, and Rev. J. W. Holt, both former members of the church. Her body was buried in the cemetery in Burlington. May God comfort the bereaved. J. W. Holt.

and.

and departed this

the home by the writer and the little remains laid away in the family cemetery beneath a profuse bank of lovely flowers. Little Margaret was a bright, attractive child and a host of friends enter into sympathy with the fond parents, and especially Mrs. Norfleet whose aged father passed away near the same hour. May our loving Father bless and keep them. N. G. Newman.

Kelly.

Whereas the Creator in His divine wisdom, has removed from our midst Sister Sallie B. Kelly, wife of J. T. Kelley, born August 17, 1837 and died January 9, 1909, aged 71 years, 4 months and 22 days, Resolved 1st, That in this death Sanford Christian Church has lost a faithful and consistent member, the husband a dear wife, the children a fond mother and the community a friend.

Resolved 2, That we, the members of Sanford Christian church, extend to the bereaved husband and children our sympathy, and commend them to our dear Heavenly Father, who doeth all things well.

Resolved 3rd. That these resolutions be entered upon our church record, and a copy be sent to the family of the deceased and a copy to The Christian Sun for publication.

Mrs. G. R. Underwood,
Miss Hattie Way,
Miss Minnie Wicker,
Committee.

Wilkerson.

Whereas in the death of our sister Nany P. Wilkerson, Union Christian Church, has lost one of its oldest and most faithful members,

Be it resolved, That though our hearts are sad because of the death of our sister, yet we bow in humble submission to the will of God and plead with Him for His help, His mercy, and His love for both the beloved ones of our sister and ourselves. That we extend to the relatives of our sister our love and sympathy in their bereavement and that we all bear in mind that God doeth all things for the best and will care for and bless His own as none other can. That these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of this church, a copy be sent to the family and a copy be sent The Christian Sun for publication.

W. S. Gregory,
Alfred Hayes,
Anna Apt,

Committee.

FOR MEN ONLY.

Here's your chance to get the famous "Sun Brand" Socks at less than one-half the regular price. Panic forced Mill to shut down. Large stock on hand to be sold direct to consumer. Spring and Summer, medium weight, in black, lisle finish, fast color guaranteed. Double toe and heel, very durable. Sizes, 9½ 10, 10½ and 11. Retail at all stores at 20c. and 25. per pair. Special offer to readers of the Christian Sun; 1 dozen pairs

"The Bible is the Bible"

(any sizes) for only $1.40 postage prepaid to any address. Send money order, check or registered letter to Clinton Cotton Mills, Station A, Clinton, S. C.

ONCE A MONTH.

The slow growth and general debility of the average country church is due to the fact that it is content to hear the preaching of the gospel on a dozen Sabbaths throughout the year and to get along without any pastoral service at all; and the vigor and efficiency of the average town church is the result of from three to five services each week and constant watchcare, admonition, encouragement and direction of a pastor. It is surprising how slow so many of our churches in the country have been in recognizing this fatal blunder. They have in their membership the best and most conservative element of our population. They are honest and courageous. Liquor left the country districts long before it left the towns and cities because the country people would have none of it; and the contemptible effort made by certain discredited and unprincipled politicians to create prejudice against the Watts law because it discriminated in favor of the towns and against the country on this liquor question, was a monumental failure. The fact is, the country districts must continue to furnish men who do things in town and everywhere else. As a wise and witty business man recently remarked to us, "The town dudes must surrender to the R. F. D's." The failure of our country churches to appreciate the importance of religious training, in view of all the elements of power they possess, is perfectly distressing. We rejoice, however, to note a wonderful awakening in this respect. The once-a-month-service is playing out. Several country churches of our acquaintance enjoy preaching every Sunday and have a pastor living in their midst. In each case the desert is blossoming like the rose. The farmers are more prosperous and the boys and girls are going to college. In a great many others two Sundays in the month the pastor faces his congregation, and the more they hear of the gospel the better they like it. There is no excuse for any church having a hundred members to put up with twelve sermons a year. They think they are too poor, but they employ the wrong word. We will not say what that word is but it is certainly not "poor." We hope the growing sentiment in favor of more and better preaching will spread all over the State until our rural churches will be ashamed to confess that they come together in the church service only twelve times a year.—Charity and Children.

—The Pythian Lodge of N. C. has decided to build an Orphanage at Durham, that town having given sixty-five acres of land and $7,000 in money to secure the same.

We note with sorrow the death of Bro. R. J. Lassiter, at his home near Bruce, Va., May 25. The interment was at Damascus, Gates Co., N. C. Bro. Lassiter was a good citizen, a consecrated man, a devoted church member. He was brother of Rev. L. L. Lassiter, Broadway, Va.

—The strike on the Georgia Railroad, in which the white firemen struck because colored firemen were employed, has been settled, though the terms of the settlement are not made known, though concessions were made by the Road and operatives.

—The newspaper fraternity of this State, as well as the unnumbered hosts of friends and readers, rejoice in the announcement that Editor Caldwell, of the esteemed Charlotte Observer, who suffered some weeks ago from a paralytic stroke, is so much improved as to announce that he expects to resume editorial work about the first of July. If there is a sweeter-spirited man, and a more thorough gentleman, in North Carolina journalism we have not been given to know him, and his pen has been rarely and sadly missed during these weeks of enforced silence.

STOVES

Direct From Factory At Factory Prices.

We pay the freight. First-class goods and a saving of from 25 to 50 per cent. Guaranteed. Write for catalogue and prices.

DeLOACH SALES CO., Bridgeport, Ala.

Shears That Are Shears.

We want your renewal to The Christian Sun and we want you to have a pair of our Shears. They never wear loose. They never get too light for heavy cloth. They never get too loose for thin cloth. They always make a straight clean cut, the full length of the blade. Guaranteed for five years.

Remember These Shears Are Self Sharpening

HOW YOU MAY GET THE SHEARS FREE

Just go to your neighbor who is not a subscriber and get him to subscribe for The Christian Sun one year for $1.50. Send us the $1.50 and the name and 10 cents for mailing, packing, etc., and you will get the shears.

Or Go Out Among Your Neighbors and Get

three renewals of The Sun for a year. You may count your own renewal as one of the three. Send us the $4.50 and you will get the shears, or if you have already paid your subscription since January 1, 1909, send us two renewals with $3.00 and you will get the shears. Lose no time. This offer may last for only a few days.

THIS PAIR OF SHEARS RETAILS FOR $1.00. WE GUARANTEE THEM TO BE AS RECOMMENDED.

ADVERTISING DEPARTMENT

For Advertising Rates Apply

Religious Press Advertising Syndicate
(Jacobs & Company)

Home Office, Clinton, S. C., who have charge of the advertising department of this paper.

Jacobs &amp; Company, J. F. Jacobs, J. D. Jacobs. Home Office, Clinton, S. S.

When in Burlington call at
T. H. STROUD'S

Store for DRUGS, SOFT DRINKS, and anything desired in drugs and Toilet Articles.

To Drive Out Malaria and Build up the System.

Take the Old Standard GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC. You know what you are taking. The formula is plainly printed on every bottle, showing it is simply Quinine and Iron in a tasteless form, and the most effectual form. For grown people and children. 50c.

PERSONALLY CONDUCTED
TOUR*"AROUND THE CONTINENT"

Over the Rocky Mountains to the Pacific, the Alaska-Yukon Exposition, Los Angeles During the Elks National Convention and Through the Yellowstone National Park—Via the

SEABORD AIR LINE RAILWAY
in charge of

Mr. C. H. Gattis, District Passenger Agent, Raleigh, N. C., and Chaperoned by Mrs. C. H. Gattis over the entire trip.

Leaves July 3rd, returns August 6th, circling the United States in a solid Pullman train composed of the highest grade and modern design of sleeping compartment observation cars and Pullman dining cars.

The most inexpensive trip ever operated from the Southeast, through Atlanta, Birmingham, Memphis, stopping at Kansas City, Denver, Colorado Springs, Salt Lake, Los Angeles, Santa Barbara, Montgomery, Santa Cruz, San Francisco, Portland, Seattle, Tacoma, Spokane, through Yellowstone National Park, St. Paul, Chicago, returning home through Cincinnati and C. &amp; O. through Richmond.

Trip cost will include railroad and Pullman fares, hotels, dining car meals, stage ride of five (5) and one-half (½) days through the Yellowstone National Park, transfers, side trips, carriage and automobile rides at stop-over points and all actual expenses necessary.

Side trips will be arranged at all stop-over points to places of interest, all details being arranged in advance and looked after enroute.

An attractive 33-day trip through the "Greatest Country in the World" covering a distance of 8,755 miles of travel in a modern Pullman train with superb dining car service, eating and sleeping in the best of hotels, sight-seeing "The Wonders of the West" leisurely, with all details arranged in advance is a luxury.

Write at once to the undersigned for cost of trip, schedule and itinerary. If

Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Is paying out and investing in both Virginia and North Carolina more than it receives from these States.

New business in Virginia, 1908,
$2,147,800

Larger than any other company.

Gain in insurance in force in Virginia, 1908,
$1,374,975

60 per cent more than the next largest.

T. ARCHIBALD CARY, General Agent for Virginia and North Carolina,
Richmond, Virginia.During 1908

(As in previous years)

We want you in our business, for we have what you want in your homes—the very best, most substantial and handsome furniture at bottom prices. We are also the undertakers.

Burke Furniture and Coffin Company

BUKLINGTON, N. C.

Southern Railway

Operating Over 7,000 Miles of Railway. Quick Route to all Points North, South, East and West.

For Speed, Comfort, Courteous Employees, travel via the Southern Railway. Rates, Schedules and other information furnished by any of the undersigned.

R. L. VERNON, Trav. Pass. Agt.,
Charlotte, N. C.J. H. WOOD, Dist. Pass. Agt.,
Asheville, N. C.

S. H. HARDWICK, P. T. M.,

W. H. TAYLOE, G. P. A.,

Washington, D. C.

Elon College.*Co-educational. Established 1890.

Thorough College courses leading to M. A., A. B., Ph. B. and Lit. B. degrees. Strong and experienced Faculty with highest University training. Good Library, Reading Room, Laboratories, Literary Societies. Excellent Music, Art and Business Departments.

Beautiful and healthful location, 17 miles east of Greensboro, on Southern Railway. Best moral and religious influence. No hazing. New students met by reception committees from young people's Christian organizations connected with the college. Good equipment. A large new dormitory, with modern conveniences, has recently been built to meet the requirements of growing patronage.

EXPENSES UNUSUALLY MODERATE.

For catalogue or further information, address

EMMETT L. MOFFITT, LL. D., President.

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

maps, timetables and booklets of the lines over which the party will travel, are desired, send 30 cents in stamps.

C. H. GATTIS,District Passenger Agent,
Raleigh, N. C.

—Deacon Charles A. Ayscue, the last charter member of Liberty Church (Vance County), died May 19. A history of his very useful life will appear in Sun at a later date.

BUCKROE HOTEL, BUCKROE BEACH, VIRGINIA.

Lower Chesapeake Bay, with unobstructed view, magnificent scenery, surf bathing, fine fishing and beautiful drives. Those seeking rest and quiet by the sea will find this an ideal spot. Under the management of the Newport News and Old Point Railway and Electric company. Write for rates and booklet.

The Christian Sun.

In Essentials—Unity, in Non-Essentials—Liberty, in All Things—Charity.

ESTABLISHED 1844.

GREENSBORO N. C., WEDNESDAY, JUNE 9, 1909.

VOLUME LXI. NUMBER 23.

ELON COLLEGE COMMENCEMENT.

(Graduating Class, see page 5).

The gay commencement season, with its gallant youths, gracious girls, and charming humor and merry-making laughter, has come and gone at Elon and our town is now that place of calm, serene repose so dear to mind in search of rest or of intellectual concentration. There is no spot quite equal to our Elon for those who desire rest or those who desire to use the mental faculties without let or hindrance—an ideal place this for the dreamer or the thinker.

This was the 19th annual recurrence of the commencement time—and it proved to be our "Best Yet." The Young People's Convention coming just before and intertwining with it gave a large attendance from the first. The weather was ideal—it rained up till the first day of the Convention,—then there were six glorious days; the day after commencement the heavens opened and the floods descended. So man and nature and nature's God combined to make the commencement just past a record-breaker and a standard maker.

There are numerous changes announced for next year. Prof. P. J. Kernodle, for ten years in the Math. chair, resigns to enter the publishing business in Richmond, Va. Prof. N. F. Brannock goes to Johns Hopkins University for a year's graduate work and will return next year as Prof. Mathematical Sciences. Prof. V. C. Pritchette goes to the University of Va. for graduate work. Miss Elise Ramsay retires from the faculty after nine years of successful work in the music department. She is succeeded by Miss Linda Barnes, who goes to the New England Conservatory for the summer, as do Misses Wilson and Pitt also of the music department. Miss Allen of the Department of Expression will not return. Miss Bryan, of the Art Department, studies in Washington during vacation. Prof. T. C. Amick of West Maryland College was elected principal of the preparatory department.

Steps were taken in regard to the $50,000 endowment, of which mention has frequently been made in the Christian Sun, which it is hoped will insure its success within the year. Gen. Julian S.

Carr gave the College $1,000. Mr. C. D. West, Newport News, Va., gave $500. General Carr has endowed the Rev. J. W. Wellons scholarship medal. Dr. R. M. Morrow, Burlington, N. C., Mr. J. Beale Johnson, Cardenas N. C., Mr. W. H. Jones, Jr., Cashier Farmer's Bank of Nansemond, Suffolk, Va., and Mr. D. S. Farmer, News Ferry, Va., were elected to membership on the Board of Trustees.

But aside from these innovations, the commencement exercises were of such high order that they alone would make the Commencement an excellent one, of which we now begin to give a rather meagre account.

May 31.

Sunday morning at 11:30 the baccalaureate sermon was preached in the college chapel by Rev. J. O. Atkinson, D. D., from the text, "God forbid that I should glory, save in the cross of our Lord, Jesus Christ." Beginning the preacher said that "to glory means to take excessive pleasure, delight in, boast of. Now Paul, the author of this text, had all the advantages of learning, scholarship, position, and prestige. He had entered life with uncommon advantages, with ability, but he gloried only in the cross.

"And yet the cross represented the most cruel crime of the ages. We have no crime in history equal to that of the cross. But considering Paul's writing we see that for him the cross represented three things, (1) the sin of the world, (2) the pain of God, (3) the outpouring of the life of the Son of God, that he might save men from their sins."

It was a masterful discourse telling the origin of sin in the world, the power of the atonement and the marvelous love of God for a lost soul and a sinful world. For more than an hour the orator held his vast audience spell-bound. Of all the baccalaureate sermons yet delivered at Elon College there is none that surpassed this one in depth of thought, vivacity of conception and eloquence in delivery.

Concluding, the speaker addressed himself directly to the young men and young women of the graduating class as follows:

"Young men and young women of the graduating class! I do not know the secret chambers of your heart, cannot read the hidden mysteries there, the temptations you are to face, nor the low depths to which you may descend. But this I know: The Son of God reads every line written there, knows full well every secret that is enshrined there, and measures the heights of your temptations and the depth of your daring. He knows it all. You need not tell Him of yourself. He knows what is in you. Standing before Him as a great light, you smite your breast in disappointment and say, I am nothing. I am weak and poor and needy. I am slow and stupid and dull. I have toiled and trudged and tugged for four years and I seem less and I am less than I was four years ago. That is the estimate you place upon yourself. You feel that you are worth little and can accomplish little. That you have spent your money and time and your energy, and that now you are empty and bare and needy.

"Will you hear me, in confias', as to the estimate others have placed upon you. Why, sirs, your fathers and friends and creditors have esteemed you so highly that they have denied themselves again and again in your behalf. They have taken their earnings, and their energies, given their prayers and employed their sacrifices, not because they thought you were empty and bare and bruised, but because they thought, they knew you were men and women, worthy of the best that learning could give, capable of the highest that culture and Christian service could bring.

"Why, sirs, years ago when there was less of promise in you than there is today, pious souls and anxious hearts esteemed you as worthy of college buildings, laboratories, and libraries, and built them for you. For these four years a Christian faculty have labored and wrought and toiled, not because you were broken and bruised, and nothing, but because they knew there was something in you, that you were men and women made in God's image, capable of great and good lives.

"And then most of all, back yonder, Jesus Christ, even then knowing all your

(Continued on page four).

FROM THE FIELD.

NEWPORT NEWS LETTER.

Many of the best and most substantial things of life, if not the most essential even, are often found in groups. That it true of the potato root, up through sweet flowers, juicy fruits, social circles, occasions of joy and gladness, of sorrow and distresses. Marriages, funerals, revivals, and reformations often come in the same line. If on the strength of that I call attention to the manner in which I write for the Sun, in groups of long letters with long silences between, perhaps some will smile and call me immodest. Well, just smile right on and keep on thinking of such vanity (?) in this connection. The reason for writing now (among other reasons) is that the editor gives me an occasional hint, and some of my members and friends outside touch my little lump of vanity (?) frequently by asking me to write, and declaring that they actually search for my letters. Well, that is just what the members and friends of all the pastors do. They want to hear from us in the church paper, and I say that more censuringly to myself than to many others. Back to the thought of "groups" again. Until a pastor has been in a settled pastorate for some time, especially in a small pastorate in the city, he gets but few marriages and conducts but few funerals. After several months of patient waiting I recently struck my first "group" of two marriages and one funeral. If the editor does not rule them out here to another column will give them. (But how much better they would seem and sound in their proper place. —Ed). The first marriage was that of Comd't. Geo. Mallison, of the U. S. Navy and Miss Anne C. Wilson, of Petersburg, Va. The ceremony was performed in this city by the writer April 28th; was a very quiet home affair and witnessed by just a few of the immediate family. After the ceremony they left at once for a tour, and on their return will reside at the Warwick Hotel, this city. Comd't Mallison presented a handsome personality, and was excelled only by the beauty of his bride. Both are popular and will carry with them the best wishes of a large circle of friends. May heaven's blessings crown their lives. On the following day, April 29th, at the home of the bride, this city, Mrs. Carrie Virginia Tyree became the bride of Mr. Ernest Combs, of Portsmouth, Va. The bride was handsomely attired and carried roses, and the groom wore black with white tie. Another beautiful bride and happy groom. After the ceremony, which was witnessed by a number of friends and neighbors, refreshments were served and a delightful evening spent. May their lives be blessed.

Last Sunday I exchanged pulpits with Rev. J. W. Harrall, of Portsmouth, who came over in the interest of his church building fund. The weather was inclement so that both he and I had small congregations. I learned that he raised about one hundred and nine dollars and preached a good sermon. His canvass among the churches will mean more to his work than the money he raises, for it will create an interest and consideration for his work and cause that could not be secured in any other way.

I shall not promise for the size or character of this "group" of letters beginning with this, only that it will probably be a "group."

Murdoek W. Butler.

Newport News, Va., May 28, 1909.

NOTES FROM THE FIELD.

Second Sunday in May, by invitation of Rev. J. L. Foster, I was with him and the good people of Mt. Auburn, Warren Co., N. C., in their memorial service. The congregation was very large, so large that we were compelled to conduct an overflow meeting morning and afternoon. After the morning services the congregation went to the cemetery and after prayer by the writer and appropriate and touching remarks by Bro. L. R. Crocker and the pastor, Rev. J. L. Foster, flowers were placed upon all graves. Bro. Foster has a splendid people to serve at Mt. Auburn, and I am glad to know of his good success as pastor. I am always glad to be with Bro. Foster in his work. We were classmates at Graham Normal College and there ties of friendship were formed which have never been broken, but I believe have grown stronger in service in the Lord's work.

Rev. D. A. Long, D. D., very kindly consented to fill my pulpit at Burlington, thus enabling me to be at Mt. Auburn. Dr. Long pleased my people very much that day. His subject was "Jerusalem the Holy." Those who know Dr. Long, know that he is an orator of no mean ability. He is a delightful and forceful speaker, and it has rarely been my privilege to hear any one surpass him when he is at his best.

The fifth Sunday in May was a great day in the history of the Union Christian Church, Alamance Co., N. C., the occasion being the opening of their new church of worship. On Saturday before they had services and the laying of the corner stone, but it was not my good fortune to be present. But on Sunday I was present and preached the eleven o'clock opening Sunday service. Bro. C. C. Peel preached an interesting sermon that afternoon. Rev. A. F. Iseley and the pastor, Rev. J. W. Holt, took appropriate parts in the services. The Lord's Supper was administered after the morning sermon. The congregation was variously estimated. The largest estimate that I heard was 5,000. I do not know how many people were there. The house and grounds were full of people. Everybody seemed in a good humor, and appeared pleased to be present. Bountiful dinners were served on the grounds and at neighboring houses.

The church building is of concrete blocks, nicely put together, and within the church is beautifully and tastily finished and furnished. Bro. Holt and his excellent congregation are to be congratulated upon the erection of such a splendid structure. The sympathy of our community goes out to Bro. Holt and his wife in her long and painful illness. Sister Holt has been sick for more than twelve months and is at this writing not able to be up. Bro. Holt himself has not been very well for the last few days.

It is sad to chronicle the death of Sister Sallie Roney, wife of Bro. C. H. Roury, who fell asleep on May 24, 1909, at her home a few miles from Burlington, in the 53d year of her age. Her husband and four children survive. Sister Roney was an interested and faithful member of the Christian Church from early life. At the time of her death she was a member of Long's Chapel. The funeral services were from the home, conducted by Bro. Holt and the writer. The burial was in the cemetery at Burlington. Bro. Holt gives notice of her death, but I desire to add the above word, for truly a good woman has passed from earth to her reward. The Lord bless her bereaved ones.

P. H. Fleming.

WITH OUR NORFOLK CHURCHES.

On the second Sunday in May Dr. Staley was with us at Columbus, Ga. It was a treat to us to hear him. The doctor did fine work while with us. His sermons were profound and powerful. We only regret he could not stay with us longer. Maybe at some other time we shall be favored with his presence again. We want to begin a revival there in June, about the second Sunday. Pray for us. I have spent two weeks with the Third Church, Norfolk, with Bro. Thompson. This has been indeed a feast and a rest for me. I have been so pressed for the last months with cars and business, that I needed rest. While I have not been idle here, yet it has been a change. The meeting here was hindered by rain. It rained six nights during our meeting, but we just held on and had a good meeting after all. Dr. Manning will write of the meeting and will speak of other things. I found Bro. Thompson a fine yoke fellow. My work with him was pleasant. He is a good, consecrated preacher. The members that constitute this church are a loyal band of faithful, consecrated men and women. A good church edifice is soon to become their pressing need. The church is located in a fine residence section and is fast being filled up with nice homes. With proper care and leadership this church is destined to be a power for good. We need a church building fund to help such places to build them a house. More about this later. The church here paid me $90.50 for my services. Also Dr. J. W. Manning and his most excellent wife made me a present of a $30.00 suit of clothes. For these expressions of appreciation I bow my head and give thanks to Him from whom all blessings flow. I had the pleasure of visiting Bro. Cox and his people at South Norfolk. It was good to be there. Col. West preached a good sermon, or lectured a good sermon, to a large and attentive audience. He spoke to good acceptance. The South Norfolk Church is quite vigorous for a child of five years. I had the good pleasure of meeting Bro. Ryan, of the Memorial Temple. I admire his pluck and energy. I met Bro. Harrell and went over and saw where he is soon to erect a beautiful church. Bro. Bryant was with us one night. Rev. J. W. Barrett was with us several nights. We were pleased to meet these brethren and we ask God's richest blessings upon them in their different fields.

I leave for my Georgia home and work today.

Fraternally,

H. W. Elder.

MUSING.

While meditating, these thoughts took hold of my mind, and the thought that if even one could be helped by them, they ought to be put on paper.

While traveling over the way it is so very pleasant to meet friends—those who have been friends in need and in deed. This has been a very happy year to many—in several ways. They have traveled more than usual and seen more of the world and things it contains. More homes have been visited, where and when just a few, earnest, friendly, pleasant words were passed. Short, sweet greeting is often so much better while meeting. And it sometimes happens that the long distance between the visits, and the short conversation, gives enchantment to the meeting.—Folks wear themselves out, in a degree, by being seen too often; some folks specially, if they are not congenial. Even then do not waste time by tarrying too long and talking too much. Politely bow and pleasantly smile as you pass. In illustrating long and short visits, it may be noticed here, that a noted phrenologist on a certain occasion waited upon a subject who presented himself for examination and in the course of his lecture after due examination said to him, "When you call upon your affianced be sure and not stay too long—but leave with one of the best smiles you can put on, and she will be gladder to see you on your next visit."

Some one said, "Short visits make long friends." That will depend upon the surrounding conditions. If there is abundant congeniality, you might remain a little longer—but even then do not stay too long, because in that time some tell all they know, and put more to it than they do know, especially if they have itching ears and a cultivated tact for portraying in lucid style the latest by tongue. And the message by tongue is not always written up with the best diction, the most prudent thought, nor in a correct way. Catch words, by words, and disgusting slang, are often used until people of refinement get tired. Say what you mean, and mean what you say. Do not, under any condition prevaricate. Be manly, just, and truthful, and never in the fair name of honesty say a thing, and then when put to the test, come up with the plea, "I didn't say it." A deceiver is very likely to be caught, and of all the infamous characters he may be placed among the worst. Truth is one of the brightest ornaments that can adorn character. It is like gold—it will stand the test. When you have faith in a person's truthfulness and honesty, you have a firm foundation to build your confidence on, but if these are lacking you are building on the sand. You have met many sandy people—they are easy to be blown away and to be washed away. Instances have been known, and the world was better when they left.

Boys and girls, men and women all over the world are being liberally educated. Primary schools and colleges have been established and a great many are being educated in them. Many are receiving Christian education, and they are diligent making preparation to make the world better, and it makes us glad to think they are progressing. But there are so many who are being educated in the school of sin, with its hundreds of classes studying day and night for the different degrees in sin. This school has thousands of busy students studying hard to see who can excel in the different fields of sin. The first may be called useful education, the last named worthless education, and yet there are more in the schools of the last than in the first. A good education and a bad education is just the right name for them. They may be called idlers, spongers or suckers, either one or all three names may be given. A sponge absorbs all the liquids it can, whether they are pure or not. There is, however, one exception with them, they absorb all the impurities and dregs, and leave out the pure things. Purity of thought, purity of life is out of their consideration. One of the sleek, fat, grunting animals wallows in the mud and water, and it acts like it desires such a place better than any other. Idleness is the trouble with so many people. It has ruined thousands, and will ruin millions more unless they repent, rise up, "shake off the dust," and rub off the rust with the proper use of their time and talents. Have something to do and then go about that business like one who strikes out for success and an honest living. The idler has a hard time keeping from work and doing nothing. He begs from place to place, he bloats with indolence and gloats with the loungers, reveling in dirt and uncleanly habits until his dim light goes out in the darkness of eternal death. Some there are who can begin to live if they only try—put off, lay aside forever the old garments of sin, and put on, be clothed with the garments of righteousness. Go right to work for yourselves, for others, you will feel better, look better, and be happy. Work is the one way to feel well and happy. It polishes the mind, exercises the body—gives tone to the system, makes purer blood, and gives better health. Try it; begin now. you get tired, rest awhile, then start again. Thus little by little you will gain strength and endurance for better and greater achievement in the large field of human activity. There are places which will be waiting for you—look for them, prepare yourself for them—for you are able to go up and occupy and possess them if you will. You may have to dig long and deep in the mine before you reach the shining metal, but what is that, so you get it and get paid for your work? Try beats idleness every time. There is great competition, but you may be a successful competitor. Get in line with duty and it will lead you up the useful and beautiful way, and then waving your banner decked with the stars and stripes of industry you can weakness and folly and sin, considered you worth dying for, esteemed you so highly that He laid down His life for you.

(Continued on page fourteen).

(Begun on page one.)

"You may not esteem yourself. As such you may say there is nothing good and great in store for you. Tell me, if that were so would loved ones have sacrificed, interested ones taught and toiled, and the Son of God have died for you, suffered the humility of the cross and the horrors of death and the grave in your behalf that you might shine as the righteousness of God?"

"Oh, my brothers and my sisters, can you go down to nothing and to ruin, when others have done so much for you, and the Son of God has placed such value upon you? God of my fathers forbid it.

"Hear me, you know you are nothing now, but you expect some day to be great. No bad man was ever a success. No good man was ever a failure. You may not be great; but by the grace of God you may be good, and only a man's goodness abides at all times and stands the tests of the eternity of God. As Jesus Christ valued your life, so may you value and, by His grace, measure up to the requirements of a life in Him, and through Him shine."

Monday evening at 8 o'clock in the College Chapel, the representatives of the three literary societies in the institution gave their annual program of essays and orations to a vast and appreciative audience. The program rendered was as follows:

Oration, "Conservation of Resources." A. L. Lincoln, Harrisonburg, Va., representing the Clio Society; essay, "A Voice in the Night," Miss Nannie Baker Farmer, News Ferry, Va., of the Psi-Phi Society; oration, "Strength out of Weakness," A. C. Hall, Burlington, N. C., of the Philologist Society; oration, "Striving for the Mastery," L. E. Holland, Franklin, Va., of the Clio Society; essay, "The Taj-Mahal," Miss Virgie Cobb Holland, Suffolk, Va., representing the Psi. Society; oration, "Shall We Take Down the Balances," C. C. Fonville, Burlington, N. C., of the Phi. Society.

Tuesday, June 1.

Tuesday morning at 11:30, to a magnificent audience, Senator F. M. Simmons, senior Senator from North Carolina, delivered a thrilling oration before the literary societies, which he was pleased to call "North Carolina and Her People." No man can speak with authority on North Carolina and her people equal to that of the gifted and profound Senator.

Senator Simmons said in part:

"I want to talk to you about North Carolina and its people, about ourselves. What we have done, what we are doing, what remains for us to do, and what we hope to do.

"North Carolina is by no means an empire, yet with people possessed with highest attributes of manhood and womanhood she has for more than two hundred years almost stood still compared with the progress of other States, we moved so slowly that we seem to stand still—moved so slowly that we won the title of the Rip Van Winkle of the Union.

"Why did we move so slowly? That is what I want to talk to you about. North Carolina has never suffered at any time from lack of patriotism on the part of her children. During these years of slumber we were not stagnant, because our people did possess patriotism and the energy necessary to develop our resources; we could not develop them only because we could not see them. But we see them now and have made more real progress in the last two decades than we have made in all our previous history.

"What were the causes, I ask, of our lethargy? First, the Civil War. Second, the action of 1868, which introduced an alien political element into our population, which retarded our progress for more than a generation. The adoption of the amendment of 1898, which reversed this action, was a great step in the right direction, and then the wonderful victory which we won last year over the bar and distillery, removed the last hindrance to our progress as a State.

"But there is work for us yet to do, in connection with our material welfare and in connection with our social culture and our intellectual advancement. The most enduring monuments of any people are its intellectual and literary advantages, and it is my sincere hope that we shall not develop in material wealth and social culture only; but in intellectual achievements also.

"I pray for aggressive individuals in our State in thought as well as in action."

Concluding, the Senator said that North Carolina is to be a great and powerful State and her people live and progress even beyond the expectation of the optimist. "But let us hope that her greatness may consist in intellectual achievement, in the creative genius of her sons and daughters, as well as their material accumulations.

And to this end in conclusion I appeal for a deeper and broader culture and higher intellectual life, for a training and culture that will smite the spring of our greatest victories. I appeal for a broad catholic North Carolina, for a spirit to serve and sacrifice for her."

At 3 P. M. on Tuesday the annual recital of the Department of Expression occurred. There were in the program nine select readings by as many young ladies and a "pantomime of dignity" in which all the class participated and for which Messrs. R. A. Campbell and P. C. White served as accompanists.

At 8 P. M. of this same day to the usual thronging audience which greets our public music programs the Annual Concert was given. Thirteen choice selections from the master composers in all languages, voice and piano, were rendered with utmost perfection. Each number was greeted with generous applause. It is no disparagement of previous concerts to chronicle here the universal verdict, that it surpassed all of them and erected a new and higher standard for the future.

At 10:30 o'clock Wednesday morning, June 2, the graduating class, accompanied by the faculty, trustees, and alumni and many distinguished visitors entered the chapel and took their places on the rostrum and the graduating exercises of the class of '09 had actually begun. Music for the occasion was furnished by the college band and was interspersed throughout the program. The class was represented by nine speakers, six orators, and three essayists.

Miss Julia Maud Pritchard led the exercises with an essay entitled, "A Warfare of Ideals." Mr. Samuel McCoy Patton came second in an oration, "The Parting of the Ways." Then came Mr. Simeon McClellan Atkinson who delivered an oration entitled "The March of the Flag," being a history of our colonial policy. Miss Iola Graham Johnson followed with an essay, "Uttered Melodies." She was followed by Mr. Ralph Parker Collier in an oration, "A Crumbling Wall," who was in turn followed by Mr. Richard Perry Crumpler in an oration, "A View from the Summit." Miss Pearle Gertrude Welker read an essay, "The American Girl's Heritage." She was followed by Mr. Stanley Claudius Harrell in an oration entitled "The Imprint of Destiny." The exercises on the part of the class were closed by Mr. Percy Glyndon Gunter, who delivered an oration, "The Republic's Advance," concluding with a farewell to the institution delivered as valedictorian of the class. The diplomas were then presented by President Moffitt in choice words. Dr. Moffitt said in part:

ELON COLLEGE GRADUATING CLASS, 1909.

Reading from left to right: Julia Maude Pritchard, Richard Perry Crumpler, Simeon McClellan Atkinson, Percy Glyndon Gunter, Iola Graham Johnson, Stanley Claudius Harrell, Samuel McCoy Patton, Ralph Parker Coble, Gertrude Pearl Walker.

"It is a great privilege you young men and young women enjoy today. Only about one out of every 650 of our total population go to college, only about one out of 150 who go to school at all ever go to college and only a small per cent of those who go to college ever graduate, about one out of nine or ten. But the mere fact remains that your college education will not place your names on the roll of the marked men and women of your time. It is not by your diplomas but by your fruits that men shall know you.

"Today as never before the world measures men and women by the degree of service they render. Do not then expect the best of everything just because you are the fortunate few who have entered the blessings of a college education. The majority of you expect to enter the teaching profession. A noble calling this and one that in this age of wonderful educational awakening is fast coming to its own. There is no circle of society so exclusive as to refuse admittance to the teachers. The teacher is a leader in every professional movement. Some of you will enter the legal profession and some the gospel ministry and some will go into business, but wherever your life's work is to be, I plead with you to carry with you the high ideals which you have imbibed during the four years you have spent in this institution."

The Bibles were presented to the graduating class by Rev. C. H. Rowland of Franklin, Va., General Julian S. Carr, of Durham, presented the medals to the orators and essayists. The orator's medal was won by Mr. P. G. Gunter. The essayist's medal was won by Miss Iola Johnson.

The scholarship and thesis medals were delivered by General Carr to Mr. Percy Glyndon Gunter, the valedictorian of his class. The subject of Mr. Gunter's thesis was the "Single Tax System," written in the Department of Social Sciences.

Degrees, diplomas, and certificates were then awarded as follows:

Bachelor of Arts.

Percy Glyndon Gunter, Samuel McCoy Patton, Ralph Parker Coble, Richard Perry Crumpler, Stanley Claudius Harrell, and Simeon McClellan Atkinson.

Bachelor of Philosophy.

Julia Maude Pritchard, Gertrude Pearl Walker, and Iola Graham Johnson.

Master of Arts.

Virgil Clayton Pritchette, John Thomas Kernodle.

Diplomas in Music.

Mrs. Donie Rich Patton (piano), Mrs. Estelle Walker Harper (voice), and Miss Mary Ethel Clements (voice).

Certificates in Music.

Miss Marriet Ruth Stevieck (piano), Mr. Junius H. Reitzel (voice).

Certificates in Art.

Miss Pearle Gertrude Walker, and Miss Jennie Lee Williams.

The following honorary degrees were conferred: Rev. Martyn Summerbell, Ph. D., Lakemont, N. Y., was given the degree LL. D.; Rev. P. W. McReynolds, Defiance, Ohio, president of Defiance College, was given the degree D. D.

Rev. W. W. Staley presented to the college as a love offering from the friends of Dr. W. S. Long, a life size oil portrait of the distinguished founder and first president of Elon College. The benediction was pronounced by Rev. J. W. Wellons.

At three p. m. occurred the society reunions in their respective halls, which were largely attended and thoroughly enjoyed.

At 4 p. m. the art exhibit occurred. This was the best exhibit that has yet been given in this department.

(Continued on page twelve).

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEPARTMENT

—of the—

SOUTHERN CHRISTIAN CONVENTION.

W. P. Lawrence, Editor, Elon College.

HOW TO TEACH THE S. S. LESSON FOR JUNE 20, 1909.

A Few Suggestions.

Review Lesson.

Golden Text:—With great power gave the apostles their witness of the resurrection of the Lord Jesus, Acts 4:33. There are various methods of conducting a review. We can suggest only a few here. The main point is to plan thoroughly for it and then carry out your plan. Get full of the quarter's work yourself: then your class will enjoy the review lesson. The way not to conduct the review is the method so often practised of asking of each lesson: What is the subject? The Golden Text? and then adding a few musing words of your own. This is to put your class to sleep: to make what ought to be a green, grassy meadow into a barren Sabara.

1. The Method of the Written Examination.—This method is not to be followed, unless you gave notice three months ago to that effect. If you do not hold an examination this time, please arrange to do so next time. Is is a sure test of your excellence as a teacher; it will reveal to you the strength or the weakness of your teaching. By all means try it. A few illustrative questions for such an examination might well be given here: Where did Peter have a vision that taught him the gospel was for Gentiles as well as for Jews? Describe the conversion of Paul. What are the steps of the progress of the Church during this quarter? Who went on the first Missionary Journey? Draw an outline map of this journey and write an account of it. Describe the Jerusalem council. Contrast Paul's and James' fundamental teachings. The church at Antioch. The Church at Jerusalem.

2. The Lesson Method.—To use this method you should assign a lesson to a pupil expecting all to be prepared on the golden text. When the class meets call for Lesson 1. If all the facts are given, ask some one for the golden text and its application to present day life, then give the intervening events, and pass on to the second lesson. If all the facts are not given, bring them out by questions skilfully put; as a last recourse, give them yourself.

3. The Outline Method.—To use this method, ask all the class to be prepared on all eleven of the lessons. When the class has assembled, with chalk in hand go to the black board and write "Second Quarter: The Church Continues to Spread." Then say we will study the "great things" of the quarter. "Lesson 1. Peter and Cornelius. A Great Lesson," (write on the board under two columns as you talk), then ask some one who Peter was, another who Cornelius was, a third what brought them together, a fourth what the great lesson was, a fifth the golden text. Do likewise with the others. At the conclusion your board will look thus:—

Second Quarter: The Church Continues to Spread.
Peter and Cornelius. A Great Lesson.

Chief Persons.

Lesson I. Peter and Cornelius.
Lesson II. Peter and the Angel.
Lesson III. Saul and Ananias.
Lesson IV. Barnabas and Saul.
Lesson V. Saul and Sergius Paulus.
Lesson VI. Paul and the Antiochians.
Lesson VII. Paul and the Lystrans.
Lesson VIII. Paul and the Judaizers.
Lesson IX. James and his Readers.
Lesson X. James and his Readers.
Lesson XI. Paul and his Hebrew Reader<sup>s</sup>

"Great Things."

A Great Lesson.
A Great Deliverance.
A Great Conversion.
A Great Name.
A Great Mission.
A Great Doctrine.
A Great Persecution.
A Great Concession.
A Great Truth.
A Great Power.
A Great Faith.

In this exercise the teacher should gather up the threads and show how the Church grew in numbers, in extent, in spiritual power, in Christian liberality, in grasp of the fundamentals of the Christian Religion.

4. The Biographical Method.—To use this method, assign to individual pupils for report the following: Peter, Cornelius, James (the apostle) Herod (Agrimpa I), Saul (Paul), Ananias, Barnabas, John Mark, Silas, Sergius Paulus, Bar-Jesus (Elymas), James (the Lord's Brother). When the reports are made, if there are omissions, bring them out by questions; as a last recourse give them yourself.

5. The Geographical Method.—To use this method, assign to individual pupils for report the following: Cesarea, Joppa, Jerusalem, Damascus, Antioch, Cyprus, Paphos, Antioch in Pisidia, Iconium, Lystra. If the reports are not full enough, bring out omissions by questions: as a last recourse give them yourself.

6. The "Spiritual Teachings" Method.—To use this method, assign a lesson to each pupil and expect him to bring in at least three spiritual teachings for his lesson and to be able to apply the same to present-day life. Hold all responsible for the golden text.

7. The "Recitation" Method.—To use this method, write off the facts of the lesson of the quarter and the intervening events in from 15 to 20 sections of equal length. Assign a section to each pupil to be memorized. When the class assembles, have them stand in a row. Call for number one, two, three, and so on. Between every four or five sections, an appropriate song may be sung, or a stanza from some song. This entails much work on the teacher, but gets especially good results in primary and intermediate grades. It would make a very excellent exercise before the entire school, taking the place of the superintendent's talk.

8. The Chart or Picture Card Method.—If you have a chart of pictures illustrative of the lessons or picture cards covering the same, they can be very successfully used by exhibiting the picture, the subject of the lesson and the golden texts being concealed. Ask your class what each picture represents, who the persons are, and what part each had in the lesson.

9. The Illustrative Story Method.—A good method for young men and young women would be to ask each one to find a good story illustrating some spiritual teaching of the lesson assigned to each.

10. Manual Work Method.—Have the note books read, at least one or two of them. Get the class to talk about them, pointing out where improvements can be made. Take the books home with you for correction, grading, and detailed suggestion. If you use either of the other nine methods, do not fail to call for the books and to take them home for the purposes suggested above.

Assignments for Next Time.—Ask one to read the book of Romans and tell what it is about; a second to report on Matt. 22:34-40 in connection with verse 8; a third to report on the parable of Jesus teaching neighborliness, Luke 11:25-37; a fourth to memorize the description of the Christian Armor in Eph. 6:13-18.

Elon College, N. C., W. A. Harper.

—Trust in the Lord and do good.

THE S. S. LESSON FOR JUNE 13, '09.*Heroes of Faith.

Heb. 11:1-40.

Golden Text.—Faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen, Heb. 11:1.

Paul's letter to the Hebrew Church is one of great interest and marvellous beauty. In this lesson many truths are presented which may be read with great profit by all Christians. We can only attempt a few suggestions concerning the choice of Moses, verses 24-26.

This passage sets forth a very astonishing instance of self-denial and devotedness to God. It is indeed a striking evidence of the power of faith and is well calculated both to instruct and profit the contemplative mind.

Notice—

1. Moses' Renunciation.
2. His Choice.
3. The principle by which he was influenced.

His renunciation respected those things which have ever been held in the highest estimation by the world. He renounced:—

1. The honors of a prince. "Refused to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter." There are few things more attractive than honor. What sacrifices men make to obtain it! Ease, time, health, and even life are daily hazarded for it. Princely honor is the summit of human ambition. Yet the dignities of an Egyptian prince had no attractions for Moses, and he freely and cheerfully laid them aside.

He renounced—

2. The pleasures of a court. The courts generally abound with them. Whatever can gratify the senses, or pander the imagination, may be expected here. Eastern palaces and courts are generally scenes of all that is luxurious and gross and dissipated. Hence they are styled in the text "pleasures of sin." They originate in sin and invariably tend to the increase of sin.

He renounced—

3. The riches of a kingdom. And that kingdom was Egypt, so greatly famed for its grandeur and treasures, and which for many ages was the most distinguished nation on earth. Yet the treasure of this wealthy nation found no place in the heart of Moses.

This renunciation took place at the period of his maturity. When he was quite capable of judging and righteously estimating them. When they might have been expected to have presented the greatest attraction. When he was capable of enjoying them.

Notice his choice. He made choice of the people of God as his associates. They are the wisest companions. They are the most honorable. They are the most useful.

He chose the afflictions of God's people. The reproach of Christ.

The principle by which he was influenced—by faith rightly to estimate the things of this world.

With respect to honors, pleasures, and riches, he was aware that they were unsatisfying in their nature, uncertain in their possession, evanescent in their duration, and sometimes evil in their influence.

His faith had particular reference to recompense of reward. The world is divided into two classes—the votaries of pleasure and riches, and those who are renouncing these and, by faith, having respect to a future recompense of reward. The possession of love to both is impossible. Let the preciousness of the soul, the riches of heaven, and the joys of eternity decide your choice.

G. W. Tickle.

Elon College, N. C.

MINUTES OF THE YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONVENTION.

Held at Elon College, N. C., May 29-31, 1909. The opening of the Convention consisted of a 15 minute song service led by Mr. W. W. Elder and the College choir, followed by a few remarks by Prof. S. M. Smith, of Raleigh, N. C.

The roll of registered delegates was called, and other delegates present not previously registered were enrolled.

A temporary organization was effected by the election of Rev. W. T. Walters as chairman, Rev. Herbert Scholz Secretary and Bro. A. L. Lincoln assistant Secretary.

Rev. W. T. Walters, on taking the chair, requested Rev. C. H. Rowland to lead the audience in prayer.

The congregation was favored with a vocal solo by Miss Ethel Clements.

On motion the program as previously printed was adopted as the one which the Convention would follow, with the exception of the first item on page two.

Prof. P. J. Kernodle then read an interesting paper on the Losses and Gains of the Christian Church in the Past.

This was followed by an open discussion of the purpose of this Convention. W. P. Lawrence emphasized the social feature of religious bodies and stated that this was one of the purposes of the Convention. Rev. C. H. Rowland emphasized unity of prayer, thought, feeling, and action. Rev. W. C. Wicker spoke of the necessity of young people's assisting themselves in religious work and not holding back for older ones to go forward.

Rev. W. T. Walters declared the purpose of this Convention is to arouse our people to see and grasp their opportunity. Prof. S. M. Smith spoke of the necessity of organizing our young people to keep our efforts from running to waste. Prof. W. A. Harper spoke of the necessity of having some definite work, and sticking to that work.

On motion, Professors S. M. Smith, W. A. Harper, and W. P. Lawrence were appointed as Com. on motions, resolutions, and constitution.

Fifteen minutes were spent in a quiet hour service after which the Convention adjourned for the evening.

Sunday Morning.

The Convention spent the time from 9:30 to 10:30 observing the conduct of the various departments of the Elon College S. S. and from 11:30 to 1:45 in attending divine worship in the College Chapel.

Sunday Afternoon.

A short time was spent in song service, after which several new delegates were enrolled.

A round table discussion conducted by Rev. C. H. Rowland occupied nearly all the session. The main topic was, Why has C. E. not succeeded in our church?

On motion, Rev. C. E. Newman, W. E. McClenney and H. C. Simpson were appointed a Committee on Nominations.

On motion of Rev. W. C. Wicker a Com. was appointed to consider the question of conducting a C. E. Department in the Christian Sun and raising the necessary means with which to remunerate such an editor, and for the general promotion of the work.

Revs. W. C. Wicker, A. W. Andes, and Miss Effie Iseley were appointed on this committee.

Prof. W. A. Harper was extended the privileges of the Convention.

On motion, the Convention adjourned to meet in evening session at 8 o'clock.

Sunday Evening.

Song service led by Elon College choir. Prayer by Rev. C. C. Jones. New delegates were enrolled.

Report of Committee on motions, resolutions and constitution was received and on motion referred back to Com., until Monday morning.

Report of Committee on Nominations adopted.

Report of Com. on C. E. Department in the Sun tabled until Monday.

The matter of Teacher Training was taken up in a round table, conducted by Prof. W. A. Harper. Miss Ivey Andes read a record of the work in the Teacher Training class at Elon College. Mr. E. T. Hines told of the meaning of the Teacher Training work to him. Prof. S. M. Smith told what he purposed to do as the head of the S. S. Board

(Continued on page eleven).

THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

Founded 1844 by Elder Daniel W. Kerr.
Organ of the Southern Christian
Convention.

Entered at the postoffice at Greensboro, N. C., as second-class matter.

Terms of Subscription.

One Year .....	$1.50
Six Months .....	.75
Four Months .....	.50
Advertising rates given on application.

J. O. Atkinson, Editor and Publisher.

Important Notice.—As readers will see, The Christian Sun is now published at Greensboro, N. C. The office of publication there is 302½ South Elm Street. Our editorial office, however, remains at Elon College, N. C., to which all letters and communications to the Editor should be addressed, as heretofore.

THE ELON COMMENCEMENT.

We make no apologies for the large space which we give this week to Prof. W. A. Harper's account of the Elon College commencement. A commencement is like a marriage, intensely personal, delightfully social, and marks an epoch in individual life. We shall read the account of commencement to see what was said and done to start nine men and women off into the actual and practical pursuits of life. And the account will further interest us as showing what our intellectual pursuits and aspirations are carrying us to. Commencement is educational life on dress parade for inspection; it is culture and refinement under scrutiny. It is the high water mark of the college life of a year. It is a display on the platform of what has been done in lecture room, library and laboratory during a year. All this, and more, is a college commencement, with the highest and happiest social enjoyment thrown in.

Because Christian Sun readers everywhere are interested, and justly, in all that Elon College does for progress and achievement, the full and lucid account of the nineteenth annual commencement by Prof. Harper will be read with pleasure and profit.

THE ORPHANAGE.

The annual meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Christian Orphanage was held in the Superintendent's office at the Orphanage Tuesday June 1. All members of the Board were present except Bro. E. Moffitt, of Asheboro who was kept away by sickness. The farm and equipment were found, on inspection, to be in good condition. Several acres of land have been cleared the past winter and spring, some building had to be done and farm implements purchased which required heavy expense; but it means permanent improvement which the future will most probably justify.

The roof of the main building is found to be leaking and this was ordered repaired. No window blinds or screens have ever been put in, and these are a necessity. The Board felt compelled to have these put in even at the hazard of going into debt for them for a few months. Superintendent Foster, with his efficient help and assistants, was re-elected to the position which he has so ably filled since the orphanage began. The Board commended the management, believing it to be thorough, capable, and satisfactory. Some applicants to receive other children were voted upon and the number now in the orphanage, twenty-seven in all, will soon be increased.

The thousand dollars recently given the institution by an unknown friend was put to permanent investment as the beginning of an endowment fund.

THE YOUNG PEOPLE'S MOVEMENT.

That a movement has been launched to organize the young people of the Southern Christian Convention for effectual Christian service will be doubted no longer by any who read in other columns of this paper the proceedings of the Convention of Young People recently in session at Elon College.

That we have been content to drag along these years without effort to organize and use, to some good purpose, the energies of our young people, is nothing less than deplorable.

How many of our young people are we training for Christian service? Go to almost any congregation and you will see dozens, not to say scores, of bright, intelligent, ready young men and young women, who are capable and willing enough; but nothing of Christian work, no church or Sunday school duties are given them to do.

These young people will be needed shortly to take the place of older heads in the church. Are they being trained for these places and for such service?

So our recent Convention made a beginning. Here is the motto, here the aim: A Young People's Christian Endeavor Society in every church and a Teacher Training and organized class in every Sunday school of the Southern Christian Convention.

Could this aim be reached, and it can be, our young people will mean a mighty factor for righteousness in church and school.

LIFE OUT OF DEATH.

Construction follows destruction. Life, all life, springs out of death. Vegetable life flourishes at the expense, and upon the strength of mineral. Animal life feeds on vegetable life and animal life. The lower feeds the higher: life flourishes and feeds only on death. Mutual life enters into the sustenance of the body. And the mind builds up and develops only at the expense of nerve tissue and brain-effort.

Death is the great gateway to life. Our spirits will not begin to live until the body has shaken the shackles in death.

So, moreover, does our spiritual life begin in and depend upon the death of Christ. In His death we begin to live. Out from the cruelty of the Cross comes life for every one who will believe. Christ there accepted the issues and penalties of sin and death and the grave, and in Himself fought out the battles of life and death and danger, that men through that death and suffering might begin to live. From His death comes our life.

We shall not know the real life until we have tasted the death we are to die. Life springs from death. When the body dies the soul leaps forth into larger, better, sweeter life. All life comes from death.

GREENSBORO CHURCH DEDICATION.

Our Greensboro First Church was dedicated with appropriate ceremony last Sunday. The program was fitting and efficient. The opening address of the services, which began at 10 A. M., was by Prof. S. A. Holleman of Greensboro who was one of the prime factors in beginning the work here. His theme was "The Mission Board in the Organization of the Work," of which Board at the time Prof. Holleman was an active member. His address was timely and much enjoyed.

Rev. L. I. Cox of Elon College who organized the work and was first pastor of the church then read a timely paper on "Our First Three Years of Missionary Work in Greensboro." This paper set forth in succinct and comprehensive manner the sacrifices and successes of those early years in the history of the work. This paper will be printed in next week's Sun.

Rev. L. F. Johnson, pastor of the church for six years, told of the work with the church during his pastorate, of its trials and triumphs. Bro. Johnson's remarks were much enjoyed by his former parishioners.

A collection of $450 was taken which liquidates all indebtedness on a building which has cost, with the lot, about $12,000.00. There may be a more liberal and loyal people than these somewhere, but we have yet to find them. They have sacrificed again and again and again, until they seem to rejoice in the privilege.

After a brief dedicatory sermon by the Sun's editor, Rev. W. H. Bolton, the present pastor read the dedicatory formula, thus formally dedicating the house to the service of God, and Rev. L. I. Cox led the dedicatory prayer, Rev. L. F. Johnson, at the conclusion, pronouncing the benediction.

The music was well chosen, prepared with care and rendered with great efficiency and satisfaction. The congregation was large, intelligent, appreciative. It was, all in all, a good day for our cause in Greensboro and the work there under Bro. Bolton does well and moves forward.

Rev. L. I. Cox preached for the congregation at night to the delight of the entire congregation who heard him gladly.

SUFFOLK LETTER.

The Commencement at Elon College was very good this year, the society representatives, graduates, and those who took part in the musical concert, all showing signs of good training and careful preparation. I am sure the editor will give a full write-up of the exercises, and hence I will not cover the same ground, though it would furnish me good material for a letter.

To meet old friends, to keep in touch with young life, to breathe the atmosphere of a college campus, and come in touch, once a year, with the college spirit it is to refresh with history and prophecy. Schools are creators of ideals and tendencies in thought, and any age can be estimated by its college spirit. Nobody sleeps well at a college commencement. The excitement is in the atmosphere and all breathe it and become influenced by it.

On Wednesday afternoon, Dr. Atkinson and I answered a very kind invitation of Mr. J. Beale Johnson, Cardenas, N. C., left Elon College and went to Raleigh. Mr. Johnson took Dr. Atkinson and Mrs. Zeb Atkinson in an automobile, and Mr. K. B. Johnson took me in his auto, and away we sped over the good highway leading out south from Raleigh. In less than an hour we were guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. Beale Johnson in their splendid mansion overlooking a great mill-pond. Dr. Atkinson recently wrote an architectural description of this splendid home, and I can underwrite his description after enjoying the luxuries of its hospitality. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson and her sister fill the house with a hospitality that surpasses all that the architect has done in massive Doric columns, wide hallways, ample rooms and stairways, elegant furniture and electric lights.

The woods at break of day were full of birdsongs of many species, and the rain in the night left the air as clean as white linen from the washtub. A good breakfast and then Bro. Johnson, Dr. Atkinson, and I put off to the pond. The clouds served as umbrellas and the breezes fanned our cheeks. Sleepless nights passed into oblivion. Dull care was drowned in the deep waters. All differences between Dr. Atkinson and myself faded into their forgetfulness. We were reconciled to each other and to our lot. Soon the corks began to pop, not the pop of beer bottles, but of corks on the surface of the lake. The bites were not rapid, but just frequent enough to keep up expectation and surprise. It rained some, but rain cannot drive a true fisherman ashore. When the forenoon ended we had a good catch, then a good dinner, and then I took the Raleigh and Southport train for Raleigh where I joined Willie Staley and we reached home in a rain Thursday night about nine o'clock. A prince could not sleep better than I did that night. I left Dr. Atkinson at Bro. Johnson's and the pond.

I am now in my study, having spent a day and two nights at home.

These rambles amid classic groves and beside quiet lakes, and these friendly associations in Christian homes, the deep sense of unworthiness that creeps over us when hospitality is lavished upon us, the rest and love that home furnishes, all speak of better things than present enjoyment; they point us to heaven's love for us, heaven's bounty to us, and heaven's endless provision for our souls. June with all her wealth of beauty and good things is only a foretaste of that fadeless and endless summertime where no flowers fade and no fruits fail. God's provision for the soul is as ample as His provision for the body; and the soul is as wisely and fully adapted to the best in the spiritual world as the body is adapted to the best in this present material world. When disease or misfortunes render this world unpleasant to us, we see what sin does for us in the spiritual world; it renders all that God has done for us useless—it breaks that perfect adaptation and adjustment without which all life is a burden and all nights have no stars.

W. W. Staley.

—There were two ministerial students in the graduating class of nine at Elon College last week.

NOTES AND PERSONALS.

—The heroes of the Confederacy, that splendid host whose numbers now grow less year by year, are holding their annual re-union and jubilee at Memphis, Tenn., this week.

—Of every $1. earned in Italy, 20 cts. goes to the tax collector. Yet it is proposed to spend $200,000,000 by that nation in increasing its navy. The nations seem intoxicated with the mania for great navies.

—The Eastern Virginia Sunday school Convention meets in its coming annual session at Weverly July 21-23. The Program Committee is busy now preparing a suitable program for the occasion. One of the secrets of this Convention's success is that a suitable and instructive program is carefully prepared beforehand.

Mr. S. M. Atkinson, who graduated from Elon College at the recent commencement, is again in the field in behalf of the Christian Sun. This is the fourth summer Mr. Atkinson has solicited for the Sun so that he is no stranger among our subscribers. If, when he calls, any reader and friend will kindly receive him and speed him on the way the favor will be deeply appreciated.

—There is no end in sight of the tariff debate in Congress, a debate now carried on in large measure for purposes of home consumption. If Congressmen would just hand their speeches over to the printer for a place in that staid old journal, the Congressional Record, and then vote, as they already know they are going to vote, and adjourn immediately, the country would feel greatly relieved and business would increase, we are persuaded.

—The many ministers and friends who attended the Young People's Convention and commencement at Elon College last week were pleased to meet and form the acquaintance of Rev. W. H. Bolton, pastor of our Greensboro First Church, and his good wife, whom many of our people had not met before. These two came amongst us since last Conference and the privilege afforded to many of greeting them last week was appreciated.

—Rev. L. W. Johnson, Suffolk, by no means a strong man in health for some months, ventured to put his strength to the test at the call of duty and attended the Orphanage Trustee meeting last week, of which body he is secretary. The task proved too heavy, we regret to learn, and Bro. Johnson was laid up for some days after his return home and was compelled to forego his usual appointment at Liberty Spring last Sunday.

(Continued on page thirteen).

THE CHRISTIAN ORPHANAGE DEPARTMENT.

Board of Trustees.

Rev. J. O. Atkinson, D. D., Pres., Elon College, N. C.
 Rev. I. W. Johnson, Sec., Suffolk, Va.
 Hon. W. H. Carroll, Burlington, N. C.
 L. M. Clymer, Greensboro, N. C.
 C. D. West, Newport News, Va.
 Elijah Moffitt, Esq., Asheboro, N. C.
 G. S. Watson, M. D., Elon College, N. C.
Treasurer—Prof. J. T. Cobb.
Superintendent—Jas. L. Foster, Elon College, N. C.

CHILDREN'S CORNER.

The Band of Cousins.

Jas. L. Foster, Sec., Elon College, N. C.

“He that hath pity on the poor lendeth unto the Lord, and his good deed will He pay him again.”—Prov. 19:17.

Total Reported Last Week $3187.39
Dues.

Brawner Floyd ..... .05
 Mary Lee Foster ..... .10
 James L. Foster, Jr. .... .10

Monthly S. S. Offerings.

Antioch, Va. .... 2.26
 Berea, Va. .... 6.16
 Bible Class 1 East End
 Christian S. S., Newport
 News, Va. .... 10.00
 Pleasant Grove, Va. .... 3.00
 Oak Level, N. C. .... .65

Special Offering.

C. D. Johnson ..... 5.00
 F. M. Carlton ..... 5.00
 Mrs. Bettie Gates (on support of children) ..... 3.00
 Happy Home Christian Church: .....
 Hettie Richmond ..... .05
 Eunice Richmond ..... .10
 Preston Richmond ..... .10
 M. E. Richmond ..... .25
 Ruth Richmond ..... .10
 J. H. Richmond ..... .50
 Collection ..... .95
 W. E. Trogler ..... .25
 1 picture ..... .25
 Miss Ruth Stevick ..... 1.00
 Rev. J. D. Wicker (on blinds for building) ..... .50
 Mr. Young (for same) ... 1.00
 Miss Perkins (for same) ... .25
 Mr. Cobb (for same) ..... .10

Amt. 20th week ..... $40.72
Total ..... $3228.11

Elon College, June 3, 1909.

My Dear Children and Friends:

The great commencement of 1909 has passed into history. It was fine all the way through—sermon, speech, orations, essays, music, art and elocution. Not often at any institution do you hear and see those things of greater merit than was given at Elon College, our own beloved institution this week! And the orphan children did their part nicely, for they furnished a nice program to about 200 people.

We are glad to have so nice a report this week. Where are our three friends who were going to join Bros. Carleton and Johnson in the $5.00 plan? We are waiting to hear from you.

The following donations have been received:

Miss Dora Ballentine and friends, Cardenas, N. C., 2 quilts. We are very grateful to Sisters Ballentine and Cotten and friends for three good quilts. Quilts are very necessary where so many children live.

We are sorry that the printer got his spelling so bad last week as to make me say Mr. Buchanan was from Monroe instead of Manson, N. C., and Mrs. Faucett from “Altensboro” instead of Altamahaw, N. C.

The Board of Trustees had a busy session, attending to many items of business. One very helpful item they voted was to place blinds on the windows of the building and screens where necessary. This act will be greatly appreciated by all living in the Orphanage, and we have already had a few dollars handed in to pay on the “blinds.” Who else will help?

We greatly appreciate the many kind expressions from friends who visited the Home as to the work and about the efforts of the children in their exercises.

Uncle Jim.

ChIPLEY, Ga., May 27, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:

I am late this time and have not written in several months.

I am eight years old and in the fourth grade. Our school ended about four weeks ago and we had a concert, and I will send you a program of it.

Enclosed please find five cents for June.

With love to all,

Your nephew,
 Brawner Floyd.

We are certainly glad to hear from this little southern cousin again. Now for another letter from Brawner!

Dear Cousins:

Commencement has come and gone and we enjoyed having so many people visit us, for we want every one who is interested to be sure and come to see us when they visit Elon.

Wish all the cousins who write for the Corner now, or who have written in the past could see our little orphan boys and girls and the home in which they live.

We send our dimes with love.

Mary Leg Foster,
 James L. Foster, Jr.

A HOME FREE At Denton, N. C. We propose to give away (no cost whatever) on Dec. 24, 1909, to some person who desires to settle in the best town in North Carolina, a beautiful home-building lot in the beautiful and rapidly-growing town of Denton, N. C.—absolutely free. Denton is one of the loveliest, most aggressive—in short, one of the “coming” towns—of North Carolina. It is the temporary terminus of the Piedmont Railway, which connects it with the main line of the “Southern” at Thomasville, and will soon push through to Wadesboro, where it will connect with the “Seahoard” and “Coast Line.” A moral, cultured town, with a splendid school system, and attractive church advantages in the heart of the N. C. furniture-making belt—and backed by a splendid farming country. Already has 7 wood-working factories, prospective bank and cotton mill, 10 retail stores, 3 churches and more to be built. Population has doubled itself twice in the last 24 months. Centrally located in the midst of the hardwood belt, has three daily mails, and connected by telephone with the neighboring towns.—30 miles from Troy; 27 miles from High Point; 22 miles from Salisbury; 22 miles from Asheboro; 20 miles (by Piedmont Railway) from Thomasville; 20 miles from Lexington; 13 miles from Whitney, the great water power development. Now we are giving away, absolutely free, a beautiful home-building lot, to some one who wishes to make his or her, or their, home in this beautiful town. All readers of this paper and all other first-class people invited. None but the best people invited to reply. Write at once for particulars. HUB LAND COMPANY, Lexington, N. C.

DR. JNO. H. BROOKS,
 —DENTIST—

Nine years practice. Recent degree from Philadelphia Dental College and Garretson Hospital of Oral Surgery.

SONG WRITERS and POETS

We arrange, compose, revise and publish vocal and instrumental music. Send us your poems and manuscripts for free advice and best terms. VICTOR BREWER, 100 N. WABASH, CHICAGO

DO YOU WANT TO GO TO COLLEGE? If so we can help you. We have already put hundreds through college by means of our plan. Write today for full information regarding our offer of a free scholarship in any school or college. Address, Robert J. Sherlock, 29-31 East 22nd Street, New York City.

YOUNG MEN! If you want to know why you should become telegraph operators and what school to attend, write to SOUTHERN SCHOOL OF TELEGRAPHY, Newman, Ga., for free Catalogue “A.” EVERY BOY should read it. Positions positively guaranteed.

FREE DEAFNESS CURE.

A remarkable offer by one of the leading ear specialists in this country, who will send two month’s medicine free to prove his ability to cure Deafness, Head Noises, and Catarrh. Address Dr. G. M. Branaman, 1100 Walnut Street, Kansas City, Mo.

RALEIGH & SOUTHPORT RY. Co.

P. M. A. M.	STATIONS.	A. M. P. M.
1:15	6:00 Raleigh	8:30 3:45
1:54	6:24 McCullers	7:52 3:03
2:11	6:59 Willow Sp’gs	7:37 2:45
2:23	7:14 Varina	7:27 2:34
2:35	7:26 Fuquay Sp’gs	7:19 2:25
2:55	7:45 Kipling	7:00 2:05
3:15	8:05 Lillington	6:41 1:44
3:41	8:28 Linden	6:15 1:17
4:30	9:15 Fayetteville	5:30 12:30

JNO. A. MILLS, Pres. and Gen. Mgr.

(B gun on page seven).

of the Southern Christian Convention in regard to Teacher-Training. Several short addresses were made relative to this work.

At the conclusion of the round table twenty-two young people agreed to organize Teacher-Training classes when they returned home.

Round table on S. S. was conducted by Prof. S. M. Smith.

On motion the Convention adjourned to meet Monday morning at 9:30 o'clock.

Monday Morning.

The Young People's Convention was called to order by the Pres. at 9:30 o'clock. Song and prayer service.

A. W. Andes was appointed Secretary pro tem.

On motion the visit to the Orphanage was postponed.

Moved and carried that the report of the Committee on Revision of the Report Blanks became official upon approval by the Executive Com. of this Convention.

The following report was read and adopted by items (Report concerning an editor and field Secretary).

On motion Dr. E. L. Moffitt was invited to a seat as a deliberative member.

The Com. on Motions and Resolutions reported as follows: We, your Com., recommend 1st, That the office of Young People's Department Editor and Field Secretary be created.

2nd. That this officer shall edit a Young People's Department in the Christian Sun and conduct the correspondence of the field work.

3rd. That this officer be paid a salary of $100. per year for editorial and office work and expenses for stationery and postage.

4th. That a subscription from individuals, Sunday schools, C. E. Societies, and churches be taken tonight, and that each Christian Endeavor Society be requested to pay ten cents per member per annum for the support of this work.

5th. That all funds and subscriptions be paid to the Recording Secretary of this Convention, and that he pay the money over to the Treasurer and take his receipt for the same.

6th. That the Executive Committee of this body be empowered to elect and employ a competent man for this office, supervise his work, and enlarge his duties in the field work, as sufficient funds may be secured.

- W. C. Wicker,
- A. W. Andes,
- Effie Iseley, Com.

On motion the report was adopted.

On motion Rev. C. O. Durant was introduced to the body as a visiting Bro.

from the M. E. Church.

Round Table, How can we have a missionary organization in every church?

What part ought our young women to have in the mission work of the church?

Discussed by Miss Effie Iseley and Rev. C. H. Rowland.

How can the Missionary idea be taught in the S. S.? Discussed by Rev. C. C. Jones and Mrs. J. A. Bolton.

Why do we have so few young men entering the ministry? Discussed by Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Revs. C. H. Rowland, L. E. Smith, C. C. Jones, J. D. Wickler, J. W. Wellons, and L. I. Cox.

Standing Committees were announced as follows:—

Teacher Training.

Prof. W. A. Harper, Rev. H. E. Rountree, W. E. McClenny, Rev. G. O. Lankford, Rev. C. H. Rowland, Rev. L. F. Johnson, Miss Effie Iseley.

Moral and Civic Reform.

Rev. J. O. Atkinson, Rev. L. I. Cox, Rev. C. C. Jones, Rev. C. E. Newman, W. H. Carroll.

Missions.

Rev. J. W. Harrell, Rev. W. T. Walters, Rev. A. W. Andes, Rev. T. E. White, Rev. H. W. Elder.

Layman's Movement.

Dr. J. W. Manning, C. D. West, Prof. J. T. Cobb, Prof. P. J. Kernodle, Prof. W. P. Lawrence.

Home Department and Cradle Roll.

J. O. Wiggs, Mrs. J. W. Bolton, J. H. Wilson, Rev. L. E. Smith, Rev. E. M. Carter.

Adjourned for dinner to meet at 3:00 o'clock.

Monday Afternoon.

The Young People's Convention was called together by the president at 3 p. m. Song and prayer service by the congregation.

It was moved and carried that the time and place of next meeting be left with the executive committee.

It was moved and carried that we extend a vote of thanks to this church, the college and friends for their hospitality to us during the session of this Convention.

A subscription was taken to defray the expenses of the editor of the Young People's Department in the Christian Sun, including office work, stationery and postage, the full amount asked for being secured.

On motion the Treasurer was instructed to pay certain bills of expense presented.

It was moved and seconded that the Secretary be allowed to purchase a record book to record the proceedings of this Convention.

Moved and carried that we extend a vote of thanks to the Elon College choir for their services in the Convention.

On motion the minutes of the Convention as a whole was adopted, as read.

On motion the Convention adjourned to meet two years hence.

Prayer and benediction by Rev. J. O. Atkinson.

- S. M. Smith, Pres.
- L. E. Smith, Sec.

MEDICINE.

We prepare as good medicine, the very best medicine that the finest, freshest, most potent drugs and chemicals will produce when carefully and skilfully compounded by an expert prescription man—just such medicine as your physician means that you should have, medicine of the utmost possible effectiveness. May we prepare your medicine?

FREEMAN DRUG CO.,
Burlington, N. C.

SPRING TIME.

The time for gardening is here and you need garden tools. We can supply you at lowest prices.

Poultry Wire.

The best assorted stock in the county. Four different styles and weight.

Come and See.

Remember plumbing and bath room fixtures, a speciality. You will find us on Davis St. third door from Post office.
BURLINGTON HARDWARE CO.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup

Has been used for over SIXTY-FIVE YEARS by MILLIONS of MOTHERS for their CHILDREN WHILE TEETHING with PERFECT SUCCESS. It SOOTHES the CHILD, SOFTENS the GUMS, ALLAYS all PAIN, CURES WIND COLIC, is the best remedy for DIARRHOEA. Sold by Druggists in every part of the world. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Guaranteed under the Food and Drugs Act, June 30th, 1906. Serial Number 1098. AN OLD AND WELL TRIED REMEDY.

BIBLES FOR SALE.

I am selling, in Alamance County, Wilmore's New Analytical Reference Bible, the most thorough and complete Book for all who wish to study and understand the Bible on the market today. Sold only by subscription and I shall be glad to show it to you. Thousands of copies are being sold. Alfred Apple, Jr., Elon College, N. C.

RAISE MONEY FOR YOUR CHURCH.

We offer you an easy method. Send us a photograph of your church or your pastor, and we will send you 500 high grade post cards, with photograph on each card, and scripture verse if desired. Sell these cards at 10 cents each. When sold, remit us $20.00 and keep the balance. You can do this in a week. We will return photograph.

LAKE SHORE SUPPLY CO.,
225 Broad St., St. Joe, Michigan.

(Begun on page one).

At 8 p. m. the alumni oration was delivered to a magnificent audience by Rev. C. E. Newman, Henderson, N. C., a member of the class of '99, whose subject was "The Mission of the Nation".

The speaker began by showing the ideals which had actuated other nations in their careers. And then in well-chosen words he described the marvelous development of the United States from thirteen colonies along the Atlantic coast to a nation that spans a mighty continent and reaches out into the seas.

"The educational reforms instituted in New England by Horace Mann have influenced the world of education in this country. The United States is also the industrial leader of the world and with 5 per cent of the world's population she is supplying 30 per cent of the world's needs.

"A new era is already beginning to dawn and the United States having gained the supremacy will lead in the world of co-operation, because in the three generations just past the civilized nations of the earth have passed from what is akin to an individualistic state to a socialistic relation and in this the American people have had and will continue to have a leading part, and through America's instrumentality the kingdoms of this world are fast becoming the kingdoms of our Lord."

Immediately after the alumni oration the annual alumni banquet occurred in the dining halls of the west dormitory, where a banquet in courses was served to all the alumni present.

The Alumni Association appointed Prof. W. P. Lawrence to solicit funds for the establishment of an alumni Scholarship to be awarded to that member of the Junior or Senior class who shall best deserve it from the standpoints of scholarship, actual need, and previous conduct. Prof. S. M. Smith was appointed by the same body to look after the proposed Memorial Arch at the entrance to the campus.

The officers of the Alumni Association for next year are: Pres., Rev. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va.; Vice-Pres., Rev. C. E. Newman, Henderson, N. C.; Secretary, Mrs. W. A. Harper, Elon College, N. C.; Treasurer, Mrs. W. P. Lawrence, Elon College, N. C. Miss Jennie Herndon was elected to deliver the Alumni Address at the 1910 commencement, with Miss Effie Iseley as alternate.

W. A. Harper.

—Bro. J. Willis Barney who has been in Elon College the past year is conducting a summer normal and training school for teachers at Clearville, Pa. On the day of opening Brother Barney writes: "School began today. I have thirty-six students now and several more are to come in." Brother Barney is a successful teacher as well as a very efficient and thorough pupil.

NORFOLK LETTER.

The pastor of the Third Church, Rev. W. H. Thompson, is at his old home, Sidney, Ohio, at the bedside of his mother, who is very ill, possibly in her last illness. The prayers and sympathy of the church and friends are with them in this hour.

On account of his being away the morning service took the form of a song and prayer service. There was no service at night.

The friends of Dr. T. C. Baird will be glad to know that he continues to grow stronger all the while now and is actively engaged in the practice of his profession again.

How about that birthday bank offering for the Ponce Church, brother? I take it for granted that a great deal of work is being done along that line. Certainly not much is being said about it. Brother minister, if you believe in it, why don't you say so through our papers and give the matter encouragement? Brother Supt., if it meets your approval, tell us about it that it may help others to a correct decision. Bro. Sect., if you got one of my letters, did you write to me as I requested? A good many did, but very few, compared with the 1276 letters I sent out. If this is to be a success we must keep it moving. What say you?

J. W. Manning.

—It was a pleasure indeed to meet and greet again at the College last week some of the younger, active, and successful ministers who, having gone from Elon into the field of service, are giving good account of themselves. Revs. W. T. Walters and A. W. Andes form the Valley of Virginia, Revs. C. H. Rowland and C. C. Jones from Eastern Virginia and Rev. C. E. Newman from Henderson, N. C.

"A wonderful thing is a seed!
The one thing deathless forever.
The one thing changeless, utterly true,
Forever old, and forever new,
And fickle and faithless never.
"Plant blessings, and blessings will blow;
Plant hate, and hate will grow.
You can sow to-day; to-morrow shall bring

"There are many kinds of love, as many kinds of light,
And every kind of love makes a glory in the night.
There is love that stirs the heart, and love that gives it rest,
But the love that leads life upward is the noblest and the best."

ADVANCE ORDERS

ARE NOW BEING TAKEN FOR

ABRAHAM SNETHEN

"THE BAREFOOT PREACHER"

This is a most remarkable and wonderful book. Full of thrilling incidents and hairbreadth escapes, with nothing short of divine protection. His actual life experiences were miraculous and more thrilling than a romance.

Now is the time to get the book, and after reading it you will not want to part with it for two times its cost. The book will contain about 275 pages. Large clear print on good, heavy paper, and handsomely bound in cloth.

Only one edition will be printed, and the price is $1.00. But until July 1, 1909, we will receive your

ADVANCE ORDERS AT 75 CENTS

Christian Publishing Association

J. N. Hess, Agent, Dayton, Ohio

(Continued from page nine).

--Rev. S. B. Klapp, Greensboro, writes June 7: "Several inquiries come to know the condition of my son, Russell, who has been ill with typhoid fever in Bartow, Fla., for two months. I am glad to say that Russell is improving, has been moved to Pablo Beach, Fla., and it is thought that he will be able to return to Greensboro in a month. *** We had a great day at Pleasant Ridge, near Guilford College yesterday—missionary rally day. The largest congregation was present that has been there in several years. The missionary offering was good."

—The South Norfolk Church celebrated its fifth anniversary Sunday, May 30 with an elaborate and interesting program. The offering was $165., a most liberal one indeed for this loyal host. Note was due June 9 and Pastor J. O. Cox thinks to make the offering $200. On the occasion of their anniversary there were services morning, afternoon, and night. In the morning service Mr. C. W. Bains, State Sec. of S. S. for Va. delivered the principal address; in the afternoon Col. J. E. West of Suffolk delivered the anniversary address, and at night the sermon was delivered by Rev. M. L. Bryant, of the Berkley Church.

—Bro. J. F. Morgan, a worthy young man studying in Elon College to prepare himself for the Christian ministry, accepts service with the Christian Sun in the Western North Carolina Conference, in the contest for a scholarship in Elon next year at the Sun's expense. Will not friends in the Western North Carolina Conference assist this deserving brother in his most commendable endeavor? Every $1.50 paid him carries the Sun a year into a home not now receiving it and at the same time goes as a fund to defray his expenses in school next year. He gets the profit, the subscriber gets the paper, the editor joins with the subscriber in the satisfaction that he is assisting a good brother in a good cause and hopes to so interest the subscriber this year that he will naturally want the Sun another year to come.

—It is a pleasure to call attention to the advertisement of the North Carolina College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts. The State greatly needs industrially trained men, and the college is rapidly helping to supply this need. Its graduates are busy and successful in many lines. Many of our farms show the practical value of their training. The railroads, public highways, drawing rooms and shipbuilding plants call on the College for Civil Engineers. Our lighting and water plants and our machine shops are being manned by its graduates. Not a few of its men are superintending or managing cotton mills and dyehouses. Its chemists are taking high rank in experiment stations, industrial plants and departments of agriculture. Young men cannot do better than fit themselves for their vocations at the same time that they are being educated.

—The free will offering, on the part of many brethren, which made possible the large oil painting of Rev. W. S. Long, D. D., unveiled and presented to Elon College on commencement day last week, shows something of the high esteem in which the founder and first president of Elon College is held by his brethren. Dr. Long did a most noble work at a time and under conditions most trying and the full gratitude of generous and gracious hearts will never be expressed in word or deed.

—Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God.

"God works in a mysterious way, His wonders to perform,"

Books for Every Christian Home.

Do you know why you are a member of the Christian Church? Do you understand what the church stands for and teaches? If not, send and get a copy of the "Principles and Government of the Christian Church," just revised and greatly improved by order of the Southern Christian Convention.

Cloth binding per copy, post paid 50 cts.

Limp Cloth binding per copy, post paid 35 cts.

Paper binding per copy, post paid 25 cts.

Handsome Persian Morocco, with name in gilt $1.25.

The Southern Christian Convention also Ordered Another Book Published, PREPARING THE SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER TO TEACH. Edited by Profs. W. A. Harper, W. C. Wicker and W. P. Lawrence.

The book is neatly printed and bound and is invaluable to the Sunday-school worker, 236 pages.

Paper binding per copy, postpaid, 60 cts.

Cloth binding per copy, postpaid, 90 cts.

To Sunday-schools, paper binding 50 cts. cloth 75 cts.

Have You Read That Thrilling and Inspiring Story of His Own Life, MOTHER'S ANSWERED PRAYER, BY REV. P. H. FLEMING, D. D.?

Cloth binding, postpaid 55 cts.

All these books should be in your home. Order at once

For sale by, THE CHRISTIAN SUN, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

IT'S INTERESTING

to hear the different comments on different Shoes. All shoes have some good points; Style or comfort or service.

WALK-OVER SHOES

have all the good points; style and comfort and service and their price is the best point of all. $3.50, 4.00 & 5.00.

Poster Shoe Co., Burlington, N. C.

Dry Goods, Notions, Ready Made Clothing.

When in Burlington visit our large store, supplied always with the very best and latest styles and novelties.

Our Dry Goods are of latest designs, and our Ready Made Clothing cannot be surpassed in quality and price.

Come, See, Be Convinced.

B. A. SELLARS & SONS, BURLINGTON, N. C.

DIED.*Arnold.

Mrs. Ida Prince Arnold, wife of Mayor R. W. Arnold and ex-judge, died at her home on Main St. Wednesday morning at 6:15 o'clock. She was fifty years old and for many years suffered from internal cancer.

Her death, although not unexpected, having been confined to her bed much of the time for two years or more, creates a feeling of irreparable loss among her wide circle of friends. She was a Miss Prince of this county and the youngest of sixteen children, all of whom are dead except one sister, Mrs. A. A. Allen, of Petersburg. Having lived in the county the most of her life, she had been intimate with all the leading families of the county and many other counties even distant in Virginia. Her death is the first to occur in her own family. She was married to Mr. R. W. Arnold at the age of sixteen and to their union were born four daughters and eight sons, all of whom survive her and are doing well: Mrs. H. C. Seabury and Mrs. A. S. Wilkins, of Norfolk; Mrs. W. H. Calhoun, of Christianburg; and Mrs. Harvey Fleetwood, of this place. The sons are: Hugh W., of Norfolk; Robt. W., of Waverly; Jno. M., of Norfolk; Richard H., of California; Arthur W., of Roanoke; Virginius L., of Norfolk; George P., of William and Mary College; and Claiborne, of Waverly. All were present at her burial except Richard who could not be reached.

During her several years' sickness, the writer was visitor to her bed-side and endeavored to minister to her in spiritual things. She was a member of the Episcopal church and lived unto the faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. But each day, added to her life, seemed to increase that faith. When death came she was ready awaiting the Lord's time. A pall of sadness enshrouds the town as well as the grief-stricken family. When death comes there are but few circumstances that diminish grief. If young, it is sad; and if old, it is just as sad. If sudden, it is exceedingly sad; if expected, it is just as much so. Yet, "In the midst of life, we are in death." By such we are daily warned of our own end. May the Lord's merey rest upon us; may His love and comforts overshadow the grief stricken ones forever.

H. E. Rountree.

Waverly, Sussex Co., Va., May 24, '09.

If a man be a pillar in the temple of his God, by and by, he must be some kind of a prop in God's house today.—Babcock.

(Begun on page three).

unfurl it to the world and admire its waving glory while you gladly and proudly repeat, "I have found it."

Every one has an influence some way. It impresses some one either for good or bad. A blank you cannot entirely be. No matter how high you may go, nor how low down you may fall, some one will see you and be impressed in some way by you. "Every man is a missionary now and forever, for good or evil, whether he intends or designs it or not. He may be a blot radiating his dark influence outward to the very circumference of society; or he may be a blessing, spreading benediction over all the length and breadth of the world; but a blank he cannot be. There are no moral blanks: there are no neutral characters."

You know many farmers who have made mistakes—lost much time and money because they did not properly prepare the land and cultivate it at the right time and in the best way. In a like manner have multitudes lost years of most precious time by not properly cultivating the mind and the soul, and when old age overtook them it found them with fruitless lives, with nothing but leaves—and a hopeless future.

J. T. Kitchen.

Windsor, Va.

The Mohammedans have a saying the threshold weeps forty days when a girl is born.

ALUMNI SCHOLARSHIP.

At the meeting of Elon College Alumni Association June 2, it was decided to establish a scholarship of the value of fifty dollars per year. The scholarship is to be available to a member of the Junior class in Elon College and is to be good for two years, covering literary tuition. The Executive Committee of the Alumni Association and the President of the College constitute the committee of award. Three considerations enter into the awarding of this scholarship: (1) scholarship; (2) financial need; and (3) character and previous department of the candidate in college.

The funds are to be provided by six per cent. notes payable within five years from June 1, 1909. Several pledges ranging from $25.00 to $100.00 have already been made by alumni. W. P. Lawrence, who was appointed a committee to complete the work of raising subscriptions, will mail a copy of the blank note to each of the one hundred and thirty-eight living alumni. The notes are to be made payable to the Board of Trustees of Elon College, only the interest being available for the payment of the scholarship. The full text of the resolution looking to the establishment of the scholarship will accompany the letter of the committee to each alumnus.

W. P. Lawrence, Committee.

—Recent rains have done much damage to crops in Western North Carolina.

"The Oxford Teachers' par excellence

JUST ISSUED!

OXFORD

Teachers' Bibles and S. S. Scholars' Bibles

With New 20th Century Helps arranged in One Alphabetical Order.

THE HELPS

The Christian Advocate, Nashville, says: "The helps are real helps. Unlike those in many of the cheap Bibles, they are not simply thrown together in hodge-podge fashion, but represent the freshest and ablest work of the foremost modern scholars."

Address Christian Sun
Elon College, N. C.

Bible is the Bible of the World."

NOW READY!

SIX NEW EDITIONS

OXFORD

Black Faced Type BIBLES

Three on Oxford White Paper. Three on the famous Oxford India Paper.

Pearl 32mo. A wonderful clear type in a small-size book.

Minion 16mo. Ready October 1907. A model hand Bible.

Brevier 16mo. Large type in small compass. "A quart in a pint measure."

"The new Bible just published by the Oxford Press is, without doubt, the finest product of the kind ever given to the public."

ASK FOR THE

OXFORD EDITION

REMEMBER: That we guarantee satisfaction and sell to you cheaper than the publisher and dealers do. Our business is by mail and express and prices quoted are the prices of goods delivered to you. We can furnish you the Oxford, or the Holman Teacher's Bible at prices ranging from $1.35 to $4.00. Send for our catalogue or write us what you want. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN, Elon College, N. C.

SAMSON.

By M. S. B.

Once upon a time there lived a man named Samson, and he was the strongest man in the world. He was an Israelite, and his father's name was Manoah. I don't know his mother's name—she was just called "Manoah's wife."

Samson was so strong that one day he killed a lion, just with his hands.

At that time the Philistines ruled over the Israelites. They had been very mean to Samson and he hadn't behaved very well to them, so they were always quarreling. One day a whole lot of them came to get Samson, and the other Israelites were afraid and didn't want to get into a fight just on account of Samson's quarrels, so they bound him with two strong, new ropes and took him to the Philistines. When they saw him coming all bound with ropes they were very glad and meant to kill him. But Samson broke the ropes as if they had been little cords, and picking up a great, heavy bone that lay on the ground, hit right and left among the Philistines as hard as he could and killed ever so many of them. Then how they did hate him!

In those days the cities had walls around them and big heavy gates that were locked at night. There was a town like that called Gaza. One night Samson went there and when the men of Gaza, who were Philistines, heard he was in the city, they said to themselves, "When the morning comes we will kill him." They never thought Samson would leave the city that night, because the gates were locked. But at midnight Samson decided to go home, and when he found the gates locked, what do you think he did? He picked them up, posts and all, and carried them on his shoulders up to the top of a mountain! Wouldn't you like to have seen him do it?

Now Samson had never had his hair cut since he had been born, and it was a secret only he knew, that if his hair was cut his wonderful strength would leave him. This was just what the Philistines wanted to find out, and there was a Philistine named Delilah, who made believe she was a great friend of Samson's, and she teased him and teased him to tell her what made him so strong. And Samson believed she was his friend, and he was tired of being teased, so he told her. But she was a wicked woman, and when he was asleep she cut off his hair and called the Philistines. When they came to take him, Samson found his strength had gone and he couldn't save himself.

The cruel Philistines put out his eyes; and they bound him with fetters of brass, and made him grind corn in the prison house. But his hair began to grow again, and the Philistines forgot to keep it cut.

One day they were having a great feast on the roof of one of their palaces, and all the lords of the Philistines were there and a great many women. Some one said, "Call for Samson that he may make sport for us." So Samson was brought out and they looked down over the railing of the roof and laughed at him.

He had to be led by a boy because he was blind, and he said to the boy, "Lead me to the pillars whereon the house rests that I may lean upon them. Then he stood between pillars, and took one in his right and one in his left arm and he leaned over with all his might, for his strength had come back, and the whole house, with three thousand people on the roof, fell down, and Samson perished with the Philistines. If Samson and the Philistines hadn't been so quarrelsome and so mean to each other, it would never have happened.—N. Y. Christian Advocate.

BUCKROE HOTEL, BUCKROE BEACH, VIRGINIA.

Lower Chesapeake Bay, with unobstructed view, magnificent scenery, surf bathing, fine fishing and beautiful drives. Those seeking rest and quiet by the sea will find this an ideal spot. Under the management of the Newport News and Old Point Railway and Electric company. Write for rates and booklet.

10 DAYS FREE TRIAL
 We ship on approval, without a cent deposit, freight prepaid. DON'T PAY A CENT if you are not satisfied after using the bicycle 10 days.
DO NOT BUY a bicycle or a pair of tires from anyone at any price until you receive our latest art catalogs illustrating every kind of bicycle, and have learned our unheard of prices and marvelous new offers.
ONE CENT is all it will cost you to write a postal and everything will be sent you free postpaid by return mail. You will get much valuable information. Do not wait, write it now.
TIRES, Coaster-Brakes, Built-up-Wheels and all sundries at half usual prices.
MEAD CYCLE CO., Dept. H294 CHICAGO

To Drive Out Malaria and Build up the System.

Take the Old Standard GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC. You know what you are taking. The formula is plainly printed on every bottle, showing it is simply Quinine and Iron in a tasteless form, and the most effectual form. For grown people and children. 50c.

When in Burlington call at

T. H. STROUD'S

Store for DRUGS, SOFT DRINKS, and anything desired in drugs and Toilet Articles.

GIPSY SMITH: HIS LIFE AND WORK.
 By Himself.

This is a grand record of achievement. A poor lad, born in a gipsy camp, has been used as an instrument in God's hands to awaken multitudes throughout the world to spiritual consciousness. He tells in this book of 330 pages his rich and varied experiences from birth through years of success in soul-winning. The style of the book is not boastful; it is a humble attempt to satisfy the persistent requests of his friends for a history of his romantic career. The narrative is prefaced by appreciative introductions by Dr. Alexander McLaren and G. Campbell Morgan. Several illustrations add to the interest of the book.

We offer "Gipsy Smith" handsomely bound in cloth as a premium for two new subscriptions to The Christian Sun at $1.50 each; or for one new subscription and 45 cents addition tional. We will sell it in combination with a renewal to The Sun for $2.20. The book alone will be sent to any address for $1.10, postpaid.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

ADVERTISING DEPARTMENT

For Advertising Rates Apply
Religious Press Advertising Syndicate
(Jacobs & Company)

Home Office, Clinton, S. C., who have charge of the advertising department of this paper.

Jacobs & Company, J. F. Jacobs, J. D. Jacobs. Home Office, Clinton, S. C.

The North Carolina
COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE AND MECHANIC ARTS.

The State's college for vocational training. Courses in Agriculture and Horticulture; in Civil, Electrical and Mechanical Engineering; in Cotton Milling and Dyeing; in Industrial Chemistry. Why not fit yourself for life by taking one of these courses? Address

D. H. HILL, President,
West Raleigh, N. C.

PERSONALLY CONDUCTED
TOUR

"AROUND THE CONTINENT"

Over the Rocky Mountains to the Pacific, the Alaska-Yukon Exposition, Los Angeles During the Elks National Convention and through the Yellowstone National Park—Via the

SEABOARD AIR LINE RAILWAY
in charge of

Mr. C. H. Gattis, District Passenger Agent, Raleigh, N. C., and Chaperoned by Mrs. C. H. Gattis over the entire trip.

Leaves July 3rd, returns August 6th, circling the United States in a solid Pullman train composed of the highest grade and modern design of sleeping compartment observation cars and Pullman dining cars.

The most inexpensive trip ever operated from the Southeast, through Atlanta, Birmingham, Memphis, stopping at Kansas City, Denver, Colorado Springs, Salt Lake, Los Angeles, Santa Barbara, Montgomery, Santa Cruz, San Francisco, Portland, Seattle, Tacoma, Spokane, through Yellowstone National Park, St. Paul, Chicago, returning home through Cincinnati and C. & O. through Richmond.

Trip cost will include railroad and Pullman fares, hotels, dining car meals, stage ride of five (5) and one-half (1/2) days through the Yellowstone National Park, transfers, side trips, carriage and automobile rides at stop-over points and all actual expenses necessary.

Side trips will be arranged at all stop-over points to places of interest, all details being arranged in advance and looked after enroute.

An attractive 33-day trip through the "Greatest Country in the World" covering a distance of 8,755 miles of travel in a modern Pullman train with superb dining car service, eating and sleeping in the best of hotels, sight-seeing "The Wonders of the West" leisurely, with all details arranged in advance is a luxury.

Write at once to the undersigned for cost of trip, schedule and itinerary. If maps, timetables and booklets of the lines over which the party will travel,

Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Is paying out and investing in both Virginia and North Carolina more than it receives from these States.

New business in Virginia, 1908,
$2,147,800

Larger than any other company.

Gain in insurance in force in Virginia, 1908,
$1,374,975

60 per cent more than the next largest.

T. ARCHIBALD CARY, General Agent for Virginia and North Carolina,
Richmond, Virginia.

During 1908

(As in previous years)

We want you in our business, for we have what you want in your homes—the very best, most substantial and handsome furniture at bottom prices. We are also the undertakers.

Burke Furniture and Coffin Company

BUKLLINGTON, N. C.

Southern Railway

Operating Over 7,000 Miles of Railway. Quick Route to all Points North, South, East and West.

For Speed, Comfort, Courteous Employees, travel via the Southern Railway. Rates, Schedules and other information furnished by any of the undersigned.

R. L. VERNON, Trav. Pass. Agt., J. H. WOOD, Dist. Pass. Agt.,
Charlotte, N. C. Asheville, N. C.

S. H. HARDWICK, P. T. M., W. H. TAYLOR, G. P. A.,
Washington, D. C.

Elon College.

Co-educational. Established 1890.

Thorough College courses leading to M. A., A. B., Ph. B. and Lit. B. degrees. Strong and experienced Faculty with highest University training. Good Library, Reading Room, Laboratories, Literary Societies. Excellent Music, Art and Business Departments.

Beautiful and healthful location, 17 miles east of Greensboro, on Southern Railway. Best moral and religious influence. No hazing. New students met by reception committees from young people's Christian organizations connected with the college. Good equipment. A large new dormitory, with modern conveniences, has recently been built to meet the requirements of growing patronage.

EXPENSES UNUSUALLY MODERATE.

For catalogue or further information, address

EMMETT L. MOFFITT, LL. D., President.

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

are desired, send 30 cents in stamps.

C. H. GATTIS,
District Passenger Agent,
Raleigh, N. C.

—Here was the deed of a brave and devoted husband, told of in the dispatches, the hero after a long struggle being rescued, though his wife died in his arms:

Niagara Falls, N. Y., June 6.—Louis

Cohen, of Buffalo, saw his young wife leap into the swirling river between Second and Third Sister islands at 5 o'clock this afternoon, only 150 feet above the brink of the cataract. Without a moment's hesitation he followed and struggled to save her.

—It is safer to hear and to take counsel than to give it.

The Christian Sun.

In Essentials—Unity, in Non-Essentials—Liberty, in All Things—Charity.

ESTABLISHED 1844.

GREENSBORO N. C., WEDNESDAY, JUNE 16, 1909.

VOLUME LXI. NUMBER 24.

Edward Everett Hale.—In the death of Edward Everett Hale at his home, Roxbury, Mass., June 10, our country loses one of its best known, most useful and highly esteemed citizens. He is known as preacher, lecturer, journalist, author and philanthropist. He has been chaplain of the United States Senate for the past several years and his custom of calling on the Senators, at the conclusion of his prayers, to join him in the Lord's prayer marked him as a man of piety and devotion.

In his death our country loses the last of that brilliant coterie of New England writers who, in the last century, established a real American literature and made themselves felt and famous not only in their own country, but among men of letters in all lands. Remember that Edward Everett Hale was contemporaneous with, and an intimate friend of, Emerson, Hawthorne, Lowell, and Holmes and by the power and potency of his pen won laurels for himself and country as perishable as they. While he lived we kept on reading him year after year and month after month, for his pen was busy to the last, and we did not stop to esteem him with the rest and measure the might of his works in the past. It would take this whole column to give the bare titles of the products of a pen that was busy and bustling for three score years. Whether in history, fiction, or current journalism, Dr. Hale was equally at home and famous in all. His "Chautauquan History of the United States," "A Life of Washington," and "Franklin in France" mark him as a historian of no mean ability; while his "Man Without a Country" and "My Double" show him to be a master in fiction and romance. His "Ten Times One Is Ten" was the most fruitful of results of any book written by him, causing as it did the organization of unnumbered "Lend-a-hand clubs," "Kings Daughters," "Look-up-legions," etc.

And be it borne in mind that the long list of books that flowed from this fertile pen was incidental. Edward Everett Hale was first of all and through it all a preacher of righteousness. He clung to his pulpit. He was born in 1823, graduated at Harvard 16 years later and by the time he was twenty-three he had taught school, completed his course in theology and was pastor at Worcester. He remained a pastor to the day of his death, for since failing strength would not let him preach every Sunday at his "Old South Church," Boston, his parish held him as pastor emeritus and had him there as often as he was able and when he could and wished.

Dr. Hale was a Unitarian, but this writer never heard a preacher who presented the story of the Cross with more tenderness, pathos, and power than he; and in all our lives we have never seen the Lord's supper, the holy communion service, administered with as much solemnity, dignity, and true reverence as by Edward Everett Hale in the course of his ministrations as preacher and pastor. He preached, we are told, to the most fashionable, wealthy, and cultured audience in Boston, yet we have never seen a congregation more simple in dress, more cordial in bearing, and more kindly in greeting than that of Dr. Hale's which with their vast wealth led all other Boston congregations in charitable and philanthropic enterprises. It was a benediction to worship in his church where he delivered the evangel of hope and told in his own original and powerful and solemn manner the story of the blessed Christ.

In the death of Edward Everett Hale, D. D., L. L. D., a great and good man, a brilliant writer, an eloquent speaker and a faithful expounder of the gospel of the Son of God has gone to his reward. And the country is poorer for his going.

Grant and the Gray.—When the men in gray, I mean the fellows who fought, laid down their arms at Appomattox, the war was over then and there, as far as they were concerned. They had fought bravely, heroically, with a courage and daring seldom equaled, never surpassed in all history; and they had fought for the cause that they believed, with all their heart and soul, was just and right. So, when the battle was done they had nothing to regret, nothing to be ashamed of, and returned to their homes to take up the pursuits of peace. With them the war was over.

These brave soldiers have ever since maintained that attitude. The spirit of hostility, sectional jealousy, and partisan prejudice, has been kept alive, and now and then stirred to fever heat, not by the brave men who wore the gray and the blue, but by those who did not see service on the field.

The spirit of the men who wore the gray was markedly manifest at Memphis, Tenn., last week, when the battle scarred veterans of the Confederacy were in annual session and on parade. On the reviewing stand was General Frederick Dent Grant, of the United States Army, and son of General Ulysses Grant, before whom Lee's flag was furled at Appomattox.

When the Veterans during the parade caught sight of, and recognized the son of, the man against whom they had fought in the '60's, pandemonium broke loose and the gray went wild with cheers and hurrahs for Grant. "Come on," yelled one of the officers in command, "here is General Grant come to life in his son." And then the dispatches say this scene ensued:

"With one of the old time rebel yells the division remnants of Forrest's cavalry charged upon the stand and jostled one another for an opportunity to shake the hand of the son of their old time enemy. From that moment every gray-clad veteran who could reach the stand rushed up to shake hands with General Grant. The stocky officer's eyes filled with tears, and his body shook with emotion as he said:

"God bless you all, boys, God bless you," giving each a cordial hand grasp.

Battle torn banners were grouped at his feet and waved over his head in salute. One old officer rode up to the stand, seized General Grant's hand and kissed him on the cheek, exclaiming:

"God bless you, boy, I fought your father, of whom you are the image, but he was a gallant, magnanimous foe and I love his son."

These were the men in gray, not bowing in fear or favor before the son of the man to whom they had surrendered, but paying that splendid, gallant, homage to the name and memory of a brave man whom they had fought—and had learned to love.

FROM THE FIELD.

REV. L. I. COX.

OUR FIRST THREE YEARS OF MISSION WORK IN GREENSBORO.

By Rev. L. I. Cox, Missionary and First Pastor.

(Read on the day of Dedication, Sunday, June 6, at Greensboro).

I am indeed glad to be present on this happy occasion, in response to the kind invitation of this church and pastor to be present and take part in this service. Gratitude is the memory of the heart. It is more than nine years since we began our Home Mission efforts in the city of Greensboro.

The greatest need of the enterprise of missions is prayer. It comes before "go" and "give." Our Home Mission Board prayed and Conference prayed before they said go, and we prayed before we said that we would give ours:lf to the home mission work in your great city.

The secret of the marvelous triumphs of the early Christian church was that every undertaking was begun, continued and ended in prayer. With the ever increasing population, accumulation of wealth, and growing cities, our people began to deplore the fact that our fathers did not build a Christian church in Greensboro twenty-five years ago. So realizing that the hope of the mission enterprise is not in the strength and extent of the conference, not the number and power of the missionary force, not the fullness of the treasury, not in far-sighted policies and plans, "not by might, nor by power, but by my spirit," saith the Lord of hosts," I entered upon the work here in your city in December 1899 as Conference Missionary. The Conference sent me here for one-fourth of my time at a salary of $100, and it was expected that I simply preach one Sunday in each month and do prospective work, with a view to establishing a Christian church, in case the prospect should justify the expenditure of further time and money.

At the end of the first year, such an interest had been awakened that an organization had been affected with twenty-six charter members. The lot on which this substantial church edifice stands had to be purchased at a cost of $750. The congregation rented the Friend's church in which to hold services with an afternoon appointment. They paid all running expenses and paid for the lot during the first year. With an expenditure of $100 preaching was provided for a period of one year to this congregation which added 26 members, a new church to Conference, and $750 worth of property in this prosperous city. Conference decided that the experiment had proved to be profitable, one wherein missionary effort richly paid. $100 invested in Home Mission work in the city brought in return at the end of one year 26 members, a church organization and $750 worth of property, with a flattering prospect for a larger work in years to come.

This new organization was welcomed into the conference, the one who led in this work was returned a second year and the enthusiasm in conference was so great over the success of the work that $500 was appropriated toward a church building. The Conference decided to return the same missionary the second year at a salary of $200 for two Sundays per month. They also provided a building committee as follows: Rev. L. I. Cox, Chairman, Rev. J. W. Holt, John W. Truitt, L. M. Clymer, Secretary, and R. S. Petty, Treasurer.

During the winter and early spring of this year (1901), I visited quite a number of churches throughout the conference in the interest of the work here, and for the most part, they responded willingly and liberally, which encouraged the congregation here. Plans were laid and work was begun early in the second year of the work towards the erection of a suitable house of worship. During the year the membership grew to 42, the basket collections amounted to more than $100., and $50 was paid on the pastor's salary besides all conference apportionments and current expenses.

The work moved forward with unexpected progress. Up to the close of the second year more than $3000 had been spent on the house and lot. A total of $300 spent by Conference appropriations towards the pastor's salary had resulted in over $3000 worth of property for the church in the city of Greensboro besides two years service rendered by the pastor, all current expenses met, all apportionments to conference paid, and a good church added to Conference, with bright prospects for the future. When these facts were made known, a wave of Christian enthusiasm swept over the Conference, the same pastor was reelected at a salary of $200, and over $600 was raised by personal donations on the conference floor to be applied to the building fund. With the $200 appropriated by Conference and $100 pledged by the church to the pastor, preaching was provided for the first and third Sundays in each month. A Ladies' Aid Society of more than 20 members was organized early in the year, and began at once active service. The work at this time had not only attracted the attention and commanded the respect of the people of the city, but it was so widely and favorably known in other conferences and sections of the country that quite a number of unsolicited donations were received, among which was one from the late Hon. F. A. Palmer of New York City, of $100.

Feeling that we as a denomination should ever cherish with long remembrance the sacred memory of those who had labored and sacrificed to establish the church we so much love, and that especially should we appreciate the untiring efforts, and be willing to honor and stand ready to commemorate the names of those who first defended the principles and doctrines of what is now known as the Christian Church; we decided to place a memorial window in this house of worship in honor of our worthy, and should be honored, founder and pioneer of the Christian Church, South, Rev. James O'Kelly. Others believed with us, and our undertaking was consummated, and we have that large window there, to the memory of the ever to be cherished name Rev. James O'Kelly. During this year the memorial windows were placed in the building.

In March, 1902, very neat printed invitations were sent out by the pastor, which read as follows:

"OPENING SERVICES OF GREENSBORO CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The pastor invites you to be present at the organization of a Sunday school in the new Christian Church Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, March 30, 1902, also to attend the opening church services, Sunday, 3 p. m., April 6, 1902, Corner Walker Ave. and Eugene St."

The Sunday school was organized on the appointed day. There was a large company of children and grown up people present, and the enthusiasm and spirit of the occasion was all that could be desired. Prof. H. C. Simpson was chosen Supt., L. M. Clymer, Asst. Supt., R. S. Petty, Sec. and Treas. Seven classes with good enrollment were organized.

Such appreciative notices as the following, in public print, encouraged both pastor and people:

The Christian Sun of April 16, 1902, says: "We congratulate the brethren at Greensboro in their prosperity. Rev. L. I. Cox deserves great credit for his untiring energy and successful efforts in the establishment of the Greensboro Christian Church, and the building of the best church edifice of our denomination within the State of North Carolina. Why can't other cities in North Carolina have a Christian church where there is none?"

To those who attended the opening services of the Greensboro Christian Church, April 6, 1902, the occasion will never be forgotten. The day was pleasant. The Greensboro brethren were enjoying the first fruits of their sacrifice and devoted service. A sweet spirit of Christian fellowship pervaded the services. Denominational lines were forgotten, and brethren dwelt together in unity.

At three o'clock in the afternoon the first service was held in the Sunday school room, Rev. J. U. Newman, D. D., of Elon College, preaching the opening sermon. This room was seated to its full capacity (which is about 400) and many were turned away for want of room. The pastors of the Methodist Episcopal, Methodist Protestant, Wesleyan Methodist, Presbyterian, and Friends churches were present, and took part in the services. The music was led by the Elon College choir. Four new members were received at this service. Rev. J. W. Holt, Chairman of the Committee of Home Missions, preached at night.

The quiet way in which we had done our work, the steady progress made, the faith and consecrated service of our members, so much accomplished by a small band of workers depending not on the city nor resorting to any questionable means of raising money, but trusting in God and willingly giving their means according to the Bible plan, was the favorable comment of many.

In the Sun of April 23, 1902, the editor says, "The Sunday school at Greensboro is growing by leaps and bounds."

November, 1902, without ministerial assistance, we held the first series of meetings for this church, which resulted in a gracious revival.

At the close of the third year the work had grown to such proportions, under the restricted efforts (restricted to one and two Sundays a month) of the present missionary, that it was necessary to employ a pastor for all his time, which the church has continued to do from the end of the third year till this glad day of dedication.

This is a somewhat detailed history of a single city mission. It is the common story of the few city churches which we now have.

It has been no easy task, either upon the part of the pastor or the members, to establish and maintain these organizations. It has cost money, sacrifice, suffering, and tears to build them. But thank God, they are worth all they have cost. Every church organized and sustained in a city means a home and place for work for the constantly increasing rural population. Every church organized and sustained through missionary effort becomes itself a missionary church.

It is true, speaking figuratively, that the Red Sea was before us, when we came to Greensboro, but its waters of difficulty were divided and we crossed over as on dry ground. Because of the smiting of the rock when we should have spoken to it, we were not permitted to lead the flock out of the wilderness over Jordan into Canaan, but this was left for one of the successful spies. After years many and full of trouble, after wandering far, at length the hero—Moses—brought the pilgrim host into the borders of the promised land. But others saw that which he desired to behold.

It was not given him to enter into the fruitage of his labor. His hand had sown; others reaped the harvest of happiness. His hand had planted; another generation sat under the vine and fig-tree. Such is true of the pioneer missionary.

Do you say that his—Moses'—life was a failure? His work is not dead.

It is not necessary that patriot or parent, teacher or preacher, should harvest his own sowing. All truth is immortal. Good work survives.

The right example lives, and like a torch, is passed from hand to hand. Then, if, indeed my worthy successor has been the Joshua to this people, I feel sure that the present beloved pastor will prove to be the Samuel; and the great work of Christian missions will go steadily on among our people in this, the gate city of North Carolina.

—Be not envious of evil men, nor desire to be with them.

TO THE CHURCHES AND SUNDAY SCHOOLS OF THE VA. VALLEY GENERAL CONFERENCE.

At the recent Convention of the young people held at Elon College, the following motto was adopted, "A C. E. Society in every church and a Teacher Training and organized class in every Sunday school in the Southern Christian Convention." I want our Conference to be the first to put this into practice. We need more aggressive work among our young people and better equipped teachers for our Sunday schools. Let us get to work and organize a Teacher Training class in every Sunday school before our next Sunday school Convention which meets in July. The Christian Endeavor will be given a place on the Convention program and we hope to have as many societies reported as possible.

Order your books for your Training classes from the Christian Sun, Elon College, N. C.

W. T. Walters, Conf. Pres.

WAKEFIELD, VA.

It has been some time since the writer has reported the work in this pastorate. The work, however, has been going on in a most harmonious way. Our new church here has been completed for some time, except seats and lights. The pews were set up last week. They are circular and made of quartered sawed oak. A handsome Acetylene Gas Lighting plant was installed a few days ago. So we are about ready for dedication. We have decided to dedicate on the 4th Sabbath of this month (June), Rev. J. O. Atkinson, D. D., of Elon College, N. C., editor of the Christian Sun, has consented to be with us and preach the dedicatory sermon. We are to have all day service and public dinner. We are hoping for a most glorious and profitable service. We want our friends and acquaintances to come with hearts full of grace, and their pockets full of money. The good friends who have contributed to our church since my last report are as follows: M. V. Martin, $8.00, J. T. Atkinson, $5.00, Hugh Barrett, $2.50. We thank these brethren for these gifts. God will bless them.

C. C. Jones.

—General Evans is again elected commander-in-chief of the Confederate Veterans, and Mobile, Ala., was chosen as the place for the next annual reunion.

—The Senate is still wading through the middle of tariff reform and many speeches are being made for "home consumption." Revising the tariff is a gigantic task.

NOTES AND PERSONALS.

—When air-ships are effective, what will become of custom house officers? If international boundary lines are to be abolished, we will need no tariff.

—A California lady fell when alighting from a street car and wounded both her person and her pride. When in her suit against the company for damages it was discovered that she had on high heel shoes, the court dismissed the case, making the lady pay cost, because "no lady could step safely with high heels."

—It is given out authoritatively that one opera house in New York will pay its singers, next season (of only a few weeks' duration), two million dollars in salaries. It would be interesting to know what the hundred or more theatres in the same city will pay its singers for the same period. Evidently an enormous total.

—Monday, June 14 was flag day. It was on June 14, 1777 that the American Congress resolved that "The flag of the United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white; that the union of thirteen States be so many stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation." Except to add a star with each new state this legislation has never been changed, giving us the most beautiful flag of earth.

—Mrs. Prof. W. A. Harper, who was carried last Saturday to St. Leo's hospital, Greensboro, for a serious operation, passed through the ordeal successfully Monday A. M., and at this writing (Tuesday A. M.) is reported doing well. The physicians give good hope of her recovery, a most welcome message to hosts of anxious friends. Her address for three weeks will be St. Leo's Hospital, Greensboro, N. C.

—Mr. E. C. Hines, McLeansville, N. C., is the first of Prof. Harper's class of trained teachers to order a supply of Teacher Training books for a Sunday school class on his return home from college, Mr. Hines sending in last week an order, with cash, for six copies. Mr. Hines was vice-president of the Elon class and was an interested student making, for the first time in his college career, he said, a percent of 100 on examination in Teacher Training.

—Elsewhere President Moffitt of Elon College, lays before Sun readers this week "A Plan for Increasing the Endowment of Elon College," which should have wide reading and serious thought. If our college is to continue its upward career of usefulness and influence, hold its own in fact among other institutions of equal rank and endeavor, the endowment must be increased and means must be furnished. Higher education always comes at dear cost in dollars, but no investment of a people pays so much in beneficial returns.

—Orders for our teacher training classes book, "Preparing the Sunday school Teacher to Teach," have been received from the following states: North Carolina, Virginia, Georgia, Alabama, Pennsylvania, Porto Rico, Ohio, New York, New Jersey, Illinois, Indiana, Missouri, Kentucky, Kansas, and we presume teacher training classes now using our book have been organized in quite all of the above named states. Orders continue to come in and the book is just beginning its great mission of preparing better teachers for our Sunday schools.

—The magnificent West Dormitory at Elon College having been opened to summer boarders, no doubt many will take advantage of this fine opportunity for rest, quiet, or recuperation and spend some weeks here this summer. Full details are given in an advertisement elsewhere. Rates are certainly reasonable, the place is all that could be desired, and the accommodations are comfortable, attractive and ample. It would be difficult to find a more ideal spot for a summer resort than Elon College and the management has, we believe, acted wisely, in giving this opportunity to the public.

—Mr. S. M. Atkinson, now traveling in the interest of the Sun and of our publications, is in Halifax Co., Va., this week and is to be with Pastor T. W. Strowd at Senora, N. C., Sunday, 20th inst. Between the 20th and 25th inst. he will be in the vicinity of Sanford, Jonesboro, and Pittsboro. Besides the Christian Sun list, Mr. Atkinson carries a supply of Principles and Government of the Church, also our Teacher Training Book, which he will furnish at the regular prices. If our people would acquaint themselves better with our literature they would be more loyal to their church and more devoted to its interests.

—The Gastonia Gazette comments, with favor and gratification, upon the fact that one half the graduates, of an unusually large class, from Davidson College at the recent commencement, will enter the ministry. When Elon College was beginning many thought that we would soon have more preachers than could be found place for, and now after nineteen years of successful history, the regret, often and repeatedly expressed is that the percentage of ministerial students is so very small. Two of the recent class of nine were ministerial students and while grateful for these, the only regret was that the number was not larger. Our church has never felt the need of active, strong, capable, willing men to enter the ministry, as it feels it today.

—The Huntington, Ind., "News-Democrat," in its issue of June 8, speaks thus of that fine man and Christian scholar, Rev. Warren H. Denison:—

"Rev. Warren H. Denison, pastor of the First Christian Church of this city, was highly honored by the Christian Biblical Institute of Defiance, Ohio, by being elected a non-resident professor of that institution.

Rev. Denison will deliver lectures during the coming year to the Bible students and those preparing for the ministry upon practical questions of pastoral work. No better selection could have been made as Rev. Denison has been an active pastor for many years and is up-to-date in all his methods."

TO THE SUNDAY SCHOOLS OF THE EASTERN NORTH CAROLINA CONFERENCE.

The Eastern North Carolina Convention will meet this year at Henderson. I am sure all of our Sunday school workers will be glad to learn that we have made this arrangement. The good people of our Henderson Church, have given us a very cordial invitation, which I hope we will accept, and show our appreciation of by sending a large delegation from each Sunday school.

I want to ask each Superintendent in this conference to begin now to make arrangements to be present. We want to make this the best convention we have ever had. A program is now being prepared and will be published soon.

The time is July 20-22. Let every Sunday school worker do his part, and will have a fine convention.

R. spectfully,
S. M. Smith, Pres.

—Be not envious of evil men, nor desire to be with them.

EXCURSION TO NORFOLK.

The Seaboard announces the first excursion to Norfolk, Tuesday, June 29, 1909.

Train leaves Raleigh, at 9:30 A. M., Durham at 9:30 A. M. Takes on passengers at Oxford, Henderson, and Louisburg. Arrives at Portsmouth 3:30 P. M., returning leave Portsmouth 9:00 A. M., July 1st.

First class excursion, fine opportunity for short recreation at the popular Virginia sea-shore resorts. For information see the Ticket Agents or address:

C. H. Gattis,
District Passenger Agent,
Raleigh, N. C.

A PLAN FOR INCREASING THE ENDOWMENT OF ELON COLLEGE.

As is known to many of our friends, it has for some time been the desire of those in charge of the administration of the affairs of Elon College to inaugurate a movement that would result in a substantial increase in the endowment of the institution, or in the creation of a sinking fund to take care of the funds that were issued for the recent improvements that have been made when they shall become due. Either plan would materially increase the income of the college—and this is what we most need at this time, to put us on a footing to properly direct and conserve the various forces that are just now tending to bring to our institution a period of growth and influence that has never before been paralleled in all its history. The real friends of the college who are in close touch with its affairs feel that we have passed the experimental stage, that the institution has taken its place among the best colleges of the country, and that it will hold this place; for it has the backing of the church at large, and our friends will see to it that its needs shall be met, and that its strengthening and growth shall continue throughout all the years to come.

Nearly two years ago now, with the sanction of the Board of Trustees, I worked out a plan looking to the raising of $15,000 or $20,000 for the college; but almost immediately upon the launching of the plan, the panic came on, and it was deemed best to stop and wait until the financial situation should become more favorable. I had previously approached only three men on the subject, and they responded liberally—gave me what I asked them for: Bro. K. B. Johnson, $500; Bro. J. Beale Johnson, $250; and Bro. W. Z. Atkinson, $250, all of Cardenas, N. C. This gave me great encouragement in my work, and I felt very hopeful as to results; but I was then making the rounds of the conferences, and before I got through with them, the panic was on in earnest; and, as above stated, I stopped, and waited—and have been practically waiting ever since. A short while ago, however, anxious to get something definite on foot by the time of the meeting of the Board of Trustees, I made a sort of quiet preliminary canvass of the situation, to ascertain how the people felt about the endowment question, and what they wanted us to do.

As a result of this preliminary investigation, I have become firmly convinced that the time is now ripe for a forward movement—a vigorous campaign for raising, not simply $15,000 or $20,000, but $50,000 for Elon College. To the few who are not especially interested, or not in close touch with the situation, this may seem impossible; but I believe that the majority of our people not only think it possible, but stand ready to make it a fact. It will not be an easy task, but it is a possible one; and, if every friend of the institution will lend a word of encouragement and a willing hand, the entire $50,000 will be raised, and that without working a hardship on any individual or any church.

The plan proposed to the Board of Trustees, and now endorsed by them is as follows:

First of all, before making any general canvass, we want to find ten men who will give $200 a year each for five years (or a thousand dollars each in five years), which will make ten thousand dollars; and twenty men who will give $100 a year each for five years (or $500 dollars each in the five years), which will make another ten thousand dollars. This will give us a starter of $20,000 and with this as a basis, it seems that the entire $50,000 ought to be raised. After these thirty men are found, then we will want to find a still larger number who will give $50 a year each for five years, and a still larger number $25 a year for five years, and so on down until every friend of the college is given an opportunity to contribute according to his means and his desire, so much a year for the five years, and then the work will be done, and the end accomplished.

I believe the hardest part of the task will be to find the first ten one thousand dollar men, and then the twenty five hundred dollar men. In fact, it is a part of the plan that, unless the ten one thousand dollar men can be found, those who subscribe to the movement will not be bound by their subscriptions. So it is imperative that this number be secured, and it behooves the friends of the college who can by any means help to insure this number, to do so, and to do so at the earliest possible moment, so that the good work may go on, and that at the earliest possible date.

The terms are easy, $200 a year for five years, and it seems to me that we ought to get, not only the ten, but even more, in this class. And then, not only the twenty, but even more, at $100 a year each for five years. The first payment need not be made until Jan. 1, 1910.

It seems to me that, under this proposition, there ought to be volunteers enough to fill out these two classes at once, so that the general canvass may be entered upon without further delay.

I am glad to announce that the movement has already been launched most encouragingly, and the following brethren have started the subscription:

In the $1000 list ($200 a year):

Col. J. E. West, Suffolk, Va.; Mr. C. A. Shoop, Suffolk, Va.; Mr. G. W. Truitt, Suffolk, Va.; Mr. W. H. Jones, Jr., Suffolk, Va.; Mr. K. B. Johnson, Cardenas, N. C. ($500 added to former donation).

In the $500 list ($100 a year):

Dr. Job G. Holland, Holland, Va.; Mr. John King, Suffolk, Va.; Mr. C. D. West, Newport News, Va.

In addition to the above, one other friend, not a member of the Christian Church, has said he would give $1000 and two others have said they would give $500. Their names will be announced as soon as I can get the regular subscription blanks to them for their signatures.

I may also state that two of the above named brethren have expressed the hope that they may be in position to double their subscriptions in the near future. I call attention to this to show the spirit with which our friends are taking hold of this matter, and at the same time to suggest to any one who may subscribe, that if they feel at any time that they would like to do more, as these brethren say they want to do, an increase will always be "in order" and appreciated.

Meanwhile, are there not others who will volunteer, and let us make another encouraging announcement in the next few days?

Do not wait for a personal visit, as the field to be covered by me is a large one; and, in connection with my other duties as President, it will take me quite a while to make a personal call on all those who might be able to come down in one or the other of the above lists.

This is the greatest movement educationally we have ever undertaken in the Christian Church, South, save that which resulted in the establishment of the college, and its successful accomplishment will send a thrill of enthusiasm into every heart, in every church, and every conference, throughout our borders; and new life and new interest will be awakened, not only in our educational affairs, but in every phase of our church work.

I ask for the hearty cooperation and the prayerful sympathy of every friend of Elon College and the Christian Church in this important work.

Cordially yours,

E. L. Moffitt, President.

Elon College, N. C.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEPARTMENT
—of the—
SOUTHERN CHRISTIAN CONVEN-
TION.

W. P. Lawrence, Editor, Elon College.

HOW TO TEACH THE S. S. LESSON
FOR JUNE 27, 1909.

A Few Suggestions.

Temperance Lesson.

Romans 13:8-14.

Golden Text.—Put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ, Rom. 13:14.

Review and Chronology.—Review the life of Paul, especially the part covered by the First Missionary Journey. Then state that Paul made two other missionary journeys, at the conclusion of the latter of which he was at Corinth, collecting alms for the Jerusalem Church. While these alms were being collected, he wrote this epistle, A. D. 58.

Facts about Romans.—It is the longest of Paul's Epistles and the first in order in the New Testament. It forms the basis of the Pauline Theology. It is also his master-piece, combining in highest degree divine inspiration and the noblest efforts of human reasoning. It covers the great doctrine of faith in its first eleven chapters. In its last five chapters it abounds in numerous practical suggestions on the duty of Christians. Our lesson comes from the practical part. Paul wrote the epistle as a sort of preparatory text-book for the colony of Christians at Rome and expected to follow it up through teaching in person. He dictated it to an amanuensis, Tertius, and sent it to Rome by a deaconess, Phebe. Here call for assigned work on the book of Romans.

Incidental Instruction.—It may be well to explain the Greek metaphor in the golden text. It means to assume the interest of another, to enter into his views, to live him. It is in origin a theatrical term and means to assume the name and garments and act the character of the person represented. In this sense we are to put on the Lord Jesus Christ.

The Lesson.—The lesson today may be divided into three parts, which write on the board as they are developed in the teaching:

1. Love and Law, verses 8-10.—Find what injunction is given, what exception there is to it, why, (Here call for assigned work on Matt. 22:34-40 as compared with verse 8), what other commandments are now repeated from the Old Testament, how they are all summed up, love's relation to one's neighbor, what the fulfilling of the law is. Here call for assigned work on Christ's Parable teaching neighborliness, Luke 11:25-37.

2. Love and Death, verses 11-12.—Find what it is now high time to do, why, what is far spent, what is at hand, what we are exhorted to cast off, what to put on. Here call for assigned work on the Christian Armor, Eph. 6:13-18, to be recited from memory.

3. Love and Life, verses 13-14.—Find how we are exhorted to walk, how not to walk, what to put on, what not to provide for.

Review the lesson by the topic method.

For Class Discussion.—The Epistle to the Romans. Substitutes for the Saloon. The Christian View of Debt. Intemperance as a National Foe. Soft Drinks as a Source of Intemperance.

Truths and their Application.—1. If the Christian standard, "owe no man anything, but to love one another," were in force, this world would certainly be a better one. No man who contracts a debt which he knows he cannot pay is a true Christian. A Christian always pays his debts and will always be very cautious about making them. I know many godly preachers and pious laymen who have permanently impaired their usefulness by looseness just here. Beware.

2. The only kind of credit business which you need not fear is that which originates in love. We should be ambitious to make all men our debtors in love. We need more millionaires of Christian love and fewer millionaires of money. We cannot discharge our debts of love save by loving in return, and when we do this we become our own debtors and so can never discharge the debt in full. Love makes the lover as well as the one loved debtor and is a blessing to both. "All the world loves a lover," and a Christian lover loves all the world.

3. Do not forget that this is our temperance lesson. Show how the law of love to our own fellowmen will make us temperate in all things. No man who loves his neighbor as he should will drink a "social beer" or play a "social game." No man who truly loves his neighbor will favor the saloon or license for gambling dens or brothels or allow "dope preparations" to be sold to innocent persons in drug stores without protest. The law of love will lead all to take all possible precautionary means for his neighbor's welfare as well as for his own.

4. The full appropriation of Christ is the duty of the Christian. We cannot attain our best in the Christian welfare without the putting on of Christ. Such putting on will not only prepare us to do our best in spiritual attainment, but will also carefully guard us against all that may cater to the evil desires of the hearts from within or without. It will enable us to enter his service heartily and will lead us into new victories for His name's sake.

Assignments for Next Time.—Announce that you will hold a written examination at the end of the incoming quarter. Ask all to bring their notebooks next Sunday. Ask one to be prepared on Acts 15:36-41; another on Acts 16:1-5; another to write a short essay on Silas; a fourth a short essay on Timotheus (Timothy); a fifth to tell the story fully of the "First Missionary Journey" from Acts 13:1 to Acts 14:28.

W. A. Harper.
Elon College, N. C.

S. S. LESSON FOR JUNE 20, 1909.

Review.

Read Acts 15:5-21.

Golden Text.—With great power gave the apostles witness of the resurrection of the Lord Jesus, Acts 4:33.

There has been presented much this quarter that ought to be retained in the mind as an inspiration to Christian activity. The lessons have shown the church operating along missionary lines, sending out its best men to declare of God's Holy Spirit, to give the message of salvation to the Gentile world.

The missionary spirit was the secret of the Church's rapid growth.

Lesson 1. Peter and Cornelius. The lesson shows Peter disarmed of prejudice preaching Christ and receiving converts and Cornelius, an honest worshipper, obedient unto God and gladly receiving the gospel.

Lesson 2. Peter Delivered from Prison. The lesson contains:—

1. The martyrdom of James.
2. The Imprisonment of Peter.
3. The Prayer-meeting for Peter.
4. How the Prayer was answered.
5. How the answer was received.

Lesson 3. The Conversion of Saul. Study: 1. Saul the Persecutor.

2. Saul Arrested.
3. Saul's Conversion.
4. Saul's enlightenment and commission.

Lesson 4. The Gospel in Antioch. This lesson shows the difficulties and successes of Christian work. Paul preaches in the synagogues. Arouses the Jews to opposition. Four effects of opposition: 1. The apostles become more decided. 2. The Gentiles become Christians. 3. The preachers are expelled. 4. Great joy.

Lesson 5. Paul's First Missionary Journey—Cyprus. This lesson exhibits Paul's qualifications for a missionary. He had: 1, A good experience. 2, A love for sinners. 3, An enlightened mind. 4, Strong faith in God. 5, Undaunted courage.

Lesson 6. Paul at Antioch in Pisidia. This lesson teaches Paul's method of reaching people who are hearing the gospel for the first time. Beginning in the Jewish synagogue with the scriptures, he reaches the Jews by rightly interpreting the words they accept. From the Jews he reached the Gentiles who have so much interest in religion as to go to the Jewish synagogue to hear him.

Lesson 7. Paul at Iconium and Lystra. This lesson travels in new regions and encounters new experiences. Paul again revisits the scenes of his previous labor and returns to his home church at Antioch.

Lesson 8. The Council at Jerusalem. This is an account of a religious controversy and how it was settled. There was a division in the Church. The Jewish element and Gentile representation had a free discussion. They finally agreed and accorded to each liberty of conscience.

Lesson 9. Believing and Doing. In this letter James deals with the question of practical Christian living in contrast with the mere intellectual acceptance of a body of doctrine. Christian activity is a means to continued justification as opposed to mere assent to what is to be believed.

Lesson 10. The Power of the Tongue. Plain, cautious, and carefully guarded are the instructions of this lesson. The power of the tongue—The tongue's nature—The tongue's use.

Lesson 11. Heroes of Faith. This is a lesson concerning the nature and office of faith and presents some living examples of faith. It is one of marvelous force and beauty and may be read with profit by all Christians.

G. W. T.

MY IMPRESSIONS OF ELON COLLEGE AT THE NINETEENTH COMMENCEMENT.

The mutations of time produce wonderful results. Decay and progress are visible on every hand. The decay of the old order, and the progress of the new order leave their impress upon every Elonite of former years who comes back on a visit, and has the audacity to get "mixed up with the boys." During the stretch of time from 1890 to 1909 Elon has developed from a mere high school into a real college. It is now a college with much modern equipment, such as laboratories, a museum, electric lights, water works, a brass band, and a good sized, well equipped faculty, rendering effective and efficient service. The curriculum has been raised. The departments have been strengthened. The society halls have been more elegantly furnished. There is a well-equipped Y. M. C. A. hall, where the boys gather at stated times for devotional exercises. The music department shows through its students that it has a capable and efficient director. One of the most useful and entertaining organizations of the college is the band, composed of nineteen young men, who know how to discourse sweet music. The band attracts a visitor, perhaps, more than any other new feature that has been introduced into college life. This is so, because most people are charmed by music, and those who are not are certainly deserving of our condolence.

The art department likewise showed that there were those who possessed talent who had been faithfully trying to develop that talent. The walls of the art room were completely covered with pictures that would do credit to any art exhibit. There were snow scenes, pictures of fruits, animals, landscapes, peoples and angels. From the crowds that constantly thronged the hall while the doors were open, it was evident that the pictures presented no small attraction. Then there was the Elocution recital, which we must not pass over in silence. The program was not very long nor very elaborate, but it contained some selections that were well rendered and liberally applauded. Elocution is the art of managing the voice, countenance, and gesture in speaking, so as to produce the most pleasing, appropriate result. All who would be great speakers ought to take elocution.

Perhaps, the most useful improvement noticed by the visiting student of former years is the electric lights and the water works. No longer does darkness reign supreme in the campus at night, nor are all the dangers of fire to be overcome by one small college well. There is natural light produced in an artificial way, and natural water made to disobey the law of gravity and mount to the upper floors of the college building in pipes ready to be turned on, whenever fire happens to break out. These are wise improvements for which the present college management should be congratulated.

In regard to the exercises, we believe that no commencement has furnished better, and so far as our knowledge and observation goes, none have appeared so good heretofore. The society representatives did themselves proud. Not a hitch nor a break in the four speeches and two essays that were delivered. The musical program was pitched on a high plane, and while to the untutored mind it was not attractive, yet we could not help perceiving that it involved the elements of skill and persistent practice. The graduating exercises were very good. The speeches and essays were well constructed and delivered in a pleasing manner. Of course, it could hardly be expected that all would be equally good, but there was variety and individuality enough to make all interesting without any tendency to be tiresome. The presentation of diplomas and Bibles and medals was interspersed with bright remarks and witty sayings which produced laughter and applause, and after all was over, everyone felt that no better commencement had ever been held at Elon College. The Alumni oration was unfortunately missed by the writer, but was praised by those who heard it. Neither were we permitted to attend the banquet with its joys and reminiscences, but we understand a plan was formulated there which if carried out will result in the establishment of several scholarships for needy students. We are glad this movement has been started, and believe that great good can be done in this way.

We enjoyed our visit, had a good time with former school mates and acquaintances, received some inspiration from contact with the great and brainy ones, and returned home with an accumulation of enthusiasm which we hope will last us some time to come. We are proud of the college and hope to live to see it attain unto a state of development which shall make it second to no denominational college in the South.

Herbert Scholz.

Macon, N. C.

A CORRECTION.

Dear Bro. Atkinson: Will you please correct in the next issue of the Christian Sun a mistake that was published in the Sun Jan. 13, 1909, in regard to the amount of money Bro. Brickhouse of Norfolk, Va., presented to help erect the Union Christian Mission building. He presented one hundred and fifty dollars instead of one hundred as it came out in the Sun.

Sincerely,

(Miss) Ella Beaton.

Franklin, Va., R. F. D. 2, June 1, '09.

—The Wright brothers of Dayton, O., inventors of the aeroplane, received, at the hands of President Taft at the White House June 10, medals awarded them by the Aero Club of America.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

Founded 1844 by Elder Daniel W. Kerr.
Organ of the Southern Christian
Convention.

Entered at the postoffice at Greensboro, N. C., as second-class matter.

Terms of Subscription.

One Year .....$1.50
Six Months ..... .75
Four Months ..... .50
Advertising rates given on application.

J. O. Atkinson, Editor and Publisher.

Important Notice.—As readers will see, The Christian Sun is now published at Greensboro, N. C. The office of publication there is 302½ South Elm Street. Our editorial office, however, remains at Elon College, N. C., to which all letters and communications to the Editor should be addressed, as heretofore.

ORGANIZED VIRTUE.

Our Savior did not himself organize. But He made organization possible and effective. He inspired men to fraternity and to the fellowship of service. In union there is strength. He taught men to dwell together in unity, to have fellowship one with another, and so made possible the great Christian organizations which constitute the effectual working force for truth and right.

The reason that sin will ultimately go down is because there is nothing in it to organize men to cooperative and fraternal endeavor.

What has the world of wickedness done, what agencies employed, for enlightenment, for instruction and for man's uplift? The world of sin employs the saloon, the gambling place, the low dive, the filth of speech and character and conduct to perpetrate its deeds and institutions with. These are the agencies upon which sin lives and labors and thrives.

Over against these and with which to fight these, our Christianity organizes the virtue of the community into churches, institutions, benevolent societies. These agencies employ the ablest, purest and best men to speak, preach, and teach in their behalf. They secure singers, musical instruments, beautiful houses of worship, all for the benefit and uplift of mankind.

The world of sin is organizing no effort, agency, or institution for man's uplift, enlightenment, and edification.

The world of righteousness labors day and night to employ and use the best and holiest and mightiest agencies and institutions for man's uplift and betterment.

Some boast that they belong to "no church." A poor and pitiable boast is this. What has "no church" done for education, refinement, moral and spiritual welfare? Nothing.

The Church may be slow and faulty and weak. But it is organizing the world's virtue for conquering the world of Sin. And the gates of hell will not prevail against this.

THE BATTLE OF THE BOOKS.

Books, like other bodies, have battles for the mastery. Only the fittest survive. The weak, uninteresting, and impotent go down early and often to ready defeat. Weak men often win sympathy and exist at the mercy of pity, piety, and charity. Not so weak books. There are no organized charities in their behalf. They live or die, sink or swim, survive or perish by virtue or vice of their own strength or weakness. Every book must fight its own battles. The strongest, worthiest, mightiest only survive.

Measured by this standard, or by any other, the Bible remains the mighty giant in all contests, the marvel of all the ages, the sure and safe winner in all conflicts. After centuries the Book is stronger than any and all comers. The American Bible Society, just one of hundreds of agencies devoted to printing and distributing this Book, printed the past year, nearly two million copies of the Bible either on its own presses in New York or on other presses in Turkey, Syria, Siam, and Japan. This Society has existed ninety-two years and in that period of time has printed 82,316,322 copies of this master of all books. Any other book that reaches the sale of a million copies is regarded as marvelous indeed. What of this Book whose millions of copies cannot be numbered.

THE FATHERS AND MOTHERS NOT PRESENT.

The commencement season is over. Hundreds and thousands of splendid young men and charming young women have acted well their parts on the stage, been applauded liberally for their endeavor, and have gone to their homes and places now to begin another sort of life, that life for which they had been preparing at College. All noticed how comely those young men were attired, how spotlessly and flawlessly those young women were gowned.

Did you know that it took the father's best planning, and the mother's mightiest sacrifices, to bring their sons and daughters in this goodly shape to this event? And when the work was done many fathers and many mothers were not there to hear Tom deliver his graduating oration, and see Mary read her final essay. For more reasons than one these fathers and mothers could not go. They had given Tom and Mary the best to wear and they themselves had "no best" fit to wear to Tom's and Mary's graduating day. They had spent, for these four or five years, all they could "rake and scrape" and spare for Tom's and Mary's schooling and now there was nothing left for them to pay railroad fare with. Besides, the sacrifices of past years had driven them to energetic and constant endeavor and they cannot lay down their work even for a few days' pleasure. Thus for one reason or another, many fathers and mothers could not go to their son's or their daughter's graduating day. Here is sacrifice, here is self denial, here is heroic endeavor, such as never gets itself recorded in public print. These are they who make a country great and a nation strong and mighty. These are they who labor for love's sake and, they themselves being really great and good, make great and good men and women possible in the world. Heaven takes note of their sacrifices and angels aid their heroic endeavor. The fathers and mothers who could not go were at home busy writing their names on heaven's scroll of honor and renown.

Senator Simmons, in his literary address at the recent Elon commencement, related a most touching incident and incidentally paid a high tribute to his father's spirit of noble sacrifice.

When the war was over, said the Senator, and the family had returned to a wasted farm and a depleted home, the father disappeared for an hour and then returned with a tin box of gold and silver coin. Opening this, the father said, "This is all we have, but not a cent of it must be used for bread, clothing, or shelter. All must go to the schooling of our two boys." And so it all went.

The father's spirit of self-sacrifice explains Senator Simmons. The father explains the son—and by his self-deprivation made his son's career possible.

And this same spirit explains the host of noble boys and girls going forth to conquer and triumph in the contests and conflicts of life.

God bless the fathers and mothers who, with sacrifices there and noblest endeavor and pride and joy and hope there could not themselves go. They sent the better part, their spirit of devotion, their love for a life of usefulness and influence and success for their sons and their daughters.

NORFOLK LETTER.

Rev. W. H. Thompson of the Third Church returned Thursday night from Sidney, Ohio, where he had been several days at the bedside of his mother, who is very ill, suffering severely from dropsy. The prayers of church and people continue in their behalf.

The Sunday schools of the Memorial Temple and the Third Church are looking forward with pleasure to their annual picnic, which they will hold jointly at Cape Henry, June 22.

This is one day of the year on which I always make a cross mark against my appointments for the whole day, and do not see my office, but give the day to the children and have a good time with them.

The second Sunday in June is an important occasion with the Memorial Temple, being the time for their annual missionary offering. This year, there are various reasons that make it reasonable not to expect quite so large a subscription as in former years. However when the day was summed up and all reports in, I think they have reasons to be encouraged at the amt. subscribed, which will be about $800.

I regret to note that Col. A. Savage continues quite ill.

Prof. S. M. Smith of Raleigh was a welcome caller one day last week. He was in the city looking into a very important matter that may yet mean quite a good deal to Prof. Smith and some of the rest of us in this vicinity.

J. W. Manning.

NEWPORT NEWS LETTER.

It was my privilege recently to attend memorial exercises at Berkley, Va., held under the auspices of the Daughters of the Confederacy. The attendance was large and the exercises impressive. One of the most impressive features was the union in friendly spirit of a large number of U. S. Marines with the Confederate veterans in paying honor to the memory of those who fell in the lost (?) cause. The cemetery is beautifully kept and in that reveals a beautiful sentiment of a refined people. It was an occasion when many an individual, with heavy and anxious heart, tarried at the grave of a loved one to plant another flower and to shed another tear, for the departed. They are sacred places in life's pilgrimage, but only because of the associations in memory for not even the real shadow of what once was is there. It is far from comforting to visit these places and occasions, yet it is helpful. By some of these mounds we sat with uncovered head, and while the heart beat its grateful throbs for the lives and love which once blessed and cheered amidst life's shadows and lights, memory painted so vividly, and in living colors, the past anew before us. From such places and occasions we turn back to the real, stern duties and experiences of life, with the affections and sentiments of the soul elevated, vain ambitions subdued, and with larger visions of self and the world about us. The most lasting monuments to the memory of the departed are not found in shafts of granite and marble but in the hearts and lives and characters of the living. Goodness, too, as far exceeds mere greatness as the noonday sun exceeds the lurid radiance of a midnight conflagration. Better to be remembered by a life of purity than by marble shafts only. To find a large place in the hearts and lives of those with whom we live is worth life's struggles and labors. But how swiftly are we all hastening to the silent city. It matters not in the end, whether our praise has lived on human lips, our deeds reviewed by orators and shafts placed at our resting place, or whether we fall forgotten and unknown on some field of battle if our lives have been devoted and loyal to God and the gates of glory have received the redeemed spirit. The thought that we walk before God and to Him are responsible for life's gifts and blessings should live with us and inspire us to do our best until life's sunset hour.

Murdock W. Butler.

CHIPLEY LETTER.

Dear Editor: I have been serving Mt. Zion and the church at Langdale during this year, this being my second year at Mt. Zion. My work, as a whole, is in as good condition as could be expected.

At our last conference the committee appointed last year, to do some repairing and painting of the house at Mt. Zion, made their final report. This report showed an expenditure of about $225.00, notwithstanding the fact that some became "tender" on the question of giving (because they don't know any better). Bro. J. S. Sledge has collected $45.00, ordered and placed a creditable organ in the house. Of course we can always depend on our most loyal members to hold the church up.

We held our annual Memorial services here on the first Saturday and Sunday in May. On Saturday the floral decorations were good. A very appropriate program was rendered of songs and recitations. Then a committee of twelve small boys and girls took the flowers and placed them upon the graves. This was very inspiring scene. While the children moved so quietly in the distribution of those flowers I thought it resembled an angelic band on errands of mercy. We expect to take our mission collection here next first Sunday (June).

The work at Langdale is in equally as good condition. I will be in revival services there next week. All the denominations will work together in this meeting.

But what I want to mention in this letter before it gets too long is the Missionary Rally. At the last session of the Alabama Conference it was decided to hold a rally for the purpose of creating a greater interest in missions. The rally was held with Pleasant Grove church the 29 and 30 of May.

On account of so much rain not more than half the churches were represented. But those who did come had thought on the missionary subject. There were but few vacancies on the program; and each one showed there had been given considerable thought and preparation.

One of the leading topics, "Our Missions and Missionaries," was discussed by Rev. G. D. Hunt who held the congregation like a magnet for nearly one hour and thirty minutes. He gave us many good thoughts of the needs of the people and the sacrifices of those on the fields.

Rev. C. W. Dollar did himself proud in his sermon at 11 o'clock. These two discourses created considerable comment on the subject.

A motion prevailed to give the best hour in the district meetings to missions. We want to keep this constantly before the people.

Just before preaching time Sunday morning Bro. J. J. Carter made a speech and with it a suggestion that we raise $500 in annual, life time pledges for missionary purposes. Then a motion was made and carried, by a unanimous vote, to appoint a committee of one to solicit these pledges. Rev. G. D. Hunt was appointed. This was the most inspiring scene of the entire meeting. Several enthusiastic speeches were made; and it was decided to divide the money equally for Home and Foreign Missions.

Bro. Hunt took the floor and raised in cash and subscription, $88. It may be that we will not get the five hundred dollars proposed in this meeting but we are expecting great things of the Lord. We want to be in a position in the near future that our conference can support one or two missionaries, as the case may be, in the foreign field.

E. M. Carter.

Chipley, Ga., R. F. D. 3.

THE CHRISTIAN ORPHANAGE
DEPARTMENT.
Board of Trustees.

Rev. J. O. Atkinson, D. D., Pres., Elon College, N. C.
Rev. I. W. Johnson, Sec., Suffolk, Va.
Hon. W. H. Carroll, Burlington, N. C.
L. M. Clymer, Greensboro, N. C.
C. D. West, Newport News, Va.
Elijah Moffitt, Esq., Asheboro, N. C.
G. S. Watson, M. D., Elon College, N. C.
Treasurer—Prof. J. T. Cobb.
Superintendent—Jas. L. Foster, Elon College, N. C.

CHILDREN'S CORNER.

The Band of Cousins.

Jas. L. Foster, Sec., Elon College, N. C.

"He that hath pity on the poor lendeth unto the Lord, and his good deed will He pay him again."—Prov. 19:17.

Total Reported Last Week $3228.11
Dues.

Susie R. Watson ..... .10
J. Newman Denton ..... .10
S. E. Denton, Jr. .... .10
Charles E. Newman .... .10
Hannah Clare Newman .. .10
Warner Carpenter ..... .05
F. J. Carpenter ..... .05

Monthly S. S. Offerings.

Sanford, N. C., Jan. to
June ..... 6.00
Oak Level, N. C., May .... .68

Special Offering.

"A Friend," Berkley Va. 1.00
Rev. J. A. Henderson, Woodworth, N. C. (to buy corn with, col.) ... 2.00 Wachovia L. & T. Co. (on support Brown children) June 1 to Dec. 1. 150.00
Am't. 21st week ..... $160.28
Total ..... $3388.39

My Dear Children:—

Every thing around the campus is pretty quiet these days; but life at the Orphanage remains the same—everybody busy. Rising bell at 4, breakfast 5:30, and away to work fly barefoot boys and girls, to the different duties assigned them for the day.

Our first dewberries made their appearance at dinner last Wednesday—4 gallons, and were enjoyed very much by the children. They are very nice and if nothing happens we will have quite a quantity of this delicious fruit.

By the time this letter reaches you we will have our big cow pasture wired in, then Tom Walden and the little boys will be glad so they will not have to watch them. There will be about 65 acres in the pasture.

What harvest is just ready and we hope to begin Friday.

We are very anxious that our friends help us liberally this week as we need $200 at once. Who will help us?

The Hobson, Va., Ladies' Aid Society sends us a memorial quilt, which is very valuable as well as beautiful and by their request we send list of names appearing on quilt. We are very grateful for so nice a gift.

With love and best wishes to all,
Yours fondly,

Uncle Jim.

Hobson Ladies' Aid Society, Va., one memorial quilt with following names: Mrs. J. C. Louis, Millie Hilliard, Mrs. Lizzie Bingley, Mr. T. D. Moody, Hilda Johnson, Mrs. Priscilla Hackney, John H. Moore, Bettie E. Mattox, Lewis A. Dixon, Edith M. Whitley, Mrs. J. B. Shipp, Maie Winner Bagwell, J. T. Johnson, Jr., Mr. B. L. Coggins, Mrs. J. S. Milteer, Mrs. Hattie Jessie Green, Mr. John F. Higgins, George W. Dixon, Mrs. Jamima Coggins, Mrs. John Maetin, Mrs. T. H. Beale, Asa Johnson, F. A. Spady, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Gaskins, Mr. and Mrs. G. T. Rawls, R. M. Melson, Earl Shelton McGee, Mrs. M. E. Beale, Marie Bradshaw, Edna V. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Bagwell, Bernice Fields, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Lee, Fannie Harrell, Marie McNeal, Mrs. R. L. Coggins, Linwood Mason, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Harrell, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Lewis, Mr. G. E. McNeal, Rev. and Mrs. I. W. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Matthews, Parker Johnson, Mrs. Geo. E. McNeal, Miss Lizzis Merriek, Louise Johnson, Annie B. Haden, Miss Lugette Edwards, Maie L. Richardson, Clyde Brock, Mr. G. H. Winfrey, Harvey E. Bruce, Mr. T. E. Harrell, Ora L. Fields, Mrs. Marion H. Anderson, Mr. E. L. Moffitt, Mrs. Martha Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Matthews, Dr. and Mrs. L. L. Eley, Samuel A. Spragg, John R. Dixon, Mr. Joseph Hillyer, Gladice I. Brown, Bertha M. Corson, Bradford P. Dixon, Mattie L. Crittenden, John V. Evans, Annie Ruth Hogue, Lucile F. Murfee, Mrs. C. E. McNeal, Robt. L. Richardson, Mrs. Sue Jones.

Malone, Ala., June 9, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

I want to join your band of cousins. I listen to mama read the corner. I enjoy it very much. I am eating plums while mama writes for me. I can write but not well enough to send off.

Enclosed you'll find five cents for n.y. dues.

Your little cousin,

T. J. Carpenter.

Welcome, "T. J." Tell us your full name, and be sure to write again soon.

Malone, Ala., June 6, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

My papa takes the Sun. I enjoy reading the corner. I feel very sorry for children that have no parents. I appreciate my parents very much. Enclosed please find five cents for my dues.

Love to you and the cousins.

Warner Carpenter.

Two Ala. Cousins join this week and we are very glad to receive them.

Hope you will enjoy reading your own little letter in the Sun.

Elon College, N. C., May 31, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

We will write our May letter while here and hand it to you. We are having such a good time we can't take time to write much. We like cousin Staley's "Chute de chute" fine. We think it beats our Alabama cousin's "joggling board." We get our kin a little confused, we have two Aunt Patties, and two little cousins named Dan.

Love to all. We enclose our dimes.

Lovingly,

Charles E. Newman, Jr.

Hannah Clare Newman.

So glad to have seen these little cousins while at Elon and had Charles E. Jr. to visit us.

Taro, Va., June 5, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

Enclosed please find my dime for this month.

With best wishes for you and the Orphanage, I remain,
Yours truly,
Susie R. Watson.

Thanks, Susie. Trust you are enjoying your vacation.

Clayton, Ala., May 31, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

Papa and mama have been so busy Please accept our love and dimes, and pardon delay at commencement times.

Fondly,

J. Newman Denton.

S. E. Denton, Jr.

A HOME FREE At Denton, N. C.

We propose to give away (no cost whatever) on Dec. 24, 1909, to some person who desires to settle in the best town in North Carolina, a beautiful home-building lot in the beautiful and rapidly-growing town of Denton, N. C.—absolutely free. Denton is one of the loveliest, most aggressive—in short, one of the "coming" towns—of North Carolina. It is the temporary terminus of the Piedmont Railway, which connects it with the main line of the "Southern" at Thomasville, and will soon push through to Wadesboro, where it will connect with the "Seaboard" and "Coast Line." A moral, cultured town, with a splendid school system, and attractive church advantages in the heart of the N. C. furniture-making belt—and backed by a splendid farming country. Already has 7 working factories, prospective bank and cotton mill, 10 retail stores, 3 churches and more to be built. Population has doubled itself twice in the last 24 months. Centrally located in the midst of the hardwood belt, has three daily mails, and connected by telephone with the neighboring towns—30 miles from Troy; 27 miles from High Point; 22 miles from Salisbury; 23 miles from Asheboro; 20 miles from Piedmont (Railway) from Thomasville; 20 miles from Lexington; 13 miles from Whitney, the great water-power development. Now, we are giving away, absolutely free, a beautiful home-building lot, to some one who wishes to make his or her, or their, home in this beautiful town. All readers of this paper and all other first-class people invited. None but the best people invited to reply. Write at once for particulars. HUB LANT COMPANY, Lexington, N. C.

WHICH LIVES, THE GOOD OR THE BAD?

By President Charles A. Blanchard.

The evil that men do lives after them; the good is oft interred with their bones." My friends who read these words will recognize this as a part of Mark Antony's speech over the body of Caesar. He was a great orator if he ever made any such oration as the dramatist credits him with. Probably he did not, and yet perhaps he did; certainly he accomplished his purpose, and drove the enemies of Caesar out of Rome.

My interest in this quotation, however, is not at all historical; I am thinking of the sentiment that it expresses. It seems to me absurdly false; yet I think it has many believers, and that the result in the hearts of men is injurious; so with your permission, brother editor, I should like to take five minutes to put my pin through that falsehood.

The doctrine of the quotation is this: "What you do that is wrong will be remembered; what you do that is good will be forgotten." This is the exact thought that Antony uttered. He said, "Caesar has done much of good; you do not remember it; you will not remember it; he has done some evil; that is what Brutus has been talking about; you will remember that; and that is the way it generally is among men." Now, allowing for the exceptions, I hold that Mary Antony spoke the exact opposite of the truth, and I think I have proofs that he did.

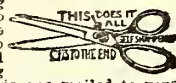

I finished reading last night a book written by a schoolmate friend. It was her own life-story, and covered about fifty years of time. She is remarkably frank. You can see her mind work and feel her heart beat in every page.

She has had what is generally called among men a "hard life;" her father died when she was a mere child; her mother struggled against tremendous odds to gain honest bread for herself and her three children. One brother enlisted in 1864, but died in a hospital from exposure and neglect before he ever saw the battle-field. Another brother lived to manhood, but was a lifelong invalid, and finally died in her arms. She has to-day almost no one whose blood flows in her veins.

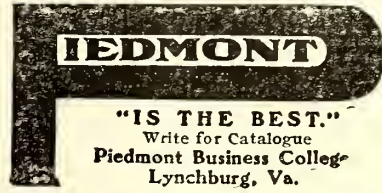

She has been a tremendous toiler, and the financial returns have been extremely small. Wealthy people have often given her rest in their homes, and have many times sent her money gifts; but it does not take long to use up fifty or a hundred dollars in travelling and hotel bills, so that she might, from a human

Self-Sharpening Shears

Always ready to cut anything from wet tissue paper to heavy cloth. New simple idea. Cuts clean and sharp to the points of blades. Will last for years. Don't pay big prices for shears but get this one mailed to your address on receipt of 40c. Positively guaranteed.

HOUSEHOLD SUPPLY CO.,
219 Fountain St., Westville, Conn.

"IS THE BEST."
Write for Catalogue
Piedmont Business College
Lynchburg, Va.

USE OUR MONEY
Establish a profitable and lasting business of your own. Be your own boss. We furnish everything, including Sample Outfit valued at $5.50. We began with nothing; are now worth $100,000; what we did you can do; we will gladly help you. Big Catalog, Plans and Sample Outfit low ready and ALL FREE. Write now. 1 Insoldated Portrait & Frame Co.
280-10 W. Adams St., Chicago, Ill.

CANCER CAN BE CURED.

Personal or Home Treatment. Both successful. Scores of testimonials, from persons who gladly write to those now suffering, all tell of permanent cures. My Mild Combination Treatment destroys growth and eliminates the disease from the system. Free book "Cancer and Its Cure" and 125-page book of testimonials from cured patients in all parts of the country. No matter how serious your case, how many operations you have had, or what treatment you have taken, don't give up hope, but write at once Dr. Johnson Remedy Co., 125 Grand Ave., Kansas City, Mo. Physicians treated free.

standpoint, be excused if she were depressed and cynical.

But in this whole book of almost four hundred pages she speaks over and over again of the kindnesses that have been shown to her, of the excellences that she has perceived in others. It seems as if she has written all the disagreeable and unkindly things in water, but the good deeds that she has experienced in brass.

Now it is my deliberate judgment, founded upon experience and observation, that this is not the exception, but the rule, among men. I believe that Mark Antony would have spoken far more truthfully had he said, "The good that men do lives after them; the evil is oft interred with their bones."

I have been running over a few events of my own life which confirm this thesis, and I should like to share them with the host of young people that read The Christian Endeavor World.

BUCKROE HOTEL, BUCKROE BEACH, VIRGINIA.

Lower Chesapeake Bay, with unobstructed view, magnificent scenery, surf bathing, fine fishing and beautiful drives. Those seeking rest and quiet by the sea will find this an ideal spot. Under the management of the Newport News and Old Point Railway and Electric company. Write for rates and booklet.

MEDICINE.

We prepare as good medicine, the very best medicine that the finest, freshest, most potent drugs and chemicals will produce when carefully and skilfully compounded by an expert prescription man—just such medicine as your physician means that you should have, medicine of the utmost possible effectiveness. May we prepare your medicine?

FREEMAN DRUG CO.,
Burlington, N. C.

SPRING TIME.

The time for gardening is here and you need garden tools. We can supply you at lowest prices.

Poultry Wire.

The best assorted stock in the county. Four different styles and weight.

Come and See.

Remember plumbing and bath room fixtures, a speciality. You will find us on Davis St. third door from Post office.
BURLINGTON HARDWARE CO.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup

Has been used for over SIXTY-FIVE YEARS by MILLIONS of MOTHERS for their CHILDREN WHILE TEETHING with PERFECT SUCCESS. It SOOTHES the CHILD, SOFTENS the GUMS, ALLAYS all PAIN; CURES WIND COLIC, and is the best remedy for DIARRHEA. Sold by Druggists in every part of the world. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Guaranteed under the Food and Drugs Act, June 30th, 1906. Serial Number 1038. AN OLD AND WELL TRIED REMEDY.

BIBLES FOR SALE.

I am selling, in Alamance County, Wilmore's New Analytical Reference Bible, the most thorough and complete Book for all who wish to study and understand the Bible on the market today. Sold only by subscription and I shall be glad to show it to you. Thousands of copies are being sold. Alfred Apple, Jr., Elon College, N. C.

RAISE MONEY FOR YOUR CHURCH.

We offer you an easy method. Send us a photograph of your church or your pastor, and we will send you 500 high grade post cards, with photograph on each card, and scripture verse if desired. Sell these cards at 10 cents each. When sold, remit us $20.00 and keep the balance. You can do this in a week. We will return photograph.

LAKE SHORE SUPPLY CO.,
225 Broad St., St. Joe, Michigan.

I was recently visiting in the home of a gentleman who has been for forty years in active life. We were students together in college, but, though friendly, were not very close together in our work. We were two or three years apart in time, and not specially interested in the same things. We never had any differences, but I cannot remember ever having had any special interchange of friendship. He had always been kind and gentlemanly to me; I had tried to be so to him; but in our business lives also we had been separated.

There are two things that I look for when I go into a home; one is the pictures; the other is the books. These two things I think always reveal the soul of the home. So in his home I stood before a bookcase, glancing along the titles. A book attracted me, and I pulled it partly out of the shelf, and mentioned it to him.

He said, "You ought to know that book;" and, surprised, I replied, "How so?"

"Why," he said, "you gave that book to me as a birthday present when we were in college."

I had totally forgotten it; I cannot remember it to-day; but he had remembered it all through these busy manhood years.

The other day I was coming home at ten o'clock at night on an electric car from a neighboring town; a gentleman came into the car where I was sitting from the special car that was carrying a picnic party. He belonged in that party, and had seen me sitting in the car, and came in to speak to me. He said, "This is Mr. Blanchard, is it not?"

I said, "Yes, I am he," and asked his name.

He gave it to me, and said, "You were guest in my home when the church was being dedicated years ago."

I said, "Yes, I know I was guest with some good people there, but I could not quite remember who they were."

He continued: "I had been sick for two years when you came into our home, and you said a few words which changed the sky. I felt as if I wanted to mention it to you."

This is another proof of my proposition. I entered that home in the afternoon, and left it in the evening; God gave me some words that were helpful to that sick, burdened man. After the meeting was over I rushed away into new tasks.

I could not now, if I tried, go to that house without direction; but this dear brother, this dear human soul, remembered the "cup of cold water" only, which I was permitted to bear to him, and had been grateful for it through all these whirling years.

I remember one day I was preaching in the church of a neighboring city; and at the close of my sermon a man came up to me, and said, "Do you know me?"

I said, "No, I cannot say that I do."

He said, "Do you remember teaching school in a certain town many years ago?"

I said, "I can never forget it."

"Well," he said, "I am the man who engaged you to teach that school."

Then the years vanished, and I remembered him. I was a boy of fifteen years old, wondering whether there was anything in the world for me to do; I went into Chicago, and passed my first examination for permission to teach in the public schools of Illinois. Dear John F. Eberhart, a noble gentleman, dealt so kindly and tenderly with me at that time that I remembered it after more than forty years. I went out with that permission, and taught that school.

It was my first school; I was a boy of fifteen. Conditions were not favorable; we had a long wooden building about thirty feet by eighty inside; the exact figures I could not give. I taught in one end; my assistant taught in the other; there was no partition between us. I was so ignorant that I have often been ashamed to think of it; but I read the Bible with those children, prayed with them, and taught them what I could about the three Rs.

When this gentleman spoke to me in the church, and I had at last identified him, I said, "I am glad to see you; I have often felt as if I ought to go back to your town and apologize to the people for the poor work I did in my school."

"Well," he said, "we who are there do not feel that way. I was talking only last week with a gentleman who is interested in school matters with me there, and he remarked that the best work that had been done for our school was done by that young man Blanchard, who taught here many years ago."

I was astounded; I cannot understand it now. There is only one possible explanation for it to my mind; and that is, that those people saw I was trying to help their children, that I really cared for them; and they had remembered that fact, over more than twenty-five years, and spoke of me among themselves.

How could I ever believe that the good that men do is buried with their bones? I could not believe it if I tried a thousand years.

You know I have always been a teacher; so you will forgive me if I take another leaf out of my book. The last public school that I taught was in a country schoolhouse in Will County of this State. It was a small schoolhouse on the side of a hill. A brook flowed near by, and the schoolhouse was shaded by native trees. There were twenty-six pupils in that school, and among them was a boy of ten or twelve. He was just one of my boys, not remarkable for anything so far as I can tell, but just a boy. I enjoyed my work, did it as well as I could, was fairly paid, and went my way.

I never saw that boy again; I did not hear from him for twenty-six years; but one day twenty-six years after I taught that school I received a letter from a physician employed in a State hospital in Iowa, reminding me of that country schoolhouse and that summer's school. This doctor said, "I have for many years thought I should write and thank you for what you did for me that summer." I cannot tell what I did; I do not remember that I took any particular pains to help him; but in some way or other the young man who was teaching was enabled to touch the soul of the little boy, and he did not forget

---

DO YOU WANT TO GO TO COLLEGE? If so we can help you. We have already put hundreds through college by means of our plan. Write today for full information regarding our offer of a free scholarship in any school or college. Address, Robert J. Sherlock, 29-31 East 22nd Street, New York City.

---

YOUNG MEN! If you want to know why you should become telegraph operators and what school to attend, write to SOUTHERN SCHOOL OF TELEGRAPHY, Newman, Ga., for free Catalogue "A." EVERY BOY should read it. Positions positively guaranteed.

---

FREE DEAFNESS CURE.

A remarkable offer by one of the leading ear specialists in this country, who will send two month's medicine free to prove his ability to cure Deafness, Head Noises, and Catarrh. Address Dr. G. M. Branaman, 1100 Walnut Street, Kansas City, Mo.

---

RALEIGH & SOUTHPORT RY. Co.

P. M.	A. M.	STATIONS.	A. M.	P. M.
1:15	6:00	Raleigh	8:30	3:45
1:54	6:24	McCullers	7:52	3:03
2:11	6:59	Willow Sp'gs	7:37	2:45
2:23	7:14	Varina	7:27	2:34
2:35	7:26	Fuquay Sp'gs	7:19	2:25
2:55	7:45	Kipling	7:00	2:05
3:15	8:05	Lillington	6:41	1:44
3:41	8:28	Linden	6:15	1:17
4:30	9:15	Fayetteville	5:30	12:30

JNO. A. MILLS, Pres. and Gen. Mgr.

it. During the years of professional study and the years of professional life he recalled that time. Why should one say or think that the good that men do is buried with them?

Among the tens of thousands of happy people who will read this bit of a story there will be some scores of weary and discouraged ones, some who find it hard to be patient with themselves and others and even with God. They feel that the good that they would like to do they do not do, and the harm that they do not wish to do they do, and that the evil will live after them when the good has been forgotten.

My errand is to cheer up this minority. The majority do not need me, though they will rejoice in the truth I utter, and think of like experiences of their own; but I wish my downhearted brothers and sisters to remember that Mark Antony is no authority for a Christian. He was a mean man, and did a lot of harm; perhaps in this word that I have quoted he did as much evil as in any one thing that he did.

If you believe in Jesus Christ, you are God's people; God is your Father. Scores, hundreds, perhaps thousands, of persons that you do not know love you well. They have treasured up scores, hundreds, perhaps thousands, of little things that you have done that are good. They think of them, and are glad; they speak of them to other people; some day they will speak of them to you. Look up, lift up, and forge ahead. God and man have agreed together that they will not let one good word you have spoken, one kind deed you have done, ever die. "The good that men do lives after them; the evil is oft buried with their bones;" so shall it be with you and me if we quietly, restfully give ourselves into the loving care of Jesus Christ our Lord.— In C. E. World.

FIVE BEAUTIFUL POST CARDS FREE.

To anyone who will send a list of names and addresses of boys and girls on separate sheets who may go away to college this year or next.
Address Meridian Woman's College,
Box 32 Meridian, Miss.

When in Burlington call at
T. H. STROUD'S

Store for DRUGS, SOFT DRINKS, and anything desired in drugs and Toilet Articles.

DR. JNO. H. BROOKS,
—DENTIST—

Nine years practice. Recent degree from Philadelphia Dental College and Garretson Hospital of Oral Surgery.

Horner Military School.
1851-1909.

J. C. Horner, Principal, Oxford, N. C.

Classical, Scientific and English Courses. Prepares for college, university or the government academies. Military training develops prompt obedience and military carriage. Academy 58 years old with experienced teachers. Cadets dine with the principal and ladies of his family, securing the culture of home life. Cultivates and educates. Modern buildings, perfect sanitation, wholesome fare, no crowding. Best moral, mental, physical, and social training. Shady lawn, athletic park, one quarter mile running track, 300 acres. Ideal climate, helpful environment. In the social atmosphere of refined Christian people. The town noted for over a quarter of a century as an educational center.

Books for Every Christian Home.

Do you know why you are a member of the Christian Church?
Do you understand what the church stands for and teaches?
If not, send and get a copy of the "Principles and Government of the Christian Church," just revised and greatly improved by order of the Southern Christian Convention.

Cloth binding per copy, post paid 50 cts.
Limp Cloth binding per copy, post paid 35 cts.
Paper binding per copy, post paid 25 cts.
Handsome Persian Morocco, with name in gilt $1.25.
The Southern Christian Convention also Ordered Another Book Published, PREPARING THE SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER TO TEACH. Edited by Profs. W. A. Harper, W. C. Wicker and W. P. Lawrence.
The book is neatly printed and bound and is invaluable to the Sunday-school worker, 236 pages.

Paper binding per copy, postpaid, 60 cts.
Cloth binding per copy, postpaid, 90 cts.
To Sunday-schools, paper binding 50 cts. cloth 75 cts.
Have You Read That Thrilling and Inspiring Story of His Own Life, MOTHER'S ANSWERED PRAYER, BY REV. P. H. FLEMING, D. D.?

Cloth binding, postpaid 55 cts.
All these books should be in your home. Order at once
For sale by, THE CHRISTIAN SUN, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

IT'S INTERESTING

to hear the different comments on different Shoes. All shoes have some good points; Style or comfort or service.

WALK-OVER SHOES

have all the good points; style and comfort and service and their price is the best point of all. $3.50, 4.00 & 5.00.

Foster Shoe Co., Burlington, N. C.

Dry Goods. Notions. Ready Made Clothing.

When in Burlington visit our large store, supplied always with the very best and latest styles and novelties.

Our Dry Goods are of latest designs, and our Ready Made Clothing cannot be surpassed in quality and price.

Come, See. Be Convinced.

B. A. SELLARS & SONS. BURLINGTON, N. C.

MARRIED.*Somers-Franks.

Married at the Christian Church, Burlington, N. C., by the writer on the evening of the 29th of May, 1909, Mr. Clem N. Somers and Miss Lenora Franks. The marriage was a very quiet one. There were only a few present to witness the beautiful rite. Happy congratulations and many good wishes accompany them from their many friends. The Lord bless and keep them.

P. H. Fleming.

Boone-Maynard.

At the beautiful country home of Mr. Charles G. Maynard, seven miles north of Mebane, on June 9th, was celebrated a beautiful marriage when Mr. Maynard's daughter, Mary Alice, was led to Hymen's altar by Mr. D. L. Boone, a prominent and successful druggist and business man of Durham, N. C.

The parlors were tastefully decorated, the house itself being transformed for the time being into a veritable garden of flowers and evergreens, the altar being banked with a profusion of ferns and daisies. Miss Mary Lou Pitt, one of the music teachers of Elon College, presided at the piano, rendering Lohengrin's march as the party entered the spacious parlors as follows, through an aisle of ribbons formed and held by little Misses Elizabeth Anderson and Eunice Morrow; Misses Mamie Robinson, of Charlotte, N. C., and Nannie Carlton, of Paces, Va.; Dr. Dace McPherson, of Haw River, N. C., and Mr. J. Van Patterson, of Durham, N. C.; Misses Mary Pritchard, of Chapel Hill, N. C., and Ellen Watson, of Elon College, N. C.; Messrs. Andrew Maynard, of Richmond, Va., and F. George Hannah, Jr., of Siler City, N. C. Next entered the groom with his brother, Dr. W. H. Boone, of Morrisville, N. C. Then came the bride, leaning upon the arm of her sister, Miss Tessa Maynard, maid of honor, preceded by little Miss Elizabeth Parish bearing the ring on a silver tray.

The solemn words which united the happy pair were spoken by Rev. J. O. Atkinson, D. D., of Elon College, N. C., the ring ceremony being used, while Vought's Nocturne was being rendered softly at the piano. Mendelssohn's wedding march was used as a recessional.

The bride was handsomely gowned in white duchess satin with pearl trimmings, wearing the veil caught with orange blossoms, carrying a shower bouquet of lilies-of-the-valley. The maid of honor wore white silk with black picture hat and carried La France roses. The bride's maids were dressed in dainty white lingerie dresses, carrying pink sweet peas. The groom and groomsmen were all attired in Prince Alberts, with grey gloves and white ties. Mr. Paul Morrow, of Burlington, N. C., and Mr. Sam Burch, of Durham, N. C., acted as ushers.

Just before the ceremony an elegant three course luncheon was served to the bridal party and about a hundred assembled guests.

The presents were numerous and costly, cut glass, silver, paintings, and beautiful ornaments for the home.

Immediately after the marriage the bridal party was driven to Haw River where the bride and groom took the northbound train for Atlantic City, and other places of interest.

Miss Maynard is a charming and accomplished woman, a graduate of Elon College, and will add much to the social life of Durham, where the married pair will reside. Mr. D. L. Boone, formerly of Elon College, is a member of the well-known firm of Haywood and Boone, druggists, Durham, and deserves the many compliments extended him on the happy occasion of his marriage.

E. V.

Wilkins-Speight.

At the home of the bride's father, Mr. John Speight, near Cypress Chapel, Nansmond Co., Va., May 6, 1909, Mr. Benjamin Corbin Wilkins and Miss Ava L. Speight. The young couple are very popular and have the congratulations of their many friends. H. H. B.

Bailey-Edwards.

At the bride's father's, Mr. F. A. Edwards, near Antioch Church, Isle of Wight Co., Va., May 16th, 1909, Mr. Joseph Henry Bailey and Miss Annie Marion Edwards. H. H. B.

Byrd-Mathias.

At Mr. Frank Rountree's, near Cypress Chapel, Va., May 23, 1909, Mr. Reuben H. Byrd and Mrs. Missouri Mathias.

After the marriage the parties drove to the bride's home where a sumptuous wedding supper awaited them. They have the best wishes of their many friends.

H. H. Butler.

DIED.*Pierce.

Near Suffolk, Va., June 2, 1909, Odie Olive Pierce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Pierce, aged 8 years one month and 29 days. Odie was very bright, sweet, and interesting, and was greatly beloved by the family and all who knew her. The funeral was conducted at Bethlehem Church by pastor and the remains were laid to rest in the church cemetery to await the coming of Him who said, "Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not, for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven." Mr. and Mrs. Pierce have the sympathy of their many friends.

H. H. Butler.

"The Oxford Teachers' par excellence"

JUST ISSUED!

OXFORD

Teachers' Bibles and S. S. Scholars' Bibles

With New 20th Century Helps arranged in One Alphabetical Order.

THE HELPS

The Christian Advocate, Nashville, says: "The helps are real helps. Unlike those in many of the cheap Bibles, they are not simply thrown together in hodge-podge fashion, but represent the freshest and ablest work of the foremost modern scholars."

Address Christian Sun
Elon College, N. C.

Bible is the Bible of the World."

NOW READY!

SIX NEW EDITIONS

OXFORD

Black Faced Type BIBLES

Three on Oxford White Paper. Three on the famous Oxford India Paper.

Pearl 32mo. A wonderful clear type in a small-size book.

Minion 16mo. Ready October 1907. A model hand Bible.

Brevier 16mo. Large type in small compass. "A quart in a pint measure."

"The new Bible just published by the Oxford Press is, without doubt, the finest product of the kind ever given to the public."

ASK FOR THE OXFORD EDITION

REMEMBER: That we guarantee satisfaction and sell to you cheaper than the publisher and dealers do. Our business is by mail and express and prices quoted are the prices of goods delivered to you. We can furnish you the Oxford, or the Holman Teacher's Bible at prices ranging from $1.35 to $4.00. Send for our catalogue or write us what you want. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN, Elon College, N. C.

Albright.

May 25th the death angel came to the earthly house of Mrs. Margaret Elizabeth Farrell Albright and the weary occupant entered her mansion prepared above. Sister Albright was born Nov. 27, 1834. In early life she accepted Jesus as her Savior and united with the church at Hank's Chapel, and remained a member of that church until after her marriage with Rev. H. A. Albright, which occurred Sep. 23, 1866. She then became a member of Shiloh Church. She was the mother of five children: Mrs. Sallie Albright Hattman, R. L., J. W., W. H., and Miss Ida Albright. Six years ago Sister Albright received a stroke of paralysis from which she never recovered. During her long period of waiting she was at times a great sufferer, but bore her affliction patiently, realizing that they were working for her "a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory." And at last she departed in the triumphs of a living faith, leaving abundant testimony that all was well. Funeral services were conducted from Shiloh Church May 27, and in the presence of a large number of friends her body was laid to rest under a profusion of beautiful flowers.

The Lord's blessing upon the bereaved husband and mourning children.

R. L. Williamson.

Braswell.

Sister Sarah Braswell departed this life at the home of her son, R. F. Braswell, near Leesville, N. C., May 31, '09, after a lingering illness of more than three months.

Sister Braswell was sixty-two years old, and leaves a son and two grandchildren to mourn their loss. The deceased was a charter member of Ebenezer Christian church and attended church and Sunday school regularly as long as she was able.

During her sickness she never became the least cross; but was always pleasant and kind to those about her. She spoke almost daily of that bright and happy home in the great beyond, and of death as a dream from which she would wake to enjoy the realities of a home in heaven.

May He who knoweth and doeth all things well comfort those who mourn and at last reunite them in the "sweet by and by."

Burial services by the writer.

M. J. Carlton.

Rider Agents Wanted

in each town to ride and exhibit sample 1909 model. Write for Special Offer. Finest Guaranteed.

1909 Models $10 to $27 with Coaster-Brakes and Puncture-Proof tires.

1907 & 1908 Models all of best makes $7 to $12

500 Second Hand Wheels $3 to $8

all makes and models, good as new.....

Great Factory Clearing Sale. We Ship On Approval without a cent deposit, pay the freight and allow TEN DAYS' FREE TRIAL. Tires, coaster-brakes, parts, repairs and sundries, half usual prices. Do not buy till you get our catalogs and offer. Write now.

MEAD CYCLE CO., Dept. H294 Chicago

The University of North Carolina
1789—1909

Schools of Liberal Arts	Engineering	Graduate
Law	Medicine	Pharmacy

Large Equipment, Modern Laboratories, New Library with 55,000 Vols. Able Faculty of 98 teachers. Students numbered 786. Thorough instruction. High standard. Healthful location. Expenses low for high-grade institution. For a catalogue and fuller information address

THE PRESIDENT, Chapel Hill, N. C.

To Drive Out Malaria and Build up the System.

Take the Old Standard GROVE'S PASTELESS CHILL TONIC. You know what you are taking. The formula is plainly printed on every bottle, showing it is simply Quinine and Iron in a tasteless form, and the most effectual form. For grown people and children. 50c.

Shears That Are Shears.

We want your renewal to The Christian Sun and we want you to have a pair of our Shears. They never wear loose. They never get too light for heavy cloth. They never get too lose for thin cloth. They always make a straight clean cut, the full length of the blade. Guaranteed for five years.

Remember These Shears Are Self Sharpening

THE ADJUSTABLE TENSION SPRING DOUBLES THE USEFULNESS OF THE SHEARS

A FIVE-YEAR GUARANTEE CERTIFICATE ACCOMPANIES EACH PAIR OF THESE SHEARS

SUPPLIED AND GUARANTEED BY HAMILTON SILVER CO. FACTORY B MUNCIE, IND.

SIDE VIEW SHOWING TENSION SPRING

HOW YOU MAY GET THE SHEARS FREE

Just go to your neighbor who is not a subscriber and get him to subscribe for The Christian Sun one year for $1.50. Send us the $1.50 and the name and 10 cents for mailing, packing, etc., and you will get the shears.

Or Go Out Among Your Neighbors and Get

three renewals of The Sun for a year. You may count your own renewal as one of the three. Send us the $4.50 and you will get the shears, or if you have already paid your subscription since January 1, 1909, send us two renewals with $3.00 and you will get the shears. Lose no time. This offer may last for only a few days.

THIS PAIR OF SHEARS RETAILS FOR $1.00. WE GUARANTEE THEM TO BE AS RECOMMENDED.

OPEN TO SUMMER BOARDERS.

Elon College Boarding Hall.

The New Young Ladies' Dormitory and Boarding Hall at Elon College, N. C. has been opened for Summer Boarders who desire a nice, quiet, healthful place for a few weeks' rest.

The only attractions offered:—

1. Complete rest and quiet.
2. The finest pure, cold water.
3. A beautiful shady campus of 25 acres.
4. The College Library and Reading room open to guests free a part of each day.
5. Lawn Tennis, Croquet, Base Ball, "Marbles," "Horse Shoes," and "Mumble-peg."
6. Two livery stables, and good roads.
7. Near-by points: Alamance Battle Ground (9 miles), "Pyle's Hacking-Match" Grounds (5 miles), Burlington (4 miles), Graham (6 miles), Greensboro (17 miles), Raleigh (60 miles).
8. The river and other fishing places from 3 to 5 miles away.
9. Good wholesome fare—fresh milk and butter from the College dairy, and fresh vegetables from the College gardens.
10. On Southern Railway, 17 miles east of Greensboro, and on the main Automobile road from Raleigh to Greensboro and western parts of the State.
11. Telegraph and Express offices, and Long-distance Telephone connection with all points.
12. Splendid, new three story building, clean, neatly furnished. Building supplied with hot and cold water. Bath and toilet rooms on each floor.
13. Very low rates—$15.00 a month, $5.00 a week, $1.25 a day. In short, an ideal place, in the Piedmont Section, for those seeking rest and recuperation, rather than the usual Summer Resort diversions and amusements.

Open from June 10 to August 17. For further particulars address

Rev. J. W. Wellons.

Elon College, N. C.

The North Carolina COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE AND MECHANIC ARTS.

The State's college for vocational training. Courses in Agriculture and Horticulture; in Civil, Electrical and Mechanical Engineering; in Cotton Milling and Dyeing; in Industrial Chemistry. Why not fit yourself for life by taking one of these courses? Address

D. H. HILL, President,

West Raleigh, N. C.

Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Is paying out and investing in both Virginia and North Carolina more than it receives from these States.

New business in Virginia, 1908,
$2,147,800

Larger than any other company.

Gain in insurance in force in Virginia, 1908,
$1,374,975

60 per cent more than the next largest.

T. ARCHIBALD CARY, General Agent for Virginia and North Carolina,
Richmond, Virginia.

During 1908

(As in previous years)

We want you in our business, for we have what you want in your homes—the very best, most substantial and handsome furniture at bottom prices. We are also the undertakers.

Burke Furniture and Coffin Company

BUKINGTON, N. C.

DO YOU WANT TO GO TO COLLEGE NEXT YEAR?

Then Here is Your Opportunity.

We want to help you: You can help us, and by so doing help your self.

READ OUR OFFERS.

To any young man or young woman, approved of good moral character and recommended by his or her pastor, sending us 300 new subscribers to The Christian Sun for one year at $1.50 each, by Sept. 1, 1909, we will give a scholarship in Elon College for the scholastic year of 1909, and 1910—one full school year. This scholarship will include Board, Furnished Room, Tuition, Matriculation and Library Fees. (Board and Room at either of the college dormitories, or with private family as individual may prefer):

Or, For 225 New Subscribers $1.50 each, Board and Room at any place individual may select; or Board, and vacant room at Young Men's Boarding Club, Tuition Matriculation and Library Fees.

For 180 new subscribers at $1.50 each, Tuition in Literary Branches and in Music, Matriculation and Library Fees.

For 140 new subscribers at $1.50 each, Board and Vacant Room at Young Men's Boarding Club.

For 120 new subscribers, Tuition, Matriculation and Library Fees.

This is a golden opportunity to any young man or young woman desiring to go to college next year who hasn't the means to go upon. By doing the work you give the individual subscriber full value received for his $1.50 and he in turn helps you in a most estimable and worthy manner. You can ask your friends to help you in such a work as this—and they will be glad to help.

Further, If you work you shall not lose out. For, if you fail to get the required number we will give you a liberal cash reward on all work done. See your Pastor at once and ask him for a letter to send along with your own to us. Write today. No time to be lost.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

FINE POST CARDS FREE.

A Big Package Sent to all Our Readers Who Write at Once.

To any reader of this paper who writes immediately and incloses 2 cent stamp we will mail a set of three most beautiful post cards you ever saw. Ten very finest floral, birthday and Motto, card, all different, in exquisite colors, silk finish, beautifully embossed, etc., for only ten cents. Thirty cards all different 25 cents. With each order we include our plan for getting 50 choice cards free. Address The Art Post Card Club, 703 Jackson St., Topeka, Kansas.

—Dr. J. H. Daugherty, a physician for the insane at Elgin, Ill., has himself become insane through sympathetic suggestiveness.

The Christian Sun.

In Essentials—Unity, in Non-Essentials—Liberty, in All Things—Charity.

ESTABLISHED 1844.

GREENSBORO N. C., WEDNESDAY, JUNE 23, 1909.

VOLUME LXI. NUMBER 24.<sup>a</sup>

Life in Knowledge.—Many see only meat and bread, a larger salary and an easier life, in more knowledge. That is the poorest side of learning. To know is to live; to learn is to live more largely. Every useful and valuable thing learned opens a new door into life's larger mansions. A frog hasn't much life, and a snail has less, because neither has been anywhere, seen anything, acquired any knowledge. To them the world is a flat surface measuring a few square yards. Measured from the mollusk up, the world grows larger, and life looms greater, in proportion as knowledge and learning increase. "And this is life eternal," said an inspired one, "that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent." To know, then, is not only to live; but to know the right One is to live eternally—is to have a fountain of living waters springing up within.

The Beautiful. Ralph Waldo Emerson was not far wrong when he said, though we travel the world over to find the beautiful, we must carry it with us or we find it not. There are those who carry the beautiful with them. And they find beauty everywhere. Green fields look gay to them; clouds are propitious, and sunshine is joyous to them. Each day brings some new pleasure, and no night is without its solace and comfort.

When the charity relief workers go among the poor and needy of Boston and find somewhere a taste and care for the beautiful, they know that all hope is not gone out of the life. Even a potted plant on the window, a withered flower on the table, has carried immediate help to many a home in that city, because where there is yet a sense for the beautiful there is a soul worth saving, and possible to be saved. The one object of beauty yet held in esteem shows what one would do if one could.

Robert Browning was rightly weighing life when he said that it was not what man does which exalts him, but what man would do. What we strive for lifts us up, elevates, edifies, exalts. Reaching out for the beautiful, striving to create it round about us, see it, feel and realize it, that brings us to find beauty everywhere, and to have in our hearts the beautiful, and to shine, as beautiful souls, to those round about us.

Tobacco and Other Necessaries(?).—That inimitable humorist, and incessant smoker, Samuel Clemens (Mark Twain) always includes tobacco in his menu of the "necessaries of life." This, of course, the humorist does to make his sentences funny, and the reader laugh. But what Mark Twain does in fun, the United States Government does in all seriousness. Tobacco in its worst form—cigarettes—is allowed as a part of a man's ration. Surgeon Norton, of the Missouri, gives it out that his crew, of seven hundred men, is allowed as a three months' supply: 1,500 books of cigarette paper, 1,200 pounds of smoking tobacco, and, for those who do not prefer to roll their own make, 37,000 cigarettes. The crew is limited to this when at sea, though of course there are other sources of abundant supply when the men are in shore.

It is no surprise that the Surgeon General of the Navy has recommended that the use of cigarettes be forbidden to all persons, under twenty-one years of age, in the naval service.

The men behind the guns, we should think, need a steady nerve, but we have never yet heard that cigarettes helped either a man's nerves or his mental faculty. Experts and scientists are everywhere agreed that cigarette smokers are unable in all mental, moral, and physical contests to compete successfully with non-smokers.

GOOD ROADS.

One of the acts of a general nature that was passed by the General Assembly of 1909, relates to good roads and should be the means of greatly prompting and stimulating the construction of improved roads in North Carolina. This act carries with it an appropriation of $5,000 and, as stated in the act, "the object and purpose of this appropriation shall be to enable the North Carolina Geological Board to advise with the township and county authorities in building and improvement of the public roads, by sending to the township or county a competent road engineer, who will assist them in locating their improved roads, advise them as to the best road to build and how to build it, and also give advice relating to the best kind of bridge to be built in connection with the improvement of any road. The Geological Board, through the State Geologist, may make inquiries in regard to systems of road building and management throughout the United States and make investigations and experiments in regard to the best methods of road-making and the best kinds of road material, and shall disseminate such knowledge by lectures to be given in the different counties and by preparing, publishing and distributing bulletins and reports on the subjects of road improvement, and shall also gather and tabulate information and statistics on road building in North Carolina and disseminate the same throughout the State."

As will be seen from the above, it is now possible for the Geological Survey to hire engineers who are competent road builders and take up with the various counties and townships who are contemplating the construction of improved roads, what is the best road to build, giving consideration to location, and how to build it. On account of the small appropriation, it will not always be possible for the Geological Survey to send an engineer into a county or township as soon as the request for such assistance is received, but these requests or petitions for engineering assistance will be filed as received and the engineer sent to them in the order of the receipt of their petition.

—Ten persons were killed and forty injured in a wreck on the Chicago, Lake Shore and South Bend Railway at South Bend, Ind., Saturday p. m., June 19.

—Patrick Calloun, a descendant of Patrick Henry, a corporation magnate of San Francisco, has been on trial five weeks and one month for offering a bribe,—possibly the longest continued trial in our criminal records. At the end of the period named the jury declared it hopeless for them to agree upon a verdict and were dismissed, there being a mistrial.

FROM THE FIELD.

PORTSMOUTH LETTER.

It is beginning to look as if the new church will be built this year. The houses upon the site are being torn away and we expect to have the lot clear by the first of July. The ground for the church will be broken as early in next month as possible. We are planning to have the contractor ready for his work when the site is ready. Since the church decided, definitely, to build this year we have been pushing the building proposition as rapidly as possible. Our object is to have the house closed in before cold weather.

At this time we do not know what will be the cost of the building we are proposing to erect. It will in all probability not be less than $20,000. The design will be entirely different from the one that appeared in The Sun about two years ago. The purpose of that was simply to furnish a general idea and call attention to the proposition in a definite way. The new design, prepared by our architect, is considered a very attractive one by all who have seen it.

We are not pushing our canvass among the churches of the Conference at this time, but let no one despair of our coming. We will be around in due time and appeal to you for help. I assure you if ever a people needed help we do. As soon as we get the building on the way, then will come the "tug of war" for funds and we sincerely trust the people will be so thoughtful as to send in donations without personal solicitation. To finance this proposition through is going to require the united effort of the Conference. We greatly appreciate what has been done by many in responding to the appeals we have made. They have greatly aided in the work and made it possible for us to begin the building at this time.

We are sincerely trusting that no one feels that he has given too largely, or even large enough, for it is very evident that we shall have to ask them to give again. The Lord's work must be done, and shall we not count it a privilege to have as large part in it as possible? In our canvass we have secured in cash and subscriptions to date about $3,100.

Since our last report we have visited the following churches and secured in cash and subscriptions as follows: Suffolk, $1159.94; Holy Neck, $114; Holland, $56.76 and Newport News $109.50.

Cash Acknowledgements.

Previously acknowledged on this canvass, $1043.23.

T. E. Brickhouse, $25.00; W. H. Parron, $5.00; J. M. Darden, $10.00; Geo. T. Rawles, $20.00; Mrs. H. A. Crockett, $5.00; Harry Stewart, $10.00; C. F. Stewart, $5.00; F. L. Portlock, $25.00; R. E. Rogers, $5.00; T. O. Morrison, $5.00; C. L. Gibson, $5.00; R. H. Morrison, $5.00; Mrs. Thomas Clements, $4.00; R. A. Hyslop, $25.00; B. D. Crocker, $25.00; W. T. Gordon, $5.00; G. W. Bain, $3.00; Luther Moss, $1.45; J. S. Persons, $5.00; W. D. Holland, $5.00; Lorenza Bailey, $5.00; I. P. Brinkley, $5.00; Mrs. W. E. McClary, $1.00; Richard Klages, $5.00; T. W. Artman, $1.00; J. A. Winslow, $5.00; W. H. Barnes, $5.00; O. S. Smith, $10.00; Mrs. H. Woodard, $1.00; D. C. Lewis, $1.00; Basket Col. (Suffolk), $5.44; Miss Florence Harvey, $5.00; Leonodus Harrell and wife, $2.00; J. E. Vincent, $25.00; W. J. Holland, $8.50; R. C. Norfleet, $1.00; Mrs. B. J. Beale, $1.00; Mrs. Julia Cross, $1.00; Mrs. H. K. Rawles, $1.00; E. S. Norfleet, $1.50; E. H. Darden, $1.00; C. T. Cross, $1.00; Dr. D. L. Rawles, $1.00; C. C. Copeland, $1.00; Master Henry Lee, $1.00; Basket Col (Holy Neck), $35; Pressly Magee, $1.00; J. T. Rawles, $10.00; I. A. Luke, $25.00; R. H. Reidel, $5.00; Basket Col (Holland), $76; B. R. Dougherty, $1.00; R. L. Springfield, $1.00; W. F. Byrd, $1.50.

Perez (Norfolk Co.)

The work at this church has been moving on very nicely during the past seven months of the conference year. The brethren always keep the finances in good condition, so that the pastor does not have to perplex his mind with that side of the church work. This is something that any pastor knows how to appreciate. As a usual thing the financing of the church is the phase of the work that is most difficult and embarrassing to the pastor. The laymen should run the finances of the church, so that the pastor may give his thought to the preaching of the Word, and not be perplexed in mind as to how the financial obligations shall be met.

We are much indebted to Bro. J. E. Hall for his thoughtfulness in reference to our church auditorium. It was he that saw the need of some necessary repairs in the papering, etc., and at his own expense had the work done. After Bro. Hall had done his work so well the other brethren thought they would like to do something too, so they proceeded to put on a few extra touches at their expense. We have, now, one of the most attractive auditoriums to be found among our country churches. We are expecting to have our revival services begin first Sunday in August.

June 13, '09.

J. W. Harrell.

Langdale, Ala.

I was licensed fifth Sunday in June, 1909, to preach the gospel, and have taken hold of the work as I felt impressed by the spirit of God to do, praying unto Him for knowledge and for power, studying His holy Word and meditating both day and night. God is blessing me in the work. I have charge of Bethany, my old home church, a good strong church. I also have a fine work in Hogansville, Ga., on the first Sunday and Saturday before in each month. I am never at home on Saturday and Sunday except the fourth which is my meeting day at Langdale. I will begin a series of meetings in Hogansville Saturday before the first Sunday in July, and begin at Bethany Saturday before second Sunday in August. May God bless every effort that is being put forth for the upbuilding of Christ's Kingdom here on earth. I appeal to the church to remember me in prayer, and especially pray for me in my ministerial work.

Geo. M. Holder.

Langdale, Ala.

Bethlehem.

Last Saturday, June 12th, we held our third Quarterly Meeting at Bethlehem. All seemed to have the good spirit and the work of the church was done in good feeling and much love, which we trust will all redound to the glory of God and to the building up of his cause at that place. Those who were present expressed by vote a desire to build a larger and a more comfortable house of worship which we hope will be commenced, some time in the near future. As a larger house is greatly needed we trust that all of the members and friends of Bethlehem will put forth an effort and make some sacrifice for the much needed and worthy cause. First, give us your prayers, and then give us your means, as much as you may feel, after you have earnestly prayed over the matter, that the Lord would have you to give and the work will go on and soon be completed. Do this, my beloved brethren, and after the work has been completed you will be proud of it and you will give God all the glory. There was a committee appointed consisting of five, who will look after the interest of the cause. They will, as soon as possible, visit the members and friends of the church to see what they are willing to do toward building a new house of worship. Look out, brethren, I expect you will see your pastor coming with the committeemen.

Our protracted meeting was appointed to commence the 2nd Sunday in Sept. We are looking forward for a gracious revival of religion and I trust the members will pray and get fully prepared for the work that the Lord may bless us abundantly.

Sunday was Children's Day. The congregation was very large and the program was very beautifully and interestingly carried out by the young people with much credit to themselves and to those who trained them for the occasion.

In behalf of Sunday school we want to thank all those who took any part whatever in arranging and getting up the program.

Cypress Chapel.

Our protracted meeting will commence, the Lord willing, the fourth Sunday in July at Cypress Chapel. We are looking forward for a good meeting there, and hope that the church will fully prepare for the work that the victory may be theirs. H. H. Butler.

SOUTH NORFOLK.

The South Norfolk Christian Church celebrated its fifth anniversary May 30th with three splendid services. The morning hour was given over to the Sunday school. This was a delightful service. Misses Rena Humphries and Gladys Hanbury had charge of the musical part of the morning program. Five very beautiful and appropriate songs were sweetly sung by members of the school. Mr. C. W. Baines, of the State Sunday School Association, was speaker at the morning hour. He delivered one of the most practical Sunday school addresses that it has been my privilege to hear. His theme was "Sunday School Conquests," and his plea was a conquest for co-operation, a conquest for numbers, a conquest for souls.

In the afternoon, 3:30 o'clock, Col. J. E. West, of Suffolk, delivered the anniversary address, which was well received by the large congregation present. The Christian churches in this vicinity were well represented by both pastor and people. A goodly number from the Methodist and Baptist churches of the place were also present, and all seemed to enter heartily into the service, and to rejoice with us on our fifth birthday.

Rev. H. W. Elder, of Richland, Ga., was with us and added to the inspiration of the occasion in relating some of his experience in church building in his own conference—having made an average of one new church each year for sixteen years.

Rev. M. L. Bryant, of the Berkley Christian Church, preached a very pleasing and eloquent sermon at night. The combined offerings of three services amounted to $165.14, by private and personal soliciting, $37.48 was afterwards added to this amount, making the total offering $202.62.

For some time the Ladies' Aid had been at work and saving and they were able to increase this amount $102 more; making the final standing on the day of note paying $304.62. This enabled us to pay off some current expense accounts, reduce our indebtedness to $1,000, and give the pastor a broad, pleasing smile that will not, easily, come off.

We have property worth nearly $4,000 with only $1,000 indebtedness. I think this doing very well in five years, especially when you consider the panic through which we have passed and our small numeric and financial strength. But the membership has worked faithfully and sacrificed nobly, especially is this true of our ladies. The Apostle Paul never had more faithful helpers than the ladies of the South Norfolk Christian Church. Such faithfulness is an inspiration to the pastor as well as a great help to him in his work.

J. O. Cox.

COLUMBUS, GA., LETTER.

The recent session of the Sunday school convention held in Girard was an eminent success. While the representation was not as large as we desired, this want was largely supplied in having present others whom we did not expect. Rev. L. E. Smith, LaGrange, Ga., Rev. J. H. Milam, Abanda, Ala., Prof. S. E. Denton, Clayton, Ala., Bro. C. A. Hinton, Norfolk, Va., were in our midst during the session. These brethren by their presence and earnest, thoughtful addresses added greatly to the interest and success of the convention.

In the past it has been difficult to maintain a sufficient interest in the convention of this, the Georgia and Alabama, Conference, to keep the work going. In saying this no offense to any one is intended, but it is the writer's only abiding purpose here, with an abiding interest in this work, to declare in the name of the Sunday schools that this condition ought not to exist—it has no right to exist and the people of the conference ought to see to it this time that the convention is not allowed to perish merely from the lack of interest and support. It is the writer's opinion, however, that the convention of this conference is on a firmer basis and a more progressive platform than formerly. If this be true, there is a greater reason to hope that our schools in the future may do more definite, aggressive work. The people of the conference need to come together in the building up and support of the Sunday school convention that the individual schools may be awakened and aroused to more earnest endeavors along the various lines of the Sunday school work, than which there is no more important field connected with the church. Let it not be said any more that it is difficult to maintain the Sunday school convention here.

Last Sunday night, at the close of our regular services, we received three members into the church in Girard. Our work at this place is in a more hopeful condition than before our revival services. The Sunday school is almost three times as large as it was eight months ago and there has been a steady growth since the early part of the summer, the latter being a rather unusual occurrence for the summer, I am told. The church is about up, with their pastor's salary. Conference appointments have not yet been raised, but will be in hand soon.

Rev. H. W. Elder is this week engaged in a series of meetings at the Waverly Terrace Church. The inclement weather has been a hindrance so far. Yet, those who have attended the services have seemed very deeply interested.

An unusual delivery wagon came our way a few days ago, there being no charge made for the good things left in our pantry. Mrs. Alice Kimborough, a most loyal member of our North Highlands Church, out of the goodness of her heart remembered her pastor in this substantial way, for which we are truly grateful. G. O. Lankford.

Columbus, Ga., June 16, 1909.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION.

The Sunday school Convention of the North Carolina and Virginia Christian Conference will hold its twenty-seventh annual session with the New Lebanon Sunday school, Rockingham County, North Carolina, on Tuesday and Wednesday after the second Sunday in July, 1909. It being the 13th and 14th of the month.

Superintendents see to it that delegates are chosen at once to attend. Select only those who will go and let us by a hearty cooperation of ministers, superintendents, officers and all others interested make this our most successful session.

A program is now being prepared and will appear in these columns next week.

Representation is one delegate for each twenty-five enrolled.

Further notice concerning entertainment and the meeting of delegates at railroad station will be published soon in the Christian Sun.

J. F. Cobb, Secretary.

Elou College, N. C.

NOTES AND PERSONALS.

—Her hosts of friends will be pleased to learn that Mrs. W. A. Harper, who has been under treatment at St. Leo's hospital, Greensboro, for two weeks is doing well, and the prospects for her speedy recovery are favorable.

—The Christian Church, Main Street, Suffolk, Va., shows up well on a postal card, in colors, which we received through the mails. The hand of the painter, as well as that of the printer, is busy in our time, pleasing the eye and enlightening the mind.

—Palm Street Church, Greensboro, has decided to put in quartered oak circular pews, much of the money for the same having been raised and the seats ordered. Pastor W. C. Wicker conducted a series of meetings at this church last week resulting in several conversions.

—In our editorial on Edward Everett Hale last week we said he was first of all a minister of the gospel and clung to the pastorate to the last. In an interview given on his eighty-fifth birthday Dr. Hale himself said: In my case my vocation was first, second and last that of a minister of the Gospel. My avocation has been literature. I would be sorry not to be remembered first as a minister of the Gospel. I have always been glad that I chose my profession as I did."

—Prof. W. A. Harper's "How to Teach the S. S. Lesson of July 4th" in this paper is a masterpiece and must be read and appreciated by very many who are not teachers. The idea is well brought out as to how teachers may seize a popular date and make it of weight and worth in teaching a lesson. No teacher who reads The Sun may follow the suggestions of Prof. Harper, but every teacher who reads these suggestions will certainly find some ideas advanced that he or she can certainly follow with profit.

—Rev. H. G. Cowan, who came into the Christian Church a few years since from another church or so, and who was sent later by our Mission Board to Montana, has left the Christian Church and united himself with "The Pentecostal Church of the Nazarene." Of the local Christian church of which he has been pastor for some time he writes: "Except for a Sunday school and a C. E. Society, which are carried on feebly, the church here may be said to be defunct." We sincerely trust, therefore, that our good brother may be more successful in his new church relationship than he seems to have been in the Christian Church.

—In its issue of June 10 the New York Christian Advocate, in the department of its book reviews, says: "The Teacher-Training Course of the Southern Christian Church presents a condensed guide for the Sunday school teacher as a result of its committee's specialized work. In 'Preparing the Teacher' suggestions are given as to the equipment which a teacher needs in mind and motive as well as in method. A brief summary of courses of study in Bible History, Biblical Geography, Church History and Bible Text is rapidly sketched. (Christian Sun Print. Paper, postpaid, 60 cents.)"

—No, Mabel, we most vehemently aver that we did not write, indite, cut, carve, print, or paint that great L. L. D. after Dr. Edward Everett Hale's name on first page of The Sun last week. We did write LL. D., but never L. L. D. (which is awful) after any man's name, living or dead. By the way, Mabel, did you know that in correcting one error behind a linotype machine many larger errors in the same line may occur than that you have corrected? A linotype, you know, is like some men you have read about; if you will not let it have its way in some pet folly or foible it will go off and commit more sly mischief and madness than can be atoned for or repaired in a whole year. Ever see man—I say men now, not women—of that disposition? I have heard tell of such men.

—We learn with deepest regret and sorrow of the death, at Norfolk, Va., Wednesday night, June 16th, of Dr. Legare Hargroves, of Driver, Va. The funeral was by Rev. N. G. Newman, and the interment in the Suffolk, Va., cemetery. Dr. Hargroves was a man of quiet dignity, gentle manners, high morals, willing charity and great worth. Our recollection is that he was a member of Berea Church, Driver, and we had regarded him for years as a Christian gentleman of splendid character. His patience was inexhaustible and his physical and mental endurance wonderful. He was devoted to his calling, that of a physician, and was widely patronized and beloved. There was grief in the editor's home when the news of this untimely taking off reached us. While our two girls were sick with continued fever last summer, how very anxious Dr. Hargroves was, how patiently he toiled and how skilfully he wrought for their recovery. They learned to love him then as the great hosts of those had to whom he ministered for those several years.

—Bro. J. W. Short, Chipley, Ga., is working for one of The Christian Sun's scholarships in Elon College next year. We understand that Bro. Short is a worthy young man and is seeking to prepare himself for the ministry. Rev. G. O. Lankford, of Columbus, Ga., has caught so well our own idea in making this offer to deserving young men that we reproduce here a few lines from a personal letter just received from Bro. Lankford:

"My Dear Brother Atkinson:

"Recently I received four letters for The Sun and will send the names and money to Bro. J. W. Short, Chipley, Ga., to assist him that much on his way to Elon next fall. I expect to do all in my power to assist this young man. By the way, it seems to me that your proposition offering a scholarship carries with it this idea: Help the young man and that means a benefit to him now; helping the church paper next year, and a blessing to the world in the years that are yet to be. It gives the young man a chance to prepare himself for life's work, and at the same time places or offers to place The Sun in homes where little is known of the Christian church, perhaps winning subscribers for life. This most liberal offer on your part ought to be the means of carrying several worthy young men to Elon, and I trust the plan may prove eminently successful."

—Attention is called to the advertisement of the State Normal and Industrial College, Greensboro, N. C., which appears in this issue. Every year shows a steady growth in this institution devoted to the higher education of the women of North Carolina. During the past year the McIver Memorial Building was erected and used for class purposes. This addition to the material equipment of the college greatly increased the efficiency of the work. The college last year had a total enrollment of 979 students.

—The most prominent tuberculosis specialists in the country agree that alcohol will not cure consumption. Dr. S. A. Knopf says: "Alcohol has never cured and never will cure tuberculosis. It will either prevent or retard recovery." Dr. Frank Billings, of Chicago, and Dr. Vincent Y. Bowditch, ex-presidents of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis; Dr. Lawrence F. Flick, of Philadelphia, and Dr. Edward L. Trudeau, of Saranac Lake, the founder of the anti-tuberculosis movement in this country, are all of the same opinion.

—The number of deaths during the four years of the Civil War was 205,070. During the past four years 800,000 deaths have resulted from tuberculosis alone in the United States.

ELON COLLEGE NOTES.

The Elon College Summer School was organized Sunday, June 6th, with Mr. D. W. Brown for superintendent, Mr. Moses Atkinson as his assistant, Mr. W. W. Eldér for secretary-treasurer, Mr. J. W. Patton pianist, and Mrs. J. L. Foster chorister. The enrollment was one hundred and twenty. Prayer meeting has been changed from Wednesday evening to Sunday evening. Junior C. E. has its meeting at the usual time and place.

Mr. and Mrs. Jones have moved into the West Dormitory for the summer and have opened it up for boarders. Those who wish an ideal place free from all excitement could do no better than to spend their vacation here. Plenty of good pure well water, fresh vegetables, cool, clean, airy rooms, and every surrounding that could tend to coax one to health and vigor.

The following is clipped from the News and Observer of Saturday, June 12th: At a luncheon given yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Frances Ramsey, in Monroe, announcement was made of the coming marriage of Mrs. Ramsey's daughter, Miss Elise, and Mr. Hugh McLean McAlister, of Lumberton. The marriage will take place at the Presbyterian Church in Monroe at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday evening, June 30th. Invitations will be issued next week.

Misses Mary Lou Pitt and Nannie Carlton are guests at Dr. Watson's. Miss Laura Wilteer is with Miss Allene Patton. Miss Mamie Hobby Witt, Mrs. Moses Atkinson, her sister, Dr. W. H. Boone and his sister, Mrs. Avent, have been with their parents, Rev. C. A. Boone and wife.

Prof. V. C. Pritchett, who has been in Greensboro since commencement, is in town and will leave soon to spend the vacation with his parents near Altamahaw, N. C. He is making his arrangements to take work the coming year in some university to better prepare himself for his chosen work.

On Wednesday, June 9th, at Stainback, N. C., Miss Mary Maynard, class of 1903, was married to Mr. Dee Boone, son of Rev. C. A. Boone, of this place. Mr. Boone is a successful druggist of Durham, N. C., where they will make their home.

Mr. J. W. Barney is at Clearville, Pa., where he is conducting a very successful school—training teachers for the better performance of their duties. Mr. Barney is well prepared for his work. He is thorough, honest, and devoted to the work of teaching in which he is experienced.

Mr. J. John Lawrence and three children, of Mineral Wells, Texas, are at West Dormitory for the summer. Mr.

Lawrence, who is a brother to Prof. W. P. Lawrence, will join his family in a few days.

Mrs. O. L. Sapp, of Greensboro, spent the day with Mrs. Moffitt last Wednesday.

In a private note from Prof. W. A. Harper he says Mrs. Harper is improving quite rapidly and the hope is expressed that her stay in the hospital will not be a long one. The professor will return to Elon on business in a few days.

Notice of the meeting of the North Carolina and Virginia Christian Sunday School Convention with the church at New Lebanon, Rockingham County, N. C., appears elsewhere in this issue. The time is July 13-14. Bear time and place in mind.

Dr. Moffitt requests all ministers, superintendents, and friends of Elon College, who know of any boy or girl, young lady or gentleman, who contemplates going off to school at present or in the near future, that the name and address of such persons be sent to him and he will be glad to furnish them with a catalogue of Elon College.

Among visiting students this week we have had Mr. R. P. Coble, class of 1909, Miss Maggie Maie Pitt, who has been in Gibsonville with Miss Lois Davidson, and Mr. C. E. Durham, of Chapel Hill.

Prof. Amick will be at Elon on Tuesday, June 22d. He will come prepared to go to work. This will give us one more good strong man in the teaching force and a man experienced in gaining students and holding them.

The final reports will soon be out announcing the degree of efficiency reached by all. These may not and never have been entirely satisfactory to all, but the general standing is higher than usual. The teachers think it's because of the Easter examination which cut the long term from Christmas to June in two.

It may be rather early to predict what the next school year has in store for us, but from the requests for catalogues and letters asking for information the coming year bids fair to be our best and most largely attended. The fields to be covered by the various professors have not yet been definitely fixed but will be announced in the Sun as soon as it is decided. J. T. C.

—Every thought which genius and piety throw into the world, alters the world.—Emerson, Essay, Of Politics.

A remarkable offer by one of the leading ear specialists in this country, who will send two month's medicine free to prove his ability to cure Deafness, Head Noises, and Catarrh. Address Dr. G. M. Branaman, 1100 Walnut Street, Kansas City, Mo.

DO YOU WANT TO GO TO COLLEGE NEXT YEAR?*Then Here is Your Opportunity.

We want to help you: You can help us, and by so doing help your self.

READ OUR OFFERS.

To any young man or young woman, approved of good moral character and recommended by his or her pastor, sending us 300 new subscribers to The Christian Sun for one year at $1.50 each, by Sept. 1, 1909, we will give a scholarship in Elon College for the scholastic year of 1909, and 1910—one full school year. This scholarship will include Board, Furnished Room, Tuition, Matriculation and Library Fees. (Board and Room at either of the college dormitories, or with private family as individual may prefer):

Or, For 225 New Subscribers $1.50 each, Board and Room at any place individual may select; or Board, and vacant room at Young Men's Boarding Club, Tuition Matriculation and Library Fees.

For 180 new subscribers at $1.50 each, Tuition in Literary Branches and in Music, Matriculation and Library Fees.

For 140 new subscribers at $1.50 each, Board and Vacant Room at Young Men's Boarding Club.

For 120 new subscribers, Tuition, Matriculation and Library Fees.

This is a golden opportunity to any young man or young woman desiring to go to college next year who hasn't the means to go upon. By doing the work you give the individual subscriber full value received for his $1.50 and he in turn helps you in a most estimable and worthy manner. You can ask your friends to help you in such a work as this—and they will be glad to help.

Further, If you work you shall not lose out. For, if you fail to get the required number we will give you a liberal cash reward on all work done. See your Pastor at once and ask him for a letter to send along with your own to us. Write today. No time to be lost.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEPARTMENT

—of the—

SOUTHERN CHRISTIAN CONVENTION.

W. P. Lawrence, Editor, Elon College.

HOW TO TEACH THE S. S. LESSON
FOR JULY 4, 1909.

A Few Suggestions.

Antioch to Philippi.

Acts 16-15.

Golden Text.—Come over into Macedonia and help us: Acts. 6,9.

Review.—Review Paul's First Missionary Journey, or, if you assigned it last time, call for it now, Acts 13:1 to Acts 14:28, and fill in omissions, preferably by questioning, as a last resort by statement. Call for the note books; make suggestions; have one of them read.

Approach to the Lesson.—This being the "patriotic season it may be well, if you teach a class of "big boys," to secure their attention by connecting this lesson with the fourth of July idea. Tell them that Paul planted a larger kingdom than Washington and that the noblest patriotism is to help a man or a nation to higher ideals. Such work the missionary does, and we are to study the Second Missionary Journey of the world's greatest missionary.

Connecting Links.—After the Jerusalem Council, Paul and Barnabas, accompanied by Judas and Silas, returned to Antioch and delivered the findings of that body. Silas abode at Antioch, but Judas returned to Jerusalem. After some time Paul proposed to Barnabas to revisit the Churches of their First Missionary Journey, but this and the other intervening events come under the assigned work, Acts 15:36-41 and Acts 16:1-5, which call for now. Fill in omissions and make explanations. Also call for assigned work on Silas and on Timothy (Timothy).

Chronology.—In 49, after the Jerusalem Council and the journey back to Antioch, Paul and Barnabas preached there before Paul began his Second Missionary Journey in the same year. This journey extended from 49 to 52.

Geographical.—Locate on the map or draw a map of your own, placing on it: Syria, Cilicia, Derbe, Lystra, Iconium, Phrygia, Galatia, Asia, Urysia, Bithynia, Troas, Macedonia, Samothracia, Neapolis, Philippi, Thyatira, and tell the class enough about these places and countries to make them live. Have the pupils draw maps and locate these on the same and on them trace the course of the missionaries. "Preparing the Teacher," chapter IX, Book One, will be found very useful on this point.

Incidental Instruction.—The custom of Jews in cities, where there was no Synagogue, of going out on the bank of rivers to pray on the Sabbath day is well known and will call for explanation here. The reason seems to be that it furnished ample water for their ceremonial ablutions. A word in explanation will also be needed in reference to the authority of the household brought out in verse 15. The head of the family could choose the religion of the household as well as direct its temporal affairs; this was done by example and leadership, not by compulsion. The freedom of woman will also claim attention, which is so foreign to the common opinion of the supposed restrictions under which they eked out their existence. The place of purple, and selling of purple garments in oriental life, will need a passing word. Of course, Lydia sold other articles besides those purple in color, just as a jeweler sells more than diamonds today.

The Lesson.—Our today's lesson falls naturally into two divisions, which write on the board as they are developed in the teaching: 1. Paul Revisits his Old Field, verses 6-10. Find through what region they had gone, where they were forbidden to preach, to what region they next came, whither they assayed to go, why they did not go, to what place they came, what Paul saw at it, what was said to him, what he immediately proceeded to do.

2. Paul Enters Europe for Christ, verses 11-15. Find by what means they left Troas, who joined him and Silas there, whither they sailed the first, the second day, to what city they then came, the importance of this city, what they did on the Sabbath, where the prayer-meeting was held, who were in attendance at this meeting, what particular woman is mentioned, her occupation, what is said of her, how she received Paul's message, what rite she submitted to, what is said of her household, what courtesy she extended the missionaries.

Review the Lesson by the Topic Method.

For Class Discussion.—The contention between Paul and Barnabas. Paul's companions on the two missionary journeys. The divine leadership in Paul's Career to date. Christian work in the New Testament in which the women are first.

Truths and Their Application.—1. Prayer meetings have not changed much from 49 to 1909, for the women today make them up mostly. What would the church do without the dear, good women, anyway? The place of holding this prayer meeting is also suggestive. Consider the iniquity to which river sides are today dedicated. How much better it would be, were they even yet used for prayer meetings, at least on the Sabbath. Is there a suggestion here for you?

2. We do not know how the Spirit told Paul not to preach in Asia nor to go into Bithynia, and to pass by Nysia, but we know that the Spirit came to him. The beauty of it is that we can have this same divine leadership, if we are willing to pay the price, communion with and submission to God.

3. Many people consider that patriotism consists in fire works, drink, and boisterous conduct. Many others consider that the highest test of patriotism is to be willing to die for one's country. But the noblest patriotism is to live, not for one's country only, but for the wide, wide world, to do whatever lies in one's power to elevate the world's ideals, to beautify its living and sweeten it. There is no better way to do this than through Christian missions. No true patriot can oppose missions, either home or foreign. Are you a true patriot or are you a provincial partisan, with narrow view, with horizon close at hand? How, then, should you celebrate the Fourth of July?

Manual Work.—Besides drawing the map and locating the places suggested above, have the pupils record in their note-books to be filled out at home, the following outline:

Life of Paul (Saul) (Continued).

49. Returns to Antioch, Acts 15:30. Tarries there, Acts 15:35.

Proposes the Second Missionary Journey, Acts 15:36.

Separates from Barnabas, Acts 15:37-39.

Chooses Silas, Acts 15:40.

Visits his own field, Acts 15:41-16:5. Takes Timothy (Timothy) as a companion, Acts 16:1.

Visits various places, Acts 16:6-8. Sees the Macedonian vision, Acts 16:9-10.

Is joined by Luke, Acts 16:10.

Goes to Philippi, Acts 16:11-12.

His first European convert, Acts 16:13-15.

Assignments for Next Time.—Ask one to be prepared on life of Mark after Acts 15:37, another on Luke's association with Paul from Acts 16:10 to the end; a third on the life and character of Barnabas; a fourth on Philippi in the Acts; a fifth on Christ and his treatment of demons from the four gospels, using concordance; a sixth on Acts 16:16-25.

W. A. Harper.

Elon College, N. C.

—Wickedness takes the shorter road, and virtue the longer.—Latin proverb.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson for Sunday, June 27, 1909,
TEMPERANCE LESSON. Rom. 13:1-14.
Golden Text: "Put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ." Rom. 13:14.

The lesson text was written from Corinth, just before Paul's final journey to Jerusalem, with alms collected from the various churches he had founded. Being hindered from going to Rome, he writes to the Christians in that city setting forth the Gospel as the power of God unto salvation to every one that believes to the Jew first, then also to the Greek.

In the beginning of the section devoted to the lesson Paul comes to the principle which must control the Christian in his relation toward all men, that of love. The debt of love is one which he must ever be paying but can never discharge. Not alone does it prevent the kind of difficulties which arise from rivalry, but it goes to the very root of all kinds of evil. It sums up all moral precepts in one. When anyone asks what he ought to do, he has only to apply the test of love. He must do what he would be glad to do for those very dear to him. One in whose heart this spirit of love persists has no need of laws.

As a motive for adopting this principle of life the apostle urges the nearness of the day of salvation. He meant, of course, the day of the second coming of Christ. The gloomy night of trial is to be followed by a bright morning. It is to be a serious business. The Christian must cast off all sloth, lay aside every evil deed, cease from self-indulgence and determine to make the character of Christ his own.

In this the drunkard fails—the drunkard—that is, any man who is drunk so long as he is drunk, whether it be once a week or once a life time. Drunkenness is an insane combination of cunning secrecy and noisy publicity. Drunkenness is emphatically one of the works of darkness. The saloon of course is lavishly lighted, yet the doors and windows are heavily screened and curtained. He is then among his own kind.

Facts Teaching Temperance.

1. Personal Liberty. President Eliot, of Harvard, says the collective good in excluding saloons from Cambridge justifies the abridgment of personal liberty.

2. Social Demands. The practice of total abstinence by President Taft surely ought to silence the argument of those who claim that social life demands social drinking.

"A man managing a flying machine cannot afford to risk his self-control or mental clearness by any indulgence in alcohol."—Wilbur Wright.

When the sale of liquor stops, general business improves. There is a reason—money that buys wet goods can not buy dry goods.—S. S. Times.

G. W. T.

CHRIST AND HIS FRIENDS.

The friendliest life the world has ever known came to an end in the great ingratitude of the cross. In our fragmentary records of this life we see our Lord ever in the center of a changing group of men and women, walking with the little company of His disciples, accepting hospitality, seeking solitude only for communion with his Father. There was an attraction in his presence which drew the crowd and he had always a response for the individual need and question. The cry of the heart for a sympathetic understanding seemed nearer satisfaction when he spoke than ever else in the experience of those who met him. We have the witness of his immediate followers of what that friendly life meant to their souls. And in the stories which have come down to us we catch glimpses of other unrecorded friendships—like that with the three in Bethany, of which we know so much less than we desire. These friends of his were not all well-to-do householders like Martha, or even reputable folk. By his own witness, his enemies called him a friend of publicans and sinners.

The significant element in these personal relations is that Christ's presence seemed always to become either an uplifting helpfulness or a sentence of judgment. When sinners drew near and learned to love and trust him, they ceased to be sinners. Zaccheus was converted in the boughs of a sycamore tree and Levi in the publican's booth. And the religious leaders of the people—or many of them—heard him only to be condemned and to go on to greater evil. The charm of the presence of Jesus did not depend on a lax toleration of questionable ways. He was a light of self-revelation for the hearts of men. To be with him was to learn the eternal difference between right and wrong in one's own life and not in a book of theories. And that light of knowledge, as we have seen, resulted either in an uplifting repentance and new purpose of right living, or in a growing hatred. No man can really live with Christ and be a neutral in that war. He ends by giving rest of heart; but he finds it needful to begin by tearing up the roots of our blind and careless self-satisfactions. And he does this by no violence of reproach, but simply by revealing us to ourselves as we really are.

We have much to learn from the manner of Christ's friendship. We are too apt to presume upon intimacy for neglect of the consideration which we show to strangers and to forget at home the tact with which elsewhere we handle delicate situations. We may well study, therefore, Christ's intimacy with Peter and the few glimpses we have of his relations with his mother, after he had left the home for public ministry. And we may study his tact and consideration to advantage also in our present experience under the guidance of the Holy Spirit. As he respects our individuality and rather leads than compels, as he is ever waiting to respond to our advances, as he is patient with our weakness but uncompromising on all questions of true and false, of right and wrong, as he seeks rather to enlighten than command—so we should strive to be like him in our relations with the friends whom he has given us and with himself in the high and reverent friendship to which we are invited by his love.—Phesbyterian Standard.

MANY A MICKLE MAKES A MUCKLE.

On June 8 Charles Miller retired from his post as a waiter at the Astor House with a fortune of $200,000. For thirty-three years he presided over the southeast corner of the north lunch counter in the hotel rotunda, and in that time has made personal friends of two generations of bankers, merchants and lawyers. It has been estimated that the lunch checks he handed out over the counter to customers represented a value of nearly two million dollars. His wages were not large, but he was thrifty and made it a point to save up his "tips." He owns three apartment houses which he erected in Brooklyn, and other plots of real estate which he bought in years past. Take care of the pennies and the dollars will take care of themselves. The harrowing condition of many persons in old age is frequently the result of carelessness. There are two kinds of thrift: thrift and spendthrift. The waiter sailed on Saturday with his wife and his sister. They will spend a month touring through Ireland and will then settle down for the remainder of the summer in County Kildare, where he was born nearly sixty years ago.—N. Y. Christian Advocate.

—According to the U. S. Agriculture report, June, just issued, there is only about 95.6 per cent of the area planted to cotton this year as last, there being a decrease of about 1,452,000 bales.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

Founded 1844 by Elder Daniel W. Kerr.
Organ of the Southern Christian
Convention.

Entered at the postoffice at Greensboro, N. C., as second-class matter.

Terms of Subscription.

One Year .....$1.50
Six Months ..... .75
Four Months ..... .50
Advertising rates given on application.

J. O. Atkinson, Editor and Publisher.

Important Notice.—As readers will see, The Christian Sun is now published at Greensboro, N. C. The office of publication there is 302½ South Elm Street. Our editorial office, however, remains at Elon College, N. C., to which all letters and communications to the Editor should be addressed, as heretofore.

THE YOUNG PEOPLE'S MOVEMENT.

This line is written, not as a word of pessimism or despair, for we never despair of any good cause or thing. But from the heart there shall come this utterance—call it a wail if you wish—of friendly fear and wistful warning. Unless somewhat be done to stem the tide, a tide already too stubbornly setting, our our young people's movement dies from the pains and pangs of birth. A funeral must needs be where a christening should have been.

What is the matter, young men, young women, advocates and adherents of this good measure? Are ye all dreamers, revelling for the moment in the delusion of a phantom, whiling a few hours together with a mirage called a convention, only that the dreams may be flavored with fickle fancy?

Have the young men and young women of our good Christian cause no practical ideas, notions, plans which make for their common weal and an organized effort for Christian uplift and betterment? If they have such ideas, notions, plans, where are they and what of them?

Let us have it out in our hearts and hearing now, and then have done with it forever: No set of Resolutions, Motions, By-Laws, Constitutions ever drafted and lodged in a secretary's book ever moved mortal men, organized or affected them, for better, for worse, in life or in death. Men act by Resolutions, from Motions, with By-Laws, under Constitutions. These are in themselves the very deadest things that ever came to this vile world of disease and Shall our new resolutions and such, recently written in black upon the white page of our record book, be left to wane and die here? My brother, they were already dead before they were written there, and shall be dead forevermore, until, by God's favor, some man or men shall breathe into their cold clay the breath of life and bid them live and move and be.

What has become of our convention fervor? (Or must it be named fever?) A Young People's Movement? Well, how many young people are moving now from the fact and favor of it? Who has hold of the Young People's Movement? And is he or she moving and in what direction? We invented and adopted a motto: A Christian Endeavor. Society in every church, and a teacher-training and organized class in every Sunday school of the Southern Christian Convention.

Have men and women gone home to organize, plant, and foster these? Let us hope? But who can tell how many. How are they organized, where and when? This is a serious matter, my brother, and one that should have some deep concern and abiding interest. A Young People's Movement? Whither moving?

THEIR VERY BEST.

It is easy to say we have done our very best. It is sometimes said all too quickly; or if not, the very best was not even very good. Even the brewers and whiskey dealers are now declaring that they "are doing their very best." That at least, is encouraging. Hear them. Mr. Liebmann, the president of the annual meeting just adjourned speaks: "We are doing our very best to bring about a betterment. * * * We have of late years been particularly outspoken and uncompromisingly aggressive against disreputable places." Well, now, that sounds good. And it is good. There just isn't enough of it. Mr. Liebmann's liquor men's "very best" is just not quite good enough.

"Disreputable places." There are several of these yet for the saloons to operate against. If all depends, we suppose, upon the point of view. We suppose the low dive is the disreputable place for the saloon. But what has made the low dive? And what has made men and women and boys possible and fit for the low dive? Nothing else under the high heavens than the saloon itself. The saloon breeds, fosters, shelters, and supports the low dive.

But why go to the low dives? If the saloon itself is not a place of disrepute we don't know. What, has not that yet fallen into disrepute which makes sober men drunken, honest men dishonest, truthful men liars, and successful men failures, outcasts, and paupers? Has not that fallen into disrepute which robs the home, steals away the heart, and damns the soul? If that which does these things and a thousand things worse and more than these, is not disreputable, then our moral age has not carried very far. That which breeds vice and crime and misery must ever be and remain of ill-repute. The saloon does this.

If the brewers mean to do their very best they will have to do better than to attack the low dive: they will have to shut up the saloon itself. That alone is the very best they can do, both for themselves, and for this weak, wavering, struggling humanity of ours.

AN ANNOUNCEMENT.

The Executive Committee of the Young People's Convention was entrusted with the duty of electing a Field Secretary and Editor of the Young People's Department in The Sun. The committee has elected Prof. W. A. Harper, of Elon College, and, after mature deliberation, he has consented to undertake the work in connection with his other duties at the College. This means that the young people's movement is not dead, but will begin to live and to move. Prof. Harper is an electric dynamo. Whatever he consents to undertake, goes. Mark it: You will hear of the work; you will find our Christian Endeavor Societies increasing in influence and multiplying in numbers; teacher training and organized classes in Sunday schools will spring up where now they are unknown. And the department in The Sun will sparkle and glow under his busy and magnetic pen. No better choice could have been made, and the committee has acted wisely and well.

OBSTACLES AND OPPORTUNITY.

God does not send obstacles to defeat and confuse us, but He gives strength to defeat them, and turn them to good purpose, when we call into play our courage, and ask God to help us in the conflict. A kind Father did not mean to be ungenerous or unjust in giving to us a sharper tongue or a harsher tone and temper than to others. These are our weaknesses, it is true, and are doing much to keep us down. But God is willing to help us turn these elements of our weakness into mighty factors of strength and energy. If our weakness is greater than that of others God has the larger, richer blessing in store for us when we yield to Him and ask Him to rescue us. God can—and He will—turn our weakness into strength when we are willing to let Him. Our failure is His opportunity.

SUFFOLK LETTER.

On June 12th I conducted the funeral service of a little child for Rev. H. H. Butler who had a church meeting at Bethlehem at the same hour, and the localities were ten miles apart. It was the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd W. Harrell. The father is the son of Deacon Joshua Harrell of Cypress Chapel and the mother is the daughter of the late Major James N. Saunders, and the child was named James Saunders Harrell after his maternal grandfather. The child was born January 13, 1908, and died June 11, 1909. A babe of less than two years may not be much to the stranger, but it is the largest thing in the world to its parents. He filled their heart, their home, and their thoughts. Nothing so completely fills parents as their only child. When the disciples asked Jesus, "Who is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven?" Jesus called a little child unto Him, and set him in the midst of them, and said, Verily, I say unto you, Except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven. Whosoever therefore shall humble himself as this little child, the same is greatest in the kingdom of heaven." Those who are the greatest in the kingdom of heaven should be the greatest in the home and in the world; and they really are, because they contain all the possibilities of the race with the least of the evils of the race. It is not surprising, therefore, that parental hearts are crushed and that every thought and feeling magnifies the importance of the child, when it is taken away. God himself attaches supreme importance to the child. That "Cath loves a shining mark" is no fiction, for when the mind develops too rapidly the body is retarded in its normal development and is more liable to disease and death. It will take heaven to satisfy this father and mother, for heaven contains their child; thus the death of a sweet babe often enlarges the heart to embrace heavenly thoughts and hopes in a new and holier sense. Innocent babyhood does more to purify human thought, chasten human passion, dignify human conduct, and sanctify human affection than any other factor in human experience. It is the child that makes home and it is the child that makes heaven a home.

Another Confederate soldier has fallen! Joseph Oliver Lancaster was born in Nansmond County, Va., December

4, 1846 and died in Suffolk June 12, 1909. He was the son of Henry George and Martha Sarah (Gwathney) Lancaster, who came from Isle of Wight Co. to Nansmond.

He entered the Confederate service April 21, 1861, by joining the "Nansmond Rangers" commanded by Captain William J. Arthur. The company was first assigned to the first Virginia Infantry; then to the third Infantry; as Co. F. He re-enlisted in Richmond, April 21, 1862, and the regiment was then assigned to Kemper's Brigade, Pickett's Division, Longstreet's Corps; and this company took gallant part in all the subsequent movements of the Army of Northern Virginia. Mr. Lancaster shared in thirteen general engagements with his regiment, including Yorktown, Williamsburg, Hagerstown, and Gettysburg, and the memorable charge of Pickett's Division at Gettysburg. Ten days before Lee's surrender at Appomattox, he was captured at Amelia Court House, sent to Point Lookout, and held for five months, receiving his discharge in August, 1865. Company F. went into the battle of Gettysburg with only 25 men, having been in ten great battles before that great fight. Of this number of 25 who entered the battle of Gettysburg 8 were killed, 9 wounded, 7 captured, and only one, Dr. Robert E. Riddick, who died at Whaleyville last year, came out of the bloody fight untouched. His brother William was with him in this battle, was wounded, taken prisoner, and died in the hands of the enemy. The "Nansmond Rangers" had four captains: William J. Arthur, C. C. Phillips, A. P. Gomer, and Dr. P. H. Arthur. Captain A. P. Gomer is the only surviving member of that Company who went through the entire war.

J. O. Lancaster was married first to Sarah E. Griffin at Berea Christian Church, Nansmond County, Va., Dec. 21, 1870, and she was the mother of five children and died March 7, 1879. Only one of these children, Joseph O. Lancaster, who resides in Norfolk, survives.

He was married a second time to Miss Nannie Lee Matthews of Nansmond County, January 7, 1892, and there are three children, Charlie, Margaret, and Rosa, all living in Suffolk. They have been living in Suffolk about three years and all members of Christian Church.

He was a good man, a good soldier, a good husband and father, and a good friend.

He entered the army in his sixteenth year contrary to the wishes of his parents and this was one of the regrets of his life, because they passed away before his return from prison; but that act was the act of a lad influenced by the spirit of war that broke down the normal conditions of civil society.

The war battered down his boyhood; poverty continued the blows after the war; and when prosperous times came to others, his strength was too far gone to join the procession; hence his whole life was a struggle. But it is all over now and he went to his rest in the early morning when others were going to their work, and that rest is eternal.

W. W. Staley.

A WRONG THEORY.

It is maintained by a large number of Christian people that it is one's privilege to interpret the Bible to suit himself. They say that one is not obliged to accept any other person's exposition of the Scriptures. It is to be admitted that there is a measure of truth in such a view, and yet this is not altogether a safe one. It is indeed true that one is not obliged to be governed by the interpretations which some people give to some passages in the Bible, for those interpretations may be radically erroneous, and in many instances they are so. It is also true that it is the Christian's privilege to read and study the Bible without dictation from other people; but it is not true that a Christian has a moral right to put such constructions upon words and passages of the Bible as may harmonize with some doctrine or opinion which he holds, and which is contrary to the real teaching of the Bible, and it, therefore, false. But this is just what is being done by very many professedly Christian people, and it largely accounts for the existence of many different denominations in the land, and for the wide differences of belief in doctrine and religious practices. By wrong interpretations of the Bible, it is made to appear to teach things which it does not teach, and does not warrant anyone to believe nor teach. What is to be said of the man who would interpret the laws of the land to suit himself? We say that the one who would assume such a privilege would be outside his rights. We say that it is preposterous to give a criminal the privilege of interpreting the law which he has violated, according to his own view of it. If he could have this privilege he would so construe that law as to make it appear in his favor, rather than against him; and this is just what many unconverted people are trying to do with the Bible, but it is in vain.

C. H. Wetherbe.

THE CHRISTIAN ORPHANAGE
DEPARTMENT.

Board of Trustees.

Rev. J. O. Atkinson, D. D., Pres., Elon College, N. C.

Rev. I. W. Johnson, Sec., Suffolk, Va.

Hon. W. H. Carroll, Burlington, N. C.

L. M. Clymer, Greensboro, N. C.

C. D. West, Newport News, Va.

Elijah Moffitt, Esq., Asheboro, N. C.

G. S. Watson, M. D., Elon College, N. C.
Treasurer—Prof. J. T. Cobb.

Superintendent—Jas. L. Foster, Elon College, N. C.

CHILDREN'S CORNER.

The Band of Cousins.

Jas. L. Foster, Sec., Elon College, N. C.

"He that hath pity on the poor lendeth unto the Lord, and his good deed will He pay him again."—Prov. 19:17.

Reported last week $3,388.39

Dues:

E. Tyree French .....$ .10

Annie P. Way ..... .10

Harvey L. Vincent .... 1.00

Will Vincent ..... 1.00

Monthly S. S. Offering:

Suffolk, Va. .... 17.32

Union, Va. .... .50

New Hope, Va. .... 3.20

Shallow Ford, N. C. .... .56

Mt. Auburn, N. C. .... 1.32

Wake Chapel, N. C. .... 2.30

Wentworth, N. C. .... 2.37

Rosemont, Va. .... 1.01

Catawba Springs, N. C. . 1.95

Special Offering:

W. I. Beasley, Garner, N.

C. .... 1.00

M. H. Hayes, Wise, N. C. 2.00

Amt. 22nd week ..... 35.73

Total .....$3,424.12

My Dear Children and Friends:

This has been a busy week—in wheat and oat harvest, planting and cultivating. It's hard work to handle wheat and oats in hot weather but it has to be done. Our wheat did not ripen well; we hope to make half enough to bread us this year. We have some fine oats this year from the seed given us by Bro. Phillips last fall.

Bro. M. H. Hayes, of Mt. Auburn Church, N. C., found a two dollar bill and could find no owner, so he sends it to Uncle Jim and asks that it be used. Yes, Bro. Hayes, we can use it and just 200 more like it right now would enable us to pay all our bills to date, including all the furniture we have recently bought. May you be fortunate again, Bro. Hayes, with more 00's added. We are very grateful to our faithful and liberal Sunday schools this week for their help.

With very best wishes to those who have so liberally helped us and with hope that others may come to our relief in the discharge of all bills by July the first, I am,

Yours for the work,

Uncle Jim.

Lacey Springs, Va., May 11, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:

I am enclosing ten cents for the Orphanage. I am fond of other little folks, especially of those who need some one to love and help them.

I enjoy my new home in this beautiful section and among these kind people.

Very truly yours,

E. Tyree French.

Your first letter, little man, and amount received and duly credited. Hope you'll prove a faithful member and when you are a man, do great things for the little ones who need friends so much.

Sanford, N. C., June 12, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:

I will write my letter and send my dime for June. With love for you and the cousins,

Your niece,

Annie Pearl Way.

Are you quite busy these days, Annie Pearl? Tell those little folks of yours we would like to get a line from them some time.

Holland, Va., June 14, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:

I am five years old today, and I send one dollar for the Orphanage. Will's birthday was over a month ago, but he forgot to write, so he sends one dollar now.

Our Orphanage pigs are growing finely. We are trying our best to make them outgrow papa's.

Now Jack and Will and little sister are out of school and we have a fine time fishing. Papa put a nice little trap in the pond for us, and Jack and Will can take the fish out themselves.

Your little nephew,

Harvey Leonard Vincent.

My, how our boys would love to go fishing with you! They caught an eel the other day and were as proud as if they had found a gold mine.

NATIONAL EDUCATIONAL ASSOCIATION, DENVER, COLORADO,

July 5-9, 1909.

Prof. F. C. Griffith, State Director, Salisbury, N. C., has selected the Southern Railway via Asheville, Knoxville, Louisville, and St. Louis, as the official route to Denver and return for the above occasion, passing through the mountains of Western North Carolina and the Blue Grass region of Kentucky.

Prof. Griffith, and a number of the delegates, will extend their trip to Seattle, Washington, taking in Yellowstone Park enroute, returning via San Francisco, Los Angeles, Salt Lake and Chicago.

Through Pullman car to leave Goldsboro at 2:05 p. m., July 1st. Circulars showing full itinerary of the route will be furnished on application.

For further information, and Pullman car reservations, please write

R. H. DeButts,

Traveling Passenger Agent, Raleigh, N. C.

THE NORTH CAROLINA STATE NORMAL AND INDUSTRIAL COLLEGE.

Maintained by the State for the women of North Carolina. Four regular courses leading to degrees. Special courses for teachers. Fall session begins September 15, 1909. Those desiring to enter should apply as early as possible. For catalogue and other information address

J. I. FOUST, Pres., Greensboro, N. C.

READ SOMETHING DIFFERENT.

The Greensboro Daily News, the new State paper, is worthy of a trial. Associated Press service, special correspondence, clean, newsy, liberal. One year $6.00; three months $1.50.

GREENSBORO DAILY NEWS,

Greensboro, N. C.

A HOME FREE At Denton, N. C.

We propose to give away (no cost, whatever) on Dec. 24, 1909, to some person who desires to settle in the best town in North Carolina, a beautiful home-holding lot in the beautiful and rapidly-growing town of Denton, N. C.—absolutely free. Denton is one of the loveliest, most aggressive—in short, one of the "coming" towns of North Carolina. It is the temporary terminus of the Piedmont Railway, which connects it with the main line of the "Southern," at Thomasville, and will soon push through to Wadesboro, where it will connect with the "Seaboard" and "Coast Line." A moral, cultured town, with a splendid school system, and attractive church advantages in the heart of the N. C. furniture-making belt—and backed by a splendid farming country. Already has 7 wood-working factories, prospective hank and cotton mill, 10 retail stores, 3 churches and more to be built. Population has doubled itself twice in the last 24 months. Centrally located in the midst of the hardwood belt, has three daily mails, and connected by telephone with the neighboring towns—30 miles from Troy; 27 miles from High Point; 22 miles from Salisbury, 22 miles from Asheboro, 20 miles (by Piedmont Railway) from Thomasville; 20 miles from Lexington; 13 miles from Wilkes; the great water-power development. Now we are giving away, absolutely free, a beautiful home-holding lot, to some one who wishes to make his or her, or their, home in this beautiful town. All readers of this paper and all other first-class people invited. None but the best people invited to reply. Write at once for particulars. HUB LAND COMPANY, Lexington, N. C.

To Drive Out Malaria and Build up the System.

Take the Old Standard GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC. You know what you are taking. The formula is plainly printed on every bottle, showing it is simply Quinine and Iron in a tasteless form, and the most effectual form. For grown people and children. 50c.

Raleigh Letter.

The Hillsboro Street Christian Church continues its work with interest and good success. The prayer meetings are very interesting of late. We hold our church prayer meeting on Wednesday night of each week. We hold our cottage prayer meeting on Monday night of each week. The Sunday school is making fairly good progress, but we have that same old problem, shortage in teachers. I wonder why this is a problem in our schools all over the country? I think we have the ability in most of our congregations. It must be that the ability is not fully realized or that the persons having the ability are unwilling to make a little personal sacrifice for the good of the Kingdom. I have thought of the problem from another point of view. I believe that sometimes the teacher lives such a worldly life that he feels unworthy to handle the word of God in the presence of his class on the Lord's Day. It seems to me that a deeper consecration on the part of most Sunday school teachers would help the cause a very great deal. It is a grand mission to teach a Sunday school. It is a labor of sacrifice and love, nevertheless, the reward is great. The work itself is grand and every work for Jesus Christ and the Church will abide and have its reward. Our school will suffer a great loss through the summer on account of the vacation of a number who attend from the colleges and day schools here. We lose the work of two teachers, one officer, and about twenty scholars.

The children of our Sunday school are making preparation for Children's Day. The service will be held the fourth Sunday. We have many very sweet children in the congregation. Some of our parents are making no small mistake in that they are not sending their children to the Sunday school. I fear that the day will come when all such parents will regret their present conduct in these matters. I do not predict any great future for the boy who has never attended Sunday school. Most all of the successful men of our day can be classed as Sunday school men. When I think of these parents who of choice fail to put their children in the Sunday school these words come to me, "It is high time to awake from sleep." Surely the parent neglecting the Sunday school and suffering the children to do so, must be morally asleep.

Our school will take an outing some time in the very near future. It is not fully determined where we will go. A number of places have been suggested, but the committee has not made final report.

It was our pleasure to attend the service of dedication at Greensboro 1st Sunday. It was a great day of joy for me as one of the former pastors to take part in the delightful service. Dr. Atkinson preached the sermon. The church is now free of debt and is in excellent spiritual condition. The second church of Greensboro is also out of debt and there will be another day of rejoicing after awhile. Let the good work go on. Who will build the next church? Where do we need to build one? If some one will suggest a real good place I think we can build. It is getting to be somewhat easy to build a Christian church wherever we have half a chance. I wonder what town in North Carolina would like to have a Christian church? If anyone is interested why not write to the Home Mission Board and ask for what you want. If you do not see what you want, then ask for it. Any good town in North Carolina can get a Christian Church if the town wants the church and will ask for a church. Why doesn't the town of Chapel Hill ask for a Christian Church? It is a great seat of learning. We have many Christians there and some very good ones too. Our friends would be glad to have us enter this important town. I believe the good people of Chapel Hill can get a Christian church if they will ask for one.

I regret very much that I could not attend the Elon College commencement. Sick ness in my home prevented. I am delighted to read of the good things that happened there. Glad to learn that the Convention for Young People was a pronounced success.

L. F. Johnson.

---

FIVE BEAUTIFUL POST CARDS FREE.

To anyone who will send a list of names and addresses of boys and girls on separate sheets who may go away to college this year or next. Address Meridian Woman's College, Box 32 Meridian, Miss.

---

The North Carolina
COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE AND
MECHANIC ARTS.

The State's college for vocational training. Courses in Agriculture and Horticulture; in Civil, Electrical and Mechanical Engineering; in Cotton Milling and Dyeing; in Industrial Chemistry. Why not fit yourself for life by taking one of these courses? Address

D. H. HILL, President,
West Raleigh, N. C.

BUCKROE HOTEL, BUCKROE BEACH, VIRGINIA.

Lower Chesapeake Bay, with unobstructed view, magnificent scenery, surf bathing, fine fishing and beautiful drives. Those seeking rest and quiet by the sea will find this an ideal spot. Under the management of the Newport News and Old Point Railway and Electric company. Write for rates and booklet.

---

MEDICINE.

We prepare as good medicine, the very best medicine that the finest, freshest, most potent drugs and chemicals will produce when carefully and skilfully compounded by an expert prescription man—just such medicine as your physician means that you should have, medicine of the utmost possible effectiveness. May we prepare your medicine?

FREEMAN DRUG CO.,
Burlington, N. C.

---

SPRING TIME.

The time for gardening is here and you need garden tools. We can supply you at lowest prices.

Poultry Wire.

The best assorted stock in the county. Four different styles and weight.

Come and See.

Remember plumbing and bath room fixtures, a speciality. You will find us on Davis St. third door from Post office.
BURLINGTON HARDWARE CO.

---

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup

Has been used for over SIXTY-FIVE YEARS by MILLIONS of MOTHERS for their CHILDREN WHILE TEETHING, with PERFECT SUCCESS. It SOOTHES the CHILL, SOFTENS the GUMS, ALLAYS all PAIN; CURES WIND COLIC and is the best remedy for DIARRHOEA. Sold by Druggists in every part of the world. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Guaranteed under the Food and Drugs Act, June 30th, 1906. Serial Number 1698. AN OLD AND WELL TRIED REMEDY.

---

BIBLES FOR SALE.

I am selling, in Alamance County, Wilmore's New Analytical Reference Bible, the most thorough and complete Book for all who wish to study and understand the Bible on the market today. Sold only by subscription and I shall be glad to show it to you. Thousands of copies are being sold. Alfred Apple, Jr., Elon College, N. C.

---

RAISE MONEY FOR YOUR CHURCH.

We offer you an easy method. Send us a photograph of your church or your pastor, and we will send you 500 high grade post cards, with photograph on each card, and scripture verse if desired. Sell these cards at 10 cents each. When sold, remit us $20.00 and keep the balance. You can do this in a week. We will return photograph.

LAKE SHORE SUPPLY CO.,
225 Broad St., St. Joe, Michigan.

THE QUEEN OF ITALY.

Several accounts of the terrible ruin wrought in sunny Italy by the recent earthquake have already appeared in the Methodist journals, and need not be repeated here. The cities of Messina and Reggio on the Straits, with their 250,000 inhabitants, have been destroyed, and innumerable thriving villages on the coast and in the Calabrian Mountains have been blotted out.

The picture is very dark, but it is not all shadow. There are a few relieving rays of light, perhaps none so beautiful as the action of the King and Queen. Not only did they at once contribute largely toward the relief of the sufferers; they were among the very first to go to the distressed regions to see that everything possible was being done to mitigate the horrors of the catastrophe.

Queen Elena has always a tinge of sadness on her beautiful face, even when it is lit up with a smile. She shrinks from publicity, and is the very opposite of Margherita of Savoia, the Queen Dowager, an Italian to her finger tips.

The young Queen is a true daughter of the mountains, and in her home in Montenegro lived a simple life and learned how to help the poor and, when necessary, to discharge even the duties of a perfect nurse to the sick. She is highly cultured, a skillful musician, and an amateur painter. But court life, with its pomp and display, has no attractions for her. She is a model of domestic virtue and devotion to her husband, her children, and everything that tends to the good of her adopted land. Victor Emmanuel adores his wife; and there is no sweeter, purer home in the land than that of Italy's King and Queen.

At first the "upper ten" looked coldly on this domesticity, but this apparently silent, timid Queen does not lack strength or courage. She is a fearless rider and at home in danger. Opinion has veered round; goodness has not only challenged but won recognition, and in Italy today there is no personality so beloved as the young Queen, whom the people delight to speak of as "our Regina Elena."

Her girl life in the simple court of Montenegro was a good preparation for the duties she has lately been called to discharge. When her noble husband decided to go to the scene of the disaster, she elected to accompany him in order that she might do something to comfort the suffering.

Many are the stories told of her touching sympathy and practical kindness. The doctors were astonished to find that her fingers, for which the violin has few secrets, were equally at home in binding up a wound or mixing a medicine for a sufferer.

The King, when walking among the ruins of Messina, was met by a shivering, wounded fugitive; and he took off his coat and wrapped it round the poor, trembling wretch. And Queen Elena was equally kind to the poor, helpless women and children who were brought to the hospital on board the war ship in which she traveled. She is said to have returned to Rome with her traveling trunks empty, everything having been given to those who had no garments. Even her cambric handkerchiefs had been made into bandages, of which, owing to the number of wounded, the supply ran short.

An English admiral visited the ship to pay his respects to royalty. He found it difficult to recognize the Queen in her working dress and nurse's apron; and when he was assured that it was really Queen Elena, he advanced in courtly fashion to kiss her hand. Smiling, she put her hand behind her and protested that she could not allow it, as she was really then binding up a wound. She worked night and day, either with the doctors in the operating theater or in her own room cutting out garments and making clothes for the destitute refugees.

The Queen on one occasion was very near being seriously hurt. As it happened she escaped with slight bruises. It occurred thus: Among the women on board was one whose distress at losing her husband and children affected her reason, and she was on the point of jumping overboard. The Queen was close by and struggled with the poor, dazed sufferer till help was forthcoming.

What adds nothing to the charm of Queen Elena's goodness is that she does nothing for display and dislikes nothing so much as to hear the people praise her for her gracious deeds. It is with her love and duty, and her true womanly instinct shrinks from words of adulation. The King is very much like her in this matter. When they were about to enter the station at Rome to leave for the South, several who had heard of their departure hurried to the station to say good-by. One in true Italian fashion began to say to the King how the country would applaud his self-abnegation in going, etc. Victor Emmanuel with a dry smile cut him short, telling him not to talk nonsense.—The Foreign Field.

Thoughts are so great,—aren't they, sir? They seem to lie upon us like a deep flood.

—George Elliot.

THE MEANS OF GRACE.

Many helps have been provided for those who are trying to live a spiritual life. But they will do no good except to those who make use of them. To grow in grace it is necessary to use the means of grace. Many professing Christians are indifferent to these institutions of religion. They not only become weak and sickly themselves, but also hinder the progress of religion in the community. Many have no conscience about this matter. When admonished that they are neglecting duty, they laugh at the admonition, and count it a joke. But it is no joke. It is an exceedingly serious matter.

Many years ago a young minister went into the country one day to call on a member of his church who was ill. She belonged to a highly respectable family and was herself highly respected in the community, but she had been quite worldly and very negligent in her attendance upon the ordinances of religion. The pastor saw that she had but a short time to live, and asked her about her faith and hope in Christ. She said she had faith in Christ as her Saviour, and believed she had a hope of heaven; but she said she was exceedingly sorry that she had neglected her religious duties for several years. As she uttered these words her voice trembled, her lips quivered, and tears rolled down over her pale face and fell on the white pillow. It was a picture never to be forgotten.

Everyone is near the valley, and none knows how near he may be. Will it be a dark valley, and will the river be chilly? To those who make good use of the prayer meeting, the Bible, the Lord's Supper, and other holy ordinances there will be no dark valley and no cold river. Not that outward ordinances will save us, but the proper use of them will greatly enrich the soul with refreshing grace. But to those who neglect these spiritual helps the valley will be dark and the waters cold and chilly.

A young minister who took his congregation on his heart, labored diligently to persuade them to attend prayer meeting and other religious services. His utmost endeavors failed. He brooded over his failure, and in that depressed state of mind became an easy mark for any fatal disease that might come along. He became ill and died. At the funeral the minister who spoke said that this young man was a victim of grief and sorrow over his failure to persuade the people to attend upon the means of grace. It is a little thing for a minister to lie down at night with a heavy heart, and toss upon his pillow because he has failed to lead the people to do their duty; but it is not a little thing when the Great Shepherd of the sheep who died for us on Calvary is wounded in the house of his friends, crucified afresh by his own people, and put to an open shame before the world. This is what happens when those who are known in the community as disciples of Jesus frame vain excuses for neglecting the means whereby they might become strong in the Lord.—N. Y. Christian Advocate.

NOTICE OF APPOINTMENT OF STANDING COMMITTEES OF THE SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION OF THE NORTH CAROLINA AND VIRGINIA CHRISTIAN CONFERENCE.

During the closing of last year's Convention, we were so pressed for time that the President did not appoint the Standing Committees. I stated that the appointment would be made and announced after the close of the Convention, accordingly, some days after the Convention adjourned the President appointed a full list of Standing Committees and sent same to Prof. J. T. Cobb, Secretary of the Convention, that the appointment might be embodied in the proceedings of the Convention. It did not come to my attention until recently that this omission occurred in the printed proceedings. On making enquiry of the secretary as to this omission, he informed me that the list had never reached him. Below will be found list of committees as appointed.

The time for the Convention has almost arrived, and we very much regret that the committees have done practically no work, because of the error above referred to. As President of the Convention, I shall be very glad if the committees as here appointed, will do everything possible in the few weeks that remain to further the work and prepare suitable reports for the coming Convention. The committees are as follows:

Executive Committee, consisting of the officers of the Convention: D. Jennings Sipe, President; Rev. J. W. Holt, First Vice-President; Prof. N. F. Brannock, Second Vice-President; Prof. J. T. Cobb, Secretary; W. H. Honeycutt, Treasurer.

Sunday School Literature: C. A. Hines, Rev. C. C. Peel, J. M. Crabtree.

Organization and Expansion: Rev. L. I. Cox, R. D. Thompson, W. S. Sutton.

Music: Mrs. J. W. Patton, Miss Mamie Wilkins, Miss Emma Thomas.

Adult Class Organization: Rev. W. C. Wicker, E. T. Hines, James Dickey.

Home Department: Prof. W. A. Harper, R. J. Kernodle, H. V. Simpson.

Primary Work: Miss Annie Spencer,

Mrs. J. P. McAdams, Mrs. R. A. Thompson.

Moral Reform: T. W. Stroud, M. E. Lillard, L. D. Rippey.

D. Jennings Sipe, President S. S. Convntion, N. C. and Va. Christian Conference.

Greensboro, N. C., June 21, 1909.

YOUNG MEN! If you want to know why you should become telegraph operators and what school to attend, write to SOUTHERN SCHOOL OF TELEGRAPHY, Newman, Ga., for free Catalogue "A." EVERY BOY should read it. Positions positively guaranteed.

RALEIGH & SOUTHPORT RY. Co.

P. M.	A. M.	STATIONS.	A. M.	P. M.
1:15	6:00	Raleigh	8:30	3:45
1:54	6:24	McCullers	7:52	3:03
2:11	6:59	Willow Sp'gs	7:37	2:45
2:23	7:14	Varina	7:27	2:34
2:35	7:26	Fuquay Sp'gs	7:19	2:25
2:55	7:45	Kipling	7:00	2:05
3:15	8:05	Lillington	6:41	1:44
3:41	8:28	Linden	6:15	1:17
4:30	9:15	Fayetteville	5:30	12:30

JNO. A. MILLS, Pres. and Gen. Mgr

Books for Every Christian Home.

Do you know why you are a member of the Christian Church? Do you understand what the church stands for and teaches? If not, send and get a copy of the "Principles and Government of the Christian Church," just revised and greatly improved by order of the Southern Christian Convention.

Cloth binding per copy, post paid 50 ets.

Limp Cloth binding per copy, post paid 35 ets.

Paper binding per copy, post paid 25 ets.

Handsome Persian Morocco, with name in gilt $1.25.

The Southern Christian Convention also Ordered Another Book Published, PREPARING THE SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER TO TEACH. Edited by Profs. W. A. Harper, W. C. Wicker and W. P. Lawrence.

The book is neatly printed and bound and is invaluable to the Sunday-school worker, 236 pages.

Paper binding per copy, postpaid, 60 ets.

Cloth binding per copy, postpaid, 90 ets.

To Sunday-schools, paper binding 50 ets. cloth 75 ets.

Have You Read That Thrilling and Inspiring Story of His Own Life, MOTHER'S ANSWERED PRAYER, BY REV. P. H. FLEMING, D. D.?

Cloth binding, postpaid 55 ets.

All these books should be in your home. Order at once

For sale by, THE CHRISTIAN SUN, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

IT'S INTERESTING

to hear the different comments on different Shoes. All shoes have some good points; Style or comfort or service.

WALK-OVER SHOES

have all the good points; style and comfort and service and their price is the best point of all. $3.50, 4.00 & 5.00.

Foster Shoe Co., Burlington, N. C.

Dry Goods, Notions, Ready Made Clothing.

When in Burlington visit our large store, supplied always with the very best and latest styles and novelties.

Our Dry Goods are of latest designs, and our Ready Made Clothing cannot be surpassed in quality and price.

Come, See. Be Convinced.

B. A. SELLARS & SONS. BURLINGTON. N. C.

DIED.*Freeman.

Marvin Clifton Freeman, son of Clifton Freeman, died June 4, 1909, aged 6 months and 8 days. The little fellow had been sick but a few days. The funeral service was held at Burton Grove Christian Church, Saturday afternoon, by the writer. His body was laid to rest in the Freeman cemetery, some four miles from the church. Brother and sister Freeman have the sympathy of the community, and the prayers of God's people. C. C. Jones.

Johnson.

Died at her home, near Long's Chapel, Alamance Co., N. C., sister Rachel Rebecca Johnson, wife of Bro. L. M. Johnson, June 14th, 1909, aged 68 years, 4 months, and 22 days. Her maiden name was Holt. On August 16th, 1866, Mr. and Mrs. Johnson were united in marriage, and to them were born six children, five boys and one girl. Her husband and children survive her.

In early life sister Johnson united with the church, and when Long's Chapel was organized, she moved her membership to that point and entered the organization as a charter member. She loved her church and was true and faithful in her duties thereto. A devoted wife, a good mother, and a kind friend and neighbor has fallen asleep. During her illness she spoke of death, and was not afraid to die. She trusted Jesus.

The funeral services were conducted from the church by the writer, assisted by Dr. W. S. Long. The burial was in the church cemetery. The attendance was large, and many beautiful flowers were placed upon the grave.

To the bereaved family we extend the comfort and consolation of Jesus Christ.

P. H. Fleming.

Livesay.

Mrs. M. P. Livesay died June 8, 1909, at Dendron, Va. She was the daughter of Deacon and Mrs. R. B. Enre, Franklin, Va. The deceased was twenty-three years old. The body was brought to Franklin, and the funeral services were conducted from the Christian Church, by the pastor, assisted by Rev. C. C. Jones, pastor of Dendron Christian Church, and the interment was in Poplar Spring cemetery.

Mrs. Livesay united with the Franklin Christian Church in childhood, and was faithful to the church. She lived a true and devout Christian life, and made for herself many strong friends. Only a few months ago she went to live at Dendron, Va., but in the short stay, she drew to herself many strong friends, as was shown by the great number attending the funeral from that place. She leaves a husband, father and mother, and one sister, and a host of friends to mourn their loss. We commend the bereaved ones to her God, and Father, and pray that they may be reunited in the New Jerusalem. C. H. Rowland.

Bradford.

At his home, Tenth Legion, Va., June 8th, James M. Bradford, aged 79 years. The deceased was born in Philadelphia. He came to Virginia in 1852, and for 21 years was one of the proprietors and manager of Orkney Springs. The remainder of his life was spent in farming, at which he was very successful. He was widely and prominently known throughout the Valley of Virginia.

He was twice married, his first wife being Miss Elizabeth Miller. She left two children who are still living, R. W., of Harrisonburg, Va., and Mrs. Charles Branner of Broadway, Va. His second wife was Miss Sallie Miller, a sister of Miss Elizabeth. She died Dec. 27, 1906, leaving two sons and one daughter who are still living, J. C., of Tenth Legion, Va., T. C., of Wilmington, Del., and Mrs. A. M. Smith, of Wilmington, Del.

He is also survived by three brothers and four sisters. He has been a member of Mt. Jackson Episcopal church for 35 years. Took a good deal of interest in church and temperance work, and had the respect and esteem of a large circle of friends. While not a member of the Christian Church, Bro. Bradford had always taken great interest in its work. He superintended the Bethlehem school for 17 years, taking it when it was very weak and building up a strong school. At the time of his death he was a trustee of the church and a member of the Board of Trustees of the new cemetery.

"The Oxford Teachers' par excellence"

JUST ISSUED!

OXFORD

Teachers' Bibles and S. S. Scholars' Bibles

With New 20th Century Helps arranged in One Alphabetical Order.

THE HELPS

The Christian Advocate, Nashville, says: "The helps are real helps. Unlike those in many of the cheap Bibles, they are not simply thrown together in hodge-podge fashion, but represent the freshest and ablest work of the foremost modern scholars."

Address Christian Sun,
Elon College, N. C.

Bible is the Bible of the World."

NOW READY!

SIX NEW EDITIONS

OXFORD

Black Faced Type BIBLES

Three on Oxford White Paper. Three on the famous Oxford India Paper.

Pearl 32mo. A wonderful clear type in a small-size book.

Minion 16mo. Ready October 1907. A model hand Bible.

Brevier 16mo. Large type in small compass. "A quart in a pint measure."

"The new Bible just published by the Oxford Press is, without doubt, the finest product of the kind ever given to the public."

ASK FOR THE OXFORD EDITION

REMEMBER: That we guarantee satisfaction and sell to you cheaper than the publisher and dealers do. Our business is by mail and express and prices quoted are the prices of goods delivered to you. We can furnish you the Oxford, or the Holman Teacher's Bible at prices ranging from $1.35 to $4.00. Send for our catalogue or write us what you want. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN, Elon College, N. C.

Kinkade's Bible Doctrine

EDITED BY REV. S. Q. HELFENSTEIN
With Helpful Explanatory Notes.

This book contains enough dynamic truth to shatter tons of erroneous theology. It holds the key to many difficult passages of Scripture, is written in a sweet spirit, and teems with the light of truth. Read it, and catch some of the spirit of the pioneers of the Christian Church.

Limited edition, 380 pages, bound in beautiful brown cloth, gold titles, and sold for only $1.00. Send your order at once to

J. N. HESS, Agent

Dayton, Ohio

[EDUCATIONAL.]

Funeral services were conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. Dallas Tucker, Rector of Harrisonburg Episcopal Church, from Emmanuel Lutheran Church in New Market, Va., in the presence of a large congregation, and the remains laid to rest in the adjoining cemetery. May God comfort and bless the bereaved. A good man, a useful citizen; and another one of the fast thinning ranks of the "old school gentlemen" has gone to his reward.

W. T. Walters.

ILLINOIS SPEAKS FOR THE SOUTH.

Urbana, Ill., June 2, 1909.

My Dear Brother Barrett:

Kindly permit me to suggest you call the attention of our Sunday school teachers to that very excellent work—"Teachers' Training Class"—published by our Southern brethren. It not only compares, but contrasts favorably with all other such works, and, most assuredly should be in general use in the Christian Church. Such men as those who edit such an up-to-date work as the "Teachers' Training Class" should be encouraged by the people they represent.

Let us as a denomination not "neglect our own household," but leave all such wilful and criminal neglect to "the infidels."

Yours very truly,

Robert Harris.

—In Herald of Gospel Liberty.

FEET CURED. NO CURE NO PAY.

In other words you do not pay our small professional fee until cured and satisfied. German-American Institute, 249 Walnut St., Kansas City, Mo.

SHAKE INTO YOUR SHOES

Allan's Foot-Ease, a powder. It cures painful, smarting, nervous feet, and instantly takes the sting out of corns and bunions. Allen's Foot-Ease makes tight or new shoes feel easy. It is a certain cure for sweating, callous, swollen, tired, aching feet. Try it today. Sold by all Druggists. By mail for 25c. in stamps. Don't accept any substitute. For FREE trial package, also Free sample of the FOOT-EASE Sanitary CORN-PAD, a new invention, address Allan S. Olmstead, Le Roy, N. Y.

DO YOU WANT TO GO TO COLLEGE? If so we can help you. We have already put hundreds through college by means of our plan. Write today for full information regarding our offer of a free scholarship in any school or college. Address, Robert J. Sherlock, 29-31 East 22nd Street, New York City.

The University of North Carolina
1789|——|1909

Schools of Liberal Arts Law	Engineering Medicine	Graduate Pharmacy
--------------------------------	-------------------------	----------------------

Large Equipment, Modern Laboratories, New Library with 55,000 Vols. Able Faculty of 98 teachers. Students numbered 786. Thorough instruction. High standard. Healthful location. Expenses low for high-grade institution. For a catalogue and fuller information address
THE PRESIDENT, Chapel Hill, N. C.

MEDICAL COLLEGE
of the STATE OF SOUTH CAROLINA

CHARLESTON, S. C.

Session Opens October 1st, 1909.

Medicine and Pharmacy.

Pathological and pharmaceutical laboratories recently enlarged and fully equipped. Splendid Clinical facilities offered by the

ROPER HOSPITAL

one of the largest and best equipped Hospitals in the South, with 218 beds and free dispensary service. Nine appointments each year for graduates. For catalogue, address

ROBERT WILSON JR. M. D., DEAN,

GIPSY SMITH: HIS LIFE AND WORK.
By Himself.

This is a grand record of achievement. A poor lad, born in a gipsy camp, has been used as an instrument in God's hands to awaken multitudes throughout the world to spiritual consciousness. He tells in this book of 330 pages his rich and varied experiences from birth through years of success in soul-winning. The style of the book is not boastful; it is a humble attempt to satisfy the persistent requests of his friends for a history of his romantic career. The narrative is prefaced by appreciative introductions by Dr. Alexander McLaren and G. Campbell Morgan. Several illustrations add to the interest of the book.

We offer "Gipsy Smith" handsomely bound in cloth as a premium for two new subscriptions to The Christian Sun at $1.50 each; or for one new subscription and 45 cents additional. We will sell it in combination with a renewal to The Sun for $2.20. The book alone will be sent to any address for $1.10, postpaid.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

When in Burlington call at
T. H. STROUD'S

Store for DRUGS, SOFT DRINKS, and anything desired in drugs and Toilet Articles.

DR. JNO. H. BROOKS,
—DENTIST—

Nine years practice. Recent degree from Philadelphia Dental College and Garretson Hospital of Oral Surgery.

ADVERTISING DEPARTMENT

For Advertising Rates Apply

Religious Press Advertising Syndicate
(Jacobs & Company)

Home Office, Clinton, S. C., who have charge of the advertising department of this paper.

Jacobs &amp; Company, J. F. Jacobs, J. D. Jacobs. Home Office, Clinton, S. S. .

PERSONALLY CONDUCTED
TOUR*"AROUND THE CONTINENT"

Over the Rocky Mountains to the Pacific, the Alaska-Yukon Exposition, Los Angeles During the Elks National Convention and Through the Yellowstone National Park—Via the

SEABOARD AIR LINE RAILWAY
in charge of

Mr. C. H. Gattis, District Passenger Agent, Raleigh, N. C., and Chaperoned by Mrs. C. H. Gattis over the entire trip.

Leaves July 3rd, returns August 6th, circling the United States in a solid Pullman train composed of the highest grade and modern design of sleeping compartment observation cars and Pullman dining cars.

The most inexpensive trip ever operated from the Southeast, through Atlanta, Birmingham, Memphis, stopping at Kansas City, Denver, Colorado Springs, Salt Lake, Los Angeles, Santa Barbara, Montgomery, Santa Cruz, San Francisco, Portland, Seattle, Tacoma, Spokane, through Yellowstone National Park, St. Paul, Chicago, returning home through Cincinnati and C. &amp; O. through Richmond.

Trip cost will include railroad and Pullman fares, hotels, dining car meals, stage ride of five (5) and one-half (1/2) days through the Yellowstone National Park, transfers, side trips, carriage and automobile rides at stop-over points and all actual expenses necessary.

Side trips will be arranged at all stop-over points to places of interest, all details being arranged in advance and looked after enroute.

An attractive 33-day trip through the "Greatest Country in the World" covering a distance of 8,755 miles of travel in a modern Pullman train with superb dining car service, eating and sleeping in the best of hotels, sight-seeing "The Wonders of the West" leisurely, with all details arranged in advance is a luxury.

Write at once to the undersigned for cost of trip, schedule and itinerary. If maps, timetables and booklets of the lines over which the party will travel, are desired, send 30 cents in stamps.

C. H. GATTIS,
District Passenger Agent,
Raleigh, N. C.

—Consumption is caused by the poisonous germs in the consumptive's spit. The poisonous spit dries and goes as dust into other people's lungs. A little poisonous spit when scattered in dust, is enough to infect dozens of people. That is why careless spitting is not only dirty, but dangerous.

—Nine miles east of Anderson, S. C., last Sunday at 11:30 a. m. an interurb-

Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Is paying out and investing in both Virginia and North Carolina more than it receives from these States.

New business in Virginia, 1908,
$2,147,800
Larger than any other company.Gain in insurance in force in Virginia, 1908,
$1,374,975

60 per cent more than the next largest.

T. ARCHIBALD CARY, General Agent for Virginia and North Carolina,
Richmond, Virginia.During 1908

(As in previous years)

We want you in our business, for we have what you want in your homes—the very best, most substantial and handsome furniture at bottom prices. We are also the undertakers.

Burke Furniture and Coffin Company

BUKLINGTON, N. C.

Southern Railway

Operating Over 7,000 Miles of Railway.

Quick Route to all Points North,
South, East and West.For Speed, Comfort, Courteous Employees, travel via the Southern Railway.
Rates, Schedules and other information furnished by any of the undersigned.R. L. VERNON, Trav. Pass. Agt.,
Charlotte, N. C.J. H. WOOD, Dist. Pass. Agt.,
Asheville, N. C.

S. H. HARDWICK, P. T. M.,

Washington, D. C.

W. H. TAYLOE, G. P. A.,

Elon College.*Co-educational. Established 1890.

Thorough College courses leading to M. A., A. B., and Ph. B. degrees. Strong and experienced Faculty with highest University training. Good Library, Reading Room, Laboratories, Literary Societies. Excellent Music, Art, Elocution and Business Departments. Diploma from Elon admits to graduate departments in the highest universities.

Beautiful and healthful location, 17 miles east of Greensboro on Southern Railway. Best moral and religious influence. No hazing. New students met by reception committees from young people's Christian organizations connected with the college. Good equipment. A large new dormitory, with modern conveniences, has recently been built to meet the requirements of growing patronage.

EXPENSES UNUSUALLY MODERATE. FALL TERM OPENS SEPT. 1ST.

For catalogue or further information, address

EMMETT L. MOFFITT, LL. D., President.

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

an trolley car collided with an automobile, instantly killing James H. Cobb, superintendent of a cotton mill, seriously if not fatally injuring Rev. D. D. Richardson and Rev. E. A. McDowell, two Baptist ministers, and slightly injuring Mrs. Richardson. As the front wheels of the automobile struck the railway track the engine seemed to break down completely. The car was completely demolished. None were hurt on the trolley.

—There are constantly 3,000,000 persons seriously ill in the United States, of whom more than 600,000 are consumptives. More than half of this illness is preventable.

—An employee of St. Mary's College, Belmont, N. C., a young white man and an expert swimmer, was drowned while in the Catawba River boating last Sunday p. m.

—Wickedness takes the shorter road, and virtue the longer.—Latin proverb.

The Christian Sun.

In Essentials—Unity, in Non-Essentials—Liberty, in All Things—Charity.

ESTABLISHED 1844.

GREENSBORO N. C., WEDNESDAY, JUNE 30, 1909.

VOLUME LXI NUMBER 25.
State Library

THE PRESS ASSOCIATION.

We have come upon a day of fellowship. All professions, trades, occupations have conventions, mass meetings, assemblies, what not, that the men and women who compose them may come together and co-operate for common good. June is a great convention month, and the trains last week were filled with folks going to, and coming from, their several assembly meeting places.

The Press Convention of North Carolina met at Hendersonville. What a splendid meeting place, that beautiful mountain city; what a splendid company of editors, editors' wives and daughters, foregathered there. It was the thirty-ninth annual session and those who had been long in attendance declared it "the best yet."

Hendersonville used to be a small town, a struggling mountain village and that not many years ago. It is now a city of all modern proportions, comforts and conveniences, wide spreading streets, miles of paved side walks, water and electric light systems, some magnificent residences, hundreds of handsome cottages for summer dwellers and hotels ample, well equipped and sufficiently supplied. Hendersonville is fast becoming noted as a lake city, several lakes of sufficient size and beauty having been recently built about there—some half dozen in number. The atmosphere is certainly wholesome, healthful and invigorating in this city that nestles on a wide spreading plateau, surrounded on all sides by unnumbered blue-domed, towering mountains. The people are a kindly and cordial sort. The city laid itself out in social favors and royal hospitality to the editors. In welcoming us they turned over the "key to the city" to be kept while there and used at our discretion.

An editorial association is largely social; but not all. Some as fine and sensible papers were read, and addresses delivered, as one seldom hears. There was not a man down for a paper or address but that he was there, and at his best. Col. Pickens, father of the town, Mayor Staton, of the city, and M. L. Shipman, Commissioner of Labor and Printing, made the editors welcome; and Bro. Archibald Johnson, of Charity and Children, told how glad we were to be welcomed. Let one judge of these topics and the men who treated them as to whether an association of this kind is in vain: "Is the Cash in Advance System the Best for a Weekly?" by Editor J. W. Atkins, of the Gastonia Gazette. "The Editor as a Town Builder," by Editor J. J. Farriss, of the High Point Enterprise; "The Relation of the Press Toward the Good Roads Movement," by Editor H. B. Varner, of the Lexington Dispatch; "The Future of North Carolina and the Part to be Played Therein by the Press," by Editor Archibald Johnson, of Charity and Children; "What Can the Country Paper Do to Promote Rural Development," by Editor Clarence H. Poe, of the Progressive Farmer; "The Make-up of a Country Weekly," by Editor R. R. Clark, of the Statesville Landmark. These, by no means a complete list, will give the reader an idea of what concerns editors when in annual session.

The annual oration by Hon. John M. Julian, of Salisbury, on "Idealism in Journalism," was a masterpiece. Rev. Plato Durham, pastor of the Methodist Church in Concord, delivered an address that was magnificent in every particular, instructive, edifying, uplifting. One of the features of the sessions was an instructive and an illuminating address by Mr. M. V. Richards, Land and Industrial Agent of the Southern Railway, Washington, D. C.

One of the most loyal, active and interested members of the Association is Mr. Josephus Daniels, of the News and Observer, who has been a member nearly thirty years and has missed few meetings in the time. His counsels are helpful and his talks before the body are always instructive and illuminating. Bro. Daniels is a man of convictions and stands by them, both in the columns of his great paper, in public address and personal conversation. No man has greater weight or influence in the Convention. Editor J. B. Sherrill, of the Concord Times, has been secretary for twenty years, and knows every part of the convention's work and does his part well in making the annual meeting a happy success.

Editor Johnson, of Charity and Children, is the "live wire" of the convention and all listen when he speaks.

But no man of all the members is more anxious for the success of every session, and desirous of practical effects and benefits than Editor H. B. Varner, of the Dispatch. No wonder Bro. Varner has the largest country weekly in circulation in the South. He is a hustler, loves his calling, and believes in the power of the press and in the great work his brethren of the press are doing.

It was a source of gratification to all that the "old man" of the Charlotte Observer, that prince of writers and most kindly and courtly of gentlemen, Editor Caldwell, was sufficiently recovered of a recent stroke of paralysis to be present and enjoy all the sessions of the convention. He hopes, and all his brethren of the press do, that he will soon be able to resume active work on the paper that his brilliant pen has made great.

The spirit of fellowship that prevailed at the convention was beautiful to feel and to share; and it is certain that the unprecedentedly large number of editors who gathered this year in assembly have gone back to their homes feeling better for their coming together.

There is much regret that President Thomas, because of illness, could not be present. A telegram of thanks for the splendid paper he sent was voted, and sympathy for him in his affliction. Being a vice-president The Sun's editor presided over the sessions, and was assigned the task for the next year, a task made most easy and agreeable because no body of men is more affable, courteous and considerate than an assembly of editors.

If the reader, who gets his paper from day to day and week to week, thinks there are men engaged in the work of making these papers who do not care for humanity's interest and uplift, he is much and far mistaken. The great body of editors working in this good commonwealth, at least, are men sensible of the worth and might of the work they are doing, and feel keenly the responsibility that rests upon them. They are serious men, going at their tasks in honorable and manly fashion, trying themselves to live lives of usefulness and influence and to help others in the same worthy undertaking.

FROM THE FIELD.

FROM THE FIELD.

Dear Christian Sun, my long silence is no indication of lack of interest for you; for while my reason holds her throne, I shall love you, and pray for you.

Haw River.

This is my eleventh year as pastor of the Haw River Christian Church. And with length of years my esteem has increased for the church and people. I have never preached for a church that is easier to please. I feel unworthy to be pastor of such a kind people.

Christian Light.

This is a weak church numerically and financially, but strong in works and loyalty. I am looking and praying for great things from her. The Children's Day service will be held 2d Sunday in July. We are expecting a large congregation.

Damascus.

This is one of the old churches dressed now largely in new garments; for the congregation is comprised very much of young people. But those of the old ones that are yet on the shores of time are as true as steel and as kind as lambs.

The memorial services were held the third Sunday in May in connection with Children's Day service. I don't think I ever saw children show better training. They did great credit to their instructors. Prof. W. A. Harper was with us, and delivered two instructive addresses which were greatly enjoyed. He has a way of saying the right things in the right place.

Ebenezer.

This church has great undeveloped power. She has enough members on the roll to Christianize a large territory if each one was as true and willing to work as a few are. But somehow I have not been able to get the church to see her duty. I am praying that she may take on new life.

Six Forks.

This is one of the youngest churches of the conference, and has developed much strength, but has had some drawbacks. She has one of the largest congregations of any church in the community. I would not ask them to be kinder to me than they have been. For possibly their greatest fault is in thinking too much of their pastor.

W. G. Clements.

ROANOKE, ALABAMA.

The Lord has been sending his blessings upon us and we haven't been saying very much about it through The Sun. I was very glad to see Brother Carter's letter this week, though I have been looking for several letters from home since our missionary rally. The Lord was with us in great power and showered His blessings upon us from beginning to the end of this meeting, though we feel that it was not as great a success as it would have been if all our speakers had been present and all the churches represented. We want to say, however, that there is more enthusiasm over the subject of missions among the people of the Alabama Conference than there has ever been before, and they have by their word and deed expressed a greater degree of determination to do their part in spreading the Gospel of the Son of God. You know our Savior's command was, "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature." Thank God it was meant for the whole world and not for us alone. And I thank God that we have been educated to our duty along on that line, and we are beginning to turn loose some of that little money that we have been so long calling over, and sending our prayers with it to the spreading of the Gospel. I pray God to give us more believers in missions that they may help to send to those who are dying without the knowledge the Gospel.

The next session of the district meeting will convene with Rockstand Christian Church fifth Sunday and Saturday before in August. We want to see every church represented and all the ministers present at the reunion. We expect to have something said about missions here too.

The work at Rockstand is in good condition and we are expecting, hoping and praying for a good revival before the district meeting. It is when we expect great things of God that He does great things for us.

J. D. Dollar.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION,
GEORGIA AND ALABAMA CONFERENCE.

Beulah Church, Girard, Ala., June 12-13, 1909.

Convention called to order by Rev. H. W. Elder, June 12. Devotional service, led by H. W. Elder. Ministers present, H. W. Elder, L. E. Smith, G. O. Lankford, W. A. Fletcher, and licentiate J. W. Short. Delegates present, Beulah Sunday school, J. F. Rosey, G. L. Newsome, Mrs. Ella Hill, J. F. Hill; Columbus, W. T. Beggs; Brown Spring, R. H. Reynolds, G. H. Pool, J. M. Ellis; La Grange, G. T. Smith, Mrs. H. G. Barnes; Oak Grove, G. E. Shont; Richland, Prof. S. E. Denton.

The following officers were elected: President, Rev. L. E. Smith; vice-president, Prof. S. E. Denton; secretary and treasurer, J. F. Hill.

After filling vacancies on program for evening session, Rev. G. O. Lankford delivered address of welcome, which was responded to by Rev. L. E. Smith. Rev. J. H. Wilson, of the Alabama Conference, and Rev. Luther Petre, of the Church of the Brethren, were seated as deliberative members. Address by Rev. H. W. Elder, subject, The Sunday Schools of This Conference and What They Need; first, need of teacher-training in the Sunday school; second, better organization; third, some definite undertaking. An address, The Sunday Schools of This Conference and What They Can Do, was delivered by Prof. S. E. Denton, giving emphasis to missions and the Sunday school. This was followed by general discussion. Adjourned until 7:30.

7:30, devotional service by W. T. Beggs. Discussion of the Sunday school and the Christian Orphanage, Rev. G. O. Lankford, Rev. L. E. Smith and Rev. H. W. Elder. Adjourned for preaching by Rev. J. H. Milam.

Sunday, 9:30 a. m. Devotional service by J. W. Shont. Henry Floyd and — Shont were enrolled as delegates from Oak Grove Sunday School. Address, the Negligent Teacher, delivered by Rev. J. H. Milam. Prof. S. E. Denton delivered an address on Successful Teaching. The Teacher Improving was ably discussed by Rev. G. O. Lankford; The Sunday School Growing, by Rev. G. O. Lankford and Rev. J. W. Shont. Rev. J. W. Shont was given time to speak in behalf of The Christian Sun, and take subscriptions for same. Revs. G. O. Lankford, J. H. Milam and L. E. Smith spoke on the subject and urged the membership to subscribe for The Christian Sun. Adjourned for preaching by Rev. L. E. Smith.

Afternoon session, 3:00 p. m. Devotional service by the president, Rev. L. E. Smith. The Negligent Parent was ably discussed by Rev. Luther Petre. The convention voted thanks to the church and community for the hospitality and kindness shown us while in their midst. Praise service and heart-to-heart talks by many of the brethren.

Committees appointed: By-Laws, Prof. S. E. Denton, Chmn., Rev. G. O. Lankford, Rev. H. W. Elder; on Time and Place for next Convention, G. L. Newsome, Chmn., W. T. Beggs and J. L. Elder. A motion by Rev. H. W. Elder, that each Sunday school pay to the Sunday school convention two cents per member, was carried by unanimous vote. Mrs. H. G. Barnes, of the La Grange Sunday School, asked that the next convention be held at La Grange. Referred to Committee on Time and Place. On motion the convention adjourned until next session, time and place to be announced later.

Rev. L. E. Smith, Pres.,
J. F. Hill, Jr., Sec.

P. S. We were glad to have with us during the convention Prof. S. E. Denton, of Clayton, Ala., and Bro. C. H. Hinton, of Norfolk, Va. Both made good talks, which were enjoyed by the convention and church. J. F. H., Jr.

MISSIONARY SERVICES.

We held our missionary service last second Sunday at Antioch. It was a grand service in many respects. The exercises were fine considering the amount of practice the children had. The congregation was not as large as upon former occasions, but the interest was all that could be expected. Our assessment at Antioch for 1909 for all purposes was $17.18. Our collection amounted to $19.27, with more to follow. So we felt good over the results, and I am still feeling good.

We held our memorial service at McGuire's Chapel last Saturday. It was indeed a fine service, everything was so quiet and orderly. It was such an impressive scene to see four little girls move so quietly and place a bunch of sweet flowers on the graves of our departed loved ones.

Our eyes filled with tears, our hearts filled with praise to God for giving us the opportunity.

Memorial service at New Hope next Sunday.

G. D. Hunt.

Wadley, Ala.

NORFOLK LETTER.

Rev. W. H. Thompson of the Third Church preached a strong sermon Sunday night on "The second coming of Christ."

The Sunday school received its first installment of library books last week. Bro. A. M. Johnson has been made librarian.

Bro. Ryan reports larger congregations than usual at the services at both the Temple and at Rosemont. He preached at night a special sermon to the Odd Fellows.

Bro. Thompson filled his regular appointment at Providence in the afternoon. He reports Judge Portlock as still very critically ill. Also Bro. De Baum is also quite ill.

Mrs. A. M. Johnson and little daughter Helen are in Boston, visiting the family of Rev. P. S. Sailer.

I called on Col. A. Savage Friday evening. I found him, while still confined to his bed, not suffering so much pain as he did for awhile. His has been a very active life both in business, and for the Christian Church,—the church that he loves so much. He realizes that the period of business activity with him is passed—he is willingly leaving that to others, and the active work of the church he is necessarily leaving to others, but his love for, and interest in its work and future, is strong. We are hoping and praying that he may be spared many years yet that we may have the encouragement of his presence and counsel. He covets an interest in the prayers of the brotherhood.

Our Portsmouth brethren had Children's Day twice Sunday with appropriate program and exercises. They are having their lot cleared for building operation, to begin, which they hope to do by July 15th.

The Tidewater Christian Sunday school convention will hold its next session with the Newport News Sunday school, Sunday afternoon, June 27, at 3 o'clock. The following is the program:

Convention called to order 3 o'clock by Rev. M. W. Butler, Pres.

Anthem, "How Lovely is Zion."

Devotional exercises conducted by Rev. W. H. Thompson.

Reading minutes and reports from schools.

Song, "The Fight is on."

"Suggestion Day," Rev. C. C. Ryan.

Anthem, "O Praise the Lord."

Advisability of offering rewards, Rev. M. L. Bryant.

Solo, M. M. Vipond.

The need of Consecrated Teachers, Rev. J. O. Cox.

Announcements.

Song, Bled be the Tie that Binds.

Benediction by Rev. J. W. Harrell.

Have two marriages to report this week that will be of interest to some of the Sun readers in general, and old Elon students in particular:—

John Cleveland Barrett was married to Miss Ferebee of "Larchmont." The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. W. Barrett, uncle of the groom. They left for a trip north and on their return will be "at home" in "Larchmont."

The following is taken from the Norfolk Landmark of Sunday, June 20th:—

Miss Daisy Margaret Valithea Sawyer, a well-known and popular school-teacher, of Brambleton ward, and Mr. Edgar William Gaither, of Wooster, O., son of the late Dr. and Mrs. William W. Gaither, of Charlotte, N. C., were married last evening in the Christian Memorial Temple.

The ceremony was performed by the pastor, the Rev. C. C. Ryan, and was witnessed by a large assemblage of relatives and friends of the happy couple.

After the ceremony, a reception was tendered in honor of the bride and groom at the home of the bride's parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Gaither left on the night boat for Richmond, Baltimore and Washington. They will be at home after July 7, in Wooster, Ohio, where the groom is a chemist, connected with the State Agricultural Experiment station.

J. W. Manning.

THE TEACHING OF JESUS.

No teacher in any age and nation ever taught with that illustrative ability and authority as did Jesus, the world's great Instructor. While studying his life and imitating his example we see a beautiful diversity in unity in the whole plan. Universal in its scope, impartial in its purpose, divine in its nature, helpful, healthful, and healing in its effects, it was the wonder and admiration of the world. He took special notice of the things which would most deeply impress his hearers, and He never failed to have many anxious ones to listen to his matchless speaking—because He had something to tell them, and did so in an interesting way.

If bounding on the water—walking on the sea, or saying to the storm, "Peace, be still," He used the same simple style and quiet manner which characterized all His sayings and doings.

It is easy to learn from simple, natural illustrations—they make a deep and lasting impression. Our Lord was a pictorial teacher. How mild. He admired the lily and the rose when He compared himself with the lily of the valley and the rose of Sharon. We are told also to "Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow, they toil not, neither do they spin, and yet I say unto you, that even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these."

Speaking of the teaching of Jesus, Mark says, in chapter 4, verse 2: "And he taught them many things by parables, and said unto them in his doctrine." Here He begins with the parable of the sower, and continues with many more which are suitable and beautiful. Without a parable spake He not to the people. This leads us to notice that His teaching was simple, pure, earnest, true and divine. A parable has been briefly defined in these words: A placing beside or together, a comparison or representation of something real in life or in nature, from which a moral is drawn for instruction. The simple teaching of our Savior will help people form a good character and make them better. There was no policy except to lift them into a higher and a better life. Every one

(Continued on page 10)

ELON COLLEGE NOTES.

Nearly a year has passed now since the commencement, and the professors in the various departments have been trying to recuperate a little preparatory to making the usual summer canvass. This means a few more weeks (half of the vacation) of hard work for them. We are hoping that pastors, students and other friends will give them cheerful and ready assistance in their work so that the canvass may be made as easy as possible for them. In fact, we are hoping to see the time when our ministers and laymen in all the conferences will take such an active interest in getting their young people into our church college, that not much canvassing will be required on the part of the faculty in our own territory. Those churches and conferences that send the most young people to Elon College will be found to be most progressive; and in these conferences the pastors of the future will be best cared for, because the young men and young women of the Christian Church who are trained here are trained toward the church, and not away from it. The conference that does not educate its young people, and the conference that thinks it's just as well to educate them at some other school, will sooner or later awake to a realization of the fact that its most promising young people are being educated away from the church, or into a state of lukewarmness toward the church that will render them of little service to the church. It behooves, then, every really interested member of the Christian Church, in the ministry and in the laity, to urge upon our own people the great importance of sending their children to Elon College for their education.

Our professors have, in most cases, received the most cordial support of our people in their canvass; and we bespeak for them an even greater sympathy and interest during the next few weeks, in turning our young people Elonward.

Professor Wicker will canvass the Eastern North Carolina Conference, Greensboro, and perhaps a few other points.

Professor Lawrence will work in the Eastern Virginia Conference.

Professor Cobb in the North Carolina and Virginia Conference.

Professor Amick in the Western North Carolina Conference, and among the Methodist Protestant Churches.

Professor Harper, when Mrs. Harper who is yet in the hospital, is well enough for him to be away, will work in Alamance County, and hopes to be able to make a trip to two or three points east of Raleigh.

Dr. Newman will assist in the office, and, perhaps, make a few special trips, as his health will permit.

Judging from the newspaper reports last week, our good friend and brother, Dr. J. O. Atkinson, the able editor of The Christian Sun, has been winning new laurels for himself. In the absence of the president, he was called upon to preside over the North Carolina Press Association in its annual meeting at Hendersonville last week; and his brethren were so well satisfied with him that they honored him and themselves by making him president of the State Association for the coming year. This means that the Association will go forward one more year at least. They had a great meeting at Hendersonville and many able papers were read, among them one by Dr. Atkinson on "Why Every Editor Should Belong to the Press Association." And, by the way, I understand that the brethren liked that so well that they ordered it printed for distribution among the brethren who were not there. We congratulate our editor, and the Association.

Dr. Atkinson went to Wakefield, Va., and dedicated the new church there last Sunday morning. He preached for the church at Waverly Sunday night, and went from there to Bro. W. J. Lee's for a short visit, returning home Tuesday night.

Dr. J. U. Newman, in the absence of the pastor, preached a most excellent sermon in the college chapel last Sunday. It was communion day, and the services were very much enjoyed.

Prof. Cobb will conduct the services for Rev. T. W. Stowd at Bethel next Sunday morning, and at Concord next Sunday afternoon. He delivered an address at the township Sunday school convention at Fairview last Sunday.

Mrs. W. A. Harper's friends here and elsewhere are delighted to know that she continues to improve as rapidly as could be expected, and that she hopes to be able to leave the hospital now in about two weeks.

Miss Bronna Clymer, of Greensboro, who has many friends among The Sun's readers, underwent an operation for appendicitis at St. Leo's Hospital last week. We are glad to learn that the operation was successful, and that she is getting along nicely.

We have a few boarders at West Dormitory for the summer—and there's plenty of room for more. Our friends will find this a fine place for rest and quiet and health. For particulars, see advertisement elsewhere in this paper.

Mrs. W. E. Lowe and children have gone to visit relatives at Trinity, N. C.

Mrs. Lowe will, in a few days, join her husband on a trip to Ohio.

Miss Jennie Herndon leaves Saturday for Knoxville, Tenn., where she goes to attend the Summer Normal—and incidentally to "rest and recuperate" for a few weeks.

We appreciate the names of young people, who contemplate going away to school, that have already been sent us, and trust that our friends may continue to send them through the summer, as they shall learn of possible students. We are already receiving applications for admission, and feel very hopeful as to the opening, even at this early date.

E. L. Moffitt.

TENTATIVE PROGRAM

For the Twenty-Seventh Annual Sunday School Convention of the North Carolina and Virginia Christian Conference, New Lebanon Christian Church, Rockingham Co., N.

C., July 13-14,
1909.

Tuesday, July 13, 11:00 A. M.

1. Call to order by President, D. Jennings Sipe.
2. Devotional Exercises, Dr. W. T. Herndon.
3. Enrollment of Delegates and Roll Call of Schools.
4. Address of Welcome, Rev. L. I. Cox.
5. Response, Mr. B. J. Earp.
6. Organization and Election of Officers.
7. Filling vacancies on Standing Committees.

.. Afternoon Session, 2:00 P. M.

1. Praise Service.
2. Appointment of Special Committees.
3. President's Address—A Review of the Sunday School Work in This Conference and Its Special Needs, D. Jennings Sipe.
4. The Sunday School and the Place It Should Occupy in Our Religious Organizations, Rev. J. W. Bolton.
5. The Young People's Convention of the Southern Christian Convention, Rev. W. L. Wells, Rev. L. I. Cox, and others.
6. Miscellaneous Business.
7. Announcements. Adjournment.

Wednesday, July 14, 9:30 A. M.

1. Call to Order.
2. Religious Services, Rev. J. W. Holt.
3. Enrollment of Delegates.
4. Teacher Training and What It Should Be—Round Table, Prof. W. A. Harper.
5. In Our Young People's Societies Where Does the Christian Endeavor

Belong?—Round Table, Prof. J. T. Cobb.

6. Organized Classes—Round Table, Mr. C. A. Hines.

7. Report of Special Committees.

8. Adjournment.

Afternoon Session, 2:00 P. M.

1. Call to Order.

2. Song Service.

3. Sunday School Home Missions, Rev. J. O. Atkinson.

4. Report of Executive Committee.

5. Report of Standing Committees:

A. Music, Mrs. J. W. Patton, Chairman.

B. Adult Class Organization, E. T. Hines, Chairman.

C. Home Department, Prof. W. A. Harper, Chairman.

D. Primary Work, Miss Annie Spencer, Chairman.

E. Moral Reform, Rev. T. W. Strowd, Chairman.

F. Sunday School Literature, C. A. Hines, Chairman.

G. Organization and Expansion, Rev. L. I. Cox, Chairman.

6. Miscellaneous Business.

7. Appointment of Standing Committees.

8. Adjournment. Benediction by Rev. J. W. Wellons.

If local conditions are favorable preaching service will be arranged for Tuesday night.

J. T. Cobb, Sec.,

Elon College, N. C.

D. Jennings Sipe, Pres.,

Greensboro, N. C.

NEWS NOTES.

—The Harriman interests are projecting a Mexican railway to cost $75,000,000.

—It appears that the revision of the tariff is about to split both the Republican and the Democratic parties.

—The L. Banks Holt Manufacturing Company, of Burlington, N. C., was incorporated last week. Capital stock, $1,000,000.

—Continued heavy rains are seriously damaging growing crops. Wheat which has begun to be threshed is bringing $1.25 to $1.50 per bushel.

—The druggists of North Carolina in session at Greensboro last week took a stand for a higher grade of preparation in the future for pharmacists.

—The Press Association of North Carolina held a successful session at Hendersonville last week. At the close of the meeting, a delightful excursion was taken into the Toxaway Country.

—The United States Senate is still on the tariff. Amonia was, last week, put on the free list. The removal of the tariff from this chemical so widely used in the manufacture of commercial fertilizers will save farmers about 50 cents a ton in the price of fertilizers.

—Dr. Charles W. Eliot, ex-president of Harvard University, has given out a part of the five feet of books which he asserts will give a liberal education. He is being criticised because his list, as yet, contains neither the Bible nor the works of Shakespeare.

The following announcement of the death of Capt. W. J. Long, one of the faithful members of the Christian Church, will bring sadness to the hearts of his many friends throughout the church:

Capt. W. J. Long, a prominent citizen of Harnett County, died Thursday morning at 4 o'clock, after a long life of usefulness in church and state. He was the beloved captain in the Confederate army of Company "C," 31st regiment of North Carolina, Hope's division, Clingman's brigade. He was a loyal Mason and was active in his Order until old age and ill health deprived him of the opportunity to be present at the regular meetings. He belonged to Buie's Creek lodge No. 503, and was formerly of George Washington's lodge.

Captain Long was an active member of Pleasant Union Christian Church, near Lillington, of which he was the senior deacon and church clerk for a period of forty-six years. He was always at his post attending all the regular meetings of his church and was loyal to all the enterprises of his church and its institutions.

Early in life he married Miss Janet Buie Sexton, daughter of William and Mary Sexton. They would have been wedded fifty years, the 15th of next November. He was the father of ten children, seven of whom survive him with his devoted wife, Mrs. Janet Long. The children are: Mrs. J. C. Goodwin, wife of Dr. J. C. Goodwin, of Dunn; J. D. Long, W. S. Long, A. M. Long, J. A. Long, of Greensboro; G. H. Long and Mrs. L. F. Johnson, wife of Rev. L. F. Johnson, Raleigh.

He died at the age of 75 years. His life was full of faithful service, and his work was a labor of love and sacrifice for his home, his country and his church.

The funeral was conducted Friday afternoon from Pleasant Union Christian Church, by Rev. J. D. Wicker, pastor, assisted by the Masons, and the body was put to rest in the old family burying ground, near the church.

Sweet be the sleep of a pious citizen, a good soldier, a loving and faithful husband and father.—News and Observer, June 27, 1909.

—Subscribe for The Sun.

DO YOU WANT TO GO TO COLLEGE NEXT YEAR?

Then Here is Your Opportunity.

We want to help you: You can help us, and by so doing help your self.

READ OUR OFFERS.

To any young man or young woman, approved of good moral character and recommended by his or her pastor, sending us 300 new subscribers to The Christian Sun for one year at $1.50 each, by Sept. 1, 1909, we will give a scholarship in Elon College for the scholastic year of 1909, and 1910—one full school year. This scholarship will include Board, Furnished Room, Tuition, Matriculation and Library Fees. (Board and Room at either of the college dormitories, or with private family as individual may prefer):

Or, For 225 New Subscribers $1.50 each, Board and Room at any place individual may select; or Board, and vacant room at Young Men's Boarding Club, Tuition Matriculation and Library Fees.

For 180 new subscribers at $1.50 each, Tuition in Literary Branches and in Music, Matriculation and Library Fees.

For 140 new subscribers at $1.50 each, Board and Vacant Room at Young Men's Boarding Club.

For 120 new subscribers, Tuition, Matriculation and Library Fees.

This is a golden opportunity to any young man or young woman desiring to go to college next year who hasn't the means to go upon. By doing the work you give the individual subscriber full value received for his $1.50 and he in turn helps you in a most estimable and worthy manner. You can ask your friends to help you in such a work as this—and they will be glad to help.

Further, If you work you shall not lose out. For, if you fail to get the required number we will give you a liberal cash reward on all work done. See your Pastor at once and ask him for a letter to send along with your own to us. Write today. No time to be lost.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEPARTMENT.

Exponent of the Young People's Convention, Christian Church, South.

Officers

Prof. S. M. Smith, President, Raleigh, N. C.
Rev. W. T. Walters, Vice-President, Harrisonburg, Va.
Mr. D. J. Sipe, Secretary, Greensboro, N. C.
Rev. L. E. Smith, Ass't Secretary, La Grange, Ga.
Rev. L. I. Cox, Treasurer, Elon College, N. C.

Watchword

A Christian Endeavor Society in every church; Teacher-Training and Organized Classes in every Sunday school.

Executive Committee

Prof. S. M. Smith, Chairman, Raleigh.
Rev. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va.
Mr. D. J. Sipe, Greensboro, N. C.
Rev. L. I. Cox, Elon College, N. C.

DEVOTED TO THE INTEREST AND ADVANCEMENT OF

SUNDAY SCHOOLS, TEACHER-TRAINING, ORGANIZED CLASSES, CRADLE ROLL, HOME DEPARTMENT, CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR, MISSIONARY SOCIETIES, TEMPERANCE SOCIETIES, AID SOCIETIES, CIVIC RIGHTEOUSNESS.

W. A. HARPER, Editor and Field Secretary, Elon College, N. C.

[All notes and contributions for this Department should be sent to W. A. Harper, Elon College, N. C., who extends the Church at large a cordial invitation to furnish him with any note of interest to our Young People, particularly information in regard to any forward steps, new movement, or new organization looking to progressive and effective service.]

FOREWORD.

The Young People's Convention through its Executive Committee has chosen me Editor of the Christian Endeavor Department and Field Secretary for the year beginning June 21, 1909. With a full knowledge and appreciation of the obligations I assume, I have accepted and have entered upon my work. I feel that the success or failure of this work means the progress or regress of the Christian effort of our young people in general and of their Convention in particular. I further realize that I can not make the idea go single-handed and alone. My brethren and sisters must help me—by counsel, by information, by notes written for the Department, by diligent work in the local territory, by sympathy and prayers, or the Department is already a failure. I feel that I shall have the co-operation of the entire brotherhood in this work and, if I did not, I would even now resign. If in the future I find that I am not co-operated with, I shall hand over the Department to my successor, because this work must be done, and if one man cannot do it, then another can.

In conclusion, I desire to invite any friend of the cause of Christ as it is represented in the Christian Church, South, to co-operate with me in the endeavor to make our Convention's watchword, "A Christian Endeavor Society in every church; teacher training and organized classes in every Sunday school," a living reality. To this end I beseech that they will take up earnestly the suggestions to be hereinafter offered and bring them to fruition in their several localities and then to report the result of their labors to me, that by the publicity I shall give them others may be inspired to emulate their achievements.

W. A. Harper.

Rev. L. I. Cox has been at work since the Convention. At Mt. Bethel he has organized a Christian Endeavor Society with 18 charter members. Mr. J. S. Truitt is president. Also at New Lebanon, with Mr. W. H. Sharp as president, he has organized a Christian Endeavor Society with 23 active members and 5 associate. Miss Annie Sharp is secretary.

Mr. E. T. Hines, of the Hines' Chapel Church, has organized a teacher-training class with 8 members. Bro. Hines was president of the Elon College teacher-training class during the college term.

HOW TO CONDUCT THE CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR SOCIETY FOR JULY 4th—A FEW SUGGESTIONS.

Topic: For Our Country. Monthly Consecration Meeting.

Patriotism That Counts. Neh. 4:6, 12-18.

Begin with a patriotic song or two, followed by a prayer by the leader or some one designated by him. Remember that this is the 4th of July, the birthday of our nation. Hold up as the highest type of patriotism, not flags and fire-crackers and noise, but love and work for home, community, church, state, and the wide world.

The leader should read the Scripture lesson, Neh. 4:6, 12-18, and comment briefly thereon.

He should before the meeting write on slips to be handed to the members as they come in the following Scripture references: Patriotism in the Home, Psalm 137:1-6; A Patriotic Faith, Isa. 7:1-9; A Patriot's Tears, Lam. 1:1-12; A Patriot's Struggle, Judges 7:15-23; Higher Patriotism, Acts 10:28, 34-35; The Abiding Country, Heb. 11:10, 13-16. Brief comments on these references would be in order.

He should also hand out the following question spurs in the same way for brief answer: What is a Patriot? What is Patriotism? Who Are the Three Greatest American Patriots of the Past? The Three Greatest of the Present? What can our Society do to foster Patriotism? What Relation is there between Patriotism and Home Missions? Between Patriotism and Foreign Missions? Between Patriotism and Prayer?

After the leader's remarks on the Scripture lesson, it would be well to have another patriotic song and a prayer or a chain of prayers. Then let the secretary begin to call the roll of members and let each respond either by the reference or question spur given him when he came in or by a verse of his own choosing or by a word of testimony for Christ or by a word of prayer. It is not necessary to have the roll called; many leaders merely announce that it is consecration meeting and that all are expected to participate. Interperse the responses with verses from a patriotic song or brief sentence prayers.

At some time during the meeting have the pledge repeated in concert.

Give the last five minutes to the pastor.

W. A. Harper.

HOW TO TEACH THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FOR JULY 11.

A FEW SUGGESTIONS.

The Philippian Jailer. Acts 16:25-40.

Gospel Text: "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy house." Acts 16:31.

Review.—Review the previous lesson thoroughly. Bring out the severing of the association of Paul and Barnabas and the cause. Call for assigned work on life of Mark after Acts 15:37, on Luke's association with Paul after Acts 16:10, and on the life and character of Barnabas. Call for note-books; make suggestions; have one read.

Chronology and Connecting Links.—The place is the same as last Sunday's lesson, at Philippi (here call for the assigned work on Philippi in the Acts), and the time shortly after that of the last lesson, last of 49 or first of 50. The intervening events are told in Acts 16: 16-24, assigned last time, which call for now. Also here call for assigned work on Christ and demons according to the Gospels.

Incidental Instruction.—In the "Connecting Links" it will be well for you to explain the "inner prison" arrangement of the ancient world. This was usually a vaulted excavation in solid rock with only an opening in the roof through which the prisoners were let down into the dungeon, where they were confined in stocks and bound with chains. Here exceptional cases were confined. The prison above saw its victims also pilloried and chained, but they had light and warmth. The door of the prison which shut it off from the courtyard was merely a horizontal bar, which an earthquake would easily shake open. It must always be remembered that the ancients used prisons not for punishment, but for detention during trial and pending execution—they had no such punishment as our "thirty days in jail." The sergeants too will claim your attention—their Roman name was lie-tors and they were officers who attended upon the magistrates of the municipalities—the duumvirs—and executed their orders. The badge of their office was the fascies, that is, an ax bound with a bundle of rods and carried over the left shoulder; it was these officers that had scourged Paul and Silas. The responsibility of jailors, the dignity of and protection secured by the Roman citizenship, will also receive explanation at your hands.

The Lesson.—Our lesson today divides into three parts, which write on the board as they are developed in the teaching, as the topical outline.

I. Paul and Silas in Prison. Verses 25 and 26. Find what Paul and Silas were doing, when, where, who heard, what suddenly occurred, its extent, its results.

II. Keeper of the Prison Converted, verses 27-34. Find what the keeper had been doing, what he saw upon awaking, what he was preparing to do, why, who prevented him, what he said, what the keeper then did, before whom he fell, what do with them, what question ask them, and what answer he received, what further instruction was given him, how he treated them, what Christian sacrament he submitted to, who else with him, what honor he bestowed upon them.

III. The Missionaries Released, verses 35-40. Find whom the magistrates sent, when, to say what, who informed Paul, in what words, Paul's answer, the effect of this upon the magistrates, what steps the magistrates then took, what the missionaries did.

Review the lesson by the topic method.

For Class Discussion.—Demoniac possession. Salvation through faith as seen in the raving girl and in the jailor and his family. Paul's demand of the magistrates. Suicide. The all-important question.

Truths and Their Application. 1. There is no holier scene in all the sacred writing than that of Paul and Silas, beaten and bruised and bleeding, sitting in darkness, confined by stocks and shackled by chains, yet singing songs. How could they do this? Not of themselves, but of the Lord. By the grace of God they triumphed over trouble. They were abiding not in the foul inner chamber, but in the shadow of the Almighty, from which vantage ground their spirits rose in victorious triumph over all the wretchedness and agonizing suffering of their plight. So may all of us.

2. The peace that passeth all understanding is the privilege of every devout Christian. And multitudes in all the Christian centuries have proved it a living verity in their lives. How is this peace to be obtained? Many think it comes from cessation entirely, but this peace is "life, motion, movement without friction." It is harmony—the harmonious adjustment of life with God and our fellowmen. It is not a cornet solo—it is an orchestra. It is not the mellow sweetness of a single singer, but the entrancing melody of a great chorus. Have you experienced this peace? If not, why not? Begin to obtain it today.

3. Have you ever thought of that jailor's midnight question? It is the universal question. Every man sometimes in life asks himself this question: What must I do to be saved? As a teacher, you have, of course, answered it. But have your pupils? If not, you should never be satisfied until they have. It is your high prerogative, it is your sacred duty to lead them to Christ. Make this your decision day and try to gather every one of your pupils into the fold. It will make you happy; it will save them.

Manual Work.—Have the pupils enter in their note-books for expansion at home the following outline:

Life of St. Paul (Saul) (Continued).

49 A. D. Paul heals a demon-possessed girl, Acts 16:16-18.

Paul and Silas Cast into Prison, Acts 16:19-24.

Paul and Silas Sing and Pray in Prison, Acts 16:25-26.

The Philippian Jailor Converted, Acts 16:27-34.

The Missionaries Released, Acts 16: 35-40.

Assignments for Next Time.—Ask one to prepare an essay on Thessalonica in ancient times; a second on Salonicia in recent times (during the recent deposition of the Sultan); a third on Berea; a fourth on Bible study—its methods and its value; a fifth to be prepared on Acts 13:16-42. W. A. Harper.

Elon College, N. C.

NOTICE.

To members of the Eastern North Carolina Christian Sunday School Convention:

All who expect to attend the convention which meets in Henderson July 20-22 will please notify D. I. Langston, Henderson, N. C., in advance when to expect you.

Schedule of trains due in Henderson is as follows: S. A. L. from Raleigh 1 p. m. and 6:30 p. m.; from Norfolk 8:30 a. m. and 2:30 p. m.; from Durham 12:25 p. m. Southern from Durham and Oxford 11:45 a. m.

C. E. Newman.

NOTICE.

North Carolina and Virginia Sunday School Convention.

Time—July 13th and 14th, 1909.

Place—New Lebanon, Rockingham County, N. C.

All who expect to attend the North Carolina and Virginia Sunday School Convention, which meets with the church at New Lebanon, Rockingham County, N. C., July the 13th and 14th, will please notify W. G. Sharp, Wentworth, N. C., R. F. D. No. 1, not later than July 5, 1909.

It is the earnest desire of the church, Sunday school and community to have a large delegation. There are plenty of good homes with open doors to take care of all that will come. We are anxious that this shall be the largest and the very best Sunday school convention that has ever been held in the bounds of the North Carolina and Virginia Conference.

Those coming by rail will be met at Reidsville, N. C., Tuesday morning. Train No. 11 from Danville will arrive at 6:55 a. m., and train No. 8 from Greensboro at 8:02 a. m. These are the only trains that will be met, unless you make special arrangements with Mr. Sharp. Please let Bro. Sharp know if you are coming, and whether you are coming on cars or buggy. It will be to your interest to heed this notice.

Brethren, let us all pray and work together to make this a great and good convention. L. I. Cox, Pastor.

June 25, 1909.

---

THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

---

Founded 1844 by Elder Daniel W. Kerr.
Organ of the Southern Christian
Convention.

---

Entered at the postoffice at Greensboro, N. C., as second-class matter.

---

Terms of Subscription.

One Year .....$1.50
Six Months ..... .75
Four Months ..... .50
Advertising rates given on application.

---

J. O. Atkinson, Editor and Publisher.

---

Important Notice.—As readers will see, The Christian Sun is now published at Greensboro, N. C. The office of publication there is 302½ South Elm Street. Our editorial office, however, remains at Elon College, N. C., to which all letters and communications to the Editor should be addressed, as heretofore.

---

THE HARVEST TIME.

The summer season, in our Southern churches, is the time of sowing and reaping. First, and shortly now, the Sunday school conventions begin to meet. The opportunities at these conventions are boundless. The most interested and intelligent of all our Sunday-school workers foregather here. For the program builders not to bear this in mind is cruel and fatal neglect. Every moment of the meeting time is precious, and possible of being freighted with far reaching results. To lead the workers to higher grounds of usefulness and intelligence is the great task of those who prepare programs for our Sunday school conventions.

And for those who are put on the program to read, or speak, or teach, not to do their very best is unpardonable. To be put on such a program is not a mark of honor, favor, or exaltation; but it is a mark of confidence, trust, and esteem, and gives to such an one an opportunity of service. Only he is great and good and worthy who rises to meet the opportunity and masters it for usefulness and for truth.

More and more we come into the knowledge of the weight and worth of our Sunday school work. We have been striving for intelligence and instruction among the pupils. We now strive also for intelligence and instruction among the teachers also. The cry of the time is for better trained and more enlightened teachers. The teacher's opportunity has been brought home to him, and the teacher who cares, and who is to tell for the future, is striving to meet his day and prepare himself for the great task that confronts him. Our Sunday school conventions this summer should tell mightily in the work of our schools in the years that are to come.

Following upon our conventions comes the season of revivals in most of our churches. This truly is the harvest time. Not to prepare and make ready with songs and prayers and much devotion is passing pity indeed. There never was a great revival without prayer, much, often, and repeated prayer. In this not the pastor only, but all members may take part. Every member of the church should help the pastor prepare for the revival. And every member can do this. If the whole church will be in prayer for the success of the meeting the work will be easy and the fruits abundant. There has been preaching through the year. Good seeds have been sown; the field has been cultivated well. It is nothing less than cowardliness and indolence and indifference now for all not to join with willing hand and prayerful heart in the work of harvest. We shall make ready for that event, by getting right ourselves with God, in prayer. Surely the harvest is plentiful; let the workers make ready in hand and heart.

---

RISING TO MEET EMERGENCIES.

Anyone can steer a boat under a cloudless sky, and on a calm sea. He is the true and safe sailor who is prepared for the storm and can pilot under danger. For storms and seas and dangers will surely come.

None of us sail always under cloudless skies. Tempests arise. Storms and dangers will come. Unless one is prepared for these, one is sure of defeat in the final. The economic man saves his penny for the rainy days. The hero harbors his strength for the testing time. The sensible man keeps his reserve against a time when he knows he will need. He who fails to provide against emergencies is certainly unwise. We are going to give here a remarkable recounting, in a signed article of Dr. Buckley in the New York Christian Advocate, of physical events in which the proper exercise of body prepared against fatal results:

Only systematic exercise prepares us for those emergencies upon which the prolongation of life often depends. A citizen who despised exercise was awakened at midnight by a cry of fire; hastily raising a window and looking out, he saw that the building next his own was in flames. He hurried about the house gathering his valuables, carried them into the street, and fell dead. A clergyman—the late Dr. Ellison—finding himself left by a train and liable to miss an important appointment, carried a carpet-bag the short distance of three miles, reached his destination breathless, and in a few moments died.

During the famous blizzard of 1888 I was for three days kept within twelve miles of the city of New York. After waiting nine hours in the cars, perceiving no hope of relief, and ascertaining that I was within a mile and a half of the city of Mount Vernon, I determined to go through the snow. The atmosphere carried elements which were very weakening. The wind was blowing hard, the temperature low, and wet snow was falling. In advance of me was a man of giant frame, but evidently unaccustomed to exercise. Before he reached Mount Vernon he gasped for breath and in a few moments was dead. In the habit of walking six or eight miles per day, I was in condition to assist a friend who "took me in," to shovel himself and his household back into public notice.

No one can foresee when an unusual exertion will be demanded of him, either in self-preservation or in aid of those whom he loves, or in some deed of common humanity, or jointly with his neighbors and townsmen in preserving their homes from destruction. Had exercise no other value than that of keeping men in condition to endure unusual strain, it would be ample compensation for the time and exertion it requires.

But it is a pleasure; it is the best improvement of leisure; it is a promoter of good morals; and is closely connected with health and longevity. William Cullen Bryant continued his exercises till he was past eighty; Mr. Gladstone never omitted his bath and exercise; John Eriesson, though working twelve or fifteen hours a day, always walked the streets of New York from ten o'clock in the evening until midnight, for exercise. John Wesley attributed his long life and protracted working power to it, and prescribed it to all his workers. Theodore Roosevelt was a weakly boy, and exercised himself into strength, boldness, courage, and scent and sight for emergencies.

---

TEACHER-TRAINING CLASS ORGANIZED.

Sunday morning at the Christian Church Prof. W. A. Harper, of Elon College, organized a Teacher Training class. Prof. Harper has recently prepared a course of study for those who desire to become Sunday school teachers. Sunday school workers state the the greatest need in Sunday schools is able teachers and schools of all denominations are now inaugurating classes for instructing those who will become teachers in the future.—Greensboro Tel.gram.

SUFFOLK LETTER.

Deacon George J. Costen was born in Gates County, N. C., September 9, 1840, and died at Sunbury, N. C., in his native county, June 16, 1919, in his sixty-ninth year.

He was married to Annie May Smith of the same county September 12, 1861, and fourteen children were born unto them. Seven of that number are living: C. W. and C. A., Red Level, Ala.; Dr. I. W., Wallaceton, Va.; Florine, now Mrs. Dr. E. F. Corbell, Sunbury, N. C.; Fannie C., now Mrs. L. Woolford, Sunbury, N. C.; Geo. J., Jr., Columbia, Tenn.; Thomas M., Red Level, Ala. All were present at the funeral services except the oldest and the youngest in Red Level.

The funeral services were conducted from the family residence in Sunbury, N. C., in the afternoon, June 18, 1909. His pastor, Rev. J. M. Roberts, Rev. Rufus Bradley, Methodist, of Gatesville, N. C., and this writer took part in the services, which consisted of Scripture, hymns, prayers, and "The Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" by Mrs. Nixon.

Brother Costen had been a Deacon of Damascus Christian Church for thirty years, and superintendent of the Sunday school for twenty-three years. A slight stroke of paralysis a few years ago cut him off from active Christian work; but he bore his affliction with Christian resignation.

He was a member of the Lilly of the Valley lodge of A. F. and A. Masons, No. 252, and was buried with Masonic honors. The attendance was large and the sympathy for the family was wholehearted.

He took interest in private and public schools, and was a trustee of the Sunbury Academy.

He was agent of the Suffolk and Carolina Railroad at Sunbury for many years.

He was one of the best farmers and in many ways one of the leading citizens of Gates County.

Pastor Roberts spoke in touching remembrance of the departed as a useful member, a faithful deacon, and a helpful friend.

Mrs. Woolford resides with her mother and this will keep the home together and this means much to a woman who has occupied a house for so many years. For nearly fifty years they have shared life's joys and sorrows together.

We can hardly think of heaven as a place of rest in the sense of inactivity. Ascriptions of praises rise up from the redeemed and fill the temple with "Thou art worthy, O Lord, to receive glory and honor and power: for thou hast created all things, and for thy pleasure were they created." "And his servants shall serve him." Praise and service will occupy the redeemed and heaven will open to the soul endless joys and endless activities. Infinite progress will be the soul's reward. Rest in the scriptural sense is not inactivity, but pleasant activity, as rest from war may be a nation's greatest activity in all that is best and most progressive. Toward that boundless country and that endless engagement in what is most blessed all of God's children are tending. Every morning points to that morning without clouds. Let the years roll on till they bring us to the end here which is only the beginning of that which is infinitely better.

W. W. Staley.

NORFOLK LETTER.

Norfolk has been suffering for several days in the grasp of some extremely warm weather, consequently attendance at Sunday school and church services Sunday were smaller than usual.

The picnic at Cape Henry on Tuesday by the Memorial Christian Temple and the Third Church was very well attended. The day was ideal. I think we had the largest crowd present of any Sunday school picnic since I have been in Norfolk.

The Tidewater Christian Sunday School Convention met with the East End Church in Newport News Sunday afternoon at three o'clock. A delegation consisting of about thirty-five or forty people attended from the churches in Norfolk and vicinity.

An interesting program had been prepared and the speakers assigned for the subjects. But unfortunately circumstances were such that not a one that was on the program for the speaking was present. Rev. C. C. Ryan had been assigned to the subject, "Suggestion Day;" Rev. J. W. Harrell was designated by the President to fill his place. Rev. J. O. Cox was to discuss the advisability of "Offering Rewards," which the president assigned to the writer. Rev. M. L. Bryant was to discuss the subject, "Consecrated Teachers," which the president assigned to Rev. W. H. Thompson. The musical part of the program was carried out with the addition of a solo, "His eye is on the sparrow," by the writer. The president was elected a delegate to represent the convention at the State Sunday School Convention which meets at Charlottesville this week.

The next session will be held at Lambert's Point the last Sunday in September.

The friends of Rev. C. C. Ryan are congratulating him on his decision to make a trip to Palestine in the near future. His plan now is to leave Norfolk about the 29th of July, sailing from New York to Harve, France, thence over land to Rome and Naples, Alexandria, Cairo, and Port Said, then to Jerusalem. He is expecting to be away about two months on the trip. His plan embraces a trip on foot over some road ways which are very familiar to Bible students.

Brother Ryan is an observant man, and will no doubt take advantage and make full use of every opportunity afforded by such a trip. So those of us who cannot go are looking forward to some interesting reports from him, when he shall have returned from this pilgrimage.

J. W. Manning.

UNUTTERED MELODIES.

*By Miss Iola Johnson, Sedley, Va.

Music is a master spirit. It is as old as the world itself. Ere man learned to give his emotions a tuneful voice, nature, both animate and inanimate, under the hand of the great Master, sang his praises.

The element of music exists now around us, in the sighing of the leaves, in the song of the birds, in the gentle monotone of the bees.

Music is majestic. It is a creation of the imaginative soul. To man, these unknown murmured melodies are the shadows of the beautiful, in the infinite course of the praise-giving soul. In the vale of life we hear sweet music, grand melodies, filled with harmonic intricacy, and from their simplicity, form a beneficent science. It is a divine celestial flower that expands mysteriously, bringing harmony and delight to all mankind.

Music speaks a language of its own, a language that is universal. Bring together in one assembly all the nations of the earth, there would be a babel of tongues; but let some simple lay, as "Home Sweet Home" be heard. Each ear catches the harmony, and silence reigns. Every heart beats in sympathy. It is the bond within which all nations become one.

We walk in the moonlight near some lowly cottage, and hear the mother as she sings some sweet lullaby, and soon her tender charge has been soothed to slumber. Music is the nurse of the infant soul, the angel voice of its dreams.

(Continued on page twelve).

*(The above was Miss Johnson's graduating essay at Elon College June 2nd and won for her the E. A. Moffitt essayist's medal, being voted the best in the class.—Ed.)

THE CHRISTIAN ORPHANAGE DEPARTMENT.

Board of Trustees.

Rev. J. O. Atkinson, D. D., Pres., Elon College, N. C.
 Rev. I. W. Johnson, Sec., Suffolk, Va.
 Hon. W. H. Carroll, Burlington, N. C.
 L. M. Clymer, Greensboro, N. C.
 C. D. West, Newport News, Va.
 Elijah Moffitt, Esq., Asheboro, N. C.
 G. S. Watson, M. D., Elon College, N. C.
Treasurer—Prof. J. T. Cobb.
Superintendent—Jas. L. Foster, Elon College, N. C.

CHILDREN'S CORNER.

The Band of Cousins.

Jas. L. Foster, Sec., Elon College, N. C.

"He that hath pity on the poor lendeth unto the Lord, and his good deed will He pay him again."—Prov. 19:17.

Reported last week .....$3,424.12

Dues:

Mary Lee Foster .....$10
 James L. Foster, Jr. .... .10

Monthly S. S. Offering:

Jr. C. E. So., Elon, N. C. ... .28

Special Offering:

Amt. 23d week ..... .48

Total .....$3,424.60

My Dear Children:

See, our report does not look as usual this week! What is the matter? Can it be our Cousins have gone into summer quarters?

Well, if we do not have much money, we have a great gib cow from Uncle Rufus King to report again. She came in this morning and from all appearances she'll make a fine cow.

We also have to thank the following friends from the village (all of which we accept very gratefully): Mrs. J. U. Newman, cabbage, Mr. Boon, potato slips, and Mr. Noah, cabbage.

Next week we feel certain our friends will fill the Corner.

We have gathered over 100 quarts of dewberries from our vines, which we are canning and eating. On every side are little folks with black hands and mouths because of the enjoyment of these nice berries.

Lovingly,
 Uncle Jim.

My Dear Cousins:

We write our letter for June and send our dues. These are splendid days for us if we just didn't get bitten by red bugs.

We have to stay away from the woods and that is not very nice, for we have a play house there which we enjoy very much.

Lovingly,
 Mary Lee Foster,
 James L. Foster, Jr.

(Begun on page 7)

acquainted with the natural simplicity of the parables knows how impressive they are, and this object teaching could be better understood by all the people, especially the common people who heard Him gladly. He had a great lesson to teach—redemption and salvation were of the themes used, and the realms of nature were employed to furnish the illustrations. By His simple teaching our relation to Him is nearer and stronger. "How life becomes exalted by its relation to Him! How wide and deep its meaning! As the dull peak and leaden cloud are touched into resplendence by the beams of the setting sun, so even a simple life, wrought in with His spirit and purpose, is made to glow with something of His beauty and immortality of glory. Strikingly is this illustrated throughout the Gospel history. His simple manner, tender and loving nature, command respect, attention and reverence. He came as the great physical and spiritual Healer of the world. People were made better, happy, healthy, and holy by His magic touch and divine nature. It is no wonder, then, that they came to see, to hear, to believe, and to be saved. The poor, the lame, the deaf, the blind, the dumb, all sought Him with eager, anxious solicitude, and none were turned away who sought help.

This Heaven-born Teacher taught none of the impure things which are extant in many places today, but they were pure as divinity could make them. Purity of thought, purity of heart and purity of life were some of the main elements of doctrine which were prominent in His beautiful and successful work among men. Mysterious teaching charged with the power and influence of the Spirit, it pervades the mind, invades the soul and lifts the believer upon a higher plane of Christian experience, and helps him to live nearer God. A spring is as pure as the fountain from which it flows, and no purer. Jesus Christ is the pure fountain of life, and through Him the healing stream flows freely for all classes and conditions of people. His salvation is free and complete, and there is no other way by which we can enter through the gates into the city. Pure food, pure water, pure air, and everything pure is what we are looking for in nature in this life, and while here we ought to be preparing to dwell in eternal purity in our Father's home. Timely and proper preparation must be made if we want to live in that pure and glorified state.

Earnestness was another prominent part in His teaching. This is a fine example for every teacher of the Word to

CANCER CAN BE CURED.

Personal or Home Treatment. Both successful. Scores of testimonials, from persons who gladly write to those now suffering, all tell of permanent cures. My Mild Combination Treatment destroys growth and eliminates the disease from the system. Free book "Cancer and Its Cure" and 125-page book of testimonials from cured patients in all parts of the country. No matter how serious your case, how many operations you have had, or what treatment you have taken, don't give up hope, but write at once Dr. Johnson Remedy Co., 125 Grand Ave., Kansas City, Mo. Physicians treated free.

READ SOMETHING DIFFERENT.

The Greensboro Daily News, the new State paper, is worthy of a trial. Associated Press service, special correspondence, clean, newsy, liberal. One year $6.00; three months $1.50.

GREENSBORO DAILY NEWS,
 Greensboro, N. C.

A HOME FREE At Denton, N. C.
 We propose to give away (no cost whatever) on Dec. 24, 1909, to some person who desires to settle in the best town in North Carolina, a beautiful home-building lot in the beautiful and rapidly-growing town of Denton, N. C.—absolutely free. Denton is one of the most aggressive—in short, one of the "coming" towns—of North Carolina. It is the temporary terminus of the Piedmont Railway, which connects it with the main line of the "Southern" at Thomasville, and will soon push through to Wadesboro, where it will connect with the "Seaboard" and "Coast Line." A moral, cultured town, with a splendid school system, and attractive church advantages in the heart of the N. C. furniture-making belt—and backed by a splendid farming country. Already has 7 wood-working factories, prospective bank and cotton mill, 10 retail stores, 3 churches and more to be built. Population has doubled itself twice in the last 24 months. Centrally located in the midst of the hardwood belt, has three daily mails, and connected by telephone with the neighboring towns—30 miles from Troy; 27 miles from High Point; 22 miles from Salisbury; 22 miles from Asheboro; 20 miles (by Piedmont Railway) from Thomasville; 20 miles from Lexington; 13 miles from Whitney, the great water power development. Now we are giving away, absolutely free, a beautiful home-building lot, to some one who wishes to make his or her, or their, home in this beautiful town. All readers of this paper and all other first-class people invited. None but the best people invited to reply. Write at once for particulars. HUB LAND COMPANY, Lexington, N. C.

follow, for unless it is employed in teaching and presenting the message not much can be accomplished. To be earnest in any work is important, and it is more especially so in teaching and preaching the Gospel. While it is the same beautiful story it must be touched with inspiration and life in the teacher so as to give it a better and greater relish every time it is presented. Earnest about and attentive to His Father's business He went about doing good. If there was opposition to meet He was busy in representing the work He was sent to do. It is no wonder that so much of our work has failed to accomplish what men wanted and expected, because in many places we did not go about it with that spirit of earnest industry which it needed. Whenever we were earnest, regulating it with tact and discretion, and governing ourselves with deep religious influences, more satisfactory results were seen and felt by us. This has been the experience of many, and it helped to correct some of their mistakes.

Notice that the lessons taught were true and that they were to bless humanity and save the world. Truth is the one thing needful, and the most important principle in the formation of character. Deprive any one of this principle, or rather let him deprive himself of it, and his influence for good amounts to nothing. Even those who do not tell the truth admire it in, and expect it from, others. When Jesus reproved the Jews He said to them: "But now ye seek to kill me, a man that hath told you the truth, which I have heard of God: ye do the deeds of your father. Then said they to him, We be not born of fornication; we have one Father, even God. Jesus said unto them, If God were your Father, ye would love me, for I proceeded forth and came from God; neither came I of myself, but he sent me. Why do ye not understand my speech? Ye are of your father the devil, and the lust of your father ye will do. He was a murderer from the beginning, and abode not in the truth; because there was no truth in him. Because I tell you the truth, ye believe not." The reproving language here used is strong and convincing and is charged with power from Him who said, "I am the way, the truth, and the life."

Viewed in His simple, pure, earnest and true character, we behold Him in His divine nature willing and able to save all who seek pardon and salvation. When you look up among the constellated worlds you may partly understand why one star differs from another star, and feel that one star differs from another star in glory, but you wonder to think that you have such a vague conception of the divinity of Jesus. And while you understand but little of His immeasurable goodness and greatness, you believe that He is a rewarder of them who diligently seek Him.

The violet does not know why it is painted blue—but when touched by the warm sun, and bathed in the refreshing rain, it presents its smiling face and peeps out of its tiny bed to the admiration of the one who gathers it. So, in a similar manner, we do not fully comprehend the divinity of our Lord Jesus Christ, but we believe that in Him we live and move, and have our existence from Him, and that a life devoted to and filled with Him develops into a beautiful Christian character.

The course of teaching being completed, and all the work triumphantly done, these last words rolled from His dying lips: "It is finished."

J. T. Kitchen.

Windsor, Va.

IT MEANS MUCH.

I am thinking that very many Christian people in our land do not know how much it means to a Jew to come out openly before his countrymen in the community and make a confession of faith in Christ as his Savior. It is a vastly different thing in regard to one who already belongs to a Christian family, or one who is a free American citizen, having no particular religious creed. As soon as a Jew becomes an open believer in Christ he is the subject of great abuse and hatred, on the part of his former Jewish brethren. He is often cruelly persecuted by them, even by his nearest relatives. We can see, then, that it requires a great deal of both moral and physical courage in a Jew to become a follower of Christ. A converted Jew of this country, in a letter to another converted Jew, now doing mission work among his countrymen, says: "You know what it means for one of us to accept Jesus Christ, and come out publicly and openly as a Christian. You know the trials and persecutions that await us. I had not the moral courage to come out openly; but God would not leave me alone, and I could not help myself. I felt myself lost, entirely lost; so I threw myself unreservedly on the mercy of the Lord Jesus, and He has saved me, and the love of God is in me. I do not care what will become of me; I will proclaim the Lord Jesus Christ to my people."

As we think of what is involved in the conversion of these people we are enabled to better understand the experiences of those in Christ's day who broke away from Judaism and became His followers. We can better appreciate the sufferings of the many who ceased to be Jews and who openly declared their faith in Christ. There was far less likelihood of there being false professors of Christianity in apostolic times than there is now in our own land. It cost a Jew in that country a great deal to become an open Christian. Very different is it in our land today.

C. H. Wetherbe.

YOUNG MEN! If you want to know why you should become telegraph operators and what school to attend, write to SOUTHERN SCHOOL OF TELEGRAPHY, Newman, Ga., for free Catalogue "A." EVERY BOY should read it. Positions positively guaranteed.

When in Burlington call at
T. H. STROUD'S
Store for DRUGS, SOFT DRINKS, and anything desired in drugs and Toilet Articles.

MEDICINE.

We prepare as good medicine, the very best medicine that the finest, freshest, most potent drugs and chemicals will produce when carefully and skilfully compounded by an expert prescription man—just such medicine as your physician means that you should have, medicine of the utmost possible effectiveness. May we prepare your medicine?

FREEMAN DRUG CO.,
Burlington, N. C.

SPRING TIME.

The time for gardening is here and you need garden tools. We can supply you at lowest prices.

Poultry Wire.

The best assorted stock in the county. Four different styles and weight.

Come and See.

Remember plumbing and bath room fixtures, a speciality. You will find us on Davis St. third door from Post office.
BURLINGTON HARDWARE CO.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup

Has been used for over SIXTY-FIVE YEARS by MILLIONS of MOTHERS for their CHILDREN WHILE TEETHING with PERFECT SUCCESS. It SOOTHES the CHILD, SOFTENS the GUMS, ALLAYS all PAIN; CURES WIND COLIC, and is the best remedy for DIARRHOEA. Sold by Druggists in every part of the world. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Guaranteed under the Food and Drugs Act, June 30th, 1906. Serial Number 1098. AN OLD AND WELL TRIED REMEDY.

BIBLES FOR SALE.

I am selling, in Alamance County, Wilmore's New Analytical Reference Bible, the most thorough and complete Book for all who wish to study and understand the Bible on the market today. Sold only by subscription and I shall be glad to show it to you. Thousands of copies are being sold. Alfred Apple, Jr., Elon College, N. C.

RAISE MONEY FOR YOUR CHURCH.

We offer you an easy method. Send us a photograph of your church or your pastor, and we will send you 500 high grade post cards, with photograph on each card, and scripture verse if desired. Sell these cards at 10 cents each. When sold, remit us $20.00 and keep the balance. You can do this in a week. We will return photograph.

LAKE SHORE SUPPLY CO.,
225 Broad St., St. Joe, Michigan.

(Begun on page nine).

Our emotions are changed from weary pain, life becomes full of light and the heart sings continually in exquisite contentment. Sing on, and thank God for life and youth, which music makes grand and noble. The angel disappears like a dream and reappears to the song that is never sung.

Music, as a science, was begun in sacred song, and later developed in ancient Greece. The Psalmists of the Old Testament in exquisite joy and sad refrain, touched the key of human experience. In the sixth century St. Gregory invented the scale of eight, the basis of our modern music.

For several centuries after, music was given an impetus by many other devotees, but it remained for Bach, Heyden, Mozart, and Beethoven to give it a fuller and more complete form of development. Under Beethoven a soul blossomed into the Sonata and the symphony. His mission was to perfect instrumental music. He created powers of music, enrapturing forms of harmony, which penetrated to the depths of a divine art. These composers have opened up much that is classical and soul-satisfying, that the music world paused, not caring to go farther until it had studied their noble creations, so fruitful in soul-elevating influences.

Whence comes music? Whence the song never yet by mortal sung? Before man was, the Author of harmony created what we call the music of nature. In the music of nature we find such differing harmonies all blending in the sound of melody, issuing from the wind, wave and bird. From these man received his first impressions and with a wondering mind caught the charming melodies. This music of nature never expressed in words, shall last throughout eternity. It speaks through the several ages but with a wealth and depth of meaning, we cannot know when it has reached the crowning zenith.

Whence comes music? Go to the summerland woods. The trees, dressed in living green, the grassy carpet parted ever and anon by the gliding and gurgling brooklet. From singing birds, rippling brooks, and joyous hum of insects, blend sweet sounds of rare delight. These beauties and harmonies of nature, pleasantly affect the senses, but the crowning glory of the groves is the songs, the charming music of the birds, warbling from tree to tree. Recently it has been found that many of the songs of birds are sung in certain keys. Birds have been taught to sing our popular airs by placing them where they can hear only the tune to be learned. However these musicians do not require the aid of man. Their free, wild, glad-hearted notes are better as they are in pleasant contrast, freshness and variety to many other forms of music.

"O that I had the power

To set the proper words

To all your glorious melodies,

My sweet voiced birds.

Then words and dainty music

Would each to each belong.

Together we might give the world,—

A perfect song."

Whence comes music? Visit Niagara. Sit beside the cascade in our hill country. Musicians of a finely cultivated ear may study the tone of the waterfall and hear issuing from the cascade a majestic music. The notes C. E. F. D. belong to all falling waters and in the greatest falls often in different octaves. Small falls give the same notes one or two octaves higher. In the swifter rushing waters F is heard more distinctly, in the weaker C.

The wind is also one of nature's chief musicians. The wind in the pines, the rustle of the leaves, and the quiet swaying of the boughs are not lifeless things, but sing songs of their own. Trees when played upon by the wind, give forth a variety of tones.

Sir Walter Scott says: "Something might be done by the union of poetry and music to imitate these voices giving a different measure to the oak, the pine, the willow." These are only a few voices from nature's orchestra.

Our world is a vast whispering gallery. The geologist, listening to the rocks, hears rhythm and harmony. The listening astronomer, gazing into the bright heavens, hears the music of the rolling spheres.

Nature has a message and a song for attentive hearers. Still the human ear catches only echoes of the Creator's voice.

"The Father spake—a dream that had been lying,

Hushed from eternity in silence there,
Heard the pure melody, and low replying,

Grew to such music in the wandering air,

Grew to such music, slowly grandly waking,

Till, bathed in beauty, it became a world;

And where-so-e'er in His rich creation,
Sweet music breathes in wave, in bird, and soul,

'Tis but the faint and far reverberation
Of that great tune in which the planets roll."

And will these unuttered melodies ever be sung? Yes, if you and I like the believing shepherds, watch and long for His appearing; one day we too shall hear a music grander and sweeter than the song of angels. When the great composer shall transpose all the strains of earth from the minor into the major, when the wall of nature shall give way to the glad harmony of the everlasting jubilee.

LOVE IS LAVISH.

Love does not measure its gifts by a foot rule or by dollars and cents. It gives good measure, pressed down, shaken together and running over. We all remember the woman who brought an alabaster box of very costly ointment and poured it on the head of Jesus. She did not spare the precious treasure when she knew her Lord yearned for some slight expression of appreciation. He was going up and down in the world doing good, but His good deeds were not appreciated. Men hated Him, scorned His works and words, reviled Him and persecuted Him. Mary loved Him. He had done good in her home. Had He not brought back her brother from the cold, dark grave, and restored him to his sisters? She loved Him because He first loved her, and nothing was too good to offer Him.

But some who stood by murmured and said, "To what purpose is all this waste?" They used a strong term, "waste." But it was right. Love is wasteful, extravagant, reckless in the best sense. An eminent Scotch minister has recently published an interesting sermon on Love's Wastefulness. This title expresses an important thought. Love gives all. It is never niggardly. It is not overnice about overdoing.

When a young man gives a costly diamond ring to his betrothed his neighbors say he gave a large gift; but if this is all he gave he would better have kept it. If he loves her he will give all. If anything is kept back there is lack of love. God is a lavish giver. "God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son." He loves us so much that He gives all He has and himself in the bargain. Let no penurious soul, who tries to shirk his duty in the matter of giving when the world is dying for help and God is calling on men to give, think that he is in love with God. He may be in love with his money, or in love with the world, or in love with himself, but he is not in love with God. The love of God is not shed abroad in his heart by the Holy Ghost.—N. Y. Christian Advocate.

—Bro. J. F. Morgan is working for the Sun in the W. N. C. Conf. Help him.

OPEN TO SUMMER BOARDERS.

Elon College Boarding Hall.

The New Young Ladies' Dormitory and Boarding Hall at Elon College, N. C., has been opened for Summer Boarders who desire a nice, quiet, healthful place for a few weeks' rest.

The only attractions offered:—

1. Complete rest and quiet.
2. The finest pure, cold water.
3. A beautiful shady campus of 25 acres.
4. The College Library and Reading room open to guests free a part of each day.
5. Lawn Tennis, Croquet, Base Ball, "Marbles," "Horse Shoes," and "Mumble-peg."
6. Two livery stables, and good roads.
7. Near-by points: Alamance Battle Ground (9 miles), "Pyle's Hacking-Match" Grounds (5 miles), Burlington (4 miles), Graham (6 miles), Greensboro (17 miles), Raleigh (60 miles).
8. The river and other fishing places from 3 to 5 miles away.
9. Good wholesome fare—fresh milk and butter from the College dairy, and fresh vegetables from the College gardens.
10. On Southern Railway, 17 miles east of Greensboro, and on the main Automobile road from Raleigh to Greensboro and western parts of the State.
11. Telegraph and Express offices, and Long-distance Telephone connection with all points.
12. Splendid, new three story building, clean, neatly furnished. Building supplied with hot and cold water. Bath and toilet rooms on each floor.
13. Very low rates—$15.00 a month, $5.00 a week, $1.25 a day. In short, an ideal place, in the Piedmont Section, for those seeking rest and recuperation, rather than the usual Summer Resort diversions and amusements.

Open from June 10 to August 17. For further particulars address

Rev. J. W. Wellons.

Elon College, N. C.

—Ambassador Jusserand, June 5, presented to the city of San Francisco, on behalf of the French government, a gold medal commemorative of the rebuilding of the city from the destruction by earthquake and fire April, 1906. Ambassador Jusserand first heard of the great disaster April 20, 1906, just as he rose to accept on behalf of his government a gold medal given by the American government to the French government as a token of appreciation of the cordial reception given to Benjamin Franklin by the French government during the War of the Revolution.

—The many friends of Miss Bronna Clymer, of Greensboro, eldest daughter of Bro. L. M. Clymer, will be glad to know that she is improving rapidly under a recent operation for appendicitis at the St. Leo's Hospital.

USE OUR MONEY
Establish a profitable and lasting business of your own. Be your own boss. We furnish everything, including Sample Outfit valued at $3.50. We began with nothing; are now worth $100,000; what we did you can do; we will gladly help you. Big Catalog, Plans and Sample Outfit now ready and ALL FREE. Write now.
A SNAP
For LIVE
AGENTS
Consolidated Portrait & Frame Co., 290-10 W. Adams St., Chicago, Ill.

The North Carolina
COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE AND MECHANIC ARTS.

The State's college for vocational training. Courses in Agriculture and Horticulture; in Civil, Electrical and Mechanical Engineering; in Cotton Milling and Dyeing; in Industrial Chemistry. Why not fit yourself for life by taking one of these courses? Address

D. H. HILL, President,
 West Raleigh, N. C.

Books for Every Christian Home.

Do you know why you are a member of the Christian Church? Do you understand what the church stands for and teaches? If not, send and get a copy of the "Principles and Government of the Christian Church," just revised and greatly improved by order of the Southern Christian Convention.

Cloth binding per copy, post paid 50 cts.
 Limp Cloth binding per copy, post paid 35 cts.
 Paper binding per copy, post paid 25 cts.

Handsome Persian Morocco, with name in gilt $1.25.
 The Southern Christian Convention also Ordered Another Book Published, PREPARING THE SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER TO TEACH. Edited by Profs. W. A. Harper, W. C. Wicker and W. P. Lawrence.

The book is neatly printed and bound and is invaluable to the Sunday-school worker, 236 pages.
 Paper binding per copy, postpaid, 60 cts.
 Cloth binding per copy, postpaid, 90 cts.
 To Sunday-schools, paper binding 50 cts. cloth 75 cts.

Have You Read That Thrilling and Inspiring Story of His Own Life, MOTHER'S ANSWERED PRAYER, BY REV. P. H. FLEMING, D. D.?
 Cloth binding, postpaid 55 cts.

All these books should be in your home. Order at once
 For sale by, THE CHRISTIAN SUN, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

IT'S INTERESTING

to hear the different comments on different Shoes. All shoes have some good points; Style or comfort or service.

WALK-OVER SHOES

have all the good points; style and comfort and service and their price is the best point of all. $3.50, 4.00 & 5.00.

Foster Shoe Co., Burlington, N. C.

Dry Goods, Notions, Ready Made Clothing.

When in Burlington visit our large store, supplied always with the very best and latest styles and novelties.

Our Dry Goods are of latest designs, and our Ready Made Clothing cannot be surpassed in quality and price.

Come, See. Be Convinced.

B. A. SELLARS & SONS. BURLINGTON, N. C.

D I E L.

Stout.

Whereas, William Ernest Stout, a member of our Sunday school, has been called by his heavenly Father, and has triumphantly passed over the river, therefore be it

Resolved, 1st, That the Ramseur Christian Sunday School has lost one of its brightest members and Class No. 4 one of its most efficient pupils, but we bow in humble submission to Him who "doeth all things well."

Resolved, 2d, That we extend to the bereaved family our deepest sympathy and recommend them to the comforting promises, the tender mercies, and loving kindness of God.

Resolved, 3d, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the records of our Sunday school, as a memorial, and the secretary furnish copies to the family and to the Christian Sun and Ashboro Courier for publication.

(Signed)

Mrs. I. H. Foust,

Mrs. M. C. Felton,

Mrs. T. A. Moffitt,

Committee.

Diana Iola Davis.

Mrs. Diana Iola Davis, the beautiful and devoted wife of Brother "Jef" Davis, Newport News, Va., and youngest daughter of the late Geo. W. Wynn, peacefully passed away May 13, 1909, at the home of her brother-in-law, the Rev. Mr. Moore, near Danville, Va. She was born Feb. 7, 1887, and married about two and a half years ago. She leaves a husband, an infant of ten months, mother, two sisters and two half brothers, besides a wide circle of friends. Funeral services were conducted from Trinity M. E. Church, this city, where her husband is an active and useful member, by the writer, and the pastor, Rev. E. T. Dadman.

Death is always sad, and especially so when the young and beautiful just beginning to drink of the streams of love and peace, are taken. It is difficult to determine which is the saddest sorrow, but there can be but few if any equal to the separation by death of companions where the two lives have fully entered into each other and become one: where love and devotion have so beautifully woven into one the sorrows and joys, the songs and tears, of the two lives. Divine grace supports the young husband, as in the fresh and vigorous years of life, he weeps in love and devotion over the new grave of her who seemed to be all to him, and whose life had so certainly blessed him and become a part of his own life. Love of child and friend may bless and cheer, but the loneliness of the chambers of the soul can only be fully met by the Comforter. "Iola" was loved by all, and in the home of her parents where she went a bride and lived she was loved as but few daughters-in-law are loved. To those who weep her removal seems mysterious, but we know that the affections have been enlared and purified by her little stay in our midst, life and memory are richer, and the world has been made better. She was a member of East End Christian Church, and possessed a most hopeful spirit. Murdock W. Butler.

"The Oxford Teachers' par excellence Bible is the Bible of the World."

JUST ISSUED!

OXFORD
Teachers' Bibles and
S. S. Scholars' Bibles
With New 20th Century Helps arranged in One Alphabetical Order.

THE HELPS
The Christian Advocate, Nashville, says: "The helps are real helps. Unlike those in many of the cheap Bibles, they are not simply thrown together in hodge-podge fashion, but represent the freshest and ablest work of the foremost modern scholars."

Address Christian Sun,
Elon College, N. C.

ASK FOR THE OXFORD EDITION

OXFORD
Black Faced Type
BIBLES

Three on Oxford White Paper. Three on the famous Oxford India Paper.

PEARL 32mo. A wonderful clear type in a small-size book.

MINION 16m7. Ready October 1907. A model hand Bible.

BREVIER 16mo. Large type in small compass. "A quart in a pint measure."

"The new Bible just published by the Oxford Press is, without doubt, the finest product of the kind ever given to the public."

REMEMBER: That we guarantee satisfaction and sell to you cheaper than the publisher and dealers do. Our business is by mail and express and prices quoted are the prices of goods delivered to you. We can furnish you the Oxford, or the Holman Teacher's Bible at prices ranging from $1.35 to $4.00. Send for our catalogue or write us what you want. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN, Elon College, N. C.

Horner Military School
1851 - 1909.
Oxford, North Carolina

Classical, Scientific and English Courses. Prepares for College, University or the Government Academies. Military training develops prompt obedience and manly carriage. Academy 58 years old, with experienced teachers. Cadets dine with the principal and ladies of his family, securing the culture of home life. Cultivates and educates. Modern buildings, perfect sanitation, wholesome fare, no crowding. Best moral, mental, physical and social training. Shady lawn, athletic park, one quarter mile running track, 300 acres. Ideal climate, helpful environment. In the social atmosphere of refined Christian people. The town noted for over a century as an educational centre.

Catalogues ready for distributing
HORNER MILITARY SCHOOL
Col. J. C. Horner, Principal, Oxford, N. C.

A PURITAN CAPTAIN

BY EMMANUEL C. CHARLTON, PH. D.

This thrilling tale of sea adventure is based on actual experience and is told in the author's own natural manner, which is made the more impressive because of his long experience as a seaman, and Christian worker among his fellow-craftsmen. The story is specially attractive to all classes. The moral is of a high character. There is not a dull chapter in it.

This beautifully bound book, printed from good, clear type, on first quality paper, containing nearly 270 pages, sold for $1.00. Address all orders to

J. N. HESS

Agent of the

Christian Publishing Association

DAYTON, OHIO

Hargroves.

Dr. Legare Hargroves, of Deans, Va., died at the Sarah Leigh Hospital, Norfolk, Va., June 16, 1909, after a severe illness of two weeks, aged 40 years. The funeral services were conducted at the home of Mr. Walter Jordan, brother-in-law of the deceased, Suffolk, Va., by the writer, assisted by Revs. I. W. Johnson, W. L. Jones, and A. C. Berryman. The remains were interred in the family plot in Cedar Hill cemetery. The deceased leaves a widow, who was Miss Martha Driver, daughter of the late Elliott J. Driver and wife, one daughter about ten years of age, one sister, Mrs. Walter Jordan, Suffolk, Va., and one half brother, C. H. Hargroves, Norfolk, Va. Dr. Hargroves was born and reared in Nansemond County, Va., near Deans, and had been a practising physician in the same community for more than fifteen years. He was deservedly popular both as a physician and friend, possessing culture and skill in his profession as well as a kindly heart and genial disposition. The community sustains a great loss in his death, to say nothing of the home in which he had been a loving and faithful husband and father. The sincerest sympathy of a host of friends goes out to the sorrowing family, but especially to his faithful companion who must sorrow most of all. May a loving Father lead safely "through the valley of the shadow" into the light of His glorious presence.

N. G. Newman.

Livesay.

Whereas, Almighty God in His divine wisdom saw fit, on the 8th day of June, 1909, to take from our Sunday school and choir one of our brightest members, Sister Trueheart Rebecca, wife of M. P. Livesay, therefore be it resolved:

That we, the members of the Christian Sunday school of Dendron, Va., tender our sincere sympathy to the bereaved ones. We pray that they may accept this painful dispensation as from Him who doeth all things well, believing that our loss is her eternal gain.

That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, also to The Christian Sun, and be spread on the minutes of the Sunday school.

Mrs. A. J. Cotten,
Mrs. J. S. Hobson,
Mrs. J. E. Scott,
Committee.

REDUCED RATES ON RALEIGH & SOUTHPORT RAILWAY ON JULY 5, 1909, TO RALEIGH, FUQUAY SPRINGS, FAYETTEVILLE.

On July 5th (which will be observed

[ EDUCATIONAL ]

The University of North Carolina
1789—1909

Schools of Liberal Arts	Engineering	Graduate
Law	Medicine	Pharmacy

Large Equipment, Modern Laboratories, New Library with 55,000 Vols.
Able Faculty of 93 teachers. Students numbered 786. Thorough instruction. High standard. Healthful location. Expenses low for high-grade institution. For a catalogue and fuller information address
THE PRESIDENT, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Horner Military School.
1851-1909.

J. C. Horner, Principal, Oxford, N. C.

Classical, Scientific and English Courses. Prepares for college, university or the government academies. Military training develops prompt obedience and military carriage. Academy 58 years old with experienced teachers. Cadets dine with the principal and ladies of his family, securing the culture of home life. Cultivates and educates. Modern buildings, perfect sanitation, wholesome fare, no crowding. Best moral, mental, physical, and social training. Shady lawn, athletic park, one quarter mile running track, 300 acres. Ideal climate, helpful environment. In the social atmosphere of refined Christian people. The town noted for over a quarter of a century as an educational center.

as the 4th on account of the 4th coming no Sunday), this company will sell round trip tickets from all stations to Raleigh, Fuquay Springs, and Fayetteville for one fare for the round trip, with a minimum charge of 25 cents. Tickets good to return not later than July 7.

Schedule for July 5, 1909.

Southbound
No. 51 will leave Raleigh 8 a. m., arrive Fayetteville 11 a. m.

No. 55 will leave Raleigh 6:30 p. m., arrive Fayetteville 9:30 p. m.

Northbound
No. 55 will leave Fayetteville 7:30 a. m., arrive Raleigh 10:30 a. m.

No. 52 will leave Fayetteville 5 p. m., arrive Raleigh 8 p. m.

Important Notice.

The attention of the traveling public is called to the fact that on account of above mentioned changes from regular schedule, trains 52, 54 and 55 will not make their regular advertised connections on above date.

J. A. Mills, President,
H. D. Bunch,
Sol. Pass'r Agt.

DO YOU WANT TO GO TO COLLEGE? If so we can help you. We have already put hundreds through college by means of our plan. Write today for full information regarding our offer of a free scholarship in any school or college. Address, Robert J. Sherlock, 29-31 East 22nd Street, New York City.

DR. JNO. H. BROOKS,
—DENTIST—

Nine years practice. Recent degree from Philadelphia Dental College and Garretson Hospital of Oral Surgery.

To Drive Out Malaria and Build up the System.

Take the Old Standard GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC. You know what you are taking. The formula is plainly printed on every bottle, showing it is simply Quinine and Iron in a tasteless form, and the most effectual form. For grown people and children. 50c.

A remarkable offer by one of the leading ear specialists in this country, who will send two month's medicine free to prove his ability to cure Deafness, Head Noises, and Catarrh. Address Dr. G. M. Branaman, 1100 Walnut Street, Kansas City, Mo.

RALEIGH & SOUTHPORT RY. Co.

P. M. A. M.	STATIONS.	A. M. P. M.
1:15 6:00	Raleigh	8:30 3:45
1:54 6:24	McCullers	7:52 3:03
2:11 6:59	Willow Sp'gs	7:37 2:45
2:23 7:14	Varina	7:27 2:34
2:35 7:26	Fuquay Sp'gs	7:19 2:25
2:55 7:45	Kipling	7:00 2:05
3:15 8:05	Lillington	6:41 1:44
3:41 8:28	Linden	6:15 1:17
4:30 9:15	Fayetteville	5:30 12:30

JNO. A. MILLS, Pres. and Gen. Mgr.

ADVERTISING DEPARTMENT

For Advertising Rates Apply

Religious Press Advertising Syndicate
(Jacobs & Company)

Home Office, Clinton, S. C., who have charge of the advertising department of this paper.

Jacobs &amp; Company, J. F. Jacobs, J. D. Jacobs. Home Office; Clinton, S. S..

PERSONALLY CONDUCTED

—TOUR—

"AROUND THE CONTINENT"

Over the Rocky Mountains to the Pacific, the Alaska-Yukon Exposition, Los Angeles During the Elks National Convention and Through the Yellowstone National Park—Via the

SEABORD AIR LINE RAILWAY
in charge of

Mr. C. H. Gattis, District Passenger Agent, Raleigh, N. C., and Chaperoned by Mrs. C. H. Gattis over the entire trip.

Leaves July 3rd, returns August 6th, circling the United States in a solid Pullman train composed of the highest grade and modern design of sleeping compartment observation cars and Pullman dining cars.

The most inexpensive trip ever operated from the Southeast, through Atlanta, Birmingham, Memphis, stopping at Kansas City, Denver, Colorado Springs, Salt Lake, Los Angeles, Santa Barbara, Montgomery, Santa Cruz, San Francisco, Portland, Seattle, Tacoma, Spokane, through Yellowstone National Park, St. Paul, Chicago, returning home through Cincinnati and C. &amp; O. through Richmond.

Trip cost will include railroad and Pullman fares, hotels, dining car meals, stage ride of five (5) and one-half (½) days through the Yellowstone National Park, transfers, side trips, carriage and automobile rides at stop-over points and all actual expenses necessary.

Side trips will be arranged at all stop-over points to places of interest, all details being arranged in advance and looked after enroute.

An attractive 33-day trip through the "Greatest Country in the World" covering a distance of 8,755 miles of travel in a modern Pullman train with superb dining car service, eating and sleeping in the best of hotels, sight-seeing "The Wonders of the West" leisurely, with all details arranged in advance is a lux-

Write at once to the undersigned for cost of trip, schedule and itinerary. If maps, timetables and booklets of the lines over which the party will travel, are desired, send 30 cents in stamps.

C. H. GATTIS,
District Passenger Agent,
Raleigh, N. C.

—Dr. Torrey, an evangelist of world wide reputation, is conducting a series of meetings in Winston, this State, and is meeting with success; though it is too early yet to forecast results. The modern evangelistic meeting that counts in consequences holds for two, three, or even more weeks. Dr. Torrey has trained singers and trained personal workers.

Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Is paying out and investing in both Virginia and North Carolina more than it receives from these States.

New business in Virginia, 1908,
$2,147,800

Larger than any other company.

Gain in insurance in force in Virginia, 1908,
$1,374,975

60 per cent more than the next largest.

T. ARCHIBALD CARY, General Agent for Virginia and North Carolina,
Richmond, Virginia.During 1908

(As in previous years)

We want you in our business, for we have what you want in your homes—the very best, most substantial and handsome furniture at bottom prices. We are also the undertakers.

Burke Furniture and Coffin Company

BURLINGTON, N. C.

Southern Railway

Operating Over 7,000 Miles of Railway.

Quick Route to all Points North,
South, East and West.For Speed, Comfort, Courteous Employees, travel via the Southern Railway.

Rates, Schedules and other information furnished by any of the undersigned.

R. L. VERNON, Trav. Pass. Agt.,
Charlotte, N. C.J. H. WOOD, Dist. Pass. Agt.,
Asheville, N. C.

S. H. HARDWICK, P. T. M.,

W. H. TAYLOE, G. P. A.,

Washington, D. C.

Elon College.*Co-educational. Established 1890.

Thorough College courses leading to M. A., A. B., and Ph. B. degrees. Strong and experienced Faculty with highest University training. Good Library, Reading Room, Laboratories, Literary Societies. Excellent Music, Art, Elocution and Business Departments. Diploma from Elon admits to graduate departments in the highest universities.

Beautiful and healthful location, 17 miles east of Greensboro on Southern Railway. Best moral and religious influence. No hazing. New students met by reception committees from young people's Christian organizations connected with the college. Good equipment. A large new dormitory, with modern conveniences, has recently been built to meet the requirements of growing patronage.

EXPENSES UNUSUALLY MODERATE. FALL TERM OPENS SEPT. 1ST.

For catalogue or further information, address

EMMETT L. MOFFITT, LL. D., President.

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

—Mrs. Howard Gould has been suing her husband for complete divorce and an allowance of $250,000 a year to live upon. The court granted the divorce, but said she must get along on $36,000 a year of the Gould millions, though she may receive her dowry of $3,000,000 in the years to come. It was all quite a disgraceful showing of how wickedly a woman in high life may live. But, we should think that even a former actress could manage somehow on $3,000 a month.

—The summer Boarding Hall at Elon College, advertisement of which has before appeared and is today also appearing in The Sun, deserves the attention and merits the patronage of all who are in need of a holiday season of rest and recreation. There is no better place to rest and recreate than at Elon College—the roomy campus, the towering shade trees, the icy water from the deep wells, the balmy atmosphere all charm to calm and sweet and delicious repose.

The Christian Sun.

In Essentials—Unity, in State Essentials—Liberty, in All Things—Charity.

ESTABLISHED 1844.

GREENSBORO N. C., WEDNESDAY, JULY 7, 1909.

VOLUME LXI. NUMBER 26.

Murder and Missions. The country was shocked a few days since, when it was learned that a Chinaman in New York had murdered Miss Sigel, a granddaughter of a distinguished man, and had hidden her body in a trunk, and made good his escape.

Immediately the papers took it up and unnumbered columns have been written about the mean, sneaking, incorrigible Chinese, a people who cannot be converted to Christianity, and are willing to profess conversion only to get the opportunity of slaying their teachers and murdering their benefactors. It has been heralded everywhere that Miss Sigel was a Christian who was working in a mission in New York and that Leon Ling, her slayer, was a professed convert to the gospel she taught. And then the warning has been sent in a thousand directions that the time has come for American women to quit trying to teach Chinamen Christianity. Now after so much has been said, what are the facts in the case? To hear the other side will at least be just.

Lee Rowe, head of the Mott Street Mission, N. Y., in reply to a question writes: "Miss Sigel never taught at any mission. A few years ago her mother taught at 125th Street, at a Congregational Church for Chinese. In the last few years she has not taught at all. Leon Ling (the murderer) was not a Christian. When in Philadelphia he used to go to a Chinese mission once in a while. Since he has been in New York he never attended any mission for Chinese."

T. G. Hom, president of the Chinese Young Men's Christian Association, has written: "Never before have we known or heard of a crime of this character having been committed by a Chinese. This is not the first 'trunk mystery' we have heard of and it is more than likely that Leon Ling got the idea from lessons printed in the newspapers regarding like crimes committed by those born and educated in this Christian land. * * * The excellent work of the Chinese missions should not be allowed to lapse because one man departs from the teachings of both the Christian and his native moral codes."

There seems to be sense in this position and sanity finally prevails over passion and prejudice.

The News. Rev. Dr. Torrey, an evangelist of world-wide fame, is conducting a great and successful series of meetings at Winston-Salem, N. C. A person who is reliable told the writer that the audience room in which Dr. Torrey was speaking held about 5,000 persons and was about filled at every service, and sometimes crowded; that up to last Sunday night there had been about one thousand conversions and that the city was much moved and the people deeply interested. A friend told us that who was present last Sunday.

Some one must needs tell us, for we saw nothing of it in the papers.

Opening a great State daily, Tuesday morning we glanced at the head-lines to learn "the news." Above the date of Winston-Salem in great, glaring letters were the words, "Crushed to Death." "Negro Meets Horrible Accident." And the Winston-Salem news was about the way this unfortunate man met a terrible death. There was never a word about the great meeting going on and the great events transpiring in Winston-Salem which make for the moral and civic betterment of that good city in the years to come. The morning news was of a negro's death.

The contrast between what was, and what incidentally happened, made us wonder, What Is News? Is humanity so interested in the tragic, the awful, the bloody, the horrible, that it does not care for the good, the wholesome, the helpful? Newspapers generally try to give what is of most interest to readers. And so it is far more interesting to read of one horrible death than to read of a great movement for a city's salvation. What is the news? "The news" of a community, that which travels fastest and furthest, is usually the bad, seldom the good.

John D. Deacon Rockefeller is not all bad. In fact about all the bad we ever heard of him was that he had many millions, very many, quite all of which he acquired by divers and devious methods of trade and commerce. And who knows but our feeling is mixed with envy?

At any rate John D. Rockefeller has some of the most admirable and worthy traits of any very rich man we read about. He is a man of deep personal piety. He loves his church. He is a strict attendant at Sunday school. Has attended Sunday school well nigh every Sunday for 56 years. Last Sunday at his home school at Cleveland, Ohio, he told the children of his school:

"I want to tell you that joining this Sunday school was the best thing I ever did," he said. "And this is the happiest Fourth I have spent in a long time."

"It's too bad we haven't any fire-crackers," observed an urchin.

"Oh, no," cried Mr. Rockefeller. "You might get blown up if you had. When I came to Cleveland, a boy 14 years old, I was attending school and boarding at an old house on Erie Street," he said. "I went past that house yesterday and it recalled old times. But the unfortunate thing for me was that my landlady told me that Deacon Sked had a Sunday school class and that I ought to join. This was the beginning of my life in the Sunday school and church and I have been happy ever since. My friends, what varied experiences we have. Some of us complain of the trials we have; some of us even of the sunshine that comes into our lives. We should all be happy. We need to know how to keep the good and forget the wrong; to appreciate the blessings which God showers upon us."

—Cotton bagging has been placed on the free list by Congress.

—At midnight, June 30, the whole State of Tennessee passed under the protecting arm of a state-wide prohibition law enacted by the legislature last winter. Memphis, with its 600 saloons, has the honor of being the largest city yet made dry by the modern sweep of prohibition.

—There are those who believe that there are as many Indians on this continent now as were here when Columbus came. There is no way of telling for the red man kept no census. Government statistics show, however, that there are 10,000 more Indians in Canada now than were there ten years ago.

FROM THE FIELD.

Six Forks.

I was at Ebenezer and Six Forks fourth Sunday in June. On reaching Six Forks my eyes were delighted with the appearance of the house. It had been changed to a beautiful white, set off with nice trimmings. The pulpit and aisles were covered with a beautiful carpet. The folks at Six Forks know how to do nice things. Miss Eula Lassiter, the faithful organist, expects to be at Elon College next year.

Ebenezer.

Ebenezer seemed to be more interested, having reorganized the Sunday school, and showing greater endeavor in the work. Six Forks is also pushing the Sunday school work.

W. G. Clements.

Holland, Va.

The fourth Sunday in June was a good day with the church. The balance of our conference assessments, $115.00, was raised in twenty-two minutes. The missionary society met in the afternoon and a beautiful program was well rendered by the children. The collection was about $12.00. A number of visitors were present and all seemed pleased with the day. Special thanks are due the kind ladies who trained the children with so much labor and care and all who assisted them.

N. G. Newman.

Nansemond Notes.

It has been several weeks since I wrote a letter under the above caption. This has been due to sickness in my family for three months. My health has not been good since the first of the year. About the first of March my wife was taken sick with fever. About the first of April I was also the victim of malarial fever. My wife developed a stubborn case of typhoid, and we both went to Lakeview Sanitarium. Here we remained for six weeks, under the care of two splendid physicians, Drs. Harrell and Rawles, and two trained nurses. I am glad to say we are both gaining strength, and will, we trust, be able to resume our regular work in a few weeks.

During all this sickness we have been the recipients of many kindnesses from friend whose help, sympathy and friendship we shall always remember with gratitude and pleasure. While at the sanitarium we received all the attention which could possibly be given in such an institution. I am aware that many people have a horror of even entering a hospital in order to see the sick; others would not consent under any conditions to become a patient, unless it was the last effort to save life. Mrs. Johnson and I were so ably treated by physicians and tenderly cared for by patient nurses that we shall carry in our memory many thoughts of gratitude for recovery, under the guidance of our Heavenly Father. Doctor Rawles will be remembered by many former Elon College students as Jape Rawles. Dr. Harrell is also well known to all Sun readers and others who have visited Cypress Chapel in recent years. These two physicians, and Dr. E. R. Hart, own and operate Lakeview Sanitarium, and they are meeting with well deserved success. It gives me very great pleasure to express, in this way, our thanks to physicians, nurses, and all the kind friends who so faithfully rendered aid and assistance, in so many ways, during our sickness.

My churches have been very kind and generous towards us during this time of affliction. I have missed several appointments, some of which were filled by Rev. J. T. Kitchen, and one by Bro. Stanley Harrell. To these brethren I wish to express my appreciation and thanks. I have been forced to neglect nearly all of my pastoral duties, but my people have been very considerate, and I am hoping to be able to do more by the first of September.

I. W. Johnson.

NOTICE. NOTICE. NOTICE.

Pastors and Sunday School Superintendents in the Western North Carolina Conference:

See that you and the delegates from your churches make arrangements to attend your Sunday school convention which meets with Poplar Branch Church July 23, 24, 25. This church is located in Lee County. Delegates and visitors will be met at Jonesboro and Lemon Springs. Notify B. F. Hunt, chairman entertainment committee, Jonesboro, N. C. Come and we will have the best convention in the history of our conference.

E. L. Stack, Sec. and Treas.

$1.35 WILL PAY FOR A YARD OF LAND IN PONCE, PORTO RICO, ON WHICH TO ERECT A CHURCH BUILDING.

Dear Brethren of the Christian Church:

Cannot a sufficient number of the laity and ministers each pay for one or more yards of the prospective lot in Ponce, Porto Rico, for Bro. D. P. Barrett? To do this means encouragement for Bro. Barrett in his work, and to fail to do it is to embarrass him. For a sufficient number of us to pay for one or more yards will be a small offering for us, but it would mean much for Bro. Barrett and the dear cause he has espoused.

Come, brethren, let us pull together, and send at once an amount for one or more yards to Bro. J. G. Bishop, Dayton, Ohio, and secure the lot at once and thereby make our dear missionary's heart leap for joy. This is a simple plan, but quite sufficient if we take the interest in it that we should. I send up my amount with this proposition.

Yours in hope,

Pittsboro, N. C. P. T. Klapp,

NOTICE OF RESIGNATION.

Dear Brother Editor: Will you please publish this notice of my resignation of Durham Main Street Christian Church, to take effect at Eastern N. C. Conference. A. P. Barbee.

THE YOUNG PEOPLE'S MOVEMENT

The editor of The Sun must have had a severe case of the "blues" last week. On his editorial page he takes occasion to preach the funeral of the Young People's Movement. This movement is only about a month old. Certainly our brother does not expect us to bring about a revolution in that length of time.

We have not said much since the Convention for the reason that the Executive Committee has been busy with the election of a field secretary through whom we hope to speak in the columns of The Sun from time to time.

We are glad to announce the election of Prof. W. A. Harper, who will also edit the Young People's Department in The Sun.

Most assuredly the Young People's Movement is not dead. Such interest and enthusiasm as was manifested during the sessions of the Convention at Elon College a few weeks ago does not die in a day—no, not in years. The Young People's Movement has come to stay.

We may have "seen visions and dreamed dreams," but that isn't all. In a movement as important as that which has been launched, it does not pay to go too fast nor to do things too hurriedly. We need to lay our plans well in the beginning and then work these plans to a finish. The President of the Convention is one of these individuals that believes in going slowly but surely. We have not had time yet to thoroughly acquaint the officers of the Convention and the members of the various committees with their duties.

It is not our purpose to turn the Christian Church up side down nor work any great revolution, and even if it were we had not had the time yet in these past few weeks to even get in touch with those who were elected to the various positions and get the work outlined before us. "A Christian Endeavor Society in every church and a Teacher-Training and an organized class in every Sunday school" is our motto and we intend to live up to it or at least make a desperate effort to do so.

The editor of The Sun is a part of this Young People's Movement as he was an important factor in the Convention which gave it birth, and we don't want to begin to talk about funerals and burials yet awhile. All we ask is that the friends of the movement everywhere keep an eye on the columns of The Sun and join heart and hand with us in making our motto a reality and in thus using the heretofore wasted talent of our young people to the greatest possible advantage in the work of the church.

S. M. Smith, President.

HOW TO CONDUCT THE CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR SOCIETY FOR JULY . 11th—A FEW SUGGESTIONS.

Life Lessons for Me from the Gospel of John: John 14:1-21.

For the leader.—Give the society some slight account of John, the beloved disciple, the keynote of whose writings is, "God is Love." Recall that he was once styled "Son of Thunder" and then picture how under the benign influences of the Savior his fiery, selfish nature softened and mellowed and ripened into one of the noblest, sweetest characters of all history, until it was given him to write this Fourth Gospel, the epistles on love which bear his name, and the Revelation, in many respects the most wonderful book in the New Testament. Coming particularly to the Fourth Gospel, which has been called the world's best-loved piece of writing, tell of John's purpose in its composition, which he states in the 31st verse of its 20th chapter. Its thesis, then, is the divinity of Christ, which John proves by many infallible arguments, by revealing to us the very heart of Christ. Farrar says of it: "The first three evangelists give us diverse aspects of one glorious landscape. St. John pours over that landscape a flood of heavenly sunlight which seems to transfigure its very character, though every feature of the landscape remains the same."

For the older members.—Assign a verse of the evening Scripture Lesson to each for original comment, seeking to deduce pithy, spiritual teachings in a sentence or two.

For the less experienced members.—Hand out the following scripture references to be read: Jesus, the Life and the Light, John 1:1-13; How Jesus Found Me, John 1:40-51; Heavenly Things, John 3:12-21; The Living Fount, John 4:10-14, 7:37; The Living Bread, John 6:52-59; The Pledge of Life, John 20:1-18.

Suggestive Program.

1. Song, followed by Prayer or Chain of prayer.
2. Scripture Lesson, read by some one appointed by leader beforehand.
3. Leader's Remarks.
4. Song and Prayer.
5. Responses to work handed out by leader, interspersed with song and prayer.
6. Voluntary Work by Members and Visitors, including Scripture References of their own choice, words of testimony, etc.
7. Pastor's Five Minutes.
8. Song. Offering. Mizpah.

LESSONS FROM LIVES OF GREAT MEN.

III. Sir Walter Scott Continued.

By W. P. Lawrence, M. A.

It is not infrequently the case, that when a man has outstripped his fellows in some particular field of endeavor, and finds himself in undisputed possession of the highest point of attainment, unexpectedly to find some other man, like a ghost, rising up and leaping beyond him, leaving him to nurse the uncomfortable thought that he has been outclassed. This was Scott's experience as a poet, in 1812, when Byron, like a new star, attracted all eyes to a different part of the literary heavens. The thought that one's glory must pale while one yet lives, is by no means pleasure-giving. But this was the experience that Sir Walter was now facing. In poetry he had done his best. There was no use trying to win back lost glory. There was, indeed, the field of fiction, romance, the novel. But to be a romancer, a novelist, was not thought nearly so honorable as to be a poet. The art of poetry in the English language was older than the art of prose, as also in all other literary languages. English poetry could claim Chaucer, Shakespeare, Milton, and others scarcely less distinguished. But what had prose to show in the way of illustrious men? Dryden, who died in 1700, less than a hundred years before Scott was born, is regarded as the father of modern English prose, and, too, he was more of a poet than a prose writer. Then, a half a century after Dryden, there came four men who wrote fiction. They were, Samuel Richardson, Henry Fielding, Tobias Smollet, and Daniel Defoe. They were the founders of modern romance and the English novel. Then came Horace Walpole and his followers, called Gothic romancers. Walpole was the son of an English Prime Minister, and, being in high social life did not care to endanger his social and political rank by letting it become known that he had been dabbling in the ignoble occupation of fiction-writing; and so, was ashamed to sign his name to his first romance, "Castle of Otranto," which was published 1764, just seven years before Scott's birth. But what are such names as these, the greatest, that fiction could boast, and covering a period of less than a hundred years, in comparison with the names of the great poets ranging down through the centuries of English literature! Besides, fiction lost, through the last quarter of the sixteenth century some of the little dignity it had won since the days of Dryden, so that in the early years of the nineteenth century, the time when Scott was seriously considering turning from poetry to fiction, it was considered an indication or a malady hardly short of effeminacy or mental weakness for a man to acknowledge himself a reader of fiction, and the occupation, "writer of fiction," could scarcely be of greater honor. There were two English women, however, who had been writing novels for ten years before Scott was forced reluctantly, into this uninviting field. They were Miss Jane Austen and Miss Maria Edgeworth. These two women had won considerable popularity, and their writings were admired by Scott. Yet they found authorship a business of poor pay, and perhaps of less honor. Miss Austen portrayed the social life of the better classes in Southern England with an artistic power, and Miss Edgeworth drew vividly the characteristic Irishman in his home with unequalled skill. Miss Austen sold the copyright of "Northanger Abbey," one of her best novels, to a Bath publisher, in 1803, for £10. But public opinion placed so low an estimate upon novels that the publisher was afraid to risk more upon "Northanger Abbey," and, after keeping the manuscript in his possession several years, sold it, unpublished, together with the copyright back to the author at the original purchase price, and it was not published until 1818, the year after Miss Austen's death.

Novelists were looked upon, too, as being in a lower class socially as well as intellectually. Miss Austen found no open door, socially, in poetic circles, and about the only honor from any upper circle that came to her because of her writing, was two years before her death, when, in 1815, the Prince of Wales expressed a willingness for her to dedicate to him the novel, "Emma," which she was then about to publish. It is evident from a conversation in

(Continued on page twelve).

NOTES AND PERSONALS.

—Christian Endeavor matter this week will be found on page 3, owing to unusual amount of other matter under Young People's Department.

—Foreigners have decided that the panic of 1907-8 is over. In March, April and May of last year only 110,000 immigrants arrived. In the same three months of this year 337,000 came.

—In the matter of damage and destruction to life the balloon does not compare with the automobile. Since 1783, statistics show only 57 persons killed as result of flights in gas balloons. But in New York City alone, one life a day is offered up to the modern Juggernaut, the automobile. But there are more autos than balloons.

—In The Sun of 23d inst. there was a reading "Dead Bro. Atkinson," and "four letters," by Rev. G. O. Lankford, Columbus, Ga. The reading should have been "Dear Bro. Atkinson" and "four subscribers" respectively. Bro. Lankford requests the correction. Passing strange and great the pity that such errors will creep in.

—Mr. S. M. Atkinson, traveling agent for The Christian Sun, is to be at Mt. Auburn, Warren Co., next Sunday, July 11, and will be more than pleased to meet The Sun's many friends and subscribers in that community that day. Those who can renew that day will confer a great favor. From Mt. Auburn Mr. Atkinson will go to Eastern Virginia in The Sun's behalf for several weeks. The ministers and other brethren who will help him in his work there will confer lasting favors.

—Bro. J. F. Morgan, representing The Sun in the Western North Carolina Conference and working for one of The Sun's scholarships in Elon College, N. C., is making fine progress, sending in lists of new subscribers every week and even now seems sure of success. Pity that more young men are not taking advantage of this fine opportunity to pay their way through college a whole year by three months' work in summer. That is what Bro. Morgan gives assurance of doing and what any other energetic and live young man who will give it his time could do.

—Pleasant Grove Church, Halifax Co., Va., held its annual Children's Day service Saturday, July 3. An immense throng gathered to witness and enjoy the exercises which were of the highest type of artistic, literary and moral excellence. The program was arranged by Mesdames Nannie T. Farmer and B. D. Moore and the selections were well chosen and happily rendered. The Ladies' Aid Society had charge and in the afternoon served refreshments. About $60.00 was realized. This people rejoices in the completion of a splendid house of worship which is to be dedicated first Sunday in August.

—We have received, but have not had time to read, Prof. P. J. Kernolle's book just from the press, entitled "Lives of Our Deceased Christian Ministers." It is a large and beautiful book. The printers and binders have done their work well. We have no doubt but that the book contains much valuable information about the more than 200 deceased Christian ministers of whom it treats. The book can be had of the Christian Sun office for $2.00. Gilt top $2.50. If sent by mail or express 20 cents must be added for postage. The volume will be reviewed further in these columns.

—Rev. P. H. Fleming, D.D., was elected last Monday as superintendent of schools for Alamance County for a term of two years. Bro. Fleming served in this capacity several years ago and it must be gratifying to him that his many friends desired his return to this office. He is capable, will do efficient service, and has our best wishes for a successful administration. Rev. W. S. Long, D.D., who has filled this position several years with success to the work and great credit to the county and to himself, retires with the satisfaction of duty well done, and with the esteem and best wishes of the people whom he has served so faithfully.

—The Anarchists of Germany, in conference at Leipzig, on June 2, adopted a resolution declaring that membership in any church or religious sect was contrary to the principles of anarchy, and calling on all Anarchists to cease their membership in churches. That was perfectly natural. Anarchism and Christianity have no affiliations.—Zion's Herald.

—After Sept. 1 there will be no more child criminals in the state of New York, at least they will not be called such. According to a new law which goes into effect Sept. 1, all persons under sixteen years of age who commit what in adults would be called crime will be put down as juvenile delinquents, thus sparing the youthful lawbreakers the stigma of criminal.

—"Go into your own pockets for college endowments, and let Rockefeller and Carnegie alone," was the advice of Dr. Steffen, of Dubuque, Iowa, to the Presbyterian General Assembly in Denver; and to this sagacious and very practical counsel we heartily subscribe.—Zion's Herald.

CHRIST NOT A VERY MAN.

(Among old manuscripts of N. Summerville I find some scraps, containing some of the following thoughts:)

1. Jesus Christ was not born like a man. The only way to escape from this statement is to say that the histories of Matthew and Luke, and statements of Paul referring to Jesus' pre-existence, are not true. And the only basis for such accusation against Matthew, Luke and Paul, is the egoism of the accuser, who thinks the supernatural birth impossible. And yet the natural consciousness of mankind through all its generations has admitted and accepted the principle that a divine Being has impregnated the material universe with life. Therefore, for the accuser, of honest Matthew, Luke and Paul, to assail them as inaccurate, is to attempt to array the one case against a universe quickened with cases in the beginning. * * * * Therefore, unless the accuser can offer some legal or scientific evidence against the Bible witness, that witness must stand. And we accept the truth that Jesus was not born like a man.

2. When twelve years old, Jesus did not act like a man; that is, a man of twelve years. When his mother said, "Thy father and I have sought thee sorrowing," he replied, "How is it that ye sought me? Knew ye not that I must be in my Father's house?"

The house that he was in was God's temple. The reply showed that he was sharply calling to their attention the fact that he claimed God as his Father (Mary having used, in her question to him, the prevailing language, making Joseph his father).

No man-child of twelve years of age ever talked like that to his father and mother.

3. Jesus' miracles were not those of a man. All along there was a variety, an abundance, and an unlikeness to those wrought by prophet or false prophet, as recorded in historical or apocryphal writings.

4. Jesus did not talk like a man; especially in the matters concerning himself.

5. His character was not that of a man. The character of Jesus, as set forth in the four Gospels, is so unique, seeing that the writers were unlearned and ignorant men, that something more than human must have been the model for them to write about. The goodness of Jesus is not that of a mere passive patience; not that of mere technical morality; not that of mere overflowing spirituality. He seemed endowed with tremendous force along those lines which in men so often lead to sin; and, as far as revealed, along all those lines. No man was ever so good, so good all around, so gigantic in goodness, so subtle in perceiving the finest shades of sin, who was also so gentle and forgiving to the sinner. He was God-like in merey.

6. His death was not that of a man. His utterances on the cross, fitting in with his character, and the events then transpiring by the action of his enemies, dovetailing into his own predictions and those of the prophets, set his death aside from common humanity. No man has ever lived, whose flowing death-wounds poured forth a river of life, renovating human hearts and lives.

7. The resurrection of Jesus was not that of a man.

8. The ethical influence of Jesus on the world is not that of a man: for the nearer one comes to Jesus, the more he combines the God-like with the man-like. In this Jesus was unlike Mohammed, or Zoroaster, or Buddha, or Confucius.

9. The Scripture grouping concerning Jesus is not that of a "very man."

J. J. Summerbell.

Dayton, Ohio.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson for Sunday, July 11, 1909,
Paul's Second Missionary Journey—
The Philippian Jailor.

Acts 16:16-40.

Golden Text: "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, thou and thy house." Acts 16:31.

Philippi, the scene of the lesson, was a Roman colony in Macedonia. The colony was founded by the Emperor Augustus. It was settled by veteran soldiers and freedmen. Its local government was similar to that of the city of Rome.

Paul and his friends soon got into trouble. There was in that city a slave girl who gained considerable income for her masters by pretending to reveal future events and tell fortunes. Day after day this girl followed the apostles crying that these men are slaves of the Most High God. Paul felt that these continual cries were a hindrance to him in his work and turned upon the girl and bade the spirit leave her. From that moment she lost her power.

Her owners thus deprived of an easy livelihood were incensed. They brought charges against Paul and Silas before the city magistrates.

After being beaten, Paul and Silas were thrown into prison. At midnight fastened in the stocks, they were praying and singing hymns, when an earthquake occurred. The jailor awoke to see the prison doors wide open, and thinking the prisoners all escaped was about to take his own life when Paul spoke saying, "Do thyself no harm, for we are all here." Whereupon the jailor filled with gratitude asked the way of salvation. He was instructed, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved."

The many religions of the world attempt to answer this jailor's question.

The Mohammedan answers there is no God but Allah; pray five times a day, give alms to beggars, keep the fasts, read the Koran and make a pilgrimage to Mecca.

The Hindu replies: Observe the rules of the caste; worship the monkey and the cow; meditate on the deity and crawl through the dust like a measuring worm to some sacred temple; bathe in the waters of the Gang s. Do these things and you may escape rebirth as a beast, reptile or a woman, and may become a deity.

To be saved, says the Buddhist, forget that you have a body; become indifferent to pleasure and pain.

Confucius teaches: Study the sacred classics and learn the rules of righteousness. Confucius shows the faith of duty but cannot help you to follow it.

Contrast with these the simple, all-sufficient answer of Paul—Believe, and thou shalt be saved: No need to understand the deep questions of theology or perform impossible tasks. Turn and entrust yourself to Christ and he will save you.

The best things in life do not come by anything that man can do. Air, sunshine, fields, fruits, flowers—go right on naming them. We stand expectant and trusting and God makes them ours. Salvation is a matter of soul, not muscle. Believe—that is all there is to it. Because it is so simple thousands miss it. The mass of men miss the simple things. The exceptional becomes simple as a child and finds them.

After the jailor believed and was saved then there was something to do. Then came water baptism. Obedience makes the food for Christian development.

G. W. T.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

Since I last wrote you I have received the following amounts on the Columbus Church:

Miss Irene Hefenstein .....$ 1.00
Mrs. E. J. Brickhouse ..... 5.00
Ladies' Aid Society, Wadley, Ala. 7.50
L. M. Clymer ..... 10.00

Total .....$23.50

These amounts help us in a time of great need. Room for others. I am gratefully,

Mrs. H. W. Elder.

Richland, Ga.

—The first bale of cotton, from the present crop, was sold on the Houston, Texas, market June 28, the price being $425, weight 368 pounds.

DO YOU WANT TO GO TO COLLEGE NEXT YEAR?

Then Here is Your Opportunity.

We want to help you: You can help us, and by so doing help your self.

READ OUR OFFERS.

To any young man or young woman, approved of good moral character and recommended by his or her pastor, sending us 300 new subscribers to The Christian Sun for one year at $1.50 each, by Sept. 1, 1909, we will give a scholarship in Elon College for the scholastic year of 1909, and 1910—one full school year. This scholarship will include Board, Furnished Room, Tuition, Matriculation and Library Fees. (Board and Room at either of the college dormitories, or with private family as individual may prefer):

Or, For 225 New Subscribers $1.50 each, Board and Room at any place individual may select; or Board, and vacant room at Young Men's Boarding Club, Tuition Matriculation and Library Fees.

For 180 new subscribers at $1.50 each, Tuition in Literary Branches and in Music, Matriculation and Library Fees.

For 140 new subscribers at $1.50 each, Board and Vacant Room at Young Men's Boarding Club.

For 120 new subscribers, Tuition, Matriculation and Library Fees.

This is a golden opportunity to any young man or young woman desiring to go to college next year who hasn't the means to go upon. By doing the work you give the individual subscriber full value received for his $1.50 and he in turn helps you in a most estimable and worthy manner. You can ask your friends to help you in such a work as this—and they will be glad to help.

Further, If you work you shall not lose out. For, if you fail to get the required number we will give you a liberal cash reward on all work done. See your Pastor at once and ask him for a letter to send along with your own to us. Write today. No time to be lost.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEPARTMENT.

Exponent of the Young People's Convention. Christian Church, South.

Officers

Prof. S. M. Smith, President, Raleigh, N. C.
Rev. W. T. Walters, Vice-President, Harrisonburg, Va.
Mr. D. J. Sipe, Secretary, Greensboro, N. C.
Rev. L. E. Smith, Ass't Secretary, La Grange, Ga.
Rev. L. I. Cox, Treasurer, Elon College, N. C.

Watchword

A Christian Endeavor Society in every church; Teacher-Training and Organized Classes in every Sunday school.

Executive Committee

Prof. S. M. Smith, Chairman, Raleigh.
Rev. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va.
Mr. D. J. Sipe, Greensboro, N. C.
Rev. L. I. Cox, Elon College, N. C.

DEVOTED TO THE INTEREST AND ADVANCEMENT OF

SUNDAY SCHOOLS, TEACHER-TRAINING, ORGANIZED CLASSES, CRADLE ROLL, HOME DEPARTMENT, CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR, MISSIONARY SOCIETIES, TEMPERANCE SOCIETIES, AID SOCIETIES, CIVIC RIGHTEOUSNESS.

W. A. HARPER, Editor and Field Secretary, Elon College, N. C.

[All notes and contributions for this Department should be sent to W. A. Harper, Elon College, N. C., who extends the Church at large a cordial invitation to furnish him with any note of interest to our Young People, particularly information in regard to any forward steps, new movement, or new organization looking to progressive and effective service. All items under this Department not signed are by its Editor and Field Secretary.]

THE WORK BEGINS.

As stated in this column last week, on June 21 I agreed with the Executive Committee of the Young People's Convention to become the Editor and Field Secretary of that body. I immediately went to work. On June 26 I mailed to every pastor in the Southern Christian Convention the following letter:

"Dear Brother Pastor:

On June 21st I agreed with the Executive Committee of the Young People's Convention to become their Editor and Field Secretary. This means that I shall edit the Christian Endeavor Topic in The Sun each week, furnish notes of interest to our young, and undertake to make the Convention's Watchword, "A Christian Endeavor Society in every church; Teacher-Training and Organized Classes in every Sunday school," a living reality.

All along I shall call upon you as well as your brother pastors for information, assistance, notes, and suggestions; but just now I am calling on you for information which is bound to come, or my hands are tied and the office of field secretary may just as well be declared vacant on the start. I therefore pray you to fill out the enclosed "Pastor's Information Blank" and return to me at once in the stamped reply envelope which I am also enclosing. I am sending you one of these blanks for every church of which you are pastor, according to the Annual; if I fail to send you enough, do not fail to write for more.

In addition I ask you to write me on a separate sheet a contribution for the department in the Sun of about 100 words, expressing your idea of the Convention, of its watchword, and of the part you expect to take in this movement.

With best wishes to you and for your work, and again beseeching your prayers for and co-operation in the work upon which I am about to engage, I am,

Yours very sincerely,

W. A. Harper,

Editor and Field Secretary.

P. S.—Of course this is a circular letter and not therefore entitled to much courtesy, but will the righteousness of the cause not induce you to comply with its requests? I pray so. W. A. H."

With this letter, as stated in it, I enclosed a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply and a blank for every church which each pastor is serving according to the Annual for 1909. This blank was as follows:

"Pastor's Information Blank.

Information from .....
Christian Church, located at .....
in the ..... Conference, for the Young People's Department of the Southern Christian Convention.

I. SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Superintendent .....
Secretary .....
No. teachers ..... No. pupils .....
No. classes .....

(a) Teacher-Training.

President of the class .....
Secretary of the class .....
Teacher of class .....
Its name ..... No. in the class ....
If no class, to whom shall I write about organizing? .....

(b) Organized Classes

1. Men's Class—

President of the Class .....
Secretary of the Class .....
Teacher of the Class .....
Its name ..... No. in class ....
If no class, to whom shall I write about organizing? .....

2. Women's Class—

President of the Class .....
Secretary of the Class .....
Teacher of the Class .....
Its name ..... No. in class ....
If no class, to whom shall I write about organizing? .....

(c) Cradle Roll

Cradle Roll Superintendent .....
No. pupils in Cradle Roll .....

(d) Home Department

Home Department Supt. ....
No. pupils in Home Department .....

II. CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

President or Superintendent .....
Secretary .....
No. active members .....
No. associate members .....
Junior Superintendent .....
No. of members in Junior Society ....
Intermediate Superintendent .....
Number members in Intermediate Society .....
If no society, to whom shall I write about organizing? .....

III. OTHER ORGANIZATIONS.

President of Missionary Society ....
President of Temperance Union .....
Names of other organizations for young people and names and addresses of their presidents .....

Signed.....

Pastor.

Date ..... Address .....

P.S.—Give name and address of all persons mentioned. Please do not overlook this."

I now again request every pastor who has the good of the cause at heart to fill out these blanks and return to me at once that I may have information at hand to proceed with this work and, under God, to carry it on to success. I think all will see at a glance that this information must come or I am helpless. And I believe every pastor who loves our cause will furnish me this necessary capital in trade to the end that our Watchword, "A Christian Endeavor Society in every church, Teacher-Training and Organized Classes in every Sunday school," may speedily pass from the realm of the ideal to that of the real.

Young People's Convention Honor Roll.

That the church at large and the young people especially may see the interest of the ministry of our church in this forward movement I have decided to print in an honor roll the names of all pastors who comply with the request for information as outlined above. This honor roll will be kept standing for a month from now during which time every pastor will have had ample time to visit all his congregations and send in his report. Most pastors already know their field so well that they can fill out the blanks at once and I will thank them to do so at their earliest convenience. Some have already sent theirs in as the subjoined list will reveal.

In this connection it is not without a feeling of pride that I state that our oldest pastor, the venerable Uncle Wellons, is the first to fill out the "Pastor's Information Blank" and return it to me, which prompts me to remark that years do not deprive any one of a part in this Young People's Movement. I hope the noble example of this venerable veteran of the Cross will encourage the other 69 (for we have 70 pastors in our Southern Christian Convention) pastors younger than he to emulate him in this matter.

In this honor roll the name comes in the order in which the filled blanks were received by me.

- Rev. J. W. Wellons, Elon College, N. C.
- Rev. W. C. Wicker, Elon College, N. C.
- Rev. N. G. Newman, Holland, Va.
- Rev. A. P. Barbee, Durham, N. C.
- Rev. J. W. Barrett, Norfolk, Va.
- Rev. C. E. Newman, Henderson, N. C.
- Rev. N. G. Newman, Holland, Va.
- Rev. A. P. Barbee, Durham, N. C.
- Rev. J. W. Barrett, Norfolk, Va.
- Rev. C. E. Newman, Henderson, N. C.
- Rev. W. G. Clements, Morrisville, N. C.
- Rev. J. D. Wicker, Sanford, N. C.
- Rev. Herbert Scholz, Macon, N. C.
- Rev. J. W. Harrell, Portsmouth, Va.
- Rev. G. D. Hunt, Wadley, Ala.
- Rev. J. O. Cox, South Norfolk, Va.
- Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Elon College, N. C.
- Rev. P. T. Klapp, Pittsboro, N. C.
- Rev. H. C. Rountree, Waverly, Va.

SPECIAL WORK FOR THREE MONTHS.

We can never accomplish anything by aiming at everything. This our Convention realized and set itself for two years to accomplish three things: A Christian Endeavor Society in every church, a Teacher-Training class in every Sunday-school, and Organized Classes in every Sunday school. Now while the "Pastor's Information Blank" calls for information looking to all these points and while this blank ought to be filled out in full, I think all will grant that to try to push these three things at once must be confusing and result in very little. Therefore I have decided to use the information furnished me at the present to advance Teacher-Training and to file the other facts for future reference.

For the next three months, then, Teacher-Training shall have the major space in these columns—not that C. E. Societies and Organized Classes will not be organized and reported during this time, but that our main purpose shall be to give Teacher-Training prominence. I therefore call upon the pastors, superintendents, teachers, and all our interested workers to enter into this campaign with me and to pray for its success. Shall we not pray the Lord to set us aside for this work and to guide us in it for the three months ensuing? Our special work for three months will not amount to much unless we have three months' special prayer for its fruitfulness. Let us pray and work for Teacher-Training.

NOTES OF PROGRESS MADE.

At the Walker Avenue Christian Church of Greensboro, N. C., on June 27 a teacher-training class with 7 (perhaps 10) members besides the teacher, Mr. D. Jennings Sipe, was organized. This is a forward step and will mean much for the future of this flourishing church.

Rev. W. C. Wicker was one of the prime movers in the organizing of the Young People's Convention. Last week I reported a teacher-training class organized in the Sunday school of the Hines Chapel Church of which he is the much beloved pastor. This week I again give space to his further successful efforts on behalf of our young people. In the Palm Street Church of Greensboro, N. C., he has organized a Junior Christian Endeavor Society with 18 members, which is to meet at 3 p. m. on Sundays, and a Young People's Christian Endeavor Society with 10 charter members (a good prospect of twice that number more) which is to meet at 7:30 o'clock Sunday evenings. He is also at work on a teacher-training class for this church. This is the youngest church in the N. C. and Va. Conference. It seems to be setting its elders a good example; it certainly has its face towards the rising sun.

HOW TO TEACH THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FOR JULY 18—A FEW SUGGESTIONS.

Thessalonica and Berea. Acts 17:1-15.
Golden Text: Thy word have I hid in mine heart, that I might not sin against thee. Psalm 119:11.

Review. Review the previous lesson thoroughly, bring out the causes of Paul's leaving Philippi. On the map trace the course so far of the Missionary Journey. Call for the note books; examine them; have one read.

Chronology. The events of this lesson occupy from about December, 50, to August, 51. From December to May Paul was preaching in Thessalonica, the first three weeks having been spent in preaching in the Jewish synagogue. From May to August he was at Berea.

Geography. Be sure the class gets an accurate idea of the location of Amphipolis, Apollonia, Thessalonica, and Berea. On the map or board trace the course of the journey from Phillipi with distances. Here call for assigned work on Thessalonica in the past, on Thessalonica (Salonica) in the present, and on Berea.

The Lesson. Our lesson today naturally divides into two sections, which write on the board as they are developed in the teaching:

1. Teaching the Scriptures in Thessalonica, verses 1-9. Ask through what cities they passed, to what one they at length came, what there was there, what Paul did there, for how long, what allége, with what result, what step the jealous Jews took, whose house they assaulted, for what purpose, whom they dragged before the rulers of the city, what cry they raised against them, how all this affected the people and the rulers, what steps they took to prevent a recurrence.

2. Studying the Bible at Berea, verses 10-15. Find what the brethren did with Paul and Silas, whither they went on arriving, what is said of the people in Berea, why they searched the Scriptures, the result of their searching, how this success of Paul's affected his enemies at Thessalonica, what steps they took, what the brethren did with Paul, where Silas and Timotheus remained, to what city they carried Paul, what message he sent back by his brethren to Silas and Timotheus. Here call for assigned work on Acts 13:16-42.

Review the lesson by the topic method.

For class discussion. Methods of Bible study. The Rabble. Modern Searching of the Scriptures.

Truths and Their Application. 1. We teachers have a rare opportunity today to enforce the duty and blessing of searching the Scriptures. Here call for assigned work on methods and uses of Bible study. Find how many of your pupils have ever read the Bible

(Continued on page eleven).

---

THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

---

Founded 1844 by Elder Daniel W. Kerr.
Organ of the Southern Christian
Convention.

---

Entered at the postoffice at Greensboro, N. C., as second-class matter.

---

Terms of Subscription.

One Year .....	$1.50
Six Months .....	.75
Four Months .....	.50

Advertising rates given on application.

---

J. O. Atkinson, Editor and Publisher.

---

Important Notice.—As readers will see, The Christian Sun is now published at Greensboro, N. C. The office of publication there is 302½ South Elm Street. Our editorial office, however, remains at Elon College, N. C., to which all letters and communications to the Editor should be addressed, as heretofore.

---

EDUCATION OR CHARACTER.

It has been suggested, somewhere, that the tendency at present is to send young men and young women to school to get education rather than to develop character. It is not certain but there is foundation for this suggestion. Parents may not so have considered, but there is a difference. One may have much learning, and very little character. A full head with a hard, or an empty, heart is a dangerous combination. The early founders of our colleges had character in mind, as well as culture; religion as well as learning.

History reveals that those who first moved in the matter of founding colleges in our country were men of deep piety who wanted religious training for the growing youth. William and Mary, the oldest of our Southern colleges, was founded originally as a missionary and religious training school. A preacher was Harvard's first benefactor and to this day it wears and rejoices in his name—Rev. John Harvard. The charter secured in England for the founding of Yale was prepared and obtained by a dozen devout Connecticut preachers who were made its first Board of Trustees. And the history of all our earlier institutions of higher learning is similar. The emphasis was on character, moral and religious manhood, rather than on education.

The object in education is to develop true, safe and substantial manhood and womanhood. Whenever education loses that ideal it is a vain and dangerous thing.

We are persuaded that there are parents who lose sight of this in choosing a college for their sons and daughters. They want an institution that will advertise the pupil. As to the fitness of such an institution to give moral training and religious influence to their son or daughter, there is never raised a question. They want their sons to be educated; as to whether their sons shall have character when educated, that is left to the future, and to accident.

Recently the St. Louis Christian Advocate (Methodist) contained this note of fact and warning which Christian Sun readers, and all interested in education, may consider with profit:

“At the weekly prayer meeting of one of the prominent churches of a New England city, a pastor stated something of what he saw and heard while traveling on the cars in which were about seventy-five students from one of the colleges in New England. He said that he seldom witnessed such vulgarity, drunkenness and profanity as from those young men at this time. He referred to the fact that probably many of these students were sons of professing Christian parents, and were members of churches. But for all this they were powerless to withstand the temptation by which they were surrounded. Notwithstanding the early history of our colleges showed that they were founded by Christian men for the advancement of Christianity, yet the tendency to place education as the object to be attained, rather than character, has led to disastrous results. He alluded to the fact that the education of ancient Greece and Rome developed a people lost to all sense of shame and decency, and the prostitution of many of the women was one of the results, that education without the Bible has been one of the agencies for corrupting the young. He admonished the people to pray for college students.

“Instead of sending their boys and girls to our home Methodist colleges to be educated among the people with whom they are to live, many are being sent to where they not only lose their identity with their homes, but also lose faith and moral character. Patronize your own Methodist schools.”

Patronize your own Christian institutions is advice timely now and worth heeding.

---

ELEGANT CHURCH, HAPPY PEOPLE.

The Sun's editor kept a promise of long standing and joined Pastor C. C. Jones and his happy people at Wakefield, Virginia, Sunday, June 27th, the occasion being the dedication of their handsome church, but now completed, at a cost of $5,436.87. We have not found anywhere a building of such comfort, convenience, elegance and equipment at so small a sum. Pastor Jones and his building committee have certainly wrought worthily and well. The building is of modern design and finish; inclined floor, large ante-rooms for class and society meetings, pastor's study, elevated floor space for choir and organ, graceful windows of handsomely adorned cathedral glass, steel ceiling, and fresco work of attractive finish, circular pews of quartered oak and a seating capacity of about 350 to 400, are some of the features that greet and gladden the eye as one enters and wonders at the splendid artistic taste displayed on every hand throughout the building.

Bro. Jones announced on the morning of dedication that an indebtedness of $2,250. must be raised in pledges and in cash before the house could be given to God's service. The work of contributing began, and when done the sum of $2,656. had been pledged and given. It was a happy occasion and no wonder Bro. Jones called for the hearty singing of "Praise God, from whom all blessings flow."

The congregation was immense. The singing was appropriate and inspiring. Leading to the dedication, Prof. J. J. Lincoln read the 84th Psalm. Pastor C. C. Jones led the prayer. The writer preached, and read the dedicatory formula. Bro. Jones closed the morning service with benediction.

Such a dinner as was spread, out under the trees and under a long shed erected for the purpose, is only seen in Eastern Virginia. All that makes for gladdening the eye and satisfying the appetite of the hungry was there and in lavish abundance.

In the afternoon, Rev. H. E. Rountree preached a sermon suggestive, eloquent, and powerful, and the large congregation listened with deep interest to this their former pastor. Bro. Rountree began the work which Bro. Jones has carried to completion with such success.

The writer drove to Waverly, Va., and occupied Pastor Rountree's pulpit there for the evening service. We could hardly realize that we were in the Waverly, Va., we knew several years ago. The small church then occupied has been moved back and is used for Bro. Rountree's Sunday school Bible class of 115 members, and a modern city church of elegant appointment and proportions has been erected. What a master work indeed has Pastor Rountree wrought among this good and loyal people. We felt at Waverly, as at Wakefield, that we were with fortunate and energetic pastors, happy and loyal people.

How happy indeed are people who throw themselves into large sacrifice and service for the Master's kingdom and build a house of worship worthy of the name and cause they represent. Such the people, such the pastors of Wakefield and Waverly Christian Churches. They are working together with heart and soul for the Master's kingdom and God is abundantly blessing them.

ELON COLLEGE NOTES.

Announcement has already been made of the election of Professor Thomas C. Amick to the position of Principal of the Preparatory Department in Elon College. Professor Amick has accepted, and is now actively engaged in the canvass for students. The friends of the college who know of Professor Amick's successful work as an educator feel that the Board made a wise selection in calling him to the work here. After having completed his high school training he spent one year at the University of North Carolina. Then, having won a scholarship in the Peabody College for Teachers, University of Nashville, Nashville, Tenn., he spent three years there, and graduated in the spring of 1891. Since that time he has been actively and successfully engaged in teaching. He had charge of high school work at Ingram, Va., and at Farmer, N. C., until he took charge of Liberty Normal College, Liberty, N. C. Under his management this came to be one of the best of the higher grade preparatory schools in the State, and the fact that he held this position for so long—perhaps ten or twelve years—and that the school continued to grow in attendance and influence under his management, is practical evidence of his ability in such work. After that institution was burned, he was elected Principal of the Preparatory Department in Western Maryland College, Westminster, Md., which position he filled most acceptably and successfully until called to his present position at Elon. Professor Amick comes strongly recommended, and we confidently expect him to do a good and helpful work here.

We are glad to learn that our "Boston contingent" reached their destination safely and are now revelling in the delights of their musical opportunities and in the pleasures of the city. Misses Pitt and Barnes, of our Music Faculty, are taking special work in music under some of the master musicians, and will spend the summer there.

Miss Ethel Clements is taking special work in Elocution and Physical Culture in the Leland Powers School, and voice at the New England Conservatory. Miss Clements will spend the entire year there in special training for her future work.

Miss Wilson, our popular Music Director, is taking a well-earned rest with friends at Southern Pines; while Mrs. Wilson is visiting friends in Boston.

According to previous announcement, Miss Elise Ramsay, one of Elon's most popular music teachers, was married last week to Mr. Hugh McAllister, of Lumberton, N. C. Her many friends here and elsewhere will wish for them a long and happy life together. Miss Ramsay will be greatly missed here.

Mrs. J. W. Barney and little son have gone to join Mr. Barney in Pennsylvania, and will spend the summer there.

Among the visitors at our quiet little village during the past few days are: Mrs. W. H. Boone and children, of Morrisville, with Rev. C. A. Boone; and Mr. R. C. Cox, of Mt. Gilead, with his mother. Mr. Cox has been re-elected principal of the Mt. Gilead school, and has accepted the work. We hear good reports from his work there last year, and feel sure that a still better year is before him.

I am that Mr. Stanley C. Harrell (class 1909) has been elected superintendent of the Holland (Va.) graded schools; and that Mr. S. M. Patton (1909) has been elected to the Latin Department in the schools at Adel, Ga. These are both strong young men, and will succeed.

Mrs. J. W. Patton, Miss Myrtie Klapp and Professors Harper and Cobb have been elected delegates from our Sunday school to the North Carolina and Virginia Sunday School Convention which meets with the church at New Lebanon this month.

I have just received a copy of Professor Kernodle's new book, "Lives of Our Deceased Christian Ministers;" and, while I have not had time to examine it carefully, I am well pleased with what I have seen of it, and feel that it is a valuable work. There's a wonderful store of information about over 200 of the old faithful soldiers of the Cross, which will be of interest to every one interested in the Christian Church.

Many requests for Catalogues are coming in daily now, and several new students have already made application for entrance. Will appreciate other names of prospective students.

E. L. Moffitt.

July 5, 1909.

NORFOLK LETTER.

I do not know of any item of news that would be of more interest to the large circle of readers of The Sun than two marriages which occurred last week, the following notices of which appeared in the Virginian Pilot:

Rev. M. L. Bryant Weds Miss Pierce.

Rev. Martin Luther Bryant, the popular young pastor of Main Street Christian Church, and Miss Elizabeth Gertrude Pierce, one of the popular teachers of the Eighth Ward graded school, were married yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock in the Main Street Christian Church. Rev. H. H. Butler, a cousin of the bride, was the celebrant. The church was crowded to its capacity.

At the appointed time the couple, with the attendants, entered the church, the groom and his best man, C. D. West, of Newport News, and the bride and her maid of honor, Miss Lula Pierce, a sister of the bride, preceded by the ushers, Harry Russell, of Cape Charles; Percy Pitt, of Smithfield; Harry Gibson and W. H. Butler, of Norfolk, met at the altar.

Mrs. W. J. Spence, the organist, rendered the wedding march. The church was decorated with potted plants of a valuable variety. Flowers in large quantities were strewn about the rostrum.

The groom is a graduate of Elon College, of the class of 1906. He has held two charges, the first at East End Christian Church, Newport News, and he is now occupying his second pastorate at Main Street Christian Church. The bride is a graduate of Farmville, Va., and has taught in the Berkeley school several years. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Pierce of the city, and the groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Bryant, of Harrisonburg, Va.

At the conclusion of the nuptials and congratulations Mr. and Mrs. Bryant left for Washington, New York, Niagara Falls and other Northern points.

Mr. M. J. Walter White, one of the best known residents of Brambleton, was married at 8 o'clock yesterday morning to Mrs. Loretta Thompson Odell. The ceremony was performed in the parlors of the bride's residence, 210 Clairborne Avenue, only the immediate families being in attendance.

Rev. Clayton O. Tuttle, pastor of the Ghent Methodist Church, of which the bride is a member, and Rev. C. C. Ryan, the groom's pastor, officiated. The bride carried a Bible, bound in white, the gift of the groom.

Mr. and Mrs. White left this morning for a Western trip, which will extend over several weeks. They will be at home after September 1 at 119 North Park Avenue.

J. W. Manning.

—Miss Ethel Clements, one of Elon's favorite music and elocution graduates, is at 40 Berkley St., Boston, Mass., doing special work in her chosen line, and is enjoying Boston life and its historical and literary surroundings.

THE CHRISTIAN ORPHANAGE
DEPARTMENT.
Board of Trustees.

Rev. J. O. Atkinson, D. D., Pres., Elon College, N. C.
Rev. I. W. Johnson, Sec., Suffolk, Va.
Hon. W. H. Carroll, Burlington, N. C.
L. M. Clymer, Greensboro, N. C.
C. D. West, Newport News, Va.
Elijah Moffitt, Esq., Asheboro, N. C.
G. S. Watson, M. D., Elon College, N. C.
Treasurer—Prof. J. T. Cobb.
Superintendent—Jas. L. Foster, Elon College, N. C.

CHILDREN'S CORNER.

The Band of Cousins.

Jas. L. Foster, Sec., Elon College, N. C.

"He that hath pity on the poor lendeth unto the Lord, and his good deed will He pay him again."—Prov. 19:17.

Reported last week .....$3,424.60

Dues:

Harvey C. Harrell .....$ .05
Thelma L. Harrell ..... .05
Mary Ida Harrell ..... .05
J. Newman Denton ..... .10
S. E. Denton, Jr. .... .10
William Lindsay ..... .10

Monthly S. S. Offering:

Greensboro, N. C. .... 2.28
Bethlehem, E. Va. (6 mos) 6.50
Henderson, N. C. .... 2.35
Oak Level, N. C. .... .50

Special Offering:

Mrs. Bettie Cates (on support of children) ..... 3.00
Chas. D. Johnston (July), Graham, N. C. .... 5.00
4 pictures sold by Harrell children ..... 1.00
Amt. 24th week, 1909 ... — 21.08
Total .....$3,445.68

Elon College, N. C., June 30, 1909.

My Dear Children and Friends:

We are glad that our report is longer this week. It made us feel "blue" last week. We hope that many cousins, friends, Sunday schools and churches will make us glad next week by liberal gifts. Bro. Chas. D. Johnson says in his letter this week with his July $5.00: "In reading my Sun this morning I could not help but feel grieved that the collections in the 'Children's Corner' were so small this week. I herewith enclose my check for $5.00 for July. I would be glad if Mr. Carlton and myself could get ninety-eight more to join us and then things would look brighter." That would make sunshine, Bro. Johnson, about the Orphanage and would soon pay all indebtedness and we would take the other worthy applicants. Donations this week as follows:

From the Ladies' Aid and Christian

Endeavor Societies of the Parma and Greece Christian Church, Hilton, N. Y., by Florence E. Chase, one barrel containing various articles of clothing, bed linen, toys, etc. This is a very valuable gift and highly appreciated by the Orphanage. We thank these kind friends who are so liberal and yet live so far away. Mrs. Louie Williams, Franklinton, N. C., 2 aprons, 1 towel. Mrs. J. W. Lawrence, Franklinton, N. C., 1 towel. Thomas Harold Andrews, of Burlington, N. C., age 8 years, was received June 13; this gives us 15 boys and 14 girls in our home—with other applications.

Our berry crop as alluded to last week yielded about 50 gallons; and we canned 16 gallons.

Please read this little verse just here:

"Can You Can?"

"Can you can us a can
Of berries, apples or jam?
If you can can a can
Just write us you can,
We can then send a can,
In which you can can
All we can wish you to can
Of berries, apples or jam."

—Louisville Baptist Orphanage.

The continued heavy rains are holding us back in our late planting and we now fear that we will fail in planting about five acres of corn.

Yours fondly,

Uncle Jim.

Cypress Chapel, Va., June 30, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:

Guess you have thought we were not going to write any more, but since we last wrote our dear old grandma who has ben with us all our little lives has died and our grandpa, too, and mama has been sick, so you see there have been lots to keep us from writing. Uncle Jim, here is $1.00 for four pictures I have sold. Will sell the others as soon as I can. Enclose 15 cents for us for the Orphanage.

With lots of love, we are the little Harrell children,

Harry C., Thelma L., Mary Ida Harrell.

These dear cousins have indeed been afflicted and we send them and their mother our deepest sympathy.

Chap. Hill, N. C., June 23, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:

I will send ten cents to the orphans. Clara and I have two little rabbits that we like very much.

Yours truly,

William Lindsay.

Rabbits are nice playfellows, William, and I know you enjoy them. Tell us their names.

Clayton, Ala., June 29, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:

Here we are late again, but papa and mama are busy and we cannot write. I (Newman) will be able to write soon.

We send love and dimes.

Fondly,

J. Newman Denton,
S. E. Denton, Jr.

Well, Newman, you will be a smart boy, indeed, when you are able to write your own little self any time soon. We think of you as a mere baby yet.

The North Carolina
COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE AND
MECHANIC ARTS.

The State's college for vocational training. Courses in Agriculture and Horticulture; in Civil, Electrical and Mechanical Engineering; in Cotton Milling and Dyeing; in Industrial Chemistry. Why not fit yourself for life by taking one of these courses? Address

D. H. HILL, President,
West Raleigh, N. C.

STOCKING DARNER.

Nickel plated steel spring holds stocking or other fabric firmly in place. Does not require readjusting until work is completed.

Sent for 20 cents.

DEPT. 8 WAVERLY NOVELTY CO.,
3139 Westmond St., Philadelphia, Pa.

FITS CURED. NO CURE NO PAY

In other words you do not pay our small professional fee until cured and satisfied. German-American Institute, 249 Walnut St., Kansas City, Mo.

READ SOMETHING DIFFERENT.

The Greensboro Daily News, the new State paper, is worthy of a trial. Associated Press service, special correspondence, clean, newsy, liberal. One year $6.00; three months $1.50.

GREENSBORO DAILY NEWS,
Greensboro, N. C.

Rider Agents Wanted

in each town to ride and exhibit sample 1909 model. Write for Special Offer. Finest guaranteed. $10 to $27 with Coaster-Brakes and Puncture-Proof tires. 1907 & 1908 Models $7 to $12 All of best makes 500 Second Hand Wheels All makes and models, good as new..... $3 to $8 Great Factory Clearing Sale. We Ship On Approval without a cent deposit, pay the freight and allow TEN DAYS' FREE TRIAL. Tires, coaster-brakes, parts, repairs and sundries, half-usual prices. Do not buy till you get our catalogs and offer. Write now. MEAD CYCLE CO., Dept. H294 Chicago

BIG PHONOGRAPH OFFER

The original Thomas A. Edison Phonograph. Unequaled as an entertainer and fun maker. Sold on easy monthly payments. Plays waltzes, rag-time, sacred and concert music, operas everything. Prices very low. Ship on approval. Write today for my Big Free Catalogue. EUGENE CLINE, 55 Dearborn St., Chicago.

(Began on page seven).

through. If none have or if any have not, try to get them to promise to begin to do so at once. Get all to read the Bible for a few minutes every day; it would be a good idea for the class to agree on a certain hour each day for its reading and all read at that hour. There is great helpfulness from such concerted action.

2. Not only must our pupils be taught to examine the Scriptures, but we must teach them the spirit of such examination. First of all they must have reverence for the Bible as the inspired word of God. They will need no higher criticism. Teach them also to appreciate it as literature and to delight in it on all occasions. Not only teach them to examine, but also to love and reverence the Bible.

3. The infuriated Jews said that Paul had turned the world upside down. When you think about it, you readily see that this is what Christianity ought to do. This principle applies to the ballot as well as to the courts. Are you helping to overthrow the hosts of evil in the world?

Manual Work. Have the pupils locate on their maps all places in today's lesson and then to enter into their note books the following outline, which they will expand at home and return to the class next Sunday:

Life of Paul (Saul) (Continued).

A. D. 50, December. Paul goes to Thessalonica, Acts 17:1.

51, January to May, preaches at Thessalonica, Acts 17:2-4.

Support himself by tent-making, 1 Thes. 2:9; 2 Thes. 3:8.

Receives aid from Philippians, Phil. 4:15-16.

Jews stir up a riot, Acts 17:5-9.

May to August. Preaches at Berea, Acts 17:10-12.

Jews from Thessalonica instigate a riot, Acts 17:13.

Paul sent to Athens by his brethren, Acts 17:14-15.

Assignments for Next Time. Ask one to prepare an essay on Athens; another on the Areopagus or Mars' Hill; a third to outline Paul's sermon; a fourth to find spiritual teachings in the lesson.

TO SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPER-INTENDENTS.

My Dear Brethren:

The time is drawing near for the meeting of our Sunday school conventions. These are the greatest meetings of all the year, so far as the Sunday school workers are concerned. I do not know whether you are planning to attend the convention in your conference or not. You certainly ought to be there.

If our conventions are held for anybody in particular, it is for the officers and teachers in our Sunday schools. They should constitute the personnel of the convention. The one great trouble with our conventions heretofore has been that so many of the delegates were boys and girls, totally inexperienced in Sunday school work. It is too often the case in electing delegates that we send "just anybody that will go," in fact the superintendent usually asks that question and those who say they can go are elected as delegates, regardless of who they are, or whether they are directly interested in Sunday school work or not.

In our conventions this year, we want the following persons present:

1. All of the pastors.
2. All of the superintendents.
3. All of the other officers and teachers of the school.

Now, brother, let me beg you when you bring this matter up in your Sunday school, not to elect "just anybody that will go." First of all plan to go yourself. Give your pastor to understand that the Sunday school certainly expects him to be there. See that every delegate from your school comes from among the officers and teachers, at least an earnest Sunday school worker—one who is capable of carrying back to your school the inspiration which the convention will give. The time is coming, when we must take hold of our Sunday school work in earnest.

The Young People's Convention which recently met at Elon College planned for the thorough organization of our work and the Sunday school department will be watched with the greatest interest. The part that your Sunday school is to play in this great forward movement depends, my brother, upon you. You are the superintendent—the man to whom your Sunday school convention is looking for a part in all its work—the man to whom the Young People's Convention is looking for the accomplishment of great things in thoroughly organizing the young people of your church for efficient service.

May we count on you to do your part?

S. M. Smith, Chairman

Sunday School Board, Southern Christian Convention.

TO SUNDAY SCHOOL SECRETARIES.

My Dear Brethren:

It will become your duty soon, as an officer in your Sunday school, to make out the report to be sent to the annual Sunday school convention. I wish to call your attention to the fact that we have this year (and will have in the future) a new report blank for this purpose. These blanks are being mailed out by the secretaries of the different conventions, and you will soon receive a copy for your Sunday school. You will find on examination that this blank is very extensive and calls for all sorts of information. May I ask that you fill out the blanks from beginning to end, just as carefully as you can, and answer every question whether it seems to apply to your school or not.

What we need in our work more than anything else is careful and accurate statistics. By using the same blank form for all our Sunday schools we hope to be able soon to give exact figures concerning every department of our work within the bounds of the Southern Christian Convention. Whether we are able to do this or not depends upon how accurately you make out your report. Please give it the time and thought necessary, and see that every question is answered one way or the other.

This blank is the result of the work of two special committees and is approved by the Sunday School Board of the Southern Christian Convention, which met recently at Elon College. It must, therefore, be just what we want. It is certainly a decided improvement over the old report blank we have been using heretofore. Please help us this year to make our statistics as full and accurate as possible.

Yours very truly,

Sunday School Board, Southern Christian Convention, per S. M. Smith, Chairman.

When in Burlington call at

T. H. STROUD'S

Store for DRUGS, SOFT DRINKS, and anything desired in drugs and Toilet Articles.

MEDICINE.

We prepare as good medicine, the very best medicine that the finest, freshest, most potent drugs and chemicals will produce when carefully and skilfully compounded by an expert prescription man—just such medicine as your physician means that you should have, medicine of the utmost possible effectiveness. May we prepare your medicine?

FREEMAN DRUG CO.,
Burlington, N. C.

BIBLES FOR SALE.

I am selling, in Alamance County, Wilmore's New Analytical Reference Bible, the most thorough and complete Book for all who wish to study and understand the Bible on the market today. Sold only by subscription and I shall be glad to show it to you. Thousands of copies are being sold. Alfred Apple, Jr., Elon College, N. C.

(Begun on page three.)

"Northanger Abbey" between John Thorpe, an Oxford student, and Miss Catherine Moreland, an intelligent young lady, that the reading of prose fiction (Fielding's "Tom Jones" excepted), was regarded by young men in the colleges and universities, to be even worse than idleness. This same apologetic feeling for having anything to do with prose fiction is shown by Scott in writing to a friend in 1814, just after the publication of "Waverly," his first novel, when he said that to sign his name to a novel was not in keeping with the dignity of his position as Clerk of Session. But the stories of romance, adventure and history in Scott's soul clamored for expression. Henceforth this expression must come from him in verse as a second rate poet, or, through the ignoble channel of fiction. He chose the latter, but with such a feeling of compromise for fifteen years as not to acknowledge the authorship of the marvelous stream of masterful fiction that flowed from his pen, and then, in 1827, did he acknowledge that he was the author of the more than twenty novels that he had written, only after their unprecedented popularity had put prose fiction—the romance and the novel—on a par of respectability with poetry itself. He had become greater as a novelist than he had ever been as a poet. He was now the author of an admiring literary world. His novels sold by tens of thousands at good prices. Publishers and book-sellers made fabulous profits, and a constant stream of gold poured into the author's pockets. For ten years he expended kingly sums building and furnishing a lordly stone mansion on the Tweed, which he named Abbotsford.

During these prosperous years, great and small were welcomed and delightfully entertained by this "Wizard of the North." Among these guests was our own Washington Irving. Judging of his reception from his account in "Tales of a Traveller," Scott gave this American citizen, with no literary work but the "Sketch Book" to his credit, as royal entertainment as if he had been a British lord. This was in 1817. A few years later, King George IV. on a visit to Edinburgh was graciously received by Scott as chief host. Sir Walter's behavior to the king on this occasion was as full of royal dignity as if he had always been a court gallant. Two years before, in 1820, the King had bestowed the baronetcy upon Scott, not as a political favor but as a recognition of his superior authorship, and now he bestowed many rich gifts upon Scott, such as royalty gives to royalty. One of these gifts, a set of ebony chairs, is to be seen in the library at Abbotsford.

Scott's first novel, "Waverly," a story of Scotch life in the Highlands early in the eighteenth century, was published anonymously, July 7, 1814, in three volumes, from the Ballantyne Press in Edinburgh, and was put on sale by the noted book-seller, George Constable, who offered £700 for the copyright, which sum Scott refused on the grounds that it was too much, should the work not succeed, and too little, should the reverse come to be true. "Waverly" was begun, and two or three chapters written in 1805, while Scott was living at Ashiestiel on the Tweed a few miles above Abbotsford. Five years later on the same theme which he had thus started to write out in prose, appeared in verse "The Lady of the Lake." The endearing popularity of this poem likely had some influence over Scott's mind when he was casting about for a subject for his first prose romance, and the unexpected finding of the old manuscript in the summer of 1814, which nine years before had been written and laid aside, settled the question as to his working out the same theme in prose, as he had done in 1810 in "The Lady of the Lake."

Some idea of the interest raised by the publication of "Waverly" may be got from a letter of the author's, July 9, 1814, to one Mr. Morritt, which reads in part as follows: "I must now account for my laziness, by referring you to a small anonymous sort of a novel, which you will receive by the mail of this day. It was a very old attempt of mine to embody some traits of those characteristics and manners peculiar to Scotland, the last remnants of which vanished during my own youth. I had written a great part of the first volume and sketched other passages when I mislaid the MS., and only found it by the merest accident as I was rumaging the drawers of an old cabinet; and I took the fancy of finishing it. It has made a very strong impression here and the good people of Edinburgh are busy tracing the author. * * * Jeffrey has offered to make oath that it is mine, and another great critic has rendered his affidavit to the contrary; so that these authorities has divided the Gude Town. Let me know your opinion about it. The truth is, this sort of muddling work amuses me, and I am something in the condition of Joseph Surface, who was embarrassed by getting himself too good a reputation; for many things may please people well enough anonymously, which, if they have my name in the

RALEIGH & SOUTHPORT RY. Co.
P. M.	A. M.	STATIONS.	A. M.	P. M.
1:15	6:00	Raleigh	8:30	3:45
1:54	6:24	McCullers	7:52	3:03
2:11	6:59	Willow Sp'gs	7:37	2:45
2:23	7:14	Varina	7:27	2:34
2:35	7:26	Fuquay Sp'gs	7:19	2:25
2:55	7:45	Kipling	7:00	2:05
3:15	8:05	Lillington	6:41	1:44
3:41	8:28	Linden	6:15	1:17
4:30	9:15	Fayetteville	5:30	12:30

JNO. A. MILLS, Pres. and Gen. Mgr.

DO YOU WANT TO GO TO COLLEGE? If so we can help you. We have already put hundreds through college by means of our plan. Write today for full information regarding our offer of a free scholarship in any school or college. Address, Robert J. Sherlock, 20-31 East 22nd Street, New York City.

DR. J. H. BROOKS

Surgeon and Dentist
FOSTER BUILDING,
Burlington, N. C.

To Drive Out Malaria and Build up the System.

Take the Old Standard GROVE'S PASTELESS CHILL TONIC. You know what you are taking. The formula is plainly printed on every bottle, showing it is simply Quinine and Iron in a tasteless form, and the most effectual form. For grown people and children. 50c.

SPRING TIME.

The time for gardening is here and you need garden tools. We can supply you at lowest prices.

Poultry Wire.

The best assorted stock in the county. Four different styles and weight.

Come and See.

Remember plumbing and bath room fixtures, a speciality. You will find us on Davis St. third door from Post office.
BURLINGTON HARDWARE CO.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup

Has been used for over SIXTY-FIVE YEARS by MILLIONS OF MOTHERS for their CHILDREN WHILE TEETHING, with PERFECT SUCCESS. It SOOTHES the CHILD, SOFTENS the GUMS, ALLAYS all PAIN; CURES WIND COLIC, and is the best remedy for DIARRHOEA. Sold by Druggists in every part of the world. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Guaranteed under the Food and Drugs Act, June 30th, 1906. Serial Number 1098. AN OLD AND WELL TRIED REMEDY.

RAISE MONEY FOR YOUR CHURCH.

We offer you an easy method. Send us a photograph of your church or your pastor, and we will send you 500 high grade post cards, with photograph on each card, and scripture verse if desired. Sell these cards at 10 cents each. When sold, remit us $20.00 and keep the balance. You can do this in a week. We will return photograph.

LAKE SHORE SUPPLY CO.,
225 Broad St., St. Joe, Michigan.

title-page, would just give me that sort of ill name which preceeds hanging—and that would be in many respects inconvenient, if I thought of again trying a grande opus."

Constable would have been fortunate had he bought the copyright of "Waverly" at his price, £700. The first edition of 1,000 copies was gone in five weeks. The second edition of 2,000 copies was exhausted before October. By November the fourth edition was called for, and Scott remarked in a letter to John Ballantyne, that Constable's commissions in four months had amounted to £612, and would likely reach £1,000 before the end of the year.

The one time "Great Minstrel" had struck a new vein, which promised to yield money, and, perhaps, popularity and fame, after a time. He now worked with a new lease of heart and hope. Eight months after the publication of "Waverly," he was out with "Guy Mannering," and three months later came "The Antiquary." The next year came two more novels, "The Black Dwarf" and "Old Mortality" appearing together. In 1817 appeared "Rob Roy" in three volumes, and in 1818 "The Heart of Midlothian" in four volumes. Thus the seemingly inexhaustible mine yielded its rich treasure, every year bringing from three to eight volumes. Many were, after several years, practically certain that Scott was the author, yet, at least on one occasion during these years, he flatly denied the authorship to be his.

Scott took for his fiction field the entire page of British life; his characters range from monarchs to the humblest servants. In "The Abbot," published in September, 1820, he gives a powerful portrayal of Mary, Queen of Scots. Constable upon its great sale, wanted Scott to portray her gret rival and adversary, Queen Elizabeth, in his next, taking as the particular period of her reign the time of the Spanish Armada. But Scott preferred to weave into the story a different scent from the life of the Virgin Queen, and so too the period of Lord Leicester's great favor at court, and his subsequent disfavor and disgrace. Several titles were suggested. Scott had his way and "Kenilworth" was ultimately chosen. The work appeared in January, 1821, hardly four months after "The Abbot." Lockhart says of "Kenilworth," that it was one of the most successful of all Scott's novels, at the time of publication; and it continues, and, I doubt not, will ever continue to be placed in the very highest rank of prose fiction. The rich variety of character, and scenery, and incident in this novel, adds Lockhart, has never been surpassed.

Early in these years of prosperity, Scott became a silent partner of the Ballantyne printing house in Edinburg. This company did business on a large scale. The great novelist put enormous sums of money into the business, first and last, and loaned the company thousands of pounds besides. The Ballantynes were poor managers, and the business got into a bad way. Scott apprehended danger before the crash came, yet he hoped for the best. Finally, however, in December, 1825, he saw that the business was inevitably doomed. For weeks, he bravely faced the oncoming catastrophe. The crash came on the 17th of January, 1826. Sir Walter's lease of life lacked six years and a few months being out, and these years and months constitute the Great Struggle Period of his life.

YOUNG MEN! If you want to know why you should become telegraph operators and what school to attend, write to SOUTHERN SCHOOL OF TELEGRAPHY, Newman, Ga., for free Catalogue "A." EVERY BOY should read it. Positions positively guaranteed.

Books for Every Christian Home.

Do you know why you are a member of the Christian Church?
Do you understand what the church stands for and teaches?
 If not, send and get a copy of the "Principles and Government of the Christian Church," just revised and greatly improved by order of the Southern Christian Convention.
 Cloth binding per copy, post paid 50 cts.
 Limp Cloth binding per copy, post paid 35 cts.
 Paper binding per copy, post paid 25 cts.
 Handsome Persian Morocco, with name in gilt $1.25.
The Southern Christian Convention also Ordered Another Book Published, PREPARING THE SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER TO TEACH. Edited by Profs. W. A. Harper, W. C. Wicker and W. P. Lawrence.
 The book is neatly printed and bound and is invaluable to the Sunday-school worker, 236 pages.
 Paper binding per copy, postpaid, 60 cts.
 Cloth binding per copy, postpaid, 90 cts.
 To Sunday-schools, paper binding 50 cts. cloth 75 cts.
Have You Read That Thrilling and Inspiring Story of His Own Life, MOTHER'S ANSWERED PRAYER, BY REV. P. H. FLEMING, D. D.?
 Cloth binding, postpaid 55 cts.
 All these books should be in your home. Order at once
 For sale by: THE CHRISTIAN SUN, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

IT'S INTERESTING

to hear the different comments on different Shoes. All shoes have some good points; Style or comfort or service.

WALK-OVER SHOES

have all the good points; style and comfort and service and their price is the best point of all. $3.50, 4.00 & 5.00.

Foster Shoe Co., Burlington, N. C.

Dry Goods. Notions. Ready Made Clothing.

When in Burlington visit our large store, supplied always with the very best and latest styles and novelties.

Our Dry Goods are of latest designs, and our Ready Made Clothing cannot be surpassed in quality and price.

Come, See. Be Convinced.

B. A. SELLARS & SONS. BURLINGTON. N. C.

MARRIED.*Hargroves - Everett.

Berea (Nansemond) Church was the scene of a very pretty marriage, on Wednesday afternoon, June 9, 1909, when Miss Luciphene J. Everett, a beautiful and accomplished daughter of Bro. Elisina Everett, became the bride of Mr. Alexander Savage Hargroves, a son of the late James Hargroves, and a grandson of Col. Alex. Savage. The church was beautifully decorated for the sacred occasion. Miss Regina Williamson rendered the wedding music. Miss Addie Everett was maid of honor, and Mr. Andrew Hargroves was best man. Bruce Eberwine was ringbearer. There were two ribbon girls. The following young men acted as ushers: Linwood Lawshe, Willie Warrenton, Herbert Harrell, Lucius Lincoln, J. B. L. DeJarnette and Glen Brinkley. An ante-nuptial reception was tendered the bridal party and about one hundred and fifty other friends by Mr. and Mrs. John G. Eberwine at their elegant home on Bennett's Creek. The bridal presents were numerous and very beautiful. Mr. and Mrs. Hargroves are members of Berea Church, and they will make their home near Driver. They have the best wishes of many friends for a long and happy life.

I. W. Johnson.

DIED.*Gunter.

Sister Mary Gunter, wife of Bro. John Gunter, was born March 5, 1859, married March 4, 1877, died June 22, 1909, in West Durham, N. C. To this union nine children were born. One preceded her, in infancy, to the home of the saints. She united with the Christians at Zion Church, in Chatham County, in early life and moved her membership to the Durham church about one year ago, with two of her daughters, Misses Alice and Viola Gunter. She leaves to mourn their loss a devoted husband, eight children, five grown girls, three boys, a father, and a host of neighbors and friends.

Funeral by the writer at Zion's Christian Church in Lee County, where we placed her lifeless form to await the resurrection morn.

A. P. Barb.e.

Murphrey.

Miss Francis C. Murphrey, daughter of Wm. and Annie Murphrey, was born December 3, 1892. She departed this life June 13, 1909, at her home near Chuckatuck, Va. She united with Oakland Church about two years ago, and from that date lived a faithful Christian life. She was a girl of much promise, always eager to develop her mind and cultivate her heart for higher and better things. About one year ago that dread disease, tuberculosis, laid its wasting hand upon her body and her health rapidly failed, in spite of all that skilled physicians and kind nurses could do. She knew the end was rapidly coming, and just before death assured all near her that she was going to enter into that "rest which remains for the people of God." The funeral services were conducted by the writer, and her body was buried in the cemetery at Oakland to await the resurrection morn.

I. W. Johnson.

Livesay.

Trueheart Rebecca Livesay, daughter of Deacon and Mrs. R. B. Eure, was born November 11, 1886, and departed this life June 8th at Dendron, Va.

Mrs. Livesay was reared in the town of Franklin, Virginia, where her mother and father live. She made many friends during her childhood and womanhood. She joined the Franklin Christian Church at the age of thirteen and lived a consistent member and a devout Christian until death.

Much sympathy is felt for her devoted husband, father, and mother, one sister and aged grandfather, with many friends and relatives. May He who comes to heal the broken-hearted give his touch in this hour of sorrow.

She was buried in Poplar Spring cemetery, Franklin, Va. The floral designs were very beautiful and of rare quality.

REMEMBER: That we guarantee satisfaction and sell to you cheaper than the publisher and dealers do. Our business is by mail and express and prices quoted are the prices of goods delivered to you. We can furnish you the Oxford, or the Holman Teacher's Bible at prices ranging from $1.35 to $4.00. Send for our catalogue or write us what you want. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN, Elon College, N. C.

The Centennial of Religious Journalism

EDITED BY J. PRESSLEY BARRETT, D. D.
Editor Herald of Gospel Liberty

This is without doubt the most generally interesting publication sent out by the Christians. Its centennial, historical and denominational features make it not only unique in character, but interesting as well. From beginning to end it claims the interested attention of the reader.

We have not space here to give the table of contents, but suffice it to say, that beginning with the "Discussion of the conditions which made the organization of the Christian Church a necessity," the reader will follow with interest and profit, the "History of the Herald of Gospel Liberty," "The One Hundred Editorial Gems," "Historical Sketches of One-Hundred-Year-Old Churches," "A symposium—A Hundred Years of Progress," settling forth in well prepared papers the development of the various enterprises of the Christian Church, and with a heart full of optimistic hope he will peruse "The Future Outlook of the Christian Church."

And all this, and more, in a book of nearly 650 pages, handsomely bound, with gold titles, while the price is only $1.00 for cloth binding and $2.00 for Morocco, with your name printed in gold. Postage, 15 cents extra. Send your order at once to

J. N. HESS, Publishing Agent

Dayton, Ohio,

May all of us live the life that she lived, serve the Lord that she served, and meet in the New Jerusalem in the sweet by and by, where parting will be no more.
A Friend.

Harrell.

Leonidas Harrell was born in Nansmond County, Va., January 7, 1847. He was the son of John Wesley and Delilah Harrell. He was in apparently good health until about one hour before his death. On Sunday night, June 26th, about two o'clock he complained of a severe pain in his head, and died about three o'clock Monday a. m., June 27, 1909. His death was due to apoplexy. He leaves to mourn their loss a widow, whose maiden name was Miss Mary C. Wilkins, three sons, Joel E., Roscoe, and Burgess; five daughters, Mrs. Eunice C. Copeland, Mrs. Mary Lee Savage, Misses Lydia C., Deborah and Elmira Harrell; two brothers, Elkanah and Joshua B. Harrell, and two sisters, Mrs. Mary C. Wilkins and Mrs. Martha Rountree.

Brother Harrell united with Cypress Chapel Church in his boyhood. Some years ago, he transferred his membership to Liberty Spring Church, where he remained a faithful member until his death. He was a quiet, modest, humble man of God, and tried to do his part in the work of the Master. He was a faithful attendant at the services of the church, and found much joy in the worship of God. As a neighbor he was loved and respected by all who knew him. He was industrious and successful as a farmer, having always provided well for his family. He will be greatly missed in the church and community, and his family have the sympathy of the entire community in this hour of great sorrow. The funeral services were conducted from Cypress Chapel by the writer, assisted by Rev. J. E. McCartney of the M. E. Church, and his body was laid to rest in the cemetery adjoining the church. May the Lord bless and comfort the bereaved family.

I. W. Johnson.

Saunders.

Solomon J. Saunders was born in Nansmond Count, Va., December 13, 1856. He was the son of Thomas J. and Virginia Saunders. He was married to Miss Balzora Archer, January 10, 1879. Unto them were born three sons, two of whom died in early childhood. Hurley is the only living son. For several years Bro. Saunders had been in declining health, but was able to attend to business, on his large farm, until a few weeks before his death, which occurred May 23, 1909. He unit-

The University of North Carolina
1789—1909

Schools of Liberal Arts	Engineering	Graduate
Law	Medicine	Pharmacy

Large Equipment, Modern Laboratories, New Library with 55,000 Vols.
Able Faculty of 98 teachers. Students numbered 786. Thorough instruction. High standard. Healthful location. Expenses low for high-grade institution. For a catalogue and fuller information address
THE PRESIDENT, Chapel Hill, N. C.

MEDICAL COLLEGE of the STATE OF SOUTH CAROLINA

CHARLESTON, S. C.

Session Opens October 1st, 1909.

Medicine and Pharmacy.

Pathological and pharmaceutical laboratories recently enlarged and fully equipped. Splendid Clinical facilities offered by the

ROPER HOSPITAL

one of the largest and best equipped Hospitals in the South, with 218 beds and free dispensary service. Nine appointments each year for graduates. For catalogue, address

ROBERT WILSON JR. M. D., DEAN,

Corner of Queen and Franklin Sts.

Charleston, S. C.

ed with Oakland Church, when a young man, and remained a faithful member until his death. He was a true Christian, kind and generous neighbor and a faithful friend. He had a large circle of friends who knew him to honor and love him. He was a successful farmer, and provided well for the comfort of his family. He realized for several days before the end came, that he could not recover, and proceeded to arrange his affairs for his departure. He died in the triumphs of a living faith. He leaves a widow, one son, five brothers: Tazwell, Thomas J., Lee, Richie and Willie, and four sisters: Mrs. A. L. Saunders, Mrs. M. C. Wright, Mrs. J. R. Wright and Mrs. R. A. Ashburn. The funeral services were conducted from Providence M. E. Church, and his remains were laid to rest in the family cemetery at his home. Funeral services by the writer, assisted by Revs. H. H. Butler and J. H. Kabler.

I. W. Johnson.

Underwood.

Mrs. Alice Underwood died at her home near Exit, Va., April 1, 1909. She was 52 years, 9 months, and 5 days old. Her health had not been very good for several years, but her last illness was for only a few days. Heart trouble was the immediate cause of her death. She was the daughter of the late Alexander and Addie B. Moore. She was married to Mr. J. S. Underwood, Nov. 24, 1881. Besides her husband, she leaves eleven children to mourn their loss: Mrs. W.

J. Boyett, Mrs. Algic Uzzle, Misses Pearl, Ethel and Ruby Underwood, Messrs. L. L., Osmund, Harry, Carlos, David and Joseph Underwood. She is also survived by five sisters: Mrs. J. B. Fanney, Mrs. W. B. Pitt, Mrs. Fannie Rogers, Mrs. J. E. Davidson, and Miss Kate Moore; and two brothers: Messrs. W. C. and S. G. Moore, of Chuckatuck, Va. Mrs. Underwood had been a faithful and consistent member of Oakland Church, Nansmond County, Va., for more than thirty years. She was recognized by all who knew her, as a faithful, humble, modest, and devoted follower of Christ. She lived and enjoyed this relation with Christ in her home, and died in the triumphs of a living faith, and has gone home to reap her reward. Funeral services conducted by the writer.

I. W. Johnson.

Ayscue.

There are few, if any, laymen of the past two generations to whom the Christian Church owes more than to Charlie Ephraim Ayscue, who was born in Franklin County, N. C., June 10, 1826, and married to Miss Mary Green Pleasants, February 12, 1851.

The following was written by Brother Ayscue himself and left in his daughter's possession:

"I was looking for a church to suit my religious sentiments. In the year 1857 I visited a protracted meeting in Granville County, N. C., at Fuller's, conducted by Elder W. N. Bragg, and heard the principles of the Christian Church explained. I fell in love with her broad arms of charity and then united with the church of my choice. I then began to talk of the Christian Church in my neighborhood; it seemed to suit so many that I proposed to Brother Bragg to organize a church at Liberty Hill, our common school house, which he did on the 24th day of September, 1856, and this was the beginning of what is now known as Liberty Christian Church, Vance County. The charter members were my wife, Mary F. Ayscue, from Rock Springs M. E. Church, J. H. Ayscue (near Henderson), Lemuel Hayes, and C. E. Ayscue."

The subject of this sketch was elected secretary, treasurer, collector and later deacon of the church organized at Liberty Hill. The war dealt a heavy blow to the little church, leaving it with but three members. Rev. J. W. Wellons began preaching there in 1863, and after 1865 the work again began to grow. In 1867 a Sunday-school was organized with Bro. Charles Ayscue as superintendent, which place he filled for fifteen years.

Brother Ayscue was a man of strong convictions, both politically and religiously. From early life he labored to create an interest in education in his community. He had the districts laid off and was instrumental in establishing the first public school in Epsom community, and for several terms taught the school himself. Brother Ayscue lived to see the community in which he established the first school among the very first in the state to have a chartered high school, and the church he established grew to a membership of 260, worshipping in one of the handsomest and best located buildings of the denomination in North Carolina.

The children surviving are J. E. G., Mary Geneva (now Mrs. Fred Renn), Dora E., Dena S., Ida C., Lula M., and C. W. There are thirteen grandchildren and several great-grandchildren.

He was a man strong in body and in mind till 1904, when he had a severe attack of pneumonia. During this sickness his faithful companion for fifty-three years passed to her reward. Brother Ayscue never regained his health.

One month before the end came he fell in his room from a partial stroke of paralysis and was helpless until the morning of May 19, 1909, when he quietly breathed his last, surrounded by his four single daughters with whom he had lived in Henderson for the past several years.

Brother Ayscue took a great interest in the building of a Christian church in Henderson and often expressed a desire

Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Is paying out and investing in both Virginia and North Carolina more than it receives from these States.

New business in Virginia, 1908,
$2,147,800
Larger than any other company.

Gain in insurance in force in Virginia, 1908,
$1,374,975

60 per cent more than the next largest.

T. ARCHIBALD CARY, General Agent for Virginia and North Carolina,
Richmond, Virginia.

During 1908

(As in previous years)

We want you in our business, for we have what you want in your homes—the very best, most substantial and handsome furniture at bottom prices. We are also the undertakers.

Burke Furniture and Coffin Company

BUKINGTON, N. C.

Southern Railway

Operating Over 7,000 Miles of Railway.

Quick Route to all Points North,
South, East and West.

For Speed, Comfort, Courteous Employees, travel via the Southern Railway.

Rates, Schedules and other information furnished by any of the undersigned.

R. L. VERNON, Trav. Pass. Agt.,
Charlotte, N. C.

J. H. WOOD, Dist. Pass. Agt.,
Asheville, N. C.

S. H. HARDWICK, P. T. M.,

Washington, D. C. W. H. TAYLOE, G. P. A.,

Elon College.

Co-educational. Established 1890.

Thorough College courses leading to M. A., A. B., and Ph. B. degrees. Strong and experienced Faculty with highest University training. Good Library, Reading Room, Laboratories, Literary Societies. Excellent Music, Elocution and Business Departments. Diploma from Elon admits to graduate departments in the highest universities.

Beautiful and healthful location, 17 miles east of Greensboro on Southern Railway. Best moral and religious influence. No hazing. New students met by reception committees from young people's Christian organizations connected with the college. Good equipment. A large new dormitory, with modern conveniences, has recently been built to meet the requirements of growing patronage.

EXPENSES UNUSUALLY MODERATE. FALL TERM OPENS SEPT. 1ST.

For catalogue or further information, address

EMMETT L. MOFFITT, LL. D., President.

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

to live to worship in the new building. This he was not permitted to do; but when scarcely able to walk he visited the church once when in course of construction. His daughters were among the charter members and are now among the staunchest supporters of the work.

In his declining years when suffering in body he often expressed a wish to depart; but always added, "The Lord's will be done." To the writer he expressed a firm conviction that he would die triumphant in the faith.

The funeral service was at Liberty Christian Church May 20th and burial in the church cemetery.

C. E. Newman.

—The report of the National Gingers' Association gives the average condition of the cotton crop June 24, as 75.6. There has been abandoned 7 per cent. of the acreage, making 9.8 per cent. acreage less than last year.

The Christian Sun.

State Library

In Essentials—Unity, in Non-Essentials—Liberty, in All Things—Charity.

ESTABLISHED 1844.

GREENSBORO N. C., WEDNESDAY, JULY 14, 1909.

VOLUME LXI. NUMBER 27.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

A Noble Charity. Our city of Greensboro has an institution of relief and charity that many are not familiar with. Because owned and operated by Catholics, and the people of this persuasion not being numerous amongst us, comparatively little has been said or written about St. Leo's hospital. Cold facts cannot tell, but consider such as these: Here is a magnificent brick and stone building whose construction and equipment cost $150,000. The rooms and wards, halls and parlors are spacious, cheerful, inviting and, for cleanliness, wellnigh spotless. Eight Sisters of Charity, whose devotion to duty is boundless, are in charge, and these give all their time, absolutely without financial consideration or compensation, to the keep of the building and the comfort of the people who go there for treatment. There are twenty-three female nurses, four male nurses and five men, engineers, gardeners, etc., in the employ of the hospital. These nurses are in training, for the most part, for professional services, and are not expensive to the institution. And yet, with all this gratuitous and economic service and management, St. Leo's hospital barely meets actual running expenses—just that and nothing more. And this is the wherefore: unnumbered patients are unable to pay—and none who come are turned off for poverty. Out of sixty to seventy patients always present there are ten to fifteen "charity" patients—those who come, white or colored, poor, needy, but down and helpless and suffering—who though nursed back to strength and health in most cases, never pay one penny for all these favors received. There is an average of 10 or 12 charity patients always in treatment.

St. Leo's only opened in April, 1906, three years ago. But in this brief period one thousand, nine hundred patients have been received and treated there, the great host of them sent on their way of hope and health and service.

If this is not charity we do not know, and if the spirit of our blessed Master is not mighty and manifest here, we have not read His blessed life aright, or woefully misinterpreted what our eyes have seen at this place, built and conducted, as we see it, for the relief of human suffering, and the betterment of the condition of man. When all is said and done, the Catholic Church has certainly led all others in building hospitals, in caring for the sick and in reaching out a helping hand to the helpless and the needy.

Shifting the Opportunity.—Greatness, someone has said, consists in rising to meet the opportunity. It is even so. Some boys and girls never amount to a hill of beans because they think all the good and great opportunities are for others, none for themselves. They hear great public speeches about how to become useful; but they think the speaker means somebody else. They know there are schools, colleges, universities, and that through these even some poor boys have become great and useful; but it never occurs to them that they themselves might with effort go and do likewise.

There is ever a tendency to shirk responsibility. No one courts burden bearing. The same is true of opportunity—there is ever a tendency to shirk it and shift it to others. Those who are great and good rise to meet and welcome every opportunity afforded for usefulness and for service. Rising in the world means rising to and meeting the opportunities that come.

A thousand girls and boys will this summer find the opportunity facing them of going to school or college next fall. Seven hundred of them will decide that the opportunity is for others, not for themselves. Three hundred will rise to grasp the opportunity. And these last will tell a story of usefulness and service and success in the years to come.

Rogers and Finance. We trust the spirit of the late H. H. Rogers has found repose in a happier and better land, but if he could return to earth we have a notion he would lead a different life. Forsooth he would if he dared profit by criticism and newspaper comment.

There is a saying in Massachusetts that a man of means cannot die decently in that State unless he remembers Harvard College in his will. Now, Bro. Rogers dared face public sentiment and remember no educational, religious or benevolent institutions and enterprises in his will, indeed did not remember them much while he lived. In private charity, and in his home town, he took pleasure and gave liberally, but the great bulk of his property, like that of Jay Gould, was left intact and descends unbroken to his sons. He built a great railroad and blessed a State in his business dealings; but that was business and not philanthropy. The public has not forgotten Mr. Rogers' operations in the Amalgamated Copper Company which gave birth to our modern phrase "frenzied finance," and that the government laid to him the charge of "unfair competition and methods economically and morally unjustifiable," in managing Standard Oil. Mr. Rogers' business ventures may have been successful and beneficial from a financial point of view, but with him business was first and last, with little regard to blessings and benefits to mankind. Every business success is a blessing to some; but unless there is a moral basis and principle in view, no business is a success to the man who conducts it. The papers, therefore, are giving Mr. Rogers little credit for the vast fortune he piled up; it is doubtful if he would pronounce his own life a success could he now pass judgment on it. At the bottom of all business there is a great fundamental, moral principle and he who ignores this to further his own ends solely does so to his own hurt. The world is certainly not singing the praises of the late lamented H. H. Rogers.

—Congress has passed a bill submitting to the Legislatures of the several States the proposition of an income tax amendment to the Constitution. During President Cleveland's administration an income tax law was enacted, but the Supreme Court declared it unconstitutional. If three-fourths of the Legislatures adopt the act it becomes a part of the Constitution.

FROM THE FIELD.

Wadley, Ala.

We were rained out Sunday at McGuire's Chapel, consequently we failed to hold our missionary service. We will hold that service next meeting. The church at New Hope held its memorial service on Saturday before the 4th Sunday. A fine audience, and a fine service, although rain interfered some in the afternoon. Sunday we held our mission service and had a nice service indeed $24.05 being the amount contributed. I feel sure that we will raise our Conference assessments in full at New Hope. So many of the members here have moved away, that it makes it difficult to meet the demands. Our assessment this year is $50.55, but we will write these members and give them a special invitation to assist us in making these sacred obligations.

I find as I proceed with this mission work that the interest increases and also the collections. It is true, our people are becoming better informed on this all important topic, and are contributing accordingly. We are hunting ten men in the Ala. Christian Conference who will give $10.00 each for special mission work each year. We need 20 men who will give $5.00 each for this cause. We need and must have twenty women who will give $2.50 each making a total of $250.00 for special mission work. This in addition to our regular assessment would double our forces in the home field and enable us to put a worker in the foreign field.

We already have $88.00 of this secured. Who next? What say you, brethren and sisters? Do you love your own Church $2.50, $5.00, or $10.00 worth each year, to help spread her principles and bring souls to Christ? If you do, speak out. G. D. Hunt.

Cypress Chapel.

Sunday, June 27th, was Children's Day. The congregation was very large and attentive. The program was very beautifully gotten up and arranged by those who were much interested in the welfare of the young people and little children, all of whom did well. Every body, no doubt, enjoyed the occasion. We attribute the success of the occasion to those who got up the program and so beautifully arranged, and so faithfully trained the little ones. Give me good leaders and I will give you success. The success of any enterprise or great undertaking depends greatly upon the leader or leaders.

The collection was very good, which was for missions. I want to congratulate the young people and the little ones on their fine success and also in behalf of the church and Sunday school, thank all who took any part in getting up the program and training the children. Bro. Stanley Harrell was present and gave a good talk on missions. H. H. B.

Columbus, Ga., Letter.

The series of meetings at the Waverly Terrace Church came to a close on Thursday night before the fourth Sunday in June. The meeting was not largely attended, but the interest was good and, in all probability, seed were sown that may bring forth a splendid harvest after the field has been thoroughly worked. Rev. E. M. Carter was present the last two nights of the meeting and preached the closing sermon, which was a clear and forcible presentation of "Christ the Propitiation for Sin." The sermon made a profound impression on the minds of those present.

The first Sunday instant the writer, and pastor at North Highlands, spoke on the subject, "The Bible Plan for Church Finances." At the close of the services several made a covenant that they would begin tithing their income. We expect others to adopt this plan soon. To any who are not acquainted with what the Bible teaches in reference to the method of giving, the following scripture is suggested: Gen. 14:18-20; 28:22; Deut. 14:22; Num. 18:24; Neh. 10:37; Amos 4:4; Mal. 3:8-10; Luke 11:42; 1 Cor. 16:2; 2 Cor. 9:1-15; Matt. 10:8; Acts 20:35; Prov. 3:9-10. These references are given with a view to interesting those who are not interested in this subject. Remember that the Word of God teaches us to give (1) freely, (2) bountifully—the tenth, (3) and at stated times.

G. O. Lankford.

Nansemond Notes.

In my "Notes" I am making mention of some matters which may seem "stale" to the readers of The Sun, but I hope I may be pardoned for taking such valuable space for "stale" news, if it is not interesting to those who may read. I have been eating a good deal of "stale" bread during my sickness. I saw a statement the other day on a package of food: "Tell me what you eat and I will tell you what you are." On that basis I would be somewhat "stale" myself, and could not be expected to get very far from writing letters somewhat out of date.

On the fourth Sunday in March there was a special service at Mt. Zion church for the Odd Fellows. Special music was used, and by special invitation I preached the anniversary sermon. A very large congregation was present. I was also invited to preach the anniversary sermon for the Driver Lodge of Odd Fellows, at Berea, on the 4th Sunday in April. The 5th Sunday by invitation I preached the anniversary sermon for the Holly Grove Lodge of Odd Fellows, at Parker's M. E. Church, South, Gates County, N. C. These Lodges presented me with a nice purse for the services, and I wish to return them thanks for the and I wish to return thanks for the

The second Sunday in May was the annual missionary service at Berea, Nansemond. The day was fine, the congregation large, the dinner abundant, and the missionary service delightful. Mr. W. J. Kendrick delivered the address before the missionary society. It was presented in his usual happy manner, and was very much enjoyed by all present. The missionary offering amounted to about $40. The work in this church is doing well.

The foundation has been laid for the new church building at Holson. The members decided to build a new church, and make some disposition of the old building now in use. The membership is not large, but they are very faithful and untiring in their efforts. They are going to have a very neat building, when it is completed. If any person who shall read these lines would like to make a contribution for a worthy enterprise, a contribution sent to Mrs. J. T. Johnson, treasurer, Hobson, Nansemond Co., Va., would be very much appreciated, and would do much good. The church is being erected in a section where it will do much good, and it is much needed.

The time for the Sunday school convention is rapidly drawing near. The convention will meet at Waverly. I would like to request all Sunday schools in the Eastern Virginia Christian Sunday School Convention, who have organized teacher training classes to report at once to me, in order that I may make a report of all classes to the Convention.

I. W. Johnson.

NOTICE!

The Sunday School Convention of the Virginia Valley Central Conference will meet at Beulah Christian Church on Friday and Saturday before the third Sunday in July. The nearest station is Keezleton, Va., and all who expect to come by rail will please notify me not later than July 12, if they expect to be met at the station.

Edward French, Pastor.

Lacey Springs, Va.

NOTICE!

The Virginia Valley Central Conference will meet at Newport Christian Church, Page County, Thursday - Sunday, embracing the third Sunday in August, and all who expect to be met at Stanley, Va., the nearest station, will please notify me at Lacey Springs, Va., not later than August 8, if they expect to be met at the station.

Edward French, Pastor.

NOTICE! NOTICE!

To all the Sunday School Superintendents and their Schools of the Eastern Virginia Christian Convention:

The Eastern Virginia Sunday School Convention meets with the Waverly Christian Church, Waverly, Va., July 21-23, 1909. The first session will begin at eleven o'clock a. m. on the twenty-first. The program is seen elsewhere in this issue of The Sun.

Railroad service will be good. There are four trains from Norfolk each day and four to Norfolk. The first train arriving here is 9:30 a. m., the second is 10:45 a. m., the third is 5:48 p. m., and the fourth is 9:22 p. m.

The first train leaving here is 7:42 a. m., the second is 10:00 a. m., the third is 4:00 p. m., and the fourth is 6:36 p. m.

Trains scheduled here at the hours of 10:45 a. m., 5:48 p. m., 10:00 a. m. and 4:00 p. m. are through trains stopping only at Suffolk and this place. All others are local. For further information apply to your nearest railroad station. For further information about the convention apply to

H. E. Rountree,
General Secretary.

Waverly, Va.

PROGRAM OF EASTERN VIRGINIA SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION, WAVERLY, VA, JULY 21-23.

Our motto: A Christian Endeavor Society in every church, Teacher-Training and Organized Classes in every Sunday school.

Opening Session.

Wednesday Morning, July 21.

Rev. C. H. Rowland, President, presiding.

11:00—Opening song, devotional, Rev. M. W. Butler.

11:15—Roll call and enrollment.

11:40—Words of Welcome:

On behalf of the Church and the Sunday-school, Judge J. F. West.

On behalf of the Town and Community, Robt. W. Arnold, Attorney.

Response, Mr. Stanley C. Harrell, Secretary.

12:20—Report of the Executive Committee, Rev. C. H. Rowland, Chr.

12:30—Business Session.

Appointment of committees:

- (a) Nominating.
- (b) Resolutions.

(c) Other committees.

Announcements.

12:50—Adjournment, benediction.

You need a note-book and pencil during every session of this convention. Note what is said. Take it to your school, apply it. Don't forget it.

Second Session.

Wednesday Afternoon, July 22.

2:30—Song and prayer service, Rev. H. H. Butler.

2:45—Report of Nominating Committee; election of officers, Department Superintendents and Secretaries.

3:00—Reports of Departments.

Cradle Roll, Mrs. J. W. Harrell.

Primary Union, Mrs. W. D. Harward.

Teacher-Training, Rev. I. W. Johnson.

Home Department, Rev. R. H. Peel.

Decision Secretary, Rev. J. O. Cox.

Organized Bible Class, Superintendent Organized Work.

Missionary, Rev. J. W. Harrell.

3:35—"The Need and the Importance of Developed Departments in Our Sunday Schools," Prof. W. P. Lawrence, Elon College, N. C.

4:00—Open Parliament on above topics.

Business session.

Announcements, adjournment, benediction.

Notice: You need to be present tomorrow morning. "The Teacher and Teacher-Training" is to be discussed. Every school needs this. Don't forget to be present—on time—and get something for your school.

Third Session.

Wednesday Night, July 22.

8:00—Song and prayer service, led by Rev. N. G. Newman. Music by the church choir, Mr. J. F. Baird, Director.

Annual address, "The Child and the Church," Dr. W. W. Staley.

Announcements, benediction.

Fourth Session.

Thursday Morning, July 23.

Theme: Teachers and Teaching.

10:00—Song service, The Quiet Hour, led by Dr. W. W. Staley.

Reading of Minutes and enrollment.

10:35—"A Real Sunday School Teacher and His Supreme Aim," Rev. C. C. Ryan.

10:55—"The Teacher's Tools and Work," Rev. M. W. Butler.

11:35—"Our Teacher-Training Work—Its Aim," Rev. I. W. Johnson, Superintendent.

11:35—(Fifteen minutes open discussion.) Suggestive thoughts for three minute talks:

- (a) How to Teach.
- (b) Teacher between Sundays.
- (c) How to Have a Teacher-Training Class.

(d) Why Have a Teacher-Training Class?

(e) Teacher-Training as a Forward Look.

Organized Bible Classes.

11:50—"The Adult Organized Bible Class—A World-Wide Movement," Mr. Stanley C. Harrell.

12:05—"How to Organize and Conduct an Organized Class," H. E. Rountree.

12:25—Fifteen minutes open parliament.

Suggestive themes three minutes each:

How to Teach an Adult Organized Class.

What to Avoid—Precautions to Take, etc.

12:40—Business moment.

Announcements, benediction.

Fifth Session.

Thursday Afternoon, July 22.

Theme: Missions.

2:30—Song and prayer service, led by Rev. I. W. Johnson.

2:45—"The Sunday School the Dynamic of Christian Evangelization—A Look Forward," Rev. J. H. Thompson, Norfolk.

3:05—"Missions Made Practical in the Sunday School," Rev. J. W. Harrell. Suggestive themes of five minutes each:

The Mission Ideal in Sunday School Work.

The Place Now Occupied by Missions in the Sunday School Work.

How to have a Missionary Movement in every Sunday School.

Round Table—Missions. Conducted by Rev. J. W. Harrell.

Ten minutes open parliament.

Christian Endeavor and Young People.

3:40—"The Young People's Movement—A Look Forward," Prof. W. P. Lawrence.

4:10—"Christian Endeavor the Supreme Hope," Rev. C. H. Rowland.

4:20—Round table—Christian Endeavor, led by Rev. C. H. Rowland.

Open discussion (fifteen minutes).

4:45—Business session.

Announcements, benediction.

Sixth Session.

Thursday Evening, July 22.

Theme: The Sunday School Winning Souls.

8:00—Song and Prayer Service, led by Rev. M. W. Butler. Music by church choir, Mr. J. F. Baird, Director.

8:20—"The Sunday School a Salvation School," Rev. J. O. Cox.

8:35—"Probing the Life and Making the Truth Shine," Rev. N. G. Newman.

Announcements, benediction.

(Continued on page 12)

NOTES AND PERSONALS.

—President Taft is planning to visit the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition, Seattle, and many points in the far West, in September.

—President Taft delivered an address, and assisted in laying the corner-stone of a Congregational Church in Washington, Sunday, July 11.

—Four solid train loads of tobacco, 115 cars of 15 hogsheads each, reached Pensacola, Fla. July 11 from Tenn. and Ky. for export direct to Liverpool.

—President Moffitt and family left Elon last week for a visit of several days to Asheboro, N. C., Dr. Moffitt's former home.

—Rev. R. P. Crumpler who graduated from Elon at the recent commencement has taken charge, for the summer, of Prof. Wicker's work with the Palm St. Church, Greensboro.

—Col. Marcellus Pointer aide-de-camp to Gen. Jos Wheeler and a most gallant officer in the Civil war died in obscurity and in poverty in a Bowery hotel, New York, July 10.

—The Sunday school Convention Programs take much space this week, but they are worth it. If any doubt that we are moving in Sunday school matters let them read a program of our annual meetings.

—The tariff bill which has been passed by the House, many times amended and passed by the Senate is now in the hands of conferees from House and Senate and will likely be ready for adoption at an early date.

—Prof. P. J. Kernodle has been compelled to keep his bed several weeks at his home at Elon College, nursing a rather tedious and trying case of rheumatism, but is hopeful now that he shall be up and out in a few days.

—The many friends of Mrs. W. A. Harper are pleased that she has so far recovered from the effects of a recent operation at St. Leo's hospital, Greensboro, as to be able to return to her home at Elon College. Mrs. Harper has promise of complete restoration to health.

—Rev. W. S. Long, D.D., Graham, N. C., well and favorably known to Sun readers and church workers in all our Southern Convention, wishes that we announce that he will consider a proposition to serve as pastor or teacher, as the way may open.

—When a pastor can possibly attend his Sunday school Convention and fails to do so it is a reflection on him. It seems that he did not attend because he did not have to, or rather, because there was no pay in it for him. He owes it to himself, his calling and his Sunday schools to be there and do his best to make the Convention a success.

—Prof. J. P. Kernodle sends this which we are pleased to insert: "Please say in The Sun that I am having books, 'Lives of Christian Ministers,' delivered to advance subscribers as rapidly as possible. Owing to my having been confined to my bed already four weeks from rheumatism, delay in delivery has been unavoidable. I shall be glad to receive new orders; price net in cloth $2.00; gilt top, $2.50. Orders sent to Christian Sun will receive prompt attention."

—Bro. Manning, of the Henderson Gold Leaf gives this timely advice, with every word of which we heartily agree:

"Preach the gospel of good roads. As the Baltimore Manufacturer's Record says, the man who is directly working for good roads is directly working for the betterment of mankind. He is working for the advancement of education and religion and for all that makes the highest civilization. Let the good work go on."

—The elegant new house of worship at Pleasant Grove, Halifax Co., Va., is to be dedicated first Sunday in August. Rev. W. W. Staley, D. D., Suffolk, Va., is to preach the dedicatory sermon and Rev. J. W. Wellons, Elon College, is to offer the dedicatory prayer and be in charge of the communion service. There are to be forenoon and afternoon services. The people of this community are justly proud of the great and unselfish work they have done in building such a costly house to the glory of God.

—The Commercial Appeal, Memphis, Tenn., in its issue July 4 carries a fine cut of Rev. B. F. Black, Secretary of the St. Railway Y. M. C. A. of that city and also of library scenes connected with the work. Bro. Black has organized a Sunday school from the families of the street railway employees which the Commercial Appeal thinks is the only one of its kind in the world. There are a hundred of these families and their school meets every Sunday evening in the car barn of the Company.

—Mr. S. M. Atkinson is now traveling in the Eastern Virginia Conference in behalf of The Christian Sun. What assistance the friends there may give him will be greatly appreciated as his work at best is arduous, especially in the dull summer season. He plans to be with Rev. N. G. Newman at Holy Neck next Sunday (18th inst.). If friends come prepared to renew much time and expense of travel are saved. Tell Mr. Atkinson where he may find a new subscriber, and thereby do a good turn for your church paper and the good cause.

—We learn from the Herald of Gospel Liberty of last week that the venerable and beloved Dr. T. M. McWhinney died at his home in Yellow Springs, O., July 1, being in his eighty-sixth year. Dr. McWhinney had visited the South more than once and was beloved by those who had the privilege of meeting and hearing him. He preached the baccalaureate sermon at Elon College a few years since, and, although then past eighty, he delivered his message without support of table, desk, or notes, and held his audience by his vigor of thought and charm of eloquence. Dr. McWhinney was ever loyal to his church and was a man of great weight and worth in its councils.

—Of the marriage of our former popular and universally esteemed music teacher, Miss Elise Ramsey, the Fayetteville Index of July 7 thus speaks:

"Mr. H. M. McAllister, of Lumberton, and Miss Elise Ramsey, of Monroe, were parties to a brilliant wedding in the Presbyterian church of the latter place last Wednesday, Rev. William Black performing the ceremony.

Mr. McAllister is a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. McAllister, of Lumberton, and has relatives among the best and most prominent citizens of Fayetteville and Cumberland County. He is cashier of the First National Bank of Lumberton and an energetic young business man of enviable reputation. His bride is a daughter of Mrs. Frances Ramsey, and is a young lady of many accomplishments."

—Miss Mary Morgan, daughter of the late Senator Morgan, of Alabama, died at Blowing Rock, N. C., July 11.

—It is learned with profound regret that Editor Caldwell, of the Charlotte Observer, has suffered a relapse and has been carried to the hospital. His condition is not promising.

—There has just been presented to the Sunday School Union a tea set, given by Robert Raikes, the founder of Sunday schools, to one of his scholars as a first prize 85 years ago.

—Rev. Dr. R. A. Torrey, the noted evangelist, closed last Monday a very successful revival at Winston-Salem. He made a profound impression and hundreds, singing joyous hymns, gathered at the station to bid the preacher farewell. There were several hundred, maybe 1200 or 1500, professed conversions.

—It is risky to send money by mail to concerns about whose reliability one knows nothing. In Parkersburg, W. Va., a case has come up where a concern advertised ten yards of silk for $2. It sent the silk all right, but it was silk thread. Better buy silk at home where you can see what you are getting.—Roanoke News.

JESUS, THE DIVINE SPEAKER.

In a former thesis Jesus was noticed as a teacher. In this He will be considered as a speaker. Let us listen to Him in his beautiful flow of eloquent words.

Among all the splendid voices, and the oratorical tongues of the centuries, none has been so winsome and profoundly eloquent as was His who spake as never man spoke. Whether sounding down the mountain side, urging through the plain, or floating over the sea, it commanded great respect and received the utmost attention from the eager throngs that pressed to hear him. The same inspiring voice speaks to us as charmingly today as when it said, "Let there be light." And when that trumpet voice shall sound the last note of time, it will roll with the same everlasting strength and harmony. With tender accents the words of light and life ran in streams of gladness from the ever-flowing Fountain into anxious hearts until they were filled with the fulness of His love. It is the pleasant duty of all to love and praise Him for His matchless sayings and incomparable greatness and goodness, and to know that He is speaking to us, in many ways, entreating us to gain the victory and get the immortal crown. God speaking to us is a delightful thought to entertain, and every one ought to listen and hear what is said in Hebrews, first chapter, first verse: "God who at sundry times and in diverse manners, spake in time past unto the fathers by the prophets hath in these last days spoken unto us by His Son." To them He spake through the law, to us He speaks through the gospel.

The law was delivered to Moses on Sinai's craggy summit, in tables of stone, and was handed down amid cloud, lightning and thunder, smoke and fire. And at that momentous and eventful hour the mountain did quake greatly with the power of God. There was a great trembling among the people as Moses brought them out upon the mount to meet with God. That must have been a thrilling event when God talked with Moses from heaven. No wonder that the face of Moses shone with such surpassing brightness when he came down from the mount fresh from the presence of the Lord.

If we would have a more intimate relation with God; if we would commune with Him often; if we would abide in the divine presence; if we would go up on the mount and dwell with Him until endued with power from the large upper chamber, what a wonderful difference it would make in the appearance. Coming down with the face beaming with heavenly brightness, it would be noticed by all and make a good, deep, splendid impression on them. If your face does not shine by the brightness of the Spirit which ought to be in you, it will prove that you have not been with God enough to catch his changing and charming influence, and that beautiful and lovely expression which will cause the features to play an impressive part in your life. An old, unbecoming, wrinkled face, that has become scarred, blurred, bloated, and on which sin and dissipation have made long, deep furrows, can become smooth and better looking by living a pure life and applying to the soul divine grace with the lotion of salvation. When you shine up, dress up, fix up, and help yourself move to the front you look better, feel better, and even command and demand more respect.

You may tell of brisk rubbing to iron out the wrinkles to make you look younger and more attractive, you may mention the cosmetics and lotions and many other preparations intended to make old people look young, and cause the young to look better, and these may be useful in their place—but let all of us go up on the mount with God and have him give life and health and joy; eating at the same time, and all the time, of the hidden manna, then will we be more symmetrical, more admirable, and better developed. A conscience at ease and at peace with God is worth more to help smooth out the wrinkles than the most costly toiles filled with the richest perfumes. If God be in us and with us, speaking the matchless words of comfort—the face, which is the index of the heart and affections, will shine with incomparable splendor. To have this experience is of priceless value. Then to hear the sweet, mellow voice of our Father coming over the din of time and the flight of years, saying: "Behold, I am with you always, even to the end," is enough to give more persistence and greater determination to press upward for the immortal prize. Brilliant scholars and entertaining writers have given pleasing rhetoric and convincing logic upon this very theme, but they have left some pebble of thought along the shore of the great ocean of time, to be taken up to help fill other minds, to help mould, embellish and brighten other souls.

He spake very many times and in different ways. Before the flood he spake by Enoch and Noah. Behold the wonderful things he did, and hear his voice in the great sayings which were full of promise and consolation to that people. After the flood he speaks by Abraham, Jacob, Moses, and all the prophets.

What a constellation of bright stars in this group! What faithful, holy, just, honest and good men he chose through whom to speak to the people! They conveyed his plans and will to them in a most satisfactory manner. His desire so well planned and so faithfully executed by his faithful servants was a marvelous thing and accomplished grand results.

In diverse manners he talked with them. Sometimes he spake by a voice—at other times by dreams and visions. Joseph was a dreamer—yes, a dreamer, and his dreams meant something—study them over and see what they tell—they tell a true story. Such a model boy—a young man of character and purpose, and such a great, good man. What an honor to himself and a blessing to the world! His examples have been a model for many a boy and young man. Would that the young men of all the nations of the world would study him more, because he is a good model to follow. He was faithful and right, clean in his life, and manly in his deportment. How sublimely eloquent did God speak through this dreaming boy! No one can read the history of his life without being thrilled with the scenes in the different acts as he played his parts so well on the stage of life.

Isaiah's transporting heavenly vision has been much admired by anxious multitudes who devotedly loved this sublime prophet, chaste and elegant writer. His style was natural and easy—his thoughts elevating, his imagery beautiful, and his description clear and strong. What surpassing joy he must have possessed as he lived with God, as he talked with him and through him! How happy he must have been, having such natural gifts, and then so fully influenced by the presence of God. No one can read Isaiah without feeling better—without being impressed with his great knowledge and beautiful character.

At other times he spake by signs from heaven, as in a pillar of cloud by day, and fire at night. Many times by revelations. In these signs under the Old Testament dispensation His deliverance was fully shown.

In the last days he has spoken to us by His Son. Under the new dispensation he speaks to us through Jesus. Just now that precious old hymn sounds in the ears and rings in the soul with such rich melody in these first lines:

"Hark, my soul, it is the Lord,
'Tis the Savior, hear his voice—
Jesus speaks—he speaks to thee,
Saying, poor sinner, lovest thou me?"

Jesus was the last medium through which He has spoken. In every condition he is ready to help. When you are

(Continued on page thirteen).

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEPARTMENT.

Exponent of the Young People's Convention,
Christian Church, South.

Watchword: A Christian Endeavor Society in Every Church; Teacher-Training and Organized Classes in Every Sunday School.

Devoted to the interest and advancement of Sunday Schools, Teacher-Training, Organized Classes, Cradle Roll, Home Department, Christian Endeavor, Missionary Societies, Temperance Societies, Aid Societies, Civic Righteousness.

W. A. HARPER, Editor and Field Secretary, Elon College, N. C.

[All notes and contributions for this Department should be sent to W. A. Harper, Elon College, N. C., who extends the Church at large a cordial invitation to furnish him with any note of interest to our Young People, particularly information in regard to any forward steps, new movement, or new organization looking to progressive and effective service. All items under this Department not signed are by its Editor and Field Secretary.]

HOW TO CONDUCT THE C. E. MEETING FOR JULY 18—A FEW SUGGESTIONS.

Topic: The Palace Beautiful (Pilgrim's Progress, Series VII), Eph. 4:7-16; 6:10-17.

For the Leader. Christian's room in the Palace Beautiful was called Peace. It might be a good plan for the leader to confine his remarks to the prime need of our strenuous era—rest and peace. He will do well to tell in well-chosen words of the mad rush of the world, of the savage competition that drives men insane, of the grinding cares of the complex life which make middle-aged men grey and bring them to the grave before the day of their greatest usefulness has dawned. An illustration or two from present day life would be very appropriate here. Then let him picture the composed, the simple, the restful, the peaceful, the Christian life—let him show how our holy religion opposes the ideal of the present materialism and invites all to "a peace that passes all understanding" save to the initiated. Let him close his remarks with a personal testimony of the value of this peace in his own experience.

For the More Experienced Members. Appoint two Scripture readers, one for Eph. 4:7-16 and the other for Eph. 6:10-17. Appoint six to briefly respond with fitting comment, terse but illustrative, and enforcing the idea of the verses read by the readers as follows:

1. Christian's path not always smooth. Eph. 4:7-10.
2. We have varying talents. Eph. 4:1-13.
3. Oneness in Christ. Eph. 4:14-16.
4. Christian's strength. Eph. 6:10-11.
5. Our enemy. Eph. 6:12.
6. Our armor. Eph. 6:13-17.

For the Less Experienced Members. Stand out for reading in the meeting the following Scripture references:

- Lions in the way, Dan. 6:16-23.
- Overcoming the flesh, Heb. 12:1-3.
- In good company, Col. 4:2-6.
- The Peace Chamber, Isa. 26:1-4.
- Divine Provision, Matt. 22:1-14.
- Christian Armor, 1 Thess. 5:8.

Pilgrim's Progress, Series VII. The seventh series of our C. E. studies in Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress begins with the Palace Beautiful with the words, "Then I saw that he went on trembling for fear of the lions," and closes, when Christian begins his journey again, with the words, "Then he began to go forward." It contains five dialogues and the narrative part. This whole passage should be rendered in a dramatic way by assigning to one the narrative portion, to another Christian's part in the dialogues, to a third the Porter's part, to a fourth Piety's part, to a fifth Prudence's part, and to a sixth Charity's part. These parts should be assigned to the more advanced members and with discrimination. If they practice it beforehand, this will give zest and charm to the meeting.

Suggested Program.

1. Chain of prayer. Song.
2. First Scripture lesson by the appointed reader in the sections indicated above and with the comment by those appointed.
3. Song. Prayer by leader.
4. Second Scripture lesson by appointed reader in the three sections indicated above and with the comment of those appointed.
5. Leader's remarks.
6. Stanza of some appropriate hymn.
7. Scripture references by less experienced members.
8. Opportunity for all to participate by testimony, Scripture text, prayer, or in any other way.
9. The Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress program suggested above.
10. Song. Offering. Mizpah.

The Dignity of Teaching.

Would that I could magnify the office of Sunday school teacher—not that it needs magnifying for those who know its worth, but that those who do not know its worth may be sufficiently impressed with its dignity to make suitable preparation for it. Our blessed Lord was first and foremost a Sunday school teacher. He is dozens of times styled a teacher in Holy Writ where he is once called a preacher. Our ministers are performing their noblest service for humanity when they are sincere teachers of the Word. There is no holier office than that of religious teacher. There is no religious teacher superior to the Sunday school teacher in influence, in good done, in souls won for the kingdom. From our Sunday schools come ninety per cent. of our church members and practically all of our Christian workers. Verily the Sunday school is a mighty agency in the salvation of souls—and of this mighty agency the teacher is the central force, the dynamo whence radiates the subtle power that lights the world with Christian love.

Sunday school teaching is indeed a profession of vast dignity, of far-reaching influences. There is no profession that can approach it when we weigh our activities in this life in terms of the life to come. Compared with it, when we take the ultimate view, the learned professions pale into insignificance. If the chief duty of man is to fear God and keep his commandments and to get ready for that incorruptible crown that fadeth not away, then our religious teachers (chief among whom are our Sunday school teachers) are the most noble of our professional men and women. There is no dignity, then, approaching that of the Sunday school teacher.

But why this, do you ask? That you may feel the importance of preparing for such a noble service, of getting ready to enter such a dignified profession. Other professions call for special training. Does not the noblest profession, the most dignified, call for it? For three months the power and influence of this department and of its hundreds of devout friends are to be centered upon the organization of Teacher Training classes in our Sunday schools—that we may train our present and future teachers for the noblest service, the most dignified labor it shall ever be their privilege to perform. My brother, my sister, what is your place in this campaign? Is your Sunday school in the front line of this forward movement or is it skulking in the rear? What is your duty? Pray over the situation. Then lend a hand.

Young People's Convention Honor Roll.

In this honor, which will be kept standing for three weeks yet, are printed the names and addresses in the order of time of those pastors who have filled out the "Pastor's Information Blank" mailed them with stamped envelope on June 26. This roll is given not to encourage invidious comparison nor to suggest it, but simply to let the Church at large know how interested our pastors are in this Young People's Movement.

- Rev. J. W. Wellons, Elon College, N. C.
- Rev. W. C. Wicker, Elon College, N. C.
- Rev. A. P. Barbee, Durham, N. C.
- Rev. J. W. Barrett, Norfolk, Va.
- Rev. C. E. Newman, Henderson, N. C.
- Rev. N. G. Newman, Holland, Va.
- Rev. W. G. Clements, Morrisville, N. C.
- Rev. J. D. Wicker, Sanford, N. C.
- Rev. Herbert Scholz, Macon, N. C.
- Rev. J. W. Harrell, Portsmouth, Va.
- Rev. G. D. Hunt, Wadley, Ala.
- Rev. J. O. Cox, South Norfolk, Va.
- Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Elon College, N. C.
- Rev. P. T. Klapp, Pittsboro, N. C.
- Rev. H. E. Rountree, Weverley, Va.
- Rev. R. L. Williamson, Ramseur, N. C.
- Dr. P. H. Fleming, Burlington, N. C.
- Rev. M. W. Butler, Newport News, Va.
- Rev. S. B. Klapp, Greensboro, N. C.
- Rev. J. L. Foster, Elon College, N. C.

Have you a Teacher Training Class in your Sunday school? If so, write me how you like it? If not, won't you begin at once to organize one?

A. Front-Line Church.

We have all known of the excellent record attained and great work accomplished by the Burlington Christian Church. Some few of us have known the secret of it—the thorough organization and diligent work of its young people. That all may see for themselves I am printing in full the "Pastor's Report Blank" sent the Field Secretary by the pastor, Dr. P. H. Fleming. In sending the report Dr. Fleming remarks, "I take pleasure in filling out and returning this blank to you." I am sure he did and that our brotherhood at large will receive pleasure and hope and inspiration from reading it. The report reads as follows:—

"Information from Burlington Christian Church, Burlington, N. C., in the W. N. C. Conference.
Supt. of S. S. John R. Foster.
Secy. C. V. Sellars.

No. teachers, 12. No. pupils, 302. No. classes, 12.
Pres. of Teacher Training Class, J. S. Kagey.
Secy. of class, Miss Beulah Petty.
Teacher, P. H. Fleming.

Name, Teacher Training Class.
No. in the class, 14.
Pres. of Men's Class, L. J. Fouville.
Secy. of class, C. T. Holt.
Teacher, J. S. Kagey.
Name, Men's Bible Class.
No. in class 31.
Pres. of Women's Class, Mrs. D. E. Sellars.
Secy. of class, Miss Beulah Petty.
Teacher, P. H. Fleming.
Name, Women's Bible Class.
No. in class, 30.
Cradle Roll Supt., Mrs. R. M. Morrow.
No. pupils on cradle roll, 61.
Home Dept. Supt., Miss Ada A. Teague.
No. pupils in Home Dept., 45.
Pres. C. E., Mrs. W. H. Carroll.
Secy., Miss Nonie B. Moore.
No. active members, 75. No. associate and honorary members, 39.
Junior Supt., Both societies meet together.

Other Organizations.

Pres. of Missionary Society, Mrs. W. H. Carroll.
Names of other organizations for young people and names of their Presidents, Young Men's Bible Class, J. Sipe Fleming, Pres., 23 members; Girl's Helping Hand Class, Miss Nellie Sue Fleming, Pres., 25 members.

Signed, P. H. Fleming, Pastor.
Date, July 8, 1909. Address, Burlington, N. C."

The proper authorities in each of our Sunday school Conventions have been asked to present the matter of appropriations for the support of this department in the Sun and to defray the postage and incidental expenses connected with the campaign now waging to make our motto an accomplished verity. Brethren, please do not neglect so vital a matter. Only $139 was pledged at the Convention at Elon College. The very lowest estimate for the year will be $175, perhaps the sum needed will exceed $200. The Conventions will do well to make appropriations for this work.

What are you doing for Teacher Training? Pray; then lend a hand.

The Young People's Convention recommended that our Sunday school Conventions be gradually merged into Young People's Conventions, as representing not only Sunday schools, but also Christian Endeavor, Missions, and all the organized effort of our Young People. Let each Convention carefully consider this matter. The proper authority in each case has been communicated with.

The Editor calls special attention to the excellent Convention program by Rev. H. E. Rountree for the approaching Eastern Virginia Convention. Let our program makers file it away for reference. Bro. Rountree is a most capable program maker and the beauty of it is that every speaker has signified his willingness to be present and take the part assigned to him before the program is printed. And Eastern Virginia always has a good Convention.

HOW TO TEACH THE S. S. LESSON FOR JULY 25—A FEW SUGGESTIONS.

Paul at Athens. Acts 17:22-34.

Golden Text.—God is a spirit: and they that worship him must worship him in Spirit and in truth. John 4:24.

Review.—Review the previous lesson thoroughly and on board outline the course of the Second Missionary Journey from Antioch to Athens. Call for the note books: make suggestions after examination: have one read.

Intervening Events.—At the conclusion of the last lesson we left Paul at Athens, awaiting the coming of Silas and Timothy. In the meantime Paul preached to the "Jews and devout men" of Athens and disputed with anybody he met in the agora or marketplace. He finally fell into a dispute with the Stoics and the Epicureans, two world famous types of Athenian philosophers, and they had him address them from the Areopagus or Mars' Hill. You will find these facts in Acts 17:16-21. You may give them in your own words, read them from the Bible, or have one of your pupils read them.

Incidental Instruction.—Explain the position of the agora or market place in Athenian life. Explain also the teaching of the Stoics, apathetic fatalism, and of the Epicureans, gross materialism, and show how Paul's message contradicted both these schools of philosophy. A word will need to be said about the Altar to the unknown God. For some reason this has been accepted as an unconscious prophecy of the coming of Christ, but the facts were always at hand to disprove such an idea and I cannot understand how it ever got a hold on the Christian world. We are told by Diogenes Laertius in his life of Epimenides how the custom so prevalent in Greece and Rome of erecting altars to unknown divinities arose. He says that the Athenians were suffering from pestilence which Epimenides arrested thus: "he ordered the Athenians to let go white and black sheep from the Areopagus, and on the spots where they lay down to sacrifice them to "prosekonti

(Continued on page 11)

THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

Founded 1844 by Elder Daniel W. Kerr.
Organ of the Southern Christian
Convention.

Entered at the postoffice at Greensboro, N. C., as second-class matter.

Terms of Subscription.

One Year .....$1.50
Six Months ..... .75
Four Months ..... .50
Advertising rates given on application.

J. O. Atkinson, Editor and Publisher.

Important Notice.—As readers will see, The Christian Sun is now published at Greensboro, N. C. The office of publication there is 302½ South Elm Street. Our editorial office, however, remains at Elon College, N. C., to which all letters and communications to the Editor should be addressed, as heretofore.

THE CHRIST AND THE CHURCH.

Every branch of the church endeavors to embody in its fundamental teaching the doctrine and the life of our blessed Savior. And it is a tribute to His great life, rather than a criticism of it, that no branch of the church has compassed all that He lived and labored and died to accomplish. His life and teachings were too comprehensive to be gathered up into the belief, faith, doctrine or dogma of any single sect or creed.

But, any branch of the church grows and prospers and achieves in the world in proportion to the amount of His life, His doctrine, His teaching that it interprets and successfully advocates among the children of men. His was the many sided life. His was the universal nature, character, being. Different branches of His church insist, lay special emphasis upon, certain sides of His life and teachings, but no single branch lays proper emphasis upon all. His was a life, not a belief.

One branch of the church labors to interest and to save the refined, the cultured, the rich. And our Savior preached to and labored for the rich. Another directs its efforts in particular to the fallen, the outcast, the needy. And our Savior came to seek and to save the lost and the needy. Another directs its efforts to the relief of human suffering and to caring for the sick. And our Savior had compassion on the sick, relieved and healed them. Another insists upon His ultimate triumph because "the elect" and the predestined will be saved and will multiply and replenish the earth with their kind. And our Savior did call and did choose, of His own volition, certain ones to be His disciples and followers. Another insists with all emphasis that baptism is all important and a certain mode is the only mode. And our Savior was Himself baptized and taught that others should be. Another emphasizes the power and the spread of free grace and never dying love. And our Savior was gracious to all, and His love is sufficient for all. These instances show the manner and emphasis placed upon the different sides of this wonderful and marvelous life.

There is a church which claims that a life is greater than a creed, or any formula of dogma or doctrine. This church holds up a life. It bears no name but that He bore. It insists upon and emphasizes His life in all its fullness. It pleads for a fellowship as deep as love and broad as charity. It pleads for vital piety as the only test of this fellowship. It pleads for the brotherhood of all who believe in His life and in the power of His resurrection. It pleads for the teachings He taught as set forth in His inspired Word. It does not claim to cover all His life, nor compass all His teachings; but it does give to each individual member the right and the privilege to interpret that life, and live it, for himself. Such a church is worthy of our deepest loyalty, our noblest sacrifices, our firmest and best endeavor. Such a church has a place in the world, and will have, until there shall be complete unity and fellowship among all the professed followers of Christ. That church holds up to all the world the Christ as its only creed.

THE GOOD DAYS.

Even the days of great and good revivals are not ended. Read of Gypsy Smith in the West, of Dr. Chapman in the East and of Dr. Torrey in the South if you believe it. Thousands are falling under the power of the Word as told by these. The days of the loudest shouting and the most copious weeping may be over. But the times of deciding for Christ, yielding the heart to God, giving the hand to His service, these sweet times still abide and are in the future.

The good days are not done; they are here now, and in the future. God's hand is still guiding, and God's will still controls. The good people are not all dead. We have forgotten the weaknesses of the folks who are gone and remember only their strength, triumphs and virtues. Were some to die whom we know in the flesh now and attend to but poorly we would soon be declaring that these same ones were the best people we had ever known. The best people, like the best days, are here now, or better still, are yet to be. The future yet has for us rich treasures, her very richest treasures of men and measures and days. We shall not pine over the past, but look to the future with hope and comfort and good faith.

HEALTH OF BODY AND SOUL.

The State Board of Health of Kansas, declaring that "the common drinking cup is a source of communicable and infectious diseases," has placed this order on the statute books: "The use of the common drinking cup in railroad trains, in railroad stations, in the public and private schools, and the State educational institutions of the State of Kansas is hereby prohibited from and after September 1, 1909." As population multiplies and diseases increase in number and in degree it is well enough to take such precautions as to health and social well being. As people come closer together in daily work and walk new diseases arise, and new problems in morals and in religion.

When people lived a dozen miles apart and saw each other once a month there was not so much danger of communicating disease, or bad morals, or unwholesome religious ideas. But now people meeting and mingling daily, not to say hourly, communicate the bad in health, manners, morals and religion very rapidly. New problems arise. New solutions are necessary. And as health boards are busy working out solutions to sanitary problems, moralists and religious teachers must be busy solving the new problems that confront Christianity.

Be Simple. Not silly now, and foolish: but plain, artless, natural. Affectation is a curse to be avoided as you would avoid leprosy.

Improvement and self-development are virtues to be cherished and coveted. But the Creator never made another person just like yourself: and He never made you just like any other person. One must, therefore, be one's self—or be a fool. Refuse on all occasions to be a fool. Be yourself—artless, frank, and natural.

But what a strange notion some have of education, self-development, culture. Being pompous and grand and high feathered is not culture, refinement or education. The purpose of all our training, and all our learning, is to lead to simplicity, plainness, naturalness. The educated person is not one of big words and high phrases, but the opposite. Ignorance makes things obscure and complex: education reduces to simplicity and naturalness. The ignorant speaker, preacher, writer, leads the listener or reader into a muddle and leaves him there: knowledge clarifies, illuminates. Our Savior is the model. Never man spake like this Man. He knew. He was educated in the highest sense. And none made so clear and plain and simple as He.

---

NORFOLK LETTER.

---

Sunday was an ideal day, clear and pleasant, consequently attendance at Sunday school and church services was very good.

Rev. W. H. Thompson of the Third Church preached good sermons to somewhat larger congregations than usual.

Rev. C. C. Ryan, of the Memorial Temple, has been indisposed for several days, suffering from a slight attack of malaria. Brother Ryan is a man who does not give up and go to bed, as long as he can stay up, so he filled his pulpit as usual Sunday, reports good congregations, especially at the night service.

Rev. J. W. Harrell and his people, of Portsmouth, are to be congratulated upon the impetus their efforts have taken towards having a new church building. The two front sides are to be of granite, trimmed with stone. The Sunday school room is to be separated from the main auditorium by sliding doors, so that the whole floor space may be thrown into one, giving a seating capacity of 700, and the contract price is to be $26,000. This will build for them a handsome and convenient house which will be an ornament to the city and to the Eastern Virginia Conference, and to our Portsmouth church in particular. I suspect that Brother Harrell will soon report more definitely with reference to this work.

I had a very encouraging letter last week, from a pastor in New York State, with reference to the Porto Rico Building Fund proposition, also received a letter from a sister in Iowa. The letter breathed a splendid spirit of self-sacrifice, and devotion to duty, and determination to take advantage of every opportunity for doing good in the world. She says: "I joined a photography class this spring, but after the first lesson, I told the instructor I believed I could do more good with my $5.00, so I paid for my first lesson, and decided to send the amount for the first term's tuition to you." If I were to give you her name, I am sure many of the Sun readers would know her. I can only commend her example to those who would like to have a part in this work we are doing, and which work we are going to finish.

J. W. Manning.

A WORD OF GRATITUDE.

At the last commencement at Elon College, an act was performed and remarks made that greatly touched my heart and have left there an abiding sense of gratitude. At the time, coming as this act did, and the direct remarks so full of tender, grateful, and affectionate terms, recounting sacrifice, services, and associations of the past, I was utterly unable to express the gratitude I felt. I allude to the oil painting presented to the college by Rev. C. H. Rowland, and other friends whose names have never been given me; and the speeches of Drs. Staley and Moffitt, who were at different times my students and have successively followed me at Elon. It was stated by these speakers that this act was done in recognition of my services and sacrifices in behalf of the church and college. I accept it, not because I think myself worthy, but because it comes so freely from those I love, and those who love the same cause and the same Savior. Not because of its intrinsic worth but because of what it represents.

Years ago I saw the great need of an institution like Elon. The vision would not down. It grew on me, and it appeared to me that we must build and equip it, or the end of our career, as an organization, was inevitable. My faith in God and my brethren impelled me onward. Many good men and women united with me in the enterprise, were liberal in offerings, and true and loyal as friends. Some who should have aided, opposed, secretly or openly. But these are very few in number. But the anxiety, the mental struggle, the heart agony, the sacrifices of him and his wife who took up this task can never be known. Now comes this beautiful act and these gracious words! How sweet and how pleasant! How they fill a poor heart with emotions of gratitude beyond utterance! Never have I undertaken any work simply for money. The improvement, the elevation of others intellectually, morally, and religiously have engrossed my thought, and the tribute brought me in this instance is a compensation more satisfactory and pleasant than gold. From time to time we all meet with ungrateful and thankless persons. I am quite sure I have, and that very recently, but such persons are not, we may hope, numerous. There is, however, amazing ingratitude in the human heart. It is one of the last things that gives way before the grace of God. Forgetting a benefactor when that benefactor is a man of God, but when God is the benefactor how much worse. When I read Luke 17:15, 16, I am humbled, and, at the same time, see a picture of the experiences of life. "Were there not ten cleansed, but where are the nine?" One only of the ten returned to give thanks. He "a Samaritan." The nine did not return to give thanks to the Lord. Can we expect better treatment than our Lord received? Shall we not rather expect to be treated as He was, and can we not bear it? By His grace we can.

Standing today beyond life's meridian, I contemplate with much pleasure and great joy that measure of success that has attended my labor in behalf of others, and especially our beloved Zion. Grateful indeed am I to all my friends for their aid, sympathy, and prayers, but more abundantly, I trust, I am this day grateful to Him, my Lord and Savior, whose mercy, goodness, and love have followed him hitherto. To him I consecrate the remnant of this weary earthly pilgrimage.

W. S. Long.

Graham, N. C., July 12, 1909.

---

SHALL PRINT PAPER BE TAXED?

Mr. President, the first recorded utterance of the most high God was "Let there be light." This has ever been the battle hymn of human progress. This has ever been and must ever be the watchword of advancing civilization. The nation that forgets this mandate must relapse into social chaos and intellectual night. There are kindreds among the sons of men who are still thralled to the power of darkness. There are Senators who seem to prefer darkness rather than light.

Notwithstanding the first fiat of Omnipotence was, "Let there be light," yet this Senate, in defiance of the decree, sets up its puny enactment, "Let there be night."

Mr. President, whether physical, intellectual, or moral, light is a blessing to be sought and not an evil to be shunned. I would not place a meter upon the eyelids of the people and charge them for the joyous sunbeams. I would not annul or defy the ordinance of the Almighty. I would say now and forever, "Let there be light."

The first word of the Deity should be the first and last word of humanity. The first luminous edict of man's Divine Maker should be the first and last precept of those who were made in the divine image.—Hon. Thomas P. Gore, the blind U. S. Senator.

---

—Aguinaldo, the former Philippine rebel, ceases to be even an agitator, and is living a simple life on a farm near Cavite, and is on terms of intimate friendship with the authorities at Manila.

THE CHRISTIAN ORPHANAGE
DEPARTMENT.

CHILDREN'S CORNER.

The Band of Cousins.

Jas. L. Foster, Sec., Elon College, N. C.

"He that hath pity on the poor lendeth unto the Lord, and his good deed will He pay him again."—Prov. 19:17.

Reported last week .....$3,445.68

Monthly Dues:

J. Maryon Saunders ....$ .20

Charles E. Newman, Jr. . . .10

Hannah Clare Newman .. .10

Jessie Penny ..... .10

Monthly S. S. Offerings:

Third Ch., Norfolk, Va. 4.50

Linville, Va. .... .85

Yonngsville, N. C. .... 1.60

Virgilina, Va. .... .50

Bethlehem, Valley, Va. .. 2.15

Union Grove, N. C. .... 1.00

Special Offerings:

F. M. Carlton, Durham,

N. C. .... 5.00

6 bu. Irish potatoes from farm ..... 6.00

By prepaid express refunded ..... .30

Amf. 25th week, 1909 ... — 22.50

Total .....$3,468.18

Elon College, N. C., July 7, 1909.

My Dear Children and Friends:

Uncle Jim will have to make his letter short this week—the wheat-threshers are coming and he must get the letter off. Will tell how many bushels we made next time.

We have just dug our first crop of Irish potatoes and got 26 bushels. They are the finest we have raised in quantity and quality. Still it rains. We have had to give up planting part of our corn crop on account of rain.

Donations: The Foster Shoe Company, of Burlington, N. C., 12 caps and 3 hats for the boys. This company has been very considerate and liberal towards the Orphanage in donations for which we are thankful.

Next week Aunt Myrtle, Mary Lee, James L. and Uncle Jim expect to be at Mt. Auburn Church (Warren County, N. C.) in their protracted meeting. It will be the first meeting. Mary Lee and Jas. L. will have attended in the country.

Give me many letters, cousins, and we will greatly appreciate the help of friends, schools and churches. The Orphanage work surely is of the Lord, and the responsibility is heavy for one to carry—will you take a few dollars' worth and thus help?

With deep interest and prayers for the cause,

Fondly yours,

Uncle Jim.

Elon College, N. C., July 1, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:

We cousins must do better and not let Mary Lee and James have the whole corner to themselves any more. Their letter looked lonely, didn't it?

I am sending the twenty cents, dues for June and July.

Fondly yours,

J. Maryon Saunders.

Henderson, N. C., June 30, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:

We are a little late this month, but all have been busy since we came back from Elon. Charles is going to Virgilina Friday with "daddy" and from there he is going to Eastern Virginia to see grandma and grandpa. Hannah Clare is going to stay home with mama. Our cousin Ruth Wicker is visiting us.

Enclosed find our dimes for June.

Charles E. Newman, Jr.,
Hannah Clare Newman.

Raleigh, N. C., July 7, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:

Now please don't scold because we are late. We wrote last month, and not seeing it in the Sun mama looked in papa's pocket yesterday and found it.

We are planning an ice cream supper for the benefit of our school. We are expecting a good time.

Enclosed please find our dues for June and July.

Your little nieces,

Jessie Penny,
Pauline Penny.

RAISE MONEY FOR YOUR CHURCH.

We offer you an easy method. Send us a photograph of your church or your pastor, and we will send you 500 high grade post cards, with photograph on each card, and scripture verse if desired. Sell these cards at 10 cents each. When sold, remit us $20.00 and keep the balance. You can do this in a week. We will return photograph.

LAKE SHORE SUPPLY CO.,
225 Broad St., St. Joe, Michigan.

To Drive Out Malaria and Build up the System.

Take the Old Standard GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC. You know what you are taking. The formula is plainly printed on every bottle, showing it is simply Quinine and Iron in a tasteless form, and the most effectual form. For grown people and children. 50c.

The North Carolina
COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE AND MECHANIC ARTS.

The State's college for vocational training. Courses in Agriculture and Horticulture; in Civil, Electrical and Mechanical Engineering; in Cotton Milling and Dyeing; in Industrial Chemistry. Why not fit yourself for life by taking one of these courses? Address

D. H. HILL, President,
West Raleigh, N. C.

10 DAYS FREE TRIAL
We ship on approval, without a cent deposit, freight prepaid. DON'T PAY A CENT if you are not satisfied after using the bicycle 10 days.
DO NOT BUY a bicycle or a pair of tires from anyone at any price until you receive our latest art catalogs illustrating every kind of bicycle, and have learned our unheard of prices and marvelous new offers.
ONE CENT is all it will cost you to write a postal and everything will be sent you free postpaid by return mail. You will get much valuable information. Do not wait, write it now.
TIRES, Coaster-Brakes, Built-up-Wheels and all sundries at half usual prices.
MEAD CYCLE CO., Dept. H294 CHICAGO

READ SOMETHING DIFFERENT.

The Greensboro Daily News, the new State paper, is worthy of a trial. Associated Press service, special correspondence, clean, newsy, liberal. One year $6.00; three months $1.50.

GREENSBORO DAILY NEWS,
Greensboro, N. C.

PIEDMONT
"IS THE BEST."
Write for Catalogue
Piedmont Business College
Lynchburg, Va.

USE OUR MONEY
Establish a profitable and lasting business of your own. Be your own boss. We furnish everything, including Sample Outfit valued at $3.50. We began with nothing; are now worth $100,000; what we did you can do; we will gladly help you. Big Catalog, Plans and Sample Outfit now ready and ALL FREE. Write now. Consolidated Portrait & Frame Co.
230-10 W. Adams St., Chicago, Ill.

CANCER CAN BE CURED.

Personal or Home Treatment. Both successful. Scores of testimonials, from persons who gladly write to those now suffering, all tell of permanent cures. My Mild Combination Treatment destroys growth and eliminates the disease from the system. Free book "Cancer and Its Cure" and 125-page book of testimonials from cured patients in all parts of the country. No matter how serious your case, how many operations you have had, or what treatment you have taken, don't give up hope, but write at once Dr. Johnson Remedy Co., 125 Grand Ave., Kansas City, Mo. Physicians treated free.

(Began on page 7)

thes," that is, the appropriate god, the unknown god who sent the pestilence: therefore there are at Athens anonymous or unknown altars." Be that as it may, the custom was a common one and recently an altar of this kind was unearthed in the Roman Forum erected "sive deo sive deae," which means "whether to a god or to a goddess," or "to the unknown god." It is an evidence of the "too superstitious" worship of the Athenians and not a prophecy of Christ. That Paul availed himself of the situation to avoid persecution is a compliment to his good judgment.

The Lesson. Our lesson divides into two parts, which write on the board as they are developed in the teaching:

1. Paul's sermon on Mars' Hill, verses 22-31. Find where Paul stood (Here call for assigned work on Athens and on Mars' Hill or the Areopagus), his salutation, his first declaration, its meaning, how he illustrated it, the wisdom of this approach to the subject, who made the world, the extent of his sovereignty, where he does not dwell, how not worshipped, why, the relationship of the nations to each other, to what end, where God is, in whom we live and move and have our being, what quotation he makes, from what source, how we ought not to think of the God-head, how God had looked at man's ignorance in the past, his present command, why, who should judge by what means God had given assurance of this. (Here call for the outline of Paul's sermon.) (Show how nearly every statement in this oration challenged some of the prejudices or teachings of the Athenians—what a master orator he must have been to read these intellectual gymnastics such a lecture and to escape with his life.)

2. Scanty results, verses 32-34. Find how they received the mention of his resurrection from the dead, what Paul did, the result of his discourse in converts, two who are mentioned especially. (Here call for the spiritual teachings of the lesson, assigned last time.)

Review the lesson by the topic method.

Truths and Their Application. 1. The intellectual acumen of the Athenians failed to reveal God to the souls of the worshipers. It takes the gospel to do this. It is the glory of the gospel that through the ministry God may be revealed to humanity. Knowledge could not reveal God to man, not that God is unknowable, but that man is blind. Is it not remarkable that Paul's master sermon at Athens produced less in results than any recorded sermon of his left to us? Is there not a thought here?

2. What a beautiful thought it is that we are God's offspring and that in him we live and move and have our being. What an obligation this imposes on us to live as becomes the offspring of our Heavenly Father. Are you reflecting credit or discredit on this exalted Parent?

3. There are other idols than the images of heathen deities about which we hear so much. You may have money or clothes or social standing or ambition or a thousand other things as idols. If any of these things are stealing your affections from God, they are idols and you must destroy them or they will destroy your soul.

For Class Discussion. Paul's exquisite tact; the relation between intellectualism and religion; what Paul meant by "too superstitious."

Manual Work. Have the following outline recorded in the note books for expansion at home:

Life of Paul (Saul) (Continued)

51 A. D. Paul discusses with the Athenians.

Writing for Silas and Timothy, Acts 17:16-21.

Intended to return to Thessalonica, 1 Thess. 2:14-18.

Sends Timothy to the Thessalonians, 1 Thess. 3:1-5.

Sends Silas to Philippi, Acts 18:5.

Preaches on Mars' Hill, Acts 17:22-23.

Results of his sermon, Acts 17:32-34.

Assignments for Next Time. Ask one to prepare an essay on Corinth; another on Claudius; a third on Paul's support of himself, Acts 20:34; 1 Thess. 2:9; 2 Thess. 3:8; a fourth on Aquila and Priscilla, Acts 18:2, 26; 1 Cor. 16:19; Rom. 16:3-5; 2 Tim. 4:19; a fifth on the symbol by which Pilate absolved himself from guilt, Matt. 27:24-25.

W. A. Harper.

Elon College, N. C.

TEACHER TRAINING CLASSES.

I am sure that we have within the bounds of the Southern Christian Convention quite a number of Teacher-training Classes that are doing good work, only a few however, have been reported to me. I would like to have a complete list of all the classes now in operation and to that end I want to ask the pastors and the Sunday school Superintendents to see that classes are reported promptly as they are organized.

Below is a list of all the classes that have been reported to me, so far. If you have a class in your Sunday school, and that class is not represented among those mentioned below I would like to ask that you make a report right away.

Every person who completes our Teacher-training Course, and stands the required examination will be given a diploma. This ought to be an incentive for every one to press forward in the work and continue until the course has been completed and the examination taken. Those who complete one half the course (Part I) will be given a certificate. Our Sunday school Conventions would do well to arrange for a graduating exercise each year so that those who are completing the course from time to time may be recognized in a public graduating exercise. I would like to have a report from every class now in operation—would like to know how each class is getting along, how many expect to graduate, etc.

The following classes have reported so far:

Columbus, Ga.—No. of members, 10. Teacher, Rev. G. O. Lankford.

Girard, Ala.—No. of members, 7. Teacher, G. O. Lankford.

Holland, Va.—No. of members, 18. Teacher, Rev. N. G. Newman.

Elon College, N. C.—No. of members, 22. Teacher, Prof. W. A. Harper; Pres., E. T. Hines; Vice Pres., W. G. Cobb; Sec'y., Miss Nannie B. Farmer; Treas., Miss Bessie McPherson; Organist, Miss Ruth Stevick.

Chipley, Ga.—No. of members, 6. Teacher, Rev. E. M. Carter; Asst. Teacher, Jno. W. Short.

Columbus City, Ind.—No. of members, 6. Teacher, Miss Fern Waugh, Sec'y., Orville C. Brigg.

Please make report right away so that your class can be added to the list.

Yours very truly,

Sunday School Board Southern Christian Convention, per S. M. Smith.

FREE TO HOUSEKEEPERS

We want every housekeeper to try our WONDER STRAW HAT CLEANER. Clean your own, your husband's or boy's Straw Hat easily, quickly, perfectly, at home and save money. To introduce it we will send a New Household Necessity of equal value and free catalogue. Send 10 cents, silver or stamps, for sample.

Huron Specialty Co., Ann Arbor, Mich.

When in Burlington call at

T. H. STROUD'S

Store for DRUGS, SOFT DRINKS, and anything desired in drugs and Toilet Articles.

MEDICINE.

We prepare as good medicine, the very best medicine that the finest, freshest, most potent drugs and chemicals will produce when carefully and skilfully compounded by an expert prescription man—just such medicine as your physician means that you should have, medicine of the utmost possible effectiveness. May we prepare your medicine?

FREEMAN DRUG CO.,
Burlington, N. C.

(Began on page 3)

You need to be here tomorrow. Watch the program.

Seventh Session.

Friday Morning, July 23.

9:30—The Quiet Hour.

9:45—Reading of Minutes.

9:50—Business session.

The next Convention—Where?

(All business of the Convention should be attended to now.)

For Superintendents.

(If superintendents are not here, delegates, get your pencils and take notes for them.)

10:30—"What a Superintendent Should Be in Heart, in Theory, and at Work," Rev. H. H. Butler.

11:00—"The Home Department of Today—Its Dynamic to the Sunday School Life," Rev. R. H. Peel, Superintendent.

11:30—"Establishing and Maintaining a Home Department," Rev. M. W. Butler.

11:40—Round Table—"The Superintendent and the Home Department," conducted by Dr. W. W. Staley.

11:50—"The Importance of the Sunday School Work to the Church and the Nation," Rev. C. C. Jones.

12:10—"The Primary and Elementary Departments. What They Are and How to Conduct Them," J. H. Blanchard.

12:20—"The Use and Advantage of Maps and Charts in the Sunday School," Rev. J. M. Roberts.

12:40—Convention Round Table, officers, teachers, workers, any one present. Any question relative to the Sunday school work is now in order. Conducted by the President, Rev. C. H. Rowland.

1:00—Announcements, benediction.

Eighth Session.

Friday Afternoon, July 23.

Theme: The Boy.

2:30—Devotional, Rev. R. H. Peel.

2:45—Miscellaneous Business.

3:15—"The Art of Losing the Boys—The Art of Winning and Holding Them," Rev. C. C. Ryan.

3:35—Business, reading of Minutes.

Adjournment, benediction.

N. & W. R. R. Schedule.

"Cannon Ball" leaves for Norfolk at 4:00 p. m.

No. 4 leaves for Norfolk at 6:36 p. m.

EASTERN NORTH CAROLINA SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION, HENDERSON, N. C., JULY 20-22, '09. PROGRAM.

First Day—Morning.

9:30—song Service.

9:45—Devotional Exercises Conducted by Geo. T. Whitaker.

10:00—Address of Welcome by Rev. C. E. Newman.

10:15—Response, S. C. Holding.

10:30—Enrollment of Delegates.

10:45—President's Annual Address, Prof. S. M. Smith.

11:30—Appointment of Committees; Miscellaneous Business; Offering.

12:00—Dinner.

First Day—Afternoon.

Theme: Teacher Training.

1:30—Song Service.

1:45—Report of Committee on Teacher Training, Geo. T. Whitaker, Chairman.

Symposium.

2:30—How to Organize a Teacher Training Class," Rev. J. W. Patton.

3:00—"Why Do We Need Teacher Training?" Rev. L. F. Johnson.

3:30—Round Table: "The Sunday School Teacher," Prof. S. M. Smith.

4:00—Miscellaneous Business.

4:15—Announcement: Adjournment.

Second Day—Morning.

9:30—Song and prayer service, Rev. H. Scholz.

10:00—Enrollment of delegates.

10:15—Theme: Sunday Literature, report of Committee on Sunday School Literature, Rev. A. T. Banks, Chairman.

10:30—"The Kind of Literature We Need," Rev. A. T. Banks.

10:45—"The Proper Use of the Lesson Helps," Rev. A. P. Barbee.

11:00—"Our Denominational Papers," S. C. Holding.

11:15—Open discussion, "What Are the Best Lesson Helps?" D. I. Langston, W. R. Rodgers, and Rev. H. Scholz.

12:00—Announcements; offering; dinner.

Second Day—Afternoon.

1:30—Song service.

Theme, "Christian Endeavor."

2:00—"The Back-bone of Christian Endeavor," Prof. S. M. Smith.

2:30—"A Brief History of Christian Endeavor," Rev. C. E. Newman.

3:00—"A Christian Endeavor Society in All My Churches—Why Not?" Rev. G. R. Underwood.

3:30—"A Christian Endeavor Society in All My Churches—What Would it Mean?" Rev. W. G. Clements.

4:00—Open discussion, "A Christian Endeavor Society in Our Church at Home. What Can I Do?" Geo. M. McCullers, T. J. Haskins, J. D. Gunter, E. M. Newman.

4:30—Announcements, adjournment.

Third Day—Morning.

9:30—Song service. Devotional exercises, Rev. J. D. Wicker.

9:45—Report of committees.

(a) Committee on Organization and Expansion, Rev. W. G. Clements, Chairman.

(b) Committee on Music, J. H. Morning, Chairman.

(c) Committee on Home Department, Rev. C. E. Newman.

(d) Committee on Primary Work, Miss Valeria Alston, Chairman.

(e) Special committees.

11:15—Round Table, "Sunday School Management," Rev. Herbert Scholz.

11:45—Miscellaneous business. Offering.

12:00—Dinner.

Third Day—Afternoon.

1:30—Song Service.

1:45—Meeting of the Primary Union, Rev. G. R. Underwood, presiding.

2:15—Musical recital under the direction of Prof. J. H. Reubush, assisted by the local choir.

3:15—Miscellaneous business.

3:30—Closing words. Benediction.

RALEIGH & SOUTHPORT RY. Co.

P. M. A. M.	STATIONS.	A. M. P. M.
1:15	6:00 Raleigh	8:30 3:45
1:54	6:24 McCullers	7:52 3:03
2:11	6:59 Willow Sp'gs	7:37 2:45
2:23	7:14 Varina	7:27 2:34
2:35	7:26 Fuquay Sp'gs	7:19 2:25
2:55	7:45 Kipling	7:00 2:05
3:15	8:05 Lillington	6:41 1:44
3:41	8:28 Linden	6:15 1:17
4:30	9:15 Fayetteville	5:30 12:30

JNO. A. MILLS, Pres. and Gen. Mgr.

DO YOU WANT TO GO TO COLLEGE? If so we can help you. We have already put hundreds through college by means of our plan. Write today for full information regarding our offer of a free scholarship in any school or college. Address, Robert J. Sherlock, 29-31 East 22nd Street, New York City.

DR. J. H. BROOKS

Surgeon and Dentist

FOSTER BUILDING,

Burlington, N. C.

SPRING TIME.

The time for gardening is here and you need garden tools. We can supply you at lowest prices.

Poultry Wire.

The best assorted stock in the county. Four different styles and weight.

Come and See.

Remember plumbing and bath room fixtures, a speciality. You will find us on Davis St. third door from Post office. BURLINGTON HARDWARE CO.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup

Has been used for over SIXTY-FIVE YEARS by MILLIONS of MOTHERS for their CHILDREN WHILE TEETHING, with PERFECT SUCCESS. IT SOOTHES the CHILD, SOFTENS the GUMS, ALLAYS all PAIN; CURES WIND COLIC, and is the best remedy for DIARRHŒA. Sold by Druggists in every part of the world. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Guaranteed under the Food and Drug Act, June 30th, 1906. Serial Number 1098. AN OLD AND WELL TRIED REMEDY.

The music of the convention will be under the direction of Prof. J. H. Reubush, of the Reubush-Keiffer Co., of Dayton, Va.

S. M. Smith, Pres.

(Begun on page five).

in trouble, suffering in any way, when in need, in bereavement or disappointment, there is a world of comfort for you in His Word and everlasting promises.

He is speaking to us of his beauty and attraction in the blooming flowers; is telling of His greatness through the realms of nature, is telling of His power through wind, earthquakes, thunder and lightning, and through science. Jesus is still telling of his abundant love for us. What wondrous love is this! Yes, speaking to us today. Our Lord Jesus Christ is calling us from darkness to light, from sorrow to joy, from ignorance to wisdom, from sin to righteousness, from death to life, from earth to heaven. Let us hear, then walk with and follow Him all the way to the home above.

J. T. Kitchen.

Windsor, Va.

HUNGRY FOR THE GOSPEL.

The Youth's Instructor tells of twelve children belonging to a village in South-east Africa who walked over twenty miles to find the missionary, and who then worked hard at the mission carrying loads of sand upon their heads to pay for a copy apiece of the New Testament. The Testament at the time was not fully translated into their language, but they wanted their names on the list for copies—on what was known as the "waiting list."

This is not an isolated case. From all the missionary fields come reports of similar exhibitions on the part of those who have heard a part of the good news the gospel brings and are eager to learn more. Every day the fact is impressed upon us that throughout the whole world men are restless and disturbed, and are seeking that which they have not yet found. Thousands of them are ready to cast aside their old religions, which, being fully tested, have failed to give that which satisfies, and are prepared to receive gladly the gospel of light and comfort and rest.

In the face of this picture the duty of all Christians is made plain. We who know Christ should be anxious to share with those who know nothing of the blessed peace which comes from fellowship with him. We should not be satisfied until we have made sacrifices to send the gospel to them, and our prayers should constantly ascend in their behalf.

"Shall we whose souls are lighted
With wisdom from on high,
Shall we to men benighted
The lamp of life deny?"

May God forbid! Is it not a fact that if our love and interest in them were half as great as their need of God and our help we would soon supply them all with the bread of life. Let us then, be up and doing. The day of our opportunity is at hand, the night will soon come when we cannot work.—Selected.

"Prayer freshens the heart of the preacher; keeps it in tune with God and in sympathy with the people; lifts his ministry out of the chilly air of a profession; fructifies routine and moves every wheel with the facility and power of a divine unction."

WILBUR R. SMITH BUSINESS COLLEGE
 Model awarded Prof. Smith at the World's Fair.
 Bookkeeping and Business, Short-hand, Typewriting and Telegraphy taught. Notes received. Students—10,000 graduates in business. Begin now. Address WILBUR R. SMITH, Lexington, Ky.

YOUNG MEN! If you want to know why you should become telegraph operators and what school to attend, write to SOUTHERN SCHOOL OF TELEGRAPHY, Newman, Ga., for free Catalogue "A." EVERY BOY should read it. Positions positively guaranteed.

Books for Every Christian Home.

Do you know why you are a member of the Christian Church? Do you understand what the church stands for and teaches? If not, send and get a copy of the "Principles and Government of the Christian Church," just revised and greatly improved by order of the Southern Christian Convention.

- Cloth binding per copy, post paid 50 cts.
- Limp Cloth binding per copy, post paid 35 cts.
- Paper binding per copy, post paid 25 cts.
- Handsome Persian Morocco, with name in gilt $1.25.
- The Southern Christian Convention also Ordered Another Book Published, PREPARING THE SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER TO TEACH. Edited by Profs. W. A. Harper, W. C. Wicker and W. P. Lawrence.
- The book is neatly printed and bound and is invaluable to the Sunday-school worker, 236 pages.
- Paper binding per copy, postpaid, 60 cts.
- Cloth binding per copy, postpaid, 90 cts.
- To Sunday-schools, paper binding 50 cts. cloth 75 cts.
- Have You Read That Thrilling and Inspiring Story of His Own Life, MOTHER'S ANSWERED PRAYER, BY REV. P. H. FLEMING, D. D.?
- Cloth binding, postpaid 55 cts.
- All these books should be in your home. Order at once
- For sale by, THE CHRISTIAN SUN, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

IT'S INTERESTING

to hear the different comments on different Shoes. All shoes have some good points; Style or comfort or service.

WALK-OVER SHOES
 have all the good points; style and comfort and service and their price is the best point of all. $3.50, 4.00 & 5.00.

Foster Shoe Co., Burlington, N. C.

Dry Goods, Notions, Ready Made Clothing.

When in Burlington visit our large store, supplied always with the very best and latest styles and novelties.

Our Dry Goods are of latest designs, and our Ready Made Clothing cannot be surpassed in quality and price.

Come, See. Be Convinced.
B. A. SELLARS & SONS. BURLINGTON, N. C.

MARRIED.*Robbins - Holleman.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Holleman, Greensboro, N. C., on the evening of June 23d, their daughter Martha Pearl was given in marriage to Mr. Chas. C. Robbins, of High Point, N. C.

Immediately preceding the ceremony Miss Mary Lou Pitt beautifully sang "Proposal" as the wedding march was played by Mrs. Albright, accompanied on violin by Mr. Chas. Alderman. The bridal party entered as follows: Miss Mary Callum and Mr. Long Holleman, Miss Ethel Holleman with Mr. F. C. Harlee, Miss Willie Ames, with Mr. Virgil Edol, Miss Laurin Richardson with Mr. Ed. Millis, and Miss Elizabeth Pruden with Mr. Frank Boyl s.

Next came the maid of honor, Miss Alene Long, cousin of the bride. Little Lucile Franklin, of South Boston, Va., cousin of the bride, acted as ring bearer. Then came the groom with his best man, Dr. F. E. Perkins, of High Point. The bride in a gown of white duchess satin with bridal veil carrying a shower bouquet of bride's roses and lily of the valley, came in on the arm of her father, who gave her away.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. S. Long, grandfather of the bride, assisted by Rev. H. H. Robbins, of Statesville, brother of the groom.

Following the ceremony an informal reception was held, after which Mr. and Mrs. Robbins left on a late train for a northern tour. W. S. L.

DIED.*Garrison.

Eliza J. Garrison, relict of J. F. Garrison, passed from labor to reward July 2, 1909, in her 59th year.

In 1869 she was married to John Franklin Garrison, and to them were born ten children, of whom all are living except Tommie Lee, who died in young manhood.

In young womanhood she joined Concord Christian Church, of which church she was a member when death came. She was one of earth's good and peaceful souls, who bore life's cares and sorrows without a complaint. She trusted Jesus, and when the end came, she simply fell asleep. The funeral services were conducted from the home by the writer, and the remains were laid to rest in Pine Hill cemetery.

The Lord bless the bereaved.

P. H. Fleming.

O'Kelley.

Bro. L. D. O'Kelley, a member of Main

St. Christian Church, passed away at his home in East Durham on Sunday morning, 4th of July. He was 51 years old. He leaves a wife, six children, four girls and two boys, one brother, two sisters, a host of relatives and friends to mourn their loss. We bow in humble submission to the will of him who knoweth and doeth all things well. He was born in Chatham County, near O'Kelley's Chapel, where he spent his early life. He was a member of the church from childhood. After moving to Durham he and his wife and two daughters united with the Durham Church. Funeral by the writer. He was buried at O'Kelley's Chapel.

A. P. Barbee.

Rippey.

June 26, 1909, Howard, the son of Lemuel and Lydia Rippey, died, being

REMEMBER: That we guarantee satisfaction and sell to you cheaper than the publisher and dealers do. Our business is by mail and express and prices quoted are the prices of goods delivered to you. We can furnish you the Oxford, or the Holman Teacher's Bible at prices ranging from $1.35 to $4.00. Send for our catalogue or write us what you want. A press

THE CHRISTIAN SUN. Elon College, N. C.

Why You Should take the Herald of Gospel Liberty

BECAUSE it furnishes needed information in a thoroughly interesting and up-to-date manner.

BECAUSE it interprets movements within the Christian Church in a Christian spirit in relation to other churches throughout the world.

BECAUSE the Christian Church could not do its part as a Christian Church without a newspaper like the Herald of Gospel Liberty.

BECAUSE it is the best religious newspaper published in America, having proved itself for ONE HUNDRED YEARS the friend of the entire family, chronicling each week the progress of the world by its record of current events interpreted from a Christian standpoint, bringing interesting and helpful reading of the highest literary quality for every member of the family, old and young.

TERMS: $1.50 PER YEAR

Send for sample copies

Christian Publishing Association

J. N. HESS, Agent

DAYTON, OHIO

2 years, 1 month, and 16 days old. He was sick about one week and then passed out to be with Him who, while on earth, took little children in His arms and blessed them, and said, "Suffer little children to come unto me, for of such is the kingdom of heaven."

W. S. Long.

Freeman.

Felix H. Freeman, born Feb. 1, 1860, died June 25, 1909, aged 49 years, 4 months, and 24 days. He leaves to mourn their loss a wife, five daughters, and two brothers. Bro. Freeman was a good Christian man, a noble citizen and a kind husband and father. We shall miss him, but we feel that our loss is his gain.

May the Lord keep and bless the family and friends. C. C. Jones.

White.

Minerva White, born Sept. 2, 1834, and died July 1, 1909. She was seventy-five years, nine months, and twenty-nine days of age. She was the mother of nine children, five girls and four boys, seven of whom are still living. Sister White had been a member of Burton Grove Christian Church for many years. Her home was always open to good people, and especially to ministers. Her husband died many years ago, but with God as her companion she reared one of the most respectable families in all of that country. She fought the good fight and kept the faith, and we have assurance that she is now at rest. God bless and keep the Godly mothers, that the nation may grow strong in His cause.

C. C. Jones.

Allen.

Inasmuch as it has pleased the all-wise Creator to take from us our much beloved and highly esteemed Asst. S. S. Supt. of Long's Chapel church, L. W. Allen, We bow in humble submission to His will, feeling that He doeth all things well.

Resolved, 1, That in the death of Mr. Allen the S. S. deeply feels the loss of one whose interest was always made manifest by acts of kindness and deeds of love.

2, That we deeply deplore the great loss sustained by his family and the community in which he lived.

3, That it becomes us to bow with reverence and humility to this dispensation of Providence and say, "Thy will be done."

4, That we extend to the bereaved family our heartfelt sympathy in this hour of sad bereavement.

5, That a copy of these resolutions be

[ EDUCATIONAL ]

The University of North Carolina
1789|——|1909

Schools of Liberal Arts Law	Engineering Medicine	Graduate Pharmacy
--------------------------------	-------------------------	----------------------

Large Equipment, Modern Laboratories, New Library with 55,000 Vols. Able Faculty of 98 teachers. Students numbered 786. Thorough instruction. High standard. Healthful location. Expenses low for high-grade institution. For a catalogue and fuller information address
THE PRESIDENT, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Horner Military School
1851 — 1909.
Oxford, North Carolina

Classical, Scientific and English Courses. Prepares for College, University or the Government Academies. Military training develops prompt obedience and manly carriage. Academy 58 years old, with experienced teachers. Cadets dine with the principal and ladies of his family, securing the culture of homelife. Cultivates and educates. Modern buildings, perfect sanitation, wholesome fare, no crowding. Best moral, mental, physical and social training. Shady lawn, athletic park, one quarter mile running track, 300 acres. Ideal climate, helpful environment. In the social atmosphere of refined Christian people. The town noted for over a century as an educational centre.
Catalogues ready for distributing
HORNER MILITARY SCHOOL
Col. J. C. Horner, Principal, Oxford, N. C.

THE BLACKSTONE SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Established in 1894. The aim of the school is clearly set forth by its
MOTTO: "Thorough instruction under positively Christian influences at the lowest possible cost."
This school was established by the Methodist Church, not to make money, but to furnish a place where girls can be given thorough training in body, mind, and heart at a moderate cost. The object has been fully carried out that is a
RESULT: It is to day, with its faculty of 22, its boarding patronage of 300, and its building and grounds, worth $140,000
THE LEADING TRAINING SCHOOL FOR GIRLS IN VIRGINIA.
$150 pays all charges for the year, including the table board, room, lights, steam heat, laundry, medical attention, physical culture, and tuition in all subjects except music and elocution. Apply for catalogue and application blank to spread on the S. S. Record, and a copy be sent to the Christian Sun.
REV. JAMES CANNON, JR., M. A., Principal, Blackstone, Va.

J. A. Dickey,
J. Walter Johnson,
Ralph E. Rogers, Com.

McKelvey.

After an illness of more than twelve months, Mrs. Mattie A. McKelvey, relict of the late Jas. H. McKelvey, died at Girard, Ala., June 29, 1909, at the age of thirty-nine years, eight months and twenty-seven days.

Mrs. McKelvey is survived by four children, Wenona Mae, Jas. H., Jr., William Norwood, and Agnes McKelvey; three brothers, J. B. Crabtree, Girard, Ala.; W. H. Crabtree, Anniston, Ala., and M. G. Crabtree, of Chambers Co., Ala.; one sister, Mrs. Josephine Clark, of Chambers County.

The deceased was a consecrated member of the Christian Church. In her girlhood days she united with the church at New Hope, the "mother church" of the Alabama and the Georgia and Alabama Conferences. Her membership remained with this church until death.

The children have lost a fond and faithful mother, the brothers and sister one whose Christian example ought to be an inspiration to them, and the community a most estimable woman. While she is "gone to return no more," we will not forget her words two days before she died, viz.: "My only support now is in the Lord."

The remains were taken to Atlanta, Wednesday, June 30th, where the funeral was held, and the body laid to rest in East End cemetery.

G. O. Lankford.

Durham.

Dear Brother Editor: Our work moves on slowly but surely. The Sunday school holds up all right. We have over 100 on roll, and have organized a Baraca class, which seems to be helping our young men. We hope to soon organize a Philathea class among the young ladies. The Ladies' Aid Society is doing a good work. They have placed in the church beautiful cluster lights which add much to our services and lessen our expense for lights. We held our mid-year business meeting last Wednesday night. Owing to the inclemency of the weather we had a small attendance. We hope next Wednesday night to have a full turn out, as the meeting adjourned to meet then and complete the work. The writer tendered his resignation as pastor, to take effect at the end of sitting of the Eastern North Carolina Conference year in November, 1909.

A. P. Barbee.

Aldridge.

Nancy B. Aldridge was born January 6, 1842, and died July 1, 1909. She was the daughter of John W. and Celia Crawford, and was married to William H. Aldridge August 31, 1865. She was the mother of five children—Levi H., Ida A., John N., Ora E., and Charlie P. For more than fifty years she was a member of Union Christian Church. She is survived by four children and twenty-five grandchildren. Three years ago her husband died. He was a most excellent man in every essential element of manhood. Gentle, kind, firm, reliable, and thoroughly honest. A member of the Methodist Church but a regular attendant and helper of the Christian Church. Few live more happily together in this life than did Brother and Sister Aldridge. She was tender and full of sympathy towards all and counted no care or act of self-denial a hardship when it contributed to the comfort or welfare of her household or friends. Of her it is true—"She looketh well to the ways of her household, and eateth not the bread of idleness. Her children arise up, and call her blessed; her husband also, and he praiseth her. Give

Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Is paying out and investing in both Virginia and North Carolina more than it receives from these States.

New business in Virginia, 1908,
$2,147,800

Larger than any other company.

Gain in insurance in force in Virginia, 1908,
$1,374,975

60 per cent more than the next largest.

T. ARCHIBALD CARY, General Agent for Virginia and North Carolina,
Richmond, Virginia.

During 1908

(As in previous years)

We want you in our business, for we have what you want in your homes—the very best, most substantial and handsome furniture at bottom prices. We are also the undertakers.

Burke Furniture and Coffin Company

BUKLLINGTON, N. C.

Southern Railway

Operating Over 7,000 Miles of Railway. Quick Route to all Points North, South, East and West.

For Speed, Comfort, Courteous Employees, travel via the Southern Railway.

Rates, Schedules and other information furnished by any of the undersigned.

R. L. VERNON, Trav. Pass. Agt.,
Charlotte, N. C.

J. H. WOOD, Dist. Pass. Agt.,
Asheville, N. C.

S. H. HARDWICK, P. T. M.,

W. H. TAYLOE, G. P. A.,

Washington, D. C.

Elon College.

Co-educational. Established 1890.

Thorough College courses leading to M. A., A. B., and Ph. B. degrees. Strong and experienced Faculty with highest University training. Good Library, Reading Room, Laboratories, Literary Societies. Excellent Music, Art, Elocution and Business Departments. Diploma from Elon admits to graduate departments in the highest universities.

Beautiful and healthful location, 17 miles east of Greensboro on Southern Railway. Best moral and religious influence. No hazing. New students met by reception committees from young people's Christian organizations connected with the college. Good equipment. A large new dormitory, with modern conveniences, has recently been built to meet the requirements of growing patronage.

EXPENSES UNUSUALLY MODERATE. FALL TERM OPENS SEPT. 1ST.

For catalogue or further information, address

EMMETT L. MOFFITT, LL. D., President.

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

her of the fruit of her hands; and let her own works praise her in the gates."

Many good men and women have gone up to heaven from dear old Union Church, many of them known by this writer and numbered among his best friends. In that cemetery rest the remains of Rev. D. W. Kerr, Rev. G. G. Walker, Rev. A. G. Anderson. Many of these families—Faucett, Hazell, Graham, King, Mayard, Roney, Dickey, McCauley, Walker, Garrison, Foster, Murray, Wilkins, Aldridge, Wallace, Hughes, Weedon, Hurdle, Blanchard, Strader, etc. How many loved ones have gone before us! Blessed is the future which is coming—a day without a threatening cloud, an infinite paradise without one thorn or noxious plant, a home from which no child has wandered, a sweet heaven unvisited by sin and untroubled by pain, and where separation and death are unknown.

W. S. Long.

The Christian Sun

State Library

In Essentials—Unity, in Non-Essentials—Liberty, in All Things—Charity.

ESTABLISHED 1844.

GREENSBORO N. C., WEDNESDAY, JULY 21, 1909. VOLUME LXI.

NUMBER 28.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

A Little Fire. St. James, the inspired, wrote it in the long ago, "Behold, how great a matter a little fire kindleth!" It is even so today. A street duel was fought out at Union, Miss., last Saturday, in which two men were shot to death instantly, two others fatally injured, and one other seriously hurt. It was all over an old cow that had outlived her usefulness as a milker and was claimed by two different parties. The results were as stated above, after a street duel in front of the bank of the town.

There was too much fire. What a great matter indeed was kindled.

There is somewhere a book written about a feud between two families and their descendants which lasted for a half century well nigh and resulted in dozens of murders and duels, all resulting from one boy of a family poking fun at a boy of a neighboring family for having a patch in his pants.

There is no fire this side of the sun that burns as fierce and furious as the fire of mad passion in the human heart. He who cultivates and feeds that fire instead of doing all in his power to quench and kill it, is unwise indeed. The grace of God is sufficient; wise and happy is the man indeed who has recourse to that grace to conquer and subdue his bad flame—this evil passion.

Church and School. Early Monday morning, July 12, a little twelve-year-old girl, living near Selma, N. C., got up early, went out into the yard for the axe, slipped back into the house where her stepfather was sleeping, and with two blows on the head killed him. On being arrested the girl admitted the crime, but said she did not know it was wrong to commit the deed. She told a story of cruelty to herself that was shocking indeed. She had been beaten severely by the man time and again with little provocation and he had threatened to kill her. On investigation the jury found that the girl's story was true, and at the burial the victim's father said the killing was justified and that his son were better off dead than alive. The girl was released.

The girl admitted that she had never been inside of a church or a school house, and had never been taught that there was a God.

These are revolting conditions and are extreme. They serve, nevertheless, to emphasize again the untold worth of church and school in the community.

Near the churches, and within the sound of the school-bell, are boys and girls who seldom go to either. They are being brought up with little sense of moral obligations, religious inclination or educational advantage. When failure in life or crime results therefrom, there is a cry of alarm and horror. But it is too late then.

The Weather Bureau. The Weather Bureau is a much abused institution. Let the weather man "predict" right a dozen times, and wrong once, and there are those to say the weather service is a nuisance. That is because people do not know. In very truth, with the possible exception of the Life Saving Service, the Weather Bureau is the most universally benevolent and beneficial institution inaugurated in recent years, and supported by the government. True, the cost to the government amounts to much, but this is as nothing compared to the benefits to individuals. Recently the Bureau at Washington announced one storm twenty-four hours ahead of its arrival. The wise and cautious took warning, and, it was estimated, enough in money was saved to shippers of perishable goods alone to pay the entire expense of the Bureau for more than a year, and this says nothing as to saving of lives and vessels.

What then if the Bureau misses now and then? All human enterprises and institutions do. The true reports and forecasts amount in the savings of a year to untold millions. But the weather man, like the parent and the preacher, can only benefit those who, ignoring the failures, profit by the warnings given in time and in good faith. Luke 3:7.

Fighting Disease.—As a disease fighter and germ destroyer, the U. S. Government has no equal. We little reckon the war that Uncle Sam is forever waging against disease and the victories that are constantly won. Havana, Cuba, was a pest hole for deadly disease before our government took possession eleven years ago. Now it is a cleanly, healthful, and wholesome city to visit and to live in.

Small-pox was rampant in the island of Porto Rico when Uncle Sam went there and took possession eleven years ago. That disease has now disappeared from the whole island. There are 1,043,891 people in Porto Rico now, but they do not threaten the rest of the world with contagious disease as formerly. In 1901 there were in Porto Rico 11,885 deaths from anaemia. That year a Commission was organized to fight the disease, and last year there were only 1,758 deaths from this cause. Porto Rico's death rate was last year decreased to 22 per cent from 25 per cent of the previous year. And this is only an instance of what a work of benevolence our government is doing wherever its aid is invoked and is found necessary.

Uncle Sam believes that cleanliness is next to godliness, and puts his belief into practice. As a constant enemy and combatant of disease and death he is the noblest and mightiest giant of them all (Rom. 13:3).

—Scotland leads the world in the matter of church union. The United Free Church of that country is made up of two branches of the Presbyterians who merged a few years since; and now this great church and the Church of Scotland, or the established church, have voted unanimously to go into unrestricted conference on the topic of union. The churches of different names, in this and in other countries, are getting closer together, and church fellowship broadens with the passing years.

—Of course everybody is felicitating Bro. J. B. Sherrill on rounding out, in fine form and fashion, his thirty-fifth year as editor of the Concord Times. No sweeter spirit than his presides over a print shop in all this broad land, and everybody who knows him loves him for what he is. For years on years he has been Secretary of the N. C. Press Association and not a member would think of having anybody else in that position—his lease is for life if he will. Here is wishing continuous and happy life to the Times and its genial editor.

FROM THE FIELD.

OUR LADIES' AID.

Dear Editor: We would like to tell something of our Ladies' Aid of the Christian Church, Columbus, Ga. We have a very progressive little Aid, and some very loyal members. We have been organized about four years, during which time we have done many things for the benefit of our church, in a financial way, besides the help we have been to each other spiritually. One feature of our work has been the study of Bible characters. We first took up the book of Ruth and studied it, one chapter at a time; and each member was expected to comment on what was learned. We found it very helpful to each other. We learned some good, practical lessons from the study of this book. Next we took up the book of Esther, and found this very interesting and helpful also. In the review of this book this question was asked: Why are the words God, Jehovah, prayer omitted from this book? I think it was explained very satisfactorily to us, but if any other would like to spend an opinion on it I am sure we would be glad. I do not think we can learn too much about the Word of God. Next we took up the book of Acts which we are studying now, along with the Sunday school lessons. We meet twice per month. Besides our Bible study we have readings by the sisters on missions, or anything we think would help. We have had some fine essays on the lives of different ones along the line of our study, one on the life of Peter, and one on Stephen. We hope to have one on Paul shortly now.

We have a visiting committee appointed at each meeting to visit the sick and those who can't come very often. This has proved to be very beneficial to the Aid Society, besides it lets the members know that they are not forgotten. Besides loving our members we love our pastor and his wife. They are both true and faithful to the church and the work. The church has bought a new piano and the Aid has taken the responsibility of paying for it. We make a payment on it every three months. I am sure it would be very interesting to the ladies of other societies to know how we manage to raise our payments, but I am afraid to try to tell as I fear I have written too much already. If this escapes the waste basket I may write again.

We ask an interest in the prayers of the Sun readers for our Aid and all its undertakings, that we may be faithful in the few things that God has entrusted to our care (Mrs.) Alice Kimbrough, Secretary.

Columbus, Ga.

A TRIP TO PONCE, P. R.

Dear Editor: It is with great pleasure I write of my trip to Ponce, for it was an occasion of joy and thanksgiving as it was my privilege to attend the dedicatory service of the Caras Chapel.

It was a very impressive service. The chapel was filled to overflowing, many standing within and without, and some even climbing trees, like Zacheus of old.

The dedicatory sermon was delivered by Rev. E. E. Wilson, of the M. E. Church, and Rev. P. W. Drury, of the United Brethren Church offered the dedicatory prayer. Rev. D. P. Barrett and his native helper, Rafael, were in charge of the service, and they seemed very proud of the fact that they have a permanent place of worship.

Mrs. Barrett sang a solo which was enjoyed by all, especially by myself, as it reminded me of the many times I've listened to her voice in the Memorial Temple. I almost felt as if I were in my old home church.

I hope soon to have the pleasure of attending the dedication of the Ponce church, for I believe we need a church in Ponce more than anything else, except the baptism of the Holy Spirit, for which we are praying. I wish I could make the need known to all in the home land, as I see it on the field. If they could see and know the real need of a church here, I know they would make every effort possible to raise the money to build it, even to real self-denial. They would give until they really felt it. Just think of being here eight years and not having a permanent place of worship in Ponce. It is enough to discourage the native members, and almost the missionaries themselves. But they seem very much encouraged at the thought of soon having a church home. Dear friends, I beg you in Jesus' name to think and pray much before giving, and then ask God's blessing on your gift, and if all will do this, I am sure the money will be raised, very, very soon. "The earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof," Ps. 24:1. Let us look to Him, believing, and we shall receive.

I am getting on nicely with my work at the orphanage. It is a real joy to be able to help care for God's little ones. We feel very much encouraged at the increased attendance at our Sunday and Wednesday evening services. Pray for us.

Yours in the Master's service,

Susie Turpin.

Peniel Orphanage, Juan Diaz, P. R.

Christian Chapel.

At our last appointment on Saturday before the second Sunday in July our Sunday school held its usual picnic, which was enjoyed by a large congregation. There were four choirs present and they rendered good music. We also had good talks from the brethren, which were enjoyed by all. Brothers H. G. Dorsett and J. L. Griffin, of Pittsboro, N. C., and Prof. Franklin, of the Merry Oaks High School, gave us very interesting talks on the benefits of studying the lesson well, both teacher and pupil.

The people had prepared a good dinner and about 600 were fed and several baskets full were taken up. It was an enjoyable day for all.

We will start our revival, if it is the Lord's will, on Saturday before second Sunday in August. I ask the prayers of God's children.

J. S. Carden.

Durham, N. C.

Valley Notes.

Sunday, July 4, was a great day for Timber Ridge. About 700 people gathered for the purpose of listening to the Children's Day exercises. The splendid program under the skillful hand of Miss Nettie Johnson was well rendered and received with satisfaction and pleasure by the packed house. After the exercises in the church were concluded the school decorated the grave of the late sister Taretta Hoop, who was a teacher and a faithful worker in the Sabbath school. The pastor made a few remarks and the congregation dispersed for the tables loaded with the appetizing food which the good people at Timber Ridge know so well how to prepare.

In the afternoon the house was again filled to overflowing while the pastor tried to talk on patriotism from a Bible standpoint. At the close of the service eleven were baptized by immersion in a nearby stream.

Bethlehem and Concord Sunday schools organized Teacher Training Classes the 11th of July.

We are looking forward to a good conference.

W. T. Walters.

Broadway, Va.

VIRGINIA VALLEY CENTRAL CONFERENCE.

The Va. Valley Central Conference will meet with the church at Newport Aug. 12 at 10 A. M. and be in session three days. All delegates and church reports are needed the first session. Please see to it that both are there from your church. If you expect to attend, write either E. L. or J. S. Louderback, Stanleyton, Va., stating how and when they are coming.

Newport is five miles from the N. & W. Railroad. Those coming by rail from the north will be met at Stanleyton at 11 A. M., Wed. the 11th, and those from the south at Ingham at 6:21 P. M. of the same date.

W. T. Walters, Pres.

LINE UPON LINE.

Very much has been written which is not read, and there are different causes why it is not. Some just notice the head line, and pass on until something better presents itself. There are others who simply open the book or unfold the paper, looking for the pictures, and when they are seen the interest is over, and their tiresome work accomplished. One writer cannot think it all nor write it all, so there are many writers to meet the needs and wishes of the readers. There is a pleasing and a displeasing variety in the great host of writers who are trying their best to help all they can to enlighten and reform the world. Ignorance and prejudice are hard to lift out of the way. And when any one has to combat them he often has a difficult task. There are those who do not like to be antagonized in their views of things; they dislike to listen to reason and to hear correct judgment, but rather continue in their own opinions. If you tell some people that smoking, dipping, rubbing, snuffing or chewing tobacco is not a good, healthy, and neat practice, they think, if they do not say it, that it is none of your business, and that you had better attend your own than to interfere with theirs. These habits are easy to form, but hard it is to break off from them. When the grinders cease because they are worn away, the tobacco chewer's mouth gets in a bad condition for the want of better teeth and muscular control. It is a pity to acquire the taste for that which is so distasteful and not suitable to eat. It is chewable but not at all eatable.

There are so many boys who learn to smoke and chew and swear because they see the older boys do these very same things. The life of parents, teachers, and all classes ought to be clean and pure—because they are leading examples for the children who will imitate and follow in the steps of father and the older brothers. Every one is responsible for his example. Have I been the cause of any one's going down the wrong way? Have I been the cause of any being lost on the high way of life? Have I induced any to do wrong?

If there were impending danger ahead of you on the road of life and some one were to tell you of it, or write a sign and place it over the danger spot, you would listen to them and read the danger sign, would you not? Yes, you would stop when you heard and saw—you would stop at once. Then every one who is guilty of doing wrong in any way to himself or any one else, let him confess it, and ring out the danger signal—put out the danger signal that they may stop right now. Do not blame nor censure the editors of these religious papers when they tell you about the danger of playing with sin, but rather heed their good advice, and thank them, as they think, work and write to warn you of the danger and point you to Him who is able to save. If you were near drowning, and a rope were thrown to you you would catch it at once, and not find fault with the one who threw it? Would you? No; you would thank him so much and love him so dearly for saving your life. You ought to feel even more grateful to the one who is trying to save you from the whirlpool of destruction by throwing to you the gospel rope that you may be saved in the endless life.

Listen to Isaiah as he speaks about the degeneracy of Judah with these words: "For precept must be upon precept; line upon line, line upon line; here a little and there a little." Isa. 28:10-13. There must be a repetition of the same subject, of the same thought of the same truth. Line after line, time after time must they be written and spoken. Overcome discouragement and keep right on the way of duty, looking for better times to reward you for faithful service.

Line upon line, precept upon precept will need to be given all the time. They remind us of duty and show how to perform it. To know duty and to understand how to perform it demand careful attention. For without attention all goes to waste. Try to be well rounded. Round up the rough corners of your nature. Be symmetrical and get better developed. Get the right portion and the correct proportion of manliness—be strong. Nearly everything in nature is round or oval. There is a reason for it. If the trees were to grow flat they would not be so strong nor look half so well. Roundness gives strength and beauty. Our earth and all the other starry worlds and suns are round, or nearly so—hence they wheel in space with less danger of collision. If they were flat or triangular there would be more danger in their rapid movement. When you begin to think and study upon this subject you observe its meaning and its truth as never before, and it will be a pleasing and a prolific subject for your careful investigation. Explore the vast, fertile field which has invited you to enter it, until your mind is pleased and enlarged by the exhilarating rambles you take through it. If you will you may be taken upon the high st summit of thought where you can commune with God in wonder, praise and love. If you consider natural theology you find a great design through the works of nature, and it is a very interesting study to investigate. No matter what the environment is the means are provided for the support of animal and vegetable life. See the delicious fruit of so many kinds, it is round, attractive, good and healthful, showing the design for which it was made. These things will be suggestive and full of instruction. Notice then that there is strength and beauty in a well rounded life, and that such a life is greatly admired.

"But the word of the Lord was unto them precept upon precept, precept upon precept; line upon line, line upon line; here a little, and there a little." The Bible from beginning to end illustrates the plan of salvation and makes it free for all—showing them how to obtain such a blessing. It repeats over and over the beautiful message, and invites again and again every one to the Lamb of God who takes away sin. These precious promises so often repeated are intended to keep the subject before the mind that it may see and live.

We need to be constantly reminded of the temporal duties, and it takes thought and time to keep up with business relations. Why not then be deeply concerned about our spiritual relation? We will be if we love the Master, and are trying to serve Him. May the lines and precepts in His word bind us closer to Him every day—helping us to walk with Him and to live in His name.

J. T. Kitchen.

MOTHER'S INSIGNIFICANCE.

His father, they say,

Was famous in his day—

What did his mother do?

His father helped to stump the State
For Grant in 1868—

What did his mother do?

She merely watched him day and night,
She merely kept him headed right,
And went on praying that he might
Some day be brave and good and great

That's all his mother did.

His father, it is said,

Possessed a level head—

What did his mother have?

His father was no common clod

Intended but to tote a hod—

What was his mother, though?

Oh, she was merely one who taught
Her son that vices must be fought,
That sin is in each evil thought,
That virtues pave the way to God—

That's all his mother was.

—Chicago Record-Herald.

NOTES AND PERSONALS.

—Rev. L. F. Johnson, pastor Hillsboro St. Christian Church, Raleigh, will assist Pastor Leon E. Smith in a series of meetings at Graham, N. C., beginning fourth Sunday in July.

—The Western N. C. Sunday School Convention meets at Poplar Branch Church, Lee Co., July 23-25. The program is excellent, though a copy did not reach us in time to be inserted in The Sun.

—It is announced in the Herald of Gospel Liberty that Rev. W. H. Thompson will retire from the pastorate of the Third Church, Norfolk, Va., at the close of the present conference year.

—Rev. C. C. Ryan, pastor of the Memorial Christian Church, Norfolk, is to visit the Holy Land, in September and Bro. Ryan has been asked to tell Sun readers, in a series of articles, of his pilgrimage and the scenes of the way.

—Rev. D. A. Long, D.D., went to Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, last week to have a small tumor removed from the nose, an operation which was successfully performed and the Doctor has returned to his home at Graham.

—Mr. T. Rice Ames, formerly of Nansmond Co., Va., and a few years since a very popular and highly esteemed student in Elon College, was married at Mullins, S. C., July 11, to Miss Minnie B. Loftin. The happy pair, who have our very best wishes, are now at home, 314 North Front St., Wilmington, N. C.

—Our Church Record, Greensboro, struck straight to the mark in this estimate: "Prof. W. A. Harper, the new State C. E. President, is an earnest worker, and does thoroughly what he undertakes. We expect to see advances made in the Christian Endeavor work because of the impetus his efforts will give."

—Prof. P. J. Kernodle, Elon College, N. C., still keeps his bed, his hosts of friends will regret to know, nursing an attack of rheumatism. His new and elegant book of several hundred pages, "Lives of Christian Ministers," is finding sale, and purchasers are pleased. The book sells for $2.00, quilt top, $2.50, and may be ordered of the Christian Sun, or of Prof. Kernodle.

—Union Church, at Union Ridge, N. C., the new and elegant building now completed, furnished and paid for, is to be dedicated 5th Sunday in August. There will be services in forenoon and afternoon. Rev. J. W. Holt is the happy pastor, as well as chairman of the Building Committee, who has pushed the work, so readily to completion. All the ex-pastors are cordially invited to be present on the day of dedication and take part in the exercises.

—Mr. J. F. Morgan, who is working for The Sun in the Western N. C. Conference, is meeting with success and is adding new subscribers every week to the constantly growing list which he hopes to obtain by Sept. 1 which will win for him a scholarship in Elon College the coming year. Mr. Morgan will represent The Sun at the Western N. C. Sunday School Convention July 23-25. He is not only representing a worthy cause, but is himself a deserving and worthy man, making heroic effort to fit himself for the gospel ministry.

—We are in receipt of the second number of The Uplift, a monthly publication from Concord, N. C., organ of the Jackson Training School. It is edited by Mr. J. P. Cook, Chairman of the Board of Trustees of this school which is doing such wonderful things for the youthful criminals and wayward boys of the State. The name signifies what the paper is, and is certainly worth the $1.00 per year subscription price. This publication, highly creditable in every respect, will do much to make known to the people of the State what good and great things the Jackson Training School is doing for the common weal.

—Mohamed Ali, Shah of Persia, was dethroned, and the Crown-Prince Mirza was proclaimed Shah July 16.

—Cotton declined, from Tuesday of last week to Monday of this week, on the New York market, 110 points, or $5.50 a bale.

—An exchange has figured it out that Mr. Harriman, the railroad king, controls 48,000 miles of railroad, enough in miles to girdle the globe twice.

—An urgent deficiency bill brought before Congress July 15, provided for a $25,000 allowance for President Taft's traveling expenses. The bill passed by a safe majority.

—Herbert Latham, a Frenchman, trying to cross the English Channel in an airship fell to water when only partly across and had to be fished out by a nearby steamer.

—President Taft again asserts that he will appoint for census takers in the South the best and fittest men he can find and secure regardless of political affiliations.

—Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, founder of Christian Science, passed her 88th birthday Friday, July 16, and was able, dispatches say, to take a drive and attend to the routine of her work.

—Cotton declined 33 points in a half hour on the New York cotton market July 16, owing to a report on the boll weevil, which insect was not doing the damage ordinarily laid to his charge.

—The government has issued $40,000,000 in 3 per cent bonds to run 50 years to reimburse the treasury for the amount paid for the original purchase of the Panama canal.

—Dispatches say that President Taft is making determined effort to put raw material on the free list and that when the present tariff bill is completed it will be seen that he has won out.

—The internal revenue receipts for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1909, show a reduction of $322,000 over those of the previous year, owing to the spread of temperance in the United States.

—Hon. John Goode, one of Virginia's most distinguished sons and a man influential in the councils of that state since prior to the days of the Confederacy, died at Norfolk Wednesday, July 14, in his eightieth year.

—Mrs. J. Addison Hayes, daughter of the late Jefferson Davis only president of the Confederacy, died at her home in Colorado Springs, Col., July 18, being the last surviving member of the Jefferson Davis family.

—The government's estimate of the present corn acreage is 109,006,000 acres, an increase of 7,218,000 acres over last year. The condition of corn July 1 was 89.3 as compared with 82.8 of July 1, 1908, and a ten year average of 84.8.

—John D. Rockefeller was 70 years old Thursday, July 8. In token of the happy day, remarks The Baltimore Sun, gasoline was advanced one cent a gallon so as to prepare a surprise for the deacon in the shape of an additional income of about $1,000,000 a year.

—The total production of petroleum in 1908 was 179,572,479 barrels valued at $129,706,258. Oklahoma led all the states with a total of 45,798,765 barrels, California coming second with 44,854,737 barrels. The Standard Oil Company handled most of this vast output.

—The Southern Railway Company has recently placed orders for $1,400,000 worth of equipment. The contract calls for 25 freight engines, 10 passenger engines, 15 switch engines, 88 first class passenger coaches and other cars. This contemplates increase of business and is hopeful.

—Passengers going from New York via Chicago to the Pacific in June had to give three and four weeks' notice to secure railway accommodations, so heavy was the passenger traffic going out to the Seattle Exposition and other far western attractions. That far western country is the growing section of this continent now, and an immense republic is springing up, with an enormous population, along the Pacific coast.

ELON COLLEGE NOTES.

My office correspondence is so heavy that I am unable to do any active work on our Endowment proposition; nor will I be able to make personal calls on our friends for several weeks yet, until the summer canvass and correspondence with new students are over. Meanwhile I have been hoping that we might have some volunteers on our $1,000.00 and $500.00 propositions—$200.00 a year for five years, and $100.00 a year for five years, the first payment to be made January 1, 1910. I feel that there are quite a number of our people who are able to come down on one of these propositions; and I am still hoping that we may have some volunteers, while I am busy with the summer work for students. A few volunteers of this kind would give a wonderful impetus to the movement, and would hasten the time when I can begin a general canvass for the fund.

Mrs. Harper is now at home, very much improved, to the delight of all her friends, and Professor Harper is doing some good work for the college in securing new students in this county. He was at Springwood at a Sunday school convention last Sunday and delivered an able address. He is booked for three addresses at Randolph County S. S. Convention, at Asheboro, N. C., about the middle of August; and for a Christian Endeavor address at the Friends' Yearly Meeting at Guilford College the first week in August. It goes without saying that the college will be well represented in these two important meetings.

Professor Lawrence was taken sick soon after beginning his canvass in Eastern Virginia, and came home last week, under advice of his physician. Dr. Newman not being well, and the other professors being engaged in other sections, we have secured the services of Messrs. Sylvester G. Rollings and Stanley C. Harrell, two of Elon's strong graduates, to make the canvass of the Eastern Virginia Conference. These young men are entering heartily into the work, and we shall hope for good results. We trust that our ministers, old students, and other friends in Virginia will give them the same hearty and helpful assistance that they have hitherto so cordially extended to the professors who have canvassed that territory.

Mr. A. Lucius Lincoln, another of our strong graduates, is doing some work for us in Halifax, Nash and other eastern North Carolina counties. Mr. W. F. Warren, one of our next year's Seniors, is canvassing some in Person and Orange. And Mr. Perley C. White, one of our South Carolina students, is doing some work in his section of his state.

Good reports come to us from all those who are in the field, and these, together with the office correspondence, lead us to believe that we have a splendid opening in prospect.

Let every member of the Christian Church and every friend of the college lend a helping hand and a word of encouragement during the next few weeks, and this "good prospect" will materialize.

Mrs. E. L. Moffitt and children are visiting relatives at Asheboro, N. C.; and will leave for Harrisonburg, Va., for a visit to Mrs. Moffitt's parents, next Friday. They will be away until the middle of August.

Mrs. G. Davis and her grandson, of Houston, Texas, are guests of the College Summer Boarding Hall, and will be here until it closes.

Mrs. Sam Tate has been ill at her home here for a few days. And Mr. W. L. Smith came home sick from Virginia last week.

Mrs. Mary Watson Chandler has returned to her home in West Virginia, after an extended visit to her parents here.

Little Oscar Atkinson is recovering nicely from the effects of his recent operation. E. L. Moffitt.

APPOINTMENTS.

The following appointments have been made for the times and places mentioned below. These brethren on each occasion will present our young people's work.

The Young People's Convention which met last spring at Elon College adopted the following as its motto: "A Christian Endeavor Society in every church, and a Teacher-Training class, and organized classes in every Sunday school." It is hoped that these brethren will be able to organize a teacher-training class and a Christian Endeavor society at each of the points given below.

A collection will be taken at each place for the support of the Young People's Department. The superintendents of the Sunday schools and the deacons of these churches are asked to give as much publicity as possible to these appointments, and secure a large attendance at each point.

I hope to publish other appointments later.

Rev. W. T. Walters:

Bethlehem, July 11, 11 a. m.

Mayland, July 11, 3 p. m.

Concord, July 11, 8 p. m.

Timber Ridge, Aug. 1, 11 a. m.

Rev. L. I. Cox:

Park's Cross Roads, Sunday, July 18.

Apple's Chapel, Sunday, July 25.

Mt. Bethel, Sunday, Aug. 1.

New Lebanon, Sunday, Aug. 8.

Ramseur, Sunday, Aug. 29.

Howard's Chapel, Sunday, Sept. 12.

Rev. G. O. Lankford:

New Hope, Wednesday, 11 a. m., July 28.

Beulah, Sunday, 11 a. m., Aug. 1.

Antioch, Sunday, 11 a. m., Aug. 8.

Pleasant Grove, Sunday, 11 a. m., Aug. 22.

Rock Stand, Sunday, 11 a. m., Aug. 29.

Rev. H. E. Rountree: Waverly, Spring Hill and Centerville.

S. M. Smith, Pres.

P. P. Convention.

GENERAL CONFERENCE FOR CHRISTIAN WORKERS AT EAST NORTHFIELD, MASS.

Dear Friends and Fellow Workers:

In extending an invitation to the Twenty-seventh Christian Workers' Conference, to be held at Northfield, July 31 to August 15, it is with the confident expectation of a season of social blessing.

Pursuant to what has become a feature of the Conference, the daily program of meetings will begin with a Bible class conducted by Rev. A. T. Pierson, D.D., at the nine o'clock hour. The other services will be addressed by Revs. J. H. Jowett of Birmingham, G. A. Johnston Ross of Cambridge, J. Stuart Holden of London, J. A. Hutton of Glasgow, Charles Brown of London, Frank Gunsaulus of Chicago, Canon Cody of Toronto, Len Broughton of Atlanta, Robert F. Y. Pierce of New York City, and John F. Carson of Brooklyn. The music will be in charge of Messrs. George C. Stebbins and Lewis S. Chafer.

A new departure at the conference this year will be a daily ministers' meeting, conducted by Rev. G. A. Johnston Ross. These services are arranged in response to a wish, frequently expressed by many pastors attending the Conference, for a meeting where ministerial problems may be discussed. It is the earnest purpose of Mr. Ross to make these gatherings of practical value in the spiritual work of the church.

We earnestly request the prayers of friends for the Conference. It was the original purpose of this gathering that through Christian fellowship, prayer and Bible study, those who attended might be strengthened in the fundamental truths of Christian faith. This remains its true object still, and to the fulfillment of this end we ask the prayers of the Christian public.

W. R. Moody.

East Northfield, Mass., July, 1909.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEPARTMENT.

Exponent of the Young People's Convention,
Christian Church, South.

Watchword: A Christian Endeavor Society in Every Church; Teacher-Training and Organized Classes in Every Sunday School.

Devoted to the interest and advancement of Sunday Schools, Teacher-Training, Organized Classes, Cradle Roll, Home Department, Christian Endeavor, Missionary Societies, Temperance Societies, Aid Societies, Civic Righteousness.

W. A. HARPER, Editor and Field Secretary, Elon College, N. C.

[All notes and contributions for this Department should be sent to W. A. Harper, Elon College, N. C., who extends the Church at large a cordial invitation to furnish him with any note of interest to our Young People, particularly information in regard to any forward steps, new movement, or new organization looking to progressive and effective service. All items under this Department not signed are by its Editor and Field Secretary.]

This Sounds Well.

It is with pleasure that I give space to the following word from Rev. W. T. Walters, Broadway, Va., president of the Virginia Valley Central Conference: Broadway, Va., July 12, 1909.

Dear Bro. Harper: Complying with your request for my idea of the Young People's Convention and its watchword I will say that I think the covention will mean more to our young people than any other movement ever started by our people with the possible exception of Elon College.

Carrying out the watchword in our churches will meet three long felt wants, viz.: holding the interest of our young people and preparing them for more efficient service, giving our Sunday schools better teachers, and introducing a plan that will arouse more interest in our schools and increase the enrollment. I shall endeavor to carry out the watchword in my field.

W. T. Walters.

Young People's Convention Honor Roll.

In this roll, which will be kept standing for two weeks yet, are printed the names and addresses in the order of time of those pastors who have filled out the "Pastor's Information Blank" mailed them with stamped envelope on June 26. This roll is given not to encourage invidious comparison nor to suggest it, but simply to let the Church at large know how interested our pastors are in this Young People's Movement.

Rev. J. W. Wellons, Elon College, N. C.
Rev. W. C. Wicker, Elon College, N. C.
Rev. A. P. Barbee, Durham, N. C.
Rev. J. W. Barrett, Norfolk, Va.
Rev. C. E. Newman, Henderson, N. C.
Rev. N. G. Newman, Holland, Va.
Rev. W. G. Clements, Morrisville, N. C.
Rev. J. D. Wicker, Sanford, N. C.
Rev. Herbert Scholz, Macon, N. C.

Rev. J. W. Harrell, Portsmouth, Va.
Rev. G. D. Hunt, Wadley, Ala.
Rev. J. O. Cox, South Norfolk, Va.
Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Elon College, N. C.
Rev. P. T. Klapp, Pittsboro, N. C.
Rev. H. E. Rountree, Waverley, Va.
Rev. R. L. Williamson, Ramseur, N. C.
Dr. P. H. Fleming, Burlington, N. C.
Rev. M. W. Butler, Newport News, Va.
Rev. S. B. Klapp, Greensboro, N. C.
Rev. J. L. Foster, Elon College, N. C.
Rev. C. C. Peel, Elon College, N. C.
Rev. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va.
Rev. G. O. Lankford, Columbus, Ga.
Rev. B. F. Young, Lanett, Ala.
Rev. W. T. Walters, Broadway, Va.
Rev. J. W. Patton, Elon College, N. C.
Dr. W. W. Staley, Suffolk, Va.
Rev. W. L. Wells, Elon College, N. C.

Teacher-Training—Why?

It is strange that in this age of specialists and trained men such a question should be raised. If lawyers and farmers and machinists and doctors and book keepers and those of every walk and calling must needs have special training to achieve success in this our highly complex civilization, why should anyone ask if special training is necessary for the Sunday-school teacher? We would not think of sending our children to a secular teacher whose training was insufficient. Yet we have had an idea that anybody could successfully teach a Sunday school class.

We have proceeded on the supposition that Sunday school teachers are born, not made. The truth is that they are born just as other people are and prepared for successful work just as those who enter any other profession are prepared for their work. A recognition of this fundamental truth led Rev. John H. Vincent of Juliet, Ill., to organize the first Teacher Training class in the world as long ago as 1857. An appreciation of the same truth led our Southern Christian Convention in session at Greensboro, N. C., in May, 1908, to authorize the preparation of a Teacher Training Course for our Sunday schools in two volumes, the first of which appeared last November and the second of which will appear this fall. Appreciating this same fact our Young People's Convention in session at Elon College this last May embodied in its motto the ideal of a Teacher Training class in each Sunday school. The Church that opposes this forward movement is committing suicide. The individual, be he layman or minister, who does not lend his influence for it, is turning his back on the rising sun—a sun that is ushering in a new day for our glorious cause.

Ours is truly a complex civilization—an age that calls for specially trained workers in every avenue of life. To this demand the Sunday-school teacher is not exception. If we teachers of the Word are to fulfill our places in the divine economy and not to be supplanted by social and literary clubs, we must train ourselves for our work. Teacher Training is the answer to the challenge of the age for special preparation on the part of all who essay to do its work.

Record of Work Done.

The following Teacher Training classes are organized and at work as a result of our campaign:

Pleasant Grove, Va.—R. D. Thompson, Jr., President; Miss Nannie Baker Farmer, Teacher; 7 pupils.

Palm Street, Greensboro.—H. C. Simpson, President; Rev. W. C. Wicker, Teacher; 10 pupils.

Monticello (Mission Point), N. C.—E. T. Hines, Teacher; 8 pupils.

Shallow Ford, N. C.—Miss Jewel Michael, Teacher; 10 pupils.

Lebanon, N. C.—B. J. Earp, Teacher; 3 pupils.

Can you afford to be without a Teacher Training class?

The N. C. and Va. S. S. Convention.

The Convention met this year on July 13 and 14 with the New Lebanon Christian Church, Rev. L. I. Cox, pastor. This means that the Convention was cordially welcomed and hospitably entertained. The good people of the community complained because so few delegates, only 41, were present. They had prepared to care for many more and were anxious to have a large delegation. The small number of visitors did not, however, cool their ardor and they furnished magnificent audiences for all the sessions.

Dr. W. T. Herndon, the only elder of the N. C. and Va. Christian Conference present, conducted the religious exercises for the opening session in which fully fifty testified for Christ. Twelve schools were found to be represented by delegates and one by letter. The election of officers resulted as follows: Prof. J. T. Cobb, President; Dr. W. T. Herndon and Bro. W. D. Wall, Vice-Presidents; Bro. Jas. S. Truitt, Secretary; and Bro. W. H. Honeycutt, Treasurer. The retiring President, Bro. D. Jennings Sipe, delivered an excellent address entitled, "A Review of the S. S. Work in this Conference and Its Special Needs." Rev. J. W. Bolton ably discussed "The Place of the S. S. in Our Religious Organizations." Rev. L. I. Cox and others presented the aims and ideals of the Young People's Convention of the S. C. C. This concluded the work of the first day.

The second day morning was given over to round tables and addresses relative to Teacher Training, Christian Endeavor, and Organized Classes. Prof. J. T. Cobb admirably presented Christian Endeavor and Mr. B. J. Earp conducted a well-planned round table on Organized Classes. Revs. L. I. Cox, J. W. Bolton, and W. T. Herndon were always offering excellent suggestions. The afternoon session of this day was given to S. S. Home Missions, in regard to which Revs. W. T. Herndon and L. I. Cox made stirring addresses.

The Convention merged itself into the "Young People's Convention of the N. C. and Va. Christian Conference" obedient to the request of the General Young People's Convention which met at Elon College in May. This action was taken to indicate that other lines of Christian work than Sunday schools are to be undertaken by the body. The next session will be held with the Lebanon Church, Semora, N. C., on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday after the second Sunday in July. Rev. J. W. Bolton preached to good acceptance on Tuesday night to a full house.

In closing the account of this excellent Convention I wish to quote from the editor of The Christian Sun, who last week wrote after this manner: "When a pastor can possibly attend his Sunday school Convention and fails to do so it is a reflection on him. It seems that he did not attend because he did not have to, or rather, because there was no pay in it for him." Now I rise to ask where all the pastors of this Conference were during this Convention? I wish to inform them that they were missed and that the laymen did not appreciate their absence. The very least they could have done, as Dr. Atkinson and Bro. Wellons did, was to send greetings and render excuse for not being present. To disregard the Convention—I do not see how any pastor can afford that.

Delightful Event Arranged by Baraca Class of the Christian Church.

On the night of July 10 at the Christian church the Baraca Class of the Sunday school gave a banquet in honor of the former members and a number of invited guests. About forty young men were present in response to the invitations sent out and the affair was greatly enjoyed by all. The banquet was served in the banquet of the church and was in three courses. After the feasting was over speech-making began.

Mr. Chas. A. Hines acted as toastmaster, responses being made as follows:

The Relation of the Sunday school to the City and State, Judge N. L. Enre.

The Sunday School as an Element in a Young Man's Life, Mr. S. Clay Williams.

The Southern Convention's Call to Young People, Prof. W. A. Harper.

Christian Manhood, Mr. S. A. Holleman.

Some Benefits of Class Organization, Mr. W. B. Truitt.

How to Cultivate the Fraternal Spirit, Rev. J. W. Bolton.

There was also a short talk by Mr. R. S. Petty, President of the class.—Greensboro Telegram.

Brother Superintendent, have you a Teacher-Training Class in your school? If not, why not?

HOW TO TEACH THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FOR AUGUST 1ST—A FEW SUGGESTIONS.

Paul at Corinth. Acts 18:1-11.

Golden Text: In the world ye have tribulation, but be of good cheer; I have overcome the world. John 16:33.

Review. Review the previous lesson thoroughly, also the whole of the second missionary journey to date. Call for the note books; examine them; make suggestions; have one read.

Chronology. After the sermon on Mars' Hill, Paul went to Corinth, where he preached for 18 months, and where he was joined by Silas and Timothy. Claudius succeeded Caligula on the throne of Rome in 41 A. D. He was at first very kindly disposed toward the Jews, because Herod Agrippa, ruler of Galilee, had been very instrumental in having him made emperor. But the Roman historian Suetonius in his life of Claudius informs us that "the Jews, who, instigated by Cluestus (can this be for Christus, Christ?), were in constant commotion, he (Claudius) banished from Rome." This was in 49 A. D. This decree like many another was not very consistently enforced. It was in the year 50 A. D. that Paul went to Corinth or the very last of 49 A. D.

Geography. You will desire to get a clear conception of Corinth, the great emporium of that day, before your pupils. It was fifty miles from Athens, on the isthmus which unites the Peloponnesus with the mainland. This isthmus is now pierced by a canal, but in those days the ships were dragged overland between the port of Sechaem on the Corinthian Sea and the port of Ceuchreal or the Saronic Gulf of the Gulf of Aegina to avoid the stormy voyage around the peninsula. It was a most luxurious, wealthy, and wicked city. Pontus, the home community of Aquila and Priscilla, was a province of Asia Minor bordering on the Black Sea. See "Preparing the Teacher," Book I, Chapter IX.

Incidental Instruction. It will be well to speak of the fact that every Hebrew boy had to learn a manual trade—the rabbinical law required this of every father. This meant that manual labor was honored among the Hebrews, and not dishonorable as among the Romans. Christ was a carpenter, Peter and many of the apostles were fishermen and net-workers, Paul was a tent maker. The custom of shaking the raiment as a protestation of innocence for the conduct of another will also claim our attention. You will need further to make clear as to the rules of the synagogues. We saw the third officer in rank, being outranked by the high priests. In provincial synagogues, such as this was, the ruler of the synagogue was supreme. No one was eligible until he had a certificate from the Sanhedrim that he was qualified, but the election was by the members of the synagogue. He was general improviser of all matters connected with the synagogue. For further details, see "Preparing the Teacher," Book I, Chapter VIII.

The Lesson. Our today's lesson falls into two divisions, which write on the board as they are developed in teaching, to be used in the topical review:

1. Paul labors with Corinthian Jews, verses 1-6. Find what is meant "after these things," what Paul did then, to what place he came (here call for assigned works on Corinth), what Jews he found there, from what place, whence he had lately come, accompanied by whom (here call for assigned work on Aquila and Priscilla, Acts 18:2; Acts 18:26; Cor. 16:19; Rom. 16:3-5; 2 Tim. 4:19), why they had left Rome (here call for assigned work on Claudius), why Paul abode with them, what their trade was (here call for assigned

(Continued on page 13)

THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

Founded 1844 by Elder Daniel W. Kerr.
Organ of the Southern Christian
Convention.

Entered at the postoffice at Greensboro, N. C., as second-class matter.

Terms of Subscription.

One Year .....$1.50
Six Months ..... .75
Four Months ..... .50
Advertising rates given on application.

J. O. Atkinson, Editor and Publisher.

Important Notice.—As readers will see, The Christian Sun is now published at Greensboro, N. C. The office of publication there is 302½ South Elm Street. Our editorial office, however, remains at Elon College, N. C., to which all letters and communications to the Editor should be addressed, as heretofore.

THE BOOK OF ACTS.

In all the Word there is no more important, and certainly no more interesting book, than Acts. This book engages the attention of Sunday schools for a season now and the opportunity for studying it is of the best. The wise will take advantage thereof.

No one questions its author. He is Luke, the beloved physician, companion of Paul and writer of the third Gospel. Luke had a distinguished, possibly a wealthy friend, of whom he was very fond, whose slave physician he had likely been, and who is now his patron and admirer. To this friend, Theophilus, Luke writes and dedicates both his treatises, St. Luke and the Acts. And with what precision, accuracy and definiteness Luke writes to this distinguished patron and friend!

In this Book of Acts the transition from the old to the new methods of reaching and saving men is clearly seen. The key to the whole is found in verse one, chapter one: "The former treatise have I made of all that Jesus began." The word "began" carries the secret. The Book of St. Luke is a book of beginnings; the Book of Acts is a book of continuation, progress, development.

As in Luke we see Jesus beginning in the flesh, in Acts we see Him continuing as the Holy Spirit. The resurrection is spoken of in Acts nineteen times, more, we believe, than in any other book of the Bible, if not more than in all others combined. And the Holy Spirit appears in clear and definite outline both as to character and as to function, in the Acts as in no other book of the Bible. It is significant to note that the practice of casting lots, a practice common among Jews and Gentiles of ancient times, is spoken of in Acts 1:26 for the last time in the Bible. This is significant because after this the people of God did not have to cast lots in order to make choice, but have instead the Holy Spirit to choose for them, and to guide them. And some scholars believe the eleven apostles made a mistake in casting lots this time, and that Matthias is not the rightful twelfth Apostle, but that Paul is, and that Paul and not Matthias is one of the twelve pillars that adorn the temple of God.

However this may be we know that the Acts gives an account of the advent of the Spirit whose function was that of counsellor, comforter and guide, and that from the second chapter of Acts on, throughout the remainder of the Bible, men and women toil and labor and suffer and are under the inspiration, guidance and leadership of the Holy Spirit.

Now under the guidance of the Holy Spirit, as set forth in the Acts, four wonderful things take place:

1. Men become bold, powerful, invincible champions of the Cross. The doubting Thomases, the denying Peters, the timid and forsaking apostles have become fearless, intrepid, able and eloquent advocates of the gospel of the Crucified One. All doubts have fled and spirit-filled men boldly proclaim the truth.

2. Laymen, as well as preachers, begin to stand up for Christ, and a Christian Church, the first ever seen on earth, is organized and built at Antioch.

3. Gentiles, as well as Jews, hear and heed the gospel message and the kingdom of God on earth begins to enlarge mightily.

4. Christian missions begin, the first converts in Europe are won, and worldwide evangelization starts on its course.

As a record of the beginning of events and incidents which have affected the lives of men, changed the course of history, and turned the tide of nations and empires, there is no book under the sun that equals that of Acts.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

The twenty-fourth International Christian Endeavor Convention met at St. Paul, Minn., Wednesday, July 7, 1909. The theme of the convention was "Thy kingdom come." Two years ago the total enrollment of societies was 69,138 and the total of membership was 3,456,900. In two years the number of Societies has been increased by 2,355, and membership by 94,200; so that there are now reported 71,493 Societies, with 3,551,100 members. All evangelical denominations now have Christian Endeavor Societies, the Presbyterians have more than any other denomination, and the Disciples of Christ coming next, with Congregationalists occupying third place.

Christian Endeavor is what its name indicates. It is a Christian, in co-operation with other Christians, endeavoring to do something in Christ's name. The prayer meeting is only a small part of a Christian Endeavor Society. Visiting the sick, carrying flowers to the church, looking after the church music, aiding any part of church work and Christian service, these are only a few of the ways Endeavorers work. Pity indeed it is that there is not a Christian Endeavor Society in every church in all our broad land. It gives the young people something to do and trains them in Christian service.

FAITH IN OTHERS.

President Hadley of Yale has been discoursing on faith, social and personal. This great moralist claims that we of this age need to cultivate a social faith, faith in the good intentions and possibilities of others as well as ourselves. Faith is essential to goodness, and there must be a social side to our goodness. Quoting directly,

"We do not appreciate how necessary it is for a man to believe in those about him just as far as he can and co-operate with them just as fully as he can. No matter how high the ideals for which we stand, we can not expect others to follow us unless we have confidence in them. We can not expect devotion if we return it with distrust."

In this there is certainly very great truth. We need to cultivate faith in others.

We will not admit that we are selfish, but we go our way of attributing selfishness, in one form or another, to half the folks we know. We never admit that we ourselves are haughty, proud, cold hearted, indifferent; but we will readily attribute one or all of those attributes to three-fourths the folks about us. We never went to church in all our lives "to see and to be seen," to dress and to be "addressed." How quick indeed we are to accuse others of doing this very self same thing. Remember that, when the others are accusing and considering, we ourselves are of the number accused and considered.

President Hadley was certainly driving at the mark. We have lost confidence in others—if we ever had it. Let us at least attribute to others all the virtues that we ourselves would love to have attributed by others to ourselves.

SUFFOLK LETTER.

The first newspaper, the "Weekly News," was published in England in 1622, and that is only 287 years ago. The first religious newspaper, the "Herald of Gospel Liberty," was published in Portsmouth, N. H., Sept. 1, 1808, a little more than 100 years ago. If one will review the history of civilization and Christianity it will appear that this agency we call journalism has led in human progress. The newspaper is to knowledge what transportation is to commerce. Before railroads and steamboats the products of the earth were exchanged in small quantities and in small areas; but now ice from the cold regions and fruits from sunny climes are exchanged and all the world contributes to the local markets and the dinner table of peasants as well as kings. This does not only increase the wealth of the world but the sympathy and interest of mankind. The man in Canada is concerned about the orange crop in Florida and the pine apples in Cuba. The exchange of ideas is as important as the exchange of material products. The thought of far-off lands is brought to us on the printed page. We know today that the Shah of Persia was deposed yesterday and we will know tomorrow whether Persia will be partitioned between England and Russia. A cargo of information is transported more rapidly than a cargo of wheat and cotton, for much of it is sent by wire. This electric current can carry thought around the world in a very short time. Then the papers reproduce it, multiply it, and send it forth into every nook and corner of society. Millions read it and feel the nearness of far away peoples. Our thought is no longer the thought of our neighborhood, the provincial stock of local output, but our thought is made up of the thinking and doing of the world. As exchange of products makes us richer and better furnished, so exchange of ideas makes us wiser and reduces the prejudices of dead centuries. In the Bible we have not only the thought of centuries but the thought of God. It is this thought that enlightens our spiritual understanding and enriches our souls. A god of stone can produce nothing but a small, cold man; but God of heaven and earth can enlarge the worshipper until he shall be like Christ. As good flowers reproduce the beautiful colors of the seven colored light and the sweet odors of earth and air, so good papers reproduce the intelligence and heart character of all ages and all climes.

I am writing all this to enquire of the reader whether we appreciate a good paper. Do we appreciate the labor, the wide research, the self-denial, the honest effort of the editor who endeavors to spread before us a safe and nourishing soul-repast? Left to yourself, how much would you know? Do you not parrot the newspaper and almost forget where you got your last supply? Even so you eat your oyster and do not think of the man who stood in a boat on a cold winter day, when the wind was tossing his large up and down and, with almost frozen hands, tongs up from the bottom of the river those luscious bivalves. No workers are more poorly paid than the average newspaper man. He ransacks his books, his exchanges, his brain, to prepare mental supplies for his readers, and they eat the good food and do not think of the cost. Whoever thought of paying a paper for an elaborate write-up of a marriage, a funeral, a commencement, a picnic, a revival meeting, a candidate for office, or any thing for which complaints are often made, if the write-up is not done in the most complimentary style. There is no form of service so little appreciated and so poorly remunerated. The newspaper is expected to do what everybody wants done and to do nothing that anybody objects to, and all free. I sympathize with editors, typesetters, pressmen, mailing clerks, and all who work in dens, away from God's sunshine and fresh air; but I honor all the faithful workers in ink for that black cloud sends showers of blessings upon mankind. Religion has been lifted out of ignorance and prejudice, and charity has taken the place of creeds, and good deeds the place of dogma, since the religious paper has enlightened the church. No good thing comes into the family so valuable and so cheap as the church paper; and yet there are members of the church who neglect to take the church paper and seem to be unconscious of disloyalty and certainly do not dream that they are impoverishing their souls.

Think of your editor, pray for him, read his paper, say a good word for the paper, and cultivate an appreciation equal to its worth. W. W. Staley.

NORFOLK LETTER.

Sunday was another clear, beautiful day in Norfolk. Attendance at Sunday school and church, about normal.

Rev. W. H. Thompson filled his appointment at Providence Church in the afternoon. He reports Judge Portlock as still quite feeble.

Regret to note that Col. A. Savage, who has been ill for several weeks, and who was somewhat improved a few days ago, is not so well again. He had been up and about his room, able to walk a little, but the last few days has been confined to his bed again, suffering with nervousness. It is to be hoped that in a few days he will be able to go to the beach for a stay, where it is hoped that the salt air will be a benefit to him.

The Third Church elected as delegates to the Eastern Virginia Sunday School Convention, which meets at Waverly this week, Brother B. L. Nicklos, Sister Pitt, and Sister Eva Green. Brother Thompson, the pastor, expects to attend. I regret that it will be impossible for me to attend this year. The Virginia State Dental Association has its meeting at Old Point Comfort on the same days as the Sunday School Convention. Being a member of several important committees, and having some part in the clinical work of the program, it makes it seem necessary that I forego the pleasure of attending the Convention this time, and attend the dental meeting.

Mrs. Emily S. Barrett, wife of Dr. J. P. Barrett, of Dayton, Ohio, is visiting friends and relatives in this community.

We were glad a few days ago to be favored with a call from Professor W. P. Lawrence, of Elon College, who was in this community in the interest of the college and its work; but regret to learn that he has been compelled to return to his home on account of not being well.

Mr. S. M. Atkinson, who is working in the interest of The-Sun, was also a pleasant caller one day last week.

Still some encouraging letters with reference to the Porto Rico Building Fund keep coming in. How is it with you and your Sunday school, Brother Pastor? Would be glad to get a letter from you telling me that the plan is in operation. J. W. Manning.

Nothing is easier than to feel great sympathy with a good cause and do nothing besides. Unless one subjects himself to very critical scrutiny, he may never discover that he has a tendency to act far below the standard of his conviction and emotion. Many people, for example, have a genuine and profound sympathy for the heathen, without expressing it in dollars and cents or in anything else except appropriate emotions. To have the emotional illusion that one has done something great and worthy towards evangelizing the world, when he has only felt that something great and worthy ought to be done, is one of the easiest and commonest experiences of Christian men and women. Not until one sits down prayerfully in the presence of the facts and decides upon a course of action that will worthily express his best feelings in behalf of any cause, is there much prospect that he will free himself from the impression that his contribution is in keeping with his emotions.—S. S. Times.

THE CHRISTIAN ORPHANAGE
DEPARTMENT.

CHILDREN'S CORNER.

The Band of Cousins.

Jas. L. Foster, Sec., Elon College, N. C.

"He that hath pity on the poor lendeth unto the Lord, and his good deed will He pay him again."—Prov. 19:17.

THE LITTLE BLIND GIRL.

Margery and Alice were in high glee when they started on their long journey, but at the close of the first day they began to be very tired and cross.

Mamma did not know how to entertain them, for they had already drawn ladies with colored pencils and amused themselves in every way she could think of. She felt discouraged and tired. If they were going to fret and complain, how would she be able to bear the four days' trip?

At last she said: "Look at the people in our car and let us see if we can guess what they do. That stiff young lady is a schoolmarm, I believe, and that dude with so many suit cases is a drummer, and—"

But she was interrupted by eager voices, out of which the fretful, tired note had gone.

"And that man talking to the candy boy is a minister, and that one, a merchant," said Alice, looking down the car for new faces.

"And, mamma, there is the queerest-looking girl in the end of the car, with a man who must be her father," said Margery. "I saw her when she got on, and she must be a stupid, for she hasn't once looked out of the window or seemed to care for a thing. Look how she leans on her hands and how sad her father looks."

Mamma looked, and saw in an instant why the child looked queer. She was blind, and her face was sad and old for her years.

"Dears, she is quite blind and cannot look out of the window and see the beautiful trees and sky, nor any of the things that you have seen today and care so little for. Let me go back and speak to her father, and perhaps she will come and sit with us. We may help to make the journey brighter for her."

In a few moments she led the child back, talking gaily to her of her two little girls. And instead of being stupid, Ruth Dale was bright and sweet, and only needed such companions to make her forget her blindness.

Margery and Alice had never seen a blind child before who went to a blind school, and knew quite as much as they did, even more, for she knew many new games which she gladly taught them, and they were surprised at the books she had read, the fairy tales that she knew quite as well as they did. She told them she was going to see her grandmother in Texas. Her own mother was dead, and every year, when vacation came, her father came for her and took her on this long trip. She always dreaded it, for her father seemed so sad, somehow, but now that she knew somebody, it wasn't going to be nearly so bad.

The days spent on the train were very happy ones and went by so quickly. The children were eyes for Ruth, describing the places they passed, telling her of many things they saw as they whirled along. Mr. Dale was most grateful, and the sad look left his face; indeed, there was no merrier party than the three children on board the train the whole way.

When the time came for Ruth to leave them, there were almost tears shed. But Mr. Dale promised to bring her to see them her next vacation, and that she should write to them.

Whenever Margery and Alice became impatient and grumbled, they would think of patient Ruth Dale, with her sweet face and poor blind eyes, and they always felt ashamed and ready to be sunshiny again.—The Child's Gem.

TWO BRAVE YOUNG TRAVELERS.

Within the past few weeks, of the many children who have come to America from far across the ocean, at least two have made the journey all alone. Annie Brown, a little Irish girl, traveled more than 5,000 miles to join her father in Canada, where he had gone from Ireland a year and a half ago. Annie's father wanted her, but he could not afford the time to return to his old home for his little daughter, and decided that, although she was only five years old, she could be trusted to make the trip alone. During the long journey the child was well cared for on boats and trains by the passengers who became interested as she told them sweetly how she was "going to meet daddy."

Ontko Erzebet, eleven years old, came away from Austria to New York, nearly six thousand miles, on her way to Illinois, all alone and tagged like a mail sack. Ontko's mother when a widow came to America, leaving her only child with its grandmother. After a while the mother married and was anxious to have her daughter come to live with her. As there was, however, no one to bring her over, the money for her passage was sent to the clerk of the village where Ontko lived, and he bought a ticket, put a tag on the girl and started her on her way with a letter to the steamship company. At the port she had to transfer from train to steamship, and in New York she had again to board a train for the West. The immigration authorities retagged her and bought a ticket with money sent by her mother. When the train pulled up at the station in Illinois, there was no one to meet her, as she was not expected so soon. So she was put off on the platform with the mail sacks to await the joyous greeting of her parents, who soon appeared. The little Hungarian girl wore a red plaid dress, a blue silk turban, a red silk scarf, and boots that reached nearly to her knees. She had never heard one word of English before she boarded the steamer to cross the Atlantic.—Ex.

The North Carolina
COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE AND
MECHANIC ARTS.

The State's college for vocational training. Courses in Agriculture and Horticulture; in Civil, Electrical and Mechanical Engineering; in Cotton Milling and Dyeing; in Industrial Chemistry. Why not fit yourself for life by taking one of these courses? Address

D. H. HILL, President,
West Raleigh, N. C.

READ SOMETHING DIFFERENT.

The Greensboro Daily News, the new State paper, is worthy of a trial. Associated Press service, special correspondence, clean, newsy, liberal. One year $6.00; three months $1.50.

GREENSBORO DAILY NEWS,
Greensboro, N. C.

To Drive Out Malaria and Build up the System.

Take the Old Standard GROVE'S PASTELESS CHILL TONIC. You know what you are taking. The formula is plainly printed on every bottle, showing it is simply Quinine and Iron in a tasteless form, and the most effectual form. For grown people and children. 50c.

YOUNG MEN! If you want to know why you should become telegraph operators and what school to attend, write to SOUTHERN SCHOOL OF TELEGRAPHY, Newman, Ga., for free Catalogue "A." EVERY BOY should read it. Positions positively guaranteed.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup

Has been used for over SIXTY-FIVE YEARS by MILLIONS of MOTHERS for their CHILDREN WHILE TEETHING, with PERFECT SUCCESS. IT SOOTHES the CHILD, SOFTENS the GUMS, ALLAYS all PAIN; CURES WIND COLIC, and is the best remedy for DIARRHŒA. Sold by Druggists in every part of the world. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Guaranteed under the Food and Drugs Act, June 30th, 1906. Serial Number 1098. AN OLD AND WELL TRIED REMEDY.

(Begun on page 7)

work on Paul's self-support, Acts 20:34; Thess. 2:9; 2 Thess. 3:8), what he did on the Sabbath, who came from Macedonia, what Paul was then constrained to do, how the Jews received this, what Paul did, what he said to them (here call for assigned work on Pilot's absolving himself from guilt, Matt. 27:24-25), to whom he declared he would turn.

2. Paul labors with the Corinthian Gentiles, verses 7-11. Find to whose house Paul was sent, what is said of this now, where his home was located, who the ruler of the synagogue was, what is said of him, the result of Paul's preaching, what the Lord said to Paul, in what way, how long he dwelt there, doing what.

Review the lesson by the topic method.

For Class Discussion: Paul's moods; Priscilla; the hard lot of the Jew who professed Christ or who now professes Him; should ministers to-day undertake to support themselves by secular work? why Paul did this; the city of Corinth, then and now.

Truths and Their Application. 1. There is no doubt that Paul felt wonderfully depressed over his failure at Athens. In fact his whole second missionary journey had been one of hardship and darkness to him. When he went to Corinth he gave up his aggressive missionary efforts and supported himself by labor in the week and only reasoned in the synagogue on the Sabbath. His doctrine too was much toned down, for it was not until Silas and Timothy came that he was constrained to preach Christ. We have all had these periods of depression or we shall have them, when we feel that our life is vain. This is no proof of our failure, but simply an incident of our pilgrimage here. Let us so view it and pray for strength to throw our despondency off, and we all have One who is ever willing to cheer us up and who says, "Be of good cheer: I have overcome the world."

2. As long as Paul was contented to reason and persuade the Jews and Greeks on religious themes on the Sabbath and did not proclaim Christ, the members of the synagogue heard him gladly. But when he preached a full Gospel they turned against him. Brother Pastor, do you preach a full Gospel or do you temporize with the world? Do those who listen to you proclaim the Gospel feel constrained to overcome the world or to compromise with it? Fellow teacher, how is it with your Sunday school teaching? Is there a thought here for us?

3. The blessedness of companionship will be well touched on here. It was not ill Silas and Timothy came that Paul's spirit returned and he was constrained to preach Christ. Our companions are our strength on our weakness. How careful, then, we should be in choosing them!

Manual Work. Life of Paul (Saul) (Continued). Have the pupils locate on their maps Corinth and Pontus and enter on their note books for expansion at home the following outline:

Last of 49 or first of 50 A. D. Paul goes to Corinth, Acts 18:1

Lives with Aquilla and Priscilla, Acts 18:2-3.

Reasons in synagogue with Jews, Acts 18:4.

Preaches Christ to Jews, Acts 18:5-6.

Turns to Gentiles, Acts 18:7-22.

Writes the letters to the Thessalonians; 50-52 A. D., Labors at Corinth 18 months, Acts 18:11.

Assignments for Next Sunday. Ask one to be prepared on Paul at Thessalonica, Acts 17:1-9; another to write a five-minute account of the second missionary journey; a third an outline of the First Epistle to the Thessalonians; a fourth to find other suitable golden texts for the lesson, using the concordance. Ask all to read the Epistle to the Thessalonians during the week.

W. A. Harper.

Elon College, N. C.

Remember to do your part of the working and praying for Teacher Training during these three months.

HOW TO CONDUCT THE C. E. MEETING FOR JULY 25—A FEW SUGGESTIONS.

Heroes of Missions in China:

Matt. 5:13-16.

For the Leader.—Display in the meeting a map of China, with statistics as to population, missionaries, and converts. Tell of the introduction of missions into China. Show the great need of Christianity for these people. Tell of the heroism of the Chinese Christians who suffered martyrdom during the Boxer Rebellion. Read the scripture lesson and show how it applies to China. Show that the recent murder of Miss Sigel in New York by a Chinaman is no argument against Chinese Missions.

For the More Experienced Members.—Assign in advance for two minute essays the life and work of some of the following missionaries in China: Robert Morrison, William Milne, Walter Medhurst, David Abeel, Elijah Bhidgemon, Peter Parker, Walter Lowrie, J. H. Taylor, William Murray, W. C. Burns, J. A. Sagle, and James Gilmour. Information for these essays can be had from the C. E. World, from various books on missions to be found in libraries, and from other sources.

Also appoint good endeavorers to tell in a few words what the four verses of the scripture lesson mean, each taking a verse.

For the Less Experienced Members.—Hand out the following references to be read in the meeting:

The Ideal Servant, Isa. 42:1-4.

Redemption by Individuals, Isa. 44:1-8.

A Promise to the East, Isa. 69:1-3.

Good Soldiers, II Tim. 2:1-9.

A Missionary's Life, Acts 20:17-35.

Love Under Persecution, Matt. 5:43-48.

Question Spurs.—Read in the meeting for extemporaneous answer these or similar questions:

Why should we send missionaries to China?

What are the qualifications of a good missionary?

What can I do for the evangelization of China?

What must be the result to us of failure to be a missionary in spirit?

Suggested Program.

1. Missionary Song. Chain of prayer.
2. Scripture lesson read by leader.
3. Explanation of the scripture lesson by the four Endeavorers appointed for that purpose.
4. Leader's Remarks.
5. Another missionary song.
6. Reports from those asked to prepare essays on the lives and works of missionaries.
7. Scripture references.
8. Answers to question spurs.
9. Voluntary participation in the meeting in any way the member desires.
10. The Pastor's five minutes.
11. Missionary song. Offering. Mizpah.

What are you doing for Teacher Training? Can you afford not to have your part in such a work.

When in Burlington call at

T. H. STROUD'S

Store for DRUGS, SOFT DRINKS, and anything desired in drugs and Toilet Articles.

MEDICINE.

We prepare as good medicine, the very best medicine that the finest, freshest, most potent drugs and chemicals will produce when carefully and skilfully compounded by an expert prescription man—just such medicine as your physician means that you should have, medicine of the utmost possible effectiveness. May we prepare your medicine?

FREEMAN DRUG CO.,

Burlington, N. C.

THE DECLINE OF DOCTRINE.

"Who is to be the new professor of Christian theology in the divinity school?" was asked recently in a group of graduates of a New York university.

"It is not easy to find the right man," was the reply. "The young ministers nowadays are interested in sociology and not in theology."

A clerical reviewer of a recent book by the retiring professor in question wrote that the book was deficient because too little attention was paid in it to the social side of Christianity. Thus was emphasis again laid on sociology in distinction from theology.

Neither John Calvin nor Jonathan Edwards would be pleased with this manifestation of modern religious interest. In the days of Jonathan Edwards, and for many years afterward, the doctrinal sermon was regarded as of the highest importance, and even now there are many clergymen and laymen who deplore the present tendency away from doctrine. They say that modern Christians do not know what they believe, and are ready to accept any new fad, ignorant of its theological significance.

These persons regret the breaking down of the barriers between the Protestant denominations indicated by the advice of a New York clergyman that those of his parishoners who live too far away from the church to attend its services should join a church—of some other denomination, if necessary, nearer their homes.

This lowering of the bars between the sects is one of the results of the decreasing emphasis on doctrine. And the little regard in which doctrine is held is still further indicated by the decision of a committee of one of the most conservative Calvinistic churches to recommend for ordination to the ministry three young men who are unable to accept as literal some of the statements in the Bible which all Trinitarian Christians used to consider fundamental.—Youth's Companion.

Twenty years ago the United States

A LEADING BOARDING SCHOOL
 for 250 Students. Established 1884. Prepares for College, Business, Teaching, or for Life. Health, Character and Scholarship. Wide patronage. Very reasonable rates. Each student receives personal attention. School highly endorsed. (Location is near Greensboro, N. C.) For Beautiful Catalogue, Views, etc., address the President.
W. T. WHITSETT, Ph. D.,
 Whitsett, North Carolina

RALEIGH & SOUTHPORT RY. Co.

P. M. A. M.	STATIONS.	A. M. P. M.
1:15 6:00	Raleigh	8:30 3:45
1:54 6:24	McCullers	7:52 3:03
2:11 6:59	Willow Sp'gs	7:37 2:45
2:23 7:14	Varina	7:27 2:34
2:35 7:26	Fuquay Sp'gs	7:19 2:25
2:55 7:45	Kipling	7:00 2:05
3:15 8:05	Lillington	6:41 1:44
3:41 8:28	Linden	6:15 1:17
4:30 9:15	Fayetteville	5:30 12:30

JNO. A. MILLS, Pres. and Gen. Mgr.

DO YOU WANT TO GO TO COLLEGE? If so we can help you. We have already put hundreds through college by means of our plan. Write today for full information regarding our offer of a free scholarship in any school or college. Address, Robert J. Sherlock, 29-31 East 22nd Street, New York City.

DR. J. H. BROOKS

Surgeon and Dentist
 FOSTER BUILDING,
 Burlington, N. C.

SPRING TIME.

The time for gardening is here and you need garden tools. We can supply you at lowest prices.

Poultry Wire.

The best assorted stock in the county. Four different styles and weight.

Come and See.

Remember plumbing and bath room fixtures, a speciality. You will find us on Davis St. third door from Post office.
BURLINGTON HARDWARE CO

FITS CURED. NO CURE NO PAY

In other words you do not pay our small professional fee until cured and satisfied. German-American Institute, 249 Walnut St., Kansas City, Mo.

RAISE MONEY FOR YOUR CHURCH.

We offer you an easy method. Send us a photograph of your church or your pastor, and we will send you 500 high grade post cards, with photograph on each card, and scripture verse if desired. Sell these cards at 10 cents each. When sold, remit us $20.00 and keep the balance. You can do this in a week. We will return photograph.

LAKE SHORE SUPPLY CO.,
 225 Broad St., St. Joe, Michigan.

WHICH FARMER ARE YOU?

This farmer telephoned and—stayed at home.

This farmer went to market.

THE MODERN, progressive farmer no longer drives to market without first telephoning and learning the prevailing prices. The Telephone saves these unnecessary trips—saves wear and tear on stock and equipment. By connecting with the Bell System the farmer can talk from his home to distant points. Under the Bell plan service can be secured at low cost.

For information and booklet write to nearest Bell telephone manager or to

Farmers' Line Department
SOUTHERN BELL TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH CO.
 19 SOUTH PRYOR STREET, ATLANTA, GA.

navy cost $22,000,000 a year. This year the cost is $135,000,000. The population has increased 35 per cent, while the naval expenditures have advanced 600 per cent. Edward Everett Hale wrote not long ago: "Think of it! I heard Sumner's peace oration in 1845. He amazed people by saying that the ship of the line, Ohio, then new, cost $800,000, and that was more than all the gifts made to Harvard college in 200 years. Now we propose to spend $20,000,000 on one ship!"

We are spending 72 per cent of the income of the government for purposes of war, past and present, and only 28 per cent for peaceful government. The combined cost of army and navy from July 1, 1908, to April 30, 1909, that is, for ten months, was $206,483,937.37. We throw more than $300,000,000 into the yawning maw of the war-god every year, and his appetite is increasing. The nations of the world are verily seized with insanity, lashed into madness by hysterical fear of what the other nations are going to do.—Exchange.

A LITTLE OF WILL.

"Never put your arm through the handle of a jug," is a piece of advice given by an exchange to the young ladies. Most of them ought to know what it means without further explanation. A woman is never so foolish as when she hopes to reform a man after marriage. "He loves me," she trustingly says, and because her own love is pure she expects the pure article in return. Poor girl, you do not know the witchery of the jug, nor the strong bands that bind the soul of the man to whom your happiness is entrusted. True enough, he is good-hearted and kind, except when in liquor, but as his slavery increases his kindness decreases. While seeking for some one to shield him in his helplessness, he may indeed flatter you that you only can redeem him. After you become his slave, you may well wish for an early grave. Many an error it hides, many a heart-ache it cures. But the lack of love soon follows protracted indulgence in folly. Young ladies, never put your arm through the handle of a jug.—Ex.

—Rev. Johnston Myers, D.D., writing in the Journal and Messenger of the Baptist University, of Chicago, says: "A careful study of the catalogue shows that there are very few Baptists who attend the university. Jews and atheists predominate in the faculty and students." This will be news to many, and regrettable at that, for a Godless and Christless faculty and student body will certainly bring forth results by no means desirable.

—Berlin, July 13.—Count Zeppelin is at present in Berlin negotiating with the Prussian Railroad administration for an arrangement between his proposed air-ship passenger lines and the railroads by which railroad stations are to be enlarged to serve as shelters for air ships.

—John D. Rockefeller has given ten millions more to the General Education Board, making a total of $52,000,000 given by him for educational purposes. The world has never seen anything like this before, but this is a time of world-breaking records, and it excites little comment.

—The average expense for repairs to the machinery of each of the American war-ships that made the cruise round the world was about three thousand dollars, and the total cost of the cruise was less than a million and a half. Of course more money was spent, but it cost only this much more than if the ships had stayed at home. The cruise was worth it.—Exchange.

—"Ezry," said Farmer Hay, "I see that since ye have come back from college ye wear yer hair spliced right down the middle. Now, hyur's all I have to say: If ye expect ter feed out o' my trough, ye got to let yer mane fall on one side."—Puck.

Books for Every Christian Home.

Do you know why you are a member of the Christian Church? Do you understand what the church stands for and teaches? If not, send and get a copy of the "Principles and Government of the Christian Church," just revised and greatly improved by order of the Southern Christian Convention.

Cloth binding per copy, post paid 50 cts.

Limp Cloth binding per copy, post paid 35 cts.

Paper binding per copy, post paid 25 cts.

Handsome Persian Morocco, with name in gilt $1.25.

The Southern Christian Convention also Ordered Another Book Published, PREPARING THE SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER TO TEACH, Edited by Profs. W. A. Harper, W. C. Wicker and W. P. Lawrence.

The book is neatly printed and bound and is invaluable to the Sunday-school worker, 236 pages.

Paper binding per copy, postpaid, 60 cts.

Cloth binding per copy, postpaid, 90 cts.

To Sunday-schools, paper binding 50 cts. cloth 75 cts.

Have You Read That Thrilling and Inspiring Story of His Own Life, MOTHER'S ANSWERED PRAYER, BY REV. P. H. FLEMING, D. D.?

Cloth binding, postpaid 55 cts.

All these books should be in your home. Order at once

For sale by, THE CHRISTIAN SUN, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

IT'S INTERESTING

to hear the different comments on different Shoes. All shoes have some good points: Style or comfort or service.

WALK-OVER SHOES

have all the good points; style and comfort and service and their price is the best point of all. $3.50, 4.00 & 5.00.

Foster Shoe Co., Burlington, N. C.

Dry Goods, Notions, Ready Made Clothing.

When in Burlington visit our large store, supplied always with the very best and latest styles and novelties.

Our Dry Goods are of latest designs, and our Ready Made Clothing cannot be surpassed in quality and price.

Come. See. Be Convinced.

B. A. SELLARS & SONS. BURLINGTON, N. C.

MARRIED.*Pollard - Woodell.

On the fourth Sunday in June at Christian Chapel, in Chatham County, N. C., Mr. A. M. Pollard and Miss R. E. Woodell were married in the presence of a few friends. May their lives be long and happy.

J. S. Carden.

Kirkland-Booker.

At 3:30 o'clock, Sunday evening, July 4, 1909 in the home of Mrs. L. A. Booker, Miss Mattie Booker, near Chapel Hill, was married to Mr. R. P. Kirkland of Lynchburg, Va., Rev. Thos. W. Strowd performing the ceremony.

It was a quiet, but beautiful marriage, only a few relatives and friends being present.

Immediately after the marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Kirkland left for Lynchburg, Va., their future home.

They have the best wishes of many relatives and friends. May their lives be long and happy.

Thos. W. Strowd.

CONVERSION OF OUR SUNDAY SCHOOL CHILDREN—HOW IT MAY BE SECURED.

Having been requested to write upon this subject, let us consider first in what does the conversion of a single child consist?

What Is Conversion?

But One is qualified to answer. His reply is John 3:5, R. V., "Verily, verily I say unto thee, Except one be born of water" (meaning repentance, John's baptism, Matt. 3:2, 6, Mark 1:4, Acts 13:14, and Christ's first teaching, Matt. 4:17) "and the Spirit, he cannot enter the kingdom of God," and (v. 10), "that which is born of the Spirit, is spirit."

Conversion, therefore, consists in a new spirit being born in the repentant soul of a child (or man), through the action of the Holy Spirit.

Who Leads to Repentance?

Who is it that, striving with the hearts of the childrer of men, brooding over their souls, and with His tender offices, wooing and winning some, and with His keen sword of truth, piercing the souls of others, convicting them of sin, incites them both to turn unto God, willing to obey Him? God and the Savior, Who alone are qualified to answer, reply (Gen. 6:3, R. V.): "My Spirit shall not always strive"—showing that at times he does strive—"with man;" and John 16:8, R. V., "And he" (the Holy Spirit) "when he is come, will convict the world in respect of sin."

We see it is the Holy Spirit, Who leads the heart Godward.

How Futile Is Unaided Human Effort!

Since conversion is to be "born of the Spirit," and since it is the Holy Spirit Who stirs to repentance, is it not perfectly clear that no human being, no set of human beings, no, not all men on earth combined, could convert the soul of even a single little child? How futile then is unaided human effort!

The Problem.

The problem therefore resolves itself into this: How can this action of the Holy Spirit be brought to bear upon the heart of man or child?

The Holy Spirit, except when grieved away, is ever willing to act. And, of course, He can act directly, as Christ did on Saul of Tarsus. But usually it is through some man, woman or child, that He works upon the hearts of others.

The question therefore resolves itself into this, How can we be fitted for the Holy Spirit to act through us?

How the Savior Solved It.

This is exactly the problem that the Savior met when leaving earth: How to convert men after He had gone? and How to fit His disciples for the Holy Spirit to work through them? How did he solve it? As no one can hope to improve on His method, let us see what course He pursued. Just before parting, He told them, "Behold I send forth the promise of my Father upon you: but tarry ye in the city until ye be clothed with power from on high" (Luke 24:48),

"The Oxford Teachers' par excellence

JUST ISSUED I

OXFORD

Teachers' Bibles and S. S. Scholars' Bibles

With New 20th Century Helps arranged in One Alphabetical Order.

THE HELPS

The Christian Advocate, Nashville, says: "The helps are real helps. Unlike those in many of the cheap Bibles, they are not simply thrown together in hodge-podge fashion, but represent the freshest and ablest work of the foremost modern scholars."

Address Scam Sun,
Elon College, N. C.

Bible is the Bible of the World."

NOW READY I
SIX NEW EDITIONS

OXFORD

Black Faced Type BIBLES

Three on Oxford White Paper. Three on the famous Oxford India Paper.

Pearl 32mo. A wonderful clear type in a small-size book.

Minion 16mo. Ready October 1907. A model hand Bible.

Brevier 16mo. Large type in small compass. "A quart in a pint measure."

"The new Bible just published by the Oxford Press is, without doubt, the finest product of the kind ever given to the public."

ASK FOR THE OXFORD EDITION

REMEMBER: That we guarantee satisfaction and sell to you cheaper than the publisher and dealers do. Our business is by mail and express and prices quoted are the prices of goods delivered to you. We can furnish you the Oxford, or the Holman Teacher's Bible at prices ranging from $1.35 to $4.00. Send for our catalogue or write us what you want. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN, Elon College, N. C.

The Centennial of Religious Journalism

EDITED BY J. PRESSLEY BARRETT, D. D.
Editor Herald of Gospel Liberty

This is without doubt the most generally interesting publication sent out by the Christians. Its centennial, historical and denominational features make it not only unique in character, but interesting as well. From beginning to end it claims the interested attention of the reader.

We have not space here to give the table of contents, but suffice it to say, that beginning with the "Discussion of the conditions which made the organization of the Christian Church a necessity," the reader will follow with interest and profit, the "History of the Herald of Gospel Liberty," "The One Hundred Editorial Gems," "Historical Sketches of One-Hundred-Year-Old Churches," "A symposium—A Hundred Years of Progress," setting forth in well prepared papers the development of the various enterprises of the Christian Church, and with a heart full of optimistic hope he will peruse "The Future Outlook of the Christian Church."

And all this, and more, in a book of nearly 650 pages, handsomely bound, with gold titles, while the price is only $1.00 for cloth binding and $2.00 for Morocco, with your name printed in gold. Postage, 15 cents extra. Send your order at once to

J. N. HESS, Publishing Agent

Dayton, Ohio

R. V.); and "Ye shall receive power, when the Holy Spirit is come upon you" (Acts 1:8, R. V.). Power was what they needed and power is what you and I need. Shortly after, "they were all filled with the Holy Spirit" (Acts 2:4, R. V.).

With What Result?

Peter—the beforetime timid, faltering Peter—preached to a multitude and about 3,000 were converted at his first sermon (Acts 2:41). And at his second, enough more to make 5,000 men, without counting the women (Acts 3-4:4).

Christ solved this problem by leading His disciples to be filled with the Holy Spirit, so that the Spirit could work through them.

Can we improve on the Savior's method? If not, why not follow it?

This brings us to the question,

Is This Power for You and Me—Lay Christians of Today?

Oldest Prophecy. Joel 2:28, 29, R. V.: "And it shall come to pass afterwards that I will pour out my spirit upon all flesh; and also upon the servants and upon the handmaids in those days will I pour out my spirit."

Fulfillment. Acts 2:14-18, R. V., "But Peter" said, "This is that which hath been spoken through the prophet Joel: And it shall be in the last days, saith God, I will pour forth my Spirit upon all flesh: yea and on my servants and on my handmaidens in those days will I pour forth of my Spirit."

To whom is this promise made? Acts 2:38, 39, R. V., "For to you is the promise and to your children, and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call unto Him." (And what Christian has He not called?)

Facts—To Whom Fulfilled.

(1) To about 120 disciples, women (Acts 1:15) as well as men. Acts 2:4, R. V., "And they were all filled with the Holy Spirit."

(2) To ordinary lay Samaritans—Jewish half breeds, despised by full-blooded Jews as dogs—with whom the Jews would have "no dealings" (John 4:9, R. V.).

Acts 8:14, 17, R. V.: "Now when the apostles which were at Jerusalem heard that Samaria had received the word of God, they sent unto them Peter and John who laid their hands upon them, and they received the Holy Spirit."

(3) To a Roman captain, to all his house, his kinsmen, and near friends. Acts 10:24, 34, 44, R. V.: "And Cornelius,"—a Roman captain,—"having called together his kinsmen and near friends" and told Peter of the vision sent to him (Cornelius), "Peter said,

The University of North Carolina

1789|——|1909

Schools of Liberal Arts
Law

Engineering
Medicine

Graduate
Pharmacy

Large Equipment, Modern Laboratories, New Library with 55,000 Vols. Able Faculty of 98 teachers. Students numbered 786. Thorough instruction. High standard. Healthful location. Expenses low for high-grade institution. For a catalogue and fuller information address

THE PRESIDENT, Chapel Hill, N. C.

MEDICAL COLLEGE

of the STATE OF SOUTH CAROLINA

CHARLESTON, S. C.

Session Opens October 1st, 1909.

Medicine and Pharmacy.

Pathological and pharmaceutical laboratories recently enlarged and fully equipped. Splendid clinical facilities offered by the

ROPER HOSPITAL

one of the largest and best equipped Hospitals in the South, with 218 beds and free dispensary service. Nine appointments each year for graduates. For catalogue, address

ROBERT WILSON JR. M. D., DEAN,

Corner of Queen and Franklin Sts.

Charleston, S. C.

Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons," and then preached Christ to those assembled. "While Peter yet spake these words, the Holy Spirit fell on all them that heard the word."

Who Can Doubt It?

With God's promise to pour out His "Spirit on all flesh, upon the servants and handmaids;" with that promise kept to about 120 women and men at the opening of this new era; with that promise renewed through Peter to "all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call unto Him" (and there is no Christian He has not called); with both those promises proven to be for unnamed and unknown Samaritans and Romans,—who can doubt but this promise is for lay Christians of today? Especially when we remember Jesus' words in Luke 11:13, R. V., "If ye then, being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children, how much more shall your heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to them that ask Him;" and when we also remember that He "is no respecter of persons" (Acts 10:34, R. V.).

Do God's Promises Grow Weak With Age?

Should anyone say that these are men of long ago, I would inquire, Does God, or do His promises, grow weak with age? Which of His promises in regard to salvation is younger than this one, or has failed? If God's promise of salvation, though 1900 years old, holds good and strong today, why does not His promise to bestow His Spirit?

But to settle any such question, hear the testimony of a witness of today.

D. L. Moody's Testimony,

given at the Brooklyn Central Presbyterian Church just two months before he died:

"I know if I should be asked to be a witness in a court, my testimony would be taken; and I want you to take my testimony as to what it is to be filled with the Spirit.

"There are two epochs in my life which stand out clear. One is when I was between 16 and 17, and was born of the Spirit. There can never come a greater blessing to any man on this earth than to be born again—born from above—to have the God nature planted in him.

"God has been good to me. He has showered blessing after blessing upon me, but the greatest blessing—next to being born of the Spirit—came sixteen years afterwards, when I was filled with the Spirit; and He has never left me to this day.

"He is for all—women as well as men. When Pentecost was fully come, the whole church was qualified for work in God's cause."

Thousands of others still living stand ready to testify to the same thing.

How can one doubt but this gift is for today just as much as for 1900 years ago? And for all Christians of today as much as then? How can we question it?

This brings us to the question,

How Can We Be Filled with the Holy Spirit, and Receive Power for Service?

THE NORTH CAROLINA STATE NORMAL AND INDUSTRIAL COLLEGE.

Maintained by the State for the women of North Carolina. Four regular courses leading to degrees. Special courses for teachers. Fall session begins September 15, 1909. Those desiring to enter should apply as early as possible. For catalogue and other information address

J. I. FOUST, Pres., Greensboro, N. C.

ADVERTISING DEPARTMENT.

For advertising rates apply to Religious Press Advertising Syndicate (Jacobs and Company), home office, Clinton, S. C., who have charge of the advertising department of this paper.

Advertising representatives:

Jacobs & Co., J. F. Jacobs, J. D. Jacobs, home office, Clinton, S. C.

D. J. Carter, 163 Randolph St., Chicago, Ill.

J. M. Riddle, Jr., Box 46, Nashville, Tenn.

J. B. Gentry, Columbia, S. C.

E. L. Gould, 150 Nassau St., N. Y.

C. H. Tutt, Cleveland, Ohio.

S. S. Hammond, 633 Frisco Building, St. Louis, Mo.

J. B. Keough, 229 Candler Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

L. S. Franklin, Dallas, Texas.

W. C. Trueman, Philadelphia, Pa.

TULANE UNIVERSITY OF LOUISIANA, NEW ORLEANS.

Edwin B. Craighead, President.

Tulane University in all its departments is located in the city of New Orleans, the metropolis of the South. Nine departments, with twenty-three buildings. Modern dormitories, extensive laboratories, libraries, and museums.

Full courses are offered in Languages, Science, Engineering, Architecture, Art, Law, Medicine, Pharmacology, and Dentistry.

Separate department for women. Expenses low. Low dormitory rates. Next session of all departments, except N. O. Polyclinic, begins October 1st. Polyclinic opens November 1st. Send for catalogue. Address R. K. Bruff, Secretary.

—The Sunday School Times says:
Hon. Ben. B. Lindsey, the famous Ju-

Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Is paying out and investing in both Virginia and North Carolina more than it receives from these States.

New business in Virginia, 1908,
$2,147,800

Larger than any other company.

Gain in insurance in force in Virginia, 1908,
$1,374,975

60 per cent more than the next largest.

T. ARCHIBALD CARY, General Agent for Virginia and North Carolina, Richmond, Virginia.

During 1908

(As in previous years)

We want you in our business, for we have what you want in your homes—the very best, most substantial and handsome furniture at bottom prices. We are also the undertakers.

Burke Furniture and Coffin Company

BUKINGTON, N. C.

Southern Railway

Operating Over 7,000 Miles of Railway. Quick Route to all Points North, South, East and West.

For Speed, Comfort, Courteous Employees, travel via the Southern Railway. Rates, Schedules and other information furnished by any of the undersigned.

R. L. VERNON, Trav. Pass. Agt.,

J. H. WOOD, Dist. Pass. Agt.,

Charlotte, N. C.

Asheville, N. C.

S. H. HARDWICK, P. T. M.,

W. H. TAYLOE, G. P. A.,

Washington, D. C.

Elon College.

Co-educational. Established 1890.

Thorough College courses leading to M. A., A. B., and Ph. B. degrees. Strong and experienced Faculty with highest University training. Good Library, Reading Room, Laboratories, Literary Societies. Excellent Music, Art, Elocution and Business Departments. Diploma from Elon admits to graduate departments in the highest universities.

Beautiful and healthful location, 17 miles east of Greensboro on Southern Railway. Best moral and religious influence. No hazing. New students met by reception committees from young people's Christian organizations connected with the college. Good equipment. A large new dormitory, with modern conveniences, has recently been built to meet the requirements of growing patronage.

EXPENSES UNUSUALLY MODERATE. FALL TERM OPENS SEPT. 1ST.

For catalogue or further information, address

EMMETT L. MOFFITT, LL. D., President.

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

venile Court Judge of Colorado, "hands down" an opinion on the cigarette that ought to make people think:

"I have been in the Juvenile Court nearly ten years, and in that time I have had to deal with thousands and thousands of boys who have disgraced themselves and their parents, and who have brought sorrow and misery into their lives; and I do not know of any one habit that is more responsible for the troubles of these boys than the vile cigarette habit."

—William Jennings Bryan is reported as planning a lecture trip in foreign countries to cover three years. This would enable him to be back to this country in time for his quadrennial tour for the presidency.

—Baseball is in the air. Members of Congress played a rip-roaring game on a Washington diamond July 16, Republicans against Democrats. The score was 26 to 16 in favor of the latter. The dispatches say it was "great ball." Doubtless.

The Christian Sun.

In Essentials—Unity, in Non-Essentials—Liberty, in All Things—Charity.

ESTABLISHED 1844.

GREENSBORO N. C., WEDNESDAY, JULY 28, 1909.

VOLUME LXI. NUMBER 29.

Working Boys in College. Editor Johnson, of Charity and Children, deplors the passing of the good old days when boys entered college with a dollar or so in their pockets, and with their hands and hearts literally worked their way through school, finishing up with only a small debt against them. A rather wild and reckless extravagance has taken possession of the college boy and he is no longer willing to work for his living in school, Brother Johnson thinks.

If this day has gone, we, with Charity and Children, deplore also its passing. For some of the most useful men have been those who had to deny themselves when in school and work for a living while they acquired their learning.

Our observation, however, leads us to believe that the good old days spoken of have not passed. Methods have changed, but not means, nor ends, nor men. We doubt if there are as many boys as formerly cutting wood, scrubbing floors and cleaning up buildings and premises, but there are, we believe, more boys managing club houses, waiting on tables, working in print shops, pressing pants and acting as secretaries and copyists than ever before. To our thinking, the number of men who work their way through college increases rather than decreases with the passing years. There are more ways, than formerly, of working one's way through school. The boy who works his way now does not regard himself, nor is he regarded by others, as the menial and the slave he was in former times. Working one's way through school has been honored, exalted, glorified, and the man who does this successfully is as respectable and as well thought of as any man in school. Class lines and social distinctions have been broken down in a large measure, and the man who works at school counts. No man who has to work his way needs to be ashamed any more on that account. It is the boy who will not work, who wants something for nothing, who courts an easy time, and seeks to abstain from work, that needs to be ashamed, and who in the final does not count. Our candid conviction is that a far larger number of boys than ever before in all the world are working their way through school, and they are more esteemed, and more respectable than ever, for their earnest and honest endeavor.

A New Religion (?) Ex-President Eliot of Harvard predicts that we are to have a new religion. In an address before the summer school at Harvard July 22d, this man of learning and of letters attempts to tell what the new religion will be. "It is hardly necessary to say that in the new religion there will be no personification of primitive forces such as earthquakes, frost and light. There will be no deification of remarkable human beings, or worship of ancestors or rules." What Dr. Eliot means by that is that belief in miracles, such as the quaking of the earth at Sinai when the Lord gave the Law to the Israelites through Moses, is to pass away: and that the feeding of the Israelites on manna as they passed through the Wilderness is a fiction not to be held to; and that the Christ is to be abolished, as other than an ordinary man. "The destiny of mankind has been delayed by many centuries through the 'compulsory' promises issued by the churches, who many times have taught submission to circumstances when there should be resistance. The surgeon who dresses a wound and saves a man suffering is an apostle of the new religion."

In the new religion there will be little or no need for preachers, physicians will be better, and the patience of Job, the sufferings of the Christ and the forbearance and endurance of Paul are virtues that need not be any longer taught in the world. Of course, in the new religion the Bible is to be no other than any other book.

If these utterances had come from one less noted and renowned than Dr. Eliot they need not attract serious attention. Dr. Eliot's subtle logic and splendid use of learning and of language have fooled him into believing that he announces a new religion, when in very truth he is parading an old one in new dress. He adorns, with artistic touch and coloring, Unitarianism, and tries to make us all believe that iceberg is to melt the hearts of men and consume the passions and dregs of sin. As if an iceberg ever melted anything! What the world wants is a warming up, not a freezing out. And all Unitarianism is frost and snow and ice.

In all this world it takes great men to make great mistakes. Dr. Eliot has been studying along other lines, giving his life to other ends, and now in the last days of his dotage assays to be a theologian, preacher and prophet. The great Charles Darwin in his old age did not love poetry or give himself kindly to religious themes. He discovered too late that he had lost his taste and inclination in these directions, and mournfully, pathetically lamented the fact. Dr. Eliot has lost the inclination to religious and spiritual themes, but instead of lamenting, raises his voice against them. Pity, pity, pity indeed, not for the old religion which he would destroy, but for Dr. Eliot whom it seems not to have reached and saved.

Third and Fourth Generations.—More than sixty years ago a noted Catholic temperance advocate, Father Mathew, visited this country and induced many men to sign the temperance pledge. The other day on Boston Common there was a parade of thousands of school children in honor of Father Mathew's principles, and in that parade were eleven, healthy-looking, happy, alert, white-bearded men who had signed that pledge on the original visit of Father Mathew sixty years ago. The long years of wholesome living were in evidence upon the faces of these virile old men. Their temperate lives told its own story.

Some one wished to know recently why the Bible spoke of visiting the iniquities of the fathers upon the children to the third and fourth generations of them that hate God, but said nothing of visiting these iniquities to the seventh and eighth generations. The reply was that there were no seventh and eighth generations of them that hate God. Sin is suicidal, self-destructive, and ultimately works wreck and ruin and death to the generations of them that indulge in wickedness and hate God. On the other hand blessings and mercies are shown unto thousands of generations of them that fear and serve God, for there are thousands of generations spared and preserved by temperate lives and virtuous conduct.

FROM THE FIELD.

Union.

From September last until the fifth Sunday in May our congregation at Union worshipped at Mt. Vernon and Stoney Creek because we were building at Union and had torn the old house down to give place for the new one. Our Sunday school was discontinued, but resumed work the first of July with encouraging prospects. We have had fine congratulations since getting into our new house. All seem well pleased with the improvements that have been made. We are to dedicate the new church the fifth Sunday in August. There will be two services and refreshments. The dedication in the forenoon and in the afternoon we want to have a home coming of the entire membership of the church both resident and non-resident. To this service all members that have moved from the community are cordially invited. Come and see what we have done and let us have a home coming of all the members of the church and a renewing of friendships and acquaintances.

Bethlehem.

Our Children's Day the 3rd Sunday in June at Bethlehem was largely attended and a very interesting program was successfully carried out. The day was pleasant and the children acquitted themselves with credit. A collection in cash and pledges amounting to twenty-seven dollars was taken. I think the interest in the work is good at these two points, and I am hoping for a precious ingathering of souls at our protracted meetings in Sept. Bethlehem 3rd Sunday in Sept., Union 4th Sunday in Sept.

I wish to acknowledge the receipt of a nice new summer hat, given by Sister Sallie Garrison, and also a bucket of honey by Mrs. E. W. Wilkins, and other substantial things for the table by Peter Geringer, Mrs. W. H. Turrentine, and others. Only those who have passed through similar experiences as have come through my home for the last sixteen months know how such kindness is appreciated. The sickness of my wife during those long weary months has prevented my doing much at home and among the people whom I am trying to serve. Hoping that I may be able to give better service, and merit the kindness of these people, I shall go forward as the Master may point out the way. Thanks, dear friends. J. W. Holt.

Pleasant Hill.

It was a real pleasure to be with Rev. J. D. Wicker at Pleasant Hill church last week in a glorious revival. The Lord blessed the brethren and sisters, wonderfully reviving the whole church and converting a number of sinners. We found a band of faithful brethren and sisters who have been anxious about the good cause at this place. Five were added to the number from prominent families. We believe others will join later. The Conference made no mistake by taking interest in this work. Brother Wicker has done a good work in the community around this church. The church is in one of the best sections in North Carolina, beautiful farms and a noble people surround old Pleasant Hill. They have a fine Sunday school every Sunday numbering between 80 and 90. Let us pray with and extend our sympathy to the pastor and faithful ones for their success. The Lord continue His blessings to this noble people.

A. P. Barbee.

LESSONS FROM THE LIVES OF GREAT MEN.

III. Sir Walter Scott, Continued.

By W. P. Lawrence, M. A.

Debt is a hard master in the morning of life, but harder still in the evening. The failure of the Ballantyne printing house came in Scott's fifty-fifth year. The other members of the firm being insolvent, or nearly so, the burden of the debt fell on him. The liabilities were about £130,000 above the assets. Scott could have taken shelter under the law, and, by being adjudged bankrupt, could have avoided a large part of the payment. But he showed to be real metal in the hour of great trial,—in the hour of a great trial coming late in life. The agony he suffered when the great battle of honor against dishonor was going on in his soul will never be known. But the battle was won on the side of honor and honesty in such a manner as to stir one's deepest emotions, and in a way that makes Scott's character a more valuable asset in Scottish history than all the famous poems and novels he ever wrote. While in the throes of the struggle, he said, "I am ashamed to owe debts that I cannot pay. * * * The disgrace is in being an actual bankrupt, not in being a legal one."

Scott's diary is interesting and often pathetic reading, during this catastrophe period of his life. December 18, 1825, is this entry: "They [his works] will not be received with the same enthusiasm; at least I much doubt the general knowledge that an author must write for his bread * * * degrades him and his productions in the public eye. He falls into the second rate rank of estimation:

"While the harness sore galls, and the spurs his side goad,
The high-metaled racer's a hack on the road."

It is a bitter thought; but if tears start at it, let them flow. My heart clings to [Abbotsford] the place I have created—there is scarce a tree on it that does not owe its being to me. What a life mine has been!—half educated, almost wholly neglected, or left to myself; and undervalued by most of my companions for a time; getting forward and held a bold and clever fellow, contrary to the opinion of all who thought me a mere dreamer; broken hearted for two years; my heart handsomely pieced again—but the crack will remain until my dying day. Rich and poor four or five times; once on the verge of ruin, yet opened up a new source of wealth almost overflowing. Now to be broken in my pitch of pride. * * * But what is to be the end of it? God knows and so ends the catechism,—nobody in the end can lose a penny by me—that is one comfort. Men will think pride has had a fall. Let them indulge their own pride in thinking that my fall will make them higher, or seem so at least. I have the satisfaction to recollect that my prosperity has been of advantage to many and to hope that some at least, will forgive my transient wealth on account of the innocence of my intentions, and my real wish to do good to the poor. Sad hearts, too, at Darnick, and in the cottages at Abbotsford [This was written at Edinburg]. I have half resolved never to see the place again. How could I tread my hall with such a diminished crest?—how live a poor indebted man where I was once the wealthy, the honored? I was to have gone there on Saturday in joy and prosperity to receive my friends. My dogs will wait for me in vain. It is foolish—but the thoughts of parting from these dumb creatures have moved me. * * * Poor things! I must get them kind masters! There may be yet those who, loving me, may love my dog because it has been mine."

A week later, Christmas Day, is this entry, "On this day of general devotion, I have a particular call for gratitude." What this call for gratitude was is not stated. But a great yet humble heart is fullest of gratitude in the hour of severest trial and deepest sorrow.

January 24, 1824, just a week after the great blow fell this entry in his diary, of his attitude towards his creditors, "If they permit me, I will be their vassal for life, and dig in the mine of my imagination to find diamonds, (or what may sell for such) to make good my engagements, not to enrich myself. And this for no reluctance to be called the insolvent, which I probably am, but because I will not put out of the power of my creditors the resources, mental or literary which yet remain to me."

Such passages from a diary, written with the feeling that these very revelations of the author's inner life, in the hour of his fall, might be found after his death in the possession of his son, in some obscure lodging,—such passages make one feel that Scott was never so great as in the day of adversity.

Through the winter months and spring of 1826, he labored on "Woodstock," the tragedy in it being deepened by the great tragedy being enacted at the same time in his own life. The tragic spirit is further deepened in this novel because it was the first piece of writing Scott did to raze the mountain of debt he now undertook to dig away, and, too, perhaps, the rapid decline of Lady Scott's health, and her death on the 15th of May, gave a sadder touch to the characters, Sir Henry Lee and his noble daughter, Alice. Their reverses were as trying as what had come to Scott and his daughter, Anna. May 23, the day after Lady Scott's funeral, this entry in Scott's diary gives some idea of the grief in that so recently happy and opulent, but now sorrowful and poverty-stricken home at Abbotsford: "About an hour before the mournful ceremony of yesterday, Walter arrived, having traveled express from Ireland on hearing the news. He was much affected, poor fellow * * *. The whole scene floats a sort of dream before me—the beautiful day, the gray ruins [of Dryburgh Abbey], covered and hidden among the clouds of foliage and flourish, where the grave, even in the lap of beauty, lay lurking, an gaping for its prey. Then the grave looks, the hasty, important bustle of men with spades and mattocks—the train of carriages—the coffin, containing the creature that was the dearest of earth to me, and whom I was to consign to the very spot which in pleasure-parties we so frequently visited. It seems still as if this could not be really so. But it is so—and duty to God and to my children must teach me patience."

Scott goes out from this scene of sorrow to dig away like a convict at the mountain of debt. For six long years, he drives the machinery of a tiring brain, with faith in God and duty to man as his strongest supports. Before the end of the year 1827, he had finished "Woodstock" and "The Life of Napoleon." The former brought £8,228—all ready money—a matchless sale for less than three months' work. The latter, in nine volumes, brought £18,000 for two editions. Upon "The Life of Napoleon," Scott had spent nearly two years of arduous toil. By the end of 1828, his pen had earned £40,000 for his creditors. His strength and health failed signally in 1831, but his will to complete the Herculean task to which he had set himself five years before, held up to the last. It was thought that a trip to Italy would be beneficial. So it was decided that late in September, the start should be made. On Wednesday, the 21st, Wordsworth and his daughters arrived at Abbotsford to take farewell of Sir Walter. "That evening," says Lockhart, "as the two great poets talked, Scott had a good deal to say about Fielding and Smollet, observing that both had been driven from home by declining health, and never returned." Wordsworth regretted that neither of these two masters of romance had been surrounded in his last hours by any considerable marks of favor. The Wordsworths left Abbotsford at noon the next day. Wordsworth says that in a serious conversation with Scott that morning, the latter spoke with gratitude of the happy life which, upon the whole, he had led. He had written in Miss Wordsworth's album, before he came into the breakfast room that morning, a few stanzas addressed to her; and while putting the book into her hand, in his own study, he said to her in her father's hearing: "I should not have done anything of this kind but for your father's sake; they are probably the last verses I shall ever write." "They show," said Wordsworth, later, in speaking of this incident, "how much Scott's mind was impaired," for besides defects in the verses themselves the poet was unable to spell his own name. His giant intellect was literally worn out.

Early Friday morning, September 23, 1831, in company with his daughter, Anne and his son-in-law, Lockhart, Scott set off for Italy by way of London, Portsmouth, and boat to Malta, where they arrived on the 22nd of November, reaching Naples the 17th of December. The winter here made little if any improvement in Sir Walter's condition. The death of Goethe 22nd of the following March greatly increased Scott's fear of dying away from home. The party, therefore, made their way by Rome, Venice, through Germany, and down the Rhine by steamboat, arriving in London 13th of June. Scott's condition had by this time become precarious. He had to remain at St. James' Hotel three weeks and, with great care, was got back to Abbotsford by means of a voyage to Edinburg and thence by easy overland conveyance. He lay unconscious most of the way to Abbotsford. For two months after reaching his old home, his life was but a flickering, paling flame. On a few occasions he was able to be wheeled in his easy chair out of doors; once he asked for his old friend, the pen, but finding that he could not write, tears flowed down his cheeks, and he said, "Friends, don't let me expose myself,—get me to bed,—that is the only place." Never again did he leave his room. Occasionally he would lapse into delirium. On waking from one of these, September 17th, he called for Mr. Lockhart, who was constantly with him these last weeks. "Lockhart," said he, "I may have but a minute to speak to you. My dear, be a good man,—be virtuous—be religious—be a good man. Nothing else will give you any comfort when you come to lie here." Back into an unconscious stupor which lasted for wearisome days and nights, till half past one o'clock in the afternoon of September 21, 1832, just a year from the time when Wordsworth had come to make his last visit, the spirit of Sir Walter Scott, poet, novelist, honest, heroic Christian man, took its flight back into the vast whence it came.

WEDDING GIFTS.

The following were a part of the wedding gifts recently bestowed upon a bride in Philadelphia: One country house with ninety-two acres of ground; rope of diamonds; diamond and pearl necklace; diamond pendant; diamond and pearl earrings; three solid silver services; one tiara of diamonds; service of gold and silver; three rings; four brooches; several pieces of carved furniture; berths of Irish and point lace; three fans of jewels and lace; two fans of ostrich feathers; over one hundred pieces of cut glass; two jeweled necklaces; two superb marbles; ornaments of priceless china studded with jewels; beaten brass library sets with semi-precious jewels; several whole sets of egg shell china; diamond bracelet; jeweled bracelet. None of them are essential to real happiness. Often they feed a pride which is already in excess. Frequently the loss of them increases misery. Those who read such lists often wish they were recipients of such treasures, thus depreciating their present situation. Happy are those who can "count their blessings, one by one," thank God and do good. Archbishop Ryan and two of his priests performed the ceremony. Perhaps he gave the bride a caution. One great Catholic whispered to a bride, "You cannot take your wealth to heaven unless you divide it with God's poor."

Moderation in ornamentation is one of the signs of refinement, and where wealth is possessed and benevolently used it is also an indication of piety; but this age is gaudy.—N. Y. Christian Advocate.

NOTES AND PERSONALS.

—Rev. L. I. Cox was with Pastor L. E. Smith at O'Kelley's Chapel in a successful revival last week, there being half dozen conversions, and several reclamations, the church being much revived."

—The annual excursion of the Suffolk Christian Sunday School July 21 was a great success, says a Norfolk exchange, carrying as it did over a thousand passengers, and having some receipts left over after carrying all the school free and paying all expenses.

—Writing from Semora, N. C., July 23, Pastor T. W. Strowd reports: "We are having a good meeting at Lebanon. There have been nineteen conversions. I begin my meeting at Concord, Caswell Co., fourth Sunday in July, at Bethel first Sunday in August, and at Center Grove second Sunday in August."

—We extend sympathy to Brother Cephas P. Holland and wife of Holland, Va., who mourn their son, Floyd Jasper, who died, after two weeks' illness from typhoid fever and meningitis July 22. The funeral was conducted by Rev. N. G. Newman at the Holland Christian Church, Saturday p. m., July 24.

—We congratulate our friend and brother, Prof. S. M. Smith who goes to Norfolk, Va., to become Educational Director of the Naval Y. M. C. A. of that city. Prof. Smith, while a great loss to our Raleigh Sunday school and church will be a strong factor for good in Y. M. C. A. and church work in Norfolk.

—Mr. S. M. Atkinson, travelling for The Sun in Eastern Virginia, will be at Damascus, Sunbury, N. C., Friday of this week and with Rev. I. W. Johnson at Liberty Spring next Sunday, August 1. If Sun subscribers will make it convenient to see him and renew the favor will be much appreciated. Mr. Atkinson will represent The Sun at the Valley of Virginia Conference soon to convene also.

—On August 30th, at 10:30 A. M., at the session of the Miami Conference at Eaton, Ohio, Rev. J. J. Summerbell, D. D., chairman of the committee on condolence, will repeat the address he delivered at the funeral of Dr. T. M. McWhinney on July 4th at Franklin, Ohio, after the sermon of Dr. J. B. Weston. Ex-Governor Harris has also promised to speak, if he is at home; and probably Dr. S. S. Newhouse will speak. Other brethren to be remembered at that session are Rev. Wm. Beller, Rev. E. M. Rapp, Rev. C. C. Phillips, and Hon. A. C. Cable. The week of August 30 Dr. Summerbell kindly consents to furnish his manuscript of the address for the Sun and our readers will then have the opportunity of reading the life and labors of the beloved and lamented Dr. McWhinney.

NEWS ITEMS.

—In a local option election July 22, Staunton, Va., went "dry" by twenty majority.

—Orville and Wilbur Wright have been decorated with the Legion of Honor of France for their achievements in aviation.

—There are yet 25,000 freight cars idle in this country, but the number grows gradually less with returning business activity.

—A hurricane swept the Texas Gulf coast and portions of Louisiana July 22, killing a score or more persons and doing enormous damage to property.

—President Taft has accepted an invitation to visit Norfolk, Va., Nov. 19, to attend the convention there of the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association.

—The women of Colorado, who are allowed to vote, are determined to send a woman to Congress in 1911, Mrs. Sarah Platt Decker being the avowed candidate practically agreed upon.

—An airship company, capital stock $25,000, has been chartered in Ohio, authorized to build airships, aviators, etc., to transport freight and passengers "through space."

—M. Bleriot, a Frenchman, crossed the English Channel in an airship Sunday a. m., July 25, winning the $5,000 prize offered by the London Mail to the first aeroplanist flying across the channel.

—It is thought that Congress will finish its tariff revision work and adjourn by the last of the present week. President Taft, it is reported, worked all last Sunday trying to harmonize opposing factions and get all in order for early passage of the tariff bill.

—The State of Washington has enacted a law that young men and young women who wish to marry must bring to the officiating clergyman, or magistrate, a physician's certificate showing that they are physically and mentally fit for the state of wedlock.

—The Georgia Legislature has passed a bill increasing the number of colonels on the Governor's staff from 29 to 50, but the amendment to make the number one thousand, and that the whole army of "keraels" thus created be compelled to parade once a year in every county seat in the State was voted down.

—Dr. Elliot, ex-President of Harvard University announces that we are to have a "new religion." Maybe so. We are hearing of new religious almost every day; but the Christianity of the Christ abides still, and will abide forever. "Though heaven and earth shall pass away my word shall not pass away." New religions are so new and so numerous that the great body of men and women pay little attention to them, for sane and safe folks know that the Cross marches on to sure and safe victory.

—In our adjoining county of Guilford, the dead body of Miss Lydia C. Newman, a maiden lady, was found, with all marks of murder for purposes of robbery, near her residence last Saturday. The woman was highly respectable, had money, and relatives, but insisted on living alone, and keeping large sums of money in the house. Strange indeed that in this day of bank safety and convenience numbers of people—and you would be surprised at the large number—keep their money locked in the house or hidden about the premises.

—The National Association for the cure of Tuberculosis has this vigorous protest and assertion:—

"With the present rapid growth of the anti-tuberculosis movement the number of so-called "cures" for consumption is being increased almost daily. Hundreds of quack "doctors," "professors," and "institutes" are advertising that they can cure consumption for small amounts, with the result that thousands of dupes are yearly cheated out of their lives as well as their money. Besides these, "cures" and medicines of all sorts, numbering now several hundred, are sold for the deception of the public.

The National Association brands all these institutes, doctors, professors, and cures as frauds and deceptions. The only cure for consumption is fresh air, rest, and wholesome food.

ELON COLLEGE NOTES.

The curator of the Library has been notified by the publishers that Mr. Erwin A. Holt, of Burlington, N. C., has instructed them to send the Elon College Library six volumes of Orison Sweet Marden's works, and to the Reading Room, The World's Work for the coming year. These voluntary donations on the part of Mr. Holt are greatly appreciated, both for their intrinsic value, and because of the generous spirit and kind thoughtfulness that prompted the donation.

Mrs. Jesse Franks, of Catawba Springs, visited Mrs. Winborne a day or so last week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Walker, of Union Ridge, spent last Sunday with their daughter, Mrs. W. A. Harper. They were delighted to find her improvement so marked.

Dr. J. O. Atkinson preached an interesting sermon in the College Chapel last Sunday morning. The congregation was good for the vacation season.

The ladies and children of our village are speaking of spending next Thursday on the campus, on a sort of picnic, and to reassure themselves of the fact that our little village is not entirely deserted these vacation days. I presume that what few men are left will be allowed on the campus about dinner time. In fact, it seems to me that the men who are here ought to be "at a good premium."

Master John T. Moffitt, Jr., of Ashboro., has been spending several days here with his grand-parents, Dr. and Mrs. Herndon.

The prospects for the opening continue encouraging, both from the field reports and from our office correspondence. The rooms in East and West Dormitories are fast being taken, and quite a number are asking for arrangements to be made at the Young Men's Club.

We extend our congratulations to Prof. S. M. Smith, Class 1895, on his good fortune in securing the position as Educational Director in the Naval Y. M. C. A. at Norfolk, Va., This is an important place, and the Association has made a happy selection, Prof. Smith being well adapted to the work by reason of both training and experience.

July 26, 1909. E. L. M.

NORFOLK LETTER.

La Grange, Ga.

After two very busy days, Wednesday and Thursday, at Old Point attending the State Dental Association, and by the way the largest meeting in the history of the association as stated by one who has not missed a session of it since its organization 40 years ago—I made a "quick jump" from there to Portsmouth Thursday and "caught" the S. A. L. train for the South. So this Friday evening finds me writing from the enterprising little city of La Grange. I have reached here after night, hence can not fully note the progress that has been made, but can see enough to observe that in keeping with other Georgia cities it has been having a nice growth.

I find crop conditions to be very good, considering the fact of so much rain, all along the line except in the northern portion of South Carolina. There they seem to have had so much rain that they have not been able to work them and they have been choked by grass and in many places practically ruined, but prospects generally for both corn and cotton are fine.

Atlanta I found to be rather warm today—no, not because of the weather, for that is unusually pleasant, but warm over the agitation of the prohibition question again by the legislature. If you will listen to the friends of whiskey they will have you believe that Atlanta is ruined if she does not get whiskey back again. But I don't think I ever saw hustling, bustling Atlanta with more hustle and bustle than she seemed to be showing today. And the Journal for this afternoon had a double column editorial calling attention to the very nice increase in residences being built this year over last, there having been over a half million dollars more spent the first six months of this year than the corresponding six months of last year. Some things are so plain that even a blind man might see if he would.

I expect to reach New Hope Community tomorrow to spend a few days with my father, sisters and other relatives and friends where I spent my "boyhood's happy days down on the farm." I will write more at length about that next week. J. W. Manning.

Friday, July 23.

Hebron.

On my way to Hebron Church on the Southern road I passed a night in Suffolk, Va. Next morning Rev. I. W. Johnson took me for a pleasant drive. This kindness I very much appreciated and largely enjoyed, and I desire to extend to Bro. Johnson my sincere thanks for his special attention. Glad to know that he and his wife have recovered from their sickness, and that they are succeeding so well in their church work. It is a great privilege to be able to work, and when one stops for a time he appreciates more than ever the opportunity of resuming his work.

The pastor of Hebron, Rev. C. C. Peel, some months ago invited me to be with him in a meeting to commence the third Sunday in July. I accepted the invitation, and am now with him. His people speak of him in the most pleasant way and are delighted with his excellent service. They called him to preach for them again with a voluntary increase of salary. That is encouraging and is just what many other churches ought to do for their pastors. It is time now to pay the preachers better salaries, as they need it, most of them, and the times demand it. Just a little thought will enable churches to see this need, and make the long-needed correction at once. It will be a better day for the churches to have more preaching and a more liberal support of the ministry. This will secure better service and more abundant success.

At Suffolk, Franklin, Courtland, and all along up the way I met and passed many friends whom I was glad to see. The scenes and the places I passed recalled pleasant associations of former years, and delighted me to visit them again. Formed many new and pleasant acquaintances on the way and was delighted with the journey on the road. Often you meet with people in this way who make the trip more pleasant and interesting. Then there are some you meet for the first and last time, and whom you would never see but for traveling. There are some who are narrow in their opinions, but they would have been made broader by coming in contact with conditions more helpful.

Sunday there was an interesting service, and the prospect for a good work was seen. Feel grateful to Bro. Peel for careful attention, and to those friends who entertained me so well. I hope the pastor of Hebron can make a good report of a successful meeting.

J. T. Kitchen.

Hebron, Va.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

Chandler.

Very sadly on the 21st of March the angel of death came to the home of Mr. John Chandler and took away his loving companion, who was one of Long's Chapel's most faithful members. Be it Resolved, 1. That while we bow in humble submission to the will of Him who makes no mistake, we cannot cease mourning because of our loss in the death of Sister Chandler;

2. That her presence is greatly missed in her home church and community. She was a good woman, devoted to her family and community, always ready to minister with her own hands to the sick;

3. That we extend to the heart-broken husband, little children and other near relatives and friends our tenderest sympathy and commend to them the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ;

4. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, that they be placed on our church record and sent to The Christian Sun for publication.

Mrs. J. A. Dickey,

Mrs. J. Walter Johnston,

Miss Hattie Rogers.

Johnston.

Whereas, it hath pleased our Heavenly Father in his all-wise providence to remove from our midst Mrs. L. M. Johnston, who departed this life June 14, 1909; and whereas she was a much loved member of Long's Chapel and community, be it

Resolved, 1. That we humbly submit to the will of Him who doeth all things

(Continued on page 13)

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEPARTMENT.

Exponent of the Young People's Convention, Christian Church, South.

Watchword: A Christian Endeavor Society in Every Church; Teacher-Training and Organized Classes in Every Sunday School.

Devoted to the interest and advancement of Sunday Schools, Teacher-Training, Organized Classes, Cradle Roll, Home Department, Christian Endeavor, Missionary Societies, Temperance Societies, Aid Societies, Civic Righteousness.

W. A. HARPER, Editor and Field Secretary, Elon College, N. C.

[All notes and contributions for this Department should be sent to W. A. Harper, Elon College, N. C., who extends the Church at large a cordial invitation to furnish him with any note of interest to our Young People, particularly information in regard to any forward steps, new movement, or new organization looking to progressive and effective service. All items under this Department not signed are by its Editor and Field Secretary.]

TEACHER-TRAINING—WHY?

There are three reasons why teacher-training is no fad or fashion of fleeting duration.

1st. The teachers themselves and prospective teachers want it. There is no nobler or more ambitious set of workers than our Sunday school teachers. They are constantly on the outlook for suggestions and plans by which they may improve themselves and add efficacy to their teaching. Never a new idea is brought to their attention but that the responsive smile shows it is appreciated and approved. They will buy books, attend conventions and institutes, join teacher-training classes, do everything within their power to make themselves efficient. Teacher-training has no firmer, no more loyal or devoted advocates than our present and prospective teachers.

*2nd. The pupils demand it. This does not mean that they will enter a public protest in case they do not get it, but that they will leave the Sunday school. This must be prevented. We must cease to lose to the church the 50 per cent. we now lose of all who become Sunday school pupils. The surest way to effect this, the only way in fact, is to provide good teachers. The boys and girls who are used to the most skilled teaching in their secular schools will not excuse its lack in the Sunday school. They will have to have it or they will be lost to the Sunday school and to the church. A skilled teaching force can most easily be provided by the teacher-training class.

3d. The church wishes it. When Rev. John H. Vincent organized the first teacher-training class in 1852, he was in advance of his time. Bishops (for he was a Methodist) and doctors of divinity and church authorities looked with disfavor upon his strange proposal. But today all is changed and the bishops and doctors of divinity and the church authorities that oppose teacher-training are, says Dr. Hamill, in the cemetery. Our own church is fully abreast of the times and taking a strong lead in this great movement. Our leaders in the church realize fully what teacher-training means to us as a people—they also realize what it must mean to neglect it. Teacher-training is the life and the hope of the church—the church realizes this and is putting forth every possible effort to introduce the idea into every congregation.

Can you afford to neglect so grand, so glorious, so urgent a work—a work, grand because of the magnitude of it; glorious, because of the ends it aims to attain; urgent, because the teacher, the pupil, and the church, an all-powerful trinity, have decreed that it is necessary? Again, I ask, can you afford to neglect such a work? Pray; then lead a hand.

Three of our Sunday school conventions are in session this week—the Eastern Virginia, the Eastern North Carolina, and the North Carolina and Virginia. Who can estimate the impetus these three gatherings will give our work? Let every delegate, superintendent, teacher, and pastor present at these gatherings do all in his power to make actual in his own part of the vineyard the suggestions that may be offered.

FROM OLDEST AND YOUNGEST.

Below I print two letters sent me with their report blanks from the oldest and youngest active pastors in our bounds. These two letters show the intense interest of all our live pastors in this Young People's Movement—it further shows that this movement of the young people is not a matter of years, but of spirit. Uncle Wellons and Brother Lankford are both young in the sense of this movement.

“Dear Brother: You are engaged in an excellent, good work to try to utilize our young people and start them in early life to work for the church and it will become a second nature with them and will make the best members of the church we have. God bless the young people.
J. W. Wellons.

Elon College, N. C.

“Dear Brother: The first session of the Young People's Convention recently held at Elon College was by no means a failure—far from it. This is only the beginning of what ought to result in training a large number of young people for efficient service in the church. Every movement for the good of man must have a starting point and all reformations are made possible only through toil, perseverance and sacrifice. To succeed in any worthy enterprise or undertaking the cause must be agitated until the public conscience is aroused, awakened and caused to act. So far the Young People's Convention has not done a great deal. Its leaders have taken up the work, however, and are striving to arouse our people to more earnest endeavors in behalf of the unused talent in the church. This much has been done: Many have already been led to think over the situation that confronts us. This fact alone would pay for all that has been done along the lines of the convention's work. But this is not all that has been accomplished. Several Endeavor Societies and teacher-training classes have sprung up since the convention. Others will doubtless follow and that in the not distant future.

Brother Editor, we ought to feel proud of the beginning of this movement. True, it is not large in numbers, but its purpose large, its aims noble and motives lofty. Some may claim that the convention motto, “A Christian Endeavor Society in every church; teacher-training and organized classes in every Sunday school,” is only a Utopian dream. Some said that Elon College was an absolute impossibility, others that the the Christian Orphanage would never be. Their argument is refuted by the fact that the two living and growing institutions speak for themselves. We don't know what can be done until we try. It is high time every one interested in the growth of the church should arise and with zeal, courage and determination strive to enlist our young people in organized Christian work. The beginning is good, the opportunity large, the prospects bright. The end will be what we make it.
G. O. Lankford.

“Elon College, N. C.”

Remember to work and pray for our three months' campaign for teacher-training. Commendable progress seems to be being made. Can you afford to lag behind?

RECORD OF WORK DONE.

The following new organizations have been reported during the past week:

Teacher-Training.

Bethlehem Tenth Legion, Va. Teacher, Rev. W. T. Walters; secretary, Miss Mary Pickering; pupils, 7.

Concord, Hupp, Va. Teacher, Rev. W. T. Walters; secretary, Miss Nina Huffman; pupils, 9.

Christian Endeavor.

Bethlehem, Tenth Legion, Va. President, Hugh Harrison; secretary, Miss Mary Pickering; active members, 41; associate members, 17.

Timber Ridge, Va. President, L. H. Hooks; secretary, Roy Larriek; active members, 28; associate members, 4.

The report blanks sent the editor by Dr. Staley of his Suffolk Church and Bro. Bolton of his Greensboro Church show a high degree of organic efficiency in these two most progressive churches. We only regret that our space does not allow us to print them in full.

What are you doing for Teacher-Training? It is a great work—one you cannot afford to neglect.

The Eastern North Carolina and the Virginia Valley Central Sunday-school Conventions last week merged themselves into Young People's Conventions of their respective conferences, as representing not only Sunday-schools, but also Christian Endeavor, Missionary Societies, and other organized effort of the young people.

Young People's Convention Honor Roll.

In this roll, which will be kept standing for two weeks yet, are printed the names and addresses in the order of time of those pastors who have filled out the "Pastor's Information Blank" mailed them with stamped envelope on June 26. This roll is given not to encourage invidious comparison nor to suggest it, but simply to let the Church at large know how interested our pastors are in this Young People's Movement.

- Rev. J. W. Wellons, Elon College, N. C.
- Rev. W. C. Wicker, Elon College, N. C.
- Rev. A. P. Barbee, Durham, N. C.
- Rev. J. W. Barrett, Norfolk, Va.
- Rev. C. E. Newman, Henderson, N. C.
- Rev. N. G. Newman, Holland, Va.
- Rev. W. G. Clements, Morrisville, N. C.
- Rev. J. D. Wicker, Sanford, N. C.
- Rev. Herbert Scholz, Macon, N. C.
- Rev. J. W. Harrell, Portsmouth, Va.
- Rev. G. D. Hunt, Wadley, Ala.

- Rev. J. O. Cox, South Norfolk, Va.
- Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Elon College, N. C.
- Rev. P. T. Klapp, Pittsboro, N. C.
- Rev. H. E. Rountree, Waverley, Va.
- Rev. R. L. Williamson, Ramseur, N. C.
- Dr. P. H. Fleming, Burlington, N. C.
- Rev. M. W. Butler, Newport News, Va.
- Rev. S. B. Klapp, Greensboro, N. C.
- Rev. J. L. Foster, Elon College, N. C.
- Rev. C. C. Peel, Elon College, N. C.
- Rev. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va.
- Rev. G. O. Lankford, Columbus, Ga.
- Rev. B. F. Young, Lanett, Ala.
- Rev. W. T. Walters, Broadway, Va.
- Rev. J. W. Patton, Elon College, N. C.
- Dr. W. W. Staley, Suffolk, Va.
- Rev. W. L. Wells, Elon College, N. C.
- Rev. W. H. Thompson, Norfolk, Va.
- Rev. C. M. Dollar, Malone, Ala.
- Rev. J. W. Bolton, Greensboro, N. C.
- Rev. J. W. Holt, Burlington, N. C.
- Rev. L. L. Cox, Elon College, N. C.

The N. C. and Va. Young People's Convention raised about $8.00 for the Young People's Department; the Valley Virginia Central Young People's Convention appropriated $5 for the same purpose.

HOW TO CONDUCT THE CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR SOCIETY FOR AUG.

1st—A FEW SUGGESTIONS.

Monthly Consecration Meeting.

Life Lessons from the Book of Acts: Acts 27:18-44.

For the Leader.—The leader should read the Scripture Lesson and then discourse briefly on the Acts as a book. (See editorial in last week's Christian Sun). He should show its relation to the four gospels, which record the work of Christ in the flesh, and point out that the Acts is a record for 30 years after Christ's ascension of what he continued to do through his followers. Acts is the story of the spread of the early Church from Jerusalem as a centre to the various parts of the then known world. It relates chiefly the labors of Peter and Paul, though others are given some slight space. Having made such general and preliminary remarks, he should call on some older person appointed in advance to go through the Acts giving its contents and adding illuminating explanations, all the endeavorers with open Bibles following him, or the leader should do this himself. After this the leader should make appropriate remarks on the Scripture lesson and apply its teachings briefly, but effectively.

For More Experienced Endeavorers.—Write on slips to be handed out either at the morning service or just as the members begin to assemble for the meeting the following question spurs: What lesson do you learn from Pentecost, Acts 2:1-13? What instruction for our times from the fate of Ananias, Acts 5:1-6? What is the teaching of the story of Cornelius, Acts 10:1-26? How may I imitate Dorcas, Acts 9:36-42? What do we learn from the story of Stephen, Acts 7:54-60? What good example do Endeavorers get from the life of Lydia, Acts 16:13-15? What warning in the story of Felix, Acts 24:24-27? What do you admire most in Paul (to be handed to several members for answers)?

For Less Experienced Members.—Hand out the following references to be read in the meeting: The Need of the Spirit, Acts 1:1-8. Turning to God, Acts 2:37-42. God is not mocked, Acts 5:1-11. Spread of the Gospel, Acts 8:1-8, 34-40. A Chosen Vessel, Acts 9:10-19. A Great Speech, Acts 17:22-31. A Christian Meets a King, Acts 26:1-32.

State after the leader's remarks that this is Consecration Meeting and that all are expected to respond to the roll-call either by work previously assigned or in any way suited to their desires.

Suggested Program.

1. Prayer. Song.
2. Scripture Reading.
3. Leader's Introductory Remarks.
4. Contents of Acts, Endeavorers following with open Bibles.
5. Leader's Address on the Scripture Lesson.
6. Song. Chain of prayer.
7. Consecration service. Roll call by Secretary, each member responding by assigned work or as he sees fit, interspersed with stanzas of appropriate hymns and prayers.
8. Pastor's Five Minutes.
9. Song. Offering. Mizpah.

HOW TO TEACH THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FOR AUGUST

8TH—A FEW SUGGESTIONS.

Paul's Instructions to the Thessalonians.

I Thess. 5:12-24.

Golden Text.—See that none render evil for evil unto any man; but ever follow that which is good. I Thess. 5:15.

Review.—Review the previous lesson carefully, mainly to impress its spiritual teachings. Then call for the five-minute account of the Second Missionary Journey assigned last time. If it is incomplete at any point, call for omissions, as a last recourse giving them yourself. Call for the note-books; examine them; make suggestions; have one read.

Approach to the Lesson.—State that today we turn aside to consider the instruction of the great missionary to one of his churches. Ask all who have during the week read the epistles to the Thessalonians as requested, to hold up
(Continued on page twelve).

THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

Founded 1844 by Elder Daniel W. Kerr.
Organ of the Southern Christian
Convention.

Entered at the postoffice at Greensboro, N. C., as second-class matter.

Terms of Subscription.

One Year .....	$1.50
Six Months .....	.75
Four Months .....	.50

Advertising rates given on application.

J. O. Atkinson, Editor and Publisher.

Important Notice.—As readers will see, The Christian Sun is now published at Greensboro, N. C. The office of publication there is 302½ South Elm Street. Our editorial office, however, remains at Elon College, N. C., to which all letters and communications to the Editor should be addressed, as heretofore.

BUILDING PROGRAMS.

Now that the Sunday school conventions are over, and annual conferences have not begun, a line about programs will not be considered personal.

And let it be said first, because it is most important, that no man holds as much power over a religious assembly, does as much to mar or make efficiency and success, as the man who makes the program. That man holds the key to the situation and shapes the destiny of the assembly. A decrepit program can not make a strong, healthful assembly.

This, in the second place, which is likewise important: It is unjust, dishonest and unfair to put a speaker on a program without that speaker's knowledge or consent. It is unjust because it takes the would-be speaker unawares, dishonest because it declares that which may, or may not, be true, and unfair because the subject may in no manner suit the taste or convenience of the speaker. Here is one instance. Last summer a certain brother was put on a Sunday school convention program to speak three different times on as many different themes. That brother was in no sense a member of the body, never had the first thought of being present, was never invited to speak there, and knew nothing whatever of the performance, until he chanced to see his name on the program as printed in The Christian Sun. Then the person in question could not have gotten to the convention had he tried, and was never requested to try. Yet, in the face of all this, the one in charge of the program announced to the convention, when the name of the brother in question was reached, that he regretted that circumstances were such that the expected brother could not be present. Now that was unfair treatment of the brother who, without his knowledge or consent, was advertised to speak, and it was certainly high handed, not to say dishonest, dealing with the convention.

This very summer a convention program was sent us for print in The Sun. When that program was received there was already enough copy in for the next issue of the paper and a large part of the type was set. But a glance at dates showed that unless that program went in that issue the convention would be in session before the program was printed. So, several galleys of type were set aside, the program was rushed in the very week it was received, and so was published one week and the convention met the next. When some speakers complained that they had not had time to prepare because the program appeared so late, the program maker announced that the delay, he supposed, was in The Christian Sun office. (Angels of merey defend us!!)

But enough of these instances. We are trying to illustrate what is meant.

A distinguished politician and high official in this State told the writer that if politicians employed the methods for public speakers that church people did there would certainly be few to hear, and hard things said not a few. Said the speaker, "I make many political speeches, but always by invitation or under appointment or promise; but not infrequently I notice in some paper a program for a religious assembly and my name advertised there for a speech when I had never had notice, warning, or invitation."

Brethren, these things ought not so to be. When are our program builders going to learn that the program for a religious assembly is important, and that it takes time, thought and labor to make one? It is high time we were learning that important truth. The program committee is of the utmost importance and none should be asked to serve thereon who are not willing to take the matter to heart and do their very best in making a workable program.

THE IMPREGNABLE ROCK.

In the Babel of tongues, who speaks the correct language? And in the multitude of doctrines and beliefs, who holds the correct views? We have come upon an age and a time when many, as in ancient Athens, do nothing else than to learn and to teach some new doctrine. As a result there is confusion and bewilderment. Of new religions there is no end, and of issues there is no limit. What shall we believe?

Now this doubt and bewilderment is no new thing. Our Savior had to do with it and gave the solution to all who really care.

A man of learning and renown came to Him by night and called Him a teacher, God-sent, well qualified and worthy. He wanted the Master to settle for Him forever the confusion and bewilderment of his own mind. How may I tell who is right and what to believe? Listen: "Verily, verily I say unto thee, except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God." Nicodemus could not understand that. He said so. He went away, shaking his head in confusion and a deeper bewilderment crying, "How can these things be?" That was the case of the scholar, and man of culture, coming to the Master for knowledge. But what Nicodemus needed was not more knowledge, but more faith. The Master understood that Nicodemus knew enough to be saved, but did not have and exercise faith enough to be saved.

In our doubt and bewilderment then, What? More faith, simple, child-like, trustful faith in the power of Jesus Christ to redeem and save us from all sin. "Ye must be born again." The man impregnable rock of the ages. The man who cannot believe cannot be born again. The man who is not born again cannot be saved.

Hard of comprehension? Yes. Too child-like and fanciful? Yes. But there it stands. The good God saw fit to fix and ordain it so. We may accept it—or perish.

There is nothing cruel, hard, wrong or unjust in it. Our Savior knew it was best and so decreed it. To many it is the rock of refuge and safety, to others a stumbling stone and ultimate ruin.

THE FOOL IN SCHOOL.

Dr. Lyman Abbott writes a timely article in the August Outlook on "Shall We Send Them to College?" in which a situation is set forth worth viewing, to this effect:

"This religious development of our colleges has been accompanied naturally with a corresponding ethical development. Hazing is a fashion of the past; and though occasionally some belated students attempt a revival, the attempt meets with but little success. The public sentiment of the collegians, not the rules imposed on them by the faculty, have brought it to an end. The same may be said of the lawlessness which was formerly characteristic of college communities—the raiding of the town by the college students, the robbing of hen-roosts, the carrying off of garden gates and village signs, and similar acts of hoodlum depredation. It cannot be said, of course, that all collegians are gentlemen, but in our colleges generally there are gentlemen enough to discourage vulgar rowdiness. The vices of the modern colleges are of a different type; and yet I believe that the standard of social morality is quite as high as will be found in any community of five hundred or a thousand boys engaged in commercial or industrial pursuits. The American college is not an Eden, and the atmosphere of the American college is not celestial. There is in every college a "fast set." Of course it is rarely the case that a representative of the fast set calls on the preacher, and my knowledge of what its habits are is derived from others. In men's colleges there are men who think they are not free unless they are vicious; in women's colleges there is an occasional woman who thinks she is not free unless she is lawless. In other words, there are fools inside college walls as well as outside."

All will never learn, we presume, that some fools go to school, and that one sap head does more to advertise the vices of a college than twenty worthy souls can do to advertise its virtues. There are hundreds of boys and girls coming to maturity in comparative ignorance because their parents have looked only at the fools and failures in school life and ignored the blessings and benefits. Not all who go to college are saints. No college has any new and universal plan of salvation, save that same plan told of in the churches, since John's revelation on Patmos. Men and women are redeemed and saved, or lost and ruined, at school as in the social and commercial world outside. There are those who are obstinate and rebellious in school as in life elsewhere.

Take, however, a college community of five hundred young men. You will not find any more wreek and ruin than in any other community of young men engaged in other than school pursuits.

As long as there are fool young men in the social and commercial world, and in the home, you will find some of their type in college; but the parent who deprives his child on that account of the right to be educated is not wise. Great and infinite advantages are offered the youth in college and those who are wise will avail themselves thereof, despite the awful scarecrow of "fools in school."

SUFFOLK LETTER.

The Eastern Virginia Sunday School Convention held its fortieth annual session, in the Waverly Christian Church, July 21-23, 1909, with the largest attendance of delegates and visitors in its history.

Words of welcome on behalf of the church, town, and community, were chastely delivered by Judge J. F. West, who said that the town contained 1200 people, four churches, a $20,000 school property, a flourishing bank, two hotels, two railroads, and was surrounded by a good farming community. The Gray Lumber mills and a peanut factory and a good trade add to the life and prosperity of the town; that the Christian church has nearly two hundred members and over three hundred on the Sunday school roll. This is an exception to have three in the Sunday school to two in the church. The Sunday school is usually smaller than the church membership; but this may be accounted for when we remember that the Wests are leading members and Rountree is the pastor. The church, the hearts, and the homes of Waverly opened their doors to the Convention, and the delegates and visitors numbered 160.

The church is a new and well appointed $8,000.00 property that is a credit to the town as well as the pride of the congregation.

The response to this cordial welcome by Stanley C. Harrell, was appropriately conceived and well delivered, and reflected honor upon Elon College, upon himself, and the Convention.

Rev. Dr. W. S. Long, of Graham, N. C.; Simeon Atkinson, of Elon College, and representing the Christian Sun; and Sylvester Rollins of Kenley, N. C., were invited to seats as deliberate members.

The Convention was well attended from start to finish, few delegates left before the close, except under necessity, the program was executed almost to the letter, the addresses were of a high order, the spirit of progress characterized the entire work of the Convention, and the atmosphere was full of music and aspiration.

The hospitality was one continuous feast, embracing cordiality, fellowship, and tasty and abundant meals. Tables groaned under their burden of good things, and people taking in the good things in the homes, in the grove at noontime, and in the church, morning, afternoon, and night.

The Adult Organized Class, the Cradle Roll, Teacher Training Course, and a larger religious purpose in Sunday school work were the chief features emphasized by this Convention.

The reports from the schools showed progress and the collections were not much interrupted by the dull times; the church is beginning to feel that her duty to God must not be the first thing to neglect, but the last.

It was a heart-to-heart meeting, with souls hungry for information and helpful suggestion, and never before, during the forty years of its history, have visitors and local attendants given such undivided attention to all the addresses and business of the Convention. The young people deserve special credit for their exceptional behavior and respectful attention to the exercises.

The choir of the church and orchestra of the Baraea Class furnished excellent music and added greatly to the devotional side of the three days of the session.

Many enjoyed the two mile drive over the fine road out to Coppahaunk spring, and refreshed themselves at that great fountain whose waters are becoming famous for their medicinal properties and are shipped far and wide.

On Thursday evening, at the close of the service, under a provision of the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference at its last session, and upon the recommendation of the Educational Committee of said Conference, Rev. N. G. Newman, President of the Conference, licensed Stanley C. Harrell, a recent graduate of Elon College, to preach the gospel, according to the Government of the Christian Church.

Rev. C. H. Rowland was chosen to deliver the next annual address.

The present incumbents were re-elected to fill the offices of the Convention.

The selection of the place for the next session was referred to the Executive Committee.

The unanimous verdict of all who attended the Convention was that much information, new methods, and larger inspiration characterized the entire session. The only just criticism that could be offered on this Convention is that the percentage of superintendents present was too small and the necessity for ministers to do most of the speaking and work was too great. The most conspicuous weakness of the Christian Church, so far as I can read the church, is the old fallacy of the clergy doing all ecclesiastical business. What the present age requires is a more active service on the part of intelligent and capable laymen in our public assemblies.

The Convention took ten memberships in the Missionary Association, that is $150.00 and elected delegates to the next session of that body.

Through these three days there has run a stream of good feeling, good fellowship, and good hope for the future of our Sunday school work.

Through the thoughtful kindness of Conductor Farrar the Norfolk and Western railroad furnished us with a special car on our return trip from Waverly to Norfolk.

W. W. Staley.

THE CHRISTIAN ORPHANAGE
DEPARTMENT.

CHILDREN'S CORNER.

The Band of Cousins.

Jas. L. Foster, Sec., Elon College, N. C.

"He that hath pity on the poor lendeth unto the Lord, and his good deed will He pay him again."—Prov. 19:17.

Reported Last Week .....$3468.18
Monthly Dues:

Para Lee Beggs .....$.10
Grady Beggs ..... .10
Roger M. White ..... .10
Thomas J. Carpenter .... .05
Warner Carpenter ..... .05
Hubert Neville ..... .10
Annie Pearl Way ..... .10
Margarette J. Ballentine . 1.00
Emily K. Porter ..... .10

Monthly S. S. Offering:

Suffolk, Va. ....21.35
Shallow Ford, N. C. .... .40
Catawba Springs, N. C. .. 2.00
Norfolk M. C. T., Va. .... 4.00
New Elam, N. C. .... 2.00
Rosemont, Va. .... 1.00
Wentworth, N. C. .... 2.13
New Hope, Ala., The

"Birthday Band" Offering ..... 1.67

Palm St., Greensboro, .... .84
Graham, N. C. .... 2.00
Holland, Va. .... 5.38
Wake Chapel, N. C. .... 2.02

Special Offerings:

Miss Beulah Fowler on support of brother ....20.00
5 bu. Irish potatoes from farm ..... 5.00
Work by Orphanage force. .93
Use Orphanage machinery. .30
Am't. 26th week 1909 — $72.72

Total .....$3540.90

Elon College, N. C., July 21, 1909.

My Dear Children and Friends:

We include two weeks' contributions in our report; this makes a good show for the hot season.

We plead that the many cousins write regularly; see what Roger M. White writes this week? We are in need of 50 new cousins to help keep the Corner full; and their nickles and dimes give us an increased income to meet our growing expenses.

The wheat threshing showed our crop to be 106½ bushels of wheat; we will pay rent out of 45 bushels. We nearly doubled 1908 crop, and for 1910 we are going to try to double 1909! It's very dry here now and our crops are suffering for rain.

We will greatly appreciate a monthly offering from those Sunday schools which are not making any. Give us a liberal report next week.

Fondly yours,

Uncle Jim.

Waverly, Va., July 9, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:

What is the matter? Are all the little girls under the oak trees playing dolls and all the boys in the field at work? I can remember so well when nearly two pages of The Christian Sun were almost filled with little letters from little sincere hearts.

Ah, don't let your love and help for the orphans die down. I'm an orphan myself but God has so lovingly blessed me that I have a nice and comfortable home. And as I am so blessed I feel that it is my duty to help those who are not blessed the same.

Boys and girls that have fathers and mothers should sympathize with those not so greatly blessed. There are certainly not less children and to be sure they are not less free hearted now than in former years.

Every little mite you send is to a worthy and needy cause. I hope within a few weeks I will see the page filled with letters from loving little cousins.

You don't know or realize how much Uncle Jim and the little orphans would appreciate your contribution. And if they don't appreciate it, it will show your liberal hearts and you will be blessed in glory.

I send my dime and love to Uncle Jim and the cousins.

Roger M. White.

We appreciate your words of encouragement and counsel, Roger. Surely it would be the wise thing if all the older cousins should drop a line now and then to cheer us up a bit.

Fuquay Springs, N. C., July 7, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:

Enclosed find one dollar. Sorry the cousins have been neglecting to write of late.

Your niece,

Margarette J. Ballentine.

Thanks, Margarette. Our little cousins have been taking vacation, I fear. This week shows up better.

Isle of Wight, Va., July 13, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:

I hope the Corner will be full of letters this week. I wonder if the cousins have been busy with the whooping cough like James and I have. I send a dime.

Fondly,

Emily K. Porter.

Hope you got along O. K., Emily, with

USE OUR MONEY
Establish a profitable and lasting business of your own. Be your own boss. We furnish everything, including Sample Outfit valued at $3.50. We began with nothing; are now worth $100,000; what we did you can do; we will gladly help you. Big Catalog, Plans and Sample Outfit now ready and ALL FREE. Write now. Unsolitated Portrait & Frame Co.
A SNAP For LIVE AGENTS
290-10 W. Adams St., Chicago, Ill.

The North Carolina
COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE AND
MECHANIC ARTS.

The State's college for vocational training. Courses in Agriculture and Horticulture; in Civil, Electrical and Mechanical Engineering; in Cotton Milling and Dyeing; in Industrial Chemistry. Why not fit yourself for life by taking one of these courses? Address

D. H. HILL, President,
West Raleigh, N. C.

READ SOMETHING DIFFERENT.

The Greensboro Daily News, the new State paper, is worthy of a trial. Associated Press service, special correspondence, clean, newsy, liberal. One year $6.00; three months $1.50.

GREENSBORO DAILY NEWS,
Greensboro, N. C.

To Drive Out Malaria and Build up the System.

Take the Old Standard GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC. You know what you are taking. The formula is plainly printed on every bottle, showing it is simply Quinine and Iron in a tasteless form, and the most effectual form. For grown people and children. 50c.

TULANE
UNIVERSITY OF LOUISIANA
NEW ORLEANS

EDWIN B. CRAIGHEAD, LL. D., President.

Tulane University in all its departments, is located in the City of New Orleans, the metropolis of the South. Nine Departments, with twenty-three buildings. Modern dormitories, extensive laboratories, libraries, and museums.

Full Courses are offered in Languages, Sciences, Engineering, Architecture, Art, Law, Medicine, Pharmacy, and Dentistry.

Separate Department for Women. Expenses low. Low dormitory rates. Next session of all departments, except N. O. Polytechnic, begins October 1st. Polytechnic opens November 1st. Send for catalogue. Address, R. K. Bauer, Secretary.

CANCER CAN BE CURED.

Personal or Home Treatment. Both successful. Scores of testimonials, from persons who gladly write to those now suffering, all tell of permanent cures. My Mild Combination Treatment destroys growth and eliminates the disease from the system. Free book "Cancer and Its Cure" and 125-page book of testimonials from cured patients in all parts of the country. No matter how serious your case, how many operations you have had, or what treatment you have taken, don't give up hope, but write at once Dr. Johnson Remedy Co., 125 Grand Ave., Kansas City, Mo. Physicians treated free.

the troublesome cough. It kept you busy indeed, I suspect.

Columbus, Ga., July 12, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:

I joined the band a few years ago but have neglected writing every month, but I want to join again and write regularly every month. Rev. G. O. Lankford and Rev. L. C. Smith's talks made me want to join again.

I have a little brother that wishes to join the Band and send his dime too. Inclosed find twenty cents for our dues for July. We will close with love to all.

Yours truly,

Para Lee and Grady Beggs.

You and little brother are certaily "re-welcome." Grady, your intention is good and you must be sure to keep up the letters now monthly.

Malone, Ala., July 14, 1909.

Malona, Ala., R. F. D. No. 2, Box 16.

July 14, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:

Here are my letter and dues for July. My name is Thomas Jefferson, after my grandfather. My great-grandfather named me. I loved him most dearly, but Jesus loved him best. He went to Heaven four years ago last March. I will close by asking a question: Who was the first Christian martyr?

I will close. Love to you and the little cousins, T. J. Carpenter.

We hope some cousin will answer Thomas' question. Anything that sends us searching the Bible is good. Who will search?

Malone, Ala., R. F. D. No. 2.

July 14, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:

I will write and send my dues. I'm a little late this time. But I have had so much hoeing to do that I could not write any sooner. It is raining today and it will set out the grass again that we have dug up. Our school will open next Monday and I am glad for I love to go to school. Enclosed please find 5c for my dues.

Your cousin,

Warner Carpenter.

It takes work to make a crop, little man, doesn't it? But it always pays in the end.

Chapel Hill, N. C., July 9, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:

It has been some time since I have written but I will try to be more prompt in writing after this. I am learning how to milk this summer.

Enclosed find ten cents.

Your nephew,

Hubert Neville.

A useful accomplishment, Hubert, that all boys and girls should know how to do well.

Sanford, N. C., July 7, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:

Here I come with my letter and dime for July. Hope all the orphans are well and having a good time. Uncle Jim, we are having our church painted and the Ladies' Aid Society are going to carpet it. I think it will look so nice. Come and see how nice it looks.

With much love to you and the cousins,

Your loving niece,

Annie Pearl Way.

That's good, Annie Pearl. Uncle Jim would love to see the improvements.

DANGERS FROM THE HOUSEHOLD FLY.

The health of the home is the health of the nation. The science of sanitation reminds us with increasing confidence that we must recognize sources of disease in seemingly harmless agents, and that we pitifully succumb when with wise prevention we might preserve life and health. The household fly again reappears. Screens are erected; the housewife dashes hither and thither in sharp but ineffectual attacks, and the summer wears out. Perhaps illness has not come, but perhaps it has, and yet the enemy is but lightly appreciated for the mischief that it brings. The educational department of the State of New York has issued a bulletin on "The Control of Household Insects," in which warning is given that the creature which does most to bring in the 35,000 of 250,000 cases of typhoid fever annually is the common house fly. The hairy legs of this insect are often covered with deadly bacilli gathered in such deadly places as refuse and filth. Shut out this insect from all sick-rooms, and let it touch no food, especially the uncooked. Screen refuse from stables, or sprinkle daily with chloride of lime, also shut out garbage barrels and toilet conveniences from its approach. As for the mosquito, the malaria bringer, beware also. It breeds in stagnant pools that should be drained or treated with oil. The health department of Chicago, in a recent bulletin pointing out the pernicious work of the fly, says: "Flies may infect you with germs of tuberculosis, diphtheria, scarlet fever and other communicable diseases, as well as typhoid fever. After flies have feasted on the infectious matter of a person sick with disease, they may get to your baby's crib, to your food, to your drink or perhaps to a small open wound on your face or hands and deposit the germs of these

SEABOARD AIR LINE RAILWAY.

QUICKEST LINE TO

New York, Washington, Charlotte, Florida Points, Atlanta, Birmingham, Memphis, New Orleans and the West.

Double Daily Service with High-Back-Seat Coaches. Pullman Sleeping and Dining Cars.

We operate Daily Vestibule service, with through Pullman Sleeping Cars to Jacksonville, Atlanta, Birmingham, Memphis, Portsmouth, Norfolk, Richmond, Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York.

For Time Tables, Booklets Reservations or any information relative to special rates and route, call on or address

C. H. GATTIS, Trav. Passenger Agt.,
No. 4 Tucker Building, Raleigh, N. C.

YOUNG MEN! If you want to know why you should become telegraph operators and what school to attend, write to SOUTHERN SCHOOL OF TELEGRAPHY, Newman, Ga., for free Catalogue "A." EVERY BOY should read it. Positions positively guaranteed.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup

Has been used for over SIXTY-FIVE YEARS by MILLIONS of MOTHERS for their CHILDREN WHILE TEething, with PERFECT SUCCESS. It SOOTHES the CHILD, SOFTENS the GUMS, ALLAYS all PAIN; CURES WIND COLIC, and is the best remedy for DIARRHOEA. Sold by Druggists in every part of the world. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Guaranteed under the Food and Drugs Act, June 30th, 1906. Serial Number 1098. AN OLD AND WELL TRIED REMEDY.

MEDICINE.

We prepare as good medicine, the very best medicine that the finest, freshest, most potent drugs and chemicals will produce when carefully and skilfully compounded by an expert prescription man—just such medicine as your physician means that you should have, medicine of the utmost possible effectiveness. May we prepare your medicine?

FREEMAN DRUG CO.,
Burlington, N. C.

diseases. When these germs are deposited in your milk supply they multiply very fast, and milk should never be exposed to flies. Any housewife who tolerates these dirty, disease bearing pests in the home is guilty of slovenly house-keeping. Restaurants infested with these filthy vermin should be shunned as dangerous to health and life, and any meat market, grocery, milk depot or fruit store in which flies are permitted to come in contact with foodstuffs must be regarded as unsafe places to trade."—The Standard.

(Begun on page seven).
 their hands. Thank them. Then tell them that these epistles were written from Corinth during Paul's second missionary journey. First Thessalonians is mostly a friendly letter with little theology. Chapter 4:13 to chapter 5:11 reassures them in regard to Christians who had died. The epistle abounds in evidences of earnest affection for them and in exhortation to them to live as becomes their faith. The second epistle was written to make sure the second coming of Christ. Both epistles were written very likely in the year 52. As a point of contact call for assigned work on Paul at Thessalonica from Acts 17: 1-9. Ask the class also what the Thessalonian Jews did at Berea. Then call for the outline of the First Thessalonians, assigned last time. After stating that the present lesson comes from the exhortation portion of the epistle and that it applies with equal force today, bring the lesson by the question method.

The Lesson.—The lesson today naturally divides into two divisions, which write on the board for the topical review at the close of the lesson.

1. Paul exhorts to godly giving, verses 12-22. Ask what Paul first beseeches his brethren, on the present name of these officers, how to esteem them, why, how to be among themselves, whom he exhorts them to name, whom to comfort, whom to support, whom to be patient toward, what none are to render, what all are to follow (here call for other texts which would be suitable as golden texts for this lesson, assigned last time), what they are to do evermore, what without ceasing, in what to give thanks, why, what not to quench, what not to despise, what to prove, to what hold fast, from what abstain.

2. Paul's benediction for them, verses 23-24. Find whom he prays to sanctify them, to what extent, what prayer he utters in their behalf, till when, what reason he cites why this can be attained.

Review the lesson by the topic method.

For Class Discussion.—The church of Thessalonica; duties toward pastors; duties toward those who try to do right and fail; how to build up our character; proving all things.

Truths and Their Application.—1. In this age of the comic supplement and the divine rights of childhood we do not pay the proper respect to those in authority, whether they be in the home, in the church, or in the government. This is especially true of young Americans and is one of the greatest weaknesses of our civilization—it is always commented on by all observant foreigners who travel in this country. We need to consider our duty in this respect in connection with a careful study of Paul's exhortations in today's lesson. Do men shirk the duties and obligations of parenthood, of the ministry, of public office because the old time respect has fled? Think over this. How can we remedy it? What can you do?

2. "Rejoice evermore," enjoins the apostle. He also tells us how we may do this. "Pray without ceasing; in everything give thanks; for this is the will

A LEADING BOARDING SCHOOL
 for 250 Students. Established 1884. Prepares for College, Business, Teaching, or for Life. Health, Character and Scholarship. Wide patronage. Very reasonable rates. Each student receives personal attention. School highly endorsed. (Location is near Greensboro, N. C.) For Beautiful Catalogue, Views, etc., address the President.
W. T. WHITSETT, Ph. D.,
 Whitsett, North Carolina.

RALEIGH & SOUTHPORT RY. Co.

P. M. A. M.	STATIONS.	A. M. P. M.
1:15 6:00	Raleigh	8:30 3:45
1:54 6:24	McCullers	7:52 3:03
2:11 6:59	Willow Sp'gs	7:37 2:45
2:23 7:14	Varina	7:27 2:34
2:35 7:26	Fuquay Sp'gs	7:19 2:25
2:55 7:45	Kipling	7:00 2:05
3:15 8:05	Lillington	6:41 1:44
3:41 8:28	Linden	6:15 1:17
4:30 9:15	Fayetteville	5:30 12:30

JNO. A. MILLS, Pres. and Gen. Mgr.

DO YOU WANT TO GO TO COLLEGE? If so we can help you. We have already put hundreds through college by means of our plan. Write today for full information regarding our offer of a free scholarship in any school or college. Address, Robert J. Sherloek, 29-31 East 22nd Street, New York City.

DR. J. H. BROOKS
 Surgeon and Dentist
 FOSTER BUILDING,
 Burlington, N. C.

SPRING TIME.

The time for gardening is here and you need garden tools. We can supply you at lowest prices.

Poultry Wire.

The best assorted stock in the county. Four different styles and weight.

Come and See.

Remember plumbing and bath room fixtures, a speciality. You will find us on Davis St. third door from Post office.
BURLINGTON HARDWARE CO.

When in Burlington call at
T. H. STROUD'S

Store for DRUGS, SOFT DRINKS, and anything desired in drugs and Toilet Articles.

RAISE MONEY FOR YOUR CHURCH.

We offer you an easy method. Send us a photograph of your church or your pastor, and we will send you 500 high grade post cards, with photograph on each card, and scripture verse if desired. Sell these cards at 10 cents each. When sold, remit us $20.00 and keep the balance. You can do this in a week. We will return photograph.

LAKE SHORE SUPPLY CO.,
 225 Broad St., St. Joe, Michigan.

VITA SPRING

(Alkaline Chalybeate)

MINERAL WATER

The Peerless Medicinal Properties of this Water Make it

Nature's Own Remedy

for the cure of indigestion, liver and kidney trouble, uric acid poisoning, gastritis, constipation, rheumatism and all specific complaints caused by impure blood. As an illustration, its curative power is so great that old sores bathed several times each day in Vita Spring Mineral Water, disappear in a few days. It is recommended by

The House of Representatives of South Carolina
 as "a pure mineral water of medicinal properties,"
 From the thousands of unsolicited testimonials received from relieved sufferers, we quote the following:

A. L. R. Avant, M. D., Savannah, Ga., says: "It made me feel like my former self." Miss L. B. Terry, Barton, S. C., says: "It relieved me of indigestion and gave	me a better color than I have had in years." R. B. Tarrant, P. M., Springfield, S. C., says: "It acted nicely on my kidneys. A fine invigorator."
--	--

Special introductory price, 5-gallon demijohns, $1 per 5 gallons.
 Send for free illustrated and descriptive booklet.
 Local agents wanted.

The Vita Spring
 Shelton, S. C.

ANALYSIS
Calcium Carbonate	12.505
Magnesium Carbonate	3.399
Calcium Sulphate	.577
Sodium Sulphate	4.565
Potassium Sulphate	.624
Sodium Chloride	5.964
Iron Sesquioxide and Alumina	.023
Silica	2.303
	29.960

of God in Christ Jesus concerning you. Quench not the Spirit. Despise not prophesyings (that is, preaching by a fearless representative of the Cross); prove all things; hold fast that which is good; abstain from all appearance of evil." If we will but follow Paul's prescription, we shall all "rejoice evermore."

3. The desire to have revenge is innate in our human nature. When evil is done us, our first impulse is to do evil in return. But this is not the Christian way. In the words of the golden text we are to "see that none render evil for evil unto any one; but ever follow that which is good." And Paul goes on to say: "both among yourselves and to all men." This obligates us not only not to return evil to others ourselves, but also to use our influence to prevent those about us from doing this un-Christian act. Have you been performing the latter as well as the former of these duties?

Assignments for Next Time.—Ask one to prepare a short account of Ephesus and to be able to draw a map on the board and on it locate the city; another to be prepared on Acts 18:12-28 and Acts 19:1-7; a third, on Paul's account of his stay in Ephesus from Acts 20:17-35; a fourth on what epistle he wrote at Ephesus from I Cor. 16:5-9; a fifth on what Paul says about his working miracles from Rom. 15:18-19 and II Cor. 12:12; a sixth on Paul's previous contact with magicians from Acts 8:9-24; Acts 13:6-12; and Acts 16:16-22. Ask all to bring their note books next time.

W. A. Harper.

Elon College, N. C.

(Begun on page 5)

well, knowing that His wisdom is infinite;

2. That her presence is greatly missed in her church, home and community, yet we know that our loss is her gain. She was a model wife and mother, devoted to her family and neighbors.

3. That we extend to the deeply afflicted husband, sons and daughter and other near relatives our tenderest sympathy and commend to them the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ;

4. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the bereaved family, and to The Christian Sun for publication.

Mrs. J. A. Dickey,
Mrs. B. S. Hester,
Miss Cornelia Allen,
Miss Ava Rogers.

Roney.

Whereas, it has pleased our Heavenly Father to remove from labor and suffering to reward and peace our much beloved sister, Mrs. C. H. Roney, who departed this life May 24, 1909, and who was a devoted and faithful member of Long's Chapel Christian Church, be it Resolved, 1. That we humbly submit to the will of Him who doeth all things well, knowing that His wisdom is infinite;

2. That we deeply deplore the great loss sustained by her family and the community in which she lived, and in the death of this member the church feels the loss of one whose interest was always made manifest in acts and deeds of kindness;

3. That we extend to the bereaved husband and children our heart-felt sympathy in this hour of sad bereavement;

4. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the bereaved family, that they be placed on our church record and sent to The Sun for publication.

Mrs. J. A. Dickey,
Mrs. J. Walter Johnston,
Miss Cornelia Allen,
Miss Hattie Rogers.

Books for Every Christian Home.

Do you know why you are a member of the Christian Church?

Do you understand what the church stands for and teaches?

If not, send and get a copy of the "Principles and Government of the Christian Church," just revised and greatly improved by order of the Southern Christian Convention.

Cloth binding per copy, post paid 50 cts.

Limp Cloth binding per copy, post paid 35 cts.

Paper binding per copy, post paid 25 cts.

Handsome Persian Morocco, with name in gilt $1.25.

The Southern Christian Convention also Ordered Another Book Published, PREPARING THE SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER TO TEACH. Edited by Profs. W. A. Harper, W. C. Wicker and W. P. Lawrence.

The book is neatly printed and bound and is invaluable to the Sunday-school worker, 236 pages.

Paper binding per copy, postpaid, 60 cts.

Cloth binding per copy, postpaid, 90 cts.

To Sunday-schools, paper binding 50 cts. cloth 75 cts.

Have You Read That Thrilling and Inspiring Story of His Own Life, MOTHER'S ANSWERED PRAYER, BY REV. P. H. FLEMING, D. D.?

Cloth binding, postpaid 55 cts.

All these books should be in your home. Order at once

For sale by, THE CHRISTIAN SUN, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

IT'S INTERESTING

to hear the different comments on different Shoes. All shoes have some good points; Style or comfort or service.

WALK-OVER SHOES

have all the good points; style and comfort and service and their price is the best point of all. $3.50, 4.00 & 5.00.

Foster Shoe Co., Burlington, N. C.

Dry Goods, Notions, Ready Made Clothing.

When in Burlington visit our large store, supplied always with the very best and latest styles and novelties.

Our Dry Goods are of latest designs, and our Ready Made Clothing cannot be surpassed in quality and price.

Come, See. Be Convinced.

B. A. SELLARS & SONS. BURLINGTON. N. C.

D I E L.*DeBaun.

Garrett D. DeBaun was born in Bergen county, New Jersey, October 17, 1826; and was a descendant of the earliest settlers of that State. Early in life he professed faith in Christ and united with the Dutch Reformed church. Jan. 1, 1849, he was married to Miss Elizabeth Young; and to their union were born two daughters and four sons, all of whom are living. In 1869 he moved with his family to Virginia and located in Norfolk county and engaged in farming. He united himself with Providence church, but afterwards transferred his membership to the Berkley church, and remained a consistent and loyal member until his death July 4, 1909. In the absence of his pastor the funeral services were conducted from the home of his son, John G. DeBaun, July 6th, by Rev. W. H. Thompson, pastor of Providence Christian church, assisted by the writer and the interment was in Magnolia Cemetery. J. O. Cox.

Benton.

Whereas, William Bryan Benton, a faithful Intermediate member of The Greensboro Christian Sunday school, has been called by his Heavenly Father, and has answered the call so promptly and has passed over the silent river so suddenly, and peacefully, therefore be it,

Resolved, First, That the Greensboro Christian Sunday school has lost one of its brightest members, one of its most faithful pupils, but we bow in humble submission to Him who "doeth all things well."

Resolved, Second, That we extend to the bereaved family our deepest sympathy and recommend them to the comforting promises, the tender mercies and loving kindness of God.

Resolved, Third, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the records of our Sunday school, as a memorial, and the secretary furnish copies to the family, and to the Christian Sun for publication.

D. Jennings Sipe,
C. C. Johnson,
Mrs. J. A. Armfield, Com.

Thomas.

July 15, 1909, Nellie Bertha Thomas, infant daughter of Adolphus M. Thomas, of Haw River, aged nine months and fifteen days.

The little one was the only child of her devoted parents, and they feel her death very keenly. The funeral services were conducted by the writer from the home, and the burial was at Long's Chapel.

The flowers placed upon the grave were beautiful. Brother and Sister Thomas have the sincere sympathy of their many friends.

May the Lord bless and comfort them.

P. H. Fleming.

Jordan.

Nannie Anderson Jordan died July 14, 1909, age, 75 years, six months, 14 days. She was the mother of two children, James Samuel Jordan and Bettie Jordan, now Mrs. J. R. Elliott, both of whom survive her. Her husband died in 1879. She was a member of the Baptist Church for 55 or 60 years, holding her membership at the time of her death with Bethair Baptist Church, Houston, Va. She was laid to rest at the old home near Pleasant Grove Christian Church. Funeral by her pastor. There was a large gathering of friends present to pay their respects to the memory of this good woman. She leaves six grandchildren and many warm friends to mourn their loss. She will be missed so much by sick ones of the community. She was forgetful of herself when she saw others who needed help. She was kind to the poor, sick and helpless.

Sister Jordan was a pious, consecrated Christian woman who lived a noble life and died a triumphant death. Just before going away she said: "I am safe in the arms of Jesus, so safe in the arms of Jesus." She was not afraid to go, and met death as she had met the issues and events of life, bravely, patiently, victoriously. A. Friend.

"The Oxford Teachers' par excellence"

JUST ISSUED!

OXFORD

Teachers' Bibles and S. S. Scholars' Bibles

With New 20th Century Helps arranged in One Alphabetical Order.

THE HELPS

The Christian Advocate, Nashville, says: "The helps are real helps. Unlike those in many of the cheap Bibles, they are not simply thrown together in hodge-podge fashion, but represent the freshest and ablest work of the foremost modern scholars."

Address THE CHRISTIAN SUN,
Elon College, N. C.

Bible is the Bible of the World."

NOW READY!

SIX NEW EDITIONS

OXFORD

Black Faced Type BIBLES

Three on Oxford White Paper. Three on the famous Oxford India Paper.

Pearl 32mo. A wonderful clear type in a small-size book.

Minion 16mo. Ready October 1907. A model hand Bible.

Brevier 10mo. Large type in small compass. "A quart in a pint measure."

"The new Bible just published by the Oxford Press is, without doubt, the finest product of the kind ever given to the public."

ASK FOR THE OXFORD EDITION

REMEMBER: That we guarantee satisfaction and sell to you cheaper than the publisher and dealers do. Our business is by mail and express and prices quoted are the prices of goods delivered to you. We can furnish you the Oxford, or the Holman Teacher's Bible at prices ranging from $1.35 to $4.00. Send for our catalogue or write us what you want. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN, Elon College, N. C.

A PURITAN CAPTAIN

BY EMMANUEL C. CHARLTON, PH. D.

This thrilling tale of sea adventure is based on actual experience and is told in the author's own natural manner, which is made the more impressive because of his long experience as a seaman, and Christian worker among his fellow-craftsmen. The story is specially attractive to all classes. The moral is of a high character. There is not a dull chapter in it.

This beautifully bound book, printed from good, clear type, on first quality paper, containing nearly 270 pages, sold for $1.00. Address all orders to

J. N. HESS

Agent of the

Christian Publishing Association

DAYTON, OHIO

SCHOOL CHILDREN AND CONSUMPTION.

Over 2,500,000 of the 17,000,000 school children enrolled in the United States have during the school year just closed been systematically instructed concerning the dangers of consumption and the methods for its cure and prevention, according to a statement issued today by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

Besides the 2,500,000 children thus regularly instructed in these schools, the National Association estimates that fully 1,000,000 more have received instruction at the various tuberculosis exhibits held in all parts of the country or in separate classes and organizations.

A number of investigations conducted in various parts of the world show that a large percentage of the children in the public schools have tuberculosis before they are eighteen. That a larger number of them do not die, is due to the fact that healthy children are able to resist the attack of the consumption germ. On account of the prevalence of the disease among children, the National Association considers their education to be of prime importance.

In Boston, a special commission which recently investigated the subject, found that over 5,000 school children in that city had positive cases of tuberculosis. In New York, a recent study showed over 25,000 tuberculosis children in the schools. On the basis of these and other investigations, it is estimated by certain authorities that there are nearly 1,000,000 school children in the United States to-day, who will probably die of tuberculosis before they have reached the age of eighteen. This would mean that the public schools of the country are paying annually about $7,500,000 for the education of children who will die before they reach the age of eighteen. At least one-half of this sickness, and possibly three-fourths of it, could be prevented, if the municipal and state governments would adopt better and more hygienic methods of controlling and teaching the children, and if the public in general were alive to the need for tuberculosis prevention.

The National Association declares that the best way to wipe out consumption among the children is to educate both them and their parents so that they will know that tuberculosis is a communicable disease, that it can be cured and that it must be prevented.

DUTY TO SELF AND FAMILY.

The Farmers' Line Department of the Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Co., 19 South Pryor St., Atlanta, Ga.,

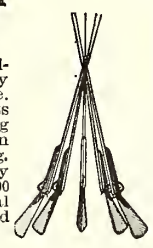

[EDUCATIONAL.]

The University of North Carolina
1789—1909

Schools of Liberal Arts	Engineering	Graduate
Law	Medicine	Pharmacy

Large Equipment, Modern Laboratories, New Library with 55,000 Vols. Able Faculty of 98 teachers. Students numbered 786. Thorough instruction. High standard. Healthful location. Expenses low for high-grade institution. For a catalogue and fuller information address
THE PRESIDENT, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Horner Military School
1851—1909.
Oxford, North Carolina

Classical, Scientific and English Courses. Prepares for College, University or the Government Academies. Military training develops prompt obedience and manly carriage. Academy 58 years old, with experienced teachers. Cadets dine with the principal and ladies of his family, securing the culture of homelife. Cultivates and educates. Modern buildings, perfect sanitation, wholesome fare, no crowding. Best moral, mental, physical and social training. Shady lawn, athletic park, one quarter mile running track, 300 acres. Ideal climate, helpful environment. In the social atmosphere of refined Christian people. The town noted for over a century as an educational centre.
Catalogues ready for distributing
HORNER MILITARY SCHOOL
Col. J. C. Horner, Principal, Oxford, N. C.

THE BLACKSTONE SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Established in 1894. The aim of the school is clearly set forth by its
MOTTO: "Thorough instruction under positively Christian influences at the lowest possible cost."
The school was established by the Methodist Church not to make money, but to furnish a place where girls can receive a thorough training in body, mind, and heart at a moderate cost. The object has been fully carried out thus far.
RESULT: In 1909, with its faculty of 29, its boarding patronage of 300, and its building and grounds, worth $40,000.
THE LEADING TRAINING SCHOOL FOR GIRLS IN VIRGINIA.
$150 pays all charges for the year, including the table board, room, lights, steam heat, laundry, medical attention, physical culture, and tuition in all subjects except music and elocution. Apply for catalogue and application blank to have recently issued a booklet which will be especially interesting to farmers in all parts of the South. It describes how the advantages of telephone communication may be enjoyed at a remarkably low figure, not only with the nearest city, but with other points in the country, when desired. It shows very clearly how the telephone is as useful to the farmer as it is to the man who lives in the city. It is a matter of convenience in cases of sudden illness or accident and it can also be made to increase the earning capacity of the farm. The subject is most thoroughly and intelligently treated and it is plainly pointed out how the farmer owes it to himself and his family to install such a safeguard. Every Southern farmer, whether he lives on the outskirts of a city or village or in some remote part of the country, should write for free copy of the booklet. The plan as outlined even provides a way in which the farmer and his neighbors, by cutting down the trees for poles and erecting them themselves along the country roads to the city line, may become connected by wire with all points at a figure that is surprisingly low. The whole matter is fully explained in the booklet. Write for a copy. It is free.
REV. JAMES CANNON, JR., M. A., Principal, Blackstone, Va.

“How shall they preach except they be sent?”

It is possible, divinely possible, to be stronger through and through one's weakest points.—Moule.

ADVERTISING DEPARTMENT.

For advertising rates apply to Religious Press Advertising Syndicate (Jacobs and Company), home office, Clinton, S. C., who have charge of the advertising department of this paper.

Advertising representatives:

Jacobs & Co., J. F. Jacobs, J. D. Jacobs, home office, Clinton, S. C.
 D. J. Carter, 163 Randolph St., Chicago, Ill.
 J. M. Riddle, Jr., Box 46, Nashville, Tenn.
 J. B. Gentry, Columbia, S. C.
 E. L. Gould, 150 Nassau St., N. Y.
 C. H. Tutt, Cleveland, Ohio.
 S. S. Hammond, 633 Frisco Building, St. Louis, Mo.
 J. B. Keough, 229 Candler Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.
 L. S. Franklin, Dallas, Texas.
 W. C. Trueman, Philadelphia, Pa.

THE NORTH CAROLINA STATE NORMAL AND INDUSTRIAL COLLEGE.

Maintained by the State for the women of North Carolina. Four regular courses leading to degrees. Special courses for teachers. Fall session begins September 15, 1909. Those desiring to enter should apply as early as possible. For catalogue and other information address
 J. I. FOUST, Pres., Greensboro, N. C.

BRINGING FORTH FRUIT.

Bring forth fruits therefore worthy of repentance. Saint Luke 3:8.

A tree is not considered as meeting expectations, though it be profusely covered with leaves, or yet blossoms. Not till the ruddy, fruit, inviting to the gratification of the appetite, develops its character and worth, is it highly esteemed. Barren trees are worthless trees, cumberers of the ground only.

So in religion. As we look upon a tree God looks upon us. We may profess what we please, God sees only leaves. We may inwardly resolve, but God sees only blossoms. Until we come to acts, works, out-and-out deeds, all goes for nothing. Then, however, life is widened.

Our doings are our fruits—doings which God and men may taste, so to speak; real, living actions that go from us, as the fruit hangs upon the bough. We must “bring forth fruit worthy of repentance”—such actions as will obliterate from the mind of God and man all trace of the remembrance of the evils committed against them.

It does not follow that we must accomplish great deeds, for we may be so situated that such are impossible; but

Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Is paying out and investing in both Virginia and North Carolina more than it receives from these States.

New business in Virginia, 1908,
$2,147,800

Larger than any other company.

Gain in insurance in force in Virginia, 1908,
$1,374,975

60 per cent more than the next largest.

T. ARCHIBALD CARY, General Agent for Virginia and North Carolina,
 Richmond, Virginia.

During 1908

(As in previous years)

We want you in our business, for we have what you want in your homes—the very best, most substantial and handsome furniture at bottom prices. We are also the undertakers.

Burke Furniture and Coffin Company

BUKLLINGTON, N. C.

Southern Railway

Operating Over 7,000 Miles of Railway. Quick Route to all Points North, South, East and West.

For Speed, Comfort, Courteous Employees, travel via the Southern Railway.

Rates, Schedules and other information furnished by any of the undersigned.

R. L. VERNON, Trav. Pass. Agt.,
 Charlotte, N. C.

J. H. WOOD, Dist. Pass. Agt.,
 Asheville, N. C.

S. H. HARDWICK, P. T. M.,

W. H. TAYLOE, G. P. A.,

Washington, D. C.

Elon College.*Co-educational. Established 1890.

Thorough College courses leading to M. A., A. B., and Ph. B. degrees. Strong and experienced Faculty with highest University training. Good Library, Reading Room, Laboratories, Literary Societies. Excellent Music, Art, Elocution and Business Departments. Diploma from Elon admits to graduate departments in the highest universities.

Beautiful and healthful location, 17 miles east of Greensboro on Southern Railway. Best moral and religious influence. No hazing. New students met by reception committees from young people's Christian organizations connected with the college. Good equipment. A large new dormitory, with modern conveniences, has recently been built to meet the requirements of growing patronage.

EXPENSES UNUSUALLY MODERATE. FALL TERM OPENS SEPT. 1ST.

For catalogue or further information, address

EMMETT L. MOFFITT, LL. D., President.

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

in the little daily opportunities of life we must strive to do as we think our Savior would have us do. A kindly word spoken when needed, a tender look or tear of sympathy to some sorrowing one, a hand outstretched to aid the feeble, even the cup of cold water given for the Master's sake, are “fruits worthy of repentance.”

Unkind acts, revengeful feelings, criminal conduct, all go to show that the heart is not right in the sight of God, sin has not been repented of, and that the tree is utterly barren.

When sin is not genuinely repented of, it must stand against the sinner. Repentance is only genuine when we not only cease to do evil, but strive to do good.

May we repent our evil ways,

And nevermore wrong things pursue.

Lord! let us spend remaining days

As thou wouldst ever have us do!

—Sophie L. Schenk. in the Watchman.

The Christian Sun.

In Essentials—State Library, in Non-Essentials—Liberty, in All Things—Charity.

ESTABLISHED 1844.

GREENSBORO N. C., WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 11, 1903.

VOLUME LXL NUMBER 31.

CHILDREN AND THE CHURCH.

[Annual address by Rev. W. W. Staley, D.D., before Sunday School Convention at Waverly, Va., July 21, and printed at the solicitation of The Sun's editor.]

All study with the human race and all education must begin with the child, and all human rights and destinies are involved in the youngest, as all orchards are determined in the nurseries. The killing of weakly and deformed male children and of females in many heathen nations shows how infants are regarded by nonchristian people. To rid the world of the care of the unfortunate, by destroying the helpless, displays a social depravity and moral stupidity characteristic not only of the unenlightened heathen but of the immoral and criminal in all lands. To place a "positive check" on population and to cover personal shame may lead to the murder as well as the neglect of children; but better life and purer love make infant life a conscience-charge of vast importance. In certain grades of society in India parents were once required to give presents of many kinds in the kin of the man who married their daughter, sometimes amounting to a half million dollars; to avoid such expense, parents would destroy most of their female offspring, showing that they had no conscience, no sense of obligation, no enlightened affection. This may illustrate the drift of human history toward children for four thousand years.

Egypt sought the destruction of the Hebrew male children to prevent them from growing into an army of resistance to oppression; and Herod cruelly murdered the infants around Bethlehem to cut off the new-born Messiah lest He might supplant him on the throne of Judea. Thus it appears that two great and enlightened nations had no adequate conception of the value of children in the moral assets of human society. They were treated as thinning corn or killing pups without regard to crime or religious obligation.

It remained for Jesus to put a new estimate on children and to open the heart of the world toward them. It may be said, then,

1. That Christianity Has Lifted the Child into Its True Place. Discovery is the first step in elevating the useful to its true position. All the minerals of the world were discovered as great assets in the world's work and progress. All the arts and sciences, and all the artists and scientists, have been discovered by fuller light and larger opportunity. The master musician and the pipe organ will discover the musical souls in a church and say, "of such is the kingdom of music;" so Jesus found the child and the church of Christ has continued to discover and exalt the child. Nearly all of the useful discoveries have been made since the discovery of children. When Columbus discovered this country and added a hemisphere to the map he did not know that he was opening the door into a land where children would have their best opportunity; the child had been found and estimated by Christianity and must have a field for fullest development. The public school for the state and the Sunday school for the church contain the greatest possibilities of this nation.

II. The Church Has Grown with Appreciation of Children. Those who lament the passing away of the old breakdown revival and the apparent decay of religion may find an explanation in the new estimate and treatment of children. When children were neglected and the gospel was proclaimed to those who had gone far in sin before conversion, great shaking and quaking was the result. Emotion and commotion characterized conviction and conversion; but this is prevented now by earlier entrance into the church by a steady stream from the Sunday school. Whatever may be said about modern formality or decadence in religion, the facts sustain the contention that society is moving toward Christ and purer living. The old forms of revival are passing away and the new forms are coming in just as the tallow candle passes away for the oil lamp and the oil lamp for gas and electricity. If this is not true, then the Sunday school is a hindrance to Christianity, and the words of Jesus are out of date and untrue. The trouble is not in the absence of the old-time revival, but in the neglect of those old-time converts to go to Sunday school and keep up with the gospel procession.

The seat of religion may be in feeling, but the real kind will work itself out in active and intelligent service. The development of the Sunday school has grown beyond the training of children to the more intelligent training of adults as the modern organized adult class shows. When you consider the literature, the architecture, the pictures, the musical instruments and musical books the expert paid leaders in many departments, the missionary and orphanage contributions by Sunday schools, the magnitude and value of the children as factors in church growth must be evident to all who observe the movements in Christian activity. The Sunday school is a great feeder of the church and the church grows as the children are trained for Christ.

III. The Hope of the Church is in a Larger Appreciation of Children. If it were possible to subtract the Sunday school from the church as a means of supply, church growth would reach a standstill condition. Besides this, when a child is saved it is not only the salvation of a soul but the salvation of a life. In the case of the salvation of an old person it is the salvation of a soul only, while the life is lost. No one will deny the importance of saving an old person, for the soul is of more value than the world; yet it is true that the kingdom needs the life-service of saved souls. If the world were put at interest for thirty years it would produce a sum so great that our great corporations would appear as pauper institutions; yet a saved soul multiplied by a life gives spiritual results on that scale. It is this great force multiplied by the millions of children in training for Christ that gives hope to the cause of religion and the church. Soul-saving is a great work, but soul-life-saving is the greatest of all.

The Life-Saving Service of the United States is the greatest on earth and was started on a small scale in 1871, about the time Moody and Sankey began their great career. It now has near three hundred stations covering ten thousand miles of shoreline. The stations are thoroughly equipped and manned and the results for the first thirty years justify all that has been done. Disasters

(Continued on page five).

FROM THE FIELD.

VALLEY LETTER.

The time for the meeting of our Annual Conference, which meets this year at Newport, draws nigh. The first session will begin Thursday, August 12th, at 10 a. m.

Delegates should make it a point to be there at that hour, so that they may be enrolled at the proper time, and the work of the conference start off without any hitch. Those going by rail should write E. L. or J. S. Louderback, Stanleyton, Va. Passengers from the south will be met at Ingham, and those from the north at Stanley, both on the N. & W. R. R.

Church clerks should see to it that the church report blanks are carefully and correctly filled out and in the hands of the secretary of Conference by noon of the first day's session. Often the church reports are handed in incorrectly filled out, and often only partially filled out, thus causing the secretary unnecessary annoyance, and making a poor showing for the individual church and for the Conference as a whole; and what is worse still sometimes the report does not come at all. Brother Secretary, will you please have your report just right this year, and at the Conference on time?

The annual address will be delivered first day, morning session, by Rev. W. T. Walters, president of the Conference. The afternoon session of the first day will be taken up largely by the report of Executive Committee, reading of church letters, and ministerial reports, and report on moral reform. Items of interest for second day, morning session, are report of Committee on Sunday Schools, report on religious literature, preaching. Afternoon session, report of Committee on Home Missions. The third day, morning session, will be given, in the main, to the treasurer's report, report on education, preaching. Afternoon session, report on foreign missions, report on apportionments.

Each year for several years the number of banner churches has been rapidly increasing. This year will show a corresponding increase if pastors and people will do their duty. May we soon reach the time when every church will be a banner church.

A. W. Andes, Sec. of Virginia Valley Central Conference.
Harrisonburg, Va.

—The meeting at Pleasant Grove, Va., in which Dr. W. W. Staley did the preaching last week, resulted in eleven professions of faith and nine accessions to the church.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION OF THE VIRGINIA VALLEY CENTRAL CONFERENCE.

This body convened with the church at Benlah, near Keezletown, Va., July 16, 17, 1909. Devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. W. T. Walters. The convention music was under the direction of Prof. Hall. The welcome address was made by Walter Hinton and responded to by S. W. Lincoln. The annual address was delivered by Edward French. Permanent organization resulted in the election of the following officers: President, J. C. Bradford; vice president, Samuel Earman; secretary, S. W. Lincoln; assistant secretary, Rev. A. W. Andes; treasurer, L. S. Rhodes.

Rev. A. W. Andes discussed "The Purpose of This Convention," in which remarks he outlined a suggestive policy for the convention. "The Problems of a Country Superintendent," and "The Church Member's Obligation to the Sunday School," constituted a general discussion. S. W. Lincoln spoke on "The Perils of Childhood," a warm plea in behalf of the safety and proper direction of the child. A most excellent paper was rendered in an admirable manner by Miss H. C. O. Martz, a teacher of ripe experience. Her subject was "The Door to the Scholar's Heart and How to Open It." The convention has requested this paper for publication in The Christian Sun. "Teacher-Training" was ably discussed by Rev. W. T. Walters, who suggested a course in outline. Rev. A. W. Andes spoke on "The Home Department," explaining its various relationships to the school and how to organize an conduct such a department. "Organized Classes" was a helpful general discussion led by S. W. Lincoln, who also led a discussion on "Temperance," following which remarks resolutions were adopted. Rev. M. L. Bryant spoke on "Leading the Children to Christ," making an appeal for more consecrated effort for the salvation of the pupil. Rev. W. T. Walters presented the historical, and W. C. Wampler the devotional and educational phases of Christian Endeavor. Samuel Earman and Rev. A. W. Andes spoke of the work of "Missionary Societies in Our Churches."

A new constitution was adopted by the convention, resolving the body into "The Young People's Convention of the Virginia Valley Central Conference," and constituting the chairman of each respective department committee secretary of the same department.

The next session meets at Antioch nex June.

MY IMPRESSIONS OF THE EASTERN NORTH CAROLINA CHRISTIAN SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION.

The convention was held in the newly built Henderson Christian Church. This church is a model of neatness and convenience. It is a good, substantial brick building, free from anything elaborate or showy. Bro. Newman, the pastor, has done a good work here, and the Conference is fortunate in having so capable a man in charge of this successful missionary enterprise.

The convention was opened on Tuesday morning, July 20, by the president of last session, Prof. S. M. Smith. Song service, Scripture reading and prayer made up the opening exercises. A hearty welcome was extended to the delegates and visitors present by Pastor Newman. This good brother told us to make ourselves at home, and we did so. Prof. Smith makes an ideal presiding officer and under his skillful manipulations of the program everything moved along in a lively and interesting pace. The program has already appeared in The Sun, and therefore need not be commented on here, further than to say that it was carried out very nearly as printed.

There was one thing to be regretted in reference to the personnel of the convention, and that is, the smallness of the number of churches represented by delegates. With a few exceptions the superintendents were conspicuous for their absence. The delegates present were handsome enough, intelligent enough, and active enough, but not numerous enough. Out of forty Sunday schools not more than fifteen sent delegates. We should be pleased to know where were the other twenty-five.

The discussions on the various topics pertaining to the Sunday school work were made interesting by such speakers as Rev. W. C. Wicker with his fund of wit, logic and philosophy, Rev. L. F. Johnson, with his persuasive voice and abundant language, Rev. J. D. Wicker, with his wealth of experience and practical ideas, Rev. W. G. Clements with his smooth sentences and deliberate manner, and Rev. C. E. Newman, who always talks entertainingly. Then there were a number of laymen who made good talks, among whom were Brethren E. M. Newman, of Liberty, George Whitaker, of Youngsville, W. R. Rogers, of Good Hope, and D. I. Langston, of Henderson. Our efficient secretary, Rev. A. T. Banks, also contributed much to the entertainment of the convention by several good talks.

In addition to Sunday school talks, considerable time was given to the subject of Christian Endeavor work, and the sentiment of the convention appeared to be that this work should be pushed with greater energy in the future. Teacher-training also received a good deal of attention, and was discussed very thoroughly.

We believe that the convention was helpful to those who attended. There was inspiration to be gained by being there. The music was good; the speaking was good; and the entertainment all that heart and mind could wish. There is nothing so helpful in religious work as getting together and taking counsel in reference to the best means of doing that work. Then comes the attempt to put the new ideas and notions we get into practice, and the endeavor to make our theories work. If we can do this successfully, there will, perhaps, come to us a greater degree of success than we have attained hitherto, and the work of harnessing the young people into active service will be perceptibly advanced—a consummation devoutly to be wished.

Herbert Scholz.

Macon, N. C.

AMONG MY CHURCHES.

Bethlehem.

Five members have been received into this church this year, a good Sunday school and Christian Endeavor Society have been kept up all the year. The church has a membership of 114. It has paid the pastor's salary of $212.27 in full. The conference apportionment of $50 has been paid. $10 has been raised for the Conference Missionary Association, about $535 has been paid toward the buying of a cemetery lot and building an iron fence about it. In addition to this about $80 has been raised for other purposes, making a total of nearly $900.

Timber Ridge.

Twenty members have been received in this church during the year. The present membership is 214. A good Sunday school has been kept up all the year and a live Christian Endeavor Society since its organization last fall. The pastor's salary of $198 was paid in full besides giving him a present of $15.50. The conference apportionment was $50. The church raised $62.13; ten dollars of which was paid by a Presbyterian friend. $10 was raised for the Conference Missionary Association. The church also contributed about $435 toward the Winchester work, and raised $85 for other purposes, making a total of nearly $750.

Concord.

Ten members have been received at this point this year. A good Sunday school has been kept up nine months and a missionary society the most of the time. The pastor's salary was $25: $25.62 was paid. $10 was the amount of the conference apportionment. The church raised $14.03. $50.80 was raised for other purposes, making a total of $90.45. The church has a membership of 41.

Maryland.

Seven members have been received here this year. The present membership is 31. An interesting Sunday school has been run half the year. The pastor's salary of $15 will be paid in full, and the conference apportionment of $6.50 has been raised and 17c over, $2.20 has been raised for other purposes, making a total of $23.87.

Timber Mountain.

This organization is without a convenient place to hold service. The conference apportionment of $5 has been raised and the pastor has been paid $18.50. We expect to hold our revival services at this point beginning August the 25th and continuing about ten days. The services will be held in a grove.

Winchester.

We have no organization at this point, though we have several members in and around the city. I have been holding services here for a part of the year. The congregations have been right good. A lot has been purchased and $500 paid on it. It is my purpose to give this point half my time the coming year, during which I hope to organize the church and put up at least a part of the building; enough to hold service in.

The year has been a pleasant though busy one. I served Newport, New Hope, and Beulah for four months. The following is an account of my work, with one Sunday yet to be added: Sermons, 192, visits, 525, addresses, 22, prayer meetings, 2, converts, 51, members received, 59, persons baptized, 24, marriages, 2, funerals, 6, and miles traveled in church work, 4,410.

W. T. Walters.

Broadway, Va., August 4, 1909.

I had the pleasure of meeting Rev. T. W. Strowd and Uncle Joseph A. Foster at Semora, near Lebanon, on Monday afternoon, July 19th. I was glad to meet these dear brethren, but they did not know me. Bro. Strowd said, "Is this Bro. Butler?" I said, "This is what is left of him." He said, "Will you go with me or will you go with Bro. Foster?" I said, "I will go with this man." He looked good to me and I was not mistaken, for I found Uncle Joe to be one among the best. I never was treated better. God bless Uncle Joe and his loved ones. He has been and he is still doing a good work for the Master.

On Tuesday morning he took me out to the church and I found that the hoase of worship had lately been repaired and was fixed beautifully. A good new tin roof all painted and showing something of the love of those interested in the cause of Lebanon Christian Church.

We had a good meeting. I met with Rev. J. U. Newman of Elon College, Rev. W. L. Wells, Bro. B. J. Earp, and many other good workers in the Master's cause. It was good to be there. I had the pleasure of staying while there with Uncle Joe Foster. God bless him for his good work. Bro. S. T. Covington, another strong man for the cause of the Master. God bless Bro. S. T. Covington and his loved ones. I also had the pleasure of stopping with Bro. Walter L. Taylor and his good people. Bro. Walter and his flock were specially kind to me while there. I want to thank them all for their kindness toward me while there. I hope we will all meet again, if not in this world, in that world which is to come.

Bro. Strowd is doing a good work at Lebanon. The Lord bless him abundantly.

On Monday after the fourth Sunday in July we commenced our revival meeting at Cypress Chapel, Nansmond Co., Va. Rev. J. W. Harrell, of Portsmouth, Va., was with us and did the preaching, and it was fine from the beginning to the end. The Lord blessed our efforts and 26 souls were converted and 14 united with the church. Our baptizing will take place on next fourth Sunday morning at 10 o'clock a. m. The Lord bless his work.

H. H. B.

From Holland Holy Neck.

As you well know, Brother Editor, the Holland Holy Neck people are noted for many good things, and especially for their goodness to the preacher, but now they have just surpassed themselves. On the 24th inst. (July) seven brethren from Holland and six from Holy Neck presented me with a brand new handsome top-buggy of the best grade handled in this section. This was unknown to me (and even to the ladies) until the day it was delivered. This valuable gift meets a need in my work and expresses the good will of these thirteen kind and generous brethren. My appreciation and gratitude to each and especially to him who led in the good work is more than I can express. May they all have their reward from a higher source and may I live as well as express my gratitude.

N. G. Newman.

—Evermore man receives what he first gives to nature and society and God.—
Hillis.

NOTES AND PERSONALS.

—Near-beer is destined to become a far-off beer. There will be no compromise with brewers.

—We read of many instances where people have been tried and freed by the unwritten law. It has been suggested that this law be written.

—If preparation for war is the best guarantee of peace, there will be little fear of nation rising up against nation for many years to come.

—About one person in a hundred lives to be sixty-five years of age, and about one half of the people born into the world die before the age of sixteen.

—Under date of Aug. 6 Rev. N. G. Newman writes: "My father is nearing the end of his journey. Physician says he cannot live many days longer. Worn out from old age. Would be SS Oct. 14."

—Rev. C. E. Newman was called by wire from his meeting at Virgilina, Va. last Thursday a. m. to the bedside of his father in Nansmond Co., Va., who, we regret to learn, is very ill.

—King Edward of England and his queen receive $2,350,000 per year from Great Britain; the Prince of Wales $100,000; the Princess of Wales $50,000; the Duke of Connaught $125,000.

—It is estimated that the harvested cotton crop will be fully a million and a half bales short of last year's output and that prices will run extremely high before the end of the present year.

—Rev. W. L. Wells assisted Pastor C. E. Newman in a meeting at Virgilina, Va., last week. The church was much revived, there were three or four conversions and two accessions to the church.

—It hasn't been decided yet whether Harry K. Thaw is sane or insane. Two alienists, Drs. Hirsch and Flint, say he is insane. They are paid by the State. Drs. Baker and Evans, two other alienists, say he is sane. They are paid by Thaw. As for the public, is is disgusted with the whole.

—Rev. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., is attending the Students' Bible Conference at Northfield, Mass. Happy and fortunate man. If any place on this continent offers advantages of devotional Bible study equal to those of Northfield we do not know where that place is. Thrice fortunate is the pastor who can go to Northfield for rest, study and inspiration.

—On the afternoon of August 5, five minutes after five, William H. Taft signed the Payne Tariff Bill and the extraordinary sessions of Congress came to a close. The revised bill is "after the heart" of some and "after the soul's displeasure" of others—as for us, we can't tell what it is "after" for in much tariff talk we have been lost.

—Greensboro Telegram, Aug. 1, says: Mr. J. Russell Klapp, son of Rev. S. B. Klapp, has recovered from the long spell of typhoid fever which detained him in Florida for several months, and is now in Atlanta writing for the Georgia State Historical Association histories of the lives of Sam Jones, Bill Arp and Governor W. J. Northen.

—Lynchburg, Va. manufactures more shoes today than all the rest of the South combined. In 1888 the total shoe business of this town amounted to $500,000—this year, 1909, the volume will reach nine million dollars. There are five shoe factories employing two thousand or more hands. Virginia stands third among the States of the Union in importance in the shoe business.

—The success of the Wright brothers is not only bringing honors to themselves but to their native state, Ohio, and the country at large. Owing to their recent and successful tests in the government contests, the government aeroplane will be placed at the disposal of Wilbur Wright for the purpose of training army officials in its manipulation.

—The reformatory for the youthful offender is a long step forward in higher civilization. Youths who have criminal tendencies may be trained and developed for future use as good citizens or they may degenerate into criminals of the vilest type. It rests with municipalities to organize Juvenile Protective Associations for the salvation of the youthful errant ones and the ennobling of our citizenship.

—President Taft is at his summer home, Beverly, Mass. now. On September 15, his fifty-second birthday, he will begin a tour of the West and South that will embrace all but eight or ten states of the Union and both of the territories in the far Southwest. He will be in Wilmington, N. C., November 9th and Richmond, Va., November 10, on which night he will return to the "fixed" White House.

—Farm values and good roads go hand in hand. A farm on a good road is a farm of good value. With the establishment of good roads and in a knowledge of their many advantages to the owners of farms one can get his price for a farm. Good highways mean easy access to markets and quick transportation to centres of trade, and most of all a good highway is an incentive to intensive farming, getting the greatest yield possible from an acre of land.

—Statistics show that Mormonism is growing rapidly. They have about two thousand missionaries at work and these secure from 60,000 to 70,000 converts annually. The Mormon church stands eighth in size amongst the religious bodies in our country. They have the control, practically, of Utah, Idaho, Wyoming, and Arizona and very nearly hold the balance of power in three or four other states.

—The first of our fall Conferences, the Virginia Valley Central, begins its session Thursday of this week with the church at Newport. Mr. S. M. Atkinson will represent The Sun and our publishing interests there and it will be a great saving of time, effort and expense if Sun readers of that Conference will see him and renew, as Mr. Atkinson, after the Conferences, leaves The Sun for his new field of work at Linville, Tenn.

—With the continued success and improvement in air navigation arise serious questions as to the right of aviators to the air. These inventors whose mental capacity, no doubt, at first was questioned, have made a seemingly impossible thing a reality. Two problems must be solved. It seems absurd to question the perfect freedom of the air, but if land, as it is contended, has an indefinite extent upward as well as downward, then the question is a sane one and air navigation would forever be on a limited scale. In France there is a supposition that many of the aeronauts are really spies who use their position in the air to obtain important military information which by no other means they could obtain. So, arises an international question and a necessity of certain regulations to prevent air navigation of this nature.

—Honor and great reward awaits the man who can devise means for the annihilation of the boll weevil. This is the foremost enemy to the South's successful production of cotton. In 1895 the weevil was not known in this country, save in a few counties of southern Texas, but it has extended over most all the cotton counties now and has established itself in Louisiana, Oklahoma, Arkansas, and Mississippi also. Some idea of its damage is obtained from a comparison of cotton yields in certain counties of Texas during 1899 and 1902. In ten counties free from the pest, 1902 gave an increase in production of 11 per cent as compared with 1899. In ten other counties free from the weevil in 1899, but badly infested in 1902, the yield in the latter year was only 47 per cent as great as in the former. The pest is hard to exterminate—it grows and multiplies rapidly, a single pair will lay enough eggs in a season to reproduce 134,000,000 of their kind. The weevil has led in many sections to diversified farming, which is really beneficial.

(Begun on first page).

770; property saved, $6,565,000; property lost, $1,002,265; expense, $1,082,793; persons involved, 3,775; persons lost, 17; vessels lost, 43. The sea of life is covered with storm-tossed souls and rescue work develops the spiritual heroism of the church; but to keep young life out of the breakers and train the soul to the keeping of Christ is the larger and nobler work. The greatest number of vessels and the largest charges sail on unharmed by storm and wave.

IV. Children Keep the Church Young and Active. If the church had the care of adults only its activity would hardly be worth the name. It is this young life that excites concern, moves the church in prayer, in song, in liberality, in real activity. What paints the house, brings in new carpet and new furniture into the home, buys the new buggy and the piano, and brings the visitors who throng the parlor and dining room? It is the young people in that home. All the laughter and song, all the spirit and hope, all the happiness and progress in the average home grows out of or clusters around the child. Where do you see the largest activity and the brightest faces and the happiest hearts? In the Sunday school. Age forgets care and sighs are translated into songs in the Sunday school. This does not mean that the children are to supplant the church nor to do all the work; but children stir up the noblest impulses, the largest faith, the most generous service, and the brightest hope in maturity and age.

The Children's Crusade to recover the sepulcher of our Lord from pagan hands in 1812 was a fanatical dream and a fatal disaster. Itinerant priests believed that the Crusades had failed because the Crusaders were not pure and that God would bless innocent children by miraculous help in such an undertaking; so 30,000 children from Germany led by lad Stephens, and 20,000 from France, under Nicholas, started out for the Holy Land. The German division, after many hardships, reached Genoa where they expected to find a dry path through the sea. Disappointed they dispersed, some being absorbed by Genoese families and some reaching their homes. The French division reached Marseilles where traders offered some ships free to convey them to the Holy Land. Two of the ships were destroyed, two reached Alexandria where the traders sold the children into slavery and none of the army ever returned. I do not mean that we are to venture upon some fanatical movement with the children undertaking some chimerical work, but a sane and persistent training of the children of the church for maintaining and increasing the efficient activity of the followers of Christ who said, "My Father worketh hitherto and I work."

FIELD NOTES.

Pleasant Ridge.

We held our missionary rally and children's day the first Sunday in July. The program was beautifully rendered. Essays on missions by Misses Minnie and Nell Huffine, Blanche Brushfield, Ruth and Edith Scoggins, Nannie Rail, Ruth Barber were very good, and all the children did their parts well. The singing was led by Prof. Slate, with Miss Nell Huffines at the organ. The success of the day was largely due to the earnest training by Supt. C. H. Higgins, Sisters L. C. and Nell Huffine.

Ingram, Va.

Our missionary rally and children's day was on the second Sunday in July. It was an ideal day. Nature smiled all around and the people for miles came in till it was one of the largest congregations in the history of the church. At 11:00 o'clock the program was taken up and the very interesting essays read by Misses Myrtle Boyd, Hester Kent, Sue Osborne, Mary Kent and Bessie Ingram deserve more than passing notice. The parts rendered by the children were well done. Sisters Ingram, Myrtle Boyd and Nannie Carlton are well due the credit for the success of this splendid day's work by their untiring efforts in training the children, while Miss Minnie Carlton presided at the organ and the music was good. Rev. Hal Ingram, of South Boston, and Rev. Kester, of Danville, delivered good addresses. Thus passed into history one of the most interesting days of our knowledge of Ingram Church.

Happy Home.

The third Sunday in July was our mission day here. A sermon by the pastor on missions, essays by Misses Minnie Swann, India Hopper, and Fannie Gillie were highly interesting. Bros. W. D. Wall and M. E. Lillard made good talks. The singing was led by Prof. Moore and all were delighted with the splendid services. This was a great day at Happy Home. Bro. W. D. Wall is one of the best Sunday school superintendents I know and stands at the head of faithful work there.

Keyser.

The fourth Sunday was our mission day. Here was the largest congregation I ever saw there. The pastor preached on the spirit of missions. In the afternoon Misses Mattie McLeod, Ethel Keith, Julia Rosey, Ellen Monroe, and Ruth Markham read very interesting essays on missions. They all did well and deserve much credit for this faithful work. The splendid work done by Sister Owen in training the children for their recitations and her most excellent music is worthy special notice. The Sunday schools are in a good condition in all my churches and the work in the churches of my field of labor is in a very encouraging condition so far as I can see, with gradually increasing congregations. I have been preaching in Reidsville a part of this year. We have some good members here and ought to have a church. I am also preaching in Aberdeen, where we have some members. I have stopped over and preached in Ether a few times since Conference, where Bro. M. L. Williams is doing a good work. Bro. H. Freeman, the leading spirit in the work there, has given two acres of land for a Christian Church, and a part of the lumber has been cut for the house of worship. The present indications are that we will have a Christian church there in the near future.

S. B. Klapp.

Greensboro, N. C., Aug. 5, 1909.

Uneasy Monarchs. Although in our history we have had three Presidents assassinated, our rulers are comparatively safe. A few secret service men accompany our Presidents on their journeys, but these are seldom in evidence. Nor are our rulers in constant dread of being assassinated. Look, on the other hand, at this picture given by an editorial writer in The New York Christian Advocate:

The Czar of Russia started July 7 for Poltava, to take part in the festivities in commemoration of Russia's victory over Charles XII of Sweden. He was accompanied by Premier Stolypin, several ministers, grand dukes and other exalted personages. Three sumptuously appointed imperial trains, identical in appearance, conveyed the party. Outside the party nobody knew on which train the Czar was. He probably changed trains en route. The troops lined the railroad for the entire distance, and as the trains passed they turned their backs to the tracks, watching the surrounding country. They were armed with loaded rifles. Such precautions as these the Russian Czars have had to take since Nihilism arose. The writer went from Moscow a few hours ahead of a train that bore the Czar Alexander III, for the first time in his reign, to Warsaw. On that occasion, in addition to the ordinary precautions, there were 24,000 soldiers along the tracks.

—In this world it is not what we take up, but what we give up, that makes us rich.—Bæcher.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEPARTMENT.

Exponent of the Young People's Convention,
Christian Church, South.

Watchword: A Christian Endeavor Society in Every Church; Teacher-Training and Organized Classes in Every Sunday School.

Devoted to the interest and advancement of Sunday Schools, Teacher-Training, Organized Classes, Cradle Roll, Home Department, Christian Endeavor, Missionary Societies, Temperance Societies, Aid Societies, Civic Righteousness.

W. A. HARPER, Editor and Field Secretary, Elon College, N. C.

[All notes and contributions for this Department should be sent to W. A. Harper, Elon College, N. C., who extends the Church at large a cordial invitation to furnish him with any note of interest to our Young People, particularly information in regard to any forward steps, new movement, or new organization looking to progressive and effective service. All items under this Department not signed are by its Editor and Field Secretary.]

PREPARING THE TEACHER—BOOK ONE.

Last week we told in this column what subjects a well-rounded Teacher-Training Course ought to cover. This week we shall give a bird's-eye view of the contents of "Preparing the Teacher—Book One," which is the first volume of the Teacher-Training Course authorized by our Southern Christian Convention.

The book contains 56 lessons and has ten contributors, each contributing a chapter. These contributors are, in the order of their several contributions: W. A. Harper, W. C. Wicker, W. P. Lawrence, S. M. Smith, N. G. Newman, J. U. Newman, P. H. Fleming, J. J. Summerbell, J. W. Harrell, and E. L. Moffitt.

The contents of the volume are seven lessons on the institutional Sunday pupil, three lessons on the history and organization of the Sunday school, three lessons of the institutional Sunday school, four lessons on the Book, twelve lessons on biblical history, six lessons on church history, five lessons on biblical geography, five lessons on biblical antiquities, and five lessons on the principles of the Christian Church. Compare this table of contents with the editorial on what a teacher-training course ought to include printed last week and you will see how necessary it is that this book be mastered by our present and prospective Sunday school teachers and other officers.

The book is so arranged that an hour or two a week will result in its mastery in 56 Sundays. Any person of average intelligence can easily possess himself of the contents and thereby become the better equipped for effective Sunday school work. Already more than half the first edition has been sold and it is giving general satisfaction. Many of the classes are genuinely enthusiastic in the prosecution of their study of it. In every case it has had a wholesome effect over the entire school.

The book sells for $1.00 in cloth and $.60 in paper and can be had of Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Elon College, N. C., who is the owner and publisher of the same by the order of the Southern Christian Convention. He will gladly send a copy to your address for examination, to be returned if you do not desire to purchase it after you have examined it for yourself. Can you afford to be without "Preparing the Teacher—Book One?"

What is doing in your school for teacher-training?

RECORD OF WORK DONE.

Christian Endeavor.

Apple's Chapel, Guilford Co., N. C. Pastor, Rev. L. I. Cox; superintendent, Alfred Apple, Jr.; members, 17.

Pleasant Hill, Alamance Co., N. C. Pastor, Rev. W. L. Wells; superintendent, Miss Bessie McPherson; secretary, Mr. Ham Carter; members, 14.

Have you a teacher-training class? It is an insurance policy, whose company cannot fail. Can you neglect to take out such a policy?

C. E. TOPIC FOR AUG. 15TH—A FEW SUGGESTIONS.

Two Valleys. Ps. 22:1-8; Mic. 7:7-8; Rom. 8:35-39.

Pilgrim's Progress Series VIII.

Scripture Lessons.—Appoint six endeavorers for this work. Have three of them to read one of the scripture selections each and leave the other three to comment briefly on one each of these selection after it is read.

For the Leader.—The leader should be an endeavorer who has had experience in the Valley of Humiliation and in the Valley of the Shadow. He should relate his experiences and draw practical lessons from it for the members. He should be brief, but he should be earnest.

For Less Experienced Members.—Hand out the following scripture references for reading in the meeting: Humbled by God, Ex. 5:15-23; Facing the Foe, Jas. 4:5-10; The Sword of the Spirit, Eph. 6:10-18; The Great Shadow, Jer. 2:6 and Rom. 8:20-23; Turning Back, Heb. 3:12-10; The Daybreak, 1 John 2:8-11.

Hand out also the following questions to be answered by the verse placed after each:

How look? Heb. 11:5.

How wait? Psa. 40:1.

How stand? Isa. 21:8.

How walk? Mic. 6:8.

How run? Gal. 5:7.

How provide? Rom. 12:17.

How lie down? Rom. 12:18.

Question Spurs for More Experienced

Members.—Hand out for voluntary answer in the meeting: What is meant by the Valley of Humiliation? Why must everyone pass through it? What are five causes of humiliation to Christians? What is meant by the Valley of the Shadow? Why do men fear death? How may this fear be removed? How should a Christian Endeavorer view death?

Pilgrim's Progress Series VIII.—

Dramatize the portion of Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress which is our lesson today by assigning it to four endeavorers, one to represent Christian, another Apollyon, the third and fourth each one of the descendants of the spies. Let the leader or an experienced reader appointed by him read the narrative portion condensed. The passage begins with the scene where Christian leaves the Palace Beautiful, at the words, "Then he began to go forward" and closes with the picture of the old man at the mouth of the cave and with the bit of poetry, "But since I live, let Jesus wear the crown." Have some skilled speaker review Christian's Journey to date. Have the pastor in his five minutes draw practical lessons from the portion of the present lesson.

Suggested Program.

1. Two or three appropriate songs. Chain of prayer.

2. Scripture lessons read by the four endeavorers designated for that purpose, with comment by the three set aside for that part.

3. Leader's Remarks.

4. Scripture references and verse answers to the "How" questions.

5. Song. Prayer.

6. Pilgrim's Progress portion read as suggested.

7. Question spurs for More Experienced Members.

8. Review of Christian's Journey to date.

9. Pastor's Lessons from today's portion.

10. General participation in whatever way desired.

11. Song. Offering. Mizpah.

How about that supply of teachers which you are soon to need? Teacher-Training is the solution.

Young People's Convention Honor Roll.

In this roll, which has been kept standing for five weeks, are printed the names and addresses in the order of time of those pastors who have filled out the "Pastor's Information Blank" mailed them with stamped envelope on June 26. This roll is given not to encourage invidious comparison nor to suggest it, but simply to let the Church at large know how interested our pastors are in this Young People's Movement.

- Rev. J. W. Wellons, Elon College, N. C.
- Rev. W. C. Wicker, Elon College, N. C.
- Rev. A. P. Barbee, Durham, N. C.
- Rev. J. W. Barrett, Norfolk, Va.
- Rev. C. E. Newman, Henderson, N. C.
- Rev. N. G. Newman, Holland, Va.
- Rev. W. G. Clements, Morrisville, N. C.
- Rev. J. D. Wicker, Sanford, N. C.
- Rev. Herbert Scholz, Macon, N. C.
- Rev. J. W. Harrell, Portsmouth, Va.
- Rev. G. D. Hunt, Wadley, Ala.
- Rev. J. O. Cox, South Norfolk, Va.
- Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Elon College, N. C.
- Rev. P. T. Klapp, Pittsboro, N. C.
- Rev. H. E. Rountree, Waverley, Va.
- Rev. R. L. Williamson, Ramseur, N. C.
- Dr. P. H. Fleming, Burlington, N. C.
- Rev. M. W. Butler, Newport News, Va.
- Rev. S. B. Klapp, Greensboro, N. C.
- Rev. J. L. Foster, Elon College, N. C.
- Rev. C. C. Peel, Elon College, N. C.
- Rev. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va.
- Rev. G. O. Lankford, Columbus, Ga.
- Rev. B. F. Young, Lanett, Ala.
- Rev. W. T. Walters, Broadway, Va.
- Rev. J. W. Patton, Elon College, N. C.
- Dr. W. W. Staley, Suffolk, Va.
- Rev. W. L. Wells, Elon College, N. C.
- Rev. W. H. Thompson, Norfolk, Va.
- Rev. C. M. Dollar, Malone, Ala.
- Rev. J. W. Bolton, Greensboro, N. C.
- Rev. J. W. Holt, Burlington, N. C.
- Rev. L. I. Cox, Elon College, N. C.
- Rev. A. W. Andes, Harrisonburg, Va.
- Rev. L. E. Smith, Elon College, N. C.
- Rev. E. M. Carter, Roanoke, Ala.
- Rev. R. H. Peel, Windsor, Va.
- Dr. W. T. Herndon, Elon College, N. C.
- Rev. M. S. Bryant, Berkley, Va.

With this issue the honor roll will cease to appear. Thirty-nine out of seventy active pastors have shown their interest in the Young People's Movement. Just why the other thirty-one have been silent, perhaps it is not for us to conclude. We desire to thank those who have responded and to assure them that this office intends, under God, to do all in its power to make our wretched world a reality in their churches. In the meantime will not the thirty-one send in their blanks?

HOW TO TEACH THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FOR AUG. 22. A FEW SUGGESTIONS.

The Riot at Ephesus:

Acts 19:23-30; 35-41.

Golden Text.—He said unto me, My grace is sufficient for thee: for my strength is made perfect in weakness. 2 Cor. 12, 9, 7.

Review.—Carefully review the previous lesson. Call for the note books. Have one of them read after examination and suggestions.

Chronology.—Today's lesson comes just before Paul's setting out from Ephesus to make a tour through Macedonia and Achaia and to Jerusalem and ultimately to Rome and Spain. It likely occurred in the month of May, 56 A. D., for in that month the Ephesian games were celebrated in honor of Diana or Artemis and it has been plausibly supposed that this riot occurred during those games. Paul had originally intended to leave Ephesus for his proposed tour after Pentecost (1 Cor. 16:8), but on account of this riot he departed somewhat earlier.

Intervening Events.—These are found in Acts 19:21-22, which you may bring before the class in various ways. Be sure to get them before the class, however.

Incidental Instruction.—You will need to explain the cult of Diana or Artemis and the use of images of her by her worshippers. The image which fell down from Jupiter was a meteoric stone fallen from the sky. Such images were commonly found in ancient temples and Jupiter is frequently used for a synonym for the sky. It may, however, be well to review the class on who Jupiter was and where they heard of him before this year (Acts 14:8-18). It will also be well to make clear the illegality of a riot in those days or now. The Roman authorities did not allow public assemblies without permission and even in the free cities, of which Ephesus was one, it had become customary to allow only these at certain customary times, which times eventually became to be looked upon as the only legal times for such assemblies.

The Lesson.—Our lesson divides naturally into two divisions, which write on the board as they are developed in the teaching by the topical outline, to be used in the review by the topic method.

I. Demetrius Instigates a Riot, verses 23-30. Find what arose in the city, over what, who instigated it (here call for the assigned work on the Seven Wonders of the World), his business, whom he called together, what he said to them; what was interfering with their business, in what way (here call for assigned work on what Paul said about the Athenian idol worship, from Acts 17:16-34), what he declared was in danger; what else, the effect of his words on them, what they cried out, the extent of the riot, whom the mob caught, where carry them, who wanted to go, why not go in (here call for assigned work on Paul's companions in travel, from Acts 13:2-5; Acts 15:40; Acts 16:1-3; Acts 18:18; Acts 19:22; Acts 20:34; 2 Cor. 8:16-19; and also on former occasions on which the disciples had kept Paul from danger, from Acts 9:23-30 and Acts 17:10-14).

(There is a break here from verses 31-34, but be certain to bring out the facts in some appropriate way before the class.)

2. The Riot Quelled, verses 35-41. Find who opposed the people, what he said about Diana, whence the image was, what conduct they should have exhibited, what they had on the other hand done, what he said of the man they had caught up, what course was open to Demetrius, how other matters should be settled, what danger they were likely to incur, why, what he did after his speech (here call for assigned work on Paul's account of his troubles at Ephesus, from Acts 20:18-19; 1 Cor. 15:32; 1 Cor. 16:9; 2 Cor. 1:8).

Review the lesson by the topic method.

For Class Discussion.—Present day labor unions. Vested interests. Paul's courage. Modern idols.

Truths and Their Application.—1. Demetrius was no worse than the thousands of our fellow-citizens who oppose reform measures because it interferes with vested interests. The recent convention of brewers to suggest means by which the liquor business can be perpetuated in America was just as iniquitous as the mob which the heathen Ephesian called. They were all alike touched in the same place—the pocket-book. Demetrius and his fellow-craftsmen did not object to Paul's preaching until it hurt their business. The present-day hearers in America support the church and congratulate the preacher and sing psalms, until their business is endangered, then we hear of confiscation of property rights, etc. We need heroes who will fight these vested interests in the name of Christ.

2. What a silly performance it was for the men of Ephesus, grown men, thousands of them (because the Ephesian country would hold 50,000 or more

(Continued on page 11)

THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

Founded 1844 by Elder Daniel W. Kerr.
Organ of the Southern Christian
Convention.

Entered at the postoffice at Greensboro, N. C., as second-class matter.

Terms of Subscription.

One Year .....$1.50
Six Months ..... .75
Four Months ..... .50
Advertising rates given on application.

J. O. Atkinson, Editor and Publisher.

Important Notice.—As readers will see, The Christian Sun is now published at Greensboro, N. C. The office of publication there is 302½ South Elm Street. Our editorial office, however, remains at Elon College, N. C., to which all letters and communications to the Editor should be addressed, as heretofore.

THE PEACE IN BELIEVING.

The age of doubt and unbelief is a pitiable age. Nothing so completely unnerves the mind, and undoes the heart, of a nation as unbelief. As long as a people's faith is firm and steadfast, there is nothing to be feared. Faith is an anchor strong enough to hold in the most trying storm. But when a people's faith is gone there is a ship adrift without anchor. The peace in believing has disappeared, and minds and hearts are in turmoil—and at war.

It is to be feared we are losing this peace—this peace in believing. There are so many isms, new notions and new religions in our time. Like the Athenians of Paul's day we spend much time in finding some new thing in which to believe. The foundations of our belief are being broken up, and there is nothing firm and fixed among us.

Years ago that staid New Englander of Puritan stock and blood, Oliver Wendell Holmes, prayed thus, a prayer which might well be on every lip of our day:

"Pity us, dear Lord, pity us! The peace in believing which belonged to other ages is not for us. Again the wounds are opened that we may know whether it is the blood of one like ourselves which flows from them, or whether it is a Divinity that is bleeding for His creatures. Wilt thou not take the doubt of thy children whom the time commands to try all things in the place of the unquestioning faith of earlier and simpler-hearted generations? We too have need of thee. Thy martyrs in other ages were cast into the flames, but no fire could touch their immortal and indestructible faith. We sit in safety and in peace, so far as these poor bodies are concerned; but our cherished beliefs, the hopes, the trust that stayed the hearts of those we loved who have gone before us, are cast into the fiery furnace of an age which is fast turning to cross the certainties and the sanctities once prized as our most precious inheritance."

In our day, as in Dr. Holmes', we sit in safety and in peace, so far as our bodies are concerned, but what of the cherished beliefs, hopes, trust that stayed the hearts of the great and brave souls gone before us? And are we not turning to dregs and cross the certainties and sanctities once prized as our most precious inheritance? It would seem so. And the times demand that we shall give earnest heed to the certainties and sanctities, for belief in these give a peace of heart and mind that the world can neither give nor take away.

PRAYER FOR OTHERS.

Yes, prayer for others is often answered. In a majority of instances where the Savior healed and saved while here on earth, He was importuned by others than the afflicted or needy one—the mother for her son, the father for his daughter, the master for his servant.

But prayers for others always assume that favorable conditions will be afforded by others for answer. Often in praying for self we forget to make ready on our part the favorable conditions. This illustration is given showing the difference:

"Mamma," said Alfred, "I prayed three prayers, and the Lord has answered two of them. Do you think he'll answer the other?"

"I think He will, my dear. What were the prayers?"

"One was that He would make you well, and you're not sick any more. Another was that he would make papa more kind."

"Yes, dear. Now what's the third?"

"I prayed that God would keep us children from quarreling; but He hasn't answered that yet, for Daisy and I quarreled dreadful today."

"Ah, my son, you will have to help the Lord to answer that."

We too often fail to help the Lord answer our own prayers.

HELPING.

In crossing the mountains, and in pulling heavy grades, the railroads provide engines of heavy build, but of slow speed, to help the regular trains along their course. The American Locomotive Company has just built such a monster engine to do work on a heavy grade of the Erie Railroad. With tender it is eighty feet long, having a boiler 35½ feet long, 8 feet in diameter, with low pressure cylinders 39 inches in diameter. At slow speed it can haul a train two miles long, with 10,000 tons of freight (twenty million pounds), representing the harvest of twenty-six square miles of wheat farms. Its work is local, only covers a few miles of travel and is only called into service to help in time of need when heavy drafts are to be carried.

In human society you will find the helper-engines. Their work is local. They pull in time of great need. They render aid in hours of greatest burden-bearing. The tried and true and stalwart layman in the local church is the great helper engine to the ready and busy pastor.

THE HARDEST PROBLEM.

There is no problem in life comparable to that of Sin. Theologians may prove that "The fall" was a fake, and that Eve was never tempted by a serpent, if they can. But the fact remains, stubborn, stern and severe, that Sin abides. From the earliest dawn of history till now sin has been in the world, and has left its deadly impress everywhere.

None knew this fact better than the Master. He understood man's depravity, man's inclination to error, man's weakness in a thousand directions. None needed to tell Him of man and man's temptations, for He knew what was in man. He knew, as no one else has ever known, to what low depths man could and would go in sin and wickedness.

Knowing this he dared solve the problem for man, and considered man worth dying for. He knew the low depths and went there Himself to rescue man. Our problem of sin is difficult, therefore, because we would work it out ourselves—and not flee to Him for refuge and strength and stay, who has already worked out that problem and solved it in Himself. He can save from all Sin. "Whosoever believeth on Him shall not perish but shall have everlasting life." The problem of Sin is solved in the Cross.

—Rev. H. H. Butler is assisting Pastor S. B. Klapp this week in a meeting at Ingram, Va. Rev. W. T. Herndon will assist Bro. Klapp next week at Happy Home, Rockingham Co. Bro. Klapp is to conduct the meeting at Mt. Zion for Pastor T. W. Strowd fourth Sunday and week following, and for Pastor J. R. Comer at Union Grove, fifth Sunday and week following. Bro. Klapp reports gratifying conditions in his work and thinks all his churches will meet all Conference obligations.

NORFOLK LETTER.

At the Third Church Sunday, Rev. W. H. Thompson preached to a larger congregation than usual. The morning congregation being the largest at a regular service, possibly, for a year.

We had the pleasure of having Mrs. J. P. Barrett, of Dayton, Ohio, at the morning service, also at the Sunday school. Mrs. Barrett is a faithful and efficient Sunday school worker, and it was a pleasure to her many friends here to have her with us. She and her daughter Ethel, who have been visiting friends and relatives in this community for the past few weeks, will leave for their home, Dayton, Ohio, on Wednesday.

Mrs. Eva Green and Miss May Dean have issued invitations to a reception given to the Ladies' Aid Society of the Third Church, and the ladies of the congregation, at their home on 33d Street Wednesday afternoon from three to six o'clock.

Rev. C. C. Ryan, of the Memorial Temple, reports a good day yesterday. He has been suffering from a severe cold, but was able to fill his appointment for the day. He assisted during the past week the pastor, Rev. J. W. Harrell, in a series of meetings at Berea Church, Norfolk Co., which resulted in some sixteen or seventeen conversions and nine additions to the church.

Rev. and Mrs. M. L. Bryant have returned from an extended bridal tour through the North, and are now at home to their many friends. Brother Bryant is assisting Rev. H. E. Roundtree this week in a series of meetings at Waverly.

We regret to say that Col. A. Savage remains in about the same condition that he has been for some time. His many friends are hoping that he may soon experience a decided improvement.

Four members were received into the Third Church Sunday morning. Mrs. W. S. Johnson and her grandmother, Mrs. Andrews, came from the Memorial Temple by letter, and Mrs. Johnson's two children, Esther and William D., came into the church by profession of faith. This makes the present enrollment of the church fifty-five.

ELON COLLEGE NOTES.

—Rev. W. W. Staley, D.D., was a visitor here Saturday and Sunday on his way to his home from Pleasant Grove, Virginia, where he assisted Dr. J. O. Atkinson in a series of revival meetings last week.

—Dr. E. L. Moffitt left Friday for the Shenandoah Valley, Virginia, where he will be several days in the interest of the College, attending in the mean time the Virginia Valley Central Conference.

—Mr. J. L. Lawrence, of Mineral Wells, Texas, joined his family Saturday, who have been here since about the middle of June. After a few days, they will go to visit relatives in Randolph County. Members of his family who have been in delicate health have improved rapidly since coming to this place. Next summer there will likely be a great many visitors at the College summer resort.

—Professor Kernodle, Mrs. Kernodle and their son, John T., are all sick. The professor has been confined to his room several weeks, but the other members of his family have been sick only a few days.

—Mrs. W. S. Tate is recovering slowly from a severe illness.

—Mrs. N. G. Newman, of Holland, Virginia, visited relatives here a few days last week.

—Mrs. W. C. Wicker and children are on a visit to her father, who is in very feeble health, in Nausemond County, Virginia.

—Mr. W. E. Lowe, traveling auditor on the Virginia Railway, is at home with his family this week.

—The contractors who are building Macadam roads in Alamance County, have reached this place grading the road leading from Burlington to the Guilford County line at Gibsonville, where it will connect with a like road leading through Guilford County by way of Greensboro and High Point.

—The college authorities are having another big well dug near the power house to add to the supply of water.

—Mr. D. M. Cook, of Franklinton, North Carolina, who spent several days with Mr. Clendenin's family here seeking to recuperate his health which has been very poor several months, was joined by his family and went several days ago to News Ferry, Virginia, to spend some time with Mrs. Cook's relatives.

—Miss Linda Barnes, of the College music faculty, who has been studying in Boston this summer, returned home Saturday.

—As the time approaches for the opening of the College Sept. 1, many requests are coming for accommodations for students.

MINISTERIAL PROVINCIALISM.

In the great reformation of theology which is taking place at the present time, it is amusing to hear the statements of wildly enthusiastic liberals and orthodox. Some enthusiastic liberals boldly affirm that all thinking people have dropped orthodox theology, while the equally enthusiastic orthodox as boldly claim that liberal theology is being rapidly eliminated from the earth. Perhaps we are in the very center of the battle, and like the crowd at the baseball game, we see the plays with eyes prejudicial to our sides. But there seems to me one thing which we should endeavor to cultivate—a reasonable respect for the opponent's manliness. Without some such conception as this we are handicapped in seeing things as they are, and may retard the coming of the kingdom of God.

With the editor's gracious permission, I should like to suggest a criticism upon a leading editorial in The Christian Sun of July 28th. In this editorial it is intimated that President Eliot is in his dotage and not "saved," because of his religious convictions, which he has cherished through a long and sacred life dedicated to educational ideals, do not agree with the religious conviction and theology of the editor. No one has ever accused me of being orthodox. Suppose I should say that the editor of The Christian Sun had no religion, because he was orthodox, would that prove anything to thinking men and women concerning the religion of Dr. Atkinson? Is it not a sign of provincialism for a young man today to lack the necessary imagination to recognize that men may be deeply religious, yet differ intellectually concerning the fundamentals of religion?

God is ever making a new heaven and a new earth, and in the continued flux, the ebb and flow are apparent to him who looks. And to me it seems a great pity that theologically the activities of the Christian connection should be directed against the resistless incoming tide, which it tries to sweep back, with the textual broom of a book religion.

Carlyle Summerbell.

Fal' River, Mass.

"But as for me, my feet were almost gone; my steps had well-nigh slipped."
"He shall give his angels charge over thee, to keep thee in all thy ways. They shall bear thee up in their hands, lest thou dash thy foot against a stone."

"My sorrow is continually before me." "Like as a father pitieth his children, so the Lord pitieth them that fear him." "As one whom his mother comforteth, so will I comfort you."

"I am weary of my crying; my throat is dried; mine eyes fail while I wait for my God." "God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away."—From "the Valley of Troubling."

THE CHRISTIAN ORPHANAGE DEPARTMENT.

CHILDREN'S CORNER.

The Band of Cousins.

Jas. L. Foster, Sec., Elon College, N. C.

"He that hath pity on the poor lendeth unto the Lord, and his good deed will He pay him again."—Prov. 19:17.

Reported last week .....$3,557.14

Monthly Dues:

Helen S. Foster .....	$ .30
Clifford Foster .....	.15
R. Leslie Newman .....	.05
Iola Timberlake .....	.15
Curtis Parke Harrell ...	.25
Mary Lee Foster .....	.10
James L. Foster, Jr. ....	.10

..Monthly S. S. Offerings:

Burlington, N. C. (June, July, Aug, '09). ....	12.71
Timber Ridge, Va. ....	2.08
Catawba Springs, N. C. .	2.48
Union-Virgilina, Va. ...	.50
Union Grove, N. C. ....	1.12

Special Offering:

Mrs. Bettie Cates (on support of children) ..	3.00
Chas. D. Johnson-Aug. ..	5.00
Am't. 28th week, 1909. —	$27.99
Total .....	$3,585.13

Elon College, N. C., Aug. 4, 1909.

My Dear Children and Friends:—

We are pleased to see so many children and friends interested this week; every letter adds increased interest to our corner and we do so much wish that we might average 50 letters per week from now till Christmas! Say, cousins, let's make the corner lively! Begin now—write at once, don't wait.

We would be so glad if our "Old Cousins" of the years past would send a cheering message along this way; it would help us so much.

We are grateful to the faithful Sunday schools and the few friends who help us monthly: if all Sunday schools would do as the few are doing we could accept at once the six pressing applications on our table tonight. Who will help us to care for those who want to come and need help?

Donations since last report:

Mrs. J. U. Newman, Elon College, N. C., one cloak.

We have had a fine season which will help the crops very much in this section.

With best wishes to all,

Fondly yours,
Uncle Jim,

Crews, Va., Aug. 4, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

Don't think I have forgotten the band. I'm awfully sorry I am so far behind but have been away from home. I had a delightful trip with my aunt in Norfolk. I'm home now for a short time, then I am going to see my uncle in the country. Hope you and all the cousins are spending a very pleasant summer. I send 45c. dues for three months.

Your fond little girl and boy, for the Band,

Helen S. Foster,
T. Clifford Foster.

A good time only helps these little folks to think of others and give them a good time. Glad to know of your happy summer, children. Will not others tell how you are spending your vacation.

Manson, N. C., Aug. 1, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

Will you allow a little fellow like me to join your happy band of cousins? I am just two years old. I have just begun to talk good. I go to school every Sunday with my penny, don't I cry for money to give to school.

This has been a rainy day.

Enclosed find nickel.

Your nephew,
R. Leslie Newman.

You have a royal welcome, little Leslie, and now won't it be nice if you will continue your letters till you are a man!

Wake Forest, N. C., July 26, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

I am a little late this time. I went to Raleigh the tenth of July on a Sunday school picnic and had a nice time. I have not forgot you and the little orphans. Enclosed find 15c. for June, July and August.

Your niece,
Iola Timberlake.

Glad Iola does not forget the Corner. The picnic I know was fine.

Dear Cousins:

We send in our dimes for July. We will tell you about our cats. We have one big Mama Cat, two right black kittens (we call them the "Gold-Dust Twins"), one gray kitty and one yellow.

One of the "Gold-Dust Twins" most had a fight over a mouse the other day and one liked to have caught a little bird but we got it away. The little birdie was killed though so we buried it. Bad little black kittie shouldn't have him to eat.

Lovingly,
Mary Lee Foster,
James L. Foster, Jr.

Somerton, Va., July 26, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

Please pardon my delay. I have been helping daddy with the crop and have not had time to write. Enclosed you'll find twenty-five cents which "Grand-papa Harrell" gave me. He gives me five cents every time he sees me and I save it until I get a quarter and then send it to you.

With lots of love,

Your little nephew,
Curtis Park Harrell.

Tell Grandpapa to come see you often, Curtis, then you'll get a quarter "quick." Many thanks.

To Drive Out Malaria and Build up the System.

Take the Old Standard GROVE'S PASTELESS CHILL TONIC. You know what you are taking. The formula is plainly printed on every bottle, showing it is simply Quinine and Iron in a tasteless form, and the most effectual form. For grown people and children. 50c.

The North Carolina COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE AND MECHANIC ARTS.

The State's college for vocational training. Courses in Agriculture and Horticulture; in Civil, Electrical and Mechanical Engineering; in Cotton Milling and Dyeing; in Industrial Chemistry. Why not fit yourself for life by taking one of these courses? Address D. H. HILL, President, West Raleigh, N. C.

READ SOMETHING DIFFERENT.

The Greensboro Daily News, the new State paper, is worthy of a trial. Associated Press service, special correspondence, clean, newsy, liberal. One year $6.00; three months $1.50.

GREENSBORO DAILY NEWS,
Greensboro, N. C.

FREE SCHOLARSHIP FOR TUITION

In Meridian Male College to cornetist, clarionetist, flutist, trombonist, or piccoloist to play in college band.

For particulars apply to M. A. Beeson, President, Box 32, Meridian, Miss.

RALEIGH & SOUTHPORT RY. Co.

P. M. A. M.	STATIONS.	A. M. P. M.
1:15	6:00 Raleigh	8:30 3:45
1:54	6:24 McCullers	7:52 3:03
2:11	6:59 Willow Sp'gs	7:37 2:45
2:23	7:14 Varina	7:27 2:34
2:35	7:26 Fuquay Sp'gs	7:19 2:25
2:55	7:45 Kipling	7:00 2:05
3:15	8:05 Lillington	6:41 1:44
3:41	8:28 Linden	6:15 1:17
4:30	9:15 Fayetteville	5:30 12:30

JNO. A. MILLS, Pres. and Gen. Mgr.

(Begin on page 7)

people), for the space of two hours to cry "Great is Diana of the Ephesians." Their crying it did not make it any less an idol. It simply shows the extremes to which men will go rather than accept an unpalatable and unprofitable (from a worldly standpoint) truth. Are you an Ephesian in this sense?

3. We must all stand in awe at the wonderful courage of Paul on this occasion. This mob had been stirred up against him. The whole city was in confusion. The men in the theatre were raving mad. They would have been only too glad to tear him in pieces. Yet he was anxious to go in, had to be restrained from going in and speaking to them. Yet the secret of his courage is clear. He was so sure he was right and had such confidence in the truth of the gospel he was preaching that he felt no danger could come to him even from such a raving mob. We may be sure of what Paul would have said to them; it would have been a proclamation of the way.

Manual Work.—Have the pupils enter in their note books for expansion at home the following outline:

56 A. D.—Paul purposes a tour to various places, Acts 19:21-22.

Paul expected to remain at Ephesus till Pentecost, 1 Cor. 16:8.

Demetrius in May(?) stirs up a riot, Acts 19:23-41.

Assignments for Next Time.—Ask all to read carefully chapters 12-14 of First Corinthians. Ask one to memorize the 13th chapter of First Corinthians; another to report on Acts 2:1-21; a third to read and report on the First Epistle of John; a fourth on what Jesus declared as to the two great commandments, Mark 12:28-30; a fifth to write a short essay on "Modern Public Charity." W. A. Harper.

Elon College, N. C.

THE S. S. LESSON FOR AUG. 15, 1909.

Paul's Third Missionary Journey—
Ephesus: Acts 19:8-20.

Golden Text.—The name of the Lord Jesus was magnified: Acts 19:17.

After a short time wasted at Antioch in unhappy altercations, Paul resumes his missionary labors with Timothy, having left Silas apparently at Jerusalem. Pursuing the general course of his last tour through Cilicia, Lycaonia, Galatia, and Phrygia, doubtless visiting these churches, he came to Ephesus. This route would lead him again to his own early home in Cilicia, and Timothy to the scenes of his early childhood in Lycaonia.

Ephesus became for three years, A.

D. 54 to 57, the scene of the Apostle's labors and the centre of his missionary operations, during which time he wrote his Epistle to the Galatians and the first to the Corinthians and probably that to Titus and the first to Timothy.

The city was situated in Ionia on the western coast of Asia Minor, upon the south bank of the Cayster, thirty miles south from the city of Smyrna. It was a very ancient center of commerce, a city of great wealth, and wholly given up to idolatry. The great goddess Diana was its tutelary divinity. Her temple, four hundred and twenty-five feet in length and two hundred and twenty in width, was adorned with a colonnade of one hundred and twenty-seven columns of Parian marble, sixty feet in height. The several columns of this colonnade were each the gift of as many monarchs. This temple was burned the night of Oct. 13, B. C. 256, the date Alexander the Great was born, Herostratus committing the deed to gain immortal fame among men. This temple was at once rebuilt with equal magnificence and became one of the seven wonders of the world. The city now is in utter ruins, but some traces of this ancient magnificence remain.

In his labors here Paul was helped by the lay-members, was successful, defeated the vagabond Jews by means of a Demoniac and so effectually was the good work done that the gentile converts gave proof of their conversion by publicly burning their evil books.

As a Jew Paul claimed his place in the synagogue, he worked there as long as good could be done and when separation became necessary he showed himself to act wisely by taking care of the work done. G. W. T.

MUDDY VISION.

When a bill that required safety devices in factories was recently pending before a state legislature, an officer of a great association of manufacturers sent to the members a circular that called attention to the bill, and inquired: "How will this affect your business?" When the first Christian missionaries began preaching in Ephesus, some nineteen centuries ago, a well-to-do silversmith named Demetrius, who found that Christianity was reducing the sales of the silver shrines and images of the goddess Diana, opposed the new movement vigorously by calling together his fellow business men and declaring: "Sirs, ye know that by this business we have our wealth." He added as an afterthought that their city's religion was also being endangered.

Professor George A. Coe, the well-known writer and lecturer of Northwestern University, has just written a severe arraignment of the muddy vision of many otherwise good Christian men of today in matters wherein genuine Christianity would diminish financial profits, in a searching discussion of "Demetrius: the Pious Business Man," which appears in the Sunday School Times. He even dares to suggest that there is an adroit silversmith in each of us whose prejudice confuses our moral vision. The article will set a good many people to thinking.—S. S. Times.

They call thee rich, I call thee poor;
Since, if thou darest not use thy store,
But savest it only for thine heirs,
The treasure is not thine, but theirs.

—William Cowper.

SEABOARD AIR LINE RAILWAY. QUICKEST LINE TO

New York, Washington, Charlotte, Florida Points, Atlanta, Birmingham, Memphis, New Orleans and the West.

Double Daily Service with High-Back-Seat Coaches, Pullman Sleeping and Dining Cars.

We operate Daily Vestibule service, with through Pullman Sleeping Cars to Jacksonville, Atlanta, Birmingham, Memphis, Portsmouth, Norfolk, Richmond, Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York.

For Time Tables, Booklets Reservations or any information relative to special rates and route, call on or address C. H. GATTIS, Trav. Passenger Agt., No. 4 Tucker Building, Raleigh, N. C.

YOUNG MEN! If you want to know why you should become telegraph operators and what school to attend, write to SOUTHERN SCHOOL OF TELEGRAPHY, Newman, Ga., for free Catalogue "A." EVERY BOY should read it. Positions positively guaranteed.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup

Has been used for over SIXTY-FIVE YEARS by MILLIONS of MOTHERS for their CHILDREN WHILE TEething, with PERFECT SUCCESS. It SOOTHES the CHILD, SOFTENS the GUMS, ALLAYS all PAIN; CURES WIND COLIC, and is the best remedy for DIARRHŒA. Sold by Druggists in every part of the world. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Guaranteed under the Food and Drug Act, June 30th, 1906. Serial Number 1098. AN OLD AND WELL TRIED REMEDY.

MEDICINE.

We prepare as good medicine, the very best medicine that the finest, freshest, most potent drugs and chemicals will produce when carefully and skilfully compounded by an expert prescription man—just such medicine as your physician means that you should have, medicine of the utmost possible effectiveness. May we prepare your medicine?

FREEMAN DRUG CO.,
Burlington, N. C.

COLUMBUS, GA., LETTER.

The third Sunday instant Rev. E. M. Carter preached at Waverly Terrace morning and evening. The congregations were not large, but the services were deeply interesting. The Sunday school at this place has made a very nice beginning, about fifty members having been enrolled. Bro. Elijah Cook is superintendent and he seems anxious for the school to build up and become a working force for the church. Doubtless the greatest need of this new church is a pastor for full time. The work cannot prosper as it ought, without a man on the field every week and in the pulpit twice every Sunday.

At North Highlands the third Sunday we had very pleasant services. The eleven o'clock service was given to missions. The congregation manifested a deep interest in this subject. In the afternoon we baptized six young people, among the number there being a bright boy only nine years of age. What a noble start in the Christian life has this boy made. If he lives to be an aged man, think of the years of service he may render to the cause of Christ. It is our duty as Christians to look well to the salvation of the children. To save the children now means working men and women in the church of the future.

It was the writer's privilege last week to assist Rev. H. W. Elder in a series of meetings at Oak Grove. The services were well attended and several nights during the meeting every seat in the church was taken. The church was much revived and a good meeting was the result. Sixteen members had been received when we had to leave. Others might have joined later.

Oak Grove is just a few miles from the community in which my maternal grandfather lived and reared his family and where my father lived until my mother was killed in a cyclone that swept through that section of country on the 15th of April, 1884, leaving me an infant only thirteen months old. When I was six years old my father carried me with him on a visit to my mother's people. Until last week I had not been there in twenty years. The old house is still standing, but the voices that were heard there many years ago will not be heard again on earth. I visited the old home, drank water from the family spring still in use, went to the church where "Grandpa" was a deacon for many long years, saw the place where mother was killed, and strolled through the graveyard and paused for a while at the place where she was laid to rest. While there I lingered my thoughts were turned toward God, heaven and home where "there will be no more sorrow, no more bitter cries," but where all is light and love. G. O. Lankford.

July 24, 1909.

NEWS ITEMS.

—In the Democratic primary held in Virginia August 5, Judge William Hodges Mann was nominated over St. George Tueker for governor. The Anti-Saloon League supported Judge Mann's candidacy.

—The Alabama Legislature has passed a far more stringent prohibition bill than the present statutory State-wide Prohibition law, the new law wiping out all "near" beer and social club places of sale.

—President Taft has gone to Beverly, Mass., for the remainder of the summer. September 15 he will start South and West on the most extensive trip ever yet taken by a President. The trip will embrace all but eight or ten of the States of the Union and will not be concluded till the middle of November. It will be a journey of about 13,000 miles.

—The August bulletin of the State Board of Health prints the following which will no doubt be a surprise to many: "Under Chapter 808, laws of 1909, the public is hereby officially notified that the water sold by the Buffalo Lithia Springs Water Company, Buffalo Lithia Springs, Va., has been found, in three successive analyses, made by the State laboratory of hygiene, to be dangerous to the public health."

—We are very much surprised, and grieved, to see the The Charlotte Observer speaking of "Apple-dumpling pie." That is unpardonable. If there ever came a finished and perfect product from the kitchen, that was apple dumpling. Apple pie is a wholly different institution. The esteemed Observer is evidently trying to dupe up and has no doubt begun already to part its hair in the middle.

—A new convert, full of zeal, in his first prayer-meeting remarks offered himself for service. "I am ready to do anything the Lord asks of me," said he, "so long as it's honorable."—Life.

TULANE

UNIVERSITY of LOUISIANA

NEW ORLEANS

EDWIN B. CRAIGHEAD, LL. D., President.

Tulane University in all its departments, is located in the City of New Orleans, the metropolis of the South. Nine Departments, with twenty-three buildings. Modern dormitories, extensive laboratories, libraries, and museums.

Full Courses are offered in Languages, Sciences, Engineering, Architecture, Art, Law, Medicine, Pharmacy, and Dentistry.

Separate Department for Women. Expenses low. Low dormitory rates. Next session of all departments, except N. O. Polyclinic, begins October 1st. Polyclinic opens November 1st. Send for catalogue. Address, B. K. BRUMP, Secretary.

A LEADING BOARDING SCHOOL
for 250 Students. Established 1884. Prepares for College, Business, Teaching, or for Life. Healthy Character and Scholarship. Wide patronage. Very reasonable rates. Each student receives personal attention. School highly endorsed. (Location is near Greensboro, N. C.) For beautiful Catalogue, Views, etc., address the President.
W. T. WHITSETT, Ph. D.,
Whitsett, North Carolina.

USE OUR MONEY
Establish a profitable and lasting business of your own. Be your own boss. We furnish everything, including Sample Outfit valued at $3.50. We began with nothing; are now worth $100,000; what we did you can do; we will gladly help you. Big Catalogue, Plans and Sample Outfit now ready and ALL FREE. Write now. Insolated Portrait & Frame Co.
290-10 W. Adams St., Chicago, Ill.

PIEDMONT
"IS THE BEST."
Write for Catalogue
Piedmont Business College
Lynchburg, Va.

DO YOU WANT TO GO TO COLLEGE? If so we can help you. We have already put hundreds through college by means of our plan. Write today for full information regarding our offer of a free scholarship in any school or college. Address, Robert J. Sherlock, 29-31 East 22nd Street, New York City.

DR. J. H. BROOKS
Surgeon and Dentist
FOSTER BUILDING,
Burlington, N. C.

SPRING TIME.

The time for gardening is here and you need garden tools. We can supply you at lowest prices.

Poultry Wire.

The best assorted stock in the county. Four different styles and weight.

Come and See.

Remember plumbing and bath room fixtures, a speciality. You will find us on Davis St. third door from Post office.
BURLINGTON HARDWARE CO.

When in Burlington call at
T. H. STROUD'S

Store for DRUGS, SOFT DRINKS, and anything desired in drugs and Toilet Articles.

RAISE MONEY FOR YOUR CHURCH.

We offer you an easy method. Send us a photograph of your church or your pastor, and we will send you 500 high grade post cards, with photograph on each card, and scripture verse if desired. Sell these cards at 10 cents each. When sold, remit us $20.00 and keep the balance. You can do this in a week. We will return photograph.

LAKE SHORE SUPPLY CO.,
225 Broad St., St. Joe, Michigan.

THE FARMER'S REVERIE.
What He Thought One Night as
He Sat Up Alone.

Did you ever sit down at night, Mr. Farmer, after all the folks had gone to bed, and think about the advantages of a telephone in your home? This is a matter that will interest you seriously.

There's Mary in the next room—fast asleep. Suppose she were taken suddenly ill. You would need a doctor. The doctor lives miles away. She might die before he arrived if he didn't come in a hurry. Shouldn't you prepare to get this as soon as possible?

Suppose your barn caught fire tonight. You alone couldn't fight the flames, or get the stock safely out and protect your home from flying embers. If you and your neighbors had telephones, you could summon immediate aid.

Suppose you had a lot of produce ready for market. Do you know the current prices? If you had a telephone you could call up the commission merchant in town in the morning and get quotations before you shipped and if the market were low, you could hold on a day or so until it got better. This would be more profitable than shipping and taking chances on putting your consignment at the mercy of the merchant—or a stagnant market.

Suppose your wife wants goods from town. The weather is nasty. The roads are bad. You don't want to send the team. The telephone would be handy!

Does your wife ever get lonesome? A few minutes' chat with a neighbor over the telephone does much to enliven a woman's life on the farm.

Don't you sometimes want to send a message in a hurry? Here's where the telephone is intensely valuable.

But, you think, suppose I put in a telephone, it will do me no good; none of my neighbors have phones. The telephone company comes in at this point with a proposition including a telephone for you and the people who live in your neighborhood, besides town connection. Ask the local manager of the Bell Telephone Company in the nearest town about it, or write to "Farmer's Line Department," Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Company, 19 South Pryor St., Atlanta, Ga., and get a descriptive booklet.

CANCER CAN BE CURED.

Personal or Home Treatment. Both successful. Scores of testimonials, from persons who gladly write to those now suffering, all tell of permanent cures. My Mild Combination Treatment destroys growth and eliminates the disease from the system. Free book "Cancer and Its Cure" and 125-page book of testimonials from cured patients in all parts of the country. No matter how serious your case, how many operations you have had, or what treatment you have taken, don't give up hope, but write at once Dr. Johnson Remedy Co., 125 Grand Ave., Kansas City, Mo. Physicians treated free.

He judges not solely by uttered prayer;
 He knows when the yearnings of love
 are there;
 He knows you do pray, he knows you do
 trust;
 And he knows the limit of poor, weak dust.
 He knows all about it—the dear Lord knows.
 So just go to sleep as a baby goes,
 Without even asking him if you may;
 God knows when his child is too tired to pray.

—Anonymous.

They call thee rich, I call thee poor;
 Since, if thou darrest not use thy store,
 But savest it only for thine heirs,
 The treasure is not thine, but theirs.

—William Cowper.

Self-Sharpening Shears

Always ready to cut anything from wet tissue paper to heavy cloth. New simple idea. Cuts clean and sharp to the points of blades. Will last for years. Don't pay big prices for shears but get this one mailed to your address on receipt of ONE DOLLAR GUARANTEED.

NEED SUPPLY CO.,

Lock Box 466, Bloomington, Ill.

Books for Every Christian Home.

Do you know why you are a member of the Christian Church?
 Do you understand what the church stands for and teaches?
 If not, send and get a copy of the "Principles and Government of the Christian Church," just revised and greatly improved by order of the Southern Christian Convention.

Cloth binding per copy, post paid 50 cts.

Limp Cloth binding per copy, post paid 35 cts.

Paper binding per copy, post paid 25 cts.

Handsome Persian Morocco, with name in gilt $1.25.

The Southern Christian Convention also Ordered Another Book Published, PREPARING THE SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER TO TEACH. Edited by Profs. W. A. Harper, W. C. Wicker and W. P. Lawrence.

The book is neatly printed and bound and is invaluable to the Sunday-school worker, 236 pages.

Paper binding per copy, postpaid, 60 cts.

Cloth binding per copy, postpaid, 90 cts.

To Sunday-schools, paper binding 50 cts. cloth 75 cts.

Have You Read That Thrilling and Inspiring Story of His Own Life, MOTHER'S ANSWERED PRAYER, BY REV. P. H. FLEMING, D. D.?

Cloth binding, postpaid 55 cts.

All these books should be in your home. Order at once

For sale by, THE CHRISTIAN SUN, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

IT'S INT ERESTING

to hear the different comments on dif ferent Shoes. All shoes have some good points; Style or comfort or service.

WALK-OV ER SHOES

have all the good points; style and comfort and service and their price is the best point of all. $3.50, 4.00 & 5.00.

Foster Shoe Co., Burlington, N. C.

Dry Goods, Notions, Ready Made Clothing.

When in Burlington visit our large store, supplied always with the very best and latest styles and novelties.

Our Dry Goods are of latest designs, and our Ready Made Clothing cannot be surpassed in quality and price.

Come, See. Be Convinced.

B. A. SELLARS & SONS. BURLINGTON. N. C.

D I E L .*Brown.

Bro. C. C. Brown departed this life June 2, 1909. Bro. Brown was a member of Ebenezer Christian Church, having united with this church Sept. 23, 1889. He leaves a wife and two small children to brave the storms of life alone.

"In the midst of life we are in death." By such we are constantly warned that ere long we too shall be called hence.

May the mercy and comfort of the Lord rest upon and overshadow the bereaved ones forever.

M. F. Carlton.

Bailey.

At the hospital, Richmond, Va., July 9, 1909, Mrs. Annie M. Bailey, aged 17 years. Beloved wife of Mr. J. H. Bailey and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Edwards, of Antioch Church, Isle of Wight Co., Va. Married about one month and 23 days. She was a member of Antioch, and therefore Bro. Bailey and all the bereaved ones have the sympathy of their many friends. The Lord bless and comfort them with the thought of meeting by and by in Heaven.

Pierce.

Near Suffolk, Va., July 7, 1909, Ray Butler Pierce, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Pierce, aged 3 years, 8 months and 29 days. He leaves father, mother, two half brothers one half sister, one own brother, and four own sisters. This is the second child Brother and Sister Pierce have lost for the past few months. They have the deepest sympathy of their many friends. The funeral service was conducted at Bethlehem by the pastor and the remains of the little one were laid to rest in the church cemetery to await the coming of Him who said, Suffer little children to come unto me.

Butler.

Near Windsor, Va., July 16, 1909, Miss Martha Butler, aged 84 years, 10 months and 22 days. She made a profession of religion at the early age of 16 years and united with Antioch Church and was faithful to the end. She was confined to her bed about four years but bore her sufferings with much Christian fortitude, being resigned to the will of her Lord. She leaves to mourn their loss one sister, two brothers, and many friends. Her funeral service was conducted by her pastor and her remains were placed away in the old family burying ground to await the resurrection morn.

Byrd.

Near Cypress Chapel, Va., July 24, 1909, Reuben H. Byrd, aged about 44 years. I had the pleasure of marrying Bro. Byrd on the 23d of last May to Mrs. Missouri Mathias. He was married on the fourth Sunday in May and I was called to conduct his funeral service on the fourth Sunday in July. It was very sad indeed. He was a good man and greatly beloved by all who knew him. He was a member of Great Faulk Baptist Church and was faithful to the end. He leaves to mourn their loss a devoted wife, father, mother, one brother, one sister, and a host of friends. His funeral service was conducted by the writer at his home and his remains were placed to rest in the family burying ground. The bereaved ones have the sympathy of their many friends. May the Lord bless and comfort them all.

REMEMBER: That we guarantee satisfaction and sell to you cheaper than the publisher and dealers do. Our business is by mail and express and prices quoted are the prices of goods delivered to you. We can furnish you the Oxford, or the Holman Teacher's Bible at prices ranging from $1.35 to $4.00. Send for our catalogue or write us what you want. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN, Elon College, N. C.

Why You Should take the Herald of Gospel Liberty

BECAUSE it furnishes needed information in a thoroughly interesting and up-to-date manner.

BECAUSE it interprets movements within the Christian Church in a Christian spirit in relation to other churches throughout the world.

BECAUSE the Christian Church could not do its part as a Christian Church without a newspaper like the Herald of Gospel Liberty.

BECAUSE it is the best religious newspaper published in America, having proved itself for ONE HUNDRED YEARS the friend of the entire family, chronicling each week the progress of the world by its record of current events interpreted from a Christian standpoint, bringing interesting and helpful reading of the highest literary quality for every member of the family, old and young.

TERMS: $1.50 PER YEAR

Send for sample copies

Christian Publishing Association

J. N. HESS, Agent

DAYTON, OHIO

Saunders.

Near Windsor, Va., Aug. 1, 1909, Mrs. Martha Virginia Saunders, aged 72 years and 29 days. She was suffering for five years but was only confined to her bed five weeks. She made a profession of religion when quite young and united with Antioch Church and was true and faithful to her profession. She loved her church and will be greatly missed in the neighborhood and church. She was truly a good mother. God bless the memory of mother. Her dear husband, Joseph G. Saunders, died about eleven years ago, after having lived together happily for more than 40 years. She leaves to mourn their loss four sons and one daughter. Sons, Joseph A., of Windsor, Va., Charlie E., William K., of Isle of Wight Co., Va., and John E. Saunders, of Portsmouth, Va; Mrs. Hattie E. Blanchard, of Norfolk, Va; 21 grandchildren, three great-grandchildren, and a host of friends. Her funeral service was conducted by her pastor at Antioch and the remains of a loving mother and a faithful friend were laid to rest. God bless and comfort the bereaved ones.

H. H. B.

Holland.

Mrs. Addie L. Holland was born May 4, 1879, died July 19, 1909. Early in life she joined Antioch Christian Church. After her marriage to A. L. Holland, she moved her membership to Holland Church. After a few years she moved near Mt. Carmel Church and moved her membership to this church and remained a faithful member until her death. She leaves to mourn her departure five children, one daughter and four sons, a loving husband, a father and mother, and a host of friends.

Funeral services were conducted at Mt. Carmel Christian Church by the writer in the presence of a large gathering of sympathizing friends. May He who has said, "I will never leave thee nor forsake thee" comfort and sustain the sorrowing ones, and may the hope of future meeting comfort their hearts in this time of sadness.

R. H. Peel.

Carr.

Mrs. Mary Francis Carr, wife of Mr. Matthew Carr, was born August 7, 1847; died July 20, 1909. At the age of 12 years she joined Antioch Christian Church, where she remained a member till her death. During her last sickness she was a great sufferer, but bore her sufferings with Christian patience. She often expressed a desire to be freed from her sufferings and go home to be with her Savior.

A loving and aged husband, three children, two brothers and one sister survive her. May the comforting grace of a Savior support and sustain them. Funeral services at Antioch Christian Church by the writer. R. H. Peel.

[EDUCATIONAL.]

Horner Military School

1851—1909.
Oxford, North Carolina

Classical, Scientific and English Courses. Prepares for College, University or the Government Academies. Military training develops prompt obedience and manly carriage. Academy 58 years old, with experienced teachers. Cadets dine with the principal and ladies of his family, securing the culture of home life. Cultivates and educates. Modern buildings, perfect sanitation, wholesome fare, no crowding. Best moral, mental, physical and social training. Shady lawn, athletic park, one quarter mile running track. 300 acres. Ideal climate, helpful environment. In the social atmosphere of refined Christian people. The town noted for over a century as an educational centre.
Catalogues ready for distributing

HORNER MILITARY SCHOOL
Col. J. C. Horner, Principal, Oxford, N. C.

VITA SPRING

(Alkaline Chalybeate)

MINERAL WATER

The Peerless Medicinal Properties of this Water Make it

Nature's Own Remedy

for the cure of indigestion, liver and kidney trouble, uric acid poisoning, gastritis, constipation, rheumatism and all specific complaints caused by impure blood. As an illustration, its curative power is so great that old sores bathed several times each day in Vita Spring Mineral Water, disappear in a few days. It is recommended by

The House of Representatives of South Carolina
as "a pure mineral water of medicinal properties,"
From the thousands of unsolicited testimonials received from relieved sufferers, we quote the following:

A. L. R. Avant, M. D., Savannah, Ga., says: "It made me feel like my former self."

Miss L. B. Terry, Barton, S. C., says: "It relieved me of indigestion and gave me a better color than I have had in years."

R. B. Tarrant, P. M., Springfield, S. C., says: "It acted nicely on my kidneys. A fine invigorator."

Special introductory price, 5-gallon demijohns, $1 per 5 gallons.
Send for free illustrated and descriptive booklet.
Local agents wanted.

The Vita Spring
Shelton, S. C.

ANALYSIS

Calcium Carbonate	12.505
Magnesium Carbonate	3.399
Calcium Sulphate	.577
Sodium Sulphate	4.565
Potassium Sulphate	.624
Sodium Chloride	5.964
Iron Sesquioxide and Alumina	.023
Silica	2.303
	29.960

DON'T TINKER

CORTRIGHT

CORTRIGHT METAL SHINGLES are made in the form of wood shingles, but have none of their faults or weaknesses—they will not split, curl, burn or rot, but they will outlast any building they cover. No tinkering at repairs. If you want the best roof money can buy, write for our three free books, showing all styles of Cortright Metal Shingles, as used all over America, and the name of your neighbor using them.

CORTRIGHT METAL ROOFING CO., 54 N. 23d St., Philadelphia

King.

George Clay King, infant son of G. A. and Mary C. King, July 28, 1909, aged seven months and twenty days. He was the only child of his fond parents and his death, after a brief illness, came as a severe shock to them. The funeral services were conducted from the home, Haw River, N. C., by the writer and the little one's body was buried at Long's Chapel Church. Four girls dressed in white acted as pallbearers. May the blessings of God rest upon the bereaved parents.

P. H. Fleming.

Holland.

William Harrison Holland, son of the late Carr and Cecy Holland, died at his home near Holland, Va., July 25, 1909, after a long and serious illness from dropsy, aged 50 years. He leaves a widow and two children, two brothers and two sisters. The funeral was conducted at the home by the writer and the remains buried in the family cemetery near by. He had been a member of Holy Neck Church from early life. We extend our sincere sympathy to his family and pray the divine blessing upon them.

N. G. Newman.

Holland.

Jasper Floyd Holland, son of P. C. Holland and wife, departed this life at his home, near Holland, Va., July 22, 1909, at the age of 20 years and 11 months, after an illness of two weeks with typhoid fever and meningitis. The funeral services were conducted by the writer at Holland Christian Church and the remains buried in Holland cemetery. He leaves a father and mother, five brothers and two sisters, and a large number of relatives and friends who feel very keenly his early and sad death. To all of these we extend our Christian sympathy and commend them to the love and keeping of our Heavenly Father.

N. G. Newman.

MARRIED.*Byrd - Holland.

Larnie Byrd and Luberta Holland were united in marriage at the home of the bride, near Holland, Va., July 21, 1909. The attendants were Lozie Holland and Ola Holland, Harvie Holland and Georgia Holland, Willie Holland and Lida Holland, Kelly Holland and Mary Holland, Gus Holland and Jennie Holland. A large number of friends and relatives witnessed the ceremony, after which the bridal party repaired to the home of the groom near by and partook of a generous wedding supper. The groom is a son of Oliver and Lucy Jane

Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Is paying out and investing in both Virginia and North Carolina more than it receives from these States.

New business in Virginia, 1908,
$2,147,800
Larger than any other company.

Gain in insurance in force in Virginia, 1908,
$1,374,975

60 per cent more than the next largest.

T. ARCHIBALD CARY, General Agent for Virginia and North Carolina,
Richmond, Virginia.

During 1908

(As in previous years)

We want you in our business, for we have what you want in your homes—the very best, most substantial and handsome furniture at bottom prices. We are also the undertakers.

Burke Furniture and Coffin Company

BURLINGTON, N. C.

Southern Railway

Operating Over 7,000 Miles of Railway. Quick Route to all Points North, South, East and West.

For Speed, Comfort, Courteous Employees, travel via the Southern Railway. Rates, Schedules and other information furnished by any of the undersigned.

R. L. VERNON, Trav. Pass. Agt.,
Charlotte, N. C.

J. H. WOOD, Dist. Pass. Agt.,
Asheville, N. C.

S. H. HARDWICK, P. T. M.,

W. H. TAYLOE, G. P. A.,

Washington, D. C.

Elon College.*Co-educational. Established 1890.

Thorough College courses leading to M. A., A. B., and Ph. B. degrees. Strong and experienced Faculty with highest University training. Good Library, Reading Room, Laboratories, Literary Societies. Excellent Music, Art, Elocution and Business Departments. Diploma from Elon admits to graduate departments in the highest universities.

Beautiful and healthful location, 17 miles east of Greensboro on Southern Railway. Best moral and religious influence. No hazing. New students met by reception committees from young people's Christian organizations connected with the college. Good equipment. A large new dormitory, with modern conveniences, has recently been built to meet the requirements of growing patronage.

EXPENSES UNUSUALLY MODERATE. FALL TERM OPENS SEPT. 1ST.

For catalogue or further information, address

EMMETT L. MOFFITT, LL. D., President.

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

Byrd, and the bride is the daughter of E. Smith and Texanna Holland. May success and happiness attend them through life.

N. G. Newman.

—The purchase of Alaska has proved to be a profitable investment. Its gold fields are three times larger than those of California, its copper field is the largest in the world, and its coal fields are the best and largest west of the Alleghenies.

THE NORTH CAROLINA STATE NORMAL AND INDUSTRIAL COLLEGE.

Maintained by the State for the women of North Carolina. Four regular courses leading to degrees. Special courses for teachers. Fall session begins September 15, 1909. Those desiring to enter should apply as early as possible. For catalogue and other information address

J. I. FOUST, Pres., Greensboro, N. C.

The Christian Sun.

State Library

In Essentials—Unity, in Non-Essentials—Liberty, in All Things—Charity.

ESTABLISHED 1844.

GREENSBORO N. C., WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 18, 1909.

VOLUME LXI, NUMBER 32.

CURRENT COMMENT.

To what calling shall a young man give himself? Different tastes, and dispositions, will dictate different answers, but many a young man, to his own disadvantage, will rate the various vocations at a worth quite different to that of President Taft, who places the professions as to their comparative worth and merit thus: The ministry first, teaching next, literature and journalism next, then medicine, finally the law.

In sending the son or daughter to school the coming session the moral and religious surroundings should be taken into the account. No education of the head is sufficient. No amount of book learning ever saved or made a man or a woman. It takes more than books. What sort of men are to instruct your boys and girls? Pupils learn lessons from books, but they learn life and build character from their teachers. Any education with the Christ and God left out is a dangerous education. If the alternative had to be drawn, which is not needful, one would better live and die without education and with Christ, than with education and without Christ.

The editor of the N. Y. Christian Advocate, writing last week of unrest in college, concludes thus:

"Whatever 'unrest' there is in institutions of higher learning, 'unrest' there is and should be in the hearts of parents as to what college or university they can safely commit their sons and daughters. They cannot desire them to be exposed to immoral influences; nor to skepticism; nor to the dry rot of formalism; nor to the glee of competitive discoveries of mistakes in the Bible; nor to philosophies the sum and substance of which is that Nature is God, or that if Nature be not God He must not be considered personal in any sense with which they are familiar; or to be left wholly alone on the subject of religion."

Poor, pitiable Thaw. At first the public was startled by his profligate character and desperate wickedness. When Harry K. Thaw shot Stanford White to death it seemed the mad act of a common, malicious murderer. The world does not so regard it now. Thaw is a dangerous, insane, overwrought, degenerate man. He is in the only suitable place for him, and safe place as to others, namely, in an insane asylum. Written out in large letters, it reads, a life of indulgence has led to ruin. Aimless, purposeless, without vocation and without tasks and toil, his strength is wasted and his mind is wrecked. He has indulged his passion for the classics, and is a great Greek scholar, we are told. But what boots it? His study was purposeless, and his learning without aim. Pampered, petted, spoiled, indulged, his vitality has been wasted, his mental and moral vigor destroyed. A sorry and pitiable spectacle to behold is Thaw. But in all his unholy and downward and useless career, Thaw's mother has stood by him as only a devoted mother could, and has seemingly done her best to rescue and reclaim him. But too late. Much indulgence has brought him to ruin.

Alabama seems to be in dead and desperate earnest about the liquor question. Its Legislature has passed, and Governor signed, a bill to stop the sale of "near-beer" and abolish the "locker clubs." If any man in the State is found in possession of Internal Revenue license for the manufacture or sale of liquor that is to be prima facie evidence of guilt. It seems that Alabama is to make a fight, with full drawn sword, against liquor and the saloon, for sobriety and the home, and here is wishing all success in its great, good battle.

People prefer talking to sending messages. This may be due to the charm and melody of the human voice in comparison with the noise of an electric instrument. At any rate telephones are outstripping telegraphs by leaps and bounds. Telephone companies in this country own 12,999,369 miles of wire, telegraph companies owning not one sixth as much. In 1880 there were only 34,305 miles of telephone wire, while telegraph lines were more than nine times as much. No wonder stock in telegraph companies has been going down. Wireless telegraphy has so far been a losing rather than a gaining financial proposition, the wireless being conducted at a loss; but this is not likely to continue so. Fortune, like fancy, is very fickle, and great corporations cannot always tell in which direction it will fly. Man cannot put his trust in riches.

People never tire of land, yea, even a little more land. Either because made of the dust of the earth, or because he must be buried in the earth, man has natural hunger for land. Almost every one hopes or expects, at some time, to own a piece of land, and those who own some expect to own more. Land is real estate the State says, all other estates being unreal, we infer. At any rate the mind so regards land. No wonder then that last week when the Government offered some new settlements in Idaho there were 300,000 applicants, though not one in a hundred stood a chance of securing a settlement. Land is permanent and abides. For that which does not fade and perish the heart of man has desire and yearning. Why then is the heart not more outspoken for that which time can not waste, nor the earth take away, yea even the gift of God unto eternal righteousness.

—The defense of the Panama Canal is a problem of vital strategic and commercial importance to the United States. A number of strong fortifications and batteries, embracing the most modern and powerful appliances of warfare, are to be installed to guard the entrances to the great waterway. The complete system, it is estimated, will cost about $10,000,000, exclusive of armament. On the islands of the Pacific side, which lie near the coast and the entrance to the Canal, are to be placed some of the most powerful guns in the world, the great 16-inch breech-loading rifles, over fifty feet long. This great engine of destruction can hurl a monster steel projectile, weighing over 2,000 pounds, a distance of fifteen miles. The gun with carriage costs over $200,000. To fire one shot costs nearly $1,000.

—Violate truth wilfully in the slightest particular, or at least, get into the habit of violating it, and all kinds of failure and error will surround you to your fall.—Ruskin.

FROM THE FIELD.*New Hope.

Saturday before the fourth Sunday we began our revival at New Hope. This was a great feast to many hearts. It was almost like having a family reunion with the Manning family. It did our hearts good to see our dear old brother enjoy himself with his children.

We also appreciate the presence of Dr. J. W. Manning with us at our annual revival meeting. God bless them all. The Lord was with us in great power and the church was very much revived. Eight bright young men and ladies were added to the roll of membership. These came from the Sunday school. Rev. G. O. Lankford was with us from Monday night and did the preaching, which was appreciated very much by the church and congregation. Thank God for such a gracious revival.

Beulah.

Our meeting at Beulah Church began Saturday before the first Sunday and continued until the following Saturday. The interest was good from the beginning, and we had a fine meeting. Received to fellowship five members. These came through the Sunday school. This was a feast to our souls. Bro. Lankford did most of the preaching for us here. The continued rainy weather has interfered with us some at both of the above mentioned places and still continues threatening. I am at Antioch this week where the prospects are fair for a good meeting. Praise the Lord for His goodness.

G. D. Hunt.

Union (Southampton).

Dear Bro. Atkinson: I wish to say through The Sun that our former pastor, Rev. J. T. Kitchen, came home Saturday, August 7th, to hold conference and communion services for our pastor, Rev. C. H. Rowland, who is away on a vacation. There was a good large congregation present on Sunday to hear Bro. Kitchen and his sermon was very much enjoyed by those who heard him. I am always glad when I hear of Bro. Kitchen coming home; I say coming home because he calls Union his home. It is where he holds his membership and he has spent several years in the past as pastor of the church, and did much hard work to build the church up, and I hope that much good was accomplished for his labor. I believe that Union people have learned to look on Bro. Kitchen as being home people. He was pastor at Union when I was a boy, and I came in the church under his ministry, and I can say that I have learned many a helpful lesson from his sermons. I was glad to see

Bro. Kitchen looking so well and cheerful. He seemed to be full of the Spirit and had a pleasant word for every one. Let us hope that we may run the race more successfully so when our meeting in our earthly home is no more, that we may meet in our Father's home above.

R. H. Joyner.

Damascus.

Damascus has sustained the loss of several valuable members for the last few months. Bro. R. J. Lassiter, one of our deacons, died on May 25, 1909. He was a very pious, consecrated man, and was faithful to his church. He was a brother of Rev. L. L. Lassiter, and has several other brothers. I feel that our loss is his gain. He was sick only a short while.

An account of Bro. Geo. J. Costen's death has already appeared in The Sun. Bro. Costen was another of our deacons, and served in this capacity well. He was one of my best friends, and no one save the immediate family feels the loss more than I. He was until his sickness faithful to his post of duty. He is survived by a large family, and a host of friends. He was a true and tried Mason, and was carefully laid to rest by his own and Gatesville Lodges. A useful man to church, home, and community has passed away.

Bro. Joseph Lyles, one of our oldest members, passed away, and was buried the same day Bro. Costen was. He was a good man, and I feel that he has gone to rest. He is the father of Robert Lyles, an old Elon student. Bro. Lyles leaves a wife and several children. The Lord bless them, and lead them in the way of life eternal.

Bro. J. R. Raynor died July 9, 1909. He was a great sufferer for many years. During his active years he was superintendent of the Sunday school at Damascus. He is survived by only a few near relatives. He was a member of the church for about 25 years. The Lord bless the friends and relatives.

The saddest of all, however, was the untimely death of Miss Mary Seawell, who died July 27, 1909. The brethren above mentioned had lived long, and I believe well. Miss Mary was 22 years of age. She is the daughter of Brother and Sister J. H. Seawell. She is survived by a large family of brothers and sisters and a host of friends. She was a consistent member of the church, and always did her part in every good work. She was sick only a short time, and her death was quite a surprise to the community. She died a triumphant death, and I feel that she is at rest. In all my work, I have never found a sweeter spirit. The Lord bless the family and sanctify this occasion to the good of the entire family and circle of friends. "Be ye also ready."

Bro. Henry Lassiter, a young man of much promise, and also a member of Damascus, has been called from labor to reward. He is survived by his wife, father and mother, and several brothers and sisters. May the Lord bless all of the bereaved ones, and lead them into a deeper spiritual experience. "The Lord giveth, and the Lord taketh away." He was a very pious young man, and died trusting in the Master. "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of His saints."

I was in my meeting at Damascus last week, but rain and funerals interrupted us three days. The visible results were not what I had expected; but I feel that some good was accomplished. My work is in good shape. We will go to Conference with our full assessment this fall, notwithstanding the poor crops. Gates County has been visited by several heavy rains, and in some sections the crops are almost a failure.

I will protract a meeting at Oak Grove week following the third Sunday in August. This is a weak church in some respects, but a most pleasant one to serve.

Bros. J. E. Corbitt and T. J. Rice were July elected and ordained first Sunday in July deacons in the church at Damascus. Both are men of great ability and of moral power. The mantle of the deceased could not have fallen upon more worthy. Bro. Corbitt's natural ability in combination with his consecrated life renders him one of the most useful laymen in the Eastern Virginia Conference. He is a known quantity, and the same can be truly said of his co-workers in the high and important station. May the power of God lead us all.

J. M. Roberts.

Berea.

It has been some time since Sun readers have had a word from Berea. Our Sunday school is very good at the present, and I hope doing a good work. Also under the preaching of Brother Harrell, the pastor, on the first and third Sundays there has been a large attendance.

The annual revival meeting was held beginning Sunday, August 1st, and continued through the week. During the first three days the congregations were comparatively small because of the inclement weather. On Wednesday God in His infinite wisdom cleared the clouds away and we were permitted to enjoy the blessings of sunshine once more. From that time on the house was crowded beyond its utmost capacity, even compelling large crowds to remain on the outside by the windows.

This meeting was conducted by the Rev. C. C. Ryan, of the Memorial Temple at Norfolk, co-working with the pastor, Bro. Harrell. Owing to the zealous efforts and sound doctrines great interest was worked up and maintained throughout the entire meeting. So clearly was the power of the Holy Spirit manifested that all church lines were broken down, enabling members of other churches to work unembarrassed for the "glory of God" and the coming of His kingdom.

As a result of this meeting nine united with the church. Also many of our members who had been following afar off were drawn into a sacred nearness with God and seemed to catch a brighter vision of Jesus Christ and the beauty of a true Christian life than ever before.

Let us pray that this may be but the beginning of a mighty work at this place and that this church from this time on shall shine forth as the morning sun, lighting the pathway of the sinner friend, till he shall be enabled by the brightness of the same to march steadily forward to claim his heritage procured by the precious blood of Jesus Christ in the glory world.

It also gives me pleasure to state that we were made to feel glad to have Dr. Long drop in during the meeting. He gave us a fine talk, pointing us to the Lamb of God. Our baptizing will take place on third Sunday. For all of these blessings and favors we give God the praise.

M. W. Hall.

Union (Southampton).

That was a delightful visit I made to Union (Southampton, Va.) the second Saturday and Sunday in August. My business there was to fill the appointments of Bro. Rowland at that place. It is always pleasant to visit the old home church after an absence of some time. This church is located in a beautiful grove and it situated near Franklin, Va., on the Southern Railway. When I first entered the ministry this was one of the first churches I served as pastor. Then there were only two churches besides this in that immediate section of the country between Blackwater and the Nottoway rivers; one of them was the Baptist church at Franklin, Va., two miles away. Since that time two Christian churches, a Baptist church and a Friends church have been built. Before that time, there was a large field to work in with large congregations to attend the services, and the people took much interest in the work, and by that means, and by the help of the Spirit, we were enabled to build up the old church which had been torn to pieces by many conflicting causes.

Sunday brought together a good congregation, and it was pleasant to meet so many dear friends of former days, and to pass just a few words. Bro. Rowland is the beloved pastor, and is held in high esteem by his congregation. While surrounded by so many pleasant associations, there was a strange feeling of loneliness which at times seemed to possess my mind, produced by the thought that there were so many absent ones who used to work with me there. But in the course of nature and human events these conditions must exist. While there are many things to retard the progress of Christianity, and very many opposing influences, yet the cause will move on to victory, and a triumphant consummation. Discouragements will be felt—loss will be sustained, trouble will come, but He who has promised to abide with us will not leave us alone. Persevering, hoping, praying, will help us to guide and guard ourselves on the way.

J. T. Kitchen.

Windsor, Va.

Roanoke, Ala.

Dear Christian Friends: Seizing what seems to me the very first opportunity which has come to me in a long time, I am writing to you, through this medium, a few words of greeting and information concerning my work.

I was much hindered in my plans for reaching several churches which I had promised to visit last spring. I wish to assure my friends at these places that the failure was caused by circumstances entirely beyond my control. It is my purpose to visit more of the churches of the Alabama Conference before taking up my school work this fall, if possible, but my plans are as yet necessarily unsettled. After my return home from Columbus in the spring where I spent several weeks rendering what assistance I could in the work there, I spent three months in review work, preparatory to the state teacher's examination in July. Since that time I have been busy in arranging for and helping to care for the guests of two family reunions, also in attending revival meetings. The meeting at New Hope was a spiritual feast and resulted, I believe, in much good. Seven united with the church, several of them bright boys and girls, members of my Sunday school class, which is always a source of joy to a Sunday school teacher. The church membership seemed greatly revived, and I sincerely trust that not only in New Hope but in all our churches that as the revival season closes and the work of raising conference assessments and finishing up the work of the conference year comes on that the children of God will realize that Christian living and service consists as much in careful planning and giving for the support of every Christian enterprise as in shouting, singing, and praying. God grant that our pure Christian emotions aroused by the showers of divine love so richly bestowed upon us in our revival services may result in some permanent material work for Christ.

As I take up the work of teaching for awhile, which for good reasons I feel it my duty to do, I will assure you, as fellow laborers, that my love for and interest in the work remains the same. I love the work of teaching and I know from past experience that in this field is large opportunity for Christian service. I shall in connection with this work still be glad to render any assistance through correspondence, or otherwise, that I can in the development of the young people's work or any other. Mail sent to Roanoke, Alabama, will always reach me.

With kindest regards to my friends both far and near, I remain,

Yours in Christian love,

Bettie Stephenson.

Ebenezer.

The revival at this church was the week following fourth Sunday in July. Bro. C. E. Newman did the preaching with delight and edification to those who heard. There were four converts, and twelve backsliders reclaimed. The church was greatly revived.

Christian Light.

Children's Day was held at this church second Sunday in July. Prof. S. M. Smith delivered the address, which was first class in every respect.

I never saw children do better. They reflected great credit to parents, those who trained them and the community. The house, though large, could not accommodate the large crowd present. It will be a day long remembered in the community.

W. G. Clements.

—Your shadow is always behind you when you face the sun. Your troubles are always behind you when you face the future.

—What a blessing is a friend with breast so trusty that thou mayest bury all thy secrets in it, whose conscience thou mayest fear less than thine own, who can relieve thy cares by his conversation, thy doubts by his counsels, thy sadness by his good humor, and whose very look gives comfort to thee.—Seneca.

Let knowledge grow from more to more,

But more of reverence in us dwell;
That mind and soul according well,

May make one music as before.

—Tennyson, In Memoriam.

NOTES AND PERSONALS.

Rev. H. E. Rountree, Waverly, Va., writes Aug. 12: "The revival at Spring Hill this week, conducted by Rev. M. L. Bryant, is a glorious one. God is there in great power and many souls are being born into the kingdom. Brother Bryant preaches with great power, and great results follow.

—Under date August 12 Bro. I. W. Johnson writes: "Have had some vacation and am improving, although Mrs. Johnson has been ill for a week. We hope her condition is more favorable today. Rev. H. E. Rountree is to assist me in a meeting at Oakland next week."

—Rev. J. L. Foster assisted the pastor in a revival at Wentworth last week. There were six or more conversions, four accessions to the church and the membership much revived. Bro. Foster was able and efficient in presenting the gospel message.

—Already one is wondering whence ministers are to come to fill vacancies in our pulpits the coming year. It has been announced that there will be vacancies at Third Church, Norfolk, Memorial Temple, Norfolk, South Norfolk with Rosemont, and Durham, N. C. There was never more pressing need and greater urgency for ministers than at present.

—The Sun's editor is under renewed obligations to Mr. A. C. Hall, a member of Elon's next Senior class, for much valuable help in office and editorial duties the past three weeks when pressing duties called us elsewhere. Mr. Hall has read much of the proof, has contributed news items, and other matter of worth and merit. He is a student of literary taste and attainment and wields a ready pen.

—In The Herald of Gospel Liberty of August 12 we find this paragraph: "We are much surprised to learn and on good authority that Rev. C. C. Ryan, of Norfolk, Va., has accepted a call to become pastor of the Christian church at Asonia, Ohio." This is surprising information about which we had learned nothing before.

—We extend sincere sympathy to Rev. A. P. Barbee in the loss by death of his dear wife at their home in Durham, N. C., Aug. 11. Sister Barbee was a devoted companion and a pious Christian woman. She had suffered much from bodily affliction, but was loyal and patient and faithful. May a kind and loving Father comfort the sad heart of the bereaved husband. Bro. Clements gives account of the death and funeral in our obituary columns this week.

—Owing to the prohibition wave during the fiscal year ending July 30, Uncle Sam's pocket book suffered a shrinkage of $5,290,773 from whisky tax receipts alone. There was a decrease of $2,351,205 in the receipts of beer and other fermented liquors.

—Mr. J. B. Sherrill, Secretary, has laid the press of the state under renewed obligations for the splendid style in which he has brought out the minutes of the last session of the Press Association. All papers read and addresses delivered are printed in full, and much valuable data is given, in what makes a beautiful book.

—Considerable alarm is felt over the condition of William Dean Howells, who is ill at his summer home at Eliot, Me. Mr. Howells' ailment is a stomach disorder, and at times he suffers much pain. The malady has reduced his flesh and weakened him so that often his condition is alarming. He is in his seventy-second year, having been born in Belmont Co., Ohio, in 1837.

—By a new law which has gone into effect in New York there are no more "child criminals" in that state. The stigma of this term has been taken off and now children under sixteen years who commit an offense which in adult life would be a crime are classed and treated as delinquents only. So character is recognized as something which requires time and environment for its development.

—It has been suggested that during the terms of Burke County court that the judge be petitioned to adjourn court for one day and with the grand jury take a drive over some of the public roads of the county. It is believed that if the judge and jury get back alive there will be "something doing" towards better roads in Burke. Perhaps this plan would work well in many other counties of North Carolina and work well for Virginia, too.

—Five thousand more people died in the United States last year from diphtheria than from typhoid fever, the number of deaths from this disease being 35,000. There were 150,000 deaths from tuberculosis, 10,000 from measles, scarlet fever, whooping cough, respectively, making a total of 245,000 from these six diseases. A man has thirty-three chances in a hundred to live his three score and ten years.

—Mrs. Ella Flagg Young has been elected superintendent of the public schools of Chicago. This is a position of almost as much dignity and perhaps of more influence than the presidency of a great university, and it pays a salary of $10,000 a year. Mrs. Young is sixty-four years old. It must be admitted that there are exceptions to the rule that age brings on inactivity and that women are incompetent to fill executive positions.

—The Bureau of Chemistry in the Department of Agriculture after investigating the record of acetanilid, antipyrin, and phenacetin have declared these to be poisonous drugs. The headache remedies contain these drugs and we are warned against their use. Most people will take anything to relieve an aching head and, while physicians are becoming more careful in prescribing these poisons, their use is becoming more prevalent. The headache remedies are dangerous and should not be taken except by prescription, and that from a good doctor.

—The one cent piece has just been issued and a few have strayed down our way. It is a very pretty piece of money, having on one side an admirably modeled portrait of Abraham Lincoln, with the words, In God we trust, and Liberty, and the date 1909 and on the reverse two conventionalized ears of wheat, the words one cent, United States of America, and the motto, E Pluribus Unum. On the bottom of this side appear also in microscopic size the letters V. P. B., the initials of the Russian sculptor, Mr. Victor P. Brenner, who designed the coin.

There are 453 American colleges and universities for higher education. The oldest of these were founded for religious purposes, and were brought into existence by religious zeal and nurtured by religious beneficence. Of the following twelve, which are the oldest in America, all (with the possible exception of Washington and Lee) were founded and nurtured either by a church, or by ministers of the gospel, or for charitable and religious purposes:

- 1636—Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass.
- 1693—William and Mary College, Williamsburg, Va.
- 1701—Yale University, New Haven, Conn.
- 1740—University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, Pa.
- 1746—Princeton University, Princeton, N. J.
- 1749—Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Va.
- 1754—Columbia University, New York, N. Y.
- 1764—Brown University, Providence, R. I.
- 1766—Rutgers College, New Brunswick, N. J.
- 1769—Dartmouth College, Hanover, N. H.
- 1782—Washington College, Hanover, N. H.
- 1783—Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa.

Nothing, no movement, or theory, or institution, has done as much for liberal education and higher learning as the religion of Christianity. And for the man of a liberal education and cultured mind to turn with destructive purpose on Christianity is like a child turning to stab its mother to the heart.

ELON COLLEGE NOTES.

Rev. W. L. Wells is assisting Rev. J. O. Atkinson in a protracted meeting at Wake Chapel this week.

Mrs. M. A. Atkinson and children have returned from an extended visit to the home of Mrs. Atkinson's father, Mr. S. C. Hobby, Raleigh, N. C.

Mrs. W. F. Jones and little daughter Ethelene, left Saturday for Wake County, Mrs. Jones' old home, for a two week's visit. Last college year Mrs. Jones was stewardess of the East Dormitory. This summer she has had charge of the summer boarding house in West Dormitory. This college year she will conduct a private boarding house in the Garrison cottage.

Miss Mildred Love Atkinson, class of 1908, is visiting Dr. Atkinson's family. She leaves this week for Boone, Watauga Co., N. C., where she is the efficient teacher of Latin in the Appalachian Training School.

Mrs. Rose J. Macheu, Mobjock, Va., is the housekeeper for the coming year at the West Dormitory. She has had experience in such work and comes highly recommended.

Mr. W. E. Senn, Charlotte, N. C., an expert piano builder and tuner, has entirely renovated all the pianos in the use of the Music Department. He has done his work well—a fact which all who are to study music during the ensuing session will be glad to learn.

Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Lawrence and children, Mineral Wells, Texas, who have been "summering" at the West Dormitory, left last week to visit friends and relatives in Randolph County. Prof. Lawrence and Miss Cora Lawrence accompanied them.

Prof. Kernodle and his family, Mrs. W. S. Tate, and Miss Ellen Watson are still on the sick list, but are improving.

The prayer-meetings during the vacation have been steadily growing in attendance and interest. They are held on Sunday evenings. The summer session of the Sunday school, under the superintendency of Brother D. W. Brown, has been an exceptionally good one. The attendance has been larger than in any previous summer school and the grade of work done has been excellent.

Dr. Moffitt is still in the Valley of Virginia. He and his family are expected home this week.

Capt. and Mrs. W. J. Lee, Nansemond

Co., Va., are expected to arrive at Dr. Atkinson's this week and will remain over till the college opens.

Mrs. Best and Miss Lizzie Rich are visitors at Mrs. J. W. Patton's.

Work on the new well for the power house and on the campus and college buildings looking to the opening Sept. 1 is being rapidly pushed.

The canvass for new students is now over. All the professors are at home or will arrive shortly and the student canvassers have sent in their final reports. From all appearances the opening will be the best yet in Elon's history. Still our friends are requested to help now as never before to make the bright prospects happy realities. Let everybody work and talk and pray for the opening.

W. A. Harper.

NORFOLK LETTER.

Foundation has been laid and the walls are going up for the Portsmouth Christian Church. That begins to look like business, and we have reasons to believe that it will not be long before the Portsmouth congregation will be worshipping in their new church.

Rev. W. H. Thompson filled his appointment at Providence yesterday, and reports Judge Portlock still in a very critical condition.

Mrs. James A. Eley is on a visit to her daughter in Pennsylvania. She will be missed from the Third Church Sunday School while she is away. She has been the faithful and efficient teacher of the infant class since the organization of this Sunday school, and filled the same place in the Memorial Temple Sunday School, from its foundation until the time she left that church to unite with the Third Church.

Mrs. J. P. Barrett and her daughter left for their home in Dayton, Ohio, last Wednesday.

The Christian Churches in this Tide Water section are experiencing quite a "shake-up," Rosemont and South Norfolk have been for some weeks trying to get a pastor for that work, jointly.

Rev. C. C. Ryan of the Temple, Rev. W. H. Thompson, of the Third Church, have announced to their congregations their intention of going back to Ohio. Brother Ryan will go to Ansonia, Ohio, where he will serve the Ansonia Church together with a country church. Brother Thompson will go to west Milton, Ohio, where together with that church he will also serve a country church. This will leave both the Third Church and the Temple without a pastor for the coming year. Bro. Ryan has been at the Temple for two years. He has done a splendid work there, coming to the field and taking charge of that work just at the time he did, when it was weakened by several of its members withdrawing for the work in Park Place, the founding of the Third Church in Norfolk.

I do not know just the number that have been received into the membership of the Temple in these two years, but the addition has been quite substantial, having been something like thirty-five or forty, majority of them adults, uniting with the church in the last year. Bro. Ryan's place will be very hard to fill at the Temple. There is a great field of usefulness yet at the Memorial Christian Temple, and with a good man to lead them, under the guidance of the Lord, they are destined to do great things in His service.

Brother Thompson has been with the Third Church only one year and I think everything considered, results have been encouraging. He took hold of the work when it had thirty members, he has received into fellowship during the year twenty-nine, four have been dismissed by letter, which leaves the present membership fifty-five. Congregations have not been very large, but there are a number of churches in Park Place, and the majority of the people have some sort of church affiliation already established, so it will take some time for us to build up a large congregation.

Brother Ryan and Brother Thompson have proved themselves splendid Christian characters, being devoted to the cause and led by the Lord in their work. The prayers and best wishes of the churches and a large number of their friends go with them to their new field of labor.

Rev. A. B. Kimball of Le Grande, Ia., is expected in Norfolk next Sunday, to preach at the Third Church, with the view of possibly taking up the work there. We are seeking to know the Lord's will in the matter, and hope we may be fully guided in the matter by the same.

The Memorial Temple is making some investigations with reference to securing a pastor for another year.

I hope in my next letter to be able to report something more definite for the future for both of these churches.

J. W. Manning.

The absent-minded professor returned home one evening, and, after ringing his front door bell for some time to no effect, heard the maid's voice from the second story window:

"The professor is not in."

"All right," quietly answered the professor, "I'll call again." And he hobbled down the stone steps.—Lippincott's.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEPARTMENT.

Exponent of the Young People's Convention, Christian Church, South.

Watchword: A Christian Endeavor Society in Every Church; Teacher-Training and Organized Classes in Every Sunday School.

Devoted to the interest and advancement of Sunday Schools, Teacher-Training, Organized Classes, Cradle Roll, Home Department, Christian Endeavor, Missionary Societies, Temperance Societies, Aid Societies, Civic Righteousness.

W. A. HARPER, Editor and Field Secretary, Elon College, N. C.

[All notes and contributions for this Department should be sent to W. A. Harper, Elon College, N. C., who extends the Church at large a cordial invitation to furnish him with any note of interest to our Young People, particularly information in regard to any forward steps, new movement, or new organization looking to progressive and effective service. All items under this Department not signed are by its Editor and Field Secretary.]

PREPARING THE TEACHER—BOOK TWO.

Last week we wrote about "Preparing The Teacher—Book One." This week we introduce you to its companion volume, which will appear this fall and which will complete the Teacher-Training Course authorized by our Southern Christian Convention.

This book will, as planned, contain 56 lessons in 10 chapters, each chapter to be written by a separate contributor.

Chapter I. Five additional lessons on the Teacher.

Chapter II. Four additional lessons on the pupil.

Chapter III. Four additional lessons on the Sunday-school.

Chapter IV. Ten lessons on Biblical Doctrine.

Chapter V. Ten lessons on Christian Missions.

Chapter VI. Three lessons on Giving and its Methods.

Chapter VII. Five lessons on our Denomination's History.

Chapter VIII. Five lessons on the Bible as Literature.

Chapter IX. Five lessons on Oriental Private Antiquities.

Chapter X. Five lessons on Soul-Saving.

If the reader will get the two previous issues of the Christian Sun and read in the first what a full-fledged Teacher-Training Course ought to include and in the second what our "Preparing the Teacher-Book One" contains and in this issue what our "Preparing the Teacher—Book Two" proposes to do, he will see that our own Teacher Training course comes up to the standard and gives the ambitious teacher the necessary fund of information and knowledge of methods to make of himself a competent instructor and guide in things religious. Where is the teacher or the prospective teacher who will not avail himself of such an opportunity for more effective service as this course offers?

Rev. C. C. Jones, Wakefield, Va., has sent in his report blanks. We thank Bro. Jones. Will not the thirty others who have not sent in their reports do so now? We will appreciate it, brethren.

Brother pastor, have you taken occasion in public and in private to advocate a Teacher-Training Class in each of your Churches? Have you prayed around the family altars of your congregations that God would open the way for more and better teachers in each particular church over which you are called upon to preside? If not, will you not do so at once?

BOY'S-EYE VIEW OF THE SUNDAY-SCHOOL.

A Review.

This book of 110 pages, published by the Sunday-school Times Co., Philadelphia, price 60 cents, is well worth its money. The author signs himself simply as Pucker. The name seems odd, but I imagine that many a poor Sunday-school teacher or officer upon reading it has been caused to "pucker" and then to think the matter over and do better.

Pucker begins with Vacations and ends with Decision Day, packing 18 other suggestive chapters in between these two. He writes by way of criticism, at the same time suggesting methods of improvement, of the Beginners, of A Bible Christmas, of Our Superintendent (a funeral was the only way this official could be improved), of starting a Home Department, of Home Department Messengers, of Blackboards, of Camping Out, of Saloons, of Beginning Late, of The Secretary, of Having Fun, of Our Christmas, of the Review, of the Cradle Roll, of More Cradle Roll, of Getting New Scholars, of Singing, and of the Teachers'-Meeting, besides the chapters on Vacations and Decision Day—twenty chapters these of most inspiring reading, furnishing many a laugh, giving food for many an hour of calm reflection, drawing many a tear, quickening many a resolve to make your particular Sunday-school work more efficient.

The author appreciates the boy's viewpoint and presents his case with a force and vigor that are engaging as well as convincing. The book is full of noble passages and strikes many inspiring chords. I do not see how our Sunday-school workers can afford to be without it.

As an instance of Pucker's method I will give this quotation from page 86: "There's the Ladies' Aid. My father says some aid societies ought to be called hindrance societies, for they do more harm than good. They're all the time beging money like the church was a pauper and couldn't pay its own bills, or else they're running competition to the restaurant with a supper or to the dry-goods store with bazaar, and teaching people they can't afford to give to the Lord unless they get their money's worth right back in candy or fancy work. He says it makes "loaves and fishes" Christians and that kind never spread foreign missions much.

"Then he says the women work so hard getting up Fourth of July dinners and election suppers that they don't have any strength left for the real work of the church, like calling on the sick, going to prayer-meeting, and teaching in Sunday-school. But our Ladies' Aid isn't like that. They meet every Friday afternoon at the church. Brother Parker (the boy always stands by his pastor in the book) meets with them and gives each two of them a slip of paper with two or three names of families that they are to call on and invite to our church. They pray a while that God will bless them and their calls that day, and then they go out and make the calls. The next week they tell about their last calls and then take new slips and go to see their families. Since they started doing that way our church won't hardly hold the people that come, and Brother Parker says the collections never was so big before. Isn't that a real aid society?"

Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Elon College, N. C. will supply the book at 60c. to any Sun subscriber or friend.

Have you a teacher-training class in your school? If not, begin one now. You can begin it, at home in the chimney corner. Will you?

All the Methodist preachers who oppose teacher-training are where they ought to be—in the cemetery.—Dr. Hamill.

C. E. TOPIC FOR AUGUST 22, 1909—
A FEW SUGGESTIONS.

Alone with God. Matt. 6:5-6; 18:19-20.

The Christian Endeavor pledge provides for daily prayer by each member of the society. It is possible to say words and yet not pray. Let this meeting be one of instruction in the methodology of prayer and in the ends to be attained by it.

Scripture Lesson.—Have two endeavorers rise and read, the one Matt. 6:5-6 and the other Matt. 18:19-20. If they care to comment, allow them to do so.

For the Leader.—The leader of this meeting should be chosen with special care. He (she) should be a man (woman) who is strong in prayer, who communes much with God in this blessed way. After the reading of the lesson let him tell what kinds of prayer God likes to hear offered, how to offer them, when, why, the benefits of them. His own experience or that of some other of whom he has heard or known would be helpful.

Scripture References.—Write on slips of paper to be handed out:

- Unanswered prayer. Deut. 3:23-29.
- According to His will. John 14:13-14; 15:7, 16; 16:23-27.
- Christ's way. Mark 11:20-26.
- A powerful prayer. Jas. 5:13-18.
- When to pray. Heb. 4:16; Eph. 6:18.
- A model prayer. Eph. 3:14-19.
- Prayer recommended. Matt. 7:7; 26:41.

Answered prayer. Luke 1:13; Acts 4:31.

Secret prayer. Mark 1:35; 6:46.

Question Spurs.—What is the value of the C. E. pledge to pray every day? Are definite times and places to pray best? What kinds of prayer does God answer? How does God answer prayer? What is the advantage of public prayer? What should we pray for? What else should a prayer do besides ask for something? How was Christ a model for our prayer? How was Paul?

Written Work.—An essay of two minutes on the "Quiet Hour" and its advantages.

Suggested Program.

1. "Nearer, my God, to Thee." Leader's prayer.
2. Scripture lesson by two endeavorers.
3. "Sweet hour of prayer." Chain of prayer.
4. Leader's remarks.
5. Scripture references by less experienced members.
6. Question Spurs by more experienced members.

7. Essay on the "Quiet Hour."
8. "Prayer is the soul's sincere desire." Voluntary prayers.
9. General participation in the meeting in whatever way.
10. Lord's Prayer in concert.
11. Pastor's five minutes.
12. Song or prayer. Offering. Mizpah.

HOW TO TEACH THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FOR AUGUST
29TH—A FEW SUGGESTIONS.

Paul on Christian Love. I Cor. 13:1-13.

Golden Text.—"And now abideth faith, hope, love (charity), these three; but the greatest of these is love (charity)." I Cor. 13:3.

Review.—Review the lesson of this quarter that gives an account of Paul's career at Corinth, Acts 18:1-22. Review also the geography of Corinth. Call for the note books. Examine them and make suggestions. Have one of them read.

Setting of the Lesson.—It will be necessary to give the class a clear conception of the First Corinthians. It was written in the spring of 56 A. D., just before Paul left Ephesus for the continuation of his third missionary journey, three or four years after his 18 months' stay in Corinth. He had received news from various sources of the great difficulties under which the church at Corinth was laboring. The Jewish and the Gentile elements in the church were at constant variance. Both were extreme in their tendencies. The Jews even questioned Paul's authority. Paul wrote them a warning letter as we learn from 1 Cor. 5:9, and those who were loyal to him had written for further instruction, as we get from 1 Cor. 16:7. His answer to that inquiry is the First Corinthians as we have it today. The two previously mentioned documents being lost to us. Here is an outline of the epistle:

- I. Introduction, 1:1-9.
- II. Complaints against the church, 1:10-6:20.
  1. Factions, 1:10-4:21.
  2. Immoral Practices, 4:22-6:20.
- III. Answers to inquiries, 7:1-14:20.
  1. Marriage, 7:1-40.
  2. Heathen feasts, 8:1-11:1.
  3. Public worship, 11:2-34.
  4. Spiritual gifts, 12:1-14:40.
    - (a) Love the greatest of all, 13:1-13.
- IV. Immortality and the resurrection, 15:1-58.
- V. Conclusion, 16:1-24.
  1. Collection for Jerusalem, 15:1-4.
  2. Personal matters, 16:5-24.

The most famous chapters in this really wonderful epistle, which shows in marked degree the broad grasp of the apostle of the great principles of the Christian faith, are the 13th, the poem on love, our today's lesson, and the 15th, the discussion of the immortal life and of the resurrection.

Incidental Instruction.—"Tongues of angels" will need a word from you, for Paul is here speaking after the manner of the Jews who imagined there was an angelic language which was the key to many mysteries. An explanation, too, of the faith sufficient to remove mountains will be in order, for this phrase was never understood literally by the Jews, who in their every day parlance used the phrases, "remove mountains," "rooting up mountains," so signify the conquering of great difficulties. They styled many of their rabbis "rooters-up of mountains." Not that they had ever performed such a feat, but that they had overcome great obstacles. The mirrors of the ancient world, circular pieces of polished metal with a handle, were poor reflectors, not better ones than our highly polished hard wood surfaces as a general thing. They could, therefore, be seen through only darkly. Explain this to your class.

Approach to the Lesson.—Call for assigned works on the First Epistle of John, which ought to reveal the truth that the central theme of this letter is "Love." Then remark that we often think of John as the apostle of love and of Paul as the apostle of faith, but that the highest encomium ever written on love was given to Paul to write in the 13th chapter of First Corinthians, in today's lesson. Here call for the recitation from memory of this chapter assigned to one of the class last time. Then ask all who have read the 13th, 14th, and 15th chapters to make it known and thank them. Then begin the lesson by the question method.

The Lesson.—Our lesson today divides into four sections, which write on the board as the topical outline as they are developed in the teaching, to be used in the topic review at the end of the lesson by the question method.

1. Love Completes All Virtues, verses 1-3. Find what is meant by tongues of men (here call for assigned work, Acts 2:1-22), of angels, what makes such speaking as sounding brass or tinkling cymbal, what other gifts are nothing without charity, what profiteth nothing without charity (here call for assigned work on what Jesus declared to be the two great commandments, Mark 12:28-33).

2. The Qualities Which Go to Make Up Perfect Love, verses 4-7. Find the relation of charity to suffering, to kindness, to envy, to vaunting, to being puffed up, to behavior, to seeking her

(Continued on page 11)

---

THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

---

Founded 1844 by Elder Daniel W. Kerr.
Organ of the Southern Christian
Convention.

---

Entered at the postoffice at Greensboro, N. C., as second-class matter.

---

Terms of Subscription.

One Year .....$1.50
Six Months ..... .75
Four Months ..... .50
Advertising rates given on application.

---

J. O. Atkinson, Editor and Publisher.

---

Important Notice.—As readers will see, The Christian Sun is now published at Greensboro, N. C. The office of publication there is 302½ South Elm Street. Our editorial office, however, remains at Elon College, N. C., to which all letters and communications to the Editor should be addressed, as heretofore.

---

---

THE BATTLE IS ON.

---

The fight is on, they tell us. A hundred foes are in the field, and a "new religion" may spring up any day. College presidents are taking a hand and a thousand presses are busy sending out smart volumes proving (?) that Christ is not divine, miracles are myths, and the Bible is a worn out human document. God pity us, for the smoke of battle fills the air, and the din of conflict in fierce and furious. So the apostles of the new light, the new isms, and the new religion would have us believe that whether we see it or not the battle between the old faith and the new faith is on, the conflict between orthodoxy and heterodoxy is waging and waxing fierce.

If this were the first, or fiftieth battle, with the Book and its teaching there might be occasion for alarm. But a thousand battles have been fought, and as many victories won already, with the sword of the Spirit through the teachings and counsels of the Book.

Many, many years ago the prophet of God wrote (Isa. 40:8), "The grass withereth, the flower fadeth: but the word of our God shall stand forever." And then later, but long years ago also, our Savior declared (Matt. 24:35), "Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away." And somehow the world has come to understand that the Book contains the word of God, not all of the word, only a fragment of the word, but the essential and saving word of God to man; and this Book has fought its way to a place of safety and security and cannot be done away. Men have burned it as they would burn deadly poison, even burned and hanged and beheaded men who dared read or believe it, but the Word of God, sharper than a two-edged sword, went on conquering and to conquer.

So admit that the battle is on. There has always been a battle on, since Cain and Abel, between truth and error, light and darkness, righteousness and sin. And we already know what the outcome is and shall be. No man need fear for the truth. God is truth and truth is triumph.

Offenses must come: but woe be unto that man by whom the offense cometh. Let the individual look to it, that he himself remain fixed in the faith and steadfast. There will be time enough for new religions, new beliefs, new doctrines, when those new things shall have established themselves, given a better and clearer conception of God and duty, and created for the world a better race of men. Until the new shall have shown us a new heaven and a new earth, better than the heaven and the earth we have learned of and read about, we shall be safe in holding the old, in Christ's name, which has brought us a long way hither, built for us churches, and given us hearts with which to praise and worship God. Yes, the conflict is on and the Lord of hosts goes to victory and to triumph.

---

RECEIVING THE YOUNG.

---

There may be some danger of receiving into the church, on profession of their faith, members who are too young; but repeated experiences have shown that there is far more danger in delay and in waiting. Where one makes mistakes in professing to accept Christ too early in life thousands make mistake in putting off this all important matter. The child-heart is tender, susceptible, and yields fully and readily. And Christ wants the willing and whole heart given Him without reserve. And further, when the years are few the mind is not so filled and absorbed with things of the world and is easily turned to matters spiritual and divine. There is danger, and all too often death, in having the child that is ready and willing to delay this matter.

Here is a striking illustration of how a minister misjudged as to the propriety of receiving a young boy into the church:

A missionary in India was called to a little out-of-the-way village to baptize and receive into church fellowship more than sixty adult converts from Hinduism. He noticed a boy sitting in a back corner watching and listening very wistfully. Finally he came forward. "What, my boy, do you want to join the church?"

"Yes, sir."

"But you are very young, and if I were to receive you, and you were to slip aside, it would do injury to the cause of Christ. I shall come again in six months, and then, if I find you steadfast and true, I will baptize and receive you gladly." No sooner was this said than all the people rose to their feet, and one, speaking for the rest, said, "Why, sir, it is he who told us all we know about Jesus Christ." And so it turned out to be.

---

THE SOURCE OF SURPRISE.

---

Many Christian Sun readers will remember that shortly since, two or three years ago, Edward Everett Hale, Jr., himself an avowed Unitarian at the time, a professor in a college, and son of the distinguished Unitarian divine, the late Edward Everett Hale, Sr., attended a revival of religion (a good old time protracted meeting), was convinced and convicted of sin, yielded himself to Christ and was happily converted. Since that time Professor Hale has written and has said much for the salvation of men and the comfort of saints. In a recent Sunday School Times he is quoted as saying: "I must confess the whole question of conversion becomes more and more mysterious the more I see of people. I believe actually my surprise is not so much that they are converted, as that so many are not." And that is the constant surprise to followers of Christ. Not why so many come to Christ and accept Him as their Savior, but why so many stay away and refuse and reject Him. There is all to gain, nothing to lose in letting Him have dominion in the heart. His only yearning and desire is to help and to save; never to harm or destroy. He comes a blessed light to our pathway to keep us from stumbling, groping, falling. He would save us from our sin, from our ruin, from our own undoing. He would lead us to the life that is promised us, and that we would and should enjoy.

Standing on Jerusalem's heights He lamented and bemoaned that fair, but foul and doomed city. How His great heart longed to snatch that beloved people from their own ruin and ultimate destruction. "I would, but ye would not," His great heart cried. He would (desired, longed, yearned to) save them, but they did not will or wish or accept the offered safety—and their own ruin followed. The constant source of surprise in this vain world is that so many turn with hard and rebellious heart from their own safety, their own upbuilding, their own eternal welfare.

SUFFOLK LETTER.

By vote of the Suffolk Christian Church I left Suffolk on the last day of July for a month's vacation. Whether the custom of church vacations grew out of the preacher's need for rest, as he works seven days in the week; out of the necessity for refilling; or out of the congregation's desire to be rid of the preacher and to rest themselves, history does not tell us. To what extent it is profitable or harmful is yet to be worked out by modern experts along the lines of psychological effects and church economies; for the present the subject is in a state of nervous and doubtful investigation. The answer may be found, somewhat, in the secular world, where high tension wears the leaders of great corporations, professional workers, and even wage-workers and machines, so that lay-off, vacation, change, or whatever it may be called, seems to be necessary. Schools, also, have vacations and teachers attend normals, associations, or rest as taste and necessity may suggest or finances may permit. It may be that the age in which we live is so keyed up and run at such high tension that ministers would break down without rest and that people would be surfeited with even as good soul-food as religious services. At any rate, the church has always been adjusted to the age in which it lived and moved and had its being: when war was the ruling passion of mankind, religion was heroic; when the state controlled the church, it was formal and dignified; when wealth-seeking is the passion of the age, the church becomes commercial; when rush and work take charge of society, the church swings into the current of over-activity. Besides this, the word suggests that the church may learn from the world: "For the children of this world are in their generation wiser than the children of light." I am not arguing for church vacations, I am simply discussing the subject in the light of present conditions, for it is one of those questions that will work itself out, and wisely, and then we will all fall into line as gracefully as drilled soldiers.

Now to my vacation. The first Sunday in August I was with Rev. Dr. J. O. Atkinson and his good Pleasant Grove congregation, in Halifax County, Va., in the dedication of their new church, and remained there till Friday afternoon of the same week in a good protracted meeting, when we consider the rain and suckers on the tobacco crop. The suckers grew so rapidly after the rain that it was necessary for men to remain in the field to pull them off. Suckers anywhere are very destructive and society has some of them. The only remedy is removal, as you can make nothing out of them.

My stay and meeting and visiting old friends, as well as association with Uncle Wellons, Dr. Atkinson, and Dr. Newman, was a very delightful first week in vacation. I visited Brother E. T. Pierce, who was too feeble to attend church, but was really in better condition than I expected to find him.

Leaving News Ferry Saturday morning I stopped over a few hours in Greensboro, visited Prof. Holleman and family and Pastor Bolton, of the First Christian Church. Thence to Elon College, where I visited friends and spent two days in Alamance County visiting relatives and friends and traversing roads familiar to me in childhood. Roadbuilding is the foremost enterprise in the county at this time. The county has bonded itself in the sum of two hundred thousand dollars and engineers and machines are now busy grading and building roads.

There is also an electric line under construction linking Graham, Burlington, and Haw River, towns aggregating more than ten thousand population. There are more than twenty cotton mills in the county, several roller mills, fifteen towns and villages, a good system of public schools and thirty thousand population. Alamance is destined to become a great county and has a conservative and progressive people.

I have now been at home for three days, and home folks are beginning to call on me to do small chores. I have been fishing, but caught more red bugs than fish, and the red bugs have a way of warming one up in spots and then spreading the fever till sleep takes wings and flies away. Some say use hutter and salt; others say rub with meatskin; others say use kerosine oil; others, ammonia; for my own part, I have found nails the most satisfactory.

I am at home surrounded by a half dozen women, saying very little, doing as I am told, eating what is put before me, and listening to all sorts of discussions. Willie is now trying to read "King Alfred's Prayer," in Old English, looking up the words as one reads Latin. This proves that we do not know our own language a few generations in the past, and yet some people think the Bible should not be revised, though they could not read the Word printed in the English of the tenth century.

W. W. Staley.

—Men are prone to reverse the scale of judgment and weigh their fellowman by his faults and themselves by their virtues.

TEACHING THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

With this issue of The Sun Prof. Harper's articles on "How to Teach the Sunday School Lesson" cease. For a year and more Sun readers know how well Prof. Harper has done his work and we trust that same has been of great value not only to teachers but to pupils and to readers. Our policy in this matter was to give to our readers who were interested in Sunday school work something of the methods pursued by a teacher who is a success in the class room, and not to continue the articles indefinitely. We feel that a sufficient number have been given to outline this policy to those who care to pursue it and a continuation at present would not be interesting or helpful to those who do not care for this line of reading and of work. If there still be those who desire further of this matter they have easy access to our hook on teacher-training which has proved to so many of inestimable value. Thanks are hereby expressed on behalf of Sunday school teachers, as well as in our name, to Prof. Harper for his faithful services, efficient labors and successful work. Prof. Harper will continue to speak through The Sun to our readers about the work of teacher-training.

—The use of individual drinking cups at public drinking fountains is declared by the State Board of Health to be a preventive of the spread of disease. They point out that promiscuous drinking by a number of people, unhealthy or healthy, out of one cup leads to the spread of tuberculosis, diphtheria, pneumonia, and other loathsome diseases. Some states have prohibited the use of common cups and some of the railroad companies are furnishing individual cups for the passengers to drink from.

—Of the 563 American colleges, Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass., established 1636, is the oldest. The oldest university in the world is at Peking, China, and its name is "The School for the Sons of the Empire." Its antiquity is very great and a granite register, consisting of stone columns, 320 in number, contains the names of 60,000 graduates.

—The most drastic prohibition bill ever drawn up passed the Alabama Legislature August 13. It shuts the doors tight. Except in residences the possession of liquor is prima facie evidence that they are kept for sale. A building cannot be rented for its sale and a newspaper cannot advertise liquors.

—The statue of Robert E. Lee has been set up in Statuary Hall in the Capitol at Washington. He has on the Confederate coat.

THE CHRISTIAN ORPHANAGE DEPARTMENT.

CHILDREN'S CORNER.

The Band of Cousins.

Jas. L. Foster, Sec., Elon College, N. C.

"He that hath pity on the poor lendeth unto the Lord, and his good deed will He pay him again."—Prov. 19:17.

Reported last week .....$3,585.13

Dues:

Charles E. Newman	....$ .20
Hannah Claire Newman	. . . . .20
Annie Pearl Way	..... .10
Blannie Franks	..... .20
Bettie Franks	..... .20
Dwight Franks	..... .20
Noma Franks	..... .20
Numa Franks	..... .20

Monthly S. S. Offering:

Wake Chapel, N. C.	.... 2.00
Suffolk, Va.	..... 12.88
Orphanage Class, Shallow Well, N. C.	..... 1.12
Linville, Va.	..... 1.45
Mt. Auburn, N. C.	..... 1.20

Special Offering:

F. M. Carlton, Durham, N. C.	..... 5.00	25.15
------------------------------	------------	-------

Total .....$3,610.28

My Dear Children:

We are now nearing the end of the summer months. Many of you have been visiting friends and relatives and all, I trust, have had a happy vacation. We are very anxious that the fall may bring us many new cousins and the old ones who have not written in a long time become interested and active again.

Our own watermelons are not doing so well this year and as yet we have not had a "bite" of those in the Orphanage patch. But the children have had some three times from elsewhere, and Oh! how they did enjoy them!

Little Francis Kissell was hurt right much last Sunday by a fall from the jersey and a wheel passing over his body, causing some trouble in the shoulder, which we hope he will soon outgrow. It was a narrow escape for him. The health of the other children seems to be good now. Several have been sick this summer but not for long, for which we were very thankful.

Sincerely,
Uncle Jim.

Henderson, N. C., July 30, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:

We are interested in the plea for more letters in the Corner. We wish more of the preachers' children would write. We should like to get acquainted. Uncle Jim, the grown people said they enjoyed the convention that met with us. I, Charles, went once. I got very tired. Mother had to bring me home. Hannah Clare is crawling and pulling up by chairs. I try to persuade her to walk instead of crawl. I show her just how and then she can't.

Daddy will be away for two weeks. We are quite lonely without him.

We send our dimes and love.

Lovingly,

Charles E. Newman, Jr.,
Hannah Clare Newman.

Maybe when you get older, little folks, you will enjoy conventions so mama can take you and all have a good time. Until then "Patience" must be the watchword.

Henderson, N. C., Aug. 9, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:

Our July letter got mislaid, so we will send our August letter with it. We have had Aunt Kate Newman and Cousin Nathaniel to visit us. We enjoyed their visit so much. Daddy is at grandpa's. Poor grandpa is very ill, not expected to live but a few days. We wish we could be with him too. Charles begs to take the "soo-fy" and go to "Ginia."

We enclose our dimes.

Lovingly,

Charles E. Newman, Jr.,
Hannah Clare Newman.

Sorry to hear of Grandpa's illness. Hope little Hannah Clare has learned to walk by this time.

Sanford, N. C., Aug. 7, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:

I send my letter and dime for August. I have been on a visit to see sister in Randolph County. I had a nice time. I close with much love to you and the cousins.

Annie Pearl Way.

Glad your vacation has been so pleasant, Annie. You do not forget the Corner, I see.

Raleigh, N. C., Aug. 6, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:

We will send our dues for May, June, July and August. With love to all the cousins,

Your nephews and nieces,

Blannie, Bettie, Dwight, Noma, and Numa Franks.

It has been some time since we heard from you children, but you have made up for lost time by sending us a nice amount which brings your dues paid up to September.

FITS CURED. NO CURE NO PAY

In other words you do not pay our small professional fee until cured and satisfied. German-American Institute, 249 Walnut St., Kansas City, Mo.

When in Burlington call at

T. H. STROUD'S

Store for DRUGS, SOFT DRINKS, and anything desired in drugs and Toilet Articles.

To Drive Out Malaria and Build up the System.

Take the Old Standard GROVE'S PASTELESS CHILL TONIC. You know what you are taking. The formula is plainly printed on every bottle, showing it is simply Quinine and Iron in a tasteless form, and the most effectual form. For grown people and children. 50c.

The North Carolina

COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE AND MECHANIC ARTS.

The State's college for vocational training. Courses in Agriculture and Horticulture; in Civil, Electrical and Mechanical Engineering; in Cotton Milling and Dyeing; in Industrial Chemistry. Why not fit yourself for life by taking one of these courses? Address

D. H. HILL, President,
West Raleigh, N. C.

READ SOMETHING DIFFERENT.

The Greensboro Daily News, the new State paper, is worthy of a trial. Associated Press service, special correspondence, clean, newsy, liberal. One year $6.00; three months $1.50.

GREENSBORO DAILY NEWS,
Greensboro, N. C.

THE NORTH CAROLINA STATE NORMAL AND INDUSTRIAL COLLEGE.

Maintained by the State for the women of North Carolina. Four regular courses leading to degrees. Special courses for teachers. Fall session begins September 15, 1909. Those desiring to enter should apply as early as possible. For catalogue and other information address

J. I. FOUST, Pres., Greensboro, N. C.

RALEIGH & SOUTHPORT RY. Co.

P. M. A. M.	STATIONS.	A. M. P. M.
1:15 6:00	Raleigh	8:30 3:45
1:54 6:24	McCullers	7:52 3:03
2:11 6:59	Willow Sp'gs	7:37 2:45
2:23 7:14	Varina	7:27 2:34
2:35 7:26	Fuquay Sp'gs	7:19 2:25
2:55 7:45	Kipling	7:00 2:05
3:15 8:05	Lillington	6:41 1:44
3:41 8:28	Linden	6:15 1:17
4:30 9:15	Fayetteville	5:30 12:30

JNO. A. MILLS, Pres. and Gen. Mgr.

(Begun on page 7)

own, to provocations, to thinking evil, what it rejoices in, what it rejoices in, what it bears, what it believes, what it hopes, what it endures.

3. Love Is Everlasting, verses 8-12. Find what never fails, what shall become of prophecies, of tongues, of knowledge, why, what illustration is given from childhood, what metaphor is further employed from the mirror.

4. The Abiding Three, verse 13. Find what three virtues abide, which of these is greatest (here call for assigned work on "Modern Public Charity").

Review the lesson by the topic method.

For Bible Class Discussion.—Why change charity to love in this chapter? Why is love the greatest virtue? Paul as the apostle of Love. The Psalm of Love. Motives versus actions. Gifts versus character.

Truths and their Application.—1. Love is a very much abused word. What is selfishness is frequently called by that name. But the apostle makes it clear by giving its nine ingredients: Patience, kindness, generosity, humility, courtesy, unselfishness, good temper, and sincerity. If you lack these ingredients in your character, you have not attained the ideal of love which Paul held up for the Corinthian Church and also for us today. Shall we not all labor to equip our hearts with these ingredients of Christian Love "that fadeeth not away?"

2. Men in all ages, under all climes, under all circumstances, have sought for the summum bonum of life. The Epicurean found it in happiness; the Stoics found it in mostly our circumstances; others found it in "the greatest good to the greatest number;" modern leaders in ethical thought have found it in love, love to God, love to self, love to fellow-men. Who shall say that he, though far from trying to philosophize, has not solved the end of philosophy more satisfactorily than all the philosophers? Are you making this the highest good, the summum bonum of your life?

3. Can there be charity without love? Yes; and it frequently happens so. In the mad rush of our modern life we do our deeds of mercy by proxy. That is to say, we give our means to authorized boards of charity and concern ourselves no more about the matter. I do not complain at this. In crowded districts it is perhaps necessary to do this, and often indiscriminate giving to tramps is sin and not charity. But we ought to see to it that the agents who administer our relief funds are charitable, not perfunctory, in the discharge of their duties. Nor ought we to be content with giving all our alms through such agencies, because our alms are robbed of their best part, the influence of ourselves. We should give ourselves in some of our charity at least. For that community which does all its charity through agencies and by proxy lacks in Christian love and is getting in a bad way. Pity such pretending Christians and such a community.

Assignments for Next Time.—Ask one to prepare on Paul addresses to date; Acts 13:13-14:28; and Acts 17:16-34; another to memorize his address to the elders at Ephesus; a third to report on Samuel's challenge to the people to bear witness in regard to his life; 1 Sam. 12:1-5; a fourth on Paul's advice to Timothy, 2 Tim. 4:6-8; a fifth on what Paul says about covetousness, 1 Tim. 6:6-11; a sixth on Jesus' and Peter's words in regard to the duties of the shepherds of the flock, John 10:1-18; John 21:15-17; 1 Peter 5:1-4.

W. A. Harper.

Elon College, N. C.

(To the Editor: This rounds out my year's work and concludes this series of "Suggestions," which it has been a pleasure to me to furnish you from week to week).

THE S. S. LESSON FOR AUG. 22, 1909.

Paul's Third Missionary Journey—

The Riot in Ephesus:

Acts 19:23-41.

Golden Text.—He said unto me, My grace is sufficient for thee; for my strength is made perfect in weakness: 2 Cor. 12:9.

The account we have of Paul's campaign at Ephesus reflects naturally the successful side of it. It relates Paul's prompt dealing with the few who had accepted Jesus as the Messiah, but knew him not as a Savior. It tells of his work in the synagogue, and then in the school of Tyrannus. It emphasizes the progress of the gospel among the devotees of magic arts and among the people.

We give place this week to a reprint of a splendid article on the lesson by Prof. William Ramsay which appeared in the Sunday School Times of recent date.

G. W. T.

PAUL'S VICTORY OVER THE MOB.

The catastrophe which interrupted Paul's work in Ephesus came at last after two years and three months' residence (called three years, 20:31, according to the universal ancient custom of reckoning two years and a fraction as three years). It was brought about not, as usual, through the Jews, but through the Greeks: in Ephesus there was evidently good feeling on the part of some Jews toward the new Faith, and Jewish opposition did not go to any serious extreme.

Ephesus as the seat of the worship of the goddess Artemis, who was revered by visitors from the whole Province Asia as deeply as by the citizens themselves. Her worshippers, whether native to the city of coming from other places, used to buy and dedicate in the temple or carry to their own homes images of the goddess in her shrine. According to their means these shrines were of silver, or marble, or stone, or terra-cotta, more or less ornamental and expensive. There were images to suit all purses. The fabrication of these shrines (naoi, as they were called) was a trade of importance in the city, giving employment to a large number workmen.

The whole business was organized as

SEABOARD AIR LINE RAILWAY. QUICKEST LINE TO

New York, Washington, Charlotte, Florida Points, Atlanta, Birmingham, Memphis, New Orleans and the West.

Double Daily Service with High-Back-Seat Coaches, Pullman Sleeping and Dining Cars.

We operate Daily Vestibule service, with through Pullman Sleeping Cars to Jacksonville, Atlanta, Birmingham, Memphis, Portsmouth, Norfolk, Richmond, Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York.

For Time Tables, Booklets Reservations or any information relative to special rates and route, call on or address C. H. GATTIS, Trav. Passenger Agt., No. 4 Tucker Building, Raleigh, N. C.

YOUNG MEN! If you want to know why you should become telegraph operators and what school to attend, write to SOUTHERN SCHOOL OF TELEGRAPHY, Newman, Ga., for free Catalogue "A." EVERY BOY should read it. Positions positively guaranteed.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup

Has been used for over SIXTY-FIVE YEARS by MILLIONS of MOTHERS for their CHILDREN WHILE TEETHING, with PERFECT SUCCESS. It SOOTHES the CHILD, SOFTENS the GUMS, ALLAYS all PAIN; CURES WIND COLIC, and is the best remedy for DIARRHŒA. Sold by Druggists in every part of the world. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Guaranteed under the Food and Drug Act, June 30th, 1906. Serial Number 1098. AN OLD AND WELL TRIED REMEDY.

MEDICINE.

We prepare as good medicine, the very best medicine that the finest, freshest, most potent drugs and chemicals will produce when carefully and skilfully compounded by an expert prescription man—just such medicine as your physician means that you should have, medicine of the utmost possible effectiveness. May we prepare your medicine?

FREEMAN DRUG CO.,
Burlington, N. C.

a trade-guild, like almost every trade in Asia Minor; and the guild of "shrine-makers" was very influential in the city. The teaching of Paul had produced such effect in the city that the shrine-makers' sales were seriously diminished. People were listening to Paul instead of buying and dedicating shrines. The guild became alarmed about the future of their industry.

Demetrius, a leading man in the trade, called a meeting of the craftsmen, and pointed out the loss to their trading profits, and the impiety and danger to the religion of the city which resulted from Paul's teaching. The prospect of such loss to themselves and to their goddess roused a storm of indignation; the city was thrown into confusion; crowds rushed through the streets and flocked into the great theatre, seizing and taking with them two of Paul's companions and fellow-workers, Gaius and Aristarchus.

Paul wished to go into the theater and address the crowd, but his friends dissuaded him; and some of the Asiarchs who were friendly to him sent messages begging him not to run such a risk. The Asiarchs were officials of the Province, whose duty was to regulate the rites and ceremonies of the imperial religion (that is, the worship of the emperors, living and dead, as embodiments in human form of the divine power that guarded the empire): the fact that they helped Paul shows that at this time the Roman government in the Eastern Provinces was not unfavorable to free religious teaching: the attitude of Gallio at Corinth and of Sergius Paulus at Paphos points to the same conclusion.

The Jews at Ephesus were afraid that they might be involved in the same danger as Paul their fellow-countryman, and they put forward a Jew named Alexander to speak on their behalf and clear them of complicity in Paul's action; but when the crowd became aware that he was a Jew, they would not listen to him; the mob of Greek cities always hated the Jews, though a number of thoughtful Greeks were attracted to the pure and lofty morality of the Jewish faith. The meeting was now a scene of utter disorder: many who had rushed with the crowd did not know why the assembly had come together: for two hours all continued to shout, "Great Artemis of the Ephesians."

At last the secretary of the city, a municipal official of great importance, who was charged beyond any other with managing the delicate relation between the imperial government and the municipal administration, succeeded in obtaining a hearing. He humored the crowd by stating in the first place that the city derived its special honor from being the guardian of the goddess and of her temple: that was a fact indisputable, and there was no reason for alarm, as if the goddess were in danger. But as to the two men whom the mob had dragged into the theater, they had not been guilty of treason to the empire ("robbers of temples" is a mistranslation), or of disrespect to the religion of the city. If Demetrius and the trade-guild of which he was a leading member had any ground of complaint against them, there was justice to be had in the regular courts of law: an accusation ought to be lodged in the regular way. If issues of a wider kind, touching the relation of these strangers to the municipality, were involved, such matters ought to come before a regular meeting of the public assembly. But an irregular meeting like the present was illegal and amounted to a riot: the imperial government was always suspicious of popular assemblies, and apprehensive lest they might try to meddle in matters beyond their sphere; and there was great risk lest the city should be involved in trouble on account of the disorderly proceedings of the day. After listening to this sharp rebuke, the meeting dispersed. Paul had triumphed, and his enemies were discomfited.

Luke does not lay stress on the troubles and dangers which Paul had to face in Ephesus; but from the apostle's words to the Corinthians we know that his residence there was a time of great anxiety. The result of the riot was that Paul, who had intended to stay in Ephesus until Pentecost A. D. 56, left the city earlier in the year, and went by Troas into Macedonia and Achaia. After he left Corinth in spring 53, he had gone to Caesarea, Jerusalem, and Antioch, stayed there a short time, wrote there the Epistle to the Galatians, and afterward traveled through the Galatian churches in autumn and early winter 53.—Sir Wm. M. Ramsay, D.C.L., LL.D., Litt.D.

Aberdeen University, Scotland.

BOYS FREE This Spaulding outfit absolutely free to any boy who will send 45 cents for our samples and give us a few hours of his spare time for one week. This SPAUDING SUIT is strong, well made and guaranteed. Any two letters you want for shirt front FREE. Address with 45 cents.

Universal Supply Co., Dudley Ave.,
Lansdowne, Pa.

DR. J. H. BROOKS
Surgeon and Dentist
FOSTER BUILDING,
Burlington, N. C.

FREE RIFLE This handsome 1000 Shot Rifle absolutely free to any boy who will send us 40 cents for one of our Samples and give us a few hours of his spare time for one week. This rifle is great for Target practice, and is sure death to small game and rats. Address with 40 cents, stamps or money order. The W. L. Board Co., 1912-14th St., N. W., Washington, D. C.

DRINK
VITA SPRING
(Alkaline Chalybeate)
MINERAL WATER
For Stomach, Liver and Bowels.
Vita Spring, Shelton, S. C.

DO YOU WANT TO GO TO COLLEGE? If so we can help you. We have already put hundreds through college by means of our plan. Write today for full information regarding our offer of a free scholarship in any school or college. Address, Robert J. Sherlock, 29-31 East 22nd Street, New York City.

SPRING TIME.

The time for gardening is here and you need garden tools. We can supply you at lowest prices.

Poultry Wire.

The best assorted stock in the county. Four different styles and weight.

Come and See.

Remember plumbing and bath room fixtures, a speciality. You will find us on Davis St. third door from Post-office.
BURLINGTON HARDWARE CO.

A LEADING BOARDING SCHOOL for 250 Students. Established 1884. Prepares for College, Business, Teaching, or for Life. Health, Character and Scholarship. Wide patronage. Very reasonable rates. Each student receives personal attention. School highly endowed. (Location is near Greensboro, N. C.) For Beautiful Catalogues, Views, etc., address the President,
W. T. WHITSETT, Ph. D.,
Whitsett, North Carolina.

RAISE MONEY FOR YOUR CHURCH.

We offer you an easy method. Send us a photograph of your church or your pastor, and we will send you 500 high grade post cards, with photograph on each card, and scripture verse if desired. Sell these cards at 10 cents each. When sold, remit us $20.00 and keep the balance. You can do this in a week. We will return photograph.

LAKE SHORE SUPPLY CO.,
225 Broad St., St. Joe, Michigan.

TULANE
UNIVERSITY of LOUISIANA
NEW ORLEANS

EDWIN B. CRAIGHEAD, LL. D., President.

Tulane University in all its departments, is located in the City of New Orleans, the metropolis of the South. Nine Departments, with twenty-three buildings. Modern dormitories, extensive laboratories, libraries, and museums.

Full Courses are offered in Languages, Sciences, Engineering, Architecture, Art, Law, Medicine, Pharmacy, and Dentistry.

Separate Department for Women. Expenses low. Low dormitory rates. Next session of all departments, except M. O. Polytechnic, begins October 1st. Polytechnic opens November 1st. Send for catalogue. Address, E. K. BRUPE, Secretary.

A GROUND OF HOPE.

In the whole ministry of Christ we may see great ground for Christian hopefulness. Note the fact that although there were very many things which operated against Him, yet he never despaired of the final issue of His mission. There was a very dark state of things on every hand, great enough to appal the heart of any man, yet Christ proceeded in His work with undiminished hopefulness. He knew that it would be only a little while when His enemies would seem to triumph over Him by putting Him to death on the cross. But He came to earth for the purpose of such a death. To some extent He was carrying the cross all through His ministry, for His ministry was one of continued sacrifice. He was all the while preparing for His execution on the cross. And if He were full of hope, amid all of His bitter experiences from hostile forces, surely every Christian has ground for hope, however dark at times his surroundings may be. Rev. G. Campbell Morgan, of London, says: "No man who has looked into the love-lit eyes of the dying Christ, can ever speak of another as hopeless. That is what His cross meant. Tell me what you will about the pollution of the heart; I know it; I am human. Tell me what you will about the forces of evil that drive men astray from birth; I know them well, and no new-born philosophy can rid me of them. Yet, over against all such declarations, set this other fact: Christ considered that man, in the image of God, marred, bruised, broken, spoiled, was yet worth dying for." Yes, Christ's death on the cross for dying men and women is the greatest ground of hope for every sinner in the world. If I have any reader, sunken low in sin, who thinks that his or her case is hopeless, I urge him or her to look to that Savior who has made ample atonement for the sins of each, and for an eternal salvation. And you, Christian, should keep habitually hopeful.

C. H. Wetherbe.

—Prayer will make a man cease from sin, or sin will entice a man to cease from prayer.—Bunyan.

SHINGLES MADE OF TIN.
Artistic Features of Wood, Slate, and Tiles Combined with Endurance of Metal.

In every community in the United States there are houses—homes, churches, public buildings, factories—that stand out distinctly from the neighboring buildings, sharply defined in beauty and condition by the roofs that cover them.

Casually viewed, you are impressed with the individuality of this roofing; examined closely, it is found to be metal in pieces somewhat larger than either, stone, slate or wood shingles, yet made in such a way that the whole roof is locked together in one piece.

This very distinctive roofing is Cortright Metal Shingles, the only roofing that satisfies the demand of the three parties interested in any building—the architect whose first thought is of art effect, the builder whose chief desire is to turn out enduring work, and the owner who wants all his money well get.

It is actually handsomer than wood shingles or stone slate, earthen tiles, or plain tin or copper, and it has none of their faults. It will not burn or split like wood shingles; it will not splinter, crack, crumble, or break like slate; it will not leak or disintegrate like tin; it will not rattle, rust or tear like plain tin.

It is made of the best grade of tin. Every piece is carefully inspected and painted both sides. And it packs in boxes so closely that the roofing for a big house will not occupy more than half a wagon load.

Any of our readers who are going to build should write the Cortright Metal Roofing Company, 54 North Twenty-third Street, Philadelphia, Pa., for their large illustrated books on their roofing. They are sent postpaid without charge.

COMMERCIAL COLLEGE OF KENTUCKY UNIVERSITY
Cheapest, Highest Honored, Situations,
Medal awarded Prof. Smith at World's Fair.
Book-keeping, Business, Short-hand, Type-Writing and Telegraphy taught. University
Diploma to graduates. 10,000 Graduates in Business. Begin now.
Address only, WILBUR R. SMITH, Lexington, Ky.

Books for Every Christian Home.

Do you know why you are a member of the Christian Church?
Do you understand what the church stands for and teaches?
If not, send and get a copy of the "Principles and Government of the Christian Church," just revised and greatly improved by order of the Southern Christian Convention.

Cloth binding per copy, post paid 50 cts.

Limp Cloth binding per copy, post paid 35 cts.

Paper binding per copy, post paid 25 cts.

Handsome Persian Morocco, with name in gilt $1.25.

The Southern Christian Convention also Ordered Another Book Published, PREPARING THE SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER TO TEACH. Edited by Profs. W. A. Harper, W. C. Wicker and W. P. Lawrence.

The book is neatly printed and bound and is invaluable to the Sunday-school worker, 236 pages.

Paper binding per copy, postpaid, 60 cts.

Cloth binding per copy, postpaid, 90 cts.

To Sunday-schools; paper binding 50 cts. cloth 75 cts.

Have You Read That Thrilling and Inspiring Story of His Own Life, MOTHER'S ANSWERED PRAYER, BY REV. P. H. FLEMING, D. D.?

Cloth binding, postpaid 55 cts.

All these books should be in your home. Order at once

For sale by, THE CHRISTIAN SUN, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

IT'S INTERESTING

to hear the different comments on different Shoes. All shoes have some good points; Style or comfort or service.

WALK-OVER SHOES

have all the good points; style and comfort and service and their price is the best point of all. $3.50, 4.00 & 5.00.

Foster Shoe Co., Burlington, N. C.

Dry Goods, Notions, Ready Made Clothing.

When in Burlington visit our large store, supplied always with the very best and latest styles and novelties.

Our Dry Goods are of latest designs, and our Ready Made Clothing cannot be surpassed in quality and price.

Come, See. Be Convinced.

B. A. SELLARS & SONS. BURLINGTON. N. C.

D I E L .

Barbee.

At her home in Durham, N. C., August 11, 1909, Anna J. Barbee, wife of Rev. A. B. Barbee and daughter of B. H. Herndon and Martha Herndon. Sister Barbee had been a patient sufferer since last October. She was married to A. P. Barbee 21st of February, 1877. Her birthday was June 9, 1862. She was a modest, unassuming Christian woman. She leaves to mourn their loss a devoted husband, three brothers, three sisters and two uncles.

She was a member of the Durham Christian Church, having united with the church at O'Kelly's Chapel soon after her marriage, and subsequently transferring her membership to Durham church.

The funeral services were conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. G. T. Adams, pastor of Trinity Church, in the Durham Christian Church. The congregation was large.

May the Lord bless all mourning ones.
W. G. Clements.

PROGRAM

District Meeting

To be held with Rock Stand Church, August 27-29, 1909.

Friday Evening.

7:30—Preaching by Rev. J. V. Knight and B. H. Veasy.

Saturday.

9:00 a. m.—Devotional exercises by president. Welcome address by J. D. Dollar. Response by C. W. Carter.

9:30—Organization.

9:40—Power and Influence of Organized Effort, by Rev. G. D. Hunt.

10:00—Duty of Deacon to Pastor and Church, C. W. Carter.

10:30—How Shall We Interest Our Young Folks in Church Work? C. M. Dollar.

11:00—Preaching by G. D. Hunt.

12:00—Refreshments.

1:30 p. m.—What Shall Be Done with Our Home Mission Work Another Year? E. M. Carter and J. H. Hughes.

2:00—Talks on Missions, limited to 10 minutes.

2:30—Church Extension and How? Dr. J. M. Welch and J. J. Carter.

3:00—Address by Miss Bettie Stephenson, subject of her own selection.

3:30—How to Make Such Meetings as This Profitable and Successful. Discussion led by J. W. Payne. 10 minutes.

4:00—Miscellaneous.

4:30—Adjournment.

7:30 p. m.—Sermons by E. M. Carter and J. H. Milam.

Sunday.

9:00—Sunday School. By superintendent.

9:45—The Sunday School a Training School for Church Work. By B. H. Young and others.

10:00—The Sunday School a Factor in the Evangelization of the World.

10:30—Song service, by J. Kirby.

11:00—Sermon by G. O. Lankford.

C. M. Dollar,

J. H. Hughes,

J. D. Dollar.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONVENTION
(Eastern N. C. Conference.)

First Day.

Rev. H. Sholtz conducted the devotional meeting. Rev. C. E. Newman delivered address of welcome. All of his words were honest and sincere. His prophecy was more than fulfilled in the royal entertainment given by Henderson people. Never has a convention of delegates received better entertainment. The principal feature of the session was the excellent address by Prof. S. M. Smith, president of the convention. In his address he placed great emphasis on the importance and necessity of teacher-training, organized adult class work and Christian Endeavor.

The entire afternoon of the first day was given to the discussion of the theme Teacher-Training, written address on "Why We Need Teacher-Training," by Rev. L. F. Johnson, other addresses by Rev. H. Sholtz and Prof. S. M. Smith.

"The Oxford Teachers' par excellence"

JUST ISSUED!

OXFORD

Teachers' Bibles and S. S. Scholars' Bibles

With New 20th Century Helps arranged in One Alphabetical Order.

THE HELPS

The Christian Advocate, Nashville, says: "The helps are real helps. Unlike those in many of the cheap Bibles, they are not simply thrown together in hodge-podge fashion, but represent the freshest and ablest work of the foremost modern scholars."

Address THE CHRISTIAN SUN, Elon College, N. C.

Bible is the Bible of the World."

NOW READY!

SIX NEW EDITIONS

OXFORD

Black Faced Type BIBLES

Three on Oxford White Paper. Three on the famous Oxford India Paper.

Pearl 32mo. A wonderful clear type in a small-size book.

Minion 16mo. Ready October 1907. A model hand Bible.

Brevier 16mo. Large type in small compass. "A quart in a pint measure."

"The new Bible just published by the Oxford Press is, without doubt, the finest product of the kind ever given to the public."

ASK FOR THE OXFORD EDITION

REMEMBER: That we guarantee satisfaction and sell to you cheaper than the publisher and dealers do. Our business is by mail and express and prices quoted are the prices of goods delivered to you. We can furnish you the Oxford, or the Holman Teacher's Bible at prices ranging from $1.35 to $4.00. Send for our catalogue or write us what you want. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN, Elon College, N. C.

The Centennial of Religious Journalism

EDITED BY J. PRESSLEY BARRETT, D. D.
Editor Herald of Gospel Liberty

This is without doubt the most generally interesting publication sent out by the Christians. Its centennial, historical and denominational features make it not only unique in character, but interesting as well. From beginning to end it claims the interested attention of the reader.

We have not space here to give the table of contents, but suffice it to say, that beginning with the "Discussion of the conditions which made the organization of the Christian Church a necessity," the reader will follow with interest and profit, the "History of the Herald of Gospel Liberty," "The One Hundred Editorial Gems," "Historical Sketches of One-Hundred-Year-Old Churches," "A Symposium—A Hundred Years of Progress," setting forth in well prepared papers the development of the various enterprises of the Christian Church, and with a heart full of optimistic hope he will peruse "The Future Outlook of the Christian Church."

And all this, and more, in a book of nearly 650 pages, handsomely bound, with gold titles, while the price is only $1.00 for cloth binding and $2.00 for Morocco, with your name printed in gold. Postage, 15 cents extra. Send your order at once to

J. N. HESS, Publishing Agent

Dayton, Ohio

[EDUCATIONAL.]

MEDICAL COLLEGE of the STATE OF SOUTH CAROLINA

CHARLESTON, S. C.

Session Opens October 1st, 1909.

Medicine and Pharmacy.

Pathological and pharmaceutical laboratories recently enlarged and fully equipped. Splendid Clinical facilities offered by the

ROPER HOSPITAL

one of the largest and best equipped Hospitals in the South, with 218 beds and free dispensary service. Nine appointments each year for graduates. For catalogue, address

ROBERT WILSON JR. M. D., DEAN,

Corner of Queen and Franklin Sts.

Charleston, S. C.

The report which read by Prof. Geo. T. Whitaker was interesting and to the point. Rev. C. E. Newman related something of his experience as a teacher of a teacher-training class at Liberty Church. His words were worth while and were full of encouragement to those who are about to take-up the work of teacher-training.

The morning of the second day was devoted to a lively discussion on the theme, Our Sunday School Literature. The report was read by Rev. A. T. Banks. Able addresses were made on the subject by Profs. Geo. T. Whitaker and W. C. Wicker. Good thoughts were offered on the same theme by Mr. W. R. Rodgers and Rev. H. Scholz.

The entire afternoon of the second day was given to the discussion of Christian Endeavor. Many good talks and addresses were delivered on the above theme. Among those who spoke in the interest of Christian Endeavor were Revs. W. G. Clements, J. D. Wicker, C. E. Newman and Mr. E. M. Newman.

The last session of the convention was given to reading reports of committees from departments. Music, Home Department, Primary Department, Organization and Expansion. All the reports were good. Special mention should be made of the report on organization and expansion. The home mission idea was prominent in the report and provision was made for the appointment of a committee to do active home mission work. Revs. W. G. Clemens, J. D. Wicker, H. Sholtz committee. Miss Willie Staley read report on primary work, which report was full of interest. The report called for much needed improvement in the department. Rev. C. E. Newman reported for Home Department. The open discussion on the reports made this session one of the most interesting of all.

Business.

The Sunday school convention changed to that of the Young People's Convention of the Eastern North Carolina Conference. Twenty dollars was appropriated to the Young People's Department of the Southern Christian Convention. Minutes of the convention were ordered published with minutes of like convention in the Southern Christian Convention. New officers were elected as follows: Rev. H. Sholtz, president; Rev. L. F. Johnson, secretary; T. J. Haskins, treasurer.

Next convention will meet with Amelia Church, in Johnson County, three miles south of Clayton.

L. F. Johnson.

—Prayer will make a man cease from sin, or sin will entice a man to cease from prayer.—Bunyan.

Is Isolation a Burden to You?

Then Remove It!

The telephone makes the community one large family for business and social purposes. It aids in church work and summons friends and neighbors to social gatherings. Connection with the Bell System enables you to reach anybody almost anywhere without leaving your home.

Write to nearest Bell Telephone Manager, or address

Farmers' Line Department
SOUTHERN BELL TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH CO.
19 SOUTH PRYOR STREET, ATLANTA, GA.

—Mr. Edison says:—

“We are face to face with aerial navigation, face to face with it on a scale of which we have never dreamed. In ten years flying machines will be used to carry the mails. They'll carry passengers, too. They will go at a speed of 100 miles an hour. There is no doubt of it. Anything within reason can be accomplished. The commercially successful flying machine is within reach. Ask me if man can ever jump from the earth to the moon, and I will reply, 'No,' because it is not within reason.”

—More than one hundred thousand workmen are idle in Sweden on account of a labor war.

—Harper's Weekly and Harper's Monthly Magazine announce that they will take no more liquor advertisements.

THE FRAGMENTS.

Let nothing be wasted. Life is made up of fragments, and he who does not save them does not live well. The cloth is woven by adding thread to thread. It is only by taking up today in the unfinished task of yesterday that any work can be done. Wealth is gained by putting together and saving and using the little earnings that reward our efforts. Learning is gained by carefully saving the little that has been acquired in school and perfecting it and adding to it. The student leaves school with many tasks begun and not one finished. If he does not save these fragments of learning, he will never be a scholar. The same rule holds in spiritual things. Only by taking up the task day by day, always recognizing that it is unfinished, only by adding each day the little we can add, can we hope to finish the task and to hear the final "Well done."

While our work is fragmentary, the task itself is a unit. Christ does not divide it. He does not say: "Make sure of your own salvation, and then do what you can to save others." He sums up our whole duty in one word: "Follow thou me." By so doing thou shalt both save thyself and them that hear thee.

Jesus went about on foot, so even the women could follow Him. The following that He still requires is never too great for our strength, but it is always walking. Only by adding step to step is the work ever done. But even the poor can walk, and even the poorest can be successful disciples and apostles. It is not the great life, but the perfect life that counts. Diamonds are never large, as stones go; but a diamond not as large as a hazelnut may be more valuable than a great boulder many thousand times as big. So a pure, perfect life can be fashioned into a gem by the great Lapidary. Let us change the figure a little, for the truth is many-sided. God gives to every soul gem after gem. Blessed is he who takes and treasures all of them, not neglecting even the smallest, but fitting each into its place in life's mosaic; but woe to him who says, "The task is too great for me," and leaves the picture unfinished!

The unfinished work of yesterday must be the task today. That is true of even the little enterprises that look to nothing beyond the present life; how much more of the great work that God only could design and that God only can direct! "Build the house," the master workman has said; but the hod-carrier says: "I can do nothing of the kind. I can only carry a hod." He does not know that by carrying burdens he is building the house as truly as the

Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Is paying out and investing in both Virginia and North Carolina more than it receives from these States.

New business in Virginia, 1908,
$2,147,800
Larger than any other company.

Gain in insurance in force in Virginia, 1908,
$1,374,975

60 per cent more than the next largest.

T. ARCHIBALD CARY, General Agent for Virginia and North Carolina,
Richmond, Virginia.

During 1908

(As in previous years)

We want you in our business, for we have what you want in your homes—the very best, most substantial and handsome furniture at bottom prices. We are also the undertakers.

Burke Furniture and Coffin Company
BUKLLINGTON, N. C.

Southern Railway

Operating Over 7,000 Miles of Railway. Quick Route to all Points North,
South, East and West.

For Speed, Comfort, Courteous Employees, travel via the Southern Railway.
Rates, Schedules and other information furnished by any of the undersigned.

R. L. VERNON, Trav. Pass. Agt., J. H. WOOD, Dist. Pass. Agt.,
Charlotte, N. C. Asheville, N. C.
S. H. HARDWICK, P. T. M., W. H. TAYLOR, G. P. A.,
Washington, D. C.

Elon College.

Co-educational. Established 1890.

Thorough College courses leading to M. A., A. B., and Ph. B. degrees. Strong and experienced Faculty with highest University training. Good Library, Reading Room, Laboratories, Literary Societies. Excellent Music, Art, Elocution and Business Departments. Diploma from Elon admits to graduate departments in the highest universities.

Beautiful and healthful location, 17 miles east of Greensboro on Southern Railway. Best moral and religious influence. No hazing. New students met by reception committees from young people's Christian organizations connected with the college. Good equipment. A large new dormitory, with modern conveniences, has recently been built to meet the requirements of growing patronage.
EXPENSES UNUSUALLY MODERATE. FALL TERM OPENS SEPT. 1ST.

For catalogue or further information, address

EMMETT L. MOFFITT, LL. D., President.

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

most skillful workman of them all. But in God's work not only is it true that even the humblest laborer is essential to the great plan, but the plan is perfected in each individual life. Every dewdrop mirrors the great sun as truly as the ocean. We shall all come to a "perfect man," but meanwhile each life must be perfected in Christ.

Gather up the fragments. Take up the unfinished tasks. A business failure in the Christian life is a calamity. There are many such failures. There are sermons that do no good. There are Sunday school classes in which no good is done. There are people on every hand who are playing at Christianity, not expecting to succeed. There are still others who are not even playing, who are merely doing nothing. They fail without even trying to succeed. Take up the unfinished task, and perfect life with completed work.—Nashville Christian Advocate.

The Christian Sun.

In Essentials—Unity, in Non-Essentials—Liberty, in All Things—Charity.

ESTABLISHED 1844.

GREENSBORO N. C., WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 25, 1909. VOLUME LXI. NUMBER 33.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

Mr. Andrew Carnegie has written another book—Carnegie is quite a writer now, already having several volumes to his credit. His latest venture is "Problems of Today." In this the author takes the gamblers to task and greatly, but justly, deplures and condemns the speculative spirit of our time. Gambling has come to be our national vice, the steele magnate points out, and lives and homes are being wrecked. Mr. Carnegie is right in his zeal for checking and suppressing the gambling spirit. He deplures, with just wrath, the corner on wheat and the speculative spirit that led to it. One naturally wants to know about the corner on steel and the speculative spirit that led Mr. Carnegie to form the gigantic steel trust. It would be difficult to find many more speculative spirits among American citizens than that displayed by Carnegie himself, but his book is timely and we trust will do good. "Problems of Today" presents some real problems worth thinking on.

We are getting down to the day of small things. It is well, for the small things are they which usually bring woe. Consider now a whole city, with a million men and women, having in their possession many millions of money, houses and lands, fighting the house fly. It is a desperate fight.

Chicago's health department, realizing the house fly to be both a common, low grade, nuisance, and a spreader of typhoid and other disease germs, issues a bulletin. "Don't let flies walk into your parlor, nor into your house. Keep them away from your food. Don't buy food or eat it where flies are tolerated. Screen windows and doors. Use liquid poisons, stick fly-papers and traps. Avoid dirt and use carbohc acid."

Commenting on his creation and his habits, Success for September observes: "Since theology began, men have asked themselves why flies were created, and where they go in winter, and why they don't stay there. Flies have always been a nuisance. They get into the baby's milk; thence they wander into the garbage can. Anon they return to the cream pitcher, and after taking a bite from a typhoid patient they revisit the dining-room and complete their supper from the strawberry shortcake and the granulated sugar. The only place in the house they avoid is the fly-paper."

Poor house fly, scientific name Musca Domestica. A nation of eighty million people has risen up in arms against him; and the war is on to a finish.

Civilization, of the American sort, is making desperate inroads in Japanese political circles. Twenty-three members of the Japanese House of Representatives have recently been sentenced to prison because of graft in connection with a Japanese sugar trust. Think of it, a trust and a legislative scandal already in Japan. How wonderfully alert is the Japanese mind and how quickly the little yellow men learn from the deeds and doings of others, especially of us Americans.

But all of American methods are not yet employed. When the head of the Japanese Sugar Company found out his methods of graft were discovered he could not stand the disgrace and committed hara-kiri—(a euphonic Japanese name for suicide). Imagine, will you, the head of Standard Oil, American Tobacco or United Steel committing hara-kiri when their methods of dealing with legislators and executives are discovered. Evidently presidents of corporations in Japan have much to learn yet. But Japan is learning.

The schools and colleges may be ruining many boys, but they are helping to make many men, and the better equip them for place, position and power in the world. Education is not a luxury, but a necessity to the best citizenship and highest usefulness. Much learning may make some people mad, but it more often fits a Paul with an eloquence and a power that makes a faithless Felix tremble and a wicked Festus turn pale with fear and dread. The colleges may and do turn out some sap-heads and some hard heads and some big heads; but think, will you, of the conglomeration of those that are turned into the colleges. Of doubters and skeptics and wild theorists and new religionists the schools and colleges, in faculty and in pupils, are too numerous; but of this same class are to be found many of the devoutest hearts of our time, and the very ablest defenders of the faith once delivered unto the saints. In short, colleges are human institutions with human weaknesses and frailties as other institutions; but the worth of them so far outweighs the weakness of them that the sane and sensible who can will patronize and support them.

Henry Drummond was not far wrong when he said that half the world is on the wrong scent in the pursuit of happiness. They think it consists in having and getting, and in being served by others: it consists in giving and in serving others. But this, like all good and great lessons, is a difficult one to learn and to live up to.

That the church members in the United States numbered nearly thirty-three millions in 1906; that there were a billion and a quarter dollars invested in church edifices; that every day eight new churches sent their spires skyward; that males formed considerably less than half the total church membership; that a larger percentage of Catholic males than Protestant males were members; that in sixteen states the majority of the total church membership were Roman Catholic; but that of the grand total of church members reported for the United States 61.6 per cent. were Protestants and 36.7 per cent. Roman Catholics; these are the salient and conspicuous facts appearing in the proof sheets of a United States census bureau bulletin, prepared by Chief Statistician William C. Hunt, of the division of population, of the United States census bureau.

If people really cared for facts, and if facts would convince and count, such as these would be worth while: In July, 1908, Nashville, Tennessee, had saloons. There were in that month, by the police records, 1,058 arrests in the city for all causes; 303 arrests for drunkenness. In July, 1909, Nashville was under prohibition. In that month there were 684 arrests for all causes: for drunkenness 109. No, prohibition does not prohibit all crime and drunkenness, but it does evermore decrease both—if facts count.

—Happiness is not perfected until it is shared.—Jane Porter.

FROM THE FIELD.

VALLEY LETTER.

Below is given a short account of the work done at my churches during the year just closed.

Antioch.

The work at this place has been very pleasant all the year, and has been much helped by the faithfulness on the part of the members, some of whom are noted for their loyalty to church and to Christ. Eight members have been received during the year on profession of faith, and thirteen by re-instatement from a suspended list. Some of those received give promise of becoming strong, useful members. The membership now numbers 101. They promised pastor $150 and have paid $151. Their apportionment was $45.50 and they have paid $51.80. An interesting Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Society are conducted.

Linville.

Seventeen members have been received during the year, mostly young people. There are a number of other young people in the community that need to be reached by the church. I am indebted to Sister Nellie Barrix of this place for a beautiful soft pillow formed and fashioned by her own skilled hand and presented to me some time ago. Some unfortunate local conditions have militated somewhat against the success of the church here. However, all of the apportionment of $45 has been paid, and all of the the pastor's salary of $140 except a small amount which will likely be paid at an early date. A great need here, as well as in many other places, is more prayer, more consecration, and more religion.

Palmyra.

The work moves along slowly and yet not discouragingly here. Three have been added to the roll during the year, making a present membership of 75, many of whom are children, thus giving promise for the future. Pastor's salary of $50 has been overpaid and an apportionment of $5.75 has been overpaid by $1.25.

Joppa.

This is an old church situated in the little fort valley closely hemmed in by two mountain ranges. We have some good people here, though not enough of them to make a strong church, and local conditions are such that it may never be as strong as it was years ago. Six members were received during the past year, making the enrollment now 36. The apportionment of $5.50 and a salary of $36 have been paid in full.

Dry Run.

The work at this place is very encouraging. New life and activity has been aroused in this church, once considered dead and hopeless. Nine of the best people of the community have been added to the roll during the year making the total number on roll 25. With one or two exceptions these live within reach of the church and are loyal. Promised pastor $25; paid $27.50. Apportionment $5; paid $8.15.

Mt. Olivet (R).

This is rather a new church, and is still struggling to gain a foot hold in the community. We are sadly crippled here by the lack of competent leaders. Twelve members were received and the enrollment is now 49. Salary of $30 and apportionment of $8.50 all paid in full.

Bethel.

The work here has moved rapidly during the year. This point was considered to be languishing an almost lifeless when I assumed pastoral charge last October. Twelve members were received; present membership 61. They promised pastor $40, and some feared they could not pay it, but they paid $52.60. Their apportionment was $3.50 and they paid $15.80.

Mt. Lebanon.

This place has had only a night appointment once a month which in a large measure fails to meet the demands here. Three members were received during the year making the present membership 77. A salary of $40 was overpaid by $1 and an apportionment of $16 they paid $20.42.

I have preached during the year 227 sermons, had 85 conversions, baptized 87 candidates, made 14 addresses, received 89 members, made 551 pastoral visits, and traveled 4,116 miles—the greater part by private conveyance. My work has all suffered more or less because of the little time and scanty service I have been able to give each place, but to God be all the glory and praise for what has been done, and to Him let us look for blessings yet to follow.

A. W. Andes.

Harrisonburg, Va., Aug. 20, 1909.

Antioch.

We began our revival meeting at Antioch 2nd Sunday in August. Owing to rain our congregation was small, but as we proceeded the weather opened and our congregation increased and interest grew until the close of the meeting on Saturday following. This was in many respects the best meeting ever held at Antioch. Eight bright young men and women united with the church. Some of them were heads of families. The interest was intense at the closing service. I have never seen people more in earnest. The Lord came in great power and the church was revived. Many went away with hearts burdened on account of sin. May the Lord deliver them. Bro. Lankford was with us and did earnest gospel preaching, which won its way to the hearts of the people.

McGuire's Chapel.

I reached McGuire's Chapel third Sunday at 11 a. m. Found them engaged in a prayer meeting. They also met in a like service on Saturday and night before. Here we had a spiritual feast. I had no ministerial help but we had a fine meeting. The last service at Antioch was indeed a power. Two members were received to fellowship. Am expecting more at my next appointment.

The Lord has been with me in great power during the revival season and I am so thankful for His presence. I feel like everything has prospered with me this year and I bless His holy name.

District Meeting.

I think I shall go next week to assist the pastor of Pleasant Grove in a meeting, and then to the district meeting at Rock Stand, looking to God to bless us at each place. I trust I may have the prayers of the brotherhood in my work, for I am trying to do what the Lord bids me do. I shall endeavor to organize the young people of my churches at my next appointments.

As I go from place to place and see so many young people converted to God my heart goes out after them. Oh! if we could harness the talents of these young people for service in the church! What a great power it would be. The great need of my churches today is competent leadership. In order to get this we must train the young, and I feel that we are losing some very precious opportunities in this direction. I hope in the near future to report a young people's organization in each of my churches.

May the Lord send showers of blessings upon us. G. D. Hunt.

Rev. C. C. Ryan.

We have had the misfortune to lose our pastor, Rev. C. C. Ryan, he thinking it best for him to go back to his Ohio field of labor, and old home. We regret very much to lose him. He left of his own free will and accord, with a unanimous vote of the official board and deacons for him to remain with us another year.

Bro. Ryan has done a good work for the church while with us. He has taken in 85 members, of whom are some of the best members in the church. A Sunday school superintendent, assistant superintendent, two deacons, and a part of the official board, have all been received during his pastorate.

He has done good work among the young people, and especially among the Baracas. He has delivered several addresses among the Baraca classes of our city, and the young men of the various classes have learned to like him, because he took a special interest in their work.

During his pastorate with us he has taken profound interest in the men of the Navy, and several of them have united with our church. We are safe in saying that he has converted more enlisted men while here than any other pastor in our city.

It will always be remembered by the members of the Christian Memorial Temple, that whenever Bro. Ryan closed his sermon, he always extended an invitation to the unconverted. His greatest aim was to win souls to Christ, and by his constant invitations our church has grown greatly in membership.

Bro. Ryan has won a great many friends in this city. People from other denominations have visited his church, and he always gave them a hearty welcome. During his two years here (a portion of the time) he has preached three sermons a Sunday, and he has always had a good congregation.

Now he leaves us, and we can say that he has made us a faithful pastor in every respect, and we wish him God speed in his new field of labor.

C. R. Hinton, Secretary.

Shiloh.

We have just closed a glorious meeting at Shiloh. Bro. Morgan was with me and preached with earnestness and power. As visible results the church was greatly revived and fifteen or more professed faith in Christ. Twelve united with the church and several others will probably join later. Pray for us that the Lord may use us for the upbuilding of His kingdom.

R. L. Williamson.

VIRGINIA VALLEY CENTRAL CONFERENCE.

The sixty-first session of the Virginia Valley Central Conference met at Newport, Page County, Aug. 12-14. President, Rev. W. T. Walters, called the house to order at 10 o'clock, and Rev. R. H. Peel conducted devotional exercises.

The following ministers of the conference were present: W. T. Walters, L. L. Lassiter, J. W. Dofflemyre, A. W. Andes, and H. C. Moore. All churches were represented by delegate or letter except Christian Chapel, High Point, Island Ford, Mt. Salem, and Pimple Hill; and reports from some of these will likely come in, in time for publication in the Annual.

Rev. W. T. Walters was re-elected president, Rev. J. W. Dofflemyer was elected vice-president, and J. E. W. Bryant, assistant secretary.

The annual address was delivered by Rev. W. T. Walters, and was an excellent one dealing with our needs as a conference and suggesting methods of meeting these needs.

The report on moral reform struck a blow at the whiskey traffic, took a stand for state-wide prohibition, condemned the cigarette evil, the sabbath-desecrating influences in the world of industry, of literature, and of amusement. Great social evils such as dancing, divorce, wine and card parties, and "whatever corrupts individual character and makes the home unchristian" were condemned.

The report on Sunday schools, after emphasizing the importance and opportunity of the Sunday school, named four things as essential, viz: Intense interest, eminent qualification, diligent application, and ample and suitable equipment. The committee recommended that schools use care in selecting as officers and teachers those possessing the first three essentials. The use of our own literature, of maps, lesson pictures, black boards, etc., was recommended, and the helps on the Sunday school lesson in the Christian Sun by Rev. G. W. Tickle and Prof. W. A. Harper endorsed. The Home Department, Cradle Roll, training class, and our own book on teacher-training were recommended.

The report on religious literature recommended more reading of the Bible, a more liberal patronage of our own publications, that our young people give attention to the Young People's Department in The Christian Sun, and that Sunday school workers follow the suggestions offered by Prof. Harper, and provide themselves with the book "Preparing the Teacher to Teach."

The Home Mission Committee recommended that conference assume the debt of $2,200 on Winchester Church lot, the payments being due as follows: $700 on or before May 5, 1911, $700 on or before May 5, 1913, and $800 due on or before May 5, 1915; that a building committee be appointed; that all church extension funds available be appropriated to the Winchester debt; that a church be organized there as soon as the pastor and local members think best. A subscription was taken for the Winchester work amounting to $255. The committee recommended further that Pimple Hill and Mt. Salem be dropped from the Conference roll.

The committee on education recommended Elon College and other colleges of our denomination, and approved the effort being made to add $50,000 to the endowment of Elon College.

The report on foreign missions called attention to the importance of the work, and recommended a more faithful distribution and reading of our missionary literature, and that local missionary societies be organized wherever possible.

Rev. Edward French was elected to deliver the next annual address with A. W. Andes as alternate. The same arrangement as last year in regard to printing and distributing the minutes is to be made this year. A committee on Christian Endeavor was added to the list of standing committees. The following delegates to the Southern Christian Convention were elected: W. T. Walters, A. W. Andes, H. C. Moore, M. L. Bryant, Samuel Earman, C. W. Louderback, J. C. Bradford, J. W. Tate, R. C. Hook; alternates, J. W. Dofflemyre, S. W. Lincoln, E. T. Arnold, L. L. Lassiter, Nan B. Ruebush, Frank Foster, W. A. Crawford, B. F. Harman, A. S. Anderson. The treasurer was instructed to try to collect all notes due the Conference. The pulpit was ably and creditably filled by Revs. L. L. Lassiter, W. T. Walters, A. R. Garland, of the Ray's Chapel and Southern Pennsylvania Conference, J. W. Dofflemyre, H. R. Clem, of the Mt. Vernon, Ohio, Conference, J. T. Kitchen, and R. H. Peel, both of the Eastern Virginia Conference, and H. C. Moore. Dr. E. L. Moffitt and Bro. S. M. Atkinson were present and spoke in behalf of Elon College and The Christian Sun respectively.

In some respects this is one of the best sessions we have held. Some figures showing our advancement and growth will be given later. Adjournment was taken to meet at New Hope, near Harrisonburg, on Thursday before the third Sunday in August, 1910.

A. W. Andes, Sec.

Harrisonburg, Va.

—"Character! It is capital, credit, opportunity—all."

—"Don't be afraid of truth; she is no invalid.—Emerson.

—"The moving picture theaters are filling our cities and entering every town and as they become more numerous they are becoming more degrading.

—"Speaking of the devices which the cigarette trust employs to advantage to advertise and to lead youths to buy cigarettes, the Charlotte Observer plainly and truly says, "trading upon the small boy's passion for baseball as well as for collecting, to make a cigarette fiend of him, is diabolical—nothing less." The baseball pictures found in cigarette packages follow the semi-nude women pictures. This means of enticing young boys to buy cigarettes is "diabolical, nothing less."

NOTES AND PERSONALS.

—Elon College opens Wednesday, Sep. 1. This will be its twentieth annual session.

—The latest government crop report, giving returns to July 1, promises this year the greatest harvest in our history.

—Rev. S. B. Klapp, Greensboro, reports good meetings at Ingram, Va., and at Happy Home, Rockingham Co., N. C. We regret to learn that Bro. Klapp's son, Luther, is ill with typhoid fever.

—Pastor J. S. Carden recently closed a successful revival at Christian Chapel, near Merry Oaks, N. C. There were about fifty conversions. Twenty-two joined the church.

—The laymen of the North Carolina Conference, Methodist, under the auspices of the Laymen's Missionary Movement, are planning to raise on next Sunday, in the Methodist churches of the state, $75,000 for missions.

—Rev. W. L. Wells assisted in a revival meeting at Wake Chapel, near Fuquay Springs, N. C., last week. The church was much revived, there were some four or five professions, and two accessions to the church.

—A strike in Pittsburg culminated Aug. 22 in a storming of the Pressed Steel Car Company's plant, in which fray five men were killed and scores injured. The women sympathizers urged the men on and armed themselves and joined the mob, too.

—The following invitation has been received, for which our thanks and hearty congratulations are hereby expressed; Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Clendenin invite you to the marriage of their daughter, Pattie, to Mr. Jess L. Bradshaw on Wednesday, August twenty-fifth, 1909, at 5 p. m., at their home at Elon College, N. C.

—The pastor and resident members of Union Church, Union Ridge, N. C., are anxious that there be a "home coming" of all non-resident members, and ex-members of that church, on the event of the dedication next Sunday of the new and handsome house of worship. There is an elaborate program and a pleasant day is anticipated.

—"Seeing their faith," the Savior healed a sick person, opened the eyes of a blind individual, cured the leprosy of a diseased body. See? "Their faith," not the faith of the one helped and healed, but the faith of those interested in the one to be helped and healed. By their zeal, faith, persistency, consecrated effort, the Christian world can bring to the door of salvation and the Author of Life, those who need and must have help in order to be saved. "Seeing their faith," He turned, not to them, but to the one for whom prayer was offered, sacrifice made and for whom faith was displayed.

—Bishop O. P. Fitzgerald in Nashville Christian Advocate pointedly declares:

"Three suggestions of profound significance are embraced in these words that we find in the 119th Psalm: "I thought on my ways, and turned my feet unto thy testimonies. I made haste, and delayed not to keep thy commandments." First, the responsibility of choice as to the manner of our lives. Second, the power to make right choice. Third, the importance of making haste in a matter so vital to our safety and welfare, the folly of delay. These three suggestions make a solemn and searching appeal to all of us, the writer of these lines and every reader. Moral responsibility—power of right choice—the necessity for immediate action—this is the message for each and all.

—We are in receipt of a neatly printed program of the dedicatory exercises of Union Christian Church, Union Ridge, N. C., sent us by the pastor, Rev. J. W. Holt, as follows:

Sunday, August 29, 1909. Morning, 11 o'clock: Doxology, Invocation, Rev. W. T. Herndon; hymn, No. 144; Scripture Lesson, Rev. W. S. Long; Hymn, No. 197; Prayer, Rev. P. H. Fleming; Sermon, Rev. J. O. Atkinson; Prayer, Rev. J. W. Wellons; Presentation of Church, Pastor; Dedicatory Formula, Rev. J. O. Atkinson; Hymn, No. 195; Benediction, Rev. T. H. Strowd. Afternoon, 2 o'clock. Song, No. 306; Prayer, Rev. T. W. Strowd; Song No. 346; Roll-Call, by Secretary; Hymn, No. 78; Church Home Coming—Its Benefits, Socially, Religiously and otherwise, Rev. W. S. Long, leading open discussion; Hymn, No. 182; Non-resident and Non-attendant Membership—Its Duty to the Home church and the Churches' duty to it. Rev. J. O. Atkinson leading open discussion; Hymn, No. 86; Benediction by Rev. J. W. Wellons.

NEWS ITEMS.

—There are according to a recent census 3,921 foreign students in the German universities, 298 are Americans. Berlin and Leipsic are now the favorite universities, instead of Heidelberg, which formerly headed the list.

—From a recent report for the first six months of the present year North Carolina is placed first in cotton mill building, having under construction 25 cotton mills. Massachusetts comes next with 22 and New York is third with 18.

—The Cuban orange crop of 1908 was a record one, aggregating nearly half a million crates; the pineapple crop amounted to approximately 1,000,000 crates, nearly all of which was shipped to New York.

—This is a day of praise to mineral springs but we wonder should it not be a day of praise to any pure water. If we could stay at home and imagine that our common well water was as beneficial mineral water and drink it freely there is no doubt but that we would be relieved of many of the disorders of our bodies. Water is coming to the front as a puri-

—Lowest bids for the construction of two more battleships—the Wyoming and Arkansas—have been submitted to the navy department by different shipbuilding companies and the contracts for the construction of the ships will be awarded in a few days. Undoubtedly Uncle Sam believes in preparing for war in time of peace. These two will cost nine or ten millions.

—"In three ways the bobwhite is of strictly economic importance—as a destroyer of noxious seeds and insects; as a delicate and nourishing food, and as an object of sport. * * * The sooner the farmer realizes the value of the bobwhite and the fact that the market hunter is a bird exterminator, profiting at the landowner's expense, the better will be his chance of an income from his crop of quail. * * * It is one of the most nearly omnivorous birds known, consuming large quantities of weed seeds and destroying many of the worst insect pests with which the farmer has to contend. It does not injure grain, fruit or any other crop."

—Robert Womack, famous as the discoverer of gold at Cripple Creek, Colorado, in January, 1901, died a few days ago of paralysis after a long illness, having been dependent for several years on a sister who keeps a boarding-house at Colorado Springs. This man's end of life is an example of what rum does. Having discovered mining fields which returned $250 in gold to the ton he became intoxicated with prosperity and went to Colorado Springs on a spree and sold a fortune of $280,000,000 for $500. When Womack sobered up in a few days he returned to the place to find all the mining property taken up by others and soon himself to be working for daily wages. A spree cost him $280,000,000 and a pauper's life.

—I have been a great deal happier since I have given up thinking about what is easy and pleasant, and being discontented because I couldn't have my own will. Our life is determined for us, and it makes the mind very free when we give up wishing and only think of bearing what is laid upon us, and doing what is given us to do.—George Eliot.

NORFOLK LETTER.

I stated in my letter of last week, that Rev. A. B. Kendall was expected in Norfolk, Sunday to fill the pulpit of the Third Church, with the view of taking up the work here. He arrived via Bay Line steamer from Baltimore Sunday morning. He preached for us at eleven o'clock, after taking an active part in the Sunday school. In the afternoon we visited Rosemont, where he took part in the services, and we heard their pastor, Rev. C. C. Ryan, preach a good sermon.

Sunday night he gave us a sermon on the subject of "Wisdom of Soul Winning." His sermon was strong, clear, and convincing, full of good reason and logic. He speaks out of a rich, deep, personal experience, he has spent several years in active work in the saving of men. He has had several years of Y. M. C. A. work, for a while, as assistant Sec., and for some years as General secretary. He is a graduate of the Moody Bible Institute, of Chicago, where he also had charge as leader of a branch of "Social Settlement Work." He has been for the past year pastor of the Christian Church at Le Grande, Iowa, where he has also been giving a course of Bible lectures in Palmer College. He is chairman of the committee of the "Adult Bible Class Department" of the State Sunday school work. He is a strong man, much sought after. His people where he is are very anxious to retain his services. He has created a very favorable impression amongst our people here. A business meeting of the church will be held tonight. I hope to be able to report something definite in my next letter. Congregations yesterday were fine, Sunday school, the largest we have ever had. The situation at the Memorial Temple is about the same as last week.

J. W. Manning.

PORTSMOUTH LETTER.

The work on the new Christian church has begun in earnest. A large force of men are at work on the building and the walls are rising rapidly. The first brick was laid by Master Aldridge Harrell.

The building will be 79 by 71 feet. The two street sides will be faced with Mt. Airy granite and trimmed with Ohio buff. The back walls will be solid brick. The style of architecture will be Roman. The auditorium will be separated from the Sunday school department by a Wilson rolling partition, which will make it possible to easily convert the two into one large auditorium. The seating capacity of the main auditorium will be 350 and when the partition is up about 600 can be seated without the use of chairs. The Sunday school department is modern, with class rooms on the two ends and on one side, above and below with the exception of the middle lower section on the side, which will be left to enlarge the assembly room for the present. In case this should be needed for class rooms in the future they can easily be put in. We will have eight class rooms, besides the study and church parlor, which can be used for that purpose. The contract calls for the building to be completed by the middle of February, 1910.

You can readily see that from the above description the church being constructed will cost more than a few thousand dollars. We could build a cheaper house, but the question is would it be best; yea, would it be wise for us to build a cheap house in the midst of expensive churches. There is not a church on our street that did not cost more than $30,000. For us to put up an inexpensive church would mean to cripple the Christian denomination indefinitely in this city. We must take a stand along with other denominations, if we are going to succeed in this or any other city. We must build more expensive churches. Thousands of dollars must be put where we have been putting hundreds.

The church being erected here will cost in the neighborhood of $28,000 when completed and fully furnished, but we are estimating that $26,000 will put it in condition for use. The basement will be left in an unfinished condition for the present and some other minor things will be omitted.

We have in sight for the work about $10,000, but this is tied up in real estate for the present and will not be available to make the necessary payments in the construction of the building. These will have to be provided for through donations largely. We have faith in our brethren. We believe that they will help us in the effort to build a church here that will be a credit to the Christian denomination and an honor to the God whom we serve. The work is a stronger appear than any we can make. You can but see that the needs are great and the task one that taxes us to the uttermost. We are in the work to succeed. We are doing the best we know. We ask you for your interest, your prayers and your donations, whether they be large or small. No donation will be too small to be helpful and appreciated. We feel extremely grateful to all those who have already helped us in this work. They have been important factors in bringing it to its present status. Dear brother, will you kindly be the next to lend a helping hand? Send all donations to J. W. Harrell, 617 Effingham St., Portsmouth, Va., and they will be duly acknowledged through the columns of The Sun.

The contract provides that $10,000 shall be paid by the time the roof is on, which will in all probability be by December 1st. The payments are to be made in installments of $2,000 each, the first of which is now due and will have to be made in a few days. This will call for a payment at least every month. Do help us in making these payments. Do not put it off, but help now.

Cash Acknowledgements.

Previously acknowledged	.....$1,371.23
Mrs. W. J. Lee, Bennetts Creek, Va. ....	8.50
Capt. T. R. Gaskins, Bennetts Creek, Va. ....	13.50
Miss Regina Williamson, Driver, Va. ....	5.00
R. B. Odom, Driver, Va. ....	1.00
J. G. DeBaum, Berkly, Va. ....	10.00
G. D. DeBaum, Berkley, Va. ..	5.00
E. C. Hanbury, Great Bridge, Va. ....	25.00
L. W. Hodges, Great Bridge ..	10.00
R. R. Curling, Great Bridge ..	10.00
B. F. Gibson, Berkley, Va. ....	13.50
J. H. Barrett, Waverly, Va. ..	13.50
J. B. Little, Waverly, Va. ....	2.50
W. H. Morris, Petersburg, Va. ..	5.00
C. W. Bailey, Windsor, Va. ...	5.00
C. W. Bailey, Jr., Windsor, Va. ..	10.00
Prof. J. W. Roberts, Windsor	10.00
Miss Lula Little, Waverly, Va. ..	2.50
Judge J. F. West, Waverly, Va. ..	5.00
M. W. Hollowell, Deep Creek, Va. ....	10.00
Jas. A. Eley, Norfolk, Va. ....	13.50

Berea.

The meeting at Berea (Norfolk Co.) was held the week following first Sunday in this month. The rains interfered with the attendance for the first few days, but the latter part of the week the attendance was large and the interest fine. The church was much revived and there were a number of conversions and reclamations. Ten joined the church as a result of the meeting and two the Sunday previous to the beginning of the meeting. The baptizing took place last Sunday afternoon. The preaching was done by Rev. C. C. Ryan, of Norfolk, which was greatly enjoyed and appreciated by all who heard him.

J. W. Harrell.

August 18, 1909.

—"Cross the Rubicon, make the decision about your boy or girl if he or she is really eager for the advantages of an education and willing to do his or her part in getting it; that should be the only test."—Progressive Farmer.

A DESTRUCTIVE CRITIC OF 2907.

(To the Reader of 1907.)

Dear Brother: Although interested in the able writings of the higher critics of 1907, especially in their assumption of having discovered something valuable, as if the "historical method" were new in studying the Bible, I confess I became somewhat drowsy under their monotonous efforts to make the sacred writings seem to abound in misstatements. But I gradually absorbed their genius and spirit, and seemed to become a destructive critic, though calling myself a higher critic.

While in this state of mind, sleepy though I was, I seemed to live rapidly through the centuries, century after century, until I found myself moving among scholars who dated their letters with the numerals, 2, 9, 0, 7.

On seeming to be roused from a semi-consciousness, and supposing that a thousand years had passed from the time I fell asleep under the dreary chanting about the mistakes of the Bible, I seemed to be walking among the fancied alcoves of my library, now increased by the additions of a thousand years, and coming across the following correspondence I give you the letters, believing that it may be interesting to the reader to observe how the reasoning of the future destructive critic (writing in 2907 of our times in the spirit in which the destructive critic of 1907 writes of Bible times) will make the conditions of our generation to appear.

If we of the year 1907 know something of the conclusions of the learned gentleman of 2907 to be false, whose letters I now reveal, or if his modes of reasoning are absurd, or if he lays stress on insufficient data in his logic, or, especially, if he is ludicrously given to denying the statements of eye-witnesses to the facts which we of our time know to be true, these faults must not be attributed to me: for I copy the letters and publish them exactly as I found them a thousand years before they were written.

J. J. Summerbell.)

Dayton, Ohio.

*Copyrighted by The Christian Sun. All rights reserved.

TWENTY-NINTH LETTER.

Kinkade, New Zealand, 15, 9, 2908.

My Dear Grandson:—

In the ruins of Dayton, Ohio, whose sudden overthrow I will some time describe to you, there was found a remarkable book, entitled, "History of Babylonia and Assyria," by Hugo Winckler, Ph. D., of the faculty of the University of Berlin; translated by J. A. Craig, Ph. D., professor of Semitic languages in the University of Michigan. The book was published in the United States in 1907. It was turned over to me by the exploring expedition, for investigation. I found it to be a great book, containing the cream of the learning (on the subject treated) possessed by the "advanced thinkers" of the early part of the twentieth century. It was so learned that it was as interesting to read as a telephone directory:

almost as interesting as a dictionary.

To my great delight, I found that it was written by a higher critic, or one who accepted the conclusions of the higher critics; and may possibly have been called a destructive critic by his unkind opponents, who still respected the teaching of the Bible. His attitude of mind toward the teachings of that book I easily gathered from the following passages:—

(1) "The creation myths of Babylonia are the patterns after which the biblical are composed" (page 155).

(2) "One of the episodes described in the epic is the story of the Deluge which forms the basis of the biblical account" (page 159).

(3) "This is not meant to confirm the historic (sic) character of the story of Jonah" (footnote on page 232).

(4) "His name appears somewhat incorrectly in the Old Testament, Mero-daeh Baladan" (page 116).

(5) "The Pethor of the Old Testament (erroneously said to have been the home of Balaam)" (page 201).

(6) "Babylonians. It was thence that the 'Prophet' of Israel got his spiritual weapons, his education, and his knowledge, and there Judaism must have received not only its impulse, but also its entire system" (page 157).

(7) (Babylonian sects.) "From the ideas they promulgated Judaism must have drawn its own. . . . We may confidently conclude from what we know, and from the laws of human development, that the origin of the fundamental teachings of Judaism not yet discovered in the cuneiform literature shall yet be found there. The doctrine of a coming Deliverer could arise only in the center of culture" (page 158).

These passages, saturated with opposition to the Bible, and adapted to weakening its glory, show plainly that the author was "modern," "progressive," "advanced," "broadminded," etc.: especially seeing that he had no positive proofs for any of his assertions, and only conjecture for some of them. But you must always remember, my dear grandson, that the guess of a higher critic is worth more than the statement of an ancient manuscript or monument.

The quotation (7), implying that the doctrine of the Messiah will yet be found in Babylonian ruins, reminds me of another passage of Winckler, referring to another subject:—

(8) "The inscription is pre-Assyrian and is not written in ancient style. It was the only one found, but, with a few more clay tablets from the same region and possibly from the same place, and also pre-Assyrian, it suggests what results might be anticipated if excavations were made" (pages 178-179).

These passages (7) and (8) remind me of the boy, whom the traveler hailed: "Boy, how many fish have you caught?" The boy replied, "When I get this one and two more I will have three." Because Craig, the translator, adds the following, as a footnote to the passage I have numbered (8):—

(9) "Many tablets were obtained from this place by Bagdad dealers in antiquities a few years ago, and 300 pieces of the collection are said to have been sold in London. See Meissner, O. L. Z., 1902, S. 245" (page 178).

But Winckler's passage (7) also suggested to me the prevailing method of reasoning of our school of thought, the higher critical; and I am certain that he is one of us. All through the volume, I find the following and like phrases, which are the literary signs of our cult:

"Must have;" "no doubt;" "it was possibly;" "we must assume;" "we must infer;" "quite possible;" "would probably;" "we assume;" "perhaps;" "must have;" "possibly," etc.

This is a very convenient and "advanced" way of finding the truth. The following quotations will show how Winckler uses our method:—

(10) "Since he reports victories over other cities he must at times have regained his independence" (page 41).

(11) "These constituted the glory of the great temples, and the topmost story was no doubt regarded as the dwelling place of the deity" (page 141).

(12) "We must assume that Assyria, when it began to expand in the fourteenth and thirteenth centuries, had still a fresh, vigorous population" (page 287).

(13) "We must infer that the Assyrian party in Babylon at this time was insignificant" (page 122).

(14) "And it is quite possible that there existed between the 'kings of Sumner and Akkad' and their 'vassals' in northern Babylonia a relation similar to that between the Caliphs of Bagdad and the Buyids, or other Sultans" (page 57).

(15) "Excavations would probably bring to light documents which would reveal such a condition" (page 178).

(16) "When we assume, therefore, that Ashur was once a city like so many in the Euphrates valley we are inclined to the opinion that its patesis ruled under the protection of Babylonia, at times under that of Mesopotamia" (page 177).

(17) "The first king of the dynasty was, perhaps, Nabu-kin-apli" (page 103).

(18) "Nineveh must have played in prehistoric times a similar role to that which we have assumed for Arbela" (page 179).

(19) "We must assume that a copious literature of such epics and myths grew up" (page 154).

(20) "Jerusalem also anticipated attack, but fortune was again favorable. The Assyrian army did not even touch the land. Possibly on the march to Egypt it may have been overtaken in Arabia by plague or have succumbed to the unfavorable climate. Sennacherib was compelled with the loss of his army to return to Nineveh" (page 258).

You observe, my grandson, how thoroughly this last quotation (20) destroys the credibility of the Bible narrative in Isaiah 37:36. Winekler bases his theory on his own "possibly": "possibly" the "plague;" "possibly" the "unfavorable climate." But this was our way of reasoning in the year 1907. It was unfortunate for Lord Byron, the poet, that he did not have Winekler's book at his command, explaining how 185,000 Assyrians melted away under the "plague," or the "unfavorable climate," in Arabia. For the ignorant Byron said:—

"The Assyrian came down like a wolf on the fold,
And his cohorts were gleaming with purple and gold;
And the sheen of their spears was like stars on the sea,
When the blue waves roll nightly on Deep Galilee.
"Like the leaves of the forest when summer is green,
That host with their banners at sunset was seen:
Like the leaves of the forest when autumn hath blown,
That host on the morrow lay withered and strewn.
"For the Angel of Death spread his wings on the blast,
And breathed in the face of the foe as he passed!
And the eyes of the sleepers waxed deadly and chill,
And their hearts but once heaved, and forever grew still!
"And the widows of Ashur are loud in their wail,
And the idols are broke in the temple of Baal;
And the might of the gentile, unsmote by the sword,
Hath melted like snow in the glance of the Lord!"

But Byron was wrong about the glance of the Lord. Winekler has made it plain, by his own "possibly," that it was the "unfavorable climate" down in Arabia, or the "plague." You must remember that the "possibly" of a higher critic is a masterly argument. It is "modern" and "progressive."

This way of setting aside the records of the past we call the "historical method." It is chiefly used in getting rid of miracles, and in obscuring God's power and personal touch with his creation.

I acknowledge, however, that we are sometimes led, by our eagerness to deprive the Bible and the Jews of credit, to write contradictory theories. For instance, read the following quotations, which I number (21) and (22):

(21) "The Oriental never, even in theory, rose above the immature, childish point of view" (page 309).

(22) "It would be a gross misunderstanding to suppose that Babylonian theology identified the gods with the heavenly bodies. * * * The stellar world was, on the contrary, according to Babylonian theology, only the supremest revelations of divine power, that revelation in which the governance and purposes of the gods could be most plainly observed. Moreover, all that is, the visible and invisible, is but an expression or part of the divine being. There are, it is true, countless gods, but these are only the forms through which the one divine power is revealed. Such are the moon, the sun, the earth, the water, etc., from the greatest of objects to the smallest. In these the deity reveals himself; they are the forms of the divine becoming in matter, but behind them lies the one great Power" (pages 146, 147).

The emphasis of the foregoing quotation is not mine, but Winekler's. How plainly the quotation (22) contradicts quotation (21) I need not point out. This contradiction impressed me sadly. However, I derived some consolation from the fact that the translator, Craig, added a footnote to quotation (22), arguing that it could not be true, on account of its contradicting the doctrine of human evolution. You know that we must always teach that man descended (ascended) from an animal, and only arrived at the philosophy of One God by "human development" (animal development). I regretted, therefore, to find that Winekler used the following language:

(23) "These old Babylonian doctrines, carried forward in various forms by Jews and other peoples into the varied conditions of civilized life, remain in essence what they were * * * the expression of the Babylonian hierarchy as the most representative of all intellectual life in the most ancient civilization" (page 156).

This was very depressing to me; to discover that Winekler believed (see quotation 22) that the most ancient civilization was committed to the doctrine of One Divine Power: for I had long taught that the Jews had arrived at that doctrine by a long process of evolution. It was too bad to make my theories difficult to prove.

But I gradually recovered from my discouragement, after reading the following wonderful sentences of this great professor of the University of Berlin:

(24) "In 854 Nabu-aplu-iddin died. Death, by the way, is one of the commonest occurrences in the Orient" (page 104).

Read that passage again. It discloses profound thought. At first I did not realize its importance. But later it gradually dawned on my mind that if Winekler, with his usual ponderous, impressive dignity, had not informed us, we might have supposed that Orientals rarely died.

Your affectionate grandfather, Higher Critic.

MADRID, IOWA, LETTER.

I am reminded of the force of habit and how easy it is to neglect to do that which we so often have in mind to do. I have been wondering too why more of the brethren in the ministry did not report their work occasionally. But I hesitate to ask for fear some one might ask me why I don't. It is a great thing to live consistent and to practice what one preaches—if the preaching is sound—so I guess I had better practice a little more before preaching to the brethren. I take it for granted that they are busy about their Father's business and seeking to "hold up a standard for the people." Some may set the standard too high, but this is not very likely. Surely it was fittingly said editorially in The Sun of a recent date under the head of "Sound Doctrine" that "the time for safe and sound doctrine is certainly upon us," and that "the 'old time religion' has certainly ceased to be 'good enough' for many and they have departed from the ways of the fathers to go after strange gods." And there is no doubt but that the editor was preaching sound doctrine to us under the head of the "Hardest Problem" when he said "our problem of sin is difficult, therefore, because we would work it out ourselves—and not flee to Him for refuge and strength and stay, who has already worked out that problem and solved it in Himself. He can save all from sin." That is good and sound doctrine and though we accept the truth it is well to have even "pure minds stirred up by way of remembrance." Paul said to the Romans, "Ye were the servants of sin, but ye have obeyed from the heart that form of doctrine which was delivered to you." Surely the gospel has lost none of its power to save and to keep and when it is presented in the Spirit of Christ and when God's people obey it "from the heart" an ingathering of souls may be looked for.

This is the "revival season" in the South and we rejoice when we read of good meetings being held and of many turning to the Lord. Would it not be blessed for the revival to last all the year? As a rule meetings—revivals—are held in this section during the winter time. But it is "too cold" for some to attend then and it is decidedly "too hot" this time of the year. It is hot here now sure enough—about 110 de-

(Continued on page 16)

THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

Founded 1844 by Elder Daniel W. Kerr.
Organ of the Southern Christian
Convention.

Entered at the postoffice at Greensboro, N. C., as second-class matter.

Terms of Subscription.

One Year .....$1.50
Six Months ..... .75
Four Months ..... .50
Advertising rates given on application.

J. O. Atkinson, Editor and Publisher.

Important Notice.—As readers will see, The Christian Sun is now published at Greensboro, N. C. The office of publication there is 302½ South Elm Street. Our editorial office, however, remains at Elon College, N. C., to which all letters and communications to the Editor should be addressed, as heretofore.

THE TRUE TEST OF THE BIBLE.

Those who put the Bible to the only true test as to its validity are those who believe in it most thoroughly as the inspired Word of truth and of God. Take the man who believes in, and lives up to, the power of the Word and you will find him calling men from darkness to light, from sin to righteousness. How many souls are the unbelievers seeking to rescue? How many lives have doubters and skeptics helped to save? How many hearts, burdened with sin and sorrow, have scientists, philosophers, and world-theorists helped to relieve, to gladden and make happy? Where is the testimony full of hope, promise and good cheer to those who remain of those who have died doubting Christ, denouncing Scripture, and casting aspersions upon the gospel of the Son of God? Not of the dying only, but of the living? To what hopes, promises, prospects do those lead us who dissect the Scripture instead of search them?

Who are they that are building churches, calling sinners to repentance, erecting places of security and safety for the lost, the ruined and the needy? No fair minded reader is long in answering those questions. The truest and surest index to one's belief is one's life: and the safe test of one's faith is one's work. So for the life, deeds, conduct, achievements, of doubters, skeptics, unbelievers are not such as to commend them very highly to a thinking and considerate generation. And the works of the faithless have always crumbled and perished with the using.

Of the situation that confronts us we have not seen anywhere closer analysis and truer exposition than the following searching lines from The Lutheran:

"The men who are saving souls today are not they who tell men that the Bible is full of myth and allegory and incorrect statements; but they who have searched the Scriptures to learn what the Spirit of God has to say to men about their estate both here and hereafter. They are the men who have less to say about science, evolution, sociology and the absurdities of creeds, and more about man's sinful estate in the sight of God, his need of repentance, his need of grace and justification, and his hope of salvation in the blood of Christ that was shed on Calvary.

"The chief difficulty with the church today is that too many of its leaders and teachers know a great deal about everything else except the one thing needful—how may I be at peace with God? They can furnish you with an array of learning on almost any subject that touches the circumference of God's truth, but do not grasp the meaning of Paul's words: "The natural man perceiveth not the things of the Spirit of God, neither can he know them, for they are spiritually discerned." They can preach many nice and new things about this life and this world; but have no uplifting message about the other world and eternal life. And yet these are the themes around which the Word of God revolves. They dissect the Scriptures; the fathers searched them. They seem more concerned to tell people what there is in the Bible that should be doubted; the fathers were intent to teach men what they must believe if they would be saved. They weigh the Scriptures in the balances of man's thinking; the fathers weighed them in the balances of God's thinking. Their range of knowledge about things in general is wider; but the knowledge of the fathers went deeper and touched the marrow of the Gospel so that it became the power of God unto salvation.

There is only one remedy against the doubt and uncertainty that is so common, and that is the prayer that the Gospel may become a living power within our souls. When we once grasp the truth, there is no power on earth or in hell that can take it from us. We prove the truth of God's Word as we prove that water quenches thirst or food satisfies hunger. We do not analyze it; but we drink it and feed on it until it becomes a veritable manna from heaven, or a well of water within us bubbling up into everlasting life.

"When the Bible becomes that to our souls, no power under the heavens will ever destroy it for us."

If each before his own door swept
The village would be clean.

WILL HE LIKE GOD?

After the noted scholar and English essayist and critic, Matthew Arnold, died one of his clever and close friends remarked: "Poor Arnold, he will not like God." The comment was just, we suppose, because made by a friend, but if so, what a comment! He will not like God! And all of us think the same about some. There be those who spend such lives of fault-finding, criticising and incredulity that one wonders if they will ever wholly, solely and completely like any object, person, thing or being on earth, in heaven or down beneath.

The critic's mind has its place, but it is most often a pitiable place. Such a mind does not know the joy of constructive effort and achievement, and on that account misses much of the joy and the usefulness of this present world, and we fear also of the world to come.

"MY WITNESSES."

There is power in witnessing for the truth. Christianity is not a system, but a life. And one life for Christ is worth more than all the books on Christian evidences. Men never tire of hearing individual testimony for the truth as taught in and by Jesus Christ. "Ye shall be my witnesses" was a promise and also a command. Our Savior wanted men to testify of Him. And when a man stands and testifies from his own experience for the Christ, people sit up, take notice, and are profited thereby.

Former Vice President Fairbanks is now travelling in Japan. At the Central Tabernacle in Tokio Mr. Fairbanks being called upon to speak gave a word of testimony from his own experience. A minister who was present writes:

"The speaker began with the time when in youth he learned the truths of the Bible in the country Sunday school, and went on to the time when, having entered the university and under the influence of kind professors, character had been formed, he boldly declared for the truth.

"In our opinion, the outspoken public testimony of one such layman of distinguished career and fame is worth more than a hundred arguments on Christian evidences, especially so in the case of those young students who are disposed habitually to look down on religion; the utterances of Mr. Fairbanks were well suited, and must have left a good impression on their minds.

"The need of today is not the preaching of the truth by word of mouth and the printed page merely, but truth which is revealed by character. In other words, what is preached must at the same time be the expression of character."

SUFFOLK LETTER.

Vacation is neither idle nor ideal but real, if you are on a farm. There are more things to do than some people dream of; but there is time left for family prayers and reading newspapers, and seeing friends, provided you set yourself to do these things. My experience is sunny and warm. If you cut corn or plant potatoes or sow clover seed in high corn you will get air and sunshine and perspiration and appetite.

I went to town one day and upon my return a young book agent asked to ride. I took him into my already overloaded buggy for two miles. Walking and carrying books in August is no easy job, and while book agents bore some people, they deserve credit for grit and grace and a persistence that foretokens success. This young man was from Mississippi, a medical student at Nashville, Tenn., and working his way. He said he was reared on a farm. I said, "Yes; you will get out of the sunshine and God's country, go to a medical school a few years, and then tell your patients, 'What you need is sunshine and fresh air.'" There is no field so wide open to educated energy as agriculture. I noticed a few years ago that one man graduated at the A. & M. College in Raleigh in the Department of Agriculture. It is called A. & M. College, but it is principally M. College. It is a pity that an agricultural state should have an institution so misnamed.

I went after the cows and sheep the other evening. Our shepherd dog is named "Judge." His name was given in this way: He was a pup in the year Judge Parker was a candidate for President. The non-voting female members of my family were Democrats. The girls said: "We will name this pup 'Judge,' and if Parker is elected his full name shall be 'Judge Parker.'" The election reduced his name to simple "Judge." But that is higher than some lawyers get in their profession. Now "Judge" is an English shepherd, black with a little white in spots, heavy set and friendly. The pasture is large and Cedar Creek runs through it. When I entered the gate only one cow was in sight. I said: "Judge, cows." Off he went and soon the cows were herded at the gate. Then I said, "Sheep, Judge." Off he went again and the sheep were so far away that I could not hear the sweet-toned Swiss bell; but soon the sheep were coming and then cows and sheep were moving toward the barn. If folks would find out what they were made for and suited to, as dogs do, the world's work would be better done and folks would be happier in their work. You try to drive cattle with a hound or to hunt birds with a shepherd and you will understand what I mean. It is even so in the kingdom of God. A colored minister said he had a vision and saw in the sky G. P. C., which meant Go Preach Christ. An old layman said, "You misinterpreted the vision; G. P. C. meant Go Pull Corn." No doubt there are misinterpretations of visions.

Well, we have something new in our family—a real, sure-enough boy baby. William Staley Cheatham came August 20th, and the doctor says he is the largest baby he ever saw.

W. W. Staley.

ELON COLLEGE NOTES.

Capt. and Mrs. W. J. Lee, Nansemond County, Va., are visiting at Dr. Atkinson's. Mrs. Lee has not been well since she came up, but is improving now, we are glad to say. It always gives us pleasure to welcome these friends of the institution from its incipency and we are especially glad that they are to be at the opening.

Prof. Amick is here and looking after the cleaning up and renovation of the East Dormitory, of which he is to have charge this year. Mrs. Amick will be here the last of the week.

The following notice has been received by the various friends of Mr. H. M. Loy, class of 1907: "Dr. and Mrs. R. W. Ward announce the marriage of their daughter Eva to Mr. Henry Milton Loy on Wednesday afternoon, August the eighteenth, nineteen hundred and nine, at three-thirty o'clock, Jacksonville, N. C., at home after September the tenth, Trenton, N. C." Here is wishing Mr. and Mrs. Loy well in their wedded life.

Prof. P. J. Kernodle left this week for the Grayson Sulphur Springs for further treatment for rheumatism, from which he has been suffering for about ten weeks. Mrs. Kernodle and John T. have gone to Suffolk, thence to Richmond, their new home. Miss Maud Klapp remained over a few days and later joined Mrs. Kernodle in Richmond. Mr. Huffman has moved into the Kernodle home, where he will conduct a student boarding house.

Miss Pattie Clendenin was married on Wednesday of this week to Mr. J. T. Bradshaw, Swepsonville, N. C. The ceremony took place at the Clendenin home on the College Hill in the presence of many friends and relatives. The happy couple have the best wishes of their hosts of friends here and elsewhere.

The West Dormitory has been thoroughly renovated and is now ready for the arrival of the students. The East Dormitory is being overhauled this week, painted within and alabastined. The campus has been mowed, the Administration Building set in order, and the Power House put in shape. Elon is beginning to put on new life and to wear her best smiles for the two hundred and more gay students hearts that are so soon to be here.

President and Mrs. Moffitt and children have arrived at home from a visit to the Valley of Virginia.

Mr. S. M. Atkinson, who has been traveling in the interest of the Christian Sun this summer, is at Dr. Atkinson's for a rest, before going to Tennessee, where he is to teach Greek and Mathematics.

Miss Pearle Walker, class of 1909, has been elected teacher of Art in the Burlington, N. C., Graded Schools. Miss Walker took her certificate in Art here last year.

Everything points to a large opening, the largest in fact in Elon's history. The correspondence, says President Moffitt, is very heavy even at this late date and that daily requests for catalogues and letters from prospective students are being received. There are many who are still undecided and a word from our friends now would count for a great deal. We sincerely trust that everybody who has Elon's interests at heart, will work hard from now until the opening day.

Students coming from Eastern Virginia can come over the Seaboard via Henderson and Durham, or over the Southern via Jeffress Junction and Durham, or over the Atlantic Coast Line via Rocky Mount and Selma, leaving Suffolk or Norfolk or points along these roads on the morning trains, Aug. 31 and arriving here at 6:36 that evening. Those from Eastern Carolina can get here at 11:26 A. M. or 6:36 P. M. Those from points west or north of the College can get here at 9:58 A. M. or 3:48 P. M.

Miss Helen Ricks has been acting as housekeeper at the West Dormitory the past week. Her aunt, Mrs. Rose J. Machen, Mobjack, Va., arrived Tuesday evening and entered upon her duties at once.

W. A. Harper.

Rev. N. G. Newman, writing under date of Everet's, Va., Aug. 18, as to the condition of his venerable father, now nearing the end, says: "Father's condition slightly changed for the better, but cannot give hope of permanency. I think it possible for him to live some weeks, but not probable. The physicians cannot forecast for him."

—It is wholesome reading that informs of good meetings held in the various churches during the revival season. Will the pastors not write the glad news of their meetings?

THE CHRISTIAN ORPHANAGE DEPARTMENT.

CHILDREN'S CORNER.

The Band of Cousins.

Jas. L. Foster, Sec., Elon College, N. C.

"He that hath pity on the poor lendeth unto the Lord, and his good deed will He pay him again."—Prov. 19:17.

Reported last week $3,610.28

Dues:

Milton Gugh Wicker ...$ 1.00

Monthly S. S. Offerings:

Wentworth, N. C. .... 3.57

Palm St., Greensboro ... .75

Poplar Branch, N. C. .... 1.00

Berea (Nans. Co.) Va. ... 4.22

Special Offerings:

From Shallow Well Christian Church:

Lacy Wicker ....$5.00

J. P. Hunt ..... 2.00

W. L. Thomas ... 2.00

J. B. Watson .... 2.00

A. A. Kelly ..... 1.00

Mrs. Lucy Watson 1.00

Mrs. J. P. Avent . 1.00

L. M. Foushee ... 1.00

Jones McFarland. 1.00

T. H. Manafield .. 1.00

Mrs. Susan Neal . 1.00

J. I. Kelly ..... .50

James Brannon .. .50

Mrs. Belle Thomas .50

L. H. Lawrence .. .50

I. S. Kelly ..... .50

J. W. Kelly ..... .50

G. W. Watson ... 1.00

Mamie Thomas .. .50

R. J. Watson .... .25

Foster Thomas .. .25

Mrs. Walker Kelly .25

W. J. Rosser .... .25

Mirtie Gunter ... .25

Collection ..... 3.04

26.79

Poplar Branch Church by collection ..... .75

Sanford Church:

J. D. Gunter ....$3.00

K. B. Waw ..... 1.00

Max Makepeace . .50

J. U. Gunter ..... 2.00

Mrs. C. C. Way .. .50

J. E. Way ..... .50

Mr. McIver ..... .25

Mrs. C. S. Gunter .25

J. B. Woodell ... .50

E. E. Woodell ... .50

Ida Woodell ..... .25

Iva Woodell ..... .25

Collection ..... 5.15

14.65

Amt. 30th week. .... 52.73

Total .....$3,663.01

My Dear Children:

See our nice report this week! Uncle Jim made a visit to three churches Sunday (15th), and behold the result! How it gladdens our hearts to have the weekly reports good. It sounds as though our friends meant that we should get along sure enough. But where are the nice letters from the cousins?

Things are beginning to look more natural around the Orphanage. Miss Dora and some of the children are again with us.

Our children are enjoying the first melons of the patch. They are not so large as last year, but good, and have the watermelon taste so dear to the little ones. Thomas Andrews went with his uncle, who came for him last week, to have a visit to the orchard and melon patch till next Monday.

Little Kenneth Sorrell, from McCullers, N. C., sends a towel to the Orphanage this week. Thank you, Kenneth, we never have too many. And now bye-bye till next week. Won't you write a great many letters for the next issue?

Fondly,

Uncle Jim.

TOMMY'S PRAYER.

Tommy lay within the cellar which had grown so dark and cold,
Thinking all about the children in the streets of shining gold,
And he heeded not the darkness of that damp and chilly room,
For the joy in Tommy's bosom could disperse the deepest gloom.

"Oh! if I could only see it," thought the cripple as he lay,
"Jessie says that Jesus listens, and I think I'll try and pray."

"Gentle Jesus, please forgive me, as I didn't know afore

That yer cared for little cripples who is weak and very poor,
And I'd never heard of Heaven till Jessie came today,
And told me all about it, and I want to try and pray.

"You can see me, can't yer, Jesus? Jessie told me that yer could,
And I somehow must believe her, it seems so sweet and good;
And she told me if I loved her, I could see yer when I die,
In the bright heaven that is up beyond the skies.

Lord, I'm only just a cripple, and I'm no use here below,

For I heard my mother whisper she'd be glad if I could go,

And I'm cold and hungry sometimes, and I feel so lonely too.

FITS CURED. NO CURE NO PAY

In other words you do not pay our small professional fee until cured and satisfied. German-American Institute, 249 Walnut St., Kansas City, Mo.

When in Burlington call at
T. H. STROUD'S

Store for DRUGS, SOFT DRINKS, and anything desired in drugs and Toilet Articles.

To Drive Out Malaria and Build up the System.

Take the Old Standard GROVE'S PASTELESS CHILL TONIC. You know what you are taking. The formula is plainly printed on every bottle, showing it is simply Quinine and Iron in a tasteless form, and the most effectual form. For grown people and children. 50c.

The North Carolina COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE AND MECHANIC ARTS.

The State's college for vocational training. Courses in Agriculture and Horticulture; in Civil, Electrical and Mechanical Engineering; in Cotton Milling and Dyeing; in Industrial Chemistry. Why not fit yourself for life by taking one of these courses? Address

D. H. HILL, President,
West Raleigh, N. C.

READ SOMETHING DIFFERENT.

The Greensboro Daily News, the new State paper, is worthy of a trial. Associated Press service, special correspondence, clean, newsy, liberal. One year $6.00; three months $1.50.

GREENSBORO DAILY NEWS,
Greensboro, N. C.

WANTED—Bookkeepers, Stenographers.

MORE BANKERS in the 16 States in which Jno. F. Draughon's 30 Colleges are located, indorse these Business Colleges than indorse ALL others. IF YOU want the EVIDENCE and want to RISE to the $10-a-day class, ask for FREE catalogue. Lessons BY MAIL if preferred. Draughon's Practical Business College, Raleigh, N. C.: A. M. FISHER, Mgr

RALEIGH & SOUTHPORT RY. Co.

P. M. A. M.	STATIONS.	A. M. P. M.
1:15 6:00	Raleigh	8:30 3:45
1:54 6:24	McCullers	7:52 3:03
2:11 6:59	Willow Sp'gs	7:37 2:45
2:23 7:14	Varina	7:27 2:34
2:35 7:26	Fuquay Sp'gs	7:19 2:25
2:55 7:45	Kipling	7:00 2:05
3:15 8:05	Lillington	6:41 1:44
3:41 8:28	Linden	6:15 1:17
4:30 9:15	Fayetteville	5:30 12:30

JNO. A. MILLS, Pres. and Gen. Mgr

DR. J. H. BROOKS

Surgeon and Dentist
FOSTER BUILDING,
Burlington, N. C.

Can't you take me, gentle Jesus, up to Heaven along o' you?
Oh! I'd be good and patient, and I'd never cry or fret;
And your kindness to me, Jesus, I'd surely not forget;
I would love you all I know of, and I'd never make a noise—
Can't you find me just a corner where I'll watch the other boys?"
In the morning when the drunken mother came to wake her boy,
She discovered that his features wore a look of sweetest joy;
She shook him somewhat roughly, but the cripple's face was cold—
He had gone to join the children in the streets of shining gold.
—Orphan's Message, Decatur, Ga.

TWO LITTLE GIRLS.

The Poor Rich Girl.

This little girl is very poor;
She has troubles, she finds, she can scarcely endure,
And yet, my dear, she has playthings plenty—
Dolls as many as two and twenty,
Houses and arks and picture-books,
Something pretty wherever she looks.
But half the time she's puzzled to know
What to do with the wonderful show,
Tired of dollies two and twenty
And bored with her various toys a-plenty.

The Rich Poor Girl.

That little girl is very rich,
With an old doll like a perfect witch,
A broken chair and a bit of delf,
And a wee cracked cup on the closet shelf;
She can play with only a row of pins,
Houses and gardens, arks and inns,
She makes with her chubby fingers small
And she never asks for a toy at all;
Unseen around her the fairies stray,
Giving her bright thoughts every day.
Poor little girl and rich little girl,
How nice it would be if in Time's swift whirl
You could—perhaps not change your places—
But catch a glimpse of each other's faces;
For each to the other could something give,
Which would make the child-life sweeter
to live;
For both could give and both could share
Something the other had to spare.
—Margaret E. Sangster.

—On the first of August the Minnesota law forbidding the sales of cigarettes went into effect.

CANCER CAN BE CURED.

Personal or Home Treatment. Both successful. Scores of testimonials, from persons who gladly write to those now suffering, all tell of permanent cures.
My Mild Combination Treatment destroys growth and eliminates the disease from the system. Free book "Cancer and Its Cure" and 125-page book of testimonials from cured patients in all parts of the country. No matter how serious your case, how many operations you have had, or what treatment you have taken, don't give up hope, but write at once Dr. Johnson Remedy Co., 125
Grand Ave., Kansas City, Mo. Physicians treated free.

THE $2.00 RATE PORTSMOUTH-
NORFOLK ON SUNDAYS WILL CONTINUE UNTIL SUNDAY,
SEPTEMBER 5TH.

The low Sunday rates of $2.00 from Raleigh to Portsmouth-Norfolk via the Seaboard which have proved so popular this summer will be continued on sale
SUNDAYS, AUG. 22ND-29TH AND
SEPTEMBER 5TH, 1909.

Tickets are sold for No. 32 leaving
Raleigh Saturday night at 1:10 a. m.
good returning only on No. 33 leaving Portsmouth at 9:00 p. m. on date of sale only.

The $2.00 rate carries to Franklinton
$1.75 from Kittrell and Henderson, $1.50
Norlina to Vaughan, $1.25 Littleton and Weldon.

A delightful Sunday outing and opportunity to visit the Virginia seashore resorts.

Special cars provided and train run in sections if necessary to comfortably handle the tourists.

C. H. GATTIS,
D. P. A., Raleigh, N. C.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup

Has been used for over SIXTY-FIVE YEARS by MIL-LIONS of MOTHERS for their CHILDREN WHILE TEETHING, with PERFECT SUCCESS. It SOOTHES the CHILD, SOFTENS the GUMS, ALLAYS all PAIN;
CURES WIND COLIC, and is the best remedy for DIAR-RHEA. Sold by Druggists in every part of the world.
Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind. Twenty-five cents a bottle.
Guaranteed under the Food and Drugs Act, June 30th, 1906. Serial Number 1098. AN OLD AND WELL TRIED REMEDY.

—Of the twenty-one "wet" counties of South Carolina which voted on prohibition measures last week fourteen went "dry." This only leaves seven "wet" counties in the forty-two which South Carolina has.

MEDICINE.

We prepare as good medicine, the very best medicine that the finest, freshest, most potent drugs and chemicals will produce when carefully and skilfully compounded by an expert prescription man—just such medicine as your physician means that you should have, medicine of the utmost possible effectiveness
May we prepare your medicine?
FREEMAN DRUG CO.,
Burlington, N. C.

RAISE MONEY FOR YOUR CHURCH.

We offer you an easy method. Send us a photograph of your church or your pastor, and we will send you 500 high grade post cards, with photograph on each card, and scripture verse if desired.
Sell these cards at 10 cents each. When sold, remit us $20.00 and keep the balance. You can do this in a week. We will return photograph.

LAKE SHORE SUPPLY CO.,
225 Broad St., St. Joe, Michigan.

TULANE
UNIVERSITY OF LOUISIANA
NEW ORLEANS

EDWIN B. CRAIGHEAD, LL. D., President.

Tulane University in all its departments, is located in the City of New Orleans, the metropolis of the South. Nine Departments, with twenty-three buildings. Modern dormitories, extensive laboratories, libraries, and museums.

Full Courses are offered in Languages, Sciences, Engineering, Architecture, Art, Law, Medicine, Pharmacy, and Dentistry.

Separate Department for Women. Expenses low. Low dormitory rates. Next session of all departments, except N. O. Poly-clinic, begins October 1st. Polyclinic opens November 1st. Send for catalogue. Address, R. K. BRUFF, Secretary.

DO YOU WANT TO GO TO COL-LEGE? If so we can help you. We have already put hundreds through college by means of our plan. Write today for full information regarding our offer of a free scholarship in any school or college. Address, Robert J. Sherlock, 29-31 East 22nd Street, New York City.

SPRING TIME.

The time for gardening is here and you need garden tools. We can supply you at lowest prices.

Poultry Wire.

The best assorted stock in the county.
Four different styles and weight.

Come and See.

Remember plumbing and bath room fixtures, a speciality. You will find us on Davis St. third door from Post office.
BURLINGTON HARDWARE CO.

A LEADING BOARDING SCHOOL
for 250 Students. Established 1884.
Prepares for College, Business, Teaching, or for Life. Health, Character and Scholarship. Wide patronage.
Very reasonable rates. Each student receives personal attention.
School highly endorsed. (Location in near Greensboro, N. C.) For beautiful Catalogue, Views, etc., address the President.
W. T. WHITSETT, Ph. D.,
Whitsett, North Carolina.

USE OUR MONEY
AS A SNAP
For LIVE
AGENTS
Establish a profitable and lasting business of your own. Be your own boss. We furnish everything, including Sample Outfit valued at $3.50. We began with $100,000, what we did you can do; we will gladly help you. Big Catalog, Plans and Sample Outfit
now ready and ALL FREE. Write now.
Consolidated Portrait & Framing Co.
290-10 W. Adams St., Chicago, Ill.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEPARTMENT.

Exponent of the Young People's Convention,
Christian Church, South.

Watchword: A Christian Endeavor Society in Every Church; Teacher-Training and Organized Classes in Every Sunday School

Devoted to the interest and advancement of Sunday Schools, Teacher-Training, Organized Classes, Cradle Roll, Home Department, Christian Endeavor, Missionary Societies, Temperance Societies, Aid Societies, Civic Righteousness.

W. A. HARPER, Editor and Field Secretary, Elon College, N. C.

[All notes and contributions for this Department should be sent to W. A. Harper, Elon College, N. C., who extends the Church at large a cordial invitation to furnish him with any note of interest to our Young People, particularly information in regard to any forward steps, new movement, or new organization looking to progressive and effective service. All items under this Department not signed are by its Editor and Field Secretary.]

TEACHER-TRAINING—THE INTERNATIONAL STANDARDS.

Last June in Louisville, Ky., the International Association of Sunday-school workers adopted through its educational committee certain standards for Teacher-Training. Two courses are provided for—The First Standard and The Advanced Standard.

The First Standard Course is to consist of not less than fifty lessons, twenty of which shall be devoted to the study of the Bible, seven to the Teacher, seven to the Pupil, and seven to the Sunday-school, the remaining nine lessons to be divided up among these four branches as the makers of the course elect.

The Advanced Standard Course is to consist of not less than 100 lessons, forty of which shall be devoted to the Bible, ten to the Teacher, ten to the Pupil, ten to the Sunday-school, ten to Church History, and ten to Missions, the remaining ten to be divided up among these six branches as the editors of the course decide.

The Teacher-Training Course of our Church was planned before these standards of the International Association were elected, but we had so planned that our Course will be equal to The Advanced Standard Course. For instance we will have devoted to Bible Study and allied subjects fifty-five lessons, to the Teacher twelve lessons, to the Pupil ten lessons, to the Sunday-school ten lessons, to Missions ten lessons, to Church History ten lessons, to the Principles of the Church five lessons, making a total of one hundred twelve lessons, which is twelve more than the minimum required by the International Sunday-school Association for its Advanced Standard Course. The editors of our course are glad that their work as planned before the erection of this standard fits so well into it.

Young man, young woman, have you considered the holy rewards that come to the successful Sunday-school teacher? Our Teacher-Training Course will help you wonderfully. Ask your pastor and superintendent to organize a class and then join it.

A WORD OF EXPLANATION.

A year ago I agreed with the editors of the Christian Sun and of the Herald of Gospel Liberty to write for a year a few suggestions on "How to Teach the Sunday-school Lesson." By the grace of God I was given the strength to do that work. Last week's issues of these papers contained the concluding article of that series so far as I was to write it. I believe that some one ought to be found who will carry this work along. It is true, as Dr. Atkinson said editorially last week, that the "Suggestions" have been largely educative, but they ought to be carried on indefinitely, because there is no help which teachers can get that will give them what these "suggestions" were intended to give. Here is an opportunity for some one to do a service for Christ and the Church that will live long after his day in improved teaching and more effective work in the Sunday-school. Can the editor not arrange this?

It may perhaps appear to those who have been using the "suggestions" that I ought to keep them up as a part of the editorial work of the Young People's Department. To these I will say that I wish it were possible to do this, but it is not. Further the agreement between the Executive Committee of the Young People's Convention and myself was distinctly to the effect that I was not to continue these "suggestions" as a part of my regular work for the department. My duties as editor and field secretary are to edit the C. E. topic each week, to write such articles as I see fit advocating the watchword of the Convention, and to do such corresponding and speaking (as I may be able) to realize the aims of the Convention. Before I undertook the work for the Young People's Department I had already finished the year's work on the "suggestions," otherwise I could not have found time for this work.

Brother Superintendent, you desire your school to prosper and grow. It cannot do this without trained leaders, who are teachers. Still you won't organize that Teacher-Training Class. Are you in earnest? Or are you joking?

THE BEGINNERS' DEPARTMENT.

A Review.

"The Beginners' Department," by Angelina W. Wray. The Sunday-school Times Co., Philadelphia. Price 60 cents.

This volume is number 7 in "The Times Handbooks for Sunday-school Workers," and is certainly worthy a place in that well-known series. It is written by a specialist in this department of Sunday-school work and gives evidence of a master's grasp of the subject throughout.

Chapter I considers the need of the beginners' department, which the author says should include those from three years to six. Chapter II takes up the matter of the superintendent for this department and offers some very sane suggestions as to her qualifications. Chapter III describes the organizing of such a department and Chapter IV is a description of such a department actively at work. Chapters V, VI, VII, and VIII are especially practical in their suggestiveness and deal respectively with Socials for the Tiny Ones, Equipping the Department (the only absolute essentials for success being held to be a good teacher, a separate place for the teaching, and pupils, so that the department can succeed anywhere), The Two-Year Course and How to Use it, and The Weekly Program. Chapter IX answers the objections of those who refuse to organize such a department on the ground that they have "Nothing to Work With." Chapter X is a graphic description of the department's Special Days. The book concludes with Chapter XI in a collection of ten songs especially suited to such a department, words by the author, music by Ethel V. Wilt.

I cannot commend this work too highly. To my mind it meets a real need. It ought to be in the hands of every superintendent and of every primary teacher.

Rev. T. E. White, Salinas, Porto Rico, has filled out and returned the blanks sent him by this department. Thanks, Bro. White. Revs. L. F. Johnson, Raleigh, N. C., and H. H. Butler, Suffolk, Va., have also sent in blanks this week. Will not the others send them in at once, filled or unfilled?

How about that Teacher-Training Class?

C. E. TOPIC FOR AUGUST 29—
A FEW SUGGESTIONS.

Home Missions: Our Cosmopolitan Population: Luke 13:22-30.

Let the missionary committee arrange the program and he in charge of the meeting.

There are in the United States outside of the Church about 48,000,000 people, about 30,000,000 of which never hear the gospel at all. Surely there is need of Home Mission Work in this Christian land.

For the Leader—In general items speak of the need of Home Missions and of what our Church is doing in this line and of what we ought to do. Do not fail to speak of the opportunity that is given the young people to contribute to Home Missions through the mission money raised by the Sunday-school.

The Scripture—Appoint one reader for the scripture lesson and nine to comment, the comment being given in a sentence or two (not over three) as each verse is read by the reader.

Written Work—Sunday-school Home Missions,—what our Conference asks us to do. Immigration and Home Missions. The Opportunity of this C. E. Society to do actual Home Mission Work.

Question Spurs—What is meant by Home Missions? How differ from Foreign Missions? What were Paul's methods as a missionary? What were Christ's? What missionary have I known? Who are the Home missionaries of our Church? Where are they at work? In what towns or communities near-by is a Christian Church needed? What can I do (to be answered by several)?

Scripture References—To be handed out on slips of paper:

Our Invitation to the World, Isa. 58:6-9.

Justice for All, Deut. 1:15-18.

Kindness to All, Deut. 24:17-22.

Christ for All, Tit. 2:11-15.

All for Christ, I John 2:1-2.

Our Bulwark, Deut. 4:5-9.

Our Neighbors, Luke 10:29-37.

Brotherhood of Man, Mark 3, 24.

Fatherhood of God, Matt. 23,9.

Suggestive Program.

1. Missionary Song Service. Prayer.
2. Scripture Reading and Comment by the appointed endeavorers.
3. Song. Chain of Prayer.
4. Written Work.
5. Leader's Remarks.
6. Song. Voluntary prayers.
7. Question Spurs by more experienced endeavorers.
8. Scripture References by less experienced endeavorers.

9. Song Service.

10. Voluntary Participation in whatever way desired.

11. Pastor's Five Minutes.

12. Song. Offering (if possible for some special Home Mission enterprise). Mizpah.

Note—Display in the place of meeting a chart of some kind showing religious conditions in North America. Have a map of the U. S. and on it locate all places mentioned.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY AUG. 29TH.

Paul on Christian Love. I Cor. 13:1-13.

Golden Text.—"And now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three, hut the greatest of these is charity." 1 Cor. 13:13.

Everyone who expects to abide at a certain place tries to obtain as much information about that place as is possible. As travellers destined for heaven, we might do well to consider what is meant in verse 12.

Heaven is invariably represented as the blessed region of light and knowledge. There is no mental darkness nor spiritual night. It is one region of glory, one world of unending day. "For there is no night there." The apostle

Books for Every Christian Home.

Do you know why you are a member of the Christian Church? Do you understand what the church stands for and teaches? If not, send and get a copy of the "Principles and Government of the Christian Church," just revised and greatly improved by order of the Southern Christian Convention.

Cloth binding per copy, post paid 50 cts.

Limp Cloth binding per copy, post paid 35 cts.

Paper binding per copy, post paid 25 cts.

Handsome Persian Morocco, with name in gilt $1.25.

The Southern Christian Convention also Ordered Another Book Published, PREPARING THE SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER TO TEACH. Edited by Profs. W. A. Harper, W. C. Wicker and W. P. Lawrence.

The book is neatly printed and bound and is invaluable to the Sunday-school worker, 236 pages.

Paper binding per copy, postpaid, 60 cts.

Cloth binding per copy, postpaid, 90 cts.

To Sunday-schools, paper binding 50 cts. cloth 75 cts.

Have You Read That Thrilling and Inspiring Story of His Own Life, MOTHER'S ANSWERED PRAYER, BY REV. P. H. FLEMING, D. D.?

Cloth binding, postpaid 55 cts.

All these books should be in your home. Order at once

For sale by, THE CHRISTIAN SUN, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

IT'S INTERESTING

to hear the different comments on different Shoes. All shoes have some good points; Style or comfort or service.

WALK-OVER SHOES

have all the good points; style and comfort and service and their price is the best point of all. $3.50, 4.00 & 5.00.

Foster Shoe Co., Burlington, N. C.

Dry Goods, Notions, Ready Made Clothing.

When in Burlington visit our large store, supplied always with the very best and latest styles and novelties.

Our Dry Goods are of latest designs, and our Ready Made Clothing cannot be surpassed in quality and price.

Come, See. Be Convinced.

B. A. SELLARS & SONS. BURLINGTON. N. C.

is contrasting the imperfections of the present with the future state. And while here everything is seen as through a glass, darkly, there everything will be clear and manifest.

We shall there see face to face and know even as also we are known.

Let us notice, I. Some things connected with heavenly knowledge.

1. In heaven we shall have perfect light. Now all things are obscure. Neither light nor death. The twilight of our being.

2. In heaven we shall have perfect faculties. Now in an enfeebled state. Frail at best. Connected with body that clogs, and bears down toward the earth.

There will be no interruptions there, no night, no darkness. We will have glorious, celestial instructors. Knowledge will not then be conveyed by painful research and study, but by intuition.

II. Glance at some of the subjects of heavenly knowledge.

In heaven we shall have a more clear and full knowledge

1. Of the blessed God. Now the believer knows Him but very imperfectly. Then shall he behold him in his glory. Behold his face in righteousness. The pure in heart shall see God. Live in his immediate presence and worship incessantly before him.

2. Of the glory of the Redeemer. Then we shall see Jesus as he is. It is his own prayer that his disciples may behold his glory.

3. Of the mysteries of providence. What we know not now we shall know hereafter. Then the divine procedure will be vindicated and the righteous character of God justified; while his wisdom, power, and goodness will be emblazoned before angels and men.

4. Of the family of the glorified. There we shall become acquainted with the first of our race, the father of mankind and the mother of all living. There we shall know patriarchs, priests, prophets, apostles, martyrs, confessors, etc. There also shall we become intimate with angels, seraphim, cherubim, etc.

"O what a glorious company
Where saints and angels join."

G. W. T.

—During the inauguration of the Indianapolis Motor speedway, August 19, two lives were lost and two records broken on the auto track. Barney Oldfield covered a mile in 43.1 seconds, breaking the previous record of 51 seconds. Robert Burman won the 250-mile race—the contest which cost two men their lives—making the distance in 4 hours, 3 minutes, and 57 seconds.

MARRIED.

Dillard-Malone.

Thursday, August 5, 1909, at the home of Mrs. P. M. Malone, the mother of the bride, near Corbett, N. C., Miss J. lia M. Malone was married to Mr. J. Ed. Dillard, by Rev. Thos. W. Strowd. Mr. C. A. Dillard was best man and Miss Myrtle Wilkinson maid of honor.

The wedding march was rendered by Miss Cornelia Wilkinson. Immediately after the marriage Mr. and Mrs. Dillard left for Washington, D. C., where they spent a few days. They will go from Washington to Baltimore and then to New York. They will make their home in Caswell Co., N. C.

May they have a long, happy, and useful life. Thos. W. Strowd.

D I E L.

Delk.

Whereas, Our Heavenly Father has, in the mysteries of His providence, removed from our class, by death, Brother Joseph A. Delk, an esteemed member; and

Whereas, We desire to place on record some formal yet sincere expression of our appreciation of him, our sympathy for his loved ones, and our sorrow in his death;

Therefore be it resolved: First, that we humbly bow to the Divine Will in his removal from us, and reverently recognize His loving and righteous authority over us in all things.

Second, That we extend to the family our sincere sympathy in their deep sorrow, and commend them to the sustain-

"The Oxford Teachers' par excellence"

JUST ISSUED I

OXFORD

Teachers' Bibles and S. S. Scholars' Bibles

With New 20th Century Helps arranged in One Alphabetical Order.

THE HELPS

The Christian Advocate, Nashville, says: "The helps are real helps. Unlike those in many of the cheap Bibles, they are not simply thrown together in hodge-podge fashion, but represent the freshest and ablest work of the foremost modern scholars."

Address Christian Sun,
Elon College, N. C.

Bible is the Bible of the World."

NOW READY I
SIX NEW EDITIONS

OXFORD

Black Faced Type BIBLES

Three on Oxford White Paper. Three on the famous Oxford India Paper.

Pearl 32mo. A wonderful clear type in a small-size book.

Minion 16mo. Ready October 1907. A model hand Bible.

Brevier 16mo. Large type in small compass. "A quart in a pint measure."

"The new Bible just published by the Oxford Press is, without doubt, the finest product of the kind ever given to the public."

ASK FOR THE OXFORD EDITION

REMEMBER: That we guarantee satisfaction and sell to you cheaper than the publisher and dealers do. Our business is by mail and express and prices quoted are the prices of goods delivered to you. We can furnish you the Oxford, or the Holman Teacher's Bible at prices ranging from $1.35 to $4.00. Send for our catalogue or write us what you want. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN, Elon College, N. C.

A PURITAN CAPTAIN

BY EMMANUEL C. CHARLTON, PH. D.

This thrilling tale of sea adventure is based on actual experience and is told in the author's own natural manner, which is made the more impressive because of his long experience as a seaman, and Christian worker among his fellow-craftsmen. The story is specially attractive to all classes. The moral is of a high character. There is not a dull chapter in it.

This beautifully bound book, printed from good, clear type, on first quality paper, containing nearly 270 pages, sold for $1.00. Address all orders to

J. N. HESS

Agent of the

Christian Publishing Association

DAYTON, OHIO

ing grace of God which exceedeth all life's sorrows.

Third, That we cherish in our memories and emulate in our lives the virtues of our deceased brother, and gratefully remember his association with us.

Fourth, That we send a copy of these resolutions to the family with the assurance of our prayers and sympathies, and a copy to The Christian Sun for publication.

Respectfully,
Men's Bible Class.

Newport News, Va.

VIRGINIA VALLEY.

Monday, August 9, my family and myself left Windsor to spend a few days in the Shenandoah Valley. After the usual arrangements for such a trip, we took the train at 8:30, and arrived in Richmond at 11:45. Here it was necessary to make a hasty transfer, having only fifteen minutes to transfer family and baggage from the N. & W. to the C. & O. depot, secure tickets and check and leave Richmond at 12 o'clock. About 2:30 we began to see in the distance the Blue Ridge Mountains and as we drew nearer these mountains the scenery grew more beautiful. Soon after leaving Charlottesville the train gradually rose higher and higher on the side of the mountains and the scenery around was a real feast to the eyes. On through rocks and tunnels we passed until we reached the beautiful Valley. After passing through those dark tunnels the light looked more beautiful. Just so the dark experiences of life make us enjoy and appreciate the light more fully. When we reached Staunton, we found that the train we had expected to take had already gone and we were compelled to spend the night there. This city has recently been voted "dry." The liquor men are speaking of contesting the election, however. Even if they should do so and be successful, it would only mean a little longer life for the saloon in the city; for the people of our beloved state are realizing more and more the evils of this traffic and the "Saloon must go." We reached Broadway Tuesday morning. On Wednesday I started for the Virginia Valley Central Conference and attended the entire session. I am very glad to note the progress made in this conference since I last attended a session, about eight years ago. In listening to the church reports I noticed that several of the churches sent up more money for the Conference assessments than they were asked for, and some paid more to the pastor than they promised. One important action was that of building a Christian Church in the town of Winchester. The Conference assumed the debt on the lot and now Bro. Walters intends to turn his attention to building a house of worship in the near future. The prospects seem bright for a church in this town and this action will mean a great deal to the Valley Conference. With such a man as Bro. Walters at the head of this work we bespeak for it success. There ought to be a Christian church in Elkton and also in Harrisonburg. This last named town is soon to have a local option election and we trust that the saloons may soon be closed there also.

R. H. Peel.

—The American people are getting into the habit of "showing off." Even amongst the low as well as amongst the high there is rivalry in foolish display. Charity and Children timely says: "We must learn to pay as we go, or not go. We must walk if we cannot afford to ride. We must stay at home rather than borrow money to go abroad."

[EDUCATIONAL.]

Horner Military School

1851 — 1909.
Oxford, North Carolina

Classical, Scientific and English Courses. Prepares for College, University or the Government Academies. Military training develops prompt obedience and manly carriage. Academy 58 years old, with experienced teachers. Cadets dine with the principal and ladies of his family, securing the culture of homelife. Cultivates and educates. Modern buildings, perfect sanitation, wholesome fare, no crowding. Best moral, mental, physical and social training. Shady lawn, athletic park, one quarter mile running track, 300 acres. Ideal climate, helpful environment. In the social atmosphere of refined Christian people. The town noted for over a century as an educational centre.

Catalogues ready for distributing
HORNER MILITARY SCHOOL
Col. J. C. Horner, Principal, Oxford, N. C.

VITA SPRING

(Alkaline Chalybeate)

MINERAL WATER

The Peerless Medicinal Properties of this Water Make it

Nature's Own Remedy

for the cure of indigestion, liver and kidney trouble, uric acid poisoning, gastritis, constipation, rheumatism and all specific complaints caused by impure blood. As an illustration, its curative power is so great that old sores bathed several times each day in Vita Spring Mineral Water, disappear in a few days. It is recommended by

The House of Representatives of South Carolina
as "a pure mineral water of medicinal properties,"
From the thousands of unsolicited testimonials received from relieved sufferers, we quote the following:

A. L. R. Avant, M. D., Savannah, Ga., says: "It made me feel like my former self."

Miss L. B. Terry, Barton, S. C., says: "It relieved me of indigestion and gave me a better color than I have had in years."

R. B. Tarrant, P. M., Springfield, S. C., says: "It acted nicely on my kidneys. A fine invigorator."

Special introductory price, 5-gallon demijohns, $1 per 5 gallons.
Send for free illustrated and descriptive booklet.
Local agents wanted.

The Vita Spring
Shelton, S. C.

ANALYSIS
Calcium Carbonate	12.505
Magnesium Carbonate	3.399
Calcium Sulphate	.577
Sodium Sulphate	4.565
Potassium Sulphate	.624
Sodium Chloride	5.964
Iron Sesquioxide and Alumina	.023
Silica	2.303
	29.960

HYMN OF TRUST.

O Love Divine, that stoops to share
Our sharpest pang, our bitterest tear,
On Thee we cast each earth-born care,
We smile at pain while Thou art near!

Though long the weary way we tread,
And sorrow crown each lingering year,
No path we shun, no darkness dread,
Our hearts still whispering, Thou art near!

When drooping pleasure turns to grief,
And trembling faith is changed to fear,
The murmuring wind, the quivering leaf
Shall softly tell us, Thou art near!

On Thee we fling our burdening woe,
O Love Divine, forever dear,
Content to suffer while we know,
Living and dying, Thou art near!

—O. W. Holmes.

—Love thinketh no evil.

HELLO, MR. FARMER!
The Telephone Bell Adds Happiness to Rural Life.

The farmer is getting "on the wire." The telephone bell has started to ring on the farm. "Listen, he is talking now: 'Hello, Mr. Brown; what are you paying for eggs today? What, only 12c! Why, I got 14c for the last 100 dozen. You think they'll go up soon again? All right, I'll wait a few days till prices get better. Good bye.'"

Then turning to his wife he says: "Do you know, my dear, that telephone pays for itself in what it has earned by enabling me to get prices before sending eggs to market? Until I got the telephone, I used to ship eggs to the city, and rather than bring them back, I would take whatever Brown offered."

"Yes," replied his wife, "you rarely ever got more than 10c before. Now you always get from 12c to 15c. But the point of how much you get for your eggs doesn't compare with the convenience the telephone is in other ways. When the baby had convulsions, last night, we phoned for the doctor and he got here so soon I was almost surprised to see him. You know, it always used to take several hours for him to come before we had the phone. I really believe," she continued, her voice trembling, "that our dear little boy would be alive and well today if we could have gotten the doctor sooner the night he was taken."

You would be much surprised to know how reasonably priced a telephone is. Much of the installation the farmer can do himself. The most popular method is for several farmers in a neighborhood to get together—on one line. This makes it cheaper. They can cut down the trees, erect poles and string the wires. And when the wiring has been completed to the edge of the nearest town, the telephone company will make the necessary connection to give local and long distance communication with all points where there is a Bell telephone—and there are millions of them.

The rapid strides being made by the farmers of the South in the last two or three years render a telephone a necessity in order that he may not be outstripped in the keen competition of the day.

This matter ought to interest you, if you live in the country and have no telephone connection. If it does, write to the Farmers' Line Department of the Bell Telephone & Telegraph Company, 19 South Pryor St., Atlanta, Ga., and ask for their booklet which describes the Bell plan for connecting up with the telephone system. A postal will do.

(Begun on page 7)

grees hotter than it was when we arrived here last January. But the attendance at our church services has held up as well as we could expect and the work is moving along nicely. One member was received last Sunday morning. The third Sunday in June was children's day. We had a full house and a good program. The home mission offering was $32. We were glad to have Dr. J. P. Barrett with us the second Sunday in

Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Is paying out and investing in both Virginia and North Carolina more than it receives from these States.

New business in Virginia, 1908,
$2,147,800

Larger than any other company.

Gain in insurance in force in Virginia, 1908,
$1,374,975

60 per cent more than the next largest.

T. ARCHIBALD CARY, General Agent for Virginia and North Carolina,
Richmond, Virginia.

During 1909

(As in previous years)

We want you in our business, for we have what you want in your homes—the very best, most substantial and handsome furniture at bottom prices. We are also the undertakers.

Burke Furniture and Coffin Company

BUKINGTON, N. C.

Southern Railway

Operating Over 7,000 Miles of Railway. Quick Route to all Points North, South, East and West.

For Speed, Comfort, Courteous Employees, travel via the Southern Railway.

Rates, Schedules and other information furnished by any of the undersigned.

R. L. VERNON, Trav. Pass. Agt.,
Charlotte, N. C.

J. H. WOOD, Dist. Pass. Agt.,
Asheville, N. C.

S. H. HARDWICK, P. T. M.,

W. H. TAYLOE, G. P. A.,

Washington, D. C.

Elon College.

Co-educational. Established 1890.

Thorough College courses leading to M. A., A. B., and Ph. B. degrees. Strong and experienced Faculty with highest University training. Good Library, Reading Room, Laboratories, Literary Societies. Excellent Music, Art, Elocution and Business Departments. Diploma from Elon admits to graduate departments in the highest universities.

Beautiful and healthful location, 17 miles east of Greensboro on Southern Railway. Best moral and religious influence. No hazing. New students met by reception committees from young people's Christian organizations connected with the college. Good equipment. A large new dormitory, with modern conveniences, has recently been built to meet the requirements of growing patronage.

EXPENSES UNUSUALLY MODERATE. FALL TERM OPENS SEPT. 1ST.

For catalogue or further information, address

EMMETT L. MOFFITT, LL. D., President.

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

June. He preached for us both morning and evening to the delight of those who heard him. He left Monday for Dayton. We were sorry that he could not stay with us longer. W. D. Harward.

Madrid, Iowa.

—The largest and most ornate exposition building in the United States is now completed and just in time to receive the unique trophies of the hunt gathered by Mr. Roosevelt in Africa.

This building of granite with floor-space approximately nine and one half acres and costing three and a half millions of dollars has been erected by Congress for the National Museum and is today being put in order for the proper exhibition of various objects of interest. It is another valuable asset to the beautiful capitol and city of Washington.

—Every Christian has one glad, grand privilege, that of living with Christ, for Christ and in Christ every day.

The Christian Sun.

In Essentials—Unity, in Non-Essentials—Liberty, in All Things—Charity.

ESTABLISHED 1844.

GREENSBORO N. C., WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 1, 1909. VOLUME LXI. NUMBER 34.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

There is every indication of returning, if not increased, prosperity. Crops in most parts of North Carolina, and, as far as we can learn, of the South, are exceedingly promising. In some sections there have been too frequent and heavy rains, but these have not done the damage once feared. Farms improve, year by year, in worth and are cultivated with less cost than formerly, and more abundant yields are realized. The most of our factories are running on full time, merchants are laying in heavy stocks of goods and the railroads are finding all they can do to meet the demands upon them for business.

Congress has adjourned, tariff legislation has ended and not one man in fifty or a hundred knows whether there was revision "upwards" or "downwards." And our country is at peace, with plenty of profitable work and pastime in view. A happy people. A great country. A glorious outlook. He who does not consider it good to be living at such a time and in such a land must be ungrateful indeed. If we may keep our faith fixed in God and remain loyal to His kingdom and His cause, the wildest dreams have not revealed to us yet what our country shall be in future. May the God of nations guide us "lest we forget."

The Pope of Rome is very fond of President Taft. Many Catholics are. When Mr. Taft was Governor-General of the Philippines he dealt with papal holdings and possessions there with great discretion. So Pope Pius has not forgotten him. Emperor Menelik of Abyssinia sent the Pope a lioness in 1907 and she now has six cubs. The Pope has decided to send two of these to the Kaiser of Germany, two to Emperor Francis Joseph, and two to President Taft. The other great rulers must feel very much alone and quite envious. But one wonders what on earth President Taft will do with two young lions—now that Congress has adjourned, and the days of roaring about the tariff are over.

The wonders of Japan have not ceased since her war with Russia. They increase, the rather. The Minister of Finance has just issued a statement showing that Japan was never so well off financially. In 1908 there were in her postal savings banks more than $45,000,000. Already in 1909 these deposits have leaped to $52,500,000, made by 9,502,050 depositors. Her war with Russia did not bankrupt, but greatly increased her riches. Wonderful little Japan.

Large families are not a hindrance to genius. Benjamin Franklin was the last of seventeen children; Coleridge was the last of fourteen; Schuher was the tenth in a family of fourteen; Washington Irving was the last of eleven; Napoleon, the last of eight; Rubens and Richard Wagner each the last in a family of seven; and Weber was ninth to arrive in his father's house. There are no rules for genius, but it would be easy to show that large families are the happiest, and produce most of the world's greatest men and women; and that more "men of mark" are born nearer the mountains, or near the sea, than in other localities. So statisticians hold.

A person's and a people's present customs and habits are largely shaped by their belief as to events in the future state. The Egyptians, for instance, believed in immortality, but had not the first notion of the resurrection. That belief begot among the Egyptians a custom of embalming and mummifying which remains a sealed wonder even to the civilization of our day. Their belief as touching the future that their bodies must be preserved inviolate to breathe and live again in process of time produced that marvelous and wonderful art.

Here is a current event culled from an exchange (The New York Advocate) which carries a pathetic but beautiful story and sublime moral, for there are hundreds of such heroes of whom the world hears and knows all too little:

On August 12 a train was wrecked near Bristol, Va. The engineer, Samuel Bush, of Knoxville, Tenn., subsequently died from his injuries. Scalded and frightfully bruised, he was slowly working his way out of the wreck of his engine, when the few passengers who retained their senses pushed aside the mass of twisted iron to meet him. As the passengers began to hunt for whiskey to stimulate him, he asked for a last look at his old engine. When they came to him with the liquor he begged them to look after the comfort of the passengers. Being told that no passengers had been injured, he said, "That's good. But before I take this whisky I want you men to smell my breath and testify if need be that I had not been drinking when this happened." He would not touch the stimulant until four of the men had smelled his breath and promised to bear witness to his sobriety. "All an engineer has is his record," he said feebly, "and he cannot afford to have anything against that." Bush went out upon his last run with his record spotless. He had been in the service of that railway for more than thirty years. Cannot another word be substituted for "engineer" and another truth be the result? "All a minister has is his record, and he cannot afford to have anything against that."

—The Baptists of Kentucky have finished raising $400,000 to meet the conditions of Dr. Gatliff who gives four thousand acres of coal lands, said to be of untold value. The schools and other denominational interests of that state are the beneficiaries.

—The reciprocal relationship now existing between China and the United States is like that of two very friendly persons. The United States restored to China, of its own accord, the surplus Boxer indemnity—$13,000,000—something unprecedented in diplomacy. Now China shows her appreciation of the deed by spending the entire amount in sending her young men—100 a year—to this country to be educated.

—Rev. W. L. Watkinson, of London, at a conference recently made a declaration that is worthy of consideration by other ministers: "At the end of my life, with all the imperfections belonging to my ministry, I feel this consolation—that I have not unnecessarily disturbed the religious convictions of my hearers. I have sought in all my preaching to be practical and instructive, and have sought in my ministry and writings to do people good. It is ten thousand times better for a man to set before a congregation the simple beauty of the New Testament than to trouble a congregation with his own nightmares."

FROM THE FIELD.

Ingram, Va.

We began our meeting at Ingram on the second Sunday in August. Rev. H. H. Butler of Suffolk, Va., came in on Monday evening and did the preaching to the close Thursday evening. His sermons were fine and most highly appreciated by all who heard him. There was a very good revival in the church and some 12 professions and reclamations. The congregations were very large at night. The church and community were very much edified. Ingram has some of our very best people. It is note-worthy that there are but very few people in that community but what are members of the church. It was interesting to see all denominations worship together as one.

Happy Home.

Our meeting at Happy Home began the 3rd Sunday and closed on Friday with 48 professions and reclamations. Rev. W. T. Herndon was with us and did the most of the preaching. Dr. Herndon was quite feeble, yet his sermons were good and well received by the large congregations. This was a very fine revival in the church. The most of the converts lived out of the regular congregation. Ten united with the church, and we expect others at the next appointment. Here we have some most excellent people. We held our 3rd quarterly meeting. The present pastor was unanimously recalled for another year. It is with regret that I cannot be at Mt. Zion this week, my son Luther being very ill with typhoid fever and I am now by his bedside.

S. B. Klapp.

Greensboro, N. C., Aug. 24, 1909.

Christian Chapel.

Saturday before the second Sunday in August our protracted meeting commenced at Christian Chapel, Rev. J. S. Carden being our pastor. He has been very successful with his work at this place during the year. There has not been such a meeting held here in many years. The congregations were large each day and all gave the very best attention.

Pastor Carden had no one to help him except Rev. Mr. Blanch, a Baptist minister, who preached Thursday afternoon.

The meeting lasted eight days. There were about fifty conversions and twenty-two joined the church. The Lord blessed us all abundantly and let us hope that we may run the race more successfully so when our meeting in our earthly home is no more we may meet in our Father's home above.

Beulah Reynolds.

Mt. Auburn.

Dear Bro. Atkinson: Allow a few words from our work at Mt. Auburn. For two years this church has been my only pastoral charge. The work moves smoothly on, no special agitation, no great out-break. Our meeting was held second Sunday in July and week following. The congregations were larger than usual. The attention to the Word was good; the spirit of the services uplifting. There were eight or nine conversions; and many reconsecrated themselves to the work. Six joined the church.

Rev. L. E. Smith was with us three days of the meeting. His preaching was of a high order and the congregation greatly enjoyed his stay. Bro. Smith is still quite a young man and a member of the Sr. class at Elon College '10. He has ability as a speaker, and much tact as a preacher. We are so glad to see our young men give themselves entirely to the ministry.

The present pastor has been extended a call for next year at Mt. Auburn and has accepted. This is one of the old churches and has ever proved herself loyal to the denomination and faithful to the work entrusted to her. This is one of the most interesting churches I have ever served. May God's blessings continue with this kind and faithful congregation.

Apple's Chapel.

It was my pleasure to be with pastor, Rev. L. I. Cox th 4th Sunday in July and week following in the meeting. I was pastor of this church about twenty years ago and was glad to meet many friends whom I knew then. The congregations were immense. The meeting good, many rejoicing aloud in their happiness. Many changes have taken place—old men and old women of God have gone from their work on earth to their rest in heaven— young men and women have married and gone to the centers of commerce seeking wealth but with all these changes old Apple's is still a place for the gathering of the people. Pastor Cox is loved by his people—they want him in their homes, and this is the secret of his success as a pastor. He is a plain preacher and hard worker. We were a little amused and interested how he began the protracted meeting, viz: Sunday, 11 a. m. service, he began by asking for $25 Conference mission money and he got $28. At 2 p. m. he asked for $8 to care for the grave yard in 1910; and he got $11.50. That's the way he does things. And the people appreciate and enjoy their own success. We enjoyed the week at Apple's very much.

Yours fraternally,

Jas. L. Foster.

Damascus.

We have just closed a good meeting at Damascus Church, in Orange Co., N. C. It continued five days—about 16 conversions and 5 accessions to the church. There was good interest from start to finish. The congregations were very good, and fine attention was given. The song service was fine. Most of the preaching was done by Bro. L. F. Johnson, and he did it in the power and demonstration of the Spirit. To God be all the praise.

W. G. Clements.

Mt. Gilead.

My meeting at Mt. Gilead began first Sunday in August and was closed out by the rain before any visible results were attained. The rain began on Sunday afternoon and lasted nearly through the week. We managed to have five services in which we believe the Christian people were benefitted, and some requests for prayer were made.

Bethlehem.

The meeting at Bethlehem began third Sunday in August and lasted four days. The church was very much revived and the cause here strengthened. There were seven conversions, four reclaimed and two united with the church.

Antioch.

The meeting at Antioch began fourth Sunday in August and lasted four days. Large crowds were in attendance each day and the Holy Spirit was with us. There were twenty-three conversions, and fourteen united with the church. We have recently put a coat of paint on this church and hope to put on two more coats before another year rolls round. We had no ministerial help at any of these points, but the Lord helped us.

Herbert Scholz.

Lebanon.

Our meeting was held the third Sunday and week following in July.

Rev. H. H. Butler was present and did all the preaching after Monday. Rev. W. L. Wells was present and preached on Monday. Bro. B. J. Earp was present and worked in the prayer meeting. There were twenty-two converts and twelve joined the church. Bro. Butler endeared himself to the people and all enjoyed his preaching. We would be glad to hear him again.

Concord.

We held our meeting the fourth Sunday and week following in July. Rev. W. L. Wells was present and did the preaching. The people enjoyed his sermons. They were good. There were eleven converts. Three joined the church. The church would be glad to hear him again.

Center Grove.

The meeting at Center Grove embraced the second Sunday and week following in August. Rev. W. T. Herndon was present and did the preaching. He preached good sermons and made strong appeals to the unsaved. There were five converts. The church would be glad to hear him again.

Thos. W. Stowd.

ALABAMA LETTER.

As it has been some time since I had anything to say through The Sun, I send a few lines.

Third Sunday in July I started for Brown Springs, Ga., to assist Rev. J. W. Elder in a meeting at that place. On account of Bro. Elder's companion having fever he was absent from the services, but we had a glorious revival. Eighteen joined the church. I found a wide awake church praying for the power and so it came. May the Lord continue to bless these dear people. Fourth Sunday in July my meeting began at Forest Home. On account of my being at Brown Springs, Rev. J. W. Knight conducted the services for me till Monday night, and did the preaching thru' the entire meeting. He did earnest preaching which the people appreciated very much. We are expecting to hold a meeting here in August. I went from here to Macedonia, and began a series of meetings. At that place I was assisted by Rev. J. D. Dollar. Bro. Dollar was sick through the entire meeting. He did some preaching which the people very highly appreciated. The people at Macedonia tell me this was the best meeting they have held in many years. A Sunday school and weekly prayer service was organized, the result of this service. Went next to New Home in Clay Co. and began services on Saturday before the second Sunday. I was assisted here by Rev. J. D. Dollar and J. W. Elder. Bro Elder was pastor of this church and is much beloved by this people. He did most of the preaching, and the spirit was with him and he was a power in the pulpit for good. Four additions to the church. A Sunday-school and prayer service was organized. From here I went to Christiana in Tallapoosa Co., where Rev. J. V. Knight was conducting a meeting for me. I arrived Sunday at the 11 o'clock service. We had a fine service. At present we are holding a Union meeting with the Methodist people at this place. Bro. Stephenson, of Dadeville, Ala., is their pastor. We are praying and expecting great results from this meeting. My work is in better condition than ever before since I have been doing pastoral work, for which I give God the praise. The Alabama Christian Conference will convene with Christiana Church on Tuesday after the third Sunday in October. Those wishing to come by railway will please notify me, and conveyance will meet them at Dadeville, Ala., the nearest R.R. point. The church is eight miles north of Dadeville.

May God bless our good work here and in other fields.

J. H. Milam.

Abanda, Ala.

THE VALLEY VA. CONFERENCE.

The last Communication left me at Union, Southampton Co., Va., surrounded by some of the friends of my childhood, and the scenes of many past years. These associations conspired to fill me with emotions too deep and profound to express. This day finds me at Luray, Va., where I am spending a few days with friends. Am just from the Valley Central Va. Conference, which was held at Newport in the beautiful Page valley, a few miles away. The weather is fine, the scenery inviting, and everything conspires to make my visit pleasant.

Reached the Conference room Friday morning last where I found them in session and earnestly engaged in the work. Bro. Walters, the president of the Conference, and all the ministers belonging to it were very kind, and I feel thankful to them for every kindness they showed me. Many improvements have been made in their work and they are progressing well. The building of a church in Winchester, Va., was considered and plans were laid to begin the work. That is an important point, and demands the careful attention of the Conference. With prudence and push I have no doubt about its success. Bro. Walters has the tact and ability with the proper assistance to move it on to a successful completion. Have often passed this place and wondered why it was we did not have a church in this growing city. The meeting of so many friends of other years was pleasant. This of itself was a delightful part of the association.

My home was with Bro. E. L. Louder back. He and his pleasant family entertained me in the best way.

J. T. Kitchen.

NORFOLK LETTER.

We had the pleasure of a visit from Rev. A. P. Barbee, of Durham, N. C., who has been visiting Rev. J. O. Cox, of South Norfolk.

Brother Barbee filled the pulpit of Brother Cox in the South Norfolk Church yesterday, morning and evening.

The people of the Memorial Temple have as yet not decided on a pastor for the coming year.

As stated in my last letter, Rev. A. B.

Kendall, of Le Grande, Iowa, had been in Norfolk with the view of taking up the work at the Third Church. A business meeting was held on last Monday evening, at which time, a unanimous and urgent call was extended him to become pastor of the Third Church. He took the matter under advisement, promising to notify me by wire today of his decision. Up to this hour, I have not heard from him.

We are trusting that the Lord's will may be done.

J. W. Manning.

Armentrout-Fry.

New Hope Christian church was the scene of a pretty church wedding August 18th, when Mr. Price A. Armentrout, son of James Armentrout, led to the altar Miss Annie V., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George V. Fry.

The wedding party entered the church as follows: ushers, Messrs. W. P. Vampelt and Avis Liskey, Mr. A. P. Liskey and Miss Mattie Hilbert, Mr. Frank Liskey and Miss Mattie Liskey, Mr. Wm. Hilbert and Miss Dora Armentrout, following these came the bride leaning on the arm of her maid of honor Miss Margie Earman. She was met at the altar by the groom accompanied by his best man, Mr. Lilburn Armentrout. They stood beneath an arch of evergreens and flowers while the writer spoke the words that made them husband and wife. Miss Mary Spitzer presided at the organ and played Mendelssohn's wedding march as the party entered the church. A bounteous dinner was served at the home of the bride before the ceremony and immediately after the service Mr. and Mrs. Armentrout were driven to Harrisonburg where they took the train for a few weeks' trip to Washington and other points, followed by the best wishes of a host of friends.

W. T. Walters.

—There is a "league of mothers of families" in Paris which is fighting against certain evils in corsets. In order that women may have saner clothes offered to them by the stores, this league is demanding, according to La Revue, that the "manikins," which are the basis of the figure of women, shall be remodeled, and that the fashion-plates shall portray more natural human beings. In other countries in Europe the corset in some of its manifestations comes in for sharp criticism. Both France and Germany, for example, forbid the corset during gymnastics in schools, and in Holland, Austria and England, as well as in France and Germany, there exist organizations for the reform of this piece of wearing apparel.—Youth's Companion.

NOTES AND PERSONALS.

—The day in which you do not help some one else to be happier and better is a lost day.

—Elon College opens for its twentieth annual session today. A splendid opening is anticipated.

—The Sun's editor is with Pastor N. G. Newman in a series of meetings at Holy Neck this week.

—Are you living so as to make your neighbors happier and better for your being among them? If not you are losing much of the joy of life.

—It is not so much a question as to whether a new religion is true or false. The real question is, have you enough of the old religion to keep you hopeful, happy and steadfast?

—Rev. J. L. Foster assisted Pastor L. E. Smith in a happy and successful revival at Pleasant Ridge in Randolph Co. last week. There were 24 conversions and 20 accessions to the church.

—Writing from Ramseur, N. C., Aug. 26, Rev. R. L. Williamson says: "We closed a successful revival at Shady Grove last week. Brother Morgan was with me until Tuesday when he was called to see his brother who was in the hospital for treatment. Bro. Morgan did some earnest and effective preaching and it was with great regret we had to give him up."

—For the benefit of their friends and correspondents it is deemed worth-while to say that Revs. W. T. Walters and R. L. Williamson have somehow possessed themselves of a typewriter each. Now if a movement could be started to get one into the hands of Rev. C. E. Newman, Henderson, N. C., his long-suffering friends (The Sun's editor included) would certainly feel relieved.

—Rev. C. H. Rowland has returned from the Northfield Bible Conference and writes of the work at Northfield this summer for Sun readers. Bro. Rowland says: "Had the greatest time of my life. Almost a second call to the ministry." We doubt if there is a greater and more helpful place on earth for a preacher to visit than Northfield during the Christian Workers' Conference.

—If Col. J. E. West, Suffolk, Va., will not consider us out of date we will accord him hearty congratulations for success in the recent primaries in his county, which virtually makes him a member of the next House of the Virginia Legislature. There is no more conscientious man than J. E. West and he will do his full duty as law-maker and reflect credit upon his constituency.

—Alas for the frailties of human kind! It had never occurred to us, for instance, that Dr. W. W. Staley could have the big head; but we met him last week and he would hardly speak. Since he has come to be "grandpa" his manners certainly need mending. Mrs. Staley was as kind and congenial as ever, as if she had been used to boys in the family all the while. Men can have their heads turned and puffed up so much easier and quicker than women.

—The Department of Education of the American Christian Convention, M. W. Baker, Ph.D., Lakemont, N. Y., Secretary, issues a neat folder of eight attractive pages entitled "These Schools, Give preparation for making a living and inspiration for making a life." The names of the thirteen schools and colleges, with presidents of each, also much valuable information concerning our relationship and duty to them as our own are given. The folder is a call for a general collection for our Department of Education on Sunday, September 12th.

ELON COLLEGE NOTES.

The Elocution Department this year is to be in charge of Miss Emily B. Urquhart, Hensall, Ontario. Miss Urquhart comes highly recommended, and may be depended upon to build up the department.

The gymnasium floor in the West Dormitory has been floored for the physical culture and gymnasium exercises of the young ladies. This improvement fills a long felt need in the college equipment.

Last Sunday was a gala day at Union Ridge Christian Church, it being the occasion of the dedication of their new house of worship, costing something like $4,000. The dedicatory sermon was preached by Dr. J. O. Atkinson. Uncle Wellons was there and led in the prayer. Many others from Elon were in attendance, including Dr. Atkinson's family and Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Lee.

The Alamance County Sunday School Convention met at St. Mark's Reformed Church, two miles south of the college, on Saturday and Sunday of last week. Prof. Wicker was president of the convention and Prof. Cobb secretary and treasurer. President Moffitt, Rev. R. P. Crumpler, and Mr. W. B. Fuller also attended from here. Prof. Cobb is secretary-treasurer also for next year. The new president, Prof. Wicker, refusing to serve longer, is Rev. J. D. Andrew, Burlington, N. C.

Mr. J. I. Lawrence and family have been visiting at Prof. Lawrence's this and last week. They left for their home in Mineral Wells, Texas, Tuesday of this week.

Major E. Moffitt, Asheboro, N. C., president of the N. C. State Sunday School Association, was in town Saturday and Sunday, visiting at Dr. Moffitt's.

He attended the county association at St. Mark's and delivered an able address.

Prof. Cobb and family have vacated their old home place at the Carr cottage and have moved into the West Dormitory where they will board for the future, Prof. Cobb acting as resident professor in the building.

Miss Pattie Clendenin was married to Mr. J. T. Bradshaw at her home last Wednesday in the presence of a large number of friends and relatives. Dr. W. W. Staley, her uncle, performed the ceremony. There were many presents. Mr. and Mrs. Bradshaw have the best wishes of the people of Elon College and of their numerous friends elsewhere for a long and happy married life.

Mrs. Harper has returned home from a visit to her father's in the northern part of the county.

Dr. and Mrs. Staley were pleasant visitors here last week. They came up to the Clendenin-Bradshaw nuptials.

The first sermon of the next year will be preached next Sunday morning in the chapel to the students and villagers by Rev. W. S. Long, D.D.

Mrs. S. L. Adams, Cluster Springs, Va., has been visiting Dr. and Mrs. Newman for the past few weeks. Mrs. Adams used to live here and her friends were glad to have her return again.

Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Brown have been visiting their son, Mr. D. W. Brown, the past week. We were glad to have these friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Willis Barney and son, Harold, have returned from Pennsylvania, where Mr. Barney taught a successful school this summer. They will occupy the Whitesell house and take roomers as last year.

From all appearances the opening is to be the best yet in Elon's history. Of course a great many who might come and ought to come are not going to be here. We are looking to our friends to help us with these pupils. Will not every friend of the college see to it that the young people of his particular community who ought to have come, but did not at the opening, do come at once? This will be a real service to the church, and one that will be appreciated by the college. Don't fail to do this, please.

W. A. Harper.

Are you not surprised to find how independent of money peace of conscience is, and how much happiness can be condensed in the humblest home? A cottage will not hold the bulky furniture and sumptuous accommodations of a mansion; but if God be there, a cottage will hold as much happiness as might stock a palace.—Dr. James Hamilton.

VACATION AT NORTHFIELD.

My vacation was spent at the Christian Workers' Conference, Northfield, Mass. It is an ideal place, and the services were simply great. It was almost a second call to preach. I think if the churches knew of the work done there, they would not only give their pastors vacations, but would send them to Northfield. To be in such a holy atmosphere will make a better man, and better preacher. A trip to Northfield would be better than a pounding, Mr. Editor, I think.

I wish I could tell of the great work, but it might become stale to my congregation. The conference began July 31, and continued through August 15. It was a busy time for there were eight services each day. A hungry preacher would almost make himself sick trying to take in every service. It only took about two days to prove that one man could not appreciate so many good things at once.

The conference began with a sermon by Dr. A. T. Pierson from 2 Peter 3:18. Subject, "The Grip of Spiritual Truth Compels a Decision." In a plain and simple way, this grand old man struck the key note for the entire conference. Were I to try to give an outline of this sermon, I should have to devote my whole paper to it. But I must say that one of the most helpful parts of the conference was his Bible class each morning at nine o'clock. His series of studies were on the Gospels, Acts, and the Epistles. He said, "The main purpose was to show the distinctive, characteristic peculiarities of the five historical books of the New Testament; then, the central theme of the five writers of Epistles; and especially to demonstrate and illustrate the comprehensive adaptation and application of the whole body of truth, therein contained, to man's universal needs."

I should like to mention the great preachers present, and tell something of their sermons, and I shall in another paper. There are so many things of interest, that I do not know which to mention. But I will say just a word about the Ministers' Meeting conducted in the Russel Sage Chapel by Rev. G. A. Johnson-Ross, of England. It was inspiring to see seven or eight hundred preachers, of every faith, hanging on the words of this man of God. The Ministers' Meeting will be a special feature in the conference in the future.

The social side of my vacation would give me enough to pay me for the trip. I went alone, and did not expect to meet any one I knew. When I arrived at the station, and took a carriage for the boarding house, I found on the same seat with me a man from my own county, Rev. W. F. Powell, of Roanoke, Va. We renewed our boyhood acquaintance, and became room-mates.

I am at my place again, feeling that I am a better man, and am ready for another year's work for my Lord.

C. H. Rowland.

CHURCH DAY IN ST. LOUIS.

The ringing of all St. Louis church bells in one grand chorus at sunrise Sunday, October 3rd, 1909, will be the signal for the people of St. Louis to begin a seven-day celebration of the 100th anniversary of the incorporation of the city.

"Church Day" will be the title of the opening day, which will be devoted to a review of the religious development of the city in 100 years. The religious celebration will be general, including all denominations. The chairmen of the committee on Church Day are Samuel Cupples, one of the foremost Protestants in the city, and W. J. Kinsella, one of the city's most prominent Catholics.

Commemorative services, with sermons and addresses of historical character, will be held in virtually all of the city's 444 churches. Uniformed organizations, military and fraternal, will proceed in organized bodies from their armories and halls to such churches as they may select. A chorus of thousands of Sunday School pupils will sing appropriate anthems.

The downtown section, where once stood churches and residences and now stand great commercial skyscrapers, will be invaded for the day by armies of worshippers, who will unveil tablets marking the sites of the early churches, and memorializing the religious leaders of 100 years ago, who, surrounded by forests inhabited by Indians, found time, in addition to protecting themselves and their families from attack, to build churches and worship in them, thereby setting for their descendants an example which has not been ignored.

The following list shows the number of churches of each denomination in St. Louis:

Baptist, 23; Catholic, 76; Christian, 15; Christian Scientist, 4; Congregational, 21; English Evangelical Lutheran, 7; German Evangelical, 24; German Evangelical Lutheran, 22; Hebrew, Orthodox, 9; Hebrew, Reformed, 4; Methodist Episcopal, 26; Methodist Episcopal, South, 20; New Jerusalem, 3; Presbyterian, 42; Presbyterian, Cumberland, 1; Presbyterian, United, 4; Protestant Episcopal, 29; Reformed Episcopal, 2; Unitarian, 2; miscellaneous, 110; total (not including the Evangelical Alliance, consisting of clergymen of different denominations) 444.

Each of these 444 religious organizations has been invited to participate in the ceremonies of Church Day, and virtually all of them have accepted.

The St. Louis Centennial Association is a municipal institution, whose president is the Hon. Frederick H. Kreismann, Mayor, and whose purpose is to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the incorporation of St. Louis with the most notable series of great events ever crowded into seven days in any American city.

Via floats, costumed paraders, etc., will be shown the different stages in the development of St. Louis from a wilderness into a city of towering skyscrapers and beautiful homes, ranking, in point of population, fourth among the cities of America, and in point of many important industries, first among the cities of the world.

As many as possible of the important events of Centennial Week will be held out-doors, in order that every St. Louisan and visitor may have an opportunity to witness them.

—The barbarous custom of hazing is destined to pass away, if it is not already a thing of the past. The President ordered seven cadets of the Military Academy at West Point to be expelled, on the 19th, for hazing Cadet Roland Sutton in June last. This Sutton is a brother to the one killed in the Navy Department. The regulations, or rather the enforcement of them, seems to be very lax in our War Departments. The murderers of Lieutenant Sutton haven't even been dismissed.

The glory of life is self-development. The glory of life is self-suppression. The glory of life is indulgence. The glory of life is abstinence. How can these contradictory statements be true? Because there are two selves,—a higher and a lower. To the higher Jesus says, "I am come that ye may have life abundantly." To the lower the word of God is, "Put to death therefore your members which are upon the earth." It is precisely by dying in the lower sphere that we live in the higher. We close up all the low ranges of baser personality and find ourselves free to the endless joy and experience of the life eternal.

But people are constantly talking to us as though there were no death or abstinence or self-repression necessary. We know better. Throughout the whole of life we see achievement and attainment associated with sacrifice and self-denial. —Robert E. Speer, in S. S. Times.

A SUFFERING GOD.

God commendeth his own love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us.—Romans 5:8.

We may stand, in imagination, beneath the shadow of the cross, and in spirit we may see, once more, that scene of suffering which secures our salvation. The years recede, the spaces are removed, and by that singular power of the human mind by which time and space are forgotten, we are transported to another time and place and remember Him who died for us and the scenes connected with that death. Behind us is the grim, gray wall of an ancient city; before us is the slope of a skull-shaped hill; about us are the dark faces and the flowing robes of an Oriental people, the haughty forms and the rich vestments of Jewish priests and the stern faces and helmet-crowned heads of a quarternion of Roman soldiers; and above all, in silhouette against the northern sky, rising on the crest of the hill, three crosses laden with their suffering victims. Our eyes are arrested, our attention is fixed, and our souls are held by the central figure. His face, perfect in feature, pure in character, tender in delicate sensibility, set now in the strong agony of suffering in which both body and soul participate, is the face of the Man who did no sin, who looked on men with compassion, who sympathized with suffering and who sorrowed for sin. Now, numbered with transgressors, condemned with malefactors, He suffers crucifixion at the hands of men. As we look the sun is hidden and heaven is covered with a cloud, as if the scene were too painful to look upon, and the earth trembles and is rent as if in sympathetic agony. The soldiers stand astonished; the priests are stricken dumb; the faces of the people grow pale with terror; and silence extreme, intense, awful, reigns. Listen. The silence is broken by one clear, distinct voice of love and faith and hope: "Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit." The light fades out of those tender eyes, the trembling agony passes away from the fair face, and the stillness of death clasps in its embrace the body of Jesus the Christ.

The Roman centurion who has charge of the crucifixion, hearing the voice and beholding the death, voices his conviction in the exclamation: "Truly this was the Son of God." And one who, later, had a vision of the Crucified and who felt the power of the crucifixion to change the course and current of human life interprets the death of Jesus by saying: "God commendeth his own love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us."

Love, then, the love of God, the love of God for sinful men is the center and soul of this scene of suffering and death. The eternal life which is invisible became visible in the form of Jesus; the divine Father whom no man had seen was declared in the Son; the spiritual love whose sufferings were unseen was made manifest in the physical sufferings which all men could see, and the greatness of that love was shown by death beyond which no visible proof of love could be given. The love of God in its patience, its long suffering, its redeeming, renewing, and saving quality is commended unto us. Hitherto men had thought of God as angry with the sinner, now they see that He is also grieved by sin. Hitherto men had thought of God as full of wrath toward the sinner, now they see that He is full of compassion. Hitherto men had thought of God as swift to punish, now they see that He Himself suffers to save. Now is revealed the supreme fact that love which rules in the heart and soul of man making the holy, who loves, suffer for the unholy, whom he loves, has its source and sway in the heart and soul of God.

The love of the holy for the unholy has in it, always, the element of pain; the love of the pure for the impure has in it the element of shame; the love of the righteous for the unrighteous has in it the element of compassionate and vicarious suffering. The love of God Himself knows no exception to this law. Therefore, Jesus Christ, the Son, is the image of the invisible God; his humanity is the counterpart and likeness of divinity; His physical sufferings are the material expression of the spiritual sufferings which even divine love can experience and endure. Whatever else the death of Christ may do in effecting salvation, God, thereby, commendeth His own love toward us.

Be silent, then, and look upon this tragic scene, O soul of man, and know that for thy sin God suffers, and that for thy sin Christ died. All that was incidental to the crucifixion in time and place, all that was material in form, all that was physical in nature and quality belong to the mere language of incarnation by which God made Himself known. Of all that, we must always say, Christ suffered once for the sins of men and died once for their salvation. But all that in itself is essential and, therefore, timeless, all that was spiritual in fact, all that was psychical and moral in quality belong unto the verities of earth and heaven which endure and which ever operate for men's salvation.

Know, then, O soul of man, that sin today,—forgetfulness of God, self-love, self-will, envy, covetousness, pride, malice, cruelty, and the material forms by which they find expression in profane speech, licentious act, dishonest dealing, and hurtful, murderous deed—is the same as it was when men rejected, condemned, and crucified the Son of God. These sins are now an offense, a grief, a pain unto God. And it is because God loves us while we are yet sinners and wills not that any should perish but rather that men should see Him and live that we are living today and that God once more, in story, in sermon, and in symbol, sets before us the passion, even the sufferings and death of His Son. God, hereby, once more commendeth His own love toward us.

Oh, that we may see, believe, and know the love that God hath toward us. Then shall we see our sin as God sees it, and feel the shame of sin as Christ felt it, and suffer for it in spirit as the divine Spirit suffers for it, and be crucified unto it and find that then we live, for Christ liveth in us and the blood of Jesus cleanseth us from all sin. Impenitent men who love sin and desire to live in it do not wish to know the love of God as it is revealed in Christ. They may be pleased to think that God loves them in some distant and providential manner and makes provision for their needs, but they do not desire to feel the love of God in its suffering and saving qualities. A sinful son may be pleased to have a loving father who will furnish him means of support and leave him to his own ways; but no sinful son, loving his sin, ever wants to have the presence of a father or mother whose anger and grief and shame, disclosed in tones and tears, suggest to him his shame and wickedness. Such love is too painful to him; it is an offense to him; he shuns it and repels it; he will have no communion with it. It is only when such a sinful son is convinced of his sinful ways and burns with shame and suffers in sorrow that he is glad to know that parental love also suffers and that he yields to such love to be forgiven and cleansed and clothed and to be led back into the old home and the old ways of faith and obedience. In like manner, every sinful man who in his greed of sin with its pleasures and profits desires to follow his own ways shrinks from the love of God in Christ and withdraws from it because it stirs up feelings and sentiments which he does not wish to entertain and because he can not dwell with such love in peace with it or with himself. But every man who knows the evil of sin and who desires salvation from it receives with faith this love of God which has expressed itself audibly and visibly in tender tones and hot tears and blood, and he yields himself to it, being, by it, made more tender and penitent, and so finds that this love which was most fully expressed in blood cleanses him from all sin.

Therefore, the preaching of Christ crucified, which to some men is an offense and to some men is foolishness, proves to be to the believing the wisdom of God and the power of God unto salvation. Therefore, the symbols of this supper prove to be to them who receive them in faith the suggestions of spiritual verities which bring the peace of pardon and the power of a righteous life.

So then, by divine appointment, the cross is continually uplifted that men may see and know the love wherewith God hath loved them. The call to look on the crucified One is given that men may feel the power of that love. The command to repent and believe is given that men may forsake their sins and receive the saving grace of God.

Look then, once more, O man, upon the symbol and upon the Sufferer whom it signifies. Remember, once more, that Christ was crucified for the sins of men. Believe, once more, that therein God "commendeth his own love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us." Receive, once more, the bread and wine, His body and His blood, that in spirit you may receive Him and that by communion with Him you may die unto sin and may live unto righteousness.

"Draw nigh and take of the body of the Lord,
And drink the holy blood for you out-poured."

—William W. McLane, Ph.D., D.D.,
New Haven, Conn., in Homiletic Review.

THE REWARD OF FAITH.

Lame from his birth, he was carried and laid daily at "the gate of the temple which is called Beautiful," to beg of the passers-by. They had to do something with him. For he was poor; and helpless; and a beggar; a great burden to the community; a greater burden to his friends; and the greatest burden to himself. And he had been a burden ever since the hour he was born.

But helplessness and poverty are not burdensome—to Love. This cripple-beggar came into the world a living, daily, hourly joy. His very weakness and dependence made him dear—oh, so dear. How dear, only a mother can know. When they laid him in his mother's arms, a tiny bundle of helplessness, warm and soft and sweet, snuggling with feeble strength into her arms, how she smiled to hear him cry! With her own weak arms, how closely she drew him into her caresses, held him close to her warm breast, and smiled again and thanked God, and wept for love and joy as he fell asleep at the dear fount of life. Her baby boy! He was helpless, and naked, and penniless, and had to be held, and carried, and fed and clothed. But he wasn't a burden. No more than a strong, rich, able-bodied man of forty-five years is a burden to God. He may be just as poor and helpless and weak—he may be blind, in addition—but he isn't a burden to the Heavenly Father. No one is a burden to Almighty Love.

The baby grew. And one day the mother, stooping to the floor with the little burdenless burden in her arms, stood him on his feet, and cooed in mother fashion to her nestling dove that it was time for him to learn to walk. But the weak little legs doubled under his tiny weight. He could not stand. He was so much sweeter to be picked up and carried. "He is too little," cooed the mother, and picked him up and carried him on her heart as before. Then one other day she tried again. And again she said, "My baby is too little; he mustn't try to walk yet." And another day, and yet another time, she tried. Until at last, one bitter day, she tried just once more. And then she laid him on his little bed, and bowed her white, frightened face upon him, and tried to pray. But the broken heart could only sob—for it knew at last the truth it had feared. The sweetness of the gift of God had turned to wormwood. Her soul cried out for help and sympathy—for pity and love. Nay, it cried out in rebellion. Why had God forgotten her baby, after he had given her little son to her? How could he forget her little one—how could he? How could he?

Ah, but God never forgets. When we can't walk, he stoops down, lifts us up into the Everlasting Arms, and carries us. I've seen him carrying men fifty and seventy and ninety years old. This man—forty years they carried him in their arms—friends whom God made tender-hearted and strong-armed with love. Through childhood, and youth, and young manhood, and into middle life. He didn't want to be carried, now that he was a man. He wanted to walk, to work, to grow weary; to see his hands callous, to feel his back ache with a burden; to eat bitter bread in the salt sweat of his face, to toil early and late to feed other helpless mouths; he wanted some one to be dependent upon him. And he wanted to die. God knows how many times he prayed for death. But God, sitting beside him there at the Beautiful Gate, was warding death away from him. For he was keeping him for strength, and life, and joy. And when the day came that the man had faith in the Name of Jesus Christ, all these things came to him as the sunrise comes to the longest night.

When they carried this man out of the house in the morning, where could they carry him? What was there for the poor and the helpless, the blind and the wretched; the weak and the sinful? There was the street, the highway, among the dogs and the vermin, in the storm, and the cold. And there were prisons—thousands of them. And dungeons; dark and cold and loathsome, for the unfortunates. And there were gallows, scaffolds, torture chambers; stakes, and fagots, for the burning of men and women and little children. Where could they carry this afflicted man? Where was there any place for the wretched, the unfortunante, the suffering?

In all this world of wealth and beauty there was but one place for him. The "Gate Beautiful." Where was that? There was but one in all the world of wisdom and statecraft and strength and compassion. That was at the house of God, opening inward into the church,— "My Father's House," Jesus loved to call it. And when they laid the cripple there, they laid him at the feet of Jesus. And all the long-deferred joy and sweetness and strength of his life came to him there. And from that day the world—the world that tolerates the Church, the world that despises it, the world that hates it, the world that persecuted it—learned to bring its poor and helpless and suffering to the doors of the Church. The only place in the world for hunger and neglect, for sorrow and sin, for heart-ache and love-hunger, for weariness and despair. "I am the door," said Jesus. That is the Gate which is called Beautiful.—Robert J. Burdette, D.D., in S. S. Times.

—When John Quincy Adams was eighty years old he met a friend on the streets of Boston who said, "Good morning! and how is John Quincy Adams today?" "Thank you," was the reply, "John Quincy Adams is well, sir, quite well. I thank you; but the house in which he lives at present is becoming dilapidated, is tottering upon its foundations; time and seasons have nearly destroyed it, its roof is pretty well worn out, its walls are shattered, it trembles with every wind; the tenement is becoming almost uninhabitable, and I think John Quincy Adams will have to move out soon, but he himself is quite well, sir, quite well."

O that there might enacted be
A duty on hypocrisy;
A tax on humbug and excise
On solemn plausibilities.

—Anonymous.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

Founded 1844 by Elder Daniel W. Kerr.
Organ of the Southern Christian
Convention.

Entered at the postoffice at Greensboro, N. C., as second-class matter.

Terms of Subscription.

One Year .....$1.50
Six Months ..... .75
Four Months ..... .50
Advertising rates given on application.

J. O. Atkinson, Editor and Publisher.

Important Notice.—As readers will see, The Christian Sun is now published at Greensboro, N. C. The office of publication there is 302½ South Elm Street. Our editorial office, however, remains at Elon College, N. C., to which all letters and communications to the Editor should be addressed, as heretofore.

THE WORTH OF THE WORTHLESS.

Evidently the world has not measured the might of its men as Heaven measures it. The world calls him mightiest, best and worthiest who is strongest, stoutest, cunningest. But Love does not measure men so. We saw a family in which were four strong boys, three comely, happy girls; and a helpless, hopeless one. Pity, yes, then wonder, and then admiration. That helpless one did not work any through the long days, built no fires, prepared no food, shared none of the family's chores. The worthless one of the home and a burden to the household, you say? Well hardly. That helpless one was the most petted, most cared for, most beloved of all that domestic circle. There was, sometimes, a harsh word for others: never an unkind word for the helpless one. There was often a choosing of the best seat, in the coolest place, or the warmest, in the easiest chair, or nearest the windows for self over other members of the household, save over that one who was helpless. The best was always given, and gladly, to the helpless one, and by every member of the family. The brothers were not jealous of her, but always zealous for her; her sisters did not envy her, but envied the one who made her happiest and most comfortable. And then I learned a lesson. The helpless ones are not burdens in the arms of Love; they are blessings to increase the depth and the display of love and of tenderness and of sympathy. The immeasurable worth of the worthless! They enlarge the sympathy, increase the tenderness and multiply the devotion of this present world beyond all computation.

The aged and worn and weary one in the home a burden? Well, hardly.

When did anybody fret at grandmother? When rebel against the wish and will of grandfather? A family's sympathy needed enlargement, a family's tenderness and devotion needed deepening. So God spared the grandparent, for a curse? Nay, verily, for a blessing and an everlasting benediction to the home.

How wonderfully God has wrought to make men's and women's hearts larger and their charities and sympathies deeper and broader. And the helpless ones are here to bless, not to burden. The world's worthless are often Heaven's worthiest.

DEDICATION OF UNION CHURCH.

Last Sunday, August 29th, was a truly great day in the history of Union Church, Union Ridge, Alamance Co., N. C. The occasion was that of the dedication of the new and elegant house of worship begun about a year ago, but now completed and paid for. The building is of concrete blocks presenting the appearance of stone. Everything speaks of solidity and durability. The seating capacity is about 400, the pews being quartered oak. Cathedral windows grace the building and gladden the eye. The entire cost of building and furniture was about $3,600. Rev. J. W. Holt is the beloved pastor who has helped in the good work of building well and wisely. Well could he say in presenting the church for dedication that it was one of the happiest days of his life. And his people are happy. They have worked together in great unison of spirit, of purpose and of purse. The church was all paid for prior to the day of dedication. On the day of dedication, an immense throng was present, a multitude such as the spacious building could in no manner accommodate. The services began at 11 o'clock. Rev. W. T. Herndon, a former pastor, offered the invocation. Rev. W. S. Long, D.D., read a suitable scripture lesson and led in appropriate prayer. A sermon was preached by The Sun's editor from Heb. 9:23 as a text, using as topic What Does the Sanctuary Signify?

Rev. J. W. Wellons offered the dedicatory prayer. Pastor J. W. Holt presented the church for formal dedication and the writer read the dedicatory formula. After an appropriate hymn the benediction was pronounced by Rev. A. F. Iseley. There was dinner in abundance and appropriate exercises in the afternoon. The writer, being under appointment elsewhere, had to leave before the afternoon services were concluded. It was indeed a glorious, a joyful day for this good people who love their church and serve their God with singleness of heart and purpose.

The following interesting sketch of the church was read publicly, and handed us by Rev. J. W. Holt, the pastor:

Religious worship first began to be held at this place in a small schoolhouse about 1796. Different denominations worshiped here together for some thirty years, or until 1826, and this fact gave the name to the place, Union Meeting House.

The movement to build a new and larger house, opened the question of denominational precedence, as there had been some conflict in appointments by preachers of different denominations. Members of the Christian Church gained the ascendancy and the organization affiliated with the Christian Church after that time. The church grew and soon became one of the strongest congregations belonging to the Christian Church. At the intersections of four of the leading public highways of the county, large congregations could easily assemble for worship.

The church was organized about 1823. Revs. Thomas Reeves, George Walker, Daniel Kerr, Jesse K. Cole and James Turner were among the first preachers to serve the church. The first church building stood in what is now the cemetery, and was built by another denomination, or by several denominations in consequence of which it was called Union Meeting House.

After the organization of the church upon the principles of the Christian Church, the old house was sold and another built where the present house now stands.

About 1852 this second building was enlarged and remained until torn down in September, 1908, to give place for the present building. This second building was erected by James and David Douglass, and afterwards enlarged and remodeled by George and James Denny. The land (two acres) on which the church stands was given by James Graham. E. F. Watson, Thos. Graham, Wm. Walker, George Maynard, Bennett Hazelle, Harrison Weedon, Chesley F. Faucette and Wm. Garrison, seem to have been among the first members.

The movement to build the present new church began in June, 1908.

Gus. A. Garrison suggested building the church of concrete blocks and his suggestion finally prevailed.

The old church was torn down about the middle of September, 1908, and the foundation of the new church was laid about the first of October, 1908, and the building was completed in May, 1909.

The following was read by Rev. W. S.

Long, a former pastor of the church, at the laying of the corner stone, May 29, 1909:

"For many years I served this church as pastor. My acquaintance with the people in the community began more than fifty years ago, when I was a child. I was here when Rev. Isaac N. Walter aided in a meeting in which more than 300 persons were converted. The church was surrounded with tents and people in the community for many miles around came with their families and friends bringing ample supplies of food, raiment, etc., and remained during the entire meeting, which lasted over a week." Meetings of this character were held once a year.

The preachers that from time to time had charge of this church, within my recollection, were Rev. Geo. G. Walker, Rev. R. G. Tinnen, Rev. A. G. Anderson, Rev. E. W. Beale, Rev. Alfred Iseley, Rev. W. T. Herndon, Rev. C. C. Peel, Rev. J. W. Holt, the writer. The deacons of this church when I first knew it, were Chelsey F. Faucett, Geo. Maynard, Sr., Thomas Graham and Harrison Walker.

One of the largest cemeteries to be found anywhere in this section lies just eastward from the church building. The graves of some of the most prominent persons connected with the Christian Church in the South are to be found here. Rev. Daniel W. Kerr, founder and first editor of The Christian Sun, is buried here. He helped to make the history of our church in this section. The Sun, which he first published in 1844, a few miles east of this place, still shines as the exponent of Christian principles. Many others did noble service in their day. It is hoped their mantles have fallen upon worthy shoulders.

The following committees had charge of the present building:

Building Committee—Rev. J. W. Holt, ex-officio chairman, L. H. Aldridge, E. W. Wilkins, L. H. McCauley, George Maynard, Albert Graham, Gus A. Garrison, John Wilkins, John Wallace, R. C. Diekey, W. J. Graham.

Finance Committee—W. J. Graham, Charles Aldridge, Preston Boland, Miss Nannie Kernodle, Miss Nonie Fitch, Miss Della McCauley, Miss Nannie Wilkins, M. L. Holton and Dr. Charles Walters.

—The Pennsylvania Railroad station, New York, is the largest in the world. It encloses 8 acres, and its walls are about a mile in length; 27,000 tons of steel, 15 million bricks, and 1,140 carloads of granite were used in its construction—yet only 13 months elapsed between the laying of the first and last stones.

SUFFOLK LETTER.

Vacation is near its close and will soon be a memory; but memory ministers to us in ways that present experiences cannot. What we have in memory is the accumulations of the past, as one's estate is his accumulations in material values. Storing the life with good deeds and good feelings will furnish future years with treasures that enrich us and on which no government can lay a tax to burden us. Vacation comes from a Latin word which means to be empty. A house unoccupied by any person or thing is vacant; and a position unoccupied is vacant; and vacation is the time unoccupied by a worker. It is the vacant time, the time when the worker is recreating. It will, therefore, be understood that a Suffolk Letter in vacation is an empty letter, that is, one void of thought or weighty matter.

My present vacation was interrupted by a three days' trip to Graham, Burlington, and Elon College. My wife accompanied me to see some old friends who are sick, some old kinfolks, and to be present at the marriage of my niece at Elon College. This was celebrated at 5:00 P. M. on Aug. 25. Jesse G. Bradshaw and Pattie Clendenin were married at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Clendenin, by this writer, in the presence of a group of kinfolks and personal friends, from Mebane, Haw River, Swepsonville, Graham, Burlington, Greensboro, and the country. The rooms were prettily decorated, Miss Bessie Barnes played the wedding march and accompanied her sister, Miss Linda Barnes, in a beautiful song. Cream and cake were served to the guests, and the bride and groom departed at six o'clock for Richmond, Va., and other cities. Love is perennial and flourishes in all climes. Marriage is honorable in all. Home is the unit in church and state. Heaven's benedictions rest on the marriage relation, and the occasion is one of solemn joy. It must appear to all that the marriage day is the beginning of the best or the worst in human experience; if it rests on love, it is pyramidal; if on a bargain, it may fall in a panic. Love endures all things, hopes all things, performs all things, and never fails.

My wife enjoyed a short visit to the orphanage, the New College Dormitory, and friends. One visit in Graham was especially tender. Dr. Geo. W. Long and his family were our nearest neighbors when we resided in Graham. He was our family physician. His wife has been greatly afflicted with rheumatism, unable to walk for several years. We took them by surprise and spent the night. Mrs. B. Adams, their daughter, and her husband and child, were there and we enjoyed a few hours together though the helpless condition of Mrs. Long appealed to our sympathy. We cannot tell what a day may bring forth. She was healthy and strong when we were neighbors in the early eighties. We also visited Rev. and Mrs. J. W. Holt who boarded with my wife's father and mother when Bro. Holt and his wife were first married. Mrs. Holt has been an invalid for several years and enjoyed our brief visit. "Afflictions though they seem severe are oft in mercy sent," and this world would be void of much that is tenderest and sweetest if no pain touched the delicate organs of being and no sorrow touched the more delicate chords of the heart. Suffering binds the world together and heals many a wounded spirit.

Next Monday I return to Suffolk and soon routine work will be resumed and the mill will run till the stream gets low or the bands wear out. W. W. Staley.

THE SOUL'S LONGING.

Nothing can satisfy the longings of the soul but God. The soul is immortal and therefore cannot be fed with earthly things. Riches, honor, ease, comfort and all that can be bestowed will fail to satisfy its hunger. It cries out for God. It must have communion with the unseen and the eternal. It seeks intimacy with the world above. What a thought! Each of us has domiciled in these bodies this spark of immortal life, and it longs for its freedom from entanglement. It will revel amid those surroundings where God is honored. It drinks in the beautiful and the sublime. It soars, and sings, and sings, and shouts, eager for its native element; can hardly be content with its present surroundings. Like the eagle in its cage, it longs for an upward flight. The highest mountain crag of earth will not answer for a perch. Beyond sun, moon and stars it must soar. Beyond where morning light shines, or evening shadows gather, it must ascend.

It is an impressive and awful thought, that as individuals we have this soul in custody. It is my soul. It has been committed to my care. Its welfare is in my hands. Shall I be true to the promptings of this spiritual nature, or recreant to my sacred trust? I feel the stir of vast enterprises around me. Within the struggle continues. I cannot repress these feelings. It is immortality that is asserting its rights. The soul seeks for help. It must have it. See to it, my brother, that it is properly fed.—W. G. H.

—The next gigantic land fraud to be exposed in Alaska, and involves 200,000 acres of rich coal-fields.

THE CHRISTIAN ORPHANAGE
DEPARTMENT.

CHILDREN'S CORNER.

The Band of Cousins.

Jas. L. Foster, Sec., Elon College, N. C.

"He that hath pity on the poor lendeth unto the Lord, and his good deed will He pay him again."—Prov. 19:17.

Reported last week .....$3,663.01
Monthly Dues:

T. J. Carpenter .....$ .05
Warner Carpenter ..... .05
Willie Jackson Everett .. .30
Helen W. Scholz ..... .40
Herbert Scholz, Jr. .... .30
Elizabeth Scholz ..... .30
William Staley Cheatham. .10
E. Tyree French ..... .30

Monthly S. S. Offering:

Rosemont, Va. .... 1.55
Henderson, N. C. .... 2.15

Special Offering:

Wood's Chapel Church .. 3.20
W. J. Estep (pictures sold) ..... 1.00
Whistler's Chapel Church. .50
James H. Holloway ..... 1.00
Mrs. Bettie Cates (on
Aug. support of children) ..... 3.00
Am't. 31st week ..... 14.20
Total .....$3,677.21

My Dear Children:—

Things are coming on as usual at our Home. Little Earl and Fred Cates are enjoying an outing with their mother and relatives near Burlington, Lela Canada with relatives in Durham. Francis Kissell is doing nicely. There will be no serious trouble from his fall for which we are deeply grateful. We have to report this week from Miss Ella Andrews, Burlington, N. C., 6 cakes soap, 1 card hair pins, 1 bunch shoe strings, 3 yds. of elastic, 3 handkerchiefs, 1 paper pins and a sack of "toe rags" which are particularly so at this time of the year, for the cry of "please tie up my sore toe" is continually heard in the land.

Very cordially,

Uncle Jim.

Aug. 19, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

Please excuse me for being late. I am in school. We are having some warm weather. Grandpapa and grandmama spent a few days with us this week. We certainly enjoyed their being with us. Well, Uncle Jim, our crop is not as good as it was last year. We have a fine school, and I certainly enjoy going to school. I will close for this time. 5 cts.

Your little cousin,

Warner Carpenter.

You are in school early, little man. Hope you will enjoy your work this year.

Malone, Ala., R. F. D. 2, box 16.
Aug. 20, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

Here I come with my letter. I hope I'll not be too late. I'm going to school. My teacher is Miss Nort West. I like her very much. I went home with grandfather and mother. Grandfather carried me through the cotton mill. I surely enjoyed my visit there. I love to go to see my grandparents. Enclosed you'll find five cents for my dues.

I'll close with wishes for you and the little cousins.

Bye bye. From

T. J. Carpenter.

Ah, my dear, you are blessed to have dear grandparents to whom you can pay delightful visits.

Holland, Va., Aug. 23, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

I am nearly three months behind, I have been taking the rounds, and having a good time, still I haven't forgotten the little cousins. I have been to see mama and stayed some time, then I went to see grandpa, and now I am back with uncle and auntie. I like to stay with them, but mama is going to take me home with her and put me in school with sister. I don't want to go, but uncle says I will learn fast. Enclosed please find thirty cents for three months.

Your little niece,

Willie Jackson Everett.

Do what mama and uncle and auntie wish you to do and you will never go far wrong.

Macon, N. C., Aug. 20, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

Enclosed you will find our dollar which takes us to August.

We hops you are enjoying this delightful season—believe it is about the best in the country—water melons, you know, and so on—and the "smell o' the woods"—well there's nothing like it. Uncle Jim, my (Herbert's) pig has gone out camping. Papa built him a "Bunga Loe" down in the woods by the water and he is having a fine time. I'm expecting to start my fortune from that pig, but you wouldn't think it to see him now. Sorry little Francis was hurt. Would like to know if the "Gold Dust Twins" have made any more "raids" lately.

Helen W. Scholz,

Herbert Scholz, Jr.

Elizabeth Scholz.

FITS CURED. NO CURE NO PAY

In other words you do not pay our small professional fee until cured and satisfied. German-American Institute, 249 Walnut St., Kansas City, Mo.

When in Burlington call at
T. H. STROUD'S

Store for DRUGS, SOFT DRINKS, and anything desired in drugs and Toilet Articles.

To Drive Out Malaria and Build up the System.

Take the Old Standard GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC. You know what you are taking. The formula is plainly printed on every bottle, showing it is simply Quinine and Iron in a tasteless form, and the most effectual form. For grown people and children. 50c.

The North Carolina

COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE AND MECHANIC ARTS.

The State's college for vocational training. Courses in Agriculture and Horticulture; in Civil, Electrical and Mechanical Engineering; in Cotton Milling and Dyeing; in Industrial Chemistry. Why not fit yourself for life by taking one of these courses? Address

D. H. HILL, President,

West Raleigh, N. C.

READ SOMETHING DIFFERENT.

The Greensboro Daily News, the new State paper, is worthy of a trial. Associated Press service, special correspondence, clean, newsy, liberal. One year $6.00; three months $1.50.

GREENSBORO DAILY NEWS,
Greensboro, N. C.

WANTED—Bookkeepers, Stenographers.

MORE BANKERS in the 16 States in which Jno. F. Draughon's 30 Colleges are located, indorse these Business Colleges than indorse ALL others. IF YOU want the EVIDENCE and want to RISE to the $10-a-day class, ask for FREE catalogue. Lessons BY MAIL if preferred. Draughon's Practical Business College, Raleigh, N. C.; A. M. FISHER, Mgr

RALEIGH & SOUTHPORT RY. Co.

P. M. A. M.	STATIONS.	A. M. P. M.
1:15	6:00 Raleigh	8:30 3:45
1:54	6:24 McCullers	7:52 3:03
2:11	6:59 Willow Sp'gs	7:37 2:45
2:23	7:14 Varina	7:27 2:34
2:35	7:26 Fuquay Sp'gs	7:19 2:25
2:55	7:45 Kipling	7:00 2:05
3:15	8:05 Lillington	6:41 1:44
3:41	8:28 Linden	6:15 1:17
4:30	9:15 Fayetteville	5:30 12:30

JNO. A. MILLS, Pres. and Gen. Mgr.

DR. J. H. BROOKS

Surgeon and Dentist
FOSTER BUILDING,
Burlington, N. C.

Thanks, dear children, for your money and nice letter. The "Dold Dust twins" are quiet these days, eating all the mice they can get (usually caught by the children). We hope as they grow older they will help more in getting rid of the little "mousies" that threaten to destroy our grain.

Lacey Spring, Va., Aug. 21, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

I enclose thirty cents for June, July, and August. We were sorry not to have had you at the Conference just held. Hope you will not wait till next August before paying the dear old Valley a visit.

E. Tyree French.

Hope to come before long, little man, and be able to see you and all the good people of the valley.

Franklinton, N. C., Aug. 20, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

I arrived at 3:30 this morning and weigh nine pounds.

I send a dime and I want to join the Band. William Staley Cheatham.

You are given a hearty welcome, little baby boy, here, as I know you are to parents, grandmother, grandfather, and aunts. May you always be interested in the work of caring for the Orphans as your dear people were before you.

NEWS ITEMS.

—Nebraska girls are taking advantage of the $3 a day rate of wages and going into the wheat-fields, where laborers are so greatly needed. They promise to do as much work as men or not take a cent.

—Since London has suburban cars and rapid transit by steam and electricity, there are 44,548 houses and tenements vacant in that city—so many have moved out to suburban sites.

—It may not have been superstition, but Mayor Busse, of Chicago, declared that he would not ask the new general superintendent of police to receive his appointment on Friday, the thirteenth of August.

—Caleb Powers, who was convicted and sentenced and served time and has recently been pardoned in connection with the Governor Goebel murder in Kentucky, has announced his candidacy for Congress. From chain gang to Congress—wouldn't that be a leap for you!

—Another record is broken in aerial navigation. Hubert Latham, the French aviator who failed completely in his attempts to cross the English channel, made 95.98 miles, remaining in the air 2:18 3-5, and going at the rate of about 58½ kilometers an hour. While 300 feet high he fought against a storm of rain

A remarkable offer by one of the leading ear specialists in this country, who will send two month's medicine free to prove his ability to cure Deafness, Head Noises, and Catarrh. Address Dr. G. M. Branaman, 1100 Walnut Street, Kansas City, Mo.

LADIES—Our plan offers you a dignified occupation—WE HELP YOU MAKE A SUCCESS. Results easily obtained—profits large. If you have not had experience we can teach you how to become a CAPABLE LADY AND A SELF-SUPPORTING WOMAN. Write for details. THE CHAS. KEIF COMPANY, Castleton, Tenn.

THE $2.00 RATE PORTSMOUTH-NORFOLK ON SUNDAYS WILL CONTINUE UNTIL SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 5TH.

The low Sunday rates of $2.00 from Raleigh to Portsmouth-Norfolk via the Seaboard which have proved so popular this summer will be continued on sale SUNDAYS, AUG. 22ND-29TH AND SEPTEMBER 5TH, 1909.

Tickets are sold for No. 32 leaving Raleigh Saturday night at 1:10 a. m. good returning only on No. 33 leaving Portsmouth at 9:00 p. m. on date of sale only.

The $2.00 rate carries to Franklinton $1.75 from Kittrell and Henderson, $1.50 Norfolk to Vaughan, $1.25 Littleton and Weldon.

A delightful Sunday outing and opportunity to visit the Virginia seashore resorts.

Special cars provided and train run in sections if necessary to comfortably handle the tourists.

C. H. GATTIS,
D. P. A., Raleigh, N. C.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup

Has been used for over SIXTY-FIVE YEARS by MILLIONS of MOTHERS for their CHILDREN WHILE TEething, with PERFECT SUCCESS. It SOOTHES the CHILD, SOFTENS the GUMS, ALLAYS all PAIN; CURES WIND COLIC, and is the best remedy for DIARRHOEA. Sold by Druggists in every part of the world. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Guaranteed under the Food and Drugs Act, June 30th, 1906. Serial Number 1098. AN OLD AND WELL TRIED REMEDY.

and wind and won out, establishing new records for speed and time endurance.

—Pellagra, the mysterious disease which is now attracting so much attention, is being found all over the South. The theory that the eating of unsound corn meal is the cause of the disease has much evidence in its favor, but is not by any means fully established as the only cause. However it would be well to let alone unsound corn products—musty

MEDICINE.

We prepare as good medicine, the very best medicine that the finest, freshest, most potent drugs and chemicals will produce when carefully and skillfully compounded by an expert prescription man—just such medicine as your physician means that you should have, medicine of the utmost possible effectiveness. May we prepare your medicine?

FREEMAN DRUG CO.,
Burlington, N. C.

RAISE MONEY FOR YOUR CHURCH.

We offer you an easy method. Send us a photograph of your church or your pastor, and we will send you 500 high grade post cards, with photograph on each card, and scripture verse if desired. Sell these cards at 10 cents each. When sold, remit us $20.00 and keep the balance. You can do this in a week. We will return photograph.

LAKE SHORE SUPPLY CO.,
225 Broad St., St. Joe, Michigan.

TULANE
UNIVERSITY of LOUISIANA
NEW ORLEANS

EDWIN B. CRAIGHEAD, LL. D., President.

Tulane University in all its departments, is located in the City of New Orleans, the metropolis of the South. Nine Departments, with twenty-three buildings. Modern dormitories, extensive laboratories, libraries, and museums.

Full Courses are offered in Language, Science, Engineering, Architecture, Art, Law, Medicine, Pharmacy, and Dentistry.

Separate Department for Women. Expenses low. Low dormitory rates. Next session of all departments, except N. O. Polytechnic, begins October 1st. Polytechnic opens November 1st. Send for catalogue. Address, R. K. BERRY, Secretary.

DO YOU WANT TO GO TO COLLEGE? If so we can help you. We have already put hundreds through college by means of our plan. Write today for full information regarding our offer of a free scholarship in any school or college. Address, Robert J. Sherlock, 29-31 East 22nd Street, New York City.

SPRING TIME.

The time for gardening is here and you need garden tools. We can supply you at lowest prices.

Poultry Wire.

The best assorted stock in the county. Four different styles and weight.

Come and See.

Remember plumbing and bath room fixtures, a speciality. You will find us on Davis St. third door from Post office. BURLINGTON HARDWARE CO.

meal, or any kind of bread or grits suggesting mold or decay in corn—but corn bread made of good meal is as safe and healthful as ever it was. One stricken with pellagra has but to patiently await death, for the medical world, as yet, has found no cure for this malady.

—One of the national resources which we most need to conserve is the man and woman on the farm, now, as for some years past, streaming into the cities.—Charlotte Observer.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEPARTMENT.

Exponent of the Young People's Convention,
Christian Church, South.

Watchword: A Christian Endeavor Society in Every Church; Teacher-Training and Organized Classes in Every Sunday School

Devoted to the interest and advancement of Sunday Schools, Teacher-Training, Organized Classes, Cradle Roll, Home Department, Christian Endeavor, Missionary Societies, Temperance Societies, Aid Societies, Civic Righteousness.

W. A. HARPER, Editor and Field Secretary, Elon College, N. C.

[All notes and contributions for this Department should be sent to W. A. Harper, Elon College, N. C., who extends the Church at large a cordial invitation to furnish him with any note of interest to our Young People, particularly information in regard to any forward steps, new movement, or new organization looking to progressive and effective service. All items under this Department not signed are by its Editor and Field Secretary.]

TEACHER-TRAINING—HOW?

If you want a teacher-training class in your Sunday school, you can have it, and very easily. Talk it over with the superintendent and the pastor. Go over the list of those who would be likely to make good teachers. Visit them in private and present the matter. Don't think you must have a large class. Two or three and yourself will be a good "starter." Decide when you will begin and at what hour you will meet. Then go ahead, ordering from Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Elon College, N. C., "Preparing the Teacher, Book One," price 50 cents to classes.

The time of meeting may perhaps give you most concern. If it is a class for prospective teachers, let it be a regular class in the Sunday school and meet at that hour. If it is a class for present teachers it may meet at such time and place as the members may elect. In a city church, Wednesday evening after the mid-week prayer-meeting might make a suitable time. Dr. Staley has his class to meet at this time. In a country church, just after the Sunday school when there is no preaching would perhaps be a good hour. Some classes rotate the place of meeting, sometimes holding their sessions in the church, sometimes at the parsonage, sometimes at the teacher's home, sometimes at the homes of the various members, but in this case let no refreshments be served in connection with the regular session. Refreshments you will need, to be sure; but not at the regular sessions, for they are for teaching and study and not for social enjoyment. Whatever the time or place of meeting, let the class be satisfied.

As to members for classes composed of prospective teachers, it will not be well ordinarily to admit those under sixteen years of age; but any suitable person of that age or over should be freely admitted. Here all who give promise to attend regularly unless hindered by some reason which they feel would be acceptable to their Lord and Master.

Take a lesson at a time. Require it to be studied in advance by all. Teach by the question method. Don't lecture. The lecture method has very little place in the teacher-training class. If it is ever used, let it be some outsider invited to speak to the class. Study hard yourself and your class will appreciate it and study too. At the end of each chapter, give an examination in writing and keep a record of the grades. At the conclusion of the book write to Prof. S. M. Smith, Norfolk, Va., for an examination for the class. Return the examination papers to him and he will award a diploma in the name of our Southern Christian Convention Sunday School Board to all who attain a grade of 70 per cent. on the examination.

Begin to organize your class at once. Don't wait till next week or next month, but begin now.

A WORD FROM BRO. ALBRIGHT.

The blanks sent out by this department to our pastors did not reach Rev. H. A. Albright until last week. He filled them out at once and returned them with the following encouraging words:

"I received your blanks last week, and I have filled them out the best I can. I am sorry that I am not able to do better.

"This movement is new to our people here, but they will take a part in it, I think, when they understand it better.

"We have a very good Sunday school at Pleasant Grove. A large number of young people attend the church and school there.

"I think the Young People's Movement is a good one, and your watchword well chosen, and I am willing to do what I can to aid in the good work. Best wishes to you in your work.

"H. A. Albright."

What are you doing in your fields of labor, brother pastors? Let us hear from you. Teacher-training, organized classes, and Christian Endeavor—surely they are worthy your consideration and your earnest prayers and heartiest co-operation.

THE FIRST PAID CONTRIBUTION.

The Western North Carolina Sunday School Convention gets the honor of paying the first money into the hands of the secretary of the Young People's Convention. It was sent by Rev. R. L. Williamson to me on Aug. 21, and mailed by me to Bro. D. Jennings Sipe, secretary, Greensboro, N. C. In sending the contribution Rev. R. L. Williamson says:

"I send herewith $4.20, amount collected at our Sunday school convention. There is yet $1.25 unpaid subscription. I made the appeal as earnestly as I could, but the Sunday schools were not well represented and our people are few near Poplar Branch; so we didn't have a very strong pull on the congregation.

"With best wishes,

"R. L. Williamson."

What are you doing, fond father or mother, to induce your son or daughter to train for Sunday school teaching? Can you get him or her to doing anything better? Pray; then lend a hand.

AN ENCOURAGING WORD FROM THE FAR SOUTH.

"Wadley, Ga., Aug. 20, 1909.

"Dear Brother: I am making an effort to organize the young people in my churches, and I ask that you send me some literature. I suppose I need the Christian Endeavor literature. I realize as never before that we must harness the talent of our young people for the church. The greatest necessity in my churches is a competent leadership, and in order to get that, we must begin to train our young people for this useful position, so I desire to organize in each of my four churches a Christian Endeavor society.

"Will you please give me information by return mail. I feel like I am losing opportunity.

"God bless you in your noble work.

"Fraternally,

"G. D. Hunt."

[Of course the literature was sent. Such requests always gladden our hearts. Let more such come.—Editor.]

TEACHER-TRAINING AND SUNDAY SCHOOL WINTER QUARTERS.

The following postal card message from Mr. E. T. Hines, president of the Elon College teacher-training class, who has this summer been doing most effectual work in the Sunday school line at Hines' Chapel and Monticello, will bring a ray of hope to many an ambitious superintendent whose Sunday school has been going into winter quarters in spite of him.

"McLeansville, N. C., Aug. 23, 1909.

"My Dear Professor: I have just finished grading some test papers. It was our first test in teacher-training. Four of my pupils made 100 per cent. Our Sunday school is usually in 'winter quarters' by this time of the year, but now we have a larger school than at any time during the year. I am sure that teacher-training is responsible for the great interest we now have in our Sunday school. E. T. Hines."

Edward Everett Hale used to say,

"Look out, not in;
Look up, not down;
And lend a hand."

Won't you lend us a hand in this Young People's work? I truly hope and pray so.

THE C. E. TOPIC FOR SEPT. 5—A FEW SUGGESTIONS.

Consecration Meeting.

Life Lessons for Me from the Book of Romans. Rom. 12:1-21.

The Letter to the Romans.—Written by Paul at Corinth during the three months spent there on his Third Missionary Journey, latter part of 56 A. D. or first part of 57 A. D. and sent to Rome by the Deaconess Phoebe. Paul anticipated a visit to Rome soon after he should go up to Jerusalem to deliver the alms to the saints there and he hoped by this epistle to win for himself a sympathetic entrance in the hearts of the members there. He lays great stress on the universality of the gospel and sets forth with telling vigor the way to salvation through Christ. In this letter Paul is at his best; many regard it as his masterpiece.

The Leader.—The leader will give in his remarks an idea of the contents of Romans and the facts suggested above. He would do well also to display the above outline in the place of meeting and have the endeavorers with open Bibles note the divisions as he calls them off and explains them. (Some might even care to write the outline in the margin of their Bibles.)

I. Salutation and Introduction. 1:1-15.

II. The Gospel of God for the World. 1:16-8:39.

1. The Subject Stated. 1:16-17.

2. Universal Sinfulness. 1:18-3-20.

3. The Message of Salvation. 3:21-31.

4. Its Proof. 4:1-5:21.

5. Its results. 6:1-8:39.

III. The Jews' Rejection of Salvation. 9:1-11:36.

1. Paul's Sorrow. 9:1-5.

2. The Original Word to Israel. 9:6-29.

3. Their Own Responsibility for Their Rejection. 9:30-10:21.

4. Their Rejection Partial and Temporary. 11:1-36.

IV. Practical Lessons for Daily Life. 12:1-15:13.

1. Self-dedication, Humility, Mutual Love. 12:1-21.

2. Obedience to Authority. 13:1-7.

3. Love the Fulfillment of the Law. 13:8-10.

4. Salvation at Hand. 13:11-14.

5. Respect for Convictions of Others. 14:1-15:13.

V. Conclusion. 15:14-16-27.

1. Personal Matters. 15:14-33.

2. Phoebe. 16:1-2.

3. Words of Salutation and Warning. 16:3-23.

4. Doxology. 16:24-27.

He will, of course, point out from what section and subdivision our lesson comes and offer practical suggestions on the same.

Books for Every Christian Home.

Do you know why you are a member of the Christian Church?

Do you understand what the church stands for and teaches?

If not, send and get a copy of the "Principles and Government of the Christian Church," just revised and greatly improved by order of the Southern Christian Convention.

Cloth binding per copy, post paid 50 cts.

Limp Cloth binding per copy, post paid 35 cts.

Paper binding per copy, post paid 25 cts.

Handsome Persian Morocco, with name in gilt $1.25.

The Southern Christian Convention also Ordered Another Book Published, PREPARING THE SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER TO TEACH, Edited by Profs. W. A. Harper, W. C. Wicker and W. P. Lawrence.

The book is neatly printed and bound and is invaluable to the Sunday-school worker, 236 pages.

Paper binding per copy, postpaid, 60 cts.

Cloth binding per copy, postpaid, 90 cts.

To Sunday-schools, paper binding 50 cts. cloth 75 cts.

Have You Read That Thrilling and Inspiring Story of His Own Life, MOTHER'S ANSWERED PRAYER, BY REV. P. H. FLEMING, D. D.?

Cloth binding, postpaid 55 cts.

All these books should be in your home. Order at once

For sale by, THE CHRISTIAN SUN, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

IT'S INTERESTING

to hear the different comments on different Shoes. All shoes have some good points; Style or comfort or service.

WALK-OVER SHOES

have all the good points; style and comfort and service and their price is the best point of all. $3.50, 4.00 & 5.00.

Foster Shoe Co., Burlington, N. C.

Dry Goods, Notions, Ready Made Clothing.

When in Burlington visit our large store, supplied always with the very best and latest styles and novelties.

Our Dry Goods are of latest designs, and our Ready Made Clothing cannot be surpassed in quality and price.

Come, See. Be Convinced.

B. A. SELLARS & SONS. BURLINGTON, N. C.

The Scripture Lesson.—A good variation would be to ask 21 endeavorers each to memorize a verse of the lesson and repeat it in the meeting, adding a sentence comment.

Question Spurs.—What is the need of salvation? From what do we need to be saved? Why can we not save ourselves? How only can we be saved? What is meant by trusting in works? What is justification by faith? How can we help save others? How may we know that we are saved? (To be answered by several.)

Scripture References.—Hand out to less experienced members:

What Sin Does for Man. Rom. 1:18-32.

Justification by Grace. Rom. 5:1-11.

Yielding to God. Rom. 6:12-23.

The Burden of the Flesh. Rom. 7:14-25.

Freedom of the Spirit. Rom. 8:1-17.

Fulness of Redemption. Rom. 8:18-30.

Suggested Program.

1. Song. Prayer.
2. Scripture by 21 endeavorers and comment.
3. Leader's remarks.
4. Song. Chain of Prayer.
5. Roll-call and response by Scripture reference, Question Spur, or any way desired.
6. Song. Prayers.
7. Pastor's Five Minutes.
8. Song. Offering. Mizpah.

D I E L .

TWO YEARS IN HEAVEN.

Two years ago this morning the angel of death came into my home and claimed the dearest and most needed one, the dear wife and mother. She had been untiringly intent on making home the most attractive place during all our married life. Her gentle, sweet spirited disposition, her charming smile and winning ways were like unto magnetic power. Her Christian influence was strong. Her self denial was great, taking great pleasure in making others happy. She was truly a preacher's wife, a faithful companion; a safe spiritual counsellor, a good mother who entertained the deepest interest in her children's best welfare. Her motherly devotion was shown in spending sleepless nights tenderly ministering to the objects of her love. She was anxious to bless and comfort others and wanted her children to be an honor to the home, the church, and the world. She loved her children to the end. The last thing she did was to minister to the wants of our little girl, dressed and fed her, then she laid herself upon her bed to die, making her last request that the little girl, "Ethel," be cared for. She soon fell asleep. As I write these lines I wonder if her spirit hovers round about me. I feel the blessed assurance that it will not be very long till I will meet her. I will always remember with gratitude the pleasant associations of other days. I felt like I have much in heaven to call me there; yet I have many very dear friends on earth. I will never forget the brotherly visit of Dr. W. W. Staley, who came into my home a few hours after the death angel came. I was never so glad to see this man of God. I feel like the Lord sent him by my home that sad day as a comforter. There yet lingers in my soul his brotherly counsel and his willingness to share our sorrows. I will never forget the splendid funeral sermon by Dr. J. U. Newman. Two years have gone and I feel her absence more keenly now than when she first went to her heavenly home. She is at rest while we yet remain for a short season, and then it will be a happy meeting on the glory gilded banks of eternal deliverance. "When we've been there ten thousand years, Bright shining of the sun, We'll have no less days to sing God's praise, Than when we first begun." What joy, what a blessed home. "Eye hath not seen nor ear heard, neither have entered in to the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love Him." Heaven is worth more than man can do in this life,

EASIEST AND QUICKEST LAID ROOF

CORTRIGHT

Any competent mechanic can make a better and more durable roof with CORTRIGHT METAL SHINGLES than the most expert roofer can make with any other material. Four artistic designs—every shingle made to fit into another—no solder, no seams, fewer nails, least cutting, little weight, less than half the work. Proof against water, fire, lightning, wind. Shipped painted or galvanized, and will outlast all other kinds of roofing. Write for our three free books and the name of your neighbor who has a Cortright Roof.

If we have no local representative at your place, write direct to
CORTRIGHT METAL ROOFING CO., 54 N. 23d St., Philadelphia

"The Oxford Teachers' par excellence"

JUST ISSUED!

OXFORD

Teachers' Bibles and S. S. Scholars' Bibles

With New 20th Century Helps arranged in One Alphabetical Order.

THE HELPS

The Christian Advocate, Nashville, says: "The helps are real helps. Unlike those in many of the cheap Bibles, they are not simply thrown together in hodge-podge fashion, but represent the freshest and ablest work of the foremost modern scholars."

Address OXFORD SUB,
Elon College, N. C.

Bible is the Bible of the World."

NOW READY!

SIX NEW EDITIONS

OXFORD

Black Faced Type BIBLES

Three on Oxford White Paper. Three on the famous Oxford India Paper.

Pearl 32mo. A wonderful clear type in a small-size book.

Minion 16mo. Ready October 1907. A model hand Bible.

Brevier 16mo. Large type in small compass. "A quart in a pint measure."

"The new Bible just published by the Oxford Press is, without doubt, the finest product of the kind ever given to the public."

ASK FOR THE

OXFORD EDITION

REMEMBER: That we guarantee satisfaction and sell to you cheaper than the publisher and dealers do. Our business is by mail and express and prices quoted are the prices of goods delivered to you. We can furnish you the Oxford, or the Holman Teacher's Bible at prices ranging from $1.35 to $4.00. Send for our catalogue or write us what you want. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN, Elon College, N. C.

Heaven must begin on earth, by loyalty to God's will.

"My heavenly home is bright and fair,
Nor pain nor death can enter there;
Yes, glittering towers the sun outshine,
That heavenly mansion shall be mine."

Two years in heaven is only the beginning of an eternity. It will be glory, glory, forever. May some sad soul be comforted as you read this. You will meet your loved ones, I will meet mine, and with some of us it will not be long. Who will be next to go to that long home?

S. B. Klapp.

Greensboro, N. C., Aug. 19, 1909.

Barrett.

Jas. H. Barrett, infant son of Jos. H. Barrett, of Waverly, was born Aug. 14, 1907, and died Aug. 19th, 1909, aged two years and fifteen days.

He had been ill for two weeks with Cholera Infantum which developed into Meningitis. All that faithfulness of father and mother and friends could do would not avail. God in his infinite wisdom saw fit to take the little one unto Himself and we bow in humble submission to His will.

James was a very bright little boy and a very great comfort to his father and mother. We cannot say that James is not still a comfort. They have the blessed comfort that "It is well with the child," and that they have a tie to heaven now which perhaps they never knew before, and even these afflictions may work unto them an exceeding greater weight of glory. Their loss is his gain and to Him who doeth all things well we bow and say, "Not my will but thine be done." The remains were interred in the Waverly Cemetery Aug. 21, 1909.

H. E. Rountree, Pastor.

Voorhees.

Elinor Pearl Voorhees, third daughter of Aloy and Emma Voorhees, was born at Somerset, Ohio, Feb. 4, 1903, and died July 3, 1909, aged 6 years, 4 months and 29 days.

She had been ill with an incurable malady for some time, and with the hope of prolonging her life, the parents moved from Ohio to Va., but God in His wisdom saw fit to take her to Himself and they bow in humble submission to Him.

In disposition, she was sweet and winsome, and to her parents and friends she was always a joy and comfort.

She leaves to mourn her departure, a father, mother, two brothers, four sisters, and a number of near relatives and friends. Their loss is but her gain, for it is believed that she is happy with the loved ones gone before, and to Him who doeth all things well, we say, Thy

[EDUCATIONAL.]
MEDICAL COLLEGE
of the STATE OF SOUTH CAROLINA

CHARLESTON, S. C.

Session Opens October 1st, 1909.

Medicine and Pharmacy.

Pathological and pharmaceutical laboratories recently enlarged and fully equipped. Splendid Clinical facilities offered by the

ROPER HOSPITAL

one of the largest and best equipped Hospitals in the South, with 218 beds and free dispensary service. Nine appointments each year for graduates. For catalogue, address

ROBERT WILSON JR. M. D., DEAN,

Corner of Queen and Franklin Sts.

Charleston, S. C.

STEWART HOME AND SCHOOL FOR FEEBLE-MINDED CHILDREN AND ADULTS.

Expert training, mental development, and care by specially trained teachers, and experienced physician who has devoted his life to the study and treatment of nervous children. Home influences. Delightfully located in the blue grass section of Kentucky. 100 acres of beautiful lawn and woodland for pleasure grounds. Elegantly appointed building, electric lighted and steam heated. Highly endorsed and recommended by prominent physicians, ministers and patrons.

Write for terms and descriptive catalogue. Address
DR. JNO. P. STEWART, Supt., Box 4, Farmdale, Ky.

The Rural Mail Comes Once a Day

THE TELEPHONE keeps you in touch with neighbors, friends and the city every minute of every day. Progressive farmers throughout the South are installing telephones in their homes and connecting with the Bell System. The cost is low; the service is satisfactory.

Write today to the nearest Bell Telephone Manager for pamphlet, or address

Farmers' Line Department

SOUTHERN BELL TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH CO.

19 SOUTH PRYOR STREET, ATLANTA, GA.

will, not ours, O Lord, be done. The remains were interred in the Spring Hill Cemetery Sunday, July 4, 1909.

H. E. Rountree.

Fowler.

Adolphus Fowler passed away in Spencer, N. C., Aug. 18, 1909, aged 60 years. He was a son of Rev. Thomas J.

Fowler and a great grandson of Rev. James O'Kelley.

Rev. Thomas J. Fowler was a prominent and most useful minister in the Christian Church and is remembered by a large number of the people. His sons were William James, Thomas, John, and Adolphus, and his daughters Artelia, Rebecca and Mary.

Adolphus married Fannie Denny and she and five children survive to mourn the loss of husband and father. Bro. Fowler has been for many years a member of the Christian Church, and died in great peace. He was a locomotive engineer and was ever faithful and true to his calling.

While a child I met the family of Rev. Thomas J. Fowler and grew up with his sons Thomas, John, and Adolphus. We were friends in our boyhood and through life. They were always honest, brave, and true. We buried our dear brother in Burlington, N. C.

W. S. Long.

Ayscue.

Whereas, it has pleased God in his goodness and loving kindness to take out of our midst Bro. C. E. Ayscue, a charter member and deacon of Liberty (Vance), Christian Church, founded in 1857 or '58:

Resolved 1st—That we be submissive to the will of God, believing He doeth all things well.

Resolved 2nd—Thanking God that in the early Christian life of Bro. Ayscue He led him by the Holy Spirit to be the instrument in building a church at this place, believing that much and lasting good has been accomplished thereby.

Resolved 3rd—That we hereby express to the family our heartfelt sympathy and pray that when their work on earth is ended they may meet their parents in that land where there will be no tears.

Resolved 4th—That a copy of these resolutions be placed on our church minutes and sent to the Christian Sun for publication, and a copy be sent to the family of the deceased.

- B. F. Ayscue,
  - A. T. Grissom,
  - J. J. Bridgers,
  - T. W. Lassater,
  - E. M. Newma,
- Committee.

DRINK

VITA SPRING

(Alkaline Chalybeate)
MINERAL WATER

For Stomach, Liver and Bowels.
Vita Spring, Shelton, S. C.

Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Is paying out and investing in both Virginia and North Carolina more than it receives from these States.

New business in Virginia, 1908,
$2,147,800
Larger than any other company.

Gain in insurance in force in Virginia, 1908,
$1,374,975

60 per cent more than the next largest.
T. ARCHIBALD CARY, General Agent for Virginia and North Carolina,
Richmond, Virginia.

During 1909

(As in previous years)

We want you in our business, for we have what you want in your homes—the very best, most substantial and handsome furniture at bottom prices. We are also the undertakers.

Burke Furniture and Coffin Company

BURLINGTON, N. C.

Southern Railway

Operating Over 7,000 Miles of Railway. Quick Route to all Points North, South, East and West.

For Speed, Comfort, Courteous Employees, travel via the Southern Railway. Rates, Schedules and other information furnished by any of the undersigned.

- R. L. VERNON, Trav. Pass. Agt., J. H. WOOD, Dist. Pass. Agt.,
Charlotte, N. C. Asheville, N. C.
- S. H. HARDWICK, P. T. M., W. H. TAYLOE, G. P. A.,
Washington, D. C.

Elon College.

Co-educational. Established 1890.

Thorough College courses leading to M. A., A. B., and Ph. B. degrees. Strong and experienced Faculty with highest University training. Good Library, Reading Room, Laboratories, Literary Societies. Excellent Music, Art, Elocution and Business Departments. Diploma from Elon admits to graduate departments in the highest universities.

Beautiful and healthful location, 17 miles east of Greensboro on Southern Railway. Best moral and religious influence. No hazing. New students met by reception committees from young people's Christian organizations connected with the college. Good equipment. A large new dormitory, with modern conveniences, has recently been built to meet the requirements of growing patronage.

EXPENSES UNUSUALLY MODERATE. FALL TERM OPENS SEPT. 1ST.

For catalogue or further information, address

EMMETT L. MOFFITT, LL. D., President.

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

Kinkade's Bible Doctrine

EDITED BY REV. S. Q. HELFENSTEIN
With Helpful Explanatory Notes.

This book contains enough dynamic truth to shatter tons of erroneous theology. It holds the key to many difficult passages of Scripture, is written in a sweet spirit, and teems with the light of truth. Read it, and catch some of the spirit of the pioneers of the Christian Church.

Limited edition, 380 pages, bound in beautiful brown cloth, gold titles, and sold for only $1.00. Send your order at once to

J. N. HESS, Agent

Dayton, Ohio

The Christian Sun.

In Essentials—Unity, in Non-Essentials—Liberty, in All Things—Charity.

ESTABLISHED 1844.

GREENSBORO N. C., WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 8, 1909 VOLUME LXI. NUMBER 35.

REV. T. M. McWHINNEY, D.D., LL.D.

(Address delivered by Rev. J. J. Sumnerbell, D. D., on July 4th, 1909, at Franklin, Ohio, at the funeral of Dr. McWhinney).

"Among the groves that were God's first temples," in a sweeter sense than possible to the forest of birch or eypress, sycamore or hemlock, for many years there towered among us one who everywhere attracted attention, like a "tree planted by the rivers of water, bringing forth his fruit in his season." Although the snows of nearly 88 winters had fallen on his branches, his unwithered leaves bore the burden with dignity, and preserved their freshness like the cedar of Lebanon.

To-day I shrink from saying, He has fallen: for the gentle way in which Dr. McWhinney sank to the earth, does not suggest to us the crash of the maple or pine, yielding to the cruel woodman's axe; or the fierce wrath of the tornado.

To Dr. McWhinney the death angel came with a smiling face and a kind caress. Though his touch was cold, when he took Dr. McWhinney by the hand, he did not seize him roughly, nor hurriedly compel him to go. He lingered and kissed the hands he fondled, breathing gently on them, until they were chilled; and Dr. McWhinney himself noticed that he was being summoned from earth, by discovering that his hands were no longer fully under the control of his own brain. Some one seemed to be drawing him away. The death angel laid a hand here and there, he touched so softly, so sweetly, so winningly, indeed, that Dr. McWhinney, looking now to earth and then to heaven, looking now to the death angel and then to his loved ones, wife, son and daughter, looking backward and forward, looking now to the death angel and now to the Savior, began, as he said, to "pack his trunk" for his departure from the earthly home. Did you ever notice how Jesus, after he rose from the dead, lingered about the places he had frequented before, as if he loved his disciples, and desired more interviews and association with them, before he ascended to his Father? Dr. McWhinney left many things behind him; for he was interested in the world, he looked fondly at them; but he took with him only the things he needed over there. He "packed his trunk" without hurry, and told his friends that he was going away to his "angel home," as he called it, and with composure accompanied the death angel, who had been kindly inviting him for months.

While this negotiation with death was going on, he talked, without dismissing the chilly messenger, with his friends about his plans, and expressed to them his willingness to depart. He said he realized, as never before, the full meaning of the sacred words, "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on thee." Sitting on his lawn he said such words to me; but in the same interview he made it plain that he was not tired of life on earth. He still was willing to work. In a later interview, when he was describing to me the fondling and embraces of the death angel, and trying to make me see that soon he must go with the messenger, he told me that religion was to him a support in these times of weakness. It was evident that he was not enamored with death; but rather with life: and he fondly drew the prince of life, Jesus, between himself and the death angel, as a shield against death's chilly breath; and made me believe that he looked to Jesus as the highest manifestation of divinity that could be presented to humanity.

Therefore today we do not chiefly feel that this is a "sad occasion," even though we mourn over the departure of this mighty man, this father, this brother, this fellow minister and worker. His going away seemed so natural. His decline toward the last seemed so peaceful. God had given him on earth nearly a score of years more than the common old man's three score and ten, and considered it enough, and sent for him, for his work was done. He went down into the valley and shadow of death steadily, slowly, looking with smiles back at his son and daughter, and with sweet words rehearsing the tender ministrations of his devoted wife;—all of his dear ones stretching out toward him their loving arms, in vain calling him back; but he knew that God had been still better to him, God had sent for him, God wanted him, and he went on calmly, though he loved his dear ones; and at last they saw him step into the waters, comforted and guided by the rod and the staff of his "Good Shepherd."

Thus the death angel lost his grip on Dr. McWhinney, even when he seemed to be getting the firmest hold. Thus the breathing of the Divine Spirit resisted, toned down, and warmed with the fragrance of paradise the chill breath of death.

But although in the interviews which I had with him before his departure, while in his presence I would be dominated by his wonderful spirit of life, of hope, of joy, of his striking mentality and human personality, when I would go away, and ponder, I would think of the monarch of the forest yielding to the beating of the years; and the evergreen tree supporting with more and more difficulty the snows of many winters.

The old tree had borne its fruit, its leaves had fallen, and its branches seemed to be withering. And yet, how the symmetry lasted to the very end! The trunk was not hollow; the branches were not broken; the roots had not been strained from the earth by mighty winds; the bark had not been gnawed away by hungry beasts; and its symmetry by hungry beasts; and its symmetry. The old tree was simply dying from old age. It still towered upward above its fellows; its shadow was still a comfort to timid weak ones; it still stretched out its arms to shelter the oppressed against the burning heat. It was a kingly old tree to the very end. Stately and dignified, it sank gently to earth, when its time came to die.

Once, in riding along a country road in New Jersey, I suddenly came into full view of a mighty oak. The farmer had cut away the surrounding forest, and the great tree stood alone. I stopped my horse and looked and looked. The thick trunk, the powerful limbs, the wide spread of branches, each one strong enough for the keel of a battle-ship; what a wonderful declaration of power!

Once, in an eastern city, I saw, half a square ahead of me, in the very middle of the sidewalk a large elm standing. The city authorities had left it unharmed, because of its grateful shade,

(Continued on page four).

GOING, OR COMING, HOME.

There is a natural instinct in everything for home life and associations. Strange is it too, that everything can readily find the way back home after being away for a season. This is noticeable in animals and in birds. And the older men, animals, or fowls get, the more they love to stay at home. There are many who know this by experience. If any have not noticed these things, just a little observation will show them. It was truly said a long time ago, "Home, dear home, we never can forget. Friends, dear friends, we often there have met.

Worn by care or pierced by grief,
Home has afforded sweet relief."

As much as has been said, sung, and written upon this subject, it has not all yet been said, sung, and written. Nor have precious thoughts and delightful memories of it ceased to grow and flow through the soul, filling it with perpetual gladness. It has lost none of its zest and sweetness, and rings with echoing gladness into willing ears as new and fresh as ever.

The busy, rushing throngs passing in so many different ways are moving homeward. Coming home—going home are dear words to them, and all up and down the public and private ways of the world there is a glad coming home—a joy which is inexpressible. It trembles in the heart with emotions too glad to tell by words. Only actions and looks can portray the inexpressible pleasure of such superlative feelings. Travelers, visitors, fathers, mothers, brothers, sisters, acquaintances, friends, lovers, relatives, business folks from long and short distances are coming home. Yes, coming home today—tonight—tomorrow; or soon coming home. Many a good-bye is said, a few words, some tears, sad looks mingled with glad ones, and they are speeding away round the curve or surging on the pathless deep—homeward—homeward bound. Amid this going home to and from, thousands will take their last passage. They are going to their earthly homes for the last time. There are many at home awaiting their coming with anxious look. The meeting will be pleasant and happy. They will appreciate home as never before. What they have seen of the greatness and grandeur of this beautiful world has delighted them. The oceans—the lakes, rivers, mountains, landscapes, the great cities, the great and cultured people they have met and many other things both seen and heard have wonderfully impressed them, and the old home and its surroundings may look common in comparison, but still there is a restful, natural, helpful, comfortable feeling about the dear old home they did not find away. When you sit once more upon the throne of your home you feel happier than a king. When you get home you unbuckle, unlock, lay aside your visiting formality, the style of the times, putting off assumed expressions and adjusting home-life impressions, you feel just natural and good.

Your style of manners and your education may not suit the exacting so well, and you have to be more careful and particular while in their company, but the old folks and the young folks at home know how to take you as you are, and better understand your ways, means and fashion.

We must not forget that there are many at home who could not get away. There were different causes which kept them at home. Some were poor—they did not have the means, nor wealthy relatives and friends to take them to the seashore, the springs and other places of prominent interest. They gladly would have gone had they been able. It is convenient to some to have means at command. Others are too old and infirm to stand the strain and rush incident to traveling. They have nearly completed the journey, and are waiting patiently to take the passage over the great dividing line. Many impulses of passion, good or bad, perhaps both, have engaged their time—but they are looking toward the end for the immortal crown and everlasting prize. While in this vale of poverty they are looking for enduring riches in a country where they never get poor nor grow old. Many were sick, diseased, paralyzed and could not go. Let us not forget these ones left at home, for these are they who need our prayers, help, and sympathy. These home-stayers are heroes of patience and self-denial. Deal with them gently—talk to them kindly. Have patience with them as they bear their heavy burden of affliction. Let all of the sick, poor, unfortunate ones be cheered with the hope of living with the immortal King who is all and in all.

J. T. Kitchen.

Windsor, Va.

ILLUSTRATIONS.

Vanity Victimized.

The cat had watched the little hole in the barn for hours at a time every day, but the wise mouse had watched the cat, and so he had never been caught.

But one night, when the moon was hidden, the mouse sauntered out in search of food. It was so dark that he did not see the cat, who sat behind a bush, watching for him. In less time than it takes to write it, the cat had seized the poor little trembling mouse.

"Now I shall eat you," threatened the cat, as he put the mouse down on the ground with one paw on his back, that he might not escape.

"Very well," sighed the wise mouse, "but will you first grant me one request?"

"Yes," replied the cat, "I will do that, as it is customary to grant last requests to people who are about to die. What is it?"

"I have often listened to your singing and greatly admired it. Will you please sing one song to me before you eat me?"

"With pleasure," replied the cat, for he was very vain about his voice. So he straightened himself up and sang with all his might. He forgot all about the wise mouse until he finished his song, and when he looked around for the applause he expected the mouse had vanished.

A Gift That Counted.

A little boy proposed to put a penny in the box for missions. His sister told him it would be useless to make so small a gift, saying it would never be noticed among the large contributions of others. He gave the penny, however, and when the collectors reported a collection of £6 5s. 1d., he whispered to his sister: "There! that's my penny; you said it was so little it would never be noticed, and the gentleman has told the whole congregation about it!"

The penny given for God always counts, even when it may not be counted.

Forgotten Debts.

The Rev. Frank E. Boren writes: I once heard an English lecturer, a resident of this country, tell the following personal incident: His little son, who was born in this country, was studying United States history in school. One day, after a lesson about the revolutionary war, he came home exultingly exclaiming, "Say, pa, we licked you Britishers, didn't we?" It is a noble principle which identifies one's self with the country or church of which one forms a part, and which claims a share in its glories; but there is also a touch of human nature here which takes undue credit to oneself. In the enjoyment of life's blessings we forget the price which has been paid for them by the toils and sacrifices of the past. Ours is the heritage of the past.

Why I Should Obey God.

The other day our little four-year-old daughter was naughty, and had to be punished. Her mother sought to impress on her mind that she should do always what her papa said. "No," she answered, "I will not do everything papa will tell me; if he tells me to go out and cut off my finger with the lawn-mower, I will not do that." That was good philosophy. And what a fine opportunity to teach the reasons for true obedience. I love my child, and would demand no such thing as that. So it is. God loves us, and we need not fear to obey him, for what he bids us do is only right and good for us. No harm ever comes to a human being who does according to the commandments of God.

Death a Transformation.

For the Christian death has been "abolished" (2 Tim. 1:10 R.V.). How this can be is suggested in parable by little Annunziata, in the late Mr. Henry Harland's "My Friend Prospero:"

"You ask me what is death? It is exactly like a transformation scene. At the pantomime the scene was just like the world. There were trees, and houses, and people, common people, like any one. Then suddenly, click! Oh, it was wonderful! Everything was changed. The trees had leaves of gold and silver, and the houses were like fairy palaces, and there were strange lights, red and blue, and there were great garlands of the most beautiful flowers, and the people were like angels, with gems and shining clothes. Well, you understand, at first we had only seen one side of the scene; then click! everything was turned round, and we saw the other side. That is like life and death. Always, while we are alive, we can see only one side of things. But there is the other side, the under side. Never, so long as we are alive, we can never, never see it. But when we die—click! It is a transformation scene. Everything is turned round, and we see the other side. Oh, it will be very different—it will be wonderful! That is what they call death."

Making New Conquests.

Little Holland with its 5,000,000 people living safely behind their wave-washed dykes, is about to make a new conquest from its old enemy, the ocean. Already Dutch engineers have begun the tremendous task which will result in turning the Zuyder Zee into 1,400 square miles of dry land. Where the old great Dutch war fleets gathered, where now 4,000 fishermen sink their nets, there will rise happy villages, broad pastures, poplar-bordered roads, and sleepy canals—new farms and homes for 50,000 citizens of Holland.

New conquests ever await the enterprising and valorous spirit. There are stretches of territory in life, in the matter of learning, of moral enrichment, and of usefulness, now overlaid and preempted, that may yet be redeemed and people, if only the attempt be made. The process of pumping out, however, must precede the later task of filling in.

Adaptation.

Mr. J. T. Trowbridge had written a story of New England life to The Atlantic Monthly which was accepted and the proof-sheets sent him, when he received a note from Mr. Underwood, the manager, saying that Lowell had decided, upon reflection, that "it couldn't go in." "In twenty minutes (says Trowbridge) I was confronting Underwood in the Winter street office. 'Can't go in what?' I said, 'the next number?'"

"'It can't go into the magazine at all!'"

"'But it has gone in! Here are the numbered pages! You don't put rejected articles in type do you?'"

He went on to say that Lowell's objection was made from a moral and not a literary point of view. The story was transcribed and sent to Harper's Magazine, promptly accepted and published. Soon after its publication, Underwood met Charles F. Briggs, Lowell's confidential friend, in New York, and he said:

"What you want in The Atlantic is more good story writers."

"We can't get them," said Underwood. Briggs then asked:

"Who is the writer of 'Nancy Blynn's Lovers,' can't you get him?'"

Underwood thereupon told him how that story had been accepted for The Atlantic, put into type, and finally cast out by Lowell.

"You incomparable idiots!" Briggs ejaculated. "Do you go in when it rains?'"

One may fail here and succeed there. A mortifying declination may be followed by a proud acceptance. "Try again" is good counsel.

One may err, too, in judgment, not recognizing a good thing when he gets a chance to choose it.

The Grace of God.

The Baptist Examiner calls attention to a very vital truth, and one we all need constantly to remember: "Orchard, whose tale of horror in the court at Boise City is hardly equalled in the annals of crime, is not a fiend, but a man. A man—but alas! how fallen! Made in the image of God, but transformed by sin into the image of Satan. Said John Newton, on seeing a drunken man reeling along the street, 'But for the grace of God, there goes John Newton.'" Oh, how we ought to thank God that His grace has kept us, and that we are not as the fiendish wretch in Boise City. "For by grace are ye saved, through faith; and that not of yourselves; it is the gift of God" (Eph. 2:8).—Homiletic Review.

SHORT SERMONS REWARDED.

We trust that there may be no haste on the part of preachers generally to emulate the example of a Methodist preacher of New York State, who recently received a gift or a legacy of a farm, said to be worth seven thousand dollars, from an admiring parishioner because he preached short sermons. The pressure of recent years for short sermons has accomplished its object for the most part. The rule is well observed, and when there is a failure congregations know how to apply the necessary discipline. There is always a good and wise deacon to voice the warning, and empty pews soon reinforce him if he is not heeded. The peril that lies in this pressure consists in the habit of measuring sermons by the clock. No one can really say by this kind of measurement what a short sermon is; and no hearer will ever find one too long from a preacher who has power enough to make a congregation forget the clock.

Not short sermons, but better preaching is the need of the hour. Even at that there will not be admiring parishioners and seven-thousand-dollar farms enough to go around.—Homiletic Review.

LOVING OTHERS INTO THE TRUTH.

We need more than a clear knowledge of the truth in order to get others to see the truth. We may even know the truth and live the truth, and yet utterly fail in winning others to live that truth for themselves. To knowing and doing, we must add love: a loving confidence in others, freely and constantly expressed; a quick appreciation of their best points, and a loving blindness, most of the time, to their weaker and unworthy side. Only thus can we lead them on into the knowledge and the acceptance of the truths that they lack and need. If we would effectively close the door to their recognition of truths that we know they lack, all we need to do is to tell them of their lack, to show our disapproval of this, and to keep after them on every possible occasion in critical determination that they shall realize their failure and adopt our course. Probably no human being that ever lived responded to this course of treatment. Yet it is mistakenly administered by many of the best-meaning followers of Christ, who nevertheless fail to follow their Master in the love without which they themselves would never have been won to him.—S. S. Times.

—Prayer will make a man cease from sin, or sin will entice a man to cease from prayer.—Bunyan.

Rev. T. M. McWhinney, D.D., LL.D.

(Begun on page one).

the comfort given by its spreading branches over street, sidewalk, and lawn.

Once, in a western prairie, thickly settled and cultivated, as my train was slowly crawling along, I gained full sight of a wonderful poplar, so high that its upper twigs seemed to try to kiss the clouds.

Once, in Florida, passing along the banks of the St. Johns River, I saw a palm tree, so symmetrical in all its proportions, and so different from the style of our northern trees and yet so thoroughly satisfying to the sense of beauty, that I began to suspect that I must revise my canons of grace.

And then, as I thought of my other experiences, it seemed to me that my notions of trees were hardly along the lines of God's ideas. What must be God's conception of the tree?

When I thought of that mighty oak in New Jersey, it seemed as if a tree meant power.

When I thought of that cool elm in New England, it seemed as if a tree meant shade and comfort.

When I thought of that lofty poplar in Iowa, it seemed to me that a tree meant ambition.

When I thought of that palm tree in Florida, it seemed to me that a tree meant grace and beauty.

But trees are some of God's ideas, growing. God is not limited to one idea, in building a tree; nor is He limited to one idea, in building a man. His architecture has wonderful variety. God's idea of a tree is not all shown in one kind. The dominant suggestion of either species I mentioned is not the dominant suggestion of all. Of those four wonderful trees, there was only one emphatic quality that was common to them all. But they all did have one quality in common. It was neither strength, nor shade, nor ambition, nor grace.

But they were all attractive. That was their supreme quality. The poet says,

"All nature feels attractive power,
A strong, embracing force;
The drops that sparkle in the shower,
The planets in their course."

Attraction is a prevailing element in the universe. Our heavenly Father is so full of love, that he breathes it out everywhere; and so many things, in which he expresses his ideas, attract. God is love; and the things that are characteristically his are loving; that is, attractive.

We all recognize the strength, the comfort, the ambition, the grace of Dr. McWhinney. But that quality of his which made him so important a factor in the world was his attractiveness.

This trait gave him great influence as a pastor. As a lecturer it insured him applauding audiences. As an editor, though the current of attractiveness was somewhat broken by the non-conductors of paper and ink, his attractiveness was widely felt. It also broke down the barriers that cold type and book binding interposed between the author and his readers. McWhinney's attractiveness personally made him a powerful leader in a parliamentary assembly. And as a polished orator it gave him the control over congregations that listened to him with delight, as he discoursed on the "love of God." I remember hearing him thirty and forty years ago, spell-bound under his eloquence, and feeling that before me were gifts and genius that would lift the Senate of the United States to a higher level, and charm the House of Commons to voting against party creeds. His personal attractiveness uniformly magnified the spell of his eloquence.

But McWhinney's attractiveness and success in life were not the undeserved effect of an unconscious natural quality. To say such a thing would be absurd, as well as unappreciative. McWhinney had wonderful tact. This he cultivated, and it became a power. He used it in Christian ways, and sometimes accomplished results that were Christian in their bearings. Let me illustrate by an incident:—

When my father died I hurried from my eastern home to the place of mourning, at Yellow Springs, Ohio. A popular minister of our church went in with me into the study where the body of my father was lying. Standing by the side of the coffin, as we looked down, he said, "How savage he looks!" Even in my overwhelming grief, the words shocked me with the falsity of their statement, the cruelty of the heart that could utter them at such a moment, and the lack of tact it manifested. My father's face, even in death, was sweet and loving. In life he had been the most affectionate and self-sacrificing father possible. - - - Twenty years before that time, Brother McWhinney and I had been sent from a conference held not a hundred miles from where we are gathered today, to a neighboring village to hold service. I was to preach. He conducted the services. It is not necessary to say that the comparatively young preacher, in the presence of one whom he deemed the finest orator possible, did not reach an effectiveness with the subject that it deserved, and even demanded. On the ride back, Dr. McWhinney made no allusion to the young preacher, and made no expression of criticism. Instead, he skilfully introduced the name of my father into the conversation, paid him the sweetest compliments, and said some things, the very words of which I have not forgotten, and remember literally to this day. Afterward I reviewed the circumstances, and reached the conclusion that Dr. McWhinney was speaking those delightful words to soothe the preacher of the evening whose efforts had not done the good they should have done. How delicate! How tactful! He led me along in most attractive ways, to forgetfulness of unequal work. He knew I honored my father, and loved him, and used that knowledge to turn the ride into a joy.

Is it any wonder that when Dr. McWhinney was in the active ministry he was surrounded by admirers who almost regarded his ministry as sacred?

But it must not be understood that Dr. McWhinney was a man who bent the trunk, or limb, or branch of his growth to conform to habits of men, or to prejudices which he did not share. Notwithstanding that tactfulness which usually put him on the side of the majority in those conflicts in which he was a champion; notwithstanding when he was defeated he seemed to drop the struggle immediately; and although he seemed to be with everyone appreciative and sympathetic, he was one of the most determined men, most positive men, most stubborn men I ever saw. Behind a smiling face in the hour of defeat, there rested the full determination to succeed later. He could afford to wait. The oak tree could stand the storm. He was independent on whatever might be his chosen issue. Other things he made secondary. He persevered, though appearing to have yielded. His purposes he would not change, to gratify personal fancies, or advantages. Belonging to a denomination that uniformly practiced water baptism, Dr. McWhinney many years ago was known to lend no influence to the practice. In earlier years his popularity would have been promoted if he had yielded to the prevailing sentiment, and had lent his influence to the ordinance as commonly practiced among us. Without making this an issue with his brethren, McWhinney worked on, gradually grinding away the prejudice against himself, until it ceased to be a force to his detriment.

It is probable that all through life he neglected many aids to success, such as fraternal organizations outside of the church.

He was no slave to dogma. He openly preached against opposition to orthodoxy; but at the same time openly fraternized with most radical teachers. He defended the orthodox against attack; and yet his own views by the majority were considered heterodox.

His practical antagonism to foreign missions, as carried on by organized societies, found expression in his work on the "Chinese Problem."

In view of all these things, we must look at his tactfulness and attractiveness, with admiration. He fought, through life, a battle, even though he had a smiling face. He was engaged in a conflict; even though he was so attractive. He was producing results, pressing back waves of opposition, even though he tactfully avoided the rush of the tide.

In view of these things, as I wrote these words on yesterday, the eve of our natal day, it seemed somehow fitting, that we should gather today, July 4th, to lay away the body of this independent and self-reliant soldier of the cross, who all along fought stubbornly for freedom.

His favorite sermonizing during the later years of his life was on love: the love of God, and love among men. Attraction was the dominating force, more and more realized by his inner consciousness.

Powerful as an oak tree, he was attractive by his very power; and he used his power for the cause of Christ, where many relied on his strength, by which they were attracted.

Giving relief to the weary, like the elm tree, he yet warned men against the comforts of the saloon, and those whom he sheltered were sheltered indeed.

It cannot be denied that he was ambitious. But he was not like the poplar, vainly trying to kiss the clouds, He often took high station in office or position; but he did kiss the clouds; yes, more, he kissed the stars, even "the bright and morning star," "the root and offspring of David." Did you ever think of the ambition of Jesus? He said, "And I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto me." Jesus intended to attract men. Therefore it is not wrong. Christianity is based on attraction. "God so loved the world." The whole scheme of salvation is based on attraction.

And how graceful was Dr. McWhinney, even physically! Through life associating with the beautiful things of God, arraying himself with the forces that make for immortality and eternal life, he lingered long on earth, a sound and healthy man in body and mind. His roots were spread out about the waters flowing from the Word of God; and a stately palm tree he grew, all the time drawing the supplies of his grace and beauty from the purest fountains. His early life being conformed to the laws of God, he stood erect bodily, like a palm tree, straight and tall, with little sign of physical decay, until the snows of more than four score winters, as if falling out of their latitude, and trying to overthrow the normal climate of the palm tree, had whitened his locks with their heavy burden. Attractive even then, he only gradually yielded to the chill of death, and bowed his head, while being transplanted by the Heavenly Husbandman to the fields of God, where frosts and snows never fall, to discourage power, or comfort, or ambition, or beauty, or love.

VACATION AT NORTHFIELD.

I said that I would mention some of the speakers at Northfield, and I should like to tell something that each one said, for they all were inspiring. There was such a holy atmosphere there, that both speaker and hearer were at their best.

Some of the speakers were, Revs. J. H. Jowett, L. G. Broughton, Charles Brown, A. T. Pierson, G. A. Johnson-Ross, Canon Cody, J. A. Hutton, J. Stuart Holden, F. Guisaulus, Prof. Welsh, and others I do not now recall. The principal addresses delivered at this Conference will be published in the October issue of "The Record of Christian Work," and can be secured for 25c. per copy. (Address Record of Christian Work, E. Northfield, Mass.)

One of the most attractive preachers was Rev. J. H. Jowett of Birmingham, England. He is the successor of Dr. Dale of Carr's Lane Congregational Church. He is slight in build, alert and vivacious in appearance and gesticulation, rapid in delivery, and delivers his sermons by the help only of a few notes. It is said, "That everywhere throughout the kingdom he is eagerly welcomed, and an announcement that he is to preach crowds even the largest building." He drew large crowds at Northfield, filling the Main Auditorium when it was known that he was to preach.

He preached on Sunday, Aug. 1, which was really the beginning of the Conference, and it was the greatest sermon I ever heard on the subject of prayer. His subject was "The Plurality of Prayer," text Luke 11:2. Another sermon he preached very much impressed me, but he did not preach a poor sermon, was from Ex. 3:1-5. Subject, "The Divine Halo." Among other things he said, "Now if only we had the right sort of eyes, God-given eyes, grace-washed eyes, you and I would see the halo everywhere. Every common bush would flame, every almond tree would be suggestive of Divinity. If only we had the right sort of eyes, the kind of eyes we ought to get at a Convention like this, we could see the halo resting upon common humanity; we should see the Divine signi-fiance resting upon every child of the human race."

"But," said the speaker, "I cannot close just here. There may be some young people here who are saying: 'You have been talking about seeing the halo and nimbus,—how are we to get the eyes?' I will tell you. 'Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see'—the halo—They shall look upon the little flower and see it: they shall look upon the little child and see it: they shall look upon Zaccheus, Mary Magdalene, and Augustine, and see it: they shall look upon earth and see it. 'Lord, if thou wilt, thou canst make me clean,—and then with soul purity there will come sight, and with sight there will come the halo, and seeing the halo everywhere we shall be the children of light.'"

I shall assist Rev. I. W. Johnson this week in a meeting at Liberty Spring.

C. H. Rowland.

—Sun readers will appreciate the sermon in this issue by Rev. J. J. Summerbell, D. D., in memory of the late lamented Dr. T. M. McWhinney. Such an utterance could only come from a cultured mind and a great soul. It is not often The Sun carries matter so well conceived and so beautifully executed. It is a great man expressing a noble and fitting sentiment over the departure of a good friend and a noble soul.

—It was the editor's privilege to be with Rev. N. G. Newman in a meeting at Holy Neck, Nansemond Co., Va. last week. Of course the congregations were enormous. This is a church-going people and great audiences always greet the preacher. There must have been five hundred or more at some of the services, and there was only one service a day—in the afternoon. There was much interest in the meetings. Thirteen joined the church. It would be difficult indeed to find a people more devoted to their pastor, and rightfully so. Bro. Newman is a faithful, consecrated, efficient pastor and loves his work. Happy and fortunate indeed a people with such a pastor. Every hour of our stay was pleasant. Gracious hospitality abounded and the joy of meeting and mingling with this good people will not soon be forgotten.

—The North Pole will be on exhibition at all the county fairs this fall. (?)

—Of the 762 cotton mills in the south, North Carolina has 315, South Carolina 152, Georgia 138, and Alabama 66.

—Dr. Cook is happy to have discovered the North Pole. America is happy to have discovered Dr. Cook. The last is the best discovery just as nothing is so great as a man.—News and Observer.

WHAT IS IT TO BE A CHRISTIAN?

We do not live in a vacuum. Each of us lives in something. Some live in themselves, life being perversely wound in upon itself. Some live in others, life being ever led forth in generous thought and loving service. Paul lived in Christ. This was not a mere metaphor. Christ was the element in which he breathed and in which his whole personality stood and operated. But Christ was more than a mere element. He was a living person, and Paul's life was really sunk in his life. Or, to put it otherwise, Christ was in Paul. Make a list of his phrases, "in Christ"—or "Christ in," and you will realize how Paul's Christian life was a deep mystical experience of Christ. As Paul himself put it, "I have been crucified with Christ; and it is no longer I that live, but Christ liveth in me: and that life which I now live in the flesh I live in faith, the faith which is in the Son of God, who loved me, and gave himself up for me."

These ideas bore the deepest significance to Paul. Christ was to him what no mere man could be. The Christian life was a supernatural thing. God was in Christ to him. All his talk about the experience and knowledge of Christ was not figure of speech and mere rhapsody, poetry about a great friendship and nothing more. It was a real thing of which he was writing, as real to him as the material world,—more real. The Christian religion was a supernatural power, a supernatural life, the actual pervasion of human life by God, so that there was in Christian men a real divine presence,—God in Christ, God in the Holy Spirit, working in and upon the soul. Christianity was not mere self-culture. It was not mere human pursuit of lofty ideals. It was not a battle in man's own strength against evil and for the conquest of the Kingdom of Christ. It was a true fellowship with God in Christ. It was the operation upon and in man of the supernatural. It was the infinite and the eternal breaking through into the local and the transient in order to give them their true significance and put them to their true use.

But though his Christian experience and life were thus mystical and supernatural, they were not unreasonable, not incoherent, not incapable of clear and reasoned statement and explanation. The experience of Christ was to Paul the most reasonable thing in the world. He was prepared to set it forth to men's minds in the conviction that while to Greeks it might seem foolishness, it was still not foolishness, but the very reason and wisdom of God. There were things too deep for him, but "mystery" meant to him, not something incomprehensible, but something brought clearly within men's comprehension by the revealing Spirit of God. As a Christian he used his mind, and demanded that others should. This Christ whom he had experienced had a value to his heart. Why? How could he? What value? He thought on these questions, and his preaching and teaching was the setting forth of the truth which he held on them. He had experienced Christ. That meant certain great truths and principles to the mind. It must mean the same thing in measure to every one else who might experience Christ, and who, as he would inevitably do if it was a true and full experience, would go on to think of who and what Christ was, and how he could do the same things for others, and how his mission was related to all the life of man. Paul knew Christ in his heart, and he sought to account for him in his thought. True Christians will do both of these.

This experience and knowledge of Christ were fixed in the most tender and passionate love. Christ was all in all to him. Christ had been nothing; he had been hated and despised. He was now become his supreme lord and lover. The power that wrought this change was no mere human power, no reflection upon the past, but a living, divine Person. The Power that wrought in him, Paul taught, will work in us likewise.

The love of Christ bound Paul in every impulse and desire. And yet its binding was perfect liberty. As he said himself, "the love of Christ constraineth us." This was the center of all life to him. Christ's love surrounded him, and walled him in, and yet it expanded and delivered him and lifted him up as on wings above all constraints. It was, as Maurice points out, "a power of love which was urging him on to right thoughts and good deeds; which could, in spite of his natural selfishness, make him live and act as a brother and a fellow-worker in Christ's church. He yielded himself to that power, he besought others to yield to it, since it was for them as much as for him, since he judged that Christ died for all, that all were dead without him, that all might live through him. This was the secret of his theology, his philosophy, his arguments, his passionate appeals to other men's consciences and hearts, his struggles, his joys, his sorrows, his vehemence, his weakness, his self-justification, his self-contempt, his rejection of the Law, his submission to the Law, his freedom to do all things, his labors to bring his body into subjection, his fear that he might be a castaway, his confidence that 'neither height, nor depth, nor angels, nor principalities, nor things present, nor things to come, should separate his from the love of God which was in Christ Jesus his Lord.' "

The Christian life to Paul was such a tender and personal relationship to Christ. It was also a passionate and selfless devotion to men. Paul the Christian was the lover of men. He was ready to make any sacrifice to help them or to win them to the Savior. He who had been a Pharisee became a Gentile to the Gentiles. He who had been a citizen of the world and a brother of humanity became a Jew to the Jews. All to the end of winning some. He was no recluse, no selfish aesthete or spiritual self-culturist. He was a worker among men. To have a gospel and not to share it, not to be on the watch to communicate it to men, not to be eager at any sacrifice to spread it over all the world, were ideas entirely foreign to Paul's conception of what it was to be a Christian.

But his zeal for service did not obscure to Paul the supremacy of character. He never exalted either at the expense of the other. He bound the two together always. What could a man give save what he had, and what had a man that he was not? Does a man really possess anything save what he is? Out of what each man was, rather out of what God was to each man and in each man, came all efficiency and accomplishment. No lofty soaring among the high places of Christian truth ever carried him out of common life. Back he evidently came from each such flight with fresh reason and appeal for unselfishness and for righteousness. Christianity to him was reality in deeds and personality.

To be a Christian, however, was not to try to become a good man by effort and volition. It was not to analyze and classify the ethical ideals of character. "In the early ages of Christianity," says Ruskin in "The Stones of Venice," "there was little care taken to analyze character. One momentous question was heard over the whole world: Dost thou believe in the Lord with all thine heart? There was but one division among men, the great unattonable division between disciple and adversary. The love of Christ was all, and in all; and, in proportion to the nearness of their memory of his person and teaching, men understood the infinity of the requirements of the moral law and the manner in which alone it could be fulfilled. The early Christians felt that virtue, like sin, was a subtle universal thing, entering into every act and thought, appearing outwardly in ten thousand diverse ways—diverse according to the separate framework of every heart in which it dwelt, but one and the same always in its proceeding from the love of God, as sin is one and the same in proceeding from hatred of God. And in their pure, early and practical piety they saw that there was no need for codes of morality or systems of metaphysics. Their virtue comprehended everything, entered into everything; it was too vast and too spiritual to be defined, but there was no need of its definition. For through faith, working by love, they knew that all human excellence would be developed in due order, but that without faith neither reason could define nor effort teach the lowest phase of Christian virtue."

"Christianity" was not a word used by Paul, and the earliest designation of the disciples of Jesus as Christians was not friendly. But it was true, and the significance of it Paul accepted to the full. Christianity was Christ. It was not a vague and unreflecting admiration. It was a personal and living service of a living, personal Saviour. Paul the Christian was Paul the follower of Christ. But "follower of Christ" was a phrase with meaning and body to it. It meant then and it means now, if it meant then and means now anything at all, the union of life, its sin forgiven and its heart purified, with God in Christ, with God in Christ in a sense in which he never was in any other. Are we such Christians? Whether or not we are such consciously as yet, we will become such if we truly follow Paul as Paul followed Christ.—S. S. Times.

THE SHORTEST SERMON I EVER PREACHED.

During the first year of my ministry I assisted Rev. J. P. Daugherty in a series of meetings at Pisgah Church, Brown County, Ohio, where I was permitted to do all the preaching very much to my own delight and to a number of others who accepted sound for sense and ranting for reason. The Lord very graciously blessed the meeting and we were having large audiences and nightly additions to the church. I had come to feel that few men could preach so well as I, and often felt like congratulating the people upon their good fortune in having me help in the meeting. I can now see how little I knew, how poorly I did, and how very patient the people were in hearing me at all.

On the night of my shortest sermon the house was crowded to the doors, and I was feeling that it would be an easy matter for me to go to the top of the heap. It was a custom then for the audience to sing several songs before the preacher took charge, and while this song was going on, the Rev. Mr. ———, pastor of the Disciple Church at Ripley, came in, and when I was introduced to him he said he had come to hear me preach.

In my heart I complimented his good sense but very formally thanked him for his presence and expressed the hope that he would enjoy the service. His words gave me a new inspiration and additional confidence in my ability to preach and I made up my mind that he would not be disappointed in the sermon—and I have since thought that he was not. In a little from that time, Captain Boyd, then in all probability the foremost man in the community, came in and I overheard him tell Brother Daugherty that he wanted to hear "that young preacher," telling him that he had heard that he knew how to do it.

When I heard these words I knew full well that I had not been mistaken in myself, and that I could certainly preach and would give him a sample of my ability as soon as the opening exercise should conclude. I could hardly wait for the time to come for me to begin. The introductory services seemed very tedious and entirely too lengthy. Why did not they let me begin was the question with me.

Rev. Brother ——— led in prayer and Brother Daugherty spoke a few words just before I began preaching in which he asked that all who prayed would especially pray for the speaker on that occasion. I felt then that he was wasting his time and that he had better let me begin, but I know that the dear, good old man realized that my fall was at hand because of the pride that always precedes such an experience.

Up to that time I had used notes in my preaching, but I did not need them that night. I walked out in front of the pulpit and undertook to quote my text which was, "This is a faithful saying and worthy of all acceptance, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners." I quoted it correctly, but in giving the place where it was to be found I made a mistake, and sought to correct it and undertook to quote the verse a second time, when I misquoted it, and also made a blunder in telling where it could be found. I felt that I must have all things right on that occasion, and so undertook it a third time, when I quoted it wrongly, got the chapter and verse wrong, and even the book in which it was found, wrong.

By this time I began to feel myself alone and undone, but was too proud to confess it even in spirit—and undertook to preach. I looked up to the ceiling but found nothing written there, I gazed out toward the audience to find a sea of amused faces, and turning toward Bro. Daugherty, I found him with his head down, and then determining to redeem myself, I waded in and beat the air, placed and replaced my hands several times, and folded my arms across my breast (but not peaceful breast), mopped my brow, and finally sat down having been on my feet just eleven minutes. I stayed that night at Deacon John Mefford's and my wife declared that I locked the bedroom door and after getting in bed pulled the covers up over my head.

God can help and God can hinder.—Rev. J. F. Burnett, D. D., in Herald of Gospel Liberty.

A RESTING PLACE.

It is a great thing to come to Christ; it is the turning point of life. And it is a great thing to abide in Him in the storm and conflicts and terrors of the world.

"Safe to the hidden house of thine abiding

Carry the weak knees and the heart that faints;
Shield from the scorn and cover from the chiding,

Give the world joy, but patience to the saints."

It is a great thing to come to Christ; it is a great thing to abide in Him; but from his point of view the object of our coming and of our abiding is that we should go. He wants us as his messengers—as his fellow-messengers. His purpose is that, abiding in him, we should bear the fruit which is for the healing of the nations; that we should be the communicators of the light which shines upon the people who sit in darkness and in the shadow of death. If I do not go, I am like an untimely birth, or I am like a seed which has rotted in the ground. He bade me come, he encouraged me to abide in order that I might go.—Normal Christian.

"When the day's work is done, the worthy minister may enjoy the reflection of having done much for which he has received no pay—much for which there will never be the least material reward. He may know that he has served his Father in secret because of his love for the service. The chance to do that is the exclusive privilege of no profession; but in the ministry it is, I believe, larger than in any other. This habit of doing good, with no prospect or thought of material reward, sets free in a man's heart singing voices; and the music they make is not of this world."—Geo. A. Gordon, D.D.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

Founded 1844 by Elder Daniel W. Kerr.
Organ of the Southern Christian
Convention.

Entered at the postoffice at Greensboro, N. C., as second-class matter.

Terms of Subscription.

One Year .....$1.50
Six Months ..... .75
Four Months ..... .50
Advertising rates given on application.

J. O. Atkinson, Editor and Publisher.

Important Notice.—As readers will see, The Christian Sun is now published at Greensboro, N. C. The office of publication there is 302½ South Elm Street. Our editorial office, however, remains at Elon College, N. C., to which all letters and communications to the Editor should be addressed, as heretofore.

CRITICISING THE CHURCH.

No institution, or organization, among men ever undertook such an enormous task as the Church has undertaken. Think, will you, of its manifold and many-sided endeavor. Wherever there are goodly virtues to cultivate, the Church is ready and finds a task there. Wherever there is evil apparent, or sin abounds, the Church has a duty and finds a task there. The Church undertakes to preach the gospel, teach the truth, interpret Scripture, reveal God, instruct in righteousness, conduct worship, build colleges, maintain orphanages, support the aged, care for the needy, send missionaries, conserve inviolate the Sabbath, close up the saloon, abolish the gambling den, eradicate selfishness, do away with greed, wipe out envy, stop dishonesty, exterminate falsehood, kill hypocrisy, and break everywhere the power and dominion of Sin. A most noble task that, and such as no human institution or organization ever undertook. Is it any wonder that, engaged in a warfare with evil in ten thousand forms, the Church makes mistakes and is easily criticised?

It is easy enough for one out of the Church, and indifferent to it, to say "I am as good as one half the church members." But usually the one saying this is the only one in the community who will say it. For self-righteousness and pure egoism, commend us to the man who has had church privileges, but has held aloof and remained indifferent to church pleas. He is worse than any and than all church members in at least one particular: He has failed to identify himself with an organization that takes the world of sin for its field of fighting, and the world of righteousness for its friend and ally. He prefers the rather to identify himself with those who promote wickedness in the world and keep alive the sources and sinews of sin.

Such a stupendous task does the Church undertake that we do well to consider her ways before undertaking to criticise or cripple her conduct and conquests. If her message does not win us, her task should appal us and her conquests silence and convince us.

NO TIME TO THINK.

The world of sin is an unthinking world. Sin, in fact, is a foe to thought. Sin revels in passion, feeds on and increases lust. The man of sin will not stop to think because he lives in the world of the present, that is, the world of immediate pursuits, pleasures, and passion. Men could be convicted of sin if they would stop to consider. But Sin, of which you would convince them, will not let them consider. Sin is ever a foe to thought.

The mother had plead with her son to give up sin; friends had tried to reason and persuade; the preacher had done his best from the pulpit. When the son was personally interviewed and asked as to his position and attitude toward the matter of his soul's welfare he very blandly remarked, "I do not know; in fact I have not thought much about it." That was the secret. He had not thought much about his own soul, and its welfare here and hereafter.

There are men sane, sensible and sober as touching other matters: but as touching their attitude to Sin, and to the soul's welfare, they are as unreasonable, illogical and indifferent as numb skulls and idiots. They will not stop to think. They will consider time and sense: but eternity and the soul are subjects for which they have no time or place. Sin is ever a foe to thought, deep, pure thought.

A PROGRAM OF LIFE.

Any plan, program, or philosophy of life that leaves death out of the count is incomplete. For every life, be it said, is a story whose end is death. Here is wherein the Bible surpasses all other systems and theories written out for life in other books. The Bible, as a plan of life, takes account of death. It treats death as an issue which all must meet and come to. And why should it not?

The realest and sternest and stubbornest fact of our existence is death. One may escape riches, poverty, fame, disgrace, ease, toil, disappointment, disease: but no one escapes death. All must by nature, and destiny, come to that. It is a disagreeable subject: a dark, a hopeless, a forlorn one to many, but, and here is the point, dark or light, hopeless or happy, all must come to that. And that to which all must come is worthy of some thought, some consideration by all.

Nor is it the part of cowardice, or silly sentiment, to think on death, and provide for its ordeal. Some of the bravest and best of earth, some of the most cultured and learned of thinkers and scholars have given this deepest and closest consideration. Only cowards shut their eyes to danger; brave men provide against it.

And in this the Church differs from other institutions and organizations. It alone, of all, emphasizes the fact of death, and gives a program for proper preparation against that day and event. Fraternal orders, institutions of man's ordering, teach how to live; the Church alone teaches how to die, offers a program whereby men may meet death with hope, courage, and faith. How to be successful in life, and not unhappy, but hopeful, in death, is the program of the Book, and the teaching of the Church.

—Of course we did not expect Dr. Staley to admit it. But the promise to fish is satisfying.

—Rev. J. P. Barrett, D. D., editor, deserves much credit for the excellent educational number of the Herald of Gospel Liberty issued last week. There are contributions of real value and merit by several leading educators.

—Mr. Leroy R. Fonville of Burlington, a graduate of Elon College and later of the University of Virginia law school, was one of the successful candidates before the Supreme Court of N. C. last week to practice law in this State. We shall be surprised if Mr. Fonville does not make good and rise to usefulness and eminence in his profession.

—We were pleased to see, and greet again, while on a visit to Elon College recently, Rev. P. T. Klapp who has been assisting Rev. C. C. Peel in a happy revival at Berea, Alamance, the past week. Bro. Klapp looks as youthful, as vigorous and as happy in his work as he seemed years ago. Time does not waste his energy for the cause nor diminish his zeal for the Master's service.

—Mr. Stanley C. Harrell, a licentiate, of the Eastern Virginia Conference, who graduated from Elon College last June and will teach the present scholastic year as principal of the Holland, Va. High School, is willing to serve, on Sundays, any church or churches easy of access, wishing his services. Bro. Harrell wishes to teach, study and further prepare himself before giving all of his time to the pastorate. He is a conscientious man, a close student, and gives promise of efficient service.

SUFFOLK LETTER

It seems to me that the "big head" suggested in "Notes and Personals" of last week's Sun must have been an imagination of the fertile brain of the distinguished editor. He is usually easy to please and overlooks the faults of his brethren. If not the product of his own mind, he must have mistaken the reserve and dignity of the grand paternal position for what he is pleased to call "big head." Rank carries with it, unconsciously, no doubt, a certain air of importance that usually commands respect; but in this case, it seems to have offended the good breeding and refined taste of the genial and liberal editor. It may be that he envies those higher up in the family scale, though I do not make such a charge. Four generations breathe under our roof-tree and that may have added such responsibilities to my life as to make me seem distant. My hat is off and in my hand and I promise Dr. Atkinson that, hereafter, my manner and speech toward him shall be that of a "fisherman" and not that of an unconscious "grandpa." If this is not enough, I will go with him on some pond and fish till bitter feelings and memories vanish and the pop of the cork and the whiz of the line make sweeter music than Siren's voice or Aeolian harp.

God was good to our congregation during our vacation; no one was taken, though some were sick. I returned to Suffolk on Monday, August 30th, and have put on the harness for another year. In the country men take off the harness, stable the horses and feed them at noon; in the cities, they hang a small pocket of oats on the horse's head and he eats while the driver loads or unloads the wagon. It is even so with men. In the country there is much hard work, it is true; but much time runs to waste. In the city the strain is more incessant and recreation comes at longer intervals. If farm life and work could be conducted on a schedule that corresponds with mill, store, shop, and railroad time, farm investments would pay in proportion to other business; but the conditions on the farm have not yet made it possible to work hired labor with system and under control. The time ought to come when farm hands will take their time off when work is of least value, instead of on the best days of the year.

September will about close up the revival services in our churches for this year. Rains have interfered with many of them; but revivals, like crops, are not their best every year. There are "times of refreshing from the presence of the Lord;" but we must continue to sow seed for we cannot tell which will prosper "this or that." By the government's report the cotton crop is ten per cent below the average, but the mills will run on and the world will be clothed. The gospel prospers more in some years than in others, but "in the morning sow thy seed and in the evening withhold not thy hand" leaves no room for complaining or neglect. God's word does not return unto Him void, but accomplishes his purpose, though fruits seem scarce.

Reports say that Rev. N. G. Newman and his Holy Neck congregation are in the midst of a good meeting with Dr. Atkinson as preacher.

Rev. C. H. Rowland passed through Suffolk Thursday night from Zuni where he delivered an address to the Maccabees. W. W. Staley.

ELON COLLEGE NOTES.

The campus and college halls are once more alive with students; and the long "lonesome" vacation season is over. The opening is not quite so large as we had hoped for, but students continue to come in each day, and quite a number of others are expected during the month. The new students are "getting into harness" easily, and all the work of the institution is moving off smoothly.

The new teachers, Dr. Randolph, Prof. Amick, Miss Barnes, and Miss Urquhart are all experienced teachers with successful records, so it has been easy for them to fall in line with the work of their several departments. We all feel that the institution has now the strongest faculty that it has ever had and this may be said without any reflection upon our former professors, for the reason that the proportionate number of regular professors to that of instructors has been increased.

The various religious organizations—Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., Christian Endeavor, Sunday School were all organized and well attended on Sunday. These organizations have a wonderful influence upon the lives and ideals of the student body, and they are given every encouragement in their work with the young men and young women who come here.

Rev. W. S. Long, D. D., of Graham, N. C., preached the opening sermon for us last Sunday. Dr. Long is always a welcome visitor at Elon, where the recollection of his great work in behalf of the institution is abiding. His sermon Sunday was an able one, and was greatly enjoyed by all present. Mrs. Long spent the day with friends here.

Miss Blanche Williamson, Driver, Va., sister of Mrs. J. O. Atkinson, Elon College, died at Asheville, N. C., where she had been carried some weeks since for her health, Monday night, Sept. 6. Miss Blanche was an old student of Elon College, and was greatly beloved by all who knew her here. Dr. and Mrs. Atkinson left Elon for Suffolk Tuesday p. m., joining those accompanying the body at Greensboro. We understand the interment was to be in Suffolk to-day, Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Lee, of Norfolk, Va., who have been visiting at Dr. Atkinson's for several days left last week, Mr. Lee returning home, and Mrs. Lee going to the bedside of her niece, Miss Williamson, at Asheville. Mr. and Mrs. Lee have always been among Elon's strongest and most constant friends, and it is a great pleasure to have them visit us.

Dr. Atkinson has returned from a week's work at Holy Neck, Va., where he assisted Rev. N. G. Newman in a series of meetings. He reports a good meeting.

There are, perhaps, a few young people in the various communities of our churches who almost persuade to go away to school this year, and a word of encouragement from some reader of the Sun might result in turning them to Elon. Will you not say that word, and so show your interest in your own institution? We will be glad to have the names and addresses of such persons, in order that we may mail catalogues to them. E. L. Moffitt.

NORFOLK LETTER.

I received a telegram last Tuesday from Bro. Kendall, saying he must decline the call of the third church, and a letter of explanation would follow. The letter was duly received. It seems that this is something of a crucial period with the College at Le Grande, and very strong pressure was brought to bear, and he decided for what he believed to be the best interest of the Master's kingdom, taking the broad view of the whole field. We are still seeking to know the Lord's will for us here. Hope to have something definite to report soon.

Bro. Thompson closed his work today at Providence, and will close his labors here next Sunday.

Bro. Ryan of the Temple reports the largest Sunday school and congregation Sunday for quite awhile. Two members were received there today, Mrs. M. J. W. White and Mrs. Finch White, both coming by letter from the Methodist Church.

They have not yet arrived at a definite conclusion in regard to a pastor for the Temple.

Say, brother, are you taking that offering for the Porto Rico Building Fund yet? If not, why not? Is there an answer that you are willing to give to God, or is it one of neglect. Do it next Sunday, won't you. J. W. Manning.

THE CHRISTIAN ORPHANAGE DEPARTMENT.

CHILDREN'S CORNER.

The Band of Cousins.

Jas. L. Foster, Sec., Elon College, N. C.

"He that hath pity on the poor lendeth unto the Lord, and his good deed will He pay him again."—Prov. 19:17.

Reported last week .....$3,677.21
Monthly Dues:

Para Lee Beggs .....	$ .10
Grady Beggs .....	.10
Hettie B. Davis .....	.10
Glenn Pipkins .....	.25
Samuel Pipkins .....	.25
Mary Lee Foster .....	.10
James L. Foster, Jr. ....	.10
Monthly S. S. Offering:
Linville, Va. ....	.52
Tenth Legion, Va. ....	1.74
Graham, N. C. ....	2.00
Franklin, Va. ....	3.22

Am't. 32nd week ..... 8.28
Total .....$3,685.49

My Dear Children:—

This letter from Uncle Jim is going to be a special one to the boys and girls who have not written in some time to the Corner. In looking over our books we find quite a number who are far behind, some a month or two; others have written perhaps once, then stopped, and the year is fast drawing to a close. The fall months are here, and we need the little mites which you dear cousins can send. A dollar a week, at least, little friends, let us have from your part of the work. Ten letters and ten dimes! That is not asking too much. Will you not—you who are behind—write right away and catch up, and then keep "our corner" lively all winter long? Winter is the time when we love to gather around the fireside after supper and read nice books and papers. And so perhaps your letter may help to cheer many a home during the coming cold months. Write, little girl, little boy, don't let your end of the rope loosen but hold it tight, and thereby do your part and God will certainly bless the effort, however small.

We are thankful indeed for two nice express packages this week, one from The Woman's Missionary Society of Porterville Christian Church, Eaton, Ill., containing 21 yards lawn, 2 readymade suits for boys and 1 quilt made by Mrs. John McMillen, Denver, Col., who is 93 years old. The other is from Myrtle, Va. and was prepared by Mrs. David McCleeny and Miss Daisy Atkins. The following is a list of articles sent:

Mrs. Mary A. Gray, 1 quilt; Mrs. Emma Batten, 1 quilt; Mrs. Geo. T. Atkins, 10 yds. dress goods; Mrs. Mary A. Holland, 5 yds. gingham, 2 towels, 1 box soap; Mrs. Darius King, 1 pair sheets; Miss May King, 1 pair pillow cases; Mrs. David McCleeny, 1 counterpane; Mrs. Martha Johnson, 1 pair sheets; Miss Daisy Hart Atkins, 1 pair pillow cases and bolster case; Miss Alice Johnson, 10 pair of hose; Mrs. Patsy Saunders, 1 box of soap; Mrs. Balzoro Saunders, 1 bolster case.

Fondly,
Uncle Jim.

Columbus, Ga., Aug. 30, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

The month will soon be gone and we haven't written our letter for August, but will write again soon. We have moved far away from the church but we still go. Enclosed find twenty cents for our dues for August. Good-by with love to all the cousins, we are yours,

Para Lee Beggs,
Grady Beggs.

Well, little friends, I am glad you can still continue going to church if you have moved a long way off. Let your bright letters continue to come.

Windsor, Va., Aug. 23, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

I joined the band a few years ago, but have neglected most of the time. I want to join again and write regularly every month. I have been spending vacation with my aunt. Had a very nice time. Love to the cousins and the rest for yourself. Find ten cents for the little orphans.

Your niece,
Hettie B. Davis.

We are so glad of your determination to be more regular in your writing, Hettie. We want 100 hundred more just as determined.

Durham, N. C., Aug. 25, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

I hope you will excuse me for not writing before now. We have been having a good time during our vacation. We have had watermelons and cantelopes and plenty of apples. But these will soon be gone, and we will have potatoes. Find enclosed twenty-five cents.

Glenn Pipkins.

God is indeed good to let us have something nice all the time. We have missed you and brother Glenn. Don't fail to write again next month.

—At the end of life's brief day we shall be rewarded, not according to the work we have done, but to the faithfulness with which we have endeavored to do our duty in whatever sphere.—Rev. F. B. Meyer.

Don't Throw it Away. Does Your Granite Dish or Hot Water Bag Leak? USE MENDETS A PATENT PATCH. They mend all leaks in all utensils—tin, brass, copper, graniteware, hot water bags, etc. No solder, cement or rivet. Any one can use them; fit any surface; three million in use. Send for sample pkg. 10c. Complete pkg. assorted sizes, 25c postpaid. Agents wanted. Collette Mfg. Co., Box 1141, Amsterdam, N. Y.

When in Burlington call at
T. H. STROUD'S

Store for DRUGS, SOFT DRINKS, and anything desired in drugs and Toilet Articles.

To Drive Out Malaria and Build up the System.

Take the Old Standard GROVE'S PASTELESS CHILL TONIC. You know what you are taking. The formula is plainly printed on every bottle, showing it is simply Quinine and Iron in a tasteless form, and the most effectual form. For grown people and children. 50c.

The North Carolina
COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE AND MECHANIC ARTS.

The State's college for vocational training. Courses in Agriculture and Horticulture; in Civil, Electrical and Mechanical Engineering; in Cotton Milling and Dyeing; in Industrial Chemistry. Why not fit yourself for life by taking one of these courses? Address

D. H. HILL, President,
West Raleigh, N. C.

READ SOMETHING DIFFERENT.

The Greensboro Daily News, the new State paper, is worthy of a trial. Associated Press service, special correspondence, clean, newsy, liberal. One year $6.00; three months $1.50.

GREENSBORO DAILY NEWS,
Greensboro, N. C.

WANTED—Bookkeepers, Stenographers.

MORE BANKERS in the 16 States in which Jno. F. Draughon's 30 Colleges are located, indorse these Business Colleges than indorse ALL others. IF YOU want the EVIDENCE and want to RISE to the $10-a-day class, ask for FREE catalogue. Lessons BY MAIL if preferred. Draughon's Practical Business College, Raleigh, N. C.; A. M. FISHER, Mgr

RALEIGH & SOUTHPORT RY. Co.

P. M. A. M.	STATIONS.	A. M. P. M.
1:15 6:00	Raleigh	8:30 3:45
1:54 6:24	McCullers	7:52 3:03
2:11 6:59	Willow Sp'gs	7:37 2:45
2:23 7:14	Varina	7:27 2:34
2:35 7:26	Fuquay Sp'gs	7:19 2:25
2:55 7:45	Kipling	7:00 2:05
3:15 8:05	Lillington	6:41 1:44
3:41 8:28	Linden	6:15 1:17
4:30 9:15	Fayetteville	5:30 12:30

JNO. A. MILLS, Pres. and Gen. Mgr.

DR. J. H. BROOKS
Surgeon and Dentist
FOSTER BUILDING,
Burlington, N. C.

THE RELIGION OF SAMUEL JOHNSON.

On September the eighteenth will be commemorated the bicentenary of the birth of Dr. Samuel Johnson, in the cathedral city of Lichfield, England September 18, 1709 (new style). In Carlyle's essay on "The Hero as a Man of Letters," he says, "Johnson was a prophet to his people; preached a gospel to them,—as all like him always do. The highest gospel he preached we may describe as a kind of moral prudence."

But Dr. Johnson had a fuller knowledge of the "grace of God which bringeth salvation" than this. His whole life was guided and inspired by the evangelical truths of the gospel. Dr. Johnson, who had always feared death, found his only comfort in the "finished work" of the Savior. But on his deathbed all such fears entirely left him. His physician, Dr. Broklesby, says:

"For some time before his death all his fears were calmed and absorbed by the prevalence of his faith in the merits and propitiation of Jesus Christ. He talked often about the necessity of faith in the sacrifice of Jesus as a means of salvation."

His last will and testament begins thus:

"I, Samuel Johnson, being in full possession of my faculties, but fearing that this night may put an end to my life, do ordain this my last will and testament. I bequeath to God a soul polluted by many sins, but I hope purified by Jesus Christ."

Just before he expired he said to Francis Barber, his faithful negro servant, "Francis, attend to the salvation of your soul." He sent a message to Sir Joshua Reynolds, begging him to read his Bible and not to work on Sundays, an injunction which the great painter observed till his dying day. His observance of the Lord's Day was very devout, and the venerable church at St. Clement Dane always excited the reverence of Carlyle when he passed it, and remembered that "there within those walls Samuel Johnson worshiped in the era of Voltaire."—"To the Spirit of Lies, bearing death and hunger, he would nowise strike the flag. Brave old Samuel: ultimus Romanorum!"

Lord Macaulay wrote of Johnson:

"It is but just to say that our intimate acquaintance with what he would himself have called the anfractuositities of his intellect and his temper, serves only to strengthen our conviction that he was both a great and a good man."

One who was himself "a majestic teacher of moral and religious wisdom" is entitled to a hearing when he chooses to express his opinion on pulpit utter-

A remarkable offer by one of the leading ear specialists in this country, who will send two month's medicine free to prove his ability to cure Deafness, Head Noises, and Catarrh. Address Dr. G. M. Branaman, 1100 Walnut Street, Kansas City, Mo.

LADIES—Our plan offers you a dignified occupation—WE HELP YOU MAKE A SUCCESS. Results easily obtained—profits large. If you have not had experience we can teach you how to become a CAPABLE LADY AGENT—A SELF-SUPPORTING WOMAN. Write for details. THE CHAS. REIF COMPANY, Chattanooga, Tenn.

SEABOARD AIR LINE RAILWAY.
QUICKEST LINE TO

New York, Washington, Charlotte, Florida Points, Atlanta, Birmingham, Memphis, New Orleans and the West.
Double Daily Service with High-Back-Seat Coaches, Pullman Sleeping and Dining Cars.

We operate Daily Vestibule service, with through Pullman Sleeping Cars to Jacksonville, Atlanta, Birmingham, Memphis, Portsmouth, Norfolk, Richmond, Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York.

For Time Tables, Booklets Reservations or any information relative to special rates and route, call on or address C. H. GATTIS, Trav. Passenger Agt., No. 4 Tucker Building, Raleigh, N. C.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup

Has been used for over SIXTY-FIVE YEARS by MILIONS OF MOTHERS for their CHILDREN WHILE TEETHING, with PERFECT SUCCESS. It SOOTHES THE CHILD, SOFTENS THE GUMS, ALLAYS ALL PAIN; CURES WIND COLIC, and is the best remedy for DIARRHOEA. Sold by Druggists in every part of the world. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Guaranteed under the Food and Drugs Act, June 30th, 1906. Serial Number 1098. AN OLD AND WELL TRIED REMEDY.

ance. And all the more when his own sentences have all the weight of solid sentiment and his points the sharpness of resistless truth. Samuel Johnson was like the sage in his own "Rasselas:" "He spoke, attention watched his lips; he reasoned, and conviction closed his periods." For substance of doctrine, as a rule, and for literary form, Johnson, at his best, is not a bad exemplar of effective preaching. But he is also very explicit in his views on this point. Boswell has two entries in his "Life of Johnson" where he writes:

"I talked of preaching, and of the great success which those called Methodists have.

"Johnson: 'Sir, it is owing to their expressing themselves in a plain and fa-

MEDICINE.

We prepare as good medicine, the very best medicine that the finest, freshest, most potent drugs and chemicals will produce when carefully and skilfully compounded by an expert prescription man—just such medicine as your physician means that you should have, medicine of the utmost possible effectiveness May we prepare your medicine?

FREEMAN DRUG CO.,
Burlington, N. C.

RAISE MONEY FOR YOUR CHURCH.

We offer you an easy method. Send us a photograph of your church or your pastor, and we will send you 500 high grade post cards, with photograph on each card, and scripture verse if desired. Sell these cards at 10 cents each. When sold, remit us $20.00 and keep the balance. You can do this in a week. We will return photograph.

LAKE SHORE SUPPLY CO.,
225 Broad St., St. Joe, Michigan.

DO YOU WANT TO GO TO COLLEGE? If so we can help you. We have already put hundreds through college by means of our plan. Write today for full information regarding our offer of a free scholarship in any school or college. Address, Robert J. Sherlock, 29-31 East 22nd Street, New York City.

FALL AND WINTER.

The time for fall and winter gardening is here and you need garden tools. We can supply you at lowest prices.

Poultry Wire.

The best assorted stock in the county. Four different styles and weight.

Come and See.

Remember plumbing and bath room fixtures, a speciality. You will find us on Davis St. in the new building near Post Office.

BURLINGTON HARDWARE CO.

miliar manner, which is the only way to do good to the common people, and which clergymen of genius and learning ought to do from a principle of duty, when it is suited to their congregations, a practice for which they will be praised by men of sense."

Boswell also says:

"He observed that the established clergy in general did not preach plain enough, and that polished periods and glittering sentences flow over the heads of the common people, without any impression upon their hearts."—Homiletic Review.

—I find the great thing in this world is not so much where we stand, as in what direction we are moving. To reach the port of heaven, we must sail sometimes with the wind and sometimes against it,—but we must sail, and not drift, nor lie at anchor.—O. W. Holmes.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEPARTMENT.

Exponent of the Young People's Convention,
Christian Church, South.

Watchword: A Christian Endeavor Society in Every Church; Teacher-Training and Organized Classes in Every Sunday School

Devoted to the interest and advancement of Sunday Schools, Teacher-Training, Organized Classes, Cradle Roll, Home Department, Christian Endeavor, Missionary Societies, Temperance Societies, Aid Societies, Civic Righteousness.

W. A. HARPER, Editor and Field Secretary, Elon College, N. C.

[All notes and contributions for this Department should be sent to W. A. Harper, Elon College, N. C., who extends the Church at large a cordial invitation to furnish him with any note of interest to our Young People, particularly information in regard to any forward steps, new movement, or new organization looking to progressive and effective service. All items under this Department not signed are by its Editor and Field Secretary.]

TEACHER-TRAINING—THE TEACHER.

The remark is frequently made that we cannot have a teacher-training class because we have no suitable teacher. The idea seems to be prevalent that the teacher is the class. It is true that a good teacher nearly always has a good class; but it is also true that a good class will always develop a good teacher. Many adult organized Bible classes begin with no teacher. They use the round table method, until the best teacher in the class is evolved and he is chosen. Why can you not do this in the case of teacher-training, using the suggestive questions on each lesson as a round-table leaflet would be used in a conference on some special line of work? Try it.

But it must be admitted that to begin with a teacher is better than to have to discover one by experiment. Who should this teacher be? The pastor? If he can carry the load, it might be well; though it must be frankly stated that the business of preparing sermons and the matter of holding a successful teacher-training class call for very different talents and few ministers can work with equal ease in these two capacities. The danger is that the preacher will preach and not teach. The superintendent? If he can carry the load without detriment to the larger interests of the school, he may do this work, provided his qualifications are all right and they ought to be. If so, the class should not meet with the regular school, for no superintendent has any business teaching during the session of the school? Who else? Any one on whose heart God has placed the obligation. Often you will have to advise with such an one before he or she will feel the compulsion of the Spirit, but always insist that the teacher should feel called of God for this service.

The qualification of the teacher of the teacher-training class are also much debated. Ought he or she to be an expert? This is not at all necessary. There is even a danger in having an expert teacher for this class,—the danger that his superior intellectual qualifications will cause him to demand too much of the class or lead him to the lecture method. Any teacher who is sixteen years of age or over and whom you would select as a teacher or superintendent in one of the regular classes is competent to be the teacher of your teacher-training class. Any person whom you think the course would make a good teacher and in whom the class would have confidence will make you a good teacher-training teacher. Begin, now; don't delay. You have the acorn in your school; give it the chance to become the oak.

—Rev. C. C. Ryan, of the Memorial Temple, Norfolk, Va., sends in his blank filled out. Thanks, Bro. Ryan. Will not the others, who have so far neglected the matter, send in theirs also?

What about that teacher-training class of which you have been thinking and praying? It will only call for a little resolution on your part to make it a living reality. Consider its present and future blessings to you and your Sunday school. Can you procrastinate longer and do your duty?

The Memorial Temple, Norfolk, Va., one of our most progressive churches, reports a Sunday school of 265 pupils and 15 teachers; a teacher-training class of 18 members; a men's organized class (Baraca); a women's organized class (Philathea); a Cradle Roll with 40 members; a Christian Endeavor society for young people with 45 active and 10 associate members; and a missionary society. This is certainly an admirable organization and measures up to our watchword: A C. E. Society in every church; teacher-training and organized classes in every Sunday school. Few churches show any higher efficiency in this matter of organization and few can match this church in Christian liberality and zeal. A Home Department, a C. E. for the juniors, and a temperance organization are the only approved organizations of note in institutional church and Sunday school work not found in this working church. Would that we had more Christian Memorial Temples!

Pray for teacher-training; then lend a hand.

C. E. TOPIC FOR SEPTEMBER 12th— A FEW SUGGESTIONS.

Temperance in All Things. 1 Cor.
9:23-27.

A wave of temperance sentiment has been and is now sweeping our country from shore to shore, but all the work is not yet done. It will mean nothing to pass prohibition laws unless they are enforced and they cannot be enforced unless the sentiment of the people favor them. The surest way to create and foster such a sentiment is to give it due publicity in our public assemblies of the religious kind. The importance of this meeting, then, is clear to every one.

Let the temperance committee be in charge. They should prepare a temperance chart and display it in the place of meeting.

For the Leader.—The leader should be carefully chosen. Let him be a person who is temperate in all things. The power of a temperance life is worth far more than the persuasive eloquence of temperance agitation if delivered by an intemperate person. He should insist on temperance in all things.

The Scripture.—Appoint one reader and five to comment. Let the comments be in sentences or short paragraphs at longest and let the comment be given as each verse is read.

Question Spurs.—What is temperance? What is total abstinence? What things should be wholly abstained from? Why should we be temperate in newspaper reading? In fiction reading? In sleep? In work? In eating? In talking? In exercising? In amusements?

Written Work.—Have two- or three-minute essays on the following subjects: Growth of the Temperance Idea in the U. S. Results of Intemperance. Blessings of Temperance. How Temperance May Be Brought to the Home.

Scripture References.—Hand out the following to be read in the meeting voluntarily:

Self-repression. Rom. 13:11-14.
Denial of lawful things. Matt. 5:29-30.
Excess is slavery. 1 Cor. 6:9-20.
Dangers of excess. Jude 10:16.

Sober advice. Tit. 2:2-12.
Using, not abusing. 1 Cor. 7:22-31.
Tongue-temperance. James 3:5-18.
The law of love. 1 Cor. 8:4-13.

Suggested Program.

1. Two temperance songs. Prayer.
2. Scripture and comment as suggested above.
3. Leader's remarks.
4. Chart displayed by Temperance Committee and comment.
5. Song. Chain of prayer.
6. Question spurs.
7. Written work.
8. Song. Voluntary prayers.
9. Scripture references.
10. Voluntary participation in any manner desired.
11. Pastor's five minutes.
12. Song. Offering. Mizpah.

THE S. S. LESSON FOR SEPT. 12, '09.
Close of Paul's Third Missionary Journey: Acts 21:1-17.

Golden Text.—The will of the Lord be done: Acts 21:14.

Time.—The lesson today covers four weeks before Pentecost, probably during the month of May, A. D. 58.

Paul had often set his face towards Jerusalem during his life, but never before with such a foreboding as now. He knew that God was leading him onward and yet he dreaded the experience just before him. His realization of danger did not cause him to change his plans but made him more watchful of events.

He had one great incentive dear to his heart, the writing of the Jewish and Gentile division of the church. With this undertaking Paul hoped to heal jealousy and bitterness and make a step in the progress of the Christian Church.

At Tyre Paul and his companions found disciples.

We usually find what we look for. Go to your business looking for sunshine and lo, there it shines. Come in with a bright cheery "Good morning" and you get back the same joyous greeting.

When the ship was ready to sail, on the seventh day, the entire congregation came to the shore to bid Paul and his friends "Good-bye," and they separated with prayer. Did you ever try the prayer farewell. Try it. The soap house of Colgate was founded by a poor boy from Iowa. On his way to the station when leaving his country village to go to New York, he met and old man who had always taken an interest in him. This man in bidding him farewell said, "Let us here tell God all about your hopes and prospects. Colgate became rich, but he never forgot that prayer-meeting. Paul was ready not only to be bound but to die.

All men who bring things to pass are ready to be bound and die if necessary. Roebing built the New York bridge and came to his death. He was bound to his job and died for it.

Get this spirit in business or Christian work and you are a success.

G. W. T.

—"Character! It is capital, credit, opportunity—all."

—Don't be afraid of truth; she is no invalid.—Emerson.

MOST ECONOMICAL ROOF.
Will Last as Long as the Building—Costs About the Same as Wood Shingles.

It is made of tin, the most sensible and enduring of all roofing, but it is stamped out in handsome shapes, and it is made to hinge together, so that when laid all of it is one big piece, solid, stronger, tighter, smoother, than ever a roof was before. It comes to you painted both sides, and it is so easy to lay that any competent mechanic can make a better roof with it than the most expert roofers can make with any other material.

On the house it is absolutely waterproof, fireproof, noiseproof, windproof, lightningproof, almost wearproof. The latter altogether depends on the owner. If he gives it reasonable care it will last as long as the building. Even as roofs are generally neglected, no one ever heard of a worn out Cortright Metal Shingle Roof, and they have been sold for nearly twenty-five years.

But this roofing costs very little, if any, more than ordinary wood shingles, and this refers to first cost or purchase price. When it is considered that Cortright Metal Shingles need no repairs, we can fairly say that they cost from a third to a half less than any other form of roofing, for every other roof will require renewal within a few years and constant attention for little repairs during its life time.

Roofing, at little cost, that combines rot, split, curl and burn—how slate cracks and falls off—how tar and felt roofings burn—how plain tin pulls apart, rattles and rusts—and how there must be continual patching in order to keep any of them in fair condition.

Roofing, at little cost, that combines all the beauty of the costliest materials without any of its bad qualities, is worthy of the closest attention. Particulars and finely illustrated books may be had by writing to the Cortright Metal Roofing Company, 54 North Twenty-third Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

YOU MAY WIN $500 in cash or one of 100 other large cash prizes by acting as our agent. Sample outfit free. No experience or capital necessary; Mrs. Lillian Harned of Trenton, N. J., made over $1000 in her spare time; write us to-day. McLEAN, BLACK & CO., Inc., 100 Beverly St., Boston, Mass.

TULANE
UNIVERSITY OF LOUISIANA
NEW ORLEANS

EDWIN B. CRAIGHEAD, LL. D., President.

Tulane University in all its departments is located in the City of New Orleans, the metropolis of the South. Nine Departments, with twenty-three buildings. Modern dormitories, extensive laboratories, libraries, and museums.

Full Courses are offered in Languages, Sciences, Engineering, Architecture, Art, Law, Medicine, Pharmacy, and Dentistry.

Separate Department for Women. Expenses low. Low dormitory rates. Next session of all departments, except N. O. Polytechnic, begins October 1st. Polytechnic opens November 1st. Send for catalogue. Address, R. K. BRUFF, Secretary.

IT'S INTERESTING

to hear the different comments on different Shoes. All shoes have some good points; Style or comfort or service.

WALK-OVER SHOES

have all the good points; style and comfort and service and their price is the best point of all. $3.50, 4.00 & 5.00.

Foster Shoe Co., Burlington, N. C.

Dry Goods, Notions, Ready Made Clothing.

When in Burlington visit our large store, supplied always with the very best and latest styles and novelties.

Our Dry Goods are of latest designs, and our Ready Made Clothing cannot be surpassed in quality and price.

Come, See. Be Convinced.

B. A. SELLARS & SONS. BURLINGTON, N. C.

D I E D.

Holland.

Hardy Holland, Sr., departed this life at his home near Holland, Va., Aug. 9, 1909, aged 73 years. The funeral services were conducted at the home by the writer and the remains interred in Holland cemetery. The deceased was a member of Holy Neck Church. He leaves a widow, three daughters, Mrs. J. R. Holland, Mrs. E. T. Holland, of Holland, Va., and Mrs. J. G. Williams, of Suffolk, Va., and one son, Hardy Holland, Jr., of Ocean View, Va., also a half brother, J. K. Holland, and two half sisters, Mrs. Jos. F. Holland and Miss Anna Holland, all of Holland, Va. To all of these we extend our sincere sympathy and pray the divine blessing upon them. N. G. Newman.

ENEMIES OF THE TRUTH.

Have we not grown tired of the very mention of the word "truth?" Of all the cant phrases of our time, none have been oftener used than this one: "Seeking the truth." The geologist, cracking the stones in the wilderness, consoles himself with the thought that he is seeking the truth. In fact, he may be seeking to hold his job at the school at which he is a professor. If he should chance to discover something that might endanger that, he would be filled with a spirit of great caution. The astronomer searches the heavens that he may know the truth; but if that truth should bring a dungeon or a cell, most of these would scarcely have the doubtful bravery of a Galileo. The philosopher and theologian seem intent upon its discovery, when, if the real reasons were known, they are more intent on bolstering up their system or defending their party than they are in knowing God's thought. According to a Danish story, Truth heard her praises sung to such an extent that she determined to visit the earth that she might know the joys of a royal welcome. She sought such in the temple, in the cell of a hermit, in the halls of a statesman, in the study of the poet, but was turned from all these doors and only found rest at last in the squalid home of a fool, who took her to be a lie. That there are many who are eager "to think God's thoughts after him" goes without saying; but their voices are drowned by the multitudinous voices of those who are eager to bolster up decaying systems to more firmly establish their own prerogatives or feather their downy nests.

Jesus Christ revered truth. He said of himself: "I am the Way, the Truth, and the Life." He said to his disciples: "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." He expected his disciples to be sanctified through the truth; and so eager was he that they might know it that he thought it expedient that he go away in order that the Holy Spirit might come, and the chief function of this Holy Spirit was to lead them into all truth. His kingdom is the mystical, intangible, and yet powerful kingdom of the truth.

The enemies of the truth are not external to the heart, but within it. These are as subtle as the serpent and as persistent as Satan. They masquerade in truth's cast-off clothing, and effect a zeal which would have delighted a Xavier. Error never lacks for euphonious names with which to christen her brood of harpies; their appearance would deceive the very elect.

Not least amongst these enemies is Bigotry, who is clothed in the garments of a holy zeal and christened with the name of "faith once delivered to the saints." Bigotry stands with averted head, closed eyes, refusing either to look or hear. Says Colton: "Bigotry murders religion to frighten fools with her ghost."

Ultra-conservatism and ultra-radicalism are equally enemies of right knowledge. The one refuses to believe that the twentieth century hath any wisdom, but must continually hark back to the fathers of the Church. Nothing is true that is over a thousand years old. Conservatism ties its faith to the bones of dead ecclesiasts, and seems to enjoy the odor of the grave. Radicalism, on the contrary, is ever looking for the novel and the startling. The latest vagary is received simply because it is the latest. Many men are determined to be at the head of the procession even though it be bound for the wilderness. Let us remember that centuries ago Truth whispered her revelation into the ear of listening sages, and we have no account that in recent

REMEMBER: That we guarantee satisfaction and sell to you cheaper than the publisher and dealers do. Our business is by mail and express and prices quoted are the prices of goods delivered to you. We can furnish you the Oxford, or the Holman Teacher's Bible at prices ranging from $1.35 to $4.00. Send for our catalogue or write us what you want. Address years she has been stricken with dumbness. Not how old, nor how new, but how true ought to be our motto.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN, Elon College, N. C.

But the greatest enemy, perhaps, of all is prejudice. We see the transcript of our own minds and a reflection of our own prejudices, and christen these with a sacred name. James Russell Lowell tells of a man who went forth to seek Truth and finally looked for her in a well. Seeing the reflection of his own person there, he took it for the person he sought, and declared that Truth was far more beautiful than he had thought. The scientists of Galileo's time refused to even look through his telescope. So warped was the great mind of old Dr. Samuel Johnson that he could not see anything good in Scotland or her people. Even in an impersonal work like a dictionary his personal peculiarities were visible. Thomas Carlyle refused to attend an anti-vivisection meeting because he heard that Cardinal Manning was to be there, saying that "the same roof could not cover them both." To a distorted vision the whole world looks awry.

Another enemy of the truth is love of ease. Emerson has said that "God has offered to every mind its choice—truth and repose. Take which you please, you can never have both." All of earth's great men have been storm-driven. Says John Ruskin: "How much did Homer get for his 'Iliad,' or Dante for his 'Inferno?' Only bitter bread and salt and going up and down other people's stairs. In science the man who discovered the telescope and first saw the heavens was paid with a dungeon; the man who invented the microscope and first saw the earth died of starvation. God intends all thoroughly good work and talk to be done for nothing. Stephen did not get a bishop's pay for that long sermon of his to the Pharisees—nothing but stones."

A new truth is at best very troublesome. There is an old legend that in the garden of Eden there stood a magnificent temple, its stones fitting well together, symmetrical and beautiful. Each separate stone was a truth, and these were so joined as to produce an architectural perfection. At the fall of man these stones were scattered throughout the earth, and it is man's lot to discover these stones and to rebuild the temple. It becomes very troublesome, when our building is well-nigh complete, to have some one bring us a stone that belongs at the very foundation. To level our structure and begin again the labor is too much for our determination. We first argue with our troublesome friend, try to cajole him or bribe him into silence, and if these methods prove una-

Say It!	Headaches.	Headaches.	Headaches.
	Biliousness.	Biliousness.	Biliousness.
	Constipation.	Constipation.	Constipation.
	Ayer's Pills.	Ayer's Pills.	Ayer's Pills.
	Sugar-coated.	Sugar-coated.	Sugar-coated.
	Easy to take.	Easy to take.	Easy to take.
over again.	Don't forget.	Don't forget.	Don't forget.

If your doctor says this is all right, then say it over and over again.
J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Why You Should take the Herald of Gospel Liberty

- BECAUSE it furnishes needed information in a thoroughly interesting and up-to-date manner.
- BECAUSE it interprets movements within the Christian Church in a Christian spirit in relation to other churches throughout the world.
- BECAUSE the Christian Church could not do its part as a Christian Church without a newspaper like the Herald of Gospel Liberty.
- BECAUSE it is the best religious newspaper published in America, having proved itself for ONE HUNDRED YEARS the friend of the entire family, chronicling each week the progress of the world by its record of current events interpreted from a Christian standpoint, bringing interesting and helpful reading of the highest literary quality for every member of the family, old and young.

TERMS: $1.50 PER YEAR

Send for sample copies

Christian Publishing Association

J. N. HESS, Agent

DAYTON, OHIO

VITA SPRING

(Alkaline Chalybeate)

MINERAL WATER

The Peerless Medicinal Properties of this Water Make it
Nature's Own Remedy

for the cure of indigestion, liver and kidney trouble, uric acid poisoning, gastritis, constipation, rheumatism and all specific complaints caused by impure blood. As an illustration, its curative power is so great that old sores bathed several times each day in Vita Spring Mineral Water, disappear in a few days. It is recommended by

The House of Representatives of South Carolina
as "a pure mineral water of medicinal properties."
From the thousands of unsolicited testimonials received from relieved sufferers, we quote the following:

A. L. R. Avant, M. D., Savannah, Ga., says: "It made me feel like my former self."	me a better color than I have had in years."
Miss L. B. Terry, Barton, S. C. Says: "It relieved me of indigestion and gave	R. B. Tarrant, P. M., Springfield, S. C., says: "It acted nicely on my kidneys. A fine invigorator."

Special introductory price, 5-gallon demijohns, $1 per 5 gallons.
Send for free illustrated and descriptive booklet.
Local agents wanted.

The Vita Spring
Shelton, S. C.

ANALYSIS
Calcium Carbonate	12.505
Magnesium Carbonate	3.399
Calcium Sulphate	.577
Sodium Sulphate	4.565
Potassium Sulphate	.624
Sodium Chloride	5.964
Iron Sesquioxide and Alumina	.023
Silica	2.303
	29.960

vailing we find the fagot a warm argument with which to meet him. Love of ease leads to over-caution. We hear quoted frequently the fact that Jesus said: "I have many things to say unto you, but ye cannot bear them now."

Did Christ conceal his thought from his disciples or allow them to believe a lie? He did not have a creed for the closet and another for the market place. Candor must mark the expressions of him who would hold converse with Truth.

She will not sit by the student's side in the study unless he is willing to walk with her on the streets. Courage ought not to be a lost trait of character.

"Careless seems the great Avenger; history's pages but record
One death-grapple in the darkness 'twixt old systems and the Word;
Truth forever on the scaffold, wrong forever on the throne,
Yet that scaffold sways the future, and, behind the dim unknown,
Standeth God within the shadow, keeping watch above his own."

—Rev. J. W. Moore, in National Christian Advocate.

HIGHER PRICES FOR PRODUCE. One Way the Rural Telephone Can Be Used to Advantage.

The time is rapidly passing when the farmer has to sacrifice his consignments of market produce at whatever price the commission merchant feels disposed to allow him. He is beginning to learn that it is better to post himself on market quotations before shipment, and if the market is low, to wait until its tone improves. To do this is one of the advantages of having a telephone. Of course it costs money for telephone service, much less than you think, unless you made inquiries lately, but nevertheless, this opportunity for getting in touch with dealers in towns and securing their prices before making shipments is now putting millions of dollars annually into the pockets of American farmers.

At present there are over 4,000,000 telephones and no calamity imaginable would be worse and more disastrous to social and commercial conditions than obliteration of the telephone system. It is the strongest bond that holds the world together. It is man's greatest convenience. The day is coming when everybody, including the farmers of America, will have telephones.

Of late years the telephone company has been giving the farmers' needs in the matter considerable attention and the result is the formation of a plan by which the resident of the rural sections may become connected with the local lines in the cities nearest them at very trifling expense, besides enjoying all the advantages of long-distance service when desired. And when a party of farmers in a neighborhood get together and build a line, the service can be made to cost as low as 50 cents a month. To get all the information available on this subject, write to the nearest Bell telephone manager or to the Farmer's Line Department, Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Co., 19 South Pryor St., Atlanta, Ga., and ask for free descriptive booklet. A postal will do.

LAST POPULAR EXCURSION OF THE SEASON TO ASHEVILLE, N. C.

The Southern Railway announces the operation of their last popular excursion of the season to Asheville, N. C., on Sep. 15th. Train will leave Goldsboro at 6:45 A. M., taking on passengers up to and including Lexington, N. C. Round trip from Goldsboro, $5.00; Selma, $5.00, Raleigh, $4.75; Durham, $4.75; Greensboro,

Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Is paying out and investing in both Virginia and North Carolina more than it receives from these States.

New business in Virginia, 1908,
$2,147,800

Larger than any other company.

Gain in insurance in force in Virginia, 1908,
$1,374,975

60 per cent more than the next largest.

T. ARCHIBALD CARY, General Agent for Virginia and North Carolina,
Richmond, Virginia.

During 1909

(As in previous years)

We want you in our business, for we have what you want in your homes—the very best, most substantial and handsome furniture at bottom prices. We are also the undertakers.

Burke Furniture and Coffin Company

BUKLLINGTON, N. C.

Southern Railway

Operating Over 7,000 Miles of Railway. Quick Route to all Points North,
South, East and West.

For Speed, Comfort, Courteous Employees, travel via the Southern Railway.
Rates, Schedules and other information furnished by any of the undersigned.

R. L. VERNON, Trav. Pass. Agt., J. H. WOOD, Dist. Pass. Agt.,
Charlotte, N. C. Asheville, N. C.

S. H. HARDWICK, P. T. M., W. H. TAYLOR, G. P. A.,
Washir gton, D. C.

Elon College.

Co-educational. Established 1890.

Thorough College courses leading to M. A., A. B., and Ph. B. degrees. Strong and experienced Faculty with highest University training. Good Library, Reading Room, Laboratories, Literary Societies. Excellent Music, Art, Elocution and Business Departments. Diploma from Elon admits to graduate departments in the highest universities.

Beautiful and healthful location, 17 miles east of Greensboro on Southern Railway. Best moral and religious influence. No hazing. New students met by reception committees from young people's Christian organizations connected with the college. Good equipment. A large new dormitory, with modern conveniences, has recently been built to meet the requirements of growing patronage.

EXPENSES UNUSUALLY MODERATE. FALL TERM OPENS SEPT. 1ST.

For catalogue or further information, address

EMMETT L. MOFFITT, LL. D., President.

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

$4.50. Tickets will be limited to return on any regular train leaving Asheville up to and including Sep. 18th. You will note this gives you three days and three nights which will afford ample time in which to visit the various points of interest in and around Asheville, Toxaway, Hendersonville and Waynesville, also other points of interest in "The Land of the Sky," and just at this season of the year the mountains are at their best.

For further information ask your nearest Agent or address the undersigned.

R. H. DeBntts,
Trav. Passenger Agent,

OPIUM or Morphine Habit Treated. Free trial cases where other remedies have failed, specially desired. Confidential.
Dr. R. G. CONTRELL, successor to HARRIS INSTITUTE, Room 552, No. 400 W. 23rd St., New York.

FREE DEAFNESS CURE.

A remarkable offer by one of the leading ear specialists in this country, who will send two months' medicine free to prove his ability to cure Deafness, Head Noises, and Catarrh. Address Dr. G. M. Branaman, 1100 Walnut St., Kansas City Mo.

The Christian Sun.

In Essentials—Unity, in Non-Essentials—Liberty, in All Things—Charity.

ESTABLISHED 1844.

GREENSBORO N. C., WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 15, 1909. VOLUME LXI. NUMBER 36.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

A conservative estimate of the children born in the United States annually is two and a half millions. Of this number fifteen per cent, or three hundred and seventy-five thousand perish during their first year. New York City alone lost 16,230 infants during their first year in 1908. It is believed by the New York Milk Committee that this death rate can be decreased fifty per cent largely by the use of pure milk properly supplied. The enormous increase of mortality in the summer months is largely among bottle-fed infants.

If a voter were to change his political affiliations as rapidly as political parties change their platforms he would be counted a turn coat indeed and with good reason. It will be remembered that the Republican party, in the Bryan-McKinley campaign, won its great victory by opposing "the free and unlimited coinage of silver." And yet only six years prior to that time a Republican Senate passed a flat free-coinage of silver bill. The Democrats lost out on what a Republican Senate had proposed. The last Democratic platform said, "We favor an income tax and urge the submission of a constitutional amendment." The Democrat lost out on that issue, but a Republican administration has submitted the amendment. Scores of such instances could be recorded, all of which indicate that one would have to run fast and turn often to be consistent and keep up with the political procession. What if the ways of religion were as devious and doubtful as the ways of politics? The world would be full of skeptics, and justly.

Giving is a part of the Christian scheme. This for the reason that unless one gives, one's heart grows smaller with increasing gain. Unless one would have his heart become as hard as his dollars, and as merciless as their might, one must give, give, give. It is a merciful God's method of opening, and keeping open, to good influences, the heart of man. Some people's purse string is so close to their heart string, and tight with it, that the only method of reaching, and opening the heart, is through the purse. It was best for man to give of his gain, and his savings, to support the charity and philanthropy of the world, and so God ordained.

But giving for good purposes, and for the church, is more than all this. In a recent editorial the Sunday School Times well says:

"Those who have most to give need to give most. For the more we have, the greater is the temptation to hold on to what we have, with the consequent stopping of our growth and peril to our life. Our giving must increase with our getting, or with every increase in our possessions we shall lose more than we get. The world knows that the most generous givers in the world are poor, and the least generous are the rich. We may not understand why the gaining of possessions has this sure tendency; but we must recognize it if we would escape its perils; and we must fight against it. The way to fight it is to give, give, give. "If a man is growing large in wealth, nothing but constant giving can keep him from growing small in soul."

—Apace with the records on the land and in the air goes the record of the Mauretania and the Lusitania on the water. These marvelous sister ships have made it possible for a man who breakfasts in New York Wednesday morning to dine in London Monday night. On Wednesday morning at ten o'clock the Mauretania sailed east from New York and dropped anchor at Fishguard, on the coast of Wales, at 1:15 P. M. on Monday. The official time of her trip was four days, 14 hours and 27 minutes. On Saturday, the Lusitania left Liverpool at 5 P. M. and on Thursday night, at eight o'clock, she landed her passengers at the New York dock. Her official time was 4 days, 11 hours, and 42 minutes. To have made such time means that these steamers must have made 30 miles an hour steadily. These ships are not equaled in size nor in rapidity of travel and, what is of as much importance, they are not surpassed in their comfort and luxuriousness.

—There can be no real reform in farm life unless the farmer grows as well as his crop. He can grow only by achievement—by accomplishing something of which he may justly be proud. As soon as he begins to achieve and to grow he will become healthfully discontented with his unnecessary hardships and limitations. He will want a better house in which to live, a better school for his children, better public roads, and more modern conveniences. And with the larger bank account which must follow his larger crop he will satisfy his wants. No wonder the General Education Board has added to the Government appropriations $75,000 a year for the extension of such new farming as leads to these things.—Outlook, Sep. 11th.

—The great Swedish strike was formally called off by the Labor Federation on September 6. This strike was practically a failure, for although 285,700 men in almost all trades were out at one time the commercial and social life of the country was not paralyzed but only temporarily impeded. The most remarkable feature about the strike was its peaceableness—this is ascribed to the closing of the saloons and is an example of the good results of total abstinence.

—Toys play a surprising role in the world of commerce. Over $50,000,000 worth of toys have been imported into the United States within the last ten years. During the same period about $5,000,000 worth were exported. Germany leads in these imported goods, out of a total of $7,250,000 imported in 1908, $6,500,000 come from Germany.

—At about 3:35 in the afternoon of September 9, the great railroad magnate, Edward H. Harriman, breathed his last. Mr. Harriman had just returned from abroad, where he went to seek health, and the statement that he was suffering with cancer comes from a Vienna specialist who treated him while there. Mr. Harriman was a great financier and no one will be fully able to take his place in the world of finance.

—There are now two heroes of the Arctic regions—Dr. Cook reached the North Pole April 21, 1908 and just one year later Mr. Peary announces that he reached it. The whole world will wait impatiently for these explorers to prove their feat and give the story of their respective journeys of hardships and trials.

FROM THE FIELD.

Pope's Chapel.

Saturday, July 24th, I commenced my meeting at Pope's Chapel. Sunday a. m. Rev. W. C. Wicker filled the pulpit, to the delight of a fine, attentive congregation. He left that p. m.

The church was greatly revived and I feel sure much good was accomplished.

There were three accessions.

Shallow Well.

Aug. 8th the series of annual meetings commenced at Shallow Well, Lee Co. There was a reunion of old soldiers at Jonesboro. the 11th, Wednesday, at which Gov. Kitchen spoke. Thinking about, preparing for and going to this meeting militated much against our revival.

There were two accessions. I have received fifteen into this church since conference.

Good Hope.

Sunday, August 22, I began a meeting at Good Hope, which closed the following Sabbath. This was a gracious revival. Nine accessions and the church much encouraged.

Youngsville.

Tomorrow, Sept. 4th, I commence a meeting in Youngsville. I am looking forward with hope and praying for a revival.

Rev. G. R. Underwood, of Sanford, comes to my assistance Monday.

Having a field of six congregations, the responsibility upon me is much and the work heavy. But, it is an inspiration, and the seed of truth and life and salvation, I delight to sow in the fertile soil of the immortal human mind. There is however, one sad thought and that is, so many human hearts are preoccupied, for an enemy of man and God has been there and has so nearly accomplished his fiendish design, in that he has poisoned the aspirations and seared the conscience of that being created in the image of God. J. W. Patton.

September 3, 1909.

Six Forks.

The protracted meeting at Six forks, Wake Co., N. C., was commenced the fourth Sunday in August, and continued six days. The congregations were very large and attentive. Bro. L. F. Johnson did most of the preaching. The people enjoyed it. He is an interesting speaker. There were about 10 converts, and seven united with the church. There has been an excellent union spirit among God's people of the various denominations in all the meetings of my charge this year. May the Lord help us all to do His will. W. G. Clements.

Raleigh.

Dear Bro. Atkinson: Please excuse me for the long delay in reporting my work to the Christian Sun readers. I have been so very busy this summer that I have had but little time to write.

It is known to the most of our people that I have a very hard field here in Raleigh. I am doing all I can to change that impression; most of all I am working hard to change the real condition of the work. I think I can see signs of progress. The day is breaking just a little bit. I am not at all discouraged, but rather hopeful all the time. After nine months' hard work I feel more encouraged than ever. If the faithful few here and the brotherhood at large will stand by me, I fully believe that we will in a very few years have a strong, self-sustaining church in this city. My impression is that it is not only possible, but that we are going to have it.

Our Sunday-school under the leadership of Mr. C. H. Stephenson is doing well. Our people have great confidence in him. I have no doubt that he will carry the school forward in every way possible. The average attendance for the past quarter was fifty-five. We think it a good showing for the summer. We hope to make a much better showing for the Fall and Winter. We need about two more good teachers. We can boast of one of the best schools in the Eastern Conference. We hope to get these teachers very soon, though we realize that a successful Sunday school teacher is very hard to find. Let us hope that our Teacher-training course will help to solve this very difficult problem. Our Sunday school work is important enough to demand the co-operation of all the members of the church. I do not see how a church member can feel easy not to have one thing to do with Sunday-school. It seems to me to be the real church at work. Every member of the church should be a member of the Sunday school. Our brother Stephenson has this idea, and he is going to try to make it practicable for every member of the church in Raleigh to get into the Sunday school. We have all the organized departments and make provision for membership from the cradle to the grave.

Our ladies' Aid Society improves every month. The attendance at the last meeting was very good. The society is doing a great deal of good. The influence is beginning to be felt in our work. I am delighted to see the interest and enthusiasm that is manifest among these good women. I have common sense enough to know that a church will never die with a live up-to-date Ladies' Aid Society to keep it going. Our good ladies have already done a few things worthy of special mention. Our communion service and pulpit furniture have been greatly improved. They have other things in mind to do. We will just wait and see what they will do. I have no doubt that the society will give us many pleasant surprises, if it continues in the good way. We hope that all the women of our church will get into the society, and lend a helping hand. Surely it is a good thing to be associated with a successful Ladies' Aid Society.

The cottage prayer meeting services continue with increased results. There were two requests for prayer at the last meeting. I think that the cottage prayer meeting will be a means of grace to many souls and a very great blessing to our church. The regular church prayer meeting has been kept up all the summer, though sometimes the attendance has been small. Surely more of our people ought to be in the prayer meeting. It would make business and domestic affairs run more smoothly the balance of the week. We need just that little refreshment that a sweet prayer service always gives. May the Lord by the gift of His Holy Spirit send more of our people into the meetings.

It has been my good pleasure to be in a few protracted meetings during the summer. I have never enjoyed the revival meetings more than I have this season. I have preached more than fifty times and have seen as many converts since the first week in July. I have been in meetings with the following ministers: C. E. Newman, L. E. Smith, R. P. Crumpler, W. G. Clements. I will not take the space to report the results, since the pastors in charge have already reported, or will report the meetings. It is enough for me to say that I thoroughly enjoyed being with the preachers and their congregations. I was kindly treated in every place, and it just looked like that every time I moved the last place was the best. I shall never forget the friendship and the thoughtfulness of the many friends that I have seen during the summer. I am now in my field hard at work expecting and looking for the best to come to me and my work. I am happy in my love and service for my Lord and Master.

L. F. Johnson.

Several Meetings.

At the close of the scholastic year 1908-9 my churches were kind enough to grant me a month's vacation. May each of them rest assured that this special kindness was most heartily appreciated and thoroughly enjoyed by their pastor.

And, too, it is very natural that I should spend this vacation in my native state. It was indeed a pleasure to meet my parents, relatives and friends and especially to visit some of those churches with which I have labored before coming to Elon.

Mt. Auburn.

I returned to N. C. early in July to conduct my meetings before the college opened. Before beginning the meetings in my charge, however, it was my very great pleasure to be with Rev. Jas. L. Foster in a series of meetings at Mt. Auburn. This is a strong spiritual church, quite fond of their pastor and wide awake for his interest.

O'Kelley's Chapel.

After leaving Mt. Auburn I came to O'Kelley's Chapel and began a series of meetings there on Saturday before the 3rd Sunday in July.

Rev. L. I. Cox came to the writer's assistance on Monday following. Bro. Cox was scarcely himself, suffering from a severe headache during the entire meeting, but notwithstanding his illness, Bro. Cox did himself credit when he went into the pulpit. His sermons were logical, forceful, effective and very much appreciated by the good people at this place.

The meeting resulted in six conversions and three additions to the church, and a genuine revival in the church.

The church here has taken on new life and is quite enthusiastic at present. Having recently completed some repairs on the building, begun some time ago, we have now a practically modern house, nicely furnished, including new pews, new pulpit, new pulpit chairs, carpet and organ. Total cost of repairs about five hundred and fifty dollars, and we were fortunate enough to have the church clear of debt at the completion of these repairs.

Graham.

Our meeting began here the fourth Sunday in July assisted by Rev. L. F. Johnson of Raleigh, N. C. Bro. Johnson is a strong, forceful preacher and a very enthusiastic worker in revival meetings. The meeting began with interest and continued to grow, until the close, resulting in ten conversions and two additions to the church. We are expecting more to join.

Pleasant Ridge.

Leaving Park's Cross Roads, where I had been assisting Rev. L. I. Cox in a very successful revival, I began a meeting with Pleasant Ridge church, the fourth Sunday. The congregation at opening service was estimated at about one thousand. Monday there were six conversions, Tuesday Rev. James L. Foster arrived to assist the writer. The people were delighted with "Uncle Jim's" preaching and well they might be, for he preaches the Word.

The meeting closed Friday night resulting in 24 conversions and 20 additions to the church, eleven of the number being grown young men. As these young men stood in the church altar Bro. Foster offered a fervent prayer, asking God to call some of these young men to the gospel ministry.

On Thursday of the next week we met at the water for baptism. There were five more applicants for membership, and twenty-eight candidates were baptized. More are expected to join at the next regular appointment. I have been preaching at this point only in afternoons, serving it from Ramseur.

Our great need at this church is a new church building. We are well able to build it and hope to begin the plans in the near future.

Ramseur.

A series of meetings began with this church fifth Sunday afternoon. The first service was very impressive. On Monday following Rev. L. I. Cox arrived to assist the pastor and in his usual manner attracted a large congregation, who listened prayerfully and untiringly to his gospel messages.

The meeting was indeed a success for this church, resulting in 22 conversions and four additions to the church. Expecting more applicants at next appointment. My work is in the best condition I have known it. I trust that we have your prayers, that this year may be a great success to the work.

A few days ago received a very nice little remembrance from some unknown friends signed, "Your Georgia Cousins," asking to hear from me through the Sun. I trust that they will see this and feel sure that the remembrance was most heartily appreciated.

L. E. Smith.

Union (Southampton).

I wish to say through our church paper, that I don't believe our church laws and regulations are put into practice and carried out as they should be; I believe the churches are becoming mixed with the world too much. There should be a distinction.

Every church has its rules and regulations and I dare say that if they were examined they would prove to be good ones. But then the question comes, Are they carried out? It seems to me that if one would say, No, he would answer the question correctly. I believe if a church wants to prosper and grow, it must be a united people trying to work for that one good cause in brotherly love one for another. Christ should be our example. I notice on one occasion that when Christ went into the temple, he purged the temple, and we are told that he cast out them that bought and sold in the temple and overthrew the tables of the money-changers and the seats of them that sold doves. It seems to me there should be a distinction between the church and the world, that is, if we want the work to grow and prosper; for we are told that a divided house cannot stand. I believe in trying to save souls, but when we approach a man about his souls welfare and profess that which we are not and that man knows it by the life we are living, do you think our talk would prevail? I have heard people make such remarks as this: "Mr. A. tried to talk to me today about my soul, and I wouldn't change chances with him now." So you see, my dear readers, there should be a division or a difference that will be seen and noticed with the people who are trying to serve the Lord, so when we use our influence it will be for good and accomplish much.

I believe it wise to see that our church rules are put into practice and that we are governed by them if we want to do the work that we should accomplish.

R. H. Joyner.

Holy Neck.

The protracted meeting at Holy Neck Christian Church, Nansmond Co., Va., was held the week before the first Sunday in September, and was conducted by Dr. J. O. Atkinson. His earnest, faithful and vigorous presentation of the Word was much appreciated and enjoyed. There were about eighteen or twenty professions and thirteen accessions to the church. One candidate was baptized by effusion at the church the first Sunday morning and seven by immersion at Norfleet's pond in the afternoon.

N. G. Newman.

Smithwood.

On the morning of the 4th Sunday, Aug. 22, Rev. E. L. Stack, with the assistance of Rev. J. F. Morgan of Elon College, began a series of meetings at Smithwood Church, which continued until Friday night, there being three services each day. With the earnest prayers and co-operation of the Christian people the meeting was a success. There were thirty conversions and fifteen of that number united with the church. There are others who intend to join. The meeting was well attended.

Bro. Morgan won a host of friends during his stay and we feel sure his presence will long be remembered and our prayers are that success will crown his efforts in helping to spread the Gospel.

Loraine Black,
Cuma Reitzel.

NOTES AND PERSONALS.

—Before trying the "new religion," have you tried sufficiently the old religion and found it lacking?

—As the revival season closes pastors and churches turn their effort and attention to raising conference apportionments and getting all in readiness for the annual gathering of the churches.

—Pastor W. L. Wells, assisted by Revs. L. I. Cox and J. W. Wellons held a successful revival last week at Pleasant Hill, near Liberty, N. C. Twenty-nine were baptized. The church was much revived.

—Is there a Christian home in which a word of grace and gratitude is not said by some member of the family at the beginning of each meal of the day? Does not every heart owe that much to the Giver of all bounty?

—The front page of the North Carolina Sunday School Beacon for Sept-Nov. carries a fine "cut" of Major E. Moffitt, Asheboro, as President of the N. C. Sunday School Association. There is also an appreciative sketch, all of which is richly deserved. Bro. Moffitt is a wide awake Sunday-school man.

—Many of our churches are organizing Christian Endeavor Societies, a very helpful and hopeful thing for any church. If no other work is done, the several committees appointed to different duties are worth while. Often people in the church are "poor church workers" because they are given no work to do.

—One brother is willing to contribute half a dollar on a typewriter for Bro. C. E. Newman though he has received from him only one short letter in six months—the half dollar being to provide against a similar emergency even as remote as six, or twelve, months. If Bro. N. fails of the typewriter, we have made up our minds to set him a few "copies" written in our own hand, and give him a few writing lessons free of charge.

—Rev. A. P. Barbee, pastor, has recently conducted a successful revival at Catawba Springs church, Wake Co. There were many conversions and some eighteen or twenty accessions to the church. Bro. Barbee is deservedly held in loving esteem by this good people whom he has served to great acceptance for some years. He is happy in the confidence and loyalty of the church, and the church is prosperous and rejoiced in the efficient service and labors of their devoted pastor.

—The next session of the Southern Christian Convention is appointed to begin Tuesday before the first Sunday in May 1910. The several conferences composing the Convention will elect delegates this fall. (One Conference, the Virginia Valley Central, has already met and elected its delegates). By the new rules, every Conference is to be represented by one delegate to every two hundred members; and every regularly organized Conference shall have the right to send at least two delegates. The place of the next session is to be chosen by the Executive Committee, Rev. W. W. Staley, D. D., Suffolk, Va., chairman. Where shall the next session be held? is now a pertinent and timely question.

—The occasion that called the editor to Suffolk Va. last week was quite a sad one. Others with a steadier hand than ours will write of the going away of Blanche Williamson, of how the preacher, her pastor, spake tender words of comfort and consolation over her bier at the Suffolk Christian Church, of how they covered her casket, and the mound beneath which they laid her in Cedar Hill cemetery with fragrant and beautiful flowers. But none will write of her who knew so well as the writer the beautiful life she lived, the sweet disposition she had, the patient suffering she bore, and the calm, peaceful death she died. Her family and those who knew her best will never more see in their gardens one flower sweeter and more fragrant than the rest, but that it will remind them of dear, sweet, lovely Blanche. We doubt if that person lives who ever marked an unkind word that fell from her lips, or noted one ungenerous act wrought by her hand. If ever flower bloomed, in an earthly home, to be transplanted while yet in the freshness and fullness of its fragrance, in the heavenly home, here is the striking instance. She taught her brothers and sisters, her father and mother, her friends and loved ones how to live beautifully, to endure patiently, and to die triumphantly. This heart of ours could no more forget a life like that than it could forget the light of noontide, or the glory of sunset. Kind, amiable, generous Sister Blanche, beautiful in life, patient in affliction, composed in death, angelic in memory.

THE DENOMINATIONAL COLLEGE.

There be those who are inclined to discredit the great work being done by the denominational college. The Herald and Presbyter has been summarizing some of the chief merits of the church college, and makes the following strong and emphatic claim:

"It set the standard of American education and has maintained it.

"It is the mother of college presidents and America's most prominent educators.

"It is the college which has furnished the church with its ministry.

"Its American patriotism has been tested by two wars, and not found wanting.

"Its form of government is truly American and free from politics.

"It is thoroughly Christian, yet free from bigotry.

"Its scientific departments are manned by scholarly, Christian men.

"It is free from that irreligious sectarianism which denies a place to the Bible in the curriculum of study.

"It believes in a philosophy which holds to a personal God, a divine Christ, an immortal soul, and an imperative duty.

"It is free from agnosticism and pantheism, the greatest foes of Christian truth.

"Fundamental in its curriculum is love for all truth. It does not prejudice the student against the truth of revelation by refusing it a place in the curriculum.

"It believes that the formative element in history in Christianity and that any curriculum is defective which fails to teach it.

"It believes that the words of Jesus and Paul should be studied, as well as those of Socrates and Plato.

"It believes that teachers of youth should know the truth.

"It is an institution born of sound doctrine, and fostered by those who have a vital faith.

"Its educational work has been done for less money than that of any other agency. It is the greatest tax-saving institution in the State.

"It gives the greatest return to the country of any philanthropic investment known to Christian men and women.

"It is the safest investment of Christian money known to the church.

"Its students, coming from the best Christian homes, help to create a clean, strong collegiate life.

"Its students are taught to live economically, to think rightly, and to act nobly.

"Its products the well-trained, accomplished Christian citizen."

Let those who think the denominational college useless think over these claims, and see if one of them can be repudiated. In this connection Christian Sun readers with sons and daughters to educate may well consider our own Elon College.

—Balloons are competing with automobiles for sight-seeing in Paris. Under favorable winds balloons are floated above the city for two hours and passengers see the city "from on high."

THE S. S. LESSON FOR SEPT. 19, '09.

Review. Read 1 Cor. 13:1-10.

Golden Text.—So mightily grew the word of God and prevailed. Acts 19:20.

The lessons of this quarter cover the events between the council at Jerusalem and Paul's final visit to that sacred city. They include the second and third missionary journeys, and represent about seven years, from A. D. 49 or 50 to A. D. 56 or 57.

During this time Paul won the freedom of the Christian Church, breaking down the walls of Judaism. He founded three new groups of churches in Greece, Macedonia and Asia. He also wrote six of the letters which have become a part of the recognized message of God to his church.

Lesson 1. This came on the glorious fourth and all christian patriots rejoice that Paul moved from Asia to Europe.

We smile when we read of his success. His first convert in Europe was Lydia in Philippi.

Lesson 2. Paul is in hostile surroundings this lesson. He and his companion Silas are falsely accused, beaten and put into prison. They were delivered and the jailor who had charge was about to kill himself when assured of Paul's presence he became converted and was baptized. Then at the request of the city authorities Paul and Silas left their city.

Lesson 3. Paul was of good habits and on his first Sunday at Thessalonica and Berea he was admitted into the best society of the town.

Lesson 4. We go with Paul to Athens, a town of culture and here he is at his best. He finds one thing lacking, which of itself renders all the accomplishments of the Athenians equal with the feats of trained animals.

Lesson 5. The proud Athens is given over and Corinth shows rough and tough. The worst lived here. Yet in this place Paul founded a great church.

Lesson 6. Our tireless worker wrote nice letters to his friends. This lesson is one of them. He not only tells them to be good and cheer up, but sets them an example. He is used to hard experiences but he rejoices always.

Lesson 7. Paul made a stir in the town of Ephesus. Satan attempted to defeat the heaven-touched man. Whenever Satan runs up against the genuinely good there is trouble for Satan.

Lesson 8. Paul is in a riot. He went at Ephesian wickedness in no compromising manner. Yet after the riot quieted he here planted one of the strongest churches.

Lesson 9. This epistle to the Corinthians was penned before the riot at Ephesus. This lesson is beautiful as literature and contains the sum of Christian ethics.

Lesson 10. If you have a good bye to say, can you have the assurance that you have coveted no man's gold? Could you commend the dear ones to God? Do you know God? He knows you. Then commend all to his loving care and keeping.

Lesson 11. Coasting along Asia Minor, Pataria is reached and the party change vessels for Tyre. Here they wait seven days, then to Ptolemais. Then by land they reach Caesarea. Here Paul is warned not to go to Jerusalem. He is determined to go, reaches the city and is welcomed by friends. G. W. T.

TEMPERANCE FORCES MUST BE VIGILANT.

To the People of North Carolina:

Approved by the hearts and minds of an even larger majority of the people of the State than the forty-four thousand majority by which it was ratified last May, State Prohibition is a part of the established policy of North Carolina, and has justified the confidence of our Commonwealth in adopting it. One of her foremost citizens, conservative and unconnected with our organization, declared this week that prohibition would decrease the number of drunkards in the coming generation of North Carolinians at least two-thirds. More than this the most ardent advocates of prohibition could not have expected, and the half of this would make the prohibition policy the wisest and most profitable step ever adopted by the people of North Carolina.

Prohibition is a success—there is no question as to that; and yet we must not let our gratification over its achievements or over the public opinion of the State keep us from recognizing the dangers of indifference on the part of temperance advocates. We cannot too strongly emphasize the fact that the next eighteen months will mark the one critical period with prohibition in this State. During this time the enemies of the cause will be most active, lavishing money supplied by the great liquor interests of the nation, and using both fair means and foul to make prohibition unpopular wherever there is the slightest chance for success.

It is of the greatest importance, therefore, that our local Anti-Saloon Leagues keep themselves intact and that new Leagues be organized wherever there is danger to our cause, and that our League have adequate financial support. Good citizens everywhere must hold up the hands of officials who are vigorous in behalf of law enforcement, and must bring individual and organized pressure to bear upon officials who deal lightly with the oaths they have taken.

It was not to have been expected that perfect machinery for the enforcement of our prohibition laws would be immediately developed; it was not to be expected that the enemies of prohibition would immediately acknowledge the hopelessness of their cause and cease attacking the law. The fact that North Carolina is largely rural, and that the rural sections have been dry for years, and that our cities are not only composed largely of native-born law-loving North Carolina people, but had also adopted local prohibition laws in nearly every case—these things have made the enforcement of prohibition in North Carolina much easier than in some other States.

We should not be true to our trust, however, if we did not remind our people—the churches, the advocates of temperance, and good citizens of all classes—of the imperative importance of strict law enforcement and of undiminished activity in preaching temperance doctrine.

We again warn our people to be on their guard unceasingly during the next eighteen months. If this is done we shall clinch the prohibition law beyond all future questioning in this State, developing the machinery and the public sentiment which will keep it forever intact. Old officers in the counties and cities should hold their organization intact, and every man who voted in the campaign a year ago should count himself as not paroled until the last active opposition to the State law subsides.

By order of the Executive Committee of the North Carolina Anti-Saloon League.

Clarence H. Poe,
Raleigh, N. C. Chairman.

—Tasks gigantic enough to have once been considered the wonder of the world are now often undertaken, and carried to completion with a song, by great corporations. In thirteen months the Pennsylvania Railroad has built the largest railway station in the world. It is in the very heart of New York City and blocks of buildings were purchased, blown up or torn down, covering an area of eight acres. The walls of the new station are a mile long, and contain 27,000 tons of steel, 15 million brick and 1,140 carloads of granite. It is indeed a modern wonder in size and cost.

—The Post Office Department will issue Sep. 20th 50,000,000 two-cent stamps to commemorate the Hudson-Fulton celebration. It will give the Palisades and the Hudson River and the "Clermont" sailing up the river, with an Indian in the foreground.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONVENTION WESTERN N. C. CONFERENCE.

At our last Sunday school Convention the members of the same saw fit to elect me president, which act of the convention put a responsibility upon me such as I had not felt before. Later in the convention session a motion was passed to merge the Sunday school convention into a Young Peoples Convention of the Western Conference which embraces a larger field, including Sunday school, Christian Endeavor, missionary societies, organized class work, etc. Thus the responsibilities of the president were greatly increased.

I want to say in behalf of the other officers of the Young People's Convention, that we earnestly request the co-operation of every minister working in the bounds of this convention, together with every other worker in the convention, including Sunday school superintendents, teachers, Christian Endeavor leaders, and the leaders of organized classes, in order that we may make the convention a success.

We have upwards of two thousand Sunday school students in our convention, besides the members of other religious organizations that are entitled to send delegates to the Young People's Convention which meets at Park's Cross Roads the last of next July.

There are some churches which have no Sunday school in our conference, and numbers of churches without a C. E. Society, and most all are without a Teacher-training class. So we see what a work we have before us. Will we not go to work now, and endeavor to make the watchword of our Young People's Convention of the Southern Christian Convention a reality in our Western N. C. Conference?

But some one is doubtless saying as they read these lines that "it is too early to begin talking our Young People's Convention." If there is such a thought in any one's mind, I ask such a one to look just for a moment at the needs of more and better Young People's Societies in our churches, and I think they will say that: we ought to have been doing this work years ago.

Brethren, my prayer is that we may wake up and go to work in the Western N. C. Conference as we should, and when we do that, God will see to it, that we shall have good religious Societies in our churches, and a glorious convention every year, and a greater number of sinners giving their hearts to God.

I am interested in our young people, and in the various movements of the Christian Church, and if the feeble deeds that I can do will help on the work in the least, I gladly do them in God's name.

I am now at the bedside of my brother who is very ill. On account of his illness I have been kept from Elon College thus far. Will the brotherhood pray that he may soon be able for me to leave him and go to Elon where I may further prepare myself for the work that God has for me to do. The doctors have but little hope for brother's recovery. Then I ask again for the prayers of God's children who read these lines, that if it is His will, brother may be restored to health again.

Yours for Christ,
J. F. Morgan.

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE SOUTHERN CHRISTIAN CONVENTION:

Material for the nineteen hundred and ten Christian Annual, published by the Christian Publishing Association, at Dayton, Ohio, is now being gathered as fast as circumstances will permit. I appreciate very much the promptness and willingness manifested in the past by the conference clerks and others who have been asked for information, and kindly ask that this year the same promptness and willingness will be at the front.

The publication belongs to the Christian Church, north and south, and its editor is only one person, living in one place, and cannot know all the facts which ought to go in the book unless they are sent to him.

Nineteen hundred and ten is our Quadrennial year, and I am very anxious that all the reliable information possible may be in this Annual so that it may be useful to that body.

Please note that my address is Eaton, Ohio, and not Dayton.

Henry Crampton.
Eaton, Ohio, September 3, 1909.

HENDERSON LETTER.

There is much to report from my field, as it has been months since my last letter. The work in Henderson has held its own fairly well through the summer. About fifty people are attending the services on the preaching Sabbaths. I preach here second and fourth Sundays morning and night and each fifth Sunday. Our Sunday school is always good. We are now about to organize a Christian Endeavor Society. A series of meetings have been appointed for the second week in October.

The second week in July Rev. L. F. Johnson was with me in meeting at Fullers. An overcrowded house together with the warm weather seemed to hinder for first few days. Bro. Johnson did effective work and endeared himself to the people. There were twenty-four professions an reclamations and five united with the church. The brethren have decided to have a larger house for services before the next protracted meeting.

The meeting at Virgilina was the first week in August. Rev. Warner Wells was with me. On account of another meeting, that did not close till the first Sunday night and the rain, our meeting did not begin until Wednesday morning. On Thursday I was called to the home of my father on account of his extreme illness, and left the meeting in charge of Bro. Wells and the church. There were several professions and two joined the church. I have since received two other names that professed elsewhere. I have been informed by the secretary that in my absence a unanimous call was extended me to remain as pastor another year.

Liberty can always be counted on for a number of faithful members. The third Sunday in July was our mission day. The offering did not come up to what was hoped for, but we hope to go to conference with the best report in the history of the church. Saturday before the third Sunday in August was the annual Sunday school picnic. Judge Cook was present and delivered a very able address. I have received and accepted a unanimous call to serve another year as pastor. Our protracted meeting will be third week in September. Bro. L. F. Johnson will be with me.

The work in my field seems to be in fair condition with some indications of progress.

C. E. Newman.

Sept. 1, 1909.

COLUMBUS, GA., LETTER.

On the evening of the fourth Sunday in July, the children of our Girard Sunday school rendered a most excellent program composed of speeches, recitations, and songs. The church was filled with an interested, attentive audience. All present seemed to enjoy the exercises. During this service we took a collection for the purpose of raising Conference assessments and with pleasure we report the collection a success. Conference apportionments will be paid in full.

Mrs. Lankford and I spent the month of August in Alabama attending meetings and visiting our people. I assisted Rev. G. D. Hunt in revival work at New Hope, Antioch, and Beulah. At each of these places we had good meetings. We feel that a permanent work was done, but eternity alone will reveal final results.

It was my pleasure also to assist Rev. B. F. Young a few days at Pleasant Grove, where I served as pastor last year. Since last conference this congregation has erected a very neat house in which to worship, this being the third building since the organization of the church. The first preaching was done on the roadside in the woods, then under a brush arbor and later a log structure was built, and still later a framed building and now a handsome edifice adorns the place where once the brush arbor was the best that could be done. The church is painted and sealed and new seats are soon to be installed and then an organ is the next thing the church has in view by way of material improvements. But the greatest change to be noted is not in the superior quality and arrangement of the church building, but the moral and spiritual uplift made possible only by the church.

The District Meeting which was in session with the church at Rockstand the fifth Sunday in August was well attended and full of interest. Rockstand is only one year old, but has a bright future. The church is situated in a good community and Rev. J. D. Dollar is doing a good work there. Their building has not been completed, but it has been seated and services have been held in it for several months.

On our return home September 2nd we found our pantry well supplied with flour, meal, sugar, salt meats, syrup, pickles, preserves, potatoes, lard, jelly, vegetables, etc., just such things as are needful when the pocket-hook has been "stamped by an elephant's foot." This time it is the people of Girard who bring these good things to our table and this joy and gladness to our hearts. For this act of kindness we are very deeply appreciative and may the Lord bless those who remembered us in this way.

G. O. Lankford.

Sept. 3, 1909.

Notes from Waverly.

I am about to close the summer's work. It has been very hard on me. I have not had a moment's rest from a strain since the first of April, or perhaps earlier than that. But the Lord has given me and my household health and strength to apply myself constantly to the work, and to a very large extent the work has been blessed. I have now arrived at the point when partial relief from this strain is taking place, and I can turn my thought to the solid activities of church life,—when there is nothing pressing me hard, nor hurrying me to finish. If I need moments of rest and recreation, I can take them. Such relief is as sweet as retiring from the busy strain of an over-wrought day to repose in peaceful sleep at night,—as sweet as resting beneath the shade of a tree in the field on a hot summer day, when we are much fatigued from the toil of new-ground stumps, or sweltered with perspiration from the heat of the fodder field; it's like catching a glimpse of the golden sunshine through a rift when the rain and cloud of many days have ceased; it's like turning the eyes from the monotony of the level fields to gaze upon the undulating hills and the verdant peaks of the mountainous west.

I am going to take a vacation of a week among these hills. To lounge a few days in the shade from a summer's sun,—to sleep away the cooler September nights,—to drink an abundance of fresh milk and sup from the pellucid springs of mountain rocks, and to spend a while with family when I am not busy and there is no care to press me, to say nothing of fishing and hunting and boating, ought to be very invigorating. I have no doubt it will be, though there may be but a week of it.

Though my summer's work has been unusually hard, it has been very gratifying. The revivals held at Spring Hill and Centerville, conducted by Rev. M. L. Bryant, of Berkley, were revivals in the truest sense. Perhaps they were not in every sense what we prayed for, but we were certain that the Lord's presence and blessings were with us. Brother Bryant is an evangelist of no small power. The Lord is blessing his labors. There were about nine converts at these places. I was with Brother Johnson a week at Oakland. We had a gracious meeting there when about twenty-five or more gave their hearts to the Lord. The people at Oakland are a good and a gracious people, much in love with their pastor and willing to treat every one else with the same kindly spirit.

The meeting at Waverly will begin the third Sunday night in October. We think to have two services each day, afternoon and night. Rev. C. C. Ryan, of Norfolk, expects to be with us. We anxiously await his coming. I look for a blessed meeting.

Brother Rowland and I purpose holding a series of meetings at Emporia early in October, perhaps the week following the first Sunday. We cannot calculate the results, but we pray for a good meeting.

The work of this field is progressing with lively interest, and still looking forward to greater things in the future. During the past six years the work has gone forward with almost incomparable interest and success. The Gray Lumher Co. moving to this place a few years ago not only brought a boom, a new life and a larger population to the town, but also a great help to the churches. The Grays are Christians and all of them are giving their influence to the churches, and this influence is an untold power over both their employees and all with whom they come in contact. Their interest in the church is ardent. They are workers and faithful in practically every detail. They are liberal and spare no means to promote the interest of the church and to plant the Word in the hearts of the people. God is with His people here and is prospering them to no small degree. May He help us all to labor as one in His cause and be more faithful and loyal, rendering more service than we have ever done before.

H. E. Rountree, Pastor.

GOVERNOR GLENN IN NEW YORK.

Former Governor Glenn of North Carolina has been engaged, since retiring from office last January, in lecturing on religious topics. This work has taken him into many sections and shown him many sides of life. He has had the opportunity of seeing the wickedness going on in our great cities, and he speaks out in terms that tell a pitiable and deplorable condition. In The New York World recently our former governor is thus quoted:

"The great cities of the land are snapping their fingers in the face of the Almighty. The sins of Chicago are crying aloud unto the heavens. It is a disgrace to civilization. New York is a blot upon the map of our fair country.

"The people of the country are pure, God-fearing, and pious, but in the cities the one evil of Sabbath desecration will prove the ruin of the nation unless it is checked. The man who will violate the Sabbath is lawless, the man who is lawless is irreverent to the Deity, the man who is irreverent to the Deity has lost his conscience, the man who has lost his conscience will disregard the rights of his fellows, and mob law, vice, and crime will result.

"I found the theatres with Sunday their biggest day. I found baseball with Sunday its biggest day. I found untold saloons, and Sunday was their biggest day. I went among the people of the best families and found the women and children drinking to an alarming extent, mothers giving their daughters strong drink and getting drunk on cocktails. I found many saloons and very few churches. If the rising generation is to be trained in these conditions and have these ideas of Sunday desecration, of lawlessness and irreverence our country will be ruined."

—Kentucky produces one-third of all the tobacco raised in America. North Carolina comes next.

---

THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

---

Founded 1844 by Elder Daniel W. Kerr.
Organ of the Southern Christian
Convention.

---

Entered at the postoffice at Greensboro, N. C., as second-class matter.

---

Terms of Subscription.

One Year .....$1.50
Six Months ..... .75
Four Months ..... .50
Advertising rates given on application.

---

J. O. Atkinson, Editor and Publisher.

---

Important Notice.—As readers will see, The Christian Sun is now published at Greensboro, N. C. The office of publication there is 302½ South Elm Street. Our editorial office, however, remains at Elon College, N. C., to which all letters and communications to the Editor should be addressed, as heretofore.

---

CONFERENCE CALENDER.

Virginia Valley Central, was held at Newport, Page Co., beginning Thursday, August 12th.

Others are to meet as follows:

Alabama.—Christiana Church, Tuesday, 10:00 a. m., Oct. 19. Rev. G. O. Lankford, Pres., Columbus, Ga., J. W. Payne, Secy., Wadley, Ala., R. F. D.3.

Ga. and Ala.—Richland, Ga., Tuesday, 7:30 p. m., Oct. 26. Rev. H. W. Elder, Pres., Richland, Ga., J. F. Hill, Jr., Sec., Box 64, Phoenix, Ala.

Eastern Virginia.—Franklin, Tuesday, Nov. 2. Rev. N. G. Newman, Pres., Holland, Va., Rev. W. D. Harvard, Secy.

Eastern N. C.—Sanford, Thursday, Nov. 11, 10 a. m. Rev. G. R. Underwood, Pres., Sanford, N. C., Rev. W. C. Wickler, Secy., Elon College, N. C.

Western N. C.—Graham, Tuesday, Nov. 16, 10:30 a. m. Rev. L. I. Cox, Pres., Elon College, N. C., Rev. R. L. Williamson, Secy., Ramseur, N. C.

N. C. and Va.—Belew's Creek, Tuesday, Nov. 23, 9 a. m. Prof. W. A. Harper, Pres., Elon College, N. C., Prof. W. P. Lawrence, Secy., Elon College, N. C.

---

ONE MORE THAN MANY.

Collectively men are instructed in the way of gospel truth. Individually they are led into the way of salvation. The preacher edifies a congregation. The soul winner leads one by one into the light of salvation. The greatest sermons have been preached not to the many, but to one. Our Savior announced His messiahship to one poor, ignorant woman. Henry Ward Beecher once said, "The longer I live, the more confidence I have in those sermons preached where one man is the minister and one man is the congregation: where there's no question as to who is meant when the preacher says, 'Thou art the man.' "

After all, every earnest and sincere preacher talks to and teaches the many that he may haply find the one and by personal word or counsel lead that one to Christ. To him one is more than many. For men and women are saved, and brought into the fold, not collectively, but individually, one by one.

Our Savior emphasized this with many a parable. The shepherd with an hundred sheep leaves the ninety and nine and goes to find and fetch the one that is lost. To him the one is more than many. This is not the world order, but it is Christ's way.

A writer on Christian effort in soul-winning has well said, "The world is never going to be brought to Christ wholesale, but one by one. Men are not born collectively: they do not die collectively: they do not accept or reject Christ collectively."

So congregations are built, so churches are enlarged. The many give themselves in prayer, praise, sacrifice and service that they may reach the one. All our Christian effort and activity come to this: To lead men to Christ one by one. So is the world to be saved.

---

THE NORTH POLE.

Men have tried for nearly four hundred years to penetrate the arctic region and reach the north pole. In 1527 Henry VIII of England sent out the first Polar expedition on record. There were two ships; one was lost, the other returned to England. In 1596 a Dutch expedition was sent out and went as far north as 80 degrees and 11 minutes. In 1607 Henry Hudson reached 80 degrees and 23 minutes. Not till 1827 was the sledge tried when Parry compassed 82 degrees and 45 minutes. In 1845 Sir John Franklin was sent out by the British Government, but he with his crew of 135 men, was lost. Not until 1875 was Parry's record surpassed, when G. S. Nares, of England, went as far as 83 degrees and 20 minutes. In 1895 F. Nansen, of Norway, reached 86 degrees and 14 minutes. This was the highest record reached, until Peary in 1905 surpassed all previous records by reaching 87 degrees and 6 minutes. In his recent tour Peary claims to have crossed 89th parallel April 4th, and reached the Pole April 6, 1909. Dr. Frederick Cook claims to have reached the Pole nearly a year earlier—April, 1908.

Lives Lost.

In quest of the Pole many lives have been lost. The greatest number in any one expedition was that of Sir John Franklin in 1845, when 135 went never to return—though in all thirty-nine expeditions were sent out for search and relief. In an expedition of 1648, seventy were lost. In 1553, sixty-six were lost, and the same number in 1619. In 1719 50 were lost. In 1742 Behring lost 31 men. In 1878 the De Lang expedition lost 23, and in 1881 Greely's expedition lost 20. To 1881, 750 men had been lost in this desperate quest. Since then not so many have perished. To discover the North Pole has been the high ambition, the wooing ideal of many generations of explorers and scientists. Millions of money have been spent, and hardships past description and comprehension have been endured, that the eye of mortal man might see the cold and cheerless region round about the Pole.

It's Worth.

One naturally enquires: Of what worth is the Pole, now it is discovered? In commercial value, little indeed. But the highest worth in this world is not commercial. Not for money's sake, but for ambition's sake, not in pursuit of the practical, but in quest of the ideal, have the greatest discoveries been made, the noblest inventions achieved. Generations may come, and generations may go, but an ideal is pursued through the surging centuries. The ideal of reaching the North Pole has loomed long and large in the minds and hearts of men through the ages. The dreams of dead men, brave men, courageous men, now long forgotten burst into living reality when Cook stood over a year ago, and when Peary stood a few months since where before no mortal foot had ever trod, where all pointings of the compass were southward, because beyond there was no north. The realization of a great ideal has many times before cost more than a thousand human lives.

And heretofore geographers have guessed and calculated. Now they may make their maps with certainty and assurance. Calculation had said so before; but now man knows that only ice, a broad expanse of frozen surface surrounds the north pole. For man has been there and has seen for himself.

And the triumph of effort in face of fearful and deadly obstacles is worth something to the human race. It makes the strong more resolute and the weak more determined to know that mortal man, undaunted by repeated failure, and oft conquered by deadly and dreadful foe, has achieved success, reached his goal. "No mountains pierce the sky" declared Hannibal, and his invincible army scaled the Alps. No regions of earth are beyond the reach of man, said the scientists of three centuries, and brave Dr. Cook, and fearless Commander Peary went to the Pole. Its worth?

Why, it has taught us a new lesson of human endurance, and undaunted human effort. And that is worth somewhat to any generation of men.

SUFFOLK LETTER.

On May 31, 1909, as I was boarding the train for the Trustee meeting at Elon College I was informed that one of my members who lived in Portsmouth, Va., was dying. I had recently visited her and felt that I ought not to leave till she was buried; but I knew that the Trustee meeting was important and that the absence of one might prevent a quorum; besides this, I knew that Rev. J. W. Harrell was available for the funeral service in case of her death. She did die that day and brother Harrell conducted the funeral services in Portsmouth and Rev. H. H. Butler performed the burial rites at the grave in Cedar Hill Cemetery, Suffolk.

Mrs. James W. Walters, whose maiden name was Lassiter, was born in Nansemond County, Virginia, February 23, 1852, and died, after a lingering illness with tubercular trouble, on May 31, 1909. She was not quite fifty-eight. Her husband and two young daughters, Phatamy and Martha, with brothers and sisters, survive her. They resided in Suffolk until two years before her death when they moved to Portsmouth. She was a member of the Suffolk Christian Church and was faithful in her home and in her christian life. She loved her family devotedly and they all reciprocated her affection.

Her husband, who was a strong and successful contractor, lost his health in a protracted spell of pneumonia and fever in 1908 and this was a great strain on the strength of his wife; but she bore up against the tide of affliction in husband and herself until she yielded to the last enemy and went home to eternal rest. No one but God can ever know the affectionate and unselfish service and self-denial of good wives and mothers in their anxieties and labors in caring for the family. The heroes whose names grace the pages of history and over whose graves granite shafts tell of great battles and great victories are no more deserving of honor than the unknown mothers who deny their eyes sleep and their bodies rest to watch and serve at the bedside of the sick in their homes. Here's a word of praise for the Christian mothers, living and dead, whose hearts and hands never fail when heroic service is needed.

Miss Blanche Williamson dead! Yes, the air in the "Land of the Sky" could not stay the tide of death. She had gone to Asheville, N. C., in search of health; but her young life succumbed to disease and on Tuesday morning September 7, 1909, she said "good bye" to earth and "good morning" to heaven. Father and mother and sister were at her bedside, and loved ones at their homes prayed that she might be spared; but our heavenly Father knows best and He said, "Come home, my child, and rest."

Her remains were brought to Suffolk on Wednesday morning and services were conducted from the Christian Church at 2:30 in the afternoon by her pastor, Rev. I. W. Johnson, whose prayer and remarks were beautiful, tender, and comforting. Revs. N. G. Newman, W. L. Jones, and Geo. H. McFaden, the two last named Methodists and pastors at Driver and Suffolk, and this writer, assisted. The choir rendered, "Come to our Hearts and Abide" most effectively, and the casket and pulpit were banked with beautiful and fragrant flowers, sweet emblems of her life—beauty, sweetness, and so soon to fade. The slate-vaulted tomb into which the flower-covered casket was lowered was lined with spotless white; but whiter still was that blood-cleansed spirit that went up from the mountain crest to the holy hill of God. Angels must delight to associate with such a virgin spirit and archangels must hover over her on wings of love. Perhaps heaven would not be complete without such bright young souls. We will wait till the gates of pearl open to us and then walk with her again on the golden streets.

W. W. Staley.

NORFOLK LETTER.

Rev. W. H. Thompson of the Third Church preached his final sermons to the congregation of the Third Church, Sunday morning and evening. Sunday evening services was an unusually large congregation present. He gave us two strong sermons, full of valuable and helpful suggestions. He with his family, will leave via Washington boat Tuesday evening. After stopping in Washington for a few days and visiting other points of interest, they will go to his new field of labor at West Liberty, Ohio. The friendship, brotherly love, and very best wishes of the congregation go with them.

As yet, there has been nothing definite decided, with reference to a pastor for the coming year, for the Third Church, or for the Memorial Temple.

The Memorial Temple held their missionary services Sunday afternoon, at which the main address was made by their pastor, Rev. C. C. Ryan.

Rev. W. H. Thompson of the Third Church filled his appointment at Rosemont in the afternoon.

We were glad to have with us in the Sunday-school Sunday morning, Prof. S. M. Smith, recently of Raleigh, who with his family are in Norfolk. He comes to take charge as Sec. of the educational department of the Naval Y. M. C. A. It is about decided that he will locate for residence in Park Place. He and his family will be a valuable addition to the Third Church, and its work. We extend them a hearty welcome. The readers of this letter will remember that we reported from the Sunday school of the Third Church, a special collection for the Porto Rico Building Fund, amounting to $150.00. $5.00 was added to that during the last week making the total collection $155.00. How about it, brother? Have you arranged to take that collection yet? Better look after it soon, it may be all raised presently, and you will not have the pleasure of assisting in the matter. J. W. Manning.

CHRISTIAN LITERATURE DEPARTMENT.

Every family should have good wholesome literature. Nothing adds more to the happiness of the household than good, helpful, pure, interesting books. Under this department it is our purpose to recommend none but the very best, and such as can be read with pleasure and profit by every member of the family. On receipt of price named The Christian Sun, Elon College, N. C., will forward, postpaid, any of the following:

Evangelism, Old and New, by A. C. Dixon, D. D. Large 12mo, cloth bound, 209 pages. Price, 60 cents. "This book will teach how to win souls."—Advance.

A History of American Revivals. By Frank G. Beardsley, S. C. D. 12mo, cloth. 324 pages. Price, 75 cents. "It is profoundly interesting and spiritually stimulating to read this story of the Holy Spirit's deeper movements in the churches of our land."—N. Y. Observer.

Jerry McAuley, an Apostle to the Lost. By Rev. R. M. Offord. New and enlarged edition, 8vo, 16 illustrations, 314 pp. Cloth, $1.00.

Principles and Government of the Christian Church, 142 pages. Cloth, 50 cents; paper, 25 cents.

Order of the Christian Sun, Elon College, N. C.

—For the time being the Wright Bros. and their flying machines are laid in the shade, while Dr. Frederick Cook, with his discovery of the North Pole, comes to the fore and absorbs public interest. Kings and princes of Europe are dining and honoring him, and his name is on every tongue.

—It is estimated that there are a thousand cases of pellagra in North Carolina, every county in the State, save one, reporting cases.

THE CHRISTIAN ORPHANAGE DEPARTMENT.

CHILDREN'S CORNER.

The Band of Cousins.

Jas. L. Foster, Sec., Elon College, N. C.

"He that hath pity on the poor lendeth unto the Lord, and his good deed will He pay him again."—Prov. 19:17.

Reported last week .....$3,685.49

Monthly Dues:

- Annie Pearl Way .....$ .10
- Carl Lynn Scoley ..... .10
- Willie Z. Smith ..... 1.00
- Susie R. Watson ..... .10
- J. Newman Denton ..... .10
- S. E. Denton, Jr. .... .10
- E. J. Brickhouse, Jr. .... 1.00

Monthly S. S. Offerings:

- Suffolk, Va. .... 13.42
- Catawba Springs, N. C. . 2.00
- Berea (Nansd.) Va. .... 6.00

Special Offerings:

- M. C. Dean ..... 1.00
- P. S. Hastings ..... .50
- J. W. Marshall, Kernersville, N. C. .... .50

Am't. 33rd week 1909. ——— 25.92

Total .....$3,711.41

Elon College, N. C., Sept. 9, 1909.

My Dear Children and Friends:—

We are delighted to report you a fine shower of rain today. We have been very dry. Pea crop cut very short, and also corn injured to great extent; our potatoes, both Irish and sweet, have been slow in developing and we cannot get a full crop. We have lost most of five acres of crimson clover: we trust from now on good showers will come so that we may do well in seeding.

Uncle Jim has been out considerable time this summer in meetings, and Aunt Myrtle has attended to the Corner and many other details of the Home Work.

We are glad to have several nice letters this week but should have five times as many each week. Dear children, rally to the Corner and keep it well filled. Then with our friends and Sunday-schools to help we will have a liberal report each week. We trust that the Cousins who write only occasionally will write now, and give us a word of encouragement.

Uncle Jim would shout if all the Cousins of the past thirteen years would each send him one dollar and thus give us such a liberal amount that we could buy us another plot of land which we need so much—who will send in a dollar.

Donations:—

The Jr. Christian Endeavor Society, Draketown Christian Church, Pennsylvania, by Donald P. Hurlburt, Edinboro, Pa., one box containing scrap-books of different kinds, dish cloths, etc. etc. All these will please the children and serve the dining to good advantage. Through Bro. Hurlburt we thank the Jrs. and appreciate very much. We would appreciate very much a load of wheat or corn from any church or community and if within driving distance will go after, if not, ship by freight and we will pay same.

With best wishes for all and love to the children, Yours fondly,

Uncle Jim.

Sanford, N. C., Sept. 3, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

I will write and send my dime for September. I am having a good time now playing. Our school starts in two weeks, and I will have to stop my play then. I am glad sister's little boy has joined the band, little Carl Lynn Scoley, He is a sweet little babe. I close with love to you and the cousins.

Annie Peary Way.

Now you will have company, again, Annie, when you write your letters. Hope the dear baby will thrive and be a faithful cousin.

Sanford, N. C., Sept. 3, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

Here comes another little babe that wants to join the band. I am three weeks old. Grandma is writing my first letter. My name is Carl Lynn Scoley. Grandma wants me to be a good little boy and learn to be a cheerful giver, and when I am older give my heart to Jesus. Papa and mama want me to be good and obedient and learn to serve the Lord as I grow to be a man. I close hoping I will always be faithful. Enclosed please find 10 cents.

Carl Lynn Scoley.

Welcome, baby Carl. We are not sure of your last name, so make it plain in your next letter. Be sure to write with Cousin Annie every time.

R. F. D. 1, Box 83, Stanleyton, Va.
Sept. 6, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

Please excuse me for being late. Enclosed you will find one dollar which will pay up my dues until September. I hope you and the cousins are enjoying the delightful season. Our crops are not as good as they were last year, has been dry with us. Wish you could have been with us during conference held at our church. You must come to see us again. Best wishes to you all.

Your little friend,

Willie Z. Smith.

We are indeed glad to see your letter again, Willie. It makes us smile to

When in Burlington call at

T. H. STROUD'S

Store for DRUGS, SOFT DRINKS, and anything desired in drugs and Toilet Articles.

To Drive Out Malaria and Build up the System.

Take the Old Standard GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC. You know what you are taking. The formula is plainly printed on every bottle, showing it is simply Quinine and Iron in a tasteless form, and the most effectual form. For grown people and children. 50c.

PROTECT Yourself & Family
By keeping a jar of
VICK'S
Croup and Pneumonia Salve

in the house at all times. The very best thing to use in sudden cases of Cold or Croup. The great nipper of Pneumonia, Bronchitis, Hoarseness, etc., the best pain easer for Burns, Itching Piles, Bruises, Stings, etc. Endorsed by physicians and ministers everywhere. At druggists—25c., 50c., $1.00 per jar.

Vick's Family Remedies Co.

Greensboro, N. C.

For free sample specify department No. 3.

COMMERCIAL COLLEGE OF KENTUCKY UNIVERSITY

Cheapest, Highest Honored, Situations. Medal awarded Prof. Smith at World's Fair. Book-keeping, Business Short-hand, Typewriting and Telegraphy taught. University Diploma to graduates. 10,000 Graduates in Business. Begin now. Address only, WILBUR R. SMITH, Lexington, Ky.

WANTED—Bookkeepers, Stenographers.

MORE BANKERS in the 16 States in which Jno. F. Draughon's 30 Colleges are located, indorse these Business Colleges than indorse ALL others. IF YOU want the EVIDENCE and want to RISE to the $10-a-day class, ask for FREE catalogue. Lessons BY MAIL if preferred. Draughon's Practical Business College, Raleigh, N. C.; A. M. FISHER, Mgr

RALEIGH & SOUTHPORT RY. CO.

P. M.	A. M.	STATIONS.	A. M.	P. M.
1:15	6:00	Raleigh	8:30	3:45
1:54	6:24	McCullers	7:52	3:03
2:11	6:59	Willow Sp'gs	7:37	2:45
2:23	7:14	Varina	7:27	2:34
2:35	7:26	Fuquay Sp'gs	7:19	2:25
2:55	7:45	Kipling	7:00	2:05
3:15	8:05	Lillington	6:41	1:44
3:41	8:28	Linden	6:15	1:17
4:30	9:15	Fayetteville	5:30	12:30

JNO. A. MILLS, Pres. and Gen. Mgr.

DR. J. H. BROOKS

Surgeon and Dentist

FOSTER BUILDING,

Burlington, N. C.

MEDICINE.

We prepare as good medicine, the very best medicine that the finest, freshest, most potent drugs and chemicals will produce when carefully and skilfully compounded by an expert prescription man—just such medicine as your physician means that you should have, medicine of the utmost possible effectiveness. May we prepare your medicine?

FREEMAN DRUG CO.,
Burlington, N. C.

have the cousins renew their letters and interest.

Pine Apple, Ala., Aug. 31, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

We are having a good time these hot days playing in the sand and driving Bill. A rattle-snake bit him on the foot yesterday and he can't walk today. We are so sorry for poor Bill. Find our dimes for August. Fondly,

J. Newman Denton,
S. E. Denton, Jr.

Sincerely hope poor Billie is well ere this and you can drive him again. Doctor him good and he'll be O. K., I guess.

131 Lovitt Ave., Norfolk, Va.
Sept. 1, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

Enclosed you will find a money order for one dollar. Sixty cents of it pays my dues up to January, 1910, I think.

If I liked to write you would get more than two letters a year from me, for I am interested in the children if I do not write often. Yours truly,

E. J. Brickhouse, Jr.

Well, little man, you show you are interested any way by your faithful contributions. Would like to know just how old you are.

Bristol, Tenn., August 31, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

I am really late this month, but will try to write sooner next month. I am in Bristol, Tenn. now, visiting my aunt and cousins. I am having a fine time.

Our school will start the twentieth of September. Enclosed please find my dime for August.

Yours truly,

Susie R. Watson.

Well, you have gone a-visiting, Susie, but I see that, whether at home or abroad you do not forget the Orphans.

LETTER FROM OHIO.

It was my privilege as well as my pleasure to visit the Virginia Valley Central Conference this year as a representative of the C. P. A. The Conference met at Newport Church, Page Co., and the people know at that place how to entertain with the genuine Virginia hospitality.

It is now a dozen years since I used to attend the sessions of the old Virginia Central Conference, and there are many changes even in that length of time.

Since that time the Valley Conference and the Central Conference have united, the wisdom of which action is now plainly seen if it was not sooner.

It was a pleasure to attend the session, have a good trade for the House, visit old acquaintances, meet some of the ministers grown old and gray in service, and to assist in any way possible. It did me good to hear again the preaching of one under whose preaching I sat for ten years and in the meantime was converted and united with the church, and who is yet active in preaching the gospel. He has not been blest in this world's goods, but he has surely been blest in the service of God and in the future, I have no doubt, many will rise up and call J. W. Dofflemeyer blessed. Revs. R. H. Peel and J. T. Kitchen, of the E. Va. Conference, Rev. L. L. Lassiter of the Valley Central Conference also preached to large audiences during the session to good acceptance.

Dr. Moffitt, of Elon College, ably took care of the College interests and Mr. S. M. Atkinson represented The Christian Sun.

This Conference is now beginning some city work. A field, namely Winchester, has been selected where Rev. W. T. Walters has been holding services. We shall hope for splendid success at Winchester under the able leadership of Brother Walters and the loyal support of the people of the Conference.

It is not possible for me to speak of the Conference and its work extensively but I must say the Virginia Valley Central Conference is certainly fortunate in keeping in its bounds three such young and able men as W. T. Walters, A. W. Andes and Edward French. They are college men who honor the Conference and churches where they work and who reflect credit upon Elon College. It takes no small degree of devotion to labor in such rural fields as some they have, with the hardship and exposure attendant. But the people to whom they minister, if they are in the country, are worthy, appreciative and highly intelligent, and after all for what is a College education good, if not to fit one for the humblest service?

Then, too, my visit to the Valley was a pleasure because I went home—to see father and mother and brothers and sister, and friends at home. The only sad feature of such a visit is the leaving, but we shall hope to meet in the last and final meeting where we do not separate.

May God bless His cause and the faithful servants who make sacrifice every day for its good.

H. R. Clem.

Springfield, Ohio.

—The postmaster general has awarded a contract for about 3,500,000,000 postal cards more ornate and decidedly superior to those now in use. It is calculated that they will supply the demand for four years.

RAISE MONEY FOR YOUR CHURCH.

We offer you an easy method. Send us a photograph of your church or your pastor, and we will send you 500 high grade post cards, with photograph on each card, and scripture verse if desired. Sell these cards at 10 cents each. When sold, remit us $20.00 and keep the balance. You can do this in a week. We will return photograph.

LAKE SHORE SUPPLY CO.,
225 Broad St., St. Joe, Michigan.

DO YOU WANT TO GO TO COLLEGE? If so we can help you. We have already put hundreds through college by means of our plan. Write today for full information regarding our offer of a free scholarship in any school or college. Address, Robert J. Sherlock, 29-31 East 22nd Street, New York City.

FALL AND WINTER.

The time for fall and winter gardening is here and you need garden tools. We can supply you at lowest prices.

Poultry Wire.

The best assorted stock in the county. Four different styles and weight.

Come and See.

Remember plumbing and bath room fixtures, a speciality. You will find us on Davis St. in the new building near Post Office.

BURLINGTON HARDWARE CO.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup

Has been used for over SIXTY-FIVE YEARS by MILLIONS of MOTHERS for their CHILDREN WHILE TEETHING, with PERFECT SUCCESS. It SOOTHES the CHILD, SOFTENS the GUMS, ALLAYS all PAIN; CURES WIND COLIC, and is the best remedy for DIARRHŒA. Sold by Druggists in every part of the world. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Guaranteed under the Food and Drugs Act, June 30th, 1906. Serial Number 1098. AN OLD AND WELL TRIED REMEDY.

SEABOARD AIR LINE RAILWAY.

QUICKEST LINE TO

New York, Washington, Charlotte, Florida Points, Atlanta, Birmingham, Memphis, New Orleans and the West.

Double Daily Service with High-Back-Seat Coaches, Pullman Sleeping and Dining Cars.

We operate Daily Vestibule service, with through Pullman Sleeping Cars to Jacksonville, Atlanta, Birmingham, Memphis, Portsmouth, Norfolk, Richmond, Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York.

For Time Tables, Booklets Reservations or any information relative to special rates and route, call on or address

C. H. GATTIS, Trav. Passenger Agt.,
No. 4 Tucker Building, Raleigh, N. C.

FREE DEAFNESS CURE.

A remarkable offer by one of the leading ear specialists in this country, who will send two months' medicine free to prove his ability to cure Deafness, Head Noises, and Catarrh. Address Dr. G. M. Branaman, 1100 Walnut St., Kansas City Mo.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEPARTMENT.

Exponent of the Young People's Convention,
Christian Church, South.

Watchword: A Christian Endeavor Society in Every Church; Teacher-Training and Organized Classes in Every Sunday School

Devoted to the interest and advancement of Sunday Schools, Teacher-Training, Organized Classes, Cradle Roll, Home Department, Christian Endeavor, Missionary Societies, Temperance Societies, Aid Societies, Civic Righteousness.

W. A. HARPER, Editor and Field Secretary, Elon College, N. C.

[All notes and contributions for this Department should be sent to W. A. Harper, Elon College, N. C., who extends the Church at large a cordial invitation to furnish him with any note of interest to our Young People, particularly information in regard to any forward steps, new movement, or new organization looking to progressive and effective service. All items under this Department not signed are by its Editor and Field Secretary.]

TEACHER-TRAINING—EQUIPMENT.

There is nothing absolutely necessary except the text book which is to be studied, and this book for our people should always be "Preparing the Teacher" published by J. O. Atkinson, Elon College, N. C., cloth 90 cents, paper 60 cents to individuals; cloth 75 cents, paper 50 cents to classes. Any class with this book alone can do creditable work.

But whereas other equipment can be dispensed with, there are a few things which ought to be had in order to the best results.

First and foremost, a separate place in which to meet. This need not be a special building, but only a room in the church or a curtained off corner where a room cannot be had. Secondly, a blackboard. This should be used to draw outlines of the lessons, to make illustrations, etc. Thirdly, a set of maps. These maps should show the holy land in the various stages of the history of the Hebrew people, the places and countries of their wanderings and captivities, the world in the time of Christ and of Paul, and such other facts as can be afforded. These maps are almost indispensable and their lack in our "Preparing the Teacher" is a weakness which we shall overcome in the second edition. Fourthly, suitable books, setting forth in detail the matters touched on in the text book studied and showing in different form the facts treated in detail in the text-book. Elsewhere in this issue we give a list of helpful books, some of which ought to be in the homes or the library of any Sunday school which has a Teacher-training class.

The mere mention of these four things necessary to the best returns from Teacher-training is sufficient to justify their need and to prove their helpfulness. It is not in order nor needful further to show how a separate place for the class to meet, a black board, a set of maps and a working library will contribute to the effectiveness of the Teacher-training work. Let every class now at work and everyone that is to organize after this do what it can to get these articles of equipment; but if it can not, let it face the situation and do the best it can without them.

Rev. J. D. Dollar reports this week for the Rock Stand Christian Church, Alabama Conference. This Church has four teachers and 65 pupils in the regular Sunday-school. There are two organized classes; one for men with 16 members and another for women with 10 members. There is a cradle roll with 16 on roll. There is also a Junior C. E. Society with 23 members. Bro. Dollar's Church needs now most of all a Teacher-training class. Can't you get it, Bro. Dollar? Let others who have not filled out the report blanks do so at once and send them in. We will appreciate it.

What about that Teacher-training class of which you have thought so much and prayed so long? Is it not time to put thought into action and prayer to the test? Organize at once and get down to work. Remember that no Sunday school with a good Teacher-training class can go well into winter-quarters. Please organize that class before winter. Why not next Sunday?

A GREAT COMPLIMENT.

Some of the brethren in reviewing our "Preparing the Teacher" expressed the opinion that it ought to be used in our colleges as a part of the theological course. This has been done at Elon College, where it is used in the Freshman Class. We believe this a good decision and hope that experience will demonstrate its wisdom.

40 Helpful Books for the Teacher-training Library.

McKinney's The Bible Sunday-school. 60 cents.

Lawrance's How to Conduct a Sunday-school. $1.25.

Axtell's The Organized Sunday school. $.50.

Brumbaugh's The Making of a Teacher. $1.00.

Du Bois' The Point of Contact in Teaching. $.75.

Wells' Sunday-school Problems. $1.00.

Wells' The Teacher that Teaches. $.60.

Gregory's The Seven Laws of Teaching. $.50.

Axtell's The Teaching Problem. $.50.

Beardslee's Teacher-training with the Master Teacher. $.50.

Murray's From One to Twenty-one. 25c.

Trumbull's Origin and Expansion of the Sunday-school. $.35.

Pierce's Pencil Points for Preacher and Teacher. $1.25.

Bailey's The Blackboard in the Sunday-school. $.75.

Wray's the Beginner's Department. $.50.

Marter's The Primary Teacher. $.70.

Hudson's The "How" Book. 50c.

Pearce's The Adult Bible Class. 25c.

Wood and Hall's Adult Bible Classes. $.50.

Roger's Boy's-eye View of the Sunday-school. $.60.

Foote's The Librarian of the Sunday-school. $.35.

Trumbull's Teacher's Meetings. $.35.

Axtell's Grading the Sunday-school. $.50.

Chapman's The Spiritual Life of the Sunday-school. $.35.

McKinney's The Pastor and Teacher-Training. $.50.

Schauffer's Pastoral Leadership of Sunday-school Forces. $.50.

Forbush's The Boy Problem. $1.00.

Merrill's Winning the Boy. $.75.

Henderson's Social Duties. $1.40.

Truell's Missionary Methods for Sunday-school Workers. $.50.

Littlefield's Hand-work in the Sunday-school. $1.00.

Foster's Conventions and How to Care for Them. $.25.

Price's The Ancestry of our English Bible. $1.50.

Beecher's Dated Events of the Old Testament. $1.50.

Trumbull's Studies in Oriental Social Life. $1.50.

Arnold's A Chart of Paul's Journeys. $.20.

Beecher's Chronology in the Bible. $.25.

Riddles' Outline Harmony of the Gospels. $.25.

Foster's The Boy and the Church. 75c.
Hamill's Sunday-school Teacher-Training. $.60.

I would not advise any individual or Sunday-school librarian to purchase all these books at once. In buying books, order only a few at a time and digest them before others are ordered. The Christian Sun will furnish these books at the listed prices on request, or will furnish the addresses of publishers that you may buy direct, if you prefer; but these prices are publisher's prices to the trade and cannot be bettered by purchasing directly. Begin to collect a Teacher-Training Library at once.

What about Teacher-Training, anyway? Is it a dream or a reality? It may be a dream to you, but it ought to be a reality and a glorious one at that. Please organize a class at once.

C. E. TOPIC FOR SEPT. 19—A FEW SUGGESTIONS.

Pilgrim's Progress Series, IX. Vanity Fair, Eccl. 1.12-18; 2:1-11.

The topic for today is a very practical one, one that confronts every individual who strives to lead the Christian life. Strive to make it practical by all means.

The Scripture.—Appoint two of the more experienced endeavorers to read one the first and the other the second portions of the scripture lesson and limit them to three minutes comment each on the same.

The Pilgrim's Progress Section.—Our today's Pilgrim's Progress Section is a rather long one and will need to be considerably condensed. It begins just after the piece of poetry ending, "But since I live, let Jesus wear the crown," and closes with the small poetic selection which has as its last line, "For though they killed thee, thou art yet alive." Appoint one endeavorer to tell in his own words the dialogue between Faithful and Christian; another to do likewise of that between Talkative, Christian, and Faithful; three to read the short dialogue, each representing a character, between Christian, Faithful, and Evangelist. Let the leader tell in his own words the account of Vanity Fair and of the Trial.

Question Spurs.—How is a modern city like Vanity Fair? A modern village? How may we conquer Vanity Fair? What in Talkative's character do you dislike? How can we be faithful? What is the benefit of evangelists? How is the spirit of the world opposed to Christ? What can we do as Christian Endeavorers to overcome the world (to be given out to several)?

Scripture References.—Hand out to less experienced endeavorers:

- A stranger here, 1 Pet. 2:11-25.
- A passing pageant, 1 John 2:15-17.
- Satan's offers, Matt. 4:1-11.
- What is not vanity, Heb. 12:25-28.
- Made a spectacle, 1 Cor. 4:6-13.
- The end of vanity, Rev. 18:1-8.
- No more Vanity Fair, Rev. 21:1-5.
- Whosoever will, Rev. 22:17-20.

Suggested Program.

1. Songs. Sentence prayers, voluntary.
2. Scripture lessons read and commented on by two endeavorers appointed.

3. Song. Prayer by leader.
4. Pilgrim's Progress Program as suggested above.
5. Song. Chain of prayer.
6. Question Spurs.
7. Scripture references.
8. Voluntary participation of whatever nature.
9. Song. Prayer.
10. Pastor's Five Minutes.
11. Song. Offering. Mizpah.

"Of all things to be avoided by young person, the chief one is the lack of a high purpose; for that alone makes this earthly life worth living."

Books for Every Christian Home.

Do you know why you are a member of the Christian Church? Do you understand what the church stands for and teaches? If not, send and get a copy of the "Principles and Government of the Christian Church," just revised and greatly improved by order of the Southern Christian Convention.

Cloth binding per copy, post paid 50 cts.
Limp Cloth binding per copy, post paid 35 cts.
Paper binding per copy, post paid 25 cts.
Handsome Persian Morocco, with name in gilt $1.25.
The Southern Christian Convention also Ordered Another Book Published, PREPARING THE SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER TO TEACH. Edited by Profs. W. A. Harper, W. C. Wicker and W. P. Lawrence.
The book is neatly printed and bound and is invaluable to the Sunday-school worker, 236 pages.

Paper binding per copy, postpaid, 60 cts.
Cloth binding per copy, postpaid, 90 cts.
To Sunday-schools, paper binding 50 cts. cloth 75 cts.
Have You Read That Thrilling and Inspiring Story of His Own Life, MOTHER'S ANSWERED PRAYER, BY REV. P. H. FLEMING, D. D.?

Cloth binding, postpaid 55 cts.
All these books should be in your home. Order at once
For sale by, THE CHRISTIAN SUN, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

to hear the different comments on different Shoes. All shoes have some good points; Style or comfort or service.

WALK-OVER SHOES

have all the good points; style and comfort and service and their price is the best point of all. $3.50, 4.00 & 5.00.

Foster Shoe Co., Burlington, N. C.

Dry Goods, Notions, Ready Made Clothing.

When in Burlington visit our large store, supplied always with the very best and latest styles and novelties.

Our Dry Goods are of latest designs, and our Ready Made Clothing cannot be surpassed in quality and price.

Come, See. Be Convinced.

B. A. SELLARS & SONS. BURLINGTON, N. C.

DIED.

Blackwood.

Ralph Henry Blackwood, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Blackwood, aged two years and five days, in Barton's Creek Township, Wake Co., N. C. He was sick only two days. He died of membranous croup. Father, mother, and four sisters are left to mourn the death of the only brother. He is gone to meet the sister that went before. He was buried at Six Forks the last day of the protracted meeting. The burial services were conducted by Bro. L. F. Johnson and the writer. May God bless the bereaved ones.

W. G. Clements.

Moffitt.

Alice Dunlap Moffitt, daughter of Daniel and Louise Dunlap, was born Dec. 22, 1876, and was married March 24th 1900 to Mr. W. A. Moffitt, and died Thursday, August 12, 1909, at her home near Brower's Mills, N. C.

She was buried at Christian Union, Aug. 14. She had been a faithful and active member of this church for 20 years. The funeral services were conducted by Bros. J. R. Comer and H. F. Way.

This was a sad and impressive occasion to me, for when I left my home for a visit to friends and relatives in my old home county I had no idea that I should attend the funeral of Alice, a friend that I had spent many happy hours with in church service as well as in each other's homes.

We feel that the church will sustain a great loss by her absence, but by the life she lived we feel that the church is stronger. Had I not known Alice as I did, I should have believed her to have been a good woman upon seeing the throng of Christian people follow her to the grave, and by the many floral offerings that were placed upon her grave.

She leaves a devoted husband and four small children, a father, mother, one sister and four brothers, and a host of friends to mourn her death.

Cora Lawrence.

Bridger.

At his home near Antioch Christian Church, in Isle of Wight Co., Va., died Aug. 12, 1909, aged forty one years, three months and ten days. Bro. Bridger professed faith in Christ in early life and joined Antioch Church, and remained a member until his death. He leaves to mourn their loss a devoted mother, four sisters, one brother, and many friends. We mourn not as those that have no hope. He expressed him-

[EDUCATIONAL.]
MEDICAL COLLEGE

of the STATE OF SOUTH CAROLINA

CHARLESTON, S. C.

Session Opens October 1st, 1909.

Medicine and Pharmacy.

Pathological and pharmaceutical laboratories recently enlarged and fully equipped. Splendid Clinical facilities offered by the

ROPER HOSPITAL

one of the largest and best equipped Hospitals in the South, with 218 beds and free dispensary service. Nine appointments each year for graduates. For catalogue, address

ROBERT WILSON JR. M. D., DEAN,

Corner of Queen and Franklin Sts.

Charleston, S. C.

"The Oxford Teachers' par excellence"

JUST ISSUED!

OXFORD

Teachers' Bibles and S. S. Scholars' Bibles

With New 20th Century Helps arranged in One Alphabetical Order.

THE HELPS

The Christian Advocate, Nashville, says: "The helps are real helps. Unlike those in many of the cheap Bibles, they are not simply thrown together in hodge-podge fashion, but represent the freshest and ablest work of the foremost modern scholars."

Address THE CHRISTIAN SUN,
Elon College, N. C.

Bible is the Bible of the World."

NOW READY!
SIX NEW EDITIONS

OXFORD

Black Faced Type BIBLES

Three on Oxford White Paper. Three on the famous Oxford India Paper.

Pearl 32mo. A wonderful clear type in a small-size book.

Minion 16mo. Ready October 1907. A model hand Bible.

Brevier 16mo. Large type in small compass. "A quart in a pint measure."

"The new Bible just published by the Oxford Press is, without doubt, the finest product of the kind ever given to the public."

ASK FOR THE OXFORD EDITION

REMEMBER: That we guarantee satisfaction and sell to you cheaper than the publisher and dealers do. Our business is by mail and express and prices quoted are the prices of goods delivered to you. We can furnish you the Oxford, or the Holman Teacher's Bible at prices ranging from $1.35 to $4.00. Send for our catalogue or write us what you want. Address self as wanting to go, that all his sins were forgiven and that he was ready and willing to depart and be with Christ. Bro. Bridger was afflicted from boyhood and never knew since what it was to have good health, but he bore his afflictions with patience. He was never married. His funeral was conducted by Rev. Mr. King of the Baptist Church in the absence of the pastor.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN, Elon College, N. C.

A Friend.

Fuller.

Miss Lula Belle Fuller, the daughter of Mrs. Ann Eliza and Thompson Fuller, died at the home of her mother near Epsom, N. C., August 7, 1909, aged thirty-nine years.

When a child she professed religion and united with Liberty Christian Church. She was of a cheerful disposition, loved her church, her neighbors and in turn was loved by both. In her death both the church and a host of friends feel with the surviving members of the family a loss.

Her mother, one sister and three brothers are living. The mother has now passed her seventieth year and in recent years has buried her husband, three daughters and a son. Yet in this recent loss of the daughter, the only child with her and one always so faithful and kind, she sorrows as one who has hope.

In my absence the burial at Liberty cemetery August 8th, was conducted by Rev. J. W. Frank of the M. P. Church.

C. E. Newman.

Pond.

Selma Latitia Pond, daughter of G. P. Pond, was born Jan. 29, 1907, and died Aug. 22, 1909, aged two years months and twenty-three days. Her mother preceeded her to the grave nearly two years, leaving her in the eare of her grand-mother, Mrs. Sallie Pond.

She leaves to mourn, a father, one brother, and two little sisters, and many other dear ones. May the bereaved ones be comforted with the thought that Heaven is made up of little ehildren and such as become like them. "The Lord doeth all things well to those who love and serve Him."

The remains were interred in the Spring Hill Cemetery.

H. E. Rountree, Pastor.

Harris.

Elizabeth Jane Harris, sister to the late John T. Harris, was born Sept. 24, 1832 and died Aug. 21, 1909, aged 76 years, 10 months and 28 days.

She was a member of Spring Hill ehureh nearly all her life, having united with it when but a child. She lived with her sister, Mrs. John Schaefer near Sussex C. H. She was always loving and kind and, as far as we are eapable of judging, fully eonsecrated to the Lord. She was constant in her devotions and eould always enter into the spirit in every service rendered to the Lord. During the few weeks of her sickness, she was a great sufferer, but endured with great patience and fortitude. The Lord bless the bereaved ones.

The remains were interred in the old family cemetery now owned by Brother J. L. Cox, Aug. 22, 1909.

H. E. Rountree, Pastor.

HISTORY AT THE DISTRICT SCHOOL.

The new teacher glanced smilingly over the school, and delighted to see so many bright young faces among his new eharges. "Now, children," she said, opening her history book, "we will run over our history, so that I may find out what you know. Willie Perkins, you may tell me why Washington crossed over the Delaware."

"Ahum—er—why, now, er—ahum," began Willie; "why, becuz"—

"Beeause what, dear?" asked the teacher.

"Beeuz he couldn't go under it," said Willie.

"Dear me, Willie, what an answer!" ejaculated the teacher. "Polly Hicks, you look like a bright little girl. Why did the Father of His Country cross the Delaware?"

"Pleathe, mam," replied Polly, "I gueth it wath beuth the Hudthon wath too far away for him to eroth that."

"Mercy!" eried the teacher. "Really, you will all have to stay in this afternoon and study your history. I will

One Cough

Ask your doctor about Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. If he says, "Take it," then take it. If he says, "No," then don't.

A cough, just a little cough. It may not amount to much. Or, it may amount to everything! Some keep coughing until the lung tissues are seriously injured. Others stop their cough with Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Sold for seventy years. How long have you known it?

The Centennial of Religious Journalism

EDITED BY J. PRESSLEY BARRETT, D. D.
Editor Herald of Gospel Liberty

This is without doubt the most generally interesting publication sent out by the Christians. Its centennial, historical and denominational features make it not only unique in character, but interesting as well. From beginning to end it claims the interested attention of the reader.

We have not space here to give the table of contents, but suffice it to say, that beginning with the "Discussion of the conditions which made the organization of the Christian Church a necessity," the reader will follow with interest and profit, the "History of the Herald of Gospel Liberty," "The One Hundred Editorial Gems," "Historical Sketches of One-Hundred-Year-Old Churches," "A Symposium—A Hundred Years of Progress," setting forth in well prepared papers the development of the various enterprises of the Christian Church, and with a heart full of optimistic hope he will peruse "The Future Outlook of the Christian Church."

And all this, and more, in a book of nearly 650 pages, handsomely bound, with gold titles, while the price is only $1.00 for cloth binding and $2.00 for Morocco, with your name printed in gold. Postage, 15 cents extra. Send your order at once to

J. N. HESS, Publishing Agent

Dayton, Ohio

When the Children go to School

You have a feeling of security if there are telephones in the community. As a means of protection the telephone is of inestimable value in rural districts. In widely separated districts neighbors can communicate quickly with each other and with the nearest town.

Under the plan of the Bell System any farmer can secure telephone service at low cost.

For information write to nearest Bell Telephone Manager, or address

Farmers' Line Department
SOUTHERN BELL TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH CO.
19 SOUTH PRYOR STREET, ATLANTA, GA.

now test you on arithmetic. Maggie Wilkins, if I were to divide three bananas among seventeen boys, what would be the result?"

"A riot," said Maggie, speaking up like a little drum major.

"Possibly," said the teacher; "but that is not what I mean. Tommy, you may take the question. Three bananas among three boys—that would be one banana apiece for each boy. Now three bananas among seventeen boys would be what?"

"Three bananas, mam," answered Tommy.

"I know, but three into seventeen is"—said the teacher.

"Three bananas would go into seventeen boys once and none over," said Tommy confidently.

It was then that the new teacher resigned.—Harper's Weekly.

INCOME INSURANCE.

Has come to stay. People want it. The many wills left, providing Annual Incomes through Trustees, attest this fact. Men want certainty. A lump sum of money left to a widow, is liable to be borrowed, loaned, or lost by bad investment, or the income therefrom delayed or greatly depreciated.

Money left with the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company, to be returned as an annual, semi-annual, quarterly or monthly income, IS SAFE.

The Company has an unblemished record of 52 years—present assets over two hundred and fifty million dollars.

Our interesting document No. 842 giving full particulars will be sent on request.

T. A. Cary.

601 Mutual Assurance Soc. Bldg.,
Richmond, Va.

—The British Government will send sixteen battleships to participate in the Hudson-Fulton celebration. This event promises to be of international as well as of national importance.

—Along with the discovery of the North Pole comes the news of the almost discovery of the South Pole by the British Lieutenant Shackleton.

—With no more lands to discover we look to the sky and await the hero who will fly to Mars and nail the stars and stripes to his "side."

—A woman in Paris allowed herself to be kissed by a clean-shaven man and then by a bearded man, and it was shown by the microscope that while the first salute was innocuous, the second colonized her lip with the bacilli of tuberculosis, diphtheria, pneumonia, and many other disagreeable inhabitants. But what's the use of pointing out the moral?—Selected.

—Bless God for starlight, and he will give you moonlight; praise him for moonlight and he will give you sunlight; thank him for sunlight, and you shall yet come to the land where they need not the light of the sun, for the Lord God giveth them light for ever and ever.—Spurgeon.

During 1909

(As in previous years)

We want you in our business, for we have what you want in your homes—the very best, most substantial and handsome furniture at bottom prices. We are also the undertakers.

Burke Furniture and Coffin Company
BUKLLINGTON, N. C.

Southern Railway

Operating Over 7,000 Miles of Railway. Quick Route to all Points North, South, East and West.

For Speed, Comfort, Courteous Employees, travel via the Southern Railway.

Rates, Schedules and other information furnished by any of the undersigned.

R. L. VERNON, Trav. Pass. Agt.,
Charlotte, N. C.

J. H. WOOD, Dist. Pass. Agt.,
Asheville, N. C.

S. H. HARDWICK, P. T. M.,

Washington, D. C. W. H. TAYLOR, G. P. A.,

Elon College.

Co-educational. Established 1890.

Thorough College courses leading to M. A., A. B., and Ph. B. degrees. Strong and experienced Faculty with highest University training. Good Library, Reading Room, Laboratories, Literary Societies. Excellent Music, Art, Elocution and Business Departments. Diploma from Elon admits to graduate departments in the highest universities.

Beautiful and healthful location, 17 miles east of Greensboro on Southern Railway. Best moral and religious influence. No hazing. New students met by reception committees from young people's Christian organizations connected with the college. Good equipment. A large new dormitory, with modern conveniences, has recently been built to meet the requirements of growing patronage.

EXPENSES UNUSUALLY MODERATE. FALL TERM OPENS SEPT. 1ST.

For catalogue or further information, address

EMMETT L. MOFFITT, LL. D., President.

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

Queen Wilhelmina as Peacemaker.

A pretty little story comes from The Hague of one occasion on which Queen Wilhelmina acted as peacemaker. The late King of Holland was, as is well known, a man of ungovernable temper, and when he was annoyed over anything it was quite useless to attempt to argue with him. On one occasion he was very angry over the manner in which one of the Dutch newspapers had criticised his actions. He refused to see his ministers, and stamped up and down a corridor at his palace, storming and gesticulating as was his wont. The Cabinet was becoming desperate, since some important papers demanded his immediate attention. It was left to one of the ladies of the court to solve the difficulty. She sent little Princess Wilhelmina, then about 5 years old, into the corridor to meet her father. She watched him for a moment unnoticed, and then imitated his actions, stamping backward and forward with her fists tightly clenched. His majesty caught sight of her and was unable to help laughing as he paused to watch her. Half an hour later the premier found the king seated on the floor playing contentedly with his little daughter, to whom he was devotedly attached, and quite unruffled.—Selected.

OPIUM or Morphine Habit Treated. Free trial cases where other remedies have failed, specially desired. Confidential.

Dr. R. G. CONTRELL, successor to HARRIS INSTITUTE, Room 552, No. 400 W. 23rd St., New York.

—Dr. Cook need not wonder at the skeptics. So scoffed they at Marco Polo, Livingston, DuChailu, Stanley and others which were before the doctor in exploring distant or inaccessible regions. He will doubtless be glad, however, of any confirmation that Peary may bring.—Exchange.

Children have more need of models than of critics.—Joseph Joubert.

The Christian Sun.

State Library

In Essentials—Unity, in Non-Essentials—Liberty, in All Things—Charity.

ESTABLISHED 1844.

GREENSBORO N. C., WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 22, 1909. VOLUME LXI. NUMBER 37.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

The North Pole.—For two or three hundred years the discovery of the North Pole has been the goal of the intrepid scientists and explorers of the world. On April 21, 1908, Dr. Fr derick A. Cook and on April 6, 1909 Commander Robert F. Peary reached it—both Americans. The Peary announcement came just five days after the Cook. When Dr. Cook learned that Peary had discovered the pole, his comment was "I am glad." So were we all, for Commander Peary has given 30 years of his life to the problem and we Americans like to see the persistent efforts of our fellows crowned with success. When Peary was informed that Dr. Cook had discovered the pole nearly a year before himself, he wired to the world, "Cook's story should not be taken too seriously. The Eskimos who accompanied him say that he went no distance north. He did not get out of sight of land. Other men of the tribe corroborate their statements." Mrs. Peary even before she heard that her husband had discovered the pole felt sure Dr. Cook could not have discovered the pole "because he is not of our set." Pity that the romantic struggles of a century should thus terminate not in glory and honor, but in bitter and belittling and acrimonious personalities." We feel sorry for the whole thing—we feel ashamed of Commander Peary and of his wife. We shall believe that both brave, peerless heroes have found the pole, unless the records of either or of both shall prove them false.

But what of the value of having stood at the North Pole? Nothing. But to penetrate the frozen regions of the Arctic Circle, to study geography there, to investigate the laws of magnetism, meteorology, and astronomy as they apply at the end of the earth, these are matters of immense value to civilization and will throw light on many disputed points in human knowledge and science. True this work is largely yet to be done, just as the work of winning the New World for civilization had to be largely done after the discoveries of Columbus, Vesputius, and Cabot: but it can be done and will be done readily and easily now, because the mind of the explorer will be no longer engrossed over the matter of a terrific dash to the Pole. We shall expect (and we shall not expect in vain) to hear of many things that shall grow out of this crowning achievement of three centuries of struggle with ice and cold and death in the barren regions of the frozen north. The greatest success of Cook and of Peary is not that they have at last nailed the Stars and Stripes to the Pole, but that they have opened the way for the investigations and achievements of scientists less romantic, intrepid, and famous than themselves in the Arctic Zone. Labor vincit omnia.

The Napoleon of Finance.—If ever an American or man of any other nation, as for that matter, was entitled to the flamboyant sobriquet, "Napoleon of Finance," then Edward H. Harriman who last week died in New Jersey was the man. The son of a poor Episcopal minister, with but scanty educational advantages, small in stature, seething with energy, capable of inhuman endeavors, began his career as a "little corporal" and went out of life the commander of mighty armies of men and of money. Under his control were more railroads than under the control of any man who ever lived. His gigantic railway systems threaded our continent with a perfect net work of steel rails, and the equipment along these systems was of the very best. Mr. Harriman did not mind borrowing hundreds of millions to improve his roads and he was ever on the alert for improvements. He was fair to his workmen, honest in his dealings with his stockholders, and tried to save the interests of his shippers—to the end that the systems might earn more money. Under his control were railroads valued at $3,000,000,000,—an inconceivable sum.

But with all this, Mr. Harriman's life was in a sense a tragedy, just at Napoleon's was. He ought to have lived in the feudal days of the world's history, for he applied the feudal system to the railways of America. His idea was that all the railway systems of the country could be best managed by one man. In the absence of the realization of that ambition, he divided the country in railroad baronial districts over which (so far as his roads were concerned) he appointed barons, who were expected to look after his interests, crush his competitors and try to get everything in their control. When once Mr. Harriman had decided on a policy as wise and necessary for business interests, he never let up until it was realized, no matter how many competitors were ruined nor how many statute laws he had to violate. In other words he championed autoocracy in business, just as Napoleon did in politics. But according to our way of thinking autoocracy in business is doomed, dying, and is to be followed by democracy in business, just as political autoocracy has been succeeded by political democracy. By this we do not mean that the great business enterprises of the country are to pass over to small manipulators, but that the government shall have a hand in the management of all business, especially that of the giant corporations, to the common welfare of these great enterprises and of the people. Therefore, to us Mr. Harriman's life seems to have ended in tragedy—the thing, financial autoocracy, to which he gave his career being wrong in principle, condemned by the people, and doomed to die.

When congratulated on attaining his sixtieth birthday Mr. Harriman, the railroad magnate, said, "As I grow older I am beginning to think more about my fellow-men." This was well. One better think of his fellow men late than never. But there is little evidence that Mr. Harriman thought much of his fellow men, save the few persons with whom he came in daily contact, and those whom he employed, for the immense fortune that he accumulated is left not to beneficence or to charity, but remains intact in the name of his widow.

In that he was great railroad builder and organizer, and developed many sections of country through which his railroads passed, he was thinking of his fellow men, and to that extent was a benefactor of his day.

—Commander Robert E. Peary, who was the second man to reach the North Pole is expected to land in New York city on Thursday, Sept. 23.

FROM THE FIELD.

Norfolk.

We have just closed our work at Providence and Park Place, Norfolk. We feel grateful for the kind regards shown to us by the members of each of these congregations in the closing services and during the year. We believe that they are loyal to the interests of the Christian Church and willing to toil and sacrifice for the cause. We admire their spirit. May God bless them. We hope to arrive the last of this week in West Liberty, Ohio. We labored in this field as pastor for three years and found it a very pleasant work.

Our association with the brethren in the ministry since we have been in Virginia has been most pleasant. We shall be glad to meet them again.

W. H. Thompson.

District Meeting.

The District Meeting of the Ala. Christian Conference was held with the new church at Rock Stand and was in many respects the best meeting we ever held. We have something to rejoice over, for our people are awakening to a sense of duty. I have been secretary of the district almost three years and this has been the best meeting of them all. Most of our ministers were present and every church represented but three. We were indeed glad to have Bro. J. D. Garrison with us from the Georgia and Alabama Conference, and hear his eloquent speech on the subject of "Missions." Our people are becoming more interested in the mission work. On Saturday the audience was very large, and every subject was ably discussed. Sunday was a perfect feast to our souls, for the Spirit of God was with us in great power. At the close of this meeting we observed our communion service as before. By his request a special prayer was offered for Rev. T. H. Elder who has worn out his life in service to God, being then on the bed of affliction, not able to attend service. May God bless these old veterans of the cross. We proceeded to close by taking the parting hand. Many desires were made known which will help us to bear each others' burdens in this service. We had a prayer offered by the mute daughter of Rev. C. M. Dollar. One cannot imagine how our hearts leaped for joy to see one so much interested who has not the power to speak. But thanks be to God though we be bound till we cannot utter a word, He knows our heart and is ready to hear. The next session of this meeting will be held with Corinth Church five miles of Wadley, Alabama, fifth Sunday and Saturday before in October. Let us all come together again and expect great things of God and He will surely grant them if we but ask aright. I need the help and prayers of the brotherhood in my ministerial work. For it is and has been my desire for my life to be given entirely to the service of God.

Yours in His Service,
J. V. Knight, Secy.,

Lineville, Ala.

ELON COLLEGE NOTES.

New students have been enrolled practically every day since the opening and the work of the college is now well under way; and faculty, students, and friends confidently look forward to a most successful year.

Interest in the class-room, in the societies, in the religious organizations, in athletics and in every phase of college life was never more marked than this year.

The Athletic Association starts off vigorously, and indications point to an unusual degree of enthusiasm among the men in the various athletic features. All of last year's Basket Ball Team, and all the leading tennis players have returned, and are getting down to business. Several of the old base-ball men have dropped out, but Manager Fonville thinks he has the best new material we have ever had. They are expecting a strong team. It is a noticeable fact here that most of our best tennis, base-ball and basket-ball men are among the strongest and best students in college. In fact, a man whose average is below 85 is not allowed to play on a team. Our students have never "gone wild" over athletics, but they take enough interest in it to give them good, healthful exercise and to create a good cheerful college spirit.

The following are the new officers of the Athletic Association for the year: President, C. C. Fonville; vice president, W. W. Elder; secretary, A. L. Lincoln; treasurer, W. F. Warren; finance committee—Barney, Lincoln—A. L., Fleming—J. S., Elder. Manager of base ball team, C. C. Fonville.

Last Saturday evening a very enjoyable reception was given the new students. Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Moffitt in charge of the many unique features of the evening; the most enjoyable of which were the brilliant impersonations of about twenty-five of the most familiar "Mother Goose" characters. The prize was won by Miss Bessie McPherson and Mr. A. L. Lincoln representing "Jack Sprat and his wife." This was as much enjoyed as the regular formal opening reception of the week before.

The organization of the Sunday-school was completed last Sunday, the following being the officers and teachers for the year: Supt., Professor Lawrence; Asst. Supt., J. W. Barney; Sec., A. L. Lincoln; Asst. Sec., W. W. Elder; Treas., Miss Carrie Boyd; organist, Miss Virgie Holland; Asst. organist, Miss Macie Farmer. Teachers: Profs. Harper, Newman, Lawrence, Randolph, Amick and Cobb; Messrs. Barney, Hall A. C., Campbell, Felton, and Misses Urquhart and Bryan and Mrs. Foster, Mrs. Saunders, Mrs. Patton, and Miss Dawson.

The Christian Endeavor officers are as follows: President, Prof. Amick; vice president, Prof. Cobb; secretary, Miss Carrie Boyd; treasurer, Mr. J. Lee Johnson.

Y. M. C. A. officers: Pres., W. W. Elder, V. Pres., Barney, Sec., Hall, A. C., Treasurer—

Y. W. C. A. officers: Pres., Miss Effie Griffin, V. Pres., Miss Carrie Boyd, Sec., Miss Nannie B. Farmer, Treas., Miss Bessie McPherson, Cor. Sec., Miss Nannie E. Farmer.

Rev. Daniel Albright Long, D.D., LL.D., of Graham, N. C., delighted the college audience last Sunday morning with a most interesting account of his visit to the old town of Bethlehem, and in the afternoon he gave an equally interesting talk to the Y. M. C. A. on his visit to the island of Malta. Dr. Long has kindly consented to visit us again during the year and continue these most interesting and instructive "travel talks" on the Holy Land. Mrs. Long accompanied the doctor last Sunday and they spent the day at Dr. Newman's.

Mr. A. W. Preston, of Belevs Creek, N. C., Mr. H. E. Moffitt, of Asheboro, N. C., Miss Bronna Clymer, of Greensboro, Miss Iola Johnson (Class 1909), of Sedley, Va., and Rev. J. D. Wicker, of Sanford, N. C., were recent visitors on the hill.

Miss Johnson was joined here by Miss Alma Newman (Class 1907), and both went to Clio, Ala., where they are to teach during the coming year, Miss Newman in the Music department, and Miss Johnson in the literary branches. This is Miss Newman's second year at Clio.

Prof. Amick preached for Dr. Fleming in the Burlington Christian Church last Sunday.

Miss Maud Pritchard (Class 1909) who visited friends here during the opening left for her home at Chapel Hill last Tuesday. Miss Pritchard will take post-graduate work at the University of North Carolina this year.

Mr. V. C. Pritchett (Class 1907) who has been an instructor in the Preparatory Department here for two years went to Chapel Hill last week where he will take post-graduate work in the sciences this year.

Mr. S. M. Patton (Class 1909) stopped over at the college a short while last week on his way to Lakewood, Fla., where he will be Principal of schools for the present year.

CHURCH ETIQUETTE.

As long as there are churches, there will be a church etiquette, and very many who would not think for a moment of offending at a social function, do not seem at all concerned when attending a sacred service. The following rules form a good foundation:

1. If possible, be in time. You need at least five minutes, after coming, to get warm or cool, to compose your body and mind, and to whisper a prayer before the service begins.

2. Never pass up the aisle during prayer or Scripture reading. If you do, your presence will distract the minds of many in the audience.

3. Be devout in every attitude. All whispering should be studiously avoided. Find the hymn, and sing it if you can. Share the book with your neighbor. If in a strange church conform to its customs of worship.

4. If the sermon has begun, take a seat near the door, no matter if you are "at home."

5. Be thoughtful for the comfort of others. Take the inside of the pew if you are the first to enter, and leave all vacant space at the end next to the aisle.

6. Speak a bright, cheery word to as many as possible at the close of the service. If you are a stranger, ask one of the ushers to introduce you to the pastor or to some of the church officers. This will always insure you a hearty welcome.

7. Never put on your overcoat, over-shoes or wraps during the closing hymn, and do not make a rush for the door immediately after the benediction is pronounced. There should be no loud talking and jesting after the service is concluded. They are as much out of place at the house of God as at a house of mourning.—Ex.

THE DOOR OF THE SCHOLAR'S HEART.

A charming metaphor! Not faded, but effulgent.

There exists between teacher and scholar an attitude not found in any other relation of life: the teacher posing as one with mental faculties developed and cultured, ready to impart; the scholar taking the pose of one whose intellectual endowments are lying dormant, waiting to receive.

The first concern of the true teacher is to win a place in the affections of his scholars, and thereby build a way to the doors of their hearts. How he hopes, longs, and prays for a glimpse beyond those apparently formidable barriers.

When a teacher looks for the first time into the faces of his scholars, they reveal to him no more of their inner lives and aspirations than does the sculptured face of the Egyptian sphinx. We are told that the stone phantom seems attentive; one would say that it sees and hears. Its aspect is said to have a depth and even a sweetness of expression irresistibly fascinating to the spectator.

We know that the statue, so skilfully carved by the unknown artist, does not hear, does not see, does not feel, does not understand. On the other hand, the teacher knows that his scholars do hear, do see, and do understand. My dear teachers, above all, they will very soon understand you, and will intuitively grasp your motive. They readily comprehend the difference between teaching for the benefit and uplift of humanity and teaching to supply the place.

Standing thus at the door of their hearts, the conscientious teacher pauses and remembers that his work and influence will endure, not only for time, but for eternity. How great the responsibility! Shall he attempt to open those doors? If so, how?

In everyone there is an undefinable longing for something higher, better, nobler. Hidden deeply somewhere in his better nature is a "lost chord" whose feeblest vibration breathes diviner melodies in such dulcet tones as to be scarcely discernible. The master-teacher gently touches this delicate harp-string by judiciously presenting high ideals and lofty sentiments, teaching that, not failure, but low aim, is crime, thus inspiring the learner to faith in himself, and ultimately to faith in God. The "lost chord" is found. It drops the low wail of longing, and takes up the victorious symphony.

The door of the heart is opened. Its tide of affection flows freely out, and by the laws of compensation there must be an equivalent inflowing current. From where is it to be derived? The teacher knows that his work has only just begun, and is painfully conscious of his own weakness. Those aroused affections must be nurtured and guided. The faithful teacher rises to the emergency, and allures his scholars to a more diligent study of the Bible, the text-book which contains all other text-books, the inexhaustible supply of knowledge which leads to life eternal.

The Sunday-school teacher, having the best of text-books, should make the most of it. The psychical activity of each individual receives knowledge through an especial avenue, and in a peculiar form. In other words, the same subject must be presented to different minds by different methods.

For the tender mind the Bible contains stories which if illustrated by a clever teacher, in beautiful word pictures, become far more interesting than fairy tales, Arabian Nights stories, or fanciful myths.

What teacher cannot, by a pleasant narrative about the boy Jesus, sitting amidst the doctors, and asking them questions, incite other boys to study His life and to love Him?

David's kindness to the "Lame Prince" for "Jonathan's sake" will lead captive the hearts of boys and girls, and fill them with holier affection.

The aesthetic mind may be led to God by the inspiring poetry of the Bible. What fascinating dramas! What stirring epics! What soul-uplifting lyrics, much sweeter than those of Sappho, the Lesbian singer.

For the mature and thoughtful mind the Bible offers the soundest philosophy ever expounded. Socrates is said to have brought philosophy from heaven, and introduced it into the homes of men. Christ brought the philosophy of salvation from heaven, and placed it in the hearts of men. Socrates, condemned to drink the fatal hemlock, spent the night before in discoursing to his disciples on the immortality of the soul. Christ, by his resurrection, proved the immortality of the soul to his disciples.

The grandest and most pathetic love story ever penned is found in the Bible. It is the story of the love of Christ for fallen humanity. O! how dark the tragedy enacted in the death scene of the Lover! And that grand sequel, his final triumph over his enemies and over death itself, and the espousal of the Church as his bride!

This story if faithfully portrayed will fill the heart with the opened door, and the teacher has attained the fruition of his fondest hopes in the sincere conversion of his scholars through faith in (Miss) H. C. O. Martz. Christ.

"The ministry proposes a larger service to humanity than ever before. We speak sometimes of a decline in the relative importance of the clergyman in the community. This is misleading. As society grows stronger and life richer the place of a true minister becomes absolutely much more important. His place is much stronger because he is not so solitary."—M. F. McDowell, D.D., LL.D.

It is possible, divinely possible, to be strongest through and through one's weakest points.—Moule.

NOTES AND PERSONALS.

—Rev. W. H. Thompson changes his address from Norfolk Va. to West Liberty, Ohio.

—Rev. J. W. Edler changes his address from Columbus, Ga. to De Armanville, Ala., R. F. D. 3.

—Rev. L. I. Cox is an earnest and successful pastor whose labors the Lord uses to great results. He has witnessed over 100 conversions, received 66 members and baptized 91 within the past few weeks.

—Rev. M. L. Bryant has been reelected pastor of Main St. Church, Berkley, Va., and has accepted, which will make his fourth year's service. The Virginian-Pilot says "Rev. M. Bryant has made an able and efficient minister and pastor and the members feel elated in having him to serve them another year."

—The editor spent some days last week with Pastor N. G. Newman in a series of meetings at Holland, Va. How rapidly and pleasantly the days passed, and all too soon we must needs leave the good people and the interesting work there. Holland is a live church with a loyal membership, a large constituency, a faithful pastor and an excellent choir. Twenty united with the church Friday afternoon and the meeting was to continue. For the generous and lavish hospitality of this people and for the many favors and courtesies of Pastor Newman our heart still enlarges with gratitude. Our home was under the generous roof of Bro. B. W. Council, a busy and successful merchant of the town, who, with his noble wife and her amiable sister, Miss Kate Harrell, left nothing undone for the preacher's comfort and happiness. This with the dozen invitations to dine and take tea with other kind friends made the work a pleasure and the season of service altogether too short. One item of the service impressed us much. The singers, under the efficient leadership of Mrs. Dr. Holland at the organ, might be counted on to be in their places promptly and to be ready at all times for faithful service. Such a choir, interested, anxious and prompt, is certainly a great blessing to any church and a great help to any pastor or preacher.

Bro. Newman has an ideal pastorate, Holland and Holy Neck, and it would be difficult to tell which congregation is more active, interested, and devoted to their pastor. Happy pastor, fortunate people.

BURNED HIMSELF OUT.

So the papers speak of the going from the body of Edward H. Harriman while yet at that age when he should have been strong, active, vigorous in nature's course. "Burned himself out before his time," as Jay Gould had done years ago, in the mad rush of a busy age.

Harriman was master of railroads—the greatest railroad magnate and manager in the world. He could cross this continent by one of his routes and return by another, without traversing the same line twice at any point. Sixty thousand miles of trackage was under his sway. His own energy and great financial ability and zeal put him there, but at what a price.

When President Roosevelt wanted an example of "malefactors of great wealth" and could find no better he chose Harriman.

This man not only controlled railways, but he controlled also an immense fortune—a hundred million or more, it is estimated. He was a preacher's son and began poor. He had spent $2,500,000 on the palace and estate he was building for private residence at Arden, N. Y., but did not live to complete it. The great bulk of his immense fortune goes by bequest to his widow, making her, it is said, the richest woman in the world.

But Harriman's body returns to its native dust. The soul that inhabited it has gone to appear before the judgment bar of God.

Sic transit gloria mundi.

The New Religious Census.—In 1890 our government took a religious census. In 1906, sixteen years later, another was completed, which has recently been given to the world. This census makes us feel good, because it proves false and baseless the grave charges and cowardly fears of many in regard to the place of the Church in America. There is hardly a magazine which does not contain some article to the effect that the Church is losing ground. These articles must close from this day on. For this recent report shows—and figures don't misrepresent—that Church membership has increased faster than population. From 1890 to 1906 our population increased 33.8 per cent. During this same time our Church membership increased 60.4 per cent, our number of church edifices 35.3 per cent and the value of our church property 85.1 percent.

Another fallacy or mistaken notion is to the effect that the number of ministers has relatively decreased. Last year the periodicals were filled with learned(?) contributions showing why the number of preachers had decreased and bewailing the sad fact, as if the next thing to do would be to preach the Church's obituary. According to this report these learned contributions and these bitter wails for the Church were without foundation, out of order, and uncalled for. In 1890 there was one preacher for every 185 members; in 1906 there was one preacher for every 139 members. It would seem that, from these figures, the Church in America is far from the decadent thing many doubting Thomases would have us believe and that the day, not of her dissolution, but of her greater triumph is at hand. So mote it be. Amen.

THE S. S. LESSON FOR SEPT. 26, '09.

Temperance Lesson.

1 Cor. 10:23-33.

Golden Text.—Let everyone of us please his neighbor for his good to edification: Rom. 15:2.

The Church at Corinth is a part of the fruit of the labors of Paul on his second missionary journey. The Epistle of which this lesson is a part was written at Ephesus, near the close of Paul's three years stay in that city.

The truth of the lesson is that questionable methods should be avoided, and calls for a consideration of the limits of Christian freedom.

While discussing this question Paul discourages the habit of scrupulosity, but he had clear views regarding the limitations of Christian freedom. We must be prepared, he believed, to limit it for the sake of others. Members of the church are not living for the mere sake of self-enjoyment. They have the duty of edification. Liberty of conscience is restricted by the danger to others of acts permitted to us. Another's weakness need not be our law, but it may cause us to refrain from exercising our own conscious freedom. Two great motives should govern our lives: the glorifying God and the salvation of souls.

To be guided aright in these matters, we need a common sense religion, a vigorous, affirmative religion. Active life and association with men and women bring us face to face with social and ethical problems which we do not understand. To be told to "be good" and have what a good life means left to inference or explained in so prosaic manner that nothing tangible can be retained in mind is quite a reflection upon our age. G. W. T.

—More than 450,000 immigrants have landed at Ellis Island during the last six months, and each one who wished it was given a copy of the Scriptures in his own language by missionaries of the New York Bible Society. During this time there have been 90,000 volumes of Scripture in 37 different languages distributed in the city and harbor of New York.

NEWS ITEMS.

—September 15 President William H. Taft began his 13,000 mile tour of the West and South.

—There are 22,000,000 Protestant church members in the United States. These give for foreign missions, each year $9,000,000. Only about forty cents each!

—Manufacturers of automobiles have been making immense profits, but in Europe the supply has exceeded the demand, Europe being able now to supply the United States from its surplus stock. It is predicted that the prices of automobiles will be reduced one half within two years.—Exchange.

—It is being proposed that the State of California be divided into two States. It is large enough for two, and growing rapidly in population; and the interests of South California are quite different from those of North California. Texas, another rapidly growing state, will soon claim its right to be divided into three or four States.

—This year's cotton crop, according to Government reports, will be the lowest ever made in the history of the Government reports. It is a seventh below the average. The crop a year ago went to over 13,500,000 bales—this year will be about a 10,000,000 bales crop. Prices will easily go to 15 cents this fall, so it is predicted.

—The great Seattle fair is one fair without liquor. It is said that the managers were offered $500,000, with a percentage of the profits added, for the privilege of selling liquor. The fair is more than half over now, and has proved from the beginning a great success. Its exceptional freedom from disorder and necessity of arrests has been noted by all visitors. On the opening day there was an attendance of about 100,000 people, and but one arrest was made. Since then practically all the arrests have been made for criminal acts. The Exposition bids fair to be a financial success. This seems to prove that the American people not only like to live in towns where liquor is not sold, but, when they go to places of amusement, they prefer to go to those which are sober.

—One of the most serious problems the Department of Agriculture has had to meet is the ridding of the country of the millions of rats with which it is infested, and which are especially the foes of the farmer. It is estimated that the rat pest costs the United States $100,000,000 yearly in grain destroyed alone. The rat also pollutes a great quantity of food products which it does not eat, does great damage by digging under buildings and embankments, gnawing wood, cutting up goods and papers to make nests, killing poultry and stealing eggs. The most destructive species is the Norway rat, which has been carried to all parts of the world on ships. It is calculated that a single pair of rats would, in three years, under favorable circumstances increase to 20,000,000. The Department of Agriculture has planned a vigorous crusade against the vermin, and it recommends rat-proof construction in buildings, better protection of food supplies, and the use of various poisons in localities haunted by rats.—Leslie's Weekly.

NORFOLK LETTER.

The Third Church, still being without a pastor, had no preaching services Sunday morning or evening. The Sunday-school was very good. The regular prayer-meeting will be kept up.

It was the privilege of the writer, together with several other members of the Third Church, to attend services at the Memorial Temple Sunday morning. Congregation was good, and listened to a fine sermon from the pastor. He was dealing with the subject, "The Whiteness of the Harvest, and the Scarcity of Laborers," dwelling at length on the dearth of ministers, and making an urgent appeal for individuals to improve their opportunities for soul winning.

Brother Ryan has been holding a series of meetings at Rosemont, every night the past week, and they are still in progress, but will probably close Tuesday night. Congregation have been fine, and considerable interest manifested, with two or three conversions reported.

Nothing definite yet, in the way of a pastor for either one of the pastorless churches here.

Mrs. James A. Eley of the Third Church, who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Dickson, at Warren, Pa., has returned home, accompanied by her daughter, and little son.

Col. A. Savage, though somewhat improved, during the past week, having been able to get down the stairs, once or twice, is again confined to his room, and is reported to have had a very uncomfortable night last night, and suffering intensely today.

Dr. T. Edward Baird, whom I have reported in these columns several times during the last few months, I am glad to report, continues to improve. His general health now is fine, he continues to gain in weight, and is looking several years younger, and his practice is picking up nicely. This I am sure will be encouraging information to his many friends. His brother, "Jaek" Baird, of Waverly, is in Norfolk hospital now, just convalescing, after nine weeks, from a severe attack of typhoid fever. Hopes are entertained that he will soon be at home, and well again.

The Virginia Tidewater Sunday School Association will hold its regular quarterly meeting with the Christian Church at Lambert's Point, Sunday afternoon. A full delegation is desired, and a profitable time is expected.

J. W. Manning.

NOTICE TO S. S. SUPERINTENDENTS.

This notice is to remind every Supt. in the Eastern Va. Christian S. S. Convention that the request made in a recent letter to you, concerning the appointment of a Primary Supt. for your school, is important, and to urge you to give request your immediate attention. One sixth of the S. S. year is gone. Can you not see that if anything in the department of Primary Union is to be accomplished until the next Convention, that we must work quickly and systematically, each one performing such little service as will help toward the next higher step, without which concerted action and prompt response to duty we can never get beyond the first round in the ladder.

Some will respond to this call at once—but not everyone can be first. Surely no one will wish to be last.

Postal cards—I mean plain, government cards—are not appreciated sometimes, but in this instance I shall be very happy to receive forty-one during the next few days. Who will be first? Will not every superintendent heed this call to duty?

Mrs. J. J. Lincoln, Supt. Primary Union E. Va. Christian S. S. Convention.

—Six hundred million dollars worth of property are burned up in this country every year. That is equal to the value of the wheat crop. We are the most careless and wasteful people on earth.—Exchange.

—Japan is the latest country to be invaded by the baseball fever. A ball nine from the University of Wisconsin is playing there, and preparations are making for one hundred thousand spectators when the games occur in Tokyo.

—The "common drinking cup" must no longer be used in railroad-trains or stations, in public or private schools, or in state educational institutions, according to a ruling of the Kansas Board of Health. One immediate advantage of this prohibition ought to be a decrease in the prevalence of contagious diseases in the state.

CONTENTMENT.

Doubtless there are many discontented folks at this time, and they may be found in every condition, and in every avocation and profession. There are many causes for it, some of which may be known, others are not known, but they exist and work their silent and destructive influence to success and happiness. No one can always be at what he may call, his best. A first effort is sometimes more successful than a second one, because the inspiration and the conditions of the second trial were not so good, and for that reason he could not measure up to the standard which he had set. Physical disability, depressed, discouraged surroundings impair the energy, weaken the power, and take away the inspiration. Many a time you feel all right and are ready for any and every occasion. In other words, you have the right tension, and feel like playing your part well, and discharging your duty with honor to yourself and pleasure to your friends. If you did not have failure sometime you would not know half so well how to appreciate success. Much of this discouragement comes from a lack of thoughtful consideration, for if everything were properly weighed in the balance of reason, a better judgment could be given, and more satisfactory conclusions reached. But there are so many who are influenced by wrong impulses that they fail to make the best use of themselves and allow failure to overtake them before they reach the prize of success. Said a very successful man and a beautiful writer, "I have learned in whatever state I am, therewith to be content." Contentment must be learned, and it will require diligence, industry and application to learn how to be contented. Some can make themselves better contented than others. They adapt themselves to the changing surroundings and take in the situation at once, while it is a great effort for others to do so, but each one may acquire the habit by patience, practice, and prudence. I have known some people who were not satisfied long at anything they undertook. They became restless, impatient, and idle. Some were home-sick and not satisfied unless they could enjoy home associations. This is often the condition, and quite natural, too, but whatever your work is, learn to like it and take a deep interest in it, and if you do this the wheels of prosperity and contentment will speed you on to greater and better things. There are idle heads and hands which greatly need employment to produce the best results, and cause them to enjoy the beauty and sweetness of living.

There is one thing which will give more solid and lasting contentment than anything else, and that is godliness. "For godliness with contentment is great gain;" 1 Tim. 6:6. It is not easy to see how anyone can be contented without godliness. If you have godliness and contentment, these are double blessings, surpassing all others. Without them you cannot be satisfied, but with them you can be happy now and forever. You are toiling for gain of some kind. The hope of gain, the expectation of reward urges you on faster in the race for success. Some even force themselves beyond the limits of endurance and collapse, and when they make an effort to enter the race again disease has so weakened them that they soon fall out or yield to death. What kind of gain is it that invites you onward? Think for awhile and know what it is and which it is. It is all right to gain a competence—it is commendable to provide, to make means for your support, yes, it is your duty to do so, and he who does not, if he can, is not worthy of the beautiful world in which he lives, is not worthy of the natural and temporal blessings which he daily receives; but there must be some limit to even this. "For what is a man profited if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" Profit and loss then are divine problems for us to consider and to solve. And it is time for us to be earnest in thinking them out, and in working out our own salvation. Jesus will come, if we ask Him, and help us to work out while He works in our souls. No one desires to lose in anything,—everyone expects to gain. It is more congenial with his nature and greatly helps his feelings to accumulate or gain by business tact and rushing industry. Money is invested that it may bring again to the owner. And in every department of human activity, gain is the main object. From early morning all through the day it is work, work, trying to keep up with others or get before them. It is work or fail, survive or perish, live or die. There are many who are swimming, but have not the time nor the inclination to rescue the sinking ones.

Godliness with contentment is a great gain. Let us hear these words and think them over and over until we realize and properly understand their meaning and enjoy the fulness and blessedness which they express. Many there are professing godliness, but they do not have contentment, they do not possess that sweet peace which gives inexpressible delight and causes the heart to yearn after more godliness. The possession of godliness is indeed a great gain and none should fail to seek for it until they have it. It is necessary to know we possess anything to appreciate and enjoy it. I have known some to profess religion but did not know whether they were converted or not. They may not know precisely to a minute when the change came, but they ought to know that whereas I was blind, now I see; they ought to know if they have forsaken former sinful practices; they ought to know whether they love the Savior better than the world, and they ought to know by a new growth and development if they are growing in grace. These are some of the evidences by which they may know.

Let us hear these comforting words which bring gladness to our lives: "For the grace of God that bringeth salvation hath appeared to all men, teaching us that denying ungodliness and worldly lusts we should live soberly, righteously, and godly, in this present world; looking for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Savior Jesus Christ."

Perhaps there is no one perfectly contented, but it is reasonable to say that when we have godliness we can be more happy and better contented, because we are standing on the eternal promises of God, and living on the beautiful heights of Christian experience, where we feel secure with His abiding presence. Imitate the divine model until you become more like Him. To be like Him is a blessed and wonderful conception, a sublime condition to contemplate, and a glorious realization. Yes, many times happy is he who knows and feels the presence of the Lord. There was a true, tried and faithful one who said, "I have learned, in whatever state I am, therewith to be content. I know both how to be abased, and I know how to abound: everywhere, and in all things, I am instructed, both to be full and to be hungry, both to abound and suffer need. I can do all things through Christ who strengtheneth me." This is the strongest faith I ever heard from lips, or read from pen. It is full, strong and complete. Having been made so by him who was a diligent student and a great learner. He seemed to grasp any situation, and make the best of every thing. What surprising and surpassing greatness characterized this wonderful man of God! Not slothful in business, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord, he went right up to victory and triumph.

Study, learn how to cultivate a spirit of contentment and if you do so carefully, you will succeed, always remembering that "godliness with contentment is great gain." J. T. Kitchen. . .

OUR DUTY TO KNOW OTHERS.

Only those who know us best help us most. When we are in greatest need, we seek out some friend who will not misunderstand us, who knows us through and through, and who because of that intimate knowledge can sympathize and encourage as no stranger or mere acquaintance ever could. So it is that if we would really help others we must know them well. We can do little real helping of a surface acquaintance. The Sunday-school teacher who sees his class only on Sundays cannot help them much. He may tell them interesting things, and hold their attention on Sundays; but he never builds permanently into their lives with helpful uplift until he has come to know them in all departments of their life. Christ helped men not merely because of the truth that he himself knew and lived, but because he knew men. "He needed not that any one should bear witness concerning man; for he himself knew what was in man." "Only as we know man can we serve him," says Campbell Morgan. It costs effort, and study, and love, to know anyone. But such knowledge is one of the first costs of our Christian service.—S. S. Times.

THE WILLING TOILER.

Often we see a laborer pass our way whose downcast features bespeak a sinking heart. He has long been buffeted by the world and he has drunk from the cup of despair to the bitter dregs, and now he stands on the verge of fatality. He can not understand why the seemingly cruel fate should decree him a life of remorse while thousands of laborers like himself go whistling and singing to their toil. He blames the world for not pushing him ahead when he has never done anything to deserve it. Envy fills his brain and inveterate malignity eats at his heart. He gives his work grudgingly and is repaid in his own coin. George Eliot pictures this kind of laborer in Wiry Ben, of "Adam Bede." He sold himself for wedges of money and gave his work grudgingly. Before the elock finished striking six in the evening he dropped his hammer and left the nail half driven in the wood. Those companions of his went to their work with a merry song and left, too, glad at heart for they had given their labor freely and had kept for themselves the joy of having done well. No doubt Wiry Ben wondered why they were so happy and free while he was miserable. He was acting the miserable part of a mere machine—giving his life for money and not for the joy of working. That's why he wasn't ever promoted and that's why remorse was his to pay. It is just this: the way of the slothful is a torturous and winding road to hell; it is a mere meat and bread living, fraught with grief, remorse and despair, with no reward save dire punishment. It has ever been so and will forever be so. We cheat no one but ourselves in endeavoring to cheat the world.

The man must be happy who works willingly, for his heart then is in his toiling. And it is the man who works willingly and hardest that is most likely to succeed and that most often does succeed. The only way to serve the world is to help one's self. Help yourself and you will help other people. Live the loyal life and you help others to live that life, too. Do we ever stop to think that this is a beautiful world we are living in? We ought to wonder at our cruelty towards it and not at its cruelty toward us. Look out just now across the fields and hills and smile with the smiling flowers and sing with the singing birds. You who are care-worn and tired of living, let the happy world make you glad that you are living. You, who feel fallen, look upon the mighty oak and hold up your head. The lower animals alone bend to the earth their heads—nature does not and if man does he leaves the better man above. You cannot find a flower growing downward—you can break down the little oak and yet from its distorted trunk branches will shoot upward towards the light of heaven—the little sprig growing from the wall of the precipice does not give up the bright sky above and turn its head to the darkness below—man often does—but it ever holds its head upwards. So look about you. Smile with the world. The world has been created for man. It is our friend and we make it our enemy. It could be our heaven while we often make it our hell. X.

THE HOLY SPIRIT AND FIRE.

Mr. Editor; It may appear to some a small matter, but I do not consider it a small matter to wrest any Scripture from its context and apply it to teach truths not contained in it. It is nothing short of dishonest exegesis, just as inexcusable as if ignorantly done.

One writing on the subject of Pentecost, quotes these words: "I am come to send fire on the earth," as referring, either prophetically or otherwise, to the descent of the Holy Spirit at Pentecost.

In the first place "fire" is nowhere used in Scripture to symbolize either the Holy Spirit or His actions. We read of the fire of His fury and of His jealousy; that He will come with fire; that he will plead with the world with fire and the sword, and that our God is a consuming fire; but never that the Holy Spirit is fire, or acts like fire.

In the next place the word "fire" in the text quoted has no reference whatever to the descent of the Holy Spirit at Pentecost. There is no promise of Christ that will bear the slightest resemblance to such an idea.

Let us turn to Luke, where the words are found: "I am come to send fire on the earth; and what will I, if it be already kindled? But I have a baptism to be baptized with, and how am I straitened till it be accomplished! Suppose ye that I am come to give peace on earth? I tell you nay; but rather a division; for there shall be from henceforth five in one house divided, three against two, and two against three," etc.

In the Gospel according to St. John we read that "there was a division among them because of Him." Fire would therefore symbolize discriminating judgment—a theme kept in view by the writers of both Testaments.

"I will bring the third part through the fire, and will refine them as silver," etc. "He shall sit as the refiner and purifier of silver; and He shall purify the sons of Levi, and purge them as gold and silver."

St. Paul writes: "Every man's work shall be made manifest . . . because it shall be revealed by fire; and the fire shall try every man's work of what sort it is." Such was to be the action and result of the fire here.

His words imply that this fire was already kindled: "If it be already kindled, what will I?" This is equivalent to His words on another occasion, "What shall I say? Father, save me from this hour? But for this cause came I unto this hour." Its first hot breath He felt in Nazareth when they in anger put Him out of the city to kill Him." He knew its fierce flame must reach Him, the Sin-offering—this was His baptism—and on Calvary it swept over Him in all its fury; but He being the pure gold it harmed Him not.

Lastly the only place where the terms Holy Spirit and "fire" are mentioned together, "He shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost, and with fire." The former was fulfilled at Pentecost, the latter began to be fulfilled with the first persecution mentioned in the fourth chapter of Acts. If the writer had read the account in Acts more carefully, he would have seen that the "cloven tongues" were not fire, but "as, or like as of fire." That is to say, they resembled fire.—L. R. Combs, in Southern Churchman.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

Founded 1844 by Elder Daniel W. Kerr.
Organ of the Southern Christian
Convention.

Entered at the postoffice at Greensboro, N. C., as second-class matter.

Terms of Subscription.

One Year .....	$1.50
Six Months .....	.75
Four Months .....	.50

Advertising rates given on application.

J. O. Atkinson, Editor and Publisher.

Important Notice.—As readers will see, The Christian Sun is now published at Greensboro, N. C. The office of publication there is 302½ South Elm Street. Our editorial office, however, remains at Elon College, N. C., to which all letters and communications to the Editor should be addressed, as heretofore.

CONFERENCE CALENDAR.

Virginia Valley Central, was held at Newport, Page Co., beginning Thursday, August 12th.

Others are to meet as follows:

Alabama.—Christiana Church, Tuesday, 10:00 a. m., Oct. 19. Rev. G. O. Lankford, Pres., Columbus, Ga., J. W. Payne, Secy., Wadley, Ala., R. F. D.3.

Ga. and Ala.—Richland, Ga., Tuesday, 7:30 p. m., Oct. 26. Rev. H. W. Elder, Pres., Richland, Ga., J. F. Hill, Jr., Sec., Box 64, Phoenix, Ala.

Eastern Virginia.—Franklin, Tuesday, Nov. 2. Rev. N. G. Newman, Pres., Holland, Va., Rev. W. D. Harward, Secy.

Eastern N. C.—Sauford, Thursday, Nov. 11, 10 a. m. Rev. G. R. Underwood, Pres., Sanford, N. C., Rev. W. C. Wickler, Secy., Elon College, N. C.

Western N. C.—Graham, Tuesday, Nov. 16, 10:30 a. m. Rev. L. I. Cox, Pres., Elon College, N. C., Rev. R. L. Williamson, Secy., Ramseur, N. C.

N. C. and Va.—Belew's Creek, Tuesday, Nov. 23, 9 a. m. Prof. W. A. Harper, Pres., Elon College, N. C., Prof. W. P. Lawrence, Secy., Elon College, N. C.

THIS BUSY AGE.

Our optimism is stirred and we thank God and take courage. A few brief years ago—very few and very brief—it took detective stories of the "Dime Novel" type, terrible tragedies of the blood-curdling kind, to fire the imagination and excite attention. That is of a forgotten past, and what care we now for the latest exploits of a Jesse James, or the harrowing raids and reckless daring of a Pinckerton man hunter? Times have changed, my boy, and there is sensation galore, and excitement while you wait, about men and movements that make for knowledge and man's broader horizon.

Incidentally, and as one of a series, Cook and Peary enter the ring. Polar seas relax their grasp, lured or subdued, by centuries of increased courage and man's daring, and the eternal past speaks to us from the lonely solitude of the farthest arctic region. There is no blood letting, or hair breadth escape equal to that. Cook and Peary have found the North Pole, stood at the ninetyth parallel, scaled the top of the earth, and planted American colors there. We regret that we were ever thrilled by detectives and crime. They are so tame, dull, and insipid. The larger vision has given us new light and a better acquaintance.

A few weeks ago—or a few hours, which?—we were dazzled by the Wrights, and in our daily imaginings, were soaring with them on aeroplanes through the upper ether. The flying machine had arrived. It was not only sensation, it was intoxication. That men could fly was victory, accomplished fact, miracle. With flying through the heavenly zones and dog-sledging through utmost frigid zones, sensations of the selfish and life taking sort ceased to be sensations at all—and went out into the trash pile.

Marconi a few years ago—years or months, which?—invented wireless telegraphy—began to shoot messages through the blank air, as we boys used to shoot balls with pop guns. And now the Polar messages are all being received without polls. Isn't it glorious to be living now? Sensation in plenty, and nobody hurt. The imagination wrought up to the highest, and not a shot fired or a trigger pulled. You get the idea? The excitement satisfied, and with actual achievements that help all and hurt none. A selfish and sensational age rendering selfishness and sensation impossible and beautiful by its own conquests and achievements. We boys even, interested in the fellows and folks who do things for man's enlightenment and enlargement. Marconi and Wright and Cook and Peary have taught us a thing or so for humanity's betterment, while substituting excitement and sensation of the large kind for the baser sort.

We have fallen upon fortunate times and themes and for this we thank God and take courage. God rules the destinies of men and through successive trials and triumphs brings us to broader horizons and better visions. He who is not stirred to more determined effort by crowning events of this busy age, and himself give willing hand to heave the heavier tasks, must be indolent, stupid, and dull indeed.

WHERE DANGER LURKS.

It is a very dangerous thing, by fate or fortune, to cross the path of another's ambition. When once the deep desire of an energetic and ambitious man has blazed a trail, it is dangerous, if not deadly, for another to take cognizance thereof and walk therein. It has ever been so. Commander Peary is only doing that which frail man has done through all time. For fifteen years or more only one thought has occupied him, only one ideal wooed him. The conquest of the North Pole was his daily meditation and nightly dream. To this one end he bent all his great energy, sacrificed home, comfort, wife, children, fear of death and love of life, fled a glorious country and sought the solitude of eternal snow and ice. Is it any wonder that his tongue is indiscreet, his head is dazed and his heart is soured and embittered that another, a subordinate, an under companion, a private citizen, another man has reached his goal first and in priority achieved his victory?

It is a dangerous thing to cross the path of another's high ambition.

Commander Peary went out supported by the Government, backed by Societies, Clubs, Fraternities. His going was spectacular, applauded by the multitude, watched by the many. On the other hand Dr. Cook. His friend Bradley fitted out and furnished, from his own purse and for his own and his friend Cook's pleasure, a hunting smack, a touring yacht. "Responsible to no scientific society, under no service discipline, he is the freest lance that ever entered the Arctic lists." Trained to hardship by many years of hard toil and many previous Arctic expeditions, equipped with all the necessities but unencumbered by any of the impediments of trying travel in a frozen region, he "made himself a savage" that he might reach the one ambition that lured and consumed him. Thus the motive and the movements of the two.

It was not ambition that was at fault. The ambition of one led him to cross the path of another who himself had ambition.

There is glory enough for both. Only the cruelty of foiled ambition hurts the heart and harrows the soul in this life.

Energy, aspiration, ambition, lead to highest heights and noblest achievement, and are only cruel when rendered so by personal pique and selfishness.

—School accommodations in New York are so deficient that it is said there are 53,000 school children in Greater New York that must go to school in the fall only half of each day.

SUFFOLK LETTER.

These last weeks have been very busy around public schools and colleges. The doors swing open and the schools say, "Come, ye children and young people of this great country and learn the lessons that will make you wise." Millions crowd the portals of learning and thousands of teachers take their places for another strenuous scholastic year. Behind all this are the taxes and donations, involuntary and voluntary support of our great school system. And, in addition to all this, there is the personal sacrifice and anxious prayers of parents who make any willing surrender of ease and personal comfort to clothe and board and buy books for their children while in school. The expense of education is one of the great items in the nation's annual budget. The education of the rising generation is one of the processes of producing wealth. The erection and equipment of buildings, the making of books, pencils, tablets, book-bags, and the increase in clothing for those who attend school, create new lines of work that engage the productive energy of multitudes of workers. Besides this, every child that is educated will have personal wants increased so that the next generation will consume more of the products of farm and mill than if left uneducated. This means that the more society is educated, the larger human necessities become and, therefore, education increases the wealth of the nation and the cost of living. At the same time intellectual wants are increased and mind activities are stimulated. Not only so, but moral ideas and ideals are heightened and the old life will not satisfy the more enlightened soul. It is by such a process that progress is made in human society and all the functions of being are raised to higher lines of service and life.

Discoveries and inventions lie in the same field of education and progress. No wonder the tide of education rises with such a force within every wave of progress. The poorest and most illiterate parents see clearly the tendency of this great educational movement and are straining every line to give opportunity to their children to acquire education. It is a movement that is cumulative in its progress like the good roads agitation. Good roads and graded schools, local taxation self-imposed by popular vote, enthusiasm like fire in stubble, tell the story of yearning after better things. The temperance movement is the output of moral and spiritual enlightenment, and as Christian life becomes purer and more intelligent other reforms will arise and stir the public conscience when truth produces a quickened sense of righteousness and creates a public sentiment against other forms of evil, now winked at, new campaigns will be inaugurated against evils that do not now appear by comparison with grosser forms of evil. This vast army of school children will be a mighty host some day to drive out much that is now not only tolerated but approved by good men. The only way to keep from being pushed off the stage of action by the young is to keep up with the procession by recognizing and accepting all new discoveries and by disarding all worn out ideas that contain worthless and harmful practices.

There are evils in the schools themselves that must be removed to prevent education from being a menace instead of a blessing to mankind. The lawless spirit is one of these evils. Obedience to law as expressed in school discipline must become a willing spirit in school life. The craze for extravagance and sport, by which the hard earned money of honest parents is wasted and time, also, is wasted must give place to appreciation on the part of the young for what is being done for their education. School life and discipline must build up character on a clean conscience and strengthen all the finer functions of the soul. Religious development is the highest education. W. W. Staley.

ELON COLLEGE NOTES.

—The work of the session is well organized and students are in excellent health. Professors and instructors are generally pleased with the grade of work. One hundred and forty-five students have entered. This is not so good a showing as that of a year ago. The falling off is in the preparatory department. In the college classes the numbers are increasing. The present Junior Class is by far the largest the College has ever had.

—The College pulpit was occupied at eleven o'clock service Sunday by Rev. Dr. Newman. His sermon was well received, judging from the many favorable comments.

—The Sunday-school now has the fullest organization that we have had. Dr. Newman has an interesting Teacher-Training class; Professor Harper has a large well organized adult class of citizens; Miss Cora Lawrence is Superintendent of a successful Home Department, and Mr. R. A. Campbell as director of the band, Miss Virgie Holland as pianist, and Mr. W. W. Elder as chorister are giving the school excellent music, including the orchestra. The primary and intermediate classes all have good teachers and are doing fine work; and the regular Bible classes of which there are seven are now well organized.

—Miss Urquhart, the new teacher of expression and director of physical culture will give the annual recital in the College Chapel next Saturday evening at 8 o'clock.

—Rev. C. A. Boon, Mr. W. T. Noah and Mrs. M. A. Reitzel are sick. All, however, are getting better.

—The death of Miss Blanche Williamson, a former student and sister of Mrs. J. O. Atkinson, which took place in Asheville, N. C., Sept. 6, where she had gone as a last hope of relief, cast a gloom over our village. The Psychelion Society of which she was a member has since been draped in mourning.

—Students continue to come into the College, almost every day, about eighty having entered since the first day. A good many others are yet to come. Speak a word for the College to the young people in your community and help swell the numbers here.

—Mr. Reps Williamson, a former Elon student and now a successful merchant and business man at Great Bridge, Va. is spending some days here visiting his sister, Mrs. Dr. J. O. Atkinson. Reps was a much liked boy when in college here and has ever been loyal to his alma mater. He now cherishes the fond ambition of seeing his son—yes, he has a son now—valedictorian of his class some day and later president of the College.

W. P. Lawrence.

NAMES WANTED.

I want to ask all the ministers of the different conferences to send me on postal the names of any young ladies of their congregations that may be attending the Normal College at Greensboro that I may see them and invite them to attend the Christian Church which is situated convenient to the college. Address me at 418 S. Eugene St., Greensboro, N. C. J. W. Bolton, Pas.

—It was in 1609 when Henry Hudson, sailing in the Little Half Moon, discovered the river that bears his name, and 1807 when Robert Fulton propelled on this same river the Clermont, the world's first steam-boat. These are the events to be commemorated, and in their honor thirty-eight nations will be represented, eighty warships will be present from many lands, hundreds of commercial crafts will join in the pageant, and the most brilliant and wonderful system of lighting ever undertaken will be turned. The official opening is on Saturday, September 25, and the celebration will last two weeks.

THE CHRISTIAN ORPHANAGE
DEPARTMENT.

CHILDREN'S CORNER.

The Band of Cousins.

Jas. L. Foster, Sec., Elon College, N. C.

"He that hath pity on the poor lendeth unto the Lord, and his good deed will He pay him again."—Prov. 19:17.

Reported last week .....$3,711.41

Monthly Dues:

Susie Watson .....$ .10
Hettie B. Davis ..... .10
Robert Leslie Newman .. .05
Addie Newman ..... .20
Clarence Newman ..... .20

Monthly S. S. Offerings:

Wentworth, N. C. .... 2.21
Berea (Nansd.) Va. .... 3.62
Mt. Auburn, N. C. .... 2.40
Berea (Norfolk Co.) Va.

3 months ..... 6.14

Special Offering:

F. M. Carlton, Durham,
N. C. .... 5.00
Chas. D. Johnson, Graham, N. C. .... 5.00

Amount 31st week ..... 25.02

Total .....$3,736.43

My dear children and friends:—

Schools are opening, nights getting cooler, and this reminds us very forcibly that cool weather will soon be upon us in earnest. That will call for warmer, thicker clothing for our children, together with shoes and stockings in abundance. The little feet that have been bare, the toes that have enjoyed their freedom will soon need a covering to keep Jack Frost from biting.

We are not beggars but wish to keep our children's needs constantly before the dear friends who always respond to the call of the Orphan. And friends, if you wish to remember us this Fall in the stocking line, please send large sizes as most all, previously given have been for small children and our larger boys and girls had to be supplied from the stores. 58 pairs of stockings only means one change for our children, so you can readily see what it means when shoe and stocking time comes.

We are glad to report this week from the following friends whom we sincerely thank:

J. M. Banks, 1 pr. cart wheels and axle. Mrs. Buck Wilson, Manson, N. C., 1 Indian game rooster. Mrs. M. L. Pretlow, 8 yds. percale. Mr. Barney Nicholson, Norfolk, Va., 15 pocket knives for boys; 14 fancy pins for girls. Mrs. L. D. Rippey, Altamahaw, N. C., 1 quilt. Miss Esther Rippey, 1 quilt. Mrs. Margaret Wilkins, ½ doz. handkerchiefs. Miss Annie Rippey, 1 pr. pillow cases.

Very sincerely,
Uncle Jim.

Manson, N. C., Sept. 12, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

You just ought to be here to help me eat grapes. We have no vine ourselves, but Grandma Newman has. She tells me to help myself and I am sure she will tell you too.

I am always saying, "Mama, let me go Granny-ma's to play."

Our meeting will begin next Sunday (Liberty Church). Wish you could be with us again this year as you were here last.

Diphtheria is near by. I hope I won't have it. There are two families quarantined here about mile apart. You all don't have any sickness up there, do you? Please find my nickel for the orphans.

Your nephew,

Robert Leslie Newman.

Well, Robert, Uncle Jim would do his share eating grapes were he there, I tell you, for my, aren't they good!

1003 Nicholas St., Henderson, N. C.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

Here we come late again. But better be late than not at all. Our vacation will be over next Monday, and that means hard studying.

Enclosed please find 40c., our dues for August and September.

Your niece and nephew,

Addie and Clarence Newman.

Hard study usually means intelligent boys and girls, Addie, so you and Clarence must do your best.

Windsor, Va., Sept. 14, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

Here I come with my letter and dime. Hope all the orphans are well and having a good time. Uncle Jim, we are going to dedicate Collosie Church fourth Sunday. Wish you could come. We are having protracted meeting this week.

With much love for you and the cousins,

Your loving niece,

Hettie B. Davis.

Would love to be with you, Hettie, but cannot. Hope the meeting will result in great good.

Taro, Va., Sept. 13, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

I will write and send my dime for this month. Our school starts today week and my birthday will be the next day.

With best wishes for you and the orphans, I remain,

Yours truly,
Susie R. Watson.

So you'll celebrate your birthday by going to school.—Well, guess you couldn't do better.

When in Burlington call at

T. H. STROUD'S

Store for DRUGS, SOFT DRINKS, and anything desired in drugs and Toilet Articles.

To Drive Out Malaria and Build up the System.

Take the Old Standard GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC. You know what you are taking. The formula is plainly printed on every bottle, showing it is simply Quinine and Iron in a tasteless form, and the most effectual form. For grown people and children. 50c.

Vick's Croup and Pneumonia Salve

For Croup It relieves in 15 minutes, sends stimulating, relaxing vapors down the throat with every breath, and also stimulates surface of chest.

For Pneumonia It cures Colds, Bronchitis, Hoarseness, it has no equal in promptly arresting these dangerous affections. Nips all congestion and inflammation in the bud. It's the great Emergency Remedy. Have it ready.

All druggists, or by mail.

VICK'S FAMILY REMEDIES CO.
Greensboro, N. C.

For free sample specify department No. 4.

WANTED—Bookkeepers, Stenographers.

MORE BANKERS in the 16 States in which Jno. F. Draughon's 30 Colleges are located, indorse these Business Colleges than indorse ALL others. IF YOU want the EVIDENCE and want to RISE to the $10-a-day class, ask for FREE catalogue. Lessons BY MAIL if preferred. Draughon's Practical Business College, Raleigh, N. C.; A. M. FISHER, Mgr

RALEIGH & SOUTHPORT RY. Co.

P. M. A. M.	STATIONS.	A. M. P. M.
1:15 6:00	Raleigh	8:30 3:45
1:54 6:24	McCullers	7:52 3:03
2:11 6:59	Willow Sp'gs	7:37 2:46
2:23 7:14	Varina	7:27 2:34
2:35 7:26	Fuquay Sp'gs	7:19 2:25
2:55 7:45	Kipling	7:00 2:05
3:15 8:05	Lillington	6:41 1:44
3:41 8:28	Linden	6:15 1:17
4:30 9:15	Fayetteville	5:30 12:30

JNO. A. MILLS, Pres. and Gen. Mgr

DR. J. H. BROOKS

Surgeon and Dentist

FOSTER BUILDING,

Burlington, N. C.

MEDICINE.

We prepare as good medicine, the very best medicine that the finest, freshest, most potent drugs and chemicals will produce when carefully and skilfully compounded by an expert prescription man—just such medicine as your physician means that you should have, medicine of the utmost possible effectiveness. May we prepare your medicine?

FREEMAN DRUG CO.,
Burlington, N. C.

STATE LEGISLATURES IN CONSUMPTION CRUSADE.

Appropriations of over $4,000,000 for the suppression of consumption have been made by twenty-eight state legislatures in session during the past year, according to a statement issued today by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. Since January 1st, 1909, forty-three state and territorial legislatures have been in session. Of this number, 28 have passed laws pertaining to tuberculosis; eight others have considered such legislation, and in only seven states no measures about consumption were presented. In all, 101 laws relating to the prevention or treatment of human tuberculosis were considered and out of this number 64 were passed.

Of the sixty-four laws passed, fourteen were in reference to building new state institutions. New state sanatoria for tuberculosis will be built in Penn., Conn., where three will be erected, Ark., Ore., South Dakota, North Dakota and Fla. In New York, North Carolina, Mass., New Hampshire and Maine, appropriations have been made for enlarging sanatoria, already built or in operation. There are now 27 states where such institutions have been established. Every state east of the Mississippi, except Illinois, West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, South Carolina and Mississippi have provided hospitals for tuberculosis patients.

Five states, Ill., New York, Ohio, Minnesota and Iowa, passed laws giving their county officers power to erect tuberculosis sanatoria without resorting to a special vote. In Maine, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New Jersey, Michigan, Iowa and Kansas, laws providing for the strict reporting and regulation of tuberculosis were passed. Only five other states, including the District of Columbia, have such laws. The National Association considers laws of this character as the first requisite in an organized movement against tuberculosis.

Laws prohibiting spitting in public places, were passed in Maine, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Kansas and Connecticut. Spitters in these states will be prosecuted and fined.

Ten states have this year granted nearly $100,000 to be spent only for the education of the public about tuberculosis. In some states traveling exhibitions will be used, while in others lectures and literature will be the chief means of education. The states making provisions of this sort are California, New Jersey, Kansas, New York, Rhode Island, Iowa, Minnesota, Porto Rico, Delaware and Texas.

The statement of the National Association calls particular attention to one fact which shows the remarkable interest in anti-tuberculosis work, evoked during the past year, namely, that fully one-third of the $4,000,000 appropriated this year is by special legislation and for new work. The last Congress appropriated, in addition to this sum, nearly $1,000,000 for the maintenance of the three federal sanatoria in New Mexico and Colorado. It is estimated besides that the numerous county and municipal appropriations made or to be made for tuberculosis work for next year will aggregate at least $3,000,000, making the official public expenditures in the United States for the wiping out of tuberculosis at least $8,000,000.

WHAT IS REAL GIVING?

There is no Christianity in mere money-giving. One of the severest and truest charges against the Christian church of today was made recently by Ray Stannard Baker, in "The American Magazine," when he said that the church seems to think that it can meet any need of humanity by liberal gifts of money. And one of the most regrettable of the common misapplications of Scripture passages is that which connects Paul's use of Christ's words, "It is more blessed to give than to receive," chiefly with money-gifts. Paul seemed to have no such narrow idea when he used those words. He was talking about self-giving, which is a very much harder, bigger, and better thing. He was trying to show his Christian brethren from Ephesus the real purpose and privilege of the Christian life. He reminded them that he himself had sought to live that life, from the first day that he set foot in Asia, by living for service, though it were to cause his death. His life he held of no account as dear unto himself. Christ had bought mankind by offering himself as the price; they were to continue to care for Christ's own at the price of their lives. And Paul's last words on all this was that they should remember Christ's own word: It is more blessed to give than to receive. How much deeper and richer this lightly used truth becomes when we realize that it means, not merely money, but self! Of course one will give money freely when he has given self; but money without self is more of a bribe than a gift.—S. S. Times.

They call thee rich, I call thee poor;
Since, if thou darest not use thy store,
But savest it only for thine heirs,
The treasure is not thine, but theirs.

—William Cowper.

RAISE MONEY FOR YOUR CHURCH.

We offer you an easy method. Send us a photograph of your church or your pastor, and we will send you 500 high grade post cards, with photograph on each card, and scripture verse if desired. Sell these cards at 10 cents each. When sold, remit us $20.00 and keep the balance. You can do this in a week. We will return photograph.

LAKE SHORE SUPPLY CO.,
225 Broad St., St. Joe, Michigan.

DO YOU WANT TO GO TO COLLEGE? If so we can help you. We have already put hundreds through college by means of our plan. Write today for full information regarding our offer of a free scholarship in any school or college. Address, Robert J. Sherlock, 29-31 East 22nd Street, New York City.

FALL AND WINTER.

The time for fall and winter gardening is here and you need garden tools. We can supply you at lowest prices.

Poultry Wire.

The best assorted stock in the country. Four different styles and weight.

Come and See.

Remember plumbing and bath room fixtures, a speciality. You will find us on Davis St. in the new building near Post Office.

BURLINGTON HARDWARE CO.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup

Has been used for over SIXTY-FIVE YEARS by MILLIONS of MOTHERS for their CHILDREN WHILE TEETHING, with PERFECT SUCCESS. It SOOTHES the CHILD, SOFTENS the GUMS, ALLAYS all PAIN; CURES WIND COLIC, and is the best remedy for DIARRHŒA. Sold by Druggists in every part of the world. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Guaranteed under the Food and Drugs Act, June 30th, 1906. Serial Number 1098. AN OLD AND WELL TRIED REMEDY.

SEABOARD AIR LINE RAILWAY.

QUICKEST LINE TO

New York, Washington, Charlotte, Florida Points, Atlanta, Birmingham, Memphis, New Orleans and the West.

Double Daily Service with High-Back-Seat Coaches, Pullman Sleeping and Dining Cars.

We operate Daily Vestibule service, with through Pullman Sleeping Cars to Jacksonville, Atlanta, Birmingham, Memphis, Portsmouth, Norfolk, Richmond, Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York.

For Time Tables, Booklets Reservations or any information relative to special rates and route, call on or address C. H. GATTIS, Trav. Passenger Agt., No. 4 Tucker Building, Raleigh, N. C.

FREE DEAFNESS CURE.

A remarkable offer by one of the leading ear specialists in this country, who will send two months' medicine free to prove his ability to cure Deafness, Head Noises, and Catarrh. Address Dr. G. M. Branaman, 1100 Walnut St., Kansas City Mo.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEPARTMENT.

Exponent of the Young People's Convention,
Christian Church, South.

Watchword: A Christian Endeavor Society in Every Church; Teacher-Training and Organized Classes in Every Sunday School

Devoted to the interest and advancement of Sunday Schools, Teacher-Training, Organized Classes, Cradle Roll, Home Department, Christian Endeavor, Missionary Societies, Temperance Societies, Aid Societies, Civic Righteousness.

W. A. HARPER, Editor and Field Secretary, Elon College, N. C.

[All notes and contributions for this Department should be sent to W. A. Harper, Elon College, N. C., who extends the Church at large a cordial invitation to furnish him with any note of interest to our Young People, particularly information in regard to any forward steps, new movement, or new organization looking to progressive and effective service. All items under this Department not signed are by its Editor and Field Secretary.]

TEACHER-TRAINING—ITS REWARDS.

Every good and righteous cause has certain rewards to offer. Oftentimes these take the form of pecuniary advantage; but more often, in matters of the spirit and the spirit life, the rewards are of a higher order,—an inward satisfaction induced by an approving conscience, a badge of distinction or of attainment known and read and recognized of all men. Of this latter class are the inducements of Teacher-Training.

To the individual member of such a class, provided he does honest, faithful work, there comes the consciousness of service well performed, the approval of his conscience, and the satisfaction of an ambition reached, a goal attained. The value of such sentiments cannot be computed, but no man fails to appreciate and enjoy them. To feel further that you have done the thing you ought to have done is satisfaction and peace of mind and joy indescribable. In addition to all these, if a grade of 70 per cent or over is attained on the examination given at the conclusion of either book, a lithographed certificate is to be issued by the Sunday school Board of the Southern Christian Convention, of which Prof. S. M. Smith, Norfolk, Va., is Chairman, or a diploma is to be issued by the same board through its chairman to the individual who attains this or a higher grade on the two books of the Course. Surely these rewards to the individual are sufficient to induce any ambitious religious worker to become a member of a Teacher-Training Class.

To the Sunday-school the rewards of Teacher-Training spell better teachers, more classes, increased attendance, more earnest life and enthusiasm generally. Better teachers will result because they will be trained. It has been said that teachers, like the poets, are born and not made. Sunday-school teachers, so far as my observation goes, are born just like other people and become more proficient by training. The Teacher-Training Class will mean more teachers and more Classes, which in turn will mean increased attendance, pulsing life and genuine enthusiasm. It might not be out of place here to remark that the Sunday-school cannot do any permanent growing until the teaching force has proportionately grown in preparation and in numbers, both of which the Teacher-Training Class will guarantee. For example, I know of a school that by campaigning grew to over three hundred members in six weeks and then in about two months fell back to sixty-one. Why? There were no teachers trained to care for the increase in numbers. With the rewards offered by Teacher-Training before it is as an incentive what Sunday-school can afford to do long without a Teacher-Training Class? Can yours?

Rev. W. N. Hayes, Seagrove, N. C., R. F. D. 1, this week reports for three churches in the Western North Carolina Conference. Spoon's Chapel, Patterson's Grove, and Pleasant Cross. In sending in these reports Brother Hayes writes, "We would like to have you to write and give some information to those whose names are given in these report blanks." We will be glad to do this; for this is the business of our office. Will not some of the others send us their reports?

How about Teacher-Training? For three months now we have in this department been writing in respect to this important item of progressive Sunday-school work and not a few classes have been organized. Next week we turn our attention to Christian Endeavor editorially and will write on it for three months, in the meantime doing in a private way all we can for Teacher-Training and the Organized Class. Will you not give this matter of Teacher-Training your very best effort next Sunday and try to organize. If I can help you in a private way, do not hesitate to call on me. Please organize at once and then report to me.

A WELCOME LETTER.

Writing from Truett, Ala., under date of September 10, 1909, Rev. J. D. Hunt reports the following item of inspiring news:

"We met last night at my residence and organized a society of Christian Endeavor with twenty members to begin with. It was a delightful time, for we all enjoyed it from the least to the greatest.

"The following are the officers: Pres., Chas. W. Culpepper, Vice Pres., Miss Mintie A. Bailey, Sec., Lois G. Carter, Cor. Sec., W. S. Hand, Treas., Timie M. Hunt.

"We elected the following Committees: Look Out, Missionary, Social, and Flower, placing every one of our members except two on a Committee, thus giving them something to do. You may hear more later."

Who will be the next to write such a letter?

The Teacher-Training Class holds the key to the future of the Sunday-school world. Do you have such a key in your school?

Remember to pray for the Christian Endeavor especially for the next three months.

The power of the trained teacher—what can equal it? Teacher-Training trains teachers to do effective, efficient work.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR IN THE SUFFOLK CHURCH.

Brother W. E. McClenny, President of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Suffolk Christian Church, under date of Sept. 13, 1909, writes thus encouragingly:

"Our Christian Endeavor is doing about as well as we could expect at this time. Last night we had about fifty present and the interest in the meeting seemed to be as good as ever. This was one part of the church in Suffolk that did not take a vacation during the summer, and now the fall has come on, we are trying to get new life into the organization, and we hope that we will succeed. I see no reasons why we should not, for I believe we have some as faithful members here as can be found in the Christian Church, South. I feel my weakness to be at the head of the work, and it would be more than I could undertake if there were not so many who are loyal to the cause.

"We will soon hold our next business meeting, and I would like to know how the Association [He means the Young People's Department.—Ed.] is getting on financially before we hold our next meeting so that I can report it to the society. If you are in need of funds I think we can help you out some, as we are now in better shape financially than we have been for some time, and it was mentioned at the last meeting, and it seemed to be the consensus of opinion that if we could be of any service to you this year that we are able to do so in a small way. I say this because I know it is generally the case that a great many subscriptions never materialize, and I presume that it will be so in this case. [We hope this will be an exception, but need money to push the cause.—Ed.]

“At any time that I can be of service to you be at liberty to call upon me.”

Who will be the next to write such encouraging words?

C. E. TOPIC FOR SEPT. 26—A FEW SUGGESTIONS.

How Missionaries Win Souls for Christ, I Cor. 9:19-23.

Let the Missionary Committee lead and let them have some definite work or end for which they shall wish to raise money by an offering at the close of the meeting—for the Porto Rico Field, for the South American Field, for the Japan Field, for Sunday school or Conference or S. C. C. of A. C. C. Mission Purposes. Let the object be definite and presented by a strong plea or by several strong pleas. If possible display portraits of our missionaries and their fields in the place of meeting.

The Singing.—The singing should be along the missionary line and entered into with enthusiasm. A solo or duet or quartet would be in order.

The Leader.—The leader chosen by the missionary committee from its members should in his remarks enforce the value of missions in spreading civilization, promoting commerce, advancing knowledge and science, developing amity among nations, saving souls. He should insist that all other results than this last are auxiliary to the work of the missionary, whose brief business is to save men. Let him tell of the methods employed by missionaries, of their hardships and privations, of our duty to support them by our prayers and our gifts.

Returned Missionary.—If you can, get a returned missionary to relate an experience or two, or have some one to speak who has visited mission fields as a traveler in foreign lands, if you can.

The Scripture Lesson.—Have a good reader read the four verses and pause after each verse for appropriate comments by four endeavorers appointed for that purpose.

Written Work.—What we are doing as a church in the foreign field? How can our society help our missionaries? Paul as a missionary. Christ and Missions.

Scripture References.—To be handed out to the less experienced endeavorers: The Bible as Soul-winner, Ps. 19:7-14. Preaching the Word, Rom. 10:8-31. Purity Wins Souls, 1 Tim. 4:6-16. Kindness Wins Souls, Rom. 12:17-21. Going to the Lost, Matt. 28:18-20. Praying for the Lost, Neh. 1:4-11.

Seeking the Lost, Luke 15:3-10.

Receiving the Lost, Luke 15:11-32.

Question Spurs.—What training should a missionary have? What qualifications? Who are our foreign missionaries?

Suggested Program.

1. All heads bowed in silent prayer, leader closing in a few words.
2. Several songs.
3. Scripture and comment.
4. Leader's remarks.
5. Chain of prayer. Solo or other special music.
6. Written work.

(Continued on page sixteen).

Books for Every Christian Home.

Do you know why you are a member of the Christian Church? Do you understand what the church stands for and teaches? If not, send and get a copy of the "Principles and Government of the Christian Church," just revised and greatly improved by order of the Southern Christian Convention.

Cloth binding per copy, post paid 50 cts.
Limp Cloth binding per copy, post paid 35 cts.
Paper binding per copy, post paid 25 cts.
Handsome Persian Morocco, with name in gilt $1.25.
The Southern Christian Convention also Ordered Another Book Published, PREPARING THE SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER TO TEACH. Edited by Profs. W. A. Harper, W. C. Wicker and W. P. Lawrence. The book is neatly printed and bound and is invaluable to the Sunday-school worker, 236 pages.

Paper binding per copy, postpaid, 60 cts.
Cloth binding per copy, postpaid, 90 cts.
To Sunday-schools, paper binding 50 cts. cloth 75 cts.
Have You Read That Thrilling and Inspiring Story of His Own Life, MOTHER'S ANSWERED PRAYER, BY REV. P. H. FLEMING, D. D.?

Cloth binding, postpaid 55 cts.
All these books should be in your home. Order at once
For sale by, THE CHRISTIAN SUN, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

IT'S INTERESTING

to hear the different comments on different Shoes. All shoes have some good points; Style or comfort or service.

WALK-OVER SHOES

have all the good points; style and comfort and service and their price is the best point of all. $3.50, 4.00 & 5.00.

Foster Shoe Co., Burlington, N. C.

Dry Goods, Notions, Ready Made Clothing.

When in Burlington visit our large store, supplied always with the very best and latest styles and novelties.

Our Dry Goods are of latest designs, and our Ready Made Clothing cannot be surpassed in quality and price.

Come, See. Be Convinced.

B. A. SELLARS & SONS. BURLINGTON, N. C.

MARRIED.*Underwood-Boswell.

At the residence of Mr. Robt. Miles, Stony Creek Township, Caswell Co., N. C., on Sept. 8, 1909, was solemnized the marriage of Mr. Thos. L. Underwood and Miss Lillie Boswell. Quite a number of relatives and friends were present to witness the union of this popular couple and extend congratulations. After the ceremony by this writer, a sumptuous supper was served. Heaven's blessings rest upon them.

C. C. Peel.

D I E L .*Williamson.

The Evening Herald, Suffolk, Va. Tuesday Sept. 7 contained the following:

The sad intelligence reached here this morning of the death of Miss Blanche Williamson, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reps Williamson, of Driver, Va., which occurred last night at 8:20 in Asheville, N. C., aged about 25 years.

About three weeks ago Miss Williamson was taken to Asheville, her family and many friends hoping that she might be restored to health, but she continued to grow weaker until the end came.

The deceased was well known here where she had many friends and relatives, and in the community where she lived was one of the most popular, cultured, and well liked young ladies in the neighborhood, and in her death none but those who knew her worth in the home, in the church and in the community, the beautiful adornment of her life and character, her friendly disposition, can fully and keenly realize the loss. She was a true friend, and her devotion to those she loved would make a bright chapter in any life.

Nothing but the thought of the loving hand that has removed her can reconcile her friends to her absence. While she has gone from the scenes, the conflicts, the sorrows and pleasures of life, she will still live in the hearts of those who knew her best. She was a kind, loving daughter, and her devotion to the family circle had no limit. Her future was full of promise and we dare not ask why she was taken from us in her prime, unless as flowers are picked before the frost finds them that we may not witness their decay. It is sad, indeed, to see one so well equipped for life taken away, yet for her there was no standing on the borderland, gazing into the unknown, for death came as the sunset dies along the hills when the day is over. A life that imparts such lessons is well worth living.

The deceased is survived by father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Reps Williamson, three sisters, Mrs. Dr. J. O. Atkinson, of Elon College, N. C., Misses Regina and Adelia Williamson, of Driver, and three brothers, Thomas, Reps, and Fred Williamson.

The body will arrive in Suffolk tomorrow morning at 7:30 and the funeral will be conducted from the Christian church at 2 o'clock by her pastor, Rev. I. W. Johnson, assisted by Dr. W. W. Staley, pastor of the church. The remains will be buried in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

And then she'll sleep where the daisies nod,

And the clover hangs its head,
Where the wild birds come and the wild bees hum,
Above her lonely bed.

She fought the fight, she kept the faith,
Her fame shines bright and clear,
And her memory lives in all our hearts,
Which will hold it ever dear.

Seawell.

Mary Lizzie Seawell, the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Seawell died at their home, Gates Co., on the 20 of July. She professed religion at an early age, and joined Damascus Christian Church near her home, remaining a devoted member until death. She was

"The Oxford Teachers' par excellence

JUST ISSUED!

OXFORD

Teachers' Bibles and S. S. Scholars' Bibles

With New 20th Century Helps arranged in One Alphabetical Order.

THE HELPS

The Christian Advocate, Nashville, says: "The helps are real helps. Unlike those in many of the cheap Bibles, they are not simply thrown together in hodge-podge fashion, but represent the freshest and ablest work of the foremost modern scholars."

Address _____

Bible is the Bible of the World."

NOW READY!

SIX NEW EDITIONS

OXFORD

Black Faced Type BIBLES

Three on Oxford White Paper. Three on the famous Oxford India Paper.

Pearl 32mo. A wonderful clear type in a small-size book.

Minion 16mo. Ready October 1907. A model hand Bible.

Brevier 16mo. Large type in small compass. "A quart in a pint measure."

"The new Bible just published by the Oxford Press is, without doubt, the finest product of the kind ever given to the public."

ASK FOR THE OXFORD EDITION

REMEMBER: That we guarantee satisfaction and sell to you cheaper than the publisher and dealers do. Our business is by mail and express and prices quoted are the prices of goods delivered to you. We can furnish you the Oxford, or the Holman Teacher's Bible at prices ranging from $1.35 to $4.00. Send for our catalogue or write us what you want. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN, Elon College, N. C.

CORTRIGHT

CORTRIGHT METAL SHINGLES make a roof that fits. No snow or rain, or wind can drive under them—no fire can reach sheathing or timber—no climatic condition can affect them—no raw places for rust to take hold. Laid in half the time, and no mistake can be made by any competent mechanic. A neat and permanent roof. If you want the best roof money can buy, send for our three free books, showing how and where Cortright Metal Shingles are used—and the name of your neighbor using them for years.

CORTRIGHT METAL ROOFING CO., 54 N. 23d St., Philadelphia

never happier than when making some sacrifice for the Master's cause. By nature she was as gentle as the zephyr. She was faithful to every obligation. Expecting to enter Elon College and further fit herself for life work, suddenly and almost without warning, "the wheel was broken at the cistern, the silver chord loosened and the spirit returned to the God who gave it." Her affliction was of short duration. Her obedience to her parents most excellent. They have no recollection that she ever disobeyed them or gave them, in any respect, trouble. What a record! Why a life so pure and beautiful should end so soon! In the providences that come to us in this life we have to listen, by faith, to Jesus as he speaks to us in assuring promise, "What I do thou knowest not now, but thou shalt know hereafter." To devoted parents, brothers, and sisters, we extend heartfelt sympathy; and assure them, in their irreparable loss, they have every possible comfort—religious faith and Christian hope. Her godly life is her eulogy. Funeral services conducted by her pastor, Rev. J. M. Roberts, followed by the burial services in the home cemetery. Under a mass of magnificent floral offerings she awaits the resurrection, from which couch of slumbering she will arise to meet Him, who will come to claim and crown his faithful followers. May each so live that there will be an unbroken family circle in Heaven.

Aunt.

A SOUL INTEREST.

Our best service for others depends much upon what it is in them that interests us. So long as our interest is superficial or trivial, we do not touch the heart of another's needs. But when we try to be of use in the deeper issues of life our interest may be somewhat unexpectedly welcome. A prominent Christian business man said of a warm-hearted helper of others: "He was the only man in the city who ever showed an interest in my soul, and I shall never forget him." Have you an interest as deep as that in another? Do you show it?—S. S. Times.

THE VALUE OF A FRUIT DIET.

Apples, oranges, pears, peaches, lemons, strawberries, blackberries, raspberries—in fact, all the various acid fruits—are exceedingly wholesome in character, and are capable of furnishing a very large amount of nourishment in one's daily diet. Strange as it may seem to the average individual, almost any one of these fruits, lemons excepted, would fully and completely nourish the body

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR

Stops Falling Hair
Makes Hair Grow

Does not Color the Hair

Stops Falling Hair
Makes Hair Grow

Does not Color the Hair

Does not Color the Hair

J. C. AYER COMPANY, Lowell, Mass.

A PURITAN CAPTAIN

BY EMMANUEL C. CHARLTON, PH. D.

This thrilling tale of sea adventure is based on actual experience and is told in the author's own natural manner, which is made the more impressive because of his long experience as a seaman, and Christian worker among his fellow-craftsmen. The story is specially attractive to all classes. The moral is of a high character. There is not a dull chapter in it. This beautifully bound book, printed from good, clear type, on first quality paper, containing nearly 270 pages, sold for $1.00. Address all orders to

J. N. HESS

Agent of the

Christian Publishing Association

DAYTON, OHIO

Horner Military School

1851—1909.
Oxford, North Carolina

Classical, Scientific and English Courses. Prepares for College, University or the Government Academies. Military training develops prompt obedience and manly carriage. Academy 58 years old, with experienced teachers. Cadets dine with the principal and ladies of his family, securing the culture of homelife. Cultivates and educates. Modern buildings, perfect sanitation, wholesome fare, no crowding. Best moral, mental, physical and social training. Shady lawn, athletic park, one quarter mile running track, 300 acres. Ideal climate, helpful environment. In the social atmosphere of refined Christian people. The town noted for over a century as an educational centre. Catalogues ready for distributing.

HORNER MILITARY SCHOOL
Col. J. C. Horner, Principal, Oxford, N. C.

for a prolonged, and even an extended period, if one were for any reason compelled to secure nourishment entirely from food of this character, although, of course, it would require a considerable period for the organs of assimilation to acquire the habit of absorbing all needed nourishment if a radical dietetic change of this nature was made.—Physical Culture.

PERSONALITIES.

A close study of the history of early Christianity will disclose the fact that good men fell into sharp disagreements and controversies then as now. Sometimes those disagreements were concerning questions of real difficulty, like the issue which arose over the Mosaic Law as related to Christianity. Sometimes they were personal questions, like that between Paul and Barnabas over John Mark. Breaches that are caused by personalities are proverbially hard to heal. Peter, though sharply reproved by Paul at Antioch concerning the judaizing controversy, remained his reprover's faithful friend. There is no record, however, that Paul and Barnabas ever worked together again. Mark, it is true, later proved that he was still worthy of Paul's confidence. Men who, having had personal disagreements, have taken occasion of them to say harsh and cutting things, should use every endeavor to forgive and forget. Hostile divisions of Christian against Christian simply to keep up a grudge are a humiliating spectacle.—Nashville Christian Advocate.

CAN CANCER BE CURED? IT CAN.

We want every man and woman in the United States to know what we are doing. We are curing Cancers, Tumors and Chronic Sores without the use of the knife or X-ray, and are endorsed by the Senate and Legislature of Virginia.

We Guarantee Our Cures.
THE KELLAM HOSPITAL,
 1917 West Main, Richmond, Va.
 Physicians Treated Free.

"He that winneth souls is wise."

(Begun on page thirteen).

7. Song. Prayer.
8. Scripture references and Question Spurs.
9. Returned missionary or traveler in Mission lands.
10. Voluntary Participation.
11. Plea for special object of offering.
12. Pastor's five minutes.
13. Song. Special Offering. Mizpah.

INCOME INSURANCE.

Has come to stay. People want it. The many wills left, providing Annual Incomes through Trustees, attest this fact. Men want certainty. A lump sum of money left to a widow, is liable to be borrowed, loaned, or lost by bad investment, or the income therefrom delayed or greatly depreciated.

Money left with the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company, to be returned as an annual, semi-annual, quarterly or monthly income, IS SAFE.

The Company has an unblemished record of 52 years—present assets over two hundred and fifty million dollars.

Our interesting document No. 842 giving full particulars will be sent on request.

T. A. Cary.

601 Mutual Assurance Soc. Bldg.,
Richmond, Va.

SAVING IS MAKING.

Economy in itself is a great virtue, and thus we should strive to protect its worthy cause. It is NOT economy when a farmer sells his crop today at a lower price than he could have obtained yesterday by simply telephoning to the next town and get "price wise." It certainly is NOT economy if we use hours and days of our precious time to do a certain thing that could as well, and often better, have been attended to by telephone. Life is short, at best. Time is MONEY, and should not be wasted, lest we regret it, sooner or later.

If, perhaps, you have no telephone, you cannot blame anyone but yourself. You can have one at surprisingly low cost. Write a postal to the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company, of Atlanta, Ga., and ask them to send you their free booklet. It tells things which will surprise you.

20 THANKSGIVING POSALS, GOLD BACKGROUND, 15 CENTS.

Six Imported Embossed Faith, Hope and Charity or Lord's Prayer Series, dime. Six "Ideal Pansy" Series, with silver background and Scripture Texts, dime. Illustrated Wall Mottoes, dime. Ask for circulars. R. Elsey Company, Aurora, Ills.

During 1909

(As in previous years)

We want you in our business, for we have what you want in your homes—the very best, most substantial and handsome furniture at bottom prices. We are also the undertakers.

Burke Furniture and Coffin Company

BURLINGTON, N. C.

Southern Railway

Operating Over 7,000 Miles of Railway. Quick Route to all Points North, South, East and West.

For Speed, Comfort, Courteous Employees, travel via the Southern Railway.

Rates, Schedules and other information furnished by any of the undersigned.

R. L. VERNON, Trav. Pass. Agt.,
Charlotte, N. C.

J. H. WOOD, Dist. Pass. Agt.,
Asheville, N. C.

S. H. HARDWICK, P. T. M.,

W. H. TAYLOE, G. P. A.,

Washington, D. C.

Elon College.

Co-educational. Established 1890.

Thorough College courses leading to M. A., A. B., and Ph. B. degrees. Strong and experienced faculty with highest University training. Good Library, Reading Room, Laboratories, Literary Societies. Excellent Music, Art, Elocution and Business Departments. Diploma from Elon admits to graduate departments in the highest universities.

Beautiful and healthful location, 17 miles east of Greensboro on Southern Railway. Best moral and religious influence. No hazing. New students met by reception committees from young people's Christian organizations connected with the college. Good equipment. A large new dormitory, with modern conveniences, has recently been built to meet the requirements of growing patronage.

EXPENSES UNUSUALLY MODERATE. FALL TERM OPENS SEPT. 1ST.

For catalogue or further information, address

EMMETT L. MOFFITT, LL. D., President.

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

GRAND EXCURSION TO NORKOLK, VA.

Thursday, September 23, 1909, via SOUTHERN RAILWAY, special train to leave Greensboro 7:25 a.m. (Via Danville). Returning, tickets will be good on regular trains to points where scheduled to stop, leaving Norfolk up to and including Saturday, Sept. 25, 1909.

Two days and two nights in this magnificent "City by the Sea." Numerous points of interest, Norfolk-Portsmouth Navy Yard, Old Point Comfort, (Fortress Monroe) Newport News (Ship Building Plant) Virginia Beach, Ocean View, Hampton Roads, and many other historic points.

Separate cars for colored people.

For further information call on any agent Southern Railway, or write,

F. R. McMillan, T. P. A., Norfolk, Va.

S. E. Burgess, D. P. A., Richmond, Va.

R. I. Veruon, D. P. A., Charlotte, N. C.

OPIUM or Morphine Habit Treated. Free trial cases where other remedies have failed, specially desired. Confidential.

Dr. R. G. CONTRELL, successor to HARRIS INSTITUTE, Room 552, No. 400 W. 23rd St., New York.

—A nod of approval or a hearty shake of the hand—those little things that in some mysterious way make the pilot wheel of life spin more easily and give the hands of our souls a firmer grip on the spoke. We may scoff at them in our moments of arrogant independence, but they do not come often enough in the lives of most of us to ever lose their first novelty of power.—Balance of Power.

—There is an idea abroad among moral people that they should make their neighbors good. One person I have to make good—myself; but my duty to my neighbor is much more clearly expressed by saying that I have to make him happy, if I may.—Robert Louis Stephenson.

The Christian Sun.

In Essentials—Unity, in Non-Essentials—Liberty, in All Things—Charity.

ESTABLISHED 1844.

GREENSBORO N. C., WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1909. VOLUME LXI. NUMBER 38.

Governor Johnson.—Not a State only, but the people of a nation, mourn the death of Governor Johnson, of Minnesota, which occurred at Rochester, Sept. 21. This for the reason that, while governor of his State for three terms, he had become a national figure. He was a man of wonderful ability and was much sought after as speaker at public functions and at chautauquas. Governor Johnson was not an educated man, in the academic sense. He never went to college. His parents were natives of Sweden, but immigrated to this country and settled in the West before the future governor was born. His father, Gustav Johnson, and his mother Caroline Hansen Haden, were both of peasant stock. The young son was reared in poverty. His father did not prosper and died when Johnson was a lad, leaving him to support his widowed mother who was in poverty. Johnson studied at night, acquired a taste for reading and study which, indulged, finally made him a man of eloquence, training, and renown. When he was campaigning his state for governor his political friends told him that a story was going the rounds on him that his father had died in the poor house and that his mother had been a washer woman, and called on him to deny this damaging story. "But I cannot deny it and tell the truth," said Johnson. He was greatly beloved by the people of Minnesota, was only forty-eight years of age, and was spoken of in many quarters as a suitable man to run for president.

Keeping Appointment.—Through the great telescope at Yerkes Observatory on September 15, Prof. S. W. Burnham caught the first sight of what is known as Halley's Comet. This comet swept out of sight of our planet seventy-four years ago. Astronomers knew just when it would appear and were on the lookout. Edmund Halley, son of an English soap-maker, born at Hagerstown, London, in 1656, became a great astronomer, and in 1680 he made a prediction that a comet that had not been seen for seventy-four years would return and be visible on a certain day and hour. The astronomer and mathematician had done his work well, and the comet, since known as Halley's Comet, kept appointment to the hour. Prior to that time astronomers thought that comets were not subject to same laws as those of other planets, but since then, as Newton proved, it is known that comets move in elliptical or parabolic orbits. Halley's comet will not be seen again in seventy-four years, but astronomers now can tell you just when to expect it three quarters of a century hence. The comets keep appointment. The heavens declare the glory of God and the firmament showeth his handiwork. Sun and moon and stars obey His will perfectly.

The Country Boy.—Of forty-five boys now at the Jackson Training School, Concord, N. C., (our school of correction for youthful criminals), Mr. J. P. Cook, Chairman of the Board of Trustees, says there is not one from the country. Think of it: eighty-two percent. of the people of North Carolina live in the country, and only twenty-eight per cent in town. Yet the eighty-two per cent have not a single representative among the criminal youths of the school. This does not mean that all the bad boys live in town, and all the good ones live in the country: but it does mean that the country is the place to rear boys, and the best place to discipline them and to train them for future strength, influence and usefulness. The town is a good place to make money, but the country is the place to rear boys. There are a hundred temptations in the town that the country lad knows nothing of; and the country boy has a hundred opportunities for fresh air, free play and wholesome exercise and out door sports that the city youth cannot enjoy. When the youth in town does escape the allurements and temptations and shows himself to be a man, the greater is the credit due him and the more is he to be applauded for successful achievements. For neither country nor city make the boy, but character.

Misguided Faith.—There met at Duxbury, Mass., the past week, three hundred or more people, according to reports, which we regard as authentic, to pray for and await the end of time, and the dawn of the millenium, which phenomena, it was declared, would appear

Sept. 24th. The sect that gathered for this service are known as Triune Immersionists, or Holy Rollers. Their leaders declared that the end of time was night at hand and advised their believers to meet at Ashdod, near their Bethel, in the vicinity of Duxbury, and there in prayerful and secret conclave await the end, which it was predicted will certainly come some time during the day of September 24th. The favorite and earnest prayer of the watchers was, "Oh Lord, don't disappoint us." The end, of course, did not occur, and the various members have now scattered to their homes and places, not indeed to give up their misguided faith, but to cultivate it, and to be able to calculate better next time. This may seem a strange fanaticism, and it would be strange if it were not so often repeated. So far as we know there have been those living for time out of mind and in many periods of history, who prophesied and believed that on a certain given date the world would come to an end. That the world does not end as expected does not destroy their faith. They consider that they themselves miscalculated.

The saddest tragedies in the history of man have been wrought out in misguided faith. It is indeed a dangerous thing to have religious faith in the decrees, dogmas, creeds and formulas of men. "Have faith in God" is always a safe injunction. And His Word interprets sufficient of His will to guide aright. One wonders why the strange sect above spoken of could not accept the words of Lord Christ, "Watch ye, therefore, and pray, for in the hour ye think not the Son of Man cometh." And not even the angels in heaven know that hour.

—Prof Karl Pearson's theory that the first-born children of a marriage are more likely to fall victims to consumption than the latter-born offspring has been freshly tested by Prof. Van der Velden of Frankfort, from material furnished by Prof. Riffell of Karlsruhe, who shows from an investigation of 2,500 families that in normal families the fourth, fifth and sixth children are more liable to die of tuberculosis, than are the first, second or third.

FROM THE FIELD.

Rock Springs.

My health has been such this summer that I have not been able to do the work that I wanted to do, but I have done the best I could under the circumstances and am satisfied with results, and give all honor and praise to God.

My meetings at Rock Springs followed 2nd Sunday in August, closing Thursday with three accessions to the church. Results here have not been entirely satisfactory. One great need of this church is a Sunday-school and a weekly prayer meeting. The membership is so badly scattered and so far away that it makes it almost impossible to have either successfully.

The second great need of this church is less whiskey and fewer members who love to drink it. The third great need of this and a great many other churches is a membership that will look on the first, foremost, greatest, best and most needed institution in all the world, and who are willing to do for the church what they have done and are doing for the subordinate and less important institutions of the world. The fourth great need is men of moral courage and backbone made of something stronger than a cotton string to bear them up in the enforcement of Bible law, moral law and church law against violators.

The fifth great need of all the churches is a membership so pure and strong in Christian character as that their very lives will be a living epistle—daily pointing sinners to the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world.

New Harmony.

Here I began a meeting the first Sunday in August which was hindered by rain and sickness. So we held five days' meeting there last week much to the delight of all who attended. It seems that every body was benefited. The church was much revived, several reconsecrations; 36 were added to the roll and 33 baptized. I baptized nine children last Thursday, the youngest of nine different homes. New Harmony is rapidly coming to the front and will soon be her old self again. Praise the Lord for His Goodness.

C. M. Dollar.

O'Kelley's.

After eight weeks of hard work, I pause for a few days' rest and quiet.

The week following the third Sunday in July, I assisted Rev. L. E. Smith in a very successful revival at O'Kelley's Chapel. I suffered a great deal from an attack of "grippe" while with Bro. Smith, but enjoyed the meeting, and the pleasant association with him and his good people very much.

Apple's Chapel.

We began our meeting here fourth Sunday in July, and closed the following Thursday evening. Rev. J. L. Foster aided me to good acceptance, preaching the word with great earnestness and spiritual power. Large congregations assembled each day, from three to eight hundred during the week, and about fifteen hundred on Sunday. The meeting was good, the church much revived and sixteen additions. The work at this Church is more hopeful, and with the proper care and effort on the part of pastor and people, will soon be one of our strongest country churches.

Mt. Bethel.

Our meeting began here on the first Sunday in August. Rev. L. E. Smith came to my assistance the following Tuesday, and remained till the close Friday evening. Bro. Smith is a fluent speaker, and a preacher of power. The rain kept many away Monday and Tuesday, but the evening was good from the first, and continued to grow in interest till the close. Eighteen have united with the church since the meeting. We are repairing our house of worship at this place. Have put on a self-supporting roof, covering with metal shingles. The work inside is not completed yet. Our membership is not large here, but we have a few faithful ones.

New Lebanon.

From Mt. Bethel, we went to New Lebanon, commencing here the second Sunday in August. We had a gracious revival, which resulted in twelve additions to the church.

Rev. W. L. Wells reached me on Monday, and preached with earnestness, and to good acceptance, to the large congregations present. We have just completed a nice front to our house of worship at this place.

Park's Cross Roads.

The series of meetings began at this church third Sunday in August. The meeting was hindered in the beginning by various things, but finally these obstacles were overcome, and a great revival followed. Rev. L. E. Smith reached me Tuesday, and did telling work while with us at this place. Bro. Smith is an untiring worker, and a preacher of tact and power in revival work, and God honors his efforts.

At the close of the meeting, twelve united with the church, and many said it was one of the best meetings ever held at Park's. This is our first year with this people and so far it has been very pleasant indeed.

Week following the fourth Sunday in August, I assisted Rev. W. L. Wells, at Shallow Ford in a successful revival, and the week following the fifth Sunday

I was with Rev. L. E. Smith in a splendid meeting at Ramseur. Then again with Bro. Wells at Pleasant Hill the week following first Sunday in September, where we enjoyed having "Uncle Wellons" with us in a good meeting. We baptized twenty-nine at this church for Bro. Wells.

Howard Chapel and Montecello.

At these two points we have not held our meetings yet. The Lord willing, we will hold our meeting at Montecello (Mission) the fourth Sunday in September and week following, and at Howard Chapel the second Sunday in October and week following. Up to this writing I have held four of my meetings and aided in four others. I have witnessed the conversion of more than 100 persons, and have received 61 persons into the church and baptized 73.

The Lord has greatly blessed me in my labors for Him this year. To Him belongs all the glory. L. L. Cox.

Rchland, Ga.

I have finished up my summer revivals, and my work is in good condition. Thirty-one members have been added to my churches this summer, for which I feel devoutly thankful. I hope to have all the assessments ready by Conference. I appeal to all the pastors of the Conference to see that their assessments are brought up in full. The next session of the Ga. and Ala. Christian Conference meets at our church here on Tuesday evening after the fourth Sunday in Oct. at 7 P. M. We hope for a full delegation from all churches. Delegates will be expected to stay over till Friday morning. We will appreciate visitors and fraternal messengers from other Conferences. It would be a good time for some of the preachers in N. C. and Va. to come to see us. We extend to you a cordial invitation and assure you a royal welcome.

Yours in service,

H. W. Elder.

Shallow Ford.

On the fourth Sunday in August we began our revival with the church at Shallow Ford, and it continued until Thursday following. It was our pleasure to have with us on Sunday, four brethren in the ministry, Bro. A. F. Isley, Bro. Crumpler, Bro. Tiekel, and Bro. Geringer of the M. P. Church. Bro. Crumpler preached for us in the afternoon. His sermon was good and much enjoyed by the large congregation present.

Rev. L. I. Cox came to my assistance Monday morning, and he brought to us some very strong and effective gospel messages. The meeting was a grand success. As a result there were eleven conversions of young men and young women, five additions, and the church much revived. I received four other members at my last appointment, and I understand that there will be others to join in the near future.

I consider the work here very encouraging, and we give God the praise for it all. My prayer is that the good impressions made during our last revival may be lasting to us all.

Pleasant Hill.

Week following the first Sunday in September, we conducted a very successful revival with the church at this place. The pastor had the preaching to do on Sunday and Monday. On Tuesday morning, Rev. L. I. Cox, Uncle Wellons, and Dr. Long came. Dr. Long, however, was only with us for the day and gave us a very helpful talk. Uncle Wellons and Bro. Cox remained until the meeting closed. Bro. Cox did the preaching, and he gave some very able sermons and they had a great effect on the people, so much so that they want Bro. Cox to come back again. Bro. Cox is a consecrated man and a spiritual preacher, and the Lord is using him for the saving of many souls.

As a result of our meeting here, we had thirteen conversions, several reclamations, eight additions, twenty-nine baptisms, and the church greatly revived. We are expecting more members to join at our next appointment.

The church here, to some extent, seems to be taking on new life. We have very recently had the interior of the church painted and a recess pulpit built. These improvements add much to the beauty of the building, and we hope at a very early date to make other necessary improvements.

This is my second year with the people at Pleasant Hill, and I feel the Lord has blessed both pastor and people in their feeble efforts to do His will. May we strive day by day to render our Master a better service and grow more in the riches of His grace, is my earnest prayer.

During my school vacation I was engaged in seven revival meetings, and in these meetings I witnessed eighty or more conversions, and I am so thankful to the Lord that it was my pleasure and privilege to see these souls make peace with God, for my heart, so many times, was made to rejoice. I am sure I never spent a vacation more pleasantly and profitably in my life. It was a real joy and pleasure to me to meet and be with the people in the various communities while I was engaged in meetings, and I desire to thank them for their kindness to me and the means which they used to make my stay in their midst so pleasant. May the Lord bless them all.

W. L. Wells.

Mt. Zion.

The meeting at Mt. Zion began the 4th Sunday in August and continued five days, and closed Thursday night.

There were three conversions. The Church was revived.

The meeting at Bethel is to begin the first Sunday in October. I received one member into the church at Bethel last first Sunday. The work in all my churches is moving on quietly.

Thos. W. Stroud.

Sept. 15, 1909.

Amelia.

My work is moving along nicely, although I did not have as much visible results in the conversion of souls as I had hoped for.

I protracted my meeting at Amelia the second Sunday in August. The attendance was fine. Much interest was shown among the Christians, and right much interest on the part of the unconverted. Several expressed a desire for prayer at each service, but only two were converted. I received one into the church, and expect one or two more at our next meeting. I had no ministerial aid at this place.

We are some behind with our Conference apportionments at present, but expect to go up to Conference a banner church. We have finished paying the debt of $30.00 for painting the church which was due when I accepted the work. The Lord has greatly blessed us here this year.

Mt. Hermon.

Our meeting began here the third Sunday in August. We greatly enjoyed the presence of God with us during the meeting. The attendance was good considering the busy season with the farmers saving fodder.

There were four professions and three accessions to the church. There are but few unconverted people in this section, and they will not attend the services, hence the meeting closed on Wednesday. There are some as noble Christian characters here as will be found anywhere. For lack of space I only mention Sister J. J. Flowers, the oldest member of the church. She always greets her pastor with a hearty hand-shake and implores the blessings of God upon him. Even though she is going down the sunset side of life, she is growing in the sunlight side of life for God and heaven.

She requests me to express her appreciation of the Christian Sun given by this Conference. She thanks the Conference and the editor for their generosity and the blessings it brings to her each week. May God's blessings continue with this dear saint, and may her latter days be sweeter in Christian experience.

Plymouth.

We protracted our meeting here the fourth Sunday in August. The congregations were small after Sunday. There was not as much visible result in conversions as I had hoped to see. The attendance on the part of non-Christians was small. There were two professions and four accessions to the church. Bro. Lee Johnson assisted me in the meeting at this place. His very impressive talks and prayers were greatly enjoyed by all who heard them. The church was much revived, and I trust in good condition spiritually.

We have covered the church building this year and some money in the treasury to do other repairing soon. We are some behind on our Conference apportionment and pastor's salary. We hope to go to Conference a banner church.

Hayes' Chapel.

We began our meeting here the first Sunday in September. Rev. A. P. Barbee came to my assistance Monday evening and did most of the preaching after that. We had continuous rains after Tuesday, hence the attendance was small. There was considerable sickness in the town also. Some of the faithful Christians from all the churches attended regularly. The meeting closed on Friday evening. There were no professions but the church was much revived.

We have more than our Conference apportionments raised. I must tell the method by which a portion of this amount was raised.

Brother Moring, in the grocery business, invested $1.35 in corn meal and as fast as he sold a bushel of meal purchased with this money he invested it in another bushel and gave the profit to the church. He sold twenty-one and one half bushels and made twenty cents on the bushel, which amounted to $4.30. Brother Barbee, in the dry goods and notion business, invested $1.00 in the Ingersoll watch and sold three of those, making twenty-five cents on the watch, and gave the profit to the church, which amounted to seventy-five cents.

These are ideas that might be adopted by many of our churches and we could afford to have our churches assessed more and raise the required amount with more ease than we do the small amounts already apportioned us.

We have carpeted the rostrum and furnished it with new chairs this year. We are trying to lay plans by which we will be able to raise money to paint the house inside and outside.

(Continued on page six).

NOTES AND PERSONALS.

—Are you getting ready for your annual Conference? It will soon be here.

—Mr. Thomas Smith Jones of Sottville, Va., was married Tuesday Sept. 21 to Miss Emily Chaffin, of Blountville, Tenn, whereupon we extend hearty congratulations. Mr. Jones is an Isle of Wight Co. Va. man, formerly resided at Zuni, and is a splendid fellow, a friend always to The Christian Sun and loyal ever to his church and all its interests. We wish for him all success and happiness.

—Prof. W. A. Harper, President of the N. C. Union of Christian Endeavor, delivered an address last Sunday night in the Friends' Meeting House at Greensboro on Christian Endeavor. Prof. Harper is doing a great work as an earnest Endeavorer among the young people not only in our own church, but in other churches as well. His articles now appearing in The Sun on C. E. are very practical and helpful.

—Rev. W. T. Walters, Harrisonburg, Va., was an unexpected visitor at the Sun office last Friday. He was on his way to Union Ridge, N. C., to be treated for facial paralysis by his brother, Dr. Charles Walters. A few days since Bro. Walters suffered a slight stroke of paralysis which affected one side of his face and right eye only. His physician thinks the ailment only temporary, possibly from nervous strain and exposure in work. Bro. Walters is an arduous laborer, and successful in the Master's service, and all his brethren and hosts of friends wish and pray for speedy recovery.

—When have we ever been in a more delightful class than the organized citizen's Bible Class of Elon College; not of college students, but of people from the village. There must be more than twenty of them. Prof. W. A. Harper was the originator and is the competent and worthy teacher. Mr. M. A. Atkinson is president of the class. Mrs. W. E. Lowe is secretary. There are social committees, devotional committees, membership committees, and all are interested and at work. The organized Sunday school class movement is an interesting feature of Christian work and is certainly worth trying in any school.

—Rev. J. U. Newman of Elon College, Rev. N. G. Newman of Holland, Va., Rev. C. E. Newman of Henderson, N. C., and Mrs. W. C. Wicker of Elon College were called last week to the death and burial of their father in Nansemond Co., Va. Somewhere in this father's life, and in this mother's heart, there must have been sterling qualities of mighty manhood and noble womanhood. Not often is one home so immensely blessed—three preachers,, all able, faithful and mighty men, and one preacher's wife, a true and devoted Christian woman and noble companion for a busy and successful preacher. The bereaved have our sympathy.

—Beginning October 5th Rev. J. O. Cox, now of South Norfolk, Va., will reside at Elon College, N. C., and will have entire charge of the business side of the Christian Sun. The present editor will have charge of all matter published in the paper as heretofore; but Bro. Cox comes to his relief in undertaking all matters of business of a financial nature that pertain to the Sun. The work is too heavy and varied for one man. We desire to give more time and effort to looking after what shall appear in these columns from week to week; and the business side of the paper needs more time and attention. Bro. Cox is no novice in this field, as he has done work before in this office and has done considerable work heretofore as traveling representative.

NEWS ITEMS.

—Captain Scott of the British army, is planning to lead an exhibition in quest of the South Pole. May no private citizen jump in to snatch his laurels from him.

—The total dead, from the hurricane in the vicinity of New Orleans Monday, Sept. 20th, so far recovered amount to about 200. There was great destruction of property and damage to crops.

—We have come upon great and wondrous times. An aeroplane at Rheims, France, the other day was fined twenty francs for reckless flying, the charge being that he flew so recklessly as to greatly frighten the spectators.

—Sept. 21 an almost innumerable throng, tumultuous and eager, welcomed Dr. Frederick Cook back to Brooklyn, N. Y. "I have come from the Pole. I have brought my story and my data with me," declared Dr. Cook on landing.

—After November 1, 1909, the fee for registering a letter will be ten cents instead of eight as now. But the maximum indemnity paid to the owner of a lost or rifled registered letter is to be increased from $25 to $50.

—A destructive hurricane, sweeping north at the rate of 200 miles a day, devastated the gulf coast and left a trail of wreck and ruin through four States, Sept. 21 and 22, causing the loss of millions in property and many lives. Louisiana and Mississippi suffered most.

—The new tariff law ever more "puts it on" to owners of yachts built abroad, in that a custom tax of thirty-five per cent of the value of the boat is to be collected for every foreign built yacht brought to our shores. The annual tax on several foreign-built yachts owned by Americans will exceed $10,000.

—President Taft is now beyond the Rockies on his 13,000 mile tour of speaking to the people and seeing the country. It is a great undertaking, and rather hazardous, but the people want to see and hear their chief executive, and all the country wishes him bon voyage and a safe return.

—The airship is not yet safe. The machinery is not sufficiently secure for the delicacy of midair. Passing over the road from Paris to Antibes, and at a height of between 500 and 600 feet Sept. 25, a dirigible balloon carrying four passengers exploded, fell to the ground in a heavy and ruined heap, the four passengers meeting a dreadful death.

—The Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition has been largely patronized, and contrary to most other Expositions, has paid off its entire floating indebtedness and it is thought that all outstanding bonds will be retired by the close of September. Contrary to all other Expositions in this country, there was allowed no sale of liquor or beer on or within the grounds.

—Beginning Saturday, Sept. 25, and continuing through Saturday, Oct. 9, New York inhabitants, joined by unnumbered other thousands are celebrating the discovery of the Hudson River, by Heinrich Hudson, and the invention of the steam boat by Robert Fulton—the Hudson-Fulton Celebration. The celebration is said to be on a gigantic scale, and the pageant of ships, buntings, and parades, magnificent.

—On the basis of 150,000 deaths yearly from tuberculosis, in the United States the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis computes that there are 684,934 persons constantly sick with this disease. Allowing only $500 as the average earnings of the workingman who dies, the annual loss to the country from the ranks of labor alone, is over $114,000,000 each year.

—Santos Dumont, famous as aeroplaneist, says he expects soon to perfect an aeroplane so that he can run it along the road as a motor car and rise in the air at will, and descending run it on the ground. Bleriot, another French inventor and aviator, hopes within a few months to create a flying machine with which he can alight on the water and after resting, like a sea gull, start to flying again. Recent inventions and discoveries have fired the imagination of men.

TWO CALLS AND THEIR ECHO.

We have all observed how differently different persons are affected by the same appeal. One is attracted, the other repelled. Multitudes heard the voice of Jesus when He spake. Some followed Him, and others hated Him and sought to destroy Him. Some said, "He is the Son of God;" others said, "He hath a devil." Two young men sat together in a theatre where the name of God was blasphemed, and sacred things caricatured for the amusement of men and women of low tastes. One of the young men was delighted and convulsed with laughter, but the other was tormented with disgust and agony by the miserable presentation. One was at home in his element, but the other was unhappy until he could escape from the scene and breathe again the pure air of his own pure home.

The Call of the Wild is a story of animal life by a well-known author. The story shows how animals are affected by outward appeals according to their inner life. Naturalists tell us the dog, the most intelligent, faithful and affectionate of all domestic animals, was once a wolf and has been brought up to his present high state by a process of evolution. But the process seems to be incomplete, for many dogs are still very much like wolves. We are told that some dogs hear the baying of the wild pack in the forest with a sympathetic feeling, and as the nature of the wolf stirs within, they long to go back to their native forests and their wild state, and some of them do go back and live on friendly and intimate terms with the wild and savage beast.

Young persons have been taken from barbarous tribes, clothed in garments of civilized people, taught the manners and customs of civilized life, taught to eat at a table, to sleep in a clean bed, to go to school, and read, and have been instructed in the principles of Christian morality and religion. But some of them, in spite of all this outward polish and all the advantages of city life, break away from their new surroundings and hurry back to their native forests and barbarous life. So strong is the tendency to revert to type. So deep is the original nature fixed in the soul. The cry of the wild finds an echo in the heart because the wild is still there.

We do not say that men have descended from the lower animals. We do not feel called upon to defend or dispute this proposition. Let those whose studies lie in that direction pursue it to their hearts' content. But we will all admit that there is something in many men which appears like a residuum of animal life which has not yet been wholly eliminated. Is there not something of the fox in many men? Did not Jesus say of Herod, "Go and tell that fox"? Is there not something of the serpent in some men? Did not John the Baptist say to those who flocked to hear him, "O, generation of vipers"? It is easy to discover something of the tiger and the ape and the hyena in some men. And when a man becomes a brute, and abuses his wife and children, he does so because he has something of the brute in him. He hears the call of the wild, and it finds an echo in his soul. "A man is tempted when he is led away of his own lusts and enticed." If the serpent were not in the heart men would not become vipers. It is sad to think that young men and young women from good Christian homes hear the call of the low and go down to mingle with the base. It is sad to think what depths of evil there are in human nature.

But there is another call; it is the call of the divine. It is the call of the cross, a call to self-sacrifice and heroic service. It is the call of love, a call to help a brother and to go good. And there is in the heart of man something which responds to this high call. Our tendencies are not all downward. There are chords within which echo to the voice of the Son of God. When Jesus speaks to men He addresses His message to something in us which is like Himself.

There is an old legend of two brothers who played together in childhood and were bound together by a threefold cord of love. One of them wandered away from home, and fell into evil ways, and was turned into a wolf by an evil magician. His brother went up and down seeking after the lost one with a flame of love in his bosom which nothing could quench. One day going through a wood he was set on by a wolf, and they struggled together with might and main. But the heart of the brother struggled with unutterable love which enabled him to discern in the wolf some reminiscences of the image of a brother; and that majestic love triumphed until the features of the wolf began to disappear, and the brother was restored to his senses and his home. It is a beautiful legend.

But we need no legend to teach us this lesson. We have a glorious gospel which is far better. According to this gospel we know that the elder brother is abroad in the world, seeking that which is lost. He came unto His own, but His own received Him not. They set on Him with savage fury and nailed Him to the cross. But amid the agony and blood of that struggle His infinite love enabled Him to discern the features of brothers in the faces of His murderers, and to pray, saying, "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do." That love is drawing all men unto Him by His cross. When a man comes to himself all is changed. Looking into the eyes of the Son of Man through which His unutterable love is gleaming, the lost come to a better mind, and the features of the base and depraved begin to fade away, and they are restored to their senses and their home. Thanks be to God for the call of the divine.

THE RIPENING YEARS.

I have only to pass a mirror to take notice that I belong now to October. And why should any man pull out his hair, or color it, that he may escape suspicions of October? Why, this October is the Beulah of the year. Old earth hath become all saturated with sunshine, and from every hill and plain pours back the glory.

Yes, we are in Beulah land. So I have found that the richest highlands of our mortal life, the true Beulah prospect hills, are gained in these glad years memorial and prophetic, when the fruits of our spring plantings are maturing around us, when our children and our churches are adulting from their vivacious spring gushings, when thus the perfecting of a fearless love is answered by some harvest colors in our homes and fields. I did not find the flowery spring so deeply joyous as I find this heavenward leaving autumn. One of the last times that I met Bishop Ames he said to me: "You are looking a little older, Bro. Jervis, than you were when I came to your Dansville Conference with Bishop Waugh, and heard that first speech of yours. But I hope that you are glad of that. I love to grow old." The stalwart Bishop has gone on before us through the November and December of his year. And we will not shiver even when our October begins to fade into the shorter days, when the heavier frosts and darker landscapes come, and through all scenery and all sound steals in a sublime and cadencial murmur of the unreported sea. We will expect that the very last days of November will bring in for us the great Thanksgiving, the Te Deum of our year. And so, when December silver gathers over all, as we are more and more snowed in to a narrowing home, and the spring season of our sowing, and the summer of our ripening, and the autumn of our gathering are receding farther and farther into distant and commingling memories, we will rejoice that the great holiday, brightest of all, is nearing, the Christmas, the nativity of Him, our immortality, Jesus Christ our life, the same yesterday, today and forever.

(Began on page three).

Hayes' is taking on new life and our greatest need at present is more, efficient young people to take the lead in the work here. The work has been very pleasant this year at all my appointments. I desire the prayers of the brethren in my behalf.

A. T. Banks.

McCullers, N. C.

COLUMBUS, GA., LETTER.

On Monday after the first Sunday instant the Girard Sunday-school went out to Poplar Springs and spent the day picnicing. Swings, games, contests, refreshments and dinner had been arranged especially for the children, who entered heartily into the festivities of the occasion. The older people entertained themselves in social conversation, in singing and in looking well to the enjoyment of the children whose hearts that day were made glad. It does the heart good and makes our burdens lighter to leave the busy cares of life once in a while and spend a day beneath forest shades, near a gushing, crystal spring or by a laughing, babbling brook.

Last Sunday Rev. H. W. Elder filled his regular monthly appointment at Waverly Terrace. I learn that the congregation at the night service was the largest attendance yet witnessed at this place. Sunday school was also larger than usual. Several new members were enrolled. This point is greatly in need of financial aid and must have it or the work will suffer. Preaching one Sunday a month will not do for a city church, especially a new field. Brother Elder hopes to arrange for services every Sunday next year. To do this, somebody must come to his assistance. An appropriation from the Home Mission funds of the S. C. C. would doubtless be a wise expenditure of money.

The first Sunday instant we held regular services at North Highlands. Congregations were not as large as they usually are. In the cities a great many people stay away from church in summer because the weather is too hot and in winter it is too cold, and others stay away because of other attractions and causes too numerous to mention. Consequently one of the most momentous problems confronting the church today is that of the "non-church-goers." And this problem is not confined wholly to the great centers of population—the rural districts have similar conditions to deal with.

The second Sunday was a good day at Girard. The attendance was normal and the interest intense. At present this church is doing good work. One of our deacons recently said, "The church is in better condition than it has been in twelve years." Next Sunday we begin a series of meetings here. Rev. J. H. Milan will assist us.

Bro. C. B. Terrell whom we reported quite ill sometime ago is able to be out and at his work again.

Rev. J. W. Elder, who has resided this year in Columbus and has had charge of work in the Ga. and Ala. Conference will move his family next week to Clay Co., Ala., where he will take charge of a former pastorate. His address will be De Armanville, Ala., R. F. D. 3.

G. O. Lankford.

Sept. 16, 1909.

BOSTON LETTER.

How the Sun shines these days! Good news from the Orphanage; from churches, Sunday-schools, etc.; good editorials; news from Elon College, and many other features to gladden the reader's heart. But what a sense of disappointment one suffers when one of the regular features fails to appear, as was the case last week with News from Elon. I have been particularly pleased with the evidences of prosperity in the far South. Both the Ga. and Ala. Conferences are doing very well. The Second Church of Columbus, Ga., as it appears in the current number of the Christian Missionary, is a beautiful building and does credit to the enterprise and industry of Rev. H. W. Elder, whose zeal in the Master's service has made possible much of the development of our cause in his own state. To see letters from Revs. Hunt, Dollar, Lankford, Young, Milam and others is refreshing and hope-inspiring. Let us hope these may appear with such regularity, that the members of the several congregations may develop such interest in the news of the neighboring churches as to greatly increase the Sun's list of subscribers. A church member who is a subscriber to, and a constant reader of, his church paper can usually be depended upon when the need arrives for good, intelligent service. According to the aggregate membership of the churches of these two conferences, a list of six hundred Sun subscriptions would scarcely be sufficient to supply the need. Brethren, can you show that number? If you brethren "way down in Dixie land" knew how we who are so far removed from your field of activity delight in your successes, you would probably tell us more about them.

You see it is so long since I lived in the South, that you have had time to forget how little I practiced these virtues to which I now exhort you. I hope my failures in the past may not be repeated by any of my good brethren for whom I have such a high regard, neither in this respect nor any other.

Dr. Manning's letters from Norfolk keep us pretty well posted regarding the programs of the work where our interest is naturally deeper than anywhere else. Just where the credit belongs for his faithfulness as a scribe I cannot say, but I suspect Brother Thompson must have been much wiser than I, and selected a correspondent upon whom he felt he could depend. Brother Thompson's success at the Third Church in many respects must cause the congregation to bear pleasant recollections of their association together. That offering for the Ponce Church—it was not a collection—was certainly fine for a little babe less than two years old. I can claim no credit for this splendid gift, much as I should like to do so. I suspect my yearnings are akin to those of a small boy of six whose baby brother formed the chief attraction at a social gathering. Everybody was making flattering remarks about "the pretty baby," but no one seemed to be paying the least attention to the six year old. He stood it as long as he could, and then stretched himself up to his full height, stuck his hands in his pockets and strutted out in full view of everyone present, and then broke out with: "I'm the baby's brother!"

That new building at Portsmouth!!! How do you suppose it will be possible to keep me out of Virginia, Mr. Editor? If the walking's good, or I can borrow an airship, I think I'll be down on a tour of inspection. Let us all pray earnestly for the little congregation which has labored so faithfully for years, that they may receive a fresh baptism of spiritual power. How important that each member shall be so yielded to his Master's will that their new house may never have anything enter to defile it, but may prove to be a place where people may confidently expect to renew their strength. When the gathering of the congregation from time to time means a subsequent going forth with added power for the performance of life's duties, then will men be drawn to Christ, and the coming of the Kingdom hastened.

P. S. Sailor.

98 Harvard St., Dorchester, Mass.

Wadley, Ala.

I have visited my work since our revival season, and I find same in very good condition. I think my churches will all go to conference with assessments paid, and a goodly increase in membership for the year. My work is in good spiritual condition with some exceptions. I have never seen a church just what it could be, but am glad to say we are striving to be better and do better. I am making a desperate effort to organize my young people. And if possible prepare them for aggressive work in the church. We organized at Beulah with twenty members, held one meeting since and added ten others to the roll.

This is indeed a very helpful society. The possibilities are great. We had a fine day last Sunday at McGuire's Chapel. Received three members into fellowship and secured thirteen names for our Christian Endeavor Society for that church. Will perfect the organization next first Sunday p.m. I have been re-elected to serve as pastor at Antioch and McGuire's Chapel for the ensuing year, but have not accepted either as yet. Have resigned at Beulah, after a pastorate of 17 years, and Rev. G. O. Lankford has been chosen as my successor. I pray God to richly bless the church and the incoming pastor.

I do not know just what work I will have for next year, but I don't see much prospect of rest. I trust I may do the best work of my life, if it be my Master's will. Our Conference will soon meet. Let us get ready for it, brethren. Let us undertake greater things for the Lord next year. Bro. Jas. L. Foster, the Superintendent of the Orphan's Home, will be with us, and of course we all feel glad. God bless him in his great work!

G. D. Hunt.

CONFERENCE PROGRAM.

This is directed especially to all who are interested in the coming session of the Western N. C. Christian Conference, and is a request to all who expect to prepare addresses to notify me as to the subjects, etc. Also any suggestions as to arrangement of program will be considered. Members of standing committees, chairmen especially, are requested to respond to this request. Brethren expecting to visit us will also please inform me. Please be prompt, as we wish to get out an interesting program, and desire to begin work on it soon.

R. L. Williamson, Secy.

APPOINTMENTS.

Rev. Jas. L. Foster will preach at the following churches in the Alabama Conference on dates mentioned: Mt. Zion, Thursday, Oct. 14, 11 a.m.; Antioch, Thursday night; New Hope, Friday, 15th, 11 a.m.

McGuire's Chapel, Saturday and Sunday, 11 a.m., 16th and 17th. Beulah, Sunday night. Pleasant Grove, Monday 11 a.m.. Christiana Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday during Conference, Corinth 5th Sunday in October.

G. D. Hunt.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE MISSION BOARD OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

Notice is hereby given that the annual meeting of the Mission Board of the Christian Church will be held in Dayton, Ohio, in the Mission Rooms, Christian Publishing Association Building, corner Fifth and Ludlow streets, beginning Wednesday, October 20, 1909, at ten o'clock a.m. and continuing until the business is transacted. All persons interested will please govern themselves accordingly.

Warren H. Denison, Sec.
Huntington, Ind., 327 W. High St.

"POUNDED."

Dear Bro. Atkinson: Please let me say that I was notified a few days since to go to the freight office. I did so and found a barrel of nice apples from Bro. W. D. Wall, and through the kindness of Sister M. G. Julard, a barrel of flour, sugar, coffee, etc., having received can fruits, butter, eggs, chickens, etc. I seldom go into this congregation without being remembered by some of the members. I truly thank them for their kindness. Yea, I cannot express my gratitude to them for their thoughtfulness of me. May God bless them abundantly and make me worthy of their confidence. I will say I have a good people to whom to minister, who have been very charitable during the illness of my two sons, Russel, who relapsed twice with typhoid fever, and who has been at home, recuperating and returned to Atlanta, Ga., and Luther, who was very ill also with typhoid fever. has recovered.

Yours with gratitude,
S. B. Klapp.

MARRIED.

Howell-Brinkley.

At the home of the bride's parents, in Nansemond Co., Va., Sept. 15, 1909, Miss Effie C. Brinkley became the bride of Mr. Paul T. Howell, of Suffolk, Va. Mr. Howell is bookkeeper for the Suffolk Peanut Co. Mr. D. C. Howell, brother of the groom was best man, and Miss Juliette Brinkley, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. The ring ceremony was used. The groom wore the conventional black, and the bride was attired in a navy-blue tailored traveling suit, with hat and gloves to match. She carried a white Bible in her hand. The decorations were white and green. Just before the bridal party entered the parlor, Mr. J. K. Hines of Suffolk, sang "Yours." Mrs. I. W. Johnson rendered the wedding marches, and played "Melody of Love" during the ceremony. There were many bridal presents. Immediately after the ceremony, amid a shower of rice and accompanied by the best wishes of many friends, the happy couple left for a northern tour. They will be at home in Suffolk, October 1st. Ceremony performed by the writer.

I. W. Johnson.

THE S. S. LESSON FOR OCT. 3, 1909.

Paul a Prisoner—The Arrest.

Acts 21:17-22-29.

Golden Text.—Suffer hardship with me, as a good soldier of Christ Jesus: 2 Tim. 2:3.

Time.—About a week after Paul's arrival at Jerusalem—soon before Pentecost, A. D. 58.

Place.—Near the temple at Jerusalem.

Persons.—James—the Lord's brother, probably not an apostle.

Jews from Asia.—Trophimus, an Ephesian, who had accompanied Paul to Jerusalem, and afterward became his companion.

The Chief Captain.—A Commander of a thousand men. Centurion—commander of a hundred men.

The Jews had listened to the marvelous story of Paul's conversion, but when he announced his intention to become a missionary to the Gentiles they were mad with rage. The whole idea was that the Jews were mad with foreign missions. Let us be charitable towards Paul and learn some practical truths from his career.

He was a "city mover," Vs. 30. It takes force to move a city. Your city is the spot where God placed you. What are you doing to move it?

He was misunderstood. The soldier deemed him a trouble maker from Egypt. The Jews from Asia were down upon Paul and the Roman puts him down a criminal.

Mob violence—some shouted one thing and some another. Paul was the only level headed fellow in the crowd. A mob is never sane in its operations. The mob spirit enters business and social affairs. It creeps into the churches. Only the spirit of Jesus Christ can save from mob violence.

Paul was proud of his native place. "I am a citizen of no mean city." It pays best to speak of the good qualities of anything and never run down.

The person always running down often has some error in his own life. If you dislike your business, make it famous.

Your own associates are your true friends rather than strangers.

G. W. T.

—The new tariff law admits spunk free of duty. All who lack may now supply themselves without much price.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

Founded 1844 by Elder Daniel W. Kerr.
Organ of the Southern Christian
Convention.

Entered at the postoffice at Greensboro, N. C., as second-class matter.

Terms of Subscription.

One Year .....$1.50
Six Months ..... .75
Four Months ..... .50
Advertising rates given on application.

J. O. Atkinson, Editor and Publisher.

Important Notice.—As readers will see, The Christian Sun is now published at Greensboro, N. C. The office of publication there is 302½ South Elm Street. Our editorial office, however, remains at Elon College, N. C., to which all letters and communications to the Editor should be addressed, as heretofore.

CONFERENCE CALENDER.

Virginia Valley Central, was held at Newport, Page Co., beginning Thursday, August 12th.

Others are to meet as follows:

Alabama.—Christiana Church, Tuesday, 10:00 a. m., Oct. 19. Rev. G. O. Lankford, Pres., Columbus, Ga., J. W. Payne, Secy., Wadley, Ala., R. F. D.3.

Ga. and Ala.—Richland, Ga., Tuesday, 7:30 p. m., Oct. 26. Rev. H. W. Elder, Pres., Richland, Ga., J. F. Hill, Jr., Sec., Box 64, Phoenix, Ala.

Eastern Virginia.—Franklin, Tuesday, Nov. 2. Rev. N. G. Newman, Pres., Holland, Va., Rev. W. D. Harvard, Secy.

Eastern N. C.—Sanford, Thursday, Nov. 11, 10 a. m. Rev. G. R. Underwood, Pres., Sanford, N. C., Rev. W. C. Wickler, Secy., Elon College, N. C.

Western N. C.—Graham, Tuesday, Nov. 16, 10:30 a. m. Rev. L. I. Cox, Pres., Elon College, N. C., Rev. R. L. Williamson, Secy., Ramseur, N. C.

N. C. and Va.—Belew's Creek, Tuesday, Nov. 23, 9 a. m. Prof. W. A. Harper, Pres., Elon College, N. C., Prof. W. P. Lawrence, Secy., Elon College, N. C.

THREE GREAT SERMONS.

There are three sermons of our Savior that deal with the weightiest topics that the mind and heart of man ever grappled with. The first of these is concerning the nature of God, and the character of true worship. The second is concerning the new birth, being horn of the Spirit—the highest and holiest privilege ever offered to fallen humanity—"Ye must be horn again." The third touches the matter of human sorrow, the depth of grief and bereavement, and has carried comfort and consolation, in the soul's darkest hours, to untold thousands of the sons and daughters of men. On these three topics the minds and hearts of men have dwelt for ages and ages—The Nature of God and How to worship Him; The Depravity and Fallen Condition of Man and How to Come into a Holier and Higher Estate; and The Source of Comfort In the Hour of Sorrow."

Volumes have been written, sermons delivered and untold arguments advanced touching these three vital topics.

And yet, the audience to which our Savior preached each of these His greatest sermons, consisted of just one person. How wonderful, how strange, how superhuman, how divine, to think that the first, on the Nature of God and the character of true worship, was delivered to one ignorant, stupid, fallen woman—the woman of Samaria at Jacob's well. O fortunate woman, O great and matchless utterance. This is strangely divine, and past the methods of man's comprehension. How such a sermon would have swayed the multitudes and possibly swept hundreds into the kingdom—as man reckons. But Lord Christ delivered it to an audience of one.

The second was to Nicodemus. The great and sublime doctrine of the New Birth must be presented. This, man must have or he shall never see the kingdom of God. Standing face to face with His favorite audience—just one person—Lord Christ delivers this heavenly message, this holiest of privileges, ever given to fallen and needy man.

The third likewise to one: the sister who was suffering with sorrowing and broken heart. "Lord, if thou hadst been here my brother had not died." Then listen: "I am the resurrection and the life: he that believeth in me shall never die." O sorrowing heart: O fortunate soul, to whom Christ comes in the hour of bereavement and grief.

All three of these incomparable sermons and deliverances were given in the presence of just one, direct to one.

Our Savior's favorite audiences seemed to have been one. This is the method of winning souls to Christ, one by one.

PERSONAL WORK IN SOUL-WINNING.

Dr. H. Clay Trumbull was never a preacher in the generally accepted term. He did not take out elder's orders; but the D. D. degree was conferred upon him because of his great work in teaching the Bible and winning souls to Christ, one by one. His record in this respect is remarkable and sublime. His eyes were ever open, his hand was ever ready, to seek opportunity to lead men to Christ. Dr. Trumbull's constant surprise was that "God was ever preparing the way for us" to do this personal work; "and that those whom we thought indifferent or reluctant are," in very many instances, "eagerly awaiting a word from us." In his experience he gives many striking illustrations of this fact. We select one which is only one of the hundreds in Mr. Trumbull's busy life:

"For a long time I and my family lived at a boarding house in a New England city. There was, during that period, a season of special religious interest, or a general revival, in that city. There sat at the same table with us a gentleman and his wife, who, as we knew, were not confessing Christians, or church-members, and had never expressed to us any particular interest in the revival movement in that city. One noon-day I suggested to my wife that we ought to speak to our table neighbors personally on the subject, and urge them to surrender themselves to Christ. As she agreed with me as to our duty, I proposed that while I would go up to the gentleman's place of business and have a loving talk with him, she should seek out the wife in her room, and plead with her for Christ. This was agreed to. Then we kneeled together and asked God's blessings upon our efforts, and on those in whose spiritual welfare we were interested.

The gentleman was a bank officer. I called there just after bank hours, knowing that he would then be disengaged. As I asked him for an interview, he invited me into the director's room, and closed the door. When I spoke of my interest in him and purpose in calling he burst into tears, and said he was so glad I had come. Then he told me how he had longed, day after day, for some one to speak to him on this subject. When men came in who were prominent and active in the prayer-meetings, he had tried, in vain, to lead the conversation to the point of personal work, but had failed. (How adroit some Christians are in avoiding the subject of personal religion in business places and in business hours!) I found this man longing to be helped into the kingdom, and glad to learn the way. That was an ever-to-be remembered conversation for Christ.

When I went back to the boarding house, at the close of the afternoon, my wife told me, with a cheerful face, of her experience. After my leaving her, as she was preparing to go to the room of the wife she had on her heart, there was a knock at her door. As she opened the door that wife came in, and, hursting into tears, she asked if her friend wouldn't help her to Christ. She had longed to be spoken to by some one, and now she could bear this no longer. The two wives went on their knees together, and they rose with glad, grateful hearts.

That husband and wife soon stood up and confessed their faith together, as they connected themselves with the church. They were active for Christ in all the years until they entered into rest. And their children were prominent and useful in Christ's service after them." (Told in Mr. Trumbull's book, 'Taking Men Alive,' pp. 141 and 142).

ELON COLLEGE NOTES.

—The annual recital by Miss Urquhart, teacher of expression and of physical culture, which was given in the College auditorium last Saturday evening, was listened to by a large audience. Miss Urquhart was well received. Her audience was highly pleased with her, and she thus made a fine stroke for her department. She was accompanied in the recital by Misses Pitt and Barnes of the Music Department.

—Rev. Dr. J. O. Atkinson preached from the college pulpit at eleven o'clock Sunday. It was one of his able, well-delivered sermons to a large and appreciative audience. This was followed by the Communion of the Lord's Supper impressively administered by Rev. J. W. Wellons. The church here has called Dr. Atkinson as pastor for another year with Rev. J. W. Wellons as co-pastor.

—Messrs. W. F. Warren and W. W. Elder represented the Elon College Y. M. C. A. in the District Y. M. C. A. Convention held at Guilford College last Friday, Saturday, and Sunday. They returned full of praise for the Convention and for the very hospitable entertainment with which Guilford took care of her guests.

—Seven young men, most of them sophomores and juniors, were suspended from college one month, last week, for participating in hazing two new students. All, however, were allowed to remain on condition that they sign a written obligation to abstain from all forms of hazing in the future and to use their influence to keep others from engaging in such.

—In a match game of tennis between Elon and Bingham School, on an Elon Court last Monday, the visiting team won by a score 6 to 0 in the first game and 8 to 6 in the second. Messrs. Barney and J. S. Lincoln were the Elon players, and Messrs. Long and Campbell Bingham's.

—The Social Committee of the Organized Sunday School Class gave a delightful social entertainment at Mrs.

J. O. Atkinson's Friday evening, Mrs. Atkinson being chairman of the Committee.

—Professor and Mrs. Amick spend Saturday and Sunday at Liberty with friends. W. P. Lawrence.

NORFOLK LETTER.

The Third Church had no preaching services Sunday. Three new scholars were added to the Sunday school, Prof. S. M. Smith, and his two little girls whom we were glad to have with us, in our Sunday school work. Prof. Smith has purchased a home on Thirty-second St. We are glad to have him and his family located permanently so near us.

The Tidewater Sunday-school Association met with the Christian Church at Lambert's Point, Sunday afternoon. It was well attended. President, Rev. M. W. Butler, who attended the interdenominational Sunday school Association at Charlottesville, held about the first of June, read a very interesting report. The various reports from the Sunday schools of this section showed a gratifying increase in the membership, though it was during the time when Sunday school attendance is hardest to keep up. Prof. Smith delivered an interesting address on "Well organized Sunday Schools." We were glad to see present at the meeting, Brother Norfleet from Franklin.

The next meeting will be held at Rosemont church, the last Sunday afternoon in December.

Portsmouth Christian Church announce the laying of the corner stone for their new building on Thursday the 30th, at three-thirty o'clock in the afternoon. The ceremony will be in charge of the Masons, and Dr. W. W. Staley of Suffolk will deliver the address of the occasion.

The Third Church has nothing definite to report, in the way of a pastor.

At a business meeting of the Memorial Temple yesterday, a unanimous call was extended to Rev. MeD. Howsare, of Versailles, Ohio, to become pastor of the church. We feel that the Temple is to be congratulated on securing the services of so able a man as Brother Howsare is reported to be. He, together with his wife, who is at present a member of the Mission Board of the A. C. C. will make a valuable addition to the Temple and its work in particular, and the Christian cause in the South, in general.

I hope that many birthday banks for the Porto Rico Building Fund were opened yesterday, and found to contain not a few dollars. It being the last Sunday in the quarter, and the request is that the banks be opened quarterly, and the report made to the treasurer, Dr. J. G. Bishop. Please do not send any money to me, but make remittance direct to Dr. Bishop, as he is the authorized party to receive it. I hope that every one will make their reports, and not wait until the end of the year, but make their reports quarterly, that it may be encouragement to others, and we may know how many are interested in the cause.

My dear brother, if you have not done so yet, please do not fail to have a birthday bank ready by next Sunday, and begin with the first of the coming quarter. Do not be afraid that it will injure your work, but try it for at least, one quarter, if you are not willing to try it for an indefinite period, and see how easily it works. J. W. Manning.

WRITING HOME.

"My boy," writes a white-haired mother to her son, a busy man in a distant state, "write home often. You do not realize what your letters are to me, and how long it is between them."

No, he had never realized it, and unhappily there are many absent sons and daughters who need a similar reminder. They would be indignant at the suggestion of waning filial devotion, but in the stress of business, in the society of new friends, in the happiness of a new home circle, how rarely they spare an hour for a good long letter to the aging mother in the old home—the loving mother whose heartache, as the passing days fail to bring the longed-for letter, is one of the most pathetic tragedies of old age.

The decline of the letter-writing habit of an earlier generation has often been deplored, but this feature of the decline can neither be excused nor defended. The post-card substitute for letters is little less than a mockery when the cards are sent to the mother who wants, and should have, so much more than that.

As youth lives in and for the future, so does old age always look back over the slope as it nears the summit. The parent is wrapped up in the son and daughter; but as the son grows to manhood and the daughter to womanhood, they are absorbed in the plans and the processes of building the structure of the coming years. Such is the law of life and the basis of all progress, but it is a pitiful thing when the son and daughter fail to keep in mind their obligation to the loyalty and love of their parents.

Blessed are the absent ones who write long and frequent letters to the old home. Soon, they cannot know how soon, the precious privilege will no longer be theirs.—Youth's Companion.

THE CHRISTIAN ORPHANAGE DEPARTMENT.

CHILDREN'S CORNER.

The Band of Cousins.

Jas. L. Foster, Sec., Elon College, N. C.

"He that hath pity on the poor lendeth unto the Lord, and his good deed will He pay him again."—Prov. 19:17.

Reported last week	$3,736.43
Monthly Dues:
Newman Denton	$.10
S. E. Denton, Jr.	.10
Hubert Neville	.10
Blannie Franks	.05
Bettie Franks	.05
Dwight Franks	.05
Noma Franks	.05
Numa Franks	.05
Monthly S. S. Offering:
Rosemont, Va.	1.27
Shallow Ford, N. C.	1.11
Timber Ridge, W. Va.	1.49
Special Offering:
Miss Beulah Fowler	8.00
Am't. 35th week	12.42
Total	$3,748.85

THE ASPEN LEAF.

It is said that there is nothing in nature so delicately poised as the aspen leaf. The quaking aspen is the last thing in all of nature's realms that indicates the passing breeze. It is so hung that the gentlest zephyr causes it to tremble; it is extremely sensitive to frost, and when it falls the first chilling breath of winter is at hand.

The aspen life resembles the infant life of humanity, in that the latter is moved and controlled wholly by exterior influences. As the child's environments make for good or evil, the tender life feels the effect. Like the leaf, too, childhood is susceptible to every chilling blast, and the little soul records every passing breath. The lightest frost bites and gnaws until it falls.

By word or example can the young life be poisoned. The deadly seed implanted takes root and maturity gives up a harvest that destroys the Creator's noblest handiwork. But listen. It is said that the aspen leaf, responsive to the lightest breath, hangs on to the bough in spite of the wildest storm that blows while it retains life. Give a child a pure and wholesome start; instill into its life the highest and noblest precepts, and it will cling to these when the pitfalls of shame and degradation yawn widest in later years. Yes, there is a lesson in the aspen leaf.—Asheville Citizen.

My Dear Children:—

We are all here together again for the first time in about two months. Lela Cannada had a pleasant visit to relatives in Durham, Annie and Pearl Knott to friends in Apex, and the general conversation about the house now, while the work goes on, is "What I did and where I went." Another boy has been added to our family, Herbert Womach of Chapel Hill, N. C., which makes 30 in all.

Mrs. Kissell says the flour in a full barrel is emptied in a week's time now, so wake up, you consins and friends, let your contributions come in liberally so that the barrel will not stay empty but can be replenished when needed.

These cool, cloudy days the wood pile looks inviting and the whirl of the saw makes sweet music, for we realize that very soon indeed that will be our greatest source of comfort.

Mrs. J. J. Flowers of Auburn, N. C. sends a top for a quilt this week. She is an aged sister but very much interested in the Orphanage.

Very cordially,
Uncle Jim.

Pine Apple, Ala., Sept. 14, 1909.

Dear Uncle Jim:

Four years ago to-day I (Newman) wrote my first letter, and this is my forty-eighth one. I wish mother had kept them all, but I shall read them, if God will, in the Elon College Library some day.

I had a goat party on my birthday, and such a jolly time we had riding, and eating ice-cream afterwards.

Much love to all. We send our dimes.

John Newman Denton,
S. E. Denton, Jr.

And a faithful little writer you have been ever since, Newman. May you and little brother be faithful even to the forty-eighth thousand.

Raleigh, N. C., Sept. 21, 1909

Dear Uncle Jim:

We will write and send our dues for Sept. We sent for four months the last time we wrote which was $1, and failed seeing it in the Corner. Did you get it?

Your nephews and nieces,

Blannie Franks,
Bettie Franks,
Dwight Franks,
Noma Franks,
Numa Franks.

Look in Sun of Aug. 18th and you will find the dollar credited 20cts. each. Thank you very much.

Chapel Hill, N. C., Sept. 17, '09.

Dear Uncle Jim:

I will send my dues for Sept., 10 cts.

I enjoyed my visit to the orphanage very much. My school will begin Monday.

With much love to you and the cousins,

Your nephew,
Hubert Neville.

Please write every month, Hubert, for we miss the children's dear letters when they do not come regularly.

When in Burlington call at
T. H. STROUD'S

Store for DRUGS, SOFT DRINKS, and anything desired in drugs and Toilet Articles.

To Drive Out Malaria and Build up the System.

Take the Old Standard GROVE'S PASTELESS CHILL TONIC. You know what you are taking. The formula is plainly printed on every bottle, showing it is simply Quinine and Iron in a tasteless form, and the most effectual form. For grown people and children. 50c.

Vick's Croup and Pneumonia Salve

For Croup It relieves in 15 minutes, sends stimulating, relaxing vapors down the throat with every breath, and also stimulates surface of chest.

For Pneumonia Colds, Bronchitis, Hoarseness, it has no equal in promptly arresting these dangerous affections. Nips all congestion and inflammation in the bud. It's the great Emergency Remedy. Have it ready.

All druggists, or by mail.
VICK'S FAMILY REMEDIES CO.
Greensboro, N. C.
For free sample specify department No. 4.

WANTED—Bookkeepers, Stenographers.

MORE BANKERS in the 16 States in which Jno. F. Draughon's 30 Colleges are located, indorse these Business Colleges than indorse ALL others. IF YOU want the EVIDENCE and want to RISE to the $10-a-day class, ask for FREE catalogue. Lessons BY MAIL if preferred. Draughon's Practical Business College, Raleigh, N. C.; A. M. FISHER, Mgr

RALEIGH & SOUTHPORT RY. CO.

P. M. A. M.	STATIONS.	A. M. P. M.
1:15 6:00	Raleigh	8:30 3:45
1:54 6:24	McCullers	7:52 3:03
2:11 6:59	Willow Sp'gs	7:37 2:45
2:23 7:14	Varina	7:27 2:34
2:35 7:26	Fuquay Sp'gs	7:19 2:25
2:55 7:45	Kipling	7:00 2:05
3:15 8:05	Lillington	6:41 1:44
3:41 8:28	Linden	6:15 1:17
4:30 9:15	Fayetteville	5:30 12:30

JNO. A. MILLS, Pres. and Gen. Mgr.

MEDICINE.

We prepare as good medicine, the very best medicine that the finest, freshest, most potent drugs and chemicals will produce when carefully and skilfully compounded by an expert prescription man—just such medicine as your physician means that you should have, medicine of the utmost possible effectiveness. May we prepare your medicine?

FREEMAN DRUG CO.,
Burlington, N. C.

THE RULER OF HIS SPIRIT.

Men talk about good nature and bad nature, good dispositions and bad dispositions, good temper and bad temper; but some are misled by the use of these terms. A hot temper is not necessarily a bad temper, a mild temper is not always a good temper, and no temper at all would be a calamity. There are a righteous indignation, a holy anger, and a divine wrath. The soul without temper would be like a watch-spring or a razor without temper, useless. Some men would be greatly improved by a considerable increase of temper. But intense natures, like razors and axes and other edged tools, are attended with great perils, and must be handled with great wisdom and skill. The thing to be sought is a steady and high control of the spirit. "He that ruleth his spirit is greater than he that taketh a city."

The Bible warns men over and over again against anger, thereby making it plain that it is one of the most common and dangerous evils. History relates that one of the kings of England would roll on the floor and bite the dust in rage when things did not go to suit him. Some people are so inflammable that a word, a look, a slight, a gesture or a jest will quickly awaken in them an uncontrollable tempest of passion. In some cases an evil temper is inherited, in other cases it is the result of self-indulgence, and in still other cases it is produced by bodily infirmity.

Sir John Lubbock says, "Our own anger indeed does us more harm than the things which make us angry; and we suffer much more from the anger and vexation which we allow acts to raise in us than we do from the acts themselves at which we are angry or vexed." Outbursts of anger impair health. We have known persons to be put to bed by a tempest of rage and to be ill for several days. Of course, they get over it, but they do not get over the nervous effects of these spells so quickly.

The action of the intellect is hindered by violent passion. As a drunken man cannot speak and act rationally, so one who is intoxicated with wrath cannot speak and act prudently. The Bible uses strong terms when it says, "The fool rageth," "Anger resteth in the bosom of fools." What childish things men and women do and say when they are angry. Their friends excuse them on the ground that they are in the heat of passion. They are not themselves.

Anger often destroys the peace of the home. Many a family has been broken up by the evil passions of its members, and many a mother has planted sharp thorns in her own pillow by tempests of rage against her own children. These evil tempers separate friends and create feuds which trouble a whole community for generations. We have painful illustrations of this in certain quarters of our own country, where family feuds have existed for many years; and often the smoldering fires burst forth and end in bloody tragedies.

Anger often leads to murder. Two children quarreled over a toy. They grew more and more angry until they clinched and struggled as if to slay each other. One of them drew a knife and plunged the blade into the heart of his companion, inflicting a fatal wound. One hour before they were playmates, happy and gay. In a single hour their relations were so changed that one was a murderer and his comrade was his pale victim at his feet. They did not mean it. They were beside themselves. Prof. Webster did not mean to kill Dr. Parkman. It was an insane act prompted by a towering rage.

Is there any cure for this evil malady? Some do not try to remedy the evil. They say it is no use. Can the Ethiopian change his skin or the leopard his spots? An ungovernable temper is natural. So it is, but many natural things can be remedied and ought to be cured. It is natural for fields to bring forth thorns and briars and noxious weeds, and they will do it if they are left to nature. The farmer interferes with eccentricities of nature. Others say, "We have inherited an ungovernable temper. It is in our blood. We cannot help it." Many have inherited evils which they must get rid of. One has inherited a headache, but she can get rid of it. Another has inherited a tendency to tuberculosis, but by proper living he may escape the awful malady. One has inherited a poor memory, but by proper training he may have a good memory. It is our duty to interfere with the ways of nature sometimes. Some things are in the blood which may be eliminated from the blood.

Grace is the remedy. "Ye must be born again." We have not yet touched the limits of grace. The power of grace is wonderful. Many a soul with a violent temper has found strength to overcome. Grace is more than a match for all our sin. If you were born with an uncontrollable temper, you may be born again, and the grace of the new man will overcome the sin of the old. From your earthly father you have a bad disposition, but from your heavenly Father you may have a good spirit, an even temper, a gentle disposition, even "the divine nature."

Plenteous grace with thee is found,

Grace to cover all my sin;

Let the healing stream abound;

Make and keep me pure within.

—N. Y. Christian Advocate.

RAISE MONEY FOR YOUR CHURCH.

We offer you an easy method. Send us a photograph of your church or your pastor, and we will send you 500 high grade post cards, with photograph on each card, and scripture verse if desired. Sell these cards at 10 cents each. When sold, remit us $20.00 and keep the balance. You can do this in a week. We will return photograph.

LAKE SHORE SUPPLY CO.,
225 Broad St., St. Joe, Michigan.

DO YOU WANT TO GO TO COLLEGE? If so we can help you. We have already put hundreds through college by means of our plan. Write today for full information regarding our offer of a free scholarship in any school or college. Address, Robert J. Sherlock, 29-31 East 22nd Street, New York City.

FALL AND WINTER.

The time for fall and winter gardening is here and you need garden tools. We can supply you at lowest prices.

Poultry Wire.

The best assorted stock in the county. Four different styles and weight.

Come and See.

Remember plumbing and bath room fixtures, a speciality. You will find us on Davis St. in the new building near Post Office.

BURLINGTON HARDWARE CO.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup

Has been used for over SIXTY-FIVE YEARS by MILLIONS of MOTHERS for their CHILDREN WHILE TEETHING, with PERFECT SUCCESS. It SOOTHES the CHILD, SOFTENS the GUMS, ALLAYS the PAIN, CURES WIND COLIC, and is the best remedy for DIARRHŒA. Sold by Druggists in every part of the World. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Guaranteed under the Food and Drug Act, June 30th, 1906. Serial Number 1098. AN OLD AND WELL TRIED REMEDY.

10¢ Buys This Large Handsome Nickel Trimmed Stove Range

without warming closet or reservoir. With high warming closet, perfect nickel reservoir, just as shown in cut, $17.35; large, square, oven, wondrous bakor, 6 cooking holes, body made of cold rolled steel, Duplex grate, burns wood or coal. Handsome nickel trimmings, highly polished.

OUR TERMS are the most liberal ever made. You can pay after you receive the range. You can take it into your home, use it 30 days. If you don't find it exactly as represented, the biggest bargain you ever saw equal to stove retailed for double our price, return it to us. We'll pay freight both ways.

Write Today for our beautifully illustrated Stove Range Catalog No. S164; a postal card will do. Don't buy until you get it.

MARVIN SMITH CO., CHICAGO, ILL.

FREE DEAFNESS CURE.

A remarkable offer by one of the leading ear specialists in this country, who will send two months' medicine free to prove his ability to cure Deafness, Head Noises, and Catarrh. Address Dr. G. M. Branaman, 1100 Walnut St., Kansas City Mo.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEPARTMENT.

Exponent of the Young People's Convention,
Christian Church, South.

atchword: A Christian Endeavor Society in Every Church; Teacher-Training and Organized Classes in Every Sunday School

Devoted to the interest and advancement of Sunday Schools, Teacher-Training, Organized Classes, Cradle Roll, Home Department, Christian Endeavor, Missionary Societies, Temperance Societies, Aid Societies, Civic Righteousness.

W. A. HARPER, Editor and Field Secretary, Elon College, N. C.

[All notes and contributions for this Department should be sent to W. A. Harper, Elon College, N. C., who extends the Church at large a cordial invitation to furnish him with any note of interest to our Young People, particularly information in regard to any forward steps, new movement, or new organization looking to progressive and effective service. All items under this Department not signed are by its Editor and Field Secretary.]

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR—WHAT?

The dictionary defines endeavor after this fashion: "To exert physical strength or intellectual power for the accomplishment of an object; to try; to essay; to attempt." Christian Endeavor, therefore, would mean and does, to exert our powers to act as becomes Christians, to try, to essay, to attempt to do as Christ would have us do.

The particular religious organization which makes it its business to help the young Christian live and act as he should is appropriately known as the Christian Endeavor Society. The first C. E. Society was organized Feb. 2, 1881, in Williston Congregational Church, Portland, Me., by Dr. Francis E. Clark. During the years since that day the Society has abundantly demonstrated its right to be and has spread around the globe. Recognizing its value our Young People's Convention adopted as the first clause of its motto: A Christian Endeavor Society in every Church. Let us make this motto a reality!

A Christian Endeavor Society on its organic side consists of the young people of the church and community who may be or ought to be engaged in religious work. The Church members among these young people are known as active members and the non-Church members as associate members of the Society, when they have consented to join. There are appropriate pledges for both active and associate members published by the United Society of C. E., or you may write your own pledges and suit the wording to your local needs and conditions, since uniformity is not essential in this matter. The pledges once signed, the organization is effected by the election of officers and chairmen of committees. A leader is appointed for the next time of meeting and the Society is at work. Every member of the society is given a place on a committee and assigned a definite religious task to perform. The Society keeps the young people in the Church by giving them something to do for Christ and others, and by relieving them of the humiliating necessity of having every thing done for them.

A New Society Organized.

Rev. C. E. Newman, in the joy of noble service to be rendered by the young people of his Henderson Church after the organization there of a Christian Endeavor Society, thus writes:

"Henderson, N. C., Sept. 15, 1909.

Dear Brother:—We completed permanent organization of C. E. Society tonight with eleven members and twenty present. We will enroll, I think, twenty-five in next month. Hope to organize at Liberty next Sunday. It will supply a great need in my churches.

Fraternally, C. E. Newman."

A. C. E. Folder.

C. A. Hines, Esq., Greensboro, N. C., has kindly mailed us the C. E. folder of our Walker Avenue Church of that city. This folder is neatly printed and folded and on the outside front cover in display type has the following: "The Christian Endeavor Society. 1909-10. Officers, Committees, and Leaders. Walker Avenue Christian Church, Greensboro, N. C." The two inside pages contain the names of the leaders for the prayer-meetings from September, 1909, to June (inclusive) 1910. At the bottom of the second inside page we read the following note: "If the leader appointed cannot be present, he should obtain some other member to act in his place." On the outside back cover is given a list of the officers and committees, from which we gather the following interesting data:

President, C. A. Hines.

Vice-President, W. B. Truitt.

Recording Secretary, Elza D. Smith.

Corresponding Secretary, L. M. Clymer.

Treasurer, Miss Maude Perkins.

Committee Chairmen.

Executive—C. A. Hines.

Lookout—Miss Maude Davie.

Temperance—G. W. Ellington.

Missionary—Mrs. J. W. Bolton.

Calling—Miss Venie Truitt.

Social—R. S. Petty.

Music—Mrs. John R. Foster.

Flower—Miss Bronna Clymer.

We have quoted thus at length from this folder because we like the idea and happen to know that it has been used for several years with success in this live church. We would be glad to have other C. E. plans from our other workers all over the South.

What have you done about that Teacher-Training Class, my brother? It will wake you up in Sunday-school work, if you give it half a chance. Will you?

Christian Endeavor has revived many a fossil church, put life into many a valley of dried bones. Shall it have a chance to prove itself in your church?

"C. B. C." Organized Class.

Last fall there was organized at Elon College, immediately after our Preparing the Teacher, Vol. I, was published, the first Teacher-Training Class in our Southern Christian Convention. That class, taught by your editor, did good work and is now doing good work under Dr. J. U. Newamm, who kindly took it in charge to allow its former teacher opportunity to organize a citizen's class in the Elon College Sunday-school.

On Sept. 12 a dozen citizens met and discussed the matter in a preliminary way. On Sept. 19 the class organized, with twenty-two charter members, adopting the name "C. B. C. Organized Class." The officers are M. A. Atkinson, President; D. W. Brown, Vice President; Miss Mamie Tate, Secretary; Mrs. J. C. McAdams, Assistant Secretary; Miss Linda Barnes, Treasurer; Miss Mary Lou Pitt, Organist. The chairmen of the committees are as follows: J. P. Huffman, Devotional; Mrs. M. A. Atkinson, Membership; Mrs. J. O. Atkinson, Social. The class has started off well and bids fair to do well. Let all the brotherhood pray for us that our best may be done.

C. E. TOPIC FOR OCTOBER 3—A FEW SUGGESTIONS.

Life Lessons for Me from the Book of Ephesians: Eph. 4:1-6, 25-32.

MONTHLY CONSECRATION MEETING.

Let the Lookout Committee lead and let them before the meeting plan for a rally, personally visiting every member and insisting that he be present and take part, suggesting, if thought best, what part is to be taken.

The Leader.—The leader will desire to speak in general terms of the epistle to the Ephesians, giving a few such facts as these: Written by Paul at Rome, perhaps 63 A. D., while he was a prisoner there; Paul has lived at Ephesus three years, preaching in the synogogue and then in the school of Tyrannus; the letter contains no personalities and was an open letter to his friends in Ephesus and intended to be passed from one to another; the key word of the letter is unity, first with God, second of the Jewish and Gentile sections of the Church, then of one member with another.

Analysis of Ephesians.—The leader or some one appointed by him would do well to display on a chart an outline of the Epistle and to have the Endeavorers follow him with open Bibles as he calls off the various divisions and comments briefly (some may even care to note them on the margin of their Bibles.) Such an outline would be:

The Epistle to the Ephesians.

- I. Address and Salutation, 1:1-2.
  - II. The Glory of the Church of Christ, 1:3-3:21.
    - A. The Ground and Goal of the Church, 1:3-23.
    - B. The Extent and Mission of the Church, 2:1-22.
      1. Reminder of the Previous Condition and the Glorious New Creation, 2:1-10.
      2. Extolling Comparison of the Previous and Present Condition, 2:11-22.
    - C. The Office and Service of the Church, 3:1-21.
      1. The Office in and for this Church, 3:1-13.
      2. The Apostle's Petition with an Exhortation for the church, 3:14-19.
      3. Conclusion in form of Doxology, 3:20-21.
  - III. The Spirit Ruling in the Church of Christ, 4:1-6:20.
    - A. Theme of the Whole Part, 4:1-3.
    - B. Three Motives for Unity in the Spirit, 4:4-6.
    - C. General Christian Duties, 4:17-5:21.
      1. The New and the Old Man, 4:17-24.
      2. Special Traits of the New Walk, 4:25-32.
      3. Three Points of View of the New Walk, 5:1-14.
      4. Exhortation to Walk Rightly, 5:15-21.
    - D. Special Christian Duties in Domestic Relations, 5:22-6:9.
- (Continued on page sixteen).

VICK'S CROUP AND PNEUMONIA SALVE

This splendid remedy, popular for fifteen years, is endorsed by physicians everywhere—over 300 in North Carolina alone. It has saved thousands of lives—children with croup and whooping cough, adults with pneumonia, bronchitis, hoarseness, etc.; and it soon relieves all congestion and inflammation of the throat and air passages. It draws out ordinary remedies, giving off vapors that are Antiseptic, Stimulating and Cooling, thus doing what medicinal treatment which loosens the phlegm, unlocks the congestion, as liquid medicines cannot possibly do, and at the same time the application to the skin relieves the nervous system, reducing inflammation and aiding the blood in its fight against the invading germs. Get it now. 2c., 5c., and $1.00. At all druggists or by mail from VICK'S FAMILY REMEDIES CO., Greensboro, N. C. For free sample specify department No. 2.

The "Gibbes" Patented Gana Edger

By folding back the hinged arch the saws can be sharpened without removing from the mandrel. The most convenient edger on the market.

Can be changed from right to left hand in ten minutes. Saws instantly adjustable, permitting lumber to be ripped full or scant. Large bearings, strong and substantial frame. A veritable time and money saver—ahead of all others. Send for catalog.

GIBBES MACHINERY CO., Box 1260, Columbia, S. C.
Sellers of "Gibbes' Guaranteed Machinery"—All Kinds,—All Value.

Books for Every Christian Home.

Do you know why you are a member of the Christian Church?
Do you understand what the church stands for and teaches?
If not, send and get a copy of the "Principles and Government of the Christian Church," just revised and greatly improved by order of the Southern Christian Convention.

Cloth binding per copy, post paid 50 cts.
Limp Cloth binding per copy, post paid 35 cts.
Paper binding per copy, post paid 25 cts.

Handsome Persian Morocco, with name in gilt $1.25.

The Southern Christian Convention also Ordered Another Book Published, PREPARING THE SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER TO TEACH. Edited by Profs. W. A. Harper, W. C. Wicker and W. P. Lawrence.

The book is neatly printed and bound and is invaluable to the Sunday-school worker, 236 pages.

Paper binding per copy, postpaid, 60 cts.
Cloth binding per copy, postpaid, 90 cts.
To Sunday-schools, paper binding 50 cts. cloth 75 cts.

Have You Read That Thrilling and Inspiring Story of His Own Life, MOTHER'S ANSWERED PRAYER, BY REV. P. H. FLEMING, D. D.?

Cloth binding, postpaid 55 cts.

All these books should be in your home. Order at once
For sale by, THE CHRISTIAN SUN, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

IT'S INTERESTING

to hear the different comments on different Shoes. All shoes have some good points; Style or comfort or service.

WALK-OVER SHOES

have all the good points; style and comfort and service and their price is the best point of all. $3.50, 4.00 & 5.00.

Foster Shoe Co., Burlington, N. C.

Dry Goods, Notions, Ready Made Clothing.

When in Burlington visit our large store, supplied always with the very best and latest styles and novelties.

Our Dry Goods are of latest designs, and our Ready Made Clothing cannot be surpassed in quality and price.

Come, See, Be Convinced.

B. A. SELLARS & SONS. BURLINGTON, N. C.

D I E L.*Fitch.

Departed this life at his home in Burlington, N. C., Sept. 15, 1909, Thomas L. Fitch, in the 19th year of his age. He had been in poor health for some months, but always spoke cheerfully about his condition, and asked to be helped up just a short time before he fell asleep. He was a member of the Burlington Christian Church, having joined there when he confessed Christ a few years ago. I believe he loved his church, and that he was deeply interested in the cause of Christ, his Lord and Savior. The funeral services were conducted by the writer at Bethel, Caswell County, N. C. and his body laid to rest in the church cemetery there. To the bereaved, we offer the consolation of the religion of Christ, our Redeemer, who loved us and gave Himself for us.

P. H. Fleming.

McPherson.

Clyde McPherson, the six year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayland McPherson, died at his home near Liberty, N. C., Aug. 17, 1909. Scarlet fever was the disease that caused his death. Every thing was one that human hands could do to prolong little Clyde's life, but all in vain. Jesus had called him from an earthly home to a Heavenly Home, and the physicians and the kind hands of father and mother could not keep him. Jesus loved him best. His body was laid to rest in the cemetery at Pleasant Hill. The burial service was conducted by Bro. Reese. May the Lord bless and comfort the bereaved.

W. L. Wells.

Phillips.

Whereas, God, in his infinite wisdom, has removed from our midst, our beloved and highly respected brother Rufus Phillips, Sr., and whereas, we wish to give some expression of our love and esteem of his life, and deep regret and sorrow caused by the demise of "Uncle Rufus," (as he was lovingly called), who lived to the ripe age of 79 years, and departed this life May 4, 1909, and who leaves a wife, four daughters, and one son, who were ever ready to administer to his every need or call, day or night during his long illness of twenty-five years, and who so deeply mourn his death.

Resolved 1st,—That Beulah Christian Church has lost one of its most loyal members, ever faithful and ready to counsel, especially the young men, to a better and higher Christian life; the community has lost a peaceable, kind and good neighbor, one who was ever ready to help in time of trouble or need, with his acknowledged good judgment and timely advice, and means, in a case of charity; the wife a true, Christian companion, and devoted husband; the children a kind, loving, affectionate father, whose life and counsel was ever to them a benediction.

Resolved 2nd,—That we bow, yet weeping, in humble submission to Him who doeth all things well.

Resolved 3rd,—That a copy of these resolutions be sent The Christian Sun for publication, one be spread on our church minutes, and one be sent the family of the deceased.

Done by order of the Church in Conference.

C. W. Carter,
Charles Culpepper,
J. M. Welch,
Committee.

Carpenter.

At his home near Ebenezer Christian Church, Wake County, North Carolina, Bro. J. N. Carpenter departed this life, Thursday, Sept. 16, 1909, being 67 years and 26 days old.

Bro. Carpenter united with Ebenezer Church Sept. 6, 1834, and was for a long time superintendent of the Sunday school and clerk of the church.

Bro. Carpenter was married to Miss Mary Butts Nov. 23, 1868. He leaves a wife and seven children to mourn their loss. He was buried in the family graveyard at his home. Burial services were conducted by G. M. Jackson, of the M. E. Church.

The esteem in which Bro. Carpenter was held by the church and community was fully shown by the concourse of people who followed him to his grave.

May He who doeth all things well comfort the bereaved ones and at last reunite them in that land of love.

M. J. Carlton.

Bradshaw.

Mrs. Camilla C. Bradshaw died at her home near Zuni, Va., August 24, 1909, aged 32 years. In early life she united with Mt. Carmel Christian Church. After her marriage she united with Tueker Swamp Baptist Church where she remained a member until her death. She leaves a mother, one sister and a sorrowing husband who are saddened by her death. Funeral services were conducted at Mt. Carmel by the writer.

Cornwall.

At his home near Dory, Va., Sept. 13, 1909, Mr. Alexander Scott Cornwall aged 73 years, 9 months and 8 days.

He leaves eight living children; three by his first wife, who was Miss Helon Branch, and five by his last wife, who was Miss Cora Lee Bailey. His last wife also survives him. He had been greatly afflicted with rheumatism for years, not having been able to walk at all for some time. He was a good neighbor, and strictly honest in his dealings with his fellowmen.

Funeral services were conducted at the home by the writer.

R. H. Peel.

"The Oxford Teachers' par excellence

JUST ISSUED!

OXFORD

Teachers' Bibles and
S. S. Scholars' Bibles

With New 20th Century Helps ar ranged in One Alphabetical Order.

THE HELPS

The Christian Advocate, Nashville, says: "The helps are real helps. Unlike those in many of the cheap Bibles, they are not simply thrown together in hodge-podge fashion, but represent the freshest and ablest work of the foremost modern scholars."

ADDRESS

Phone

Bible is the Bible of the World."

NOW READY!

SIX NEW EDITIONS

OXFORD

Black Faced Type
BIBLES

Three on Oxford White Paper. Three on the famous Oxford India Paper.

Pearl 32mo. A wonderful clear type in a small-size book.

Minion 16mo. Ready October
1907. A model hand Bible.

Brevier 16mo. Large type in small compass. "A quart in a pint measure."

"The new Bible just published by the Oxford Press is, without doubt, the finest product of the kind ever given to the public."

ASK FOR THE

OXFORD EDITION

REMEMBER: That we guarantee satisfaction and sell to you cheaper than the publisher and dealers do. Our business is by mail and express and prices quoted are the prices of goods delivered to you. We can furnish you the Oxford, or the Holman Teacher's Bible at prices ranging from $1.35 to $4.00. Send for our catalogue or write us what you want. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN, Elon College, N. C.

Savage.

Little Ethel Maie Savage, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Savage, was born in Nansemond Co., Va., Sept. 24, 1908, and died July 7, 1909, at the age of 9 months and 13 days. She was a bright child and brought much cheer to the hearts of her fond parents. But that dreaded disease, spinal meningitis, claimed her as its victim. She was sick only about one week, and all that loving hearts could do was of no avail. Funeral services were conducted at Liberty Spring Church, and her body was laid to rest in the cemetery at that place. Her life was short, but it brought much sunshine to that home, and those hours of sunshine will be a comfort to the parents in the hours of darkness.

I. W. Johnson.

Jones.

Miss Passie Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Jones of Nansemond Co., Va., was born Sept. 3, 1890. A few months ago her health began to fail, and she was carried to Lakeview Hospital, in Suffolk, Va., where an operation was performed. It was discovered that she was suffering from a large cancer of a malignant nature. She rallied from the operation, but her case was too serious for human skill to render permanent assistance, and the end came Aug. 19, 1909. She died trusting in Jesus. Her funeral services were conducted at Oakland Church, by the writer, assisted by Rev. H. E. Rountree. May the Lord comfort the bereaved family.

I. W. Johnson.

THE HUMANE LABORER.

The world hasn't lost all its humanity yet. The engineer and the other trainmen turn their heads and smile and wave or speak to you as they glide by you on their road of steel. They have an excuse not to speak to or notice their fellow travellers on the highway. But they don't use their excuse and they turn their broad faces toward you and wave their swarthy hands in response to that human feeling akin to God which they read in your very being. Of all those who greet me, day after day, none do me so much good as that wave of a flagman's hand, that broad and happy smile of an engineer's face. Any man that can turn his face in the midst of this everlasting struggle for existence to a fellowman and greet him with a smile hasn't lost that humanity—that feeling which to feel is to live. It does you good for the train man to speak to you, for it lifts you up a little higher in the scale of living. He is a man of soul who greets you so—and a man of character which the world will ever admire, for is

No Cough

Your doctor's approval of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral will certainly set all doubt at rest. Do as he says. He knows. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Have not coughed once all day? Yet you may cough tomorrow! Better be prepared for it when it comes. Ask your doctor about keeping Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in the house. Then when the hard cold or cough first appears you have a doctor's medicine right at hand.

Kinkade's Bible Doctrine

EDITED BY REV. S. Q. HELFENSTEIN
With Helpful Explanatory Notes.

This book contains enough dynamic truth to shatter tons of erroneous theology. It holds the key to many difficult passages of Scripture, is written in a sweet spirit, and teems with the light of truth. Read it, and catch some of the spirit of the pioneers of the Christian Church.

Limited edition, 380 pages, bound in beautiful brown cloth, gold titles, and sold for only $1.00. Send your order at once to

J. N. HESS, Agent

Dayton, Ohio

At Your Service, Mr. Farmer!

THE Bell telephone system of America, Mr. Farmer—the greatest system in the world—is at your service. You can have it in your home as soon as you want it. You can talk to your neighbors, your friends in town, to your doctor, or to folks in New York, Chicago or any other Northern or Southern city.

Installing a telephone on your farm is the same as increasing your horse power without making a large outlay for the horse. A telephone costs very little.

We would like to tell you about our plan for installing rural telephones. Ask the nearest Bell telephone manager or write to us for descriptive booklet. A postal will do.

FARMERS' LINE DEPARTMENT
Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Co.

19 South Pryor Street

Atlanta, Georgia

not character character whether in a king or an engineer?

—Improper breathing is a frequent cause of consumption. A large majority of people who are too lazy or too ignorant to breathe deep, and hence the lungs are developed only to part of their capacity and thus afford fertile field for the growth of the tuberculosis germ.

INCOME INSURANCE.

Has come to stay. People want it. The many wills left, providing Annual Incomes through Trustees, attest this fact. Men want certainty. A lump sum of money left to a widow, is liable to be borrowed, loaned, or lost by bad investment, or the income therefrom delayed or greatly depreciated.

Money left with the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company, to be returned as an annual, semi-annual, quarterly or monthly income, IS SAFE.

The Company has an unblemished record of 52 years—present assets over two hundred and fifty million dollars.

Our interesting document No. S42 giving full particulars will be sent on request.

T. A. Cary.
601 Mutual Assurance Soc. Bldg.,
Richmond, Va.

(Begun on page twelve).

- E. Concluding Exhortation, 6:10-20.
IV. Close of the Epistle, 6:21-24.
A. Personal Intelligence about Paul and his Friends to be Carried by Bearer along with Epistle, 6:21-22.
B. Two-fold Salutation, 6:23-24.

The Scripture: Have one endeavorer read Eph. 4:1-6 and give a paragraph comment; have another read Eph. 4:25-32 and likewise comment.

Question Spurs: How may we be armed against temptation? How become strong? How get wisdom? How be saved? How to give thanks? How grow? How become united? How be kind? How keep our pledge (to be answered by several)?

Scripture References: To be given to the less experienced ones:

- The Eternal Purpose, Eph. 1:1-14.
My Great Desire, Eph. 1:15-23.
My Spiritual Resurrection, Eph. 2:1-10.
The Old and the New Man, Eph. 4:17-25.
Walking in the Light, Eph. 5:1-21.
Social Relationships, Eph. 5:22-6:9.
A Model Prayer, Eph. 3:13-21.
Good Advice, Eph. 6:10-18.

Suggested Program.

1. Leader's Remarks.
2. Consecration song and prayer.
3. The pledge in concert.
4. Scripture as suggested above.
5. Outline of Ephesians.
6. Question spurs. (
7. Song and chain of prayer.
8. Scripture references.
9. General Participation. Roll call of those not yet having taken part.
10. Pastor's Five Minutes.
11. Song. Offering. Mizpah.

During 1909

(As in previous years)

We want you in our business, for we have what you want in your homes—the very best, most substantial and handsome furniture at bottom prices. We are also the undertakers.

Burke Furniture and Coffin Company

BUKLINGTON, N. C.

Southern Railway

Operating Over 7,000 Miles of Railway. Quick Route to all Points North, South, East and West.

For Speed, Comfort, Courteous Employees, travel via the Southern Railway.

Rates, Schedules and other information furnished by any of the undersigned.

R. L. VERNON, Trav. Pass. Agt., J. H. WOOD, Dist. Pass. Agt.,
Charlotte, N. C. Asheville, N. C.
S. H. HARDWICK, P. T. M., W. H. TAYLOE, G. P. A.,
Washington, D. C.

Elon College.

Co-educational. Established 1890.

Thorough College courses leading to M. A., A. B., and Ph. B. degrees. Strong and experienced Faculty with highest University training. Good Library, Reading Room, Laboratories, Literary Societies. Excellent Music, Art, Elocution and Business Departments. Diploma from Elon admits to graduate departments in the highest universities.

Beautiful and healthful location, 17 miles east of Greensboro on Southern Railway. Best moral and religious influence. No hazing. New students met by reception committees from young people's Christian organizations connected with the college. Good equipment. A large new dormitory, with modern conveniences, has recently been built to meet the requirements of growing patronage.

EXPENSES UNUSUALLY MODERATE. FALL TERM OPENS SEPT. 1ST.

For catalogue or further information, address

EMMETT L. MOFFITT, LL. D., President.

ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

DR. J. H. BROOKS
Surgeon and Dentist
FOSTER BUILDING,
Burlington, N. C.

20 THANKSGIVING POSTALS, GOLD BACKGROUND, 15 CENTS.

Six Imported Embossed Faith, Hope and Charity or Lord's Prayer Series, dime. Six "Ideal Pansy" Series, with silver background and Scripture Texts, dime. Illustrated Wall Mottoes, dime. Ask for circulars. R. Elsey Company, Aurora, Ills.

What about Christian Endeavor?

OPIUM or Morphine Habit Treated. Free trial cases where other remedies have failed, specially desired. Confidential.

Dr. R. G. CONTRELL, successor to HARRIS INSTITUTE, Room 552, No. 400 W. 23rd St., New York.

RALEIGH AND SOUTHPORT RAILWAY.

Notice to the Traveling Public.

On Thursday, October 7, 1909, Train No. 54, due to leave Fayetteville at 5:30 A. M. and arrive at Raleigh at 8:30 A. M., will leave Fayetteville at 7:30 and arrive at Raleigh at 10:30 A. M.

On afternoon of same date Train No. 55, due to leave Raleigh at 1:15 P. M. and arrive Fayetteville 4:30 P. M., will leave Raleigh at 5 P. M. and arrive Fayetteville at 8 P. M.

On account of these changes from the regular schedule the traveling public is notified that Trains No. 54 and No. 55 will not make their advertised connections on above date.

J. A. Mills, President.

The Christian Sun.

In Essentials—Unity, in Non-Essentials—Liberty, in All Things—Charity.

ESTABLISHED 1844.

GREENSBORO N. C., WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1909. VOLUME LXI. NUMBER 39.

The President's Tour.—President Taft is making a tour of the country from Massachusetts to the Pacific Coast and back to Washington through the Southern States. It is a busy, and must be a very trying, journey. Evidently the President has undertaken the two months' itinerary from a sense of duty and with a desire to please. He is making a great effort to meet the people and find out what is expected and desired of his administration, and to arouse and shape public sentiment in behalf of possible future legislation. The President, by his addresses, numerous and frequent, is very much in earnest and is taking the people into his confidence. He regards his work of administering the affairs of Government as a very serious work, and has gone at it as a man who wants to do his part wisely and well. In this the whole country will applaud his efforts. President Taft is not delivering sent and dried lectures on theories and things, but is opening up his heart and talking to the people about affairs that pertain to them and to the welfare of each.

"When the righteous rule the people are happy," said a very wise one, and President Taft will at least be accorded the praise of a sincere effort to seek out the ways of the people's betterment.

Complaining at Crops.—Because we measure things by comparison it is very easy to become complainers, and show ingratitude. One year the seasons are just right, conditions favorable and the harvest yields abundant. God seems to smile upon the land, and bless it with plenty. Now, often, instead of being grateful for that act of bountiful beneficence, we set that up as a standard for future years and yields: and failing to reach that high eminence, we grumble, complain, are ungrateful.

All earthly increase is a result of the blessing and bounty of Providence. And it were just as easy, so far as the infinite power and resources of Deity are concerned, to make the yield great as small. The Giver of all bounty and increase knows best. He deals with a world, not niggardly, but in love; not sparingly, but for man's good. God is ever good, always and everywhere.

He is always love, under any and under all circumstances. And to complain at His gifts is the height of ingratitude.

Compare our worst crops and poorest yields with those of some lands and peoples and we will easily see what showers of blessings we constantly live under. To be complaining at poor crops, small returns, meager increase, shows a lack of appreciation of good gifts and betokens an ingratitude unworthy of any sane and sensible man.

A Good Name.—It costs something to make, and to keep, a good name: but it is worth far more than it costs. The courts recognize that a man's good name is the dearest treasure he possesses.

Mr. Hartridge, one of the attorneys for the notorious Harry Thaw alleges that he paid out large sums of money in "protecting Harry Thaw's good name from scandal." He presented to Thaw's mother a bill of $195,763. Of this amount $103,100 has been paid him, and he has been suing for the other $92,636. Mrs. Thaw contends that she should only pay $46,815 of this, making a total to this one attorney of $149,915.

But after all this has been paid, a large portion of it in "defending the good name of Harry K. Thaw from scandal," those who read well know that this name has not been defended from nor spared of scandal.

A good name is worth more than money. It is worth a life of effort, sacrifice, toil and tasks to build up and maintain. What Thaw's millions cannot buy, anyone's careful and well observed and well ordered life may acquire and maintain.

Moving Backward.—The world cannot go backward, we hear. Civilization has advanced, thought has developed, new ideas have come, progress has been made: and we cannot go back any more. This is said by those who would fling away the traditions of the past, break with the faith of the fathers, and fall into the quick step of the "new religion." Since man has developed he must have an advanced religion.

Such thinkers(?) omit an important consideration. They forget that Sin is the same now, in nature and in consequence, as it was six thousand years ago. They forget, further, that human nature now is about the same that it was when Adam and Eve cooked their first meal, on the outskirts of the garden of Eden, and wondered while they supped, what on earth they let Sin and Satan get the better of them for in the Garden on the day before. That is to say that in spite of electric cars, automobiles and airships, the twentieth century man is just like the first century man in that he will sin in spite of himself, and have remorse of conscience that fills him with sorrow and regret. We may talk of a new religion when we get a new sort of man who can deal with old Sin in a new sort of way—namely, pass Sin by and not be assailed by it.

As for moving backwards, nobody wants the world to move heels foremost. Every saint, and sinner, too, as for that matter, wants the world to move forward, if he wants anything.

But when, in heaven's name, did piety, faith, hope, charity, visiting the widow and the orphan in their affliction and keeping unspotted from the world—when did these things ever keep a world of men and women from moving forward? When did obeying the laws of Almighty God, keeping His statutes, observing His commandments to do them ever keep anybody, or number of bodies, from moving forward? We shall bear in mind that an advanced civilization has not made an advanced man, as touching Sin, Evil, Temptation and Tribulation. Jesus the Christ is ever ahead, not backwards, and all our salvation from Sin and wreck and ruin is wrought out in Him. We shall press toward Him if we would be master of our passions, lusts, appetites, and in Him are the world's problems solved. He bore our Sin on the tree. It was here and He could not ignore it. No man can ignore it and conquer. But all may by taking note of Sin conquer through Him who loved us and gave himself for our redemption.

—Ambassador Bryce, of Great Britain, author of The American Commonwealth, is to speak in Raleigh before the State Literary and Historical Association Nov. 4.

FROM THE FIELD.

NOTICE.

The pastors and superintendents of the Ga. and Ala. Conference will bear in mind that we need full statistics from all the churches and Sunday schools in the Conference. Brethren, see to it that your church letter is made out in full. Sunday school statistics are just as important as those of the church. Be sure not to overlook this item.

Yours for a good session,
J. F. Hill, Jr.

Phenix, Ala., Sept. 27, 1909.

Langdale, Ala.

The time for our Annual Conference meeting is near at hand. We look back on our year's work and think how we have labored with the people and have plaid with them. We almost become discouraged sometimes but we should be content with what the good Lord is doing for us. He is wonderfully blessing me in my ministerial work. He is giving me souls for my hire and I will be made to rejoice when my hands are untied that I may discharge every duty that God has enjoined upon me. Bethany Church called me to its service soon after I was licensed in January, 1909. My church work is in fine shape. Had a good meeting in August, six accessions to the church. The church has called me to the work for another year. I have accepted the call. Hope to receive my ordination at the Ala. and Ga. Conference.

Your brother in Christ,
Geo. M. Holder.

West Liberty, Ohio.

Dear Bro. Atkinson:—

A little more than a week we have been in North Western Ohio roaming about or tracing the lines of a fifty mile square touching the points Carey, West Liberty, Sidney, and Lima, each of which are situated at one of the angles. Only those who have returned from an extended visit and received kind greetings of friends know how great has been our pleasure during the past week. We find ourselves comparing this country and people with those that we have seen elsewhere especially in Virginia. After hastily viewing the sights and wonders of Washington, D. C., we felt like censuring ourselves for having delayed so long to visit our nation's capital. A few hours' wait permitted us to roam a little through the smoky city of Pittsburgh—perhaps we should have said smoked city, for the buildings and the people must be thoroughly smoked by this time. From 10 o'clock p.m. until 4 a.m. we together with other passengers (for we suppose that they slept no more than we) imitated sleepers until we arrived in Tiffin, Ohio. From this point we soon had a train to Carey where we spent a little time in visiting our son-in-law and daughter. We arrived Saturday evening in West Liberty preparatory to the Sunday services. We were very much cheered by the greeting given to us by each of the congregation.

It really seems to us that there is a work here which we should hope by God's help to accomplish. The West Liberty Church has been very much strengthened by the addition of many members of the Gladys' Creek congregation which body has recently disbanded because the vicinity is fast becoming settled by members of another church. We feel like throwing ourselves into this work with all possible zeal, thanking God for the opportunity of laboring for His glory and for the salvation of souls.

This is a most beautiful country and this village of about 1500 population (all white and American born) is pleasantly situated in one of the richest valleys that can anywhere be found. Today we walked with a friend to the top of a high hill at the north edge of town, and saw in the distance the hill country on the opposite side of the valley—this not only on the east of us but also on the west. The many orchards, shade trees and groves that we saw here and there in the broad valley, and the village situated at the foot of the hill and other hills which we saw which were covered with shocks of corn or were robed in green (for a fine, soft native grass grows luxuriantly at this season in the fertile soil of these hills) constituted a scene of beauty in the bright sunshine of this afternoon.

As I praised the fine view (for I really felt that it was as beautiful to me as was ancient Canaan to the children of Israel) my friend stated that a traveling man who once stood with him on the high hill which was just before us and looked out upon the scene was fascinated by the sight and said that he had traveled to the Pacific Coast and all over this great country of ours but had never seen any view that surpasses this.

Passing on we entered the old cemetery which is very rolling and covered with shade trees of the maple variety which at this time of the year are still green.

The sad thought came to us as we entered that in this cemetery now lie the mortal remains of one who was a pillar in the West Liberty Christian Church when we were its pastor four years ago. For more than 40 years he was its Sunday school Superintendent and for three years he had been the man of our right hand. How we miss him. Many others have died or moved away but the work still moves on. Though something tends to make us feel solemn we are happy to be in this delightful section and with this genial people to engage in earnest labor in our Master's vineyard. Brethren and friends, think often of us and send up a prayer to God that our labors may not be in vain but crowned with success.

W. H. Thompson.

Bethlehem.

Our meeting at Bethlehem closed Friday before the third Sunday with about 36 conversions, several reclaimed and many consecrations. 28 united with the church. Rev. J. W. Harrell did the preaching and it was fine from the beginning to the end. The Lord bless the work at Bethlehem.

Antioch.

The revival meeting commenced at Antioch third Sunday and continued until Friday. We had only half day meetings. There were some 70 or 80 conversions renewals and consecrations. 29 united with the church. The pastor did the preaching. There were 35 baptized at Antioch on Friday evening and 16 on Saturday morning from Bethlehem. There are several more to be baptized next Saturday morning from Antioch at Zuni. God bless the work at Antioch.

H. H. B.

DURHAM LETTER.

We enjoyed a gracious revival in our church at Catawba Spring. We were forced to postpone our meeting from first to fourth Sunday in August on account of the extreme illness of Mrs. Barbee. The meeting was pronounced by all who attended a success, notwithstanding the sickness of the writer in the opening of the services for two days. The brethren conducted the meeting with glorious results. The church was thoroughly revived and quite a number professed faith in Christ. We enjoyed large and attentive congregations. We were in the midst of fodder season, but the brethren made the sacrifice that brought glorious results, leaving their homes and farms for work in the vineyard of the Lord. At the close of the meeting we received fifteen into the church. At my appointment on the first Sunday in September at three o'clock we met at Dr. McCuller's pond and baptized. We opened the doors of the church and received two nice little boys into fellowship. They were the sons of brother Charlie Sorrell.

Our work in Durham is very hopeful.

We are looking forward to a glorious revival soon when we shall have another very gracious season as the work has been going on in Durham for quite a while at different churches. We hope for good results. We solicit the prayers of all the readers of The Sun. For the benefit of the brethren who pass through our city and would wish to see the writer, they will find him for the present at Sister Mittie Duke's Boarding House on Chapel Hill St., No. 505 Drop in, brethren, and see me.

Fraternally,
A. P. Barbee.

PROGRAM.

Tenth Annual Session of the Alabama Christian Conference,

Christiana Church, (Talapoosa Co.), Alabama, October 19, 20, 21, 1909.

Tuesday A.M., Oct. 19.

- 10:00. Call to order and religious exercises.
- 10:10. Enrollment of ministers and delegates.
- 10:20. Organization.
- 10:30. Address of welcome, Rev J. H. Milam.
- 10:40. Response, Rev. E. M. Carter.
- 10:50. Receiving fraternal messengers.
- 11:00. Introductory Sermon, Rev. J. W. Elder.
- 12:00. Adjournment.

Afternoon.

- 1:30. Devotional Services, Rev. W. R. Knight.
  - 1:40. Reading ministerial and Church reports.
  - 2:30. Report of Committee on Religious Literature.
- Address: "The Power of the Religious Paper," Rev. E. M. Carter.
- 3:00. Report of Executive Committee.
  - 3:15. Report on Standing of Ministry. Address: "The Shepherd and his Sheep," Rev. E. M. Carter.
  - 3:45. Miscellaneous business.
  - 4:00. Adjournment.

Night Session.

7:30. Sermon, Rev. C. M. Dollar.

Wednesday A.M., Oct. 20th.

- 9:00. Devotional, Rev. J. V. Knight.
  - 9:10. Report on Standing of Churches.
  - 9:20. Report on Foreign Missions.
- Address: "The Call Beyond the Seas," Rev. G. D. Hunt.
- 10:00. Business session of Missionary Association.
  - 11:00. Annual Sermon.
  - 12:00. Adjournment.

Afternoon Session.

- 1:30. Religious exercises, Rev. J. D. Dollar.
- 1:40. Report of Committee on Moral Reform. Address: "Prohibition for Alabama and Alabama for Prohibition." Rev. J. H. Hughes.

2:10. Report on Sunday schools.

Address: "Relations of the Sunday School to Missions." J. J. Carter.

Address: "Definite Organization of our Young People for Christian Service." Rev. E. M. Carter.

3:00. Reports of special committees.

3:30. Miscellaneous.

4:00. Adjournment.

Night Session.

7:30. Meeting of Missionary Association.

Thursday A.M., Oct. 21st.

9:00. Religious Services, Rev. E. M. Carter.

9:10. Educational Report. Address: "An Efficient Leadership the Need of Our Church." Rev. C. M. Dollar.

9:45. Treasurer's Report.

10:00. Report of Home Mission Board.

11:00. Sermon.

12:00. Final Adjournment.

G. O. Lankford, President.

Columbus, Ga., Sept. 27, 1909.

ST. LOUIS CHURCH DAY.

Swelling their reverberations from a softly clanging opening note into a grand tonal harmony, the bells of the 444 churches of St. Louis ushered in at sunrise Oct. 3 a seven days' celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the incorporation of the city.

Fitting indeed it is that the bells of the religious edifices which have had so important a place in the moulding of the character of the city should announce to the waking people that 100 years have passed since St. Louis the settlement and trading post became St. Louis the city.

From the days of the earlier Spanish settlers, who reared a modest Catholic Church, and sturdy pioneers who erected the first Baptist Church, to the present day when a mammoth cathedral is in the course on construction and the tall spires of religious edifices of many denominations pierce the sky, church influence ever has been a powerful factor in shaping and properly directing the growth and expansion of the city.

The mellow clanging of the bells also opened a general celebration of the religious development of the city in the century since it was incorporated. The day will be known as church day.

While commemorative ceremonies will be held in virtually all of the churches of the city, there will be several gatherings of particular importance. These included a song service in the afternoon at the Coliseum, in which 10,000 Sunday school children, members of 150 Protestant churches, including all Protestant denominations, participated.

The following impressive list of churches shows the religious development of the city in a century:

Baptist, 23; Catholic, 76; Christian, 15; Christian Scientist, 4; Congregational, 21; English Evangelical Lutheran, 7; German Evangelical, 24; German Evangelical Lutheran, 22; Hebrew, orthodox, 9; Hebrew, reformed, 4; Methodist Episcopal, 26; Methodist Episcopal South, 20; New Jerusalem, 3; Presbyterian, 42; Presbyterian, Cumberland, 1; Presbyterian, United, 4; Protestant Episcopal, 29; Reformed Episcopal, 2; Unitarian, 2; Miscellaneous, 110; total, not including the Evangelical Alliance, consisting of clergymen of different denominations, 444.

"Church Day" was preliminary to the most general and impressive celebration ever held in any city in the country.

ABIDING.

"Abide with us, for it is toward the evening, and the day is far spent." A large caravan of white headed pilgrims are journeying on the way to heaven. With them it is toward the evening and the day is far spent. They will soon pass through the night, and enter into the light of eternal day. A sweet expression plays on their features, causing them to look pleasant and happy on the way. They are nearing home where rest and happiness are provided for them. Words cannot express the sweet peace they have as they ask Jesus to abide with them. The dark valley will become light with his presence when they pass through it.

J. T. Kitchen.

MARRIED.

Garrison-Uzzell.

At the bride's mother's, near Antioch, Isle of Wight Co., Va., Sept. 8, 1909. Mr. Willie E. Garrison, a very popular and successful young farmer and Miss Essie Maie Uzzell, the beautiful and accomplished daughter of the late W. H. Uzzell. The parlor was beautifully decorated and the young couple marched in under the sweet strains of music rendered by Mrs. John M. Eley, and their pastor, Rev. H. H. Butler united them in the holy bonds of matrimony, after which the happy couple took the train for Norfolk, Washington, New York and other northern cities. They are members of Antioch Christian Church and are devoted to the cause of Christ. They have the best wishes of their many friends.

H. H. B.

"He that winneth souls is wise."

NOTES AND PERSONALS.

—Bro. D. J. Sipe, Sec'y., Greensboro, N. C., has a notice in this week's Sun, Young People's Department, that should have attention.

—Chairman J. E. West of the Home Mission Board, Southern Convention, will call his Board in annual session after all conferences adjourn, possibly last of November or early in December.

—Rev. S. B. Klapp, Greensboro, N. C., was with Rev. R. L. Williamson last week in a good revival at Antioch in Randolph County, and with Rev. W. N. Hayes the week before in a good meeting.

—Rev. W. T. Walters, Harrisonburg, Va. under treatment of a physician at Union Ridge, N. C., for facial paralysis, is reported much improved and expects to be able, at an early date, to resume his pastoral duties.

—Pastor I. W. Johnson is much interested in a new church building now going up for his Hobson, Va., congregation. The corner stone is to be laid Thursday of this week, and a neat, comfortable house is to be built.

—Sun readers will be pleased to learn that the health of Sister J. W. Holt, wife of Rev. J. W. Holt, Burlington, N. C., has much improved the last few weeks and that she is now able to be up much and walk around some.

—Mr. J. Cleveland Barrett is now assistant secretary of the Railway Y. M. C. A. at Lamherth's Point, Va., and likes his work. Of our church at Lambert's Point Bro. Barrett writes: "This church is certainly growing in all departments of its work and influence."

—Prof. S. M. Smith, recently of Raleigh, now educational director of the Naval Y. M. C. A., Norfolk, Va., writes: "I am delighted with my new work." Prof. Smith has moved his family to Norfolk and will gladly see his friends passing that way.

—Singing seems to make for longevity of life, if the following indicates anything. Mr. Fred Moore has sung in one choir at Stafford, England, says the N. Y. Advocate for seventy-four years, and Mr. George Arnold has been a member of Trinity Church, Sussex, England for more than eighty years, having joined the choir, in which he still sings, with his grandson, in 1829.

—In Prof. Harper's department this week occurs his leading editorial on "Christian Endeavor—Why." We sincerely trust that every Sun reader will turn to that article and read it. It certainly goes to the bottom of matters vital to present day church work and service. If one wants to know what Christian Endeavor really is, and what it is not, one can certainly find out by reading that article.

—Rev. S. B. Klapp writes: "In account of the 'Pounding' last week, the name of the prime mover should have been M. E. Lillard instead of M. E. Gullard. Since then Bro. W. P. Guinn presented me with a nice check to be added to the pounding. Please make these corrections." While the correction is being made the editor modestly suggests the use of that check in helping to purchase a typewriter, for we have seen some handwritings in this world plainer than Bro. K's. But isn't a check a fine article to be thrown in for good measure with a pounding, though?

—It is not often that a pastor enjoys a privilege recently accorded Rev. L. I. Cox who organized a church of twenty-eight charter members in a neat and comfortable house of worship, already paid for and deeded to the Conference. Monticello, in Guilford County, not far north of Greensboro, was a preaching place to which Rev. C. C. Peel, when pastor of Hines' Chapel, went frequently for an afternoon service. The congregation, under Brother Peel's leadership and assistance, we believe, erected a neat and comfortable house. For the past several months Bro. Cox has been giving an afternoon service, with the result that the congregation decided to organize themselves into a Christian Church, as above stated.

—The Sun's editor enjoyed a rich and rare privilege last week, in that he was permitted to engage with Pastor I. W. Johnson in a series of meetings at Berea, Nansemond Co., Va. Bro. Johnson has not been well the past several months, and his good wife has also been in poor health. The former seems now to have permanently recovered, and the latter is rapidly improving. Under difficulties and anxieties Bro. Johnson has kept his work up, and his people have been very faithful and loyal to him. He is a spiritually minded, consecrated man, and is doing efficient work as pastor. A week's association with him was a great pleasure. And no preacher ever worked at Berea but that he enjoyed the task, and received inspiration from the loving loyalty and sweet fellowship that prevail there. Of course Capt. Tom Gaskins, for many years Superintendent of the Sunday school, and Senior Deacon of the Church, was at his post of duty, and in his quiet, modest way was giving his heart and hand to the work. Dear "Aunt" Gaskins—God bless her—is feeble now, but her intense zeal and devotion for the Master's cause, brought her from a sick room to her beloved church several times during the meeting. Her heart was there all the time.

Many other faithful ones were there, ready, willing, anxious in service, song and prayer.

It was a delightful season of spiritual showers and refreshings. There were many new covenants made and reconsecrations to the Mater's service. Five united with the church Friday afternoon.

NEWS ITEMS.

—It is reported that unless cotton goods go up wonderfully in price, or raw cotton declines quickly, several Southern Cotton Mills will close down.

—Orville Wright, after taking Crown Prince Frederick William, of Germany as a passenger for ten minutes in the air at Postdam, Oct. 2, proceeded to break all previous records for high flights by soaring 1600 feet high.

—The sheriff of Rutherford Co., N. C., learning last Sunday morning that bridge builders were busy on a railroad bridge C. C. & O. Ry. near Spartanburg, S. C., hurried to the scene of action and stopped the Sunday work, it being in violation of the law of this State.

—The value of the precious stones imported into the United States last year amounted to $13,700,404, of which three-fourths was in unset diamonds. The entire product of precious and semi-precious stones in this country in 1908 was valued at $415,063, turquoise leading the list. This stone comes from Arizona, New Mexico and California.

—Orville Wright on September 17, in the presence of the empress, Princess Louise, Prince Adelbert and Prince August, and other august nobles, all of Germany, broke the record for high flight. He reached the height of 765 feet, surpassing the best previous record by 253 feet. He remained up fifty-three minutes, a part of which time he was in a very strong wind, which made it necessary for him to execute the most intricate maneuvers yet witnessed at Berlin.

—Cotton ginners' reports Sept. 25 showed 27,751 bales less ginned this year than last to same date. On Oct. 4 a Washington despatch said:

"The most unfavorable report on the condition of the cotton crop issued by the department of agriculture at this season of the year for many years was made public today. Financial and weather conditions combined to make the report unfavorable.

Today's official report indicated that on September 25 the condition of the cotton crop was only 58.5 per cent of normal, as compared with 63.7 per cent on August 25, 1909; 69.7 on September 25, 1908; on September 25, 1907, and 67 per cent on the average for ten years on August 25, 1909.

THE S. S. LESSON FOR OCTOBER 10.*Paul a Prisoner—The Plot.

Acts 22:30-23:35.

Golden Text.—I will say of Jehovah, He is my refuge and my fortress: my God, in whom I trust. Psa. 91:2.

Time.—Four days are embraced in this lesson. The first includes the appearance before the Sanhedrin. The second the day of the plot. The third the arrival at Antripatris. Fourth the arrival at Caesarea.

Places.—The castle in the Fortress Antonia. The Council Chamber near the foot of a bridge leading across a ravine from the western cloister of the temple. Antripatris—nearly 40 English miles northwest of Jerusalem built by Herod the Great. Caesarea, Herod's palace, the official residence of Felix.

Here Paul was placed in military confinement.

The Jews plotted against the life of Paul and seemed to have everything in their favor. They were forty to one. The Christians were a despised and persecuted sect. The charge as stated in Paul's own words is, "Concerning the hope and resurrection of the dead am I called in question." The real issue between Paul and the Jews was that Paul by personal conviction was a Pharisee and was opposed to the cold aristocratic Sadducees. He maintained that the true Jewish patriot and true Pharisee should be a Christian, as he himself was.

Paul as a Man.—Paul was about to be taken by a mob, and the calm, bold speech he made,—you tingle at the scene when the scourge drops and he says "I was born free. It helps to find Paul a good deal like the rest of us. It helps us to fight the battle of faith. There is vigor and a manliness about him that touches other strong men. None of colorlessness about Paul.

The secret of Paul's life is a sure recipe for all who will be successful. "The Lord stood by him." If you but knew it ninety per cent of the successful business men are Christians. They are spending and being spent in Heaven's business.

They keep right on with their advertising, sending out representatives, visiting patients, accepting fees, etc. They hold as their motto to be a real live wide-awake proposition. God holds up for them the ladder and leaves it to them to hold on and climb.

Then while climbing, doing our best, nothing becomes more our duty than to assist someone else ascend. In doing so an excellent plan is suggested by verse 19, "The chief captain took him by the hand." The plan reaches boys and girls and draws them into the Sunday-school work. A boy's heart is in his hand when not in his mouth. The boy's hand-shake is an awkward one, but as sincere as a countryman's. Mr. Wm. Ridgeway in S. S. Times shows that Christ was a man of a warm hand (Matt. 9:25; Mark 8:25, 9:27).

G. W. T.

NOTICE TO CHURCHES IN THE E. VA. CONFERENCE.

Churches desiring financial assistance from the Home Mission Committee of the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference should file their applications with me as early as possible.

J. E. West, Chair.

Suffolk, Va., Oct. 4, 1909.

ELON COLLEGE NOTES.

—The past week has been one of quiet, and apparently, good work in the College community.

—The enrollment of students gradually increases. The number has now reached one hundred and fifty-eight.

—Rev. Dr. D. A. Long was the speaker at the eleven o'clock hour last Sunday. His theme was his travels in the Holy Land. The address was instructive and greatly appreciated by his audience.

—Prof. W. C. Wicker is on the program of the annual convention of the seventh District Grand Lodge of Masons of North Carolina to be held in Greensboro Oct. 9, and will attend in the capacity of District Deputy Grand Master.

—Dr. Moffitt is in the field most of the time now in the interest of the endowment fund.

—Prof. Kernodle has been here several days looking after business matters before going permanently to his home at Richmond.

—Rev. C. A. Boon, who has been sick, was able to attend church services last Sunday. Mr. W. S. Tate has been sick several days. Miss Ellen Weston is slowly improving, but is scarcely able to be up at all yet.

—The Lecture Committee of the College are trying to arrange for a series of stereopticon lectures during the winter months. A stereopticon outfit is to be purchased as soon as the Committee can get a little more money for that purpose. This is one of the most useful aids to general education, and our community may justly expect to be both instructed and entertained.

—Rev. Dr. Newman and Mrs. W. C. Wicker returned the first of last week from the funeral of their father which took place near the old homestead in Isle of Wight County, Va.

—The graded school opened Monday of this week with Prof. J. C. Stout of Burlington, principal, and Misses Ruth Jones of Suffolk and Lela Compton of Caswell County, North Carolina, teachers.

W. P. Lawrence.

SERVICE PLEASES ALABAMA FARMERS.

The following letter from Mr. R. T. Pressley, a well known farmer residing near Cullman, Ala., to the Manager of the Bell Telephone Company at Cullman, Ala., recently appeared in the Cullman, Ala., Democrat:

"Hanceville, Ala., May 27, 1909.
"Mr. J. B. Cassels, Cullman, Ala.

"Dear Sir:

"In reply to your inquiry allow me to say that I am well pleased with my telephone and would not be without it at any cost.

"My neighbors agree with me that we have never had a greater convenience than the rural "phone." In all matters of business, in social life, and in every emergency we find it invaluable and indispensable to us and our families. In my work as pastor of churches in different parts of the country, I find my "phone" a first aid.

"We frequently save the time that would be consumed by a man and team making long drives. You see we can have the business transacted before we could get a team in harness, or if it is necessary for some one to go, we can send a boy and talk the matter over at the phone and keep the men at work. In this way alone we save the fifty cents paid as rent many times over in a month. And it brings us more closely in touch with each other socially, we get better acquainted with each other and it removes that feature of country life so much disliked by the ladies and young people and keeps our boys and girls better satisfied to stay on the farm.

"A friend tells me that he is confident that his phone was the means of saving the life of one of his children. The child became suddenly and violently sick. It was six miles to the nearest doctor, so he called the doctor at the phone and told him the symptoms. The doctor told him what to do until he could get there and the child recovered.

"In all cases of sickness or accident or fire or anything that may occur, we find the telephone is a friend in time of need.

"There is not a patron on our line who would be willing to let the phone go and we would be glad to see one in every home. "Respectfully,"

"R. T. Pressley."

Farmers throughout the South are putting telephones in their homes and enjoying the benefits and conveniences of this modern agency. The Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company offers an attractive proposition to farmers, and a book giving full information may be obtained by addressing Farmers' Line Department, Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Co., 19 South Pryor Street, Atlanta, Ga.

—Benefactors' Day was observed at Trinity College, N. C., Oct. 4. The donations of the day amounted to $83,984, B. N. Duke giving $50,000 of the sum.

DOUBLE MINISTERS' SALARIES.

Editor Biblical Recorder:—I never discuss war in the presence of Hannibal. Usually, therefore, I am willing to let the preachers have everything their own way in the columns of our church organs, and I am willing now simply because I have a subject of absolutely vital importance to the cause of Christianity and human progress concerning which it would not be proper for the preachers themselves to be the agitators. And the occasion of my writing is simply this:

The October Delineator has just come to my office—and I look over it every month not for the purpose of seeing what new horrors in hat styles are to be inflicted upon an unoffending world, but because the editor has a way of getting articles from the foremost men in America about the biggest and liveliest questions of the day. Accordingly in the October number he has a symposium on "What is the Matter With the Church?" the contributors being Cardinal Gibbons, Josiah Strong, Len. G. Broughton, Russel H. Conwell, Gipsy Smith, Chas. H. Parkhurst, Charles F. Aked, Emil G. Hirsch, and F. M. North.

The best answers given to the Editor's question in all this symposium is the reply of Rev. Charles F. Aked, pastor of Fifth Avenue Baptist Church, New York, whose answer in brief is, "Double the salaries of ministers and so stop driving away the strongest and fittest young men from the pulpit."

And Dr. Aked is right. While the cost of living has been increasing year by year and the salaries of all other workers have been heavily increased, I have heard little of increased salaries for our ministers, and unless salaries are increased it is going to be difficult—exceedingly difficult—for the church to get the splendid spiritual and intellectual leadership needed for the critical period in its history upon which it has now entered.

This is indeed a matter worthy of serious thought, and I am sending this note simply to call attention to Dr. Aked's forceful card which I am sending herewith. Every layman in America ought to read it and think about it.

Sincerely yours,

Clarence H. Poe.

Raleigh, N. C.

"What's the Matter With the Church?"

—Dr. Aked's Answer.

Two different factors have to be taken into account.

(1) The churches have lost ground in the Old, and have not yet found adequate expression in the New.

We are living in a period of transition. There is a new scientific outlook, a new literary and historical criticism, and a new conception of social and ethical relations. The churches have not yet realized all that these changes involve nor properly related themselves to them. The mere suspicion that Christianity is out of harmony with the facts of life, as science helps us to understand facts, is fatal to the faith of many. Preachers are too fond of sneering at the new knowledge. Men who know vastly more than they do are not to be blamed if they turn away in sheer weariness of spirit. The thoughtful, educated, sincere young man or woman who sees some ignorant preacher—ignorant, however devout—perform waltz-dance in the pulpit over "so-called science" is likely to drift away from a church which condemns what it does not understand.

The worst is that while the old theological sanctions and prohibitions have lost power there are new and valid ones which the churches have not grasped. These are grounded in the facts of human experience, verified by experiment here and now—and the churches do not seem to know it. They will learn: The losses of a transition period are temporary; its gains permanent.

And the same things are to be said about the new civic consciousness, the new political consciousness. New social and ethical ideals brood to-day over the face of the abyss. They move slowly where they should move quickly—amongst the churches—but they move. The future is by no means dark.

(2) The nearest, most important single reform to be attempted by the religious people of this country is to double the salary of every preacher upon the continent. The churches get just as good preaching as they are entitled to for the money they pay. They are served better than they deserve. Yet we of the pulpit are not big enough for the mighty tasks which lie before us. The readjustment of the machinery of the churches to the work of the world in the new day and in the coming day is a giant's task. And we are not giants. The Church will not pay for giants. The Church needs statesmen, thinkers, prophets, men with piercing insight and foresight, men who know what Israel ought to do. The railroads will pay for such men. The world of finance has a thousand attractions for them. Commerce is open to them, with all its possibilities. The Church invites them to stay out of the pulpit. The cost of living has been advancing year by year until it has reached a point where it threatens crisis. Salaries have not advanced. Preachers are miserably paid. So are the professors of seminaries where preachers are trained. No man ought to come into the ministry for the sake of a salary. No man ought to enter who is not prepared to make sacrifices. But when he sees that in the ministry he will have to live a cramped, starved life; when he sees that his energy will be dissipated in a sordid struggle to keep body and soul together instead of expended upon the things of the Kingdom of Heaven; when he knows that the work which he wants to do for God and humanity he will not be able to do because his wife and himself will have to spend their years in a heart-breaking endeavor to keep out of debt and "respectable," and to bring up their children in decency—then it is not to be wondered at if he decides that he will try to be a Christian and glorify God—outside the pulpit!

The crying need of the churches of this country is a race of bigger and better men than we are. But the churches have not begun to think of the necessity of paying for them.—Biblical Recorder.

THE BANE AND BLESSING OF TEMPTATION.

It is not always possible to escape temptation. No one should seek or deliberately place himself in the way of temptation. Temptation is always with an element of danger. Temptation, however, while it is never to be sought, yet when it cannot be escaped, if properly met has in it a beneficial as well as a dangerous possibility.

Temptations, like hardships and disasters, should be made tests which work the strengthening of character. Like times of trial and disaster, temptations work opposite effects upon persons of different character. In time of shipwreck or disaster, selfishness becomes more pronounced and more manifest in the selfish, while unselfish and benevolent characters shine forth with greater luster because of the dark setting which the test brings with it. The existence of the noblest characters would never have been so clearly manifest to the world had it not been for the trying ordeals through which they passed. James, the apostle, must have had this in mind when he wrote: "Count it all joy when ye fall into divers temptations."

God does not tempt a man, as he tells us plainly. Temptations come of the devil, and are sent to defeat the divine purpose. But God can bring help out of what Satan intends for harm. Like Balaam, temptations may be sent forth with nothing but curses, and yet be powerless to confer anything but blessing.

That temptations are dangerous, and potent with possibilities of evil, none will dare deny, yet when confronted by temptations which we did not court, and from which we cannot escape, it is well to remember that even this foe may be made to bless us. Personal discipline and character, like national achievement and growth, are often wrought out by dangers and difficulties which tax both patience and endurance. Temptations may work out for the individual what menacing foes effect for the nation which they only seek to destroy. Conquering nations, one after the other, when they had subdued all their foes and there was no longer need for discipline, exertion and effort, have disintegrated. Ease and opulence have wrought many a ruin foes could not effect.

Do not, therefore, take too gloomy a view of trials and of temptations that may confront you. Instead of working against you to your detriment, they can be made to "work out for you a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory." If the only Perfect Character this earth has ever known was made "perfect through sufferings," surely you and I cannot expect to attain similar results without trials, temptations and sufferings. Frances Power Cobbe says Correctly: "Each soul redeemed from self and sin must know its Calvary."—Sylvanus Stall, D.D., in Lutheran Observer.

MAGNITUDE OF LITTLE THINGS.

Men are fascinated with large things. Big fortunes, big farms, big gold mines, big oil wells, big business houses in big cities, big titles and big offices awaken feelings of awe in the minds of men. But little things, little armies, little navies, little places and little incomes can hardly command the respect of the children of men. Yet the largest things may be really insignificant, while many things which seem very small may be essentially great. To learn the lesson of the magnitude of little things will help us to be content with our lot and our work.

Things which are small in outward appearance sometimes have infinite magnitudes behind them: Take the two mites which the widow cast into the treasury of our Lord. It was an insignificant sum. It made little difference in the offerings of the day. If it had been withheld it would hardly have been missed. The offerings of the rich men were far more important in the reckonings of the treasury officials. But there is always something behind every transaction. Our Lord sees what is behind and knows its value. Behind this simple offering He saw the sacrifice, the intention, the heart of the giver. She gave not two mites only, but a great heart, a great love, a great prayer, a great sacrifice, a great hope. Who can measure the value of these unseen things? Let no man despise the little gift.

Little things often grow to great things. We see only the beginnings and no man can estimate the end from the beginning. Take the grain of mustard seed in the parable. Jesus called the attention of His disciples to the insignificance of the seed. But wrapped up in that little shell there was a tree. Jesus saw its spreading branches and the fowls of the air lodging in them. So is the kingdom of heaven. Men despised the beginnings of that kingdom. It consisted of a handful of men who had nothing to commend them to the admiration of the worldly mind, nothing to impress men. But who despises that movement now? It has extended to the ends of the earth, and is the most potent agency in modern times. Men despised Methodism in its beginnings also. It consisted of a few Oxford students, banded together to encourage one another in the effort to live a holy life in the midst of a crooked and perverse generation. But who despises that movement now? Behold what God hath wrought! A handful of corn in the tops of the mountains shakes like Lebanon. Beware, O ye despisers. One who despises a small beginning may be found despising the work of God and the power of God.

Feeble individuals are often despised. Long ago a religious meeting was held in England for the purpose of awakening a new interest in religion and inducing men to turn to God. The preacher preached and exhorted and the people prayed, but they were disappointed. Only one little boy decided to serve God. When the minister was asked about the result of his meetings, he said, "O, nothing; nobody came forward but little Bobby Morrison." But little Bobby grew to be a great man, a pioneer missionary to China. He labored there many years, and laid the foundations for the evangelization of that vast empire; and the fruits of that meeting in which nobody was converted except a little boy will never be fully known until the books are opened on the day of judgment. Jesus also was despised. He was a peasant child of a peasant mother, and when he grew to manhood, and mighty works began to show forth themselves by Him, the people of Nazareth were offended, and said, "Is not this the carpenter?" But who will despise Him now? God hath given Him a name which is above every name.

Little things which men despise are often the special care of heaven.

