Hidden Treasures

Of all the gold taken, at great pains and price, from the bosom of the earth, it is estimated that at least one-third has been carefully hidden away, buried, put in safety-deposit vaults, and so lost entirely to man's use. Years ago misers hid their hoardings in old stockings, stove-pipes, hollow trees, augur holes in log houses and other non-expected places. Now they hoard it in safety-deposit vaults and safely keep it from the use or benefit of man, for fear of destruction by fire, flood, or earthquake. It is estimated that not less than five hundred million dollars in gold are snugly hidden and hoarded away here in America today, and none of it available for trade, commerce, or any value whatsoever. There are no records available to disclose the number killed in the present European war, but nurses and hospitals have to keep strict account of all who come under their care. Mr. John R. Mott, recently returned from Europe, says three million men have thus far received wounds and required treatment since hostilities began five months ago. This is an inconceivable number and the pain and anguish endured cannot be portrayed. For wounds, death and destruction the world has never seen a holocaust comparable to this. The only possible hope to be derived from such a tragedy is that God is in His world and that "He healeth the broken in heart and bindeth up their wounds." —Psa. 147:3.

Life Hereafter

The French philosopher, La Bruyere, declared that "Most men employ the first part of their lives making the last part miserable." This is a severe criticism; but many are the pains, ailments and disappointments of middle and latter life caused by the indulgencies and waywardness of early years. Shakespeare never penned truer lines than when he wrote: "The gods are just, and of our pleasant vices, create instruments to plague us." The reckless, indifferent, unconcerned pay in after life for their sins of youth. The inspired writer expressed the thought in cogent phrase, "Be sure your sin will find you out."—Numbers 32:23.

Straws That Tell

The Boyce Weeklies of Chicago have conducted, on a gigantic scale, a campaign to find out the feeling of their nearly seven million readers on the subject of alcohol. The results were startling. People are up in arms against rum even as these weeklies had not dreamed. As a result the Boyce publications refuse to carry any advertisement in their columns of "whiskey, wines, beer or other alcoholic beverages." The whiskey advertisements had paid on an average of $50,000 a year to this syndicate, but having become convinced "that alcohol is a poison and its use as a beverage is injurious to everybody, and that nine million lives are lost by its use every year, and that the loss by alcohol in the United States is far greater in persons and in property than that entailed by the present European war," the Boyce Weeklies will no longer in any way aid or abet the use of it anywhere by anybody. This is a significant statement and indicates which way the wind is blowing, and public sentiment is tending in the matter of alcohol. It is declared that Russia, by prohibiting the sale, manufacture or use of alcohol in its broad domains since the war began, is saving more lives in this direction than her enemies are killing and wounding on the battle field. Prayer and Politics

Six hundred of his political associates and friends gathered at a great feast in Philadelphia recently to make glad with the newly elected governor over his political triumph. One of the speakers of the evening was John Wanamaker, who when called upon contrasted conditions in Europe with those in the United States. After arousing sympathy for the nations at war the distinguished speaker called upon all the diners present to observe with him a moment of silent prayer, "without respect to name or nation, for peace on earth and the restoration of good will toward men." The call to silent prayer in a political gathering, at a great banquet of merry-makers, is most unusual, and shows that men of all vocations find moments when the soul desires most of all communion and fellowship with God. "In everything by prayer and supplication let your requests be made known unto God."—Phil 4:6.

Habit

Mark Twain once wrote: "Habit is habit, and is not to be flung out of the window by anyone, but coaxed downstairs, a step at a time." Mark Twain was a humorist, and so a great philosopher, but we fear he never broke or coaxed away many evil habits. The only way to get clear of a habit is to pitch it out the window, bodily, and then endure the torture, the agony, the pain, of a sad and tragic separation. You cannot coax a habit: not away from you. One's habit is a vital part of one. Psychologists declare that "we are a bundle of habits." A habit is safe, secure and has full mastery as long as it is coaxed or coddled. The best philosopher, the truest and surer psychologist that ever lived, gave the only remedy ever spoken or written for the elimination of a bad habit. Here it is: "If thy right eye offend thee, pluck it out, and cast it from thee: for it is profitable for thee that one of thy members should perish, and not that thy whole body should be cast into hell." (Matt. 5:29.) There isn't much coaxing in Jesus' method of dealing with a bad habit. He knew that a habit was a part of a man, and the only method of eliminating it was that of absolute and sudden and painful separation.

Yet it is not in circulation to any great extent. At the first sight or suggestion of "hard times" or "money panic" the misers withdraw their gold and hide it. The enemy to trade, the foe to commerce, the despair of the banker, the despoiler of activity in legitimate business is the miser who gloats over his gold, hides it beneath the earth or behind a steel door and stubbornly refuses to hear or heed the Master's wise injunction, "Lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal: for where your treasure is, there will your heart be also."—Matt. 6:22.

A New Year Creed

It is just a quotation from an old book by an unknown author; but it is good for any one to adopt as one's own creed at the beginning of the new year: "Do not keep the alabaster boxes of your love and tenderness sealed up until your friends are dead. Fill their lives with sweetness. Speak approving, cheering words while their ears can hear them and while their hearts can be thrilled and made happier by them; the kind things you mean to say when they are gone, say before they go. The flowers you mean to send for their coffins, send to brighten and sweeten their homes before they leave them. If my friends have alabaster boxes laid away, full fragrant perfumes of sympathy and affection, which they intended to break over my dead body, I would rather they would bring them out in my weary and troubled hours, and open them, that I may be refreshed and cheered by them while I need them. I would rather have a plain coffin without a flower, a funeral without a eulogy, than a life without the sweetness of love and sympathy. Let us learn to anoint our friends beforehand for their burial. Postmortem kindness does not cheer the troubled spirit. Flowers on the coffin cast no fragrance backward over life's weary way."

THE NEW YEAR

No, one would not live over the old one again. It had its part, played it out with every one in some fashion, and passed away forever. Much as we regret many events and issues of the past, we would not live it over again. One, on sober thought, agrees with Cicero, the Roman orator and statesman, "If any god should grant me that from this period of life I should become a child again, and cry in the cradle, I should earnestly refuse it." This is not pessimism. This is not saying that the past was not good and could not be improved. It is optimism. It is looking into the future with hope and courage and determination.

The year 1914 was good; but we shall not deplore it. We enter this new year with all the knowledge gained last year at our disposal; we have the benefit of a more mature wisdom and experience; we have the joy and the hope of an untried career opening before us. We shall do as one inspired said, "Forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." That is the courage, that the zeal, that the inspiration with which we enter upon 1915 A. D.

The past year will be remembered in history as seeing more men and armies engaged in war, more men killed in battle, more peoples and nations involved in hostilities than any previous year in the history of the world.

It will be remembered as the year when a new currency law went into operation in the United States.

It will be remembered as the year in which prohibition of the liquor traffic won more and greater victories than in any previous year of history.

In brief, 1914 will be forever a memorable year in history. Let every SUN reader hope, believe and pray that 1915 shall be, if not a more memorable, at least a more wholesome, happy and prosperous year for all that is good and noble and true and brave.

The world grows better and every individual should seek to help it so grow.

OUR SUPREME BUSINESS

When we of the Christian church decide that missions, foreign missions, is the supreme business of the church, otherwise the church has no supreme business, we will awake to a new day, and a new growth. God made missions the supreme duty of His church. Men have been seeking to make other matters the supreme duty of the church. And this is why God will not prosper the church. Man wants his way with it instead of letting God have His way. The divine commission was "Go." The commission of the leaders in this Christian church of ours has been and is, "Stay." And by all the facts and figures available, we have been staying.

If one wants to know why the Christian Church has not grown in numbers the past sixteen years, just say to that one that God, through His Son, said, "Go," but we through our church have said, "Stay." Therefore we are staying where we are—will stay where we are till we decide to take God at His word and go forth to make disciples of all nations. God is wanting us to "go," we are determined to "stay," and God is letting us have our way. "Be sure your sins will find you out." Our sins in not helping to make disciples of all nations as our Savior told us to do are finding us out. That is all. We have virtually said that we know more about this matter than God knows; and He is taking us at our word.

There lies before me now a letter from one who has been a mission secretary for eight years, and a general officer of the church for sixteen years. I quote this one paragraph which should cause every member of the Christian church to hang his head in shame, and smite his breast in humiliation:

"In one direction [the past sixteen years] we have not gained. So far as our statistics show, we have not increased in membership. But why should we desire such an increase, until we are prepared to make use of the added strength for some definite advancement of the Kingdom of God? * * * If a church is living selfishly, if it refuses to do its part in ministering to the welfare of the community, if it will not give to missions, where is the profit in doubling its membership?"

Says a recent writer on missions: "Any one can love his own family, but it takes a high-souled man to love all men." We have cultivated the love for one another, until we have decided we are sufficient unto ourselves. We are not cultivating the "high souls." Our love does not reach far enough from home. We love the folks at home. Here is wherein we differ from all that God is, and all that He has taught us through His Son. He so loved the world—the whole wide world—that He gave His only begotten Son. We shall not be like God, we shall not know His blessed presence and power, until we learn to love Asiatics as well as Americans. Jesus was Himself an Asiatic. So were His disciples. It we exclude the Asiatics from the domain of our love we will leave out Jesus and John and Peter and James and Mary and Martha and the rest. Most veritably our love has become so narrow, so provincial, that there is not much of it. We need to have some high souls amongst us—some souls who, like God, love all men everywhere and want to see them saved also, as well as ourselves.

The great command of our Savior was no request, was no suggestion. "It leaves nothing to our choice. It is an order, comprehensive and unequivocal, a clear, peremptory, categorical imperative, "Go." Says Arth Judson Brown: "No one can read the New Testament without seeing that the evangelization of the world was the supreme thought of Christ. He came into the world to save it." The supreme thought of Christ must be the supreme business of the church—or it has no supreme business. God cannot prosper a non-missionary church and keep His word.

A QUESTION ASKED AND ANSWERED

Comes this enquiry from a beloved pastor: "I am in accord with your oft expressed sentiment that God cannot prosper a non-missionary church and keep His word; but if I make this statement in the pulpit and some skeptic asks me to quote the Word on that point what passage or passages shall I refer him to?" I would first of all refer the doubter to Matt. 28:19-20: "Go ye therefore and make disciples (or Christians) of all nations * * * teaching them to observe all things I have commanded you; and lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world." No church, no people, no preacher can prosper unless Christ be with him; and Christ has not promised to be with any except on condition that they go and make disciples (or Christians, which is the better translation) of all nations.

Again refer the doubter to Luke 24:47-49: "That repentance and remission of sins should be preached in his name among all nations, beginning at Jerusalem. * * * And behold, I send the promise of my Father upon you." But that promise is fulfilled only to those who tarry and those who go (or send) in His name.

If these references would not suffice I should give Prov. 28:13: "He that covereth his sins shall not prosper." This applies to a number of persons, a church as well as to an individual. And is it not a patent and obvious sin on the part of the church not to be missionary when there is one minister at home for every 514 people and candidates thronging every vacant pulpit, while in mission lands there is an average of but one minister of the gospel "for every 174,000 of the population—with all the doors of opportunity wide open and the mission boards appealing in vain for more men." Can God prosper a church that wilfully turns its back upon its largest opportunity, and stubbornly turns to the smaller field and the lesser opportunity instead? The gospel is no more for the benefit of Europeans and Americans than it is for the Asiatics and Africans. A whole gospel is for a whole world. If we who have the gospel will not communicate it to those who have it not we cannot expect the joy, progress and prosperity of those who do communicate its blessed truths.

TRUE CULTURE

The highest learning is not not necessarily the mastery of a great number of books; neither is culture confined to scholastic achievement. A distinguished scholar has said: "The ability to put one's self in the other fellow's place is the hallmark of true culture, far more than any degree or doctor's hood could be." No man can rightfully lay claim to real culture and refinement until he has learned to practice what Paul taught, "In honor preferring one another."—Rom. 12:10.

NOTES AND PERSONALS

—The editor and family visited friends and relatives in Virginia Christmas and had a joyous rest and recreation.

—Rev. J. W. Holt, Burlington, writes: "I have failed to have any congregations at my churches since Conference owing to the continued inclement weather." Many rural churches have suffered in like manner.

—In the death of Rev. Jno. N. Cole, Superintendent of the Methodist Orphanage, Raleigh, N. C., the church loses a devout and useful man, the State an honored citizen, and the orphan children a great friend and helper.

—If any one complains this year about the Annuals just say to such an one that they were shipped to all churches and subscribers before Christmas and within less than two weeks after the last Conference secretary's records were received.

—We have an obituary which would be printed, but there is no name signed, just "A Friend." A nameless letter to a paper is useless, as some one must be held responsible. We regret that "a friend" did not put his or her or its name to the paper sent.

—The Annuals went out before Christmas, and were mailed or expressed, as Secretaries of Conference directed, in most cases to the church secretaries. If anyone wishes an Annual send us 20 cents instamps. We have a few extra copies on hand. The Annual has 175 pages and contains a vast deal of valuable information.

—Rev. J. D. Dollar changes his address from Roanoke, Ala., R. F. D. 4, to Roanoke, Ala., R. F. D. 2. Bro. Dollar's work is the same as that of last year except that of substituting Forest Home for Corinth. The work goes well in his field. He is one of our energetic and consecrated pastors, and pushes the interests committed to his care.

—Among the fortunates to be pounded Christmas we note were Rev. P. H. Fleming, D. D., Greensboro; Rev. L. F. Johnson, D. D., Berkley, Va.; Rev. R. H. Peel, Wakefield, Va.; and Rev. J. S. Carden, Durham, N. C. We presume there were others. Good. Let the noble work go on. The preachers need and deserve it, and know how to appreciate the generosity of those whom they seek to serve daily.

—Rev. A. T. Banks, pastor of the Henderson church, occupied the pulpit of the Elon College church last Sunday and delighted the audience that greeted him. Bro. Banks is deeply interested in his work at Henderson, and as a faithful and devoted pastor is greatly building the work up there. He is a man of promise, and of great consecration, and wins his hearers with his sincerity and his frank, straightforward message from the Book.

—Miss Annie Laurie Wicker, daughter of Dr. W. C. Wicker and a student in the Department of Expression of Elon College, gave a recital one night of the Christmas holidays at Pleasant Union Christian Church, says a Sanford paper, and delighted the large audience that greeted her. "She charmed her audience from the start," says the exchange referred to, "and gave every one an evening of pleasure."

—Rev. W. C. Wicker, D. D., attended last week a meeting of the International Committee on Sunday Schools at Washington, D. C., as a representative from the Christian Church. Dr. Wicker is a member of this committee, being Secretary for Sunday schools of the A. C. C. The Committee has forty members. The work of the committee was that of planning for the international lessons for the four years beginning in 1918. The next meeting of the Committee is in Chicago in April.

—The Hillsboro Street Christian Sunday school, Raleigh, gave a most enjoyable Christmas entertainment to a packed house, says a Raleigh exchange. "The entertainment was gotten up by and was under the direction of Miss May Stephenson, Miss Lena Barrow, Miss Virginia Bonner and Mrs. C. E. Newman. The exercises were most interesting. There were songs, recitations, drills, and a play, Jule Tompter. Refreshments were served to all present. A snug collection was taken for the poor."

—Rev. G. R. Hammond, Pastor Christian Church, Le Grand, Iowa, is laboring zealously and intelligently to make a "picture gallery" of ministers and leading laymen in an Album which he is to publish shortly. His book is to contain cuts and short sketches, and should prove very helpful and valuable as a souvenir book of the Christians. The work is endorsed by the Executive Board of the American Christian Convention and is to be a credit to the promoters. The size of the album will be 10½ x 7 inches. The book will open lengthwise with four pictures on a page, except in cases of churches, which will go two on a page. The price will be $1.00, postage 12 cents extra, and the books are to be ready in February.

—Rev. Frank G. Coffin, D. D., Albany, N. Y., President of the American Christian Convention, sent us on New Year a beautiful folder, of rich and rare artistic design, containing a sentiment as high and exalted as is his own great and useful life, and as hopeful as a Spring day. Too long to repeat here, we hand out this one flower from the rare garland: "The past is past. We have lived in it, but we must not stay in it. Its unpleasant things must not cloud our future with sunless dread, nor shall its joys jealously keep new and greater ones from us. We will not weakly laugh away things as though they had not been, but more emphatically will we not surrender life and prospects to their perpetual dominion. In the sunshine and the shadow of the days that are to be, may the angel of God's presence go with you all the way."

—Our youthful and vigorous friend, Capt. J. A. Turrentine, Burlington, N. C., wants to enter into a covenant with THE SUN's editor "to make this the best year of our lives. We can do it." Why of course we can. Our hand and heart to the task. In renewing for THE SUN for 1915 Bro. Turrentine adds a bit of interesting history: "My father, John S. Turrentine, was one of the original subscribers to THE SUN from its first issue at Hillsboro in 1844 when it was printed by Dennis Hart at the Recorder office. My father continued to take THE SUN as long as he lived and my mother as long as she lived. I became a subscriber when a mere lad and my check now shows that I am taking the paper for the new year, which I hope we shall make the best of all. Don't sulk or get the blues. Don't worry or fret. Just do your best and let THE SUN come on." Thanks, beloved. If all the folks were like you and your folks the editor would never get blue nor fret nor worry, and would make a better paper for the good folks to read and enjoy.

—The Norfolk Ledger-Dispatch of December 30 carried the following: "Perhaps the most interesting service ever given by the Third Christian Sunday school, Park Place, was held last night at the church, Thirty-fourth street and Llewellyn avenue. It was different from the usual Christmas entertainment in that it was a "giving" program throughout, entitled "White Gifts for the King." This service is unique in its make-up, having for its purpose the exaltation of the real Christmas Spirit of Giving, affording an opportunity for all who will to not only give of their substance, but offer themselves for Christian service as well. The giving of "Self, Service and Substance," was emphasized. Each class of the school from the beginners to the adults made their gifts of substance, with appropriate exercises. The program was also interspersed with stories, songs and musical numbers. The following is the result of the service, as tabulated by the superintendent and pastor from the envelopes with promises and pledges enclosed, the envelopes having been given out several days prior to the service. Twenty-three people pledged a renewed consecration and a more active life in the church. Twenty-two promised more faithful attendance upon the services and thirty-eight agreed to get others to attend. Thirty-two pledged to try to lead others to Christ during the New Year. Nineteen promised to attend prayer meeting and take part. Thirty-three agreed to respond to any reasonable request of the pastor and superintendent for service. Nineteen volunteered to become visitors to the strangers and the sick. Thirty-nine promised to read the Bible more regularly. And many other pledges for Christian service, through the various avenues of the church were made. Groceries, fruits, clothing, etc. were also given to the amount of $60 or more, while the cash offering amounted to $65—a total of $125. The groceries and fruits will be sent to the Christian Orphanage at Elon College, N. C. The clothing will be divided between the Union Mission and the Salvation Army in Norfolk, while the cash offering of $65 will be given to the Belgian Relief Fund."

PUBLICITY DEPARTMENT

Just before the holidays we sent out a general letter to something like a thousand subscribers calling their attention to their subscriptions to THE SUN. In mailing the letters out a few were sent by mistake to some who had paid. Perhaps some of the dates were entered wrong. Some times the subscription is credited to the wrong person. These little mistakes occur and you will find us ready and anxious to make any corrections necessary to properly adjust matters. However, should there be any that failed to get one of the letters and want to make a payment on their subscription, we shall be glad to hear from you.

We are just about ready to pull anchor and start our membership boat to sea. The waters look fine for a good cruise, and as we are starting with a few in our crew we want to enlist you to help us at the oars. By doing good team work—everyone pulling together—we will soon override the rough waters and our little craft will begin to sail and increase in speed. We have room for two thousand passengers and we are going to continue to yell "All-aboard" until we get the two thousand on. We are routed to sail by way of Virginia, North Carolina, Georgia and Alabama and make extended trips into the West, Ohio, Illinois, and many other points of interest. The round trip is $1.50. Are you on? Better make your reservation. Let us all take part and make the membership boat of THE CHRISTIAN SUN look like a real "Dreadnaught" on her return trip.

ANNUALS LOST

We have been notified by the Post office department at Atlanta that a bundle of Annuals had gone astray and landed in Atlanta. This bundle is for some one in Alabama or Georgia and we cannot tell for whom. Will you who have not received your annuals drop M. E. Winston a card? All the Annuals that were apportioned to the several Conferences were mailed out Thursday, Christmas Eve. We have a few copies for sale—20 cents each. You should have one in your home. If you care for a copy of same write immediately, for we only have a few extra copies on hand.

NEWS AND VIEWS

—President Wilson celebrated his fifty-eighth birthday on December 28.

—The post offices in the United States handled one hundred million parcel post packages Christmas.

—The war in Europe is estimated to be costing at the rate of $18,000,000 a year. That does not include the cost in suffering, death and anguish.

What do you think of the Annual this year? All churches and subscribers have been supplied and there are a few extra copies to be had at 20 cents each—stamps will do. The book of 175 pages contains the proceedings of the Southern Convention at Portsmouth last May and all the Conferences of the Convention, with complete statistical tables and apportionments for all churches for the year 1915. If you wish to know what we did in our Southern churches in 1914 and have planned to do in 1915 send for an Annual—20 cts. the copy by mail.

Send us your order for Peloubet's Select Notes on International Sunday School lessons for 1915, $1.15 postpaid.

The Standard of Right Living

A Sermon by Rev. Geo. T. Eastes, Third Church, Norfolk, Va.

"Restore unto me the joy of Thy salvation."
Psalm 51:31.

Do we need a revival? If so, where and what kind? In politics? In business? In social life? Perhaps we need a revival in all of these if it were the right sort of a revival, but we need it pre-eminently in the church of Jesus Christ, and the kind that is needed is a revival of Right Living—Right Living on the part of those who profess to love Him and are members of His church.

Observation and experience teach me that there are multitudes of people in our churches today who need to "get right with God." For multitudes the same routine as David passed through is applicable today. Repentance, confession, longing to be restored. This should be the keynote for the church, "Get Right." There is too much religion today that does not demand "Righteousness with God"; too much so-called Christianity that does not demand "Christ-like Living."

The question naturally arises, "What do we mean by 'right living'?" "What does it mean to be 'right with God?'" The question is in order, for there are many standards today, and all supposedly Christian standards; yes, so many that almost anyone outside the outright criminal can find a hiding place under the name "Christian." But God has but one standard for His people. Men have set standards of their own and then lived down to them. God has set a standard and appeals to us to strive towards its attainment.

Some have the idea that God's standard is simply being right with the church. It may mean that, but it must mean more than that, for one may be able to get a good letter of recommendation from his church, signed conscientiously by the clerk and the pastor, and at the same time he may be living like the devil; he may be able to get the endorsement of many friends who believe in him, and at the same time his heart may be dyed with the deepest dyes of sin. Let us not forget that all of us live three times—the life we see ourselves, the life our friends see, and the life that God sees—and let us remember that the life our friends see may be spotless and pure, while at the same time the life that we know and that God sees may be black as hell itself! Being right with God means more than being right in the eyes of our friends and of our church.

Some believe that "righteousness with God" means only righteousness with conscience. "I can do anything if it does not hurt my conscience." What a common saying! It is a master stroke of Satan, for he knows, as we all should know, that we can train our consciences any way we may please. We may follow our conscience just like we would follow a wheelbarrow—push it whichever way we desire it to go. The Pirate Gibbs, who for many years was a terror to commerce with the West Indies and South America, was at last taken captive, condemned and executed in New York City, and the record tells us that before his execution he acknowledged that when he committed the first murder and plundered the first ship his compunction of conscience was severe. It made a hell within his bosom. But after he had sailed for many years under the black flag his conscience became so hardened and blunted that he could rob a vessel and murder all the crew, then lie down and sleep as peacefully as an infant babe in its mother's arms. Horrors cease with the repetition of crime, remorse diminishes as crimes increase. Being right with God means more than being right with conscience. What is God's standard? It is being right with the Word which he has left us as a guide book for right living. Being right with God means that we shall leave off doing those things that are condemned in His Book, and champion those things that His Book upholds. The Bible is not only our guide book, "a lamp to our feet and a light to our pathway," but it is also the ultimate test of life and character, and will be the only book of laws used in the judgment.

THE CHURCH AND YOUNG PEOPLE

BY W. A. HARPER

I see before me the primary department of a modern Sunday school containing one hundred boys and girls, placed there by devoted parents and taught by devoted teachers—taught the Word of God, which is God, which is life, and in the best school I know—the Sunday school—placed in these delightful surroundings in the sweet days of innocency and plasticity that the right direction may be given the character. With what result? Again I ask, with what result? I tremble to answer, that seventy of them, sweet, innocent, gentle children, as sweet and as innocent and as gentle as those whom our Master blessed and of whom He said, "of such is the kingdom of heaven," will never know the joys of salvation offered by Christ and the Church. Isn't this awful fact suggestion enough to any thinking man that herein lies the Church's opportunity and herein her hope?

Let us now shift the scene to the present membership of the Church and inquire what influence brought them into the fold and at what age they entered. We ascertain that 95% came through the Sunday school. This suggests at once that the present church membership can be more than trebled if we can find how to reach the seventy children out of every hundred whom we ought to reach, but do not. Continuing our inquiry we discover that the vast majority of church members came into the Kingdom before their 17th year and fully 50% by their 12th year. 95% of them came before their 25th year, and after 40 practically none. This statement of the source of our loss and tabulation of the ages of our gain makes plain the unmistakable conclusion—that the Church that reaches young people is the Church that shall save the world and its corollary is equally true that the Church that fails to reach young people cannot outlive the present generation.

What answers has the Church given to this most vital issue? Three, as I find them. The first was that of the patriarchal era—that children are born into the Church. They are not to be consulted on the matter at all. Their parents are Church members and so are they. The question is never raised and, if it is, must be settled without debate. The philosophy underlying it is good—that parents are responsible for the religious welfare of their children, a responsibility which they should certainly feel, but which, alas! many seemingly do not feel. If the Christian homes today felt their responsibility for the spiritual welfare of their young as the old patriarchs did, the family altar would speedily re-appear and there would be a mighty outcry for divine assistance. This philosophy on its political side made the Roman state the mistress of the world. Roman boys and girls were taught by their parents to submit themselves to the authority of their elders and most of all to the state, and their obedience, fruiting in loyalty and patriotism, made Rome the arbiter of the world's fate for more than a millennium. The same philosophy is today found in the constitution of the Catholic Church. In it children are born into the Church without any consent or consultation on their part. It is good philosophy but poor Christianity, for Christianity is nothing without the freedom of choice accorded to each individual. Children are responsible for their salvation as much so as their parents, and this the patriarchal Church failed to understand and the Catholic Church today fails to grasp. When Constantine on field of battle promised that his success would mean that the Roman Empire would be Christian, he was acting on this philosophy. He won. That was fifteen centuries ago, but the Roman Empire is not even yet Christian. It was nominally so after his victory, but Christ does not care for nominal Christians. He is seeking actual Christians—Christians in deed and in truth and no others can please Him.

Martin Luther saw the weakness of the Catholic Church. The Protestant Reformation was not only a protest against the pope and the rottenness of Catholicism; it was equally an appeal to men to accept Christ for themselves as free men and to worship Him according as they understand the Bible. Luther did not intend to deny that parents are responsible for the religious welfare of their children. He recognized it and urged all parents to train up their children in the way that they should go. But he also realized, what the Catholic system ignored or failed to see, that children are responsible for their own soul's welfare and that each individual must settle the matter for himself ultimately. It therefore became the duty of parents and of the Church to win the young people to Christ. Surely Christian parents and the Church of God can have no higher, holier motive than that—a practical application to the problems close at hand of the spirit of the great commission. Therefore the Protestant Reformation became a great revival of religion, when men's hearts rejoiced because of new-found experiences and for that reason the iron hand of Rome could not crush it. The spirit witnessed within that Luther was pleading for the right and neither imprisonment nor death could defeat the progress of the movement that first brought the individual soul to face responsibility for its own eternal destiny and to experience a joy that it had never before felt—the joy of salvation, the sweetest joy man can ever know.

It would seem that at last the Church had found the final solution to this vital problem, but not so. Here again the philosophy was good and the religious basis good. Here was a distinct advance over the patriarchal conception. Luther's idea included in it the patriarchal conception and added to it the Christian doctrine of individual responsibility. As in every reform there was danger of swinging to the extreme and of making the child entirely responsible for its religious welfare. That is exactly what happened. The family altar decayed. The Sunday school came to supply the lack, which it can never do, and we today suffer from the extreme individualistic tendencies of the Reformation. And just as Greece fell before less capable nations because of extreme individualism, just so must the Church suffer till we get it to see that parents and children are equally responsible for the winning of the young to Christ and the Church. I repeat that the philosophy underlying the Protestant Reformation was good and the religious basis, the religious theory of it was good, but its practice was faulty.

But what was its practice? How did the Protestant Church undertake to win the young to its fold, realizing as it did that they must be individually won if they ever became really Christians? It undertook to make its appeal to the young attractive. Surely there can be no objection to that. Surely there is nothing more attractive than the Christian life. It was the method it took to attract the young to itself and to Christ—a method which Christ did not employ and which produced worldly-mindedness and which has led to the multiplicity of sects as the sect from which each split lost its spiritual vitality and became more or less a social club. I would not be understood as opposing the social life. Christ did not. He attended wedding feasts and banquets and gave His approval to the enjoyment of the social nature and to its cultivation. But He never used it as the door to salvation nor as the motive for the acceptance of His discipleship. He declared that there was but one door—Himself—and that those who accepted discipleship in His Kingdom took upon themselves a yoke. With what disapproval must He look upon His Church making its appeal to the young through a debating society or an oyster supper or a hay-ride or a picnic or an excursion? Not that Christ would oppose these innocent diversions—not that, let me not be misunderstood—but that the Church which makes its appeal to the young through such means will never be a spiritual power. The whole conception of the Church on the part of those who are thus won to its membership is incorrect and it can never be other than a social centre, whereas it should be a spiritual dynamo. We cannot run the Kingdom on sociability, or as Pucker said, "on Ladies' Aid and lemonade." We cannot do it, and the Church that attempts it is doomed to lose its spiritual life.

Let me say again that I believe in Ladies' Aid and lemonade and oyster suppers and picnics and pink and red and green teas and moonlight excursions and in every other legitimate, Christian form of social intercourse on the part of Christians and in the name of the Church, but I would give them not the preeminent place, but a subordinate, in the program of reaching the young and in holding them true to the Church. The young people are determined to enjoy themselves socially. They have a right to do so. The Father gave them relish for it and they ought to be given opportunity to satisfy that attribute of their life. They will have this social diversion. If the Church opposes them, they will seek it outside the Church and ought to. The social life is a sort of safety-valve that prevents the boiler of life from bursting under the high-pressure times in which we live. The Church that undertakes to tie down that valve has prepared its own destruction, but the Church that sets it at the proper gauge will render its young people a great service in wisely directing their social life and wonderfully multiply its usefulness in the uplift of life around it. Nor let the Church in granting this social diversion do so with any aversion as if pandering to a necessary evil, a weakness in human nature as the Catholic Church does in granting its sanction to marriage. Marriage is honorable and holy and so is the social life, and the Church should provide for its exercise and cultivation on that basis. The Church is under the same obligation to provide social development for its young people as it is to provide the means of Christian education for them, and it is a short-sighted Church which neglects either.

But let not the Church think, as she, alas! too often has, let her not think that in providing for social diversion for her young people she is doing her spiritual duty by them. The social life when properly directed ministers to the spiritual life just as the intellectual life under proper safe-guard does, but neither of them constitutes that life. It would be more nearly the truth to say that the spiritual life must minister to the social and intellectual life; else the best type of Christian cannot result. We know the tendency of the social life to run into worldliness and excess and of the intellectual life to degenerate into infidelity and skepticism where the spiritual life is not in the ascendancy in the individual. Therefore the Church must not think it is performing its spiritual function for its flock when it stops with providing social and intellectual culture. And this brings me to that third answer which the Church has in our day given to the great problem that confronts it for solution.

But first I must introduce you to the condition that led to its discovery, for it was a discovery, not an invention, but a genuine discovery, a gift from God to the Church, and as is usual in all such cases the answer came to a man of God busy with the work of the Kingdom and burdened joyfully beneath practical problems. It was in Portland, Me., and in an insignificant Church presided over by a humble young minister unknown to fame that this answer was discovered—an answer that has quickened the religious pulse of the world and given hope and spiritual joy to millions of the noblest young people of the earth. A glorious revival had just closed in the Williston Church and 40 young people had taken their stand for Christ, buoyant with enthusiasm, anxious to serve, willing to be led. What an opportunity! Yet what a responsibility. I am always glad when I hear of large numbers coming into a Church, but I always pray for the pastor of that flock. He needs it. Many of these young people had made the noble decision before, only to feel the need of a new start now. The young pastor was happy and yet burdened. What should he do? He had tried every means known to him to keep his young people true to the Church, but he had failed. Debating society, patriotic club, various kinds of teas and suppers, various kinds of picnics and excursions, various kinds of circles—they had all been enjoyed, they had all made the Church popular with the young people, but when the annual season of evangelistic services came around, these same young people felt that there was something lacking in their spiritual condition and so they had again, many of them, presented themselves at the altar. But all of them had not. Some—how many he dared not tell—some had become so keenly disappointed with the spiritual life that they had become callous, indifferent, and hardened of heart—had gone back to the world, drawn themselves into their shell as it were, and had become incapable of responding to any appeal to live the Christian life. Would he lose these forty also? But what was he to do?

There was but one thing left for him to do.

He prayed. He had prayed before, but never had his heart been burdened for light and guidance as at this time. It was man's extremity, and it was God's opportunity. He prayed as he had never prayed before, and as he prayed the answer came clear and distinct as if some one were speaking to him: "There is but one way to appeal to the spiritual nature of man and that is to give him spiritual work to do." That was his answer—it was God's gift to our generation of young manhood and womanhood in Christ, and out of it grew the Christian Endeavor Society, which, as has been said, has given the opportunity of spiritual growth and development to millions of the noblest young men and women of the world.

The Christian Endeavor Society was organized in 1881 by Dr. Francis E. Clark. It had forty members. It today numbers more than 5,000,000 members with more than a quarter million organizations. It provides for the spiritual nature the three necessary ingredients of healthful development—wholesome food, pure air, and systematic exercise. The food is daily Bible readings and prayer—necessary articles of diet for the spiritual man. The air is provided by the opening words of the Society's Covenant, "Trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ for strength," and is kept pure by attendance on the regular preaching services of the Church and its midweek prayer meeting. The systematic exercise is found in active participation in the Society's public prayer meetings and by service on its numerous committees. The four fundamental principles of the Society commend themselves to all devout Christians—self-expression in Christian service, loyalty to the Church, fellowship with all God's people, and unflinching devotion to Christ. The Society believes in the social life and provides for its cultivation and enjoyment, but its position is secondary to the spiritual good of each member and the aim is ever present to make the social life minister to the spiritual and to have the spiritual life control and direct the social intercourse of the young. Christian Endeavor teaches patriotism; it preaches Christian giving by the tithing system; it provides for the resurrection of the family altar through its quiet hour league; it urges personal work for the salvation of others; it insists on Bible study; it inculcates missionary zeal; it turns the abounding energy of the young into useful channels of spiritual development and vouchsafes to the Church that fosters and encourages it a generation of trained leaders of vision and consecration that shall mightily labor for the ushering in of the Kingdom of our Lord.

WAKEFIELD NOTES

Christmas passed very quietly in and around Wakefield. The inclement weather undoubtedly broke into many plans. But it is often thus in life. We lay plans and powers over which we have no control bring changes we had not expected. Through the kindness and generosity of friends the writer and his family were privileged to enjoy oysters and turkey for Christmas. These kindnesses are very much appreciated, and the memory of such friends will be fondly cherished.

The Wakefield Christian Church held its Christmas service on Tuesday night, Dec. 29. The "white gift" service was used. Several who were on the program were kept away by the unfavorable weather, but those present rendered their part well and the service was very impressive. It is the writer's opinion that this service is quite an improvement on many services arranged for Christmas.

Contributions to the amount of about $91 were made by the school. R. H. PEEL.

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS

SUFFOLK LETTER

On the second Sunday in December Mr. Geo. F. Whitley, of Smithfield, Virginia, came to Suffolk by invitation to deliver an address to the 20th Century Baraca Class. It was a cold, rainy day, but the room was packed with men and women, the Philathea Class having been invited to attend.

The Baraca Class is taught by H. Woodward, who is Note Teller at the Farmers' Bank of Nansemond; and Col. J. M. Macleary is President of the class. The Philathea Class is taught by Senator J. E. West; and Mrs. I. W. Johnson is President. Both of these teachers and presidents are enthusiastic and faithful, and give much time and study to the work. If the whole church could be enlisted in the work as these persons the Sunday school and church would reach a stage of efficiency never dreamed of by the most sanguine; but there are many other teachers in the school equally devoted and successful in the work. This school has never been so efficient as at the present time.

But the address of Mr. Whitley was the main feature of that second Sunday morning in December. It was a well prepared, well delivered, and well received message. Mr. Whitley is a young attorney of Smithfield, a graduate of Elon College, an active Sunday school worker, a devout Christian, and a good lawyer. His message instructed, inspired, and encouraged his audience. He comes of good Christian church parentage, L. H. Whitley of Isle of Wight Court House being his father, and he maintains the family record for devotion to his church.

At the eleven o'clock service in the church Mr. Whitley sang, "Hold Thou My Hand." He is a good singer as well as a good speaker, and carried us up in our devotions by that great song. He came alone in his car that rainy day to deliver that message and sing that song; and I thought, if he could come twenty miles through the rain, church members ought not to let a shower or a storm keep them from church.

It was our good fortune that same day to have Rev. W. S. Long, D. D., of Crapel Hill, N.C., to preach for us. I had been with Dr. Long the day before at the funeral service of Mrs. J. W. Carlton in Richmond, and upon my invitation he came down with me to preach for us. His sermon was fine, embodying long experience, studious habits, and the devotional spirit. Few men carry the marks of young manhood into riper years as Dr. Long. A quarter of a century has made little change in his face, vigor of thought, tone of voice, or manner of delivery. It was a great day for me, with nothing to do and the best to hear from one who was my teacher and the other a graduate under my Elon administration. Years roll on, but the past rolls back upon us like the incoming tide; and the good that is past comes back like the coming of a new day; the sun that passed out of sight in the evening comes back to flood the world with the glory of undimmed splendor.

This age needs men whose lives are devoted to truth and human society, and whose lives present the essential elements of manhood worthy of imitation by the young.

A SUCCESSFUL LIFE WORK

It has been said that "Men manifest the true Christian spirit when they are willing to do more than their share of the work." Why should not we all be willing to do more than our share? There are many reasons why we should. It is our duty because Christ commands it. We may work because He did.

We should always consult God and His Word as to how we should work. We must study those whom we would influence, their needs, and give them the words of truth that will satisfy their hungry souls. Many souls have gone to meeting with the hope of getting spiritual food, and have come away with their souls hungering, because the preacher did not know how to give the truth spiritually.

Do not delay in your work, for one hour's delay may mean an opportunity missed and a soul lost. Jesus said, "My Father worketh hitherto and I work." "Work while it is day, for the night cometh when no man can work."

Now if we work and follow the example our Savior left for us to follow, in whatever work we are called to do, when our life work is done we may look back on a successful life work, and say from a glad and full heart as did Paul when his work was almost finished. We can almost see him as he sat at the rude desk that had been used to write letters of comfort to the different churches, scribbling along as he wrote his farewell words to the church at Ephesus and its bishop Timotheus, "I have fought a good fight; I have finished my course; I have kept the faith; henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness."

WHITE GIFTS

At the Christian church, Tuesday evening, December 29, White Gifts for the King, a Christmas service written by Phebe A. Curtiss and based upon the legend of Cathay, was rendered in the presence of a splendid audience. While conditions of weather and health were such as to necessitate the curtailment or the substitution of many of the numbers of this very popular and unique Christmas service, on the whole it was reasonably well executed and we believe with good and lasting results. The decoration was of unusual attraction, and the presents to the scholars through the intermediate grades and including Home Department, were of the usual high order. But the crowning feature of the service was that suggested by the title in which the giving of Self, Service and Substance was emphasized. In keeping with this idea, each class of the school from Cradle Roll to Home Department made some gift or gifts, the summary of which for the whole school amounted to nearly 200. The pledge of Substance (money) amounted to $91. One hundred and twenty-eight persons signed various pledges under head of Service, and eleven made promises under head of Self.

Happily indeed will be the day when everywhere stress shall be laid at Christmas time upon giving in the Christ-like spirit. It is the spirit of the gift that makes it "white," and Christians should see to it that this spirit is kindled, especially in the hearts of the growing generation, through every possible means. "Nor doth the King regard one gift above another so long as all be white."

THE CLOSING YEAR

BY REV. D. E. MILLARD, D. D.

We have passed from another year of time. And as we look back over the past how forcibly do the words of the poet come home to us: "We spring, we bud, we blossom and we blast

Ere we can count our days—our days they flee so fast,
They end when scarce begun;
And ere we apprehend that we begin to live,
Our life is done."

But what of the past? The years that are gone, where are they? They are gone, never to return; but they have left their influence—their eternal influence upon every one of us. And eternity will bear witness to their negligence or faithfulness. While it is a solemn thing to look forward to the time when we shall stand on the brink of life and look back on all our years, it is still more affecting to stand in the freshness of youth or middle life and look back on the years that are gone! How did we spend them? Remember they are registered and judged. Not when the judgment day dawns will they be more fixed and judged than they are already—for the fixed and irrevocable character of our actions as soon as they are performed is a solemn law of our condition.

How important, then, it is that we should live for a purpose, and that we do well what we have to do while we live. There is but one true way to measure time, and that is by the services we have rendered, the work we have done, the religious advancement we have made, the preparation and defenses we have provided against all events that befall us here, and the recollections of faithfulness which we have been treasuring up for the heavenly world.

In comparison with this there is no computation worth naming. It is the very one for which all others are set. They will disappear, but this will abide. They are but trials or accidents or means. This expresses the great end and aim of our existence.

What men may account much in this world, and what they may account little, seem alike small to those who have no more to expect, and nothing can appear long that is about to end. But, dear reader, though everything else may fall into ruin, the reward of righteousness—of having endeavored to follow Christ in sincerity and with true devotion—can never fail, for God has promised it, and "His word endureth forever."

The year just closed has been the end of this life to countless numbers and the end will soon come to us who remain. But there is an endless life beyond, and a noble destiny awaits us, if, accepting and following Christ, we will reach out for it. The Lord help each one of us to consecrate ourselves, our life, our all to Christ and his blessed service! And if we should never see the close of another year, may we become inhabitants of that City which has "no need of the sun, neither of the moon to shine in it; for the glory of God doth lighten it, and the Lamb is the Light thereof."

GREENSBORO LETTER

Four members were received into church fellowship on December 20. The Sunday school Christmas exercises were good and the treat given the children was thoroughly enjoyed. The church has recently rebuilt the furnace at a cost of something over a hundred dollars and new lights have been put in the auditorium, and arrangements made whereby some of our Sunday school rooms will be heated. The church is now certainly well heated and beautifully lighted.

The Ladies' Aid and Missionary Societies are showing increased interest. Several new members have been received recently. The Willing Workers, a missionary band of little folks, gave an interesting exercise at the church a few evenings before Christmas.

The spirit of fellowship and good will is seen and felt in all of our services. The following

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON II. JANUARY 10.

Deborah and Barak Deliver Israel.—Judges 4:4-23; 5:1-22.

The prophetess and judge, Deborah, called Barak to lead an army against the Canaanites. Barak in company with Deborah led the army against captain Sisera of the Cananite army. They were successful in their task. Sisera, for some cause, fled to the tent of Heber, the Kinite. Jael, Heber's wife, killed Sisera by driving a tent-pin through his temple with the mallet used in pitching the tent.

The people of Israel had gone as far as they could and in order to get possession of the Promised Land something had to be done. A man could not accomplish the task alone.

In our own day many are facing an opposing foe. A man can not fight the battles alone. He calls for the help of women in the schools to train boys and girls that they may be prepared to fight the battles of life. In the Sunday school she is teaching the same boys and girls how to fight the battles for Christ.

Deborah and Barak pulled together and fought against one evil. If we have, and certainly we do, an evil, we should fight side by side until Sisera has been killed.

Dr. J. F. Cowan writes in the Christian Endeavor World: "We must work with the common people; we must trust the common people; we must win by the common people. The spirit of sex jealousy that sometimes beclouds the common good today was blown away like a fog by some kind wind in that day. Barak could bear to have Deborah tell him: 'The journey that thou takest shall not be for thine own honor, for Jehovah will sell Sisera into the hand of a woman.'

"So, I believe, Jehovah is going to sell the saloon-keeper into the hand of a woman. At the last election in Illinois after the vote was given to women sixteen counties went dry. It was 'up to Jael,' so to speak, in California and Oregon.

"What we men have got to do is to get over our petty sex jealousy, leading us to think that our preserves as 'lords of creation' will be poached upon if we give woman a tent-pin and a hammer with which to nail Sisera to the earth on election day, and to get broad minded enough and big hearted enough to welcome her as a co-ruler, a helpmeet in keeping house in the larger terms of state and nation as well as in the smaller terms of kitchen and bedroom.

"You say you are willing to go part way and give woman a vote on all moral and educational questions, but she must keep clean of 'dirty politics.' Well, wasn't the exemption of the Panama Canal from tolls a moral question? Isn't the treaty giving $25,000,000 to Columbia a moral question? I hope we have no immoral questions in politics. What we need is not to keep women 'clean of dirty politics,' but to have her help us to keep all politics clean of dirt."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC: JANUARY 10

Our Denominational Boards, and Our Relation to Them.—2 Cor. 8:15.

This meeting needs no little preparation in order to have a profitable and inspirational meeting. We should learn of other denominations than ours. We should know of what other churches are doing; what other boards are accomplishing. Then we will be more capable of judging what proportion of the work we are doing and what amount we should do.

The leader in outlining his talk and suggestions should briefly summarize the circumstances and conditions when he came into the Kingdom—into the church.

He should point out how in the last decade the individuals of the church have grown in Christian grace and manhood; how the church has grown in strength and magnitude. The faster the individual grows the faster the church will grow, also the faster the church grows the quicker will the world become christianized.

Many times churches are founded by the forming and organizing a Sabbath school or a young people's society. This should be encouraged and given hearty support. Of the coming church we are to be the makers and sustainers. It is our business to find out what the home and foreign mission boards need and then to supply them in the best way we can. They are planning the work that we will have to carry out so it is necessary that we get in harmony with their desires and needs. We are to have trained men for the work if it is to go forward. "Every denomination needs ministers in hearty accord with its spirit and teachings. If it wants such men, it must provide ways of training them. It owes God and the country its share of providing for the education of the young under good religious influences and not in schools and colleges irreligious or infidel in tone. That means that place must be made for an educational department."

For answer in the meeting, from the Christian Endeavor World:

In what lines of the work is our denomination prominent?

What are the fields for which our denomination is largely responsible?

What consequences to the boards come from irregularity in giving?

How may the support of the denominational work help the church as a whole?

Why is the interest of the young people important for the boards?

In what ways have we in our church been helped by our boards?

Tell something about one officer in our boards and his duties?

How are we to keep informed about the work and needs of our board?

What are the greatest needs of our boards at present?

In what ways can we give more support to our denominational boards this year?

SHALL WE HAVE A TRAVELING FIELD SECRETARY?

The following letter has been sent to the ministers of the Southern Christian Convention. If those who are interested in Sunday school and Christian Endeavor work will give their hearty co-operation, there will be no difficulty in raising the necessary funds.

The service of Sister Bullock in the field for one year will mean much to our work. Consider the matter carefully, pray over it and if you think it will be helpful to the cause and can be done at this time, tell your pastor to go ahead and make the subscription and you will help him out with it.

Winchester, Va., December 28, 1914.

Dear Fellow Pastor:

We have long felt the need of more efficient methods in dealing with our young people. We have realized that there was vast room for improvement in our Sunday schools. The Young People's Convention was organized to meet this need and much has been accomplished through its activities, but the leaders in the work have felt all the while that the great need was some one in the field.

We have the opportunity now to secure the services of one of the best, if not the best, field workers within the bounds of the Southern Christian Convention. It is for you to say, Brother Pastor, whether we shall do this or not. A little co-operation on your part will make it possible. The Baptists have thirty-two men engaged in this work in the South. However, it is not a matter of doing like other denominations or even of keeping pace with them, but it is a question of our church doing its duty by the local organizations and the local organizations in turn filling their places in their respective communities.

I am sending this with the prayer that the Lord may help our pastors to co-operate in this work, which is so vital to the future usefulness of our church.

Mrs. F. Bullock, known to all of us through her writings and to many of us personally, has agreed to give all her time to this work if satisfactory arrangements can be made. Her duties will be as follows: to edit the page in THE CHRISTIAN SUN, visit the churches and Sunday schools, organizing Christian Endeavor Societies, Bible Classes, Home Departments, Cradle Rolls, Teacher Training Classes, etc.; attending our conferences, Sunday school and Christian Endeavor Conventions, and conducting a bureau of general information for this department of our work.

If you will sign the following subscription blank, guaranteeing Five Dollars ($5.00) from your field and grant Sister Bullock the privilege of taking a silver offering wherever she holds a service in your pastorate, the plan will be in operation in a short time.

In the absence of a regular Treasurer, the undersigned will receive and receipt for all moneys. Please let me hear from you within ten days.

Thanking you in advance for your interest, I remain,

Sincerely,

W. T. WALTERS,

President S. S. and C. E. Convention.

$5.00 Jan., 1915.

I hereby pledge $5.00 from myself and my field for the work of the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor General Convention.

The same to be paid, 1915.

PRECIOUS OINTMENT

*Do not keep your box of ointment;
 Break it o'er your friends today;
 Do not keep it in the darkness,
 Half forgotten, laid away.
 Little deeds of love and kindness,
 Don't forget to give them now;
 Don't forget to soothe the pillow—
 Don't forget to bathe the brow.
 Send your flowers to the living,
 Do not keep them for the grave—
 They may comfort some poor mourner,
 They may strengthen, help and save.
 Send them in their fragrant beauty—
 Show your friendship true and warm;
 What would care a rosewood casket?
 What would care a lifeless form?
 Hearts there are with burdens laden,
 Bearing bravely toil and care;
 Ready to receive your kindness
 Should you leave your ointment there.
 Don't forget the kindly counsel—
 Don't forget the loving tone;
 They will make the cross seem lighter
 To some sorrow-laden one.
 All along life's rugged pathway
 Stretch your hand and lift your voice,
 Bringing all your love and kindness,
 Making every heart rejoice.
 Keep your ointment ever ready—
 Use it freely—there is room,
 It will bring you richest blessings,
 Smooth your passage to the tomb.*

NOTES

How many of our societies observed the Week of Prayer? Let us hear from all that have thrived in this department.

Now that we are starting on a new year, let us determine to do more aggressive work for the spreading of the glad tidings which have brought so much of cheer, recently, to us.

Have you yet organized a class and supplied yourselves with "The Child in the Midst"? If you can't organize a class, be sure to procure the book, study it, and pass it on to another to enjoy it also.

Now that we are to have a recruit in the Porto Rico field, new interest will be aroused and greater zeal manifested. Let us remember Miss Williams as she goes out to her labors.

The Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church, 156 Fifth Avenue, is the possessor of the finest Foreign Mission library in the world. Actual photographs and histories of the scenes of conflict of today add a new thrill for the thousands who visit the place. There are over 10,000 books on every phase of the Foreign Missionary question, besides its large collection of photographs, curios and lantern slides. There are volumes printed in the languages of India, and translations of the Bible made by those noble Serampore missionaries in the beginning of the modern missionary enterprise. And there is a Bible of which the board's own first missionary to Japan translated so large apart. An album just received here gives in fine pictures the contrast between the past and present in Japan, a wonderful revelation of the strides Japan has made in material things. There is also the latest edition of the missionary map of the world just out. It measures six feet by ten.

A RECRUITING STATION FOR THE CHURCH

MRS. A. T. BANKS, HENDERSON, N. C.

From a small beginning the Christian Endeavor Society has advanced in an ever-rising tide. When we speak of the small beginning we look backward thirty-three years ago when Dr. Francis E. Clark was pastor of the Williston Congregational church of Portland, Me.

In the Winter of 1880-81 a series of special evangelistic services in the church had led a great many young people into church membership, and Dr. Clark realized if these young people were to be held for the church, they must be trained for service. He called his young people together and on February 2, 1881, the first Christian Endeavor pledge was signed and the following Sunday the first Christian Endeavor prayer meeting was held.

From that small beginning in Portland the society has spread until today there are more than 80,000 Christian Endeavor societies in the world with more than four million members.

There are Christian Endeavor societies in every country of the world, and each week meetings are conducted in more than eighty languages.

Something like 1,500 daily, weekly and monthly periodicals carry Christian Endeavor news; more than 200 periodicals are devoted entirely to Christian Endeavor work.

One of the greatest features of the work is that it is inter-denominational in its scope and work. It does not include or think of the young life of one denomination only, but brings together in fellowship young people of different faiths.

Having its beginning in a Congregational church, it has today eighty-seven denominations claiming Christian Endeavor as their young people's society. Throughout the world there are probably more Methodist Christian Endeavor societies than those of any other denomination. On this continent there are more societies in the Presbyterian churches. The Christian church stands second in this great movement, the Congregational third, Baptist fourth. In England, Burma and India the Baptists lead in Christian Endeavor, while in Australia, Spain and France and other countries the Methodists lead; in Norway, Denmark, Germany and Russia the Lutherans lead, etc.

Thus we find this great Christ-like movement meeting the needs of the age in the spirit of the Master of all ages, has gathered impetus with every passing year, and from evangelical Christian forces in every land. The blessed achievements of real Christian Endeavorers are today reforming lives, transforming character, and adding a mighty impulse to the Christian forces of the world.

Since looking at the scope of the Christian Endeavor movement, we can more readily see what it means as a recruiting station for the church. It has been in the past one of the greatest agencies in bringing the churches closer together.

Knowing what it has done for the church of the past, and as we look to the future we look for progress, we can see the greater per cent. of the church members as boys and girls trained through the Christian Endeavor societies. For its missionary zeal, evangelistic fervor and consecration of the young people quicken every department of the church.

Into the society the new Christian is admitted. Here he is recognized as such and may at once have the opportunity and be encouraged to acknowledge his Savior and at once be given something to do for him in the way of practical service.

It accustoms him to the sound of his own voice in the prayer meetings. It causes him to understand that he has a part to perform in the activities of the church as well as the oldest Christian. It sends him upon numerous errands for Christ. Very soon he learns that he has a duty in the general church prayer meetings, and he becomes naturally one of the workers of the church.

The Christian Endeavor may also be called the recruiting station for the church, because it has for its ideals spirituality, sanity, enthusiasm, loyalty, fellowship, thorough organization and consecration, and we feel there can be no active church member without obtaining these qualities.

Though the church strengthens and carries forth the greater religious movements of the world through its different denominations and their respective modes of worshipping God as the all-wise Father and maker of mankind, we might call it the uppermost round on the ladder of Christian activity and in the Christian Endeavor we start at the very lowest and rise ever upward to be of that greater service to the world through the church, and as we strive to make the step forward we may be trained in the Christian Endeavor through its manifold activities and seven ideals previously mentioned. We say spirituality first, because that is the foundation upon which the real Christian builds his aims and leans for success amid the strife for the infinite goal.

Then too its ideals include sanity, for the progress of every development depends upon the intellectual ability of those who stand behind it and for it, and when we think of sanity we coincide with wisdom which we know has its beginning in the fear of the Lord.

It recruits its members for the church through loyalty and enthusiasm, which may well go hand in hand, for if the members be loyal they will be enthusiastic; if enthusiastic, loyal. We know that the Christian Endeavor has been noted in all its history for its strict and unswerving loyalty to the local church. It is in the church, of the church, for the church. It is loyal to every movement of the church, and stands by it at all times regardless of denomination and prepares its young people for that greater usefulness upon which the church of tomorrow depends, making them see the needs of the hour and endeavor to apply them.

In the heart of the pledge is a promise of loyalty to our church and through the weekly meetings of the Christian Endeavor the members are quickened and kept awake to the problems of church necessities.

It is an aid to the church through organization as it is known no body either spiritual or political can develop without thorough organization. The Christian Endeavor stands for patriotism, honest business life, pure home life, loyal they will be enthusiastic; if enthusiastic, hood with all mankind.

We find also that the Christian Endeavor has revolutionized the church in respect of practical service and the training for it. Its influence has penetrated far deeper and beyond what goes under its name. So vitally is this movement bound up with the church life of today that its decline would mean the decline of the church of Christ itself in virility and beauty.

So in conclusion, let it be our prayer that the work of the Christian Endeavor has just begun in comparison with its great force in the future as a recruiting station for the church.

Elementary and Cradle Roll Departments

Edited by Mrs. J. J. Lincoln, Wakefield, Va., and Mrs. F. Bullock, Waverly, Va., respectively, to whom all communications for these Departments should be addressed.

Motto: "First the Blade."
Colors: Green and White.

We come now to the Primary child; going to school, getting their initiation into the great mysteries of "readin', writin' and 'rithmetic," not so restless as the Beginner, yet not ready for the Juniors.

Perhaps, before we go further, it will help us if we should consider briefly the special characteristics of the different grades. I take my subject matter for this part largely from Moninger's book, Training for Service, and I would advise any teacher to use this book as a help in her teaching work, even if she has never seen a definite need, or perhaps has time for a regular course in Teacher Training.

There are, first of all, the two divisions of children, the motor and sensory classes. There are more divisions that might be made, but this is sufficient for all our purposes at present. The motor child is the one who speaks and does first, and thinks afterwards. They jump to conclusions, they lose their temper quickly, and forgive as easily; they adore their teacher today, and pay no attention to anything she may say to them tomorrow; they can answer promptly all questions while the matter is fresh in their minds, but ask them about last month's lesson and it is gone from their minds like water off a duck's back.

Then the sensory child; they do not respond so quickly as the motor child; they do not seem to learn so readily, and they show affection much less demonstratively, so that we are apt to think them dull and slow; on the other hand, a thing once learned is learned forever, and impressions remain with them that are lost on the motor child.

"But," says Moninger, "a caution here is necessary. The teacher must not expect all children to fall definitely and early into the two groups. Speaking generally, every child is predominantly either motor or sensory, but some children have a much more marked bias than others. The types as described above are boldly marked off from each other, but, in actual experience, we find all degrees of gradation between the typically motor on one hand, and the typically sensory on the other. The value of the distinction lies not so much in itself as in the vantage ground it supplies for studying children. In fact, all such classifications are valuable only in so far as they are applied to and corrected by experience."

Having, then, in mind these two great divisions, let us see what are the special characteristics of children in general, and of the various grades in particular. As general characteristics, Moninger names; 1st, Restlessness; 2nd, curiosity; 3rd, play instinct; 4th, love for stories.

Let us remember always that these instinct are implanted in the child by the heavenly Father. They will be modified and changed as the child increases in years, but the general characteristics of each particular age were given for a definite purpose, and let us consider well ere we try to thwart and remake the child into what we think he ought to be, not into what his Divine Maker knows he needs to be. For instance, restlessness. Says Moninger: "This is often treated as a defect, but it is nature's provision against a one-sided development." With everything to learn in a strange world and an unknown language, how would the incurious child ever learn anything? And if we take from the child his love of play and love for stories, we take from him nature's two greatest channels of appeal to heart and mind. Remember that the greatest Teacher told the greatest truths in story form. Cordially, Your Elementary Superintendent.

MEN WANTED AT ONCE

There is today all over this land of ours recruiting stations established for the purpose of getting young men between the ages of 17 and 35 to join the army and navy. The offer of pay for this service ranges from seventeen dollars to twenty-one, board included.

Now this would not be so bad if one simply had to march to and fro and travel over the wide world. But the time comes very often when the cry of war is heard and then these young men must shoulder their guns and go forth to battle, perhaps against their own friends or relatives. And then the pay is death.

Now there is a greater calling than this. It is the calling for men and women of all ages to join the army of the Lord and fight under the banner of the Cross. Which of these armies do you belong to, or rather, which are you going to join?

WHAT THE FARMER DID

A city man recently visited his "country cousin." The man from the city wishing to explain the joys of metropolitan life, said: "We have certainly been having fun the last few days. Thursday we autoted to the country club, and golfed until dark, then trolled back to town and danced until morning."

The country cousin was not to be stumped in the least, so began telling some of the pleasures of the simple life: "We have had a pretty good time here, too. One day we bugged out to Uncle Ned's and went out to the back lot where we baseballed all that afternoon. In the evening we sneaked up into the attic and poked until morning."

A sturdy old farmer listening, and determined not to be outdone took up the conversation at this point and said: "I was having some fun about this time myself. I muled to the cornfield and ge-hawed until sundown. Then I suppered until dark, and piped until 9 o'clock, after which I bedsteaded until the clock fired, after which I breakfasted until it was time to go muling again.—Farm Journal.

MME. HOMER is one of America's greatest singers. Great singers are extremely particular as to what pianos shall accompany their marvelous voices. Only a very few pianos are sufficiently pure in tone and responsive in the action to satisfy them.

CHURCH NEWS

AT URBANA, ILL.

It was the writer's privilege to spend from December 16-20 at the Illinois State University, Urbana, Ill., in an evangelistic campaign among the students. Some features of this were unique and quite interesting.

METHODS

The campaign was under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. of the University. Bishop McConnell of Denver, Col., was invited to do the preaching and a number of college and university preachers were invited to assist in co-operation with the student pastors of their respective denominations. In former campaigns we had been represented by the Disciples, but Rev. R. C. Helfenstein, pastor of the Urbana Christian Church, demanded and received recognition. The Bishop preached each evening in the auditorium to about 1,000 people. We made after-dinner talks at the fraternities and clubs and invited the young men to the evening service, held private interviews and round table discussions with students after the service in rooms assigned us at the Y. M. C. A.

MESSAGE

The Bishop's preaching was a model of a broad and simple message. His general theme was religious certainty. He pressed upon young men the claims of Christianity, not because of heavenly origin or because contained in an infallible Book, but for what it would do for men—because it had been tested out in life. His argument for prayer was that something happens to the man who prays. The truth and value of the life of Christ is evidenced by the kind of men produced by following him. In his closing sermon on the new birth he said that doctrine had been mystified by attempts to explain what could not be explained. "An influence from without, a response from within—a newborn soul. That is all anyone knows," he declared.

INTERESTING FACTS

During the campaign some interesting statistics were furnished from the registrar's office. The undergraduates are 3,212, total enrollment about 6,000. Forty-one religious faiths represented, among them Unitarians, Universalists, Swedenborgians, Gracco-Russians, Hindus, and Confucianists, besides the usual orthodox representatives. One hundred and seventeen have no religious affiliation and three are agnostics. Eighty-nine per cent are members of the church, Methodist leading with 907.

The college and university pastors seemed to be agreed that the moral and religious character of students is far above that of a decade ago, with a corresponding decrease in church attendance. This seems strange, and demands serious reflection. What can be the reason? Is it lack of sympathy with the student viewpoint, or power to adapt the message to his needs? Is it the preaching of a mediaeval Christianity?

OUR CHURCH

Rev. R. C. Helfenstein is pastor of the First Christian Church of Urbana, a few blocks from the University. He is an A. B., graduate of Des Moines College, an A. M. and B. D. of Yale, and has spent a year at the University of Edinburgh and in travel on the continent. He is alert, evangelistic, and can readily touch student life. A number of University students attend his church and Sunday school. The church is a modern building costing about $25,000. We preached there on Sunday morning to a good congregation despite the snow. Our greatest need is men—more men, better equipped men, large souled and love-burdened men.

CALOMEL WHEN BILIOUS? NO! STOP! MAKES YOU SICK AND SALIVATES

"Dodson's Liver Tone" Is Harmless To Clean Your Sluggish Liver and Bowels.

Ugh! Calomel makes you sick. It's horrible! Take a dose of the dangerous drug tonight and tomorrow you may lose a day's work. Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel, when it comes into contact with your bile crumbles into it, breaking it up. This is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you are sluggish and "all knocked out" if your liver is torpid and bowels constipated or you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, if breath is bad or stomach sour, just try a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone tonight on my guarantee.

Here's my guarantee—Go to any drug store and get a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous I want you to go back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying the sale of calomel because it is real liver medicine; entirely vegetable, therefore it can not salivate or make you sick. I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your bowels of that sour bile and constipated waste which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable. I guarantee that a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone will keep your entire family feeling fine for months. Give it to your children. It is harmless; doesn't gripe and they like its pleasant taste.

My Dear Children and Friends:

Santa and all our friends have treated us fine during this Christmas season, and we are happy and grateful. Our gifts were varied and useful, ranging all the way from a paper of pins to a car of coal, and coming from eight great States as follows: North Carolina, Virginia, Georgia, Alabama, Ohio, Indiana, Nebraska and Iowa.

Some one has written about "Thanksgiving in an Orphanage," and if we only had time and the ability, and space would permit, we would like to tell about Christmas in an Orphanage. Some have an idea that an Orphanage is a dull, disinteresting place, but they are greatly mistaken, especially about Christmas time. Each mail brings additional packages, and boxes are received by freight and express almost daily; all of which creates interest and arouses curiosity. All are anxious to know the contents of the box and who sent it and who is to receive it. The opening of a Christmas box is interesting and is one of the enjoyable features of Christmas in an Orphanage.

But time and space will not permit me to relate our many pleasant experiences in getting ready for Santa. We did not have stockings enough to hold all the things we expected him to bring our large family. So we went to the woods and selected a large and beautiful evergreen tree and placed it up in the orphanage chapel, and decorated it beautifully and had all things ready for Santa. The night was rainy and the roads very muddy, but he came just the same, and loaded our tree down with presents for every one of us.

After breakfast was over and our morning work was done we marched up into chapel to see what Santa had brought. I wish that every one in the entire church could have seen the bright eyes and happy faces of our children as they marched into the chapel. It is great to make more than fifty children happy on Christmas—ours were all happy and grateful for the good things they received. We had a sure enough Christmas tree on that beautiful rainy Christmas day. Some say they had a dull Christmas, the weather was so bad, but I tell you we had a good time at our house. We were comfortable and happy in our steam-heated building. And we are profoundly grateful to almighty God and the great church that has provided these comforts and pleasures.

Space will not permit us to acknowledge receipt of the many donations in this issue, but we will try to get them in next week. I am sure all have been received and greatly enjoyed. Neither will space allow me to reply to each letter of the children, as much as I would like to do so.

Thanking one and all, I beg to remain, Gratefully, liberty, N. C., Dec. 25, 1914.
 J. O. Cox, Superintendent.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

I was glad to receive your Thanksgiving card. I hope Santa came to see all the Orphanage children. I will send my dues for two months, December and January. I wish you one and all a merry Christmas and happy new year.

Glenn Pickard.

Ivor, Va., Dec. 24, 1914.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

I think it is time to send my December dues, so am enclosing 25 cents. I am expecting Santa tonight and hope he won't get wet, as it is raining very hard now. I certainly hope he will visit each one of the cousins also, and think he will.

Mother is very busy and has not time to write a long letter for me, so wish you and each of the cousins a merry Christmas and a happy new year.

Your niece,
 Elizabeth Drewery.

Norfolk, Va.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

I am sending a check for one dollar to pay for my long lost time, and hope to do better the new year than this one that is going so fast. The excuse that I would offer might seem poor to you; but so often we put things off that are not forced upon us. Still I hope you have not forgotten me entirely even if you did forget to send me an Easter card. I saw from the letters you sent so many, but mine never came.

Wishing all the little cousins a bright and happy Christmas, and well filled stockings. I am a great big well boy now. With love, Joe Person Daughtry.

Sorry you failed to get your Easter card. I tried hard not to overlook any.

Kite, Ga., Dec. 18, 1914.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

Here are our dimes for December. We were about to forget to write this month, for we study more about Santa Claus now than anything else. We hope it is not war and hard times where he stays.

ONE OF THE MANY MOTHER'S JOY HAS SAVED

Burlington, N. C., Nov. 19, 1913.
 Goose Greese Company,
 Greensboro, N. C.

Gentlemen:
 I am writing this letter because I think it is due you and for the sake of Humanity. I am not a man that wants my name paraded in newspapers. Coming from Baltimore on a sleeper my little girl took a severe cold and cough. For three weeks the doctors came to see her three times a day. Instead of getting better she grew worse. On the night of which I am speaking the doctors left me some emergency medicine and told me if the cough did not stop give her this. We gave it to her but with no benefit whatever that we could see. We had used other croup salves and they did not seem to do much good. My wife advised me to get a jar of Mother's Joy. I did so, using a half jar on my child's throat and chest and in fifteen minutes she stopped coughing and did not cough another time during the night. Now I am not a believer in Patent Medicines, but I think that you have the best Croup and Pneumonia salve made.

Yours very truly,

Dear Uncle Jim:—

We have had a great time this Christmas and have lots of new toys to play with, but I like my building blocks better than anything. I can make so many nice things with them. The weather is so bad we did not get to go to Grandpa Stephenson's, but spent Christmas eve night at Roanoke with Sarah and Harry Mann. They will send dimes to the Corner next year, we think. We want to share our Christmas joys with the orphan children, so we are multiplying our dues by ten this time.

At six o'clock on the morning of December 22, in the parlor of the Kavanaugh Hotel in Harrisonburg, I united in marriage Mr. Reuben W. The contracting parties are people of excellent character, god standing, and active in religious work. Immediately after taking breakfast at the hotel the happy couple left for Urbana, Ohio, where they will reside. Mrs. Pickering will be greatly missed in the Bethlehem church, in her home, and in the community at large. THE TROUBLE IS NOT INSIDE

The myriads of parasitic germs which cause Tetter, Eczema, Ringworm, Itch, Acne, Salt Rheum, etc., cannot be killed internally. They live and feed on the surface and must there be treated. Vetterine is the common sense treatment that has scientific principles to back it up. Dr. A. Kennedy, druggist of Brooklyn, Fla., says: "Vetterine has cured quickly and permanently several stubborn cases of tetter that came under my personal knowledge. One of 15 years standing." Elon College
For Both Men and Women
Elon College, North Carolina

For a quarter century Elon College has rendered the best families of the South a paragon service in providing young men and young women with the best mental, moral and physical training under positive Christian influences, tho entirely free from sectarianism.

Karl Lehman, of Boston, testifies that "of all the Colleges I have visited as International Field Secretary of Christian Endeavor during six years, the spirit of Elon College appeals to me as most genuinely Christian." Elon College is situated in the delightful hill country, a section unsurpassed for beauty, with a climate far-famed for its healthfulness. There is no medical fee, for there is no necessity for it. Its campus, comprising twenty-five acres of native oak and hickory, shrubbery, winding walks and driveways, is one of the most beautiful in the South and, with its two unsurpassed gymnasia, provides abundant opportunity for recreation and relaxation.

The splendid equipment of Elon College was only made possible through liberal endowment. It maintains seven elegant new buildings, especially designed and appointed for college work. These are furnished with every known convenience; steam heat, electric lights, running water, baths and sewerage. The College plant is conservatively valued at $300,000.00.

Elon College is distinctly a high-grade institution, though its charges are moderate. Its graduates are admitted to the graduate departments of all the great universities without examination. Its literary and scientific courses are arranged in various departments which lead to the degrees of Master of Arts, Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science, Bachelor of Philosophy, Bachelor of Pedagogy, and a three-year course leading to the degree of Licentiate of Instruction, designed especially for teachers. This institution affords special opportunities for training in Piano, Voice, Expression, Fine Arts, Normal Training, Physical Culture and Commercial Practice.

The Faculty consists of twenty-one specialists: men and women selected not only for their superior teaching ability, but also for their exemplary character and manners.

The student body numbers nearly four hundred and comes from thirteen states.

The lowest rates in the South, only $131 to $191 per College session of ten months. Fall Term always opens the first Wednesday in September. For full descriptive catalogue and view-book, address

B. J. EARP.

Woodell

Brother N. G. Woodell departed this life. He left to mourn after him five boys, several grand children, and many friends. The funeral was conducted by Rev. J. S. Carden at Christian Chapel on December 9, and the body was laid in Christian Chapel cemetery. May the Lord bless the bereaved ones, is the prayer of their former pastor.
J. S. CARDEN.

Dundalov

Mrs. Lillie Dundalov, wife of John Dundalov, passed away November 10, 1914, aged 36 years. She was a member of Union Christian church for a number of years. C. H. ROWLAND.

Darden

Charles W. Darden was born in Nansemond county, Va., and when a boy united with Holy Neck Christian church. He came to Franklin about ten years ago, and transferred his membership to the Franklin Christian church, where he remained a faithful member until death. Several years ago he suffered from apoplexy, and never was well again. He had gone down the street to do some Christmas shopping on December 23, when he was taken suddenly ill, and in a few minutes was taken to his home, and passed away within an hour. He was in his 52nd year. He leaves a wife and three little girls, two brothers and three sisters, to mourn their loss. The funeral was at the home, and the body was carried to the old family burying ground at Holy Neck church. The bereaved have our prayers and sympathy.
C. H. ROWLAND.

Vaughan

Miss Edith Vaughan died at the home of her brother, Joseph T. Vaughan, near Sycamore Baptist church, December 28, 1914, at the ripe age of 75 years. She lived a consistent Christian life, and was ready when the summons came. She was known as Aunt Edith, and all who knew her loved her. She was a member of Union Christian church. The funeral was conducted at Sycamore Baptist church by the writer. She leaves one brother and many friends to mourn their loss. May our Father comfort the loved ones.
C. H. ROWLAND.

Crocker

Whereas, our heavenly Father in His infinite wisdom has seen fit to take from us our most beloved and useful co-worker, Luther R. Crocker, therefore, be it resolved:

1. That as members of the Middleburg M. E. Sunday school we have lost a faithful, earnest worker and a loving member.

2. That as a school we deplore the loss of this good and faithful brother, but bow in humble submission to the will of Him who doeth all things well.

3. That we extend to the bereaved family the sympathy of the entire school.

4. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to THE CHRISTIAN SUN and to THE Raleigh Christian Advocate for publication and a copy be sent to the bereaved family.

From this union were born six children, of whom five are living. She leaves husband, children, brother and sister to mourn their loss.

She professed faith in Christ about 15 years ago. Funeral by her pastor on the 21st of December. She was buried in cemetery at Pleasant Ridge.

J. S. CARDEN.

Moore

A deep gloom was cast over our community September 23, 1914, when our heavenly Father removed from our midst Ernest L. Moore. He was a member of Pope's Chapel Christian Church, and while he loved all the church work, he was especially devoted to singing. He was always ready to help in the financial needs of the church, and was a man of good influence in his community.

Therefore be it resolved:

First—That we bow in humble submission to our Father's will, knowing that He doeth all things well.

Second—That in the death of Brother Moore the church has lost one of its strongest members, the community a kind friend, and the family a faithful husband and father.

Third—That we extend our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family and friends, pointing them to the gentle guidance of the heavenly Father.

Fourth—That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, one to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, one to THE Franklin Times, and one to be spread upon the minutes of the church.

Hill

Near Long's Chapel in Alamance county, N. C., December 27, 1914, Betsy Jane Hill, wife of Walter I. Hill, departed this life at the age of 63 years, 5 months and 27 days. Mrs. Hill had been a devout Christian for many years, and died trusting in Jesus. Funeral and interment at Long's Chapel conducted by Rev. J. W. Holt.

J. W. HOLT.

Gilliam

In Morton's township, Alamance county, N. C., near Altamahaw, December 25, 1914, Joseph H. Gilliam departed this life at the age of 63 years, 3 months and 15 days. A widow and seven children are left in deep sorrow because of his death. Bro. Gilliam had been a member of Bethlehem Christian church about ten years and was a very worthy and influential member. He had filled the office of deacon and treasurer for several years. He had been a Justice of the Peace about fifteen years.

His health had been failing for some time and his death was not altogether unexpected, though the end came after a few hours at the last. Funeral at his residence and interment in the cemetery at Gilliam's church were conducted by
J. W. HOLT.

Good

Mrs. Matilda Frances Good departed this life December 19, 1914, at the age of 70 years, 4 months and 13 days. Her husband preceded her to the spirit land about 10 years. For some years prior to her death she had made her home with an adopted son near St. Peter's church. Deceased is survived by one brother and one sister. She joined the Christian Church when but a girl. At the time of her death she held her membership with the Christians at St. Peter's. She leaves a good testimony, and the example of a quiet, consecrated Christian life. Funeral at St. Peter's, December 21.

SENDING IN HIS RESIGNATION

"We lost our relish for our preacher," said the deacon of a colored church, "so we sent in his resignation." The foregoing is a genuine specimen of unconscious negro humor. And yet it is calculated to provoke thought, as well as a smile. It describes the attitude not only of some negro, but also many white congregations toward their pastor. Many a time the pastor appears to resign, but he does so because his people "sent in his resignation." When a congregation ceases to pray for its pastor, when they degenerate into a body of critics, when they fail to be regular attendants at church services, when they promise him little and pay him less, when they do these things, they are simply "sending in his resignation."—Southern Christian Advocate.

HELEN BARRETT MONTGOMERY

The great war is a challenge to every Christian. In the breakdown of the principles of our Christian faith as shown in this mad struggle between Christian nations the cause of Christ receives a shock throughout the world. It is He, wounded and sore bestead, who summons his followers. It is His flag which waves in the thick of the fight. It is His friends who are likeliest to quit the field in confusion and disaster.

As though the voice of God spoke from the skies, the present combat calls on us to close up the lines, and by one supreme effort of every power we have, and all we hope to have, to hold what we have won and make advance.

Great missionary societies of Europe face utter ruin. With war and famine and non-employment at home; with ships out of commission and manufactories closed, churches of warring nations cannot sustain their wing in the missionary army. It is for us not only to carry on our own share undiminished, but to supply what is lacking in theirs.

America, with bounteous harvests that shout aloud to God in their plenty, with peace at home and abroad, is abundantly able to shoulder the missionary enterprises of the world; and to carry on the campaign alone until this awful struggle of the nations is past.

No "evidences of Christianity" ever written would have half the power of such a rising of American Christians to help their brethren. We can do it if we will. We have the money, the resources, the membership, the organization. Have we the spirit?

There are enough women already enlisted in missionary societies to rouse the churches if we are ourselves aroused. First let us go on our knees to know God's will, to catch a glimpse of the wide sovereignty of Jesus threatened on every hand, to hearten our courage with a clear view of the opulence of our untouched resources; then forward in a campaign to double the gifts of last year, in order to sustain the sorely tried mission enterprises crushed in the great war. This is not a time for retreat. It is a time to press forward in an agony of prayer and love and courage.

"Lift high his royal banner,
It must not, it must not Suffer loss."

Note—Suppose our women's societies with a supreme effort should raise their own budgets in ten months and give two to the aid of societies in Europe.—Bulletin.

A BOY'S READING AND THE FUTURE MAN.

The father of A. G. Dixon, now of Spurgeon's Tabernacle, was a farmer-preacher and served one church in North Carolina for fifty-six years. During his ministry he held many meetings that proved to be great revivals, and organized sixteen churches. On one of his visits to his son in New York this farmer-preacher supplied the pulpit of a leading church in Brooklyn. It is said the brethren were delighted and crowded around him praising him because he quoted so much Scripture. The sermon created so much interest that the Brooklyn Eagle sent a reporter to interview him. In the course of this interview he was asked as to the books he studied, and he said that his library consisted of the Bible, hymn book, Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress" and Spurgeon's sermons. It turns out now that the son of this preacher states that Spurgeon's sermons read by him as a boy, under God, made him a preacher. And now the country boy, son of the North Carolina farmer-preacher, is a successor to the great London preacher as pastor of the Tabernacle church and he is having a remarkably successful ministry, and is recognized as a great pulpit orator and successful soul-winner in two continents.

Now suppose that father had put in his library the light, flip-pant, irreligious, love-making sentimental stuff of this twentieth century, would the son have found time and inclination for Spurgeon's sermons? And if he had not fed on this good food, but had lived on the trash that leaves souls lean and minds without holy purposes, would the son have been the stalwart Christian man he is in the world, influencing men for good?

And if the reading of Dixon influenced his life, will not the reading of my child do the same? How much attention then should I, you or the other fellow, pay to the reading matter that comes into our homes?—Baptist Advance.

What a Christian Finds

A. C. Wheeler in "Nym Crinkle" gives this bit of testimony to the zealous and assiduity of the Christian: "During twenty odd years of eventful toil in the great city, I never found a depth of misery so deep, a poverty so rank, a crime so atrocious, a despair so black, that some humble follower of Christ did not find it out." When did sin, or one in the name of sin, ever set about finding out the misery, the crime, the despair of a home, a life or a city that relief might be carried, and mercy extended? The follower of Christ goes through shower and sorrow and sacrifice to seek out and to help the one in need.

Church or Commerce?

President Benjamin Harrison, a Christian and a great believer in foreign missions, made a prophesy which many feel will not be long in coming to pass: "God has not set a uniform pace for himself in the work of bringing in the kingdom of His Son. He will hasten it in His day. The stride of His Church shall be so quickened that commerce will be the lag-gard. Love shall outrun Greed." The Church has been learning some very valuable lessons from commerce and modern business progress and methods, and the day seems not far distant when "love shall outrun greed," as it should do. God's kingdom will yet come and His glory shall fill this earth even as His sunshine on a bright Summer day. The kingdoms of this earth shall be yet the kingdoms of our Lord and His Christ.

Where Is The Child?

In view of recent statistics, that is not an unimportant question. Do fathers and mothers know where their children are? Do parents in villages and towns and cities in particular know where their sons and daughters are? In St. Louis 311 daughters disappeared last year from home without being heard from again. In New York the number reached 2,662. In all the cities the number is appalling—the number of the dear girls who, after being out of sight of father and mother for a season, go away not to return again, not because they are dead, but because they are worse than dead. Is it not a pity that there are not more kings and queens at home whose deepest concern is that of the whereabouts of their sons and daughters? "And the king said unto Cush, Is the young man Absalom safe?" (2 Sam. 18:32.) That indeed is a right royal enquiry.

The American Idea

Human nature, and the American idea of business, have not changed a very great deal since the early days when John Wesley wrote in his diary: "We rode (today) by a fine seat, the owner of which, not much above four-score years old, says he desires only to live thirty years longer; ten to hunt, ten to get money (having at present but twenty thousand pounds a year) and ten years to repent." The chief difference is in the elimination of the first ten years, and the constant deferring of the last ten. How different from this was the counsel of our Lord: "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you." (Matt. 6:33.)

The Message That Wins

Evangelist William Sunday began his campaign of evangelism in Philadelphia Sunday, January 3. The tabernacle in which he preaches, built solely for these meetings, seats 20,000. It is believed that Philadelphia will be shaken religiously as it has never been before. Sunday has his critics, because of his "slang," his rough and ready speech, his ruthless attacks upon sin and evil in all forms. But no man of our age has struck the forces of evil such terrific blows, and has had so much effect in winning men from sin to righteousness as has he. Every agency and power which in our time helps to counteract the tendency to materialism and commercialism and help men to higher ideals and holier aspirations should be welcomed. John the Baptist drew thousands to him in the wilderness with his rough and ready eloquence, and with his simple message, "Repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand." And Peter on the day of Pentecost employed the same simple message, "Repent and be baptized, every one of you, in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins." (Acts 2:38.)

Unitarians and Evangelists

If reports in recent papers are true our Unitarian friends and brethren are making a rather sorry show of themselves in Philadelphia. Rev. Billy Sunday is engaged in what is expected to be the most gigantic evangelistic campaign in that city that has been witnessed in this country in many decades. To counteract the influence of this evangelistic endeavor the Unitarians are reported to have opened a book store near Sunday's tabernacle, where Unitarian books and tracts are to be distributed by the thousands. Also a hall has been engaged, and distinguished speakers of the Unitarian faith have been employed to set forth and to advertise the Unitarian doctrine as long as the Sunday meetings continue. The Unitarians do not believe in the atonement, the vicarious suffering of Jesus, and redemption through "the blood" and so oppose evangelism. This open and hostile opposition to the Sunday meetings seems unworthy of a great people with a great mission, and one wonders what good is to come of it for them. "For we can do nothing against the truth, but for the truth." (2 Cor. 13:8.)

Wonderful!

The skies bedecked with stars are wonderful; the great and high mountains that tower above the clouds are wonderful; the mighty ocean with its broad expanse and infinite depths is wonderful. There are many wonderful things in this God-blessed and beautiful world. But is not the most wonderful of all the presence and power of God to the soul in its need and distress? Emperor William, grandfather to the present Kaiser of Germany, was dying. The chaplain offered prayer and then read from the twenty-third Psalm: "The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want." Then the dying ruler whispered, "That is wonderful," and quietly fell on sleep. The wonders of God's love, mercy, blessings and benefits, especially to the soul in need, to the one in dire want and distress. "Such knowledge is too wonderful for me; it is high, I cannot attain unto it." (Psa. 139:6.)

Exports and Imports

It was written by some same philosopher long ago that "Christianity is a commodity of which the more we export the more we have at home; and the less we export the less we find at home." One great reason why some of us have so very little religion at home is because we have done so very little for the religion of those away from home. Some parents think they are not worthy to help convert the heathen, nor ought they to try to do so, until they have converted their own household. They have been thinking that for twenty, maybe thirty years, with the result that their own household is not yet converted, neither have they to their credit a single star for their crown, one soul converted from among the heathen, nor from anywhere else. We cannot love the church, and the people whom we have seen, like we ought until we learn to love the church and the people whom we have not seen. We prize more highly the things that are seen when we learn to prize as we should the things that are not seen. Jacob A. Riis, whom President Roosevelt called the most useful citizen in the United States, and a man who gave his life to rescuing the down and outs in New York and other home cities found out who it was that really cared for these poor unfortunates at home and so declared: "For every dollar you give away to convert the heathen abroad, God gives you ten dollars' worth of purpose to deal with your heathen at home." This great man's work was with the needy in the home field, but he realized that those helped him most at home who helped most abroad. "A religion," writes Francis B. Clark, "cannot be really strengthened at home by declining to extend its blessings abroad." One only half lives who seeks to live for self alone. And this is as true of a church, a denomination, as it is of a person. The Christian church will arise to its full might and main at home only when it has arisen to its obligations and opportunities abroad." The light that shines furthest from home is the one that shines brightest at home." We get, in Christian economy, only by giving. "Except a grain of wheat fall into the ground, and die, it abideth alone; but if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit." (John 12:24.)

CONFRONTING THE TASK

We shall come to understand that the church task is no small one; no idle issue; no secondary affair. Consider that the church is seeking to get the will of our Lord done in the world as it is done in heaven; that men are depraved, licentious, often wicked; that sin stalks abroad; that human nature is weak, and that the whole wide world is to be taken for Christ.

The church task is the most gigantic one on this earth and call for the wisdom of wise men and the strength of giants. The task is certainly large enough. The challenge of the church is inviting enough to appeal to the daring, the romantic and the heroic.

This idea of bigness, of stupendous endeavor, of unparalleled opportunity, is that which the church of the present needs to keep to the fore, and impress upon the youth of our day. Big things are being undertaken in business and are producing giants and geniuses and heroes. Why not undertake big things for the kingdom, great and heroic tasks for the church. "I don't know anything," declared Douglas MacKenzie, "that will commit the Church of Christ more completely to the devotional life, that will take it more often to the throne of God, that will give it more permanently and consistently a sense of the indwelling of the Spirit of Christ, than this habitual confronting of the Church's task in the world."

First and foremost of all is the missionary task. There are, in round numbers, a thousand million people in the non-Christian world. Among this vast population of immortal souls there is today an effectual working force of missionaries numbering 7,000, or one missionary to every 142,857 non-Christian persons in pagan lands. Counting one missionary to every ten thousand souls there should go even now practically fifteen times as many missionaries as are already on the field. And then the task of world-wide evangelization would be by no means an easy one. The Church is lacking today more in interest than in means, for the latter could be obtained if the former could be aroused. The lack of ability is far less than the lack of actual care, concern and knowledge.

The foreign commerce even of the United States runs up into billions of dollars a year. Men should be, and please God will come to be, no less interested in foreign souls than in foreign trade. "Love shall outrun greed."

The home problem is no small one. There are today in New York City some 3,350 religious and philanthropic agencies working for the redemption of that modern Babylon; yet it remains a very Babylon of sin and shame and crime in high places and in low. "The challenge of the city" is a real challenge to the heroic manhood of our day to undertake a noble and a stupendous work for Christ and the church.

Then the Church is yet confronted internally with creeds, dogmas and doctrines that are antagonistic, often evil and destructive. Our creeds were formed in times of heated controversy. These in large measure have served their purpose. They were used, and effectually, to emphasize great and fundamental truths, and to eliminate great and fundamental errors, prevalent at the time. But these have served their purpose and have become obsolete, in many instances. Today the challenge is for a united church against a united foe. There is a feeling prevalent that the churches should cease fighting one another, as they largely have done, and cease advocating theories and creeds that divide, and preach and teach and advocate facts that are essential and doctrines of righteousness, of peace, of good will and of union.

Thus the tasks of the church might be multiplied; they are many and great and inviting. They are sufficient to engage the strength, the energy and the ingenuity of the most skilled, the most worthy, the most daring and the most heroic.

Let us seek to keep these tasks before us that we may be humble, willing, ready, equipped for the conflict in the name and in the strength of our Master.

OUR REAL ENEMIES

America has spent, is spending, enormous sums in preparation for war against enemies in Europe and across the seas. How useless this seems, in large measure, is brought out quite strikingly in a pamphlet by Mrs. Lucia Ames Mead entitled, "America's Leadership for Peace." We quote these facts:

"Teach school children, and the grown-up, gray-haired children who do not know it, that this proud republic has never been attacked. It began itself its foreign wars. In all its history it lost less than 15,000 men by foreign bullets. But every year it loses 600,000 Americans from preventable causes! In God's name, let us all learn that our only real enemies are here, not in Europe nor Asia."

AN ASYLUM FOR FEATHERS

From of old man has felt, and provided usually, that there should be a place of refuge from danger and pursuit. So he provided "cities of refuge" in ancient times. Since, he has provided houses of refuge, "Retreats," "Homes," "Asylums."

This feeling has grown, as man has become more humane. Two years ago, at great price, Mrs. Russell Sage bought Marsh Island, in Louisiana, to which paradise the birds might fly for refuge in time of cold, or pursuit, or hunger. More recently the Rockefeller Foundation bought adjacent swamp lands covering eighty-five thousand acres for the exclusive use of birds that should seek safety, shelter and winter provision. These two tracts were purchased at a cost of $375,000.

It was a most humane and aesthetic deed. Nowhere, save it be in the indescribable glory of a summer sunset, has God mixed with more skill and dexterity the rich coloring from His boundless storehouse, than on the plumage of the birds which He hath appointed to reflect in color and portray in song His own glory and love and freedom. With voice and plumage the birds really do that which the Psalmist declared of himself, "His praise shall continually be in my mouth."

—Men are doing big things in business;— why not undertake big things for God?

—The Western North Carolina Methodist Conference, according to its journal for 1914, has now 100,369 members.

—It is said that no feud is as bitter as a family feud. All the sovereigns in the present European war are cousins.

—Borrowed troubles are hard to pay back, was the old adage; the new one being, be sure you know what you are going to do with borrowed troubles before you get them.

—Rev. A. W. Andes, Harrisonburg, Va., lays another strong sermon before our readers this week. Through the past year Bro. Andes has furnished one sermon a month, and there was not a dull or indifferent one in the bunch.

Bro. Andes is a clear thinker and a real sermon builder.

—Elon College had a most auspicious, as well as exceedingly gratifying opening of its Winter Term last Thursday. Three hundred and seven matriculated first day—fifty-three more than matriculated one year ago on same date. A great per cent. of the old, and many new students, came old.

—At any rate Bro. G. R. Ferguson, Youngs-ville, N. C., makes out a strong case against some of the church members of his community. One wonders what sort of church members these are about whom our brother writes. Evidently a good revival of Christianity is greatly needed in that community.

—Our delightful and artistic friend, J. Adolph Richards, Washington, D. C., compiled into a neat and beautifully arranged brochure a number of his favorite poems and rare gems from literature, and sent these out as Christmas presents to his friends. It is a most handsome and wholesome gift, and one that makes glad the heart.

—Mr. Charles Montgomery of Troy, Ohio, former Manager of the Southern Christian Publishing Company, Elon College, N. C., has become Manager of the job department of the Christian Publishing Association of Dayton. A clever gentleman, a skilled printer and a fine business man, the work at Dayton will go well in his hands.

—Rev. L. I. Cox, Elon College, N. C., is working faithfully and zealously to carry forward the work at Reidsville, N. C. He greatly needs financial help now to push the work forward. Send him a dollar—that is a request modest enough—and encourage him in his great task and aid in this most worthy and promising enterprise.

—Our home churches spend ninety-four cents in America for every six cents that they give for the evangelization of the world. That is, we act as if we believed that the soul of an American was worth sixteen times as much as the soul of an Asiatic. Is there any Bible doctrine for that belief? Nay, verily. God is no respecter of persons.

—For every missionary the church sends abroad, she holds seventy-six at home. Why? Is any SUN reader ignorant enough to suppose that the opportunity for winning souls to Christ is seventy-six times as great in America as in China or Japan? Or is the soul of an American seventy-six times as dear to God's love as the soul of an Asiatic?

—That was indeed a bold and courageous stroke on the part of Russia when her Czar, by stroke of his pen, prohibited in all his vast domain the manufacture or sale of alcohol. In 1912 the Russians consumed 260,000,000 gallons of "vodka" (rum) whose revenue was $400,000,000 three-fourth of which was clear profit and went into the coffers of the government.

—Pres. W. A. Harper's great address delivered before the Conferences last Fall on "Permanent Elements of Education," has been reprinted in many journals throughout the Country and has no doubt been read by thousands who are seeking to find out what is best and permanent in education. Many of the papers made quite a feature and display of the address.

—We could not attend, but our hearts and best wishes were at the parsonage in Richland, Ga., on December 25 when Rev. H. W. Elder and his good wife celebrated the 25th anniversary of their marriage. A hundred other friends gathered, however, on the glad occasion and all hearts were merry. May Brother and Sister Elder be spared to celebrate many more anniversaries of their happy union.

—Our good friend, Miss Cora Lee Foster, Semora, N. C., sending her renewal for THE SUN for 1915 adds: "It gives us much pleasure to have our dear old CHRISTIAN SUN make its weekly visits to our home. It is the best paper we ever had, and may this new year bring the editor much joy and pleasure." It gives the editor joy to find those who, like Miss Foster, not only take, but read and enjoy their church paper.

—We have heard otherwise sane people say: "Convert the people at home before sending the gospel abroad." That is exactly opposite to the teaching of Christ. Suppose He had told His disciples to withhold His faith from other nations until they had converted Palestine? He told them to go into all the world and make disciples of all the nations. And because the disciples obeyed that command, the church flourished and we have the gospel today.

—Rev. A. T. Banks has received two members into the Henderson church membership recently. His church with a membership of sixty, has a Sunday school with 68 members, a Christian Endeavor with 25 and a Woman's Missionary Society with 23. This church has installed the every-member canvass and the individual envelope system which the church is already finding very successful. The church is greatly pleased with every-Sunday preaching and the outlook is hopeful.

—In this issue appears the first report, that of one month, of Rev. L. I. Cox, Mission Secretary of the North Carolina and Virginia Conference. Considering that our Secretary was under such obligations with churches accepted for the year that he could give only half-time to the general work of the Conference, we consider his first month's report very encouraging. The Conference made no mistake in electing Bro. Cox Mission Secretary, as events are already beginning to prove.

—Among those made glad Christmas were Dr. and Mrs. W. T. Herndon, Elon College, whose friends remembered them with a substantial pounding and joyous gifts and visits. Dr. and Mrs. Herndon richly deserve and deeply appreciate these favors and marks of esteem. Dr. Herndon's health has not been good of late, though he is somewhat better now and is able to be out some. No man of all our number has labored more zealously for the enterprises of the church than has good Dr. Herndon.

—The Portsmouth church membership is 213 with a Sunday school of 238 including cradle roll. There is in the church a Christian Endeavor of small membership; also a Woman's Missionary Society with 35 members. During the past quarter the attendance at church has increased 25 per cent., as has also that at Sunday school. There is a Junior C. E. Society in the church with 20 members. This is a great work for a church of only a few years' existence in a city of this size. The wisdom of those who builded and who have labored here is apparent.

—Elon College and community have enjoyed a rare privilege the past week in hearing, in sermon and lecture, Rev. Martyn Summerbell, D. D., of Lakemont, N. Y. Dr. Summerbell is a ripe scholar, a close student, a profound thinker, a polished speaker. His two sermons on Sunday were able utterances, worthy of the man and the occasion, and his addresses this week, two on Monday, one on other days of the week, were classic in conception and in utterance. Dr. Summerbell's annual visits to Elon are epochs in the college life. May God spare him for many, many more of these visits so helpful to the community and so beneficial to all who hear him.

—The splendid paper which THE SUN carried some weeks ago signed "Contributor" and bearing the title, "Work With Young People," was by Mrs. W. A. Harper, Elon College, N. C. The paper was published in several other journals besides THE SUN and has been read, we are sure, to great profit, by hundreds. Mrs. Harper is as much interested in missions, and as efficient in advocacy of the great theme, both with tongue and pen, as is her illustrious husband, Pres. W. A. Harper, in college work. Both are incessant workers for the advancement of the Kingdom.

—Dr. J. P. Barrett has begun his third term of four years as editor of The Herald of Gospel Liberty, having served to great acceptance two terms of four years each. The Herald has prospered under Dr. Barrett's editorial management and from all indications has grown steadily in popular favor and esteem. Dr. Barrett is much beloved as preacher and editor and is giving the church an exceedingly creditable and readable paper. We trust our good brother will have good health and strength for the present term and as many others as his mind and heart may incline to.

—Congressman E. E. Holland, of Suffolk, Va., announces the marriage of his daughter, Miss Elizabeth Otelia, to Mr. Edward Fitzgerald Creekmore, of Fort Smith, Arkansas, at Washington, D. C., January 6, 1915. After a sojourn in the North Mr. and Mrs. Creekmore will be at 5 North 15th St., Fort Smith, Ark. Miss "Bessie" is a most amiable and popular young woman, and the most delightful of hostesses. We wish for her all joy and happiness in her Arkansas home. A host of Suffolk friends will greatly miss her congenial presence and hospitality.

THE EDITOR'S EASY CHAIR

I have been reading lately a book that, purely from an educational standpoint, is well worth the time and trouble of perusing it. You will find answered in it many questions that have occurred to you as you met with references to some of the subjects touched upon in the various literature of the day.

For instance:

Who was Mohammed? Where did he live, and of which lineage was he?

How came he to imagine himself called to a prophetic life?

What does the Moslem religion teach concerning Christ?

What is the Koran, and how secured?

What does the religion of Mohammed really teach?

What is the "Black Stone" of the Kaaba?

From what time do the Mohammedans date their occurrences?

What was the Hegira?

To what extent is Mohammedanism practiced today, and what is its influence upon its adherents, and what upon their attitude toward the rest of the world?

All these questions and many more which you have no doubt asked yourself at different times you will find answered in a most tremendous revelation of conditions in "The Moslem World." Under this title Rev. Samuel Zwemer has undertaken to tell to us of the Occident the condition of things in the Orient where Mohammed and not Jesus reigns as Chief Prophet and Priest and King.

What are you doing about the membership campaign?

Some headed the call last week, "All aboard." Rev. J. H. Hughes, Lineville, Ala., is on with three passengers. Glad to have you, Brother Hughes, with your new subscribers. We are not so far from shore but that you can flag us in should you decide to get on this week. We want you and your friends.

Query: What are you going to supply your home with this Winter for reading purposes?

In this day of Parcel Post and Free Delivery, much reading matter is going to be brought to our doors that should never find its way in. The young people are going to have something to read. Mothers and fathers, it is your parental duty to see that the proper reading matter is in your home. Much of the so-called "news" of today should not be allowed in our homes. Many books are cheap in price, but are very dear when the results of reading the same are considered. The church paper should be in every Christian home.

Did you ever notice that your most active church members, the members that always respond to the calls of their church, let the call be a mission call, community service call, or what it may be, are the members that are alive as to what their people are doing? They are informed by reading their church paper and religious literature. How can we appeal to the individual for mission money or funds when this individual, a church member, does not even read his church paper or has no information worth while on the subject about which you are talking. Would you believe it, there are hundreds of church members that do not see the need of a church paper. Have you any in your church? Let's get busy and do something.

Would you like to have an Annual? The price is 20 cents per copy delivered.

If any of you were so fortunate as to hear Dr. Zwemer in his recent tour of the country, it will bring your hearts afresh to read these soul-stirring tidings of the dark lands of the East. Last Spring Dr. Zwemer and our own Marion Lawrence united in a ten-day campaign to ten cities for $20,000. Perhaps you remember that God so stirred up the people that at the end of the time and at the last of the cities, they had $40,000 instead of $20,000.

Even if you have no interest in Missions as such, you will be interested in this book; if you have no interest, however, and do not desire to have any, don't finish the book, for you will be ashamed when you read Dr. Zwemer's statement that "There was a thousandfold more enthusiasm in the dark ages to wrest an empty sepulchre from the Saracens than there is in our day to bring to them the knowledge of a living Savior."

Here is a statement that challenges: "At Bethlehem where Christ was born, Mohammed's name is called from the minarets five times daily; but at Mecca, where Mohammed was born, no Christian dares to enter. Is this to be the measure of our consecration? Is this the extent of our loyal devotion to the cause of our King? His place occupied by a usurper, and his glory given to another?"

This book is especially timely now, with the Turk entering the world war and proclaiming it a "Holy War." Send today for "The Moslem World" to the Southern Christian Publishing Company. You will never regret it.

SERPENTS IN THE WALL

A Sermon by Rev. A. W. Andes, Harrisonburg, Va.

Text: Whoso breaketh an hedge, a serpent shall bite him.—Ecclesiastes 10:8.

THE Revised Version gives it, "Whoso breaketh through a fence, a serpent shall bite him." Fences are usually built of stones, and were the abode of serpents. Anyone attempting to pick the stones out of the fence was in great danger of being bitten by a serpent. The bite of some of the serpents in Palestine was non-poisonous and therefore practically harmless, while that of others was deadly poison. Sometimes it became necessary to break through a fence, but whether necessary or not whoever undertook the job stood in great danger of being serpent-bitten.

Around about us there are walls or fences, some of which ought to be broken through, others of which should on no account be tampered with. But God seems graciously so to have arranged these matters that the walls of which we should keep hands off are carefully guarded by dangerous, deadly serpents, while those that we ought to tear down are infested with the non-poisonous kind.

Sin is a wall that every sinner ought to break through. But whenever the sinner begins tearing the wall down the old serpent of scoffs will likely bite him. Some of his ungodly companions will likely have some scoffing remark to make. Fortunately, however, this is one of the harmless kind. It may sting a little for the time being, but need not result in any further injury. Yet for fear of this harmless serpent many a young person, and older one too, stays in sin and makes no effort to get out.

Many old traditions and customs ought to be broken, but whoever attempts to break them will likely be bitten by the serpent ridicule. Jesus broke many of the traditions and customs of His time, and His enemies heaped ridicule upon Him, but no permanent injury resulted from it. When President Wilson assumed the duties of his office he began at once to smash precedents and customs. Rotten high society, and some that perhaps was not so rotten nor very high, heaped ridicule upon him, but it was only the bite of a harmless serpent. Soon the sting was gone and the President was more honored than ever by the masses of decent people for his courage in smashing unrighteous precedents. Thus might it be said also of William J. Bryan and Josephus Daniels.

Any advocate of any reform movement is likely thus to be bitten by ridicule. In this day of great temperance reform the old serpent of ridicule is kept quite busy. So many ministers and God-fearing laymen, and even honest, righteous politicians are raising hand and voice against the rum traffic that the serpent has more biting to do now than he ever dreamed of before. But, thank God, while the temperance reformers of North Carolina and Virginia and other States have come through the battle not only bitten but mercilessly and maliciously backbitten and chewed upon, there is no poison in the veins. The smarting of the ridicule will soon be gone; and with firmer tread, greater courage, and stronger faith than ever we will continue to demolish that wall until the forces of righteousness, peace and joy in the Holy Ghost can run unhindered by the rum traffic through-out the length and breadth of our fair land.

Many a young convert (and older one too, sad to say) is exceedingly timid about witnessing for Christ. But if they ever have courage enough to witness for Him some ungodly friend may mock. If they attempt to talk or pray in public or do some personal work the serpent of mocks may spend his strength upon them. But what of it, my timid friend? The bite may be a little unpleasant for the time being, but there is no harm done. Stir up your courage and try again.

The walls about us that should not be broken through are carefully guarded by poisonous serpents. Many people have begun by cautiously picking out a few stones, but in most cases they found the shrewd old policeman in the form of a deadly serpent on duty, and quite prompt in attending to business.

Honesty is a wall that should not be broken through. The desire to get rich quickly has tempted many a man to be dishonest in his dealing, but sooner or later the serpent of ruin strikes the deadly blow. Sometimes, though, it does seem that this kind of fence-breaker avoids the serpent, but a succeeding generation is likely to receive the bite, as suggested in Exodus 20:5: "Visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth generation of them that hate me." Ill-gotten gain is very fleet-footed capital. Rum-tarnished dollars, as well as those tainted with falsehood, misrepresentation, and unlawful desire, belong to this class. Judas thought more of thirty pieces of silver than he did of his Lord. He yielded to the temptation and broke the hedge, but ruin was the result. Nearly, if not all, cases of defalcations, bank-plundering, and embezzlement of trust funds occur by first picking out a few stones from the wall of honesty. The clerk, cashier, or trustee began by picking out a little stone and then a larger one and so on, always intending to replace it without being detected, but the serpent was too quick for him.

A fine looking young man came once from the boat to Mr. Moody in New York City, penurious and friendless. In response to Mr. Moody's questions he related his story saying that he had held a high and responsible position in England, but he got to gambling, and one night he gambled away a large sum of his employer's money. He soon found that the only thing to do was to go to prison or flee from the country. He fled, leaving a beautiful wife and a family of beautiful children entirely ignorant of where he had gone. Mr. Moody said, "was not that pretty hard?" The poor man wrung his hands and said, "I am broken-hearted; not only my character gone, but I have brought ruin upon my wife and children." The serpent of ruin had laid hold upon him, before he could mend the broken wall.

Chastity or purity is another wall God has built about us and carefully guarded. Everything beyond that wall whether it be the lustful look, the suggestive word or act, the idle toying with temptation, or the actual yielding is but the picking out the stones from the wall of purity. Almost before you can realize what has happened the viper will have laid hold upon you, and you are diseased and perhaps disgraced for life. Thousands have begun cautiously, and, as they thought, innocently, breaking the hedge, but, alas, the serpent was there and did his deadly work.

God has fenced all intoxicating drink out of your lives, and placed us on the side of total abstinence. Yet thousands have broken through the fence or attempted to break through, and have been bitten by the awful serpent of misery. This old serpent assumes every imaginable form and color and leads a multitude of others. In fact, I cannot at this moment think of a single evil or trouble that cannot be brought on by breaking through the wall of total abstinence. What ruined homes, disease-racked bodies and minds, shameful lives, broken hearts, and miserable depths of degradation are brought on by disregarding God's warning: "Look not thou upon the wine when it is red, when it gives its color in the cup, when it goeth down smoothly; at the last it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder." In spite of the fact that so many men and women have picked at this fence and been bitten, thousands of others venture to break through, with the reckless hope that they will dodge the adder.

A prison visitor went into a prison in Leavenworth, Kan. and made an address to the inmates. During the address she noticed in particular one young man about seventeen or eighteen years old whose pathetic face so appealed to her that she asked for an interview with him, which was granted. As the lady approached him his face grew deathly pale, and he could not restrain the fast-falling tears, choking with emotion he said: "I have been in this prison two years, and you are the first person that has called for me—the first woman who has spoken to me." Replying to a few kindly inquiries on the part of the good woman he said: "My friends are all in Texas. My mother is an invalid, and fearing that the knowledge of my terrible fall would kill her, I have kept my whereabouts a profound secret. For two years I have borne my awful homesickness in silence for her sake. I have three years yet to stay." Then he told how that he had come to the city in search of work, had found a cheap boarding house, and one night accepted an invitation from one of the young men to visit a saloon. Here for the first time in his life he drank a glass of liquor. It fired his brain, and he became involved in a quarrel. A bloody knife was found in his hand, he was indicted for assault with intent to kill, and sent to the prison for five years of awful homesickness and unspeakable misery. Holding the hand of the good lady he said between his heart's sobs: "I want you to write to my mother and get a letter from her and send it to me. Don't for the world tell her where I am, better not tell her anything about me. Just get a line from her so I can look upon it. Oh! I am so homesick for my mother." In due time a letter came from the mother to the lady saying in part: "My poor dear boy—so generous, kind and loving. What could he have done to deserve this punishment? You did not mention his crime, but said it was committed while under the influence of drink. I did not know he ever tasted liquor. Oh God, my sorrow is greater than I can bear. I cannot go to him, but I pray you talk to him and comfort him. Tell him that when he is released, his place in the old home-nest and his mother's heart is awaiting him." What homesickness! What wretchedness! What misery! What heart-breaking, and anxiety of a mother for her son! And yet it could all have been avoided had the young man not taken the first drink. Just one little stone removed and the poisonous sting of the adder was his portion.

God has likewise put a fence between us and sinful amusements, and he who breaks through it will sooner or later come to wreck. Many of these amusements seem innocent enough in the beginning, and are often indulged in by parents who teach them to their children with the slim pretext that they are helping to keep the children out of mischief away from home. Many a gambler started his career by his mother's side at the parlor game table. There is no use trying to beat the old serpent. Whatsoever a man sows that shall he also reap. Begin picking the stones out of this wall and the old serpent of wreck will prove himself master of the situation.

A man speaking in a prayer meeting in a western city mentioned the fact that he expected in a few days to visit his old home in the east. After the meeting a mother came to him with the request that he visit her son in the Auburn prison. He consented to do so. She brought him her picture and asked him to give it to her poor unfortunate boy. He called at the prison, found the young man, spoke of his mother, and handed him the picture. He gazed at it a few moments remarking that it looked like mother though he could see she was a little more wrinkled and grey than when he last saw her. Then to the great astonishment of the man he handed the picture back saying he did not care for it. An explanation of this strange conduct was called for, and then the prisoner boy related the story of his downward career ending in a fight at the gambling table for which he was sent to prison. His first steps downward, he said was taken in his mother's own home under her instruction as she had taught him how to handle the cards. Laying the blame on her for his wreck he did not care for her picture. Be careful, parent, which way you start your children. The serpent may bite both you and them.

One of the sacred institutions of earth is a good religious home. Fortunate indeed is that boy or girl that can grow up with the atmosphere of a religious home around them. Yet there are some who do not appreciate such a blessing, and try to break away from it. They may indeed break the wall, and feast for a season on the barren fields of sin outside, but oh, how the old serpent of remorse stings them in years to come. Sometimes young people become tired of prayers and religious teaching at home and get away from it, or even if they stay at home they disregard it. Surely they know not what they do. In later years, sometimes after the old home is broken up, they realize what a blessing they trampled under their feet, and remorse lays hold upon them. I do not know of any thing in this world I am more thankful for than the fact that I have always had the advantage and blessing of a good Christian home. If you, my friend, are thus fortunate cherish such a blessing. Don't trample it under your feet. You will be sorry for it some day if you do. Remorse, unspeakable remorse, has stung many a person who broke through the wall of a good home influence.

THE DIVINE EXPECTANCY

By PROF. ALONZO C. HALL

On Nelson's monument in Trafalgar Square, London, these words are written: "England expects every man to do his duty." An international war inspired these words. Trying times fire them with eloquence. They speak to the soul of the man. It is the native land's cry of faith to the native born.

Britain's swelling army attests that the faith is not misplaced and that he expectancy may sit in its high place. For from the ends of the earth the native born comes; he heard the cry and now is lost in the army. Not seen, but he is there; he may drop and not be missed, but he fought. The individual fulfills his duty, and the army is therefore possible.

And what is England, that she should expect anything? And why does her army swell with these men? Just as well ask why a father expects his son to do well or ask an ambitious son why he answers the call of faith from his parents. The inheritance which England gives her sons is a sufficient basis for high claims, and it is given with faith like that of the parent in his children.

Such a banner as that upon Nelson's monument changed slightly is written in the gold of every morning. It is a patriotic cry, too, but not partisan; it is eloquent, but not deprecatory; it strikes at the heart of the man, but not the Englishman alone. It is the cry of faith in man and by it you and I are to be tested. And the words of this banner are these: "Every man is expected to do his duty." This is the divine expectancy, and it is based on a greater, sublimer inheritance than that which is vouchsafed by the flag of any nation. In this larger sense, a greater power than earthly power expects every man of every planet to do his duty. And what is this inheritance which, with its faith and demands, comes to every man?

So great it is that we cannot take it in with a single thought nor express it in a breath. It is temporal and spiritual. The state, the church and the home may comprehend our inheritance in outline, but the vital articles in detail are beyond our enumeration. What have we inherited in that which we call the State? Freedom, and laws to guarantee it; pursuit of happiness; protection of property; the sanctity of social relations; equality of opportunity.

The church has made your country, your town and city inhabitable. Whether you will or not, you cannot escape its influence. Closely allied to it is the school, another inheritance, and you could not if you would flee its culture. The one demands of you service; the other efficiency in service. Are you meeting the demands of church and school? How are you spending this item of your inheritance?

The home, also, is a gift. Do not imagine that our home has had no evolution, that it was the finished work of the sixth day in creation. You go back only a few centuries to find woman in low regard, with few opportunities of self-assertion. Even the Puritan and intellectual Milton whose inimitable numbers in Paradise Lost roll like thunder and from whose prose the world has one of its noblest definitions of education—even he of solitary grandeur reared his own daughters in absolute ignorance. Indeed our home with its sweetest of memories is an inheritance given to you and to me with faith and hope.

You will not have to consider long, then, to be lost in the conception of your inherited riches; but perhaps longer before you acknowledge the responsibility, the demands which your inheritance brings with it. In the words of the patriarch of old: "Thou hast come into great and goodly cities, which thou buildedst not; into homes full of all good things, which thou filledst not; to eistern hewn out, which thou filledst not; to eistern hewn out, trees, which thou plantedst not." But: "Behold, unto Jehovah thy God belongeth heaven and the heaven of heavens, the earth, with all that is therein." And so have you and I come into a liberty which we fought not to obtain, into a home we did not build, and into a life, the possibilities of which we did not create. With these things have come responsibility and faith. It is the faith born of the unseen, an everlasting faith. Are you inspired by it? Are you making good your inheritance?

The sphere of your activities may be small and circumscribed, but you are necessary. The inheritance cannot be shunned by any man, and its greatness gives strength to your weakness. Certainly nothing is gained by foolish pride, and conceit runs to an abomination; but no man rises to the divine expectancy who thinks to rise by consciously belittling himself. The sun shines in the heavens and man, unlike the mere criminal, was created to look up so that the sun might shine in his face. A just estimate of yourself is not accompanied by a stiffening of the neck and a raising of the eyebrow; it is rather to come into a fuller consciousness of the demands of your inheritance and of your power to yield faith, and hope, and love. The work of creation is a failure and the resources of grace are ill-spent if a man may without loss to himself and to the world be other than the best man he is capable of being through service.

Self-depreciation is not the nearest way to reverence nor a means of service. The full-fraught man is not pessimistic. Literature abounds in apostrophes to the man that every one may be. The greatest of the Elizabethans exclaimed through the mouth of Hamlet: "What a piece of work is man! how noble in reason! how infinite in faculty; in form and moving how express and admirable! in action how like an angel! in apprehension how like a god! the beauty of the world! the paragon of animals!"

The Psalmist says: "When I consider thy heavens, the work of thy fingers, the moon and the stars, which thou hast ordained; what is man, that thou art mindful of him? and the son of man, that thou visitest him?" And the answer is: "For thou hast made him but little lower than God, and crownest him with glory and honor."

Paul saw fit to quote these lines to the Hebrews, and to point out one, even Christ, who is the example of the divine expectancy of every man.

So a rich inheritance is yours, and with it just demands. Are you making good the claims of church, state, society? In the bank of life how does your account stand? Are the larger figures in the credit or debit column?

SUFFOLK LETTER

War or Missions and World Empire.

(Delivered at Christian Missionary Association, Lambert's Point, Va., December 8, 1914, and requested for publication in The Christian Sun.)

War is the natural state of mankind. Missions is the Christian state of mankind. War has drenched the world in blood and blighted the nations in their progress. Jesus Christ challenged mankind to the mission of peace. War tears down; missions builds up. War curses the race; missions blesses mankind.

It is the motive of this address to consider the motive, the cost, and the results of war and missions, and thus put in true light our obligation to the missionary cause: and first, let us consider war.

1. Its Motive. It can be no less than a selfish motive that urges one nation to make war upon another nation. A desire to possess territory, wealth and power must prompt declarations of war. Such a motive, when analyzed, will not bear the test of human estimate of right between nation and nation, to say nothing of motives in the light of God's Word.

2. Its Cost. The war cost in time of peace has been nearly $4,000,000,000 per year, say $10,000,000 per day. The estimated cost at the present time is $50,000,000 per day, or say $20,000,000,000 per year. Then 20,000,000 able-bodied men are engaged in the war, and, therefore, nonproductive. Added to this is the destruction of cities, industries, commerce, art, and peaceful occupations in homes and fields. Then, there are the wounded, the dead, the widows, orphans, broken hearts, and suffering in the wake of armies.

3. The Results. The subjugation of independent peoples, the indemnities, pensions, and tyranny that follows in its train. Many generations must be burdened with debt, maimed and helpless men and dependent women. The bitterness of war must run in the blood of generations, sometimes breaking out in revolutions and new wars to curse the world. The smell of powder lingers after the explosion from gun or bomb; and the bad spirit of war poisons society long after the war is closed. The results of war leave scars upon the nation and wounds unhealed for generations. No antiseptic has been discovered that can prevent the multiplication of evils as the result of war. The unhealed wounds of the ages are the wounds made by swords and spears. It waves its blood-stained banner over a suffering world.

MISSIONS

1. Its Motive. Benevolent always and everywhere. Salvation of individuals, nations, and races, is inscribed upon its banner and written in the records of its deeds. Jesus expressed the motive in His Father's heart and His own. "God so loved the world, that He gave His Son. "Though He was rich, yet for your sakes He became poor, that ye through His poverty might be made rich. "There is not a harmful motive in the Cross nor in the cause of missions first made known to men by Jesus Christ. Conquest was the big word in motive till Jesus wrote the word mission with his own precious blood. "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature" sounded the keynote of a new movement destined to fill the world. Over Judea's hills, across the mountains of Samaria, across the sea to Asia Minor, and then into Europe this new idea and new motive spread the good news of salvation for a lost world. It throbs in every true life, sings in every zephyr, sweetens every flower, and shines in every star. The sea whispers it to every grain of sand on the world's beach and every river pours its life toward the sea. This motive is queen of all motives and on her head is the crown of life and in her heart the fountain of love.

2. Its Cost. At present 24,000 men and women are on the field. Some $75,000,000 are spent by Protestant Christians per year; 300,000 Christian workers of all sorts at a cost of $200,000,000 a year. Invested in churches, schools, hospitals, not more than $2,000,000. If 20,000,000 able-bodied men, the number engaged in war, were engaged in missionary work it would give each one only a hundred people, if the population of the world were two billion souls. There are 2,000 times as many men engaged in war as in missions; yet people pay the cost of war without complaint. The cost of war for four days would pay the present cost of missions for a whole year. It amazes thoughtful Christians that the church does so little for missions when the need is so great. Nations make war loans by the billion and boast of their credit; when a missionary Board has a debt of few thousand dollars criticism runs mad. A mortgage on the church of Jesus Christ that would crush out self-indulgence and luxurious extravagance would not hurt like war. This country pays a war tax now of nearly $200,000,000 a year and only $15,000,000 for missions. We pay more to free a few million slaves than to free a world, because it was done by war. We still stagger under intoxication of human blood spilled in cruel war. This nation, as a nation, has spent more on monuments to military heroes than in the extension of the gospel to save mankind. The cheapest thing in all the earth is missions; yet people who spend more for chewing gum than for missions talk about the cost of missions.

We ought to be ashamed of ourselves, and we are, because we do so little at home and abroad for the salvation of souls and the uplift of mankind. $2,000,000,000 invested and $200,000,000 a year expended in maintaining churches at home and abroad. Christianity has produced the wealth of the world and then squanders it upon war. We are crucifying the Lord afresh and putting Him to open shame.

3. Results. What changed Madagascar from a cannibal island to a state of Christian civilization? Christian missions has not only converted the people, but the land—both worthless, but now valuable. What changed Europe? Missions. What is crushing Europe? War. Wherever the missionaries of the cross have gone they have blessed mankind. They have created language, planted schools, inspired civil government, fostered industry, established churches and hospitals; taught the ignorant, healed the sick, constructed happy homes, and awakened the conscience and aspiration of the people and brought them to Jesus Christ. The mission cause has brought no evil to any quarter of the earth, to any race on the globe, or to any worthy institution under the sun. Salvation, enlightenment, social improvement and civilization, have followed the trail of the missionaries of the cross; but the task is so great and the laborers so few that progress has been slow. Heroes have fallen on the field, but they have shed no blood but their own.

One thousand blocks representing $1.00 each or $1,000 in all. Just the amount that is necessary to put the congregation in the new church at Reidsville. How many blocks will you take? Do it now.

You are going to send us the amount of one block toward our thousand, are you not? Remember, we don't ask for the whole thousand from you; all we want is at least one, and we will surely get the whole number if you will only do this for us. Do not question whether others will do the same; leave that to us—that is our lookout.

Grid of 1000 blocks for subscription collection

How soon shall we fill these? Who will be next? We are expecting many to be taken this week. THE SUN will show each week by X how many have been taken. Send your dollar to Rev. L. I. Cox, pastor, Reidsville church, Elon College, N. C.

It just costs you a penny to drop us a post card asking for the magazine guide, a catalog that will save you dollars in your reading matter another year.

ELON COLLEGE NOTES

It will be especially gratifying to our friends to learn that, despite the hard times, the College had its most flattering Winter Term opening on last Thursday. Fifty-three more students registered on that day than on the opening day a year ago. Twenty new students are with us this term, which speaks devotion from our friends whose influence has placed them here.

There is very little sickness so far since the holidays, and we are hoping it may so continue. Dr. Summerbell delighted two magnificent congregations Sunday with two masterly discourses on Faith. A vigorous, virile thinker and a devout, consecrated Christian, Dr. Summerbell never fails to uplift and inspire by his pulpit utterances. No man has a warmer welthe Lesson Committee of the International Sunday School Association in Washington recently. He is a member of the committee.

Rev. and Mrs. A. T. Banks, Henderson, N. C., visited Mrs. Banks' parents here last week. They attended the opening. They report the work in Henderson in splendid condition.

Dr. J. O. Atkinson is scheduled to be with the Third Church, Norfolk, next Sunday. His pulpit is to be occupied at that time by Dr. T. C. Amick.

Rev. and Mrs. J. M. Walker, Marlinton, W. Va, visited their sister, Mrs. Harper, during the past week, going from here to Richmond, Va.

FOUR YEARS AT ELON

Report of President W. A. Harper, LL. D., at Springfield Convention

The quadrennium just closed has been a period of unbroken progress with us at Elon. The first year of the four was the final year of President Moffitt's administration, and it was undoubtedly the best—the best in point of numbers and in point of spirit. We regretted to have him leave us after six years' signal service, but the voice of duty called him in search of recuperation for broken health and he could but go, carrying our blessing and benediction with him for his unstinted service, and the large progress achieved under his leadership.

Materially speaking the past four years have exceeded any like period in our history in the matter of new buildings and improvements to the plant. The Alumni Building and the Ladies' Hall with the Young Men's Co-operative Club House, our three new buildings, with the improvements at the West Dormitory, the East Dormitory, the Power House, and the Administration Building, together with the additions to the laboratories, special departments, and library have represented an investment of more than $50,000. We would not be without these improvements for $100,000, because they have given us an almost ideal equipment and placed us in the forefront of progressive institutions. Ours is the first college in North Carolina to have two gymnasias—one for each sex, and that for our men is unsurpassed. Our plant is now valued by expert assessors at $300,000.

In point of patronage our growth has been startlingly gratifying. The first year of the quadrennium found us with 196 students. The final year found us with 386, while the present year, the first of the next four year period, bids fair to yield us a total enrollment that will surpass the 400 mark, which is our capacity. We are inclined not to put the emphasis further on numbers, other than in the effort to keep our enrollment around 400, but rather to direct our energies toward internal development, and in this inclination we feel that we are wise.

The four years just closed have been rich in ready response to the College's needs. We have during this period raised a Special Fund of $50,000 to pay for the West Dormitory and other improvements of President Moffitt's administration. Many thousand dollars have flowed our way from the hearts of interested friends, who saw our need of special items, to supply which no funds were available from regular sources. But perhaps the sweetest response was that which came when the Alumni Association in June, 1913, voluntarily agreed to raise $26,600 to pay for the building now called in their honor the Alumni Building, and of which amount $20,000 has already been pledged, and of which all will be pledged before the 25th commencement in May, 1915. This action, generous, gracious, loving, has stouted the hearts and quickened the zeal of those at the helm as nothing else could. It has revealed to us that Elon's future is safe, safe in the hearts of a devoted and loyal Alumni.

I must not neglect either to speak of the spirit of fraternity, of sympathetic co-operation, of devoted sacrifice, which has characterized the Elon faculty the past four years. They have always been famous for these necessary ingredients of successful progress, but it seems to me that the evidences of these blessed things have been more outstanding during the latter years than during any former time. And I can with firm confidence and full assurance predict a continuance of this fraternity, this co-operation, this sacrifice, on the part of my colleagues in the work to which we have been called of God and of the brethren.

We therefore face the future with radiant hope, assured that greater blessing yet await us, and praying that our Master may use us to advance His kingdom and to serve the interests of the church which has its only aim the advancement of that same Kingdom.

DANCING CHURCH MEMBERS

Dear CHRISTIAN SUN:

I have been a subscriber to THE SUN for many years and this is the first time I have asked for space in its columns. I want to ask through THE CHRISTIAN SUN: Is it right for church members to have dances and balls at their homes and take part in those dances? I live in a good section and most of my neighbors are church members and take an active part in church work in the Summer; but when Winter comes they take a more active part in dances. I have often known ladies to take their little children on a cold night, when the snow was on the ground, five miles to a dance and dance until 2 a. m., and in the Winter months we can hardly get those people out to church on a slightly cold day. I have often confronted some of the dancers and some of them have told me: "O, they have dances in heaven; if you will read in Job you will find what he said about it."

Well, when I see the men going to a dance without ladies and dancing until the early morning and some one opening and closing with prayer, then I will believe probably it is right. If we ever see the day when we take the interest in the church work that we do in worldly things, then we will have to tear down our churches and build larger ones.

WHY WE FEEL YOUNG AGAIN

Neither cold, rain, nor snow kept old Santa away or sunshine out of our home. The sunshine that no clouds can obscure, the sunshine that comes from kind and thoughtful neighbors. On the eve of Christmas there was a tap at our door. On opening many voices shouted, "Merry Christmas!" A crowd of ladies were leaving on our porch between 60 and 70 packages. We were children again. Santa Claus had really come and our hearts were as overflowing with surprise and joy as the happy days of childhood. Friends have not only given us a surprise but a happier Christmas. To each of them our grateful appreciation, and to our heavenly Father who has given us so many thoughtful friends, we give thanks.

come here than he. His lectures on the Reformation in the Netherlands will be given one each day until Thursday. A humorous lecture will be given tonight (Monday). It is a pleasure to have him here.

Dr. P. H. Fleming spent Monday here visiting friends and attending the Summerbell lectures. Dr. Fleming reports the work in Greensboro as in very satisfactory condition.

Dr. W. E. Swain, Mebane, N. C., was a pleasant caller Monday. Elon has no stronger friend than this good Methodist Protestant minister.

Miss Flora Richardson, Greensboro, N. C., visited friends here during the week-end.

The mid-year reception was largely attended and also largely enjoyed by the students and many visiting friends. The senior class assisted the Faculty in the receiving.

The Association of American Colleges has admitted Elon to membership. This is a distinguished recognition, but well deserved. The meeting of the Association is scheduled for Chicago January 14-16.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FOR JANUARY 17

The Call of Gideon. Judges 6:11-40

Golden Text: Blessed is the man whom thou chooseth. Psalms 65:4.

Some times God in all His wisdom permits His people to fall into the hands of the enemy in order to bring them to subjection and teach them an immortal truth. At this time Israel had fallen into the hands of the enemy, —the Midianites, who were the sons of Abraham. When they felt their sin and realized their situation then they called on God for aid. During this time God had miraculously preserved some valuable material which He would soon use. What was this valuable material? Do you realize that there is some of the most valuable material the world has ever known quietly going to and from our splendid schools and to our rural churches? Do they ever receive an encouraging word from you?

The material that God has ready and called forth was a bashful, blushing boy, who was threshing wheat down in a wine-press. When the wheat could no longer be threshed on the top of a mountain for fear of seizure by the enemy, Gideon did not stop. He was energetic and faithful to his father and family, his place of threshing was moved to a place of secrecy.

God never calls a man who is not energetic nor does he call a man who is not faithful in what he is engaged. Gideon's excuses were many but Jehovah made him see that his duty was to be God's instrument in delivering Israel from the enemy. To be sure that God wanted him to carry out what He had spoken, Gideon asked for signs. The signs were granted and an army gathered.

Are you open to the call of God? Are you too busy to heed the call? Many, we can name of our own day who, when the call came, were too poor and insignificant, the poorest in Manasseh so to speak, but they accepted and the result is similar to a Moses and a Gideon. Be faithful, and true to your task whatever it is, and then you will be ready, capable and willing to serve God in the special work He has for you to do when He calls.

The teachings:

"In the time of trouble the question is not so much why God has forsaken us as it is whether we have forsaken God.

"God's gift of might of any kind is to be used in His service and in delivering others.

"Lack of wealth and noble birth count for nothing in the face of a command of the Almighty.

"To save men from misery, it is of first importance to save men from the sin that causes it.

"Who ever would head a reform should have clean hands himself and should declare himself openly as on the Lord's side."

We have for our study this month the book of Judges. It would be helpful and profitable for us to read the whole book through every week in order to become more familiar with its contents.

The editor of this department would like to know how many Junior Christian Endeavor Societies read THE SUN. If you have a Junior Society in your church will you please drop me a postal giving the number you have on roll and the name of the superintendent.

Make Bold Beginnings. 1 Timothy 1:18, 19; 4:12

Certainly we have said and heard it said many times that the church's future prosperity rests upon the young people of today. Realizing this fact it is, as it should be, a pleasure to the older members to see the young take an active part.

This is a meeting of beginners. Every one who has never started to speak for Christ has an excellent opportunity and should be urged to take part in this meeting. Here is a young man Paul who made bold beginnings and on every occasion after his conversion he stood for the right. Here is a man who stood some of the storms of life and had had some experience with the storms at sea; all for his Master. He knew just what it meant to begin and how hard it seemed to make the start at times. So he commissioned his son and gave him advice saying: "Let no man despise your youth; but be thou an example of the believers, in the word, in conversation, in charity, in spirit, in faith, in purity."

Fathers, are you encouraging your sons and giving them advice that Paul gave to his son? Mothers, what instructions are you giving your daughters? Older brothers and sisters are you doing what you would have your younger brothers and sisters doing? Have you stopped to consider the question what it will mean in the near future; the happiness or unhappiness which you can easily bring to your own home by your own thoughtless indulgence?

Every individual that amounts to anything worth while has to make a beginning some time. We will liken the individual to a grain of corn. Suppose the farmer waits until August to plant the corn. He gives it the best cultivation that is possible; still the autumn months with their chilling breezes come on and it is stunted and even killed before it has time to bring forth its stigma or its stamen. It cannot give its best to the world for it did not have time to mature. So it is with the individual who waits until late in life to begin things for Christ; he cannot give his best for he does not have the time to develop his seed in the early spring, give it good cultivation. The harvest will be large and wholesome. So the individual who starts early will give the best to the world that he has; he will have developed his talents; humanity will be profited and God will be praised for his life.

Speak to the youngest members you have in your society before the meeting and urge them to read a verse in the Bible, lead in prayer, join in sentence prayers, or comment on something that might be said in the meeting.

THE MISSIONARY

"Wherever Christian missionaries are stationed—and especially American missionaries—they are sowing seeds of patriotism; cultivating a spirit of love for country and implanting the idea of duty toward country among natives who never dreamed of it before. They are healing the sick and supplanting old superstitions with a scientific knowledge of medicine. They have stopped the ravages of smallpox in China. They are lifting the burden of centuries of oppression from the shoulders of mothers and giving to children the only possible hope of education. The atrocities of the Congo were brought to public attention by missionaries, and such measure of alleviation as has been attained was due to the efforts of missionaries.

"Men give money cheerfully and lavishly to the sufferers from a Johnstown flood, a San Francisco fire or a Messina earthquake. The money contributed to foreign missions in any one year relieves more physical suffering and creates more material happiness than the funds raised for all three of those great disasters."
 —The Youth's Companion.

We are glad to learn of the newly organized Christian Endeavor society of seventeen members and a good prospect of a teacher training class being organized this month in the Rose Hill Christian church, Columbus, Ga, under the pastorate of Rev. B. J. Earp. Bro. Earp is a good worker and is creating much interest among the young people of his pastorate.

THE MISSIONARY CRADLE ROLL

Read by Mrs. W. C. Wicker, at the North Carolina and Virginia Woman's Missionary Conference

This new department of our mission work was inaugurated at a meeting of the Woman's Boards at the Huntington Convention. Although the work is new with us, it is not new with many other denominations. Nearly sixty thousand babies are already enrolled. A host of children are growing up with a love for the mission cause early implanted in their hearts, and many a mother has been won for the cause of missions because baby belongs to the Cradle Roll.

"Train up a child in the way he should go." We cannot begin too early to train our children for mission work. Do not deprive them of this beautiful service which they can render to the Master.

These little "sunbeams" in the home bring much of brightness and cheer: so these baby names enrolled for the Master's cause give new life and joy to those engaged in the service. We cannot estimate the value of the Cradle Roll to the mission cause.

Any baby from one day old to six years of age may be enrolled as a member by the payment of fifteen cents for each year. Children over six years of age who do not belong to the Willing Workers or some other missionary society may be retained as advanced members, and their names placed on a separate membership list. In addition to their dues they may have mite boxes to fill. A beautiful certificate of membership is given to each child enrolled, which in after years will be a treasured memento of its early service for Jesus.

"Shall we through carelessness or indifference blindly permit the little ones of our church to be ignored during this formative period of their lives?" There is a sense in which God has entrusted these children to us, as well as to the mothers, and amid her many cares the mother has a right to look to her sisters in the church for help in the religious training of her child. Are we not as an auxiliary sadly failing in our duty if we treat this responsibility lightly?

Here within grasp is the probability of interesting both mother and child in the missionary cause. To be a little child at the opening of this wonderful Twentieth Century is a great privilege. The way is all prepared so that the tiniest one may have a part in the onward movement of Christ's church. There is not a more soul-stirring or hopeful work than work among the children. Nothing so charms and delights our attention as the development of a child, when we see the possibilities of a life of usefulness unfolding.

The Missionary Cradle Roll should be a part of the work of every missionary society.

No organization is necessary. The only officer is a Superintendent, who has full charge of the work. She may have visitors and other helpers as she may have need of them.

The Superintendent has charge of the enrollment, the collection of the dues, the sending of all funds and reports through the regular channels. She arranges for the public meetings and reports the same to the Conference or General Superintendent.

Every church that has no missionary society should at least have a Superintendent of Missionary Cradle Roll, in order that seed may be sown which may spring up and yield abundantly.

harvest. We believe that missionary societies will be the result of enrolling the children for mission work.

There is no church so lacking in ability, but has some woman who could act as Superintendent of Missionary Cradle Roll. No set rules can be given for starting the work of the Cradle Roll. Each church must be governed by existing conditions and circumstances.

Some suggestions might be helpful:

First, select a superintendent to have charge of the work.

There are a number of ways by which the children may be enrolled:

First, by personal solicitation of names, giving each child an enrollment card and mite-box.

Second, a reception for mothers and babies may be held, at which time the work may be explained and the names of babies enrolled. Once each year there should be a Rally Day, to which all mothers and friends may be invited. At this time a program may be given by the older members of the Cradle Roll, and the mite-boxes opened. It may perhaps be a good plan to have a mothers' and babies' day once a year. Some light refreshments could be served if so desired. It would bring all the mothers and babies in closer contact with each other, and give more interest to the cause to be better acquainted with each other and to learn more of the mission work.

NOTES

Did your society observe the Week of Prayer? If so, tell us about it through these columns.

Miss Bessie Norfleet, Treasurer of the E. Va. Woman's Board, writes that she has sent a check to Mrs. Walters for $233.74, amount for the first quarter of the Conference year.

If you have not yet organized a young people's or woman's missionary society in your church, write to Mrs. Harper for constitutions and do so at once. Our young people appeal to us to be used in this work.

Is your society doing anything "special" and are you blessed in doing it? If so, tell it for the benefit of others. Have you had an unusually helpful meeting—help others by telling it. We would be glad of an account of what you are doing.

RALEIGH LETTER

Monday evening, December 28, a splendid entertainment was given in the Sunday school auditorium by the Primary and Intermediate classes. The attendance was large; extra chairs had to be placed in all available space. At the conclusion of the program, presents were given to the children and confectioneries passed to all present.

Sunday, January 3, there were present ninety-seven in the Sunday school. New officers were installed. Superintendent Stephenson in his new year resolution expressed a determination to make 1915 the best year yet. The same success in the Sunday school is hoped for in all the work of the church. The inclement weather has interfered with attendance upon the regular church worship. The new year brings beautiful weather and congregations the first Sunday were nearly normal. The members of our choir are giving special attention to their part of the service. The music furnished by them will do credit to the average church.

The people here continue to express their friendship and good will. The ladies of the church have furnished my study, which is greatly appreciated. Myself and family are being remembered in various ways. I am confidently expecting a good year with our church here. Let all those interested pray to that end.

I wish to thank all who helped me to visit the churches in North Carolina, especially in the Eastern Conference. The laity seem to want to do something for the salvation of their fellowmen. Only a simple organization and very economical form of administration could appropriately appeal to most of our churches in the open country or in the villages. The preachers are leading their people to desire a part in the evangelization of the world, but a monthly appointment gives them little chance to direct the work. When God sends us some one who knows our churches, has their confidence and he is in a place to fit our foreign mission plans to the home base, our churches just as they are will double their offerings and bring to pass fourfold results for the Kingdom of God.

The brethren who entertained me, who carried me over miles and miles of all kinds of roads in cloudy and rainy weather as well as the bright sunshine, did as much and more than I did for the foreign mission cause.

The two books I advertised for were found at Norfolk. Very gratefully,

ALICE TRUE.

Elementary and Cradle Roll Departments

Edited by Mrs. J. J. Lincoln, Wakefield, Va., and Mrs. F. Bullock, Waverly, Va., respectively, to whom all communications for these Departments should be addressed.

Motto: "First the Blade."
Colors: Green and White.

Dear Friends:

I want to appeal to you now that the new year is fairly started to push the work with all your might. Let us not be weary in well doing. I am receiving some splendid reports of work being done, and if ever there was a home missionary in this world, it is baby, when we once get him hitched up to the Sunday school. If we let them go, they are very apt to take their parents with them. Let me quote to you an article I recently read, written by Rev. Ernest Bourner Allen. You have all, I am sure, heard of the Marion Lawrence Snday school, the third largest in the world, I believe. Well, Mr. Allen is the well-loved pastor of the church with which that Sunday school is connected, and he is a power in the school as well as in the church, so when he speaks, he does so with authority. Let us listen to him for a moment:

ABOUT BABIES

"Now look at them, you must surely say they are the very sweetest and most precious things in all the world! Amen!

"Yet babies bring special and subtle dangers to the home. They are a source of great temptation. Let me hasten to explain.

"The babies interrupt all the routine of the home and make a new order necessary. You know how it is, don't you? So do I! And one of the habits they interrupt is church-going. When the baby gets old enough, then the question arises whether father and mother have stamina enough to start church and Sunday school-going again. It's so easy to excuse one's self. The baby is too young. He will cry. He sleeps. We can't leave him, there's no one to look after him. It's Mr. Papa's only day at home.

"So the months speed on. The habit of absence grows. Baby gets to the Sunday school beginner's age and still he hasn't been brought to the Sunday school. Parents have ceased going to church.

"You are doing one of the most necessary and helpful things for your baby when you resume and maintain the habit of church attendance and Sunday school membership. See that you find a way to do this."

Well, you and I, dear Cradle Roll worker, can help the parent to find a way to do this, by going after the baby, by getting him on our Cradle Roll, by having a Mothers' Day in our Sunday school, by making the parents feel that there is a vacant chair and an empty place when they are not in their place and have not brought the baby with them.

It is enough that we know the right ourselves; it is a positive and oft-repeated commandment that we "teach it unto our children."

Let us help the parents to do this necessary work. By so doing we shall get the little ones into our Sunday schools, we shall increase our school membership of today, and our church membership of tomorrow, and we shall know that we have been faithful over a few things, and, as is the nature of few things, when planted, they bring their increase with them, some thirty, some sixty, and some a hundred fold, so that in caring and being faithful over a few things, by the very law of growth, we have become ruler over many, and, dear friends of mine, with gladness and gratitude, we will realize that we do not wait for Heaven, to enter into the joy of our Lord.

NEW YEAR'S LETTER

Dear Friends of the Elementary Departments:

The new year is upon us; the old year with all its failures, its hopes and its fears has passed into the Land of Has-been, and no day nor hour can be recalled by us. The future is ours, with its bright untarnished hopes, and its possibilities. What will we do with it? How shall we spend it? Too many times our years have been spent, so that at the end of them we are ready to echo the thought expressed in the following verses:

I wish that there were some wonderful place

Called the Land of Beginning Again,

Where all our mistakes and all our heartaches

And all our poor, selfish, grief

Could be dropped like a shabby old coat at the door,

And never put on again.

I wish we could come on it all un-awares,

Like a hunter who finds a lost trail,

And I wish that the one our blindness had done

The greatest injustice of all

Could be at the gate like an old friend who waits

For the comrade he's gladdest to hail.

We would find all the things we intended to do,

But forgot—and remembered too late;

Little praises unspoken; little promises broken,

And all the thousand and one little duties neglected that might have perfected

The day for one less fortunate.

It wouldn't be possible not to be kind

In the Land of Beginning Again,

And the ones we misjudged and the ones whom we graced

The moments of victory here

Would find in the grasp of our loving handclasp

More than penitent lips could explain.

For what had been hardest, we'd know had been best,

And what seemed a loss would be gain,

For there isn't a sting that will not take wing

When we face it and laugh it away,

And I think that the laughter is most what we're after

In the Land of Beginning Again.

Perhaps there are none of us who do not sometimes long for the Land of Beginning Again, and while we will never find that wonderful Land here, yet "Every day is a new beginning," and especially is this true of every year.

Let us take heart of grace, friends of mine, as we go on; let us find it easier to be kind, harder to be unjust. Let us see in each of the children committed to our care the soul that belongs to God and which we are trying to train for His Kingdom. These boys and girls are ours in their formative years. So long as they live the words we are speaking, and, more important still, the lives we are living, will be remembered by them and will leave an indelible impression on their minds and hearts.

If we were to sit down to write a letter to the President of the United States, how careful we should be to have it exactly right in every particular. We are writing an epistle to the Lord of all the earth, and we are writing it on the tablets of the minds of the young pupils under our care. How more than anxious we should be, then, that the record made is right in so far as we can accomplish that result. Easy? No, but Heaven is not reached at a single bound,

But we build the ladder by which we rise

From the lowly earth to the vaulted skies

And we mount to the summit round by round.

Long after you and I have passed to our reward, our work will live in the little ones we have trained and who will be the men and women of tomorrow. Let us be sure our work is well done; let us so build that when eternity sheds its light upon our labor, our Master will say, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant, well done." If our lives are thus lived, if our work is thus done, you do not need that I shall wish you, for you will assuredly have a happy, happy new year.

Every fence-breaker will be caught sooner or later. God's laws are not playthings which can be tossed aside at will without a penalty. The way of the transgressor or fence-breaker is hard. And then as a conclusion of the whole matter the old serpent of eternal perdition will lay hold upon the sinner and bind him hand and foot and cast him into the lake that burneth with fire and brimstone where the smoke of his torment will ascend forever. Let every one of us say, as for me and my house we will serve the Lord, and stay on the safe ground where the sunshine of God's presence makes earth a delight and heaven a feast of good things forevermore.

Tuck-Bray

It was my pleasure on December 23 at 4 p. m. to be at Liberty church and officiate at the first marriage solemnized in the church I organized four years ago. The contracting parties were Miss Beulah Bray, a charter member, and Mr. Henry Tuck, whom I received into the church at our first meeting in the new house of worship.

The church was beautifully decorated. Miss Ida Tune rendered the wedding march. Younger Bray was ring bearer. Sarah Bray and Elizabeth Tuck were the ribbon holders. Miss Elsie Bray, sister of the bride, was bride's maid and Mr. John Tuck, brother of the groom, was best man. The bride was given away by her brother, Mr. Burnette Bray.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Tuck left by the Norfolk and Western for Helena, N. C., for a visit to the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Tuck. Mr. Tuck is a prosperous farmer of Halifax county, Va. His bride was educated at Farmville and for several years has been a successful teacher in the schools of her home county. She is a daughter of John A. Bray, senior deacon in Liberty church, and a lady of talent. May their home be a happy one, and in the life beyond their reward be eternal joy.

Klapp-Gilley

December 30, 1914, in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends at the residence of the bride's father, Rev. S. B. Klapp was married to Miss Fannie Gilley, a member of the Happy Home Christian church. With best wishes for their happiness,

P. T. KLAPP.

Hedgebeth-Holland

At the home of the bride on October 4, 1914, the writer united in marriage Mr. Fenton Hedgebeth and Miss Clio Holland. The affair was a quiet one, only the immediate family and a few friends being present. This popular young couple have the best wishes of a host of friends for a long and happy life.

B. F. BLACK.

Powell-Myrick

At the Suffolk Christian church in the early morning of January 3, 1914, Mr. Ernest Powell and Miss Edith Myrick were united in marriage. They were accompanied by friends and left on the early Seaboard train. Both parties reside in Suffolk, and will make their home in this city. Heaven's benedictions rest upon those who are true to marriage vows.

W. W. STALEY.

Minton-McClelland

At the Suffolk Christian church on Friday evening, January 8, 1914, Mr. Jesse F. Minton and Miss Lucy C. McClelland were united in marriage by the ring ceremony. The parties motored from Smithfield, Virginia, left on Norfolk and Western train, and, upon their return, will continue to reside in Smithfield, the far-famed town near the historic James river. "It is not good for man to be alone," and marriage was instituted for human welfare. The home is the best institution when ruled by love. Blessings fall in showers upon homes where love reigns.

CHURCH NEWS

ROSE HILL LETTER

My dear Christian Friends:

The work at Rose Hill is moving along nicely. At our business meeting the deacons reported the following: "The church is moving along harmoniously and the spiritual condition is improving. The congregations are increasing and the mid-week prayer-service is once more on the flourish."

All committees, except the missionary committee handed in reports. The "every member canvass" committee was unable to make full and final report, as they had not seen all the members.

The welcome committee's report showed that several visitors had been present at our services and were kindly received, made welcome and invited to come again.

The music committee reported that the choir had been reorganized, and that the music was much better.

The Sunday school, with Brother Daniel West as superintendent, is doing good work. We have just had the pleasure of welcoming Santa Claus, who made his appearance on Christmas day. Just before his arrival two readings were given. One by Miss Josie Hiller and the other by M. Roland Day. Two little girls gave recitations and the pastor delivered a short address on "Christmas."

The Christian Endeavor Society that has ben dead for a while, has been resurrected with 16 members. Brother J. A. Hood, the president led the first meeting after reorganization, and in truth it was a real spiritual meeting.

We have reorganized the Ladies' Aid Society, that had gone into winter quarters. Sister Mary Bush is president, which means that the meetings will be not only successful, but interesting.

One young man has surrendered his life to Jesus and united with the church. He is to be baptised next Sunday. Brethren, remember us in your prayers.

B. J. EARP, Pastor.

PLEASANT RIDGE

At my last appointment at Pleasant Ridge the members and friends of the church gave their pastor a nice present for himself and family to enjoy Christmas. The box contained fresh meats, canned goods, dried fruit, sugar coffee and many other nice things for the pantry. This is my second year at this church. I have never served a better church. May the blessings of the Lord abide with church and community is the prayer of their pastor. Many thanks to all.

J. S. CARDEN.

Durham, N. C.

New Hill

The church here remembered their pastor as they always do by sending him $12.50 in cash for a Christmas present. This is a working little band of Christ's followers. We always carry up all of our conference dues and pastor's salary. I have served this church about seven years and am always glad when the second Sunday comes.

I will say that my work is in good condition. I am looking and praying for greater things in the Lord's vineyard this year. May the Lord bless and comfort His people is my prayer.

My Dear Children and Friends:

In or report last week we endeavored to give the receipts p to Jan. 1st. So this week we start in upon the new year, which we trust will be a pleasant and prosperous one with the Orphanage and all its friends. As we look back, we are grateful for the many good things that have been accomplished by our institution in the eighth year of its history. Each year has marked growth and development in every department to the work, and each year has also brought us more children to care for, which has increased our opportunities, multiplied our responsibilities, and made increased offerings necessary.

At first many thought the Orphanage work could be supported by the children, but now we are beginning to see that it is a task worthy of the interest and liberal support of the entire church. Every member of the church should be a regular and liberal contributor to the Orphanage, and money invested in it will help in more directions than anything I know. We are endeavoring to enlist all of our Sunday schools in the monthly offerings, and we sincerely hope that each pastor and influential layman will co-operate with us in securing an offering from all of our schools each month. We have reached that point in our history when it becomes highly important that the institution be placed on a sound financial basis. You can't feed and clothe and educate orphan children on sympathy alone.

You have placed me in the responsible position of superintending your Orphanage, and I am going to do the work to the best of my strength and ability, and I shall expect the entire church to support the work.

Four hundred dollars per month will be adequate to the needs of the institution, and this amount can easily be raised if al our churches and Sunday schools will have a part. I am asking for 100 schools to give us $1.00 per month; and then 50 other schools to contribute $2.00 per month; and 10 more schools unite in giving $5.00 each per month; and then let 5 of our larger and most liberal schools contribute $10 each per month. The Suffolk school is already contributing $25.00 per month and finds it a delightful pleasure to do so. This will make a monthly income from our schools alone of $325, and other sources of income will make out the $400, which will enable us to conduct the institution as it should be, and pay our bills at the end of each month. This will establish credit and win friends for the institution in the business world.

Yours to serve,
 J. O. Cox, Supt.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

We are sending our dues to January 1st. Robert Lee is two months old today and we think he is such a nice baby, too. Santa Claus came to see us and brought us lots of nice toys. We hope the Cousins had a merry Christmas.

We are sending one dollar apiece to buy books for the little boys and girls. With best wishes for a bright and happy new year.

Lovingly,
 Thomas E. Brickhouse,
 R. Everett Brickhouse,
 Joseph B. Brickhouse,
 Robert Lee Brickhouse.

Franklin, Va., Jan. 5, 1915.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

I enclose twenty cents, my dues for December and January. Hope you and all the cousins had a good Christmas. We had a nice snow on Christmas day. I cold stand at the window and see it fall this time, also look at my sisters skate after it sleeted over. Uncle Elmer spent the holidays with us. We all hated to see him leave. I don't know what has become of cousin Joe Person Daughtry of Norfolk. I have not seen his letter in the Corner for the last few months. Now wishing yo and the dear ones at the Orphanage a happy new year.

Your loving nephew,

Norman Louis Daughtry.

Clayton, N. C., Jan. 1, 1915.

Dear Uncle Jim:

Here I come with my dime for January. We have had a bad Christmas, but I have certainly enjoyed my Santa Claus. He brought me a doll with little balls and bells on it, and if you slap him he will cry; sister Lizzie, Maggie, and Estell each received a sleeping doll. Santa brought brother a cornet, a Santa Claus stocking and a scarf pin, and Vincent Boone, a boy who works for papa, received a Santa Claus stocking and a cap. I hope you and all your little ones have enjoyed old Santa as well as I have.

Mother and I wanted to go to church last Sunday to see our new preacher, Mr. Franks, but we saw him just the same, as he came home with papa for dinner. I will close for this time, wishing for you all a happy new year.

Your little friend,
 Ashley Breedlove.

Zuni, Va., Jan. 5, 1915.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

Here I come again for the first time in the new year. I will make a good start anyway. I received your card, and am glad you remembered me. Well, Santa Claus has been here since I last wrote and brought me a Teddy Bear, an unbreakable doll, and a stocking full of things. Mama and papa gave me a signet ring, grandma gave me a doll that will cry, grandpa a dress, and Aunt Ada a set of furs. I hope that Santa treated all the Orphanage children even as good as he did me. Enclosed find 60 cents that grandma and grandpa gave me. Pay my dues for January, February and March.

Lovingly,
 Annie Lee Bowden.

Henderson, N. C., Jan. 3, 1915.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

Christmas is over and the new year has come. I hope all the cousins will take on new life, and do a better work this year than we did last; there is always room for improvement. Old Santa remembered me with some pretty and good things, but I am still enjoying my Mary doll and her carriage. Uncle Jim, I appreciate your remembering me with a Christmas card. Two of our friends were married Christmas and stayed some with us, and Mr. Stuart was here a few days, so in spite of the rain and ice I had a good time. I enclose my dime and love and best wishes for the Orphanage family, and wish for all the cousins a happy new year.

Lovingly,
 Virginia Pearl Ayscue.

get the little cousins? I have had a merry Christmas and a happy new year. I received the nice card you sent me, and appreciate it very much. I have been to two Christmas trees this Christmas. School starts today, and I am very glad. I hope to go to see you next Summer; I went to see you last Summer, and you were gone. I am going to try to write more regularly. I enjoy reading the letters in THE SUN. I will close now with my time and lots of love for the cousins. Your niece,

Dear Uncle Jim:—

Hope you and all the children have had a nice Christmas. I enjoyed old Santa Claus very much. I went down to Grandma Holt's and spent several days, and of course I had a good time. Mother says Grandma spoils me terribly, but I'm the only grandchild she has, so I think she can afford to spoil me. Enclosed you will find my time for January. Wishing you and all the children a happy new year.

Lovingly,

Wm. Reuben Holt.

DONATIONS AND GIFTS

Our friends have been exceedingly kind to our Orphanage family during the Christmas season, and many valuable boxes have been received from churches, Sunday schools, Missionary societies and individuals. Space will not allow the enumeration of the contents of each box, for many of them contained more than thirty different kinds of articles. So we acknowledge receipt of the box and assure you that we are profoundly grateful for its contents.

Some weeks before Christmas our Burlington school requested us to furnish them with a list of things needed most, and our good ladies made out a long, long list; but it was not too long for our good friends of this liberal school—they gave all we asked for. The good people around McCullers, N. C., sent us a valuable box; Miss Alston, teacher in our Epsome graded school, sent us a box of toys, handkerchiefs, etc., contributed by the children in her grade. Rev. P. T. Klapp brought us 7½ bushels of corn. The Willing Workers Missionary society of the First church, Greensboro, N. C., a nice box for our smaller children. The Portsmouth, Virginia, Sunday school sent us a box of good things and a check with which to buy a barrel of flour; the Memorial Christian Temple sent their usual Christmas box of good things, and along with it a cigar box full of pennies for our children to carry to Sunday school. We have not counted them but I suppose there are about 1914. They sent us 1913 last year. The Franklin Sunday school maintained its reputation in sending us a valuable box. And before I forget it I must tell you that we received a tub full of the nicest cakes that ever came out of the oven. Two large fruit cakes and two fine pound cakes—though there were several pounds in each cake. Mrs. T. E. Brickhouse, of Norfolk, Va., has the grateful thanks of our entire family for this timely donation. The Sunday school of our Third Church, Norfolk, Va., sent us a nice shipment of groceries contributed in their Christmas exercises. We also received several boxes and bundles from our churches in the North and West.

I see my list is getting too long, but I must record our sincere thanks to Holland and Beamon of Suffolk, and the Smokeless Fuel Company of Norfolk, Va., for a carload of coal. The C. & O. and the Southern Railways each donated half the freight on the coal. We are unable to express our thanks, but shall endeavor to live them.

FIRST CHURCH, NORFOLK

Our official Board met Thursday evening at the parsonage to close up the business of 1914 and to plan for 1915. There were ten members present. The reports on file from the several committees indicate progress and good success for the past year. The board will undertake larger things for 1915.

The pastor and his family were remembered at Christmas with several valuable gifts, one from our junior society, one from the Boys Brotherhood, plus a substantial pounding from the congregation. I feel very grateful for every expression of love and sympathy given by my people. I humbly pray that they may receive in return for their kindness a more efficient service.

The Young People's Auxiliary are enjoying the most interesting contest in the history of the society. Six weeks ago the society was divided into two teams, Lookafters and Lookouts. A. R. Evett captain of Lookafters, Chas. H. Reynolds captain of the Lookouts. A campaign was started in earnest for new members, with the understanding that the defeated team shall at the close of the contest tender the victorious team a reception. The contest will close Monday evening the 11th. The result will be a hundred new members for the society. The contest has been conducted under strict rules and with the very best of feeling. It has put new life into our church work and will no doubt prove a special blessing to many lines.

We begin the New Year's work with hope and enthusiasm. By the grace of God we will make this the best year of our ministry.

Sincerely,

L. F. JOHNSON.

—It is believed that Roumania will join the Allies at an early date. If so it is said this will make an army chain 1300 miles long, from the Baltic to the Adriatic. It is also reported that relations between Greece and Turkey have reached the breaking point, and that Italy will not be much longer out of the titanic struggle. The war cloud is more threatening at the present than ever before, and no man lives who can foresee the outcome of this wicked and deadly struggle.

Elon College

For Both Men and Women

Elon College, North Carolina

For a quarter century Elon College has rendered the best families of the South a paragon service in providing young men and young women with the best mental, moral and physical training under positive Christian influences, tho entirely free from sectarianism.

Karl Lehman, of Boston, testifies that "of all the Colleges I have visited as International Field Secretary of Christian Endeavor during six years, the spirit of Elon College appeals to me as most genuinely Christian."

Elon College is situated in the delightful hill country, a section unsurpassed for beauty, with a climate far-famed for its healthfulness. There is no medical fee, for there is no necessity for it. Its campus, comprising twenty-five acres of native oak and hickory, shrubbery, winding walks and driveways, is one of the most beautiful in the South and, with its two unsurpassed gymnasias, provides abundant opportunity for recreation and relaxation.

The splendid equipment of Elon College was only made possible through liberal endowment. It maintains seven elegant new buildings, especially designed and appointed for college work. These are furnished with every known convenience; steam heat, electric lights, running water, baths and sewerage. The College plant is conservatively valued at $300,000.00.

Elon College is distinctly a high-grade institution, though its charges are moderate. Its graduates are admitted to the graduate departments of all the great universities without examination. Its literary and scientific courses are arranged in various departments which lead to the degrees of Master of Arts, Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science, Bachelor of Philosophy, Bachelor of Pedagogy, and a three-years' course leading to the degree of Licentiate of Instruction, designed especially for teachers. This institution affords special opportunities for training in Piano, Voice, Expression, Fine Arts, Normal Training, Physical Culture and Commercial Practice.

The Faculty consists of twenty-one specialists; men and women selected not only for their superior teaching ability, but also for their exemplary character and manners.

The student body numbers nearly four hundred and comes from thirteen states.

The lowest Rates in the South, only $131 to $191 per College session of ten months. Fall Term always opens the first Wednesday in September. For full descriptive catalogue and view-book, address

OUR DEAD

Melvin

Died at her home in Burlington, N. C., December 29, Miss Mary Elizabeth Melvin, aged 56 years. She united with New Providence Christian church in early life, but afterward moved her membership to Burlington. She had been well nigh an invalid for about four years, and her suffering grew intense as the end of her pilgrimage grew near. She expressed herself as trusting Jesus and died in the hope of a blissful immortality. The funeral was conducted from the Burlington church and the interment was made at New Providence cemetery. P. H. FLEMING.

Looker

Mrs. Mary Looker was born November 9, 1846, and died December 10, 1914, aged 68 years, 1 month and 1 day. Sister Looker was a member of the church at Bethel, having united on profession of faith a few years ago. She died in the triumphs of a living faith. Surviving her are three grown sons. A good woman has gone. Burial services at Bethel, December 12, 1914.

A. W. ANDES.

Gomer

Edward L. Gomer departed this life November 30, 1914, aged 24 years, 11 months and 23 days. He leaves to mourn their loss, father, mother, three brothers, one sister and a host of young friends in particular. He was not a member of any church. His last statement was to the effect, "I have suffered enough and am prepared to die."

Funeral services conducted by the writer at the home of the deceased. He was laid to rest in the family cemetery. A. T. Gomer and Mattie P. Gomer, father and mother of deceased, are members of Holy Neck. They have the sympathy of our brotherhood. Many flowers were placed upon the grave by members of the family and friends.

B. F. BLACK.
Holland

John A. Holland was born December 31, 1848, died November 12, 1914. He leaves to mourn their loss a devoted wife, Ann Virginia Holland, Thomas B., his son, and Sadie M. Womble, his daughter, and nine grand children; also R. L. Holland, his brother, and Mrs. Matilda Copeland, his sister, and a host of neighbors and friends. He was a consistent member of Holy Neck church for years. While he had not been able to get out to church for more than a year, still he was interested in the cause of his Master. While in health he was always active in church work. Few committees were complete without him, when work of the church was to be done.

The funeral was conducted by the writer at the home of deceased. He was laid to rest in the family plot. The mound was covered with flowers, showing something of the esteem in which he was held by so many. B. F. BLACK.

Haslette

Annie L. Haslette, beloved wife of Robert E. Haslett, died at her father's home near Holy Neck November 4, 1914, age 22 years, 7 months and 27 days. She had been sick for over a year, confined to her room most of that time. A great sufferer, yet patient and ever hopeful. The mother love clung to the baby boy and other loved ones with an apparent death-defying grip.

Time and again all hope of her recovery was given up by her dear ones. Again, she would rally and seem to take on new life. At last quietly, peacefully to that home not affliction conquered, and she went made with hands, eternal in the heavens, whose builder and maker is God.

The sweet flowers and the presence of a host of friends, from far and near, were evidence of the fragrance of her life, as held among her friends and associates in her short pilgrimage on earth.

She leaves to mourn their loss, a devoted husband, their darling boy, Robert E. Jr., father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Milteer, one sister and two brothers and a host of relatives and friends.

Funeral services conducted by the writer at Holy Neck, of which she was a faithful member and a helper all will miss. Though young, she had been organist for years in her church and Sunday school. She was laid to rest in the church cemetery.

Loved ones mourn not as those who have no hope, but rather rejoice, our loss is her gain. Jesus will take care of his own. B. F. BLACK.

UGH! CALOMEL MAKES YOU SICK. DON'T STAY BILIOUS, CONSTIPATED

"Dodson's Liver Tone" Will Clean Your Sluggish Liver Better Than Calomel and Can Not Salivate.

Your druggist or dealer sells you a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone under my personal guarantee that it will clean your sluggish liver better than nasty calomel; it won't make you sick and you can eat anything you want without being salivated. Your druggist guarantees that each spoonful will start your liver, clean your bowels and straighten you up by morning or you get your money back. Children gladly take Dodson's Liver Tone because it is pleasant tasting and doesn't gripe or cramp or make them sick.

I am selling millions of bottles of Dodson's Liver Tone to people who have found that this pleasant, vegetable, liver medicine takes the place of dangerous calomel. Buy one bottle on my sound, reliable guarantee. Ask your druggist about me.

Calomel makes you sick; you lose a day's work. Calomel is quicksilver and it salivates; calomel injures your liver. If you are bilious; feel lazy, sluggish and all knocked out, if your bowels are constipated and your head aches or stomach is sour, just take a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone instead of using sickening, salivating calomel. Dodson's Liver Tone is real liver medicine. You'll know it next morning because you will wake up feeling fine, your liver will be working, your headache and dizziness gone, your stomach will be sweet and bowels regular. You will feel like working. You'll be cheerful; full of energy, vigor and ambition.

HEALTH MESSAGE

Governor Craig rings clear on health. In his message read before the General Assembly January 7, he urged increasing effectiveness in health work. He especially urges a vigorous fight against the great White Plague. Following is that portion of his message relating to public health:

"The State Board of Health has efficiently performed a beneficent work. By its agency sanitary conditions are improving. This department should be provided with means to continue with increasing effectiveness this most essential work for the preservation of life and for the health and happiness of all the people.

"The Problem of dealing with tuberculosis is most serious. In North Carolina it has been ascertained that eighteen thousand people are the victims of this disease. Many may have it of whom we do not know. It is an ever present plague that stalks abroad at noon-day, and one-seventh of all the deaths in the State are from this dreaded disease. The State Sanatorium was established in response to the demand that something must be done for the afflicted, and to stop the ravages of the plague. In my opinion this institution, with its present scope and efficiency, is utterly incapable of dealing effectively with the situation. As an institution for the purpose of educating people to care for themselves, and disseminating knowledge of the disease, it cannot be as effective as could a bureau established for the purpose of sending literature to every person in the State known to be afflicted. Such literature could present the situation more intelligently to the people and with more efficacy than could be done by a few patients who are fortunate enough to secure admission to the small establishment at Sanatorium. It is most humanely and most ably managed. Yet it is altogether inadequate to deal with this stupendous proposition that so vitally affects the people. It has done good in individual instances, but there are thousands in the State who cannot gain admittance, and who will desire admittance when its efficiency is recognized. This institution can never care for those entitled to admission. On the present plan, the whole revenue of the State could not meet the demand. It is one of the highest obligations of the State to deal with this disease, to do all possible to prevent it, and to cure those who have it. I hope that this General Assembly can work out a practical method that will be effective."

THE NEWSPAPER LAW

Few readers of newspapers fully and clearly understand the laws governing subscriptions. Below is the decision of the United States Supreme Court on the subject: "Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary are considered as wishing to renew their subscriptions.

"If subscribers order a discontinuance of their periodicals the publisher may continue to send them until all dues are paid.

"If the subscriber refuses to take periodicals from the postoffice to which they are directed he is responsible until he has settled his bill and ordered the paper discontinued.

"If subscribers move to other places without informing the publishers, and the papers are sent to the former address, the publisher is not held responsible.

"The courts have held that refusing to take periodicals from the postoffice or removing and leaving them uncalled for is prima facie evidence of intention to defraud.

"If subscribers pay in advance they are bound to give notice at the end of the time if they do not wish to continue taking it.

Editorial Briefs

The World's Conscience.

You cannot fight down a bad conscience. There is no foe as great as this. A recent very wise writer observes: "France, Russia, Britain, these are great opponents, but it is not they will bring the pillars of Germany down. Beware of Belgium." The wanton, ruthless, awful waste and desolation of Belgium have awakened the world's conscience. Germany must now contend not against the Allies only, but the Allies and an aroused conscience.

Faith and Fear

George Macdonald in "Robert Falconer" suggests this logical syllogism for man's consideration and comfort: "This is a sane, wholesome, practical, working faith: First, that it is a man's business to do the will of God; Second, that God takes on himself the special care of that man; and Third, that therefore that man ought never to be afraid of anything." That which is left then for man, as his chief and fundamental daily duty, is to seek to know the will of God, and do it. Such a man may, and will, fall into temptation, but he will joyfully overcome it and be stronger for the conflict. This is what the aged apostle meant when he wrote: "There is no fear in love; but perfect love casteth out fear; because fear hath torment. He that feareth is not made perfect in love." (1 John 4:18.)

Intemperate Eating

Bear in mind that eating, as well as drinking, causes many a death before its time. There are people in plenty who make of their stomachs a garbage barrel, and throw into it all sorts and conditions and quantities of indigestibles. We do not agree, but some writers maintain that the present war in Europe is due to overeating. One enthusiastic artist exclaims: "Why is this terrible war? I will tell you. It is because you feed on corpses: you make of your stomachs a cemetery." Another writer declares: "This war will teach Europeans one great lesson—they eat too much meat." No man, suffering from overeating, a sluggish liver, an indifferent circulation, poor digestion, can fill a man's place in society, save by superlative effort. The proper care of the stomach, of the body, is a matter of religion as well as proper care of the soul. Read from inspiration: Whether therefore ye eat, or drink, * * * do all to the Glory of God. I Cor. 10:31.)

Good Failure

There are failures, even in business, which can with justice and propriety be called good. Here is a case in point. The Hoster-Columbus Breweries Company of Ohio failed the other day for $12,000,000, and is in the hands of a receiver. The Company assigns as the cause: "Decreased demand for beer, adverse legislation and the voting dry of many states and counties in the last eight years." This we pronounce good.

In Every Tongue

The American Bible Society announces that it will establish a Bible station on the Panama Canal. Bibles are to be kept on hand printed in one hundred and twenty-seven different languages, and every sailor passing through the Canal is to be given a free Bible printed in his own tongue. In this wise the Book will go out upon the high seas and be wafted to every part of the habitable globe. "And have tasted the good word of God, and the powers of the world to come." (Heb. 6:5.)

Little Souls

When Washington Irvin had concluded a visit to Sir Walter Scott he is reported to have remarked: "I do not recollect a sneer throughout his conversation, any more than there is throughout his works." Sir Walter Scott was not of the sneering sort. Great and magnanimous souls are never of that sort. Your meager, shriveled souls furnish the world with its too abundant supply of upturned lips and sneering snobbery. One wiser than Irvin observed truly: "Love is not puffed up, thinketh no evil." (1 Cor. 13:5.)

The Paper and Prayer

The publisher of the Toronto, Kansas, Republican recently offered his paper free one year to every family among its readers that observes the custom of daily family prayers (ministers' families only being excluded). Of all its readers only one family showed up with a claim for the prize for keeping up the good custom of family devotion. The Toronto paper is published in the very heart of the populous and very thrifty farming section of Kansas. This is the rich agricultural State of our nation. Her total crops last year were estimated at 280 million dollars. Her wheat crop alone was worth $151,583,032. Over ten thousand automobiles have been purchased in that State since July 1 last, most of them by farmers. If family prayers are an index to personal and individual devotions in the daily life Kansas is growing richer in earthly treasure than she is in heavenly possessions.

Real Riches

Riches are relative. One may possess great holdings and yet not be rich. A rich man in one community would be counted poor in another. Great possessions may be a mockery, as was the case of the man who went down with a sinking ship after he had gathered around him all the gold and jewelry abandoned by his fellow-passengers in escaping for their lives. "We count it riches to have what we want, and oftentimes we forget that to be able to do without is power. Self-denial is the secret of real strength," therefore the source and secret of real riches. No man has ever acquired real worth, weight or riches until he has learned self-denial. "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me." (Matt. 16:24.)

Blood Lust

There is in the world today a veritable lust for blood-letting. All over Europe, to some extent in Asia, and in Mexico on our own continent, battles are raging with a fury and a slaughter such as the world never witnessed in all its long history. It is safe to say that there are at this very moment more men in arms, more men facing each other in deadly combat, more guns and treasure employed in the grim tragedy of destroying human life, than at any other period of history whatsoever. And for what? There can be but one answer, More power, more money, more territory. That is what the nations are mad about and what they are fighting for. It is the story of our time being written out in volumes of blood. Read it: In order to be more men must have more. That is all. It is a moral conflict. Purpose has joined issue with possession; meum has disputed the right of tuum, since tuum stands materially in the way of meum becoming to be what it wishes. Might is disputing the claims of right.

The Noblest Mind

Every one wishes a noble mind—every normal and sane one. But what sort of mind is noblest? Spencer said, "The noblest mind the best contentment has," and the inspired writer felt something of the same when he wrote: "Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus." And the same writer declared elsewhere, "I have learned in whatsoever state I am therewith to be content." But whence cometh content? From indolence, and the lack of interest in things, some would reply. Not so Thomas Fuller, who said, "Contentment consisteth not in multiplying wealth, but in subtracting of men's desires." Desire is the father of discontent. So if we would suit out content to our conditions we must trim and direct and master our desires. David was a rich man, a king, a scholar, a statesman, a poet; but listen: "This one thing have I desired [as fundamental] and that will I seek after, that I may dwell in the house [presence] of the Lord all the days of my life." (Psa. 27:4.)

The good ship Lynorta, loaded to her hatches, sailed out of Norfolk harbor Monday, January 11, for Rotterdam, bearing gifts from "Virginia to Sufferers in Belgium." People all over the Old Dominion contributed to this rich cargo of necessities and comforts for the homeless and the starving in Belgium. The cargo was worth about half a million dollars, nearly one-third of which was in flour.

EDITORIAL

THIRD CHURCH, NORFOLK

It was the editor's rare and coveted privilege to worship with the elect and beloved of Third Church, Norfolk, last Sunday, and to catch inspiration from the momentous issue and event now centering there. As SUN readers are aware, this church voted recently to support a missionary in Porto Rico. After much enquiry, prayer and deliberation, Miss Olive Williams, of Troy, Ohio, was chosen, and last Sunday she was installed as a pastor of this church in Porto Rico.

Her Life

Miss Williams was born in Gordonsville, Tenn., and all her mother's people were southerners. Her father's people were northerners, and in 1875 her father and mother moved to Ohio and she has lived since that time at Troy. Her grandfather Williams was a Christian minister, and when twelve years of age she joined the Christian Church at Troy under the pastorate of Rev. J. P. Watson of sainted memory, and she is a member of the Troy church yet. There were only two children in her family, and the brother died when only twelve years old. So she was trained up as the companion of her father and when he was elected to Congress she went for four years as his private secretary. Desiring to reside at the nation's capital longer, she secured a clerkship in the Census bureau, where she remained two years, thus spending six years, from 19 to 25, in Washington. For the eight years following she was associated with her father in newspaper work. At the end of this period she accompanied an uncle, Judge H. H. Williams, on a tour around the world, visiting England, Scotland, Ireland, France, Switzerland, Austria, Italy, India, Ceylon, China, Japan and Honolulu. She has also travelled extensively in America and for fifteen years has been deeply interested in Foreign Missions, having seen the deep need in other lands in comparison with the conditions in America. In 1903 her father died and from then till last May she lived with her mother. Last May her mother died, leaving her quite alone in the world and free to go wherever the Lord might direct. She counts the decision of the Third Church to send a missionary the very workings of the Lord, and considers herself most happy that her offer to go has been so readily accepted.

The Installation

A splendid congregation assembled in Third Church at the hour appointed last Sunday for installing Miss Williams as missionary pastor of this church. Rev. George D. Eastes, the pastor, made most eloquent and happy remarks in opening the services, declaring it to be the gladdest and most auspicious hour the church had ever experienced, this in which they were to install and bid farewell to their missionary pastor. Every word of Brother Eastes was eloquent with tender emotion and sublime sentiment. Rev. W. H. Denison, D. D., pastor of Memorial Temple, delivered a most timely and appropriate charge to Miss Williams which was listened to with rapt attention and abiding interest. The SUN's editor spoke the charge to the church.

The addresses were interspersed with sweet and appropriate music. Miss Williams responded most appropriately and fittingly to the messages delivered.

Official Letters

During the service Dr. J. W. Manning read the following official communications:

To the Pastor and Members of Third Christian Church, Norfolk, Virginia:

GREETING:—

It is with profound gratitude we greet you on behalf of the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference. The eyes of the brotherhood are upon you, and their prayers attend you in this forward step you have taken. We believe that your installing and sending out a Foreign Pastor to Porto Rico, will be such an inspiration that other churches will soon follow in this work of world evangelization. This church and pastor have learned, that it is not by professions and creeds that Christ's Church will be recognized, for "By their fruits ye shall know them."

We are grateful to our Father for the vision of the pastor and members of Third Christian Church, and that they are not "disobedient to the heavenly vision." We pray the richest benediction of heaven upon the Foreign Pastor, Miss Williams, and her work. We know that they who have ministered to others in the spirit of the Son of man; who have fed the hungry, clothed the naked, cared for the sick, the stranger, the prisoner; who have received little children in the name of Jesus, have instructed the ignorant, have converted the sinner from the error of his way;—they shall hear words of welcome "when the Son of man shall come in his glory."

We greet you in this good hour, in the name of Him "whose we are, and whom we serve."

C. H. ROWLAND,

President E. Va. Christian Conference.

Christian Ministers' Association of Norfolk, to Our Friend and Fellow-laborer, Miss Olive G. Williams:

GREETING:—

My dear sister, we congratulate you in your great privilege of entering the foreign work as the missionary pastor for the Third Christian Church, and we congratulate the Third Christian Church, which you represent, in its readiness to sustain a pastor in its great world field.

My sister, you are now facing a great, needy field; the need that no pen can accurately describe, that no imagination can picture, no tongue can tell, no heart can grasp or fathom the ocean of this great need.

Yours, as a call to win the prayers of our Association, are that you may win a multitude of souls for Christ and the Church, and in your labor of love and service that your own soul may be highly blessed. Sincerely,

Christian Ministers' Association,

L. F. JOHNSON, Acting President.

Berkley, Virginia.

Being called upon, J. O. Atkinson, as Vice-President, gave a word of greeting and best wishes from the Southern Christian Convention, and Rev. W. H. Denison, D. D., gave a message from the Board of Foreign Missions of the American Christian Convention. Dr. J. W. Manning spoke most fitting words to Miss Williams on behalf of the church whose prayers and whose beneficence are to be her stay and support as she labors in Porto Rico to win souls from pagan darkness there to light and life eternal.

It was a most auspicious hour, a most beautiful and sweet and solemn service. Miss Williams, whose fine face we present herewith to our readers, leaves this week for New York, whence she is to sail next Saturday for her field of labor, accompanied with the prayers, benedictions, blessings and best wishes not only of Third Church, but of those everywhere who shall read these lines.

ROSEMONT CHURCH

Rev. Daniel A. Keys and a band of faithful workers have wrought most nobly and gloriously in building Rosemont church, a splendid house of worship south of South Norfolk in a densely populated and thriving farming and trading community. The church membership is small as yet, just fifty in number, but they have a six thousand dollar house, and their money has been wisely and well spent.

This program was executed seemingly to the pleasure and profit of the enthusiastic and attentive congregations that thronged the ample house. The choir rendered heavenly music, the pastor was radiant with joy over the great things achieved, and the congregations were happy in sweet communion and Christian fellowship. It was indeed glorious to be there. If there is any joy any sweeter than that of building by effort and great sacrifice a house and giving it to the worship of God, we have never found it. Bro. Keys and his faithful Rosemont band share today this joy and they most richly deserve it.

DR. SUMMERBELL AT ELON

Dr. Martyn Summerbell delivers a course of lectures here each January, on some phase of Church History on his foundation as non-resident professor of Biblical Literature and Church History. For the past several years these lectures have treated the Protestant Reformation in various lands. This year they covered the Reformation in the Netherlands. Next year the series will be completed in his treatment of the theme, The Genius of Protestantism. There is a feeling here that Dr. Summerbell should give these scholarly discourses a wider hearing in book form, and here is hoping that he will.

On Monday evening the lecturer gave an extra on Doves, Hawks, and the Happy Dovecote. It was a humorous lecture, treating a great theme in a great manner. It might equally well have been entitled The American Home. The sentiments set forth in that lecture need to be brought to the attention of all young people who contemplate marriage. I hope it can be given in many, many places.

On Sunday, Dr. Summerbell occupied the College pulpit both at the morning and at the evening hour. His general theme for both services was faith, and great discourses they were, long to be remembered by all who heard.

The morning discourse shaped itself around the so-called conflict between faith and science. The preacher declared this notion to be mere non-sense. Their relationship he showed to be not only not one of conflict, but of true sisterhood. He admitted that certain theological tenets had been exploded by scientists, for which beneficent destruction the Church is under lasting obligation to men of science. He made a striking distinction between the real Faith of the Scriptures and the doctrines of the theologians, which ought to be destroyed, because they are falsehoods through and through many times. All falsehood should die.

Continuing, he declared: "Science renders us a great, an inestimable service, when it comes to our aid in ridding the world of such falsehoods. Science is a standing police, with special warrant to slaughter delusions and shams for the mad dogs that they are. It is a beneficent work. Let them perish! If they lurk in the speculations of science, kill them and science will be all the more scientific. If the falsehoods lurk in my theology, let science chase them out. I want none of them. If I read errors into my Bible, still again let science search, arrest, smite, destroy. My Bible will be the better guide when it is the real revelation of God that speaks, and not that false and superstitious error, which lies in wait to deceive the very elect. As science disposes of the errors that are harmful to the Faith, as it rids the world of sham and humbug, it is doing a work for the Bible and religion which man should applaud, and which God will bless."

The evening service was given to a discussion of the rewards of faith, not merely the satisfying peace and joy of it in the present life, but its heavenly treasure as well. It was, like the morning message, a discourse characterized by incisive thought and shot through with a virile challenge to men and women to surrender themselves to Jesus, in Whom science and religious faith become united in their twin-born sisterhood. IMPORTANT NOTICE

At the last session of the Eastern Virginia Sunday School Convention the question as to whether or not the next Convention should be held in connection with the Chautauqua was left with the Executive Committee to be decided by the vote of the local Sunday schools. Letters have been sent out by Bro. J. H. Blanchard, General Secretary, to every school in the Convention endeavoring to ascertain the desires of the Sunday schools in regard to this matter. Very few of the schools have been heard from so far. This question must be decided very soon. We would therefore be glad if every school in the Convention would express its desire in regard to this matter at once. The committee will be forced to render its decision in accord with a majority of the schools heard from.

Write Mr. J. H. Blanchard, 113 W. 14th St., Norfolk, Va., or to the writer at Wakefield, Va. If you desire to have a part in this question you must act at once.

R. H. PEEL, President.

Every Church Secretary in the Southern Christian Convention has received a blank from the Circulation Manager of THE CHRISTIAN SUN for the purpose of recording the names of their church members that are not getting THE CHRISTIAN SUN. The Secretaries have been asked to co-operate with the Manager in this respect in order that our church paper may find its way into the homes that are not getting same. Many Secretaries have already reported. We want their help in this movement and we are counting on you.

By the first of March we hope to have 2,000 new subscribers. This will be an easy matter if all of us will do just a little work. Think of the untouched field. Many churches having sixty, eighty, one hundred and one hundred and twenty-five members with, perhaps, two, three, or half a dozen subscribers. Do you wonder at the inactivity of your church members? If they are not and cannot be interested in religious reading matter how can they be expected to take an active part in church work? Here is a problem right at our doors. Get our church members to reading and thinking and the church work will go forward in leaps and bounds. We will have services twice a month instead of once a month, in many of our churches. Read and get your neighbors to read, and then talk over together the things you have read and watch how the interest grows. Try it.

Permanent Elements of Education

By W. A. Harper, LL.D., President Elon College

EDUCATION'S Permanent Elements Make It Worth While. It is the permanent elements of education that justify the vast expenditure of money for it and the enlistment of hundreds of thousands of teachers in its army of workers. More than 400 colleges and universities with more than 10,000 teachers and more than 400,000 students, with endowment aggregating more than a billion dollars, make up the higher educational budget of the United States. More than 18,000,000 pupils taught by more than half a million teachers receiving salaries out of the public exchequer aggregating more than $500,000,000 annually represent numerically the American people's interest in secondary education. And these expenditures in money and in human energy are increasing every year. It is because we have seen, or think we have, certain abiding elements in education that we are willing to invest men and money in it in such bewildering proportions. We have found, or think we have, that education pays well for every dollar invested in it and for every particle of neural force devoted to its acquisition. The American people sit at the feet of the pedagogue during the formative period of childhood and adolescence and far into that of early man- and womanhood, as no other people ever have, and they do it because of the permanent elements they have seen in education.

I. PRACTICAL INFORMATION

Education Should Add to Practical Efficiency. Among these permanent elements the practical American would place foremost, practical information, knowledge equipping directly for some vocation, skill contributing to wealth production and industrial success. We have departed far from the old notion that a gentleman should have no business. The American gentleman with no business is your tramp or jail-bird. We believe that work ennobles man and consider every loafer a parasite, whether he be rich or poor. Education ought to be practical and it ought to assist in achieving material success. It always has and it always will or it will cease to be. In insisting on the practical benefits of education, however, there is involved the danger of stunting the finer sensibilities of the soul and reducing life to materialism only. We must all make our living—that is materialistic—and that living should be the best of which we are capable—that is crass materialism, and yet I believe in it. I would include in "best" however many things the extreme materialist would rigorously exclude. I would not be content with muck-rakings only; I would occasionally peep at the stars.

But Its Insistence Should Be on Man, Not Practical. In our insistence on practical education we should put the emphasis on education, rather than on practical. Man is the most important element in education, not practicality. You can never make a first-rate lawyer out of a man God has set aside to till the soil, and the best way to make of him the most efficient farmer possible is to give him acquaintance with life in the large as well as with the practical, technical training required of the farmer. The best man is your broad, catholic, sympathetic man, and this holds true whether he be a farmer, a mechanic or a professional man, and this type of man, the man who makes his living and at the same time lives a life, this type of man will help forward the life of every man who feels the impulse of his energy or even remotely is touched by his influence.

We Must Not Convert Our Schools Into Apprenticeship Shops. The narrow specialist, the man who has confined himself to one thing to the exclusion of everything else, who has seen in education only practical information and in life only his own vocation—that man may make his millions, may stand at the top of his profession, but his own life will be poor in the elements that really make living worth while—poor in the things that elevate human life above mere animal existence and bring it close to God. This is not degrading success. This is not degrading material success. It is pleading for man as the master of materialism as against man enslaved to his own acquisitions. And it is a plea that needs to be made. Short-sighted educationists, made with desire for popularity, are enunciating in catching phrases the gospel of mammon and the mammonites are saying "amen and amen." They would eliminate from our schools all but practical studies and they would introduce vocational training everywhere possible. They would convert our schools into apprentice shops and put under the ban of disapproval every ideal save that of materialistic success. We need apprentice shops, but we need schools also. Our schools will quicken our ideals. Our apprentice shops will enable us to work out in material form these ideals. But if our schools become apprentice shops, where will our ideals be?

The Old Countries Are No Safe Criterion For America. The advocates of vocational training and practical education as the only worthy aim of our educational system do not help their cause when they cite the examples of foreign countries as justifying their reform. They forget that life in those countries is cast in certain moulds, and that there is very little, if any, transference from one stratum of society to another. Sons and daughters of the nobles will be nobles and the children of partisans will follow their forebears. Not so in America, where even the humblest can aim at the highest station. In the old country there is very little need for the quickening of ideals, but in America such quickening is the secret of our glory and the destiny of our future. Yet even in the old countries, there exist two types of education—practical for the children of the poor and the artisans, and classical for the education of the professional and higher classes. We shall likely come to some such arrangement in this country, but as between the vocational school only and the classical school only, there can be but one choice for a nation whose national greatness is dependent upon the ideals that stir the heart's blood of its every citizen.

The Real Practicalness Which We Need. And yet I am willing to grant that education should give practical information, that it should give special training, that it should yield expert skill for the work of life, but not to the exclusion of those studies which really enrich life and render it worth while. We need specialization and vocational training and practical education and we will have them, but in their getting let us not forget that idealism too is a potent factor in human progress, and even a more potent factor in human progress, and even a more potent factor than realism, which would not be and could not be without idealism as the fuel producing its energy. Let us put our emphasis on man and life first and on specialism and making a living next and in sweet self-forgetfulness realize our best selves and live our best lives. Education animated and controlled by such a spirit cannot but yield us the best results in terms of life and in point of practical information—not the information that narrows and belittles man, but that broadens and uplifts and exalts him.

II. MENTAL POWER

His Mental Power Ennobles Man. There can be no more inviting claim set forth for education's necessity than that it generates mental power, for it is to mental power that we must look as the source of human progress. From his eyes down no man is worth more than $1.50 a day, but he who is thoroughly developed from his eyes up may command a salary mounting up to startling proportions. Mental power, that is the difference; and that is the sort of power we have the right to expect from our educational system.

Power and Skill Are Far Different. We have the right to inquire of any institution offering us its services or seeking our support what it can do in the matter of generating mental power. Does it propose to take the undeveloped human being and to make him into a man remarkable for his mental grasp? If so it is entitled to our respect and should have our support. If it merely proposes to train him more deftly and skillfully as an animal with little or no attention to mental power, then we should look elsewhere for education. There is a vital difference between skill and power. Skill enables us to utilize power, it is the belting that transfers the power from the dynamo to the wheels and the machinery of the plant, but is powerless without the dynamo, the source of the power. We need to consider this carefully in deciding as between schools and colleges. Your special schools put the emphasis on skill; your colleges put it on power. Our normal schools train—they do not educate. They give skill—they do not give power. The normal school reviews carefully the ground covered by the grammar and high school curriculum. It adds to that methods of teaching and practice in teaching, but makes no advance in general education. Normal graduates for the first few months outshine in the classroom the college graduates, because of their skill. They are limited in power, however, and their superiority is brief and momentary. As soon as experience gives the college graduate skill, her magnificent power places her in a different class as a teacher and she far outdistances her normal trained competitors. It is power that counts, not skill, because power will express itself and skill is its handmaid.

A Case in Point—Ponder it Well. What has been said of teaching applies equally well to every other vocation. The other day I read the curriculum of a far-famed technical school—a curriculum that was designed to produce civil and electrical engineers. It had the smell of the shop. I could see almost nothing in it but machinery and the whirr of the wheels was almost audible as I read. Three courses in English, one in Political Economy, two in German or French, with technical mathematics and applied science with shop work—that was the curriculum offered as constituting an education, with no history and no philosophy and no acquaintance with the great literature of the world and no real knowledge in the liberalizing sense of either English, Mathematics, or Natural or Social Science. Those who are thus educated may repair railroads and operate machinery, but they will never tunnel under the Hudson nor construct the Panama Canal nor invent any contrivance for the uplift of man. Your great engineers are they who have been thoroughly educated before their special training began, whose special training has been the belting and shafting by which their previously generated mental power and acumen were applied to the practical problems of their profession.

Narrow Men Always Run in Ruts. These principles apply to the farmer, to the business man, to the mechanic, to the minister, to the physician, to the lawyer, to every type of man. The narrow man must necessarily work in grooves. He is not broad enough to avoid ruts. He is powerless to strike out along new lines, because he is limited in horizon, deficient in vision, and devoid of ideals. What does he know of England who only England knows? What does he know of medicine who only medicine knows? Such narrowness yields skill, but not power, and power makes the wheels of life go and keeps them from moving always in the same old way.

The College Course Generates Mental Power Generously. The college course, following the proper sort of preparatory education, is able to develop this needful mental power. It enlarges the vision, quickens the ideals, strengthens every mental faculty—and these are the main-springs of power in the mental realm. The college curriculum interprets the past, lays bare the present, and unfolds the future, thus laying a solid foundation for the understanding of life and the cultivation of the judgment. In history the student sees the passions of men at play under all circumstances. He is thus enabled to weigh the problems of life in a sure balance, and he who knows his history will not be easily lured into hurtful schemes of wild-cat reform. Language and literature enlarges his life by revealing to him the aims, ambitions, and ideals of every conceivable type of man. His sympathies are thus quickened and he is better able to help his fellows to the light, basing his helpfulness on the enlarged experience in living offered all who ramble widely in literature's paradise of charm. Social Science gives him insight into the institutional life of man and qualifies him to understand the intricate problems of government and society. Natural Science will show him nature and nature's God, and through this knowledge he will be prepared to turn natural forces into helpful channels of human uplift. Mathematics will not only teach him painstaking exactness in thinking, but will encourage him to expect definite results from definite forces in composition. The man who knows his higher mathematics—his calculus and his conic sections—will be no easy prey to schemers and charlatans with pet theories of great deliverance to man through insignificant social alterations. And philosophy, in which should be included ethics and Bible study, will bring him face to face with men's highest hopes and holiest aspirations, and no man who has felt his soul stir in the presence of these transcendent problems with their attendant hopes can be other than a new man for his experience. The man who has covered the gamut of life—past, present and future—as it is revealed in the college curriculum, becomes a man of power, of mental power. We may not be able to ferret out the physics or the chemistry or the biology of it, but we know that it is even so. One day perhaps we shall understand the process of it, but such understanding is no more necessary to its acquisition and enjoyment than understanding the manner of conversion is to the enjoyment of the Christian life. We know the college course gives this power and we know this power is necessary to the individual who is to lead the world to redemption, and we who are wise will never rest till we have it or till those dependent upon us for their outlook on life through our efforts have had it or have had the opportunity to have it.

III. PROCESSES OF WORK

Education Cultivates Proper Habits of Work and Thought. If college did no more for a man than cultivate correct habits of work and thought, it would be on that score only be entitled to every man's respect and support. The regular recurrence of college duties may be inconvenient at times, but so are the duties of the work-a-day world. The punctual performance of these duties will tell wonderfully in after years, when the stress and the storm of life's obligations gather thick and fast about us. Every college man has in his vocational duties after graduation had occasion to feel grateful to the routine exacted by the rules and regulations of his college days. He may have found them interfering with his pleasures and desires at times and he may have yielded a half-hearted obedience, when he was under obligation to attend class rather than witness a great athletic contest in a near-by city, but in his maturer years when the self-discipline thus achieved has brought him the needful resolution for sticking to his duties in the face of discouragements or inviting pleasure, his mind will revert to the old scenes and gratitude will well up within him for lasting benefits received.

WHAT IS AMERICA NOT SOWING?

By Secretary F. F. MYRICK, Spartanburg, S. C.

The other day when THE SUN came I glanced through and saw two questions, the one, What is America Sowing? and the other, What is America Reaping? Since reading these questions, and thinking about them somewhat, I have come to the conclusion that the question, What America is Not Sowing, is more important at the present time than what she is sowing. And as for the reaping, of course that will take care of itself, for whatsoever ye sow, that shall ye also reap. If this be true, then if the present conditions are not to be met by our approval, why should we not get busy and sow something that we are not, and change conditions in our country?

For years our country has sent missionaries abroad to foreign lands to Christianize and educate the people there. This I do not condemn. I admire it, for such work has my hearty co-operation and heart-felt sympathy. Yet, while I think of this splendid work being done off yonder, I think also of the needs, the dreadful needs, that are looming up before us here at home. It was only last July that I had the pleasure of talking with one of the greatest educators in our country, and for two weeks I sat under his instruction as to the present needs and opportunities in an educational and a religious way throughout our country today. He opened my eyes as they have never been before, and since then I have often wondered how any intelligent man or woman who has any heart at all can sit down in a beautiful solace with a bank account of a few thousand dollars, or ride around in an automobile day after day and be contented, when they know of hundreds of bright, intelligent boys and girls right at their doors hungering and thirsting for education and religion.

Statistics show that there are 6,000,000 boys in our country today between the ages of 14 and 21 out of school, striving to make a living—each one dependent upon today's wages for tomorrow's bread. Is not this distressing? Isn't it worth thinking about? Isn't there something to be done? The public schools can not reach them; the colleges cannot use them. So there they are in that "gab" state, so to speak, tolling their lives away and roving to and fro across the way.

The solution is just this: we must have more educated Christian men devote their lives to this great cause, and go out where they can gather in a group of such boys and teach them the way, the truth and the life. They must have some education, they must know God better, else they are doomed already. Here is the place for the college man to shine, if he wants to show his real worth to the world. If we just had more college men who are willing to put their shoulders to the wheel, it would turn, regardless of how sandy the spindle may be. It is up to our Christian colleges to turn out more men for this work, for our state institutions cannot do it.

Therefore, Christian men and women, while my experience is limited and my knowledge of conditions rather small, I wish to make this one plea,—that we line up ourselves for some definite Christian service, as Dr. Ball would say, and devote our lives to it. We have but one life here to live, so why not plan our work now and then work the plan, and when we come down to our deathbed, be able to say as did the great architect who planned the Brooklyn bridge. As it was about to be completed, when he was raised up from his death bed to view it before he left, "It is just like I planned it."

So many of us see but little at a time, and that little lasts on forever. Our vision never increases. It never grows beyond the family connection. We are like the little child. The child at first is only conscious of its own family. But as he grows he becomes conscious of a small neighborhood. As he continues to grow he comes to know of a large community, later on a state; still later the country in which he lives. Finally he becomes conscious of the whole world—all nations and their differences. Just so should it be in our religious life. We should come to know our country and its depressing conditions some time in our lives, and arouse our consciences that they may go forth to meet those demands that are made of us.

America is calling us as well as other nations to that great field to sow. So why should we hesitate when the plowman or the seedsman is called to lift the receiver and say, Is it I?

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS

SUFFOLK LETTER

The Eye-Gate of the Sunday School.

Sight is the chief learning sense of all the five and blindness is a type of sin in the word of God. The eye itself is a great instrument and this organ is a field for special study. A good oculist may devote his whole life to the study and treatment of this one organ. The eye is a globe or ball set in the front cavity of the head in man and many animals. It is one of the toughest and yet one of the most delicate organs of the human body. It is defended by eyelids, eye-lashes, and eye-brows, and these all act, automatically and instantaneously; a piece of mechanism so perfect as to baffle comprehension by man. The interior structure of sclerotic, cornea, iris and retina, to say nothing of lenses, liquids, muscles, and nerves, make up a complication of arrangements worthy of divine skill. The pupil or tube through which rays of light enter and make impressions upon the retina of inverted images which are conveyed to the brain through the optic nerve may be termed the real gate way of light to the mind. This whole structure is so complicated, so powerful, so refined, and so useful as to overwhelm the thoughtful person with the wisdom and benevolence of God. The range of this organ is so great as to perceive the beauty of the tiniest flower and to survey the vast expanse of the starry heavens. Across the waters of the deep, over the mountains as they seem to touch the sky, down the great valley or over the trackless desert the eye roams in amazement and drinks in unmeasured delight. Looking down into the cradle of innocence or up into the face of maternal affection the eye reveals in ecstasies vaster than milky ways. The graves of loved ones and the tombstones and monuments of the past furnish thoughts deep as human history and precious as family love. The most awful treatment of ancient captives was putting out human eyes. Zedekiah and Samson were victims of this cruel practice, and it remained for Jesus to do the opposite and more blessed service of giving sight to the blind; and no boon conferred upon the unfortunate seemed to bring larger satisfaction than open eyes. "One think I know, that, whereas I was blind, now I see." One of the great promises of prophecy was "opening the eyes of the blind," and one of the works of Jesus was fulfilling that great promise. Three of the Fine Arts, Architecture, Sculpture, and Painting are addressed to the eye; and the other two, Poetry and Music are learned partly through this organ. In fact, most of the other senses are aided and strengthened by sight. Taste depends upon sight; feeling is enriched by the eye; hearing and even smelling are affected by the eye. The appearance of a dinner, the look of a fire, the face of the singer, or the beauty of the flower, all determine the pain or pleasure of these senses and the sensations that accompany them. Pills or grapes affect the stomach through the eye. In fact, many of the utilities of life are addressed directly to the eye. The fashions that decorate shop windows, that beautify cars, steamers, hotels, houses and churches, all appeal to vision. All dress and furnishings deal with eyes as much as need. God has made use of this condition in all tracteries of beauty, in the world and in garnishing the heavens. The springs and streams that make rivers all run in lines of beauty, under crags of grandeur, fringed with alders, willows, and ferns, and break in billows of white foam over rocks or run in stately quiet through plains toward the sea. Whether in green leaf and blossom of spring time or in the red and gold and orange of autumn; or in the wealth of summer forests, meadows and fields of the snow-covered mountains in wintertime, God has written in glowing language in beauty for the eye. This gate way should be considered in the Sunday school.

1. In the place. The Sunday school room should be designed with reference to beauty as well as utility. Many of the school houses of other days were as unsightly as the stalls and sheds for horses and cows. Such places were characterized by the rudest workmanship, the roughest material, unpainted, often undressed, not even comfortable, much less esthetic. Those old school houses look now totally unsuited to the education of the young. It is true that many were educated in spite of these defects. What is true of secular education is also true of Sunday schools. The old meeting house without ceiling or plaster, without stove or proper light, with benches too high and too rough for tender age made Sunday school either an absent institution or inefficient one. The Sunday school of fifty years ago was as crude as the place. This is no reflection on our forefathers who grappled with primeval forests, Indians, and subsistence; it only suggests the importance of better buildings for such a noble work. The Sunday school will never reach its best till classes have separate rooms, seats suited to age, walls bearing marks of taste, and surroundings that suggest what is clean and good. The eye drinks in the surroundings as flowers the sunlight and the rain.

2. The furnishings. The musical instruments, the pictures, the blackboard, the mottoes, the charts, all may help the class and the school. Unsightly equipment or none loses an opportunity which no oral teaching can overcome. It must not be forgotten that many scholars came from homes where tidiness, cleanliness, beauty have no part nor lot in daily life. You cannot put into these minds by oral instruction all that would do them good. What they see reaches them more thoroughly than what they hear. The moving picture craze is not a mark of degeneracy, as many seem to think; it rather emphasizes the possibilities of eye-gate. There may be evils in the moving pictures, but it is in the evil pictures, not in the art. There is no school with such vast possibilities as the picture school. The trouble is that the devil seizes great opportunities while the church sleeps. Our churches ought to spend more on attractive places and attractive furnishings in the Sunday school rooms. Years ago the lesson was covetousness. I had read how a monkey was caught by putting his hand in a bottle with a slim neck. The monkey would put his hand down the neck of the bottle and fill it with corn; rather than turn the corn loose he was caught. I requested Miss De Kilby to make a drawing of this on the blackboard and she did. There was the bottle, the monkey with his slim arm down the slim neck of the bottle with his hand full of corn; he could not draw his hand back without turning loose the corn, and he would not do this and was caught. I am sure that most of those who were in that school remember to this day that picture. Pictures make more vivid and lasting impressions on the mind than words. The picture of example is more lasting than precept.

Charts, maps, mottoes, blackboards, pictures, even attractive seats may all convey moral lessons through eye-gate to the soul. I saw a great rock in a pond whose sides had been fashioned into beauty by the constant motion of the water. The rough sides wore away, and it was polished as by the chisel of an artist. Physical surroundings are schools in themselves. Visible objects burn themselves into the very fiber of human life as the furnace fixes the painting of the artist in the pottery so that you cannot destroy the image without breaking the vessel. No eye ever saw a beautiful horse come from a filthy stall; the horse may have possessed the qualities of a beautiful horse, but he became beautiful when groomed in a clean place. As "cleanliness is next to godliness," so artistic environment is very close to morality; and this does not overlook the vile use that is made of buildings, decorations, paintings, music, and beauty; but even bad character could not so easily attract men and women if physical attractions were not employed.

3. The Persons. This plea is not made in the ideal and impossible Sunday school world; nor does it intend to suggest that all schools can reach the best; but it does claim that all schools may improve their physical agencies and thus enhance the value of Sunday school work. Many schools might make some addition of rooms in the rear of the church without much cost, and these rooms could be made attractive in many simple ways. I have seen an old "common school house" made attractive by clean floors, clean windows, a few flowers on the teacher's desk, a few plain pictures on the walls and all the inexpensive work of a young lady school teacher. It will surprise one to see what taste and effort can perform. The very atmosphere is charged with moral lessons in such a place. But as this suggests, the real source of all these suggestions is in the officer and teachers. The school itself must exhibit concrete character as a visible product in human form as the supreme attraction for the young. The human equipment should always surpass the physical equipment, "inasmuch as he who hath builded the house hath more honor than the house; for every house is builded by some man; but he that buildt all things is God." Heb. 3:3. No school can reach its highest and best unless religious character enter the eye-gate through the lives of those who conduct the school. The artist is more than the art, the superintendent is more than the room, and the teacher more than the picture. That lies at the bottom of the desire of the Greeks who said: "We would see Jesus." The most beautiful thing yet seen is beautiful types of religious workers; beyond that lies still more beautiful things; "eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man the things which God hath prepared for them that love him;" but the time will come when we shall see Him as He is.

The Golden Gate may let in the treasures of the Pacific on our western coast and the gates of Bay and River may let in the shipping of the Atlantic on the east, but the Eye-Gate may let in the glories of nature and man and through these the symbols of character, the aspirations of eternity, and the glories of heaven; and the souls that are fashioned into the image of Jesus Christ through agencies of light will shine as the stars forever and ever.

ELON COLLEGE NOTES

Dr. Martyn Sumerbell concluded his course of lectures on the Reformation in the Netherlands on Thursday. He left for his home that night, preaching in the Greensboro church on the way. His visit was, as usual, an occasion of inspiration and instruction.

Dr. J. O. Atkinson did quadruple duty in Norfolk Sunday after this manner: Sunday school address at 9:30, sermon at 11:00, missionary address at 3:00, and opening sermon at Rosemont at 8:00. We are sure he delivered the goods on each occasion.

Dr. T. C. Amick preached to fine acceptance at the 11:00 o'clock service Sunday in Dr. Atkinson's absence. Dr. Amick's theme was Why Christians Should Not Be Ashamed of the Gospel.

Mr. Prince, Travelling Y. M. C. A. Secretary, addressed the Student Volunteer Band here on Thursday evening.

Dr. W. P. Lawrence represented Elon in the Association of American Colleges in Chicago last week. He is expected home tomorrow (Tuesday).

Rev. L. E. Smith, Elon 1910, now in the Princeton Theological Seminary, has accepted the pastorate of the Huntington, Ind., Christian Church. All the Elon family will wish him and his good wife well in this very responsible field.

It is understood here that Mr. S. M. Atkinson, graduate of the Boston Law School and of Elon, 1908, is to locate in Richmond, Va., shortly to practice his profession.

The local Peace Contest to select Elon's representative to the N. C. State Contest to be held on February 19, is scheduled to occur on Tuesday, February 2. Several young men will enter it.

The College Library is open now all day, from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. and from 7 p. m. to 9 p. m. This gives splendid opportunity for research and general culture.

Dr. Frank S. Child writes that he is planning to visit the College early in March. He will certainly be welcome. It has been three years since he was here.

The Faculty have given the Senior Class the option of writing a graduating thesis or of presenting an essay or an oration as class representative for the annual Commencement.

The College has just issued a folder setting forth the lectures and addresses the members of the Faculty are in the habit of giving in their extension work. These addresses are suitable for commencement occasions, celebrations and rallies of various kinds, as well as for churches, Sunday schools, Young People's Societies and colleges.

TRIUMPHANT CHRISTIANITY

Men conversant with missionary literature, and especially the various missionary magazines devoted to reporting and promoting denominational missions, are fully persuaded that missionary work is successful, and that Christianity is triumphing in every field where the church is vigorously doing the Lord's bidding. What must the verdict be in Asiatic Turkey and Armenia? Victory! The Young Turk movement and the kaleidoscopic changes in Turkey are sufficient comment. What is the verdict in darkest Africa? Victory! Uganda is a marvel still. What is the verdict in the Congo country? Victory! and that in spite of hindrances thrown in the way by people of civilized countries. What is the verdict in northern and southern India? Victory! The solid east is drifting in "mass movements" to the cross. What is the verdict in Assam and Burma? Victory! The doctor and school teacher, under Christian inspiration, have co-operated with the preacher in smiting superstition and heathenism with fatal blows. What is the verdict in the islands of the ocean? Victory! Marvelous victory! In New Guinea, Borneo, Sumatra, New Hebrides, Fiji, Hawaii, Rarotonga, Philippines, and other results of missionary work have been wonderful and still continue so. And what of Christianity in China, and Japan, and Korea? Victory! The Boxer wrath contributed directly and largely to planting most thrifty churches in the very spots where Boxer guns and sword spilt martyr blood. Long ago the imperial edict forbidding the Japanese to embrace Christianity was torn from public sight, and the government now seeks the good agency of Christians in supplying Japan with adequate moral character. And who does not know of the tens of thousands of Koreans annually gathered into the church?

The Christian church is a going concern, and the biggest of them all. This fact, of stupendous significance, is really dawning on our brotherhood, and there is a growing desire, thank God, in the hearts of our people to greatly enlarge our missionary enterprise. The American Christian Convention at Springfield recognized the desire and gave voice to it. None of our quadrennial conventions have been so thoroughly under sway of the missionary spirit. Christianity is winning some of its triumphs in Christian lands and in the Christian church. If it finally transpires that the Christian denomination has a missionary vision, there are some people who will regard that as a distinct victory. And furthermore, Christianity, in any church, that is a thorough exemplification of the missionary spirit is a triumphant Christianity, reaching out and winning. We wish that every denomination might have heard Dr. MacCallman's account of a church in Scotland that was a living illustration of this truth.

Our last year's foreign mission receipts are one evidence of the awakening among us:

From Churches	$ 8,327.92
From Sunday schools	1,113.62
From Christian Endeavor Societies	387.45
From Missionary and Aid Societies	545.25
From Woman's Board for Foreign Missions	2,798.05
From Conferences	297.79
From Permanent Fund Interest	226.64
From Southern Christian Convention	1,855.00
From Woman's Home and Foreign Mission Board of the S. C. C.	394.00
From Personal Offerings	3,927.66
From Young People's Mission Circle	50.00
From Specials for Porto Rico	25.00
From Special for Japan	6.00
From Sale of Souvenir Pins	13.95
From Defiance College	6.00
From Christian Publishing Ass'n ..	150.00
Net Receipts	$20,124.33

We may reasonably expect churches, Sunday schools, Christian Endeavor Societies, the Woman's Foreign Boards, and personal offerings to increase this year. There should be a considerable enlargement of Christian Endeavor offerings. In recent years they have not been up to the standard of former years. But the past year's receipts have been the best up to the present.

Three churches, Memorial Temple, Norfolk, Va., and Covington, Ohio, and Third Church, Norfolk, Va., are supporting foreign missionaries. Providence, R. I., Keswick, Ontario, Antioch of Western Indiana, are supporting Japanese pastors. The Woman's Mission Boards of the Erie, Eel River, Ontario, and Miami Conferences support Japanese pastors; and other churches are looking forward to support of missionaries or pastors on the foreign field. This is very hopeful.

The Southern Christian Convention raised its per capita standard for missions to 50 cts., or a total of about $11,000. This year the offerings should begin to show the effect of that action. There are a few churches here and there already giving about a dollar per capita, and some of them giving about $2.00.

In the past year there were several large gifts for the foreign work. There should be more this year. There will be if you speak to your friends about it and show them the need.

We have begun the year by sending out a new missionary, Miss Olive Williams, to Porto Rico. This should be followed later by another missionary family. At any rate, the first move toward manning the Porto Rican field should give us courage.

Our budget for the coming year is:

For the Japan field	$11,000.00
For return of the Garman's	600.00
For the Porto Rican field	4,200.00
For furlough salary	350.00
For administration	2,200.00
For miscellaneous expense	800.00
For deficit and enlargement of work	15,850.00

Total

.....	$35,000.00
-------	-------------

This sum according to vote of the Convention at Springfield, when the goal was set for us.

These therefore are the vital points for every reader of this to remember:

That everybody have a share in raising the $35,000.

That we raise the general standard of our foreign missionary giving.

That we help to make Christianity and our church of the triumphant, victorious sort.

1,000,000 souls for us to evangelize: 100,000 souls of us to do the work: $35,000 this year toward the splendid task. You will be in love with the task when you get to praying and giving for it. The service is joyful. Will you help?

—As we had feared our western brethren have captured Rev. L. E. Smith, who is soon to finish his three years of theological studies at Princeton. Huntington, Ind., is the fortunate congregation. Bro. Smith was much needed here in the South.

—One of our very busiest pastors is Rev. A. W. Andes, Harrisonburg, Va. He is pastor of ten country churches, and in addition finds time to use his library and pen not a little in the preparation of sermons and addresses for publication and platform. Bro. Andes is a man of brain, energy, and well directed effort. He is bringing things to pass.

—We are indebted to Prof. Alonzo C. Hall, of the chair of English in the Columbus, Ga., High School, for a copy of No. 1, Vol. 1 of Electron, a very creditable monthly magazine of 32 pages issued by the school. Prof. Hall's trained hand and elegant diction are in evidence on several pages of the well prepared journal which we trust may have many years of successful publication.

—To write again that which was written, but in some way left out of this column heretofore, we send congratulations to our good friend and brother, Rev. S. B. Klapp, Greensboro. Rev. P. T. Klapp officiated. The bride was Miss Fannie Gillie of Happy Home church, Rockingham county, on December 30. Bro. Klapp is one of our busiest and most faithful pastors, and we wish for him many years of wedded joy. The bride is a most estimable and amiable Christian woman. They will make their home at Greensboro, N. C.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON IV. JANUARY 24

Gideon and the Three Hundred.—Judges 7:1-25.

Golden Text.—Not by might, nor by power, but by my Spirit, saith the Lord of hosts.—Zech. 4:6.

This young man Gideon of our last Sunday's lesson asked for and received signs from God which bore testimony that the call was real. The next task was to pick an army suitable to fight in the name of their God a successful battle against the Midianites. Gideon had thirty-two thousand men to pick from; but he did not choose the warriors—the hand of God directed. It was not God's will that Gideon should take the whole number of them for fear that Israel would conclude they had been victorious in their own strength.

After the first test the number decreased to ten thousand. Still this was too many and a second test was given which resulted in three hundred left to fight the enemy of one hundred thirty-five thousand.

From a human point of view it seemed like folly to descend upon the strong and vast army in the valley. But Gideon knew God's will and desired to do His will.

Today many seeming impossibilities change into possibilities when they are undertaken in the name of God and with His approval. While on the other hand, possibilities change into impossibilities when we are disobedient and fail to ask His guiding and sustaining power.

"The whole story illustrates in a striking way the golden text.

"Think first of the characteristics of the men. Note these features and see how they illustrated in the narrative: (1) their confidence, both in God and in Gideon; (2) their courage, in a magnificent venture of faith; (3) their union, absolutely united under their leader; (4) their obedience, following exactly what was ordered; (5) their faithfulness, strictly observing, point by point, whether to wait or to shout or to pursue."

Impress the fact that we are every day weighed in the balances of life and service. Then too that we count in life's drama not by physical might or mental power the most, but by the spirit of God ruling supreme.

THE TEACHINGS

"God's glory is not being on the side of the heaviest battalions, but in giving weight to the battalion that is on His side."

"We are not to rely on numbers, but we need not look for success if we are to blame for small numbers."

"Victory is not the main thing, but a victory that has the marks of being due to God's approval. If a man has genuine faith, God bears with weakness, and makes the little faith grow."

"God has chosen to overcome the world with feeble instruments, but His followers must use all the strength and wisdom He will give them."

"The man that God has used to win a victory needs to be on guard for the battle against temptation that will follow."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC: JANUARY 24

Favorite Characters of the Bible, and Why.—
Ps. 105:1-45.

(Led by Sunday school superintendent)

The Sunday school superintendent is a favorite among his flock. He has been turning over numerous ideas and plans in his mind and has been thinking of a good opportunity to present them to the young people of his church in order that he may have some of the well considered and well worked out ideas in theory put into practice. Thereby uniting the efforts of the young people—of the Sabbath school and Christian Endeavor. Mr. Superintendent here is your chance to launch your raft. It may not be built so well and in fact it may look awkward, clumsy and helpless; but it may not, some day, be a magnificent war ship fighting battles for the Christ.

Probably some of the young people go to Sunday school and fail to attend the Christian Endeavor; some may go to Christian Endeavor and fail to attend the Sabbath school. Here is an opportunity to pledge the Christian Endeavor and make a proposition to them saying that if they will make more plans and urge their members to attend the Sabbath school you will see to it that the Sabbath school scholars will attend and lend interest to the Christian Endeavor.

It will be well and profitable if the leader will tell the society in what ways they can be of so much benefit to the school. Then he can show how much good the school can give to the society.

Have three or more Sunday school classes lend special features to the meeting. One class may render a song; another read scripture references; another comment on Bible characters; etc. In this way the Sunday school scholars will become interested and the society will of course be interested and want them to return every meeting.

The leader in closing his remarks should discuss the lives of two Bible characters, pointing out clearly what their lives counted for and why they counted. Then apply the lesson and show by word picture how each of us can be a favorite character with God.

All can take part for every one who knows anything about the Bible has a favorite character and knows why that character is a favorite one.

RICHLAND, GA., LETTER

I am exceptionally busy in my field of labor for 1915. I am serving the following churches: Richland, Union, Enigma, Kite, Oak Grove, and LaNett. I am preaching once per month at the following places: Cordele, Brookfield, Ambrose and Lumber City. My churches are in very good condition and the outlook with the most of them is fine. At Cordele we need a church and hope some day to have one. On New Year's day the first dollar was contributed towards a church building. At Brookfield we have a few members and in that locality we have as many as 18 members.

I am on my way the second time to Ambrose. I was invited here by Bro. T. J. Holland. On Tuesday after the first Sunday in December he met me in his car at Ocella, and I spent two days in his beautiful country home. Brother Holland is from Eastern Virginia. He has been in Georgia about twenty years. He married a Miss Smith and they have a little boy about eight years old. Brother Holland is fortunate in the choice of his companion. They have an ideal home, well built. He has his own electric plant and water works. He lives two miles from Ambrose, a little town on the A. B. and A. They have five or six stores and a new school building. There is not a church in the place. The Primitives have a church without about a mile. The Baptists have a church in less than a mile. It is in a good section of the country, and will be developed in a few years. We hope to have a church here quite soon. I preach here on Tuesday and Wednesday nights after the first Sunday.

We have several members located at Lumber City. Three of the Elder families are located here. They are sons of Joe W. Elder. There are some people in this city who came from Virginia and were members of the Christian church. I will preach there Thursday night after the first Sunday. We need some hustling preachers here and a little money to back them. Success would follow.

A POUNDING

On Christmas eve I found a box in the express office from Oak Grove. It weighed 475 pounds. Well, we just carried it down to the parsonage and proceeded to get it open. My wife and children enjoyed seeing inside as well as I. We found hams, sausage, syrup, dried fruit, white peas, canned fruits, potatoes, and many other things. Mrs. J. R. Highsmith took this matter in hand and the good people joined her. We extend them our sincere thanks, and pray God's richest blessings.

TWENTY-FIFTH ANNIVERSARY OF OUR MARRIAGE

On Christmas day we had over one hundred of our friends to feast with us at the parsonage. We had lived happily together for twenty-five years. The pastors of the Baptist and Methodist churches were present and added to the joy of the occasion. Mrs. Tinpe and Mrs. D. S. Hogg had charge of the program. They were ably assisted by Mrs. Hare and Miss Abell. The silver gifts were useful and beautiful. They are valued very highly. There was something like 75 pieces and 15 silver dollars. Thanks.
H. W. ELDER.

In 1890 forty-two children out of every 1,000 were unable to read or write; in 1914 fifteen out of every 1,000 were illiterate. In North Carolina, however, 66 out of every 1,000 are illiterate.

Two Elon College men now fill places in Herald of Gospel Liberty and in the work of the A. C. C.: Rev. W. C. Wicker, D. D., Secretary of Sunday schools, who writes the comment on the lesson each week; and President W. A. Harper, who as Secretary of Christian Endeavor writes the topic and comment each week for Christian Endeavor. President Harper began his work as Secretary last week, Dr. Wicker having begun his four years ago.

A LETTER FROM ONE OF OUR MISSIONARIES

(This letter, written to the Women's Societies, will be of interest to all, as it gives a page from the life of a missionary.—Mrs. R.)

Dear Friends:

Yesterday I had the privilege of a whole Sabbath day in Sendai, attending all the meetings of the church here, and I thought it might be interesting to you to hear about it. Usually I am away Sunday afternoons and evenings, helping at some of our country churches or outposts.

The English Bible Class met in the pastor's residence, at the rear of the church. It was made up of High School boys, and one who has graduated from the High School. All of them are able to read, and as I make my class work bilingual, they are able to understand most of the explanation. Several have been baptized from this class during the past year. With the exception of my Normal School class, I hold all my Bible classes at the church or parsonage, just to bring the students into contact with the church, and I try to insist that its members must also attend the church services. At the same time, the Sunday school was going on in the church building, and the parsonage combined. The school has ten classes. Two of these meet in the gallery, one in each of the three rooms under the gallery, at the rear of the auditorium, one in one of the little rooms at the side of the pulpit platform, two in the auditorium, and two (aside from my English Bible class) in the parsonage. The teachers are about evenly divided, into young men and women. Mrs. Kitano and her two daughters (Mrs. Sugai and Suya Chan) all teach, but Mr. Kitano holds himself ready for emergencies. Mr. Isazaki, the church treasurer, superintends the school. Most of the male teachers are recruits from the English Bible class. There were about 140 children present, some quite tiny, some with babies on their backs, and some well started in their 'teens. An hour is a long time for confining 140 "children of the street" (for Japanese children do live practically on the street when not in school or asleep) and when the signal was given for closing, in spite of the efforts of Mrs. Kitano and several others of the teachers, there was pandemonium, especially on the boys' side. Irrepressibility spells "boy" the world over. Or perhaps I should have put that the other way around, but most things Japanese are upside down, or wrong end to, to an American, so I will leave it as it is. At any rate, it did not take the children long to get out of the church. Some of them tarried a bit to exchange the small cards which they had received for larger ones, and I saw one girl go out with a large picture from the large Sunday school roll in her hand. The system is to give a small Japanese card each Sunday and when the child gets five of these, meaning that he has been in attendance five Sundays, he brings them back and exchanges them for one of the small foreign cards (like the larger roll pictures) and when he gets ten of these cards he brings them also and exchanges them for one of the large pictures cut from the roll itself.

At the close of the Sunday school at ten o'clock, came the morning service, "Reihai," we call it in distinction to the evening "dendo" service. "Reihai" means "worship" and "dendo" means "evangelistic." The attendance was smaller than it often is, about forty being present. Mr. Kitano read the first part of the third chapter of John, and took for his text, "Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God," and preached a helpful sermon on baptism. This was followed by a baptismal service, two young ladies and one young man being baptized. The young man is a High School graduate, the son of a University professor here. One of the young ladies is a sister of one of our deceased pastors, and all three of them have known of Christianity almost from childhood, two of them coming from Christian homes. The baptismal service was followed by the observance of the Lord's Supper, the missionary being asked to conduct this. Nearly all present were Christians, thirty-one out of the forty partaking of the elements.

In the afternoon the outpost Sunday schools are not very well attended, the weather being too balmy. Mrs. Kitano and two or three of the young people were in charge at Miya Machi, and two of the young ladies looked after the school at Kawara Machi. One of these young ladies was the daughter of a poor woman who was so distressed years ago as to have to resort to begging. It was in this condition that she was discovered, and a little judicious help made it possible for her to prove that she was not professionally, but of necessity, begging. The daughter, then a tiny girl, is now an efficient Sunday school teacher, a living example of the real character of Christianity in its power to deal, not only with spiritual, but physical conditions also. Those Sunday schools are a very great help in the development of the young people of the church, wholly aside from the fact that they are leading a goodly number of children toward the Kingdom.

In the evening Mr. Kitano's sermon was followed by a baptismal service, a young man, a High School student, and a young lady, a trained nurse (neither of whom could be present in the morning) being baptized.

Of course we do not have baptisms every Sunday. It was a mere happen so that these baptisms came on the Sunday I was here. I had arranged to be at Ishinomaki for the afternoon and evening, but something had occurred so that it seemed better to postpone my going there till next Sunday. So I enjoyed the day, and I am sure your ladies of the Woman's Board would have enjoyed it to. And I have written of it that you people may see that our work here is closely similar in all respects to your own work at home, that the Spirit works on human hearts everywhere, and leads them to the Father, that your labor of love in maintaining this work in Sendai is not in vain, but is gathering souls into the Kingdom, and that we might rejoice together in these encouragements to our work. Very truly yours,

E. K. McCord.

1,000 BLOCKS

One thousand blocks representing $1.00 each or $1,000 in all. Just the amount that is necessary to put the congregation in the new church at Reidsville. How many blocks will you take? Do it now.

You are going to send us the amount of one block toward our thousand, are you not? Remember, we don't ask for the whole thousand from you; all we want is at least one, and we will surely get the whole number if you will only do this for us. Do not question whether others will do the same; leave that to us—that is our lookout.

And Cultivates the Will—the Real Sovereign. But it may be objected that such discipline can be had in a store or a factory or the army. In a sense this is true, but with a vital difference. In a store or a factory or the army, the duties are prescribed and the "boss" under whatever title, enforces strict adherence thereto or discharges the refractory employee. There is not much opportunity for the display of the will power in making choice between duties that may be neglected and pleasures that bid for indulgence. No such seminary for the development of the will has ever been devised as the small college, where parental care is showered over all and where duties and pleasures involving the will's cultivation and development are plentifully supplied. To this benign opportunity for strengthening the will through exercise the vocations of daily life can offer no parallel.

And Gives Man the Keys to the Storehouse of Knowledge. But far more valuable than the inculcation of correct habits of work and thought is the acquaintance the college course gives with the field of universal knowledge and the processes of attacking the problems that demand solution at our hands. It is not required that a man shall remember all he learns during his college days in order to profit by his study. He may forget all the Latin and Greek he ever knew and not be able to demonstrate a single proposition in geometry nor perform a single experiment in science. He may not be able to recall the facts of history nor the schools of philosophy, and yet have in the mastery of these items of forgotten lore acquired such insight into the methods of attacking difficult problems that he is qualified for leadership in the affairs of life, and where other men falter and ultimately go down in the fierce onslaught, he calmly and serenely and self-confidently, because of his rare insight into the processes of grappling with difficult situations, goes on to rich and satisfying achievement. Let the college man who shrinks from the tangled maze of his daily allotment of Greek and Latin or higher mathematics content himself with the sweet thought that in their mastery he is destined to discover the golden threads of the most effective processes of work—a discovery that shall give him a tremendous lead in the race of life. And further let him consider that his wide acquaintance with truth as the college course opens it up to him will stand him in good stead in coming days and enable him with little effort to keep himself informed or to inform himself as to any matter involving expert skill in investigation. The training of the will through manifold decisions, the inculcation of correct habits of work and thought, the insight into the effective processes of grappling with difficult situations, and the possession of a wide range of knowledge connected with the ability to investigate for himself any particular realm of it—these are priceless boons of college education and happy is the man who fortunately is possessed of them.

IV. GENERAL CULTURE

I Said Culture, Not Polish. Note that I did not say polish, but culture. Polish is put on from the outside. It is a veneer and its thinness is easily discernible by all. But culture is from within out. It does not come off because it is not put on. There are schools which essay to teach culture. They really teach polish—what might perhaps be dubbed culturine—and their product is distasteful to all who really know what true culture is. The graduates of such schools know the latest styles of dress and the names of the newest indigestible viands and the tricks of entertaining and are past masters in idleness and frivolity. "They are experts at playing bridge, but veriest ignoramuses at playing Bridget." If they are possessed of culture, the less we have of it the better.

The Real Culture of the Educated Man. The culture for which I plead is that which Matthew Arnold described as acquaintance with the best that has been thought, said, and done in man's history. Such acquaintance gives dignity, gives charm, gives worth to its possessor. Such a person is refined, genuinely refined, because his refinement is the outcropping of his soul and not the habiliment of a groom. He is cultured, genuinely cultured, because high thinking always takes practical form in culture that cannot fail—a culture as high above that which comes of fashionable living as a real man is above his pampered horse or a real woman is above her fondled poodle. The man or woman of culture is at home in the kitchen or the workshop, in the parlor, in society, in educated circles, among the unlearned, amid wealth or poverty, everywhere or anywhere, and at any time. His culture does not puff him up, but makes him the servant of all his fellows, and wherever there is human need to be satisfied he has found his friend and neighbor. Such culture comes unconsciously, as a by-product. It comes without being sought for, but when it has come, what a richness, what a joy, what a halo of glory it lends the life of its possessor and of every one with whom he comes in contact! And nothing else can yield it so sweetly as the college course.

V. CHRISTIAN CHARACTER

But Christian Character Is Education's Highest Contribution to Life. But the crowning contribution of education to life-equipment is Christian character. Nothing else can take its place. And the education which fails in this respect has failed beyond redemption. It becomes the enemy of progress and should be cast into outer darkness. A man without character, without Christian character, is a danger to our civilization, and the better he is educated the greater menace he becomes to our free institutions. We want education and we will have it; but we want education based on Christian character even more, and we are determined to have it. We will not permit any maudlin sentimentality in regard to the necessity of free-thought to rob us of the most vital element in any education—character and the God that makes character possible. We believe in the right of each individual to choose his own religious faith, but we also believe that the educational system should make it easy, not hard, for him to have faith at all. Freedom of thought is not synonymous with skepticism and infidelity and if it is, we will have no more freedom of thought. The American people have issued their ultimatum to this fetish of a deluded age. They have said to it: "You shall not crucify the most priceless possession of life, Christian character, on your cross of free-thought. Christian character has been our nation's bulwark in all our generations. It has brought us to leadership in national and private life. It has been our pillar of fire by night and our pillar of cloud by day. It is to us evidence that the God of our fathers is with us yet, with us yet, and you shall not sacrifice this glorious heritage on your altar of free-thought. If your education cannot give us as its crowning work the sweet fruitage and exquisite charm of Christian character, then we will dwell with the Lord in the tents of the untutored and the unlearned!" So say the American people and so say we.

Which We Are Determined Our Educational

System Shall Yield Us. And yet there are institutions in this Christian land, in this land where the sentiments just expressed represent the mature judgment of ninety per cent. and more of our people, in this Christian land of whose Christian ideals bodying themselves forth in most humanitarian methods and institutions we are pardonably proud, in this delightful Christian land, "Where the weak grow strong and the strong grow great," there are educational institutions from which young men and women, the flower of our country, each year emerge after four years of study and research with no more conception of the true God and of their relationship to Him or of His relationship to society than if they had been educated in the jungles of Africa. Isn't it awful? It is more than awful, but the day of redemption is at hand. We have scented the enemy and he is ours. We will never give up the battle, but will fight it out along this line if it takes us our life-time. And when we pass off the arena, we will transmit the feud to our children and they to theirs, till the virus of this deadly heresy has been absolutely eliminated from the veins of our national life. We value education, but we value Christian character even more, and the beauty of it is that we can have both if we will, and we will.

MUSICAL INSTITUTE

At Wentworth church, McCullers, N. C., Thursday and Friday before the 4th Sunday in February, the Music Committee of the Eastern North Carolina and Christian Endeavor Convention will hold a musical institute.

Pastors, Superintendents, leaders of music and all who will help are wanted to meet with us and help to make the institute a glorious success. Our doors will swing wide open to you. We will gladly entertain you free and our hearts will accompany every handshake we give you. Pastors, will you please mention the institute to the different churches under your charge and insist that they have their leaders attend?

The music in our churches and Sunday schools is something that is well worth while. Your committee is prayerfully anxious to see it improved. Bro. Superintendent, won't you get busy now? Have a singing taught in your school, then see to it that the class is well represented at the institute.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN—A CHURCH PAPER

I love to read the papers,,

I like them every one,

But best of all I like to read

The dear old Christian Sun.

On rainy Sunday evenings,

When you are left alone,

'Tis nice to have a Christian Sun

To shine around your home.

In its pages a sermon first,

The pastors' letters next,

And on the lines of the middle pages

You'll find the golden text.

On one of the pages of the paper,

Like a nice, clean sheet,

You will find the Orphanage happenings,

Published every week.

So with all the papers;

I read them every one,

But as I have already said,

I like best The Christian Sun.

Dear Cradle Roll Superintendents:

You will remember that my last letters dealt with the Cradle Roll Missionary work among the Cradle Roll Babies. Today I am presenting to you extracts from a most splendid paper on this subject read by Mrs. J. L. Foster at Suffolk. I feel that she has said it better than I can, so let her speak to you. She said in part:

"Is not this one of the most important steps in our Woman's Work—that of beginning the missionary thought in infancy. Then, when the baby has grown to be a man or woman we will not have to beg them to join the missionary societies or to give to missions, for they will have had the necessary training along these lines by enlisting mothers and workers to care for the babies. Some of our older people, who do not believe in missions, will never change their views, but the baby will know nothing else but to love and pray and work for Missions.

The object of the Missionary Cradle Roll is to bring the spirit of missions into the lives of the tiny ones from birth to 5 years old; to strengthen the bonds of sympathy and friendship; to make the membership mean something to mother and child; to make make babies life happier and its future larger. Not to make mother's work greater, but to lighten by helpful suggestions as she thus helps to train her baby for a better, sweeter, nobler life. "One deed there is, all others shall outlast—to help a little child."

To round out the full work of the women in our Conferences, we must have the babies.

The Cradle Roll work of the S. S. has proven most successful as everyone knows, and many religious institutions are following and appreciating the importance of the Baby. In a Minnesota town there is a Cradle Roll connected with the Salvation Army; in a Michigan city, a Cradle Roll hangs on the wall of the office of a Y. W. C. A. and the babies members are enrolled in the Cradle Roll Department. In the "Lend-a-hand Club" of Davenport, Ia., there is a wall roll prominently displayed near the main entrance, and here, too, babies of members are enrolled.

So can we, who have banded together in the Woman's work for Missions in the South, fail to do our best to organize a Missionary Cradle Roll in every church?

Surely one cannot reach a standard of excellence until this most important work, this foundation work has been begun.

If our babies are to be happy, they must be taught to help somebody else for happiness was born a twin and never can they know what true happiness is until they have felt the pleasure of being a help to somebody. The tiny toddler is often seen to be quite happy in his effort to carry one small piece of wood for mother's fire, or crawling over the floor to find her thread or thimble. I am sure that if the others would only cooperate with the superintendents in this grand work of starting the babies right in the work of evangelizing the world in a few years not only our small fields of Japan and Porto Rico would be in a flourishing condition, but the work would spread and people would hear the cry "Oh, I am so glad my mother taught me what true living meant when I was young."

The work of the Missionary Cradle Roll is most beautifully and fittingly divided—one-half the dues going to the orphanage at Sendai, and one-half to the Orphanage at Elon. Such a tiny amount for each baby to pay, fifteen cents a year! But then, they are tiny people and it is the spirit rather than the amount that makes this period of life so full of hope for the future.

My dear Children and Friends:—

Our report is short this week, but will not grumble if you will get busy and give a better one next week—instead of complaining we are thankful for three faithful ones that kept our corner from coming up blank this week.

And then we desire to thank our loyal, helpful pastors who are responding so promptly to our letter concerning enlisting the Sunday schools in the monthly offering. I hope the pastors who have not yet sent me a list of the officers of their school will do so at once. We want to write each of our Sunday school superintendents a letter and get them on our side too.

Some may think the estimate I gave in last week's letter, is rather high, but you should bear in mind that ours is a growing family. A gentleman told me recently that it cost him $200.00 per month to support his family of five, and had no house rent to pay either, as he owns his own home. Now if it costs him $200.00 to support his family of five, I do not think $400 for a family of 56 should be considered extravagant. We are economizing on every point we can, but we must not hinder the growth of the institution or interfere with the child's proper development. We are not asking large amounts of any, but are endeavoring to get all enlisted so that the work can be carried on and developed to greater efficiency without burdening any.

The financial stringency through which we are passing makes it necessary that we pay our bills monthly. Business men find it hard to meet their obligations, and are unable to extend lengthy credits; but we are anxious to sell for cash. We can save hundreds of dollars for the institution by being able to meet our bills promptly at the end of each month. And another advantage in this plan is the great relief it will give to the superintendent. It will enable him to give his best thought and attention to the children of the institution instead of chasing all over the church trying to get enough to feed and clothe them with. Brethren we can easily raise the expense of the institution monthly and let's all unite and do it.

*Liberty, N. C., Jan. 12, 1915.

Dear Uncle Jim:—
Here I come with my dime for January. My father gave it to me. My school has started again and I am glad. I suppose the orphan children are in school again.

I was glad to receive the card you sent me, and I think it is very beautiful. Enclosed you will find my dime for January. Love to you and all the cousins.

Romie Amick.

Yes, our children are in school again, though chicken-pox has kept some at home.

Holland, Va., Jan. 13, 1915.
Dear Uncle Jim:—

Here we are with our first letters and dimes for nineteen-fifteen. We hope you will have a prosperous year at the orphanage. We intend doing what we can for you. Mother is going to give her Sunday eggs for missions again this year, and I am sure I will get my part for the orphanage. Papa has already given Howard a little pig. He will help attend to the pig and I will help look after the hens, and report to you next December what success we had.

We hope you all had a pleasant Christmas at the orphanage. We enjoyed every moment of the vacation. Brother Shirley was home from Elon College, and we did love to have him with us so much. We close with much love and best wishes for you and all the orphanage family.

Your little friends,

Mary Nell Holland,
J. Howard Holland.

Thank you, for your good letter and good wish for a prosperous year, with the promise to help make it so. I know you will for you did so nicely last year.

CHURCH NEWS

AMBROSE, GEORGIA

Brother H. W. Elder from Richland preached for us last Tuesday and Wednesday night in the town of Ambrose. He is one of our ablest ministers, and everybody seemed to enjoy his sermons. He will preach for us again the first Tuesday and Wednesday nights in February. He is the first Christian minister that has ever preached in this part of South Georgia. Everybody is glad to welcome him.

Yours very truly,

T. J. HOLLAND.

ENIGMA, GEORGIA

A happy and prosperous new year to you and THE CHRISTIAN SUN. Rev. H. W. Elder, of Richland, Ga., has begun his eighth year as pastor here. He is held in high esteem and love, not only by his church but by all the people. He has been very faithful and patient in the Master's work here. We have three other churches in our little village, but there has been no friction. His congregations have been good and he has preached the truth with zeal and earnestness.

We have a union Woman's Missionary Society in which all the denominations take part and contribute to missions monthly. We are not doing a great deal. Our mites are small, but we intend to do better this year, God being our helper. Many years ago I resolved to cultivate cheerfulness under all circumstances. It has not been an easy task, but I have succeeded to some extent. Am now nearing my 69th birthday, burdened with heavy cares, deprived of those dear to me. I am not sorrowful. I am not going down hill as some say of the old, but up hill all the way, and am sure that life is better farther on.

I have, like other people, made many resolutions that I have broken, or only half kept, but the one I have in my mind now is the keynote of my life. It is this: Always to regard as mere impertinences of fate the handicaps which were placed upon my life almost at the beginning. I resolved that they should not crush or dwarf my soul, but rather be made to blossom like Aaron's rod, with flowers. I want to honestly walk uprightly before God and man. I want to keep my lips fragrant with words of kindness, my heart pure with noble deeds, my hands clean with honorable actions, I want to keep my body sacred and my soul free. I will strive to be rich in love, strong in gentleness, untrifling in patience, abundant in hope. I will serve God by helping some of his children. I want to try always to

WHY THE SUNDAY-SCHOOL IS A VITAL NECESSITY IN CHINA

1. There are 100,000,000 children under 10 years of age in China. In the near future they may be taught almost entirely under a government system of education, and will be less accessible to the Christian day-school. The Sunday school must give them religious education.

2. The Chinese Christian Churches generally lack young men and maidens. Congregations are 80% adults, and many little children, but few youths between 15 and 25 years of age. They must be won and held for Christ by the placing of a new emphasis upon the departments of the Sunday school which minister to this age.

3. A church which gives itself mainly to winning new converts, as the Church in China naturally does, is in constant danger of neglecting them when they have been won. The Bible school has a necessary place in the continued nurture after they have entered into full membership in the churches. This is a phase of Sunday school work as yet largely undeveloped.

4. The youth of the boarding schools and colleges need to be trained in voluntary Christian service. The training of leaders from among the promising young people for the work of the local church falls naturally to the Sunday school.

The laymen of the churches need a wider field for expressional activity in real Christian service. The Sunday school affords it.

NEW TESTAMENTS FOR THE SOLDIERS

"A Million Nickels from a Million Sunday Schools for a Million Testaments for a Million Soldiers in the hospitals, camps, war-prisons and battlefields of the Great War." This is the present slogan of the American Section of the World's Sunday School Association, in an appeal just sent out through the press to Sunday schools of all denominations all over the United States.

The Executive Committee of the World's Sunday School Association, of which Mr. H. J. Heinz is chairman, and whose membership includes a number of prominent American business men, among whom is the Hon. John Wanamaker, is behind the plan and will bear the administrative expense of the movement, so that every nickel contributed by every child will go, every penny of it, into a Testament for a soldier or sailor. On the European fields the distributing machinery of the various national Bible Societies will be used, so that there will be no expense to the senders and no overlapping of gifts.

FOR REV. J. W. WELLONS

The N. C. and Va. Christian Conference asked its Secretary to request all its churches to take a special offering for Rev. J. W. Wellons, since all its superannuated fund has been voted to Rev. W. T. Herndon.

Soon after Conference, in November last, I wrote all the pastors, secretaries, and Sunday school superintendents a notice of this request. The following have reported the amounts set after each, which money has been turned over to Rev. J. W. Wellons:

- Hine's Chapel $1.65
- Long's Chapel 1.50
- Union, (N. C.) 2.00
- Bethlehem 1.50
- Ingram 2.66

Total $9.31
 Will others not report at once?

Elon College

For Both Men and Women

Elon College, North Carolina

For a quarter century Elon College has rendered the best families of the South a paragon service in providing young men and young women with the best mental, moral and physical training under positive Christian influences, tho entirely free from sectarianism.

Karl Lehman, of Boston, testifies that "of all the Colleges I have visited as International Field Secretary of Christian Endeavor during six years, the spirit of Elon College appeals to me as most genuinely Christian." Elon College is situated in the delightful hill country, a section unsurpassed for beauty, with a climate far-famed for its healthfulness. There is no medical fee, for there is no necessity for it. Its campus, comprising twenty-five acres of native oak and hickory, shrubbery, winding walks and driveways, is one of the most beautiful in the South and, with its two unsurpassed gymnasia, provides abundant opportunity for recreation and relaxation. The splendid equipment of Elon College was only made possible through liberal endowment. It maintains seven elegant new buildings, especially designed and appointed for college work. These are furnished with every known convenience; steam heat, electric lights, running water, baths and sewerage. The College plant is conservatively valued at $300,000.00.

Elon College is distinctly a high-grade institution, though its charges are moderate. Its graduates are admitted to the graduate departments of all the great universities without examination. Its literary and scientific courses are arranged in various departments which lead to the degrees of Master of Arts, Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science, Bachelor of Philosophy, Bachelor of Pedagogy, and a three-years' course leading to the degree of Licentiate of Instruction, designed especially for teachers. This institution affords special opportunities for training in Piano, Voice, Expression, Fine Arts, Normal Training, Physical Culture and Commercial Practice.

The Faculty consists of twenty-one specialists; men and women selected not only for their superior teaching ability, but also for their exemplary character and manners.

The student body numbers nearly four hundred and comes from thirteen states. The lowest rates in the South, only $161 to $181 per College session of ten months. Fall Term always opens the first Wednesday in September. For full descriptive catalogue and view-book, address

OUR DEAD

Boyette

R. R. Boyette was born July 1, 1853, departed this life June 28, 1914. He leaves to mourn their loss a devoted wife, Mrs. Sarah C. Boyette, and four sons and one daughter, and one sister, Mrs. Bettie Holland.

For five years he was afflicted. The last two years he was helpless. It was my privilege to visit him often the past year. The dear wife and Gladys, the devoted daughter, were ever at his side to administer to his every need. What would this world be without such loving hands?

Bro. Boyette was a consistent member of Holy Neck Christian church for the past ten years. He was a good neighbor, a loyal citizen, and will be missed by his neighbors and friends. Though feeble indeed, he loved to talk of heaven and of hunting in the days when fox hunting was so much in vogue. He loved nature, and has gone to nature's God where all sorrow is banished.

Funeral at his home, conducted by his pastor, after which he was laid to rest in the family plot. Many beautiful flowers were placed upon the grave by friendly and loving hands. B. F. BLACK.

Whitfield

W. E. Whitfield was born September 29, 1849, departed this life October 21, 1914. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Sallie Whitfield, five sons, R. E., C. J., M. D., S. P., and W. E. Whitfield, Jr., and one daughter, Mrs. T. I. Dobson.

He was a faithful member of Holy Neck Christian church, a good neighbor, a good citizen, and an industrious man in business. He served as town sergeant of Holland for several years. He served his country well as an officer for years and was highly respected by all.

His son Paul deserves much credit for his faithfulness to his aged father. They were together constantly, on the farm, in business or at the church.

The funeral was conducted at Holy Neck by the pastor, assisted by Dr. C. H. Rowland, of Franklin, Va.

Many lovely flowers were placed upon the grave by sad and loving friends. He was buried in the church cemetery.

The devoted widow and children have the sympathy of a host of friends. B. F. BLACK.

Cropper

Dr. Thomas E. Cropper died in Suffolk on January 13, 1915, in the seventy-sixth year of his age.

He served with distinction thru the Civil War in the First Maryland cavalry.

Dr. Copper was a graduate of Carlisle College, Pa., of Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, and a dentist by profession.

He was the founder and first editor of the "Suffolk Herald."

He made a profession of religion and united with the Suffolk Christian Church in 1888. He dropped out of the church, but told me the week before his death, it was the mistake of his life. In spite of backslidings he died in the faith.

His wife and one daughter survive him.

The Rector of the Episcopal church assisted in the funeral service and he was buried in Cedar Hill cemetery. W. W. STALEY.

Beaton

J. T. Beaton departed this life Aug. 29, 1914, age 54 years. He leaves to mourn their loss four sons and two daughters: Charles, Herbert, Oscar and Linwood of Suffolk, Va., and Mrs. Leslie Binkley and Mrs. G. W. Griggs of Suffolk, Va., and three sisters, Miss Bettie Beaton, Mrs. Mattie Bradshaw and Mrs. Annie Munford. His wife preceded him some three years to the upper and better land.

He was a member of Holy Neck Christian Church, but had not been enabled to attend worship there for some years, having moved to Suffolk, Va.

Funeral by the writer at Holland Christian church. He was laid to rest in Holland cemetery. B. F. BLACK

The Duplex Envelope System

COPYRIGHT 1914, DUPLEX, RICHMOND, VA.

The Duplex Envelope System is the most successful method yet devised for promoting systematic weekly offerings for both Local Church Support and Missions or Benevolences. Ninety per cent. of the churches that once adopt the Duplex System continue to use it from year to year. Which means that, taking the churches as they come—large and small; rich and poor; city and country; churches with whole-time pastors and churches with half-time or quarter-time pastors; churches whose methods go place with an age of "scientific-management," and churches with go-as-you-please methods—in ninety per cent. of the total the Duplex System is a success.

● But it is needless to say that the churches which get the best results are those in which the System is not simply put in and left to work itself; but those in which efforts are being continually put forth to develop in every member a vital sense of responsibility for his share of the work of the Church at home and abroad. One thing that every church can do, is to have an Every-Member Campaign—two by two—when the Duplex System is installed, and once a year thereafter—conducting the campaign along the lines set forth in the "Manual of Missionary Methods," published by the LAYMEN'S MISSIONARY MOVEMENT (No. 1 Madison Avenue, New York City).

We here list the original Duplex Envelope System, published for the past eleven years by the Duplex Envelope Company, Richmond, Va. The publishers guarantee to refund the entire purchase price upon request, or, in your discretion, to reprint and deliver the order complete, without expense to you, should the System not prove satisfactory in every respect.

CALOMEL DYNAMITES YOUR LIVER!

MAKES YOU SICK AND SALIVATES

"Dodson's Liver Tone" Starts Your Liver Better Than Calomel and You Don't Lose a Day's Work

Live up your sluggish liver! Feel fine and cheerful; make your work a pleasure; be vigorous and full of ambition. But take no nasty, dangerous calomel because it makes you sick and you may lose a day's work.

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel crashes into sour bile like dynamite, breaking it up. That's when you feel that awful nausea and cramping.

Listen to me! If you want to enjoy the nicest, gentlest liver and bowel cleansing you ever experienced just take a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone tonight. Your druggist or dealer sells you a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone under my personal money-back guarantee that each spoonful will clean your sluggish liver better than a dose of nasty calomel and that it won't make you sick.

Dodson's Liver Tone is real liver medicine. You'll know it next morning because you will wake up feeling fine, your liver will be working; headache and dizziness gone; stomach will be sweet and bowels regular.

Dodson's Liver Tone is entirely vegetable, therefore harmless and can not salivate. Give it to your children. Millions of people are using Dodson's Liver Tone instead of dangerous calomel now. Your druggist will tell you that the sale of Calomel is almost stopped entirely here.

"IN ESSENTIALS UNITY, IN NON-ESSENTIALS LIBERTY, IN ALL THINGS CHARITY."

OUR PRINCIPLES.

- (1.) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the church.
- (2.) Christian is a sufficient name for the church.
- (3.) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4.) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of church membership.
- (5.) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

Editorial Briefs

The Winning Worker

The physician does not cure his patient. With skill he lays hold of the forces which divine Love has supplied. Every conscientious and well-informed physician knows this and can declare, with a certain renowned French surgeon who, when he had brought some desperately wounded soldier from the brink of death, always held, "I dressed his wounds, but God cured him." The preacher never saves a soul. He delivers the message, and when he speaks the mind and thought of God, uses a power unto righteousness not his own. God, not man, is the power unto salvation, whether of body, mind or soul. Hence the divine declaration, "Without me ye can do nothing." (John 15:5.)

Voluntary Servitude

Rev. Edward Judson, son of the famous Adoniram Judson, in addressing a graduating class at college, said: "All rich living is conditioned upon voluntary servitude. You say the shepherd on the moor owns the sheep; but no, the sheep own the shepherd. If you are doing nothing but keeping pigeons, if you keep them successfully you have to be their slave. The mother of a child is the slave of the child. The teacher is a slave to the student. The minister a slave to the church." Jesus said as much in His definition of true greatness: "He who would be greatest among you, let him be your minister." And then declared of Himself: "The Son of Man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister." (Mark 10:45.)

Their Inheritance

The black man in the jungles of Africa, and the yellow man in the rice fields of China, have the same inheritance in our Father's kingdom that we have. A speaker on missions recently said, "If your father left in his will an inheritance for you and your brother, and your brother, being at a distance, could only receive his inheritance if you sent it to him, would you feel free to decide whether to send it to him or not? And if you did send it to him, would you take considerable credit to yourself for doing so? That's foreign missions." If "the poor heathen" have not received their portion of the inheritance of course they are poor. We will be the richer, the better and the happier when we shall have given to them that which of right belongeth unto them. "The Lord is the portion of mine inheritance and of my cup." (Psa. 16:5.)

Intelligence and Christianity

Learning does not turn one from Christianity, but to it, if statistics are to be credited, John R. Mott, the eminent Christian statesman, recently declared: "A larger proportion of students become Christians than any other class in the world. A larger number of students are becoming Christians now than ever before. The student drift toward Jesus Christ throughout the whole world is simply marvelous." Christianity has nothing to fear but error and superstition and indifference. There is no war between Christianity and the truth wherever found, whether in science, philosophy or literature. The very glory of Christianity is the truth; for its Founder and great Teacher declared: "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." (John 8:32.)

The Result

Governor Arthur Capper of Kansas, in his inaugural address recently, gave some plain facts that ought to carry weight and conviction. Remembering that there are fewer prisoners in the jails and penitentiaries of that State than in any other of like population these facts come home with double force: "Our material prosperity, our high standards of public morals, our personal well-being, are largely due to the fact that for more than thirty years the open saloon has been an outlaw in this State. It is the duty, therefore, of this State to lead in the movement for national prohibition which is coming just as sure as the American people retain their sanity and judgment. I here pledge you that my utmost endeavor shall be to aid this movement." Evidently the people of Kansas are with their chief executive in this sentiment. The saloon as an institution has been weighed in the balances and has been found wanting. It has proven itself wholly unworthy the patronage and the support of decent and civilized people, and it is being rapidly outlawed. The time of its departure draweth nigh and the days of its legal existence are numbered. "Te-ke! thou art weighed in the balances, and art found wanting." (Dan. 5:27.)

Helpless and Dependent

According to official data now published the number of dead—men, women and children—from the recent earthquake in Italy is thirty thousand. The earth opened and swallowed up many; houses were shattered and in the falling slew families; high walls were laid prostrate and without warning proved the sepulture of other thousands. In this period of world tragedies, when France in a single brief campaign on the Marne, the English on the Yser, the Germans at Liege or Lodz, the Austrians on the San, lose this number or more, this Italian death-list does not seem so long. But war is different from an earthquake. In war men face each other in death grapple and expect to kill and be killed. War can be controlled, stopped by the will of man, abolished in the councils of state-craft. Not so an earthquake. Here innocent men, women and children non-combatant and about their honest pleasures and pursuits, are carried off in the twinkling of an eye. No warning, no cause that can be foreseen or controlled. Man stands defenseless, helpless, dependent before the cause and the catastrophe of an earthquake. His only hope or recourse is that his soul shall find refuge in God. That is his only hope, whether he goes sooner or later, by chance or by design. "Take ye heed, watch and pray, for ye know not when the time is." (Mark 13:33.)

The Literature That Attracts

Are men and women becoming indifferent to the charms and fascination of belles-lettres, polite literature, sentiment and emotion as expressed by the noblest and best writers? We have it from very high authority that they are. And the same explains why religious literature is having the struggle of its life and why church papers are losing out. Chester S. Lord, formerly editor of The New York Sun before the school of Journalism in Columbia University recently used these striking utterances: "The people themselves are not so emotional or lachrymose. Nowadays nobody sheds many tears over anything, much less over literature. In other days the entire family circle was moved to emotion when father read aloud of the death of Little Nell or of Colonel Newcomb. Today the family circle does not meet for literary exercises—has no time for them—and, if it has, father does not read from Dickens or Thackeray or the poets. And because we live in a commercial age and the people are thinking as never before of money accumulation and business expansion and gigantic enterprises everywhere, I perceive a growing fascination for stories of the practical, of how great fortunes are developed, of how money is made and lost, of how the poor become rich and the rich become poor—stories of business construction involving millions and of the application of inventions to everyday needs." The conclusion is inevitable then that those who would write for pay, popularity or power in our time must write stories of financial struggle, achievement or failure. This materialistic time is telling mightily on thought, the literature and religious expression. "Therefore the prudent shall keep silence in that time; for it is an evil time." (Amos 5:13.)

—The Laymen's Missionary Convention to be held at Charlotte, N. C., February 16, 17, 18 gives promise of being the most important and inspiring convention to be held in the State the present year. Men of world-wide note in statesmanship, in missions and in business are to be present and deliver addresses, Jno. R. Mott, Robert E. Speer, J. Campbell White, W. E. Doughty, Wm. T. Ellis, Geo. C. Shane, Geo. Innes, and others of nation-wide and world-wide name and influence. It is to be a gathering, epoch making and consequential.

—The Methodist brethren have elected Rev. Albert S. Barnes of Beaufort to succeed the late lamented Rev. John N. Cole as Superintendent of their orphanage at Raleigh.

—Bankers and merchants throughout the South are reported as quite optimistic as to the business outlook since cotton went up last week from 6 cents a pound to 8 cents.

EVANGELISM

The hour has struck, and the church must become evangelistic, or go out of business. Repent, repent, repent, is the clarion call of the day, and that call is coming every hour to be more distinct, not less so. The real evangelist is not out of date; he is just coming into his own. He is modern. His methods are not those of twenty years ago. He is grappling with present-day problems, and he is employing present day learning, language, logic and liberty. The modern evangelist is a young David, and he can't fight in Saul's armour. He chooses his own weapons, and employs that which is best adapted to his own strength and make-up.

There are now going on in this country hundreds, possibly thousands, of evangelistic campaigns, the sole object being to make known to men the saving power, the redeeming, regenerating power of the Christ. These campaigns are more than the efforts of any one man; they are the organized efforts, prayers, supplications, co-operation of the community in which they are conducted.

The most noted of all, one of the most noted our country has ever witnessed, is that now in progress in Philadelphia led by a host of workers with Rev. William Sunday at the head. The workings of such a campaign, and the results, cannot be portrayed in print. They beggar all description. I saw this telegram in a newspaper dated Philadelphia, January 18: "Yesterday twenty thousand people were turned away from the tabernacle. Eleven hundred men and one hundred women hit the trail, making a total for seven days of over four thousand converts. Young men from the best families in the suburbs are being reached. During the eight days sixteen preaching services were held, four hundred thousand people listened to the gospel inside the shed while thousands were turned away for lack of room.

The newspapers are claiming that this is the high-water mark for religious demonstrations in America."

If one thinks that these meetings are reaching the rabble, the unthinking, the ignorant, the idle only, one is much mistaken. The upper classes and the low, the learned and the unlearned, the rich and the poor, share alike in their enthusiasm over the work. President Edwin E. Sparks on behalf of the State University of Pennsylvania, sent this telegram to Mr. Sunday: "The Pennsylvania State College, gratefully remembering the results of your work last April, has set aside Tuesday, January 12, as a day of prayer for the success of your campaign in Philadelphia." Think of the President, Faculty and students of a great State University appointing a day of prayer for the success of an evangelist in a campaign many miles away.

If one thinks this is all simply the emotionalism and excitement of a day one is mistaken again. It has been two years now since the evangelistic campaign was conducted under the leadership of Mr. Sunday in Wilkes-Barre, Pa. Dr. Charles E. Guthrie of that city gives the following facts to a New York paper: "During the seven weeks of Mr. Sunday's campaign in Wilkes-Barre he preached to 668,300 people and of these 16,584 'hit the trail.'"

Of this number nearly eight thousand joined the different churches of that city. Dr. Guthrie says now after two years that it is almost if not quiet susceptible of demonstration, that the number converted since the revival more than equals the number of those who started during the revival and have fallen away." Dr. Guthrie declares that the revival began two years ago still spreads and goes on in various and sundry other communities. He relates particularly, in his account to the newspapers of one convert, a business man, who on returning to his home away from the scene and city of the revival began to tell his people about the meetings and his own conversion. As a result, a revival began in that community and there have been 1,500 converts there, won by this business man's story.

Other campaigns on a smaller scale, but attended with unparalleled results, are in progress, or have been within recent months. Scores of others are being planned and provided for.

There is an evangelistic awakening. There is a new note being struck in present-day preaching. That new note is evangelism. May it not be that we are on the eve of a great religious awakening throughout the length and breadth of our land? May our heavenly Father grant that it be so.

SAMSON'S MOTHER

The Sunday school lesson for January 31 carries a vital truth for the womanhood of our age. The teaching is that of how a mother is to conduct herself. Samson's father was exceedingly anxious to know how to deal with the young child. The angel of the Lord stoutly declined to give him one word of instruction about this: but the message was for the solicitous mother—how she should act, what she should eat, drink, and how to conduct herself. The "task of developing a worthy mother seems to be the greatest matter in the making of a hero," some one has wisely written. And a clever writer once said that if you wished to produce a great man the place to begin was with his grandfather.

Here is a fine phrase from Dr. L. H. Hough in The Advocate: "The strict discipline laid upon the mother of Samson suggests that one of the gravest responsibilities of life is the preparation for motherhood. Very early the prayer may be offered up, 'O God, make me worthy of the innocent children I hope to see clustering about my knees and calling me 'mother.'" A selfish and artificial and flippant girlhood has made many a woman incapable of being the greatest sort of mother. The message of this ancient story to the women of today is that a life of noble self-control on the part of a mother is a supreme gift to a son. The preparation for motherhood ought to begin years and years before the little child opens small eyes to look out upon a mysterious world."

The words may be counted a little rough, but they are to the point, which "Billy" Sunday used in addressing some three hundred women in a fashionable drawing room in Philadelphia the other day: "I've known many a boy who made a success who had a good mother and a miserable old sinful stick for a father, but I've never known a boy to be a success who had a matinee-going, flirting, gum-chewing, frizzle-pated mother."

It is almost invariably true that great men had great and good mothers. And few indeed have been the men who arose to virtues and achievements beyond those found and cultivated in his mother.

A WORD TO PASTORS

To be candid and frank about it we do not believe that our pastors, with few exceptions, are giving their church paper, THE CHRISTIAN SUN, a square deal.

We do not wish to accuse our pastors of being unfair or unjust, but that is what it comes to. For fifty-one weeks in the year THE SUN goes into the homes represented in their churches. It pleads for more liberal giving, deeper consecration, more devotion to church, a better spiritual life, a more thorough evangelism, and for greater efforts in behalf of the kingdom of Christ—the very things for which the pastors plead. For fifty-one weeks a year THE SUN seeks by every means it knows to assist the pastor and make his work more useful and effectual.

On the other hand there are scores of pastors who never help THE SUN one week of the fifty-one. A faithful church member, one who is devoted to her church, her paper and her pastor, told the writer the other day that so far as she knew her pastor had not mentioned THE SUN to his church and people in any public or helpful way in five years. There are scores of such pastors. They are willing that THE SUN should do all it can to help them; but when it comes their turn to help THE SUN they are as silent as the grave and as cold as clay. If this is not a species of selfishness and unfairness and injustice we do not know what to term it.

Church papers are having the time of their lives to maintain existence. Business is dull, the popular mind is absorbed in industrial and material pursuits, men and women prefer secular to religious reading, the daily to the church weekly. There was never such a need as now that our pastors rally to the support of their paper, THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

Brethren and beloved, we beg you consider these things. They are stern and stubborn facts. Through the long years THE SUN has done you many a good turn. Will you not do it now one good turn for all these benefits? Give THE CHRISTIAN SUN a square deal, beloved pastor. That is all we crave.

Within the next four weeks now will not every pastor in the Southern Christian Convention make a plea from every pulpit and then follow the public plea with personal effort, for a list of new subscribers and renewals? Brethren, we beseech you.

NOTES AND PERSONALS

—There is a veritable bee-hive of activity in the several Christian churches of Norfolk and vicinity. Pastors and people are laboring together in beautiful fellowship, in peace and harmony and heartiest accord.

—In building a handsome $6,000 church at Rosemont (Norfolk) our Brother Keys has shown himself a wise and faithful servant, a devoted and energetic pastor, a man of affairs and executive ability, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed.

—Rev. L. I. Cox, pastor, certainly makes a worthy plea for a good and needy cause—the Reidsville church now in course of construction. Read what he says and gladden his heart with a response. It will do your own heart good as well as his.

—In a running sea fight in the North Sea January 24 in which the dreadnaughts of the British and German navy were engaged, the German man-of-war Bluecher was sunk, only 123 men of her crew being saved. The British are elated over the victory. The battle lasted three hours and was terrific.

—Mrs. J. J. Summerbell, 309 Grove St., Fall River, Mass., kindly sends the Orphanage $1.00, Reidsville church $1.00, both of which sums have been turned over to the proper parties, and $1.50 for THE SUN. Sister Summerbell, as was her illustrious husband of sainted memory, is interested in all the enterprises of the church.

—We rejoice with Dr. W. H. Denison and the people of Memorial Temple, Norfolk, over the fine results attending their evangelistic efforts assisted by Rev. W. P. Minton. Fourteen joined the church last Sunday. There have been some nineteen or more conversions since the meetings began one week ago. The meetings continue all this week.

—Among the speakers at the Conference for Social Service in North Carolina to be held in Raleigh, January 28-30, are Secretary of State, W. J. Bryan, Secretary of the Navy, Josephus Daniels, Thomas Mott Osborne, and Mrs. Cora M. Stewart. Eminent home talent will also take part in the Conference which gives promise of being a notable gathering.

—Rev. L. I. Cox, Mission Secretary for the North Carolina and Virginia Conference, makes his report for the second month of his work, which shows that Bro. Cox is not idle, and is doing work worth while. Every individual and church in the conference should give him encouragement and help along in this most wise and worthy undertaking.

—Rev. Warren H. Denison, D. D., the wide-awake and beloved pastor of Memorial Temple, Norfolk, is at present engaged in a revival assisted by Evangelist Minton who has labored so successfully with Bro. Denison in previous years. Bro. Denison is happy over the selection of Miss Olive Williams on the part of Third Church as missionary to Porto Rico, he having been her pastor for a number of years and having the highest confidence in her ability to make good as missionary.

—Our stay in the home of Dr. J. W. Manning, while on a recent visit of a day and night to Norfolk, was one of perfect delight and joyous fellowship. Dr. Manning's kindly greeting and royal fellowship can only be surpassed by the queenly hospitality and gracious entertainment of his good wife. And their elegant home is blessed with three intelligent children, all Christians and happy in Christian service. Such domestic retreats and family circles are all too rare in this earth at this time.

—If all our Sunday schools had such superintendents as Dr. J. W. Manning, 3rd Church, Norfolk, the churches would go forward by leaps and bounds. Dr. Manning carries the work of the school on his heart, and the precision and spirit with which things move in his school are beautiful to observe. No wonder that school is athrob with life, zeal and activity. Its superintendent and other officers are at their places on the minute, and matters move forward as if by clock work and by magic.

—Rosemont church, Norfolk, has one of the best local choirs of any church of its size we know. The music is well chosen, is edifying, inspiring. We wonder why more of our churches do not seek to have better and more inspiring music since good singing in a church covers a multitude of other imperfections and makes any service helpful and wholesome. We congratulate our Rosemont congregation on its holy song, its delightful and uplifting music.

—Rev. George D. Eastes, Norfolk, went last Saturday and Sunday to Memphis, Tenn., to speak at a great men's meeting on Sunday afternoon under the auspices of the Street Railway Y. M. C. A. of that city, and to address several other meetings in Memphis while on the trip. Bro. Eastes is eloquent and pleasing in public address and is in much demand as a public speaker. His people of 3rd Church are justly and pardonably proud of him and the great work he is doing in their midst.

—Rev. W. T. Walters is now in a successful revival in his church at Winchester, Va. There are almost daily conversions in the cottage prayer meeting. The Personal Workers' Club is rendering efficient service. This seems to be an outgrowth and part of the permanent results of Rev. Victor Lighthourne's evangelistic work at the Winchester church in November last. Bro. Lighthourne organized the Personal Workers' Club which carries forward the work he had begun in a revival. The highest testimonial of any evangelistic work is the continuation and permanency of the work begun under the evangelist.

—President Harper has out a paper in tract form entitled "The Unfinished Task," being three addresses on Missions delivered in course before the North Carolina and Virginia Conference and published by that body. The topics of the three papers are "The Challenge to the Modern Church," "The Motive for Undertaking the Task," and "How to Get Under the Load." Dr. Harper deals with these important topics with masterly mental and spiritual grasp, and produces a booklet worth while indeed. There are 45 neatly printed pages, every one of which bristles with important and potent truths and facts. The publication is by the Southern Christian Publishing Company and is for free distribution.

—The people of this vicinity were greatly shocked at the awful tragedy which occurred on Pamlico Sound Friday morning, January 15, when by the explosion and burning of a gasoline propelled yacht, Mr. W. H. Murray of Burlington lost his life. A Mr. Dodson of Norfolk and a Mrs. Poreh, of Beaufort, N. C., also were lost, their bodies not having been found up to this time. Only Mrs. Murray of the entire party escaped, she after being in the water an hour or two, being picked up by a fisherman's boat. Mr. Murray was one of the most prominent and prosperous business men of the county, and was the promoter and president of the Piedmont Trust Company and of other important business matters of the county.

—Rev. S. A. Howell, D. D., Newport News, Va., sends us a very neat and valuable calendar representing the Bank over which he presides, also one of his church, which we appreciate very much. This man is fruitful in great labors for his church and his race, and is doing much work of a benevolent and Christian character to develop both. He has our best wishes, and great esteem in his faithful and worthy efforts. Elder Howell is putting forth furthermore what seems to us a most commendable effort to erect a home for the fallen girls of his race, same to be known as "The Christian Moral and Industrial Training School and Rescue Home for Erring Girls." Land has been secured, the institution chartered, and efforts are now being made to secure funds with which to erect suitable buildings.

—They have a "Blue" prohibition law with teeth over in West Virginia. In short, that State has in its employ a Prohibition Commissioner whose business it is to see that the law as touching the manufacture and sale of liquors is enforced. A few days ago Commissioner Blue sent this message to all express and transfer companies doing business in West Virginia: "United States Circuit Court of Appeals has held place of delivery of liquor is place of sale in West Virginia, and that carriers delivering the same, although inter-State shipment, is common nuisance, subject to injunction and abatement. This is to notify you that deliveries of liquor by you in the State must stop at once, otherwise proceedings to enjoin and abate will be instituted immediately." Forthwith the express companies took warning and now refuse to receive any liquor from any source to be delivered to any station or person in the State of West Virginia.

A LITTLE MATTER OF GREAT IMPORTANCE

We now have all of the 1,000 blocks for the Reidsville Church auditorium filled except 926, and these can be easily filled within the next ten days if every one who sees this statement will kindly send us the amount of one block, just one dollar.

You are going to send us the amount of one block toward our thousand, are you not? Then why not do it today? Please do it now.

All together now, and it will astonish you how quickly and easily the task was completed.

L. I. Cox, Pastor.

When Alabama did wake up on prohibition there was not even drowsiness in her activities for a moment afterwards. Governor Henderson vetoed the bill, requesting that the issue be submitted to a vote of the people, but the governor's veto was voted down in a gify and the measure adopted, governor or no governor, by a majority of 72 to 29 in the House and 24 to 10 in the Senate. The law takes effect July 1 of this year.

Did you ever hear of the Society "Catch My Pal"? Here is the way it works. An organization decides to increase its membership. Each member agrees to go out and bring in his chum and persuade him to join. If every member does this you can readily see what the results will be—membership doubled.

This is the spirit we want to have in trying to increase the circulation of THE CHRISTIAN SUN. If every subscriber will get just one friend to subscribe for THE CHRISTIAN SUN, we will have a circulation something like 6,000. This would mean so much to our church work at large.

Brother Pastor, will you join us in this undertaking? If you will, write and let me know what field you would like to cover. I shall be glad to furnish you with the list of subscribers so that you may do personal work for the cause. Every one of us should feel interested in this movement to broaden the usefulness of our church organ. We are running the paper at a loss and unless we can increase the circulation and secure more subscribers we will have to cut expenses in some way. The increase can be had so easily if all will help. "In union there is strength." If any Church Secretary would like to have a few extra copies to give out at church or Sunday school, the same will be gladly furnished. Many have never subscribed to the paper and know nothing of it. By getting a copy into their hand it may mean a subscription. Let us hear from you and give us your co-operation. This is the time to make a good showing. Business throughout the South is climbing upward. Let's all Hurrah! and get busy. Smile, and then smile again, for a smile is the "Light in the windows of the face, by which the heart signifies it is at home and waiting." Let us put our heart in this movement and results are sure to come.

A CALL TO THE MINISTRY

From a Layman's Viewpoint

PRESIDENT W. A. HARPER, LL.D.

THE REAL QUESTION AT ISSUE

OUR Educational Board is right in its plea that our young men should consider the Christian ministry as a life-work. Emphasis needs to be placed on the claim God rightfully has on every man for his services, and too great emphasis cannot be placed here. But while this is the duty of the Board and of the churches, it should be remembered that the paramount question in each individual man's mind should be, not Shall I enter the ministry? but Can I keep out of it? No man should enter the ministry if he can get the consent of his heart to do anything else. It is not quantity, but quality, that is needed, and the attitude I have suggested as leading to an ultimate decision will yield just that very result.

GOD CALLS HIS OWN PROPHETS

It is, then, not the selection of the ministry as a life-work, but the understanding of God's will respecting life-work for the individual that is of most vital concern. As a Church we ought to hold up the claims of the ministry, but God must select His own prophets. We must not make the mistake of selecting a Matthias, when God needs a Paul. He calls men into the ministry, not we, and this must never be lost sight of, even momentarily. The proper attitude for each individual is to be open-minded, ready to be convinced of his duty, and submissively anxious to be of service in advancing the Kingdom of God. The real duty of the Church is to bring home to each soul of its membership the clarion call of God to His ministry and to secure from each a reverent consideration of his personal response to such a call, knowing that the call, if valid, can proceed only from the great white Throne.

THE PLACE OF FRIENDSHIP IN THE CALL

The question immediately arises as to what

THE FINANCIAL SIDE OF TITHING

Say the critics: "Advocacy of tithing because it brings financial gain to the tither is appealing to a low, a sordid motive." Is it? Do they propose to give lessons in motive to the Almighty? Is it not God who says: "Honor the Lord with thy substance, so shall thy barns be filled with plenty?" Does he not also say in Malachi 3:10: "Bring ye all the tithes into the store house and prove me now herewith if I will not pour you out a blessing until there shall not be room enough to receive it?" In the next two verses he tells them what kind of blessings they will receive for tithing. "And I will rebuke the devourer for your sakes and he shall not destroy the fruits of your ground, neither shall our vine cast her fruit before the time in the field. . . . And all nations shall call you blessed for ye shall be a delightful land saith the Lord of hosts." Are these not temporal blessings? If not, what are they? Does not God here promise good crops and no blight on the fruit, in short, financial prosperity as a reward for tithing? If not, what do these promises mean? Are they not the equivalent of what we would say in modern English, "tithing pays the tither; try it and see"?

The words "tith," "tithes" and "tithing" constitutes a call to the ministry and what are the indicators that can assist the individual to arrive at certainty in respect to his call. One very strong indication in this direction, it seems to me, would be the voluntary advice and counsel of a man's associates. They know him thoroughly and their desire, based on his life with them, should cause any man to ponder well his duty to enter the ministry. The minister will have his place in this advice and counsel, but he should consult others before advising too surely in any case.

THE LIFE'S INFLUENCE AN INDICATION

A second indication would be the influence a man's life is exerting in religious circles. If he is put forward as a leader and looked to with confidence, that would in itself suggest a larger sphere of service, especially, if these marks of trust and confidence came unsought and in early life.

THE LIFE'S VITAL INTEREST SHOULD HAVE WEIGHT

One's own taste and temperament will be another pointer. Do I love the worship of the sanctuary? Do I rejoice in the things of the Spirit? Is my vital concern in spiritual rather than material issues? These questions will help wonderfully in settling the matter.

BUT THE SPIRIT'S WITNESS NECESSARY

But the final consideration must be in every case the witness of God's Spirit in my own heart that it is His will for me through preaching to point men to the way of salvation. The writer is a layman and is so because he has never felt that witness. He is glad to serve in a layman's place the great interests of the Kingdom, but happy is that man whom God has chosen to stand in holy places and proclaim the unsearchable riches of His grace! There is no higher happiness! In the face of such a call, every other interest must yield. "Woe is me if I preach not the Gospel," and joy, joy, joy unspeakable if I follow my Father's call and do His will! May every young man who reads these lines place himself in God's hands and trustingly await His guidance!

THE PREPARATION IT WILL REQUIRE

A call to the ministry will require not only such witness as we have just suggested, but also thorough preparation. There are cases where the preparation must be limited, as when the call comes late in life. I have known such men to be of great service without the thorough preparation I suggest. But a young man ought not to be content to begin his ministry without adequate preparation. If God has called him early, it is that he may fill a large place by having opportunity to prepare for it. The times demand a superior type of spiritual leadership, and that too should encourage special effort. If a man is not willing to pay the price of his call, he may well consider whether he has really been called.

THE REWARD THAT WILL CROWN THE LIFE

One final thought should conclude this brief discussion—the thought as to the reward awaiting the called and prepared minister. I said minister rather than ministry purposely, for the ministry, as such, does not appeal to men particularly, but the individual minister does. The deference, the reverence, accorded the minister, due to his place of leadership and the vital interests he faithfully represents, will surely compensate any sacrifice exacted in his accepting the call and making the preparation. But greater than any deference, deeper than any reverence, will be the satisfaction in his own heart of having been enabled to be to men and women the gateway into the Kingdom, the everlasting Kingdom of the Christ.

Elon College, N. C.

occur in the Bible 36 times. The "tenth" occurs 67 times. In 36 of these it has reference to the proportion in "offerings." In every instance where rewards are mentioned they are temporal, financial. The record does not show that the Jewish nation was ever prosperous when the people failed to tithe. It does show that when the people paid their tithes the nation was prosperous.

Of course there are other causes both for prosperity and adversity. Tithing is not everything, but I submit that the Bible plainly teaches that there is a very close, I might almost say, a cause and effect relation between tithing and temporal prosperity.

The question is often asked: "If tithing is so important why did not Jesus say more about it?" Is the Sabbath important? Can you find in His teaching any stronger endorsement of the law of the Sabbath than of the law of the tithe? Can you find any as strong? Is the church important? Christ never mentioned church but once and then in a passage of very difficult and, as every scholar knows, of very doubtful interpretation. Christ's teaching in all the four gospels is saturated with the "Kingdom." The words "Kingdom of Heaven" and "Kingdom of God" were ever upon His lips. Keeping the Sabbath, paying tithes, worshiping in church, observing the sacraments, all are important, but all are means to an end. The end is the building up of the Kingdom of Heaven first in our own hearts, and then helping to build it up in the hearts of others.

The Jews were tithers and are yet. Are they not financially prosperous? Do you ever hear of them begging for money to support their churches and charities as we Christians do?

A few years ago a supply of pamphlets on tithing was sent to a converted Jewish Rabbi in New York who was preaching to a congregation of converted Jews. In his letter of thanks to the sender he stated that he had given the package to a neighboring pastor as his people did not need teaching in tithing. He said they had been tithers as Jews and they continued to tithe as Christians.

In a recent letter from a Methodist pastor in a small city in Pennsylvania, he says: "I preached on tithing last Sunday morning to about 400 people. A Jew who heard my sermon said to me: 'Mr —, there are only thirteen Jewish families in this city, yet we keep the expenses of our church clear and pay our ministers $80.00 per month. We simply tithe.'"

The number and power of Mormonism are due to tithing more than to all other causes combined. Does tithing make the members of the Mormon church poor? Are they not financially prosperous? The success of Dowieism is due to the same cause. The immense industries at Zion City were all built up by tithes. It is safe to say that but for tithing neither Mormonism nor Dowieism would have lasted ten years after the death of their founders.

A much fairer, as well as more relevant illustration of what tithing will accomplish in and for a denomination is afforded by the Seventh Day Adventists. There is nothing specially attractive, no special drawing power in observing the seventh instead of the first day of the week as the Sabbath of rest and worship. The Adventists are neither alone nor singular in their belief in the Second coming of Christ. Mr. Moody and the late Dr. Gordon of Boston devoutly believed that Christ would come again. So do thousands of Christians in all of churches. Except by their faith in and practice of tithing, how can we account for the remarkable showing made by the Seventh Day Adventists as a denomination? They regard the law of the tithe, the tenth of income, as equally binding with the law of the Sabbath, the seventh of time.

Their official reports state that in 1870 they had a membership of 5,440. In 1910 it was 104,526. Their annual tithe in 1870 was $2,182.46. In 1910 $1,338,689.65. In 1913 it was $1,771,989.60. In 1870 the church controlled one sanitarium with 35 employees. In 1910 they had 74 sanitariums with 1989 employees with assets of $3,368,000. In 1880 their total contributions to missions and other benevolent causes was $5.39 per capita. In 1910 it was $21.27. In 1913 $23.42. This included the membership in foreign countries. In North America alone it was $28.93 per capita for 71,863 communicants. These figures certainly do not show that they had grown poor by tithing during the 33 years from 1880 to 1913.—Thomas Kane, in N. C. Christian Advocate.

THE OLD TIME AND THE MODERN COUNTRY CHURCH

BY A. W. CLINE

The country church of today is not the country church of fifty years ago; yea I might say twenty years ago, and then add that it doesn't take a close observer to notice a marked change in the past ten years. The transition is rapid and there must be some cause for it. You ask me what I mean when I say there has been a change. Your grandfather or grandmother, who has attended the same church for seventy-five years, can answer the question more intelligently than I can. In fact my idea for this sketch was obtained from a conversation with a Godly old man who deplors the fact that religion has lost its power not only in some city churches, but in scores of rural churches as well. Of course this condition is not universal, but it is more prevalent in some localities than in others. I know country churches that only a few years ago were alive with the Gospel of Christ and now they are spiritually dead. To attend a service in these churches now seems more like you were at a lecture in some public hall than the place where the gospel was being expounded. The atmosphere reminds one of a December day.

If the above is true, there must be some cause for it. Let us see if we can't find a few of the causes for the present drift of many churches away from the old time religion customs. How many of the younger readers ever attended a service where no organ was used, but some saintly old man "raised" the tune "Nearer My God to Thee," "What a Friend

We Have in Jesus," "Jesus Lover of My Soul" and others of the old hymns that will live throughout ages? If you attended such a service and didn't feel the power of the Holy Spirit you were indeed a hardened sinner. Such a service was enough to touch the heart of an infidel.

When I refer to the service without the organ don't understand me as being opposed to its use in the churches; far from that. I believe the organ can be made a great power for good if the proper person is organist. In many country churches the advent of the organ was the death of the church. Now let us consider the best possible way for the organ to be used to the glory of God. Of course with the coming of the organ the old gray-headed "tune pitcher" had to take a back seat, or at least he wasn't needed any more, and some squeaky squawky voiced girl who has taken two or three lessons in instrumental music was raised up to take his place. It is not the organ but organist that kills the religious fervor of a service. I do think that any one who has not experienced the love of God in his or her heart and who is uneducated in music should be debarred from holding the exalted position of church organist. Better throw the organ out of doors rather than let such a person kill the power of the services. How many have made the expression that if a certain person is organist or sings in the choir "I am going to stay away." Ask an old person to compare the revival of fifty years ago with the one of today. Young as I am I can remember when the altar wouldn't hold the penitents when the invitation was given in a revival meeting in the home church and when the invitation was closed some good old Christian knelt beside each "mourner" and pointed him to the Way of Life. Only a few years ago I spent a few days at home during the summer revival. The pastor, one of the best in the state, had laboured faithfully for a week when a call for penitents was made, after a heart touching sermon, there was not a response out of the congregation of several hundred, the majority young people and known to be out of Christ. Won't someone tell us why the Gospel has lost its hold on the people in this particular section.

What is true of the section just mentioned is true of hundreds of sections throughout this and other states. Something must be done and that quick, or the church will be nothing more than a mere play house. Now let us see if we can't find a few things that look like they are responsible for the state of affairs mentioned above. Sometime during the meeting referred to the pastor asked the heads of families in which family prayer was held, at least once a day, to raise their hands. Not a hand went up. He then wanted to know how many had occasional prayers in their homes, and one out of the entire congregation responded. Oh! May the day hasten when a family altar will be erected in every Christian home through the land. No matter how far from home the young man, who was raised in a home where family prayer was a daily event, wanders the influence of that home will follow him, and no doubt some day be the means of leading him to Christ. My opinion is, that the abolishment and failure to establish the family altar, is responsible for the greater part of loss of interest in the churches of today.

What has become of the old time pastor that threw his saddle bags across his horse and started for the neighborhood of one of his churches about Thursday before his appointment on Sunday? His coming was looked forward to with a high degree of pleasure by every member of the family he visited. He would usually spend several days visiting among "the members," generally from Thursday until Monday. Now the preacher hurries out on Sunday morning and preaches, sometimes he will wait to eat dinner with someone near the church before hurrying back to town, but usually he hurries back to get ready for his evening appointment at his town or suburban church where the greater part of his time is spent. I know pastors that have served country churches for several years and have never darkened the doors of some members of their congregations. In many places today the country church is only considered a side line. Pastors, give your country churches more attention and the best fruits of your labor will be found there.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION TAKES ADVANCED GROUND

There was held in Chicago last week the greatest assembly of Christian educators in the history of America. The assembly covered four days and included three organizations; first, the Council of Church Boards, being the fourth annual session; secondly, the eighth annual session of Church Workers in State Universities; and thirdly, the first annual session of the Association of American Colleges. This last is the largest body and is made up largely of Christian Colleges. These three organizations mean to co-operate in focalizing the belief in Christian education into demands for the recognition of Christian culture in all American education. There were over a hundred and sixty representatives of Christian Colleges and universities from all parts of the United States at this first meeting of the Association of American Colleges.

The clear and powerful note for Christian education in practically every address before the sessions of these three great bodies is a strong indication that Christian education has given notice that American education cannot be secularized without trampling under foot the protesting personality,—Christian culture and training.

The united voice of these three organizations will be heard in such organizations as the National Educational Association and the Association of State Universities. This voice will be heeded also in State and national legislation. Perhaps the first national legislation to be asked will be an amendment to the postal laws so as to allow religious bodies to mail quarterly bulletins on the same terms that educational institutions are permitted to send out quarterly bulletins.

The Constitution and By-Laws adopted by the Association of American Colleges make Elon and Defiance eligible to membership as standard colleges. Dean Carris of Defiance and President Watkins of Palmer College represented their respective colleges. I thoroughly enjoyed their good fellowship and their forward-looking spirit. They are each leading ahead nobly and vigorously these two growing colleges. President Watkins has done wonders for Palmer College in a little over three years' time and will not be long in putting it in the standard college list, if the brethren in the field continue to stand behind him, as he so richly deserves. SUFFOLK LETTER

The European war and the Revolution in Mexico challenge the faith of the church in Missions. Viewed superficially on rational ground, it looks as if Christianity had lost its power over nations, and that civilization would require reconstruction over all the earth. Land, sea, and air are one vast battlefield. No man can tell when nor where the conflict will end. Nations centuries old may lose their prestige and drop to dependent place, tributary to some stronger power. No matter what the issue may be, the burden of war debts will weigh centuries down with a load that ought never to have been created.

Nations measure questions too much in commercial scales. All questions resolve themselves into questions of economy. All rights seem to be involved in money. The love of money is the root of all evil, and nations seem to be victims of this love. Even this country needs statesmen of broad and philanthropic spirit to press on the nation moral obligation as more important than gain. It seems that the European war is studied too much in the light of commercial loss and gain. "This is our opportunity" or "this is our peril" in the world of trade. The question should challenge our consideration in the light of national responsibility to all the world. It is the American opportunity to set the world an example of national honor and good will.

We cannot compete with Europe in armies and war-equipment; but we may excel them in liberty and opportunity for men. Prosperity is a worthy end, but it should be built on fair-dealing with all the world. Our friendship and trade ought to be worth more to other nations than our wealth as the prize of war. We should seek to rival other nations only in the things that bless mankind. If our navy were converted into merchant ships, the "stars and stripes" would be mightier than our guns. The world waits for a nation of peace. War comes because nations are afraid of one another. The sword of the Lord and of Gideon was the sword of words and light and sound. The lamps and trumpets did the work. That may not be good military doctrine, but it is according to the Word of God. The gospel is more powerful than the armies and navies of the world, though at present it may seem otherwise.

The church should not lose faith in missions nor relax its efforts to preach the gospel to all nations, because Europe is one hemispheric battlefield; but prayer, contributions, and zeal should be increased because this conflict has doubled the task. World-empire is not to be won by conquering nations in battle, but by winning the nations to Christ. The best and the cheapest thing in all the world is to save men. The cost of the present war would finance the winning of the world to Christ; and, if the world were won to Christ, it would make the revenue of the nations greater than the cost of this awful butchery of man. When this war is over, the door will open to missions as never before; and every Christian should labor now for that greatest opportunity Christianity has ever known.

ELON COLLEGE NOTES

Dr. Atkinson returned from Eastern Virginia on Tuesday morning of last week. He reported a splendid fellowship with the friends in that section and great public occasions at the Third Church, Norfolk, and Rosemont.

Dean Lawrence also returned on Tuesday from the great educational gathering at Chicago. He gave a brief chapel talk on the scope of the gathering and its place in American educational sentiment. It is hoped that he will also write at length of the Convention in THE SUN.

Mr. W. L. Smith was on last Thursday re-elected as cashier of the Elon Bank, with Dr. T. C. Amick as his assistant and as note teller.

Dr. W. C. Wicker attended the meeting of the Masonic Grand Lodge in Raleigh for several days last week.

Mr. I. H. Dunlap, Bonlee, N. C., visited the College last week. He has known Elon since its origin and, while a prominent layman of another communion, he is a staunch friend and patron, because he believes in "the Christian ideals prevailing at Elon," to quote his own words.

The General Assembly of North Carolina, so writes Representative Vernon, has passed the special act requested by the Southern Christian Convention in increasing the number of the trustees from eighteen to twenty-four.

Mrs. T. W. Chandler and children, Virgilina, Va., are visiting her parents, Dr. and Mrs. G. S. Watson.

Miss Annie Watson has returned home from an extended visit to friends and relatives in many places in this State and Virginia.

Miss Nell Gray, Waverly, Va., is the guest of Miss Barnes at this time, in the West Dormitory. It is Miss Gray's first visit to the Hill. She has many friends here.

Mrs. W. P. Lawrence is visiting the family of Mr. J. A. Dickey, Jr., in North Alamanace this week.

Uncle Wellons is shortly to issue another volume. It is to be entitled, "Common Sense Theology for Hungry Hearts." Dr. Wellons, tho' in his 90th year, is far from a back number. No man is more modern than he.

Mr. Oscar West, Waverly, Va., is visiting his cousin, Prof. A. T. West, of the Faculty. He is second son of Judge J. F. West, one of Elon's charter trustees.

Dr. Atkinson's sermon at the 11 o'clock hour was especially forceful and tender. The theme was The Mystery and the Majesty of the Church.

Seven young men have entered the Peace Contest to be held here on the evening of February the second. They are as follows: Messrs. Roger M. White, Waverly, Va.; H. S. Smith, McLeansville, N. C.; O. D. Poythress, Chapel Hill, N. C.; J. L. Crumpton, Roxboro, N. C.; Warren McCulloch, Greensboro, N. C.; E. T. Cotten, Dendron, Va.; and R. P. Merritt, Chapel Hill, N. C. The winner in this local contest will receive a gold medal and will represent Elon in the State Contest to be held in Raleigh on the 19th of February.

The Publishing House is busy with getting out the College Catalogue, which is due to arrive in February. It is expected to be on time this year.

The Directors of the Publishing House are to meet on next Wednesday, the 27th, to consider the year's business and outline the work for the present year.

The representatives of the literary societies for the 25th Commencement are: for the Philologist, Messrs. R. F. Brown, Wedowee, Ala., and Paul V. Parks, Ramseur, N. C.; for the Psphelean, Misses Ruth Johnson, Cardenas,

REPORT OF L. I. COX, MISSION SECRETARY
To the Home Mission Board of the North Carolina and Virginia Christian Conference, Dr. W. A. Harper, Sec.-Treas., for Second Month Ending January 20, 1915.

The work at Reidsville is doing well, considering the uncomfortable place in which we have to worship. I have filled my regular appointments and the congregations have averaged about seventy for the month. The Sunday school has averaged about forty. I have sent out more than 300 letters during the month in the interest of the Reidsville Mission, which I hope will yield some good fruit. The expense of same has been charged to the Reidsville Church Fund.

I had occasion sometime ago to look up the boundary lines of the different conferences and find that the town of Mebane on the South side of the railroad is in the bounds of the Eastern North Carolina Conference instead of the Western. I have written Rev. W. G. Clements, Chairman of the Home Mission Committee of that Conference, in regard to the outlook there.

Memberships secured for the Christian Missionary Association, and subscribed for, are as follows:

Rev. S. B. Klapp, one Active Membership, $10.00 payable November 1, 1915.

Mrs. R. A. Garrett, one Active Membership, $5.00 payable November 1, 1915.

Rev. J. O. Cox, one Active Membership, $10.00 payable November 1, 1915.

WINCHESTER LETTER

The Christmas program rendered by our school was very much enjoyed by a packed house. Our Sunday school is growing rapidly. Brother R. A. Larrick was elected Superintendent the first of the year and is taking hold of the work in a way that means progress.

Brother W. C. Hook, our new Christian Endeavor president is introducing some new methods that will mean advancement for this organization. Brother J. A. Spaid, the retiring

Sunday Schools and Christian Endeavor

A. L. HOOK, Editorial and Field Secretary, Elon College, N. C.;

This Department is under the direction of the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor General Convention. Frequent news items from Sunday Schools, Organized Classes, and C. E. Societies are desired. If you are interested in any of these or are about to organize, address the department's editor.

The Birth of Samson. Judges 13:8-16; 24, 25

In last Sunday's lesson we studied how the children of Israel were delivered from the hands of the Midianites by Gideon and his three hundred faithful men. In today's lesson we have the children of Israel again disobeying the will of their Father and thereby delivered into the hands of the enemy, the Philistines. When God's followers disobey His will He suffers them to be humiliated.

Twelve Judges had judged Israel previous to our lesson and now we have an angel appearing unto the women of whom the thirteenth judge and Israel's deliverer should be born. The angel asks simply that she give the child proper heredity by abstaining from food and drink which brought on the evils of that day and statistics show, the evils of our day. The rules for the young man's environment were very few, simple but all the more powerful and important.

Parents, God is sending His angels and asking that you give the future generation the heredity of a manly and womanly life. It is not our purpose to discuss heredity here, but we ask that you read your science magazines and procure all the available literature, read them carefully, thoughtfully and then by good sound reasoning draw your sensible conclusions for yourself.

The nation's welfare depends upon the home. Is your home what it ought to be? If it isn't whose fault is it? Can you remedy it? Then why not do it? What is more noble than to train the young for manhood and womanhood. It's a great responsibility; one which is not fully realized and thoughtfully considered in a great per cent of the homes of our land.

We know of a place, called a home, where the father will not allow a Bible in the house. On one occasion when his little son, came from Sunday school with a Bible which he had won in his class, (for the child had been going to Sunday school as often as he could), his father snatched it from his hands and threw it in the stove. Are these the kinds of homes we are going to have around us? They are here. Let us transform the shrubby land to productive fields.

The Teachings by A. W. Kelley

The nation depends for its deliverers on the influences of the homes.

Those that have the responsibility for training the young need to feel their dependence on God's guidance.

Consecration calls for self-restraint, as self-indulgence is coupled with godlessness.

The experience and discoveries of modern days prove the wisdom and duty for all of abstinence that was once practiced by few.

Physical strength is a gift of God that should be held sacred to Him and is closely coupled with abstinence.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR FOR JANUARY 31

Foreign Mission Opportunities the World Around Acts 16:6-18.

The meeting should be lead by the foreign-missionary committee who should make special preparation for the meeting.

Just before Christ ascended He gave the command for His followers to be missionaries.

The field is large and the harvest has been ripe and is still ripe, but the workmen are too few. Since the time of Christ a great harvest has been gathered—"Notwithstanding the great influence that Christianity is exerting on Japan there is a vast field in great need there." A great harvest has been wrought but still there is a greater. "About four-fifths of the population is in country regions, and ninety-six per cent of this number are said to be wholly neglected, while about one-fifth of those in cities are still unreached. There is great need of religious literature and a Christian daily paper. The formation of a Christian Literature Society of Japan is a beginning in the right direction, but without money it cannot do even what it has planned."

Let the leader or leaders assign to some one or prepare on each of the needy fields which are calling on "Christian America" for aid. (Ah, ought we not to be ashamed of ourselves; at the things we do, the thoughts we have in our minds and then meet our foreign neighbor who calls us Christian?) Let us be up-and-doing. Giving to others and thereby becoming more noble ourselves. We need to give. The opportunities are open, now is the time for work. Tomorrow may be too late, Mohammedan may have the day. We will have great obstacles to overcome let us fight now so that we will not have greater ones to combat with.

"Is there hope of winning Africa for Christ? Unless the Christian Church greatly increases her missionary forces there, Mohammedan seems destined to win, but if the Christian churches of America, England and the Continent in any degree measure up to their privileges and their responsibilities, Christianity will win."

For answer in meeting from C. E. World.

By what marks is an opportunity for missionary work to be recognized as such?

What can we learn from business men about using opportunities?

How did Paul find opportunities?

What effect does accepting one opportunity have upon finding others?

Why is it of great importance to be on the watch for missionary opportunities?

Tell of one missionary opportunity now and the circumstances that lead to it.

Mention a missionary opportunity growing out of what seemed to be an obstacle.

What is a situation in Macedonia now?

Show how schools have opened the way for missionary work.

What response can we make to an opportunity in a distant country?

OPENING OF GREATER FRANKLINTON

Many Students Enrolled.

The opening of the new Franklinton Christian College, on January fifth, marked an epoch in the history of the colored Christians in the South. It is the consensus of opinion that the building is one of the most magnificent of its kind in the South. It may be described as three-in-one. Above the basement, on the first floor, there is the Principal's office, chapel and class-rooms; the second floor, which is being used as the dormitory, has a solid wall running right across the building; one end is occupied by the girls and the other by the boys. The girls' dormitory is situated at the southern end of the building, with the matron's room at the entrance. The boys' dormitory is at the northern end and has the Manager's room at the entrance.

On the above-mentioned day, at 9:30 a. m., the general exercises were opened with the following present: Rv. John Blood, Chairman of the Board of Control, Professor H. E. Long, Principal, Professor James A. Henderson, Mrs. Cora Long, and Miss B. Lee, Matron and Music Teacher. After singing, reading and prayer, and appropriate remarks from Rev. John Blood and others, the teachers proceeded to enroll and classify the students. Quite a goodly number were enrolled. In the afternoon of the same day, Rev. S. A. Howell, of Newport News, Va., arrived with a contingent of fifteen boys and girls whom he brought to be enrolled as students of the College. They were warmly received and kindly treated and shared the hospitality of greater Franklinton.

On Wednesday morning at about six o'clock, the entire student body was up, and by seven were prepared for breakfast, after which they were ushered into the spacious and well-heated chapel, where the exercises of the day were conducted by Rev. John Blood of Reigelsville, N. J., and Rev. S. A. Howell, Secretary of the Board of Control. At this service, Rev. John Blood acted as "Musical Director." Many inspiring hymns were sung from the "Evangelistic Songs of Praise" by Rev. C. W. Strickland, using mainly those composed by Bro. Tomer, who was once a member of the Christian Church at Fineville, N. J., of which Rev. John Blood is now pastor. The teachers then resumed the task of enrolling and classifying students; by this time, there were about sixty, boarding and day students included.

On Thursday morning, at the chapel exercises, Rev. S. A. Howell delivered a practical and inspiring address to the students, emphasizing loyalty to the faculty and to the denomination and insisted that they make the student body one great family of Christian young men and women coming from different parts of the Christian field. He pointed out that by this loyalty they would be of great service to the Principal and Faculty in carrying out the regulations of the College and also reflect much credit on themselves and those upon whom they were depending for support.

The Board desires to thank the brotherhood and the other friends who have been instrumental in bringing about greater Franklinton, and still desires their co-operation for its development. With such leaders as Rev. John Blood, "Guardian Angel of Greater Franklinton Christian College," Professor H. E. Long, Principal, Professor James A. Henderson, Miss B. Lee, Matron, Mrs. Cora Long, Associate teacher, Franklinton Christian College bids fair to be to the colored Christians of the South what Elon College is to the white Christians of the South.

THE LITTLE LIGHT

*The light shone dim on the headland,
 For the storm was raging high;
 I shaded my eyes from the inner glare,
 And gazed on the wet gray sky.
 It was dark and low'ring on the sea.
 The waves were booming loud,
 And the snow and piercing winter sleet
 Wove over all a shroud.
 "God pity the men on the sea tonight,"
 I said to my little ones.
 And we shuddered as we heard afar
 The sound of the minute guns.
 My good man came in his fishing coat;
 He was wet and cold that night,
 And he said, "There'll lots of ships go down
 On the headland rock tonight."
 "Let the lamp burn all night, mother,"
 Cried little Mary then;
 "'Tis but a little light, but still
 It might save drowning men."
 "Oh, nonsense," cried the father.
 He was tired and cross that night;
 "The headland lighthouse is enough,"
 And he put out the light.
 That night on the rocks below us
 A noble ship went down;
 But one was saved from the ghastly wreck;
 The rest were left to drown.
 "We steered by a little light," he said,
 "Till we saw it sink from view;
 If they'd only left that light all night,
 My mates might be here, too."
 Then little Mary sobbed aloud;
 Her father blushed for shame.
 "'Twas our light that you saw," he said,
 "And I'm the one to blame."
 'Twas a little light, how small a thing,
 And trifling was its cost;
 Yet for want of it the ship went down,
 And a hundred souls were lost.*

WITH OUR WORKERS

Franklin, Va., W. M. S. observed the Week of Prayer having a service of one hour each afternoon of the week, and made an offering of six dollars toward the Building Fund.

Our workers will be pained to hear that Miss Bessie Norfolk, Cor. Sec.-Treas. of the E. Va. Woman's Board is quite sick at Lakeview Hospital, Suffolk, Va. Let us remember her in our prayers.

The ladies of Liberty Spring (E. Va.) church have recently organized a Missionary Society and will meet on Saturday before the second Sunday in each month. Miss Bertha Savage is Cor. Sec.-Treas. The ladies here have been using the Mite-Boxes but decided that they wanted a society. It is hoped that a W. M. S. may be the result in every church where mite-boxes are used.

OUR BUILDING FUND

It seems that now, before the year is too far gone, that we might be planning as individuals, as societies, to do something for our Building Fund. For the benefit of this fund it was suggested that every society make its President a Life member of the S. C. C. Woman's Board by sending in $10.00 to the Conference Treasurer. This amount might be secured by the use of mite-box offerings, by giving a public exercise and having a silver offering, by having a month of self-denial and making an offering in this way or in numerous ways which suggest themselves to the "willing-worker." We generally do those things that we want to do or that we think very important. We know it is impossible for our workers to do their best with poor and no equipment, so if we really care to help them to do their best, here is an opportunity.

Then, too, it is desired that individuals take Life Memberships in this Board. There are many who can help in this way, and by so doing enliven their interest in the woman's work. Can't we all go to work earnestly and prayerfully in this matter which means much in our mission work—if we are willing to make it so.

BE OF GOOD CHEER

These words are frequently seen in the Bible. They are found in the Old Testament, and also repeatedly in the New Testament. They were originally spoken to people in various situations, and in various circumstances. It is a significant fact that the words were never spoken to unbelievers. God never told ungodly ones to be of good cheer. They might be in need of cheering messages from God, but, so long as they were in opposition to Him, they were deprived of any consoling word from Him. (It is the true believer, while fearing and fainting, who is exhorted to be of good cheer. To the Christians who is fearing the weight of unusual burdens, or is pressed down with sorrows, the sweet message comes, "Be of good cheer." There are multitudes of such ones throughout our land. There is not a moment when there are not such Christians in every place. Sad hearts are everywhere. Deeply discouraged ones are all around us. I am sure that there are some among my readers. I would like to write something which will tend to lift them out of their sadness and soreness. If I ask them to be of good cheer, they may ask, "How can I be cheerful, while I am having so much trouble? How can I be of good cheer, when I am held strongly in the grip of a dire misfortune?" Well, it is quite possible for a Christian, even in such circumstances, to rise above them and determine to rejoice in the Lord. Do not be always looking at the things which trouble you, but lift up your eyes toward the compassionate Lord. Christ had many bitter experiences when He was on earth, yet He was cheerful amid them all. He was happy in His constant communion with His Father, and our Father. Be of good cheer, for the great God of heaven is ever with you.

C. H. WETHEREBE.

NEWPORT NEWS LETTER

I have in mind a band of men and women who give from principle rather than from pressure. And of this number I want to call attention to those who, year after year, send up their fee to the Christian Missionary Association. I don't know how much joy they are getting out of it, but let them be assured that they are rendering a very helpful service. It may be that they do not stop to find out, some of them, just to what points their money is appropriated. But they are entitled to know, and they are also entitled to have a voice in saying where it shall go. It would make the meetings of the Association more helpful and inspirational if more of those who send up their fees would attend the meetings of the Association.

Those who attend the meetings seem to enjoy them. This, from all appearances, was especially true in the case of our last meeting, which was held at Lambert's Point the eighth of December. Many had not seen the new Lambert's Point Church, and were delighted to see such improvement in the way of equipment. All seemed to be well pleased with the splendid dinner which the ladies of the church served in the Odd Fellows Hall. The collections did not amount to quite so much as last year. The amount was not far from $1,100. This is a splendid showing, and bespeaks loyalty on the part of the membership of the Association. We are hoping to hold all the present members, reinstate the old ones, and secure many new ones during this present year. Now is the time for churches, Sunday schools, and other church organizations, to begin planning for memberships. Some schools are taking a mission collection each Sunday, and in this way they have the membership fee on hand when the Association meets.

Our next meeting is to be with the Rosemont Christian church. This will be another new church, which was formally opened for service last Sunday. We want to keep in mind our next meeting with this church. The Association, at its last session, appropriated $50.00 for this church and regretted that funds were not in hand to grant the entire amount asked for. The Newport News church is hoping to announce before very long that she can meet her obligations without further assistance from the Association. This might have been done before, but for the obligation assumed in the building of the new Sunday school rooms. We hope to be about free from this debt by the close of the present year.

We observed the first week in the New Year as a week of prayer. The meetings were helpful, and we face the work before us with a larger vision.

W. D. HARWARD.

Rev. J. S. Halfaker, Columbus, Ohio, is entering upon his duties as Field Secretary for the Ohio State Christian Association. "The outlook is good," he writes. "We are planning a 'Double-up' campaign. We want to double the enrollment of our Bible schools, our Christian Endeavor Societies, and the church membership itself, also the regular benevolences of the church during the quadrennium." Bro. Halfaker is one of our most zealous and efficient workers and has learned to undertake great things for the church and for God.

WHAT FOR THE BABIES?

Dear Cradle Roll Friends:

Mrs. Bullock has asked me to tell you something about this new departure in our Cradle Roll work. First, I believe it will not be out of place to say a word about Cradle Rolls in general. I want to urge every church and Sunday school to do something for the babies. Many SUN readers are members of small Sunday schools and say, "Our school is so small we cannot do anything."

But smallness has nothing to do with it. Mr. Hermon Eldridge told us at the Chautauqua that one baby in a home calls for a high chair. We do not wait for a "whole flock of babies" before we begin buying high chairs, but buy one for the first baby that comes along. Just so he said one baby in a community creates the demand for a cradle roll. One baby needs to be tied to the Sunday school by the cradle roll link just as much as a whole flock of babies. Now, dear reader, if you have no cradle roll in your Sunday school, just make up your mind that you are going to have one right away, even if you have to appoint yourself superintendent and do all the work yourself.

Then, dear superintendent, whoever you are, whether an old hand at the cradle roll work or one just newly appointed, just ask the mothers of the dear babies whom you visit if they wouldn't like to have baby enrolled in the Missionary Cradle Roll too. Leave a little mite box—the kind that we have especially for the little folks and a little leaflet or two telling about this work. Then just before the Sunday nearest baby's birthday send a special invitation to baby and mother to come to Sunday school and bring baby's dues—fifteen cents for the year—and also bring the contents of the little mite box. I knew of one mother who put three dollars in baby's mite box on his third birthday because she was so thankful that God had brought him safely through a very serious illness. The mite box may have only a few pennies in it, but the amount of money may not mean so much as the starting of the baby in the right direction. Probably baby's first recollection of the church will be the time he first went to Sunday school and carried his own mite box with some pennies in it that were to help some other baby.

Then in June have a Cradle Roll rally and invite every baby and its mother to come and have a good time with you. Have a short program that will be helpful to the mothers and provide some "good times" for the little folks, and of course have the mite boxes opened again.

Now, I think all who read this will already have guessed that this article is not so much for the larger churches where there are lots and lots of babies and lots of lots of people to do all kinds of work, but for the small school where both babies and workers are few and where those few workers feel that two Cradle Roll organizations are too many. Samples of supplies for the missionary cradle roll will gladly be supplied to any one who will write me and correspond concerning this work is invited. Mrs. Bullock has told you what this money is to be used for, and we ask you to send it to the treasurer of your Conference Woman's Missionary Board either direct or through your local missionary society if you have one. Very cordially,

MRS. W. H. DENISON.

—One of the most beautiful and timely Christmas greetings,—the copy reaching us much belated—coming to our notice in all the season, was that from Rev. Jas. L. Foster and the official Board of the Waverly Christian Church. The front page carries a neat picture of the handsome Waverly church, underneath which in letters of gold are the words: "Peace on earth, good will toward men." The main point, covering several strikingly illustrated pages, is a Christmas carol in verse, the whole concluding with the benediction. It is a wholesome greeting, and worth keeping throughout the year. Our copy is appreciated and will be preserved for future pleasure and inspection.

—The Herald of Gospel Liberty, January 21: "Rev. J. W. Harrell, D. D., pastor First Christian Church, Dayton, has been in a meeting for two weeks. Last Sunday he received sixteen members, and the meeting continues this week. Bro. Harrell is doing a fine work with the First church and the outlook is encouraging."

—We have a notion that many SUN readers will utter a hearty "Amen" when they read what our Asheboro correspondent, A. W. Cline, has to say on "The Old Time and the Modern Country Church," in this week's SUN. That article is worth reading and thinking about.

CALOMEL IS MERCURY! IT SICKENS!
ACTS ON LIVER LIKE DYNAMITE

"Dodson's Liver Tone" Starts Your Liver Better Than Calomel and Doesn't Salivate or Make You Sick.

Listen to me! Take no more sickening, salivating calomel when bilious or constipated. Don't lose a day's work! Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel, when it comes into contact with sour bile crashes into it, breaking it up. This is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you are sluggish and "fall knocked out," if your liver is torpid and bowels constipated or you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, if nausea is bad or stomach sour just take a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone on my guarantee.

Here's my guarantee—Go to any drug store and get a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone. Take a spoonful tonight and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous by morning I want you to go back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying the sale of calomel because it is real liver medicine; entirely vegetable, therefore it can not salivate or make you sick.

I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your bowels of that sour bile and constipated waste which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable. I guarantee that a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone will keep your entire family feeling fine for months. Give it to your children. It is harmless; doesn't gripe and they like its pleasant taste.

My dear Children and Friends:—

Your humble servant is so busy this week that he has not time to write a long letter but his heart is filled with love and enthusiasm for the work. He is very grateful for the many expressions of interest and good wishes for a prosperous year for the Orphanage. Now let us all labor to make this the best year in our Orphanage work.

Six very talented children have been received since Conference and others are clamoring for admittance. We need these children and they need the Orphanage but we can't take them unless we can get the entire church enlisted in maintaining them. We are doing our best to get all the schools lined up in a monthly offering. It would be so easy and so delightful if all would help. Can't you persuade your superintendent to give the children of your school an opportunity to contribute regularly each month toward feeding and clothing and educating our orphan children.

Gilmerton, Va., Jan. 14, 1915.
Dear Uncle Jim:—

We wish for you a bright and happy New Year. Enclosed find check for $4.00, our dues for 1915, with love for each one.

Esther Johnson,
Willard S. Johnson,
Wm. Gay Johnson.

We thank you for your good wish and help.

Holland, Va., Jan. 20, 1915.
Dear Uncle Jim:—

I am sorry that we are so late this time, but we have been busy in school. I passed on all my examinations and hope to go up to the seventh grade next session. Francis is in the first grade. Santa came to see us all, hope he went to see all the orphans. I saw the orphanage picture. The children did look nice. With love,

Virginia and Francis Holland.
Glad you passed on your examinations, you will soon be ready for Elon.

Edgerton, Va., Jan. 21, 1915.
Dear Uncle Jim:—

I am now seven months old and have two teeth and when mother puts me on a quilt on the floor, I kick off and think it is awfully funny. I like to attend Sunday school but they have it the wrong time of day for it is my nap time. I am usually good when I do get to go. I am nearly as fond of music as sister and like to play with her on the piano.

Love to all,
Sarah Elmor Wells.
You will be a great Sunday school girl some day; and when you get large enough will be the organist.

Edgerton, Va., Jan. 21, 1915.
Dear Uncle Jim:—

I am sorry to see the few letters in the corner this week and think it is time I was writing. We went to Semora just before Christmas and spent a week with our grandparents but came back in time to spend Christmas with daddy. Grandma sent me your card and I think it real pretty and have to have it to look at with my others that I receive every day. Old Santa and friends were real good to me. Mother was telling me about the orphans and I wanted to go out to the store and get them some candy. But she thought best to send money and let you get it. I enclose dues for the months of December and January and a dime for the baby orphans to buy some candy.

Love for yourself and all the cousins and orphans,

Mabel Virginia Wells.
Many thanks for your interest in our children. They like candy too.

We are experiencing a winter here of unusual severity, not a very favorable season for special effort in church work, especially since November. Notwithstanding, I have reached all of my regular appointments except two, and the congregations have been good considering weather conditions. Before Christmas I held three meetings: Leaksville, Linville and Newport. Rev. L. F. Johnson, D. D., was with me at Leaksville from Tuesday night till the close of the meeting on the following Sunday night. The meeting had been in progress more than a week when Brother Johnson came. To me it was a pleasure more than I can express to have Brother Johnson with me. We were in school together, and while we were not classmates, we were associated in society work, Y. M. C. A. work, etc., and were thus bound together by strong ties of friendship. We had not been thrown together much since we left college, so it was a rare pleasure to be together again. Brother Johnson did fine work, both in the pulpit and in a personal way. His sermons were convincing and persuasive; while his faith and cheerfulness are contagious. He was with us in three services at Linville. Both churches were greatly revived, and received several additional. Any time our brother can return he will be assured of a hearty welcome.

Three of my churches, Linville, Leaksville and Concord, had Christmas services. Because of the very severe weather and the failure of trains to run on time, thus failing to make connections, we failed to be present at any of these services. I am told that the exercises were good. Leaksville church kindly remembered us with beautiful and useful presents; while Linville church and community gave us a nice purse. For these kind remembrances we are grateful, and feel under obligation to our Master and to the churches to strive to render better service than ever before.

R. L. WILLIAMSON.

DURHAM LETTER

Last Wednesday night our prayer meeting was led by Bro. W. H. Honeycutt. He read the 12th chapter of Romans and gave a very helpful talk from the lesson. The attendance was good and the interest fine. Two members were received into the church on profession of faith, making a total of four that we have received since conference. Our prayer services during the last year have been the best I have ever attended. Our attendance each week when the weather is favorable ranges anywhere from thirty to fifty. Brother I. L. Dowhour the pastor gave an illustrated talk for the special benefit of the dy has been appointed to lead the meeting next Wednesday night. Bro. Dowdy is one of our active young members and is deeply interested in every part of the church work.

Last Sunday was somewhat an unfavorable day, but our attendance at both Sunday school and church services was splendid, in fact the attendance at Sunday school was the largest we have had for twelve months. Bro. D. L. Boone has been re-elected Superintendent, with Bro. C. C. Mulholland assistant. With these good men in the lead we feel sure our Sunday school will continue to go forward. At the eleven o'clock children, using for a subject, "Magnetics," something all children are interested in, and we trust that some good and lasting impressions were made upon their young minds and hearts.

Good interest is being manifested in all parts of our work. Our financial condition is getting better. Our people are learning to give more systematically. We have had our every member canvass, and the total amount pledged for current expenses and benevolences are some larger than that of last year. At our last business meeting the deacons reported the spiritual condition of the church improving. We give the praise to God. Our aim is to make this the best year in the history of our church, and we can do it, if we will but lay ourselves on the altar of God.

Some of our members remembered the pastor and his wife Christmas with nice and useful gifts. Many thanks to one and all.

W. L. WELLS.

The Greensboro Nurseries, John A. Young & Sons owners, report that this Fall season opened with a rush of orders. During the first 20 days after the season opened they shipped out more than 8,000 trees to the order, and that their salesmen continue to send in orders from points that were previously canvassed. This shows that our people are alive to the importance of planting fruit, shade and ornamental trees. Advt.

AN APPRECIATED VISIT

Dear Brother Atkinson:
 When Mrs. Walters and I returned from a union prayer service on the night of January 8, we found that 46 of our church members and friends had come up to see us in our absence and were sitting grouped around the table in the dining room patiently awaiting our return. On the table was a sight that gladdened our hearts and brought the tears of gratitude to our eyes. They were things that would make a preacher's mouth water. After spending a pleasant hour together, they took their leave, and we transferred the load from the table to the pantry and we are still enjoying the visible results of that visit. May the Lord richly bless the good people with whom it is our pleasure to labor.

W. T. WALTERS.

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR

To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ oz. of glycerine. Apply to the hair twice a week until it becomes the desired shade. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Full directions for making and use come in each box of Barbo Compound. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and removes dandruff. It is excellent for falling hair and will make harsh hair soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off.

Elon College
For Both Men and Women
Elon College, North Carolina

For a quarter century Elon College has rendered the best families of the South a paragon service in providing young men and young women with the best mental, moral and physical training under positive Christian influences, to the entire freedom from sectarianism.

Karl Lehman, of Boston, testifies that "of all the Colleges I have visited as International Field Secretary of Christian Endeavor during six years, the spirit of Elon College appeals to me almost genuinely Christian."

Elon College is situated in the delightful hill country, a section unsurpassed for beauty, with a climate far-famed for its healthfulness. There is no medical fee, for there is no necessity for it. Its campus, comprising twenty-five acres of native oak and hickory, shrubbery, winding walks and driveways, is one of the most beautiful in the South and, with its two unsurpassed gymnasias, provides abundant opportunity for recreation and relaxation.

The splendid equipment of Elon College was only made possible through liberal endowment. It maintains seven elegant new buildings, especially designed and appointed for college work. These are furnished with every known convenience; steam heat, electric lights, running water, baths and sewerage. The College plant is conservatively valued at $300,000.00.

Elon College is distinctly a high-grade institution, though its charges are moderate. Its graduates are admitted to the graduate departments of all the great universities without examination. Its literary and scientific courses are arranged in various departments which lead to the degrees of Master of Arts, Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science, Bachelor of Philosophy, Bachelor of Pedagogy, and a three-years' course leading to the degree of Licentiate of Instruction, designed especially for teachers. This institution affords special opportunities for training in Piano, Voice, Expression, Fine Arts, Normal Training, Physical Culture and Commercial Practice.

The Faculty consists of twenty-one specialists; men and women selected not only for their superior teaching ability, but also for their exemplary character and manners.

The student body numbers nearly four hundred and comes from thirteen states.

The lowest rates in the South, only $181 to $191 per College session of ten months. Fall Term always opens the first Wednesday in September. For full descriptive catalogue and view-book, address

OUR DEAD

Baker

Mrs. W. H. Baker was born September 12, 1881, and died in Suffolk January 8, 1915. She was Miss Garrie Ophelia Martin, and was married to Mr. Baker July 15, 1901. She was the mother of Lettie Elizabeth, Catharine Alma, and John Wm., 10, 9 and 3 respectively. The children all survive their mother. She leaves her husband and one brother, John Martin. She was buried at Oakland Christian church, where she united with the church while yet a girl, on Sunday afternoon, January 10. She had been in feeble health for more than a year, and her last illness was brief.

The future of these motherless children is the deep concern of many hearts.

W. W. STALEY.

Gerringer

Mrs. Isabel Gerringer, wife of Peter Gerringer, died at her home near Altamahaw, N. C., at the ripe age of 71 years and 17 days. Funeral and interment at Bethlehem January 7, 1915, conducted by Rev. J. W. Holt. The deceased was a devout Christian, and died trusting in Jesus.

Ashburn J. W. HOLT.

Whereas, our heavenly Father, in His infinite wisdom, hath seen fit to take from us one of our beloved pupils, Dorothy Ashburn, therefore be it resolved:

First—That we bow in humble submission to our Father's will, knowing that He doeth all things well.

Second—That we, members of Liberty Spring Sunday school, have lost a faithful and loving member, one who, though as yet a child, was an inspiration to others because of her fidelity.

Third—That we extend to the bereaved family the sympathy of the entire school.

Fourth—That a copy of these resolutions be sent for publication in THE CHRISTIAN SUN, The Virginian-Pilot, and a copy sent also to the sorrowing family.

MISS HETTIE HARRELL,
MISS BERTHA SAVAGE,
MRS. L. R. RODGERS.

Copeland

At his home, near Chuckatuck, Nansemond county, Va., December 30, 1914, John Samuel Copeland, aged 60 years, 5 months and 9 days. He was for years one of Bethlehem's faithful members, but living near Oakland Christian church he moved, a few years ago, his membership there. He was a good Christian man and will be greatly missed in his home, community and church. He leaves a devoted wife, ten children, and many friends.

His funeral services were conducted at Oakland Christian church by his old pastor, Rev. H. H. Butler, assisted by Rev. I. W. Johnson, D. D., and his remains were laid to rest in the church cemetery. His sons and sons-in-law acted as pall-bearers. The dear bereaved ones have the deepest sympathy of their many friends.

H. H. B.

Perry

Inasmuch as it has pleased almighty God to take from our midst our brother, friend, and class mate, Wishy Perry, let us be in subjection to His will who doeth all things well. We therefore memorialize his death and our loss:

1. That the home has lost a devoted son and brother;
2. That Damascus church has lost a consecrated and faithful member;
3. That the Baraca class has lost one who was always at his post of duty as long as health permitted;
4. That the friends have lost a worthy associate;
5. That a copy of these tokens of respect be given to the family, a copy be printed in THE CHRISTIAN SUN and Baraca-Philathæa Herald, and a copy be sent to Damascus church records.

T. C. LINDSAY,
J. W. CRABTREE,
J. E. McCAULEY.

Gilliam

With a sense of profound sorrow we record the death of our highly esteemed brother, Jos. H. Gilliam, which took place at his home near Altamahaw, N. C., on December 25, 1914. Therefore, resolved:

That we bow in humble submission to the will of Him who doeth all things well, and that while we feel a great loss in his departure, we will cherish the memory of his worthy example for years to come.

Resolved, further, that Bethlehem church has lost a worthy deacon and a faithful treasurer, and the home has lost an affectionate husband and father, and the community a good citizen.

Lastly, That a copy of these resolutions be furnished to the family of our brother, and to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, Burlington News, and State Dispatch for publication.

In behalf of Bethlehem church and Ladies' Aid society.

J. W. HOLT,
MRS. R. A. THOMPSON,
MRS. A. C. MADREN,
Committee.

Herrell

At her home, Winchester, Va., December 23, 1914, Margaret Herrell, wife of John L. Herrell, passed away, after a brief illness of pneumonia.

Sister Herrell joined the Timber Ridge Christian church in childhood and remained a member there until the organization of the Winchester church, while her membership was transferred to the church here, of which she was a devoted member until her death. She was consecrated to her Lord and took pleasure in doing deeds of kindness to those around her.

The funeral services were conducted from her late home by the writer, assisted by Rev. W. O. Talbot, of the M. E. Church, South, and Rev. G. W. Stover of the United Brethren Church.

She leaves to mourn her departure her husband, two sons, C. C. Herrell, of Georgia, and Wm. Herrell, of Winchester, and one daughter, Mrs. C. E. Supinger, of Winchester.

W. T. WALTERS.

Ashburn

Dorothy Whitley Ashburn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Ashburn, died at the home of her uncle and grandmother, Friday, January 8, 1915, at the age of 9 years, 4 months and 5 days. She was a good child and loved to attend Sunday school. During her sickness she asked to be told some of the Bible stories and tried to sing "At the Cross," and some other songs. She spent most of her time with her grandmother, Mrs. L. P. Brinkley, near Liberty Spring church by the writer. May the Lord comfort the bereaved ones.

The Duplex Envelope System

COPYRIGHT 1914, DUPLEX, RICHMOND, VA.

The Duplex Envelope System is the most successful method yet devised for promoting systematic weekly offerings for both Local Church Support and Missions or Benevolences. Ninety per cent. of the churches that once adopt the Duplex System continue to use it from year to year. Which means that, taking the churches as they come—large and small; rich and poor; city and country; churches with whole-time pastors and churches with half-time or quarter-time pastors; churches whose methods keep pace with an age of "scientific-management," and churches with go-as-you-please methods—in ninety per cent. of the total the Duplex System is a success.

● But it is needless to say that the churches which get the best results are those in which the System is not simply put in and left to work itself; but those in which efforts are being continually put forth to develop in every member a vital sense of responsibility for his share of the work of the Church at home and abroad. One thing that every church can do, is to have an Every-Member Canvass—two by two—when the Duplex System is installed, and once a year thereafter—conducting the campaign along the lines set forth in the "Manual of Missionary Methods," published by the LAYMEN'S MISSIONARY MOVEMENT (No. 1 Madison Avenue, New York City).

We here list the original Duplex Envelope System, published for the past eleven years by the Duplex Envelope Company, Richmond, Va. The publishers guarantee to refund the entire purchase price upon request, or, in your discretion, to reprint and deliver the order complete, without expense to you, should the System not prove satisfactory in every respect.

Editorial Briefs

Mothers of Men

"When God would make a great man, He gives him first a great mother." "As is the mother, so is her daughter." Ezekiel 16:44.

Deprived of Strength

Many consider it a bore and a burden to have to read the Bible every day. The truly great regard it in a wholly different light; reading the Book is a joy and a source of great strength to character. President Woodrow Wilson is quoted in these words: "I am sorry for the men who do not read the Bible every day; I wonder why they deprive themselves of the strength and of the pleasure. It is one of the most singular books in the world, for every time you open it some old text that you have read a score of times suddenly beams with a new meaning. There is no other book that yields its meaning so personally, that seems to fit itself so intimately to the very spirit that is seeking its guidance." David also deemed the Word a privilege and a source of strength, and wrote: "Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path." Psalms 119:105.

A Vision

The glory of a vision is the revelation of Self. Paul's vision was a benefit and a blessing not because it gave him a glimpse of God, but because it revealed Paul to himself. The light of the vision shone round about Paul, showing him what he was and what he might be. No man ever knows himself and others until he sees himself and others through God. "In the beginning God"—in the beginning of our understanding men and measures about us. Great statesmen, counselors, diplomats have advised nations erroneously and plunged multitudes into battle and blood because they studied man only in the light of humanity and not in the light of, and through, Deity. You cannot understand your fellowman till you see him through God. Through and beyond the vision of God we get a better and clearer conception of man. No man ever sees himself right till he sees himself through God—sees himself in a proper attitude to God. Saul's biography is sterile and useless until it begins to be written as Paul. Paul is Saul plus God. Saul is the man looked at through man; Paul is the man looked at through God. So David realized in his desire for Solomon. "And thou, Solomon, my son, know thou the God of thy father." 1 Chron. 28:9.

Marriage in Mexico

They have decided in Mexico that "divorce is a powerful factor to morality," and on December 31, 1914, V. Caranza, then acting president of the United States of Mexico, issued an edict which was made law throughout that country, as follows: "Art. I. The bond of matrimony can be dissolved by the free and mutual consent of the consorts, when the marriage has been celebrated longer than three years, or at any time, if there exist causes which make the aim of matrimony impossible, or improper, or due to serious offenses on the part of either of the consorts, which make the breach irreparable. Once matrimony dissolved, the consorts may contract new unions, legitimately. This law shall be published by edict and proclamation and shall commence to be effective from this day on." Evidently the revolution is on in Mexico with a vengeance.

The Written Sermon

Many audiences oppose the written sermon, particularly if read by the preacher. Such will approve and applaud Gipsy Smith for his reply to a widely circulated journal soliciting a sermon for its columns: "I have never written a sermon in my life. I think, I pray, I read. Then I speak to heart, conscience, will and brain of those who will listen, to win a verdict for God. Preaching to me is nothing unless we open blind eyes, and turn men from darkness to light, and from Satan to God. I regret I cannot send the sermon you want; my life is so full." Yet there is no sin, no weakness, no lack of sincerity in the written sermon. If all men were as versatile and vigorous in thought and speech as Gipsy Smith there would be no necessity for the written sermon. Many a weak and ineffectual preacher could well say with Job: "Oh, that my words were written! Oh, that they were printed in a book." Job 19:237.

Preparing the Way

The eyes of the whole country are trained on Philadelphia to see and seek to understand the results and the explanation of the marvelous work of evangelist "Billy" Sunday. What means this movement whereby thirty thousand people each day seek to crowd into an auditorium that seats only twenty thousand people to hear a man preach the gospel of the Son of God? This movement wherein there are a thousand or more conversions a day and hardened men are caused to change altogether their manner of living? The meaning cannot be interpreted, but this at least is positively known as one great secret of the success of this movement; namely, prayer. For weeks and months before Sunday went to Philadelphia there were more than a thousand prayer meetings devoted solely to preparing the way for this work of grace. Again the truth is emphasized before the whole world that to have a great revival there must be much and repeated and earnest prayer. "Evening and morning and at noon, will I pray and cry aloud; and he shall hear my voice." Ps. 55:17.

God's Quest of Men

God is seeking ever to break into the lives of men. It doth not yet appear what we shall be when He will no longer have to break into our lives but will abide in us continuously. If we could see Him constantly, our desire for Him would be so great that He would abide in us to fill us with His own life and light and love. God is seeking for men who will keep their faces turned toward Him and their eyes fixed on Him. Moses was such a man; David was such a man; Paul was. And God used them mightily to make His will and His way known unto others. God is depending upon men and women who have their eyes upon Him, to make known to others His love and the power of salvation. He is not depending upon angels, nor institutions, nor societies, nor literature, nor invention, nor wealth; He is looking for and depending upon men to spread His truth, preach His gospel, make known His love. God will not, God cannot save the world, the pagan, the heathen world, till men upon whom He is depending get ready and go forth to save for Him. God is looking for and depending upon men, not ghosts or angels or spirits, to break the bread of life to the hungry and save those who are starving. God did not have to make Himself and His work of grace dependent upon men; but He did so, of His own volition, of His own wisdom. "I heard the voice of the Lord, saying, Whom shall I send, and who will go for us? Then said I, Here am I; send me." Isa. 6:8.

—The bodies of Gustavus Dodson, of Norfolk, J. W. Murray, of Burlington, and Mrs. W. E. Poreh, of Beaufort, not having yet been recovered from Pamlico Sound where they sank with the gasoline yacht Julia on the morning of January 15, near Englehardt, N. C., the advisability of employing divers to search for them is being discussed. The water is about 12 feet deep where the Julia was burned, and at this time of the year quite cold. For these reasons, it is believed the bodies will not come to the surface soon, and are now near the spot where they went down.

—Secretary of State William Jennings Bryan is great as a diplomat and statesman; but far greater as orator and preacher of righteousness. He spoke three times to large audiences in this State last Saturday, and his addresses all breathed the spirit of "The Prince of Peace," whose life and teaching he seeks to interpret and expound. The pulpit lost when Bryan decided on politics and statecraft instead.

—From West Milton, Ohio, comes a renewal and a good word from our dear sister, Mrs. H. Y. Rush: "THE SUN is one of the sweetest-spirited papers that comes to my home. It brings to me comfort in my lonely hours. May prosperity attend it always." One of the very brightest and most sweet-spirited writers that ever contributed to THE SUN was the late lamented husband of this good woman.

EDITORIAL

THE CHRISTIAN SUN A Statement of Facts.

A Committee of the Board of Trustees of the Southern Christian Publishing Company was in session last Wednesday. After going over the situation carefully it was decided, with considerable reluctance and regret, to reduce for the present the size of THE CHRISTIAN SUN. Every endeavor will be made to so increase the circulation and the income to the paper as to be able to increase back to the former size. This will be done just as soon as the income will justify. It is not the will nor the expectation of the Board to keep THE SUN at its present size. But the Board did not feel justified in continuing to publish THE SUN at a loss.

It was the feeling that if THE SUN was increased to and published at the standard size, the brotherhood would respond and the increased income would meet the increased expense. Such was not the case. The increased size and appearance of the paper were not appreciated as was anticipated. Kind words came in appreciation, but not increased number of subscriptions to an appreciable degree.

We shall seek to make THE SUN at its present reduced size, as acceptable as possible and trust the public will bear with us until we can do better.

The Board decided to give the figures before us which caused the temporary reduction in size and cost in production. Here are the facts for the past year, both of cost and income as touching THE SUN.

FROM ONE WHO KNOWS

There is no man in all our brotherhood who has had as much experience in editing and working with a church paper as Dr. J. P. Barrett. We do not know what prompted him to write just as he has at this time, but his words fit our situation and experience to the letter.

Our brotherhood has never realized at what sacrifice and expense THE CHRISTIAN SUN has been published. We have not been able to make them realize it. Our constant ambition and uncontrollable desire have been to give to our church and constituency a paper equal in mechanical make-up and size to the best. But we have no fund or resource to fall back on when there is a loss, so THE SUN must depend upon its own income and resources. Read what Dr. Barrett, a former editor of THE SUN, had to say in last week's Herald of Gospel Liberty editorially:

"Few things in the work of the Church are more difficult to make pay financially than the church paper. We doubt that there are ten church papers in the United States which are paying expenses. Our Methodist brethren, rich and well trained, find it next to impossible to make their church papers pay. Many have thought that a church paper will pay better if it be owned by the Church. Our Methodist papers are so owned, but that does not save them from financial loss.

"There is a cry among our Baptist brethren for church ownership of their religious, or denominational papers by the Church, evidently hoping for better support. In Texas the experiment has been made with The Texas Baptist Standard. It is said that the paper had one of the ablest editors among the Baptist brotherhood, and yet at the end of the first year of church ownership publication its receipts were more than $4,000 less than it was the year before it was owned by the Church.

"When our Agent shows by his annual report that The Herald is losing money, you are getting just the same results practically as all other denominations are getting. This ought not to be, and it need not be, if the brotherhood in whose interest the paper is published would but make the right kind of effort to support the paper. But they do not do it, not only among us, but it is true of many other bodies. Shall we then stop the paper? Would it be wise to save the money we are losing yearly by stopping the publication of The Herald? We cannot afford that, for without our church paper we can hardly hold our people in line for any connectional work, and without that we could not expect to continue our mission to the world. We must take care of our church paper, or we shall have nothing of much consequence to engage us as a people. It is not a question of whether we will keep our church paper. It is rather a question of absolute necessity—we cannot maintain our work without it. We simply must have it. We can make it pay all right, if we will work together to that end. Shall we do it?"

"We have spent twenty years in religious journalism. For twelve years of that time we had the ownership of the paper and all of its business interests in our hands, and the editing, too. Since then we have spent eight years in the editorial department, free from the business cares of the office, and now we are prepared to say that we know of no more risky business than publishing a religious newspaper. It is certainly a means of large usefulness, and a work no man need feel ashamed to take part in, and yet it is full of perils, and always likely to involve those who are financially responsible for its publication in financial loss. As much as we love religious journalism, after an experience covering twenty years, we do not hesitate to say, as we now say it, that no man, and no set of men, could persuade us to undertake the establishment of a new religious newspaper, and for the reason that we know it to be an undertaking fraught with great burdens and almost, if not altogether, insurmountable difficulties. These difficulties are tremendous, even in the conduct of an old and well-established paper, such as The Herald, but when they are faced in the work of established a new paper, then they leap away ahead of the ordinary man and leave him helpless, with a crushing load upon his shoulders. If others like to try such an experiment, that is their business, but from it we ask to be excused to the end of the journey of life."

—The Dover, Delaware, Christian church has elected Dr. A. W. Lightbourne pastor for life. Any church is fortunate indeed that has for its minister a man of such eloquence, learning, and Christian fervor. We congratulate the Dover church for its zeal in congratulating the unbroken service of Dr. Lightbourne.

REV. M. L. BRYANT

A faithful man and a brave soul have gone to meet his God. The end came at Asheville Sunday, January 31, at midnight. Bro. Bryant had gone to Asheville some three years ago in quest of health, and there he made a desperate effort to recover lost strength and bodily vigor; but to no avail. His body was carried Monday night to Norfolk for interment Tuesday.

M. L. Bryant graduated from Elon College in the class of 1905 and went immediately into the pastorate. He was a close student, a man of pleasing address, a winning speaker, and a very consecrated man. His services as minister and evangelist were much in demand, and many think that over-work brought on the illness that ended his career so early. He was pastor of Main Street Christian Church, Berkley, Va., when his health gave way. While located in Berkley he married Miss Elizabeth Pierce, whose beautiful Christian life and unequalled devotion to her invalid husband are the admiration of all who knew her. Her life is that of a true and genuine heroine, earning by her own endeavor a livelihood for her husband and self and keeping him supplied with medical attendance and every comfort during his long illness. Mrs. Bryant's life came to be a benediction and an inspiration to all who knew the conditions under which she labored and wrought and triumphed.

Brother Bryant was from the Valley of Virginia, where a father and two brothers and a sister survive him. The hundreds whom Brother Bryant helped and led into a better life will join in deploring his untimely taking off. A true and devout man of God has gone home to rest and to enjoy the rewards of a life most nobly spent.

NOTES AND PERSONALS

—Rev. W. G. Clements, Morrisville, N. C., is but recently recovering from a vigorous attack of "the grip."

—Greensboro has opened a regular training school for Sunday school workers, the preliminary meeting being held in West Market Street Church, Greensboro, last night (February 2). Mr. A. W. McAlister, one of Greensboro's most prominent business men, is chairman, and Prof. W. C. Jackson is Dean of the School. The principal speaker Tuesday night was President W. A. Harper, of Elon College:

—The editor of this paper has done all his writing and editing this week in bed flat on his back. The explanation of which is that his neighbor has a mule named Kate. While watching that mule and her mate at play in the barn lot, Kate's friendly heel found lodgment against this scribe's left side and sent him against a neighboring fence. The mule meant no harm, and we hold no grudge; but the man who says that dynamite, or gunpowder, or electricity, or any other high-explosive known among the children of men is quicker than a mule's heel put it down that that man does not know what he is talking about. This editor is used to all sorts of knocks and kicks, but forever hereafter he is determined to stay well in front of a mule—or up a tree.

—We learn with sorrow of the death of Mrs. E. V. Lee, at her home, Bennett Creek, Nansemond county, Va., on Saturday, January 30. The interment was at the family burying ground Monday p. m., February 1, the funeral being conducted by Rev. I. W. Johnson, D. D., pastor, assisted by Dr. W. W. Staley, of Suffolk. Mrs. Lee was the relict of the late Elisha E. Lee, and is survived by her two daughters, Mrs. Mamie Lee Tourtellot, of Providence, R. I., and Mrs. Dollner Lee Gray, who resided with her mother. Mrs. Lee was a sister of the late lamented Capt. T. R. Gaskins, and was a devoted member of Berea church, Driver, Va. Hers was an unselfish, amiable, noble-hearted life, and a faithful servant of the King has gone to receive her reward.

—Miss Bessie Norfleet, Treasurer of the Woman's Mission Board of the Eastern Va. Conference, and a beloved teacher in the Suffolk Christian church Sunday school, died Sunday morning, January 31, after an illness of some weeks. Miss Norfleet was well known in church and charity circles, where her intelligence, devotion and skill were of inestimable worth and benefit. The influence of her life was for good, and her constant thought and endeavor were to be a benefit and a blessing to others. She was the daughter of the late Elisha Norfleet and Mrs. Sarah Norfleet, and is survived by two brothers, Postmaster Jno. R. Norfleet, and Robert J. Norfleet, and by two sisters, Mrs. Katharine Brothers and Mrs. Walter Ballard. Suffolk Christian church sustains a great loss in the death of this noble and active Christian worker. Our sympathies are extended to the bereaved ones.

THE SAMPLE COPY

THE CHRISTIAN SUN this week will find its way into many new homes as we are sending out several hundred copies as samples. In each sample copy will be found a subscription blank and the circulation manager will be glad to get many of these blanks back properly filled out by new subscribers.

For every new subscription sent in we will give as a premium a copy of "Trailing the Truth," by C. B. Riddle author of "College Men Without Money." This is a neat cloth bound volume containing 80 pages, made up of select and inspiring thought and is suitable reading for any one; especially appropriate for birthday remembrances and a neat gift for any other occasion. It sells regularly at 50 cents the copy. This offer will hold good only as long as the supply lasts. We have a few hundred copies on hand and if you care to get one free send in your subscription now.

Over a thousand subscribers are behind with their subscription. A subscription is a small matter and no one really thinks of a subscription in arrears as a serious thing. "Oh well, I will pay that in a few weeks, it is only a dollar or two." The paper is not suffering for the little amount." Dear Subscriber, when something over a thousand subscribers are thinking the same thing you can readily see the results—over $1,500.00 on the books. This amount would make our creditors smile, for as soon as we received the amount we would immediately place same on our obligations.

As long as they last we will give to the present subscribers, also, a copy of "Trailing the Truth" if you will pay up and one year in advance. Now is the time to get the book free. You had better act at once, for they are not going to last long. "First come first served."

SUFFOLK LETTER

It may be of interest to readers of THE SUN to know that Rev. Dr. J. W. Harrell, who went from Washington Street Christian Church in Portsmouth, Va., last Fall to the First Christian Church of Dayton, Ohio, is succeeding well, so far, in his new field. A splendid meeting closed yesterday, the last day of January, and the results have added a large number of new members, stirred up the latent spiritual activities of old members, and awakened the community by earnest and spiritual efforts. The fourteen-inch snow and zero weather did not cool the ardor of this southern minister with his warm and enthusiastic zeal.

The Rev. Dr. J. P. Barrett and his wife are holding the fort, and the Doctor is keeping The Herald alive with matter that gives satisfaction, as Judge O. W. Whitelock said in his address at Springfield, "to the rank and file of our constituency"; and I may remark that that is no mean compliment, as we live in an age that emphasizes the wider distribution of all good products. There was a time when the few only could see great paintings by going to great art galleries. Photography and the printing press have put copies of masterpieces in almost every home; and moving pictures send great paintings by like running trains. Education, once the privilege of the few, is now the privilege of all. Books and current literature are within the reach of all. The increase in Sunday school helps has made a thousand good Sunday school teachers where one was hardly found fifty years ago. It is the same for clothing, vehicles, foodstuffs, delicate luxuries, and all the arts of peace. Transportation and intercommunication have made a wider distribution of all human products and all human knowledge. Nothing seems to be done for the few in these days; all things reach the many and thereby bless the world.

The Board of Trustees of the Christian Publishing Association was in session in Dayton, Ohio, from January 26 to January 29 of this year. The flood loss in March, 1913, was about twelve thousand dollars, to say nothing of the loss of business during the time of repairing the damage to the building and machinery; nevertheless, the business of the house is moving on as well as could be expected under the dull times in the printing world. No important change was made in the management of the business. The Officers' and Teachers' Journal is to be increased to a sixty-four page paper, and Hermon Eldredge is continued as its editor with privilege to associate other editors or assistants with himself. This journal is to be greatly improved and all schools should supply all officers and teachers with this good help as they supply the scholars with the quarterlies.

The most important thing done at this meeting by the Board was to place in the House three new Intertype Machines in place of the two old Linotype machines; three new imposing tables, new hand type, etc. This will put the House on a scale of equipment that will enable the management to produce better work and more rapidly. Not only the church, but the public will find in this House ample provision for doing the best work in the shortest time.

W. W. STALEY.

ELON COLLEGE NOTES

A more edifying sermon has rarely been delivered here than that which Dr. Atkinson gave on Sunday morning. His theme was "secularizing the sacred." If he did not put all the higher critics and lower, too, out of business, then this scribe is not capable of passing an opinion. Dr. Atkinson is being imperturbed by friends here to publish his last year's sermons to the church here in a volume to be entitled "The Romance of Righteousness." Here is hoping he will. He certainly ought.

President Harper leaves for Dayton, Ohio, on Wednesday, where he is to sit as a member of the Forward Movement Committee of the Christian church. This committee was created by the Mission and Educational Boards to institute a campaign to raise $500,000 for Missions and Christian Education.

Quite a number of the College students attended the Social Service Conference in Raleigh the past week, in which William Jennings Bryan participated.

Messrs. A. C. Bergeron and L. W. Vaughan represented Elon at the State Y. M. C. A. Conference in Winston-Salem recently.

Several students and citizens are scheduled to attend the Laymen's Missionary Movement Convention for N. C. in Charlotte about the middle of February.

The Executive Board of the College Trustees met here on Friday night last. They were busy over the new catalogue, passing on matters suggested by the Faculty and making some suggestions in addition. It was decided by them to be inexpedient to call the general Board of Trustees at this time. They will therefore not meet till the regular May session.

Rev. Victor Lighthourne reports a splendid meeting in progress at Ferguson, Iowa.

Rev. John T. Pitman, Wilson, N. C., died of pneumonia last week. He was a student here during the fall term, but gave up his preparation work to take charge of a mission point at Wilson. His many friends will regret to learn of his early death and will extend their sympathy to his wife and children.

The Beale Bros. sold their store here to Mr. Oldham, brother of Mr. J. D. Oldham, who will continue to operate it and also engage in the lumber business here.

The Trustees of the Christian Publishing Association held a session in Burlington last Wednesday. Some very vital matters were considered by them we understand.

Mr. E. B. Hatch, Asheboro, N. C., Mr. T. W. Chandler, Virginia, Va., and Miss Sudie McCauley, Chapel Hill, N. C., were pleasant visitors to the Hill during the past week.

Mr. W. S. Wicker, Elon 1913, instructor in Mathematics in the University of North Carolina, spent the week-end visiting his parents here, Dr. and Mrs. W. C. Wicker.

All Elon was saddened this morning (Monday) to receive announcement of Rev. M. L. Bryant's death at Asheville at midnight Sunday. A noble light has gone out. His wife and relatives will have universal sympathy in their sad bereavement.

Sunday Schools and Christian Endeavor

A. L. HOOK, Editorial and Field Secretary, Elon College, N. C.;

This Department is under the direction of the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor General Convention. Frequent news items from Sunday Schools, Organized Classes, and C. E. Societies are desired. If you are interested in any of these or are about to organize, address the department's editor.

church in the conference upon the basis of its paying membership, and further, to base the apportionments of conference upon the same basis. However, if the local church prefers to represent its entire roll of members and pay for an apportionment based upon its entire membership—active and inactive—that is a matter wholly at the discretion of the local church as heretofore.

It does not make money a door into the church, nor turn a member out, but it does suggest that every member ought to do something to help support his church or say but little in the administration of its business affairs. Yours very truly,

JEREMIAH W. HOLT.

GULPH MILLS (PENNSYLVANIA) LETTER

Evangelical churches this way are coming to be evangelistic, and a religious tide is steadily rising. All the churches of Conshohocken, except the Lutherans and Roman Catholics, are uniting in an evangelistic campaign and will begin a series of meetings on Easter, to be conducted by Evangelist Jordan. For that reason a Tabernacle of about two thousand seating capacity is being built, and preparatory services in way of prayer meetings, and individual revival services by some of the churches are being conducted, with occasional general and union services. Billy Sunday is in Philadelphia, a few miles from us, now, in the midst of a great campaign against sin, and has already stirred the city and surrounding country. His Tabernacle will seat twenty thousand people, yet thousands are often turned away. Philadelphia has a population of a million and a half. Every road this way, from Washington to New York, seems to lead to Billy Sunday. Thirteen hundred persons have made confession of sin and professed conversion in a single day during his meetings, and the last service I saw reported 697 had professed at that service. From the "downs and outs," all the way to the cultured and refined, the professional and business men, and distinguished jurists, men and women are swept by the mighty tide. The slums and dives are visited by helpers in the meetings and also some of the most fashionable homes of wealth are thrown open to Mr. Sunday and his workers for brief services. Thousands seek and love him and as many thousands despise him. Multitudes praise him and vast numbers curse him. Among the latter are the saloon men, gamblers, grafters, corrupt politicians, and shall we say it, even some ministers stand aloof, and a few have organized in Philadelphia against his great crusade against sin. It is a mistake to think of Billy Sunday as an ignorant man, controlled by impulse. He is a man of great brain and fine attainments, and I suppose his production before the United States Congress last week will be rated as a very scholarly one.

It will be of interest to our people to know as having an unbroken consciousness of constant communion and direct touch with the Master. He seems to have at least made the devil mad in these parts, but some, you know, question the existence of such a person. * * *

It will be of interest to our people to know that Brother James Lightbourne, brother of our Evangelist Victor Lightbourne and son of our great Dr. A. W. Lightbourne, has definitely given himself to the Christian ministry and has recently been licensed to preach. He is a young man of splendid educational attainments, a writer of ability, and of a very pious disposition. Some of our good churches without a pastor will be fortunate to secure him. This is written on my own motion and authority.

As we enter upon our third year here the work seems to take on new life and interest. Last Sunday we had 123 present in the Sunday school, a very fine congregation, received two

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FOR FEBRUARY 7

Ruth Chooses the True God.—Ruth 1.

Golden Text: Thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God.—Ruth 1:16.

Ruth had a great and longing desire for God. She had been brought up in a family which worshipped God. She had had sorrow in that three of the family had been taken by death. On account of these things we can readily understand why Ruth thought of better things. To undergo sorrow many times makes us more settled, contented, so far as worldly things are concerned, and gives us a better insight into the future life on account of meditation which sorrow brings. We reach out for God's strong hand that our little ship may be guided safely into harbor. We are on the ocean of life and look around us—no steamer in sight, no friend at hand; the waves are rolling high, evil and temptation at hand, then is when we have a desire for the strongest friend—for Christ.

Ruth desired God and she made a decision for God and to serve Him. It was necessary and she felt no doubt in making her choice known. We have to make a decision some time, in fact, we are making a decision every day of our lives. We are either turning back or going forward; some day to fill the world with pleasantness, to make the world better that we lived in it. Certainly it is better for the world that Ruth lived, desired God, decided for God, and Had a Determination for God.

Her one set purpose was that she would not be left or even asked to turn away from her chosen way—to live the straightforward life.

"The Truth That Is Golden"

"So they went until they came to Bethlehem" (1:19). The life of unselfish love, the decision to abandon all and seek God, leads to Bethlehem, where we find our Savior, Jesus Christ. It seems like asking too much that we should be told (Matt. 19:29) to leave houses, and brethren, and sisters, and fathers, and mothers, and children, and lands, for His name's sake. But after we have done it, and have received Christ in His fulness, and in Him every spiritual blessing in the heavenly places (Eph. 1:3) how costly does our sacrifice seem to us? Then we see that we have given nothing and have gained everything. And we regain our loved ones, oftentimes, as we never had them or knew them before.—C. G. Trumbull, in S. S. Times.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC: FEBRUARY 7

Christian Endeavor That Counts.—1 Cor. 15:57, 58
(Christian Endeavor Day)

A great part of this meeting can be given over as an experience meeting. Have the oldest members tell of the first organization of the society in their church; tell of what they thought of the society when it first began and how they worked for it. As the society progressed how much more interesting it became. If for the first few months it did not progress so much have them to tell why it did not; different societies will have different causes. Also, give experiences wherein the society made rapid progress and why.

By having these ideas expressed and a record of the society read it will be easy to answer the question: Has our society counted for Christ? How can it count more for the cause of Christianity?

If we are really endeavorers and have Christ as our Guide we cannot fail. To count for the most we must have a goal, a high goal, and seek earnestly to reach that goal. Every one should work, every member. A society will count if only one member is working, but how much more it will count if all the members are working—four million members.

Another reason why Christian Endeavor should count is that it is an unselfish institution which has for its object the betterment of mankind.

"When Christian Endeavor is not counting toward a stronger church, a better town, a nobler nation, and a happier world, something is wrong with it. Do not condemn Christian Endeavor, but see what the trouble is, and remove it. Then it will begin to count richly, as it has in thousands of cities since it was founded in 1881."

For Answer in the Meeting

Why was Christian Endeavor started?

What has proved that God favors Christian Endeavor?

What have been the sources of Christian Endeavor strength?

What does Christian Endeavor try to do for the individual members?

What does Christian Endeavor try to do for the local Church?

What does Christian Endeavor try to do for the nation?—C. E. World.

A QUESTION AND ITS ANSWER

Of Interest to N. C. and Va. Conferences Churches and Members.

From Rev. J. F. Morgan

Graham, N. C., January 27, 1915.

Dear Brother Holt:

Some of the members of one of my churches in your conference do not understand a resolution offered by you, and adopted by your conference, at its last session, and they asked me to ask you if you would explain it, or get your president or secretary of conference to explain it, through THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

They ask the question, "Doesn't it make money the door into our church?" Or does it give the conference the power to turn a member out of the local church?

So if you feel so disposed, an explanation will be appreciated by these friends who do not understand.

With the best of wishes for you and Mrs. Holt, I am, yours in His name,

J. F. MORGAN.

Rev. J. F. Morgan, Graham, N. C.

Dear Brother:

Your letter of the 27th ult. to hand. In regard to the motion offered by me at the last session of our conference, I will say that it proposes to base the representation of the local members; and in the afternoon there were 125 men present at the Men's Bible Class. For the past two years the church treasury has kept steadily ahead of expenses with a good surplus on hand much of the time. However, there is nothing to boast of when the possibilities of the community are considered, along with its great needs in spiritual things. But we are full of hope just now for a real spiritual awakening this way. While the work and country steadily grow on us, we often feel a little home-sickness; the dear South, you see.

MURDOCK W. BUTLER.

WHY NOT ORGANIZE YOUR CLASS?

The organized Bible class movement is a tremendous force for good throughout the country today. The Baraca and Philathea plan of organization seems to meet the need everywhere, in the small country church as well as in the more fortunate city church. North Carolina ranks first in the Baraca-Philathea movement. We have headquarters in Greensboro and are well prepared to send free literature and instructions to any desiring to organize these classes. I will gladly correspond with any readers of this paper, who may desire to consider organizing their Sunday school classes.

FLOSSIE A. BYRD, General Secretary.

—This comes by way of Dayton, O., through The Herald of Gospel Liberty: "We hear it rumored that President Harper of Elon College will soon give to the public a new book, under the title, The Making of Men. Dr. Harper is a versatile writer, and as this subject is along the line of his daily life and work, we may expect a most inviting and helpful field of thought to be given in its pages. We believe it will get a wide circulation."

—Bro. W. W. Elder of Columbus, Ga., one of Elon's worthy and successful sons, is with the Navy Y. M. C. A., Brooklyn, N. Y., 167 Sands St. "Bud" Elder is a fine Christian worker and has made good in the navy circles. He is preparing for a trip to the Panama Exposition in early Spring. The work goes well with him, since his return from Mexico with our Navy, where conditions were rather warm and exciting for a season.

—We gather from Rev. J. W. Piper in Herald of Gospel Liberty last week: "As a result of arrangements entered into through Dr. Hammond of LeGrand, Bro. Lightbourne came here December 27 and began evangelistic services with the Christian church the same evening. These services continue for sixteen days. The meetings were interesting from start to finish. The people of all denominations received Bro. Lightbourne gladly and responded with many heartfelt prayers and material expressions for a successful meeting. Hardened hearts were softened by divine love, and many Christians took on new life, encouraged by the presentation of the truth so plainly and forcibly put by the evangelist in his eloquent discourses. The conversions numbered eighteen, of whom eleven were added to the church. Evangelist Lightbourne is now in a meeting with Pastor U. S. Johnson at Ferguson. The news was phoned to us this morning after less than one week of services that twenty-six had expressed their knowledge of the new life. The meeting continues with unabated interest. Bro. Lightbourne has arranged to visit three or four other churches before he returns to his family at Elon College, N. C. Our prayer is that success may crown all his efforts for the salvation of souls while here in this needy field." We learn that there were more than 50 conversions. Bro. Lightbourne is now in a meeting at Truro, Iowa.

EASTERN VIRGINIA WOMAN'S BOARD MEETING

The Woman's Mission Board of the Eastern Virginia Conference met in the Philathea room of the Suffolk Christian church on January 28, 1915, at 10 a. m., with the following members present: Mrs. W. H. Denison, Miss Margaret Brickhouse, Mrs. J. L. Foster, Mrs. I. W. Johnson, Miss Mamie Holland, and Mrs. C. H. Rowland. The President read a scripture lesson from Judges 6:11-14, and Acts 16:9-10, prayer following.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. One new W. M. S. was reported—Liberty Spring, Va., which was organized with twenty members. Mrs. Denison reported one new Missionary Cradle Roll, at Waverly, Va., and one dozen mite boxes to be used by the S. S. Cradle Roll for missions at Damascus.

It was voted that Miss Holland, Y. P. Supt., write to Rev. J. O. Cox asking him to designate some body at the Orphanage for the Willing Workers to clothe, this being the special decided on for them at the W. M. Conference in October.

Plans were discussed for raising the $50.00 for the Building Fund, which was adopted as the Y. P. special in the W. M. Conference also.

It was voted to ask the women's societies of the conference to observe the week preceding Easter as a self-denial week and to make an offering to be applied to the Building Fund; and if possible, to secure $10.00 to make the society president a Life Member of the S. C. C. Woman's Board.

It was decided to have our annual W. M. Conference on Thursday before the annual Conference meets.

Mrs. Foster was asked to compose a song and words to be used by Willing Workers, also to prepare a missionary game for boys and girls, bearing on our work and workers.

Special prayer was offered by Mrs. Denison in behalf of Miss Bessie Norfleet, the only absent member of the Board, who is quite sick.

After an informal discussion of problems and plans for solving them, the Board adjourned to meet again at the call of the President.

LETTER TO MISS TRUE FROM MISS HAMAGUCHI

508 Wakuya, Miyagi Ken, Japan,
 November 30, 1914.

The mail bag brought me a souvenir of Norfolk and vicinity this morning. The pictures are very pretty. I also received a Ladies' Home Journal several days before. Thank you for all. The primer that Rev. Rowland's children want is not in the stores this time of the year, but I will try to make further inquiries and send to them with all the English and Romaji (Japanese words in English letters) in it if they desire to see.

Ten dollars from Canada for the preacher's boy's education came, but as you were not here was returned to Canada. Please tell Miss Stephenson about it.

The new church building in Wakuya is getting along nicely. It is going to be a pretty-looking little church. The shape is something like that of Sendai, only smaller, six ken in length and four in width.

It has a nine mat Japanese room in the front which can be made into two by the karakami (paper doors). The church has a tower and a cross on the top of it. A certain visitor who had been looking at the tower decided herself and said, "That is where the God is going to stay."

Last Sunday at Ishinomaki new soldiers were leaving and the children had to assemble in the school, then go to the railroad station to see them off. Services were deserted. Therefore there were few children at Sunday school, and the pastor was the only teacher. The pastor began to preach to an audience of two, his daughter and myself. The trio who are such a help in teaching in Sunday school appeared about noon time. Hshizawa San goes to Inai Sunday afternoons faithfully. The other two teach in Sunday school with all their might. I think Miss Oikana is a fine teacher.

The doctor's wife, Mrs. Sasahi, comes quite regularly. So does her niece. I often call on Mrs. Sasaki. Mrs. Ohto (the mother of our first convert) has not been coming out much, for she is not very strong.

At Takayashiki Mrs. K. is not staying there any more, so we do not have the Friday children's meeting with her, but Mr. Irokawa keeps up the work somewhere in the village. She found it too hard to support herself alone, and her sister needs her help. It was her 49th year in the village, coming as a bride at eighteen; and now she is sixty-six. It must have been hard for her to leave.

I enjoy the Ladies' Home Journals very much. Did you read that story about Japan? I wonder what will become of that girl. "Zula."

WINCHESTER, VA., S. S.

We have been greatly encouraged in our Sunday school work during the last two months. Just before the holidays we had a membership of 187. Now our school numbers 249.

With this increased membership we have increased interest in quite a number of ways. Some of our new members are great workers. One went out in our town and got sixteen boys, and organized a class. This made the other teachers feel as though they must get to work, and so there has been new members in each class.

Some of our new scholars are good singers, so our Sunday school choir has been benefited too.

Then we have quite a number of those dependable folks who do not miss a Sunday school service.

We have a bright and interested atmosphere in our school, and we feel that all our scholars are benefited by our work and interested in it.

We have organized two teacher training classes this last month. One of the teachers of our Sunday school with our pastor, Rev. W. T. Walters as teacher, the other consisting of members of our school who are preparing to teach.

My Dear Children:—

We are very grateful for such a nice report this week; but sorry to see our Sunday schools make such poor showing. Last Sunday was a very disagreeable day, and the attendance was small in many of the schools. We shall hope to hear from more of our schools in next report. In fact, we are endeavoring to enlist all of our schools in the Monthly Offering. Each pastor and superintendent has been written a personal letter asking that their schools give a regular definite amount each month that we may be able to feed our children and pay our bills, too. In the past we have had to choose between two evils: Let the children go hungry, or run the institution in debt. We thought it cruel and sinful not to feed the children that had been committed to our care, so we have continued to buy when we had nothing with which to pay, save our credit. It is now for the good people of our churches and Sunday schools to say whether the institution's credit shall be maintained or not. Many of our pastors and superintendents say that our credit must be maintained and the children fed and clothed and educated, while others are totally indifferent. I suppose that they have no objection to feeding and clothing and educating our orphan children, provided they are not asked to help. But we do not think that is quite fair to themselves or the cause. For in later years when our boys and girls go out cultured and refined and educated and enter upon life work, we shall feel proud of them; and many will rejoice on account of the part they had in their rearing; while others will be like the old man who was upstairs while his wife killed the bear. They may say, "See what we have done," but they can't feel good, knowing that they have done nothing.

My sympathy goes out for the great number of schools that are slumbering away upstairs while a few of our bravest and most faithful ones are doing their best to drive away the wolf from before our Orphanage door and give the children a chance to become useful men and women. Now, if any of these will hear my voice, let them harden not their hearts, but come down out of the loft and let us reason together. We shall be very considerate. If your school is small and not very strong financially, we will only ask you to join in with a hundred other similar schools and contribute just a dollar per month. Now is not this a very modest and reasonable request? But if you are ashamed to do this little, we will allow you to unite with fifty schools and give two dollars each per month. And if your school is larger and able to do so, we shall be glad to have you unite with ten other schools and give five dollars each per month; and then we want five of our largest and most liberal schools to unite in giving ten dollars each per month. If you will just do this, how grateful we will be, and how it will encourage the work. Let us hear from you concerning the matter.

Salmon, Idaho—Dr. W. C. Whitwell of this city, former candidate for Governor of this state, has let it become known that his remarkable experience in reducing 25 pounds in three months was due neither to dieting, medicine nor exercises. We say that a simple, invisible device weighing less than an ounce did it. HOW SHIVAR MINERAL WATER RELIEVES RHEUMATISM

According to the standard medical books, Rheumatism is not a germ disease but is the result of imperfect nutrition. The food is either imperfectly digested or imperfectly assimilated. Poisons accumulate and these irritate and inflame the delicate linings of the joints, the heart and other organs. To cure Rheumatism it is therefore necessary to stop the formation of these poisons and get rid of those already formed.

The celebrated Shivar Mineral Water acts on the stomach and kidneys. It corrects the digestion and washes out the poisons through the kidneys. This is the opinion of physicians who prescribe it. If you suffer with rheumatism, dyspepsia, indigestion, gall stones, disease of the kidneys, bladder or liver, uric acid poisoning, or any condition due to impure blood, read the following letter, then sign it, enclose the amount and mail it. Only two out of a hundred on the average, report no benefit.

Box 9M, Shelton, S. C.

Gentlemen:
I accept your guarantee offer and enclose herewith two dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Water. I agree to give it a fair trial, in accordance with instructions contained in booklet you will send, and if it fails to benefit my case you agree to refund the price in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns which I agree to return promptly.

ONE OF THE MANY MOTHER'S JOYS HAS SAVED

Burlington, N. C., Nov. 19, 1913.
Goose Greese Company,
Greensboro, N. C.

Gentlemen:
I am writing this letter because I think it is due you and for the sake of Humanity. I am not a man that wants my name paraded in newspapers. Coming from Baltimore on a sleeper my little girl took a severe cold and cough. For three weeks the doctors came to see her three times a day. Instead of getting better she grew worse. On the night of which I am speaking the doctors left me some emergency medicine and told me if the cough did not stop give her this. We gave it to her but with no benefit whatever that we could see. We had used other croup salves and they did not seem to do much good. My wife advised me to get a jar of Mother's Joy. I did so, using a half jar on my child's throat and chest and in fifteen minutes she stopped coughing and did not cough another time during the night. Now I am not a believer in Patent Medicines, but I think that you have the best Croup and Pneumonia salve made.

Yours very truly,

Is Any Upright Piano Worth $500

YES! But only if it sells for $500. Not if it is quoted at $500 and sold for $238. There are many pianos sold at $500 and over.

Weaver Pianos

are sold at from $400 for a fine upright up to $850 for the finest Grand because discriminating buyers know they are worth those prices. The fact that those who know most about pianos buy the most expensive instruments is the best proof we know of that cheap pianos are not satisfactory to the best musicians.

CHURCH NEWS

Bethel

I filled my appointment at Bethel the first Sunday in January and found a good congregation present.

I have been preaching to these people continuously for more than twenty-six years without a break. It is a joy and a pleasure to serve such a people.

The other denominations of the community have always joined us in our work for Christ and His kingdom.

This church is in a good working condition.

Chapel Hill

Chapel Hill Christian church is doing a good work.

We have a good Sunday school with an enrollment of sixty pupils. A Baraca class has recently been organized with a membership of fourteen enthusiastic young men.

The church has since conference purchased and installed a heating plant at a cost of $198.00. We have paid on our church debt $584.00. We have received one member since conference and are expecting others to join soon.

The Ladies' Aid Society is doing a good work. Miss Alice True, our returned missionary from Japan was with us in November and by her words of inspiration and encouragement, we have been greatly helped and encouraged to go forward in the Master's cause both at home and abroad.

Damascus

Owing to unfavorable weather and bad roads I was not able to fill my two last appointments on Sunday.

This church has an evergreen Sunday school and an interesting Baraca Class. Damascus is in a good working condition and her members have always been loyal to the cause of Christ.

O'Kelley's Chapel

I have filled all my appointments here since conference. Owing to unfavorable weather the congregations have been small. The Sunday school has suspended for the winter months. They are planning to re-open the first of April. This is the church where I preached my first sermon. I have always felt an abiding interest in this historic church and her good people. May all these churches do a great work for the Master this year in my prayer.

To see the face of a pretty girl made unattractive by scaly patches or ugly pimples. We would pity such, were it not so easy to rid the skin of these disorders. CALOMEL WHEN BILIOUS? NO! STOP! MAKES YOU SICK AND SALIVATES

"Dodson's Liver Tone" Is Harmless To Clean Your Sluggish Liver and Bowels.

Ugh! Calomel makes you sick. It's horrible! Take a dose of the dangerous drug tonight and tomorrow you may lose a day's work. Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel, when it comes into contact with sour bile crashes into it, breaking it up. This is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you are sluggish and "all knocked out," if your liver is torpid and bowels constipated or you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, if breath is bad or stomach sour, just try a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone tonight on my guarantee.

Here's my guarantee—Go to any drug store and get a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous I want you to go back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying the sale of calomel because it is real liver medicine; entirely vegetable, therefore it can not salivate or make you sick.

I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your bowels of that sour bile and constipated waste which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable. I guarantee that a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone will keep your entire family feeling fine for months. Give it to your children. It is harmless; doesn't gripe and they like its pleasant taste.

OUR DEAD

Wilkins

On December 22, 1914, I was called to Cypress Chapel to conduct the funeral services of a dear devoted mother, the beloved wife of Bro. Samuel Wilkins, who departed this life on December 21st, aged 63 years and 22 days. For some time she was a great sufferer, though she bore her sufferings with much Christian fortitude, being fully resigned to her Lord's will. She was one Cypress Chapel's most faithful members and will be greatly missed both in her home, community and church, but our loss has been her eternal gain. She was true in all her relationships of life. She was devoted to her dear home and church. She was a precious mother. I shall never forget the day when I conducted the funeral services of her elder son, Sidney Wilkins, who was one of Elon's bright students. Mother Wilkins bending over the coffin taking her last look at her dear son, saying, "Good bye Sidney, I shall be with you." She seemed to be radiant with the, "I know I shall meet you in the sweet by and by." Mother Wilkins could have said as Paul did, "For me to live is Christ and to die is gain." The life of this dear mother teaches us that it was all for Christ and that her death has been great gain to her, the good lives of her dear children and grand children teach us the great truth and object of her life was for the glorifying of Him who loved her and who gave Himself for her.

She leaves a devoted husband, two sons, Mr. W. L. Wilkins of Isle of Wight Co., Va., Mr. E. L. Wilkins of Nansemond Co., Va., two daughters, Mrs. Jesse M. Brinkley and Mrs. C. C. Harrell of Cypress Chapel, Nansemond Co., Va., eleven grand children living, four brothers and many friends. Her sons, sons-in-law and brothers acted as pall bearers, and her remains were laid to rest in the church cemetery. The Lord bless and comfort the dear bereaved ones. H. H. B.

Cheek

Mabel Clio Cheek, infant daughter of Bro. S. B. and Sister Berta Cheek, was born November 29th, 1914, died January 16th, 1915. She is survived by her father, mother two brothers and two sisters. Funeral services conducted by the writer, and interment in Lakewood cemetery. May God comfort the bereaved and help them to meet the babe in the spirit world. W. L. WELLS.

Blanchard

Near Big Falls, Alamance Co., N. C., January 21st, 1915, Mrs. Sarah C. Blanchard died at the home of her late husband, Wm. A. Blanchard, at the age of 71 years 11 months and 5 days. Five sons and two daughters survive her, two sons and two daughters had preceded her to the spirit world. Sister Blanchard had been a worthy member of Union Christian church since early life, and was fully resigned to death. A mother in Israel has fallen on sleep. May God comfort the bereaved family. Funeral at the home and interment at Union church conducted by her pastor. J. W. HOLT.

Lashley

A deep gloom was cast over our community December 3rd, 1914, when our heavenly Father removed from our midst Miss Jane Lashley, aged 77 years. She was a member of New Providence church for more than 40 years. She was always ready to help in the financial needs of the church, and was a woman of good influence in her community. For some years prior to her death she had made her home with her grand-daughter at Haw River. She leaves a good testimony, and the example of a consecrated Christian life. Therefore be it resolved, first—That we bow in humble submission to our Father's will, knowing that He doeth all things well.

Second—That in the death of Sister Lashley the church has lost one of its oldest members, the community a kind friend, and the family a faithful mother and sister.

Third—That we extend our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family and friends, pointing them to the gentle guidance of the heavenly Father.

Funeral at the Methodist Protestant church December 5th.

Powell

On September 5th, 1914 Willie Lee Powell, son of Deacon J. W. Powell, of Antioch church, Isle of Wight Co., Va., was called from his labor and sufferings here to his reward in the glorified home, aged 28 years 1 month and 28 days. He was a good young man and all who knew him loved him on account of his many amiable qualities. He was truly a great sufferer. One among the greatest I have ever met, but God was with him and gave him grace sufficient to sustain him. He was at the hospital in Richmond and also in Suffolk, Va., and was operated on several times and at last they took out his lower jaw-bone on one side, but instead of its doing good, many thought, it did him harm. He said to the writer of this, "I hoped that I might live and be a comfort to my father and mother in their old age, but they have operated on me until I am ruined and I want to die, I am ready to go." It was heart-rending to hear him try to talk. He was one of Elon's bright students and looked forward with bright anticipation of making a man of himself. But now, his hopes and expectations of future good and of pleasure lie with him in the grave and sorrow sits brooding over the sad scene with tears and lamentations. But He who doeth all things well, knoweth what is best. He was a member of the fraternal order of the Maccabees and Woodmen of the World, who followed the remains to their last resting place. He made a profession of religion while in school at Elon College and died a triumphant death in Jesus. His funeral services were conducted at Antioch church by the pastor and his remains were laid to rest in the church cemetery. His dear parents, brothers and sisters have had the deepest sympathy of their many friends. His sufferings are over and our loss has been his eternal gain. H. H. BUTLER.

STOVEPIPES

See that it enters the chimney direct, with collar on pipe at entrance of the flue. All stovepipes should be well supported, and joints should be riveted. The use of long stovepipes should be avoided. Stovepipes passing through partitions, floors, cocklofts, and roofs are charged for, even when carefully arranged. When it is necessary to thus install them, the pipe should be kept at least 6 inches from woodwork, either by clear space or a metal ventilator.

God's Daughter

A proverb reads: Truth is God's daughter. And men will admit her to be the fairest and altogether lovely. Yet daughters, fair and gracious and amiable, must, if they are to win favor and keep it, be modest, considerate, discreet. All the rich perfumes of Truth will not obscure the unsavory odors of indiscretion. Error and Evil may adorn themselves in loud and boisterous apparel, but the charm and glory of Truth is its modesty and discretion. Thus in the Word of God truth is spoken of as existing "in the heart," in the "inward parts," and is never referred to as a sword to brandish but as a shield to put on and to wear. And men are to "speak the truth not in envy, jealousy or hatred, but always in love. If this teaching were obscured there would be fewer scandals and not so many broken hearts in the world. "Truth shall be thy shield." (Ps. 91:4.)

What Is Education?

A very old and much answered question. But we shall have to find something different. Education is what the Latin of the word signifies, namely, to lead out. But a smart writer on the subject has laughed that definition into arid nothingness. "There may be much in a boy that ought not to be led out; and many a mother feels that there are some things in her boy which ought to be spanked out, and there have been successful mothers who did impressive work in that way. The Germans are the scholars of the world, and just now several other nations think that there is much in the Germans which ought to be shot out, and they are making it a daily bloody business to shoot it out." So we shall have to revise our definition and our conception of education. Instead of a leading out it may come to indicate a driving in—putting into the spirit of the boy, the girl, that which they have not by nature and which they must have by grace, by adoption, by regeneration. Christ saw and said this when He uttered the words: "Ye must be born again." There is that without, that which is new and from above, that must come into the mind and heart and soul before there is true and genuine and real education. Time will come when a person without a working living knowledge of Christ and the Bible will no more be considered "educated" than is a person now considered who does not know science and Latin and literature.

Lent to the Lord

It was neither by chance nor accident that the Lord called Samuel who "did not yet know Jehovah." The boy's mother knew Jehovah and had with all due service and ceremony consecrated him to the Lord. God is no respecter of persons, and if every mother's son was as carefully and consistently given to the Lord and reared, in his tender years, for the Lord as was Samuel, not only would the temple of the Lord have faithful keepers, but would always be filled with eager and devout worshippers. But how many mothers can solemnly declare with Hannah: "I have lent him to the Lord; as long as he liveth he shall be lent to the Lord." (1 Sam. 1:28.)

Tomorrow

If we could live today in preparation for tomorrow, not in dread of it, how beautiful and how valorous life would be. The awful and the cruel stroke that did not fall today, nor yesterday, nor in all the past of yesterdays—that will fall tomorrow, fear makes us believe; and so we stand aghast before tomorrow's grim form and fate. The old Greek dramatist twenty centuries ago wrote out in three lines the secret of much of the world's misery and nervous break-down: "Methinks it is the morrow, day by day, that crows us, and the coming thing always greater than things today or yesterday." That which is to come is always greater, heavier, more biting and bending than that which is or has been. In such spirit the hand that should be stout and steady for today's task and stroke is all shaken and uncertain because of fear for tomorrow. "The fear of man bringeth a snare; but whose putteth his trust in the Lord shall be safe." (Prov. 29:25.)

An Unholy Legacy

Europe's unpaid war debt, before her present conflict began last July, was nearly thirty billions of dollars. The field expenses alone of the present conflict have been and are fifty million dollars a day, totaling nine thousand million from the beginning of hostilities up to February 1. Six months more of war will add, according to best estimates, seventeen thousand million to a war debt already past comprehension and beyond any the world has ever witnessed. The blood and treasure required for this struggle are not only appalling, but bewildering to mind and sickening to heart to contemplate. Europe is borrowing from remote generations and burdening her unborn sons and daughters with a load too heavy and too grievous to be borne by the guilty, much less the innocent. Grim visaged war is doing its worst in our day. Is the Spirit of Evil become desperate and furious, and is this the last great stand of grim visaged War? "And he will rebuke strong nations afar off; neither shall they learn war any more." (Mic. 4.3.)

Swifter Than Time

One man spoke to another on January 26, and though 3,600 miles lay between them, the answer was given three hours before the question was asked. It was 4:30 p. m. in

New York when Alexander Graham Bell, the inventor of the telephone, called his friend and associate, Thomas A. Watson, in San Francisco, and the latter answered at 1:30 p. m. the same day. Though the distance between the two cities named is so great that there is a difference in actual time of three hours, the telephone now completed which belts this continent, brings the speakers within one-fifteenth of a second of each other. The human voice traveling through the air would require four hours, could it go so far, to cover the distance that the voice through the phone covers in the small fractional part of a second. The telephone is only forty years old, and the men who invented it and established the first one of two miles in length (from Boston to Cambridge) are still living, and were the first ones to speak over the incredible space of 3,600 miles. Many a heart broken and sorrowing one has felt that God was far, far away and would not hear, only to realize that ere the heart had spoken its burden the Father's ear had heard and the response of pity and forgiveness had already come. Thus the prophet declared: "And it shall come to pass that before they call, I will answer; and while they are yet speaking, I will hear." (Isa. 65:24.)

True to His Faith

An old man who had spent his long life on a cobbler's stool died in Detroit recently and left a legacy of $35,000. Having read the parable of the talents to the effect that the Master would require in the end that which had been entrusted to one, and having interpreted the parable literally, the estate was willed to be kept intact "till the second coming of Christ." After due trial by jury, the Courts have sustained the will, and the fortune is to abide as the old man willed it. There are those who can put nothing but a material interpretation upon all they read or hear or experience. They are true to their faith, but erroneous in interpretation. We live in a world of matter, but its underlying and pervading principle is that of mind, intellect, spirit. "God is a Spirit; and they that worship him must worship him in spirit." (John 4:24.)

—Our good brother, J. W. Carlton, Richmond, Va., in renewing his subscription, says, with scores of others: "Am so sorry you had to reduce the size of THE CHRISTIAN SUN and trust you will soon be able to carry it back to its former size." And that expresses the universal wish so far as we have been able to learn it. Altogether, beloved, for a larger, brighter and better CHRISTIAN SUN.

—Sunday, February 14, is the day selected for the celebration by the churches of one hundred years of peace between England and the United States. Our whole country has just right to be grateful for the peace it now enjoys and for the feeling of amity between herself and the mother country.

—Rev. S. B. Klapp is justly enthusiastic over the work at Danville. The brethren there expect to begin work on their new house of worship at an early date.

EDITORIAL

THE SUN'S PRESENT SIZE

THE CHRISTIAN SUN was reduced to its present size last week not from choice, but from necessity. The paper has no subsidy upon which to fall in a time like this. That is all. The printing trade has been dull for some months. Other trades have to some extent. Usually when people begin to economize they cut off their subscription to their church paper and their contribution to church and charity first. It ought not to be so; but it is.

THE SUN, depending upon its subscription list and small advertising account for maintenance, was not receiving a revenue sufficient to support it. There were no grounds for choice. The profits from other printing by the house were not sufficient to overbalance the loss on THE SUN, and so it was to reduce cost now, or allow finally expense to consume the whole output. The latter was not to be thought of.

The many letters of deep regret that the paper had to go to smaller size for the present are greatly appreciated. All we ask is co-operation of the brotherhood, and the interest in the paper that should have prevailed all the while. If our pastors and friends will get busy and help us overcome the loss and turn the tide the other way, as can be easily done if all will pull together, there is no reason why THE SUN should not be back at no far distant date to its accustomed and (by us) greatly desired size and appearance.

There is nothing that advertises a church to its own constituency and to the world as does the church paper. We are not going to get any good satisfaction or great profit to ourselves as a church from the present size of the paper.

Come with us, beloved friends, in our endeavor to increase by one thousand our present subscription list and put the paper back to a size and appearance that will meet the demands of our pardonable pride and church prestige.

UNDERTAKING FOR OTHERS

One cannot tell what will be the creed, dogma, form, name or ceremonies of the church of the future; but one thing can be definitely foretold of it, namely, it will insist on greater undertakings for others. The church now, local or denominational, which spends the major portion of its time, energy, and means upon its own maintenance has a hard time maintaining itself and gets precious little satisfaction out of the performance. Many churches have thought so much about maintaining themselves, and so very little about helping maintain others that self-support is a problem and a burden. A church, as well as an individual, must die to itself in order to live the larger and better life. "Verily, verily, I say unto you, except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone; but if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit." (John 12:24). This has reference to a church as well as to a person or a grain of wheat. Or more to the point, "Whosoever will save his life shall lose it; but whosoever will lose his life for my sake, the same shall save it." (Luke 9:24). Too many churches fear that if they seek to give their life, substance, income to others they will have all too little left for themselves.

The church of the future will not be of that character. It will give itself more largely to others. The writer knows of one local church whose membership has now reached 2,197.

During the year just closed that local church raised for all purposes $93,324. The church has had wonderful growth and development. Does one enquire why? Last year of all this vast sum flowing into its treasury it only spent $15,889 on its own support—less than one fifth. It spent for missions $19,502; for Christian education (for free distribution) $16,365. One is not surprised that a church with such liberality as that grows by leaps and bounds.

We of the Christian church need to lift up our eyes and look away unto the hills. We haven't the faith to undertake great things. We have the resources, we have the members, we have the means. We need a larger vision, a profounder and a broader faith.

When we become interested in others, their welfare, their uplift, their salvation, then God becomes interested in us. When the church shall have due regard for the salvation of others God will have due regard for the progress and development of the church. If we would receive God we must undertake great things for God.

FORWARD

The Special Mission and Educational Committee named by the Mission and Educational Boards of the Christian Church met in Dayton, Ohio, last week. The meeting was important. The matter of undertaking great things for the Kingdom was discussed. The decision was reached that there should be a special movement for missions amongst us, and that a call for $250,000 should be issued and the claims pressed for raising this amount.

President W. A. Harper of Elon College was at the meeting as a member of the special committee. Others equally interested in the great topic of missions and education were present. It is felt that this is the beginning of a real and a great movement amongst us for larger things in missions.

The definite plans for carrying forward the campaign were not all worked out, but sufficient was done to guarantee the movement and give it permanence and a safe footing.

The missionary spirit is growing and deepening and it is safe to say that the day is not far distant when the Christians will become a really missionary people.

To be true to God and our high calling we must be missionary.

GREED AND GRATITUDE

Americans are the best fed, best clothed, best housed and best paid people on earth. This is why we kick and wail and complain when "hard times" come. An Indian member of the British Parliament estimates that the average income per capita in India is seven dollars a year. This may be under the mark, but the most liberal estimate is not over $10 per year per capita. When a day laborer can get work at all he receives less than ten cents per day. The average income in wide districts for those who labor is five to six cents per day. I quote this sentence from a well known writer: "Forty million people in India lie down hungry every night upon a mud floor, who have had only one meal, or at most two scanty meals, during the day. Men, women and children all work together in the fields; yet only 47 per cent. of the entire population have work, while 50 per cent. are dependent."

In contrast with such conditions, how grateful Americans should be both for the material blessings, and also most of all for our religion of Christianity which has given us the best citizenship and the most progressive civilization on earth. Conditions in India are Buddha's contribution to the world: those in America are Lord Christ's. We of America need to cultivate more the grace of gratitude.

NOTES AND PERSONALS

—Prof. N. F. Brannock and Dr. S. A. Ware, two of our most trusted and worthy members, were last Sunday ordained to the office of deacon in the local church at Elon. These brethren will prove efficient and capable officials.

—"I love THE CHRISTIAN SUN. Have been a reader of it all my life, since I could read anything. THE SUN has been shining in our home all my life. My sainted father, C. H. Winfree, used to write some for THE SUN when Dr. W. B. Wellons published it at Suffolk, and I enjoy reading it yet. I do not think that a member of the church who does not take and read his paper can be the member he ought to be. I wish for THE SUN all success. It is a pleasure to me to renew my subscription always. J. W. Winfree, Virgilina, Va.," Thank you, dear brother.

—Deacon L. H. Whitley, Isle of Wight C. H., Va.: "My subscription is not quite due yet, but is enclosed for another year. I am so very sorry that our church paper had to be reduced in size. Will not the subscribers to the dear CHRISTIAN SUN who are in arrears come to the rescue now and put the paper back to its former size?" If those who are in arrears, a thousand of them, will send in their renewals, and our good brethren will help us add a thousand new subscribers, rest assured that our hearts will rejoice and the paper shall go back to its former size and better self and size. We can do it if all will pull together.

—Bro. Geo. McCullers and his committee have a very important notice in this issue. "There is no more pressing need in our church and Sunday school service today than that of better music. If Bro. McCullers and his co-workers can in any measure add to the interest in and efficiency of the music in the sanctuary they certainly will have labored to good effect. We have been giving too much attention to the trained voices of the few and too little attention to training the lungs and voices of the many. A revival of music, real soul music, at public worship is much needed in our time, and would count mightily for making worship more wholesome and effectual. All success to the Musical Institute at Wentworth.

—In the death of Sister J. P. Huffman at her home here last Friday Elon College loses a noble character and a faithful friend. She was active in everything good in the college community—Sunday school, Ladies' Aid, Missionary Society, and all benevolences. She leaves a devoted husband and four children to mourn her untimely death. She was yet in middle life, but her zeal and energy were too much for her strength, and she wore herself out in loving endeavor for others. The funeral exercises conducted Saturday afternoon in the College chapel was very largely attended, filling to overflowing the large auditorium. The floral designs were exceedingly elaborate and beautiful. A good and beloved woman has gone to her rich reward and a community is poorer and mourns for her going. Heaven's blessings be upon the bereaved family.

THE EDITOR'S EASY CHAIR

I have been most enjoyably passing a very cloudy and rainy day by imagining myself in a Sunrise Land. Nor did I find it so very difficult to do so, for "Sunrise in the Sunrise Kingdom" by Dr. John H. DeForest, seems to carry with it such a potent charm as to transport one away from the cold, dull gray of our wintry sky, and land us on the islands of Nippon with the little brown men and women who are emerging at such an astonishing rate from the darkest ignorance, and whose land is becoming indeed and in truth a "Sunrise Land."

I feel that I am much better acquainted with these islands, for I have learned many astonishing things about them from this charming and interesting book. Did you know that the Island Kingdom of Japan was over two thousand miles long while it does not average a hundred miles in width? Did you know that Japan was still growing, that it is a very young land, as lands go? Did you know that, wonder of wonders, in this Wonder Land, some of the rivers are actually above the land, so that the railroads can run under them without changing their level? Did you know that the spoken language, the written language and the printed language were three totally distinct languages with three different forms, so that, even though you could read the language, you could not speak or write it, or if you could write it, you could not speak or read, or if you spoke it fluently, you would be as far as ever from being able to express your thoughts on paper, or read the thoughts of others? Did you know you could build a house in Japan for about $150.00? Did you know—but there, what's the use? I am sure that even if you knew all these things you will find hundreds of other things you did not know, and which you will be glad to learn, in this one of the Foreign Mission Study Books.

You will be interested in the "Five Relations" of Japan, and I am sure you will agree with the author before you are through that there is much that is good in the ancient forms of religion and life, much that ought to be incorporated into their new life and religion, and not cast aside as useless. I think, too, that you will agree that the Japanese are not simply clever imitators, but that they "adopt, adopt, and then become adept."

Perhaps, as much as anything, you will be interested in this book because the author of it resides in Sendai, where so much of our own mission work is being accomplished, and you can realize as you read that the eyes of Dr. DeForest look out on the selfsame sights as do our own beloved missionaries and their native helpers.

We shall know more of their opportunities, needs, difficulties and aspirations when we have finished "Sunrise in the Sunrise Kingdom."

USHERS: Messrs. Richard Klagus, John Covington, Edgar Harrell, Arthur Pearce, Harry Barnes, Tavis Richards, Phillip Crocker, Willie Brinkley, Marshall Andrews, Jack Nurney, Ryland Luke, Jack Darden, George Neblett, Flody Turner, Harry Covington.

A birthday offering was taken amounting to $19.68. Some features of the work may be mentioned as reasons for the formation of Christian Endeavor Societies in churches that have not tried this work for young people.

The program was the work of the society without help from the pastor; that, you see, is a real preparation for doing church work, as it cultivates the ability to plan and execute plans. In the second place, it develops musical talent of the young people in the congregation. The singing in this meeting would have made many choirs blush. The recitations were well selected, well rendered, and very touching lessons were thereby taught.

Mr. W. G. Farrar made a nice welcome address and read the Bible lesson for the day.

Mrs. C. B. Duke, the President, presided and called out the numbers; and Mr. Job. R. Saunders, a young lawyer, made a fine address.

Another feature deserves mention. Fifteen boys acted as ushers and took the offering. It looked very sweet to see those young boys doing this work like little Christian gentlemen.

I think this society has about one hundred members and they meet one hour before preaching every Sunday night.

If you have not tried a Christian Endeavor Society in your church, try it. This society was organized twenty-three years ago.

People tell me the world is growing worse, but they have not convinced me that it is so. It seems to me the "good is growing better" and the "bad is growing worse," and that the "good is making gain." My conclusion is that the world is growing better year by year.

My good friend, the Rev. Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Editor of the "Christian Sun," seems determined to outdo me in every line of experience, and his last performance is with a mule named "Kate." I had an experience once with a mule named "Nell" and I have edified learned audiences with that story in days long past. I haven't space to tell it here. And now Dr. Atkinson lies upon his back and writes editorials of great beauty and strength and tells how "Kate" kicked him up against a fence; and then adorns the story by telling how sweet he feels toward the mule and what his future relation to mules will be. I will say one thing for the Doctor that, so far as I know, this mule, "Kate" by name, is the first force that has ever knocked him out. He has had, no doubt, a good many knocks in life; but "Kate" has outclassed all the knockers with her heels. The Doctor has worked hard and written brilliantly to outclass me as a fisherman, and now he has allowed himself to be kicked by a mule to outclass me in a mule story. I wonder what thrilling experience he will report next!

W. W. STALEY.

ELON COLLEGE NOTES

The College and community were saddened on Friday last to learn that early that morning one of Elon's most estimable citizens, Mrs. J. P. Huffman, had been called into the great beyond. The funeral was conducted on Saturday afternoon by her pastor, Rev. Mr. Cox, of the German Reformed Church of Burlington, assisted by President J. D. Andrew of Catawba College and Dr. J. O. Atkinson. The floral offering was beautiful and the sympathy for the bereaved ones large and genuine.

Mr. H. S. Smith was awarded the Peace Contest medal on last Friday night in the local contest. That means that he will represent Elon in the State Contest on February 19 at Raleigh. His alternate is Mr. J. L. Crumpton.

Dr. J. O. Atkinson had so far recovered from the mule collision as to be able on last Thursday evening to give a lecture in the regular Faculty series for the year. His subject was Macbeth, the Man. It produced a profound impression, as all Dr. Atkinson's public discourses do.

Great sympathy is felt here for Dr. W. C. Wicker, one of the hardest workers among the Faculty, in the affliction that has befallen him in a serious throat trouble. He has had to arrange for his ministerial work by supplies and his College class work has been reduced to a minimum, looking to his entire relief from it at an early date. His many friends will remember him in prayer in this hour of affliction.

There is great satisfaction here that Dr. W. W. Staley is soon to give to the public in book form his matchless addresses delivered at the Chautauqua last Summer. The book is to be entitled, The Pastor and His Work, and it will sell at 50 cents the copy. The Christian Publishing Association, Dayton, Ohio, is to bring out the volume for him.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Long, Haw River, N. C., visited Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Riddle here Sunday.

Mr. J. E. Dixon, Winston-Salem, N. C., visited his brother, a student here, on last Saturday and Sunday.

Word has reached here that Prof. R. A. Campbell, now residing in Dayton, Ohio, is maintaining his old-time reputation as a religious and musical leader in the great meeting now in progress in that city. Good words are also spoken of Mr. F. F. Myrick, now engaged in Y. M. C. A. work in Spartanburg, S. C., and of Prof. T. H. Franks, Asheville, N. C., engaged in education. All Elon men are hard workers and the beauty of it is that they always throw the weight of their influence on the side of righteousness and the God of righteousness. The Elon spirit is producing the Elon type.

Friends are still at work for the College, two new students registering during the past few days, and another on the way from Porto Rico. The Four Hundred mark has been passed for the year, for which let us give thanks and press on.

Several citizens in the village have recently installed electric lights in their homes, the College plant supplying the current.

The Executive Board of the College Trustees recently made handsome provision for a physical laboratory, greatly improving it and making it strictly modern.

Mr. W. W. Elder, now engaged in Y. M. C. A. work in Brooklyn, N. Y., is soon to go to San Francisco to engage in similar work. He is popular with the enlisted men and has had large success in leading them to the higher life.

VALLEY LETTER

As I attempt to write a letter under the above caption today I find my mind wandering down about Norfolk. The reader may not understand so I will hasten to explain. Some where in that city today, and perhaps about this hour my beloved friend, former neighbor and schoolmate, Rev. M. L. Bryant, is being laid to rest in the silent tomb. I cannot express my feelings as I think of that sad occasion. He and I were born in the same county, spent most of our boyhood days only about fifteen miles apart, grew up within the bounds of the same Conference, the Va. Valley Central. We both chose the ministry in early manhood and entered Elon College in the fall of 1899. During much of our college course we roomed together, and were always the best of friends. He graduated in 1905, I in 1906. Since his graduation I have seen but little of him as he assumed pastoral work in the Eastern Va. Conference, and I in our home Conference. The last time we were together was during his last visit to his parental home last August. Although his health was poor then, and I had some fears as to the outcome, it is hard to realize that my good friend is no more. Knowing him so intimately as I did I have no hesitancy in saying he possessed a noble Christian character. His success as a minister is well known by all readers of THE CHRISTIAN SUN. It seems such a pity he could not have been spared for many years of usefulness in the active ministry, for which he seemed so eminently qualified, but God knoweth best. It is sometimes hard to say from the heart "They will be done" when it seems so reasonable to us that our own will would be better, but we must learn the truth that "God moves in a mysterious way his wonders to perform." Brother Bryant (it seems more natural for me to call him Luther) was a member of the New Hope church near his old home, of which church I have the honor at this time to be pastor. His father and two brothers are also members of the same church. Well, Luther is happier and better off in the glory land we are sure, but it is hard for us to give him up, and hard to fill his place when men of his type are so sadly needed. Some of his home folks are in Norfolk today to attend the funeral. He has many friends in the home neighborhood who deeply lament his untimely death. My deepest sympathy goes out to his noble young wife who so faithfully ministered to him in his affliction. May the Lord comfort and bless her.

We are having plenty of rain, sleet, and snow here this winter, and in consequence church work has been much hindered. I have filled most of my appointments, but in many cases have been met by very small congregations. I tried to hold a revival meeting at Mayland, but bad weather and muddy roads finally forced me to give it up. I shall wait until spring, and will then try to hold meetings at Mayland and Dry Run. I have recently assumed pastoral care of Bethel, Mt. Olivet (R.), and Whistler's Chapel, but have not promised to hold meetings for them, as I now have ten churches and have to preach for some of them during the week, and am afraid I can hardly hold so many revival meetings. We are trying to do our best that the cause of Christ and the church may not suffer in our hands.

NANSEMOND NOTES

Weather conditions have made it difficult to maintain normal work in the country churches during this winter. Nearly all the Sunday schools in my churches had special exercises during Christmas week. The writer was remembered by special gifts from the Berea and Oakland schools. The Ladies Aid Society of the Hobson church recently sent us a generous pounding, consisting of numerous good things to eat. We are very grateful for this generous spirit on the part of this loyal Society. In addition to this quite a number of friends have recently remembered us in a substantial way. Among the recent contributions are the following: Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Saunders a load of corn and fresh meat; Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Moore a large ham and fresh meat; Dr. and Mrs. L. L. Eley Irish potatoes; Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Peel potatoes and fresh meat; Mr. and Mrs. Joel E. Harrell, potatoes; Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Griffin, sausage and canned fruit; C. R. Fulgham $5.00; G. B. Robertson, $5.00. We are truly grateful for all these and other expressions of kindness to us by the kind people of my pastorate.

Oakland church is considering the matter of building Sunday school rooms in the near future. The time has come when it is imperative for our Sunday schools to have better equipment for the work. This church has latent possibilities of great development and power if it can be developed. We sincerely hope the day is not far distant when we will have at least eight Sunday school rooms, and a special auditorium for the school.

There is one feature of our Sunday school and church work, especially in the country, that needs more attention than it is now receiving. I refer to the cultivation of a deeper interest in music. I fear the commercialism of our day has robbed us of much of our appreciation of the real value of song in the house of God. It is quite difficult to secure someone in every church who will be a successful leader in this department. Young people who have trained voices and who sing the latest "rag-time," efficiently, prefer the back seats in the church, and are slow to devote their time and talents to the service in the sanctuary. Rag-time can be sung without much preparation, but a classic anthem requires work; and this may be a sufficient explanation of the difficulty in getting people to be willing to devote their time to this part of church work. Rag-time may have a place of usefulness but it does not deepen devotion or strengthen character. Some prophet must arise to call our young people to the house of God and unite their voices in songs which shall appeal to the heart of the world.

I. W. JOHNSON.

GREENSBORO.

With but twelve fair days for the month of January as per report for Greensboro, and with many rainy days and other weather conditions, church attendance has been somewhat hindered. Yet we have been able to keep open door and to make some progress. One member was received into church fellowship, January 10. The Ladies' Aid Society received twenty-two members from their recent canvass. Mrs. S. A. Cavness is president. In the reorganization of the Cradle Roll Department, Mrs. Ella H. Fleming was appointed superintendent, with Mrs. J. R. Foster, Mrs. Eva May Williams, Mrs. C. C. Johnson, Mrs. C. C. Jones, and Mrs. John R. Harder visitors. This department is planning a systematic canvass and special promotion days, to mark the enrollment and attendance of children from the Cradle Roll Department to the main school.

We were pleased to have Dr. Martyn Sumnerbell, President of Palmer Institute, Starkey Seminary, preach for us on January 14. His sermon was much enjoyed. We were indeed glad to have him with us, and to hear his clear, earnest, thoughtful message.

Greensboro is to have a Training School for Sunday School Workers, conducted under the auspices of the Greensboro Sunday School Association. Our brother, John R. Foster, is one of the Council of twenty-four. The Spring term opened February 4, 1915, with a Dean, Secretary-Treasurer, and a faculty of six for departmental work, and in addition to the work of these departments there will be lectures on Biblical, Professional and general subjects. Dr. W. A. Harper is to deliver a course of lectures on Organization and Management.

Rev. S. B. Klapp reports his work at Danville, Va., as very hopeful. They contemplate the erection of a church building at an early date.

P. H. FLEMING.

February 1, 1915.

LINEVILLE, ALA.

My work this year is Dingler's Chapel, McGuire's Chapel, and New Home.

Our work at Dingler's Chapel seems to be in good condition. The brethren seem to be working in harmony and are hopeful for the future. This is our fifth year at this place, and our attachment is very strong for these people.

At McGuire's Chapel everything is moving pleasantly so far as we are able to find out. This is our second year here, and it is pleasant to go to McGuire's Chapel.

Our New Home work was without a pastor last year, and the church has gone down considerably, but still there is remnant who are still faithful and are anxious to do all they can to maintain the church.

Saturday night we received a message to come up to New Home the fifth Sunday, that the people wanted service. I went. They had invited Bro. T. J. Preston, a Baptist minister, to be present. There was a good sister in the community whose brother had been away 53 years, during which time they had not seen each other, and now he was back and wanted to be in a service while here. Bro. Preston preached a very able sermon. There were talks from several others. All together, we had a fine service and a pleasant day. This visiting brother hailed from the great State of Kansas. He told us of his splendid people and fine Sunday schools.

Now, Brother Editor, I may be writing too long a letter, but then our brethren are a little careless of late from this section about writing, so will do all I can to make up for lost time.

J. H. HUGHES.

WINCHESTER, VA.

Our revival services closed Sunday night. Notwithstanding the inclement weather, the attendance was good at all services. The meeting was conducted along the line of personal evangelism. Hundreds of families had personal invitations to attend the services and cottage prayer meetings were conducted in various parts of the city. Much personal work was done by the members of the Personal Workers' Club and an unusually large number of unconverted persons were induced to come to the services. There were twenty seven decisions for Christ and thirteen united with the church. A number of others will join later.

Seventy one have joined our Sunday school since Christmas, and although we have not had a fair Sunday this year, our average attendance for January was 129. Our total enrollment, including the Home Department and the Cradle Roll, is 200.

S. S. LESSON FOR FEBRUARY 14

Samuel Called to Be a Prophet.—
1 Sam. 1:24-28; 3:1-21.

Golden Text.—Speak, Lord, for thy servant heareth.—1 Samuel 3:9.

We as a people become stronger and wider in life by knowing the Bible. During this quarter we have a splendid opportunity to study the Old Testament and become familiar with its eternal truths which we have hardly tasted heretofore.

It is hard (it ought not to be so) to study the Old Testament systematically unless we get some direct, visible benefit or result therefrom. So now as we have for our study this portion of scripture it is an excellent opportunity to create a liking and a love for the Book of books.

Early training had its influence on this child, Samuel. When he was yet young he was led to realize that his mother expected great things of him and no doubt but that realization made him strive for better things and the word of Jehovah.

We can gain a lesson here, for there is not a true mother who does not expect much of her sons and daughters. Are we coming up to the expectations? Has the early training had any influence on our lives? Then there is some one even greater than mother who is expecting much of us. Many times when we have gone astray He has been very merciful to us. He has nursed us closely during our early training. Are we listening for His call? He called Samuel. He calls us.

When the call came Samuel thought it was his earthly master who called. He was obedient to the call. The call came the second and the third time—every time Samuel was obedient to the call. The fourth time he answered as Eli had hidden him: then it was that he realized it was Jehovah who had called him.

Are we obedient to the heavenly call? Are we listening? Are we ready to follow Him when He does call? Are we fit subjects to carry the message? God had confidence in Samuel. Will He have confidence in us? Samuel continued to hold favor in the sight of Jehovah and as he grew the people knew that Jehovah was with Samuel and that he was Jehovah's chosen prophet.

The sons of Eli had not done their duty, and we will find the result in next Sunday's lesson.

C. E. TOPIC FOR FEBRUARY 14

The Solid Foundations of Life.—
1 Cor. 3:9-15.

In conducting this meeting, in order to create interest in the beginning of the meeting, name some local buildings which have been recently built and discuss the material which the foundation was made of. Also, ask some questions as to where the builders placed the foundation, on top of the ground or made excavations; and how deep were the excavations. Of course the depth will vary according to the size of the building.

State how essential it is to have a good solid foundation for the building. Along with this introductory talk name some local men who have been successful in life. Point out wherein their strength was, find the foundation upon which they are standing or were standing as the case may be.

Many, and in fact, nearly all, who have made their lives worth while have had their foundations started at their mother's knee. With pride do they hold this fact in their hearts.

Too, the building should be in keeping with the uniformity of the foundation. A small structure would not appear well on a large, strong and solid foundation. So after we have the foundation we must keep on the alert lest we build too small a character for our Master. Christ is the foundation; and when we accept Him as such then He expects a building which will be to the betterment of your earthly pilgrimage and to His own glory. This is due Him and it is our duty to build a structure that will stand the storms of temptation.

In the first verse of our lesson Paul tells us that we are God's building. In other words God has left His Kingdom to us; given the responsibility of carrying forward the work into our hands.

For Answer in the Meeting

Why do we liken life to a building?

Why should we be careful about our foundations?

What material are we putting into our characters?

What is meant by taking Christ for a foundation?

How does God sometimes test our character?

How may we know if our principles are true?

What do we carry with us beyond death?—C. E. World.

LETTER TO MISS TRUE FROM MISS HAMAGUCHI

Your message from Henderson, N. C., came this morning, written on November 6.

I have been to Kamari twice lately. Perhaps you know there is now no regular worker in the place. But a splendid Sunday school is there.

Nikaido San is a well known Christian there. His granddaughter, about sixteen years old, and her friend, are doing a good work. The last time I was there as many as eighty boys and girls of the village came into Nikaido San's room. The two girls had been drilling the children for Christmas. I was surprised at the girls' ability in teaching the children. I thought it was unusual for girls who had no chance of going outside these villages and being present at other places to do so well. After the children had come up to the front, recited, read or sung, then all were sent away, and the girls practiced some new songs.

Mrs. Nikaido is an invalid. For seventeen or eighteen years she could not leave her bed.

The crop of rice has been unusually good this year all around the country. The price of one "sho" (about three pints) has come down to 13 sen (6½ cents) now. Fruits and vegetables are also dropping in price.

We have electric lights in Wakuya now. I have one put in my place. Good night.

KEN HAMAGUCHI.

A MISSIONARY WORKER CALLED HOME

The intelligence of the death of Miss Bessie Norfleet has carried sorrow to many hearts; and in our missionary work her services will be sorely missed. From the beginning of our work, she has taken an active part, being Treasurer of her local society and Superintendent of the Willing Workers, in which places she served faithfully and acceptably. Last Fall she was elected Corresponding Secretary-Treasurer of the Eastern Virginia Board, and already she had proven her faithfulness and earnestness of much usefulness in this connection.

My Dear Children:
 The present size of THE SUN make it necessary to limit our department to one column each week. I yield my space this time to the letters that were crowded out last week.

Stem, N. C., January 28, 1915.
 Dear Uncle Jim: Here is my dime for January.
 Yours very truly,
 R. P. CRUMPLER, Jr.
 Thank you for your faithful and loyal help.

Houston, Va., Feb, 1, 1915.
 Dear Uncle Jim: Enclosed you will find my dime for February. Will try to be on time this month. I get awful tired staying in the house this cold weather. Aunt Annie's little girl came to see me the third Sunday and spent the night. We had a fine time playing. I like to play with little children very much. With love to you and the children.
 WM. REUBEN HOLT.
 You are on time this month.

Durham, N. C., Jan. 25, 1915.
 Dear Uncle Jim: Enclosed you will find our dues for January.
 Your little friends,
 LIZZIE, WORTH AND
 MINNIE CHANDLER.
 Many thanks.

Ingram, Va., Jan. 25, 1915.
 Dear Uncle Jim: We are just in time with our January dues. Well, I had a nice Christmas. Santa came and brought us lots of good things to eat. We received your pretty card. Many thanks. Mother says she is going to put it in a frame and keep it for us. The ground is covered with ice today so we are staying in the house playing with our toys. We hope your little boys and girls are well. We close now with love.
 Your little nephews,
 J. B. Jr. and SAMUEL BROOKS.

Glad you had a nice Christmas and Santa treated you so well.

Magnolia, Va., Jan. 26, 1915.
 Dear Uncle Jim: As January is almost gone it is time for me to write again. I received the Christmas card you sent me all right, and same was very much appreciated. Hope all at the Orphanage had a nice Christmas. Enclosed find my dues for January.
 Lovingly,
 ANNIE LEE FELTON

Kite, Ga., Jan. 20, 1915.
 Dear Uncle Jim: Here are our dimes for January. One of our New Year's resolutions is to write you every month this year. But time gets away so fast, it seems we are late every time. I have been sick this week but would not stay at home for we get a blue card at school when we miss a day, and I want every one of my cards to be white. We received your post card you sent Christmas and have learned the verse by heart. I have put it where I keep all my things.
 Lovingly,
 OVID & WILLARD STEPHENSON.

109.93
 Hope you may find much pleasure in keeping your New Year resolution.

Greensboro, N. C., Jan. 23, 1915.
 Dear Uncle Jim: Mother says she has forgotten whether I owe for December or not but am sending ten cents for one month. I have had such a good time since Christmas that I've neglected writing but will try to remember next time. I had the best time at a birthday party yesterday. There were three little sisters, ages 3, 7, 7 years that had a party together, their birthdays being the three days in succession. I forgot to tell you that I am six years old. With love to all the cousins.
 LOUISE CAVINESS.

Thank you, Louise. I am glad you are having such good times.

Durham, N. C., Jan. 26, 1915.
 Dear Uncle Jim: Here I come with my first letter and dime for 1915. I hope you and all the children went to Sunday school today. I went though it was a bad day. I am trying to go every Sunday this year. I went every Sunday last year and got a prize, too. The prize was a pearl handled knife. With best wishes for the New Year.
 VESTA MTLHOLLAND.
 Thank you, Vesta, for your letter and dime. You are so faithful now that we are expecting you to make a great and useful man in the church.

Greensboro, N. C., Jan. 23, 1915.
 Dear Uncle Jim: I am a little girl of eight years next birthday. 20th of March. I want to join the children in sending a dime once a month. I hope the children had a good time Christmas and hope you and the children a happy new year.
 Lovingly,
 VIOLA PRTTIGREW.
 We are glad to have you become one of our faithful helpers.

Suffolk, Va., Jan. 25, 1915.
 Dear Uncle Jim: I am having a good time going to school. We had a holiday on the 19th and I was real glad. Did your school have a holiday? Find enclosed my dues for January.
 Lovingly,
 CARRAH LEE PEACE.

I do not believe our school took holiday on the 19th. You are ahead of us.

Wadlev, Ala., Jan. 25, 1915.
 Dear Uncle Jim: We are having some rough weather in Alabama but I am passing the time off very well playing with my Christmas things. Eugene is doing nicely too; he has two little white teeth that you can see every time he laughs. We are proud of your Christmas cards. I played with mine and Eugene chewed his. I get the Orphanage group down very often and look at the children and ask mother lots and lots of questions about them.

We send love to them with our dimes.
 DWIGHT & EUGENE LANKFORD.
 Thank you my dear boys. Glad that you enjoy looking at our family of children. We have received six since that picture was made.

Louisburg, N. C.
 Dear Uncle Jim: Christmas seems a long time ago still I remember the good times I had visiting and of course have the pretty things that Santa, my friends and relatives gave me. I sit in my rocking chair grandma Staley game me and sing Bye Baby to my doll; if I have none I sing to myself. I have a vocabulary of over twenty words but people who are not with me much can't understand me. I am very slow about cutting teeth, walking or standing alone. I took two steps alone last Sunday but I didn't intend to so I went turn loose and try any more at all. I know my mother well enough to know that if I learn to walk she will bother me from my play to wait on her, so there I have told you my secret of my backwardness. We have had so much rain this month that I have had to stay in the house and I am sure looking forward to the summer and sunshine. I enclose my dime and much love.
 FLORA PATRICIA HOLDEN.

I am very sorry that your mother is the cause of your backwardness, but hope you will overcome it all and be able to walk and talk real soon..

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR
 To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ oz. of glycerine. Apply to the hair twice a week until it becomes the desired shade. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Full directions for making and use come in each box of Barbo Compound. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and removes dandruff. It is excellent for falling hair and will make harsh hair soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off.

—Dr. J. E. Rawls of Suffolk in lecturing recently at Myrtle, Va., gave some interesting and vital facts relating to tuberculosis. He claimed that 5,000 persons die annually in Virginia from this one disease. "In the United States 160,000 die each year. Estimating each life to be worth $10,000, it would make the economic loss to Virginia annually to be $50,000,000, while the economic loss to the United States would amount to $1,600,000,000 yearly. Treatment costs United States alone to care for all charitable patients that are victims of consumption it would cost $1,000,000 per year. Comparing the deaths during the Civil War (1861-1865) with those of consumption or tuberculosis of (1904-1907), there were 205,000 killed and died as results of wounds received during these four years of war, while consumption or tuberculosis destroyed 640,000 lives during the above period. Thus tuberculosis is nearly three times as destructive to life as the war was for the same period of time. One out of every seven deaths in the United States is due to tuberculosis."

 pacity. Her heart was in the work and service was a delight. She had just closed her first quarterly report for the year when she was taken sick. We feel that she can ill be spared, but God has called her higher, and we can but bow to His will. The removal of this laborer calls for another to fill her place. Let us be earnest and faithful in our service as was this loyal follower, and God will entrust to us places of usefulness and fields of service.

Here's a chance for any one who should desire to educate their children at Elon to get hold of a well worked up profitable business. If you are interested address "Business," Care Christian Sun, Elon College, N. C.

"Among the fundamental things of life is the home. It is home-builders that make a nation great. God has set the people in families,—that is the divine order,—and the person that builds a good home, a place of love and helpful service, is doing the will of God. Every home should be a temple, every father and mother a priest and priestess of the most high God."

Elementary and Cradle Roll Departments

Edited by Mrs. J. J. Lincoln, Wakefield, Va., and Mrs. F. Bullock, Waverly, Va., respectively, to whom all communications for these Departments should be addressed.

Motto: "First the Blade."
Colors: Green and White.

Dear Cradle Roll Superintendents:
As I look out the window at the steady downpour of the rain, I am reminded of the Sunday in December which I spent with the Sunday school at Holland, Va. It rained all day as it had all the preceding day, but just the same, we had a good school and a most enjoyable time. At least I did, and all of you who have ever had the privilege of meeting my host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Holland, as well as the other cordial folks around Holland, will not wonder at my statement.

Owing to the bad weather, we did not have as good a crowd as we had hoped for, but just the same, we were successful in starting a Cradle Roll, with Mrs. B. J. Beale as Superintendent, and who do you think was the very first baby on the list? Her name was Frances Virginia Dare, and she is the baby daughter of the pastor, Rev. E. F. Black, and his charming wife. Do you know, it seemed to me that would be a good motto for our Sunday schools, the name of the first white child born in Virginia, Virginia Dare. Does any one feel they dare not attempt great things for Christ? Virginia Dare. Do others fear to attack the hosts of evil? Virginia dare. Dare others put all their trust and reliance in Christ and give of their all to the Master's work? Dare other churches attempt great things for Christ, expect great things of Christ? Virginia Dare, too, and our church in Virginia dare, as well.

I want to tell you, too, of the unique roll they are using at Bethlehem. It is a large wall card to represent a cradle with a dear little baby asleep in it. Attached to the base of the card are a number of pretty ribbons, and to these ribbons are fastened smaller cards, replicas of the larger one, with a space for baby's name on the card. It is a most dainty and ornamental cradle roll.

If the plans Rev. Mr. Walters is formulating become successful, I am hoping, in the providence of God, to meet with many of you during the coming months, and perhaps, to help you who have no cradle roll now in starting and maintaining one. But that is in the future. In the meantime, don't wait. Go right ahead with the work. Now is the very best time in all the world to carry out those good resolutions.

The Land to Avoid
My friend, have you heard of the town of Yawn,
On the banks of the river Slow,
Where blooms the Wait-awhile flower fair,
And the Some-time-or-other scents the air,
And the soft Go-easy's grow?
It lies in the valley of What's-the-use.
In the province of Let'er-slide;
That old, tired feeling is native there;
It's the home of the listless I-don't-care.

Where the Put-it-off's abide.
So do today's work today and start or push that Cradle Roll.
Cordially,
Your Cradle Roll Superintendent,
MRS. F. BULLOCK.

MUSICAL INSTITUTE

Thursday Morning, February 25, 10:00
O'clock, at Wentworth Christian Church, McCullers, N. C.

The music committed of the E.

N. C. Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention will begin the work assigned them by the Convention during its session held at Sanford, N. C., last July, by holding a musical institute, the purpose of which is to create more interest in our music. This committee is up against a job that is much larger than the committee itself. Pastors, Superintendents, Leaders, Organists and all who are interested in the betterment of music, won't you make a special effort to be present when the bell taps and join us in our efforts? The work must succeed, failure must not be considered.

The committee will use its very best efforts to make the two days' session beneficial and interesting to all who may come. It would make our hearts glad to clasp the hands of every leader within the bounds of the Convention. The book to be used, Glorious Refrain, can be obtained from the Southern Christian Publishing Co., Elon College, N. C.

Bro. J. Milton Banks, Raleigh, N. C., R. F. D. 3, is chairman of the entertainment committee and will be glad to have a home ready for all who will write him Song and praise service beginning at 10 a. m. February 25.

Paul E. Green,
Committee.

—We regret to learn that our dear brother, Rev. A. H. Burnett, has sustained, with the people whom he serves a severe loss in the burning of their new and beautiful church building at Louisville, Ill., Sunday, Jan. 24. This is a calamity, but not an irreparable one, as more toil and more sacrifice may mean richer and larger blessings.

—Our good brother, Rev. J. W. Wellons is offering his "Family Devotion" to S. S. teachers and others in clubs of 20 or more at half price. Bro. Wellons is anxious that the family altar be established in the home and that father and mother or children conduct daily family worship. This is the desire of a faithful and experienced man of God and is a most worthy desire.

YOU WILL WRITE A LETTER LIKE THIS.

I wish that I knew which one of the thousands of letters I receive would have the most weight with you, my friend. I can't quote all of them here, but I am going to ask you to read these carefully and then give me a chance to renew your health and make you write me one very much like them:

701 Barnard Street, Savannah, Ga., Dec. 28, 1910.

Mr. N. F. Shivar, Shelton, S. C. Dear Sir: As you are aware, in 1909 I was suffering with indigestion, stomach and liver disorders and all its train of horri-fying phenomena, and severely and long lived on milk, soft eggs, shredded wheat, a very insufficient diet for an active working man, and of course, from disease and starvation was in a very low state of nervous vitality and general debility. I ordered ten gallons of your Mineral Water, which I used continuously, reordering when necessary, and in four months gained twenty-nine pounds, was strong and perfectly well and had worked practically every day since. It gets a general renovator of the system. I prescribe it in my practice, and it has in every instance had the desired effects. It is essential to use this water in as large quantities as possible, for its properties are so happily blended and in such proportion that they will not disturb the most delicate system. It is purely nature's remedy.

Leeds, S. C., March 2, 1911.

I have tested your Spring Water in several cases of rheumatism, chronic indigestion, kidney and bladder troubles and in nervous and sick headaches, and find that it has acted nicely in each case, and I believe that if used continuously for a reasonable time it will produce a permanent cure. It purifies the blood, relieves debility, stimulates the action of the liver, kidneys and bladder, aiding them in throwing off all poisonous matter.

C. A. CROSBY, M.D.

These are not selected cases, nor are the results unusual. I receive thousands and like them from physicians, ministers, lawyers, merchants, farmers, manufacturers and every conceivable profession. I want the satisfaction of receiving such a letter from you. No matter what your complaint may be, dyspepsia, indigestion, nervous headache, rheumatism, gall stones, kidney or liver disease, or any chronic ailment that has not responded to drugs. I invite you to match your faith in the Spring against my pocketbook. If the water fails to benefit you simply say so, return the empty demijohns and I will promptly and willingly refund your money—every cent. Sign below: Shivar Spring, Box 918, Shelton, S. C. Gentlemen:

I accept your guarantee offer and enclose herewith two dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Water. I agree to give it a fair trial, in accordance with instructions contained in booklet you will send, and if it fails to benefit my case you agree to refund the price in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns, which I agree to return promptly.

OUR DEAD

Hayes

Calvin William Hayes, son of Rev. W. N. Hayes, passed away Jan. 12th, in his thirty-fifth year. He had been sick for about a year and had two surgical operations. All that human skill could do was done that he might live, for it was felt that his death would be a heavy blow to his family; but God knew best, and the wisdom and work of man was turned to naught. Brother Hayes was a member of Antioch (R) church, having made a profession of religion in early life. He realized that his death was inevitable and was perfectly resigned to the will of God. He made arrangements about his funeral and selected a hymn he wished to be sung at his burial. He left the consoling testimony that all was well with his soul. He leaves a father, mother, brother, two sisters, and his wife who mourn his departure.

T. E. WHITE.

Allen

Mary Megdeline, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carson Allen, was born Sept. 11, 1914, and died Jan. 18th. She was buried at Pleasant Ridge and the funeral was by the writer. The parents are sad, but are thankful for the hope of immortality and the sweet assurance that "He gathers the lambs with his arms, and carries them in his bosom."

T. E. WHITE.

McCoy

Lucinda Harvey McCoy was born September 3, 1830; died January 17, 1915; age 84 years, 4 months and 14 days. She was the mother of nine children, of whom five sons are living. She was left a widow several years ago, since which time she has made her home with one of her sons. Sister McCoy was a Christian woman, well thought of by all who knew her. She united with the Christian church about 35 years ago. Funeral services were conducted at the home near St. Peter's church, January 19, 1915, and the remains were borne by the five sons and one grandson to the family burying ground nearby, and there laid to await the call of the resurrection day.

A. W. ANDES.

Lee

Mrs. Virginia Elizabeth Lee, daughter of John R. and Lovey Gaskins and widow of the late Elisha E. Lee, was born March 2, 1845, and died January 30, 1915, at her home in Nansmond county, at the age of 69 years, 10 months and 28 days. She left to mourn their loss two daughters, Mrs. Mamie Tourtelot, Providence, R. I. and Mrs. Dollner Gray, of Nansmond county; one brother, Capt. J. R. Gaskins, and one sister, Mrs. Mattie Ames.

Sister Lee was a consistent member of Berea, Nansmond, church, and a woman of marked devotion and strong Christian character. The funeral services were conducted at the Lee home by the writer, assisted by Rev. W. W. Staley, D. D. and Rev. Mr. Williams of the M. E. Church, South. The floral offerings were numerous and beautiful, and we laid her body to rest in the family cemetery beneath the sweet scented flowers she loved so much in life.

I. W. JOHNSON.

Fleming

Raymond Lee and Fremond Wilson, twin sons of Walter and Bessie Fleming, were born August 29, 1914, and died January 15, 1915, aged 4 months and 23 days. They were buried in the same casket. Funeral and burial took place Sunday, January 17, 1915, at Mt. Zion Church of the Brethren, near the home of the parents. Rev. I. W. Miller of the Church of the Brethren assisted the writer in the service.

A. W. ANDES.

Wagner

On January 8, 1915, Bro. F. M. Wagner departed this life at the age of about 39 years. He had been married about one year. He leaves to mourn a wife, brother, sisters, father, mother and a host of friends. Funeral was conducted at Olive's Chapel Baptist church on the 9th of February, in the presence of a large congregation by J. S. Carden, assisted by Rev. W. C. Olive, and his body was laid in the Olive's Chapel burying ground to sleep the long sleep of death.

J. S. CARDEN.

ONE YEAR

(In loving remembrance of our dear daughter and sister, Mary Riedel, died February 7, 1914.)

How weary seems, in broken dreams, The memory of a year ago today, When angels down the beautiful stream Bore our darling Mary away.

Her dear voice, how often creeps Its cadence on our lonely hours! And in the night, while we sleep, Sweet dreams about her are ours.

Will we forget the happy time When dear Mary among us dwelt, And all on earth seemed sublime And nothing but pleasure was felt.

It never through our mind passed That time would soon be o'er, When we upon her would look our last, And she wouldst smile no more.

Time cannot heal our broken hearts, Or fill that little vacant chair, We long for her dear smiling face, We miss our darling everywhere.

On earth we shall not meet more, But memories of the pleasant past Will linger, until life is o'er, And we in Heaven will meet at last.

By Her Loving Family.

Editorial Briefs

A Precious Treasure

Awhile ago a New York daily carried a news item stating that a certain man (giving his name) had recently found an old family Bible which contained a record proving the family to be directly connected with an adventurer who had died in Africa in 1844, leaving an estate valued at ninety million dollars. The Bible revealed to this man that he and his family to be directly connected with an adventurer. Fortunate man! Happy family! But the same Bible has been revealing greater riches than this family fell heir to during all the years to every family that will read carefully its records and act upon its teachings. Thousands of families, millions of men are poor today who are due to be rich. They have not come into rightful inheritance because they have not obeyed the divine injunction "Search the scriptures: for in them ye think ye have eternal life; and they are they which testify of me" (John 5:39).

What Is Self?

One visited, as a man, the home of his childhood one day. His musings took on a sombre tinge, and found form in these words: "The happy days gone, the pleasant groups broken up to meet no more, the old faces departed, the voices that are silent—what do these vivid feelings mean, their heart hunger for the sweet, sad world, and for beloved people? All this is dark and secret; and the strong tide bears us on, out of the little harbor of childhood into unknown seas. Dear Woodcote, dear remembered days, beloved faces and voices of the past, old trees and fields! I cannot tell what you mean and what you are; but I can hardly believe that, if I have a life beyond, it will not somehow comprise you all; for indeed you are my own for ever; you are myself whatever that self may be." This is not the first and only philosopher who has ever speculated about Self, and what enters into and constitutes Self. "All that I have ever seen has become a part of me" a certain sage declared. So our Lord when He advised "If thine eye offend thee, pluck it out, and cast it from thee; for it is better for thee to enter into life with one eye, rather than having two eyes to be cast into hell fire" (Matt. 18:9).

The Way Everlasting

There is nothing permanent, safe or steadfast in the broad way that leads to death. All that can be said if it is that it is broad, and many walk therein. There is no help needed, no additional strength required, to walk in that way. But the narrow way is different. There must be a self-searching, a knowledge and a testing of one to be prepared to walk in that way. David was a seer and a poet when he wrote "Search me, O God, and know my heart: try me, and know my thoughts; and see if there be any wicked way in me, and lead me in the way everlasting." (Psa. 139:23, 24).

Greater Yet

The Census Bureau assures us that on April 2 of this year our country will have a population of one hundred million souls. The Treasury Department declares that with the close of January we had that vast number of inhabitants and that on February 1 there were sixteen thousand more than the Census Bureau says we will have on April 1. This country grows greater in population, greater in plans, greater in pursuits, and greater in possessions. No country on earth ever had in a hundred years such steady and safe growth in material, mental and moral development. And ours is yet a new country with resources hardly discovered. That God has great and still greater things in store for our inheritance no one can doubt. For may it yet be said and truly that "They are thy people and thine inheritance, which thou broughtest out by thy mighty power and by thy stretched out arm." (Deut. 9:29.)

A Holy War

Dr. Jno. R. Mott, Christian, statesman, orator, has just returned from the war zone in Europe. "Over three million men have been wounded and over a million killed," declares Dr. Mott, and one goes in Europe from one house of tears to another. "It is a sad Europe. Each country is earnestly seeking to justify its position in the eyes of the world. All the nations engaged call it a holy war and Russia says it is the most holy war. Rulers in France were formerly indifferent to religious appeals but now are moved by them. Churches are thronged with people. Not a regiment in Germany goes to the front without taking the sacrament." Man never yet committed a crime, resorted to evil, or indulged in sin till he first of all justified the deed in his own sight. Everyone attributes some moral end in view to justify the most immoral act. Satan justifies the temptation of Christ with scriptural quotation. None are so blind as those whose vision is blurred with passion or obscured with prejudice. "The god of this world hath blinded the minds of them which believe not." (2 Cor. 4:4).

A Jew as Governor

Hon. Moses Alexander was recently inaugurated governor of Idaho. He is said to be the first Jew to be elected governor of any State in the Union. It is to be seen what sort of an executive this Jew will make, but he has commended himself to the moral element both of his State and the nation in that he urged, in his inaugural address, the legislature to adopt a State-wide prohibition law for Idaho to become effective January 1, 1916, at which time prohibition goes into effect in the two neighboring States, Oregon and Washington. Jews have always taken first rank as citizens noted for sobriety, energy and thrift. In the sight of God a Jew is just as precious and as redeemable as a Gentile. So taught Paul: "For there is no difference between the Jew and the Greek, for the same Lord over all is rich unto all that call upon him." (Rom. 10:12.)

The Cost of Bread

Authorities tell us that the rapid rise in the cost of bread is due largely to speculation. The manipulators are taking advantage of a condition and are reaping a rich harvest. The facts indicate this. The forecast for the coming crop now is a billion bushels, being an excess over last year by a hundred million bushels. The United States now has sufficient wheat to export eight million bushels a week till harvest and not diminish an adequate supply at home. The speculators taking advantage of the war in Europe with its prospective increased demand for food stuffs and our limited capacity for transporting same to the place of consumption, are gambling with the odds in favor of the war's continuation. If peace were declared in Europe the price of bread would be put within the reach of the most needy. "It is not meet to take the children's bread and to cast it to dogs." (Matt. 15:26.)

Ruling God Out

This paragraph appeared the other day in a New York paper: "A book on Political Economy was recently turned down by a State institution as a text-book. The author of the book wrote and asked the reason for its rejection. The answer he received was: 'Your first sentence was enough to condemn the book.' The first sentence reads: 'The source of all wealth is the beneficence of God.'" In short, because the name God appeared in the book it was deemed too sectarian and orthodox to be used in a State College. If the author had used immaterial "nature" in the place of a personal "God," his book would have gone through all right. This is not the first time God has been ruled out of a high place. It does seem strange, though, that even a State school, godless as many of them are, at this late day should not even allow the name of God to be written or spoken for class room. But this is in keeping with the declaration of a noted educator who recently declared that a young man could graduate from any one of a half dozen State Universities and have no teaching or knowledge that there is a God. "And she laid him in a manger; because there was no room for them in the inn." (Luke 2:7.)

EDITORIAL

MISERY HAS COMPANY

The humiliation of having to reduce the thickness of THE CHRISTIAN SUN, even temporarily, is the keener because it tells of the lack of co-operation amongst those who should have been interested. Church papers are being crowded out of the home, out of the regular reading in the home, and out of publication. The only possible way is to have hearty co-operation of its entire constituency, and a source of revenue, usually, other than that from its own subscription list.

This humiliation could scarcely be borne by us, but for the painful intelligence that we are not alone in our lack of co-operation on the part of those who are supposed to support the church paper. In a recent issue of The Christian Advocate this sentence appeared: "Only a few weeks ago more than two thousand names were dropped simply because the dates on their labels had become somewhat ancient."

The Methodist Protestant, of Baltimore, the general organ of the Methodist Protestant Church, said recently: "Only last week this paper ordered eleven hundred names to be dropped from our list because the postal laws of this land are inflexible. Among that list are ministers who do not only fail to make an effort to secure subscriptions, or to urge renewals, but who are in arrears for one, two, three and even five years. The management felt that of all the subscribers the ministers at least should not be dropped. And yet the time has come when the names of a number of them must go with the rest of the delinquents. We cannot afford to lose so many subscribers, and the money they owe us, without disaster. We appreciate the financial pressure that exists in sections where many of our constituents live. To them a dollar and a half unpaid may not seem much, but when it is multiplied by eleven hundred it means a direct loss to us of sixteen hundred and fifty dollars. Then when it is recalled that the paper we send to a subscriber for a year costs us two dollars and four cents under the increased cost of printing and material, our actual loss will be $2,227. Now this deficit must be met, or the paper must be reduced in size, or we must quit the business."

Persuasion and pleas for co-operation availed nothing for the Western Methodist and it cut its size to eight pages smaller in size than the present Christian Sun. There must be the closest and most vigorous co-operation on the part of pastors and patrons if the church paper is to be sustained.

The Methodist Protestant, from which we have already quoted, conveys our own idea and situation in a paragraph which though personal is to the point: "There are those who hold the opinion that a change of editors might to some extent remedy the situation, but there are many more who are kind enough to say that the editorial character of this paper has been maintained and that this editor has not failed either in fidelity to his work, nor in the quality of his editorials. The truth is that the situation is due to a painful lack of sympathy and co-operation in this work, on the part of ministers and laymen. We are sure that a thousand of our delinquents would have been continued on our list by a little encouragement from the pastors. No paper in this country of the same size and quality has been conducted on a more painstaking and economic basis. No paper has met with less encouragement and help from those to whom it has to look for co-operation and support."

Again let us say that if our pastors and brethren will give us their full sympathy and active co-operation the humiliation of the present appearance of the paper shall be removed. Our hearts ache over the situation, for it really reveals a painful and sad lack of interest on the part of the church in one of its most important and necessary enterprises. Our only source of comfort is that our misery has company and a vast deal of it on the part of those who are seeking to publish, and get read, church papers—those papers devoted to building up the denominational enterprises.

DR. MOTT ON THE EUROPEAN WAR

Dr. Jno. R. Mott, World's Secretary of Students Y. M. C. A., and whom President Wilson has called the most influential citizen in the United States, is in the South lecturing to great audiences of Christian workers on the war in Europe. Dr. Mott, because of the nature of his work, had free access to European centers and situations on his recent visit made to look after the religious situation of the more than 20,000 Y. M. C. A. men who are engaged, on both sides, in the terrible conflict. Dr. Mott lectured at the University of Virginia, at the University of North Carolina, and at Charlotte, and a good friend of THE SUN, on hearing him, made notes from the address at it was delivered. It is a fresh and frank word direct from the front, and is worth while. Our friend reports some of the things Dr. Mott said about as follows:

"The people are more thoroughly united in every country affected by the war than I have ever seen them before. In France all religious differences are forgotten and in Germany the socialist and the ultra conservatives stand side by side. A great Roman Catholic ecclesiastic says in a recent book that France is once more herself. This I believe to be true, for a different spirit is abroad in the country today. All the peoples are confident of ultimate victory and each nation seems mainly anxious to justify itself before the world and especially before America.

"This war demonstrates that Christianity is not a failure but has been getting in its work. Each country looks on it as a holy war, a war for God and home and native land. If any one nation regards it as more holy than another it is Russia. Russia has prepared a litany which is used in all church services, beseeching God's mercy on all engaged in the war, not even excepting the dumb beasts. The most popular song in the German army is the Song of Luther, and wherever men are marching you hear its ringing strains.

"The constant shell fire breaks down the strongest nerves and men are invalidated home completely broken down and unfit for service although they may never have been wounded. A great revival is taking place, but it is an Old Testament revival, an appeal to the God of battles, yet more social reform has taken place since August 1 than in decades previous. Look at vodka in Russia. Russia financed the Japanese war from the sale of vodka, yet now when they need money infinitely more they have forbidden its manufacture utterly. The same is true of France in regard to absinthe.

"Says Bismarck: 'If Germany is ever attacked on the East and on the West, we shall have three armies, one on each border, and one on the railroad.' This is literally true. Going to Berlin, I passed over two hundred thousand troops en route, and whole armies are being transferred with as much facility as regiments hitherto. Nearly twenty-two million men are in the field, and three or four million more in other countries being prepared. The war is costing about thirty-seven million dollars gold per day. This does not include the terrible destruction and loss of income. As an instance of the latter, I may mention that the Hamburg-American line has four hundred and thirty-three boats tied up in port.

"One regiment sent 1,000 men into the field and returned with 700 killed or seriously wounded. Out of 40,000 engaged at another place, 32,000 were killed, wounded or prisoners. In Berlin one man had 31 relatives in the field, nine of whom were killed or wounded. It is a suffering Europe. Over 3,000,000 have been wounded. In eight days 157 trains averaging 20 cars each, of German wounded left the front. Rivers of pain! Through trains to Berline run in two sections, the first for the wounded.

"France makes 60,000 shells a day and fires about 50,000. Newspaper headings can give us no idea of the condition of affairs. They say 'the trenches were retaken,' or 'the line remains the same.' They don't remain the same. One line has gone to the hospital.

"Holland has 6,000,000 inhabitants and is caring for 1,000,000 refugees. Each family is taking in from one to fourteen persons and every theater and public building is given over to the refugees. England has contributed $25,000,000 to the help of the helpless—America less than $1,000,000.

"We must differentiate between pure Christianity and what we call civilization. The cross is being burned out and the ground prepared for a tremendous revival along the lines which Christ laid down. I wanted to see both sides and to help the students in this time of stress. Many colleges are practically closed, for all the students are at the front, but papers and leaflets and personal Christian letters are being sent out from the colleges by the remaining students and the professors. France is sending 45,000 letters weekly to the students in the trenches. There are Christians on both sides and the most striking thing is that they still love one another. It has revealed the necessity of a world-wide Christian Student Movement and a world-wide Missionary Movement. It has demonstrated the unity of the Christian religion. It has revealed a capacity for vicarious service and the cry seems to be, 'Let us use ourselves in service for others.' This war is not only purifying but simplifying faith. The students don't believe as many things as they did, but they know now in whom they have believed. Sick, wounded, suffering in the trenches, they gather together to read and pray and sing. Said one young soldier who lay wounded in the trenches for four days owing to the inability of the Red-Cross to reach him through unceasing firing: 'The fellows tried to sing "Lead, Kindly Light," and we got along all right until we came to the verse where it says, "The night is dark and I am far from home," and then we had to stop.'

They want companionship, fellowship, even the living Christ, and it is for us to take advantage of this great crisis to bring Him to them. 'I was in prison and ye visited me, sick and wounded and ye came unto me.'

A PERSONAL PLEA AND PROPOSITION

My Dear Dr. Atkinson:

THE CHRISTIAN SUN came by this afternoon's mail. I have not read it, but I feel as if my rights have been tramped upon and my religious pride put in the dust, not by our good editor—I am not kicking him, for heaven knows he has had enough kicks (even to the extent that a mule has joined in) but by my self and a plenty of others throughout the brotherhood. I refer to the serious reduction of the size of our church paper. I love my church and appreciate it. It is as good as there is though not so large as some others. I want my church properly represented to my friends who know nothing or but little about it and the chief way by which this can be done properly and systematically is by means of a representative weekly church paper.

But this is not all. The supreme mission of a religious paper is, in my judgment, to instruct the constituency in the great doctrine of the church, and to supplement the true ministry by giving a collective conception of the fundamental principles of Christianity. We want, in the face of modern day criticism, to emphasize the virgin birth of our Lord, the crucifixion of our Master, the resurrection of our Redeemer and the Baptism of the Holy Spirit, promised and given by our ascended Lord. By the time all necessary reports have been given their places there will be no room for an adequate presentation of such subjects, if our paper is to be half size.

Brethren, we of the Southern Convention can not afford to allow only eight pages of religious matter circulated among the homes of our church and to the reading public. There never was a time in the history of our denomination or of the Kingdom of God on earth when genuine religious literature was in greater demand or when papers and periodicals bearing a distinctly religious message needed a wider circulation.

Now I am not writing simply for recreation nor only to express my conviction, but I am writing to make a proposition, and it is this: I will be responsible for fifteen new subscribers, subscriptions to be paid September 1, 1915. I would make it 30 days if I were already on the field. I am not coming back to the Southern Convention, if I were I would make it fifty instead of fifteen and then I would be far behind J. Lee Johnson. Brethren, let's awake to a new pride in our paper and make it possible for the editor to maintain the standard previously set.

I just feel that we cannot afford to have the paper reduced and I am willing to do my part to restore it to its former size. I realize that it is with great regret that you reduce the size of the paper but that you are forced to.

Again expressing appreciation of your honest and faithful efforts to give us a representative paper, I am, Yours in Christ,

L. E. SMITH.

Princeton, N. J., Feb. 6, 1915.

A SOLILOQUY

DEAR SUN:

I notice this week that you have greatly decreased in thickness and size and you don't have your usual appearance. Now I regret this very much because I am a great admirer of you and always enjoy your weekly visits to my home and I wondered what made you fall off so much in so short a time, as you looked as well and healthy when you made your last visit as ever. But I looked on the label and found that my subscription to you had expired last December, and you had been living on nothing since that time so far as my help was concerned. Now I feel ashamed, and am in quite a repentant mood that I should treat you so when I love you so well and I am enclosing you my check for $1.50 to pay my subscription for another year, and truly hope that a great many others who have treated you as I have will repent, too, and mail you a check so that you can increase in size until you get back to your usual weight. Wishing for you great success this year and praying that every member of the church will wake up to their duty and make it possible for you to grow instead of falling off, I beg to remain,

Yours very truly,

CHAS. D. JOHNSON.

SUFFOLK LETTER

At the last Sunday School Convention of the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference, which met at Virginia Beach during the Chautauqua, the question arose whether the Convention would meet with the Chautauqua this year or separate at some church as it had done for forty-four years. The question was finally referred to the Sunday schools. The Suffolk school has voted unanimously in favor of the "old way." The opinion was expressed that the Convention would lose its real significance unless it met apart from the Chautauqua. Nothing was said against the Chautauqua, but the interest of the Convention was uppermost in this vote. Col. J. E. West offered the motion to meet in the "old way" and his views met the approbation of the entire school. As Col. West is a member of the Virginia Senate and has had large experience in public affairs, his judgment on a question of this character is worthy of mention and consideration. I do not know what the majority vote of the forty schools composing this Convention will finally be; but all are anxious that the Executive Committee will hear from enough schools to enable them to make the wisest decision possible for the next Convention. It goes without saying that all are in favor of what is best for the Sunday School Convention.

I have been disturbed by the information that Rev. Dr. W. C. Wicker was not in good health. Dr. Wicker is so thoroughly equipped for literary and Biblical work, that it would mean great loss for even temporary indisposition on his part. I have regarded him as one of iron constitution, diamond will, and golden aspirations in the cause of the Master and the Christian church. He has already come to the front in the larger visions of the church and won the confidence and respect of the leaders who are looking out for real leadership. The prayers of many will rise as incense to God for his early and permanent recovery from his present affliction.

I am leaving this morning for a two days visit to my family at Franklinton, N. C.; these visits are like angel visits, but they are sweet to me. Anything I may have accomplished in the gospel for men has its springs in the life and help of my wife and daughters who have always made my ministerial duty the first thing in their thought and plans as well as in my own. A minister's usefulness is determined on the day of his marriage. It is almost true of all men; but conspicuously true of ministers. A minister's wife is the mainspring of his energy, his faithfulness, and his success. If a young minister were to ask me how to decide this life-question, I would say that this supreme question may be determined in the following manner: One may "fall in love," as it is called, and feel deeply on the subject. Do not follow that passion alone. One may calculate and work out in his mind that a certain one would make a good wife or furnish means to a useful end. Do not follow that thought alone. But when feeling and judgment agree it is safe to decide.

ELON COLLEGE NOTES

Mrs. Sallie E. Holland, matron of the West Dormitory, who was called home recently on account of the illness of her sister and father, writes that both are rapidly improving and that she will be able to return to her duties shortly. Miss Annie Watson has supplied for Mrs. Holland during her absence.

The entire Student Volunteer Band, sixteen strong, this week goes to Charlotte, N. C., to attend the great missionary convention at which 3,000 delegates are expected to be present.

Several Elon students attended the John R. Mott lectures at the University of North Carolina last week.

Visitors to the College last week were as follows: Rev. J. F. Morgan, Graham, N. C.; Mr. J. H. Kennedy, Cummock, N. C.; Mrs. Hugh McAlister and Hugh Jr., Lumberton, N. C.; Mrs. Grace Conely and Master Charles, Efland, N. C.; Miss Inez Albright, Graham, N. C.; Miss Minnie Riedel, Stem, N. C.; Prof. E. L. Daughtry, Gibsonville, N. C. The college extends each of these interested friends glad and hearty welcome.

Last week was the occasion of three marriages in which the Elon family will be especially interested: Mr. Alton R. Moffitt, Fayetteville, N. C., to Miss Irene Allen of that city; Hon. John M. Cook, Burlington, N. C., to Miss Jessie Sharp of that city; Miss Ethel Barrett, Dayton, Ohio, but teaching in Durham County this State, to Mr. Bunn Hearn, Chapel Hill, N. C. The College extends its best wishes to all these for a long and happy wedded life.

Rev. John Blood, Riegelsville, N. J., has given another and substantial evidence of his deep and vital concern in the College by donating to it a stereopticon in honor of his wife, Mrs. Sarah Blood. The College has long needed such an addition to its equipment and is grateful to Brother Blood.

The Baccalaureate sermon this year is to be delivered by Dr. F. G. Coffin, Albany, N. Y., president of the American Christian Convention, one of the Church's ablest and sweetest-spirited leaders.

Great sympathy was felt and expressed here last week when it was announced that the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Parish, Greensboro, N. C., had died. It was their second child. Miss Pattie Preston, of the Senior Class, sister of Mrs. Parish, attended the funeral.

The sermon on Sunday morning by Dr. Atkinson has been the occasion of much comment and approval. The theme was the Irresponsible Conflict, which was shown to be not between religion and science, but between head and heart. Few greater sermons are ever heard.

Dr. T. C. Amick had a birthday on Sunday, at which five of his friends greatly rejoice. They wish he could have a birthday each week, if—

The Clio Entertainment is to be given on the evening of the 22nd. A splendid program has been arranged and a hearty welcome will be accorded all.

On Friday evening of this week the State Peace Contest occurs for N. C. Colleges in Raleigh. Mr. H. S. Smith is to represent Elon.

Rev. W. W. Davidson, Elizabethtown, N. C., pastor of the Presbyterian church there, was a pleasant caller to-day (Monday), and as usual speaking encouraging words for Elon and of her work

DAYTON LETTER

Since coming to the First Christian Church of Dayton, O., we have been so crowded with work that we have found time to write to THE CHRISTIAN SUN but once. However, we have not forgotten the work and the friends of the South. We greatly enjoy the visits of THE CHRISTIAN SUN and the good news it brings from week to week concerning the work of the Kingdom.

We have now been in our new field five months and have greatly enjoyed our work every minute of the time. The church has measured up to our fullest expectations and has shown great willingness to co-operate in every movement that has been launched. Soon after our coming to the field the church put on the every-member canvass for local expenses and did the work in fine shape. The greater part of the canvass was made on Sunday afternoon, and the teams reported at the Wednesday evening service. That was a great meeting, one that was hard to close. The results of the canvass were all that we expected. The entire budget was covered. The duplex envelope was put in and on the first Sunday the total collection ran over $100. Of course this made the new financial plan a little interesting, even if a part of the collection did belong to the building fund and some other specials. The every-member canvass and the duplex envelope, if properly handled, will work marvelous things for any congregation. The plan is thoroughly scriptural and modern. The greatest business concerns of the land are using the plan, in principle, to great effect. The children of light ought to be as wise as the men of the world.

Sunday morning, January 15, we closed a three weeks' evangelistic campaign in our church. A week was spent in preparation for the campaign. Prayer groups were organized in all of the Sunday school classes above the primary, possibly with a few exceptions. These groups met each evening in their class rooms for fifteen minutes of prayer and came from them to the auditorium for the service. On the afternoon of the 10th we sent out eighteen teams of two each into the homes of the congregation. Before going out the teams lunched in the social room of the church, and to say the least of it, it was a splendid occasion. It was really good to be there. The teams came back to the Christian Endeavor and the meeting was given up to them. That was a great meeting. It was an overflowing meeting. The people came in until they filled up the chairs and had to sit on the tables, as the meeting was in the social room. Hearts overflowed with joy as they told of the good afternoon they had spent in trying to help others. It was good to be at this meeting as well as at the other. When we definitely undertake to carry light and good cheer to others we get a double portion. The teams went out to talk about the meeting and to invite people out. They must have enjoyed the work.

The results of the campaign were indeed gratifying to pastor and people. The services were largely attended and the interest deep. Forty-four joined the church during the campaign and six previously. There are over two hundred more that properly belong to the congregation and should be reached and brought into the church. In the closing service of the campaign nineteen persons volunteered to be trained for personal work. We are hoping to press the battle. The city-wide evangelistic campaign began Sunday. The First Church heartily enters it and hopes for good results.

THE GLORY OF FAILURE

BY J. W. BARNEY

We are all familiar with the poem, Excelsior, in which is told the story of a youth who, bearing a banner "with the strange device, Excelsior," and refusing to stop and rest, pushed on up the Alpine heights and perished amid the snow and ice, still clinging to his banner. I was somewhat surprised to hear a prominent teacher recently comment unfavorably upon the poem. He expressed the idea that children with frank, unprejudiced judgment would pronounce the performance of the youth foolish and his fate merited. His purpose was to prove that children are able to judge for themselves with respect to matters pertaining to their environment and education, and that the material and interpretation of education should be largely a matter of choice on the part of the child. As I listened, I wondered whether both he and the child who would condemn the youth as foolish and deserving death might not be seriously wrong. Might there not be more in the poem than mere sentences and the words composing them? Might there not be a lesson, life-long in influence and of great value, obtained from it under the leadership of an able teacher? May there not be glory even in failure?

The Belgians must have realized their inequality and the probability of defeat when they presented an armed front to the invading forces of Germany. They failed to prevent the infringement upon their neutrality and the encroachment upon their territory: but are they criticized or condemned as foolish because of their inevitable failure? Far from it. Belgium, devastated by sword and flame, lying in ruin and ashes, commands the deepest respect of the world today. She is great, even in ruin; because she failed fighting for a principle. Her failure but brings to her glory.

A storm is on the sea. A ship lies on the reef with the waves relentlessly crushing it. A solitary figure is seen clinging desperately to a mast, and a cry of agony rings out through the storm. No life boat is at hand. A sturdy swimmer hurls himself into the raging sea in a vain attempt to rescue the solitary survivor. He is buffeted by the waves, beaten by the storm, and tossed back upon the sands lifeless—his attempt a failure. Such failures are memorialized in marble and immortalized in song and story.

Sir Walter Scott, in company with a number of friends, engaged in a printing venture which resulted in severe financial loss and ultimate failure; but the name and memory of Sir Walter Scott shines with unwonted luster because of the splendid integrity and unimpeachable manhood revealed in him by this period of failure. History is vitalized and humanity glorified by such failures.

During the imperial period of Rome, Christian missionaries and converts from other countries entered Rome, or as captives were brought there. They at once sought to teach and establish their religion in the imperial city, an attempt which meant certain persecution—often death. During the reign of Nero hundreds perished under the most cruel forms of torture, and Christianity appeared to be almost exterminated in the city. But from the ashes of the martyred believers arose the spirit of the invincible Church of Christ. True, they apparently failed in the eyes of men; but their failure was a glorious one.

Livingstone, inspired by a desire to spread the gospel of the Christ and to witness the salvation of the heathen world, plunged into the trackless jungles of Africa and lost himself among the barbarous natives. Surrounded by hostile tribes, his life went out long before the Christian religion was firmly established in the African interior. Measured by human standards, a failure. Viewed in the light of Divine purposes, successful beyond human comprehension.

Shall we measure life's achievements by human standards? by the standards of worldly wealth and reputation? Never. Inspired by a lofty principle, with the motto, "Excelsior," cherished in our hearts, we may press onward and upward misunderstood, scorned, and stamped a failure by men; but in our human failure may be the elements of a glorious victory in the sight of the Divine.

—The announcement that the baccalaureate sermon to the graduating class of Elion College at the coming commencement will be delivered by Rev. F. G. Coffin, D. D., Albany, N. Y., President of the American Christian Convention, will carry the intelligence to all who know the man that the discourse will be profound, appropriate, spiritual and noteworthy. Elion has the reputation of being happy and fortunate in choosing her commencement preachers. Her record and reputation are safe in Dr. Coffin's hands.

—Alabama is the fifteenth State of this blessed union to become prohibition. The grog shops an distilleries of Alabama are to be put out of business June 30 of this year. The Washington Post in a recent editorial gave this significant utterance: "It becomes more apparent every day that the issue of prohibition is to exert a powerful influence in all political campaigns until it is settled, and, like all great issues, it can never be settled until it is settled rightly. It cannot be evaded by any public man who has to go before the voters of any State in the union in the campaigns between now and the settlement. It is in city, state and national politics now to stay until that settlement is effected. Party lines will go to pieces upon it until parties assume the responsibility either for Prohibition or against it."

Are you helping us out in the campaign for new subscribers?

Are you taking advantage of the renewal proposition? Pay up all back dues and a year in advance and this entitles you to a copy of "Trailing the Truth." Many have done so and the daily mail is bringing in replies. Have you sent yours?

We want to go back to our former size. Do you want to see the paper as it is or as it was? That is the question. "To be or not to be." How do you stand, "to be" or "not to be"? Just think how easy the matter of sending 2,000 new subscribers would be if all would take a little interest and denominational pride. It is no small task for any one individual to undertake. It is out of the question. In fact, it is really no one man's job. It should be every subscriber's duty and he should feel it as such and take pleasure in extending the usefulness of his church paper.

We are getting many letters of sympathy relative to the smallness of the paper and we believe that these sympathetic friends are going to get others to sympathize and send in their subscriptions to their church paper. If we can do this, "Just watch us grow." May we count on you?

S. S. LESSON FOR FEBRUARY 21 The Death of Eli and His Sons.— 1 Samuel 4:1-18.

Golden Text.—Be ye doers of the word, and not hearers only, deluding your own selves.—Jan. 1:22.

At the time of our lesson the rulers of Israel are the prophet and the priest. Samuel was a young man of God, as a young prophet; while the aged man of God, Eli, is the priest. Eli is getting old in years. He has served faithfully as priest, but as the work of the temple is getting to be too strenuous for the aged man he permits his sons to do a great part of the work in his stead. The sons were trained under good influences, but notwithstanding this they grew bad, and from bad to worse. The father hoped, prayed and waited for a better day; a day when his sons would make a change in life and carry out the work as the father had begun. Eli waited. His sons robbed the worshippers and brought contempt upon the altar of God.

Eli had a good easy-going spirit, and hated to reprove his sons. With all his good traits he failed to give positive discipline which resulted in, first the downfall of his sons, and then himself, together with his household and nation. The bad sons had a good father. "So long as there is a free will in man, so long will there be a possibility that children of the best persons, under the best influences, may turn out to be bad; and the sons of the best business men to be failures in business, the sons of the wisest to become fools. Judas grew worse even under the teachings and example of Christ." "Weak, indulgent, and neglectful fathers sow ruin for their children and sorrow for themselves. Eli's public position may have had much to do with his failure in family discipline. Perhaps his public duties so engrossed his attention and energies that he neglected the proper training of his own children. Be this as it may, it is true today that many a man is so absorbed in public affairs, in the duties of his profession, or in the business of money-making, as to be almost a stranger to his own children."—R. R. Meredith.

The sons made an attempt to save Israel with empty forms of religion without its spirit. As all such attempts, it was a failure. Some people today try to do things with the outside dress of religion but they fail to have the spirit on the inside and the project fails as it should.

God was merciful with Israel, yet He suffered the Ark to fall into the hands of the enemy. As a true God He made the enemy return the guide of Israel.

Impress the lesson today upon the young men of your school. Such an example as we have here of these two boys up in good environments and have all the name of a godly father to build on, still they chose to turn from right and the result followed.

C. E. TOPIC FOR FEBRUARY 21

Favorite Chapters of the Bible, and Why.—Ps. 23:1-6.

(A Memory Meeting)

The most wonderful chapter in the Bible is the 17th of John "The chapter," says Bishop Westcott, "stands alone in the Bible. It contains what may properly be called the Lord's Prayer,—the prayer which He himself used as distinguished from that which He taught to His disciples." It shows us the depth of His inner fellowship with God and it offers, as prayer always does, the most illuminating revelation of His inward life. It is not what a man says to his fellowmen which reveals him. It is what he says to God. And here we have not a man only speaking to God, but God, as it were, speaking with himself.—R. E. Speer.

Every chapter in the Bible is wonderful. In the meeting many interesting discussions can be brought out as to the individual opinions of the excellent qualities that are represented in the Book of books.

Did you ever consider that one's life is made up of chapters? Well, it seems that it is. In writing a book the writer seeks to make the second chapter better than the first and the third better than the second, and so on. When he comes to the last chapter the writer seeks to make that the best of all the chapters. In doing this he has to work all the time. So it is with living a life; we ought to try to make the second chapter of our life better than the first and the third better than the second. Then when at last we have completed the last line will we have reached the climax in doing the best for our fellow men? It is a strife, yet well worth working for.

For Answer in the Meeting

What is meant by favorite?

Why would one chapter be a favorite to a mother and another would be a favorite to the son?

Why would one chapter be a favorite to a mother and another appeal to the daughter?

Why should we show that a certain chapter is our favorite chapter?

A UNIQUE OPPORTUNITY

Never before in the history of the world was there such a field for the presentation of the gospel message. Fields that for many years were closed have thrown their doors wide open, and bid us enter.

China is facing the greatest awakening along spiritual lines that she has ever known. In India, Korea, Africa, and in fact every mission field of the world, we find there is a new and growing interest in the religion of the Son of man. The people everywhere are turning to Him.

They tell us that in China and many other mission fields there are not enough workers to care for the growing church and train the converts. There are not enough missionaries and pastors.

Young people everywhere are hearing the call, and are surrendering their lives for the missionary work and the ministry. Hundreds of them are now in our colleges preparing themselves for the great task.—C. E. World.

NOTES FROM MISS HAMAGUCHI'S LETTER TO MISS TRUE

On December 11 I came to Tajiri to hold a noon-day meeting for the young girls who come for sewing. This is the teacher's house. Mrs. Yoshida is very much interested in Christianity. She herself offered her place to be used for the meeting. Lately she was baptized. She is anxious to have her sewing pupils listen to the teaching. I think you remember the lady who brought a lot of girls to that meeting the night you were here last Winter.

Usually I go back just as soon as I am through with the noon meeting, and Rev. Sakurai remains to the evening gathering. He did not come today. I was going back just the same, but the teacher asked me to stop tonight and have a meeting. She teaches in the school and said she would tell some of the school people. I gladly accepted her kind offer and have been out to telephone to my landlord about stopping tonight and visited that family where we held a meeting when you came.

I wish you could see the new church at Wakuya. It looks quite pretty after it is painted. The tinner is making the stove and the carpenter is making the seats. He donates the pulpit. The church was expected to pay for the seats, but bought the stove and some other things and has not all the money for the seats.

Saturday I took the early morning train, getting back all right.

Last night we had a good meeting. While we were at supper the children and a few others began to come. About twenty children, six young men and five or six women came. The adults stayed after the children left—or rather, were sent away. We sat around the hibachi (charcoal brazier), the hostess entertained us with oranges and we had a good time.

One young man is a Christian, another was baptized lately when the teacher was. Mrs. Yoshida is doing lots of good where she is. Every one speaks well of her. I thought I would stop at Mrs. Watanabe's today, but it began to rain and it is a long walk, so I gave it up.

Dear Friends of the Orphanage: Our heart rejoices on account of the beautiful weather and fine report this week, and here is hoping that each may continue. We are grateful for the many loyal responses coming from our Sunday schools; it is very encouraging. We are expecting more of our schools to fall in line and prove themselves a friend indeed to the Orphanage in this time of need. We are endeavoring to be very considerate and conservative in our requests, and can't see how any Christian Sunday school can afford to turn a deaf ear to the orphan's cry for help. James tells us that it is pure and undefiled religion, and it should not be considered out of place to practice pure religion in our Sunday schools, teach some by example as well as by precept.

We have many nice letters that we would like to print each week, but our department is limited and we will yield our space to the children next week. I hope all will remain true and faithful, and soon the way may open for us to publish the letters promptly as they are received.

NOTES AND PERSONALS

city. For years Mr. Alexander has signed his name on hotel registers, in letters and elsewhere in this manner only: Charles M. Alexander, 2 Timothy 2:15. And the singing evangelist says he will always sign it in that way.

—Rev. Victor Lightbourne is to assist Rev. J. F. Morgan, pastor, in a series of meetings in the Graham Christian Church beginning April 8.

—The English House of Commons has voted to put into the field 3,000,000 men and the funds necessary for their equipment and support in service. England is preparing for war.

—The Chamber of Deputies on February 12 passed a bill prohibiting the sale of absinthe (whisky) in France. Thus France follows her ally, Russia, in adopting prohibition as an outcome of the present war.

—Dr. Len G. Broughton comes back from London to become pastor of the First Baptist Church of Knoxville, Tenn. A break-down in health due to the war and the heavy London winter fogs is assigned as the immediate cause of his return to this country.

—Score one more for prohibition. On February sixth the Legislature of Arkansas passed a statewide prohibition law to take effect Jan. 1, 1916. The Governor signed the bill in 15 minutes after its adoption by both Houses. The good work goes on.

—Accounts declare that the fierce bayonet fighting between Russians and Germans in the Carpathians is without precedent in history. Six days of incessant fighting, often at dagger's point, is said to have left "several tens of thousands of corpses piled upon each other in great heaps."

—Elon College has passed the 400 mark in its enrollment for the scholastic year 1914-15. That to us is wonderful and exceedingly gratifying. He would have been counted a wild man who would have dared predict that 20 years ago. The College began in 1890 and will not be 25 years old till next September.

—Pres. W. A. Harper delivered an address, in the series of College Presidents' addresses before the patrons of the Haw River Graded School last Wednesday night. We doubt if any College President or teacher in the State is more in demand as public speaker than President Harper. He is not only giving Elon College the benefit of a well trained mind and an energetic life, but the cause of education as well, in the State and out of it.

—Rev. G. R. Underwood, Sanford, N. C., in sending his own and another's renewal to THE SUN, comments: "I have been handicapped in church work this Winter by bad weather, but everything will be all right after a while." Bro. Underwood is one of our faithful pastors and as President of the Western N. C. Conference is deeply interested in all the enterprises of the church.

—Mr. John M. Cook and Miss Bessie Sharpe were united in marriage at the Methodist parsonage, Burlington, N. C., Wednesday at 9:30 p. m. by Rev. D. H. Tuttle. Only a few intimate friends were present. Mr. Cook is an Elon graduate, an attorney and business man of prominence in Burlington. The bride is a most amiable woman and has a host of friends throughout the State. We wish the wedded pair much happiness.

—Rev. J. W. Wellons, D. D., now in his ninetieth year, has on the press a volume entitled "Vital Truths for Hungry Hearts." In this volume, the outcome of many years' study, deliberations and experience, Bro. Wellons gives the fruit gathered from many harvests and varied fields. He speaks a message of love, cheer, hope and faith to his fellow pilgrims, and gives thoughts gleaned through the years from the Word of God. It is to be neatly bound, and the price will be within the reach of all.

—We acknowledge with thanks a beautifully engraved invitation as follows: "Mr. and Mrs. Mills Leroy Watkins invite Dr. and Mrs. Atkinson to be present at the marriage of their daughter, Garrie, to Mr. Robert Andrew Rhodes on Wednesday, February 24, 1915, at 8:30. At home, Windsor, Va." Miss Garrie is a most amiable and accomplished woman, a former Elon College student, and deservedly popular. Our best wishes are extended.

—Our good friend and brother, Jno. M. Fix, Burlington, N. C., has been resting for several days nursing a cruel case of rheumatism. He is better now and at his post again as Treasurer of the Alamance Loan & Trust Company. Friend Fix thinks that an acute attack of rheumatism is almost as bad as a kick from a mule, even with so meek and mild a name as Kate. Evidently he has suffered severely and is to be congratulated that he is on foot again.

—We want to send to Judge Hall of Burlington our heartiest congratulations and assurance of the hearty approval of the public hereabouts for the work he is doing in bringing to justice the violators of our prohibition laws. One reason why prohibition has not done more for North Carolina is because many officials are not in sympathy with the law and wink at its infraction. Judge Hall is not one of this kind as the following from The Burlington News indicates: "Judge Hall is hot on the trail of the liquor sellers and says he will keep it up until he has rid that county of every one of them." We could wish other officials in the county were of like mind.

—We are indebted to the Clio Literary Society for a neatly engraved invitation to be present at

RHEUMATISM AND INDIGESTION

Practically all physicians and medical writers are agreed that there is a close relationship between Indigestion and Rheumatism. This view is substantiated by the fact that Shivar Spring Water, which is probably the best American mineral water for Dyspepsia and Indigestion, relieves Rheumatism and the Rheumatoid diseases, such as Gout, Sciatica, Neuralgia and Nervous Headache. All of these diseases are probably related and all are probably due in whole or in part to imperfect digestion or to imperfect assimilation of food. Physicians who have studied this water and who have observed its effects in their practice believe that it relieves these maladies by rendering the digestion complete and perfect and thereby preventing the formation of those poisons which inflame the joints and irritate the nerves, and also by eliminating, through the kidneys, such poisons as have already been formed.

The following letters are interesting in this connection. Dr. Crosby, a South Carolina physician, writes:—"I have tested your Spring Water in several cases of Rheumatism, Chronic Indigestion, Kidney and Bladder troubles and in Nervous and tick headaches and find that it has acted nicely in each case, and I believe that, if used continually for a reasonable time, will produce a permanent cure. It will purify the blood, relieve debility, stimulate the action of the Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, aiding them in throwing off all poisonous matter."

Dr. Avant of Savannah writes:—"I suffered for years with a most aggravating form of stomach indigestion and consulted a number of our best local physicians, went to Baltimore and consulted specialists there and still I was not benefited. I had about despaired of living when I began to use Shivar Spring Water and in a short time was cured."

Mr. Rhodes of Virginia writes:—"Please send me ten gallons of Shivar Spring Water quickly. I want it for Rheumatism. I know several who were cured of Rheumatism with this water."

Editor Cunningham writes:—"The water has done more good than any medicine I have ever taken for Rheumatism. Am entirely free from pain."

Mr. McClam of South Carolina writes:—"My wife has been a sufferer from Rheumatism and after drinking twenty gallons of your Mineral Water was entirely cured of the terrible disease."

Mr. Carter of Virginia writes:—"Mrs. Carter has had enlarged joints upon her hands, caused by Rheumatism. Shivar Spring Water removed every trace of the enlargement. The water is simply excellent."

If you suffer with Rheumatism, or with any chronic disease, accept the guarantee offer below by signing your name. Clip and mail to the

OUR DEAD

Wyatt

Mrs. Lydia Portlock Wyatt was born May 28, 1862. Her mother, Mrs. Virginia D. P. Portlock, was the daughter of Colonel Wm. Ely, one of Nansemond county's distinguished citizens; and her father died when she was one year old.

Miss Portlock married Mr. Wm. C. Wyatt October 22, 1891. She was the mother of four children: Virginia Portlock Wyatt, who died June 14, 1903, at the age of 10; Wm. Portlock Wyatt, a student at the University of Virginia; Claudius Wyatt, and Lydia Day Wyatt, both in school in Suffolk.

Mrs. Wyatt died January 23, 1915, survived by her mother, her husband, and three children.

She was a member of the Suffolk Christian church, a good woman, a good mother, and a good Christian. She filled her life with service that will follow her. "Her children rise up and call her blessed; her husband also, and he praiseth her." Home was her empire and duty was her throne. She maintained the purity of her home and wielded the scepter of love.

W. W. STALEY.

Neal

Mrs. Susanna Neal died February 13, 1915, at the home of L. M. Foushee, Jonesboro, N. C., being 86 years of age. Her husband, N. J. Neal, preceded her to the spirit world by nearly 22 years, which were spent in the home of Bro. Foushee, whom she reared from a small boy.

Sister Neal had been a follower of Christ and a member of the Christian church from girlhood, first at Harper's Chapel, and later at Shallow Well, but now joins the church above.

She will be missed by a large circle of friends and relatives. A large crowd attended the funeral and burial service at her church conducted by this writer, and she was buried nearby in the church cemetery.

Heaven's blessings upon the bereaved.
C. C. PEEL.

Bryant

Born in Rockingham county, Va., February 23, 1876, and died in Asheville, N. C., Jan. 31, 1915, age 38 years. The son of John W. and Armouth Bryant, father living, mother dead. He leaves two brothers, J. E. and Jeremiah Bryant of Harrisonburg, Va., and one sister, Mrs. Adella Rife, Washington, D. C. He was converted and joined New Hope church at the age of 18. The same year he was impressed with a call to the ministry. Later he entered Elon College, from which he graduated in 1905. The same year he was ordained to preach and accepted a call from the Christian Missionary Association to Newport News, Va. Later accepted a call to the First Christian Church, Norfolk, Va. He served said church for more than twenty-five years and would have served longer, but had to retire on account of ill health in the year 1912. Realizing his condition, he went to Asheville, N. C., for treatment, where he remained till the end came. He was married to Elizabeth Gertrude Pierce June 29, 1909, who was with him through his long illness and was to him all that a devoted wife could be.

The funeral was conducted from the First Christian Church, Norfolk, by the pastor, assisted by Rev. W. W. Staley, D. D., Rev. I. W. Johnson, D. D., Rev. D. A. Keys, Rev. H. E. Rountree, Rev. J. O. Cox, and members of the Masonic Order. Hundreds of people in and out of the city were present at the funeral. The floral offering was one of the prettiest ever seen in the city. Interment was made at Riverside cemetery, Norfolk, Va. L. F. JOHNSON.

Steele

Born in Gates County, N. C., March 12, 1852, died at her home, Chestnut St., Norfolk, Va., Jan. 13, 1915, age 61 years. He leaves to mourn their loss a large family, a wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Steele, one daughter, Mrs. A. O. Gordon, seven sons, John T., James E., William, C. O., H. A., E. L., and H. E.

He was an active member of the First Christian church, Norfolk, from which his funeral was conducted by the pastor. The Junior O. U. A. M. were present in a body and assisted in the burial service. Interment was made in River Side Cemetery. The floral offering was profuse and beautiful.

Norfleet

Whereas, it has pleased our heavenly Father to summon to a life beyond, on January 31, 1915, Miss Bessie E. Norfleet, an honored and well-beloved member of the Ladies' Social and Benevolent Union, of the Suffolk Christian Church; therefore be it Resolved—That in the death of our sister, the Society has sustained the loss of one of its most useful and active member, the church a faithful worker, the home a devoted and beautiful life, and the community a choice and gentle spirit. Death was not "tragedy deep and dark," but the opening of a portal to the dawn of a grander, richer and more glorious existence.

Resolved—That in sorrow we miss her, but bowing in resignation to the will of God let us cherish her memory and emulate the many virtues she so faithfully exemplified in her own beautiful life.

Resolved—That these resolutions be spread on the minutes, a copy be sent to members of her family, and to The Christian Sun for publication.

Emmerson

Mrs. Julia H. Emmerson, relict of Robt. J. Emmerson, died February 5, 1915, aged 80 years. Her husband died 13 years ago. He was a widower at the time of his last marriage and the father of five children, Anna, wife of J. Pope; Laura, wife of Robt. Duke; Cornie, widow of Joseph Murray, all of Durham, N. C., and Dr. Isaac Emmerson of Baltimore, Md. She leaves also one sister, Mrs. Mary Burch, and one brother, Mr. C. T. Long, both of Chapel Hill.

THE GREATEST NECESSITY

You can do without food for weeks.
You can do without drink for days.
You can do without warmth for hours.

But you can do without air only for minutes. And very few minutes at that.

For without air the body promptly poisons itself. This air starvation is called strangulation.

In coughs and colds the phlegm in the organs of respiration coats the membranes, so that only a part of the air is effective in reaching the membranes and in purifying the blood. You have partial strangulation.

The blood is not purified momentarily as it should be and the whole body is self-poisoned, for the waste is not oxidized.

Under such circumstances Mentholatum is a great relief.

Its pungent oils tickle the membranes into activity, loosening the phlegm, assisting in removing it, so that the air can reach the membranes and purify the blood.

For this reason Mentholatum is almost indispensable in cases of sore throat, catarrh and croup. Adv.

Tone tonight. Your druggist or dealer sells you a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone under my personal money-back guarantee that each spoonful will clean your sluggish liver better than a dose of nasty calomel and that it won't make you sick.

Wanderers

At a famous southern resort recently the fog one morning was so dense, from the rapid melting of six inches of snow, that the promenaders on the wide piazza of the great hotel had to blow tin whistles to avoid colliding with one another. The whistles were effectual and gave ample warnings for safety. There are often seasons and communities in which the fog of faithlessness and the mist of immorality are so dense that there is need of warning against the contagion of moral imbecility and spiritual depravity. The trouble is that the vicious and the morally infected will not blow whistles of warning against their approach but use charms of enchantment to conceal their whereabouts. If the morally and the spiritually dangerous had to give the alarm of danger at their approach this world might be safer to walk in, but it would be a babel of sounds and distractions. So once for all the warning was given for all to take heed: "Beware of false prophets, which come to you in sheep's clothing, but inwardly they are ravening wolves." (Matt. 7:15.)

Poverty and Plenty

In a cheap and vermin-infected tenement in New York a poor woman, aged seventy-five years, died the other night, a metropolitan paper tells us. "The old woman was found lifeless in her only chair and there was not a crumb of bread in the house. Her little kerosene lamp was empty and there was not one stick of fuel for the fire. Her clothing, made by her own hands from odds and ends, were in tatters, and no one of her neighbors (who often gave her alms) knew that the poor woman had a penny in the world." In the lonely, cheerless room of her lifeless body was found a bank book which showed twelve thousand dollars to her credit in a savings bank. She had starved to death in the possession of the means of plenty. Such cases are common and arouse our sympathy, our wonder or our disgust. Yet there are scores and hundreds of people about us daily starving their minds and souls to death with the rich provisions of grace and the gift of eternal life within their reach. "But my people would not hearken to my voice, and Israel would none of me." (Psa. 81:11.)

Business and Benevolence

One ought to use one's business to improve one's benevolence, but never use benevolence to improve one's business. He who takes advantage of what he has done for charity as a safeguard against his loose business methods or personal conduct is acting the part of the wolf while he wears sheep's clothing. The commandment of the Book is: "Cast thy bread upon the waters: for thou shalt find it after many days." (Ecc. 11:1.) But he who casts his substance on the passing flood in order to let it float awhile, become inflated, and gather it in again, follows not a benevolent rule of conduct, but a very selfish plan of greed. Benevolence, like friendship, is to be enjoyed, not used: for to use either for a further purpose is to abuse. "Let not your good be evil spoken of."

A Body of Death

It was a custom of antiquity in some eastern countries to bind, with chains that could not be severed, a certain class of criminals to the dead body of a comrade or a foe, and so let the stench and decomposition of the corpse bring slow but inevitable death to the poor victim bound inseparably to the dead body. On this account, and with picture in mind Paul wrote: "O! wretched man that I am! Who shall deliver me from the body of this death?" (Rom. 7:24.) And this revolting custom still obtains, not alone in the eastern but in the western countries as well, save that in modern times the horrible penalty is self-imposed. The other day, the papers tell us, a man in prohibition territory was returning home with a valise full of bottles filled with liquor purchased in a distant town. The unfortunate man, bound to the body of death, slipped down a railroad embankment, valise in hand, and fell into the river, from which he might have escaped, but holding on to the contents of his satchel he went down to a watery grave. So many men and boys are bound up with this body of death we are told that more than a million a year die from the stench and decomposition of the drug rather than give it up, live and be free.

Real Powers of Earth and Heaven

A county in New Jersey recently appropriated fourteen thousand dollars to aid in exterminating the mosquito. This may seem like aiming a cannon at a sparrow, but in reality it is training a battery on a mighty and hostile foe. It is not fire and flood and famine that exhaust a nation's resources and deplete a people's strength. The constant waste from a thousand insignificant and unobserved sources, the little dangers which lurk in secret places, the forces and factors which seem too small to take account of, these are the real foes to human safety and security. And so it was not a great army with floating banners that our Lord chose with which to conquer the world. Just a small band of devoted individuals to whom He said: "Fear not, little flock; for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom." (Luke 12:32.)

One of These Least

On February 10 there sailed out of New York harbor for Rotterdam the good steamship, "Great City," carrying the richest cargo for relief ever shipped from this, if not from any other country in the world, to a foreign people. The cargo was 9,400 tons burden and represented the generosity of the people of every State in the Union. It was a free-will offering of a people in peace and plenty to a people whose land has been ravaged by war and drenched in blood. The value of the cargo is put down at $530,000, was contributed by more than 50,000 donors and includes 8,500 tons of flour, 200,000 pounds of coffee, 400,000 pounds of rice, 260,000 pounds of beans, 480,000 pounds of peas, 140,000 pounds of condensed milk (the latter being for 30,000 babies born since war swept the cattle and food supplies for mothers from Belgium.) The food will be all distributed to sufferers in Belgium under the supervision of the Belgian Relief Committee, 71 Broadway, New York, which will bring this Committee's collections and contributions to Belgian sufferers up to a total of over $1,500,000. This, and not that horrible war, is Christianity's contribution to the literature and the thought of the day. And this spirit will one day render war impossible. "Verily, I say unto you, Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me." (Matt. 25:40.)

The Highest Education

The Rev. Charles F. Dole of Boston has recently given to print a remarkably virile utterance to the effect that not Christianity, but the great Universities, as centers of learning and influence in Europe, have broken down and are responsible in large measure for the present war. Secular education will never cure the ills nor root out the deep seated hatred of one man for his human foe; and the only hope of education and civilization is not higher education, but the highest education, that of heart and soul to seek and to do the will of God in all things. Here is a volume in one paragraph from that remarkable utterance: "The world is finding out that we cannot have a bare secular education by virtue of which leaders, as yet harsh and overbearing, or unprincipled and self-indulgent, may be trained to run factories and govern great cities and steer a safe way amid the strife of nations. There is no education good enough to fit a man, however, gifted, to lead and control his fellows, to order vast industries, to safeguard the welfare of states, which is not steered by a supreme faith in the Eternal Goodness, and by confidence in a divine nature to be found, assumed, and trusted in the heart of every man who bears the human form." It is not higher education, scholarship in science, literature and art, that is to save the race and give the world the right type of men and women; it is the highest education that is to do that, the scholarship in heart, soul, and all that makes for God, truth, the salvation of men and eternal righteousness. "Learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart, and ye shall find rest to your souls." (Matt. 11:29.)

THEIR NUMBERS MULTIPLY

The Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America has again put the churches under a debt of gratitude by issuing, through its Washington Secretary, Dr. H. K. Carroll, statistics of all denominations having more than 100,000 members. The grand total of church members in this country now, including Roman Catholics and all Protestants, is 38,708,149. This means that at least one person in every three is a church member. The gain for 1914 in membership was 763,078, an increase in all bodies of 2 per cent. not counting losses by death or withdrawal.

Some of the figures for denominations are: Catholics, with 13,794,637. The next in number is the Methodist (16 different bodies), 7,328,829; third, the Baptists, (15 different bodies), 6,179,622; fourth, Lutherans (21 different bodies), 2,444,970; fifth, Presbyterians, (12 different bodies), 2,083,617; sixth, Disciples of Christ (2 bodies), 1,519,821; and seventh, Episcopalians (2 bodies), 1,026,048. All others fall below the million mark.

During 1914 American Christians of all denominations contributed the record breaking sum of $410,000,000 for home and foreign missions and support of the home churches, besides what was given for hospitals, philanthropies, and war relief funds. Of this amount $18,000,000 was for extending the kingdom of Christ in foreign lands, and $45,000,000 for extension work at home.

In short the statistics show that the churches were never more benevolent, never more active and aggressive than during the year just past.

INTEREST IN RELIGION

The evangelistic campaign in Philadelphia has proven, if proof were needed, that the public has not in any sense lost its interest in religion. The real fact is that the interest in religion was never more intense than at the present. Militarism is a failure in settling the real problems of life. Materialism is gross and brutal and can never satisfy the finer elements of the human heart. Rationalism has been weighed in the balances and never has given due weight to the deeper longings of the soul. Science and culture and the world's philosophy have been tried through decades and centuries and have contributed but poorly to man's redemption and soul's salvation.

There may be, and are, many half-deserted and empty churches; but where the gospel is preached with sincerity, vigor, inspiration and faith, people are always found who want to hear and be benefited.

Mr. Sunday was impertuned to go to Philadelphia for a period of eight weeks. That time drawing to a close, he is now being impertuned to remain two weeks longer. What of the interest? Take this paragraph from The New York Advocate written by an eye witness:

"The meetings are gaining in power and influence with the dawn of every day. But the results in the tabernacle are small compared with the results outside. The special services being held in churches outside of the city and the regular services within the city limits are far-reaching. It would seem impossible, but it is true that the number clamoring for admission to the tabernacle is increasing from day to day. To obtain seats men and women make their way to the building three and four hours in advance of the time set. On Thursday last, when Mr. Sunday preached in the afternoon on "Amusements," and admission was limited to church members, admitted by ticket, before noon every single place was occupied, and, "passing up his lunch," Mr. Sunday began the sermon at half past twelve. But the crowds continued to come and at three o'clock the preacher repeated the sermon for those who had waited. At this second service again every place was filled, while seventy-five persons were admitted to a nearby hospital, having fainted or were injured in the rush. In the evening the sermon was delivered for the third time, when admission was limited to the women and five hundred of them decided for the Christian life. On Friday evening this sermon on 'Amusements' was delivered to men only and thousands were turned away."

Think of a tabernacle seating 20,000 people being filled two and three times every day for eight weeks and thousands turned away from the services. For what? Oh, some out of curiosity, but the great body to hear the gospel as proclaimed by this man of such wondrous power with God and man.

He who walks close to God and loves his fellowman has yet a message that will interest men and find lodgment in the human heart.

The religion of Jesus Christ never had as strong hold upon the children of men as at present.

FATHER AND SON

The late J. Pierpont Morgan, though an intensely practical business man, and absorbed in many lines of enormous endeavor, found time to devote to collecting art treasures. Money and business did not satisfy the craving of his energetic mind and imagination. Among his other art treasures was that of the most extensive Chinese porcelain collection in the world. This the elder Morgan kept on exhibit in the Metropolitan Art Museum in New York. Recently his son, Pierpont, Jr., has sold this collection to art dealers for $3,900,000. This closes the collection to the public and sends to the four corners the patient industry and the accumulated efforts of a real lover of art. The son preferred the millions in dollars to the invaluable art treasures.

This was the son's prerogative as he was the heir. "And herein is that saying true, One soweth and another reapeth." (John 4:37.)

WHOM TO SERVE

All of us serve. We cannot escape that. All our days are spent in serving some person or principle or thing which is above us and directs us in our conduct. Joshua did not say: Choose you this day whether you will serve or not serve. He did say (Josh. 24:15): "Choose you this day whom ye will serve." The choice is not one between service and not service: it is simply one between the masters to be served.

F. W. Faber wrote: "There is one wish ruling over all mankind, and it is a wish which is never in any single instance granted: Each man wishes to be his own master. It is a boy's beatific vision, and it remains the grown-up man's ruling passion to the last. But the fact is, life is a service; the only question is, Whom will we serve."

No man is master of himself. He comes to be master only who maintains loyal and faithful obedience to Him who said, "For one is your Master, even Christ." Only the one who makes Christ his master comes to be his own man and is free.

THE LONG COMINGS OF THE CHURCH

It is so easy to talk about the short comings of the Church, that we are often to the point to believe that the Church is made up of short comings. Many of us preachers spend too much of our time telling the Church what has not been done, but are neglecting to tell what can be done. We have so misread the mission of the Church until many really believe that the Church cannot meet the needs of the world. Our stock for feeding the multitude looks so small that we are ready to "send the multitude away, that they may go into the villages, and buy themselves victuals." Jesus is saying to the Church, "They need not depart; give ye them to eat."

The Church has realized that the dominion of God is vast, including the uttermost part of the earth, and it is impossible to flee from His presence. Jonah learned that the dominion of God reached far-away Nineveh, and he tried to flee, but he soon knew that his effort was vain. The wings of the morning and the uttermost part of the sea were no help to him. God found Jonah, and Jonah found God, and he found Him as deliverer from his own cowardice and selfishness. The fleeing Jonah became ready to lay down his life to save a heathen crew, and their passengers. The intercession of Jonah was heard from the deep, and soon he is on his way to the city of Nineveh. God wants to deliver the Church from her cowardice, and to send her to the saving of the world.

Peter required a new vision for the old lesson that God is no respecter of persons. Isaiah received his call in the form of a vision of God, and there immediately followed a voice, saying: "Whom shall I send?" The idea of the redeemed life as a life of service reached its fulness in the conception of the Servant of the Lord, and the detail of the service to the world, must be wrought out by the Church of Jesus Christ. The whole world is God's, but now much of it lies in wickedness. The Church has granted that God's purpose toward the whole world is salvation, and that the world is susceptible to faith, then the Church, in so far as she thinks God's thoughts after Him, does see man's salvation as the goal of her purpose.

The long comings of the Church are being seen on every side, and we ought to emphasize them, and lay hold on them with all our might. Her intercessions are heard, and great plans are being projected. World-wide evangelization is the theme of Missionary Conferences, the Laymen's Missionary Movement, Sunday School Chautauquas, Young People's Meetings, and private conversation. The Church is emphasizing as never before the universal love of God, and the universal susceptibility of man.

With all that the Church is accomplishing, we know that she has not discovered her limitless possibilities and resources. The cry is for more men, and more money, but this is not the real need, because we have plenty of both. We are listening to the fearful, and are watching the indifferent. Gideon sent these two classes to the rear, and proceeded with his three hundred to his super-human task. The making of Christ known to the world is more than a human task, but it can be done by the divine and the human.

C. H. ROWLAND.

NOTES AND PERSONALS

—Hon. William J. Bryan recently delivered a temperance address before 4,500 students at Ann Arbor, of which number, at the conclusion of the address, 4,000 signed the total abstinence pledge.

—After being idle for three months the great steel mill of Gary, Ind., has re-opened, giving employment to its 4,500 operatives. Frequent notices of this type give evidence of returning business activity and prosperity.

—Bills dealing with tuberculosis are now being considered in 32 State legislatures, in six of which States bills are being considered which call for the reporting and registration of all living cases of tuberculosis.

—The lower house of the N. C. Legislature adopted the Grier anti-liquor law Friday, 19th, by a vote of 100 for to 6 against. The Senate will act later and will doubtless also speak in no uncertain tones. This law is to prohibit the shipment of liquor into this State.

—The total number of converts in the Billy Sunday meeting in Philadelphia has passed the 25,000 mark, and interest increases in the meetings every day. Mr. Sunday is being importuned by the people of the Quaker City to prolong his stay two weeks yet and he may do so.

—“God Stirring the Nations” in this issue by Rev. M. T. Morrill, D. D., is the week’s message to SUN readers. Here is regret and pity for any reader who will not take the time from the busy week to read that contribution through. It is pure gold and is worth all that the paper costs a year. Dr. Morrill catches and conveys the missionary spirit in a statesmanlike manner, and his utterance is comprehensive and inspiring.

—The most cheering word we have had since reducing the size of THE SUN comes from our good friend, Bro. H. Woodward, Suffolk, Va.: “I regret that you have had to reduce the size of THE SUN because you seem to be so much hurt about it, but I want to tell you that its patrons are getting more than they pay for now. The first page alone is worth the price charged for the whole paper.” Thank you, beloved, thank you.

—The Christian Endeavor World, of Boston, recently carried a cut of the fine face of Elon’s wide awake, progressive President, Dr. W. A. Harper, declaring him to be one of the youngest college presidents in America and introducing him to its hundreds of thousands of readers as an active, influential and official Endeavorer. It was a fine write-up and a worthy compliment to a man who merited it. Among his multitudinous duties he is one of the leaders of Christian Endeavor in this State.

—Speaking of mules, Deacon Geo. Washington Ellington of Mt. Auburn church, Warren county, thinks our experience with Kate quite a tame affair, and writes: “Down on the Roanoke river, near here, some colored men were hauling off a mule that had died the night before. The mule having on a good pair of shoes, her pall bearers were discussing the advisability of removing same, when to their utter consternation the mule let go with one limb and sent the avaricious African sprawling about 15 feet, more or less, into the distance. I was not present when this happened, but heard about it.” The editor was for years Deacon Ellington’s pastor and knows him to be a truthful man. He has the right name.

A STATEMENT

To Whom It May Concern—And That Is You!

This is to certify that Jesus Christ and company have opened up a new place of business on Montgomery street, Reidsville, N. C., The First Christian Church. If you are a member of this great Company now doing business throughout the entire world, you are urged to help strengthen this new station, by making a liberal donation to it. Remember, Christ has no silent partners. Thirteen persons have responded since our last report and twenty-one blocks have been taken.

Friends, make an investment and extend your business, and you will be rewarded in heaven.

Faithfully yours,

L. I. Cox, Pastor.

SUFFOLK LETTER

All the Protestant ministers in Suffolk have united, and are trying to enlist the united cooperation of the memberships of all the churches in a simultaneous campaign of personal evangelism. The first mass meeting was held yesterday at 3:00 p. m. in the basement of the Suffolk Christian Church and was addressed by Rev. N. M. Maxey, pastor of the Main street Methodist church. Another meeting of the same kind and in the same place will be held tonight and the address will be delivered by Rev. A. W. Hall, pastor of the Presbyterian church. On Tuesday night a similar meeting will be addressed by Rev. Dr. F. H. Martin, pastor of the Baptist church.

Noon meetings will be held each day in the Photo-Sho building with a view of keeping the interest of the campaign before the people.

This campaign beginning February 21 will close Easter Day, April 4. There are six Protestant pastors in Suffolk and each one of them will have charge of the noon meetings six days, as there are six days in the week, six weeks in the campaign, and six pastors united in the work.

Lay-workers will volunteer to do personal work in the interest of souls, seeking to bring them into the kingdom, and leaving them free to join the church of their choice. It is to be a campaign of personal work for souls.

Baptist, Christian, Episcopal, Methodist and Presbyterian ministers are all agreed and working together in this campaign. Harmony is the sweet word in the movement and soul-saving is the motto.

Some revival meetings will be held during the campaign and others will follow it. Two main objects are before us in this campaign: (a) The salvation of souls and increase of membership in the churches. (b) The real activity of laymen in personal work in soul saving. Some laymen have already signified willingness to do personal work. Four men and three women gave in their names from my congregation last night as workers in this campaign, and more will follow.

This is the first time in the history of Suffolk when all the ministers of all the Protestant churches have thoroughly united in a real spiritual campaign for souls; and we are not only praying but hoping for great results. It is, really, a protracted meeting by the whole church of Suffolk.

Mr. Alvin Eley, son of the late A. M. Eley, of Norfolk, employed in a bank in Victoria, Va., sang yesterday at the morning service, “I Heard the Voice of Jesus Say.” Nothing does my heart more good than to see the sons of parents who were active in the church following in the footsteps of Jesus and their departed. If all the children of the people now in the church would be faithful Christians they would some day fill the earth with a knowledge of the gospel.

W. W. STALEY.

ELON COLLEGE NOTES

Next Sunday is to be Community Sunday. The religious organizations of the College have secured the pastor’s promise to preach a special sermon to the citizens of the town. Representatives of these organizations are to give every citizen a personal invitation to be present and make the day a most gladsome one. The religious organizations of the College were never more active, are perfect beehives of spiritual work and activity for the Kingdom. It is beautiful to see how anxious they are to grasp every opportunity to serve the Church.

Mr. John G. Truitt, a member of the Junior Class, won a distinguished honor for the College at the Charlotte Missionary Convention, being elected President of the North Carolina Student Volunteer Bands.

Dr. P. H. Fleming, Greensboro, N. C., was in town Thursday, visiting his sons and other friends.

Mr. H. S. Elliott, New York City, Bible Study Secretary of the Y. M. C. A., was a very helpful visitor on Thursday and Friday. He delivered two splendid addresses and held several conferences with groups of interested workers.

Dr. J. N. Mills, the millionaire missionary layman, Washington, D. C., is to deliver an address on China and Its Opportunities here, April 27, 1915. Elon shall look forward to his coming with large anticipation.

Uncle Wellons has been unwell the past week with grip. He was out Sunday and hopes to avoid any further complications.

The day yesterday, Sunday, was a bright one in Elon annals. The day itself was all that nature could do in respect of loveliness. The services of the sanctuary were uplifting and human fellowship and brotherly kindness seemed to abound in every heart. It was a glad day.

The College was favored last week with pleasant visits from Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Orndorff, Winchester, Va.; Mr. W. L. Anderson, Burlington, N. C.; Mr. W. S. Wicker, Chapel Hill, N. C.; Mr. J. R. Raper, Linwood, N. C.; Dr. A. B. Kendall and several of his members, Burlington, N. C.; Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Somers, Altamahaw, N. C.; Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Garrison, Union Ridge, N. C.; Mr. and Mrs. Archie Long, Haw River, N. C.; Mr. M. J. W. White, Norfolk, Va. They were all happily welcome.

The Catalogue is beginning to appear from the press—a book of 202 pages that should carry pride to every friend and satisfactorily represent the institution to all. The Publishing House certainly deserves credit for the celerity with which it has done this work. The old-time tardiness and delay have been relegated to the past. No house of like capacity can publish better or faster than our own. Our people should send it their job work and help a worthy enterprise and the Church at once.

Mr. V. P. Heatwole won the orator’s medal at the annual celebration of the Clio Society on Washington’s Birthday evening and the negative triumphed over the affirmative in the debate touching the adequacy of the new federal reserve bank system as a solution of our financial situation. It was a splendid entertainment, every number being good. The following young men took part in the program: W. J. Cotten, Dendron, Va.; L. W. Vaughan, Jr., Franklin, Va.; H. L. Thomas, Sanford, N. C.; Fred M. Dunaphant, Suffolk, Va.; L. C. March, Holland, Va.; Warren McCulloch, Greensboro, N. C.; J. T. Banks, Munday, Tex.; I. R. Gunn, Wentworth, N. C.; J. F. Reynolds, Troy, N. C.; V. P. Heatwole, Dayton, Va.; A. J. Holland, Holland, Va.; W. R. Hardesty, N. Harlowe, N. C.; and E. H. Rainey, Gasburg, Va. Every man acquitted himself with credit and reflected honor on his Society and the College. Prof. L. M. Hickerson, Reidsville, N. C., Dr. J. F. McCulloch, Greensboro, N. C.; and Dr. J. O. Atkinson, City, served as judges of the evening.

Mr. A. W. Warren has just moved into his elegant new home adjoining the grounds of the Orphanage and Mr. M. A. Atkinson.

Mr. J. C. McAdams and wife entertained the pastor and his wife and the Sunday school teachers of their three children at dinner recently. A good time is reported. “X.”

GOD STIRRING THE NATIONS

BY REV. M. T. MORRILL, D. D.

Foreign Mission Secretary, Dayton, Ohio.

Can you hear or read of the marvelous movements in missionary lands without a quickened pulse and swelling heart? Can you regard with no concern events and changes in those lands that answer a hundred years of prayer and crown a century of heroic effort? And then can you for a moment tolerate the idea of allowing retreat, even the least, in this day of terrific world-struggle and strain, when Jesus Christ and His grace and renovating gospel are needed more, perhaps, than ever before? Can you, can I, followers of Christ, afford to allow retreat, when by earnest effort and a little self-denial the kingdom can be kept advancing?

The editor of Evangelical Christendom pithily remarks: "We should be false to our country's highest interest, and should bring lasting shame upon our national Christianity, if we allowed the redeeming work of the Church of Christ for the nations of the world to be hindered or crippled for lack of our allegiance or support."

These are wonderful days on many mission fields. Through Reuter's news agency comes tidings of "an extraordinary mass movement" among several of India's lower castes. In seven states nearly 150,000 converts have been baptized, "and that it is hoped to make shortly 2,500,000 converts." The Indians are flocking into the kingdom too fast for present missionary agencies to shepherd them well. As The Alliance Weekly says: "Missionaries from India have been telling us for years of the quiet undermining process of the gospel, and now the rock is beginning to tumble. Recognizing that there are those who are baptized because others are, and supposing that only a fourth of those who profess faith in Christ are real, is it not cause for praise to God, that the Spirit of God is moving upon the inert deep of heathenism?"

A National Evangelical Campaign began March 1, 1914, in the Japanese Empire, and has been in actual progress less than a year. The Japan Evangelist for December, 1914, sketches the campaign up to that time. Christian forces are not sufficient for a simultaneous movement all through the Empire, and hence a section at a time is worked. Audiences have ranged from fifty to fifteen hundred; the total attendance amounted to many thousand; and very incomplete reports placed the number of converts and enquirers at 716. The Campaign is to run two years yet. "The opening months of the Campaign have been most favorable. The final outcome will depend upon faith and zeal and upon the Spirit which worketh according to His own will. We are certain that the work has deepened concern and increased confidence among Christians as regards the honor and progress of the cause of Christ in this country. It has had a wholesome effect upon doctrine and life, strengthening the hold of Christian truth upon the mind, reviving piety in daily aspiration and practice, and greatly quickening the impulse to spread Scriptural teaching. Besides the immediate ingathering of souls into the churches, the number of which is far in excess of those reported, the Campaign has greatly enlarged Christian opportunity in Japan. Public meetings in a particular community have been but the beginning of a work which should be continued. Doors have been opened and the call now everywhere is to enter in and take possession for Christ."

In his soul-stirring book, "The Present World Situation," written for the press last December, Dr. John R. Mott says of Japan: "When ever I went the halls and churches were overcrowded with eager listeners, and seldom was a meeting held in which less than a hundred and fifty students decided to become inquirers." "A larger proportion of those present at the different meetings became inquirers than in similar meetings held among educated classes in any other land."

The Conference of Foreign Mission Boards of North America, in session at Garden City, Long Island, in January, was thrilled with the remarkable recital of facts by Dr. Mott, who had just returned from the warring countries of Europe with such a story as no other man has ever been permitted to bring. In the book mentioned he speaks of the change in Russia where he "was given the largest freedom to conduct public evangelistic campaigns among the students and other educated classes in some of the principal cities. It was necessary to secure the largest halls in these centers to hold the multitudes of students. 'Never shall I forget those seas of Russian faces extending from the stage where I stood, back over the crowded area and to the uppermost gallery.' 'In every city large numbers of them became sincere inquirers. They listened with that intensity which fairly draws out one's soul.' And war has but intensified the religious spirit of the nation."

The Conference at Garden City was again thrilled by George Sherwood Eddy, who had just reached New York from China, where he has witnessed such a turning to the Lord as is unparalleled in China's history. An evangelistic campaign was conducted in thirteen or fourteen of the largest cities of the Republic. At Tientsin there were audiences of 2,000 students, 1,500 school boys, 1,800 business men, and on the last day over 1,000 were enrolled as inquirers. At Peking President Yuan received Mr. Eddy and "expressed deep interest in the meetings," which were held in a pavilion erected in front of the Imperial Palace. Audiences of 1,700 gentry and business men, 3,000 and 4,000 students, and 1,500 school boys contributed a total of 2,000 inquirers. At least 14,000 people attended the meetings, and twelve newspapers reported the addresses. Mr. Eddy says: "At one meeting held for inquirers who were deemed near the point of decision for the Christian life I recognized one former governor, two generals, a private secretary to the President, the director of China's national bank, prominent officials, a young non-Christian philanthropist who has given this year $12,000 Mex. to Christian work, who is providing free education for several students, and distributing the Bible to hundreds in the capitol. My interpreter was a young man recently converted in prison. His father was the governor of four provinces, his uncle the celebrated Marquis Tsun, China's minister to England and Russia, his grandfather China's greatest statesman, Tseng Quo Fan. Though a recent convert, he has become a bold witness for Christ. In this small group there were three men of prominent official position who had been baptized and become earnest Christian workers during the year. Probably in no other country in the world today are the officials so accessible to Christianity as in China."

And so the remarkable tale runs on, as city after city was visited. Something like 14,000 or 15,000 inquirers were enrolled representing the very soul of China. Missionary H. K. Wright, writing to the Assembly Herald, says: "Here is the most significant opportunity for the Gospel that has ever been seen in China; eager-hearted young men, the flower of her student class, willing to give the Christian religion a chance with them. If we do not get them now, when, in the name of wisdom and hope, is it expected that we shall get them? After the new national life and republican institutions are an old story? After these young men become middle-aged, a little disillusioned, perhaps, and materialistic? At that hour, we may not even have the open door to the hearts of their children. Here then is a supreme opportunity and a hope. The young men and women of the nation are not bigoted and they are not blase; they are eager, ignorant, patriotic and led largely by their feelings. One important condition of successful warfare to win them is steady reinforcement from the home reserves. The Chinese Church is doing its best; may the Church in America not fall behind her."

Not in the life-time of any reader of this article have such remarkable changes and events taken place in missionary lands as are recounted above—and much more of the same kind can be adduced. The writer hopes that many readers of this will send $1.00 or 50 cents to the Christian Publishing Association, Dayton, Ohio, and secure copies of Dr. Mott's book "The Present World Situation." It will send the blood tingling to your finger tips, and lift your courage many degrees.

At 25 Madison Ave., New York, is now for all practical purposes, the missionary headquarters of North America, where statesmanlike plans for world-conquest by missionary agencies are being worked out by the great missionary leaders of this continent. That means something splendid for the kingdom in years to come. More about this later.

The latest foreign missionary statistics are tremendously encouraging. America contributed—

In 1901	$6,228,173.00
In 1907	9,458,633.00
In 1914	17,168,611.18

Native contributions were $580,227.00 in 1902, but in 1914 increased to $4,235,991.44—a most excellent showing. There are now 9,969 foreign missionaries supported from America, or more than double the number twelve years ago. In 9,946 organized congregations there are 1,439,857 members, an increase of 159,286 in the past year. In view of such a showing, is this a time for retreat? In 1912 the total foreign missionary offerings of Christendom were $32,131,234.00, or double the sum reported in 1901.

During the past year the Northern Baptists wiped out a missionary debt of over $276,000. The Disciples of Christ are well along in a campaign for six and a half million dollars for education and benevolences. Their missionary work will be greatly enlarged and endowed. The Reformed Church is just now at work on a fund of $250,000 for missions.

But all this recital will show that unusual things are being done in the missionary world. Quoting again from Dr. Mott's book: "We cannot resist the conclusion that anything like an adequate response on the part of the church, and a really statesmanlike undertaking of the whole task would within a few years produce results such as we can hardly conceive of."

Turning to our own work: The Mission Board deemed an increase of the Japan appropriation by a few hundred dollars justified by last year's showing. Our evangelistic work in northern Japan has attracted some attention; but for two or three years has been severely curtailed for lack of money to enable missionaries and pastors to visit outposts, to say nothing of entering new towns. This item of travel is vital. We must get to the people. And hence the slightly enlarged appropriation. If you, readers, could just pass from town to town, and be thronged day after day by the Christ-

S. S. LESSON FOR FEBRUARY 28 Samuel the Victorious Leader.

Golden Text—Hitherto hath Jehovah helped us.—1 Sam. 7:12.

The twenty years that intervened between today's lesson and last Sunday's lesson was made great use of in preparing Israel for the coming deliverance. Samuel, the young prophet, was not idle during the time. Says Professor Blaikie: "In some way or other he was trying to make the nation sensible of their sins against God; to show that it was to these sins that their subjection to the Philistines was due; and to urge them to abandon their idolatrous practices if they desired a return to independence and peace."

Everywhere Samuel, Nazarite and prophet, led a crusade against heathen worship, against sensual practices, against idolatry; everywhere he fanned a great fire of the people. Inside the mass of apathetic, worldly-minded men he had established great and powerful classes of men devoted to religion, to patriotism, to God, the Nazarites and the schools of prophets; men of ecstatic fervor, an inspired brotherhood with a wild zeal like that which animated the monks of the early Christian ages."—Elsmie.

Israel had sinned and is now in the hands of the enemy; here we have an evangelist planning a campaign against the evils and has aroused the spiritual passions of the individuals. The leader calls a mass meeting or in other words has a great revival meeting. On Mizpeh he tells the people exactly wherein and upon what their deliverance depends. He makes Israel to realize their sin against God and there, without going further, the people bow in humble submission to God's divine will and seek forgiveness. The Philistines on hearing that the people of Israel had gathered together seek to come upon them unawares and destroy the whole nation. God sends a blessing upon His chosen people by allowing a thunderstorm accompanied by a terrific wind descend upon the oncoming Philistines and allies which aids the Israelites in putting the enemy to flight.

We learn that the people repented of their sins and returned to God for assistance and trusted God. As soon as they put their trust in God, He was willing to aid them and He did materially aid them. So it is today if we but trust Him and place utmost confidence in our Maker He will bring us out from spots of shame, vice or corruption. This was a wonderful victory for Samuel and for the nation which he represented. When we give God our lives that means we have won a wonderful victory over Satan. And each victory helps us to win another.

In delivering the people out of the hands of the Philistines Samuel proved himself to be an efficient leader so the people made him their judge and Samuel entered upon the arduous duties of the regular judgeship, holding courts at appointed places.

When we have won over Satan the people about us find it out and we will be more competent to serve humanity, and we will be placed in positions of responsibility and trust. Then we will have a right to claim with the Israelites, "Hitherto hath Jehovah helped us."

C. E. TOPIC FOR FEBRUARY 28

What Will Improve Our Prayer

Meetings?—1 Cor. 14:1-12, 26.

(Led by the Prayer Meeting Committee.)

There are two special improvements that we can make to have our meetings better. If we hope to succeed in having a real endeavor or then we must necessarily engage much in prayer for the coming meeting and pray for the Spirit to rule and reign the thoughts that are thought in the meeting and to give encouragement for their expression. Christ in His work devoted much time to prayer. If He had to have prayer to have successful meetings certainly we must devote more time than we have in the past in order to come to the Christian Endeavor standards which we have set before us for the ensuing year.

The second of the special improvements is taking part in the meeting. The subjects are always live, or in other words they are just as live as you choose to make them. The more you put into a meeting the more you get out of it. This is true; then if we really desire to make good, and none of us have any other motive, we must take part. To make it interesting for the fellow members and profitable for yourself it is essential that you study the topic and keep it in mind all the week so that some thought may come to you that otherwise would not have come.

Experiments have revealed the fact that if we expect to have the best health physically we must attend our meals regularly and partake of the best food. So it is with an Endeavorer; if you desire to be a healthy, strong, growing Endeavorer you must attend the meetings regularly. To miss means a loss of something, it may be to you or

LIFE MEMBERSHIPS IN S. C. C. WOMAN'S BOARD

We hope that many of our societies are planning to make their president or some one else a member of our S. C. C. Woman's Board by paying $10.00 on the Building Fund. One society is planning to raise the amount by the use of mite boxes. The E. Va. Woman's Board has asked the societies of that Conference to observe the week preceding Easter as a week of self-denial and try in this way to secure the necessary amount. Some better plan may suggest itself in your church. Plan to do whatever seems most feasible in your case. It is hoped that during the year every society may have a part in the creating of this fund which is for the establishing of churches where there are none.

MARCH OFFERING FOR CONTINGENT FUND

Our societies are asked to make an offering, at their March meeting, averaging five cents per member, for the expenses of their Conference Boards, such as postage, expense of Board meetings, etc. This is a small amount, one that we do not hesitate to spend for our personal gratification, and yet if every society will comply with the request the necessary expenses of the various Conference Boards will be easily met and no one be the poorer, but our mission treasury will be just a little larger. Let all our presidents see that this offering is made and sent in with the second quarterly report by March 30.

FROM MRS. WOODWORTH'S LETTER

The Oji parsonage is finished. The preacher's family (Takahashi's) moved into it in August. A picture was sent to Dayton and may appear some time.

I have done no sewing except a little for C. It is the first time I have not since I can remember. Ruth's going away has made such a great change in my life. Still I find plenty to keep me busy.

I am getting things in shape in the house here. We had the S. S. room half white washed and the

it may be a loss to some one else because you were absent. This may be an improvement that you need; better attendance.

In the meeting have different members point out wherein the society can be improved. Vary your program, do not let it become monotonous. Have a different mode and manner of conducting the meeting. Other improvements will suggest themselves to the leader.

wood work painted. Ito San is learning to keep the glass clean, and we look rather respectable now. You know, we never really kept house here—we only stayed. But now we are settled down to stay a while. I hope and am trying to get the house to seem like home.

Mr. Woodworth has gotten a phonograph which makes music for us now that all our music makers have flown. But chiefly it helps in the work among the young men.

They greatly like the gospel songs in English. If they learn such songs as "There is a fountain filled with blood," they will probably remember bits of it all their lives.

less people for whom there is no hope outside of Christianity, you would gladly give and work to enable the missionary and pastor to get among the people. May God help us to look through eyes of compassion on Japan's millions, and the million we have undertaken to evangelize!

The Germans must soon start for Japan. That entails extra travel expense. But how criminal in us were we not to return them, when they are just ready to give the people Him without whom they die. May the time speedily come when we will think far less about money-raising and far more about giving Christ to the unsaved.

Already the expectation of a little more money for the work has greatly encouraged the Japan Mission, and results will doubtless more than justify the expenditure.

Down in Porto Rico a little financial leeway, and the arrival of Miss Williams, have brightened up the whole outlook. It seems cruel to keep missionary work under a cloud, when so little will bring the sunshine. But, sunshine or cloud, there are the seventy-five thousand people in our field in need of Christ! Don't forget them! Our missionary exchanges report cheering news from Porto Rico. Cooperation and unity are increasingly evident; the Porto Rican Christians are seemingly at the point of sending a missionary to Santa Domingo. Pray for Porto Rican missions. Push the work! Push!

What of our Forward Movement? The Committee is at work. Ample time must be allowed for planning and launching it. The man who is the soul of the similar movement among the Disciples of Christ has met with and advised our Committee. Someone must be

We yield our space to the children's letters this week. May the Lord bless each of you.

Holland, Va., Feb. 16, 1915.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

Here we come again. It seems as if we are late every month. We are sending 25 cents to be divided between us. Hope it will do some good. We are well and getting along fine and hope you and your large family are well. With love to you and the cousins.

Maudie Lee and Robert E. Howell.

Liberty, N. C., Feb. 16, 1915.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

I will send my dime for February. Well, I am in school and having a good time. I don't know when my school will be out. I guess the children there are going to school and having a good time too. We had preaching and Sunday school, and Brother S. B. Klapp preached us a good sermon.

Ronie Amick.

Ronoke, Ala., Feb. 12, 1915.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

I feel so sorry for the little children, who have no papa or mama. I always want mama to read to me about them when the paper comes each week. Enclosed find ten cents with love to each one.

Sarah Mann.

Roxboro, N. C., Dec. 24, 1915.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

This is my first Christmas eve. We are busy getting ready for Santa; at least brother and I are watching him. Aunt Willie sent me a pretty red and green stocking with bells on it like she gave brother and Florence last Christmas. Brother found a pretty red string and mother helped him hang the stockings by the chimney, mine at one end of the mantle and brother's at the other. Aunt Willie sent a quarter in the toe. I don't suppose I will like to play with what Santa puts in the stockings any better than I do with the stockings and bells. I am seven months old today and weigh 7 3/4 pounds. It has been such a rainy snowy December that I have not had enough fresh air and sunshine. We like our new home very much. At the other house the kitchen and dining room was down stairs, i. e., they were not on a level with the others. Our other house was built on a hill and the kitchen and dining room were on the ground floor as you enter the back downstairs door. The other part of the house was on the ground as you enter from the front. Mother says that when Aunt Minnie Cook carries William and Melissa to see them and they went down to dinner William looked out the dining room door and said, "When I was upstairs I was on the ground and now I am down stairs and on the ground still." Old Dr. Nickols kept me the day we moved. His family said I was a good sweet baby. They surely are good to me. Here is my dime with love.

Thomas Harvey Cheatham.

Roxboro, N. C., Dec. 24, 1914.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

Harvey told you what day this is. I am so excited, wondering what the night and Santa will bring forth. I hope he will bring my desk and other things I wrote for. My stocking is empty, but brother's has a quarter in it. When mama left the room I took the quarter out and asked her when she returned if we had better take it out or leave it in, and if she thought Santa would think it was for him and take it away. She told me to put it back and that she didn't think Santa would take it unless there was a note telling him it was for him to keep. I have such a nice big yard to play in now. We have a persimmon tree in the yard and a large hickory nut tree just inside the gate. I have picked up a basket full of the hickory nuts and a basket of the persimmons. I have not been to school any more. Mama heard a little girl there whoop the third time she took me and she won't take me again. But we caught the whooping cough from the M. E. minister's son, who is eleven years old. His mama says he had it when he was 18 months old, but he surely had it again. One day in the Fall, Janie, the nurse, was bringing Senator J. A. Long's grandson, J. A. the third, to see us. I saw her coming and said, Janie, don't bring Jimmie here for I have something that I caught from Lunsford. Here it is February, and mama just came across our letters. She forgot to mail them. Trust our dimes may help just the same.

Wm. Staley Cheatham.

fought to finance the Movement for the first year at least. The man who really longs to bless our brotherhood has his greatest opportunity in financing this Movement. It can succeed. It will succeed. The two poor mechanics in Germany who appealed to their pastor to aid them in getting abroad to preach the gospel were laughed to scorn, and the minister doubted their common sense. But he couldn't refuse to pray with them. Soon he found himself praying in sympathy with them, and the outcome was a great company of missionaries in the field. Pray for the Forward Movement!

And then a last word: The Rope

Food economy now, more than ever, demands the purchase and use of those food articles of known high quality and absolute purity and healthfulness.

ROYAL Is a Pure, Cream of Tartar BAKING POWDER Contains No Alum

Perfectly leavens and makes the food more delicious and wholesome.

Holder plan did more for our missionary work last year than we dared to hope. It saved us from an annual deficit. It rallied interested friends. This year it has been held in abeyance on account of the Forward Movement; but since the latter must move too slowly to help our cause this year, we are coming forward with the Rope Holder pledges, asking for a thousand signers who will guarantee not to exceed five dollars, if we shall need the money to square up this year's expenses. Here is a practicable plan within the reach of the whole brotherhood. Let us use it to God's glory.

"The next thing" is the Foreign Mission Offering. If you love God and man and the Christian denomination and its general enterprises, do not see with your mind's eye men "up at Dayton" calling for money; do not contribute your dribblets of money "to send up to somebody in Dayton"; but look abroad, and let your soul be thrilled with the mighty stir God is causing among the non-Christian peoples; look at the doors ajar and inviting heralds of the Cross; look at the splendid missionary agencies commanding the services and sacrifice of as fine a body of men and women as earth affords; look at the growing native church, see its loyalty, its self-denial; and then lift your heart with humble praise and supplication, invoking God to give you the spirit of service and benevolence, and to prompt your heart to give and give again out of sheer love to your Lord.

TRY THIS FOR YOUR HEALTH

For diseases which do not readily yield to drug treatment, such as chronic dyspepsia, indigestion, rheumatism, Bright's disease, gall stones, uric acid poisoning, and diseases of the kidney and liver, the best physicians send their wealthy patients to the famous mineral springs. Some even spent months at the Spas of Europe and were almost invariably cured or greatly benefited.

I believe that the Shivar Spring is the greatest mineral spring ever discovered and I believe it so firmly that I offer to send you enough water for a three weeks' treatment (two five-gallon demijohns) on my guarantee that if it fails to benefit your case I will refund the price. You would hardly believe me if I told you that only about two out of a hundred, on the average, say that they have received no benefit. The water is restoring thousands. It restored my health when my friends and physicians thought my case was incurable and I am willing and anxious for you to match your faith in the Spring against my pocket-book. If I win you become a life-friend of the Spring. If I lose I will be sorry for you, but I will appreciate your courtesy in giving the water a trial and will gladly refund your money on request. Sign the following letter:

Shivar Spring, Box 9C, Shelton, S. C. Gentlemen:

I accept your guarantee offer and enclose herewith two dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Spring Water. I agree to give it a fair trial, in accordance with instructions contained in booklet you will send, and if it fails to benefit my case you agree to refund the price in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns which I agree to return promptly.

MARRIAGES

Caveness-Petty
At the residence of J. H. Foust, near Ramseur, February 17, Mr. R. E. Caveness and Miss Beulah Petty of Burlington were married by the writer, in the presence of relatives and friends. Miss Macie Coble of Pleasant Garden played the wedding march. After the ceremony, dinner was served, and then the drive to the home of the groom. There were many useful presents, and there are many who are wishing them a happy married life. T. E. WHITE.

Lowdermik-Hart
J. H. Lowdermik of Cheeks, N. C., and Mrs. Catherine Hart of Ore Hill, were married February 18 at the home of the groom by this writer. Both the bride and groom are advanced in life, but young in spirit and happy. Both have reared large families and both have grandchildren by the score. Here is hoping that these servants of God may have all the happiness which each deserves. T. E. WHITE.

Holland-Duke
Wilber L. Holland of Nansemond county, Va., and Miss Blanche Duke, of Suffolk, were married in the pastor's study of the Christian church at 8:00 p. m., February 11, 1915. Only a few friends attended them.

They will reside on a farm near Elwood, Nansemond county. It is refreshing in these days when the tendency of our population is toward the towns and cities for residence, to see a newly married couple set up a new home in the country. The farm life of America has been the back bone of democracy and religion; and all ancient empires fell through the corruption of cities and city-life. God bless the country home and the country church. W. W. STALEY.

CALOMEL IS MERCURY! IT SICKENS!
ACTS ON LIVER LIKE DYNAMITE

"Dodson's Liver Tone" Starts Your Liver Better Than Calomel and Doesn't Salivate or Make You Sick.

Listen to me! Take no more sickening, salivating calomel when bilious or constipated. Don't lose a day's work! Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel, when it comes into contact with sour bile crashes into it, breaking it up. This is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you are sluggish and "all knocked out," if your liver is torpid and bowels constipated or you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, if breath is bad or stomach sour just take a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone on my guarantee.

Here's my guarantee—Go to any drug store and get a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone. Take a spoonful to-night and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous by morning I want you to go back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying the sale of calomel because it is real liver medicine; entirely vegetable, therefore it can not salivate or make you sick.

I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your bowels of that sour bile and constipated waste which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable. I guarantee that a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone will keep your entire family feeling fine for months. Give it to your children. It is harmless; doesn't gripe and they like its pleasant taste.

FRECKLES

February and March Worst Months For This Trouble—How to Remove Easily.

There's a reason why nearly every body freckles in February and March, but happily there is also a remedy for these ugly blemishes, and no one need stay freckled.

Simply get an ounce of othine, double strength, from your druggist and apply a little of it night and morning, and in a few days you should see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the light ones have vanished entirely. Now is the time to rid yourself of freckles, for if not removed now they will stay all Summer, and spoil an otherwise beautiful complexion. Your money back if othine fails.

First—That we bow in humble submission to the will of our heavenly Father.

Third—That we extend our sympathy to the bereaved family, and assure them that we have also sustained a great loss which we deeply feel.

Paris

Suda Roberson Paris, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Paris, of Greensboro, N. C., died at their home on Walker Avenue, February 10, 1915, aged 7 months and 20 days. She was sick only a few days and her death brought deep grief to her fond parents. Her body was taken to Belev's Creek, the maiden home of Mrs. Paris, and there laid to rest in the Church cemetery to await the call of Christ our Savior. The funeral services were conducted from the church by the writer, in the presence of friends and loved ones. Beautiful flowers covered the grave. To Christ the healer of broken hearts, we commend those who sorrow. Jehovah "will feed his flock like a shepherd, he will gather the lambs in his arms, and carry them in his bosom."
P. H. FLEMING.

Leach

Hannah Leach was born July 6, 1849, and died February 15, being in her seventy-fourth year. She was a daughter of Isaac and Patty Lawrence, and was reared in a Christian home and under excellent Christian influences. Both of her brothers entered the ministry of the Christian church and became well and favorably known in the Western North Carolina Christian Conference. Of the entire family, Rev. W. W. Lawrence is the only one living. Rev. J. S. Lawrence and her two sisters having preceded her.

She was a member of Antioch (R) Church. She joined Christian Union when fourteen years old, and thus spent her life in the Christian church. She communed with God by prayer and the reading of His Word; and kept in touch with her church by reading her church paper.

She married Webster Leach December 12, 1865, and they had four children. She is survived by a son and daughter, Ozias and Mattie, who by their tender and faithful devotion gave her every possible comfort.

She was buried at Mt. Olivet M. E. Church, and a large congregation attended the funeral. T. E. WHITE.

Wilkinson

Mrs. Drury Wilkerson, wife of Mr. D. Y. Wilkerson, died February 7, 1915, aged about 65 years. Sister Wilkerson professed faith in Christ at Union near Virgilina, Va., in 1869, and then united with Union church.

She leaves to mourn their loss six children, four boys and two girls (all married) and a husband, together with a host of friends.

The funeral was by this writer, and she was buried in the Union cemetery. May the Lord bless the sorrowing ones.

J. F. MORGAN.

Moon

Diffie Louis, the sweet little child of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Moon, was born July 23, 1913, and died February 13, 1915. It was their first child and its death was a heavy blow to the fond parents. We buried the remains at Shiloh, and took comfort in the welcome that Jesus gives to children.

Preaching Economy

German authorities are pleading with the people at home to employ economy. A circular has been scattered over the German empire, and we are told, containing these words: "God the Lord will grant to our people an honorable peace only if we show in our household management the same energy and sacrificial courage which are evinced by our soldiers in the field." Beside the most enormous expenditure for war ever known is placed this plea for economy in home life. All waste is wicked and the Bible enjoins thrift. But war is the greatest avenue of waste ever opened to human kind.

High Tribute

Some one said long ago that you could track Abraham on his journeys by the altars he built; Isaac by the peace pacts he made and kept; Jacob by his covenants. Now comes Dr. Charles L. Goodell, one of New York's greatest divines, paying similar tribute: "You can track Billy Sunday across the country by the homes he has made happy, the hearts he has healed, the families that he has united." If that man is to be blessed who makes two blades of grass grow where only one grew before, what are we to say of the man who leaves two reunited and happy homes where there was not one before? "Now there are diversities of gifts, but the same spirit." (1 Cor. 12:6.)

Great Preachers

No preacher of righteousness ever made all his hearers hear and take heed. Many turned a listless ear to the rugged eloquence of John the Baptist. Some were indifferent to the penetrating power of the Master's voice. One went to sleep, fell from a window and broke his neck while Paul preached. This entry is found in John Wesley's Journal just after he had held forth in a certain village: "Some seemed quite innocent of thought. Five or six were laughing and talking till I had nearly done; and one of them threw a clod of earth, which struck me on the side of the head. But it, neither disturbed me nor the congregation." Yet the message that such men have delivered has ever been a power unto salvation, and is that by which the wisdom of God has elected to save the nations. "And they were all amazed at the mighty power of God." (Luke 9:43.)

Golden Moments

John D. Rockefeller gave away personally during the year 1914 an average of $5.95 per minute every minute of the year. Those were golden moments. Some have questioned the methods whereby this man made his millions, but it would be difficult to find a man who has displayed more wisdom and discretion in giving them away. If character is measured more by the manner in which we use and spend our money than by that in which we make it this man will measure well. It is frequently more difficult to spend wisely than to make wisely. And "it is more blessed to give than to receive." (Acts 20:35.)

God Available

Timid men and doubters do not reckon enough on the power of God to bring things to pass. Those who have always accomplished most for God and fellowman were not always the smartest, the brightest, the bravest, or the brainiest; but they were those who believed God was available and, having been loyal and faithful, relied on Him. "Attempt great things for God; expect great things from God," was William Carey's motto. This audacity for God carried Carey to achievement and renown. Every man may well be timid and modest in asserting his own strength and power, but no one has the right to be timid or modest in asserting the power and authority of God. Listen: "The kingdom of heaven suffereth violence, and men of violence take it by force." (Matt. 11:12.)

Facts That Count

It is easy to criticize methods which differ from our own tastes and standards. Many good men criticize Rev. Billy Sunday's style; yet Sunday has done more to make peaceful firesides and reclaim homes in an hour than many of his critics have in a lifetime. The year following his evangelistic campaign in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., the saloons and breweries of that city sold 23,000 barrels less of beer than they did the year prior thereto. And the quantity consumed grows less and less. There are those who declare that one result of the campaign now on in Philadelphia will be ultimately the closing up of every saloon in that vast city. This will require time; but so far the effects of the Sunday meetings have been to increase, not decrease, the interest in religion and morals. Facts count. "Thou hast blessed the works of his hands." (Job 1:10.)

A Revelation

Edwin Markham, the famous poet, has witnessed a revelation. He wired the New York Times as follows: "I have tonight seen the greatest revelation of beauty that was ever seen on the earth. I say this with full regard for all that is known of ancient art and architecture, and all that the modern world has heretofore seen of glory and grandeur. I have seen beauty that will give the world new standards of art and a joy in loveliness never before reached. This is what I have seen—the courts and buildings of the Panama-Pacific Exposition illuminated at night." And those best acquainted with the scene think the poet's picture not overdrawn. If men working with human hands for a few brief months can create scenes of beauty to gladden a poet's vision, what think you will be the joy and the beauty to be revealed when we shall see that house not made with hands eternal and in the heavens. This house toward which we journey has been in course of preparation for centuries, and the workmanship is not human, but divine. Read: "In my Father's house are many mansions: if it were not so I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you." (John 14:2.)

Colleges and the Bible

One of the most hopeful signs of the times is a growing interest in Bible study by college students. Football and baseball and basketball do not claim the entire attention, nor absorb the whole strength, of college students. Times are changing, and your baseball enthusiast may be the best Bible student, if not a teacher, in his college group. There are figures available now which are worthy of consideration and inspire hope. Out of 490 college and universities in this country and in Canada last year no fewer than 30,000 men were enlisted, and continued for an average period of two months, in voluntary Bible study. This large number of Bible students was not confined to ministerial students or to denominational institutions. Of the entire number about one-fourth (7,000) were non-Christian students and a large per cent. were in non-sectarian colleges. These, among other facts, reveal an interesting situation. There were last year in Bible study groups, 1,522 members of Varsity football teams; 1,454 members of college glee clubs; 1,402 members of Varsity baseball teams; 1,053 members of Varsity track teams; 712 members of Varsity basketball teams; 755 class presidents; 983 prize scholarship men; 653 editors of college papers. These figures indicate the character of the men who are seeking to know more of the Bible and its teaching for the present. Engaged with these students last year were 800 college presidents and professors helping the men out in the matter of voluntary Bible study. This movement is largely due to the work of college Y. M. C. A. men who, seeing the need and the opening, began the movement for a better understanding on the part of college men of the Book of all books. The campaign for Bible study among college students is not of long duration, but it is meeting with marked success and seems destined to sweep into the current of college life an almost universal desire and effort to know more about God's Word. It is a most hopeful and wholesome sign of the times. "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free." (John 8:32.)

—On February 20 President Wilson pushed an electric button in the White House at Washington which let go a current of electricity that set in motion the machinery of the Panama-Pacific Exposition. Wheels immediately began to turn, fountains to play, the gates swung open and the big show of 1915 was on.

EDITORIAL

EVANGELIZATION AND MISSIONS

(A Study in Acts)

Understand that Acts only tells of beginnings. Keeping this idea let us find the beginnings of universal evangelization and missions. If you will turn to Acts, chapter 6, verse 7, you will read that the church was confined to Jerusalem. "The number of the disciples multiplied in Jerusalem." Now turn to chapter 8, verse 1 (just after death of Stephen): "And there arose a great persecution against the church which was in Jerusalem; and they were scattered abroad throughout Judaea and Samaria, except the apostles." The Apostles were not scattered. They remained in Jerusalem, and preached there. Now turn to chapter 11, verses 19, 20, and 21: "They therefore that were scattered abroad upon the tribulation (persecution) that arose about Stephen traveled as far as Phoenicia and Cyprus, and Antioch, speaking the word to none save only to Jews. But some of them—men of Cyprus and Cyrene who when they were come to Antioch, spoke unto the Greeks also, preaching the Lord Jesus." Now verse 22: "And the report concerning them came to the church which was in Jerusalem." Now notice. How had the word reached Antioch? Through those that were scattered abroad from Stephen's persecution. At Antioch, then, besides speaking to the Jews, these scattered disciples, not the apostles, delivered the message to Gentile Greeks. What happens? You find a company of Jews and Gentiles increasing so rapidly that the fame thereof reaches away back yonder to Jerusalem. And the church in Jerusalem sends a man (Barnabas) up there to see to it all. When he arrives there he finds a company made up, not like that in Jerusalem of believing Jews only, but of Jews and Gentiles. Now look further. When they finally decide upon a pastor and leader for that flock, they did not send off to Jerusalem for Peter, who up to this time had been chief spokesman and leader, but instead they send down to Tarsus to fetch Paul. Now read verse 26, chapter 11: "For a whole year they were gathered together (not gathered now as Jews, but gathered together, Jews and Gentiles) with the church; and the disciples were called first Christians at Antioch." Here was a new collection of people—believing Jews and Gentiles. Here was a new leader—Paul. And here is established a new religious center, Antioch, and such a new organization must have a new name. There was nothing else like it under high heaven and never had been. And they were called Christians. What else could they choose as a name for their new order and organization? They could not be called Gentiles, for there were Jews. They could not be called Jews, for there were Gentiles. My conviction is that by divine direction they willfully chose this new name for themselves—Christian. This name as a consequence of the teachings of Paul and Barnabas, the teaching about Christ. There is absolutely no proof anywhere that it was given as a stigma. Now have I made the steps clear? Repeat it in a line. The Apostles were remaining close about Jerusalem and that was yet the center, the active center of the church. Peter and those about him could not give up that as the Holy City. For they were Jews. But disciples, followers, laymen, were scattered from Jerusalem and went as far as Antioch. And from what cause? Because of the persecution that followed the teaching and martyrdom of Stephen, a layman. The layman's missionary movement is no new thing. Laymen began in this world the missionary movement. When Stephen, a devout man of God, a layman, went out not primarily to preach but to do things for God, the enemies of God became alarmed; and so fierce were they in their madness and persecution over Stephen and his kind that they drove them as far as Antioch. And these laymen taught the Word of God, and the first church ever founded of Jews and of Gentiles was at Antioch and the first time the followers of Christ were ever rightfully and correctly designated was at Antioch. According to Acts, world wide evangelization began from a layman's movement. The gospel of deeds spread more rapidly than the gospel of words, and laymen, not preachers, established the first missionary church.

Now look at one of the first acts of this missionary, or evangelical church. Acts 11:29: "And the disciples determined to send relief unto the brethren that dwelt in Judaea, which they did." For carrying relief, Stephen had been stoned to death and had become the first martyr. Now the very first thing that the church does (which God has created out of the scattering abroad from Stephen's death) is to do this same thing: Send relief.

Now I ask you to trace with me this movement—this missionary movement, as it goes out from this new missionary center, Antioch. (Christianity first took root among the Gentiles at Antioch). Ch. 13:1-3: "Now there were at Antioch in the church there, etc. And as they ministered to the Lord and fasted the Holy Ghost said, Separate me Barnabas and Saul for the work whereunto I have called them." The first missionary journey begins, not from Jerusalem, the center heretofore of all religious activity, for more than a thousand years, but from Antioch, the new religious center. All three of Paul's missionary journeys began from Antioch and were reported back there by Paul, save the last.

Jerusalem never started any missionaries to the heathen. Some, as I have shown, were forced out from fear of persecution. Antioch became the source of evangelizing forces and from here missionaries were deliberately sent out. Jerusalem was hampered by the Rabbinical yoke. Antioch was free. The education of Jerusalem, by its narrowing, restrictive influence, unfitted it for a diffusing source. Antioch was cosmopolitan. It was broad. It was liberal. A city freer than Antioch was not to be found in that day; and here God raised up the church that bore so honorable a part in giving truth to the world. And so the first missionary journey was begun from Antioch. The glory had departed from Jerusalem. Chapter 13, verse 10 is significant. Adam in the garden had met Satan. Jesus met him and was tempted in the wilderness. So these first missionaries meet him. "Thou son of the devil," cries Paul as he fastens his eyes on Elymas. In every great and momentous undertaking the devil appears to hinder and to thwart. Brethren, if you ever undertake anything great for God, the devil is sure to meet and oppose you.

NOTES AND PERSONALS

—The Southern Railway has recently equipped eight of its most important passenger trains with steel cars, electric lighted, and of the most modern design.

—All SUN readers should be glad that the Christian Seaside Chautauqua is to be held this Summer as last. That of 1914 was a great meeting, and 1915 bids fair to excel it. Watch the notices, the program and the announcements, and prepare to attend.

—In four years the New York Central Ry. has carried 200,000,000 passengers (representing a number twice the population of the United States) and during that time not a single passenger was killed.

—Rev. A. B. Kendall, D. D., pastor Burlington Christian Church, used as his subject last Sunday at the 11 a. m. service, "Which Should Christians Observe, the First or the Seventh Day of the Week?"

—We have some very able and helpful contributions to THE SUN which will appear just as rapidly as space will allow. Read Rev. T. E. White's sermon this week, and you will see something of the character of papers SUN readers may expect in early issues.

—Dr. Chas. E. Brewer, for several years professor of Chemistry in Wake Forest College, was recently elected President of Meredith College of Raleigh to succeed Dr. R. T. Vann, resigned to become Secretary of the Baptist State Board of Education.

—"I love THE CHRISTIAN SUN and am so sorry to see it reduced in size. I do hope you will be able to soon restore it to its former size. I can't do without it and my renewal is enclosed which should have been sent you long ago." So writes our good sister, Mrs. Mollie Birdsong, Wakefield, N. C. If all subscribers in arrears will do likewise THE SUN will soon go back to its former proportions.

—Rev. G. R. Hammond, pastor Christian Church, Le Grande, Ia., is laboring to bring out an Album of Christian Ministers, Churens, Lay Workers and Colleges. Dr. Hammond has over two hundred pictures and cuts now, and he writes that his Album is to be a book for "inspiration and information." The Album is to sell for $1.12 the copy. Any SUN reader wishing a copy will do well to place advanced order with the author.

—Some subscribers are having their paper discontinued because we were compelled to temporarily reduce the size. If these friends would hold on and bear with us for a season they would have their hearts' desire in seeing THE SUN back to its former size. Did these friends want us to continue to give more than was being paid for? And that is just what we were doing, even under the strictest economy, for the past several months. Stand by us, friends, and at the earliest possible date the paper will be again enlarged. Now is the time that no subscriber should discontinue.

—"It is needless for me to take your time and mine," writes Rev. Stanley C. Harrell, Walters, Va., "in expressing my regret at the enforced reduction of the size of THE CHRISTIAN SUN; but if you will send me your list for my field of labor I will do all I can to make it correspond with the list of families in the Christian churches of my charge." This is a very good way to help us place THE SUN back to its former size. Help us, brethren, in collecting what is due THE SUN and in placing it in the homes where it should be, and you will see something happen at a very early date.

—Now a word of good cheer and fellowship from beloved Dr. J. G. Bishop, Dayton, O.: "Enclosed is my check for renewal to THE SUN. I am wondering if my delinquency did help to make it necessary to cut down the size of THE SUN; which necessity I certainly regret. THE SUN has its field, and the field needs THE SUN, and you have been supplying the need in a magnificently efficient way. You have been giving our people a strong, live, up-to-date Christian paper; no wishy-washy soft-soaping about it. Why, if for nothing else, the paper should have a wide circulation for its missionary spirit and teaching."

—It is largely with the pastor as to whether the every-member canvass shall be made and the envelope system of collections shall be employed; but the pastor is mightily in his own light who does not adopt the system if he can do so agreeably since it puts all contributors in a better frame of mind and supplies the church treasury with funds monthly and quarterly in advance. Why any pastor should object to his own salary being paid in and all conference claims raised even before called for and in the biblical way is difficult for one to comprehend. "Upon the first day of the week let every one of you lay by him in store as God hath prospered him." (1 Cor. 16:2.) When we obey that our church finances will be assured.

MEMORIAL CHRISTIAN TEMPLE, NORFOLK

We have recently held a series of special revival and evangelistic services. Rev. M. P. Minton, our pastor at Goshen, Indiana, came and assisted in the services. He is a splendid evangelist and helper in every way. He is a splendid preacher, a spiritual man, a fine leader of congregation and chorus music, one of the very best I have ever had to help in special meetings. It was a real revival. Many of the church members publicly renewed their Christian vows and pledged themselves to a deeper life. Mr. Minton was with us two weeks and three days. Fifty-five have united with the church to date since the meetings began, or fifty-nine since the beginning of the church year, October 1. It brings our church roll over the four hundred line. Several who were converted in the meetings have united with other churches.

Our Sunday school average attendance for the first eight Sundays of 1915 has been 281 while that of the corresponding Sundays of last year was 238. Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Strickland of Huntington, Indiana, are spending the winter here and are a great help in all the departments of the church. They will probably make their home here. They have been of large help in our revival services, and are much loved by our people.

SEASIDE CHAUTAUQUA AND SCHOOL OF METHODS

We hope that you have it in your plans now to attend this summer. The Central Executive Committee is spending much time these days in laying plans, working out program, and will give definite announcement next week as to date and many other items of interest.

Of course the place is Virginia Beach, near Norfolk, Va., that delightful spot for rest, recreation, bathing, sea breezes. Last year there were 38 persons on the Executive Committee from all sections of our brotherhood. The Executive Committee voted to enlarge itself to 50 members. The additional names have been decided upon and we are now securing their acceptance and hope to have them completed this week. These fifty names of representative persons are advisory and consist of both laymen and ministers, and they hold a meeting each year at the Chautauqua and choose a Central Executive Committee to have charge of the activities of the Chautauqua. The Central Committee chooses its own officers and those of the Chautauqua, appoints committees, etc.

Central Executive Committee

Warren H. Denison, Norfolk, Va., President.

SUFFOLK LETTER

The relation between spiritual worship and applied Christianity gives many thoughtful Christians anxious concern. This is no imaginary question, but one that is pressing itself upon the intelligent conscience of the church. Human thought sways to extremes and human society swings with new leaders and new movements. It is by such processes that activity is maintained and progress is made in business and religion. Speculation is a good illustration of this common experience in human society. Since the war broke out in Europe the stock market has either been quiet or closed, and excitement has been in the wheat pit and other supplies of necessity; when the war is over the speculative market will shift to other fields. The stock market will be at white heat and many other fields will be aflame with intense excitement. This spirit, so common in the world of commerce and investments, is not foreign to religious movements and activities. Half a century ago worship was the chief thing in religion. Impassioned pulpit orators stirred the emotion of great congregations, and fiery exhorters aroused the feelings of the multitudes; great outbreaks of holy passion filled the house of God with shouts of praises. Unless this feeling expressed itself in violent exclamation of personal happiness in Jesus Christ the meeting was a failure. Voice and dramatic expression were powerful gifts for the pulpit in those days when worship was at its height in the Kingdom. Shouting, jerking, loud amens, handclapping, and deep groans filled the air, while unutterable emotion raged in the souls of happy worshippers. Those were times of great excitement, reconciliation between estranged neighbors, "making up" between long-time enemies, and a mighty turning to God of the unsaved.

Then reaction set in. Leaders arose who said the world needs applied Christianity. By this they meant practical Christianity—doing something for the destitute in body, mind and heart. A loaf of bread for a hungry man was worth more than a shout; it was more like Christ. Charitable organizations sprang up in almost every community, advocates of "doing something practical" filled the air with what seemed almost a new gospel, and people became active in actual and helpful work. Contributions were solicited for almost every conceivable form of religious activity. Some gave money; others did work. Religious life had a new form of expression and this new form, in a measure, seemed to satisfy religious obligation as realized in the conscience. As these forms of activity increased and multiplied, and as the Sunday school work developed into a great sub-institution in the church, worship, in the old form, declined. To what extent the church has lost or gained may be an unsolved question, at present, but this gives some explanation of the causes leading up to what seems to be a loss in the spirit of worship.

No doubt another re-action will set in in the near future which will conserve the present practical activities of Christianity and revive the emotional and worshipful spirit so precious in memory to the older members of the church and so necessary for the completion of full Christian experience and joy in the lives of the new generation.

ELON COLLEGE NOTES

The special sermon for citizens at the 11 o'clock hour Sunday was largely attended and splendidly helpful. The town must feel the impulse of that discourse for many a time. The religious organizations of the College certainly deserve praise for their initiative in this matter.

Dr. Charles H. Levermore, New York City, Traveling Secretary of the World Peace Union and member of the Christian Education Commission of the Federal Council, is scheduled to address the students and citizens on The Present World-Crisis and Peace on March 14.

Dr. E. E. Randolph is to deliver an illustrated lecture on next Thursday evening. It is his regular Faculty lecture for the year. Dr. Randolph is always interesting and the stereopticon will add to the occasion.

The family of Mr. I. L. Oldham, who moved here about two weeks ago, have been sorely afflicted with pneumonia, contracted in the act of moving, Mrs. Oldham and two of the children being stricken. They have the sympathy of the entire community.

Uncle Wellons continues indisposed at this writing. He hopes soon to be himself again and so does everybody else.

The many friends here of Miss Bessie Holt, Burlington, N. C., are very sorry to learn of her serious illness. Miss Bessie is one of the most talented and consecrated workers in our entire Church.

The College was happy to have visits the past week from Mrs. E. A. Crawford, Mebane, N. C.; J. Dolph Long, Esq., and family, Graham, N. C.; Dr. and Mrs. Kendall, Brother L. J. Fonville and family, Dr. J. H. Brooks, and Col. R. L. Holt, Burlington, N. C.; Ralph H. McCauley, Chapel Hill, N. C. Our friends gladden our hearts with their presence always.

Miss Annie Lawrie Wicker gave a dramatic reading at the Sylvan High School, South Alamance, on Friday evening. The attendance was good and a delightful evening spent. Dr. Wicker, her father, accompanied her.

The Citizen's Bible Class is to have a social in the College Library on Wednesday evening of this week, 8-10 o'clock.

The local Church is to have its second quarterly conference for the current year on Wednesday night.

Mrs. Florence Maceubin, of Baltimore, is spending several days here with her niece, Mrs. Victor Lightbourne.

The 26th issue of the College Catalogue is now being mailed to friends desiring it. Any one can have a copy for the asking. It contains 202 pages and shows an enrollment of 402 students. The chief changes in curriculum are the reduction of the number of recitation hours required for a degree from 69 to 60 and the addition of extra-curriculum Bible courses to be required of every student and to be taught by all Faculty members. There is also a new regular Bible Course entitled The Bible in Modern Life, treating of the Sunday school, Missions, Social Service, and Church Methods. There is a new History Course of special interest, dealing with the Peace Movement and International Law. Provision is made for annuity bonds that promises much for the future. "X."

A Returned Missionary With Her Convert

A SERMON BY REV. T. E. WHITE, Ramseur, N. C.

TEXT: "Thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God."—Ruth 1:16.

MISSIONS originated in the Divine Mind. When we understand God's plan in dealing with His chosen people, we find Him leading, directing, and sometimes driving them, that His plans may be accomplished. There is no better book than the Bible to engage our study in missionary work. It is a missionary Book from start to finish; and you will find no literature more thrilling and varied, and no characters more heroic and faithful than are found in God's revelation to man. How beautiful and thrilling is the story of Ruth! Did Dante or Cervantes, or Milton or Shakespeare, ever invent a character to utter as eloquent speech as the inspired writer uses in quoting Ruth: "Intreat me not to leave thee, or to return from following after thee: for whither thou goest, I will go; and where thou lodgest, I will lodge; thy people shall be my people, and thy God shall be my God; where thou diest, will I die, and there will I be buried; the Lord do so to me and more also, if ought but death part thee and me."

This is a convert's speech to her missionary, and is so full of sympathy, of love, of decision and of faith, that we cannot but love and admire her. We are anxious to know why she is ready to leave father and mother, her people, her religion, her native land, and accept another people and another God. This will lead us to discuss first of all

I. THE MISSIONARIES

"And a certain man of Bethlehem-judah went to sojourn in the country of Moab, he, his wife, and two sons."—Ruth 1:1. These are the missionaries, and are believers in the true God. They leave home and kindred, and take with them faith in God. And they are divinely sent. Whenever God sends a person, we may expect results. True, there was no foreign mission board of Bethlehem-judah to commission this family as missionaries to the Moabites, and it ought to be admitted that this family did not go with the aim in view of converting the Moabites to the Jewish faith. The Jewish were exclusive in their practice and religion, and did not understand the glorious promise of God to Abraham. "In thee shall all the families of the earth be blessed." While the Hebrews were not a missionary people willingly, still, by well directed providences—by war, by captivity, and by famine—a knowledge of the true God was carried to other peoples.

The missionaries of Bethlehem-judah were driven into the land of Moab. If we as a people will not execute God's plans willingly, we too may expect to be driven to our task. God's method of getting Elimelech and his family into the land of Moab is by permitting a famine in the land of Bethlehem-judah. This is the only reason we can see why God should send this famine, as revealed in the Book of Ruth. It may seem strange that a famine should come upon God's people, and, at the same time, idolatrous Moab should have plenty. But the poverty of Israel and the prosperity of Moab is the method God is using to make known His will and blessing. Poverty may be better than prosperity; imprisonment may be better than liberty; famine may be better than plenty; for through poverty, imprisonment and famine, God's will may be wrought.

When the last page of our life's history is written, we may then thank God for sickness, for death, and poverty. Some day we shall understand and thank God.

Let not the doubtful reader hesitate to see the Hand of God in sending these missionaries because of the enormous cost in sending them. Must the whole country be impoverished that just one family may be sent to the land of Moab? Even so. When God has a plan, He will execute that plan at whatever cost. What caused the seven years of famine in Egypt when every Egyptian farmer lost his farm, his cattle, and had to sell himself to buy bread? Just a boy's dream. In boyhood, Joseph had dreamed a dream that the day would come when his family should come before him and bow down, and it will cost universal famine to fulfill it. Heaven, when our redemption was considered, hesitated not in yielding up its richest treasure, nor should we hesitate in giving the best of earth in making known God's great gift to man.

II. THE MISSIONARIES' FIELD

The field to which Elimelech and family were sent was the land of Moab. It was about fifty miles away. The people are heathen, and worship the god Chemosh. Fortunately for the missionaries, there is little difference in the language of the Hebrews and the Moabites, and they find, after all, a people very much like their own. By being friends, they found friends; by visiting, they are visited. Their own sons find no difficulty in amusing themselves with the children of Moab, and when they marry, we are not surprised that they marry the daughters of Moab. The great difference is a difference in religion; and if Orpah and Ruth believed in Jehovah, we could find no objection to their marriage.

The Hebrews and Moabites were related, and so is every race under heaven. If the Hebrews boasted of having Abraham for their father, the Moabites could say that they had descended from Lot; and that Lot's grandfather was Abraham's father. This boasting of having descended from a better ancestry than the ancestry of other races may be very gratifying to our pride, but if we trace our ancestry far enough back, we will find that we are all related. The stream of human life rises from God, flows through every race and nation, is influenced by climate, customs, and religions, and will eventually return to God who gave it. We are all related. The Japanese, Chinese, Africans and Europeans are all related. God is the maker of them all, and in giving His Son, He gave Him for all. Let us suppose a company composed of Europeans, Asiatics, and African. Your European will perhaps boast of having descended from Japhet, the Asiatic may claim to have descended from Shem, and the African will be left to conclude that he must have descended from Ham. If the European insists upon boasting of having descended from Japhet, and the Asiatic from Shem, the African may, with irresistible logic, say, "My European and Asiatic brothers, my father Ham was a whole brother to your fathers, Japhet and Shem, and my grandfather Noah was the same as your grandfather Noah." When will we learn the truth of the inspired missionary, Paul, when he said, "And hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth."

That races and nations are inferior to others may be readily admitted. The Moabitish race was born in sin and conceived in iniquity. Read the beginning of that race (Gen. 19:31-37) and be convinced that a nation thus begotten and conceived might be expected to be greatly inferior to the Hebrews. But as inferior as they may be, as idolatrous as they are, God sends them missionaries, for He knows that out of Moab shall come a convert through whose blood shall descend His only begotten Son.

III. THE MISSIONARIES' WORK

No missionary is able to understand the importance of his work while on the field. Under the providence of God his work may endure for all time. His name may be written among the names of those whom fame will transmit to future ages. Names like Jonah, converting a whole city to God; or like Daniel, influencing a king and kingdom; or like Paul, crossing the Aegean Sea and bringing Christianity to Europe; or like Livingstone, opening up a continent to commerce and Christianity; or like Carey and Judson, winning converts by thousands; or it may be his name will be unnoticed and unknown among fame's heroes, like the brave Hebrew captive who spoke the message that brought health and healing to Naaman, the Syrian, and made it possible for him to know the true God. But whether known or unknown, when God sends a missionary that work is important, and some day he shall have rejoicing in the presence of God and angels.

We are not to suppose that Elimelech and Naomi tried to gather the Moabites together, and instruct them in the Jewish religion. God knew how to lead them in a better way. The fact was not concealed that they believed in Jehovah, and He suffered afflictions to come upon them that they may be tested, and that their teaching may be by example rather than by precept. This is still a very effective way in teaching the heathen. If the men and women in non-Christian lands would be true to God, and let heathen read Christianity in their lives, what noble missionaries would they be! Worthy indeed to be classed with Elimelech and Naomi. The teaching of Naomi is successful. The lessons she must teach are difficult, but effective. Her husband dies, then both her sons, and she is left alone in a strange land with her two daughters-in-law. God has often opened the eyes of heathen by permitting His servants to suffer. "The blood of the martyr is the seed of the church." Persecution, not prosperity, has been the means under the providence of God of propagating the true faith. When persecution arose in Jerusalem, the Christians were scattered, and soon Samaria was rejoicing in the hope of the gospel. When Samaria grows cold, then Antioch receives the Word. During the first centuries all kinds of cruelties were invented to exterminate Christianity, but the more it was persecuted, the more it increased in strength until Christianity prevailed and the Cross triumphed. It was a quiet, patient, submissive spirit of Naomi, yielding to the will of God under the test of human heart suffering, that won the heart of Ruth to Naomi's people, and to Naomi's God.

IV. THE CONVERTS

All mission boards, churches, societies and missionaries are anxious for fruit—converts. The missionary critic is always arguing the

S. S. LESSON FOR MARCH 7

Saul Anointed King.—1 Sam. 8-10.
Golden Text.—Fear God. Honor the King.—1 Peter 2:17.

Israel under the judgment of Samuel learned greatly; they were beginning to realize just what they needed; a profound knowledge of their Father's will. They were as a little child coming through childhood and entering into the real things of life and partaking of that which gave them sustenance and real life.

Samuel was getting old and liable to leave the earthly home at any time. Realizing this fact the level headed and influential men talked of these matters and planned for the future. This was something that the people of Israel had not done to a great extent before; thus showing their progress as compared with their past record. The men decided that they did not want Samuel's sons to rule over them, for they were wicked and would again, as had been done just previously, bring the nation to ruin. Bearing this fact in mind, the elders decided to go to Samuel, their right hand man, and ask his opinion of the future and obtain his assistance in providing for the future. They looked around them and found nations on all sides prosperous with kings as their rulers; naturally they, the elders, wanted a king so their nation would be recognized among the other nations of the land politically.

Samuel being the leader and king in spirit was displeased when the elders approached him and asked him to confer with them on appointing a king. Samuel did not show any anger, but instead went to God and asked the assistance and guidance of his heavenly Father in the matter. God gave him an answer and told him to warn the elders, but give them what they asked—a king.

The kingship fell upon Saul who was divinely elected before he was elected by the people.

The nation prospered under the reign of kings more than they had in previous years. The Lord was with them, for they sought His guidance and leadership. They feared God and honored the king.

We have but one life to live. Are we prospering in the kingdom of the Lord? If we haven't a king, we have no better recommendation than the great King, Jesus Christ.

Especially should this lesson appeal to young men who are seeking for wider things, greater things and higher heights. The elders sought—they found. If you seek you will find.

This young man Saul lived well, lived a godly life, such a life that when a king was needed for Israel the divine Hand had one upon whom He could depend and pointed him out to Samuel. Are the young men and women today living so that if a king is needed there would be no doubt about who would be chosen?

We can get a good example from the life of Saul and the way he received the kingship.

C. E. TOPIC FOR MARCH 7

How to Make This a Happier World.
Prov. 3:13-18.

(Consecration Meeting)

Solomon, in all his wisdom, knew of what he was talking when he gave the instructions to the sons of God that we have for study in the meeting. "Happy is the man that findeth wisdom"; a man is blessed who has wisdom in worldly goods, and spiritual things. God does not care how much of worldly possessions that we accumulate provided that we use them correctly. He wants us to be successful here, but not the success that some people call success; not a miser—God does not want us to be misers, not in making and hoarding money, good thoughts, kindly deeds or tender words of sympathy and cheer. If we have a good thought about some one, let it be spoken; if we have a word of cheer, let some one who needs it have it; do not save it until it is too late. Be liberal in using your worldly belongings. The Lord loves a cheerful giver and will reward him with a crown of golden gems.

"Happy is the man that getteth understanding." Many times we think we understand our neighbor when we have actually missed the mark altogether. We get insulted, "fly up" without knowing half the nature of the circumstances under which this or that word was uttered and then there is strife between the two families and the offended says harsh things about the offender—a quarrel takes place which often lasts through more than one generation—all happened over nothing in reality.

The world will become happier when we learn to investigate the misunderstandings and have them rectified in the beginning. We must understand God, and the relation of God to us. We think hard of God at times when if we would consider it thoughtfully and prayerfully we would be made to realize that we ourselves were grossly in the wrong and there seek the forgiveness of God.

Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Department

This Department is edited by Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., assisted by other members of the Board, to whom all items of Missionary interest and matter for the Department should be sent.

THIS IS FOR YOU

When Dr. Atkinson made that impassioned plea for Missions at the Springfield Convention, our hearts ached with the burden he laid upon them—the necessity of refusing to send consecrated men and women to Mission Fields because there is no money to support them. We wished that every man and woman in our churches might have heard Dr. Atkinson, and been moved to lift the load that weighs so heavily.

The only way to get rid of this burden is to train our people into consecrated givers, who will adequately support those desiring to go to mission fields. And such training must be done largely with the children and young people. Our Mission Treasury received, last year, $36,549.91, averaging about $.36 per member, for men, women and children. One Primary S. S. Class of eight pupils gave $6 of that or $.75 each; when they are able to earn more money their gifts will be larger.

The task of the Young People's Department is very great and we need helpers—many of them. The work is growing, but still the majority of our churches are neglecting the missionary training of our children. Is your church one of them? I wonder why.

Is it because your church is so small? The most live Young People's Missionary Society I know is connected with a church of fourteen members, and the same church has a Woman's Missionary Society as well.

Is it because your church has so many organizations? Utilize those organizations. Erie Conference has a Primary S. S. Class working as a Glad Gleaners Band, a C. E. Society doing regular mission study and giving, and an Organized Bible Class which added mission work to their activities; all doing their mission work through this Department.

Is it because your church is in the country? At least one very enthusiastic Willing Workers band is in a country church, with fourth time preaching.

Is it because there seems to be no one to lead? Perhaps this is the work our Father has for you to do. It is our business to see that this work is done, for the only plan that Christ made for the spread of His gospel is for each disciple to "Go teach." It was taught to us. We must teach it to others.

To be able to reason with our fellowman and find wisdom and understanding in God is much better than silver or gold. Says Solomon, the ways of wisdom and understanding "are ways of pleasantness, and all her paths are peace. She is a tree of life to them that lay hold upon her; and happy is every one that retaineth her."

Won't you help? Won't you pray the Father to send leaders, and then listen very carefully to hear if He calls you to this work?

MISS BESSIE NORFLEET

The Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Society of the Suffolk Christian Church has been called upon to mourn the loss of a most valuable member in the death of Miss Bessie Norfleet on Sunday morning, January 31, 1915.

She was Ex-Treasurer at the time of her death, having resigned that office to accept a similar position in the Woman's Board of the Eastern Virginia Conference.

Words are inadequate to express our appreciation of her worth as a Christian and her faithfulness as a member of our Society; but our hearts feel for her loved ones in their sad bereavement. At the same time, her life among us satisfies our minds that she is now "with Christ, which is far better" for her than the toiling and weeping in this world of sorrow; and we will endeavor to say from our hearts, "Thy will be done," and to carry forward the work to which she was devoted.

We recommend that this expression of our estimate of her character and our condolence for her family be printed in THE CHRISTIAN SUN and a copy be sent to her family.

THE WORK OF OUR YOUNG PEOPLE

We are glad to favor our readers this week with a contribution from the pen of Miss Carrie Robison, A. C. C. Supt. of Young People's Work. Read the article and see how the arguments against organizing your young people is met. No doubt, in most of our churches the greatest difficulty in organizing is a leader. Not that there are not those capable of leading, but usually like Jonah, we prefer to run away from the divine call.

But we are losing our biggest opportunity when we neglect to use and train our boys and girls for God's service. There should

Dear Friends of the Orphan—

This report concludes our receipts for the first two months of the year, which shows an increase in our current expense fund of $127.24 over the same period of last year. We are very grateful for this increase, but the receipts are not yet adequate to our needs in these times of expensive eating. We are not responsible for the advance in prices, but we are responsible for the feeding and clothing of the children committed to our care. We repeat again that it requires $400 per month to properly provide for our family of sixty-six; and we look with faith to the church to supply this amount regularly each month. It can easily be done if all will help.

We are doing our best to enlist all our Sunday schools in the Monthly Offering, and some little success is crowning our efforts. During the months of January and February 66 different schools reported monthly offerings, and their combined contributions amounted to $273.26. We need 100 more schools to join us in the monthly offerings, and we are doing our best to find them. On the 21st of February we addressed the good people of South Norfolk, Berkeley, Berea (Norfolk county) and Portsmouth in behalf of the orphan children of our church. Each of these

Sunday school cheerfully agreed to become monthly contributors.

On last Sunday, the 28th, I worshipped with Apple's Chapel congregation in the morning and with the faithful band in Reidsville at night, and presented the orphan's claims to each of these congregations and received the assurance that the monthly offering would be forthcoming from each of these schools in the future. If we just could meet with all our schools and tell them of the great need and opportunity of our church saving these dependent orphan children for the future church how easy it would be to get a monthly offering from every school. But since it is impossible for us to meet with all of our schools, will not the pastors and superintendents come to our assistance? Present the orphan's claim to your school, and give the children an opportunity to help. They will give gladly and cheerfully and liberally. Try them and see.

cost, and asking, "Where is your fruit?" Herein consists the patience of the missionary and the church. God takes time to do a great work. He can bring a weed to maturity in one season; not so the giant oak. So then, if we have spent a quarter of a century in missionary work in Japan, and have expended thousands of dollars, and can now number all the converts with three figures, let us not be discouraged. Remember that during the ten years of the missionaries in Moab three died, and it cost the impoverishment of the homeland; and after all, we may not count but just one convert. One convert, and she a woman! Let us be thankful for one woman, for it was a woman who was the first convert on European soil. And when we really know Naomi's convert, we will feel that she is worth all the years of separation and sacrifice, and all the cost that was expended in winning her.

Let us notice the character of the convert, Ruth. She has made a great sacrifice. Nothing as compared to what her gain will be by accepting Jehovah, still it is great. First, she must leave father and mother. This is often the case in a heathen land. How nearly did Ruth fulfill the words of Jesus: "He that loveth father or mother more than me is not worthy of me." Secondly, she forsakes the worship of the god Chemosh and accepts Jehovah. Religion is the dearest thing a person has. How the heathen cling to the gods of their fathers! But Ruth declares: "Thy God shall be my God." Thirdly, she goes to a strange land and to a strange people to call that people "my people." It is her faith in God and His people inspired by the noble life of Naomi that produces in her that marvelous change, and makes her such a beautiful soul.

V. THE MISSIONARY'S RETURN

God sends missionaries to the foreign field; He also calls them home when their work is done. Naomi is called home. There is bread at home. The famine has accomplished its purpose. And now we see her converts tested. There is a circumstance in the life of our Lord that reminds us of this parting scene. "Then said Jesus unto the twelve, will ye also go away?" Simon Peter answered, like unto Ruth, "Lord, to whom shall we go? thou hast the words of eternal life." Orpah went back to her gods and away from Naomi, but "Ruth clave unto her" and said, "Thy God shall be my God."

Naturally would we suppose that Naomi's return would create a sensation among her people, especially so since Ruth has accompanied her. "Is this Naomi?" What a change ten years have wrought upon her in a heathen land! How glad relatives and friends have been to greet their loved one and old acquaintance again! What words of sympathy must have been uttered as death of husband and sons is related! Naomi has come back! Then how beautiful and attractive must Ruth have been after Naomi had recounted her faithfulness to the living and dead, and her firm decision for God! I remember when we returned from Porto Rico, bringing with us Francisco Vasquez; that we attended a large gathering of people at Hank's Chapel church. After I had spoken, Francisco was introduced, who in broken sentences testified for God. The effect was inexpressible. The whole audience wept.

And it is to be expected that not only will Naomi find welcome at home, but also that she and her convert will be rewarded. So they are. God never forsakes His servants. He permitted the famine, and He gave the abundant harvest. Ruth gleams in the fields of Boaz, for God is ordering her steps. He knows all about us. Wait on Him, and He will bring it to pass. Naomi and Ruth are going to be rewarded; the one for her faithful work in a foreign field, the other for accepting the true God. Thanks to Israel's law, it provided for a redeemer. "The law was our school master to bring us to Christ." At the feet of Boaz, Ruth has redemption promised. And Boaz, the "mighty man of wealth," redeems her and becomes her husband. A son is born, and Naomi and Ruth are comforted and rewarded.

This wonderful missionary and her convert inspired us in our work today. Hundreds of faithful missionaries—some of them widows whose husbands have been buried in a strange land, are at this moment holding up the banner of Jesus and sowing the precious seed in heathen hearts. God sent them, and while they may weep at times, because of sickness and separation and death, and more frequently because of indifference of the home church, God is numbering their tears. "They that sow in tears shall reap in joy." Thus did faithful Naomi. And when she takes the infant Obed in her arms, all the bitterness of her life is taken out; and with joy she may join the Psalmist and sing: "He that goeth forth and weepeth, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him."

THE VALUE OF FRESH AIR.
The oxygen of the air is the world's great scavenger.

Drawn into the lungs it oxidizes the refuse in the blood through the lungs. But when the lungs are engorged by croup, catarrh or colds the oxygen cannot penetrate the phlegm and therefore cannot reach the membranes through which it purifies the blood.

Apply Mentholatum in the nostrils and upon the throat and chest.

The body heat releases the aromatic volatile oils contained in the Mentholatum. These oils are pungent and penetrating.

When inhaled they accelerate the flow of the secretions, loosening the hardened phlegm and encouraging its expectoration.

Then comes the life-giving, refreshing air—nature's restorative.

Mentholatum is also a germicide and an antiseptic.

It also has a rapid healing effect upon all inflamed surfaces, such as chapped skin, burns and bruises. ad.

LETTERS FROM RHEUMATISM
Possibly you have imagined that you could never get your own consent to write a testimonial letter, but if you have ever experienced the excruciating pains of Rheumatism you can at least appreciate the feelings of those who have been relieved of this terrible disease by drinking the Mineral Water from the justly celebrated Shivar Spring at Shelton, S. C. This water overcomes many diseases, including Indigestion, Gout, Uric Acid Poisoning and Liver and Kidney diseases, but no patrons of the Spring are more enthusiastic in their praise of the water than those who have been relieved of their Rheumatism. Hundreds of letters like the following have been received by the Management:

Dr. Crosby, a South Carolina physician, writes: "I have tested your Spring Water in several cases of Rheumatism, Chronic Indigestion, Kidney and Bladder troubles and in Nervous and Sick Headaches and find that it has acted nicely in each case, and I believe that if used continuously for a reasonable time will produce a permanent cure. It will purify the blood, relieve debility, stimulate the action of the Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, aiding them in throwing off all poisonous matter."

Dr. Avant of Savannah writes: "I suffered for years with a most aggravating form of stomach disorder, and consulted a number of our best local physicians, went to Baltimore and consulted specialists there and still I was not benefited. I had about despaired of living when I began to use Shivar Spring Water, and in a short time was cured."

Mr. Rhodes of Virginia writes:—"Please send me ten gallons of Shivar Spring Water quickly. I want it for Rheumatism. Many of several who were cured of Rheumatism with this water."

Editor Cunningham writes:—"The water has done more good than any medicine I have ever taken for Rheumatism. Am entirely free from pain."

Mr. McClam of South Carolina writes:—"My wife has been a sufferer with Rheumatism and after drinking twenty gallons of your Mineral Water, was entirely cured of the horrible disease."

Mr. Carter of Virginia writes:—"Mrs. Carter has had enlarged joints on her hands, caused by Rheumatism. Shivar Spring Water removed every trace of the enlargement. The water is simply excellent."

OUR DEAD

Brady

Collie Cleveland Brady, the two-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Brady, of Rameuse, was born Feb. 24, 1913, and died February 25. For nearly a year the child was afflicted and the tenderest affection was bestowed upon it. Weak and frail as it was, it was not fretful, but was patient and good. It bound the whole family together and caused them to bend over its cradle and pour out their hearts in love and prayer. Its many wants were never a burden, and its death was a sad occasion to the family. The funeral was at the Rameuse Christian Church, and the interment in the Rameuse cemetery. T. E. WHITE.

FREE SCHOLARSHIPS

Review of Reviews Awards Them for Summer Work.

College men who earn a large part or all of their college expenses will doubtless be greatly interested again this year in the free scholarships offered under the direction of their Fund to self-supporting students. For the past six years over 1200 students have won free cash scholarships worth $100 to $1000 apiece.

President Wilson, together with five prominent college presidents, has endorsed this plan of awarding free scholarships to ambitious students. A certificate of such endorsement is placed in the hands of every student whose application for enrollment as a candidate is accepted.

These scholarships are not competitive in any sense of the word but are available to any student of good character. Each student is apportioned an exclusive rating. The scholarship is won not for class room efficiency, but for practical work during the summer months or in spare time through the college year.

College employment bureaus from Maine to California recommend this plan as a sure means of meeting college expenses for self-supporting students. The work possesses a dignity and distinction which invariably appeals to the college men. It is always congenial and eminently satisfactory financially. Over 150 scholarships were awarded students the past summer. Mr. Arthur Hentzel, of Valparaiso University, winning a $1000 scholarship by 10 weeks' work.

Any self-supporting student can secure full particulars without obligation by dropping a post card at once for "The Adventures of T. Courtney Perkins" to The Review of Reviews Scholarship Fund, 28 Irving Place, New York City. Adv.

CALOMEL WHEN BILIOUS? NO! STOP! MAKES YOU SICK AND SALIVATES

"Dodson's Liver Tone" is Harmless To Clean Your Sluggish Liver and Bowels.

Ugh! Calomel makes you sick. It's horrible! Take a dose of the dangerous drug tonight and tomorrow you may lose a day's work.

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel, when it comes into contact with sour bile crashes into it, breaking it up. This is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you are sluggish and "all knocked out," if your liver is torpid and bowels constipated or you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, if breath is bad or stomach sour, just try a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone tonight on my guarantee.

Here's my guarantee—Go to any drug store and get a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous I want you to go back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying the sale of calomel because it is real liver medicine; entirely vegetable, therefore it can not salivate or make you sick.

I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your bowels of that sour bile and constipated waste which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable. I guarantee that a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone will keep your entire family feeling fine for months. Give it to your children. It is harmless; doesn't gripe and they like its pleasant taste.

Editorial Briefs

Power of Print

In Alabama they have a law which makes it a penal offense for a dealer to sell any paper or periodical carrying a liquor advertisement, the penalty for each offense being not less than fifty dollars nor more than five hundred dollars, and, if the court decides imprisonment at hard labor for six months. This law will work very little hardship upon the people of Alabama so far as getting the best reading matter is concerned. The most widely circulated and reputable publications of the country have cut out the liquor advertisements, and justly so. There is untold power in suggestion, particularly in printed suggestions. And the paper or periodical which from its advertising columns suggests to the people that they order and drink is not only an insult to its constituents, but an open challenge to all local option and prohibition movements. Any periodical in a prohibition State that carries a liquor advertisement is to that extent suggesting to its readers that they ignore and annul the law. "The law of the wise is a fountain of life, to depart from the snares of death." Prov. 13:14.

Family Worship

Even the topic will frighten some readers. Be patient. We are not treating the topic. Just a testimony from "Bobs" (Lord Roberts) of England, one of the most beloved men of all his country, a brave soldier, a great statesman. In the last letter he ever wrote to Lord Curzon these lines occur: "We have had family prayers fifty-five years. Our chief reason besides worship is that they bring the household together in a way that nothing else can. Then it insures the servants and others who may be in the house joining in prayers, which, for one cause or other, they have omitted saying for themselves. We have never any orders about prayers. Attendance is optional, but, as a rule, all the servants, men and women, come regularly on hearing the bell ring." If the first man of England, with all his weighty responsibilities and untold duties, could find time through more than half a century to have family prayers, what a rebuke it is to others to say, "too busy." Haven't time to stop from the hurry and the worry for a season of intercourse and communion with God in company with your family. Haven't time? Then make it. "The prayer of the upright is his delight." Prov. 15:8.

The Gospel of Thrift

President Woodrow Wilson urges planting and sowing to the limit of strength and capacity in all our country this year. In a recent address he enjoined, "Not a plow or spade should be idle." This has in view the fact that tens of thousands of food producers are this year engaged in butchering each other in Europe and in Mexico, and those not so engaged will have to make bread for those who are and for themselves. A feeling is prevalent, climate, seasons and crop conditions being favorable, that this is to be one of the best years for the planter and food-producer experienced in a decade. The Agricultural Department at Washington is fully aware of the increasing need for more food stuffs from the farms of this country and is alert with plans and purposes to assist the producers in every possible way within its reach. The gospel of Jesus Christ is the gospel of thrift, energy, hope and plenty. "Be not slothful in business; fervent in spirit; serving the Lord." Rom. 12:11.

High Society Useless

President Wilson used these sentences in a public address recently: "It is very amusing sometimes to see the airs that high society gives itself." "The world could dispense with high society and never miss it." "High society is for those who have stopped working and no longer have anything important to do." Coming from the first and foremost citizen of America these words will have wide reading and weight. All true greatness depends upon real service. When any strata of the social order ceases to serve and becomes useless no high sounding name can save it. The only genuine aristocracy on earth is the aristocracy of the good, the useful, the capable. This was settled, as a truth, long years ago by the Master, who said: "Whosoever will be chief among you, let him be your servant; even as the Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many." Matt. 20:26, 27.

Too Much Joy

Leslie C. Wilder, of New York, on receiving a check for $2,350 in a contested suit, dropped dead from sheer joy, the papers tell us. This was rather sudden, but thousands have been the men and women who have tugged away at their tasks, overwrought with satisfaction and joy at seeing the dollars come their way, till, without taking the time to properly spend, donate or use their gain, they have died with it in hand, purse or coffer. Money, like fire, is a most useful and valuable servant, but a most heartless and relentless master. It drives its serfs and slaves with a lash more compelling than that of an Egyptian task-master, and gives no surcease of toil or effort till it lays its wretched victim beneath the sod. There are those who are as intemperate in the struggle and greed for gain as many are in the pursuit and passion for strong drink. There is a joy which never kills and a pursuit that never ends in death. "Thou wilt show me the path of life; in thy presence is fulness of joy; at thy right hand there are pleasures forevermore." Psa. 16:11.

Hebrew and Methodist

The Hon. Moses Alexander, a Jew, is governor of Idaho. In a recent address he said: "Not since the destruction of the first Temple has one of my race been elected governor of a free State by the sovereign will of the people." Recently Governor Alexander was invited by a Methodist pastor to occupy his pulpit at a Sunday evening meeting. He accepted, and among other things is recorded as saying: "I read the same Bible that you read; I pray to the same God to whom you pray; and I hope to reach the same heaven that you are trying to reach." Then holding the scriptures of the Old and New Testaments aloft in his hand the governor continued: "This Book is the best business Book, the best guide for business men ever written. Young people, as you start out in life read the Bible, read it daily and make it your guide through life. The best there is in our present day civilization is due to the teachings of Jesus of Nazareth. Let us live according to the Golden Rule which He gave to the world." This is a remarkable utterance for a Jew, and indicates that Christ has influence over the race that rejected Him. In John 10:16 we read: "And other sheep I have, which are not of this fold; them also I must bring, and they shall hear my voice; and these shall be one fold and one shepherd."

Theory and Fact

This notice appeared in the papers under a dispatch from Washington March 3: "Secretary Daniels characterized the naval appropriation bill as the most liberal measure for the increase and support of the navy ever enacted. The 63rd Congress has been more generous than any other, having provided $86,145,535 for new ships, $30,250,000 more than the previous Congress. Five dreadnaughts—an entire division—were provided for." Which fact argues that the militants yet have their way with our government, and all sorts of money may be had for the asking in order to prepare for war. The theory that the way to avoid war is to prepare for war we had been taught was exploded by the terrible conflict now on in Europe; but the theory is not exploded, as our most liberal appropriations for war purposes prove, and despite our declaration, we as a government believe that the way to avoid war is to provide against it. Germany has gone upon that same theory for the past half century. It requires rivers of blood and pyramids of dead bodies to explode false theories, once they are ingrafted into the mind of the public. We will one day wonder at the stupidity, the folly, and the wickedness of our waste in making such unprecedented appropriations for purposes of destroying human life and property. Our theory is for peace; our practice is for war. Genesis 27:22: "The voice is Jacob's voice, but the hands are the hands of Esau."

—Russia first enacted compulsory prohibition throughout its vast empire on the outbreak of the present war. Now it proposes to enact compulsory education. Russia moves upward in the matter of civilization and progress.

EDITORIAL

EVANGELIZATION AND MISSIONS

(A Study in Acts)

It was on his first missionary tour Saul is called Paul (chapter 13:9). Saul is Hebrew. Paul is Hellenistic, or Greek. He goes out not to the Jews, but to the Greeks—to Gentiles—and his name is henceforth Paul. And from this point on Paul and not Peter is the central figure of Acts. And from this time forth it is Paul and Barnabas, not Barnabas and Paul as heretofore. Ch. 14:26 tells of Paul's return from his first missionary journey and the report that he makes. "God hath opened a door of hope to the Gentiles." Ch. 15:36 tells of the beginning of the second missionary journey. Barnabas takes Mark; Paul takes Silas.

Ch. 18:22 gives Paul's return from the second missionary tour. Ch. 18:23 gives the beginning of the third missionary tour which begins from Antioch, but differing in this from the other two, that the tour is completed at Jerusalem. Ch. 21:15 closes this tour. Here for the first time the word baggage is used. This is significant. In ch. 19:21 we have these words: "Now after these things were ended, Paul purposes in the spirit, when he had passed through Macedonia and Achaia, to go to Jerusalem." He is going to Jerusalem instead of back to Antioch. And after that he is going to Rome. You will see all along on this third missionary tour Paul's final leave-taking of the churches and brethren. It is filled with affectionate farewells, for he would see their faces no more. Now he goes into Jerusalem with all his belongings because from there he will begin that notable tour to the capital of the world. He therefore takes his baggage, all his belongings, with him. Look then at this strange thing. The gospel had been preached in Europe, in Asia and in Africa; Antioch in Syria being used as a center and a base. Now before Paul leaves for the world's capital he goes back to begin not from Antioch, but from Jerusalem. In his journey Paul is already away yonder—some third or half-way to Rome; yet despite the warnings and prophecies and pleadings of his brethren he takes all he has, his baggage and belongings, and goes back to Jerusalem. Why? For two reasons: Paul in going out to the capital of the world, goes out from Jerusalem—he begins from Jerusalem. This was yet the sacred city and Paul would go from thence. Second, the Jews were to have one more, and a final, opportunity of accepting Christ. Paul would go back to Jerusalem in the face of death and preach the gospel there for the last time, and as the Jews there had been the first, they shall now be the last to hear the gospel message. But the Jews were determined upon their own destruction. They reject the final message, the final warning. At the delivery of this final message and warning you will find the Jews enraged as never before and stirred as on no previous occasion. Ch. 21:27-36. Here you find that the gospel, rejected by the Jews, finds lodgment and safety in a Roman castle. Ch. 21:27.

On this final visit of Paul to Jerusalem to give the Jews a final warning we have the account of the forty Jews who bound themselves together with an oath to neither eat nor drink until they had killed Paul. Ch. 23:12-14. Near to their own doom the Jews act towards Paul as they never had done before. They despise him with deep, desperate and deadly hate. And but for Roman interference and a Roman castle Paul would have been torn to pieces. Just as these same Jews had cried away with Christ, now they cry away with this man Paul.

In John ch. 13:30 we have record of the fact that when Judas Iscariot went to betray Christ, the Jew's day was done. When a Jew went forth to betray Christ into the hands of evil men, "it was night." Several years have passed since then, but it has been a time of ever deepening darkness with the Jews. There has been turmoil and bitterness and hatred and folly and all manner of wickedness at Jerusalem ever since (Now, look at Acts 23:31). So "the soldiers took Paul and brought him by night to Antipatris." This was the last time Paul ever saw his beloved Jerusalem. And to escape he must needs go by night. It was indeed night with the Jewish nation when Paul departed, for he had come to them with a heart of hope and longing and love. Now he departs a prisoner in custody and in chains. Paul departed for Rome, but the Jewish night has begun. This enmity and hatred and bitterness to Paul which we have recorded here is the last mention of the Jews on the pages of inspiration. You and I know from secular history that the last decade of their national existence had already begun. In less than ten years Cæsar's battering rams from Rome would be levelling to the ground the walls about Jerusalem, and the Roman dogs of war would be tearing to pieces the sacred emblems and implements of the Holy City. The moment the ship which bore Paul left the pier in Cæsarea, that moment a new world began. Luke and Paul could not help feeling the significance of this hour. As they sailed up the coast they looked upon the shores of the beloved but God-forsaken land for the last time. But the book of Acts is not concerned about Jewish destiny. It traces the course of the gospel, shows how a church was formed and how the world began to be evangelized.

Acts ch. 27 to 28:10 is the most graphic, the most engaging, the most vivid section of this book of beginnings. It is the story of the gospel on the way to Rome. It is a description of the evangelist's tour to the world's capital. There is nothing superior, if equal to this masterly account in all literature. It is marked with detail and exciting situations. Now one of two things is evident. Luke has suddenly descended to the low level of a novelist and is trying to embellish the closing pages of his record with striking detail, or in this section the great writer reaches the climax of a great masterpiece. The former theory is absurd. A man who had written with such accuracy and exactness about the resurrection as a theme, and the Holy Ghost as a great Person, and the church as a divine institution, would not now in the closing chapters descend to the level of the novelist, or strive to embellish with exciting incidents a work so grave and wondrous. No, indeed. In Paul's wonderful and eventful journey from Jerusalem to Rome, we find the history of that supreme moment in God's dealings with men when his mercy forsook his ancient people and went to the world. Paul and Luke may look back with pity and deep sorrow upon the Jerusalem that has stoned the prophets and killed those who were sent to warn and to save them; but they are looking forward also to that new world to which they were going where all was problematical, except as they knew that God was with them. This accounts for the interest with which Luke writes, and explains the minute particularity of this long and eventful journey. All succeeding history hinged upon its outcome.

Luke does not tell what became of Paul. It was not within his scope. He lodged him in Rome, and once there Paul could exclaim in

Col. 1:23, "the gospel had been preached in all creation under heaven."

Three practical observations: First, evil men and satanic forces may hinder, but they cannot stop the gospel message. Second, opportunities may last a life time; they will not continue forever. Third, the workers die, but the work goes on. It mattered not to Luke where or how Paul died. His work went on. The Gospel is still being preached. Brethren, you and I may die and must die and will be buried and our places be forgotten; but we are engaged in an immortal work. God is in it. It is worthy of our best efforts, our heart's devotion, our noblest sacrifices. Let us give ourselves to it so that beyond the turmoil and ship-wrecks of life we may exclaim, "The Gospel still lives and God is with his people." Missions must go to all the earth and world-wide evangelization must be realized, for God the great Jehovah is pledged to it. What part shall YOU readers have in this divine movement?

PAGANISM AND POVERTY

You have heard it said that the pagan religion was good enough for the pagan; that to take away his religion and give him that of Christianity would be a misfit. How far from the truth this doctrine is may be judged from the following data: "The poverty of the people of India is proverbial. A day laborer receives less than ten cents a day, even when he can get work. An Indian member of the British Parliament estimated that the average income per capita in India is only seven dollars a year. In England the average income is $210 a year; in India it is only $10. Forty million people lie down hungry every night in India upon a mud floor, who have had only one meal, or at most two scanty meals, during the day. Men, women and children all work together in the fields; yet only 47 per cent. of the population have work, while 53 per cent. are dependent." India is one of the most fertile countries on earth, with a favorable and salubrious climate. India's hunger, poverty, want, are due to the religion of that benighted land. Out of care for those in distress and in hunger we owe it to India and other pagan countries to give them the religion of Christianity. "If ye be willing and obedient, ye shall eat the good of the land; but if ye refuse and rebel, ye shall be devoured of the sword." Isa. 1:19.

NOTES AND PERSONALS

—By all means read in this issue the splendid letter from Porto Rico by Miss Olive G. Williams. It is the feature of the week and is worth the whole issue.

—Former editor of THE SUN, Rev. W. G. Clements, sympathizes with us in being compelled to reduce the size of THE SUN and talks the right way in his Field Notes this week to help put it back to its proper size. Thanks, beloved. All we ask is the co-operation of pastors, and THE SUN will come into its own.

—Raleigh Christian Advocate, March 4: "Rev. H. Scholz, superintendent of Macon graded school, preached at Warren Plains last Sunday afternoon, and his practical, helpful discourse was greatly enjoyed." Bro. Scholz is one of our strong and capable ministers and should be employed for his full time in the pulpit.

—Rev. J. F. Morgan, Graham, N. C., has a very inspiring and helpful address in the March number of The Baraca-Philathea Herald entitled, "The Personality That Wins." The suggestive division is: (1) A Sympathizing Personality; (2) An Inventive Personality;

(3) A Courageous Personality. Bro. Morgan thinks if one will develop these three traits one will have a winning personality.

—A good friend and dear brother who has had THE CHRISTIAN SUN in his home since he has had a home, writes: "My! my! some subscribers having their subscriptions discontinued because of enforced reduction in size! Enclosed find $3.00, half of which renews my subscription which is not due till May, and the other to pay for one of those discontinuing or some more worthy person who is not able to pay for it." Now if enough of this good sort may be found we shall soon have the number required to enable us to go back to the desired size.

—Alamance Gleaner, Graham, March 4th: "Rev. J. F. Morgan, pastor of the Graham Christian church, will leave Graham on March 5th for the Valley of Virginia to conduct an evangelistic meeting in the Bethlehem Christian church, near Harrisonburg, Va. The meeting will continue through the second Sunday. The pulpit at the Graham Christian church will be filled on the 2nd Sunday at 11 o'clock by Rev. J. V. Knight, formerly of Alabama, but now of Elon College. Mr. Knight will also preach at New Providence in the afternoon of the same Sunday at 3:30 o'clock. A treat is in store for those who hear this gifted young preacher, and it is hoped many of the people of Graham will hear him."

—From our good friends and close reader of THE SUN, Sister Alice Gibson Miller, Buell, Va.: "I love our church paper better than ever. For the past year it has seemed to run over with good things. What I like about it, is there is something each week along every line of Christian work, the S. S. lesson, Christian Endeavor, Cradle Roll, and our own Woman's Missionary Department. I am grieved that the size of THE SUN had to be reduced and I do hope our people will rally to it now and make it possible to go back to the former size. All should do this for the sake of the cause we love." If our friends and subscribers will stand by us now we hope to give the larger sized paper at an early date. Now is the time to help.

SEASIDE CHAUTAUQUA AND SCHOOL OF METHODS

The auditorium which was used for the Chautauqua last year has been rented again this year. The time has been fixed to open the Chautauqua on Monday night as last year with a sermon and close Sunday night following. The dates are July 19-25. It will be a good thing to put that date in your note book and let nothing crowd it out, for that will be the time when you are to be at Virginia Beach.

The Central Executive Committee is at work on the program and announcements of its headway will be made from time to time. Work, faith, prayer, were the elements of success last year. We bespeak from each one that we may have the same hearty co-operation as last year.

The General Executive Committee of fifty has been completed and we are sure that each one of the fifty will help to make the School of Methods known in his community.

Last year was our first and we felt that the session must be of high order if it were to be anything. To make it a success five brethren said: "Give us a good Chautauqua and you ren were ready with their $80 and expected to pay it, but their brethren said we will share that with you, for we have been pleased with the work, and they were allowed to contribute but $25 each.

needed was about $400 and each of those brethren may draw on each of us for any amount up to one hundred dollars if necessary to make up any shortage in funds." That gave the Committee in charge spirit to work. It was a success. When the Chautauqua closed the amount

The Executive Committee voted at the time that we should raise another $500 guarantee fund for this year, also, that our brotherhood should have an opportunity to share in this fund. These same five brethren have given $25 each toward that fund this year. We desire to have other brethren send us guarantee pledges toward the $500. You who are interested in the work of the Christian Church, this denominational training school, from all sections of our brotherhood, you who want this Chautauqua to have backing send your pledges, and do it now.

If all will help to increase the attendance this year we may not need to use all or any of the guaranty fund.

SUFFOLK LETTER

Miss Bessie Norfleet was born March 1, 1870, and died January 31, 1915. She united with the Suffolk Christian church, July 25, 1885.

Her mother, who was a charter member of the church, was an invalid for years, and Bessie cared for her as a mother cares for a child. Her brother John's wife died leaving two little boys. She cared for them and they are both in college now.

After her mother's death, five years ago, she devoted herself largely to Christian activity. At the time of her death, she was Sabbath school teacher; Superintendent of the Willing Workers in the church; Vice-Leader of the Ministering Circle of King's Daughters; Corresponding Secretary-Treasurer of the Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Board of the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference; and Ex-Treasurer of the Ladies' Benevolent and Social Club of the Suffolk church. Truly it could be said of her, "This woman was full of good works and alms deeds which she did."

A great congregation attended the services in the church and the casket was buried under a garden of flowers. Praise of her was on every lip, and love for her in every heart. If all the objects of her loving help could have stood up in that throng, it would have made all weep for joy that such a spirit had lived in our midst. "A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches, and loving favor rather than silver and gold." Few young women have left such an impress on her community as this devoted ministering soul; but she is now with mother over there.

The most beautiful life and the most useful life is the simple Christian life. It has the promise of the "life that now is and of that which is to come." This life in Christ does not rob us of any good in this present world; but it adds to the good in this present world the glory of the world to come.

It is strange that mortals will spend their strength upon things that perish in the using, and neglect that "good part" which was Mary's crown and glory. The consecration of young life to God and the service of mankind develops the finest qualities of mind and heart and opens the only field at all worthy of the best human gifts. To follow the largest and best things brings out the noblest powers into the highest service. Christianity offers the only field for the proper exercise of all the divinely bestowed functions of the soul; time is not given in this life for the full service of such a life; "their works do follow them."

ELON COLLEGE NOTES

The College pastor, Dr. J. O. Atkinson, was lent to the Spartanburg, S. C., Y. M. C. A. Sunday, where he was to speak. We congratulate that organization Dr. J. U. Newman was scheduled to supply the College pulpit, but could not for sickness. President B. B. Dougherty, of the Appalachian Training School, Boone, N. C., made a short address. He was followed by the president of the College, in lieu of the regular preaching service.

Mr. W. G. Amick and wife, of West Virginia, visited their brother, Dr. T. C. Amick, here the past week. On Saturday Dr. Amick accompanied them to the old home near Liberty.

Mr. W. L. Smith, our genial cashier, has been quite unwell the past week. Miss Lessie Wagoner, Gibsonville, N. C., has relieved him. He is reported as better and his many friends will soon delight to see him out again.

President B. B. Dougherty, Boone, N. C., is one of Elon's good friends. He stopped over Saturday and Sunday to pay us a visit. He always cheers when he comes, and we are glad ever to have him. Several Elon graduates have taught in his institution.

We were glad during the past week to see among visitors the following good friends: Mr. I. H. Dunlap, Bonlee, N. C.; Rev. J. F. Morgan, Graham, N. C.; Prof. E. L. Daughtry, Gibsonville, N. C.; Mr. E. A. Stone, Charlotte, N. C.

Because of inclement weath Dr. E. E. Randolph's lecture scheduled for last Thursday evening has been postponed till Saturday evening, the 13th. It will be an illustrated lecture. All are invited to attend.

Dr. W. P. Lawrence was quite unwell Sunday, having suffered on acute attack of gastritis. He is reported as doing well now.

Dr. Frank S. Child is suffering from rheumatic gout and will not be able to fill his Elon engagement this year. There is universal regret here and I am sure there will be among the large circle of Dr. Child's Southern friends.

A quiet marriage was celebrated here at the home of Mr. W. E. Lowe, on Wednesday, March 3, when Rev. J. V. Knight united in marriage Mr. E. R. Moore and Miss Sue Francis White, both of Burlington. A few especial friends only were present. We wish them well.

Mr. A. A. Riddle, Elon's chief engineer, has been in several days with "grippe." He is better at this writing. There is much sickness in the town at this time, barely a home being unafflicted, but very little among the students. Colds and grippe are the chief kinds of sickness prevailing.

The Winter Term examinations began Monday and close on Saturday of this week, two being given each day.

Mrs. W. A. Harper spent the week-end at her old home, Union Ridge, visiting her mother, who has been quite ill the past week.

Dr. W. W. Staley's book, The Minister, arrived at the College on Saturday. Any book from Dr. Staley's pen is worth while, but this one is a gem.

The Social Committee of the Citizens' Bible Class, Mrs. Sallie Holland, chairman, entertained the class most delightfully in the college library Wednesday evening. President Harper, teacher of the class, made an address on Bible study and there was a Bible contest which was much enjoyed. Mrs. M. E. Winston, Misses Linda Barnes and Lois Davidson served refreshments. The two hours, from 8 to 10, were much enjoyed by the 30 or more members and ex-members of the class.

FROM ONE OF OUR PORTO RICAN MISSIONARIES

No. 3 Bertoldi, Ponce, Porto Rico.

DEAR EDITOR:

When appointed to work in Porto Rico I found it almost impossible to obtain any up-to-date information about this island, and what I did learn, I found, upon my arrival here, was obsolete. So I have been busy collecting some statistics, and in my search for information secured a copy of a book written last year by A. Hayatt Verrill, which gives a good deal of up-to-date information and from the statistics given in that book are taken the ones cited in this letter.

Porto Rico was discovered by Columbus upon his second voyage and one of the romantic and adventurous noblemen who was with him on that trip, Juan Ponce de Leon, was so thrilled with admiration at the wonderful luxuriance and fertility of the island that he sailed from Santa Domingo in 1508 and established a home on this island, building the Casa Blanca and the old Spanish fort which are among the first sights to greet the eyes of the tourist arriving at San Juan.

To quote from the book mentioned above: "When the Americans took possession of the island in 1898 Porto Rico was like all true Spanish-American countries, quaint, quiet, picturesque, and with an indefinable charm or 'atmosphere' impossible to picture or describe. For 400 years the people had lived in more or less the same manner, their homes were of Spanish or Moorish style, their lives were simple, their wants few, business reverses or competition troubled them not. No one gave a thought of tomorrow, and bull-fights, cock-fights, dances and the lottery were the amusements of the people."

In 1898, after four centuries of civilized government, there was but one building on the island especially erected for school purposes; the total enrollment in the public schools was but 26,000; 80 per cent. of the children of school age, and 73 per cent of the males of voting age, were illiterate, unable to read or write. A million souls with this high percentage of illiteracy were domiciled within 3,600 square miles, a population of approximately 300 to the square mile.

The people have responded magnificently to their opportunities and the inspiration of educational advancement is obvious throughout the island. The public school enrollment has been increased from 26,000 to 161,785.

A law has been passed regulating the work of children, and protecting them against dangerous occupations. Night schools have been established, instruction in agriculture, in manual training and domestic science is being taught in the public schools.

San Juan is one of the most picturesque cities I had ever visited, and Porto Rico has rightly been called "the Isle of Enchantment." The trip across the island in an automobile over the most perfect highway I had ever travelled and through scenery which is beautiful beyond description, deepened this impression. The absence of forests enabled one to obtain a better view of the mountains, the valleys and plains; now a deep ravine yawns beneath the road, and we look down upon groves of bananas, coffee or fruit trees, then we come to mountainsides which look as though covered with snow, but on near approach are found to be covered with tobacco grown under a shade of canvas. Still the road winds upward, and upward, almost as smooth as a paved street, until the crest of the mountain range is reached and we begin the descent.

Along this road we have passed many native huts built of palm leaves, some frame dwelling houses, and a number of typical old time Spanish towns. On the road we pass automobile parties, men riding ponies with queer baskets, or panniers, upon either side, in which they are taking produce to market. Again we see people plowing with four oxen hitched to the plow; we see carts drawn by oxen; again queer covered wagons filled with fruit and drawn by six oxen; then we see people walking and carrying baskets upon their heads. Suddenly a turn in the road will show us the American flag floating above a little school house, and within we see the children bending over their desks, and the teacher, sometimes an American girl, sometimes a Porto Rican, standing at her desk.

As the road descends toward the Southern Coast we notice that we are in the midst of the sugar plantations, and after a time we catch a glimpse of the blue waters of the Caribbean Sea, long before we reach Ponce, the principal city of the southern coast. It is not on the sea coast, but about two miles in from the port. A street car leads from the city to the port.

Ponce is different from any city I ever visited. The natives adhere strictly to the old Spanish custom of building their houses right up to the side walks and in the rear have their rose gardens and palm trees. Viewed from a distance one sees pink and blue and buff houses nestled beneath clumps of palm trees. In the city the streets are unrelieved by any shade, house after house differing from its neighbor only in the colors. The people have adopted the American style of dress. Electric light poles and telephone poles are seen everywhere, with a perfect mass of what at first seems to be birds' nests fastened to the wires; but a closer look shows it to be orchids, an air plant. The water supply is brought in an aqueduct from a spring miles away. There is an artificial ice plant in the city.

Porto Ricans are very proud of their beautiful island, and the authorities here in Ponce are now engaged in beautifying their park, which already has a magnificent fountain in its center. All last week rich earth was being hauled, flower beds laid out, trees planted and grass plots made. This will be a bower of beauty in a few weeks.

I know the readers of THE SUN are anxious to know something of our mission work. It seems to me that no place ever afforded greater opportunities to the missionary than does Ponce today. The people are bright, peaceful, home-loving men and women. They are anxious to improve, and while they are civilized, we must remember what Henry W. Frost said: "While it is always true that Christianity civilizes, it is never true that civilization Christianizes. Civilization has in numberless ways been making the world an easier, more comfortable place to live in, but civilization cannot contribute one iota to the moral character of men." Christianity is what the Porto Rican lacks, and it is Christianity that the missionaries are trying to teach, under adverse circumstances. Spiritualists, Christian Scientists, and a long line of those who preach dangerous doctrines flood the city with their tracts, so that the seed we sow, even when it falls upon good soil, is liable to be smothered out by false doctrines; and the people are reading these books before they are aware of the false doctrines. The little band of workers for the Christian Church has accomplished wonders since they have been upon this island. I was surprised to see how well organized Brother Barrett has every part of the work, and when I compare his small force of helpers with the number of workers sent down by the other churches I realize that he must be a man of unusual executive ability.

I have not had time to visit any of the stations aside from the one in Ponce, but I have met a number of the members from the other churches who came in last Sunday to services here in Ponce.

We have a beautiful building in which to worship, the plans for which were drawn by Mr. Nichols, of the Third Christian Church, of Norfolk, and when I realize how much the members of two Christian Churches at Norfolk are doing to support the work here in Porto Rico, I am amazed that the other churches in our denomination do not want a larger share in the work of evangelizing Porto Rico. There is so much to be done still, such a need for workers and equipment, that an opportunity is open for all who wish to have a part in the work of Christianizing this beautiful island over which the American flag proudly floats. Can we, as loyal citizens and true Christians, let this opportunity pass? Every time I go out upon the streets in Ponce I think of the last part of the 9th chapter of Matthew: "And Jesus went about all the cities and villages, preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing every sickness and every distress among the people. But when he saw the multitudes, he was moved with compassion on them, because they fainted, and were scattered abroad, as sheep having no shepherd. Then saith he unto his disciples, The harvest truly is plenteous, but the laborers are few; pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth laborers into his harvest." Oh, if each person who reads this article would but send a small offering to the Mission Board for the work in Porto Rico, how much good could be done!

OLIVE G. WILLIAMS.

DR. STALEY'S SPLENDID VOLUME—THE MINISTER

I have read Dr. Staley's book, The Minister, and am more charmed, if that is possible, with it in printed form than when I heard him deliver the five matchless discourses, making up the volume, at the Virginia Beach Chautauqua last July.

Dr. Staley has well entitled his book The Minister, but an explanatory title might have been added, Life Principles of My Ministry. In other words, the author condenses into this volume the ideals of a remarkably long and successful pastorate. His parishioners will see the sterling character of their beloved pastor depicted on every page. It is a photograph of Dr. Staley's program of life and of his ideals for the minister in one.

The book sells for fifty cents. It is worth several times that to me as a layman. No minister can afford to be without it. Any pastor will find in it wonderful exhilaration for his work. It is for sale by the Southern Christian Publishing Co., Elon College, N. C., the Christian Publishing Association, Dayton, Ohio, or the author, Dr. W. W. Staley, Suffolk, Va.

W. A. HARPER.

—Those who read the charming article in this week's SUN from Miss Olive G. Williams will certainly feel that the Third Church, Norfolk, made no mistake in selecting her to go as their representative to Porto Rico. By the way, had SUN readers thought over it that Memorial Temple, Norfolk, is supporting Bro. Barrett and Third Church, Norfolk, is supporting Sister Williams—two churches, and these by no means the strongest amongst us, practically supporting our missionary work in Porto Rico. This ought to make the rest of us ashamed of ourselves—and cause us to decide to do more for missions.

S. S. LESSON FOR MARCH 14

Saul Gains His Kingdom.—1 Sam. 11:1-15.

Golden Text: "He that is slow to anger is better than the mighty; and he that ruleth his spirit, than he that taketh a city.—Prov. 16:32.

Today's lesson follows soon after last Sunday's. After Samuel had informed Saul of the responsibility that was going to be placed upon him, he withdrew to the quietude of the field watching over the herd and conversing with God and the laws of nature. It is quite natural that Saul should seek a place where he could make honest plans for the right; but what was Saul to do? He didn't know, and waited, yet kept busy, for something to do. However, Saul was ready to answer God's first call.

Saul had been divinely appointed and elected by the people; they are looking (some of them) to him for deliverance. The enemy moves near and Israel makes a proposition to the enemy. They want to make a covenant with the enemy, just like some people want to make a bargain with the devil. The proposition was heralded through all Israel and the conditions of the acceptance. The people began to weep, and at this critical moment Saul came up with his work. This is Saul's great opportunity, and he is master of the situation. He sends bold messages throughout all Israel and along with the message a concrete example of what will become of the property of those who fail to answer to the call and follow him. The people, knowing their fate if they do not follow Saul in reference to their property and to the enemy's acceptance of the proposition of the people of Jabesh, were willing to follow Saul.

The Lord was with Saul and put into his heart just what was necessary for him to do in order to have success. The people were divided into three divisions and a great victory was won over the enemy. Saul was a real leader in time of need, and the people made him king in reality and spirit and confirmed what had already been done.

Here we have a lesson of a man slow to speak, slow to anger, but mighty when it comes to important questions. An invaluable man in the community. A man to be a man must not at the open doors of success rush in and be overwhelmed with thoughts of easiness. Enter into the kingly life with quietness, straightforwardness, and earnestness, mingled with sincerity and a realization of responsibility.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR, MARCH 14

Tests of My Christianity.—Matt. 10:16-31.

(Honorary Members' Meeting)

If my Christianity is worth anything, it must stand the test all the time. It is likened unto a bridge across a large stream—the stream of life. A bridge must serve the purpose and afford a means of transportation to one individual that desires to cross the stream and at the same time it must be a means of transportation to a whole train, if necessary, with much freight of many passengers. So my Christianity ought to serve me whether I have a small task to perform or a large responsibility to remove or cope with.

There are many things prevalent that try our Christianity; that test our Christianity; and so many times the test is too great and the structure falls into the surging stream and is carried downward. When the structure does go down it is not because the material is inferior, but because you have not put it together right. Christianity is strong and will stand any test if you are wise in the building of your character. It takes an expert; every one can be an expert if the price is paid. It is worth the price. The question is: are you willing to pay the price?

We test a bridge by the weight that it will stand under. In Christianity the following are tests:

When people misunderstand us. When people slander and misrepresent us.

When we are sick. When great disasters come to the world.

When our prayers are not answered according to our desires.

When we are lonely. When death seems near.

When others seem blessed far beyond us.

When the great truths of Christianity seem less real to us.

When our work is not appreciated.—C. E. World.

For answer in the meeting (from C. E. World):

Why must our religion be tested?

How can we make sure of standing the tests of Christianity?

What is one test of Christianity? (Give this to several.)

What shall we do if we fail in any test?

What reward comes to us if we pass a religious test?

Name some distinguished Christian who passed through hard tests.

What are some of the tests of religion that come especially in our modern life?

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY SOCIETY ORGANIZED AT BEREA, NANSSEMOND

The women of Berea church have done that which they have long been considering—organized a W. M. Society. They have made a splendid beginning, having eighteen active and seven honorary members enrolled. The officers are as follows:

President, Mrs. W. J. Lee; Vice-President, Mrs. J. W. Brinkley; Secretary, Mrs. A. S. Hargroves; Treasurer, Mrs. J. E. Brinkley; Supt. of Literature, Miss Mary Brinkley; Supt. of Willing Workers, Mrs. W. B. Warrington.

Berea is always at the front in any good work, and we bespeak for this new organization a future filled with service.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

The death of Miss Bessie Norfleet made vacant the office of treasurer of the E. Va. W. H. and F. M. Board. Mrs. M. L. Bryant was chosen to fill the vacancy and has accepted the position. The treasurers of the various societies of the conference will please take note of this, and in the future forward their quarterly reports and funds to her at 41 Poplar Ave., Norfolk, Va. By being prompt and explicit they can greatly aid Mrs. Bryant in taking hold of this new work. Let all reports of the second quarter be in her hands before March 30.

MRS. C. H. ROWLAND,
President of Board.

INFLUENCE OF A PICTURE CARD

Once a month we give each child a picture card. These were sent to us by children in American Sunday schools, and each time we explain to the child that the card was sent by a little boy or girl in far-away America. One day on our way home we stopped at a shop, and two of our little girls, seeing us, drew near with the cards in hand. A man sitting by asked one, a clever little girl, where she got her picture. She didn't say, "My teacher gave it to me," but answered, "A little girl in far-away America sent it to me." The next question was, "Why did she send it to you?" To which she replied, "Because she loves me." Then as he continued to question her, she began to explain the picture. It happened to be Christ, delivering the Sermon on the Mount. It was only a child-like explanation, given by a child of seven or eight years, but the man was really interested. As we wended our way, I thought of the hundred and twenty-seven cards we had given out that day, and the many hundreds that had been given in days past and wondered how many real Christian sermons had been preached by little Hindu and Mohammedan girls by means of these small cards.—Woman's Work.

FROM THE FIELD

Grippe and disagreeable weather have very much retarded our church work this winter. But we hope the grippe is gone, and the beautiful sunshine will soon revive everything, soul and body. The first Sunday in February found the pastor in the pulpit at Oak Level. The preacher was pleased to meet a bright and intelligent congregation, and listen to the sweet music. It is always good at Oak Level. The communion was much enjoyed. You can always count on this congregation to do the right thing.

There has been much sickness in the community. But as far as I learned all were improving. Deacon Robert Mitchell had been quite low with pneumonia, but was much better.

This is my first year at Youngsville and Good Hope. Have not had time yet to take my bearings, for owing to grippe and disagreeable weather only one appointment has been filled at each place. From what I saw, I am expecting good things from both of these churches.

The outlook is good at Franklinton. They have the deed O. K. for a beautiful lot.

Oh, I felt so sick when I saw THE SUN cut half. I am not complaining or blaming any one, but am so sorry. I am going to try to get eight new subscribers in my field. THE SUN must be put back to its former size.

—If any SUN reader interested in the growth and development of Elon College, has not seen the new catalogue of the institution, send a postal card with request to Pres. Harper for a copy. It is a splendidly bound volume of 202 pages, which placed beside the modest volume of 24 pages printed in 1890 reveals the marvelous development of Elon College. The catalogue shows an enrollment this year of 402 students, a plant valued at $300,000, a faculty of 24 members and a student body representing 12 States and two foreign countries. Besides data the Catalogue contains much interesting and very valuable reading matter. It is for free distribution on request.

Stem, N. C., Feb. 25, 1915.

Dear Uncle Jim:—I have been so busy playing since the weather has been so pretty that I haven't taken time to write my letter. It has seemed mighty good to me to be able to play out of doors once more. Here's my dime for February. Yours sincerely,

R. P. Crumpler, Jr.

Yes, we have enjoyed the beautiful sunny days, but we must not let play cause us to neglect our great work.

Franklin, Va., Feb. 27, 1915.

Dear Uncle Jim:—I have been so busy with my school work that I have neglected my letter, so I will send my dues for February, March, April and May. Hoping you and all the cousins are well. Your little niece, Mary Edith Cobb.

Thank you, Mary Edith, we have missed your letters, but glad to learn you have been doing so nicely in school.

Holland, Va., Feb. 25, 1915.

Dear Uncle Jim:—I am sorry we are late this time, but we know you will excuse us. My friends have joined a cricket club and have thirteen members. I am secretary of the club. We have a pin with A. R. C., which stands for Aunt Ruth's Crickets. Uncle Jim, we would like to have one of the Orphanage pictures. If you will send us one of them we will be much obliged. Enclosed fine ten cents. Lovingly,

Virginia and Francis Holland.

Uncle Jim wishes you and the Crickets a pleasant and profitable time together.

Franklinton, N. C., Feb. 20, 1915.

Dear Uncle Jim:—We are enclosing a dollar and our love for you and all the Orphanage friends. We appreciated so much the Thanksgiving and Christmas post cards. It is pleasant to be remembered. Will you let us know whether this will pay our dues for 1914? With love, William and Elizabeth Hunt.

Many thanks for the dollar and love. It takes lots of love and money to run an Orphanage.

Louisburg, N. C., March 1, 1915.

Dear Uncle Jim:—Since space is at a premium in the Sun I will give my space to something more of importance. I enclose dimes for February, March, April, May and June. Fondly, Florence Patricia Holden.

We are hoping that the time may soon come when we can have our full "Corner" restored to us.

Greensboro, N. C.,
Care of R. C. Prince.

Dear Uncle Jim:—Here I come with my dime for February. I have been sick for a week, but am much better now. I hope the children are all well and having a good time. I am going to school now. Well, I will close for this time, so good-bye. Love to all.
Viola Pettigrew.

Thank you, Viola. Many of our children have been sick, but all are able to be at the table again.

Magnolia, Va., Feb. 24, 1915.

Dear Uncle Jim:—I guess it is time for me to write again, as it is getting late. The months fly by I hardly know they have come. I hope you and all at the Orphanage are getting along all right. Enclosed you will find my dime. With much love for the orphans, I am your niece,

Annie Lee Felton.

Many thanks for your help and good wish. Our big family are all well at this writing.

Ingram, Va., Feb. 18, 1915.

Dear Uncle Jim:—Here we are again with our February dues. We are getting on nicely, but we get so tired staying in. Mother says Spring will soon be here and then we can play outdoors as much as we please. How are your little boys and girls getting on? Will they be glad when it gets warm so they can play out too? Daddy went to Ingram last Sunday to preaching. Mother wanted to go, but Samuel was sick so she had to stay with him. But he is almost well now. We will close with love to you all. Your little nephews,
James G. Brooks, Jr.,
Samuel F. Brooks.

We will all rejoice to see the beautiful warm sunshine come again.

Clayton, N. C., March 3, 1915.

Dear Uncle Jim:—Here I come with my dime for March. This leaves me well at this time. I hope you and all the cousins are well too. I wish you could treat me as nice as you treated Mr. J. E. Austin, and send me a picture of the Orphanage family. I went to Mr. Austin's with mother the other day and saw the one you sent him. You don't know how much I would appreciate it if you would send me one. I will close with love to you and all the cousins.
Ashley Breedlove.

Uncle Jim will have to see what he can do for you a little later.

East Spencer, N. C., Feb. 21, 1915.

Dear Uncle Jim:—I guess you think I have forgotten to write, but I have been sick for a long time. Sister was taken first and then I was taken, and have just got so I can get out, and I went to Sunday school for the first time today, and was then so very weak that grandma had then to lead me.

Uncle Jim, I have a little calf that grandma gave me, and I named it Dolly. Addy, the colored girl, took sister and me out for a walk this evening, and I was very tired when I got back. Uncle Jim, I don't know how much our dues are, for it has been so long since I paid any. Grandma wrote for us last when we were in Atlanta. We stayed four weeks. That was a long time for us to stay away from mama. I am sending our dues for November, December, January, February and March. Now if we have missed a month, let us know. With love to all.
Lawrence and Julia McKinney.

We are glad to hear from you again. Sorry you have been sick, but glad you are able to go to Sunday school once more.

CHURCH NEWS

MT. BETHEL AND KALLAM GROVE

My congregation at Mt. Bethel was very small on account of so much sickness in the community and among the members. Sunday morning before preaching I visited ten families and nine of the ten families had from one to three sick ones.

In the afternoon at 2:30 I was at Kallam Grove. Here the house was full. The occasion was the funeral and burial of Sister Maggie Joyner, who went to meet God Friday night after a few hours of intense suffering. She leaves two sisters and three brothers to mourn their loss. She was a member of the above mentioned church, and had been nearly ever since the organization of it. We were told she died in the faith. God bless the sick and bereaved. During this time we obtained two renewals for THE SUN. P. T. KLAPP.

GREENSBORO LETTER

One member was received into church fellowship yesterday. The Sunday school is showing increased attendance as the weather brightens up. At the close of the Sunday school Christmas exercises and the treat given the children, December, 1914, the executive committee found that the school had a few dollars balance to that fund and so they decided to take stock in the Christmas Savings department of a bank in the city and to make weekly payments on the same. At the beginning of each month our Supt. gives the opportunity to individuals of the school to provide for that month's payment. The payments decrease from week to week. Thus far it has worked well, and we think the idea and the plan a good one. By this method we will have money on hand for our next Christmas exercises and will not have to make a canvass for money just before Christmas when the calls are so many and the demands so great.

The Ladies' Missionary Society has organized a Mission Study Class with the pastor as teacher. The outlook for the class is good. The society has in mind some plans which if carried out, I believe will greatly increase the already growing interest and have a helpful influence on the spiritual life of the church.

We are planning to have a good Easter service. I think the choir will have an excellent musical program for that service.

Rev. J. W. Patton worshipped with us yesterday morning, and Rev. R. F. Brown a few Sunday nights ago. Each of them took part in our service. We were glad to have them with us.

P. H. FLEMING.

Elementary and Cradle Roll Departments

Motto: "First the Blade,"

Dear Friends of the Cradle Roll:
 Sometimes it does us a world of good to see someone else who is "making it go," who is accomplishing great things and securing success. It causes us to go and do likewise, or at least to attempt it.

Such a success is being secured by Mrs. J. T. Williams of Bethlehem church, near Suffolk, in her Cradle Roll work. It was my pleasure to spend the second Sunday in November with this thriving Sunday school. I cannot tell you how much I enjoyed it and what kindness and cordiality I met with. It will long be a green spot in my memory. This is a good school with several organized classes, working members of the school, and not idlers. It is the idlers, the dead wood, so to speak, that kill a school, you know, so every working member may be considered an asset and every idling member a liability. If the liabilities exceed the assets, why, then the school goes bankrupt, or at least is thrown "into the hands of a receiver." Sometimes he can change the liabilities into assets and "pluck success from the jaws of defeat," but it is a long, slow process.

We had two services that day, talking on the Front Line Standard at one service and giving a lesson in Teacher Training during the second period. It will not surprise me to have Bethlehem shining up as a Front Line school in the very near future, and as a shining example of what can be done in a country school.

To return to our Cradle Roll. Mrs. Williams had already secured the names of several babies before my visit, and a few weeks afterwards she wrote me that she had forty-five babies on the roll. What do you think of that? I think she had some on that ought not to be, for she had some that were over four years old. You know, we are not supposed to carry them over three years. But personally, I think it is all right, in our country schools at least, to carry them on the roll until they are four years old, that is, until their fourth birthday. However, Mrs. Williams secured one good result, for she got all the names, and then had a Promotion Day, thus starting another splendid thing in the annals of the school. It means something to be promoted in the day school, and it means something to be promoted in the Sunday school, too. The more things we do and plans we make to cause our children to realize the "worthwhileness" of the Sunday school, the less we shall be troubled with a leakage from the ranks.

I have before me a little verse which Mrs. Williams wrote for one of these little tots to recite on Promotion Day; and by the way, I believe it was little Miss Kathrine, Mrs. Williams' own small daughter, who recited the verse, which runs as follows:

*I guess you think I'm very large on the Cradle Roll to be,
 But if you will only listen to what I have to say,
 I will tell you that I am not here to stay,
 For I'm five years old today.*

As I said, I don't think it is wise, as a rule, to keep our children on the Cradle Roll so long, for it is only intended for the wee ones, too young to come regularly to church; but one is scarcely disposed to cavil when such splendid results are shown. Forty-five little ones enrolled under the Sunday school banner. Is not that fine?

VOLUNTEER STUDENTS

The students of the colleges of North Carolina who are preparing themselves to do active service on foreign fields as missionaries met in Charlotte at the same time the big Laymen's Convention was held. This North Carolina Student Volunteer Union holds a regular annual conference. Among the colleges represented were Davidson, Wake Forest, University, State Normal, Elon, Trinity, Meredith, and others. SUN readers will be interested to know that the Elon Band of Volunteers made the largest increase in membership during the past year. Rev. J. V. Knight, an Elon Volunteer, was made chairman of two committees during the sessions, and John G. Truitt, of Elon, was unanimously elected president of the State Union for the ensuing year. A proportionate part of the members present were members of the Christian church. The Volunteer Conference was addressed by several missionaries and Drs. Mott and Speer.

A VOLUNTEER.

—Germany reports officially that she has now on hand 781,000 war prisoners. This number of itself would make an immense army, and the upkeep and inkeep of such a host must be a heavy cost.

—The situation in Mexico is again very serious and it is very much feared at this time that the United States will have to take a hand in Mexican affairs, though President Wilson's policy of watchful waiting may avail much.

FRECKLES

February and March Bring Out Unightly Spots. How to Remove Easily.

The woman with tender skin dreads February and March because they are likely to cover her face with ugly freckles. No matter how thick her veil, the sun and winds have a strong tendency to make her freckle.

Fortunately for her peace of mind the recent discovery of a new prescription, othine—double strength, makes it possible for even those most susceptible to freckles to keep their skin clear and white. No matter how stubborn a case of freckles you have, the double strength othine should remove them. Get an ounce from your druggist and banish the freckles. Money back if it fails.

OUR DEAD

Cook

Mrs. Martha Cook, age about 74 years, died March 7, 1915. She was the mother of six children, three boys and three girls. Two sons and one daughter are still living; the other son and two daughters preceded their mother into the great beyond.

Mrs. Cook joined the church about 35 years ago. She was first a member of the Lutheran church, but later joined the Haw River Christian church, where she remained a faithful member until the summons from on high.

The funeral services were conducted by her pastor, the writer, and the remains were laid to rest in New Providence cemetery.

May the Lord bless and comfort the sad ones.

J. F. MORGAN.

Miles

Thomas J. Miles was born in Nansemond County, near Holy Neck, Jan. 14, 1837, and died in Suffolk March 3, 1915. His wife died in 1907.

Seven children, twenty-one grandchildren, and four great grand children survive him. The total offspring was forty-one.

He served through the Civil War, was in the battles of Gettysburg and Fredericksburg, and wounded at the front at the battle of the Crater.

He professed religion when he reached fifty and became a devout Christian the remainder of his life. He died with bright prospect of entering into rest.

He was buried in the family graveyard on his old homestead near Holy Neck church. The funeral services were conducted in Suffolk by this writer and Rev. P. M. Hank.

W. W. STALEY.

Mrs. E. V. Lee

Our heavenly Father has in His infinite wisdom taken from our circle and from all pain and suffering our dear friend and sister, Mrs. E. V. Lee. She has been transplanted to that beautiful home beyond, where joy, peace and happiness reigneth forever.

Two broken-hearted daughters are left behind to mourn the loss of dear mother. Would that we could speak some word of comfort to them, but we know that it must come from a higher power than ours. Time alone can heal the wounds made by death.

Amid all her suffering and sickness she was cheerful and hopeful, and her faith in God was unshaken.

Her religious life was one of deep conviction, great faith and fervent zeal. Her interest in the church was great and responsive to its needs, and she attended every service whenever she was able.

We deeply feel the loss of our true and devoted member, but believing it His will, we bow in humble submission.

Therefore be it resolved:

First—That such a life from our midst leaves a vacancy and a shadow that will be deeply realized by all the members of the Ladies' Aid Society, and will prove a great loss to her immediate relatives and friends.

Second—That with deepest sympathy to the bereaved daughters and relatives we express our hope that even so great a loss to us may be for good.

Third—That the Lord may comfort and heal the crushed hearts of those left behind, and when the summons comes, may they all meet and form an unbroken circle around God's throne.

4. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, a copy be recorded in the Secretary's book of the Ladies' Social Union of Berea (Nansemond) church, and a copy be published in The Christian Sun.

UGH! CALOMEL MAKES YOU SICK. DON'T STAY BILIOUS, CONSTIPATED

"Dodson's Liver Tone" Will Clean Your Sluggish Liver Better Than Calomel and Can Not Salivate.

Calomel makes you sick; you lose a day's work; Calomel is quicksilver and it salivates; calomel injures your liver; if you are bilious; if your bowels are constipated and your head aches or stomach is sour, just take a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone instead of using sickening, salivating calomel. Dodson's Liver Tone is real liver medicine. You'll know it next morning because you will wake up feeling fine, your liver will be working, your headache and dizziness gone, your stomach will be sweet and bowels regular. You will feel like working. You'll be cheerful; full of energy, vigor and ambition.

Your druggist or dealer sells you a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone under my personal guarantee that it will clean your sluggish liver better than nasty calomel; it won't make you sick and you can eat anything you want without being salivated. Your druggist guarantees that each spoonful will start your liver, clean your bowels and straighten you up by morning or you get your money back. Children gladly take Dodson's Liver Tone because it is pleasant tasting and doesn't gripe or cramp or make them sick.

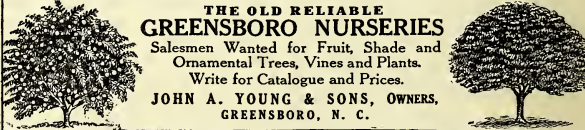

I am selling millions of bottles of Dodson's Liver Tone to people who have found that this pleasant, vegetable, liver medicine takes the place of dangerous calomel. Buy one bottle on my sound, reliable guarantee. Ask your druggist about me.

"IN ESSENTIALS UNITY, IN NON-ESSENTIALS LIBERTY, IN ALL THINGS CHARITY."

OUR PRINCIPLES.

- (1.) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the church.
- (2.) Christian is a sufficient name for the church.
- (3.) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4.) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of church membership.
- (5.) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

"Portable Manhood"

All capital is the result of saving. Carnegie's millions, and the laborer's wage at the end of the day, are both, and alike, the result of saving. Not all capital is money, but much of it is. Money is a ready and portable form of capital. Placed away in coffer or chest it is as so much other metal, iron, copper, zinc. Carried, transferred, used, it is valuable as a medium of exchange and a commodity in trade. Money has been, not inappropriately, termed portable manhood. It represents the savings of a man's energy and effort, and in such form that it may be carried easily, readily exchanged and transferred. Money represents and reflects so much human life. The day's wages of the laborer are eight hours of himself, his mind, his hand, his talent. Christ knew this, and He did not want the life of any man to be crusted, rust-eaten, time devoured. Man's life should be eternal, not temporal; should be packed into and stored up with the things that never perish. That is why He friendly and judiciously advised man for his own good in these words: "Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal: for where your treasure is, there will your heart be also." (Matt. 6:19, 21.)

Working for What?

This thought from the Baraca-Philathea Herald is worth while: "One of the surest ways to be unhappy is to insist on having credit for everything you do. A great many people are not satisfied to do right things and helpful just for themselves. They want to have their efforts recognized. They want to be praised and lauded. Invariably such people accuse their friends and acquaintances of a lack of appreciation. They take hold of church work, and are aggrieved and indignant because, instead of being hailed as public benefactors, they are subjected to criticism. And always, in the end, they tire out, and give up the effort to benefit an ungrateful humanity. If you are working for gratitude or appreciation you will find the pay too small to be worth the effort. The world's benefactors have always been men who did not worry about the appreciation they were likely to receive." The way, and the only way, to get real thanks and true appreciation is to forget both. Honest work and faithful service carry their own reward.

Your man with the "grouch," with the sour and embittered spirit has looked too little to the love of his work and the rewards of faithful toil, and too much at praise, plaudits and publicity. The appreciation and gratitude of men are too little pay for a man with a heart to work and a hand to do. "But all their works they do to be seen of men; they make broad their phylacteries, and enlarge the borders of their garments, and love the uppermost rooms at feasts, and the chief seats in the synagogues." (Matt. 23: 5, 6.)

The Larger Fields

A writer on missions has logically observed that the time approaches when a minister, when ready for his parish, will not ask, Shall I be a missionary? But on the other hand he will enquire, Shall I remain in the home field, and why? This will come because the conscientious pastor will want to enter the field of larger promise and more usefulness. This field is no longer at home, but abroad. Today there is in the United States one ordained minister to every 594 people. In some of the countries now ready and hungering for the gospel the figures are this way: In Africa one ordained minister to every 82,152 people; in Korea one to every 123,711 of the population; in Japan one preacher to every 172,538 persons; in India one to every 321,448; in China one to every 476,462. Which figures show that if a preacher is really looking for his larger field of usefulness and service he will find one in China more than 800 times as large as that he may expect in this country. If a Chinaman's soul is as precious in the sight of the Lord as the soul of an American, why decline to enter a field where there are more than 800 that may be reached for Christ to every possible one that may be reached and won in some other? Undoubtedly the minister of the future, like Paul in his day, will not wear himself out among the few in and about Jerusalem, when the needy and the many of Macedonia, Samaria, Ephesus, Greece and Rome call him. And with Paul the minister of the near future will recognize the divine truth that God "hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth; that they should seek the Lord if haply they might feel after him, and find him, though he be not far from every one of us." (Acts 17:26, 27.)

Church Machinery and Organization

The Baptist Chronicle thus teaches: "Why are we cluttering our churches with organization upon organization? The whirl of machinery is enough to run one mad, and it takes all the oil to keep the machinery going. Let us return to the simplicity that is in Christ Jesus. The less life there is in a church the more organization there must be, and the more organization there is in a church the less life there will be. The pastor who cannot preach deafens the people to his own failure by the buzz and roar of machinery." Which teaching is fatal because it fails to discriminate. Machinery in a church is bad; organization is good and is a necessity. There is no more relationship between organization and machinery than there is between a mountain and the moon. Machinery is not an organization, it is an assemblage of several separate parts, an aggregation of several separate entities, and so must be organized in order that one entity may not cause friction in its operation with or against another entity. An organization on the other hand is a thing with life in it—a tree, a plant, an animal, a man's body, society. Whoever heard of oiling a tree? You don't oil an organization when you want it to move, grow, develop, go forward; you seek to inject life into it; dig about the roots, cultivate, prune, surround with favorable conditions so that growth may go forward, that the latent life may express itself. The church without organization is as dead as the tomb. Christ spoke of the completest and most perfect organization known when He said: "I am the vine, ye are the branches: He that abideth in me, and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit." (John 15:5.) No organization, no life.

Thinking in Thousands

The horizon of the church, in many minds, is all too restricted and narrow. We think in terms of tens and hundreds, when it is our privilege to think in thousands. Our Savior thought in terms of the multitudes, and looking upon them His heart went out for large harvests and waving fields. God is giving those who are missionary in thought and deed the joy and thrill of thinking in thousands; while those not missionary must think in tens. Rev. Cornelius Patton writes in Men and Missions: "I know of a church in India where converts have been appearing so rapidly, so many villages coming over bodily, renouncing idolatry, caste and all the abominations of Hinduism, that the missionary is throwing up his hands in despair. He is saying, 'How can I handle this crowd?' And so he has concluded he must receive only one thousand converts a year; all others must go on a waiting list." Imagine a pastor amongst us saying, 'I will not receive but one thousand converts a year.' Fact is, the average pastor is restricted to thinking in terms of tens or twenties a year. And the church follows him in his thought. This is the blight, this the hindrance, this the curse of a non-missionary church. Its pastors and its people must think in terms of twos and tens when God wants them to think in terms of hundreds and thousands. God would give us greater visions, larger thoughts, wider conceptions, if we would let Him. The challenge of our time is to think the larger thoughts, and undertake the larger tasks, but we decline to accept the challenge. "Lift up your eyes, and look on the fields; for they are white already to harvest." (John 4:35.)

—Rev. W. H. Denison, D. D., President, Norfolk, with his Committee, is busy securing speakers for the Seaside Chautauqua, Virginia Beach, July 19 and following. Preparation for the Chautauqua is going on vigorously, and now is the time for SUN readers to begin to make their plans to attend. Take a week off in the hot Summer and go to the Chautauqua.

WANTED! A HUNDRED FRIENDS

Many have been the letters coming to us, saying, "How we did regret to see THE SUN reduced in size." We wonder how deep, how abiding is tis regret.

Our Publishing Agent figures it out that with $1,000 in hand, for which he would send for one year the paper to 700 new subscribers, he could and would restore the paper to its former size of sixteen pages a week; and that he would keep it at that size for a year. He further believes that with this advantage, business would so improve in the office during the year that he would be able to keep it permanently at the 16 page size.

The Agent, therefore, is looking for one hundred friends or congregations who will agree to send $10.00 each by April 1st, provided the entire one hundred are found, and provided further that on that date THE SUN goes back to its former size. Will any SUN reader who sees these lines, and in his or her heart regrets, to the extent of $10.00, the present size of THE SUN, kindly write Bro. M. E. Winston, Publishing Agent, and agree to be one of one hundred to help restore it to its former size? This indeed will be an act of benevolence and of church loyalty and devotion in a way and at a time when it will do much good and be greatly appreciated. Bro. Winston wants the promise first, as the entire one hundred must be found, in order for conditions to be fulfilled. So far as we have ever seen or heard there is not a church paper in the United States the size that THE SUN was, and selling for $1.50 the year, whose income from subscriptions and advertisements was as small as that of THE SUN. The most rigid economy is practiced in its production, but we were trying to do the impossible—produce and sell each week a product at a price less than the lowest possible cost of production. The plan our Publishing Agent has struck upon is practicable and feasible; if only the hundred friends can be found. Many ministers can easily raise ten dollars in a congregation, many Superintendents can easily secure ten dollars from their Sunday schools, many good men with funds for benevolence and for church can well invest ten dollars in sending THE CHRISTIAN SUN for a year to seven new subscribers, people who should have it but do not, and at the same time enlarge the paper to its former size of sixteen good, nice, sweet full pages. Wanted: one hundred real good friends to the church and its paper, THE SUN, just now. Address, M. E. Winston, Pub. Agt., Elon College, a card today saying you will be one of the hundred, provided 99 others are found. Your pledge will not be held against you unless the entire 100 are secured. THE SUN seeks week by week to help all the enterprises of the church; will not individuals and churches who really care now do THE SUN and themselves a goodly turn? Thanks, dear friends. Again thanks, many times over.

WHEN THE SPIRIT MOVES

On Sunday, January 24 of this year, the ushers in Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York, Dr. J. H. Jowett, pastor, found on the collection plates an offering for foreign missions amounting to $40,594. The amount for the same purpose on the corresponding Sunday one year ago was $14,000. This well-nigh three-fold increase came about from a year of prosperity and plenty to one of stagnation in business and great industrial depression. Dr. Jowett had been preaching self-denial, and making an appeal for a deeper and broader spirituality. The increased gifts came as a consequence. When a man's or a congregation's heart strings are loosened, their purse strings come untied. Mission boards are in debt today, and missionaries remain at home, not because of industrial depression or financial inability; but because of mental indifference and spiritual poverty.

WIT AND WEIGHT

Some very weighty logic comes under the guise of wit now and then. Here is an instance.

A converted drunkard was making his way home the other night after attending one of Billy Sunday's meetings. He passed by a saloon which he had much frequented. The bartender standing in the door yelled out at him: "I suppose you are now one of those religious guys who's given Billy his last cent at the meetin' and had to walk home." Quick as a flash back came the retort from the happy Irishman, "Many's the time I've given you me last cent and couldn't see to walk anywhere!" Which argument was not only sufficient for the immediate occasion, but also to explain why saloon after saloon is being closed up by the vote of sane and sober people. The saloon has gone on with its robbery leaving its poor, blind and helpless victim to care as best he could for himself till sensible men everywhere are putting it out of business.

ACCORDING TO HIS FOLLY

Even so good and learned a man as ex-President Eliot of Harvard may say some very simple and silly things. Listen: "For nineteen hundred years the ethics of Jesus of Nazareth have been in the world, but have had no effect to prevent or even reduce the evils of war, the greatest of the evils which afflict mankind." One would hardly expect such folly even from an avowed Unitarian who repudiates the deity of Jesus; but least of all would one expect a complete answer to this moan from a humorous paper that makes no pretense to preaching. Listen then how Life completely demolishes the ex-President: "But one can't reasonably complain that a medicine is no good when the patient doesn't take it. Governments have never adopted Christian ethics. Individuals have, and with good results. Even in this present war individuals are kind and humane. The very fact that most intelligent modern men find modern war intolerable is an evidence of the effect of Christian ethics on the modern mind." Nothing further is needed than to add that if Dr. Eliot and his co-believers would adopt into their own schedule of theory and thought the saving effect of the "power of the Lamb," they would all see and feel differently about Him. The very best cure for the critics of Jesus is to get them to accept Jesus as Lord and Savior.

BREAD AND THE BIBLE

In eight of the bread lines daily formed in New York to give the hungry unemployed food to eat, the New York Bible Society is giving away copies of the Bible, the same being printed in nineteen different languages to meet the needs of the various tongues and nationalities. This is not only good morality and righteousness, but is economy and good business. For if the members of this bread line shall read and heed the Word of God they will not be members thereof much longer. The Bible teaches thrift, economy, industry, sobriety, and then declares: "I have been young, and now am old; yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken, nor his seed begging bread." (Psa. 37: 25.)

NOTES AND PERSONALS

—Dr. W. W. Staley was called home from Suffolk last week by the illness of his wife.

—President Harper on last Thursday night delivered the second of a series of lectures to the Sunday school workers of Greensboro at West Market St. M. E. Church. The final lecture is to be delivered next Thursday evening.

—The gross revenue of the Southern railway for January, 1915, was $4,653,003; for January, 1914, $5,738,969, a decrease of $1,085,966, or nearly 19 per cent. Operating expenses for January, 1915, were $3,730,350; for January, 1914, $4,460,850 a decrease of $730,500 or a fraction over 16 per cent.

—Our good friend, W. J. Graham, one of the Elon College "old guard" of Union Ridge, was last week elected to succeed the late Mr. Murray as president of the Piedmont Trust Co. Will Graham is a man of fine business training and ability, and we congratulate the Piedmont on its wise choice.

—Rev. L. I. Cox, pastor, is in receipt of a very pleasing letter, with a check for $5.00 from ex-Mayor Womack of Reidsville to be applied on help to pay for "the nice new church you are building in Reidsville, and wish to congratulate you on the splendid building you have erected, which is not only a source of pride to your congregation, but an honor to Reidsville." This shows something of the appreciation in Reidsville of the work Bro. Cox is doing there.

—Dr. W. H. Denison, the wide awake pastor of Memorial Temple, Norfolk, issued a neatly printed invitation to an Acquaintance Meeting and Reception for New Members held at the church at 8 p. m., March 5, 1915. The printed invitations carried an inviting program and a list of the sixty names of members received since October 1, 1914. The reception was under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the church, whose committee on arrangements was printed also. Bro. Denison's church is evidently practicing the Baraca slogan, "We do things."

—Rev. J. S. Halfaker, Columbus, Ohio, has been elected Field Secretary of the Ohio State Christian Association and hopes to begin to give this work his full time beginning May 1. Bro. Halfaker is a man of deeds, plans and progress. Our Columbus (Ohio) church has greatly prospered under his devoted ministry. Our Christian brethren of Ohio are to be congratulated in securing him to lead the forces in the general work. As field secretary, he has sent out some searching questions which we of the South might consider to our profit: What do you consider the greatest need of the Christian Church today in each of the following departments: 1st, finance; 2nd, Sunday schools; 3rd, Christian Endeavor; 4th, missions. What do you consider the greatest need of the Christ-supplying this need on a constructive basis?

—THE SUN's editor had the privilege Sunday afternoon, March 7, of addressing some three hundred men in the auditorium of the splendid city Y. M. C. A. of Spartanburg, S. C. There is something inspiring and interesting in a great company of serious minded men, and the Y. M. C. A. is doing a wonderful work in reaching these men for Christian thought, influence and activity in cities and colleges. The Spartanburg Y. M. C. A. is a great factor for good and is a real asset to that progressive city of nineteen thousand people. Our good friend F. F. Myrick, who graduated from Elon College last June, is the assistant Secretary of the institution, is very popular with his constituents and is making good in every particular as a consecrated Christian worker in the community. Everybody has a good word for Myrick and Myrick is living up to the high standard set for him in a truly great institution.

—We congratulate our musical brethren, with Geo. M. McCullers as Chairman, of the E. N. C. S. S. Convention, on their great success in their first musical institute. We have an account of the institute elsewhere this week. Bro. C. H. Stephenson, Pres. of the Convention, writes personally: "It was my pleasure to attend our first Sunday school and Christian Endeavor Musical Institute at Wentworth Christian church, on Friday, Feb. 26, McCullers, N. C., and am glad to pronounce it, in my opinion, a success, and a good thing for our schools. The program was of a high order, the talks and blackboard work instructive and beneficial, while the music and dinner ("fine and dandy") must have been a good sample of what we are going to have at the Convention which meets with these good people in July. This institute was recommended to the Convention at Sanford last July by the Music Committee, discussed, and endorsed by the Convention. Bro. Geo. M. McCullers, chairman of the committee, has worked faithfully for this Institute, and well deserves the loyal support and hearty co-operation of every Sunday school and Christian Endeavor Society in the bounds of the Convention. Every school needs the benefits of this Institute, and I believe will feel the effects of this beginning. If you hear from the Chairman of the Music Committee, respond. Begin now to think of the Convention in July, and let's talk "More music, bigger music and better music."

SEASIDE CHAUTAUQUA AND SCHOOL OF METHODS OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Virginia Beach, July 19-25.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.—The schedule will open at 9 a. m., which is fifteen minutes earlier than last year; the forenoon session will close at 12:45, which is thirty minutes earlier than last year; the four o'clock period in the afternoon will not be divided into two sections as last year, but will be given to the Religious and Educational Lecture; instead of having two sermons on Sunday morning as last year, there will be a Model Sunday School conducted by Sunday school specialists, and this will be followed by the morning worship and sermon; the periods will be forty minutes instead of forty-five, so we may have the five minutes to change classes; there will be larger opportunity for class discussion given this year.

This is a splendid place and most opportune time for various religious boards, committees, etc., to hold their meetings. We learn that the Young People's Convention of the Southern Christian Convention is planning to hold their session at the time and place of the School of Methods; the Sunday School Board of the American Christian Convention will hold its meeting during the Chautauqua. Announcement will be made of others from time to time. The important thing now is for you to arrange definitely to be on hand at the opening and stay until the close, and we want you to enlist others. It is the one aim of the committee and officers to make these annual sessions the most vital meetings to our workers and church leaders from all parts of our brotherhood.

WARREN H. DENISON, President.

THE VALUE OF THE GREEK NEW TESTAMENT TO THE MINISTER OF THE GOSPEL

I am sure that something needs to be done to stop the stampede away from Greek in modern education, and particularly in theological training. It is, of course, possible to be an educated man without a knowledge of the Greek language. The essence of education is the power to use all of one's faculties on a given point. It is the opposite of the "scatter-brain" method of thought. This power of sustained concentrated effort comes only as the result of a long course of discipline, however that discipline may be obtained. Men may gain this ability to use their powers even without going to school. Some men go to school and do not learn how to work or to think. They never succeed. The college trained man has all the advantage in the race for a career of usefulness and efficiency. All admit this.

In spite of the manifold development of modern scientific and historical studies, it remains true that no discipline has been found superior to Greek in cultural power. Prof. G. A. Williams, a profound thinker and author, says: "Greek yet remains the best means we have for plowing up and wrinkling the human brain and developing its gray matter; and wrinkles and gray matter are still the most valuable assets a scholar can set down on the credit side of his ledger." This high pedagogic claim for the Greek language is not admitted by all teachers, though I confess my sympathy with it. Hence I deplore the loss to modern culture and power in giving the A. B. degree without Greek. At any rate the preacher is without excuse if he fails to learn Greek or to keep it up after he learns it. I refer, of course, to the minister who has educational advantages and has capacity to take a college course. The tragedy of the situation is pathetic. The Greek New Testament is the New Testament, as far as the science of Textual Criticism can restore the text to us, and that is approximately correct. Everything else is translation, and translation is interpretation. It is utterly impossible to translate all the nuances or shades of meaning of one language into another, least of all in the case of a highly organized tongue like the Greek, with its wealth of particles and its variety of forms and preciseness of distinction in meaning. We must remember that the New Testament was originally written in Greek, and while the average Christian, from necessity, may be content with the translation of scholars, the minister should be in the nature of the case a specialist in the New Testament. Here he finds his message, his gospel, the picture of his Lord and Savior. The physician who has never studied biology or chemistry, the lawyer who has never read Blackstone, walk, if they walk at all, on crutches. So does the preacher who can not read the gospel in the original text. He has to rely on translations and commentaries, and cannot be certain that he has the gospel in its purity, sweetness and power.

That men may be strong in the Lord they must be well rooted and grounded in the truth. All believers cannot be expected to read the word of God in the Greek and Hebrew, but those who teach them should seek to know the truth, for the truth only can make men free, stalwart Christians. How often do we go to church to listen to pious platitudes and pathetic stories that seem to soothe the minds of the emotional and unthinking but fail to get a spoonful of gospel truth. Is it a wonder that we have many weak and sickly among us? For bodily ailments we want the best medical skill and attention; how much more important that we have the most accurate and authoritative instruction for our spiritual infirmities. For matters temporal we want the best invariably, but for our spiritual and eternal interests we often content ourselves with the instruction and guidance of the superficial.

ELON COLLEGE NOTES

Uncle Wellons' new book, Vital Truths for Hungry Hearts, containing 131 pages, is to be ready for distribution this week. The price is fifty cents. It is worth twice that much to any one vitally interested in the affairs of the Kingdom.

Rev. Victor Lightbourne has just returned from a three-months' evangelistic campaign through the middle West, flushed with victory for the Cross and happy in the service he has been able to render. Brother Lightbourne has other engagements in the Southern Convention beginning next week. He likes nothing better than to be active for the Master. Any pastor would do well to communicate with him or his secretary, Mr. C. B. Riddle, Elon College, N. C., for dates.

Dr. W. C. Wicker is so far improved that he expects to begin his class work in part this week. His many friends will rejoice over this good news. Dr. Wicker is one of the ablest scholars and best teachers in the Faculty, and that is saying a great deal.

Dean W. P. Lawrence continued quite ill all last week at his residence here. On Tuesday a trained nurse came. On Saturday he was well enough to be taken to the St. Leo's Hospital, Greensboro, where he is to receive treatment from his specialist in stomach trouble. He is not out of danger yet, but his condition is less serious and his complete recovery is expected. Dr. Lawrence's friends will remember him in prayer at this critical time.

Dr. W. T. Herndon continues quite sick from "grip." He is today (Monday) reported as slightly better. His daughter, Mrs. W. K. Scott, Winston-Salem, is with him. Mrs. J. T. Moffitt, Asheboro, also his daughter, was here to minister to him last week, but has returned to her home.

The College welcomed as visitors last week Mr. J. B. Stephenson, Severn, N. C.; Mr. W. L. Hardister, Louisburg, N. C.; Mr. J. B. Winecoff, Concord, N. C.; Rev. H. M. Neese, Belmont, N. C.; and Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Whitaker, Cardenas, N. C.

Dr. Atkinson preached to the colored people Sunday afternoon. They declared they had never heard such preaching but once before, and that was when a year ago the doctor favored them. Their minister said the reason why Dr. Atkinson preached so well was easy to comprehend, since he brought his crew along to scotch for him, referring to a male quartette that accompanied him. He also declared that if he could bass like the bass man in that choir, he would never do another thing but bass all his life. Mr. R. P. Merritt, one of the students, preached for them at night. The Y. M. C. A. is doing a noble part by the negroes of the community, genuine social service work.

Word reaches the College that Aunt Helen Winbourne is well now at her home in Wake County. Her many friends will rejoice in this good word.

Rev. P. T. Klapp filled Dr. Wicker's appointment at Shallow Well Sunday, though Dr. Wicker accompanied him. Brother Klapp was pastor there forty years ago, when their present house of worship was erected.

Mrs. A. W. Warren spent the week visiting friends and relatives in Mebane, N. C.

Mr. H. J. Pritchette is remodelling his residence, the Hurley house of early College days, by the addition of bath rooms and a large porch. It will be a very handsome home when completed.

Mr. W. L. Smith is much better and is soon to be at his post as cashier of the bank.

IMPRESSIONS AND IDEAS FROM THE SUNDAY SCHOOL COUNCIL

It was my happy privilege to attend the Sunday School Council of Evangelical Denominations held in the Hotel Statler, Cleveland, Ohio, January 25-27.

En route I visited my dear sister in Washington, D. C., relatives at Waterford and Erie, Pa., and Father and Mother Sherman at North Pirard. I attended services Sunday, the 24th, at East Springfield, Pa., and listened to a splendid discourse by Bro. Lott. The people at East Springfield seem to have fallen in love with their new preacher, and what more could a preacher ask than that?

The Hotel Statler where the Council held its sessions was very well adapted for the purpose, having suites of rooms where the sections held their meetings and a larger auditorium for the sessions of the full Council.

The personnel of the Council was of the finest, there being present many of the leaders of the Sunday school work in many of the denominations.

Twenty-three denominations were represented.

The Council was broken up into the following sections: Editorial, Educational and Extension, and Publication, each of which would meet in their sectional conferences formulate recommendations along the lines of their work, and then present them to the general Council for adoption or rejection.

Being particularly interested in the Teacher-Training work since our Sunday School Board had chosen me to look after that department for the coming quadrennium, I attended the sessions of the Educational and Extension section. After much discussion this section recommended to the General Council fourteen recommendations: these were practically all adopted with some slight changes in wording and the combining of two of the recommendations into one, making thirteen instead of fourteen.

The purpose of these recommendations was to stiffen up the Teacher-Training course so that in future in order to receive a diploma, one would have to complete a much more advanced course of study than heretofore.

No diploma to be allowed for such courses as we have known in the past as "First Standard Courses," as it was felt that these were altogether too elementary to be used as a basis for a diploma. In fact it was recommended that there be but one course, and this course to cover not less than one hundred and twenty lesson periods, and it was hoped that the denominations would as rapidly as possible revise their Teacher-Training books to meet this desired standard.

They also recommended that not more than forty lessons constitute a year's work in the local church; and that not more than twenty additional lessons should be credited to the student during the same year for work in institutes and lecture courses. So that from one to two years would be necessary to complete the course. It was thought that this would prevent cramming process by which a student might rush through the course in five or six weeks without giving the work the study and thought necessary for a comprehensive understanding of it.

Certificates may, however, be granted for the completion of any section of the course.

This seems to be a move in the right direction.

The granting of a diploma for any one of the "First Standard Courses" with which I am acquainted makes the goal too easy of attainment and cheapens its value.

Furthermore, the character of the lessons, particularly, have been so largely informational that they have not met the needs of the teacher when he has attempted the preparation of the lesson.

We need more constructive work, broader, deeper, more comprehensive study that shall so equip the teacher that he shall find practical help in the approach to the study of every lesson.

Our Teacher Training books have been so revised as to meet this standard. We have a course of study as good as the best.

A recommendation was offered touching the matter to enter into such a course, and it was urged that the denominations include at least the following subjects in fair educational proportion; namely:—

The Bible as suited to the Sunday school workers' needs.

The study of the pupil in the varied stages of his growing life.

The work and methods of the teacher.

The Sunday School and its Organization and Management.

It was also urged that the denominations should include specialization in their Teacher Training course, particularly, for pastors, superintendents and general and departmental officers and workers. This specialized work looking toward post-graduate awards.

I trust that ere long we may have specialized courses arranged in Missions, Church History, Denominational History, Personal Work, Bible Doctrine, Synthetic Bible Study, Story Telling, Hand Work, etc., with suitable seals to be attached to the diplomas of those who have previously completed the Teacher-Training Course.

The Committee on Young People's Work placed as an ideal the doing away with the Young People's societies and the carrying on of the work now done by such societies, through the different departments of the Sunday school.

The object was to get rid of an extra organization to maintain and pour all our strength and money through the one channel, thus saving the cost incident to the work of such a society with its National, State, County, and District organizations. It seems to me that this might very easily and perhaps advantageously be done where the school was thoroughly graded, so that Senior classes could have their meeting for training in work for Christ and the Church as many of them do now in their monthly business meetings respectively, and their separate meetings for worship on Sunday evenings or whatever other evening might seem best, just as our Young People's, Intermediate and Junior Christian Endeavor Societies do now. This, at least, is a matter worthy of earnest, careful, prayerful consideration.

These are some of the more important things discussed and passed upon at this Council.

All in all, it was a meeting that impressed me very strongly along many lines, particularly with the thought that the denominations are, with a far vision, looking toward the future of the church and Bible school, striving to develop greater efficiency among their Sunday school teachers and officers by providing Teacher Training and special courses of a high, broad, deeply constructive character, and just as far as possible to unify this work among the denominations by making our standards, to a certain degree, the same.

Also the planning for the lessening, where possible, of organizations and the perfecting of organization in those retained. Less organizations, better organization. I am confident that we are over-burdened, in many cases, with a multiplicity of organizations and a lack of complete organization.

May we not as a people work out some plan by which a far greater proportion of the energy represented in our churches and Sunday schools may be utilized? I trust that we may.

May thy glory ever spread abroad from shore to shore,*

And thy sons and daughters, laud thee evermore.

Elon, dear Elon, brightest gem on memory's page;

Elon, fair Elon, glorious are thy ways.

Thou long hast guided men to kingship pure and true;

Wilt thou ever lead me, guide my steps through storm and sun,*

NOTICE

The Executive Committee of the E. Va. Christian Sunday School Convention has made an earnest effort to learn if a majority of the schools composing this Convention consider it better to hold the next session of the Convention in connection with the Chautauqua or to hold separate with some church as has been our custom previous to last year. So far we have heard from the following schools: those favoring meeting in connection with Chautauqua: Franklin, Union Southampton, Portsmouth, Liberty Spring, Holland, Holy Neck, Waverly, Dendron, Spring Hill, total 9; those in favor of holding at some church as formerly: Antioch, Johnson's Grove, Wakefield, Union Surry, Newport News, New Lebanon, Suffolk, total 7. We would be glad to hear from every school on this matter. The Executive Committee holds a meeting March 15, and at that time will decide the matter according to the majority of the schools heard from. The matter should have been decided before this time, but we have been giving full opportunity to the schools not yet heard from.

R. H. PEEL, President.

S. S. LESSON FOR MARCH 21
Jonathan and His Armor-Bearer.—
1 Sam. 14:1-46.

After Saul had been made king and the kingdom established Samuel made a farewell address as the climax of his judgeship but still retained the position as the prophet of Israel.

Saul had gathered a vast army about him and was waiting for an opportunity to strike the enemy. While he was waiting his army became less in numbers, numbering about six hundred. Saul was waiting for the time that Samuel, as prophet, had prophesied a sacrifice should be made.

During this time, Jonathan, Saul's son, thought that God would give him a sign and asked his armor-bearer to go with him to the camp of the enemy. They went and the sign which Jonathan had sought was seen. The result the two men slew twenty of the guards and this news frightened the enemy so much that they became panic stricken and slew each other in their haste to flee from the hands of Jonathan. The hiding Israelites being encouraged with this start, helped in putting the enemy to flight.

How many Jonathans do we have about us? Are we Jonathans ourselves? Well, we ought to be and say to our armor bearers, the young people, "Come and follow us." If we have the courage and stick-to-it-iveness and show to the young generation that we mean business, it will be no trouble to raise a large army to fight the enemy of strong drink, vice, corruption, and all manner of evil. We are teaching too much about vital truths, that is, talking too much about them, and not living up to our teachings. If we expect to count and help others to count who are daily watching our foot-steps we must practice what we preach.

The Teachings by A. W. Kelly

Faith in God makes the difference between foolhardiness and courage; what men cannot do God can do through men.

In facing giant evils the question is not, "How many are on the other side?" but, "Are they God's foes?"

Success is not settled by numbers; yet two are better than one, and a friend without courage to lead may give encouragement as a follower.

Better is the backing of one who says, "Behold, I am with thee," than of six hundred that say, "We can never do it."

Though victory comes from God alone, He gives it to those that climb with hands and feet.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR, MARCH 21
Favorite Books of the Bible and Why.
John 1:1-5; 21:20-25.

Finding the suggestions in the C. E. World so good for this meeting, we quote the following: "Before the meeting write the names of a number of Bible books on small cards. Underneath place the name of an Endeavorer on each card, and a week before the meeting hand the cards to different members with the request that they try to say something about the book assigned on the card. The assignments be carefully made, the familiar books being given to the younger members. Of course the members should understand that they may speak on some other book if the one assigned does not happen to be a favorite. The assignments are simply suggestions.

"In the meeting draw three or four perpendicular lines, at equal distances from each other, on the blackboard. On the left-hand side of these lines, before the meeting opens, write the names of the books of the Bible. As the members speak on any book place an X opposite it on the right-hand side of the line.

"When the time comes for general participation begin by handing a Bible to one of the members (having arranged with him beforehand) and ask him, when he has spoken, to hand it to the person sitting next him. Let the book travel from hand to hand until all have taken part. Even the weakest member will be able to read a verse from a favorite book."

Every one who reads these lines has a favorite book in the Book of books. There are many, many reasons probably why that book is a favorite. Every Endeavorer has his favorite. It is the duty of that Endeavorer to tell in the meeting why it is a favorite; it may be because it gave him aid in the time of need or because it has so much promise for the future; it may have given advice for the present or a warning for hasty action.

Every book of the Bible has a key-note and defines its purpose clearly. Genesis, a book of beginnings; Exodus, redemption; Numbers, wanderings; Deuteronomy, law; and so on through the whole Bible. Every book has its message. Are we receiving the message; if not, why not? It is there, the fountain is running over if we will but drink.

For Answer in the Meeting

What is your favorite book? Why?

What is the most important lesson the Bible has taught you?

Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Department

This Department is edited by Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., assisted by other members of the Board, to whom all items of Missionary interest and matter for the Department should be sent.

WITH OUR WORKERS

Mrs. Fry writes: "Many thanks for the $35 that recently came from Dr. Bishop and which the January Christian Missionary shows came from your S. C. C. Woman's Board. Am sure you send a prayer with each dollar. Hearty thanks for both. Miss Sakuma is doing good work." Mrs. Fry is nobly doing a good work and the pity is that she does not receive more encouragement and support.

The W. M. societies of the E. Va. Conference are clothing an orphan as the special object of their united efforts. They are using mite boxes for the collecting of this amount.

The E. Va. Conference has 15 women's societies, two new ones having been organized this Conference year. Many more should be organized. We have been listening to hear of an organization at Berkley and Dendron both—let us not be disappointed.

The Y. P. Missionary Society of Waverly, Va., have sent in ten dollars for the Building Fund the S. C. C. Woman's Board is seeking to create. The Y. P. societies of the E. Va. Conference are going to contribute $50 to the Fund. This is their aim—watch them do it.

Two societies have been organized where mite boxes were used—one at Liberty Spring, Va., and one at Winchester, Va. This should be the goal in every church where they are used. They give a start and are good, but an organized society is better.

MUSICAL INSTITUTE

The Music Committee of the E. N. C. Sunday School and C. E. Convention held its first Musical Institute at Wentworth church, McCullers, N. C., on February 25 and 26. The attendance was much larger than expected, the work was interesting as well as instructive. Rev. J. E. Franks conducted devotional services Thursday at 10 a. m., after which the choir rendered several nice selections from our new song books, Glorious Refrain.

The object of the Institute was then stated by the Chairman of the Committee. Following are some of the subjects discussed: Why should we have music in the Sunday schools? Can we have successful Sunday schools without music? What should urge us to have better music in our Sunday school? Some reasons why I enjoy singing. Black-board work, staff, clef, letters, etc.

How do you study the books of the Bible?

How should we study the Bible by books?

Friday Morning

10 a. m., prayer and song service. Address—What music has done for our Sunday school, by C. H. Stephenson. What it takes to make a good leader, and several other subjects looking to the betterment of music were very appropriately discussed. We were made to feel glad by having with us Rev. A. T. Banks and wife, of Henderson, N. C., who took an active part in the work. Others who did good work in the Institute were: Brethren J. E. Franks, Larry B. Woodall, J. R. Brown, J. M. Banks, John Murray and Robert D. Smith.

The music during the two days was soul-inspiring, the work beneficial and satisfactory to all present. GEO. M. McCULLERS.

BISHOP FERENCZ TO THE AMERICAN CHRISTIAN CONVENTION

REV. CARLYLE SUMMERBELL, D. D.
In harmony with the action taken by the American Christian Convention at its session in Springfield, Ohio, I sent the fraternal greetings of that body to the Unitarian Christians of Hungary through the venerable and well-beloved Bishop of that communion, Joseph Ferencz, and have just received this brief reply:

"Kolozsvar, Hungary,
"Febr. 6, 1915.

"Dear Sir:
"To make sure its delivery I write this on a card and thank you most heartily (for) your letter containing the resolution of the American Christian Convention. I am glad to tell you that it had arrived here in good time. I read it before our General Assembly, entered it and published in the minutes. I feel happy to greet you, as son of your father, a most tender hearted, true Christian minister, whom we all learned to honor and respect. I hope to have some good occasion to meet you some day and keep up the brotherly connection so dear to us. Pray express our hearty thanks to the members of your Convention.

"Yours faithfully,

"JOSEPH FERENCZ.

My Dear Children and Friends:—
 We are glad to greet you this week with a good report and especially are we proud of what the Sunday schools are doing. Twenty schools report this week. That sounds good, but it could be better, and we are anxiously waiting for all the other schools to fall in line. This is a good work and all should have a part in it. Let those who are now helping continue and we will do our part to get others to join them in the noble work of caring for our orphan children.

We are profoundly grateful for the Old Zion Sunday school, Lambeth's Point, Va., for a box of many good things to eat and also to the good farmers of Hines Chapel church and community for enough flour to run our family more than two weeks. This is doing right much, for it takes more than a barrel a week. Apple's Chapel and Pleasant Hill have each made up a load of provisions for us, but we have not had an opportunity to go after it yet. We would be glad for others to have a part in the furnishings in this time of soaring prices.

Mrs. H. W. Elder, of Richland, Ga., sent a nice dress for one of the girls and Mrs. W. Tunstall of Henderson, R. 2, sent us a large nice ham; Mrs. H. Y. Rush, of O., sent us a nice set of pillow cases.

We are grateful to all our friends for their interest and help. May the Lord abundantly bless and greatly increase their kind.

J. O. Cox, Supt.

Suffolk, Va., March 4, 1915.
 Dear Uncle Jim:—I have been so busy going to school that I had almost forgotten to write. I will not write much for I do not want to take any more space than possible. Enclosed find my dues for January and February. Your niece,

Carrah Lee Pierce.

We are hoping that more space may be given you all soon, for we enjoy reading your letters.

Danville, Va., March 6, 1915.

Dear Uncle Jim:—We are so late in writing that we are almost ashamed to write, but we hope to be excused as we have been very busy going to school. We have changed schools, as we have moved to another neighborhood. We did not like our new school at first one bit. We hated so bad to give up our school at Union, but we like fine now. We go to school at Ringgold. Find enclosed one dollar for the little orphans. We will close with love to you and all the cousins.

WHERE DRUGS FAIL

Many chronic diseases fail to respond to drug treatment, even in the hands of the best physicians, whereas acute diseases usually respond readily. When a disease has become chronic, drugs often seem to do as much harm as they do good, for the system rebels against them. It is just this class of cases which derive the greatest benefit from Shivar Mineral Water. If you suffer with chronic dyspepsia, indigestion, sick headache, rheumatism, gall stones, kidney or liver disease, uric acid poisoning or other conditions due to impure blood, do not hesitate to accept Mr. Shivar's liberal offer as printed below. His records show that only two in a hundred, on the average, have reported "no beneficial results." This is a wonderful record from a truly wonderful spring. Simply sign the following letter:

Shivar Spring,
 Box 9F, Shelton, S. C.

Gentlemen:
 I accept your guarantee offer and enclose herewith two dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Water. I agree to give it a fair trial, in accordance with the instructions contained in booklet you will send, and if it fails to benefit my case you agree to refund the price in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns which I agree to return promptly.

CHURCH NEWS

RALEIGH LETTER

There is much to write about Raleigh. However, I am writing this letter in the interest of the Christian Orphanage. I know something of what it means to provide for a family of seven, which gives me a more intelligent idea of the cost to care for a family of over sixty. Much is being said about the high cost of living. Some economists claim it is the cost of high living that gives occasion to complaint rather than the high cost of living. Be this as it may, we are aware of the fact that every child born into the world should be provided from some source with sufficient clothing and nourishing food until the child is able to maintain himself. And these two commodities are not cheap at the present time. Then, too, along with food and clothing is the obligation to provide proper education.

The Christian church has both a responsibility placed upon it and a privilege offered for the most effective service in her Orphanage.

Two problems are now before us. The first is to maintain our present orphanage family, and the second is to increase facilities to do a larger work.

The response from our churches for an annual Thanksgiving offering has proven the wisdom of the plan. Many of our Sunday schools are contributing monthly to the support of the institution. Supt. Cox has recently made an appeal to all the schools of the S. C. C. for a monthly contribution of a definite amount. Could he visit each school, present needs and show opportunity, the two hundred schools of our constituency could be enlisted in response to this appeal. But this is not possible, so pastors and S. S. Supt.'s have the opportunity of using their influence in the local school to add the same to the list already contributing. The plan before our schools adopted by all will solve the problem of the present maintenance of the institution and enable those in authority to plan for larger service.

Rev. Stuart L. Russel, B. A., B. Sc., B. D., has landed in New York on a delegation from the Huguenots of France.

It will no doubt come as a surprise to most of us—even to those of Huguenot descent—to learn that there are today in France some thirteen hundred places of Protestant worship. The largest group of French Protestant Churches is the so-called "Union Nationale des Eglises Reformees Evangeliques de France." That association consists of some four hundred and fifty churches and was formed at

EASY BREATHING A LUXURY

To persons afflicted with catarrh or severe head colds the difficulty of breathing is a great burden.

The defective aeration of the blood, through lack of contact between the air inhaled and the mucous membrane of the lungs, produces headaches, depression and lower health conditions, because the blood is not properly purified.

Under such conditions Mentholatum should be applied within the nostrils. Its aromatic oils penetrate to the membranes and tickle them to greater activity.

The secretions become more active, loosening the coagulations which cover the membrane, encouraging the clearing of the air passages.

Then comes the good fresh air in satisfying volume, direct to the membranes, purifying the blood.

Mentholatum is antiseptic and germicidal, encouraging the restoration of inflamed parts, and has proven very useful as well in relieving croup, severe throat and chapped skin. Adv.

ERUPTIONS CAN BE STOPPED

By internal blood purifiers because they are caused by blood disorders. However, Eczema, Tetter, Ringworm, Itch, Scaly Patches, etc., cannot be cured they are parasitic skin diseases. It takes a positive skin remedy like Tetterine to destroy the germs and heal the surface. Dr. W. S. Fielder, Electric, Ala., says: "I never use anything else but Tetterine in all skin troubles." 50c at drug-gists' or by mail from Shuptrine Co., Savannah, Ga. Ad.

the time of the disestablishment and disendowment of the Old Protestant State Church of France in 1905 and 1906.

It has so far been the boast of the "Union Nationale" to be self-supporting. The large majority of her churches are small indeed, and too poor to be self-supporting, but their deficiencies have been made up by the few rich churches of the larger cities, of the north and north-east. The position before the war was something as follows:

Sixty richer churches were contributing to the support of three hundred and ninety smaller churches in the Cevennes, the Drome, the Ardeche, these regions of great historical interest to all Huguenots, but where economic resources are few. The troubled sea of disestablishment was thus safely traveled through, and disendowment did not result in the closing of either church or mission-hall, or of any of the missionary stations in the French colonies, or the Basuto land, which were supported by the French Protestants.

Then came the war!

In this country, what we know about the Great War is the dramatic, the heroic, but we can form no adequate conception of the economic upset caused in a country where general conscription obtains, by the two words which herald there the advent of war.

These two words, "Mobilisation Generale" were on Saturday, August the 1st wired from Paris to the 36,000 boroughs of France, and were cabled to all her embassies and consulates abroad.

General mobilization! This meant in France that every man between the ages of 20 and 48 must kiss his wife and children, his sweetheart or his old parents, and be off to the front, whence so many never returned.

It meant practically the suspension of all railroad services, as means of public conveyance, for all their services were now required for the transportation of troops, of arms, of ammunition.

It meant that all postal and telegraph services were reduced to impotency, want of men and want of railroad services.

It meant that every horse in the country that was worth requisitioning could also be called into service for use in the cavalry, the artillery or for transport.

It meant that all motor busses, motor vans, and many private motor cars were also requisitioned for the transportation of men and ammunition. It meant also, that all money was tied up in the banks, and that whatever balance might stand to your credit at your banker's you could only draw from the same $50, and 5% of the balance.

Now try and imagine New York, Philadelphia or Chicago suddenly minus all male hands between the ages of 20 and 48; minus horses, motor vans, motor busses; minus train connections and with all bank deposits tied up. Try and imagine the economic condition of the country resulting from such measures; the conditions of the churches; the conditions of your home, your office, your factory.

This is today the condition of France, and with all that she has to find every day of the week some $7,000,000 for war expenses, to say nothing of the outlay required to care for the thousands of refugees driven southward from Belgium and the northeastern belt of France.

We sometimes think in this country that we have contributed enormous sums for the relief of the suffering caused by the war. We have done very well indeed. But suppose we have raised $20,000,000 for that noble cause—which we certainly have not—that would only work out at $100,000 a day since the beginning of the war. Now if we think we feel the pinch, what must be the condition of things in France, spending $7,000,000 a day, and that with most of her industries and her trade reduced to impotency.

HOLMAN EDITIONS IN PURPLE BINDINGS

FOR SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS AND LITTLE CHILDREN

These special editions have been prepared to appeal to the child's own interest.

All efforts of the imagination and all descriptions in words cannot make the Land of the Bible as real and vivid as a walk through it by means of Pictures. There has been so little change in that part of the Orient that pictures of its scenes as they now are show the very places as they actually existed in the time of Jesus and the Apostles.

These Pictures illuminate in natural colors scenes and places taken from nature; and life in the Holy Land in manners, customs, dress and homes as they now exist, but so like olden times that one may imagine themselves going about with Jesus as He healed, taught and walked through the streets of Jerusalem. Each picture is accompanied by a complete description of the scene portrayed.

MARRIAGES

Renn-Hartton

The Henderson Christian Church was the scene of a pretty marriage Feb. 16 at 1 p. m., when Miss Pearl Hartton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Hartton, became the bride of Mr. Regie Renn.

The ceremony was performed by the writer in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends. The bridal party entered immediately after four ushers, Messrs. Langston and Mayo, Tally and Jenkins, while Mrs. A. T. Banks played Mendelssohn's wedding march. The church was beautifully decorated with potted plants and the ring ceremony was used.

Immediately after the marriage Mr. and Mrs. Renn left for New York and other cities.

The bride is a well known young lady in this city. She is gifted in rare business qualities and has held some flattering positions with leading firms of this city.

The groom is chief clerk in the Seaboard freight office and has the confidence of all who know him. May their lives be happy and prosperous is the wish of many friends.

A. T. BANKS.

Rhodes-Watkins

On Wednesday, Feb. 24, 1915, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Watkins, Windsor, Va., Miss Garrie Watkins and Mr. Robert A. Rhodes were united in marriage. The Watkins home was beautifully decorated for the occasion. Just before the bridal party entered Mrs. J. C. West of Suffolk sang, "I Love You Truly," accompanied on the piano by Mrs. J. M. Raby, who also rendered the bridal choruses. The ribbon girls were little Misses Katherine West, Majorie, and Mildred Rhodes and Louise Watkins. Miss Mary Herbert Watkins was ring bearer. The maid of honor was Miss Mamie Holland, of Suffolk. The bride entered with her father, Mr. M. L. Watkins, who gave her away. Rev. Beecher Rhodes, of Salisbury, Md., a brother of the groom, was best man. The ceremony was read by the writer. After their return from a tour of northern cities they will reside in Windsor. Miss Garrie is an old Elson student, and an active member of Windsor Christian Church. Mr. Rhodes is one of Windsor's most highly respected young business men. S. C. HARRELL.

CASSTOWN, OHIO

Our work moves along very well. Thirty-two were added to our ranks during our recent revival. The church has taken new life. There were fifty-six in prayer-meeting last week. We have installed the Duplex Envelope system, and the general tone of work is inspiring.

It has been a real joy to me to notice an increase in the Sunday school every Sunday this year except one, which was a real stormy day. The Christian Endeavor, though a few months old, is becoming a strong arm of the church. I think I should speak also of the teacher training class of fourteen members which meets on Wednesday evenings after prayer meeting. We are endeavoring to make our church reach each boy and girl, man and woman in the community, for Christ.

CALOMEL DYNAMITES YOUR LIVER! MAKES YOU SICK AND SALIVATES

"Dodson's Liver Tone" Starts Your Liver
Better Than Calomel and You Don't
Lose a Day's Work

Live up your sluggish liver! Feel fine and cheerful; make your work a pleasure; be vigorous and full of ambition. But take no nasty, dangerous calomel because it makes you sick and you may lose a day's work.

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel crashes into our bile like dynamite, breaking it up. That's when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. Listen to me! If you want to enjoy the nicest, gentlest liver and bowel cleansing you ever experienced just take a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone tonight. Your druggist or dealer sells you a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone under my personal money-back guarantee that each spoonful will clean your sluggish liver better than a dose of nasty calomel and that it won't make you sick.

Dodson's Liver Tone is real liver medicine. You'll know it next morning because you will wake up feeling fine, your liver will be working; headache and dizziness gone; stomach will be sweet and bowels regular.

Dodson's Liver Tone is entirely vegetable, therefore harmless and can't salivate. Give it to your children. Millions of people are using Dodson's Liver Tone instead of dangerous calomel now. Your druggist will tell you that the sale of Calomel is almost stopped entirely here.

OUR PRINCIPLES.

- (1.) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the church.
- (2.) Christian is a sufficient name for the church.
- (3.) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4.) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of church membership.
- (5.) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

Editorial Briefs

Love, Life, Beauty

Having in mind what we do not see "along life's way," George Lawrence Andrews wrote:
*"So much that's lovely we pass by,
So much of life we may not live,
So few the stops before we die,
Not all of living life can give.
So much of beauty by the way,
So much of awe beneath the sun,
And all so short life's little day
That we but glimpse it as we run."*

If one does not see, feel and enjoy something of the ever-present love, the all-pervading life, and the omnipresent beauty here in this present world, it is one's own fault and not that of the world. Lord Christ had such blind and deaf ones in mind when He said: "Having eyes, see ye not? and having ears, hear ye not? and do ye not remember?" (Mark 8:18.)

Economy and Morality

War is bad morally because it is bad economy. That which is economically bad is morally wrong. Time was when men did not think they could keep the ten commandments and succeed. Time is when men cannot succeed unless they keep the commandments. Seventy-one per cent. of our revenue goes for war—in payment of pensions for past war, or for army and navy equipment for future war. Only 29 per cent. of all our revenue left for maintenance, for constructive policies and the pursuits of peace. Fifty years after the close of our Civil War our Congress stops five minutes in its deliberations to pass an appropriation bill carrying $164,000,000 for pensions. One hundred years after the War of 1812 there were over two hundred widows on the pension list of that war. The Civil War has already cost in pensions four thousand million dollars, and we are only fifty years from it. There will be over fifty years more yet of pensions for that war. Yet many clamor for more equipment, larger armies, greater battle ships. The worst economy and about the worst morals a nation ever practiced was war. Hiring men to shoot and to kill one another is a costly, and an immoral business. "He that leadeth into captivity shall go into captivity: he that killeth with the sword must be killed with the sword." (Rev. 13:10.)

Doctors, Disease and Divinity

Christian Science makes the fatal blunder of treating disease as a mental or spiritual ailment, and not a bodily one. It contrasts the power of God with that of the physician much as the following does: "And Asa, in the thirty and ninth year of his reign, was diseased in his feet, until his disease was exceeding great; yet in his disease he sought not to the Lord, but to the physicians. And Asa slept with his fathers." (2 Chron. 16:12-12.) In which the inference is that the Lord punished Asa with death because he sent for and trusted in physicians instead of trusting in God. It is not necessary to trust in a physician or in God; but one may and should trust in God through the knowledge and skill of a physician. We sin when we forget God and trust solely in a physician or in any other human agency. God works through human agents to carry on His work of healing both soul and body. "Fear not them which kill the body, but are not able to kill the soul; but rather fear him which is able to destroy both soul and body in hell." (Matt. 10:28.)

Machine and the Man

The glory of war has departed. The day of the daring and dashing trooper has passed. The halo about the plumed knight is gone forever. On the hills of France and about the forts and strongholds of Belgium the modern soldier has shot to death his trade, and the arts of war. You have not heard, you are not likely to hear, of any soldier winning his spurs and coming to fame and feathers in the tragic conflict now on in Europe. You have heard, and you will keep on hearing, about the glory and the marvel and wonder of Krupp guns, aeroplanes, floating mines and sunken warships. Nobody is interested in the men; everybody is interested in the machines employed to make this war deadly, desperate, destructive. The halo and the glory of the soldier's trade have departed forever; the glory of guns, armaments and equipment has arrived instead. Take a quotation like this, which you may see any day: "In the recent target practice a gun pointer on the battleship Texas broke the world's record in marksmanship with big guns, hitting eight times in succession, with a fourteen-inch gun, a moving target twelve miles away." The fame of the man who, with spy glass, lever and screw, "pointed" the gun makes no difference; the glory of a gun that can shoot twelve miles away and hit a moving object eight times in succession—that thrills and delights and satisfies the modern mind. It is time for another epic poet writer to arrive and sing not of "Arms and the man," but of "Man and the machine." This materialistic time glorifies in the triumph of the machine. "My people have changed their glory for that which does not profit. Be astonished, O ye heavens, at this, and be horribly afraid, saith the Lord." (Jer. 2:11, 12.)

The Day of Beginning

Ont thousand, five hundred American boys begin each day of the year the deadly habit of cigarette smoking. The habit grows more rapidly than our population. In 1912 34,000,000 cigarettes were smoked daily; in 1913 40,000,000 were consumed daily at an average daily expense of $200,000. Authorities tell us that 100,000 boys are sent every year, by and through the cigarette habit, to the saloon to be made into bums, hoboes, thieves and drunkards to disgrace themselves and break the hearts of their loved ones. Police records prove that the cigarette habit leads more boys to crime and to court than all other habits combined. Out of 300 court and criminal boys recently 295 were cigarette smokers. In Harvard University where an average of 83% of the students smoke, not one of all that per cent. has stood at the head of his class in fifty years. In a college where the census was taken a while ago and where the smokers only comprised 46% of the total student body, 77% of all the dull students were smokers. It is exceedingly rare at any college or university in America that a tobacco user, particularly the cigarette smoker, ever wins medals, class distinctions, athletics honors, or delivers the valedictory. "Esau, who for one morsel of meat sold his birthright." (Heb. 12:16.)

Enemies

One need not seek to make enemies; one will make enough of them without seeking. But the one who seeks to live without making foes of any kind at any price is not likely to live a useful or satisfactory life. One is not likely to live as perfect a life as Christ did, and He made many and very bitter foes. He made them, however, not by seeking to do so, nor by being unkind, ungenerous, rough or uncouth to any one, for He was kind and generous and considerate of all. He did not turn His back on people; people turned their backs on him. He was not ungracious to any; many were ungracious to Him. He told people of their faults, sins and shortcomings to their face, and they became His foes because He told them the truth. Christ made no foes by being rough, inconsiderate, abusive; His foes were those who despised the truth, hated kindness, contemned virtue. In seeking the truth, in being just, in teaching and in practicing kindness, integrity, gentleness, toleration, one will make enough enemies without seeking, by overt act or uncouth method, to make any. For there are those who despise the truth, and will think unkindly of you for speaking it, even in the gentlest and most opportune way. "Woe unto you when all men shall speak well of you; for so did their fathers to the false prophets." (Luke 6:26.)

—A brilliant contemporary produces this: "The worst thing about Senator Lineback, who put the road bonds on Avery County, seems to be that he is a Republican, but there are about as many Republicans in heaven as there are Democrats." How in the world does a newspaper know who is in heaven? Moreover, we have a notion there are neither Democrats nor Republicans there, but just plain, straight Christians—followers of the meek and lowly Christ.

—If our pastors have a care for THE SUN and a pride in their church paper, now is the time for them to show it.

EDITORIAL

PAYING THE COST

There is a religious awakening among college students. Last year several hundred men at Pennsylvania State College and Lafayette College were awakened to a sense of Christian duty and obligation. Mr. Sherwood Eddy and Mr. Jno. R. Mott were principal speakers and leaders in meetings, which were attended by almost the entire student body. Sometimes as many as 150 visitors from other colleges and universities were present and aided in the movement. Fresh from one of the greatest campaigns for Christ ever witnessed in Japan, China, Korea, Mr. Eddy has recently been at Yale. The results were marvelous. Great crowds of students and faculty attended the meeting and more than a thousand Yale students professed faith in Christ, signing the following pledge: "It is my purpose, with the help of God, to pay what it costs to be a sincere follower of Jesus Christ." Other colleges are catching the spirit of the movement, and many are adopting the slogan: Every college student a Christian; every Christian a church member.

This movement originated mostly with and is carried on by the Christian organizations of the colleges. Men in college, as elsewhere, see the need of winning their fellows to Christ.

THE INNOCENT FOR THE GUILTY

The two most horrible and revolting pictures of crime, blood-shed and death ever painted are the descriptions of conditions that obtain in Belgium and in Poland growing out of the present European holocaust. These are, or wanted to be, neutral nations, having no ill-will against any and no taste, desire or disposition for war. SUN readers know how innocent Belgium was made to suffer; the story of Poland's wrongs is not so familiar. There comes now from Switzerland, whither he has been driven and where he is confined, a declaration from Henri Sienkiewicz, author of the world-famous novel, "Quo Vadis," to the effect that "No more appalling picture of death, destruction, devastation has even been witnessed than that in Poland at this present time." The famous author's picture of death and suffering, of innocence and crime, beggars description. "What is the position of Poland? She has nothing to do with the war. She is not one of the belligerent nations, yet a million and a half of her sons are made to fight in these fratricidal battles in the armies of three different warring States. Our country is made the cock pit of the battles of Europe, and is devastated from end to end. Three-quarters of a million of our children are fighting in the Russian Army, another three-quarters of a million are bearing arms for Germany or Austria. When the order for a cavalry or bayonet charge is given hordes of soldiers rush on each other, and when they get to striking distance and commence cutting one another down they find that the language in which they are uttering their imprecations is the common natal tongue—Polish! It frequently happens when the Red Cross go out to collect the wounded from a battlefield they lift from a heap one man in German uniform, another in Austrian, and a third in Russian, and discover that they are all three Poles. It is against the Bible, it is against the New Testament, it is against the will of God. The curse of Cain is on an innocent people."

And the sufferings of these innocent Poles, whose country is conquered and partitioned, and whose people are allowed no voice or will in the matter, are great indeed. In the little kingdom of Poland alone more than 15,000 towns and villages have been burned or sacked, nine out of ten of her provinces are occupied by the Germans who have seized everything, even the peasants' chickens. "Homeless, the villagers have sought shelter in the forests, where it is no exaggeration to say, women and children are dying from cold and hunger by the thousands daily. Children raise their fleshless arms and cry to their mothers for bread, but the Polish mother has nothing to give them—nothing but her tears." More than one million horses and two million head of cattle had been seized by the invaders, and in all the country seized there is not a grain of corn, not a scrap of meat, nor a drop of milk for the civil population."

If retributive justice obtains in this world then a terrible penalty must ultimately be paid by some nation. If it does not obtain, then in the world to come awful judgment abides the guilty. For God at least is just and He who marks the sparrow when it falls will not turn a deaf ear to the pitiable condition of these helpless, innocent and unfortunate people.

THE "DON'T-KNOW" MAN

The esteemed Biblical Recorder recently reproduced from a very knowing exchange some searching facts about the "Don't-Know Man." If this man were confined to the acquaintance and communion of our exchange we should not be so much concerned about him; but he is a ubiquitous brother. Every church member is acquainted with him and every SUN reader has some knowledge of him. The world is much poorer because there are so many of him, and would rejoice if his kind would decrease among men. Here are some of his "don't-knows":

"What church paper do you take?"
 "None."
 "Why?"
 "Hain't time to read one. Take more papers now than I can read."
 "When and where is our next State Convention?"
 "Don't know."
 "What is our Foreign Board doing now?"
 "Don't know."
 "Have we a Foreign Board, anyhow?"
 "Think we have, but don't know for certain."
 "Who are its secretaries?"
 "Don't know."
 "Is it doing anything?"
 "S'pose it is. Don't really know."
 "How much money did it raise last year?"
 "Don't know."
 "Who are our home missionaries?"
 "Don't know."
 "Where is our home missionary work most needed?"
 "Don't know."
 "What is our membership in the United States?"
 "Don't know."
 "What is it in the State?"
 "Don't know."
 "Where are we the strongest?"
 "Don't know."
 "Who are some of our strongest men?"
 "Don't know."
 "Is our cause making much progress at present?"
 "Don't know."
 "What good are you to the church anyhow?"
 "Don't know—that is,—well, you see—"
 And thousands could not tell you, for the life of them, what good they are to the church, or to any individual or organized benevolence. But you never knew, in all your life, a reader of his church paper who did not know many and very valuable things about both Christ and the church. The best money a family invests is the small annual pittance it pays for its church paper—provided that family reads what is printed in that paper.

BILLY SUNDAY

From a leading and conservative journal we take this sentence: "We do not like Billy Sunday's way: it is coarse, rude, vulgar. It is on a level with the dancing red devils of the miracle plays in the churches of five hundred years ago, which came out of lurid pits and frightened ignorant multitudes to the fear of God." Which may do as a comparison except the fact of the "ignorant multitudes," for those whom Billy Sunday reaches in many, if not in most instances, are among the most learned, thoughtful, scholarly and cultured. But is not all this criticism against Sunday and his methods a real criticism of the times in which we live, particularly of the public mind toward religion. Is there not a very great deal of "coarse, rude, vulgar" speech and thought about religion, and is not the fact that Sunday has adopted, or taken advantage of the most common, the most understandable, the most used speech and methods of his time that accounts in large measure for his success? You can't deplore Sunday and his methods without deploring the state of the public speech, thought and attitude of the present. Isn't Sunday a product, and an exponent, of the time in which he lives. He is fighting the devil with fire. So one can't intelligently censure the fighter; censure the one whose chief asset is fire and brimstone.

NOTES AND PERSONALS

—Rev. L. L. Lassiter, 100 Chesapeake Ave., South Norfolk, Va., sends a renewal to THE SUN and hopes to send a list of new subscribers from his field at an early date. The work goes well with him.

—The call last week for one hundred friends is being answered. The daily mail brings in favorable replies. The plan is going to work. Are you with us? Do you want to see your paper back at its former size? If so, help us out.

—Rev. Victor Lightbourne is this week with Rev. J. L. Foster, pastor, in a series of evangelistic meetings with our Waverly, Va., church. Brother Lightbourne just returned from a two months' successful evangelistic tour in the West, has engagements for two months among our Southern churches. We should keep him here, for his services as an evangelist are invaluable and very efficient.

—The Starkey Seminary for March carries this note of interest to SUN readers: "A recent letter from Dr. Child reports that he has been suffering from swollen feet, which will not allow him to wear a shoe. He has been confined to the house for three weeks. Still he has been able to preach every Sunday in slippers. We admire his courage in doing this, for it must have been painful to even stand on his feet, to say nothing of the length of time required for the Sabbath service in the pulpit. As soon as he can do so he is to go to Atlantic City to recuperate. Elon College will regret his inability to pay them the Spring visit which they have been expecting."

—Good reports come from the work at Rose Hill, Columbus, Ga., Rev. B. J. Earp, pastor.

The Ledger recently had the following: "The services at the Rose Hill Christian church were unusually interesting last night. A leaderless Christian Endeavor services was conducted, after which the pastor, Rev. B. J. Harp, preached from the text, 'He went away.' Matt. 19:22. This was one of the most powerful sermons that the pastor has preached since he has been in Columbus, and his forceful words, coming as they did from the heart, reached the hearts of many of his hearers. There were three who professed faith in Christ and six others made requests for special prayer. The following is a partial outline of the sermon: 'From all accounts this young ruler who came to Jesus seemed to be in earnest, and the fact that he came to Jesus is something at any rate. No man desires to come to Jesus but through the influence of the Holy Spirit. Some do not do as much as this young ruler did. He came running. Many have been in a hurry to run and engage in sin and worldly pleasure, but few are in a hurry to find Jesus. "He went away," and so the sin of omission is one of the greatest of all time. He went back to his wealth and worldly honor, which are deceptive and do not satisfy the soul. No rest is found except in Jesus. Was this ruler saved? Why, don't you know he went away? As you value your soul, keep your face toward Jesus the Light of the World. Do not go away.'" "

THE EDITOR'S EASY CHAIR

Said the Editor in Chief, "I have been reading the most sensational book I have ever had in my hands." Visions of Nick Carter, Horatio Alger, J. Fenimore Cooper, floated through my mind. But the Editor in Chief continued, "It is called 'The New Era in Asia.'" Humph, thought I, I don't suppose he knows what a really exciting and sensational book it. But he does!

Really and truly, if by sensational one means a book which gives you sensations, which holds you entranced and interested from start to finish, then "The New Era in Asia," by Sherwood Eddy, is sensational.

One cannot read unmoved of Mr. Eddy's wonderful trip through the Orient, where he and his companions and associates addressed thousands of men and women, eager, earnest seekers after truth. Did you notice the illustration of the great Y. M. C. A. meeting in Osaka where 220 seekers were enrolled, that is, 220 men who promised to diligently seek and search in the Scriptures if thereby they might find a personal Savior in the world's Savior. And there is another picture, entitled, 2,000 women listening to Prof. Robertson's lecture on (of all things!) wireless telegraphy, in Foochow, China. Did I say they were Chinese women, at that? I don't know about you, but I was dumfounded to think the Chinese women—the women of the lily feet, the women behind closed doors—were interested to that extent in the work of the world. I doubt if many American cities could produce that many women interested in wireless telegraphy.

I despair of attempting to tell you one-tenth of what is in this wonderful book, were the whole paper put at my disposal; how much less a bare column. You must read for yourself of Chang Po-ling, the "Arnold of North China," that great educator and Christian gentleman; of the man who lived on one meal a day for two years and gave over $500.00 to the church; and of the other who sold his ox for money for his church and drew his plow himself (and we talk of sacrifices); of Pastor Kil of Ping-yang with his funny dress and lumbrella, and stovepipe hat tied under his chin; of Dr. Rhee, that wonderful Confucian scholar of Korea who read the New Testament while fastened hand and foot in the stocks, through the kindness of a fellow prisoner who held the book for him to see it, and whose first prayer was, "O God, save my country, save my soul"; and of others, too numerous to mention, in China, Korea, India, Japan and the Near East, and the wonderful work they are doing.

If you are interested from an educational standpoint, you will find this book a storehouse of facts concerning these Eastern lands; if you are a scholar, it will teach you; if you are a teacher, it will place material in your hands to teach others; if you are looking for an interesting book, you can find it here; if you are a Christian and vitally concerned in sending God's word to all of God's children, you will rejoice to read this book, not only for the knowledge of the great amount of good already wrought, but more for the great opportunities still existing, for when you have read "The New Era in Asia," you will want to help light a taper to point the way to the "light that shineth more and more unto the perfect day."

SEASIDE CHAUTAUQUA AND SCHOOL OF METHODS OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH
Virginia Beach, July 19-25.

There are so many good things we want to do for our people at the Seaside Chautauqua that we cannot get them all done any one year. Last year we could not do much with the Christian Endeavor field of work.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR EXPERT COURSE

This year we have arranged for the Christian Endeavor Expert Course. There will be a period each day of the five to cover the splendid work of that course. It will be conducted by that prince of Christian Endeavor workers, and one who is a real C. E. specialist, President W. A. Harper, of Elon College. Dr. Harper is the Christian Endeavor Secretary of the American Christian Convention and he holds several other Christian Endeavor offices, and all who are not reading his Christian Endeavor column in the Herald of Gospel Liberty are missing some rich things.

Now is the time for our Christian Endeavors to get the very best expert teaching and take the Expert course under an expert. Who will tell us in what we need more emphasis as a people than in Christian Endeavor work. Now is your chance and now is the time to plan to be at Virginia Beach.

WARREN H. DENISON, President.

ELON COLLEGE NOTES

All the sick at Elon are improving. Dr. W. T. Herndon is very weak yet, but slightly better. Dr. J. W. Wellons and Brother W. L. Smith are out. All the others are on the upgrade. The health of the students is especially good.

Dr. W. P. Lawrence oscillated between life and death throughout the week, with the chances gradually brightening for his recovery. His condition is serious, but not so critical, and his restoration to health is expected. He is in the St. Leo's Hospital, Greensboro, and Mrs. Lawrence is by his side. Mrs. James G. Anthony, a cousin, of High Point, is visiting and is caring for the Lawrence children and household while Dr. and Mrs. Lawrence are away.

Mrs. M. A. Atkinson has been quite ill for some time. On last Friday her mother, Mrs. S. C. Hobby, came up from Raleigh to see her. On Saturday she was able to go to her mother's home where she will be near a specialist. Her many friends will be glad to learn of her speedy recovery.

Visitors during the past week were: Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Cline, Asheboro, N. C.; Mrs. C. H. Herndon and little Carl, Henderson, N. C.; Mr. T. W. Chandler, Virgilina, Va.; Mr. A. E.

Stone, Charlotte, N. C.; Mr. W. J. McComb, of the White Bible School, New York City; and Miss Lillian Aldridge, of Union Ridge.

Dr. Atkinson delivered a community service address at the Ossipee High School on Friday evening.

The Orphanage has divided its farm work for next year. Mr. Arthur Morris will have charge of the agricultural operations as such, and his brother, Mr. Everton Morris, who was reared in the institution, but who has since had a special course in dairying and stock raising, will have charge of the stock. The division of labor promises greater efficiency.

Dr. W. C. Wicker is rising rapidly as a Mason. He is frequently called upon to deliver addresses. He is high priest of the Greensboro Chapter Lodge and was in Greensboro two nights last week in connection with his duties growing out of that high distinction. He expects in April to go to Chicago for still higher degrees.

Dr. Amick occupied the M. P. pulpit in Gibsons ville at the 11 o'clock hour Sunday. Mrs. Amick accompanied him.

The Expression Recital on Friday evening was largely attended and highly creditable. Five young ladies participated: Misses Ina Dunlap, Bonlee, N. C.; Jessie Wampler, Harrisonburg, Va.; Eunice Wellons, Smithfield, N. C.; Annie Laurie Wicker, City; and Lorena Garrett, Burlington, N. C.

Dr. E. E. Randolph's March Faculty lecture on Tuesday evening was a splendid treatment of Revelation in Nature. Dr. Randolph said he believed fully in God's revealed will in the Bible, but also in the revelation of God in nature. He declared that no true scientist could be a skeptic, though he might be an agnostic, for which even there was no need.

A loyal subscriber sent in $5.00 to be applied to his subscription. This paid his subscription due and over two years in advance.

We have something over two thousand dollars on the books—subscriptions past due—very near three thousand dollars. Dear reader, are you one of the number? Just for this reason, the fact that we were unable to collect sufficient funds, THE CHRISTIAN SUN had to be reduced. We have very few accounts over $3.00. One year and two years in arrears, a few over two years. This is why the paper is suffering. Your $1.50 and the other fellow's $1.00 sent in immediately would help wonderfully. We are apologizing to some of our creditors for non-payment of our obligations and asking them to bear with us a few days longer. Will you help us by sending in your subscription by next mail?

Nearly fifteen hundred letters have been sent out calling the attention of those in arrears to the fact that we are sorely in need of funds to meet pressing obligations. Many have already responded liberally. We are waiting for yours. A year in advance would look nice on our books, just now. If all were to even pay back subscriptions THE CHRISTIAN SUN would be put back to its former size, 16 pages, and do credit to the cause which it is trying to serve. A united effort at this time will work wonders. Let us all help by doing what we can, even if in part payment.

Speak a word to your friend and get him to subscribe to THE CHRISTIAN SUN. We need your co-operation, also.

The Attitude of the Church to Social Progress

By REV. H. F. WOLFE, Youngsville, N. C.

IT IS generally supposed that the Church is the great police force of the land, because it exercises restraint and induces reverence on the part of the people. But this salutary and beneficial influence is on the decline, from the fact that she is seeking for wealth and power, favoring a class who are looked upon with suspicion, and who do not exemplify the great principles of the Nazarene.

If we are to recognize her as the great spiritual agent for the promotion of the welfare of man, why is she not in the van of the great world movements? Evidently it is her duty to curb the strong and strengthen the weak.

The Savior declared that He came to preach the gospel to the poor, to bind the broken-hearted, to open the prison to them that are bound. I believe in conservatism, but when conservatism becomes moss-grown and is a hindrance to progress, I believe it is high time to become aggressive.

The church is most generally on the side of the dominant ruling class who have always been opposed to the emancipation of the masses and a pure democracy. Jesus of Nazareth belonged to the submerged class, the vast laboring class of the old Roman world. His great heart was in sympathy with the unfortunate and suffering fellows of his day and time.

Rome was a great robber and exploiter. Conquering the nations, she imposed tribute upon them and carried off in triumph thousands of unfortunate slaves. Their condition was deplorable, and their plight worse than that of the black slave of our native land. When old and infirm, they were neglected or left to die, while the black slave of our country was provided for in old age.

In fact, the whole Roman system was in favor of the privileged class, while the masses were exploited for their comfort and enjoyment.

The Savior's keen vision easily penetrated the hypocrisy and shams of the Jewish aristocracy. He said: "Ye Pharisees, hypocrites, who devour widows' houses and for a pretense make long prayers, How shall ye escape the damnation of Hell?" During the ages past thousands have reveled in luxury and ease, while millions of the unfortunate have been hopelessly bound to minister to their wants.

The Apostolic Church in the beginning was largely composed of the poorer class and were subject to the bitterest persecution, until finally she became influential and wealthy, and in turn herself became an oppressor.

Distinctions in society based upon caste have long been the bane of society and civilization. War has followed war, revolution has followed revolution, until the world has sickened of bloodshed. The French revolution was a reaction against a venal priesthood, and an oppressive nobility. After the sky of this political earthquake had cleared, men began to think more soberly of the rights of men.

Greed, ambition and lust are as rampant as ever and the world is suffering because of it. Revolution in Mexico was aroused by oppression and robbery, a corrupt church had much to do with the uprising of the masses. It has now become necessary to banish the venal priesthood from her borders. The great conflict in Europe at present is a disgrace to modern civilization. Its real incentive is ambition and greed, and the Christian Church seems powerless to avert it. This great conflict may be instigated by Divine Providence for the disarming of the nations. According to prophecy the Gentile age is nearly closed. This great conflict may be the beginning of the great war of Armageddon that will result in the removal of false conditions. The great inequality of conditions, the unrest of the toiling masses, the revelation of fraud and dishonesty in high places, the rapid growth of intelligence among the workers of the world, point to a revolution such as the world has never seen. I do not believe in the doctrine that those who today possess the wealth of the world have produced it by superior intelligence and frugality; but on the other hand by exploitation and dishonesty.

The men who are producing millions are deprived of them because of false conditions. The slow progress of the regeneration of the world by the churches does not keep pace with modern progress or the increase of population. Lax Christianity and the formal faith of the age will never be remedied by present methods.

Men must feel deeply the chastening hand of the Almighty. We have no record of repentance at the tragic end of the antediluvian; with one sweep of the Omnipotent Arm they were hurled into the relentless flood. They had abundant opportunity to repent, but we have no record of their doing so. We have reached the beginning of the days of trouble as spoken by the holy prophets. Disappointment, sorrow, privation, these different trials must necessarily cause men to think seriously. Christians who have been lax in the work of the Kingdom will become aroused and put forth greater effort. Others who have fallen away will come back to their first estate. Those whose profession is only in name will espouse the true faith.

The evangelist may be ever so spiritual, but evangelism cannot win alone. It requires the united co-operation of every moral power. The evils of the ages have been worn, long and hard, about the necks of the unfortunate until they can endure it no longer. Men drunk with power have forgotten common decency in their dealings with their fellow men, by the perversion of law and the abuse of power, until that dreaded giant is awakened that all men fear. When the spark from the fuse has reached the magazine, we cannot avert the explosion and wreckage of the accumulated abuses of the ages. I do not believe in a gospel that constantly preaches poverty and sorrow in this world and all glory in the world to come. Justice, humanity and righteousness demand better conditions for the present. Surely society should be above the conditions of the animal kingdom. The Word does not teach that one caste in society is of such superior mould, that all others of inferior standing are bound soul and body to its support, or as the wild beasts of the jungle prey upon and devour others.

Such in fact is the condition of our present social system. We speak of the enlightenment and superior condition of modern civilization, of what it is achieving, when the world is reeking with selfishness, lust, and the destruction of human life. Mammon, Midas-eared, is the exalted god and millions of the race are being sacrificed before his shrine. Property supercedes character, and apparent respectability covers a multitude of sins. The gravest crimes and most heinous sins are committed under the guise of respectability. Respectability means nothing unless tested by sterling worth. Many churches today have members whose character will not pass muster with some of the worst characters of the world. But we must be respectable! The hypocrite will ply his wicked profession in the sacred precincts of the sanctuary as readily as on the street, or in his secret den, look for victims even before the altar!

No wonder the majority of our countrymen today are out of the Church. This vast throng upon which the prosperity and solidity of our great country rests, are out of the Church. When the subject is presented they shrug their shoulders and pass on. Away with your scenic attractions, your hollow, soulless and inane devotions. Rented pews! Fat, sleek millionaires who spend all the week devising schemes to rob men of the means of life! The blood of the victims of your cupidity is on your hands! We want none of your ecclesiastical formula! But we love and revere the teachings of the Carpenter of Nazareth!

NOTICE

The Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention of the Eastern North Carolina Conference, at its last session, Sanford, N. C., voted to hold its next annual session at Wentworth church, McCullers, N. C., and to change the date in order not to conflict with the Chautauqua at Virginia Beach, should that organization become permanent, and left the choice of the week before or the week after the Chautauqua to the school the Convention meets with this year. The Sunday school at Wentworth has decided that they prefer the week before the Chautauqua, or that we meet one week earlier than last year.

This is to notify you that rain or shine the Sunday School and C. E. Convention of the E. N. C. Conference will meet with these good people Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday after the second Sunday in July. Get this fixed firmly in your mind, make no appointments, engagements or promises now that will keep you away then.

C. H. STEPHENSON, Pres.

—On a trip to Cragford, Alabama, we remember with pleasure meeting Mr. Forest Mitchell, son of our good brother and deacon W. D. Mitchell. The following from the Lineville, Ala., Headlight interests us and gives us the privilege of extending felicitations: "Mr. Forest Mitchell, of Cragford, and Miss Maude Young, of Dingler, were married last Sunday. Rev. J. H. Hughes officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Young and is a young woman of accomplishments and charming personality. The groom is a young business man of Cragford and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Mitchell."

—Rev. G. R. Underwood, Sanford, sends a renewal and will shortly send others and a list of new ones, he trusts. Bro. Underwood's work has opened up nicely after the long spell of inclement weather and he expects a good year's work in his field.

—At any rate you will understand, when you read it, what Rev. H. F. Wolfe is writing about on our sermon page this week. His style is lucid, his thought clear, his conclusions apparent. Do you agree with him? It is worth reading to find out.

SUNDAY SCHOOL, MARCH 28

Review: God's Mercies to Disobedient Israel.

Golden Text: "Righteousness exalteth a nation; but sin is a reproach to any people."—Prov. 14:34.

There are several ways in which a review may be made with profit. One may be made by reviewing the books that we have studied during the quarter. We have given a general study to three books: Judges, in which we found prominent in the minds and customs of the people anarchy; we found in the book of Ruth faith in its highest forms; and the third and last book, Samuel, in which we found laxity in discipline, consecration, and in Jonathan confidence.

Another excellent way to review the lessons is by asking questions, either written or oral (the written is preferred so that all may have a chance), and in the questions make suggestions such that the students will know some of the questions by the association of part of a verse in the lesson, or a small word picture of some prominent part in the lesson.

During this quarter we have studied some of the weaknesses of the Children of Israel, several times have they sinned and then God with His tenderness and mercy sought and found a deliverer who came out from among them.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR, MARCH 28

Home Mission Opportunities That Summon Us.—Ezek. 34:20-31.

If you have a mission study class in your Society or Sunday school that has been studying home missions it will be easy to get good material for this meeting. Also, it will be well for the prayer meeting committee to keep this in mind when they select the leaders, which it is hoped they have done.

One of the supreme things to consider in this meeting is the influence that the present European war is going to have upon our home influences and environments. To be sure the foreigners are going to look to peaceful America for a peaceful abode or suggestion as to how they are going to spend the future. On our borders, and in some of the yet undeveloped land of the west towns are going to spring up. The Panama Canal is going to be a large factor in bringing this about. If this is so it is well for us to take the situation in hand while it is young, for it is easier to make a young town Christian than an older one.

Then, too, if we look out of our own door it is likely we will see some so-called homes that are not real homes but that should be homes in the true sense of the word. Why are they not homes? Probably because your society has not done its duty and called on these unfortunate people and asked them to consider living a clean Christian life—to live a Christian life will mean a clean life. The "down-and-outs" are waiting, longing, hungering for a word of encouragement from the lips of a soul that has the live fire in it. Do you have the live fire? Get it; then help your neighbor get it. Golden opportunities are confronting us. It is God's will that we go after those who are drifting away because of some one's neglect, carelessness or insincerity. It is well and uplifting to us as well as it is to our neighbor that we go and speak to him.

It is high time for the city people of our land to get busy for Christ. "Notwithstanding the drift to the city it is stated that the farmers furnish fifty-four per cent. of the membership of the churches and are building twenty-two churches a day. Special thought has been given to the central place that the country church should hold in its community and to the ways of gaining for it this influence."

What does home missions mean? What are some of the best ways for the Christian Endeavor to do home mission work?

Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Department

This Department is edited by Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., assisted by other members of the Board, to whom all items of Missionary interest and matter for the Department should be sent.

SELECTED ITEMS OF INTEREST

In his last address to an English audience Wilmot Brooke, a man who gave his life for Africa, said: "You ask me to tell you some of the things I saw in Africa which led me to become a missionary. You don't want to hear them. It is not that you want. I told you all that some years ago, and I understand that since then your contributions have not increased, and no one from this town has gone out to the mission field; what you really want is to get in touch with Jesus Christ."

A few months ago Dr. Faunce, president of Brown University, was speaking late one evening at Peking to the students of the government school of that great Chinese capital. For an hour they listened intently to his description of school and college life in America. Then a single lamp was lighted and a young man arose to make an announcement: "Three weeks ago," he said, "John R. Mott was here and told us that the Bible was the secret of Western power. All who wish to enroll in classes for Bible study will now have a chance to do so." Thereupon the students eagerly pressed forward, crowding one another, and struggling to be first. Said Dr. Faunce: "Not one in twenty-five, but all of them believed that the progress of Europe and America was somehow due to the Bible, and were determined to investigate for themselves. Then a Y. M. C. A. Secretary," says Dr. Faunce, "turned to me in despair, saying, 'Where can we secure teachers for these men? The regular missionaries are busy with their own classes. The foreign residents will not aid. We are utterly helpless before this ever-growing demand.'"

Missionary societies have been criticized, have even been misrepresented, have had much tribulation, and many sorrows, but they have sent songs of joy around the world. They have planted schools and colleges, orphanages, hospitals, helped to inaugurate new civilizations all over the world, and have done much to make the earth a better place in which men may live. The criticisms fall by the way and are forgotten, but the organizations continue their work and grow in strength and power. This is the history of more than a hundred years. No society has escaped. God loves His church, and approves of the earnest effort to preach His gospel; and what God loves will last.

A member from Mt. Auburn, N.

C., W. M. Society writes: "Our Woman's Missionary Society is alive and deeply interested in the work. I trust that we may accomplish great good during this year."

VISUALIZING THE MISSION FIELDS

Nearly one thousand pastors and church workers East and West have successfully used the stereopticon lectures of the Missionary Education Movement during the last few months. A clergyman in Wisconsin, in writing to the Movement, says, "Enclosed please find a check for the fifth in our series of lecture sets for this year. They have been very interesting and helpful. The attendance on the evenings when we use the stereopticon jumps from sixty to nearly three hundred, and I cannot but feel that the people are helped every time they see these pictures and hear the stories concerning them." Another writes from Rhode Island: "I am glad that the stereopticon slides indicated in your circular are now available. This method of missionary education is most successful, as it appeals to the man who is not interested in missions."

Ten stereopticon lectures of unusual merit covering all phases of home and foreign mission work may be rented from the Missionary Education Movement, 156 Fifth Avenue, New York City, or 19 S. La Salle Street, Chicago, Illinois. They also have a system of depositories in other large cities which brings the lectures within the reach of churches everywhere. Their regular rental charge for the subjects on their circular is only two dollars, but just at the present time in addition to this they are offering to loan fine lectures on their summer mission study conferences. These are free to anyone who applies before all the dates are taken. They illustrate Silver Bay, Lake Geneva, and other well known conference centers. A pastor says: "They are fine slides and the lecture is splendidly adapted to them. We enjoyed them and trust they will help."

Judge Gunter of Alabama has ruled that the recently enacted law in that State prohibiting the delivery of one quart of whiskey only to any one person once a month is unconstitutional.

Two English and one French ship were blown up by floating mines while attacking forts in the Narrows of the Dardanelles last Thursday.

Dear Uncle Jim:—We are a Junior class of fifteen girls and boys. On Jan. 3, 1915, we organized our class under the name "Bright Jewels," with officers as follows: Mrs. J. A. Williams, teacher; Meredith Morel, Pres.; Virginia Beale, Vice pres.; Margaret Rowland, Sec.; Mary Lee Williams, treas.; Doris Beale, Cor. Sec.; Bynum Gay, Lit. Supt.; Pearl, Carrie and Robert Harell, Vis. Com. It was moved and carried that we the Bright Jewels Class join the Band of Cousins in their good work, and send one Sunday's collection each month. Love to the cousins and each member of your large family.

Lovingly,
Doris Beale, Cor. Sec.

We are glad and grateful for your help, and wish you much success.

Suffolk, Va., March 13, 1915.

Dear Uncle Jim:—Enclosed please find two dollars for the Orphanage. We are,

J. T. Williams, Jr.,
Katherine Williams,
Thomas Williams.

Many thanks,

Henderson, N. C., March 10, 1915.

Dear Uncle Jim:—I will write just a few lines this time. I have twelve little chickens and enjoy going to feed them. I hope all our band are well and the Orphanage family, too. Find my dime for March and best love.

Lovingly,
Virginia Pearl Ayscue.
Hope your chicks may all live and do well.

News Ferry, Va., March 13, 1915.
Dear Uncle Jim:—I want to join the band and help all I can. Papa takes The Sun and mama reads all the children's letters to me. I am seven years old. I started to school the first of October and did not know my letters. Now I am in the first reader. Enclosed you will find ten cents with best wishes to you and the cousins.

Fannie Ida Jones.

We are glad to have you join and help us in our good work. Think you have been real smart in school.

Liberty, N. C., March 19, 1915.

Dear Uncle Jim:—I will send my dime for March. I did not see any letters in the paper last week, but we have not got the paper this week yet. My school will be out the 26th, but I wish it was longer, for I love to go to school. I did not get to go to Sunday school last Sunday. Did the cousins go? I was at my sister's and it was raining, but I came home that evening. Enclosed find my dime for March. I hope there will be some letters in the paper this week. Love to you and the cousins.
Romie Amick.

We are hoping that The Sun may soon be restored to its former size and we can have lots of letters each week.

Holland, Va., March 17, 1915.

Dear Uncle Jim:—Here are our dimes for March. We were very much disappointed in not seeing our February letters in The Sun, but we are sure it was for lack of space. We hope soon to have our regular size Sun again. With lots of love and good wishes, we are, your little friends.

Mary Nell and J. Howard Holland.
Our limited space keeps us from doing like we want; but we will do the best we can and hope for better.

MARRIAGES

Plummer-Harris

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized on Wednesday afternoon, Jan. 20, at the home of Mrs. Jessie Harris near Waverly, Va., when Miss Jessie De Etta Harris became the bride of Mr. Edward Dewees Plummer. The marriage vows were given, by the writer, under a beautiful arch of green, and many presents told of the popularity of the young couple. After the ceremony they left for a trip north with the good wishes of a host of friends.
JAS. L. FOSTER.

Carden-Cole

A Christian minister's home was the scene of a pretty marriage March 13, 1915, at 5 o'clock, when Miss Ruby Cole, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Cole, became the bride of Mr. Norman Carden, the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Carden, all of this city. The ceremony was performed by the writer in the presence of a few relatives and friends. They will reside in Durham. The bride is a well known young lady in this city, loves her church and Sunday school. The groom is a nice Christian young man.
J. S. CARDEY.
901 Shepherd St., Durham, N. C.

Gephart-Holland

Fred A. Gephart and Miss Inez Elizabeth Holland were married in the pastor's study of the Suffolk Christian Church at 4:30 p. m. Saturday, March 20, 1915. The groom is foreman of his father's stove mill near Holland, and the bride is employed in the Central Telephone Station of Holland, and both put in a full half-day of work on the day of the marriage. The ring ceremony was used. A few witnesses were present. A few words were spoken and the destiny of two lives were seal-

EXCHANGE YOUR OLD BODY FOR A NEW ONE

You can do it in three weeks and thereby renew your health. This article is written by a physician who has seen it demonstrated in numerous cases and explains how it is done.

Listen: If your weight is one hundred and thirty-three pounds your body contains eighty pounds of water, for, according to standard medical books, the human body contains sixty-seven and one-half per cent. of water. Now disease is invariably caused by impurities which we call poison, and these are readily dissolved by the right kind of natural mineral water. Drink ten gallons (eighty pounds) of Shivar Mineral Water (use no other water for twenty-one days, and you will have exchanged your old body for a new one, so far as the soluble part of it is concerned. The impurities will be dissolved and pass away. If you suffer with dyspepsia, indigestion, sick headache, rheumatism, gall stones, kidney or liver disease, uric acid poisoning, or other conditions due to impure blood, accept Mr. Shivar's liberal offer which appears below. Read the following letter carefully; then sign and mail it:
Shivar Spring,
Box 93, Shelton, S. C.

Gentlemen:
I accept your guarantee offer and enclose herewith two dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Water. I agree to give it a fair trial, in accordance with instructions contained in booklet you will send, and if it fails to benefit my case you agree to refund the price in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns which I agree to return promptly.

Elementary and Cradle Roll Departments

Edited by Mrs. J. J. Lincoln, Wakefield, Va., and Mrs. F. Bullock, Waverly, Va., respectively, to whom all communications for these Departments should be addressed.

Motto: "First the Blade."
 Colors: Green and White.

The Juniors include those children from nine to twelve years of age. Now, while we must remember that except in very rare cases indeed, is the change so rapid that a child is one thing at eight years old, and distinctly another at nine, yet he is changing and changing rapidly. The motion songs that he once loved are a nuisance to him; the things which gave him delight such as birthday greetings, Cradle Roll songs, etc. are "fer kids" and he is growing up. This is equally true of the girl; she begins to put away her dolls, to choose a chum and to prepare for the rapidly approaching period of adolescence. To think, then, that we can teach the Junior boy or girl in the same way and with the same lessons that we use to the Beginner or the Primary, or both, is manifestly an injustice to them, and we are sure to lose their interest and respect if we attempt it.

First—Reading period. Up to this period the child has not been able to read much, but now he is in the fourth grade at school, is reading easily, and with most children at least is this true, devouring voraciously everything in the reading line that comes his way. This is the time for the school to see that every scholar has a Bible of his own. By so doing we would for one thing have a Bible school indeed. Show the scholars (don't call the Juniors "children," if you want them to respect you) how to use these Bibles; tell the boys about the heroes of the Bible; point the girls to Esther, Naomi, Ruth, Deborah, Vashti, the woman who gave up a crown for her self-respect, and all the other great women. They will enjoy these stories and be as eager in their worship for real heroes and heroines as for the fictional characters in whom we so often allow our children to become engrossed for sheer lack of direction.

Second—Physical energy. Not the restlessness of the beginners, not even the undirected activity of the primary, but a dawning desire to do something that counts, a tremendous vitality that can now be harnessed to the Sunday school.

Third—Inquisitiveness. Moninger says: "Thertrait much in evidence in beginners and primary now reaches its climax. He wants to know why a crowfish goes backwards, why a rooster flaps his wings before he crows, and why a chicken don't fall off the perch when he goes to sleep. He loves to scratch off the veneering and see the real article below." It was a boy of this period who said to an unwelcome caller, "Sister gave me a quarter to tell you she wasn't home; if you'll give me a half dollar, I'll go upstairs and tell her you said she was a liar."

Fourth—Memory period. A. H. McKinney tells of an old gentleman who, when his wife told him some new thing, would always say, "I knew that before I was ten years old." Finally the gentle lady becoming exasperated, said, "Did you ever learn anything after you were ten years old?" We can all of us look back to some dear old person of our acquaintance who forgot before they were fairly over, the things of yesterday, but remembered accurately happenings of their long-ago youth. This is the time to make the mind a storehouse of Bible truths, of great hymns, and of the lives of famous missionary heroes.

Fifth—Habit-forming period. The practice of playing what they see the older folks do, begun in the primary period, now takes on a character of earnestness, and the foundation for good or bad habits is now rapidly laid.

Why, what, how shall we reach the child?

CALOMEL IS MERCURY! IT SICKENS! ACTS ON LIVER LIKE DYNAMITE

"Dodson's Liver Tone" Starts Your Liver Better Than Calomel and Doesn't Salivate or Make You Sick.

Listen to me! Take no more sickening, salivating calomel when bilious or constipated. Don't lose a day's work! Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel, when it comes into contact with sour bile crashes into it, breaking it up. This is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you are sluggish and "all knocked out," if your liver is torpid and bowels constipated or you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, if breath is bad or stomach sour just take a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone on your guarantee.

Here's my guarantee—Go to any drug store and get a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone. Take a spoonful to-night and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous by morning I want you to go back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying the sale of calomel because it is real liver medicine; entirely vegetable, therefore it can not salivate or make you sick. I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your bowels of that sour bile and constipated waste which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable. I guarantee that a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone will keep your entire family feeling fine for months. Give it to your children. It is harmless; doesn't gripe—and they like its pleasant taste.

OUR DEAD

Gordon

Virginia R. Johnson was born March 1, 1832, and died Jan. 21, 1915, age 82 years, 10 months and 20 days. She was married to William D. Gordon December 30, 1851. To this union were born 9 children, 4 of whom preceded her to the spirit land. Her husband died May 1, 1912, in his 82nd year. There are 17 grand children, and 16 great grand children. She joined the Baptist Church in early girlhood and remained in the Baptist Church for 50 years. Ten years ago she joined Centerville Christian Church and from this she has gone to the church triumphant. She leaves the many loved ones and friends on earth to go to the many who have waited on the other shore. This closes a life of many years, of rich experiences, of suffering and sorrow, and yet of great victory in Jesus Christ. Her life was ripe, and full of hope in God. She was possibly the oldest person of this community. Peace to her dust till the resurrection morning. Comfort to the lives of those left in waiting. The floral tokens of esteem were many and beautiful. JAS. L. FOSTER, Pastor.

Cox

Mr. William O. Cox, formerly of Camden, N. J., died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. F. Winner, Deans, Va., Thursday, Feb. 18, 1915, at the age of 89 years and 6 months. Mr. Cox had been living with Mrs. Winner for about 10 years. About eight years ago he made a profession of faith and united with Berea, Nansemond, Christian Church. He was brought up in the Friends church, although he did not unite with that church. His whole life was guided by highest principles of honesty and integrity, although failing to identify himself, by membership, with the church until more than 80 years of age. During his last sickness, which was brief, he expressed a desire to depart and be with Christ. He said: "There is only one reason why I would like to live longer; I would like to live until I could see my youngest son converted." A short service was conducted at the Winner home by the writer assisted by Rev. Mr. Williams of the M. E. Church, and the body was carried to New Jersey for interment. Mr. Cox left four sons and four daughters and a large number of grandchildren to mourn their loss.

I. W. JOHNSON.

Byrd

On March 12, 1915, Mrs. Willie Sarah Duke, wife of J. P. Duke, died at her home near Liberty Spring Church, at the age of 49 years and 7 months. She was a member of Holy Neck Christian Church. She had been greatly afflicted for 20 years, and had not been able to attend her church in a long time. She assured those who watched over her during her sickness that she was ready and willing for the Lord's will to be done. The funeral service was conducted by the writer at the home and her body was laid to rest in the family cemetery. In an old song book she had written upon the margin of a song, "Read this when I am dead." It breathed the spirit of hope and trust and faith. I. W. JOHNSON.

Beale

Little Robert Lee Beale died at the home of his parents, near Everetts, Va., on Feb. 12, 1915, at the age of 2 years and one week. He had been afflicted nearly all his life. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Beale. The funeral service was conducted at Oakland church by the writer. May the Lord bless and comfort the family in the loss of this little boy. "Of such is the kingdom of heaven." I. W. JOHNSON.

Hearn

William Tapley Hearn, of Chapel Hill, N. C., died in the hospital in Fayetteville, N. C., March 9, 1915, in his 63rd year. For a short time previous to his death he had not been really well, but death came as a surprise to his friends. For over 40 years he had been a member of the Christian church at Hank's Chapel, N. C. He leaves an irreproachable record to his children and friends. His wife had preceded him to the better land. He leaves three sons and two daughters: W. E. Hearn of Raleigh, N. C.; Jake Hearn of Galveston, Texas; and Bunn Hearn of Chapel Hill, N. C.; Mrs. R. C. Day, of Norfolk, Va., and Miss Luna Hearn, also of Norfolk.

Funeral services by Dr. Smith, pastor of Baptist church, Chapel Hill, N. C., and the writer, W. S. LONG.

February and March Worst Months For This Trouble—How to Remove Easily.

There's a reason why nearly every body freckles in February and March, but happily there is also a remedy for these ugly blemishes, and no one need stay freckled.

Simply get an ounce of othine, double strength, from your druggist and apply a little of it night and morning, and in a few days you should see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the light ones have vanished entirely. Now is the time to rid yourself of freckles, for if not removed now they will stay all Summer, and spoil an otherwise beautiful complexion. Your money back if othine fails.

All efforts of the imagination and all descriptions in words cannot make the Land of the Bible as real and vivid as a walk through it by means of Pictures. There has been so little change in that part of the Orient that pictures of its scenes as they now are show the very places as they actually existed in the time of Jesus and the Apostles.

These Pictures illuminate in natural colors scenes and places taken from nature and life in the Holy Land in manners, customs, dress and homes as they now exist, but so like olden times that one may imagine themselves going about with Jesus as He taught, fought and walked through the streets of Jerusalem. Each picture is accompanied by a complete description of the scene portrayed.

Easter Glories

"I am the Resurrection and the Life."

St. John 11:25.

Christ our Passover is sacrificed for us: therefore let us keep the feast. 1 Cor. 5:7.

Christ being risen from the dead dieth no more; death hath no more dominion over Him. For in that he died, he died unto sin once; but in that he liveth, he liveth unto God.

Likewise reckon ye also yourselves to be dead indeed unto sin: but alive unto God through Jesus Christ our Lord. Rom. 6:9.

Christ is risen from the dead: and become the first fruits of them that slept.

For since by man came death: by man came also the resurrection of the dead.

For as in Adam all die: even so in Christ shall all be made alive. 1 Cor. 15:20.

Thus it is written, and thus it behooved Christ to suffer, and to rise from the dead.

Luke 24:46.

The Upward Way

A New York paper states that a young man, in the brief period of one and a half years, has succeeded in squandering a fortune of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars on the questionable delights of Broadway. It is a story similar to, and as old as, that of the Prodigal Son related by our Savior. But the only real glad day the Prodigal had, so far as the record shows, was that on his return to the father's roof and the fatted calf was killed. The New York lad will find the same. The joy, the light, the life, the happiness are in going up; never in the coming down. More horses and other beasts of burden are slain and sacrificed by the down-hill part of the journey than by the up-hill route. The dead level and the down-hill part of the journey are the dangerous and the fatal. There is the joy of pull and the consciousness of ascent on the upward journey. The young men and the young women who are pulling up the hill are having the happier and the better experience. In this there is some real rest and recreation. "Take my yoke upon you and learn of me; * * * and ye shall find rest unto your souls." Matt. 11:29.

Careful of the Body

An old man in New Jersey, who is skeptical of undertakers and post mortem friends, proposes to take no chances. He dug his own grave and placed a stone slab over it some time ago. At odd times he has constructed, with his own hands, a coffin of solid oak of best grain. He wants decency, honesty and longevity in connection with his body when he is no longer able to care for it. This man is odd in his choice and conduct in that he is bestowing much care upon the keep of his body after death. But there are many, many, many indeed who in life bestow more care, consideration and concern on their bodies which must soon perish at best, than they do upon their souls which shall never die: Our Savior had this in view when He said, "Fear not them that kill the body, but are not able to kill the soul; but rather fear him which is able to destroy both soul and body in hell." Matt. 10:28.

The Cross

Gustave Doree has pictured for us how impossible it is to banish from our view the emblem of the Cross: "When the Jew lifts his eyes heavenward, he sees the cross on the top of the cathedral spire; when he comes to the meeting of the ways, the guide-post makes a cross before him; rivers and floods, clouds and sunbeams, habitations of men and solitudes of nature, are all and evermore holding up to him the cross and reminding him of the One who died upon it, and whom he rejected and scorned so long ago." The more the world rejects and repudiates the Cross the more it comes in evidence, because it is final and fundamental in the mechanism of the universe and in the thoughts and sentiments of men. In human experience there is no crown without first a cross, no sweet without the bitter, no rose without the thorn. Hence Paul wrote: "God forbid that I should glory save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ." Gal. 6:14.

Conversion

No one can adequately explain it; no one can argue it out of existence. Through it too many men, fallen to the lowest depths, have begun a new life and led a wholly different career. In his "Dynamics of Christianity" Edward Mortimer Chapman thus speaks of it: "However grotesque the forms which the phenomenon of conversion may sometimes assume, and however inadequate the scientific attempts to investigate it may be, the reality of the phenomenon itself is beyond dispute. It has been so many times dissipated as a dream of overwrought imagination only to insist again upon recognition, that the effort to get rid of it has grown wearisome. It has thriven upon persecution; it has refused to yield to ridicule; it has held its own against skepticism; it has even survived indifference and contempt. It is to be reckoned with by every honest student of religious phenomena." It is the most singular and yet the most significant phenomenon in all this universe. Hence our Savior said: "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you." Matt. 6:33.

Their Greatest Foe

Chancellor David Lloyd George of the English cabinet has announced that England's greatest and most deadly foe at present is not Austrian or German arms, but strong drink. "Drink is doing us more damage in the war than all the German submarines put together." Steps are to be taken, and drastic measures adopted, to conquer this most subtle foe. Russia foresaw her danger and with one fell swoop outlawed the manufacture and sale of liquor during the present war. This is working so well that the announcement comes that Russia's war measure in this regard is likely to become permanent. Where war has slain her thousands strong drink has slain its ten thousands; and the sense and safety of mankind demand that strong drink be outlawed. It has been man's bitterest foe since time began. "Whosoever will be a friend of the world is the enemy of God." James 4:4.

Pride Planted

A vain and false Pride planted the Cross. On it Love was crucified. The sham and the show had their way. Truth and sincerity were smitten and humiliated; falsehood and hypocrisy held high carnival and did their worst. But the hollow-hearted and the untrue could not rule and reign forever, for this world was founded on truth, goodness, beauty. So the Cross, the planting of Pride, conquers because Love is eternal, and cannot be destroyed and subdued. By a vain and false pride we too sometimes stab the heart of Love, and cause it to suffer, to hang its head in sorrow, humiliation and shame. But we can't conquer nor destroy Love. Mightier than all the powers of earth, armies, navies, warfare, is Love. The Son of God will yet conquer and the Prince of Peace will yet have dominion from pole to pole. "Him hath God exalted with his right hand to be a Prince and a Savior." Acts 5:31.

Thought Over a Precipice

Thought is not man's only dependence; reason not his only reliance. Back of thought, and deeper than thought, is feeling, sentiment, emotion. The trouble with much of the advanced thought of the day is that it leaves emotion and sentiment out of the reckoning. The late venerable Theodore L. Cuyler said: "I am sick of all this talk of advanced thought in religion. When thought advances beyond the cross on Calvary, it goes over a precipice." One cannot reason it out that Christ arose from the dead, "and became the first fruits of them that slept," but the early disciples and the apostles believed it, and devout men have believed it ever since. Thought falls over a precipice indeed when it tries to argue away, or to ignore, the resurrection. That thought can only be trusted as reliable and abiding which originates from and reaches the heart (the seat of emotions and the affections). The wisest of men recognized this when he wrote: "As he thinketh in his heart, so is he." Prov. 23:7.

THE RESURRECTION

The central fact of history is the resurrection. It was more important, that Christ arose from the dead than that He should be born. Other great teachers, preachers, reformers had been born, had lived, founded institutions, shaped the destinies of kingdoms and empires. Some of them had sealed their life with a martyr's and a sacrificial death. But Christ alone of all the men of earth arose from the dead.

Some have been raised from the dead; Christ alone arose from the dead, with no one by to interpose or call him to life. He had said that in Him was life and that life was the light of men. It remained for Him to prove whether the life that was in Him was more powerful, or less so, than the death that was about Him. In the resurrection Christ made good all His claims and established the everlasting fact, here indeed was One who had dominion over darkness, sin, the grave, and death.

Some will not celebrate Easter because the word is of pagan origin and occurs in the Bible only once (Acts 12:4, where a festival rather than the resurrection itself is referred to). The term is of Saxon origin and has reference to Ostara or Eostre, the goddess of Spring. In the early church there was doubt and constant variation as to date, until the Nicene creed in 669 A. D. fixed upon the present rule. By that decree Easter is fixed on the Sunday immediately following the fourteenth day of the so-called Paschal moon, which happens on or first after the vernal equinox, which invariably falls on March 21. Easter may occur, then, as early as March 22 and as late as April 25, but not outside those dates. Thus by man's decree the day is variable, and it is not likely that the day of the month, or of the year, on which we celebrate Easter is the one on which Christ arose from the dead.

But the deed and not the day is of significance. And we do celebrate the day of the week on which He arose from the dead—Sunday. Every Sunday is really a real Easter, for it was on Sunday, early on the first day of the week, that the women hastened to the tomb and found it empty. And we today observe Sunday, and not Saturday, the first and not the seventh day of the week as a day of rest and of worship. It was more important that a world be saved than that it be created; more important that one be born into the kingdom of the Spirit than into the kingdom of the flesh; more significant that one have the spiritual birth than that one should have the natural birth. Recreation of man was more significant for man than the creation of a world. Hence man shifted his day of rest and worship from the seventh to the first day of the week. We really celebrate the resurrection of Jesus Christ every Sunday when we really and truly observe the day. The only reason why we observe the first day in the week instead of the seventh as the Lord's day is because the Lord of creation, He by whom the worlds were created, arose from the tomb and declared Himself victorious over every foe. He robbed the grave of its terror, death of its sting, and sin of its dominion.

We cannot celebrate such an event too well nor too often. The name may be pagan, but the deed is Christian, and once a year, in addition to every Sunday, we sing our songs of praise and gladness, and shout our joy in heavenly song, for pagan or Christian, Easter celebrates the central and the greatest single fact of history.

*"All hail the power of Jesus' name,
Let angels prostrate fall;
Bring forth the royal diadem
And crown Him Lord of all."*

We sing to Him our hymns of praise and triumph because we know that since He arose we too who live in Him shall rise victorious over death, the grave, and sin. For He became the first fruits of them that slept.

"BY THE KING'S HIGHWAY"

"I am the way."—John 14:6.

Do we not sometimes make Christ so divine that we consider His task easy? We put Him among the super-human, endow Him with super-human strength to perform a human task. Christ was divine. But He was not endowed with divinity to make His human task easier: He was endowed with humanity to make His divine task more difficult. The most trying and difficult life any one ever lived was the life of Christ. Why? He was crowding all there was of God into all there is of man. He was proving that human nature in all of its needs, imperfections and weaknesses, could convey and could contain the life and the light and the power of God. Can a human being live without sin, or shame, or spot, or blemish? Yes. How do I know? Because one human being did so. Who? Jesus the Christ. Oh! you say, He was God—super-human, super-natural, above man. How so? If God endowed Jesus with a great deal of divinity to do some deed of humanity, He gave Him a better chance than He gave you and me. Do we not consider Christ in this light? With certain superior advantages, like Samson, save that Samson's strength was physical and Christ's spiritual and moral? All that there is in man, all that he is capable of, met in Christ with all that there is in God. If Christ had more divine nature than we have it was because He had more human nature than we have.

In what sense is Christ the way?

I. As a human being He and He alone of all men manifested in the flesh the perfect will of God. In the wilderness He was tempted with three alternatives: (1) A life of mere physical self-indulgence; (2) a life of mere wealth-amassing; (3) a life of mere fame-seeking—world dominion. Now Christ had so much human nature in Him that He realized that He could attain either of these; that He could be the mightiest man physically, the richest man financially, the most powerful man politically. In the presence of these alternatives He chose rather the life wholly surrendered to God. In Him was the perfect will of God manifested. Not my will, but thy will. Why don't we say, "Not my will, but thy will be done?" Because we couldn't indulge self as we would like. Because of a dishonest dollar gotten. Because of unfair advantage taken. We are afraid to say, "Thy will be done." It would rob us of many ways and deeds of our own of which we are very fond.

In the presence of the power to be the richest man on earth Christ chose to obey the will of God, realizing when He did so that He must in all His earthly career say, "The foxes have holes and the birds of the air have nests, but the Son of man hath not where to lay His head." Here is wherein He is the way: He was obedient to God, even when He knew that obedience would cost Him earthly honor, riches, political preferment.

II. Christ is the way because He manifested in the flesh the perfect work of God. Christ understood that He had so much human nature that by working for Himself He could be a world ruler. He knew He could be king—set up an earthly kingdom whose dominion should stretch from sea to sea. But He voluntarily surrendered that. "I must work the works of Him that sent me." "It is my meat and my drink to do the will of Him that sent me." Here was a man who could stand up before all the world and say, that so completely have I surrendered, and so completely do I the work of God, that I work only for others—for God. Christ always put God's work first—made that His meat and His drink. That is why He is the way from this to a bigger and brighter and better life, joy, fellowship. "I am the way." Christ represents the whole truth about God and man concerning the way to glory. No narrow and disagreeable way, but a wide and joyous one. The merchant, lawyer, banker, as well as the preacher, should seek ever and always to know, "Is this my Father's business?"

III. Christ is the way because He represents the perfect worship of God. In His temptations Christ was shown all the powers and kingdoms and principalities of earth. Then the tempter said: All this will I give thee if thou wilt fall down and worship me. And Christ knew well enough it was so. He knew that if He would give His intellect, His superior wisdom, to world conquest, He could gain it. But what did He say? "Get thee behind me, Satan; for it is written, Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve." Here was perfect worship. Because He knew in His heart that He gave God perfect worship He could say, I am the way. This is the way we must do if we would get to heaven. There are men and women who will read these lines who have not worshipped God in a month. They fear if they worship, God will whisper to them some deed or duty they do not want to do. Christ was the way because He was not afraid to worship.

SEASIDE CHAUTAUQUA AND SCHOOL OF METHODS OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Virginia Beach, July 19-25.

Those who have got their eye on this season's program and are planning to attend will be glad to know that

MR. HERMON ELDRIDGE, ERIE, PA.

Is on the program again this year for the Secondary Division work which includes Intermediate and Senior grades. He has a fine list of subjects which will be of interest for all teen age workers in the Sunday school. They will be "The Early Teens," "The Later Teens," "Class Organization," "Enlisting for Service," "Training for Leadership," and on Sunday morning he will conduct a model Sunday school.

Mr. Eldredge is one of the recognized Sunday school leaders. He is now conducting a campaign for 5,000 men in Bible classes. He is chairman of arrangements for their State Sunday School Convention, and is wrapped up in a multitude of things for the Sunday school work of our own denomination. He is Secretary of the S. S. Board of the American Christian Convention, and Editor of The Teachers' and Officers' Journal.

WARREN H. DENISON, President.

NOTES AND PERSONALS

—Rev. G. O. Lankford, Wadley, Ala., writes: "Like many others I regret very much the unavoidable reduction in the size of our good CHRISTIAN SUN. I regret it so much that I am today writing Bro. M. E. Winston that he may put me down as one of a hundred who will pay ten dollars each to see THE SUN rise again to its former size." Thank you, beloved.

NOTICE

At the last session of the E. Va. Christian Sunday School Convention the manner and place of holding the next session was left with the Executive Committee subject to the vote of the schools as to whether or not the Convention should be held in connection with the Chautauqua. The committee has been unable to hear from all the schools, but of the schools heard from with the requirements laid down, a slight majority favor holding the Convention separate from the Chautauqua.

The Committee has therefore accepted an invitation to hold the next session of the Convention with the church at Antioch, in Isle of Wight Co. The Convention will be held July 28-30.

This is one week later than the Convention is usually held. This change of time has been made on account of the Chautauqua Committee's arrangements to hold the Chautauqua the week during which the Convention is usually held, that being the time when the best accommodations could be secured from the people attending the Chautauqua.

We trust that all the schools in the Convention will combine their efforts to make this the best Convention in our history.

NEWPORT NEWS LETTER

As I begin to write I have in mind a picture of the Turkish forts, being bombarded by the Allies in the great European war, to force a passage of the Dardanelles. Without any desire to justify war, it really seems that victory here will mean much for the winning side, and with no desire to violate any neutral law, in this great war, we confess to the impression that there is a brighter day ahead in the taking of the forts. It is not my intention to write about the European war, but every thoughtful person who is interested in the progress and triumph of the Church of Christ in the world awaits with more or less eagerness the outcome of the awful struggle. We know that God is still the ruler of the universe, and our confidence in Him lends hopefulness for the future.

We live in an age of great undertakings and large co-operative movements. The people of God of the different persuasions are called upon to realize that the Church faces a task that demands greater unity of effort and purpose. There are forts to be taken of a different nature from those held by the Turks, but nevertheless stand in the way of the progress of the church. I have in mind the fort of ignorance, the fort of indifference, the fort of prejudice, and others. There is need of bombardment all along the line. But the weapons of our warfare are not carnal, we are glad to know, and therefore the more sure of hitting the mark.

Take the fort of ignorance. We find a stronghold here. But the bombardment is going on and must continue. There are signs of its giving way. The Sunday school, with its organized classes, home department, teacher training, etc., are some of the guns being used to put this fort out of commission. When this fort is taken we expect also to see that of indifference giving way. Jesus calls attention as to how different it might have been with his own people "if they had known." But they were ignorant and many of them willingly so. But He did not cease to bombard the fort and is still at it, and it is a great privilege that is accorded to us to have part with Him in getting the people to know the things pertaining to eternal life and to Christian service. This war business suggests more lessons than we can mention now, but we need to keep the fighting spirit—fighting the good fight of faith—realizing that the battle is the Lord's.

Publicity Department

M. E. WINSTON

There are 214 church communities within the bounds of the Southern Christian Convention, with 111 ministers and licentiates. THE CHRISTIAN SUN recently made an appeal to its constituency to come to its support. It only asked that one hundred individuals, Sunday schools or clubs to back the proposition. If one hundred ten dollar clubs respond THE CHRISTIAN SUN will go back to its former size. Some have agreed to give ten dollars outright, some said they would be responsible for seven subscribers and a few Sunday schools have pledged themselves for the $10.00. Brother I. W. Johnson writes that Berea, Nansemond church, will send up 6 pledges. Just think of one community sending up six pledges. Should it be any trouble to secure the 100 pledges out of our entire Southern Christian Convention for such a worthy cause? Yet, only 37 pledges have been recorded. We have not given up the idea and we are expecting to hear from you at an early date. Brother Sunday School Secretary, put the matter up to your Sunday school and let us hear from you.

We are still in need of the amount you may owe on THE SUN as subscription. All who are in arrears have been notified through the mail and we hope that you may respond without further delay. We need your co-operation. Let us hear from you.

Did you ever hear of hard times? Doubtless you have and along with that familiar expression you have heard many say: "I wish things would loosen up." Well, things are "loosening up," and a proof of this statement is our extra offer this week—and while they last—on "Trailing the Truth" and "College Men Without Money," two books well edited and of great credit to both their author and to the church of which he is a member. Did you know that "College Men Without Money" impressed the publishers so that the manuscript was accepted and the book placed on the market without expense to Mr. Riddle? This is true, and the publishers have met with no disappointment in their action. Only a few copies left and we have made arrangements to combine these with "Trailing the Truth" and THE SUN. See our offer in this issue and act at once.

"College Men Without Money" is for young and old, rich and poor, and its pages thrill you through and through. It reads like a romance and no young man can search its pages without making a resolution to do something great in life. More than 100 leading papers in the United States have reviewed it, and only this week Mr. Riddle received a letter from Boston, Mass., saying that fifteen reviews have been noted by one man.

ELON COLLEGE NOTES

Plans are matured for the celebration of the Easter season on the hill. Recitations will close at 3 o'clock on Friday and will not be resumed until 8 o'clock on Tuesday and in between these hours will be crowded many events of great importance and concern to all the members of the College.

The first event will be the annual debate between the Freshman and Sophomore classes, which is scheduled to occur on Thursday evening, April 1. The query under discussion shapes itself around the Navy question for the United States. The Sophomores will be represented in the debate by Messrs. J. L. Crumpton of Roxboro, N. C., and H. S. Smith, McLeansville, N. C., who have the negative of the proposition. The Freshmen will urge that our present Navy is sufficient for all purposes and will be represented by Messrs. C. N. Whitelock, of Huntington, Ind., and F. M. Dunaphant, of Suffolk, Va.

On Easter Friday will occur the Declamation and Recitation contests between the representatives of the high schools of the State; about thirty of the most prominent secondary schools in the State having signified their intention to be represented in these contests. A preliminary contest is to occur on Friday morning and the final contest to be participated in by five young men and five young ladies will occur that evening. Two gold medals will be awarded.

Saturday evening the annual entertainment of the Psihelia Society will be given. There will be a humorous reading by Miss Eunice Wellons, Smithfield, N. C., and an essay by Miss Alma Leigh Bowden, of Norfolk, Va. Miss Janie Lee Pritchard, of Durham, N. C., will give a vocal solo and there will be a couple of choruses by the musically talented members of the society. The chief item of interest, however, is to be a debate on woman suffrage, in which woman's rights will be championed by Misses "Patt" Preston, of Belevus Creek, N. C., and "Frank" McNeil, of Nerland, Texas; while Misses Jennie Willis Atkinson, of the Hill, and Iva Rothgeb, of Luray, Va., will plead earnestly for woman to be kept out of politics.

Dr. Lawrence continues quite ill at the Greensboro Hospital, but with increasing prospects of recovery. On Saturday morning he was critically ill and it was even reported that the end was fast approaching. This proved not to be the case, greatly to the joy and satisfaction of all. His recuperation will likely be slow, but what has been a hope now becomes a conviction that he will finally recover.

Dr. Herndon continues quite sick at his home here. His daughters, Mesdames J. T. Moffitt, W. K. Scott, and C. H. Herndon are by his side. Dr. Herndon has served his day and generation with a fidelity of purpose and singleness of heart. He has been a splendid friend to Elon College and a noble representative of the Christian Church, which his great grandfather, Rev. James O'Kelly founded. His many friends will remember him in prayer and wish for him many years of usefulness.

Drs. Wicker and Randolph were judges in the N. C. High School Triangular debates in Graham and Burlington last week.

Senor Ignacio Cuevas, Havana, Cuba, is here visiting his son and daughter who are members of the College. Sr. Cuevas expects to locate his family in some American College town. It is very likely to be Elon.

Visitors during the past week were Capt. Hugh Rieks, Raleigh, N. C., a former resident and foreman of the CHRISTIAN SUN office; Mrs. Grace Connelly and Master Charles, Burlington, N. C.; Mr. W. A. Warren, Chapel Hill, N. C.; Mr. J. A. Dickey, Northern Alabama; Miss Lillian Aldridge and Prof. E. L. Daughtry, Gibsonville, N. C.; Mr. A. E. Stone, Charlotte, N. C.

Miss Camilla Rutherford, Winchester, Va., has resigned as matron of the Christian Orphanage. She is now visiting in Gainesville, Ga., but will soon return to her home in Winchester.

Dr. Randolph gave a stereopticon lecture illustrating the effects of alcohol on the human system on Thursday night.

Burlington friends are bringing influence to bear to have the Publishing House moved to their city. Why not Burlington people move to Elon? All Elon needs to be a big city is more folks. It is already a mighty good place.

FROM OUR MISSIONARY IN PORTO RICO

3 Bertoli St., Ponce, Porto Rico.

Editor of THE SUN:

A number of years ago, while in Pisa, the city famous for its leaning tower, I visited the Campo Santo, because that place had proven interesting in other Italian cities. This one did not have the beautiful pieces of statuary that I had seen elsewhere, but the remains of the old church contained some pictures which were well worth my visit. The frescoes aimed to instruct people in the Bible, the entire book of Genesis being illustrated; then I remember especially a set of pictures, one showing a young man being tempted by Satan, while his guardian angel stood by and plead with him not to yield. The second picture showed the same face, older grown and hardened by sin, with the devil walking at his side, still the guardian angel was near, this time in his path, trying to turn him from his sins. The third picture represented the death bed of the same man, with the devil standing at one side waiting to claim his soul, and at the other the guardian angel weeping. The last picture represented a scene in Hades and theimps of darkness were dancing around in glee as the devil pitched the man into the fiery furnace. These pictures have been constantly in my mind ever since I came to Ponce. So plainly do I seem to see the constant conflict being waged between the powers of darkness and the heavenly hosts for the souls of these poor people. Some attraction is on hand constantly to keep them from attending services. The first week I was here it was the fireman's festival, and as the men marched past the churches with their brass bands it was hard to hold the attention of the audience. But that disturbance has been as nothing to what we are having now, and the worst part of it, this is termed a "religious festival" by the Catholic Church, it being the annual carnival preceding Lent.

I had often heard of Shrove Tuesday. I knew that Shrove-tide was the confession time, when people were shaven preparatory to Lent, the period between the evening of the Saturday before Quinquagesima Sunday and the morning of Ash Wednesday, and I had read that after the good Catholics had confessed to their priests they were allowed to spend the rest of the day in merriment. The practice of shiving seems to have been abandoned in Porto Rico. I do not know about the confessional, but the merriment is carried on to the exclusion of all else. For a continual week from the Mayor down to the poorest peon, all participate. The city is given over to feasting and sports of various kinds. Every night bands of masqued people parade the streets with their musical instruments, and lovely Senoritas throw confetti upon them from their balconies. Then later on the balls are held, night after night until far past midnight, but the crowning day of the carnival was last Sunday. Early in the morning men dressed as animals began going about the streets making the most unearthly noises as they attempted to imitate the animal they represented. Ladies dressed as flower girls mingled with others who represented clowns, rich and poor alike taking part in this carnival. One man attired to represent Death, with a skull for a mask, stalked through the crowded streets,—a gruesome spectacle. Then came automobiles garlanded with flowers. All day long and until far in the night the carnival continued, winding up with a ball.

Meanwhile the various Protestant churches were holding their services where a few faithful converts remembered that the Bible says: "My Sabbath ye shall keep, for it is a sign between me and you, throughout your generations, that ye may know that I am the Lord that doth sanctify you." "Ye shall keep the Sabbath therefore, for it is holy unto me; every one that defileth it shall surely be put to death." Earnestly they prayed that the Lord would not visit His wrath upon these people.

Are the missionaries here discouraged? Not a bit of it. I have talked with a number and they all seem to be of the same mind, that if we pray in humble faith, and work with hearty good will, success will come no matter what the difficulties. I give you this little sketch not to criticize the people of this island, (They are only following what has been their custom for generations.) but to show the people at home that there is definite need for Christian people every where to pray for a more careful observance of the command, "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy." The manner in which the Sabbath is desecrated here seems shocking, but then it is all in custom. Do we not in America permit them to have Sunday excursions, base ball games, and in some cities are not the places of amusement all open?

These Porto Ricans read, and many of them have visited the States. Therefore when the missionaries here talk about the manner in which they profane the Sabbath, they have a splendid opportunity to come back at us. Back of it all the fact remains that "Sin is a curse to any people."

MUTILATED ART

It was recently noticed that one of the statues in a city park was beginning to break and crumble in several places, due to the effects of heat and cold, winds and rain. As a means of stopping the disintegration it was decided to chisel out the affected places and polish the surface anew. While some workmen were engaged in this operation a lover of art passed by and was much disturbed by the treatment given to the statue. A letter protesting against the mutilation and pleading for the employment of some other method of repairing the damaged places was printed in the columns of one of the leading daily papers. The plea was heeded by the authorities in charge of the work, and the restoration was effected without further alteration or mutilation of the statue.

The plea of the art-lover was commendable and the result desirable. We would not be without our works of art, our statuary, paintings, music; all the products of human mind and genius which gratify our aesthetic nature. In the humble attempts at decoration, the cheap paintings on the walls, the gaudy curtains over the windows, we often recognize in the most squalid surroundings the nascent power of the finer sensibilities, the striving after an ideal; and we respect the spirit indicated by these crude conceptions of art. We may stand in one of our great art galleries and note the hush, the feeling approaching reverence in the presence of a great painting, the visible expression of an artistic soul. Our feelings run the gamut of emotions under the spell of the strains poured forth by the great musician; we are, as it were, engulfed, swept along on the flood of melody. We feel prompted to bare the head when we gaze upon some modern temple of worship whose stately towers and graceful lines bear witness to the surpassing genius of the architect who planned it. Certainly we would not be deprived of our inheritance of art with its refining, inspiring influence.

And yet, there may be about us works of art even greater than those suggested. Art of which we are but slightly or not at all aware, and whose mutilation we witness with little thought of protest or interference. How slight, how insignificant, the finest specimens of human art compared with the matchless productions of the Divine Artist! No painter's canvases will ever exactly reproduce the lights and shadows, the delicate tints of red and gold penciled on the canvas of the heavens by the rays of the setting sun. No sculptor's delicate touch will ever give to the most polished statue the mobility, the pulse of life, the flush of beauty of the models fashioned by the hand of the Creator. No human tongue can rival the harmony of the feathered songster on a glad Spring morning. No earthly intellect will ever fully comprehend the marvelous transformation of seed into flower, of life into death, and that greatest of all transformations, of death into life. Before such art man should bow in reverence nor hope to attain.

But can art such as this be mutilated or destroyed? Alas! it can be, and is. Pass along the streets of our cities, yes, of our smallest towns, and observe the mangled specimens of divine art. Bodies, designed to be shapely, strong and perfect, now misshapen, impotent, unfit. Faces which should glow with the light of health, peace and happiness, now downcast, seamed, sad and sullen. Mutilated art! The art of God, mutilated by human passion, vice, and sin. Yet we turn to our newspapers and vainly look for a protest against such terrible mutilation or a plea for means of restoration. Instead, too often we see columns devoted to the support of this infamous treatment of divine art, columns advertising the agents of ruin, the saloon and forms of amusement which appeal to the base, sinful passions of man. We even find columns treating the church with scorn, and attempting to belittle and discredit the services of those who are seeking to save and restore the creations of the great Artist. Surely some who widely influence public opinion bear the brand of Cain upon their souls; abettors in the mutilation of divine art.

Look across the sea, and what do we behold? The brightness of the noonday sun hidden by the smoke of burning homes. The hush of twilight broken by the roar of cannon, the rush of armed men, the clangor of war. Day robbed of its beauty, and night of its rest. The breezes laden with groans of the dying and wails of despairing wives and children left desolate and alone. Talents which should be employed in blessing humanity, aiding in its destruction. Strong, stalwart, hopeful, efficient men sacrificed on the altars of the Demon of War. Mutilated art! Aye, truly! What grief must wring the heart of the Divine Artist as He looks upon the ruthless mutilation and destruction of His choicest, best beloved handiwork.

What shall be done? Who shall protest, and how? This violation of divine purposes, this mutilation of divine art must cease. You and I must protest, appealing for the blessing and guidance of God in our endeavors. Let united public opinion exert its influence in checking the destruction of individuals through vice and nations through war, instead of clamoring for engines of destruction, appealing to the primitive instincts of mankind, and arousing a lust for blood. The vice must die and war must cease. Divine art, instead of being neglected, mutilated, and destroyed, will be studied, imitated, and held in reverence.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON, APRIL 4 CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR, APRIL 4

Saul Rejected of God.—1 Sam. 15.

Golden Text: Behold, to obey is better than sacrifice.—1 Sam. 15:22.

Insisting upon a kingdom, the elders conversed with Samuel and ask for a king. Not willing yet "it was the best God could do with the material He had." He told Samuel to give them a king and at the same time warned them. Saul, both divinely appointed and elected by the people as king, sought the fields for strength. Gaining victory over the Ammonites thus he gained his kingship—stood high in the eyes of the world.

Receiving a message from God through the prophet Samuel, he was instructed to utterly destroy the Amalekites. The Amalekites had obstructed the way of the children of Israel as they journeyed to Canaan. God had doomed the Amalekites and had promised the children of Israel, when they were more securely settled, to be with them in driving out and destroying their enemy.

According to the message from Samuel, Saul gathered an army of two hundred ten thousand men and went on his mission. The enemy was defeated, the king captured and the best of the spoils taken by the Israelites contrary to the commands of God as received by Samuel. The victorious leader and king with his army and spoils were met by Samuel, God's prophet, who announced to him that his kingship was lost by disobedience and rejection to the word of God.

So it lived in the lives of men—they feel sure that they can stand on their own resources and reject the inner small voice which constantly tells them to crush the enemy outwardly and inwardly and totally destroy and not to harbor the spoils even though they look as gold or the best that evil produces—in other words compromising with evil.

Individuals are so ready to criticize and find fault with their fellow beings when if they could only stop and consider they would realize the fight within of being king of their own lives.

"Any compromise with sin is likely to end in leaving the greatest evils untouched. When any one tries to shift the burden of blame to others' shoulders it is a sign that he feels the weight heavy on his own. No offering to God can take the place of the whole heart. A man ceases to be a true leader of men when he is no longer a true follower of God."

Conquering Discouragement.—

Ps. 27:1-14.

(Consecration Meeting)

Our subject has been talked about and combated with ever since the world began and will always remain for us to fight, either overcoming it or letting it get the best of us, and we lay down our burdens with a ease of the "blues." A well known paper has recently carried the thought that Billy Sunday is fighting the devil with his own weapons, with fire, with the vernacular in which the devil roams. So may discouragement be fought by changing the prefix to "en" and fight. However, do not give encouragement of the things that have made you blue. Make sunshine out of your discouragements, change them into light and good cheer.

Discouragement is bound to come, for it comes to all lives that are not perfect. Then we must prepare for it and when it does put in its appearance suppress it and keep it down. This can be done by changing our thought to another line and giving our hands to other tasks for the present.

Spend much time with Christ, for He is conqueror of discouragement. "I came to earth," said Christ, "that my joy might be fulfilled in the lives of my disciples." Therefore our good cheer is a necessary part in accomplishment of Christ's mission.

"Discouragement is contagious." Then if you cannot help the one who is blue or is discouraged, keep away and enjoy the life and association of those who have sunshine in their soul.

For answer in the meeting: State the difference between encouragement and discouragement.

What is the easiest way to help some one to overcome discouragement?

How may an individual overcome discouragement?

How does the Bible help to conquer discouragement?

REPORT OF L. I. COX, MISSION SECRETARY

For Third and Fourth Months Ending March 20, 1915.

We are holding our own at Reidsville, notwithstanding the fact that our auditorium is unfinished. Our congregations have been good at each service, averaging more than one hundred for the two months. The Sunday school has averaged about fifty and is on the increase now.

We are urging me to come to Winston-Salem, but I do not deem it wise to try to start work at this point until we can get further along with the Reidsville work.

WINCHESTER LETTER

The interest in the Winchester church continues to increase. This has been a record breaking quarter for our Sunday school. We have had over eighty to join during the quarter and the average attendance has been 147. The membership and attendance at our Christian Endeavor is growing. Six members have been received into church fellowship since our last report and others will join later.

Brother W. C. Hook, one of our members and a former Elon College student, has been elected by the City Board of Education to take charge of the night school, which is run in the high school building.

It was good to see the face and have a few minutes' chat with our old friend, Rev. B. F. Black, of Holland, Va., who was here attending the State Convention of the Woodmen of the World.

The following contributions have been received for our church:

Reported$7,874.59
Mrs. M. E. Grove 5.00
Mrs. J. K. Reubush 3.00
J. E. Foster 1.00
Ladies' Aid Society 35.00
Boyd R. Richards 20.00
Frank H. Showalter 1.00
Mary Rittenour05
J. A. Andous 2.00
Ray G. Rothgeb 2.00
Mrs. J. E. Lincoln 1.00

Total$7,944.64

We are thankful for these contributions. W. T. WALTERS.

—Rev. H. W. Elder, Richland, Ga., writes: "Our Columbus, Ga. (Rose Hill) church is out of debt. Rejoice with us. And I have some more good news. We are fixing to build a nice church at Ambrose, Ga. Bro. T. J. Holland is behind the movement. We have decided on a building costing $1500. We have all the rough lumber ready and several hundred dollars in bank. Our subscription already runs to about $1200.

"My work goes well," writes Rev. G. O. Lankford. "Am striving to fill each day with service for Christ. I find that teaching five days in the week and preaching Saturdays and Sundays give me about all I can do. Still I am happy in trying to make the little corner in which I live a little brighter and better each day."

Ivor, Va., March 19, 1915.
 Dear Uncle Jim:—I fear you think that I have forgotten you and the cousins, as I have not written in such a long time, but I have not.
 I have been busy the last few days trying to learn to ride my tricycle that Santa brought me, and I can ride pretty well now. Daddy took us for a long automobile ride last Sunday, and I do wish you and some of the children could have been with us. We went to Grandfather Drewry's, near Spring Hill Church, and while we were there Mr. and Mrs. Foster and Mary Lee came. Enclosed herewith find 30 cents for my January, February and March dues, and ten cents each for William's and West's Easter offering. Love to you and the Cousins. Your niece, Elizabeth Drewry.

Many thanks. Glad you are having such good times. We would like to help you ride in your new automobile.

Wakefield, Va., March 20, 1915.
 Dear Uncle Jim:—I want to join the children's corner. I am Rev. M. B. Barrett's youngest granddaughter. I am a little girl nine years old. I am learning to read fast now. I like to go to school, for I have a fine time. I will close with love to you and all the cousins.
 Martha Lola Barrett.

We are glad to have you join with us in our good work.

Stem, N. C., March 20, 1915.
 Dear Uncle Jim:—I guess I will not write you many letters from here. We shall leave soon after Daddy's school closes the last of April. We don't know where we will be next year, but we shall not be here. Here is my dime for March. Sincerely yours,
 R. P. Crumpler, Jr.

Hope you may be pleasantly located another year. Wherever you go, you must not forget the Corner.

Magnolia, Va., March 25, 1915.
 Dear Uncle Jim:—It is getting late, so I will write again. How is all the Orphanage family getting along this pretty weather? Fine, I hope. I will close and leave my space for some one else.
 Lavongly,
 Annie Lee Felton.

Our Orphanage family are all well and busy at this writing.

A HEALING SPRING AT YOUR DOOR

Here is a very unusual and peculiar offer—one that you rarely meet with. It evidences the greatest faith on the part of its maker and inspires confidence. It is made by an earnest and enthusiastic man who not only thinks but knows from personal experience that he is right. He proposes to give you the equivalent of a three weeks' visit to a Mineral Spring of most remarkable restorative powers and make no charge if you are not benefited. His offer has been accepted by several thousands of sufferers in all parts of the U. S., and his records show that only two in a hundred, on the average, report no benefit.

If you suffer with dyspepsia, indigestion, rheumatism, gall stones, kidney, bladder or liver disease, uric acid poisoning, or other condition caused by impure blood, take Mr. Shivar at his word and sign and mail the following letter: Shivar Spring, Box 9H, Shelton, S. C.

Gentlemen:
 I accept your guarantee offer and enclose herewith two dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Water. CONFIDENCE AND TRUST

These two words do not mean precisely the same thing, and yet they are closely associated together. It is a general rule that people do not trust in a thing which they have no confidence in. One may be mistaken in regard to the thing which he has confidence in. The thing may be false, unsafe, and harmful, and hence one's trust in it may bring trouble and sorrow to him. The trust may be praiseworthy, but the thing trusted in it deserving of condemnation. Now, the Bible declares that God is worthy of our greatest confidence. Have I any reader who doubts this truth? If you say that you have the utmost confidence in God, do you put your utmost trust in him? To be consistent, you must do so. The two things belong together. One's trust in God should be in proportion to one's confidence in Him. Little confidence in a person implies but little trust in him. One's confidence in a man may be risky, for man is a fallible thing; but there is not a particle of risk in one's having the completest confidence in God, for He is forever infallible. His word is eternally true, and therefore it is eternally reliable. His promises must be wholly reliable, because His word is wholly true. Have you full confidence in the Bible? Or do you say that you do not have confidence in some Bible sayings? Then, of course, you do not believe that some Bible statements are reliable; therefore you do not trust in them. This means that you pick out certain statements, casting them aside as being unworthy of your confidence, and hence unworthy of your trust. If you begin to do this thing, where will you end? And why should you say that you have the fullest confidence in God as a person, and yet not have the fullest confidence in the Bible? As well might you say that you have the fullest confidence in a friend of yours, but not in his word, as to say the same thing about God and His word. What folly!

Need Attention in February and March or Face Will Stay Covered.

Now is the time to take special care of the complexion if you wish it to look well the rest of the year. The February and March winds have a strong tendency to bring out freckles that may stay all Summer unless removed. Now is the time to use othine—double strength.

This prescription for the removal of freckles was written by a prominent physician and is usually so successful that it is sold by your druggist under guarantee to refund the money if it fails. Get an ounce of othine—double strength, and even a few applications should show a wonderful improvement, some of the smaller freckles even vanishing entirely.

COLLEGE MEN WITHOUT MONEY

This book contains 300 pages of self-told stories of how men and women worked their way through college and rose from poverty to position. It is that kind of a book which you cannot stop until you have finished reading it. One of the greatest assets which has come to the Author of this unique and readable volume is the hundreds of letters from all parts of the United States commending its messages. The book is neatly bound in dark green cloth and artistically lettered in gold. Thomas Y. Crowell & Company, New York, are the publishers. Only a few more copies left. Don't delay your order.

TRAILING THE TRUTH

The author of this little book is accredited with saying that all books are divided into two classes: Those that speak for you and those that speak to you. The books that speak for the human heart, that give expression to the finer feelings of the soul, and say for you the things which you have been trying to say, but could not, are the books that live. TRAILING THE TRUTH is well placed in this class of literature, and the ready sale of it is the only proof needed. A few copies left and another edition not likely to appear. Act now if you wish the book—no time for delay. One hundred pages of delightful reading. The Introduction by Dr. W. P. Lawrence is a masterpiece and alone worth the price. Binding and outward design same as COLLEGE MEN WITHOUT MONEY.

OUR DEAD

Baker

Mrs. Mary E. Baker was born July 18, 1846, and died at the home of her son, D. E. Phillips, Newport News, Va., March 6, 1915, aged 69 years, seven months and 28 days. She was twice married, but at the time of her death was a widow. She leaves behind four children and nineteen grand children. She was a member of the Baptist church but was an attendant at the East End Christian Church as it was near by, and she was not strong in her last days. Funeral services Sunday morning at 9 o'clock, after which the body was taken to Richmond, Va., for burial. W. D. HARWARD.

Stephenson

James W. Stephenson was born Dec. 23, 1871, and died March 3, 1915. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Stephenson, whose home is near Coanoke, Ala., and a nephew of Dr. J. W. Manning, Norfolk, Va. The deceased became a member of New Hope Christian Church, the oldest church of the Alabama Conference, when he was thirteen. Here his membership remained until death, although he had been away from the community since a young man, his home being at Washington, Ga., at the time of his death. While separated for a number of years from the old church, he loved her principles all the while and came to the end of his pilgrimage in the triumph of Christian faith.

The deceased had been in declining health for several months. Three weeks previous to his death he came to visit his parents and in their home the end came.

A wife and six children, father and mother, two brothers and six sisters, and a great number of relatives and friends mourn his going away, but they sorrow not without hope.

Appropriate funeral services were conducted by Rev. C. W. Carter on Thursday, March 4th, at New Hope church, and the body was laid in the cemetery nearby till the Master comes again. G. O. LANKFORD.

McCoy

Gertrude Gazelle McCoy was born Sept. 22, 1897, and died Feb. 19, 1915, after a brief attack of pneumonia.

I found the following written on the fly leaf of her Bible: "Converted October 15, 1913. Joined church Oct. 23, 1913. Baptized in Capon River May 9, 1914." It was my privilege to receive her into the Timber Ridge Christian church, where she remained a faithful member until death. She had a sweet and lovable disposition, and hers was a beautiful Christian character that drew to her a host of friends. She was spending the winter in Winchester, attending school, when she was stricken with the fatal disease. She was the last one of her immediate family, but she left a number of distant relatives.

The funeral services were conducted from the Winchester Christian church in the presence of a large congregation and the remains were laid to rest in the city cemetery. May God's blessings rest upon the bereaved ones. W. T. WALTERS.

Nelson

Leonard, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Nelson, 1252 25th St., Newport News, Va., was born Jan. 20, 1915, and died March 12, 1915 aged one month and 22 days. The parents came from Sweden about five years ago. They have not identified themselves with any church here, but they have two children who attend the East End Christian Sunday school. They manifest a Christian spirit in submission in the hour of their bereavement. The Lord's blessings rest upon them. W. D. HARWARD.

Sidney

Otis Sidney, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Spencer, was born December 15, 1914 and died March 17, 1915, aged three months and two days. Funeral services from the home, 1104 Hampton Ave., Newport News, Va., at 4 o'clock Thursday, March 18. Notwithstanding medical skill and the most faithful attention that loving hearts and willing hands could give, the precious little one passed out to be with Jesus. There is now a little beckoning hand over on the other side, and the parents and the five children left behind may say in the language of David, "But now he is dead, wherefore shall I fast? Can I bring him back again? I shall go to him, but he shall not return to me." There were many beautiful flowers presented by friends expressing their sympathy. Interment was in Greenwood cemetery. W. D. HARWARD.

Boland

Mrs. Mary Catherine Boland was born Sept. 17, 1863, died at Watts' hospital, Durham, N. C., Feb. 25, 1915, aged 52 years, 3 months and 7 days.

Sister Boland had been a great sufferer for several years, though she bore her suffering with much Christian fortitude. She was a good Christian woman, a kind and thoughtful mother. Six children, four boys and two girls, survive her.

The funeral was conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. A. B. Kendall, in the Burlington Christian church, of which Sister Boland was a faithful member until death. Interment in the Burlington cemetery. W. L. WELLS.

Newlin

Wm. Newlin died of paralysis in the Winchester Memorial Hospital, March 19. The funeral services were conducted by the writer from Opequon Chapel, and the remains laid to rest on St. Paul Lutheran cemetery. He left to mourn his departure a number of children and brothers and sisters. He was a hard-working man, died well liked in the community. He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. May the bereaved find consolation in the Lord. W. T. WALTERS.

Anderson

Nellie Wood Anderson died at her home, Winchester, Virginia, March 5, at the age of 22 years. She was converted at one of the cottage prayer meetings held by our Personal Workers' Club, a few months ago, but owing to sickness was never able to get to the church. She died trusting in her Savior. She leaves to mourn her departure, father, mother, brothers and sisters.

The funeral services were conducted from the home in the presence of a large crowd. May the Lord richly bless the bereaved. W. T. WALTERS.

GALOMEL WHEN BILIOUS? NO! STOP! MAKES YOU SICK AND SALIVATES

"Dodson's Liver Tone" Is Harmless To Clean Your Sluggish Liver and Bowels.

Ugh! Galomel makes you sick. It's horrible! Take a dose of the dangerous drug tonight and tomorrow you may lose a day's work.

Galomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Galomel, when it comes into contact with sour bile crashes into it, breaking it up. This is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you are sluggish and "all knocked out," if your liver is torpid and bowels constipated or you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, if breath is bad or stomach sour, just try a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone tonight on my guarantee.

Here's my guarantee—Go to any drug store and get a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous I want you to go back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying the sale of calomel because it is real liver medicine; entirely vegetable, therefore it can not salivate or make you sick.

I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your bowels of that sour bile and constipated waste which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable. I guarantee that a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone will keep your entire family feeling fine for months. Give it to your children. It is harmless; doesn't gripe and they like its pleasant taste.

Easter Gleams, or Love's Vision

A SERMON BY REV. P. H. FLEMING, D. D., GREENSBORO, N. C.

"Woman, why weepest thou? Whom seekest thou?—John 20: 15.

It was yet dark when the beautiful and tender-hearted Mary Magdalene went to the tomb of Christ on that first Easter morning. The clouds that had gathered and broken in great fury and power still hung like a pall over faith, hope and love.

Jesus had been seized by a cruel mob, accused by false witnesses, tried by an unjust judge, condemned to death though innocent, and crucified by wicked hands. For three hours during that awful tragedy while Christ hung on the cross, dying, the sun was darkened, and His great cry, uttered in that strange tongue, the tongue he doubtless learned to lisp at his mother's knee—"Eloi, Eloi, lama sabachthani"—had been uttered, and ere He died, He commended His spirit to His Father, bowed His head and gave up the ghost. Jesus of Nazareth was dead. And on that same day, before the sun went down, Joseph, an honorable counsellor, a good and just man, went to Pilate and begged the body of Jesus, which was given him, and he bought fine linen in which to wrap the body, and Nicodemus, who came to Jesus by night, brought a mixture of myrrh and aloes and they took the body and wound it in the linen clothes with the spices and laid it in Joseph's own rock-hewn tomb, "wherein man was never yet laid," in a garden near where Christ was crucified. A great stone was rolled to the door of the sepulchre, sealed by Roman authority and guarded by Roman soldiers. Mary Magdalene and Mary the mother of Jesus saw where the body of Jesus was laid. They turned from the sepulchre, rested on the Sabbath day; but early on the first day of the week Mary Magdalene and other women went to the tomb of Christ with sweet spices to anoint His body. They found the stone rolled away, the grave empty, the body gone. Turning our attention from what others saw, heard and did who came to the tomb of Christ on that eventful morning, let us look at a lone woman standing without at the tomb, weeping, looking down into the place where Jesus had lain, and we discover love's vision in its sorrow, search and service.

Love's Sorrow. Tearful eyes may tell of sorrow or of joy. In this instance it was deep heart-felt sorrow. Into the heart of the loving and lovable Mary Magdalene had come a great cloud, a great sorrow, because of the death, burial and now the missing body of Jesus whom she loved. She stood without at the tomb weeping. Tears are such strange, mysterious things. They glisten in the baby's eye, they flow freely from the eyes of childhood; into the eyes of young manhood and womanhood they silently come, and in the prime of life they steal softly into the eyes of those who toil and suffer; and in old age they trickle down the furrows of the face which time, burdens, sorrows and storms of life have made. Where do they come from? What are they for? "Why weepest thou? what seekest thou?" Tears tell us that there has been or is a cloud somewhere, and out of that cloud, though the sky may be bright there come showers, showers of tears. If the cloud has passed and gladness has come we may weep for joy; but if the cloud still hangs over us and envelopes us in its blackness and fury we weep because of sorrow and trouble. I suppose a scientist would tell you that tears are made up of a little salt and a little lime and a little of other things. But I can take a little salt and a little lime and a little of the other component parts of a tear and I may make a drop of water—make something that looks like a tear—but I cannot make a human tear out of such things. In a tear there is the sting of some bitterness of gall, there is the sting of some memory, there is the longing for something dear, there is a silent regret, there is a seeking for something lost, there is a searching for the object or thing whose absence is breaking the heart. Tears are the showers that flow from the clouds of breaking hearts. A tear is the agony of heart throbs in solution. A tear you may say is a lachrymal solution—it may be that, but it is more. It is a benediction from God to a storm-tossed and tempest-riven heart. After the cloud the rainbow appears, the sun shines, and peace comes. Who has not wept? and who knoweth not its sweet after calms? It was thus on that first Easter morning when Mary Magdalene came to the tomb of Christ, her loving heart burdened with the sorrows of death, groping in darkness and doubt about the future; but she came, seeking the body of Jesus, and finding it not, she wept. What if you should go to the cemetery some morning, while it was yet dark, with flowers to place upon the newly made grave of two days before, and find the grave empty, the body of your loved one gone! What anguish would fill the breast! What tears would fill the eyes! How the little briny messengers would flow down your cheeks telling in unmistakable language of the storm-tossed heart, of love's deep sorrow, and the agony of that awful hour when you found the grave empty, the body of your loved one gone! Yes, gone! You too would weep. You too would look, through your blinding tears, down into that empty grave and wonder and wish and begin to search for the missing one. Think then of Mary Magdalene! See her standing alone in the early morning twilight at the empty tomb of Jesus! Behold, she weeps! See, she is looking down into that empty sepulchre! Ah! She is searching for the body of the one she loved. It is love, searching for its dead. Hers was a love that gave forth the music of sorrow and of service at the grave of its hope. True it was the music of tears; but it was nevertheless the music of love; and it was singing in the night. It was an Easter sorrow in the morning's twilight hour.

Love's Search. "Why weepest thou? whom seekest thou?" As Mary looked down into that empty tomb she began her search for her missing Lord and though she found not the body of the dead Christ, she saw angels sitting where the body had lain who said unto her, "Woman, why weepest thou?" How strange tears must have seemed to angels on that glad Easter morning. They knew; poor, weeping Mary Magdalene did not. But the angels knew the sign of grief and evidently sympathized with the weeping woman who stood by that grave wherein they sat, and they would have her tell them the why of her tears. I am glad that God and angels know when we weep, and that they know the language of tears and that they sympathize with us and would have us unbosom our grief to them in order that they may help us. I am glad that "The angel of the Lord encampeth round about them that fear him and delivereth them." Angels seem to have ever attended the pathway of Jesus. They announced His conception, His birth, ministered to Him after His temptation, strengthened Him in the garden of Gethsemane, were at His grave, at His resurrection, at His ascension, and the promise is that they will be with Him when He comes back to earth. If angels encamped round about our Lord and Master and comforted Him and strengthened Him, surely they encamp about His children and comfort and strengthen them in their sorrow, search and service of love.

How brief are sorrows and tears when we go in search of Jesus and find Him! He too knoweth the sign and the language of tears. His own great heart when he dwelt with men in human form, was torn more than once by sorrow, agony and tears. In the days of His flesh, Christ offered up prayers and supplications, with strong crying and tears, unto God His Father. Christ knoweth all about tears. He knoweth the composition of them, where they come from, what they are for, and how to remove the cause and give joy and gladness instead. Christ is ever by the side of those who love Him and seek Him, ready and willing to wipe away their tears with His own hand, if they will but see Him and hear Him and tell Him their woes. Love sometimes hides itself in order to develop us and to reveal us to ourselves in our true light. Mary's sorrow and search revealed to her and to us the greatness of her love for Christ. She knew herself better after this experience and in the ordeal she had grown stronger for service. Christ may know

THE COMMUNION

The communion of the Lord's supper is the very sweetest, and it should be the most sacred, of all our sacraments, rites, and religious ceremonies. To see the people of God assembled in the sanctuary on the Sabbath reverently receiving and sacredly appropriating the emblem of the broken body and shed blood of our Lord and our Savior Jesus Christ carries with it a degree of strength, of beauty, of sacred fellowship that one cannot witness otherwise. The atmosphere seems holy, the stillness is heavenly, the passing emblems in the hands of deacon or elder seem sent down from above, and the moments are fraught with eternity. Time and eternity, heaven and earth, here and hereafter flow into each other and become inseparable. The saints of God yet in service commune with one another, and with the saints about and above, who hover near, but who have been called from service to reward.

Close communion, so-called, never did have any scriptural basis, and should have passed from practice and from theory long before it did. It was an uncomely child born out of season and no one ever did claim its origin or champion its authenticity. From lid to lid of the Bible there was never a word of authority or justification for the practice, neither before Christ's day nor after it.

As the passover feast which it supplanted it was to be observed by "all the congregation of Israel" (Ex. 12:3) for the reason that it was to be not man's, but "the Lord's passover" (Ex. 12:11). As instituted by our Savior, to use the words of Paul, "is it not the communion of the blood of Christ?" and the bread, "is it not the communion of the body of Christ?" (1 Cor. 16:16). And the blood was shed, not for the few but for all who would believe in Him, and His body was bruised, not for a select number of believers, but for all believers in His great and holy Name. "For we being many are one bread, and one body; for we are all partakers of that one bread." (1 Cor. 10:17).

We partake of man's bread and blessing when we meet in each other's homes and break bread the one with the other. But in the sanctuary, on the Sabbath we gather about the Lord's table, the table prepared in memory of the death, and to symbolize the suffering of Him who died to save the world. This is the Lord's table. It is sweet, it is glorious, it is heavenly, to meet our Father's children here and hold sweet communion with them and with God. There is nothing narrow, nothing pinched, nothing niggardly about this; the very spirit of fullness, of freedom, of joyous and delightful intercourse is felt and realized in the service. The soul goes out to its holiest inclinations, and the heart throbs with noblest and divinest impulse.

We shall never on this earth find any scene, any place, any practice as much like heaven as the communion of the children of God in the sanctuary of God on the holy Sabbath day. This do in remembrance of me."

A DISTURBING BOOK

Some do not read the Bible because they fear for their conscience. They are at ease in sin and error and do not care to be disturbed. The Philadelphia Ledger praises the legislators of Pennsylvania, now in session, for forming, at the capital, a Bible study course, but laments the fact that not a member from the city of Philadelphia has joined the class.

The Ledger opines that there is a reason, since the Bible "is too full of ethical submarines and floating mines to invite them to a voyage over its sacred pages. It would be terribly embarrassing for men who had voted to strangle the child labor bill to read of the Divine solicitude for children, and that it would be better that a millstone were hanged about a man's neck and that he were drowned in the midst of the sea than that one of these little ones should be injured. The foes of workmen's compensation would certainly be staggered if they had to answer the question on Dives and Lazarus, or give an explanation of the Golden Rule. The Bible is a very disturbing book, and doubtless the Philadelphia legislators realize that they can keep their peace of mind and comparative self-respect by taking their standards from a less august authority." This is rather a caustic arraignment of Philadelphia lawmakers, but others than law makers leave the Bible unread, preferring to maintain a sort of complacent self-respect than to seek to find a way to higher and better living. In brief, some people fear nothing quite so much as they do the light. They prefer the darkness because their deeds are evil. Light is a disturbing element in many a corner. "Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path." (Psa. 119:105.)

THE OLD RELIGION

The glory of Christianity is that it takes account of danger. No system of thought, or theory of things, is complete that leaves danger and death out of the rating. Dangers come to all, and death is certain. One may escape the danger of today and delay, by skill, the approach of expected death for the time; but danger and death abide all and, avoided today, in due season they return not to be eluded or escaped. "Pallid death knocks with equal foot at the hovel of the poor and the palace of the rich." He alone is wise who in this life takes account of the inevitable, and duly reckons with it. These reflections came very sensibly to mind when we read in an exchange this morning that a German "free-thinker" who had left the communion of the church and had, in protest against the church and Christianity, founded a club for free-thinkers, had now learned a better lesson as he had faced the dangers and death on the battle-field. This "free-thinker's" personal testimony is very striking and worth considering: "I have seen and been through all the horrors of modern war, under the most violent shell fire, and listened to my comrades crying for help. I saw that all human succor was unavailable, and know for certain that at such moments each of us folded his hands and looked toward Heaven. I have re-learned how to pray and am not ashamed to confess it openly. If somebody should come to you advocating a new religion, then ask him if he can answer for it in times of danger. If he smiles indulgently, then show him this letter. Let them scoff as they may at our religion; I know that in times of need many a one looks for and requires God, who up to then thought himself able to get on without Him." This testimony is no more than thousands of other free-thinkers and skeptics have come to in the final upshot of things. David felt as much when he said: "Though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil; for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me." (Psa. 23:4.)

THE MINISTER

The minister who does not read what Rev. W. W. Staley, D. D., has written in a book about "The Minister" will certainly miss much and the poorer. Besides the Introduction there are just five chapters, each of them vexing and annoyingly brief. The topics are: The Minister in His Study, The Minister in His Personal Life, The Minister in His Pulpit, The Minister in His Parish, The Minister in His Community. Into these five chapters Dr. Staley has packed the rich experience, the high ideal, and the rare scholarship of an exceedingly useful and successful ministry. He writes with a steady hand and speaks with authority. Out of the abundance of the heart the printed pages speak, and the tone is definite, certain, noble, inspiring.

In these studies one sees Dr. Staley in his best, save that he has condensed into seventy-eight pages what should have been extended into twice that number had he cared for volume, polish and ornamentation. Absolutely every sentence in the book is a rich nugget. One may polish and coin and embellish as one sees fit. The author was content to mine the ore, dig it up in great lumps, and leave it there. One may gather and store away in rich and rare abundance.

Writing of the minister in his study you come to this thought: "There are more people in my library than in my church. They speak to me, they kindle the fires of my imagination, they quicken my faith, humble my pride, rebuke my wrong-doing and wrong-thinking, warn me against sin, and point my soul to the living Christ. I find tombs with angels, deserts with fountains, gardens with Saviors, prisons with praises, and crosses with crowns." Of the minister in his personal life the author declares: "Extravagance is one of the dangers to religion of this age, and the minister's personal life counts for more than pastoral visit or sermon in this danger field. Extravagance in expenditure leads to extravagance in every line of life. Those who overspend will overspeak, overlive, and overpromise. No minister can preach with the incubus of debt upon him, nor with his family leading in the fashions of the day; downright honesty crowns learning, piety, and personal character."

With such incisive thought, sublime sentiment, ornate diction, the author leads his readers to treasure houses stored with unnumbered and invaluable nuggets of pure gold.

The book is beautifully bound, printed in easy type, on good paper, and has a magnificent and superbly inspiring introduction by that prince of scholars and preachers, Dr. A. W. Lightbourne, Dover, Del. The volume can be had for 50 cents by mail of the Southern Christian Publishing Co., Elon College, N. C., or of the publishers, the Christian Publishing Association, Dayton, Ohio.

THE GREAT DAY AT MILFORD

It was a great honor to be especially invited to assist in receiving one hundred and twenty-seven new members into the Christian Church. This high distinction was conferred upon me by the pastor and people of the Milford, N. J., Christian church, and the enthusiasm and inspiration of that most exceptional occasion will never be forgotten by the writer of this brief and imperfect account of the day.

March 28, 1915, has gone down in the annals of the religious events of Milford, as the most historic, memorable and unique day within the experience and recollection of its oldest citizens. I preached at three services and there were souls saved at each service. Pastor Hoagland is a magnetic leader, and wins the confidence and support of not only his own church people but also of the entire community. Prof. Singleton is a most efficient and enthusiastic conductor of music, and under his direction th singing by the large chorus choir and by the immense congregations that filled every available inch of space, fired all with a holy enthusiasm.

Fully fifteen-sixteenths of the one hundred and twenty-seven converts were adults and heads of families. This long-drawn and constantly moving procession presented an exceedingly imposing spectacle. The emotions of the great congregation were wonderfully stirred by the unusual circumstances of the day, and by the presence and influence of the Divine Spirit.

I shall always cherish the memory of this grand and thrilling occasion as among the richest experiences of a highly favored life.

A. W. LIGHTBOURNE.

Dover, Del.

NOTES AND PERSONALS

—It has been a long Winter of many disappointments and unfulfilled appointments in church work, but now that Spring has come there should be a revival of interest in all church matters, and a spiritual awakening throughout all Zion.

—Rev. Victor Lightbourne, evangelist, reports a most excellent meeting with the Waverly, Va., church, Rev. J. L. Foster, pastor. Not only the church, but the town and community became aroused and there were great audiences and deep interest at all services. Pastor Foster will give an account of results.

—"It is useless to count your years until you have nothing else to count," gravely remarks an exchange. But still it is beautiful, and often sweet, to hear the old recount their years and tell of the delightful and wholesome experiences along the way.

—Rv. A. W. Lightbourne, D. D., Dover, Del., is a visitor at Elon College this week. It is a joy to have the genial Doctor with us. Incidentally he delights us all with his good presence, but the object, and the real joy of his coming is a wee winsome granddaughter named Ruth who had four candles on her birthday cake the day the Doctor arrived. If Elon can hold Ruth that grandfather may be expected any time. We shall do our best to keep Ruth.

SUFFOLK LETTER

Grip, sickness in my family, and more work than I could compass, have made it almost impossible for me to fill my usual place in THE SUN for several weeks.

All is brighter now and I resume my seat at the desk to "make a few feeble remarks," as Editor Atkinson of lucid brain, facile pen, and generous heart, would say, in addressing an audience, when he opens his field gun on some great theme.

Well, Saturday before Easter Sunday was hashed out of the odds and ends of Winter and the worst Spring weather. Hail, snow, wind, low temperature, and a high tide almost paralyzed travel and business. Milliners looked out through gay show windows, and Easter goods kept quiet on many counters. Wires were down, telegraph and telephone communication was at a standstill. Winds howled and moaned and whistled, and new Spring clothes dreaded the morrow.

The ladies had decorated our church for Easter day, friends had promised canaries to sing for us, and more than a hundred little tots had been trained by Misses Ethel Shoop, Le Claire King, Thompsie Holland, and Margaret Underwood.

A big chorus with Chandler's Orchestra had prepared to help out in the Grand Easter Service.

Sunday opened with a rosy east. The sun climbed the heavens in robes of light and filled this part of the world with a new glory. The Sunday school was large. The congregation was a great throng. The exercises glowed with resurrection enthusiasm. The children recited, sang solos, choruses, and marched upon the platform as the advanced army of the coming Christian civilization. The Sunday school army is now twenty-five million, and fifteen million of them are in the United States. It ought to be seventy-five million in this country. Every church member ought to be a member of the Sunday school.

Just before the close of the morning service, the pastor consecrated his youngest grandchild, Thomas Harvey Cheatham, and used water which he brought from the Sea of Galilee nearly twenty years ago.

The rendering of a great musical program at the evening service by the church choir, assisted by Miss Ethel Nicholson of Norfolk on the violin, was thoroughly enjoyed by a great congregation.

The day was perfect, the joy of worshippers was overflowing, the hope inspired by thought of resurrection for our loved ones and ourselves, through Him who broke the bars of the tomb and put new hope into our lives. The snow melted, the flowers bloomed, the birds sang, and human hearts spoke through human lips the praise of their risen Lord.

W. W. STALEY.

ELON COLLEGE NOTES

Easter has passed. It was a season of splendid spirit, despite inclement weather, and it is the spirit in man that makes for joy and happiness. Perhaps a hundred students went home for the holidays, but those remaining were a jolly big family and the visitors added to the mirth and general pleasantries.

The Freshman-Sophomore debate was a highly creditable affair. The Freshmen debaters were Messrs. C. N. Whitlock and F. M. Dunaphant. They argued for an increased navy, but the spirit of the times was against them, and the Sophomores were awarded the decision. For the Sophomore class Messrs. J. L. Crumpton and H. S. Smith spoke.

The Inter-Scholastic Declaimers' and Reciters' Contest was a "howling success." Forty representatives spoke in the preliminary contest and ten in the final. Mr. Edmund Burdick, Asheville, and Miss Lucy Vickrey, James-town, were the medal winners.

The Psphehian Entertainment surpassed even the supreme standard of excellency so characteristic of that organization in its public programs. Every number was good, from the president's remarks to the dismissal of the audience. Miss Alma Bowden read a finely conceived essay, The Star of Bethlehem Shall Lead Them. Miss Beatrice Mason gave a piano solo. Miss Eunice Wellons presented a humorous reading. There was a chorus by some 40 or 50 lovely maidens arrayed in white and of simplicity that charmed and was its own adornment. The debate was on woman suffrage. Misses Frankie McNeil and Pattie Preston presented the suffrage demands in solid logic. Misses Iva Rothgeb and Jennie Willis Atkinson urged the old-time, time-honored division of duty. The audience was anti-suffragette and that side was victorious. The debate was very instructive and thoroughly up-to-date.

Dr. W. P. Lawrence continues to show slight signs of "perceptible improvement," to use the cautious words of his physicians. He is not yet out of danger, but the chances are in his favor. His host of friends will give thanks and take courage.

Dr. W. T. Herndon continues very ill at his home here. His condition was at times critical during the past week. His daughters are still by his bedside.

Uncle Wellons' delightful little volume, Vital Truths for Hungry Hearts, is being distributed at this time. It is beautifully printed and bound. He will send it to any one for fifty cents and it is well worth the price.

Dr. W. C. Wicker has gone to Chicago to attend a session of the Lesson Committee of the International Sunday School Association. He is the member representing the American Christian Convention.

Dr. J. O. Atkinson goes to Morganton on Tuesday, not to enter the asylum—no, sir, not for a minute!—but to act as a trustee of that noble institution. He was elected by the N. C. General Assembly to that office in February. He is a specialist in political and social science and will make an invaluable member of the Board of Control.

Rev. Victor Lightbourne concluded his meeting at Waverly Friday, spent Sunday at Pleasant Grove church, News Ferry, Va., and is expected home today (Monday). On Thursday he begins a meeting in Graham, N. C.

Brother Willis J. Lee and Mrs. Lee are here for the Easter season and a brief visit to the College. Their friends here, and that's everybody, are delighted to see them both improved in health, and there will be genuine regret when they return to their home.

Elon was a-swarm with friends and visitors last week. Every one of them was welcome, thrice welcome. Among them this scribe discerned the pleasing countenances of President J. I. Foust, State Normal College, Greensboro; Prof. R. A. Campbell, Dayton, O.; Trustee D. R. Fonville, Burlington; Miss Nina Pinnix, Kernersville; Dr. I. N. McLean and Mr. H. E. Atkinson, Asheville; Miss Cora Lee Foster, Semora; Mr. I. H. Dunlap, Bonlee; Mr. John R. Foster, Greensboro; Judge McGee, Chapel Hill; Prof. W. W. Peele, Guilford College; Rev. J. F. Morgan, Graham; Miss Mabel Winston, Youngsville; Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Cline, Asheville; Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Anthony, High Point; Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va.; Mrs. Cora Sanford, Stem; Prof. J. S. Truitt, Summerfield; Miss Annie Williams, Graham; Miss Alice Orndorff, Winchester, Va.; Miss Daphne Bowman, Liberty; Miss Lillian Johnson, Angier; Miss Hattie Belle Smith, Summerfield; Mrs. J. W. Patton, Greensboro; Miss Josie Bowden, Norfolk, Va.; Mr. Ralph H. McCaulley, Chapel Hill; Prof. E. L. Daughtry, Gibsonville; Dr. N. D. York, Mebane; Miss Sallie Foster, Burlington; and forty High School representatives plus five of their teachers. We have had a big time this Easter, no doubt of it, and we feel good over it.

Dean A. G. Caris, Defiance College, Defiance, O., is to pay Elon a visit the coming week. He will certainly be more than heartily welcome.

Mr. W. E. Lowe is contemplating considerable architectural change in his home, the Holleman house of early Elon history.

The town and College community generally regret that Miss Mildred Atkinson and her mother have removed from our midst to Richmond, Va. We could not fault them, however, when we found that Mr. S. M. Atkinson, her brother, has recently located in Virginia's capital city for the practice of law.

Dr. Atkinson has been suffering from hoarseness induced by tonsillitis for the past several days. He was unable to preach yesterday, though he was able to be present during the services. Dr. Amick delivered the sermon at the 11 o'clock hour, a very appropriate Easter message it was, too. The choir rendered special music of a high order, and Sunday was a good day for worship and spiritual delight.

EASTER GLEAMS, OR LOVE'S VISION

and does know when we love Him and seek Him, but He would have us tell Him out of our own mouth and by our actions that we love Him and that we seek Him. He would have us tell Him ourselves the cause of our tears and of our search. The angels had asked Mary, "Why weepest thou?" and she entered into conversation with them as if with human being, and she told them the cause of her tears—"They have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid Him." It may be that the angels would have told her something about Jesus, but she turned herself back; or it may be that they showed some sign of some one's approach—I know not—but Mary turned herself back, apparently she would weep out alone her bitter grief; but from other lips now comes the same question, "Woman, why weepest thou?" and the additional one, "Whom seekest thou?" She sees, but sees not the person before her, nor does she seem to care any more who this speaker is than she had cared who the angels were. It was her Lord that she wanted. So absorbed in her sorrow, so hopeless in her grief, so intent in her search, and looking through her blinding tears, she speaks to him who stands before her, as a stranger. She knew him not. Supposing him to be the gardener, she said unto him: "Sir, if thou hast borne him hence, tell me where thou hast laid Him, and I will take Him away." Then in accents soft and tender, she hears the stranger say, "Mary." She knew that name and she knew that He who had spoken, knew her. She had heard that voice before—yes, often. She had heard that voice when in love and mercy and power, seven devils had been cast out of her. She had heard that voice when she with other holy women had ministered unto Christ of their substance. She had heard that voice as she stood by the cross when Christ hung thereon dying. It was the voice of Him whose body she had seen laid in Joseph's own new tomb. It was the voice of Him whose dead body she had come to anoint. It was the voice of Him whose body she was then seeking. Ah! she heard that voice. It was the voice of Jesus, the voice of her Lord and Master. In her sorrow and search for the dead Christ she found the risen, the resurrected Christ, and she cried, "Rabboni," which is to say, Master. Christ assured her of His resurrection and announced to her His intended ascension and bade her go tell His brethren, "and say unto them, I ascend unto my Father, and your Father, and to my God and your God." She had found Whom she sought, not dead, but living, and He had a message of glad and loving service for her who, in deep sorrow, had sought Him, and for all others who mourn and weep. The voice in its healthy condition expresses the inner man. The outward may change, but love within has an abiding quality. Mary's ear recognized and knew the Christ before her eyes discovered that it was He. She knew that voice, and in it she recognized Jesus and heard the divine call removing sorrow, wiping away tears, discovering to her the object of her search and bidding her go tell the joyful tidings—Christ is risen, Christ is risen! With speed and zeal, she went and told the disciples, as they mourned and wept, that she had seen the Lord, and she made known the things He had said unto her.

Love's Service. Love's sorrow is turned into rejoicing. Love's search is realized in finding the resurrected Christ, and she who seems to have sorrowed most, searched longest, was crowned with hearing the Master's first resurrected words, "Woman, why weepest thou? whom seekest thou?" and with bearing the first resurrection message from Christ to others. A rich service and a royal crown was that rendered and worn by Mary Magdalene on that first Easter morning which dawned in darkness, sorrow and tears, and she has worn that crown ever since. Many others have told and are telling of Christ resurrected and all the earth is hearing the glad truth that Christ is risen; but she who stood longest at the grave weeping and searching was the first human being to see, hear, and find and know the resurrected Jesus. She was the first who was commissioned by Christ to go tell the glad news that Christ is risen. Let her wear that crown. She deserves it. Let womanhood ever share and proclaim its joys for one of their number told it first to man. It was a glad, a joyous Easter morn that sent forth a sinner saved by grace with a crown of rejoicing and a message of love and life to those who mourn and weep. Weeping may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning. Sorrow and despondency changed into joy and service. The living Christ did this.

This same Christ lives, and He sympathizes, loves and comes to you and to me in our sorrow and grief and He asks us, "Why weepest thou? Oftimes we weep, because we do not know and do not realize that Christ is near. Sometimes we are so blinded by grief and tears that we see not Jesus when He comes to cheer, bless and give peace. But if we have heard His voice in the forgiveness of sin—if the devils within us have been cast out—if we are saved and in the service of Christ we will know His blessed voice when He calls us by name; and then though we may not understand the darkness nor the gloom, the sorrow nor the tears, nor the great mysteries of the hour, but we will know that it is Jesus calling, and is it not enough for us to know now, that He who was dead is alive ever more, that He who loved us and bled and died for us is risen and with us, and that He brings joy and gladness and calls us, sinners saved by grace, into His service of faith, hope and love? And though it may be not now, but in the coming years, we will read the meaning of our tears and then, ah! then we will understand. Mary saw, heard, believed and worshipped her risen Lord. Visions of faith and love seek, find, see, hear and serve the risen Christ, while unbelief sits in ignorance, blind, deaf and dumb.

Lord, many clouds have hung about our pathway. Some of them have been very dark. Many sorrows come into our hearts, and often, very often, we weep. Thou knowest all about our tears. Thou knowest, Lord, why we weep. We come to thee in our sorrow. Thou canst drive the clouds away. Thou canst turn our mourning into joy. Come, thou blessed Master, speak to us today. Reveal thyself to us. Make us rejoice because of thy love, thy resurrection and thy presence. Call us by name, and with thine own hand wipe away our tears and bid us go tell others of thy resurrection and of thy call to service, and our hearts shall be glad. O, Lord, hear us, we beseech thee, forgive us. Save us, take care of us, guide us through life and bring us ultimately into thy home, heaven, where sorrow, pain and death can never come, we ask in the name of Jesus who loved us and gave Himself for us. Amen.

—Rev. Victor Lightbourne begins a series of meetings with Pastor J. F. Morgan at the Graham church Thursday evening of this week. A few days after the conclusion of this meeting Bro. Lightbourne goes to Suffolk to assist Dr. Staley in an evangelistic series.

Rev. B. F. Black, of Holland, Va., writes us that he is working on the $10 proposition for THE CHRISTIAN SUN. The good work is going on and we are determined to have the number. Some others have written us that they are doing what they can in their Sunday schools. Several Church secretaries have responded in behalf of their respective churches.

We have never thought of anything else but success for the undertaking. We will admit that it is taking a little longer to close up the deal than we thought, but we are slowly but surely going forward with the work. If the "Time is out of joint," then we will get busy and set things aright. Let us all be a committee of one to "Carry the message to Garcia" and see that every individual has a chance to subscribe to THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

Rev. George D. Eastes of the Third Church, Norfolk, has notified us that they will be responsible for $10.00. Do you want to share in the work? We feel that you do but simply keep neglecting to notify us that you do. Obey that impulse and drop us a card saying that you will see that a club of $10 will be guaranteed by your church, Sunday school or a community club. "In union there is strength," and now is a good time to be united. Prorogation should be relegated. Notify us at once.

SEASIDE CHAUTAQUA AND SCHOOL OF METHODS OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Virginia Beach, July 19-25.

Rev. John MacCalman, D. D., Lakemont, N. Y.

Will conduct the opening period each day which will be a "Half-hour with the Bible." This is a happy announcement that we have to make in our announcement this week. Many of our people are careful readers of the opening devotional article by Dr. MacCalman each month in the Christian Missionary and know that he will lead us into the rich things each morning for thirty minutes. The members of the American Christian Convention will not soon forget the opening devotional service he conducted at the Springfield Convention. The Tri-state Missionary Conference at Dayton, O., last December sent for him to conduct a period each day and it was spoken of very highly. Dr. MacCalman will set the pitch for the Bible and spiritual life of our Seaside Chautauqua this year. It will be a rich hour for our Bible workers and students.

If you are planning to come will you just drop us a line now as a forerunner and greatly oblige?

WARREN H. DENISON, President.

—Rev. J. W. Harrell, D. D., First Church, Dayton, Ohio: "Our work here goes well and we are rejoicing in the prospects. Sixty have joined the church since we came here seven months ago. Three were received at the prayer meeting last week and one last Sunday evening. We have the names of two hundred more who ought to come in. Pray for us." Bro. Harrell is a man of consecration and tireless energy. We are not surprised that results attend his efforts.

—Our good people in Franklin, Va., have also caught the building fever and are to work it off in the most becoming fashion. We learn that they are to have an elegant new church, modern in design and equipment, and in every way in keeping with the spirit of the times. The people of the Franklin church are progressive and loyal, and they never do anything by halves.

SUNDAY SCHOOL, APRIL 11

David Anointed King.—1 Samuel 16.
Golden Text: Man looketh on the outward appearance, but Jehovah looketh on the heart.—1 Sam. 16:7.

Saul, the people anointed king, disobeyed God's message and was rejected by the Lord. Samuel was interested in Saul and felt the blow somewhat, but he could not intercede as Saul had plainly disobeyed the expressed command of God. As Saul explained that he intended to make a sacrifice unto the Lord with the spoils he bro't, Samuel thought the Lord might change, but not so.

Israel was without a king. The people had chosen before, but now God makes the move and provides a king for his chosen people. Samuel with divine instructions went to the house of Jesse to find the king which God had provided. This young man of probably twenty years was in the field attending the flock. He was a faithful good shepherd, trusted by his father and brothers. Too, this young man kept his musical instrument with him and kept in tune with nature. He paid attention to little things and won the confidence of the flock; he was tending.

As Jesse's sons passed before Samuel he did not recognize the one which God had commissioned, him to anoint. Finding there was another son in the field he requested that he be brought. This was the youngest. Had he been forgotten? Teacher, do you have a David in your class, one that you haven't noticed much? Ask God to help you anoint him for service in His kingdom. Samuel knew this was the young man whom God wanted to be king over Israel. David was anointed and the spirit fell upon him. He was being prepared for his work. He went back to the fields for further preparation for his future work.

To be a king, head of a great nation, seemed from man's point of view that a man ought to be as large in his physical makeup as the name is or implies. Man is prone to look upon his fellows as being great if they know all the sciences and have been fortunate or unfortunate to accumulate millions. But God did not choose David with this end in view. "Jehovah looketh on the heart." "The heart" in scripture always means the center of the moral being, and includes what we understand by mind, feelings and will; so that when it is said that God looks on the heart, it means that he is concerned with our moral attitude, what we think, what we feel, and what we are intending to do."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR, APRIL 11

Getting Ready for the Next Life.—

Col. 3:1-4.

(Easter Meeting)

Getting ready to live through eternity is no small undertaking. It is a task that requires a lifetime to perform. Many people put off the time to begin building the eternal mansion, or furnishing the house "not made with hands" with the material that we happen to stumble onto late in life. It is an undertaking that means much to early pilgrimage. The sooner we make a start, getting ready for the next life, the better and more service we can render to those whom we come in contact with day by day.

We must first get right with God and know His will by serving His cause and asking Him to guide our footsteps in the direction He would have us go. This means deciding to prepare for the next life and then to be the best prepared we must study how to keep on the way. In the Book of books we can find the desired information. Study the Word of God for inspiration and encouragement.

"Prepare by studying the way. Jesus is the Way, the Truth, and the Life. To follow Him is to enter into heavenly life even now. We cannot fail if we drink in His spirit by the reading of His life's story and then try to live like Him."

"When Michael Angelo was an old man he said, 'I carry my satchel still.' Life, for him, was a school, and he was still in class."

For answer in the meeting, from C. E. World:

What is the best time to get ready for the next life?

How must we get ready for the next life?

Why should our preparation for the next life never cease?

What does Peter mean by "Make your calling and election sure"? (2 Pet. 1:10.)

FROM MISS TRUE

Dear Southern People:

This is near the equinoxes when in Japan the temples are visited, and Spring festivals are held in all the Chinto shrines. A crisis in nature is felt to be near and with the advent of Spring, Heaven is to be thanked and also supplicated.

Here in northwestern Ontario, snow still lies in patches on the ground, and outside the village the roads are too frozen and rough to be good for wagons and too bare of snow in places for sleighs.

The wheat is showing full and abundant on some farms, but most of the wheat for sale is grown farther west. It is a dairy country with mixed farming.

The fourth contingent of soldiers has been called for, which will make 110,000 men from Canada concerned in the war, should they be sent. Leather factories and shoe factories are busy and industries are said to be better than two months ago. Toronto and Oshawa both gave good audiences on a week night to hear of the work in Japan. About 75 were present in each place. Oshawa is having its Sunday school in the afternoon and is gaining. The S. S. in connection with the morning church service was 30 or 40 and now is 130 or more in attendance. The adult attendance especially of men is very much increased by the change of time. The preacher seems to have been cautious and wise and unoffending and every one had good words for him. He was ordained at Liberty Spring Conference last October.

I received a few words from Japan which is the object of my writing. One of our girls goes to be a leader in a ritualistic church, but there will be more spirit and life in the church because of this non-conformist training she has had with us.

I visited Miss Ogata just before I left Japan. She seemed to be faithful in helping her parents in the home and this last year was a good S. S. teacher in Wakuya church.

Miss Ren Hamaguchi writes under date of Jan. 17:

We had a farewell meeting for Masano San tonight. She is Ogata San's niece (i. e., the niece of the man who was married last Spring). Some of the Southern folks heard of his wedding. She is going to be married to an Episcopal clergyman in Utsunomiya. Next Thursday she leaves and the wedding there will be a few days afterward. Mr. Ishgaki (the Christian preacher in Utsunomiya) was the go-between. We will miss her in Wakuya, as she was quite a help to the S. S. here.

A school teacher who was baptized lately, Mr. Fujimura, wishes to study a little English. He brings "Cecil Rhodes." He used to go to Mr. McCord's Bible Class in Sendai. I suggested reading English Bible Wednesday and Sunday night before service at the church. We had the first reading tonight. His friend who was baptized at the same time came with him. They agreed to read Matthew beginning at the second chapter. Both seemed to read nicely.

Jan. 18. I had mail from three different countries this morning—America, Corea and Japan (Tokyo). The rolls of S. S. papers and photograph from Miss Raynes of Bangor were very welcome. Miss Raynes has paid part of Miss Ren's salary for a dozen years, and has not only given her money but taken a personal interest in her.

Mrs. Fry wrote under date of Feb. 4: "During the month of January I attended a Christian funeral, a Christian wedding, and called on two new babies who were born of Christian mothers. One baby was that of our mathematics teacher, Miss Otani. The wedding was that of Mr. Kimura, the assistant pastor of the Episcopal church, to Miss Masano Ogata, who graduated from our school last year. The Bible Department teaching keeps me so busy that those January extras took up all my extra time. This year we have eight graduates in the regular department and three in the Bible."

After their graduation Mrs. Fry writes would have been glad to have had the Bible Women work for us, but lack of money and a feeling of reluctance to take the responsibility of working with young Bible Women were obstacles in the minds of some of the missionaries. We have now 28 in the kindergarten and 32 in the school.

Maybe some of the women can plan five dollars a month for one of these Bible Women, or a group of women can do so. Four or five dollars a month will be living wages for them and they could make the S. S. in which the girls in the Girls' School teach more effective by calling in the homes.

Mrs. Fry writes: "I could find work for the whole three in the twelve Sunday schools we are now running in giving extra teaching to those children after school hours and in working among the mothers and nurses of the kindergarten."

Mr. Morrill wrote last year that he favored the employment of more Bible Women and believed that individual churches would gladly help support one. Several churches four times a year could have a missionary concert or tea, with $5 as a goal. Three churches doing that could support a Bible Woman together. Will some mite box superintendent try to get a group of churches together?

Gratefully,

My Dear Children:—

Your Uncle Jim was so very busy that he failed to send out his usual Easter greetings to the members of the Corner. He regrets it very much, but feels sure they will excuse him, for this once, when they learn that a revival was in progress in the Orphanage at the time, and he was so interested in getting the orphan children saved that he forgot to send out the cards until it was too late.

We are pleased to report a good meeting, and all the children, save two, who were old enough, confessed Jesus as their Savior and entered upon the Christian life. Entire church should pray daily for these young converts, also for the two unsaved. Rev. J. F. Morgan, of Graham, conducted the meeting for us and greatly endeared himself to every member of the institution.

I trust each member of the Corner had a delightful Easter. Our children here enjoyed the novel weather. Snow cream at Easter is a little unusual. But the after effects of the novel weather is not so delightful. The old grippe has returned and seized about a dozen of our family. It seems that he was not very careful about whom he caught either. Mrs. Cox seems to have about the worst case of any. But we are hoping that sunshine that melted away the snow so quickly, may soon drive away the grippe and the colds.

Mr. T. E. Brickhouse, or Norfolk, Va., again gladdened the hearts of our children by sending us two crates of fine oranges. They were fine and we all enjoyed them, and wish to thank Bro. Brickhouse for his good treat.

Mrs. Drewery of Ivor, Va., sent us a nice box of clothing for our smaller children. Other special gifts will be acknowledged next week.

Durham, N. C., March 18, 1915.

Dear Uncle Jim:—I have been so busy going to school that I have almost forgotten to write. I will not write much, for I see the paper is short. Uncle Jim, we have a little baby brother nearly two months old. Enclosed you will find 20 cents for February and March. Love to you and the cousins. Vester Mulholland.

Thank you, Vester, for your nice letter and good news. Hope your little brother may grow and be as nice a boy as you are.

Durham, N. C., March 28, 1915.

Dear Uncle Jim:—We are a little late with our dues, but grandpa has been at home and he is sick. Our school closed Wednesday and maybe we can write more regularly now. Enclosed you will find our dues for March and April. Your little friends,

Lizzie Chandler,
Worth Chandler,
Minnie Chandler.

Uncle Jim regrets to learn of the sickness of your grandpa, but hopes that he may soon be well again.

THE FORWARD MOVEMENT

The list of questions sent out to two hundred of our men by the Forward Movement Committee are almost universally receiving favorable answers. It begins to look as if our people are really in favor of launching such a movement. There is wonderful unanimity in the answers throughout. If there are others that have laid aside the letters sent to them we trust they will pull them out of the pigeonholes and let the committee have their suggestions. The committee is trying to do their work prayerfully and cautiously. Every member desires the prayerful and sympathetic backing of the entire brotherhood in the things that shall be undertaken. God must lead in the movement or it cannot succeed. Will all who read these lines pray for the committee in their effort to complete the plans for the launching of the movement?

In the two meetings that have been held by the committee the decision has been reached that the movement should undertake to raise $250,000 for home and foreign missions, which shall be equally divided between the two departments. This movement is in no way to interfere with the regular offerings for the respective purposes. It is to be over and above everything that we are already doing.

Please let the committee have the answers to the list of questions sent you, for it is now time that they were completing their plans.

LETTERS THAT INSPIRE CONFIDENCE

I wish very much that every reader of The Christian Sun could spend sufficient time in my office to read the thousands of letters which I have received from all parts of the country. I have printed several hundreds of them in a booklet, but I wish you could see the originals, for I would like for you to realize the wonderful results which they report in the relief of dyspepsia, indigestion, persistent headache, rheumatism, gall stones, kidney, bladder and liver diseases, uric acid poisoning and other conditions due to impure blood.

Before my own health was restored by Shivar Mineral Water and I purchased this Spring, and before I received all of these letters from sufferers, I didn't take very much stock in advertisements like this. I therefore cannot blame you if you doubt, but, my friend, I am absolutely convinced that the Shivar Spring is the greatest restorative mineral spring ever discovered, not excepting the famous Spas of Europe. I have shipped this water to thousands of sufferers in all parts of the U. S. and they almost invariably report either permanent restoration or beneficial results. That is why I make the guarantee offer contained in the following letter. Sign it now and mail it.

FOR EMERGENCY USE

Every well regulated family should keep on hand a jar of Mentholatum.

Its uses are various, because it is an excellent antiseptic and germicide and also a delicate counter irritant—just the thing needed for scalds, burns, bruises, sprains, chapped skin, insect bites, and stings.

Mentholatum is a combination of volatile aromatic oils with a heavier base. In the case of scalds and burns the heavy base keeps out the air, a very necessary condition.

The lighter aromatic oils disinfect the surface and protect it from infection from without.

The lighter oils also set up a delicate counter irritation which seems to draw the soreness out of the injured part, reducing the inflammation and encouraging rapid recovery.

For this reason it is very much used for colds, sore throat, catarrh, cold sores and croup. Adv.

They desire that their dollars shall be used in the years to come in the same good cause.

—Pastor B. F. Black, Holland, Va., sends this cheering news: "Holy Neck has gone into the church building business, regardless of war prices. We have in pledges $5,300, and have begun work on our plans and specifications. Bids have been called for and we hope to begin the work by June 1. The plan is to put $6,000 in improvements which will give us five Sunday school rooms, furnace heat, latest improved pews, inclined floor in auditorium, 23 memorial windows of high grade material, and a seating capacity for the church of 500." We congratulate the pastor and people of Holy Neck, a model of a progressive and wide awake country church—more than 100 years old and very active through all these years, but never more so than at present.

GREENSBORO LETTER

The Willing Workers' Missionary Society held a reception Friday evening, March 12, at the church. Refreshments were served and the occasion was a very enjoyable one. Miss Grace Apple has charge of this department of our church work and under her management with the aid of her co-workers, the society has grown from a membership of twelve to sixty-eight within the last few weeks. The Sunday school is showing marked increase in interest, and new members are being added almost every Sunday. The Young Men's Baraca Class, Bro. S. A. Caveness, teacher, is leading in the enrollment of new members.

Among the several city and out-of-town visitors that worshipped with us Sunday was Dr. E. L. Moffitt, of Asheboro, N. C. Rev. S. B. Klapp was with us in service Sunday night. He is a busy pastor and hopeful in his work.

Dr. W. P. Lawrence, Dean of Elon College, who is in the hospital here, is improving. His condition is reported as very satisfactory. His speedy recovery is earnestly desired and prayed for by his many friends and acquaintances.

UGH! CALOMEL MAKES YOU SICK. DON'T STAY BILIOUS, CONSTIPATED

"Dodson's Liver Tone" Will Clean Your Sluggish Liver Better Than Calomel and Can Not Salivate.

Calomel makes you sick; you lose a day's work. Calomel is quicksilver and it salivates; calomel injures your liver.

If you are bilious; feel lazy, sluggish and all knocked out, if your bowels are constipated and your head aches or stomach is sour, just take a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone instead of using sickening, salivating calomel. Dodson's Liver Tone is real liver medicine. You'll know it next morning because you will wake up feeling fine, your liver will be working, your headache and dizziness gone, your stomach will be sweet and bowels regular. You will feel like working. You'll be cheerful; full of energy, vigor and ambition.

Your druggist or dealer sells you a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone under my personal guarantee that it will clean your sluggish liver better than nasty calomel; it won't make you sick and you can eat anything you want without being salivated. Your druggist guarantees that each spoonful will start your liver, clean your bowels and straighten you up by morning or you get your money back. Children gladly take Dodson's Liver Tone because it is pleasant tasting and doesn't gripe or cramp or make them sick.

I am selling millions of bottles of Dodson's Liver Tone to people who have found that this pleasant, vegetable, liver medicine takes the place of dangerous calomel. Buy one bottle on my sound, reliable guarantee. Ask your druggist about me.

OUR DEAD

Lassiter

Miles G. Lassiter was born Feb. 18, 1867, and died April 1, 1915. He was the son of Columbus W. Lassiter, deceased, who was at one time a member of the Virginia Legislature.

Miles himself has been in the post office in Suffolk as Assistant Post Master for nearly nine years, and was considered a very efficient man in the position.

He had been in failing health for some time, but his death was wholly unexpected.

He leaves many relatives; but the one most grieved is his grandmother, who was 93 the 21st of January. She looked to him as her staff. His only brother Thomas will continue in the home with his grandmother.

Rev. P. M. Hank assisted in the services. W. W. STALEY.

Turner

At her home near Lynchburg, Va., Feb. 16, 1915, Miss Pocohontas Turner, daughter of the late Josiah Turner, age 32 years and 5 months. She was a member of Mt. Carmel church, and died as she had lived, trusting in Jesus. She leaves a devoted mother, three brothers, Mr. W. L. Turner, Mr. F. L. Turner and Mr. G. C. Turner, one sister, Mrs. E. D. Smith of Windsor, Va., and many friends. Funeral services were conducted by her pastor at her church, and her remains were laid to rest in the church cemetery.

Barrett

At her home near Walters, Va., Feb. 28, 1915, Mrs. Fannie Atli Barrett, the beloved wife of Deacon S. A. Barrett, aged 57 years. She was one of the very best members of Mt. Carmel church. She leaves a devoted husband, one son, three sisters, Mrs. C. W. Bailey of Windsor, Va., Mrs. Elihu Lankford and Mrs. N. B. Gay, of Walters, Va., and many friends. Her funeral services were conducted at her church by her pastor, in the presence of a large congregation of weeping relatives and friends. We all hope to meet her by and by in that sweet home above, where weeping and sorrow will be no more. Her remains were laid to rest in the church cemetery.

Luke

At her home near Myrtle, Nansemond Co., Va., March 7, 1915, Mrs. Elizabeth Frances Luke, aged 82 years, 1 month and 21 days. She was a dear Christian mother and will be missed by her many loved ones. She was a member of Bethlehem Christian church.

She leaves 3 sons, H. S., S. A., and A. H. Luke, 11 grand children and many friends. Her funeral services were conducted by the writer at her home and her remains were laid to rest in the family burying ground. God bless the dear bereaved ones. H. H. B.

Baines

At the home of her parents, Port Norfolk, Va., March 11, 1915, Lillian Maie Baines, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Baines, aged 3 years, 11 months and 11 days. She was a sweet, bright little girl and everybody who knew her loved her. But she has gone to be with Him who said, "Suffer little children to come unto me." The funeral services were conducted at Cypress Chapel and the remains were laid to rest in the church cemetery.

Long

Nancy Long died at her home in Graham, N. C., March 26, 1915, in her 88th year. She united with the Christian church at Providence when she was a very young woman and lived an exemplary Christian life. She was a slave and belonged to my father, Jacob Long, who died a few years ago in his 88th year. When the slaves became free nearly all that were members of the white churches withdrew and formed churches of their own color. Nancy remained in the church with, as she expressed it, her people. She was faithful as a servant, kindly and tenderly nursed me, my brothers and sister and remained devotedly attached to the family to the last. Her childlike faith in the gospel was beautiful, and she died happily and peacefully. None but those who had the experience knew the strength of the ties that bound the true master and servant. Editorial Briefs

The True Comrade

That was a pathetic, but a very human, incident related in the British, and then in American papers the other day. A poor fellow at the front, in the present European conflict, a member of a Scotch regiment, lay mortally wounded. He cried out to his comrade, also wounded and lying near him, "Can you tell me anything about God?" The quick reply was, "I am afraid I can't; but I have a little book here which might help you," and pushed to him a copy of the Gospel of John. The dying man eagerly turning and inwardly devouring page after page of the inspired truth, finally said: "This is just what I want," and "seemed to grasp God's promise of salvation in Christ Jesus before he passed away." "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil; for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff, they comfort me." (Psa. 23:4.)

The Greatest Time

Evangelism is not dead. The old time revival may have lost something of its noise, emotionalism, and novelty, but the spirit of evangelism was never more alive, never more potent, than it is today. Men and women are being called to repent of their sins and turn from the error of their way as never before. And they are heeding the call in greater numbers, and with more alacrity, than ever before. At the opening of the Chapman-Alexander meeting now being held in Charlotte, and to wonderful effect, Dr. Chapman, of international evangelistic fame, said: "This is the greatest time in twenty-five years to preach the gospel. And this is true in this country as well as abroad. In Europe the great struggle of the nations has turned the minds of men, especially of thinking men, to the deeper spiritual things. I find the same interest in America and I know that this is the golden opportunity for successful evangelism if the church is aroused and the ministers set on fire. Men are now easy to reach. The war conditions and the business depression have made men more serious." It takes adversity and depression to bring minds to their soberest thought, and the gospel appeal is the most serious and weighty that ever confronted mortal man. "What shall I do then with Jesus which is called Christ?" (Matt. 27:22.)

The Deadliest Foe

"We are fighting Germany, Austria, and drink," says David Lloyd George, Lord Chancellor of the Exchequer of England, "and so far as I can see the greatest of these three deadly foes is drink." "I believe," continued the Chancellor, "it is the general feeling that if we are to settle with German militarism we must first of all settle with drink." The saloon as an institution held undisputed sway for a thousand years and gave not one result to prove its worth, merit or benefit (of which it had none), and the common, sober, serious sense of humanity is at last asserting itself everywhere against this deadliest and most inexcusable of all foes.

The Fruits of Folly

Even folly may bear very useful fruit, and the herbs of bitterness may be made very sweet. Seeds of sin not infrequently produce plants, and grow trees, of righteousness. And a deed done with evil intent, and in a sinful, spiteful spirit, may do good and accomplish wonders for God and truth. But be it ever borne in mind that folly, to bear fruit, must be taken in hand by wisdom, and the herbs of bitterness, in order to become sweet, must be transplanted in God's garden, and the seeds of sin, in order to produce trees of righteousness, must be sown beside still waters where eternal Love nourishes the soil. The Lutheran Standard tells of a very wicked and bellicose woman who was converted at a Salvation Army meeting and soon thereafter stood up to give her testimony. A cowardly insulter threw a potato at the old lady who, instead of giving fight under such provocation, picked up the potato, put it in her pocket, and went on with her testimony. Months went by, and the old lady brought a bag of potatoes as an offering to the Lord one day, explaining that she had carried the insulting potato home, cut it carefully, planted and cultivated it, and here was its increase. Virtue has often taken the insults and injuries of vice and sin and turned them into glorious increase for the Lord. On this account an inspired writer was constrained to write for us: "Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good." (Rom. 12:21.)

Gathering and Scattering

Much of the secular press continues to thrust jibes and cheap criticism at "Billy" Sunday. This has come to be not a reflection on Sunday but on the conscience and intelligence of said press. Not so the papers of Philadelphia, which had the opportunity of seeing, hearing and learning for themselves. The highest tribute we have seen from any source comes from the Evening Telegram editorially on the day Sunday closed his services in that city: "You have exalted true manhood, and shown the meanness and littleness of moral cowardice; you have magnified the marriage relation and glorified the home, while scathing the moral unfaithfulness of double-living men, and the iniquity and meanness of the double standard of morals affected and justified by many; you have shown our young men that they cannot 'sow wild oats' and expect to reap a harvest of good grain; and you have made it plain that the material world is the unsubstantial and vanishing world, and that the unseen and spiritual world is the true and enduring world. And all this you have done not only according to your Bible, but in accordance with the principles of highest moral science, held alike by Christians and mere moralists." If one half of this be true, and this is only a fragment of the Evening Telegram's editorial, the press in other cities is putting its space to poor use to seek to discredit a man who is rendering a service they themselves should render, but which for want of mental, moral and spiritual capacity they cannot render. If we can't help in a great work we should show good taste in not seeking to hinder or offend. "He that is not with me is against me; and he that gathereth not with me scattereth abroad." (Matt. 12:30.)

The Man at the Center

That which drove the Jewish nation to desperation, proved Pilate's undoing, and put the Sanhedrin beside itself with rage, was the Man Christ Jesus. He and He alone is too much for sin, or shame, or crime in any and in every form. If disease is to be banished, if the saloon is to go, if crime is to decrease, if social inequality is to disappear, if moral and political corruption is to be done away, remember that all of it must come by and through the Man Christ Jesus who alone is sufficient for these things. Almsouses, asylums, retreats, charities, benevolences, philanthropies will not, cannot, either or all combined, save society and redeem individuals. Christ is at the center and must be kept there for all effectual purposes of salvation and redemption. Dean Shailer Matthews writes in a recent book on the "Social Gospel" these words: "Christianity, let us then insist, is the religion of salvation. It has moral ideals, doctrines, institutions, but all these are of small value unless they preach Jesus Christ the Savior. Any religion which does not carry within it this saving power is certainly not Christianity. The gospel does not believe in half-way measures." The man Christ Jesus made no compromises. Calm, serene, dignified, reserved, possessing His own soul, amiable, considerate and charitable to all men alike, He stood out strong, bold and unbending against all the darts and shafts of evil, sin and wrong in every form. At the center of all our Christian teaching, practice, morals, and all else, is "the Crucified Son of God." By this sign we shall conquer. "And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me." (John 12:32.)

—The Unitarians are making a sorry spectacle of themselves in camping on Rev. "Billy" Sunday's trail. They have hired the largest hall in Paterson, N. J., where "Billy" is now preaching, and within four blocks of the evangelistic tabernacle that they may hold meetings in opposition and do all they can to stay the tide of evangelism. Even the saloon men did better than this and fifteen of them voluntarily shut up shop and went out of business before the evangelist arrived.

EDITORIAL

A MATTER OF GREAT MOMENT

The pastors, patrons and friends of our Southern Christian Convention are face to face with a fact which is to prove whether we mean business in the biennial sessions of our body, or whether we discuss matters and pass resolutions to mark time and keep up appearances. Here is the question: Do we, or do we not, wish a Theological Department in Elon College? In Convention assembled we have said that we do. Hear the resolution adopted at the Portsmouth session one year ago:

"What is needed is a Theological Department of at least three men giving their entire time to the special work of the young men looking to our ministry, the College of course articulating its work with this department so as to yield the best results.

"We have talked Theological Department for many years and it is now time that we were taking definite steps toward its institution. After most thorough consideration we recommend that a Christian Education Day be celebrated in each congregation, in which the purpose of Christian Education in general and Elon College in particular be presented, and that opportunity be given for a free-will offering for the establishment of such a department, the money so raised to accumulate with interest in the treasury of Elon College till such time as there is sufficient to justify the institution of this department. This day should be in the month of May or June, as the pastors may elect."

In order to prove our loyalty to the Convention and to show that we are in earnest about such a department, the time draweth very nigh when we must act. This is a matter of the first moment, and it seems to us no pastor should be indifferent to it.

There has recently been issued by the College a Bulletin which gives in detail the plan proposed and how pastors and people can, to their own credit and helpfulness, carry out the will and decision of the Convention. We do not believe any unprejudiced mind can read this bulletin without having created within a desire to co-operate in this good undertaking and have a part in so good a work. Rev. W. W. Staley, D. D., President of the Convention, explains the movement and gives the attitude of the Convention thereto. There follows this a "History of Elon College—1889-1915" that is exceedingly illuminating and inspiring, and will, we believe, do much to create a lively interest in this Department, as it shows a growth and record for the institution that must beget confidence and inspire hope wherever it is known.

The Bulletin carries, among other good things, a contribution from the masterly mind and lucid pen of Rev. F. G. Coffin, D. D., President of the American Christian Convention on "The Educational Equipment of the Ministry." Any one reading that article will regret again and again that Elon has not had a theological department long ago.

There are other timely articles that make this number of the Bulletin one of the most practical and most important ever issued by the institution. It should have wide reading and carry great weight. The matter is important.

VITAL TRUTHS

Does any CHRISTIAN SUN reader wish to do two good deeds in one act? Hear how it may be done. Send Rev. J. W. Wellons, Elon College, N. C., 50 cents and get a copy of his new and beautiful book of 131 pages, entitled, "Vital Truths for Hungry Hearts." The simple act will first of all give joy to dear Uncle Wellons' heart, and secondly will give to the purchaser more than his money's worth. The book is worth reading. It is the result of years of meditation, experience, and of leading a life close to God. Out of the abundance of a rich and varied and consecrated experience the author now in his ninetieth year gives his thoughts, teachings and experience on such themes as "Sin," "The Word of God," "The Atonement," "The Preacher," "Faith," "Conviction," "Repentance," "Conversion," "The Love of God," "Water Baptism," "The Unity of the Church," "The Lord's Supper," "The Trinity," etc., 27 chapters in all. These are real vital truths for hungry hearts, and will prove so to those who read them. The print is plain and very easy on the eyes, the paper is of the best, and the binding of red cloth with side title in gold makes it an exceedingly attractive volume.

The Southern Christian Publishing Company, Elon College, N. C., maintained its high standard in the print of the volume and shows its ability to do the very best book work. Uncle Wellons has given a real message in the book and many hungry hearts will find wholesome and sustaining nourishment in its pages. Send today to the author and get a copy. You will never regret the act with its two kindly deeds involved.

A CHALLENGE TO THE STRONG

To enter the mission field at the present time is a man's task. The call for strong men, for strong women, to enlist as missionaries, was never so urgent, never so significant, as it is today. Taking China and Japan as typical, they are not only waking up, they are awake. They are alive with zeal, with a certain nervous, impatient desire for the latest, the newest, the best the West has to offer or the wide world to give. In politics, in education, in social development they have some purpose, scheme or plan. But in religion they are adrift. "They know," says a recent writer, "that they are in need, but they do not know what that need is. They are turning from the dark past and are crying for the light." It is a man's job to lead these people to the light. "In these lands the missionary faces an alien philosophy and a non-Christian system of religion. He must break soil, preach the Gospel, lay the foundations of the kingdom, and then set up Christian work with all of its diversified elements. If we need strong men for the ministry in America, where there are so many influences to aid, we need the strongest for these fields where the props are knocked from under and they must stand alone. We doubt if the world offers a greater challenge to consecrated ability than comes from these mission fields." The mission field today truly offers opportunity for talent, tact, leadership, power among men that no other field or calling of human service and activity offers. Here is indeed a challenge to the stalwart, fearless, undaunted manhood and womanhood of our day. "It is God that girdeth me with strength, and maketh my way perfect." (Psa. 18:32.)

NOTES AND PERSONALS

—Bro. C. H. Stephenson, Raleigh, President of the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention of the Eastern N. C. Conference, does not wait till June or July to get to work for the annual session of his meeting, but has already begun and is busy in making his program and laying his plans for the session which meets at Wentworth church second week in July. "With the help of the good Lord, and the co-operation of our pastors and Sunday school workers, we are going to have not only the biggest, but the best Convention yet, and all concerned might as well begin right now to get ready for it." Bro. Stephenson is a live wire in the Sunday school work and if the brethren will lend him their aid he will certainly have a most helpful and inspiring session.

—The Editor of the New York Herald thinks that the millennium is in sight because the city commissioners of Birmingham, Ala., have voluntarily reduced their own salaries. Add to this the other fact that the President and several members of the Harvard University Faculty recently voted to do the same thing and you have evidence, not that the millennium is near, but that one can never tell when and where the generous and benevolent act will appear. Adversity rather than prosperity is the soil friendly to and productive of generosity and benevolence.

—Superintendent C. H. Stephenson of the Hillsboro St. Christian Sunday school in answer to our "One Hundred Friends Wanted" each to pledge $10.00 and send THE SUN to seven new subscribers, provided THE SUN go back to its former size, writes: "Enter First Christian Sunday school, Raleigh. Get busy. We are with you, and may God bless the movement." Which words are greatly appreciated. If the pastors and friends who care for their church and its paper will do their turn now in good spirit, the results will be forthcoming. Come, beloved, and let us—one hundred of us—see that this good things is done.

—From Richmond Virginian, April 4: "The evangelistic services which have been conducted at the Waverly, Va., Christian Church by Rev. Victor Lightbourne, of Elon College, N. C., for the past ten days have come to a close. The people of Waverly have been charmed by his eloquence and greatly revived spiritually by his powerful gospel message. Not for twenty years has there been such religious awakening among our citizens. More than 175 persons confessed Christ or reconverted themselves to the service of the Master. The attendance was large at each meeting and at the final service many were turned away for want of room in the church. Mr. Lightbourne was converted in Dover, Delaware, about two years ago, and entered the gospel ministry a few months thereafter, since which time he has devoted himself to evangelistic work. His passion for soul-saving is so on fire, and his power over men so great, that it is confidently predicted by many who have heard him that he will soon become a national figure in his chosen field of Christian service."

—What if the spirit of all SUN readers was as considerate and amiable as this of our devoted sister, Mrs. Nannie L. Hankins, Hurdle's Mill, N. C.: "It grieves me that there are so many of our church members not taking THE SUN. I can't see how they can do without their church paper. It is a great pleasure to me. It is food for the hungry soul. Two pieces in a recent issue are worth the price of the paper a year, "A Study in Acts" and Bro. White's sermon. No one knows how I enjoy these good sermons. No one can think hard of you for reducing the size of the paper. It was ourselves who compelled it. You can count on my subscription as long as I live, unless I am providentially hindered." Such noble sentiments encourage us to do and dare.

Pastor's Hour

Last year Dr. W. W. Staley conducted five periods on "The Minister" and those messages were listened to with rapt attention. No words can speak too strongly on the value of those messages. Every minister was on hand at those periods for the ministers. He set a high standard. By unanimous vote they were published and every minister should have a copy. We want to keep that high standard every year so that our ministers from near and far will want to come and will be helped when they come.

Dr. A. W. Lightbourne, Dover, Del.

Dr. W. G. Sargent, Providence, R. I.

These two brethren, two of our very best, have accepted our invitation to conduct the pastor's period this year. Dr. Lightbourne will conduct two sessions and Dr. Sargent will conduct the other three. Their five themes will be announced later as that matter is now in correspondence. Dr. Lightbourne is pastor of our People's church at Dover and well known to our brotherhood. Dr. Sargent is pastor of our church at Providence and is Secretary of Education for the American Christian Convention. These brethren have a reputation behind them and our pastors should plan to attend. Many of our churches should send their pastors. Several churches last year did help bear the expenses of the week for their pastors.

WARREN H. DENISON, President.

SUFFOLK LETTER

Reports of improvement in the condition of Dr. W. P. Lawrence, at St. Leo Hospital in Greensboro, N. C., send a thrill of joy into many hearts. He is an invaluable personality in Elon College.

Many send up a prayer to our heavenly Father as they read of the condition of Dr. W. T. Herndon. He is known to thousands in the Southern Convention who sympathize with him and his family in his long affliction.

But these families are not alone in their afflictions. Almost every home has its share. "Afflictions, though they seem severe, are oft in mercy sent." Jesus "suffered the just for the unjust." That is the common experience of mankind. "He bore our griefs and carried our sorrows;" that is, the griefs and sorrows of mankind. This suffering on account of others suggests the importance of working to create a sounder public sentiment, a purer moral atmosphere, a holier state of society, a more religious condition in society. If sin could be expelled from society it would greatly reduce the sufferings of mankind.

The Missionary spirit is philosophical as well as Biblical. It is spiritually sanitary, and economical. It not only reduces the sin of the world, but increases the soul-health and productive power of the world. The suffering and loss in Europe fall upon the innocent individuals because of a wrong public spirit. That public spirit grows so large as to overwhelm the individual and carry the innocent into the trenches and the grave. Then the women and children who are still more innocent suffer more keenly and more protractedly. The guilty cannot suffer as much as the innocent. The son in prison cannot suffer as much as his innocent mother at home. Guilt hardens the heart while innocence softens the heart. It is thus clear that man cannot suffer on account of sin like Jesus who was immaculate. His suffering, His travail of soul must have been intolerable to human nature—it was only the divine nature that could endure such agony as Gethsemane revealed and such suffering as He endured on the cross. The physical suffering was the least of what He endured for sinners. Even our physical afflictions are light compared with the mental and heart sufferings which we experience. But "these light afflictions which are but for a moment work for us a far more and exceeding weight of glory, while we look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen; for the things which are seen are temporal, but the things which are not seen are eternal." We should, therefore, not look too much upon the things that are seen; but we should look at the things which are not seen; though the unseen is often revealed through the seen. God's invisible love had its largest expression for us through the visible and incarnate Christ.

W. W. STALEY.

ELON COLLEGE NOTES

There is a growing feeling here that we need a church. It is true the College auditorium furnishes ample seating accommodation, but the sentiment keeps growing in the direction of a church—a church that shall occupy the commanding position in the cluster of College buildings and be architecturally as well as actually the centre of all things. We are hoping it will not be long till our desire can be obtained.

The College has just issued a new bulletin known as The Theological Number. Its purpose is to assist the pastors in the campaign during May and June for funds to equip a Theological Department in connection with the College, as provided by the recent session of the Southern Christian Convention. Surely there is no greater need or worthier cause than this.

Dr. Charles V. Clark, Prof. in Yale University, lectured Tuesday evening on "The Place of Latin and Greek in College Education." Dr. Clark is a ripe scholar in Latin.

Dr. A. W. Lightbourne, Dover, Del., lectured Wednesday evening, on "Things in General and Some Things in Particular." Dr. Lightbourne is a forceful thinker and can interest an audience.

Dr. A. G. Caris, Dean of Defiance College, Ohio, visited the College Thursday and Friday. He delivered a very entertaining address Thursday evening on "Consecrated Education." He is spending three weeks on a vacation, travelling among the friends of Defiance in the South and East. Elon was glad to welcome him.

Brother Willis J. Lee and Mrs. Lee concluded their visit to Dr. Atkinson's family on Friday, returning to their home that day. They expect to return for commencement and here is hoping they will.

Mrs. M. A. Atkinson, who went to Raleigh a few weeks ago for special treatment, is much improved and is expected home the latter part of this week.

Prof. Brannock has spent the past two Sunday's visiting Dr. York's family in Mebane, N. C. Dr. Randolph acted as Superintendent in his stead Sunday.

Dr. Lawrence continues to improve. Mrs. Lawrence was at home during the day Thursday, returning to his bedside that night. There is great satisfaction here that he is on the road to what promises to be permanent recovery.

Dr. Herndon continues quite ill, with perhaps slight signs of improvement. His many friends are quite anxious for his condition and are praying for his restoration.

Rev. Victor Lightbourne is busy in a great meeting at Graham, N. C., at this writing. The meeting begun on Thursday last. He goes from there to Suffolk Va., to assist Dr. Staley.

Many hearts were saddened on Saturday when it became known here that Mrs. M. L. Pretlow, Franklin, Va., a former matron had died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. N. J. M. Holland. Mrs. Pretlow's friends here were very numerous.

Mr. Joseph Michael, who has been taking a special course in Veterinary Surgery in Kansas City, Mo., is at home for a few days with his parents.

Miss Morris, traveling secretary of the Y. W. C. A., was a pleasing visitor here the past week, as was also Miss Annie Dent Davis, Greensboro, N. C.

Members of the faculty are quite busy these days "breaking up" schools. These peripatetic visitations are among the best media of advertising the College. They are hard on the teachers (and perhaps hard on the schools) but somehow they bring Elon patronage. The number of invitations grows with each year, attesting the enlarging popularity of the College.

Dr. Atkinson continues to be troubled with hoarseness. He was really not physically able to preach Sunday, but did so. It was a magnificent utterance. "Heavenly Recognition" was its climax. It was the Doctor's masterpiece. His congregation was tenderly moved. He is to preach before the State Baraca-Philathea Convention on April 23rd. The convention meets in Raleigh and is one of the largest religious gatherings in the State.

M. E. WINSTON

We hate to mention it, but we have to—some have not responded relative to paying their subscription. We are still in need of the little amount and trust that you may see fit to do us the kindness. Persistency will accomplish much, we have been told. Hence our weekly call for your remittance.

We are sending your pastor a receipt book asking him to fill it up, or rather tear it up by giving receipts to those who wish to pay their subscription to THE CHRISTIAN SUN. Do not wait for your pastor to come to you; he may forget it. See him the first opportunity and tell him to give you one of the receipts.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN is still calling for your support. You can render quite a service by paying up your subscription, by joining a club that will guarantee $10 for the purpose of getting THE SUN back to its former size, by putting the matter before your Sunday school. There are many ways by which you could do a good turn for THE CHRISTIAN SUN. Will you help? We feel that you will.

One good brother wrote and pledged himself for $10, saying that he had held back to see if the plan would go without his effort. He decided that he would take part. Are you holding back trusting that the other fellow will do it without you. You want to share in it just as the party above. We need you. Your pledge will place us nearer to the goal for which we are striving. It may take yours to do it. At least, we are expecting you to help us. Will you disappoint us?

—We were highly favored with a visit from Dr. A. W. Lightbourne, Dover, Del., last week. Dr. Lightbourne's church has recently extended him a call for life and he is indeed doing a work worthy of the confidence. He has a great congregation and wields a mighty influence for righteousness in his State. He is a most profound thinker, a rare scholar and a thrilling speaker.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

The Sunday School and Christian Endeavor General Convention will meet in connection with the Chautauqua this year. This is done for two reasons. First: The Chautauqua furnishes a program along the same line of the convention program and furnishes a much better program than the convention could possibly furnish.

Second: It will save the expense of attending two meetings and also the time. Time will be given on the Chautauqua program for the business of the convention.

Mrs. Bullock has been elected by the Executive Committee as Field Worker for the Convention. It is intended to limit her work at the present to the holding of institutes. Owing to a lack of funds the committee was unable to provide any salary for this work, therefore whatever convention is privileged to have these institutes will have to bear the expense. The plan is to hold a number of two-day institutes in each of the conference conventions that makes provision for them.

Plans, dates, probable expense and so forth can be secured by writing either Mrs. F. Bullock, Waverly, Va., or myself.

We hope that this movement will mean much to our work and will pave the way for the employment of a Field Secretary for full time on an adequate salary.

We are badly in need of funds just now to pay the expenses of this year. The following resolution was adopted at the last session of the Southern Christian Convention, at Portsmouth, Va.:

"Resolved, That this convention request every Sunday school and Christian Endeavor Society within its bounds to give one offering per year to the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor General Convention."

The expenses of this work are not heavy and if our Sunday schools and Christian Endeavor Societies will carry out this resolution, we shall have all the funds we need. While the schools and societies are getting their funds in I am going to ask that those interested in the work and are enjoying the page in the "Christian Sun" and will find it helpful to them in their work and who are willing to contribute something to the support of the work to send $1.00 each within the next ten days. We have bills that must be met. Please take this up with your school right away and get them to send next Sunday's offering for this work. Send all funds to the undersigned.

W. T. WALTERS,
President and Acting Treasurer.

TIDEWATER LETTER

Some time ago the duty was given me to keep THE CHRISTIAN SUN informed as to the work of the Kingdom among our churches in this community, and I am frank to say that this is the first opportunity I have had to send in a letter; but I am glad that the opportunity has at last presented itself.

Many things in and about Norfolk have been occurring during the past few months pertaining to the advancement of the Kingdom's interests. A great Laymen's Missionary Convention, at which there were more than 1,000 registered delegates, was held in February, the results of which are ever becoming more visible as the days go by. Following this great convention came the "Flying Squadron of America," headed by that great and devout man, Ex-Governor Hanly, of Indiana. This is a remarkable organization and a marvelous campaign is being vigorously carried forward by a number of consecrated men and women of God composing "The Flying Squadron," who are determined that "King Alcohol" shall die by 1920. Following hard on the heels of this campaign came the Virginia State Anti-Saloon League Convention which exerted a great power for good in the community, and yet there are more good things to come. Next month the International Union of Gospel Missions will hold their International Convention here. This promises to be a stir for Norfolk and community.

Added to the above, there have been many revival fires burning brightly throughout the "Camp of the Lord." Every denomination seems to have been gaining the victory from the revival standpoint this year. Great meetings have been conducted, many souls have been born again, and churches have been wonderfully quickened.

Now as to our own. We have been in "the swim" with all the rest. The Christian churches of Tidewater are awake to every good work, and that being true, never fail in getting their full quota of the benefits. We are endeavoring most earnestly to lift our end of the load and by the help of the Lord seem to be able to meet the demand of every situation.

Bro. D. A. Keys, pastor of our Rosemont church, has had an uplift with his congregation as a result of their sacrifice and effort in erecting their new and attractive house of worship. It speaks well for a little band of fifty members. They are now in the third week of a revival effort being assisted by the undersigned. There have been twelve or fourteen Sunday school scholars converted and others, the most of whom are adults, making a total number of professions somewhere in twenty. Some members have been received.

Bro. L. L. Lassiter seems to be adapting himself well to the work in South Norfolk and the evidences show that things are looking up for our church there. They anticipate beginning a meeting series soon.

The Portsmouth church under the leadership of Bro. Rountree keeps alive and moving. Every department is on the up-grade. The pastor is popular and the congregations are growing. Their revival services will begin May 2nd, for which they are now making preparations.

Bro. W. H. Garman and the Lambert's Point congregation are again evangelizing in a most definite way. A meeting was begun under the direction and preaching of the pastor, Sunday, March 28, and already a goodly number have made profession.

Dr. L. F. Johnson with the First Church is forging steadily ahead. Extensive plans and preparations have been made for the coming evangelistic campaign which will start in the First Church April 11. The undersigned will assist. We are expecting confidently a great outpouring there. Dr. Johnson has been passing through personal trials of late, and he with his family need the prayers of God's people. Mrs. Johnson is still in the hospital, but is improving. The children have also been ill.

The Memorial Christian Temple, Dr. Denison, pastor, has received more than sixty new members this Spring as a result of a splendid evangelistic effort put forth. Here is a church thoroughly organized and under the leadership of their energetic pastor is exerting an ever-widening influence on the city. Dr. Denison has been honored recently by being elected President of the Tidewater Ministerial Meeting, an organization composed of all the Protestant ministers of Tidewater Virginia.

Third Church we mention last, but by no means admit that it is the least. The work is going well. New members are coming frequently. Despite the pastor's absence filling other engagements here and there in the community, the congregation independently plans and pushes forward with vigor and enthusiasm. The Quarterly Conference reports last evening showed a record of the best quarter, in most respects, in the history of the church. Encouraging letters are read almost every Sunday from our new missionary, Miss Williams.

Well, things look encouraging for the Lord and His work among us. We thank God, take courage, and "press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling in Christ Jesus."

I am sure, my dear editor, that this letter is entirely too long for printing with convenience, since you are undoubtedly crowded for space, but I trust you may be able to publish it since it is the first and sums up almost an entire season's work. The next letter will be shorter and more to the point.

Yours in Him,
GEO. D. EASTES.

A READING COURSE FOR MINISTERS

As a member of the Educational Board of the American Christian Convention I want to call the attention of the ministers of the Southern Christian Convention to the reading course outlined by the Board.

It is necessary for every minister to do a certain amount of reading in order to have the self development essential to the growth of his work and since the most of our ministers are in the country and consequently out of touch with the large libraries, it is necessary for them to purchase their own books, but in this day of many books it is hard to know what is best to buy. The Board, desirous of being of service in all lines of education and self development, has suggested the following course which covers six phases of the minister's life and work:

- I. For a broader vision of the field and its opportunities:
 - (a) "The Church of the Open Country," Warren H. Wilson..... 60c
 - (b) "The Challenge of the City," Josiah Strong
- II. For methods of winning men:
 - "Recruiting for Christ," John Timothy Stone
- III. The preacher and his message:
 - "The Preacher and His Life Work," J. H. Jowett ..
- IV. For the deepening of the spiritual life:
 - "The Parabolic Teaching of Christ," Alexander B. Bruce
- V. For Foreign Mission study:
 - "The Social Aspects of Foreign Missions," W. H. P. Faunce.....
- VI. For Social Service:
 - "The Individual and the Social Gospel," Shailer Mathews.....

The books can be secured at the above prices postpaid, from either the Southern Christian Publishing Company, Elon College, N. C., or the Christian Publishing Association, Dayton, Ohio.

All the books will be reviewed in the Herald of Gospel Liberty and perhaps in the Christian Sun. The committee would be glad to know of the interest taken in the course and would appreciate a postal telling what books you have read in the list. If the interest justifies it, the committee will be glad to make further recommendations for a course next year.

Send a list of the ones you read to the chairman of the committee, Rev. John A. Stover, M. A., 812 Gilbert St., Danville, Ill., or to the writer.

S. S. LESSON, APRIL 18

The Shepherd Psalm.—Psalms 23.

The teacher should require all the scholars to memorize the 23rd Psalm.

Below we have an introduction to the Psalms by Dr. J. U. Newman, Chair of Greek and Biblical Literature, Elon College. No one can read this without profit.

Introduction to Psalms

A song is rhythmical thought, ening and activity. The songs of the music of a soul "swept by the hands of its Maker," varying in melody and harmony according to the condition of the instrument, but ever the music of a heart that God has touched. Beautiful, because it awakens those pleasurable emotions which evoke admiration and approval, and spiritual, because the spirit of man is responding to the divine touch.

In other parts of the Bible God is speaking to us. Law for our guidance, history for our instruction, and prophecy for vision and inspiration. In the Psalms, the soul is talking to God. In the former, Jehovah is revealing Himself, speaking from the burning bush; in these man is putting off the sandals of his former life, entering upon holy ground, and responding to the heavenly voice, pleading his unworthiness to answer the divine call. In the Psalms, man, the sinner, the penitent, the hoping, trusting child, is in holy communion with God.

That the subtle power in them which we call beauty is spiritual, is evident from the fact that they have been the songs of the church in every period of spiritual awakening an activity. The songs of the pious Jew for three thousand years, the hymnbook of the second temple, and for nineteen centuries the manual of devotion and praise for the church of God and the treasury of song for the choice spirits of all ages and climes. The Psalms of Mary, Zacharias and Simeon are the flowering of Jewish psalmody and the first fruits of Christian song. By 100 A. D., in that centre of Christian life and missionary activity, the church at Antioch, Jew and Gentile were praising God in the Psalms of David. Chrysostom tells us that in the fourth century, psalm singing was universal in the church, shop and field, wherever Christ was known, and that many an unlettered peasant knew the Psalms by heart. So indispensable were they considered to spiritual life and power that at one time the church fathers ordained no one until he knew the psalter thoroughly.

Mistaking the letter for the spirit, church councils in the sixth and seventh centuries decreed that no one should be advanced to ecclesiastical honors "who do not know the psalter perfectly."

The beauty and charm of the Psalms have fascinated men in all professions and callings. To translate them into verse has been a favorite occupation of the masters of literature and men of the highest genius. Many claim they have created a literature all their own, known as the literature of inner Christian life: Imitations of Thos. A. Kempis, Confessions of Augustine, Grace Abounding of Bunyan, etc.

The book of Psalms has been a trysting place for the spiritual heroes of the church. The founder of Christianity died with a Psalm upon his lips and the first martyr with the same words upon his tongue. Paul and James counsel the singing of the Psalms.

Athanasiasius: "They seem to me to be a mirror for every one who sings them, in which he may observe the motions of his soul. He who generally studies all that is written in this book of divine inspiration may gather, as in paradise, that which is serviceable for his own need."

Basil: "The book of Psalms contains that which is serviceable in all of them (books of Bible). A Psalm is the call of the soul, the arbiter of peace. It still the story waves of thought. It softens the angry spirit. A Psalm cements friendship, unites those at variance and reconciles those at enmity."

Luther: "The Psalms are a Bible in miniature, in which all things are set forth more at large in the rest of the scriptures are here collected into a beautiful manual of wonderful and attractive brevity."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR, APRIL 13

One Day in Seven for the Highest Things.—Ezek. 20:1-20.

God in planning the universe made everything in harmony. In doing this He has made and set aside one day in the week to be used in service to Him. Several times nations have decided that they were wiser than God and set aside one day in ten for the observance of the law; others set aside one day in five; but these nations have all changed their views and have accepted God's plan and pronounced it the best. It has to be the best, for it is God's word and will.

Long drawn out experiments have convinced man that his physical make-up must have a change from the daily routine of life. If it wasn't for anything else the Sabbath is necessary for the maintaining of the efficiency of the human system.

God intended the Sabbath to serve a larger purpose than to merely take care of the physical body. He intended the Sabbath for the building and keeping up of the spirit life and the training of the soul that we may be prepared for the life eternal.

At this season of the year people are tempted, when they hear the beautiful song of the songster and see the coming forth of the buds, to spend their Sabbaths "out driving" or going to the parks to spend the time. Now, if you are in this class, why can't you guard against that sort of thing and kill the temptation while it is young and weak? Go to the Sunday school and attend the church services together with the other organizations of the church and help to make these interesting and as inspiring as mother nature around you. Don't understand us to mean that you should not converse with nature and give nature her dues for her beauty; only render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's and unto God the things that are God's.

The Christian Endeavor society has an opportunity here in this lesson to make its weight felt. The observance of the Sabbath can be strengthened by the society as no other one organization can do. The welfare of the nation depends largely upon the Sunday observance of the young people of our country.

The congregations at Graham have grown so large that the Court House is being used, Rev. J. F. Morgan, pastor, advises. Bro. Victor Lightbourne is doing the preaching, and Mrs. Lightbourne is assisting in the singing. The congregations are very large and on the increase and the interest is very deep. The meetings began last Thursday evening and are to continue through this week.

The Kronprinz Wilhelm, a German converted cruiser, came limping into Norfolk harbor Sunday morning last, having been on the high seas as a raider since Aug. 3, 1914, during which time she captured 14 English and French merchant vessels, destroying wealth of cargoes estimated at $8,000,000. The cruiser asks for repairs and supplies and her captain professes anxiety to put to sea again; but his ship, like the Eitel, is most likely to interne for the remainder of the war.

With a stingy man trying to shirk his simple duty the late Sam Jones had no sort of patience, as the following striking little story shows. A man once said to Sam Jones: "The church is getting my assessment too high." Jones asked: "How much did you pay?" "Five dollars a year," was the reply. "Well," said Jones, "how long have you been converted?" "About four years," was the answer. "Well, what did you do before you were converted?" "I was a drunkard." "How much did you spend for drink?" "About $250 a year." "How much were you worth?" "I rented land and plowed a steer." "What have you got now?" "I have a good plantation and a pair of horses." "Well," said Sam Jones, "you paid the devil $250 a year for the privilege of plowing a steer on rented land, and now you don't want to give the Lord, who saved you, $5 a year for the privilege of plowing horses on your own plantation! You are a rascal from the crown of your head to the sole of your feet."—Biblical Recorder.

We congratulate our Norfolk pastors on the great activity in church matters amongst them. Following is from Virginian-Pilot April 12: "Last night at a congregational meeting held at the Memorial Christian Temple the building committee of the church presented a report with regard to the need of enlarging the Sunday school building and equipment and it was decided by the congregation to erect an addition to the Sunday school room, which, with equipment, will cost between $6,000 and $7,000. In accordance with this plan a financial canvass will be made of the congregation during this month, when it is expected the whole amount will be pledged. It was decided at the meeting last night that if $2,000 has been paid in cash by July 1 work on the new structure will be begun immediately. The official board of the church at a recent meeting pledged $3,250 toward the new building, which leaves only $3,750 to be pledged by the rest of the congregation. The new addition will be built of brick and will be placed at the South end of the present rooms."

The Philadelphia M. E. Conference received more than 14,000 additions to its churches during the year just ending, largely due to the Billy Sunday meetings.

My Dear Children and Friends:

We had hoped for a good report and a full corner this week, but how disappointed we are that all of our children forgot to write, and so many of our Sunday schools failed to send their monthly offering. We have less than forty dollars to report this week and a family of sixty-four (including helpers) to feed. Did our good friends spend all their money in purchasing Easter hats and nice clothing for themselves, and have nothing left for the support of our orphan children?

And then I am thinking of those faithful and efficient helpers who have labored from early morn till late at night. With love and absorbing interest they have cared for our children. They have more than earned the small salary promised them, and not to pay them promptly is indeed humiliating to your humble servant, the superintendent, who is your representative. But your superintendent can't pay them unless you supply the funds. I hear much about hard times but men still smoke their cigars and boys puff the deadly cigarette. It may be necessary for us to practice economy, but where should we begin? Surely not by withholding our support from the orphan child.

GREENSBORO LETTER

Our work is growing in attendance and interest. We had the largest attendance at Sunday school on March 28 that we have had since I have been here.

The Willing Workers Missionary Class has grown from an enrollment of twelve to sixty-eight. They gave a reception recently in the basement of the church. There were fifty-five present. It was a very enjoyable occasion. Miss Grace Apple has charge of the class. The Mission Study class organized some weeks ago is growing in interest and attendance. One member was received into fellowship on March twenty-first. Rev. S. B. Klapp, Dr. W. C. Wicker and Rev. J. F. Morgan have each worshipped with us recently in our church services. We were glad to see them and to have them with us.

The Young Men's Baraca Class, Bro. S. A. Caveness, teacher, has the largest enrollment in its history. It began some months ago with five members and has now an enrollment of thirty-nine. They gave a reception on April 5th at the church. On the programme were devotional exercises, recitations and speeches. Refreshments were served in three courses. Nearly a hundred people were reported present. It was an enjoyable occasion.

GRAHAM LETTER

Within the last month it has been my privilege to assist in conducting two revivals. The first was with Rev. R. L. Williamson at Bethlehem church in the Valley of Virginia. We begun the meeting here on the night of March 9 and continued for 10 days. It was indeed a pleasure for me to work with my good friend, Bro. Williamson, in a meeting once more. We had not had the privilege of being together since Bro. Williamson left North Carolina, and it was a real joy to be with him. And, too, I was glad to form the acquaintance of Mrs. Williamson and I will never forget the great care taken by Rev. and Mrs. Williamson to make my stay in the Valley a pleasant one. The trip to the Valley was one of the most pleasant I have ever taken, and I am very grateful for the privilege of spending 10 days with the good people of the Bethlehem church. The hospitality shown me by the members of the homes I visited was all that could be expected, and the time for me to leave the Valley came all too soon. It is really hard to leave such good people, but duty called and I had to depart for another field. The meeting was very interesting and there were a number of professions and additions. May the Lord richly bless these good people and their pastor.

The second meeting was in our Christian Orphanage at Elon College. Bro. Cox, our superintendent, conceived the idea of having a meeting conducted in the orphanage in the interest of our orphanage children (and I believe the idea was of the Lord). I was asked to do the preaching. And so the meeting was begun on March 29th, and closed the following Friday night. It was a great pleasure to live in the orphanage with the children these few days, and to speak to them about our Lord who takes us up when our father and mother are taken from us. The meeting was a great spiritual feast to me, and I believe very helpful to the orphanage children. Nearly every member of the orphanage took a stand for Christ. It was indeed a pleasure and a great privilege and blessing to be in this meeting, and I shall always think of the days spent here among the happiest of my life, and I trust they may prove great blessings to our orphanage management and to the children.

After having lived in the orphanage these few days I am able to appreciate the work that is being done there more than ever before. I am pleased with the orphanage work. Bro. Cox and his helpers deserve much praise and honor for the work they are doing. I believe each of them is doing his very best for the orphanage and the children. But they need, and must have a stronger support. The superintendent needs and wants to give more time to the spiritual life of the orphanage, but so much of his time is spent away from the institution that he can't do what he wants to do along this line. I believe the orphanage should be made a real home for the children—a place that they will love, and hold in the sweetest of their memories after they have left the institution. Our superintendent and his helpers are doing all they can to make it such a home, but in order to do so they must have ample support. And I trust our great church will remember that our orphanage is her child, and that God expects us to rear that child in such a way as to honor and glorify Him. Hence let us remember the Orphanage with our love, money and prayers.

On the evening of April 8 we began a special meeting at the Graham Christian church. Rev. Victor Lightbourne is with us, and will assist in this meeting. We are hoping that the Lord will give us a great meeting.

Yours in His Name,
 J. F. MORGAN.

PORTSMOUTH, VA.

The Washington Street Christian Church, Portsmouth, Va., is at the present in a very gratifying condition. During the quarter our Sunday school has increased nearly fifty per cent. in its membership, and the membership of the Young People's Societies has increased from 25 to 62. Our Teacher Training class, which meets every Friday evening, has been attended well and punctually during the entire term. We are studying Oliver's "Preparation for Teaching" and expect to complete the book in June with public exercises and delivery of diplomas. Another gratifying phase of our work is: in spite of the hard times when many of our members are working only on half time and others on no time at all, God has blessed us with willingness and every bill except one of $10 has been paid to April 1. The regular income of the church has not done this, but the aid of the Ladies' Aid Society who know how to do many things, has been the complement. Last Sunday the special Easter Thank offering on the Building Fund was $316. We shall need $406 by the fifteenth of this month to meet the interest due, renew the loan and pay fire insurance. We are expecting an additional offering next Sunday to make the sum complete. We are working hard and will continue that we may make the work here self-sustaining just as soon as possible and thus assist other Home Mission work.

The only thing we realize now to be unsatisfactory is the lack of new-born souls. We are planning to hold a revival beginning with May. We hope this will give the church and Christ glorious results.
 H. E. ROUNTREE, Pastor.

—Rev. Billy Sunday began a campaign in Paterson, New Jersey, March 28.

—According to the bulletin of the United States Census Bureau issued March 20 the cotton crop of 1914 was the largest by far this country has ever produced, the total bales reported being 16,102,143. In value the crop is estimated at $704,000,000 as compared with $911,000,000 for the 1913 crop which was much smaller.

—The Norfolk Virginian-Pilot: "The Third Christian church has grown in membership at such a rapid rate that an enlargement is inevitable. A meeting was recently held by the deacons at which the problem of enlargement was discussed. The church has already been enlarged twice on its present site, and it is feared that a third enlargement will make it look architecturally bad. Another meeting of the deacons will be called shortly and an effort made to solve the problem."

—The esteemed Virginian-Pilot, Norfolk, seems aggrieved that Rev. Billy Sunday should be given and should receive $50,000 for his marvellous evangelistic campaign in Philadelphia; whereas reports say far more than that amount was spent by the bettors and gamblers on the Willard-Johnson prize fight in Cuba the other day and never a word is said by our contemporary about this being too much money. And they tell us that Philadelphia is a different and a far better city since Sunday went there: whereas that man has not arisen to say that any part of the world is better, richer or more wholesome because of a prize fight.

—Every town, village, hamlet and home should appoint and duly observe "clean-up day." The premises accumulate waste, rubbish and debris in spite of you. Uncleanliness is like sin, it is in the air and just pounces down on you. It has to be watched, keenly observed and then abolished. A little fire now and then is a good thing—a fire in the back lot into which is flung the rubbish of the Winter's accumulation. Brush brooms are savory, healthful and wholesome and often save a doctor's bill. Clean up the premises, beloved, and kill the pestiferous house-fly and other disease carrying insects a week or two before they are born. Appoint and observe clean-up day. Health and happiness are in it.

—Dr. Martyn Summerbell writes as follows in the Herald of Gospel Liberty: "My visit this year to Elon College, N. C., extended from January 9 to 14 inclusive. During this time I was royally entertained in the home of President Harper, and also by some of the professors. Every opportunity was offered me to test the feeling of the student body and the condition of the institution. It pleases me much to be able to say that the college is progressive and progressing. At this date it has fifty-three more students than at the same period last year, and this in the face of the general depression in the cotton-producing States. Few others of the Southern colleges have any addition to their former registration, and many of them record a loss. But Elon has other marks of improvement. She has extended the time of her recitations, and otherwise is conforming more to the standard of the best institutions. But, best of all, her religious atmosphere is strong and helpful, and there is a unity of spirit in the faculty and in the student body that is a pleasure to witness. I shall cherish very pleasant remembrances of this last visit to Elon, and put them in the archives along with the others enjoyed before."

OUR DEAD

Barrett

Leonard, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Barrett, was born May 20, 1896, near Walters, Va., in Isle of Wight Co., and departed this life March 31, 1915, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Blanchard in Norfolk, Va., after an illness with pneumonia of but very short duration. Aged 18 years, 10 months and 11 days.

He professed faith in Christ when but nine years of age, joined Mt. Carmel Christian Church at that time and has always been faithful to Christ and the Church, living an exemplary life ever since. He was also a member of the Jr. O. U. A. M.

At the time of his death he was pursuing a course of study at the Southern Shorthand and Business College in Norfolk, Va.

There remain to mourn their loss, his father, many other relatives, and a host of friends. His mother preceded him to the Spirit world just 31 days. X.

Lightfoot

On May 25, 1870, she was married to Jas. E. Lightfoot. To this union were born three daughters and four sons, all of whom survive except one son who died in infancy. She united with the Methodist Episcopal church of Arvona, Va., in 1872, and has ever since that time been a member of that organization. She was a kind and devoted wife and mother and in her last days she expressed her confident hope and faith in her Savior and the departure from this life was one of peace, like one 'lying down to pleasant dreams.'

There remain to mourn their loss, a husband, Mr. Jas. E. Lightfoot; three daughters, Mrs. J. P. Jordan, of Baltimore, Md., Mrs. W. M. Everett, and Mrs. R. Brown, of Roanoke, Va.; three sons, Ira S., Robert C., and Jas. W., all of Norfolk, Va. Besides these relatives, a large circle of friends and acquaintances. X.

CALOMEL DYNAMITES YOUR LIVER! MAKES YOU SICK AND SALIVATES

"Dodson's Liver Tone" Starts Your Liver
Better Than Calomel and You Don't
Lose a Day's Work

Liven up your sluggish liver! Feel fine and cheerful; make your work a pleasure; be vigorous and full of ambition. But take no nasty, dangerous calomel because it makes you sick and you may lose a day's work.

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel crashes into sour bile like dynamite, breaking it up. That's when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. Listen to me! If you want to enjoy the nicest, safest liver and bowel cleansing you ever experienced just take a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone tonight. Your druggist or dealer sells you a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone under my personal money-back guarantee that each spoonful will clean your sluggish liver better than a dose of nasty calomel and that it won't make you sick.

Dodson's Liver Tone is real liver medicine. You'll know it next morning because you will wake up feeling fine, your liver will be working; headache and dizziness gone; stomach will be sweet and bowels regular.

Dodson's Liver Tone is entirely vegetable, therefore harmless and can not salivate. Give it to your children. Millions of people are using Dodson's Liver Tone instead of dangerous calomel now. Your druggist will tell you that the sale of Calomel is almost stopped entirely here.

The Everlasting Arms

This story is told. A young mother sat beside her child on the railway car. The train was dashing along at full and even tilt. Suddenly the mother was seen to bend over, put her hand beneath the child and bring it to her shoulders. Then the child's small arm went around the mother's neck just as the train dashed into a dark and frightful tunnel. But no cry of fear or terror escaped the lips of the child. Mother's arm was underneath and mother's face was warm and near. "The eternal God is thy refuge, and underneath are the everlasting arms." (Deut. 33:27.)

Father and Son

When Hon. William Howard Taft was President of the United States he vetoed the interstate Webb-Kenyon liquor law on the ground that it was unconstitutional, though the act was later passed over the President's veto. Robert Taft, elder son of the ex-President, has an article in the Harvard Law Review in which he stoutly maintains that the law is constitutional. Some time ago, the ex-President wrote an article setting forth the dangers and evils of state-wide prohibition. Recently his second son, Charles, in a debating contest with Syracuse University, vigorously championed state-wide prohibition, showing its great benefits particularly in Maine and Kansas. "For I am come to set a man at variance against his father. * * * And a man's foes shall be they of his own household." (Matt. 10:35, 36.)

Richer and Sweeter

The deaf, dumb and blind wonder, now a scholar, teacher and lecturer, Miss Helen Keller, recently received a gift of a copy of the Bible with raised characters which made the reading easy. She wrote in grateful acknowledgment to the American Bible Society: "I am studying the Bible in college this year, and reading it with a delight that increases from day to day. Life grows richer and heaven nearer as God's great truths unfold themselves to me." In the midst of God's great truths, His beauty, bounty and benevolence, many of us with two good eyes are more blind than this woman who cannot see. "Having eyes, see ye not? and having ears, hear ye not? and do ye not remember?" (Matt. 8:18.)

Feeding the Hungry

A gentleman working in an agricultural Christian college in a province of India writes to an American magazine describing the poverty that prevails in that fertile but fatal land: "More people will lie down hungry tonight in India than live in all North America. More than one-third of that great population of 315,000,000 souls never know, from the cradle to the grave, what it is to have enough to eat. Over 100,000,000 of them live at the rate of one cent per day per capita. Grown men come to me and say, 'I would not care if I could get one good meal in two days.' India's soil is not to blame, neither is her climate, nor her resources. India's moral depravity and religious blindness are to blame. A missionary writes that while the native produces six to eight bushels of wheat he himself on the "missionary farm" produces twenty-five to thirty bushels to the acre. India's soil is fertile, but her religion is sterile. "Wherefore ye shall do my statutes, and keep my judgments, * * * and the land shall yield her fruit, and ye shall eat your fill." (Lev. 25:18, 19.)

Religious Bigotry

A candidate for Mayor of Chicago was elected over his opponent on April 6 by a plurality of over 130,000 votes. This is reported as the largest plurality a candidate for Mayor of that city ever received. The defeated candidate was a Roman Catholic, who in the last days of the campaign appealed to religious prejudice and the members of his own church to stand by him. This appeal was not only in vain, as the returns indicate, but the press declares was a large factor in his unprecedented defeat. It should have been. No man should be elected to any office in a republic simply because of his church or denominational affiliation. The world, our American part of it at any rate, has outgrown religious bigotry, and all sectarian differences, for self-aggrandizement, have been, or should be, done away with. There is no place for mediæval bigotry in modern push, power and progress. The man who will advance his church affiliation for political preferment deserves ignominious defeat always.

Permanent and Abiding

Amid the rush and worry, the work and the hurry, it is refreshing and invigorating to look upon that which is permanent and abiding. President Wilson was invited to address a convention of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, the other day: "I feel that I am looking in the faces of men and women who are not interested in the temporary, but in the permanent things, things that are good for the healing of all the nations. This is not a council healing of all the nations. This is not a council of peace, not to form plans of peace, but to proclaim the single supreme plan of peace, the revelation of our Lord Jesus Christ; because wars will never have any ending until men cease to hate one another, cease to be jealous of one another, get that feeling of reality in the brotherhood of mankind which is the only bond that can make us think justly of one another, and act righteously before God himself. I look upon bodies like yours as the stabilizers of the nation." Political conventions are stirred by oratory, emotion, sentiment, prejudice, passion; literary councils are moved by eloquence, culture, scholarship; and these in turn pour their currents of energy, activity and momentum into society. But that which affects society to its depths, influences it from top to bottom, gives it permanency and power, is that spirit among men which looks upon the unseen and the invisible things and interprets them to our mortal tongue and touch. "For the things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are not seen are eternal." (2 Cor. 4:18.)

The Church

We sometimes fear for the Church. Empty pews are pictured, pastorless pulpits are painted, indifferent members are magnified. But there is another side. The Church was never more modern, aggressive, ingenious than it is today. Outside of the Church there were never so many agencies seeking to boost and popularize it as an agency for good. These agencies one finds everywhere. Not the least significant is the secular press, the daily paper with its notices, its features and its appeals. Recently the New York Tribune has adopted the policy of devoting one quarter of a page each Saturday to the promotion of church attendance among its readers on Sunday. It made an appeal to its Sunday golf-players the other Saturday, to take enough time on the Sabbath for at least one service: "You believe in God, yet you neglect Him. One short hour of the morning to spend in worship of God is such a small amount of time out of the whole week. And, yet, that hour will be well spent in church—well spent, perhaps, in the fact that you may be depriving yourself for that time of some other thing you would prefer to do. $It is mighty good for you to deprive yourself sometimes. That hour will be well spent in church, mainly, because it will tend to keep you spiritually in condition—morally fit—just as your golf tends toward keeping you physically well during the coming week. So—play your golf, but—go to church tomorrow!" That is not such a high motive to assign, but it counts. When all is said and done the historical fact remains that the Church is the mightiest force and factor for truth, rest and righteousness in all the world. "Upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." (Matt. 16:18.)

—Since April 1 when the anti-jug law went into effect they say that express offices in some of the towns loko like deserted halls. There is a vast difference between getting one quart in two weeks to a gallon at will. If the present law is enforced it should avail much for decency and sobriety in this State.

THE CHALLENGE OF CONSCIENCE

If a Church has a conscience, and we suppose it has, there must be stinging remorse to that of our dear Christian Church when it is recalled what we are not doing for missions.

Here is a great world movement; the churches and powers of Christendom are taking part. It is a movement the like of which was never witnessed before. A smaller part of the earth's population has become alarmed for the moral betterment, and the spiritual salvation of the larger part of the population. To that end great orators are moving the multitudes, profound scholars are writing their best books, and millions of money are being contributed. Great facts are stirring great churches, great souls, great bodies, to great undertakings for God.

But amid all this great upheaval, our good Christian Church seems not to be moved, stirred or agitated. We maintain an awkward and dogged determination not to be disturbed by the call, and the voice of God resounding in thunderous tones in our ears. Hear something of this call:

At every breath we draw four souls perish, never having had an opportunity to hear of Christ. Do we not care that our brothers beyond the sea, as near and as dear to God as we are, perish without God and without hope?

In a Japanese population of more than forty million, the average number of souls to one missionary for instruction in the way of salvation, is one hundred thousand.

The children of India walking four abreast and two feet apart would make a procession 5,000 miles long; and yet not one in twenty of those children have ever heard, nor are they likely to ever hear, of the name of Him who said, "Suffer the little children to come unto me and forbid them not." Do we not care that these miles and hundreds of miles of little ones perish, even as swarms of flies or insects? The good Book says: "It is not your Father's will that any of these little ones should perish." And yet they are perishing.

In America we have one minister for every 514 souls, and our theological seminaries are thronged with others in preparation for the pulpit. Abroad there is but one minister for every 174,000 souls, and about 98 out of every hundred students are preparing for work at home. Do we not care that there are three hundred and thirty-eight to be ministered to abroad to every one to be ministered to at home in proportion to the number of ministers?

We live in a Christian country, a land in which the gospel has been preached from its earliest settlement by the white man down to this good hour; yet for every missionary we send abroad we hold seventy-six at home.

Do we not care that while we of America have one Protestant minister for every 514 souls, and one Christian worker for every seventy-five of our population, South America has one ordained missionary for every 154,000 people; Africa and India one for every 186,000; and China one for every 603,000? Is there no compunction of conscience amongst us that such a condition as this obtains? Do we not care that we spend in the United States $158,000,000 a year on our churches, and send only $8,000,000 abroad to reach the great unreached masses for Christ? We spend 94c. in America on our home church for every six cents that we give for the evangelization of the world.

Here are topics worthy of giant brains, great wisdom and untiring effort. It is painful to contemplate the pittance we are putting into this divine scheme of things. Our Christian church crawls along at snail's pace in progress and development. Her principles are not at fault. Her polity cannot be questioned. Her mission cannot be disputed. Her creed cannot be overthrown. Her attitude toward foreign missions, her indifference to God's repeated call and constant challenge to our conscience, can alone be assigned as the cause of our slow growth and unsteady development.

God cannot prosper a non-missionary people and keep His word. He never has. He never will, not even making an exception for a people with heaven-born principles and a holy mission.

SELF-MADE MEN

There are not any. It is a misnomer. A self-made man would be a monstrosity. The term is used in common speech to designate one who has come to usefulness and influence from poverty and ignorance. How such a term ever acquired such a meaning is a mystery. There never has been a self-made man.

Poverty is no crime. It is often a stimulant to stir energetic souls to zeal, effort, activity. Poverty is no goal to be striven for, nor prize to be won; but it is a condition which, many finding themselves in, has awakened the best in them, and called forth their manly and heroic powers to overcome and resist. A man is not self-made because he has arisen from poverty to wealth. He is God-made, provided he made his money honestly and spends it righteously. The self-made man were more properly called the God-made man.

It is God who supplies the strength, wisdom, resource, by which one is lifted from a lower to a higher, a poorer to a richer estate.

Ignorance is not a sin. It often supplies a condition of which one becomes ashamed, and over which one becomes determined, by God's help, to triumph. It is a lever that some use to prize and push themselves up with. But God supplies the power, the knowledge, the sources of learning by which one goes upward and forward. Your God-made man is one who takes God into account, regards his surrounding, of whatever nature, as assets, and by divine strength goes on to usefulness, influence and power.

There are no self-made men. There are many, very many God-made men, and these are really worth while in the world, and count for much.

NOTES AND PERSONALS

—The sum taken in at the gate for the Johnson-Willard prize fight in Havana, Cuba, was $110,000. Immediately after the contest the Cuban legislature passed a bill prohibiting all future boxing contests. One was too many, and a disgrace to any State.

—Col. A. B. Andrews, First Vice-President of the Southern Railway, died at his home in Raleigh Saturday evening, April 17, at the age of 74 years. Col. Andrews was one of the most able and efficient railway managers and executors in the South. By talent, character and merit he rose from the humbler walks of life to a position of great usefulness and responsibility. He was without college training himself, but aided, from his private purse, many a boy to go to college, and as a Trustee of the University helped to shape the educational policy of the State.

—The Waverly, Va., Dispatch carried an elaborate account of the Easter services in the Waverly Christian Church, noting among other items that "The large auditorium of the Waverly Christian church was filled on Sunday morning by those who attended the Easter service at that church. The pastor, Rev. Jas. L. Foster, announced as his subject, "Self Examination," and delivered a short, earnest, and forceful sermon which held the closest attention of his large audience. The doors of the church were opened and several new members were received. The musical program published in full in our last issue was most beautifully rendered with the exception of the anthem, "Christ the Lord is Risen Today," which was omitted on account of the absence of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Cox. The sacred cantata, The Conquering King, would have done credit to professional choir singers. Waverly orchestra under the leadership of E. J. Mace added much to the rendition of the cantata. The thanks of the church are tendered to the members of the orchestra for their assistance, and the church is indebted to each member of the choir, especially choir master John F. Baird, and his able assistant, Mrs. J. L. Foster, for faithful service."

—Greensboro Daily News, April 20: "Graham, April 19.—The service held at the court house Sunday evening at 7:45, brought to a close the 10 days' revival that started out to be the regular annual meeting of the Christian church. When J. F. Morgan, pastor of the Christian church, announced that Rev. Victor Lightbourne would conduct the annual meeting this Spring, it meant nothing more to the people of Graham than it had always meant. At the first service that was held the regular congregation of the Christian church and a few outsiders heard Mr. Lightbourne. Those present were delighted and told others, and each night the congregation grew until the church would not accommodate them. The services were then moved to the courthouse, and with every night the crowd was larger until standing room was at a premium and the last night every available space was filled and scores of people were turned away. Not for many years has Graham had such a revival. What promised to be a denominational meeting resulted in the most complete non-denominational meeting Graham has ever known. And it was not only a Graham meeting, for crowds flocked in from Burlington, Elon College, Haw River, Swepsonville and all the surrounding country to hear this great servant of God. And they got what they came for. There were upwards of 100 converts as the result of Mr. Lightbourne's efforts, while nearly all Christians present consecrated themselves to the service of God. Mrs. Lightbourne was present and greatly helped the meeting with her singing."

ELON COLLEGE BULLETIN.

(THEOLOGICAL DEPARTMENT NUMBER.)

I have received and examined with deep interest the Theological Department Number of Elon College Bulletin. It is well prepared and gotten out in good form. It presents the matter under consideration concisely and yet very pointedly and plainly.

Its Dedication and Introductory Words; and the chapters on the Theological Department Fund; History of Elon College; What an Experienced Newspaper Correspondent says of Elon; What has Elon Done for the South? The Elon Spirit; Songs; The Educational Equipment of the Ministry; A Call to the Ministry; and a Final Word are replete with interest, information, and definite plans and purposes for the inauguration, establishment, and maintenance of a department at and in Elon College where our ministers may be trained for the gospel ministry, in a definite and special way.

I bespeak for the Theological Department a hearty and generous response. We need the department and we can have it. The Southern Christian Convention has spoken, giving its endorsement and it has taken definite steps looking to its establishment at an early date. In the establishment of such a department, one of the great things, I believe, which brought Elon College into existence and that has helped to maintain it—that of educating the ministry, not only in a general way but specifically—will be realized; and I believe great good will come to the church as a church and to Elon College as a College.

It is even now time to begin to plan for the observance of "Christian Education Day" as authorized by the Southern Christian Convention to be held in May or June as the "pastor may elect."

Manson, N. C., April 13, 1915.

Dear Brother Winston:

Mount Auburn Church pledges itself to be one of one hundred to give ten dollars to enlarge THE CHRISTIAN SUN. I am going to try to get them to give this amount whether you get the one hundred or enlarge the paper.

I think the church ought to stand by you in this great financial strain the publishing house is undergoing. Best wishes. Sincerely,

J. A. KIMBALL.

The above is a letter from Brother Kimball, Mt. Auburn church. If only one-half of the churches in the Southern Christian Convention would do likewise the paper would be going at its former size. There are 214 churches in the Southern Christian Convention. Are we going to let a little thing, getting 100 pledges, fail? No, we must not let it fail.

Every Sunday school secretary will receive a letter this week calling for his school's support. Help him out Sunday, the 25th of this month, and tell him to inform the Circulation Manager of THE CHRISTIAN SUN that your Sunday school and church will pledge itself for one pledge, $10.

We all want to help in this movement and we want the money invested to count for its full value, hence we will send in our pledge without further delay and expense to the cause in trying to secure the needed pledges. We are still looking for an answer from some that have not responded.

SUFFOLK LETTER

"College Men Without Money," a book of nearly 300 pages, containing contributions from more than 50 persons, and published in 1914 by C. B. Riddle, of Elon College, is a valuable addition to the library of this book age.

It tells how young men have gone to college, studied through the course, and received their diplomas by their own efforts. It has special value for young men who aspire to collegiate education, and yet do not see their way to go to college, because they have no money and their parents have no money to spare for college education.

I understand the book has had a wide sale; and it deserves still wider distribution and reading.

The author, or compiler, of the book is himself a student in college working his way, and this experience suggested the book. The world owes much of its best to what seemed misfortune. Pilgrim's Progress came out of Bedford jail. Poverty has produced many a great scholar. In this age and in this country any young man can get an education if he is willing "to labor and to wait." There never was such opportunity, not only to get education, but to use it. The multiplicity of occupations increases the demand for educated people; and every new invention and every new enterprise increases this demand.

Suffolk is looking forward to the coming of Rev. Victor Lightbourne on the first Sunday in May to conduct a meeting for us. We have heard so much of his work that we are expecting a great time and great results. The meeting will open on May 2nd and probably last two weeks including three Sundays; though we set no time to close. If interest justifies, we may run longer. It has been four years since we held a meeting, and a goodly number in the Sunday school are old enough to decide this great question. Usually in such meetings we have a good ingathering from the Sunday school.

We have twenty-five applications for membership now and will arrange to receive them next Sunday.

Our Sunday school is increasing in numbers and efficiency. The teachers give more study to the lessons than ever before and take more interest in souls. This indicates improvement in the spiritual life of the church and of the community.

Rev. Stanley C. Harrell, who is pastor at Bethlehem, preached for us last night and gave us a good sermon on "Why God's People Suffer" from Judges 6:13.

ELON COLLEGE NOTES

The weather the past week was lovely in the extreme and the sick of the village improved. Dr. Herndon shows signs of recovery, Mrs. Winston is much better, and practically every one else is able to be about his usual duties.

Dr. Lawrence, in Greensboro, is very much better, and the outlook is that he will be a stronger man physically when he is well than he has been for the past several years. This is certainly encouraging news for his host of friends.

Mrs. M. A. Atkinson has so far recovered from her recent illness that she returned to her home from Raleigh, where she had been undergoing special treatment, on Thursday.

Mrs. Brannock contracted pneumonia when visiting her parents in Mebane last week and is quite ill there. Her mother, Mrs. N. D. York, is suffering from the same disease. It is hoped that their condition will soon be more favorable. Prof. Brannock is by their bedside.

Dr. Newman preached the baccalaureate sermon at the Knap of Reeds High School on Sunday. Rev. R. P. Crumpler is principal of the school.

The Dramatic Class is to give a play on the 20th. The Senior Contest for places at Commencement is to occur on Wednesday evening. On the 29th the pupils of Misses Barnes and Davidson will give their Spring term recital.

Dr. Randolph gave a stereopticon lecture on Saturday evening. His subject was Health and Sanitation. He is to represent Elon at the inauguration of Pres. E. K. Graham of the University of North Carolina on Wednesday.

The Y. W. C. A. is taking great interest in beautifying the campus. Flowers are being planted around the West Dormitory and Ladies' Hall and along the front walks leading to these buildings.

The entire College community was saddened on last Wednesday when it was learned that Miss Viola Frazier, Elkton, Va., Class of 1913, had fallen on sleep. She was a most beautiful Christian character and her life promised abundant usefulness.

The annual oratorical contest of the Philologist Literary Society was held in the Society Hall on Friday night last. Drs. Atkinson, Amick and Randolph judged. Messrs. B. M. Williams, John G. Truitt, W. L. Maness, and J. L. Crumpton delivered orations. Mr. Crumpton was awarded the medal.

The College Annual, the Phipps, is just from the press. It is a splendid production, highly creditable, and indicative in its make-up of that spirit of progress and good-fellowship so characteristic of the College it undertakes to represent and depict.

President Fairfax Harrison, of the Southern Railway, is to deliver the literary address at the approaching Commencement. Pres. Harrison is not only a great captain of industry, but a thinker of broad grasp and an orator of excellent gifts. He will be heard with great satisfaction.

The College welcomed as visitors the past week: Rev. W. G. Clements, Morrisville, N. C.; Mr. L. D. Rippy and family, Altamahaw, N. C.; Mr. L. H. Aldridge and family, Union Ridge, N. C.; Mrs. R. L. Walker, Newton, N. C.; Mr. John T. Moffitt, Asheboro, N. C.; Mrs. H. C. Siddle, Ruffin, N. C.

Mrs. A. V. Lightbourne is to go to Dover, Del., this week, where she will visit until Rev. Victor Lightbourne, her husband, begins his series of meetings in Suffolk. She will join him there and assist in the meeting.

The Publishing House directors declined the offer to move the plant to Burlington. They ordered an office opened in that city and a more aggressive field campaign for job work on the part of the Business Manager. Friends ought to try our house. It does splendid work.

The services Sunday were of a high order. The sermon was especially appropriate. A very enjoyable prayer service by the Christian Endeavor Society crowned befittingly a splendid day.

VALLEY LETTER.

We have had a right long hard Winter here which has hindered our church work somewhat. However, with the return of spring congregations have increased, and there are signs of interest and activity in some quarters. Antioch, Mayland, Woods' Chapel, Palmyra, Joppa, Dry Run, Mt. Olivet (R), Bethel, and Beulah have recently reorganized their Sunday schools which had gone into winter quarters. New Hope continued their Sunday school during the winter and have recently organized a Christian Endeavor Society which is starting off very encouragingly. Palmyra has also organized a Christian Endeavor Society or will organize in the near future. Mayland has recently improved the church by putting on a new roof.

In addition to the above named churches I am also preaching at Whistler's Chapel. They seem glad for regular service although I can preach for them only on a week night each month. A similar arrangement also pertains to Woods' Chapel, Mt. Olivet (R) and Bethel.

Our Sunday school and Christian Endeavor Convention meets at New Hope near Harrisburg May 12-14. An interesting program has been arranged and a pleasant and profitable time is anticipated. All our Sunday schools and Christian Endeavor Societies should be represented. These conventions are a great help and inspiration to our work, and our people should make large use of them.

THE DYNAMICS OF MISSIONS.

BY REV. MILO T. MORRILL, D. D., FOREIGN MISSIONS SECRETARY, DAYTON, O.

Perhaps none of our interrogations are so baffling as those we introduce by "why." Our inquiries of "what," "how," "when," and "where" are less often eluded, because they fall more within the scope of knowable things. "Why" marks many doorways to Omniscent thinking. To find an answer would oftentimes be to think equal to Him whose thoughts are higher than our thoughts.

The ardent missionary seems almost to be tethered to the "whys" questioning the relation of the church to missions. He is always feeling that there is a great factor behind it all, which has not yet been brought into full activity. Again and again he comes back to his questionings:

Why has the heart of Christ been denied His fondest yearning through the centuries?

Why has there been wanting, until recently, a statesmanship in the church adequate to the requirements of world missions?

Why such a universal tardiness of response, so disproportionate to the urgency of the missionary call?

Why have incidentals of missionary management kept us strangers to a burning passion for the world's redemption?

Why has the size of missionary giving been the shame, instead of the glory of the church?

Why has there been in most congregations such an appalling dearth of prayer for missions?

Why have not our well-devised schemes of finance, instruction, and organization borne earlier and greater returns?

Why must our every field suffer such harassing embarrassments from the inadequacy of workers?

Why have we so little keen and pungent sense of personal responsibility for missions?

An answer to these questions will be equally pertinent to similar negative phases of our home-land work. Shall we look for reasons, or for a reason? I am of the opinion that all of these questions source to a central cause. If we can get our corrective at the center, we shall have eliminated most phases of one great cause.

The interminable perplexities of the church and her want of forcefulness have trite illustration in a recent experience: Not long ago I was a passenger on an electric line, in a car of down-to-the-minute equipment. Suddenly as we rolled along, the lights of the car died into the semi-darkness of twilight. The car ran on for a bit on sheer momentum, and then stopped, sullen and inert. All the peevish criticism and insistent nagging of passengers did not stir it into activity. The motorman's laconic explanation was "Power's off." The car was not self propelling and therefore wholly dependent upon outside power, and for that dynamic potency there was no substitute. The genius for equipping cars might have been multiplied a thousand fold, but in all of it there would not have been one atom of substitute for electrical energy. A more artistic car, or a less resisting roadbed would not have put motion into the silent wheels. All of the mechanical precision studied into her construction was motionless by the roadside for the want of that marvelous, all-determining power.

That car ought to be climbing a hill miles beyond, but she could not for want of power. She should, ere this, have delivered many to their destination, whom she had not as yet even taken on. They longed in vain for her coming, because she had no power. Others, who were aboard, should have been at work far on ahead; instead they lounged in ennui, for absence of power. Her cash should have been recording an income of many dollars which were not being received because the power was off. If power were never more to come there or anywhere, the value of that car was determined by the current price of junk.

Her powerlessness made her defeat the purpose of the one who started her, and disappointment both those who trusted her enough to enter and those whom she was scheduled to reach. True, a few men might have pushed her on a little way, but that would not get her anywhere worth mentioning.

Those who were in her might have discussed very learnedly whether she should have more wheels, or less wheels; whether her track should be broader, or narrower; whether her windows should permit a more extended view, or be kept so small that no one could possibly fall out while looking; whether they should tack more "safety first" signs around, or take down some which were needlessly alarming the traveling public; whether passengers paid as much fare as they ought, or better equipment was gotten on other lines for less money. If the passengers desired to amuse themselves in this way, certainly it was their privilege, but at the end of the discussion of all of these subjects the car would be in the same place, unless the power came. Without the assurance of coming power the whole discussion would have been insignificance accentuated.

We looked at the dark grey evening sameness all around—no different before or behind. No beckoning track was discernable before us. No illumination enabled us to see about us. We could get no perspective, except of an unreachable distant sky line. Finally, as suddenly as it had departed, the light in the bulbs above us flashed. We knew that the power had returned, for without the power there could have been no light. Our headlight, now vibrant with light, revealed two unmistakable silvery streaks of steel far ahead, on which there were no obstacles to progress. The motorman hastened to his controller, opened the machinery to the current, and the car darted forward to progress and destination. The power had come.

We learned the next day that the interruption was due to a broken transmission connection. The generating source at the power house was at fault. The supply had not been diminished, but both car and generating source were mutually dependent upon an open and uninterrupted channel. No matter what necessities of art or precision of skill were built into that car, it was functionless when disconnected and alone. Even the power, so immeasurably powerful, was shut off from the propulsion of all but connected machinery.

The church, like that car, is often found by the roadside of progress in powerful inertia. Her numbers inside are held from activities demanding them. Many outside, throughout the world, sufferingly await the unriveted church. Her cash registers only a fraction of what fit should. Her vision is indistinct. The way ahead is enveloped in darkness. The Lord, whose expectancy in her is large, must be disappointed at her stationary habits many times. The most of her discussions have no meaning at all, unless in her ecclesiastical mechanism there is the investment of the power from God.

The great regulative norm of Christian missions is not a thought, a financial plan, or a denominational ambition. It is feeling within ourselves a degree of the same passion which was and is in the heart of Christ. There can be no ambition where there is no holy passion. There can be no successful plan without an eagerness to do. I fear we have talked vision many times when we should have talked passion. Vision has been an overworked word and an underworked fact, because our souls have been dead and passionless while we have talked it. Vision triumphant is vision impassioned. If we were dominated by a real love and eagerness to do, I fear we have talked vision realized unto us, His Kingdom would soon come. What we most need is Christ, then we will understand his heart. We will share his love and have personal part in the ambitions of his soul. The extension of His Kingdom will no longer be our "duty," it will be our very life. Our meat will be to do the will of Him that sent us. The unquenchable eagerness of our hearts will be satisfied with nothing less than all that we can do.

We have pleaded for finances and indulged veiled accusations of niggardliness because they were not forthcoming. We have exhausted our vocabularies in finding words and plans to pull money from half-willing donors. Is not all of this eloquent of a deeper neglect—the creation and conservation of a heart impulse sufficient to inspire the performance of such duties? Missionary information can scarcely be given too much emphasis, but it must be transformed into missionary passion if it accomplishes anything. We shall not gather largely where we have not strayed.

When Jesus came to His ascension, He had doubtless done for his disciples all that He could have done. In parting He added no word of further teaching. He elaborated no truth which He had formerly given them. Yet, He did imply that they still lacked something. They should tarry for power. Not human power, nor intellectual power, nor power of method, but the power of God through the Holy Spirit. Then they they could go out and teach. The great difference in the disciples before and after Pentecost was the difference in their own heart experience. They tarried and established a connection with the central source of current of supply through prayer. Then when power and passion came currenting back through them, what men they were.

I would not advocate the abandonment of any system by which we are operating. We must have plan and system, but there must be power behind them or they will be a delusion. We shall never accomplish by devices what can come only from waiting upon God. All of our ways center in Him and we shall find our way by learning His. Our machinery must have motor power. The task to be done must be supplemented by a love to do it. A real heart desire for Christian missions will be subsequent to having felt the impressing passion of Christ. Enlargement of gift will come from the expansion of the soul which measures it. Expansion and empowerment of soul cannot be independent of communion with God. Wherever the connection through prayer is broken there will be denied power and meaningless machinery.

Only God can measure the validity of prayer. Does it not seem, however, that if all prayer had been real, our church members would have been converted to the support of missions, and the missionary fields mostly converted to Christ long ago? Does the modern church need anything more than a replaced emphasis on the fact that prayer is a real force? Prayer is power-infusing, service-discerning and way-finding. It fits a medium through which things are accomplished. God is just within the unseen. Our prayers speak across to Him and He responds with the omnipotence of former days undiminished. Any

David and Goliath.—1 Sam. 17:1-54.
Golden Text.—If God be for us, who can be against us?—Rom. 8:31.

Following the anointing of David for king we learn that he became acquainted with Saul, being called because of his qualities and ability to perform on the harp.

In the meantime the Philistines were gathering an army to defeat the Israelites; they being angry on account of their unique defeat by Jonathan and his armor bearer.

Too, the armies of Israel were mobilized and three of David's brothers were enlisted. David was kept to tend the flocks.

As was the custom of some of the armies of the east one of the number challenged one of the opposing army and the result was settled accordingly. Goliath was the challenger on the Philistines' side and he, by his physical greatness, frightened every prospective challenger from the army of Israel. Every day the giant Goliath appeared and gave the challenge with sneering remarks and boastful exclamations. No one dared to fight such a giant. As Goliath appeared before the army of the Israelites he was greater than any of their men in stature, but still added to this mass of corrupt flesh was a complete armor, covering the giant's whole body—it seemed an impossibility to defeat him.

In life how many giants do we meet? How many are looking us in the face and daring us to even come near? How about the giant Ingratitude; does he stalk around your door? The giant Dishonesty; are you made his servant? Has giant Lust captured you? Do you let these and other giants defy you time and again?

David is fortunately sent with some bread to the army and he hears the circumstances and learns of the reward for the victor of this monster. Saul gives him his armor. This would not do. It was not David's armor and David could not wear another man's armor and be successful. Neither can you wear another man's armor and get the best that there is in life. You must win the fight, wearing your own apparel; wearing your character, fighting with your hands and weapons. David won with the weapons he had tried. David had the courage and believed fully in the living God and went forth with all his might expecting to win the victory. We must learn to do by doing. Learn to overcome Goliaths by overcoming them.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR, APRIL 25

The Bible, the World's Supreme Book.
 —Deut. 6:1-9.

The leader of this meeting in giving remarks should give most of the time to the Bible as being a long-lived book. The leader should review some of its contents and show the similarity and the dissimilarity of the Bible and kindred books. The Bible is a book that contains truths which have stood the tests of centuries while no other book has such a record. Too, the Bible is today an "up-to-date" volume and carries the very latest findings and principles that we use in daily life. Compare this with, for examples, a volume on psychology, logic or a treatise on science produced in the eighteenth century. These volumes are forgotten and new ones take their place and are being improved upon every day by some new discovery. Yet the Bible has never been changed materially since it was given to the world by inspired writers. This fact itself gives great strength to the worth of Holy Writ.

Science has taken a very different trend from what it was a quarter of a century ago. Instead of trying to prove statements in the Bible to the contrary science now recognizes the value of the Book of books and is seeking to corroborate the facts as given. It is interesting to know that the world is increasing in knowledge faster than in previous centuries. The reason given for this is that leading thinkers have for their guidance the Holy Scriptures. Daily they consult them and there find inspiration that can be had nowhere else. The teachings and principles laid down by the great teacher, Jesus Christ, and Paul, together with the laws of Moses, have stood the rigid tests and criticisms for ages and still stand out supreme.

Suggested Plans for the Meeting

Have Bibles distributed to each member that did not bring a Bible and have passages which are rich in thought, yet somewhat unfamiliar read in the meeting and have comments thereon.

Have some member to speak on the poetry of the Bible; another on the history that it contains; another on the prose and style; and other phases which the leader can mention to make the meeting count.

Also a member should be prepared on what we should read concerning the Bible; that is, commentaries, tracts, and kindred literature.

Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Department

This Department is edited by Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., assisted by other members of the Board, to whom all items of Missionary interest and matter for the Department should be sent.

A MISSIONARY HOME DEPARTMENT CATECHISM

Question.—What is the Missionary Home Department?

Answer.—It is a plan by which the Missionary Society seeks to carry missionary information to persons who cannot, or will not, attend the meetings of the society.

Ques.—Who cannot, or will not, attend the meetings?

Ans.—Those who cannot are the aged, the invalids, the mothers with small children, the business and professional women; those who will not are the persons who do not believe in missions, and those who are not interested.

Ques.—Who is to have charge of the Home Department Work?

Ans.—The Literature Superintendent of the Missionary Society. (She may have assistants if necessary.) She will enroll the names, carry missionary books and leaflets to the members occasionally; and sometimes take them helpful papers and letters which have been read at the meetings. Each member should be supplied with a mite-box.

Ques.—How will you get people to join the Home Department?

Ans.—Go after them. Have a systematic canvass of the congregation.

Ques.—What are the membership dues?

Ans.—There are none.

Ques.—Why have a Missionary Home Department? Is not the Sunday School Home Department sufficient?

Ans.—The Sunday school does not give information about the missionary activities of our own church, or any other; the Sunday school Home Department does not fill the place of the Missionary Home Department any more than the Sunday school fills the place of the Missionary Society.

Ques.—Will not this department cause some persons to say, "We have too many organizations in the church?"

Ans.—This is not an organization, any more than the Cradle Roll is an organization. It is simply a part of the work of the Missionary Society.

Ques.—Does the Missionary Society need a Home Department?

Ans.—Yes. It opens up a new field of work for the society; it often brings new active members into the society; it helps to spread missionary education and enthusiasm.

Ques.—When should the Literature Superintendent report her work for this department?

Ans.—At the same time that she reports her other work, either quarterly or annually, as her society may require. An annual report should be sent to the Literature Superintendent of her Conference Woman's Board. The Conference Literature Superintendent should send an annual report of this work to the General Literature Superintendent.—Selected.

THE TREASURY OF PRAYER

II Thessalonians 3:1: "Pray for us, that the word of the Lord may run and be glorified." And so it is that the people of one talent can help the men endowed with ten. They can be fellow-laborers in a common crusade. The slave Onesimus can cooperate with the Apostle of the Gentiles. Obscure folk can be in the mighty fellowship of the great. By prayer I can have a share in the work of the preacher, and help to wing his words with the mysterious power of the Holy Ghost. By prayer, I can visit the lonely missionary, and even though I remain at home I, too, can be a worker on the foreign field. By prayer, I can visit thrones, I can sit in cabinets with statesmen, I can go into the editorial office, and influence the articles in the daily press.

What a privilege, then, is mine, and also what a solemn duty! And how little and rarely I use my power! If there had been committed to me a mysterious influence over men's bodies, by which I could impart strength to those who are weak and faint, and I only indifferently used the power, how great would be my condemnation! But a much more precious gift is mine. I can be the strengthener of men's souls. And with this gift I am free from the limitations of space, for in a moment I can cross continents and seas, and carry resource, by the grace of God, to his servants in the remotest parts of the earth.

Then be up, my soul, and use thy wonderful power! Make thy journeys round the planet, helping the servants of the Lord, enriching their minds and hearts, and giving to men and women in every clime surprises of inspiration.—Selected.

process that will bring God into all that we have will meet the greatest need of the church today.

Brethren, let's to our closets, there to stay until we feel Christ within us. Then we can feel with Him what He feels for the world. By this plan we will put the dynamics of heaven into our planning, our giving, and our working.

Dear Friends:

Our Corner looks better and we feel better this week. Now let us have more letters and more offerings that we may continue to feel good and look happy.

It was our good fortune to attend the Tri-State Orphanage Workers' Conference which met in Yorkville, S. C., on last Tuesday and Wednesday. This Conference is composed of the orphanage workers of the three States, North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia, but they are so helpful that they attract orphanage workers from other States. We had visitors this time from Virginia, Alabama and Texas. It was a great gathering. Only wish all of our friends could have shared it with us. Met these noble and consecrated Christian men and women who are giving themselves to the great task of caring for our orphan children. If our entire church could catch the vision, all of the necessary funds would be quickly supplied and our orphan children saved for the future church and state. But "where there is no vision the people perish."

Thousands of talented orphau children are perishing today because we haven't a clear conception of their worth.

Franklin, Va., April 6, 1915.

Dear Uncle Jim:—I enclose the offering from the Bright Jewels S. S. class of Franklin Christian church. We are so glad you are coming to see us next Sunday. We hope it will be a good day so all our boys and girls can see you. Mrs. Williams, our S. S. teacher, has not been able to come to teach us for several Sundays on account of the sickness of her daughter, Mary Lee, who is the treasurer of our class of Bright Jewels. With love,

Holland, Va., April 2, 1915.

Dear Uncle Jim:—Enclosed you will find a two dollar cheque as an Easter offering for the Orphanage.

Your nephew,
Ike H. Luke.

Zuni, Va., April 9, 1915.

Dear Uncle Jim:—Spring is here and I hope the children are enjoying the warm days. I won't say much, as space is precious. Enclosed find 50 cents to pay my dues for April, May and June. Grandma gave me this.

Lovingly,
Annie Lee Bowden.

Suffolk, Va., April 8, 1915.

Dear Uncle Jim:—I appreciate the picture of the Orphanage family very much. I know you must have a hard time to look after them. We had Easter service at the church first Sunday. Did you have a service? Love to all.

Carrah Lee Pierce.

Henderson, N. C., April 12, 1915.

Dear Uncle Jim:—It is such pretty weather now I hope it will drive away the gripe and that every one will feel good. We were sorry to see the Easter snow, for it broke up our S. S. picnic and egg hunt, and we were thinking we would see you and have you tell us something about the Orphanage family, but we hope to have it some time yet. Enclosed find my dime, with love to all.

Lovingly,
Virginia Pearl Ayscue.

Clayton, N. C., April 12, 1915.

Dear Uncle Jim:—Here I come with my dime for April. I am well and have a fine time playing in the sunshine. I like to sit on the porch and look at mother's little chickens and ducks. She has 55 chicks and 10 ducks. Did you and the cousins enjoy Easter? We had a deep snow. I don't know whether you can read this letter or not, for sister Lizzie writes it and she is only 11 years old. I will close for this time.

Lovingly,
Ashley Breedlove.

Liberty, N. C., April 13, 1915.

Dear Uncle Jim:—Here I come with my dime for April. Well, I guess the children had a very nice Easter eating eggs. I had a merry good time. There was snow on the ground, but my father and I went to Sunday school, but there were only three there and we had Sunday school all right. And I hope the cousins went to church and had a good time. My mama has about nineteen little chicks now and hopes to have some more soon. I like to play with chicks and have pets. Enclosed find my dime, with love.

—Our faithful brother, Rev. J. W. Holt, Burlington, N. C., writes as follows: "I think there is a mind to work in my field, and I am hoping for greater activity in the Master's field this year. I am trying to awaken a deeper interest and to wage a good warfare in winning souls."

—Of the revival now in progress with the Main Street Christian church, Berkley, Va., Rev. L. F. Johnson, D. D., pastor, the Virginian-Pilot of April 18 said: "The revival of the First Christian church is increasing in interest at every service. The sermon of Rev. George D. Eastes on the power of the Holy Spirit made a great impression on his hearers. The minister claims that the church of the twentieth century is depending too much on organization, culture, education and entertainment, and not enough on the Holy Spirit. There will be three full services today at 11 a. m. and 3:30 p. m. and 8 p. m. Rev. George D. Eastes will preach at 3:30 on the subject, 'The Power of a Transformed Life.' Services every day and night this week."

—THE SUN's editor has been so unwell for more than two weeks that he could hardly hold his head up, and so has spent most of the time in bed. Now to add to his troubles comes a letter from Dr. W. W. Staley: "I carried a friend fishing yesterday and he caught a chub that weighed 3 1-2 pounds." Once upon a time there was a man whom the gods—so tradition says—wanted to punish very and exceedingly severely. So they gave him a ravenous appetite, made him insatiably hungry, and then bound him hand and foot just in sight of a table loaded down with all things good to eat. But never one mouthful could the poor, starving fellow reach. That man had a perfectly glorious time in comparison with what we have had, these fine, fishing Spring days since Dr. Staley's letter came. We will never forgive him.

—This interesting information comes by way of Our Dumb Ani- mals, Boston, Mass.: "There is a great difference in the system of dog licenses in the various states. In Virginia the state-wide law nets annually $90,000 in taxes, which amount is used for the public schools. In North Carolina only twenty out of the one hundred counties tax dogs. The revenues vary from $515 in one county to $1 in another. A bill was recently offered in the legislature, proposing a state-wide levy of $1 on male and $2 on female dogs, but this was so unpopular that it failed of serious consideration. It is said that there are 150,000 dogs in North Carolina, many farmers owning from twelve to twenty-five.

SEASIDE CHAUTAUQUA AND SCHOOL OF METHODS OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Virginia Beach, July 19-25.

It is one of the joys we have each week to tell you of the coming School of Methods and Chautauqua of the Christian Church. We find that many readers of our church papers are watching our weekly announcements. Yesterday we had the great pleasure of showing Prof. A. G. Caris, the Dean of Defiance College, the splendid place we have for holding our Seaside Chautauqua. Those who were here last year will be here again this year and we want to show many others the delightful place. Ask Prof. Caris what he thinks of it. It was his first trip to the South.

It has been a great pleasure to announce that Dr. John MacCallman, of Lakemont, N. Y., will conduct a daily "Half-Hour with the Bible," and that Dr. Harper, President of Elon College, will conduct a daily course in "Christian Endeavor Expert" work; and that Mr. Eldredge, the Editor of our Teachers' and Officers' Journal, will conduct a daily course in Secondary Sunday School Work, and that Drs. Lightbourne and Sargent will conduct the Pastor's Hour each day. We cannot afford to tell you all the good things in

HEALTH HINTS
Pure air is as essential to health as pure food and drink.
Don't sleep in a close room. You poison yourself.
Don't sleep with your nostrils covered or your mouth open.
If there are nasal obstructions to free breathing see a specialist and have the growth removed.
Avoid colds. The accumulations of phlegm interfere with your needed supply of fresh air.
If you have a cold, catarrh or croup, use Mentholatum liberally in nostrils and on throat and chest.
Mentholatum tends to open the air passages and clear up the membranes of the lungs and respiratory tract.
This means easier breathing, greater comfort and the preservation of health. Air is life.
Mentholatum relieves inflammation also, and hence is much used for burns, bruises, cuts, sprains, chapped skin, etc. Adv.

CALOMEL IS MERCURY! IT SICKENS! ACTS ON LIVER LIKE DYNAMITE

"Dodson's Liver Tone" Starts Your Liver Better Than Calomel and Doesn't Salivate or Make You Sick.
Listen to me! Take no more sickening, salivating calomel when bilious or constipated. Don't lose a day's work! Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel, when it comes into contact with our bile crashes into it, breaking it up. This is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you are sluggish and "all knocked out," if your liver is torpid and bowels constipated or you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, if breath is bad or stomach sour just take a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone on my guarantee.
Here's my guarantee—Go to any drug store and get a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone. Take a spoonful tonight and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous by morning I want you to go back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying the sale of calomel because it is real liver medicine; entirely vegetable, therefore it can not salivate or make you sick. I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your bowels of that sour bile and constipated waste which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable. I guarantee that a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone will keep your entire family feeling fine for months. Give it to your children. It is harmless; doesn't gripe and they like it pleasant taste.

Renew Your Health At Nature's Fountain

Without the Expense and Loss of Time Necessary for a Visit to the Spring

THE CRISIS

There comes a time in the life of practically every man and woman when their digestive or eliminative organs, or both, fail to respond to drugs prepared by human skill. In fact drugs seem to do them about as much harm as good for their systems rebel against all drugs. These are the cases which physicians call "stubborn" and "chronic" for the reason that they persist in spite of drug treatment. I do not refer to incurable diseases such as cancer and consumption, but to that larger class of functional disorders which we meet every day, where the organs of digestion and elimination are impaired.

For this class of cases our best physicians and our big city specialists send their wealthy patients to the mineral springs where, in the great majority of cases they are permanently restored or decidedly benefited. But what about the poor man who has not the money or the busy man or woman who cannot spare the time to spend several weeks or possibly months at a health resort? Shall circumstances deny them the restoration to health which Nature has provided? Read my answer in the coupon at the bottom of this page.

I have the utmost confidence in the Shivar Mineral Spring Water for to it I owe my Restoration to Health and probably my Life. It has made me tens of thousands of friends in all parts of America and even in foreign countries, whose faces I have never seen. Yet I count them my friends for the Shivar Spring Water has bound them to me by lasting gratitude.

I ask you to read their letters, a few samples of which I publish below for your benefit, and if you find among them any encouragement as to your own health do not hesitate to accept my offer which has no limits or conditions except those shown on the coupon. If you could read the letters that come to me daily, numbering about ten thousand a year, and the vast majority of them similar to those printed below, you would not wonder that I make this offer displaying my absolute confidence in the restorative powers of Shivar Mineral Water.

INDIGESTION

I was suffering with indigestion, stomach and liver disorders and all its train of horrifying phenomena for several months. I had lived on milk, soft eggs, shredded wheat, a very insubstantial diet for an active working man, and, of course, from disease and starvation was in a very weak state of nervous vitality and general debility. I ordered ten gallons of your Mineral Water which I used continuously, reordering when necessary, and in four months gained twenty-nine pounds, was strong and perfectly well, and have worked practically every day since. It acts as a general renovator of the system. I prescribe it in my practice, and it has in every instance had the desired effects. It is essential to use this water in as large quantities as possible, for its properties are so happily blended and in such proportion that they will not disturb the most delicate system. It is purely Nature's remedy.

La Grange, Ga., Nov. 25, 1914.
I feel it my duty to testify humanity to make public announcement of the benefits I have derived from Shivar Spring Water. I have been a sufferer for the past twenty-five years from indigestion and dyspepsia. After one week's trial of Shivar Water I commenced to improve, and after drinking it for four weeks I gained fifteen pounds. I feel better and stronger than I have in twenty-five years. I strongly recommend this Water to any one with stomach trouble of any character, and truly believe it will cure ulcer of the stomach. I am writing this voluntarily and trust it will fall in the hands of many who are so unfortunate as to be afflicted with indigestion and nervous dyspepsia.

C. V. TRUITT,
President Unity Cotton Mills.

DYSPEPSIA

I have suffered for many years from gastric troubles, stomach puffed and food sour. I have tried many remedies and a good many waters. Some have helped, but none have given me such relief as your Spring Water. I use it and recommend it to my patients.

W. B. GRIGGSBY, M. D.
Buena Vista, Va., Oct. 2, 1914.
It is a great pleasure to tell you that your Water has been a great benefit. I may say a great blessing to me. My wife says it has helped me more than anything else I ever tried. I have been, for thirty years, a sufferer from stomach trouble.

REV. E. H. ROWE,
Co-President Southern Seminary.
Baltimore, Md., April 30, 1914.
For many years I suffer with stomach trouble as a direct result of asthma. I consulted the very best specialist in this country, and spent quite a large sum of money in my endeavor to get relief. However, I had about come to the conclusion that my case was hopeless, but by accident I happened to get hold of one of your booklets, and decided to try Shivar Spring Water. After drinking the water for about three weeks I was entirely relieved, and since that time have suffered but little inconvenience from my trouble. I cheerfully recommend the use of your Water to any one that may be suffering from stomach trouble.

OSCAR T. SMITH,
Vice-Pres. Young & Selden Co., Bank Stationers.

RHEUMATISM

I have tested your Spring Water in several cases of rheumatism, chronic indigestion, kidney and bladder troubles, and in nervous and sick headaches, and find that it has acted nicely in each case, and I believe that if used continuously for a reasonable time will produce a permanent cure. It will purify the blood, relieve debility, stimulate the action of the liver, kidneys and bladder, aiding them in throwing off all poisonous matter.

C. A. CROSBY, M. D.
Fredericksburg, Va.
Mrs. Carter has had enlarged joints upon her hands, caused by rheumatism. Shivar Spring Water removed every trace of the enlargement.

WM. C. CARTER,
Roper, N. C., Oct. 30, 1914.
I am anxious to get more of the Water. It has done me more good than anything I have ever tried for rheumatism.

MRS. H. C. EDWARDS,
Florence, S. C., Dec. 1, 1911.
I suffered with indigestion and kidney trouble, and a year ago was stricken with acute articular rheumatism, was helpless for months, and since using your Spring Water I am walking without any crutch and improving daily. Indigestion much relieved. I wish I could write what Spring Water in the sky so that the world could become acquainted with it.

BILIOUSNESS

MRS. THEO. KUKER,
Greenville, S. C., Feb. 26, 1914.
For over two years, following a nervous breakdown, I have suffered with a liver so torpid that ordinary remedies were absolutely powerless. Under such circumstances, I came to Shivar Spring, and began drinking the Water. Upon advice however, the first night I took a laxative; the second night a milder one. Since then I have taken none at all. The effect of the water has been remarkable - its action on my liver most marked, and my health and spirits greatly improved. I am satisfied that the laxative, followed by the Water, was the proper treatment in my case. My condition is now perfect.

S. A. DERIBUX,
Carlisle, S. C.
It is fine for liver troubles, also for constipation. I cheerfully give you this information as to beneficial results in my case.

REV. A. MCA. PITTMAN,

RENAL AND CYSTIC

I suffered for eight years with kidney trouble and inflammation of the bladder to the extent that I would have to get up during the night some five or six times. After using this water only a few days, I am entirely relieved and suffer no more effect of the trouble whatever.

J. P. D.
Columbia, S. C.
Virgilia, Va., March 28, 1914.
Your Water has done me more good than anything I ever tried for bladder trouble.

A. R. F.
Wesley, Ga., May 12, 1914.
I had been down with bladder trouble. Couldn't stand on my feet three minutes at a time. In three days after I commenced drinking your Mineral Water my pain was all gone, could walk where I pleased, and felt like a new man.

S. B. D.
High Point, N. C., Oct. 6, 1914.
My wife has had a bad kidney trouble for several years. She has been using the water only about three weeks and it has already made her a new woman. Her color is much improved, her appetite is all right, and she is free from her digestion seems to be perfect. We give Shivar Springs credit for it all.

GALLSTONES

Shivar Spring Water cured my mother of gallstones, or, I might say, it snatched her from the hospital door, as the doctors had said nothing short of an operation would do her any good. After drinking the Water she was able to get out of bed, and is today stout and healthy. I hope these few lines will be of help to some one suffering as my mother did.

W. J. STRAWN,
Williamston, N. C. Oct. 3, 1914.
My doctor said I would have to be operated on for gallstones, but since I have been drinking your water I haven't had to have a doctor.

W. H. EDWARDS,
Columbia, S. C.
My wife was a chronic sufferer from gallstones. She was stricken critically ill, and nothing but morphine seemed to relieve her pain by rendering her unconscious. My physician, who is a good one, seemed to do very little good. Rev. A. J. Foster, pastor of Shandon Baptist Church of Columbia, S. C., advised me to take her immediately to Shivar Spring. On consulting my physician he agreed that it would be best to do so without delay. In about three days after arriving at the Spring she was apparently relieved and had regained her appetite. She has suffered no ill effect of any kind since.

J. P. DRAPPIN,

URIC ACID & DIABETES

I have been for many years affected with uric acid and kidney trouble, and the Mineral Water has helped me more than anything I have ever done for them and therefore heartily recommend same to all who need a speedy relief and cure.

W. F. MATHENY, M. D.
Lexington, Va.
I can recommend your Mineral Water for disorders caused by uric poison. I suffered and have been relieved. It affords me pleasure to recommend this Water to all sufferers.

J. H. WHITMORE,
Roxboro, N. C.
I have used ten gallons of your Mineral Water, and it has done me worlds of good. My disease is diabetes. I lost two years out of three from my work, and your Water is putting me back on my feet again.

JOHN R. PETTIGREW,
Derma, Miss., May 8, 1914.
Have suffered for several years with diabetes. I feel almost cured. Have recommended the Water to others.

Mrs. J. J.
Sanford, N. C., April 15, 1914.
Have been down eight weeks with the trouble. Ordered Shivar Spring Water, began drinking it, and keep improving. Showed my doctor the analysis and he said it was just what I needed, with a little tablet added.

A Prayer

*"Not more of light I ask, O God,
But eyes to see what is.
Not sweeter songs, but ears to hear
The present melodies.
Not more of strength, but how to use
The power that I possess.
Not more of love, but skill to turn
A frown to a caress.
Not more of joy, but how to feel
Its kindly presence near.
To give to others all I have
Of courage and of cheer.
No other gifts, dear God, I ask,
But only sense to see
How best those precious gifts to use
Thou hast bestowed on me."*

Never Alone

One should not and need not be or feel alone. Sir. Philip Sidney said that "they are never alone who are accompanied with noble tho'ts." One who stores his mind with pure thoughts and noble sentiments always have ready companions of interest, sympathy, fellowship and enthusiasm. Paul was a philosopher of this type and so enjoined us not to be lonesome in these words: "Whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, think on these things." (Phil. 4:8.) A person who thinks on such virtues is never alone.

Corporate Courtesy

Great corporations no longer snarl at the public nor snub the individual. Many of these so-called soulless bodies employ men and women on good salaries whose sole business it is to be courteous and affable to all who come about their offices or places of occupation. Armour, Swift, Cash Register, Ford and scores of others have on their pay roll scores who engage in the delectable occupation of making visitors and the curious comfortable, cheerful and happy. The New York and New Haven Railroad has recently added to its former motto, "Safety First," these significant words, "Courtesy Always." The snarl and the snob have become antiquated. Courtesy and affability have become assets to any business, profession or occupation. "Honor all men. Love the brotherhood. Fear God. Honor the king." (1 Peter 2:17.)

Excuses

One might as well be sincere and frank about it and make no excuses. Apologies are sometimes demanded because of some inadvertent breach of manners or morals. But the sincere make few apologies and no excuses. A woman critic discovered a mistake in Dr. Johnson's dictionary and confronted the great scholar with it. "Pure ignorance, madam," was the laconic and sufficient reply. Excuses usually are the flimsy pretexts of insincere minds. No one takes them seriously and men measure you by what you really are and do. "And they all with one consent began to make excuse." (Luke 14:18.) And they were a sorry lot and justly excluded from the feast.

The Battle Lines

The dispatches from the front in the European struggle stagger the imagination. A recent compilation shows the battle line of the Allies to be 1656 miles in length. The French occupy 540 miles of trenches, the British thirty-one miles, the Belgians 17 miles, the Russians a front of 851 miles, Serbian and Montenegrins 217 miles. Facing these in many, if not in most parts are the Germans and their allies. Wherever and whenever these opposing forces clash, unspeakable slaughter and far-flung devastation ensue. The horrors of such a conflict cannot be imagined, much less described. And yet this battle line is not as long, not as numerous, not as strong as that invincible line of boys and girls, men and women, who on next Sabbath will march with silent tread and without banners to the place of song and praise and worship at the command of King Immanuel. "Through God we shall do valiantly: for he it is that shall tread down our enemies." (Psa. 60:12.)

The Uncharted Rock

A few years ago four hundred lives were lost on a steamer that went down off the coast of Alaska. There were charts and maps of the coast, but there was hidden beneath the waves an uncharted rock and on this the ship struck and was sent to the bottom with its cargo of human lives. There are hidden and secret snares of sin and evil against which the frail crafts, on which individuals sail the sea of time, often strike and are lost. But none of these dangers are hidden from the eye that never sleeps and the mind that never slumbers. And He has charted them for us in His blessed Book of counsel and direction. There are no uncharted rocks on the seas and coasts of human experience. The Bible is the safe and comprehensive chart and all who direct their course by its teachings will never go to wreck upon a hidden danger. "Thy word have I hid in my heart that I might not sin against thee." (Psa. 119:11.)

Revivals That Pay

The Wall Street Journal of New York, a publication devoted to finance and to business interests predicts, and with hope, that a widespread revival of religion is near at hand in this country. Such a revival is of deep concern to the business man because it brings real reform and permanent progress. Corporations; societies and legislatures are affected by such revival, for these are made up of individuals and religion deals with the individual working from within outward. "Here is a movement," avows the Journal, "which renders investigation committees unnecessary, which brings employer and employed together on the common platform of the love and fear of God. This is the promise of the future, and it is something which Providence in his infinite mercy grants us to assuage the misery and wickedness of war." All riches and resources are in the hands of God and He hath prepared them for those who trust and obey. "Both riches and honor cometh of thee, and thou reignest over all." (1 Chron. 29:12.)

Voice, Vice and Volume

It is recalled that there appeared in Paris, a few years ago, a singer over whose voice the critics raved with delight. "Such wonderful range, such purity of tone, such volume," wrote the critics. But audiences grew less until it was difficult to get a respectable house for the great singer. Instinct revealed to the crowd that which the critics ignored, namely, that there was not the right sort of character behind the singer, and the melodious voice had no heart in it. Man looketh upon the outward appearance, it is true, and may be deceived by it for a season, but he, like God, looketh also upon the heart finally and ultimately. Many a sweet voice has been embittered, and many a pure tone made imperfect by a weakness of morals and viciousness of person and purpose behind the voice. Impurity of heart will reveal itself, however much natural gifts and attainments may seek or serve to obscure it. "Be sure your sins will find you out." (Num. 32:23.)

Abundance of Water

On April 14 the Apulia aqueduct was declared completed and a great, crystal stream of water was distributed in three different provinces of Italy. The work has cost $30,000,000, and has required the labor of four thousand men for a continuous period of fifteen years. The water flows through 1,875 miles of pipe and the aqueduct is the largest in the world. There is sufficient water from natural streams and sources to satiate the thirst of every man and beast and bird beneath the sun, but the process of distribution must be carried on by the effort and ingenuity of man. So the grace of God is free and abundant, and sufficient for all men everywhere, to save from the blight and curse of sin, but the process of distribution must be carried on by the efforts of men in telling and teaching the good news to those who know it not. "Whosoever drinketh of this water shall thirst again; but whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst; but the water that I shall give him shall be in him a well of water springing up into everlasting life." (John 4:13, 14.)

—On April 15 a canal six feet deep from Sander's Ferry to Mobile, Ala., was opened for barge traffic. The length of the canal is five hundred miles and the cost was $12,000,000.

THE CONTRIBUTION OF MISSIONS

Missions have contributed more to Christendom than Christendom has to missions. This is a side of a great question very little thought about. It is worth consideration.

First of all, modern missions have compelled us to a re-reading of the Bible, in a new and larger light. We have found from this reading that the Bible is no treatise on theology, dogma or doctrine; but a volume on world-wide evangelization. This Book has shown us, in this better reading, that every man has, under God's grace, the possibility of being saved, regenerated, recreated; but not all have the privilege and the opportunity of being saved. And, moreover, that it is the privilege and the duty of those who are saved to carry the good news of salvation to those who are not. God is depending, not on the angels, but on human agencies to give this opportunity to all men everywhere.

Since modern missions have given us this view from the Bible we have quit talking and preaching about the beliefs and doctrines that separate us, and emphasize those facts which unite us. We are not hearing or reading much these days about "Close Communion," "Apostolic Succession," the "Mode of Baptism," "Election and Predestination," and other theological doctrines once so much and so zealously insisted upon. We are hearing much about reaching the unreached, saving the unsaved, world-wide evangelization, the abolition of the saloon, co-operation in Christian service, and the fellowship of all the followers of Christ. We have almost got church union in spirit without being willing to admit it in fact. The spirit of union is in the air, and brotherly love obtains everywhere between those who are the saints of God, whatever the denominational faith, creed or ism may be. This is one of the contributions of modern missions, and it is invaluable. That which helps us to a better understanding of the Book gives us a fuller knowledge of and a sweeter fellowship with God.

Another contribution of modern missions to Christendom is the larger conception of duty and privilege. We, the poorest of us, now think in terms of the multitudes. We think of China's millions and have a sympathy for them in their struggle for civil and religious freedom. We think of the one hundred million of India who lie down on their mud floors every night hungry and haggard for want of enough food, and we have compassion on them and would like to help multiply and break the loaves and fishes and feed them. We see the countless blacks of Africa, living like simple children of the native jungles, and would like to lift them to a high plane of thought, of government, of morals and of religion. The peoples of every land and clime and condition under the sun appeal to us and we have a fellow-feeling for them. We have learned to think, to feel and to sympathize in terms of the multitudes. This is Christ-like. We can hardly think of Him without thinking in terms of the multitudes. And beholding the multitudes He had compassion upon them and He healed their sick, opened the eyes of the blind, fed the hungry. How Christ-like in our conceptions and in our sympathies have modern missions made us.

Another and a very great contribution to Christendom by missions is the current of rich, rare and varied literature they are pouring into the channels of our thought and our learning. Among the best books now are to be reckoned many of the missionary books. Some of the weightiest and most absorbing and interesting volumes of the day are those springing from the missionary heart, or inspired by the missionary mind. No man can know the best thought of our day unless he acquaints himself with some books on missions. For many of the heroes, not only of the faith, but of knowledge, learning and scholarship, of our day, are actually on the mission fields or are inspired to write about the marvellous and moving facts of missions.

This Christian Church of ours should rejoice with exceeding great joy that these things are so. Denominational differences are being broken down, sectarianism is disappearing, the bitterness of theological rant and doctrinal discussion have had to disappear before the rising tide of brotherly love and universal Christian fellowship among the followers of Christ everywhere. This is the heart, the very central theme of that for which our name and fellowship and tenets stand, and that which they signify. We should be—may God help us to be—the most missionary people on earth.

NOTES AND PERSONALS

—The recent election for Mayor of Chicago, it is given out, cost $1,372,000. It depends altogether upon what sort of man was elected as to whether the city got its money's worth. A bad man may cost ten times that much during the four years of his mayoralty.

—"Have you a call to the ministry?" is a question which President W. A. Harper, LL. D., of Elon College, discusses in a current number of The Christian Endeavor World, Boston. Dr. Harper makes the eloquent and earnest plea that young men everywhere place themselves in the hands of God and trustingly await His guidance.

—SUN readers who anticipate attending Elon College Commencement should take note of the changed and earlier date for that event. The class day exercises are on Saturday, May 22, the baccalaureate sermon and President's address to the graduates on Sunday, May 23, musical and other exercises Monday, May 24, and graduating exercises, including the annual literary address, on Tuesday, May 25.

—William G. C. Gladstone, grandson and heir of England's "Grand Old Man" of the last century, William Ewart Gladstone, was recently killed in battle in his country's defense. He was only 29 years of age and was a member of the House of Commons. The bullet and the bayonet are no respecter of persons, privileges or stations. Thousands of promising and brilliant youths of England, France, Russia, Germany, Belgium and Austria-Hungary are going to their graves before their day because of the present awful conflict.

—Rev. L. I. Cox, the wide awake pastor of Reidsville Christian church, is to begin a series of evangelistic services with that church Thursday, May 6, at 8 p. m. He is to be assisted by Rev. J. F. Morgan, Graham. Bro. Cox has issued a fine poster advertising the services, the title of which is "Make an Investment." The poster is well prepared, carries a cut of the evangelist, Bro. Morgan, and urges everybody within reach to attend. Here is hoping and praying that the revival will be a great success, and that many souls may be won to Christ through this effort.

—The Baraca-Philathea Classes of North Carolina held their annual Convention in Raleigh last week. It was a largely attended and a very enthusiastic session. Nearly a thousand delegates were reported. Mr. Clyde Auman, Misses Ruth Bullock and Jennie Willis Atkinson composed the delegation from the Elon classes. They report a great and very inspiring convention. Baraca-Philathea is enjoying great progress and growth in this State. "We do things" is a motto that inspires young people, and organization for Bible study and for helping to carry on the King's business appeals to youthful vigor and intelligence.

—The very fine article in last week's SUN entitled "The Dynamics of Missions" credited to Dr. M. T. Morrill, Mission Secretary, Dayton, O., should have been credited to Dr. F. G. Coffin, President of the American Christian Convention, Albany, N. Y. The editor is to blame for the error. It was detached from the name, and he decided that no man in the church save Dr. Morrill could write such an article and gave credit accordingly. There are then two master minds amongst us as touching the missionary topic. Pres. Coffin takes his stand alongside of Secretary Morrill as a thinker and writer on the greatest theme of our day—missions. We congratulate Dr. Coffin and the A. C. C.

—It was a source of sorrow and grief to us to learn of the death of Rev. John H. Barney, at his home at Clearville, Pa., on April 3. He had been a member of the Christian church for about sixty years and an active minister in its ranks for fifty years. His was a great heart, an enthusiastic nature, a most loyal and loving soul. The greatest institution on this earth to him was his dear Christian Church, and he served it with all the singleness of purpose and devotion of heart possible. He gave his life with all its energy and enthusiasm to the cause he championed, the church he loved and the God he worshipped. God rest his noble soul. Two sons survive him, J. S. Barney of Clearville, Pa., and Prof. J. Willis Barney of Columbia University, N. Y.

—Salem Female College, Salem, N. C., is to have a General Reunion of its alumnae May 21-25. This will be the one hundred and thirtieth commencement and will be marked by many interesting exercises, among which will be the unveiling of the Emma A. Lehman Memorial Steps erected by Salem girls in honor of the completion last year of fifty years of continuous teaching, a record unparalleled in the history of American colleges for women. The speakers will be the Rev. Bertram Brown of Tarboro, N. C., who delivers the Commencement Sermon, and Dr. C. Alphonso Smith, of the University of Va., who will make the address on Commencement Day. Fifteen classes are returning for their reunion at this ancient and honored seat of learning.

—It was the editor's privilege to attend the Baraca-Philathea Convention at Raleigh Friday p. m. of last week. It was a great gathering of enthusiastic young people interested in "doing things" for Christ and the Church. Mr. R. N. Simms, teacher of the largest Baraca class in the South, delivered a splendid address, and one which stirred the Convention to a pitch of great enthusiasm, in defense of Baraca-Philathea which of late has been subjected to much criticism by some of the denomination journals and assemblies. Mr. Simms' contention was that if the churches understood Baraca-Philathea there could be no valid or just criticism of the great and marvellous movement among young people to study the Bible more and learn their relationship to church, to fellowman and to God. Our home for the night was under the hospitable roof of our delightful friend, Dr. Z. M. Caveness, who has built him an elegant home out on Hillsboro street and in which home he and his amiable wife not only dispense gracious hospitality, but cultivate and cherish the best there is in refined thought and Christian fellowship.

Publicity Department

M. E. WINSTON

A good many pastors are enlisting in the Army of THE SUN, and are doing some fancy work.

THE SUN's requisites for enlistment are not many and may be summed up in the following: determination, willingness, and a prayerful, united effort. These three elements will form ammunition for a 42-centimeter gun in the campaign for SUN renewals and new subscriptions.

Brother H. H. Butler, Suffolk, Va., accomplished some successful maneuvers. He fired one of the big guns and sent in $12.00 at one pull of the trigger.

Brother Jehemiah W. Holt, Burlington, N. C., does not know the command, "Cease firing," for we hear from him weekly, and his incessant firing is bringing results.

We hate to acknowledge it, but a few of our number are showing up very weakly. Do the heroic act, friends, and join the firing line. Those on the firing line will be glad to have you at their sides.

Our forces are "Marching Through Georgia," Brother H. W. Elder, Richland, Ga., has reported for action, and we look for a "Triumphal Journey" in this field.

Brother G. O. Lankford, Wadley, Ala., has thrown up breast-works. His report last week shows that he is doing considerable skirmishing and that he does not intend to stay in the trenches.

We had a real Sunday school rally, it seems, on the 25th. At the present writing we have heard from eight schools, and with five saying that they would pledge for $10 for the Special SUN Fund. The other three said they would do something later. Now is the time to do it, friends. We have 45 pledges in all. We must not let the matter stop. Friends, we are waiting for your answer.

SUFFOLK LETTER

Many people live under the constant feeling that their lot is hard because they have to work "so hard." This delusion springs from weariness and a lack of comparative thought about real relations. Some even infer that work is a hardship because Genesis says, "In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread;" but they overlook the fact that God had said before the fall to man in Eden, "Dress it and keep it." It is not work but sin that makes life "so hard."

Work is really the easiest thing in the world, and had there been no sin to mar the world as well as man, work would have been as delightful as music. Any sane business man knows that business would be charming exercise were it not for the disagreeable people with whom he must deal. Transactions with some customers is an oasis in the desert. Every farmer knows that tilling the soil would be a pleasing pastime were it not for "thorns and thistles" which curse the ground for man's sake. It is not the work but the hindrances to work and the disagreeable folks that wear men out.

If you want proof of this, talk with men when out of work and compare their tone and feelings with themselves when they are busy, and you will find that trouble comes to them when out of work. Loafing is the hardest thing a working man has to do. You might put a person on the finest bed ever made, or the softest chair in the world, and either would be worse than toil. The running stream is the purest and the happiest. Rivers have resting places, deep holes and bends in the stream, where the waters seem still; but even there is a quiet flow; so men need rest, beds where tired minds and limbs gather new strength for a new day's labor.

This would be a dull and unhappy world if all men were rich and had nothing to do. Luxury and leisure rob men of happiness as well as usefulness; activity is the life of the world and the joy of mankind. It is said that "Worry kills more men than work," and it is no doubt true. Less worry and more work would produce the better conditions. Don't complain any more about your work or having to work; try, as never before, to fit yourself for your work and try to be sure that you are in the right place. There is a tongue and groove fitness between men and their work that ought to be sought after always; tongue to tongue or groove to groove will not make a good floor.

All that I have said about work is true of church work. No member need think he is doing too much in the church; he may worry too much about his work. The fact is members are happiest when they are doing the most for Christ. It is not work that hurts anywhere; it is friction that hurts. The wheel that turns on an axle without oil cuts and grinds and wears and has a hard time. Members that rub one another the wrong way, that are super-sensitive and easily offended, that cultivate envy or jealousy, have a hard time, but good, honest, harmonious work fills all with spiritual joy.

Work is the soul of prosperity and the fountain of religious life.

W. W. STALEY.

ELON COLLEGE NOTES

Spring is here at last—and such a glorious Spring it is! How it typifies the newness and sweetness and exuberance of the Heavenly Life! If a man can't be spiritually-minded in the joyous springtime, pity him.

Dr. Herndon and Dr. Lawrence were both able to sit up in their rooms last week. Dr. Lawrence is expected home one day this week. The friends—and they are everybody—of these two splendid men will rejoice that their days of usefulness and service have been graciously lengthened.

Mrs. Brannock continues confined to her bed in Mebane. She successfully passed the crisis of the pneumonia last Tuesday and is now convalescent. Prof. Brannock is expected to resume his College duties shortly.

Dr. Geo. W. Morrow, Detroit, Mich., Secretary of his State's Anti-Saloon League, and a field secretary of the national organization, visited the College last Tuesday. This is Dr. Morrow's first visit to our Southern College. We hope he will come again.

Dr. J. N. Mills, Washington, D. C., is to lecture here Tuesday of this week on China as a Mission Field. He is an authority on world-missions.

Dr. T. C. Amick spent Saturday and Sunday at Thomasville, attending the Convention of Young People of the M. P. Church. He delivered an address on The Possibilities of Christian Endeavor on Saturday, of which the papers spoke highly.

Dr. Atkinson last week "broke up" the Oakwood School, spoke before the Baraca-Philathea Convention in Raleigh, and lectured in the Burlington Christian Church Sunday evening—all this in addition to his regular work here. He will soon be well again, if "business maketh a man well."

The representatives of the Senior Class scheduled to speak on Commencement Day, May 25th are Misses Beatrice Mason, Pattie

Preston and Oma Utley, and Messrs. W. D. Loy, J. V. Knight, and E. T. Cotten. The other graduates of whom there are 16 will speak on the Class Day Program to be given on Saturday afternoon, May 22.

The Society representatives for Commencement are: for the Clio, Messrs. C. B. Riddle and R. M. White; for the Pisphehan, Misses Ruth Johnson and Annie Laurie Wicker; and for the Philologist, Messrs. R. F. Brown and P. V. Parks. This part of Commencement is to be enlivened by the giving of a medal to the best all-round representative.

Uncle Wellons spent the week-end at the Masonic Home, Greensboro, endeavoring to infuse some of his youthful spirit in the inmates. It will be remembered that Brother L. M. Clymer and his good wife have charge of this home.

Friends of Mr. Thos. R. Ames, Wilmington, N. C., grandson of Capt. T. R. Gaskins, will learn with satisfaction of his rapid rise in the business world. He is secretary-treasurer of the Delgado Mills, a large corporation of Wilmington, and a man of influence in that city's development, as evidenced by his having been recently made a member of the local Rotary Club.

Mr. P. C. White, another Elon man living in Wilmington, N. C., is doing well as the head clerk of the Imperial Hotel. So also is Mr. H. Cole, who is proprietor of the largest furniture store of the city, and largely interested in other progressive business.

A signal honor has just come to Mr. W. W. Elder in his having been detailed to have charge of the Army and Navy Y. M. C. A. work in connection with the Panama-Pacific Exposition. He entered upon his duties there last week.

Mrs. W. Z. Atkinson visited friends in Durham last week. Her daughter, Mrs. W. C. Whitaker, and her children returned with her. Mr. Hollis E. Atkinson, her son living in Asheville, spent Sunday with her here.

Elon's delegates to the Baraca-Philathea Convention in Raleigh this week were: Misses Jennie Willis Atkinson and Ruth Bullock; and Messrs. J. C. Auman and J. Fuller Johnson.

Their many friends will learn with pleasure of the approaching marriage of Miss Mamie Holland, Suffolk, Va., daughter of Trustee A. T. Holland, to Mr. W. V. Leathers, Cashier of the Holland (Va.) Bank, and will wish for them long and happy wedded life.

The date of the College Commencement has been changed to begin May 22 and close May 25. This is the College's 25th year. Let the alumni, old guard, and friends honor us with their presence.

The recital of the pupils of Misses Barnes and Davidson, given on Tuesday evening of last week, was highly creditable and much enjoyed.

Dr. P. H. Fleming visited the College last Thursday. Miss Toshio Sato, our Japanese student, is to sing for his congregation next Sunday morning.

Mrs. Victor Lightbourne is visiting in Dover, Del., her former home. Rev. Victor is a personal worker in the Chapman meetings in Charlotte, N. C., taking his vacation in this wholesome, Christ-like fashion. How beautiful and tender! What a vacation he is having! We could all have just such all the time, if we would, and more do than one would think.

Many of the congregations next Sunday will take the offering for the establishment of a Department of Theology in Elon College. Let us hope and pray that the response will be as liberal as the cause is important and meritorious. The hope of our Church is in a properly equipped ministry.

PORTO RICO

Inasmuch as the two churches in Norfolk are doing most of the work in Porto Rico, I feel that it is due the people of Virginia to give them as good an idea of Porto Rico, its conditions and resources as possible, and while on the boat coming down, and ever since my arrival, I have been busy reading government reports, writing government employes for statistics, and interviewing incumbents now in office, collecting material for a series of letters for THE SUN. Two books have been of the greatest assistance to me, The Register of Porto Rico, published in 1911 by Hon. M. Drew Carrell, Secretary of Porto Rico, and The Report of the Housing Conditions of Laborers in Porto Rico, published in 1914 by the Bureau of Labor.

To the traveler seeking the quaint and picturesque, and to whom the romance of four centuries appeals, Porto Rico is as alluring and far more satisfying than were the prospects of adventure and unlimited wealth to Columbus and his followers who landed on its shores when Columbus made his second voyage to the New World. At the time of the settlement of St. Augustine, Florida, the city of San Juan, the capital of this island, had passed through half a century of its history, and the Spaniard had erected buildings and fortifications which are still standing, and some of them in use today. The first hundred years of the colonization of this island had entered upon its second century when the Pilgrim fathers disembarked from the Mayflower. Closely associated with its early history we find the names of Juan Ponce de Leon, Diego Columbus, Drake, Hawkins and others, and the struggle of the early settlers with the rebellious Indians, and the manner in which they withstood the attacks on their primitive city by the pirates and buccaneers, furnishes a story replete with adventure, warfare and romance.

San Juan is named for its founder, the intrepid explorer and colonizer, Juan Ponce de Leon, who in his futile quest for the fountain of youth was later the discoverer of Florida. Ponce de Leon landed August 12, 1508, on the western coast of the Island of Borinquen, as it was called by the natives, but because of the nuggets of gold exhibited by the Indians, and to inspire his followers with courage, the name was changed to Porto Rico, the rich port. The early history of this island is but a repetition of the Spanish conquests in other portions of the Western Hemisphere. The beauty of the island, the wonderful fertility of the soil, and the agreeable climate, have justified its name, even if the first settlers were disappointed in their search for gold, because those who came after them found wealth in the rich returns from the crops; hence Porto Rico became an agricultural province, and one of the richest of Spain's colonial possessions.

The island is the fourth in size and the one farthest east of the four larger Antilles; its general outline is that of a parallelogram, the length east and west being a little less than 100 miles and its breadth north and south about 35 miles. According to the census of 1910 this island with its area of but 3,606 square miles, had a population of 1,120,000 inhabitants, making it the most thickly populated of any subdivision of American territory except Rhode Island, Massachusetts and New Jersey, there being over 300 people to the square mile. This number includes a very large percentage of working people, and while their conditions of life are much less favorable than those which surround the laboring classes in the States, the mildness of the climate enables them to stand the hardships of life without the intense suffering which would be theirs farther north. They have no expense for heavy clothing and fuel, and were they taught how, it would be possible for almost every family to raise all the food they require.

With their skill in masonry the Spaniards erected substantial buildings and forts, many of which are still in a good state of preservation and still occupied. San Juan is a typical Spanish city, the streets are narrow, but paved and clean, the solid masonry houses, tinted with their soft and picturesque colors, are packed together within the massive gray walls of the city, which for years have protected them. These houses are flat-roofed, have many balconies, high windows, and typical cool and shaded courtyards. Stately royal palms tower above the houses here and there, and the city as viewed at a distance with its setting of the ultramarine blue of the ocean, and the dark green of the palms, the soft colors of the houses and the vivid green of the cane fields, with the background of hills enveloped in a purple haze, reminding me of the blue mountains, combine to make a picture that is charming, and the lover of beauty will agree with me, that a trip to Porto Rico is one of the most satisfactory that can be made from New York for the same outlay in money and time. The wonder to me is that the island is not filled with tourists at this season, and it certainly will be as soon as more of our Americans learn of the delights to be derived from a six weeks' sojourn in this "Isle of Enchantment."

A line of railroads will take one all through the island, but before the day of railroads the Spaniards built a magnificent military road from San Juan on the north to Ponce on the southern coast, and as this road wound around the mountains for a distance of eighty-four miles, I decided to take a trip from San Juan to Ponce via automobile over the old military road, and never in all my travels have I derived more enjoyment from the same outlay in money, only three dollars being charged for the trip, stops being made at the various towns enroute, giving one a chance to gain a glimpse of the plaza or public square of each of the cities, to study the style of architecture of the houses making up each little hamlet, to see something of the home life of the farming community, and to note the manner in which the products of the plantations are marketed.

Throughout the entire distance from San Juan to Ponce the country is picturesque in the extreme. The beautiful and ever-changing views of valley and mountain, every foot of ground either under cultivation or overgrown with tropical vegetation, presents a peaceful and prosperous picture seldom seen in mountain regions. Every successive vista seems to rival in magnificence the one just passed. From the higher summits the Atlantic Ocean to the north, and the Caribbean Sea to the south, are both in plain view, and every detail of the topography for miles in all directions may be seen as though one were viewing a gigantic model map. As the descent toward the southern plain commences a marked change in the character of the vegetation is noticed. The brilliant green foliage and the damp moss and luxuriant ferns of the northern slope have disappeared and the valleys and mountains are covered with short grass, not unlike that seen on the plains of the Western States. On either side the great mountain masses, covered to the summits with vegetation, rise to sheer heights or descend so abruptly to the bottom of profound gorges, that we wonder how it is possible for the people to do the perpendicular farming that is necessary, and yet every foot of ground is under cultivation, for some of the finest tobacco in the world is raised upon these hill sides, the great sheets of canvas used to protect the plants from the hot sun giving the appearance of patches of snow upon the mountain side.

The magnificent Military Road winds around the mountain sides in graceful curves between never-ending rows of flamboyant trees loaded with their fiery-hued blossoms, reminding one of a boulevard curving through the beauty of some vast estate of landscape gardening. Think of eighty-four miles of this, and you have an idea of the geographical beauty of a trip from San Juan to Ponce. But it is not the natural beauty of the journey, picturesque as it has been, that appeals to one the most. It is the quaint life of the people that lends the greatest interest to the trip. Along this road the twentieth century and the sixteenth meet. First we pass an automobile, then an ox-cart, now a man riding horseback, great basket panniers upon either side, now a man balancing a long bamboo pole upon his shoulders from either side of which is suspended a basket. Along the road we note the telephone poles and wires leading from city to city; along the roadside too we see the little huts of palm leaves which forms the home of the laboring class on these plantations. It is the contrast after all that lends the chief charm to the trip, and it is the contrast between the manner in which the well-to-do and the laboring class live that causes the tears to flow, for we cannot view with unconcern the poverty everywhere apparent upon this island.

It is to do its part in uplifting the poor and leading them to a knowledge of Christianity that our denomination has established its mission stations in Porto Rico, and my next letter will give you a sketch of conditions here as I find them among the peon class. Truly in Porto Rico we have been given a wonderful opportunity for service. All about us are the poor men and women into whose lives no saving and inspiring influence has come, cut off from all that can sanctify and uplift, gradually they are sinking under the dead weight of their poverty, and to them it is our blessed privilege to tell of the transforming power of the divine Love. Here and there, like oases in the desert, we see the result of the labors of Mr. and Mrs. Barrett in the Master's vineyard, and who can measure the good already accomplished, or place a value upon it in dollars and cents? The work of the Christian denomination in these islands has already begun to bear fruit. Mr. and Mrs. Barrett have trained up one set of boys and girls who as Christian men and women are putting their shoulders to the wheel. Among their converts I wish to mention especially two young ladies who are now employed as teachers in the public schools, each of whom have under them from forty to fifty children. These young ladies are not only exerting their influence in the public schools, but are efficient workers in the church, the Sunday school and the Christian Endeavor. Our native pastor has had years of instruction under Mr. Barrett and is exerting a great influence over the people here in Ponce. So I say that every dollar spent on the work here in Porto Rico has been well spent, and while there may not have been the great revivals that we read of in other mission fields, the work will yet bring forth an hundred fold.

SUNDAY SCHOOL, MAY 2

Saul Tries to Kill David.—1 Sam. 19.
Golden Text: Whoso putteth his trust in Jehovah shall be safe.—Prov. 29:25.

After the conflict and victory with Goliath David's name was being sung and praised by all of the Israelites. As was the custom the women sang before the soldiers after they had won a victory. In the beginning of our lesson today we have this scene; the soldiers, with David as commander, had returned from a victory over the Philistines and the women were singing before them. Like the most of women they particularly gave special attention to the youth who stood uppermost and had won honors for his bravery and wise behavior. Without giving their song much thought they happened to allude to their king as killing thousands while the youth had slain his tens thousands. The jealousy in the heart of the partly insane Saul was kindled to a high state of rage. This young man who was fast gaining favor among the whole host Saul determined to put out of the way. Saul could not stand rivals. He felt in his heart that David would soon be a favorite of the Israelites to such an extent that the people would offer him the crown and thereby gain the kingdom.

While David was singing and playing before the insane king, Saul thought it a good opportunity to carry out the purpose of his heart. David who had wrestled with the lion and bear and won from Goliath would not likely be killed with the javelin of the insane king. Twice Saul's plot failed and he pursued other means, but to no avail. David did not quarrel because Saul failed to give him his elder daughter as a wife. Saul wished him to, and to utter treason so an execution could be legally performed.

Jonathan, who loved David as his own soul, interceded for David and did his best to bring peace in the household, for David was Saul's son-in-law, having the younger daughter of Saul, who also, like Jonathan, loved David. Jonathan reasoned with his father and asked what David had done, what sin he had committed that he should be put to death. Saul swore that he would spare the life of the youth and would see that he was not slain. David came back from his place of hiding and performed his usual duties.

Again Saul is seized with an evil spirit and David's life is sought openly. Officers go to his own house to take him to the executioner. David's wife fixes an image in the bed while David is let down from the window and escapes. The officers are informed that David is sick and return with the message to their king. Saul thinks he has an excellent opportunity and commands that all, David and bed, be brought to him. The king is angry when he learns the truth of the affair and sends officers to Ramah to take the escaped youth. They fail and another band is sent, and a third. The king himself goes with the same result.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR, MAY 2

Joys of the Christian Life.—

1 Pet. 1:3-12.

(Consecration Meeting)

The Christian life is made up of happiness and experience of living a conscientious life devoted to the service of Christ and thereby helping humanity. In the meeting every one will be able and free to take part. Insist on each member taking part by asking some questions for volunteers to answer—make the questions pointed and easy as well as interesting.

Have several give answers to the questions: How may we obtain joys for the Christian life? Can we have real joy and not live the Christian life? How may we increase our joy? How may we share a greater amount of our joy with our comrades? Other kindred questions will suggest themselves to the leader and can be used profitably.

What is said about joys of the Christian life:

God is merely tuning the soul, as an instrument in this life. And these joys of the Christian are not the notes and chords that are sounded out in the preparation—preludes to the perfect harmony that shall flood the soul-fore-runners of the perfected and rapturous joy that shall bless the soul, in that exceeding and eternal weight of glory.—Herriek Johnson.

God offers to fill our homes and our hearts with joy and gladness if we will only let Him do it. We cannot create the canary-birds; but we can provide cages for them, and fill our dwellings with their music. Even so we cannot create the Heavenly gifts which Jesus offers; but they are ours if we provide heart-room for them. The birds of peace and contentment and joy and praise will fly in fast enough if we will only invite Jesus Christ, and set the windows for our souls only for His coming.—T. L. Cuyler.

If a man is dying for want of bread, and you give him bread, is that to make him gloomy? That is what Christ is to the soul—Bread of life. You will never have

Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Department

This Department is edited by Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., assisted by other members of the Board, to whom all items of Missionary interest and matter for the Department should be sent.

NOTES OF INTEREST

Mr. and Mrs. Clark Garman, who have been at home on furlough for some time, sailed for Japan April 17. Their returning places all our missionaries on the field again with the exception of Miss True, who has been on furlough less than a year.

The new foreign missionary text book is entitled, "The King's Highway." The author is Mrs. Helen Barrett Montgomery, and she will conduct a study of the book at the Woman's Congress of Missions in San Francisco, June 6-13. The new home missionary book is "Home Missions in Action," and is written by Mrs. Edith H. Allen.

The Berea (Nansmond) W. M. S. has made a splendid beginning. This society was organized in February last, and their report for the past quarter was indeed good. They are studying "The Child in the Midst." Berea is always at the front in any good work:

There has been expressed a realization of the need of a missionary organization for our boys. And why should we not provide instruction and training for them? This is a matter that our Board should attend to at its next meeting. Mrs. C. H. R.

THE BURDEN

"O God!" I cried, "Why cannot I forget!

These hurt and halt in life's hard battle throng me yet;

Am I their keeper? Only I, to bear

This constant burden of their grief and care?

Would God mine eyes had sightless been!"

The Thorn-crowned Patient One replied:

"They thronged me too; I, too, have seen."

"Thy other children go at will," I said, protesting still;

"They go unheeding, but these sick and sad,

Yea, these that sin, press at my heart;

For them I serve and groan.

Why is it, Lord? Let me have rest, for I have tried!"

true pleasure or peace or joy or comfort until you have found Christ.—D. L. Moody.

He turned and looked at me: "But I—have died."

"Yet, Lord, this ceaseless travail of my soul,—

This often fruitless toil their souls to win!

They are not mine; I brought not forth this host

Of needy creatures, struggling, tempest-tossed;

They are not mine!"

He turned and looked at them, the look of One Divine:

"But they are Mine."

"O God," I cried, "I understand at last!

Henceforth I will a bond-slave be To Thy least, weakest, vliest ones; I would no more go free."

He smiled and said, "It is for Me."

On Sunday, April 18, it was our good fortune and pleasure to be with Rev. J. L. Foster and his excellent field of labor. Both pastor and people received us gladly, listened patiently, and helped liberally, as will be seen from the financial report. These appointments and nearly a twenty-mile drive on buggy over sandy roads made a rather strenuous day, but we came to the close with a grateful heart. For each of these churches not only took a special offering for the immediate needs of the institution, but the Sunday schools voted to become a regular monthly contributor. About half of our schools are now taking the monthly offering. Of course we are very grateful for this half, but we need and greatly desire the help of the other half. Will not the pastors and superintendents help the Orphanage and at the same time help their schools by getting them to contribute monthly to the Orphanage.

TRY THIS FOR YOUR HEALTH

For diseases which do not readily yield to drug treatment, such as chronic dyspepsia, indigestion, rheumatism, Bright's disease, gall stones, uric acid poisoning, and diseases of the kidney and liver, the best physicians send their wealthy patients to the famous mineral springs. Some even spent months at the Spas of Europe and were almost invariably cured or greatly benefited.

I believe that the Shivar Spring is the greatest mineral spring ever discovered and I believe it so firmly that I offer to send you enough water from a three weeks' treatment (two five-gallon demijohns) on my guarantee that if it fails to benefit your case I will refund the price. You would hardly believe me if I told you that only about two out of a hundred, on the average, say that they have received no benefit. The water is restoring thousands. It restored my health when my friends and physicians thought my case was incurable and I am willing and anxious for you to match your faith in the Spring against my pocketbook. If I win you become a life-friend of the Spring. If I lose I will be sorry for you, but I will appreciate your courtesy in giving the water a trial and will gladly refund your money on request. Sign the following letter:

Box 9C, Shelton, S. C.
Gentlemen:
I accept your guarantee offer and enclose herewith two dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Spring Water. I agree to give it a fair trial, in accordance with instructions contained in booklet you will send, and if it fails to benefit my case you agree to refund the price in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns which I agree to return promptly.

SEASIDE CHAUTAUQUA AND SCHOOL OF METHODS OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Virginia Beach, July 19-25.

For Workers and Church Leaders of the Entire Denomination.
Rev. F. G. Coffin, D. D., Albany, N. Y., President of the American Christian Convention, will be a daily speaker at the Seaside Chautauqua and School of Methods. He has one of the vital themes that will be considered at the session just before us,

Church Efficiency and Leadership.
Dr. Coffin is a very forceful speaker, a practical pastor, and the Chautauqua will heartily welcome the President of the Convention to speak five times on the above important subject.

A recent communication from President W. A. Harper of Elon College contained this cheering message:

"Those of us who attended the Virginia Beach Chautauqua and School of Methods last year in July are restless with anticipation for such an opportunity to come to us again this Summer. The place is ideal for this purpose, and the purpose is noble—that of giving our people the very best in the way of platform utterance and the safest and most helpful instruction in methods. The Program Committee last year blended the two beautifully, the one relieving the other as well as completing it. I have no doubt the same sanity will be their guiding principle this year. I do not see how our people can afford to neglect so great opportunity, nor do I anticipate that they will."

We are looking for you; are you coming?

WARREN H. DENISON,
President.

FIELD NOTES

The Winter has been long and we have had our share of discomforts and disappointments, but now that the Springtime is here we hope for sunshine and more activity. I have failed to meet two consecutive appointments at Long's Chapel, but two services are expected for the first Sunday in May and a pleasant day is hoped for. Sickness has prevailed in the community during the last months. With warmer weather better health is expected, and more interest in the Master's work is desired.

At Union we have announced for memorial services on the second Sunday in May, and a special program is being arranged for that day. We had a pleasant service there April 11 and re-opened the Sunday school with Bro. J. H. Tapscott as Superintendent. Increased interest in the good work is expected. We are anxious to have a home coming of the members of Union church on the second Sunday in May. A very large section of the country is represented by departed loved ones buried in the cemetery at Union. All friends of these dear ones are specially invited to be present and to bring an offering for the Cemetery Fund. We want to put this city of the dead in good order and to keep it so. For more than a hundred years the number of graves has been increasing in this burying ground until there is now quite a field of graves there. It is expected to decorate these graves with flowers as far as we can. Come and bring flowers for the graves of your friends.

At Bethlehem we will have our bi-ennial memorial services the third Sunday in May. Come, friends, and join us on this occasion.
J. W. Holt.

HENDERSON LETTER

It has been some time since I have written about the work here. It was not for the lack of interest, nor for something to write, but waiting for the completion of some plans made some time ago. The plans have not all been completed yet, but will not wait longer.

The work here is encouraging. We have received six strong members since conference. Owing to the unusually unfavorable weather during the Winter months for church-going, the attendance has not been what we expected; but now the weather is favorable, we hope to have larger attendance.

All the churches of the city are in a campaign for church going during this month; all the pastors are preaching from the same theme; viz., "Consecration to Soul Winning," leading up to an evangelistic campaign in all the churches. We are praying that many souls may be born into the kingdom and a great revival of the church. We have not decided just when we will have the meeting.

The Christian Endeavor is alive and holding its own. They are planning to send at least one delegate to the State Convention at Wilmington in June. Our new president, Mr. F. M. Harvard, with his co-workers, is trying to bring new life into the work.

A Junior society was organized in February with nine members, and is growing nicely. Mrs. Banks is superintendent and enjoys the work.

The Woman's Missionary Society with Miss Dora Ayscue, president, is persistent and growing. They are trying to reach the thirty number mark. Last year this band of faithful workers raised about $40 for missions.

The Ladies' Aid is the most active of any of our auxiliaries. They have a membership of thirty-three. They have raised since conference $70. Of this amount $50 has been paid on the indebtedness of the church $5 to Franklinton church, and $4 for gas in heating the church; the balance is in the treasury. Their meetings each month are largely attended and full of interest. They are now discussing plans to purchase an organ for the church, which is badly needed.

The Sunday school is looking for new and better things. The attendance last Sunday was the largest it has been in months. Our Supt., Bro. W. A. Newman, comes each Sunday filled with enthusiasm and sings and prays and talks larger and better things. We give offerings each month for the Orphanage.

The work is encouraging in all of its phases. Last fall at conference pledges were solicited to raise enough with what we had in the treasury to make a payment of five hundred dollars on our indebtedness. The following have paid:

FULLER'S CHAPEL

Saturday before second Sunday we had a home-coming day for the church. There was a large crowd present. Prof. Bivens made a great speech from the theme, What does home-coming mean?

Pres. W. A. Harper was also present and made, as usual, a great speech. Mr. S. R. Harris, of Henderson, and others made good talks. The day was much enjoyed by all present, and I trust it will mean much for the church yet.

Sunday school has been re-organized with bright prospects for the best school ever at Fuller's. We make an offering each month to the Orphanage.

The congregations are always large. The building is too small to accommodate the crowds. We need a new building, and hope in the near future we can be able to lay plans for a new structure. We are expecting several new members at our next appointment.

The Lord is blessing my labors and I give Him all the glory.

OUR DEAD

Rodgers

Joseph Rodgers was born Oct. 12, 1841, died April 6, 1915. He was a member of Leaksville Christian church. For several months he had been afflicted, and the change from time to eternity was a blessed release, we trust, from the cares, toils and infirmities of earth. He left evidence that he was ready to go. He is survived by his wife, one son, William Rodgers, three sisters, Mrs. Sarah Burns, Mrs. Barbara Taylor, and Miss Mary Ellen Rodgers. The services were conducted from Leaksville church by the writer, assisted by Rev. Geo. Painter. The deceased was a Confederate soldier. Veterans were the pall bearers. Capt. R. S. Parks of Luray made some very appropriate and beautiful remarks in planting the flag on the grave. May the Lord comfort the widow and relatives. R. L. WILLIAMSON.

Holsinger

Lura Reba, daughter of W. B. and Etta Holsinger, was born May 12, 1899, died March 16, 1915. She had been a member of Concord Christian Church about two years, and her relations to the church were marked by devotion and faithfulness, giving evidence that when the Lord called she was ready to answer the summons, and that she will enjoy with Him the bliss of the heavenly home. Funeral services were conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. J. F. Morgan. Interment was in Bethlehem cemetery.

May the Lord bless and comfort the bereaved ones.

R. L. WILLIAMSON.

He was married to Miss Dora Avent in 1897. To this union were born 8 children. He professed faith in Christ and joined Moore Union Christian church in 1912 and lived a consistent life. He was a good neighbor, a good father, a good husband. He leaves a loving wife and 8 sweet daughters to mourn their loss. May God bless and comfort them in this their dark hour of distress.

He was buried at Moore Union, the burial service being conducted by Bro. B. J. Howard and C. M. Howard.

Shepperd

We as a Sunday school lament the death of our beloved Bro. Marion Shepperd, who as a teacher discharged his duty as a faithful servant of God. While we believe his departure from this life is gain to him, yet the community in which he lived has lost a model man and a Christian gentleman. Therefore he it resolved: first, that the Sunday school at Bethany Christian church sympathizes with his father, mother, sisters and relatives in the death of our beloved Marion Shepperd, who departed this life on Feb. 26, 1915, in Oklahoma.

Resolved, second, that the secretary place on record the above resolutions and a copy be sent The Christian Sun for publication.

Editorial Briefs

Your Town

"If you want to live in the kind of a town
Like the kind of a town you like,
You needn't slip your clothes in a grip
And start on a long, long hike.
You'll only find what you left behind,
For there's nothing that's really new;
It's a knock at yourself when you knock your town;
It isn't the town,—it's you."

A Safe Creed

Creeds have fallen into disrepute in our time. They need not have done so, for there are some exceedingly safe and secure ones. All religion is a life through a creed. Life comes through belief and a fixed belief is a creed. "We love him, because he first loved us." (1 John 4:19.) That will do for a creed to live by. It is the first and fundamental creed of the Christian Church. "That is the sanctuary of my soul," said an aged Christian. What a sanctuary it is, one at which the soul may pour out all its adoration. "He first loved us."

The Power of the Person

A cultured writer in a recent Atlantic says of Billy Sunday: "He is easily the most compelling personality in America. There was a time when Colonel Roosevelt could have gone to Philadelphia and commanded an audience of twenty thousand people for one night; but what other living man can command twenty thousand hearers twice each day and three times on Sunday? And not for a week, but for eight weeks." Is it the compelling personality of Mr. Sunday that brings these unprecedented multitudes together? Nay, verily. It is, to our mind, the Personality of the Man whom Billy Sunday holds up, with such power, vision and vividness, that compels the multitude to come and to listen. People are not there, save the curious and the vulgar, to see Mr. Sunday but to get a vision of the Man of Galilee whom Mr. Sunday seeks to reveal. Not Sunday but Christ, the burden and one theme of Sunday's sermons, is the power that attracts. "And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me." (Jno. 12:32.) When the preacher lifts Christ up to vision the people gather. The most compelling personality that ever came to earth was Jesus of Nazareth. He always draws when presented in His true light.

Life's Discovery

"The artist does not create; he discovers," writes a critic. The painter seeks to put on canvas that which he has seen in his own soul, discovered as an integral part of himself. He is seeking to let others see what he has discovered. The musician fingers the piano, seeking by the use of the contrivance there to portray to others the music he has discovered in his own soul. He has not created; he discovered and then revealed to others. He is making the inaudible audible. So the Christian. He has heard the music of infinite love singing in his soul. His life is an attempt to reveal to those about him the Infinite. "Oh, that I knew where I might find him! that I might come even to his seat!" (Job 23:3.)

"King's Pledge Sunday"

Sunday, April 18, was observed in 10,000 churches in Great Britain as "King's Pledge Sunday." The king of England has pledged to abstain from all alcoholic drinks during the continuance of the present war, and has called upon his subjects in England to do likewise. The churches took up the matter and on the date named laid it before the people. In one congregation 2,000 people signed the pledge. Scores of thousands throughout the king's domain signed. This act aside, is not every Sunday a "King's pledge Sunday"? As we foregather at our places of prayer, praise and worship, is it not our chief concern to covenant and pledge ourselves anew to follow the example of our King, who said, "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me." (Matt. 16:24.)

Too Many Quiet Days

One likes a quiet day, now and then, but too many of them become dangerous and unpleasant. A Protestant Episcopal clergyman of New York, the Rev. James V. Chalmers, in making a defense, through the New York Times, of Rev. Billy Sunday, relates that an English Bishop wrote to one of his clergy, "I am coming down next month to hold a quiet day in your parish." To which the clergyman replied, "We shall be glad to have you, my lord, but what we need in this parish is not a quiet day, but an earthquake." Many American parishes are having too many quiet days, and nothing is needed more than an earthquake—a genuine spiritual upheaval. We too often look upon the church work as going well when what we know to be fact is that there is a languid ease in Zion. "Woe to them that are at ease in Zion." (Amos 6:1.)

Repression

The highest courage holds somewhat in reserve. If one tells you all of his aches and ails and pains and privations, you bestow no sympathy on him. Verily, you say mentally, he has his rewards—got his rewards, like the Pharisee who prayed standing on the street corner, from the publicity of the act. It is the reserve, the repression that one admires. The water remaining in the pipe is the real force that does the work, for that which comes out had to be driven with a momentum might-ier than its own. The other day a surgeon asked an English soldier who had been shot through the middle of the body if the pain was bad. "No," was the only reply. A French soldier in the same hospital replied to the same question good naturedly, "It is endurable." The surgeon confessed that he liked the Frenchman's reply best because evident signs of pain were on both faces. The Englishman was stoic and Spartan—repressed with stubbornness. The Frenchman was Athenian and repressed with good humor. And the latter, not the former, has given to the world its brightest and best and bravest souls. Our Savior held in his own bitter anguish, repressed His own feelings while He remembered from the depths of it those about Him: "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do." (Luke 23:34.)

The Fall of the Great

Within the past few months not a few rumors have spread far and near, and not a few reports have been printed, to the effect that the Hon. Champ Clark, Speaker of the National House of Representatives, is making his appearance in public much under the influence of drink. Last Winter he was on a speaking tour in the West and the papers reported him, before an audience one night, so intoxicated that he made a sorry spectacle of himself both in speech and in posture on the stage. Comes now a similar report through the Western Methodist about a recent appearance of Mr. Clark before the Arkansas State Teachers' Association. After stating the disappointment of the teachers at the very commonplace address of the Speaker the report continues: "While there were occasional keen wit, much sound suggestion, and some practical illustrations, the address for such an occasion lacked finish, originality, force, and real vision. Hardly a hearer that had not gone further in thinking. Still the disappointment over the quality of the address might not have found expression if the conviction had not forced itself on many in the audience that they were listening to a man who was not himself—that alcohol had numbed his brain and impaired his physical powers. Pity, disgust, shame, indignation were the feelings of many of his hearers and good citizens of Little Rock. Think of the Speaker of the National House of Representatives, who had narrowly escaped the presidency, standing before the teachers of Arkansas in such condition that the men near him sat tense and ready to spring to his side if he should reel from the platform." And yet this man came near to being nominated by his party as a candidate for the presidency only a few months ago. Our good Republic has had some narrow escapes indeed and very immoral and incapable men have come dangerously near to occupying the highest office within the gift of the people. But the day of the intoxicated in high office is past and it takes no prophet to forecast the future of the Hon. Champ Clark. "How are the mighty fallen!" (2 Sam. 1:19.)

EDITORIAL

CAMPAIGNING FOR CHRIST

The new note, if there is one, in evangelism is personal work. The modern evangelist who counts, all the way from "Billy" Sunday down to the most unpretentious, knows that the success of his work depends upon the personal touch—the work that he can get Christians to do in behalf of those who are not Christians. The evangelist delivers the message to his congregation. But unless he has personal workers in that congregation his message bears little fruit. The burden of the message is to give the personal workers inspiration and a clue. The real work of winning souls to Christ is no longer that of the pulpit, but of the pew. Unless Christians will go out after their neighbors then their neighbors go unsaved.

Politicians used to have the monopoly on campaigns. They planned, schemed, considered, organized, worked through lieutenants, sub-lieutenants and privates. The modern evangelist has eclipsed the politician in his well-planned, thoroughly organized campaigns.

In the attack on the strongholds of sin and Satan in Paterson, N. J., which Billy Sunday is now leading, one of the best planned campaigns ever organized was conducted to a finish. It was known that Paterson was possibly the most difficult community the evangelist had ever worked in. There are 135,000 people in the city, of whom three-fourths are foreign-born, or the children of foreigners. There are 15,000 Italians, 13,000 Jews, and almost every nationality is represented in her mixed population. Substantially one-half of the population are Roman Catholics and the Episcopal churches have taken no part in the campaign.

At a glance one will see the futility of attacking such a city without the best laid schemes and wisest possible plans for winning it to Christ.

What was done? The Sunday School Times gives these facts:

"During the eight weeks that the cottage prayer-meeting campaign was in progress, 3,377 meetings were held in Paterson alone, with hundreds more in neighboring towns. At least one thousand have professed conversion in the prayer-meetings which have covered the city for the past eight weeks. Workers with the Sunday party say that they have never seen a campaign better organized, and have never seen as great results before Mr. Sunday began his work. One church has received so many accessions, and so many more are promised, that its leading members have taken the preliminary steps for the organization of another church in another locality, preferring this method to erecting an addition to the present edifice, which has been occupied only a few years."

More than this: Every employed man and woman in the stores, factories, offices and other places of Paterson was visited by a personal worker before Mr. Sunday arrived to begin his work. The result was that before the regular evangelistic services began there have been hundreds of accessions to the Sunday schools, congregations at the churches have almost doubled, and Bible classes have sprung up throughout the city.

This on a large scale is what the evangelist is doing in modern times. He is an organizer, a campaigner, a man who knows how to get others to work in winning souls to Christ.

The note in modern evangelism is that of personal work—carrying the invitation by word of mouth to the individual, one by one—won by one. The layman as well as the minister, the business man as well as the evangelist, have learned, or are learning, the words of the wise man who said, "He that winneth souls is wise." (Prov. 11:30.)

"A PORTRAIT"

Last Sunday's Greensboro Daily News paints the following striking picture of the present Kaiser of Germany, which brings one into a meditative mood about the infinite innocence of babyhood and the terrible ordeal of manhood:

"Our darling grandchild was brought in. Such a little love! He came walking in at Mrs. Hobbs' (his nurse) hand in a little white dress with black bows, and was so good!"

"Do you recognize him? Well, it is not a matter for wonder if you do not. That, friends and readers, is a portrait of William, by the grace of God emperor of Germany, and by his own achievements war lord of Europe. The letter was written by Queen Victoria and—strangest coincidence of all—was addressed to her uncle, the king of the Belgians. The emperor was at that time 18 months old.

"Little did the fond grandmother think that when he had exchanged the little white dress with black bows for the mailed fist and the iron-shod boots, he would wrestle with another grandson of hers for the mastery of the world. Little did the recipient of the letter think that those baby feet were destined to trample his own kingdom into ruin. We never realize the possibilities that are bound up in the tiny mite of humanity that laughs and coos in our arms; and when the circling years have brought us round to the time when the mighty man holds the world in his grip we always look back with a sense of incredulity to other days."

That mother does not live who can calculate the powers and possibilities of "the tiny mite of humanity that laughs and coos" in her arms. One almost wonders if the end and we too lay laughing and cooing in our mothers' we too lay laughing and cooing our mothers' arms; and that youth and age are secondary and after-events which follow, as the night the day, the more glorious events of babyhood.

Christ, at any rate, gave to childhood praise and glory and emphasis that He withheld from maturity. And we shall have to become as a child again if we are counted worthy of the fellowship of those who dwell for aye in the celestial city.

The glories of childhood! We shall know them never more until we awake in His likeness and see Him as He is.

JOY

To those who seek to know the will of God, and do it, there are in the Bible more than eleven hundred promises. One good promise from a true and trusted friend makes the heart glad. How about a thousand and more from the best Friend any one ever had? Is there any wonder that the Christian's heart is filled with joy, and that under troubles and worries and dangers and difficulties he goes singing and praising God for His goodness, and His wonderful works to the children of men?

Moreover, the outlook of the Christian is one of hope, bright, beautiful, buoyant hope. He knows in Whom he has put his trust, and he knows that that One is able to keep, against that day, all that has been entrusted to Him. The Christian knows full well that if his little scheme goes wrong today his Father's plans will not go wrong, and will work out all right in the end. If today seems dark and dreary and fraught with disappointments he knows that the good day will come because the day belongs to God and He will order it all right.

The Christian's heart is filled with joy because he knows he is secure. Many dangers and difficulties arise but he knows that his Father's strength is sufficient. A Scotch lad was importuned by a botanist to descend into a deep precipice to pluck, from the yawning depths, a specimen of a very rare plant. The boy hesitated on undertaking so hazardous a task, till this reply came: "I will go down after the plant, sir, if you will get my father to hold the rope." The Christian's joy in time of danger is evident because he knows that his Father holds the rope.

TROUBLE

We all have them. They come in spite of ourselves. We think ours the worst and the most numerous. There are three ways of dealing with them, and only three: Forget them; worry over them; conquer them. Those who deal with them in the first way mentioned are negligent and indifferent; the second are indolent and ineffectual; the third courageous and Christ-like. "Cast thy burden upon the Lord, and he shall sustain thee: he shall never suffer the righteous to be moved." Psa. 55: 22.) "By doing the work which God has given us to do and leaving the results to God," says Lyman Abbott, "we conquer all forms of anxiety, care, and worry." The secret of Christ's peace was the prayer, "Thy will be done." And the same may be the secret and source of our peace.

IT TOUCHES US

An English Bishop the other day watched a number of men file out of their workshops. Stopping one of the most intelligent looking of the number the Bishop put him this question: "What are your sentiments about the Church?" The laborer's reply was: "The Church don't touch us, sir, no more than the moon." The laborer was mistaken. The church does touch us. (So does the moon, with its mellow and reflected light, its glorious glow, its winsome halo.) The church touches every man in Christendom; adds to the material welfare, makes better morals, enhances the value of property, and gives to all who will touch it a new vigor and a greater vision. The man may not touch the church, but the church touches him. We live in the light of the church, even if we are too blind to see its rays or too ungrateful to acknowledge its benefits. "That was the true Light, which lighteth every man that cometh into the world." (John 1:9.)

NOTES AND PERSONALS

—Methodist Protestant Herald: "Bro. A. O. Lindley has a school closing May 13-16. President Harper of Elon College is to preach the annual sermon on Sunday, May 16." They will get Dr. Harper in as preacher in spite of himself.

—Rev. G. D. Hunt, Pastor, is to dedicate the new church building at La Grange, Ga., Sunday, May 16. See program of exercises elsewhere. Rev. H. W. Elder is to preach the dedicatory sermon. "Our work here moves well at this time," writes Bro. Hunt. "We receive new members at nearly every service."

—Miss Mamie Sue Holland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Holland, of Suffolk, was united in marriage to Mr. William Vaught Leathers, of Holland, Va., Thursday p. m., April 29, 1915. We heartily congratulate Mr. Leathers and extend best wishes to the charming bride. Miss Mamie was an exceedingly popular student while at Elon College and is a most excellent Christian woman, active in church and missionary circles. Mr. Leathers is the esteemed cashier of the Holland, Va., Bank.

—The reckless drivers of automobiles and motor-cycles are getting in their work and the toll of dead and wounded is appalling. Fatalities are so numerous and commonplace that notices of them are not printed save for the immediate locality in which they occur, and yet scarcely a daily paper comes without bringing an account of one or more wrecks, turn-overs or collisions, with two or three fatalities resulting. The death list for this Summer from automobile wrecks in the United States will go into the thousands and much higher than ever before because cars are more in use all the while. Why will not men and women who handle these powerful machines be more careful of their lives and of the lives of others?

—People want a preacher "to be an intelligent man and a man with gumption enough to administer congregational affairs." But the increasing cry is for a spiritually minded man along with the other things. This thought is one of the "submarines" launched by George Wharton Pepper, LL. D., a lawyer of nationwide reputation, in a series of lectures on preaching delivered at Yale last month entitled, "A Voice from the Crowd." The exclusive serial rights to publish the heart of this series of lectures has been granted to The Sunday School Times, an every-week religious publication. A post card request addressed to The Sunday School Times, Philadelphia, will bring a three-weeks' free trial of that paper containing a detailed announcement of this series of articles.

—Besides his occupation as college teacher and president, sufficient for any man, President W. A. Harper is in constant demand as speaker at religious, social and educational gatherings. Among the engagements he has filled within the last few weeks were addresses at Haw River High School, Silk Hope Academy, Fuller's Church (Home Coming Day), Liberty High School, Bolton High School, S. S. Rally M. P. Church, High Point, Macon and Pinnacle High Schools. Engagements to fill within the next few days are at Siler City High School, Walnut Cove High School, Shallowell (Memorial Day), New Hill (Rally Day), and Rural Hall High School. Dr. Harper meets these speaking engagements and keeps up his herculean tasks at the college. His is the strenuous life indeed.

—The gospel of cleanliness should be preached by all men and women everywhere these fine opening days of Spring. If any SUN reader hasn't had "clean-up day" about the premises it is high time he was getting busy. Swat the fly and the other germ-breeding and disease carrying pests a few weeks before they are born. It will save trouble and expense and maybe keep a heavy doctor's bill off the budget of Summer expenses. You owe it to your neighbor, who likes this good and beautiful world and wants to keep on living in it, to institute and vigorously observe clean-up day. A little fire at the trash pile and among the debris will now be relished by the best and busiest men. The children should not be compelled to eat out of the same plate with the germ-laden house flies all Summer. It is a risk too hazardous.

—No one regrets to see THE SUN minimized more than I do. This cheapens the paper, curtails its usefulness, and holds a check upon the church which it fosters. But having had a little experience in financing papers, knowing the attitude of a great many persons toward their church paper, and having handled the books of THE SUN for a period of seven months, I am not surprised at the action; I am surprised that the action did not come sooner. There should be a movement among our people from center to circumference in the Southern Christian Convention to make our paper equal to and exceed the best of religious journals in the South. We can if we would, but it seems that we are not doing it. I can do without a meal, but I cannot go without reading every issue of THE SUN, and my relish for the Herald of Gospel Liberty is on the same footing.—C. B. RIDDLE.

SUFFOLK LETTER

April 29 was notable in the A. T. Holland home in Suffolk. All that springtime and human taste and hands could do had turned the beautiful home into a garden. Amid this scenic loveliness subdued electric lights mingled with green and pink like stars in heaven's blue. It was Mamie's marriage day. Friends crowded the rooms and halls. Miss Josephine Lawrence presided at the piano. Benyans rendered Sigmund's Love Song on the violin, and accompanied J. C. West and wife in "I Live and Love Thee."

Helen Hart, Antoinette Darden, Marguerite Leathers, and Margaret Beale West were ribbon girls. B. C. Brite, Jesse D. McClenny, Julius D. Rawles, and J. T. Jones were ushers.

Miss Thompsie Holland, and Miss Nell Gray of Waverly were bridesmaids. Mrs. J. D. Gray of Waverly was matron of honor. Little Mary Kelley of Norfolk was ring-bearer.

The fortunate groom, William V. Leathers, Cashier of the Bank of Holland, entered with his brother, F. T. Leathers, of Windsor, and the bride entered from an opposite direction with the maid of honor, her sister Virgie. Schubert's Serenade was rendered softly on the piano and violin during the ceremony, and Mendelssohn's Wedding March at the close.

The happy pair left at once for an extended Northern bridal tour and will reside in Holland upon their return.

The bridal presents were numerous, useful, and beautiful. The out-of-town guests were many.

Miss Mamie Holland was a town favorite, prominent in church work, King's Daughters, and a most successful Sunday school teacher. Her influence with young girls was as potent as it was useful. The Girls' Missionary Society under her care was a great factor in the active life of the church. I have taken this much space in the paper because Miss Mamie was such a useful worker in the church. We shall miss her; but Suffolk's loss will be Holland's gain, and I know Brother Black will welcome her.

Rev. Victor Lightbourne opened the evangelistic services in the Suffolk Christian church yesterday with two fine sermons to two good congregations. He greatly pleased his audiences with his chaste language, his good spirit, and his Biblical teaching. He witnesses for the Master in terms of a new life. His message bears the marks of a spirit-sent lesson of love. It is raining this morning, but everything needs it and it may help rather than hinder the meeting.

ELON COLLEGE NOTES

The beauty of the campus this Spring surpasses any previous record in the recollection of the oldest citizens. The lateness of the Spring and the thorough cleaning, with the planting of shrubs and flowers in many places, have also assisted. It is a pity that a landscape gardener cannot be employed to lay the campus out to best advantage.

The Ladies' Club of the town is moving to get things clean and keep them so. They have provided a general clean-up day for May 11. They have sent the merchants a note on how to keep their stores and premises clean. It takes moral courage—the highest type of courage—to put such measures through, but women have always exhibited higher bravery than men give them credit for.

Dr. John H. Mills, Washington, D. C., a world-traveller and an authority on Missions, gave a splendid lecture on "China—Its Progress and Prospects," last Tuesday evening.

On Wednesday of last week Dr. S. P. Copen, Specialist in Higher Education of the U. S. Bureau of Education, gave Elon a thorough inspection. He expressed himself as well pleased with the spirit and sincerity of things. At the chapel hour time was given him for an address on The New Education. He spoke of vocational training, child-welfare, physical culture and hygiene, and extension work is its dominant characteristics. He should have added religious culture. There is no doubt that this must be added and he admitted its necessity in private discussion following the address.

Miss Urquhart's Dramatic Class, consisting of fourteen ladies, gave an excellent play on Thursday evening to a crowded auditorium.

On Saturday evening Miss Wilson's certificate pupils gave their Spring term recital. A good audience gave strict attention. Every participant did well. The persons appearing were Misses Annie Simpson, Jennie Willis Atkinson, Gertrude Mason, Madge Moffitt, with Mrs. V. L. Wyant.

It is certainly gratifying to find the Elon folks doing well a noble part in every locality where they are at work. The writer chanced last week to make a little tour to Eastern Carolina and to stop in three towns. At Macon he found Prof. Herbert Scholz, the most popular and efficient citizen of a splendid community, leading a campaign for a $10,000 new school building. At Norlina Prof. W. H. Fleming is doing likewise for a $12,000 building. Prof. D. C. Holt at Vaughan is reflecting honor upon his Alma Mater. At Durham, Dr. W. H. Boone, a trustee, was not only ministring to a large and growing practice, but lecturing as a side-line before a learned society on cystitis, whatever that might be. The real test of an institution's efficiency is the work of its Alumni. This test Elon does not dread, but welcomes most heartily.

Senior examinations begin on Monday, the 10th; the general examinations on the 17th; and commencement on the 22nd.

Miss Toshio Sato, our Japanese girl, sang a solo at the Woman's Missionary Rally in Greensboro on Sunday.

On Friday evening of this week Miss Annie Laurie Wicker is to give her diploma recital in Expresson. Miss Ruth Johnson, organist, will assist her. On Saturday evening the diploma recital in voice by Mr. Marmaduke Woodward and in piano by Miss Francis McNeil will occur. Our friends are invited to both these programs and are assured of a good time.

Dr. Lawrence is at home and doing well. Dr. Herndon is up and around the house. Mrs. Brannock is to be home this week. We rejoice in the goodness of the Lord in His gracious restoration of these friends.

The College has welcomed many visitors the past week, as usual. There is not space for individual mention. May they all come again, and again, and again, and their friends with them.

Friends of the Publishong House will find it to their advantage to send it their orders for Bibles, Song Books, and other religious books. And if you want a real nice job of printing you will be pleased with the product from this house.

"NO MAN CARED FOR MY SOUL" (Ps. 142:4.)

I wonder if we really care for the souls of men, and how much? How much do we care whether men live and die without the gospel message? I am thinking about Brazil with its 21,000,000, with only one Protestant mission station near the mouth of the Amazon and not a missionary in all that territory thru which the Amazon and its tributaries flow; the 370 tribes with different languages in the Amazon basin untouched with the gospel. Has their tremendous need of Christ ever weighed upon your heart? Did you ever really pray for them? American capitalists sunk more money in one copper mine in South America before they took a dollar out of that mine than all the Protestant Christians of the world have ever invested in the redemption of South America. How much a year are you actually investing in lost souls which have never heard the gospel? South America is looking to us for Christ. It can be taken for Christ if we will furnish the missionaries and the funds. We owe them help in their search for intellectual light. Immorality runs through all South American life and male chastity is practically unknown; and the few chaste mourn the awful condition and are pleading for our aid in their dire battle for moral purity. They are pleading for a response to their brotherly call, and we owe them Christ and spiritual salvation. The generations of South America die as we die and they need Him now, they cannot wait until after they are dead.

Oh, how we need to make a strong base of our Porto Rico work as a midway station to South America. Brethren of the Christian Church, do you care? How much do you care? Is it burning in your heart? Has it reached your purse? Is it rooted in your prayer life? Remember our action at the Southern Christian Convention taken most deliberately, an offering from our church averaging one cent per member per week for missions abroad. Look up the number of names on your church roll and multiply that by 52 cents each and see what it will be for foreign missions. Do not wait, for one year has now passed since the Convention took that action.

Are you reading the splendid letters from our new missionary to Porto Rico, Miss Olive Williams, as she writes to The Herald of Gospel Liberty, THE CHRISTIAN SUN, The Christian Missionary? They are not duplicates, but are all different messages, and you should read them all, and let the need of our Porto Rico work weigh upon your heart. "No man cared for my soul." Do you care? How much?

WARREN H. DENISON,

Chairman Foreign Mission Com., S. C. C. Norfolk, Va.

THE FORWARD MOVEMENT

There are about fifty ministers and laymen among us that have promised to pray daily or regularly for the success of the Forward Movement of the Christian Church. If we shall have a forward movement that will be a success it will come this way. Every forward movement that has really come in the great work of the Kingdom of God upon the earth has had its birth in the closet of prayer. It was there the modern missionary movement was born, the Student Volunteer, the Laymen's Missionary, the Men and Millions, and all the other movements of similar character. Shall we, of the Christian Church, have a FORWARD MOVEMENT that shall bring us into the place of power and service that our Lord would have us occupy? My dear brethren, it is up to us. We can have it if we will go into the closet of prayer with our Lord and stay long enough for Him to make known to us His will. He can unite us in the great work that we should undertake for the publishing of His gospel, both in the home land and in the foreign lands. Would not the heart of our gracious Lord and Master be grieved should we fail Him in His plans for us? He evidently waits to give unto the church we claim to love so well a LARGER PROSPERITY and A RICHER FRUITAGE. How long will we keep Him waiting? He calls us now into the closet of prayer with Himself. Can we afford to refuse Him his blessed request? How many of our brethren and sisters will drop us a postal or write us a letter signifying their purpose to join the army of those who will pray daily or regularly for a FORWARD MOVEMENT IN THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH?

J. W. HARRELL, Chairman.

823 Home Ave., Dayton, Ohio.

ARE YOU TAKING IT TO HEART?

Does the cry of neglect, need, urgency, crisis, multitudes, all calling for the gospel, weigh upon your heart? Do you care that in South America there is only one Protestant worker for every 83,000 population, a field of 12,450 square miles, or nine times the size of Rhode Island? Do you care that the illiteracy in that great continent is from 50% to 90% in the different countries? Are you aware that three out of every four in that continent will never hear the gospel from a Protestant missionary in any adequate way in their generation unless we greatly multiply our missionary force, and how much do you care?

Are you stirred with the fact that Africa has 100,000,000 people without a written language or an alphabet of their own; or that each missionary averages a parish with 46,000 population and with over 3,600 square miles? Do you care that in Africa there is a section four times the size of the State of New York that has no missionary; and another section three times as large as all New England; and another eight times as large as Iowa with no missionary, while Iowa has some 4,000 ordained ministers; another section 1,500 miles by 500 miles with no missionary; do you take it to heart that there are 50,000,000 people in Africa for whom nobody has yet planned at all to give the gospel? Is it anything to you who have been blessed with the light and gift of salvation that 119,000,000 of souls are not even planned for by any denomination, and that there are other millions that may have been planned for but for whom nothing has yet been done? Has it weighed upon your soul that 500,000,000 of human souls will pass into Christless graves in this generation without having heard of Christ unless at once we send many missionaries and back them up with our money and prayer life? Is not this enough to send us to our knees in humility, and help us to arise and lay our treasure upon the altar of sacrifice? One year ago now the Southern Christian Convention in deliberate action pledged itself to raise larger finances for missions abroad than ever, and after due deliberation set its stake at raising as much as one cent per week for each enrolled member of our churches on an average. The conferences reported a membership of 22,785 at the fall conferences which would mean $11,848 for foreign missions each year. What are you and your church doing to increase your offerings and help to make them count up to the determination we have set? Meeting your conference apportionment will not do more than one-seventh of it even if every church reaches its full apportionment. God is calling us to larger things, our new missionary has gone to Porto Rico, the Garmans are now arriving in Japan, the Mission Board is counting on us. We told them to enlarge the work and we would back it up with our money and prayers. Is the thing on your heart, is it weighing upon you, are you trying to stir your church to immediate action, have you agonized in prayer for it? Have you submitted any plan to your people, are you talking about it with the brethren, or are you too busy in other things to give attention to it. Will you write the committee your plans, and tell us of your co-operation, make suggestions, join us in prayer?

Foreign Mission Committee, S. C. C.,

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON, May 9 Friendship of David and Jonathan.— 1 Sam. 20.

Jonathan loved David from the time of the victory over Goliath. In David, Jonathan had found a character like himself. One that could put his trust in Jehovah. Jonathan remembered when on a like occasion he and his armor bearer gained a victory over the Philistines. It is a little surprising that Jonathan fell in love with David when David was taking the place of a prince. Yet it is not hard to understand when we consider that Jonathan looked deeper than worldly things were concerned; he felt the richness there was in David's heart.

The more Jonathan found out about David's living conditions the more he loved him. David was simple, true, honorable, yet a shepherd—a position lower than that of a prince so far as ruling a people was concerned. Many times do we meet a stranger and are very much impressed with him. Then when we find out that his social standing, as we see it, is not as high as ours, we at once drop him. We find no fault with the heart, we have not tried the string that binds to see if it is worth wrapping our cares. No, we sever it. Jonathan tried the string and found it worth while. We suggest that if we will try Jonathan's plan and give the stranger a chance there will be developed friendships that were never dreamed of.

Jonathan's friendship was of a strong character; it had to withstand the rebukes of his father. He loved a man whom his father desired to kill.

Some Things Said About Friendship
"Friendship is loving another for that other's own sake, and not for what that other is to the one who loves. Friendship consists in loving, rather than being loved. Friendship consists in being a friend, not in having a friend; in giving one's affection unselfishly and unwaveringly to another, not in being the object of another's affection."

I consider beyond all wealth, honor, or even health, is the attachment due to noble souls; because to become one with the good, generous and true, is to be, in a manner, good, generous and true yourself.—Dr. Arnold.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR, MAY 9 Why I Am Proud of My Denomination. Rev. 3:7-13. (Led by the Pastor.)

The pastor will make his own outline of the program of the meeting better than one we might suggest, for different conditions and circumstances prevail in different localities. However, the pastor in his remarks should not try to exhaust the subject from every point of view and try to give all the salient points of his denomination. He should think of the members who are anxious to give some of the reasons why they like the denomination to which they are partial. This can be made an interesting and instructive meeting.

The denominations sprang from differences in opinion; it might have been in a church or society. Have a member to give the history of the denomination. Why was it formed and how it has carried out the purpose of its organization.

With profit you can have members name the sleeping heroes of your denomination and tell what they did for the denomination. Also have named the great men of the denomination who are living and their peculiar strength; whether it be in the pulpit, in the world of literature, on mission boards, in the foreign field, etc.

Old religious factions are volcanoes burnt out; on the lava and ashes and squalid scorie of old eruptions, grow the peaceful olive, the cheering vine, and the sustaining corn.—Edmund Burke.

It is not the actual differences of Christian men that do the mischief, but the mismanagement of these differences.—P. Henry.

O, for less of an abstract, controversial Christianity, and more of a living, loving, personal Christ.—Richard Fuller.

For Answer in the Meeting
Why are proud of your denomination?

How can you learn about your denomination?

Name one great leader of your denomination.

For what special truths does your denomination stand?

Our faculty this Summer will include many of those who were with us last season and a goodly number of new ones. Among the new ones already announced are Dr. John MacCalman for the "Bible Hour," Dr. W. G. Sargent with "Messages to the Pastors," Dr. F. G. Coffin on "Church Efficiency and Leadership." In this message we take pleasure in announcing that

Rev. O. B. Whittaker, D. D.,
Glencoe, Florida,

Will be one of the strong speakers and lecturers this year. He will speak at least four times. The themes already assigned to him are the Opening Sermon Monday night, the 19th, the closing sermon Sunday night, the 25th, and one of the mid-day religious lectures, and one of the night Chautauqua lectures. He is one of the widely known men among us. Was President of Union Christian College and of Waublean Christian College. He is the author of "Herbert Brown," which had eleven additions in six years; also of "Dick Haley," a most interesting story. He has just finished writing another book, "Evenings With Uncle Bijah, or Christian Fellowship." He is an orator and scholar. Do not fail to hear Dr. Whittaker. Do not let any ordinary matter keep you from the School of Methods.

GRAHAM LETTER

Our meeting began on the night of April 8 in the Graham Christian church. Rev. Victor Lightbourne was with us and conducted the meeting. The interest was good from the very beginning, and by Monday night the congregation had grown too large for the church and we moved the meeting to the court house. Our first service here was characterized by much interest and a large congregation. Every night the large court house was filled to its utmost capacity, and at the closing service many were turned away.

The music conducted by Rev. and Mrs. Lightbourne was very interesting indeed, and the people came early in order to hear it. Mrs. Lightbourne charmed the great audiences with her beautifully rendered solos, and many were made to feel their need of the Christ as she sang to them so effectively her gospel messages. The special violin solos rendered by Evangelist Lightbourne brought forth many complimentary remarks from the leading musicians of our town, and added much to the interest of the meetings.

We were especially fortunate in securing the services of the music teacher here in our Graham High School, Miss Greenfield, who rendered invaluable service at the piano. She is indeed an accomplished musician and is making good in her chosen line of work.

All Graham was charmed and helped by the convincing and instructive sermons by the young evangelist, and many impressions were made that will never be forgotten.

A special service was held for the school children on the afternoon of the 15th, at which time a great many of the children made decisions for Christ. This was a real sweet service, and the presence of the Spirit was very evident.

As to the number of professions I do not know, but there were a great many, and much good was accomplished, for which we give God the glory, and thank Bro. and Sister Lightbourne for the valuable service rendered our town.

The meeting closed on the third Sunday night, and the highly esteemed evangelist and his wife left on Monday for their home in Elon College, and Graham wishes them well and prays God's richest blessing upon them in their great work of winning men to Christ.

We expect to receive a number of additions into the churches next Sunday as a result of the meeting.

J. F. MORGAN.

LURAY LETTER

We have had a long, severe Winter, which somewhat hindered active church work. With the coming of Spring we felt glad and encouraged to press on with greater zeal. Since our last letter we have held revival services with the Bethlehem church. Rev. J. F. Morgan did the preaching. It was indeed a pleasure to have Bro. Morgan with us. We were members of the same church (Big Oak) and had labored together in several series of meetings; so we rejoiced to be together again. He preached strong, earnest sermons that went straight to the heart of the hearer. The visible results were: 11 converts, with 9 accessions. The church was revived, and we trust lasting good was accomplished.

Work with my other churches moves steadily along. Congregations have not been so large during the winter months, but we trust the normal will be reached soon. We missed the services in March at Newport and East Liberty on account of sickness.

I love THE SUN none the less because of reduced size, but hope it will soon be full size again.

R. L. WILLIAMSON.

HEADACHES

There are several different kinds of headaches classified according to their causes.

And whether induced by nervous disorders, or disorders of the digestive organs, or disorders of the blood, they are alike very unpleasant symptoms.

Headaches are something more than symptoms, for the pain reacts upon itself and grows worse if not relieved.

It is fortunate that relief can usually be obtained by the use of Mentholatum externally applied to the forehead and temples and within the nostrils.

This usually gives relief and avails resort to the use of opiates and anodynes.

Mentholatum can do no harm.

As a delicate counter irritant it is useful in giving relief in all classes of headaches is well known.

The causes of the headaches should, however, be determined and a general systematic treatment should be adopted to rectify the conditions which cause them.

Mentholatum also has a wide range of usefulness for sunburn, scalds, burns, bruises, insect bites and stings, summer colds and other forms of inflammation.

A CORRECTION

The following letter will explain itself. For some reason the church letter, or annual report, from Mt. Pleasant church did not get into the hands of the Secretary. I am very sorry I did not get it, for I am sure no one is more anxious to get reports from all churches than is the Conference Secretary. I hope the publishing of the following letter from Bro. Autry, the Secretary of Mt. Pleasant church, will be entirely satisfactory to all parties concerned.

I would have been more than glad to publish the report from the said church, if such report had not been lost before it reached me. I have looked through my reports and do not find one from Mt. Pleasant. However, we are very glad to let the conference know through the following letter that this church does have a report, and is doing work for the Master.

J. F. MORGAN,

Conference Secretary.

Rev. J. F. Morgan,
Graham, N. C.

Dear Sir:—We wish to have you correct a mistake through THE CHRISTIAN SUN that has been made. I have been informed by our pastor that our church, Mt. Pleasant, has no credit in the Annual for any work done in 1914. He says it is a blank line all the way through, and we wish the Conference to know that we had service at our church and paid the pastor in full which was $60.00 and raised about $45.00 for other purposes and sent in $8.00 for our church apportionment as follows: Schools and Colleges . . . $2.50
General Convention Fund . . . 1.50
Home Missions 2.50
Foreign Missions 1.00
Conference Fund25
Superannuated Fund25
Total $8.00

BEULAH CHURCH (Girard, Ala.)

The Ladies' Aid since organization about one year ago has done wonderful work in this church. They have with some outside assistance moved the pulpit to the rear end of the church, bought a new heater, bought a new carpet, put a new cover on the church, and have had it newly painted. May God bless every one of these good women and crown their every effort with success.

Preaching every 2nd and 4th Sundays by the pastor, and every 1st and 3rd Sundays by Bro. H. W. Prickett. Our S. S. is also increasing. God has wonderfully blessed us all at this place.

S. S. AND C. E. CONVENTION

The S. S. and C. E. Convention of the N. C. and Va. Christian Conference will meet this year at Elon College, N. C., Tuesday after 2nd Sunday in July, and will be in session three days. We hope that every S. S. within the bounds of the Convention will be represented. In order to do this, Bro. Supt., don't wait until the 2nd Sunday in July to tell your people about the Convention. We want this to be the biggest and most successful session of this Convention, and in order that we may do this we must have the co-operation of the pastors and Supts. of the schools.

We feel sure that Elon will be the ideal place for the Convention. Dr. Harper, in inviting the Convention, said that there was a campus of 25 acres and a deep well, and if the people would come the good people of Elon would feed them even if they had to graze them on the campus. So we are assured you will be welcome. Let each and all plan to come, or have some one come in your place.

WAKEFIELD NOTES

While it has been a while since this section has been heard from through THE SUN, we are still at work here. The bad weather and bad roads have had their effect on our congregations and work thru the Winter, but our congregations are much better since Spring has opened. Very few appointments were missed on account of the bad weather and roads, but we felt that our work was retarded thereby. The closing down of the Dendron mills for about four months last Summer and Fall has been felt by the church as well as in many other things in and around Dendron. We are trusting that the Lord will take care of his work even through times of business depression and bring out of it good to his people.

The church at Dendron is arranging to hold a revival some time in the not far distant future. New Lebanon has set apart week following the third Sunday in August as the time of meeting. Five members have united with Wakefield church since conference, four by letter and one on confession of faith. Three have united with Burton's Grove. A very interesting program is about prepared for our Sunday School Convention to be held at Antioch in July. Bro. J. H. Blanchard, of Norfolk, Va., has this work in charge and will bring out a very interesting program. Let all our speakers and schools arrange to make this one of our most interesting and profitable conventions. Let all of our schools begin now to arrange for a good report. R. H. PEEL.

to a newspaper critic after having used it in concert, and for private rehearsal.

Copied from "The Dispatch," York, Pa., March 2, 1912. "Miss Neilsen used one of the Colonial style 20 Weaver Pianos in her room at the hotel for private rehearsals. She remarked afterwards: 'It is a dear little Piano, a lovely instrument. It suited me exactly and I mean it.'

"The Weaver Grand used for the Concert in the Opera House, was not one of the large size Concert Grands, but the tone appeared to be larger than the Piano. Mr. E. Romayne Simmons, the marvelous accompanist, demonstrated the class of the Weaver Piano when he drew from it effects that can only be produced by a great Artist with a great Piano. Such extremes of light and shade, of legato and staccato, of brilliancy and sympathetic delicacy are seldom found combined in one Piano. Mr. Simmons said, 'It is a great Piano.'"

OUR DEAD

Whitmore

Claudius Wesley Whitmore died at the residence of his son, J. P. Whitmore, Dendron, Va. April 20, 1915, aged about 82 years. Though he has been failing for some time, his last sickness lasted only a few days. He was a member of Ansley's Methodist church for some years. When Union (Surry) was organized he became a charter member of that church and remained a loyal consistent member until time of his death. He served as deacon for a number of years.

He was married three times. All three wives preceded him to the spiritland. He leaves one son by his first wife and four by his second.

Funeral services were conducted by the writer in the presence of a large gathering of friends at Union church.

R. H. PEEL.

Holland

Mills Everett Holland was born Feb. 4, 1845, in Nansemond Co., Va. He came to Newport News, Va. March 12, 1906, where he had since lived. On April 16, he was stricken with paralysis, and after lingering for nine days he departed this life April 24, 1915, aged 70 years, 2 months and 9 days. During his illness he spoke only a few words, and sang, so as to be understood, a part of the song, "When the Roll is Called up Yonder." He was a member of the East End Christian Church, and though feeble, was often an attendant at the services.

On Jan. 2, 1870, he was married to Miss Mary L. Baker, who survives him. To this union were born seven children, four of whom are still living: M. C., of Suffolk, Va.; C. E., Mrs. J. F. Rountree, and Woodlie, of Newport News. He leaves also two brothers, four sisters, and fifteen grandchildren. The funeral service was held at 2 p. m., April 26, after which the body was laid to rest in Greenlawn Cemetery.

W. D. HARWARD.

Frazier

Miss Viola Elizabeth Frazier died at her home in Elktion, Va., April 10. She held the position as principal of the Holy Neck High School until about three weeks before her death. She was an active worker in the school, church and community in which she taught. She was a most excellent young lady, having the confidence and esteem of all who knew her. Therefore be it resolved by representatives from the C. E., Baraca and Darden O'Berry classes: First, That she will be greatly missed by the Christian Endeavor, which she organized, and of which she was president.

Second—That the Sunday school has lost one of its best teachers, she having taught the Darden O'Berry Class and being teacher of the Baraca Class. Her Christian influence over its members will ever be remembered.

Third—That we extend to the bereaved family our sincere sympathy for them in their affliction, and pray that God's richest blessings may abide with them.

Fourth—That a copy of these resolutions be recorded in the minutes of the Christian Endeavor, Baraca and Darden O'Berry classes, and a copy be sent to the family.

MRS. J. V. GATLING,
MISS CARRIE ABELI,

Wright

Whereas, our heavenly Father has seen fit to call from our midst our beloved sister, Mary Wright, to the home in His kingdom above, therefore be it

Resolved: First—That by her death Concord church loses a loyal member, the community a kind and obliging neighbor, and her kindred a devoted and self-sacrificing friend and relative. While we mourn for the loss of our sister, still we bow in humble submission to the will of Him who doeth all things well.

Second—That we extend to her brother and sisters and relatives our sympathy and trust that our divine Father may comfort all hearts made sad by her decease.

Third—That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the church records, a copy be sent to her brother and sisters, and a copy be sent The Christian Sun for publication.

"IN ESSENTIALS UNITY, IN NON-ESSENTIALS LIBERTY, IN ALL THINGS CHARITY."

OUR PRINCIPLES.

- (1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the church.
- (2) Christian is a sufficient name for the church.
- (3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of church membership.
- (5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

Editorial Briefs

Rich

Are we poor? Emerson did not think so, and any of us may be as rich as he:

*"I am owner of the sphere,
The seven stars and the solar year,
Of Caesar's hand and Plato's brain,
Of Lord Christ's heart and Shakespeare's strain."*

The wise man thought as much when he wrote: "The blessing of the Lord, it maketh rich, and he addeth no sorrow with it." (Prov. 10:22.)

Not Father's Will

It is estimated that one hundred thousand children are at this moment starving to death as a direct result of the present war in Europe. It is further estimated that one million children have been orphaned already by the present war. War is the scourge of earth. Nothing escapes its blight, fields, forests, beasts, babies, youths, women, men, all manner of God's creation. That man yet engages in war proves beyond evil, man's alienation from and rebellion against God. "It is not the will of your Father which is in heaven, that one of these little ones should perish." (Matt. 18:14.)

The Divine Order Reversed

The American people, through their churches, contributed $73,000,000 last year for missions. Of the amount $55,000,000 were for home missions, and $18,000,000 for foreign missions. This says nothing of the $350,000,000 spent on church maintenance in the homeland. Besides the matter of church maintenance we are spending more than three dollars for missions at home for every one dollar spent abroad. This is evidently the divine order reversed. Churches will go at snail's pace, and be burdened with debt and faced with hard problems as long as the present order is kept up. Churches are trying to go forward in their selfishness as long as they give more to home than to foreign missions, and are seeking to make to none effect the teaching of Scripture which says: "For whosoever will save his life shall lose it, and whosoever will lose his life for my sake shall find it." The whosoever here applies to a church as well as to individuals. And then this divine teaching: "Verily, verily I say unto you, Except a corn of wheat fall into the grand and die, it abideth alone; but if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit." (John 12:24.)

Weary

A traveler recently found this inscription on a tombstone in a well-known churchyard: "I will arise, O Christ, when thou callest me; but O, let me rest awhile, for I am very weary." Evidently the writer had not taken Christ at His word, or did not understand. Many persons, in the flesh, do not understand, and remain away from Sunday school or church Sundays saying, "they are tired and want to rest." They only look at the earthly, the fleshly side of the situation; for nothing is more restful even to the body than communion with Christ. Look at His words: "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." (Matt. 11:28.)

The Call of the Deep

Erasmus, the scholar, thinker, intellectual, was unavailing to bring about the Reformation. There must come a man with a tongue of flame and a heart of fire to do that. Luther's heart achieved what Erasmus' brain could not initiate. "All great achievements for civilization are the achievements of heart," says a writer. Back of emancipation beat the great heart of Lincoln; back of the Black Continent awakening was the great heart called Livingstone. Back of the Sermon on the Mount throbs the great heart of the Christ. Man's creation was conceived in wisdom, 'tis true, but his redemption was wrought out in love. The deep things of God call to the deep things of man's soul through the heart. All the noise and wreck and rush about us are but the outward, the ornamentation. "Deep calleth unto deep at the noise of thy water-spouts." (Psa. 42:7.)

Pull and Power

A scientist wrote in a current journal recently (Harper's for April): "A great column of water makes a vertical fall of six hundred feet through a steel tube, and in the fall develops two hundred and fifty thousand horse power. The water comes out of the tunnel at the bottom precisely the same water that went in at the top; no change whatever has occurred in it, yet a vast amount of power has been taken out of it, or rather, generated by its fall." If the process were repeated and another drop of 600 feet were provided for a similar amount of power would be developed. Here is the strange and mysterious movement of 250,000 invisible horses, or their equivalent, pulling machinery or lighting houses, streets and cities. Back of all this is the pull of gravity. What made the water fall? Gravity carried it downward, as it had already lifted it upward. Gravity? That strange, unseen, invisible power! That is all the far science can carry. But faith goes farther: "God hath spoken once; twice have I heard this, that power belongeth unto God." (Psa. 62:11.)

Commercialized

"I am nearing thirty years of age, and am an accountant, but I had never known what it was to have a dollar of my own except on pay-day—after that—broke. And that for all these years." So wrote a convert, says an exchange, to Rev. Billy Sunday, the other day. "I have been through sin to the depths from the top and back again, and from the time I was seventeen years of age I had not seen the inside of a church till I was converted January 12 at your tabernacle. As a small expression of love and appreciation for what you have done for me by leading me to Christ and making me a new man, I enclose herewith my first check I've ever been able to make out (which would be cashed). I have never before, in all my life, had a dollar in the bank. It is not much now. It will be as the years roll on, if I live." His critics say Sunday is commercialized; out for the money he gets. But as long as his converts are commercialized as is this young man, let the critics croak. And there are thousands who can testify as he has. Religion of the right sort helps a young man's bank account. "Godliness is profitable unto all, having promise of the life that now is, and of that which is to come." (1 Tim. 4:8.)

Tools and the Man

Every industry discovers a great man; or better, back of the great industries is the man of the hour. Steel has its Carnegie Standard Gil and Rockefeller, electricity its Edison, meat-packing its Armour, automobile-making its Ford. And the greatest of these is Ford. In his company are 16,000 employees. And they all share in the profits of the concern. This is the Ford idea: "To make a life, not a mere living, for its men. To this, manhood and thrift are the requisites." There are a hundred persons employed to look after the moral habits and social conditions of employees. A share of profits is given every married man who lives with and takes care of his family; every single man, over 22 years of age, and of approved thrifty habits is given a share; and to every man or woman under 22 who is the sole support of blood relations. The share in the profits is distinct from the wages. Every man whose wages are up to 38 cents an hour, and who is qualified under the plan above mentioned, draws a total of $5 per day, wages and profits combined; those drawing from 38 to 48 cents an hour get $6; and those drawing more than 48 cents an hour, $7 the day. Here is the testimony since the Ford idea of profit-sharing went into effect one year ago: "The employees are buying homes, or lots, on which to build homes, depositing money in banks, paying old debts, cleaning up and dressing up, drinking less whiskey, going to church more, keeping out of the police courts more and being better every day." There are more people dying from disappointment, discouragement and despair, than from indulgence, pride and vanity. Broken-heartedness has slain its tens of thousands where big-headedness has slain its thousands. The average man needs a little lift, hope, encouragement, enthusiasm. This is why the prophet wrote of Christ saying: "He shall be as the shadow of a great rock in a weary land." (Isa. 32:2.)

SEEKING TO SAVE

Evangelism seems to be the issue of the hour. It was not always so. Time was when men, ministers, teachers, strove with one another to get their peculiar doctrines inculcated, their dogmas accepted, their creeds written into law of land and church. Those were heated times, and produced stalwart champions, and emphasized great truths.

But that day is gone. In this good time men, ministers, teachers are more interested in saving souls from sin than in what they may believe about certain truths of dogma or of doctrine. This day and time was bound to come because Christianity is not a theory; it is the revelation of a life. Life throbs and pulsates with energy, vigor, zeal and fervor. The life of Christ is for the healing of the nations. In Him, not in what one may think about Him for another, life, light, salvation.

The evangelism of our time is seeking to bring men and women into contact with this Life, not through some narrow avenue of man's making, but through the broad vista of a boundless Love and a growing Light.

This was the keynote of His preaching and teaching. He came to seek and to save that which was lost. There are lost men and women about us and only the pulsating, throbbing, living Power of God through Christ can save them. The effectual preacher and teacher of our day must therefore hold up to men and reveal to the world this Life.

What can we do for men? Seek to carry Christ to them, and to better their social condition. Along with evangelism is its twin sister, social service. Saving a man from his sin means saving him from his surroundings, putting him into a better and more wholesome atmosphere, condition, situation. We have come to learn that salvation means not belief only, but service. We show our belief in Christ by the way and manner in which we serve our fellowman. "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

THE LUSITANIA

On Friday, May 7, about 2 p. m., the English Cunard liner, the Lusitania, was struck by a torpedo from a German submarine off the coast of Ireland, and within twenty minutes went to the bottom. This vessel was one of the very finest and fastest afloat, being valued in round numbers at $10,000,000, and carrying a cargo of $750,000. There were 2160 persons on the ship when struck, about 650 of whom were saved. There were an unusual number of women and children aboard going to England from Canada to be near husbands and fathers who were engaged in the war. There were 188 Americans aboard, of whom only 51 were saved.

The excuse for the deed, on the part of Germany, is that the ship carried copper, munitions and other contraband of war and was sailing under the English flag in the war zone.

On the other hand, it is claimed that the occupants of the ship were non-combatants, were defenseless, that the ship was unarmed, and that according to all civilized and international law no enemy has the right to sink a ship until means of escape have been provided for its passengers, certainly of non-combatants and neutrals.

The deed seems a most heartless, appalling and inexcusable one on any ground. One cannot help feeling that Germany has gone too far in her zeal and is seeking to purchase victory at too high a price. Feeling is tense throughout the whole country, as people everywhere recognize that a horrible deed has been done, not to say an awful crime has been committed, in sending to a watery grave, and without warning, fifteen hundred souls, many of whom were women and children, and not a few of whom were neutrals and had no part or parcel in the present conflict. President Wilson and his cabinet have not yet made known the position of our Government; but it is felt that the situation will be dealt with with a firm, steady, humane hand and purpose.

JUDGE LINDSEY AND THE JUVENILES

CHRISTIAN SUN readers who have heard Judge Ben Lindsey of the Juvenile Court, Denver, Co., tell his experience with boys, will never forget the many varied and wonderful revelations of boy life, and will also ever remember the Judge's love for and belief in even wayward and truant boys. Judge Lindsey does not believe that all boys are bad; thinks that very few indeed are bad, until made corrupt and depraved by the wickedness of grown-up men and the heartless ways boys are dealt with. From The Expositor comes now a story of the Judge and one of his offending boys, Tim, that is interesting as showing the nobility of some boys at least. Tim's mother was dead, but he had been intensely devoted to her. After this sad event Tim lost interest in school and books, and was frequently in the hands of the police for not keeping school hours under the compulsory school law. The teacher kept complaining to the Judge that Tim was a truant from school; that he seemed determined to work and not to attend school. One day, in reproving him, the judge said: "Now, Tim, there will be time enough to work when you are a man." The boy replied like a flash, "My father was a man, and he didn't work. He went off and left mother and me, and I guess that's what killed her, too." Finally, after breaking every instruction, Tim appeared in court one day with a changed expression, his face ablaze with satisfaction. Walking up to the judge, he pulled from his pocket a dirty piece of paper, all crumpled up, and handed it up for inspection, saying: "I'm going to remember all the things you have told me now, Judge, and I am going to school regular now, for I've got that job all done." Judge Lindsey unrolled the paper and found it to be a receipted bill, and discovered that little by little poor Tim had actually paid with pennies and nickels, fifty dollars for a headstone for his mother's grave. "My boy, is that what you have been doing while you have been missing school so much?" said the judge; and Tim answered as he wiped the tears from his dirty little face: "I wanted her to have a monument, too, Judge, like the others had. She's done a lot for me; that's all I could do for her now."

Such an experience as the above is no unusual one with Judge Lindsey; he finds similar ones almost every day among the "street urchins" and outcasts of the city. No wonder Judge Lindsey has decided that a cruel world and evil men and wicked women make boys bad and drive them the downward ways. Some of the noblest sentiments ever experienced are those of early childhood. Christ also believed in children.

BASEBALL AND CHARACTER

In addressing a large audience recently, Catcher Ira Thomas, of the famous Philadelphia Athletics, uttered these significant words: "The day is past when a baseball player of bad character can get on in the game. Managers in signing up new players inquire, these days, about their character as well as about their ability at the game. Club owners want men whom they can trust morally and no more will they sit up nights waiting for their men to get in. Of that famous 'Hundred-Thousand Dollar Infield,' which won the pennant for the Athletics and which critics say to be the greatest baseball combination in history, there is not a man that ever knew the taste of liquor and but one who had ever used tobacco. Connie Mack himself has never used either liquor or tobacco. He never utters a profane word and no one else does in his presence. Men who are in baseball as a profession realize the value of a clean life, in helping make the most of that profession." No one can gainsay the fact that the clean life, morally and spiritually, is a real asset in the terrific race we are running in this strenuous time. The desire to achieve, if planted deep enough, makes one care for body, mind and soul. "Wherefore seeing we also are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us." (Heb. 12:1.)

NOTES AND PERSONALS

—Elon College Commencement this year, May 22-25. Let all interested take note of the changed and earlier date than heretofore.

—Our marriage notices elsewhere inform us of the recent marriage of Rev. Geo. D. Eastes, Third Church, Norfolk, to Miss Susie Elizabeth Morgan, of Portsmouth, Rev. H. E. Rountree officiating. We congratulate Bro. Eastes and wish for him and his highly accomplished bride all the joys of a long and happy wedded life.

—Rev. Dr. W. C. Wicker, pastor, reports a very largely attended Memorial Day at Shallowell church, Jonesboro, last Saturday. A great congregation was present and the occasion was appropriate and inspiring. Dr. W. A. Harper was present and made an able address at the morning service.

—Remember that the date of the Elon College Commencement is changed from that of former years. Heretofore it has been the first week of June. This year it occurs May 22-25—the closing day being Tuesday, May 25, on which day President Fairfax Harrison of the Southern Railway, Washington, will deliver the annual literary address, and the graduates will deliver their addresses and receive their diplomas.

—Rev. H. W. Elder, Richland, Ga., is bending every effort to build a handsome house of worship at Ambrose, Ga. Bro. T. J. Holland, formerly of Nansemond Co., Va., and now a very successful planter who lives at Ambrose, is greatly aiding Bro. Elder in his good work and is enthusiastic over the prospect of a church home at no distant date. It is wonderful what two or three real consecrated men or women can do in the way of church building when they make up their minds to try. God helps those who lay themselves on His altar for service.

—We congratulate Bro. J. M. Fix, Treas., and his associates, on their great showing for the Alamance Loan & Trust Co. at the close of business May 1. This banking house has won the esteem and confidence of the business men, not only of Burlington, but of an increasing constituency in the country and State, by its conservatism, fine business methods and universal courtesy. The capital stock is $100,000, surplus and profits $51,332.42, deposits $289,243.07. The loans and discounts were $346,421.18, with cash on hand and in banks $101,593.66. The institution has had wonderful growth, and deserves it.

—The editor is entirely well and exceedingly happy. Five hours on a glorious mill pond with a copious bait gourd, a friendly hook, a graceful pole, a melodious line, a cork that knew just when and how far to go under did the work. Our friend and brother, A. F. Smith—may he live long and prosper—does not believe that Dr. Staley is any more than a second or third rate fisherman compared to us—said so! We have forgiven the Doctor for all he ever said or did—we have decided he does the best he can. Fact is since last Wednesday at 11 a. m. we haven't had a hard thought or feeling against anything or anybody on the face of the earth. Take a day off, beloved, and find a fishing place somewhere. This advice is free and is intended for the good of the whole human race.

—We have the following from Miss Alice True, 410 Main St., Amesbury, Mass.: "Dear CHRISTIAN SUN Readers: Any church needing a second-hand organ may obtain one by paying the freight, by communicating with the undersigned. This is a Mason and Hamlin organ, well made, plain, but good case. It has two sets of keys and is made for a church or hall. The tone is good. The Amesbury church has been presented with a pipe organ by Deacon and Mrs. D. L. Bartlett. Mrs. Ellen Webster left her piano to the church for the prayer meeting room, and the Young People's Society had bought one for the S. S. room. So it has sufficient musical instruments without this older instrument. The trustees have voted to give it away to any needy church. If it is desired, write me or the pastor, Rev. Ralph English."

—The Methodist Protestant of Baltimore has this to say of a most excellent recent publication: "The Minister," a series of fine addresses by Rev. W. W. Staley, D. D., LL. D., price, 50 cents. The Christian Publishing Association, Dayton, O. This is a book of five chapters, the matured thought of a clean thinker, whose experience and ability as a preacher enable him to speak with authority on this subject. The chapters themselves have suggestive titles: 'The Minister in His Study,' 'The Minister in His Private Life,' 'The Minister in His Pulpit,' 'The Minister in His Community.' A fair and intelligent treatment of these subjects is sufficiently comprehensive to cover the entire ground. The reader soon finds that in the plainest English Doctor Staley diagnoses the case and gives the remedy. It is a book well worth careful reading."

COLLEGE DAYS.

I believe in annual "College Days," therefore I believe in an Elon College Day. I think all our colleges should have them. It gives a chance to present the cause of Christian education in general and the work and needs of our colleges in particular. It centers the thought and presses the call to our young people to attend the colleges of their own church. I shall observe Elon College Day in my church.

OFFERINGS

I believe offerings should be received on those days for the work of the colleges. The Southern Christian Convention passed the following recommendation of the committee on Christian Education, "We recommend that a Christian Education Day be observed in each congregation, in which the purpose of Christian Education in general and Elon College in particular be presented, and that opportunity be given for a free-will offering for the establishment of such department (theological), the money so raised to accumulate with interest in the treasury of Elon College till such time as there is sufficient to justify the institution of this department.

THEOLOGICAL DEPARTMENT

I believe in our colleges having theological departments so as to create, as Dr. Staley says, "Theological aspiration among our people." Such departments are needed to call attention of the student body to the importance of the life for the ministry. These departments should not be an end in themselves but should inspire and prepare for full courses at our Theological Seminary, the Christian Biblical Institute.

I hope all our churches may have a good day, full of inspiration and blessing.

WARREN H. DENISON.

SUFFOLK LETTER

The revival conducted by Rev. Victor Lightbourne in the Suffolk Christian Church has closed the first week and entered upon the second.

The big fire of the Holland & Lee warehouse containing fifty thousand bags of peanuts on Thursday night and rain on Friday night interrupted the interest somewhat; but we have made steady gain in attendance and interest.

We all sympathize with Bro. A. T. Holland, President of the Holland & Lee Company, and those who suffer with him; but it is a small calamity compared with the sinking of the Lusitania with the loss of more than a thousand human lives. These under-sea fiends seem more like the product of the underworld than the invention of modern Christian civilization. It is the abuse of invention and high skill. When will this horror of horrors cease and Europe resume a normal state of peace?

But back to the meeting. Four cottage prayer meetings are held at 10 a. m. each day in the four wards of the city. For the five days the total attendance at these meetings has been, by days, 65, 60, 97, 115, and 99. The cottage prayer meetings are conducted by women and include other denominations.

Meetings are held at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, in addition to the night services. Thursday afternoon a meeting was held in honor of old people and automobiles brought out many shut-ins, and they enjoyed the meeting very much.

Yesterday was the climax of the meeting, so far. Brother Lightbourne spoke to the Men's Class, to the Sunday school, at 11 o'clock, to some 300 men at 3 o'clock, and to a packed house at 8. Between 30 and 40 confessed Christ in the Sunday school and at the morning service in the church on Sunday. His five public addresses on Sunday did not seem to reduce his vitality or dull his thought.

His sermons are fresh, lucid, Biblical, spiritual. The absence of sensationalism, the evidence of sincerity, the advantage of fine personal presence and an attractive voice, brings the people to the church, wins their confidence, and impresses their hearts. His violin solos and his bright singing please the people. One intelligent man said: "He can beat Brown preaching and sing as well as Curry."

A delegation of ten came down from Waverly on machines on Sunday to attend the services. Going forty miles to church is no mean commentary on his work in Waverly, where he held his first meeting. Mrs. Lightbourne, who is visiting in Waverly, was with us on Sunday and sang at three services. As it was "Mother's Day," she sang at the morning service, "Tell Mother I'll Be There," with good effect.

Taken all together, the meeting, so far, has, I think, met the full expectation of the congregation and the community; and Evangelist Lightbourne has won a permanent place in the hearts of this people. The meeting will continue through next Sunday.

W. W. STALEY.

ELON COLLEGE NOTES

Several of the churches have already held their Theological Department and Christian Education Day. Many others have arranged for them to be held the remaining Sundays of this month and during June. The churches will certainly profit by such occasions, and the College too. Whatever helps one helps the other, since their interest is mutual.

Quite a number of our people, both citizens and students, attended the memorial services on Sunday at Union and Shallow Ford churches.

A class of ten, two young ladies and eight young men, received their Christian Endeavor Expert diplomas at the C. E. prayer-meeting yesterday evening. They were: Misses Annie Rippey and Grace Trollinger, with Messrs. W. J. B. Truitt, J. V. Knight, R. F. Brown, C. E. Geringer, R. P. Merritt, J. C. Auman, W. C. King, and J. G. Truitt.

Two excellent recitals were given last week. The first was the Graduation Recital in Expression of Miss Annie Laurie Wicker, assisted by Miss Ruth Johnson at the organ. It was a splendid program and showed Miss Wicker possessed of talent in Expression as well as Miss Johnson capable at the organ. The second was the graduation recital of Miss Francis McNeil in Piano and of Mr. M. E. Woodward in Voice. This program too was of a high order.

Dr. Atkinson "broke up" the Haw Fields High School last week and is yet to officiate at Kernersville and Friendship. He always does his work with finality, since the schools stay "broke up" until the fall after each visitation.

Next Sunday the officers of the College Sunday school for 1915-16 will be elected. The school this year has been a marked success and great credit is due the officers and teachers.

Dr. Wicker is to be absent this week in Asheville, attending the annual meeting of the N. C. Shriners, a masonic order to which he belongs.

We regret to report that Mrs. M. E. Winston is unwell again. She had improved rapidly, but had a relapse.

Dr. Watson, who is so faithful to look after others when sick, is himself slightly indisposed.

Among the visitors last week were noted Rev. and Mrs. J. Lee Johnson, Cardenas, N. C.; Mrs. J. W. Patton, Greensboro, N. C.; Mr. and Mrs. H. Woodward, Suffolk, Va.; Mr. A. E. Stone, Charlotte, N. C.; Trustee D. R. Fonville, Mr. C. C. Fonville, with their sisters, Burlington. We hope they will come again.

Dr. and Mrs. Atkinson visited Aunt Helen Winborne last week at Apex, N. C., and found her well and happy and as devoted to the College, the CHRISTIAN SUN, and every enterprise of the church, as ever. It is delightful to think of a devotion and loyalty like hers, that has been faithful through so long a life. May all readers of these notes who shall live to ripe years, enjoy an old age like Aunt Helen's.

Dr. Amick occupied the pulpit of the First Christian Church of Greensboro Sunday.

Rev. J. O. Cox and family were at Union Sunday, looking after the interests of the Orphanage.

Mrs. W. H. Macon, mother of Mrs. M. E. Winston, is with her daughter at this time and expects to remain till she is better. We are glad to have Mrs. Macon, but regret she had to come on account of sickness.

Remember that the date of the Elon Commencement has been changed to May 22-25 inclusive. This means that it will come a week earlier than heretofore. We anticipate a good Commencement and a joyous presence of our friends.

"X."

FROM PORTO RICO

Editor of THE CHRISTIAN SUN:

Your readers may not be interested in laundry work, but in all my travels I have delighted to study the manner in which the laundry work was done. One gains an idea of the characteristics of the people in this way. Hence I have a collection of kodak views made during my travels showing the way clothes are laundered in various countries, the first shows a picture of the green in Glasgow, Scotland, with the clothes hung up to dry while the women took naps on the ground, and I am sorry to say I noticed a number of suspicious looking bottles around, which were entirely too large to have contained blueing. Another picture taken at Genoa, Italy, shows the Italian women visiting and knitting after having fastened the clothes securely in the River Po with stones, where the swiftly running clear water took away all the dirt. A third picture was taken in India and showed the men, for women do not do that kind of work in India, whacking the clothes on a stone to beat the dirt out of them. This manner was very hard on our dresses and we seldom had the satisfaction of sending a garment to the wash the second time. One trip finished it up, and we were forced to purchase the heavy linens for thinner goods fell to pieces. In all my life I never saw such beautifully laundered clothes as my washerwoman sends home, so I was much interested in the method in which the work is done here.

On Monday the clothes are put to soak, on Tuesday they are spread out to bleach upon a pile of stones, these people do not have grass in their yards. On Wednesday they are again put in a tub, and the woman spreads them upon a flat pine board and with soapy water proceeds to scrub them with a small, sponge-like article taken from the inside of a gourd, then they are spread in the sun again. By this time they have been beautifully bleached, and anything that had any color in it is pure white, and the clothes are then rinsed and hung up to dry, starched and ironed until there is not a wrinkle in them. I had some articles I tho't I had better wash out myself, as I was afraid to trust them to our washerwoman, and my cook was greatly interested in the manner in which I spent half an hour doing the work, and then her comment was, "That has not been washed at all, only passed through the water." Well, I am glad that I had no idea of teaching these people about laundry work. I am going to start some industry they never heard of, for they have a great contempt for the manner in which I "pass the clothes through the water."

This little incident gives one an excellent idea of one of the characteristics of the Porto Ricans: they are satisfied that no way can be better than the one they have always followed. Their parents did things that way before the Americans came down here and that way is the best, especially in cases of sickness. They have no time for the advice of a physician, if he advises fresh air. They know the night air causes sickness, it always has, and it will even if the doctor has got some queer ideas in his head up in the States. They will actually throw away the medicine given by a physician, if some old grandmother comes in and condemns it.

The school children, so the teachers tell me, are very quick to learn, especially to memorize anything, are especially fond of music, but when it comes to reasoning out problems in higher mathematics are not as quick as in the other branches.

The people are especially good natured, rarely do I ever see quarrels even among the children, and they are so proud whenever any attention has been shown them. It is a pleasure to visit families that always seem so glad to see you, and state that they feel highly honored by your attention. Down in their own heart, they may think you only a meddlesome old maid, but they never would let you know it. And the charming manner in which they place their house and all it contains "at your orders" quite wins my heart. One sweet young lady whom I asked to help me with my visiting answered promptly, "Whenever you desire I am at your orders."

I was told that an American coming down here for the Winter admired a man's horse. He replied in the customary manner, "It is at your orders," and the next day the American, who did not understand that this was a form of Spanish courtesy, sent for the horse, and the gentleman sent it to him, thinking he would just take a drive and return it, but the American kept the horse during the entire six months he was in Porto Rico and then returned it to the owner with a note saying how very much he appreciated the kindness. I am going to follow the example of my fellow countryman, and every time I need the assistance of that beautiful young lady, I shall call upon her.

I was delighted to have been invited the other day to talk to the members of a very select school of young ladies. They were beautiful girls, and just as charming as could be, the only girls I ever saw that could in any way compare with them was a party of Southern girls I met on the train last Winter returning to school at Staunton, Va. The American girls were very lively, but these Porto Rican Senoritas were as demure as could be, and yet their eyes danced with fun. School girls are much alike after all, only these young ladies never go out upon the street alone, but always in the company of an older woman, even if only going shopping.

Between the wealthy and the poor there is a great gulf, socially, which makes it very difficult to interest all classes in church work. Christ came to save the rich and the poor, and surely around the altar all could meet on common ground, but it will take a great deal of the preaching of the brotherhood of all men to overcome this prejudice. America has been termed the great melting pot of all nationalities. In our schools the children of foreigners lay aside the characteristics of their race and become good Americans, and I believe it would be much easier to reach these Porto Ricans were they made to feel that they are Americans. The Stars and Stripes float over this island, but the people do not feel that they are one of us. Their constant query is, "If we are to be considered Americans, why are we denied the right of being admitted to the Union? There is no star in your flag for Porto Rico." The day will come when there will be a star in our flag for this beautiful island, and we will be proud to welcome her into the sisterhood of States.

DOES IT MEAN ANYTHING TO YOU?

Have you been praying and giving much for Africa lately? The scripture says: "Princes shall come out of Egypt; Ethiopia shall soon stretch out her hands unto God." Have you thought about Africa, that country with some 843 languages and dialects, and at least one hundred millions without any written language or alphabet? Have you thought that the entire United States, all denominations, is sending less than 700 workers? In Cairo in one Moslem school there are ten thousand students preparing to preach the Moslem faith, three times as many workers as the whole Christian world has in Africa? Did you help send any of the 700? Yes, in Africa with its 100,000,000 pagans, with one-fourth of the whole Mohammedan world, our nation has some 700 workers. It is time we were praying, giving, advocating missions as we have not done before. It can no longer be a side issue to your church life, and to your business. I was in the office of a business man the other day who had just begun to support a missionary which his Mission board had assigned him and he was the happiest man you would care to meet. He took me off and told me all about it and said, "I am just so happy I hardly know how to act." The time has come when many of the readers of this article should do the same thing and would be happy in the doing. If twenty-five of our brethren would say to our Board that they would each support a missionary the Board will undertake to find them and there would be a new day in your personal life, your church and in our denomination. And you ought to do it and do it now. Africa is three times as large as the United States, it is as large as North America and Europe combined; it has the largest and richest copper fields yet discovered in the world, and large deposits of tin, iron, gold, diamonds; but something more valuable for Princes of our God shall come out of Egypt, and Ethiopia shall stretch out her hands unto God, and nothing but the gospel is able to save Africa. Africa has something more precious than her diamonds, tin, gold. There are human souls there to become gems for our Christ. It will take sacrifices, some will have to give up their lives, others will need to give their treasures. Livingstone died on his knees in the heart of Africa pouring out his own heart in prayer. Are you pouring out your heart for the lost? We have solemnly undertaken to do larger things in our Zion for the heathen; we have solemnly voted in convention assembled in the city of Portsmouth, Va., on the thirtieth day of April, 1914, to raise each weay within the bounds of our Southern Christian Convention the sum of $11,000 for missions abroad. They are stretching out their hands to us, their hungry hearts are longing for us. Does it mean anything to you that 30,000,000 go out into Christless graves every year within the bounds of our Southern Christ-every breath you draw four souls perish never having heard of Christ? It is time to pray, and it is time to give, and it is time to take the matter up in your church, and it is time to do something worth while. When they ask for bread, shall we give them a stone?

Chairman Foreign Mission Com. S. C. C.

A NOTE OF THANKS

I am so far recovered from my recent illness that I feel safe in extending a note of thanks to all those who were in any way concerned or interested in my recovery. It is to you and to your prayers, largely, I feel that my restored life is due. I ask no better treatment from physicians and nurses, it is true, but it is likely that their skill and kind treatment alone could not have saved me, and it is therefore much to the faithful prayers of generous friends that I am much indebted, hence I am truly thankful for this interest and these prayers of friends.

Sincerely,
W. P. LAWRENCE.

—Dr. W. A. Harper's book, "The Making of Men," is to come from the press this week. The price is 75 cents the copy. Dr. Barrett, Editor Herald of Gospel Liberty, who has read the volume in manuscript, speaks of it in highest terms and regards it as an exceedingly able and readable book.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON, MAY 16

David Spares Saul.—1 Sam. 26:1-25.

Golden Text: Love your enemies, do good to them which hate you.—Luke 6:27.

A young man of good repute proves himself true to the purpose of his anointment. Doing service for his king in driving away the evil spirits; doing service for his people in winning from the giant, Goliath. Without cause he is hunted as a wild beast; his superiors, in human power, seeking to kill him.

David is obliged to take to the fields and wilderness for safety. While taking refuge in the wilderness and caves as an outlaw, David is joined by others who had by some reason or other been cast out, one of these being David's nephew, Abishai. While David was hiding in these caves, Saul, hunting David, happened to take shelter in the same one in which David was. David noiselessly slipped up and cut off part of his apparel. David had a good opportunity to slay the king, but he was too generous-hearted. Saul was made aware of the danger he had been in and promised to spare the hero.

The event of our lesson takes place a short time after David had spared his king's life in the cave. David's spies informed him that Saul was pursuing him, and he arose, not to flee from the enemy, but to go and see for himself the situation.

After viewing the camp he asked for a volunteer who would accompany him to the side of Saul. Immediately his nephew stepped forward, showing his courage, bravery and trust.

David with his companion was successful in his plot and procured the king's spear and water-bottle. Abishai wanted to take advantage of the sleeping king and slay him. David, as before in the cave, wanted to impress upon Saul's mind that he did not wish to destroy him, showing at the same time that if he did, certainly he had the opportunity. When David was far enough away to be safe from the army of three thousand armed men, he awoke Abner, the king's guard, and rebuked him for being so careless about the safety of his king. Saul learning of the episode confessed that he was in the wrong and invited David to join him on the return home. Wisely David did not accept the invitation.

We learn here a man had very much wronged another and yet under the most extreme circumstances he did not take revenge. He left the vengeance unto God who had anointed him. The golden text of the lesson was strictly obeyed. It paid. It will always pay.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR, MAY 16

Why I Believe in Christian Endeavor.

—2 Tim. 1:1-14.

(Union Meeting with the Juniors.)
A Training School

The Christian Endeavor society is a splendid place to train young men and women for service in the church. To be sure the Sunday school is a good place to train the young, but we also need Christian Endeavor together with the Sunday school to give them a thorough drill. Many things the Sunday school cannot supply; for instance the

Missionary Interest

That ought to be instilled, not only by studying missions in the Sunday school, but by giving chances to express the thoughts of the heart—the Christian Endeavor affords the opportunity. To be loyal to a cause we must know something about it. In the Sunday school we find what the Bible characters did for missions. In the Endeavor we find out what the present generation is accomplishing.

For our knowledge and progress we must know the scriptures. We can read the scriptures; it does us good. How much better we are and how much deeper the truths are cut in our hearts when we have a chance to give our thought on passages of Holy Writ; and how much more plain does it seem when we hear discussions on passages which have made but a vague impression on our minds. In the Christian Endeavor we get these discussions. Then it affords an opportunity for Bible study and meditation.

The church needs some avenue in which philanthropic efforts may be made, and thereby give the young people some specific work to do and get them into the habit of doing the greatest thing they are privileged to do—that of rendering service to our fellowman. Under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor things can be begun and accomplished that we would not dare to do otherwise; not because we wouldn't want to do it, but because it would be hard to approach tactfully.

Is your Christian Endeavor counting? Can you tell that it is a strength in the community? If you can't, get busy and find the cause. Arouse enthusiasm and make it pay.

A PEACE MOVEMENT AMONG WOMEN

If sounds of war be borne to us on every breeze, nevertheless peace is in the air, for never before have so many minds and hearts been concerned with the means of bringing about the reign of love heralded by the Prince of Peace nearly a score of centuries ago.

Diverse as are the minds of the people, so the methods very according to the spirit of the seekers, and there are various organizations and movements, all with the same object. The latest endeavor comes from the Christian women of America, beginning with those who have long had the world vision of a federation of all nations in the church of Christ, the missionary societies.

Realizing as they do the futility of anything savoring of political effort at this time when the neutrality of America is its greatest strength, they have asked themselves what they can do to bring about the desired end. Clearly the answer has come that only through the spirit of God can such a consummation be attained, and so they have planned to make use of their strong, ready forged weapons, prayer and persuasion.

To this end they have formed a Christian Woman's Peace Movement, whose object is to stimulate existing organizations and individuals to work for peace along these lines. When it is asked what women can do, they reply with a number of suggestions which are available for every one, hoping that this sense of united effort will have its influence upon those who have sat still wishing they could do something to stay the horrors of war, yet feeling their powerlessness.

First of all they urge all women to cultivate a spirit of love and peace, laying aside all race prejudice and bitterness against any nation or nations, since each thinks the right is on its side. A study of the New Testament and its ideals of peace will help to this. They can talk peace or write for peace, distribute literature and call attention to articles and books on the subject, all of which will create public sentiment. Above all they can pray without ceasing for the blessing of peace.

Not the least of the possibilities is the teaching of children that heroism is not a part of war alone, but that peace has heroes unnumbered quite as worthy of emulation, and that patriotism may be shown in many ways. One way in which this may be done is by means of a Pageant of Peace which has been arranged, and may be presented in every town and city, being adaptable in places of all sizes.

The missionary societies of all the churches are in sympathy with this work and it is asked that each one of them shall devote a portion of every meeting to prayer for peace and something to direct the thoughts to this end.

A call for a day of prayer for peace on the Fourth of July is going out through the various women's missionary boards, hoping that the thought of what peace has done for our country will stimulate others. As there are more than 3,000,000 women enrolled in the foreign missionary societies of America alone the possibilities before them are seen. There is nothing in the program that the most retiring woman cannot attempt, nor is there any limit to the scope of the influence the most active may exert. It is a call to the women of America of every creed and of every race affiliation, and of every class. "Peace in our time, Oh, Lord," is the prayer they breathe. And prayer is an immeasurable force.—The Bulletin.

(A copy of the program for the Pageant of Peace may be secured from Miss. M. H. Leavis, West Medford, Mass., for 25 cents.)

WAVERLY, VA., MEETING

For two months the Waverly, Va., church had looked forward with interest and much expectation to the Lightbourne meetings, which began March 21. Rev. Victor Lightbourne was no stranger to this church and community, for here he held his first evangelistic meeting November, 1913; here he made his first temperance address, June, 1914, and it was at the altar of this church that he was ordained an elder, June, 1914. It was with glad hearts and a sincere greeting that we welcomed him to our church again.

The meeting continued for 12 days and grew in interest and results till the last minute. The attendance upon the services, and the results day after day, in conversions, in reconsecrations, and in fellowship of saints, constituted the Lightbourne meeting. This was the greatest meeting held in Waverly for more than twenty years.

Uncle Jim was away several days last week in the interest of the Orphanage. He prepared and mailed his copy in good time; but it was delayed in the mails and failed to reach the editor in time for publication. We are publishing both reports in this issue.

Holland, Va., April 26, 1915.
 Dear Uncle Jim:—We are sending you five dollars for the Orphanage. We wish we could go with papa when he goes to the Elon Commencement, but we will be very busy getting ready for ours then. Uncle Jim, we wish you could see our beautiful new school building. We are very proud of it.
 Elizabeth Vincent,

Harvey Vincent.

Stem, N. C., April 29, 1915.
 Dear Uncle Jim:—April is almost gone and I am late again with my letter. Daddie's school has closed and he is like a fish out of water. I am having a mighty good time these days and hope you and all the cousins are enjoying life too. Here is my dime for April.
 R. P. Crumpler.

Holland, Va., April 16, 1915.
 Dear Uncle Jim:—We are having real cold weather now for April. We have just three more weeks of school. I certainly do hate to leave all my school mates and teacher. Enclosed you will find our dimes for April. Wishing you much success in your good work, we are, Your little friends,
 Mary Nell and J. Howard Holland.

Ramsour, N. C., April 8, 1915.
 Dear Uncle Jim:—It has been some time since I have written, so our Sunday school class is giving an Easter offering of 80 cents. I am very sorry that we could not get the little orphans more money.
 Lovingly,
 Mary Addie White.

WHERE DRUGS FAIL

Many chronic diseases fail to respond to drug treatment, even in the hands of the best physicians, whereas acute diseases usually respond readily. When a disease has become chronic, drugs often seem to do as much harm as they do good, for the system rebels against them. It is just this class of cases which derive the greatest benefit from Shivar Mineral Water. If you suffer with chronic dyspepsia, indigestion, sick headache, rheumatism, gall stones, kidney or liver disease, uric acid poisoning or other conditions due to impure blood, do not hesitate to accept Mr. Shivar's liberal offer as printed below. His records show that only two in a hundred on the average, have reported "no beneficial results." This is a wonderful record from a truly wonderful spring. Simply sign the following letter:
 Shivar Spring,

 Gentlemen:

I accept your guarantee offer and enclose herewith two dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Spring Water. I agree to give it a fair trial, in accordance with instructions contained in booklet you will send, and if it fails to benefit my case you agree to refund the price in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns which I agree to return promptly.

SEASIDE CHAUTAUQU AND SCHOOL OF METHODS OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH
 Virginia Beach, July 19-25.

There are a few things that we ask you to bear in mind just at this time:

1. That you have not heard all about our program yet, so watch for these notices each week but to bear in mind that the themes to be presented by strong speakers are the Bible, Evangelism, Christian Endeavor Expert Course, Elementary, Secondary, Adult Sunday School Work, Missions, the Minister, Church Efficiency and Christian Leadership, Sermons, Model Sunday School, Mid-day Religious and Educational Lectures, Seaside Vesper Services, Chautauqua lectures.

2. That the Christian Publishing Association and the Southern Christian Publishing Company have both been invited to bring their splendid book tables. There you can find the very best for your needs and can take them with you.

3. That Dr. I. W. Johnson, Suffolk, Va., will again be Director of Music.

4. That Dr. L. F. Johnson, Hardy Ave., Norfolk, has been elected Chairman of the Entertainment Committee. All our guests last year know of his splendid services. Write him today.

5. Mr. Charles L. Strickland has been chosen to assist with his cornet in the music and as Bugler.

6. That there will be a splendid exhibit as last year under direction of the same chairman, Mr. B. L. Nichols, Norfolk, Va.

7. That speakers have already been arranged for from eight or nine States and Washington, D. C.

8. That the opening of the Chautauqua will be on Monday night, the 19th, with the Convocational Sermon by Rev. O. P. Whittaker, Glencoe, Florida.

9. We here and now ask that any of our brethren in any part of our Zion who will make a pledge toward a guarantee fund will notify us at once. We believe that many of our brethren are interested in what we are trying to do for the good of the Christian church and the cause of Jesus Christ and would like to have a share in our pledged guarantee fund. This fund will be drawn upon pro-rata if needed.

WARREN H. DENISON, Pres.

Waverly, Va., Meeting

More people possibly would have been reached had the church capacity been greater. It was carefully estimated that more than 100 were converted and over 50 public reconsecrations. A large per cent. have given their names for church membership at the churches of the town and in the country. Bro. Lightbourne spoke to us from a full heart and a ready and willing service. His earnestness of heart, his clearness of thought, his apt and forcible illustrations sent home the gospel truths to all hearts. The people heard him gladly.

As a gospel evangelist, Rev. Victor Lightbourne is becoming strong in the use of the scriptures for the conviction of sin and for the conversion of the soul. His growth in the Christian life in 18 months is simply wonderful. His efficiency—the ability to use the Word, his tory, science, art, music, literature—is great. His ministerial manner is dignified. His language is elegant, his belief strong, and his service entirely surrendered.

The Christian church can well use this man of God, and I doubt not that in a few years, to secure his services, dates will need to be made a long time ahead.

The public interest of the Waverly meeting was shown by stores, shops, and mills closing for an afternoon service, one hour. The women held morning prayer meetings at 10 o'clock daily, and these meetings continue weekly now.

The Waverly Christian church and pastor most heartily endorse Bro. Lightbourne's services, and commend him to the brotherhood.

Yours fraternally,
 JAS. L. FOSTER.

FROM THE FIELD

The churches of my charge are holding their own, I think. They are somewhat behind financially, but will reach the mark in the end of the year. The Sunday schools are very good. The music is an inspiration.

MARRIAGES

Eastes-Morgan

Rev. George Delman Eastes, pastor of the Third Christian church, Park Place, Norfolk, and Miss Susie Elizabeth Morgan, of this city, were united in matrimony this afternoon at 4:15 o'clock.

The ceremony took place at the home of the bride, No. 921 Washington St., and was read by the writer, the bride's pastor. Only a few of her most intimate friends were present. The parlor was decorated very tastefully in evergreens, smilax and cut flowers. The bride was attired in a blue coat suit with hat and gloves to match and wore lilies of the valley and orchids.

Before the ceremony was said, Miss Orlyne Peterson, of this city, sang, "Because I Love You," after which Mrs. Irene Etheridge who presided at the piano played Lohengrin's Wedding March, and during the ceremony played softly Mendelssohn's Spring Song.

The bride is a very accomplished young woman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Morgan, of Washington St. She has the joy of a large circle of friends and is very popular. She has been organist of the Washington St. Christian Church for many years, and also a teacher of a young ladies' class in the Sunday school. As she has distinguished herself as a musician and a Sunday school teacher.

The groom is a very popular minister, and is regarded by the clergy of Norfolk as a very strong man. He also is very popular not only in his own church circles, but throughout the section as an evangelist and a Sunday afternoon speaker at public gatherings.

They took the steamer for Washington, D. C., where they will spend their honeymoon. They will return by the 1st of June and will be at home to their friends at No. 325 West 34th St., Norfolk, Va.

H. E. ROUNTREE.

Hayes-Craven

Mr. J. B. Hayes and Miss Emma Craven, both of Shiloh church and community, were married April 29th, at the home of the bride's parents. Their future home will be in the community of their birth—a new home built especially for them, and where everybody expects them to do well, live happily together, and to be greeted by their friends at their home and at every church service.

T. E. WHITE.

Beane-Lambert

At the residence of the bride's parents on April 21, Mr. Edgar Beane and Miss Fannie Lambert were united in matrimony, the writer performing the ceremony. Mr. Beane is a splendid young man and a member of Shiloh church. Mrs. Beane is a fine lady, and Shiloh community is better by having her in it.

T. E. WHITE.

Eppes-Little

A very pretty and impressive marriage took place on Coppahaunk avenue on last Thursday, April 15, at 4:30 p. m., at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Binns F. Little, when their daughter, Miss Emma Grace, became the wife of Mr. Francis A. Eppes of Disputanta, Va. Miss Grace West presided at the organ and Mrs. J. J. Little acted as dame of honor. The bride is a popular young lady of Waverly and the groom is a prosperous young farmer of Prince George, and a host of friends wish them a happy wedded life. They left on the 5:23 train for a bridal trip to northern cities. The marriage ceremony by the bride's pastor,

TWO BOOKS

To the readers of THE CHRISTIAN SUN and others who may by chance see these lines:

I have right from the press my fifth book, the last I ever expect to publish. It contains one hundred and thirty-one pages—"Vital Truths for Hungry Hearts." I offer to the public this book, filled with rich thoughts, particularly for young people and ministerial students. I hope you will get a copy of the book and study it carefully. It will cost you fifty cents. I want to be doing good after I am gone. I have also "Wellons' Family Devotions," a little book of 20 pages for ten cents, for family devotion. Have the younger members of the family memorize it and lead in the devotion and the older members join in. How delightful will be the services! Have the young people study these little books and what an amount of good it will do them, fitting them for the arduous duties of life, and I will be doing good not only among the present but coming generations of life. Be sure and get a copy and use it. Whatever profit, if any, with whatever I have when I am gone, will all go to the Chair of Theology of Elon College, to prepare young men to preach the Word. I want these books to be kept on hand when I am gone and used, so I may be preaching for generations to come.

OUR DEAD

Cox

Timothy Cox died of pneumonia May 4 in his 65th year. He professed faith in Christ when young, united with the Society of Friends, and lived a consistent life.

As a citizen he was truthful, honest and upright; as a neighbor and friend, kind and obliging; as father and husband, full of love, tenderness and devotion; and as a Christian, he was Christ-like. His quiet unassuming manner, his faith and work, and his love for the young, and his zeal for God made him the leader in his community and won for him the esteem of all who knew him. His funeral was conducted at Holly Springs, the interment was in the cemetery nearby, and his grave was covered with beautiful flowers.

Craven

Mila Fesmire was born August 27, 1837, died May 1, 1915. She was married to L. P. Craven, November 14, 1865. To this union no children were born. Burial services by T. J. GREEN.

Ellison, of Chester, S. C., and Mrs. Minnie Hackney, of East Durham, N. C., and three brothers, John A. and James Ellison, of Franklinton, N. C., and Thomas Ellison, of Asheboro, N. C. Amid a large congregation of friends and loved ones he was laid to rest in Paterson's Grove cemetery to await the resurrection morn. Burial services by the writer.

Mrs. Mariah L. Pretlow passed away April 3, aged 63 years. She had been in failing health for some time. She was taken to Leakesville Hospital, Suffolk, Va., but medical skill could not stay the hand of death.

The deceased was Miss Mariah L. Rawls of Nansemond Co., and was married to Mr. James T. Pretlow, who preceded her to the grave. She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. W. J. M. Holland, Franklin, Va., with whom she made her home, and three sons, J. C. Pretlow, Point Caswell, N. C., J. E. Pretlow, Dover, N. She was a faithful member of the Friends' Church. To know her was to love her. She was faithful in every phase of life.

The funeral services were conducted from the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. J. M. Holland, by the writer, assisted by Rev. J. L. McCutcheon, of the Baptist church. C. H. ROWLAND.

CALOMEL DYNAMITES YOUR LIVER! MAKES YOU SICK AND SALIVATES

"Dodson's Liver Tone" Starts Your Liver Better Than Calomel and You Don't Lose a Day's Work

Live up your sluggish liver! Feel fine and cheerful; make your work a pleasure; be vigorous and full of ambition. But take no nasty, dangerous calomel because it makes you sick and you may lose a day's work.

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel crashes into sour bile like dynamite, breaking it up. That's when you feel that awful nausea and cramping.

Listen to me! If you want to enjoy the nicest, gentlest liver and bowel cleansing you ever experienced just take a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone tonight. Your druggist or dealer sells you a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone under my personal money-back guarantee that each spoonful will clean your sluggish liver better than a dose of nasty calomel and that it won't make you sick.

Dodson's Liver Tone is real liver medicine. You'll know it next morning because you will wake up feeling fine, your liver will be working; headache and dizziness gone; stomach will be sweet and bowels regular.

Dodson's Liver Tone is entirely vegetable, therefore harmless and can not salivate. Give it to your children. Millions of people are using Dodson's Liver Tone instead of dangerous calomel now. Your druggist will tell you that the sale of Calomel is almost stopped entirely here.

The Mote and Beam

The Talmud brings us this tale through the ancient centuries. One of the twelve sons of an old rabbi awakened his father in the night with these words: "Behold, my eleven brothers lie sleeping; I am the only one who awakens to pray in the still watches of the night." To which the wise father gave reply: "You, my son, would better sleep also than wake to censure your brothers." Our Savior said: "Why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, but considerest not the beam that is in thine own eye?" (Matt. 7:3.)

The Challenge of Conscience

The most irresistible power on this earth is an offended conscience. Victor Hugo wrote of Napoleon's fall from glory: "Babylon violated diminishes Alexander; Rome enchained diminishes Caesar; Jerusalem killed diminished Titus. Tyranny follows the tyrant, and it is a misfortune for a man to leave behind him a night which has his form." Bleeding, prostrate Belgium, sinned against, ruthlessly and heartlessly murdered and devastated, will prove the undoing of the mailed hand that dealt the fatal blow. The arms of the Allies may or may not be sufficient, but the sin against Belgium is a foe that cannot be conquered. "By me kings reign, and princes declare justice." (Prov. 8:15.)

Morals and the Movies

The most delicate, as well as the most cultured and refined sense, is that of sight. "Seeing is believing," goes the old adage. What is presented to sight goes home with vividness and vigor to the mind. The film makers know this: so do the saloon keepers—and others. A Chicago paper tells that a big film company is preparing to present shortly Jack London's "John Barleycorn." The liquor interests, on hearing this, sent a representative to the film company with an offer of $25,000 not to exhibit these films in the movies till after December 1—until after the Summer and Fall elections. The vice-president of the company promptly turned down the offer and goes merrily on preparing his exhibits. The truth is what hurts, and the saloon dreads nothing as much as the real truth about its nefarious business. "For we can do nothing against the truth, but for the truth." (2 Cor. 15:8.)

The Noble Animal

Those were eloquent words, and worthy, by Representative Sherwood of Ohio at the last session of our national Congress: "The history of all civilizations, Christian, pagan and Mohammedan, proves that God made the horse for man's utility, comfort and pleasure. Those who think that any man-made machine, however artistic, can ever take his place know little and think less. Of course we shall have machine motors, as we have wax flowers and paste diamonds and crockery dolls. But wax flowers will never shed fragrance on the bosom of a divine woman, like the God-grown blossoms; and crockery dolls will never take the place of real babies; neither will the counterfeit blaze of paste diamonds ever mock successfully the rainbow tints of the real gems. And the live horse, the horse immortalized in song and story and sculpture and romance and war, will ever be animate and imperishable; man's best and most wholesome friend among the animals." And yet there is no animal more abused and often more cruelly treated. Well might this friendly animal to man say, "Mine own familiar friend, in whom I trust, hath lifted up his heel against me." (Psa. 41:9.)

Just Sheer Killing

All sense of humaneness seems to have departed from the warring nations of Europe. The conflict has degenerated into a matter of blood-letting—just sheer killing. It makes little or no difference as to who is killed; women, children, helpless—any and all so the heaps of corpses are sufficiently high and abundant when the day is done. For pure murder, for wholesale and heartless killing, this war has no parallel in history. This paragraph appears in a current journal (The Outlook): "A New Means of Killing. The Germans made possible their gains at Ypres by sending ahead of them in their advance a low-hanging cloud of vapor, probably chlorine gas, which, carried by a favorable wind, poisoned their enemies in the trenches over a front said to have been six kilometers (four miles) long and two kilometers (one and a quarter miles) deep. This noxious fog, it is reported, was liberated from generators in the foremost German trenches manned by men protected by harnesses somewhat similar to the garb of deep-sea divers." The horrors of poisoning a multitude of men four miles long and a mile and a quarter deep—destroying human beings by the acre. This is not even war; it is hideous and inhuman slaughter. Did the prophet so discern? "Therefore, behold, the days come, saith the Lord, that it shall no more be called Tophet, but the valley of slaughter." (Jer. 7:32.)

Give Warning

The Creator of this universe decreed from the beginning that the foe should give warning, before the fatal blow was dealt, to its victim. The deadliest serpent gives the hiss of warning before inserting its poisonous fangs: the tiger warns its foe with its yelp of hate; the lion roars that the helpless victim may have a warning, if not a chance, to live. Out of the roaring thunder leaps the deadly lightning; and the destructive cyclone sends for miles ahead the message of its oncoming furor. Wherever and whenever demon or serpent or beast or the elements of nature were endowed with the means and weapons of sudden and awful destruction they were at the same time and by the same Hand equipped with the necessity of warning. Violating this universal law of nature and of nature's God explains, in a measure, why the people are so indignant, so horrified at the torpedoing, without a moment's warning, of the Lusitania by a German submarine. One enemy has the right to destroy another enemy's ship; but there is no right, no excuse for destroying helpless women and children without warning, without means of escape. There is no parallel to this atrocity in the history of a hundred years, if in the history of any time, even the most savage and barbarous. "He that leadeth into captivity shall go into captivity; he that killeth with the sword must be killed with the sword." (Rev. 13:10.)

Twenty Minutes a Day

How to live on twenty-four hours a day is a problem. The high cost of living requires figuring; but how about the high cost of time? Thrifty men lay up large treasure to draw on in time of need; but they can't lay up time. It is doled out to all just moment by moment; and no day brings forth more than twenty-four hours of this precious asset. Should not the body have some time devoted to it?—some care for this magnificent and mysterious temple where mind and spirit seem to dwell awhile? Is it not a man's, a Christian's duty to honor his health? Here is a classic which applies alike to pool or pond, winter, summer or spring-time: "Go to any Y. M. C. A. pool of a late winter afternoon, and there you see him, the man who honors his health. He stands on the white marble slab and thrusts off into the cool green water. His body cuts its way under the surface for the full forty feet of length, till the tips of his fingers touch the farther wall. Then he rolls over on his side, and begins the slow curving glide of the Trudgeon. No splashing, no hurry, no delay, just a steady soft weaving of arm and leg motion. So, with that 20 minutes a day of pleasant effort, he has held himself clean and erect against decay. He is still young and his contemporaries are tired old men." (Harper's.) But so many can't "spare" the twenty minutes out of the twenty-four hours. There are only twenty-four hours each day. How can one get along on such little time? "What, know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost which is in you, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own?" (1 Cor. 6:19.)

—The British battleship Goliath, carrying a crew of 750 men, was torpedoed in the Dardanelles May 12, about 180 persons being saved. A German submarine did the work. This is the third battleship of the British to be destroyed in the Dardanelles, the Irresistible and the Ocean being the other two of recent destruction.

DAVID

David's is not the greatest name in history, neither is his the best character. But he did achieve, and so is worth considering.

David sinned. He sinned very grievously. He sinned more than once. He had weaknesses, very many of them. But there was one ideal that he never let go, one thought that never forsook him: That Jehovah was his God, in Him would he trust. In the light of this ideal he lived daily.

Hunted in the wilderness like a beast, driven from home and friends and loved ones, in want, hungry, footsore, worn from fatigue, exhausted with toil, trial and wanderings, he held to the faith that was in him, that he was in the hands of God, and that God would not forsake him.

In all the writings of scripture you will not find one to whom God was more personal, more real, more intimate, more friendly than to David. David believed not only in the existence and reality of God, he believed in the personality and the vital intimacy of God. "The Lord is my light and my salvation: whom shall I fear? the Lord is the strength of my life: of whom shall I be afraid?"

There was no going up in the cloud with David to meet God; there was no veiling of his face to talk with God; there was no stunning vision, no pillar of fire, no cloud by day. David simply appropriated God—made bold to lay hold on God, and live in the conscious presence of God's strength and constant leadership. "In thee, O Lord, do I hope; thou wilt hear, O Lord, my God." "Blessed is that man that maketh the Lord his trust." "I delight to do thy will, O my God."

This is the distinctive feature of David's life: Jehovah was his and he was Jehovah's. He appropriated God and made Him his daily trust, friend, companion, stay and strength.

There is a vigor and a vitality in David's faith and trust not to be found in any other biblical character. David realized that the hand of God was upon him, and that he must needs walk in the divine pathway.

When he sinned he departed from God. When the sense of sin dawned upon him, there was no tampering, no compromise, no rebellion. In sorrow, sack cloth and ashes he repented, and turned back with all sincerity and contrition to God. There was no compromise with sin on David's part; there was no modification of his high ideal. He recognized his departure, and in humility returned to his God.

When his enemies came upon him to hound and drive him, it was his God who led him away by a path they could not come; when foes overtook him, it was God who delivered him out of their hands; and when he was victorious in battle and slew his thousands and tens of thousands, it was not through any shrewdness, skill, or military tactics of his own. Never! It was all in God's strength. It was as if he said, "God undertakes for me and achieves through me."

This confident trust, this daily reliance, this vital faith, this intimate relationship with God is that which the world so much needs today. "Though an host should encamp against me, my heart shall not fear." David's heart was fixed in God whom he knew would not be moved and who would never forsake him. None but such a man could ever have written these lines: "One thing have I desired of the Lord, that will I seek after: that I may dwell in the house of the Lord all the days of my life, to behold the beauty of the Lord." (Psa. 27:4.)

DIVINE RESOURCES

The earth and the fullness thereof belong to God: the cattle upon a thousand hills; fields and forests and gold and silver. Yet man has been appointed God's steward to manage these and God's resources for carrying on His work in the world are limited to the liberality of man. If man withholds God's work suffers.

There are people in the world who make fifteen, twenty, thirty dollars a week out of God's bounty and goodness, and yet will not give back for God's use the number of cents each week equaling the dollars they hold or spend or use for their own pleasure, comfort or plans.

It is pitiable to think that God gives a hearty, hale, strong man blessings unnumbered each week and bounty in abundance, and yet that same man will not give God a dollar or even a dime on the Sabbath with which to carry forward the Lord's work. There are men whose names are on the church roll, strong, well and able men, who hear preaching all the year, and enjoy God's bounties day after day; who do not average ten cents a week as a contribution to the Lord's work. It is pitiable to think of such persons. But they are in the world.

God's resources, immediately available for carrying on His work, are solely dependent on the liberality of man. God gave man all to use; He asks in return that man consider Him and His place and His plans and that man see to it that His work shall not suffer. God can take from man all that he has, (and we sometimes think He does), but God is merciful, indulgent, considerate, loving and limits His operations by man's willingness to give and do.

Men rob God by withholding the part of their substance which belongs to Him.

WOMEN AND WAR

It was England's great art critic and writer of many books, John Ruskin, who felt that women controlled the destiny of nations in the matter of war. In one of his famous lectures, (it all sounds now as if spoken to a present-day audience), he said to the ladies present: "Only by your command, or by your permission, can any war take place among us. And the real final reason for all the poverty, misery and rage of battle through Europe is simply that you women, however good and religious, however self-sacrificing for those whom you love, are too selfish and too thoughtless to take pains for any creature out of your immediate circle."

* * * Let every lady in the happy classes of civilized Europe simply vow that, while any cruel war proceeds, she will wear black—a mute's black—with no jewel, no ornament, and I tell you again no war would last a week. "The Lord hath created a new thing in the earth. A woman shall compass a man." (Jer. 31:22.)

NOTES AND PERSONALS

—At the close of this term, May 25, Elon will be 25 years young; but what a giant it has become in so short a time!

—President Wilson's note to Germany was firm, well conceived, magnanimously uttered, statesmanlike. Germany has not yet replied.

—The Faculty and Senior Class have issued very neat and attractive invitations to the 25th annual commencement of Elon College May 22nd to 25th, 1915.

—Rev Victor Lighthourne delighted and won his great Suffolk audiences, as was anticipated by those who know his great power in pulpit work and in winning souls to Christ.

—The Elon commencement next. The program is inviting. But who would have thought that the college could grow to its present proportions and prospects in a quarter of a century?

—The Grier liquor law in this State, which forbids a person ordering more than two quarts of liquor per month, has been upheld on a test case by the Superior court. The case now goes to the Supreme court.

—Second Sunday a memorable day at Union church, Union Ridge, N. C. Rev. J. W. Holt, pastor, was assisted in the all day exercises by Rev. A. B. Kendall, D. D., of Burlington, and Rev. J. O. Cox of Elon College. An immense congregation was present.

—Rev. L. I. Cox, pastor, with Rev. J. F. Morgan, evangelist, has enjoyed a very inspiring and soul-winning revival at Reidsville. There were fifty or more confessions of faith in Christ and a large number of accessions to the various churches of the town.

—When Alfred G. Vanderbilt was face to face with death on the ill-fated Lusitania he said to his valet, "Come and let us save the kiddies." The bishop of London says those words will run round the world as no millionaire's millions could ever do.

—Rev. L. E. Smith finished his work at Princeton Seminary and received his diploma at the recent commencement of that great institution. He is now resting a few days at Ocean Grove, N. J., and expects to be at his new field of labor at Huntington, Ind., by May 26th.

—Rev. R. V. Miller, Evangelist, Hendersonville, N. C., is assisting Rev. A. B. Kendall, pastor, in a series of meetings this week at the Burlington Christian church. Bro. Miller is a close Bible student and has very lucid ideas on biblical themes which he presents with force and fervor.

—The Alabama Supreme Court, in a recent decision on a test case, upholds the law recently enacted by the State legislature forbidding papers to carry liquor advertisements in that State and barring from circulation in that State papers published elsewhere which carry liquor advertisements. This was a drastic measure and the liquor people considered the law unconstitutional; but the courts have decreed differently.

—Greensboro Daily News, May 14: "The program for the State C. E. Convention, which meets at Wilmington June 4, 5 and 6, is to be built around the convention theme, "Consecrated Enthusiasm," and will be marked by the following features: Addresses by Dr. W. A. Harper, of Elon College; Rev. William Hooper Adams, of Charlotte; Rev. J. C. Leonard, of Lexington, and other strong speakers; a reception Friday night, trip to Wrightsville Beach Saturday afternoon; and a meeting with the floating Endeavor society Sunday morning."

—It was the editor's privilege to be in the home of Rev. J. W. Pinnix a few hours last Tuesday and attend the closing exercises of Kernersville High School. Bro. Pinnix has a delightful family, cultured, devoted, refined, and the Kernersville school ranks among the best State High Schools of the State. Bro. Pinnix, who has taught school 46 years, but who because of failing health does not teach any more, is chairman of the Board for his town school and has been for years, and is deeply interested in all educational, social and moral progress. Our visit to his home and community, though shortened by another engagement, was delightful.

—Very neat and appropriate invitations are out for the Elon College commencement May 22-25. This is the 25th annual commencement, and the program is attractive. There are twenty-two members of the class and the program of exercises is as follows: May 22, 4:00 p. m., Class Day Exercises; 8:00 p. m., Society Representatives. May 23, 11:30 a. m., Baccalaureate Sermon; 8:00 p. m., Baccalaureate Address. May 24, 8:00 a. m., Board of Trustees Meet; 3:00 p. m., Society Reunions; 8:00 p. m., Annual Concert. May 25, 10:00 a. m., Commencement Day, Graduating Exercises, Literary Address; 3:00 p. m., Alumni Association Meets; 4:00 p. m., Art Exhibit; 8:00 p. m., Alumni Address. Rev. F. G. Coffin, D. D., Albany, N. Y., preaches the baccalaureate sermon, Rev. A. W. Andes, Harrisonburg, Va., delivers the alumni address, and Pres. Fairfax Harrison of the Southern Railway delivers the literary address.

JUST A MINUTE

All pastors and S. S. Superintendents of the E. N. C. Conference are most earnestly requested to begin right now to arrange to be at the next S. S. and C. E. Convention, which meets at Wentworth, McCullers, N. C., Tuesday (evening), Wednesday and Thursday, July 13-15. I have never yet asked a pastor of any church what he thought of the S. S. that he did not tell me it was "the right arm of the church" or something equivalent. Now if this is true, who should help strengthen this right arm more than the pastor? Brother, we need you. We want you. Do not plan a protracted meeting for that week. Tell your wife or sweetheart right now that you are going to this Convention. Brother Superintendent, since the pastors are all coming, don't you think you ought to be there too? Let's show them a full house and give them a hearty welcome.

Now we want to tell you that if all the pastors and Superintendents will let it be known right now that they are going to attend this Convention, it will be no trouble whatever to get a full delegation of live S. S. workers from each S. S. in the Conference. We want every school and every C. E. Society represented. May we count on you?

We want to complete the program about June 1. Watch THE SUN. We are going to look for you. Plan, pray and prepare that you may not disappoint us, and that we all together may have the best Convention yet, and that God will bless our efforts.

SUFFOLK LETTER

The absorbing interest in Suffolk for two weeks has been the Victor Lighthourne meeting in the Christian Church. His messages have been simple, eloquent, direct, impressive. His manner of dealing with the common things of pulpit treatment, as cards, theatre, dancing, and immorality, has telling effect. Somehow he knows just what to say to the drinking man, and the careless man, to win him; and he especially draws children and young people to him. He is not sensational, nor frivolous, but eloquent and dramatic in his deliverances of the gospel message. I have not heard one word of criticism of him or his message. His stay has been full of increasing confidence and spiritual interest. His singing inspires the congregation to sing "with the spirit and with the understanding."

Although it is a single meeting, and the last of six in the churches of this city, it has extended beyond our own congregation and touched the whole community. People from other congregations and their ministers have attended the meetings and entered into the real spirit of the services. This feature of the meeting has been beautiful. "Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity." I think I may make a distinction between unity and union, by saying that union is man-made. Unity is God-made. Perhaps the oneness for which Jesus prayed was unity and not union. No matter what the difference is; no matter whether there is any difference at all, Suffolk can claim a fraternal and brotherly attitude among the ministers and churches that is wholesome and beautiful.

The results of the meeting so far as we can tell have brought more than a hundred and twenty-five persons into the kingdom and restored others. This number includes children and mature men and women. This has been accomplished without undue excitement or any wave of sensational enthusiasm. Fortright messages of real gospel truth have appealed to the rational and spiritual nature of the people and they have come forward of their own accord or at the touch or word of a friend.

The church has been thronged, the attention has been rapt, the feeling tense, and the order perfect. Then when the great congregation would sing an angel seemed to come down to "trouble the water," and whosoever stepped out "was made whole."

People came yesterday from Holland, Windsor, Waverly, and Norfolk to hear the message and to share in the blessing. Drs. W. H. Denison of Norfolk, C. H. Rowland of Franklin, Rev. B. F. Black of Holland, and Rev. Stanley C. Harrell of Windsor, in addition to local ministers, have attended the meetings.

The pressure was so great last night—16th—that Brother Lighthourne consented to hold meeting again tonight. It is impossible to say whether the meeting will close tonight.

Mrs. Lighthourne came down from Waverly and added to the interest of the meeting yesterday by her singing.

Whatever the value of Suffolk's endorsement of Rev. Victor Lighthourne may be, it certainly would contain the elements of sincerest approval and high praise. He has won the heart of this community, and the hearty endorsement of this pastor. W. W. STALEY.

ELON COLLEGE NOTES

The Commencement begins on Saturday afternoon of this week at 4 p. m. with the Class Day exercises. They will conclude on Tuesday night with the Alumni Oration by Rev. A. W. Andes. Sandwiched in between these two events will cluster all the good things that custom has established as fundamental to a successful Elon Commencement.

Sunday was a glorious day on the Hill—in point of weather and of the spirit of things generally. The sermon at the 11 o'clock hour was really a baccalaureate one and highly appropriate. The evening hour was given over to the installation of the new officers of the religious organizations. Dr. Atkinson presided and made the preliminary remarks. Miss Beatrice Mason, retiring Y. W. C. A. president, introduced her successor, Miss Ina Dunlap. So did Messrs J. L. Farmer, of the Y. M. C. A., his successor, Mr. W. B. Fuller, and likewise Mr. J. G. Truitt, of the C. E. Society, his successor, Mr. C. B. Riddle. The six addresses were short, but highly appropriate.

At the Sunday school yesterday officers were chosen for next year. Prof. Branmox was re-elected superintendent. Mr. R. T. Bradford was made Secretary; Miss Jennie Willis Atkinson pianist; and Mrs. E. E. Rendolph, Jr. Superintendent, Prof. W. P. Lawrence Treasurer.

Miss Wilson was indisposed the latter part of last week, but is better at this writing.

Dr. Atkinson delivered the literary address at Kernersville last week. Dr. Wicker preached the baccalaureate sermon at Bonlee. Dr.

Amick filled the M. P. pulpit in High Point Sunday, and President Harper delivered the commencement address at Rural Hall High School Sunday.

Mr. W. L. Anderson, who has been doing resident work for the M. A. degree, is in Baltimore with his mother at this time. She is to be operated on today.

Mr. F. F. Myrick, Spartanburg, S. C., was on the sacred soil, as he styled it, last week. Mr. Myrick is winning deserved promotion in Y. M. C. A. work. He is soon to take up work in Washington, D. C., or New York City.

Mr F. C. Friddle, Culebra Cut, Canal Zone, Panama, who has been helping Uncle Sam dig the big ditch, was here last week visiting his sister, a member of our Freshman Class.

Prof. and Mrs. Hook visited friends near Greensboro Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Holton, and Miss Betsy, visited their sister, Mrs. Harper, last week.

Quite a number of the churches have made report of their intention to hold the Christian Education Rally Day in June. Let us hope that the results will be all that could be desired, and they will be if pastors will it so. Our pastors are our fate in any enterprise. "X."

TAKING OUR MEASURE

It is a well known truth that we measure ourselves by the way that we relate ourselves to great tasks and forces. One has put it this forceful way: "One of the best tests of the measure of a man is in his relation to great forces and opportunities and tasks. A small man will either be unconscious of their presence and significance, or will be overwhelmed by them, and therefore inactive or inefficient. On the other hand a man who is really alive will rejoice that it is given him to relate himself to life's greatest forces and opportunities and tasks." It does us good to look in the mirror and see ourselves occasionally. How are we relating ourselves to the Asia task? Have you personally thought about Asia much? More than one-half of the population of the world lives in Asia. Forty-three out of every hundred people in the world live in China and India. In Asia the average parish of every worker we have there is 1,781 square miles, with an average population of 106,000. Turkey is 86 times as large as Massachusetts, with a population of 17,000,000, of whom 14,000,000 are Mohammedans, and there are only 354 missionaries there, including missionaries' wives. In Persia there are twelve cities with populations from 12,000 to 280,000 each, and four of those cities have not a single missionary. Do you care? How often we find it to be this way, more cotton, more corn, more peanuts, more hogs, to buy more land to raise more cotton, more corn, more peanuts, more hogs, etc. In Arabia there are eight millions of people in three provinces and in three of those provinces there are no missionaries; all must lie down and die without knowing Christ. In Central Asia there is a section as large as the United States, 52 times as large as England, with 24,000,000 of people, a region overwhelmed by intellectual stagnation and moral rottenness, and not a physician and not a hospital anywhere. How does your heart respond to this need beyond description? In India there are 39,000,000 children of school age, and 28,000,000 of them are growing up with no schooling. Two-thirds of India has never been reached by missionaries, and the other one-third only partially. Whole districts densely populated have not a single missionary and not even a Christian. Japan is the key to the Orient and one-half of it has not been touched. That is where the Christian church is doing its work. What are you doing to help? Can you even tell the names of our missionaries? Did you ever write a letter to any of them? Do you pray daily for them? Can't you furnish another missionary yourself to go to their assistance? Won't you send a large gift to our Mission Secretary, Dr. M. T. Morrill, today, and tell him to strengthen the forces in Japan. She needs Christ and needs Him now. Are you talking with your son and daughter about going as a missionary and encouraging them in the call to the heroic task? Or is it all about entering business and the professions? Have you and your wife talked over together what you ought to do for the Kingdom? What did you do last year per week for missions? Do you know what your church gave last year for missions? Did you have interest enough to find out? All these things will test our devotion, loyalty, real Christianity. When you really begin to contemplate these problems seriously it will drive you to the resources of God. Is your Christianity sufficient for this momentous hour of the human race? Is your faith sufficient to carry the gospel to the last man? Will the Christianity that you have and that your church has stand the test? Is the kind of Christianity that you and I have worth propagating? If every church in the Southern Christian Convention should send up its full apportionment for foreign missions we would give about one-seventh of what we promised before God we would try and raise each year in our Convention? Brother pastor, what are you doing about it? Sunday school Supt., what are you doing about it? Deacons, trustees, church officers, what are you doing about it? It is time now to do something special, something worth while, something heroic. It is time to pray as we have not prayed. It is time to give, it is time to talk this matter with your brethren. Will you?

WHY WOMEN SHOULD ATTEND SUNDAY SCHOOL

(A paper read before the Georgia-Alabama Sunday school Convention by Mrs. J. L. Redmond, and sent to THE SUN for publication by request of that body.)

In 1781 Robert Raikes, with the assistance of four women, organized the first Sunday school in modern times. The work has been growing until it is one of the greatest home missionary efforts ever put forth by Christian workers. Through its Cradle Roll we reach the busy, careworn mothers. Through its Home Department we reach the sick, aged and shut-ins, and often the careless and indifferent.

The Sunday school superintendent, with the teachers and mothers, should be the pastor's most valuable helpers. There are no mothers, teachers, superintendents or ministers who study their Bible as they should, and have a spark of that divine love in their hearts, such as caused the Savior of men to come on His mission to a dying world, but that will believe in, and impart to others, Sunday school zeal. For in proportion to the love we have for Him, is the passionate love we have for human souls.

There ought to be a more systematic way of teaching the girls of today, for they are the women of tomorrow. Mothers, let me entreat you to attend the Sunday school and bring your daughters. If we fail to implant in the children the seed of Christian truth today, we will find the church of tomorrow more indifferent and less spiritual than the church of the present.

The first Sunday school mentioned is a good example: "All the people gathered themselves together as one man, and Ezra, the priest, brought the law before the congregation, both of men and women, and all that could hear with understanding; and he read therein from morning until midday, and the ears of all the people were attentive unto the book of the law."

Have we not faith enough in Christ and in our work in the Sunday school and church to know that if we will only be patient and persevering in teaching the Word of God mothers young and old will serve Him with gladness, and we can best show our love to God by our love to our fellowmen.

A question, a serious question, arose upon the origin and rapid spread of the modern Sunday school idea as to the probable effect of the Sunday school on religious teaching in the home. Since the earliest Bible times the mother has been considered the primal agency for the giving of religious instruction to the young. The Mosaic law had enjoined upon parents the religious instruction of their children.

Mothers, I speak to you today, from more than twenty years' experience in Sunday school work. I can fully realize that it is absolutely necessary for you, and for me, to attend. Cares and responsibilities increase year after year, and many perplexing problems present themselves. The many duties of home, the domestic cares, the business, successes and failures, the rearing of children, the providing for the family, the anxieties incident to sickness and death, the long hours in office and on the farm, all try the strength and tax the patience of a mother's mind and tend to distract and absorb interest.

The mother must understand these conditions, deal with them wisely, and with such tact as to hold the attention of her children in spite of these conditions. To be able to do this she must attend Sunday school that the soul's sense of spiritual need must be kept alive and enthusiastic, by efficient, skilful teaching, that will engender a spirit of devotion and enthusiasm in their minds, so that the cares of this world will not crowd out this higher spiritual truth.

In America, although the religious home life is now far below what it could be, and is partly due to the carelessness and indifference of mothers, yet there is evidence that it is better than it was a hundred years ago.

Note this statement by a churchman of influence and integrity: "In 1812 thousands of families have either not reared the family altar or have put out the sacred fire and laid aside together the rod and the Bible as superfluous aids in the education of children. Children have not been instructed in religion as they were in the days of our fathers, and that is one reason why Sunday schools were organized to simplify the Bible so that it could be taught to the children, and mothers, if we do not attend Sunday school and encourage our children we have sinned and lost many blessings which were in store for us."

If you will once lay down the cares and responsibilities and begin to attend Sunday school, you can afford to sacrifice many luxuries that you waited at home to prepare, you will receive unbounded blessings, which will more than repay you. Sunday school will help to form the moral and spiritual principles of our daughters' lives, who are soon to be mothers too. And what greater ambition can a mother have than to see her children useful in the Lord's work?

Statistics say that about 98% of all our church members come from the Sunday school. A further fact is that wherever religious instruction is found in the home it is almost invariably in the home of church members. These considerations lead to the conclusion that Sunday schools aid rather than hinder religious instruction in the home.

The home has been, and is still being enriched and sureharged with religious life and light, the agency of the mothers and the Sunday school.

The Sunday school is now the fountainhead of the church, the same as the mother is the fountainhead of the home. To it the church looks for future membership, as the child looks to the mother for future advice and instruction. In a sense, the Sunday school is a foundry of the church molding vessels for its sacred service.

Likewise the mother is the foundry of her home, molding principles and discipline for her children. For this reason, if no other, every mother should attend Sunday school to be the more efficient to put higher ideals before her children.

The mother is the main standard of the home, and the Sunday school is one of the main standards of the church. It is as hard for a church to survive without a good live Sunday school as it is for a young babe without a mother.

And now mothers, as a last appeal to you, let me beg you to attend Sunday school with your children, and try to prove to them how necessary it is, for—

*"Know this, that every soul is free
To choose his life and what he will be,
For this eternal truth is given,
That God will force no man to heaven.
He'll call, persuade, direct aright,
Bless him with wisdom, love and light,
In nameless ways be good and kind,
But never force the human mind."*

THE GEORGIA-ALABAMA SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION

Yes, we have a Sunday School Convention down here in the South. It met in its fourth annual session Sunday, May 2, at Beulah (Girard), Ala. All who were present agreed that it was the best session in its history. It was moved and carried that next year three days be given to the work of the Convention instead of one, that the time of the Convention be changed from May to July, and the place of meeting is to be with the Rose Hill Christian Church, Columbus, Ga.

New officers were elected and new committees appointed. The following officers were elected for the next year: Pres., Rev. B. J. Earp, Columbus, Ga.; 1st Vice-Pres., W. T. Beggs, Columbus, Ga.; 2nd Vice-Pres., G. F. Partridge, LaNette, Ala.; Sec., E. E. Hill, Girard, Ala.; Treas., J. F. Hill, Girard, Ala.

Committees were appointed on Christian Endeavor, Personal Work, Temperance, Teacher Training, Organized Classes, Home Department, Cradle Roll, and Moral Reform.

An offering was taken and pledges given amounting to $17.70 to assist the President and Secretary to awaken more interest in this feature of church work and to have more schools represented at our next session. It was also moved and carried that we have our minutes published and that they be distributed among the Sunday schools of the Convention. We are planning this year to initiate more Teacher Training classes and more C. E. Societies within the bounds of this convention. We earnestly desire the prayers and co-operation of the entire brotherhood.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON, MAY 23
David King Over Judah and Israel.—
2 Sam. 2:1-7; 5:1-5.

In today's lesson we cover much history; history that is recorded in ten chapters. Have your students divided in sections and let a section review the assigned chapters by giving an outline of each. The reading is interesting and the lessons many.

David An Outlaw

David had been forced to flee for his life. He had hid himself in the caves of the Judean wilderness for a long time, but the seekers of his life were getting too close and he had to take refuge in the land of the Philistines. This was hard for David to do, to live with the people whom he had recently waged war against. David did the best he could and joined in with them and fought for them. At one time he confronted the Israelites, but fortunately he did not have to fight against them.

A revelation comes to Saul. He drives God farther and farther away and determines to win in battle, though he is told that he will lose. He went to battle and felt that he was losing ground gradually—he saw his sons killed and knowing the enemy was gaining the day, requested his armor bearer to kill him. The armor bearer would not, so Saul fell on his sword, committing suicide.

On being informed by an Amalekite of Saul's death David lamented. The Amalekite claimed that he had slain Saul and for this deed David had the Amalekite put to death. David was grieved very much on hearing of the death of his true and beloved friend Jonathan. To learn of his truest friend's death must have brought David nearer to eternal life. While he meditated upon life to come and the life that Jonathan was now enjoying, David came nearer to God and His divine power. It was experience that David needed for his approaching responsibilities.

After the king had been slain the people chose David as their king. David ruled the southern part of Judah.

Saul's son together with Abner ruled Israel. These rulers were not satisfactory. A few years of war followed. Saul's son being slain and Abner killed, the people of Israel claimed David as their lawful and divine king.

C. E. TOPIC, MAY 23

Religious Reading: What and Why.—
Ps. 119:129-136.

In discussing the topic for this meeting the leader has a splendid opportunity to bring out his own remarks and by asking others the sentiments of the leading members of what they consider religious reading and what should be read on the Sabbath.

We charge some of our State schools with the act of allowing and even encouraging the study of text books on the Sabbath. However, we are glad to learn that this practice is being disposed of; being defeated by religious organizations.

There will probably be as many ideas as to what really constitutes religious literature and what should be read on the Sabbath as you have members present.

We are inclined to think it is not so much the matter that is being read as it is the object for which it is read.

It would be quite difficult to say just what is and what is not religious literature; but we can say the literature that makes us think noble thoughts and do kindly deeds is religious literature.

Our church periodicals give events that pertain to our development and progress along religious lines. Of course the Bible is the best religious literature that we can procure.

As has been suggested above, we should read in order that we may be benefited. We can hear discourses; they have their effect and are essential; but we cannot hear the words of the Master just as they fell from His lips, and with the same tone in which they were spoken. The next best thing for us to do is to read these comforting words. Not only must we read the words but read the comments, that we may be able to get, that will give us light and make the scriptures more real to us. This will be religious literature. If the books, magazines and papers that we read on Sunday afternoons lift us up and bring our spirit in unison with God's, then we need not be afraid of what we are reading.

We get our best history from reading; we learn and read the best thoughts of the noblest lives which have preceded us.

DISCOVERY BY THE SENSE OF SMELL

Washington Irving in his life of Columbus tells us that when Christopher Columbus discovered America he thought Santo Domingo a part of Cibao or Cipango (Japan). The spicy breezes reaching his vessels from landward gave his principal evidences of arrival at Cibao—the world-famed source of aromatic oils and spices. From Japan still come the aromatics which have made Mentholatum famous for chapped hands and sunburn, for headaches and head colds, for inflammations of the skin and membranes of the head. Mentholatum is used everywhere. Adv.

NOTES FROM JAPAN

Miss Ren Hamaguchi has for more than a year been located at 508 Wakuya, Miyagi Ken, Japan, in our northern field. Her greatest recreation is found in reading English papers and magazines. She writes: "I received some Christian Herald's yesterday. Many thanks. I shall enjoy them. Reading is my greatest delight." She also writes, "I have been to Tsukidate (a county seat where the work is supported by Elmwood Christian church, Providence, R. I.) There were several young men and Dr. Oikawa's family at the prayer meeting or Bible study. In Wakuya I again had a children's meeting. There were 25 of us yesterday. I am telling them the story of Creation here. In S. S. at the church they are learning the life of Christ. Our quarterly will be held here in Wakuya in the middle of October. The church land and pastor's house are bought. The two graduates of our Girls' School at Utsunomiya help well at church. The pastor's son, Masao Sakura, has gone to Sendai to see about his school, his mother O Masa San also visiting there for a few days."

The women will be interested to learn that it was the generous gift of Misses Mary and Clara Rowell, of Franklin, N. H., which made possible the purchasing of this fine lot and suitable Japanese building which we had long rented for a meeting place. It is located beside the public school, gives the pastor land enough for an excellent garden, a house of 8 rooms, well adapted for preaching place and parsonage in Japanese style. Many think the native style is much better adapted to the needs of the people outside the largest cities than the erection of American-like buildings for churches.

How delighted the Wakuya people will be to have their prayers answered and their deep desires granted. How much more permanent our work will seem to the people. Also how relieved the mission treasurer will be as he cuts down the monthly rent items. "No more rent needed for Wakuya."

The boys' class, taught by one of our most earnest missionary women, Miss Hattie Stevenson, of support of Master Masao in the High School. He is the oldest of six children. The war has called out some of the relatives of the class and may call out some member of the class itself, but they will do all they can.

CONSHOHOOKEN, PA., LETTER

I am just from Dover, Delaware, where I spent some time with Rev. A. W. Lightbourne, of the People's Church. Dr. Lightbourne's church is the center, and parent, of the Delmarvia Conference, and his great leadership and labors in the midst of a splendid people have made possible whatever has been accomplished for our cause in that section. The voting constituency of the People's Christian Church congregation is about eighteen hundred. They have a church property valued at $45,000, with a nice endowment, and the original debt incurred in building is reduced to $500. That has been accomplished in about six years. For the past several months they have been blessed with a great revival spirit continuously. The next session of the Delmarvia Conference will convene there on Saturday before the last Sunday in May. I hope the Editor of THE SUN and others of our Southern brethren will attend.

While at Dover I also spent a little time with Rev. R. S. Stephens, our Conference Missionary. He has recently held a series of revival services at our Wyoming church, which resulted in forty-three conversions and thirty-six additions to the membership. That mission has a membership of sixty-eight and a property valued at about $2,000. He reports conversions at that point since the work was opened three years ago. The Portable church, located at Kiths Hammock on the Delaware Bay was struck by a cyclone on Sunday, the 11th inst., after an interesting service and totally destroyed, parts of the structure from floor to roof carried to great distances. On the day before, Saturday, they finished paying off their debt incurred in locating and more comfortably furnishing it. They have a membership of 20 active workers and a Sunday school of 50, and are located in a thickly settled community of farmers and fishermen, removed from any other church by several miles. They need about $500 at once with which to secure a place of worship and to save the work. The People's Church of Dover raised $100 last Sunday for them, and the Missionary, while discouraged, yet proposes to go ahead and rally the forces there again.

We are in the midst of a great Tabernacle Campaign here in which the eight Protestant churches of the community are uniting. The Tabernacle will seat 2100 and has been filled, sometimes the attendance has reached 2500. The first week's offerings reached $1000 of the $3000 expense budget, and the first four invitations have re-

It was our good pleasure to attend the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention of the Virginia Valley Central Conference on last Thursday and Friday. It was a delightful convention, full of interest and enthusiasm for the work. While there we had the pleasure of meeting many friends of the institution, and among them a number of the cousins.

We stopped over at Virgilina, Va., and worshiped with our Hebron church on Sunday. Here we found a large and attentive congregation who listened with interest to our report of the Orphanage work. The Sunday school promised to become a regular monthly contributor in the future.

Our Board of Trustees meets on next Wednesday, the 26th, and we are all very busy endeavoring to get things in readiness for them and our many friends who will attend the Elon Commencement. We trust that every one who attends the Commencement will visit the Orphanage. We shall be glad to show them what we have and tell them about the things we need and want and hope to have in the future.

Handerson, N. C., May 10, 1915.
Dear Uncle Jim:—We have had a nice rain and everything is so fresh and pretty that I think it fine to stay outdoors and play. I enjoy making sand cakes. I think I am a nice cook. I hope all the little cousins are well and the little orphans too. I will close this time with my dime for May and give some space for other little cousins.

ins. With love and best wishes to all,
Lovingly,
Virginia Pearl Ayscue.
We have all enjoyed the rain too. I would like to eat some of your cakes, baked when you are grown.

Clayton, N. C., May 3, 1915.
Dear Uncle Jim:—Here I come with my dime for May. I am sick with a cold, but hope all the cousins are well. Mother, father and I went to a baptizing Sunday. Mother was standing with me in her arm on the bank of the creek and the first man they baptized scared me so bad that I lacked to have jumped out of mother's arms. Mother has taken off nine little turkeys this morning. Will close with love to you and all the cousins.

Ashley B. Breedlove.
We hope you are better by this time. It was fortunate that you didn't jump into the creek.

Wakefield, Va., May 1, 1915.
Dear Uncle Jim:—Just three more days to go to school. I am in the 4th grade now and hope to be promoted to the fifth next year. I was so busy playing and going to school that I forgot to write. I will close with love to you and all the cousins. Enclosed are my dimes for April and May.

Martha Barrett.
We have kept your letter some time waiting for others to go with it. We hope you and others will not forget to write or send your dimes either after this.

PASTORS AND THE SEASIDE CHAUTAUQUA

No one class of Christian workers should profit quite so much by the coming Seaside Chautauqua and School of Methods as our busy pastors. Every preacher should have a vacation during the summer of two or three weeks or a month. No man can stay on the job twelve long months and render the best service. A season of complete relaxation and rest is just as necessary as keeping everlastingly at it the remainder of the year.

Unfortunately, on account of custom and conditions, many pastors, by reason of revivals find the summer the busiest time of the year. This is especially true in certain country districts. The purpose of this writing is to urge pastors and churches as far as possible not to arrange for revival meetings during the week of the Chautauqua, July 19-25.

This ought to be of all the year one week entirely free from all other engagements. On to Virginia Beach, every body, should be the cry. There are no conflicts in dates this year with other gatherings so far as we know. We are glad of this arrangement, for last year some could not attend who really desired to.

No one deserves the rest and the delightful privilege which the Chautauqua offers quite so much as the pastors. Churches should not only see that the pastors are given opportunity to attend, but should see that the way is made possible. No church could do a more generous thing than to see that the pastor takes this week as a part of his vacation and that his expenses are paid to Virginia Beach. The program this year will not be so full as last year, giving more time for rest and recreation. There is no more delightful resort on the Atlantic Coast than Virginia Beach—an ideal place for a week of recreation and rest, and on account of the Chautauqua the very best place for a week of the most profitable employment.

Last year 25 pastors attended the Chautauqua. This year we ought to have 100. On the program the pastors have been well provided for. We are frank to say that we do not believe our ministers can find anywhere a stronger course of study than has been provided for them this year at Virginia Beach.

Let every ministers begin now to make plans to be there.

I am wondering, as I pick up the papers and see how many schools are "breaking up," how many pupils are graduating, and how many Baccalaureate sermons are being preached for the scholars of our day-schools, and I am wondering, I repeat, how many Sunday schools throughout our Conference are arranging for a Promotion Day, how many have scholars graduating from one grade into another, and I am wondering if many of our schools do not come perilously near a "breaking up" simply for the lack of impressing upon the school, the scholars and the neighborhood at large the very much "worth-whileness" of the work they are doing.

My little girls are wild with anticipations of passing. They eagerly discuss each day's work, and each examination passed is hailed as one more dread difficulty put behind their backs. They are mighty sure they have passed, but still, "I'll be so glad when I know for sure and certain," is the cry I hear repeated from one or the other a dozen times a day.

Every child in your class in Sunday school who is of school age has his head full just now of the pros and cons of passing. Those of you who teach the older boys and girls have some among them who will graduate this year, whose education, insofar as school is concerned, is finished. They have done something, they have covered a definite course of study, and they are to be rewarded for it in a definite manner, and in a manner which all will appreciate and recognize.

Have you asked anything of them in their Sunday school class this year? Have they accomplished it? Are you going to recognize the fact in a fitting and public manner? I see in THE SUN announcement after announcement where our teachers and officers from the college are asked to go hither and yonder to "break up" a school, but I have not yet seen a single instance where they have been called in to preach a baccalaureate sermon in a S. S. or to assist in the promotion exercises of a class in such a school. If you have five or ten scholars in various grades to be promoted, do you suppose they will ever forget the occasion if you set a definite day for Promotion day, if you have President Harper or Dr. Wicker or Dr. Staley, or any other of our wise and helpful church and Sunday school leaders to be present and deliver an address, and afterwards to bestow on the pupils the little Certificates of Promotion (which can be procured for about 25 cents a dozen), ribbon tied, and intimating to friend, relatives and all those who may see them, that some definite work in the Sunday school has been accomplished, and that fitting recognition is being given to the scholar for such work?

Why not try it once? Why not this year, instead of stooping down to that awkward lad and saying, "My, Frank, you are too big for this little class; better go over with the bigger boys," try calling Frank and Frank's companions in front of the school, stating that they are now six, or nine, or twelve, or sixteen (according to the grade to which they are to be promoted) that they have been faithful scholars, have "applied themselves unto wisdom," and consequently the school is honoring itself in honoring them by thus formally promoting them to the next higher grade?

Will you do it? Will you give this plan a trial, and then will you let us know how it turns out?

The Germans from behind their entrenchments in Belgium recently bombarded Dunkirk at a distance of 18 miles, killing a number of civilians and non-combatants in the operations.

OUR DEAD

Williams

In loving remembrance of my devoted little cousin, Mary Elizabeth Williams, age nine years, two months and six days, who fell asleep May 9, 1915. Darling Elizabeth has left us;

Left us, yes, forevermore:
But we hope to meet our loved one
On that bright and happy shore.
Elizabeth, thy gentle voice is hushed,
Thy warm, true heart is still,
And on thy young and innocent brow
Is resting death's cold chill.

Dear, thy hands are clasped upon thy breast,

We have kissed thy lovely brow,
And in our aching hearts we know
Elizabeth is an angel now.

A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is stilled,
A place is vacant in her home
Which never can be filled.

There was an angel band in heaven
That was not quite complete,
So God took darling Elizabeth
To fill that vacant seat.

Not now, but in the coming years,
It may be in the better land,
We'll read the meaning of our tears,
And there, sometime, we'll understand.

Farewell, dear, but not forever;
There shall be a glorious dawn;
We shall meet to part—no, never!
On the resurrection morn.

MARY EMILY GATLING.

Elder

Our heavenly Father in His infinite wisdom has taken from our midst and from all pain and suffering our dear friend and Philathea sister, Miss Vieve Vesta Elder. She has been transplanted to that beautiful home where joy, peace and love reigneth forever.

Amid her suffering and sickness she was cheerful and hopeful, and her faith in Jesus was unshaken.

We deeply feel the loss of our true and beloved sister, but believing it to be God's will, we bow in humble submission.

Therefore be it resolved:
First—That such a life from our midst leaves a shadow and a vacancy that will be deeply felt by all the members of the Rose Hill Christian Philathea Sunday school class, and will prove a great loss to her friends and relatives.

Second—That with deepest heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family we express our hope that even so great a loss to us may be for the best.

Third—That the compassionate Savior may comfort and heal the sorrowing hearts of those left behind, and when their summons comes, they may all meet and form an unbroken circle around God's throne in heaven.

Fourth—That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the bereaved family, a copy be recorded on the secretary's book of the Rose Hill Christian Philathea Sunday school class, and a copy be sent to The Christian Sun for publication.

EXCHANGE YOUR OLD BODY FOR A NEW ONE

You can do it in three weeks and thereby renew your health. This article is written by a physician who has seen it demonstrated in numerous cases and explains how it is done.

Listen! If your weight is one hundred and thirty-five pounds your body contains eighty pounds of water, for, according to standard medical books, the human body contains sixty-seven and one-half per cent. of water. Now disease is invariably caused by impurities which we call poison, and these are readily dissolved by the right kind of natural mineral water. Drink ten gallons (eighty pounds) of Shivar Mineral Water (use no other water for twenty-one days), and you will have exchanged your old body for a new one, so far as the soluble part of it is concerned. The impurities will be dissolved and pass away. If you suffer with dyspepsia, indigestion, sick headache, rheumatism, gall stones, kidney or liver disease, uric acid poisoning, or other conditions due to impure blood, accept Mr. Shivar's liberal offer which appears below. Read the following letter carefully; then sign and mail it:
Shivar Spring,

CALOMEL IS MERCURY! IT SICKENS! ACTS ON LIVER LIKE DYNAMITE

"Dodson's Liver Tone" Starts Your Liver
Better Than Calomel and Doesn't Salivate or Make You Sick.

Listen to me! Take no more sickening, salivating calomel when bilious or constipated. Don't lose a day's work! Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel, when it comes into contact with sour bile crashes into it, breaking it up. This is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you are sluggish and "all knocked out," if your liver is torpid and bowels constipated or you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, if breath is bad or stomach sour just take a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone on my guarantee.

Here's my guarantee—Go to any drug store and get a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone. Take a spoonful to-night and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous by morning I want you to go back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying the sale of calomel because it is real liver medicine; entirely vegetable, therefore it can not salivate or make you sick.

I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your bowels of that sour bile and constipated waste which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable. I guarantee that a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone will keep your entire family feeling fine for months. Give it to your children. It is harmless; doesn't gripe—and they like its pleasant taste.

A False Teacher

For a dozen years, ever since his death, we are told that young Germany, the new Germany has been feeding its soul on Nietzsche, the idol of German thinkers, writers, philosophers. A thousand students shouted themselves hoarse one night as they heard for the first time Nietzsche's new gospel, "Be Hard." This was no uncommon scene. Let SUN readers take this paragraph from Germany's favorite for a quarter of a century or more, and think upon the consequences: "I do not advise you to compromise or to make peace, but to conquer. Let your labor be fighting and your peace victory. What is good? All that increases the feeling of power, the will to power, power itself in man. What is bad? All that proceeds from weakness. What is happiness? The feeling that power increases, that resistance is being overcome. Not contentment, but more power. Not peace at any price, but war. Not virtue, but efficiency. The weak and the botched must perish; that is the first principle of our humanity." Imagine a nation fed on such doctrine as that. Is it any wonder that there is war in that nation—war to the death with other nations? If so read this further declaration from Germany's idol: "You say that a good cause hallows even war. I tell you that a good war hallows every cause. The new empire has more need of foes than friends. Nothing has grown more alien to us than 'that peace of soul' which is the aim of Christianity." This is the gospel of sheer efficiency and magnified might. This makes might right, and power the one thing to be sought after. When a nation's teachers go wrong there is danger for that nation. "There shall be false teachers among you, who privily shall bring in damnable heresies, even denying the Lord * * * and bring upon themselves swift destruction." (2 Pet. 2:1.)

A Beautiful Adventure

We are accustomed to look at death as dark and dreaded and dreary. All do not so regard it. When the Lusitania was going down, and inevitable death drew nigh to so many, Frohman, friend of dramatists, is quoted as speaking calmly of death as "life's most beautiful adventure." Death is to be avoided and not courted, because life is sacred and divine; but when the inevitable comes, it is a thing not to be feared, as the Psalmist taught long, long ago: "Though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me." (Psa. 23:4.)

Today and Tomorrow

Every day has its tasks, privileges, opportunities. Tomorrow will be freighted: it needs no burdens from today's task. Emerson wrote, "Finish every day and be done with it. You have done what you could. Some blunders and absurdities, no doubt, crept in; forget them as soon as you can. Tomorrow is a new day; begin it well and serenely and with too high a spirit to be cumbered with your old nonsense. This day is all that is good and fair. It is too dear with its hopes and aspirations to waste a moment upon the yesterday." He who can make the most of today is the wise and happy one. "This is the day which the Lord hath made; we will rejoice and be glad in it." (Psa. 118:24.)

The Harder Task

The one out for an easy job has no part or parcel in the spirit of this strenuous time. The real man of the day courts the difficult task. It is the place, not of ease, but of opportunity, that lures and wins the hand and heart of those who count in our time. Our two hundred theological students from many seminaries met in Chicago recently and held a conference whose motto was: "America for Christ." Many of them signed this pledge: "It is my desire to enter the service of Christ in a neglected field under the American flag." Somehow the ideal of the day seems to be: The field of opportunity regardless of ease or comfort, is the field of duty for me. And is not this what our Savior meant, when he said: "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me." (Matt. 16:24.)

Into His Presence

Religion is the life of God in the soul of man—religion of the right sort. To make religion real means to lift man up and bring God down to the same high level. God becomes vital for us when we ascend to the summits and get in touch and sweet converse with Him. Mr. Pepper, a layman, by the way, delivered the Lyman Beecher lectures on Preaching this year. His general theme was significant, "A Voice from the Crowd." This remark was made in the lectures: "It is my observation that God's face can be veiled effectually by at least two classes of preachers: those who deify man and those who humanize God." Man becomes like God, and God becomes like man only when through reverence, adoration and worship on the part of the former, God's life pours into the soul of man. "This is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent." (Jno. 17:3.)

Curing Starvation

China is an exceedingly fertile country. Her soil is rich, her climate favorable, her natural resources inexhaustible and beyond computation. And yet the Chinese are a poor people and millions live near the starvation line. Why? There is but one answer, China's superstition—her false religion. The missionary Joseph Bailie at Nanking University declares that if he could get only a dozen young Americans with training in scientific agriculture and forestry he could revolutionize the industrial life of Central China. No one but a missionary ever thought of curing China of her starvation by improving permanently her social and economic conditions. China's soil touched by the hand of Christian workmanship, Christian skill and ability, will make China one of the richest nations of the world. And yet people think there is no such thing as Christian agriculture, Christian forestry, Christian manufacturing. "The blessing of the Lord maketh rich." (Prov. 10:22.)

Christianity and Civilization

The Church has not failed; neither has Christianity. But civilization has failed,—a civilization that was Christianized. The nations of Europe were and are civilized, and to a very high degree. But this civilization was to poor purpose, for its foundation was wrong. The editor of Christian Work of New York declares: "We have been laying up treasures upon earth with a vengeance, and to what good end? Life has become increasingly complex, but on the whole not happier than of old. The possession of great wealth apparently does not tend to make people kinder, wiser, more considerate of others, of keener sensibilities, more spiritual in outlook and aim. Yes, it might be said of so-called Christian society as a whole, that it has come within measurable distance of gaining the whole world, but is in danger of losing its soul in the process. We have never to be afraid of poverty; no nation needs to be afraid of poverty, but of poverty allied to degradation. We fervently wish all Europe were poor and clean and great of soul. We have been proceeding on wrong lines, aiming at wrong things, focusing our interest in the wrong place. Neither the cultivation of body nor mind can compensate for the neglect of the soul. Civilization has not been following Christ; it has been deluding itself with promises of material betterment and consequent happiness; we have made an idol of progress, without seeing whither it was leading us or what would be the ultimate gain." A civilization whose god was progress was compelled to collapse, as any order or system of things must collapse whose center and foundation is aught else than Christ. "For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ." 1 Cor. 3:12.)

EDITORIAL

WHITHER?

In a recent journal (The Atlantic) an anonymous writer discusses Whither? in a manner which has caused his article to be called by many thinkers the most remarkable magazine contribution for a decade. The writer in question contrasts the life and tendency of the present with that of the past: "The chief question was, 'Is it right or wrong?' The chief question today is, 'Is it sterilized?' Life which used to be a brave fight between heaven and hell, has come to be a long and anxious tip-toeing between the microbe and the antiseptic. Working forward, however eugenically, toward the perfect brute is a poor hope at best."

The author makes a plea for the secret of personality—the soul. "The only genuine progress for us is progress in the inner life. We have been making wonderful material progress, but what about spiritual progress? It is a call to the verities, to the real, the abiding, the spiritual. The writer is not a pessimist, he does not disparage the day in which we live, but he sounds a warning to those who are losing the finer and nobler sensibilities. There is some truth, at least, in what the writer says. He begins by referring to some old letters from a mother to her little girl at school in the city, in which are words "which take away one's breath, in the grandeur of their denial of that which seems, in the splendor of assurance, 'My sisetr Mary today entered upon eternal life.'"

But today, ah! how has our letter writing changed! "Whether or not we assume that matter is the origin and the end of all things, the world of today thinks in terms of matter; is content to live and breathe and have its being in matter; hopes, aspires and prays, if it hopes, aspires and prays at all, in terms of matter."

The writer does not disparage the day in which we live, but rather sounds a warning to those who are losing the finer and spiritual possibilities of life in exchange for the bulk of the seen and overwring.

"In our great outer prosperity and inner poverty, our immense acquisition of external knowledge, and incalculable loss of deeper realities, our morality shifting its great concern from the welfare of the soul to that of the body, we find no symbol so fitting as the old fable of the dog and his shadow in the brook. Dropping his bone to grasp the shadow of the bone, he went hungry away.

"Life, personality, are full of larger needs and larger powers than the present trend of thought permits us to recognize; and life must know the diviner hunger, the deeper thirst, if it is to win significance.

"The greatest marvel in all the world's history is that Christ could have been; that the very idea of soul, of human development transcending the physical in utter self-sacrifice, could have come into existence is proof enough of the divine. That teaching, so clear, so unmistakable, has been blurred and forgotten, as nation and individual have succumbed to the lesser law, but it still is there. Christianity left behind? It is millions of years ahead, so far ahead that it is still dim before our vision.

"One thing is evident in all this awful crash: men still are brave; never before, perhaps, have they fought against such great odds. The splendor of their courage dims our eyes. Shall the fighters in the world of spirit, 'fighters in the noblest fight,' be less brave in defending in the face of odds, perhaps never so great before, these inner truths, deeper than dogma, deeper than theology, deeper than life itself, the immemorial heritage of the race—longing unutterable for righteousness, for faith in the spiritual, for enlarging and unending life?"

ELON COMMENCEMENT

The occasion made its usual draft upon the friends of the college, of those interested in speakers and graduates, for attendance, interest and enjoyment. The exercises began Saturday, May 22, at 4 p. m., with class day exercises by the Seniors, and concluded Tuesday night, May 25, with the Alumni Address by Rev. A. W. Andes, Harrisonburg, Va., and the alumni exercises and banquet that followed. There were twenty-two members of the graduating class and their exercises were of a high order and fully appreciated. Saturday at 8 p. m. representatives from the three literary societies gave essays and orations, to a large audience, in the following order:

Oration—North Carolina's Primacy in History, Mr. Paul Virgil Parks.

Oration—The Corner Stone of Civilization, Mr. Carl Brown Riddle.

Essay—Art and Life, Miss Annie Laurie Wicker.

Oration—A Tribute to the South, Mr. Roger Mills White.

Essay—Chasing a Vision, Miss Ruth Johnson.

Oration—Love of the Beautiful, Mr. Robert Frederick Brown.

Sunday morning at 11:30 a magnificent audience gathered for the baccalaureate sermon. Rev. F. G. Coffin, D. D., Albany, N. Y., was the preacher. His theme was based on the text: "Whosoever thy hands find to do, do it with thy might." He said that the purpose of education was not necessarily to fill a larger sphere, though it usually resulted in this, but to fill any place more competently.

"Education adds ability, but only Christian motive will apply that ability in the right direction. The blade cannot be too sharp for the useful artisan, but in the hands of the murderer it would better be dull. Its keenness of edge is desirable only by a good accompanying motive.

"We can easily place too much stress on graduation as a life event. One may be 'well versed in books in shallow in himself.' Education can never be an accomplishment, it is always a process. Hitherto your education has been estimated by a series of lifeless percentages. It will still have its tests and grades, but these will be advertised in the degree of efficiency with which you do the ordinary things of life. If education makes you a snob, if it puts your nose beyond the common things, or fills you with dissatisfaction because of the humble things, it is a curse to you.

"The habit of thinking that life's best is always 'out there' or 'up there,' anywhere else but 'here,' has robbed many of large and useful missions. For the present moment your best opportunity is right where you are. Under God reach out and put your hand to it. This will open the door to where you aspire to be. The most of you, notwithstanding your education, will find your mission in the midst of common things. There are but few summits upon which people can stand. True, 'there is always room at the top,' but it is equally true that there is still more room at the bottom and there will always be more people there. Go to the top when you can, but put the same high qualities of service into your place when at the bottom.

"Greatness is never in the size of the task. It is in the quality of its doing. No man's life can be greater than the qualities out of which he builds it. Fame is not greatness. At its best it can be but the advertisement of it. Wealth is not greatness. It may be the product of it, or it may be the result of the utter abandonment of it. Greatness is in the qualities of soul, the place of their application being a most incidental.

"Our modern life needs the transformation of loving our tasks because of our characters rather than the character of the task. We possess no elements of greatness which are not within us. Many people will never 'realize their ideal,' but he is still greater who idealizes his real."

His discourse made a profound impression and will live in the minds and hearts of those who heard it.

Sunday evening at 8 o'clock Pres. W. A. Harper, LL. D., delivered the baccalaureate address. His theme was Life and Aspiration, and it was pointed, powerful and practical. This address will be given in full to SUN readers and will be read to great profit.

Monday evening the music department rendered to the delight of a great audience a most excellent program.

Tuesday was graduating day, and the exercises were attended by an audience that taxed the capacity of the auditorium. It was generally conceded that no graduating exercises here were ever of a higher order. Six speakers represented by orations and essays the whole class and followed this program:

Oration—The Forward-Looking Man, Mr. William Duncan Loy.

Essay—The Challenge of Conscience, Miss Pattie Anderson Preston.

Oration—The Unseen Power, Mr. John Vinson Knight.

Essay—What is a College? Miss Charlotte Beatrice Mason.

Essay—Doomed to Live, Mrs. Eleanor Oma Utley.

Oration—The Immorality of War, Mr. Edward Thomas Cotten.

The literary address by President Fairfax Harrison of the Southern Railway, Washington, D. C., was one of the most scholarly, profound and timely addresses ever delivered here. No synopsis could do it justice and THE SUN will present it in full at an early date. The theme of the great thinker was "The Choice of Hercules." President Harrison is a scholar, an orator, and a man of wide and classic learning. He completely captured his Elon audience, and the college honored itself in conferring upon him the degree of Doctor of Laws. Elon confers few honorary degrees, but it is doubtful if it ever conferred one that will be more worthily worn. Rev. W. S. Long, Elon's first president, was also given the same degree. All will acclaim its deserved bestowal.

The following were the list of graduates and of those who received certificates:

The twenty-fifth annual commencement was the best yet and certainly set a high standard for all future events of similar character. Elon grows from year to year and with its growth its influence for usefulness and efficiency widens.

NOTES AND PERSONALS

—The N. C. State C. E. meets in Wilmington with the First Presbyterian church June 4-6. A large attendance is expected.

—We have an excellent sermon from Rev. G. D. Eastes, Norfolk, on "The Definition of a Christian." This will be given to our readers in next issue and will be read to great profit.

—Rev. W. G. Clements, our youthful and vigorous church builder, has organized another church, this time at Mebane, N. C., where we were due to have a church fifteen years ago. All honor to Bro. Clements for his progressiveness and consecration.

—Our obituary columns this week carry an account of the death of Bro. James Brady of Randolph Co. Bro. Brady was 88 years and 3 months old, and was one of the most beloved and highly esteemed men in all his community. What a blessing and a benediction his long life has been to the world!

—As was expected by those who knew him and had worked with him, Rev. Victor Lighthouse captured the people of Suffolk and won the hearts of that great people. Bro. Lighthouse is devoted to his work, and is giving his best to the winning of men to Christ. Dr. Staley in Suffolk Letter this week writes well merited words of this vigorous man of God.

—President W. A. Harper's book, "The Making of Men," is from the press of the Christian Publishing Association, Dayton, O., and in mechanical make-up and appearance does credit to its publishers. It is a neat and substantial volume of 173 pages, and the print is good. The price of the book is 75 cents the copy post-paid. We have not had opportunity of reading the volume, but are impressed with its topics and subject matter and manner of treatment. The book will be reviewed next week.

—The Portable church which the Southern Christian Convention put at the disposal of the Delmarvia Conference and had been used for some years in Delaware and to good effect and usefulness was totally destroyed by a storm of the Delaware coast recently. But Dr. A. W. Lighthouse writes that the loss will result in a permanent church building being established to take the place of the temporary one. A Dover paper gives this account: "For the second time within a year the portable chapel of the People's Christian Church, which had been removed to Kitti's Hammock, was torn from its foundation and hurled a shapeless mass along the beach. A congregation had filed from the building a few minutes before the storm wrought its destruction. The chapel, when previously buffeted by a storm, was in Magnolia." A permanent and self-supporting church is to take its place, we are assured.

PORTSMOUTH LETTER

I know you are interested in the Portsmouth Christian Church, and I am glad I can tell you of some things which will be very gratifying to you.

I have been preaching every day for four weeks. Beginning with the third Sunday in April, I held a two weeks' meeting at Berea. We had a very gracious meeting. There were fifteen converts and ten united with the church. The meetings were held only nights, it being in the busy season of the year. The first Sunday afternoon in June we will hold baptismal services there. The week after the first Sunday in August we will hold another meeting there, Brother Eastes assisting; and in the Fall I will hold another two weeks' meeting, when I will preach a series of evangelistic sermons on the book of Revelation. Great Bridge is a community of splendid ability and culture, but the people are spiritually drowsy. During these two weeks the pastor had the privilege of visiting nearly every family in the church and getting acquainted with them, at the same time getting them acquainted with him. They are an appreciative people and all they need, to do things for Christ, is efficient pastoring and leadership. Owing to the present arrangement they have neither.

Following upon the heels of this meeting we began a revival at the Portsmouth church. The pastor was his own evangelist, assisted by Brother Chas. L. Strickland with his cornet, a strong chorus of twenty voices, pipe organ and piano. We used the book, "Make Christ King," and the singing was as good as I have heard anywhere. The chorus was faithful through thick and thin, and with the exception of a few stormy nights the attendance was very fine. There were fifteen converts. Fourteen have united with the church, including three by letter. Others will unite later. Last Wednesday evening we held our baptismal services. I preached on the subject, "Hell's Torments a Reality," and baptized ten into the faith. About 200 people were present. This meeting was characterized by some who attended as "an 'old-timey' country meeting." The church was made happy and brings us exceeding gratification in its gracious saving effects. Nearly all our Sunday school children are saved, and many of the adults of the men's class for whom we have been praying a long time are now active servants of the Lord.

H. E. ROUNTREE, Pastor.

SUFFOLK LETTER

The Victor Lighthouse meeting in Suffolk Christian church closed Monday night, May 17, having continued for fifteen days, including three Sundays. There was unanimous demand for the continuance of the meeting through another week; but some rest was necessary before entering upon his next meeting; hence he had to reluctantly close.

His reputation started with the first service and increased with every service to the last. The interest was cumulative in the cottage prayer meetings held by the women daily in the four wards of the city; in the afternoon meetings in the chapel; and the greater meetings in the church each evening. No invitations were extended during the first week. Evangelist Lighthouse led the singing himself, with organ, piano, a chorus, and the great congregation. Great Revival Hymns No. 2 used in the Billy Sunday meetings were used with telling effect. At times he would render an excellent solo on his violin. The young people known as the "Sunbeam choir," in the gallery, added to the interest of the song service.

There were no "clap-trap" methods employed, no sensational stories introduced, no easy terms proposed to the unconverted. Straightforward messages based on scripture texts; expositions of familiar passages in the Bible; vivid portrayals of striking characters in the scriptures and other literature appealed to the mind and heart of the people. Those who heard him once were anxious to hear him again. His testimony to the saving power of Jesus Christ, as experienced in his own conversion, softened the hearts of men. I might say that his messages had the ring of simple, profound dramatic presentation of the claims of Christ upon life of men.

As a result some one hundred and forty souls professed faith in Jesus Christ as their personal Savior. I turned over thirty cards to other pastors and over a hundred who expressed preference for the Christian. Of that number I received seventy-eight into membership yesterday—May 23, at the morning service, and will receive more later. In this number I received seven married couples, beside other married people and grown young men and women.

It is my deliberate judgment that Victor Lighthouse is one of the sanest, most spiritual, lucid, and effective evangelists in the field today. In saying this I weigh my words, my interest in the Kingdom, in the Church, and in pastors and their work. It is simply wonderful what force there is in his messages. Any church, any pastor, and any community will be safe in securing his services for evangelistic meetings. He wins men, women and children with the truth presented in most attractive and pathetic language. Suffolk's gratitude, benediction, and prayer, will follow him on his mission of saving souls.

W. W. STALEY.

Forty more—that is the number we need to close the deal. Are you one of the number that has not responded? If so, let us have your pledge right away. Break away from that alliance of indifference and join the forces of church pride and church progress. Unfurl your colors and let the world know that you are in the fight for a greater church service. Your church paper is the best weapon for the campaign. It will do the work of a submarine in getting under Satan's work. It will play the part of a 42 centimeter gun when hurled against the fort of the enemy. Are you behind this mighty gun, your church paper? Ten dollars will make a big report when fired through your church paper.

MISSIONS IN JAPAN

Time was when sentiment was the only factor in mission work in the Christian church. The Herald of Gospel Liberty and other religious papers published by the Christians in the early half of the 19th century frequently referred to the subject of foreign missions, relating to the work of other denominations, as real news items, thinking this would develop an educational influence on our own people.

Gradually the eyes of the church opened to the teaching of the Word. They began to get more and still more clearly the scriptural idea of missions. The world is the field and home and foreign missions are of equal importance. Near the middle of the century growing sentiment crystallized into Missionary Societies, and in October, 1854, the American Christian Convention appointed a home and foreign mission board.

In May of the preceding year Dr. Thomas Holmes offered himself as a missionary to Africa, provided $1,000 could be raised to begin the work. Of this amount $829 was subscribed and $353 paid in, and, to quote from Dr. Holmese himself, "there it ended." And what an ending that was! How much was involved no mortal can tell.

Imagine, if you can, what the Christian church might have done, and where she might have been today, if that failure had not been, and if the money had been secured; the missionary sent, and the work begun in the dark continent, following it up until today, with faithful effort and continuous cooperation of the churches.

Thirty years passed uneventfully. Not a move had been made in the foreign field, but all this time missionary spirit had been growing, and money began to be offered for the work.

In the same year, Rev. P. T. Klapp dared to preach a telling missionary sermon, portraying horrible conditions in heathen lands. At the close Rora Womack handed him 35 cents, all the money he had, saying, "If our people will not use it to benefit the heathen, give it to some denomination that will." This sermon, with the resulting 35 cents, constituted the first real steps taken by our people. Nearly ninety years of church history and no missions in the foreign field; but the light was breaking in earnest now. Under careful management with the 35 cents as a basis and the rebuke as an incentive, Mr. Klapp and a few others began to make ready for the work, and Japan was the chosen field.

Rev. D. F. Jones and his splendid wife offered themselves to the Board and were accepted, and later sent to begin the work in the Sunrise Kingdom. Fortunately, it was at a time when Japan was especially friendly to Americans, with their educational ideas and other reforms. The missionaries located at Ishinomaki. They held three to five weekly meetings and much encouragement soon followed in conversions and baptisms, and in a short while they had several native helpers. The first real Sunday school and church in Japan were organized in August, 1887, after three months of hard labor, with seven members. In February, funds, having been furnished by the Home Board, they built a church at a cost of $445. The tide continued to move, and at the end of the sixteenth month they had three churches and twelve out-stations.

About this time Mr. and Mrs. Jones moved to Tokyo, but the interest did not flag, and in 1908 Mr. McCord makes a glowing report from this first effort. In Tokyo still greater things were accomplished and Mr. and Mrs. Jones soon had four Sunday schools and one church in operation, with thirty outposts. This paper becomes exhaustive to go further into detail.

To sum up: In Japan we have eleven churches, one of which is self-supporting; nineteen outstations, twenty-five Sunday schools, with a membership of 2116; four C. E. Societies, three mission homes. We have sent in all nine missionaries and have fifteen native pastors. There are also two Bible women giving their whole time to the work. The total value of church property is $16,200, and this does not include schools and other real estate. The missionaries render educational and medical aid, as well as services of a spiritual nature. They are raising the fallen, and making the broken whole, and the work must go on. The great need today, as in the early days, is money. Men and women are offering themselves to the mission board, in answer to the great commission. The fields are white to the harvest, and our life and standing as a denomination demand that we send laborers into the vineyard.

What are we going to do about it? Many argue that God is too merciful to send these people down to eternal death, when they had no chance to see the light. But with us, the question is no longer, shall the heathen be saved, if we withhold our help; but shall we ourselves, by refusing financial response, "seek to enter in and shall not be able"? The little we can do is valuable, when weighed in the balances of Divinity. The widow who gave two mites, at a sacrifice, was surprised to find that she had given more than the rich men, who had not felt the offering. It is coming, anyway—this kingdom that shall cover the earth as the waters do the sea. In Japan, Corea, China, Porto Rico and many other places, the Sun of Righteousness has arisen with healing in His wings. The call of the mission board has been long and loud.

Shall we respond with our means and united effort, or shall we sit idly by, and miss our share in this great harvest of souls? And down the ages, the voice of the Master rings out. "Inasmuch as ye did it not unto the least of these, ye did it not unto me."

Mrs. T. A. MOFFITT.

THE GREATEST CONVENTION

To Pastors and Other Friends of Prohibition.

I want to call your attention to the Sixteenth National Convention of the Anti-Saloon League of America, which will be held in Atlantic City, New Jersey, July 6-9, 1915. This will be a great convention, with a great program on the greatest American issue, National Prohibition. To this convention, all churches, Sunday schools, young people's societies, and other temperance organizations are invited to send delegates, and all friends and well-wishers are entitled to membership. I want to urge upon our churches and Sunday schools the necessity of electing delegates. This convention will go down in history as one of the most historic gatherings ever held in the United States, and your church should be in it.

The North Carolina Anti-Saloon League has arranged for headquarters at the Monticello Hotel, on Kentucky Avenue. This hotel makes us a special rate on the American plan of $2 a day and upward. Other hotels and boarding houses will give you American rate of $1.50 or European rate of $1.

On the adjournment of this convention, a committee of five thousand will, on July 10, visit the White House to convey to the President the resolutions passed by this convention and southern delegates may be members of this committee.

I want to ask that churches, Sunday schools, and other organizations elect delegates and notify this office immediately of such election so that we may send literature and other information to such delegates. We will be glad, also, to hear from any that intend going, that we may give them information.

This convention will be held at the greatest summer resort in the United States, to which reduced rates can be had any time during the Summer, and all tickets from this State will allow, if requested, a stop-over at Washington. A little later we will give further and more definite information about rates. In the meantime, let our organizations be electing delegates and our people arranging to go. To have had even the humblest part in this convention will be considered quite an honor by any of us ten years in the future.

R. L. DAVIS, Superintendent,
North Carolina Anti-Saloon League.

GULPH MILLS, PA., LETTER

We closed a series of a little more than three weeks' revival services here just in time to unite with the other churches in a Tabernacle meeting at Conshohocken. Our own meetings, as well as the Tabernacle meetings, were successful. The last two Sundays have been of unusual interest at our Gulph Mills Church. Sunday before last our church was crowded. Several professed conversion and thirty-one united with the church; among them some of the leading people of the community, heads of families, and a number of young men. Last Sunday, with inclement weather, the attendance was good. One professed conversion and nine united with the church, making 57 members received since March 3rd. I have forty cards from others, in hand, for membership, and hope to receive a majority of them next Sunday. Harmony prevails in the church with finances in fine condition. This recent ingathering of members, I am told, is unprecedented here for the past fifty years. With nothing to boast of, our people, with the pastor, feel greatly encouraged in the work. I hope to attend the New Jersey Conference this week and the Delmarvia next week.

Evangelism

One of the themes that is in demand among our people is that of Evangelism. From this time on we are to have a stronger emphasis placed on this theme. The American Christian Convention at its last session created a Bureau of Evangelism and Social Service and made this the distinct care of the Home Mission Board.

Rev. O. W. Powers, D. D., Dayton, Ohio

The Home Mission Board elected Dr. Powers as Organizer and Director of the Bureau of Evangelism and Social Service of the American Christian Convention. He is also Executive Secretary of the three allied Commissions of the American Christian Convention: Evangelism, Country Churches, Social Service. Dr. Powers is widely known in our church. His life has been given to its work. He was President of the American Christian Convention for eight years, has been Home Mission Secretary for eight years, and has been pastor of our mission churches for many years.

The Chautauqua Committee is glad to announce that Dr. Powers will conduct a daily period on "Evangelism."

S. S. LESSON, MAY 30

David Brings the Ark to Jerusalem.—
2 Sam. 6:1-19; Ps. 24:1-10.

Golden Text: I was glad when they said unto me, let us go into the house of the Lord.—Ps. 122:1.

In today's lesson we have the true religious attitude that our young hero has had toward worship. He did the square thing everywhere we have met him, but we have not found his exact attitude towards worship until we find his expressed views in this lesson. David, as we have noticed, always had a great reverence for God. He waited—"watchful waiting" solved many hard problems for David. It will solve them for you.

David felt a need of something to be guided by; he wanted to be as near to his Creator as he could get. He knew that the rulers before him had had great success with the ark of God. He believed it to be powerful.

After establishing his new home in the city of Jerusalem he thought it best to have the will of God at his side, for he felt by its direction and presence the city would grow and the nation would be prosperous.

In moving the ark at first they were not careful how they handled God's property. The result was suffering. We sometimes do not handle God's property properly and the result is suffering.

Finally the lesson was learned and the ark was moved into the city. It was a great day for David. He rejoiced, for the spirit of Jehovah was upon him. When we do God's will His spirit always descends upon us and gives us joy and happiness.

David was made a more consecrated man; a more capable man for ruling Israel. He was made to realize the value of the study of the Bible and the significance of true worship—work for God.

The more David cultivated the religious life the more successful he was in ruling a great nation. If we would cultivate the spiritual side of our nature we would get more joy out of life and become more successful.

C. E. TOPIC FOR MAY 30

The Call of Foreign Missions for Money, Men and Prayer.—
Hag. 2:4-9.

A Call for Money

Every enterprise takes some common denominator to make the correct change of values. God has made it possible for us to have this denominator. Since God has permitted us to have this, it is His, and we are to use it to carry on His work; to advance the kingdom of Christ. The scriptures tell us it is more blessed to give than to receive. Indeed, it is and we can make and have this blessing by aiding some mission point in the foreign field. We are God's; our money is His; let us use it for His cause.

It would be useless to spend money and nothing else for foreign missions. We must go farther than that; we must become interested in those who are at the uttermost parts of the globe by going there ourselves or by influencing some one around us who is better prepared for the task or circumstances are so that our friend can go better than we. We may not have the right kind of temperament for the work and, in this case, we would be a drawback instead of a help. When Mr. Colebridge Patterson asked for men to enter the foreign field from England, he had this to say: "I must say plainly that I would rather not have a man from England at all, than be bound to accept a man who might not thoroughly and cordially work into the general system that we have adopted. We live together entirely, all meals in common, same cabin, same hut, and the general life and energy of us all would be damaged by the introduction of any one discordant element. You will probably say, 'Men won't go out on these terms,' and this is indeed probable, yet if they are the right fellows for this work—a work wholly anomalous, unlike all other work that they have thought of, in many respects—they will think that what I say is reasonable, and like the prospect all the better (I think) because they see that it means downright work, in a cheery, happy, hopeful, friendly spirit. A man who takes the sentimental view of coral islands and cocoanuts, of course, is worse than useless. A man possessed with the idea that he is making a sacrifice will never do; and a man who thinks any kind of work 'beneath a gentleman' will simply be in the way, and be rather uncomfortable at seeing the Bishop do what he thinks degrading to do himself. I write all this quite freely, wishing to convey, if possible, some idea of the kind of men we need. And if the right fellow is moved by God's grace to come, what welcome we will give him, and how happy he will soon be in a work the abundant blessings of which none can know as we know them."

Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Department

This Department is edited by Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., assisted by other members of the Board, to whom all items of Missionary interest and matter for the Department should be sent.

CRADLE ROLL RALLY DAY

Comes in the month of June and every Missionary Cradle Roll Superintendent should endeavor to observe the day. Invitations should be sent to all the Cradle Roll babies and to other workers and babies who do not belong. As there is so much material, children's songs and recitations, that any society can have an interesting program. By writing to Mrs. O. W. Powers, Dayton, Ohio, three different styles of programs can be secured that are full of choice selections. Observe the day, enrol all the new babies for service in the Kingdom, and let us have a report from your Superintendent.

THANKS

We are profoundly grateful to our heavenly Father for the love and mercy to us in turning us, as we trust, back to the road of recovery; and to our loved ones who were so untiring in their devotion and service day and night; to the devoted and efficient physicians; and especially the interest of the student body. May richest blessings accompany you all thru' a long life.

DR. AND MRS. W. T. HERNDON.

ERUPTIONS CAN BE STOPPED

By internal blood purifiers because they are caused by blood disorders. However, Eczema, Tetter, Ringworm, Itch, Scaly Patches, etc., cannot because they are parasitic skin diseases. It takes a positive skin remedy like Tetterine to destroy the germs and heal the surface. Dr. W. S. Fielder, Electric, Ala., says: "I never use anything else but Tetterine in all skin troubles." 50c at drug-gists' or by mail from Shuptrine Co., Savannah, Ga. Ad.

My Dear Children:

Uncle Jim is too busy to write much this week. Elon Commencement is on and many of our friends are here and we must see them all if we can. Wish every one of our Band of Cousins could attend the Commencement and visit the institution they love so devotedly and are helping so faithfully.

The nice rain last night rejoiced our hearts and helped the looks of our garden and farm. Please excuse a short letter this time.

Yours devotedly,
UNCLE JIM.

Holland, Va., May 20, 1915.

Dear Uncle Jim:—

Now that school is out I am enjoying my vacation just splendidly. I have not been visiting yet, but helping mama cook and attend to the biddies, and helping Howard attend to his little Orphanage pig. I will say right here the pig is growing nicely. Bud Shirley will soon be home from Elon. We will surely be glad, for the time has seemed long since he left. You will find enclosed our dimes, with love to you and all the orphanage family. Sincerely yours, Mary Nell and J. Howard Holland.

GREENSBORO LETTER

We received one member into church fellowship on April 18. On the third Sunday afternoon in April I preached at the Masonic and Eastern Star Home. Bro. L. M. Clymer, our church secretary, has charge of the home and he is doing a good work. We were glad to have Rev. J. W. Wellons worship with us on April 25. He took part in our services. That afternoon he preached at the Masonic and Eastern Star Home. A delightful service was reported.

On the last Sunday in April, I went out to Bethany High School, some twenty miles from Greensboro, and preached the Commencement sermon. A large audience was present. Prof. J. S. Truitt, a graduate of Elon College, has charge of the school. Judging from what I saw and heard, they have a good school. There were ten members in the graduating class. I was called to Burlington by telephone recently to take part in the funeral services of Mr. Jos. Newlin, who was killed in a motorcycle accident in Springfield, Mo. His death was a very distressing occurrence and a severe shock to his wife, fond parents, and other members of the family and friends thereof. Jesus said, "I am come to heal the broken hearted." May He comfort and bless the distressed of this hour.

On the first Sunday in May we had mission services. The morning services consisted of music, sermon and the exhibit of a large map showing the religious status of the world. The map was used by the courtesy of Dr. W. A. Harper of Elon College. The evening services were in charge of the Ladies' Missionary Society, with special program consisting of music by quartette, solos by Miss Toshio Sato, a Japanese student now at Elon College, and Miss Vera Mauror, a member of our Sunday school. Also Missionary Story by Mrs. J. W. Patton, Survey of Missions by Mrs. P. H. Fleming, sentence prayers and roll call with scripture responses. Mrs. J. W. Patton presided, with Mrs. L. M. Clymer as Secretary. It was a very enjoyable day and the offering for missions a creditable one.

Dr. T. C. Amick preached for us on May 9 at 11 a. m., and Rev. R. F. Brown at 8 p. m. I have heard very kind words regarding these services.

Through the kindness of these brethren and the courtesy of the church I was enabled to be with Rev. J. W. Patton at Mt. Auburn in Warren Co., N. C., in memorial services. The audience was very large. Not half the people present, I suppose, got into the church. I preached at 11 a. m. and Brother Patton in the afternoon. Brother Patton preached a masonic sermon. It was an earnest, practical presentation of the subject, character-building after the divine pattern. Mt. Auburn is one of the leading churches in the Eastern Conference, and Bro. Patton is doing a good work there. The following Monday night I preached at Norlina, N. C. This is a growing town on the Seaboard railroad. We had a nice audience and I found the people not only interested in religion but deeply interested in educational matters. Mr. W. H. Fleming is superintendent of the graded school at this place and is meeting with good success in his work.

Rev. J. H. Knight attended our services a few Sunday nights ago and took part in the same. We are always glad to have visiting ministers with us. The average attendance at Sunday school for the past three or four Sundays is the largest that I have seen since I have been on the work.

Four members from our Sunday school attended the Greensboro Training School for Sunday school workers and received certificates therefrom April 27. The Ladies' Aid Society recently gave a reception at the church in honor of the new members. The program consisted of devotional exercises, special music, talk by pastor, literary contest, followed by luncheon. This society is becoming much interested in the question of a parsonage which the church needs very much.

A CONFEDERATE RAILWAY

Among the lines now being double-tracked by Southern Railway, one stretch, 36 miles in length, between Greensboro and Pelham, was originally constructed under the direction of the Confederate government and has remained as perhaps the most permanent monument of any work done by the Confederacy. Veterans from States south of Virginia who go to the reunion at Richmond over the Southern will have an opportunity to travel over this line and to see the work of double tracking now in progress.

The entire line from Greensboro to Danville, Va., was constructed by the Richmond and Danville for the Confederate government as a war measure. Some years ago this line was double-tracked from Danville to Pelham, N. C., 9 miles. Despite the many improvements that have been made, the location of this line, as determined by the wartime engineers, has never been changed, and so well did they do their work that when the double-tracking was undertaken very few changes were found necessary and, in the main, the work has been simply the construction of a parallel track.

OUR DEAD

Burns

Mrs. Orlando Burns departed this life April 11 in her 65th year. She was a member of the M. P. church, but owing to the distance from her home to her church she was a worshipper more frequently at Pleasant Cross Christian Church. She made a profession of religion when young and died in the faith, leaving a good testimony that all was well in death.

She leaves a husband, son, daughter, and twelve grandchildren, who have the sympathy of many friends in their sore bereavement. She was buried at Pleasant Cross, and the funeral was conducted by the writer.

T. E. WHITE.

Brady

James Brady was born Jan. 5, 1816, and died April 7, 1915. He lived 99 years, 3 months and two days. He was a son of Wm. and Rebecca Brady, and was reared and brought up under religious influences. One of his brothers was a minister in the Christian Church, Rev. Wm. G. Brady. He had 8 brothers and four sisters: Louis, Adam, Rev. Wm. G., John, Enoch, Isaac, Wyatt, Solomon, Elizabeth, Rebecca, Lydia A. and Nancy. He was his father's second child, and all have died except Isaac and Wyatt.

He was twice married. His first marriage was to Annie Amick 80 years ago, and they had seven children—two sons and five daughters. Of this number only three are now living—one son and two daughters. Mrs. Lydia Ann Hicks and Mrs. Emeline Moffitt. His second marriage was to Mary Elizabeth Brady April 10, 1884. They had one child, a daughter, Etta, who with her mother, is now living. He has 25 grand children and 26 great grandchildren now living.

He was the oldest man in the community, and was loved and respected by everybody. No tongue speaks an evil word against him, and he has left on record an unblemished character, and has bequeathed to his family and friends that which is better than silver and gold—a good name.

For 80 years he had been a member of Pleasant Grove church, and his long record is clean. He was buried at Pleasant Grove, and a large congregation attended his funeral.

T. E. WHITE.

Parke

Thos. B. Parke was born April 15, 1842, and died, very suddenly, May 15. He had been in feeble health for some time, and it was not expected that he would ever be any better; but even then his death was a shock to his family and community.

He married Annie Caveness, and they had twelve children. Five have preceded him to the spirit world. He is survived by his widow, John W., Adoh M., Mrs. W. M. Drossett, Geo. H., Jr. He was an honest, upright citizen, an accommodating neighbor, a devoted friend, and a loyal husband and father. He had been a member of Parke's Cross Roads church the greater portion of his life, and had a deep interest in his church. During his sickness he had the sympathy of his friends and relatives, and assured them that he had no fear of death, and that he was perfectly resigned to the will of God.

His funeral was conducted at Parke's Cross Roads church. The day of his funeral was Memorial Day at his church, and it brought together possibly the largest congregation ever assembled there. He was a member of the Masonic fraternity, and at his request, buried with Masonic honors. God comfort the bereaved ones.

The myriads of parasitic germs which cause Tetter, Eczema, Ringworm, Itch, Acne, Salt Rheum, etc., cannot be killed internally. They live and feed on the surface and must be treated. "Tetterine" is the common sense treatment that has scientific principles to back it up. E. A. GALOMEL WHEN BILIOUS? NO! STOP! MAKES YOU SICK AND SALIVATES

"Dodson's Liver Tone" Is Harmless To Clean Your Sluggish Liver and Bowels.

Here's my guarantee—Go to any drug store and get a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous I want you to go back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying the sale of calomel because it is real liver medicine; entirely vegetable, therefore it can not salivate or make you sick.

Ugh! Calomel makes you sick. It's horrible! Take a dose of the dangerous drug tonight and tomorrow you may lose a day's work.

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel, when it comes into contact with our bile crashes into it, breaking it up. This is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you are sluggish and "fall knocked out," if your liver is torpid and bowels constipated or you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, if breath is bad or stomach sour, just try a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone tonight on my guarantee.

I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your bowels of that sour bile and constipated waste which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable. I guarantee that a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone will keep your entire family feeling fine for months. Give it to your children. It is harmless; doesn't gripe and they like its pleasant taste.

Just Half

*"Were half the power that fills the world with terror,—
Were half the wealth bestowed on camps and courts,
Given to redeem the human mind from error,
There were no need of arsenals or forts."*

Entitled to Immortality

It was that brave man with the great heart, Gen. Robert E. Lee, who said: "There is many a war-horse that is more entitled to immortality than the man who rides him." General Lee knew, for he was acquainted with men and with horses. He only is entitled to immortality, and is likely to attain it, who has, and manifests, courage, kindness, consideration for others, a willingness to be used for the common good. "To them who by patient continuance in well doing seek for glory and honor and immortality, eternal life." (Rom. 2:7.)

A Mother's Testimony

The New York Sun of recent date (May 11) carried a story of human interest, and not of infrequent occurrence. On the evening before, said The Sun, a mother came from a tenement in East Thirty-ninth Street to a saloon nearby and lifted a blue-eyed infant out of a basket she was carrying. Placing the baby on the bar of the saloon the frantic mother cried to the keeper: "It's you that'll have to take care of the baby now. I've done all I can to keep it, but now my money's all gone. This place has made a bum of my husband, Tim. You know you did that." She then kissed her baby good-bye and left the saloon to the consternation of the keeper. Investigation on the part of the reporter proved that the woman had told the truth, that her husband, Tim, had for a long time wasted all his earnings, each week, at the saloon, and at last had deserted and become a bum. The woman had kept up the brave fight for bread as long as she could, but at last had yielded and abandoned her child to the one who had ruined her home. Later the mother was arrested for abandoning her child and the baby was sent to a home provided by benevolence. Is it any wonder sensible people are saying the saloon must go? In two inches of this story in The Sun was a large, flaring advertisement of liquors, wines and beers. "They have sown the wind, and they shall reap the whirlwind." (Hos. 8:7.)

Pressing Toward Destiny

The soul is restless, and in this world realizes that it is not at home. It looks upward, forward, onward. In its finite relations it grapples with daring and doom and destiny. The earth is too small for it. It looks into the heavens, out on infinite seas and boundless space and mysterious time, and wonders. It realizes its oneness with that which is high and holy and great and good. And it prays. "Prayer is the soul pressing on towards its destiny of realized union with God," said Rhonda Williams. And one more inspired wrote: "My soul thirsteth for God, for the living God; when shall I come and appear before God?" (Psa. 42:2.)

Weight of Influence

In States of the middle West legislators have enacted laws forbidding public school funds to any educational institution which employs cigarette-smoking teachers. Says a New York exchange: "The anti-schoolmaster cigarette crusade has common sense and righteousness behind it. It ought to succeed and will. And if fumiferous teachers may be banned from State schools, need they expect to be tolerated much longer in any others?" There is no habit more deadly to nerves, health, happiness, manners and morals than that of cigarette-smoking, and a teacher with such habit is not worthy to be an example for youths. "Destroy not him with thy meat for whom Christ died." (Rom. 14:15.)

Wild Animals

Government authorities assert that predatory animals—bears, wolves, coyotes, mountain lions, wildcats—cause an annual loss of $15,000,000 to owners of live stock in the United States. One wolf not infrequently does $1000 damage in a year to flocks and herds he can reach. A law has been enacted appropriating $125,000 to be used in destroying these destructive animals. What shall be said of those wild animals in Europe who are daily flying at each other's throats, in their thirst for blood, under the name and guise of War? These are entailing a loss of more millions a day than the predatory animals of the United States cause in a year, to say nothing of the inhuman loss of life. The commandment is ancient, but as imperative and divine now as at any time: "Thou shalt not kill." (Ex. 20:13.)

Too Late

Students, historians and missionaries acquainted with the situation in China declare that the civil, political and moral upheaval in that country is complete, and that there never was such an opportunity in any country for Christianity to get in its work as China presents at present. The Chinese mind has recognized that China's superstition and religion are inadequate, and there is universal inquiry, What shall we do, what shall we believe? This of all times is the Christian missionary's opportunity in China. And it is now or never. The acceptance or rejection of the Christian religion will be settled in China within the next few years. The Vice-President of the Chinese Republic, himself a Christian, urges missionaries to warn the churches at home that five years from now their critical opportunity in China will have passed. Will China with its four million population have to say to Christian countries: "Almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian." (Acts 26:28.)

Unanswerable Argument

The time for issuing liquor license for the year in Paterson, New Jersey, expired May 8. Up to that date 329 licenses had been issued in comparison with 498 at the same time last year. Moreover the saloon men declare that they never had to work so hard to sell beer and whiskey as they have since Billy Sunday began his evangelistic campaign there some weeks ago. All of the retail druggists of the city, save two, have notified the city government that they will not renew their liquor licenses. "Saloon keepers and wholesale dealers in the city are in a panic," a newspaper reports. "Many are offering their places of business for sale at a sacrifice." This is only an incident, a side issue, of Sunday's work; but it constitutes an argument that cannot be answered. Many of Sunday's severe critics never closed up a saloon or redeemed a home from ruin, and probably never will. No amount of logic or rhetoric can withstand facts.

Unity

The Youth's Companion relates an incident of a small Western town the parallel of which, we are persuaded, is occurring these days in many places. In the town referred to the people are poor and the churches are many, so that they often borrow each other's equipment for public service and worship. "One evening a church bell was heard ringing vigorously. The family seated around the tea table looked up in surprise. 'What bell is that?' they asked in chorus. At last one exclaimed, 'Oh, I remember now! That is the Episcopal bell ringing for the Baptist revival that begins tonight at the Presbyterian church.'" There was more of Christ and less of creed in that community than in some, although everywhere men are caring more for the manner of the daily practice than they are for the Sunday's theology. Church union may not be advancing rapidly, but the spirit of unity, cooperation, brotherly love, grows apace. "That they all may be one: as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us: that the world may believe that thou hast sent me." (Jno. 17:21.) So prayed our Lord Christ. And the Father will answer, He is answering, that prayer.

—Mr. W. L. Stanley of the S. A. L. Railway, speaking before the American Association of Freight Agents at Richmond, Va., May 19, said that the railroads of America paid out annually $32,000,000 in claims for loss and damage to freight shipped over their lines, this waste resulting from the lively competition between the roads and the consequent improper handling of packages. If Mr. Stanley will stand on the platform of a freight depot and see how the men sling and fling the freight he will decide that the enormous waste is due more to carelessness than to competition.

THE DIVINE RELATIONSHIP

By every creative act, and by every revealed fact, God has shown that He wants to draw near to, and abide with man. There is no record in scripture, save one, where God forsook man (Christ on the Cross affords the only instance). Man withdraws from God, rebels against God, but God seeks to identify Himself with man and abide with him.

The Creator has made Himself subject to the created; God has put Himself at man's disposal, for fellowship, for communion, for power and for achievement. The King has made Himself servant of His subjects. God has through all the days shown that He wants to come in. "Behold, I stand at the door and knock: if any man hear my voice and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me." (Rev. 3:20.)

We see the world moving along with such precision, such evenness, so naturally, that we are inclined to exclude God from it. The days and nights and seasons come and go so naturally and so noiselessly that we little reckon the power that is in constant operation to bring and carry them. Through the constant manifestation of this ever-present and immeasurable power God is seeking to be present with us and speak His message of love and life to our cold hearts and indifferent ears. We see the light of His day and the glory of His seasons, but shut the gate of our senses and the door of our hearts against His presence, power and fellowship. Knowing man's tendency to do this the Psalmist in an inspired moment cried out: "Lift up your heads, O ye gates, and be ye lifted up, ye everlasting doors, and the King of glory shall come in." (Psa. 24:7.) We let in God's sunlight, but shut the gates against the incoming of the King of day.

The Church was created as a gate, not to exclude God, but to admit Him. His vast and pent up powers are at the disposal of the church. It is the business of the church to lift the gates and let Him in. The vast and far-spreading pond has infinite power in its silent depths. The miller lifts the gate and the quiet lake gushes forth in an irresistible current. The great wheel begins to turn, and the rich grain is ground into dust for bread for man and beast. Power manifested itself in moving the great wheels of industry only when the gate was lifted up. The cry to the church, from on high, and out of the deep heart of man today, is, "Lift high the gates that the King in all His might and majesty may appear."

Superstitions, creeds, dogmas, false doctrines have often excluded God: the real church will have none such, for the object of all preaching and divine teaching is to let God in. What a flood of light would rush into all the world today if the church would do its full duty in lifting high the gates, opening the everlasting doors.

If any soul is without God, and any heart is not illumined with His light, it is because that soul keeps down the gate, and the human heart shuts tight the door. God seeks to enter into the divine relationship with man every day, and at all times.

The great heart of God yearns to hold secret converse with the souls of men. If we do not daily and hourly commune with Him it is because we will not open the door and let Him in.

In prayer and praise and worship we open the gate through which the divine Presence enters to hold communion and sweet fellowship with the soul. "Lift up your heads, O ye gates, and be ye lifted up, ye everlasting doors, and the King of glory shall come in."

"THE MAKING OF MEN"

The following voices our own sentiment and opinion so thoroughly and accurately that we substitute it this week for our own. It is from the gifted pen of the venerable and versatile Dr. F. T. Tagg, editor of The Methodist Protestant, of Baltimore, Md. It occurred editorially in that journal last week:

"The Making of Men." By W. A. Harper, LL. D., president of Elon College, N. C., and published by the Christian Publishing Association, Dayton, O. Price, 75 cents. In these days when so many college men are drifting away from the faith once delivered to the saints, it is gratifying to have a college president begin a noteworthy book with such an introduction as this: "Religion or irreligion. There is no middle ground. Education must be had where religion is emphasized, or where irreligion is emphasized," and therefore the crowning work of education is to make him a man. In other words, a dominant religious note is carried in twelve splendid lectures which were delivered to students, before they were printed in a book. Each chapter is based upon an appropriate and suggestive passage of scripture, which is not mutilated by criticism, but magnified by a rational and intelligent application to the needs of man. Therefore we are prepared, as well as delighted to hear him say: 'No college can be said to have done its full duty, if a single one of its graduates is ignorant of Jesus Christ, and without the joy of His salvation in his heart.' The last chapter is a sequel to the first, 'Achieving Manhood's Goal, Which Again Means the Saving of His Soul.' He cannot be a complete man and leave his spiritual nature uncultivated and undeveloped, and therefore he cannot be a complete man without being a Christian.' Originally prepared for a big student body, these chapters furnish fine reading for anybody, but for the young man or the young woman who want to make the best of themselves, to build up a true and worthy life, we commend this book as splendidly inspiring and stimulating. And it is especially pleasant to say this of one whose personal friendship we have the honor to share and whose own life is attuned to the high key which he has here set for others."

WHEAT HARVEST

Because of the demand abroad for wheat, and the consequent increased high price, farmers were advised last Summer to give more heed to wheat growing the present year. As a result the Department of Agriculture at Washington, in its May bulletin, predicts a billion bushel wheat harvest. There was an increase in the sowing of over five million acres, making a total of 41,253,000 acres. The total yield of Winter wheat is estimated at 693,000,000 bushels, and the Spring crop is in excellent condition and is estimated to put the yield above the billion bushel mark. While the nations of Europe are engaged in the work of human slaughter, their fields neglected, their farms abandoned, the American tiller touches the sources of production and rich harvests spring forth. A friendly soil, under the bounty of God, gives "seed to the sower, and bread to the eater" (Isa. 55:10) even though men in their wickedness and ingratitude deserve it not.

NOTES AND PERSONALS

—Two members of the graduating class at the N. C. University this year are young ladies.

—Pres. W. A. Harper delivered the literary address before the Siler City Graded school last Thursday, which address the press speaks of in high terms.

—Pres. W. A. Harper delivered the annual literary address before the High School at Waverly, Va., Monday evening, and before the Chase City, Va., Graded schools Tuesday evening of this week.

—Rev. Gaius G. Atkins, pastor of a Congregational church, Providence, R. I., has won the prize of $1,000 for the best peace essay offered by the Carnegie Church Peace Union to "any pastor of any church in the United States."

—Rev. J. V. Knight, pastor, is engaged in a series of meetings this week at High Point. Bro. Knight changes his address from Elon College to 119 Lindsay St., High Point, N. C. Bro. Knight graduated from Elon College at the recent Commencement and has been in the pastorate successfully for some time.

—Italy has declared war and entered the conflict with the Allies against the Teutons. This makes eleven nations now in the war seeking to destroy by all their might and main the life and property of the other. The war grows more desperate and deadly every day, and each battle is on a more extensive and bloody scale than its predecessor.

—The Mayo brothers, the noted surgeons, have given the University of Minnesota $2,000,000, without any strings attached to the donation, for the sole purpose of medical research for the good of humanity. It is not often professional men rise to such eminence as the Mayos have and make enough money to give away in such princely fashion.

—Rev. Victor Lightbourne is this week in a revival at Mebane. The churches there all united, secured a tabernacle with a capacity of 1500 people, and are working together for the good of town and community. Bro. Lightbourne is doing the preaching. The meetings will continue all week. The papers report enormous crowds in attendance and that the evangelist is delighting and winning his audiences.

—The Supreme Court of Alabama has confirmed the ruling of the lower court in sustaining the constitutionality of the law enacted in that State some months ago forbidding any paper of the State from carrying any liquor advertising and barring from sale or circulation in the State any paper published elsewhere carrying in its columns any liquor advertisements.

—This from the Evangelical is striking testimony: "Iceland has no jails, no penitentiary, no court and only one policeman, according to a Canadian paper, nor is a drop of alcoholic liquor made on the island. Its 78,000 people are total abstainers, since they will not permit any liquor to be imported. According to the same authority, there is not an illiterate person on the island nor a child ten years old unable to read."

—It may not be generally known, but the evidence is conclusive that Pres. Abraham Lincoln in his day was a strong believer in foreign missions. Last week's New York Christian Advocate reproduces a facsimile of the Certificate to Life Membership in the Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal church issued to President Lincoln on his payment of the sum of one hundred and fifty dollars. The certificate is now in the hands of Mrs. George F. Sands, of Cincinnati, Ohio.

—Rev. "Billy" Sunday's Paterson, N. J., campaign recently closed was one of the most wonderful and successful of all his career. For his seven weeks' service the people gave him voluntarily the sum of $24,000; 800,000 persons heard his wonderful messages; 20,000 persons took him by the hand; 14,000 signed convert cards; Paterson gave $31,463.90 for current expenses and $6,000 for charity. The city was awakened religiously in a most marked and marvellous manner.

—Raleigh Christian Advocate, May 20th: "Rev. W. G. Clements, an honored preacher of the Christian Church and for many years Superintendent of Public Instruction for Wake County, called at our office a few days ago. Among our childhood's memories are stored away some of the faithful ministries of this man of God, who at that time was pastor of O'Kelley's Chapel, located on the line between Durham and Chatham counties. We were sorry to miss him when he called to see us."

—Bro. E. T. Pierce died quite suddenly at his home near News Ferry, Va., Sunday p. m. last. The funeral was held at Pleasant Grove church Tuesday, June-1, being conducted by THE SUN's editor, and the interment was in the church cemetery. Bro. Pierce had been a member of Pleasant Grove church many years, though feeble health for the past several years had prevented his attending public worship. In the early years of its history Bro. Pierce was a trustee of Elon College, and always remained its staunch advocate and liberal friend. He maintained a lively interest in all church and benevolent enterprises, and was ever concerned for the welfare of the various institutions of the church. He leaves to mourn their loss a bereaved wife, and three children, Archie E., of Richmond, William J. and Mrs. D. J. Sipe, of News Ferry. A good man, widely known and much beloved, has gone to his reward.

—THE SUN's editor is to worship next Sunday (6th inst.) with Dr. Denison's congregation, Norfolk, and speak at the morning and evening hour on missions.

SEASIDE CHAUTAUQUA AND SCHOOL OF METHODS

Virginia Beach, July 19-25.

This is a day of Sunday school specialization. The Chautauqua management is sparing no effort to give the very best work at the Chautauqua in Sunday school lines. Miss Elizabeth Harris, Elementary Superintendent of the New York State Sunday School Association, will speak daily on the Elementary Grades work. Bring your individual problems. Mr. Hermon Eldredge, Erie, Pa., our own Eldredge, editor, boy specialist, State and city worker, will speak daily on the Secondary Division of Sunday school work covering both the Intermediate and Senior grades.

But we have four specialists on the Adult work in the Sunday school: Dr. W. C. Wicker, Sunday School Secretary of the American Christian Convention, and member of the International Lesson Committee, will speak on "A Sunday School Vision."

Rev. H. G. Rowe, Danville, Ill., a member of the Sunday School Board of the American Christian Convention and Field Secretary of the Illinois State Christian Association, will speak on "The Organized Adult Bible Class."

Mrs. Fred Bullock, Waverly, Va., a member of the Sunday School Board and a Sunday school lesson writer, will conduct a Mothers' Conference the theme of which will be, "What Shall I Tell My Daughter?"

Dr. A. B. Kendall, Burlington, N. C., Teacher Training Superintendent of the Christians and a member of the S. S. Board, will give an address on "Teacher Training."

Mr. Eldredge will conduct a Model Sunday school Sunday morning.

Can you afford to miss hearing these Sunday school workers and specialists, Eldredge, Miss Harris, Mrs. Bullock, Dr. Wicker, Dr. Kendall, Rev. Mr. Rowe? Your Superintendent ought to be there, and some of your leading workers will get untold benefit.

WARREN H. DENISON, President.

ELON COLLEGE NOTES

It was the consensus of opinion that the 25th Commencement, characterized by dignity and simplicity with brevity, was the best yet in some particulars and up to the standard in all. The exercises without exception were well attended. The parts taken by students showed earnest, careful preparation and training. The outside contributions were of very high order. Dr. F. G. Coffin, President Fairfax Harrison, and Rev. A. W. Andes, all placed the College under lasting obligation by their presence and utterances.

Miss Jennie Godwin, Appomattox, Va., is to deliver the next Alumni address, with Mrs. Harper as alternate.

Medals were won at Commencement as follows: Long Scholarship, Mr. W. J. Cotten; Wellons General Scholarship, Miss Ina Dunlap; Moffitt Essayist, Miss Beatrice Mason; Stanford Orator's, Mr. E. T. Cotten; Morrow Thesis, Mr. S. B. McCauley; Phi. Representative's, Mr. P. V. Parks; and Clio Representative's, Mr. R. M. White. Miss Annie Simpson was awarded the Alumni Scholarship.

Next year the Summerbell Biblical Research prize, open to any College student below the Senior Class, will be awarded for the best essay on The First Commandment and the Unity of God. The winner will be entitled to free tuition, either in the literary or in a special department, as he or she may elect. It is given by the late Dr. J. J. Summerbell.

Mrs. Sallie E. Holland retires from the matronship of West Dormitory, where for four years she has rendered such splendid service. Elon never had a more competent matron.

Mr. C. C. Johnson succeeds Mr. R. S. Doak as Athletic Director. He is an Elon product, fully imbued with the spirit and ideals here, and will better prepare himself by summer study at Columbia.

Miss Oma Utley becomes librarian next year. She is to take a course in library methods and administration at Columbia this summer.

Prof. R. C. Cox becomes principal of the preparatory department. He is a successful teacher of many years' standing and is devoted to Elon's interests.

Miss Florence Wilson, for seventeen years head of the Music Department, during which the department has grown from seventeen to more than one hundred pupils, retires from her position, as does also Miss Linda Barnes as assistant in piano and voice. These ladies have served the College well and have won many friends throughout the Elon family. The College will wish them well in their new fields of labor.

Miss Jean Demuth, graduate of Oberlin Conservatory in piano, voice, and organ, postgraduate of the same conservatory, special student under several great musicians, teacher of several years experience, now teacher in Illinois Woman's College, succeeds Miss Wilson as director of the Music Department. The splendid department, therefore, falls into competent hands and the work will no doubt go forward under her supervision.

Miss Mabel Harris, Henderson, N. C., of the New England Conservatory, having spent much time in advanced study under special masters, becomes assistant in piano, voice and organ. She is daughter of Brother S. R. Harris and has a fine reputation as a teacher and choir director.

Dr. Atkinson delivered the diplomas to the graduates of the N. C. Deaf and Blind Institution last Wednesday. He is a trustee of that excellent institution.

The Orphanage Trustees were in special session the day following Commencement. It is understood that they found things in good condition.

The Woman's Home and Foreign Mission Board was in session here Friday. It was an important session, and many progressive measures were launched. The out-of-town members present were Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va.; Mrs. W. T. Walters, Winchester, Va.; and Mrs. W. H. Carroll, Burlington, N. C.

Officers for the Sunday school during the summer were elected as follows: Superintendent, J. R. McNally; Assistant Superintendent, W. A. Harper; Secretary, Miss Ione McCauley; Assistant Secretary, H. M. Redding; Organist, Miss Hattie Belle Smith.

Dr. E. E. Randolph united with the College Church at the 11 o'clock service Sunday. He had been a church member since his twelfth year. He will make a very useful member.

There is great sorrow here over the decease of Brother E. T. Pierce, News Ferry, Va., who was one of Elon's original Board of Trustees.

The College Board of Trustees had seventeen out of twenty-four members present. No men ever gave finer attention to an institution's needs. They were well pleased with the conditions found obtaining. It was decided to give heed to internal improvement and to limit the enrollment to the four hundred mark. The ideal small College is what Elon must be, so they say, and they are right. Such a College is the back-bone of the Church and the mightiest educational force making for character-development. "X."

SEASIDE CHAUTAUQUA AND SCHOOL OF METHODS

Virginia Beach, July 19-25.

One of the important features of the Chautauqua is to have a strong mid-day Religious and Educational lecture each day. A time when the Chautauqua is not divided into classes, but all come together to hear one of the strong men who have a message worth hearing. Men who say things, men who inspire you, men who have a vision, men who do things. It was said last year repeatedly that the mid-day lectures were well worth the coming and expense of the whole week.

The messages this year will be given by Rev. J. O. Atkinson, D. D., of Elon College, N. C.; Rev. Martyn Summerbell, D. D., Lakemont, N. Y.; Rev. O. B. Whitaker, D. D., Glencoe, Fla.; Rev. Victor Lightbourne, Elon College, N. C. This list of our strong men includes the pulpit, college class room, authors, editor, all men with vision. Last year the mid-day lecture came at the close of a long full program of solid meat in the class room. The committee has remedied that this year by having the lectures at four o'clock, that being the only message of the afternoon. They will be rich treats.

One entire afternoon period will be given to the Young People's Convention of the Southern Christian Convention.

This is the time and place for many of your denomination committee and board meetings. Let us know if you are planning to have a meeting of any of your committees or boards. The full program will be ready soon. Would you like some of the programs to be distributed among your church leaders? Let us hear from you about the Chautauqua. We solicit correspondence. It is our desire that this shall be the very mountain peak of spiritual experience to all who come.

WARREN H. DENISON, President.

The Definition of a Christian

A Sermon by Rev. Geo. D. Eastes, Pastor Third Church, Norfolk, Va.

Mark 10:21: "One thing thou lackest, go thy way, sell whatsoever thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven; and come, and take up the cross, and follow me."

WORDS from the Master concerning the Christian and the Christian's life are exceedingly important. They are helpful, forceful and decisive. Helpful, because they relate to our personal experiences; forceful, because they come direct from the fountain head of eternal truth; decisive, because they are spoken by Him who is the Just and infallible Judge in the court of the highest appeal.

Our text is the Master's definition of a Christian. It is made up of plain and unmistakable words which are much needed today—words without which we should find it difficult to define religious matters. The destructive "higher critics" have so hurled their darts at the Bible in the past that many in this generation are unable to determine the real meaning and significance of such common terms as "God," "Eternity," "Inspiration," "Incarnation," and "Atonement." Today, from the human viewpoint it is difficult even for people to determine as to what constitutes the elements of a true Christian character. One tells me he believes the man to be a Christian who pays his debts, lives honestly and tells the truth. Another says, the man is a Christian who lives a good moral life; still another believes a man to be a true Christian if he is faithful to his church, attends its services, upholds its doctrines and pays well into the coffers, and yet another would place "sincerity" as the foundation stone of the Christian's life. The fact of the whole matter is, when all is summed up and considered, we are compelled to admit that the term has been so broadened that at present almost anyone but the outright criminal can hide under the name.

Therefore it is because of this apparent uncertainty of belief and difference of opinion that these words from the Christ are so important.

We should not attempt to satisfy the minds of our hearers with our own opinions as to what constitutes the elements of a true Christian character, but rather we turn to the incident of the text and let Him speak before whom all questions must come for final answer.

It is a rich young man, according to the context, who came running to Christ inquiring the way of eternal life—a young man who could have poured an abundance into the coffers of the church, a learned young man, an influential young man who could have upheld with dignity and power the doctrines and ceremonies of the church—a moral young man who could have held up his life and have courted criticism as the painter would court criticism from the master artist, yet somehow, all these things failed to make him the possessor of eternal life, for Jesus said unto him, "One thing thou lackest, go sell what thou hast and give to the poor, and come, take up thy cross, and follow me." Herein is involved the great doctrine of surrender and regeneration upon which the Kingdom of Christ is built. The necessity of a complete surrender and a "New Birth" is stated in unmistakable terms throughout the New Testament. Therefore if the Bible is true, and it is, the most natural conclusion follows: all the money in the world, all the learning of the world and all the influence possible, and added to these things a thousand church memberships, cannot in themselves gain for the individual "Eternal Life." Complete surrender and the New Birth are absolutely essential to entrance into the Kingdom.

But, some one says, the command given to this young man was unreasonable. Why need he sell all that he had and give to the poor? Certainly not that the possession of money in itself is wrong. No! The Master would not teach that—but I have no doubt whatever that this young man loved his money TOO MUCH—that it was at least one of the objects of his supreme love and joy. It blinded him spiritually and made it impossible for him to grasp a hold on Christ and carry out God's purpose in his life. That must have been the reason and upon that ground Christ made the seemingly unreasonable demand and thereby taught the world the great lesson that he who would be a Christian must rid himself of everything which tends to separate him from his God and thereby hinders his complete and unreserved submission to God's will concerning his life.

Over this demand as far as we know the young man stumbled. The context says "he went away sorrowful." How like men today who are inquiring the way of eternal life, willing to meet all demands until it comes to the complete surrender of the will! Here is where most people falter and fail. God gave us our wills. He made them the sovereign of our lives. They make us absolute in power when it comes to the question of choice—rejection or acceptance—of any proposition. God himself cannot be consistent as a God of harmony and usurp the right of the will of man to decide. But when it comes to the inheritance of eternal life the will of man must become submissive to God's will and desire. If we fail in this we fail in our attempt to gain eternal life.

There is another part to this command of Jesus to the young man. It is quite as important as the first part. Let us notice it for a little while. It reads "Take up thy cross and follow me." So then we see according to this definition of the Master, a Christian in one who surrenders his life to Christ and follows Him in all things. It means a constant, personal relationship to Christ.

But what do we mean by "following Christ?" It is one thing to say what it means, but it is quite another thing to carry it out in our lives.

First, following Christ means that we must have faith in Christ. The minimum of this faith must be believing Him to be all that He claimed to be. It means that we must accept His Messiahship. We must believe Him to be the Divine, human Son of God, and equal with God. We must believe Him to be King of kings, Lord of lords. He claimed all these things for Himself and if we choose to deny any of these attributes we dare not call Him even a good man, for certainly He was an impostor. Ah, yes! Our faith in Jesus must be absolute. We dare not stop short of this for we cannot follow one in whom we fail to believe absolutely.

Second, following Christ means the giving up of sin. Sin and salvation cannot abide in a man's heart at the same time—one or the other must vacate. God has placed a curse upon the life of "duplicity." He cannot do otherwise and be consistent, for it is directly opposed to His will. The curse of the church today is the thousands of people within her folds hiding under the name of Christianity, who at the same time are attempting to live double lives—like Pontius Pilate who condemned our Lord trying to hold on to Christ with one hand and with the other attempting to hold the blood red dagger of the world which stabbed Him to death! Listen, hearer! Are you trying it? If so, the devil is deluding you! You can't do it. As sure as Pilate failed you will fail. No man has ever been successful in the attempt. "Be sure your sins will find you out."

The call of God and the cry of the church today is for men and women who have a single purpose in the Christian life—who are willing to give up all sin for the sake of the Master. Why is it we have so many weak and powerless Christians in our churches? Why so many crippled Christians? Why so many like Samson of old with their spiritual eyes burned out—in the prison house grinding out a miserable existence? These things are invariably true because hearts are divided between God and the world. The double life, the divided heart, always spells "failure" for the professing Christian.

The single aim is a fundamental law in every walk of life. If the sportsman were to see a rabbit running ahead of him and a squirrel in the tree at the same time he must of necessity decide immediately which he desired most lest he lose them both. The musician could play perfectly a selection from Beethoven, again a selection from Mendelssohn, but however skillful he may be he is not able to play a selection from Beethoven and Mendelssohn at the same time. The captain could make a safe voyage to Liverpool or to Hamburg, but if he were to attempt to reach both ports at the same time on the same voyage he would reach neither. The lawyer cannot successfully practice law on one side of the street and at the same time practice dentistry on the other side.

Singleness of aim is a fundamental law in the sporting world, the musical world, the world of navigation, professional and commercial world, and the assertion is not too broad to make that it is a fundamental law in every field of activity. Is it not reasonable to hear Paul, that successful man of God, say: "This one thing I do"? Ah, yes, the same law holds good in the spiritual world. The Christian life most certainly demands singleness of aim. All for Christ or none for Christ, for "he that is not for me is against me." "He that hath not the Spirit of Christ is none of His."

Third, following Christ means "service." "Take up thy cross and follow me." Always on the firing line for God! Never shirking duty! The men who have won in the Christian life are not the men who have "shirked," but the men who have "worked." The most contemptible man in the world to me is the man who will not work—the "loafer"—one who stands on the street corner or is found in the saloon, gambling house and other questionable places, and who frequently pretends to want work, but when he sees it coming runs from it. The world has no use for the "loafer." Is it unreasonable to say that God has no use for the church loafer? God has in a

S. S. LESSON FOR JUNE 6

Nathan Rebukes David.—2 Sam.

11:1-12:7.

Golden Text: Create in me a clean heart, O God.—Ps. 51:10.

With the ark of God near at hand David's kingdom prospered. He could readily see the improvement of the nation, as to citizenship and finances. David had built a palace for himself—yet leaving the ark in a tent.

During this period of prosperity David remembered his dear friend Jonathan. He had promised to do everything that was in his power to do for him while he was living and now he recalled the friendship and asked if there was a relative of Jonathan's living. Finding Jonathan's son he gave him all the land of his grandfather and requested him to eat at his table thereafter.

We find in today's lesson, like in the case of Peter, that the devil is always busy and he tries the hardest to get the person who is doing the greatest service for God. David had been true to God; yet he was human and by all means was not out of reach of temptation. At this unguarded moment when he was idle the tempter came and overpowered the king—the man who should set the right kind of an example for a whole nation.

A great lesson we might draw is that we must be doing something for Christ at all times and be guarded at all times, for we know not when the greatest temptations are near.

David's first sin called for another and another. Invariably, this is always the case; when we sin one time we are tempted again in order to cover up the first and thereby making a greater mistake than the first. David's sin led to falsehood and then to murder.

Nathan, sent by God, went to David and presented a story to him. Upon being questioned what he would do with such a man David gave a quick reply: "As Jehovah liveth, the man that hath done this is worthy to die." This was followed by Nathan's words: "Thou art the man."

This was an unexpected, stinging rebuke for David. He was humiliated. He was ashamed to show his face. His appetite left him. After the deed had been committed he saw his mistake; it was too late—God was displeased.

David repented; he confessed his sins and sought forgiveness. Unlike Saul he did not go on and defy God's command but asked that he might be received again into the fold.

David's sins were forgiven, but the Children of Israel did not forget them. A man can sin, repent, be saved, still all his life that scar is there and will remain through eternal ages.

C. E. TOPIC, JUNE 6

Body Under, Soul on Top.—1 Cor.

9:24-27.

(Consecration Meeting.)

In the scripture we are reminded of the oriental games and races which were rewarded by prizes. Paul takes these examples to illustrate a great lesson. A player or racer must have his body in complete control; must so train his muscles that they will respond to his will at any time. If he has his body in subjection then when the trying time comes he will not go "wild" and lose the race.

Too, not only in games where there is a prize given for some physical attainment should the physical body be under subjection, but in the game of life when temptations come sneaking around luring the passions of physical man, then must he have his body in complete control. The appetites must be appeased but it becomes necessary to appease them sometimes with will and stamp them out with bitter rebuke. It will mean much to keep the body under. But that is not all. We must have the soul on top, for from the soul to a very large extent comes forth the happiness of our earthly abode. When we are doing the greatest service to humanity it is when we have the soul on top. The largeness of heart, purity of purpose, loftiness of ideals are present when the soul is on top.

"The universe, vast, beautiful, magnificent, as it is, cannot content the soul, but rouses it to more majestic thoughts. The wider view it takes of what is material, the more impatient it becomes of all material bonds. The sublimer the prospects which are opened by the universe, the more the spirit is impelled to ascend to a still sublimer being. Forever it aspires towards an infinite and immutable One as the ground of all finite and mutable existences. It can rest in His Omnipotence alone as the source, center, sustainer, determiner of all forces."

Our Board of Trustees were in annual session on last Wednesday. It was a very pleasant and I trust profitable meeting. Lack of funds prevented the Board from undertaking many things which they felt were badly needed and should be provided. That the people may know of these needs I am quoting from the Superintendent's annual report. I do this with the hope that friends of the institution may realize the importance of these things and provide the necessary funds. The Supt. reported as follows:

We have met to review the past and plan for the future. I am pleased to report that the health of the children has been unusually good, and their control much easier than the year before. This is due to many causes, but chief among them is the fact that our children are catching higher ideals and noble aspirations are possessing and controlling them.

The financial stringency through which we are passing has made it difficult to maintain the work. The talk of war and hard times has affected people's giving, but not our children's appetites. But we have endeavored to keep our faith. We still have confidence in the people and the good work in which we are engaged. I have tried not to stint the work because of hard times. It does not pay to stint anything. Experienced stockmen tell us that a stunted calf never develops into the cow that it was capable of becoming. We can't afford to stint the future manhood and womanhood of the children that are committed to our care. Instead of retrenching we should endeavor to enlarge the work and make it more efficient in every department. To this end I offer the following for your careful consideration:

First—The publication of a paper in the interest of our Orphanage. Other institutions find their publications not only helpful, but a source of income. Since THE CHRISTIAN SUN has been reduced in size and our space limited to one column it does not adequately represent our Orphanage work. The editor of THE SUN and the Secretary of the Publishing House recommend the bringing out of a publication in the interest of the orphanage work of our church.

Second—The providing of a longer school term. Six months in the year is not sufficient school opportunity for our children, whose early education has, in nearly every instance, been neglected. To maintain our own school, practically throughout the year, and have our children go to school half day and work half day has many advantages over our present plan.

Third—the farm is being improved slowly. If we had the capital we could develop it more rapidly. We have opened up nearly ten acres of land this Spring; a part of which we will get into cultivation this season, the remainder we will get in the fall. We plan to clear more as fast as we can. The farm needs a more modern barn, an additional horse, and an increased herd of cattle.

Fourth—I would also have you carefully consider providing additional room to care for the many bright and promising children that are knocking at our door for admission. With a very small cost quarters could be provided for at least twenty-five children by erecting sleeping porches on the rear of the building. This would be very helpful and almost essential to the health of many of our delicate children.

Fifth—the need of a Superintendent's home. Other like institutions provide their Superintendent with a cottage on the grounds where he can superintend the work without sacrificing his home life.

THE DEFINITION OF A CHRISTIAN

multitude of ways impressed the fact that His Church is a hive for workers and not a nest for drones! We can't be successful Christians and fail to do our part in real aggressive active Christian service. It is far better that we burn out in service for Him than to rust out by lethargy and indifference!

God has no other plan by which he can win the world back to him than the plan of co-operation with His people here below. The call for whole-hearted service in the Master's kingdom has never been louder and more insistent than at the present. We face great and grave problems of every character whose solution depends largely upon our effort to carry out the command of the Master to his followers, namely, the bringing of our generation into a reconciled state with Him. This means service, whole-hearted and true. It is a challenge to the heroic that is in mankind. When the world is won for Christ the problem of Peace and War, the problem of Capital and Labor, the Problem of Social Unrest, and all other complex and vexing problem will be solved.

Can it be done? We answer, Yes. It can be done if the whole church of God surrenders herself to Christ and follows Him in His leadings. No power on earth or in hell can stop the onward march of the church to victory if she stands united against evil and appropriates the power of the Holy Spirit! Every curse that the world has shall retreat and be blotted off the face of the earth. The liquor traffic with its hundred thousand victims every year must go! The white slave traffic and the social evil which today robs the world of an angel of light every four minutes of time, must go! Evil, of every sort, must pass out! Jesus will reign King of kings and Lord of lords! The kingdoms of this world shall become the kingdoms of our Lord Christ when the whole church of God rallies to her opportunity and her task in following Christ!

A tremendous task? Yes! But let us be optimistic and every one to the work, for we are the soldiers of the King of kings! We have the Bible, the sword of eternal truth, alive and abreast of every age—we have the Holy Spirit which pierces into the hearts of men with the sharpest arrows of conviction—we follow Him whose influence is the most common factor in the progress of civilization!

I appeal to you as individual Christians, let us take a new grip upon eternal life! Let us live the honest life of consistency, the open life of purity and the active life of service, made possible by the shed blood of our great Christ. Through the power of the Cross let us live the victorious life! Let us appropriate the cleansing and the power and "follow Him," in all things giving Him the preeminence" for this spells out Christ's definition of a Christian.

Freight Service

If you value quick transportation, route your shipments via Norfolk Southern Railroad. Watch the time made by their package cars, and you will find that your interests are best served by patronizing them, as "Time is Money."

It was my pleasure, a few weeks ago, to visit with the Third Church in Norfolk. Here is a church that is attempting great things for Christ, and He is blessing them in basket and in store. They are only about two blocks from a cemetery, but there is nothing dead about them. They are very much alive, indeed. The day I was there, they had a letter to read from Miss Williams, whom they have sent to Porto Rico, telling of what she is accomplishing, or rather, what they are accomplishing through her, for the glorious thing about helping in this mission work is that we are really working in places we may never see, and thousands of miles from our place in life. No member of the Third Church may ever cross to Porto Rico, and yet, through the money that is supporting Miss Williams, the laborers of that church have reached across thousands of leagues and is holding out a helping hand. Truly, their reach has exceeded their grasp, as we are told it should. Too many of us are so concerned about our own little nook of ground—so concerned lest we fail to secure what we feel to be our dues, that we miss the blessing entirely. The disciples were told to "tarry at Jerusalem until ye be endued with power from on high," but if we still tarry in Jerusalem, we will find the power is being grandly dissipated, until it is lost entirely. Like some kinds of torches, it needs rapid motion in order to keep it burning bright and clear.

I wish I could tell you about the fine way the Third Church Bible School has found for dividing their classes. We are going to talk more about that at the Eastern Va. S. S. Convention if our plans do not miscarry, so all who come there will have a chance to see demonstrated what I believe to be the best and cheapest and easiest method of dividing a one-room school that I have ever found.

Then they have a Cradle Roll, and under Mrs. Jarvis' efficient management it is growing steadily, two new members the day I was there, and the fact was noted on the general Sunday school report so that all knew of it, you see they are not ashamed of their Cradle Roll.

I wish you could have seen the splendid primary classes and the dear little beginners. They are crowded in, until you would wonder where they could put another, for Third Church Bible School is growing as fast as the church, but wise heads have planned their rooms, literally every inch of space is utilized, and they have an Elementary Department to be proud of. They need just one thing right now, and that is an Elementary Superintendent. I believe with Dr. Manning that they have an eye on the very person for that place and I sincerely hope and trust she will agree with them before very long, and assume the position for which she is so well fitted.

I could write for an hour and then not have told you half of the things they are doing, of their organized classes, of their fine classes for men and women, of the Class in the choir, and of the magnificent class of boys whom our general secretary, Mr. Blanchard, so proudly calls "My Boys"; but space is limited. I am afraid this letter will go the way of some others and never see daylight at all if it is too long. I can only advise you, if you get the chance, to do as I did,—go and see.

 This prescription for the removal of freckles was written by a prominent physician and is usually so successful in removing freckles and giving a clear, beautiful complexion that it is sold by druggists under guarantee to refund the money if it fails.

Don't hide your freckles under a veil; get an ounce of othine and remove them. Even the first few applications should show a wonderful improvement, some of the lighter freckles vanishing entirely. CHURCH NEWS

MEBANE

We organized a Christian church at Mebane, Orange Co., N. C., last Sunday with eleven members. We expect to have others soon. The prospects are bright. Mrs. M. E. White has given the church a lot of more than a half acre. It is a beautiful one, and finely located. While the larger part of Mebane is in Alamance Co., the church lot is in Orange.

Sister Owen Fowler was elected secretary and sister H. L. Jones treasurer. They are both enthusiastic church workers. Deacons will be elected at next meeting. All the members are ready to do all they can. Prof. Gray has kindly given us the use of his school assembly room for preaching and Sunday school. The Sunday school is to be organized next Sunday.

The church has many enthusiastic sympathizers in other denominations, and outside of any church.
W. G. CLEMENTS.

MARTHA'S CHAPEL

After an absence of more than 30 years I had the privilege of visiting this church once more and preaching to a good congregation, after which we administered the communion. I saw but few faces that I could recognize; the old ones had gone to the spirit world, and the young ones had grown to manhood and womanhood. This church has a good Sunday school with Bro. J. F. Morgan at the head of it. Our young brother Poythress, who graduates this commencement, is pastor of this church. The following evening at 8 o'clock I had the privilege of preaching, by request, in the Christian church at Chapel Hill, N. C. The congregation was large, house full. This church building is a credit to our people, and compares well with other church buildings in the place. I don't know a church that is better lighted. This organization and church building is the result of the faithful labors of Rev. W. G. Clements, former pastor. Rev. T. W. Stroud is its present pastor.

LEE'S CHAPEL

I was with my congregation at this point third Sunday. Congregation was good, the day was delightful, and we had a good time in studying the Word. This church has a good Sunday school, with Deacon Phillip Gunter Superintendent. The school numbers between 60 and 100. Within the past six weeks there have been five deaths in this and surrounding neighborhood. Sister Ann Smith, widow, after an illness of about 2 months, passed to her rest and reward beyond the river Saturday before second Sunday and was buried at Zion on Sunday. The song and burial service by Prof. David Mann. She leaves only one brother, and he must be the next one of that family to follow. God help him to be ready.

LETTERS THAT INSPIRE CONFIDENCE

I wish very much that every reader of The Christian Sun could spend sufficient time in my office to read the thousands of letters which I have received from all parts of the country. I have printed several hundreds of them in a booklet, but I wish you could see the originals, for I would like for you to realize the wonderful results which they report in the relief of dyspepsia, indigestion, persistent headache, rheumatism, gall stones, kidney, bladder and liver diseases, uric acid poisoning and other conditions due to impure blood.

Before my own health was restored by Shivar Mineral Water and I purchased this Spring, and before I received all of these letters from sufferers, I didn't take very much stock in advertisements like this. I therefore cannot blame you if you doubt, but, my friend, I am absolutely convinced that the Shivar Spring is the greatest restorative mineral spring ever discovered, not excepting the famous Spas of Europe. I have shipped this water to thousands of sufferers in all parts of the U. S. and they almost invariably report either permanent restoration or beneficial results. That is why I make the guarantee offer contained in the following letter. Sign it now and mail it.

Shivar Spring,
Box 93, Shelton, S. C.

Gentlemen:
I accept your guarantee offer and enclose herewith two dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Spring Water. I agree to give it a fair trial, in accordance with instructions contained in booklet you will send, and if it fails to benefit my case you agree to refund the price in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns, which I agree to return promptly.

OUR PRINCIPLES.

- (1.) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the church.

- (5.) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

Editorial Briefs

The Community's Best

"After all," says Dean George Hodges, "the best thing in a community is not a mill nor a mansion, nor a bank, but a man." The chief asset of any community, State, nation, is its men, not the numbers of them, but the kind and quality of character. Blessed indeed is that community which has in it a real, true, genuine, unselfish man.

Too Short

Time is God's precious gift to man. So precious is it in His sight that He deals it out moment by moment. No one can hoard it. Only a brief span, and the life here is spent. "Life is short," wrote Samuel Johnson, "Let us therefore not throw any of it away in useless resentment. It is next best to be quickly reconciled." The moments are too precious to freight them with envy, ill will, resentment. The towering moments, those we look back upon with joy, peace and satisfaction are those in which we displayed the spirit of love, fellowship, devotion to duty. "Remember how short my time is." (Psa. 89:47.)

A Good Inscription

The Biblical Recorder relates that Amos Lawrence, one of the great merchants of Boston had the following inscribed on his pocket-book: "What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" The present bloody and wicked war in Europe is being fought, we are assured, because of commercial envy, and the desire to be preminent in trade, commerce and wealth. The industrial war in this country is being waged along the same line, and heartless men are heaping up millions with little regard to the happiness or welfare of others. One day they will be asking, "What will it profit?"

The One Fold

The Jewish Daily News publishes a long article deploring the fact that so many Jews are renouncing the faith of the fathers and accepting Christianity instead. It is pointed out by a learned writer in the paper referred to that within the last hundred years 204,000 Jews have left their ancient faith and claimed Jesus as their Lord and Master. Of this number 22,000 were in Germany, 28,000 were in England, 44,000 in Australia, 84,000 in Russia and 13,000 in America. In all countries those who have so bitterly and obstinately rejected Christ are turning to Him as the source of their strength and comfort. "Other sheep I have, which are not of this fold; them also I must bring, and they shall hear my voice and there shall be one fold, and one shepherd." (John 10:16.)

The Oasis

Speaking not for himself alone, but for thousands of educators in university, college, academy, George Wharton Pepper of the University of Pennsylvania, before a conference of prominent educators recently, declared, "I think it is the truth that our education must be shot through with religion. If you subtract God from education you don't even attain secular education, but are left with no education at all." Educators and logical thinkers in every sphere must be driven ultimately to the same conclusion. There is no escape. The Lutheran remarks, "Religion is the one soul oasis in the sphere of education that gives young men a vision that looks beyond the horizon of this life and a motive that impels them to labor for something higher and better than the meat that perisheth. Education without religion! What a barren thing that is!" "For what is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul?" (Matt. 16:26.)

The Alternative

In his exceedingly pointed and powerful essay on "The Making of Men," in a recent volume, Pres. W. A. Harper, LL. D., gives this alternative in the conception of the ideal man from an educational point of vision: "There are two conflicting notions current respecting him—one that he should get all the educational system can give him with or without religion; as he may choose; the other that education without religion is worse than no education." Possibly nine-tenths of CHRISTIAN SUN readers would agree to the latter—that education without religion is worse than no education. But many of the same number will act differently when it comes to a matter of decision in any practical case and take chances with their sons and daughters at a non-religious institution. Christianity is not a thing apart from education; neither is education a thing apart from Christianity. Time will come when the logic of the situation will be realized, namely, that there is no education save Christian education. For Christ was the very Prince of teachers, the most profound scholar of any time, the most learned and liberal thinker of any age. To leave Him out of teaching and thinking and living is unpardonable stupidity even from an educational, rational or cultural point of view. A liberal education without a living knowledge of Christ is illogical and unthinkable. The parent who does not recognize and act upon this fact endangers the mind and soul of the son or daughter to be educated. "Knowledge puffeth up, but charity edifieth." (I Cor. 8:1.)

Unitarianism

The Unitarians recently held their annual meeting in Boston. This cult which, when first established, it was predicted by the learned, would within a hundred years sweep all Christendom, is on the wane, and bids fair to disappear as a religious sect. The total number of adherents in the United States now is 70,542 which is smaller than that reported one year ago. The activities of the body the past year have been directed particularly against evangelism, which is the object of their especial disfavor. Any system of religion that leaves Christ out or reduces Him to a mere man must fail sooner or later, for He is the power unto salvation to as many as believe in Him. "Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end * * * from henceforth even for ever." (Isa. 9:7.)

One follows the line of one's thought. Give the mind to a certain thought, and it will not be long till the hand follows in performing the deed. Envy another in your thought, bear malice, harbor jealousy, and it will not be long before the outward act will conform to the inward reflection. "Let this mind be in you which was in Christ Jesus," enjoins the Word; and the ideal is none too high. There was not a thought of Christ but that led to God and the good and the true. It was His meat and His drink—His constant thought, mind and soul food—to do the will of God. Christ ever went toward God because the soul and center of His thinking was God. In the full knowledge of the power of our thought to control us, Paul wrote: "Whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report, * * * think on these things." (Phil. 4:8.)

—At Morganton the great State of North Carolina gathers from year to year, an increasing number of deaf mutes for the purpose of instruction, manual training and character building. Nearly three hundred boys and girls were fed and housed and taught there the past year at the State's expense. What a happy lot they are; what a blessed life they lead, what helpful and wholesome instruction they receive. Lips that were dumb are taught to speak; minds that were blank are led to learn and think and understand; and hands that were idle and useless are trained to skill and deftness and ingenuity. Not one person in a hundred of her citizenship knows aught of the benevolent, the divine work that the State is doing for the deaf at Morganton. One of the most eloquent and inspirational commencement speeches this writer ever attended was that at the school of the deaf recently.

—Secretary of State, William Jennings Bryan, resigned from President Wilson's cabinet on June 8th and retires to private life. This has created a sensation in political circles. Mr. Bryan assigns as his reason for resigning his inability to coincide with the President in his views as to the methods of dealing with Germany in the matter of sinking the Lusitania. The resignation is regarded as unfortunate at this time.

EDITORIAL

THE PERSONAL TEST

An eminent speaker at one of the recent commencements said that Christianity was the religion of the personal test—that each individual Christian must try and test the power of this religion and see whether it be true and sufficient. It was never intended that Christianity should destroy, obliterate or obscure the personality of the individual, nor even take away one's individual views, beliefs, or opinions; but should give wholesome and helpful direction to these and make every one more confirmed, more steadfast, more determined in his individual opinions and convictions. The individual is the crucible through which Christianity is tried and tested for each person. One cannot hold to Christianity as a theory, a thought, a creed, a matter of knowledge or information, as one holds to an abstract principle or a historical fact. To be a Christian one must be vitalized with the power of a Personality.

We have no where seen a clearer statement of this important distinction than that by Pres. W. A. Harper in his recent volume, The Making of Men. We quote: "Christ is a person. Christianity is founded on a person and is a religion of persons. The central fact in the Christian religion is the personality of the Savior. If Christ were an abstract principle, like goodness or happiness, then He would have to be approached through reason and worshipped through contemplation, but since He is a person, He must be approached by a person as an individual approaches another, and is to be dealt with as we deal with ourselves. He is Himself a person, and understands our longings as persons."

He did not obliterate His personality in His teachings * * * This is what made the people hang on His words, because He taught them as one having authority and not as the Scribes and Pharisees. And He taught them as one having authority simply because He kept His personality clear and distinct. Christ is a person, and if you approach Him and become one of His followers, you, too, must be a person, must be an individual, must be yourself, with your talents, your personality, your deeds, and your life lived in accord with your best instinct.

Christ as your elder Brother, does not come and say to you that you must obey certain commands, wear a certain kind of clothing, look pious on Sunday morning and whenever you see a preacher. He does not say that you must make Him a model in that you must speak the language He spake, eat the kind of food He ate, keep hours He kept, or do the deeds He did. He says that you have been endowed by the God and Father of us all with certain talents, powers, inclinations, gifts, and that all of these are holy unto the Lord; that if you would receive the rewards of the faithful servant when your Lord cometh in His glory to judge the quick and the dead you must develop these powers, gifts, ambitions, inclinations, and talents to the fullest extent; that His purpose in life for you is the full fruition of the powers in you and the bodying forth of your very best."

Christ did not come to destroy, but to fulfill—fill to the full your possible power as a person. He does not take away freedom—He confers it and makes the mind and heart and soul full indeed.

The real and the truly free person is he who finds in Jesus Christ the fullness and the completion of Himself.

THE EVERY-MEMBER CANVASS

It hurts a church for a few members to do all the giving; and in two ways. The many are not given enough attention, the few are given too much attention for their health, happiness and comfort.

The every member-canvass is a practical attempt to eliminate these evils. It gives every person in the church a square deal and an even opportunity. Nothing less than this should satisfy any pastor or people. Nine times out of ten when the burden of the church falls on the few the reason is not far to seek nor hard to find. No plans were made and worked to avoid it. We have never known the every member canvass to fail if it was given a fair trial and the plans were properly carried out.

There lies before us now an account of a church in Nashville, Tennessee, that conducted some months ago, an every-member canvass. "There have been striking results," the account relates, "financial, social and spiritual. Only two persons of all the membership were found who declined to give anything. Nearly three hundred members who never gave systematically to anything before have now pledged themselves and are giving regularly to church maintenance and to missions, the contributions to both causes being practically doubled. The increase for missions has been from $1,300 to $2,700." Such concert of action, such business like plans, can but result in good in every line of church activity. No wonder many churches suffer, and drag, and are a burden. No plans work because nobody works the plans. No work, no business, no scheme, will go of itself, and the King's business deserves and should have the very wisest and most skillful plans and methods that can be conceived. "Our King calls us to scheme and plan and work. He tells us to set the biggest brains we have to devise the best methods to carry out the biggest work He has ever given men to do; to carry it out with the least waste, and to go into such detail about it that every man, woman and child shall have a share in it, and feel responsible for it."

When the King's business is carried home to the hearts of the people, and is transacted in a sensible and business-like manner, good results always follow.

BIBLE POCKETS

The national costume of Korea had no pockets. But when Koreans learned of Christ, and the blessed Book that told so beautifully about Him they must devise some means of carrying the volume about with them. At first a napkin, tied to the hand, or slung over the shoulders, was used. Then the American custom was observed, and the Korean extemporized a pocket in his jacket—the first ever known to the natives. So pockets are in quite common use now in Korea but they are known by the first use to which they were put—"Bible Pockets."

We Americans have the pockets, and carry very many things therein of little use or value. Could we not profit by the example of Koreans, and if we do not have a Bible-pocket at least carry a Bible in the pocket we have.

NOTES AND PERSONALS

—Rev. J. F. Morgan is assisting the pastor, Rev. C. E. Newman, in a meeting at the Raleigh Christian church this week.

—Rev. Neil Rowland of Texas is to begin with the pastor, Rev. W. L. Wells, in a series of meetings at Durham church next Sunday.

—Rev. C. E. Newman writes: "A series of meetings is in progress at the First Christian church. Rev. J. F. Morgan, of Graham, is assisting. The first day's services on Sunday were well attended and splendid interest was manifested. Services each afternoon at 3:30 and in the evening at 8 o'clock. A good meeting is evidenced."

—An English aeroplane commanded by a Canadian officer engaged a Zeppelin dirigible some 6,000 feet in the air above Ghent, England, June 7th and succeeded in dropping a bomb into the great German air-fighter and sent it to earth a torch of flame instantly killing its crew of 28 warriors. It is the first great destructive battle in the air thus far recorded. The English craft, after winning the victory descended in safety.

—We are indebted to the faculty and students of Jireh College, Jireh, Wyo., for a very neat and quite cordial invitation to the commencement exercises of that college May 26th to 30th. It was not our pleasure to attend but it is a pleasure to note what progress this young college of Christians in the far northwest is making. Rev. Daniel B. Atkinson, D. D., President, is certainly doing a great work and meeting with well-earned success.

—We note in the political news of the Virginia papers that our delightful friend and brother, Col. J. E. West, Suffolk, has no opposition in his candidacy for reelection to the Senate from the thirteenth senatorial district composed of the counties of Nansemond, Southampton and Isle of Wight. This is a well deserved compliment to Senator West who has for several years served his State so creditably in its legislative halls. There is no purer minded, nor more conscientious law maker in the Old Dominion than J. E. West.

—The Driver High School, Driver, Va., had its finals last Monday night. There were twelve graduates. Their exercises, interspersed with musical selections, were of a high order and much enjoyed by the large and intelligent audience present. Prof. De Jarnette, Superintendent, and Prof. Ames, Principal, are doing an effectual work and within a few years have built up an institution of which any community should be proud. THE SUN's editor was accorded the high privilege of addressing the graduates and looking into the faces of many friends interested in education and in the arts of right living.

—The editor was in Norfolk, at Memorial Temple, last Sunday, the pastor, Dr. Denison, being in Ohio on business for the church. The Temple is a bee-hive of energy and effectual activity. The Sunday school, with Bro. J. J. Pitt, as superintendent, is progressive, wide-awake and mighty. The graded system is in full force and the classes are intelligently made up and symmetrical. There are organized classes for men and women, Miss Margaret Brickhouse being the efficient leader and teacher of the Baracas which class we visited with profit to ourselves. The church maintains its lead in its deep interest in and contribution to foreign missions. Next Sunday (June 13) is the day of the annual missionary offering and rally. Twenty-six men and women, in pairs of two, were on last Sunday sent out under commission from the church to visit every member this week and afford to each an opportunity for a missionary offering next Sunday. This church does things because it seeks to interest absolutely every member in some feature of church work. None are omitted. Our stay in Dr. Denison's home was one of good fellowship with his intelligent and interesting family of two boys and two girls and a wife that knows how to make home a joy, as well as church work a success.

Missions

No more important and interesting theme is before Christian workers. Our program will be permeated with missions.

Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Elon College, N. C.,

Will conduct a daily period for four days on missions. This theme will be

A Missionary Conscience

And all who know Dr. Atkinson know that a treat is in store for us. Did you hear his message at the last session of the American Christian Convention? Do you read his missionary messages almost weekly in THE CHRISTIAN SUN? Have you heard him at your conference session? You know that he has a vision. It is people with visions that we are inviting to our Chautauqua faculty. Dr. Atkinson will also give a missionary address on the opening day that will be one of the key-note messages.

One period will be given to "Our Women's Work," and will be conducted by Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Franklin, Va., who is the Vice-President of the Woman's Foreign Board of the American Christian Convention, also President of the Woman's Board of the Southern Christian Convention. Mrs. W. H. Denison is Treasurer of the Women's Home Board of the A. C. C.

Miss Harris will give one period to "Missionary Methods in Elementary Sunday School Work." Dr. Coffin will emphasize missions in one of his Church Efficiency messages.

Bring your note books, for the best things on missions will be given. We are insistent on urging our people to bring note books and carry with them the best things they learn. Use them all the year and your work and addresses. About the time you read this the advance programs will be in readiness. If you do not receive one ask for it and help us distribute them to interested parties.

We need the help of all our brotherhood in this work. Will our brethren please announce the importance of this Chautauqua at the various gatherings of our people. Write the General Secretary or myself for any information except entertainment or exhibit.

SUFFOLK LETTER

My visit to Elon College and its good Commencement was supplemented by a day spent in visiting sick people and Alamance kin; but years have made so many changes in roads, houses, farms, and people, that it seemed like a new country; but one thing was manifest on every hand, that improvement had been made everywhere. This is a prophecy that the future will be better than the past. This is certainly true, if moral and civic conditions continue to improve.

John Cook, my half-brother, carried C. A. Shoop and myself to Burlington, Graham, and Swepsonville over good roads in a machine. The wheat fields were nearing the golden stage and the crop was large and fine. Mr. Shoop, who was brought up in the great wheat fields of Pennsylvania enjoyed the hills, the Haw river with its long bridge, and the wheat fields waving like a yellow sea.

The next day, R. N. Cook, my youngest half-brother, who is Sheriff of the good county of Alamance, came to the College in his machine and carried Mrs. Jessie Bradshaw, Nina Clendenin, two of my nieces, and Miss Uzzell and myself to Burlington, Graham, Swepsonville, Mebane, and our old home. We visited our nearest of kin, went through the Swepsonville Cotton Mills which are a thousand feet long and superintended by Wm. C. Kirkpatrick who married my niece. The mill is on the bank of Haw river and is operated by electric power generated by the river. A dam above the mill and a dam two miles below the mill furnish power to operate the dynamo and 600 horse power is thus made available for the operation of the mill. The raw cotton enters one end of the mill and comes out finished dress goods at the other end of the mill. It is interesting to follow the cotton from the bale to bolts of dress goods ready for the store shelf. The church of Jesus Christ can do as much for men if they enter as raw material and let God have His way. "These are they who have come out of great tribulation, and have washed their robes, and made them white in the blood of the Lamb." The cotton goes through great tribulation before it becomes beautiful cloth.

I visited Capt. John R. Stockard, whose father spent sixteen consecutive years in the N. C. Legislature, and who, himself, led a company of Alamance boys into the Confederate war and remained to the close. He is now in his 88th year, residing at the old Stockard homestead with his youngest son, Cicero and family. "Cousin John," as we called him, waited on my mother when she was married at sixteen the first time, and performed the marriage ceremony when she was married the second time at twenty-five. He was a good soldier, a good Christian, a good citizen, a good neighbor, and a good friend. He is now waiting the Master's last call and anticipating entrance into the heavenly home.

I spent the night with my niece, Mrs. Jesse Bradshaw, at Mebane, and went to my home at Franklinton on Thursday where, with a big chill and a three days' fever, I remained till the following Tuesday. Rev. W. G. Maybee preached for me on Sunday morning and Rev. Dr. I. W. Johnson at night on the fifth Sunday.

W. W. STALEY.

ELON COLLEGE NOTES

Rev. W. T. Walters, class of '03, Winchester, Va., occupied the College pulpit Sunday at the eleven o'clock hour and preached a strong sermon to the edification of all present.

Mr. I. L. Oldham, who has recently opened a general merchandise and furnishing store here, has decided to put in a jitney-bus line to carry traveling men and citizens to the nearby villages and cities. He is also building a garage on the lot between Ware's Drug Store and J. J. Lambeth's grocery store to accommodate the public as well as his own cars.

Mrs. W. A. Harper spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walker, near Union Ridge.

Dr. J. O. Atkinson occupied the pulpit at the Memorial Temple, Norfolk, Va., at both the morning and evening services Sunday. He delivered two missionary addresses before the congregations of that church.

Misses Jennie Willis Atkinson, Annie Laurie Wicker and Ruth Johnson are at Black Mountain this week representing the College Y. W. C. A. The summer conference which is held at Black Mountain each year has a lasting influence in moulding the student life, thought and ideals of the Southern Colleges. At the close of this ten days' conference, the Y. M. C. A. representatives will assemble and hold their annual meeting.

Mrs. M. E. Winston, who has been in poor health for some time, was carried to her home in Louisburg, N. C., Friday, where she will remain for some time.

Mrs. B. Guy Porter, Jr., known to many of us, has opened for the second time her Porter Cottage at Virginia Beach for summer accommodations, and those desiring reservations for the Chautauqua season will do well to address her at 24th Street Station, Virginia Beach, Va.

Rev. James M. Lightbourne, Dover, Del., was the guest of his brother, Rev. Victor Lightbourne, for two days last week. This young man, like his brother, Victor, has recently entered the ministry and every indication is pointing to abundant success for him in the work.

Prof. J. S. Truitt has been elected principal of the Merry Oaks High School. We congratulate the Board on its choice and predict a most successful year for the school.

President Harper attended the State C. E. Convention at Wilmington, N. C., Saturday and Sunday and delivered addresses before that body of Christian workers.

The President's office is a busy place these days. Many requests are coming in from various sections, and also many applications from new students.

Mrs. Crews, of Danville, Va., is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Farmer this week. "X."

Over eleven hundred letters are being sent out from the office to those who are in arrears with their subscription.

We feel confident that you will give ear to the plea set forth therein. Let us beg that you make a remittance just as early as you can do so—do so immediately—and help us out of a dilemma. We have waited so patiently with you and we are now compelled to ask you to come to the rescue. Your dollar and a half helps when added to the other eleven hundred. If not convenient to remit your entire arrears, you may send part now and part later. Do not put this off, but attend to it at once so you will not forget it.

Brother Sunday School Secretary, some of you have not answered our letter, relative to the Sunday school pledge for THE SUN. Raleigh Sunday school is moving things. Can't you do likewise. Just try the scheme for luck and you will help us add to the SUN list. We need your support. We need about forty more pledges to complete the list. Are you willing to pledge your school for $10 and then get busy and secure sufficient subscribers in your membership to cover the $10 pledge? This should be easy. Try it.

PONCE, P. E. LETTER

Editor of the SUN:

In the trip across the island I noticed houses of various sizes and of widely different types. For the better class the old Spanish style of architecture seems to be the most popular, although I saw a number of bungalows similar to those now being erected in the warmer parts of the States. Evidently the problem of constructing homes for the poor in tropical countries has been given but little consideration.

The first difficulty here is that of obtaining cheap and durable building material. Hard woods are scarce and the poor laborers cannot afford to buy imported lumber and have not the skill or the tools to make use of the stone and clay which they could obtain, and this scarcity of building material combined with the fact that in this climate people can live in almost any kind of a shack has resulted in the poorer people spending their lives in homes which may be picturesque but are nevertheless a blot upon civilization. The men who live in them usually have been their own architects and builders, their dwellings after the old types that have prevailed among the hills for centuries.

The frame work of their houses is of poles and small sticks cut from shrub trees and tied together at the corners with native fiber ropes, the roofs are thatched with long grass and the walls are constructed by binding leaves of the royal palm with sticks and fiber. The floor is of boards or slabs and is raised from one to two feet above the ground in order to let the waters from the heavy rains run off, carrying with it the filth which otherwise would collect and be a source of disease. The furniture of these homes usually consists, of hammocks, boxes, used for chairs, a rough table, a few dishes made from gourds, and the iron pot used in cooking.

The land upon which these homes are built is usually the property of some plantation or landowner. Only in the more inaccessible sections inland do the laborers who have built thatched houses also own the land they are placed upon. It is the custom among landowners to allow the laborers who work for them to take the necessary materials—grass, sticks, palm bark etc. from the land and build these huts. This is done of course with the consent of the land owner and the huts so built are legally attached to the land and become the property of the land owner. This is another reason, and a most excellent one for not building more comfortable homes. A man may be discharged at any time and forced to seek employment in a different locality where he will be forced to build another hut, unless fortunate enough to find a vacant one upon the premises.

The report of the Bureau of Labor for 1914 says, "If we are to judge the importance of a type of house from the number of people who live in it, this thatched hut is far more important than any other rural or urban type. The great mass of the rural laborers live in houses of this type, and fully three-fourths of the total laborers of the island live in rural sections."

Nine out of every ten of these little thatched homes have a garden patch, but these gardens are of very little if any practical use. The average garden consists of two or three banana trees, a few tubers and some medicinal plants. Frequently there are many and beautiful flowers, but whatever vegetables may be are poorly cared for and do not produce more than a third of the yield. The soil and climate of Porto Rico are such that this island should produce most of its food. There are unused plots of ground around practically every hut in the interior of the island. The decrease in sugar has thrown many out of work and they will be forced to raise their own food or suffer. The laborers say they do not cultivate the land because they do not own it, and are obliged to give a portion of the product to the landlords, evidently they do not understand that this is a just demand, and the landlords say that the chief reason why the laboring class do not raise better gardens is because they don't know how, do not have the proper implements to cultivate their gardens and do not have the seeds.

In commenting upon this condition the Secretary of Labor states there are two problems which must be faced, "The laborers must be educated by example, and they must be given some opportunity to hold land with some fixity of tenure, either by purchasing it on the installment plan, or obtaining leases from the present landlords."

When I consider the manner in which the laboring class in Porto Rico has been forced into the most abject poverty that is conceivable, I can but recall these lines from Oliver Goldsmith's "Deserted Village":

"Ill fares the land, to hastening ills a prey, Where wealth accumulates and men decay."

Personally I feel that the Missionaries in this island must use every opportunity to help these people help themselves, as well as to lead them to Christ. I wrote back to the Third Christian Church at Norfolk and by return mail came a large box of flower and garden seed which I gave to Mr. Barrett to distribute as he can talk Spanish and so explain the manner in which the seeds are to be planted. A few packages I gave out personally, and the next day a little boy came to our house asking for some tomato seed as his mother wanted to start a garden also. A missionary from one of the other churches thinks that my time can be used to more advantage in other directions. She says there are so many souls to save here in Porto Rico that Missionaries have not the time to bother with teaching the people to plant gardens, but I shall continue the way I have begun, because I feel that it is the right thing to do, and then too it gives me a chance to reach the people.

The soil is naturally very fertile and the wants of the people living in such an ideal climate must be necessarily few, consequently labor is cheap. We have two lines of steamers making weekly trips to New York city and products can be shipped to New York as quickly as from Southern Florida and at much less expense, and the business of growing vegetables for either home or foreign markets would prove a paying business. Coffee is the leading crop raised here at present, and the only reason that the people in the States do not use Porto Rican coffee in preference to other blends is that they are not familiar with the manner of preparing it for the table. The coffee is first roasted until it turns almost black, not the light brown that we usually see in the blends from other countries, then it is pulverized until it is a fine powder, and when plenty of milk is added is one of the most delightful beverages I have ever tasted. Green coffee retails here at 15 cents per pound. I do not know how it sells wholesale, but I do know that at home I pay 35 cents per pound for a blend of coffee that is greatly inferior to the Porto Rican coffee.

Next in importance to the coffee crop is sugar. The increase in prosperity that came to the cane planter when America assumed control over Porto Rico is shown by the fact that land which had been selling at $30 per acre suddenly advanced to $100 is now worth $200 per acre, if it is good sugar land. The limit of sugar production has not been reached nor will it for a few years if the present economic conditions prevail. With our large sugar plantations in Louisiana and those in Porto Rico there should be no need of importing beet sugar from Europe. The third crop in importance in Porto Rico is tobacco, and this industry has suffered because of the war, the factory where the tobacco is sold and made up into cigars having been closed. This is causing some hardship. The exports of the leaf tobacco to the United States still continues.

During the civil war in the states the cotton industry in Porto Rico assumed large proportions, but of later years not so much of this staple has been raised. The only variety of cotton produced in Porto Rico is the sea island cotton.

Porto Rico is naturally adapted to the growing of all kinds of tropical fruits. The grapefruit, oranges and pineapples here being superior to those received from Florida. Many different kinds of bananas grow wild here, the smaller kind being far better than the large ones that are shipped to the states. I don't know why these small or "apple bananas" as they are called here are not on the market in the states.

In live stock Porto Rico stands at the head of the West Indian islands. Formerly large numbers were exported to surrounding islands, but the exportation has gradually diminished in value owing to the greatly increased demands for home consumption. The native horses are small and practically all of a saddle type. The gait at which they are driven here in Ponce would cause their drivers to be arrested by the humane society at home, and yet the horses look fat and sleek. I am told that the keep of horses and mules is much less here than in the states.

Some rice is raised in the island, but as rice forms the main article of diet the Porto Ricans import over a million dollars worth of rice each year. Pigeon peas, locally known as gandules add very largely to the food supply of the people. The price of poultry and eggs is constantly on the increase, notwithstanding that poultry will thrive in every part of the island.

Laborers on sugar plantations are paid 55 cents per day; on coffee plantations 30 cents per day; tobacco plantations 35 cents, on fruit plantations 40 cents per day. Dressmakers 30 cents per day and two meals. Servants 15 cents per day, with board.

The above statistics may prove dry reading to many subscribers of THE SUN, and yet they are of necessity in order to give a clear idea of the conditions down here. The people are bright, good-natured, and seem to appreciate the effort made in their behalf, but there is a very dangerous condition now confronting us. A band of anarchists is going through the island stirring up the laboring class, organizing strikes, and causing a great deal of trouble generally. The price of food has increased here as elsewhere on account of the European war, but the people do not understand why they should pay more for every thing they use, and not receive more wages. A week or two ago the strikers burned some sugar cane fields and in the fight which followed a number of the strikers were killed, and from that time on there has been labor troubles on every hand. Today men are going through the market house trying to induce all the cooks to go on a strike. Here, as elsewhere, it is the women and children who are the greatest sufferers when a strike has been organized.

I have tried to give the readers of THE SUN an idea of the beauty of the island, its resources and its troubles, would that I had the power also to sketch for them the vision that I have of what Porto Rico will be when the transforming touch of the Christly love shall awaken new impulses and new ideals. Then the shacks in which the laborer lives will give way to the neat, though inexpensive, tenant house; the hovels here in the city to modern tenements, the idle capital will be used in financing business enterprises which shall give employment to the unemployed. Already excellent schools are being established through the island, and the boys and girls of today are being equipped for the battle of life, in all but one important thing. They are not given a religious training and "education without Christianity lacks that great moral uplifting influence that will make any people happy."

S. S. LESSON, JUNE 13

The Blessedness of Forgiveness.—
Ps. 32:1-11.

Golden Text: Blessed is he whose transgression is forgiven, whose sin is covered.—Ps. 32:1.

The lesson of today was recorded by David about a year after he had committed the great sin of last Sunday's lesson. The stinging rebuke that Nathan had given him went to his heart and his conscience was disturbed so that he sought forgiveness of God and found what he sought. God was merciful to David, because he was penitent. David desired to get back to God and be on His side again so that he could prosper. While in sin David realized that he could not carry on the work successfully; he felt the gnawing away of his inmost feelings all the time and could not get any relief anywhere except at the throne of mercy. David by the ring of this Psalm had had remorse of conscience which one only gets by going to the lowest ebb of life; he knew what it was to be groping in the dark without a light to guide the footsteps or encourage the landing by a sight of the shore..

Unfortunately, at times we fall into sin and the way seems dark and dreary; there is no light; there will be no light until we do like David did, ask God for light and seek to stay and keep close communion with His holy will.

"The consequences of sin are not all removed by forgiveness. No man was ever more fully forgiven than David; yet the consequences of that sin, from the day he committed it, never left him."—Bar-ton.

"The difference between man's hiding of sin and God's is that man tries to cover up the sin and keep it; God blots the sin out and purges it from the heart and soul, and causes the man to have a new purpose, gives him indeed a new heart."—Rev. L. A. Banks, D. D.

"God's kiss of forgiveness sucks the poison from the wound."—Maclaren.

"To do evil for good is human corruption; to do good for good is civil retribution; but to do good for evil is Christian perfection. Though this be not the grace of nature, is it the nature of grace?"

"A more glorious victory cannot be gained over another man than this, that when the injury began on his part, the kindness should begin on ours."

We are constantly asking God to forgive our many transgressions; do we also ask our friends and our enemies to forgive us when we sin against them? Do we explain everything and do not hold back something in revenge? Then, too, when we have been wronged and forgiveness from us is sought do we unreservedly forgive the transgressors?

Whittier writes:

*"For still in mutual sufferance lies
The secret of true living;
Love scarce is love that never knows
The sweetness of forgiving."*

C. E. TOPIC FOR JUNE 13

Christ's Call to the Young Men of Today.—Mark 1:16-20.

(Led by three young men.)

After Christ prepared Himself for His mission in the world he went and called others to help with the great task to influence men and women to live Godly lives. The task was too great for Christ to do without aid; still there were not so many people then as there are now. He called two young men from the common walks of life—they were fisherman's boys. Christ needed them to help Him fish for human souls.

There are so many lessons to draw from Christ's call for young men. First let us notice that he did not go into a far-away country and bring strangers, but He asked for the men who were next to Him and who could do the work. They could do the work, for they knew the customs of the people and by Christ's teaching they could readily see what they needed and knew how to approach them to give them just what they were hungering after.

Christ is calling you to do something for your fellow right by your side. You know your neighbor, then why not learn of Christ and be made happy yourself by giving the other fellow the very things that he needs. He needs something, he doesn't know what it is. God is asking you to help in furthering His kingdom. Are you ready and doing your duty?

Christ could not accomplish His purpose with just two fishermen. He had to have men in other walks of life, so He chose a tax-collector. Still others were needed and a physician was called.

Christ needs men in every walk of life, in every business, to carry on His work. Just because you are doing a certain kind of work, don't think that God does not want you. He does and needs you to do a certain thing that no other person except you can do.

In planning this meeting try not only to get the young men members of the society to attend, but all the young men in your com-

A LETTER FROM ONE OF OUR JAPANESE PASTORS

Dear Mrs. Rowland:

Maybe you can use a few selections from Rev. Irokawa's letter. I know the personalities do not mean as much to other folks as to me who know the people.

Mr. Irokawa is the preacher at Ishinomaki. He is supported by some church in Indiana now, largely. He is a very kind-hearted generous man, with high ideals and great hopes for his country. His six children are growing up to interest their friends in Christian ideals. He writes:

I did not write to you for so long time and could not send to you some seeds which our American friends want to have because I feared about the unsafety of the voyage to America in consequence of the war. But the other day I sent a package which contained 30 lily bulbs and some kinds of seeds.

We have recently small meetings in the Sunday worship but have 120 to 80 children in the S. S. There are from 20 to 12 people in the evening meeting. The average at the mid-week prayer meeting is 9. The wayside meeting (street preaching) is carrying continually as usual twice a week very successfully since these 7 months, and some people are led to the church meetings.

We had a special meeting for 4 days—the 14th to 17 of March. In the daytime we had open air meetings once or more and in the evening in just same ways, too. One old man and four young men were converted and some of them are regularly attending at the Sunday evening meeting. We had 12 people as the inquirers, but now community and talk young men's problems—get them interested so they will return and make the society a valuable asset.

At one time the world called for young men. It doesn't now. The world calls for Christian young men. We are pleased to note this fact, it shows the Christ spirit. Really, it is Christ that calls them, for the world belongs to Him.

The older I grow—and now I stand upon the brink of eternity—the more comes back to me that sentence in the Catechism which I learned when a child, and the fuller and deeper its meaning becomes: "What is the chief end of man? To glorify God and enjoy Him forever."—Thomas Carlyle.

"Man is the crowning of history and the realization of poetry, the free and living bond which unites all nature to that God who created it for Himself."

there are 25 men and women who are seeking after the truth. On the first Sunday we received Miss Yochikura who was baptized the same day. We are praying to lead them to the perfect salvation—all. So I hope you will remember them in your daily prayers.

The temperance movement in Watanoha is telling—some progress and two leaders there have decided to give up their bad causes (i. e., habits) and their good influence is prevailing now over the town people.

Miss Hoshizawa goes to Inai every Sunday afternoon and Miss Sanjo to Takayashiki Friday afternoon occasionally. So they are doing their best each ardently and Miss Oigawa as the principal of the church S. S.

Our young brothers, Ono San, Mori San and Sasaki San are all advancing in their Christian life—Sasaki Fugin and Miss Imai in the same.

On the 7th inst. I attended at the lecture of Dr. Matthews and Gulick which was held at the Nippon Kiristo Church at Sendai. There was about a thousand audience and we were inspired greatly.

Our Tohoku pastors and Bible women were come to Sendai. We had a good Quarterly, unexpectedly. Ei Chan (oldest daughter) is well and has a good reputation among her friends. She is growing in the grace. Kitano San (preacher at Sendai) is now at his brother's in Osaka City for recovering of his sickness, but his home and Mr. McCord's family are all getting along quite well. We all are enjoying our good health. Our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all day and night. I am

Yours truly in Christ,
U. IROKAWA.

A CHAPTER OF EXCUSES

Both the Jews in the time of Christ and the unconverted today are censured by the church for making excuse at the call of duty, when she herself frequently says, when confronted with the last command of her Lord, "I pray thee have me excused." Note a few of these astounding statements which we have heard with our own ears.

1. It is not obligatory upon us now. "The gospel was once preached to the whole world. The world lost it. Therefore it is guilty and we are not responsible." Yet the same one turns to that very commission for authority to baptize. That which proves too much, proves nothing. And if we had no command, love would still constrain us to go.

My Dear Children:

Where are you all this week? Gone a-fishing, I suppose. Well, I hope you may have real good luck, much better than our children did when they last went fishing. Now please do not ask us how many they caught. We would not like to tell on them.
