

Digitized by the Internet Archive
in 2014

<https://archive.org/details/christiansun80gene>

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Official Organ of the Southern Christian Convention.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXX.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, JANUARY 5, 1928.

NUMBER 1.

THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY

BY REV. S. M. LYNAM.

Firecrackers in China.—

Firecrackers are used in China at social, religious, and military functions, and at births and funerals. Red firecrackers are for the common people, yellow for the aristocracy, and green for the officers of the law.

Of Interest to Philatelists.—

It is said that Thomas A. Buckingham, Bradley Beach, N. J., has the most valuable collection of postage stamps in the world. It is estimated that his collection is worth considerably more than a million dollars. Not long ago a rare stamp sold in the New York market for forty thousand dollars, and Mr. Buckingham has one of these. He has, perhaps, the finest collection of postage stamps of any philatelist in the world.

Plan Great Tunnel.—

The French and Italian governments have come to an agreement as to the construction of a tunnel under Mont Blanc after examining the reports of engineering experts. The tunnel will be constructed from Chamonix, France, to Aosta, Italy. It will be 14,500 yards long, and will shorten the time of express trains from Paris to Rome by at least three hours. It is believed that the money will be raised by an European loan guaranteed by both countries. The project promises to be one of the most interesting engineering feats yet done.

Why the French are Proud.—

The French are proud of the fact that they have the Eiffel Tower, the highest structure in the world; the Garabit viaduct, the biggest metal viaduct; L'Ile de France, 42,000 tons, the biggest steamer built since the war; the Saint Pierre du Vauvray Bridge, the biggest re-enforced concrete bridge; the fastest electric train, running from Paris to Vierzon-Ville; Le Bourget, the biggest airfield; the biggest aviation hangars, at Orly; the Canal de Rove, the biggest underground canal; the billion-candle power searchlight at Mt. Valerien, and the 50,000-kilowatt alternating current generators at Gennevilliers.

Women in a Majority.—

The recent census of Turkey in Europe, the first ever taken, revealed the fact that there are half a million more women than men in that country. The abolition of polygamy and the freedom of women have led to extensive changes in labor conditions. Women are now employed in almost every line of industrial and commercial life. To make sure that every person was counted in the census, it was made compulsory by the government that every person should remain at home for the day, and a horde of census-takers covered the country in a day. It is probably the most accurate census ever taken in any country.

Not Prosperity.—

Prof. Irving Fisher, professor of economics at Yale University, says that, while there is apparently great prosperity in the United States, ninety million people, or about four-fifths of the entire population, are barely making their expenses. This means that, while apparently prosperous, the country is actually in a precarious situation. Prof. Fisher is one of the leading authorities on this matter, and his judgments are not to be lightly disregarded.

The Largest Submarine.—

The world's largest submarine is a part of the United States Navy. It was launched last month and will be commissioned next spring. The submarine is known as the V-4 and is a mine-laying type of U-boat. The V-4 is 381 feet in length and will be manned by eight officers and eighty men. It is equipped with Diesel engines of 2,800-horse power. The speed which it can develop is fifteen knots an hour on the surface and eight knots an hour submerged. Every effort has been made to furnish the new boat with comfortable quarters for the officers and men. It will be possible for the V-4 to cruise with the fleet of large ships.

The "Fox Sisters" Honored.—

In 1848 two country girls who lived near Hydesville, N. Y., heard raps and other sounds which gave a basis for the appreciation and intelligent comprehension of modern spiritualism. It was decided to honor these girls recently, and on December 4th a granite shaft was erected to their memory in the yard of the Plymouth Spiritualist Church. Katy and Margaret Fox, in whose honor the shaft has just been dedicated, toured the country as mediums and were widely known as the "Fox sisters." The shaft was erected at the suggestion of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, famous writer of Sherlock Holmes stories and internationally known Spiritualist leader. The world congress of Spiritualists met at Plymouth in a four-day session at the time of the dedication. Sir Arthur Conan Doyle is the author of a large two-volume history of Spiritualism.

War Costs.—

Figures do not tell everything, but they are indicative of the futility and folly of war. The following figures, as recently issued, are strong arguments for peace: For a four-hour preparation at Saint Mihiel, in France, the United States paid twenty-five million dollars. Four hundred million dollars was the share of the United States in the battle of the Meuse-Argonne; and the last ten months of the late war cost the United States forty-four million dollars a day. These are peak figures, but they may seem cheap some day, if war costs continue to mount as they have in the last 150 years. Two years' participation in the last war and the natural expenses for a year following the armistice, cost the United States twenty-four billion dollars. This amount of money would have paid the costs of the American Revolution for a thousand years, as war costs were in those days.

This comparison reveals how great war costs have increased, and there is every reason to believe that they will continue to mount higher in the coming years. It is estimated that the World War cost the American people a million dollars an hour for the whole time of the participation of the United States in the struggle. To get some idea of what all the money was spent for, let us consider the items as accounted for in the battle of the Meuse-Argonne which cost America four hundred million dollars.

War Department records show that 2,417 big guns were used in the battle of the Meuse-Argonne, and the average cost of these guns was ten thousand dollars each. The peak of the artillery fire was reached at Saint Mihiel when a million rounds of ammunition was fired in four hours at a cost of twenty-five million dollars. In this same battle, 840 airplanes were used by Americans, each costing on an average of twenty-five thousand dollars. Another item of expense here was a hundred tons of "TNT" at sixteen thousand dollars a ton; 324 tanks were engaged in this battle, and a medium-sized tank costs twenty-five thousand dollars. At the Meuse-Argonne, one million two hundred thousand Americans were engaged, and this shows something of the cost of maintenance. The clothes, pack, and arms of each man cost the government seventy-five dollars per soldier, and it took thirty-six cents a day to feed each one of them. These figures do not include any expense for prisoners, and none for hospitals or other incidentals always present in battle.

During the last six months of the war the government provided each soldier with a new pair of socks once a month, new underwear every thirty-four days, new shoes every fifty-one days, and a new coat every seventy-nine days. All of which does not include the pay of the soldiers, which mounted into the hundreds of millions. At this time of the year when we are remembering that night of old when angels sang, "And on earth peace," we should take account of these things and set ourselves with a new zeal to the task of making that promise of a heavenly choir come true. He has no hands but our hands, no feet but ours, no lips but our lips, and we must do His work or it must wait for another generation, and we shall lose the high privilege that might be ours.

NOTES-PERSONALS

A Happy New Year to all THE CHRISTIAN SUN family. May 1928 be filled for each of you with those beautiful satisfactions of mind and heart and spirit which constitute real life.

Rev. W. T. Scott, who is to be graduated from the Yale Divinity School with the B. D. degree in February, spent Christmas with his relatives in Greensboro, N. C., and visited our new Church at Hopewell, Va. Bro. Scott is very much impressed with the promise of our work in that thriving new city.

President and Mrs. Alfred W. Hurst, of Palmer College, Albany, Mo., and President Hurst's parents, Rev. and Mrs. A. P. Hurst, spent the Christmas vacation in Elon College, guests of Prof. and Mrs. C. James Velie. Mrs. Velie is a sister to President Hurst. It was their first visit to Elon since the fire. They were delighted with the changes that have taken place here since their former visit in connection with the General Convention, which met in Burlington in 1922.

Dr. W. S. Alexander, pastor of the Elon College Church, and three students, Misses Graham Rowland and Jewell Truitt and Mr. Frank Alexander, attended the Detroit Student Volunteer Convention at Detroit, Mich., during the holidays. These conventions come once in four years and are attended by students from all parts of the United States, several thousand of them. It is fortunate for Elon that it could be represented by four delegates in this greatest of student meetings in the world.

President Harper is to attend the meeting of the Council Church Boards of Education, at Atlantic City, N. J., early in January, and as chairman of the Committee on Religious Education is to give a report on "Approaches Toward the Definition of Majors in Religious Education." He is also to give an address on "Bible and Religious Education in Colleges." On January 13th, at the Christian Unity Conference, Baltimore, Md., he is to give an address entitled "Christian Union and Christian Education."

The Burlington Township Sunday School Institute will be held in the First Baptist Church of Burlington January 11-12th. It is for all workers of all denominations in the county. The members of the faculty are D. W. Sims, Roy A. Burkhart, Rev. M. W. Buck and Rev. H. P. Wyrick. Mr. Sims is general secretary of the North Carolina Sunday School Association, and Mr. Burkhart is associate director of the department of young people's work of the International Council of Religious Education.

THE SUN's editor spent the Christmas vacation with friends and relatives in Eastern Virginia, where he is still resting at this time. His many friends will rejoice to know he has so far recovered from his recent illness at Elon that he could make this trip and will wish for him a real vacation and a complete and speedy recovery following his rest. Meanwhile, the associate editors will carry on the work of editing the paper, and are sure that they will have the indulgence of the readers of THE SUN.

Bro. M. J. W. White, Norfolk, Va., in renewing for THE CHRISTIAN SUN, says: "This renewal for the fiftieth time, or this is fifty years I have been a continuous subscriber to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and to me its rays shine brighter and brighter as the years come and go. I learned to read and love THE CHRISTIAN SUN first in my father's home when I was a teen-age lad. The paper was then published by Dr. W. B. Wellons, of Suffolk, Va." Here is hoping that good Bro. White may be spared many years, for he is yet a comparatively young man, to read and enjoy his Church paper, and that the paper may measure up to all the demands and delights of his increasing years. His loyalty and devotion to Church and paper are most comforting and commendable indeed.

Church members throughout the country are being asked, through the Commission on Evangelism of the Federal Council, to read a chapter a day of the gospel of Matthew during January, and of John in February. More than five hundred thousand copies of the gospels of Luke were purchased for such reading last year. Pastors, as well as the local and State Church federations and the religious press, recognizing the intensified interest which will result in the spiritual life of the Churches, are recommending this plan among their constituents. Several denominations have sent letters of endorsement to all their Churches. The American Bible Society, Astor Place, New York City, is co-operating by preparing special editions of more than a million 1-cent copies of the two gospels to be used.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN extends its sympathy to Deacon Thomas A. Jones and his family in the death of Mrs. Louise Jones Williams, wife of Col. George Williams, of the United States Army. Col. and Mrs. Williams and their three children were en route from Washington, D. C., to spend the Christmas season with Mrs. Williams' family in Norfolk. Stopping at a filling station near Quantico, Va., while attempting to cross the highway, Mrs. Williams was struck by another automobile and died that night in the Quantico Marine Hospital. One of her sons who was crossing the highway with her sustained a broken leg as a result of the accident. Mrs. Williams was buried in the Elmwood Cemetery, Norfolk, Va., both Dr. Staley and Bro. Hardcastle, of Suffolk, participating in the service. A full account of her life will appear later in THE CHRISTIAN SUN. Many Elon students will remember Mrs. Williams' brother, Mr. A. Lynton Jones, a former student of the college. Mrs. Williams is granddaughter of the late Col. Alexander Savage.

The Sunday School of First Christian Church held its anniversary service Sunday, January 1st, in its new annex. The services of the Sunday School and morning preaching hour were combined. Besides being the celebration of the organization of the Sunday School eight years ago, it was also the opening service of the new Sunday School building. The plan of the building is such as to permit of grading the school according to most approved system. Four hundred or more can be accommodated without crowding. The enrollment is now approaching two hundred, and the school has a fine orchestra of twenty pieces. The Church choir and orchestra furnished the music for the occasion. The program follows: overture, "The Poet's Dream," by the Sunday School orchestra; song, "Awaking Chorus"; song, "Bring Them In"; prayer, by Dr. Ryan; anthem, "Send Out Thy Light," by the Church choir; "Eight Years of Service," a review of the Sunday School, by Superintendent Kelley; song, "Forward"; "The Lesson," a short discussion, led by Dr. C. C. Ryan, introducing Mr. Hermon Eldredge; anthem, "Break Forth Into Joy," by the Church choir; address, "Opening Doors," Mr. Hermon Eldredge; Overture, "Magneta," by the Sunday School orchestra; song, "When Love Shines In"; Benediction; march, "Normal," by the Sunday School orchestra. The evening services of the Church were as usual. Mr. Hermon Eldredge filled the pulpit, using as his subject, "Light, Law, Love and Life." On Monday evening, Mr. Eldredge took for his subject, "Organizing for Service in the Church School." As briefly as possible the speaker outlined some of the things that should characterize the school, as spirituality, study, sociability and service. Then followed a study of the system of grading and the reasons for same. The evening's teaching was conducted as an open discussion. At this service, Dr. W. W. Staley, of Suffolk, Va., and Rev. E. B. White, of the Dendron charge, were present. Mr. Eldredge can speak with authority on the problems of the Sunday School, as he is not only the editor of Sunday School literature, but is a member of the International Sunday School Lessons Committee.

POUNDED.

The members of Union, New Lebanon, and Dendron Christian Churches met at the home of their pastor, Rev. E. B. White, this week and presented him with a large quantity of groceries, confectioneries, chickens, wood, and canned goods. The crowd was led by a member of the New Lebanon Church, dressed as a Santa Claus, and after spending some time at the parsonage left for their respective homes, wishing the pastor and his wife a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

JONESBORO FIELD.

We are very much pleased with the gracious reception given us in this our new field. We arrived here on November 2nd, and from that time expressions of welcome and ready co-operation have delighted and encouraged us daily. Objectives and plans for the year's work outlined and presented by the pastor have received favor, and, by some of the Churches, were rather enthusiastically adopted. Such responses always bring joy to the heart of a pastor, and are especially encouraging to us in view of the fact that we are back in the field of our childhood and youth. Somehow, it appeals to us as a privilege to cast our lot for a season with those of our surviving relatives and others with whom we grew up. God help us to reward the confidence and esteem of these people whom I have known and loved from the days of childhood.

Not for the purpose of adding to the envy of any brother pastor, but trusting that the grateful acknowledgment may be an advertisement for whatever it is worth, I must make mention of a so-called "pounding" by the Shallow Well people. If "pounding" is an institution, these people surely represent a most harmonious blend of the modernist (I mean liberal) and fundamentalist elements. As to the first, they did not "pound" us at all; they simply "loaded" us. Pounded! They don't like pound packages unless they can put several of them together. Why, even the turkey weighed ten pounds, and the turkey was only one item of a variety that would satisfy all pantry requirements. Now, as to the fundamentalist suggestion. Why, apparently nothing could turn them or stop them. It was unquestionably one of the roughest nights of the season—cold and pouring rain—but on and in they came, about twenty strong. To watch the lordly leadership of Deacon J. Walker Kelly at the head of that company would bring any buck private or busy preacher to "attention."

We are substantially blessed. We are grateful. They know we are. God bless them.

B. J. HOWARD.

AMERICA'S AMAZING EXPERIMENT.

BY REV. S. PARKES CADMAN, D. D.

President of the Federal Council of Churches in America.

Nation-wide prohibition in the United States is a matter of far-extended interest. I have traveled in nearly every State of the Union, in the Dominion of Canada, and in half a dozen countries of Europe since the eighteenth amendment was ratified. In all these widely separated regions, I found many who were indifferent to the League of Nations and the World Court; in none did I find any one who was even neutral about prohibition. For the wets of every nation, it is either a tragedy or a farce; a menace to freedom, the beginning of the end of democratic rule, an odious usurpation of personal right and liberty by a blind, bigoted, pharisaical puritanism. For the dries it is the moral triumph of the century, a bold, brave adventure registering marvelous advance in human affairs; a new era of commercial expansion, and of an accelerated moral and religious progress. Even had it done no more than wipe out that sink of non-social iniquities, the saloon, the experiment, we are told by the dries, and by not a few wets, would have been well worth while.

The enactment of all prohibition measures is based upon the right of the community to rank above the individual wherever the general welfare is at stake. As to whether social control of the drink traffic is either wise or expedient, there is much difference of opinion and an equal confusion of data. It cannot be too strongly stated that the so-called facts circulated by the wets are frequently highly colored, or only partially significant and very inconclusive. It must also be conceded that the publicity materials of the dries have often been compiled by inadequate methods, or upon questionable returns. Of course, the dries have the law upon their side. Nor can there be any serious debate about Sir William Osler's opinion that "nobody would be a whit the worse if all the liquor in the country were dumped in the Atlantic and all the tobacco in the Pacific." Many worthy citizens would probably experience some temporary discomfort, and a few might suffer actual privation. But within a couple of decades Americans as a whole would have gained beyond words in health of body, soul and circumstances. Prohibition, therefore, is lawful, sound and sensible; it forbids nothing necessary; it contradicts nothing reasonable. It is embedded in the Constitution of the republic, from which the most enthusiastic wet has not the faintest chance of dislodging it.

However, when a rumor reached London that the eighteenth amendment was doomed to failure in America, a millionaire liquor dealer at once ordered a rollicking celebration at his expense. The halls of a palatial and crowded club in the west end rang with the shouts of the gay revelers until dawn; champagne flowed in streams; and the joy of the bibulous was unconfined. I saw while journeying through England spacious posters prominently displayed which assured the native and the tourist that "Britons never, never shall be slaves" to the infamous tyrannies of prohibition. Drink's paid advocates are well aware that misleading headlines and juggled statistics are an effective means for knaves to twist the truth and make of it a trap for fools. They use them abundantly, backed by the tales of foreign travelers in America who have been horrified by the deceit and villainy of a nation cursed by enforced abstinence from liquor. The chief impression one gets from this very costly propaganda of the brewers is that prohibition here is mainly a crusade arranged by rant, cant and humbug, and engineered by a widespread organized hypocrisy.

Nevertheless, the growing conviction finds daily utterance, not only in Great Britain and Ireland, but in Germany, Sweden, Italy, France, and even Russia, that sooner or later, if not on moral, certainly on economic grounds, these nations will have to deal decisively and stringently with drink. It should also clearly be understood that the United States is conducting the most amazing experiment in the annals of legislation of this nature. For the first time in modern history our country is attempting to change the personal tastes and habits of millions of people. Let us make it unmistakably clear to lawless sellers and lawless buyers of intoxicants that the liquor traffic has been permanently outlawed in the United States as an enemy of the general well-being. Insist that Federal and State governments shall co-operate to end the organized resistance to the eighteenth amendment. It is demoralizing in the highest degree that law should fail through the connivance or treachery of those appointed to execute it.

I do not say that those who honestly believe this particular law interferes with the sacred rights of the citizen have no case. Nor do I insist to legalists that sumptuary legislation is in its proper place when embedded in constitutional doctrine. But I do say that here is a valiant attempt to rid this republic of a fearful menace. It has succeeded to the extent that the saloon is abolished, and assuredly no man with an anti-moronic brain wants the saloon restored. For this reason, if there were no other, and there are many others, prohibition deserves a more unanimous and cordial support.

Nor is this all. The Federal Council, of which I happen to be president, while not representing all the members of its own constituent Churches upon the issue of prohibition, does represent the vast majority of them. Its administrative committee heartily and unequivocally reaffirms the commitment of these Churches to national prohibition. They do not propose to allow the results for which their devoted agencies have labored during many decades to be thrown away at the bidding of criminal bootleggers, or of corrupted officials, or of politicians in search of place and pay. But drinking is a moral problem, and especially is it requisite that we should rededicate ourselves to the religious instruction of youth and adults which lies behind moral efficiency.

Those who know the history of temperance movements are aware that some form of prohibition has existed in America for three quarters of a century, indicating that after a prolonged experimental stage, national prohibition was established by a swift, clear registration of the popular will. In the last analysis, law depends for its support upon the public opinion which sustains it and the conscience of those who live under it. There can be no greater mistake than to suppose that any legislation can relieve us of the necessity for training our youth in habits of temperate living, self-control, and the practices of disinterested citizenships. To foster such habits and to cultivate such practices is the special and peculiar responsibility of the Churches—to be ignored only at the peril of the nation.

A TRIBUTE OF RESPECT.

I am under memory's mighty dominion tonight. I am its slave, yet my master is not altogether cruel. Once again it has exercised its subtle power in banishing time and space, and brings me to places which are not present and before persons who have passed. It carries me back nearly a dozen years at once and I stand before a man whose body is slightly bowed and face gently furrowed by age, but in whose eyes the fires of faith and friendship are reflected. He is my pastor. I reverence him. He touches me on the arm and says, "Now that you are licensed to preach, I want you to begin the work. I shall expect you to preach in my stead next Sunday." The day comes. He is there with me. He explains my presence in the pulpit. He declares a hopeful interest in me. He prays for me. I stand before him and his congregation and try to represent the cause closest and dearest to his heart. My effort, soon over, is followed by the closing hymn and the benediction. He takes me by the hand and says, "It was a good talk; I enjoyed it. God bless you."

Now I am with him again, weeks after, and miles away from the meeting of a moment ago. He says, "I have a gift—a little leather satchel—for you. I know how hard it is for a young minister to get started. This will help you a little." I call at his home and receive the gift and the blessings of the giver.

On through the years memory, my master, hastens with me. Months and miles are magically banished, and I am given a few moments here and there with my former pastor (and ever my friend) for a warm handclasp and words of counsel. I am reading letters and telegrams which were destroyed long ago. We come to a last meeting in the flesh. This time I look down into the face of my friend, brother and former pastor; for he is lying where, in a few hours, he is to close his eyes in that dreamless sleep. This time I take the weak but welcome hand. In faint, but audible words, he pronounces his blessings upon me for the last time. It is so real. Only God knows how much it means to me. I am speechless. I don't want to leave the place—it is "holy ground." But I am transferred to another place three days away. It is by the open grave. Such an immense crowd of sad people! God bless them; they are company to me. The body of my former pastor is gently laid to rest. I never knew till now how much I loved him.

Jonesboro, N. C.

B. J. HOWARD.

BIRMINGHAM LETTER.

I feel that it will be of interest to many SUN readers to know that we are now planning for a meeting of the heads of the Mission Boards of the Congregational and Christian Churches in Birmingham early in January. The purpose of this meeting is to take the situation in hand and begin a definite work toward the organization of a Church here, having as its membership the members of the Congregational and the Christian Churches in the city.

I have made the above explanation in order that I may impress upon every reader the great importance of sending to us at an early date the names and addresses of any person in Birmingham whom you know and who would probably be interested in the organization of a Church here. As I reported in my last letter, the Congregational Church has, according to a recent religious census, fifty members in Birmingham. I am sure there are more Congregationalists here from the sentiment of a letter received today from the assistant superintendent of the work of that Church. They are co-operating very admirably in the work, and I am very anxious that we show up well in interest and membership. There is one, and only one, way we can do it: every one who knows somebody who may be interested, send that name and address. Let us not put this matter off longer. You may be waiting to see what is going to happen before you take any part. The outcome will be much more pleasant and commendable if we all do our part now.

I should like to have a complete list of the members of our Church to present to the committee when it meets here in January. I can do it if you help me. Please!

J. H. DOLLAR.

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITO

J. O. ATKINSON, Elon College, N. C.

Contributing Editors

W. W. STALEY

W. A. HARPER

R. C. HELFENSTEIN

S. C. HARRELL

PRINCIPLES OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

- (1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
- (2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
- (3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of Church membership.
- (5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

THE NEW YEAR.

"New" is an attractive word, whether it applies to something small or something great. The New Year involves all that is possible for three hundred and sixty-five days. That is the "new" that makes people say to one another "A Happy New Year." That itself is a fine introduction and implies a good feeling among people. If that spirit could be kept up the whole year through, it would improve human relations and save many a headache. There is more in the New Year than the year itself.

It furnishes new opportunities for improvement in character and service. Life is continuous and there is no place to stop until the end. Every year should be the best unless incapacity from disease or accident puts an end to activity. Voluntary retirement from business or service is surrender to failure. The desire on the part of business men to accumulate enough to retire and live upon what has been earned is false in all of its relations. Few men live any length of time after such retirement. The hardest thing to do is to do nothing; the easiest thing in the world is regular work. Never pity the working man; always pity the idle man. When a clock stops, it is useless. The world is full of opportunities for the people of experience. The older people are, the more useful they ought to be. The new furnishes opportunities for old people as well as for young people. This is especially true in the Church and in social life. One of the most beautiful things is the Christian influence of old members of the Church. It goes without saying that the New Year opens a wide door of opportunity to the young. The year is like those circular doors that open and shut as you enter or leave the room. They never close. It is so with the years. Time has no closed door, and the New Year simply opens into new opportunities for serving God and serving mankind.

The New Year imposes new obligations upon men. The world is progressive. There is no standstill in the earth nor what is upon it. It turns on its axis and it makes its circuit. The streams continue to run, the tides to ebb and flow, and man is not an exception. The Church grows. The demands upon it increase. Christians have more to do this year than last year—to increase their attendance, their contributions, their service, their influence, their personal testimony, and their reading and prayers. Printing costs more than ever before, and this imposes a new obligation upon Church members to subscribe for their Church paper—THE CHRISTIAN SUN. There is a double need—you need THE CHRISTIAN SUN and THE CHRISTIAN SUN needs your two dollars. The New Year implies improvement in all things, and all are under this new obligation to improve self and service. The farmer who succeeds improves his farm and his crops. In the field of religion, self is the soil and service is the crop. Harvest tells the tale. All farmers are proud of a good crop: and all Christians are full of joy when they are conscious that they grow in grace and can see the fruit of their labors in the Church. Nothing is so satisfactory as success, and success always crowns obligations well fulfilled. This New Year imposes upon us the obligation to control our speech, to pay our debts, to love our neighbors, to be more liberal in our judgment of others, to be prompter and more liberal in Church contributions, and to be in our place at Sunday School and Church.

W. W. S.

TAKING INVENTORY IN THE CHURCH.

If one steps into an up-to-date mercantile establishment in these days following the holiday rush, the entire force will be found busily engaged in taking an inventory. The merchant must know just what he has in stock, what he needs to purchase, and to know just what his customers have bought, that he may be in a position to anticipate their future demands. One wonders how many Churches will take an inventory at the beginning of this calendar year. Such an appraisal of the needs and resources of the Church would furnish valuable information.

How many pastors and Church officials really know their Churches? A Church roll is one of the most interesting documents in the world to one who is vitally interested in the Church. To carefully go over a Church roll will always reveal a great many things that need to be done. Let us note some of the things that are liable to be brought to light. It will generally be found that there are a number of people on the roll who were at one time active in the work of the Church, but advancing age or sickness has forced them to drop out of active service. Many times such members are gradually forgotten. They should be receiving the definite ministrations of the Church. An occasional prayer-meeting in the home, or to have the pastor and deacons once a year to take the Communion into the home would be a service of infinite worth.

Then there are those who have become careless about attending to their obligations to the Church. Sometimes a prolonged sickness has broken into the habits of Church attendance; or a period of time has been spent in living out of the reach of the Church, but now they have moved back but the intimate ties have suffered. An effort to rekindle interest and activity is often productive of untold good. A Church worker frequently finds such people that could have been saved to the Church by a little effort put forth at the right time.

It is a mighty good plan at the beginning of the year to study the list of those who have joined the Church within the past twelve months to see just how completely they have been absorbed into the activities of the Church. Are these new members enlisted in the work of the Sunday School, and are they identified with the various auxiliaries of the Church through which they ought to be serving? To add a name to the roll is not always to add a member to the service of the Church.

There can be no intelligent planning for the future until the achievements of the past have been taken into account, and until the resources available have been carefully appraised. We have been content far too often to accept what comes to our Churches, and have failed to plan for the reaching of those who ought to be serving with us. The things we have been considering are merely suggestive. They by no means exhaust the possibilities. No two Churches are exactly alike, and there can be no ready-made plans for your Church. It is for each Church to see what needs to be done within its borders. But, by all means, let there be an adequate and systematic planning of the work.

S. C. H.

OUR COLLEGE PERIOD.

One year of the benevolence program of the Southern Christian Convention closed on December 31st, and with the beginning of the new year and during the months of January and February we enter for a second time upon "Our College Period."

During these two months our Churches are to be called upon to contribute the quota of them by the Southern Christian Convention for the support of Bethlehem and Elon Colleges, the two institutions fostered and promoted by the Southern Christian Convention. Last year the offering for our colleges was disappointing, because the Churches were not accustomed to it and the campaign was conducted for both colleges from a central office.

Therefore, this year the Conferences in Georgia and Alabama will be the direct responsibility of Bethlehem College, with President Beougher in charge of the promotional work. The Conferences in North Carolina and Virginia will be under the promotional direction of President Harper, of Elon College. The offerings, however, in both sections will be apportioned to the two colleges on a basis of 20 per cent to Bethlehem and 80 per cent to Elon as voted by the Southern Christian Convention.

It is hoped that every Church of the Southern Convention will raise its full quota of the benevolence budget so that no campaign of personal solicitation after the college period will be necessary. However, in case the Churches do not contribute through their free-will offerings during the regular college period the amount necessary to reach the total of $47,000 for the two colleges, the colleges are authorized by action of the budget commission "to solicit from the constituencies of the local Churches of the various Conferences to secure the balance due their askings after the regular department offerings have been raised; the minimum individual solicitation to be $25."

Persons who have made pledges to Bethlehem College or to Elon College may pay these pledges to the respective institution and their payments will be credited on the budget of the Southern Convention and the quota of their local Church. This provision is also in accordance with the action of the Southern Christian Convention. Further than the payment of these pledges to the respective college, it is hoped that no Church or individual will designate gifts for a particular college. The desire is to put the entire Convention behind the educational enterprise of the Church as represented by both colleges.

During the two months' regular college period the two presidents in charge of the promotional work in their separate territories will not be expected to undertake to solicit individuals other than to collect pledges! nor will they visit Churches unless they are invited, but, whenever a Church invites the promotional agent to come and help in the raising of its quota or to send help, help will be forthcoming immediately.

It is earnestly desired that the Churches will make liberal and generous response to the call of the colleges for financial assistance during the regular college period. The colleges not only need the money, but the Churches need this opportunity to express their confidence in these institutions and the renewal of their adherence to Christian education.

W. A. H.

THE BIBLE.

By HON. E. S. W. DAMERON.

An Appreciation of the Book of Books.

(An address delivered before Elon College students, December 15, 1927.)

I feel highly complimented that your committee placed me on your program this evening, but confess to some embarrassment to have assigned to me the grandest theme that ever engaged the mind and thought of mortal man. I can only wish that I had the eloquence, piety and spiritual insight to deliver to you a discussion worthy of my subject. For man there could be no more important subject than the communications and revelations made to him from his God; and such is the marvelous collection of books we call the Bible. Whether we consider its age, or its freshness, or its divine authorship, or its originality, or its instructiveness, or its literary excellence, or its influence, or its consolations—it is alike marvelous; so marvelous indeed, that it is not possible for human faculties to make a full survey of it. Even the great Apostle to the Gentiles, with all his inspired spiritual vision, found himself gazing into profundities at which he could do no more than exclaim: "Oh! the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and the knowledge of God."

I. Its Age.

The Bible is the oldest and at the same time the newest and freshest of books. A large part of it has come down to us from remotest antiquity and antedates all other writings of the world, containing a journal of events which transpired centuries before the pyramids rose in majestic grandeur upon the scene of the oldest civilization of secular history. Long before Cadmus introduced letters into Greece, the Book of Job existed; and the five books of Moses were read in holy assemblies and David and Solomon sang their sacred songs and uttered their prophecies many decades before Homer composed the "Illiad" or Lycurgus gave his laws to the Lacedaemonians. The last of the prophets had long since ended his message when Socrates, Plato, and Aristotle propounded their philosophies; and when the first elements of human society were but forming in the womb of time, the Bible was there; and when the mudsills and foundations of all this world's goodness and greatness were laid, the Bible was there, and there as the chief cornerstone upon which has been bottomed the best of the fabric we call civilization.

Though hoard with age, the Bible has come down to us from such remote antiquity not as a mere lifeless fossil, but as a present vital force. Age has only served to impart new life and vigor to it, and it has grown fresher and more inspiring with the lapse of the ages and has gained increased strength with every new trial. It has witnessed the births and deaths of a hundred mighty nations, seen scores of empires rise, flourish and fall; but, withal, it still lives victorious over the wrecks of time, with ever-increasing power and influence, in all nations and in all languages; the most precious legacy of departed ages, the most glorious hope of future generations, the choicest possession of the human race. Though the object of many a concerted scheme throughout the years to blot it from the face of the earth, "it still holds its place as the most uncorrupt and authentic of histories, the most august and controlling of records, the most universal, venerable and powerful of books," reflecting in its every page the majesty of the God whom it reveals.

II. Its Divine Authorship.

The sacred Scriptures are of and by themselves sufficient proof that God is their real Author. It is utterly impossible to give a reasonable account of their origin without ascribing to them the divine authorship which they claim. Strange as it may seem that the infinite God should condescend to put His great thoughts into the poor, cumbersome language of mortals, such, we may be sure, is the glorious fact. Important portions of the Bible are made up of the very words of God, "articulated by Himself in the hearing of men commissioned to declare them"; and one chapter embodying the moral essence of all the rest was engraven by the very finger of God upon the tables of rock in the alphabetic signs employed by men, and handed down to Moses upon the sacred mount. Other parts are the communications of celestial messengers sent directly from the throne of heaven to declare God's will and purposes to men; and a still larger portion was taken down as it fell from the lips of one who "spake as never man spake" and in whom the Eternal God had incarnated Himself. Even those parts of the sacred story which were written by men were produced by special "motion and illumination of the Holy Ghost." So that every leaf of it carries the impress and the sunlight of a higher sphere, and every page of it bears the imprimatur of the great God Himself. Well and truly, therefore, do we call the Bible the Word of God.

III. Its Originality.

The Bible is as original as it is instructive. It depends upon no discoveries of man and leans upon no other books. "It opens arcana of which no earthly power ever dreamed"; and on all the great questions of theology, life, death and futurity it speaks with a familiarity and a confident assurance that satisfy our minds and hearts as nothing else can do. What it touches, it treats with a master hand; and "in knowledge, wisdom and real value it far exceeds all human science, literature and tradition."

In spite of all the poisoned shafts of so-called higher criticism, the account of creation given by Moses is the most satisfactory ever recorded. There is nothing so magnificent and yet so simple in all the historians, philosophers and literary masters of all the ages. The books of Zoroaster, the records of Phoenicia and Egypt, the dialogues of Plato and Lucian, and the annals of China, the famous works of Plutarch, the Shastras of India, the Edda of Scandinavia, and all the many other recorded schemes, theories and fables that have ever been given "in explanation of the earth's primal history" suffer fatally in comparison with our own Bible version. "Nor have all the proud discoveries of modern geology brought forward anything to convict Moses of a false cosmogony." On the contrary, the truth of the Mosaic record is engraved upon the very rocks forever. Professor James Dwight Dana, whose researches into geology made both him and Yale University famous, says in this connection: "The grand old Book of God still stands; and this old earth, the more its leaves are turned and pondered, the more will it sustain and illustrate the sacred word."

During the last four hundred years the spirit of philosophic inquiry has ranged the universe, searched heaven, earth and sea, knocked at every door, peered into every recess, consulted every oracle of nature, and "gathered trophies of power and treasures of wisdom, at which the world has been amazed," but in all these scholarly investigations there has not come to light a single truth to contradict the holy Scriptures as properly interpreted.

IV. Its Literary Excellence.

Tested by the recognized standards of literary beauty and excellence, "the Bible is a casket of jewelry of the richest hues and the most exquisite workmanship," no matter in what department of rhetoric the test is applied. Whether it be history of prophecy, the Old Testament or the New, narrative or description, poetry or prose, the same matchless characteristics are to be seen. "Moses is as pure and simple as Adam and Eve, and yet as majestic and grand as the great creation he describes." The drama of Job is without parallel in all literature—a drama of facts in which heaven and earth, with all their wonderful interpenetrations, are set out in their relations with a suffering saint on his couch, in a manner far more masterful and complete than even the genius of a Shakespeare could conceive. Under the magic spell of David's muse we pass through varied scenes of beauty and grandeur, verdant pastures and tranquil glens, still waters and roaring floods, dismal swamps and silent wildernesses, forests crashing with the lightnings of God, the smoke, din and fury of battle, and the shoutings of glad multitudes, by dells of lonely sorrow and along the resplendent starry archways of the sky, until finally we take our places in "a temple as high as heaven and as wide as space," with all objects of creation around us, each with its hymn of grateful joy, blending in one sublime organ-harmony and symphony of adoration and praise to the Supreme Architect of the universe. Isaiah rises upon us like some mighty orb of song, "whose rays are streaming minstrelies," destined to thrill the hearts of men while earth and time endure. Then come the evangelists with their simple, winsome story of Jesus, and St. Paul, the first and greatest missionary of Christendom, with his superb epistles and orations, and John with his loving letters and apocalyptic visions; so that, throughout the Book, from the appropriate first words, "In the beginning," on to the last "Amen," abound variety, beauty, pathos, dignity, sweetness, magnificence, and glory such as are contained in no other literary composition.

Here are the sublimest heights and the profoundest depths: "From the worm that grovels in the dust to the leviathan that wallows in the foaming deep; from the hyssop on the wall to the towering cedars of Lebanon and the healing trees which shade life's eternal river; from the pearls trickling from the mountain rock to the wild waters of the deluge"; from the glow-worm under the thorn to the meridian sun in the heavens, and the supreme Father of lights, "with whom there is neither variableness nor shadow of turning"; from the lone, way-worn pilgrim to the gathering multitude which no man can number; from the deep and never-ending sorrows and blood-curdling wails of the damned to the seraphic visions and raptures of the blest.

Some have called the Bible dull and uninteresting, and thus have they only advertised their own ignorance and lack of moral sense and taste. In real attractiveness, there is no classic in all the realms of literature equal to it—no historian or law-giver like Moses, no singer like David, no orator like Paul, no character like Jesus, and no revelation of God or nature such as it contains. It is more than a classic; it is the Word of Life.

V. Its Influence.

As to the influence of the Holy Scriptures, earth affords no standard by which we may measure or

(Continued on Page 8.)

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

Golden weddings are so rare and so beautiful that I will give a copy, first, of the following invitation: "1877—1927. Mr. and Mrs. Apollos B. Jarvis at home in honor of the fiftieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Eley, on Saturday evening, December the seventeenth, from eight to eleven o'clock. 110 East Thirtieth Street, Norfolk, Va."

The letters on this invitation card were in gold, and I could not deny myself the privilege of enjoying those golden hours in that Christian home. The house was bright with electric lights. It was crowded with kinsfolk and friends. The tables in one room were loaded with presents, many of them decorated in gold. Gold coins of various denominations made the cards to which they were fastened look like generous hearts had prompted the gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Eley, their two daughters, Hettie Jarvis and Minnie Dixon, and Mr. Jarvis (Mr. Dixon being on a business trip in the West) stood in the receiving line, while a throng of friends passed by and extended their hands and expressed congratulations. It was a happy procession and a joyful occasion.

Alvin Eley, a nephew of Mr. Eley and a noted singer, sang some appropriate pieces, accompanied by a fine pianist, whose name I did not get; and a young lady whose name, I think, was Miss Rena Moseley, gave fine violin solos, accompanied by Mrs. Alfred Bowen, of Suffolk.

Refreshments were served to all the guests and jovial conversation filled the rooms with tokens of good will and appreciation. Three persons were there who were at the marriage fifty years before. W. H. Andrews and Mrs. S. J. Carr waited on them when they were married, and Mrs. Bessie Ballard was present at that time. They enjoyed this occasion as much as that marriage occasion. And the bride and groom did not look like they were more than fifty at this golden wedding; but the presumption is that they are more than fifty. Only one other minister was present, their pastor, Dr. L. E. Smith, of the Christian Temple. The Eley family has been so faithful and so prominent in the Christian Church for fifty years, even before the Memorial Temple was opened in Norfolk, that this golden wedding was a regular jubilee in the work of the Master. A golden wedding is a rebuke to modern looseness in marriage, and a good example for those that desire to enjoy a long married life.

There are fourteen marriage anniversaries, and I give them and the gifts that go with them: (1) cotton, (2) paper, (3) leather, (5) wooden, (7) woolen, (10) tin, (12) silk and fine linen, (15) crystal, (20) china, (25) silver, (30) pearl, (40) ruby, (50) golden, (75) diamond. The wish of that large group of friends who enjoyed this golden wedding is that the remainder of their married life will be as happy as this 17th of December, 1927.

W. W. STALEY.

ELON LETTER.

The "Day of Prayer" for the colleges of the Christian Church is January 15, 1928. For many years now the Christian Church and other Churches have been designating a certain Sunday in January as a "Day of Prayer" for colleges. It is a beautiful custom and a benefit and inspiration to the colleges.

Miss Lucy M. Eldredge, of our General Board of Christian Education, has prepared a special program for this day in our denomination, and copies of it may be had in any quantity by addressing her at the C. P. A. Building, Dayton, Ohio. I hope that many readers of this Elon Letter will write Miss Eldredge at once for this program. We, of the South, are particularly, on this day of prayer, concerned for our two institutions, Bethlehem and Elon. It is fortunate, I think, that this day falls during the college period for our Southern Convention, the time when our people are asked to give for the support of these two institutions. There is no surer means of securing adequate financial support for these colleges than having our Churches, in public assembly, join in prayer for their usefulness.

In this day of large attendance in colleges it is important that the spiritual resources of these institutions be conserved and harnessed to the work of the kingdom. Prayer for our colleges will work mightily in this direction. I well remember two outstanding instances of prayer for Elon that were an inspiration and led to victory.

The first of these occurred in August, 1917. We were within three weeks of the opening of the college, and we lacked more than 100 students of reaching our enrollment for that year. I felt impressed to address a letter to our ministers and a select group of praying men and women of the laity, requesting that they pray earnestly for the college, that it might have a full student body. The response was beautiful on the part of the Church. Letters came to me from dozens of our faithful ones, ministers and laymen, saying how glad they were to be able to join in this period of intercession for Elon. The result was, as the catalogue will show, that we were forced to take more than 400 students that year.

The second instance grew out of our fire on January 18, 1923. This was on Thursday. It was a dark day in the history of our institution. Telegrams poured in from various sections of the country from our alumni and friends to stouten our hearts. On Friday following I sent a telegram to every pastor in the Southern Christian Convention urging that Sunday be made the day of prayer for the college in our several pulpits. Here again the response was beautiful, and on Wednesday following (the 24th of January), when the board of trustees met in extraordinary session to meet the crisis which had been precipitated, they projected the present building program and resolved also to increase the endowment of the college in connection with the rebuilding plan.

So again I call upon our people to pray earnestly for our colleges on January 15th, that God may direct the minds and hearts of the people in such a way that the benevolence budget so essential to their life and continued service may be generously and gladly given. I call upon our people to pray for this offering, because prayer is fundamental in every spiritual undertaking.

W. A. HARPER.

BETHLEHEM LETTER.

A message for the New Year.

Outwardly the standards of life are constantly changing, but basically they never change. The facts and forces which made for success in the past are just as absolutely necessary today as they have been in the past. Real success in life is not possible without real work.

The successful men in your community, who may now be men of leisure, have achieved their success and leisure through the hardest kind of work. Success in this world has never been possible without hard work, and never will be. That is a fundamental fact, and our changing outward life leaves it unchanged.

Many people seem to think that thrift and saving have been discarded. Thriving without thrift has never been possible in all history, and never will be. Success has always been founded upon thrift, and thrift ever means self-denial. To win life's greatest prizes we must deny ourselves the smaller luxuries of life. The life of the successful man is one of self-denial.

Thrift is industry, and the savings are the accumulated results of that industry. The essentials of a real successful life are based upon honesty, and that not as the best of policy, but as an eternal principle. There is too much glorification of the man who attains to sudden wealth, apparently without either effort, thrift, or ordinary honesty, but substantial wealth had enduring success are built upon honesty.

Those who have made a real success of life have conscientiously observed at least three great cardinal rules: work, thrift, honesty. These rules combine into one great rule of life which has been proven beyond doubt, and has stood the test of the centuries.

You see the success of the merchant, lawyer, inventor, teacher, preacher, probably envy them, for the easy time they are having in their declining year. But you do not see the ceaseless days and nights of hard study, the heart-breaking grind that put him where he seems to be; or the merchant's terrific struggle gone through to enjoy his leisure, and so in like manner with all the others in their respective class. We see the rewards, but too often we do not see the work, thrift, and honesty which made those rewards possible.

Some overconfident psychologist would have us believe that success is to be pulled out of the air by some strange manner of concentration. But the old adage still rings true: "There is no royal road to success." It takes work, work, work! The measure of success is governed largely by how that work is done. If it is done efficiently—no waste motions, no backtracking—the highest success will come.

If every college would offer a course in efficiency as one of the studies in the senior year, I believe the graduates would have their chances in life increased by 50 per cent. Crowd your life full of what is worth while throughout the year, for the priceless hours are all your very own. It will mean more success, more life, more joy.

Wadley, Ala.

S. L. BEOUGHIER.

CHURCH UNITY.

By REV. L. E. SMITH, D. D.

President Southern Christian Convention.

For the past decade—yea, verily, for the past century—our particular Church has been talking and preaching "Church Unity." Many of our leaders have had visions of the day when the Churches of Christ in the earth would be one—one in hope, one in faith, one in charity, and one in practice. And they have dedicated their best to the realization of this end. The question of Church unity is to the front today; to the front in a more insistent and a more vital way than it has ever been before.

Many of the present existing denominations are talking "unity." They, as we, have been talking for a long, long time, and will in all probability continue to talk; but so far as the Christian Church is concerned, we have talked about all we can, until we act. The Congregational Church has called us on our "text" and challenged us to put into practice our own sermons. Have we preached the "gospel" of Church unity? Was our preaching of God? Did we expect it to bear fruit? When the harvest presents itself shall we, by the grace of God, enter into that harvest, or shall we by the narrow hand of strategy strive to reach back through the years and reclaim the seed that we have sown for more than a century?

On the last day of January next, the Commissions on Christian Unity, representing the Congregational and Christian Churches, will meet in New York City for the final drafting of our report to our respective denominations.

Now, when you face the question of Church unity, the question of bringing two or more religious bodies, who have worked and worshiped separately from generation to generation, into a practical spiritual and organic oneness, there are certain things that are essential and necessary.

1. An open mind. A mind ready and anxious to receive all the facts, consider them honestly, fairly and squarely, weigh them rightly and judge them discreetly.

2. A willing spirit. Willing to face the fact, that we are all different, and thank the Lord that we are. He made us so. We do not agree in matters of dress, social proprieties, business proclivities, or political expediencies, and yet we exist as a social and political solidarity and speak as one nation. Why, then, should we be expected to agree absolutely in matters of religion before we can speak to the world as a Church?

3. A sacrificial heart. Willing to pay the price. No man yet has ever found the peace of God and the fellowship of Christ by standing on what he had and what he had done; he had to pay the price of that peace and that fellowship. And, likewise, no two denominations can come into spiritual accord and unanimity without paying the price for that achievement.

Let no one deceive himself, however, for the realized blessings from such an adventure will be far in excess of the purchase price. Think, if you will, of the broadening of our sympathies, the widening of our fellowship, the increasing of our power, and the deepening of joy, both in our hearts and in the heart of God Himself.

Norfolk, Va.

OBLIGATION TO THE FEDERAL COUNCIL.

By F. G. COFFIN, A. M., D. D.,

Chairman Commission of Christian Unity.

The war brought a new word into general use. What it designates has been in the world since before history was written and seen in many areas. It carries a peculiar stigma and puts the one to whom it is attached under scorn as though it did not belong in the list of ordinary faults. That word is "slacker." It represents an unconscionable evasion of what one ought to do. The obligation to do the thing is presupposed, inherent and beyond all possibility of being an elective. It is something which, in the nature of the case, one with certain relations just ought to do.

All obligations are not regulated by contracts of mutual agreement between the parties concerned and specified in papers "signed, sealed and attested." They are unavoidably implied and binding in the nature of things. This is found in the solution between parents and children. Some of these obligations exist even when one party does not care to have them fulfilled, as in the case of foreign missions or when one party is opposed to their fulfillment as in the case of the drunkard when society is trying to make him a sober man.

When we become a part of an organization, the obligation for the welfare of that organization is inherently ours. When we devote ourselves to certain ideas and principles, the promotion of institutions which embrace these has an undeniable claim upon our support. It is almost always true that the work of such organizations can be made successful only when each one upon whom such an obligation rests discharges his full duty.

Christians generally need a quickened consciousness of obligation for good works. They should be alert, anxious and quick to respond to such duties. A way of evasion is easily found if it is being sought. There are always the "duties at home," "rumors by those who oppose," "inability to do much," etc. There is always a seemingly plausible justification if one prefers to "slack."

The Christian Church has obligations of a most binding character to the Federal Council. However, they may seem to a few they are morally inescapable. They are written into the nature of things. The Christian Church is a part of the kingdom of God. The whole is greater than any of its parts. The theories maintained during our whole history would be outraged if we repudiate such obligations now. We can no longer be known by our words. Our deeds alone can speak for us. These obligations come from several considerations:

1. Being an organization to make effective the will of Christ among men, there belongs to us the helping of every good possible. By the combined efforts of all, God will save the world and build everywhere a new order of society. Every good cause needs all of its friends. Men should love opportunities to do good. The larger such opportunities are, the greater delight should they awaken in those to whom they come. Their privilege is enhanced when they enable a Church to do with others what would ever have to remain an impossibility without such mutual association. It's the accomplishing of the task that counts, not the location of the credit. It is also a fact that in the interest of their own spiritual enlargement Christians should do something from which they do not expect returns to themselves or their organization. Religion must have centrifugal quality.

2. The obligation of brotherhood expressed in a common, universal task. A load which is too great for another, or one which can be better borne by our aid, is more than a challenge; it is an irresistible attraction for our efforts. Whether we have had anything to do in creating it is of no consequence. Whatever we can do to help bear it matters immensely. Common tasks are universal tasks. From them there is no exemption. They are not selected. Toward them there may be two attitudes—slacking, or doing them. From the human side, the world has no need surpassing that of brotherhood in both spirit and action.

3. The obligation for the Christian Church to render service in all fields. Without such a centralizing agency as the Federal Council, we would have to think impotently and uselessly about much that the Lord wants done and has commanded us to do. There is so much which needs to be done on a gigantic scale to make the program of Christ effective in our day of modern social complications that no one denomination can do, and if all attempted it independently it would further complicate the whole situation. The Federal Council, which is twenty-nine denominations working together, can do what would have to remain undone without such an organization. With its maintenance of central offices at strategic territorial centers—New York, Washington and Chicago—and its numerous commissions and committees constantly at work, a competent program can be devised and promoted throughout this country and the world. The field which it is occupying is one which is much in need of occupancy and one which would be entirely neglected but for this co-operative agency. Its departments of research, social service, race relations, international justice and good will, relations with religious bodies in Europe, mercy and relief, relations with the Eastern Churches, financial and fiduciary matters, army and navy chaplains, council of the religious press are operating in fields almost untouched by other agencies.

There are many other aspects in which the council aids the organizations, promoting them in a most effective way. The council has shown an excellent spirit in promoting every phase of co-operative Christianity, whether under its own or other auspices. Its contribution to the enrichment of the fellowship spirit of all Christendom has been vast. It has direct contact with federated States, municipalities and many organizations. It keeps the denominations in step, strengthens morals and fuses strength. On all moral questions affecting the government at Washington, its voice has a wholesome influence and is recognized as competent to speak for Protestant Christianity. It proceeds with carefulness, and yet is fearless. It does not hesitate to incur criticism when its cause is just. It awakens Christian America to dangers and responsibilities which might be overlooked. Its general meetings are held quadrennially; its executive committee meetings, annually; its administrative committee meetings, monthly, and its staff meetings as frequently as there is need.

The council now stands upon its record, and not upon its theories. Its work in reform, improvement of social, industrial, racial and international relations; its effort to awaken the conscience of the world already has such results to its credit as to make its value unquestionable.

4. The obligation because of results already attained has been implied in the preceding paragraph. Its program is commendable, but results alone speak with appeal. The Church needs a clear voice today to speak for it in industry, temperance, law enforcement, war, interracial relations, etc. This it is getting at Washington and indirectly at the courts of the world through the council. One sure evidence of the council's value is to be found in the sources of opposition to it. If it were not a formidable enemy to them, the war promoters, scoundrels, industrial tyrants, and race hatred advocates would not be opposing the council. When we compare the present with the situation of former years when there was no Federal Council, it is easily discerned that it has lent steadiness and aggressiveness to the Church, provided a concert and effectiveness of movement in education, missions, periodicals, denominational moderators and denominational agencies, evangelism, social service, moral reforms, etc. At the Stockholm conference its contribution to co-operative Christianity was evidenced by the fact that it had already instituted and was operating most of the plans which European groups were looking forward to.

5. An added obligation to respond to the support of the council just now comes from the fact that it is being overlooked and crowded out by strenuous denominational programs. Quite every denomination is having the problem of keeping up the pace established by its recent promotional program. Enlarged programs were inaugurated from forward movement results. The income from these sources stopped, but the programs were on. Tremendous overhead pressure has been necessary to maintain work so established. As a result, all co-operative work has had difficulty in securing a hearing. Many enterprises of this kind would have had to close as a result had it not been for large individual donations. Then there is among many an increasing neglect of responsibilities due to minds already filled with other concerns, many of which are secular. It is doubtful if a more destructive thing could happen to present-day Christianity than for its interde-

(Continued on Page 11.)

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Field Secretary.

OUR EDUCATIONAL OFFERING.

Elon College is the child of the Southern Christian Convention, and the Convention is justly proud of her offspring. Elon is peculiarly and sacredly our own college. She was begotten by the Convention and born of the labors and sacrifices and prayers of our people, many of whom have finished their course and are now wearing their crown of righteousness beyond the "sunset and evening star" where "the toils of the road seem nothing since they have reached the end of the way." Born of love and loyalty and devotion, Elon is ours today, and inspired by the faith and sacrifice of the fathers and mothers who have made this institution possible, we will be true and loyal through the coming years.

But the Southern Christian Convention, as it is today, is quite largely the product of Elon College. The Convention is not the same now that it was when Elon College came into being, but a larger, finer and more progressive Convention. Not one star in the crown of the men and women who composed the Convention before the day of the college would we erase or even dim in making this assertion, but rather would we cause every star and every crown to shine a little brighter by what we have in mind to say here. And in making the claim to a finer and a better Convention now than before Elon College was established is not only a tribute to the worthy part this institution has played in making our Convention what it has come to be, but a tribute to those who have labored to make possible the heritage that is ours today. The Convention gave birth to the college, and the college rebirth to the Convention.

It may then be said that the Convention and the college are one. They are united. They are inseparable. The one cannot do without the other. The progress of one is the progress of the other. The failure of the one means the failure of the other. They must rise or fall together. They must grow stronger or weaker together. They must function together or they will not be able to function properly at all. "The hand cannot say to the foot, I have no need of thee."

Then, too, we must not overlook the younger child of the Convention—Bethlehem College. Although this younger and smaller college has been in existence only a short while, the fact should be recognized that in Bethlehem we have an institution that is already rendering a very helpful service, and that Bethlehem is also a very fine feeder for Elon. Thus, Bethlehem is sharing in the remaking of the Convention.

In view of these things, we should all, as pastors and laymen, keep in mind the opportunity that is ours and the responsibility that is upon us as we enter the season designated by the Convention as the schools and colleges period of our Convention year, this period being January and February. It is during this time that an offering is asked from every Church in the Convention for our colleges. And certainly every one should feel called upon not only to do something for this most worthy and needy cause, but something big and fine and Christ-like. The cause and the call are such as to make it obligatory and imperative that we do our utmost in this direction at this time. If need be, let us make a real sacrifice, that the offering shall be commensurate with the needs of the hour.

Shall the standard of Elon College be maintained in the Southern Association of Colleges, or shall she be allowed to lose her rating in this association? Shall Elon continue to prosper and her usefulness increase, or shall her prosperity and usefulness be allowed to wane? Shall Bethlehem be permitted to stand still or perhaps fail altogether? Shall we allow the cause of Christian Education, through these institutions, to suffer? Shall we make or break these institutions that we have created and which have recreated us?

The answer is with the pastors and laity of the Southern Christian Convention. The colleges cannot answer these questions for us. We must answer for them. And our offering during the schools and colleges period will either build up or pull down. By the offering we make, our colleges will be either stronger or weaker, more useful or less useful, more able to serve or less able, better fitted to fill a need in the lives of the young people of our day or less fitted for this great service; rated higher or rated lower; more efficient or less efficient; more confident or less confident of the future into which both the Convention and the colleges go with the desire and the hope to render a larger service in the kingdom.

"God of our fathers,
Be with us yet,
Lest we forget,
Lest we forget."

G. O. LANKFORD.

Burlington, N. C.

PORTO RICO LETTER.

(This was delayed in reaching us, but its information and fine spirit are not out of date.—Ed. SUN.)

It was very hard for me to imagine that the twenty-fourth of November was Thanksgiving Day. However, it was enjoyed in a very different way than usual. Thanksgiving is pre-eminently a family festival, but the inculcation of the rudiments of religion into each one of us is the supreme task of the home. The deep desire for all members of the family circle to be together on Thanksgiving gives the day a sublime meaning. However, some of us are not probably very fortunate to be in the circle of our family, yet God always provides for those who are separated from their loved ones.

No one will appreciate the position of one who is among the strangers at such a season till one experiences it. Well, on the morning of this great day I attended a very impressive early morning service. At 7 o'clock I joined our young people who were ready to spend the rest of the day on a picnic. The transportation is not very convenient here, therefore we had to walk about five miles to a picnic ground. Talk about fun—I surely had it that day! When we were half-way to the place we met with a man who had three donkeys, and he offered them to us to use. As I was very tired, I took the advantage to ride on one for about a mile.

It was a very funny picture to me; however, I enjoyed it to the fullest, because I had never had such a ride before. Soon every one forgot their weariness and began to have great fun observing my new type of car. It seemed as a circus was going through. The boys and girls laughed, talked, and sang happily all the way.

When we reached our destination we had a very impressive service; then we played games, laughed, talked and sang. We had rice and chicken, which is the main dish of Porto Ricans, and I like it very much. Yet, I could not help but feel a little lonely for my family circle. For an hour I stayed away from the crowd and meditated in thought with my beloved family and friends. It seemed like a dream to me to be among the strangers, but I had a great deal to be thankful for.

As we started back at 2:30 P. M. we were caught in a very heavy rainstorm, and as there were no places for us to shelter, we were compelled to keep on walking in the rain until we came to a little house. Here we stopped until the storm was over, when we again started on our journey. We reached Ponce at 5 o'clock. Personally, I enjoyed getting wet, because it was a very hot day.

I am happy to say that I am beginning to enjoy the work. People, country, also the climate seem better now, as it is getting a little cooler; of course, not very much cooler, but still better than the last two months that I have spent in Ponce. I have visited all the members of our Ponce Church now, and am starting to visit different charity institutions and hospitals. I really enjoy the services that we hold at these different places. As I have told you in my past letters about the Bible class, I am glad to say that it is getting along nicely.

Now I have organized a training class for our young women, to train them for the different departments of our Church. I have sixteen enrolled, and we meet once a week. We call ourselves "Always Faithful." I have many courses outlined for this class, and hope some day I will be able to carry it through. We need your financial encouragement in order to carry on His work. I am sure if you were here studying, the people and their problems like I have been for the last two months you would gladly give your last cent for their advancement. Good folks, let us not have just our beloved leader, Dr. J. O. Atkinson, and a few others labor too hard for the mission, but every one to aid. I am sure most of you have done a great deal, but let us not stop giving to missions. I can assure you if you throw your money in the box which is floating on the mission river, you surely will get it back soon, with great results. Let us pray for better and brighter days for our foreign mission work.

Your little missionary,
VICTORIA E. ADAMS.

THE BIBLE.

(Continued from Page 5.)

even estimate it. True it is that the Bible has not yet conquered the world, but it has advanced further towards it than Caesar or Alexander or Napoleon ever did. It has done more to govern and renew the human heart than all the laws ever enacted by all the legislators, and all the "proverbs and maxims ever devised by all the uninspired sages of all the ages." For forty centuries it has shaped and controlled the religious opinions and services of uncounted millions of the human race, and molded the characters and inspired the hearts of those men and women who have ushered in new eras, carved the destinies of peoples and nations, and changed the course and currents of human history. It has fostered the purest virtue, the sublimest manhood, the sweetest womanhood, the noblest beneficence, the sincerest charity, the tenderest kindness, the most inspiring music, the warmest sympathy, the grandest architecture, the finest art, the most unselfish love, and the saintliest sainthood this world has ever seen.

It is to the world of letters what the sun is to the solar system, "the fountain of the purest light and highest wisdom." It is the heart-history of a simple shepherd folk, replete with song and story, dream and drama; histories that crystalize centuries into a single sentence; prophecies that peer through the cycles of years, beyond the end of time; songs that sublimate the sorrows and sacrifices of centuries into a single psalm; daring dreams that fly across the grave and above the shining stars; stories of unschooled fishermen that shall hallow earth's hearth-fires to the end of time. Simply as a book among books, it has "wrought wonderously upon the thoughts and productions of the most noted authors of all classes and of all ages." From its poetry Cowper, Wordsworth, Tennyson, and Browning caught the divine afflatus. From its statesmanship, Burke, Romilly, Bright and Lincoln learned how to create and redeem institutions; from its melodies Handel, Bach, Mendelssohn, and Beethoven gleaned oratorios, masses and symphonies. From it Dante drew his awful visions, Milton his matchless songs of paradise, and Bunyan his immortal dream. Shakespeare garnered his choicest gems from the same precious mine, as did also even Hobbes and Shelley, Byron, Addison, Thompson, Dryden, Coleridge, Southey, Campbell and Goethe.

That prince of modern orators, Daniel Webster, once said: "If there be anything in my style or thoughts to be commended, the credit is due to my kind parents in instilling into my mind an early love of the Scriptures"; and both John Marshall and Prince Bismark agree with him when he declares: "If we abide by the principles taught in the Bible our country will go on prospering and to prosper." Looking upon the family Bible as he was dying, Andrew Jackson said: "That Book, sir, is the rock on which the republic rests." In ninety-six the late lamented William Jennings Bryan literally captured the Chicago convention and the presidential nomination with his famous speech, "The Cross of Gold," bristling with almost as many allusions to Scripture as are to be found in Patrick Henry's immortal "Liberty or Death" oration, which has been since repeated by so many thousands of school boys in declamation contests throughout the country. Indeed, if we were to strike from the world of thought and literature all that the Bible has contributed, "not less than half the history of the race would be swept out of mind"; the noblest ideas that have ever swelled the hearts and hopes of men would be gone, and the proudest monuments of human genius buried in oblivion forever.

VI. Its Consolations.

But we prize the Bible most of all as a message of hope and consolation from God. It is the record of glad tidings to a perishing world; a balm from Gilead for the sick; oil for the bruises of the wounded; bread for the hungry; reprieve for the prison-bound; pardon and forgiveness for the sinner; comfort for the mourner; faith and hope for the dying; and eternal salvation for all who obey its instructions. "It goes equally to the cottage of the plain man and the palace of the king." It is the never-failing cruse of the Shunamitess; "the magic wand of Moses which swallows the serpents of life, parts the seas of trouble, and brings forth waters in the thirsty wilderness"; the lamp that kindles all other lights; the marriage ring that unites earth and heaven; the wreath into which are twisted all garlands; the tower containing the crown jewels of the universe; the inspiration of the wife's fond desires for her husband's everlasting peace; the mother's best consolation at the casket of her lifeless babe; the widow's one solace at the new-made grave; the telescope of faith through which we may see the invisible; the chariot of Elijah in which we may "ride up the starry way to immortality unhurt of death"; the ladder of Jacob on which our spirits may ascend to commune with God and the angels forever; such are the divine testimonies, the Old and the New Testaments of God to man; the world's best Book; the Book of books—the Bible.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES.

We should be glad to furnish your Sunday School the following supplementary supplies, cash to accompany order:

- Improved Uniform Series International Lessons.
1. Bible Lesson Picture Roll, 21x32 inches, per quarter $1.25
 2. Sunday School Superintendent (to accompany the Picture Roll), per quarter..... .15
 3. Pupils' Lesson Stories, per quarter..... .06
 4. Little Bible Lesson Pictures, per quarter..... .05
- Group Uniform Series, Primary Course.
1. Group Bible Lesson Picture Roll, 16x20 in., per quarter 1.00
 2. Group Pupils' Lesson Stories, Primary, per quarter07
 3. Group Lesson Pictures, per quarter..... .04

In making order, be explicit and name the quarter for which supplies are wanted; thus: first quarter, January to March; second quarter, April to June; third quarter, July to September; fourth quarter, October to December.

SEND ORDERS TO THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Minion Bold-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 7-8x 7 Inches, and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

2152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.75

India Paper Edition, Size 4 7-8x7 Inches, 1 1-10 Inches Thick.

2152X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$6.00

Bourgeois Type, Size 5 3-8x8 Inches, and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

2167—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold$4.00

2172—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold$4.50

2172A—Same as above, with Apocrypha.....$5.00

2173—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges$6.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3-4x3-8 inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3 3-4x5 3-4 Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps$2.50

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations. Special book for Sunday Schools95c

Minion Type, Pocket Size, 4x6 Inches, 1 1-2 Inches Thick.

With 32 full-colored illustrations; also 25 outline maps through the text and 12 colored maps.

133—Bound in cloth, round corners, red edges, title stamped on side in pure gold$1.60

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.$3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 15-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.$4.00

Minion Black-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 3-4x 7 Inches, 1 1-2 Inches Thick.

Printed from clear, large, black-face type, 32 full-page illustrations in sepia and colors, 4,000 Questions and Answers, Harmony of the Gospels, How to Study the Sunday School Lesson, 25 outline Maps, 12 full-page colored Maps.

4152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold.....$3.25

AMERICAN STANDARD VERSION. TEXT BIBLES.

Printed from Easy-Reading Type, on Good Bible Paper, for Sunday School and Church Use.

Minion Type, Size 4x6 Inches, 1 1-2 Inches Thick, 25 Outline Maps, Bound in Black.

101—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, title stamped on back in pure gold...$1.10

112—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title on back in pure gold$2.75

India Paper Edition, Only 7/8-Inch Thick.

112X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.75

Reference and Text Bibles also in minion, brevier, bourgeois, long primer, pica and English type.

Thumb index cut on edge, 50c extra; name printed on any Bible in gold, 40c extra; extra wording, 40c per line.

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5 3-8x8 1-2 Inches and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With concise Bible dictionary, combined concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold$4.75

RED LETTER EDITION

With all the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands, title stamped on side and back in pure gold$3.25

Any of the above Bibles sent post paid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 E. Broad St., - - - Richmond, Virginia.

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

INTERNATIONAL UNIFORM SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE.

Lesson II—January 8, 1928.

JESUS AND THE SICK.

GOLDEN TEXT: "He hath done all things well; He maketh even the deaf to hear and the dumb to speak."—Mark 7:37.

LESSON: Mark 1:21-45.

DEVOTIONAL READING: Psalms 103:1-8.

It was said of Jesus, "who went about doing good." After one reads of the day in Capernaum which this lesson treats of in more or less detail, one feels that the phrase is indeed a summary of Jesus' life, especially when we understand that it is a typical day out of the Master's life, and not an exceptional one. One thing is certain—we never have the fullness of the Master's spirit until we have the spirit of service that causes us to go about "doing good."

The Master-Teacher.

"And they go into Capernaum; and straightway on the Sabbath Day he entered into the synagogue and taught. And they were astonished at his teaching; for he taught them as one having authority, and not as scribes." Modern pedagogy has never gone beyond—indeed, it never can go beyond—the principles which Jesus used in teaching. He was the Master-Teacher. His naturalness, His simplicity, His plainness, His art in telling stories, His genius in talking in terms that His hearers understand—modern educators call it the "point of contact"—His power to make truth vivid, all these and other qualities made His teaching effective. But the most vital thing about Jesus' teaching was the note of authority. He spake from first-hand knowledge of the truth, and, therefore, he spake with authority. What the world always needs is teachers and preachers who, to native ability and training, add the note of authority which comes from first-hand experience of the truth they would teach. This is especially true in the realm of religion. Jesus was not original in one sense of the word, but He was original in the sense that He spake with authority born of first-hand experience.

Jesus and an Unclean Spirit.

"There was in the synagogue a man with an unclean spirit." The people of Jesus' day believed that many, if not all, forms of disease were due to the presence of evil or unclean spirits taking possession of people. What in this case is called an unclean spirit or demon was probably epilepsy, insanity, or some acute form of nervous trouble. The point in this section is that Jesus exerted His mastery over the spirit. There is in the Christ that which even today often gives a peace of mind which passeth all understanding. Many forms of disease are often manifestations of mental disorders, and a calm faith in Jesus Christ can make one whole.

"Let us alone," said the unclean spirit. Let us alone is the cry of all unclean spirits. The Master is indeed a disturber of men. He shakes men out of the self-complacency of their own selfish and self-indulgent lives. He disturbs men in their social relationships, in their industrial orders, in their religious life. "Move on up to higher levels of living," says the Master, but men do not want to move on up—it costs too much; and alas! too often we say, Let us alone."

Jesus, the Great Physician.

"Now, Simon's wife's mother lay sick of a fever." "And he came and took her by the hand, and raised her up, and the fever left her." "And at even, when the sun did set, they brought unto Him all they that were sick, and them that were possessed with demons. And He healed them that were sick, and cast out many demons." It is surprising how much is said about Jesus and the sick in the gospels. Here and there and everywhere one finds Jesus giving His attention to the sick, not only of body but of mind. He was a great Physician in a very real sense. And one of the most impressive things about Jesus' dealing with disease is the personal touch. There is something significant here, too. This activity of Jesus among the sick was no chance coincidence—it is a manifestation of a settled habit of the Divine Spirit itself. God is still the great Physician in Christ. It is true that we do not see the manifestations of His healing touch in the same way as in that other day, but we see it in just as effective a way and to a far greater degree than was possible in that day. Jesus Himself was authority for the statement that we should do greater works than He in this sphere, and modern hospitals, modern surgeons and physicians, modern nurses, modern preventative measures, modern research—in fact, every means that is used in combatting disease and in aiding health is a manifestation on a large scale of the spirit of Him who was the great Physician. It should be added, however, that Jesus was a Specialist in souls. More than any other man before or since, He knew how to deal with sick souls. Today, as always, His touch can make men whole.

Jesus, the Man of Prayer.

"And in the morning, rising up a great while before day, He went out and departed into a solitary place, and there prayed." Ah! there is the secret of the matter. If one would find the secret of the Master's power with God and over men, let him study carefully the Master's prayer-life, and then let him practice the principles which he finds to the end that his life might abound in the fruits of the Spirit and in service. In this day of numbers, of organizations, of programs, of drives, and of what-not, it might not be a bad thing to put more emphasis upon prayer, both from the standpoint of the individual and of the Church. More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of, said a great poet; and he never spake a greater fact. Men could never get things done if they did nothing but pray, but they can never get things done that have abiding value if they do not pray. Here, as elsewhere, the Master has given us an example. The third Sunday in January has been set aside as a day of prayer for colleges. Let the people of our Christian Church pray definitely for our colleges and their interests.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Sunday, January 15, 1928.

TOPIC: "What Difference Does Reading the Bible Make?"—Psalms 1:1-6; 2 Tim. 3:14-17.

Some Bible Hints.

The Bible read and followed keeps us out of bad company and puts us into good (v. 1).

The Bible builds up character as different from that of the godless as light is from darkness (vs. 3, 4).

If love of the Bible has made a difference in the lives of our teachers, it will do the same for us (v. 14).

The Bible, inspired itself, inspires us to do good and do right; it is a guide-post as well as motive power (v. 16).

Suggestive Thoughts.

The Bible changes our lives, cuts new channels of thought and action which we follow; turns selfishness into service.

The Bible sets before us high moral ideals which make all the difference in the world if we follow them. Think of the Sermon on the Mount.

The man without a Bible, or who never reads one, is wandering in the darkness of selfishness. The Bible gives us Christ, the Light of life.

The entire Bible story is filled with cases of people that do something for somebody else. If we catch that spirit it will make a difference in our lives. It will transform Dickens' Mr. Scrooge.

A Few Illustrations.

Compare a country where the Bible has not been known—India, for example—with one where the Bible is read and honored—England, for instance. What a difference!

It makes a difference to the ship's captain whether or not he has a compass on board. The Bible is life's compass.

It makes a difference to a starving man whether or not he has food to eat. The Bible is soul-nourishment; without it we die.

Without the Bible God is practically unknown. It is the bright light that shines on the Father and reveals Him to us in Jesus Christ.

To Think About.

What difference has the Bible made to me?

What must we do to let the Bible make a difference in our lives?

How does the Bible educate conscience?

EASTERN VIRGINIA CONVENTION.

What goes with a Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention from one July until the next? About the first week in July it begins to dawn upon a few busy folks that a Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention is going to meet in three weeks, then the recording secretary, and executive secretary, and a president, or some such official, sit together for an hour and say how it is going to be. But where has it been up until that first week in July? And where will it go four weeks later? These may seem silly questions, but as an executive secretary of a Sunday School and Christian Convention, I am intensely interested to know. Somebody is likely to respond: "The Convention goes to a dusty old letter file and hibernates for more than three hundred days, and then blossoms forth in THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and scores of letters and wonderful programs!"

Our Convention is divided into thirteen departments and a secretary is intrusted with the responsibility of promoting and developing the work in forty-four Sunday Schools and C. E. Societies wherever there are any, of their particular department. During the year these secretaries study the best books written relative to the work of their department; they seek to see that each teacher and leader of folks in their particular department is posted as to the great responsibility resting upon his shoulders; they seek to get the work of their department developed in each Church; and they work as thirteen servants of Jesus Christ in the great teaching world as leaders and developers of better teaching and better thinking along the lines with which they have been intrusted.

So far as our Convention is officially concerned, the success of Christian Endeavor work in our Churches rests upon the shoulders of Rev. M. F. Allen, pastor of the Christian Church at Newport News. He is secretary of the C. E. Department and is heading up the work of his department. Are missions being taught in the Eastern Virginia Sunday School class-room? Ask Mrs. M. L. Bryant, for she is Secretary of Missions for our Convention and is posted as to just what is being done by the Convention to get missions in each Sunday School. Are we training the army of Eastern Virginia Sunday School teachers and officers and C. E. leaders? Rev. W. C. Hook is secretary of the leadership training department of the Convention, and will be glad to help every teacher get a standard course of training either through institute work, training schools, or correspondence. Whatever our Convention is doing, so far as it is officially doing anything along that line, it is doing it through its secretary. If you are wondering what sort of literature is being used in our schools, and where it is procured; or if you would like to know how many teachers and officers are reading our Church papers, ask Rev. J. F. Morgan, for Bro. Morgan knows all our Convention knows officially about such matters. He is the secretary of that department, and through him our Convention is seeking to make a record on the type, amount, and use of proper literature in our class-rooms, teachers' studies, and pupils' reading tables.

Are there forty-four cradle rolls in our Sunday Schools of Eastern Virginia? Have our pastors learned the value of keeping in touch with families through the youngest child in the home? Do our superintendents seek to use the little child as a drawing unit for the whole family? Ask Mrs. W. H. Baker, of Newport News, for the Convention is relying on her answering all such questions concerning the tiny tots of Eastern Virginia homes. Our Convention is working through her to cause each tiny one to find from the beginning that he was born into a Sunday School world! Or if you would know about beginners, ask Miss Hontas Rawls, of Holland, and she will answer the Convention's share of questions as to the best books for teachers of beginners to read and study, the best methods in handling them, and the number of schools which have consciously done anything definitely along the line of her department. Miss Beatrice George, of South Norfolk, is heading up the work for primaries; Mrs. C. C. Rawls, of Suffolk, is secretary of the department for juniors; Mrs. J. E. Harris, Suffolk, intermediates; Frank A. Osborne, Norfolk, seniors; Miss Lillye Holland, of Holland, young people; Mrs. E. T. Holland, of Holland, adults; and Mrs. W. H. Jones, of Franklin, will speak for the home department.

Where does a Convention go? Our Convention has gone into each of the above pairs of faithful and loving hands. Our Convention has gone into their hearts, and heads, and into their efforts. God bless them each and every one, for I feel sure that some of them will surely feel that their task is greater than they can do; and if any of them feel that way there is hope! The Convention has honored them with its most sacred and solemn tasks; it has placed its honor and effectiveness in their hands; it will have to answer the Master next July according to the way in which their secretaries handle their work during the year. If He shall come in his own way to us as a Convention and say: "My little ones, my beginners, my primaries, my juniors, my intermediates, my seniors, how have they been fed? how have they been interested? how have they been won?" What shall our answer be? He will make inquiry at the court of our Convention and our conscience concerning the young people, the adults, and those who have had to remain at home. What shall our answer be?

As executive secretary of the Convention, I want to say for each of these, my brethren and sisters, that they will need your co-operation, your response, your open minds, your willingness to be helped. To Churches and superintendents and pastors, they will come each in his own way seeking your co-operation. Please do not fail them. Why have a Convention if you are not going to co-operate with its efforts to unify, instruct, and strengthen the forces? To teachers, and pupils and leaders they will come, either by correspondence, in person, or through the printed page. You may think a response is tedium; but remember the work they are doing is manifold more so. I believe in our Sunday Schools and Christian Endeavor Societies; I believe in the loyal folks who faithfully perform their duties to make them what they are; and I believe that one will have to go far and search diligently to find a finer group of departmental secretaries than that group which makes up the official family of the Eastern Virginia Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention. Jesse F. West, Jr., of Waverly, is president of this Convention; W. H. Baker, first vice-president; W. E. MacClenny, second vice-president; Rev. F. C. Lester, recording secretary; the writer, executive secretary; and J. W. Folk, treasurer—a Convention that is seeking to convene its spiritual forces every day in the year.

JOHN G. TRUITT.

ROSEMONT.

The Christmas service of the Rosemont Christian Church and Sunday School was held on the evening of December 23rd, in the Church. The attendance was good, though not as large as it was on the similar occasion a year ago. The program consisted of a number of recitations, songs, and a pageant, "The King's Tribute," by the children and young people of the Sunday School. All those on the program did their part well, and showed splendid training by those who had the program in charge.

At the close of the program the children of the junior school met their teachers in the classrooms, where they were given their Christmas treat and all went home seemingly as happy as could be.

During the service, Rev. J. N. Cutchin, chairman of the official board, presented Mrs. J. F. Morgan a substantial check from the Church as an expression of appreciation of her services in the Church and Sunday School.

An offering was taken during the service for missions which is to be used in connection with our work in the mountains of Virginia, showing that while we were happy in our Christmas joy, we were not forgetful of those less fortunate than ourselves.

No, the pastor was not forgotten either at this happy Christmas time, for he was given a lovely remembrance by Mrs. H. E. Roane's Sunday School class, which he appreciates very much indeed.

On Sunday morning—Christmas Day—at 11 o'clock, we had a most lovely service, in the form of an old-time testimony meeting, when a large number spoke of the thing about Christmas that gave them the greatest joy. It was great to be in that meeting on that Christmas morning.

BEREA.

The Berea Christian Church, Great Bridge, Norfolk County, held a most interesting Christmas service on the afternoon of Christmas Day. The program consisted of carols, a brief talk by the pastor, and the distribution of treats to the children and other members of the school. The attendance was large, and the service most highly appreciated by all present.

J. F. MORGAN.

OBLIGATION TO FEDERAL COUNCIL.

(Continued from Page 7.)

nominal agencies to be crippled.

Every member of the Christian Church should have something for the council's support. It can do much more than if the twenty-nine denominations composing it were to attempt the same things independently. To support its program is wise benevolence.

6. Our obligation is accentuated by the council's present pressing financial need. Its program has grown rapidly, and this has increased its budget. The increasing expense in everything else is in religious work also. The purchasing power of the dollar that goes to Church has decreased in like ratio with its fellows which go elsewhere. This situation has created a great deficit in the council's treasury for which provision should be made. Yet, there are no limits to the possibilities of its program. Larger tasks should be undertaken. The time is ripening for its greatest possible contribution to the kingdom. There should be enlargement, not curtailment, in its program. Its hands should not be tied, or limits placed upon its usefulness.

7. We are under obligation to the council because of the benefits which we have received from it. It brings into our life the best from all sources. It makes the material gathered at their expense and by their experts available for our denominational use. Conversely, it provides a channel by which the catholicity of the Christian Church may find entrance to many others. It places our ideals into a broader field and makes our principles known to the other denominations in a way which would never be possible by our independent action. In the council we have always had all the recognition to which we were entitled. We have been adequately represented on its commissions and committees. We have been provided a delightful fellowship and have experienced an added feeling of strength because of this association. There has been no outside contact which has meant so much to our denominational life. Then, there is no other agency moving us so certainly toward the goal of Christian unity.

To discharge this responsibility more than a mere verbal endorsement is due. We want to continue the fellowship, that we may both give and get the blessings which it confers. To continue to hold membership, we must bear our part of its financial responsibility. In honor we cannot do otherwise. Only a slacker expects some one else to do the thing which rightfully belongs to him. It is for this reason that a generous annual contribution is asked from each congregation. This contribution is desired to cover our membership responsibility in the Federal Council and the expense of the work of promotion by the commission on Christian unity of the Church.

FOLLOWING JESUS.

" 'Tis a thing I long to know,
Oft it causes anxious thought:
Do I love the Lord, or no?
Am I His, or am I not?"

Expresses a state common to many individuals in a measure conscious that saving grace has flowed into their hearts. The best way to expel such lurking doubt is to exercise and use the grace God has given by enlisting under Jesus in the work of the Church according to His plan as the Bible, through the Spirit, reveals that plan to each of us. Jesus personally taught His earliest disciples. He has given the Spirit to be our Master-teacher in this life, and the Spirit, if we give Him place, is as much a person and a presence constantly at our side as ever Jesus was

(Continued on Page 14.)

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY REV. H. E. ROUNTREE,
One of Our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"Call upon me, and I will answer thee, and shew thee great and mighty things, which thou knowest not."—Jeremiah 33:3.

NEW YEAR'S WEEK.

ON THE THRESHOLD—THE MEANING OF THE NEW YEAR.

"Thou shalt remember all the way which the Lord thy God hath led thee."—Deut. 8:2.

January is the month of beginnings. The most hardened sinner cannot cross this threshold without some sense of wonder and of hope, and we cannot come to it without some stirrings in our hearts. To keep its festival is one of the most ancient customs. It is a relief to know that the old year, with its fortunes, sorrows, and disappointments, are gone, and the immortal hope of the future rises before us. Thank God for the chasm between and for the feeling of emancipation from the past.

But we cannot do well without remembering the past. Its experience should become our teacher. Its successes should be our inspiration. Its lessons are as important to us as the prospect of the future. We must not forget the way which the Lord God hath led us. Often we have been led when we could not see. Let us not forget it. Despite drought and misfortune, we still have sweet things to cherish. We have sown and reaped. The birds have sung, and the flowers have bloomed for us, and we are still found in life. Let's not forget it.

We have not lacked guidance, and our New Year is illuminated by it. It is in these things we find God, and if not there, then we shall not find Him at all. In these we often become aware of the Divine in our lives and render praise. It is in these we have found the thread of gold in our experiences, and in such of the future we expect to find its conquest and service.

Therefore, let us not forget the way He hath led us and step bravely with renewed trust in love, light, truth, heaven and God. Let us resolve to make every minute count for something in the pattern of our lives.

There is an old story of a youth who, out of fragments of glass thrown away by his master, made a beautiful cathedral window. Our minutes are fragments that spell possibilities for us. What may not be done if, through the year, we husband all the golden minutes?

The coming year will hold in its hands countless small occasions. Let us be vigilant and use each opportunity as it comes and within 1928 may bring to us; let us remember the way He hath led us, and that we can be more than conquerors in Him that loved us.

Prayer.—Thou God of our hopes, who art mighty to save us from the ills of the past and to keep us from the falls of the future, we thank Thee that Thou hath not cut us off in our sins, but hath abundantly blessed us.

We pray to be worthy of Thy goodness in the future, and to be a light to some one by our example. In the New Year may we not lose faith, but know that goodness will prevail and that virtue and kindness will save the world.

Inspire us to take account of eternal values as we go along, and give us the patience to wait for the fruit of our effort. Thou art the sunshine of our way; calm all our fears; encourage us in our ambitions; strengthen us to press toward the goal.

We repent our sins of the past, forgive us and make us as new as the New Year to live for Thee and make every day's record without a blot. Amen.

THOUGHTS FOR THE THOUGHTFUL.

"What is man that thou art mindful of him?" The world is not a machine. It is a living organism expressing the thought of the Creator every moment. He who can appreciate the world and interpret it in human thought and language, thinks God's thoughts after Him.

Prayer.—Our Father, out of the schooling of the past may we learn guidance for the future, and so may we go forward with greater confidence and trust. Amen.

"Forgetting the Things that are Behind."

When the smith's hammer falls, the sparks fly in every direction. Paul had made things fly. Before him, chains had rattled, swords had flashed, scourges had hissed, faggots had burned, disciples had fled and prisons were filled. When Christ met him, he discovered that his garments were red with blood and his crimes hung around his neck like a millstone. His early life was a sepulchre of dead men's bones and a trap that held his own soul. But in his new life he determined that not even such a past should mar his future. So he says, "Forgetting the things that are behind." He drowned his past in Christ and made his future count.

Prayer.—Dear Father, give us the gift to see Thee and count what we are or have done as nothing, but to press on for Jesus' sake. Amen.

In an autograph of a Swedish count is written: "I have learned this wise lesson: Forgive much, forget nothing."

The Frenchman Thiers wrote beneath it: "I have found that a little forgetting does no harm to the sincerity of forgiving"; and Bismarck wrote beneath it, "I have learned to forget much and to have much forgiven me."

Which is nearer like Christ?

Remember the strength of the Mississippi is its many rivers, rivulets, streams and brooks covering four-fifths of the territory of the United States—all crowd its waters forward to its mighty flood power.

The strength of an oak is the test of winters against its fibrous tissue.

The greatness of a man at any great moment depends upon years of thought, prayer experience and endurance of life's tests in which he is more than conqueror.

Standing between the old year and the new, remember that everything has its roots in the past, and that every day is a path where the past pours out its treasures for the future; that each one of us is one of these points.

RESOLUTIONS.

Resolutions are made in moments of exaltations or inspiration and forgotten when this has subsided. Remember, resolutions are not needed when we make them, but when we go down from them into the valleys of life, in weak hours, in temptations; then we need them as an armor of defense, and if we have them to fall back upon we shall not fall.

Closing Thoughts.

"Commit thy way unto the Lord, and trust also in Him and He will bring it to pass."

"The eternal God is thy refuge, and underneath are the everlasting arms."

We have been resolving all these years; now, for this year 1928, let us take heed on God. Amen.

FANCY GAP, VA.

It was with great pleasure that the writer spent a portion of the Christmas holidays at Fancy Gap, Va., in the communities of Rocky Ford and Elk Spur. I went up Friday, December 23rd, and had the privilege of being at Rocky Ford for the Christmas entertainment and Christmas tree, given at 2 P. M., Friday. The Raleigh Church made it possible for all the children of the Rocky Ford school and Sunday School to be remembered with presents and a packet of treat. The program was enjoyed by all that were present. Miss Alice Baldwin, of Hoffman, N. C., who is the teacher of the Rocky Ford School, is doing a splendid work with the children. The patrons of the school are very much pleased with her work and the results that are obtained. Miss Baldwin enjoys the work and is there for business. She made these remarks to me in regard to the work: "This is a great work; I love it."

Mrs. Iola Hedgepeth Meredith, teacher of the Elk Spur School, had her Christmas program on Saturday morning. Judge Bolen, of Fancy Gap, Va., made a short address to the children after they had completed their program. Mrs. Meredith is getting along well with her school. The Burlington Church took the responsibility upon themselves to see that each member of the school and Sunday School was provided with an appropriate gift. They also furnished oranges, nuts and candy. I carried these things to Fancy Gap, and it was just a bargain to carry it all on a Ford coupe. This was not all the Christmas we had at Fancy Gap, because other Churches, organizations and groups, the names of which I am unable to give here, had a part in contributing to the Christmas joy of those people through presents.

The children seemed to enjoy and appreciate the things which good old "Saint Nick" brought them for Christmas. Some of them probably would not have been remembered at the time when we all like to have Santa Claus come if the provision had not been made by those who love to share the Christmas spirit.

I wish to express thanks to all who in any way had a part in helping to bring the joy of Christmas to those people. May God bless you.

S. E. MADREN, Pastor.

AN APPRECIATION.

On the morning of December 20th, at about 10:30 o'clock, the parsonage of the Rosemont Christian Church was boldly entered by the chairman of the official board of the Berea Christian Church, Bro. F. N. Hall. After entering, the friendly intruder was given the "once over" by the occupants of the parsonage, and the decision was soon reached that no harm was meant by the daylight hold-up, and the chairman of the Church board was given full liberty to do as he pleased. His first move was to present the preacher with an advanced amount of his salary in order that he might not go lacking at the Christmas time. Then the preacher and his wife were invited by Mr. Hall out to the truck, which had been left standing in the yard, and there we beheld a truck well loaded with good things, which, explained Mr. Hall, was the Christmas gift to their pastor and his family from the members and friends of the Berea Christian Church.

In the truck were sugar, flour, meat, butter, meal, canned goods, two kinds of potatoes, four live chickens, and a number of other things good to eat. Bro. Hall didn't stop at that, but declared that there was a nice goose on the way that would reach the parsonage in plenty time for the Christmas dinner.

Well, Mrs. Morgan and I could only say "Thank you; and thank the other good friends for us." We are indeed grateful, and will try to prove ourselves more worthy.

REV. & MRS. J. F. MORGAN.

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

Climbing toward a goal is hard work. When I was a little boy I have climbed trees, and if it was some distance to the first limb it was mighty hard climbing, and when I was almost out of breath and nearly ready to give up, if "big brother" would come to my aid and give me a push—oh, how it would help me! Thirty thousand dollars was our allotment for this year, and we have been tugging away at the task all the year and we are almost out of breath. This week's report carries us to within $1,748 of our goal. Now, if the Churches that have not sent in their Thanksgiving offering will do so at once it will give us a real push. If friends who have not had an opportunity to contribute to the offering will mail us their check, that will push us up toward the goal. Let everybody in the Christian Church feel interest enough in our reaching this goal to make some sacrifice to help us. Just a good push now in the end of the race will tell the story.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON,
Superintendent.

REPORT FOR DECEMBER 29, 1927.

Brought forward $27,365.07
Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

N. C. & Va. Conference:

New Lebanon Sunday School$ 2.00
New Lebanon Baracca Class..... 2.00
Mt. Bethel 8.50
Long's Chapel 4.26
Bethlehem 2.96
Howard's Chapel 2.00

21.72

Eastern N. C. Conference:

Liberty, Vance$ 6.09
Auburn 4.50

10.59

Eastern Virginia Conference:

Centerville$12.00
Berea, Nansemond 10.00

22.00

Special Offerings.

Ethel M. Holmes, for Alma Owen..$ 7.00
Primary Class, New Lebanon51
Young People's Class, Amelia..... 3.25
Twiddle Bible Class, Norfolk, Va.. 19.50
Stella Johnson 5.00
W. H. Lee 60.46
Mr. & Mrs. Edge, Reform, Ala..... 5.00
Clifford Edge, Reform, Ala..... 1.00
Boone Bible Class, Sanford, N. C. 15.00
R. B. Wicker, support of Edna..... 15.00
R. B. Wicker, clothing for Edna... 15.50
Isle of Wight Aid Society..... 5.00
C. E. Society, Isle of Wight Church. 10.00
True Blue S. S. Class, W. Iowa Con. 5.00
Joseph Brickhouse, Norfolk, Va.... 2.50
Class No. 2, Franklinton 3.00
Class No. 10, Burlington S. S..... 5.00

177.72

Thanksgiving Offerings.

N. C. & Va. Conference:

New Lebanon$46.60
Mt. Bethel 15.00
Rev. P. T. Klapp, Elon College.... 5.00
Ingram 32.00
Howard's Chapel 10.00
Union, Va. 52.75
Bethlehem 14.00

175.35

Eastern N. C. Conference:

Auburn$25.50
Lebanon 50.00

Antioch 14.12
Lebanon Sunday School 10.30
Christian Light 23.00
New Elam 9.00
Pope's Chapel 20.52
Wake Chapel 82.17

234.61

Western N. C. Conference:

Union Grove$ 1.90
Parks Cross Roads 17.00
Burlington (add'l) 10.30

29.20

Eastern Virginia Conference:

Centerville$13.10
Ivor 6.55
Antioch 7.75
Isle of Wight 18.60
Antioch 21.20

67.20

Alabama Conference:

Antioch 6.13

Outside Help:

Lynn B. Williamson, Greensboro...$25.00
R. L. Ellis, Asheville, N. C..... 50.00
Naomi Boyce, Washington, N. C... 10.00
Peggy Sue Jones, Reidsville, N. C. 3.00
Miss N. L. McCarthy, Birmingham. 15.00
S. M. Griffith, Reidsville, N. C.... 1.00
Boston Tailoring Co., Burlington.. 3.00
Chas. A. Scott, Graham, N. C..... 5.00
Mrs. Cameron Morrison, Charlotte.. 25.00
J. A. Long, Haw River, N. C..... 5.00

142.00

Grand total $28,251.59

A CORRESPONDENCE.

I am beginning now to try to redeem the promise I made some time previous. It seems to me like it is a very hard matter to keep a promise made to the editor, but since he has been so kindly remembered by a whole Conference, he might have overlooked my failure. But I mean to write news of two of my Churches—Forest Home and Pleasant Grove. The little Church at Forest Home gave a Thanksgiving entertainment, which event took place on Thanksgiving night. The sum of $156 was realized for the Church, which amount is being used to build a vestibule and paint the Church inside and out. The good women and girls prepared a quilt, the proceeds of which added about $100 to the treasury. The Church here is numerically weak, but they are undertaking things. They have one of the finest rural Sunday Schools in the whole country. I predict that when the Church is completed the interest every way will increase. Somehow the Church lives and grows by doing things, and this Church is surrounded by a noble citizenship, a goodly number of which are interested in the Church. We are expecting to see the Church here go forward.

The Church at Pleasant Grove is one of our older Churches and is located in a fine section. Here we have the finest crowd of young people that I have met. They are not better than other young people, but there are so many of them, and they are working with a will. They have a real Christian Endeavor Society at this place. It was my privilege to be with them in their meeting last night. It was truly a pleasure to hear their Christmas program. Miss Lala Edge was the leader. Every one rendered his or her part impressively and the music was simply fine, and with just a little practice they will have a male quartet equal to any. Both of these Churches have adopted the budget plan of raising finance, and they are well pleased.

Now, Mr. Editor, here's wishing you and your staff a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

G. D. HUNT.

COMMUNION WARE

Individual Service

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A

Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses $7.00
Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses 6.75
Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses 6.50
Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim..... 1.60
No. 2—Broad rim 1.60

SILVER-PLATE

The Silver-Plated Ware is of the very lightest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.

Style No. 85

Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses.$22.00
Base No. 1—Silver-plate; fits Silver Tray No. 85 11.00
Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85... 16.00
(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)

Style No. 90

Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses.
Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses
(this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling). $22.00
Base No. 2—Silver-plate; fits Silver Tray 90... 16.00
Cover No. 4—Silver-plate; fits Silver Tray 90... 14.00

Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow rim$ 9.00
No. 4—Broad rim 9.00
Filler—Silver lined 6.00

Send Orders to THE CHRISTIAN SUN,
1536 E. Broad St., - - - Richmond, Va.

FOLLOWING JESUS.

(Continued from Page 11.)

at the side of those who walked with Him in the days of His flesh.

At first, the twelve were workers and learners simply. Never has it been otherwise with the family of God than with the earthly family. The child of responsible years, by assuming and bearing a fair and just part of the household care and conduct, gives something in return for what he receives. Whether in Jesus' day or now, "occupying" whatever talent God has given, mixing a little of one's own effort with what one receives from those who lead and teach in Jesus' name, is the safest and surest antidote for lack of faith and assurance, provided the thing engaging us is a God-approved service. It should be borne in mind that much work(?), as today carried on in the name of the Church, deserves closer scrutiny than often it is given. But let not that be a stumbling-block in the way of service which God not only approves, but requires. There is plenty of assigned tasks and voluntary deeds the most nominal Christian may perform through and by which Calvary's grace is made to flow more freely and fuller and by which faith is multiplied even as the meal and the oil became more instead of less. Faith used up gains more faith, and always one learns by doing. Jesus took the twelve under his tutelage, teaching them how by associating them with Himself in work. He made it very clear to them: "My Father worketh hitherto, and I work," and "I (we, if you come with me) must work the works of Him that sent me."

God holds and keeps, and not infrequently He leads and guides those He would use into things wholly within the province of His own will and about which they have felt little, if any, concern. Take the case of Matthew. Matthew probably made his decision to follow Jesus without knowing the call he had received was divine. If one really wants to follow Jesus and to work with Him and for Him, it is not imperative that all the experience of saving grace be realized at once. Many will testify that it takes the inquiring mind and the listening ear and the willing hand to insure the wholly receptive heart. At first, Matthew probably had very little consciousness of spiritual conviction; at least no power to discern it. Or, grant he faintly sensed that Jesus was the promised Messiah, his decision to follow Him still was on a very different plane from that of her who said: "If I may but touch His garment," and, "falling down declared before all the people for what cause she had touched Him."

But for some reason and because of His own reasons, not always disclosed to His children, God wanted Matthew and needed him. The matchless marvel of it is He wants and needs you and me, unprofitable and unpromising as we have shown ourselves to be. Therefore, whatever arouses or inspires to follow Jesus, let not it be despised or neglected. The simplest acts in daily life may be made a channel for Christian usefulness, and may serve as the entering wedge into an ever-widening and enlarging privilege and place in the Master's kingdom. The thing that counts is not the rung of the ladder upon which first one steps, but the height to which one climbs. Not so much the persuasion or the influence or the method through and by which one enters the kingdom or, having entered, takes higher ground. It is the starting where we are; the "leaving all," at least for the moment, even though that fine resolution has to be many times renewed; and the keeping on. Nor does starting on the Christian road or, having lagged, restarting on it, mean that never again, like Peter, may one go a-fishing, or, like Paul, sew tents. It merely declares that from henceforth, by the grace of God, these and all natural, legitimate pursuits are to be appreciated and used for what they are, viz: sources of satisfaction and profit, the needful results of which, because essential to human happiness, a great, beneficent father, even God Himself, has promised to "add" to all who seek first His kingdom and who look for Jesus and "love His appearing" enough to work for "that day."

S. S. L.

If we dare not proclaim Christ as the Deliverer of the spirit of man from its bondage; if we dare not say that He has come actually to reveal God's righteousness to men, we had better cease to speak of Him at all. For it is such a one that men want; it is for such a one that in their inmost hearts, even when their language against the Son of man is loudest, they are crying—T. D. Maurice.

Jesus had the strength to wait.

Each time one gets angry, he has given the habit of bad temper a firmer hold upon his soul.

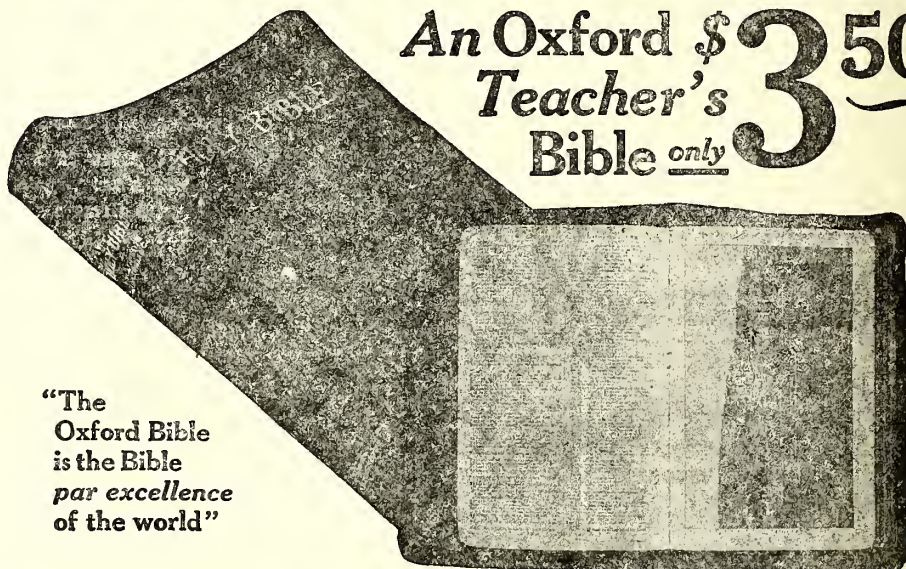

TARBELL'S TEACHERS' GUIDE.

A commentary on the International Uniform Sunday School Lessons, 1928; the most complete and useful volume on the International Lessons ever written. It is designed for use by teachers and pupils of all grades from that above the primary up to and including Bible classes of all departments. It is nicely printed, in plain, open type, easy to read. Illustrated with diagrams, charts and paintings by celebrated artists. The price, postage prepaid, is $2.00 per copy. Send your orders to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 East Broad Street, Richmond, Va.

OXFORD BIBLES

An Oxford $3.50
Teacher's Bible only

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

The best recommendation of the OXFORD TEACHER'S BIBLES is the fact that over 3,000,000 copies have been sold. The wonderful helps they contain save your time because they are alphabetically arranged, making reference easy. They take the place of many books about the Bible, and can be depended upon, being written by eminent scholars. The Helps contain 32 graphic illustrations, besides 15 beautifully colored maps. The text is the Authorized or King James version, with over 50,000 centre column references.

These Are Genuine OXFORD Teacher's BIBLES

EASY-TO-READ EDITION

Size 7 1/4 x 5 x 1 1/4 inches

— Specimen of Type —

17 And there was a very sore battle that day; and Abner was beaten,

- | | | |
|-------|--|--------|
| Nos. | | |
| 04451 | Moroccoette, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges | $3.50 |
| 04453 | French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and handsome Bible | 4.35 |

Oxford India Paper Edition

Same as above, but printed on the famous Oxford India paper used only in Oxford Bibles. Only one inch thick.

- | | | |
|-------|--|--------|
| Nos. | | |
| 0773x | French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition | $7.50 |

RED LETTER EDITION

- | | | |
|-------|---|------|
| 05453 | As No. 04453 with words of Jesus Christ in red. The red letter feature adds greatly to one's understanding of the Bible | 5.00 |
|-------|---|------|

Oxford India Paper Edition

- | | | |
|--------|---|------|
| 05453x | Same as No. 0773x with words of Jesus Christ in red. A gift edition which is sure to please | 8.00 |
|--------|---|------|

SELF-PRONOUNCING EDITION

All proper names and difficult words divided into syllables and accented so they may be correctly pronounced. Sizes 8 1/2 x 5 1/2 x 1 1/4 inches.

— Specimen of Type —

6 And A-hi'-shār was over the household; and 'Ad-ō-ni'-rām the son of Ab'-dā was over the 'tri-

- | | | |
|-------|--|--------|
| Nos. | | |
| 01521 | Moroccoette, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges | $5.00 |
| 04523 | French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A real student's Bible | 6.00 |

Oxford India Paper Edition

Same as above, but printed on the famous Oxford India paper which is used only in Oxford Bibles. Only 1 1/4 inches thick.

- | | | |
|-------|---|--------|
| 0923x | French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A Bible of superior quality | $9.00 |
|-------|---|--------|

Improved Thumb Index on any style at 50 cents extra

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

Whereas, it has pleased our Heavenly Father to call from an earthly home to a heavenly home our beloved friend and member, Mr. J. S. Peel; therefore, be it resolved:

1. That we bow in humble submission to God's will, knowing that He doeth all things well and for our good.
2. That we imitate his good example by always giving our best to His cause.
3. That we offer our heartfelt sympathy to his family, pointing them to Christ, the Saviour of the world.
4. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the bereaved family, a copy to The Christian Sun for publication, and a copy spread on the minutes of Liberty Spring Church records.

MRS. V. E. RAWLES,
MRS. Z. C. BYRD,
F. F. BRINKLEY,
C. E. BYRD,
Committee.

AVIATION ADVANCES.

Nothing illustrates better the firm base on which aviation rests in this country than insurance statistics. Here are some compiled by Drs. Lawrence G. Sykes and William B. Smith:

Fifty of the nation's leading life insurance companies, covering policyholders to the extent of $73,276,680,279, place no restriction against participation in aviation.

Fatalities on the transcontinental air-mail route, on which planes operate in all kinds of weather, decreased from three deaths in every 300,000 miles of flying in 1919 to two deaths in each 2,250,000 miles in 1926.

Leading accident insurance companies within the past six months have included clauses in their contracts covering losses caused "by any hazard of aviation." The condition is made, in line with the recommendations of aviation authorities, that responsibility is assumed only when "the insured is riding as a passenger in a licensed airplane, operated by a licensed pilot, upon a regular passenger route between established airports."

Aviation has developed, chiefly under the impetus of private capital, to a point where it now serves millions of people in this country. Drs. Sykes and Smith declare. The mail airways alone, on September 1st of this year were serving 66,677,209 people.

Evidence of the tremendous progress made by aviation is found in the establishment of new airports. By the end of this year, approximately one thousand airports and intermediate fields will be in existence in all parts of the United States. More than fifty airports have been recently completed, while twice that number of cities have set aside funds or have begun plans for modern terminals.—Ex.

AN UNPROFITABLE ENGINE.

A man who was visiting a railroad yard saw a big engine sidetracked.

"That engine looks as if it would go," he said; "why have you switched it off here to rest?"

"Oh, it can run itself all right, I guess," said the workman, "but there's something wrong with it, and it can't pull anything. Engines are not run for the fun of running them. They've got to draw a train of cars."

The Christian who just keeps himself going isn't much of a Christian. It's the business of a Christian to draw others after him. And it is not really himself who is the attraction at all, but it is the spirit of Christ within him that furnishes the "pull."—Sel.

Serve the Lord with gladness. Enter into His gates with thanksgiving, and into His courts with praise; be thankful unto Him, and bless His name. For the Lord is good (Psa. 100:2-4).

ISELEY—FORBES.

Mr. R. W. Iseley and Miss Bessie

Forbes were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Forbes, MeLeansville, N. C., December 25, 1927, in the presence of several relatives and friends. Mr. and Mrs. Iseley are popular young people of the Hines Chapel Church and community, and their many friends wish them much happiness. The attendants were Mr. Geo. Forbes and Miss Annie Kate Iseley, Mr. Brown Fryar and Miss Virgie Forbes, Mr. Herbert McCollum and Miss Ruby Forbes, Mr. Vance Lee Smith and Miss Myrtle Forbes. The ceremony was performed by their pastor.

T. J. GREEN.

ELON COLLEGE

CO-EDUCATIONAL

SECOND SEMESTER OPENS JANUARY 4, 1928

A few additional Students may be accommodated at that time, preferably members of the Christian Church.

SOME OF THE ELON COLLEGE BUILDINGS

ELON COLLEGE offers superior educational advantages to the members of the Christian Church. The buildings are new, equipment new and of the very best type, laboratory facilities equal to any college in the South; member of the Southern Association of Colleges, strong Christian faculty, and fine Christian atmosphere prevailing on the campus. Special courses in religious education and Christian work are offered to train laymen and ministers in the work of our denomination.

For Catalogue and View-Books, address

C. M. CANNON REGISTRAR,

ELON COLLEGE, - - NORTH CAROLINA

"Christian Character First and Always at Elon College"

For Bible Teachers

Select Notes

AMOS R. WELLS, Ltd. D. D. D. has been the Sunday School
Workers' Best Friend

Is an up-to-date Commentary on the Uniform Lessons for 1928.
Contains explanatory notes of text, topics for discussion, illustrations of all kinds, suggestive methods to develop the lesson, maps, charts, etc.

Price $1.90 - $2.00 delivered
At all booksellers

W. A. WILDE COMPANY
131 Clarendon Street, Boston, Mass.

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rve. Daniel W. Kerr.

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Christian Church.

BOARD OF EDITORS

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D. Editor
W. W. STALEY, D. D. Associate
W. A. HARPER, LL.D. Associate
REV. S. C. HARRELL Associate
R. C. HELFENSTEIN, D. D. . . . Associate
REV. S. M. LYNAM News Editor
P. J. KERNODLE Managing Editor

Subscription Rates

One Year $2.00
Six Months 1.00

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT
RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Post-office at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows the date of expiration. Change in the label will appear on wrapper the first week of month following renewal, provided it is received before the 25th.

Change of Address: Give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

When subscriptions are made for friends, state whether paper is to be stopped at end of the year.

Remittances: Make all remittances for subscriptions and renewals to "Editor Christian Sun," Elon College, N. C.

Remittances for advertising and other business matters will be addressed to the "Managing Editor," 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond, Va.

Advertising Rates: "Want Ads," 2 cents a word an insertion. Display rates quoted upon request.

Notices: Obituary and Marriage notices, limited to 100 words, are published free of charge. All over 100 words, at 1 cent a word. Remittance should accompany copy. Write names distinctly.

KIMBALL.

Mr. Lewis Norwood Kimball, of Manson, N. C., died in the hospital at Henderson, N. C., December 8th at 2 A. M. He was 69 years old on August 19, 1927.

Mr. Kimball was a member of Mt. Auburn Christian Church since childhood. He leaves a wife and four sons—Oliver L., of Oxford, N. C.; C. Hamel, of Buffalo, N. Y.; William A., of Manson, N. C., and Maurice W., of Enfield, N. C. He died as he lived, "at peace with the world and in heaven with Him."

M. W. K.

MAYNARD.

Ephriam Robert Maynard departed this life on December 26th, aged 78 years, 16 days. He connected with the Christian Church at Bethlehem, N. C., early in life, and so far as we know led a consistent Christian life. He was married to Sallie B. Barber January 19, 1872. The writer and Bro. Maynard were together much during our boyhood days and were good friends. He leaves to mourn their loss one sister, two daughters, one son, three grandchildren, two great-grandchildren, and a host of friends. Bro. Maynard expressed himself many times as being willing to leave this world and join those who had gone before. Funeral services were conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. Frank Apple, pastor of the Church.

P. T. KLAPP.

WICKER.

Nancy Catherine Sutton was born on July 8, 1851, and died December 7, 1927. She was married to Wm. J. Wicker in December, 1877. She is survived by her husband and two sons, John W. and Chas. Robert; also one brother, three sisters, one half-sister, three grandchildren, and many other relatives and friends. She had been a member of Bethlehem Christian Church for more than fifty years. She was sick for several months, yet she bore her sufferings with patience to the end. May the Heavenly Father comfort the bereaved.

T. J. GREEN.

WANTED TO SELL

A Tract of Land, about 25 acres, 2½ miles south of Elon College, near a new graded road, suitable for a small dairy, pig, or poultry farm. For price and terms, apply to

W. T. NOAH
Elon College, N. C.

OXFORD TEACHERS' BIBLES

An Oxford Teachers' Bible has references and 300 pages of helps that are a mine of information to Bible students. The helps are arranged in alphabetical order, like a dictionary. They are accurate, comprehensive and up-to-date. A few styles are listed here. Many others are described in our Bible catalogue, mailed upon request.

04403 [This size print] Bound in French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, size 6½ x 4½ inches $4.00

0623x [Same Bible as 04403] Printed on Oxford India paper. Only 1 inch thick. $6.00

04453 [This size print] French Morocco leather binding, overlapping covers, 7½ x 5 in. $4.35

0773x [Same Bible as 04453] Printed on Oxford India paper. A remarkably thin and light Bible. (Only 1 inch thick) $7.75

05453 [Same Bible as 04453] With the words of Jesus Christ printed in red $6.25

05453x [Same Bible as 0773x] With the words of Jesus Christ printed in red $8.75

04523 [This size print] A self-pronouncing Oxford Bible. Bound in French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, size 8½ x 5½ inches. $5.50

0923x [Same Bible as 04523] Printed on Oxford India paper, only 1½ inches thick. $9.75

ORDER FROM
"THE CHRISTIAN SUN"

Richmond, Va.

BETHLEHEM COLLEGE

WADLEY, ALABAMA

A JUNIOR COLLEGE AND HIGH SCHOOL.

Where Opportunity Awaits the Student of Very Limited Means.

GIRL'S DORMITORY.

Bethlehem College, Wadley, Ala., will open September 5, 1927. This institution is a Junior College and High School, which is co-educational, where scholarship ranks high and expense is low. It is thoroughly Christian, absolutely non-sectarian, and vitally American. A school where opportunity awaits the student of very limited means—$68.00 pays all college expenses, except books, board and room. Board, $15.00 per month, and room $3.00; total expenses for a term of nine months, $250.00.

Bethlehem College is training some of the best stock of America for Christian leadership, to be used by the nation and the world. Here is a great challenge and asset for students who wish to prepare themselves to serve in a worth-while way. The work on the new Administration Building is progressing nicely, and we will be able to begin our college work in this building when school opens this fall.

For catalog and other information, address S. L. Beougher, President.

HOLMAN BIBLES

FOR CHILDREN
PICTORIAL BIBLES WITH HELPS

The text is self-pronouncing, by the aid of which children can learn to pronounce the difficult Scripture proper names.

Specimen of Type
27 And the boys grew: and Esau was a cunning hunter.
5 And the streets of the city shall be full of boys and girls playing in the streets thereof.

With beautiful photo views of scenes in Bible lands distributed throughout the text. Also maps of Bible lands in colors. Also new Practical Helps to Bible Study, especially designed for instructing children in scriptural information.

No. 9111. French Seal Leather, overlapping covers, round corners, gold edges, gold titles.

Our Price—Post Paid 2.30

COLORING PICTURE EDITION

Portraying in natural colors, scenes and places taken from nature and life in the Holy Land.

No. 9211. Same as No. 9111, but with Beautifully Colored Pictures.

Our Price—Post Paid 2.40

FOR INTERMEDIATE SUNDAY-SCHOOL SCHOLARS

Large Clear Black Type, Self-Pronouncing, containing Helps to Bible Study, 1000 Questions and Answers, Maps in Colors, and Presentation Page. A Beautiful Gift Bible.

Specimen of Type.
22 And the prophet Is'ra-el, and said unto thyself, and mark, and for at the return of t
Size, 7 x 5 inches.

No. 215. Divinity Circuit Style, Bound in French Seal Leather, round corners, red under gold edges, with silk head bands and purple silk marker, gold titles, etc.

Our Price—Post Paid 3.10

No. 3215RL. Red Letter Scholars' Bible, same Bible as No. 215, with all the Sayings of Christ printed in Red, and with Red and gold INLaid PANEL SIDE TITLES, also Beautifully Colored Pictures.

Our Price—Post Paid 3.45

Holman Self-Pronouncing

VEST POCKET TESTAMENTS

Clearer Print in Smallest Size
4 3/4 x 2 3/4 x 3/4 inches

Specimen of Type.
AND the third day there was a marriage in Cana of Galilee; and the mother of Jesus was

2133K. Bound in durable Morocco Grain Semble Leather, flexible limp, gilt titles60

2113. French Morocco, genuine leather, flexible limp, gold titles, rounded corners, gold edges.70

2115P. French Morocco, Divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, with the Book of Psalms included $1.10

ILLUSTRATED VEST POCKET TESTAMENT

With Pictures of Holy Land Scenes
2814. French Morocco, limp, gold side title round corners, red under gold edges85

RED LETTER VEST POCKET TESTAMENT

With all the words of our Lord printed in red.

13RL. French Morocco, flexible limp, gold side title on red panel, gold edges.85

15RLP. French Morocco, overlapping covers, flexible, gold side title on red panel, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included $1.25

INDIA PAPER VEST POCKET TESTAMENT

Thin as a Water
2136XP. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, with Psalms included $2.25

Send Your Orders to
THE CHRISTIAN SUN
1536 E. Broad Street
RICHMOND - VIRGINIA

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Official Organ of the Southern Christian Convention.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXX.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, JANUARY 12, 1928.

NUMBER 2.

THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY

By REV. S. M. LYNAM.

Coveted Ring.—

The ring presented by Queen Elizabeth to her favorite, the Earl of Essex, on his departure for Cadiz, was sold recently for $2,700.

Growing Prison Population.—

According to a recent report, New York State now has one thousand more prisoners than it has cells to house them in. In four of the New York prisons there are now fifty-nine hundred prisoners. A new cell-house will soon be completed at Sing Sing Prison which will care for twelve hundred prisoners of the State. The new criminal code which makes the conviction on a fourth offense a sentence to life imprisonment is having its effect, and the prisons of the State are fast filling up.

Accidents.—

It is reported that twenty-five thousand workers are killed annually by machinery not properly safeguarded. It is also pointed out that labor accidents cost four billion dollars every year. These figures are the largest for any country in the world. It is to be remembered, however, that more machinery is used in the United States than in any other country, but even so the death rate from accidents is too high, and the cost too great. More care should be taken to guard the lives of the workers in our factories.

Economy.—

Charles M. Schwab, the great steel magnate, claims to be wearing an overcoat which has served him for fifteen winters. When asked what had given him more happiness and peace of soul than anything else, Mr. Schwab replied, "It's the satisfaction of living a life that will make you stand well in the opinion of your fellow-citizens, of having their good wishes and their love and respect." The thing which has blessed the life of this man might prove a blessing to us all, and we should strive to find happiness and peace of soul along lines of Christian living and Christian principles.

A Call for Songs.—

The President of Costa Rica, Ricardo Jimenez, has issued a call for songs. He wants them "fresh from the farms and the rivers," not withered songs from the cabarets. He wishes through two great contests to glean material which will be compiled into a book on native music, and which will defend Costa Rica from the tremendous invasion of poor songs which cross the border to spoil pleasure for the Costa Ricans. It is a pity that the good song has given place to the cheapest sort of jazz, and it is a sad comment on our music when governmental steps have to be taken to defend a nation against the invasion of poor songs.

Tips.—

Pullman porters ought to be a happy lot, according to recent estimates the American public pays them $720,000 a month in tips which amounts to $8,640,000 annually. This is a large sum to spend on tips to Pullman porters exclusive of all the other classes who must be tipped by the traveling public in the United States.

Cost of Education.—

According to reports, there are 28 million children who are attending public school in the United States. To educate this vast army of youngsters, the nation spends about two and one-half billion dollars, or about one hundred dollars per child. In many of the large cities the cost is much higher, running to about three hundred dollars per child. How great a force the public school teachers of the United States could wield is revealed in the fact that nearly one-fourth of the nation's population is attending public school this year. It is a field of great opportunity and of great promise.

Height.—

Captain Hawthorne C. Gray, famous United States Army balloonist of Scott Field, Belleville, Ill., lost his life recently in reaching the highest altitude ever attained by a human being. Captain Gray's balloon containing his dead body was found in a tree near Sparta, Tenn. It is thought that the oxygen supply gave out, and that the balloonist died at an altitude of forty-four thousand feet, more than eight miles above the earth. The last entry in the log of Captain Gray was made at a height of forty thousand feet, but the instruments showed that he reached about forty-four thousand feet, which sets a world record for altitude.

Speed.—

While testing out a new racing aeroplane for the first time at Mitchell Field, N. Y., Lieutenant Alfred J. Williams attained a speed of 322 miles an hour for a short distance. This is the greatest speed ever attained by man. A few days before Major de Bernardi, the famous Italian aviator, who won the Schneider cup race in 1926, reached a speed of 315 miles an hour in a seaplane. Both of these records, however, are unofficial. Lieutenant Williams announced that he would set a new official record at an early date. The world's official speed record is held by the British flyer, Lieutenant S. N. Webster, who won the Schneider cup this year. In the race, Lieutenant Webster made an average speed of 281 miles an hour for a distance of 217 miles, and so set the official speed record.

Our Crime Bill.—

The National Association of Manufacturers met in Chattanooga, Tenn., recently and was told by its president that "despite the claims that we are the richest and most prosperous nation in the world, we have little to boast of so long as we stand out as the most lawless nation the world has ever known with a crime bill of more than ten billion dollars." According to John E. Edgerton, the president of the National Association of Manufacturers, we spend four times as much on crime as on education, and one-ninth of the entire income of the nation is spent on crime. These figures are alarming in their implications, and citizens of the United States ought to be more vitally concerned about the matter than now seems to be the case.

Standard of Living.—

Much is being said and written about the standard of living in the United States these days. A report recently issued by the Department of Internal Revenue places the income of the American people for 1926 at nearly ninety billion dollars. This means that every man, woman and child in the country, figuring the population at 117,000,000, had an income of $770. These figures mean that the standard of living in the United States for 1926 was higher than that of any people in the history of the world. Since 1921 the total national income has grown by leaps and bounds. In that year it amounted to about 62 billion dollars. In 1926 the average income of those gainfully employed was $2,200, while in 1921 it amounted to only $1,637. It is questionable, however, as to whether this large income is conducive to the best national life, because it is definitely understood that the distribution is by no means equalized.

Debts.—

European nations are getting ready to pay the United States nearly one hundred million dollars on loan curtailments. Great Britain alone pays ninety-two million of this amount. Amid the much discussion of the indebtedness of European nations to the United States it is interesting to know that thirteen nations now owe the United States. The amounts follow: Great Britain, $4,600,000,000; Finland, $9,000,000; Hungary, $1,939,000; Lithuania, $6,030,000; Poland, $178,560,000; Belgium, $417,780,000; Latvia, $5,775,000; Czechoslovakia, $115,000,000; Estonia, $17,830,000; Italy, $2,042,000,000; Roumania, $44,590,000; France, $5,025,000,000; Yugoslavia, $62,850,000. When totaled, these figures amount to a very large sum, and the interest from Europe is large. It is little wonder that the European countries should be anxious to have their debts reduced, but the American people would dislike to lose so large a sum.

NOTES-PERSONALS

Miss Pattie Lee Coghill reports a fine Young People's Congress for our general Church recently held at Dayton, Ohio.

In this issue of THE SUN is a valuable find, furnished by Mr. MacClenny, our Historian, which many will read with interest.

THE SUN's editor continues to improve, and shortly expects to go to Florida for further rest. The prayers of the Church will accompany him.

January 16th is the birthday of the eighteenth amendment. We hope that our Churches will duly celebrate some time during the week that great event.

Rev. C. C. Ryan, D. D., pastor First Christian Church, Richmond, is spending this week in and about his former home in Ohio. He will return the last of the week and fill his pulpit next Sunday.

Mr. George D. Colclough, field and alumni secretary of Elon College, is doing some graduate study at the University of North Carolina this winter quarter. He has done fine work for the college.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN rejoices in the "Pastors' Conference," the first of its kind ever held in the Southern Christian Convention, scheduled at Elon College January 23-27th, as described in the Elon Letter this week. Let every pastor go.

Mr. J. W. Carlton, Richmond, Va., one of the princely and courtly gentlemen of our Church, and the father of Messrs. P. J., L. E., and H. A. Carlton and of Mrs. T. S. Parrott, we are glad to say, is improving after a continued illness.

The General Board of Christian Education has issued a very attractive "Call to Prayer" for January 15th. We are printing this elsewhere in this issue. We hope that many of our Churches will use it. We must not, on any circumstances, neglect to pray for our colleges on January 15th.

Dr. and Mrs. A. D. Woodworth write from the waters of Puget Sound that they are happily on their way back to Japan. They feel very much benefitted by their furlough and appreciate the courtesy and consideration shown them by our people and other denominations. May God bless them in their work.

Of the benevolent budget, the amount apportioned for each Church to raise for our colleges is printed opposite the name of the Church. This will make a good showing for our people. Let us join heartily in the work; it will be easy if all take part. January and February are the months set apart for this work.

Rev. Solomon S. Zulu, of Natal, South Africa, has ordered a copy of the "Principles and Government of the Christian Church." The conference of Natal, Swaziland and Transvaal is to meet in April, and he is anxious to tie his work up there with the Christian Church. He is anxious for some one to come and look the field over.

Elon College opened for the spring semester on January 3rd. Some few students failed in their studies and others were not able to return because of financial reasons or sickness. The registrar announces that about twenty new students came to take their places, so that the college enrollment happily is full. We congratulate the college upon this situation.

Mr. Hermon Eldredge, Dayton, Ohio, field secretary of our General Board of Christian Education, visited Elon on January 4th. He had just attended the opening of our new Sunday School building at Richmond, on January 1st, and visited our Sunday School building in process of erection at Suffolk. He spoke most highly of both places.

Bro. W. A. Newman, of our Henderson Church, in renewing for THE CHRISTIAN SUN, says: "THE CHRISTIAN SUN has been in our family for more than seventy-five years. My grandfather, Austin Newman, was a subscriber as long as he lived, and my father was a subscriber as far back as I can remember. We have been taking it in our own family for many years. It also goes to the homes of our children, and I hope it will continue to visit our family from generation to generation."

Rev. Luman H. Royce, of Cleveland Heights, Ohio, the national director of city work for the Congregational Church Extension Boards, was a pleasant visitor to the college on January 2nd. He preached in our Raleigh Church on the morning of January 1st, and in the Burlington Church on the evening of that day. Dr. Royce is deeply interested in the proposal to unite the Congregational and Christian Churches. He thinks that the union of these two Churches would give the united Church a national scope, since the Christian Church is strong in sections of the country where the Congregational Church is weak.

THE NEW YEAR.

Today there is behind us a closed door that no one can open. Before us there is an open door that no one can close. We have passed through the door that is now closed and locked forever. Some of us have taken advantage of the opportunities that presented themselves while we were passing through the door that is now closed. Some of us did not take advantage of those opportunities, and those opportunities are now passed and gone forever. Now, at the beginning of a new year, is an opportune time for us to realize that the old year is past and gone, and that time that is gone is gone forever and ever. Now, at the beginning of the new year, is the time for us to realize that the coming year and years will be just what we make them. Now is the time for us to resolve to make the best of the time to come. Now is the time for us to resolve that we will so live in the coming year that when it is passed and the door is locked that we can say we have made the best of our opportunities and we are willing that the door be locked forever.

Our nation is looking forward to the year 1928 as being the greatest year in all history. Our business institutions are looking forward to the year 1928 as being the greatest year known to man. Why not we look forward to this year as being the greatest year that the Church has ever known? As we go through this door, why not write history that we will be proud of when the door is closed and the records recorded? The answer is up to you and me. What shall we do with time?

C. J. STRICKLAND.

OUR HONORARY LIST—THE CHRISTIAN SUN NEW SUBSCRIPTIONS.

W. H. Freeman, Star, N. C.	5
Mrs. H. L. Wall, Littleton, N. C.	4
Mrs. B. J. Beale, Holland, Va.	2
Mrs. C. V. Dunn, Paces, Va.	1
Rev. L. L. Wyrick, Elon College, N. C.	1
J. Lee Johnson, Fuquay Springs, N. C.	2
W. A. Newman, Henderson, N. C.	7
Mrs. W. H. Floyd, Abanda, Ala.	1
Mrs. C. A. Bost, High Point, N. C.	1
Mrs. T. F. Roquemore, Lanett, Ala.	25
Rev. J. G. Truitt, Norfolk, Va.	2

HISTORICAL DATA.

Dear Editor:

Through the kindness of Dr. Garnett Ryland, of your city, I have been permitted to read "A Vindication of the Author's Apology," with reflections on the reply and a few remarks on Bishop Asbury's annotations on his "Book of Discipline," by James O'Kelly, printed at Raleigh for the author by Joseph Gales, printer to the State, 1801.

In this pamphlet, the following letter is found which throws much light on Rev. James O'Kelly's life and may be interesting to you and perhaps others. He says: "Some time past, a friend wrote to me in the following manner:

"Brother O'Kelly,—The first time I ever saw Francis Asbury was about the year 1780. A little after the Fluvanna conference. He informed me why he could not travel at large. It was because of the oath of fidelity; and, therefore, took shelter in the State of Delaware. He was opposed to our separating from the Church of England, etc. We are done here with human heads and human laws for the government of Christ's Church. Little did I think when Samuel Yeargin, the preacher, my mother and myself persuaded you to join in society about twenty-five years ago I should ever live to see you so stigmatized as you are, and the Scriptures so depreciated by the Methodist synod! And from all I hear, in private and public, you are thus treated because you hold by the New Testament, or the Scripture government, which was the very term of union at the first.

"I knew you for years before you joined the Methodists, and I never heard you were called a lying man, a tattler, a mischief maker, or a busybody in other men's matters; but, on the contrary, when unconverted, mirth and company you delighted in. Now, if a religion makes a man so much more like the devil than he was by nature, he had better have none. But you must be slandered. Do not regard it. Our Lord was treated just so. Go on in the name of the Lord, and may His cause prosper. Amen. (Signed) Osborn Pope."

By the U. S. Census of 1790, Osborn Pope was a resident of the Beaver Dam District of Granville County, N. C., and there were Yeargins in Mecklenburg County, Va., and as one of the Methodist historians says that Mecklenburg County, Va., was O'Kelly's home county, and in 1789 there was a house with lands known as the O'Kelly Place in the same county, and knowing from his own pen that he was a native of Virginia, it looks like Mecklenburg County, Va., which joins Granville County, N. C., was the place of his birth. Perhaps some one can give more data.

You can use this if you see fit, and next week I will try to send you a quotation from the same pamphlet, stating his belief in answer to the charge that his theology was not sound.

Yours very truly,

W. E. MACCLENLY.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

THE FACT OF GOD.

JOHN G. TRUITT, Preacher.

"From everlasting to everlasting Thou art God."—Psa. 90:2.

There is a god. And He is not a finished and forgotten subject. If one went to the living of the Christians in this Christian country for full proof of Him, one might have cause for despair; that is, I mean, if one took all professed followers of Christ as a whole and observed constantly like the eye of God just how they live, and think, and act, one might wonder if it really were true that Jesus Christ set forth fully and accurately God. But there are in every community men and women, and children whom to know and understand the beauty and grace of their lives is to know and love a good and true God. If we take the whole world for a test of God in folks, we may despair, but if we "consider Job," or, better still, if we consider Jesus, we will see the Father and it will suffice.

"From everlasting to everlasting Thou art God." In this day we preachers have excused ourselves of a great deal of preaching concerning God, because we have said the young people do not want theology. We have watered the common stock of the Christian's message, seeking to make it new and inviting, we say, for the young mind, until it has in many pulpits and persons lost its essential quality of everlasting supernaturalness. If God is anything, He is everything. If God is to be reckoned with at all, He is to be reckoned with altogether. He cannot be a sort of Sunday panacea for Monday's meanness, nor can He be used as a sort of correction for deliberately bad dealing. Many will say, "Lord, Lord," who will hear Him say, "Depart from me, ye workers of iniquity; I never knew you."

Such crimes as are making the reading for our great republic, such records as are filling the filing cabinets of our divorce courts, and such laxity as is rampant throughout the land is but a natural result of the forgetting of what our text says, "From everlasting to everlasting Thou art God." The fact of God has not stood everlastingly before us and said in unmistakable tones: "This is right, and that is wrong." There is not a boy in this Church but what can drive to Washington city, because he will be able to read ever and anon a sign saying, "Take this road to Washington." But is there a sign set ever before the boy who would travel to the eternal city of God, saying, "This way, and none other?" Why is it that boys raised in American homes can go out in the spirit of premeditated, youthful prankishness and perpetrate the most hideous crimes ever recorded in the annals of human history? It is not because boys are essentially bad, but it is because we have missed God.

No wonder the Manufacturers' Record carried an editorial a few days ago with this sentence in it: "In short, we need a revival of that soul-searching religion which will make men and women strive in every act of life to do that which, on the great judgment day, they will wish they had done, as with soul uncovered they stand before the judgment seat of the Eternal." We may think it fine to take religion lightly now, to use the Church as a mere convenience now, to think little about our actions before God now; but the time is coming when every knee will bend before Him, and every person will know the full meaning of the text: "From everlasting to everlasting Thou art God."

Consider Paul as a preacher. There was nothing ing palliating about Paul's message concerning God and Jesus Christ His Son. "God that made the world and all things therein, seeing that He is Lord of heaven and earth, dwelleth not in temples made with hands, and is not worshiped with men's hands, as though He needed anything, seeing He giveth to all life, and breath, and all things; and hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth, and hath determined the times before appointed, and the bounds of their habitation that they should seek the Lord, if haply they might feel after Him, and find Him, though He be not far from every one of us: for in Him we live, and move, and have our being; as certain also of your own poets have said, 'For we are also His offspring.' Forasmuch, then, as we are the offspring of God, we ought not to think that the Godhead is like unto gold, or silver, or stone, graven by art and man's device. And the times of this ignorance God winked at; but now commandeth all men everywhere to repent: because He hath appointed a day, in which He will judge the world in righteousness by that Man whom He hath ordained; whereof He hath given assurance unto all men in that He hath raised Him from the dead." It is clearly seen from this quotation from one of Paul's sermons that he preached the fact of God, and the person of His Son Jesus Christ.

Our country, yea, and our hearts are crying out for God, as is indicated by the sentence quoted from an editorial of the Manufacturers' Record. We dare not forget His goodness, or despise His riches, or overlook His judgments. We cannot forget Him, and be at peace with ourselves, nor the world; it is not as easy as that. Let us turn to the Scriptures again: "Or despisest thou the riches of His goodness and forbearance and long-suffering; not knowing that the goodness of God leadeth thee to repentance? But after thy hardness and impenitent heart treasurest up unto thyself wrath against the day of wrath and revelation of the righteous judgment of God; who will render to every man according to his deeds; to them who by patient continuance in well doing seek for glory and honor and immortality, eternal life: but unto them that are contentious, and do not obey the truth, but obey unrighteousness, indignation and wrath, tribulation and anguish, upon every soul of man that doeth evil, of the Jew first, and also of the Gentile: for there is no respect of persons with God."

Can God be known? Why, knowledge of Him cannot be escaped. "When I consider the heavens, the work of Thy fingers, the moon and the stars which Thou hast ordained," there is emblazoned in the darkness in diadems unmistakable God! In all of nature there is something that cries out to all men—savage, barbarian, civilized and cultured God! In the face of a friend, in the hope of a child, and in the moving millions all about us there is something crying out God! In the thoughts of men written in books, photographed for the screen, and making the very air alive, as we know today, is evidence of God. The home, the school, the Church, the Book tell of Him. There is no excuse for not knowing Him, "For the invisible things of Him from the creation of the world are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made, even His eternal power and Godhead: so that they are without excuse." "From everlasting to everlasting Thou art God."

The sentence quoted from the aforementioned editorial is not worrying over whether we can know God or not; but it is concern with the fact that we have forgotten God. It is that that should give a so-called Christian community pause; it is that forgetting and neglecting of God that should send our nation to its needs; it is that that explains to some measure at least the emptiness of our Churches all over the land, and the crowding of other places where little things are painted large, and larger things are more than often forgotten. "The wicked shall be turned into hell, and all the nations that forget God." Are we as individual Christians defaulting in our personal lives and defeating the plan of God for ourselves, then let us "return unto God, and He shall return unto us."

God is a fact; yes, and often of far more comfort to us, God is a Father. Because God is a Father, He left nothing undone to acquaint us with that fact. Because of that, Jesus came into the world an only begotten Son of God to reveal the Fatherhood of God to the individuals of the whole world and to thereby redeem the world through its reconciliation with God. For a purpose so great as this, the sufferings of Christ were not out of balance. Nothing was too much to do, if God could only get the world to know Him as Father. Taking on the form of sinful flesh, being yet without sin, was not too much; suffering the curses and abuses of His own were not too much; yea, dying on the cross like malefactor was not too much, if only the world might know that God is real, and that God is a Father. If the world will look at Christ, His Son, it will see Him; and no longer will they live at a poor dying rate, but they shall live abundantly forever. "For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on Him should not perish, but have everlasting life. For God sent not His Son into the world to condemn the world; but that the world through Him might be saved."

"From everlasting to everlasting Thou art God." Let us place that text before ourselves, and cease our sinning consciously and willfully against our Heavenly Father. Let us no more forget Him; let us no more turn away from Him; but rather let us make the sentiment of an old song our prayer today, "I've wandered far away from God, now I'm coming home."

AN ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

I wish to extend my sincere thanks for myself and family to our many friends who have been so loyal to us during my long affliction, not only for our needs financially, but for their prayers to our Heavenly Father for our spiritual needs, also for their kind words of sympathy to encourage us on to a higher and better life.

Trusting that this New Year will bring to us all joys that we have never experienced, and looking to Him that supplies all our needs, I am,

Gratefully,

Franklin, Va.

J. T. CROSS.

TARBELL'S TEACHERS' GUIDE.

A commentary on the International Uniform Sunday School Lessons, 1928; the most complete and useful volume on the International Lessons ever written. It is designed for use by teachers and pupils of all grades from that above the primary up to and including Bible classes of all departments. It is nicely printed, in plain, open type, easy to read. Illustrated with diagrams, charts and paintings by celebrated artists. The price, postage prepaid, is $2.00 per copy. Send your orders to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 East Broad Street, Richmond, Va.

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITO

J. O. ATKINSON, Elon College, N. C.

Contributing Editors

W. W. STALEY

W. A. HARPER

R. C. HELFENSTEIN

S. C. HARRELL

PRINCIPLES OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

- (1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
- (2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
- (3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of Church membership.
- (5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

THE CHURCH AND THE COLLEGE.

January and February are the months named by the Southern Christian Convention and approved by the Conferences to take the offering for Elon and Bethlehem Colleges to meet financial obligations. The necessity for this call is urgent, and it contains two obligations, and three reasons for every Church in the Convention to do its part in a willing spirit. The two objectives are Elon and Bethlehem. The three reasons are the credit of the Churches, the credit of the colleges, and the credit of the Convention.

Elon and Bethlehem are doing great service for the Church. The growth of the Church since these institutions were founded proves their value and makes a just claim upon the Churches for their support and improvement. They have saved the Church from decline and linked it up with other denominations and interdenominational organizations in a co-operative service helpful to the kingdom. They are increasing in usefulness all the time, and this means increase in the expense of operation. Better buildings, larger faculties, greater requirements by the Southern Association of Colleges, all spell more money to meet the necessity of this age of progress. That is in harmony with everything else in this day. Nothing is done without greater cost, and greater things have to be done. Roads are better, schools are better, dwellings are better, stores are better, wages are better, Churches are better; and thus it runs all the way of progress. There is no end to progress; when it ends, progress ends. These colleges must be maintained to carry on the good work already begun. The object of effort during these two months is to raise money for Elon and Bethlehem, the educational centers that mean so much to the Christian Church. There are three reasons for maintaining these objectives—to maintain the credit of the local Church, the credit of the colleges, and the credit of the Convention.

First, the credit of the local Church. The local Church is the foundation of all the institutions and enterprises that undertake larger work. The State rests on the citizens, and that is the reason for taxes. Churches cannot maintain their credit unless they support the enterprises and institutions of the Convention. Churches are units in the Conferences that compose the Convention. The only resource of the Convention is the contributions made by Conferences through the local Churches. Individual members in their faith, their consecration, their contributions, their love and their loyalty, are the bricks and stones that make the Convention.

The second, the credit of the colleges. Colleges stand or fall as they maintain credit with the Southern Association of Colleges. That association requires certain buildings, faculties and endowment to make the college a standard college. This is not a choice, but a demand, and the college must comply or drop out of the standard grade. To maintain the credit of our colleges, money must be raised, and these two months are the time named by the Convention in which this offering must be taken. Nothing can prosper when it loses its credit.

The third, the credit of the Convention. The Convention founded these colleges, and is responsible for their maintenance. Its credit is involved in their credit and history. They are the property of the Convention, and organizations, like men, go up or down with their possessions. If the colleges fail to meet their financial obligations, it lowers the credit of the Convention. Credit is the main thing in organized and incorporated institutions. The credit of the local Church, the colleges, and the Convention will rise or fall with the January and February offerings.

OUR APPRECIATION OFFERING.

As stated in this column last week, we are now in the midst of our college period in the benevolence program of our Church. The quotas as worked out by the budget commission of the Southern Christian Convention for Conferences and Churches are printed elsewhere in this issue.

Our educational institutions have done a great service for our Church, and the offering this year on their behalf is to be known as "our appreciation offering." Surely, we appreciate our institutions of higher learning.

Bethlehem is too young to have rendered a large service to the Church, but it has been a power for uplift and inspiration to our work in the far South, and if it is given support and financial backing, it will in the coming days render a correspondingly great service.

Elon College has been rendering a signal ministry to our brotherhood nearly forty years. There are many reasons why the Christian Church should express its appreciation for this institution at this time. We will enumerate some of them:

Because it has prepared our ministers, than whom there are none better in any Church.

It has prepared for us lay workers by the thousands, who are the backbone of our local Churches in every section.

It has faithfully taught the principles of the Christian Church and molded the thinking of our leadership in accordance with those principles.

It has won the public esteem for its work. It is safe to say that few small colleges in the United States are so well known and so highly esteemed as our college.

It has secured recognition as a standard college and is a member of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, the highest distinction that can come to a college in this section of the country.

It has made its motto, "Christian Character

First and Always"—a motto that is influential in molding the ideals of all who come under its influence.

It heroically recovered from its disastrous fire in 1923, and now has one of the best equipped plants of any small college in the country.

It has rendered such a great work in the field of Christian education that it is known throughout the country as a leader in this field, and surely the Christian Church would rather its college lead in this field than in any other.

But we appreciate Elon more because it is our own institution. We have made it possible. We have sacrificed for it. It is ours—the child of our love and devotion, the creature of our own hearts and aspirations, and as such we appreciate it.

And now, during January and February, our people have the opportunity to express their appreciation in a very practical way. The Southern Christian Convention has adopted a benevolence budget, and in that budget an allotment has been made for our colleges which is necessary to care for them. They cannot carry on their work without this money, and we have the opportunity now to express our appreciation for these institutions and to strengthen them for a larger service in the future. There is no question but that we can raise this money, and there ought to be no question that we will do it. It is in the hands of our ministers and of our leaders in our local Churches.

Our Defiance College, in Ohio, a year ago lost its membership in the North Central Association because our people in that section of our Church did not support the institution financially. It would be a calamity if Elon would lose its membership in the Southern Association, but this very calamity threatens us, and the only way that we can avoid it is for our people to make their "appreciation offering" so liberal that the money assigned Elon in the Southern Christian Convention benevolence program will be fully raised.

It is hoped that every Church in the Southern Christian Convention will pray for our colleges on January 15th, the "Day of Prayer" set aside by our denomination for prayer for these colleges. There is nothing we can do more for our colleges than to pray for them, that God will so direct their faculties and students that Christian character may crown our efforts at Christian education.

W. A. H.

THE PSYCHOLOGY OF FAITH.

Faith fills a much larger place in the life of each of us than we realize. We eat our food by faith, believing that it will nourish our bodies instead of poisoning us. By faith we make our every business transaction, believing that those with whom we transact the business are reliable and dependable, and believing that our own judgment of values is good. By faith we love, and by faith we live.

The psychology of faith is the explanation of the causes that underlie and contribute to the experience of faith and the consequences of the experience—the explanation of why we believe, and the result of our believing.

Christian faith is of a three-fold nature—three degrees through which one must pass before he is initiated into the complete Christian experience. The first degree consists in the acceptance of the testimony of others regarding certain facts that constitute the basis of the Christian religion. The first testimony to be accepted is the testimony of the Scriptures as they tell the story of the Man of Galilee—the fact of His life, the way that He lived, and the validity of what He taught.

Then one must accept the testimony of secular and sacred history as it tells the part that Christianity has played in the world's drama of life, the influence Christianity has exerted in directing the course of human events, and the contribution Christian institutions have made to the advancement of civilization.

It is also imperative that one accept the testimony of contemporary lives as to what Christianity has effected in the lives of men and women we know. The most convincing testimony of the efficiency of Christian faith is the changed lives it produces today. A consistent Christian life cannot be doubted by any one. A group of skeptical-minded young men were arguing about religion in a place of business. The fact that a minister of the gospel was present caused them to introduce numerous "chestnut questions" that every generation for the past two thousand years has hashed and rehashed to no purpose, the young men thinking that if they could not answer their own questions, they could call on the minister for assistance. Finally, one of the young chaps who prided himself in being "hard-boiled," when in truth he was only "half-baker," defiantly asked of his companions: "Well, what does it mean to be a Christian, anyway?" Like a flash, one of the fellows standing near the window said: "There goes the answer to your question." And as he made the remark he pointed out the window at one of the noblest, one of the most consecrated Christian laymen I have ever knew; a man who every one of the young men realized lived a clean, honorable, useful life; a man who tithed his time and his income in the service of his Church; a man who was a friend to the rich and to the poor, to the high and to the low. "There goes the answer to your question." And it was! As the young men looked out the window and saw the sincere Christian man walking along the street, they knew that his life was the answer to the question, "What does it mean to be a Christian?" That man is now in heaven, but for those young men and for hundreds of others the life he lived will always be the answer to the question, "What does it mean to be a Christian?" He was always using his influence in promoting the good, always in favor of progress and everything that honored God, and always opposed to the wrong.

The testimony of such a life and the testimony of the thousands of noble Christian men and women must be accepted as evidence of the authenticity of the claims of the Christian religion by every thinking person.

To accept the testimony of Scripture, the testimony of secular and sacred history, and the testimony of contemporary lives, and to acknowledge that testimony as valid and authentic—that is the first degree in the experience of Christian faith. Too many people call themselves Christians who have gone no further "than the first degree." But the first degree in the Christian experience does not initiate one into the realities of the Christian faith.

The acceptance of Christ as one's personal Saviour is the second degree in the experience of Christian faith. To be a Christian, one must not only believe that Christ was, but one must also believe that he is. It is not enough to believe what has been said about Christ. Much that has been said about Him may be disbelieved even by a Christian, but one cannot be a Christian without believing Him. We must believe Him. To be Christians, we must trust Him. We must believe that the eternal and abiding Christ is as real today as was the earthly Jesus in the days of the disciples, and that as the Man of Galilee walked along the highways helping men in the long ago, so He walks with us along our ways in life today seeking opportunities to help us. It is ours to believe that the unseen but ever-present Christ is as real as the air we breathe, as real as the food we eat, as real as the lives we live, as real as the personalities we love. To accept Christ as our Friend, our Ideal and our Saviour is the second degree in the sublime mysteries and the divine possibilities of the Christian experience.

The third degree in the Christian experience is the practicing of "the Jesus way of living." To prove one's faith by one's manner of life and by one's works and love; to practice the teachings of Jesus, His spirit and His love; to follow Him in a filial relationship toward God, and in a brotherly relation toward men is the third degree in the experience of Christian faith. Thus, as Henry Drummond put it, "Faith is an experiment which leads to an experience."

Faith comes by hearing, but it can only be realized by doing; it can live only by doing. Not until one has taken this third degree in the Christian experience can he be initiated into the certainties of Christian knowledge. "If any man willeth to do His will, he shall know." "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free."

Faith is the spiritual sense of human life. Just as hearing, seeing, touching, tasting and the sense of smell are physical senses to acquaint us with the facts of the material world, so faith is the spiritual sense to acquaint us with the fact of God and of the spiritual realities of life.

Faith calls to its service all four factors that make personality.

It summons the physical powers—"Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy strength." Physical health and physical strength contribute directly to mental health and strength and to spiritual efficiency. A strong mind has a better chance in a strong body than in a weak body. Hence, physical vitality is a great asset to religious efficiency. Physical strength may minister to spiritual needs. Physical energies may be transmuted into spiritual force. The great question, "Know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Spirit?" was put in the form of a question only to emphasize the fact. It is a religious duty to take care of one's health. To violate the laws of health is to sin against one's body, against one's mind, against one's soul, and against God. "Nothing should be put into one's stomach that will not nourish." Some people eat anything and everything, and then mistake their physical distress for an evidence of piety. Faith says "there is nothing nature will not do for you if you treat your body right, and there is nothing nature won't do to you if you treat your body wrong." The body is the medium of personality—the temple of the spirit of God. Christian faith recognizes the body as sacred.

Moreover, Christian faith recognizes the importance of the emotional element in religion. "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart." It recognizes that the emotions may be disciplined the same as can the intellect; that the heart is susceptible to training as truly as is the mind. A religion that does not have heart in it cannot minister to the whole of life. A religion that does not have heart in it soon becomes but a cold statement of ethics or a lifeless formality without soul appeal and without power. "Keep thy heart with all diligence, for out of it are the issues of life."

There is no occasion for worrying about any person who is right at heart, for the ruling motive in such a life is the motive of love. People who are in love with God, in love with the truth, with the right, with the beautiful, and "in love with love" may not be able to see eye to eye with their fellows in facing the various problems of life, but they will work heart to heart in effecting a solution of those problems.

Christian faith also recognizes the importance of the intellect in religion. "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy mind." "As a man thinketh, so is he." One's thinking determines his doings. Thought is the ruling power over conduct. "Study to show thyself approved unto God." The Christian religion has always emphasized the importance of correct thinking, of careful study, and of an understanding mind. The reason there is so much religious bigotry in the world is that so many people have substituted a second-hand religious testimony for the personal experience of thinking for themselves.

Christian faith also recognizes the importance of the volitional nature, the will. "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy soul"—you are commanded to love God with all your desires and with all your powers of choice. The will power is the soul power of a life. When the will is in harmony with God it always wills the good. It is the commandant of one's talents and one's powers. The keenest mind and the warmest heart are like idle tools upon the shelf unless they are commandeered by a strong will. We can discipline the will the same as we can discipline the intellect and the emotions. One of the greatest weaknesses in our modern educational program is that it deals too exclusively with the training of the intellect, and practically ignores the marvelous possibilities and the unsurpassed importance of training the emotions and the will. Christian faith touches the whole of life. "If any man willeth to do His will, he shall know." The desire to do must precede knowledge of how to do. And whenever a person makes up his mind that he is going to seek to do God's will in his various relationships of life, he will soon know the reality and the validity of God's promises and claims.

Faith as expressed in the fourfold loyalty to the highest and best, the consecration of one's body, one's mind, one's emotions, and one's will to God—that is the foundation of the superstructure of Christian character.

Christian faith declares that character is the supreme value of life. "What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul—his own life?" What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his character, his honor, in doing it? Many a man who has amassed his fortune at a direct loss to others has beaten his breast in despair as he pondered over the price he paid for what he got. No matter how much wealth a man may possess, if his character is gone, his wealth may prove a curse to God and to man. No matter how much a man may know about men and about things, if he does not know God, his knowledge may be a liability instead of an asset to the world.

The life that is motivated by Christian faith brings the highest tempered values to one's life here and now, and insures one of the eternal values in the life that is to come. Faith gives us the assurance of God's presence with us today, this hour, this very minute. It enables us to appropriate His divine promises in our daily lives. We will know by personal experience that "underneath are the everlasting arms." We can know by personal experience the reality of God's promise, "I will never leave you nor forsake you." We can know by personal experience the truth of God's promise of a forgiveness that is full and complete. "As far as the East is from the West, so far has He removed our transgressions from us." "Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow." And as Dr. Orchard, of London, so forcefully expresses the thought of forgiveness, "Even the sins so long sorrowed over have lost their crimson stain, and lie upon the mind as white as snow; for once confessed as sin, they become beacon-lights to guide us through the night." We can know by personal experience the incomparable satisfaction of the peace which Christ gives, the peace which passeth both under-

(Continued on Page 9.)

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

"The same to you!" is a little phrase, but it has a large meaning. It is the human expression of the Golden Rule. The Golden Rule says: "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you." This says: "Do unto others as they do unto you," when they do well unto you. Both leave out wrongdoing and imply good doing. Wherever Christmas is observed, this response is given to those who say, in a friendly way: "A Merry Christmas!" If Christmas did nothing more than coin and use those two phrases it would deserve the gratitude of mankind. It has made a new world. It has created a new atmosphere. It has introduced a new language and breathed upon mankind a new spirit. That is just what the world needs. It is just what man craves. It is the spirit of Bethlehem. It is the baby sincerity. It is the Jesus heart. It is the soul of peace. It is the utterance of good will. It is the harbinger of a new day. It is the spirit of the angel message. It is the rhythm of the song of the heavenly host.

That phrase has never been uttered so many times and so heartily as it was around the last Christmas Day. That expression honors Christ, though in many cases unconsciously. But it is in the atmosphere and Christians and non-Christians use it at the Christmas time. It helps to make mankind more friendly; and the time will come when not only individuals will meet and greet one another in this Christian spirit, but when nations will say to each other: "A Merry Christmas!" and respond, "The same to you!" and the Prince of Peace will reign over the kingdoms of the world which have become the kingdom of our Lord and His Christ. The world is not drifting back, but moving forward. The toy-world is not the only thing that recognizes Jesus Christ, but the heart-world is coming more and more to honor Him on the street in friendly salutations. It is one of the remarkable things in human history that such small things as words indicate a world-progress in that which is best. Words express thoughts, feelings, aspirations, and convictions. Many of these are unconscious expressions of deep-seated truth struggling for a place in human history. But that simply, friendly greeting is a part of the honor paid to Jesus Christ in the closed school, the closed store, the family reunion, the infinite number of cards and presents, the decorated Christmas trees, the big dinners, the handsome presents, the good will, and all that makes up Christmas.

"The same to you!" is not an idle word; it is the gold of human speech, the music of human feelings, the interpretation of a divine love that gave the Babe to save the world.

W. W. STALEY.

ELON LETTER.

For a long time it has been the hope of the college that we could have at Elon at a time of the year when the pastors of our Churches can most conveniently be absent from their work, a "Pastors' Conference." We have felt that some time in January would be the most appropriate time for this purpose.

At least, our dream has been realized, and this year, beginning January 23rd, at night, and closing January 27th, at night—five nights and four whole days—every active pastor in the Southern Christian Convention is to be the guest of the college and to have these glorious days to listen to addresses, to visit college classes, to conduct discussion groups or their own problems, to associate with each other in a personal way, and to allow the students to become personally acquainted with the leaders in our local Churches who are so responsible for the college and its success.

The students are anxious for this conference to be held. When the plans for it had been fully matured, the matter was presented to them to know what they thought. Their applause was spontaneous and unanimous, and they have joined with the college in extending the invitation to our pastors to be their guests as well as the guests of the college during this week.

Dr. L. E. Smith is to give five interpretative lectures on his travels in the Holy Land this summer. These addresses have been given to his own congregation at night. They have attracted large audiences and been impressively reported in the public press. Dr. Smith treats his travels in a new way and from a fresh attitude and angle. Then Dr. J. U. Newman, our veteran teacher of Bible in Elon, is to give four lectures on the Bible. Dr. Atkinson was scheduled to give four addresses, one each day, on missions. If he is unable to do this, a temporary arrangement will be made for this item.

Each afternoon there is to be a conference period in which the ministers will informally discuss any problem that occurs to them under the leadership of Dr. C. H. Rowland, Rev. Stanley C. Harrell, Dr. N. G. Newman, and Rev. Jno. G. Truitt.

Each night there will be an address, the speakers for which we are not able to announce at this time, but the thought will be to have persons address the group who will bring messages that will be worthwhile. Dean Charles R. Brown, of Yale, and Dean Edmund D. Soper, Duke University, are expected to give one of the evening lectures.

The rest of the day will be spent in visiting classes, attending chapel, visiting the faculty members and students, and getting generally acquainted with the college.

Our pastors will be entertained in the homes of the people overnight and for breakfast. Their lunches and dinners will be served them in the college dining hall, so that they may be in the closest contact with the students and that the students may come to know them and so to appreciate them.

Our pastors have never all come together at any previous time in the history of our Church. They attend the several Conferences, and those who are delegates attend the Southern Christian Convention, but it is hoped that every pastor will attend the "Pastors' Conference" at Elon.

It will be a great blessing to the college to have these spiritual leaders of our Church pay it a visit, and we hope that they will get such an insight into the college and its life as can be had only from intimate, personal acquaintance and association.

Elon is looking forward with the greatest pleasure to the coming of the pastors, and hopes and prays that God will make it possible for every one of them to come and that no accident or misfortune may interfere to prevent a full attendance, and a joyous and happy week of Christian fellowship and association.

W. A. HARPER.

VALLEY LETTER.

I was not able to get into my revival meetings as early in the fall as I would have liked on account of the late busy season. However, I held revivals at Leaksville and Timber Ridge, and stayed a week at Newport trying to get started in a meeting there; but the weather and the roads were such that I could not make much headway, and I decided to postpone the meeting until spring. The meetings I held were much below the average in point of conversions and additions to the Church, there being none at Leaksville, and only two at Timber Ridge, but congregations at both places were, I think, the best I have ever had. It seemed to me also that there was more serious thought on the part of the older sinners of the congregations than I had seen before, and I am hoping that some of these men and women will yet turn to Christ as a result of the meetings. I am trying to inculcate into the minds and hearts of the Church people the necessity of an all-year-round program of evangelism, and I believe if we will keep up an active interest in souls all the time, and not drop them as soon as a meeting closes, we will reach the point where we may expect conversions at any service; and that is what ought to be. We have all too long been accustomed to make some effort in behalf of the unsaved only during a week or two of revival meetings, and then drop them until the next revival. Our evangelistic program and fervor and activity should never end while we live.

Now a few words about how some of my Church people have been treating me. On Monday night after Christmas, a few of the people from Mayland came to our home and disarranged our front hall somewhat. By the time they were through with their job, they had piled boxes and bags in reckless profusion all around. Upon examination, we found the packages all contained useful and delicious articles for the home and table. We appreciated this act of generosity more than we know how to express. Their stay of an hour or two was also greatly enjoyed in a social way.

While attending Sunday School and filling my appointment at Bethlehem on Christmas Day, the superintendent publicly presented me with a very insignificant-looking little pasteboard box. I thanked him for the little box, and when I had a convenient opportunity I peeped inside. I found therein $10.05 in good cash as an expression of appreciation. You may be sure I appreciated it.

Last Saturday and Sunday, while filling my appointments at Leaksville, I observed the vestibule of the Church presenting somewhat the appearance of a grocery store just opening for business. I always thought before that the vestibules of Churches should be kept tidy and in order. When I was informed that all those boxes, etc., were for me, I thought it was about the most orderly and attractive Church vestibule I had ever seen. Then came the difficulty of hauling an entire store at one load with a Ford coupe, but I managed to get away with it and landed it all safely home, to the great joy and delight of the entire Andes family. Right now would be a good time for some of our friends to come and take dinner with us, but don't wait too long.

Concord, Newport, and Timber Ridge have not followed such an organized plan of attack as the above-named Churches, but they have kept up a sort of unorganized but continual bombardment with good things the whole fall. I have received numerous packages of various kinds from these places. I have brought a winter's supply of apples from Timber Ridge, most of which were given to me, and other things from all these places, all useful, but too numerous to mention. All these things are very much appreciated, and most of all the good, kind spirit of the givers back of the gifts.

Bethlehem and Concord had nice Christmas services, and in a very appropriate way celebrated the advent into the world of the Christ-Child who came to bring good things to all men.

Harrisonburg, Va.

A. W. ANDES.

ARTICLES ON CHRISTIAN UNITY.

The New England Convention.

The New England Christian Convention, four years ago, put itself on record, emphatically, and so far as the representation was concerned, unanimously, in favor of organic union with the Congregational Church as soon as details of union could be worked out. It has endorsed that action at each subsequent Convention.

This stand has been taken in the interest of Christian ethics, and of Church efficiency, and of faith in the oft-expressed desire of the Congregational brethren, in private and in public, to further the cause of Christian union by every possible means, and their generous attitude, whenever, in a local or more comprehensive way, the highest necessity of the kingdom has required action.

The Christian Church, in New England, is convinced of the worse-than-futile attempt at perpetuation of two denominations, identical in approach to the truth and in ecclesiastical polity, on the competitive basis of the past. I am sure the thought of the Church in these States is not being misinterpreted in stating it wills to be loyal to present need and the clear leading of intelligence, and that it can only do that in yielding ready obedience to the compelling forces that characterize the present day.

The Church in New England would have a foremost part in the cause of Christian union in the future, as in the past, by setting its hand and seal to the new charter of religious freedom and progress which it fervently hopes those Churches that can unite now, such as the Congregational and Christian bodies, may unite.

W. G. SARGENT.

The Metropolitan Convention.

The Metropolitan Christian Convention has left no doubt as to its position on Christian unity. By adopting at its recent session, at Everett, Pa., a resolution of careful phrasing and concrete expression, it stands in accord with the action of the General Convention at Urbana and the recent Board meetings at Dayton. It is only fair to say that the resolution did not pass unanimously. However, the few who were other-minded do not constitute a dissenting minority. There appear conscientious opinions that definite steps to this end should be taken with due regard to exigencies which may be evident.

Sentiment for Christian unity is growing. The opinion is fast developing that ere long denominations of similar faith and polity will find yet more common ground and a basis for union more tangible than hitherto known. Protestant Christianity has been too long shamed by its divided state, its evangelistic emphasis necessarily made less pronounced because of its disunion. But today the religious atmosphere is electric with a better thought, vibrant with a new note of undivided accent. In this realization we find cause for hearty rejoicing, and would gladly catch step with those who move out and on toward the ideal of the Christ for His Church on earth.

JOHN M. WILLIAMS.

The Central Convention.

For one to think of speaking for so large a number of people as are found in our Churches of the Central Christian Convention, is almost out of the question.

We have within our Convention bounds the headquarters of the General Convention, with all the officials that represent and head up the different departments of our Church work. They are not all of this Convention, but the fact that they are here leads one to feel that they are a part of us. What they say and do about important steps in our Church life is inclined to eclipse other groups and individuals. At this time I shall not attempt to speak for these worthy officials, either in their official capacity or as members of our Convention, but rather for our people in the open fields of Christian labor.

We have for more than a hundred years spoken of Christian unity as one of the aims of our Church. The very foundations of our Church are laid in principles that make the unity of all Christian people possible.

It is natural that our ministers should teach the advantages of unity. At this present time we feel that the economic problems that confront the Churches, and especially our own, are problems that have been aggravated by division of interests, and that they could be greatly helped by a union of forces. Every one realizes that a great impression could be made on the unchurched world by a united front against the forces of evil that are so threatening and malicious at this time. Spiritual power would thus be multiplied to an immeasurable degree.

As for definite work along these lines, we can, as yet, only point to work along interdenominational lines, such as summer union meetings, vacation Bible schools, religious instruction in our day schools, and co-operation in civic organizations of our different communities.

As to the thought of immediate action, I firmly believe that most of our people are of the opinion that we should not leave this important matter untouched by our generation or this present day. Praying people are continually asking our Heavenly Father that one might be found who will be able to lead us into a union with Churches of similar beliefs as a beginning of a greater movement to follow.

H. H. SHORT.

The Western Convention.

One item of the program for this year's activities as adopted by the Western Convention at its last session is: "Exchanges of field with other religious bodies should be thought of for the relief and strengthening of overchurched communities." While we shall, as individual Churches, probably build the kingdom in the largest way through our denomination, yet we shall build it only to the extent that we build the kingdom rather than a denomination. This is true of all communions. The kingdom must increase while denominations decrease.

The conception of advancing the kingdom, with practical requirements for Church membership in most denominations as they are today, by building a new Church or maintaining a struggling one in an overchurched or adequately Churched community, is, to my mind, so far fetched that it can rarely if ever be justified.

Our committee on missions and the field secretary of the Western Convention compose our channel of practical approach to this vital matter. And since these are responsible for our program of practice as well as theory, the matter is where we are attempting to face and meet it in the spirit of John the Baptist, as already mentioned.

The heart and motivating element of Christian unity should be expressed in the words of President Coolidge in discussing Armistice Day: "Rivalries ought to be only in good works aimed for the general advancement." May God, through us, hasten the day when this is genuine fact.

RUE BURNELL.

MEDITATION.

"What kind of Church would my Church be If every member was just like me?"

Here are a few answers to the above question.

1. I do not believe in foreign missions. I have been trying to show our Church that every dollar we send over there is forever gone. We never realize any value in return. Besides, we need all our money here at home. We have heathens all about us. Why not convert them first? My Church does not know that it takes ninety cents of every dollar to get it across to our foreign mission field. I am in favor of bringing all our missionaries home. God does not have to depend on us to save the heathen. He has power of these stones to raise up children. He will save the heathen in His own good time and His own way. Why should we send our money and boys and girls to a place where they are not appreciated?

2. There is too much overhead expense attached to the Church. The Church is trying to do too many things. The one great work of the Church is to preach the gospel which has the power of salvation in it. I want to see sinners saved. If the Church can get people saved, it has wonderfully fulfilled its mission. The Bible does not say anything about religious education, organized classes, graded lessons, young people's organizations, Church socials or anything of the kind, nor hospitals nor colleges nor orphanages. Money, money is all you can hear these days when you go to Church. All we have to do is "seek first the kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things will be added unto us." I suggest that we take the Bible for our guide and go right ahead and leave off so much unnecessary expense.

3. Style and pride have ruined my Church. We cannot have an old-time revival any more. When I was a boy, the men, including my old sainted father and many others who have long gone to rest, wore their home-made clothes and brogan shoes to Church. The women wore their home-spun dresses and home-made bonnets, and all went to Church and enjoyed their religion, because they had the old-time religion that always makes people happy. The old days are gone, and most of the pure and undefiled religion went too. The father and mother went to Church and carried all the children, and nobody was disturbed by the noise of a few babies. People actually walked to Church, but they must go on a fine car now. Every one that goes to Church now dresses fine to make a show. There is a pound of style now to every ounce of religion.

The preachers are as badly poisoned with style and pride as the laymen. God used to call men to preach, and they preached regardless of salary; but now they are made sure of a big salary before they will preach a syllable. People used to kneel down to pray when they had religion. They used to practice foot-washing, but style and pride have done away with that custom. I am so disgusted with such carrying on as they have in the Church that I will have nothing more to do with it. Oh! if the Church could only go back to the good old days of the past, we could enjoy religion again.

Examine yourself thoroughly, and then attempt to answer the above question.

G. H. VEAZEY.

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Field Secretary.

THE APPRECIATION OFFERING QUOTAS FOR ELON AND BETHLEHEM COLLEGES BY CONFERENCES OF THE SOUTHERN CHRISTIAN CONVENTION.

(NOTE: These quotas are not in any sense to be thought of as assessments. They have been assigned on the basis of the Conference apportionments. If you take the Conference apportionment devoted to Convention purposes and multiply it by five, and then take 40 per cent of that, the amount voted for our colleges by the Southern Christian Convention, you will get approximately the above quotas. Eighty per cent of the money raised goes to Elon and twenty per cent to Bethlehem. If these colleges are to continue, the raising of this money is absolutely necessary.)

I. Valley Virginia Central.

Antioch	$ 225.00
Bethel	55.00
Bethlehem	255.00
Christian Chapel	30.00
Concord	85.00
Dry Run	95.00
East Liberty	45.00
High Point	40.00
Island Ford	30.00
Joppa	40.00
Leaksville	280.00
Liuville	230.00
Mayland	110.00
Mt. Lebanon	85.00
Mt. Olivet (G)	140.00
Mt. Olivet (R)	55.00
New Hope	175.00
Newport	190.00
Palmyra	65.00
St. Peter's	30.00
Timber Mountain	50.00
Timber Ridge	140.00
Washington	70.00
Whistler's Chapel	45.00
Winchester	280.00
Woods Chapel	65.00

Total $2,910.00

II. Alabama.

Antioch	$ 140.00
Arab	25.00
Bethany	50.00
Beulah	105.00
Carver's Grove	20.00
Christiana	50.00
Corinth	50.00
Cragford	55.00
Diugler's Chapel	140.00
Forest Home	60.00
Liberty Grove	25.00
Lowell	85.00
Macedonia	10.00
McGuire's Chapel	75.00
Mt. Zion	115.00
New Harmony	90.00
New Home	25.00
New Hope	140.00
Noon Day	115.00
Pisgah	65.00
Pleasant Grove	85.00
Roanoke	55.00
Rock Springs	85.00
Rock Stand	90.00
Sand Hill	10.00
Shady Grove	85.00
Spring Hill	55.00
Wadley	105.00

Total $2,010.00

III. Georgia and Alabama.

Ambrose	$ 80.00
Beulah	55.00
East LaGrange	45.00
Egan	25.00
Enigma	80.00
First, LaGrange	215.00
Hill Side	70.00
Hoganville	20.00
Kite	70.00
Lanett	215.00
Langdale	20.00
North Highlands	55.00
Oak Grove	150.00
Providence Chapel	25.00
Rose Hill	50.00
Richland	70.00
Union	25.00
Vanceville	80.00

Total $1,350.00

IV. Eastern Virginia.

Antioch	$ 725.00
Barrett's	265.00
Berea (Nan.)	375.00
Berea (Nor.)	280.00
Bethlehem	585.00
Burton's Grove	140.00
Centerville	85.00
Christian Temple	2,255.00
Cypress Chapel	510.00
Damascus	290.00
Dendrou	225.00
Elm Avenue	95.00
First, Norfolk	980.00
First, Portsmouth	250.00
First, Richmond	375.00
Franklin	655.00
Hobson	40.00
Holland	850.00
Holy Neck	750.00
Isle of Wight	160.00
Ivor	65.00
Johnson's Grove	195.00
Liberty Springs	520.00
Mt. Carmel	460.00
Mt. Zion	65.00
New Lebanon	115.00
Newport News	565.00
Ocean View	45.00
Old Zion	1,085.00
Oak Grove	90.00
Oakland	425.00
Rosemont	470.00
Suffolk	4,230.00
Salem	65.00
South Norfolk	940.00
Spring Hill	140.00
Union (Southampton)	225.00
Union (Surry)	90.00
Wakefield	160.00
Waverly	585.00
Webster	340.00
Windsor	225.00

Total $20,990.00

V. North Carolina and Virginia Conference.

Apple's Chapel	$ 565.00
Belew Creek	265.00
Berea	235.00
Bethel	210.00
Bethlehem	565.00
Concord	105.00
Danville	265.00
Durham	920.00
Elk Spur	30.00
Elon College	920.00
Greensboro, First	920.00
Greensboro, Palm Street	235.00
Happy Home	265.00
Haw River	310.00
Hebron	340.00
Hines Chapel	480.00
Hopedale	65.00
Howard's Chapel	120.00
Ingram	400.00
Kallam Grove	65.00
Lebanon	520.00
Liberty	155.00
Long's Chapel	195.00
Lynchburg	65.00
Monticello	120.00
Mt. Bethel	210.00
Mt. Zion	125.00
New Hope	65.00
New Lebanon	290.00
Pleasant Grove	780.00
Pleasant Ridge	185.00
Reidsville	155.00
Rocky Ford	30.00
Salem Chapel	170.00
Shallow Ford	265.00
Union (N. C.)	565.00
Union (Va.)	460.00

Total $11,645.00

VI. Eastern North Carolina.

Amelia	$ 85.00
Antioch	110.00
Auburn	150.00
Bethel	85.00
Bethlehem	65.00
Beulah	65.00
Caraleigh	35.00
Cary	55.00
Catawba Springs	255.00
Chapel Hill	135.00

Christian Chapel	205.00
Christian Light	125.00
Clayton	100.00
Damascus	125.00
Ebenezer	170.00
Franklinton	65.00
Fuller's Chapel	125.00
Good Hope	110.00
Hayes' Chapel	55.00
Henderson	180.00
Lebanon	60.00
Lee's Chapel	65.00
Liberty	455.00
Martha's Chapel	65.00
Mebane	35.00
Moore Union	100.00
Morrisville	55.00
Mt. Auburn	205.00
Mt. Carmel	100.00
Mt. Gilead	180.00
Mt. Hermon	60.00
New Elam	275.00
New Hill	55.00
New Hope	180.00
Oak Level	150.00
O'Kelly's Chapel	85.00
Piney Plains	135.00
Pleasant Hill	65.00
Pleasant Union	95.00
Plymouth	100.00
Pope's Chapel	135.00
Raleigh	305.00
Sanford	170.00
Shallow Well	255.00
Six Forks	110.00
Turner's Chapel	85.00
Wake Chapel	305.00
Wentworth	100.00
Youngsville	75.00

Total $6,350.00

VII. Western North Carolina.

Antioch (C)	$ 125.00
Antioch (R)	100.00
Addor	60.00
Bennett	100.00
Big Oak	200.00
Biscoe	60.00
Brown's Chapel	150.00
Burlington	1,365.00
Center Grove	125.00
Christian Union	75.00
Ether	125.00
Glendon	125.00
Grace's Chapel	125.00
Graham	190.00
Graham-Providence	185.00
Hank's Chapel	310.00
High Point	125.00
Lee's Chapel	60.00
Liberty	60.00
Mount Pleasant	60.00
Needham's Grove	60.00
New Center	190.00
Park's Cross Roads	115.00
Pleasant Cross	140.00
Pleasant Grove	360.00
Pleasant Hill	265.00
Pleasant Ridge	265.00
Pleasant Union	125.00
Poplar Branch	100.00
Ramseur	200.00
Randleman	125.00
Seagrove	115.00
Shady Grove	125.00
Shiloh	200.00
Smithwood	125.00
Spoon's Chapel	60.00
Union Grove	165.00
Zion	175.00

Total $6,635.00

Summary by Conferences.

Valley Virginia Central	$2,910.00
Alabama	2,010.00
Georgia and Alabama	1,350.00
Eastern Virginia	20,990.00
North Carolina and Virginia	11,645.00
Eastern North Carolina and Virginia	6,350.00
Western North Carolina	6,635.00

Total $50,890.00

SHALL WE FORGET THE SCARS?

Where his memory is still revered, they tell this story of the late General John B. Gordon. Years after the Civil War, Gordon was a candidate for the United States senatorship. The day came when his name was to be put in nomination in his State Legislature. In that body was a man who had been a comrade of Gordon during the war. But for some reason, the latter had incurred his resentment and the man had decided to vote against the general. When the time came, the roll was being called for the voting. Presently this old soldier's name was reached, and he arose to cast his vote against the man with whom he had fought all through the great struggle of four years. General Gordon was seated at the time upon the Speaker's platform, in full view of all the legislators. As the man arose, his eyes fell upon a scar upon Gordon's face, the mark of his valor and suffering for the cause to which he had literally given his lifeblood in battle. Immediately the old soldier was stricken with remorse. As he saw this token of the sacrifice and suffering of the man by whose side he had himself fought, he cried out with great emotion: "I cannot vote against him; I had forgotten the scar—I had forgotten the scar!"

Some of us have forgotten the scars. We have forgotten the sacred brow dripping crimson from under its thorny crown. We have forgotten the wounded side where the savage Roman spear drank deep of the costly libation of His blood. We have forgotten the hands and feet pierced with the nails and stretched and torn with the weight of the precious body of the suffering one. We have forgotten what a claim these scars constitute upon every life they have redeemed from death, and the tender appeal of their mute lips as they cry unto us, "I beseech you by the mercies of God, present your bodies a living sacrifice." Shall we forget the scars?—Jas. H. McConkey.

THE PSYCHOLOGY OF FAITH.

(Continued from Page 5.)

standing and explanation. We can know by personal experience Christ's never-failing response to those who seek rest in Him. "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest," we can know to be a promise that holds good at all times and in every situation. And with trust and confidence we can face the far-reaching future, knowing that "God will supply our every need according to His riches in glory by Christ Jesus."

All this we can know by personal experience. And we cannot know it by any other way. Anything in religion that cannot be experienced for one's self is spurious and of no purpose or meaning. There is no other way to know God but by personally experiencing God. "If any man will eth to do His will, he shall know." There is no other way to know. If any one questions whether praying is a rational experience and whether one can actually receive help in prayer, let one try praying. Let one will to pray, and in prayer one will know that prayer not only changes things, but that prayer changes one's life. If any one questions whether "It is more blessed to give than to receive," let him try giving and he will know. If any one questions whether life's supreme satisfactions come only in rendering service to others, let him try serving and he will know.

Thousands of young people, and thousands of people in middle life, and thousands in old age are asking the question today, "Is there a God?" "If there is a God, is He kind?" "Is He loving?" "Is He all-powerful?" "Can He help me?" "Can I know Him?" To all such, the words of Jesus have most vital significance, "If any man willeth to do His will, he shall know" God. Faith is an experiment which, if made earnestly, honestly and sincerely, always leads to the experiencing of God. And in this experience one finds his adoration, voiced in the words of the poet:

"Lord of all being, throned afar,
Thy glory flames from sun and star,
Center and soul of every sphere,
Yet to each loving heart, how near!"

R. C. H.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES.

We should be glad to furnish your Sunday School the following supplementary supplies, cash to accompany order:

- Improved Uniform Series International Lessons.
1. Bible Lesson Picture Roll, 21x32 inches, per quarter $1.25
 2. Sunday School Superintendent (to accompany the Picture Roll), per quarter15
 3. Pupils' Lesson Stories, per quarter06
 4. Little Bible Lesson Pictures, per quarter05
- Group Uniform Series, Primary Course.
1. Group Bible Lesson Picture Roll, 16x20 in., per quarter 1.00
 2. Group Pupils' Lesson Stories, Primary, per quarter07
 3. Group Lesson Pictures, per quarter04

In making order, be explicit and name the quarter for which supplies are wanted; thus: first quarter, January to March; second quarter, April to June; third quarter, July to September; fourth quarter, October to December.

SEND ORDERS TO THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Minion Bold-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 7-8x 7 Inches, and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

2152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold $3.75

India Paper Edition, Size 4 7-8x7 Inches, 1 1-10 Inches Thick.

2152X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold $6.00

Bourgeois Type, Size 5 3-8x8 Inches, and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

2167—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold $4.00

2172—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold $4.50

2172A—Same as above, with Apocrypha $5.00

2173—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges $6.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3-4x3-8 inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3 3-4x5 3-8 Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps $2.50

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations. Special book for Sunday Schools 95c

Minion Type, Pocket Size, 4x6 Inches, 1 1-4 Inches Thick.

With 32 full-colored illustrations; also 25 outline maps through the text and 12 colored maps.

133—Bound in cloth, round corners, red edges, title stamped on side in pure gold $1.60

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold $3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 15-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold $4.00

Minion Black-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 3-4x 7 Inches, 1 1-2 Inches Thick.

Printed from clear, large, black-face type, 32 full-page illustrations in sepia and colors, 4,000 Questions and Answers, Harmony of the Gospels, How to Study the Sunday School Lesson, 25 outline Maps, 12 full-page colored Maps.

4152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold $3.25

AMERICAN STANDARD VERSION. TEXT BIBLES.

Printed from Easy-Reading Type, on Good Bible Paper, for Sunday School and Church Use.

Minion Type, Size 4x6 Inches, 1 1-2 Inches Thick, 25 Outline Maps, Bound in Black.

101—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, title stamped on back in pure gold $1.10

112—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title on back in pure gold $2.75

India Paper Edition, Only 7/8-Inch Thick.

112X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold $3.75

Reference and Text Bibles also in minion, briefer, bourgeois, long primer, pica and English type.

Thumb index cut on edge, 50c extra; name printed on any Bible in gold, 40c extra; extra wording, 40c per line.

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Briefer Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5 3-8x8 1-4 Inches and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With concise Bible dictionary, combined concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold $4.75

RED LETTER EDITION

With all the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands, title stamped on side and back in pure gold $3.25

Any of the above Bibles sent post paid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 E. Broad St., - - - Richmond, Virginia

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

INTERNATIONAL UNIFORM SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE.

Lesson III—January 15, 1928.

JESUS AND SINNERS.

GOLDEN TEXT: "I came not to call the righteous, but sinners."—Mark 2:17.

LESSON: Mark 2:1-17.

DEVOTIONAL READING: Psa. 32:1, 2, 5-7, 10, 11.

"It was noised that He was in the house." It was difficult to hide the Master. Even when He most carefully avoided it, He got publicity. There was something about Him that attracted attention and drew people unto Him. As one of the gospel writers says, "He could not be hid." There is a hint here of a great abiding truth. If the Master abides in a heart or in a home, sooner or later it will be "noised" that He is there. The Christ-like spirit cannot be hid. It does not need a press agent to secure publicity; indeed, it does not seek publicity at all. But when the Spirit of Christ is present in heart or home, the world sooner or later finds it out. If others do not get an impression of Christ from us it is largely due to the fact that we have little of the Christ's spirit. A man does not need to advertise the fact that he has religion; all he has to do is to live his religion in a simple, sincere, humble way, and those who come in contact with him will take knowledge of him that he has been with Jesus.

"And they come unto Him, bringing one sick of the palsy, which was borne of four, and when they could not come nigh to Him for the press, they uncovered the roof where he was . . . and they let down the bed wherein the sick of the palsy lay." This needy man had friends. He had friends who had faith. He had friends who were not only sympathetic, they were resourceful and persistent in their efforts to get him to Christ. They tendered their personal services, carrying his bed, digging through the roof, letting him down before Jesus. And because of all this they were rewarded by having their friend restored unto them in good health. Men are never going to be saved in the mass. There must be the personal touch and the personal service. Sometimes the highest ingenuity, and usually persistence must be used in getting men into touch with the Master. We are fishers of men, and we must be as wise in our task in the fishing for men as the fisher who fishes for fish. The truth of the matter is that none of us, ministers and laymen alike, do not put enough thought and time and energy into the work of putting men in touch with the living Christ.

"Thy sins be forgiven thee." That is perhaps the best message which ever came to a man. To know that his sins have been forgiven, to have a sense of pardon and peace in his heart, to know that he has another chance with nothing held against him—there is nothing quite like it in human experience, certainly nothing that surpasses it in several implications. Ah! the indescribable pity that so many people do not fully realize that the Son of man hath power on earth to forgive sins, and that they go on carrying their unforgiven sins and their attendant burdens.

But let every one know that the forgiveness of sins is no mechanism, formal thing. It is a vital, personal thing, and its true significance and implications are to be found only in the cross of Christ. God is not only able, but willing, in Christ to forgive us our sins, if we confess our sins and repent of our sins. Forgiveness of sins involves two parties, and God cannot and will not because He cannot forgive sin unless there is the repentant spirit and the sincere confession.

"Arise, and take up thy bed, and go thy way into thine house. And immediately he arose, took up his bed, and went forth before them all." The Physician was interested in both body and spirit, but the things of the spirit had pre-eminence in His thinking and in His ministry of healing. In this case the concrete evidence of the fact that He had the power to forgive sins was the fact that the man had been restored whole. Forgiveness of sins is usually, if indeed not always, an inner process which has no outward manifestation, as in this case.

"Jesus sat at meat with many publicans and sinners, and when the scribes and Pharisees saw Him eat with publicans and sinners, they said unto His disciples, How is it that He eateth and drinketh with publicans and sinners?" The Master had just called a man from a life of what was undoubtedly extortion and dishonesty, to personal fellowship and discipleship with Him. That man, out of a sense of gratitude, had prepared for the Master a feast and had invited other of his friends, in all probability because he wanted them to come to know the Master. How petty, how pathetic is the spirit of the scribes and Pharisees, who disdaining to come into Matthew's house lest they become contaminated, they stood by and upbraided the Master because He ate with them, because He did the unconventional in order to be with those who needed Him and who were responsive to Him. The tragedy of the thing is that the scribes and the Pharisees are not dead; we still have them with us, and ever and anon they stand off and criticize others, never lending a helping hand to those who are trying to bring to men a knowledge of the Christ's redeeming power and grace. What irony there was in Jesus' reply that they that are whole need not a physician, but they that were sick. These scribes and Pharisees, thinking themselves whole, were, of all men, most needy. There is sometimes to be found in those who are outside the Church and who are looked upon as outcasts—qualities of life that put to shame modern scribes and Pharisees who stand off and preen themselves in the thought of their own self-righteousness.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Sunday, January 22, 1928.

TOPIC: "What Difference Does it Make What We Do on Sunday?"—Mark 2:23-28; 3:1-6.

Some Bible Hints.

The Pharisees' method of regulating Sunday conduct by specific rules must fail. It is better to regulate conduct from within the heart (v. 24).

Human need, says Jesus, comes before everything. But it must be need, not pleasure (v. 26).

The Sabbath is meant to benefit man, and it must not be abused in any way (v. 27). Sometimes we benefit the physical, but destroy the soul!

There is no law against helping people; Jesus had the courage to do that in spite of tradition (v. 5).

Suggestive Thoughts.

We must not use Jesus' splendid courage to help people as a reason for us breaking the very spirit of the Sabbath.

It makes a difference to our conscience what we do on Sunday. We feel better after going to Church than we do after going fishing.

My Sunday conduct is my vote as to what I wish the community to do on Sunday; and that makes a big difference. What would Sunday be like if all did as I do?

Jesus says to this sick man, "Stand forth!" We must take our stand by Jesus' side and keep Sunday with Him in His way. Is our Sunday kept in His spirit?

A Few Illustrations.

A rock dumped into the Atlantic sends a wave clear across to England, even if we cannot see it. Every act of ours has its effect in some way.

If I take my automobile and carry old people to Church on Sunday, the effect will be different on me and on them from what it would be if I used my car for recreation.

It makes a difference whether or not we have a worshiping community. And Sunday means worship. One might as well ask if there is a difference between darkness and light.

It makes a difference whether people are in the company of Jesus on Sunday or pass Him up. It is like refusing gold for tinsel.

To Think About.

Why is the example of the individual important?

What do you think of the Sunday movies?

How may we make Sundays interesting?

A CALL TO PRAYER.

Throughout the Christian Church, January 15, 1928, is designated as a special day of prayer for our institutions of higher learning. Every man and woman, boy and girl is called to definite and earnest prayer to God for our colleges. At the prayer time in personal devotion, family prayers, and in Church services, you are asked to very definitely ask God's blessing upon and guidance for Defiance and Elon, Palmer, Bethlehem and Starkey. Pray for the men and women who have responsibilities of administration and instruction. Pray for the students in these institutions and the host of youth preparing to enter our college gates. Pray that the entire Christian Church may have a new vision and a keen consciousness of the contribution which our colleges are making to the development of Christian character and the training of Christian leadership for kingdom work. Pray earnestly for our colleges!

Order of Worship.

(Suggested for use in Sunday Schools, Christian Endeavor Societies, or Church Services on this day of prayer.)

"Prayer is both a privilege and a responsibility; it is not only a delightful communion, but an exalted stewardship."

Instrumental prelude (hymn or other sacred music played softly by pianist and violinist.)

Call to Worship.

Leader—Rejoice always; pray without ceasing; in everything give thanks.

Group—Let us search and try our ways, and turn again unto the Lord.

Leader—Let us lift up our hearts with our hands unto God in the heaven.

Lord's Prayer in unison.

Hymn—"Come, Thou Almighty King."

Responsive Reading.

"Wisdom Tendeth to Godliness."

Leader—Happy is the man that fineth wisdom and the man that getteth understanding.

Group—For the merchandise of it is better than the merchandise of silver and the gain, thereof than fine gold.

Leader—She is more precious than rubies; and all the things thou canst desire are not to be compared unto her.

Group—She is a tree of life to them that lay hold upon her; and happy is every one that retaineth her.

Leader—Wisdom is the principal thing; therefore, get wisdom, and with all thy getting, get understanding.

Group—For the Lord giveth wisdom: out of his mouth cometh knowledge and understanding.

Unison—Teach me, O Lord, the way of Thy statutes; and I shall keep it unto the end. Give me understanding, and I shall keep Thy law; yea, I shall observe it with my whole heart.

Prayer (by Sunday School superintendent, for God's blessing upon all who seek wisdom, and His guidance for those institutions which direct their search). Prayer hymn in response. One verse of "More About Jesus," sung softly, with announcement.

Hymn—"I Need Thee Every Hour."

Bible Reading.

The Example and Teaching of Jesus.

(Read by president of Christian Endeavor Society, or other young person.)

And in the morning a great while before day, he rose up and went out, and departed into a desert place, and there prayed.

And Simon and they that were with him followed after Him, and they found Him and say unto Him, All are seeking Thee.

And Jesus said: "And I say unto you, Ask and it shall be given you, seek and ye shall find, knock and it shall be opened unto you. For every one that asketh receiveth, and he that seeketh findeth, and to him that knocketh it shall be opened. Verily, verily, I say unto you, Whatsoever ye shall ask the Father in my name, He shall give it you. Hitherto have ye asked nothing in my name; ask, and ye shall receive, that your joy may be full."

Service or Prayer.

(Silent prayer, with the petition guided by the leader suggesting themes for prayer, or a number of short prayers by individuals asked in advance.)

Silent prayer by all for our colleges (pianist plays softly "Break Thou the Bread of Life").

Prayer of gratitude for our institutions of higher learning; for the sacrifice which has made them possible, for their glorious history and influence; for their present opportunities.

Prayer for direction in carrying on a work of Christian education through our colleges; for wisdom of leadership, for guidance of students; for blessing on teachers.

Prayer of petition that men and women of the Church may have a vision of the place of the colleges in the kingdom task, and that man power and money power may be dedicated to sharing in their work.

Prayer, very definitely, for the Christian Church college nearest to you (Defiance or Elon, or Bethlehem, or Palmer, or Starkey); for the boys and girls from your community who are there, that they, with all the students, may grow in the Jesus-way of life.

Prayer of consecration of our resources of prayer, influence, money, lives, to that high living and search for wisdom for which our colleges stand.

A moment for personal silent prayer, before the singing of the prayer response, "Break Thou the Bread of Life."

Closing hymn—"Stand Up, Stand Up for Jesus."

Note—In Church services, the sermon may follow the prayer service, when the pastor may wish to stress the influence of our Christian colleges. In Sunday School or Christian Endeavor, time may be given for a ten-minute talk on this thought. In Sunday School or Christian Endeavor, the service of worship may be at the opening or closing of the hour.

EQUIPING FOR CHRISTIAN EDUCATION.

By DR. W. M. JAY.

Coach Yost, athletic director of the University of Michigan, in a recent interview, gave a definition of education that is both significant and comprehensive. According to his statement, he is not the only one who subscribes to this definition of education. He says: "I think I am safe in saying that 90 per cent of our teachers today recognize that education means the development of character and a healthy, physically and mentally normal citizen."

With one additional word, either stated or implied, this is just what we mean by Christian education. If by character is meant Christian character, we believe that this athletic mentor has given us a good definition of Christian education. It is the purpose of Christian education to develop Christian character and to prepare for the very highest type of citizenship, physically, mentally, socially and spiritually. Without nobleness of character, there is sure to be a weakness in citizenship. It is Christian character and Christian citizenship that jointly show the proper results of a Christian education.

If this is the aim and purpose of Christian education, then how is it to be obtained? It is clearly evident that we must equip for the task. The Christian college is the chief exponent of Christian education, although there are several other agencies of the Church which supplement the work of the college. The Christian college should be no less thoroughly equipped for its task than the very best secular institution.

Each State takes pride in its State university and strives to meet its every need. There must be adequate provisions for buildings, equipment, and teaching force, or the results in the product turned out will not be a credit to the institution. Surely, the Christian college can do no less in equipping for the kind of service it is to render. While adequate buildings and corresponding equipment are both very necessary in order to properly educate the youth, yet the factor that has most to do with making education Christian is the personnel of the teaching force.

A Christian college would be criticised, and justly so, if it employed non-Christian men and women on its faculty. With State-supported institutions, it is not required and not necessarily expected that an instructor should be a Christian. Yet how often do you hear it declared that such and such a teacher or professor in my college days has been the determining factor in my life career. Then how important it is that that teacher should be a teacher with some real Christian experience!

The teacher who is not a Christian will scarcely teach Christian truth nor make the truth apply to the Christian life in a sincere and effective way. He would not be consistent to do so. The Christian teacher cannot afford to ignore the moral and spiritual application, whatever the course he may be teaching. It is needless to say that every course worthy of a place in the curriculum has its moral and spiritual values, some much more than others, we grant, but how often are these values totally ignored!

As a teacher of English literature, I can testify that there is no dearth of Christian truth and teaching to be observed here. Many of the best writers of both prose and poetry, drama and novel, have given special emphasis to religious thought and feeling. The religious lyric has always been a favorite form of poetry.

What a fertile field for the teaching of Christian thought and truth in the realm of philosophy, also in the realm of science, history, mathematics, economics, etc.! There is no substantial reason why the pursuit of either one of these studies should mar a student's religious thought or belief. It is not sufficient in the Christian college for the teacher to be just nominally or passively Christian; to be merely enrolled as a member of some Church. Such example is often more misleading than that of the known non-Christian. The daily life, as well as the Sunday activities and the general attitude toward religious movements and Church problems, should all reflect a spiritual warmth and active interest.

The Christian college is preparing men and women for all walks in life. Many of the outstanding men and women of today received their college training in the Christian college, and they are proud of the fact. The Christian college must offer the same variety of courses leading to a particular degree that any other institution does. Wherein lies the difference? When a group of devout men assemble once or twice a year for the purpose of determining the policy of the institution; when a devout Christian teacher, as president, heads the institution, and a teaching force of men and women of approved Christian character do the teaching and molding of thought and activities—then you have reason to expect as the product of such institutions Christian character and a healthy, physically and mentally normal future citizen.

Elon College, N. C.

WHAT ELON DID FOR ME.

By REV. J. F. MORGAN.

In thinking about the blessings Elon has been to me, I number as the very first she has given me—

1. Inspiration. I was born and reared among the small hills, streams, and many rocks of North Carolina, of poor but good Christian parents, but with little to give a young man at that time much inspiration. However, I was converted, and joined the Christian Church. Christian ministers visited our home occasionally and would tell of Elon College that belonged to my own Church. I also read of Elon in THE CHRISTIAN SUN. The fact that my Church had a college gave birth in my heart to a desire to go to such a college, and at the same time an inspiration that finally landed on the college campus one of the most timid lads that ever entered that institution.

2. Elon trusted me. The next blessing that Elon bestowed upon me was the fact that she trusted me. In these days I did not trust myself very much, but I soon found that Elon was trusting me and expecting me to make good. I could not step. I often experienced hard times financially, and even in these testing times my college trusted me, and on one or more occasions I was not only trusted, but the president of the college would go on my note for a few days until I could pay. It was always a great joy to me, however, to be able to always pay up, even though I was often a little slow in doing so. I spent my days at Elon and received there that training that finally enabled me to graduate; and that graduation, the receiving of my diploma, I interpreted then, and still so interpret, was simply my college.

3. Commissioning me to go out into the world and serve humanity to the best of my ability. I owe so much to Elon, and shall always be grateful for the privilege of attending her, and for the blessings that have come to me because of the days I spent there. May God's blessing ever be upon her, and may she continue to inspire, trust and commission young people to do that which is noblest and best.

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY REV. H. E. ROUNTREE,
One of Our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"Call upon me, and I will answer thee, and shew thee great and mighty things, which thou knowest not."—Jeremiah 33:3.

MONDAY.

THE SECOND COMING OF CHRIST.

"Unto them that look for Him shall He appear the second time without sin unto salvation."—Heb. 9:28.

The second coming of Our Lord, we are told (and we believe), will be the same Jesus who went away. "This same Jesus shall so come." "The Son of man shall come." "He shall send Jesus," and when He comes we shall know it. "Every eye shall see Him." "They shall see the Son of man coming in the clouds of heaven," and a great noise shall accompany Him. "For the Lord Himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God," attended by the hosts of heaven, by all the power which brought the world into existence, and with the shout of the Lord Himself.

Prayer.—Dear Lord God, give us and help us to live so that we may stand when He appeareth. When Thou art like refiner's fire, may we be ready for Thy blessed "Well done"; when Thou art like the fuller's shop, may we be already washed by the blood of the Lamb. Amen.

TUESDAY.

THE JOY OF THE REDEEMED.

"We shall be like Him, for we shall see Him as He is."—1 Jno. 3:2.

The supreme joy of the redeemed when He comes will be to meet the Lord face to face. The next, which is also supreme, is we shall be like Him. To find that our weaknesses are made strong, that we have no faults, that we are spotless, and, like Him, without the stain of pride, will be a supreme joy. Again, we shall see the fruitage of our earthly labors. "We shall reap, if we faint not." The idea that we shall still know our work below and look for its fruitage in the months and years to come will be a part of our joy in heaven. Let us ask ourselves the question, "What will my life's work look like to me when I am on the other shore looking back at it wishing for the fruit for my glory there? If we can put ourselves in that position now we shall be more diligent to leave behind a record of which we shall not be ashamed.

Idleness, as precious as it seems to be, is not a part of the divine economy for this life. We cannot think it will be then. We are not working for our own salvation. We are co-laborers with God for the accomplishment of His purposes in making the world righteous and fit to live in and to make souls spiritually fit to live with, and for heaven, why not begin now?

Prayer.—Our Father in Heaven, we are Thine, but we realize that we are very poorly. Give us Thy free gift of grace and salvation, and with a true vision of service may we be happy to know that we wish with Thee for the redemption of the world. Amen.

WEDNESDAY

THE WONDER-WORKING GOD.

"Many, O Lord, my God, are the wonderful works which Thou hast done."—Psa. 40:5.

Christ's life and His works for the new apostolic Church were wonderful. Is our modern Church the center of similar interest and wonder? We claim Him and a vital relation to that Church, to that power of the upper room. Does our Church manifest that power?

There are evidences of it. In every case of saving souls from sin to life eternal there is the evidence of that wonder-work. As oft as the word grips the soul and inspires to God, the wonder-work of God goes on. As oft as one realizes the presence of the Lord in him, the wonder-work goes on. As oft as we are given work to do, and we do it in His name, the wonder-work goes on. As oft as evil places are closed up, that wonder-work goes on.

Prayer.—Our Father, work in us Thy wonder-working spirit. Convince us of sin, righteousness and judgment. Reveal to Christ day by day, guide us into truth, make Thy word heavenly light, cut the moral ulcers out of our souls and out of society. Make Thy invisible life real and bring to us all the blessed transformation of eternal life. Amen.

THURSDAY.

A SIGN OF HIS COMING.

"Then shall appear the sign of the Son of man in heaven."—Matt. 24:30.

In the last times of this world there shall appear a sign of the Son of man in the heavens. We are wondering what this sign shall be. That it will be the cross may be satisfying. When Constantine prayed, there arose a cross before him which said, "By this sign conquer." The cross has become the emblem and the symbol of God's presence in our midst, and is the symbol of the Church and its work. It has become the sign of the power. It is the rallying point of all the nations for all these ages. Christ said, "If I be lifted up (on the cross) I will draw all men to me." It is flashed around the world. The Church feels it and prays. The life feels it and works. The slums feel it and the outcasts praise Him.

The cross is the sign of man's ascension. Life opens with hard apprenticeship, and all its achievements come by way of crucifixion, suffering and sacrifice. Wherever there is ecstasy, it is by the sign of the cross.

It is the sign of our salvation. It is the sign of Him and His love. We shall not look amiss if we look for the sign of the cross in the last day.

Prayer.—Our Father, give us Thy love, Thy spirit, Thy life today and forever. Forgive us our sins and weave into our characters Thy sign of love and life, Thine own qualities and give us strength to press on until the work is done. Amen.

FRIDAY.

OPEN WINDOWS.

"His windows being open in his chamber toward Jerusalem"—Dan. 6:10.

In the practice of which our text speaks, we see how Daniel demonstrates the supremacy of the spiritual. His steadfast habit was that of prayer inspiring practice. Nothing ever comes in between him and his God. His swift rise to power, his many cares, and even critical danger, are all alike unable to disturb his serenity or interrupt his practice of the presence of God.

In our busy age a sense of spiritual values is one of the greatest needs of the age. We need today, as much as ever, men of the type of Daniel. We are feverishly active, full of hustle and bustle. We have time for everything but God. People in these days are constantly expressing impatience with the Church of God, and it has its limitations, but its witness for the Eternal was never more needed. Our spiritual windows are too much closed.

In the midst of all our concerns we must make place for prayer and meditation. These tend to be lost arts. That is one reason for the small souls of men and women, for you cannot grow a soul without thought and labor. "This kind cometh not out save by prayer and fasting." We all need that prayer which has been described as "dominant desire calling God into allegiance." Keep, then, the windows of the soul open toward God.

Prayer.—Thou who art our daily Bread, feed us this day with refreshment that will make us strong to do and to be. Even as Jesus at the well told His disciples of the meat they did not know, so may we be nourished this day with heavenly food, to do our work with inward power. Amen.

SATURDAY.

THE TIE THAT BINDS.

"For where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them."—Matt. 18:20.

There can be no greater gathering than that which has Christ in the center. The strength of the hub spells the efficiency of the wheel. The life that is in the vine gives the vitality to the branch. Christ is one in a group that expresses ministry and service. There are no lone crusaders. One good man or woman, bent on righteousness, is always a majority. Christian progress and heroic achievement are not matters of arithmetic, but personality. Wherever one or two or three—or one or two or three hundred—are gathered together in the name of Jesus Christ, there is the kingdom of God in all its beauty of transformation and redemption.

A missionary tells us concerning a group of five hundred converted persons, the mail bringing to this group a communication for each person. Before conversion, the mail averaged only one letter for the five hundred. Bishop Hughes comments on this amazing bit of history by saying Jesus Christ increases the sense of fellowship five hundred times. Paul knew this when he wrote: "The blood of Jesus Christ cleanseth us from all sin, and we have fellowship one with another."

Prayer.—We who are children of a Heavenly Father who is thinking of our welfare more than earthly parents think of the well-being of their little ones, pray Thee to remove from us all fear that we are forgotten by the Infinite. Reveal Thyself to us as better than those who love us in the flesh. In His name we ask it. Amen.

SUNDAY.

THE REASONABLE GOD.

"Come now, and let us reason together, saith the Lord."—Isa. 1:18.

God's way is a reasonable way, no matter how we may look at it, for God Himself is a reasonable Being, interested in His people, and desirous that the very best come to them. There are times when He commands, and it is ours to obey. He chides, cautions, directs, and points out our obvious duty; but here He calls to a council.

A man who had gone through several weeks of special religious meetings without showing the slightest interest was won for God by a simple process of reasoning. He gave his "reasons" for not becoming a Christian, and I gave him God's reasons why he should take this step. At the close of an hour's conference, he told me, with tears standing in his eyes, "Every prop is swept away, and God has answered every argument; there is nothing left but to turn to Him." He did so, and found Christ at the age of seventy.

Prayer.—As the light greets our eyes as we awake, O Father of all, so may the Light of the world shine into any darkness of our spirits. Make us sunny-tempered, life-giving, making all who meet us today glad because they see we are Thine. Amen.

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

This letter and financial report closes our year's work for 1927.

It has been a year of real work and a joyful work. The Churches and friends have stood shoulder to shoulder with us, and it has made our journey through the year happy. We have tried to reach and help every child we possibly could. By the loyal support of loyal friends in our Churches and Sunday Schools we have been able to reach our goal for the year. And by the loyalty and generosity on the part of loyal friends in our Churches who have been so interested in our success this year, it has been possible for us to pay off all the indebtedness owed by the Orphanage and starts us off for 1928 with no debts to burden us along the way. We want to express our heartfelt thanks to all for the beautiful co-operation you have given us during the year 1927, and want you to rejoice with us in the success of reaching our goal.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON,
Superintendent.

The following have been sent in since our last report: Ladies' Aid Society, New Lebanon Church, N. C., 1 dress and a slip for Dahlia Ellis; Women's Missionary Society, Goshen, Ind., dresses, bloomers, shoes, stockings, one sweater, raincoat and cap; friends around Fuqua Springs and Varina, N. C., 19 hens; W. M. Goodwin, New Hill, N. C., 10 pair shoes for boys; Women's Missionary Society of Linville Church, towels, pillow cases, hose, short, bloomers, wash rags, one quilt and one cake soap; Sunbeam Class, Linville Church, 1 box towels (12); Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Newman, for Swannie Horne, bloomers, union suits, dresses, oxfords, hose, and 1 hat and coat; ladies of the Henderson Church, for Gladys Horne, hat, coat, handkerchiefs, hose, union suits, sweater, dress and oxfords; Columbia Mfg. Co., 100 yards sheeting; Mrs. Agnes V. Brice, Norfolk, Va., 1 pair pillow cases; Women's Missionary Society, N. Manchester, Ind., 1 box clothing; Berea Christian Church, 9 dozen hose; Geo. M. McCullers, McCullers, N. C., 125 song books for our chapel; Burlington Church, 1 box white gifts; H. L. Huffines, Gibsonville, N. C., apples, oranges, raisins, peanuts, and candy; Chapel Hill Church, apples, raisins, oat meal, Postum and nuts; Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Butt, Norfolk, Va., 2 boxes oranges; Miss Celestia Penny, Bailey, N. C., dresses, sweater, hose and overalls; Greensboro Church, 1 box white gifts; Mrs. J. F. Williams, Suffolk, Va., 1 bag peanuts; Suffolk Christian Church & S. S., 1 box gifts for children; Philathea Class, Berea Church, N. C., 7 cakes; First Church, Norfolk, Va., 2 footballs; Philathea Class, Ramseur Church, 21 pkgs. tooth paste; Class 5, Burlington Church, for Lillie Mae Hunter, fruits nuts, candy and slicker; Mrs. Susan B. Martin, Elkhart, Ind., 9 pair stockings; Mrs. J. M. Richards, Abanda, Ala., 2 dresses and 1 shirt, 1 towel, pillow cases and 1 pair hose; Franklin Christian Church, Va., 1 box presents for children; Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Cook, Mebane, N. C., 3 boxes apples; Fred Cates, 2 boxes apples; Vitus Holt's S. S. Class, Burlington, 3 1-2 barrels flour; C. E. Society, Burlington, N. C., presents for children; H. A. Carlton, farm in South Carolina: 1,006 bushels corn, 15 bushels sweet potatoes, 35 bushels beans, 76 gallons syrup; Waverly Church, 1 box white gifts.

REPORT FOR DEC. 29, 1927 (Continued).

Brought forward $28,251.59

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

N. C. & Va. Conference:

Pleasant Ridge 1.25

Western N. C. Conference:

Ether 3.73

Eastern N. C. Conference:

Henderson $ 8.81

New Elam 1.75

Damascus 2.00

Shady Grove 2.00

Morrisville 2.00

Eastern Virginia Conference:

Holy Neck $10.00

Dendron 23.55

Waverly, six months 27.87

Cypress Chapel 5.69

Valley Virginia Conference:

Linville $ 3.46

New Hope 6.00

Bethlehem 2.47

Winchester 5.71

Antioch 4.00

Special Offerings.

E. M. Davenport, for children....$37.50

Oakland Church, Chuckatuck, Va... 15.18

R. W. Malone, Renigar children....420.00

W. A. Raseoe, support of Lois 15.00

New Building Fund.

Mrs. Cora J. Zeider, Mansfield, Ill..... 5.00

Thanksgiving Offerings.

N. C. & Va. Conference:

Apples Chapel $ 8.20

Hines Chapel 16.40

Reidsville 9.50

Elk Spur 4.10

Rocky Ford Sunday School..... 3.30

Rocky Ford Church 3.70

Berea 21.00

Union Church & S. S., Va..... 15.00

Western N. C. Conference:

New Center $ 9.00

Liberty 19.40

Burlington (additional) 5.00

Eastern N. C. Conference:

Raleigh, First $17.43

New Hope 28.00

Moore's Union 5.00

Fuller's Chapel 8.62

Eastern Va. Conference:

Suffolk Church $400.00

Suffolk Sunday School 50.00

Suffolk, 20th Century Bible Class.. 50.00

Dendron 34.00

Pleasant Grove 17.58

Berea, Nansemond 26.45

Union, Southampton 1.13

Christian Temple 305.00

Valley Virginia Conference:

Antioch $48.00

Bethlehem 7.25

Mt. Olivet 1.58

Alabama Conference:

New Hope Church & S. S.....$14.23

Beulah 2.25

Noon Day 2.70

Georgia and Alabama Conference:

Ambrose 10.64

Outside help:

Geo. M. McCullers, N. C.....$ 5.27

New Hope Special Christmas off'g... 4.60

Malvern H. Hayes, Wise, N. C..... 10.00

A Friend, Siler City, N. C..... 5.00

Gibsonville Hosiery Mills 10.00

Mr. & Mrs. J. L. Hatch, Salisbury.. 12.50

Mrs. J. L. Barksdale, Southerlin, Va. 2.00

49.37

Grand total $30,048.39

COMMUNION WARE

Individual Service

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A

Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses $7.00

Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses 6.75

Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses 6.50

Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25

Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25

Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim..... 1.60

No. 2—Broad rim 1.60

SILVER-PLATE

The Silver-Plated Ware is of the very lightest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.

Style No. 85

Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses.$22.00

Base No. 1—Silver-plate; fits Silver Tray No. 85 11.00

Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85... 16.00

(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)

Style No. 90

Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 33 plain glasses.

Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses

(this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling). $22.00

Base No. 2—Silver-plate; fits Silver Tray 90... 16.00

Cover No. 4—Silver-plate; fits Silver Tray 90.. 14.00

19.18 Breda Plate No. 3—Narrow rim $ 9.00

No. 4—Broad rim 9.00

10.64 Filler—Silver lined 6.00

Send Orders to THE CHRISTIAN SUN,
1536 E. Broad St., - - - Richmond, Va.

Kiddies' Korner

MADGE MOFFITT WHITESELL, Editor.

Here's a nice New Year's letter from a small Kiddie. What about a lot of letters from you every one during this New Year? Write plainly, with pen and ink, and only use one side of the paper.

Here are some games to play, dears, and oh! some time when you are making pretty toys and animals at school, send your very prettiest one to a little sick playmate. When I make something I like, I always want to make one for some one else to enjoy. Don't you?

Yours editor,

High Point, N. C., Box 592.

MRS. MADGE MOFFITT WHITESELL.

Walters, Va., Dec. 6, 1927.

Dear Mrs. Whitesell:

I received your nice letter last week. It sure was a nice letter. I want to tell all the Kiddies I sure did enjoy playing the Pollyanna game.

Listen, Kiddies, I have a riddle to ask you: If Mr. Brown was going along the road with a chicken under his arm, and met another man, and Mr. Brown asked him did he want to buy the chicken. The first question the man asked about the chicken was the name of an automobile. What was it? I am going to tell Mrs. Whitesell the answer and let you guess until next week. Well, it's most bedtime. I guess I better close. All you Kiddies write to me.

ALICE BRADSHAW.

A GAME TO PLAY.

Witch in the Jar.

Some one is chosen to be witch. The witch marks off circles on the ground to represent jars. When any child comes near her, she tries to catch him. If she catches one she puts him in a jar, and he has to stay until all are caught. As each one is caught, he is put into a jar, and the game goes on until all are caught.

Come With Me.

Children join hands and stand in a circle. The one who is "it" runs around the circle and touches some one on the back, saying: "Come with me." The two run in opposite directions. When they meet, they take hold of hands, swing once around, and then race for the vacant place. The one who gets left is "it."

Gypsy.

The one who is "it" is the gypsy. The other children are her daughters. The gypsy tells her daughters to stay at home and be good. While she is away the daughters run and hide. The gypsy must find them all. The first one found and caught must be the gypsy next time.

A teacher in the fourth grade asked the class in geography, "What is the use of the sun?" A little boy, whose mother did the washing for her large family, impatiently waved his arm. The teacher, noting his anxiety to answer, said, "George, what is it?" "To dry clothes," was the reply.—Sel.

BURLINGTON.

During the month of December, as far as can be ascertained, each organization of the First Christian Church of Burlington had its regular monthly meeting with a helpful program. The Martha Stacy Missionary Society has had charge of THE CHRISTIAN SUN subscription campaign in this Church. It is a working society, and a good report is expected of them.

Due to the use of the Christmas season and the uncertainty of the weather, the attendance at the Young People's Congress of the Western North Carolina Conference, which was held at Seagrove, December 10-11th, was very small. Quite a number of delegates from Burlington attended the conference on Sunday and were favorably impressed with the messages of the day.

A Christmas pageant, "The Prince of Peace," with nearly a hundred persons taking part, was given on the night of December 18th. The program was declared a great success. The amiable characteristic of the pageant seemed to be the worshipful theme that penetrated the entire performance. Each character taking a part seemed to feel that his bit would either make or mar the pageant, and each character worked hard to do his very best. Co-operation was the keynote to the entire situation.

The orchestra, choir, and all participants in the pageant were fittingly costumed for the occasion. The Church was impressively decorated with holly and cedar. The glistening star, the manger scene and the lighted cross and candles, under the soft colored lights especially arranged for the service, made an impression that will not soon be forgotten.

During the exercises of the evening, a generous offering for the Christian Orphanage and for missions was received. A great array of gifts, all wrapped in white, for the Orphanage and for our mountain work in Carroll County, Va., were brought forward and placed at the foot of the illuminated cross. Besides the gifts that were brought forward, one Sunday School class had made a donation to the Orphanage of three and one-half barrels of flour, and other classes gave oranges and other fruit. A large audience was present for the evening exercises, and some were turned away for lack of space.

On the night of December 27th, a Christmas tree program was held at the Church, at which time gifts were given to each member of the Sunday School through the intermediate department, and a generous treat of fruit and nuts were served the entire Sunday School. A short program was rendered before the presentation of gifts.

ESSIE MAE COTTEN.

OXFORD BIBLES

An Oxford $3.50
Teacher's Bible only

"The
Oxford Bible
is the Bible
par excellence
of the world"

The best recommendation of the OXFORD TEACHER'S BIBLES is the fact that over 3,000,000 copies have been sold. The wonderful helps they contain save your time because they are alphabetically arranged, making reference easy. They take the place of many books about the Bible, and can be depended upon, being written by eminent scholars. The Helps contain 32 graphic illustrations, besides 15 beautifully colored maps. The text is the Authorized or King James version, with over 50,000 centre column references.

These Are Genuine OXFORD Teacher's BIBLES

EASY-TO-READ EDITION

Size 7 1/4 x 5 x 1 1/2 inches

Specimen of Type

17 And there was a very sore battle
that day; and Abner was beaten,

- | | | |
|-------|--|--------|
| Nos. | | |
| 01451 | Moroccoette, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges | $3.50 |
| 01453 | French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and handsome Bible | 4.35 |

Oxford India Paper Edition

Same as above, but printed on the famous Oxford India paper used only in Oxford Bibles. Only one inch thick.

- | | | |
|-------|--|--------|
| Nos. | (Weight 13 oz.) | |
| 0773x | French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition | $7.50 |

RED LETTER EDITION

- | | | |
|-------|---|------|
| 05453 | As No. 01453 with words of Jesus Christ in red. The red letter feature adds greatly to one's understanding of the Bible | 5.00 |
|-------|---|------|

Oxford India Paper Edition

- | | | |
|--------|---|------|
| 05453x | Same as No. 0773x with words of Jesus Christ in red. A gift edition which is sure to please | 8.00 |
|--------|---|------|

SELF-PRONOUNCING EDITION

All proper names and difficult words divided into syllables and accented so they may be correctly pronounced. Sizes 8 1/2 x 5 1/2 x 1 1/2 inches.

Specimen of Type

6 And A-hi-shär was over the household: and Ad-6-ni-räm the son of Ab-di was over the tri-

- | | | |
|-------|--|--------|
| Nos. | | |
| 01521 | Moroccoette, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges | $5.00 |
| 01523 | French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A real student's Bible | 6.00 |

Oxford India Paper Edition

Same as above, but printed on the famous Oxford India paper which is used only in Oxford Bibles. Only 1 1/2 inches thick.

- | | | |
|-------|---|--------|
| 0923x | French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A Bible of superior quality | $9.00 |
|-------|---|--------|

Improved Thumb Index on any style
at 50 cents extra

MCCURDY.

William A. McCurdy was called to his reward on December 28, 1927, in his 69th year. He was a member of the First Christian Church, Winchester, Va., and was faithful. He was a quiet, modest Christian gentleman and beloved by all. He leaves a widow, Mrs. Birdella McCurdy, and one daughter, Mrs. R. A. Lariak. He had been declining in health for a year and died from a stroke of paralysis. The body was laid to rest in Mt. Hebron Cemetery, Winchester, Va., the service being conducted by his pastor. Jesus says: "I will not leave you comfortless; I will come to you."

B. J. EARP.

SILVEUS.

Mrs. Barbara Silveus, wife of Perry Silveus, fell asleep in Jesus on December 24, 1927, at the age of 58 years. She was a member of Whistler's Chapel Christian Church, and had been living in Winchester, Va., with her daughter, Mrs. Annie McDonald, 670 North Cameron Street. The end came as a result of cancer. The service was conducted by the writer. "But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the first fruits of them that slept."

B. J. EARP.

BATEMAN.

Mrs. Melinda A. Bateman was born on August 5, 1860, and died December 31, 1927. Her age was 67 years, 4 months, and 26 days. Sister Bateman was a member of Antioch Christian Church. She and her husband lived for a number of years in Radford, Va., and because of the distance was not in position to attend her Church, but she remained true to it to the end. The body was brought to the home of her brother, Samuel Hintou, at Massanetta Springs, and funeral services were conducted at Mt. Pleasant Church, near there, on January 2, 1928.

A. W. ANDES.

SHORT.

Mrs. Annie E. Short, wife of I. N. Short, died December 7, 1927. She was born December 27, 1880, making her age, therefore, at the time of her death 46 years, 11 months, and 10 days. Surviving to mourn her untimely death are her husband and nine children. She was a member and faithful attendant of the Leaksville Christian Church, going to Church sometimes even when she was not physically able. Her death leaves the home very much broken up. May the Lord guide and comfort the bereaved. Funeral services at Leaksville on December 9, 1927.

A. W. ANDES.

LOUDERBACK.

Mrs. Mary A. Louderback was born September 4, 1842, and departed this life December 29, 1927, at the age of 55 years, 3 months, and 25 days. Sister Louderback was twice married, her first husband being a Cabbage. To this union ten children were born, six of whom survive to mourn her death. She is also survived by forty-one grandchildren and thirty great-grandchildren.

Sister Louderback was a member of Newport Christian Church, and although not able to go to Church during her latter years, she remained true to it and was willing and even anxious to go from this world to be happy in her eternal home. Funeral services were conducted December 31st at Leak's Chapel Church, near her home, and the remains were laid to rest in the family cemetery.

A. W. ANDES.

HOME AND SCHOOL EDUCATION.

According to Dr. Augustus O. Thomas, State Commissioner of Education for Maine, the home is the principal source of education for the child. His words are:

"It is fundamentally the home's chief concern to bring up the children in the way they should go. To this end the home seeks help of the school and the Church as the chief co-operating agencies. The parents and the teacher should be the best kind of friends. Their efforts must supplement each other—it is seldom that a teacher has trouble with a child from a well-ordered home. If parents and teachers occasionally will talk over their common problems, it will help both sides."

If we could be assured of good homes, where the highest principles of honor, truth, duty and endeavor are faithfully taught, we could be sure that most of our troubles would pass away. In life, it is the first few years which count for most.

ELON COLLEGE

CO-EDUCATIONAL

SECOND SEMESTER OPENS JANUARY 4, 1928

A few additional Students may be accommodated at that time, preferably members of the Christian Church.

SOME OF THE ELON COLLEGE BUILDINGS

ELON COLLEGE offers superior educational advantages to the members of the Christian Church. The buildings are new, equipment new and of the very best type, laboratory facilities equal to any college in the South; member of the Southern Association of Colleges, strong Christian faculty, and fine Christian atmosphere prevailing on the campus. Special courses in religious education and Christian work are offered to train laymen and ministers in the work of our denomination.

For Catalogue and View-Books, address

C. M. CANNON REGISTRAR,

ELON COLLEGE,

NORTH CAROLINA

"Christian Character First and Always at Elon College"

For Fifty-three Years
Select Notes
 AMOS B. WELLS, Editor
 has been the Sunday School
 Worker's Best Friend
 is an up-to-date Commentary on the Sunday School Lessons for 1928.
 Contains explanatory notes of text,
 topics for discussion, illustrations of all kinds, suggestive methods to develop the lesson, maps, charts, etc.
 Price $1.00, $2.00 delivered
 At all bookstores
 W. A. WILDE COMPANY
 131 Clarendon Street, Boston, Mass.

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rve. Daniel W. Kerr.

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Christian Church.

BOARD OF EDITORS

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D. Editor
W. W. STALEY, D. D. Associate
W. A. HARPER, LL.D. Associate
REV. S. C. HARRELL. Associate
R. C. HELFENSTEIN, D. D. Associate
REV. S. M. LYNAM. News Editor
P. J. KERNODLE. Managing Editor

Subscription Rates

One Year$2.00
Six Months 1.00

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT
RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Post-office at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows the date of expiration. Change in the label will appear on wrapper the first week of month following renewal, provided it is received before the 25th.

Change of Address: Give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

When subscriptions are made for friends, state whether paper is to be stopped at end of the year.

Remittances: Make all remittances for subscriptions and renewals to "Editor Christian Sun," Elon College, N. C.

Remittances for advertising and other business matters will be addressed to the "Managing Editor," 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond, Va.

Advertising Rates: "Want Ads," 2 cents a word an insertion. Display rates quoted upon request.

Notices: Obituary and Marriage notices, limited to 100 words, are published free of charge. All over 100 words, at 1 cent a word. Remittance should accompany copy. Write names distinctly.

JOYNER.

Resolutions in memory of our deceased class-mate, Jason Joyner:

Whereas, our dear brother suddenly passed away to the other world, and as we come together this beautiful Christmas morning to commemorate the birth of our dear Lord, to learn of His life and to try to be enabled to follow Him, our minds run back and remember those who followed the Christ. Since knowing Bro. Jason Joyner, as a faithful Christian character in service, both in his class and community, we, the members of the Wesley Bible Class of the Courtland M. E. Church, have, with bowed heads and loving hearts, kept him in silent memory during these months. He was one of the best attendants of his class, and always carried with him a sign of Christian fellowship and brotherly greeting. We, therefore, resolve:

1. That we, the members of the Wesley Bible Class of the Courtland M. E. Church, will ever hold in memory his faithfulness and true Christian character.

2. To the members of his family we hereby express our deepest sympathy in their bereavement and commend them to the care of our Heavenly Father.

3. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to his family, to The Christian Sun, his Church paper, and a copy recorded in the minutes of our class-book.

DR. W. T. McEMORE.
F. G. BARKER.
C. C. JONES.

JONES.

Paul P. Jones was born June 16, 1857, and died December 26, 1927, age 70 years, 6 months and 10 days. He was a member of Pleasant Grove Church for about fifty years, and a most faithful deacon for about fifteen years.

He leaves widow, Ellen Styers Jones; a son, Jesse Jones; a daughter, Fannie Jones, and an adopted child, Freddie Carpenter. Funeral services were conducted by the writer, assisted by Dr. T. S. Wilson, of the Presbyterian Church.

T. FRED WRIGHT.

WANTED TO SELL

A Tract of Land, about 25 acres, 2½ miles south of Elon College, near a new graded road, suitable for a small dairy, pig, or poultry farm. For price and terms, apply to

W. T. NOAH
Elon College, N. C.

BETHLEHEM COLLEGE

WADLEY, ALABAMA

A JUNIOR COLLEGE AND HIGH SCHOOL.

Where Opportunity Awaits the Student of Very Limited Means.

GIRL'S DORMITORY.

Bethlehem College, Wadley, Ala., will open September 5, 1927. This institution is a Junior College and High School, which is co-educational, where scholarship ranks high and expense is low. It is thoroughly Christian, absolutely non-sectarian, and vitally American. A school where opportunity awaits the student of very limited means—$68.00 pays all college expenses, except books, board and room. Board, $15.00 per month, and room $3.00; total expenses for a term of nine months, $250.00.

Bethlehem College is training some of the best stock of America for Christian leadership, to be used by the nation and the world. Here is a great challenge and asset for students who wish to prepare themselves to serve in a worth-while way. The work on the new Administration Building is progressing nicely, and we will be able to begin our college work in this building when school opens this fall.

For catalog and other information, address S. L. Beougher, President.

OXFORD TEACHERS' BIBLES

An Oxford Teachers' Bible has references and 300 pages of helps that are a mine of information to Bible students. The helps are arranged in alphabetical order, like a dictionary. They are accurate, comprehensive and up-to-date. A few styles are listed here. Many others are described in our Bible catalogue, mailed upon request.

04403 [This size print] Bound in French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, size 6½ x 4½ inches$4.00
0623x [Same Bible as 04403] Printed on Oxford India paper. Only 1 inch thick.....$6.00

04453 [This size print] French Morocco leather binding, overlapping covers, 7½ x 5 in. $4.35

0773x [Same Bible as 04453] Printed on Oxford India paper. A remarkably thin and light Bible. (Only 1 inch thick)$7.75

05453 [Same Bible as 04453] With the words of Jesus Christ printed in red$6.25

05453x [Same Bible as 0773x] With the words of Jesus Christ printed in red$8.75

01523 [This size print] A self-pronouncing Oxford Bible. Bound in French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, size 8½ x 5½ inches... $5.50

0923x [Same Bible as 04523] Printed on Oxford India paper, only 1½ inches thick...$9.75

ORDER FROM

"THE CHRISTIAN SUN"

Richmond, Va.

HOLMAN BIBLES

FOR CHILDREN

PICTORIAL BIBLES WITH HELPS

The text is self-pronouncing, by the aid of which children can learn to pronounce the difficult Scripture proper names.

Specimen of Type

27 And the boys grew; and Esau was a cunning hunter.
5 And the streets of the city shall be full of boys and girls playing in the streets thereof.

Size, 5½ x 3½ inches.

With beautiful photo views of scenes in Bible lands distributed throughout the text. Also maps of Bible lands in colors. Also new Practical Helps to Bible Study, especially designed for instructing children in scriptural information.

No. 9111. French Seal Leather, overlapping covers, round corners, gold edges, gold titles.

Our Price—Post Paid 2.30

COLORED PICTURE EDITION

Portraying in natural colors, scenes and places taken from nature and life in the Holy Land.

No. 9211. Same as No. 9111, but with Beautifully Colored Pictures.

Our Price—Post Paid 2.40

FOR INTERMEDIATE SUNDAY-SCHOOL SCHOLARS

Large Clear Black Type, Self-Pronouncing, containing Helps to Bible Study, 4000 Questions and Answers, Maps in Colors, and Presentation Page. A Beautiful Gift Bible.

Specimen of Type

22 And the prophet Isaiah said unto himself, and mark, and for at the return of t

Size, 7 x 5 inches.

No. 215. Divinity Circuit Style, Bound in French Seal Leather, round corners, red under gold edges, with silk head bands and purple silk marker, gold titles, etc.

Our Price—Post Paid 3.10

No. 3215RL. Red Letter Scholars' Bible, same Bible as No. 215, with all the Sayings of Christ printed in Red, and with Red and gold INLAIN PANEL SIDE TITLES, also Beautifully Colored Pictures.

Our Price—Post Paid 3.45

Holman Self-Pronouncing

VEST POCKET TESTAMENTS

Clearcut Print in Smallest Size
4½ x 2½ x ¾ inches

Specimen of Type
AND the third day there was a marriage in Cana of Galilee; and the mother of Jesus was

2133K. Bound in durable Morocco Grain Semble Leather, flexible limp, gilt titles$6.00

2113. French Morocco, genuine leather, flexible limp, gold titles, rounded corners, gold edges.....$7.00

2115P. French Morocco, Divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, with the Book of Psalms included$1.10

ILLUSTRATED VEST POCKET TESTAMENT

With Pictures of Holy Land Scenes

2314. French Morocco, limp, gold side title round corners, red under gold edges$8.50

RED LETTER VEST POCKET TESTAMENT
With all the words of our Lord printed in red.

13RL. French Morocco, flexible limp, gold side title on red panel, gold edges.$8.50

15RLP. French Morocco, overlapping covers, flexible, gold side title on red panel, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included$1.25

INDIA PAPER VEST POCKET TESTAMENT

Thin as a Wafer

2136XP. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, with Psalms included$2.25

Send Your Orders to
THE CHRISTIAN SUN
1536 E. Broad Street
RICHMOND - VIRGINIA

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Official Organ of the Southern Christian Convention.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXX.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, JANUARY 19, 1928.

NUMBER 3.

•• THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY ••

BY REV. S. M. LYNAM.

Life's Pandora.—

Out of the bitter which the disciples tasted when their Lord and Master spoke of His departure they were soon to taste the sweet. The cross was not far distant; neither was the resurrection. The sorrow that crushed them was but for a brief season of days. The joy that followed when they saw their risen Lord made the sorrow resplendent as does the sun the clouds which it illumines with its golden glory.

Back to the Devotional Spirit.—

Bishop Charles Fiske, of the New York Central Diocese of the Episcopal Church, laments the passing of the devotional spirit. He declares that men are not to be won to God by social proclamations and Church efficiency. He thinks that we need to return to the devotional spirit, and he regrets that efficiency has become the cardinal virtue, and that the Church has become little better than sanctified commercialism. He says, "I conceive of the ministry as something other than glorified 'Y' work." In the bishop's lament there is food for thought. After all, in our efforts to achieve efficiency and social uplift, may we not have lost a more valuable thing so far as true religion is concerned? We need these things, but we need, too, the devotional spirit that brings us into close and intimate contact with God.

Government Liquor Control.—

A year ago the province of Ontario voted to have the government enter the liquor business, and in June of this last year government liquor stores were opened throughout the province. It is interesting to note that in Toronto, a city of nearly six hundred thousand exclusive of suburbs, convictions for drunkenness have increased more than 26 per cent in the first six months of the L. C. A. over the last six months of the Ontario temperance act. Taking the figures of the police court up item by item and month by month, the records show that conditions have been worse under government control than under the previous condition. The Ontario temperance act was only a partial measure, because it permitted the manufacture of liquor, but forbade its sale. This meant that much liquor at best leaked through to the public, who consumed it. However, partial prohibition proved better than the system now in effect in the province. The situation in Ontario is only indicative of what may be expected in the United States should the prohibition amendment be repealed or any measures inaugurated which would permit the sale of liquor to the American people. Every effort should be made to prevent this step from being taken. It is a task for the Church, and we should not wait too long to go about performing our work as did the Churches of Ontario.

An Ambassador of Good Will.—

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh flew from Washington, D. C., to Mexico City recently. In the flight, Col. Lindbergh lost his route and made several hundred miles out of the way, and so it is thought added to his laurels the longest non-stop overland flight. His reception in Mexico was as warm as those Southern neighbors know how to make it, which is a delightful welcome. From Mexico City, the famous flyer extended his tour to include the Central American countries, and in all the capitals visited he has been heartily received. In Nicaragua he had a most delightful welcome in spite of the fears expressed that he might find the people hostile to the United States. Col. Lindbergh feels that the Nicaraguans are inclined to be friendly to the Americans. The colonel, however, is not dealing in political matters, and for that reason he may be able to render a matchless service to the country along lines of peace. No diplomacy is so productive of good will as is a friendly spirit, and the splendid young aviator-ambassador of the American people is manifesting such a spirit to the people of Mexico and Central America. The people of the continent need a better understanding of each other, and Col. Lindbergh is doing much to build it up.

King Ben Purnell Dies.—

King Ben Purnell died on December 16th, but the outside world did not become aware of his passing until the 19th. King Ben Purnell, head of the House of David colony, Benton Harbor, Mich., had told his followers that he would never die. He held that he was the seventh messenger of Christ, and his deathless life was to be a proof of the promised immortality of the members. In the three days during which King Ben lay dead in the colony his devoted followers waited in vain for his resurrection, which did not come. The daily press has fully dealt with the alleged immoralities of this head of the House of David and with the long trial in which the State of Michigan sued for a dissolution of the colony on the grounds that it was a public nuisance, and Judge Lewis F. Fead denied the dissolution, but commanded that King Ben and his consort queen, Mary Purnell, be banished from the colony and a receiver be appointed to carry on until the members were ready for dissolution. Thinkers may take a different turn now since the sudden death of the leader. It is intimated that Mr. H. T. Dewhirst, one-time superior court judge, may succeed as head of the colony. Mr. Dewhirst appeared as counsel for King Ben in the recent trial. When the members of the colony came in, all their worldly goods were turned over to King Ben, and he has been accused of gigantic financial frauds. It is certain that vast properties passed into his hands from the members.

Anti-War Treaties Urged.—

Following the presentation to President Coolidge and Secretary of State Kellogg, on November 3rd, of a memorial urging the acceptance of the Briand proposal and the renunciation of war, signed by 700 Church leaders of nearly all communions, further action was taken by the administrative committee of the Churches at its regular meeting on November 25th.

The resolution adopted by the administrative committee urges the United States to enter into treaties with other nations to "renounce war as an instrument of national policy" and to submit disputes to "suitable international tribunals for laws:

"Congress declared (August 29, 1916) it 'to be the policy of the United States to adjust and settle international disputes through mediation, to the end that war may be honorably avoided.'

"On April 6, 1927, M. Briand proposed to the people of the United States the adoption of an agreement between France and the United States for the renunciation of war as an instrument of national policy.

"On November 4th, President Coolidge is reported to have said that 'the time will soon be ripe for further discussion of the proposed treaty to outlaw war between France and the United States.'

"During the last few days it has been announced that resolutions will be introduced into the Senate and the House of Representatives giving practical effect to the Briand proposal, and to the arbitration policy adopted by Congress in 1916.

"Therefore, be it resolved, by the Administrative Committee of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, That, in its judgment, the United States should enter into treaties with France, Great Britain, and other nations—

(a) "To renounce war between the signatories as an instrument of national policy and to regard it henceforth as an illegitimate method of attempting to secure national objectives, it being expressly understood that this agreement does not prevent them from self-defense in case of attack.

(b) "To submit to suitable international tribunals for peaceful settlement, just so far as possible, every dispute between such signatories which cannot be solved by the usual methods of diplomacy, it being clearly understood that, even in regard to disputes which they may not be willing to submit to international tribunals, they will, nevertheless, not resort to war."

NOTES-PERSONALS

Rev. J. W. Patton preached at the Fall Creek Baptist Church on Sunday, the 15th of January.

Many of our Churches on January 15th celebrated the "Day of Prayer" for our colleges. This is as it should be. Pray for our colleges.

Rev. W. N. Hayes, of Seagrove, writes that he is in poor health. He has been a faithful worker for us in the Western North Carolina Conference. We hope he may soon be entirely well.

The Institute on Parental Education, of North Carolina, is to hold a conference for three days, February 14-16th, in Raleigh. It is hoped that many of our people will be able to attend this conference.

Rev. D. M. Spence, pastor at Henderson, N. C., was ordained Sunday, January 8th, at 7:30 P. M., in the Church of which he is pastor. Dr. W. C. Wicker and Rev. J. W. Patton had part in the services.

Did you notice in last week's SUN that Mrs. T. F. Roquemore, Lanett, Ala., had sent in twenty-five new subscriptions for THE CHRISTIAN SUN? That's fine! Our goal is 500. Let us push hard for it.

THE SUN's readers will be delighted to know that Dr. Atkinson continues to regain his strength and vitality, and ere long we shall have him back at his posts of duty and enjoy his editorials again and his superb editorship of THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

Dr. L. F. Johnson is serving as pastor of the First Congregational Church, of Rutherford, N. J., during the absence of Dr. Pendleton, the pastor, in California. It is needless to say that the congregation is having some good Christian preaching.

Dr. W. P. Minton, Foreign Mission Secretary, and Mrs. M. T. Merrill, member of the General Board of Missions, attended the thirty-fifth annual session of the Foreign Mission Conference of North America, held in Atlantic City, N. J., January 10-13th.

Rev. C. E. Gerringer, pastor of the Wakefield pastorate, writes that he is using January for educational purposes in his Church, with reference to the college offering, and will raise the offering itself in each Church in February. Many other ministers write the same.

Dr. Albert G. Caris, president of Defiance College, and President Harper, of Elon, represented the Christian Church at the recent meeting of the Council of Church Boards of Education and of the Association of American Colleges, which met in Atlantic City, January 8-14th.

The first American conference of the Christian Unity League assembled in Baltimore, Md., at the First Presbyterian Church, January 12th and 13th. Dr. Roy C. Helfenstein, of Dover, Del., and President W. A. Harper, of Elon College, were the representatives of the Christian Church at this meeting. Dr. Helfenstein will report the conference for THE SUN.

Mrs. S. A. Hattman, of Seagrove, in renewing for THE CHRISTIAN SUN, says that she and her husband, who are shut-ins and unable to attend Church, find THE SUN's pulpit a great comfort. Many another report the same thing. We are grateful for every evidence of appreciation from our people for THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

The Barrett's Christian Church, of which Uncle Wellons was first a member and where for generations his people have been active in the life of the Church, has decided to place a bronze marker to his memory in the rotunda of the Alamance Building of Elon College. Other Churches are likely to assist the Barrett's people in this most worthy undertaking. Rev. C. E. Gerringer, the pastor, has this matter in charge.

We are sorry to learn through Bro. T. J. Holland, Ambrose, Ga., that Rev. H. W. Elder has suffered another stroke of paralysis, this time in his left limb, and that he is now confined to his bed and unable to walk. The prayers of our brotherhood will go out for Bro. Elder, who is one of our most capable and devoted ministers, a man who has done more to plant our work in the far South than any minister we have produced.

The ministers of our various Churches are appointing a layman and a woman to assist in raising the offering in each Church. It is recommended by the Educational Committee of the Eastern North Carolina Conference, and appears to be a first-class idea. However, in a democracy such as the Christian Church, we should have multiplicity of plans with reference to any project. We certainly ought not to standardize our work in any particular. The free outworking of the Spirit is what we need in our Church.

The Young People's Congress for Alamance County was held in the Burlington Christian Church Thursday and Friday. One hundred and eighty-nine young people attended throughout the two days' session, and attended the banquet which was given on Friday night in our Church. This was a great event and one that will mean much for the spiritual uplift of the Church life of this section. We are expecting Miss Cotten or Dr. Lankford, or both, to give us full report for THE SUN.

The prospect for a fine attendance at the first pastors' conference to be held at Elon College January 23-27th is most encouraging. Each day there will be an address each by Rev. Stanley C. Harrell, Rev. L. E. Smith, and Dr. J. U. Newman. Each night there will be a lecture by a different person, among whom will be Dr. Beougher, of Bethlehem; Dean Soper, of Duke University, and Prof. Bennett, of the Elon College faculty. Each afternoon there will be an informal conference period in which pastors will discuss their problems, and all the time there will be good-fellowship and personal visitation among students and faculty. A fine idea, we call it!

The first merger number of The Herald of Gospel Liberty, combining with that ancient and honorable periodical The Christian Missionary and The Journal of Christian Education, appeared on January 5th. This issue is volume 120 of The Herald of Gospel Liberty. It would have been volume 6 of The Journal of Christian Education, and it would have been volume 34 of The Christian Missionary. It is always difficult in beginning a new publication to take care of every interest in the ideal way, but it seems to us that the new merger magazine number has come pretty near to doing this. We wish for the new publication every good success, and feel that it will have it. We hope that our people will support the new magazine heartily.

The Christian Temple Church program for Sunday, January 15th, contains the following: "Nine years ago today, Dr. L. E. Smith and family arrived from Huntington, Ind., to assume the pastorate of our Church. The work has grown rapidly under his direction and the progressive leadership of the Church. The following figures will indicate something of its growth: Membership—1919, 236; 1928, 1,398 Sunday School enrollment—1919, 160; 1928, 816; budget, benevolent and current expense—1919, $2,800; 1928, $16,500; value of Church property—1919, $14,000; 1928, $350,000. We are beginning today our tenth year under the leadership of our pastor and are asking the active co-operation of every member, that our tenth year may be the very best we have yet known. (Signed) A. T. West, Chairman, Official Board." Also the following note: "We are glad to welcome to our pulpit today the Rev. Jason Noble Pierce, D. D., pastor of the First Congregational Church, Washington, D. C. Dr. Pierce is President Coolidge's pastor and sustains a national reputation as a minister of the gospel and a religious leader. It is a great privilege to welcome him to our city and Church. Dr. Pierce will speak at both morning and evening services. I want to express to the membership my most sincere appreciation for your help and co-operation through the years of our service together. We have had our days of disappointment, our moments of anxiety and of heartaches, but we have also had our days of triumph, our experiences of happiness and of joy. The years have given to us achievements and a record of which no one need be ashamed. You have made these things possible by your friendship, your love, your co-operation, and your sacrifices. May God bless you and richly reward you with His most choice graces, according as your needs may be, is my prayer. (Signed) Your pastor, L. E. Smith."

BEREA.

We have had nothing to say through the columns of THE SUN for some time, not because we had nothing to say, for many things have happened in our field that have been of interest. First of all, our Churches closed up their 1927 year's work in fine order. None of them failed to reach their goals set to for each, and all are making a fine start on the new year. Belew's Creek put on a program and a tree through Christmas that was of a very high order. The work here seems to be going nicely and the members are all working hard to make the Church program go. Besides the Christmas program, the good folks at Belew's Creek remembered the pastor and his family with many nice things for the pantry. A real pounding it was! May God richly bless these good people.

Berea has been equally as active. They also rendered a Christmas program and had a tree. These folks seem to have the giving spirit, for as they remember the Sunday School pupils with a treat, they never forget our Orphanage, and an offering was taken which amounted to around ten dollars. Besides this they gave seven nice cakes.

Some time ago they decided to build a Sunday School room, and now have it all paid for except about one hundred dollars. Now they are talking in terms of a heating plant for the Church and rooms. The work at Berea can't help from going forward, for no Church has a more loyal and harder working membership than this one. May God bless these good and loyal folks.

J. C. CRUTCHFIELD.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

A BAND OF ROBBERS.

JOHN G. TRUITT, Preacher.

"Will a man rob God?"—Mal. 3:8.

I am beginning a series of sermons on stewardship. I make no apology for preaching on the material things of life as well as on the spiritual things, for I know we are efficient in spiritual in keeping with our efficiency in material things. The Scriptures themselves make our attitude toward the earthly a measure of our attitude toward the heavenly. In 1 John, we have, "He that saith I love God and hateth his brother is a liar, for he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God whom he hath not seen?" We must have a heaven on earth before we are entitled to a heaven above the stars. All too long have we waxed eloquent on our convention platforms about stewardship, and been as mute as a lamb in our pulpits regarding that same subject. It is there that we wonder why our Church is not powerful as a denomination while our consciences showed lash us because we do not teach our people honestly at home their noble and God-given privilege concerning their earnings.

In the very outset I wish it distinctly understood that I have an unshaken faith in our Church. I wish you to know now that I am with you to the last and least man or woman on this roll. In fact, with me there must be no last nor least. Patience, time, and the Spirit of our Lord Christ will work wonders in our midst.

Last year 197 members contributed something to our Church. There were more than this, I have no doubt, but so far as our records show this is the number. But 100 members carried almost the entire budget, and 200 members contributed nothing. Am I justified in bringing to the attention of this Church what the Bible, which is our creed, says concerning the making an offering of a part of our means to the kingdom. My answer is obviously "Yes." Because, as I say, I believe in the membership of this Church. I believe that when these things are called to the attention of our people a wave of prosperity will strike our Church the like of which we have never known. I believe our people are really and truly hungering and thirsting for God, and when they know that one of the ways to find Him is to bring an offering and come into His court, they will bring that offering and come. If Jesus Christ and His words be held up to our people, I believe with all my soul He will draw all men unto Him.

I do not believe it is at all necessary for me to make any personal defense of myself in coming to you as a teacher of the whole Bible—stewardship included. No one will doubt that a living enters into my mind as I choose a life work, but you will at least learn to know me before you let it enter your mind that I have any personal designs in preaching on stewardship of our means. I know what joy you miss if you do not have a real part, whether big or little, in supporting the work which Jesus began to do while on earth. And I am not asking the consistent givers of this Church to increase your gifts, save as your own consciences shall dictate, but I do wish to see all have a part in the work, and I wish to teach the Scriptures in such manner as that I shall be a workman that needeth not be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth.

My subject for this morning service is "A Band of Robbers" (and I do not think you are they). My subject for this evening will be "A Rich Roman who Met and Loved Jesus." My subject for next Sunday evening will be "A Rich Jew who Met and Loved Jesus."

You will find the text for the remainder of my talk this morning in Mal. 3:8. "Will a man rob God?" This whole earth is the Lord's, and the fullness thereof, the world, and they that dwell therein. It has ever been so; it will ever be so. He is the same God yesterday, today, and forever. In the very beginning, before there was a distinctive Jewish race, when we were all at home with God in one big family with no lines between us, God provided work for us to do, and the principle of a portion for Himself both of time and material. Man should dress and keep God's garden, but one tree was to bear its fruit for God only. It was to be dressed and kept by man just as the others were, but its fruit he should not touch on the grave penalty of death. It was to be a silent but ever-present reminder that God and man were doing business together. It was to be a silent reminder that the earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof. This rule He has never revoked, His title He has never relinquished, and in the eternal courts of heaven remains God's deed to all the earth. Will a man rob God?

Also God set apart a seventh of time as hallowed and holy to Him. This day is holy and sacred to Him. Shall man try to change the order of Jehovah of Hosts? Destruction follows in the wake of that community or nation that forgets God and His sacred day. Shall I take no time to turn my face upward? Shall I never meditate upon my Maker? Shall I never be still and know that Jehovah is God? Will a man rob God?

So before man's disobedience in Eden, there was the principle of a portion for God. When He began to formulate in the minds of men His great redemptive scheme, He called Abram out of Ur of the Chaldees. He called him out of pagan obscurity into an almost unbounded prosperity in material things and into an entirely unbounded prosperity in spiritual things. It has ever been so, both with nations and individuals. The richest nations on earth are Christian nations. The richest people are Christian people, or are benefitting directly upon Christian civilization. One thing, and one only, demoralizes wealth and turns the blessing of wealth into a curse: that is, the forgetting of God from whose hands every good and perfect gift comes.

Four hundred years before God established the law of Moses, He established the principle of the tithe. In the 14th chapter of Genesis we find that Abraham gave tithes of all he possessed to Melchisedec. Let us read what it says in Leviticus, the book of laws, 27:30: "And all the tithes of the land, whether of the seed of the land or the fruit of the tree, is the Lord's; it is holy unto the Lord. And if a man will at all redeem ought of his tithes, he shall add thereto the fifth part thereof. And concerning the tithe of the herd, or of the flock, even whatsoever passeth under the rod, the tenth shall be holy unto the Lord. He shall not search whether it be good or bad, neither shall he change it: and if he change it at all, then both it and the change thereof shall be holy; it shall not be redeemed. These are the commandments which the Lord commanded Moses for the children of Israel in Mount Sinai."

"It is the Lord's"—it is nobody's else. "Will a man rob God? Yet ye have robbed me. But ye say, Wherein have we robbed Thee? In tithes and offerings. Bring all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in my house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of Hosts, and see if I will not open the windows of heaven and pour you out a blessing that there shall not be room enough to receive it." Let us see what our Lord Jesus has to say on the subject of the tithe. In Luke 11:42, "Ye tithe . . . all . . . this you ought to have done." In the sermon on the mount, He says, "I come not to condemn the law, but to make it more full." "It is more blessed to give than to receive," says our Christ. Let us see what Paul says, "The Lord loves a cheerful giver." Upon the first day of the week, let each one of you lay by himself in store, as he may prosper, that there be no gatherings when I come" (1 Cor. 16:2).

Will a man rob God? Jesus had preached a sermon, and they all were calling Him Lord, and He said, "Why call ye me Lord, Lord, and do not the things I command you?"

On the road to Jericho there was a band of robbers. They found a person with money; they robbed him and beat him and left him for dead. On the road of life there is a band of robbers; they have found a person with wealth untold in his hand. "The silver is mine and the gold is mine, saith the Lord of Hosts" (Hag. 2:8). They are beating him and leaving him for dead. Many priests and Levites are passing by on the other side of the road and saying not a word. A Samaritan, a despised stranger, found him and bound up his wounds, carried him to the hospital, paid his bill, and ordered his full treatment at his expense. The Jews have turned Christ down. The despised Gentiles have championed His cause. Oh, Christ! help us to serve the bleeding, needy world; help us to stay by until the night is over; help us to give back to Thee the portion that is ever Thine.

Will a man rob God? Will he rob himself of the great joy of working together with God? Will he rob the kingdom within his soul? My brethren and sisters, I am talking to honest men and women, and when you see your duty to our Saviour I know you will do it, in order that His redeemed shall never be a band of robbers on the road to Jericho.

WINCHESTER, VA.

Two very fine programs have been conducted in our Church at Winchester, Va., since my last letter to THE SUN. Each program attracted the attention of the public sufficient to fill the auditorium of the Church, which means more in Winchester than some other places because our city is well Churched. The first of these programs was a thankoffering pageant, put on by the three missionary societies, while the second was directed by a special committee from the Sunday School, leading us in the observance of a Christmas program, bringing white gifts, with ourselves, in consecration to the King. The offering went to the Christian Orphanage at Elon College.

About 10 o'clock, Wednesday, December 21st, the members of the Church here visited the parsonage in a body, making an impression on the minister and his family which will not soon be forgotten. Yes, it was a good, old-fashioned Shenandoah Valley pounding, done in that graceful way and manner that only the members of the Winchester Church can do. We are thankful for their kindness, and wish we could prove more worthy of their esteem. The Saviour says: "For whosoever shall give you a cup of water to drink in my name, because ye belong to Christ, verily, I say unto you, he shall not lose his reward" (Mark 9:41).

B. J. EARP.

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITO

J. O. ATKINSON, Elon College, N. C.

Contributing Editors

W. W. STALEY W. A. HARPER
R. C. HELFENSTEIN S. C. HARRELL

PRINCIPLES OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

RELIGION AND BUSINESS.

The two greatest things in the world are religion and business. Both are personal and social. The primary element in society is the individual, and the sum total of individual service is social service. "No man lives to himself and no man dies to himself." A man left to himself would be of no use to the world, and society could not exist without the individual. His thought, his faith, his love, and his service make up his life; and the aggregate of such individuals compose society. Society may be broken up into groups that compose Churches and nations. The religious element dominates nations more than business. In history, nations are known more by their religion than by their business. India, China, Greece, Palestine, Turkey, and Rome are all known by their religion more than by their business. Religion is the greatest force in the world. It reaches more hearts, determines more conduct, controls more nations, and satisfies more aspirations than any other claim upon mankind. Religion is universal. The Indian's happy hunting ground, the Christian's heaven, and all the hopes between, tell the story of faith and hope in the hearts of men. Religion appeals to men because they are made in the image of God. They may fashion their gods out of marble or mold them out of brass, worship the sun or the Nile, but it all points to the inherent longing of the soul after God. All peoples worship their idea of God. The chief book among all peoples is their religious book. The Koran and the Bible are good examples—the one controls the Mohammedan empire, the other Christendom. Christian civilization is the fruit of the Bible, which reveals Jesus Christ to mankind. Religion grows like light. The tallow candle, the oil lamp, the gas, and finally the electric light. Mankind groped after God in ideal worship, images, sacrifices, and pilgrimages till Jesus came as the Light of the world. Electricity is without definition, and unknown except in its reality and use. Jesus is beyond our comprehension, but He lights the hearts and homes of all who open the door to let Him in.

Business is another great thing among men. It is universal and touches every phase of human employment and is at the heart of living in the home. Food and clothing, fuel and books, necessities and luxuries, are all produced by business, whether on the farm, in the store, the office, or the factory. This is a busy world, and it is a business world. Some lines of business are very large and some seem small; but all work together to make up the whole. There is one great thing in business—it must work with God to succeed. The farmer must work with the seasons, and God instituted "seed-time and harvest." This is a mechanical age and every machine from a steam engine to a watch must be constructed in harmony with God's laws in nature to be of use. Leave out God's laws in the machinery of the world and industry would cease. The airship is fashioned in harmony with the air, the steamer by the laws of water, and the automobile to travel by land. The more we know and obey the laws of God, the richer and more useful we become. The law of mechanics is the law of God. All parts of a machine must work together, and the world has reached the point when men know that all business must co-operate and that we are "members one of another." Competition is giving way to co-operation. Fighting is giving way to helping one another. The less friction in machinery, the better it runs; the less friction in business, the greater prosperity is enjoyed. Religion and business must harmonize to get the best results. Religion needs more business in its work, and business needs more religion among its workers.

TWO WAYS OF VIEWING IT.

There are two ways of looking at the quotas assigned a Church in the benevolence program of our denomination. Recently I have been brought face to face with these two attitudes in a most impressive way. It makes all the difference in the world the way we look at things.

A certain Church had been assigned a quota by its Conference, which was a considerable increase over the former year. When the announcement was made to the Church of this fact, it was stated that the Church had always tried to do its full duty and that every time it succeeded in reaching its full goal the Conference placed an additional assessment upon it. The whole atmosphere of the presentation was a sort of regretful and rebellious one. As a consequence, the Church did not raise the increased quota and actually raised less than it had the year before.

The other instance is exhilarating and inspiring to think upon. When the increased quota was reported to the Church, the speaker was all smiles. He said, "Brothers and sisters of the congregation, I feel proud of our Church. We are weak and small, we know, but we have done so well that our Conference has asked us to raise an additional amount next year and has actually put us in the class of Churches more able than we are to do. I know it will entail some burden upon us to raise this money, but if I understand the Christian life, it is a matter of sacrifice, and the more we give the happier we are. We have divided up our Church into sixteen different groups and assigned two canvassers to each group. These canvassers are to wait upon our people during the coming week, and we feel sure that we will subscribe every penny, and more, that is required to meet our local expenses and this increased benevolence program. I have never felt prouder of our Church than I do this morning, but I am going to feel prouder of it next Sunday than I do today because we are going to respond in a most liberal manner to this program. The institutions of our Church need the money, and really we need to give it as an expression of our love for Christ."

The next Sunday the canvassers made their report, and the chairman who reported for them was all smiles. The budget, including the increased benevolence appropriation, had been more than subscribed.

It makes all the difference in the world how you look at it. A Church can regard an increased asking for the colleges of our Church as a burden, or it can regard it as an opportunity for larger service to the kingdom.

Which would Jesus do?

W. A. H.

THE CALL OF THE MASTER.

No one can pay too high a tribute to the importance of better curricula materials in Sunday School work. No one can lay too much emphasis upon the demand of our day for efficient organization in the work of religious education. No one can lay too much stress upon the need of well-trained teachers and adequate equipment. However, we must always keep in mind the salient fact that these are not ends, but means to an end.

The ultimate objective of religious education is to win the boys and girls to the Jesus way of living, to win their allegiance to Him and to His Church. Without this objective clearly in the foreground and in the background of our consciousness, our program of organization, training and equipment would resolve itself into "much ado about nothing."

Educational evangelism is the call of the Master. It is also the call of the hour. The times in which we live seem especially to demand that the Church recruit its membership from the ranks of those whose entire life shall be dedicated to the proposition of right living and Christian service. The Sunday School has always been the best recruiting station for the Church and for the kingdom. But this fact is more appreciated today than ever before.

Christ's words to His disciples: "Suffer the children to come unto me and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven." Those words that fell from the Divine lips of our Divine Lord constitute His call and His challenge to the Churches of every denomination. "Suffer the children to come unto me." "Encourage the children to come unto me." "Help the children to come unto me." "Enlist the children in the work of the kingdom." That oft-repeated quotation, "The kingdom of God moves forward on the feet of little children," can have meaning only to the extent that the children individually and personally pledge their allegiance to Jesus Christ and His Church.

People used to think that a child needed first to experience sin before it was qualified to experience religion. But today, thanks to the contribution of religious education, the Churches recognize that it is not necessary for the child to wander into the far country of sin in order to be able later to appreciate the joys of companionship in the Father's house. We believe today that a child of seven years or even younger can experience religion just as definitely as its parent of forty years or its grandparents of seventy years. Religious experience is not conditional upon age, but upon knowledge, opportunity and response. If the child is given a proper knowledge of God's love, its heart will open to Him as naturally as the flower opens its petals to the sun. The call of the Master is that every Sunday School and every Church recognize this fact. "To win an adult to Christ, you save a soul. But to win a child to Christ you save a life plus a soul."

The call of Jesus Christ today lies in an adequate program of religious education that has a definite evangelistic objective. Religious educationists used to speak of religious education as being one method of kingdom service—the normal method—and evangelism was considered by these religious educationists as being altogether distinct from religious education, evangelism being considered an abnormal method of kingdom service. One such educationist has spoken of evangelism as being "the mopping work of the Church." Such notions only come from a wrong understanding of the meaning of evangelism—confusing the term "evangelism" with "revivalism." Evangelism is the initial work of the Church—the winning of the personal allegiance of boys and girls and men and women to Jesus Christ and His Church. The winning may be done by religious education as well as by the revival meeting. If the educationist just referred to had spoken of "revivalism" as being "the mopping-up work of the Church," his metaphor might have been within the bounds of fact. The revival often, to say the most for it, is the cleaning up work of the Church—a task that would not have been necessary if the Church and the home had lived up to their high privilege of giving Christian nurture all through the years. If adults had been truly won to Christ when they were children, it would not be necessary to win them again when they reached maturity.

Think, if you will, of the men and women who, because their religious training was neglected in youth, had to struggle against odds all through life to overcome the handicaps of evil habits and wrong adjustments. Having no background of religious training, many such had to be reclaimed for Christ each year at the annual revival. How different is the experience of youth who are won to Christ! One girl of ten years of age was asked by a revivalist if she did not want to find Jesus. She replied, "Why, sir, I have never lost Him."

The call of the Master is that we win the boys and girls to Christ in their tender years of innocence, so that they will never be able to know the bitter experience of "losing Him." Educational evangelism is the call of the Master to every forward-looking and forward-moving Church of our day. Would that we might raise up a generation of Christians who would not be able to tell the day nor the hour when they yielded their lives to God any more than they could tell the day or the hour when they began consciously to love their parents. Oh, for a generation of Christians who from childhood began to walk in the fellowship of Jesus Christ, and who never knew from personal experience the wages of sin!

That should be the goal of the modern Church and the modern Sunday School—the winning of the boys and girls to personal allegiance to Jesus Christ before they leave the junior department. We would not discount for one moment the importance of winning adults to Christ. But we would insist on the supreme importance of winning the children. That objective alone gives meaning to the modern program of religious education. That objective alone justifies the emphasis now being laid on religious education. "Religious education is the heart of evangelism. And evangelism is the heart of religious education."

Why should not Christians who are won to Christ and the Church in childhood make the best Christians? Who make the best baseball players? Certainly not those who never played ball until they were twenty-five years of age. No man could even hope to make his town team, much less a major league, if he had received no training in playing ball until after he was twenty-five years old. Who make the best musicians? Certainly not those whose musical training was neglected in childhood and youth. The masters in music became masters in their art because they began in childhood to study and practice music. The Master in religion, Jesus Christ Himself, began to study religion as a child, and at the age of twelve felt qualified to be about His Heavenly Father's business. And down through the years the master Christians have been those who in childhood committed their lives to the Master Christ.

But in the past we have not given educational evangelism a real chance. We have laid our major emphasis upon adult evangelism, or inspirational evangelism. The Church is now demanding first things first. The child has again been "set in the midst." And the most hopeful outlook for the Church of Jesus Christ today is the fact that everywhere the evangelism of youth, or educational evangelism, is coming into greater favor, and that in the future it will receive the major emphasis, and adult evangelism will be given secondary consideration.

For more than four hundred years Protestantism has been depending largely upon adult evangelism for recruiting the Church membership. The Church has been looked upon as a wrecking-crew instead of a track inspection and track repair crew. It has labored too much under the impression that its business was to clean up the wrecks that sin had caused—to save people after they had first gone to the devil. But educational evangelism insists that the business of the Church is to inspect the track of modern life and keep it in such a state of repair, with guards at the switches and signals at all danger points so as to prevent moral wrecks. In other words, educational evangelism demands that the child shall be saved to God and for His service before it goes to the devil. Educational evangelism believes in the work of the good Samaritan who renders due service to the man who has fallen in a life of sin and shame. But it believes more in the better Samaritan who clears and lights the road of life from Jerusalem down to Jericho so as to make traveling safe, and, if need be, to police the road of life with moral influences so that the character of every boy and girl will be safe. The better Samaritan is the need of the hour. And the Church with a vision of the possibilities in educational evangelism is the better Samaritan in modern life.

Notwithstanding that Protestant Churches are taking in more members each year than in any previous year, still we must face the stubborn and unpleasant fact that this increase has not kept pace with the increase of population. There may be more Church members in the United States in this good year of our Lord 1928 than there were in 1927. But there are also more unbelievers, more non-Christians than there were last year, and the percentage of increase tips the balance in favor of the unbelievers, as unpleasant and as uninviting as that fact may be. The percentage of increase in Church membership has not been equal to the increase in population. We dare not play the part of the foolish ostrich and blind ourselves to this danger, which is nothing less than perilous unless we change our tactics and policies of warfare against sin and unbelief.

If the world is to be won for Christ, it can only be done by winning the youth. For more than four hundred years, Protestantism has tried to recruit the kingdom forces largely by adult evangelism, and while the membership of the Churches has increased, the army of unbelievers has increased at even a more rapid rate. Something must be done to give the Church the advantage; to turn the tide of increase in favor of righteousness and in favor of our God. We will need to continue our adult evangelism, perhaps always. But we will positively have to lay our major emphasis upon the evangelism of youth and win the boys and girls individually for Christ and the Church, if the kingdoms of this world are to become the kingdom of our Lord Christ.

R. C. H.

ELON'S WORTH TO OUR CHURCH.

To endeavor to answer fully the question as to what Elon College has meant to the Christian Church would be a hopeless task.

It has, however, been my good fortune to have been closely identified with the college from the very beginning down to the present time; and hence I am in position to speak of at least a few of the outstanding things that Elon has done for the Church.

1. It has revolutionized educational ideas and aspirations in both the ministry and the laity of the Church.

An increase from two to fifty-eight college graduates in the active ministry, and from a half-dozen to five hundred or more college graduates in the laity of the Christian Church, South, besides the twenty or twenty-five other ministers and the four or five thousand other laymen who had some college training, is a record of which the Christian Church may justly feel proud. And in bringing about this wonderful transformation, Elon College has been the impelling factor.

What Elon has meant to the Church in the lives of these trained men and women can be estimated only in terms of the progress and development that the Church has experienced during the past thirty-seven years. The records of our several Conferences during these years will give some idea of what has been accomplished, but, inspiring as these may be, they tell only a small part of what these men and women have meant not only to the Church, but also to the communities in which they live—in business, in society, in county, State and national life.

2. Elon College has done more to increase the loyalty and liberality of our people than any other factor in our Church. And this, not only because of the influence of the men and women who have been students and teachers there, but also because of its constant appeal to our people by reason of what it has meant and will ever increasingly continue to mean to every department of our Church work.

As the friends of the college and the Church have come more and more to realize what Elon means to every phase of our Church work, they have increased their love, their loyalty and their benevolences to the college, not only because of the college itself, but because of what it is doing for the Church and the kingdom. To those of us who have followed the history of the college from the beginning, it is an inspiration to see the increasing liberality of our people. I doubt if any institution in this country has had a more wonderful experience than our own Elon in this respect.

Ten years ago I doubt if any one in the Christian Church even dreamed that we had a Carlton, a Darden, or an Orban in our own denomination who would make such princely gifts as to make three modern college buildings and equipments possible. Yet, the college has made its appeal to these and other successful business men in and out of the Church, because they realized that a great and lasting work is being done there, and that, by reason of its success, not only our Church but all humanity become their beneficiaries.

3. Elon has trained and will continue to train leaders for our home mission and foreign mission fields, for our Sunday Schools and day schools, for our Church papers and other literature, for our Orphanage work; in short, for every movement in Church and in State. And this is what

(Continued on Page 13.)

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

Most people have what is known as every-day clothes and Sunday clothes. There is also every-day life and Sunday life, every-day religion and Sunday religion. Every-day clothes can stand more hardship than Sunday clothes. They are subject to greater strain and exposed to rougher use. The man behind the plow needs different shoes from those he wears in the Church. The woman in the kitchen at the stove or the wash-tub needs, and wears, different clothes from those at Sunday School. This is natural and as it should be. Even the harness on the horse in the field differs from the harness on the road. When one is "dressed up" in the field or the mill you know he is not doing his best work; and if one goes to Church in his week-day garb, you doubt his respect for God's house and God's worship. There is something in clothes. There is something in the fitness of things. Working-clothes are put to greater strain and must be stronger in fiber and coarser material.

There is Sunday religion and week-day religion. The best religion is that which endures through the week. It takes more religion in the home, the shop, the school, the mill, the store, the field than it does on Sunday. All the Sunday conditions suggest religion. The silent whistles; the quiet machinery; the closed stores; the house of prayer; the atmosphere of worship; the songs of praise; the Church bells all call us together in a friendly mood. The Sabbath ought to prepare men to live through the week. The great strain of religion is during the week, when work goes wrong, when teams are contrary, when people are cross, when business goes bad, when strength gives way. People who do not attend Church cannot keep up their religion for six days in all weather and all conditions that crowd into the six days of toil. Religion that is strong during the week, rejoices on Sunday in the house of prayer.

There are some people who do not change their clothes on Sunday: but Sunday is a dull day to such men. The bath and the Sunday clothes release the worker from the labor of the week and give him rest. The best rest on Sunday is the Church, where one not only changes his clothes, but his thoughts and his feelings. Work is the easiest thing in the week, and worship is the most restful thing on Sunday. A Christian should put off the cares and anxieties of the week when Sunday comes and "enter into His gates with thanksgiving and into His courts with praise." It is restful to the body to change position, to the mind to change thought, and to the soul to commune with God through Christ. There are two kinds of religion that are dependent upon each other—Sunday religion and week-day religion. You cannot have the one without the other. Sunday needs the week, and the week needs Sunday. Religion in the kitchen is as good as religion in the Church. Religion in the store is as useful as in the prayer-meeting. Religion at its best is a whole week, a whole year, a whole life religion. "Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life." Religion behind the counter is as good as behind the desk. Religion at the organ is as necessary as religion at the pulpit; and it is just as useful in the pew as in the choir. Brogan religion for the week, and patent-leather for Sunday. The finer feelings in worship, the stronger feelings in toil; but both spiritual in their effect upon the soul. Religion, like life, is good anywhere.

But saving religion is not half-hearted. Best religious life requires both work and worship—the week and Sunday.

W. W. STALEY.

ELON LETTER.

Wonder Call, the international magazine for the Disciples of Christ, for January, 1928, contains statements from two distinguished laymen in regard to Christian education.

The first of these is Harry H. Rogers, known throughout the world as past president of Rotary international. Mr. Rogers is one of the most prominent business men of the Southern States. He lives at San Antonio, Texas. He has been a large giver to his Church colleges, and gives three reasons why he has contributed so liberally to these institutions. Here is what he says:

"First: My observation has been that our Churches are more numerous and are in a healthier condition in the territory adjacent to our colleges. This is especially true of the two with which I am most familiar—Phillips University, at Enid, Okla., and Texas Christian University, at Fort Worth, Texas.

"Second: The Churches in the best condition and the mission fields responding most satisfactorily are those having the most cultured and enthusiastic leaders. These leaders are, in most instances, the products of our Christian colleges.

"Third: There are literally thousands of churchless or pastorless communities, and mission fields almost without number, all crying for leaders. The Church college must furnish a great percentage of this leadership. It is the source of supply, and must be continually strengthened and enlarged. Vast sums of money are needed, and those who are contributing are finding great joy in the service rendered. If the Church colleges do the work intended, and if we support them as we should, the whole program of the Church will succeed. Adequate leadership of the right kind will enable us to fulfill our purpose."

The second person quoted is the Assistant Attorney-General of the United States, John Marshall. Mr. Marshall tells why he sent his son to a Church college. He says, "I loved the place and had set my heart on sending my sons there. I had kept in touch with the college, knew its president and admired him, and had happy memories of my own life as a student at Bethany. For these reasons and for others which have to do with my religious convictions, I laid great stress upon my desire and carried out my intention to send my son to that institution of my Church."

Men of wealth and fathers of sons and daughters in the Christian Church would do well to consider the investment that Mr. Rogers has made in providing facilities for Christian education in his denomination, and what Mr. Marshall has said about patronizing his Church college.

Mr. Rogers should be an inspiration to men of affairs and of means to make similar large investments in Christian education, but his example should also prove equally convincing to all Church members. The man who can give only $5.00 should be just as careful to put it where it will count most for the kingdom as the man who, like Mr. Rogers, can give his hundred thousands. It is doubtful if it is possible to make an investment for the kingdom that will bear as splendid dividend in character and in progress for that kingdom as investment in Christian education.

But the best investment which any man can make in Christian education is to invest his own children as raw material in these institutions. So the example of Mr. Marshall should be an encouragement and an inspiration in this direction.

W. A. HARPER.

BETHLEHEM LETTER.

Why Bethlehem College should have the loyal support of the Southern Christian Convention:

1. Because its founders were inspired by a desire for a higher Christian education for the constituency of the Church.
2. Because it is a junior college which is indispensable to our extreme Southern work.
3. Because it is an institution where opportunity awaits the student of very limited means.
4. Because it is a training school for Christian workers.
5. Because it is the means which leads to and guarantees leadership.
6. Because it makes a vast difference whether we educate our boys and girls in our won Christian educational institutions.
7. Because it is a school of wide fellowship, of high religious character, yet not sectarian. Its influence is strong for interdenominational fellowship.
8. Because the graduates rank high in other institutions of learning, and none have failed, although some institutions have required them to take entrance examinations.
9. Because it is a growing institution—it is no longer an experiment.
10. Because Bethlehem gives free tuition to all sons and daughters under legal age of ministers, and to all others who are preparing for the work of the ministry, missionary, or exclusive Christian work and for all others the expenses are less than one-half what they would be in other institutions.
11. Because it offers the regular college curriculum for the first two years of college work, given by the higher institutions, such as English, foreign language, Bible, religious education, history, education, mathematics, science and music.
12. Because the social regulations are of high class, and athletics are encouraged to the extent that they will not interfere with college work.
13. Because it is a school of the open mind, conserving the old, and charitable to the new. It emphasizes the essentials in Christian truth, life and character.
14. Because it offers opportunity for the investment of life and money. Its field for service is the neediest and best in America.
15. Because Bethlehem College is destined to fail unless it can have the royal friendship and financial support of the membership of the Southern Christian Convention in this drive for funds for the colleges.
16. Because it is the Convention's own child. Elon and Bethlehem Colleges are your institutions—build and support them.

S. L. BEOUGHER.

Wadley, Ala.

MORE VIEWS ON CHRISTIAN UNITY.

DEFIANCE COLLEGE.

It is rather difficult to try to say just what the students of Defiance College believe in regard to Christian unity. In summing up the viewpoints that have come to my knowledge, I would say that the majority of our students here are in favor of Christian unity and want to achieve it. We see the folly of having so many denominational units in our country, and we see that some denominations are coming closer together in the realization that more constructive work can be accomplished by Christians if they work together in a greater spirit of oneness.

Some of the students feel that we do not want simply one large denomination, but rather a few sympathetic denominations which would give more room for variety and breadth of thinking. We feel that denominational creeds are not the ultimately important thing in religion and that by understanding each other better we can see that we all have a common purpose. Realizing the existence of this common purpose of Christian living, we feel that we should all unite more closely in our efforts to work out this purpose. We feel the need for greater Christian unity, and we feel that it will come. LU EMMA BENNETT.

ELON COLLEGE.

Can Christians unite? Why not? Was Christ's prayer in John 17:20-21 prayed in vain? Did it mean unity in this world? Can Christians help bring an answer to it? When Christ prayed for the oneness of that little band who passed away almost two thousand years ago, He was praying for "all those that believe on Him through their word." He was simply praying for the oneness of believers. Why do we stand so far apart? Why not take the word of God as our guide, and not so much man-made theory, and unite our efforts for the one great task of bringing the world to Christ? The heathens have taught us that a divided Christianity will never win the world for Christ. There is much time and money wasted at present in the way we are trying to carry on the Lord's work; for instance, I know a little village of about 700 inhabitants that is poorly supporting four Churches, and as many Sunday Schools, when if the believers in that village would unite their efforts they could adequately support one Church and one Sunday School. But such a movement would put so many preachers out of a job. If they can do more for the upbuilding of Christ's kingdom as laymen, then they should be willing to take that place.

There was a time when you could tell a man's denomination by hearing him preach on any occasion. Not so true today. People are beginning to see bigger things and striving for nobler ideals. If Christian unity is ever brought about, it will be through our denominational schools and colleges. You cannot visit a college campus today and discover who's who from a denominational standpoint. College pupils have higher ideals than the spread of denominationalism. They are studying how they may better serve humanity. Take our own Elon, for instance. With a student body of 400, we have thirteen different denominations represented, all working together in the Sunday School, the Christian Endeavor, the Y. M. and Y. W. C. A., all united in the one task of making this world a better place in which to live. We have also twenty-five ministerial students representing no less than six different denominations, all working together in perfect harmony.

What hinders us from uniting in this world? We believe we will be united over yonder. Why not begin the thing here that we expect to do there throughout all eternity? G. H. VEAZEY.

PALMER COLLEGE.

Among the students of Palmer College who express themselves, Christian unity is regarded as one of the great issues of the day which the present student generation must do much to settle satisfactorily.

They are in favor of Christian unity, and anxious to make it a reality. Among the reasons advanced are these: The inconsistency of a great religious group, composed of the people who recognize the same teacher, Jesus; who pray to the same God; who read the same book; who have the same hope of eternal life; and who are prompted by the same great commission, unable to unite in their ministry to mankind is apparent to all. To convert non-Christians into a united Christian movement seems an impossibility when we are not able to unite our Christian brethren in the same movement.

Another reason for unity is in the lack of efficiency of detached small groups attempting the task of converting the world by their separate efforts. The smaller towns would better concentrate their effort in one work than in several minor efforts. One organization could provide a pastor of better qualifications and secure efficient specialists to assist him in specialized efforts. Our present system does not seem to measure up to the demands of the time, therefore we need something more efficient and consistent to replace it.

We believe that Christian unity is certain to come, and are willing to do what we can to bring it about. We are praying, thinking and working to this end. EARL SCHWYHART.

UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO.

A majority of the students evince no vital interest in Christian unity. The matter occasions no serious thought, if one may judge from their attitude. However, there is a considerable minority for whom unity is not only an ideal to be desired but a goal to be attained.

This minority is alert, outspoken, intelligently facing the unpleasant facts resulting from a divided Church. It would do something besides talk. It would come to grips with the task of so unifying the forms of Christianity that they will have greater correspondence with the spirit and purposes of Christian people.

No unanimity, as to method of procedure, has been arrived at. There is a tendency to fight shy of a radical break with the present order, but at the same time an insistent endeavor to assist in finding ways and means of conforming Church organizations to the larger unity of spirit and purpose which they as Christians experience.

C. S. BENNETT.

YALE DIVINITY SCHOOL.

The idea of organic unity of all the Churches was not unanimously adopted by all the students at Yale Divinity School, but there were strong movements on foot to minimize the differences between the different denominations.

Several instances of this might be cited. At Communion time, only a very few of the ultra-conservatives refused to take part. Men belonging to one denomination were very frequently placed with another on graduating. I have never seen a better spirit of fellowship than existed there. Things common to all were emphasized rather than things separate. One man was heartily ashamed of some divisive action taken by his denomination. A standing joke among the fellows was that they did not know why they differed from others.

While these things might be said for a working unity among the students, the sentiment for organic unity was either not strong or not expressed. Every denomination of any size at all was thought to have its place.

One exception or modification might be made to this last statement. There was a sentiment for the union of denominations already closely related. For instance, our men could not see the reason for our existence apart from the Congregationalists. Men of the different branches of Methodism seemed willing to get together. But to make all the Churches as one was not favorably received.

FRANK THOMAS.

FROM GEORGIA.

I have planned several times to write an article for THE SUN since I came to South Georgia, but have been too pressed, it seems, for time. The fact that I am trying to serve as principal of the consolidated school and pastor of three Churches possibly explains. We arrived here in the night of September 9th. There being no house available at the time, we were comfortably housed in the home of Sister C. D. Boggan, Sr., until we moved into the handsome new parsonage adjoining the Church lot on November 28th. This is a stone veneer structure, complete in every detail. Every finishing touch has been given. We give most credit to the big-hearted layman and deacon of our Ambrose Church, Mr. T. J. Holland, without whose assistance, no doubt, the parsonage would not have been possible. Aside from a little less than $200, Bro. Holland has supplied all the funds necessary for the work. We are endeavoring to pay Bro. Holland as fast as possible. The house, lot and garage cost more than $1,700. When I tell you that our present membership is only forty-four, and mostly poor people, you can see what an undertaking it is for this little Church. Any kind reader who might give us a little help just now would be helping a most worthy and appreciative people.

Shortly after we began our work here, a Christian Endeavor Society was organized, which is doing good work. The literary teachers here are rendering a good help in this work. The society has purchased a stereopticon machine, which adds to the interest and the pictures shown each Sunday evening are educational.

The week after the fourth Sunday in September we held a union meeting at Enigma. The local pastors of the three Churches of the town did most of the preaching. A fine spirit prevailed. Pastors Buchannan, of the Methodist Church, and Hammond, of the Baptist Church, I learned to love and appreciate from the first. They are wide awake, hard-working men who place the interest of the kingdom far above denominational interests. It is a great pleasure to work with such men. There were no additions to either Church, nor was there much effort in this direction. The main idea was to deepen the spirituality of the present membership. When this is done sufficiently, evangelism will naturally follow, we feel. We enjoyed a great spiritual feast, and so gratifying were the results that the great crowd on the last night of the meeting voted unanimously to make it an annual thing and announced it for "the next hundred years." A committee composed of pastor and laymen from each Church was elected to arrange for the meeting. It was suggested to boycott any Church that attempted to hold a separate revival, such action being looked upon as sectarian. The union Sunday School and the Young People's Society are doing good work.

At Vanceville we found a wide-awake and consecrated little band. We have a live Sunday School, and the interest, which was good to begin with, is constantly growing. Here the older people go to Church, which is getting to be a little unusual. The fervent prayers and hearty amens from our older brethren here are a source of great inspiration. Oh! that I could, everywhere I go, point the young people to the older ones and encourage them to emulate their example. But, honestly, in the face of the facts, would this be the wise thing to do? Are we losing one of our strongest appeals—the appeal to father's and mother's interest? One of our strongest appeals to prodigals once was that mother was losing sleep, bathing her pillow in tears, and father was praying and agonizing for the children. Dear mothers and fathers, if you do not do this you thus sever the strongest life line the world has ever had. Many children can't understand the Bible and the preachers, but they do understand father and mother. The saddest thing in the world today—a thing that should bring tears to the eyes of every reader and fervent prayer from the whole Church—is the teeming millions of boys and girls in the

(Continued on Page 14.)

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Field Secretary.

RECRUITING FOR C. M. A.

At the recent annual meeting of the Christian Missionary Association of the North Carolina Conference, the writer was elected secretary-treasurer, with instructions "to make an effort to secure dues from all former members and to secure new members as soon as possible."

Now, this would be a delightful task if all former members would readily respond to the gentle reminder and appeal that has already gone out. And who will dare to say that they will not respond? We have the confidence that they will, and, further than this, that they will continue to give the C. M. A. their hearty good will and support.

We are all aware of the fact that this association is composed of persons holding a paid-up membership. Of course, the meetings are open to all, but the voting privilege resides in paid memberships. Here, every member, whether present at the annual meeting, or by proxy, can vote just how he wants the funds to be spent.

The present membership is less than 100, but what a splendid nucleus this will be to build upon for a bigger and better C. M. A. if only all will keep their memberships alive by paying the fee, which is $10 for men and organizations, and $5 for women.

Every Church of the three North Carolina Conferences or of the North Carolina Conference under which the C. M. A. still functions, should heartily endorse and support this home mission enterprise. The best way to show this endorsement is for every Church to become a member of the association for 1928. Then in many instances there are Churches where the Sunday School, Christian Endeavor, Ladies' Aid, missionary societies, Sunday School classes, etc., will want to take out a membership; and finally there are numerous individuals, both men and women, who will count it a privilege to be identified with an organization such as this, which is seeking to strengthen existing Churches and giving worthwhile aid to the establishment of new work in strategic centers.

I did say, "finally," didn't I? But I did not mean to overlook that very important group, the pastors, without whose help and support this cause cannot hope to succeed. With the earnest help and co-operation from the sources which I have mentioned, the C. M. A. can become a very potent force for home mission work in this State. Which Church will be the first to take a 1928 membership in the C. M. A.? If desired, you may have the whole year in which to pay for it. As the list grows we will advise you through THE SUN.

Happy greetings of the year to one and all.
Elon College, N. C. W. M. JAY.

SUNDAY SCHOOL MISSIONARY OFFERINGS FOR DECEMBER.

Newport News, Va.	$ 11.25
Pleasant Grove, News Ferry, Va.	4.29
Holland, Va.	9.00
First Christian, Berkley, Norfolk, Va.	8.23
Auburn, Garner, N. C.	6.00
Mt. Auburn, Manson, N. C.	2.72
Sanford, N. C.	3.96
Parks Cross Roads, Ramseur, N. C.	2.35
Pleasant Ridge, Guilford College, N. C.56
First Church, Greensboro, N. C.	14.21
Holy Neck, Holland, Va.	8.00
Wake Chapel, Fuquay Springs, N. C.	5.00

Linville, Va.	1.26
Monticello, Brown Summit, N. C.	4.72
Suffolk, Va.	12.50
High Point, N. C.	2.87
Morrisville, N. C.	3.91
Liberty, N. C.	1.32
First Christian, Winchester, Va.	4.94
Vanceville, Brookfield, Ga.	1.70
Raleigh, N. C.	2.00
South Norfolk, Va.	9.26
Liberty (Vance), Henderson, N. C.	1.20
Lawrence Memorial Bible Class, Elon Col.	1.05
Oakland, Suffolk, Va.	5.00
Leaksville, Luray, Va.	3.14
Reidsville, N. C.	20.00
Pleasant Hill, Liberty, N. C.	4.50
Berea (Nans.), Driver, Va.	7.00
Bethlehem, Broadway, Va.	2.71
Mayland, Broadway, Va.	2.75
North Highland, Columbus, Ga.	1.25
New Salem, New Hill, N. C.	2.25
Ether, N. C.	3.15
Wentworth, McCullers, N. C.	3.20
Randleman, N. C.	3.00
Wakefield, Va.	6.22
First Church, Portsmouth, Va.	8.26
Bethlehem, Suffolk, Va.	3.00
Palm Street, Greensboro, N. C.	4.22
Holy Neck, Holland, Va.	8.00
Dry Run, Seven Fountains, Va.	1.15
Timber Ridge, High View, W. Va.	1.51
Parks Cross Roads, Ramseur, N. C.	3.00
New Hope, Abanda, Ala.	1.18
Beulah, Wadley, Ala.	2.10
Lebanon, Semora, N. C.	1.00
Old Zion, Norfolk, Va.	27.74

Total	$ 247.63
Burlington, N. C.	67.89
Rev. J. Lee Johnson, Fuquay Springs, N. C.	25.00

SELF-DENIAL OFFERINGS.

Previously acknowledged	$4,190.99
Mrs. J. P. Bradshaw, Suffolk, Va.	1.00
W. M. Goodwin, New Hill, N. C.	10.00
Woman's Missionary Socy, Wake Chapel.	10.00
Roxie B. Farmer, News Ferry, Va.	5.00
K. C. Rountree, Bosley, N. C.	2.00
K. C. Rountree, Bosley, N. C.	2.00

Total to January 1, 1928.	$4,220.99
--------------------------------	------------

SUMMARY.

Sunday School regular	$ 247.63
Specials	92.89
Self-denial offering for December.	30.00
Mountain work	11.62
Woman's Board	73.30
Loan	250.00
Conference collections	5,373.23

Total	$6,078.67
Check to R. W. Malone, Treas.	6,078.67

J. O. ATKINSON,
Mission Secretary.

LARGE GAINS IN MEMBERSHIP.

The rightfulness of any organization to a place in the community is determined by its program and achievement. The community not only wants to know what it proposes to do, but actually what it does.

The Church is no exception to the rule. The Church is here to represent Christ; to save men. If it fails in these essentials its rightfulness to a place in the community may justly be questioned.

The Christian Church, as a distinctive denomination, has been operative in and near Norfolk for more than 100 years. Its origin in this immediate section dates back to 1804, when Old Providence Church, in Norfolk County, was organized by Rev. Nathaniel P. Tatum.

The oldest organization of the Christian denomination within the city is the First Christian Church of Norfolk, located at 505 South Main Street. The more recent organization is the Church at Ocean View.

There are nine individual Churches of the Christian denomination in Norfolk, Portsmouth and vicinity, with a combined membership of 3,774, and a property valuation of $667,000.

The growth of the Christian Church in this immediate section is indicated by its record for the past five years. During this period it has made a net gain in membership of 1,554 and added to its property value $551,300.

During the past year, these Churches made a net gain of 345 in membership and raised for all Church purposes $81,150, or more than $21 per member.

All these Churches have good pastors, good organizations, and are well equipped for the most successful year of the denomination's history, and are located as follows: First, 505 South Main Street, Rev. J. G. Truitt, pastor; Christian Temple, Thirty-fourth Street and Llewellyn Avenue, Rev. L. E. Smith, pastor; Old Zion, Bowden's Ferry Road, Rev. W. H. Garman, pastor; First, Portsmouth, Washington Street, Rev. H. C. Caviness, pastor; Elm Avenue, Rev. T. N. Lowe, pastor; Ocean View, Chesapeake Avenue, Rev. W. H. Fentress, pastor; South Norfolk, Rev. O. D. Poythress, pastor; Berea, Rosemont, Rev. J. F. Morgan, pastor; Great Bridge, Rev. J. F. Morgan, pastor.—Rev. L. E. Smith, D. D., in Ledger-Dispatch (Norfolk).

NOT WORKING AT CAPACITY.

Very few religionists are working up to the limit of their possible power. The Holy Spirit either imparts power from cosmic energy of the Divine immanence, or taps sources of latent power which resides in the nature of man. It is said of Leonardo de Vinci that he was the star and leader of all those who honored their working limit. The historians, ancient and modern, agree that he did more different things and accomplished more than any man who has ever lived on earth.

Copernicus, the astute person who tossed off the Copernican theory during a rainy week, was a teacher, priest, painter, mathematician, astronomer, engineer, author of a book on coinage, builder of a sewerage system for his native city, and the inventor of trigonometry. Miss Harriet Mortineau, though burdened with deafness and illness, knew seven languages and four sciences when she was nineteen years old.

For eight years, or, to be more illuminating, for ninety-six months unbroken by vacation, lay-off, or recess—eight years after Henry Ford had invented the automobile which now infests the high-roads and bridle-paths of all nations—he labored twelve hours a day earning a living for himself and his family, and then spent half of each night evolving, testing, discarding and improving new features of his car.

Thomas A. Edison, the world's champion inventor, has taken out more than a thousand patents. In one single year the Patent Office recorded him as feeding a hundred inventions into the hopper of human endeavor. In one day, after working a little less than twenty-four hours without intermission of any sort, he prepared the plans to the smallest detail for a cement plant half a mile long—a feat regarded by experts as the most stupendous ever performed by human brain in one day.

Within a period of twelve years, James A. Farrell ran the value of the foreign sales of the United States Steel Corporation from thirty-one million dollars a year to more than two hundred millions a year, and, while doing the job, cut the cost of the sales from 11 per cent to less than 1 per cent.

The prime and pivotal feature of these creative minds and their fellows of the higher attitudes were that they labored with fiery intensity, that they gave the matter in hand all they had, that they could drive themselves at full speed for incredibly long uninterrupted stretches of time, and that, when obstacles confronted them, they always had something in reserve to throw into the breach.

For purposes of present and practical religious application, this means: To work to the full limit of one's capacity, one has to keep both nerves and muscles in perfect condition; have an ambition that gives play to all the enthusiasm, energy and idealism in one's make up; in all times and conditions make attainment of the big goal the prime and commanding thing of life; and realize that an imperial will-power marshaling and organizing all the fundamental emotional instincts can gear the wearied brain and the exhausted body to renewed and conquering exertion.

The average religious worker in the vineyard honestly believes, unless he is inspired by the Divine Spirit, that when he has done his usual stint he is too fagged out to do more. But the same fagged-out worker, though his very bones ached with languor and though his very muscles felt like shredded beef, could leap nimbly to his feet and run a mile if, in that exhausted condition, he beheld a raving lion in hot pursuit of him, simply because the fundamental emotional instincts of fear and self-preservation are aroused to stimulate the suprenal glands to secrete a drenetin fluid and throw it into the blood and give almost supernatural energy for the flight to safety.

Most people are only half-way efficient because of their incentive and emotional enthusiasm for their undertakings. They fail to work at full capacity because they sense neither the glory of the chase nor the thrill of the achievement.

W. C. WICKER.

NORFOLK, VA.

The officers and membership of Christian Temple observed the ninth anniversary of their pastor, Dr. L. E. Smith, with a most attractive program, Sunday. There was a special program of music by the Temple chorus choir, under the direction of Walter Greenwood.

Dr. Jason Noble Pierce, pastor of the First Congregational Church, Washington, D. C., spoke at both services. Dr. Pierce is President Coolidge's pastor and has one of the largest congregations in Washington.

The Christian Temple has had unusual growth under the leadership of Dr. Smith. The membership of the Church is more than five times as large as it was nine years ago.

The Sunday School enrollment has been more than quadrupled, and the annual financial budget is more than seven times as large as it was nine years ago. The value of the Church property is twenty-five times what it was then.

OUR HONORARY LIST—THE CHRISTIAN SUN NEW SUBSCRIPTIONS.

(Our official goal is 500. Please report promptly and help us reach it.—Ed.)

Previously acknowledged	73
C. J. Strickland, Charlotte, N. C.	1
J. Lee Johnson, Fuquay Springs, N. C.	2
A. W. Andes, Harrisonburg, Va.	1
Total	77

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES.

We should be glad to furnish your Sunday School the following supplementary supplies, cash to accompany order:

Improved Uniform Series International Lessons.
1. Bible Lesson Picture Roll, 21x32 inches, per quarter	$1.25
2. Sunday School Superintendent (to accompany the Picture Roll), per quarter15
3. Pupils' Lesson Stories, per quarter06
4. Little Bible Lesson Pictures, per quarter05
Group Uniform Series, Primary Course.
1. Group Bible Lesson Picture Roll, 16x20 in., per quarter	1.00
2. Group Pupils' Lesson Stories, Primary, per quarter07
3. Group Lesson Pictures, per quarter04

In making order, be explicit and name the quarter for which supplies are wanted; thus: first quarter, January to March; second quarter, April to June; third quarter, July to September; fourth quarter, October to December.

SEND ORDERS TO THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Minion Bold-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4-7-8x 7 Inches, and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

2152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold

India Paper Edition, Size 4-7-8x7 Inches, 1 1-10 Inches Thick.

2152X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold

Bourgeois Type, Size 5 3-8x8 Inches, and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

2167—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold

2172—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold

2172A—Same as above, with Apocrypha

2173—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3-4x3-8 inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3 3-4x5 3-8 Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations. Special book for Sunday Schools

Minion Type, Pocket Size, 4x6 Inches, 1 1-2 Inches Thick.

With 32 full-colored illustrations; also 25 outline maps through the text and 12 colored maps.

133—Bound in cloth, round corners, red edges, title stamped on side in pure gold

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold

India Paper Edition, Only 15-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold

Minion Black-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 3-4x 7 Inches, 1 1-2 Inches Thick.

Printed from clear, large, black-face type, 32 full-page illustrations in sepia and colors, 4,000 Questions and Answers, Harmony of the Gospels, How to Study the Sunday School Lesson, 25 outline Maps, 12 full-page colored Maps.

4152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold

AMERICAN STANDARD VERSION. TEXT BIBLES.

Printed from Easy-Reading Type, on Good Bible Paper, for Sunday School and Church Use.

Minion Type, Size 4x6 Inches, 1 1-2 Inches Thick, 25 Outline Maps, Bound in Black.

101—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, title stamped on back in pure gold

112—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title on back in pure gold

India Paper Edition, Only 7/8-Inch Thick.

112X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold

Reference and Text Bibles also in minion, briefer, bourgeois, long primer, pica and English type.

Thumb index cut on edge, 50c extra; name printed on any Bible in gold, 40c extra; extra wording, 40c per line.

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5 3-8x8 1-2 Inches and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With concise Bible dictionary, combined concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold

RED LETTER EDITION

With all the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands, title stamped on side and back in pure gold

Any of the above Bibles sent post paid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 E. Broad St., - - - Richmond, Virginia.

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

INTERNATIONAL UNIFORM SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE.

Lesson IV—January 22, 1928.

JESUS AND THE LAW.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Think not that I am come to destroy the law or the prophets: I am come to fulfill, but to fulfill."—Matt. 5:17.

LESSON: Mark 2:18-22; 3:1-6.

DEVOTIONAL READING: Psal. 119:33-40.

Jesus did not come to destroy the law or the prophets—He came to fulfill and to "fill full" the law and the prophets. In other words, He took law and made it a matter of spirit rather than of mere letter, a matter of great principle rather than a matter of mere details. This is seen in two typical instances given as today's lesson.

Jesus and the Law of Fasting.

There was a written law of fasting—to fast one day in the year, on the Day of Atonement—but there was also an unwritten law of fasting, which designated Mondays and Thursdays as days of fasting. The Pharisees and the disciples of John observed this law, although from different motives and in a different spirit. Jesus and His disciples did not fast, and thereby hangs a tale. Here was one who claimed to be righteous; one who had associated with Him a group which He was training to send out for Him; one who, on His own confession, had come not to destroy the law, but to fulfill it, and yet He did not fast and He did not compel, or even ask His followers to fast. It was too much for the Pharisees and John's disciples, and they came to Jesus and asked Him to give an account of His unorthodox position. Jesus' answer about a specific practice is eternal because it deals with an abiding principle.

It is to be noted that Jesus did not say that fasting was wrong. Neither did He say that it was not without its value, and that it did not have a religious value. What He did say, however, was that fasting was not so much a matter of law and of rule as a matter of spirit and of heart. It should not depend upon an external law or mere custom, but it should be an expression of an inner experience and condition. Fasting just to be fasting had little if any religious value. Fasting that reflected or expressed a spirit of sorrow or penitence or humility or need had great value. In other words, Jesus was pleading for reality. He made fasting a matter, not of law, but of spirit. If men felt like fasting they should fast, but as he says in another instance, even then they need not do it in such a way that men should know that they were fasting. But there was no compulsion and no common sense from the religious point in fasting just because it was a custom.

There is an interesting sidelight in Jesus' answer to His questioners, "Can the sons of the bride-chamber fast while the bridegroom is with them?" There was joy in the Master's religion, a joy which He compared to what was a most joyful occasion in Hebrew life, a marriage and the wedding celebration. The Christian who knows the Christ intimately has a joy which the world cannot give and cannot take away. We do the Master an injustice when we go about unhappy and when we interpret religion in terms of gloom and austerity, and fail to reflect the spirit of joyfulness and cheer.

Jesus and the Law of the Sabbath.

In no part of their conduct were Jesus and His disciples more frequently found fault with than in respect to their mode of observing the Sabbath. Six distinct instances of offense given or taken on this score are recorded in the gospel history. Mark 3:1-6, a part of today's lesson, is one of them. In this case a man with a withered or crippled hand was healed on the Sabbath Day in the synagogue. The critical scribes and Pharisees stood by, watching Him, that they might accuse Him. Their spirit, rather than their action, aroused the righteous indignation of the Master, and He told them in plain language that there was a law of the Sabbath Day higher than their law of negation and slavery to detailed and petty laws. Some of the laws, unwritten laws, in regard to the Sabbath were so detailed and so far-fetched that they were ridiculous. A man could be so absorbed in observing all these details that he would lose the real meaning and significance of the Sabbath.

In this case, Jesus goes back of the mere law of the Sabbath Day as they proclaimed it, and set forth and asserted the larger principle. "What, after all," He said in so many words, "is the purpose of the Sabbath, anyway?" "The Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath." In other words, the Sabbath is a boon and not a burden. It is designed to minister to man's physical and spiritual life. The needs of humanity take precedence over any formal Sabbath observance. Furthermore, the Sabbath is not only a day of rest, of cessation of activities; it is a day for works of mercy and helpfulness. It should minister to the physical, the mental, the social, the domestic, the moral and spiritual man, and it should be governed always by the highest well-being of man.

Our modern life needs to study again the truth about the Sabbath. In our desire to get away from the strict Sabbath, as exemplified by the Puritans, we have swung to the other extreme, until we are in danger as a nation, certainly in some places, of losing the Sabbath altogether. Let us not forget that Jesus said the Sabbath was made for man, and He also said that man cannot live by bread alone. That Sabbath which has no worship, no renewal of the spirit life of man has not ministered to that which is best and essential in man. Jesus did not come to destroy the Sabbath, but He did come to fill it with new meaning and to make it contribute to all that was best in human nature. Remember the Sabbath Day to keep it holy.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Sunday, January 29, 1928.

TOPIC: "How Our Church Does its Work."—Eph. 4:7-16. (Denominational Day. Beginning Christian Endeavor Week.)

Some Bible Hints.

Each Church member has his own particular gift and none can be dispensed with. All are necessary (v. 7).

Christ has measured out our gifts and given us them. It is ours to use them for Him, fill the places He has placed us in (v. 7).

The Church is meant to be a place of mutual ministry. One can visit the sick, one can preach, one can teach, and so on (v. 11).

Consider the Church as a body. Does every part function? What if one part (perhaps ourselves) is diseased? (v. 16).

Suggestive Thoughts.

A denomination is organized just as a local Church is organized. Without organization, which means responsibility for doing definite work, little progress would be made.

The apostolic Church was organized largely after the pattern of the synagogue. That suited the need of the times and proved efficient. Organization is not master, but servant. Does it work well?

As needs rise, the Church, which is a living body, must organize to meet them. The principal aim is to help the Church to serve in the largest and best way.

If there were no missionary societies, would missions be conducted as vigorously and extensively as they are? Hardly. Such societies help some Church members to exercise their missionary gift.

A Few Illustrations.

The home mission society is a pioneer always looking for new fields, needy places, where good may be done and men helped.

If we could cut out of the Church the work that women do, the machinery would stop. Women are probably the best Church workers, giving more time, thought, prayer, and effort than men to it.

The Church has small means at its disposal, as Christ had when He used the five loaves and two fishes to feed the multitude. It is only through His blessing, now as then, that anything can be done.

The Church lays its hand upon all of us and asks us to teach the young. To do this we must study, prepare, give time and thought and love. We are building a new world.

To Think About.

What work could the Church do if no one did more than I do?

What departments has our denomination?

What do you know about your Church organization?

GREENSBORO.

Today has been designated by the General Board of the Christian Church as a "Day of Prayer" for our colleges. Our colleges not only need money, but the prayers of all of our people.

Our colleges are rendering service to our young people, to the Church, and to the kingdom of God. Never have our colleges done a greater work than now. They are preparing and inspiring our leadership for the Church.

Every man and woman, boy and girl is called to definite and earnest prayer to God for our colleges. At the prayer time in personal devotion, family prayers and in Church services, you are asked to very definitely ask God's blessing upon and guidance for Defiance and Elon, Palmer, Bethlehem and Starky. Pray for the men and women who have responsibilities of administration and instruction. Pray for the students in these institutions and the host of youth preparing to enter our colleges. Pray earnestly for our colleges!

"Have faith in God, for He who reigns on high Hath borne thy grief, and hears the suppliant's sigh;

Still to His arms, thine only refuge, fly—
Have faith in God!

"Go, tell Him all! The sigh thy bosom heaves Is heard in heaven: strength and peace He gives, Who gave Himself for thee, our Jesus lives—

Have faith in God!"

—Bulletin, First Christian Church.

THE GREATEST NEED JUST NOW.

BY REV. E. B. WHITE.

On New Year's Day it will be well to remember that we stand, as a people, in the presence of a commanding history. Our past is a halo of glory, a veritable blessing to all mankind.

Our American progenitors were statesmen and not politicians. They were builders of Christian civilization, who knew privation and suffering, and were proud to be worthy of it all. They had strong characters, deep convictions, and unyielding courage. They were moved by a deep purpose and held forth lofty ideals. These courageous men did not hesitate to march into the "red throat of battle" and dare the worst for you and me. They never set material advance above the higher qualities of heart and mind. They strove to do their best on earth and make it, so far as they could, a better place for their fellow-men. It was the love of liberty, inspired by the blessings of Christian institutions that led them to American independence.

I need not dwell upon the history of the Revolutionary struggle. From its beginning to its end—from Lexington to Yorktown—it was the grandest, noblest struggle a nation ever made. Every true patriot rejoices in a praiseworthy national history; such a history is our legacy. We can say as the Hebrew poet said, "God hath not dealt so with any nation." His guiding hand was, without doubt, in the early history of our country. He raised up and illuminated those noble patriots who laid the deep, broad foundations upon which the superstructure of this republic was built. This is, indeed, a land which the Lord hath blessed. Praised be His name!

As loyal American citizens, we love our great country, our glorious flag, "Old Glory," and our institutions that have made the nation great; but, dear friends, we are facing perilous times. To deny that we are in perilous times is self-stultification. I am confident that our national prosperity (the development and progress of the American people have far surpassed anything in the history of the human race) came from the reverence paid the Bible, the sacred observance of the Lord's Day, family religion and respect for law and order. Yes, influences distinctly moral and religious have characterized the founders of our grand republic from the beginning. No honest, intelligent man will dispute this. It is sad but true that these fundamental principles are being discarded nearly everywhere.

Here, then, is our first great danger, viz: in becoming practically a godless nation.

In these perilous, challenging days we seem to forget that riotous living, sensuality, skepticism, political corruption, bitterness, rampant lawlessness, and forgetfulness of Almighty God produce their legitimate fruit—disintegration. Will any one dispute that?

Before we shut our eyes to the desperate situation and refuse to consider it lest we be called "pessimistic," it is well to look the facts squarely in the face.

Are not the American people moving in the same downward grade over which the mighty Roman commonwealth ran to its ruin? It does seem to me that our civilization is in danger from devotion to wealth, pleasure, sensuality and ostentation, from its want of reverence and its want of sobriety. Yes, dear friends, America leads the world in irreverence for God's law and the sanctity of marriage and the sacredness of the home. Somehow we seem to have forgotten that even God's chosen and favored kingdom, whom His favor exalted to heaven and made it the glory of all lands, He peeled and wasted and whelmed in hopeless ruin, because of sin. Yes, Israel lost her glory and her greatness by forsaking the old-fashioned things of Jehovah. Can any one deny this who is intelligent and honest?

Unless the finer ideals of American and Christian family life can be maintained in this great nation, we are almost certain to see a reduplication of that ancient and oft-repeated story of "downfall."

There is not, upon this round world, a republic hoary with honored age. Many have risen, thrived, crumbled and perished. They live only in the history of the past. Like stricken hulks, they are strewn upon the shores of time. Their warning voice and the book of Divine wisdom have said, "Righteousness exalteth a nation; but sin is a reproach to any people." Let us not forget that early in the centuries the Ruler of the universe solemnly warned us when He said, "The nation and the kingdom that will not serve me shall perish."

We Christians are to love all that is good and wholesome and beautiful in life. We are to have our good times and enjoy to the full our sports and pleasures and amusements of all sorts. But we are to judge clearly between the true and the false, between that which is clean and pure, and that which is vulgar and degrading. If our government shall endure and our nation remain strong and respected, this will be secured and perpetuated by integrity and righteousness.

Our Bible, American Sabbath, Christian homes and civil institutions are the corner-stones on which our government is established; and so long as they remain the corner-stones, so long will our government flourish. "Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord; and the people whom He has chosen for His own inheritance."

The Christianity of our fathers and mothers was vitalized by the Divine Christ. In this modern age there are those who seek to take the blood out of the atonement, the virus out of sin, the fire out of hell, the miracles out of the Old Testament, the infallibility out of inspiration, prediction out of prophecy, the deity from Christ, the authority out of the New Testament, and the supernatural out of religion. But as for me, I believe that to give up these vital truths of a personal God, of the pre-existent, virgin-born (the denial of the virgin birth is a virtual denial of the Deity of Christ) atoning Christ, regeneration, sanctifying power and righteous living through saving faith in Jesus, the Divine Son of God, and the personal power of the Holy Ghost, is to give up everything, is to tear the foundation from beneath the Church and Christian civilization.

I venture to suggest that men want to see the personal Christ rather than hear our philosophies, theories and speculations about Him. If I could only so preach Christ that men everywhere should see His blessed face and hear His matchless voice, and feel the power and glory of His personality! Oh, if I could make Him so real that He should be no more a dim figure in the pathway of Palestine, but a blessed living presence and mighty dominating power in the streets and societies and souls of today—not only a Jesus that was, but a Christ that is. Yes, our time wants and needs a Saviour as real and as personal as its sorrows and its sins.

The only genuine religion of humanity—a religion that regenerates the soul and lifts man up to fellowship with God and companionship with angels—is the religion taught by Jesus, the Man of Galilee, in wonderful words, in His still more wonderful life, and in His awful death on the cross. The people of this generation need to be brought back to Christ, the Divine Son of God, for salvation. The secret of right living is to have the indwelling of the Spirit of Him who knew no sin, neither was guile found in His mouth.

The American nation has gained an enviable position among the nations because it was founded by men with faith in God, but United States citizens must now be careful that, having riches, they do not turn to worship material things at the expense of spiritual power.

Christianity is Christ-likeness, or it isn't Christianity.

The greatest need just now is another "mighty awakening"; another heaven-sent, Spirit-born revival of old-fashioned religion. It is the only remedy for the rampant skepticism and widespread lawlessness and awful wickedness about us everywhere. Oh, that God would send us such an "awakening!"

Oh, that you knew Jesus. The world is a bleak house, a chill and empty corridor, without God; and men are orphans, and life is hopeless, and death is a starless night, if Jesus is not known and loved.

We need a mighty conviction of our supreme need of God.

Unless we get back to an inspired book, a supernatural Christ, and call a halt to the giddy gait by which we are rushing into paganism, Western civilization must reel into inevitable dissolution.

It is Christianity or chaos.

May the dear Lord, in mercy, help us to do our best toward these great ends and eternal issues. Dendron, Va.

SOME OBSERVATIONS.

For the past two years I have been working in the field for Elon. A portion of my time has been among the Churches, and the other among the alumni. Among both groups my work has been as a whole very pleasant. It is interesting to work for a cause among people that are interested in the same cause, and I am glad to say, from my observation, that the Christian Church and Elon's alumni are interested in the welfare of their college. However, there is one thing that I wish the older people (former students, etc.) could realize, and that is that Elon is not the place it was ten, fifteen, or twenty or more years ago. It seems hard for them to realize that time has brought about a change in the physical plant and that the administrative force is completely reorganized. It is nothing strange to find an alumnus that wants to know what the work of the business manager is. Another will want to know what the registrar does—one gentleman wanted to know if that was another name for the president's private secretary. The older ones cannot, seemingly grasp the difference in a college during their school days and a standard college of today. I wish that every member of the Christian Church and every member of the alumni would visit Elon for a few days. Elon is doing a great work, and justly deserves the most loyal support of the Church and its alumni.

Not long ago I came in contact with a graduate of Duke (Trinity) College who is now principal of a school system in this State. As soon as he learned of my connection with Elon, he immediately informed me that he wanted several teachers from our alumni next year. He said he had not been privileged to use any Elon teachers, but had heard of their success. Elon has less trouble, no doubt, placing its teachers than any other school in the State. The personal contact on the campus gives them the opportunity of building up a personality that will make them leaders in the communities to which they go.

My observation in the field during the past two years has led me to many conclusions, and of these I shall tell you later. Judging from the interest on the part of the Church and alumni, one must conclude that Elon has a bright future, but it cannot accomplish its mission in full without the support of every one.

GEO. D. COLCLOUGH.

Elon College, N. C.

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY REV. H. E. ROUNTREE,
One of Our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"Call upon me, and I will answer thee, and shew thee great and mighty things, which thou knowest not."—Jeremiah 33:3.

MONDAY.

OUR NEEDS.

"Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you."—Matt. 28:20.

We all need full instruction covering every phase of the Christian religion with the idea of raising up a generation thoroughly grounded in the teachings of Jesus, in the Scripture of the two Testaments, in Christian principles, and the history of the Church. There is such a woeful lack of a knowledge of these things that one wonders if the Church is failing in its mission. We meet hundreds and hundreds of young men from Christian homes who have but the faintest knowledge of these things. We need to know these things thoroughly ourselves, and we need to see that our particular Church is doing its part, that nobody passes without knowing.

Prayer.—Our Father in heaven, the world falls upon us to be taught of Thee. Give us the inexhaustible riches of the faith until we shall know it in its fullness; and give us the power to teach it until all others shall know. Amen.

TUESDAY.

REVELATION OF THE MYSTERY OF THE MISSION OF THE CHURCH.

"The word was made flesh and dwelt among us."—John 1:14.

"God . . . hath . . . spoken unto us by His son."—Heb. 1:1-2.

"To justify in the spirit, or (in the original) to make and declare right."—1 Tim. 3:16.

"This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased; hear ye Him."—Matt. 17:5.

This Scripture is an outline of truth of the mystery of godliness. It would be hard to get a more complete sentence expressing the life of Jesus. First, we have the divinity of Christ; second, His ministry in the world to set things right by fulfilling the law of righteousness, and that no longer should we listen to Moses and Elijah, but listen to Jesus. His word is to be the law of the world. In this, Jesus lived a matchless life among men, revealed the great heart of the Father, whom to believe and follow means that we shall be like Him and He shall receive us unto Himself where we may be forever.

Prayer.—Our Father, keep before us angels of life to point us heavenward, and to urge us to be prepared for Him when He comes. Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

CURING SOULS.

"Bear ye one another's burdens."—Col. 6:2.

"We ought to bear the infirmities of the weak."—Rom. 15:1.

There is something great in the work of healing up and curing souls and setting them right. Christians have a ministry to the morally weak, spiritually infirm, and a consolation to give to those pierced with sorrows. Much of life is designedly bright, artificial and superficial, and it is no easy matter to face facts and be accessible to folks, and care for their souls in a way to really make our experience prescribe to their ills. But in this very service lies the supreme trial and the supreme opportunity to do service and make folks glad and happy.

This simply can't be done unless we force ourselves in the quiet of our own room with God and us and seek the power in prayer. To talk about living a Christian, growing in grace and the knowledge of the Lord, and we ourselves never kneeling in the "holy of holies" is to fall into the very danger from which we seek to be delivered. Such is like manna which cannot be kept. They must be new every morning and every evening. Only in this way can we realize that He still owns us and that His peace for the world is in us.

Prayer.—Our Father, give to us the good news of the gospel for all whom we meet. May this gospel and our Christian experience make us more than conquerors in Christ. Forgive us of every evil thought and our bad temper. Forgive us of our sadness and fill our lives with the joy of Christian living. Amen.

THURSDAY.

YOUR PART IN LIVING.

"Little children love one another."—1 John 3:23.

A Christian man or woman who cares for the highest type of well-being of those around him has nothing but love for folks. The old idea that a man or a woman who accepts Christianity as an escape from the torments of hell or to secure an admission to heaven has vanished; and we are learning that life is a more serious thing than that. No longer do we rely upon the comforting thought that no matter how wicked one may be right up to the last minute before death, if at that moment he accepts Christ all will be well with Him hereafter; but we are learning that salvation consists in everybody knowing God and having His blessings; that we are responsible for one another to bring life and hope to men and women around us and in every clime, bringing them to the life more abundant, seeing the beauty of it, and feeling the sacredness of it, and in this we come to know that salvation is of little worth unless it is accompanied by the salvation of one's fellow-men and women.

This means to believe in a God of love, to accept love as the greatest factor in life, and to translate into deeds that belief. This teaching we must follow if we would be saved. We have got to recognize life as a unity and how dependent we are upon one another, and that the sewer-man is as much a part of that unit as a doctor.

Prayer.—Dear Lord, make us Thy ambassadors to life and to all around us in life. Amen.

FRIDAY.

THE AVERAGE MAN.

"And unto one he gave five talents, to another two."—Matt. 25:15.

This two-talent man is the average man, the business man, the lawyer, the doctor, the farmer, the preacher. The five-talent man is above the average, the extraordinary man. The one-talent man is below the average.

The brilliant man is prone to think that his gifts are so many that there is no need to add to them. When you were a lad in school, was there not some boy who did not seem to be put to the necessity of doing much studying? But many like that have not fulfilled in manhood what boyhood seemed to promise.

On the other hand, the dull, one-talent man faces the temptation of thinking that his talent is so small and insignificant that there is no use to try to increase it. And the two-talent man, the average man, faces danger of losing himself in the crowd. Since his gifts are so much like the common lot, what difference will it make if he does neglect to trade with his talents?

But we all need to remember that our talents can be increased. The five-talent man became a ten-talent man; and the two-talent man became a four-talent man. So at the end of the story he was almost as well equipped as the five-talent man was at the beginning. We need always to remember that if we are to grow, we must trade with our talents.

Prayer.—Father of all, we pray to be more than the average man. We pray for all, we would not yield to passion, nor disgrace our heaven-born heritage of life to grow in grace and the love of God. Amen.

SATURDAY.

WISE STEWARDSHIP.

"Thine alms are come up for a memorial before God."—Acts 10:4.

In the last great day when the secrets of all hearts shall be revealed and we shall all stand before the judgment seat, you and I will not get any credit for the money we have hoarded up, nor the money we have spent upon ourselves. But we doubtless shall get credit for the money we have given away for Christ's sake; for the dollar that put a meal into somebody's hungry mouth, for the dollar that put a coat on somebody's ragged back, for the dollar that put a pair of shoes on somebody's naked feet, for the dollar that carried the gospel of peace across the sea, for He hath said: "Inasmuch as ye did it unto one of the least of these, ye did it unto me."

Making money doesn't make people better. Merely saving money doesn't make people better. Spending money upon ourselves doesn't make us better. About the only way you can deal with money is to do good with it.

"All you can hold in your cold, dead hand is what you have given away."

Prayer.—Our Father, bless us this day with the blessing that carries with it a benediction, so that when we come to the day's close, we may feel that Thy gracious approval has crowned our acts and we shall not have to be sorry for failing in Thy wishes for our welfare. Amen.

SUNDAY.

THE STRONG HEART INVINCIBLE.

"Keep thy heart."—Prov. 4:23.

A heart weakly kept in a defensive war is a heart already surrendered. What says the Book? "Whatsoever things are pure—think on these things." Look not back at evils and defects, but saturate yourself with the good by always looking at it. "Exercise thyself unto godliness." Practice the right, the perfect, and the evil will wither and die from neglect and starvation. "Fight the good fight." These words are a trumpet call, not to defense, but to fearless, aggressive warfare. If all of God's soldiers were occupied with defense, how Satan would laugh at the despondent army and the failing kingdom!

"Our wrestling is against principalities and powers." It is not they that are fighting us. No! We are fighting them. "I can do all things in Him that strengtheneth me." That is the tone of triumph before the contest is begun. With loyalty and such reserves, the victory is in sight, no matter how many or how great the adversaries. "Keep thy heart."

Prayer.—Our Father, if we have filled our lives with the things that perish, speak to us again the words of the Master when He said: "A man's life does not consist in the superfluity of the things that he possesses." Strengthen the inner life, turn the current of our ambitions into the stream of Thy holy will and direct our energies to meet Thine. Amen.

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

Our friends were so good to us last year that we start off this the beginning of the new year with bright hopes, and expecting, under the blessings of the Master, to help more little fatherless children this year than we did last year. Our first week's report for this year is very encouraging. Our good old friend, Mr. J. H. Massey, started us off with a check for $500 on endowment, which is a fine suggestion to many of our other friends to do the same thing. Brother Massey and his good companion have been very warm friends to the Orphanage for a number of years, and their loyalty and sympathy has been an inspiration to us. I only wish we had a thousand more like them.

A number of Sunday Schools joined our list of monthly contributors last year. We hope to get all on the list during 1928. We want to ask your hearty co-operation this year, and we feel sure we will have it.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON,
Superintendent.

REPORT FOR JANUARY 19, 1928.

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

N. C. & Va. Conference:

New Lebanon Sunday School	$ 2.00
New Lebanon Baracca Class	2.00
Durham Sunday School	17.69
Elon College	6.25
Happy Home	2.25
Hebron	2.50
Liberty	4.50
Greensboro, First	10.83
United Church, Lynchburg	1.96
Greensboro, Palm Street	7.80
	<hr/>
	$ 57.78

Western N. C. Conference:

Ramseur	$ 5.84
Randleman	5.81
Mt. Pleasant	2.72
Big Oak	5.00
Smithwood	1.16
Pleasant Hill	3.91
Shiloh	4.57
Liberty	2.00
Seagrove	1.66
Providence Memorial	5.81

Eastern N. C. Conference:

Piney Plain	$ 8.76
Pleasant Union	3.11
Damascus	3.00
Lebanon	1.56
Turner's Chapel	1.25
Wentworth	10.50
Pope's Chapel	1.65

Eastern Virginia Conference:

Suffolk	$25.00
Mt. Carmel Sunday School.....	3.77
Mt. Carmel S. S. Class 6.....	.80
Oakland	5.00
Holland	9.00
Ocean View	5.85
Union, Southampton	1.25
Winchester	13.14
Bethlehem, Dec. & Jan.....	6.00
Wakefield	3.63
Franklin	10.00

Valley Virginia Conference:

Leaksville	$ 1.68
Bethlehem	2.22

Linville	2.25
Palmyra	4.00
Timber Ridge	1.07
Dry Run	11.50

22.72

Alabama Conference:

Noon Day45
----------------	-----

Special Offerings.

Y. P. Socy., Hebron Church.....	$ 2.50
Rock Stand, Roanoke, Ala.....	5.00
Waverly, white gift col.....	22.66
Palmyra Valley Va., Xmas offering	3.75
Mrs. W. W. Jones, Norfolk, Va....	10.00
Chapel Hill Church, Xmas offering.	11.36
Mrs. H. B. Guilford, Aurora, N. C..	2.00

Mollie Churchill estate	189.68
-------------------------------	--------

Mr. & Mrs. J. H. Massey, Durham, N. C. .	500.00
--	--------

New Building Fund.

N. C. & Va. Conference:

United Church, Lynchburg	$20.35
Liberty Church	8.55
Liberty Sunday School	6.15
P. P. Jones and family.....	4.00
Third Avenue, Danville	17.26

Eastern N. C. Conference:

Hayes Chapel	$ 9.35
Catawba Springs	15.00

Western N. C. Conference:

Providence Memorial	12.83
---------------------------	-------

Eastern Virginia Conference:

New Lebanon	$15.00
Ocean View	6.15
South Norfolk	93.85
R. C. Etheridge	10.00

Valley Virginia Conference:

Christian Chapel	$ 3.25
Leaksville	18.75
Palmyra	1.25
Newport	9.45

Georgia and Alabama Conference:

Beulah	14.95
--------------	-------

Northern Sunday School:

Washington Grove, N. Illinois Conference.	5.30
---	------

Total	$1,337.34
-------------	------------

ELON'S WORTH TO OUR CHURCH.

(Continued from Page 5.)

makes Elon's appeal so distinctly unselfish—it gives cut to every department of our work so much more than it ever receives. Eternity alone can measure the good that has been and will continue to be done through the lives of the men and women who have been trained for leadership there. By withholding our love, our loyalty and our benefactions, we might close the doors of the college, but the seeds sown in the hearts of Elon men and women will continue to produce ever-increasing harvests as the days and years lengthen into eternity.

And what has been done in and through Elon has, in a smaller way, been done at Bethlehem, our junior college, and will continue to be done there in proportion to what of love and loyalty and benevolence we put into it.

Realizing, then, what our colleges have meant to us in the past, and visioning something of what the future may hold for us if we but do our part, can any one of us afford to withhold his hearty co-operation when the call comes to help by giving of our time or means?

Asheboro, N. C.

E. L. MOFFITT.

COMMUNION WARE

Individual Service

Made in best Silver Plate or Alumium. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM

Alumium is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A

Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses	$7.00
Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses	6.75
Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses	6.50
Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10	2.25
Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10	2.25
Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim	1.60
No. 2—Broad rim	1.60

SILVER-PLATE

The Silver-Plated Ware is of the very lightest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.

Style No. 85

Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses.	$22.00
Base No. 1—Silver-plate; fits Silver Tray No. 85	11.00
Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85...	16.00
(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)

Style No. 90

Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses.
Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling).	$22.00
Base No. 2—Silver-plate; fits Silver Tray 90...	16.00
Cover No. 4—Silver-plate; fits Silver Tray 90...	14.00

Breda Plate No. 3—Narrow rim	$ 9.00
No. 4—Broad rim	9.00
Filler—Silver lined	6.00

Send Orders to THE CHRISTIAN SUN,
1536 E. Broad St., - - - Richmond, Va.

Kiddies' Korner

MADGE MOFFITT WHITESSELL, Editor.

Answer to riddle: "She-ever-lay."

Verses this week for small Kiddies to learn:

"It is very nice to think
The world is full of Meat and drink,
With little children
Saying grace
In every Christian
Kind of place."

"Apples red, apples red,
Milk and bread, milk and bread,
Such good food, we children know,
Makes us grow and grow and grow."

"In snow-time, in rain-time,
In hot or cold weather;
At bed-time and tired-time
We're all home together."

How about some letters from each of you this week? Please hurry.

YOUR EDITOR.

THE ELVES OF GOOD CHEER AND THE HORSESHOE.

By Alice Cary Dunn.

The Elves of Good Cheer were delighted when they found it in a deserted corner of the pasture field. They knelt down by it and looked at it closely. "It's a rusty old thing, isn't it?" said one little elf at last. "I wonder if it really brings good luck!"

"Of course it does!" cried the others, decidedly. "It always brings good luck. It never fails!"

"But what can we do with it?" asked the doubtful elf. "It can't do much good lying here almost hidden in the tall grass."

"We'll carry it to a tree and hang it up," said the others. "Then it will be all right."

With a great tugging and lifting, they managed to carry the old horseshoe to a walnut tree that stood in the pasture field, and there they hung it on a broken limb. Then they flew happily away on one of their numerous errands of good cheer.

That night the old turkey hen with her little brood came to the walnut tree to roost. They usually spent their days in the pasture field and the nearby meadow, and at night they all slept in the old tree.

Once the turkeys had been tiny, darting like quail among the weeds and clover, but now they were large, almost half-grown, with glossy bronze feathers like thier mother. When they were small they had slept at night cuddled under their mother's wing, safe and warm; but now they roosted in a row on a branch of the walnut tree and felt very grown-up and dignified.

However, the walnut tree's limbs were close to the ground, and the night before a fox had come from the forest and discovered the sleeping turkeys. He had put his forepaws against the tree trunk, and, stretching himself up as far as possible, he had seized a young turkey, quick as a wink, and ran away with it.

Even now while the turkeys were moving slowly toward the tree, the sly fox was hiding in a clump of tall grass, waiting for them to settle down for the night. Nearer and nearer came the feeding turkeys, and lower and lower sank the sun.

"O dear!" said the fox, "I wish the darkness would soon come. I'm almost starved to death," and he licked his lips with his long red tongue.

When night fell, the turkeys were all perched in their usual places on the walnut tree branch, ready for a good long sleep. They talked to each other sleepily for a time, and then all was still. Slowly the wicked fox began creeping toward the walnut tree.

Poor mother turkey hen! If she had known the danger she could have given the signal and they might have spread their wings and flown to safety. But the Elves of Good Cheer were far away, and there was no one to tell her.

One young turkey moved restlessly on the branch, and the fox paused and waited. Then he moved softly on again to the foot of the tree. "Now," he said to himself, "I'll soon have a good meal," and with a spring he leaped against the tree trunk ready to snatch a turkey from the roost.

Then there was such a yipping and yelping as you never heard, and the sound of something limping away through the grass; for when the fox leaped against the tree trunk he knocked down the heavy horseshoe, and it hit him whack! on one of his paws. There were nails in the horseshoe, too, and they scratched the robber's side.

"Those turkeys must have been armed," he gasped to himself as he lay down to rest a long way from the walnut tree. "I don't know what they threw at me, but it was something awful. I'll never go back there again"—and he never did.

(Continued from Page 7.)

United States whose knowledge of father and mother gives them no knowledge of Jesus Christ. "The consistent conduct of my father," was the only argument that a would-be infidel could not refute. God give us more of this kind of argument. Can your children see Jesus through you? As I see it, brethren, parents, and not children, have locked the wheels of Zion. Oh, that we could awake to the need of a consecrated parent-hood!

Our work in this field at every point has been making steady progress since we came. The responsibility of the work falls very heavily on us, and we covet the prayers of the brotherhood.

Ambrose, Ga.

W. C. CARPENTER.

OXFORD BIBLES

An Oxford $3.50
Teacher's Bible only

"The
Oxford Bible
is the Bible
par excellence
of the world"

The best recommendation of the OXFORD TEACHER'S BIBLES is the fact that over 3,000,000 copies have been sold. The wonderful helps they contain save your time because they are alphabetically arranged, making reference easy. They take the place of many books about the Bible, and can be depended upon, being written by eminent scholars. The Helps contain 32 graphic illustrations, besides 15 beautifully colored maps. The text is the Authorized or King James version, with over 50,000 centre column references.

These Are Genuine OXFORD Teacher's BIBLES

EASY-TO-READ EDITION

Size 7 1/4 x 5 x 1 1/4 inches

Specimen of Type

17 And there was a very sore battle
that day; and Abner was beaten,

- | | | |
|-------|--|--------|
| Nos. | | |
| 04451 | Moroccoette, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges | $3.50 |
| 04453 | French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and handsome Bible | 4.35 |

Oxford India Paper Edition

Same as above, but printed on the famous Oxford India paper used only in Oxford Bibles. Only one inch thick.

- | | | |
|-------|--|--------|
| Nos. | (Weight 13 oz.) | |
| 0773x | French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition | $7.50 |

RED LETTER EDITION

- | | | |
|-------|---|------|
| 05453 | As No. 04453 with words of Jesus Christ in red. The red letter feature adds greatly to one's understanding of the Bible | 5.00 |
|-------|---|------|

Oxford India Paper Edition

- | | | |
|--------|---|------|
| 05453x | Same as No. 0773x with words of Jesus Christ in red. A gift edition which is sure to please | 8.00 |
|--------|---|------|

SELF-PRONOUNCING EDITION

All proper names and difficult words divided into syllables and accented so they may be correctly pronounced. Sizes 8 1/4 x 5 1/4 x 1 1/4 inches.

Specimen of Type

6 And A-hi-shür was over the household: and Ad-o-ni-rām the son of Ab-dā was over the tri-

- | | | |
|-------|--|--------|
| Nos. | | |
| 04521 | Moroccoette, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges | $5.00 |
| 04523 | French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A real student's Bible | 6.00 |

Oxford India Paper Edition

Same as above, but printed on the famous Oxford India paper which is used only in Oxford Bibles. Only 1 1/4 inches thick.

- | | | |
|-------|---|--------|
| 0923x | French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A Bible of superior quality | $9.00 |
|-------|---|--------|

Improved Thumb Index on any style
at 50 cents extra

FERGUSON—FULLER.

Robert Ferguson and Virginia Anne Fuller, of Newsoms, Southampton County, Va., were united in marriage by the writer at the Holy Neck parsonage, Holland, Va., December 30, 1927. The groom is a son of Richard and Alice Ferguson, and the bride is a daughter of C. W., Jr., and Annie R. Fuller, of Boykins, Va. May success and happiness attend them through life.

N. G. NEWMAN.

HOLLAND—GRIFFIN.

Herbert H. Holland and Bessie May Griffin were united in marriage by the writer, at the Holy Neck parsonage, Holland, Va., January 31, 1927. The groom is the son of the late Jim Richard Holland, of Nansemond County, Va., and the bride the daughter of the late Jerry Pierce, of Isle of Wight County. They will make their home in Isle of Wight County, Windsor, R. F. D. 2. May their wedded life be happy and useful.

N. G. NEWMAN.

COLLAPSE OF SOVIET MARRIAGES.

Many of us who cannot interpret the political platform or program of Russia find in its attitude toward marriage an illustration of its assault upon all ancient features of civilization that have distinguished cultured races from barbarians. Their effort to destroy the very instinct which groups families and sets them apart as related to each other and responsible for each other, has left them with an army of orphans on their hands, that is but the first sheaves of a harvest of tares. It is estimated that already there are 4,000,000 of these destitute little folks. The government is alarmed and is attempting to care for some small percentage of these street wanderers. In the effort to uproot religion and the sanctity of marriage and to make the support of the home an optional act, they violated several of those great established principles of human conduct that are at the very basis of life. However, it seems necessary for the preservation of civilization that at certain intervals there must be attempted great radical changes in our ethics, sufficiently revolutionary to show the world that when men break the Ten Commandments they destroy every possibility of progress as well as goodness. The peasants of Russia are the last to surrender their convictions about the necessity of religion and the sanctity of the home. In that great country the peasants predominate. In that great country there will be a return to Christian standards in another revolution.—Presbyterian.

STEWARDSHIP.

The financing of the kingdom will never be accomplished by the wealthy alone; it will take the multiplied and continuous giving of the millions of moderate means and the tear-stained mite of the widow to make up an offering acceptable to our King and adequate to His stupendous plan for the redemption of the world. It is not so much a question of the size of our incomes; it involves a reckoning and a consecration of every resource, a budgeting of time, strength, influence, and of all our earning and spending, and a setting aside of the full portion which should be assigned to the direct work of the kingdom. If every one of us is ultimately to give an account of himself to God, we had better learn to keep accounts here and now.—Ex.

THE BOOK THAT PROVES THE BIBLE INSPIRED.

The trouble today is that thousands of people try to live a Christian life who depend for their knowledge of the Word of God on the man who preaches in the pulpit. You have no business to depend upon any man for your knowledge of the Word of God. You and I must read the Word for ourselves. Read your Bible regularly; read it consecutively, not anywhere you happen to open. Where are you to begin? In Genesis. Are you troubled about the inspiration of the Bible and do you want to know a good book on the subject? I know a splendid book that settles the question—the Bible! I come to this Book on my knees, and I am ashamed of how little I know of it; but what I do know enables me to realize that it is a precious Book.—G. Campbell Morgan.

A man cannot possibly be a gentleman if he lacks courtesy.

ELON COLLEGE

CO-EDUCATIONAL

SECOND SEMESTER OPENS JANUARY 4, 1928

A few additional Students may be accommodated at that time, preferably members of the Christian Church.

SOME OF THE ELON COLLEGE BUILDINGS

ELON COLLEGE offers superior educational advantages to the members of the Christian Church. The buildings are new, equipment new and of the very best type, laboratory facilities equal to any college in the South; member of the Southern Association of Colleges, strong Christian faculty, and fine Christian atmosphere prevailing on the campus. Special courses in religious education and Christian work are offered to train laymen and ministers in the work of our denomination.

For Catalogue and View-Books, address

C. M. CANNON REGISTRAR,

ELON COLLEGE, - - NORTH CAROLINA

"Christian Character First and Always at Elon College"

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rve. Daniel W. Kerr.

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Christian Church.

BOARD OF EDITORS

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D. Editor
W. W. STALEY, D. D. Associate
W. A. HARPER, LL.D. Associate
REV. S. C. HARRELL. Associate
R. C. HELFENSTEIN, D. D. Associate
REV. S. M. LYNAM. News Editor
P. J. KERNODLE. Managing Editor

Subscription Rates

One Year$2.00
Six Months 1.00

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT
RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Post-office at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows the date of expiration. Change in the label will appear on wrapper the first week of month following renewal, provided it is received before the 25th.

Change of Address: Give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

When subscriptions are made for friends, state whether paper is to be stopped at end of the year.

Remittances: Make all remittances for subscriptions and renewals to "Editor Christian Sun," Elon College, N. C.

Remittances for advertising and other business matters will be addressed to the "Managing Editor," 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond, Va.

Advertising Rates: "Want Ads," 2 cents a word an insertion. Display rates quoted upon request.

Notices: Obituary and Marriage notices, limited to 100 words, are published free of charge. All over 100 words, at 1 cent a word. Remittance should accompany copy. Write names distinctly.

CLEMENTS.

Mrs. Nauey Polk Clements, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Josiah P. Gay, of Isle of Wight County, Va., quietly passed at the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. H. Dick, in Macon, Ga., January 3, 1928. She was born November 7, 1845, and had been a member of Antioch Christian Church for seventy years, and was a recognized leader in this community.

Her husband, Thomas J. Clements, preceded her to the grave many years. Two daughters and two sons survive—W. R. Clements, of Nashville, Tenn.; F. M., of Greensboro, N. C.; Mrs. W. H. Dick and Miss Ruth Clements, Macon, Ga. Her body was brought to old Antioch to rest. Services were conducted by Dr. W. W. Staley and the writer. May her spirit fall upon her children.

C. H. ROWLAND.

COX.

Inasmuch as our Heavenly Father, in His great wisdom, has seen fit to remove from our midst our beloved friend and charter member of the Ladies' Aid Society, Mrs. Mary Jane Cox; and

Whereas, in her death, the Ladies' Aid Society of the Waverly Christian Church has lost one of its loyal and devoted members; be it resolved:

1. That, while we mourn the loss of our friend, we bow in humble submission to the will of Him that doeth all things well.

2. That her life and influence has been a blessing to us and to the community. That the Christian fortitude and patience with which she bore her suffering be an inspiration to us to live closer and do more for the Saviour whom she loved and trusted.

3. That we extend to the family our sympathy and ask our Heavenly Father's blessings upon them in their loss, and that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, to The Christian Sun, and be recorded in the minutes of the Ladies' Aid Society.

MRS. B. E. WHITE.

MRS. W. H. JOHNSON.

MRS. B. E. LIVESAY.

WANTED TO SELL

A Tract of Land, about 25 acres, 2½ miles south of Elon College, near a new graded road, suitable for a small dairy, pig, or poultry farm. For price and terms, apply to

W. T. NOAH
Elon College, N. C.

OXFORD TEACHERS' BIBLES

An Oxford Teachers' Bible has references and 300 pages of helps that are a mine of information to Bible students. The helps are arranged in alphabetical order, like a dictionary. They are accurate, comprehensive and up-to-date. A few styles are listed here. Many others are described in our Bible catalogue, mailed upon request.

04403 [This size print] Bound in French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, size 6½ x 4½ inches$4.00

0623x [Same Bible as 04403] Printed on Oxford India paper. Only 1 inch thick.....$6.00

04453 [This size print] French Morocco leather binding, overlapping covers, 7½ x 5 in. $4.35

0773x [Same Bible as 04453] Printed on Oxford India paper. A remarkably thin and light Bible. (Only 1 inch thick)$7.75

05453 [Same Bible as 04453] With the words of Jesus Christ printed in red$6.25

05453x [Same Bible as 0773x] With the words of Jesus Christ printed in red$8.75

04523 [This size print] A self-pronouncing Oxford Bible. Bound in French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, size 8½ x 5½ inches... $5.50

0923x [Same Bible as 04523] Printed on Oxford India paper, only 1½ inches thick...$9.75

ORDER FROM
"THE CHRISTIAN SUN"

Richmond, Va

BETHLEHEM COLLEGE

WADLEY, ALABAMA

A JUNIOR COLLEGE AND HIGH SCHOOL.

Where Opportunity Awaits the Student of Very Limited Means.

GIRL'S DORMITORY.

Bethlehem College, Wadley, Ala., will open September 5, 1927. This institution is a Junior College and High School, which is co-educational, where scholarship ranks high and expense is low. It is thoroughly Christian, absolutely non-sectarian, and vitally American. A school where opportunity awaits the student of very limited means—$68.00 pays all college expenses, except books, board and room. Board, $15.00 per month, and room $3.00; total expenses for a term of nine months, $250.00.

Bethlehem College is training some of the best stock of America for Christian leadership, to be used by the nation and the world. Here is a great challenge and asset for students who wish to prepare themselves to serve in a worth-while way. The work on the new Administration Building is progressing nicely, and we will be able to begin our college work in this building when school opens this fall.

For catalog and other information, address S. L. Beougher, President.

HOLMAN BIBLES

FOR CHILDREN
PICTORIAL BIBLES WITH HELPS

The text is self-pronouncing, by the aid of which children can learn to pronounce the difficult Scripture proper names.

Specimen of Type

27 And the boys grew: and Esau was a cunning hunter.
5 And the streets of the city shall be full of boys and girls playing in the streets thereof.

With beautiful photo views of scenes in Bible lands distributed throughout the text. Also maps of Bible lands in colors. Also new Practical Helps to Bible Study, especially designed for instructing children in scriptural information.

No. 9111. French Seal Leather, overlapping covers, round corners, gold edges, gold titles.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 2.30

COLORED PICTURE EDITION

Portraying in natural colors, scenes and places taken from nature and life in the Holy Land.

No. 9211. Same as No. 9111, but with Beautifully Colored Pictures.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 2.40

FOR INTERMEDIATE SUNDAY-SCHOOL SCHOLARS

Large Clear Black Type, Self-Pronouncing, containing Helps to Bible Study, 4000 Questions and Answers, Maps in Colors, and Presentation Page. A Beautiful Gift Bible.

Specimen of Type.

22 And the prophet Israh-el, and said unto thyself, and mark, and for at the return of t

Size, 7 x 5 inches.

No. 215. Divinity Circuit Style, Bound in French Seal Leather, round corners, red under gold edges, with silk head bands and purple silk marker, gold titles, etc.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 3.10

No. 3215RL. Red Letter Scholars' Bible, same Bible as No. 215, with all the Sayings of Christ printed in Red, and with Red and gold INLaid PANEL SIDE TITLES, also Beautifully Colored Pictures.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 3.45

Holman Self-Pronouncing

VEST POCKET TESTAMENTS

Clearest Print in Smallest Size
4½ x 2¾ x ¾ inches

Specimen of Type.
AND the third day there
A was a marriage in Cana of Galilee; and the mother of Jesus was

2133K. Bound in durable Morocco Grain Semble Leather, flexible limp, gilt titles$60

2113. French Morocco, genuine leather, flexible limp, gold titles, rounded corners, gold edges.....$70

2115P. French Morocco, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, with the Book of Psalms included$1.10

ILLUSTRATED VEST POCKET TESTAMENT

With Pictures of Holy Land Scenes
2814. French Morocco, limp, gold side title round corners, red under gold edges$85

RED LETTER VEST POCKET TESTAMENT
With all the words of our Lord printed in red.

13RL. French Morocco, flexible limp, gold side title on red panel, gold edges. .85

15RLP. French Morocco, overlapping covers, flexible, gold side title on red panel, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included$1.25

INDIA PAPER VEST POCKET TESTAMENT

Thin as a Wafer
2136NP. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, with Psalms included$2.25

Send Your Orders to

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 E. Broad Street

RICHMOND - VIRGINIA

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Official Organ of the Southern Christian Convention.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXX.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, JANUARY 26, 1928.

NUMBER 4.

THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY

By REV. S. M. LYNAM.

Think Back a Little.—

Do you remember the first time you drove an automobile, and how exhausted you were at the end of an hour, and how good the solid old earth felt when you stepped out of the driver's seat?

A New Attack.—

The Salvation Army has set some new goals in the New York district, and they are specific. It will push them vigorously, as the Salvation Army knows how to press causes. Among these is a planned attack on the artistic paganism of Greenwich Village. This will be a new line for the army, and the battle cry is "Do Your Best!" It is a much-needed task they undertake, and in all probability a most difficult one.

A Union Church.—

The People's Church of Michigan State College, East Lansing, Mich., has a laboratory of human relations provided at a cost of half a million dollars. It maintains a school of religion with an enrollment of 223 and a teaching staff of six. It has an extension division which will require the services of a hundred students in attendance at the college. In this union Church, twenty-five denominations are represented. It is doing a splendid piece of work and is demonstrating what can be done when Christians forget denominationalism and work together toward a common end.

Thomas Hardy Dead.—

Thomas Hardy, the last of the great Victorian novelists, died recently at the age of eighty-seven. His novels hold a high place in English letters, and Mr. Hardy had done some splendid work even in his last years. His philosophy of life was not one which would appeal, but his pessimism and fatalism furnished him with some stories of unforgettable characters. The remains of the novelist were cremated, and his ashes taken to London for burial in the Poets' Corner of Westminster Abbey. Sir James M. Barrie was one of the few mourners for the departed writer. No religious service was held for him.

Praises the Jesus Way.—

G. Bernard Shaw recently wrote in praise of the Jesus way of life. He is a well-known critic and writer of plays, and his praise is to be respected as the praise of a man whose philosophy of life has had weight in the world, and it comes, too, after sixty years of experience. Mr. Shaw says: "I am not a Christian any more than Pilate was or than you are, gentle reader. But I am ready to admit, after studying the world of human misery for sixty years, that I see no way out of the world's troubles but the way which Jesus would have found had He undertaken the work of a modern, practical statesman."

Tokyo Wants Parley.—

Unofficially the Japanese have expressed themselves as in full accord with the note containing a peace proposal sent by Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg to the French government. Japan, it is stated, is ready to enter a pact for the perpetuation of peace, and it is expected that when the invitation to participate arrives in Tokyo, the government will request that the peace parley be held in the capital of Japan. Apparently the discussion of peace is becoming a matter of grave importance, and after all the talk of nations along lines of peace may help to bring the world into closer contact and a more harmonious fellowship.

Maude Royden Arrives.—

Agnes Maude Royden arrived in the United States recently to cover the country on a lecture tour. Because of rumors that Miss Royden smoked cigarettes and favored companionate marriage, three of her lecture engagements were canceled in Boston, Chicago, and Philadelphia. They were promptly replaced by eighteen others, and her manager was forced to turn down four hundred requests for lectures. Miss Royden is an evangelist who appeals to the intellect as much as to the emotions. She is head of the famous Guild House, London, England. When told of the canceled engagements, Miss Royden said that she didn't think that God had the time or the inclination to worry much whether she smoked a cigarette or not, and she declared her opposition to companionate marriage or anything but a permanent monogamy. "Of course, when a marriage has failed, divorce is the only solution," she told the reporters in substance. Miss Royden is fifty-one years old. Her father, Sir Thomas Royden, was created a baronet, and the title has passed to her brother, Sir Thomas Royden, head of the Cunard Line, to which the Acquitania belongs. After her lectures she will have a month's holiday in the United States, and then will tour the world studying youth and feminine Christianity.

Rabbi and Minister Exchange.—

On the first Sunday in February, Rabbi Ferdinand W. Isserman, of Holy Blossom Synagogue, Toronto, and Rev. E. Grossley Hunter, of the Garlton Street United Church, of the same city, will exchange pulpits. In a city where the feeling between Jew and Gentile is so profoundly marked as in Toronto, this is a brave and splendid thing for these two religious leaders to do. It is significant, too, that Rabbi Isserman is better known perhaps for his stand in a case demanding that Jewish nurses and young physicians be given a fair chance in Toronto hospitals than for any other thing among the Canadians of the city, and among his own people the Rabbi is a representative of liberal Judaism, and has begun the Sunday service for his people. Rev. Mr. Hunter is a man outstanding in the work of the United Church of Canada, and he has built up in a most remarkable manner the work at the Church of which he is now pastor. This exchange of pulpits offers an opportunity for these two leaders of religious thought to bear a message of good will and mutual understanding to each of these congregations, which are among the largest in the city. It would be futile should they content themselves with compliments, but we feel confident that both the rabbi and the minister will bear a message of worth and power.

The United Church Reports.—

The reports from all parts of the United Church of Canada are now coming in, and they show a vast saving in men and money, and some of the facts as given out from headquarters show something of what has been accomplished since the union in June, 1925, and of what the United Church is now doing. Throughout the Dominion 410 congregations have amalgamated, and thus have been lessened the home mission grants, and a more effective service given. Six hundred new preaching points have been reached, and the giving has increased. The spiritual health of the Church is reported as in splendid condition, and the reports are generally hopeful. The United Church of Canada now has a membership of six hundred and fifty thousand. There are nine thousand preaching places, 3,198 pastoral charges, and 3,900 ministers at work in the Church. There is now no surplus of ministers, and five hundred young men are preparing to enter the ministry of the Church. More than four and a quarter million dollars have been spent in repairing buildings and equipping Churches and parsonages. The Church owns more than twenty million dollars' worth of general and college property. During the last year pastors in the Church received four and a half million dollars in salary, and for all purposes more than fifteen million dollars was raised. It is interesting to note that the United Church of Canada is preaching the gospel in twenty languages in Canada, and that it has a Church for the deaf. The Church is moving forward magnificently, and is giving a service of unparalleled efficiency. Instead of the former competing congregations in small centers, there are now harmoniously united Churches, self-supporting and carrying forward a splendid work.

NOTES-PERSONALS

Mrs. B. W. Fields, Reidsville, N. C., is working faithfully in THE CHRISTIAN SUN campaign. She hopes to secure a number of new subscribers.

Rev. R. A. Whitten, Reidsville, N. C., has been on the sick list, but he has resolved to get well, he says, and attend the "Pastors' Conference." That's the right spirit!

The executive committee of the Federal Council of Churches meets in Cleveland, Ohio, January 23-24th. Dr. W. W. Staley is to attend this session of the council, representing the Southern Christian Convention.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Leonard Davis, of Norfolk, Va., will give a musical and song service at the Christian Church, Burlington, N. C., of which Dr. G. O. Lankford is pastor, on Sunday night, January 29th. Friends are invited to attend.

Prof. S. A. Holleman, known to a host of Elon former students, and whose residence is High Point, is recuperating from sciatica at Miami Beach, Fla. His address there is 850 Commerce Street. His many friends will be glad to know that he is improving.

Delegates who expect to attend the tenth convention of the World's Sunday School Association, which meets in Los Angeles, Calif., January, 18th, should apply to W. A. Harper, Elon College, N. C., for credentials, sending $5.00 with their application.

Mrs. Herbert A. Carlton and mother, Mrs. Wooten, and Mrs. Carlton's two daughters were appreciated visitors to the college last week. It was Mrs. Wooten's first visit to Elon. She was charmed with the entire layout here, and it was a pleasure to have her inspect thoroughly the Carlton Library Building.

Dr. Lewis H. Keller, president of the Atlanta Seminary, Atlanta, Ga., the seminary of the Congregational Church in the South, was a happy visitor to Elon on January 17-18th. Dr. Keller feels that some of the young men who are now ministerial students in Elon will attend the seminary in Atlanta after their graduation here.

The Fellowship of Prayer for 1928 has just issued a very attractive pamphlet entitled "The Fruits of Religion." The Fellowship of Prayer begins on February 22nd and concludes with Easter Sunday. The pamphlet may be ordered in quantities at three cents each by addressing Dr. Jay T. Stocking, 105 East Twenty-second Street, New York City.

Dr. F. P. Ensminger, who is general superintendent of the Congregational Church in the Southern States, is very much interested in having fifty members of the Christian Church subscribe for the Southern Congregationalist. He is also working to secure fifty subscribers for THE SUN among the Congregationalists. Dr. Ensminger says: "THE SUN's 'Observatory' on the front page is one of the best things I see anywhere." Dr. Ensminger is not alone in his appreciation of Bro. Lynam's fine work.

We suppose that all the ministers and members of the Christian Church have repented of their sins in not being members of the Catholic Church, and in sackcloth and ashes have decided to return and kiss the Pope's toe, receive his forgiveness, and be truly saved. The Pope evidently is distressed by the growing spirit of the union of Christ's followers throughout the world and has decided to do his bit to head it off. Poor, deluded brother! Jesus prayed for the oneness of His followers, and even the Pope of Rome cannot ultimately prevent the answer to that prayer.

Mrs. Oma Utley Johnson, 312 East Edenton Street, Raleigh, N. C., is deeply interested in organizing an alumni association in Raleigh. The organization will take place on Friday evening, February 3rd, at 6:30 o'clock. A banquet will be served in honor of the organization at the United Christian Church, Raleigh. Mrs. Johnson has done her best to get in touch with all Elon graduates and former students living in Raleigh and the towns near there, but any student or graduate living in Wake County is entitled to go, and Mrs. Johnson desires that all such will let her hear from them at once.

Judge O. W. Whitelock is rejoicing in the fact that The Herald of Gospel Liberty, in its merged form, will pass the 1,000 goal for charter members as subscribers. THE CHRISTIAN SUN congratulates The Herald on this success, and we urge that our Sunday Schools subscribe for the magazine number, at least for each officer and teacher. If the magazine number, which is the first issue of each month, is sent to one address and more than five copies are ordered, the price is 75 cents a year. Sent to individual persons, it is $1.00 a year. There is no question that the magazine number is worth several times the price.

Many of our Churches observed the Day of Prayer for the colleges on Sunday, the 15th. In connection with this celebration at the First Christian Church, Greensboro, Dr. C. H. Rowland, pastor, a call to earnest prayer was issued by the pastor. A part of this call says: "Our colleges are rendering service to our young people, to the Church and to the kingdom of God. Never have our colleges done a greater work than now. They are preparing and inspiring our leadership for the Church. . . . Pray for the men and women who have responsibilities of administration and instruction in these colleges. Pray for the students in these colleges and for the host of youth preparing to enter our colleges. Pray earnestly for our colleges."

A host of friends will be deeply grieved to learn of the death of Bro. C. A. Shoop, Suffolk, Va., on the morning of January 17th. Bro. Shoop has been in failing health for some months, but it was hoped that he was improving. He was a power in the Suffolk Christian Church, having served as Sunday School superintendent for many years, and being at the time of his death chairman of the finance committee and a member of the building committee for the new Sunday School plant. Bro. Shoop was a faithful and valued trustee of Elon College. He always backed up his suggestions with cash. Being a man of rare energy, he could not be satisfied to see the work of the kingdom languish, and he gave himself tirelessly for its progress and advancement. His wife and daughters will have the deep sympathy of the entire Church in their loss.

Rev. M. F. Allen, pastor of our Church at Newport News, Va., has resigned his work there, to take effect about April 1st or as soon as the Church can make arrangements for his release. Bro. Allen has always felt that he should give himself to evangelistic service, and this is why he has given up his work at Newport News. Bro. Allen says: "I have always felt that my work was in the field, which I now seek to enter. If I may pass judgment upon my own work, I would say that my greatest successes have been through the revival campaigns which I have conducted while on vacations from my pastorates." The pastoral committee of the Newport News Church has as its chairman Mr. W. H. Baker, 1028 Twenty-fourth Street, and as its secretary Mr. W. L. Rilee, 1028 Twenty-third Street. There is no doubt that Bro. Allen will succeed excellently as an evangelist, and our Newport News Church will furnish a fine field of opportunity for one of our ministers.

PALM STREET CHURCH.

The Willing Workers' Sunday School Class of Palm Street Christian Church held its regular monthly meeting Wednesday evening, January 4th, in the hospitable home of Miss Violet Montgomery. The meeting was opened with Scripture reading by the President, Miss Havanah Earls. The Lord's Prayer in unison. Roll called and reading of minutes of last meeting by the secretary, Miss Violet Montgomery. New officers were elected, as follows: president, Miss Pauline Ray; vice-president, Miss Gladys Montgomery; secretary, Miss Vera Montgomery; assistant secretary, Miss Havanah Earls; treasurer, Miss Swannie McNeil.

The Bible questions and answers were then taken up, which all are enjoying in our class meetings. The meeting closed with prayer by the teacher, Mrs. Anna Smith. The hostess served delicious refreshments, which were enjoyed by all.

MRS. ANNA SMITH.

Greensboro, N. C.

SOUTH NORFOLK LETTER.

Rev. O. D. Poythress, pastor of the South Norfolk Christian Church, stated that the quarterly conference held recently in the Church was one of the most successful in a long time. There was a spirit of co-operation and work among the congregation that foretold great successes during the last year, and the Church debt has been reduced from its original figure of $104,000 to $35,000, and it is planned to pay off $1,000 each month during this year.

Plans for the entire year were discussed at the conference, and it was decided to hold revival services, beginning Easter Sunday, to run jointly with the revivals in other Churches. It is hoped that Rev. H. C. Caviness, of Portsmouth, will accept the invitation to conduct these services again this year. He was very successful with them last spring. Plans were also laid for the second anniversary service for the new Church building which will be held on the first Sunday in June.

FROM GEORGIA.

Among his other engagements, Rev. A. R. Flowers is to speak before the Ministers' Conference, to be held in Jacksonville, Fla., from January 27-30th. Bro. Flowers is a firm believer in the fellowship of all Christians, and he does not preach it only, but he lives it, and his lectures and his life have gone a long way toward bringing a greater spirit of Christian fellowship among all denominations in many sections of Georgia and Florida. The young people have learned to think of Prof. Flowers as their true and tried friend, for he has helped dozens of poor boys and poor girls to find a way to improve their time and to do things that will benefit them intellectually, spiritually and financially. He thinks things through, and then, in his quiet, unassuming way, he proceeds to put them across.

MISS ZOLA B. BAXTER.

Glenville, Ga.

UNITY—"THY KINGDOM COME."

BY DR. J. E. RAWLES.

"In the beginning was God." The world began as a unit with the Creator. This unifying Spirit has been on a conquering mission since creation. This eternal Unit will go on conquering until the end of creation, regardless of the devil and his hosts. Where did we come from? Why are we here? And where are we going? These questions have puzzled the minds of men for all time—agitation at times to the extent of madness and insanity. The answer is that the human race is on a circling journey, from Unity to Unity; yes, from God to God.

History emphasizes this truth. This unifying spirit is an instinct of the human race, whether in savagery or in civilization. In primeval savagery we find the family unit, and held together by physical force. In the most recent civilization we find myriads of families as a unit and held together by the spirit of unity and love in a state of united democracy. Later with the savages we find tribe units with their chiefs held together by physical force. As the human race becomes less savage, we had monarchical units with their kings and held together by main and muscle.

In modern times, as the human race begins to see, she views life from a different angle; she is beginning to have a vision of this above unity as applied to all mankind in a world democracy, governed and held together by a spirit of brotherly love—for God is love. So today our newspapers are full of the League of Nations, Association of Nations, World Courts and disarmaments, which are but echoes of the conquering spirit of Unity that began with creation. Remember, from Unity to Unity—from God to God. This conquering spirit of Unity has had no easy journey.

The great libraries of the world will tell you of the red and rugged way. "Wars and rumors of wars" is the story, but still triumphant on the trail. History, on all of her pages, only bespeaks of two forces at work, namely: a unifying or centralizing force and a non-unifying or disintegrating force. These two forces have characterized all wars and human conflicts of the past. In our national history we see this truth emphasized. The Civil War was a war of what? A conflict between this unifying force to unite the States and the force of disintegration to maintain independent States. The united effort won because it was a step further in the right direction in the progress of the human race. Our thought was then governed by the Declaration of Independence."

Again, what did we find in the World War? Only the same two forces at work. We find a conflict between this spirit of unification or centralization in the form of the allies, and the spirit of disorganization or of disintegration in the form of Hunism. But we have advanced as a nation from the head thought of independence to the heart thought of the Declaration of Independence.

One receives many interesting impressions while traveling in Europe. There is no one truth that stands out more prominently than universal brotherhood of mankind. It is true that we differ from the European nations, and they differ from each other, but this difference is artificially brought about by environment or circumstances and is only on the surface. Beneath this superficial variance one could see a common cord of universal brotherhood connecting the European nations and binding them with ours. The great disturbances between people and nations are apparent on the surface, while beneath the surface the great undercurrent of brotherly love moves onward toward universal peace and happiness.

You cannot separate the European nations from each other or from our nation. We, as a nation, attempt to protect ourselves by immigration and tariff laws. This protection is greatly in name only. In the year 1925 there were 800,000,000 dollars spent by tourists in Europe. During this same time, foreigners in this country sent to their respective countries $400,000,000, making a grand total of one billion, two hundred million dollars, and the immigrants continue to pour into our country. Only 24,000 from the European nations are allowed to enter our country annually. There is a waiting list now that it would take sixty-seven years for all of them to come over at the present rate of admission, if none of them died. This bespeaks the truth that we are one people and time is gradually breaking down the barriers, bringing about unity—for "ye are one."

Unity has a basic foundation of co-operation. The spirit of non-unity has a basic foundation of competition. The former bespeaks progress, service and life, while the latter bespeaks retrogression, injury and suicide. The co-operation or living spirit has been grasped not only by the nation as basis of government, but by the commercial world. At first the people could not understand this in the commercial sphere, and thus the newspapers and magazines were filled with long discussions on trusts, monopolies, and combines. The newspapers howled for awhile, and legislatures got busy, but the true co-operative business enterprises marched on in progress, serving the human race—giving better goods for less money. I will not mention the success of these large corporations (or better co-operations), but will let your mind recall and enumerate. At first the majority of the business world had not advanced to the stage of a few, and this majority thought these few were enemies, and they were. Enemies not to the individuals as such, but to their method of business, namely: competition. In other words, it was a conflict between co-operation or unity, and competition or non-unity. Their records and results, so far as success in the business world, stand for themselves.

This unifying or co-operative spirit has been caught here and there by all lines of human endeavor. In the Church we see it shining out in the so-called "Federation of Churches" and other efforts at Church unification. This unification, or co-operative spirit, is characterized by God. The disorganizing or competitive spirit by the devil. Regardless of sin, competition and diversity, the world is marching triumphantly to Zion—to "thy kingdom come."

Church or Sunday School unity does not mean denominational unity. Some are inclined to believe that Episcopalians must become Presbyterians, Methodists emerge into Baptists, Christians into Congregationalists, and the Friends into some other belief in order that unity may be brought about, but not so. Denominationalism is but a means or method to a common end and purpose. We have no more right and reason to believe that denominations will become one in name than to look for the time when all merchants will use the same methods in business, or farmers till the soil in the same manner. Denominationalism represents the mental process of the Church, and there will be denominations as long as the mind of man is human.

By denominations, we have a mental and individualistic working basis that we may reach, in spirit, the great united Church behind all creeds. Here we are one in Christ, who is Lord of all. Here I am reminded of an imaginary story of Evangelist Sam P. Jones that I heard him relate over thirty-five years ago. He said, on resurrection morn, when old Gabriel blows his trumpet, Christ, the great and good old Steam Engine of time, will roll out of the round-house and start for New Jerusalem. To Him will be coupled Episcopalian cars, Friend cars, Christian cars, and many others on their glorious journey to the great city. He blows for the station and rolls under the shed and comes to a stop. The passengers begin to get out and greet each other in a glorious meeting. At this moment, they hear the rushing of waters and a "chugger, chugger, chugger" sound, and they will look over to the right and behold a boat had landed and Baptists were coming ashore in the city by the river Jordan. They got there on time, but by water. This tells a wonderful truth that can be easily remembered. All true creeds or denominations are together at heart, purpose and aim. There is a heart or spiritual unity.

The mission of the Church is quite comprehensive, and must meet the needs and necessities of the human race. Well do we remember when a Church building was constructed with four walls to accommodate preaching. Here they preached, prayed, sang, moaned and shouted once or twice per month, which seemed to meet the needs of the time. Later, instrumental music was added, which some thought was the devil's handiwork. Later the Sunday School became a factor, and the architecture of the Church had to change to meet the requirements. Thus Sunday School rooms set apart to accommodate the different grades, where each can get the proper Bible and religious training. We have advanced a step farther, and now provide in our Church architectural plans for social and recreational quarters.

Social provision in our Church life, to our mind, is essential. Still there are some good people who class it with the instrumental Church music of old, as the cunning handiwork of the devil. A true deacon of a Church said to me some time ago that he had as much patience with social and recreational quarters connected with a Church as the devil had with holy water. He was honest in his statement, and we honor him for his honesty and frankness. Biological life is fundamental, and has to be taken care of in the proper development of an all-round individual. If the Church does not provide for the social and recreational life, youths of our Churches will look elsewhere to meet the requirements. "Thou shalt not" will not be accepted as a substitute. Their life demands it, and the Church must respond.

The Church must be made attractive. The graveyard air that shrouds the average Church must be relegated to the middle ages. I don't recall but one funeral service that God conducted wholly Himself. This funeral was that of Moses, one of the greatest characters of the Bible. He was buried not on a hill and adorned with a monument, but in the valley of Moab, and unto this day man has not known the place of his grave. Both grave and place were buried. This suggests a wonderful lesson in the disposition of the dead. The Church is no place for her lawns to be deadened by graveyards and ghosts, nor her front roofs built tomb-like. All this emphasizes fear, gloom and death. Of all the buildings in the world that should bespeak life, and not death, would be a Church with her mission of light and life. A Church thus shrouded defeats herself. Like begets like. Such Church environment is probably a source of comfort to the old or near dead, but Churches are not built primarily for the old, but for the young.

"I come not that ye might have death and have it more abundantly, but I come that ye might have life and have it more abundantly." Thus the Church representing Christ is not to prepare people to die, but to prepare the human race to live; not primarily to live hereafter, but now, here in this life. If the life is well lived here, it will take care of the life to come; for "the dwelling-place of God is among men."

So the Church must meet all the proper development of womanhood and manhood. Christ possessed all-round development. "Jesus increased

(Continued on page 14.)

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITO ·

J. O. ATKINSON, Elon College, N. C.

Contributing Editors

W. W. STALEY

W. A. HARPER

R. C. HELFENSTEIN S. C. HARRELL

PRINCIPLES OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

CHRISTIAN UNITY.

One thing may be said in truth: that Protestant denominations are getting in speaking distance of one another. That points to fraternity and Christian fellowship. Jesus prayed "that they all may be one; as Thou, Father, art in me, and I in Thee, that they also may be one in us: that the world may believe that Thou hast sent me" (John 17:21). It may be assumed that His prayer will be answered, and it is being answered in the various comity conferences and co-operations among the people of God at home and on mission fields. Any attitude that cultivates a more friendly spirit among Christian leaders deserves mention and approval. One of the great questions in this day is how to reduce the friction between denominations. Exchange of pulpits, ministerial contact, Golden Rule behavior, any method of bringing ministers together in conferences for discussion, will help on in the direction of unity.

The third Sunday in this month was an example of Christian courtesy and fellowship in the gospel at the Christian Temple, Norfolk, Va. It was the celebration of the ninth anniversary of Rev. Dr. Leon Edgar Smith as pastor of the Temple. Some interesting and valuable facts were printed in the program:

Membership—1919, 236; 1928, 1,398.

Sunday School enrollment—1919, 160; 1928, 816.

Budget, benevolent and current expenses—1919, $2,800; 1928, $16,500.

Value of Church property—1919, $14,000; 1928, $350,000.

This record itself shows not only progress, but real work on the part of pastor and people. What the Church needs above all else is faith in God and work on the part of men and women who profess to be followers of Jesus Christ. It was a great day at the Christian Temple.

Dr. Jason Noble Pierce, pastor of the First Congregational Church, Washington, D. C., had been invited and had accepted the invitation to be the guest of the Temple pastor and preach at both services. Calvin Coolidge, President of the United States, is a member and regular attendant of Dr. Pierce's Church. The fact of the President's regular attendance at Church is a good lesson for every American citizen. The congregation at the morning service was large, and at night very large. The sermons were surcharged with the Word and Spirit of the gospel—real preaching! Plain, simple, sincere gospel messages reached the hearts of the great congregations. Here was a fine lesson for preachers to "preach the Word." The finest thing on this great day was the fraternal spirit in this visit and messages of this great man of God of another denomination. If these two great pastors of the Congregational Church and the Christian Church could thus worship and minister together in "the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace," why may not the denominations do this on a larger and more permanent scale?

Dr. Pierce not only preached at the Temple, both morning and night, but at the First Congregational Church in Portsmouth at 3 o'clock in the afternoon to a large and appreciative congregation. Four Christian ministers attended this service—Dr. L. E. Smith, Revs. Lowe, Caviness, and Staley. Dr. Pierce attended the Ministerial Association of the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference at the Central Y. M. C. A. on Monday, and delivered a fine address, and twenty ministers were present, and Mrs. Fix graced the occasion with her presence. After lunch together, Rev. H. E. Caviness carried Dr. Pierce, Dr. Smith, Rev. H. S. Harcastle and me around by Cape Henry and Virginia Beach, after which Dr. Pierce left by steamer for Washington. His visit was an inspiration to all who heard him, and the idea of Christian unity seemed nearer. He is an outstanding minister in the Congregational denomination, and he is as brotherly as we can be to those of our own household.

Christian unity is in the air; Christian unity is in the Church's prayers, and every spiritual and personal contact brings the prayer of Jesus nearer to the answer which His own life craved. The third Sunday in January was a great day at the Temple, and Dr. Smith and his splendid congregation deserves praise for their work for Christ.

W. W. S.

MOLDING A TYPE.

Some months ago a gentleman, who is a keen observer of men and institutions, asked me why it was that the ministers of the Southern Christian Convention appear to be of one mind and one spirit, and why they exhibit such a beautiful attitude of fraternity and brotherhood for other people. I knew that he had a reason of his own in explanation of this "happy situation," as he described it, and so I inquired of him to outline to me his own opinion touching this matter.

He then reminded me that several times he had been a visitor to our campus and that he became acquainted with the life and program of the college, and particularly with the professors, who have to do with teaching our courses in Bible and religious education. He very frankly said that he ascribed the unanimity and like-mindedness of the ministers of our Church to their having studied in the same institution and under the same instructors.

He then complimented Elon for being faithful and true to the ideals and principles of the Christian Church. In his judgment, no denominational college more faithfully reflects the ideals and purposes of its supporting Church than Elon does, and he is a much-traveled man and acquainted with many institutions of higher learning in many States.

I consider this the finest compliment that could be paid our college. The Christian Church founded Elon for a definite purpose—the purpose of molding its leadership in terms of the ideals, principles, purposes and programs of our Church. That a brother looking on from the outside should have discovered that Elon has faithfully discharged its stewardship in this regard is to me one of the most inspiring facts that I know.

Is this brother not right? Has Elon not molded the thought and spiritual patterns of our leaders? And does this fact not account for the fine spirit of fellowship and fraternity and brotherhood and love which characterizes our ministers in their relations with one another? And does this fact also not account for the lack of schism, theologically or otherwise, among our brethren?

There is no question that the ministers of our Church appreciate Elon, and they appreciate it for its molding influence over their own spiritual attitudes.

W. A. H.

ENLISTING YOUTH FOR CHRIST.

The future of the Church depends upon winning the children and the youth of today for Christ. Who will tell us the exact age a child should be before it should be encouraged to make the "good confession"? Who would presume to stand between a child and God? Who would presume to deny any child the privilege of enlisting its life for Christ?

For many of us, the time has come when we are ready to say: "Any child of any age that wants to pledge its allegiance to Jesus Christ and the Church will be received into the Church without restriction and without reservation."

In the past many have thought that the child might be qualified to make other important choices in life, but that choosing Christ and His way of life demanded more mature judgment, and that therefore it was wrong to encourage or to try to persuade children to decide for Christ and the Church. How many of us have heard parents actually oppose their children making the Christian decision and uniting with the Church! Such parents insist that a boy or girl of ten or twelve years of age does not realize all that accepting Christ and joining the Church means. But neither does an adult understand all that proposition involves.

The child does not have to be able to explain all the mysteries of religion in order to be religious. If such a test were demanded of adults, not one could meet the test. No man or woman living knows all the mysteries of religion. But even the child of eight years can know enough to experience religion. How inconsistent such parents are to oppose their children in becoming Christians on the ground the child does not understand all it means! The child does not understand the mystery of sleep. Will the parent, therefore, keep the child awake until it learns the mystery of sleep? The child does not understand the mystery of the process of digestion. Will the parent, therefore, refuse to let the child eat until it learns all about the process of digestion and assimilation? The child does not understand the mystery of thought, the law of the association of ideas. Will the parent, therefore, forbid the child to think until it learns the mystery of thought? The child does not understand the mystery of love. Will the parent, therefore, forbid the child to exercise love for home and parents until it is able to comprehend the meaning of it all? Why, then, should a parent refuse to let a child profess religion until he can fully understand the meaning of religion?

The children themselves and the kingdom of God have had to suffer because of the inconsistent attitude of parents who failed to appreciate the naturalness of religion and the capacity of the child for religious experience.

Ten years ago the psychologists told us that the age from twelve to sixteen was the period in which the child is most responsive to religious stimuli. But actual experience in the laboratory of life has revealed that those early deductions of Starbuck, Ames, Hall and others were wrong. During the years between seven and ten the child is in the most impressionable period of its life. That is the time of all times when the current of the child's thoughts and life can most easily be turned God-ward. Educationists recognize that this is the best time in the child's life for it to learn music, art, and the language. They should also recognize that this is the best time in the child's life for it to learn God and the way of right living.

Occasionally, you will find parents who, though somewhat advanced beyond the position of those that oppose their children making religious decisions, still fall short of God's expectation of every believing parent. This class of parents might be called the "middle-of-the-readers." They do not oppose their children making confession of Christ and uniting with the Church, but neither do they encourage it. When approached on the question, they reply, "Yes, I want my child to be a Christian, and I shall be glad when it makes up its mind of its own accord. But I do not think it is right to try to influence a child in such a decision. I want my child to decide for itself." God in heaven, have mercy upon us if we parents feel that we should not try to influence our children for Christ and the Church from their very earliest childhood! There are plenty of forces in the world trying to influence them away from Christ and the Church. And if the parents fail to influence their children for Christ and the Church, who, pray, can ever atone for this neglect?

One of the primary duties of every Christian mother is to teach her child to pray. One of the happiest times in a mother's and father's life is the experience of teaching their child to pray. And yet there are hundreds of professing Christian parents who absolutely fall down in this responsibility—Christian parents who are neglecting to teach their children to pray. Recently a boy, eight years old, and from a home where the father and mother were professing Christians and active in Church work, and yet this boy, eight years old, told his Sunday School teacher that he had never been taught even the simple prayer, "Now I lay me down to sleep." Pathetic, you say. It's a crime! Before God, such parents are guilty of scul-negligence, and the Church of the future will lay the responsibility for Christian nurture largely at the door of the home. The home cannot shift all this responsibility to the Sunday School. If the youth are to be won to Christ and the Church, Christian parents absolutely must accept their responsibility and create a wholesome religious atmosphere in the home. Religion should be a topic of conversation in the family circle the same as education, industry, politics, play, etc. But, above all, it must be practiced in all the family relationships and in the various relationships of life—for religion may be caught as well as taught. However, religion is not apt to be "caught" by any one to whom it has not first been "taught" in some way or other.

Knowledge about God absolutely must precede love for and faith in God. To this end, every Sunday School teacher should realize that the ultimate objective in the task of religious education is to win the child for Christ and the Church.

Religious education is definite evangelistic propaganda of the highest type. The idea prevailing a generation ago that the objective in religious education was merely to impart the facts of the lesson was not sufficient to meet the needs. Religious education must deal with ideals as well as with ideas. The other extreme which was common a generation ago among some Sunday School teachers was to ignore the importance of the subject matter in the lesson, and because of want of information the teacher spent the lesson period in exhortation. This extreme of merely exhorting the children to "come to Jesus" is equally as unworthy of the Sunday School teacher as the other extreme of merely presenting the bare facts of the lesson, giving no life issue, and having no definite objective that touches the child's life in its relation to God.

The fundamental principle of pedagogy is that the teacher shall have a definite objective in mind, and shall know in detail every step that must be taken in order to realize the objective. Thus the definite objective in the work of every Sunday School teacher should be to win the pupils for Christ, and then to equip them with knowledge and inspiration for service. Both the direct method and the indirect method of approach should be used in winning the youth to life allegiance to Christ. A knowledge of child psychology will help the teacher, but it is not absolutely essential. A knowledge of boys and girls is even more important, and a sincere love for the youth is the most important of all.

The Church at one time looked upon the youth as a problem. Later the youth was considered a field of opportunity. But the Church in the future will look upon the youth as a force. The Church of the future will make greater and ever greater use of this force, this enthusiasm, this life-momentum. The child is the hope of the Church and of the world. And because we are coming to appreciate this fact, the future of the Church of our Lord was never brighter, never more hopeful. The fact that the Church has failed in the past to recognize its evangelistic opportunity among the youth accounts for the appalling failure of the Church in winning the boys and girls for Christ.

Statistics reveal the important fact which is familiar to all that 83 per cent of the members of the Church come through the Sunday School. And yet statistics also reveal the perfectly alarming fact that 70 per cent of those in the Sunday School are lost to the Church. Three out of every four boys in our Sunday Schools are lost from the senior and young people's divisions. Something has been radically wrong with the system that has permitted such losses. If a business concern lost three out of every four dollars invested it would be considered a complete failure.

The trouble has been that the Churches have not recognized the children as being an asset to the kingdom, but have thought of them as being a liability. In looking after the spiritual interests of the adults, the spiritual interests of the child have been overlooked. Busy here and there in seeking to win the adults to Christ and the Church, the youth have been allowed to slip away from the influence of the Church, and altogether too often have been lost to the kingdom for years, if not for all time. Think of it—70 per cent of the boys and girls who enter the Sunday School are lost to the Church somewhere along the line, all because of one of three or of all three reasons: First, the home has not given its sympathetic co-operation by sustaining a wholesome religious environment and by personal instruction in religion and morals; or second, because the Sunday School has not had a definite evangelistic objective in its program of religious education; or third, because neither the home or the Sunday School has had a "sympathetic appreciation of the child's life in its moral and religious development." In many instances, the failure has been due to the fact that the need of the child has not been the recognized law of the kingdom, but instead the whims and fancies of the adults have determined the program of the Church. Educational evangelism demands that the need of the child shall always be the law of the Church and of the Sunday School.

A child can be taught religion in such a way that he will want to experience it. You can train the child so that the choice of the Christian life will be perfectly natural for him. Life itself is a series of choices. These choices by the child may be a progression of choices for the good, and by proper religious training in the home and in the Sunday School the child can make the supreme choice of life, the choice of its Saviour and its God, without any revolutionary experience in its life. The child does not have first to decide for the bad in order later to decide for the good.

Religious education is not a substitute for definite religious experience, but is rather an aid not only to the realization of a definite religious experience, but also to a deeper religious experience. Religious education makes it easier for the child to decide for the good, for God, and for a life of loving service to humanity in the name of the Lord Christ. Call this decision what you will—the experience is the same; the experiencing of religion. Some call it conversion, some call it the religious unfoldment, some call it a spiritual birth. It is not the name, but the experience, that is of vital importance, namely: for the child to pledge allegiance to Christ's way of living.

By example and by precept, by instruction and by devotion, the home and the Church can so magnify and exalt the Lord Christ that every normal youth will experience a resistless longing to be an avowed follower of Jesus Christ. And following Jesus is the sum total of Christianity.

The call of the Master to parents and Sunday School teachers is to hold His life up before the boys and girls in such a winsome and wholesome way that they will naturally decide for a life of purity, of goodness, and of usefulness.

Deciding for Christ should be thought of as a normal experience, and not as an abnormal experience. And if the life and character of Jesus is held up before the youth consistently, they will want Him.

A boy of ten years, while playing upon the street, was accidentally run over by an auto. When they took him to the hospital, the physicians and nurses despaired of his life. The little fellow kept calling, "I want the man." The nurse sent for his father. The father came and stood by the boy's side, but the lad shook his head, saying, "I want the man." They sent for the lad's Sunday School teacher, a young man of fine character, who had always exalted the life of Christ before the boys in his class. The Sunday School teacher quickly came and tried to bring cheer to the little fellow. The lad shook his head again and said, "I want the man." They then sent for the doctor, who came and simply stood by the boy's side, as there was nothing more he could do. The lad looked at him, and then faintly shook his head, saying: "No, I want the man; the man with the crown of thorns on his head."

The character of Jesus had been held up before the boy in his home and in his Sunday School class in such beauty and simplicity that when the crisis came to his young life it was only natural for him to want "the man with the crown of thorns on his head."

The evangelism of the youth, or educational evangelism, challenges the mothers and fathers, the Sunday School teachers and pastors so to hold

(Continued on Page 9.)

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

Mrs. Eudora Kilby, relict of Abel Upshur Kilby, was found dead in her bed by her daughter, Miss Eudora Kilby, on the morning of December 9, 1927. She had passed away while asleep as quietly as she had gone to sleep when she retired. Her maiden name was Eudora Lydia Ballard Eley, daughter of Col. William and Lydia Eley, among the prominent residents of Nansemond County, Va. She was the last of twelve children, three of whom died during 1927. Mrs. Kilby was born October 9, 1848, and was 79 years and 2 months old when she passed over the river into the rest that remains to the people of God. Her father was for a long time treasurer of Nansemond County and a leader in Bethlehem Christian Church. Mrs. Kilby was herself a faithful member of the Suffolk Christian Church and will be greatly missed by her many friends; but memory will supply her presence in their hearts.

Mrs. Kilby was a charter member of the Ladies' Benevolent and Social Union and of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Church and loyal to all the obligations that Church membership and these societies involved. Her devotion to the Church and its enterprises was an index to her real Christian life. With her, Christ was first, Church was second, and all other relations harmonized with these two traits of her character. In her social relations she maintained all the essentials of refinement and friendliness without any of the faults of superiority or pride. Her home and her social contact were Christian through and through. She grew into the new day without any loss of the best that was in her youth.

Mrs. Kilby is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Claude J. Dennis and Miss Eudora Upshur Kilby, both of Suffolk; two grandsons, Claude J. Dennis, Jr., and William Hill Kilby, and many collateral relatives. Her son-in-law, Claude J. Dennis, and his family reside in Suffolk.

Mrs. Kilby not only came of distinguished parentage, but her husband, Upshur Kilby, was also a member of a prominent Suffolk family. The Kilby family has been prominent in this section for a hundred years, socially, religiously and politically. When these three elements can be combined on the basis of true character, it makes a human force that is sustained by divine approval. This family history runs back to the Wellons period, in this part of Virginia, and leaves its impress on the Church and society. No greater man and no greater religious force has ever chastened the atmosphere of this community than the combined influence of the name Wellons, Eley, and Kilby. Great characters pass out, but the influence of their lives lingers in succeeding generations. Mrs. Kilby shared generously in this inheritance and profited by its possession.

The funeral services for Mrs. Kilby were conducted from her home, on West Washington Street, on Sunday afternoon, December 12th, by Rev. W. W. Staley and Rev. H. S. Hardcastle. The songs by friends were sweet, the flowers were beautiful, the sympathy was deep, and the occasion impressed all present with the value of Christian trust and the hope of reward. No one could feel that her passing had been sad, but sweet—going to sleep in her own home and waking up in heaven. There is one time in human experience when religion comes to the front and claims the respect of all—that time is at the grave—but the grave of a Christian is the gateway to glory. "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord." Her grave is a suggestion of the door to heaven. "Her children rise up and call her blessed," and who knew her respond, Amen!

W. W. STALEY.

ELON LETTER.

This Elon Letter is being written on the morning of January 18, 1928, just five years following the fire which destroyed the original administration building and made possible the new Elon plant which now graces our campus.

I have not been able today to forget the dark experiences of that cold, bleak January morning five years ago, nor at the same time the messages of hope and inspiration that came over the wires on that day from friends and alumni in all parts of the country, pledging their support and insisting that a new day had dawned for Elon.

At the very hour that I write, the student body and faculty were, five years ago, in session in the alumni building, in the gymnasium of that building, and were singing the college song. That was their answer to the calamity which had overtaken us—

"So here's to dear old Elon, faithful and bold,

Here's to her banner of Maroon and Gold."

As the strains of that college song died away that eventful morning, to be followed by speeches from alumni who had hastened to their alma mater, by faculty members and by students and sympathetic citizens who had come in, a new purpose was born in the mind and heart of all, and the assurance of a greater Elon was undeniable and likewise undefeatable.

And now five years have passed, and I am seated in one of the finest offices for its purpose imaginable, furnished completely by the generous kindness of friends who were anxious that the office of the board of trustees and of president should be adequate and representative of their affection for the college. This office is in one of the finest administration buildings on any small college campus in the world. And jutting out from its four corners, arrayed in all their splendor, are four great companionate buildings constituting with it an administrative group of college structures, unsurpassed in their adequacy and in their beauty and in their serviceableness by any similar group of college buildings known to the writer, a judgment which has been confirmed by more than half-dozen of the nation's outstanding educators who know college plants and know them thoroughly.

These five beautiful and impressive buildings house the administrative functions of our college most acceptably, and they are themselves situated in the heart of a campus beautified by lawns, driveways, concrete walks and shrubbery, the whole surrounded by an impressive wall, graced at appropriate places by beautiful entrances.

The plant now is valued at $1,202,851.04, whereas five years ago it was only valued at $364,110. Surely, the Christian Church should give thanks to God and to the great-hearted men and women in our own and other Churches who have made the new Elon possible.

In addition to this, by wise planning and foresight, the Christian Church has made it possible for Elon to become a member of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools—the greatest honor and distinction that can come to a college in this section of the country. And, added to all this, the Churches have written Elon into their hearts indelibly, and they are rising up in their generosity to give her the support, and with her likewise to Bethlehem College, that is necessary to insure continued progress and growth.

My heart today is filled with gratitude, and I am rejoicing in spirit beyond measure for the good things that have come to Elon during these past five years.

But I feel one particular lack in my life today. I miss Uncle Wellons as I have not missed him before. On the morning of the fire in 1923, it was he who spoke the first encouraging word to me as I met him in the corridor of the west dormitory. I said to him, upon greeting him: "Well, Uncle Wellons, what do you think of the future?" Immediately he replied: "I have seen much less here than is here now, and I expect to see much more." He did more in praying for Elon during the trying period of rebuilding than any of the rest of us did by soliciting, planning or giving, and in a very real sense this new plant is a tribute to his prayer-life and to his ability to command the resources of God Himself.

W. A. HARPER.

BETHLEHEM LETTER.

Our colleges—Elon and Bethlehem.

Faith, hope and charity—these three qualities of the mind and heart are the fundamentals of all successful psychological dealing with individual and college problems, and when analyzed and applied, become dynamic factors in demonstration.

Every thinker has intelligent faith; the rest of the people have little or no faith at all. We should be educated into our faith, not by it; and this education should be the result of investigative thought on our part. Faith is based on knowledge; in this way it becomes understanding, and if faith is understanding, then it must be substance, for it is the practical working hypothesis by which is created the structure of all our successful activities. Our colleges are achievements of our faith—past, present, and future. The degree of our faith will be manifested in the manner we support our Church schools at this time.

Hope is desire, but desire without faith is impotent. Desire forms a mental picture which faith and love cause to become manifest in the material world. Our faith in God is in exact proportion to our faith in man and his institutions, which are the outgrowth of His Church.

The fundamental principle of charity is love. To the unthinking, charity has ever meant that quality of giving which always tends toward pauperization, but that type has always been prompted from a desire to discharge one's obligations or a desire for approbation. Real charity is love and sincere friendship, and this spirit not only inspires the recipient of the gift to a better attainment, but raises the donor to a higher plane of thought and service.

To develop our natures, we must give; to accomplish intelligently, we must give: for all life in its perfect expression is a scientific manifestation of the law of expansion and attraction, or giving and receiving. Life becomes disorganized on any other basis of operation. Every cause must have a related effect; hence, the more you give, the more you receive. The instant you begin to hoard what comes to you or keep it for yourself alone, a congestion takes place and becomes manifest in your life. To give without letting go in mind produces the same result as though you had not given at all, for it is the thought-action which operates.

It is not what you sell to the world, but what you give to the world that builds your lasting success. In giving you should never try to impress the individual or institution with the importance of your gift, nor the greatness of its value. It should be given, not as a bounty of your generosity, but rather as a gift it is your pleasure to bestow with no favor in return. Your gift should be the result of an inward impulse to express love, for no one can express true love until it is felt within the secret recesses of the soul.

To accept more than we give, without the desire to render loving service in return, is to create an uneven balance which must be finally adjusted by us, and this fact is usually the cause of so many disagreeable changes in life. A perfect balance is gained by giving more than we receive, for by so doing a capacity for receiving more is created, and this capacity must be filled. We receive only in proportion to the quality of our giving or serving.

Love is the greatest thing in the world. It was the moving cause of our redemption and the gift of God's Son was the procuring cause. Our love for Elon and Bethlehem Colleges will be made manifest in the contribution we make for these institutions during this financial campaign for schools and colleges and the loyal support we give these schools in the future. The offering we make for the colleges will be our gift to God for the benefit we have received through His Church, for the colleges are the achievements of the Church. We have not had the right conception of Elon and Bethlehem if we have not viewed them as Christ's schools for the preparation of His leadership for humanity's highest service. We only ask that you treat Christ right in the offering you make for Elon and Bethlehem during this campaign.

S. L. BEOUGHIER.

Wadley, Ala.

ELON AND THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The two great agencies of the Church are evangelism and education. No Church has ever gone forward without both. Christ was right when He said to Nicodemus: "Ye must be born again." Paul was equally right when he said to Timothy: "Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." Our forefathers were led of God when they built a Church. They were also in His keeping when they built a college. No one should question that we are responsible for and should support our Church. No one should question our responsibility for our colleges or our obligation to support it and support it adequately. There should be no camouflaging or side-tracking this matter. Elon College is ours, our responsibility, and every member of the Christian Church should assume and bear his proportionate part of this responsibility.

We should remind ourselves occasionally what the college has done for the Church.

It has given to us an opportunity to put a part of our money on the altar of education, for the good of humanity and the glory of God.

It has given to the youth of our Church an opportunity for higher education, under Christian leadership and wholesome conditions.

It has given to us an increasing number of trained laymen in our local Churches entirely capable of helping to handle the perplexing problems of the present day and to steer the Church rightly, that its future and efficiency may be secured.

It has given to us a trained ministry, a ministry fearless and with a passion, a ministry with a vision and with great faith. With but few exceptions, every pulpit in the entire Southern Convention is filled by ministers who received part or all of their training at Elon College.

It gives to us today an increasing opportunity to continue to build with our prayers, our sympathy, our money, and our co-operation an institution that will continue to serve humanity and the Church long years after we are dead.

It gives to us at this time an opportunity to express our appreciation unto God for what Elon has done for us and for the Church; and further, our continued faith in its possibilities and its achievements.

This is the time for our educational offering; the college needs your support. I am, therefore, as President of the Convention, appealing to the entire membership of the Church—ministry and laity alike—to please give heed to your educational committee's appeals, make your offerings liberal, that our college may not be hindered in its program of training for the Church.

L. E. SMITH, President,
Norfolk, Va. Southern Christian Convention.

WHAT ELON COLLEGE DID FOR ME.

BY MISS RUTH JOHNSON.

This topic is as intangible as "what is fragrance to a rose?" or what is mother? or what is home? All are, in a sense, abstract and indefinable.

We think of life and its three great relations in the terms of God, country, home; but the Christian college is a savor that vitalizes our lives and quickens our perceptions to these three great factors. Yet there are influences which we may name that Elon impresses us with that live forever. The three outstanding, perhaps, are: influence in religion, friendship, and faculty inspiration.

Religion and education are as inseparable as hydrogen and oxygen. No learning except that of truth is of any value. We cannot look out without looking up to the great mind that created and orders all life. Religion is natural and spontaneous, and all knowledge must bring around the eternal attributes of life.

The deeper knowledge of God can come only through the exercise of the emotions in worship and the influence that is brought to bear in seeking the revelations of His infinite love. The atmosphere and program at Elon seek to constantly give opportunity to such inspiration and development of the youthful unfolding life.

The second influence that I would mention is the possibility for a wide circle of friends—and what is so valuable in life as friendship? Poets have sung of it, orators have lauded it, and even God has exalted it when He says, "I call you not servants, but friends." And Christian friends are the most valuable of all. As some one has said, "Christian friendship is not only a precious memory, but an abiding heritage that remains with us and always will." The finest type of people that I have ever known have been Elon friends.

In contrast to the undenominational or State school, the congeniality on Elon campus is pretty general, and every student comes to claim Elon as a second home, for there he finds understanding, appreciation, and unselfish devotion.

The greatest of her sons is happy to reminisce on Elon friends and Elon days. Her memory is wholesome.

The third thing is the faculty inspiration—the close contact that comes with small numbers and the personal understanding are outstanding influences at Elon. There is clear evidence that the purpose of the faculty is not to get but to give; they are men and women who have learned that "He who would be greatest must be servant"—they would be great, therefore, that serve. The lessons are lived before they are taught, thus enlisting the allegiance and enthusiasm of the students for the ideals presented. They help to learn and help to live.

Many are the times the students are admonished to learn from the Book of books, and from the open pages of life, even at the sacrifice of the text-books. "As the twig is bent, so is the tree inclined," and many of her sons and daughters stand with limbs and branches towering toward the heavens with foliage enough to shelter the twittering birds that rest in its shade.

The faculty give a surprising amount of intellectual stimulus, even in connection with youthful predicaments and surplus energy which they must constrain. Under their guidance we explore life and courage is greatly heightened with which to face life.

Dayton, Ohio.

THE NEED OF ELON COLLEGE.

As my thoughts turned toward Elon College, I felt inclined to write a few lines on "The Need of Elon College." As I thought back in 1888, when the Southern Christian Convention met at Graham, N. C., I recalled that there were only two college graduate ministers in the Southern Convention at that time. I do not mean to cast any reflection on the non-graduated ministers, for I think ministers that are educated on their knees, with the Bible in their hands, have the best education of all; but as the country at large is placing more stress on education then it was up to the Church to cope with them by having a Christian college, so that our boys and girls can go, that they may be better equipped to teach the Word of God in all its purity and saving power. As we read from St. John 1st chap. 6th verse, there was a man sent from God whose name was John. So as God calls our boys and girls to be ambassadors for Him, they can go to Elon College where they are thrown in Christian atmosphere and taught Christianity.

Today we have in our Southern Christian Convention, fifty-eight college graduates that have gone out from Elon to preach the Word of God. I believe when a man is called to preach, he can preach and be instrumental in saving souls, but to be called of God and then equipped with Elon College education he will be able to expound the Word of God, whereby he can influence more to accept Christ as their personal Saviour. As I see it, this is our biggest mission on earth—that of saving souls. The Christian Church may hear the call to "Go ye into all the world and preach my gospel," and not have the knowledge that Elon College can give. Can the Church fill the balance of the command—"to every creature?" I can think of no place where the Church can be better qualified for this mission unless it be at the foot of the cross.

Henderson, N. C.

W. A. NEWMAN.

DENDRON, VA.

Greetings in our dear Lord's name!

God is still blessing the Churches of the Dendron charge. I am happy to say that unity prevails among the members, and a sweet fellowship between pastor and people. Yes, the co-operation has been wonderful. It is indeed a pleasure and an honor to serve such loyal, consecrated folks. They are second to none in the Conference.

Notwithstanding the fact that the mills at Dendron have closed down, and some of our members are out of employment, yet they haven't neglected their obligation to our Church. We have just paid the last note on the parsonage. The Ladies' Aid Society of the Dendron Church gave half of the amount and members contributed the balance. The Dendron Church is out of debt. Why should I not feel proud to serve such people?

They say, "We are having glorious, soul-feasting days." I do try to feed them from God's own wonderful storehouse. May the dear Lord bless them and our great Church, and may it continue a great blessing to our great republic; yea, to the whole wide world!

E. B. WHITE.

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Field Secretary.

STEWARDSHIP AND PROMOTION.

WARREN H. DENISON, Secretary.

The Christian Annual.

Please do not fail to order your "Christian Annual" for 1928 before you lay this paper down. It is brimful of just the data, history, records, board actions, boiled-down information, all ready for reference, which you as a Christian worker will need every few days. It is ready. Do not delay. It is just off the press. Every pastor, Conference officer, and progressive Church officer needs it.

Stewardship Secretaries.

I do not know of any persons in the Churches and Conferences who have greater opportunities and responsibilities before them right now than all stewardship secretaries. Early in 1928 the Sunday School Lessons will have numerous definite stewardship lessons, practically for the first time. Thousands of our teachers have never had any stewardship instruction. They do not know what stewardship is. They have not read a recent book on the subject. They think of it indistinctly as a method of raising money, or as a matter of giving more money. They have not studied it in its relation to all of life. The whole matter of its spiritual power and relation is new to them. They do not know it as a character-builder. Consequently, our stewardship secretaries have the opportunity of their lives for real Christian service in that they see that those teachers get stewardship training for their task. It is a serious responsibility, new and fresh. Delay will mean that hundreds of teachers will fail to get the real stewardship message to their pupils. So important is the matter that Secretaries Hermon Eldredge and Warren H. Denison sent special letters to all pastors and superintendents, urging this stewardship preparation. There is no time for delay.

The Early Convention Offerings.

Early remittances are coming in. We cannot yet get much of an idea what the trend will be, but this we do know; that unless there is a marked increase in the offerings over last year, and unless all the Churches and Sunday Schools respond generously, and unless many individuals give large personal gifts, the work our people have laid on the Convention office will be seriously crippled. We, therefore, count on every loyal pastor (and we have as loyal as any have), our strong laymen, our generous women, our fine young people, to put the January offering to the General Convention in the place where it ought to be, so that our actual needs may be met. We believe our people will do it when the matter is fully understood by them.

Letters and literature have been sent to all pastors, Church clerks, and superintendents, urging their hearty co-operation in the teaching and practice of Christian unity. We hope that this period of study and teaching will be widely observed, and will mean real progress in the cause of a more complete unity.

QUARTERLY REPORT.

The quarterly financial report of the North Carolina Woman's Missionary Conference to the treasurer of the Woman's Home and Foreign Mission Board, S. C. C.

Women's Societies.

Amount of dues$332.00
Home special, mountain work..... 15.75

Foreign special, Bible women, Jap. 25.00
Kitamura Home, Japan..... 236.42
$ 609.17

Young People's Societies.

Santa Isabel$ 17.38
Mountain work in Virginia..... 27.37
44.75

Willing Workers' Societies.

Santa Isabel$ 3.75
Mountain work in Virginia..... 3.75
7.50

Cradle Roll.

Baby home, Elon Orphanage.....$ 1.28
Kindergarten 1.27
2.55

Total amount of check $ 663.97

REPORT FOR QUARTER ENDING DEC. 31, 1927.

Women's Societies.

Burlington$170.82
Durham 38.30
Elon College 87.20
Greensboro 97.35
Haw River 20.00
Hines Chapel 21.75
Howard's Chapel 10.00
Liberty, Va. 13.50
Mt. Auburn 20.00
Piney Plains 3.00
Pleasant Grove 3.60
Pleasant Ridge 24.00
Raleigh 45.00
Sanford 31.25
Union Ridge 23.40
$ 609.17

Young People's Societies.

Burlington$ 40.00
Greensboro, Jr. 1.00
Sanford 3.75
44.75

Willing Workers' Societies.

Durham 7.50

Cradle Roll.

Mt. Auburn 2.55

Total $ 663.97

MRS. W. R. SELLARS,

Burlington, N. C. Treasurer.

PORTO RICO LETTER.

Dear Folks:

I am happy to say that we had very impressive and successful Christmas programs and exercises in our Ponce Church. On Monday, December 26th, our big Christmas program was given. From the remarks of the public, it was one of the best programs ever given in our Church. We feel happy that our hard work was not a failure.

On Tuesday morning, at 9 o'clock, we gave a Christmas tree to our Sunday School children. Each child received a little bag of candy and a small gift. I could assure you good folks that your gifts that were sent to us were greatly appreciated by our little folks and made their Christmas a happy and real one. Probably to some of you little things do not mean very much, but very little articles are appreciated by us Porto Ricans.

On Friday, our Christian Endeavor young folks enjoyed a very good Christmas social at our mission home. Each member received a little present and enjoyed the songs, games and the Porto Rican refreshments. On Saturday, which was the last day of 1927, we had a very impressive midnight service. It was like a dream to me to be surrounded by the strange people and be greeted in a strange language for a new year. But I enjoyed it to the fullest, and I am learning to love these people.

Probably some of you would be interested to know how I spent my Christmas Day. I am thankful, also happy, to say that I have had one of the best and happiest of Christmases while being away from home. My Christmas started in the middle of November. The cheerful greetings and thoughtful gifts from you dear folks at home brought cheer and joy to my life daily. I wish to thank every one who remembered me by their Christmas greetings and gifts of love. I have received over two hundred greetings. All these thoughtful greetings have made me become like a new person, with more love, courage and strength for His service.

On Christmas Day I was invited to spend the day with the three young girls who are also missionaries for the United Brethren and the Baptist Churches. We had a real Christmas turkey dinner, and in the afternoon we were invited for afternoon tea at Miss Miller's, where we sang Christmas carols and enjoyed a real American Christmas gathering.

When the month of December came to an end, I found myself very tired and weak from the constant work of the month. Therefore, Misses Clengam and Shaw, the Baptist missionaries; Miss O'Kruey, the United Brethren missionary, and her dear mother, who is visiting her and I, stole away from Ponce and landed in the United Brethren rest home, which is located among the marvelous mountains that are covered with the tropical fruits, to rest and live a simple camp life just for four days. The wonderful fresh air and the beauty of the nature have given us the strength and new vision for our work.

I am writing this letter while sitting under a beautiful orange tree, and thinking of you good folks, and wishing that you were with me to enjoy this simple country life with me. I pray and hope that God will give me strength, so that I may continue my work for His kingdom. Please do not forget me in your prayers.

VICTORIA E. ADAMS.

PRAYER FOR CHRISTIAN COLLEGES.

BY DR. C. C. RYAN.

Our most blessed Heavenly Father, we adore Thee, we magnify Thee, we rejoice in Thee, we praise Thy holy name. We thank Thee that everything Thou hast permitted to come into our lives shall work together for good, for we love Thee. Our Father, we realize that to begin life's action is to step on holy ground; it has a commencement, but no termination. On such an unending career, the full-orbed light of the past should shine. To the end that we may become disciples of Christ, grant that we may know the laws of our own nature, for the laws of our own nature are to us the revelation of God. May we know Jesus Christ and the laws by which He worked, that we may take the principles and temper of Him and apply them in a great variety of circumstances in which Jesus Himself was not placed.

May our right thinking and our right acting set up Thy glorious gospel through all this land, and make it Emanuel's land; and as Thou wast our Father's God, be Thou our God and the God of our seed afterward, from generation to generation, through successive men and institutions of fidelity, usefulness and honor, that the kingdoms of the world may become the kingdom of the Lord and His Christ.

At the time of this call to prayer in behalf of our Christian colleges, we beseech Thee that the wisdom of all the past may be imparted to the young life of today through the medium of intelligent Christian teachers, to the end that the laws of God may be known and the will of the Lord be done among men in this twentieth century and all succeeding ages.

May the worth of cultured life be so known that men and women with great material wealth shall be willing to support our institutions of learning, knowing that an investment in Christian education will bring forth a fruitage for time and eternity.

Oh, God! for the sake of generations now living and the generations yet unborn, bless our schools and colleges, each student and teacher, and all men and women who cast their offering into the treasury. In Christ's name. Amen.

Richmond, Va.

FIFTY-FOUR YEARS.

I have finished up the fifty-fourth year of pastoral service, and still have vigor and strength left for more service. During the past year I served the Morrisville Christian Church and assisted Dr. J. O. Atkinson, our Mission Secretary, for four months in the mission campaign, speaking from two to four hours every Sunday; cultivated two acres of land in cotton, five in corn, and a crop of vegetables, cut one hundred shocks of wheat in a day with sythe in old-time way, and felt fine the next day.

During my ministerial life I have received in Church membership more than two thousand, organized more than a dozen Churches, and had about the same number of Church houses erected; and now, with all the willingness of my soul and vigor of my body, I am superannuated, and now I am out in the field to graze. One word I want to say just here. I never asked a Church to consider or call me as their pastor. I thank God for all the gospel privileges that He has permitted me to have and enjoy, and for all the good that He has accomplished in the use He has made of me; and if I have in any way done or said anything that has hindered the kingdom, I do implore His forgiveness. I have made no compromise with the world or the devil. During these years I have fought many hard battles, and I thank God for victory in my soul today and am now willing to be offered up. May God's grace, mercy and peace be upon the brotherhood in Christ Jesus. I am His and yours till death. In His service saved to serve.

P. T. KLAPP.

VISITS PETERSBURG.

Bro. Sam Davis and his charming wife were with us at Washington Street Church on last Sunday. Bro. Davis played for our Men's Bible Class and also spoke, to the delight of those present. At night, a large congregation assembled and were sympathetically responsive both to the music and the singing, and the addresses given by both Bro. Davis and his wife. The influence of the service was decidedly spiritual, and their coming was a benefaction to our people.

J. W. MOORE.

ENLISTING YOUTH FOR CHRIST.

(Continued from Page 5.)

up the life of Jesus before the child in example and in teaching from the kindergarten on up through the beginners, the primary and the junior departments so that by the time or before the time the child comes to the intermediate department he will have voiced the desire of his heart by pledging allegiance for life to "the Man with the crown of thorns upon His head."

Thus, to win the boys and girls for Christ and the Church is the triumph supreme—the triumph of religious education. This is the task of the Church of the Living God, and the only satisfying answer to the call of the master: "Suffer the children to come unto me." R. C. H.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES.

We should be glad to furnish your Sunday School the following supplementary supplies, cash to accompany order:

- Improved Uniform Series International Lessons.
1. Bible Lesson Picture Roll, 21x32 inches, per quarter $1.25
 2. Sunday School Superintendent (to accompany the Picture Roll), per quarter..... .15
 3. Pupils' Lesson Stories, per quarter..... .06
 4. Little Bible Lesson Pictures, per quarter..... .05
- Group Uniform Series, Primary Course.
1. Group Bible Lesson Picture Roll, 16x20 in., per quarter 1.00
 2. Group Pupils' Lesson Stories, Primary, per quarter07
 3. Group Lesson Pictures, per quarter..... .04

In making order, be explicit and name the quarter for which supplies are wanted; thus: first quarter, January to March; second quarter, April to June; third quarter, July to September; fourth quarter, October to December.

SEND ORDERS TO THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Minion Bold-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 7-8x 7 Inches, and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

2152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.75

India Paper Edition, Size 4 7-8x7 Inches, 1 1-10 Inches Thick.

2152X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$6.00

Bourgeois Type, Size 5 3-8x8 Inches, and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

2167—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold$4.00

2172—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold$4.50

2172A—Same as above, with Apocrypha.....$5.00

2173—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges$6.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3-4x3-8 inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3 3/4x5 3/8 Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps$2.50

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations. Special book for Sunday Schools95c

Minion Type, Pocket Size, 4x6 Inches, 1 1/2 Inches Thick.

With 32 full-colored illustrations; also 25 outline maps through the text and 12 colored maps.

133—Bound in cloth, round corners, red edges, title stamped on side in pure gold$1.60

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 15-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.00

Minion Black-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 3/4x 7 Inches, 1 1/2 Inches Thick.

Printed from clear, large, black-face type, 32 full-page illustrations in sepia and colors, 4,000 Questions and Answers, Harmony of the Gospels, How to Study the Sunday School Lesson, 25 outline Maps, 12 full-page colored Maps.

4152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold.....$3.25

AMERICAN STANDARD VERSION. TEXT BIBLES.

Printed from Easy-Reading Type, on Good Bible Paper, for Sunday School and Church Use.

Minion Type, Size 4x6 Inches, 1 1/2 Inches Thick, 25 Outline Maps, Bound in Black.

101—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, title stamped on back in pure gold...$1.10

112—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title on back in pure gold$2.75

India Paper Edition, Only 7/8-Inch Thick.

112X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.75

Reference and Text Bibles also in minion, brevier, bourgeois, long primer, pica and English type.

Thumb index cut on edge, 50c extra; name printed on any Bible in gold, 40c extra; extra wording, 40c per line.

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5 3/8x8 1/2 Inches and 1 3/8 Inches Thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With concise Bible dictionary, combined concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold$4.75

RED LETTER EDITION

With all the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands, title stamped on side and back in pure gold$3.25

Any of the above Bibles sent post paid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 E. Broad St., - - - Richmond, Virginia.

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

INTERNATIONAL UNIFORM SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE.

Lesson V—January 29, 1928.

THE GROWING FAME OF JESUS.

GOLDEN TEXT: "The common people heard Him gladly."—Mark 12:37.

LESSON: Mark 3:7-12, 6:53-56.

DEVOTIONAL READING: Isa. 60:1-5, 8, 9.

We can start out with one great fact—great crowds followed the Master. At this particular period of the Master's ministry, all that one had to do to find the Master was to "follow the crowd." People came from near and far, and the crowd became so large at one time that Jesus had to get into a boat and push off from shore a few feet in order to avoid being "thronged" or crushed by these eager to get to Him and touch Him, as well as to hear Him. The common people not only heard Him gladly, as the golden text states, but they followed Him in great numbers.

Why? To say that great crowds followed the Master is simply stating a fact. To tell why they followed Him is quite another thing. Several answers may be given. First of all, it might be said that many people, and perhaps a great many people, followed the Master simply out of curiosity. Here was a man who was doing mighty works. Here was a man who was being talked about more than any other man in that part of the world. It is no reflection on the people of Jesus' day to say that many people went after Him simply because of curiosity. There was something about the man and about his work that appealed to the instinctive curiosity in human nature. It is so today. There are people who go to Church, especially to special services, and above all to evangelistic services in which the evangelist is eccentric or sensational, simply, or at least in large part, out of curiosity. Many ministers capitalize this instinct of curiosity, and by announcing sensational topics or doing unusual things, they attract—usually for a while—many people who otherwise would not attend Church and who do not attend Church when the sensational factor is missing. It goes without saying, however, that Jesus did not adopt sensational methods or practice sensational things in order to get a crowd. As a matter of fact, He studiously avoided doing just that, and tried to keep away from the things that would mark Him simply as a worker of miracles.

Again, it might be said that people followed Jesus because they hoped to be healed. "They pressed upon Him that they might touch Him, and in some cases they aspired even to touch only the hem of His garment, for they believed that they would thereby be made whole. It is perhaps not unfair that their main interests was not in the Master at all, but in the fact that they could get relief from whatever afflicted them. This, too, was only human, for those who suffer are, and have a right to be, concerned in anything that will give them relief. But, alas! this group of people represents all too large a number of people who follow the Christ, or who belong to the Church for what they can get out rather than for what they can give.

Furthermore, this group represents that large number of people who are more concerned about physical health, relief from affliction of body more than spiritual health, relief from affliction of spirit through sin. There are men and women who are more concerned over a pain in their sides than they are over an unforgiving spirit or willful disobedience of God's laws. There are multitudes who spend hours in looking after their physical appearance and physical comfort who spend little or no time on the things of the spirit and health of soul. Thousands fear weak hearts more than they fear unclean hearts; hardened arteries more than hardened hearts—that is, hearts hardened against human sympathy and divine love.

Then there were those who followed Jesus because of gratitude. "For He had healed many." The Master Physician had ministered unto many, and they, out of a great gratitude, followed Him. Thank God, this is true of a great company whom no man can number today. There are millions who follow the Master, not only because He healed them of some physical disease—there are many who feel that the Master Himself gave them health and even brought them back from the brink of death—but because He has healed their diseases of the spirit; because He has ministered unto them through His grace, and they follow Him gladly and loyally out of a heart of gratitude and appreciation. When Paul said, "The love of Christ constraineth us," he was putting in simple terms the secret of the life of loyalty and service which characterizes so many of the followers of Christ.

Finally, there were those who followed the Master, not from idle curiosity, not because they hoped to get some material or physical benefit, not because He had healed them, but because of the sheer beauty and the attractiveness of His person and His personality. Jesus Christ is by far the world's most attractive person. There is something—ah! there are so many things—about Him that draw men to Him. And today, as then, there are millions who love Him and follow Him because of the beauty of His moral character and the fullness of His spirit. Now, as then, where the Master is held up so that men can see Him, He has the power to draw all men unto Him. What a challenge to minister and teacher and parents—to reveal the Christ so that others may be drawn unto Him!

One thing in conclusion: "As many as touched Him were made whole." The Master's ministry was a wayside ministry, with the personal touch. He went about doing good, and His doing good was characterized by that warm, personal touch which reached the hearts of men and made them whole. Whatever else may characterize our service, let us keep the personal touch, which is the heart and life of real service.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

February 5, 1928.

TOPIC: "What are the Values of Young People's Societies?"—Rcm. 12:3-11.

Suggestions.

Every effort should be made to make the meeting as fine as possible, as it is the celebration of Christian Endeavor's birthday (February 2, 1881, when first started). There are so many kinds of young people's societies now—Epworth League, B. Y. P. U., Luther League, etc.—but Christian Endeavor is mother of them all. The discussions of the values of Christian Endeavor should be entered into seriously because these discussions, entered into by hundreds of societies and thousands of young people at this time, should mean better Christian Endeavor work everywhere. Such a study should make C. E. mean more to the individual members, too.

The consecration meeting once each month, if properly conducted, will mean better members and a better society. It may be conducted differently many times, but should carry the note of deeper consecration to Christ and His work, and a society should never get away from the fact that this is its chief purpose.

February offers so many opportunities for socials—Valentine, Lincoln's Birthday, Washington's Birthday. It is mighty fine to bring the young people of the community together for a social during these long winter nights. An active C. E. is active the year around.

Since January and February are the months in which we are to stress the value of Elon and Bethlehem Colleges to our Church and to ourselves, and since college means so much to young people, every Christian Endeavor Society should co-operate with the Church in talking about our colleges and receiving the offering for them. If your Church has not put on a "College Day" program or observed the "Day of Prayer" for the colleges, your society could easily co-operate with the pastor in doing this some time during the month of February. Programs for the "Day of Prayer" have been prepared. Use old Elon and Bethlehem students on your program, or some one who is planning to go to one of these colleges. If it is impossible for you to make this program Church-wide, let the society plan and put on the program and invite the Church folks to attend. Don't forget the offering. Your colleges need your help.

Leader's Talk.

Christian Endeavor's motto of "For Christ and the Church" is so broad and far-reaching that it has given young people vision of service as well as what might be accomplished by working together. The broadness of this motto has meant renewed interest in spreading the gospel, both in the local Church and community and in the world at large.

Christian Endeavor has given young people a place in the Church—an opportunity for definite service and growth in the kingdom. Young people's workers date all active interest in organized young people's work from 1881, when Dr. Francis E. Clark called his young people together to do active work in his local Church—Portland, Me. Out of this movement have grown numerous organizations for young people, as well as methods for work and consideration of young people themselves.

What C. E. Has Meant to Young People.

There are hundreds of active Christians in this and other lands who say that they got their start in Christian work through the C. E. Society. Many of our ministers say this same thing. Mr. Hermon Eldredge, so active in Christian education in our Church, says he started in a C. E. Society. More than that, Miss Lucy Eldredge, his daughter and our young people's worker, says that her first work was done in a Christian Endeavor Society. There are hundreds of people who say the same thing.

It offers young people an opportunity to work together, which is most essential in Christian service. This is one of the big lessons Christians need to learn.

It affords young people a larger opportunity for service as the organized group can do more in study, service, along social lines and in every way than any one individual can do alone.

Training in speaking and leading meetings does not come with one attempt, nor even the second, but from working eternally at it. Christian Endeavor gives one the chance to think little by little, until it comes easy and natural.

Christian Endeavor has helped so many young people, through its pledge, to read the Bible more and to enjoy reading it more; to pray more earnestly, to study the life of Christ more, and to try to live Him in their daily lives—in other words, it has helped many to be better Christians. The Tithers' League has helped many to give more thoughtfully to the work of the Church.

In the Local Church.

Young people's societies have led the way to more active work in many local Churches. Some less active Churches have been rejuvenated by the work of young people in organized work. The young people active in C. E. most always become active in the Sunday School and other branches of the Church work.

In the Larger World.

Christian Endeavor has brought the young people of the various denominations together in such a friendly way that they are learning more about each other and find that they can work together. It is strengthening the spirit of unity among the Churches. The World C. E. Convention, in London in 1925, brought young people from many countries together as well as many denominations. The same thing happened in the World C. E. Convention, in Cleveland, in 1927.

It is impossible to estimate just what a large share in missions Christian Endeavor Societies and Christian Endeavorers are having. They are helping in numerous ways in every mission field, and at the same time many C. E. Societies are being organized in other lands.

PATTIE COGHILL.

NEED OF CHRISTIAN EDUCATION.

BY REV. F. C. LESTER.

We need Christian education because we are born ignorant. At birth I knew as much as Socrates, and was as wise as Solomon; but they learned faster in later years. Those who know things have to learn them. All babies are equally ignorant, and all need education.

They need education so they may survive among their fellows and be of use in the world. There is certainly something to the idea of "the survival of the fittest," for the weaklings are always getting crowded out. The big car takes the road and the little one gets pushed to the side. The wise get their say, while the simple simply talk. We all listen to the one further ahead, and count ourselves happy to be in front of some to whom we can speak with authority. If we are to lead, yes truly, if we are to travel along life's highway, we must be educated, trained, prepared.

We need Christian education because we are not born Christian. At birth, a Hickman is just as good as a Wesley. The one may be born into a Christian home and heritage, while the other is not; but neither of them is Christian. Either may become Christian through the process of education, or either may become a fiendish murderer through the same process.

But all must become Christian in order to survive in God's universe. The good and the bad grow together in earth's field, but soon the sickle is put in and the evil are cut down—sometimes in youth and young manhood. A separation is inevitable. Character counts; and character is the outgrowth of Christianity. Only those survive finally who have learned to be Christian or Christ-like. There is no other way. Christian is the only kind of character that is worth preserving throughout eternity.

Christian education is education with Christ at the center. And this is as it should be, for He is at the center of everything. "In the beginning was the Word (Christ), the Word was with God, and the Word was God. By Him was all things made." Jesus has always been at the center of the universe. To know Him is life, because He is the center of all life. Without Him we can do nothing. And yet we sometimes try to educate ourselves and our friends without Him. But it can't be done. All science leads to truth, and He is the Truth. Education that leaves Christ out is untrue to the best, and is injurious to those who get it. Every course offered in our colleges and universities simply point the way to Him who is the Truth, the Life and the Way. But not all teachers have realized it. That is why we must have Church colleges with select faculties, men and women who know not only the processes of life, but the ultimate goal as well.

And "we" are the ones who need Christian education. You need it, and I need it. The ignorant and the wise, the church and the unchurched, the rich and the poor, the high and the low, all kinds and classes of people need Christian education. We need to learn how to live so we will get the most happiness and give the most service in this world and will be worth saving to a better realm in the future. The real reason for getting a college education is not that one may earn more money, but that one may live a better life. The same rule applies to the study of books and magazines after college days are done. We need to keep company with the Miltons, Shakespeares, Brownings, Pauls, and others who have learned the secrets of life so that we may the better live. We, the members of the Churches scattered throughout the land, are the ones who need Christian education and who should set ourselves to the task of getting it.

In order to do this we need Christian colleges—colleges owned and controlled by the Church. The State does not officially recognize Christ. Education for the State centers in the earth, the sky, the past, the present, the future, mathematics, language, or literature, according to the whim of the teacher and the pupil. The Church college will study all the subjects offered in other schools, but it will center everything in Him who is at the center of everything.

And we are dependent upon our Christian colleges to discover truth and pass it on to us. They owe it to the Churches to give an education along Christian lines. They can see where we cannot. Our ignorance is their opportunity. Our minds are their laboratories. And our spirits are their gifts from God to be fitted for that "house not made with hands." These colleges of ours must take us—the ministers in the pulpits, the officials and the laity, the young and the old—and out of us try to make intelligent citizens of the kingdom of God.

It is no little task for the colleges. And we may not like the medicine. But we must pay the doctor. It may be a bitter pill for many of us, but we must take the medicine or else suffer the pangs of death. And we must pay the doctor.

January and February are the months in which to pay up, so the colleges can continue. That is all—except the pay!

Waverly, Va.

CONGREGATIONAL EXECUTIVES MEET.

The chief executive officers and boards of the Congregational Churches will hold their annual national conference at the Cooper-Carleton Hotel, Chicago, Sunday to Thursday, January 15-19, 1928. The deliberations will focus on the adoption of a plan for promotion of larger interest during 1928 on the part of individual Church members in the Church extension, educational, medical and social work of the denomination in this country and abroad.

Rev. Charles C. Merrill, D. D., of Chicago, secretary of promotion for the denomination's commission on missions and formerly superintendent of the Illinois Congregational Conference, will lead the discussions on the plan of promotion.

Rev. Charles Emerson Burton, D. D., of New York City, general secretary of the National Council of the Congregational Churches, will preach Sunday afternoon at the opening service of worship of the conference. The service will be conducted by Rev. E. R. Stearns, superintendent of the New Hampshire Congregational Conference.

The chaplain for daily devotional services will be Rev. Harley H. Gill, pastor of First Congregational Church, Sacramento, Calif., and a director of the home boards.

The officers who will attend the conference will include national secretaries and treasurers, superintendents of State conferences and secretaries of city mission societies.

A third of both the officers and the members of the boards will be women. The principal boards will be the directors of the Congregational home boards, the prudential committee of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, and the executive committee of the National Congregational Council. The home boards' directors and the prudential committee of the American board, together with a few others, will meet as the commission on missions.

WINDSOR, VA.

May I have space in THE SUN to tell how good the people of Bethlehem Church were to us Christmas? We were invited to an entertainment given in the Church the night of December 26th, which we accepted. I don't think I ever saw a better Christmas program. There is certainly an urgent need there for some one to help the young people to train their talents in the right direction. After the program was over, several packages were brought and placed on the rostrum. It was perfectly natural for them to be there at such a time, since the children were to each get a little package. But later I was informed that these packages were gifts from the people of the Church and friends who desired to pass on a little of the Christmas joy that filled their hearts to ours. Although I was taken off my guard, I was expected to make a speech. I could not make a speech, so I wish to thank these good people again. We have been feasting ever since, and we have most of two hams, seventeen cans of fruit, pickles, etc., and several pounds of sugar, some lard, etc., left, but the sausage was so good we were afraid it might ruin, so we ate it at once.

Grandfather told the story of how, in the Civil War, some of the men went without food so long that when they reached the place where they had free access to food, some of them ate so much of it that it actually killed them. However, I am not wise enough to tell which is worse, to have to pay a hospital bill or to be pounded until one's clothes shrink so much that it becomes necessary that he buy larger clothes. Both are expensive.

G. A. PEARCE.

TARBELL'S TEACHERS' GUIDE.

A commentary on the International Uniform Sunday School Lessons, 1928; the most complete and useful volume on the International Lessons ever written. It is designed for use by teachers and pupils of all grades from that above the primary up to and including Bible classes of all departments. It is nicely printed, in plain, open type, easy to read. Illustrated with diagrams, charts and paintings by celebrated artists. The price, postage prepaid, is $2.00 per copy. Send your orders to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 East Broad Street, Richmond, Va.

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY REV. H. E. ROUNTREE,
One of Our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"Call upon me, and I will answer thee, and shew thee great and mighty things, which thou knowest not."—Jeremiah 33:3.

MONDAY.

ASKING IN HIS NAME.

"Whatsoever ye shall ask in my name, that will I do."—John 14:13.

To ask in the name of any one is to use his name as a plea. It is to sink personal claims and to advance the claims and merits of another.

Christ lends us His name, all His personal influence with the Father. But in order to use this name we must be identified ourselves with the spirit and interests of Christ. We must depart from all that grieves His heart or hinders His purpose, and must be as sensitive as Christ Himself to all that affects the honor of His name.

We may ask all that is in Him. We may with full assurance ask God to give us Christ's purity, meekness, sympathy, faith, victory over the world. But God has not promised everything that we choose to ask. If Christ be the measure of prayer, can we pray to be relieved from what He had to bear, or to be endowed with possessions and comforts which were never His portion? If only Christ Himself were to become the burden of our prayers, then we should have all that we can receive or God can bestow.

Prayer.—Met as we are in Thy name, O Master, it is in vain unless we are also together with Thy Spirit. Move upon our hearts with Thy unifying power, that we may not be divided in our sins, our ambitions, or our desires. Grant us a unity of feeling to bind our common life together with sympathy. Amen.

TUESDAY.

IS THE WORLD GROWING BETTER.

Note how much folks are learning to obey the law, willingly and cheerfully. Note how much we acknowledge the fact that the law has the right to say "thou shalt not," or "thou shalt," concerning every common-place affair.

Note again how the people of the U. S. A. has responded to the Mississippi flood. They have poured out their hoarded money by the millions. Money is the servant of God and the servant of man, and in this we are laying it on the altar of God and humanity. It never disputes such a throne. Never in all the world has there been a charity comparable to it.

Note again how nations fraternize one another, how folks travel all over the world and back again in a few days. This means the opening of the doors of opportunity, some of them having been closed for ages by prejudices. Never before could these things be. What a wide, deep current it has wrought in the spirit of the world. With these and hundreds of other facts bespeaking a growing sense of brotherhood of man will come a new appreciation of the Fatherhood of God.

Prayer.—Our Father, we thank Thee that there are signs abroad of the growing brotherhood of man. Give us spiritual vision of these things and give us the grace and power to do our part for Thee. Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

GOD'S CHALLENGE TO US.

"Choose ye this day whom ye shall serve."—Josh. 24:15.

Every one comes to the time when many roads of life are before him and he is going to choose one. Which will he take?

They who wish to make their lives tell for something in life will face the question of life's choice in a fine mood and choose according to the finest things offered them. The way of wisdom, the way of love, the way of superior leadership and opportunities. God is wisdom, and He has said, "If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, who giveth to all liberally and upbraideth not."

God is love. He cares for you. He will make each what he ought to be. And Jesus is our Leader, who commands all the forces of the universe, who summons us to the great life of Christian brotherhood.

That is what the Church is for. It is the spring that feeds the soul and keeps ideals alive, and through it Jesus is waiting to give heaven's power to all who will choose His highway. Look not upon those who are false to the faith and turn the other way. There is more that is false in the other way. The great and good are found in the Church, and they are doing the work of the great and the good. Choose this way and be as great and as good as God will make you.

Prayer.—Our Father, help us all every day to choose right and Thee. Help us solve our problems, make right decisions and achieve grace and power in Christ. Amen.

THURSDAY.

MAKING GOOD.

"Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and with all thy strength."—Mark 12:30.

The first duty of Christ in His country was to establish Himself in the kingdom of God, and this He did by acknowledging the kingdom of God, declaring it and working for it. Apparently His second duty was to tell the people how to get on well and how that in so doing they too were like Him and of the kingdom of God. From then on, even to the last message of the ascension, He was blessing and showing the people how to get on well. His first message was to "seek ye first the kingdom of God"; and His last one reminded them of the first in which He spoke the message of the text. In this form, things are primary and paramount, viz: heart, soul, mind and body.

The heart is our passions and emotional nature, and we are to love with all our heart. With it we are to have the courage of resolute and undaunted fortitude, for He is our Helper. We are to have the perseverance of a strong man who is never utterly cast down and who forsaketh not the way.

The soul is that vital self that is principle expressed in kindness, goodness, nobleness, generosity, love, joy, peace, meekness; the spiritual side of man and with patience win these things.

With the mind we are to be intellect, have understanding and so get these that in thoughts, opinions, words, inclinations, desires, dispositions, will, purposes, may be disciplined to untiring characteristics that charms heaven and earth.

The strength is the body plus the influence of the heart, soul and mind, which is the greatest power of the world, and summed up in a person represents the ability of that one. It is with all the power of these that the Lord says we are to love Him. That is what we so much fail to do.

Prayer.—Our Father, teach us by the daily discipline of Thy own laws to love Thee and Thy way with the same passion and whole-heartedness that we love the things of the world. We desire and pray Thee that we may be among those that say Lord and mean it by doing Thy bidding. Forgive us, we pray Thee, and so bless us. Amen.

FRIDAY.

DO YOU MEAN IT?

"Why call me Lord, and do not what I say?"

During the war a man was singing at a banquet. At the close of the song he saluted the flag, and in his patriotic enthusiasm said: "Dear old flag, I would die for you." Three weeks later that man was convicted of an attempt to bribe some members of the city fathers. He was using his voice and his strength for his country, but the country was void of his heart and soul.

What we do is effective only as we put heart and soul to our mind and strength. A true patriot will love his flag with heart, soul, mind and strength. A true Christian does the same thing.

Prayer.—Our Father, we come to Thee seeking the kingdom of God and His righteousness, seeking to tune the fullness of all our being for Thee. Add to us what we lack. Amen.

SATURDAY.

THE BROTHERHOOD SPIRIT.

"Thou shalt not see thy brother's ox or his sheep go astray, and hide thyself from them . . . Thou shalt bring it unto thine own house . . ."—Deut. 22:1-2.

If the spirit of these words were carried out in our every-day life, the greatest revolution of time would be carried out, and the world would be better for it. One of the greatest curses the world has ever known is that of ignoring the rights of others. The great World War which has set the world back half a century or more was the outcome of this spirit which is satisfied with a negative attitude. Some men reason that if they refrain from doing things forbidden by the law, their fellow-citizens should thank them for their goodness. A book appeared a couple of years ago which claimed to be an exposition of the Golden Rule. Throughout its three hundred pages the writer set forth the idea that we should "not do unto the other man the things we would not wish to have done to us." This may sound good as far as it goes; but the Golden Rule of the Nazarene was positive in its nature, "Whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them."

If the very highest form of Christian life and activity is "but our reasonable service," what about those who skimp and strain themselves to get clear of being just plainly honest? We may talk of our boasted civilization and our legislators may enact laws to make the world better; but if we could get back to the simplicity of these verses it would become apparent that men had hearts of flesh instead of stone.

Prayer.—God of the pure in heart, reveal Thyself to us in the midst of the day's work, because what we do is honest and good. Let all fear of Thee depart, and all love for Thee take possession of us. So shall the work of our hands and the thought of our hearts be satisfying when evening comes. Amen.

SUNDAY.

THE UNFATHOMABLE LOVE.

"For God is love."—1 John 4:6.

The question, "Why did God create the universe and man?" persisted all the morning. It was still there when eyes grew heavy and sleep blurred the mind. But the query must have remained during the short doze in the chair. Waking, hands reached for a book and lo, opening, finger-tip fell upon the sentence, "For God is love!"

(Continued on Page 13.)

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

During the year 1927, the Christian Orphanage cared for one hundred children during the entire year. Of course, we have children going out and some coming in all through the year, but the general average was one hundred.

The calls have been so urgent and irresistible that nine fine little fellows have come to make their home with us recently. This now makes our number actually in the Orphanage at this writing one hundred and eight.

We have many touching appeals, and worthy, too, and it is hard to say no to them. We sometimes wish we had plenty of money. We would get so much joy out of it by helping the unfortunate.

Just last week we had an appeal to take three children from one of our Church communities where our Church has been as regular as the months come and go in sending in their monthly offerings. The mother of the children is in the hospital probably for the remainder of her life. The father died a few weeks ago. These bright little children were left without a father's protecting care and a mother to tenderly administer to their needs. Friends appealed to us to take them. Could you say no to them? We could not. They are happy and cheerful in the care of the Christian Orphanage today, and we hope some day to see them go out into the world to be useful citizens.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON,
Superintendent.

REPORT FOR JANUARY 26, 1928.

Brought forward $1,337.34

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

N. C. & Va. Conference:

Union, N. C. $ 2.55
Hines Chapel 8.00

10.55

Eastern N. C. Conference:

Wake Chapel $ 5.84
Christian Light 4.22
Shallow Well 2.42
Pleasant Hill (J)..... 2.65
United Christian, Raleigh 3.11
Sanford 3.83
Mebane 1.25
Mt. Auburn 8.49

31.81

Western N. C. Conference:

Zion $ 2.40
Burlington 45.90
Parks Cross Roads 1.22

49.52

Eastern Virginia Conference:

Berea, Nausemond $10.00
Cypress Chapel 6.94

16.94

Valley Virginia Conference:

Mt. Olivet (G) 1.52
Georgia and Alabama Conference:

North Highlands $ 1.00
Vanceville 1.52

2.52

Special Offerings.

M. Y. Wilson, support children... $20.00
Vanceville S. S., Ga. 2.26
C. D. Johnston, guardian..... 60.00
Mrs. Margaret Wilkins, McLeansville, N. C. 3.00

85.26

L. S. Holt endowment fund..... 150.00
Hines Chapel, add'l Thanksgiving off'g... 6.60

6.60

Grand total $1,692.06

HOPEWELL, VA.

For this God is our God forever and ever. He will be our Guide even unto death.—Psa. 48:14.

As we write this letter on the 18th day of January we recall that just one year ago tonight the first steps in the organization of the Christian Church at Hopewell were taken. We praise God that He has so richly blessed us in our endeavor to advance His kingdom in Hopewell.

The holiday season was observed by the Church in a Thanksgiving sermon on our national Thanksgiving Day, and during Christmas week a delightful Christmas program was rendered by the children of the Sunday School under the efficient direction of the superintendent of junior work, Miss Nina Black. Santa Claus presided over the Christmas tree and everybody was made happy.

The year of 1927 closed with a watch-night service in the temporary Church building and the New Year welcomed with prayer. It was a blessed service of praise, thanksgiving and consecration. We face the new year with a great faith in God that the coming year will find us doing a greater work for the kingdom in Hopewell. Our new Church building is the main consideration just now, as we are outgrowing our present quarters and we expect soon to see the building started.

Our Sunday School has had a total attendance of one hundred a number of times, and the present quarters are very inadequate for such a number. Besides the Sunday School, the other organizations of the Church are going forward with renewed zeal and an onward look for the coming year. The officers of the organizations have been re-elected in most instances. Our acting pastor, Rev. D. D. Nash, continues to bring us the soul-stirring messages we need, and we thank God that we have such a man among our members.

We have had many visitors from other fields since our last letter who have encouraged and blessed us with their messages. May God bless each and every one of them. Don't forget to pray for us, that we may let God have His way with us.

R. H. W.

(Continued from Page 12.)

And that is the answer. God shaped the world for man and made man because God would have children to love.

With the Scripture came also the remembrance of an incident that illustrates the verse. Nurses in Rittenhouse Square clustered in a group, talking. Their little charges were for the most part in baby carriages, but several were old enough to toddle on the grass. While the nurses talked, a woman passing through the square stopped and chatted with one of the children. What excitement there was when that child was missed!

Almost an hour later, just when the distraught nurse was reciting her story to a policeman, the woman returned carrying the baby. Trembling, her soul overawed by what she had done, the woman tearfully explained: "I am alone in the world. I was lonesome. I saw the little one and I felt that I must have some one to love just for a moment. I—I—I could not help it!" She hurried away, eyes suffused with tears, and yet glowing, for she had had opportunity for the outpouring of her love.

It is a faltering illustration. But God was lonesome. That will help us understand the why of many things.

Prayer.—Thy presence, O Divine Companion, we desire with heart and mind. Without it we are lonely, even when surrounded by the multitude. As we walk the busy streets, may we feel Thy friendship surrounding us, more real than any visible thing. And we will rejoice in that unseen but eternal Friend. Amen.

COMMUNION WARE

Individual Service

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A

Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses $7.00
Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses 6.75
Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses 6.50
Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim..... 1.60
No. 2—Broad rim 1.60

SILVER-PLATE

The Silver-Plated Ware is of the very lightest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.

Style No. 85

Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses $22.00
Base No. 1—Silver-plate; fits Silver Tray No. 85 11.00
Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85... 16.00
(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)

Style No. 90

Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses.
Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling) $22.00
Base No. 2—Silver-plate; fits Silver Tray 90... 16.00
Cover No. 4—Silver-plate; fits Silver Tray 90... 14.00

Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow rim $ 9.00
No. 4—Broad rim 9.00
Filler—Silver lined 6.00

Send Orders to THE CHRISTIAN SUN,

1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

UNIFY—"THY KINGDOM COME."

(Continued from page 3.)

in wisdom and in stature and favor with God and man."

For the Churches to become more efficient in the proper development of the youths of our country, they will necessarily be less in number. This is true with our schools and other lines of endeavor. Centralization is the tendency of the time. We have one public school now, where we used to have six or a dozen, but the one is doing more efficient work. The spirit of unity brings about efficiency. Distance used to separate people, but now highways and means of conveyance have brought people together, so that one efficient Church can serve many people to help them Godward. Notwithstanding the many changes that have been wrought in all lines and are being wrought, we believe that the world is growing better. History and experience of the human race give no place for the pessimist—the individual who claims the world is growing worse. To claim this is to deny God's supreme power over the devil.

It is true that current events as recorded in our daily newspapers would persuade us to believe at times that the human race is retrograding. But we must remember that the big red-head lines in our daily newspapers announcing divorces, assassins, suicides and wars are but daily reports of the death and funeral march of sin. The funeral procession creates more passing comment and attention than the marching of life. The former represents death and the latter life.

So do not be discouraged at the apparent evil world. Billions of dollars and millions of human lives were apparently sacrificed in the World War, but from this debris of chaotic misery sprang freedom and liberty, robed in garments more secure and more glorious.

The inheritance of the glories of the past places greater obligations upon each of us; obligations which are as binding and essential as life itself. The Master we serve will determine our efficiency in bringing about universal unity—"Thy kingdom come." First, we must not forget that each of us is serving a Master; second, that the life and efficiency of each individual is determined by the Master served. "Choose ye this day whom ye will serve." This decision is the A B C of the true Christian life. It is primary and fundamental.

In the choosing, we must remember that we only have a choice of one of two masters. We cannot serve two—"Ye cannot serve God and mammon." This would indicate that the human race is divided into two classes of servants—those that serve God and those that serve the devil. This is greatly true. "Wherefore, by their fruits ye shall know them." These two types of individuals are met with and recognized daily.

The greatest asset to human progress is the character that portrays in a man's life the principles and truths taught and lived by the great Nazarean Master. Such a character stands out as a great beacon-light among sin-tossed humanity, giving light and hope on the way. Contrasting this character with his opposite, namely: the individual who serves the evil one, and is so steeped in sin that his body, manner and mind bespeak misery and degradation, we would perhaps come to the conclusion that such a sin-dyed character would be one of the greatest stumbling-blocks in Christian progress. But not so. He is true to his master. He wears his master's colors. He is seen and recognized undisguised. He hangs his flag of deadly disease outside the door and is greatly quarantined. In this he should be complimented.

We are about to describe a third character: the character so beautifully and vividly described in the Bible—"Woe unto you scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites, for ye are like unto whited sepulchres, which indeed appear beautiful outward, but are within full of dead men's bones, and of all uncleanness. Even so ye also outwardly appear righteous unto men, but within ye are full of hypocrisy and iniquity." Such a character, to our mind, is the greatest hindrance to the progress of humanity. He is a deceiver. He spreads deadly poison in all relations of life. Humanity becomes contaminated by his presence unawares, and he, in his hellish disguise, sows seed of the inferno in his wake. He is a mongrel; he is a cur! May each of us be true to the master we serve. If for God, hang out the color; if for the devil, come across.

In the first instance, you will be a mighty force in bringing about "Thy kingdom come"—thus universal unity. In the second instance, you are not so liable to be a stumbling-block in her progress. Since our Master governs our lives and our efficiency for Christian progress, we should consider well whom we serve. Our masters not only govern our individual lives, but determine the progress of a nation. This truth was vividly portrayed in the rise and fall of the Northern Kingdom of Israel. Millions have studied the rise and fall of the Northern Kingdom of Israel, and mostly in terms of individual men and women. Some of these were noble characters and served the true God; others were disreputable characters and served false gods. When they worshiped false idols, their nation would ebb to the very edge of torment and destruction, but when they would turn their hearts and life to the true God, their nation would rise and flourish with prosperity, happiness and love.

"Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image, nor any likeness of anything that is in heaven above or that is in the water under the earth; thou shalt not bow down thyself unto them, nor serve them." Still, with this command, some bowed to false masters, and as result we have a sad story of "the downfall of Israel." "Righteousness exalteth a nation; but sin is a reproach to any people. Are we not choosing false gods,

OXFORD BIBLES

An Oxford $3.50
Teacher's Bible only 3

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

The best recommendation of the OXFORD TEACHER'S BIBLES is the fact that over 3,000,000 copies have been sold. The wonderful helps they contain save your time because they are alphabetically arranged, making reference easy. They take the place of many books about the Bible, and can be depended upon, being written by eminent scholars. The Helps contain 32 graphic illustrations, besides 15 beautifully colored maps. The text is the Authorized or King James version, with over 50,000 centre column references.

These Are Genuine OXFORD Teacher's BIBLES

EASY-TO-READ EDITION

Size 7 1/4 x 5 x 1 1/2 inches

— Specimen of Type —

17 And there was a very sore battle that day; and Abner was beaten,

Nos.
04451	Moroccoette, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges $3.50
04453	French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and handsome Bible 4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Same as above, but printed on the famous Oxford India paper used only in Oxford Bibles. Only one inch thick.

Nos.
0773x	French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition $7.50

RED LETTER EDITION

05453	As No. 04453 with words of Jesus Christ in red. The red letter feature adds greatly to one's understanding of the Bible 5.00
-------	--

Oxford India Paper Edition

05453x	Same as No. 0773x with words of Jesus Christ in red. A gift edition which is sure to please 8.00
--------	--

SELF-PRONOUNCING EDITION

All proper names and difficult words divided into syllables and accented so they may be correctly pronounced. Sizes 8 1/2 x 5 1/2 x 1 1/2 inches.

— Specimen of Type —

6 And A-hi'-shär, was over the household: and Ad-6-ni'-räm the son of Ab-dä was over the 'tri-

Nos.
04521	Moroccoette, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges $5.00
04523	French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A real student's Bible 6.00

Oxford India Paper Edition

Same as above, but printed on the famous Oxford India paper which is used only in Oxford Bibles. Only 1 1/4 inches thick.

C023x	French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A Bible of superior quality $9.00
-------	--

Improved Thumb Index on any style
at 50 cents extra

or masters, as of old? If so, woe unto us individually, and as a Church and as a nation! Perhaps some of us are slaves to our physical appetites and desires. The physical masters are many and numerous.

There is nothing more destructive to the human body and to Christian progress than being a slave to one's self. As a result of physical indulgence, we see slaves suffering with all manner of diseases, both mental and physical. I was traveling one morning alone on the sidewalk in Holy Head, Wales. Just across the street I observed a commotion—men, women and children were gathering on the sidewalk. I hastened across to see why the disturbance. I elbowed my way through the excited crowd and found a well-dressed young girl on the sidewalk in a fit of epilepsy, unconscious, with her body convulsed, her face almost black, chewing her tongue, and bloody, frothy material escaping from her puffy lips. Just at this time I observed an excited and anxious woman bending over her. The woman looked up—the story was told—her eyes were deformed from past inherited poisons; and this woman was the mother of the poor epileptic girl. One could see "the sins of the fathers visiting the children unto the third and fourth generation."

May each of us search ourselves for hidden masters. Let us ask ourselves what do we like best; what governs our thought. Such an object is our Master—is our God. "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." There is only one worthy Master—the true God. The others are false—are counterfeits. In the service of the former you find life—your true self; in the service of the latter you find disappointment and death.

Since this is true, may we renew our efforts to serve the true Master and hasten universal unity—"Thy kingdom come?" It is true that the progress of Christianity is at times apparently slow, but each of our Christian efforts will be stepping-stones that will lead us individually as a Church, as a community, and as a nation to God's kingdom on earth, and each of us will be as the shining light of old, "that will shine more and more unto the perfect day." And in the ending was God.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S RALLY.

Among the delegates sent to the Student Volunteer Movement convention, held during Christmas holidays, were some members of the Christian Church. Dr. W. P. Minton, our Foreign Mission Secretary, arranged for these delegates to have a banquet together on Friday evening, December 30th. Before going to the banquet table, the Christian Church folks met together and discussed how our Church work should fit into the task of the greater Church. During this meeting we became better acquainted with each other and learned each other's views and ideals.

The banquet was held in the Fort Wayne Hotel. Beside the delegates from Palmer, Defiance, and Elon, Dr. Minton and Dr. Morrow, of Detroit, enjoyed this, one of the many treats of Detroit days, with us.

JEWEL TRUITT.

Elon College, N. C.

POUNDED.

At an appointment at Apple's Chapel prior to Thanksgiving Day we were surprised to find our "Tin Lizzie" loaded with many good things, too numerous to mention. Some dollars were pinned on the steering-wheel and several others were handed to us as we were trying to escape. A like occurrence took place with us at Hines Chapel at a Thanksgiving service, altogether amounting to more than seventy-five dollars.

We are indeed thankful for these tokens of appreciation, and sincerely hope we may be able to render better service in the future than heretofore, praying the Lord's blessings upon each of these good people who gave us these pleasant surprises.

T. J. GREEN.

NEWPORT NEWS, VA.

The Men's Bible Class of the Newport News Christian Church has challenged the Men's Bible Class of the Beale Heights Presbyterian Church, of Lawton, Okla., for a five-week contest. Each class, while endeavoring to outnumber the other, will also strive to set a new record for Bible class attendance in their respective States. The Staley Class being the young people's class of the Newport News Church, plans to enter a similar contest with a young people's class of Takoma, Wash. Further developments of the contest will be published in THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

M. F. ALLEN.

OUR HONORARY SUBSCRIPTION LIST.

(Our official goal is 500. Please report promptly and help us to reach it.—Ed.)

Previously acknowledged	77
Miss Bertha Kratzer, Linville, Va.....	3
Rev. W. C. Carpenter, Ambrose, Ga.....	5
Rev. J. F. Apple, Elon College, N. C.....	1
Total	86

ELON COLLEGE

CO-EDUCATIONAL

SECOND SEMESTER OPENS JANUARY 4, 1928

A few additional Students may be accommodated at that time, preferably members of the Christian Church.

SOME OF THE ELON COLLEGE BUILDINGS

ELON COLLEGE offers superior educational advantages to the members of the Christian Church. The buildings are new, equipment new and of the very best type, laboratory facilities equal to any college in the South; member of the Southern Association of Colleges, strong Christian faculty, and fine Christian atmosphere prevailing on the campus. Special courses in religious education and Christian work are offered to train laymen and ministers in the work of our denomination.

For Catalogue and View-Books, address

C. M. CANNON REGISTRAR,

ELON COLLEGE,

NORTH CAROLINA

"Christian Character First and Always at Elon College"

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rve. Daniel W. Kerr.

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Christian Church.

BOARD OF EDITORS

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D. Editor
W. W. STALEY, D. D. Associate
W. A. HARPER, LL.D. Associate
REV. S. C. HARRELL, Associate
R. C. HELFENSTEIN, D. D. Associate
REV. S. M. LYNAM, News Editor
P. J. KERNODLE, Managing Editor

Subscription Rates

One Year$2.00
Six Months 1.00

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT
RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Post-office at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows the date of expiration. Change in the label will appear on wrapper the first week of month following renewal, provided it is received before the 25th.

Change of Address: Give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

When subscriptions are made for friends, state whether paper is to be stopped at end of the year.

Remittances: Make all remittances for subscriptions and renewals to "Editor Christian Sun," Elon College, N. C.

Remittances for advertising and other business matters will be addressed to the "Managing Editor," 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond, Va.

Advertising Rates: "Want Ads," 2 cents a word an insertion. Display rates quoted upon request.

Notices: Obituary and Marriage notices, limited to 100 words, are published free of charge. All over 100 words, at 1 cent a word. Remittance should accompany copy. Write names distinctly.

SMITH—ELLINGTON.

Mr. Julian Smith and Miss Annie Ellington were united in marriage in the Henderson Christian Church on December 21, 1927, in the presence of a few relatives and friends. Mr. and Mrs. Smith are popular young people of the Babbitt community, and they have the best wishes of their many friends. The ceremony was performed by the writer.

H. E. CRUTCHFIELD.

BUSICK—HUFFINES.

On New Year's Day Mr. Cecil Busick and Miss Zula Huffines were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Huffines, Altamahaw, N. C., in the presence of a company of friends and relatives. Both are members of Apple's Chapel Church, and are popular in their Church and community. After the ceremony, the guests were invited to the dining-room, where a sumptuous dinner was served. Many friends wish them happiness.

T. J. GREEN.

TATE—ALLRED.

On December 25, 1927, Miss Maggie M. Allred became the bride of Mr. John Allen Tate. Mr. Tate is the son of Mrs. Sallie Tate, and Mrs. Maggie M. Tate is the accomplished daughter of Mr. W. B. Allred, both of Caswell County. These young people are popular and highly esteemed by their neighbors and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Tate are loyal, active and influential members of Concord Christian Church. Only a few intimate friends witnessed the ceremony. Immediately following the wedding they motored to the bridegroom's mother, where a sumptuous supper awaited them. They will make their future home in their native community. Their many friends wish them well. May a long, happy and peaceful life be theirs, attended with blessings of our Heavenly Father.

L. L. WYRICK.

WANTED TO SELL

A Tract of Land, about 25 acres, 2½ miles south of Elon College, near a new graded road, suitable for a small dairy, pig, or poultry farm. For price and terms, apply to

W. T. NOAH
Elon College, N. C.

OXFORD TEACHERS' BIBLES

An Oxford Teachers' Bible has references and 300 pages of helps that are a mine of information to Bible students. The helps are arranged in alphabetical order, like a dictionary. They are accurate, comprehensive and up-to-date. A few styles are listed here. Many others are described in our Bible catalogue, mailed upon request.

04403 [This size print] Bound in French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, size 6½ x 4½ inches$4.00

0623x [Same Bible as 04403] Printed on Oxford India paper. Only 1 inch thick.....$6.00

04453 [This size print] French Morocco leather binding, overlapping covers, 7¼ x 5 in. $4.35

0773x [Same Bible as 04453] Printed on Oxford India paper. A remarkably thin and light Bible. (Only 1 inch thick)$7.75

05453 [Same Bible as 04453] With the words of Jesus Christ printed in red$6.25

05453x [Same Bible as 0773x] With the words of Jesus Christ printed in red$8.75

04523 [This size print] A self-pronouncing Oxford Bible. Bound in French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, size 8½ x 5½ inches... $5.50

0923x [Same Bible as 04523] Printed on Oxford India paper, only 1½ inches thick.....$9.75

ORDER FROM

"THE CHRISTIAN SUN"

Richmond, Va.

BETHLEHEM COLLEGE

WADLEY, ALABAMA

A JUNIOR COLLEGE AND HIGH SCHOOL.

Where Opportunity Awaits the Student of Very Limited Means.

GIRL'S DORMITORY.

Bethlehem College, Wadley, Ala., will open September 5, 1927. This institution is a Junior College and High School, which is co-educational, where scholarship ranks high and expense is low. It is thoroughly Christian, absolutely non-sectarian, and vitally American. A school where opportunity awaits the student of very limited means—$68.00 pays all college expenses, except books, board and room. Board, $15.00 per month, and room $3.00; total expenses for a term of nine months, $250.00.

Bethlehem College is training some of the best stock of America for Christian leadership, to be used by the nation and the world. Here is a great challenge and asset for students who wish to prepare themselves to serve in a worth-while way. The work on the new Administration Building is progressing nicely, and we will be able to begin our college work in this building when school opens this fall.

For catalog and other information, address S. L. Beougher, President.

HOLMAN BIBLES

FOR CHILDREN

PICTORIAL BIBLES WITH HELPS

The text is self-pronouncing, by the aid of which children can learn to pronounce the difficult Scripture proper names.

Specimen of Type

27 And the boys grew: and Esau was a cunning hunter.
5 And the streets of the city shall be full of boys and girls playing in the streets thereof.

Size, 5½ x 3½ inches. With beautiful photo views of scenes in Bible lands distributed throughout the text. Also maps of Bible lands in colors. Also new Practical Helps to Bible Study, especially designed for instructing children in scriptural information.

No. 9111. French Seal Leather, overlapping covers, round corners, gold edges, gold titles.

Our Price—Post Paid 2.30

COLORS PICTURE EDITION

Portraying in natural colors, scenes and places taken from nature and life in the Holy Land.

No. 9211. Same as No. 9111, but with Beautifully Colored Pictures.

Our Price—Post Paid 2.40

FOR INTERMEDIATE SUNDAY-SCHOOL SCHOLARS

Large Clear Black Type, Self-Pronouncing, containing Helps to Bible Study, 1000 Questions and Answers, Maps in Colors, and Presentation Page. A Beautiful Gift Bible.

Specimen of Type.

22 And the prophet Is-ra-el, and said unto thyself, and mark, and for at the return of t

Size, 7 x 5 inches.

No. 215. Divinity Circuit Style, Bound in French Seal Leather, round corners, red under gold edges, with silk head bands and purple silk marker, gold titles, etc.

Our Price—Post Paid 3.10

No. 3215RL. Red Letter Scholars' Bible, same Bible as No. 215, with all the Sayings of Christ printed in Red, and with Red and gold INLaid PANEL SIDE TITLES, also Beautifully Colored Pictures.

Our Price—Post Paid 3.45

Holman Self-Pronouncing

VEST POCKET TESTAMENTS

Clearer Print in Smallest Size
4½ x 2½ x ¾ inches

Specimen of Type.
AND the third day there was a marriage in Cana of Galilee; and the mother of Jesus was

2133K. Bound in durable Morocco Grain Semble Leather, flexible limp, gilt titles60

2113. French Morocco, genuine leather, flexible limp, gold titles, rounded corners, gold edges..... .70

2115P. French Morocco, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, with the Book of Psalms included$1.10

ILLUSTRATED VEST POCKET TESTAMENT

With Pictures of Holy Land Scenes

2814. French Morocco, limp, gold side title round corners, red under gold edges85

RED LETTER VEST POCKET TESTAMENT

With all the words of our Lord printed in red.

13RL. French Morocco, flexible limp, gold side title on red panel, gold edges. .85

15RLP. French Morocco, overlapping covers, flexible, gold side title on red panel, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included$1.25

INDIA PAPER VEST POCKET TESTAMENT

Thin as a Wafer

2136XP. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, with Psalms included$2.25

Send Your Orders to

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 E. Broad Street

RICHMOND - VIRGINIA

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Official Organ of the Southern Christian Convention.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXX.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 2, 1928.

NUMBER 5.

THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY

By REV. S. M. LYNAM.

A Long Job.—

William Patterson, Belfast, Ireland, has just retired from a position in the yarn mills of that city. Mr. Patterson had worked for sixty-three years in the mills, and during that long period of time he did not miss a single working day. This is a most remarkable achievement, and Mr. Patterson deserves a rest for the old age.

Costs.—

According to reports, it cost one billion and eighty million dollars to run the city of New York. This is an increase of ninety-seven million dollars over the previous year, and the total is more than the entire cost of running the Italian government. This latter statement conveys some idea of the vast cost involved in the running of the city.

Disease.—

It is always interesting to read vital statistics and to know those diseases which are claiming most victims. During 1926, heart disease killed more Americans than any other disease, and pneumonia ranks second in fatalities. Every precaution should be taken to reduce deaths from heart disease, and with proper care pneumonia could be relegated to the negligible troubles of human-kind.

Happy Christmas for Somebody.—

It is interesting to note that within ten days before Christmas 234 thousand money-orders reached Ireland from the United States. These money-orders involved about two and one-half million dollars. Most of this amount was undoubtedly gifts from Irish friends in America, and with that much money passing into a small country like Ireland within ten days must have meant a happy Christmas for somebody in the Emerald Isle.

In Ten Years.—

The Census Department of the United States has recently been studying the crime statistics of 250 leading American cities. Among other things that were learned was that in 1916 the maintenance of police forces and criminal courts cost about three dollars per capita, while in 1926 the cost had mounted to nearly six dollars per capita. The total cost of maintenance, the study reveals, was 238 million dollars.

Baptists and Methodists.—

For a number of years the Baptists and the Methodists have been running neck and neck in the race for numbers. A few weeks ago the Baptists claimed that the first place had been definitely won by themselves. They have about 11,000,- 000 members, taken the world around, but the latest report shows that the Methodists have sprinted ahead of the Baptists, with a total membership of 11,789,185. But The Baptist, Chicago, is not the least bit jealous about this and wishes the Methodists a Happy New Year.

Height.—

An Italian aviator, Renato Donati, has just set a new world's altitude record for aeroplanes. He flew his plane to the height of 38,802 feet, which is more than seven miles, and is more than 328 feet higher than the next record made by an American flyer, Lieutenant C. C. Champion. About forty-four thousand feet is the highest altitude ever recorded by human instruments, and the balloonist who was in the balloon at the time died before the height was reached.

Honesty.—

Twenty years ago, Reuben H. Donnelly, a publisher, failed in business, and his firm paid 27 cents on the dollar. This sort of thing is done frequently, and it is considered legally honest. Not long ago, Mr. Donnelly, who had become a most successful business man, looked up all his creditors and paid them in full with interest. The sum he gave them amounted to more than six hundred thousand dollars. Mr. Donnelly typifies a fine quality of honesty so much needed.

Tax Reports.—

According to reports issued by the United States government, 228 people in the United States had incomes of a million dollars or more during 1927. The total incomes of these 228 Americans was 490 million dollars. This is a vast sum of money to flow into the hands of 228 men and women, and meditation upon such things by the man or woman whose life is hedged about by poverty and want, and who knows what it means to be hungry and see those he loves hungry, makes Communists and Socialists. Such thinking makes men desperate, and unbalances them in their relations to others.

A Peace Prize.—

The Noble peace prize has been awarded jointly to a German and a Frenchman. This brings together two nations which are none too friendly, and should unite them in thinking of world peace. The award was made to Prof. Ludwig Quidde, of the University of Munich, Germany, and to Prof. Ferdinand Buisson, of France. Both these men have spent the larger part of their lives studying and working for world peace. Prof. Quidde is seventy years old, and Prof. Buisson is eighty-seven. The world needs more men in every land who will devote themselves to the propagation of the thought of universal peace until it comes to permeate the minds of all men.

Music for Christmas.—

The radio has done many splendid things for the general public. It makes available much of the best in music for those in remote places where to hear it would be impossible. Last Christmas the broadcasting stations all over the country sent out the old familiar Christmas carols to the world sung by some of the best choirs in the country. Away up in Labrador the MacMillan party heard the carols. And there, amid the ice and snow of the far, frozen North, those explorers were permitted to share in the Christmas gladness and praise of the folk at home. They need not now be cut off from the world, as were those first men who ventured into the vast white spaces of the cold North.

Secretary's Estimates.—

The total crop values in cash for crops grown in the United States during 1927, estimates Secretary of Agriculture William M. Jardine, is $9,114,485,000, which is $676,388,000 more than the total crop values for 1926. The values of the various crops grown in the United States is not given, but the States are listed in their ranking in the cash value of their crops. Texas leads, and is followed by Iowa, California, Nebraska, Kansas, North Carolina, and Minnesota, in the order named. In spite of the fact that there is a continual flow of the population from rural to urban centers, the value of the farm products continues to mount at a rapid rate, which might indicate that not so many people are needed to do the work of the farm as formerly, and this fact may account for the changes taking place rather than those unworthy promptings attributed so frequently to the younger generation of the country.

Lending to Latin-America.—

For the last two years the offerings of Latin-America securities to the United States public have been large and increasing. With the floating of the fifty million dollar loan to Peru, the total loans to Latin-American governments for 1927 amount to a par value of $335,360,300, which was a high record mark. In 1926 the offerings of such securities also made a record. It amounted to $317,208,200. It is interesting to recall that in 1914 the loans to all the Latin-American governments amounted to less than fifteen million, and during the next six years when Europe was borrowing so heavily here, those countries borrowed in the six years, 1915 to 1920, inclusive, only $125,000,000, or a little more than one-third of the amount borrowed this year. With these borrowed funds, the Latin-American countries are making vast strides forward, and with their steady advance the Latin-American market will be a most valuable outlet for American goods.

NOTES-PERSONALS

Rev. F. C. Lester preached at Elon College on Sunday morning, the 29th. He delivered an excellent message.

Dean E. D. Roper, Duke University, and Dr. Thos. F. Opie, Burlington, brought helpful messages on "Christian Union" to the Ministers' Conference.

Mrs. W. D. Harward, Windsor, Va.; Mrs. J. W. Fix, Franklin, Va.; Mrs. G. A. Pearce, Windsor, Va., were pleasant visitors to the college during the past week.

Elsewhere in this issue will be found an account of the Ministers' Conference by Rev. H. S. Hardcastle, and two resolutions that were adopted by the Ministers' Conference.

Prof. L. L. Vaughan, of Raleigh, and Miss Chase, director of religious education in the United Church of Raleigh, and Miss Pattie Coghill were visitors to the Pastors' Conference.

It is a pleasure to print elsewhere the address that Bro. J. M. Darden gave to the Pastors' Conference. This consecrated layman was talking straight from the shoulder. We have no man more devoted to our Church than Bro. Darden, and what he says always comes from the heart.

Dr. I. W. Johnson had fully intended to be present at the Ministers' Conference, but had two weddings which prevented his coming. Our "marrying parson" is no doubt serving the kingdom in his efforts at tying knots. It would have been a real pleasure to his brethren to have had the advice and counsel of Dr. Johnson.

Deacon John H. Harris, of our Wakefield Church, has been a patron of Elon College for many years, and throughout his life a liberal supporter. He came up to the Ministers' Conference with his pastor, Rev. C. E. Gerringer, who lives here. It was Bro. Harris' first visit to Elon. He was delighted, he said, with what he saw.

Rev. M. F. Allen, Rev. J. S. Garden, Rev. R. H. Coble, Rev. W. N. Hayes, Rev. H. V. Cox, Rev. J. D. Dollar and Rev. A. H. Sheppard were prevented by illness personally or in their families from attending the Ministers' Conference. These brethren had fully intended to be present at the Ministers' Conference. It is a real sorrow to have missed them.

The friends of Col. and Mrs. M. L. Gray, of Margarettsville, N. C., will sympathize with them deeply in the loss of their little son from diphtheria on Sunday evening, January 22nd. The little fellow was given every attention known to medical science, but passed away in the hospital at Roanoke Rapids, N. C. His little form was laid to rest in the cemetery at Waverly, Va.

The Virginia Sunday School Association, on January 18th, was reorganized according to the new plan into the Virginia Council of Religious Education. The Christian Church in Virginia has two members on this council—Mr. J. F. West, Jr., Waverly, Va., our elective representative, and Dr. L. E. Smith, Norfolk, Va., territorial representative. We wish the new council every success.

Dr. J. Edward Kirby, pastor of the United Church of Raleigh, was a pleasant visitor to the Ministers' Conference. He said he had attended many conferences of ministers in the Congregational Church, but had never met a group of men who measured up so well as a whole in any Church as the group of ministers who assembled at Elon the past week. Dr. Kirby said, "This is not a compliment, but a fact."

The brotherhood will deeply sympathize with Prof. S. A. Bennett in the death of his father, Rev. S. D. Bennett, Jeffersonville, Ohio. Prof. Bennett reached his father's bedside just before his death, and was recognized. Rev. S. D. Bennett was a faithful, consecrated servant of the Church and the kingdom. He preached on Sunday prior to his death on Friday. A great and good man has gone to his reward.

The readers of THE SUN will be glad to know that Dr. Atkinson has so far improved that on February 1st he and Dr. Staley started on a journey to Florida, where Dr. Atkinson will rest and recuperate for some time. His physician assures us that he has no organic trouble and that rest in the warm climate of Florida will restore him speedily to complete health and strength. The brotherhood will join in prayer that Dr. Atkinson may soon return to his post.

Rev. H. W. Elder is in the hospital at Plains, Ga. He is comfortably cared for in the hospital, but is in need of funds to pay expenses there. Bro. Elder has done a great work in the Christian Church, and those who have in mind to do good with their funds could certainly do no better than to send this afflicted servant of our Master a check at this time. This suggestion is made without any suggestion from Bro. Elder, who is too sick to write.

The Chautauqua and Summer School of Christian Methods, according to present plans, will be held at the college this summer, beginning July 23rd and closing on the 30th. It will begin on Saturday night and close on Friday following. At least, this is the date that has been tentatively fixed upon. Dr. C. H. Rowland is chairman of the committee of the Board of Religious Education, and Miss Pattie Coghill is field secretary. They are planning for a great meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Davis delighted the Ministers' Conference with a sacred concert. Bro. J. M. Darden is in charge of their engagements. They are anxious to serve our Churches, either with special sacred concerts or in revival services, and certainly any Church would do well to make use of the services of these two consecrated people. On Sunday, January 29th, Mr. and Mrs. Davis gave a concert in the morning at the Graham Providence Memorial Church, and at night at the First Christian Church of Burlington.

The Elon College Church Bulletin of January 29th carried the following notice, expressing the appreciation of the local Church of the Ministers' Conference held at the college the past week: "Elon College has probably never enjoyed a more helpful experience than that through which she has just passed. The Pastors' Conference has been a very decided success. It cannot but prove helpful to the whole Church. A veritable week of feasting has been enjoyed. Spiritual feasting, a social good time together, rare entertainment privileges made most delightful by thorough co-operation, physical needs abundantly satisfied. It has been a real family reunion, made the more enjoyable by the presence of most appreciative intimate friends. The heart of Mother Elon was made happy by the presence of those whose visitations have been regular and whose attentions have been constant and peculiarly so by the visitation of these dearly loved whom she has rarely had the pleasure of seeing. The joy was not complete. The attendance was only representative. Many whom she loves and by whom she is loved were prevented from coming. A few consecrated laymen were with us. A most helpful and practical message was brought to our conference by the one who made possible the beautiful auditorium in which we met, Bro. Jack Darden. Our college, our Church, our Orphanage, our homes, and, we trust, our ministers have had a privilege so rare, so beneficial, so inspirational that it cannot soon be forgotten. A going forward will be experienced all along the line. The command of Christ, 'Follow me,' will be heard more clearly and obeyed more faithfully."

A PRAYER FOR OUR COLLEGES.

BY REV. G. O. LANKFORD.

O God, we recognize Thee as our Father and ourselves as Thy children. Upon us is the evidence of Thy goodness and the crown of Thy glory. Thou hast so made us and art so ruling over our lives that we may find our highest self-realization, and come to our highest self-expression in Thee.

Thou art the God of all knowledge, and in Thee the fullness of wisdom is found. From Thee issues the streams of light and truth for our guidance in life's way. As an agency for the promotion of Thy kingdom, Thou hast given us Christian colleges that are dedicated to the service of preparing a worthy Christian leadership in the Church and for the Church. For every gift of Thine, and especially for the gift of Christian education and Christian colleges, we express sincere gratitude and humble, earnest praise.

We earnestly offer our prayer for our colleges because of their need of Thee for Divine guidance, and because of their need of us for human support. May our colleges ever serve the interests of the kingdom in the largest possible way. Through these institutions may Thy will be more fully wrought, and Thy kingdom more fully brought into the life of the world. Let Divine wisdom come increasingly upon the trustees and administrative officers, that their leadership at all times shall be far-sighted, thoroughly constructive and enthusiastically Christ-like. May Thy vision be their vision, and Thy plan their plan. May the faculty members, one and all, find in the Great Teacher their source of truth, their ideals of character, and their way of life. And more and more, as the years hasten on, grant the young people who shall attend our colleges that touch and preparation that shall send them out to fulfill Thy program of life. May our young people discover Thee in themselves and themselves in Thee.

And as we pray, our Father, we make earnest petition to Thee for our Churches to which the colleges must look for encouragement and support, that our people throughout the Convention may be awakened and aroused to a sense of the need that is before us and the responsibility that is upon us, as never before. Grant to Thy servants, the pastors of our Churches, that breadth of vision, depth of interest, degree of loyalty, measure of courage and type of approach that will enable them so to present the call that is now upon us that the laity of the Church may be moved to a full sense of the reality of its stewardship toward our educational institutions. May the response to the call for funds at this time be such that our colleges shall be enabled to go forward unhindered in their most worthy work. May it please Thee, more and more, to release Thyself and Thy message of truth through the colleges for which we now offer the prayer of our hearts, in Jesus' name. Amen.

Burlington, N. C.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

CONSIDERING ONE ANOTHER.

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Preacher.

"And let us consider one another to provoke unto love and good works; not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another; and so much the more as ye see the day approaching."—Heb. 10:24, 25.

You have invested a week of your pastor's time and efforts in the recent Pastors' Conference at Elon College, and you have a right to know something about it. Since it was distinctly the business of the Church and of Christ in which we were engaged, I feel that it is altogether fitting that we take this opportunity to observe its scriptural and spiritual application. By the time our text from Hebrews was written, a number of Churches had been established, many were being established, and many individuals had embarked upon the exacting business of preaching the cross of Christ. They had been given the assurance of the abiding presence of Jesus; they were now being commanded to seek also at regular intervals the presence of one another. Without Christ they could do nothing; but greater works than He had done might they do, only if they went in His will and co-operated with one another. And consequently, it is the testimony of the centuries that assembling together to consider one another to provoke to love and good works had been a very large element of success wherever Churches and communions have been successful in promoting the gospel of Jesus Christ.

Let the people quit going to Church, and immediately its power is gone. Let a board of directors of any great organization fail to assemble and soon its doors are closed. Let a pastor persistently absent himself from the gatherings of his brethren, and soon he is without power and place in the building up of the kingdom of God. Let a denomination forget this command, and soon it will be left to ponder its defeat while others are "marching on to Zion." Some good laymen, we are told, saw this truth, and like the writer of the Hebrews called his brethren in the ministry together in order that they might "consider one another to provoke unto love and good works." This layman went a step further, for he bore the expenses of all the pastors who would come to the conference.

Who were there? The ministers of the Eastern Virginia Conference were conspicuous for their presence. This was not surprising, for the ministers of the Churches in this Conference have people that urge them to improve themselves, and the Church in every possible way. The ministers of this Conference rejoice in the opportunity of meeting and seeing their fellow-workers. At our regular monthly pastors' conference we have more than seventy-five per cent of all our pastors present, and last meeting we had twenty out of twenty-two present. There was a fine, large number of pastors from the North Carolina Conferences present, and a goodly group from the far South. There were more of our pastors present at this conference, I believe, than have ever been assembled before at one place and time. Just that fact was significant. It was a sight to make one's heart rejoice to sit in the most beautiful chapel of Elon and see some sixty of the ministers of our Southern Convention there assembled. They were gathered from Maryland to Alabama, from large pastorates and from little, from big country Churches and little city missions, and from some of the greatest pulpits of the South. They were the assembled representatives of some thirty thousand members of the Christian Church. It seemed that every pastor was proud of his field and of the fine folks that made his life useful. How radiant their faces were with that best of all commodities, Christian love.

There are two outstanding mountain peaks in the Bible, one of them in the Old Testament, the other in the New. From one of them Moses, with the eternal law of God in his hand, gave a command that set Israel at a task that required all their resources, namely: "teach"; from the other, Jesus Christ, with the eternal love of God in His breast, gave the self-same command, "Go, teach." The Hebrew religion moved forward on the word "teach," and the Church of Christ must move on the same word. So all Churches have their Sunday Schools, or nearly all; they have their colleges, and seminaries, and the whole school world knows full well that it was born in the bosom of God and manifested and preserved by the Church. What I am about to say, then, is: Elon College was there. And President Beougher, of Bethlehem College, was there. Most of the members of the Elon faculty I have the great privilege of knowing personally and warmly, and I wish to say that there was a light and a radiancy in their faces that indicated beyond their words to tell that they were happy to have the pastors of the Churches present in their place of hard, daily toil. They knew that they stood side by side in spirit, in hope, and in effort one with another, for while they are teachers in our big Elon, every pastor worthy of the name is president and professor of a little college of Christ right in the field from whence he came! Thousands of little folks get their first impressions of God where preachers teach; and young teeming hundreds look to them constantly for the greatest truth ever taught the world, namely: the truth of Him who said, "I am the way, the truth, and the life." Old people never cease to learn in the school where little children are by their preachers taught. So these professors mingled with us as a real part of us, and were so received.

But perhaps greater still was the fact that four hundred selected young students sat with us in many of our meetings, conscious of the fact that the very pastors who had had much to do in the directing of their feet toward Elon were with them—and with them in far more ways than one. The students joined with the professors in seeking to make that the happiest meeting Christian Church pastors had ever had. The preacher that does not go back to his pulpit with a finer faith than ever before in his young people missed one of the greatest truths of that conference. Some of our leading laymen were also present, which fact greatly delighted and benefited the conference.

Why were they there? In telling who were there, if I have not already answered this question in part, then I have done it poorly. Why were we there? Our text tells. First, "to consider one another"; to forget ourselves in consideration of others; to consider what, as a Church, we have; to determine what our duty is, and where it is, in the building up of the kingdom through our Church; to consider that great fact that beside us stand our brethren, solidly for us and the work we are each trying to do; and to comfort and strengthen one another with words of love and prayer and Scripture. Many of us, a great many of us, were there to see our own alma mater, arisen out of her ashes of five years ago! We were there to see her in operation and to feel the pulse-beat of the heart of the source of our leadership through the years to come. We were not disappointed. Nay, our hearts rejoiced within us, and tears of joy flowed upon our faces as we saw fully the fruit of labors of hundreds and hundreds of loving and loyal hearts. Examine the pictures you see placed here and there throughout this Church to get something of an idea of what we saw.

"To provoke to love," was our second task—to love for one another; love for our whole Church and its every interest; and love for Christ Jesus, the Head of our Church. "Though I give my body to be burned and have not love, it profiteth me nothing." Charlie Johnston would like our money for the Orphanage, which we saw with such real satisfaction, but Bro. Johnston had much rather have our real love for those motherless and fatherless children there. We saw the home of the Southern Christian Convention, the Mission Board, THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and our Elon; but what each of these wants is not simply that we be provoked to pay, but "provoked to love," for "love never faileth." So, then, we were there to quicken our love for our Church, our colleges, our Orphanage, our CHRISTIAN SUN, our missions; yea, our whole place in God's kingdom. What nobler task could have been set before us?

But to know, and to love, must be headed up in real service; therefore our text adds, "and good works." We may have ever so much faith, but without works it is dead. We may have faith enough to remove mountains, but if it is not manifested in loving service it is nothing. If I do not do better work for you on account of having gone to Elon, then my going to Elon is in vain. Elon is not a sponge. Elon is a fountain. Elon did not have us come to her to give her something; but Elon had us come to her in order that she might send something to you. We are emissaries entrusted with her love, her consecration, her scholarship, and her labors. She has served every Church in this whole Convention and countless others. She considers you, she loves you, she works for you; and you, thank God, will do none the less for her. And let me just add right here that I was not told to say these things either, save as in gratitude my own heart showed me the truth, and I said to myself that I would tell it to my people.

My final question is, How? Have I not largely answered this question also already? Consideration. My mother once put a setting hen in a barrel to break her from sitting. It was a dangerous business, for we forgot her and she nearly died. Consideration. "Forsake not . . . forget not." The kingdom of God has a very great need for real common sense devotion to it. We must see the need, then set ourselves the task of supplying that need. Our Church, as you know, has its practical plans by which we are working, and through which we shall express our consideration, love and good works.

The fellowship of the folks and the friendship of Elon in this conference shall never be forgotten. At another time I shall have more to say concerning speakers and addresses.

Miss Birdie Wilson, Virgilina, Va., in renewing for THE SUN, says that she especially enjoys the weekly sermons. This is a real comfort to her, because she lives some distance from the Church, and oftentimes is unable to go. THE SUN has been coming to her home for many years.

You may be tempted to despair of your race, aye, perhaps of yourself at some time or other; but look off unto Jesus for a perfect life! Let us believe deep down in the soul that Jesus Christ is the straightener out of crooked lives here and now, the filler out of incompleting lives, the bringer of man's lost dominion!—Frederic C. Spurr.

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, Elon College, N. C.

Contributing Editors

W. W. STALEY

W. A. HARPER

R. C. HELFENSTEIN

S. C. HARRELL

PRINCIPLES OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

- (1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
- (2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
- (3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of Church membership.
- (5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

CHURCH COMITY.

The National Church Comity Conference, held in Cleveland, Ohio, January 20-22, 1928, marks a new step forward in fraternity and co-operation in Protestantism in America. This great meeting was held under the auspices of the Home Missions Council, the Council of Women for Home Missions, and the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America. More than five hundred men and women from the denominations were earnestly seeking for common ground on which to show courtesy to one another, to cultivate Christian fellowship, and to reduce competition, overlapping and inefficiency in the work of the Church. Many villages and rural communities are overchurched as to buildings, and underchurched as to service. Churches are dying and denominations are suffering from this condition which all feel must be remedied. Protestantism has gone as far as it can go without suffering great loss under such conditions. This conference grew out of a common feeling that such conditions demand a finer sense of unity and a more Christian co-operation. It is not a loss of faith and the surrender of purpose that inspired this conference, but a deep conviction that a divided Church cannot win the world to Jesus Christ. God has His own way of checking selfishness and pride, and this may be one of the problems that has awakened a sense of the necessity for drawing the denominations together in harmony and real service.

The spirit of the conference seemed to be the spirit of Jesus, and denominational interest seemed to be absent, and the desire of all seemed to be to build up the kingdom. These three great bodies, all doing unselfish and sacrificial service for Christ, were never more anxious for success in their own denominational work than in this desire to make possible the most efficient service in communities now suffering from too many houses of worship in one place and none in another. The addresses were strong, the discussions were sweet in spirit, and none seemed to be thinking of his own Church, but the Church of Jesus Christ. It was "the unity of the Spirit in the bonds of peace" seeking the way for the more efficient way of proclaiming the unsearchable riches of Christ to those who need Him most.

There is evidently a growing spirit of unity in the Protestant Churches that must express itself in trying to answer the prayer of Jesus, "that they all may be one." The new conditions of Christian civilization have driven the business world to co-operation, and Christianity that has produced this larger business co-operation cannot continue in a divided and competitive state. The Church is more than the denomination, and His Church has first claim upon our faith, our love, and our support. "No man liveth to himself," and no denomination can live to itself. Unity is inevitable, and it is beginning to be felt. Some of the findings of the conference were as follows:

1. A ministry evangelical in spirit and method.
2. A ministry well-rounded in its content with emphasis upon approved method in religious education.
3. A ministry mindful of the social needs of the community where it takes root and from whose soil it grows.
4. A ministry with an outreach to world service and Christian brotherhood.

"We are mindful that such a ministry within every community will tax the man power and resources of our Churches and will not permit the waste of any competitive effort."

PREPARE HIM.

I was talking to a keen-visioned business man recently about the affairs of the Church. He is devout and consecrated and deeply interested in the Church. He has succeeded exceptionally in a business way.

He told me how he had built up his business. He had discovered years ago, he said, that a man is far more important in any enterprise than any other item or consideration. He had always made it his practice, he said, to select a man, feeling confident when he had done this the man would build up the enterprise. He admitted he had been mistaken in some instances in his judgment of men, but not often. He was absolutely convinced, however, that no enterprise can succeed without a competent personnel.

We then turned to a consideration of the Church. He said that in his judgment the future of the Church would depend upon our placing men trained for leadership in strategic places. America is becoming an urban people, he observed, and the Church must enter the cities if it is to fill its place effectively in our life. It will be impossible, however, for the Church to succeed in cities without a competently equipped leadership. If we prepare the right sort of men and send them to the cities, this fine business man said, the Church buildings and the congregations will inevitably come as a consequence of their labors.

Then he greatly encouraged my heart in conclusion, when he said: "Elon College is doing a great work in building the right sort of leaders for the Christian Church. Just look what Elon has done for our ministry since it began, and also we must not forget what it is doing for our lay workers. We must have Christian colleges if we are to have the right sort of leaders. I just want you to know how much I appreciate what the colleges are doing."

Is this man not right? If I were to call his name he would be known to every reader of THE CHRISTIAN SUN, but he is too modest to warrant me in doing this, but is he not right? How can we have a competent leadership in pulpit and pew without Christian education, and how can we have Christian education without supporting our colleges? W. A. H.

ELON NOW AND FIVE YEARS AGO.

By W. A. HARPER.

(An address given, with illustrated views, at the first "Pastors' Conference," held at Elon College on January 24, 1928.)

Higher education in the Southern Christian Convention began under the leadership of Elder Daniel Wilson Kerr, who, in 1826, was teaching in Wake County. The name of his school was the Wake Forest Pleasant Grove Academy. It was located on the Oxford Road, twelve miles north of Raleigh. Out of this beginning grew Wake Forest College.

Twelve years later, Elder Kerr was principal of Junto Academy, in Orange County, which he later changed to Mt. Zion Academy, since it was near our Church of that name. The change of name occurred in 1842 upon the burning of the Junto Academy. When it was rebuilt, Elder Kerr called it the Mt. Zion Academy. In 1840, Elder Kerr moved his school to Pittsboro, N. C., where he continued to teach until his death.

In 1852, Rev. John R. Holt, who had been a student of Elder Kerr, founded the Graham Institute, which he conducted for five years as a high school for boys, but in 1857 it was chartered as Graham College. This school, under the leadership of Prof. W. H. Dougherty as president, flourished until the Civil War, when it was closed.

In 1865 Dr. William S. Long opened a high school in Graham, which later came into possession of the Graham College property. He operated this school as the Graham Normal College, with full endorsement of the Conferences of the Christian Church, until the opening of Elon College, in 1890. The General Assembly of North Carolina, when it granted a charter to Elon College on March 11, 1889, legally merged Graham Normal College into Elon College.

Our leaders were not satisfied with the educational opportunities that were provided in the Graham Normal College, and least of all was Dr. Long himself satisfied with these opportunities, and so he began the agitation of this matter in our various Conferences in the Southern Christian Convention, and Elon was founded as a result of the called session of the Southern Christian Convention, which met in Graham, N. C., in September, 1888. The only surviving member of that historic Convention, which included the following ministers: W. G. Clements, W. S. Long, J. W. Holt, M. L. Hurley, W. W. Staley, J. P. Barrett, J. W. Wellons, and W. T. Herndon; and Laymen J. C. Holt, P. R. Harden, J. W. Harden, David McClenny, C. S. Holleman, F. O. Moring, and J. A. Turrentine—is Dr. W. W. Staley. This notable group of men launched the college with which we are now assembled, and appointed a special committee consisting of Dr. W. S. Long, Dr. J. P. Barrett, Hon. F. O. Moring, Col. J. H. Harden, and Dr. G. S. Watson, to locate the college.

This committee on location visited various places, but finally decided, on December 20, 1888, to locate the college on its present site. They began at once the erection of an administration building and of a dormitory.

Dr. W. S. Long became the president of the new institution and served in this capacity after its opening on September 2, 1890, for four years. He was succeeded by Dr. W. W. Staley, who served as non-resident president for eleven years. During Dr. Staley's presidency, Dr. J. U. Newman served as chairman of the faculty nine years and Dr. J. O. Atkinson for two years.

Dr. E. L. Moffitt became president in 1905 and served in this capacity for six years, resigning in 1911.

When Elon began at its present location, there was no such thing as a standard for accrediting colleges. Any group of persons who were moved by a disposition to do so, could form a board of trustees and secure a charter and begin an institution. If they were fortunate to attract students and secure gifts, all went well. But in 1912 a new force affecting the future of colleges came into existence in North Carolina.

Prior to that time, the State Department of Public Instruction at Raleigh had arbitrarily classified the institution of higher learning through its power to grant certificates. The graduates of

000 and that did not have an endowment of $250,000, should lose their rating as A grade colleges and become junior colleges. In 1919, just nine years ago, beginning February 1st, Elon College undertook the raising of the standardization fund to meet this requirement. In this campaign $381,000 were pledged, and before the time had expired for us to have the $250,000 endowment we had gone beyond that point.

At that time, the College Association of North Carolina came into being and entered into an agreement with the State Department of Public Instruction that after 1925, later extended to 1928, colleges that did not meet the requirements of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, in accordance with which they must have a plant valued at $500,000 and an endowment of $500,000 or a stable income from a college are admitted to the graduate departments of universities and to professional schools the world over upon transcript of their record without examination. It is also possible for students in such colleges during their college course to transfer their credits to other institutions without any loss or disadvantage. The graduates of such colleges are accepted in all the voluntary gatherings of colleges and universities, whether of educational or social character. The State Departments of Public Instruction every where issue certificates to teach without examination to students in and graduates of these institutions. I immediately called upon a good friend who said that he would give $25,000 of the required $125,000, and upon another who promised conditionally that he would do the same thing. Both of these pledges were later paid in full and were added to the en-certain institutions were given certificates without a question, but the graduates of other institutions were not so favored. There was no public announcement of this policy, but the practice was working an injustice against the graduates of institutions not placed upon the favored list of the State Department of Public Instruction.

FIRST MINISTERS' CONFERENCE HELD AT ELON COLLEGE.

This situation was intolerable, and pressure was brought to bear upon the State Superintendent of Public Instruction to remedy the matter. His reply was that the colleges would have to be examined by an officer of the United States Bureau of Education, and if the examining officer then recommended, the institution would be given the highest rating granted by his department. Provision, he said, would be made for three grades of institution. Elon College accepted the situation and welcomed Dr. S. P. Capen, specialist in higher education, of the United States Bureau of Education, in the spring of 1914.

Dr. Capen recommended that we be placed in the group of class A colleges in North Carolina, following this examination, and beginning with the close of 1915, this has been the classification of our college.

Dr. Capen also recommended in his report that after six years, colleges that did not have physical equipment valued by outside appraisers at $300,-

000 and that did not have an endowment of $250,000, should lose their rating as A grade colleges and become junior colleges.

In the fall of 1922, with this situation confronting us, I approached the General Education Board of New York City and received a conditional commitment from Dr. Wallace Buttrick, president of that board, that we would receive a grant of $100,000 for our endowment from the General Education Board if we would raise on pledges then due us sufficient money to pay all our indebtedness of $114,500 and then raise new money for endowment in the amount of $125,000. At that time we had an endowment of $275,000 which, with the $225,000 we would in this way add to our endowment, would give us $500,000 endowment and would clear us of debt through the collection on pledges past due.

I returned from New York in December, 1922, thrilled with the thought that we would be able readily to meet the requirements of the College Association in North Carolina and of the State Department of Public Instruction, and in due time be admitted to membership in the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. I think all of us understand the advantages a college enjoys by being a member of this accrediting agency. To begin with, the graduates of such down. I had high hopes that the goal of our aspiration would soon be achieved.

Then early on the morning of January 18, 1923, I was awakened from sleep and informed that the administration building—the heart of our college, not only physically and geographically, but also in the form of spiritual inheritance and of sacred associations—was in flames, and before 8 o'clock on that cold January morning that which had cost the sacrifice of our people for a generation was a smoldering mass of flames and ashes. It was a dark day and one that we cannot forget.

Throughout that day, however, telegrams began pouring in from various sections of our country from alumni and business men, leaders of the Church, and citizens of public spirit who had known the institution and appreciated it, assuring me that the fire would not be a disaster, but that it would be a blessing and that out of the ashes would arise a new and a greater Elon.

The spirit of the students during that trying experience was an inspiration. At 11 o'clock that day an assembly was held in the gymnasium room of the alumni building. The faculty had just been in session in my home and had decided that we would endeavor to persuade the students to

(Continued on Page 6.)

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

The Church train is a great train. It runs around the world; it carries all races and all human conditions. So much is said in these days about unity, and even union, that I am compelled to write about it; and I have just attended today the great Comity Conference, in the Old Stone Presbyterian Church in Cleveland, Ohio, where comity was discussed from many angles by men of many faiths. Unity is in the air, and all Protestantism is longing for the answer to the prayer of Jesus that they all may be one. But this letter is written on a simple illustration of what really exists at the present time and needs only to be realized. I am thinking of a train of passenger cars, under the head of a "Church train."

The coaches are all linked together and drawn by one engine of power. No coach could run if detached from the engine; and the engine could not draw the train if the cars were not linked to each other. Of course, the cars could be separated and each one drawn by the engine; but that would wreck the company. Union in that case is a necessity for the business of the company. The train is a linking up of many cars, carrying passengers. The cars are not all of the same value. Some are day coaches, some are Pullman cars, some are for express and some for mail; yea, some are for coal. They all run on the same track, and that track is the best road in the world. It wrecks the train to get off of the track.

You see, the cars are the different denominations. The track is the straight and narrow way. The engine is Jesus Christ. All true Churches are drawn by the same Christ, along the same path, and toward the same destination. No power can save but Jesus Christ. "There is none other name given among men whereby we must be saved." Churches have no more power to draw men along the path of life than engineers have to pull a train of cars. He touches the lever and the engine does the work. A Church without Christ would be as helpless as cars without the engine. "As many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God." The best path in the world is the "path of the just, which shineth more and more unto the perfect day." Did you ever go through a long train and see the passengers in different coaches? Some in the day coach all crowded with the average human beings; some in the mail and express cars at work; some in coal car shoveling coal; and some seated in luxurious seats of the parlor cars—but they were all going in the same direction, and drawn by the same power. There is unity there in so many ways that you wonder why they should not recognize the unity and acknowledge their absolute dependence upon that engine that is wearing out its life to carry people in the best way where they want to go.

Different denominations are the cars in the Church train, and members of the Churches are the workers and the passengers drawn by a power not their own. One coach may be better in a material sense than another, but in the matter of progress they are all the same. One Church may be richer and more cultured than another Church, but progress in the members is made by the power of Jesus Christ. They all have the same Saviour, sustained by the same spiritual help, and their destination is their own choice. Their unity should be acknowledged by all, for unity in the essentials already exists. I notice that passengers all get off on the same platform, and their tickets are taken up by the same conductor. It takes all the coaches to make the train, and it takes all denominations to make the Church.

W. W. STALEY.

ELON LETTER.

The Church through all its history has preached the duty of sacrifice for the individual Christian. We have been told again and again that sacrificial love is the highest expression of Christian character and that no life can be truly Christian that does not have the spirit of sacrifice as its crown and glory.

But the institutions of the Church have apparently not been aware that this same principle applies with equal force to them in their corporate relationships. Denominational organizations are notoriously self-centered and oftentimes they have been extremely selfish. They have not exemplified in their relationships the beautiful spirit of sacrificial love which they have preached as obligatory upon the individual Christian.

In recent years there has been a decided change coming over these institutional organizations of the Church universal. Various conferences have been held on comity, and one of these is now in session, as I write, in Cleveland, Ohio. It is reported that this comity conference has decided that there should be a policy of planting Churches only where there is a constituency of 1,000 people per Church. This is a long step in the right direction and will go far to eliminate the sectarian competition of Churches with one another.

A most refreshing thing is reported as having taken place in Hartford, Conn. A Church there with a membership of 350 is serving its community in a very effective way. Another denomination decided to enter this field and to divide up the constituency of the established Church. The people felt that this was a mistake, and they plainly said so, yet the officials of the invading denomination persisted in their decision to build a Church of their own faith and order. The Church that is already established there decided thereupon to do the sacrificial thing. It officially notified the incoming denomination that in its judgment one Church only is needed in this territory, and expressed the opinion that it was fully meeting the spiritual needs of the people and voiced the hope that the sister denomination would refrain from entering the field. Then it added: "However, if upon receiving this communication from us, you still think you should come to minister to this people, our Church will withdraw from the field and turn our local congregation and all its assets over to you." This is a notable example of the practice of the spirit of Christian love on the part of the institutions of the Church. We should rejoice to live in such a day.

Local Churches need to co-operate with outside enterprises in order to conserve their spiritual vitality. Just as the individual Christian must give and sacrifice if his spiritual life is to develop and ripen, just so the local Church must be interested in maintaining the enterprises of the kingdom outside its own borders if its spiritual life is to grow and ripen. God can no more prosper a self-centered local Church than He can prosper a self-centered individual Christian. Local Churches often die. Dr. D. B. Atkinson and Mr. W. E. MacClenny, our well-known historian of the Southern Christian Convention, are authorities for saying that we have lost as many Churches in the Christian denomination as we now have. The reason for this is not far to seek. These Churches have dried up spiritually because they were self-centered. They had no concern for missions, for Christian relief, for Christian education, or for any other enterprise of the kingdom. They wanted the gospel for themselves. They were earnest in their anxiety to be saved, but they did not appreciate the necessity for practicing sacrificial love, and so they passed away. The paradox in respect to this matter which our Master enunciated applies with tremendous force to Churches and to the various enterprises of the kingdom, as much so as individuals. He said: "Whosoever will save his life shall lose it; but whosoever will lose his life for my sake, the same shall save it."

Those Churches in our denomination which have been most liberal in their support of the enterprises of our Church have grown and flourished. They have sacrificed for others, and God has blessed them with spiritual growth and renewal. The benevolence program adopted by our Southern Convention in Durham, N. C., two years ago offers our Churches the finest opportunity in all our history for spiritual growth and development. Those Churches which respond liberally to this benevolence program, we shall see flourishing and going forward in spiritual achievement. Those Churches that refuse to respond to the challenging opportunity of this benevolence program will, sad to say, dig their own spiritual graves. This is no prophecy of the writer's, but the plain teaching of our Master.

W. A. HARPER.

ELON NOW AND FIVE YEARS AGO.

(Continued from Page 5.)

remain on. It was our purpose, if possible, to secure vacant stores and rooms in private dwellings in which we could conduct classes and to make use of the Publishing House Building, which the college owned, for laboratory purposes and supplementary class-rooms. The faculty adjourned and went in a body to the alumni building. When we entered the gymnasium room, the students arose in a body and greeted us by singing the college song:

"So here's to dear old Elon, faithful and bold,
Here's to her banner of Maroon and Gold;
And here's to men and women who've come and gone,
Singing the victor's song of old Elon."

There were assembled with the students a group of the citizens of the village, of alumni from nearby cities and towns, and a group of representative citizens from Alamance County. A meeting of great inspiration was held in which the students, the alumni, and the representatives of the public generally pledged to the college and to the faculty their most hearty co-operation, and again assured us that a greater institution would arise from what a few hours before had appeared to be a complete wreckage of our hopes and aspirations. It was not necessary to undertake to persuade the students to remain. They had decided to remain, and not one of them left. I do not believe that a similar disaster ever overtook any institution with such happy results. So long as I live, the memory of that day and of the loyalty and devotion of that group of students will live with me. It is one of the high spots of experience, one of the priceless inheritances of life.

The fire occurred on Thursday morning, January 18th. On Friday I felt strangely moved to telegraph every pastor in the Southern Christian Convention and request that prayer be held on the following Sunday in every Church of our Southern Christian Convention, that God would lead and direct us in our efforts to rebuild. The response to this suggestion was beautiful, and the results speak for themselves.

One other instance on the day of the fire I shall never forget. When the building had fallen in, I went to the west dormitory to see Uncle Wellons. He met me at the east entrance, where he was standing with his heavy bathrobe on. I greeted him and expressed my sorrow in the disaster that had overtaken us. He straightened himself up and said, with calm deliberation and superb impressiveness: "I have seen much less here than is here now, and I expect to see much more." We then retired to his room, where he prayed earnestly that God would direct our people to do His will, and ~~an~~ through the anxious days of rebuilding this grand old patriarchy of our Church laid hold on the resources of God through prayer. All during these days and months which lengthened into years, I never went away on an important journey that I did not have an interview with him, in which I told him, so far as I was able, the exact hour that I would engage in an interview that held the possibility of great things for the college. He always held those hours sacred for prayer, and I say it without thought of depreciation on the part of any one, he made a larger contribution to the Elon that now is, through his prayers, than any the rest of us made through solicitations and gifts.

On the day following the fire I issued a call for the board of trustees to meet in extraordinary session on January 24th at 10 o'clock in the morning. Every one of the thirty trustees came, except one, who was unfortunately prevented from being present, and with them came Dr. L. E. Smith, President of the Southern Christian Convention; Dr. W. S. Long, first president; Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Mission Secretary, and Bro. Chas. D. Johnston, superintendent of the Christian Orphanage. Dr. Barrett, editor of THE CHRISTIAN SUN, was a member of the board of trustees, and so was Dr. Walters, president of the Board of religious Education. Five years ago this morning, at 10 o'clock, this notable gathering of our leaders, representing not only the board of trustees, but every enterprise of our Church as well, assembled in the temporary office that had been established in the southwest corner room of the east dormitory. When they met, I informed them that the night before citizens of Alamance County had faced a snowstorm to attend a public meeting in the City Hall of Burlington, and that they had unananimously passed a motion to raise $100,000 in Alamance County to replace the destroyed administration building if the friends of the college would raise $200,000 more for needed improvements to the plant. I also informed them that members of the faculty and citizens of Elon College had already pledged $15,000 for this purpose.

The ground was covered with snow. They could look out of the west window of the room in which they had assembled upon the ruins of what had been the pride and heart of our college. Smoke was still working its way through two or three places in the mass of debris that stretched out before them.

Every person present expressed himself as satisfied that the time had come for a great forward movement for Elon College, and a motion was passed to meet the proposal of the citizens of Alamance County and to raise, in addition to this, $300,000 for endowment. It was a brave and courageous act which the board of trustees undertook on that eventful day in 1923, five years ago today. Their courage and optimism became the contagion of our people and of the friends of the college everywhere. They rose in their might and in their generosity to a situation that challenged the very highest qualities of the human heart, and as a consequence there stand five buildings on our campus today to replace the one that was destroyed on January 18, 1923; and in addition to this, the campus has been beautified and improved by the laying out of lawns, driveways and walkways, and by the planting of shrubbery and the erection of a splendid wall.

On January 18, 1923, the properties of the college inventoried $364,110, and the endowment was $275,000. Today the properties of the college inventory $1,202,551.04, and the endowment is $519,238.66. In addition to this, the Southern Christian Convention, by issuing bonds in the sum of $500,000, $100,000 of which is included in the endowment just mentioned and $400,000 of it is used to offset the indebtedness that was incurred in the building and the equipment of the new plant, and by providing an income on these bonds through the benevolence budget adopted in its Durham session, 1926, has made it possible for the college to become a member of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. The five years that have just passed, and of which this day signifies the anniversary, have been fruitful and historic in the development of higher education in the Christian Church. It is my conviction that future generations will look back to these five years as marking a turning point in the history and generosity of our Church. We did not foresee the things that have taken place during these anxious years. We would not have chosen the method of a fire to achieve the results which gladden our hearts today. We cannot but feel that the Divine hand was in this entire enterprise, and that the Divine blessing has rested upon us in the achievement which has crowned our efforts.

THE PASTORS' CONFERENCE.

BY REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE.

The first Pastors' Conference of the ministers of the Southern Christian Convention was held at Elon College January 23-27th. If the expressions of those who attended this conference are indications of the contribution it makes to their lives, we can say in the words of the humorist when he first saw the ocean: "Boys, she's a success!" The conference was designed to give the ministers of the Church, who have done so much for Elon, the opportunity to know the college in an intimate and personal way, to see the college in action, and also to give the students of the college an opportunity to know the ministers of the Church at first hand.

The conference was made possible through the liberality of a generous-spirited and large-hearted layman, who very modestly requested that his name not be made known. About sixty pastors of the Southern Christian Convention attended, their names being as follows: A. W. Andes, J. F. Apple, E. C. Brady, E. M. Carter, H. C. Caviness, H. E. Crutchfield, B. J. Earp, P. H. Fleming, J. L. Foster, J. E. Franks, W. H. Garman, C. E. Gerringer, T. J. Green, H. S. Hardcastle, Stanley C. Harrell, W. D. Harward, W. C. Hook, B. J. Howard, J. Fuller Johnson, J. Lee Johnson, P. T. Flapp, G. O. Lankford, F. C. Lester, J. F. Morgan, N. G. Newman, G. A. Pearce, O. D. Poythress, J. M. Roberts, H. G. Robertson, C. H. Rowland, C. C. Ryan, L. E. Smith, M. T. Sorrel, M. W. Sutcliffe, J. G. Truitt, G. H. Veasey, R. A. Whitten, W. C. Wicker, R. L. Williamson, T. Fred Wright, L. I. Wyrick, E. B. White, J. Edward Kirby, W. S. Alexander, D. P. Barrett, S. E. Madren, J. W. Fix, D. M. Spence, J. U. Fogleman, S. L. Beougher, Geo. D. Hunt, J. E. Amason, J. U. Newman, W. M. Jay, T. E. White, Joe French, C. E. Brittle, Carl Dollar, Stanley Hunt, T. B. Dawson.

The following brethren had agreed to come, but were providentially hindered from coming: M. P. Allen, J. M. Allred, J. E. Carden, R. H. Coble, J. C. Cummings, W. J. Edwards, W. N. Hayes,

I. W. Johnson, J. W. Knight, T. N. Lowe, W. T. Walters, H. V. Cox, J. Wm. Barrett, C. W. Carter, J. D. Dollar, W. T. Meacham.

The conference was also honored by visits from J. M. Darden, Prof. L. L. Vaughan, John H. Harris, J. Walker Kelly and Sam Davis and wife. Entertainment for the delegates was provided in the homes of the members of the faculty and the residents of the village. Dinner and supper were served at the dining-hall of the college.

The conference began with a session on Monday night, January 23rd, in the Whitley Memorial Auditorium. The pastors were welcomed by Dr. W. S. Alexander on behalf of the Church, the college and the community, and by Miss Rosebud Kimball on behalf of the student body. Dr. L. E. Smith, President of the Southern Christian Convention, presented the first of his travelogues, a series of lectures made up of his observations and experiences during his recent trip to the Holy Land. The theme of this lecture was "Getting Acquainted." The schedule was made up as follows:

The morning hours were devoted to lectures; the afternoon hours to conferences; the evening hours to lectures and special features. The first series of lectures were given by Dr. J. U. Newman, whose general theme was "The Message of the Bible." His lectures were as follows: "The Message of the Old Testament," "The Message of the New Testament," "The Message of the Prophets," and "The Message of the Apocalypics." These lectures were scholarly and deeply spiritual, and emphasized both the character of God and the high calling of the ministry. At the conclusion of the last lecture, Dr. C. H. Rowland, on behalf of former students of Dr. Newman, presented him with a fitting birthday present. Dr. Newman responded in a very gracious manner.

The second series of lectures were given by Rev. Stanley C. Harrell, of Durham, N. C. The lectures were as follows: "The Challenge of the Minister's Task," "The Minister's Message Concerning the Book," "The Minister's Message Concerning His Own Denomination," "The Minister's Message Concerning Evangelism."

These lectures showed a high type of scholarship and of penetrating insight into the problems confronting the ministers, and sounded a high challenge to all those who heard them.

The third series of lectures were the travelogues of Dr. L. E. Smith, Norfolk, Va. The series was as follows: "Getting Acquainted," "The Antiquity of Damascus," "The Thrills of Galilee," "The Tragedy of Jerusalem," "The Romance of the Jordan."

Dr. Smith combined in these lectures in a fine way vivid and graphic power of description; the faculty of making one see the things he had seen and enriched all that he said by a deep, spiritual interpretation and application. They were indeed and in truth the gospel in artistic and compelling form. These lectures were attended by the student body.

The afternoon hours were devoted to conferences and other activities. The conferences were as follows: "The Alumni," by Dr. W. H. Boone, of Durham; "Kingdom Finance," by Dr. C. H. Rowland, of Greensboro; "Youth and Church," by Rev. J. G. Truitt, of Norfolk; "The Little Foxes that Spoil the Vines," by Dr. N. G. Newman.

The leaders of these conferences, after presenting in a general way the outlines of the subjects, led in an open forum or discussion, which was entered into heartily by all and was very, very helpful.

One of the features of the afternoon sessions was a plain and pointed address by Mr. J. M. Darden, of Suffolk, Va., on the subject, "The

(Continued on Page 14.)

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Field Secretary.

IS THE KINGDOM WORTH WHILE?

Our Congregational Churches, apparently, do not think that it is. For each of eight years our missionary societies have been needing $7,000,000. They have asked for $5,000,000, and the Churches have given them about $3,000,000. Our American board has closed its last year with a deficit of $148,000, and the home missionary work is limping along in similar fashion. In Massachusetts we are asked for $1,087,500 as our part of the $5,000,000, and we give a little over $800,000.

We Americans can always find ways and means of doing things which we think are worth while. The worth-while thing may be a college education for boy or girl when circumstances rise like a stone wall to obstruct the path; or it may be a Panama Canal. We are not, as a rule, daunted by worth-while things, however difficult. But we seem to accept the missionary situation with placidity. How many times in the last two thousand years has "Thy kingdom come" gone up as a petition to the Father in heaven? Is that Father deaf, or does He not care for His kingdom? He gave His only begotten Son for love of it and us. But it will never shower down like rain upon the mown grass—not until His listless sons and daughters at least have mowed the grass. It must begin with us. Committees, these days, seem to fill the air—much overhead machinery, possibly all good even if a bit top-heavy. Why not begin with the other end of the ladder—plant it in every Church unit and work from the bottom up? Let us see what our Churches are doing singly or in groups. The objection had been made that the Church quotas for missions were too large, imposed upon us from without. So several years ago the word went forth to all the Churches, through their associations, that each one was to set up its own quota, which was, for the most part, promptly done. The result has been as follows: Only one association of the twenty-four within the State of Massachusetts last year met its self-imposed quota; two others came near theirs. The problem will never be worked out until each one of our 603 Massachusetts Churches take it to heart as its problem and put its shoulder to the wheel.

This field is not an unplowed field. A Church in one of our counties—and that by no means the most productive or fertile—with a comparatively small population, has secured, each year for a number of years, more pledged gifts from individual givers than it has members. The problem in that Church is solved. It has been solved by those of its members who believe the kingdom of heaven is worth while, led by a minister who believes that the Church exists for its missionary work—to propagate the gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ—and that in so far as it fails in the support of the missionary cause, it so far fails to be a Church of Christ. Planted solidly on these principles, diligent, never-ending work has built up a method of procedure. It implies an exact parish list kept up to the minute, such a list as a minister has no time to perfect. It implies the work of a secretary whose service is for love; it implies visits from sixty women in many homes—visits not for money, but for love; it implies interest in every child born into the parish; it implies a source and power of spiritual life. With about 700 givers, this Church has placed itself as third in the State for the sum contributed to Christian missions. The fourth in that list is another Church 150 miles from Boston. Another with similar success lies just outside the Boston district.

These things ought not so to be. When one considers, as Dr. Calkins reminds us, that many Congregational Churches in Massachusetts are not lacking in wealth, far more wealth than this sample Church could supply, some explanation is needed as to why others are not doing likewise. Consider why, and come to your own conclusion, but let no conclusion be an excuse. Let it be an honest answer. What has been done in one spot can be done in any and every other if it is thought worth while. Every Church is peculiar.

One other suggestion. Since we seem to have decided by our deeds that the kingdom of heaven is not worth while, it is not strange that our Churches spend much money on everything, as we say, to beautify the service—that we sing, so complacently, hymns which belie our deeds:

"Love so amazing, so divine,

Demands my soul, my life, my all."

Is sacrifice, too, a word in the past tense? Is that, too, no longer worth while? Caroline H. Adams, in The Congregationalist.

REQUISITES FOR MY PASTOR.

BY J. M. DARDEN.

Twelve Characteristics I would Like for My Pastor to Have.

(An address delivered to the Pastors' Conference at Elon College, on January 26th.)

As a layman, I have some idea of what I would like my pastor to be and of the things I would like to have him do.

1. I would like for him to be human. Christ was human as well as divine. He was a man among men, and at all times did what He could for the uplift and betterment of men.

2. I wish my pastor to be honest, energetic, prompt to pay his bills, and to meet all his obligations.

3. I wish my pastor to be neat in his personal appearance. "Cleanliness is next to godliness." A great many ministers are neat in the pulpit, but they should be neat on all occasions and everywhere. A slovenly minister is a disgrace to the cause of Christ.

4. I want my pastor to be a progressive man, with business methods. I want him to use business methods in the conduct of the Church and in his life outside the pulpit. I want him to tell me of his plans for the improvement of the Church and for the kingdom's advancement, and I want him to be as business-like in laying these plans and having them executed as the president of a corporation is for the success of his business. I have had considerable experience with corporations in my life, and they have well developed plans, and that accounts for their success.

5. I want my minister to bring me a message on Sunday and on every other occasion when he speaks that will tend to make me a better man, if I accept it; a message that will fit me for the problems that may come before me in my daily life; a message that will so grip me that I will want to go back to my Church whenever it is open.

6. I want my pastor to be a student of God and of His Word. I not only want him to be himself inspired by holy living by the Bible and his knowledge of it, but I want him to be able to use the Bible in such a way as to inspire me to live my Christian life so that others may know that I have been in contact with Christ and that I am trying to do His will.

7. I want my pastor to be a man of prayer. Jesus was a Man of prayer. He prayed definitely, but He did more than pray. After He had prayed, He went out and sought twelve men. He did not look for idle and slothful men. He did not look for wealthy, fashionable, or learned men. He sought energetic men, men who were busy at their job, men who had energy. I want my pastor's prayers to be of this character, coupled up with action.

8. I want my pastor to appreciate the value of personal contact. It is the personal touch and influence of the ministers which is of greatest value in molding the character of us laymen. I want him in his contact with men not to neglect the rich and the cultured and learned, but neither do I want him to neglect the poor and the saints. A brother recently complained to me that his pastor had not spoken to him in six months. No man can be a successful pastor of a Church by running out for two or three hours on a Sunday once or twice a month, and then running back home. The gospel must be preached by those who will take time to come into personal contact with men if it is to be preached successfully. Christ did not neglect the outcast or downtrodden or the sinner, and neither do I want my pastor to neglect these people. I want him to associate with all classes of people not only on Sunday, but every day of the week. There is no man, no matter how hard a drinker he may be; there is no woman, no matter how degraded she may be, but that the minister, by personal contact, may win that soul to Christ. I tell you it is personal contact we need.

9. I want my pastor to be a peacemaker. I once had an experience with a friend who became suddenly angry with me. It was my pastor who reconciled us, and we lived together as friends the rest of our days. Jesus Christ was the Prince of peace and I want my pastor to be a peacemaker.

10. I want my pastor to be a worker. If I were to work only one or two hours a week, my business would soon be wrecked. I am not satisfied for my pastor to think that he has done his duty when he has preached on Sunday and conducted prayer-meeting on Wednesday, when he has married people and preached funerals. I want him to feel that he is employed for every moment of his time as spiritual director of my Church, as the president of God's corporation, and I want him to put forth every effort that a corporation president would put forth to make his business, the Church, the greatest business in the world, a success.

11. I want my pastor to follow the rules laid down in the Bible. I have already spoken of the fact that I wanted my pastor to know the Bible and to know it so that he will inspire me and others with his knowledge. What I mean now is I want him to practice the Bible. Every great corporation I have had any dealings with has certain definite rules and instructions for every officer from the president down to the janitor. I conceive of the Bible as such a set of rules for ministers and for those who are members of the Church, and I want him to be sure to understand these rules, to practice them, and to get me to do so. Of course, the rules change in a corporation, but the Bible does not change. However, we should trust the Holy Spirit to give us new ideas of the meaning of the Bible. That is what I mean by a preacher who is spirit-filled, and, believe me! we need an infilling of the Spirit on the part of our preachers, so that we laymen can get lifted up.

12. I want my pastor to feel that he is a link in a chain. It is true that I want my pastor to be the strongest link in that chain, because I have a peculiar pride and affection for my Church and my preacher; but, nevertheless, I want my pastor to feel that he is a part of an organization and that his work is not done when he has built up a local Church. He must build up the denomination, its missionary work, its orphanages, its colleges, and I want him to understand that our denomination is no stronger than the weakest link in its chain, and I certainly do not want my pastor to be any weak link in the chain. I hope to see all our ministers strong links in our denomination life or chain. A corporation leader told me the other day that when they found a weak man in their organization, a weak link in their chain, they threw him on the junk-pile, and really that is what we ought to do with a minister who is a weak brother. We ought to junk him, because the work of the kingdom is more important than the work of any corporation.

A pastor who exhibits these twelve characteristics that I have laid down will be a real servant of Jesus Christ, a real prophet for Him, and he will build up the Church and the kingdom. That is what we need in the Christian denomination.

RESOLUTIONS BY MINISTERS.

Whereas, we, the ministers of the Southern Christian Convention, have had the privilege of spending three days in conference at the intellectual mecca of our Southern Church; and whereas, these have been days of sweet fellowship and great intellectual and spiritual inspiration, be it:

Resolved, That we express our sincere appreciation and gratitude to President Harper and his co-workers for the free and generous entertainment and other courtesies given us; to the Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., Virginia Club, to the domestic science department, and the music department for their delightful entertainment; to those who made possible the conference by paying our traveling expenses; to the members of the faculty and other citizens who entertained us in their homes, to the speakers for their great messages, to the students for their many courtesies, and to all others who contributed to the pleasure and success of the conference.

N. G. NEWMAN.

L. E. SMITH.

A. W. ANDES.

Resolution.

In consideration of God's great gift to us and His constant blessing upon us as a Church and a people, and out of the gratitude of our hearts, be it resolved:

That we, the ministers of the Southern Christian Convention, assembled in conference at Elon College, set as a minimum standard of our giving for the support of our Church and its enterprises one-tenth of our income, and that we put forth every reasonable effort to induce the membership of our Church to adopt the same standard of giving, and that at the end of February we report through THE CHRISTIAN SUN an account of our methods and results of effort, giving the number of tithers then enlisted in each of our Churches. Unanimously adopted.

O'KELLY'S CREED.

Now, with regard to my faith: (1) I believe in God, the Father Almighty, who by a gracious Providence, hath placed me in a free country, where I am secure from the rage of kings and bishops. (2) I believe in Jesus Christ, the only begotten Son of the Father, full of grace and truth, whose precious blood hath freed me from condemnation, notwithstanding the charges of the grand synod! (3) I believe in the Holy Ghost, and humbly thank and adore the Eternal Spirit, who hath enlightened mine understanding, to discover the mystery of iniquity working in a spurious episcopacy; and now I behold the wonders in Christ's law, and the all-sufficiency of a "Bible government."—From Rev. James O'Kelly's "Vindication of the Author's Apology," pages 31, 32. Suffolk, Va. W. E. MACCLENNY.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES.

We should be glad to furnish your Sunday School the following supplementary supplies, cash to accompany order:

- Improved Uniform Series International Lessons.
1. Bible Lesson Picture Roll, 21x32 inches, per quarter $1.25
 2. Sunday School Superintendent (to accompany the Picture Roll), per quarter..... .15
 3. Pupils' Lesson Stories, per quarter..... .06
 4. Little Bible Lesson Pictures, per quarter.. .05
- Group Uniform Series, Primary Course.
1. Group Bible Lesson Picture Roll, 16x20 in., per quarter 1.00
 2. Group Pupils' Lesson Stories, Primary, per quarter07
 3. Group Lesson Pictures, per quarter..... .04

In making order, be explicit and name the quarter for which supplies are wanted; thus: first quarter, January to March; second quarter, April to June; third quarter, July to September; fourth quarter, October to December.

SEND ORDERS TO THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Minion Bold-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 7-8x 7 Inches, and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

2152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.75

India Paper Edition, Size 4 7-8x7 Inches, 1 1-10 Inches Thick.

2152X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$6.00

Bourgeois Type, Size 5 3-8x8 Inches, and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

2167—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold$4.00

2172—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold$4.50

2172A—Same as above, with Apocrypha.....$5.00

2173—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges$6.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3-4x3-8 inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3 3-4x3 3-8 Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps$2.50

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations. Special book for Sunday Schools95c

Minion Type, Pocket Size, 4x6 Inches, 1 1-4 Inches Thick.

With 32 full-colored illustrations; also 25 outline maps through the text and 12 colored maps.

133—Bound in cloth, round corners, red edges, title stamped on side in pure gold$1.60

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.$3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 15-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.$4.00

Minion Black-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 3-4x 7 Inches, 1 1-2 Inches Thick.

Printed from clear, large, black-face type, 32 full-page illustrations in sepia and colors, 4,000 Questions and Answers, Harmony of the Gospels, How to Study the Sunday School Lesson, 25 outline Maps, 12 full-page colored Maps.

4152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold.....$3.25

AMERICAN STANDARD VERSION. TEXT BIBLES.

Printed from Easy-Reading Type, on Good Bible Paper, for Sunday School and Church Use.

Minion Type, Size 4x6 Inches, 1 1-2 Inches Thick, 25 Outline Maps, Bound in Black.

101—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, title stamped on back in pure gold...$1.10

112—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title on back in pure gold$2.75

India Paper Edition, Only 7 1-2-Inch Thick.

112X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.75

Reference and Text Bibles also in minion, brevier, bourgeois, long primer, pica and English type.

Thumb index cut on edge, 50c extra; name printed on any Bible in gold, 40c extra; extra wording, 40c per line.

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5 3-8x8 1-4 Inches and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With concise Bible dictionary, combined concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold$4.75

RED LETTER EDITION

With all the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands, title stamped on side and back in pure gold$3.25

Any of the above Bibles sent post paid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 E. Broad St., - - - Richmond, Virginia.

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

INTERNATIONAL UNIFORM SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE.

Lesson VI—February 5, 1928.

JESUS MISUNDERSTOOD AND OPPOSED.

GOLDEN TEXT: "He came unto His own, and they that were His own received Him not. But as many as received Him to them gave He the right to become the children of God, even to them that believe on His name."—John 1:11.

LESSON: Mark 3:19b-35, 6:1-6.

DEVOTIONAL READING: Isa. 50:4-9.

When people who are doing what they think is right find that they are unfairly criticised and grossly misunderstood, it is indeed a burden heavy to be borne. It is all the harder to bear when those who misunderstand us are not only our friends, but even the members of our own family. It cuts deeply, and there are few who in the face of misunderstanding and unfair criticism do not become discouraged, and often petulant. "Here I am doing the best I can," says a person, "and people, you people, do not understand me. What's the use, anyway? I am going to throw the whole thing overboard"—this is no strange saying; we have all heard it again and again.

Now perhaps it will help us to study this lesson, for in this case Jesus was misunderstood, not only when He was trying to do the right thing and help others, but He was misunderstood by His friends and even by His loved ones. If He, the perfect One, was misunderstood and criticised, it is more than likely that we are going to come in for some misunderstanding and criticism. And we can learn from the Master that our main concern after all should not be whether we are misunderstood and criticised, but whether we are doing what we ought to do, and whether we keep on doing it even if people do misunderstand and criticise. We remember that we shall often be misunderstood and criticised, but let us not become discouraged or cynical, and let us not "sour on life," but let us do the thing that our conscience, kept sensitive by the Holy Spirit, tells us is the thing to do, knowing that cowardice is more fatal than criticism, and refusal to try more disgraceful than failure in trying. The Church needs men and women today who have the Spirit of Christ as they face the misunderstandings of people who either will not or cannot see sincere and unselfish motives back of what they are trying to do.

Jesus was not only misunderstood; He was opposed. Here was One who was trying to establish a rule of love in the hearts of men and make of earth a heaven itself. But, strange as it may seem, here were those who opposed Him, and who opposed Him so determinedly and bitterly that they finally put Him to death. It is interesting to note in this particular incident who it was who opposed Jesus and why they opposed Him. It was the scribes and the Pharisees, and they opposed Him because they feared they would lose their positions and their power. There are a great many people in the world who oppose the Christ because they know that they would lose prestige and power and position if Christ's rule comes into human life. Then there are those who oppose the Christ because they fear they will lose their unlawful gain because of Him. There are many people in the world today who are engaged in making money in ways that they know are wrong, and who know that the rule of Christ means the end of their unlawful gain. It might be added that this reference is applicable to others than simply bootleggers and traffickers in human virtue. There are many professing Christians who are making money in ways that the Christ Himself condemns. Again, there were groups in Jesus' day who were opposed to Him because He interfered with their pleasure. There are those today who lust for pleasure of such a type that they know they are at odds with the Master in His rule of love and His law of purity in life.

There are several interesting sidelights in the lesson which deserve mention. In one case (verse 21, chapter 3), his friends come for the Master because they think He is "beside Himself." He was giving Himself with such abandon to the work that they thought He must be "daffy." Pastors would be glad to have some Church members who have that same spirit of the Master. The Church needs a group of people who will put as much enthusiasm into its work and program as they put into other things. It is a striking commentary on our devotion and consecration that we have so much enthusiasm and zeal for our own things, and often so little for the Master's cause. Every once in a while one hears about a man "who gives more than he ought to give," as the saying goes. It might be a good thing both for the Church and for the kingdom if more people aspired to that reputation, which, by the way, very, very few, if any, deserve.

Another interesting sidelight is to be found in the incident which tells of the astonishment of Jesus' home folks when they heard Him teach in the synagogue. "Is not this the Carpenter, the Son of Mary?" they said. How difficult it is for us to see greatness in those with whom we are so intimate. As Carlyle said, "No man is a hero to his valet." Let us beware lest we fail to see in the Christian mother or the Christian father, in the unselfish brother or sister, one who is indeed and in truth a prophet of God, speaking for God to us. And let us beware lest our intimate association with the boys and girls in the Sunday School and the Church blind us to the larger possibilities of their lives.

"And He marveled at their unbelief." The hardness of heart, the failure to see truths that were so plain, the refusal to attempt a ministry of helpfulness, the dead inertia of unbelief of the people aroused in the Master a sense of wonder and amazement and caused him to marvel that it should be so. May it not be true that the Master still is amazed at our lack of response to His Spirit, and by our lack of interest in His cause, and by our unbelief and lack of action in the light of the great tasks that await us and the unlimited resources that are to those who undertake to do the will of the Lord!

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Sunday, February 12, 1928.

TOPIC: "Ideals for Choosing a Life-Partner."—Prov. 31:10-31.

Some Bible Hints.

Clean-mindedness. Who wants a companion whose mind is a gutter? (v. 10).

Reliability. A coquette with pretty ways may amuse for a time, but a man wants a wife who can be trusted in every thing. And a woman wants a steady, reliable husband (v. 11).

Industry. The ways in which men and women show their value change with the ages, but the principle stands. Who wants a gadabout or a street-corner loafer? (v. 13).

Foresight and forethought. "Her candle goeth not out." Husband and wife must think and act together (v. 18).

Suggestive Thoughts.

Love. On both sides. The love that means devotion and unselfishness.

Life interests. Where life interests differ, a couple will drift apart. Man and wife are meant to grow spiritually together and not pull separately.

Religion. The young person who is religious, all things being equal, will make a better life partner than the one that cares nothing for things of the soul.

Character. A successful marriage cannot be founded on fickleness or falsity. In matrimony, as in business, character comes first.

A Few Illustrations.

An old Wesleyan minister and his wife prayed together twice a day for half a century. No danger of the divorce court there.

Married people are home builders, and their homes will reveal skill, or lack of it. Divorce advertises failure on the part of one or both. What should we build our homes on?

Marriage is not a yoke, but a union; both parties being one in purpose, ideals, interests. They are more than team-mates.

A bird cannot fly with a broken wing. In marriage, if our purposes differ we may flutter along, but we shall fail of the highest.

To Think About.

Why cannot married people "live their own lives" without reference to each other?

What health ideals should we have in choosing partners?

What may a young woman demand of a young man who wishes to marry her?

A VIEW OF PASTORS' CONFERENCE.

By RAY N. MOSES.

When Dr. Harper suggested inviting the pastors of the Virginia-Carolina Conference to make an extended visit to Elon, the student body cordially endorsed the suggestion. We wished to be hospitable to these ministers, to have an opportunity to see old friends and make new ones, and we expected to get a few new ideas from the conference. These factors made us wish the conference, though we expected to have to listen to a number of long, dry lectures—and college students usually feel that they are overfed on oratory. Perhaps the reader will see why we changed our minds about the qualities of the lectures as he reads the following sketches.

Dr. Newman's Lectures.

In a wonderful series of lectures, Dr. J. U. Newman carried us to a mountaintop and gave us a broad view of the truths of biblical literature. He spoke of God, the Creator, God as expressed in His works, and God made effective in the lives of men. The Almighty created man because the vegetable and animal kingdoms could not adequately express the principle of love.

Scientists have, in some cases, missed finding God as the Creator, because they have not gone in the right direction with their thinking or have not gone far enough. This type of scientist is like a traveler who journeys up the Nile. If he travels only part way up the stream, he sees little but the barren desert on either hand; but if he journeys on to the source of the stream he finds a beautiful land of fertile soil and sparkling fountains. As various streams unite to form a river, so all the sciences in the light of the Holy Spirit blend into the mighty stream of truth.

The Bible tells of men's experiences in which God has been most clearly expressed. The New Testament gives a fuller and more perfect presentation of God than does the Old. Genesis tells of a man; Matthew tells of the Man. Exodus tells of Moses' leading the children of Israel from Egyptian bondage; the gospel of Mark tells of the Christ who leads the Church from earth to heaven.

In the Bible, the supreme principle revealed is love. Love must be made effective in the lives of men; the Church must furnish Christ a body. God must be more than a Creator, even a Presence in our lives. This work presents a wonderful challenge to battle. And the Book of Revelation shows the redeemed singing victory songs before the battle is fairly started.

Dr. L. E. Smith's Lectures.

The spiritual truths contained in Dr. Newman's lectures were given vividness and reality by Dr. Smith's faithful narrative of what he saw and felt as he took a recent journey through Palestine. First, we were given a glance over several European countries. We were led to feel that England is a fine, clean nation, with a sort of patronizing air toward Americans; that Belgium is an artistic little nation which admires and loves America; France is an artistic nation, but their art is dominated by sensual ideas; Italy is a country which is coming too much under the influence of military ideals.

Then he carried us to the mainland of Asia, took us through the mountains of Lebanon, past the site of the mighty ruins of Baalbek, and on to the view of the world's most ancient city, Damascus. Here we paused for a minute to watch the water shimmering on the two beautiful rivers in which Naaman wished to bathe to free himself from leprosy and to speculate on the place where Paul received the vision which changed him from a persecutor of the Church to an evangelist whose work challenges the best in preachers of today. As we came near the city, its beauty vanished and we saw hordes of "sacred" flies lighting upon the beggars and donkeys who thronged the streets.

The lecturer took us on the memorable journey with him to Galilee, where the party sang "Shall We Gather at the River" and other beautiful songs. The golden streak of moonlight crossing the water and coming directly to each observer was taken as a type of God's love. The many experiences of Christ and His disciples at this place were called to mind.

From Galilee we went on to view Jerusalem and its environs. What memories of sacred events connected with this place came crowding into mind! And how these memories were interrupted by the pitiful cries of the multitudes of partially clothed beggars asking for "bakshesh." Many of the customs of the people are the same as they were when the writers of the Bible were recording God's dealings with men. There are many spots connected with sacred stories, but one gets nearer to God when he leaves others alone and goes to these places communing with his own spirit and with God.

Dr. Harrell's Lectures.

Dr. Harrell's lectures were sane, whole-hearted, practical lessons on how pastors may cause the principle of love to become effective in the lives of men.

He frankly told us that the minister's task is the most difficult of any in the world. How can you heal the spirit of a person who does not realize that he is spiritually sick? The lawyer or medical doctor may be forgiven if he fails to live up to the principles which he teaches to others; but woe to the preacher who is untrue to the message which he proclaims in his sermons! It is not enough to preach sermons that are spiritually helpful. The messages must be so spirit-filled that they will completely change the lives of men. The pastor must be careful not to work in a narrow channel, continually proclaiming the few spiritual truths which have meant most to him. Let every preacher chart the Word of God for himself and deliver to men "the whole counsel of God." And as the message is given, the preacher should not depend for effect too largely upon emotional appeal. Surely the ministry is a difficult work! But the One who has said to us, "Go," has also said, "Lo, I am with you alway."

Other Features.

In his illustrated lecture, Dr. Harper showed that through consecrated effort and earnest prayer, Elon has made a type of progress which should be an inspiration to her students and a lesson to all on how much may be accomplished by those who co-operate with the Invisible.

The definite accomplishments of the Lausanne Conference were brought to our attention by Dr. Soper, dean of the Divinity School of Duke University. These accomplishments were the bringing together in friendly association representatives from nearly all denominations of Christians, the recording for the consideration of Churches the exact views on seven subjects of faith and order in the Churches represented, the discovery that all Churches accept the Nicene creed and believe that Christ is present in the Communion. More important than these was the spirit of good-fellowship which prevailed and the earnest desire shown by men to understand the views of those belonging to other Churches.

At the domestic science department's banquet were three notable, though brief, addresses on Christian unity. Dr. Kirby, of Raleigh, speaking for the Congregational Church, in a dignified way, called attention to the noble spirit which Congregationalists have inherited from the old Puritans, recounted the noble works of his denomination in sending missionaries and building colleges in many lands. He said that the Congregationalists were ready to unite with the Christian denomination on the basis of the Principles of the Christian denomination. Rev. L. E. Smith, President of the Southern Christian Convention, in his address, declared that such a union would be "perfect." Dr. T. F. Opie, of Burlington, told what the Episcopal Church has done toward Christian unity, and then boldly took a stand in advance of the position of his Church in regard to unity.

The music of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Davis will be long remembered. His surpassing performance on the piano will probably be forgotten before the impression of the presence of Christ which came while Mrs. Davis sang about the Man of Galilee. And linked with the memory of her song will come Bro. Poythress' solo, "He Remembered Me."

The idea that the speeches might be rather dry evaporated from our minds soon after the conference began. We feel that we have received truths to feed our minds and hearts so we will never be quite the same persons again. There was a fine spirit of Christian brotherliness among the ministers. We thank them for their presence, and hope that arrangements will be made for them to be with us again next year.

Elon College, N. C.

ALMA MATER.

BY C. C. HOWELL, LL.B.

No man conscious of the limitations of language would for a moment assume to even mention the multitude of lovable things that endear his own mother to him. So, to only a less degree, as to his foster-mother, his alma mater. And what, in a few words, may a devoted son say of Elon? Description here being hopeless, I would mention, for illustration's sake only, a golden attribute of my alma mater, shining along the paths of her students and alumni, and reflected in the glow of her motto. That characteristic is truth.

Across the lintel of the door-posts of the academic building at the University of Virginia, there is written an inscription which, being interpreted, reads: "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." Because beneath it there stands on the emerald lawn an heroic statue of him whose stately stanzas roll and surge in the thunder of the Odyssey, and because the language itself is Greek, one is sure that the thought is from Homer. But because, on a little mountain not far away, there stands almost in sight of the letters a white shaft pointing its silent finger above the eternal bed of him whose great delight this great university was, and because we have seen before the thought of freedom in the solemn diction of his Declaration of Independence, we are almost equally sure that Thomas Jefferson wrote these weighty words.

But a greater than Homer, and a greater than Jefferson, has passed along the way where they were first heard. As we might have known, these pearl of great price fell from the lips of Him who spoke as man never spoke before or since; they are an admonition of the Man of Galilee.

What did he mean? Ah! we are not the first to wonder. "What," inquired of Him the craven governor who let the infuriated mob carry Him out to His death—"What is truth?" And he received no answer. The Man in whom no fault was found even by this disgraced judge had already answered the question out of the abundance of instruction imparted to His lowly, loyal followers; in His stories suggested by the fowls of the air that fluttered above their heads as they trudged the dusty roads, by the foxes that scurried out of sight as they passed by, by the nodding flowers that smiled before Him on their beds. And in literal language that could not be misunderstood, He had told His faithful followers, and Pilate, and us: "I am the way, and the truth, and the life."

I do not believe that by truth He had any reference to the doctrines of this day that in psychology, for example, would tell us of behaviourism, internal mechanistic reactions, rational automatism, as both the reason of being and rules governing the conduct, thought, and aspirations of men; nor to those that in biology insist that the histology of man's pre-natal existence indicates his blood relationship to and lineal inheritance from the pulseless jelly-fish that floated, helpless, on the stagnant waters of the unknown prehistoric seas.

No such truth as this—if this be truth—ever made any man free. Instead, if this is all he knows, it binds him hand and foot, soul and body, with fetters of purposeless existence, and at the end, when the sun goes down and there are no stars and the cold night winds blow from the grave, imprisons him forever in a stifling, narrow cell where there is no more thing or device.

And while I think on these thoughts, my love turns again to Elon, because she does teach us something of the truth that can some day make us free; free from the things that chill the spirit and blight the soul, as well as from the ignorance of material matters. To all who will listen, she offers, in the Master's name, the words of life—life here and now not only, but life yonder through all the tomorrows. And so I offer her again my thanks and affection for the spiritual, along with the intellectual, light she has beamed upon us whom she has honored as her sons and daughters.

Jacksonville, Fla.

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY REV. H. E. ROUNTREE,
One of Our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"Call upon me, and I will answer thee, and shew thee great and mighty things, which thou knowest not."—Jeremiah 33:3.

MONDAY.

THE GUARDED HEART.

"Keep thy heart with all diligence, for out of it are the issues of life."—Prov. 4:23.

It is what we say in our heart, what we earnestly desire to be true, that governs our actions, for the end of life is not knowledge, but action. There is much in the Bible about the keeping of the body and of the intellect. But it is of the heart and the heart only, the realm of feeling and of desire, that it can be said, the issues of life depend upon it. The reason is clear. Acts of the will depend largely upon what takes place in the realm of feeling.

As David Gregg wrote in his "Book of Remembrance," "Desire is destiny."

How important, then, is the keeping of the heart! The term is military. To keep means to guard. Here is a sphere of life in which we are to guard something as we guard our treasures, as we guard our honor, our character. This is the inestimable treasure. This is what determines character.

Where is the science that will teach us to guard our hearts? Religion is that science. Christ is Master of the heart. Look at the Beatitudes: they all deal with the heart. We need to guard our hearts against hardness, corruption, hatred, avarice. The practice of mercy tends to keep our hearts tender. The practice of prayer is within itself purifying. The remembrance of Jesus Christ, the contemplation of what God makes of sin, will help to keep our hearts clean. But the enemies of the heart are so many we cannot keep our hearts alone. Out of our failures we are driven to God. He is the great Keeper. The guarded heart commits itself to His keeping.

Prayer.—We pray this day for the willing and obedient mind, that we may begin aright and end with joy everything that the day contains for us to do. May nothing be common or unclean in all our day's program, because all we do has a purpose that we may please Thee. Amen.

TUESDAY.

THE SCHOOL OF CHRIST.

"And He gave some to be pastors and teachers."

—Jesus did not suppose that men could become Christians in a moment, or a day. Christianity was not something to be snatched by careless hands, but a life to be learned and lived by earnest men and women. "Make disciples," He said substantially; "enroll them as learners in a great fellowship, and teach them the things which you have seen in me." Jesus called men who knew little of Himself and His kingdom into His discipleship. They became learners in the school of Christ. They came at last to share His ideals. They, too, came to know God the Father.

Christianity implies discipleship, and the Church, whatever its faults, is pre-eminently the school of Christ. It labors to organize men into a social community controlled by a definite sense of common ideals and purposes; a society of brother-learners, wherein the whole of life's affairs are regulated by justice, righteousness and good will.

It is this message which the Church, too often half-heartedly, brings to the world today. And yet, in spite of the imperfections of the many, there have ever been men who were conscious of a rare, beautiful and sustained exaltation of soul.

Prayer.—As the rising sun is flooding the earth with its light, let the beams of Thy sunrising in our souls dispel the darkness of our minds, and make to rejoice every part of our being. Thou who in the beginning didst create light for man and beast and bird and flower, create in our inner lives the light that shall never go out. Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

GLORYING IN THE CROSS.

"God Forbid that I should glory save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ."—Gal. 6:14.

While the Christian glories in the cross as the symbol of His redemption, the rebellious sinner regards it as an offense, a public condemnation of his sin. The cross is ever before him as a terror, summoning him to judgment. When we are unwilling to surrender some darling sin, the cross becomes a stumbling-block to our progress. We neglect to hear the cross, endeavoring to go around it in order to enjoy some evil pleasure, refusing to die wholly to self and become alive unto God.

To the faithful, the cross is saving, peace-giving and beautiful, radiant with hope, covered with the flowers of sacrifice, crimsoned with cleansing efficiency. The cross is the highest peak in the range of all history; it is the hope of all mankind. What things we count loss for the cross are our eternal gain. Our Lord's life of self-denial, holiness and deprivation stands forth as an ideal cross to the world, as it calls us to live a life like His life, to take up our cross as He did, and follow Him.

Christ's cross will win the world! It is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth. The arms of the cross are stretched out to gather wandering children to the Father's embrace. The cross will then blossom red into beauty and supreme glory, as the emblem of the world's deliverance in the everlasting life.

Prayer.—We praise Thee, most adorable and kindly One, who hast made earth and heaven and caused us to be created in Thine own image—for another day. May it be filled with Thy light and Thy truth, and made happy for us with eager service for those who need us. We ask in His name who went about doing good. Amen.

THURSDAY.

GETTING CLEAR.

"And they immediately left the ship and their father, and followed Him."—Matt. 4:22.

Mrs. Howard Taylor, addressing Student Volunteers at Toronto, said she had been willing to go anywhere in the world for Christ—except China. But in China the door opened, and she was much depressed. As the ship was clearing the Bay of Naples and the shores of Europe were fading, a sailor in the prow sang out to the captain: "All is clear now, sir." And the captain shouted: "Full steam ahead!" Instantly it seemed as though the anchor that held the missionary had been taken aboard, and she said: "O Christ, all is clear now for Thee. Full power ahead!"

It was so with these four fishermen. They did what multitudes of modern disciples never seem able to do—they got clear for Christ. Young, brave and enthusiastic, they immediately left all and followed Him.

There is a great parable of life here. Ship and nets may stand for material prospects and possessions. They are analogous to worldly appeals—not wrong in themselves, but wrong if they crowd out the superior claims of Jesus. The Christian life is an enlistment for the whole man and for life. The call of Christ is a call to detach ourselves from many things that we may attach ourselves to one thing. Fishing, henceforth, was to be incidental; following Jesus was always first. May God help us to get rid of the dragging anchors of the world.

Happy is the Christian who gets clear at the very start. It is a miserable existence to attempt half-way measures with God. We cannot dictate the terms of our surrender to Jesus. The victorious life is simply the life in which we cease to dictate and direct, and hand over the command to Jesus.

Prayer.—Reveal to us today, our Father, the main purpose of life. Show us clearly that it is not to accumulate things, nor to seek feverishly after amusement, nor to win earthly power. But by Thy Spirit inspire us to see, as Jesus saw, life in its completeness, and rejoice in the things that cannot die. Amen.

FRIDAY.

WHAT ALL THE WORLD NEEDS.

"Christ Jesus . . . is made unto us wisdom and righteousness and sanctification and redemption."—1 Cor. 1:30.

These are the world's great needs. We need to be taught. We need to be governed. We need character. We must not only know and obey, but we must live the guided, serene and victorious life. Jesus Christ came to teach us, to rule in and over us, and thus to produce in us that holiness without which life is incomplete.

Is Jesus Christ a Teacher? There is no other like Him. He brings us authentic news of God. Moreover, He is a Governor. "Where the word of a king is, there is power." Who has the power over men that Christ has? It is always right to do God's bidding.

Prayer.—Dwell in us today, O Thou who art eager to make our spirits Thy abiding place, and inform our hearts and minds with spiritual reality. May we come to know that the things of the soul are even more real and true than the things of the fleshly senses. Help us to live, not in an atmosphere so rare that we cannot breathe it, but in an atmosphere free from the foulness of the lowland of sin. In His name who lived with God. Amen.

SATURDAY.

NEW LIFE.

"He restoreth my soul."—Psa. 23:3.

The religion of Jesus Christ produces life and in abundance. It awakens sleeping facilities and rouses dormant abilities to expression in wondrous works and miraculous ministries. It makes old worlds new, and gives new worlds old emphasis upon the values of the kingdom. Wherever the gospel is preached, there is rejuvenation, resurrection, pulsation, restoration.

But all these blessings begin with individuals. New men and new women create a new world. It is the highest privilege given to us that we may lend a helping hand and a willing heart in this work of re-creation and restoration, and keen satisfaction comes to us when we have answered the call, as it comes to those who take a picture by one of the old masters, and, washing off its dust and dirt, bring out the original colors and tones that were so long hidden. Man is God's masterpiece. God in Christ and Christ in us, and we in our turn putting in living terms the words of the psalmist, as we go forth to preach and teach, heal and help, encourage and inspire in the name of Him whose we are and whom we serve.

Prayer.—Hear us, O Lord of all mankind, as we pray for the rising generation which has in it the hope of the future. Give us the eternal hope

(Continued on Page 13.)

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

It was a source of great pleasure to us to have so many of the visiting ministers to visit us during the ministers' conference held at Elon, January 23-27. We have always felt if it were possible to get our folks to visit the Orphanage that the interest would grow and a larger work could be done. We feel that it is a worthy work to take a little child, fatherless and motherless and homeless and helpless, without a chance in life and rear it, and educate it and send it out in the world to make good. One of the joys of this work is to take a little child and watch it develop as the years go by, and then go out in life to make a success.

I remember two little fatherless boys came to this institution some years ago and were trained here and given a chance. When they graduated here they both accepted positions with a large contracting concern doing a plumbing and electric work. One of the boys took up the plumbing trade. The other electrical work. The contract for plumbing and wiring on our new building two years ago was awarded to this company, and these two boys were sent here to have charge of the plumbing and wiring of this building. Both standing at the head of his department, both fine young men who held the confidence of their employees, the Orphanage, through your help and generosity, gave them a chance. They have made good. We feel proud of them.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON,
Superintendent.

REPORT FOR FEBRUARY 2, 1928.

Brought forward $1,692.06

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

N. C. & Va. Conference:

Lawrence Bible Class, Elon College.	$ 1.00
Reidsville	8.19
Ingram	3.00
Pleasant Ridge	1.05
Bethlehem	6.18
		19.42

Eastern N. C. Conference:

Lee Chapel	$ 2.05
Benlah	1.50
Henderson	5.25
Damascus	2.10
Liberty	7.50
		18.40

Western N. C. Conference:

Pleasant Cross	$ 3.06
Smithwood	1.16
		4.22

Eastern Va. Conference:

Mt. Carmel Sunday School.....	$ 5.21
Holland	10.00
Elm Avenue	7.00
Holy Neck	10.00
First, Portsmouth	5.74
		37.95

Valley Virginia Conference:

Mayland	$ 2.17
Winchester	5.31
		7.48

Thanksgiving Offerings.

Eastern N. C. Conference:

Lee Chapel	$ 4.00
Christian Chapel	9.00
		13.00

Special Offerings.

Davis Soc'y, Hopewell S. S.....	5.00
Grand total	$1,797.53

ON BUSINESS TRIP.

Rev. A. R. Flowers writes the president of the South Georgia Association that he expects to spend most of the week before Christmas in Jacksonville, Fla., talking with the different ministers of the city about the work of the ministry and the subject of Christian education. Bro. Flowers has done a great work among the young people in different sections of Georgia and Florida. He expects to spend Christmas with Rev. John A. Blanton, of Surrency, Ga. Bro. Blanton is an aged minister who came to Georgia from North Carolina almost fifty years ago and became a pioneer minister in South Georgia. He holds membership with the Freewill Baptist Church, but has been a co-worker with all Christian denominations, and the esteem in which he is held by all Christian bodies is a convincing proof of the value of Christian fellowship with all followers of Christ. Rev. Blanton has been pastor of one Church for forty-three years, and in another thirty-eight years. These two Churches have occupied most of his time as a pastor, but he has organized other Churches which stand today as evidence of his unconquerable spirit in the cause of his Master.

CARL LEWIS.

(Continued from Page 12.)

of God, that what seems impossible with man may be a fact by Thy power over him. Let us have the faith of those who were put to death for their faith, and who lived under great persecution and won the victory. Amen.

SUNDAY.

FOR YOUR SAKES.

"For all things are for your sakes, that the abundant grace might, through the thanksgiving of many, redound to the glory of God."—2 Cor. 4:15.

Much may be said in favor of the view that evil is only the other side of good. There could be no courage without the possibility of cowardice, no truth without the possibility of falsehood. If evil were not possible, we could not be free to choose. If evil were not possible, were we not mere automatons, machines made to run so, with no possibility of running otherwise?

Have we ever thought it would be an ideal world with no difficulties to overcome? Where, then, would be our strength? Do we not see that the possibility of evil is in itself for our sakes? This is the apostolic philosophy: "No chastening for the present seemeth to be just, but rather grievous; nevertheless, afterward it yieldeth the peaceable fruit of victory to them that are disciplined thereby." Christ is "God's afterward." The gospel is God's answer to our cry for a solution of the problem of sin.

By a master passion for Himself, by "the explosive power of a new affection," by the mystic grace of His Spirit, by the new birth—a process oft repeated—Christ proves Himself our Savior from sin. By the sacrifice of Himself, He brings us to God. By His unfailing love, He wins us to good. By the love that will not let us go, He holds us fast. If freedom, involving the possibility of sin, is for our sakes, much more is salvation for our sakes, "that the abundant grace might through the thanksgiving of many redound to the glory of God."

Prayer.—Father of all mercies, we beseech Thee to guide us and teach us the way, that we may walk serenely and know that He who has been over the road of human experience before us will not lead us astray. We thank Thee for the assurance that the end is known from the beginning, and that we shall journey not into the darkness, but into the light. Amen.

COMMUNION WARE

Individual Service

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminium. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A

Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses	$7.00
Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses	6.75
Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses	6.50
Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10.....	2.25
Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10.....	2.25
Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim.....	1.60
No. 2—Broad rim	1.60

SILVER-PLATE

The Silver-Plated Ware is of the very lightest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.

Style No. 85

Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses.	$22.00
Base No. 1—Silver-plate; fits Silver Tray No. 85	11.00
Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85...	16.00

(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)

Style No. 90

Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 33 plain glasses.
Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling)	$22.00
Base No. 2—Silver-plate; fits Silver Tray 90...	16.00
Cover No. 4—Silver-plate; fits Silver Tray 90..	14.00

Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow rim	$ 9.00
No. 4—Broad rim	9.00
Filler—Silver lined	6.00

Send Orders to THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

1536 E. Broad St., - - - Richmond Va

THE PASTORS' CONFERENCE.

(Continued from Page 7.)

Man I Want My Pastor to Be." This was a forceful presentation of a layman's viewpoint of the things which he coveted in a pastor's life.

The evening sessions were devoted to lectures and special programs. In addition to Dr. Smith's first travelogue, the following lectures were given: "Elon Now and Five Years Ago," by Dr. W. A. Harper. This was an illustrated lecture, ably presented and instructive and inspiring in the light of the growth and possibilities of our Church college.

Another lecture was by Dr. E. D. Soper, dean of the Divinity School of Duke University. His theme was "The Lausanne Conference." Dr. Soper brought first-hand information of that great conference on faith and order which was held at Lausanne last summer. In a most attractive way, he told of what is perhaps the most concerted effort of the Churches of Christ to come to a common understanding and to a co-operative effort. This was one of the high-water marks or the high peaks of the Pastors' Conference.

The last lecture was on "The Church and Christian Education," by Dr. S. L. Beougher. Dr. Beougher stressed the supreme importance of Christian education and showed how the responsibility rested on the Church.

One of the most enjoyable features of the conference was the schedule of activities outside of the more serious work of the school. The juniors and sophomores played two games of basketball, both of which the sophomores won, and the pastors and faculty also had an interesting and amusing game, which the faculty won, 15 to 14. Both the Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. entertained the delegates, or the pastors, at a stunt night. The members of the domestic science class prepared and served in a most pleasing way a banquet which was termed a "Christian unity banquet." Special musical numbers were rendered, and the following persons responded to toasts: Dr. T. F. Opie, of Burlington, "Church Union in the Episcopal Church"; Dr. J. E. Kirby, of Raleigh, "Church Union in the Congregational Church"; Dr. L. E. Smith, "Church Union in the Christian Church."

The students of Virginia entertained the conference at a most delightful party on Thursday night. Members of the conference went on a touring inspection both to the college and to the Orphanage. Mr. and Mrs. Sam Leonard Davis presented a sacred concert in connection with the Thursday evening service. Special music was furnished on various occasions by Mrs. Velie and Miss Fisher, Prof. Velie, Rev. O. D. Poythress, and the college choir and the Men's Glee Club.

Telegrams were sent to Dr. J. O. Atkinson and Rev. H. W. Elder, conveying to them the regrets of the conference of their inability to be present and expressing the wish for their recovery. A reply was received from Dr. Atkinson. Special prayer was offered on several occasions for these men.

In summing up the effect of the conference, one might say that five things characterized it:

1. Good fellowship. This alone made the conference worth while.

2. Fun. Ministers when off duty can be as human and as full of fun as any other group of men.

3. Information. Those who attended the lectures received a great amount of practical and vital information.

4. Inspiration. It might well be said that during these days the pastors lived on the mountain-top.

5. Consecration and dedication. Those who attended the conference will go back to their work with new devotion to Jesus Christ and to His Church.

A committee on resolutions attempted to express the appreciation of the pastors to the president of the college, to the members of the faculty and student body, to the unnamed sponsor of the conference, and to the residents of the village, and to all others who contributed to the most enjoyable and successful conference their thanks and appreciation.

Suffolk, Va.

WITH MY CHURCHES.

It is a hopeful sign of the increasing interest in religion to see the changing attitude of the Church in the observance of the Christmas holidays. More and more, Church people are turning from carousing and revelry to those activities that honor Christ. Wherever I went this year I found this higher conception in the keeping of the holidays. It was an especially joyful Christmas to me among my Church people.

The Sunday Schools at Mt. Olivet (G), Palmyra, Mt. Lebanon, Dry Run and Whistler's Chapel gave treats to the children and rendered Christmas programs. It was not my privilege to attend at Mt. Olivet. The one at Palmyra, December 22nd, was attended by a large crowd. A splendid program was rendered, and the pastor and his family were remembered with acceptable gifts. The program at Mt. Lebanon was held December 24th. Owing to car trouble, the writer was late in arriving, but found an overflowing house and a program that had delighted the audience. An extensive program, which required a good deal of practice and other work of preparation, was rendered to a full house by the Dry Run Sunday School on December 26th.

The Sunday School at Whistler's Chapel gave a most enjoyable program on the 27th. The Sunday School at Alpine School-house, where the writer holds regular services, gave the children a generous treat.

Donations, purses, poundings! The people

OXFORD BIBLES

An Oxford $3.50
Teacher's Bible only

"The
Oxford Bible
is the Bible
par excellence
of the world"

The best recommendation of the OXFORD TEACHER'S BIBLES is the fact that over 3,000,000 copies have been sold. The wonderful helps they contain save your time because they are alphabetically arranged, making reference easy. They take the place of many books about the Bible, and can be depended upon, being written by eminent scholars. The Helps contain 32 graphic illustrations, besides 15 beautifully colored maps. The text is the Authorized or King James version, with over 50,000 centre column references.

These Are Genuine OXFORD Teacher's BIBLES

EASY-TO-READ EDITION

Size 7 1/4 x 5 x 1 1/2 inches

Specimen of Type

17 And there was a very sore battle
that day; and Abner was beaten,

Nos.
04451	Moroccoette, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges	$3.50
04453	French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and handsome Bible	4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Same as above, but printed on the famous Oxford India paper used only in Oxford Bibles. Only one inch thick.

Nos.
0773x	French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition	$7.50

RED LETTER EDITION

05453	As No. 04453 with words of Jesus Christ in red. The red letter feature adds greatly to one's understanding of the Bible	5.00
-------	---	------

Oxford India Paper Edition

05453x	Same as No. 0773x with words of Jesus Christ in red. A gift edition which is sure to please	8.00
--------	---	------

SELF-PRONOUNCING EDITION

All proper names and difficult words divided into syllables and accented so they may be correctly pronounced. Sizes 8 1/2 x 5 1/2 x 1 1/2 inches.

Specimen of Type

6 And A-hi'-shar was over the household; and 'Ad-o-ni'-ram the son of Ab'-da was over the 'tri-

Nos.
04521	Moroccoette, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges	$5.00
04523	French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A real student's Bible	6.00

Oxford India Paper Edition

Same as above, but printed on the famous Oxford India paper which is used only in Oxford Bibles. Only 1 1/4 inches thick.

0923x	French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A Bible of superior quality	$9.00
-------	---	--------

Improved Thumb Index on any style
at 50 cents extra

here are so generous in their gifts to the pastor and his family that it would take too much space to record each one separately. During the early part of December we held a meeting at Palmyra during which time we received quite a number of generous donations, among which was a quilt from Mrs. Rush that was highly appreciated.

On Christmas, friends at Mt. Lebanon, East Liberty, and Bethel gave us donations. On December 18th, while at Mt. Olivet, we received a liberal pounding. At the close of the Christmas program at Mt. Lebanon we were requested to stay in the community until the next morning, when our automobile was loaded, and we had to have help. Bro. Ernest Conner came to our rescue with his trusty Ford, and both cars were loaded, making the most generous pounding we have ever received.

The congregation at Alpine School-house gave us a pounding January 8th. At the close of the Christmas service at Dry Run, the pastor was presented with a purse of $7.60; and the next night, at Whistler's Chapel, he was given a cash contribution of $15.75.

These are only the special gifts. Every month and at almost every appointment we receive donations. We are deeply grateful for all these expressions of love and good will on the part of our people. We are hoping and praying that we may be able to render a better and larger service in return.

It is impossible to be a pastor to eleven congregations, but under our present arrangements, if the writer does not serve them they will be without service. I am trying to give three of them two sermons per month, and the others one. It is a field that we cannot afford to ignore, and much of which has been neglected too much already.

W. T. WALTERS.

Harrisonburg, Va.

REV. J. D. WICKER.

Rev. John Daniel Wicker was born June 12, 1840. He was the son of Blake and Flora McIver Wicker. The date of his birth was one fraught with destiny, for when he had reached early manhood the War Between the States broke out. Answering his country's call, he served throughout those terrible years with courage and loyalty. He fought in eleven battles, being twice wounded. He spent the winter of 1864 in prison.

Soon after coming home, he married Miss Delitha Thomas. To them were born four sons and seven daughters. The following survive: Mrs. N. A. Dowdy, Dr. W. C. Wicker, R. B. Wicker, Mrs. S. M. Watson, E. P. Wicker, Mrs. J. D. Hill, Mrs. Bessie Nelson, Mrs. Hattie Timberlake, A. C. Wicker, Mrs. E. B. Cole, and little Flora Wicker went before.

At the session of the North Carolina and Virginia Conference, held with Bethlehem Church (Alamance), in 1881, he was licensed as a probationer to preach the gospel. He was ordained to the full ministry a year later by the Conference held at Oak Level. As a minister, his views were clear-cut and fearlessly expressed. While he was an uncompromising opponent to wrong and error, he loved the sinner, and through his ministry, personal and public, many were won to Christ.

Not only was he intensely interested in the work already established, but he was ever anxious to extend the borders of the Master's kingdom. He organized and built the following Churches: Bethlehem (Warren), Bethel and Mt. Gilead, and assisted in the organization of at least six others. Other Churches he served include Wake Chapel, O'Kelly's Chapel, Oak Level, Christian Chapel, Zion, Moore Union, Turner's Chapel, and Pleasant Union.

Bro. Wicker served as President of his Conference (the Eastern North Carolina) several times, and for many years was a member of the Board of Home Missions. In these positions he was always faithful and efficient, ever watchful and careful for the interests of his Church. He attended regularly the sessions of the Southern Christian Convention and in that body his presence and counsel were always helpful and appreciated. Since the death of Dr. J. W. Wellons he was the oldest minister of the Southern Convention.

On the morning of December 10, 1927, the Master, whom he had served so long and faithfully, called him from labor to reward, from weariness to rest, from sickness to eternal life and health. In the presence of a large congregation, the funeral was conducted by Revs. J. W. Patton, P. T. Klapp, and the writer. Bro. Patton spoke the funeral address. Bro. Klapp spoke feelingly of his life and labors.

He was laid to rest beside his wife, who preceded him about four years, in the cemetery of Shallow Well. He was buried with Masonic honors, Bro. Patton in charge.

"Servant of God, well done!"

Thy glorious warfare's past,
The battle's fought, the race is won,
And thou art crowned at last."

R. L. WILLIAMSON.

ELON COLLEGE

CO-EDUCATIONAL

SECOND SEMESTER OPENS JANUARY 4, 1928

A few additional Students may be accommodated at that time, preferably members of the Christian Church.

SOME OF THE ELON COLLEGE BUILDINGS

ELON COLLEGE offers superior educational advantages to the members of the Christian Church. The buildings are new, equipment new and of the very best type, laboratory facilities equal to any college in the South; member of the Southern Association of Colleges, strong Christian faculty, and fine Christian atmosphere prevailing on the campus. Special courses in religious education and Christian work are offered to train laymen and ministers in the work of our denomination.

For Catalogue and View-Books, address

C. M. CANNON REGISTRAR,

ELON COLLEGE,

NORTH CAROLINA

"Christian Character First and Always at Elon College"

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rve. Daniel W. Kerr.

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Christian Church.

BOARD OF EDITORS

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D. Editor
W. W. STALEY, D. D. Associate
W. A. HARPER, LL.D. Associate
REV. S. C. HARRELL. Associate
R. C. HELFENSTEIN, D. D. Associate
REV. S. M. LYNAM. News Editor
P. J. KERNODLE. Managing Editor

Subscription Rates

One Year$2.00
Six Months 1.00

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT
RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Post-office at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows the date of expiration. Change in the label will appear on wrapper the first week of month following renewal, provided it is received before the 25th.

Change of Address: Give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

When subscriptions are made for friends, state whether paper is to be stopped at end of the year.

Remittances: Make all remittances for subscriptions and renewals to "Editor Christian Sun," Elon College, N. C.

Remittances for advertising and other business matters will be addressed to the "Managing Editor," 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond, Va.

Advertising Rates: "Want Ads," 2 cents a word an insertion. Display rates quoted upon request.

Notices: Obituary and Marriage notices, limited to 100 words, are published free of charge. All over 100 words, at 1 cent a word. Remittance should accompany copy. Write names distinctly.

KILBY.

Whereas, it has pleased our Heavenly Father, in His divine providence, to remove from our midst our faithful friend and beloved sister, Mrs. Eudora B. Kilby; and

Whereas, in her death the Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Society of the Suffolk Christian Church has suffered the loss of one of its most faithful and devoted members, and her going leaves a vacancy and a shadow that will be deeply realized by those whom she has loved and helped; therefore, be it resolved:

1. That we bow in humble submission to God's will, knowing that He doeth all things well.

2. That we imitate the good example by always being faithful to the Lord's cause.

3. That with deepest sympathy for the bereaved family, we commend them to the Lord for comfort.

4. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of the deceased, a copy sent to The Christian Sun for publication, and a copy be spread on the minutes of our society.

MRS. W. E. MacCLENNY,
MRS. HARRY JACOBS,
MISS EFFIE BEALE,
Committee.

WRIGHT.

Mrs. Rebecca Wright, wife of William Wright, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charlie Ward, January 3, 1928, aged 83 years. She was a member of the Wood's Chapel Christian Church. The funeral services were conducted by the writer from St. Matthew's Lutheran Church, New Market, Va., and the remains laid to rest in the adjoining cemetery. She leaves a husband, four children, sixteen grandchildren, and twenty-seven great-grandchildren. May the Lord comfort the bereaved.

W. T. WALTERS.

WANTED TO SELL

A Tract of Land, about 25 acres, 2½ miles south of Elon College, near a new graded road, suitable for a small dairy, pig, or poultry farm. For price and terms, apply to

W. T. NOAH
Elon College, N. C.

BETHLEHEM COLLEGE

WADLEY, ALABAMA

A JUNIOR COLLEGE AND HIGH SCHOOL.

Where Opportunity Awaits the Student of Very Limited Means.

GIRL'S DORMITORY.

Bethlehem College, Wadley, Ala., will open September 5, 1927. This institution is a Junior College and High School, which is co-educational, where scholarship ranks high and expense is low. It is thoroughly Christian, absolutely non-sectarian, and vitally American. A school where opportunity awaits the student of very limited means—$68.00 pays all college expenses, except books, board and room. Board, $15.00 per month, and room $3.00; total expenses for a term of nine months, $250.00.

Bethlehem College is training some of the best stock of America for Christian leadership, to be used by the nation and the world. Here is a great challenge and asset for students who wish to prepare themselves to serve in a worth-while way. The work on the new Administration Building is progressing nicely, and we will be able to begin our college work in this building when school opens this fall.

For catalog and other information, address S. L. Beougher, President.

OXFORD TEACHERS' BIBLES

An Oxford Teachers' Bible has references and 300 pages of helps that are a mine of information to Bible students. The helps are arranged in alphabetical order, like a dictionary. They are accurate, comprehensive and up-to-date. A few styles are listed here. Many others are described in our Bible catalogue, mailed upon request.

- 04403 [This size print] Bound in French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, size 6½ x 4¾ inches$4.00
0623x [Same Bible as 04403] Printed on Oxford India paper. Only 1 inch thick.....$6.00
04453 [This size print] French Morocco leather binding, overlapping covers, 7¼ x 5 in.$4.35
0773x [Same Bible as 04453] Printed on Oxford India paper. A remarkably thin and light Bible. (Only 1 inch thick)$7.75
C5453 [Same Bible as 04453] With the words of Jesus Christ printed in red$6.25
C5453x [Same Bible as 0773x] With the words of Jesus Christ printed in red$8.75
04523 [This size print] A self-pronouncing Oxford Bible. Bound in French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, size 8½ x 5½ inches...$5.50
0923x [Same Bible as 04523] Printed on Oxford India paper, only 1½ inches thick...$9.75

ORDER FROM
"THE CHRISTIAN SUN"

Richmond, Va.

HOLMAN BIBLES

FOR CHILDREN
PICTORIAL BIBLES WITH HELPS

The text is self-pronouncing, by the aid of which children can learn to pronounce the difficult Scripture proper names.

Specimen of Type

27 And the boys grew: and Esau was a cunning hunter.
5 And the streets of the city shall be full of boys and girls playing in the streets thereof.

With beautiful photo views of scenes in Bible lands distributed throughout the text. Also maps of Bible lands in colors. Also new Practical Helps to Bible Study, especially designed for instructing children in scriptural information.

No. 9111. French Seal Leather, overlapping covers, round corners, gold edges, gold titles.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 2.30

COLORED PICTURE EDITION

Portraying in natural colors, scenes and places taken from nature and life in the Holy Land.

No. 9211. Same as No. 9111, but with Beautifully Colored Pictures.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 2.40

FOR INTERMEDIATE SUNDAY-SCHOOL SCHOLARS

Large Clear Black Type, Self-Pronouncing, containing Helps to Bible Study, 4000 Questions and Answers, Maps in Colors, and Presentation Page. A Beautiful Gift Bible.

Specimen of Type.

22 And the prophet Is'ra-el, and said unto thyself, and mark, and for at the return of t

Size, 7 x 5 inches.

No. 215. Divinity Circuit Style. Bound in French Seal Leather, round corners, red under gold edges, with silk bead bands and purple silk marker, gold titles, etc.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 3.10

No. 3215RL. Red Letter Scholars' Bible, same Bible as No. 215, with all the Sayings of Christ printed in Red, and with Red and gold INLAID PANEL SIDE TITLES, also Beautifully Colored Pictures.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 3.45

Holman Self-Pronouncing

VEST POCKET TESTAMENTS

Clearer Print in Smallest Size
4¾ x 2¾ x ¾ inches

Specimen of Type.
AND the third day there was a marriage in Cana of Galilee; and the mother of Jesus was

2133K. Bound in durable Morocco Grain Semble Leather, flexible limp, gilt titles$6.00

2113. French Morocco, genuine leather, flexible limp, gold titles, rounded corners, gold edges.....$7.00

2115P. French Morocco, Divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, with the Book of Psalms included$1.10

ILLUSTRATED VEST POCKET TESTAMENT

With Pictures of Holy Land Scenes

2814. French Morocco, limp, gold side title round corners, red under gold edges$8.50

RED LETTER VEST POCKET TESTAMENT
With all the words of our Lord printed in red.

13RL. French Morocco, flexible limp, gold side title on red panel, gold edges.$8.50

15RLP. French Morocco, overlapping covers, flexible, gold side title on red panel, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included$1.25

INDIA PAPER VEST POCKET TESTAMENT

Thin as a Wafer

2136XP. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, with Psalms included$2.25

Send Your Orders to
THE CHRISTIAN SUN
1536 E. Broad Street
RICHMOND - VIRGINIA

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Official Organ of the Southern Christian Convention.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXX.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 9, 1928.

NUMBER 6.

.. THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY ..

PASTORS EXPRESS APPRECIATION.

Our pastors have been expressing their approval of the Pastors' Conference, and THE SUN is happy to quote excerpts from them in this issue. It is deeply regretted that THE SUN is not able to quote all of these expressions. The chorus of approval is unanimous.

Dr. L. E. Smith: "As I think of the conference, I am impressed with its real value, and am more and more convinced that it should be a permanent thing for the ministers of our Church. It seems to me to be one of the most forward steps taken in recent years. It ought to be productive of much good."

Dr. N. G. Newman: "I regard the Pastors' Conference as a great success. It was fine in program and spirit, and will be productive of good."

Rev. P. T. Klapp: "I attended the Ministers' Conference every afternoon and once at night. I thought it was very good and very helpful."

Dr. C. H. Rowland: "I feel that the Ministers' Conference was one of the best meetings I have attended. We not only discussed important questions, but we learned to know each other better. I feel that I love the brethren more than ever. Words fail me to express the joy I got out of this conference."

Rev. J. F. Morgan: "In my opinion, our Churches have had no finer thing than the Ministers' Conference. I am sure it was most helpful to the ministers, and am persuaded that both the faculty and students of the college were also benefited."

Rev. E. B. White: "Words fail me to adequately express how much I enjoyed the Pastors' Conference at Elon. I have never enjoyed a more helpful experience than that through which I have just passed. The fellowship was sweet, a veritable week of feasting has been enjoyed, and, particularly did I enjoy the Christian atmosphere of our College."

Dr. J. Edward Kirbye: "I want to express my most hearty approval and appreciation of the Pastors' Conference which I was recently privileged to attend at Elon College. It was an inspiration throughout."

Rev. E. M. Carter: "The Ministers' Conference was to me an inspiration and gave me an opportunity I have long desired to know the ministry of the Church and to understand the problems of our Church work. To be on the hill at Elon was a joy and a great privilege."

Dr. W. C. Wicker: "My impressions of the Ministers' Conference are that nothing could have been done better than such a conference to give solidarity of spirit, unity of purpose, oneness of co-operation not only for the colleges, but for all the institutions of the Church. It was educational and inspirational. No minister could return to his field without being far better qualified for having attended the conference. Friendship, fellowship and unanimity will be greatly strengthened among the leaders of the Church, and the constituency of the entire Southern Convention will catch the spirit of loyal co-operation and liberality as a result. I devoutly hope that such a conference may be held annually, for I believe that it will greatly advance the interest and growth of every undertaking of the Church."

Rev. J. E. Amason: "Words cannot express my appreciation of Elon and its noble faculty for the hospitality shown us while there. I greatly enjoyed the program throughout. My stay was only too short in comparison with the way I enjoyed myself."

Rev. R. A. Whitten: "The first Pastors' Conference at Elon is now history. If one might be permitted to speak for all, one would say that we returned to our work with grateful hearts, feeling that we had been richly blessed. We have imbibed the spirit of the institution and have developed a deeper appreciation of the faithful and splendid service being rendered there. Those days of fellowship and prayer strengthened us for our task. May we present the needs of Elon and Bethlehem to our people in the spirit that permeated the atmosphere of the campus during the conference, and may our contributions be such that we can feel the Master would say to us, 'Well done.'"

Rev. S. L. Beougher: "It was a mind stimulus as well as a soul strength. . . . Our joy and deep appreciation is inexpressible. This event will long live in the lives of our pastors."

Rev. H. S. Hardcastle: "The first Pastors' Conference was a genuine inspiration to us all."

Rev. B. J. Earp: "I greatly rejoice in the privileges that were ours at the Ministers' Conference."

Rev. O. D. Poythress: "To me the Ministers' Conference was a mountain-top experience."

Rev. John G. Truitt: "I have always loved our college, but I love and appreciate it even more than ever since the Ministers' Conference."

J. Lee Johnson: "I thoroughly enjoyed the conference, and feel that it will do good throughout our Church."

Rev. Geo. D. Hunt: "One of the most inspiring opportunities of my life was the privilege of attending the Pastors' Conference at Elon College last week. To say we enjoyed it would be making a very mild assertion. True, we did enjoy every moment of the time, and everybody seemed to be doing their best to make some one else happy.

The fellowship with the pastors of the Southern Christian Convention was indeed a rich fellowship."

Rev. C. E. Gerringer: "The Pastors' Conference meant many things to each of us. Inspiration, information (first-hand), and fellowship were abundant. It certainly was a great pleasure to attend this conference."

AN APPRECIATION.

BY DR. J. EDWARD KIRBYE.

There are three appreciations which stand out in my own heart as I return from the fellowship conference at Elon College. The first is a picture made possible by Dr. Harper on Tuesday evening when we were carried back to the beginnings of Elon, whose foundations were laid in the prayers and in the mighty faith of the fathers. Into the visions of those days and the years that followed are the consecrated endeavors of Dr. Newman, Dr. Staley, Dr. Long, Dr. Atkinson, Dr. Barrett, Dr. Harper and many others. Around these, of course, are the Churches and the ministers, with the loyalty of trustees, students and faculty. That was the picture which I had following the session of Tuesday evening. When the benediction had been pronounced I said to myself, this is one of the first examples of Christian education to be found in this country.

The second appreciation has to do with the ministers of the Churches. My experience with ministers of the Christian Church has been limited to those who led me into the Christian faith and stimulated my hope until the days in college. The heritage of the past has been kept by the ministers of Virginia and North Carolina, and in scholarship, devotion to the Bible, they need make no apologies, as they come into a working fellowship with Congregationalists. As I saw them at the conference and became acquainted with them, I saw also committees from Congregational Churches seeking to secure their ministries.

The third impression seemed to be a call—a challenge—to our Churches and ministers that Elon College should be carried forward into the new era with still added power. The present imperative seemed to be that Christian Churches, ministers, and laymen, and Congregational Churches, ministers, and laymen should in prayer and consecration see the need and meet it, and give the college the prestige and power with one million of added endowment. It may be a back-breaking job for Dr. Harper and his associates, but the work needs to be done. Personally, I should like to see additional training given to that large group of young men who are studying for the ministry.

Raleigh, N. C.

NOTES-PERSONALS

Mrs. Annie Staley Calhoun has been giving considerable time and attention to THE CHRISTIAN SUN campaign, and has secured twenty-two new subscribers. This is the largest list secured, but one, so far by any individual.

Mr. Edwin J. Hopkins, Lynchburg, Va., in renewing his subscription to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, says: "To my mind, THE CHRISTIAN SUN has the right ring to it, and is worthy of a large place in the hearts and homes of the people."

Mrs. Nannie Royster, of Virgilina, Va., has been a reader of THE CHRISTIAN SUN for many years. She expresses the hope that THE SUN may continue to shine in her home, no matter how it may rain and snow on the outside.

One of the fine features of the Pastors' Conference was the "retreat" that was held each morning at 7 o'clock for prayer and meditation. Those who had the pleasure and the privilege of attending this prayer service were greatly uplifted in their spirit.

There seems to be a fine opening in Louisiana for two Christian Churches, according to Mrs. H. W. Allen, of Marion, La., Route 3. She speaks very kindly of Rev. G. H. Veasey, Jr., who some time since conducted a singing school in that section and preached most acceptably to the people.

Mr. Hermon Eldredge has been asked to give the address on Lincoln's Birthday, February 13th, in Hodgenville, Ky. This is not only an honor to Bro. Eldredge, but he will make it an opportunity. He has a most appreciative conception of Lincoln and the ability to get his ideas across to other people.

Dr. S. Q. Helfenstein is the first delegate of the Christian Church to sign up for the World's Sunday School Convention, to be held at Los Angeles in July. Our Church should be well represented at this gathering of Christian workers. Let all who are interested send their applications, with the $5.00 registration fee, to W. A. Harper, Elon College, N. C.

Our colored brethren are to have a "summer" school in the winter, as usual. Mr. Hermon Eldredge, of the General Board of Christian Education, is to be in charge and will be assisted by Dr. Staley, Dr. Rowland, and others. The work begins on February 27th and will last for a week. Franklinton seems to be doing a good work among the colored people.

Dr. Job G. Holland, always interested in the work of the kingdom, is anxious that several of our people should subscribe for the Southern Congregationalist and is practicing what he preaches. A very prominent member of the Congregational Church is of the opinion that the Southern Congregationalist and THE CHRISTIAN SUN should merge into a single publication.

The Congregationalists are thinking strongly of moving their Atlanta Seminary to the environs of Elon College. Leaders in the Congregational Church feel their Atlanta Seminary should be linked up with a distinctively college atmosphere and are favorably inclined toward Elon as the place. Evidently the Congregationalists do not believe in taking out their faith in Christian union in mere talk.

We very much regret an error in the date for the Summer School of Christian Methods, to be held at Elon College this summer. We announced it as July 23rd to 30th, whereas it should have been June 23rd to 30th. Let everybody plan to boost this school this summer. It means much for the future of our work.

The Elon College Catalogue for 1927-28 is due to be from the presses of the Central Publishing Company, Richmond, Va., this week. The catalogue shows the college is fully abreast of the times in its curriculum and that it enjoys the support of a fine group of our people. A copy of the catalogue can be had free by applying to C. M. Cannon, registrar, Elon College, N. C.

Special attention is called to an article in this week's paper on "Attitude," by Rev. G. H. Veasey. Some weeks past, Bro. Veasey wrote on "Meditation," which has attracted considerable attention. This time he has undertaken to portray his own mind and heart and spirit. Bro. Veasey is scheduled to graduate from Elon College in the senior class. He is a mature man and will make an excellent pastor.

The United Church of Raleigh certainly has the right name. Just about a year ago the Christian Church in that city united with the Congregational people there to form a United Church. Now, on February 3rd, the Friends of Raleigh have decided to come into the united organization. The Church is in a flourishing condition, and its future as a community servant is bright. Dr. J. Edward Kirby, the pastor, is leading most efficiently and effectively in the work.

How many local Churches can a Christian belong to? This question has been asked THE CHRISTIAN SUN. Several individuals are known to be members in good standing in at least two Churches. Why should not a Christian belong to as many Churches as he pleases? If we could all belong to all of them we would soon wipe out the arbitrary differences that now divide up the kingdom of Jesus Christ into competing groups and hasten the day of Christian union.

Dr. J. O. Atkinson and Dr. W. W. Staley have arrived in Florida. Dr. Staley will shortly return to his work in Suffolk, but Dr. Atkinson is to bask in the sunshine and inhale the balmy atmosphere of the Florida west coast for some delightful days of relaxation and body-building. He deserves his rest, and earnest prayer is being made that it may prove strengthening and recuperative for him speedily and in high degree.

Sam Davis and his wife, according to laetter from Col. Junius H. Harden, made a very fine impression at the Graham-Providence Memorial Church, at Graham, on last Sunday morning. Rev. T. E. White, who was present at the services, writes a word of appreciation in this issue. That evening these good people were at the Burlington Christian Church, and Miss Cotten, in her field notes from Burlington, speaks very appreciatively of their effort there.

The pastors, many of them, who attended the first Pastors' Conference, January 23-27th, speak out of their hearts in this week's issue. The brethren seemed to have enjoyed themselves, and certainly the college enjoyed having them. Several of them have written that they will know now how to present the claims of the college for the offering this year. They have learned the institution intimately and have come to appreciate it as never before, and they are confident that they will be able to pass on the contagion of their own enthusiasm to their members. They also have realized the needs of the college as never before and have determined that those needs shall be met, so far as they are able to make it possible.

The Elon College Alumni of Wake County, fifty-two of them, sat down to a banquet in the dining-room of the United Church of Raleigh on the evening of February 3rd, and following a splendid dinner and several addresses, an organization was effected by Dr. W. H. Boone, general alumni president. The officers are John P. Swain, president; Mrs. D. B. Bryan, vice-president; Mrs. Oma U. Johnson, secretary, and George A. Isley, treasurer. These four officers, with W. L. Anderson, Foste Dr. Finch and Harold W. Johnson, constitute the executive committee, who are empowered to increase the number of charter members within the next thirty days and to take steps to perfect the organization and arrange for a second meeting. It was a splendid, enthusiastic gathering, and will mean much for the college.

WADLEY, ALA.

One of the most inspiring opportunities of my life was the privilege of attending the Pastors' Conference at Elon College last week. To say we enjoyed it would be making a very mild assertion. True, we did enjoy every moment of the time, and everybody seemed to be doing their best to make some one else happy.

The lectures and the discussions, as well as the music, were an inspiration that I shall never forget. The association, with the faculty, student body and the citizenship of Elon, was a coveted pleasure. Everything moved on schedule time. It seemed as though there was a time to every purpose "under the heaven." The fellowship with the pastors of the Southern Christian Convention was indeed a rich fellowship. I found that all ministerial and Church problems were not in the Alabama Conference, but many problems face the Church of Jesus Christ everywhere. In fact, I believe that the Church will always be facing problems, and should her problems cease, her usefulness would cease. But we understand each other better, we understand the general trend of the work of our dear Church and ministry much better than we did before the conference. I feel that with such a sweet fellowship together we will be better able to glorify our Christ with our service and faith.

I especially enjoyed seeing what the college was doing for the youth of our Church. I wish more of our young people could be induced to go to Elon, and they will, for as the years come and go our young men and women will realize the need of life preparation. I was much pleased to see so many of our Bethlehem students at Elon, going on to the completion of their college course, made possible by Bethlehem Junior College. Young men and women graduating this year, and some next year, and on and on, with the end not in sight as to what the result shall be, as Elon, our senior college, shall be fed with students from Bethlehem, our junior college. Oh! if we could just get enough financial help to enable Bethlehem to firmly plant itself and show to the youth of our country that which they are seeking to know. And I pray God to help us all to realize the need of just such an opportunity as Bethlehem presents. Some of the most consecrated and pious men of the Convention of the Christian Church have had their beginning here in our Church in Georgia and Alabama. But, thank God, they are doing a great work in other sections of our great Church. And still we have other talent just as good, just as devout, with just as great possibilities and with just as much con-

(Continued on Page 15.)

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

GROWING IN GRACE.

By JOHN G. TRUITT, Preacher.

"But grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ."—2 Peter 3:18.

We are gathered today around the Lord's table. And we are going to let the great apostle Peter furnish the words of our meditation as we commune with our Christ and one another. So often in the days of Jesus' ministry on earth Peter was a spokesman for those who were following Him. We shall hear His counsel today: "Grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ." Peter was the apostle of the great hope, as John was the apostle of love, and Paul of faith. How fitting, for Peter's faith and love had grown from his sincere hope in Christ Jesus—grown, mind you, from the tiniest of seeds to a tree of towering strength in the early Church.

The word "grow." The word grow is itself a word filled with hope. Lying back of it is a little stream growing into a great river; a little plant growing into a giant oak; a little child growing into a big man, or a noble woman. It is the hope of a gardner, and the prayer of a parent. On account of the meaning and measure of that word, the farmer puts forth his arduous toil, and God gives the rain. On account of that word and the necessity of growth in dying souls, Jesus wrought the background for the supper which we now come to celebrate. Because Peter had grown and grown, and discovered the real source of his growth he closed his last epistle with the command to grow.

It was for Peter a reminiscent word. It carried him back across many years to the shores of Galilee, or to the uplit face of his brother Andrew, as rushing up to Peter he cried out, "We have found the Messiah." It carried him back to a strange, big moment when he had felt and known truly that which he expressed when he said: "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." With power to humble, it reminded him of some much-needed rebukes from Jesus, and of a cold, bitter morning when he declared he never knew Him. It reminded him of his Saviour's prayers, and of His patience, and His matchless words of love. It reminded him of the time when his hope for the growth of the kingdom on earth was well-nigh dead, and he had turned about to go fishing. And it reminded him of the time on the seashore when Jesus had sounded the depth of His love, and prophesied His loyalty even unto death. Oh! one has to know the great, weak, strong apostle to appreciate the full force of his command, "Grow."

It was not only a word of hope, and reminiscent; but it is a word that aptly characterizes the Church of that early day. By the time Peter wrote the words of our meditation the twelve disciples who had gathered about Jesus in the upper room had increased until it was fitting that his epistle should be addressed to followers of Christ found "throughout Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia." It was never intended that the Church should do other than grow. God is the God of the living. The living is the growing. The dying is the failing to grow. If our Church ceases to grow it begins to die; if our lives cease to grow they begin to die; and if our influence ceases to grow it begins to die. The sin-cursed world is dying for a growing Church.

We could pause much longer on this word, but we must come to the twin-words that follow it. The first of these two words is "grace." Grace takes us into another realm. "Grow" made us think of ourselves, or folks in general, but "grace" makes us think of God in particular. We are they who are to grow, but it is God's to give us grace. And thus side by side God and man are at work in our beautiful world. Man is planting and watering under the leadership of the Holy Spirit and God is giving the increase.

For Peter, the word "grace" was more understandable than definable. Not once has he tried to tell us just what it is, but in the trials of life he found himself wrapped in it as a little child is wrapped in a blanket. Without it he would have long, long ago been a forgotten fisherman in the far-off land of Galilee. Without it he would have made so many mistakes even after Jesus had called him to become a fisher of men, his life would have been a sad failure. Instead of going out to win the world, he would have been putting all he could get into a tabernacle on top of the Mount of transfiguration. God wants beautiful places of worship, but He wants them built out of real, hard service down in the valleys below. Grace led Peter to where the need was greatest. Oh! think of His sermon on the Day of Pentecost! Or His sermon in the home of Cornelius! Without grace, Peter would have never returned to Christ after that dull gray morning when he brought so much shame upon himself. Grace brought him back. Without grace he would have cut off more than a man's ear, and lost more than his own head. He would have cut off somebody's head, and without grace lost his own soul. Yes, to Peter grace was more understandable than definable, for in spite of all his mistakes and heartaches he found himself not forgotten when his Lord arose in mighty triumph from the grave. "Go and tell my disciples and Peter" showed grace to Peter at its best.

"Grace, grace, God's grace;
Grace that cleanses my soul within—
Grace, grace, God's grace;
Grace that is greater than all my sin."

It would seem that to Peter, as to many another, grace served to emphasize the servanthip of the Son of God. Have you ever seen a servant at work? Cleaning, ministering, and making the dirty and dull bright. Doing the soiling tasks in order that poor sinners might appear clean and holy before God. Men, there is enough gospel to send us to our knees! Jesus, the Son of God, came to be a Servant, in order that we might be served, and given power to become sons of God! Briefly speaking, grace is unmerited favor. We do not merit such blessing, but God loves us and looks at us through His Son who is willing to stand in our stead, and to die as a malefactor upon the cross in order that we might be redeemed! "Grace and truth came by Jesus Christ." "We believe that through the grace of the Lord Jesus we shall be saved," says Paul in Lycaonia. And our own hearts as we gather around this table today bear the self-same testimony. "For all have sinned and come short of the glory of God, being justified freely by His grace through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus: Whom God hath set forth to be a propitiation through faith in His blood, to declare His righteousness for the remission of sins that are past; through the forbearance of God . . . that He might be just, and the justifier of him which believeth in Jesus." And so Peter's command to grow in grace is rightly enough a benediction at the close of his last epistle, for it becomes our great petition to God our Father!

But Peter entreats us not only to grow in grace, but he adds: "And in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ." So we are to grow in grace, and in the knowledge of just how to use that grace. It seems an awful thing to even think that grace may be wrongfully used! Grace is in itself so beneficent, unselfish, unmerited it seems well-nigh impossible to conceive of its being abused and made by the foul hand of man to work evil. How utterly bad! But we read in the little book of Jude a strange and awful phrase: "For there are certain men crept in unawares . . . ungodly men . . . turning the grace of our God into lasciviousness." "Shall we continue in sin, that grace may abound? God forbid!" In order that no such foul play as this may occur in our lives, Peter admonishes us to add to our growing grace a correspondingly great growth in "the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ."

"Grace and truth," indeed, "came by Jesus Christ," for He said, "I am the Way, the Truth, and the Life." And again, "If the truth shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed." With Peter the growing in knowledge of Jesus was more of an experience than it was a lesson he could teach to others. How little he knew of Jesus at first! how slowly sometimes he seemed to learn! and how little he really understood at a very late hour! Jesus had been the great Teacher, and how marvelous the privilege Peter had! But let us who have not the privilege which he enjoyed remember that Peter's great sermons and testimonies came from the teachings of the Holy Spirit. "But the Comforter, which is the Holy Ghost, whom the Father will send in my name, He shall teach you all things and bring all things to your remembrance, whatsoever I have said unto you." Peter's activities, limited to the Jews, broadened under the teachings of the Holy Spirit until they took in all peoples. If we desire to increase in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, we have no less a Teacher than the Holy Spirit.

As we partake of the emblems today, representing the broken body and spilt blood of Jesus Christ, let us partake in remembrance of Him, and with the sincere petition that we may indeed "Grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ."

Rev. H. W. Elder, from the hospital in Plains, Ga., under date of February 1st, writes: "I have been here several weeks and do not know how much longer I must remain. I am unable to talk and cannot walk, but I can hear and see and enjoy my meals. I cannot write much, but I certainly rejoice to hear from the brethren. The doctors say that I am improving, but it is slow. I do not know how long I will be able to remain in the hospital. If I was able, I would remain here for some time. Please extend my kind wishes to all the friends and THE CHRISTIAN SUN family."

Bro. B. W. Morton, one of our faithful workers in Porto Rico, has suffered a temporary relapse. His physician suggests an operation. Instead of returning, therefore, from his work the first of July, as originally voted by our Mission Board last fall, Bro. Morton will return about the first of May. Bro. Barrett, it is expected, will return to Porto Rico as soon after the schools close in the South as possible, in order to make the gap between Bro. Morton's leaving and his returning as small as possible. Will the brotherhood be earnest in prayer for the good health and recovery of Bro. Morton?

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, Elon College, N. C.

Contributing Editors

W. W. STALEY

W. A. HARPER

R. C. HELFENSTEIN

S. C. HARRELL

PRINCIPLES OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

- (1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
- (2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
- (3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of Church membership.
- (5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

PROHIBITION.

This question has been before the American people for nearly a century in the form of temperance societies, educational programs, and felt necessity. Temperance was taught and intemperance was condemned as far back as Jewish times. Whiskey and brandy were unknown in those early days when temperance people drank neither wine nor strong drink. The art of distillation as applied to whiskey is only a thousand years old. It finally made such inroads upon human interests and domestic life that men who were concerned for human character and welfare began to agitate the public mind by calling attention to ravages made upon human decency, domestic happiness, business safety, and political honesty, that the Churches and schools began to educate the young of the nation in the necessity for prohibition. Railroad authorities were the first to declare for prohibition. Their rules prohibited engineers from using intoxicating liquors while on duty. That was purely a business step in the direction of railroad safety and profit. The Church, through the Sunday School lessons and the pulpit, persisted in teaching temperance, and more and more advanced toward prohibition. The saloon finally reached the stage of controlling politics and political leaders and parties. Meetings were held in bar-rooms to select candidates for office, and the convention where candidates were chosen became a farce and a menace to Christian civilization. The moral sense of the nation, through the spiritual life and teachings of the Church, grew into an invisible force that demanded the abolition of the saloon and a sober people. This public sentiment increased to such proportions that politicians began to court the support of temperance voters. Local option was introduced and States prohibited the legal sale of intoxicants. Brewers and saloon men laughed at the movement. It could never be national. The revenue was too great from this source and the nation could not afford to abolish the saloon and the entire liquor business.

Well, local option and State prohibition grew until nation-wide prohibition gave us the eighteenth amendment. Then whiskey people quit laughing at the question and began to violate law and put forth propaganda to show that prohibition was a failure. Appetite and the "love of money" which "is the root of all evil" still persists in trying to make men believe that prohibition is a failure. But revenue has increased, business has grown, savings accounts have multiplied, homes have improved, religious and benevolent institutions have grown out of all proportion of other days, and conditions have become permanent in support of prohibition. Hotels live without bars, homes live without drunken husbands, politicians dare not offer for office on a wet declaration, and travel has become safe and decent. Those who declare otherwise either betray ignorance or disloyalty. Enforcement fails because officials and bootleggers join in the violation of the law. For the period of its history, the eighteenth amendment is observed as well as the tax on tobacco or the stamp tax on whiskey in the early stages of these laws. More illicit liquor was made in saloon days to avoid the tax than in these days under the eighteenth amendment. Then it was in barrels; now in cans, jugs, and bottles.

Slavery will come back as easily as the saloon. It looks as if it were all providential. The saloon went out as the automobile came in. They could exist together no more than religion and the drunkard could live together.

IF—

Suppose there had been no called session of the Southern Christian Convention in the old Providence Church, mother of Churches for Alamance County, not only in the Christian denomination, but in other denominations as well.

Suppose Dr. Wm. S. Long had been content with the Graham Normal College, of which he was president and owner in Graham, N. C., and had not aspired for a standard college as a training school for ministers and laymen for his denomination.

Suppose Dr. J. Pressley Barrett, as editor of THE CHRISTIAN SUN, in 1888, had not thrown the influence of the Church paper behind the project of a college for his Church. Suppose he had kept silent through the columns of THE SUN in regard to this new enterprise.

Suppose that immortal group of ministers and laymen who met in Graham, N. C., in September, 1888, in the extraordinary session of the Southern Christian Convention, had been cautious and timorous men rather than courageous and fearless men, men of faith and men of action.

Suppose that equally immortal committee on location appointed by the Graham Convention of 1888 had not taken their work seriously and had concluded that the Christian Church did not have the spirit of sacrifice and of progress sufficient to warrant them in undertaking to locate the institution they had been commissioned to found.

Suppose the Christian Church had not been able, after the founding and building of the plant for its location, to find individuals qualified in scholarship and at the same time endowed with the spirit of sacrifice ready to undertake to invest their lives that the Christian Church might have a standard college in the South.

Suppose there had not arisen among us for the purpose of carrying the weighty responsibilities of administration in this college such men as Presidents Staley and Moffitt, and faculty chairmen such as Newman and Atkinson.

Suppose the fountain sources of generosity in our Church had dried up following the initial enthusiasm for founding Elon. Suppose, in particular, that the Southern Christian Convention had not placed its schools and colleges in the apportionment table and that there had been no twentieth century fund, no special fund, no standardization fund, no men and millions, and no emergency fund.

Suppose there had been no Patrick Henry Lees, no Willis J. Lees, no Jesse Winborns, no James A. Fosters, no J. J. Summerbells, no A. J. Watts, no W. F. Corwiths, no P. J. Carltons, no S. B. Klapps, no I. W. Pritchards, and such like noble spirits of generous impulse, by bequest or during their lifetime, to have provided endowment funds of permanent character for our college.

Suppose when the great fire of January 18, 1923, came, there had been no spirit of sacrifice and appreciation for the college in Alamance County. Suppose there had not arisen any Carlton family, any J. M. Darden, any B. N. & J. B. Duke, nor any M. Orbin in that dire crisis.

Suppose there had been no spirit of loyalty in the hearts of our people generally, inducing them to patronize the college and inspiring them to sacrifice materially for its advancement.

Suppose that Elon had not prepared for the ministry of the Christian Church 103 college graduates, and suppose that our college had not sent back into the Churches as local leaders several thousand laymen and laywomen of broad vision and consecrated devotion to the work of the kingdom.

If none of these things had been, where would the Christian Church be today?

And if the Christian Church in this day does not arise to the support of our colleges as those of former days have arisen, where will the Christian Church be in the next generation?

Where?

W. A. H.

THE GLORY OF OLD AGE.

I.

Too many people think only of the limitations of old age, and of the tightening lines that with each successive year draw the closer in circumscribing life's activities.

It is true, birthdays do count. The aching limbs and tired muscles testify of the mile-stones that have been passed in one's pilgrimage from the cradle toward the grave. The steps grow heavier with the passing years, and sureness of foot becomes uncertainty of step. The eyes may grow dim with the fleeting days of constant usage. The hair may be frosted white with the weight of many winters. Courage for the difficult tasks of life may falter. Ambition for greater achievements may have little urge. And a feeling of desire to withdraw from the busy activities and social exactions may at times possess the soul. Memory may bring back the experiences of the years long gone by, but refuse to register the experiences of the past months. The burden of the years may lie heavily upon the shoulders, causing them to stoop beneath the load of time. There may steal into the soul in moments of quietude a feeling of loneliness for the friends and experiences of the yesterdays. And at times a feeling of home-sickness may creep into the heart—the desire to go to the eternal home to be with the Father and His family of the redeemed—and to fellowship again with the friends who have gone ahead.

But old age can still be glorious, if in spite of these limitations and accompaniments of old age, one will refuse to let time rob him of the joys of eternity in the here and now. Even the limitations of old age may be capitalized as they remind one of the glorious privileges life has afforded. "Winter may be on one's head while one keeps eternal summer in his soul."

Old age is not a thing one should seek to betray. It is not a thing one should feel inclined to deny. It is not a thing to be ashamed of; neither is it a thing to dread, for death is the only alternative to old age. Youth is not necessarily the happiest time of life. Old age ought to be the happiest period in life because it has gleaned the brightest thoughts of the passing years and holds the accumulated experiences of happiness down through the earlier stages of life, and because it has had experience rich in the harvest of ideas and ideals. Happiness is not the product of activity, but of meditation. Happiness is a thing of the mind, and not of the feet. Nimbleness of limb may speak of muscular energy. But evaluations and interpretations by a mind well stored with ripe experience alone can speak of happiness. That experience is only entrusted to age.

The youthful face is not necessarily the most beautiful face. The aged face may have a beauty to which the beauty of youth cannot compare. Some of the most beautiful and most charming people I have ever seen have been people who were "living on borrowed time." A young heart in an old body is always the greatest inspiration of life.

Men and women who keep their enthusiasm often make their largest contribution to the world's good in their old age. The accumulation of knowledge made possible by the experiences crowded into many years of life fits men and women for a service that is impossible for youth or for middle life. If one keeps young in faith, in hope and in love, knowledge ripened by the experience of age should always enable one to realize in old age the greatest achievements of his life.

Michelangelo gave the world his greatest masterpieces in sculpture and in art after he was eighty years old. Titian, the master painter, when ninety, was busy in his studio giving the world paintings that have been handed down through the centuries because of their perfection as productions of art. Gladstone, at eighty-one, was the leading statesman of Great Britain, his contemporaries declaring that he became more and more progressive in his thought and in his idealism with the advancing years. The late Dr. Elliot, ex-president of Harvard University, was writing for the leading publications of the day when ninety-one years old. Newton W. Clarke, the great theologian, when ninety-two years old came to New Haven and delivered to us students in the Yale Divinity School a lecture which, with its freshness and power of thought, challenged the younger generation to a greater advance in their thinking. And after delivering that great pronouncement to the students of Yale University, at ninety-two years of age he made a trip around the world, visiting the principal foreign mission stations of the Orient.

Old age is always glorious for those who keep their eyes toward the future, for those who believe that the best days are yet to come. Old age is always glorious for those who keep in sympathetic touch with the ambitions, the imaginations and the dreams of the rising generation. Old age is always glorious for those who know God, and who love their fellow-men. Old age is always glorious for those who have learned the art of getting along happily with other people.

Old age is glorious for those whose lives have been spent in the service of God. To such, the memory of the experiences of loving service to God and to mankind, the memory of the victories over temptation, the memories of the fellowship with the Christ whom they have known and loved down through the years, the memories of worthy deeds of loving service to humanity, is a wealth to which the wealth of gold and land cannot be compared. The poet has impressively analyzed for us the art of growing old gracefully, cheerfully, ly, peacefully, willingly, wealthily, happily and gloriously.

"Softly, oh, softly the years have swept by thee,
Touching thee lightly with tenderest care;
Sorrow and death they have often brought nigh thee,
Yet have they left thee but beauty to wear—
Growing old gracefully,
Gracefully fair.

"Far from the storms that are lashing the ocean,
Nearer each day to that pleasant home light;
Far from the waves that are big with commotion,
Under full sail and the harbor in sight,
Growing old cheerfully,
Cheerful and bright.

"Past all the winds that were adverse and chilling,
Past all the islands that lured thee to rest,
Past all the currents that lured thee unwilling,
Far from thy course to the land of the blest—
Growing old peacefully,
Peaceful and blest.

"Never a feeling of envy or sorrow
When the bright faces of children are seen,
Never a year from the young wouldst thou borrow:
'Thou dost remember what lieth between—
Growing old willingly,
'Thankful, serene.'

"Rich in experience that angels might covet,
Rich in a faith that has grown with thy years,
Rich in a love that grew from and about it,
Soothing thy sorrows and hushing thy fears—
Growing old wealthily,
Loving and dear.

"Hearts at the sound of thy coming are lightened,
Ready and willing thy hand to relieve;
Many a face at thy kind word has brightened:
'It is more blessed to give than receive'—
Growing old happily,
Ceasing to grieve."

R. C. H.

THE NEED OF THE HOUR.

BY MRS. R. J. NEWTON.

For some time I have been studying what seems to me to be the greatest need of the hour, and upon this New Year's Day I had the great pleasure in hearing a message from the sacred desk along this line. I shall not attempt to outline or repeat what my friend said. However, I may use one or more statements he made. To me the keyword to the message was "The greatest need of this community, this State, this United States, is an old-fashioned prayer-meeting revival of pure religion."

We gave a loud amen to that, because it was just the thing we had been thinking seriously upon. All true Christians realize the same, I am sure. Now why are we in Christian (supposed to be) America standing in need of a mighty revival? We have our Bibles, we have our Churches, we have our preachers and our colleges to teach and help us. Then we have free access to a throne of grace which is the dynamic of all spiritual power. A Saviour came into the world as a Redeemer to give life, yes, to give the abundant life, that we might be happy. He came, but the world would not have Him. They crucified Him. They will not have Him today. He comes to the Church today to bring to her a fresh outpouring of spiritual life and power. But the material side of life has gained the victory, and against its best interests the pathetic and tragic conclusion is often reached, "No need and no time for a revival." We repeat that the great need of the hour is a real Holy Ghost revival of pure religion. It takes real courage in this day to stand true to the spiritual convictions one has in regard to the world and its standards. We, as Christians, are not only Christians, but baptized Christians, and the Church and the world are expecting, and have a right to expect, true Christians to live according to higher standards than those the world, with all its wisdom and philosophy, can afford. When Jesus comes to our hearts, does He find room, or have the things of this world so occupied us that through neglect we have starved our lives and wounded His heart? The heart and life must be emptied of worldliness before Christ can come in and fill us. O that our real desire and prayer might be, "Lord, send a revival and let it begin in me."

Our friend, in his new year's message, stated that we need a revival of pure religion—a religion that will make us honest with God and man; a religion that will make us love one another (not hate); a religion that will keep us separated from the world; a religion that will make the preachers stand behind the cross and preach Christ and Him crucified, repentance and faith in Him as the only hope of eternal life; a religion that will make the preacher realize his responsible place as shepherd and spiritual adviser of his flock—yea, as professed Christians, we need a religion that will make us a new creature (creation, if you please) in Christ Jesus, crucified to the world and worldly things. Beloved, our Lord is able and willing to open the windows of heaven and pour out His Spirit in a mighty revival. We believe that it is His will to do this, but the Church has got to meet the conditions.

How much concern have we for the condition of the cold and seemingly powerless Church and for lost souls all about us? Would we like to see our altars filled with those who were really weeping out their sins? If so, the Church must do some weeping first. Are we praying daily for the lost of this world? May the Holy Spirit examine our hearts, and may we pray as David did, "Search me, O Lord, and know my heart; try me and know my thoughts, and see if there be any wicked way in me, and lead me in the way of everlasting."

The writer truly feels the need of a revival in his own heart. We all need a revival, first, because we have drifted so far from God that we are spiritually dead. We have failed to take time to keep in touch with Him who alone can revive our hearts and restore unto us the joys of salvation. Second, we need a revival for our own good and for the good of our fellow-men, that we may be able to teach others the way of life. The old-time revival, the old style and customs, too many regard as out of date. The cry is for something new, even a new religion. If we have Christ, why not be satisfied? Christ and His religion are the same. They never change. This old-time religion was good enough for Paul, and he was perhaps the greatest Christian character of all time. Then why is it not good enough for twentieth-century folks? We declare unto you that it is good enough; in fact, it is the best! Then why not accept it, live it, preach and teach it. We repeat again, that the greatest need of the hour is an old-time revival. Revived and filled with His power, our lives will be so transformed that the world will see Christ in us. Then Christians will be known by their conversation and daily walk. The Church and the world can never walk together. "Come out from among them," says the Lord. Shall we not repent of our lukewarmness and our lack of power, and cry mightily to God for a great revival, that the year of 1928 may be the best year we have ever known in His service?

Henderson, N. C.

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

Two words will attract attention of those who read THE CHRISTIAN SUN—Dr. J. O. Atkinson and Florida. Well, I left Suffolk, Va., with Dr. Atkinson at 10:15 A. M., February 1, 1928, over the Seaboard Air Line for Orlando, Fla. As many of THE SUN readers know, Dr. Atkinson has been tired, afflicted, or in a low state of health since Christmas. It may be a sort of nervous collapse from overwork. We all know that he has been taxed up to the limit by strenuous efforts as Secretary of Missions for the Southern Christian Convention and editor of THE CHRISTIAN SUN. Either of these is a big job for one man, and both on one such is a load too heavy for him or any other man. The main burden as Mission Secretary is the financial responsibility which it involves. If Church members realized the necessity for money to carry on the missionary work of the Convention, and to pay the obligations already assumed, they would be more liberal and more prompt in paying money into the mission treasury. In addition to the conditions that have kept Dr. Atkinson in at Mrs. Jennie Lee's, on Nansemond River, he had an attack of sciatic rheumatism on Sunday, the 29th of January, and hobbled along with difficulty as we started to Orlando.

The trip to Orlando, via Raleigh, Hamlet, Jacksonville, and Wildwood, was with safety and comfort. We reached Orlando after twenty-six hours and a half of continuous travel; were met at the station by Miss Mary D. Atkinson, who is teaching music in this city of thirty thousand, and when taken altogether, the nicest city in Florida. Miss Mary D. had supper with her father in his room in the hotel, and it was a real happy home meal. Mrs. Haughton, with whom Miss Mary D. boards, met us at the station, brought us to the hotel, and then carried me over the city and around the beautiful lakes in a regular summer spin. We spent the night at the San Juan Hotel, in the heart of the city, and had a night of good rest. Dr. Atkinson feels much better this morning, and hopes to be himself again in a month or two, which he will spend in rest in this lively lake city.

This morning Mrs. Haughton and her sister, Mrs. Arnold, of Jacksonville, Fla., carried us over to the Florida Sanitarium, where engagement was made for entrance this afternoon (Friday, February 3rd). Dr. Atkinson will be on their diet and take treatments, and I will remain with him for a week. By that time he may be able to leave the sanitarium and locate elsewhere for rest. The weather here is ideal, and his prospects for health and return to his work loom up like a rising sun. The fact that his daughter, Mary D., is here and they can be together some, adds a new charm to the situation and makes Florida and orange groves all the sweeter to him. He knows that a multitude of friends are praying for him, and this stirs his gratitude and brightens his hopes.

The Florida Sanitarium is owned and operated by the same people who conduct the Battle Creek Sanitarium, and a similar one in Washington, D. C. When I see in so many parts of the world what Christianity has done for afflicted humanity, as well as for the salvation of sinners; and then when I see what Christianity has done for woman and what she is now doing for the afflicted in the hospitals of the world, it fills me with a new confidence in and love for Jesus Christ.

W. W. STALEY.

ELON LETTER.

One of the most hopeful signs on the horizon of our college for the future, it seems to me, is the awakening that is taking place among the alumni, headed by Dr. W. H. Boone, of Durham, president, and George D. Colclough, Elon College, N. C., general alumni secretary.

The alumni of the college are not only the fate of their institution, but in a very real and vital sense they are the institution itself. According as they plan wisely for the development of their alma mater will their institution go forward. According as they lack vision, judgment and consecration for the future of their college will it languish and flounder.

Dr. Boone addressed the Pastors' Conference recently held at our college and outlined to this forward-looking group of our leaders his plan for the development of the college through strengthening the work of the alumni. As I listened to his presentation and have talked with him since and with these to whom he had talked, I sensed three major objectives. Every one of these objectives exhibits in my judgment a statesman-like approach to our situation.

The first objective toward which Dr. Boone is adjusting himself is the provision of a medium of expression for the alumni. He has, therefore, arranged, he informs us, for "The Elon Alumni Voice," a quarterly magazine on a high intellectual and cultural level to which only the alumni of the college will be permitted to contribute. The first issue of this magazine is to appear this month, and it promises to introduce a new day of hopeful enthusiasm for the alumni.

The second objective is the organization of local alumni associations in communities where there are as many as five alumni and to grant to these local organizations the right of representation in the General Alumni Association, which is to meet in connection with each commencement and which is to be the legislative body of the alumni. In this way, not those who happen to live near the college, but the alumni generally will, through the alumni council, outline the policies and project the campaigns and in other ways carry out the plans of the Alumni Association.

Dr. Boone's third objective is to begin a series of class reunions by decades in connection with each commencement, and at the approaching commencement he hopes to have present representatives of the classes of 1898, 1908 and 1918. These classes will be expected to hold a banquet for good-fellowship and renewal of the old times and in other ways to deepen their affection for their alma mater through association with each other and a pilgrimage of devotion to this their intellectual shrine.

Dr. Boone's mind is fertile in inaugurating plans and methods. No doubt he has other objectives in mind for the progressive development of the alumni work, but these three are surely ample to cause us to take heart, renew our courage, and press forward.

W. A. HARPER.

BETHLEHEM LETTER.

Shall We Close or Destroy Our Colleges?

The summary of the situation of our colleges with many people is that they are an expensive luxury, that we have already invested in Elon and Bethlehem over a million dollars and that it costs over fifty thousand dollars annually to maintain them. That there is no money income from the investment and the average salary paid faculty members is, in round numbers, fifteen hundred dollars; that the students do not pay but one-third of what it costs the institution to educate them, and the schools are only open nine months out of each year. So why not close them up or tear them down?

Where shall we begin? There is only one place where we can begin. Of course, we could make an assault on other denominational colleges, but that would get us into serious trouble. The only colleges that we can tear down with safety and impunity are our own. Let us put the question, then: Shall we tear down or close up our own Elon and Bethlehem Colleges? Well, why not? Think of the saving it would mean! Just think what we could do with fifty thousand dollars a year! Of course, you know how much of that sum would be turned back into your own pocket each year, for you know exactly how much you give. Last year the average for the whole Southern Christian Convention was approximately one dollar per member. Just think what a good time we could have with that dollar! It would buy four tickets to the movies, or twenty 5-cent cigars, or twenty soft drinks, or four ice cream sodas, or a ticket to a ball game.

Then, we would save time, too. Think of the time our boys and girls waste attending our educational institutions when they could be out making money. Just think of the time we have spent worrying over them on account of their being away from home, and how much time it has taken to earn the money to keep them in college. Imagine what we could do with all that released time if only our colleges were torn down! Bring on the wrecking crew, then, that there be no visible reminder of Christian education to trouble our consciences within the bounds of the whole Convention. Out to the golf course; away to the seashore, home to the radio; in to the movies! Down with the colleges! You know that next year Elon College will be thirty-nine years old, and Bethlehem College will be six. Why not start now and get the job over before the next anniversary of their founding, so the colleges shall no longer remind us of the self-sacrifice and the vision and the high hopes of those pioneers who once gave so much for the sake of the colleges?

Let me put the matter to vote. How many would like to have us tear down the colleges? Let us have a show of hands. Come, come; don't be afraid to express your opinion. Remember, if the colleges are torn down, you will be saving money and you will be saving time. What! not a single vote for tearing down our colleges? Well, this is surprising! What shall we do about it, then? How much is your interest in these colleges worth? How much are you willing to give to keep them from being torn down. That is what the whole matter is really about. You own these colleges. They are your property. You can do with them what you please—you can help to build them up or you can help to tear them down.

Listen! I hear other voices which say we are not willing that our colleges be destroyed or closed up, but we want the running expenses cut down. After all, it is the various activities of the colleges that pile up the costs, that makes such a heavy drain on our pocketbooks. What, then, shall we eliminate? What part of the college work shall we cut out? In this day of home study courses and courses leading to graduation given over the radio, we might cut out some of our faculty members and also cut the salaries of others, for surely an average of fifteen hundred dollars per year for teachers who have only had twenty years' schooling at a cost of several thousand dollars, and a lot of nerve-wrecking, hard work, is too much pay.

Now, let us get the facts, for in our time of practical knowledge of the animal, vegetable, and mineral kingdoms we have little use for our expensive laboratories, which, if dispensed with, would mean another great college saving. Then we might do away with our college libraries, for the world is full of good books which can be had for use for the asking. Our boys and girls read too much, anyhow, and this would mean more money saved. Here is the item of religious education. Where did that idea come from? Who ever heard of such a thing being taught in our colleges! That is preposterous! We just cannot afford it. We need the money for so many other things. Anybody can teach the Bible. Religion and morality are the easiest of all subjects to teach. Our children just seem to acquire them naturally without any help in the home. Certainly we do not need to apply modern teaching methods to religion. It is a total waste of valuable money. Cut down religious instruction and save the dollars.

All right! Let us herald it abroad that the Southern Christian Convention will save twenty-five thousand dollars on Elon and Bethlehem Colleges next year, because they have reduced the number of faculty members and will pay the remainder less salary than ever before. That they have cut out their laboratories, libraries and departments of religious education in these Church schools. And I wonder if this would not be a good headline to use when we put the item in our papers: "Twenty-five thousand dollars saved at the expense of trained leadership of the Church school, where their children are learning the fundamentals of good citizenship and honest, straightforward Christian character."

Every intelligent, informed and wide-awake person in our Southern Church knows that we cannot dispense with the things mentioned above and keep abreast with the progress of education and train the needed leadership for the Church. What shall we do, then? How shall we decide? Shall we save money or shall we train leadership? Shall we let ignorant, indifferent, misrepresentation batter holes in the walls of our colleges, or shall we extend and build them up by placing on the altars of Jesus a sacrifice worthy of the Church and somewhat worthy of the Lord Himself? The issue is in your hands. Shall we tear down our Church colleges or make them better than ever before. One dollar and forty cents per each member of the Convention will put the college quota over the top—$47,000. What do you say? Let's go over the top!

Wadley, Ala.

S. L. BEOUGHER.

WHAT ELON DID FOR ME.

BY REV. D. M. SPENCE.

When I entered Elon College as a student, it was my greatest desire to become prepared to take up my place in life as a minister of God. Discouragements came my way. First, after seeing some of the junior and senior students and hearing them speak in the oratorical contests, I felt as if I would never have the courage to stand up to even try speaking when I would have so far to go. Then while thinking over the four-year course mapped out in the college bulletin, it seemed as though one would grow old within four years with all the study and toil. Consequently, I became dissatisfied and wished to go home, the line of least resistance being the one we usually prefer following. I was selfish and didn't know it. I tried to live too much to myself and this made college life all the harder for me to endure.

Class days after some time began to pass a little more hurriedly, and the lessons to be dreaded less, and the first step of this was due to the fact that among my fellow-students I had formed almost unconsciously friendships that helped me to find my place in this new life. So, instead of living merely with my books as I had planned, I began to see that the social life was also a part of the college life.

Up to this time, which was my second year, I had remained out of the literary society, feeling that I could get along without the training given by this organization. But suddenly I became alive with anxiety to become a member of a literary society, and upon entering into the spirit of the society I soon found my place in the programs that were rendered. However, my feeling toward the oratorical contests had changed a great deal, so I entered the first contest, although I did not win the medal I was not discouraged. After this I entered every contest our society offered. It was this new spirit to win that caused me to be elected in my junior year by the society as one of two speakers for commencement.

I soon discovered that I could study more effectively by taking regular hours for physical exercise in the gymnasium. By this plan, when one often feels tired of study, instead of taking an afternoon nap, in the gym the drowsiness passes away, with the body feeling stronger and the mind clearer for study. When the week-day school of religion was opened and I was asked to go out and take a class of colored boys and girls, I accepted the work with the spirit of one who wished to serve. As I undertook to prepare the lessons for this work from day to day, I was made stronger for other tasks that were to follow.

Under the direction of one of the professors, I accepted a Sunday School class of boys in a nearby town for a year. I enjoyed the work each Sunday with them. And it was while doing this work that I was helped to overcome the feeling that I could not preach my first sermon. I listened to this same professor preach every Sunday following Sunday School. He invited me to preach one Sunday, asking me to tell him any Sunday that I was ready. This is the way I preached my first sermon, which I shall long remember.

In the ministerial association I was brought face to face with the problems of the young minister. By exchanging thoughts and ideas, we learned each other's point of view. In our meetings we were made to feel that we had a definite work ahead and that in the near future we would be filling our place. In our meetings we were drawn closer together and were caused to look upon our work with deeper reverence. The whole of the student life at Elon is character-building. The friendships which were formed while there became a real part of my life. Yes, I really feel that all my Elon friends are near relatives of mine.

When I entered Elon I had an idea of what college graduation would be. At graduation time, my former idea had become modified. Instead of being through with books and through with study, I had just learned how to study and was just prepared to really begin my student life. The years which I thought would be long were all too short, and passed as a dream.

If a short college career can make a life less selfish and more sociable, take a life that is living in constant dread of a task ahead without qualifications for the work and change that dread to love for the task by emptying the life of self and filling it with a broader vision, it is surely worth while. Elon has helped me to approach the beginning of my ministry and with a greater love for this noble work. My prayer for Elon is that she may continue to train young men and women that they may be able to better fill their place in life and give them that richer and broader vision of a life of service.

Henderson, N. C.

FIRST CONFERENCE ON UNITY.

BY R. C. HELFENSTEIN.

The Christian Unity Conference, held in Baltimore, Md., January 12-13, 1928, revealed the growing conviction among Christian leaders of all denominations that the Protestant Churches should unite their forces. It was my privilege to attend the conference and to participate in its deliberations. Naturally, as a member of the Christian Church, I felt very much at home in a group of men and women who were thinking and voicing the one unique principle of our Church, namely: the unity of all Christian believers.

Dr. W. A. Harper, president of Elon College, also attended this important conference and delivered one of the most challenging addresses of the entire program. Bishop McConnell followed Dr. Harper on the program, but failed to carry the large audience so far forward in their thinking as did Dr. Harper. Leaders in various denominations were on the program. It was like a breath of fresh air to hear the strong pronouncements from men representing some of the more sectarian denominations declare their convictions on the need of Protestants answering the prayer of Jesus "that they all might be one."

The discussions on the last afternoon were somewhat disappointing, as some of those present were evidently out of their environment, as evidenced by their lack of faith in the wisdom of Christian unity and in the possibility of it ever being attained. But their number was limited to three or four men, who, among the seven hundred persons enrolled, made little impression. Their narrowness and antagonism simply revealed the fact that sectarianism is still as strong with some people as it has always been.

The conference as a whole was made up of men and women who deplored the terrible price the Churches are paying for their divisions—the price of an unbelieving world.

Dr. Peter Ainslie, president of the Christian Unity League, presided over the conference session with his usual dignity and statesman-like manner. The sentiment of the conference was strongly in favor of the denominations that have much in common today uniting their forces at as early date as possible, believing that the union of such groups would hasten the realization of a united Protestantism.

The findings of the conference will be sent to THE SUN and to The Herald by the president of the league. The climax of the entire conference was the celebration of the Lord's Supper at the closing of the conference. The message by Dr. Charles C. Morrison, editor of The Christian Century, on "The Cross the Symbol of Unity," was the most thought-provoking and heart-inspiring Communion sermon the writer has ever been privileged to hear, and this appreciation was shared by many others who similarly expressed themselves.

It was a beautiful sight to see the great auditorium of the First Presbyterian Church of Baltimore filled with representatives of more than twenty different denominations gathering together at the Lord's Supper. Thirty laymen representing the different denominations passed the emblems. Eight ministers of different denominations officiated. What a glorious fellowship! Certainly it was a prophecy of the day when the different sects who call Christ Lord will make Him Lord of their common hopes and aspirations in a unity of faith, of worship and of service.

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Field Secretary.

REPORT OF THE WOMAN'S BOARD OF THE S. C. C.

The following is the receipts and disbursements of the funds of the Woman's Board of the Southern Christian Convention for the quarter ending December 31, 1927:

Receipts.

North Carolina Conference:
Women's Societies	$609.17
Young People's Societies	44.75
Willing Workers	7.50
Cradle Roll	2.55
	663.97
Valley of Va. Central Conference:
Women's and Y. P. Soc.	$163.03
Young People's Societies	22.71
Willing Workers	2.24
	187.98
Eastern Va. Conference:
Women's Societies	$554.13
Young People's Societies	202.06
Willing Workers	87.48
	843.67
Total receipts	$1,695.62

Disbursements.

Foreign missions:
Japan—Dues	$300.56
Specials	56.62
Kindergarten	1.27
Bible Women	25.00
Kitamura Home	236.42
Sunday School	12.50
	$ 632.37
Porto Rico—Santa Isabel	177.51
Franklinton College	1.74
Home missions:
Richmond—Dues	$300.56
Specials	56.62
	357.18
Mountain work	508.39
Elon Orphanage—Irene Boone	$ 15.00
Baby home	1.28
	16.28
Total disbursements	$1,693.47
MRS. H. S. HARDCASTLE,
Treasurer.

REPORT OF THE WOMAN'S BOARD OF THE EASTERN VIRGINIA CONFERENCE.

Receipts of the Women's Missionary Societies of the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference for quarter ending December 30, 1927.

Women's Societies.

Antioch	$13.36
Berea, Nansemond	15.85
Bethlehem	18.40
Christian Temple	84.15
Cypress Chapel	7.20
Damascus	4.35
Dendron	9.40
Dover	74.10
Elm Avenue	10.00
First, Norfolk	6.25
Franklin	30.80
Holland	32.20
Holy Neck	38.40
Isle of Wight	5.25
Liberty Spring	10.70
Mt. Carmel	9.95
Newport News	7.80
Oakland	3.00
Portsmouth	15.22
Richmond	16.30

Rosemont	63.90
Suffolk	88.75
Wakefield	10.35
Windsor	14.55
Waverly	33.50
Hopewell	5.00

Young People's Societies.

Berea, Nansemond	$ 6.50
Bethlehem	8.00
Burton's Grove	5.00
Christian Temple	4.75
First, Norfolk	6.00
Franklin	20.00
Holy Neck	10.00
Holland (Berta Rowland)	35.85
Holland (Barrett)	2.00
Liberty Spring	9.35
New Lebanon	4.15
Newport News	3.45
Portsmouth	16.00
Rosemont	4.40
Suffolk	21.25
Waverly	76.15
Windsor	2.45

Willing Workers' Societies.

Berea, Nansemond	$ 4.10
Bethlehem	3.60
First, Norfolk	1.00
Franklin	15.00
Holland	10.75
Holy Neck	7.13
Liberty Spring	3.90
Rosemont	2.15
Suffolk	6.20
Windsor	1.64
Newport News	1.11

Grand total

Respectfully submitted,

MRS. W. V. LEATHERS,
Treasurer.

SUNDAY SCHOOL MISSIONARY OFFERINGS FOR JANUARY.

Antioch, Zuni, Va.	$ 4.00
Turner's Chapel, Sanford, N. C.75
Sanford, N. C.	3.88
Fuller's Chapel, Henderson, N. C.	4.24
Happy Home, Ruffin, N. C.	1.05
Ramseur, N. C.	5.25
Holland, Va.	9.00
New Hope, Harrisonburg, Va.	7.74
Bethlehem, Broadway, Va.	2.35
Linville, Va.	3.01
Mt. Pleasant, Vass, N. C.	3.28
South Norfolk, Va.	10.38
Antioch, Elams, N. C.	2.85
Ocean View, Va.	5.85
First, Greensboro, N. C.	10.83
United Church, Lynchburg, Va.	3.39
Pleasant Ridge, Guilford College, N. C.71
Mt. Auburn, Manson, N. C.	5.00
First Church, Winchester, Va.	5.36
Liberty (Vance), Henderson, N. C.	3.60
Suffolk, Va.	12.50
Liberty, N. C.	2.61
Providence Memorial, Graham, N. C.	7.80
Rosemont, Berkley, Va.	10.96
Webster, Havre de Grace, Md.	6.00
Third Avenue, Danville, Va.	4.08
Youngsville, N. C.	1.00

Franklin, Va.	10.00
Mt. Olivet (G), March, Va.	2.19
Vanceville, Brookfield, Ga.	1.52
Leaksville, Luray, Va.	2.84
Raleigh, N. C.	2.00
Oakland, Suffolk, Va.	5.00
Durham, N. C.	15.91
Mt. Zion, Roanoke, Ala.	2.00
Waverly, Va.	30.00
Mayland, Broadway, Va.	1.51
Wake Chapel, Fuquay Springs, N. C.	5.00
Berea (Nan.), Driver, Va.	6.85
First Church, Portsmouth, Va.	8.30
Newport News, Va.	10.25
Hines Chapel, Elon College, N. C.	8.00
Rosemont, Norfolk, Va.	12.08
Randleman, N. C.	3.00
Pleasant Hill, Liberty, N. C.	3.61
Berea (Norfolk), Hickory, Va.	6.00
Holland, Va.	9.00
Wakefield, Va.	5.44
Union (Southampton), Courtland, Va.	1.67
Happy Home, Ruffin, N. C.75
Turner's Chapel, Sanford, N. C.	1.25
Parks Cross Roads, Ramseur, N. C.	2.00
Palm Street, Greensboro, N. C.	6.20
Elm Avenue, Portsmouth, Va.	13.00
Lebanon, Semora, N. C.	1.12
Sanford, N. C.	3.95
First Church, Richmond, Va.	10.29
Holy Neck, Holland, Va.	8.00
Liberty, N. C.	2.64
Bethlehem, Suffolk, Va.	2.48

Total

Burlington, N. C.	318.66
J. K. Eppard, Stanley, Va.	25.00
Rosemont, Berkley, Va. for Rocky Ford ...	60.00
Class 3, Rosemont, Berkley, Va.	5.00
Burlington, N. C.	61.05
Class 3, Rosemont, Berkley, Va.	5.00

Self-Denial Offering.

Previously acknowledged	$4,220.99
Mrs. W. A. Hand, Brookfield, Va.	1.00
J. T. Cross, Holland, Va.	2.00
S. W. Johnson, Fuquay Springs, N. C.	10.00
Walton E. Brill, Hook's Mill, W. Va.	10.00

Total to February 1, 1928

Summary.

Sunday School regular	$ 341.32
Specials	474.71
Self-Denial offering for January	23.00
Mountain work	10.00

Total

Check to R. W. Malone, Treasurer

J. O. ATKINSON,
Mission Secretary.

PORTO RICO LETTER.

Dear Folks:

For the last month or so I have been living in a world of rush and have not had the time to think or write about this great field. I am glad to say that I am able to find a little time to talk with you good folks and tell you that you have made my Christmas one of the happiest that I have ever had while away from home. I can assure you that all that you have been doing to cheer my life has been greatly appreciated. I feel that without your prayers and help I cannot do very much.

It seems that the reality of God never meant so much to me as it does now. I find Him a constant companion that never fails me. His reality is making it possible for me to continue my work with these strange people—no! I should not call them strangers, as I have learned to love them dearly.

Last week I spent one of the happiest days which I have had since coming to Porto Rico—at Santa Isabel, with our young people at the Sunday School Conference. I suppose this conference is a little like our young people's congress.

We had a very interesting morning session, consisting of the reports from the different delegations, election of officers, together with speeches on the different phases of Sunday School and Christian Endeavor. I had charge of the round-table discussion. I certainly enjoyed answering their many questions concerning the different organizations in our Churches. I find the greatest difficulty of these good folks in our large Churches is that they do not have any knowledge whatsoever as to what Christian Endeavor stands for and its relation to the Church, which has caused a little conflict at times. I am glad to say that just two weeks before the conference I worked to translate, with the help of my Spanish teacher, the rules, regulations and constitution of Christian Endeavor. Of course, we had to simplify it in order to meet the conditions of our field.

Mr. Morton gave an interesting talk on the value of Christian Endeavor. The dinner was served in the Church-yard, but the sudden rain ruined our enjoyable time, and also the beautifully decorated tables. We all stood under the large trees and finished eating our Porto Rican dinner. Even if I got wet, I enjoyed my dinner to the fullest.

In our afternoon session, we enjoyed different speeches made by our natives on the various phases of these organizations. At 3 o'clock we were told to assemble in the side rooms for a "discurso frio" (a cold speech) by Mrs. Morton. To our surprise, we found that this cold speech was ice cream. So you could imagine how glad we were to have the chance for rest and refreshment.

Our supper was served in the Sunday School rooms. It consisted of "arroz con polluelo" (rice and chicken), which is one of the best Porto Rican dishes. I like it pretty well if I do not eat it often. After supper I had the chance to visit three families, and enjoyed practicing my broken Spanish language. However, they are very kind to say that I am speaking pretty good Spanish.

Our night session started at 8 o'clock, but we were disappointed, because the speaker for the evening could not be with us. So one of our young workers, Juan Hernandy, preached a very inspiring sermon for the young people.

After the service, our Ponce delegation of twenty-one people had to wait for an hour for the car to bring us back to Ponce. Singing, laughing, joking made us forget our hard work of the day. One thing I do not like here is traveling, which is tiresome because one cannot depend on the drivers of the taxis.

I have had all kinds of experiences traveling. One night we could not get a car, so we were compelled to walk almost five miles at midnight after a hard day's work. So you can imagine what is the daily program of a missionary. May this year of 1928 bring joy, happiness and prosperity to every one of you.

VICTORIA E. ADAMS.

THE CHILDREN.

Times are changing and customs are changing. We are changing our customs to fit in with the times of this day. Just a few years ago we went to Sunday School in a one-room building, where the lesson was taught by a person up in age, and we all sat in one or two classes. The child got very little, if any, out of the lesson, as the teacher usually talked as if there were only grown people in the class. Today the child is the life of the Sunday School. Most Sunday Schools of today have a junior department, an intermediate department, a senior department, and an adult department. The child is taught in the language and terms that he should be, instead of being given a lecture as has been the custom in the past.

But the child of today does not yet have the place in the Church service that he should have and will have in the future. There are very few children who attend the preaching service, especially in the city Church. He does not care to sit and listen to a sermon which is intended for the older people and which he gets nothing out of. So, therefore, he does not stay in most cases.

This is something that our preachers should be thinking about. It is something that we all should be thinking about. We all know about the sermons that have been preached about "teaching the children what you want them to know" when they are young," etc.; but are we doing it?

Some day the child will have as much place in the Church service as he has today in the Sunday School. Why not start him in on it now?

The preacher can get up a five-minute junior sermon that he may give to the children just before his last song before his regular sermon, and then if the children do not want to stay for the regular service they may have the opportunity of leaving while the singing is going on.

These children may have their own collection takers or ushers. They will form the habit of staying for the sermon that is intended for them, and when they are older they will stay for the regular service.

C. J. STRICKLAND.

Charlotte, N. C.

A VOICE FROM THE CONFERENCE.

It was certainly a great pleasure to visit Elon College during the Preachers' Conference and to associate with this body of men. I think it a great idea for men, who are representing the same cause, to get together and exchange ideas. I believe it was a great inspiration to them, and I feel that they will carry back with them thoughts that will mean much to their congregations and their Churches.

As I looked into their faces I could not help but see what Elon College had done and was doing for our denomination. Realizing the fact that a large percentage of these men had received their training at this institution and had gone out into the world to try to win souls for Christ, it was a happy thought to me to think we had this college, and then to feel that we had made such great improvement and made it the education center that it is and so worth while.

I do hope that each pastor and visitor will go back home and feel it is their college, and with a determination to make it a bigger and better college in which to educate men and women.

I have talked to several of the pastors who were there and they seem to have gotten a great deal of inspiration from their visit and with association with one another.

J. M. DARDEN.

SAM DAVIS AT GRAHAM.

Last Sunday I attended the services at the Graham-Providence Memorial Church, in Graham. It had already been announced that Mr. Davis would play the piano, and that his wife would sing. As I had heard them before, I naturally expected the entire program would be musical. But I had two great surprises. Mrs. Davis, instead of doing all the singing herself, almost succeeded in getting everybody else to sing. She showed remarkable skill as a song leader. But my greatest surprise came when she took the Bible, read familiar passages, and then delivered a real gospel message that brought us all very close to the throne. As I sat there and listened to these talented people of our Church, I felt thankful for them, and cherished the hope that they might be kept busy in our Churches, as I verily believe that in them there is a blessing to any Church that will use them. Their talents, their words and prayers, and their willing, cheerful spirits greatly impressed us.

T. E. WHITE.

RECOMMENDED BOOKS

The following educational helps and books have been recommended by Dr. W. P. Minton, Secretary of Foreign Missionary Department, and Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Mission Secretary, S. C. C. Acting upon the advice and recommendation of these two recognized and earnest missionary workers, The Christian Publishing Association has stocked the following books, which are moderately priced and can be supplied on receipt of order:

FOREIGN MISSIONARY BOOKS

- New Paths for Old Purposes—By Margaret E. Burton. In cloth, $1.00; paper$.60
- The Nursery Series—Ah Fu (a Chinese river boy), Kembo (a little girl of Africa), The Three Camels (a story of India), Asa (a little Boy of Nazareth), board backs, each60
- Our Japanese Friend—By Ruth Isabel Seabury, in cloth only..... .75
- Young Japan—By Mabel Gardner Kerschner, in paper, each..... .40
- A Straight Way Toward Tomorrow—By Mary Schaufler Platt, cloth, 75c; paper50
- "Straight Way Towards Tomorrow" has been prepared especially for Missionary Societies.

HOME MISSIONARY BOOKS

- The Adventure of the Church—By Samuel McCrea Cavert, cloth, $1; paper$.60
- Indian Playmates of Navajo Land—By Ethel M. Baader, cloth75
- The Better American Series—Junior Home Mission Courses, cloth.... .75
- The Story of Missions—By Edwin E. White, cloth, $75; paper..... .50
- Please Stand By—By Margaret Applegarth, in cloth, 75c; paper.... .50
- Nine Home Mission Stories—For teachers to tell Primary pupils, paper25
- The Upward Climb—By Sarah Estella Haskin, in cloth only, each.. .75
- In the Vanguard of a Race—By Mrs. L. H. Hammond, in cloth, $1.00; paper75

A SERIES OF SIX BIG FOREIGN MISSION BOOKS

- China, Japan, India, Africa, Near East, and Latin-America—Per set in cloth, $6.00; paper, $4.00; cloth, $1.25; paper.....$.75

ANY OF THE ABOVE OR OTHERS MAY BE SECURED FROM

All books sent postpaid.

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

INTERNATIONAL UNIFORM SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE.

Lesson VII—February 12, 1928.

JESUS PICTURES THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done, as in heaven, so on earth."—Matt. 6:10.

LESSON: Mark 1:14, 15; 4:1-34.

DEVOTIONAL READING: Psa. 145:7-13.

We hear a great deal today about "visual education." It is simply a process of imparting information by means of what one sees; in other words, of putting in pictures or picture form the truth we want to teach or to set forth. For instance, in many schools they are introducing illustrated lectures and moving pictures as a means of teaching many subjects. Instead of simply reading about the industrial processes involved in the manufacture of cotton or woolen goods, or automobiles, etc., slides or moving pictures are presented, showing in a clear and interesting way the various processes involved. Because what one sees is more likely to be remembered than what one hears, this method is becoming more generally used. There is no doubt that it is sound. Educators recommend it and hail with delight its use.

It is interesting to note, however, that the thing is not new at all. Jesus Himself used it. Whether it was a mere coincidence or not, the Lesson Committee could not have chosen a more fitting title for today's lesson than "Jesus Pictures the Kingdom of God." For Jesus took the principle which modern pedagogy uses in teaching concrete facts, and applied it to moral and spiritual ideals and principles. In this lesson He puts in a simple and graphic way great truths concerning the nature and the method of growth of the kingdom of God. We call Him the Master Teacher, and we do well, for such He is.

The Kingdom of God.

There are many phases to the kingdom of God as Jesus used the phrase, but for all practical purposes it was that sphere of life, whether in the individual or in society, where there was the reign of God. Wherever there were individual men who did the will of the Father, there was the kingdom of God. Jesus said, "The kingdom of God is within you." When He taught His disciples to pray, He told them to say, "Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done, as in heaven, so on earth." Jesus came to establish His kingdom, to win men and nations to such devotion to Him and to the Father that they should do His will, not from compulsion of force, but from compulsion of love. The kingdom of God or of heaven—what is it? It is the reign of God in human hearts and human life. It should be kept in mind, however, there is a present and a future phase of the kingdom. It can be in individual hearts, but it will never come to its consummation or fullness until God's will is done on earth, even as it is done in heaven.

The Growth of the Kingdom of God.

How does the kingdom of God grow? Jesus gives an answer to this question. It is, "as if a man should cast seed upon the earth, and should sleep and rise night and day, and the seed should spring up and grow, he knoweth not how. The earth beareth fruit of herself (or as another translation has it, "Of herself the earth bringeth forth fruit"); first the blade, then the ear, then the full grain in the ear." The kingdom of God comes into a man's heart, even as a seed is put into the earth. There is in the word of the kingdom, or the seed of the kingdom power and life. It springs up and grows. Even when men are unconscious of its growth there is often a steady development. Jesus did not mean, of course, that a man did not need to give heed to the things of the spirit. He emphasized again and again the importance and the supremacy of the spirit. But what He did mean that after all that a man could do by way of cultivating the kingdom within him, it was God who gave it life and power. How foolish would be the man who was continually digging up the seed he had planted to see if it was growing. The thing for a man to do in the natural world is to plant the seed, do all he can to give it favorable conditions and then go about his activities, knowing that the earth after all holds the secret of the growth that will come. It is in like manner in the things of the spirit. A man is to receive the word into his heart which must be good soil. He must give attention to the things of the spirit and do all he can to provide helpful conditions for growth. But he must, in the final analysis, trust to the grace and power of God for the growth and development. He must not be discouraged. A man does not plant a seed one day and expect an ear of corn or a head of wheat the next day. The same principle applies to the Christian life. First the blade, then the ear, then the full-grown corn in the ear—the Christian life is a thing of development and growth to maturity. We must not become discouraged with our own condition if we are doing all that we can, and we must not be too exacting in our demands upon others. Many a mature Christian who has been trying to live the Christian life for many years and who has come into a rich Christian spirit sits in unfair judgment upon those who are young and immature in the Christian life. But we must not overlook one fact which the Master stated—the husbandman has a right to expect fruit in due season. "But when the fruit is ripe." Herein is God glorified that we bear much fruit.

Jesus shows how the kingdom of God grows from another angle. He says it is likened unto a mustard seed which is one of the smallest of seeds, but which produces an herb that is among the largest of herbs. From the smallest of beginnings there comes the largest of results. It is so with the kingdom. Think of the fulfillment of this parable. From the seed of the kingdom, sown in the hearts of a few humble and unlettered men, in an obscure country, peopled by a despised and outcast race, there has come a growth that bids fair to cover the earth and include all peoples, and a kingdom is being established that has no frontiers, but looks to the day when all the kingdoms of this world shall become the kingdoms of our Lord and of His Christ. Here is a message of encouragement for ministers and Sunday School teachers and Christian workers. Let us sow the seed, let us cultivate as best we can the soil, let us not be weary in well-doing, for in due season we shall reap if we faint not, for the Lord of the harvest will give an increase—some thirty, some sixty, and some an hundred-fold.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Sunday, February 19, 1928.

TOPIC: "Are the Teachings of Jesus Up-to-Date?"

SCRIPTURE: Matt. 7:24-29.

Suggestions.

1. As advertisement for the meeting, have the superintendent of the school or department announce the subject, time of meeting and leader at Sunday School, and have two or three people make one-minute speeches on "Teachings of Jesus Christ that are Up-to-Date." Not more than one minute.) Say that the discussion will be continued at the C. E. meeting. This will stir up interest in the subject as well as serve as a reminder of the meeting.

2. Make a poster showing where Jesus influences our living today. A picture which represents the Christianna home; one which shows some business establishment, a Church, and so on.

3. At some time during the meeting have some one present the work of Elon and Bethlehem Colleges. If you have already had a program devoted to the work of our colleges, it will help to follow up this meeting, and they should be kept before our people during the month of February. January and February are devoted to a special presentation of our colleges, and young people will be interested in them especially.

Leader's Talk.

The teachings of Jesus, as those of no other leader of any time, are as applicable to our present-day living as for the time in which Jesus Himself lived. As we think of Christ in relation to the two thousand years of history since He was born, we find Him with a message for all races and peoples who could accept Him during this time. It is remarkable that His principles are just as up-to-date now in every phase of life; more than that, none of us have ever been as broad-minded in our Christianity as the principles of Jesus' demand. It seems that the world is just beginning to realize how far-reaching His teachings are. They are beginning to be recognized as fine for the business world; as great in dealing with each other in the work-a-day world; as being the principles we need to live by in our homes; as the proper thinking in dealing with other nations and other peoples. As we think of the future of this world in relation to Christ and His teachings, we realize that He is not only up-to-date, but is far ahead of any of us. We need to think more about loving our neighbors as ourselves, playing the part of the Good Samaritan, going two miles instead of one, loving our enemies and praying for those who wrongly use us.

Young people will enjoy the book by Bruce Barton called "The Man Nobody Knows," as it presents Christ in a different and new way. The chapters are: "The Executive," "The Outdoor Man," "The Sociable Man," "His Method," "His Advertisements," "The Founder of Modern Business," and "The Master."

"The Christ of the Indian Road," by E. Stanley Jones, is a delightful and inspiring presentation of the Christ, and shows what He may mean to the world apart from the Church system we have built up—that His principles are sufficient for all the world; that His teachings are equally as fine for India as they are for America.

Christ and Peace.

The teachings of Jesus leave no place for war. Not an eye for an eye, not one nation ruling another; but "Go ye and make disciples of all men," "Love thy neighbor as thyself," "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you." The prayer of our Lord is so broad that most of us do not realize it when we pray it—"Our Father," not "my Father." The teachings of Jesus have no place for "wholesale murder."

Make out a list of questions to ask in the meeting. (This subject should provoke some interesting and helpful discussion.)

PATTIE COGHILL.

PISGAH, ALA.

When the Alabama Conference was in session, considerable was said of a movement to build a parsonage here at Pisgah. That movement has not been lost sight of, nor the undertaking given up. I am sure that many interested friends are anxious to hear more about this project. The building is under construction now, and we hope to have it completed by February 15th. We are building a nice five-room bungalow on a very desirable lot, and when completed and cleared of all indebtedness our property here will be worth about two thousand dollars more by this addition, and this is a conservative estimate.

Our Conference or Mission Board graciously gave us one hundred dollars. Considering the many demands made upon their treasury, this was indeed a splendid donation. Rev. E. M. Carter gave us five dollars, which we will always remember with pleasure.

Our folks, as a rule, have done their best. Some of them have really done more than they should. Our children have peddled home-made candy and gave the money so received on the building. Our women are quilting, that it may be cleared of debt. But despite all this, we get discouraged sometimes. Today was one of those blue days. I had written Rev. J. D. Dollar, and he is one of the boys who never fails. I had begun to look for an answer, and I noticed through the papers about his being sick. I gave up getting any help from that source because Bro. Dollar was sick. In the meantime, he had gotten able to attend a session of the Ladies' Missionary Society at Lanett, where he is pastor, and presented our needs, with the result that those God-fearing ladies, out of the generosity of their noble Christian hearts, gave us twenty-five dollars, sending an initial payment of twelve and one-half dollars. The Ladies' Missionary Society of the Alabama Conference has agreed to give one-half of their special offering to the work here. Lanett is not in our Conference.

I mention these gifts because of our gratitude. Should there be others who would like to see these projects carried to a successful termination and want to help do it, let them send in their gifts. They will be gratefully acknowledged.

Some may not understand that Pisgah Christian Church is located some 150 miles from another active Church of this order. The only chance to solve the pastor problem is to have a home for the pastor. This we are trying to do. Will you help us?

J. H. HUGHES.

WORSHIP PROGRAM.

The following worship program was prepared by Miss Lillie Fowler for use in the Mebane Christian Church, and was sent by special request to be published in THE SUN. Other such programs will appear later. Watch for them.

Prelude—"Where He Leads Me I Will Follow" (played softly).

Call to Worship—"Let us search and try our ways and turn again unto the Lord."

Response—"All the Way My Saviour Leads Me" (one verse, sung softly).

Motto—

Lord, help me live from day to day
In such a self-forgetful way
That even when I kneel to pray
My prayer shall be for "others."

Talk—"Stop! Look! Listen!" by young people.

At railroad crossings we see this sign: "Stop! Look! Listen!" and we may remember that the man whose ingenious brain made that combination of words was awarded a large sum of money. Why was this warning chosen from among so many submitted? Because of its effectiveness. It produced good results, calling into use eyes, ears and muscles. Those who heed its warning save loss of life and limb. How much wasted energy and effort we followers of Christ may save if we would—

Stop resting quietly where there is so much that needs to be done.

Look, focusing our eyes and minds on the needs of the world around.

Listen—opening our hearts to the voice of the Master, alert to catch His message telling us how we may best serve Him.

Remember that this caution precedes activity, not stagnation. As we proceed we will be in step with our Guide.

Song—"Follow the Gleam."

Prayer—"That our lives may keep so close to our Guide that we may live and labor as He did.

Reading of Lesson.

Music to march to class—"Saviour, Like a Shepherd, Lead Us."

PATTIE COGHILL.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Minion Bold-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 7-8x 7 Inches, and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

2152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.75

India Paper Edition, Size 4 7-8x7 Inches, 1 1-10 Inches Thick.

2152X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$6.00

Bourgeois Type, Size 5 3-8x8 Inches, and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

2167—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.00

2172—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.50

2172A—Same as above, with Apocrypha.....$5.00

2173—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges.....$6.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3-4x3-8 inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3 3-4x5 3-8 Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps.....$2.50

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations. Special book for Sunday Schools.....95c

Minion Type, Pocket Size, 4x6 Inches, 1 1-4 Inches Thick.

With 32 full-colored illustrations; also 25 outline maps through the text and 12 colored maps.

133—Bound in cloth, round corners, red edges, title stamped on side in pure gold.....$1.60

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.$3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 15-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.$4.00

Minion Black-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 3-4x 7 Inches, 1 1-2 Inches Thick.

Printed from clear, large, black-face type, 32 full-page illustrations in sepia and colors, 4,000 Questions and Answers, Harmony of the Gospels, How to Study the Sunday School Lesson, 25 outline Maps, 12 full-page colored Maps.

4152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold.....$3.25

AMERICAN STANDARD VERSION. TEXT BIBLES.

Printed from Easy-Reading Type, on Good Bible Paper, for Sunday School and Church Use.

Minion Type, Size 4x6 Inches, 1 1-2 Inches Thick, 25 Outline Maps, Bound in Black.

101—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, title stamped on back in pure gold...$1.10

112—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title on back in pure gold.....$2.75

India Paper Edition, Only 7/8-Inch Thick.

112X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.75

Reference and Text Bibles also in minion, brier, bourgeois, long primer, pica and English type.

Thumb index cut on edge, 50c extra; name printed on any Bible in gold, 40c extra; extra wording, 40c per line.

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5 3-8x8 1-4 Inches and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With concise Bible dictionary, combined concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.75

RED LETTER EDITION

With all the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands, title stamped on side and back in pure gold.....$3.25

Any of the above Bibles sent post paid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 E. Broad St., - - - Richmond, Virginia.

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY REV. H. E. ROUNTREE,
One of Our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"Call upon me, and I will answer thee, and shew thee great and mighty things, which thou knowest not."—Jeremiah 33:3.

MONDAY.

"HE SAW."

Text: Jno. 9:11.

As Jesus passed, He saw. Seeing, He had compassion and helped. This was His rule through life. He was never blind to any need. His heart was never untouched by those who sought Him. Thus He "went about doing good." His message to all was, "I am among you as one that serveth." Any one who would be a follower of the Lord Jesus Christ must take his place.

Theodore Roosevelt's "Letters to His Children" says, in one written to his daughter, that while walking to Church he saw two terriers racing to attack a kitten. "I bounced forward with my umbrella, and after some active work, put to flight the dogs. The kitten, a friendly, helpless little thing, I marched on with, inquiring of bystanders and people on porches for its owner, but all disclaiming with many grins. Then I saw a very nice colored woman and a little colored girl looking out of the window of a small house, and I turned and walked up the steps and asked if they did not want a kitten. They said they did, and the little girl welcomed it lovingly; so I felt I had gotten it a home, and continued toward Church."

The President of the United States showed a Christ-like spirit. He saw "as he passed by." Let us keep our eyes clear, our hearts warm, prepared to do a good turn and to give first aid in any one of a thousand ways, especially in speaking a good word for Jesus Christ.

Prayer.—Our Father, we hear Thy call to work Thy works in this world and that the smallest things fall under Thy notice. We give Thee thanks for this love, for Thy teachings of service. Instill us with our Saviour's spirit. May we see, too, and take advantage of every opportunity to serve along our way. Amen.

TUESDAY.

THE STRENGTH OF SOLITUDE.

"He went up into a mountain to pray."—Luke 9:28.

"Little stream of the mountain, why lingerest thou so long in these solitary places? Thy waters mirror the emerald sky and the soft sunbeams, and at night the silent stars. There are massive wheels of industry waiting in the valley below to be moved. A thousand fields are athirst for thee. Men, women and little children need thy waters. Leave thy haunts in the mountain and come dwell altogether in the valley, little stream."

But the little stream makes answer: "I would be a useless, babbling stream without this life in the mountain solitudes. Here I gather many waters into my bosom. Rushing over rocky ledges, leaping yawning chasms, I gather momentum for the great tasks that await me, and with the thunder of many waters, rush down upon the valley eager and ready."

"Oh, Christ, why retire to the mountain to pray? There are throngs of sick, halt, maimed, withered, demon-possessed waiting for Thee in the valley below. Why come here to look into the Father's face when multitudes are waiting to look into Thine?"

And my Lord seems to say: "My child, it is here in the mountain I gather strength for my great tasks in the valley. It is here in the solitude only that I can find peace and composure for the thronged street. Here I drink from invisible fountains, that I may go forth and be a reservoir of power, a sanctuary of refreshment." And my soul seemed to pray: "Lord, help me in these feverish days to learn well the secret of Thy great strength."

Prayer.—Most glorious Saviour, as Thy countenance was changed when Thou didst pray, being to us the inner experience of such a close walk with God that our great hours may illumine our faces with His Spirit. May we ever find assurance that Jesus is ever in contact with His followers to strengthen and direct them. Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

SEEKING A STRONG GOD.

"Ye seek a proof of Christ, . . . who to you-ward is not weak, but is powerful in you (and who) liveth through the power of God."—2 Cor. 13:3-5.

Jesus Christ was accused of every kind of weakness and was crucified through a kind of weakness, but this is by who have not sought nor known His strength. Was it weakness?

The fuse in your electric wiring burns out at the first overcharge. It was not weakness that did it. It was the strength of the current. Jesus was the Fuse that burned out that man might not burn in his own sin. His words sway the world today.

Prayer.—Our Father, we pray for our sins to be forgiven, for the power of the Holy Spirit upon us, and for the power to live unto him. May we ask ourselves daily, "Am I of the faith?" O dear Lord, increase our faith in Christ as the world's Redeemer. Amen.

THURSDAY.

OUR FORGOTTEN TASK.

"They that turn many to righteousness shall shine as the stars."—Dm. 12:3.

Our work is not that of merely converting people in Africa, India, China or elsewhere, but it is the work of converting folks to righteousness—Christ—wherever the need may be. We overlook some at our doors, whom we ought to think about and pray for most of all.

Many a mother is busy traveling, attending to social duties, going to Church meetings, etc., and leaves her son in the care of a servant. At last the child, growing up, lapses into the hands of authorities. Mother was doing a good work, but would it not have been better to have fulfilled her first duty God laid upon her, viz: as a Christian mother, to turn the heart of her child to righteousness.

Prayer.—Our Father, forgive us our negligence to those close to us. Open our eyes, that we may see. Let us not forget that all souls are precious in Thy sight and our duty is with those Thou hast given us. May the fathers and mothers of our land realize more fully their duty to win their children to Christ. Amen.

FRIDAY.

YOUR BIBLE TELLS YOUR STORY.

"The Word is nigh thee, even in thy mouth, and in thy heart."—Rom. 10:8-13.

"Give me your family Bible, and I will tell you your history," said Dr. Joseph Parker to his great congregation. "Affliction opens the Bible at the right places," he declared. "Hand me yours," said he, "man of the broken heart and the tear-stained cheek, and furrowed brow. Ah, all marks and thumbings—twenty-third Psalm, fortieth of Isaiah, many places in Jeremiah, including the Lamentations. Why, I need no concordance to this Bible, if I want to seek out 'the promises.' If you would know the value of the Bible in the house, consult those who have needed it most."

A summer afternoon I spent with one of my officials when I went to a new Church as its pastor. He had grown old as he cultivated his farm and faithfully served his Lord. The conversation drifted toward the members of the family. Then he told me of the son who had died a couple of years earlier, after a period of ill health and of sojourn in the South. Finally he handed me the Bible that was with him in the last years. How it was marked! Evidently it had been his strength in the days of growing weakness. The passages referring to guidance, and those telling of the homeland of the soul, one could easily see had become very precious to the afflicted man. How the aged parents treasured the portions of the Bible which had entered into the heart and experience of their son, who now awaited them over yonder! The Bible in the home should be often in the hand; and its words should be food for our souls.

Prayer.—Thou loving God, we thank Thee for Thy living word. May it become a light in our path, and may we eagerly follow its teachings. In Jesus' name. Amen.

SATURDAY.

CLIMBING TO THE HIGH PLACES.

"Lead me to the rock that is higher than I."—Psa. 61:2.

The greatest question of life is whether I shall be content with the lower levels of sordid life which man affords, or shall I look above this menial, shifting, unstable existence to Him who lifts up to the rock that is higher than we are, and higher than man can afford. We all agree that a house must be lifted up in a high place and settled on a secure foundation. Let us not forget that Christ too must be our sure high place and the Rock of our life dwelling.

Prayer.—Our Father, we would abide in Thy tabernacle forever. We pray to Thee that we may have not only in our home life, but in all our affairs, the sure eminence of righteousness and truth and honor and the sure foundation of Jesus Christ. Amen.

SUNDAY.

CHRIST'S FIRST SERMON.

"The Spirit of the Lord . . . hath anointed me to preach the gospel to the poor."—Luke 4:16-22.

The brilliant French writer, Balzac, with rare discernment of the mission of Jesus, in his "Christ in Flanders," makes the Saviour to appear in the garb of a plain, humble Man, recognized by the poor peasants, but despised and rejected by the rich and great.

Coming upon the greatest enterprise ever undertaken—the recreation of a fallen world—nothing but a divine prescience could have forecast victory by means that seemed to presage certain failure. The world—so to speak—the man, the multitude, consists of the lowly, the humble poor, those who have to struggle for bread for their families and themselves. It was something totally new when a Deliverer came to this class. Hitherto, when a great leader arose, he came in the garb of a conqueror, wrapped in hard selfishness, to make the yoke of tyranny yet heavier. For a King of men to appear, whose heart was touched with pity, who was moved by the plight of "the halt, the lame and the blind," thrilled the multitude.

Dr. Speer, in his notable book on foreign mis-

(Continued on Page 13.)

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

It is a little interesting to know conditions at the Christian Orphanage eleven years ago and now. Eleven years ago, nine Sunday Schools out of twenty-five in the Valley Virginia Central Conference made contributions to help support the Christian Orphanage. Sixteen did not. That faithful nine still help us. The Alabama Conference had five Sunday Schools giving then; now sixteen are giving. The Georgia and Alabama Conference had six giving then; now ten are giving. Eastern Virginia Conference had three not giving then, and has only three not giving now. Eastern North Carolina Conference had nine not giving then; only has six not giving now. Western North Carolina Conference had twelve not giving then; only four not giving now.

Eleven years ago we had only one building and forty-two children, with a mortgage on our property for $6,000 and outstanding bills for a thousand dollars. The income amounting to less than $6,000 per year. We had three milch cows and two horses and practically no farm machinery. A farm of 159 acres. Total value of all property about $50,000 and no endowment.

Today we have three splendid brick buildings—new dairy barn, new crib, new granery, new potato house, and a new garage—with farm machinery valued at $2,000, a fine herd of twenty Holstein cattle, and forty head of hogs and pigs, and a farm of 204 acres; total value of the farm, buildings, and all assets of every nature, about $157,900, and not a dollar of indebtedness. We receive an income from one endowment of $900 per year, and will get this so long as we are an institution of charity. We received an income last year from another endowment of $2,465, both endowments coming to us from outside of our Church. And during all these years the Orphanage has been taking care of on an average of eighty children, and now has in its care 109 children.

How has all this change been brought about? By a co-operation and loyalty. The Churches, Sunday Schools and friends of the fatherless have been loyal and faithful.

The board of trustees (and no institution ever had a more faithful one) have administered its affairs in a business-like way and have tried to get a dollar's worth for every dollar spent. Their policy has always been to see their way through every undertaking before going into it. Pay as you go has been their motto. And it seems to have been a wise one, as the Christian Orphanage was compared with sixteen other orphanages last year in its class and won twenty-two points out of twenty-four. You may well feel proud of your Orphanage and the board of trustees who have so wisely handled its affairs.

C. D. JOHNSTON,
Superintendent.

REPORT FOR FEBRUARY 9, 1928.

Brought forward $1,797.53

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

N. C. & Va. Conference:
Greensboro, First $15.26
Liberty, Va. 1.35
16.61
Eastern N. C. Conference:
Pleasant Union $ 5.70
Morrisville 2.00
7.70
Valley Virginia Conference:
Linville 3.94

Alabama Conference:
Wadley 2.07
Georgia and Alabama Conference:
Lanett 6.28

Special Offerings.

G. W. Bradshaw & Thompson.....$61.00
R. B. Wicker, support Edua..... 15.00
J. W. Payne, Wedowee, Ala..... 2.00
Roanoke, Ala., Church..... 5.50
W. A. Raseoe, support Lois..... 15.00
Woman's Board, support Irene Boone 16.28
Sale of calf 10.00
124.78

Thanksgiving Offerings.

Western North Carolina Conference:
Burlington, add'l 2.00
Eastern North Carolina Conference:
Mt. Gilend 2.75
Grand total $1,963.66

OUR HONORARY SUBSCRIPTION LIST.

(Our official goal is 500. Please report promptly and help us to reach it.—Ed.)

Previously acknowledged 86
Rev. Stanley C. Harrell, Durham, N. C. 1
J. A. Denton, Apex, N. C. 4
Rev. W. C. Carpenter, Ambrose, Ga. 4
Ruth E. Knoeller, Waverly, Va. 1
Mrs. Annie Staley Calhoun, Suffolk, Va. 22
Luther Stallings, Newport News, Va. 1
Mrs. C. R. Fulghum, Chuckatuck, Va. 1
Total 120

(Continued from Page 12.)

sions, asked an intelligent Hindu what he regarded as the pre-eminence of Jesus. He got the significant reply, "When Buddha saw misery, he was shocked and fled from it. Christ met and relieved it."

Christ came, illustrating the divine wisdom which is fitted to save not the few great, learned and wise, but the common multitude, the crowd battling on the lowlands of life. The greatest preachers of all time—the Luthers, the Wesleys and a host of others—have realized this, and shaped their message to the lowly, while none the less has it befitted the high.

Prayer.—Our Father, we ask Thee today that our allegiance to Thee and Thy work may be complete. May we be divinely strengthened with faith, courage and endurance, and that we may be the means of carrying on Thy work in the world. Amen.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES.

We should be glad to furnish your Sunday School the following supplementary supplies, cash to accompany order:

Improved Uniform Series International Lessons.
1. Bible Lesson Picture Roll, 21x32 inches, per quarter $1.25
2. Sunday School Superintendent (to accompany the Picture Roll), per quarter..... .15
3. Pupils' Lesson Stories, per quarter..... .06
4. Little Bible Lesson Pictures, per quarter.. .05
Group Uniform Series, Primary Course.
1. Group Bible Lesson Picture Roll, 16x20 in., per quarter 1.00
2. Group Pupils' Lesson Stories, Primary, per quarter07
3. Group Lesson Pictures, per quarter..... .04

In making order, be explicit and name the quarter for which supplies are wanted; thus: first quarter, January to March; second quarter, April to June; third quarter, July to September; fourth quarter, October to December.

SEND ORDERS TO THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

COMMUNION WARE

Individual Service

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A

Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses $7.00
Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses 6.75
Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses 6.50
Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim..... 1.60
No. 2—Broad rim 1.60

SILVER-PLATE

The Silver-Plated Ware is of the very lightest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.

Style No. 85

Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses.$22.00
Base No. 1—Silver-plate; fits Silver Tray No. 85 11.00
Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85... 16.00
(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)

Style No. 90

Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 33 plain glasses.
Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses
(this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling) $22.00
Base No. 2—Silver-plate; fits Silver Tray 90... 16.00
Cover No. 4—Silver-plate; fits Silver Tray 90... 14.00

Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow rim $ 9.00
No. 4—Broad rim 9.00
Filler—Silver lined 6.00

Send Orders to THE CHRISTIAN SUN,
1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

ATTITUDE.

BY REV. G. H. VEASEY, JR.

In THE CHRISTIAN SUN of January 12th there appeared an article over my signature, under the subject "Meditation," in which I endeavored to show the attitude of a few extreme grumblers. I am very glad to know that such people are fast growing fewer. Now I shall commit myself.

1. I believe in foreign missions from the depth of my heart. I have never found any line of distinction between home and foreign missions. I cannot accept the word of God and oppose missions. The Holy Bible is the greatest missionary Book that has ever been written. The greatest characters in the Bible were missionaries. Jesus Christ our Saviour was the greatest Missionary the world ever knew, and if it had not been for the missionaries He trained and left to carry on the work of the kingdom, doubtless you and I would have never known anything about the kingdom of God among men. When Christ commanded His little band to go into all the world and teach and preach, He was speaking to all who should believe on Him through their word.

When I think of the greatest heroes of the world, I do not think of Alexander the Great, Napoleon, or any other man who plundered and destroyed both property and lives, but rather those men and women of God who went out from home and loved ones and everything near and dear to them, to a dark, benighted country where people do not know God, and gave their service that men might live, and live more abundantly.

No one doubts God's power to save without human effort, but thanks be unto Him that it is not His plan. The greatest opportunity that can come to poor mortal in this life is the privilege of having a part in Christ's great program among men. If the heathen never hear the gospel, we, and not they, will be condemned. The best investment an individual or Church can make is an investment in the business of the kingdom, whether it be property or lives.

2. When we consider the expense of the various enterprises of the Church, we can readily see that the world derives more benefit from the investment made that way than from any other source. There is no way to estimate the value of the Church with its various enterprises. Eternity alone can reveal the benefit of our small donations. I am truly glad that I am a part of so great an organization that not only seeks to get people's souls saved, but their environment as well. The only organization known among men that includes all classes of people, regardless of age, sex, or color, is the Church. Our Orphanage cares for the physical, as well as the spiritual side of life. Our schools and colleges train for Christian service, and our grand old Church provides a field for service.

When people become willing to spend as much money for the kingdom as they do for luxuries, it will be only a short time until the whole world will have had the gospel.

3. I am truly glad the Church has enough style and pride to keep abreast with the times. In this day of prosperity men are no longer satisfied to worship God in an old-fashioned log-building that is only fit for a barn, but are making their houses of worship comfortable and attractive. I believe the Church should be the most comfortable and most attractive building in the community. I am glad that men and women have enough style and pride to appear as best they can on the Sabbath when they present themselves in God's house of worship. These who would make a show of fine clothes are found elsewhere on the Sabbath. Style and pride do not affect religion, but religion does affect our habits and customs. It makes us do our best and naturally we want to appear as best we can. You will agree with me that the preacher who does not have enough style and pride to brush his hair, press his clothes, and polish his shoes cannot have the influence over his flock that he should have, and I fear will soon lose his job.

Elon College, N. C.

BURLINGTON NOTES.

The universal week of prayer was observed in the Burlington Church with very profitable results—the weak were made strong and the strong more mighty. What a fitting and beautiful way to begin the new year!

Dr. Luman H. Royer, Congregational director of city work, was a welcomed visitor to our Church on the first Sunday night of this month. Dr. Royce is doing an interesting and helpful work for his denomination.

The Piedmont Ministerial Association met at this Church on the second Monday for an all-day meeting. It was decided in that session to hold the February meeting at the First Christian Church of Greensboro, and then accept other invitations as same are extended, to meet with various other Churches in the Piedmont section. For some time the association has met with the Burlington Church, but the change is being made in order to have more of the ministers present in these good meetings.

The Alamance County Sunday School Institute, which was held in this Church January 12-13th, proved very enjoyable and inspirational for the people of the Burlington Church. Thirty-five of our young people registered and attended the conference, this number being the largest delegation from any one Church.

The conference was under the direction of Miss Ione Alverson, young people's division superintendent of the North Carolina Sunday School Association. Miss Alverson is a good organizer and

OXFORD BIBLES

An Oxford $3.50
Teacher's Bible only

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

The best recommendation of the OXFORD TEACHER'S BIBLES is the fact that over 3,000,000 copies have been sold. The wonderful helps they contain save your time because they are alphabetically arranged, making reference easy. They take the place of many books about the Bible, and can be depended upon, being written by eminent scholars. The Helps contain 32 graphic illustrations, besides 15 beautifully colored maps. The text is the Authorized or King James version, with over 50,000 centre column references.

These Are Genuine OXFORD Teacher's BIBLES

EASY-TO-READ EDITION

Size 7¼ x 5 x 1¼ inches

Specimen of Type

17 And there was a very sore battle that day; and Abner was beaten,

Nos.
04451	Moroccoette, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges	$3.50
04453	French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and handsome Bible	4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Same as above, but printed on the famous Oxford India paper used only in Oxford Bibles. Only one inch thick.

Nos. (Weight 18 oz.)

0773x	French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition	$7.50
-------	--	--------

RED LETTER EDITION

05453	As No. 04453 with words of Jesus Christ in red. The red letter feature adds greatly to one's understanding of the Bible	5.00
-------	---	------

Oxford India Paper Edition

05453x	Same as No. 0773x with words of Jesus Christ in red. A gift edition which is sure to please	8.00
--------	---	------

SELF-PRONOUNCING EDITION

All proper names and difficult words divided into syllables and accented so they may be correctly pronounced. Sizes 8¼ x 5¼ x 1¼ inches.

Specimen of Type

6 And A-hi-shur was over the household; and Ad-o-ni-rām the son of Ab-dā was over the tri-

Nos.
04521	Moroccoette, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges	$5.00
04523	French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A real student's Bible	6.00

Oxford India Paper Edition

Same as above, but printed on the famous Oxford India paper which is used only in Oxford Bibles. Only 1¼ inches thick.

0923x	French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A Bible of superior quality	$9.00
-------	---	--------

Improved Thumb Index on any style at 50 cents extra made a very favorable impression with the young people.

Mr. D. W. Sims, of Raleigh, N. C., who is the general superintendent of the North Carolina Sunday School Association, and Mr. Roy A. Burkhardt, of Chicago, Ill., associate director of young people's work of the International Council of Religious Education, were present and spoke to the members of the conference. Each kept his audience spellbound.

"The attractive Christ" was the theme of the entire conference. Each program was centered around the one thought and helped to bring out the beautiful characteristics of the life of Christ, and in addition made applications to the use of the same characteristics, to be used in the lives of the youth of today.

When the young people's conference comes to your county, if it has not already, be sure to send as many delegates as possible, because it will be well worth a dollar to any delegate.

Mrs. Mary Harris Armour, the noted W. C. T. U. worker, upon the invitation of the local Pastors' Association, spoke in our Church January 20th to a very appreciative audience.

On February 16th a community father-and-son banquet, sponsored by the Boy Scout movement of Burlington, will be held in this Church. Several hundred people are expected to attend and much preparation is being made to have a successful affair.

The pastor is enjoying a new Buick since Christmas, a remembrance of his friends. He declares that the past Christmas was the happiest in his experience, and we can well see why it should have been.

Dr. Lankford attended the Pastors' Conference at Elon, which opened Monday night, January 23rd, and continued through Friday night. He reports that the conference was very helpful and inspiring.

On Wednesday night of the conference week, at the regular prayer service of this Church, Rev. H. C. Caviness, of Portsmouth, Va., spoke to our people in a very pleasing manner on the subject, "We Would See Jesus."

Sam Davis, the noted blind pianist, who for a number of years has been engaged in evangelistic work, was present and gave a splendid program at the regular Church hour on the fifth Sunday night in January. He was ably assisted by Mrs. Davis, who is associated with him in his work. They made a most favorable impression by the type and character of program rendered and were heard with great pleasure. Churches in the Christian denomination will do well in soliciting their services.

We were also delighted to have Mr. Jack Darden, of Suffolk, Va., with us for this service. We hope to have our friends visit us again.

The finance committee of this Church has set the fourth Sunday in February as educational day for our Church. At that time a special offering will be received for Elon and Bethlehem. The committee is undertaking to raise at least the entire quota for this Church, and more if possible.

A very successful Sunday School Workers' Council meeting was held on Monday night after the fifth Sunday. The attendance was good, and a well-planned program on "The Problems of a Teacher" was rendered, the theme being "To teach as Jesus taught is to succeed." The subject for our next session will be "The Worship Program."

ESSIE MAE COTTEN,
Director Religious Education.

(Continued from Page 2.)

secration as has ever inspired a soul to undertake for God, and we must save this talent for the kingdom of God. And for this purpose, through much prayer, tribulation and effort, we have and are yet sacrificing to establish an institution of learning in our far Southland, that through it we might be able to prove to the world what the Christian Church would do and could do if it had the chance. But unfortunately it seems that we are a poor people and cannot do the things that we would or that we desire. I therefore, as one who has given and is still giving the best I have and am for my Church and its interests, do most humbly beseech all philanthropic men and women of the Christian Church who may read these lines to remember our dear colleges in this offering as God has prospered them.

It will be an investment, dearly beloved, in character, in possibility, in consecration of the youth of our great Church that can never be attained in any other way. God bless Dr. Harper and his co-laborers of Elon College. God bless Dr. Becugher, of Bethlehem, and those who have its interest at heart. Dear Church of Christ, these men are not perfect, but they are doing wonders. May God direct the administration of our educational enterprises to His own glory and to the everlasting good of our American citizenship, and through them to a world steeped in sin. God bless all the faithful ones in His kingdom, and may His special blessings rest upon the Church for which we have lived and labored.

G. D. HUNT.

ELON COLLEGE

CO-EDUCATIONAL

SECOND SEMESTER OPENS JANUARY 4, 1928

A few additional Students may be accommodated at that time, preferably members of the Christian Church.

SOME OF THE ELON COLLEGE BUILDINGS

ELON COLLEGE offers superior educational advantages to the members of the Christian Church. The buildings are new, equipment new and of the very best type, laboratory facilities equal to any college in the South; member of the Southern Association of Colleges, strong Christian faculty, and fine Christian atmosphere prevailing on the campus. Special courses in religious education and Christian work are offered to train laymen and ministers in the work of our denomination.

For Catalogue and View-Books, address

C. M. CANNON REGISTRAR,

ELON COLLEGE,

NORTH CAROLINA

"Christian Character First and Always at Elon College"

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rve. Daniel W. Kerr.

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Christian Church.

BOARD OF EDITORS

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D. Editor
W. W. STALEY, D. D. Associate
W. A. HARPER, LL.D. Associate
REV. S. C. HARRELL. Associate
R. C. HELFENSTEIN, D. D. Associate
REV. S. M. LYNAM. News Editor
P. J. KERNODLE. Managing Editor

Subscription Rates

One Year$2.00
Six Months 1.00

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT
RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Post-office at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows the date of expiration. Change in the label will appear on wrapper the first week of month following renewal, provided it is received before the 25th.

Change of Address: Give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

When subscriptions are made for friends, state whether paper is to be stopped at end of the year.

Remittances: Make all remittances for subscriptions and renewals to "Editor Christian Sun," Elon College, N. C.

Remittances for advertising and other business matters will be addressed to the "Managing Editor," 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond, Va.

Advertising Rates: "Want Ads," 2 cents a word an insertion. Display rates quoted upon request.

Notices: Obituary and Marriage notices, limited to 100 words, are published free of charge. All over 100 words, at 1 cent a word. Remittance should accompany copy. Write names distinctly.

LONG.

Whereas, God, in His infinite wisdom, has seen fit to call from our midst a faithful and beloved member and friend of Sarem Christian Church, Mrs. Beadie Lassiter Long; therefore, let it be resolved:

1. That it has pleased our Heavenly Father to call our sister from an earthly home to a heavenly home above.

2. That while we mourn the loss of our beloved friend, we bow in humble submission to the will of Him that doeth all things well.

3. That we extend to her family our sympathy, and may our Heavenly Father's blessings comfort them in their loss. May a copy of these resolutions be sent to her family, a copy be sent to The Christian Sun for publication, and a copy be spread on the records of Sarem Christian Church.

We thank God for this beautiful life, for she was a faithful Christian, mother and wife. Through the death of our sister we have lost a dear friend. It shall be our purpose to meet her in the end.

R. E. BRINKLEY.
W. D. LANGSTON.
D. S. HARRELL.

MORRIS.

Noah Jackson Morris died of paralysis at his home, Greene County, Va., January 11, 1928, aged 87 years. He was one of the charter members of the Mt. Olivet Christian Church, and until within the last few years was an active worker. Among his last words were "When God calls me I am ready to go."

Funeral services were conducted by the writer from the Evergreen Church of the Brethren, and the remains laid to rest in Mt. Olivet Cemetery. Left to mourn his death are three sons and five daughters and a host of grandchildren and other relatives. May God comfort the sorrowing.

W. T. WALTERS.

ENGLISH.

On October 19, 1927, Mrs. J. T. English passed from this life to her eternal reward. She was in the 47th year of her life. She leaves to mourn their loss a husband, J. T. English, three children, and many relatives and friends. She was faithful in her home. She was faithful in the Church. She will be greatly missed and her place will not be easy to fill.

May God bless her husband, her children, her friends, and the Church.

ELISHA BRADSHAW.

Walters, Va.

BETHLEHEM COLLEGE

WADLEY, ALABAMA

A JUNIOR COLLEGE AND HIGH SCHOOL.

Where Opportunity Awaits the Student of Very Limited Means.

GIRL'S DORMITORY.

Bethlehem College, Wadley, Ala., will open September 5, 1927. This institution is a Junior College and High School, which is co-educational, where scholarship ranks high and expense is low. It is thoroughly Christian, absolutely non-sectarian, and vitally American. A school where opportunity awaits the student of very limited means—$68.00 pays all college expenses, except books, board and room. Board, $15.00 per month, and room $3.00; total expenses for a term of nine months, $250.00.

Bethlehem College is training some of the best stock of America for Christian leadership, to be used by the nation and the world. Here is a great challenge and asset for students who wish to prepare themselves to serve in a worth-while way. The work on the new Administration Building is progressing nicely, and we will be able to begin our college work in this building when school opens this fall.

For catalog and other information, address S. L. Beougher, President.

OXFORD TEACHERS' BIBLES

An Oxford Teachers' Bible has references and 300 pages of helps that are a mine of information to Bible students. The helps are arranged in alphabetical order, like a dictionary. They are accurate, comprehensive and up-to-date. A few styles are listed here. Many others are described in our Bible catalogue, mailed upon request.

04403 [This size print] Bound in French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, size 6 7/8 x 4 1/2 inches$4.00

0623x [Same Bible as 04403] Printed on Oxford India paper. Only 1 inch thick.....$6.00

04453 [This size print] French Morocco leather binding, overlapping covers, 7 1/2 x 5 in. $4.35

0773x [Same Bible as 04453] Printed on Oxford India paper. A remarkably thin and light Bible. (Only 1 inch thick)$7.75

05453 [Same Bible as 04453] With the words of Jesus Christ printed in red$6.25

05453x [Same Bible as 0773x] With the words of Jesus Christ printed in red$8.75

04523 [This size print] A self-pronouncing Oxford Bible. Bound in French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, size 8 1/2 x 5 1/2 inches...$5.50

0923x [Same Bible as 04523] Printed on Oxford India paper, only 1 1/4 inches thick...$9.75

ORDER FROM
"THE CHRISTIAN SUN"

Richmond, Va

HOLMAN BIBLES

FOR CHILDREN
PICTORIAL BIBLES WITH HELPS

The text is self-pronouncing, by the aid of which children can learn to pronounce the difficult Scripture proper names.

Specimen of Type

27 And the boys grew; and Esau was a cunning bunter.
5 And the streets of the city shall be full of boys and girls playing in the streets thereof.

With beautiful photo. views of scenes in Bible lands distributed throughout the text. Also maps of Bible lands in colors. Also new Practical Helps to Bible Study, especially designed for instructing children in scriptural information.

No. 9111. French Seal Leather, overlapping covers, round corners, gold edges, gold titles.

Our Price—Post Paid 2.30

COLORED PICTURE EDITION

Portraying in natural colors, scenes and places taken from nature and life in the Holy Land.

No. 9211. Same as No. 9111, but with Beautifully Colored Pictures.

Our Price—Post Paid 2.40

FOR INTERMEDIATE SUNDAY-SCHOOL SCHOLARS

Large Clear Black Type, Self-Pronouncing, containing Helps to Bible Study, 4000 Questions and Answers, Maps in Colors, and Presentation Page. A Beautiful Gift Bible.

Specimen of Type.

22 And the prophet Is'ra-el, and said unto thyself, and mark, and for at the return of t

Size, 7 x 5 inches.

No. 215. Divinity Circuit Style, Bound in French Seal Leather, round corners, red under gold edges, with silk head bands and purple silk marker, gold titles, etc.

Our Price—Post Paid 3.10

No. 3215RL. Red Letter Scholars' Bible, same Bible as No. 215, with all the Sayings of Christ printed in Red, and with Red and gold INLAID PANEL SIDE TITLES, also Beautifully Colored Pictures.

Our Price—Post Paid 3.45

Holman Self-Pronouncing

VEST POCKET TESTAMENTS

Clearcut Print in Smallest Size
4 3/8 x 2 3/4 x 3/8 inches

Specimen of Type.
AND the third day there was a marriage in Cana of Galilee; and the mother of Jesus was

2133K. Bound in durable Morocco Grain Semble Leather, flexible limp, gilt titles60

2115. French Morocco, genuine leather, flexible limp, gold titles, rounded corners, gold edges..... .70

2115P. French Morocco, Divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, with the Book of Psalms included$1.10

ILLUSTRATED VEST POCKET TESTAMENT

With Pictures of Holy Land Scenes

2814. French Morocco, limp, gold side title round corners, red under gold edges85

RED LETTER VEST POCKET TESTAMENT
With all the words of our Lord printed in red.

139L. French Morocco, flexible limp, gold side title on red panel, gold edges. .85

15R1P. French Morocco, overlapping covers, flexible, gold side title on red panel, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included $1.25

INDIA PAPER VEST POCKET TESTAMENT

Thin as a Wafer

2136XP. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, with Psalms included $2.25

Send Your Orders to
THE CHRISTIAN SUN
1536 E. Broad Street
RICHMOND - VIRGINIA

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Official Organ of the Southern Christian Convention.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXX.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 16, 1928.

NUMBER 7.

.. THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY ..

BY REV. S. M. LYNAM.

Franco-American Treaty Signed.—

On February 6th, representatives of the foreign office of France and of the United States signed a treaty binding the two nations to arbitration of possible difficulties in the future, and outlawing war between them. This replaces a treaty that expires February 27th, to the same effect. The exact terms of the treaty are not known to the public until after it has been considered in executive session in the Senate. It is believed the treaty will serve as a model for similar agreements which the United States expects to negotiate with other powers.—Wesleyan Methodist.

Hoover and Prohibition.—

Owing to the increasing popularity of Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, as a presidential candidate, the following statement by him on the benefit of prohibition will be of interest. He says: "There can be no doubt of the economic benefits of prohibition. Viewing the temperance question only from this angle, prohibition has proved its case. I think increased temperance over the land is responsible for a good share of the enormously increased efficiency in production, which statistics gathered by the Department of Commerce show to have followed passage of the dry laws." We will hope to see statements as favorable on other phases of the great wet and dry controversy from Mr. Hoover as time passes.—Ex.

Candidate Hoover.—

It is very widely suggested that Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover will be the next President of the United States. Three things have recently happened to Mr. Hoover which are worth recalling. He received a gold medal for achievements in mining which has nothing to do with the presidency directly. In speaking of his Secretary of Commerce, President Coolidge spoke of him as "President Hoover," and Mr. Willis, of Ohio, gave him a challenge when he declared that the contest for delegates in Ohio would be no kid-glove and powder-puff affair. In response to such a challenge, Mr. Theodore Burton, one of the country's most able political leaders, came to the support of Mr. Hoover. A managerial headquarters was made ready in Washington in case of need and a manager selected. The manager is Mr. John Taylor Adams, potent sash and door manufacturer, of Dubuque, Iowa. It will be recalled that Mr. Adams managed the late President Harding's Western campaign in a most masterly fashion. Before the coming to Washington of Mr. Adams, and after his sailing to Europe, the campaign has been and is being carried on by secretaries at the Department of Commerce. The secretary most responsible is Mr. Akerson. He is said to be very able, and to resemble Mr. Hoover. He was trained at Harvard, B. A. 1912, and later served as a journalist in Minneapolis.

Fire.—

Just after supper on a recent evening in Fall River, Mass., fire broke out in a deserted factory at the Pocasset Manufacturing Company. All night the firemen toiled and struggled with the crowds and the flames, and in the morning blackened ruins and ice-coated fire trucks greeted sleepy eyes. Five city blocks of Fall River had been destroyed. The damaged property was estimated at twenty million dollars. Three theaters, four banks, three hotels, two newspaper plants, twelve office buildings, a Jewish temple, and a half-dozen lunch rooms lay in ruins as a result of the flames. Three thousand people were thrown out of work in a city of one hundred and fifty thousand, where the wages had already been cut to the danger point. The morning paper was printed in the near-by town of Taunton. Fall River rallied soon and began to rebuild. There was more work.

On an afternoon recently there were twenty-nine locomotives screaming in the round-house of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. Their cords had been caught in the falling timbers of the round-house and the whistles continued to scream while the flames licked up four million dollars' worth of locomotives and other property.

The National Board of Fire Underwriters took a year and a month to estimate the fire damage in the United States for 1926. They declared it to be $561,980,751, which is the largest fire damage ever suffered by any country in any year. Slight comfort was derived from fire-prevention week. The board of underwriters declared that much fire could be prevented if people would only take ordinary precautions, but left to pursue their routine of negligence there was little hope for a decrease. So large a loss by fire means that the people of the United States are constantly growing more negligent, and some definite measure should be taken to bring about a realization of the serious damage fire can do.

In Our Civilization.—

Senator Hiram W. Johnson spoke for an hour in the United States Senate a few days ago. In that hour he outlined the suffering and barbarism of the Pennsylvania coal strike now two and a half years old. He laid blame freely, but more than that he brought vividly to the front some of the immediate necessities confronting the nation and modern civilization. He read from collected eyewitness accounts of the horror and struggle attending the strikers' existence on the edge of Pittsburgh. When he had finished, the haggard Senator Reed, from Pennsylvania, rose and declared that every word which the Californian had uttered was true. Among some of the extracts read into the record by Senator Johnson were: "This uncivilized spectacle of families evicted from their homes and living like dogs among slops in kennels opposite the very thresholds of their vacant homes is wrong. Children are hungry and sore-eyed in these kennels. Mothers have not the milk for their wretched babies. The civilization which countenances the wretchedness that exists along the hems of this fine city becomes a horror."

This from Fannie Hurst, in the Hearst press, depicts graphically the situation. He might have quoted further from the same source had he wished. Miss Hurst, able novelist, has just recently returned from Russia, but nowhere in all that wretched land, she declares, did she see the suffering, the squalor, the misery of the city of Pittsburgh. She has drawn aside the clothes of this fine city and disclosed the repulsive sores on the civilization that brings such things to pass. There is no privacy, no chance for the decencies of civilization. The union allows three dollars a week, which to a family of five figures about 9 cents a day for food, clothing, and all other expenses. The operators secured injunctions and evicted the miners from their homes, and secured nonunion labor for the mines as strike-breakers, and when the strikers picketed they brought well-armed police to kill them.

The miners appealed last October to John S. Fisher, Governor of Pennsylvania. He is interested on the side of the operators, and so said little and did less. They went to President Coolidge, who referred them to Secretary of Labor Davis. The secretary called a conference of the mine owners, most of whom refused to confer, so matters have dragged on. Following the speech of Senator Johnson, Representative La Guardia, of New York, made a personal tour of the bituminous coal district and came back "hammering and tonging" for a senatorial investigation of the strike, which is being rapidly prepared for. It is said that the mine owners might have so reorganized their mines as to have kept the miners at work, and it is true that they broke a wage agreement entered into by the miners and operators in 1924. The owners claim that this was done to prevent bankruptcy. Miss Hurst said that Red Bolshevism stalked in the homes of those miners and children were born into the shambles of such a civilization. Public opinion needs to be stirred profoundly, and so potently should we move that such spectacles of horror should not blot the nation in which we live. It is a reproach to us all. Whichever the cause, women and children innocent of any of the greed and strife should not be made to bear the suffering of such cupidity. It is a task for the whole force of Christianity, and on such things we should concentrate our power and the power committed unto us by our Lord.

NOTES-PERSONALS

Rev. W. C. Hook, pastor of Holland Christian Church, called at THE SUN office on business during the past week.

During February, Rev. F. C. Lester, Waverly, Va., expects to preach on "Jesus and His Helpers." The specific sermon topics suggested are: "He Selects Them," "He Instructs Them," "They Work," "They Report."

Dr. L. E. Smith, President of the Southern Christian Convention, has sent two personal letters to every minister in the Southern Christian Convention, calling attention to the college offering and suggesting definite plans by which the educational offering quotas may be fully raised.

Mrs. J. H. Pierce, of Sunbury, in renewing for The Christian Sun, says: "I do not see how I can get along without The Sun. I love it more and more every week. I do enjoy reading its pages and have been reading them for a long time. I hope to continue to have this pleasure as long as I can see how to read."

Mrs. J. A. Williams, president of the Woman's Board of the Southern Christian Convention, feels so keenly the need of the women to co-operate in the educational program of our Church that she has written each of our pastors urging that the women be called upon to support the offering in every way. The colleges certainly appreciate this evident devotion to their interests.

Dr. Staley continues to do pastoral visiting as a sort of second nature. Even while he is with Dr. Atkinson, in Florida, he has found time to run over to Wniter Park and visit Mrs. F. E. Bullock, and to DeLand and visit Mrs. J. W. Page. While visiting these two members of the Christian Church, he also paid a visit to Rollins College, at Winter Park, and to John B. Stetson University, in DeLand. Dr. Staley has the pastoral heart.

The board of trustees of Elon College met in their first midyear session on February 14th, at 10 o'clock in the morning. Heretofore the trustees have only met at commencement. It has been the desire of the college administration for several years that they should meet while the college itself is in operation. At the recent commencement the board of trustees acted favorably with reference to this matter. It is felt that the trustees and the college both will profit from a midyear session of the board.

Rev. John G. Truitt, President of the Eastern Virginia Alumni Association of Elon College, desires that we call the attention of all Elon graduates and former students living in the bounds of Eastern Virginia Conference to a meeting of the association to be held at the Hotel Elliott, Suffolk, Va., at 7:30 o'clock, Friday evening, February 17th. It is hoped that every graduate and former student will attend this meeting. Mrs. Annie Staley Calhoun is secretary. A fine banquet has been prepared, college songs will be sung and there will be inspiration in plenty.

The World's Sunday School Convention, which meets in Los Angeles, Calif., July 11-18th, is to have a special de luxe train via the Chicago Northwestern Railway, leaving Chicago at 11:30 P. M. Wednesday, July 4th. The train will be equipped with every modern convenience, with meals served a la carte or table d'hôte. There will be opportunities for stop-overs at points of interest. The railroad fare, round trip, from Norfolk, Va., is $134.26; from Richmond, Va., $130.45. The Pullman service from Chicago is $24.88 for lower berth and $19.90 for upper berth. Those who wish to represent the Christian Church in this world's gathering should apply for credentials to W. A. Harper, Elon College, N. C., sending the registration fee of $5.00.

A private letter from Dr. Staley says that Dr. Atkinson is responding beautifully to the balmy climate and vigorous dieting and medicinal treatment in Florida. Dr. Atkinson himself calls attention also to the mechanical treatments which he is receiving, and they seem to make more impression on his mind than either dieting (though he regrets the omission of coffee and beefsteak) or the climate or the medicinal treatments. Dr. Staley specifically states that Dr. Atkinson's sciatica is so far remedied that he actually forgot to use his cane, and that in a few days he will likely leave the sanitarium and take quarters in a hotel. This will be encouraging news for our Church. It is hoped that the brotherhood will continue to remember Dr. Atkinson in their prayers.

The introductory message printed on the outside cover page of the Elon Alumni Voice is written by Mr. P. J. Carlton, of Richmond. Mr. Carlton says: "I have learned with real satisfaction that the General Alumni Association is to publish a quarterly magazine entitled the Elon Alumni Voice. I am interested in any forward movement for the good of our college, and particularly rejoice when anything is attempted that will tend to raise the earnestness of the alumni. I hope that they will accept this magazine as a means of expressing their best and highest thoughts and of development in a literary way. I am proud of our alumni, and I am proud of our college, and I believe that the alumni magazine will be a link in the chain of loyalty and devotion to the college that will strengthen our alma mater and add to her success and her ability to serve in the field of Christian education."

The presidents of the various Conferences have certainly shown a fine interest in the college offering. Every one of them but one has written a personal letter to each minister in his Conference calling attention to the offering and urging each pastor to give particular attention to the educational offering at this time. Under date of February 9th, Dr. C. H. Rowland, President of the North Carolina and Virginia Conference, wrote a personal letter to each of his ministerial brethren, from which we quote the following paragraph: "The time is short for securing the offering for education, and we cannot afford to neglect so important a matter. If our colleges fail we fail, and such a thing is not to happen. Your hearty co-operation in securing a large educational offering will mean much to the cause of our Church. Give this matter your prayerful consideration and let us work together for our colleges."

The Elon Alumni Voice was printed this past week. It is a magazine of sixty-four pages, with cover, and takes rank immediately, in our judgment, with other college alumni magazines in the country. Prof. John Willis Barney is editor-in-chief. The associate editors are Dr. H. Babcock, Rev. H. S. Hardcastle, Miss Lucy M. Eldredge and Prof. L. B. Ezell. The business manager is George D. Colclough. The contributors to the first issue are in the order in which their articles appear: W. A. Harper, Lucy M. Eldredge, Roy Helms, C. P. McNally, S. M. Lynam, J. W. Barney, H. Babcock, L. B. Ezell and R. S. Rainey. The magazine sells for 35 cents a single copy and $1.00 a year for the four issues. The foreword is written by Dr. W. H. Boone, president of the General Alumni Association, whose fertile brain accounts for the appearance of the magazine. The outside cover page is especially suggestive. To the left is the old college well. To the right is the crooked oak. In the center, at the bottom of these two, is the old administrative building in flames. At the top of the page, arising out of the smoke, we find the five new buildings of the administrative group. The Christian Sun commends this magazine most heartily to our people.

Several leaders in various sections of our Church have become so interested in the success of the college offering, realizing as they do that the success of our colleges conditions our success as a denomination in all directions, that they have written personal letters to our leaders expressing their anxiety that every effort be put forth to reach the quotas assigned each congregation. Among these persons who have rendered this significant service to the college and to the cause of Christian education at this time besides those already mentioned are the following: Dr. W. C. Wicker, Mrs. B. F. Frank, Mrs. W. H. Boone, W. B. Truitt, K. B. Johnson, Mrs. Ben T. Holden, Rev. A. W. Andes, Rev. H. S. Hardcastle, Dr. G. O. Lankford, Mrs. T. A. Moffitt, Colonel Junius H. Harden, J. M. Darden, and Mrs. Annie Staley Calhoun. In addition to this, several pastors have informed us that they have written personal letters to every member of their congregations, urging liberal response for the college appreciation offering. These beloved friends have rendered the college and the kingdom a great service in this evidence of their interest, anxiety and concern for the college. May God bless them and those to whom they have written.

OFFICIAL NOTICE.

The Southern Christian Convention is to meet in Richmond, Tuesday, May 1st, 1928.

For years it has been the custom of the Convention to meet alternately in North Carolina and Virginia. Last session the First Christian Church at Durham, N. C., was host to the Convention. The First Christian Church at Richmond has extended the Convention an urgent invitation to meet with them this year. The Executive Committee has accepted this invitation, and the date of the meeting is May 1st.

However, the suggestion has been made that it would be a fine thing to open the Convention with a banquet on Monday evening, as was the case in Durham. It occurs to me as a very fine thing for the ministers, workers and delegates to meet for a banquet on the eve of the opening of the Convention. If we could meet Monday evening at 6 o'clock for the banquet and have the opening service at the Church at 8 o'clock we could get many of the preliminaries out of the way so that the Convention would be ready for business Tuesday at 10 o'clock. I am mentioning this and wish that those of you who are interested would please write me at once your judgment in the matter.

In the event that the banquet is held, the committee in charge could see that all the necessary arrangements are made. If you have any suggestion as to the program of the approaching session of the Convention the committee will greatly appreciate having the same.

The committee wishes to express its most sincere appreciation to the Richmond Church for its hearty invitation, and assures it of a most willing acceptance.

L. E. SMITH,
President.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

THE PASTOR OF THE CHURCH.

By JOHN G. TRUITT, Preacher.

"For the love of money is the root of all evil . . . But thou, O man of God, flee these things; and follow after righteousness, godliness, faith, love, patience, meekness. Fight the good fight of (the) faith, lay hold on eternal life, whereunto thou art called, and hast professed a good profession before many witnesses."—1 Tim. 6:10-12.

Paul is the world's greatest preacher since Jesus Christ, and I had rather leave the modifying phrase out, for there is no comparison of men with Christ. This greatest of all preachers has not left the Christian world in doubt about Jesus Christ and His mission on earth. He has gone about the earth preaching with no uncertain sound the message of redemption and eternal life through Him who died on the cross for us. He has set those Churches right in many matters, and put within them, by the aid of the Holy Spirit, the desire to Christianize the world. The way in which they made good that desire is a path that leads directly to us today, for without their being anxious to tell it to others we should never have heard.

But that is not all. Paul taught preachers how to teach, preach, and live. Therefore, Paul was a sort of seminary within himself, much after the manner in which physicians used to train young men to take up their practice after them. No one ever went to his task with a better understanding of its greatness. No one ever sought harder to measure up to the demands of the Christ who said of him, "He is a chosen vessel unto me." No one had a better grasp of the thing he was about, nor a more loving heart to achieve it. Paul was a real preacher to preachers. And my brethren in the ministry have long since learned to turn to the personal letters of Paul to young Timothy and Titus for instruction and guidance. We are going to turn to one of his mastery summaries today, which was made to Timothy. And This is not because I am preaching to preachers, but because you are preached to by a preacher, and therefore wish some understanding of his desire in the matter of faith and conduct. "And there shall be like people, like priest," therefore you wish to be a good people in order that yours may be a good preacher. In the final counsels it may be that Hosea will think he can answer the question as to why there are so many poor preachers.

Let us make a few exegetical observations of our text. The phrase, "The love of money is the root of all evil," was addressed to a preacher. It is an oft-quoted text, and one among the most often quoted of the New Testament, but seldom in quoting it do we realize that that statement, while true universally, is made primarily to a preacher. I have turned to the Greek and found that this text is better understood in our day if we put the definite article "the" where it is in the original before the word "faith," making "Fight for the faith." It reads thus in the original, and "the" meant just as much or more in the Greek as it does in English. Paul most likely suffered two imprisonments, and if so this epistle was written during the interval between the two. Timothy had been left in charge of the Church at Ephesus, while Paul went into Macedonia (1 Tim. 1:3). In all probability, this letter was written from Europe.

were to each other. Paul, an Asiatic Jew, work-

How close akin even in that day the nations among European Gentiles, writes to a Graeco-Jewish preacher at Ephesus, and Paul himself was a Roman citizen! Looking through our text as a sort of window we see a prophetic suggestion of our day when the world should be gathering together in brotherhood and love at the feet of Jesus. The pastor of the Church is God's chosen vessel to bring that condition about. Just in this connection, allow me to quote Dr. James I Vance:

"More than any other man, the preacher is making a better world. It is his business to make the earth a decent place to live in. Society dreams of new heavens and a new earth, but how is the dream to come true? How is the vision to be translated into reality? The gospel preacher is the man of all men who holds the key to the future. He is the prophet of the only social order that will ever make human life satisfied. He is not making his country the richest, the most powerful, the most enterprising. He is just making it the best, the surest, the happiest, the most enduring.

"This is the work of a preacher, of an humble and unpretentious preacher of the gospel. His stipend may be a mere pittance, barely enough to keep soul and body together. His family may need to practice the sternest economy to maintain appearances before a congregation that is often more critical than considerate. He may never be known beyond the confines of his little parish. He may be neither eloquent nor profound. But he is a man who has harnessed his ability to the greatest calling on earth and is moving the world uphill."

Our text falls quickly into three divisions, namely: shun the love of money; aim at spiritual values; fight for Jesus Christ. That is my sermon tonight. That is Paul's platform for preachers. That is the longing of my soul. Paul, in writing to the Philippians, says, "For His sake, I have lost everything." And he was not writing a sad sentence. He was sounding a note of triumph. No man has any business in the ministry who is not willing to "lose everything for His sake." "A millionaire may become a philanthropist, but a poor man may capitalize himself and become a preacher." Therefore, Paul warns the young preacher to "Shun the love of money." He did not say shun money. He was too wise in the way of the cross to advise; but shun fussing when you do not get it, shun the love of money per se; whether it be a dollar bill or a national bank, it may be loved in an inordinate sort of way.

But all the while there is one main thing for the minister to do, namely: "Fight the good fight of the faith." In street parlance, "Fight for Jesus." Not fight for a faith, but the faith. The faith for Paul meant the crucified, buried, and resurrected Christ. "I determined to know nothing among you, but Jesus Christ, and Him crucified." If a minister has no Christ, no faith in God as His Father, he has no place in the pulpit. He must not sound uncertain notes. Let him play those he knows, if he knows Jesus as his personal Saviour and his Commissioner to preach, if his life is full of the above requirements, and if he shuns the love of lesser things, he is indeed a co-worker together with God. Then if he loses even his life he shall gain it.

CITIZEN SHOOP PASSES.

Words are feeble indeed to express the sense of loss this community has sustained in the passing of Curtis Albert Shoop. It is difficult for our finite minds to understand why he, so full of usefulness to his fellow-citizens, so highly endowed with those traits of character that endeared him to all with whom he came in contact, should be taken in the prime of life when his acknowledged abilities and splendid vision would have enabled him to render still higher service to his community and his State. Some one has said that the most beautiful possession which a country can have is a noble and rich man who loves virtue and knowledge, who without being feeble or fanatical, is pious, and who without being facetious is firm and independent, a promoter of all which sheds a lustre upon his country and his time.

The most outstanding virtue of this citizen whose passing the community mourns today was his unconscious service to the city he loved with almost a consuming passion, for if there was anything outside of his own household that Curtis Shoop revered it was Suffolk, his home, where he had spent his early manhood and which had turned to shower upon him manifold blessings in return for his loyalty and devotion to her interests. But the richest reward for his toil for her, though often unremitting, was the consciousness that he was giving fully of himself. No man who ever lived here found a deeper pleasure in public service than he. To him it was a part of his creed to labor for the upbuilding and progress of his community, morally, materially and spiritually. And in the after-time his memory will live in his contributions to the cause of civic welfare and advancement. He was essentially a builder, a creator of imperishable things. That was a part of his contribution to Suffolk and Virginia.

When the history of Suffolk is written by some future historian, the name of Curtis Shoop will appear on many pages. There was no phase of civic life in the broader sense in which he did not in some manner figure. He had the qualities of the leader clearly stamped upon him and his fine enthusiasm, his vision and his high ideals dominated all the circles in which he moved. Many a failing cause seemed just a little easier, just a little nearer and possible of consummation when Curtis Shoop was near. His optimism never failed and he had the faculty of radiating it wherever he went until somehow the common, everyday tasks seemed lighter and the world took on a rosier hue. Those stalwarts of his time who have labored shoulder to shoulder with him to secure for Suffolk a larger portion of progress and prosperity will recall that in all the years they knew him no word of discouragement fell from his lips. And this fine courage, this faith and confidence in things seen and unseed sustained him through all the years and into the end of the journey.

The record of this life is closed for him, but he leaves to his family, his friends and his community the rarest, richest treasures in memories that will always be sweet and tender, and the knowledge that he gave back to them and to his people the best that was in him in return.

Long will his memory be hallowed, though life shall know him no more, among those who walked and talked with him from day to day. He did not live in vain, and so death for him is simply translation into the higher life, for which he paved the way through those cardinal virtues which never die.—Suffolk News-Herald.

Mrs. R. J. Newton, of Liberty (Vance) Church, sends in five new subscriptions to The Christian Sun and four renewals. Mrs. Newton not only writes for The Christian Sun, but works for it. Her efforts are certainly appreciated.

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, Elon College, N. C.

Contributing Editors

W. W. STALEY

W. A. HARPER

R. C. HELFENSTEIN S. C. HARRELL

PRINCIPLES OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

- (1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
- (2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
- (3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of Church membership.
- (5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

FINDING THE RIGHT WAY.

Ambition is usually selfish, and aspiration is liable to contain pride. Humble service is more like Jesus Christ. Modern education tends too much toward the cultivation of leadership or big service, when the demand everywhere and all the time is for service that requires the spirit and obedient will of the servant. The best leaders are not trained, but developed out of those who have been schooled in the field of hard work in a small way. Jesus did not try to do great things, but He made small things great. His thought seemed to be of others only, and never of Himself. He gave Himself. That is the field in which Christians can do their best. That is father; that is mother; that is teacher; that is doctor; that is nurse; that is preacher; that is neighbor; that is all who serve God.

It is the little things that count in making the big things of the world. Little drops of water, little grains of sand are not poetry so much as fact. The needle is a little thing, but it makes the clothes of mankind. The spindle is small, but it spins the thread of the world. The trowel is a small tool, but it builds palaces for kings and capitals for nations. The vast army of workers who house, feed, and clothe the world are almost unknown to those who eat at good tables, rest on good beds, ride in easy vehicles, and dwell in safe homes. It is the unseen even in this world that counts the most in the life of man. This is all familiar to those who may read these lines; but what we need to learn is how to apply this principle in our Christian life.

So many members of the Church shrink from doing what they can do from a sense of inability to do what they want to do or what somebody else can do. One thing all can do, and that is to attend Sunday School and Church. That looks like a small thing, and it is; but it would double the power of the gospel if all members would do it. Then members shrink from contributing money because what they could give is so small. They overlook the fact that pennies make dollars, and dollars pay debts. The dime of a poor member counts as much in kingdom service as the dollar of a rich member; sometimes it counts more, as it comes nearer to giving as the Lord has prospered these men or women. A hundred members at Church giving a dime each counts more than one member at Church giving ten dollars. It is ninety-nine more persons to hear, sing, and pray. What the Church needs more than any other two things is for members to attend and pay as the Lord has prospered them. Those two things would remove selfishness, pride, misunderstanding and jealousy, and solve all the questions of finance. And all Churches know that the financial question is the question that is hard to solve, and interferes more with spiritual worship and spiritual fellowship than anything else in the Church. Self is the biggest hindrance to the growth and efficiency of the Church. Big ideas, unrighteous comparisons, and pride in both rich and poor, educated and uneducated, retard the growth of Christianity in the Church and the world.

SUB-CHRISTIAN.

E. Stanley Jones, famous as the author of "The Christ of the Indian Road," in his latest book on India, entitled "Christ at the Round-Table," among other arresting things, gives utterance to this great sentiment: "Our greatest danger is not from anti-Christianity, but from sub-Christianity."

Mr. Jones goes on to explain that he means the individual who lives below the highest standard of the Christian life, the local Church that becomes a sort of self-centered social affair, the denomination that exists for itself and is not committed to advancing the kingdom as such, and satisfaction on the part of the individual Christians and Christian institutions that the standard of practical Christian living should be below the ideals enunciated by Jesus. One of the most impressive facts about the statistics of the American Churches is the number of inactive members when it comes to the life of their local Churches. And the number of Church organizations that perish with each succeeding year is startling. Added to this must be the financial embarrassment that hangs like a pall over all the enterprises of the Churches, whether they be missionary enterprises, publications, educational institutions, hospitals or general benevolent work. The one exception to this general situation of depression and of financial embarrassment is found in the orphanages. Little children do make an appeal to the hardest-hearted even.

Now, according to Mr. Jones, the individual Church member who fails to live up to the standard of the individual life taught by Jesus, not only injures his own spiritual life, but endangers the whole program of the kingdom. He graphically describes a Wesleyan preacher in South Africa who drove Gandhi, the greatest spiritual seer perhaps of the world today from his decision to become a Christian to becoming a Hindu, because he fell below the standard that Gandhi felt Jesus expected of His individual followers.

Local Churches, according to Mr. Jones, and the denominations, have taken entirely too much time in the futile effort to discuss theology and formulate creeds and have not lived for others or given for them, to say nothing of having sacrificed for them after the sacrificial manner of Jesus. The real test of a Christian, concludes this incisive thinker, is the willingness to support a consistent program, such a program as Jesus would support for the advancement of His kingdom.

The Christian denomination in the South has adopted a benevolence budget. The meaning of Mr. Jones' viewpoint is evident for us Southern Christians individually, in local Churches, and in the Convention itself. Surely we do not wish to find ourselves in the class of sub-Christians.

W. A. H.

THE GLORY OF OLD AGE.

II.

The pictures that hang on memory's wall of those of you who have walked life's way for three-score years and ten are pictures that the hand of time has not been able to erase, and pictures that you would not give away at any price, for those pictures on memory's wall have become a part of your own life.

I say to Age: "Walk down the corridors of memory with me. And as we walk, tell me of the experiences that the pictures on memory's wall bring to mind." And Age replies: "It seems but yesterday when I was a rosey-cheeked maiden, though sixty years have marched by with their pageantry of seasons, months, weeks and days since then. But I can still feel the glow that came to my cheek on that day sixty years ago when I pledged my life, my love, my all to the one I loved. I can still feel the blush that came on my cheek when I marched to the altar to pledge my love to my lover true. I can still hear the service the minister pronounced that day as he spoke the words that made us one. I can hear the music, and the laughter of those who were then girls, but who now are as old as I. I can see the faces of those who smiled their wishes for our happiness sixty years ago."

Old age is accurate in its memory of the yesterdays. As if it were but last week, old age can recall the first love letter received. Sixty, even seventy, intervening years is but a narrow chasm for memory to leap as it calls to mind the proud steps when as father of your first-born you carried the little bundle of flesh on the first visit to its grandparents. And down those years of dreaming, planning, working, loving, while the children grew to man's and woman's estate, how rich you are in the beautiful memory which now recalls the experiences that then thrilled your heart in that long ago.

It may have been forty, fifty, or sixty years ago when you made your peace with God—when you accepted Christ as your Saviour, and His teachings as the rule of your life. How vividly you remember the joy which flooded your soul in your experience of conversion. You remember the day the experience as if it had been but last week. Isn't it glorious to have a memory that serves you like that? And isn't it glorious to have had experiences like that which are worth remembering? Youth in Christ is rich in its dreams, and in its opportunities. But old age in Christ is rich in its memories, in its experiences, in its knowledge, in its love and in its service.

Old age is always glorious for the one who has lived a purposeful and a useful life. It is always glorious for the one who has thought of others more than of self. It is always glorious for the one who has lived above the fogs of distrust, suspicion and envy. It is always glorious for the person who loves his fellow-men and who loves God. Old age is always glorious for the one who keeps busy doing whatever one can do that is helpful. It is always glorious for the person who down through the years has been friendly, appreciative, considerate, honest, honorable, patient and cheerful.

Old age is always glorious for the person who has kept sweet. Some folks grow sour and sullen with age, but that is contrary to God's plan. The horticulturist tells us that fruits grown in climates which have long seasons, allowing plenty of time for the fruit to mature, that such fruit has a sweeter flavor than fruits that have but a short season in which to mature. God intended that people should grow sweeter as they grow older. What a pity that some folks have reversed the order! It may be impossible for some to grow old gracefully, but thank God it is possible for every one who grows old to grow old lovingly, sweetly and nobly. It is stupidity for people who are growing old to lament the fact that they have to lose their youthful charms, for the charms of age are just as attractive as are the charms of youth. The charms of youth are mainly physical charms—agility, vivaciousness and beauty. The charms of age are charms of character—knowledge, experience, sympathy, service and nobility.

Old age is glorious for the person who is ready at any time for promotion day. Having fulfilled the years in the college of life, they are ready for their graduate course in the university of eternity, where they will be able to know even as they have been known, and where they will go on and on in the never-ending quest for truth, knowledge and understanding, and for opportunities to serve.

It is wrong for you to be anxious to go home. God has other chapters that He wants you to write in your book of life before it is closed and sealed, else He would have called you from labor to reward before this. He has other hearts that He wants you to cheer, other lives that He wants you to brighten, other souls that He wants you to strengthen in the faith, and perchance other souls that He wants you to win for Him and His Church.

There is only one alternative for old age, and that is death. No person who loves God and his fellowmen will choose the alternative. The cup of life is sweet to the last drop for the person whose life is in tune with the Infinite and whose heart beats in sympathy with mankind.

Would you have a glorious and a beautiful old age? Here is the recipe that never fails. Live in love with God, in love with life, in love with mankind, in love with nature, and co-operate with your fellow-men in promoting whatsoever things are good, and in opposing whatsoever things are wrong. In brief, live nobly, and old age will prove to be by far the happiest period of your life. That is the testimony of thousands of men and women who have walked the upward path.

Old age may be a long way ahead for some who read these lines. It may be very near for others, while others may be living now in the glorious haven of old age. But for all, if we live victoriously and nobly, when we come to the end of the trail of our earthly service and aspirations, we can declare, "I have fought a good fight and have kept the faith," and all who have known us while we lived, and loved and served will mourn our going, for we will be missed. If you live for God faithfully, when the messenger death comes to call you, the angels will announce, "Get a crown ready, another queen (or another king) is coming home for coronation." So may it be for you.

R. C. H.

ANNUAL MEETING.

The People's Christian Church's annual congregational meeting was held in the chapel of the Church, following the regular monthly official board meeting. This meeting is an event of real interest to the Church officials and to the membership in general, for at that time a survey of the accomplishments of the different organizations for the previous year is made in the reports submitted, and the work of the coming year contemplated in the recommendations offered.

Mr. John B. Hutton was elected as chairman of the meeting, and presided with his customary dignity and efficiency. Mr. Elmer E. Benson, Church clerk, read the minutes of the last annual meeting. Mr. John S. Collins, Church treasurer, reported for the official board. His report revealed the interesting and encouraging fact that the year 1927 was the best year from the financial standpoint as regards the contributions for the annual budget of any year in the history of the Church.

The largest amount was raised during the year, the largest percentage of the members were regular contributors, and the largest percentage of the members had their pledges paid in full at the end of the year. The amount contributed through the Church treasurer from weekly offerings during the year amounted to $11,482.60 for current expenses and benevolences.

This amount does not include any of the money paid on the pledges for the new building, which is a separate fund; neither does it include the amounts raised by the Sunday School and the other organizations in the Church, the total amount raised by the Church and the different organizations within the Church during the year 1927 amounting to $17,435.65.

It was also reported that the recent every-member canvass for the 1928 budget was the most successful yet taken, as a larger number of pledges were received, more of the members increased their pledges, a larger number of new pledges were received, a larger number enrolled in the tithers' league, and the largest total amount was pledged for the annual budget.

The treasurer's report revealed that all bills for 1927 had been paid, leaving an encouraging balance in the treasury with which to begin the new year's work. The treasurer announced that those who found it inconvenient to pay the balance of their 1927 pledge before the end of that year will pay as soon as convenient this year, the amount to be used in the enlarged program of work mapped out for this year by the pastor and the official board.

People's Church is supported entirely by the free-will offerings of its members. No assessments of any kind are ever made upon the membership. Each member decides for himself or herself the amount they wish to pledge as a weekly offering for the work of the Church as a thankoffering to God for His blessings and as an investment in the work of the kingdom of God. More than ninety-two per cent of the resident membership of the Church are on the honor roll because of being regular contributors to the annual budget.

The reports by the different organizations in the Church and the different committees showed a marvelous record of achievements, each organization showing an active year of work with a balance in their respective treasuries.

The report for the Sunday School was made by the general superintendent, John B. Hutton. His report revealed the fact that the Sunday School had enjoyed a most successful year in 1927. The school is thoroughly organized and graded for worship and for study, each department having a separate assembly room, and each class having a separate class room. "Efficiency" is the slogan of the Sunday School. The Sunday School has an enrollment of 386.

The pastor's report set forth the purpose and program of People's Church, reviewed the accomplishments of the year 1927, and outlined the goals for 1928. He reported twenty-two baptisms during the year 1927, sixty-three new members received into the fellowship of the Church, forty-five by confession of faith and eighteen by letten of transfer; ten of the faithful members were called from labor to reward during the year. During the year thirty-nine letters of transfer were issued for members who had moved into other communities to enable them to unite with some Church where they now reside. The present membership enrollment of the Church is six hundred and thirty-one, five hundred and sixty-six of whom are in active relationship with the program of the Church.

LIMITING GOD.

It was said of the Israelites, "Yea, they turned back and tempted God and limited the Holy One of Israel." Limiting God—what a thought! How awful! Can a poor, weak man limit God, a Being to whom all power in heaven and earth belongs? Think of Him, the great Creator of heaven and earth and all that in them is. Can a man limit God?

Yes, it is possible, and it has often been done. The children of Israel time and again limited God. The people generally, with a few exceptions perhaps, are limiting God in different ways, mainly because of unbelief and disobedience.

Let us think for a moment about God limited. Through unbelief and disobedience on the part of Adam and Eve, God could not use them. They, so to speak, defeated God's purpose. Little creatures they were to get in God's way and defeat His purpose, but they did it. King Saul, through unbelief and disobedience, limited God so that God had to stop the onward march of His chosen people, throw Saul out, and put in a new king. The work was retarded and the kingdom suffered.

God could not work in the first battle against Ai. Unbelief and sin were wrapped up in the army of Israel, and the army had to be purged of theft, lying and avarice. Then God could work and give the children of Israel the victory.

David, through unbelief and cowardice, limited God. He ran away to the fag end of the earth, so to speak, and the work of God was retarded. God's power was limited and David was humiliated. So much for failure through limiting God in one way or another.

Now, let us notice briefly how God works with His people when He is unlimited. Abraham believed God. He did not limit God. The result was he became the father of the faithful. God blessed the world through Abraham. Abraham was a mere man, fully surrendered to God, and God used him. The children of Israel enjoyed unlimited blessings and prosperity as long as they believed God and fully obeyed Him. They left Egypt in victory; they crossed the Red Sea on dry land; they enjoyed the pillar of cloud by day and the pillar of fire by night as a guide and protection from the enemy. God being unlimited, the walls of Jericho fell down flat.

Solomon, in the beginning of his reign, let God have unlimited control in his life, and he prospered in wisdom and wealth above any to his day. By and by he limited God and down he went. God could use him no longer.

The Hebrew children did not limit God. God worked through them and demonstrated His power before men. Daniel had no disposition to limit God, and God worked through him mightily. God could use the Apostle Paul because in the darkest hour he came forth and said, "I believe God that it shall be even as He said."

John, though banished to the Isle of Patmos, was in the spirit of the Lord's day, and God, being unlimited, revealed to him the Church from before John's time to the close of this age. The result was the Book of Revelation, which is a perfect picture of the Church of God, her trials, her battles, her sufferings, and her final great victory. God forbid that any of us should limit Him through unbelief or disobedience.

Norfolk, Va.

J. WM. BARRETT.

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

Dr. Atkinson continues to improve. His rheumatism is nearly gone; his cough is less, his appetite is good, and he sleeps better. His brothers, Zeb and Buck, have been to see him, and Miss Mary D. comes often and cheers him up with her bright smile, cheering words and filial love.

On Saturday, the 4th, I went to Winter Park, met a Mrs. King, who carried me out to Mr. Fred Bullock's, where I saw him, Mrs. Bullock, Miss Ruth, now a fine college girl; Mrs. Green, Mrs. Bullock's mother, and her son Sam, living near the Bullock's. Ruth carried me out to an orange grove and plucked for me one twig with a cluster of seven nice oranges. I will carry that to Suffolk. After supper, Mr. and Mrs. Bullock carried me back to the sanitarium.

On Sunday morning I attended the Men's Bible Class at the First Presbyterian Church, and then heard Dr. J. Blanton Belk preach to a great congregation on "The Deity of Christ." He seems to be the drawing pastor of Orlando, and was born in Chatham County, N. C., which joins Alamance County, where I was born.

After dinner, Mr. and Mrs. Bullock came over and carried me twenty miles away to Wekiwa Spring, which comes up in a great volume and makes the Wekiwa River. People were there feeding the big catfish, and they were even eating out of their hands. We had a run down the river in a small motor boat, and the scenery was picturesque—trees loaded with the long moss, all sorts of swamp growth and water lilies. It was a great trip. Nature at her best puts the mind in touch with God.

On Monday morning, the 6th, I took the bus for Winter Park to keep an engagement with Mrs. Bullock, who had arranged for me to go over Rollins College. Dr. Fainter conducted me through the building and over the campus, which is on Virginia Lake. It seems to be a good institution, with three hundred students. Mrs. Bullock will receive her master degree this summer, and Miss Ruth is in the freshman class.

After the college delightful experience, Mrs. Bullock carried me in their car through the old Brewer estate, through the city, and at noon back to the sanitarium. The Brewer estate is one of the lovely spots in Florida. By train, bus, and car the orange and grapefruit groves loom into interest and vastness. Mrs. Bullock carried me also to see Dr. Vincent, the pastor of the Congregational Church at Winter Park, and there I met Cady Staley, an old man from Mohawk Valley, New York.

Monday night I went to hear Dr. Daniel, at Sanitarium Chapel. He is holding a series of meetings in which he stresses the teachings of the Seventh Day Adventists. This sanitarium is akin to Battle Creek, and they keep Saturday as the Sabbath. They are very religious, and everything around this institution has the air of trust and dependence upon God. Vesper services are held after supper each day by Dr. Waldrop.

Early Tuesday morning I boarded the bus for Le Land, Fla., to visit Mrs. J. W. Page, who, before her marriage, was Miss Di Kilby, of Suffolk. She married Dr. Page, of Burlington, N. C. He passed before her, and her children are scattered in High Point, N. C.; Portsmouth, Va., and Greensboro. We had a very delightful day together. She carried me to see Mr. J. N. Williamson, Jr., and his wife. He left the evening before for Graham, N. C., in answer to a message that his mother was critically ill. We saw his wife and had a nice visit.

After lunch, Mr. Wells carried us in a good car to Ponce de Leon Spring, which springs up and moves off as St. John's River. An old Spanish sugar mill is still standing there, and the undershot water-wheel, thirty feet in diameter, which used to grind the sugar-cane is still running. Two other sluices of water are running through large openings in the dam. The river that rises full-grown from the ground is so deep and so strong that they have not been able to sound it. It is a great bathing-place. The temperature is about 76 degrees the year round. The other river, Wekiwa, mentioned above, flows into the St. John's. Fish feed here, as there, and the water is so clear that you can see the fish and the bottom. Mrs. Page gave me a great time.

Orlando, Fla.

W. W. STALEY.

ELON LETTER.

The maintenance of colleges is an exacting undertaking in these days of governmental and professional standards. These standards relate to the preparation of professors, to the buildings and equipment, to libraries, to provisions for social life, to athletics, and to all the general problems concerned with higher education. However, the most perplexing and insistent problem is the financial one.

In order to belong to the Southern Association of Colleges of the Southern States, a college must have income from student fees of at least $25,000, and in addition to this must have net income above the interest on all indebtedness, either from endowment or from gifts from stable sources, of an additional $25,000 a year at least. The State of North Carolina has adopted this same standard, and consequently our own college must meet this standard or cease to be an A-grade institution.

This financial standard is based, of course, upon a study of the cost of education in institutions of higher learning the country over. A careful study of the colleges and universities of the United States, made in 1920, shows that students pay 39 per cent of the cost of their education, that 30 per cent comes from endowment, and 31 per cent from annual gifts of fairly stable sources, such as boards of education, Churches and denominational treasuries, or the alumni associations.

It costs a great deal more to teach college students than they pay. There is a demand now that students be required to pay the total cost of their education, and this demand is being supported by such men as John D. Rockefeller, Jr. Educators generally do not favor this, because it would drive students from the denominational colleges to the State universities, which do not charge tuition in many cases and in which there is no disposition to pass on the cost of higher education to students; and because, in the second place, it would deter a great many promising young people from entering college, since they would be unable to supply the money necessary to meet their expenses and would be afraid to borrow it, being unwilling to begin life handicapped with an enormous debt. If our denominations are to have preachers, and if poor boys and girls are to have the chance of higher education under Christian influence, the Churches must maintain denominational colleges and must also supply them with funds necessary to meet their budgets.

A study has just been made for colleges of 400 students, showing what it does cost in an average institution to teach each student. The figure arrived at is $495 for the entire country. Our own institution made an analysis of the most of instruction per student two years ago and found that it was $234.23, and that each student paid $115 of this amount.

This study to which reference has been made was conducted by Prof. Floyd W. Reeves for the Association of American Colleges and was based on the facts for the year 1925-26. Dr. Reeves says that the expenditure of $495 per student is not enough, and that the cost should be within the next few years on an average of $668 per student. This does not include board, room rent or incidental expenses of the college, but merely the educational cost for professors' salaries, laboratory maintenance and plant upkeep, together with the administrative overhead expenses.

Our own college last year adopted a budget, totaling $145,395, which included the following items of expense: teachers' salaries, $66,965; administrative salaries, $9,930; maintenance of power plant, $8,500; catalogues, bulletins, stationery and stenographers' salaries, $8,000; books for the library, $2,500; current expenses, $4,000; improvement account, $1,500; insurance account, $8,000; interest on indebtedness, $25,000; retiring bond issue, $10,000; miscellaneous items, $2,000—total, $146,395.

To offset this budget, the following sources of income were detailed: tuition, $37,000; room rent, $10,000; fees, $17,000; donations, $10,000; endowment, $25,000; miscellaneous sources, including income on dining-hall, etc., $12,000; Southern Christian Convention budget, $36,750—total, $147,750.

It will be seen from a study of this budget that if the interest charge of $25,000 on the indebtedness and the expense of retiring the bond issue, $10,000, were provided for on a permanent basis, the college would not have to call each year upon the Southern Christian Convention for $36,750 in the benevolence budget.

But as matters are now, in order for the college to maintain its standard of instruction and to be recognized by the State of North Carolina as a standard A-grade college and to retain its membership in the Southern Association of Colleges, it is absolutely necessary that the benevolence budget be raised. And even then we are far below the cost of higher education in colleges generally throughout the country, to say nothing of what Dr. Reeves thinks this cost should be. In order to find what education costs at Elon, we should deduct the interest account and the amount required to retire the bonds from the total budget. This would leave a net budget of $116,395, which, divided by 400, gives in round numbers $291 per student for the academic year 1927-28; whereas, the cost in the average college is $495, which means that it costs $204 per student less at Elon than in the average college of 400 students in the country. It also means that we are $377 per student below what Prof. Reeves thinks a college of 400 students should expect for giving instruction to each individual student.

These facts are given that our people may know just why it is necessary for the college to call upon the liberal-hearted and great-spirited members of our Church for assistance in maintaining its work. Those who love the Christian Church and who appreciate the work that Elon has done through its thirty-eight years of history, will liberally respond to the needs of the college at this time. Here is an opportunity to serve the kingdom of Christ through liberal support of Christian education.

W. A. HARPER.

BETHLEHEM LETTER.

There is a growing demand for such conferences as the Elon Pastors' Conference, and this one was well-timed and should contribute a large share in aiding our busy pastors by throwing light on many of their difficult problems.

Such a movement deserves the attention of all our pastors, as it will deepen faith and give an enlarged conception of the work of the kingdom of God. It carried with it the spirit of devotion, compassion, prayerfulness, holiness, and energy for the right, with a marked distinction between faith and gloominess, seriousness and severity, loyalty and intolerance, frankness and ungraciousness, strictness and narrowness, thrift and smallness.

I was most admirably impressed with the emphasis placed upon the principles of our common faith, which are our common heritage and common possession—the existence and character of God, the Creator of the world and Father of man; the principles of human duty as they are laid down in the Ten Commandments and expressed by Jesus Christ in the law of love; and the moral precepts of the Sermon on the Mount.

The program as a whole added richness and zest to our religious outlook, for it carried us from the fine to the finest in things worth while. It was a mind stimulus as well as a soul strength to the rural pastor, who has found the open field an inspiration to right thinging, and to the city pastor who finds the seeds for his ideas in the hurry of his activities.

It grew out of the helpful, fraternal spirit which has ever manifested itself in Dr. W. A. Harper and his co-workers, and characterized throughout by simplicity of statements and omission of irrelevant material and yet it held the rapt attention of that group of folks who are constantly searching for truth expressed in comprehensive terms.

We shall ever feel under lasting obligations to those who made it possible to enjoy such a feast of good things. Our joy and deep appreciation is inexpressible. This event will live long in the lives of our pastors. Those things which address themselves to our sense of pleasure and to our interest in temporal affairs are apt to go out of vogue very soon, but things of the spirit are eternal and the appeal itself consequently lasts. The Pastors' Conference will live because it speaks to our souls.

S. L. BEOUGHER.

CHRISTOLOGY.

By REV. J. W. PATTON.

Literature is a great, if not the greatest of all factors to preserve thought, publish truth and disseminate knowledge. By it we may associate with many of the wisest men of the past centuries, the greatest thinkers of the day, and secure information concerning things that have claimed the attention of man. But the making of many books there is no end; and much study is a weariness of the flesh. In the field of religious literature there has been much and varied thought presented for the consideration of mankind relative to anthropology to this life, the future state of man and concerning the God of the universe. In these we may study the ancient, ethnic, dogmatic Church of the Hebrew, the revealed word of God, and the teachings of the ecclesiastic organizations of today. Study their belief, style, plan and purpose. Study in the field of religious education and interpretation, endeavoring honestly to find truth and secure wisdom concerning the purpose of life and the value of the soul of man, convinces and leads to Jesus Christ, to His Spirit, to His teachings as essential, eternal and divine.

There is nothing superior; there is nothing equal! for God, through Jesus Christ, was manifest in the flesh, justified in the Spirit, seen of angels, preached unto the Gentiles, believed on in the world, received up into glory. Therefore, I love more devoutly, preach more fervently, and build more and more our literature around about and upon the essential doctrines of His gospel. I submit that the real need of the hour is not Church membership, not profession of religion, not Church dogmatism, nor fine houses of worship, nor cathedrals, nor primarily more money; but vital, living, daily, dominating Christianity, the Spirit of Jesus Christ dwelling richly, influentially in the heart, to the glory of God, finding expression in act and making greater, lasting impression for good on child life.

No social, nor even political philosophy, and especially religion will ever get anywhere that does not postulate God as the norm of life. The worst enemies of Christianity are professing Christians. Jesus Christ did not desire to found an order like the then Church of authority, but to establish in the heart of man the apostolic spirit—meet the apostolic test. "But ye are not in the flesh, but in the Spirit, if so be that the Spirit of God dwell in you. Now, if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of His."

The "only" irresistible argument for Christianity is its effect on character. Is it not too true, as Hosea has said: "Like people, like priest"? The institution of the family is at the present time gravely threatened by instability. The Christian Church—the Church of authority of today—is forced to realize that its ideals have been widely ignored, its precepts mocked, and even predicted that parts of our Bible will be junked. Dr. Jonah Wise, head of one of the largest Jewish congregations in the city of New York, recently said: "It is the great temptation for our great cathedral Churches and our great cathedral organizations to become tyrannical institutions, because the seed of tyranny is in all organized religion."

Jesus Christ sought the single life—the individual sinner; and under His touch the doubting Thomas found himself, his faith was confirmed, and the impetuous Peter became a rock. I am not opposed to union, but I plead for unity—unity of spirit. The life of Jesus Christ and His kingdom is a challenge to the kingdoms, etc., of this world. Joseph Fort Newton has said: "All just men, all devout men, all spiritually minded men are of one religion. All are trying to 'say' the same thing colored by their environment and development. Also, all just men, all devout men, all spiritually minded men are not only trying to say the same thing, but they are trying to 'do' the same thing. Since men are trying to say the same thing and trying to do the same thing, the greatest thing is trying to do together."

Unity, co-operation, harmony is the need of our day. Union of men leads to man's power. Unity of spirit of good men leads to God's opportunity. Jesus Christ came to earth to deliver a message, to establish His kingdom, to save the world. The purpose of the Church of authority should be, not to organize a sect, but to deliver a message. The last virtue which the Church can afford to lose is that of intellectual integrity. In the consideration of man, or the thought-world, Christianity is classed under two heads: (a) Christianity as an institution; (b) Christianity as an experience—or (1) A dogmatic Christianity; (2) a Spiritual Christianity.

The Church of authority—the organized, institutional Church—has its place and essential work. But my purpose, primarily, is not to get people into the Church, nor to get people into heaven; but to get the Spirit of God into the people and the kingdom of Jesus Christ into the children of men—and this individually done. Harnack said: "All men either had their own religion or somebody else's." Religion is either initiative or imitative—washed white or white-washed. The Church of authority, when constituted of an honest, devoted and regenerated membership, is an essential, influential and powerful organization and institution. The Church of authority is a visible institution, built upon some creed, whether it be the Bible, the Koran, the Zenda Veda, or some other concept. The temporal fate of Jesus Christ was determined by the Church of authority—the Sanhedrin played its part.

The permanent and universal Messiahship of Jesus Christ is in the Church of the Spirit. In the language of another: "Beyond the sundered sects of His time, when in the flesh, He saw the vision of a purified world; yes, Jesus saw a time when controversy should be supplanted by communion and the 'unity' of His disciples patterned after His spiritual 'unity' with the Father."

The Church of the Spirit.

"Fight the good fight of faith, lay hold on eternal life whereunto thou art also called, and hast professed a good, good profession before many witnesses." Do we believe what we profess? Do we confess what we believe? The rock on which the Church of the Spirit is built is the indestructible and substantial consciousness of a living God. This is absolutely essential in the character of every member, for every one is individually responsible for what he accepts as truth.

The kingdom of God—the Church of the Spirit—is, and of necessity must be, invisible, because it is set up in the heart, the dynamic of action, producing fruitage, which fruit is visible. Jesus said: "The kingdom of heaven is at hand." It was a kingdom which should not come by observation. Read Luke 17:20, 21. This "spiritual" interpretation of Christ's kingdom is remote from the governmental and institutional intention of the Church of authority.

I believe that there is great danger of the governmental retarding the spiritual kingdom, rather than a medium through which the kingdom of God may freely function. There are millions of people in these United States who, if we do not Christianize, will heathenize us. Note the unfolding of the kingdom in the model prayer, "Our Father, which art in heaven," etc.; it is not Thy "Church," but Thy kingdom come. The word Church occurs only twice in the gospel as recorded by Matthew, Mark, Luke and John. The word kingdom is used fifty or more times by them. Jesus Christ came not to destroy, but to fulfill. He came not to contend with the Church of authority, but to establish the Church of the Spirit. What is the purpose of the Church? Salvation saves from, and not in sin.

Salvation Saves.

1. The physical man. How can a purified soul live, dwell, in a polluted body? This is religiously and spiritually impossible. The spiritual tradition, derived from Jesus Christ, is that of the inherent worth of each human soul. Degraded, debased, debauched, defective, abandoned, it has within it the possibility of reconstruction, recovery, regeneration and self-discovery. We cannot do much for the poor; we can only do things with the poor. Jesus Christ could not do much for the people; He could only do with and through the people as they co-operated, individually, with Him.

2. Saves the soul. I submit that it is absolutely impossible to save the soul of man without saving the body. Saving the body from voluntary sin is a preliminary act to saving the soul. Mark 1:15, "Repent ye, and believe the gospel." Is repentance a part of salvation? Is it not a preliminary work? Is the preparing of a plat for a flower garden the cultivation of the flowers?

So must the heart, and the body, and the life
(Continued on Page 14.)

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Field Secretary.

PERSONAL PRAYER.

By MRS. J. J. LINCOLN.

Featuring the spiritual life department of the Woman's Mission Board of the Southern Christian Convention, the superintendent presents four main objectives: First, prayer life of the society; second, Bible study; third, the family altar; and fourth, tithing. How to make these practical and effective in the life of a society is a question many are asking. Admitting that a standard is worthwhile only in the degree to which it can be attained, it behooves us who are zealous for a growing spiritual power in our midst, thus early in the propagation of this new phase of woman's missionary work to try to find the right answer to the question. This present study, however, will confine itself to the first of the four general topics and is given in co-operation with the spiritual life department of the Virginia Valley Christian Conference Woman's Mission Board.

It will be acceded that responsibility for the ideal attainment of any or all of the objectives harks back to the individual, from the chiefest official down to the lowliest member. While this is true, it is equally true that some will not measure up to their responsibility, and so it must be kept well in mind that an undertaking need not be prevented by the spiritual limitation of one or many. Were it true in religious effort as sometimes is said of material, worldly things that "a chain is no stronger than its weakest link," how discouraging that would be! Did this theory apply in the present premises—the theory that the spiritual limitation of one or more of an affiliated group gauged the horizon of the whole—each objective being so dependent upon the personal element it contains and the personal element in any one being so interwoven in all of the four, one would expect that lack of self-commitment on the part of one individual might thwart the purpose not only of a particular objective, but of the whole correlated plan for spiritual life development. And no doubt an attitude such as here suggested does retard achievement. But it cannot prevent achievement finally. In God's own time and way, Christ's Church is going to prevail. In God, weakness becomes strength, and so the prayers and faith of His humblest and apparently His weakest child may be the thing God is using to make some other strong. "One man of you shall chase a thousand" is God's promise, but behind this and every implied victory unseen influences play a part. Whether spiritual or otherwise, the smallest agency that enters into the success of an undertaking is not to be discounted. Not even in the case of the most negative Christian. Oft-times God uses the weakest things of earth to mighty ends. After a while the indifferent Christian becomes average. We are not to think of him as so insignificant and of ourselves "more highly" than we "ought to think." "Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed." The great trouble is we have not thought this spiritual life project through far enough to be tremendously in earnest and to put our whole talent, be it little or much, into it. The right way, it would seem, to go about making the prayer life of the society effective is to view it in the light of personal responsibility as if the whole program of spiritual life were a self-soul matter.

The individual prayer life is a very intimate, personal thing—too intimate perhaps to be promiscuously discussed; that is, the kind of prayer life to which Jesus refers when He says, "When thou hast shut thy door." But without that intimate, personal experience there can be no such thing as a resulting prayer life of the society such as our S. C. C. department of spiritual life has in mind. Unless members are praying definitely, separately, secretly, their concerted prayers, when met together, will be little more than empty, useless ritual. It being the aim of this study to find the way to insure an adequate, forceful prayer life for a society, and believing that is done only by individuals acquiring the practice of daily, secret petition, some reference to the intimate phases of a Christian's life hardly can be avoided.

Perhaps all of us know women ("may their tribe increase") who spent from fifteen minutes to an hour or more at one period daily in prayer and devotional study of God's word. We know other women who, seemingly, do all the praying they ever do on the wing, so to speak. They go to Church and probably absorb something of good. Now and then they may entertain a flitting sigh or wish for a more righteous life both for themselves and for those about them. But to give themselves to a positive, aggressive, soldier-of-the-cross program, Sundays and all the time, how many have thought of such a thing? It certainly appears that the larger number who pass for average Christians pray only as did the college fellow who threw a glance at the wall-motto, "Lord, keep us through this night," and jumped in bed declaring "Them's my sentiments." Now, Christian men and women (why is it commonly agreed that women should pray more than men!), this will not always do. We may think we are getting along very well on it. We may be reverent and rather earnest for the moment in this on-the-wing business, but oh, think! if Christ had not prayed as He did, alone, before day, all night, agonizingly, what would be our hope? Yes, time may be found, or taken, to pray. It should be taken if need be. Taken boldly, in neglect or challenge of every other known duty. But this is a Christian age, and we are privileged mortals. There will be no persecution or interference to prevent us from praying. At first, accustomed routine may crowd and the thought of other things to be done somewhat encroach upon holier thought, and we may think fifteen minutes, or ten, a long time for family and household affairs or community obligations or social claims or business calls to wait, but the joy that comes of that waiting will grow until simply we shall love to prolong the prayer period more and more and because we so love and crave God's infilling, more and more will He supply it.

"If I had the time! . . .

Ah, friend, we have the time, 'tis true,

If we use it as God would have us to do.

Let's take the time! Let's take the time!"

And let's take it in the mornings whenever it is possible to do so. Let's make the morning-time possible. One has only to rise a little sooner. How small a thing that is to do for Jesus! The morning is God's rightful time. He claims the first of our waking hours. No day is started at its best without a season of meditation and prayer, definite, beseeching, confident, sacrificial prayer. And the earnest, devout worshiper will not stop at that. God honors and strangely blesses with an experience of unspeakable joy the faithful observance of stated, set times of prayer and praise, but He honors even more our answer to the call of the Spirit whom, whatever the time and wherever the place, we actually and immediately hide ourselves in the secret of His presence. Such spontaneous response to the Spirit's promptings, God answers just as directly and freely as we give the Spirit heed. Would that all women (and men, too) of missionary faith and connection the world over might bring themselves actually to think this matter through far enough to believe that the consummation of world redemption rests upon the diligence and consecration with which disciples of our Lord in this present time apply themselves to the carrying out of that one of Christ's basic injunctions which says, "Enter into thy closet, and when thou hast shut thy door, pray."

Again, does one say there is no good opportunity for retirement? Opportunity can be made. Seemingly, men's problem for leisure and retirement is the harder, but even a way for men to "meet God in the morning" could be convincingly stated here. We know men, some of our business men, who do it. Woman's natural realm is such that never is there a day, whether she stays in the home or goes and comes, when during some hour of the twenty-four she cannot, if she will, hide herself from all but God.

Lawrenceville, N. J.

WE NEED ELON COLLEGE.

By I. A. LUKE.

And Jesus increased in wisdom and stature and in favor with God and man. These words as recorded by Luke, tell us all we know about the eighteen years of the childhood and youth of our blessed Lord.

They depict the ideal development of the child of God. Growth physically (stature), mentally (wisdom), morally (right relations with man), and spiritually (right relations with God). They afford a standard surprisingly up to date and in accord with modern pedagogy, which should be the aim of every child.

True education, by whatever name it is called, has but a single aim—the development of the individual in right relation to his or her environment. Secular education deals with only part of this environment—nature and man. It, therefore, needs to be supplimented by the development of right relations with that other part of every soul's environment which we call God.

The public schools do not teach religion, and therefore if a child's education is to be completed, some agency must supplement its work. This is both the manifest duty and opportunity of the Church, for its own well being and our present-day civilization and culture.

By Christian education is meant education under Christian influences, and by teachers consecrated to character building upon the foundation of Christ.

Let us give to our young people the principles of the Christian religion, for those principles are spirit and are life. The Bible, the greatest classic in the world, is a text-book in Christian schools, and as an element of education we cannot afford to neglect it.

That the Christian schools have influence spiritual is shown by the fact that 80 per cent of those who enter the ministry are the product of such schools, and by the fact that a large portion of Christian association workers, social settlement workers, and men and women engaged in various fields of helpful work, have received their training in Christian schools.

Such schools shoulder grave responsibilities and endeavor to see that students have an opportunity to study the great moral and religious questions which will soon confront them, and my observation has been that our young people long for the life of spirit, and are anxious to help solve the great problems of their generation, and this is shown by the orations delivered annually in our high schools and colleges at their commencements.

A Christian college furnishes the people environment for cultivation of these high ideals. The need of an educated ministry is apparent. Without that, our pulpits will soon be empty and our Churches closed. Not only is there a call for men for the ministry, but there is also a call for Christian teachers and social workers.

The most important issue before the world is the religious issue. The history of religion is the history of the world. The history of the Christian religion is the history of civilization, and the future of the Christian religion is the future of civilization.

Our duty is then manifest. The young people must be placed in the very best environment possible, for the development of Christian character, and where the call to Christian service for the world is paramount.

Elon College (the college of the Christian Church), with its faculty of highly educated Christian men and women, stands nobly for and champions these higher and greater things.

Therefore, our boys and girls, looking to higher and greater things, and the Christian Church as a religious body, need Elon College.

Holland, Va.

ADULT DEPARTMENT.

By MRS. E. T. HOLLAND.

What am I responsible for as secretary of the adult department of the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention? I am sure those of us who read Rev. John G. Truitt's letter in THE CHRISTIAN SUN of January 5th realize that he has placed a big responsibility on each of us as secretaries. We, in accepting these offices, have in a way said we will co-operate and work with him. Dear secretaries, let's each and every one of us put our shoulders to the wheel and try to do some real work, so as not to disappoint our executive secretary when the Convention meets in July. I am quite sure we all feel our weakness in trying to do this work; we realize it cannot be done alone. But I believe with the co-operation of the superintendents and teachers of the forty-four Sunday Schools, great good can and will be accomplished. I believe this work was entrusted to us through faith, and I wish we as adults could develop a spirit of union between the adult classes in all our Eastern Virginia Sunday Schools. The adult department, I believe, is one of the most valuable opportunities for service in our Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention. Suppose every adult class in all our Sunday Schools was conscious of all the other classes, and that all of them were working together toward some common goal—what a wonderful thing it would be! I should like very much to see this department worked into a powerful factor in our Conference, and I am anxious to co-operate as secretary of the adult department as best I can in this matter. I wish every adult class in the Conference would agree to study missions during a month or a quarter of the year, and that they would study stewardship at another time, and that they would study evangelism at still another time. Furthermore, I wish every adult class in our Conference would take a membership in the Christian Missionary Association. I wish to stress these four goals: (1) Study of missions; (2) study of evangelism; (3) study of stewardship, and (4) every class at least one membership in the Christian Missionary Association.

Dr. Atkinson tells us that the Bible is brimful of missions. Dr. Denison feels the same toward stewardship and evangelism. Their lives are in their work—why shouldn't ours be? Suppose every adult class in our Sunday Schools were as interested in missions, stewardship and evangelism as these good men; would we have to plead for membership in the Christian Missionary Association for the study of missions, and stewardship, and evangelism? Teachers or adult superintendents of all the Sunday Schools in the Eastern Virginia Convention, I am trying to reach you through the printed page of THE CHRISTIAN SUN. I am anxious to hear from you through the same paper or a personal letter as to the work you are doing and what you will undertake to do, so we will have a good report when the Convention meets next July.

I learned through our secretary of missions, Mrs. M. L. Bryant, what we believe to be a splendid way for raising and saving money through the adult classes for memberships in the Christian Missionary Association. The plan is to pass small dime-holders through the class and collect two or three dimes every Sunday. In adopting this plan we could raise a $10.00 membership before we realized it. All classes who are interested in this plan and will advise me, I will do the best I can in providing the holders.

Holland, Va.

SIGNING UP WITH THE DEVIL.

Soon after I left college, I remember attending a theater. The play impressed me very much. I shall never forget it. It was Faust. The weird scenes, the flashing lightning, the flaming pit, the shrewdness of the devil, the human nature of Faust—I remember it all. Faust was a good man, a scholar, a doctor, a magician, a man of unusual attainments. And yet the time came when his knowledge seemed as nothing, his learning turned to ashes, he contemplated suicide to end his troubles.

As the years passed and as old age came on, he realized more and more that he had never yet learned the secret of living. In his seeming last extremity he called upon the devil for relief. Men are still doing that. The devil painted him a beautiful picture. It was one of "wine, women and song." He promised him youth, money and power. A strong appeal, to be sure! What man would not sign up to be guaranteed perpetual youth, abundant wealth, unlimited power, and every day an opportunity for gratifying another new desire?

There was only one consideration. Faust must sign over his immortal soul, with a guarantee from his Satanic majesty that that would burn in hell forevermore. Faust was charmed, captivated, bewildered. He signed on the dotted line. Then followed the wild orgies of "wine, women and song," and the story of Gretchen. Faust debauches the girl, kills her brother, drives her insane; she slays her own child, is condemned to death, and dies a raving maniac in prison. Thus ends the first act.

The second scene opens on a beautiful hillside. Faust awakens from a deep, long sleep. He realizes a change has taken place, and although he continues to follow the devil, finally angels snatch the soul of Faust and bear it away to God. How can we explain such a story? How is it that men who deliberately give themselves to lives of sin and indulgence in worldly pleasures are finally snatched as brands from "the eternal burning"? Just how far may one go before he is beyond the realm of hope?

That depends—depends upon who the individual is, what the training of his early life has been, and how many true friends he has. A poor fellow said to me the other day: "The curse of my life has been that I didn't have an opportunity to select my parents." All of us are human; some of us very much so. The world's greatest men have fallen—when the right temptation came. They say every man has his price. David, the "sweet singer of Israel," the "man after God's own heart," fell when the temptation became too strong, and in his old age paid the penalty. This is not an argument in favor of one spending a life in sin with assurance that in the end he will somehow be saved. And yet we believe there are some men who cannot be lost—too much of the good planted in the subconscious in early life and even before birth, Christian parentage, proper training (Continued on Page 12.)

RECOMMENDED BOOKS

The following educational helps and books have been recommended by Dr. W. P. Minton, Secretary of Foreign Missionary Department, and Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Mission Secretary, S. C. C. Acting upon the advice and recommendation of these two recognized and earnest missionary workers, The Christian Publishing Association has stocked the following books, which are moderately priced and can be supplied on receipt of order:

FOREIGN MISSIONARY BOOKS

- New Paths for Old Purposes—By Margaret E. Burton. In cloth, $1.00; paper$.60
- The Nursery Series—Ah Fu (a Chinese river boy), Kembo (a little girl of Africa), The Three Camels (a story of India), Asa (a little Boy of Nazareth), board backs, each60
- Our Japanese Friend—By Ruth Isabel Seabury, in cloth only..... .75
- Young Japan—By Mabel Gardner Kerschner, in paper, each..... .40
- A Straight Way Toward Tomorrow—By Mary Schaeffler Platt, cloth, 75c; paper50
- "Straight Way Towards Tomorrow" has been prepared especially for Missionary Societies.

HOME MISSIONARY BOOKS

- The Adventure of the Church—By Samuel McCrea Cavert, cloth, $1; paper$.60
- Indian Playmates of Navajo Land—By Ethel M. Baader, cloth75
- The Better American Series—Junior Home Mission Courses, cloth.... .75
- The Story of Missions—By Edwin E. White, cloth, $75; paper..... .50
- Please Stand By—By Margaret Applegarth, in cloth, 75c; paper.... .50
- Nine Home Mission Stories—For teachers to tell Primary pupils, paper25
- The Upward Climb—By Sarah Estella Haskin, in cloth only, each.. .75
- In the Vanguard of a Race—By Mrs. L. H. Hammoud, in cloth, $1.00; paper75

A SERIES OF SIX BIG FOREIGN MISSION BOOKS

- China, Japan, India, Africa, Near East, and Latin-America—Per set in cloth, $6.00; paper, $4.00; cloth, $1.25; paper.....$.75

ANY OF THE ABOVE OR OTHERS MAY BE SECURED FROM

All books sent postpaid.

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

INTERNATIONAL UNIFORM SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE.

Lesson VIII—February 19, 1928.

TWO MIRACLES OF POWER.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Who, then, is this, that even the wind and the sea obey Him?"—Mark 4:41.

LESSON: Mark 4:35-5:20.

DEVOTIONAL READING: Psalms 104:1-8.

Jesus and Natural Forces and Dangers.

The Master was human. A hard day's work made Him tired. He therefore suggested that they get into a boat and go to the other side of the Sea of Galilee for some rest. Leaving the multitude, they took Him, even as He was, in the boat and started for the other side. "And other boats were with Him." People who are in trouble or who are harassed by temptations, or who have great sorrow, often feel that their case is unique. We need to keep in mind that there are others in "boats" on the sea of life in the storms that beat upon us, and that these storms beat upon them. One of the best things that people in trouble can do is to help others who are in trouble.

"And there ariseth a great storm of wind . . . and He Himself was in the stern, asleep on the cushion." Jesus knew how to relax. He was as serious about His life-work as any man has ever been, and He carried His work on His heart. But, unlike so many people, He did not take it to bed with Him. Happy is the man who, having done the best he can, lies down to sleep, or gives himself to some hobby, or takes some recreation, so that when he does go back to his work he can take it up with new power and new enthusiasm. We Americans need to know the fine art of "power through repose." We need to learn "how to let go."

"Teacher, carest Thou not that we perish?" The Father does care about His children. He cares more than we realize. The trouble usually lies in the fact that so many of His children have no sense of need—they do not realize that they will perish without Him, and in many cases it would appear that they do not care much whether they do perish. Let any one in the storms of life appeal to the Master and he will soon learn that the Master cares, and that He is able to deliver.

"And He awoke, and rebuked the wind, and said unto the sea, 'Peace, be still.' And the wind ceased, and there was a great calm." What does it all mean, unless it means that Christ is Master of natural forces? There are many people who readily accept the fact that Jesus is the Saviour of the world, who are "stumped" by this miracle. As some one has said, however, if we accept the really great miracle, the miracle of Jesus Christ Himself, there is not much difficulty in accepting His miracles and mighty acts. And aside from the facts here set forth there is the eternal truth that the Master can speak peace to human hearts. There are many people who know that this story is not an idle tale, for the Christ Himself has come into their hearts, distracted, torn, storm-tossed, and spoken a great peace of God which passeth all understanding. This, after all, is the truth our hearts hunger for.

Jesus and Demonic Powers.

The first section of this lesson showed Jesus' power over natural forces. This section shows his power over demonic powers. As soon as he had landed on the other side of the lake, in the country of the Gadarenes, there came to him out of the tombs or caves so numerous in that section a man "with an unclean spirit." The people of Jesus' day used this term to denote that a man was afflicted by epilepsy, or fits, or insanity, or other forms of abnormality, especially in the mental sphere. They attributed these phenomena to the fact that there was in such persons an evil or an unclean spirit. The Chinese today still believe that disease is due to the presence within a person of devils or evil spirits, and one of the common practices of native doctors is to stick a needle or larger pointed instrument into the affected part so that the devils or evil spirits may come out. In the case of this man, it is more than likely that he was at least partly insane, and subject at times to violent outbursts. At such times his strength was such that chains and fetters were easily burst asunder. He was not only a pathetic figure; he was a dangerous one.

When this man saw Jesus afar off, he ran and worshiped Him. Even such a man seemed to recognize in the Master something unique. The evil spirit within him recognized in Jesus its Master too. "What have I to do with Thee, Jesus, Thou Son of God, the most high God? I adore Thee by God, that Thou torment me not." Jesus is the Disturber of men of evil design. How glad all evildoers would be if they could get Christ out of the land so that they would be left free to carry out their desires. What a fine thing it would be for bootleggers, dope-traffickers, white-slave owners, and their ilk if they could close up the Churches and get the spirit of the Christ to go somewhere else. We Church folks will do well to remember that the Christ is depending upon us to wage an uncompromising warfare against all such things of the devil.

"And they come to Jesus, and see him that was possessed with the devil, and had the legion, sitting and clothed, and in his right mind." What a parable of the work of the Christ! How often has He taken those who were crazed by drink or passion, who were dressed in rags, who were defeated and broken, who were subject to "evil spirits," and wrought in them such changes that, as Paul says, "they are new creatures." They clean up and dress up, they become sober and law-abiding, they regain their self-respect, they become victorious and happy, they fill useful places in the home, in the Church, and in society. The thing that happened on Galilee's hills long, long ago still happens right where we live. The Christ still has power over "unclean spirits." For this cause was He manifested to destroy the works of the devil.

"And they pray Him to depart out of their coasts." Then as now, vested interests often hold material things of more value than men. And they fight bitterly any efforts to secure for men and women, boys and girls better living conditions, more sanitary surroundings, better advantages, at the expense of profits. When one sees the implication of this verse, he sees that it is as modern as the latest "best seller."

"Go home to thy friends, and tell them how great things the Lord hath done for thee, and hath had compassion on thee." The first place, and perhaps the hardest place, to show that we have begun and are leading the Christian life is in the home. How romantic it sometimes seems to think of going to China or India or Japan as a missionary! It is well to remember, however, that in a very real sense one can be a missionary right where he is. And he who manifests in the home where he lives the spirit of the Christ is in the finest sense a missionary after Christ's own heart.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Sunday, February 26, 1928.

TOPIC: "How Much Does the World Want Christ?"—Acts 16:8-15, 17:32-34.

Suggestions for the Meeting.

1. Announce the meeting with a poster on which is a map of the world with the words "How much does the world want Christ" written below it. Or make a poster showing people of different races and countries using the words suggested above.

2. Keep in mind that this will be the last week of the college period, and have the college work presented in some way. Christian Endeavorers should assist the pastor and others in getting the Church offering for our colleges.

Leader's Talk.

How much the world at large wants Christ will depend upon how much we love Him who claims to be His followers and how attractive we make Him to others. People of other lands are more intelligent than the average American gives them credit for being. They are watching the actions of the Christian countries to see how Christianity works in industry, politics and governments. Can the Christian countries always be an example in these things? Is it because Christianity doesn't work or because we don't apply Christianity in these things?

How much does the world need Christ? Is Christ a sufficient Leader for all the world? When we read the Bible we find that the principles of Christ, as of no other Leader the world has ever known, are equally applicable to all people as individuals, races and nationalities. It is remarkable how up-to-date they are and how nearly they can be applied to every phase of life. The homes of this and other lands need Christ. In some places where Christ is not known there is no such thing as a real home. Those of us who know and live Christ know that all the world needs Him, and at the same time realize that it depends entirely on Christians as to how much the world wants Christ.

The World Seeking Christ.

Many countries are seeking Christ today because they are seeking His principles of living. E. Stanley Jones, who understands the people of India, says India is ready to receive Him, but that this does not mean that they must have our Church system. They need and want Christ. This gives us something new to think about. Other countries may be able to show us that Christ can mean more to our individual lives, or show us how we may better work together as Christians, or many other things which we have not thought about. Christ means more when we see that He is bigger than any one Church or nation. Many peoples are ready to receive such a Christ. Some are seeking Him consciously, and others unconsciously. We, as Christians, have no right to be dogmatic about how they shall receive Him.

Growth of Christianity.

The growth of the kingdom of God—spreading the gospel—has been slow, but when we study about it we find that it is one of the most marvelous things the world has experienced. We see the world as it was when Christ came—the work which He did while living on the earth, training His twelve disciples; the slow spreading in different ways after His death, finally the conversion of Europe and the spreading of the gospel to this country. Nothing could be more interesting! As long as Christ is not known around the world, there is work for all of us to do. The world needs Christ, and we must help the world to want Christ.

Questions.

1. What would happen if all people should accept Christ?
2. What influence would making the world Christian have on war?
3. Would we be able to tell a difference in politics and industry if Christianity were applied to them?
4. Name some ways in which we can make Christ more attractive to those around us who don't accept Him.

PATTIE COGHILL.

ROSEMONT CHURCH.

Rosemont is planning to receive the "Appreciation Offering" for our colleges on the last Sunday in February. Elon was not forgotten on January 15th. We prayed for "dear old Elon" on that day.

Mr. Sandusky Curtis, president of the Virginia Christian Endeavor Union, spoke to our young people, and also to the evening congregation, on the night of February 5th, delighting both audiences with most helpful and inspirational messages.

The meeting of the workers' council of the Sunday School, held the evening of February 8th, was interesting, and the discussions were very helpful. The council decided to have special mention made of those at the end of each quarter who had not missed Sunday during the past three months.

The new Church fund is still growing, and it is the hope and prayer of the pastor that we will have a Church and Sunday School building within a few years that will be large enough and can be kept warm and comfortable enough for our large and growing membership.

The pastor has been authorized to plan for a special evangelistic campaign in the early spring, but the exact date has not yet been decided upon.

Two new members were received into the Church on last Sunday night, and several others are expected to become members in the near future.

"Soul Culture" and "By the Sheep Market" are the sermon subjects for February 12th. The former will be a discussion of Christian education, in keeping with our colleges and their work.

J. F. MORGAN.

REVIVAL MEETINGS.

Owing to looking after the new building at Bethel, I have been slow to get into my usual work this year. Only three meetings have been held, leaving six more to be held at my regular Churches. The one at Mt. Olivet has already been reported.

I began my meeting at Palmyra on November 28th. Rain and sleet hindered the attendance and interest. There were five conversions and reconsecrations. One was received into the Church. My meeting at Whistler's Chapel was held on January 3rd to the 20th. The attendance and interest were good. There were nine conversions and consecrations. Three new members were added to the Church, with others to join later. At my last appointment at Mt. Olivet a man eighty-two years old was received into the Church, and another new member was added at Palmyra last Sunday, making a total of twenty-five additions to my Churches since Conference.

W. T. WALTERS.

Harrisonburg, Va.

BIBLES FOR ALL PEOPLE.

The New York Bible Society has just arranged for the delivery of 1,000,000 Bibles at its building, 5 East Forty-eighth Street. Its circulation is limited to the city and port of New York. This is the largest order ever placed by the society and was necessary, it was declared, to meet the constantly increasing demands for Bibles in this city. This number will provide a new Bible to about one in six of the population. The order includes Bibles in twenty-two languages, the largest number being in English. The foreign languages are French, German, Greek, Hebrew, Italian, Latin, Bohemian, Czechoslovakian, Danish, Finnish, Flemish, Hungarian, Lettish, Lithuanian, Russian, Ruthenian, Spanish, Norwegian, Swedish, Polish and Maltese. The society has always available Bibles in sixty-seven languages and in raised type for the blind. The 118th anniversary of the organization will be celebrated Bible Sunday, December 4th.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Minion Bold-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 7-8x 7 Inches, and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

2152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.75

India Paper Edition, Size 4 7-8x7 Inches, 1 1-10 Inches Thick.

2152X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$6.00

Bourgeois Type, Size 5 3-8x8 Inches, and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

2167—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.00

2172—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.50

2172A—Same as above, with Apocrypha.....$5.00

2173—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges.....$6.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3-4x3-8 inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3 3-4x5 3-8 Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps.....$2.50

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations. Special book for Sunday Schools.....95c

Minion Type, Pocket Size, 4x6 Inches, 1 1-2 Inches Thick.

With 32 full-colored illustrations; also 25 outline maps through the text and 12 colored maps.

133—Bound in cloth, round corners, red edges, title stamped on side in pure gold.....$1.60

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.$3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 15-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.$4.00

Minion Black-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 3-4x 7 Inches, 1 1-2 Inches Thick.

Printed from clear, large, black-face type, 32 full-page illustrations in sepia and colors, 4,000 Questions and Answers, Harmony of the Gospels, How to Study the Sunday School Lesson, 25 outline Maps, 12 full-page colored Maps.

4152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold.....$3.25

AMERICAN STANDARD VERSION. TEXT BIBLES.

Printed from Easy-Reading Type, on Good Bible Paper, for Sunday School and Church Use.

Minion Type, Size 4x6 Inches, 1 1-2 Inches Thick, 25 Outline Maps, Bound in Black.

101—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, title stamped on back in pure gold...$1.10

112—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title on back in pure gold.....$2.75

India Paper Edition, Only 7-8-Inch Thick.

112X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.75

Reference and Text Bibles also in minion, brier, bourgeois, long primer, pica and English type.

Thumb index cut on edge, 50c extra; name printed on any Bible in gold, 40c extra; extra wording, 40c per line.

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5 3-8x8 1-2 Inches and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With concise Bible dictionary, combined concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.75

RED LETTER EDITION

With all the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands, title stamped on side and back in pure gold.....$3.25

Any of the above Bibles sent post paid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 E. Broad St., - - - Richmond, Virginia.

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY REV. H. E. ROUNTREE,
One of Our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"Call upon me, and I will answer thee, and shew thee great and mighty things, which thou knowest not."—Jeremiah 33:3.

MONDAY.

RESOURCES OF GOD.

"Open his eyes, that he may see."—2 Kings 6:17.

This young man could not see the haste of God about him, and Elisha seeing them prayed for him that he might see also. Then he saw.

The contest of life is very keen sometimes, and defeat is threatened, but so long as God's faithful ones are loyal to Him, His forces are to be reckoned with.

At a dark time during the Civil War, Governor Gates wrote a despairing letter to Lincoln. Lincoln replied: "Dick, stand still and see the salvation of the Lord." That is God's teaching. "Be still and know that I am God." That is what we are failing much to do in this rushing age. We are running and looking, but not seeing. We are living and not having life. We are hearing and not understanding. We see some things, viz: adversities, disappointments, evil, trouble, shadows, and we grow pessimistic and give up the fight, all because we fail to see the forces that are for us.

We are like the fellow who looked upon the great glazier and saw only its commercial value. He said: "All that ice would bring a lot of money in Calcutta." Or like Coleridge's sunrise, one sees a heavenly glory, while another sees nothing. To some, Christ is a loving Saviour. To others He is just a Man.

Prayer.—Our Father, we humble ourselves before Thee this day to pray, that our work today, our deeds, our thoughts all may be sacrifices of righteousness. May we be able to set Thee before us and look to Thee the Author and Finisher of our faith. Compass us about with Thy mercies and may our lives be filled with Thy glory and Thy salvation. Amen.

TUESDAY.

CHRISTIANITY'S STERNER VIRTUES.

"Quit yourselves like men and be strong."

We think of Christianity as bringing the softer, tenderer, more amiable virtues to character, but we make a mistake if we suppose that it has no place for the severer excellencies.

Every day is a scene of discipline, conflict, struggles, wrestling against flesh and blood and principalities and powers, and it takes shrewdness, craft and power of the spirit to vanquish the adversaries of our souls.

The soldier, lest he be surprised at his post and fall a victim to his foe, must possess the primary soldier-like virtue—watchfulness. To keep ourselves under constant vigilance, Christian discipline, like the adamant stone, we become powerfully refractive, impenetrable, and irresistible to life's foes. This challenges the highest type of manhood, but it acquires the highest type of godliness.

Prayer.—Our Father, Thou art the only force that turns back the force of sin. Thou hast never disappointed upturned eyes. As the sun breaks upon those who look to the east, look Thou upon us as we look to Thee. Give us the faith and the courage to look inward and see Thy glory. Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

PEACE WITH GOD—How?

"Acquaint now thyself with Him and be at peace."—Job 22:21.

Some folks see no difference between the satisfaction they get out of life and that which a Christian gets out of life. They see no difference between their own misfortunes and the misfortunes of believers, and there are Christians who cannot see that their Christianity has brought them any peace.

Well, God does not promise sunshine and flowers all the way, but he does promise to "keep" us. Noah had a hard time, but God kept him. Abraham was a desolate soul, but God kept him. Jacob lived a life of a broken heart, but God kept him. Joseph spent much time in jail, but God kept him. The Israelitish history is bondage, but God brought them out. To all the faithful He says, "My presence shall go with thee and give thee rest." But we are to remember that the first duty of man is to "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness and everything else shall be added" to make our lives right and at peace.

Prayer.—Our Father in heaven, Thou art our refuge and strength. We wish to do our whole duty to Thee and our fellow-men. We pray Thee with penitence for our sins. Forgive us, Lord, and give us power to become Thy children, and we shall have Thy peace. Amen.

THURSDAY.

WHAT A PEACE!

"There is now no condemnation to them that are in Christ."—Rom. 8:1.

"He that believeth shall not be condemned."—Jno. 5:24.

Once upon a time a little boy wounded his neighbor with a wild shot from his flobit rifle. Knowing the enormity of the tragedy, he was in great sorrow, but the father paid the hospital bill and assured the boy that the neighbor forgave him and that no harm would come of it. Then the boy was happy.

How happy we are when Jesus pays it all and forgives all and God is happy with us. Are we surprised that sinners cannot understand? They haven't it. Are you surprised that some Christians do not understand? They are not without condemnation.

The whole of Christ's teaching is that we have to put Christ in our lives. That is the difference between moral reform and Christianity. Moral reform is merely driving the devil out and leaving the house empty. Christianity is putting the devil out and putting Christ in.

Prayer.—Our Father in heaven, give us this day our daily bread, give us lives to do Thy will, make this our chiefest pleasure. Give us the glorious liberty of fellowship with God and eternal peace. Amen.

FRIDAY.

WHERE THE BLAME IS.

"Thou wilt keep in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on Thee."—Isa. 26:3.

If we have not this peace, is our mind in the right place? The fact is we all try to have peace of ourselves instead of peace with God. God is able to make us happy without anything but Himself. How can we be anything but happy if our sins are forgiven, if our spirit is right, and our future bright with the hopes of God's promises? Our mood does not change the fact. The fact does not crumble and pass away, but it remains forever, peaks of pearl cleaving the air of eternity, and their bases are firmly planted in the rock of God.

Prayer.—Our Father, in this day of Thine, give us the consciousness of Thy presence. Help us to open the doors and shutters of our souls. Send in the sunlight of heaven and flood our souls. Sup with us. Give us Thy Spirit, and we shall be Thine forever. Amen.

SATURDAY.

THE MASTERY OF SELF.

"He that ruleth his spirit is better than he that taketh a city."—Prov. 16:28-33.

The greatest mastery is the mastery of self. We often hear the expression, "getting hold of one's self." And the more we see of life, the more we are convinced that comparatively few have learned how to rule the spirit. The wise man tells us that this very quality is greater than conquering a city.

The man who has mastered himself is fitted for the larger tasks. Across many of the failures of life might be written: "Lack of self-mastery." One may have desires and aspirations; he may put forth some strenuous efforts; he may know what he would do, and plan for it, yet he may lack capacity for the bigger things.

He who controls himself has taken the most potent weapon out of the hands of the enemy. Any contestant in a game stands a better chance when he has himself under control. Some one has said, "Beware of the man who fights with a smile on his face."

The man who rules his spirit is already a victor.

Prayer.—Lord's Prayer, all the circle joining.

SUNDAY.

WHEN GOD REVEALS HIMSELF.

"Where is the Lord God of Elijah?"—2 Kings 2:1-15.

God, in some way, honors the demand for His presence and power. If we cry unto Him and put Him to the test, He is sure to respond. The God of Elijah was revealed to Elisha in the use made of the old prophetic mantle. The act of faith that cast the mantle over the Jordan of difficulty was honored.

The mantle of our spiritual deliverance has been, in many instances, the Word of God. When that is used in faith, God draws near. The same thing can be said of the Church, when its instrumentality is estimated properly and faithfully used.

Elisha's question was best answered in his own life. In the subsequent doings and character of that prophet, God was manifested. It pleases God to reveal Himself in a life that is surrendered, consecrated, laid down. This is borne out in an observation made by a Durham miner about that well-known saintly Christian worker and preacher, Thomas Cook. Said the miner, who had been listening to Cook on one occasion, "I'm not a Christian, but that man is thick with God!"

Prayer.—Lord's Prayer, all the circle joining.

(Continued from Page 9.)

in childhood, prayers of friends and loved ones. It would seem that an individual with all that behind him cannot be lost without promises in the Bible, to some extent at least, being discounted.

One can never live himself entirely away from the Christian teachings of early childhood. He may, by drink and dissipation, drive these things out of his conscious mind for the time being, but the great subconscious still retains them, and they will at times, in spite of himself, come to the surface. But, after all, does it pay to take the chance and, worst of all, waste the life?

S. M. SMITH.

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

The children at the Orphanage escape scourges of disease for long periods, and then occasionally we have a real seige of it. We have not had an epidemic of any disease in four years. And for the last four years have had but very little sickness. Last year we had children in bed one hundred and thirty-six days. Perhaps a child in bed one day and hardly over two out of the one hundred and thirty-six days we had one girl in bed eighty-eight days. So you see we had one hundred children only sick one-half day each during the year. Four years ago we had flu and pneumonia. Some children critically ill, but we had no deaths. Now we have measles and whooping-cough. The whole Orphanage looks like a real hospital. So far, we have had no complications, and all are doing well. We are hoping and praying that we will have no serious trouble.

Orphanages are like homes—always in need of something. But it is always a joy to some one to supply our need. We need a piano for our new building. Who will supply this need with a new one or a good second-hand one?

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON,
Superintendent.

REPORT FOR FEBRUARY 16, 1928.

Brought forward $1,963.66

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

N. C. & Va. Conference:

Berea (Jan.-Feb.) $ 7.15
Pleasant Grove (Dec.-Jan.) 5.37
Durham 22.66
Third Ave., Danville 5.96
41.14

Western N. C. Conference:

Pleasant Ridge $ 3.88
Seagrove 2.66
Ether 3.59
Pleasant Hill 6.31
Pleasant Cross60
17.04

Eastern N. C. Conference:

Turner's Chapel $ 1.62
United Church, Raleigh, N. C. 3.67
Hayes Chapel 4.64
Pleasant Hill 3.00
12.93

Eastern Virginia Conference:

Rosemont $44.66
Oakland 5.00
Windsor 9.45
First, Norfolk 4.35
63.46

Valley Virginia Conference:

Leaksville $ 3.37
Antioch 2.00
Newport 2.00
Dry Run 1.75
Bethlehem 2.22
11.34

Georgia and Alabama Conference:

Vanceville 1.46

Alabama Conference:

Noon Day60

Special Offerings.

Mrs. Mollie Martin Opp, Ala. $10.00
W. H. Lee, support Mary D. Lee... 63.50
R. B. Wicker, coat for Edna..... 5.75
79.25

Northern Sunday Schools:

Huntington S. S., Huntington, Ind. $14.50
Rev. A. Godley, Tenaflly, N. J. 1.00
15.50

Thanksgiving Offerings.

Eastern N. C. Conference:
Oak Level 15.71
Western N. C. Conference:
Zion 25.50
Outside help:
Mrs. Mattie J. Cox, Suffolk, Va. 1.00
Grand total $2,248.59

YOUNG PEOPLE'S RALLY.

On Saturday and Sunday, March 10-11th, there will be a combined meeting of the Christian Endeavor Union of the Eastern North Carolina Conference and children's workers of the Sanford district, at Sanford, N. C. Each Church of the Conference will be expected to send some young people as delegates, whether or not your Church has a Christian Endeavor Society. Each Church of the Sanford district, which includes the following Churches, will be expected and urged to send their pastor, Sunday School superintendent, all teachers of children in the Sunday School, and others interested in children—Bethel, Christian Chapel, Christian Light, Lee's Chapel, Lebanon, Martha's Chapel, Moore's Union, New Elam, New Hill, Pleasant Hill, Pleasant Union, Shallow Well, Sanford, Turner's Chapel, and Poplar Branch.

The young people's program will include conferences on Christian Endeavor work in the local Church, worship programs, addresses by Dr. Graham, of the University of North Carolina, and Dr. W. M. Jay, of Elon College, reports of the Detroit Student Volunteer Convention by Graham Rowland, a senior at Elon College, and others; a social, business meeting, and so on. Galen Elliott, Chapel Hill, N. C., is president; Ethel Woodlief, Henderson, N. C., vice-president, and Fleda Summers, Raleigh, N. C., secretary-treasurer. The leaders are enthusiastic over the meeting, which promises to be fine from every standpoint.

The children's division institute should be most interesting and worthwhile, with Miss Helen Stearns, teacher of children's work, in the religious education department of Elon College, and Miss Priscilla Chase, of Boston, Mass., and Raleigh, writer for children's periodicals of the Congregational Church, as leaders. The discussions will include organization and administration of the children's division, story-telling, training children in worship, the daily vacation Bible school, and teaching materials and methods. This will be the first of a series of children's division institutes to be held in the Eastern North Carolina Conference under the auspices of the Board of Religious Education.

PATTIE COCHILL, Field Secretary.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES.

We should be glad to furnish your Sunday School the following supplementary supplies, cash to accompany order:

Improved Uniform Series International Lessons.

1. Bible Lesson Picture Roll, 21x32 inches, per quarter $1.25
11.34
2. Sunday School Superintendent (to accompany the Picture Roll), per quarter..... .15
3. Pupils' Lesson Stories, per quarter..... .06
4. Little Bible Lesson Pictures, per quarter.. .05
Group Uniform Series, Primary Course.
1. Group Bible Lesson Picture Roll, 16x20 in., per quarter 1.00
2. Group Pupils' Lesson Stories, Primary, per quarter07
3. Group Lesson Pictures, per quarter..... .04
79.25

In making order, be explicit and name the quarter for which supplies are wanted; thus: first quarter, January to March; second quarter, April to June; third quarter, July to September; fourth quarter, October to December.

SEND ORDERS TO THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

COMMUNION WARE

Individual Service

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A

Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses $7.00
Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses 6.75
Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses 6.50
Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim..... 1.60
No. 2—Broad rim 1.60

SILVER-PLATE

The Silver-Plated Ware is of the very lightest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.

Style No. 85

Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses $22.00
Base No. 1—Silver-plate; fits Silver Tray No. 85 11.00
Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85... 16.00
(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)

Style No. 90

Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses.
Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling). $22.00
Base No. 2—Silver-plate; fits Silver Tray 90... 16.00
Cover No. 4—Silver-plate; fits Silver Tray 90.. 14.00

Breda Plate No. 3—Narrow rim $ 9.00
No. 4—Broad rim 9.00
Filler—Silver lined 6.00

Send Orders to THE CHRISTIAN SUN,
1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

Kiddies' Korner

MADGE MOFFITT WHITESELL, Editor.

Dear Children:

As your editor is very busy getting her new work lined up, she has asked me to write to you. I am sending you a story that deals with restless children in the Sunday School class. As we all have these problems, perhaps you will get some idea that will help you solve yours.

We had such a dreadful accident in Ramseur yesterday. A little seven-year-old girl, on her way to school, was killed by the train. When the body was taken to the undertaker he found her pencil still in her little hand. Today they are taking her to Pleasant Ridge Cemetery, and many hearts are sad in the first grade at school because she is absent.

With all good wishes, I am

Sincerely,

MRS. T. A. MOFFITT.

Ramseur, N. C.

JIMMY TODD AND THE GOLD STAR.

By Daphne McVicker.

Just as the Busy Bee Class was finishing its work and putting away its pencils, something very exciting happened. The superintendent came in and told them that in just four Sundays, on Children's Day, there was to be a prize given to the class that had the most new members, the most members on time, and was the best-behaved during the class hour. The winner was to get a splendid big gold star.

The Busy Bees were like busy bees as they walked home from Sunday School. Just suppose that they, the very smallest class of all, should win that big gold star! Then somebody said something that made them all very sad.

"Jimmy Todd!"

That was the name of a boy who caused a lot of trouble to the class, for Jimmy Todd simply could not keep still. He talked out, right in class, and gave answers that were not right at all, but meant to make the pupils laugh. He scuffed his feet and whispered. How could the Busy Bees be the quietest and best behaved class with Jimmy Todd in it?

"Well," said Harry, "we'll have to put him out."

The others frowned. Nobody liked that idea. It wasn't right to ask a boy not to come to Sunday School. Then Andy Harris had an idea.

"I don't believe Jimmy means to be so noisy," he said. "He has so many brothers and sisters at home that he can't be heard unless he shouts. He can't get used to being quiet on Sundays."

Andy's idea was to teach Jimmy to be quiet. Harry said that he would ask him to come to his house next Saturday night, when he and his sister studied their lesson.

"Then he will know the lesson and won't have to ask so many loud questions," he said.

Andy promised to stop for him early Sunday morning and walk to Sunday School with him. Then Jimmy would have a chance to tell him all the things he needed to be told, and wouldn't have to tell them in Sunday School.

Helping Jimmy get to be a game. They divided up the Sundays, naming one person for each Sunday to keep Jimmy quiet. But what do you think happened? Jimmy was quiet on Sunday, but he brought his brother with him, and they had to take care of him! And the next Sunday he brought two more brothers, and they each brought a friend. That was because he was enjoying the class and wanted the others to enjoy it.

It was fun for the class to take care of all these boys and get up early to talk to them on the way to Sunday School. But then a dreadful thought came. They had been so busy taking care of Jimmy Todd that they had forgotten all about doing the other things to win the gold star!

They felt bad when they thought of that, for it was on the way to class on Children's Day, so that nothing could be done. It was a sorry row of faces that looked up at the superintendent as he started to speak.

"I am glad to give the gold star to the Busy Bees, the smallest class of all, but the hardest working. They have been the best behaved, the quietest, and have had more members on time and more new members than any other class."

The boys and girls could hardly believe their ears. Even after the big gold star was shining on the wall behind their class, they were still amazed. Then Andy Harris began to laugh.

"Why, it's all Jimmy," he said. "The new members came with him, and we were all on time because we walked to school with him and his friends. All we did was to take care of Jimmy, and he did the rest."

(Continued from Page 7.)

be prepared before Jesus Christ can, through His Spirit, fully function in the soul of man. But any person may join the governmental Church. I must be to do. I do what I am; I am what I think. Thinking produces consideration; consideration, decision; decision, action; action, character, and character is what I am. "Whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things." Salvation through deliverance, based upon faith and love, is biblical Christology.

OXFORD BIBLES

An Oxford $3.50
Teacher's Bible only

"The
Oxford Bible
is the Bible
par excellence
of the world"

The best recommendation of the OXFORD TEACHER'S BIBLES is the fact that over 3,000,000 copies have been sold. The wonderful helps they contain save your time because they are alphabetically arranged, making reference easy. They take the place of many books about the Bible, and can be depended upon, being written by eminent scholars. The Helps contain 32 graphic illustrations, besides 15 beautifully colored maps. The text is the Authorized or King James version, with over 50,000 centre column references.

These Are Genuine OXFORD Teacher's BIBLES

EASY-TO-READ EDITION

Size 7 1/4 x 5 x 1 1/2 inches

Specimen of Type

17 And there was a very sore battle
that day; and Abner was beaten,

- | | | |
|-------|--|--------|
| Nos. | | |
| 04151 | Moroccoette, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges | $3.50 |
| 04153 | French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and handsome Bible | 4.35 |

Oxford India Paper Edition

Same as above, but printed on the famous Oxford India paper used only in Oxford Bibles. Only one inch thick.

- | | | |
|-------|--|--------|
| Nos. | | |
| 0773x | French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition | $7.50 |

RED LETTER EDITION

- | | | |
|-------|---|------|
| 05453 | As No. 04453 with words of Jesus Christ in red. The red letter feature adds greatly to one's understanding of the Bible | 5.00 |
|-------|---|------|

Oxford India Paper Edition

- | | | |
|--------|---|------|
| 05453x | Same as No. 0773x with words of Jesus Christ in red. A gift edition which is sure to please | 8.00 |
|--------|---|------|

SELF-PRONOUNCING EDITION

All proper names and difficult words divided into syllables and accented so they may be correctly pronounced. Sizes 8 1/2 x 5 1/2 x 1 1/2 inches.

Specimen of Type

6 And A-hi-shar was over the household: and Ad-o-ni-rām the son of Ab-dā was over the tri-

- | | | |
|-------|--|--------|
| Nos. | | |
| 01521 | Moroccoette, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges | $5.00 |
| 04523 | French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A real student's Bible | 6.00 |

Oxford India Paper Edition

Same as above, but printed on the famous Oxford India paper which is used only in Oxford Bibles. Only 1 1/2 inches thick.

- | | | |
|-------|---|--------|
| 0923x | French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A Bible of superior quality | $9.00 |
|-------|---|--------|

Improved Thumb Index on any style
at 50 cents extra

OBITUARIES.

BIRDSONG.

George T. Birdsong was born November 17, 1851, and died January 5, 1928. On May 31, 1876, he was united in marriage to Miss Mollie E. Scarborough. He is survived by his wife, three sons—Willic E., Sam T., and Johnnie C. Birdsong; and 1 daughter, Mrs. R. N. Edwards; also eight grandchildren and four great-grandchildren, and one brother, J. H. Birdsong, of Birmingham, Ala.

The funeral was conducted from the home, near Wakefield, Va., by the writer, assisted by Rev. A. W. Lamdikin, of M. E. Church, and the body placed in the family cemetery to await the coming of our Lord. Certainly a good man has gone to his reward. May God bless those who mourn.

C. E. GERRINGER.

WILLIAMS.

John H. Williams died at his home, near Quicksburg, Va., January 30th, aged 84 years. Funeral services were conducted from Whistler's Chapel Church, of which the five surviving sons and daughters are members, and the remains laid to rest in the Cedar Grove Cemetery.

The deceased was a member of the Methodist Church. His goodness and worth were recognized by his neighbors and friends. Funeral services were conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. J. R. Dodson, of the Progressive Brethren Church. May God bless and comfort the bereaved.

W. T. WALTERS.

DUNDALO.

William Dundalo was born November 16, 1851, and died at his home, near Maury, Va., January 16, 1928, aged 76 years and 2 months. Early in life he was married to Miss Sallie Laine, who preceded him in death about forty years. To this union was born one daughter. He is survived by his daughter, Mrs. Frank Kitchen, and one brother, W. W. Dundalo. The funeral was conducted by the writer from the home, and interment was made in the family cemetery near Barrett's Church. God comfort all who mourn.

C. E. GERRINGER.

SHIFLETT.

David Franklin Shiflett was born September 18, 1883, and was killed in an automobile wreck January 19, 1928, making his age 44 years, 4 months, and 1 day. He was the son of John and Ella Shiflett, who were faithful members of Antioch Christian Church. Surviving are four brothers and two sisters. Funeral services at the Mt. Clinton Mennonite Church January 21, 1928.

A. W. ANDES.

HAM.

Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Ham was born March 6, 1843; died January 10, 1928. She was married to J. W. Ham, and to this union were born ten children. She is survived by seven children, 61 grandchildren, 57 great-grandchildren, and 1 great-great-grandchild, and many other relatives. Mrs. Ham had been a member of Liberty Christian Church practically all her life. She lived an unquestionable Christian life. The funeral service was conducted by the writer. May the Lord comfort the bereaved.

H. E. CRUTCHFIELD.

BEDDOW.

Eleanore Beddow died at Hancock, W. Va., December 10, 1927, aged 68 years. Funeral services were conducted by the writer from Palmyra Christian Church, of which the deceased was a member, and the remains laid to rest in the neighborhood cemetery. She left a number of relatives and friends to mourn her departure.

We pray God's blessings upon the bereaved.

W. T. WALTERS.

SHOOP.

Whereas, it has pleased our Heavenly Father, in His infinite wisdom, to take from the scene of his earthly labors Bro. C. A. Shoop, who died on the morning of January 17, 1928, at the age of sixty years; therefore, be it

Resolved, That, in this dispensation of Divine providence, our class has lost one of its most liberal and zealous members; the Church a brother whose heart and purse were always open to the needs of its general enterprises as well as the needs of the local Church; and the community a citizen who was ever on the look out to promote its interest and whose optimistic spirit was an inspiration to all with whom he came in contact.

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be spread on the records of the Twentieth Century Bible Class of the Suffolk Christian Church, and a copy sent to the family of our deceased brother, and a copy sent to The Christian Sun for publication.

H. WOODWARD,

J. M. DARDEN,

W. W. POLLARD,

Committee.

ELON COLLEGE

CO-EDUCATIONAL

SECOND SEMESTER OPENS JANUARY 4, 1928

A few additional Students may be accommodated at that time, preferably members of the Christian Church.

SOME OF THE ELON COLLEGE BUILDINGS

ELON COLLEGE offers superior educational advantages to the members of the Christian Church. The buildings are new, equipment new and of the very best type, laboratory facilities equal to any college in the South; member of the Southern Association of Colleges, strong Christian faculty, and fine Christian atmosphere prevailing on the campus. Special courses in religious education and Christian work are offered to train laymen and ministers in the work of our denomination.

For Catalogue and View-Books, address

C. M. CANNON REGISTRAR,

ELON COLLEGE,

NORTH CAROLINA

"Christian Character First and Always at Elon College"

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rve. Daniel W. Kerr.

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Christian Church.

BOARD OF EDITORS

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D.....Editor
W. W. STALEY, D. D.....Associate
W. A. HARPER, LL.D.....Associate
REV. S. C. HARRELL.....Associate
R. C. HELFENSTEIN, D. D...Associate
REV. S. M. LYNAM.....News Editor
P. J. KERNODLE.....Managing Editor

Subscription Rates

One Year$2.00
Six Months 1.00

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT
RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Post-office at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows the date of expiration. Change in the label will appear on wrapper the first week of month following renewal, provided it is received before the 25th.

Change of Address: Give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

When subscriptions are made for friends, state whether paper is to be stopped at end of the year.

Remittances: Make all remittances for subscriptions and renewals to "Editor Christian Sun," Elon College, N. C.

Remittances for advertising and other business matters will be addressed to the "Managing Editor," 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond, Va.

Advertising Rates: "Want Ads," 2 cents a word an insertion. Display rates quoted upon request.

Notices: Obituary and Marriage notices, limited to 100 words, are published free of charge. All over 100 words, at 1 cent a word. Remittance should accompany copy. Write names distinctly.

MILLER.

Mrs. Ruth Shelton Miller was born in Rockingham County, N. C., February 28, 1896, and departed this life December 26, 1927, in a hospital in Colorado Springs, Colo., where she was being treated.

She was the wife of Bro. R. J. Miller, who, with their five children, survive her. Sister Miller was a member of the Reidsville Christian Church, and up until her health failed her several years ago was active in all the Church work. She remained a member until death. Though absent in body, she was loyal in interest, as shown by her frequent communications with her friends.

Her body, accompanied by her family, was shipped from Pueblo, Colo., where the family made their home while she received treatment at a nearby hospital. Her funeral was conducted at the Church in Reidsville, January 3rd, at 2 P. M., by the writer, assisted by Rev. M. F. Huske, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Reidsville, and her body laid to rest in Greenview Cemetery.

The testimony of her many friends regarding her happy, cheerful disposition and her sweet Christian character is a noble and fitting tribute to her life. We humbly bow in submission in the hour of our bereavement, sustained and comforted by the assurance that she has transferred to the "Church Triumphant."

R. A. WHITTEN.

JOYNER.

On November 11, 1927, Bro. J. E. T. Joyner passed from this life to the great beyond. His age was 74 years, 11 months and 25 days. He was married three times and leaves to mourn their loss six children, 17 grandchildren, and a host of relatives and friends. He was for many years a faithful member of Mt. Carmel Christian Church. He was for many years superintendent of the Sunday School and remained an active deacon until near the time of his death.

His funeral was conducted at Mt. Carmel by his pastor, assisted by Dr. W. W. Staley. It was said by many to be the largest gathering ever seen at a funeral in this section. The congregation, the flowers, the words expressed by many showed the high esteem in which he was held by the people. May God's richest blessings rest and abide with his children, grandchildren and friends.

ELISHA BRADSHAW.

Walters, Va.

BETHLEHEM COLLEGE

WADLEY, ALABAMA

A JUNIOR COLLEGE AND HIGH SCHOOL.

Where Opportunity Awaits the Student of Very Limited Means.

GIRL'S DORMITORY.

Bethlehem College, Wadley, Ala., will open September 5, 1927. This institution is a Junior College and High School, which is co-educational, where scholarship ranks high and expense is low. It is thoroughly Christian, absolutely non-sectarian, and vitally American. A school where opportunity awaits the student of very limited means—$68.00 pays all college expenses, except books, board and room. Board, $15.00 per month, and room $3.00; total expenses for a term of nine months, $250.00.

Bethlehem College is training some of the best stock of America for Christian leadership, to be used by the nation and the world. Here is a great challenge and asset for students who wish to prepare themselves to serve in a worth-while way. The work on the new Administration Building is progressing nicely, and we will be able to begin our college work in this building when school opens this fall.

For catalog and other information, address S. L. Beougher, President.

OXFORD TEACHERS' BIBLES

An Oxford Teachers' Bible has references and 300 pages of helps that are a mine of information to Bible students. The helps are arranged in alphabetical order, like a dictionary. They are accurate, comprehensive and up-to-date. A few styles are listed here. Many others are described in our Bible catalogue, mailed upon request.

04403 [This size print] Bound in French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, size 6 1/2 x 4 1/2 inches$4.00

0623x [Same Bible as 04403] Printed on Oxford India paper. Only 1 inch thick.....$6.00

04453 [This size print] French Morocco leather binding, overlapping covers, 7 1/4 x 5 in. $4.35

0773x [Same Bible as 04453] Printed on Oxford India paper. A remarkably thin and light Bible. (Only 1 inch thick)$7.75

05453 [Same Bible as 04453] With the words of Jesus Christ printed in red$6.25

05453x [Same Bible as 0773x] With the words of Jesus Christ printed in red$8.75

04523 [This size print] A self-pronouncing Oxford Bible. Bound in French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, size 8 1/2 x 5 1/2 inches... $5.50

0923x [Same Bible as 04523] Printed on Oxford India paper, only 1 1/2 inches thick...$9.75

ORDER FROM

"THE CHRISTIAN SUN"

Richmond, Va.

HOLMAN BIBLES

FOR CHILDREN

PICTORIAL BIBLES WITH HELPS

The text is self-pronouncing, by the aid of which children can learn to pronounce the difficult Scripture proper names.

Specimen of Type
27 And the boys grew; and Esau was a cunning hunter.
5 And the streets of the city shall be full of boys and girls playing in the streets thereof.

Size, 5 1/2 x 3 1/2 inches. With beautiful photo views of scenes in Bible lands distributed throughout the text. Also maps of Bible lands in colors. Also new designed for instructing children in scriptural information.

No. 9111. French Seal Leather, overlapping covers, round corners, gold edges, gold titles.
Our Price—Post Paid 2.30

COLORED PICTURE EDITION

Portraying in natural colors, scenes and places taken from nature and life in the Holy Land.

No. 9211. Same as No. 9111, but with Beautifully Colored Pictures.

Our Price—Post Paid 2.40

FOR INTERMEDIATE SUNDAY-SCHOOL SCHOLARS

Large Clear Black Type, Self-Pronouncing, containing Helps to Bible Study, 4000 Questions and Answers, Maps in Colors, and Presentation Page. A Beautiful Gift Bible.

Specimen of Type.
22 And the prophet Is-ra-el, and said unto thyself, and mark, and for at the return of t
Size, 7 x 5 inches.

No. 215. Divinity Circuit Style, Bound in French Seal Leather, round corners, red under gold edges, with silk head bands and purple silk marker, gold titles, etc.

Our Price—Post Paid 3.10

No. 3215RL. Red Letter Scholars' Bible, same Bible as No. 215, with all the Sayings of Christ printed in Red, and with Red and gold INLaid PANEL SIDE TITLES, also Beautifully Colored Pictures.

Our Price—Post Paid 3.45

Holman Self-Pronouncing VEST POCKET TESTAMENTS

Clearer Print in Smallest Size 4 3/8 x 2 1/2 x 3/4 inches

Specimen of Type.
AND the third day there was a marriage in Cana of Galilee; and the mother of Jesus was 2133K. Bound in durable Morocco Grain Semple Leather, flexible limp, gilt titles$60

2113. French Morocco, genuine leather, flexible limp, gold titles, rounded corners, gold edges.....$70

2115P. French Morocco, Divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, with the Book of Psalms included$1.10

ILLUSTRATED VEST POCKET TESTAMENT

With Pictures of Holy Land Scenes
2314. French Morocco, limp, gold side title round corners, red under gold edges$85

RED LETTER VEST POCKET TESTAMENT
With all the words of our Lord printed in red.

13RL. French Morocco, flexible limp, gold side title on red panel, gold edges.

15RLP. French Morocco, overlapping covers, flexible, gold side title on red panel, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included$1.25

INDIA PAPER VEST POCKET TESTAMENT

Thin as a Wafer
2136XP. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, with Psalms included$2.25

Send Your Orders to
THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 E. Broad Street
RICHMOND - VIRGINIA

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Official Organ of the Southern Christian Convention.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXX.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1928.

NUMBER 8.

.. THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY ..

BY REV. S. M. LYNAM.

A Lenten Program.—

The Congregational Church of the United States has outlined a definite program for the Lenten season. It will stress very definite things. Among the things to be emphasized will be chiefly the deepening of personal devotion. They will seek to heighten the religious ideals of youth, and they will seek new members. For the last ten years the Congregational Church has received about thirty thousand each Easter-time. All Protestantism needs to deepen the devotional life of Christians, that it may flow forth in power.

Ur of the Chaldees.—

Sir Frederic G. Kenyon has just returned from an archaeological investigation of Ur of the Chaldees, and he states that in his opinion a greater civilization will be discovered in that city than existed in Egypt. Finer and better workmanship is shown by articles discovered in the royal tombs. This civilization is as far from the Egyptian as the Egyptian is from our own. According to Sir Frederic, the Chaldean civilization was on the wane when Abraham departed from his native city. Students of archaeology will await with keen interest the further developments at Ur.

Mission Aid to Churches.—

A study just completed by the Institute of Social and Religious Research shows that the largest number of Protestant Churches receiving home mission aid in this country are not foreign, negro or Indian Churches, but are native-white Churches in rural areas. It shows also that in proportion to the population these rural areas already have a larger number of Churches than any other areas.

The findings of this study, contained in a pamphlet, entitled "Home Mission Aid," written by C. Luther Fry, and published by the Institute of Social and Religious Research, 370 Seventh Avenue, New York, at 35 cents a copy, disprove the commonly heard allegation that Protestant boards go out of their way to aid "competitive" Churches. On the contrary, Churches in rural communities that have only one Church each are as likely to be aided as Churches in communities that have four or more. While it is evident that "competitive" Churches are not being disproportionately aided, they are as likely to be aided as one that is "non-competitive."

Urges a United Youth.—

At the meeting of the Methodist Episcopal Education Association recently, in Chicago, Superintendent of Epworth League Blaine E. Kirkpatrick, urged a union of the youth of all Churches. He said, in effect, that youth should unite through the various young people's organization, that the Christian youth might present a solid and effective front to the world. He feels that the time has come for united effort and for the forgetting of the old and outgrown divisions that have kept us apart too long. It is hoped by the leaders of the various young people's organizations that some plan can be evolved by which this can be brought to pass, and the leaders of all those organizations will gather in Chicago soon for the discussion of the matter. When youth has united, then the problem of Christian union will be largely solved, for from them will come the leaders of the next generation, and they will be leaders who cannot understand why the division exists. That will be a great day for Protestantism.

Religion of Colleges.—

A conference has been called for February 17-18th to discuss the religion of the college students. It will be made up of the college presidents, deans, head-masters, and ministers of Eastern and Middle Western universities. It is recognized that the religious life of the colleges is undergoing great changes, and these men are to think together of the forces tending to shape the moral and spiritual character of college and university students. Among the speakers at the conference will be John Grier Hibben, Clarence C. Little, Ernest H. Wilkins, Deans Herbert E. Hawkes, Willard L. Sperry, Rev. Harry Emerson Fosdick, Dr. R. H. Edwards and Prof. Rufus M. Jones. The conference is sponsored by President John H. Finley, President Frank C. Aydelotte, Dr. Henry Sloan Coffin, President Harry A. Garfield, Dr. John R. Mott, and others. The same thing which is calling these leaders together is exciting interest in the undergraduate world. The students are feeling that something must be done to meet the changed and rapidly changing conditions of moral and spiritual development in the university. The findings of the conference of leaders should be most interesting. Princeton University is entertaining the gathering.

Textile Wages.—

The textile manufacturers in New England have been forced to cut wages by 10 per cent recently. The Pepperell Mills of Biddeford, Maine, started the thing, and their example has been followed. For more than a hundred years the mills of New England have held a monopoly of cotton goods, but conditions have changed now, and throughout the South large cotton mills are turning out millions of yards of cotton goods in competition with New England. The only mills not cutting wages are those making fancy bed-spreads, laces and frills. The silk and woolen mills, while not booming, have not yet cut the pay of their workers. Thomas F. McMahon, head of the textile workers and editor of their publication, The Textile Worker, said that "We have read so much about prosperity lately, but to me, except for bankers, speculators, bootleggers and prize-fighters, it is all a myth." Cheap cotton and cheap power, abundant labor and comparatively low living costs in the South have conspired to bring about this cut in New England wages. No one can foresee the result of these cuts, and it is certain that they will bring hardship and suffering to many of the textile workers.

Franz Peter Schubert.—

Life is a strange thing. A hundred years ago on the 19th of next November the authorities in Vienna were told that Franz Peter Schubert had died of typhus. It didn't matter much. He was just another of those hungry-looking musical fellows. The officers went over to the little house where he lived, and, getting no answer to their raps, pushed in. They listed his belongings—six pairs of shoes, thirteen pairs of socks, a shabby suit, a blanket or two. Ten dollars they appraised it, and they discovered then a pile of unpublished music and added two dollars more. Minds have changed since, and now he is given credit for more than six hundred pieces of wonderful music. He is best known for his songs. Vienna, who didn't care so much when he died, is now paying homage to him a hundred years after his death. They started the year with a Schubert concert, they will sing Schubert, and all over the world he will be celebrated this year. Under the direction of able broker, music patron, Otto Herman Kahn, the United States has elaborate plans, including an international musical contest, with prizes amounting to twenty thousand dollars to be awarded by the Columbia Phonograph Company. There will be concerts, and possibly a first American production of a Schubert opera.

Schubert was the son of a poorly paid Moravian school-master and a cook in a middle-class family. He began as an under-sized choir boy in the Imperial Chapel, and later as a violinist in a school orchestra. Then he taught in his father's school to dodge military service. He next was what Vienna saw, a round-shouldered, pasty-faced musical fellow, and then at thirty-one he died. But the world is remembering this year the Schubert of many songs, the musician to whom music and poetry were one, and we are recalling now the young man who rose early in the morning to set the lyrics of Shakespeare and Goethe to music, the genius who wrote first drafts and called them finished products, and we are marveling how one who died so young could have done so much for the music of the world, and now after a hundred years we are remembering and honoring him for the thing he did, and he died never having had enough money to feed himself and buy his music paper.

NOTES-PERSONALS

We have encouraging news again this week from Dr. Atkinson, who continues to enjoy the Florida climate and to forge ahead to health and strength.

Mrs. Allen Lassiter, of Sanbury, N. C., in renewing her Church paper, says, "I cannot get along without THE CHRISTIAN SUN. It is such a comfort to me."

Rev. J. T. Morgan, of Norfolk, has accepted an invitation to assist the pastor, Dr. C. C. Ryan, of First Christian Church, Richmond, Va., in evangelistic services to begin March 12th.

Mrs. Mattie Davis Bowden, sister of Dr. J. Pressley Barrett, who for so many years was editor of THE CHRISTIAN SUN, writes that she thoroughly enjoys the paper and that it is an inspiration to her in her enfeebled condition at this time.

The "Father and Son Banquet" of the city of Burlington was held in the Christian Church on the evening of February 16th. It was a great occasion. President Harry W. Chase, of the University of North Carolina, was the speaker.

Mrs. J. T. Williams, Suffolk, Va., Route 2, in renewing for THE CHRISTIAN SUN, says that she enjoys the paper thoroughly and wishes that every member of our Church could take and read it. She adds, "I hope to be a subscriber so long as I live."

Rev. H. E. Crutchfield, of Henderson, has sent us ten renewals and five new subscriptions. Bro. Crutchfield is the kind of pastor who is not content with advocating THE CHRISTIAN SUN from his pulpit. He mounts his faithful Ford and calls on the brethren. He believes in hand-picked fruit and gets results.

The Philathea Class of the Suffolk Christian Church, through Mrs. Annie Staley Calhoun and Miss Effie Beale, have secured, in all, twenty-four new subscribers for THE CHRISTIAN SUN. We record grateful appreciation to these two faithful workers and to their associates for the good work done for THE SUN.

Miss Ruth Youmans is to receive the degree of bachelor of religious education from Boston University in June, and she is anxious to become a director of religious education in some Christian Church. Any pastor who is interested would do well to address Miss Youmans at 35 Temple Street, Boston, Mass.

Dr. L. E. Smith finds time in connection with his exacting duties as President of the Southern Christian Convention and pastor of the Christian Temple to conduct evangelistic campaigns for his brethren in the ministry. He is at this time with Rev. James H. Lightbourne, Troy, Ohio, where he will be engaged in an evangelistic campaign until February 27th.

Mr. J. A. Kimball has been appointed leader by Dr. W. C. Wicker, his pastor, for the Mt. Auburn Christian Church for the college fund. Bro. Kimball says that he is going to do his best and that he is devoted to the college and is glad to do what he can for its advancement. Many another layman of the Christian Church feels exactly as Bro. Kimball does in regard to this matter.

Dr. W. A. Harper, president of Elon College, taught the Men's Bible Class of First Christian Church, Richmond, Va., and filled the pulpit for Dr. Ryan at both the morning and evening services. He expressed himself as being much pleased with the new Sunday School annex. We are sure the pastor gave a standing invitation to worship with his congregation.

Rev. Milton W. Sutcliffe, in speaking of the Ministers' Conference at Elon College, says: "The Elon College Pastors' Conference was a great opportunity and inspiration to me. It should result in lasting good. I hope that we may have such a conference every year at this time." Bro. Sutcliffe will be happy to know that the board of trustees, in their session this past week, voted for this very thing.

The Student Volunteer Convention for North Carolina colleges, which met at Elon College last year about this time, met the past week-end at Duke University. The Christian Church of Durham entertained the Elon delegates. Among those who went from Elon were Miss Helen Stearnes of the faculty, Misses Graham Rowland, Jewell Truitt, Josie Loy and Messrs. Joe French, C. C. Foushee and P. G. Kinney.

Readers of THE CHRISTIAN SUN will sympathize with Mr. M. Orban, Jr., who gave the Christian Education Building to Elon College, in the death of his youngest brother recently. Two other deaths also have occurred in Bro. Orban's family in the last two months, but nothing can dim his ardor for the kingdom of Jesus Christ or in any way darken his hope of that spiritual inheritance which awaits him, he evidently believes, in the spirit world.

The Domestic Science Department of Elon College, under the directorship of Miss Sue Raine, their teacher, gave a banquet in honor of the trustees, faculty members and representatives of the five student organizations of the campus, while the trustees were in session at Elon the past week. It was a five-course banquet that did honor to the department and delighted its guests by the choice and delicious foods that were served.

A very pleasing feature in connection with the meeting of the board of trustees of Elon College the past week was the regular chapel service which the trustees attended and in which each one of them was introduced personally to the student body. The students were glad to know the men who have made Elon what she is, and the trustees expressed themselves as happy in the privilege of seeing the Christian Church of the future face to face, as the Elon student body represents that future Church.

Rev. W. H. Garman writes from Old Zion Christian Church, Norfolk, Va.: "We had the pleasure on Sunday, the 19th, of having Bro. E. B. White, pastor of Dendron Christian Church, with us. He brought us some stirring messages on the immensity of Divine mercy. We hope to have him with us again. The Church was packed to the doors. The musical program was great, by Harold and Dave Anderson, Mr. R. Cooke and Miss Evelyn Harris, the string quartet; the Gunter sisters rendered two special numbers that brought one man to Christ."

THE CHRISTIAN SUN carried last week the program of the Christian Endeavor Union convention of the Christian Churches of the Eastern North Carolina Conference, which is to be held at Sanford Christian Church March 10-11th. Mr. Galen Elliott, who is to preside at this convention, desires us to call special attention to the fact that at this session a constitution will be adopted and that the officers provided for in the constitution will be elected, so that the work will be on a permanent basis after the Sanford meeting. It is, therefore, hoped that a large number of people will attend the Sanford meeting.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN is very anxious to add to the list of its contributors from time to time new names other than those that have been appearing in connection with splendid articles recently. Our pastors would do the acting editor a real kindness if they would send him the names and addresses of persons in their congregations who have a message of uplift and inspiration for the Church, and these same pastors would greatly profit the Church and help forward the kingdom if they would themselves continue to write notes, obituary notices and accounts of marriages, as is their custom, and at the same time occasionally send an article out of their rich store of spiritual experience and thought for the edification of the Church.

BEREA CHURCH.

The work at this Church is moving along nicely. The services are all very well attended, except in extreme bad weather. Plans are being made for home-coming day, and the special evangelistic meeting in September. The debt on the parsonage is being reduced in a most encouraging manner, and these fine people are to be appreciated for the good work they are doing. The Church needs new Sunday School rooms very much, and we hope it will not be long until this dream will come true.

The last meeting of the official board, held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Curling, was the best attended and the most helpful of any recent meeting. A number of important matters were discussed, among which were that of painting the Church and beautifying the Church grounds, to do which special committees were appointed. The next meeting of the board is to be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Nichols, on Tuesday evening, March 6th.

J. F. MORGAN.

A WORD FOR BETHLEHEM COLLEGE.

BY REV. JOE FRENCH.

In thinking of our colleges and religious education during this period, let us remember Bethlehem College, Wadley, Ala., our baby school. Although it is our "baby," we must admit that it is a strong one and is doing its best to let itself be heard and felt, as is shown by the following facts. In the three classes that have finished there have been thirty-eight graduates—thirteen in 1925, eleven in 1926, and fourteen in 1927. Of these graduates, more than two-thirds (29) have taken work in higher institutions of learning since finishing at Bethlehem. Three have taken degrees and six more are to take degrees this spring. This is an excellent standing for students in comparison with the stickability of students in other colleges.

I think that the spirit of Bethlehem is responsible for this to a great extent. A spirit of friendship and comradeship exists between the students that one rarely finds. This fraternal spirit is encouraging and helpful. The students apply themselves well. They put more time on their studies than any group of students I have ever seen.

Let us get behind Bethlehem with our prayers and support her in every way possible, so that she may be able to render a great service to our Church in the South and to the advancement of the kingdom.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

THE ART OF PUBLIC WORSHIP.

By REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Preacher.

"All the earth shall worship Thee, and shall sing unto Thee; they shall sing to Thy name."—Psa. 66:4.

Through this text we look upon a wonderful vision of David's—a prophecy of things to come. It is such a dream, or vision, that could come only from a great loving heart. From one of the finest fellows that ever lived on God's earth comes the great hope: "All the earth shall worship Thee." David sinned, confessed, repented and was pardoned, but in spite of that one slip he was written in Holy Writ as "a man after God's own heart." He was thoroughly capable of the prayer and praise found in our text. "All the earth shall worship Thee"; he did not know how it was to come about. He did not know that one would come who would eventually say: "I am the Root and Offspring of David," but he knew out of his loving heart that God ought to be loved by all peoples; that somehow, somewhere, some time He would be King of kings and Lord of lords. To read his psalms of praise is to become a better, sweeter-spirited person.

It is a great thing that one soul should worship God. Have you ever stopped to think what a great thing it is for one soul to love God, obey God and adore Him to the extent of worshipping Him? For one soul to lift itself to Him, rest in Him, and feel completely happy and satisfied in Him is nothing one whit short of heaven itself wherever it is. For a soul to worship God is the greatest thing going up from a sin-cursed world.

It is great because of the kind of God He is. Worthy is He of all love. Nothing amiss from Him has there ever been seen—mighty to save, mighty to keep, and able to love infinitely in return. Considering Jesus and considering God we see a complete unit of worship in the world. And that should be an anchor for our souls in times of doubt and distress. Do you suppose storms, powers, or principalities could separate such a union as that? It is the relationship of infinite love and obedience. It is offered to us through Christ Jesus; and to quote Augustine, "Our souls are never at rest until they rest in Thee."

It is a great thing that one soul should worship God, because of what God can make the worshiper. Do we feel empty and barren of good works? "Ye art created unto good works." Are we wondering ever what the goal of life is and whether or not it is worth living? Are we making life a blessing, or a curse, to ourselves and to others? Or have we accepted the power given whereby we may become the sons of God? God will make the true worshiper of Him able to say, "Behold all things are new."

How the world was blessed because one David worshiped God! In a time when Israel wanted earthly power, prestige and fame; in a time when there was growing upon the hearts of Israelites a lust for other gods, and gain; in a time when Israel could have lost its soul David worshiped God. He loved God. He held on to God. He felt mean and sinful if he for one moment took his heart from God. He was God's, and God was his Friend and Jehovah. This worship steadied the State, preserved the seed, and set God's will agoing in the earth.

Woodrow Wilson worshiped God. Sabbath after Sabbath he came to God's altar of prayer. Times were not too stressing, nor duties too great to take him away from God. He was present for prayer and praise and worship. He loved God as a child loves a father, and trusted Him when the roar of battle was deafening the ears of the earth. And one thousand years will not waste away the influence he played upon humanity in his efforts for international peace. Or take another type. Moody was a shoe salesman, but one day Moody came to love God. Oh! how he loved Him. He worshiped with all his heart. And God was able to do great things for that worshiper. We are told that he was never ordained to preach, remaining simply an instrument in God's hands. But he just pushed two or three continents right upon near the throne of God, and changed the history of this country perhaps forever. He worshiped God. And the world is hungry for all the folks it can find who worship God. A Church, a community, or a Commonwealth is greatly blessed which has one soul in that really and truly worships God; for from out of their life there shines a radiance that enriches every one and everything upon which it falls.

We must prepare ourselves for public worship of God. Many things are done without preparation, but few if any of them are done well. Public worship of God is no exception of the rule. A young man is going to see a big executive tomorrow. He will wish to secure a position within the firm, or a contract for a big order for his house. He studies the nature and will of the executive; he prepares his own life; he determines upon his manner and method of approach; he grooms himself in his best fashion; and then, like Esther, he goes in on his mission. Some fail to land the place because their collar is soiled or they pick at their fingernails, or they sit slovenly, or they speak stammeringly, or they do not know what they want, nor where they are headed. The half-prepared person seeks eventually a lower level.

"To every man there openeth

A way and ways and a way;
And the high souls climb the high way
And the low souls grope the low,
And in between, on misty flats,
The rest drift to and fro.

But to every man there openeth
A high way and a low;
And every man decideth
The way his soul shall go."

If our souls are going to be high souls and climb the high way to the worship of God we must be personally prepared to worship Him. Some points in preparation are: daily prayer and Bible reading, looking forward to the holy Sabbath when we shall come to the highest moment of all in the public worship of God. Young people, I do not crave that you be goody-goody, but how I do pray that you will read your Bibles daily and pray that God may direct your lives, and may fit you for worship of Him on Sunday. The world waits for a generation of young people like that. Practice the presence of God. Feel Him near. Realize He sympathizes with you and loves you, and wants your love in turn. He gives you the breath you breathe, the water you drink; yea, the life which is yours. "A good man's steps are ordered of God." Believe it, practice it, and look forward toward Sunday when in a public way you can honor Him by worshipping Him. Then on Sunday before you enter God's house observe a quiet hour. Read your Bible, read over an old hymn or two, and then pray that as you go into the house of God you may feel His blessing, His approval, and His Spirit upon you.

We have not thought enough about this matter of public worship in recent years. We have entered into it all too lightly. We have looked for fine sermons instead of God. We have wanted a beautiful solo more than we have wanted an everlasting salvation. We have looked for a large congregation instead of a great Comforter. If we prepare ourselves to see the Father, we shall see Him, and it will suffice and satisfy and save. The preacher, the choir, the ushers, all must prepare their part. They all realize that; but if you prepare to meet God here, you will think it was a good sermon, and good singing, and, better still, you will know without being told that yours is a good Saviour.

Memory is to play a big part in public worship. "Therefore, if thou bring thy gift to the altar, and there rememberest that thy brother hath aught against thee, leave there thy gift before the altar and go thy way; first be reconciled to thy brother, and then come and offer thy gift." "Remember thy brother." When you come to Church, if you would see God, see your brother. Remember how you have treated him. Remember how he has treated you. He that cannot love his brother cannot love God. If you will allow it to be so, one of the biggest possible things that can come over life is your coming into the house of God for prayer and praise and worship. It will correct your attitudes toward your neighbors, friends, foes and sweeten your life. You may be miserable one Sunday on account of your sinful conduct, but you will realize that another Sunday is coming and you can smite on your breast and look up into the face of God and say: "Have mercy upon me, a sinner"; and then go out and live the prayer all the week. Next Sunday will be the happiest day of your life.

Not only is your stay within the house of God should you remember your brother, or men; but also remember God. Jesus, in making plans for the highest moment of public worship, namely: the partaking of the Lord's Supper, said, "As oft as ye partake of it do it in remembrance of me." Remember the things God has done for you, and the things which by His grace you have been able to do for Him. As the program of worship carries you through the hour, be constant in your remembrance of God and you will come out of the Church with a radiance on your face and a high and holy purpose in your heart.

This brings me to suggest that "without faith it is impossible to please God." How can we worship God if we have not faith in Him? Faith is the very essence of worship. There is no basis of love for God if we have no faith in Him. "If you believe not, ye are condemned already, because ye have not believed." Faith honors God. Doubt dishonors Him. Is it raining in your life? Are there clouds? Are there difficulties? What do you expect? It is life you are living, and God is the God of life, and able, anxious to bear you tenderly through it all. So in our worship of Him we must exercise faith, and then we shall be able to "worship Him in spirit and in truth, for the Father seeketh such to worship Him." If we are prepared to worship Him; if we regard our brother, and not iniquity in our hearts; and if we have faith we shall see many of the things that discourage us in a far different light.

The world is waiting, longing for your life if you will only make it a God-worshipping life. Jesus' life was supremely a God-worshipping life, and while the world crucified Him on Friday, it began to kiss the "emblem of shame" on Sunday. And today His is the sweetest name on mortal tongue. "All the earth shall worship Thee, and shall sing unto Thee; they shall sing to Thy name."

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, Elon College, N. C.

Contributing Editors

W. W. STALEY

W. A. HARPER

R. C. HELFENSTEIN

S. C. HARRELL

PRINCIPLES OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

- (1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
- (2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
- (3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of Church membership.
- (5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

UNPAID OBLIGATIONS.

Obligations are legal, moral and spiritual. A promise is binding in law, and failure to keep promises is a sure way to lose the confidence of others. Confidence is one of the greatest assets in human society. Credit is built on confidence, and the world's business is conducted chiefly on credit. The government and all great corporations rest on their bonds and stocks. Any institution that loses its credit goes out of business. The government not only issues bonds, but its currency is nothing more than a promise. When the Civil War ended, Confederate money had no value. Confidence was gone. The most important thing in individual life is credit. Man gets all he needs as long as his credit lasts. Confidence in business means credit for business.

Moral obligations are more binding than legal obligations, because many of them are implied, if not assumed. That parents are under obligation to provide for their children is not a verbal or written promise—it is implied in the very nature of parenthood. That members of the Church are under obligation to support the Church and its institutions is not a matter of promise, but of implication. A personal promise adds to this moral obligation the legal obligation. But, if all members would keep their moral obligations to the Church, verbal and written promises would be unnecessary. Paper promises simply admit the moral obligation. When the word is as good as the bond, it emphasizes the binding force of the moral obligation. The Christian does not have to promise to attend Church and contribute to its support, but such promises enable officials to do the business in a business-like way. The vows taken at the marriage altar simply announce to the public what is known in the hearts of those who pledge their troth to each other.

Spiritual obligations are the finest and embrace all the rest. There is a spiritual sense of obligation to God that every heart feels. Right and wrong are known in the domain of this spiritual relation to God. His Spirit moves upon human spirits and makes men conscious of their dependence upon and obligation to Him. When this obligation is inwardly admitted and assumed, it carries all other obligations in their place. Right relation to God means right relation to men. Those who love God with all their heart will love their neighbors as themselves. Those who pay their vows to God will keep their promises to men. Those who pay honestly what they owe to God will pay their debts to men. Spiritual obligations include all obligations; and a man cannot be true to God and false to men. When any of these three classes of obligations remain unpaid, the man is in debt, and debt is the burden of the world. Have you paid your dues? Have you given your heart to God—your name to the Church? Have you given of your means as the Lord has prospered you? Have you taken care of your obligation in the spiritual, the moral and the legal realms?

HOME, CHURCH, COLLEGE.

There are three institutions with which the Christian should have an intimate concern. They are written at the head of this editorial.

We have no choice about the home into which we are born. In the very nature of the case we could not be consulted about this matter. Our parents sacrificed for us in our tender years and lavished their love and affection upon us. Home, of necessity, becomes a foretaste of heaven when the Spirit of Christ reigns within its four walls.

But we do have a great deal to do when we reach maturity with the home which we ourselves will found. Here again Christian principles must underlie, and when they do underlie the home, home really becomes, as in the case of our childhood, a foretaste of heaven.

We have the entire decision of the matter of our relationship to the Church. It should be the joy of our lives in childhood and youth to ally ourselves with the Church of Christ. It is the greatest character-building institution outside of the home that we know anything about, and even the home would not be able to function as a Christian institution without the support and influence of the Church.

When our young people have finished high school and are looking forward to college preparation, again we must remember that the same Christian atmosphere is necessary in order for the proper development of Christian character as in the home and in the Church. That is why the Christian Church has found it necessary to maintain colleges for the preparation of its young people, because the Christian Church wants its leaders to be men and women of Christian character. They can secure the knowledge that makes for material success in life in a great number of institutions, but in order to be sure that this knowledge will be mediated to its young people in terms of the Christian religion and of its own ideals, principles and practices, the Christian Church has wisely decided that it must have its own training centers. So in 1888 Elon College was founded, and five years ago Bethlehem College was founded.

These are our colleges. They are Christian colleges, at least in their intent and purpose. It is their privilege and their duty to prepare ministers for our Church in our pulpits and lay workers in our pews, and in every way to mold the life, character and attitude of the young people who come as students so that they will reflect in their after life the true principles and ideals of Christian character.

These three institutions—the home, the Church, and the Christian college—should really be thought of as forming a unity. They do work together wondrously in the development of Christian character. It is doubtful if any Christian civilization can survive the passing or the crippling of any one of these three institutions. They are fundamental in our life, personally and nationally. They are also fundamental in the growth and development of the kingdom of God.

W. A. H.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT.

February, 1928.

I.

Allow me, in the very beginning, to express to you my grateful appreciation for granting me the first vacation I have enjoyed in seventeen years, when during last July and August you permitted me to have six weeks off for research and study in Columbia University. It was indeed a real vacation to me, and I enjoyed it to the full. I was gratified to learn that your methods of discharging your trusteeship have the stamp of approval upon them as the practice of the 659 colleges and universities of the country reveals. I also learned that a board of trustees has three major functions—to determine policies, control finances, and choose a president and hold him responsible. When the trustees and president disagree or he fails to carry out their policies, they should secure another president, says the practice of American colleges since Harvard began in 1636.

I worked on two projects while I was there—one in the field of religious education, the general topic being, "The Definition of Majors in the Field of Religion," and the other being in the field of college administration, with particular reference to "The Participation of Alumni in College Government."

The first of these studies is not yet fully completed, though a section of it will appear under the title of "The Growth of the Teaching of Bible and Religious Education in Colleges and Universities" in an early issue of Christian Education. The study, when it is completed, will have the imprint and approval of the Council of Church Boards of Education, but it will be some time before all the facts can be collected that bear upon such an important theme.

The study that related to the participation of alumni in college and university government, including a further study which I conducted during the fall of 1927, appeared in the first issue of the Elon Alumni Voice and reference is made to it as constituting a part of my report at this time.

The United States government has requested the privilege of examining both these reports, and the one relating to the alumni is in the hands now of the Bureau of Education.

II.

I hope that you will find it possible to give particular attention to some method by which the alumni of the college may be enabled to participate directly in the government of the college through their own representatives on the board of trustees. You will, of course, not hasten into this arrangement, and I do not recommend that, but I do recommend that your committee on alumni affairs be specifically authorized to confer with the Alumni Association officials respecting a basis of co-operation eventually leading to direct participation of the alumni in the government of the college.

Dr. W. H. Boone, president of the General Alumni Association, I hope will make a full report to you of his splendid activities on behalf of the college. I wish particularly to commend him for his plan of organizing local alumni associations which will elect representatives to a general alumni council which will be the legislative body of the alumni, and his efforts to found the Elon Alumni Voice, the first issue of which appeared this month. Also his plan of inaugurating class reunions at commencement by decades. deserves commendation.

There arrives a time in the history of every college when its alumni become conscious of their responsibility for their alma mater. This time has arrived in the history of Elon College, in my judgment, and I hope that every encouragement will be given the alumni in their desire to serve the best interests of their alma mater. In this connection, however, I learned from my privilege in Columbia this summer that every college problem has a history and should be disposed of in accordance with the experience and practice of other institutions. That is why I made the study that I did with reference to the participation of alumni in college government. And as I have already said, I hope you will make this the basis of your approach to the solution of this problem.

(This item was approved, and a committee appointed to confer with the alumni.)

III.

For many years I have felt the need of having the pastors of the Southern Christian Convention visit the college while the college is in session, so that they might come to know it in an intimate, personal way. I suggested this matter to a generous friend last fall and told him I thought it would take about $500 to pay the railroad fare and other expenses of our ministers to bring them to Elon. I further suggested to him that the college would entertain the ministers for luncheons and dinners as an appreciation of their coming, and that I felt sure the faculty and citizens of the community would lodge them in their homes and furnish breakfast. By return mail, this good friend said that he would pay the traveling expenses, and so I was enabled to issue invitations to the "first pastors' conference" to be held at Elon College, January 23-27, 1928. Exactly sixty pastors attended, in addition to the ministerial students of the college.

I think you have seen from THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and no doubt have heard from your pastor individually, that this conference was a decided success. It accomplished the purpose we had in mind—to bring the ministers of the Church into a personal knowledge of the college, its life and problems, and to give the college, both faculty and students, opportunity to know at first hand the leaders of our Church. So far as I know, every minister who came thoroughly enjoyed himself and would agree with the verdict in regard to the conference expressed by one of the ministers in a personal letter when he said: "It was a rare opportunity to know our college, as we could never have known it from occasional visits and on dress-up occasions. We saw faculty and students at work and at play. We mingled with them and were for the time being a part of them. Of course, I have always loved 'Old Elon,' but I must confess that I had never known the 'New Elon,' and we cannot so well love that which we do not know. Before the conference, Elon was an institution that I regarded as very necessary to the welfare of our beloved Church, and as such it was our duty to support it. Now, I have a new interest and love for Elon, born of closer acquaintance and intimate knowledge.

There is a feeling on the part of our ministers that we should have these pastors' conferences annually, or at least each two years. I suggest that the board of trustees carefully consider this matter. (Annual meetings were approved, and the president was authorized to arrange for them.)

IV.

During the year we have had visits from a steady stream of distinguished Congregational leaders, both of the ministry and of the laity. Many of these Congregationalists have been on their way to Florida or from Florida and have incidentally dropped in to visit us and to get acquainted. Not a few of them have expressed the desire for a closer co-operation between their Church and ours in the maintenance of our colleges. They have all been particularly impressed with the work in religious education, in which Elon has pioneered. Dr. Lewis H. Keller, president of the Atlanta Seminary, spent two days with us here in January. After he had returned to his institution in Atlanta, he wrote me a letter which I sent to each of you in the official call for this session of the board of trustees. Since then I have had further correspondence with him and have held an informal conference with Dr. Kirby, of Raleigh. Also Bro. J. M. Darden voluntarily secured certain confidential information in regard to the institution at Atlanta which will be presented to you when you take up for discussion this item of my report.

It seems that it would be a very good plan, generally speaking, for the Congregationalists and Christians to unite in building up an educational system of higher educational institutions in the South. In accordance with this general plan, it would appear to be wise to dispose of the institution at Star, N. C., owned by the Congregationalists, and combine it with Elon College. It also would appear to be wise to move the Atlanta Seminary to this place, combining it with our department of religious education, calling the combined department "The School of Religion."

The academy at Thorsby, Ala., should be combined with Bethlehem College, which should be made a standard junior college and subsidiary to Piedmont College, in Georgia. In addition to this, in Florida, Rollins College should be supported by the two denominations.

I refer this whole matter, however, to you for thorough study and consideration.

(A committee, consisting of Dr. W. H. Boone, Rev. S. C. Harrell, Dr. C. H. Rowland, D. R. Fonville, Dr. L. E. Smith, Dr. W. W. Staley, and the president, was named to confer with the Congregationalists.)

V.

We are now in the midst of the college period of the benevolence budget of the Southern Christian Convention. From this offering Elon should receive $36,750 if her budget is to be balanced. If we do not balance the budget, our membership in the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools will be endangered. We know what has happened to our Defiance College, in Ohio, when it failed to meet the requirements of the North Central Association, and to Union Christian College, in Indiana, when it could not qualify for membership in the same association. Elon is now the only college of the Christian Church accredited by a regional standardizing agency. We must, therefore, raise this benevolence budget, no matter what the effort may cost us to do so.

I am gratified at the fine brotherly way in which the ministers of our Church have co-operated with me in laying the plans for this benevolence budget. They observed the day of prayer for the colleges. They have appointed lay leaders, many of them, in their Churches. They have written letters to their brother ministers. Particularly has the President of the Southern Christian Convention aided me in a most statesman-like way. And our ministers generally have assured me that they will do their very best during the month of February to bring the offerings up to the full quotas. Also I am sure that you have enjoyed the fine, high-grade articles that have appeared in THE CHRISTIAN SUN emphasizing the place of Christian education in our denomination and the need and value of our college.

God only knows at this time what the result of this offering will be, but I feel sure that the college was never so deeply set in the hearts' affections of our ministry and of our laity as at this particular time, and I am hoping and praying for the best results.

After the college offering period is over, if the quotas have not been fully met, it is our purpose, acting under the authority of the budget commission, to enter the field and endeavor by collecting on pledges and through personal gifts to secure the full amount before the expiration of the present college term.

I am inclined to think that we will not be able from year to year to appeal to our people to make this donation to the colleges so as to keep us in the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. This is the motive of fear, and we must appeal to the motive of love. If the pastors will continue to see that their Churches accept this benevolent obligation each year as an opportunity to express appreciation and love for our college and the cause of Christian education, then it will be increasingly easy for this money to come through regular channels. I think that it will be necessary to write the benevolence budget quotas into the local budget of the Churches and by the annual canvass of funds each year in each local congregation to secure subscriptions to cover current expenses and the benevolence program of the denomination at the same time. In this way, through regular channels, our enterprises, all of them, will be regularly and systematically provided for.

There is another way for the college to approach this problem, and that is to ask the Southern Christian Convention for the privilege of undertaking to raise a sufficient amount of money to pay off all indebtedness and to raise the endowment of the college net to a million dollars. I would personally prefer this latter method, though meantime it will be necessary to continue to raise the benevolence budget.

I refer this whole financial question to you for your most earnest consideration.

(The board urges every Church to raise its quota and to request the Southern Christian Convention to permit a campaign, when the board should so desire, to raise $1,000,000, or more if necessary, to pay all indebtedness and give the college a net endowment of one million dollars.)

I regret to have to report that since your last session Dr. J. W. Wellons, trustee from the foundation of the college, and Bro. C. A. Shoop have passed away. I suggest that a committee on resolutions be appointed at this time to voice your expression of appreciation for the service they rendered the college and for their inspiring Christian example. (Col. E. E. Holland, Dr. E. L. Moffitt, and Dr. C. H. Rowland appointed.)

Col. Marvin L. Gray, whose resignation was presented at last commencement, but was not accepted, insists that his resignation be accepted at this time. (Accepted.)

There are, therefore, three vacancies in the membership of the board of trustees at this time. (Rev. A. W. Andes, J. A. Williams, and Prof. L. L. Vaughan were elected.)

I suggest that at this session of the board you select persons on whom you will confer honorary degrees.

W. A. HARPER, President.

BUSINESS MANAGER'S REPORT.

To the Board of Trustees of Elon College:

The business manager will here give a summary of the business of the college from the time the books were closed last May to the present time, and offer some suggestions for the consideration (Continued on Page 9.)

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

Mrs. Nancy Polk Clements, daughter of Josiah P. Gay, and widow of Thomas J. Clements, was born in Isle of Wight County, Va., on November 7, 1845, and died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. H. Dick, in Macon, Ga., on Tuesday morning, January 3, 1928, at the age of 82 years, 1 month, and 26 days. Funeral services were held at Antioch Christian Church, in Isle of Wight County, Va., on Friday, January 6, 1928, conducted by Revs. W. W. Staley, C. H. Rowland, and I. W. Johnson. Mrs. Clements had been a member of Antioch Christian Church for seventy years, and she and her husband were prominent and useful members of that Church for half a century. That historic Church, dating back to Colonial times, when it was a Church of England, holds in its cemetery many noted religious characters, but none more devoted to Christ and the Christian Church than Thomas J. and Nannie Polk Clements. When the scroll of time is unrolled and the names of the worthiest are revealed, none will be entitled to honor more than devoted and faithful members of country Churches. Great men like Wellons, Beale, Barrett, and Butler preached there, and great souls were born of the Spirit and labored in Antioch Church.

Mrs. Clements is survived by two sons—W. R. Clements, of Nashville, Tenn., and F. M. Clements, of Greensboro, N. C.; and two daughters, Mrs. W. H. Dick and Miss Ruth Clements, of Macon, Ga. Her sons were present at the funeral, but her daughters were unable to make the long trip at the time. A good congregation paid sympathetic and loyal respect to this greatly beloved member of the Church, neighbor and friend.

On March 8, 1927, just nine months and twenty-five days before her death, Mrs. Clements selected 2 Timothy 4:6-8 as the text to be used at her funeral: "I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand. I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith; henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, shall give unto me at that day; and not to me only, but unto all them also that love His appearing." That text was read, commented on, and was all the more touching because of the manner of its selection by one whose life justified its selection. It was a great experience that viewed death (approaching, in the light of this wonderful record of Paul. God's kingdom is a kingdom in which all the faithful can wear crowns.

Rev. Dr. I. W. Johnson, Mr. Joel Holland, Mrs. I. W. Johnson, Mrs. W. H. Andrews and Miss Evelyn Clements sang "Safe in the Arms of Jesus" and "Abide With Me"; and the congregation joined sympathetically in the songs and prayers. "Her children rise up and call her blessed," and her friends praise her. Whether we think of it or not, we live in three worlds—the present, the past, and the future—and this is never so plain to us as when our loved ones pass over the river to rest under the shade of the trees. The old home looms up in all its sweet memories; the home we now occupy seems robbed of all that made it home, and the future home glows with bright anticipations of reunion and eternal companionship.

W. W. STALEY.

ELON LETTER.

The board of trustees of Elon College met on February 14th, at 10 o'clock. It was a dismal and dreary day without, but it was a forward-looking and cheerful day within. The spirit of progress and of hope animated each trustee. The problems that faced the board were approached in an optimistic and statesman-like effort, and decisions were reached which will tell mightily in the future progress of the college.

Four great measures were initiated that will be determinative very largely of the future usefulness of Elon. We are printing elsewhere in this issue the report of the president to the board of trustees, and, in parentheses under each item, indicating the action taken by the board of trustees; and we are also printing in this issue a statement of the business manager of the college, setting forth in detail financial matters as of February 1, 1928.

The first great forward action taken by the board of trustees was with reference to the recommendation of the president that steps be taken to give the alumni of the college the right to elect trustees from their own number. For many years there have been trustees from the alumni on the board, but they have not been elected by the alumni as such. The president made a very careful study of this whole matter, and recommended to the board of trustees that this privilege of direct participation in the government of the college should be granted the alumni.

The second forward step taken by the board of trustees was the appointment of committee to co-operate with the Congregationalists with reference to matters of higher education in the South. There is no doubt that here is a fine opportunity for a practical program of Christian union in the realm of Christian education. There are real possibilities of Christian unity as well as of Christian union in this co-operative educational enterprise.

The third item was the decision of the board of trustees to request the Southern Christian Convention to permit them, when in their judgment the time for such an effort shall have arrived, to undertake to raise a sufficient sum of money to pay off all the indebtedness of the college and to bring its endowment up to a net million dollars. When this has been done, the raising of $36,750 a year through the benevolence budget will cease to be necessary; but until it is done, the board of trustees will call upon the Churches and their pastors to raise every penny of the assigned quota for the college offering. The board of trustees believe that the Christian Church is definitely committed to the maintenance of Elon College and that it is willing to sacrifice, through the benevolence budget offering, for its immediate needs. The board also believes that the Church will rally nobly to the effort of the college to place itself on a permanent financial basis when the hour comes to raise this large sum of money to pay the indebtedness and increase the endowment.

The fourth great thing done by the board of trustees was to perpetuate the Pastors' Conference as an annual gathering at the college. This year, for the first time, our ministers were invited to a Pastors' Conference. It was undertaken by the president on his own initiative. In his report he referred the future of this conference idea to the trustees for consideration, and they unanimously voted that it should be made an annual gathering. The possibilities of mutual good-will and understanding that inhere in this annual gathering of the ministers at our college cannot be over-estimated. It makes it possible for the young people, who are to be the workers in our Churches, in the days ahead, to know in a personal and intimate way our present leadership, and it gives our ministers who are the keymen for every enterprise of our Church, opportunity to know the college just as it is. The college will look forward with great pleasure, therefore, to entertaining the ministers of the Church in annual gathering.

There were three vacancies in the board of trustees, and three splendid men were chosen to fill them in the persons of Mr. J. A. Williams, Franklin, Va.; Prof. L. L. Vaughan, Raleigh, N. C.; Rev. A. W. Andes, Harrisonburg, Va.

W. A. HARPER.

OUR COLLEGES.

By DR. W. S. ALEXANDER.

(A sermon preached on the "Day of Prayer for Colleges.")

A native inner urge is constantly propelling mankind onward and upward. Unexplored areas lie out beyond the vanguard of mankind's upward marching army. Action is in evidence. The unconquered beyond serves as a magnet; the unexpended, pent-up force within serves to propel, and progress is being made. Mankind is dreaming dreams and seeing visions, and supplementing these by honest efforts toward their realization.

The advance guards are occupying vast areas that are but sparsely populated. The great problem before mankind is to equip and qualify the mass of humanity to enter where the few have explored and take up possession. The pressing need is an adequate supply of competent, faithful, consecrated leadership to man the expedition in its onward march. So important a factor in human progress is not easily secured. Long protracted effort, skillfully directed, dealing with a life that contains true metal is necessary to obtain such a product. Few indeed are they who are able to subject themselves to the refining fires with such abandon, with such intense interest and oneness of purpose that all that is necessary will be endured until the dross is consumed, that the metal of which they are made is purified and made capable of standing the strain necessary to qualify for real leadership.

The great outstanding mental and moral mechanicians of the race have constructed factories superintended by the best-trained leadership available, and using in their employ a vast army of helpers, varying widely in their qualifications for service. It would probably be better to say that "hot-beds" have been constructed in which lives are accepted under circumstances most favorable for development and exposed to all that is calculated to serve as food and exercise conducive to such development.

What sculptor is to a block of marble, education is to the human soul. Artists are by this process discovered, developed, released. A great service has been accomplished by the production of a great servant. Education is a very comprehensive term. It includes all that exerts a formative influence on life. Its greatest object is not merely to furnish the mind, but rather to discipline that mind; to develop genuine self-control; to enable the individual to think clearly relative to the problems of life and to act rightly in all the situations in which life finds itself involved.

The great Horace Mann once said, "Education is our only political safety. Outside of this ark, all is deluge. School-houses are the republican line of fortifications." Accepting this as truth, it then follows that the more universal becomes the proper use of educational institutions, the greater becomes the self-protecting power of mankind. Education is not constituted of one single ingredient, namely: mental development—power to think, power to devise, power to execute. Complete education always contains a proper admixture of the element of control. A century ago, England's great general, the Duke of Wellington, declared that to educate men without religion was to make them but clever devils. The yegmen who but lately visited our community—a Loeb or a Leopold, a Hickman, and countless others—are but examples of the great body of failures in our educational output.

Daniel Webster once said: "If we work on marble it will perish; if on iron, time will efface it; if we rear temples, they will crumble into dust; but if we work upon immortal minds and imbue them with principles, with the just fear of God and love of fellow-men, we engrave on those tablets something that will brighten to all eternity."

The Church has but poorly executed its task, but it has quite accurately sensed the manner in which it must be done. Through its whole history it has sought faithfully to train a competent leadership. As time went on, this attempt became more and more organized, until more than seven centuries ago it evolved the university system of education. This is a daughter of the Church. The Church has always sponsored that which has meant most to mankind. Out of the first 119 colleges built in America east of the Mississippi River, the Church built 104 of them. She has recognized that neither piety, virtue nor liberty could long flourish when the education of youth was neglected, and she has endeavored faithfully to attend to that great task. She early attacked the problem and has through the ages made progress toward its solution.

The denomination known as Christian has not lagged behind in her endeavor to bear her full share of responsibility in the educational task. Proportionate to size, probably few denominations have done more than have the Christians. She has produced rather a large family of schools and colleges in which aspiring young lives have found the opportunity, the encouragement and the assistance necessary to enable them to equip for a larger life service. Like all families of any age, their membership is divided into two classes, the living and the dead.

The family of Christian Church schools and colleges is about equally divided between the living and the dead. Every member of this family was a welcomed child in the home. Each undertook its work with enthusiasm, zeal and faithfulness. Each rendered good service. Some were short lived, not experiencing a good degree of development, the result of undernourishment. Others lived longer and served nobly until standardization requirements were lifted beyond their reach. The vision of their founders and sustainers did not widen and keep pace with the educational progress of the age in which they, as children, had been brought into existence. Failure to be supplied with that which could sustain life resulted in this untimely death. The service which they were so splendidly rendering and which was so badly needed was cut short. While some of these efforts may have been sporadic and unwarranted, yet they were all born out of a sincere desire to serve. Their failure must be charged more, probably, to the short-sightedness of their constituency than to the attempting the impossible by their founders.

There are five living members of this family of schools and colleges. Starkey Seminary, located at Lakemont, N. Y., is a preparatory school of exceptional merit presided over by one of the leading educators of our Church, Dr. Martyn Summerbell. Palmer College, now located at Albany, Mo., formerly located at LeGrand, Iowa, is a junior college. This college has done a very fine piece of work for the Christian Church. Never did it serve more efficiently than at present. Rev. Alfred W. Hearst, B. D., has lately been chosen to the presidency of this institution, which position was made vacant by the resignation of Dr.

F. G. Coffin, the highly honored president of the General Convention of the Christian Church. Mr. Hearst is a worthy successor of a worthy man.

The youngest child to enter this family of colleges is our Bethlehem College, located at Wadley, Ala., whose affairs are administered by Dr. S. L. Beougher. Samples of the good work done by this institution are among our student body and serve strongly to recommend her for continued support.

The Christian Church has true cause to lament the loss of two of her most honored and most faithful colleges, namely: Antioch College, located at Yellow Springs, Ohio, whose first president was the great Horace Mann, and Union Christian College, Merom, Ind., whose first president was Nicholas Summerbell. The product of these noble institutions has greatly enriched the Church. But time will not permit us to speak further of the honored dead. Mention must be made of the two other strong living members of this family.

Defiance College, Defiance, Ohio, is the principal college of the Christian Church located in the North. She is manned by a most competent, consecrated faculty, who have sacrificially served the Church and the cause of education for many years. Her product is filling places of responsibility in many worthy fields. She has lately suffered very unjustly at the hands of those whom she has so faithfully served. There has been withheld from her the financial support which would enable her to remain in the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. She has enjoyed membership in this accrediting association for twelve years. The interests of her graduates are very seriously threatened should she fail to regain this membership in the near future. We pray that there will be speedily forthcoming that which will enable her to do her full service.

We leave until the last that which concerns us most. There is another member of that family of colleges. The one with which we are most intimately acquainted; the one in whose welfare we are most interested—our own Elon College. No other human factor in the Southern Christian Convention has made so large a contribution toward the highest interests of the Convention. The greatest need of any worth-while enterprise is a leadership with a vision broad and distinct, with a power to think and to act commensurate with the tasks to be performed. Elon College has a noble part in furnishing the ministry of the Church, whose servant she is, with a qualified leadership.

We are informed that when this college came into existence there were but two ministers actively engaged in the pastoral service of the S. C. Convention who held college degrees. To that number Elon College has contributed until there are now fifty-eight college graduates in such service, fifty-one of them being graduates of Elon. That service alone by no manner of means measures the part which she has had in kingdom building. A service of incalculable worth is being rendered by the more than five hundred graduates who are lay-workers in our Convention Churches, and that much-larger army of more than four thousand workers who have had some college training within her walls. What the Church would have been without this body of workers enjoying various degrees of training, we get no pleasure out of trying to imagine. The present need and urgent demand for an adequate leadership is far beyond the ability of Elon College to supply. Absolute impartiality characterizes the Christian service which the college renders. Students of other religious faiths have equal rights with those who are members of the Christian Church. And many able workers in other armies of our one Master receive rich benefits from the training enjoyed at Elon.

A high and holy purpose has ever motivated those who have had the responsibility of directing the efforts of Elon. Intensely sensitive to the need of moral control in all of life's actions, she has made the choice of a motto, the realization of which wakes the highest and best at her command. That motto is "Christian Character, First and Always." Great care has been taken to accept service only from those whose life ideals measured up with the lofty ideals of the institution. The institution's product is the proof of the high degree of success achieved.

Extreme care has been taken in the selection of a controlling personnel and the body of instructors. The quality of character and the degree of competency possessed by the body of trustees who direct the affairs of this institution is commendable indeed. An educational enterprise which commands the faithful service and the sincere interest and attention of such a body of business and professional men commends itself to the young life seeking development. It would likewise be difficult to find a more efficient, sympathetic, considerate administrative force than are those individuals charged with the responsibility of administering the affairs of the college.

Continued membership in a Church college faculty is a good recommendation of character, quality, competency and motivation. The veterans in the profession need no further recommendation. Along with a competent personnel administering and instructing, a college needs a physical equipment of such a character as to furnish opportunities which adequately satisfy the needs of all students in the pursuit of any subject offered. Few colleges possess an equipment so adequate as that possessed by Elon.

Give such a school so manned and so equipped a body of young men and young women intently bent on thoroughly preparing themselves for real living, and you have such a combination of competent direction, honest endeavor, thorough co-operation and physical facilities as cannot fail producing most desirable results. Elon College possesses as fine a representation of young life as can be found in college halls. What an ever-increasing contribution is being made to the business of living! That the youth of our land must be educated is conceded by all. That two systems of education prevail is universally known—the State universities and the denominational colleges. Are these competing forces? Is the work of one a duplication of the other's efforts? Religion is the most vital element in life. Its development must have direction. The Church must have a trained leadership. Tax-supported schools cannot teach religion. Other provisions must be made. Colleges equipped and privileged to offer such instruction must be maintained.

The final determining factor in the successful future career of Elon College is its maintenance. Power to make the wheels go must be had, else the product can never be delivered, however badly it may be needed. For this power, she must depend upon her friends. May they not fail her. A religious education burden rests upon every member of the Church. May it be faithfully borne.

Elon College, N. C.

THE NEED OF RELIGIOUS EDUCATION.

By REV. A. H. Hook.

Why do we need religious education? Might not one as well ask, "Why do we need education? Why do we need clothing and good food?" The African says, "Any food that is filling is sufficient, and clothing is in the way." Presumably enlightened men of our own nation assert that education only makes a man more cleverly dangerous. And, what is more alarming, certain outstanding men today are saying that religious education is not only unnecessary, but undesirable.

(Continued on Page 14.)

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Field Secretary.

QUARTERLY REPORT.

Report of the treasurer of the Woman's Mission Board of the Virginia Valley Christian Conference for the quarter ending January 1, 1928.

Women's Societies.

Bethlehem	$ 1.60
Bethel	1.10
Dry Run	2.89
Leaksville	2.95
Linville	10.55
New Hope	7.60
Winchester	10.10
	<hr/>
	$ 36.79

Young People's Societies.

Antioch	$ 2.42
Antioch, Jr. S. S. Class.....	1.74
Mt. Lebanon30
New Hope	1.75
Timber Ridge	11.10
Winchester Ever-Ready	4.25
Winchester Willing Workers50
	<hr/>
	22.06

Specials.

Linville for Dr. Barrett's expense....	$ 7.21
Mt. Olivet (R), for Dr. Barrett....	2.15
Antioch one-day mission	47.00
Winchester, for literature	2.15
Winchester, extra	3.80
	<hr/>
	62.31

Thankofferings.

Antioch	$ 65.10
Leaksville	12.00
Linville	15.68
Timber Ridge	2.40
Winchester	28.00
	<hr/>
	123.18

Total $ 244.34

Disbursements.

By cash to Dr. Barrett	$18.00
To Dr. Minton, for Dr. Barrett's ex.	38.36
Check to Mrs. H. S. Hardecastle....	187.98
	<hr/>
	$ 244.34

MISS VERDIE C. SHOWALTER,

Harrisonburg, Va. Treasurer.

WHY THE CHURCH NEEDS ELON.

By W. B. TRUITT.

If the average member of the Christian Church need Elon College? the answer would be, generally, "Yes." If the addressee were pressed for reasons for the affirmative answer, the reply would very likely be, "Why, to train preachers and leaders." We have heard our preachers and interested laymen affirm these facts so often, and we have read about these good reasons in THE CHRISTIAN SUN so many times, that we take them, for granted, as true. Very often, however, we do not seriously consider these sufficient reasons for the existence of Elon College, and fail to become enthusiastic. We know it's a good institution; we know our pastor went there; we know that the present administration of the college has done a wonderful work—but still we fail to have a vital interest. When we hear some one extol our college, we are inclined to think that such a one is perhaps an overzealous graduate, and let the matter pass.

It seems, therefore, not amiss for one who is not an alumnus of Elon College, but of another which was formerly considered "anathema" by our own leadership, to try to present some broader aspects as to why members of the Christian Church should back up our college by prayer, by moral support and by financial aid. But surely the burden of such a presentation ought to rest more largely upon graduates of the college, who have learned to love it by close association. And some of us have wondered, sometimes, why Elon graduates do not take a more decided leadership in our Churches, where always and ever there is a crying need for some one to get in front and lead on. Human nature is ever the same, to be sure, but it does seem that all graduates of an institution founded on sacrifice, should catch the spirit of sacrifice and be willing to humbly assume the tasks which so often go undone. It is not necessary to brag, to display class rings or college banners for a graduate of a college to show his loyalty to and his enthusiasm for his alma mater. It remains for him to go to the work and let others know by his good work that he is a worthy son of a noble institution. Some of us who were not fortunate enough to go to Elon wonder why the work, except in the pulpit, is still largely done by people who never went to college, when graduates of Elon are found in almost all of our Churches. Surely these alumni and alumnae ought to be aroused, and if this writing is otherwise valueless, it is hoped to challenge the sleeping spirits of some of our college graduates to stand forth, and by their deeds make Elon vital to every member of the Christian Church.

The purpose of life, boiled down to basic fact, is to form character. In the formation of character, there is involved a life-long process called "experience." Experience may otherwise be termed "education." It is not an exaggeration, then, to say that life is simply a process of education. No sane person is entirely uneducated; nor is it possible for any human being to grasp more than a limited amount of human knowledge. Even a university graduate with a string of degrees is relatively ignorant when his learning is considered in contrast to the sum total of human knowledge, to say nothing of the vast unknown even of our own planet. The amount of learning may, therefore, not be paramount. The character formed is the measure of education. Elon College has a slogan, "Christian Character First and Always." This slogan merits attention, and leads us to consider its significance.

It should be remembered that the impressionable years of childhood determine the direction of character to a large extent. We should not make the mistake, therefore, of thinking that any college can mold a character. This spirit of a human being, his character, once set in its course can only be changed by the power of God. Elon College, if opened to hoodlums, could not, by any human processes, turn out good citizens. This leads to two thoughts:

1. Elon College demands young men and women of good character to start with. The high moral standard required, the spiritual atmosphere maintained there, spells exclusion to those who haven't been reasonably well started in life. This being true, we take courage, for by selection we are going to secure within our Church a high standard of excellence in college-bred men and women.

2. But we must not expect immediate results, nor overnight revolutions. Our hope is in the future. We still make the mistake of thinking that Churches are for grown-ups. As Dr. Atkinson so well expressed it: "We are still building Churches for adults." Any expectation of getting real, conclusive results in a generation even in college-trained leadership is erroneous and selfish.

May we emphasize that character is determined largely in the plastic age of childhood. The results of education at Elon will, therefore, be displayed not so much in the graduate as in the graduates' children. For, having come in contact with better things, having learned even to aspire to things which our own spirits will not let us do, we naturally try to instill these higher ideals into those for whom we strive, our own children. Perhaps this thought may be considered radical and unreasonable by those who pin their faith of success in a degree, but some of our sober thinkers will see there is at least a germ of truth.

But there are reasons for Elon College, other than those advanced. Shall we not stop to emphasize the importance of Elon as the center of activities of the Southern Christian Convention? Any modern business calls for centralization. The Church is a business institution, even if some have never so considered it. Modern government demands centralization. A few who live in the past still talk of "States' rights," but all who consider progress know that we must look to even more centralization of government in Washington than we now have. Church business needs to be systematized. Isolated Church effort cannot be very effective. If, therefore, there were no other reason for Elon, we could still well support it for its influence in centralizing and co-ordinating our efforts.

There is still another cause for supporting our college. No human being does his best, or even approximately his best, without a task which seems almost impossible. Neither can a group of people measure up to any high standard unless there is a task to do. Elon College presents one such undertaking for our people. A part of experience is sacrifice. Elon College, even now, calls for a sacrifice from our Church members, and therefore is worthwhile, even if all else is left unsaid.

The founders of our Church chose a name which we should wear with both pride and reverence. For, "at the name of Jesus every knee should bow . . . and every tongue should confess that Jesus is Lord, to the glory of God the Father." It would seem, therefore, that a member of the Christian Church should seek to honor that name and should be dissatisfied with anything less than noble achievement. Sometimes one is prone to become disheartened and to wonder if we are not taking that name in vain. Ought not we, of the Christian Church, to take the lead? Haven't we the right to expect results? Should we be satisfied with mediocre achievement? If all other reasons for Elon's existence had to be dismissed, we still have the greatest of all; for we should support our college out of pride to honor the majesty of Jesus.

We are proud of what has already been done, but we should strive for greater things. We should never suppose that Elon cannot be even greater. Larger opportunities are ahead. We must, in the name of Christ, whose name we seek to honor, achieve.

Summarizing the suggestions, there are at least seven reasons for keeping Elon College before our people as a worth-while institution, and one which we must support in every possible way.

1. To train ministers.
 2. To train leaders.
 3. To keep a greater Elon before its own graduates as a spur to greater activity.
 4. To centralize Church activities.
 5. To mold a firmer character for the next generation through selectivity and trained idealism.
 6. To have a task.
 7. To honor the name of Jesus Christ.
- Greensboro, N. C.

ABSENT PASTOR INSPIRED.

As I sat in my study this morning and read the different accounts of the Pastors' Conference at Elon, I was inspired as though I attended, only perhaps in a less degree. No one regrets more than I my inability to attend, because of being employed as a teacher. The thing that touched me most deeply was the Christian unity note which is being played upon at present, which I think is right because it is the keynote. The question that puzzles me is why don't we act as well as talk, and perfect this union between us and the Congregationalists at once? We all realize that from every viewpoint it is the sensible thing to do, so why not do it and start the ball of Christian unity to rolling? I firmly believe it will grow as the rolling snowball. I was impressed by an expression from Dr. Kirby, who stated that the Congregationalists were ready to unite with us on the basis of our "Principles." We could say so much to the Congregationalists, because our "Principles" are virtually the same with the exception of the name, and we don't blame them for being pleased to accept our name, for it is one of beauty and meaning and is coveted by other communions, inasmuch that some have wrongly appropriated it for themselves, which has caused an endless amount of confusion between us, the responsibility for which we will not accept, for we were wearing the name for more than a quarter of a century before the Disciples of Christ came into existence. We admit that other names are good, but none as good for followers of Christ as "Christian." I feel sure that it is the most appropriate name that could be applied to the organization resulting from the union of two or more denominations of the Christian faith.

Can any one give one reason why denominations of identical faith should stand separate and apart and operate independently, and often inefficiently? We are waiting, if one wishes to answer, but remember it is "reasons" we are asking for, and not mere "excuses." Those who would not attend the supper offered various excuses, but no reasons. This applies very forcibly to divided Christianity today. We have many excuses for existing in this divided state, but when these are examined by the powerful microscope of God's holy Word we find that they are not founded on reason, and they are petty and childish. The resolution has been adopted at all of our Conferences to which it has been presented. Everybody is in favor of it, so why not call a special convention at once, composed of representatives from both denominations, reorganize, draw up the last will and testament, and go forward? I am waiting for an answer to this question, too. If there is no reason for delay, let something be done. We are waiting for the question. Will you (the official representatives of the Christian and Congregational Churches) put the question? If you can't do anything, explain yourself. It is entirely up to you. Don't let selfish and personal interests stand in the way. We may cull out some inefficient preachers, as Bro. Darden wisely suggested—and I may be a cull. We might also cull out some inefficient lay leaders. The culls should welcome it if it is for the good of the flock. I should be glad to lose my job if the kingdom gains by it. Now, if we don't get action at once I may be fool enough to accuse our leaders of delaying the progress of the work for fear of losing a job. I believe that our leaders are too big for that. Consequently, I believe a definite move will be made presently.

Yours for the immediate union of these denominations and ultimately of all of Christ's followers.
W. C. CARPENTER.

Ambrose, Ga.

ADVANTAGES OF BETHLEHEM COLLEGE.

By Miss Ruth Floyd.

The religious advantages of Bethlehem College are preaching each Sunday, a good Sunday School, and an active Christian Endeavor. At a small college like Bethlehem the students are more able to become personally acquainted with each other and understand each other better.

Another advantage is the students get personal consideration from the teachers; and also the teachers are able to become better acquainted with the students. And in this way the students and teachers will be more co-operative with each other.

The social surroundings at Bethlehem are first-rate. They have social clubs, such as literary societies, glee clubs, band, etc. There is also a splendid athletic spirit prevailing on the campus. When a new student goes on the campus of Bethlehem he doesn't feel out of place, but soon catches the Bethlehem spirit, because the old students are very congenial with the new students.

BUSINESS MANAGER'S REPORT.

(Continued from Page 5.)

of those of us who are very vitally concerned.

Statement I.

Money paid out since May 25, 1927:

On notes payable	$ 20,000.00
On salary and all other accounts.....	104,522.38
Total paid out to date.....	$124,522.38

Statement II.

Money received since May 25, 1927:

Balance on hand	$ 10,332.98
Money borrowed	25,910.00
Tuition and laboratory fees	27,547.16
Board	28,964.66
Room rent	17,891.52
Matriculation fees	14,985.00
Total money received	$125,631.32

Deducting the amount of Statement I from that of Statement II gives us a credit balance of $1,108.94 in cash.

The college has a total of $35,165.59 of bills and salaries yet to be provided for during this year. Also the college has notes coming due this year amounting to about thirteen thousand dollars, and these must be paid. In addition to this, the running expenses of the laboratories, dining-hall, repairs, and so forth, will amount to some ten or twelve thousand dollars until commencement. The estimated expenses and bills to be paid between now and commencement are as follows:

Statement III.

Bills payable, including salaries.....	$ 35,165.59
Notes payable	13,000.00
Expenses for running to commencement...	12,000.00
Total	$ 60,165.59
Against this we have notes and bills to be collected in the sum of.....	30,595.92

This leaves a deficit of.....$ 29,569.67

In the running of an institution, items often come up that we cannot foresee. Break-downs at the power plant, in the heating or lighting systems may occur, and our running expenses may run higher than that estimated above.

However, if the Southern Christian Convention fund of $36,750 is raised in full this year, there will be no deficit.

Statement IV.

Southern Convention fund promised is....	$ 36,750.00
Amount in on the fund.....	3,449.72
Balance due on this fund.....	$ 33,301.28
Estimated amount to complete year's work	29,569.67
Cash balance to commence next year....	$ 3,731.61

T. C. AMICK,
Business Manager.

RECOMMENDED BOOKS

The following educational helps and books have been recommended by Dr. W. P. Minton, Secretary of Foreign Missionary Department, and Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Mission Secretary, S. C. C. Acting upon the advice and recommendation of these two recognized and earnest missionary workers, The Christian Publishing Association has stocked the following books, which are moderately priced and can be supplied on receipt of order:

FOREIGN MISSIONARY BOOKS

New Paths for Old Purposes—By Margaret E. Burton. In cloth, $1.00; paper60
The Nursery Series—Ah Fu (a Chinese river boy), Kembo (a little girl of Africa), The Three Camels (a story of India), Asa (a little Boy of Nazareth), board backs, each60
Our Japanese Friend—By Ruth Isabel Seabury, in cloth only.....	.75
Young Japan—By Mabel Gardner Kerschner, in paper, each.....	.40
A Straight Way Toward Tomorrow—By Mary Schaeffer Platt, cloth, 75c; paper50
"Straight Way Towards Tomorrow" has been prepared especially for Missionary Societies.

HOME MISSIONARY BOOKS

The Adventure of the Church—By Samuel McCrea Cavert, cloth, $1; paper60
Indian Playmates of Navajo Land—By Ethel M. Baader, cloth75
The Better American Series—Junior Home Mission Courses, cloth....	.75
The Story of Missions—By Edwin E. White, cloth, $75; paper.....	.50
Please Stand By—By Margaret Applegarth, in cloth, 75c; paper....	.50
Nine Home Mission Stories—For teachers to tell Primary pupils, paper25
The Upward Climb—By Sarah Estella Haskin, in cloth only, each..	.75
In the Vanguard of a Race—By Mrs. L. H. Hammond, in cloth, $1.00; paper75

A SERIES OF SIX BIG FOREIGN MISSION BOOKS

China, Japan, India, Africa, Near East, and Latin-America—Per set in cloth, $6.00; paper, $4.00; cloth, $1.25; paper.....$.75

ANY OF THE ABOVE OR OTHERS MAY BE SECURED FROM

All books sent postpaid.

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

INTERNATIONAL UNIFORM SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE.

Lesson IX—February 26, 1928.

OTHER MIGHTY WORKS OF JESUS.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Thy faith hath made thee whole."—Mark 5:34.

LESSON: Mark 5:22-43.

DEVOTIONAL READING: Ephesians 3:14-21.

In last Sunday's lesson we saw Jesus manifesting His power over nature and over demonic powers. In today's lesson we have a manifestation of His power over disease and over death. Whatever else these lessons teach, they teach that our Lord and Master was no weakling, but that He had infinite power, and that that power was always used for others and not for Himself. Alas! how we limit the Master by our paltry sense of His power.

Jesus and Disease.

First of all, we will take the case of the woman who had had some incurable malady which had afflicted her for twelve years. Every effort had been put forth to cure her; but, alas! she grew worse instead of better. Hearing that the Master was at hand, she pressed forward to touch Him, or even to touch the garment He wore, confident that if she could do this she would be made whole. Her faith was rewarded, and she went in peace, made whole of her plague. In this simple story there are several striking truths illustrated. There is, for instance, her sense of need. She realized her condition and felt that she must have help from more than human sources. That was the first, and a very vital factor in the cure which she received. One of the first prerequisites which men and women need to help them toward a whole and wholesome life is a sense of need. Most efforts at reformation from the human standpoint are like the efforts of those who ministered to this particular woman—they make the person "nothing bettered, but rather worse." God knows we all need Divine help. The trouble is that so many people have not seen the ideal in Christ; they have not put themselves under those influences which constantly reveal the higher life, and hence their shortcomings and their need, and in self-complacency they go on without any real sense of need. God seldom is able to do anything with a man until there is a sense of need.

Then again there is her spirit of faith. "If I may touch but His clothes, I shall be whole." There is something great and grand about this. This woman may not have had any formal creed, and her creed even if she did have one was probably not the orthodox creed of the scribes and Pharisees, but she had something better than a creed—she had a vital faith in Jesus Christ. Creeds are all right, but more important than what we believe about Christ is to have faith in Christ.

Once more, there is her confession. "She came and fell down and told Him all the truth." If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins. Furthermore, after all is said and done, it is the Master who makes us whole. Other agencies and institutions are but instruments in His hands.

There are other things to be noted, but space forbids mention of but one more—her reward. "Daughter, thy faith hath made thee whole; go in peace, and be whole of thy plague." He whose heart goes out in humble but vital faith to the Master eventually shall have his reward, not only in the things which the Master does, but in the presence of the Master Himself.

Jesus and Death.

"And behold there cometh one of the rulers of the synagogue. And when he saw Him he fell at His feet." Here, indeed, is the spirit of reverence. This man belonged to the group which was opposed to Jesus, but in his hour of extreme need he put away any pride he may have had and came humbly to the one who could help him. God resisteth the proud, but giveth grace to the humble. There must be not only a sense of need; there must be an humble spirit in those who come to the Master.

This man also had faith. He believed that a touch of the Master's hand would restore his daughter to health and strength. Without faith it is impossible to please God, said the writer of the Hebrews, for when we come to Him we must believe that He is, and that He is a rewarder of those who diligently seek Him.

Standing out in this incident, as it does also in the case of the woman mentioned above, is the Master's response to human need. "And Jesus went with him." Wherever there is trouble, wherever hearts are heavy, wherever there is human need, the Master is there. The tragedy of life is that our eyes and our hearts are not open to see Him and to receive His ministrations.

"And He suffered no man to follow Him, save Peter and James and John, the brother of James." There are times when we want only the inner circle of loved ones or friends with us. Others cannot enter into our experiences. Others cannot understand. Others are not prepared to interpret what is taking place. Others cannot help, no matter how willing they are. It is interesting to note that in the Garden of Gethsemane the Master went on alone, leaving even this faithful three behind.

"Damsel, I say unto thee, arise. And straightway the damsel arose and walked." Jesus is Lord of all, because He is Lord of both life and death. He has power, not only over nature, over demonic powers, over disease; but He has power over death. And He has very boldly said that those who live and believe in Him shall never die. It is here that the Christian finds that which undergirds his life, giving him strength and power to endure here, and inspiring him to make this life worth while, and at the same time giving him assurance and hope for the life that is to come.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Sunday, March 4, 1928.

Topic: "What Is it in Jesus that Attracts Young People?"—John 12:20-32. (Consecration meeting.)

Some Bible Hints.

Doubtless, the story of Jesus' doings made the young men desire to see Him personally. Personal contacts are vital (v. 21).

The capacity of Jesus to see beyond the outside of things to their inner meaning (read Matt. 6 to see this) attracts youth (v. 23).

The daring nature of the teaching of Jesus is a challenge to youth to try His way, or follow His steps (v. 25).

Jesus' challenge to youth to follow Him in sacrificial service makes a tremendous appeal (v. 26).

Suggestive Thoughts.

Jesus' intellectual honesty attracts us. He saw things with His own eyes and refused to be bound by tradition. He was no "yes, yes" man.

Jesus' human-ness attracts us. He was full of understanding pity. He never condemned the weak, but encouraged them. Only Jesus could have thought of the parable of the prodigal son.

Jesus' life of service challenges youth. This is something we can understand and follow. Doctrine may be beyond us; helping people is quite within our reach.

A Few Illustrations.

Jesus' readiness to help people in a pinch is charming. So He turned water into wine (John 2:1-2). He is the perfect Gentleman.

Jesus' originality delights us. Shakespeare was original, but he borrowed from all human learning. Jesus does not. He speaks from above and is as full of divine nature as Shakespeare was of human.

Perhaps the greatest thing Jesus ever said was "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do." What generosity, what greatness of spirit! We saw that evil is always stupid and later regrets its acts. His generosity attracts us.

The fearlessness of Jesus attracts us. Look again at the picture with this title, "Christ Before Pilate." He met death with unflinching courage.

To Think About.

What do you think is the finest thing about Jesus?

Does Jesus' defense of the weak attract you? (See John 8:1-11.)

If you had the choice of the way in which you might imitate Jesus, what way would you choose?

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION NEWS NOTES.

Meetings of the program committee of the Elon Chautauqua and School of Methods were held in Greensboro and Elon College recently, and it was decided to hold the school this year for a week the last of June, opening Saturday night, June 23rd, and closing the following Friday, June 30th. So many young people have attended the school for the past few years that it was thought best this year to put special emphasis on the young people's part of the program, but to offer courses for adults. The Eastern Virginia Churches have always supported the school by sending a large number of folks. It is hoped that more of the North Carolina Churches will send delegates this time. Our summer schools are doing a splendid thing in building up the Sunday School work throughout all our Church. The Elon program is just in the making now, but Mr. Hermon Eldredge has already agreed to come, and our people are always glad to have him. Further announcement will be made soon.

Dr. Beougher and others of the Alabama and Georgia Conferences think this should be a good year for the Bethlehem Summer School. It will be held immediately following the Elon school, beginning on Sunday, July 1st, and closing on Saturday, July 7th. The Alabama and Georgia people will be glad to know that Mr. Hermon Eldredge has agreed to be one of the teachers and speakers.

The new Sunday School plant at Suffolk is great! It is one of the finest in our entire denomination. It is built in accordance with the latest principles of religious education, with ample room for each department of the Sunday School. The Fellowship Hall, with its provision for banquets, games, and so forth, is one of the fine things about the building. The Suffolk people have a right to be proud of their new plant. Miss Lottie Mae Cross—Elon Chautauqua folks will remember her—is superintendent of the beginners' department; Mrs. J. M. Butler, superintendent of the primary department; Mrs. M. V. Leathers, superintendent of the junior department, and Mrs. B. D. Crocker, superintendent of the intermediate department. All of these are taking their new responsibilities seriously, and much good should come out of this. Mr. Hardcastle and his people are to be congratulated.

Our members at Richmond, Va., have recently added a fine new educational plant to their Church. The Rosemont Church is going along nicely with their building fund. The Oakland and Liberty Springs Churches are among the Eastern Virginia Churches which have built new Sunday School rooms. New buildings are always an evidence of renewed interest and that the people of the Church are interested in their boys and girls. The Hanks Chapel Church, in the Western North Carolina Conference, have five new Sunday School rooms. This should be a fine example for the other Churches in the Western North Carolina Conference. Rowland Farrell, a young man, has been influential in getting the new rooms built. Practically all of the young people of the Church have shown an active interest in the new building.

Much interest is being shown in the combined meeting of the Eastern North Carolina Christian Endeavor Union and the Children's Division Institute, to be held in Sanford on Saturday and Sunday, March 10-11th. The program, which has just been completed, is especially fine and includes Conferences on Christian Endeavor and children's work, special addresses on Saturday night by Miss Stearns, teacher of children's work at Elon College, and Dr. Graham, head of the American history department at the University of North Carolina; conferences on Sunday morning and an address by Dr. W. M. Jay, of Elon College, with Sunday afternoon devoted to reports from the Student Volunteer Convention in Detroit by Miss Graham Rowland and Mr. Walter Crissman. Let every Church of the Conference be represented.

No one could help being enthusiastic about the new magazine edition of the Herald of Gospel Liberty. The March issue is a marvel. Think of having all the missionary information about our Church plans, programs, news, etc., together with the Sunday School lesson notes, the Christian Endeavor notes, articles and editorials on religious education—all for $1.00 per year. Formerly the Christian Missionary and the Journal of Christian Education each cost one dollar. Under the new merger plan, both can be had for one dollar. In a lot of places in the Southern Convention our people are putting themselves to the task of increasing THE CHRISTIAN SUN subscription list. None of us could do a finer thing for any home than to get that home to subscribe to the Church paper.

PATTIE COCHILL,
Field Secretary.

A PLEA FOR BETHLEHEM COLLEGE.

By Miss Susie Elder.

There was a star once that led to Bethlehem, and that showed the shepherds and wise men where Jesus lay. There is another star now leading to Bethlehem, and that star will show those who follow it the mainstay and hope of the Christian Church in Georgia and Alabama. For years this star has shown, and for years there have been those who followed after it. At times it glowed brightly, and then less so; they followed quickly and eagerly, then slowly and doubtfully. But now again that star is brightening all the whole, and the steps of the followers are again growing more rapid. For those at Wadley we have accomplished much—we have our college. Those old followers were the faithful men and women who dreamed of a college there, who prayed for it, worked for it, and then made it possible. When you think of Bethlehem College, do not stop with just the mental image of the dormitory there on the hill, with the administration building by its side; that's not Bethlehem. Bethlehem College is the symbol of dreams, work, of lives consecrated to the cause of the Christian Church. Why should it be called a symbol, you ask? Because we need it as a training school for our leaders, for those leaders who are to go out from it and change our small, weak and struggling Churches to larger and more numerous ones, to Churches that will give even a greater feeling of brotherhood. Does Bethlehem mean this to us? May I ask, does Elon mean anything to our Churches in its section? You answer that, and I'll say Bethlehem has a mission just as big, just as important, and just as certain of being carried out as had Elon.

To you people who are interested in our Church and especially you people in Georgia and Alabama, Bethlehem stands as a challenge to you. It needs you, but not so badly as you need it. Will the challenge go unheeded?

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Minion Bold-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4-7-8x7 Inches, and 1-3-8 Inches Thick.

2152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.75

India Paper Edition, Size 4-7-8x7 Inches, 1-1-10 Inches Thick.

2152X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$6.00

Bourgeois Type, Size 5-3-8x8 Inches, and 1-3-8 Inches Thick.

2167—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.00

2172—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.50

2172A—Same as above, with Apocrypha.....$5.00

2173—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges.....$6.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3-2-4x3-8 inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3-2-4x3-8 Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps.....$2.50

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations. Special book for Sunday Schools.....95c

Minion Type, Pocket Size, 4x6 Inches, 1-1/2 Inches Thick.

With 32 full-colored illustrations; also 25 outline maps through the text and 12 colored maps.

133—Bound in cloth, round corners, red edges, title stamped on side in pure gold.....$1.60

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.$3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 15-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.$4.00

Minion Black-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4-3/4x7 Inches, 1-1/2 Inches Thick.

Printed from clear, large, black-face type, 32 full-page illustrations in sepia and colors, 4,000 Questions and Answers, Harmony of the Gospels, How to Study the Sunday School Lesson, 25 outline Maps, 12 full-page colored Maps.

4152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold.....$3.25

AMERICAN STANDARD VERSION. TEXT BIBLES.

Printed from Easy-Reading Type, on Good Bible Paper, for Sunday School and Church Use.

Minion Type, Size 4x6 Inches, 1-1/2 Inches Thick, 25 Outline Maps, Bound in Black.

101—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, title stamped on back in pure gold...$1.10

112—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title on back in pure gold.....$2.75

India Paper Edition, Only 7/8-Inch Thick.

112X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.75

Reference and Text Bibles also in minion, brevier, bourgeois, long primer, pica and English type.

Thumb index cut on edge, 50c extra; name printed on any Bible in gold, 40c extra; extra wording, 40c per line.

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5-3/8x8-1/4 Inches and 1-3/8 Inches Thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With concise Bible dictionary, combined concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.75

RED LETTER EDITION

With all the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands, title stamped on side and back in pure gold.....$3.25

Any of the above Bibles sent post paid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 E. Broad St., - - - Richmond, Virginia.

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY REV. H. E. ROUNTREE,
One of Our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"Call upon me, and I will answer thee, and shew thee great and mighty things, which thou knowest not."—Jeremiah 33:3.

MONDAY.

THE DOVE AND THE DEVIL.

"The Spirit of God descended as a dove upon him . . . then was Jesus led . . . into the wilderness to be tempted of the desire."—Matt. 3:16.

From the Jordan to the wilderness; from baptism to temptation; from prayer and consecration to forsakenness and assault; from God to the devil.

This was the experience of Jesus. The father does not elevate the son to the dignity of a Saviour until he is tried and found true.

Do we ever feel that we have experiences like that? Paul said that he did. "When I would be good, evil is present with me." When we resolve to do our best and feel the blessings of God upon us, a mighty evil from somewhere swoops down upon us to tempt us to fall. Sometimes one gives up and because of this decides he was mistaken; he is not saved at all. But isn't it true that character cannot be raised to its greatest strength until the test of character has been applied? There is no prize without the previous contest. There are no deals without personal probation.

Because we should be tried, because the heights to be attained are realized only by overcoming obstacles and because the devil would thwart every soul from a holy course, the devil is the first thing a Christian meets after conversion and consecration, and no one is without this test, all alike, from the youngest child to the oldest veteran of the faith.

But the test is easy. If we have the Holy Spirit in us, no evil spirit can enter until we have said "no" to the former.

Herein is the value of religion to us. Temptations become a measuring-rod to our faith and prove the existence and power of the Spirit. If this were not so, we could never know whether we are Christians or not.

Now, we can glorify God that the same victory that came to Jesus is ours. "There, hath no temptation taken you but such as man can bear; but God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted about that ye are able, but will, with the temptation, make also the way of escape, that ye may be able to endure it."

Prayer.—Our Father, we thank Thee that Jesus conquered, and that through Him Thou dost give us power to overcome. We thank Thee that we can beat the devil any time in Thy Holy Name. Give us persistence to overcome our sins. Show us, Lord, that the devil cannot stand the dose. We turn to Thee today for this power to smother our own wills and let right prevail. Amen.

TUESDAY.

PUTTING GOD IN THE LIFE.

"Hold fast that which is good."

I saw a street car advertisement once which read as follows: "Hold fast that which is good. More than 100 years' test."

That is what we can say of Christianity, of the Bible, except we can call it "the best" and it has more than 2,000 years' test.

God's invitation is, "Follow me." In following Him we are not asked to do anything impossible, or to believe in something that is not a blessing to us. His principles interpret the meaning of life in all its phases and lead us to that which is best for us. His principles put in our lives makes all wrong right, and teaches that right can be attained. It puts right before position; it puts duty before pleasure. It puts purity before profanity, kindness before selfish interest, honesty before personal gain, truth before favor; it is power without assertion, manliness without boasting, heroism without bluster, strength without violence, verity without pugnacity, and criticism without venom; it gives, serves without a strain of conscience; it curbs impatience; it snaps the bonds of passion, and is gentle in all things.

Prayer.—Our Father, create in Thy servants here the fruits of the Spirit. Save our souls, so that we can say, "I once was wrong, but now I am right and in harmony with God. Guide us in all truth and to know Thee, whom to know is everlasting life. Amen."

WEDNESDAY.

THE TRAGEDY OF GETTING WHAT WE WANT.

"And He gave them their desire."—Psa. 78:29.

Desire is the measure of a man. What he longs for is what he is for one transcending moment. It is not what we do that exalts us, but what we would do. The Scripture pronounces heaven's blessings on those that "hunger and thirst for righteousness."

If we fail to embrace God's Spirit in our desires, nothing but tragedy can result. Adam got his desire, but it cursed him. Cain got Abel out of the way, but it robbed him of eternal peace. Noah became prince of all he surveys, but died drunk. Jacob defrauded to get gain, but because of it lived a life of misery because of it. David desired pomp and power and got it, but he was deprived of the temple of the Lord. Wishing, of all employments, is the worst.

Prayer.—Our Father in heaven, we desire to prove ourselves loyal to Thee this day. Forbid that we shall fail to do so in all that we do and say. In all our desires help us to be humble and approved by Him. Forgive us and bless us with Thy will. Amen.

THURSDAY.

CONTENTMENT.

"Lo, these many years do I serve Thee, neither transgressed I at any time Thy command, and yet Thou never gavest me a kid."—Luke 15:29.

This is the reprimand the brother gave the father when the prodigal son came home. Contrast it with a little shepherd boy's philosophy of life.

The king was out on the plains and came up with a shepherd boy, who was singing and whistling, and said to him, "Why are you so merry?" He replied, "Why shouldn't I be? I am as rich as a king." "Pray tell me," said he, "what are your possessions?" He answered, "The sun is mine, the birds, the flowers, the sheep, the plains, and I would not take a thousand dollars for my eyes or my hands." The king said, "Boy, your greatest possession is contentment."

Prayer.—Our Father, all things are ours. Do Thou help us to appreciate it. Forbid that we shall forget to enjoy what Thou hast given us and make us content with what we have. If others banquet and we have bread and enough; if others have the smooth and fragrant way, and ours be mountain-steeps, but leading to glory; if others have fortunes, and we are left poor, but traveling on to peace, grant that we may be content. For Thou hast told us that they that seek the Lord shall not want for any good thing. Amen.

FRIDAY.

THAT BESETTING SIN OF OURS.

"Let us lay aside . . . the sin which doth so easily beset us."—Heb. 12:1-2.

Men and women are all morally more or less frail, and in danger of sin in various forms. But more especially are we in danger from "the sin that doth so easily beset us." The apostle refers probably to a temperamental sin. Each one seems to have some particular evil tendency—some marked liability to fall. This is his or her "besetting sin."

With one it is impatience. Life is subject to vexations. The best way to meet these is to endure them calmly. Impatience at what are really trifles shows a small spirit, causes us unhappiness, and disturbs the peace of those to whom we should give pleasure.

Or perhaps it is a feeble will. We mean well, our intentions are good, our conscience is keenly alive. When we think on our beds, we see the beauty of saintly living, and we rise to moral heights. But when we arise to meet the duties of the day, and encounter some sudden temptation, we are taken by surprise, our will is overpowered and instead of choosing moral firmness, we are, before we know it, utterly defeated and put to shame.

Or we may have a tendency to harsh and uncharitable judgment of others. We expect them to be generous in their judgment of us—to pass lightly over our faults. If we hear a report that they have spoken ungraciously of us, we are hurt and wounded, and we do not stop to think how we may have judged and spoken of them. This is one of the most common of human faults.

Such are examples of besetting sins—the sins that lie at our very door, that are ready to ensnare, surprise and humble us at any moment. And the apostle means forewarned, forearmed. We should "put on the whole armor of God," and then we will see our besetting sin put to flight and the victor's joy will be in our heart.

Prayer.—By one of the parents, asking that God, in His infinite goodness, may enable us to overcome our besetting sins, and that we may be strengthened against temptation.

SATURDAY.

"NOT BY MIGHT, NOR BY POWER."

"Not by might, nor by power, but by my Spirit, saith the Lord of Hosts."—Zech. 4:6-10.

Zerubbabel had a task to do for God. Its exact nature is not our concern. It was a hard and trying task, demanding sweat and blood. An angel brought the message that the thing was to be accomplished, not by might nor by power, but by the Spirit of God.

Surely it is one of the most fatal fallacies into which Christians and the Christian Churches fall, that of thinking worth-while ends can be easily attained by might and power. We feel sure that the kingdom can be ushered in if only so-called Christian forces can have the proper power and sufficient might. As a matter of fact, no real Christian end can thus be attained. We shall the better hasten the day when His will shall here be done even as it is in heaven, when we look not to the power or authority of worldly institutions—in short, when we are willing to trust the Spirit of God.

To be sure, this Spirit can be, and many times is, embodied in institutions and organizations, but above all, it works in the hearts of individuals. First being sure that our own hearts are open to its influence, we must then do our utmost to bring others under the same all-powerful influence.

Prayer.—By one of the parents, asking that our
(Continued on Page 13.)

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

Have you remembered the Christian Orphanage in your will? If you have not, don't you think you ought to?

We met an old friend some time ago, and he said to us: "I have remembered the Orphanage in my will with a nice amount." He also stated in his conversation with us that he never gave anything to a good cause that the Lord did not give him ten times as much back. He has confidence in his Lord and His promises, and is not afraid to trust Him. "Freely ye have received, freely give."

So many of us like to freely receive, but are poor givers. Just a little clause in your will, giving a stipulated amount to the Christian Orphanage, will perhaps be the means of helping some little boy or girl to develop into a great man or woman who may carry the gospel message to thousands of hungry souls.

The following have been sent in since our last report: Ladies of Mt. Pleasant Church, N. C., 1 quilt; "A Friend," Ether, N. C., 1 coat; members of Catawba Springs Christian Church, 44 hens.

We are delighted to get contributions of this kind, as the cholera got in our flock of 200 white Leghorns last year and killed all of them in about a week. We wonder if other Churches would not be glad to send us a coop of hens to help us replenish our poultry yard again, so we can have eggs for the children.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON,
Superintendent.

REPORT FOR FEBRUARY 23, 1928.

Brought forward $2,248.59

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

N. C. & Va. Conference:

United, Lynchburg$ 3.14
Palm Street, Greensboro 10.90
New Lebanon 2.00
New Lebanon Baracca Class 2.00

18.04

Western N. C. Conference:

Parks Cross Roads$ 1.88
Patterson's Grove 3.00
Providence Memorial 3.80
Randleman 5.98
High Point 7.41
Ramseur 9.50

31.57

Eastern N. C. Conference:

Wentworth$20.87
Bethel (Wake) 8.00
Lebanon 1.60
Pope's Chapel 1.23
Mebane 1.25
United Christian Church, Raleigh... 2.00
Shallow Well 4.50
Auburn 9.69
North Clayton 1.86

51.00

Eastern Virginia Conference:

Wakefield$ 3.85
Union, Southampton 1.66
First, Richmond 13.80
Suffolk 25.00
First, Portsmouth 11.29
Hobson (Jan.-Feb.) 3.58
Cypress Chapel 5.04

64.22

Valley Virginia Conference:

Mt. Olivet (G) 1.36

Alabama Conference:

Pisgah$ 3.00

Pleasant Grove	5.00
Wadley	1.82
		9.82
Georgia and Alabama Conference:
Enigma		1.65
Special Offerings.
E. M. Davenport, for children.....	$37.50
Miss Etta F. Fleming	25.00
Mr. Carey Welch, New Hill, N. C..	10.00
Girls' Class, High Pt. S. S.....	5.00
		77.50
Grand total	$2,503.75

(Continued from Page 12.)

faith in God may be greatly strengthened, and our hearts filled with the Spirit which gives us the assurance of His love and care.

SUNDAY.

THE PRAYER THAT CANNOT FAIL.

"We know that we have the petitions that we desired of Him."—1 John 5:13-15.

One of the greatest danger points in life is when we conclude that God has either not heard, or that He has failed to answer our prayer. The promises are clear, and we like to emphasize the word of Jesus that whatsoever we ask in His name we shall receive. And yet, in spite of all this, some of the things that we have desired with all our heart, and in favor of which we have "besieged the battlements of heaven," are the things that have been withheld from us.

We must have confidence, otherwise we cannot even begin to pray as we ought. But let us look at the passage. It is definitely stated that "if we ask anything according to His will, He heareth us." This rightly understood, clears away the fog of doubt. He has been most careful to indicate the conditions—"in my name." To ask in the name of Jesus is to ask only that which is in keeping with His Spirit, and to ask even this with an eye single to the glory of God. This precludes all selfish requests. Fulfilling this condition, the next thing is the absolute certainty that God hears our petition. And right here is where we so often fall down. If we could just be sure, when we flash our message to Him that our wave-length is correct and that He gets it. Well, if we have asked according to His will, we may have positive assurance that He hears our prayer. "And this is the confidence . . . if we ask anything according to His will, He heareth us!"

One thing more—we know that we have the petitions that we desired of Him. The most immediate answer to our power may mean the deferring of the gift. But we know that at the right time we shall receive it.

Prayer.—Lord's Prayer, all the circle joining.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES.

We should be glad to furnish your Sunday School the following supplementary supplies, cash to accompany order:

Improved Uniform Series International Lessons.
1. Bible Lesson Picture Roll, 21x32 inches, per quarter	$1.25
2. Sunday School Superintendent (to accompany the Picture Roll), per quarter.....	.15
3. Pupils' Lesson Stories, per quarter.....	.06
4. Little Bible Lesson Pictures, per quarter..	.05
Group Uniform Series, Primary Course.
1. Group Bible Lesson Picture Roll, 16x20 in., per quarter	1.00
2. Group Pupils' Lesson Stories, Primary, per quarter07
3. Group Lesson Pictures, per quarter.....	.04

In making order, be explicit and name the quarter for which supplies are wanted; thus: first quarter, January to March; second quarter, April to June; third quarter, July to September; fourth quarter, October to December.

SEND ORDERS TO THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

COMMUNION WARE

Individual Service

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A

Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses	$7.00
Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses	6.75
Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses	6.50
Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10.....	2.25
Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10.....	2.25
Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim.....	1.60
No. 2—Broad rim	1.60

SILVER-PLATE

The Silver-Plated Ware is of the very lightest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.

Style No. 85

Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses.	$22.00
Base No. 1—Silver-plate; fits Silver Tray No. 85	11.00
Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85...	16.00
(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)

Style No. 90

Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 33 plain glasses.
Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling)	$22.00
Base No. 2—Silver-plate; fits Silver Tray 90...	16.00
Cover No. 4—Silver-plate; fits Silver Tray 90..	14.00

Breda Plate No. 3—Narrow rim	$ 9.00
No. 4—Broad rim	9.00
Filler—Silver lined	6.00

Send Orders to THE CHRISTIAN SUN,
1536 E. Broad St., - - - Richmond, Va.

THE NEED OF RELIGIOUS EDUCATION. (Continued from Page 7.)

Before we become too discouraged, let us look at this question from another angle. H. G. Wells affirms in his "Outline of History" that education is the preparation of the individual for the community, and his religious training is the core of that preparation. This is indeed a fundamental truth. The need of religious education is manifest today as never before. This is an age of social transition, bringing in its train mental uncertainty, economic disturbances and general confusion. Religion, properly conceived of, purposes to bring order out of chaos and to guide those instances of social disorder which are conducive to progress.

Since the law of the land decrees that there shall be no secular instruction in religion, students are left without the means of growth in religious knowledge at all comparable with their growth and knowledge in other fields. Therefore, many of our best educated citizens have little to say for religion, either as a social or as an individual factor in modern life. There can be no complete education without religious training. The most important phase of education is the development of character, and character cannot be developed in the best sense without belief in God.

The fountain-head of religious education should of course be in the home. The value of Christian training in the home cannot be overestimated. It is here that the early religious impressions are given, and, as we know so well, these impressions govern to a very large extent the individual's religious growth through life. There is an overwhelming tendency in the home today toward laxness in the fulfilling of religious duties. In the home, where the social graces are taught, they are too often devoid of a religious background. Many books are being written which offer inspiration and guidance to both parents and teachers. Dr. W. A. Harper's recent book, "Youth and Truth," has attracted much attention in this field and is certainly very valuable to those who are training young people in the Christian life.

The fact that in many States it is unlawful for State schools to teach religion in any form should endeavor to us the work our denominational colleges are doing along this line. There is no college in the country that is better equipped or putting on a more thorough program of religious education than our own college at Elon. Our college at Defiance, Ohio, recently started a department of religious education in connection with its school of theology. Our State universities are realizing more and more the need of the introduction of religious courses in order to make their curriculum complete. In the University of North Carolina one man is giving his full time to the establishment of such a department, and while the courses which he gives in religion have not as yet been recognized as credit courses toward a degree, it is hoped and expected that this will soon be accomplished.

The great responsibility of all religious training rests ultimately in the Church, and more especially in the Church school. The work here must supplement and climax it all. It must take up the task where the home leaves off; it must help where the school fails. Mistakes have been made in the field of religious education, and we are not now at the entrance of a utopia, but the opportunity that the average child has today of learning about and experiencing the higher values of life is far superior to that offered a few years ago. The road of religious education is as long as the life of the human race. Let us build it well, that each succeeding generation may find it smoother, safer and more direct.

New Haven, Conn.

OUR COLLEGE.

By B. D. JONES.

What does Elon College mean to our Church? To endeavor to answer this question would be a hopeless task. Elon College is ours. We love her, and every member of the Christian Church should assume and bear his proportionate part of this responsibility. It has revolutionized educational ideas and aspiration in both the ministry and the laity of the Church. It has given to the youth of our Church an opportunity for higher education under Christian leadership.

Elon is preparing men and women for all walks in life. Many of our outstanding men and women today are proud of the fact that they received their college training at Elon. Elon has trained and will continue to train leaders for our home mission and foreign mission fields, for our Sunday Schools and day schools, for our literature; in short, for every movement in the Church. It has sent out forty-eight college graduates to preach the Word of God. It has given to us an increasing number of trained laymen in our local Churches capable of helping to handle the great problems of the present day.

Realizing, then, what our college has meant to our Church in the past, we cannot help but think what the future may hold for us if we but do our part. Can any one of us afford to withhold his hearty co-operation when the call comes to help by giving of our time, our means and our prayers for Elon College.

Holland, Va.

Mrs. J. I. Joyner, 204 Fillmore Street, Petersburg, Va., in finding it necessary to change from place to place in the search of health, must discontinue THE CHRISTIAN SUN, which has been such a comfort to her through all her life. We hope that Mrs. Joyner will soon find renewed health and strength and that we may return her to the list of subscribers to THE SUN.

OXFORD BIBLES

An Oxford $3.50
Teacher's Bible only

"The
Oxford Bible
is the Bible
par excellence
of the world"

The best recommendation of the OXFORD TEACHER'S BIBLES is the fact that over 3,000,000 copies have been sold. The wonderful helps they contain save your time because they are alphabetically arranged, making reference easy. They take the place of many books about the Bible, and can be depended upon, being written by eminent scholars. The Helps contain 32 graphic illustrations, besides 15 beautifully colored maps. The text is the Authorized or King James version, with over 50,000 centre column references.

These Are Genuine OXFORD Teacher's BIBLES

EASY-TO-READ EDITION Size 7 1/4 x 5 x 1 1/4 inches

Specimen of Type

17 And there was a very sore battle
that day; and Abner was beaten,

- | | | |
|-------|--|--------|
| Nos. | | |
| 04451 | Moroccoette, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges | $3.50 |
| 04453 | French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and handsome Bible | 4.35 |

Oxford India Paper Edition

Same as above, but printed on the famous Oxford India paper used only in Oxford Bibles. Only one inch thick.

- | | | |
|-------|--|--------|
| Nos. | | |
| 0773x | French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition | $7.50 |

RED LETTER EDITION

- | | | |
|-------|---|------|
| 05453 | As No. 04453 with words of Jesus Christ in red. The red letter feature adds greatly to one's understanding of the Bible | 5.00 |
|-------|---|------|

Oxford India Paper Edition

- | | | |
|--------|---|------|
| 05453x | Same as No. 0773x with words of Jesus Christ in red. A gift edition which is sure to please | 8.00 |
|--------|---|------|

SELF-PRONOUNCING EDITION

All proper names and difficult words divided into syllables and accented so they may be correctly pronounced. Sizes 8 1/4 x 5 1/4 x 1 1/4 inches.

Specimen of Type

6 And A-hi-shär, was over the household: and Ad-o-ni-räm the son of Ab-dä was over the tri-

- | | | |
|-------|--|--------|
| Nos. | | |
| 04531 | Moroccoette, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges | $5.00 |
| 04533 | French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A real student's Bible | 6.00 |

Oxford India Paper Edition

Same as above, but printed on the famous Oxford India paper which is used only in Oxford Bibles. Only 1 1/4 inches thick.

- | | | |
|-------|---|--------|
| 0923x | French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A Bible of superior quality | $9.00 |
|-------|---|--------|

Improved Thumb Index on any style
at 50 cents extra

OBITUARIES.

JOHNSON.

Daisy V., wife of T. O. Johnson, of Raleigh, and daughter of the late W. W. and Rhoda Ann Johnson, was called from her earthly home to rest in her eternal home not made with hands, on Saturday morning, February 4, 1928, at the age of fifty-one years. She leaves to miss her and mourn their loss her husband, two daughters, Vivian and Roberta; two brothers, W. L. & A. G. Johnson; four sisters—Mrs. T. B. Upchurch, Mrs. W. J. Upchurch, Mrs. Irene Johnson Cook, and Mrs. M. D. Smith.

She was a member of Wake Chapel Christian Church, where she joined when young. She loved her Church and was a faithful and loyal member till death. In her going, the Church sustains a loss that will be felt for years. But while we count it loss, who knows but that it may be even our gain? She was a woman of very fine character, and unselfish in her devotion to others. She made great impressions for good upon those with whom she came in contact, so much so that it was not uncommon to hear the words "She is one of the best women I ever knew," and those who had known her, even as passers-by, dropped in to pray with her when she was sick. Her business-like ability made her a wonderful wife and mother and was of great help to her younger brothers and sisters after the death of her parents.

I think I never knew so much prayer offered for any one as for her while sick, but when this did not avail we all felt it to be the will of our Lord to take her and that He would glorify Himself thereby.

The interment was in Wake Chapel Cemetery and the services were conducted by Dr. Stanbury, of the Edenton Street M. E. Church, of Raleigh. May our Lord's richest blessings rest upon each of those who await the coming of the Lord and the resurrection of the saints and bring them all together again where they will never part.

J. LEE JOHNSON.

SHOOP.

Whereas, it has been the will of God, our Father, to remove from the ranks of the Ladies' Benevolent and Social Union of the Suffolk Christian Church, of which he was an honorary member, our loyal friend and co-worker, Mr. C. A. Shoop; and

Whereas, we deeply deplore the passing of one whose life in our midst was so full of good works, one who was ready to lend a helping hand whenever and wherever he could be of service; and

Whereas, by his death the society has suffered an irreparable loss; and

Whereas, the life of our deceased friend was the exponent of charity, loyalty, cheerfulness and good will, and his efforts to forward the work of the kingdom were untiring; therefore, be it resolved:

That we resign ourselves to the will of Almighty God, knowing that He is too wise to err.

That we seek to emulate the good traits that stood out so prominently in the life of our departed friend.

That we extend to his family and to his aged father our deepest and heartfelt sympathy in this their hour of trial, and pray that they may be sustained by the faith that characterized the life of their devoted husband, father and son.

That a copy of these resolutions be published in The Christian Sun, a copy sent to the bereaved family, and a copy spread on the records of the Ladies Benevolent and Social Union.

JULIA A. BRINKLEY.

MRS. O. S. SMITH, SR.

MRS. GEO. W. NURNEY.

TURNER.

Whereas, it has pleased our Heavenly Father to call from an earthly home to a heavenly home our beloved friend and member, Mr. Archer Turner; therefore, be it resolved:

1. That we bow in humble submission to God's will, knowing that He doeth all things well and for our good.

2. That we imitate his good example by always giving our best to His cause.

3. That we express to his family our deep sympathy in their great bereavement and commend them to Him whose comfort can give strength in our times of weakness and despair.

4. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the bereaved family, a copy to The Christian Sun for publication, and a copy spread on the minutes of the Benevolent and Social Union records.

MRS. D. C. LEWIS,

MRS. HENRY CROCKER,

MRS. H. S. HARDCASTLE,

Committee.

"When I stand before the throne,
Dressed in beauty not my own;
When I see Thee as Thou art,
Love Thee with unsinning heart,
Thou, Lord, shall I fully know,
Not till then how much I owe."

ELON COLLEGE

CO-EDUCATIONAL

SECOND SEMESTER OPENS JANUARY 4, 1928

A few additional Students may be accommodated at that time, preferably members of the Christian Church.

SOME OF THE ELON COLLEGE BUILDINGS

ELON COLLEGE offers superior educational advantages to the members of the Christian Church. The buildings are new, equipment new and of the very best type, laboratory facilities equal to any college in the South; member of the Southern Association of Colleges, strong Christian faculty, and fine Christian atmosphere prevailing on the campus. Special courses in religious education and Christian work are offered to train laymen and ministers in the work of our denomination.

For Catalogue and View-Books, address

C. M. CANNON REGISTRAR,

ELON COLLEGE,

NORTH CAROLINA

"Christian Character First and Always at Elon College"

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rve. Daniel W. Kerr.

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Christian Church.

BOARD OF EDITORS

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D. Editor
W. W. STALEY, D. D. Associate
W. A. HARPER, LL.D. Associate
REV. S. C. HARRELL. Associate
R. C. HELFENSTEIN, D. D. Associate
REV. S. M. LYNAM. News Editor
P. J. KERNODLE. Managing Editor

Subscription Rates

One Year$2.00
Six Months 1.00

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT
RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Post-office at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows the date of expiration. Change in the label will appear on wrapper the first week of month following renewal, provided it is received before the 25th.

Change of Address: Give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

When subscriptions are made for friends, state whether paper is to be stopped at end of the year.

Remittances: Make all remittances for subscriptions and renewals to "Editor Christian Sun," Elon College, N. C.

Remittances for advertising and other business matters will be addressed to the "Managing Editor," 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond, Va.

Advertising Rates: "Want Ads," 2 cents a word an insertion. Display rates quoted upon request.

Notices: Obituary and Marriage notices, limited to 100 words, are published free of charge. All over 100 words, at 1 cent a word. Remittance should accompany copy. Write names distinctly.

THOMAS.

Inasmuch as the soul of our little friend and co-worker, Margaret Thomas, was suddenly ushered into the great beyond by the wrecking of a school bus on January 10, 1928; and

Whereas, in her death, the Sunday School at Moore Union Christian Church has lost one of its most interested and consecrated pupils; and

Whereas, we cherish the memory of her lovable disposition, the cheerful mood and unusual ability which marked her a leader among our younger pupils, and for which she was loved by all; be it resolved

1. That we deplore the tragic way of her untimely death, and trust that our renewed sense of obligation for the safeguard of sacred childhood shall be so perpetuated that she shall have not died in vain.

2. That we extend to the family our sympathy and assure them of an interest in our prayers, and that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, a copy to The Christian Sun, and be recorded in our Sunday School record.

VERA WOMACK,
T. D. HUNTER,
IOLA BOLIN,
Committee.

LONG.

Resolutions of respect for Mrs. J. P. Long, who died November 30, 1927:

Whereas, it has pleased our Heavenly Father to call from our Ladies' Aid Society to a heavenly home our beloved and faithful friend and charter member of the society of Sarem Christian Church; therefore, be it resolved:

1. That we, as a broken circle, bow in humble submission to God's will, knowing that He doeth all things well and for our good.

2. That we imitate her good example by always giving our best to His cause.

3. That we offer our heartfelt and deepest sympathy to her family, pointing them to Christ our Saviour.

4. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the bereaved family, a copy to The Christian Sun and the Albemarle Observer, and be recorded in the minutes of the Ladies' Aid Society.

MRS. D. S. HARRELL.
MRS. G. G. GATLING.
MRS. J. R. LANGSTUN.
MRS. W. J. FELTON.
MRS. J. T. EURE.

BETHLEHEM COLLEGE

WADLEY, ALABAMA

A JUNIOR COLLEGE AND HIGH SCHOOL.

Where Opportunity Awaits the Student of Very Limited Means.

GIRL'S DORMITORY.

Bethlehem College, Wadley, Ala., will open September 5, 1927. This institution is a Junior College and High School, which is co-educational, where scholarship ranks high and expense is low. It is thoroughly Christian, absolutely non-sectarian, and vitally American. A school where opportunity awaits the student of very limited means—$68.00 pays all college expenses, except books, board and room. Board, $15.00 per month, and room $3.00; total expenses for a term of nine months, $250.00.

Bethlehem College is training some of the best stock of America for Christian leadership, to be used by the nation and the world. Here is a great challenge and asset for students who wish to prepare themselves to serve in a worth-while way. The work on the new Administration Building is progressing nicely, and we will be able to begin our college work in this building when school opens this fall.

For catalog and other information, address S. L. Beougher, President.

OXFORD TEACHERS' BIBLES

An Oxford Teachers' Bible has references and 300 pages of helps that are a mine of information to Bible students. The helps are arranged in alphabetical order, like a dictionary. They are accurate, comprehensive and up-to-date. A few styles are listed here. Many others are described in our Bible catalogue, mailed upon request.

04403 [This size print] Bound in French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, size 6 1/2 x 4 1/2 inches$4.00
0623x [Same Bible as 04403] Printed on Oxford India paper. Only 1 inch thick.....$6.00

04453 [This size print] French Morocco leather binding, overlapping covers, 7 1/4 x 5 in. $4.35

0773x [Same Bible as 04453] Printed on Oxford India paper. A remarkably thin and light Bible. (Only 1 inch thick)$7.75

05453 [Same Bible as 04453] With the words of Jesus Christ printed in red$6.25

05453x [Same Bible as 0773x] With the words of Jesus Christ printed in red$8.75

04523 [This size print] A self-pronouncing Oxford Bible. Bound in French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, size 8 1/2 x 5 1/2 inches... $5.50

0923x [Same Bible as 04523] Printed on Oxford India paper, only 1 1/2 inches thick...$9.75

ORDER FROM
"THE CHRISTIAN SUN"

Richmond, Va

HOLMAN BIBLES

FOR CHILDREN
PICTORIAL BIBLES WITH HELPS

The text is self-pronouncing, by the aid of which children can learn to pronounce the difficult Scripture proper names.

Specimen of Type

27 And the boys grew; and Esau was a cunning bufter.
5 And the streets of the city shall be full of boys and girls playing in the streets thereof.

With beautiful photo views of scenes in Bible lands distributed throughout the text. Also maps of Bible lands in colors. Also new Practical Helps to Bible Study, especially designed for instructing children in scriptural information.

No. 9111. French Seal Leather, overlapping covers, round corners, gold edges, gold titles.

Our Price—Post Paid. 2.30

COLORED PICTURE EDITION

Portraying in natural colors, scenes and places taken from nature and life in the Holy Land.

No. 9211. Same as No. 9111, but with Beautifully Colored Pictures.

Our Price—Post Paid. 2.40

FOR INTERMEDIATE SUNDAY-SCHOOL SCHOLARS

Large Clear Black Type, Self-Pronouncing, containing Helps to Bible Study, 4000 Questions and Answers, Maps in Colors, and Presentation Page. A Beautiful Gift Bible.

Specimen of Type.

22 And the prophet Is'ra-el, and said unto thyself, and mark, and for at the return of t

Size, 7 x 5 inches.

No. 215. Divinity Circuit Style, Bound in French Seal Leather, round corners, red under gold edges, with silk head bands and purple silk marker, gold titles, etc.

Our Price—Post Paid. 3.10

No. 3215RL. Red Letter Scholars' Bible, same Bible as No. 215, with all the Sayings of Christ printed in Red, and with Red and gold INLAID PANEL SIDE TITLES, also Beautifully Colored Pictures.

Our Price—Post Paid. 3.45

Holman Self-Pronouncing

VEST POCKET TESTAMENTS

Clearcut Print in Smallest Size
4 3/8 x 2 3/4 x 3 7/8 inches

Specimen of Type.
AND the third day there was a marriage in Cana of Galilee; and the mother of Jesus was

2133K. Bound in durable Morocco Grain Semble Leather, flexible limp, gilt titles60

2113. French Morocco, genuine leather, flexible limp, gold titles, rounded corners, gold edges..... .70

2115P. French Morocco, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, with the Book of Psalms included$1.10

ILLUSTRATED VEST POCKET TESTAMENT

With Pictures of Holy Land Scenes

2814. French Morocco, limp, gold side title round corners, red under gold edges85

RED LETTER VEST POCKET TESTAMENT
With all the words of our Lord printed in red.

13RL. French Morocco, flexible limp, gold side title on red panel, gold edges. .85

15RLP. French Morocco, overlapping covers, flexible, gold side title on red panel, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included$1.25

INDIA PAPER VEST POCKET TESTAMENT

Thin as a Wafer

2136XP. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, with Psalms included$2.25

Send Your Orders to

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 E. Broad Street

RICHMOND - VIRGINIA

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Official Organ of the Southern Christian Convention.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXX.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, MARCH 1, 1928.

NUMBER 9.

THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY

BY REV. S. M. LYNAM.

Given to Lepers.—

At the thirty-fourth annual meeting of the American mission to lepers, it was disclosed that since 1893 the American people had given one and a half million dollars for that cause.

Refuses More Salary.—

Dr. Charles E. Jefferson, pastor of the large Tabernacle Congregational Church of New York, recently refused an increase of twenty-five hundred dollars in his salary. In declining this increase, he stated that he felt ten thousand dollars was all his Church should pay him. This refusal became news because so few men would have declined the increase.

Napoleon's Bedroom Wrecked.—

The first hall bedroom Napoleon had in Paris, long before he dreamed of commanding an army or ruling an empire, and in which he studied maps and military strategy by candle-light, is being wrecked. The building in which it was above a little bookshop in which Napoleon spent those early Paris days is being torn down. The bedroom itself will go to a museum, and a bronze plaque in the new building will mark its location.

Care of Children.—

Recently in Raleigh was held North Carolina's first institute for the instruction of parents in the care of children. Of course, only a few parents, comparatively, can be present and hear the instructive addresses delivered. It is to be hoped that the valuable hints and information given will be published, in order that parents generally may avail themselves of it. The care of the child's health is a problem, and scientific help is needed.

Another Resolution.—

Senator William E. Borah, Idaho, is leading the fight in the Senate against the use of marines in Nicaragua. He has offered a resolution asking for the facts relative to the use of the navy in Nacaragua since the recognition by the United States government of the Diaz regime. Senator Borah wants to know the size of the naval force employed in Nicaragua, the number of conflicts, and the number of killed or wounded on either side.

Ban Luther Film.—

The Bavarian government, in response to protests from Roman Catholic officials, has banned the showing of a film depicting the life history of Martin Luther, the great religious reformer and beginner of Protestantism. The Catholics urge that the film offends the susceptibilities of Catholics, and is derogatory of their religion. The picture has had full houses at its showings in Berlin. The Catholic bishops' organizations in other parts of Germany are attempting to stop its showings elsewhere, though the film has passed the board of censors.

Another Protest.—

Religious forces are earnestly protesting against the proposed great naval increase program as a step away from peace. Yale Divinity School, students and faculty, have sent a protest to Congress, and so have a number of other strong organizations. We cannot expect Europe to believe our words about disarmament when we plan larger navies and more devices for war. The people at home will be drilled in war talk and a war psychology built up until we shall be another Germany under the Hohenzollerns. We shall be building a machine which will turn and destroy us.

Protest.—

It was recently announced by Mrs. D. Foster Updike, secretary of the woman's division of the National Congressional Commission on Foreign Missions, that telegrams of protest had been sent to the senators and representatives in behalf of nearly seven hundred thousand Congregational women in opposition to the proposed naval program of seventy-one new battleships in the next eight years. The Churches must not fail to make their opposition to measures which make for war if the reign of the Prince of Peace is ever to be ushered in. The Church cannot be subservient to the State, following it tamely into war as was done in 1917, and hope ever to advance the kingdom of God, because in so doing we stamp all the efforts of our foreign missionaries as worthless and all their messages as lies. We must stand for something in these days while there is yet something to stand for. The Congregational women have done a brave thing, and others should follow in their train.

A Peace Gesture.—

A resolution has been offered in Congress providing for a treaty to be signed by all the world powers in agreement to abolish and cease to build submarines. Secretary of State Kellogg, speaking of the matter, said: "Of course, it would be impossible for one country to abolish submarines and leave any other country free to operate and build them. The United States would be willing to sign a treaty with all the powers of the world prohibiting the use of the submarine entirely." This gesture may carry us nowhere, but enough of them will arouse the desire for peace instinctive in us all. We shall provide slowly but certainly for permanent peace. There will have to be built up better understandings, and it may require another generation, but we can lay the foundations for peace in the days that we live, and we can contribute to the better understandings that must underlie any project for peace.

State Bars Bible.—

According to a ruling by the Attorney General of the State of Michigan, the reading of the Bible and the teaching of any religious subjects, sectarian or otherwise, in State-supported institutions is unlawful. According to a statement by the superintendent of public instruction, this ruling by Mr. W. W. Potter affects a number of normal schools, the Michigan State College, and scores of grade and high schools who have made it a practice to give courses in the general principles of religion and to read the Bible in class. Mr. Mencken calls the Southern States "the Bible belt," but it is better to have even a narrow religion than to have none. We shall be far behind the standards of Christ if we thus continue to bar any form of religious instruction from schools. The ruling does not affect the University of Michigan because religious instruction there is given in a separate building not maintained by the State. And since we are so divided, we should take steps to see to it that such buildings stand on every university campus and that capable men who are appealing to youth should teach in them. We need more of the spirit of Christ and less of the things that have been said about Him which we parade as Christianity.

Mission Support Troubles.—

It is announced by the Presbyterian Church that the foreign mission budget may have to be cut by 30 per cent unless the giving to that cause is materially increased, and this condition of the Presbyterian Church is typical of the condition in a number of the religious bodies. There seems to have been a vast falling off in the offerings for foreign missions, and this branch of Christian service is menaced with deficits and threats to cut. There is, of course, an underlying cause for this, and it should be sought out and remedied, for in so doing lies the one hope. It may be that men and women are feeling that to continue to propagate denominationalism abroad is worse than useless, and are refusing to support it. And then, too, there is an awakening, vaguely still, but certainly there, that the countries to whom we are sending missionaries would like our Christ but not our Christianity, and the failure of many missionaries to give that has made them fail to get results, all of which is discouraging. We may not want Church union at home, but we must have it abroad or die there, and perhaps here, as many tell us, we are already doing it. It is a critical time for the Church as we pass through this period of readjustment to meet a changed and changing world.

NOTES-PERSONALS

"The Christian Annual" is being mailed out this week to the various Conferences.

Readers will wish to read Dr. Staley's contribution in this week's SUN entitled, "Five Reasons," or "Why I Like the Christian Church Best."

Special attention is called to the article headed, "To Whom It May Concern," by Bro. J. M. Darden, which appears in the first column on the "Mission" page.

Mrs. B. F. Gwaltney, Disputanta, Va., in renewing for THE CHRISTIAN SUN, says: "There are so many good things I get out of THE SUN. It is of so much worth to me. I cannot see how any Church member can afford to be without it."

Rev. M. W. Butler, pastor of the Gulf Mills Christian Church, Conshohocken, Pa., in renewing his subscription for THE SUN, states that he has been reading THE CHRISTIAN SUN regularly for fifty years. That is a fine record. How many others have been reading the paper for fifty years? Let us have their names, please.

Mrs. Boyd Richards is putting forth special effort to awaken the women of the Valley Virginia Central Conference in missions. She is going to make an effort to have each missionary society of each Church sponsor the missionary programs in the Sunday Schools during the foreign mission period.

Rev. J. W. Fix is planning earnestly to carry out the recommendation of the Pastors' Conference to enroll tithers. He is not merely preaching sermons on the general theme of "Stewardship," in which tithing is stressed, but he is distributing Tithers' League cards to the juniors and young people in his Sunday School.

Drs. W. G. Sargent and A. B. Kendall speak with high approval of the booklet recently issued by the Department of Christian Education of the General Convention, outlining twelve missionary meetings for young people. Those who are interested in this program may apply to Miss Lucy M. Eldredge, C. P. A. Building, Dayton, Ohio.

Rev. G. R. Underwood writes that he does not have any regular pastoral work, but that he is kept busy conducting funerals, prayer meetings and marriage ceremonies. He spends much time in visiting the sick and holds a public service once a month in the Chatham County Home for the Aged. Bro. Underwood is one of our earnest, faithful ministers.

Another one of our preachers has caught the Florida spirit. This time it is Rev. R. A. Whitten, who has been granted a leave of absence through March by his Church. He will spend it in Florida recuperating. Bro. Whitten has done fine work at Reidsville and has won his rest, and we hope and pray that he will be greatly revived by it.

Defiance College has just issued its "Summer School Bulletin." The sessions begin on June 18th and close August 18th. The course of study is intended for teachers, though courses are also offered in music and for college credit. Some of our public school teachers who plan to attend summer school this summer would do well to write to President Caris for his announcement.

On the anniversary of the fourth year of Dr. Rowland's pastorate at the First Christian Church of Greensboro, the Church came together in a special service and subscribed sufficient money to pay off the accumulated deficit of several years, about $2,500 in all. At the conclusion of the service, Dr. Rowland was presented with a package of gold, and Mrs. Rowland with a gift of flowers as appreciation of their services.

Beginning with an early issue, THE CHRISTIAN SUN will conduct a department known as "The Convention Forum." Any member of the Christian Church who has a thought in respect to the approaching Convention and what it shall undertake to do will be given opportunity to express his or her opinion in this column. Our Southern Christian Convention is only three months off, and we cannot begin too early to fasten our attention upon this legislative body of our Church in its biennial session.

There are twenty-three Christian Churches having more than 400 members, and ten of these are in the Southern Christian Convention. The largest Church in the Christian denomination is the Christian Temple, of Norfolk, with 1,378 members. The next is the Christian Church of Suffolk, with 1,201 members. The Christian Churches of the South that have more than 400 members are: Christian Temple, Suffolk, Burlington, Old Zion (Norfolk), South Norfolk, First Church of Norfolk, Bethlehem (N. C. & Va. Con.), First Church of Greensboro, Holland, and Apple's Chapel.

Rev. John G. Truitt, former president of the Eastern Virginia Elon Alumni Association, in speaking of the banquet held by the association on the evening of February 17th, says: "We had a wonderful meeting of the Elon alumni in Suffolk Friday night. There were about seventy present, and everybody seemed to possess the true Elon spirit. All through the meeting there was expressed the commendatory note toward the present Elon, its president, faculty, board of trustees, alumni and patrons, including the present student body." The new officers elected by the association are: president, Mrs. J. B. Gay, Franklin, Va.; vice-president, Rev. J. F. Morgan, Norfolk, Va., Route 3, and secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Annie Staley Calhoun, Suffolk, Va.

It is the custom of the Clio Literary Society to give a public program on the evening of Washington's Birthday each year. They departed from their accustomed type of program this year and brought back to the campus one of their alumni in the person of Attorney F. F. Myrick. Mr. Myrick made a very impressive address on "Crime and the Courts." It is likely that the society will continue this practice, and the plan certainly has much to be commended. A literary society in a college is properly judged not only by those who at present are members, but by the persons who have passed out from its training and taken their place in the work of the world. The society was certainly fortunate in the individual chosen to be their first alumni representative.

The Christian Publishing Association is now launching a campaign for ten thousand subscribers to the magazine number of the Herald of Gospel Liberty, a forty-eight-page magazine appearing once a month and combining the Christian Missionary, Journal of Christian Education, and certain features of the Herald of Gospel Liberty into a single magazine. The price is $1.00 a year, but if five or more are taken by a Sunday School or Church in one package, the price is seventy-five cents a year each. It is doubtful if such a bargain can be secured in the way of fine Christian literature anywhere else for this price. In addition to this, the Christian Publishing Association will give the first 100 Christian Missionary Societies sending in five or more new one-year subscribers to the magazine a copy of Dr. Bishop's "The Christians and the Great Commission," a book of 302 pages; and it will give the first 100 Christian Endeavor Societies sending in ten or more new one-year subscribers to the magazine a copy of Dr. Barrett's "The Centennial of Religious Journalism," a book of 655 pages. We suggest that the Christian Publishing Association also offer a reward for the first 100 Sunday Schools that shall send in five or more new subscribers to the magazine.

INTEREST IN MISSIONS.

Bro. J. M. Darden, of Suffolk, Va., gave me report of the pastors' meeting in Norfolk, on Monday, February 19th. It is a great pleasure to note the interest manifested for missions at that meeting. When I read the minutes of the meeting it filled my heart with joy to see that the pastors all promised their co-operation and willingness to go out in the field and make a special drive to raise not less than one-sixth of the pastors' salaries at the various Churches for missions. I do want to thank those who have offered their services free to go to the various Churches in the interest of missions. Though I am not physically able to get out in the field and work at the present time, I know that the interest of missions will be taken care of by these great workers with the co-operation and support of the pastors. I pray that the Churches will be liberal and raise this money, which is so badly needed at the present time. I thank God for such men and women who are willing to give their time and services for the cause I love so dearly; for well I know we grow in power and in numbers only as we become and are missionary in spirit, giving and activity. J. O. A.

OFFICIAL NOTICE.

The Southern Christian Convention is to meet in Richmond, Tuesday, May 1st, 1928.

For years it has been the custom of the Convention to meet alternately in North Carolina and Virginia. Last session the First Christian Church at Durham, N. C., was host to the Convention. The First Christian Church at Richmond has extended the Convention an urgent invitation to meet with them this year. The Executive Committee has accepted this invitation, and the date of the meeting is May 1st.

However, the suggestion has been made that it would be a fine thing to open the Convention with a banquet on Monday evening, as was the case in Durham. It occurs to me as a very fine thing for the ministers, workers and delegates to meet for a banquet on the eve of the opening of the Convention. If we could meet Monday evening at 6 o'clock for the banquet and have the opening service at the Church at 8 o'clock we could get many of the preliminaries out of the way so that the Convention would be ready for business Tuesday at 10 o'clock. I am mentioning this and wish that those of you who are interested would please write me at once your judgment in the matter.

In the event that the banquet is held, the committee in charge could see that all the necessary arrangements are made. If you have any suggestion as to the program of the approaching session of the Convention the committee will greatly appreciate having the same.

The committee wishes to express its most sincere appreciation to the Richmond Church for its hearty invitation, and assures it of a most willing acceptance.

L. E. SMITH,
President.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

THE GREAT COMMISSION.

REV. JOHN G. TURITT, Preacher.

"And Jesus came and spake unto them, saying, All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth. Go ye, therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost: Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world. Amen."—Matt. 28:18-20.

The day of Christian heroes is not over. I refuse to believe that men, women, and children will not hear of the strong Son of God. And I refuse to believe that they will not heed the voice of this self-same Son. Our text begins with the striking phrase: "Jesus came and spake." Much of the secret of the situation lies in those words, "Jesus came and spake." Whenever a Church or person loses its warm, intimate touch with Jesus, it has lost its power and place in the world. How many "dead spots" there are in the history of the Church! Sin, selfishness, ecclesiasticism had shut the Saviour out, and lethargy, indifference and death is only the logical result. Whenever this situation has come about, then the Church has busied itself with "activities," organizations, plans (so-called), and with the making of much ado about nothing it has tried to feel that it was functioning in the right and proper way. But lethargy, indifference and death prevails. It cannot be done for Christ without Christ. "Jesus came and spake."

The forces without can never match the forces within. The forces without had driven the disciples to despair and disbandment. The forces without had changed them from a loving, faithful band of followers to a group of fugitives fleeing from a situation worse than futile. But "Jesus came and spake unto them," not simply "to them," but "unto them," and with Jesus' speaking unto them there was developed a force within which all the powers of the forces without could not hamper nor control. Pretending to hear Jesus speak unto us is a very different thing from hearing Him. Pretending to have allowed Jesus to come to us and speak to us is only a pretense—the most empty, soulless sort of a thing in the world—against pretense the strong Son of God uttered His strongest words. It is a useless encumbrance of the ground, full of leaves and leaves only; it should be rooted up and cast out forever.

When "Jesus came and spake unto them" they were quite willing to tarry in an upper room in Jerusalem in prayer. Dr. Minton, our Secretary of Foreign Missions, has asked me to please bring a message on the great commission. Here is part of it right now: The disciples having heard Jesus Himself speak unto them, tarried in Jerusalem in prayer. They waited until the Holy Spirit had come upon them, and then they were willing—mind, I did not say ready, for they could but choose to go since the Spirit of God was upon them—to go with power and speak not in tongues, but languages that all could understand. "Jesus came and spake unto them" a language they could full well understand, and they in turn talked to others of every nation about Him in a language which could be understood.

A vision comes before my eyes. I see Jesus coming to the one hundred thousand members of our Churches, assembled in their places appointed for prayer—the disciples met Jesus at a place by Him appointed—and speaking unto them through His servants, the ministers of the gospel. I see them laying aside all their cloaks of self-righteousness, and I see them turning their faces to Jesus in wistful, trustful anxiety. They forget the ministers and see the world's Servant. They see His nail-pierced hands and feet, His sword-thrust side, and His thorn-pressed brow. They hear Him saying, "Be not faithless, but believing," and tears are coming from their eyes and confession from their lips as they cry out from their hearts, "My Lord and my God." And in a sweet, gentle, loving voice, He is saying, "All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth." Then all in His presence feel that the sweep of His words has brought the nations to His feet.

What happens? What always happens? Why, the disciples tarried in prayer. Therefore, I see one hundred thousand members of my Church—yea, and I thank God that my vision is far bigger than my Church, for I see the members of all Churches flocking to the altar of prayer! If asked to answer in one word the question as to what we can do about the retrenchments being made by our missionary forces, I should unhesitatingly answer, Pray. Some might say pay. I say pray. I cannot speak other than the message that is in my soul, and I desire that no attempt at style or assumed rhetoric shall hinder me from saying what I sincerely believe.

Last Monday morning the pastors of some forty Eastern Virginia Churches met in Norfolk, as is their monthly custom. With them met Mrs. M. L. Bryant, president of the Eastern Virginia Woman's Conference and member of the Mission Board of the Southern Christian Convention, and Bro. J. M. Darden, also a member of the Mission Board. Their souls were kindled with the call of this Christ, who "came and spake unto them," that our Churches in Eastern Virginia should do something worthy of our Saviour about this great commission. They were so keenly conscious, as were we all, that our beloved Dr. Atkinson was pouring out his very soul to God in prayer for the success of the missionary program of our Church, and that he had lain his life in such a whole-hearted and inspiring manner upon the Church's altar of service. It was a serious moment, for all present desired that we should proceed in the best possible way to answer the call of Christ in His great commission. Your speaker proposed that we launch the campaign in Eastern Virginia by pledging each pastor in the Conference to preach on missions the first Sunday in March. The proposition was accepted and each pastor heartily voted to speak to the subject of mission next Sunday.

It is of most vital importance that the preaching be done in such power of the Holy Spirit that it shall bring the hearers to the altar of prayer. If the preaching is as though "Jesus came and spake unto them," it will cause prayer to follow. And so my vision is a people coming to God in prayer. If our Churches would come to the altar of prayer and prostrate themselves at the feet of Jesus Christ in humble submission to Him, at once a new day would dawn. Preach, pray, pay, is not an illogical procedure. The minister will pray before he preaches, and the Christian will pray before he hears; but even so, it is New Testament logic. "Jesus came and spake unto them," "they tarried in Jerusalem," and then they gave their possessions, and representatives from all nations heard the good news.

Do we say we are weak? What account is going up to an altar and praying for a spirit of obedience to our Lord? It looks spectacular. Is it sincere? Is it not a weak business? Oh! turn your faces to the Saviour again:

"See, from His head, His hands, His feet,
Sorrow and love flow mingled down!
Did e'er such love and sorrow meet,
Or thorns compose so rich a crown?"

"So rich a crown!" "All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth." It means everything that back of this commission is the infinite power of God. Are we weak? If we accept Christ's will for ourselves, no. And the moving of our people to an altar of prayer such as our Church has never witnessed before in all its history would mean a Pentecost and a program resulting in action instead of "activities," and conquest instead of retrenchment.

It was Dr. Minton who asked me to answer the question: What will we do with the great commission? Just permit me to pause here long enough to say, God, give us more Minton—a man who is literally living his life out in agonizing prayer, that something fine may be done by our Church in response to Christ's command, "Go ye, therefore, and teach all nations." My answer to the question, What will we do about the great commission? is: Nothing worthy of the name unless we pray. If we pray, we will obey!

Goethe says, "The highest cannot be spoken." My deepest desire in this whole matter is more than I can express. Jesus has expressed it in the text: "And Jesus came and spake unto them, saying, All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth. Go ye, therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost: Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world." It is something like this which I have in mind: a personal companionship between Jesus and me, reaching out through my obedience to His command unto others, and with the assurance that He is with me alway. This text begins with "Jesus" and "them," but it closes with a touch so divinely personal: "I am with you alway." "The laborer is worthy of his hire," and his hire in this case, thank God, shall be Jesus!

You will want to hear Jesus speaking to you. And as I said in the outset, the day of Christian heroes is not over. You will be more than conquerors through Jesus Christ, even as Paul was, if you but let Him come fully into your heart. The Holy Spirit has enlightened us too greatly for us to go half-way in this matter in which Jesus has promised to go all the way, even unto the end of the world. What shall we do with the great commission? Obey it as a personal command as our salvation is a personal matter, placing our lives and our means upon His altar in service. Thus in true Christ-likeness we shall be servers with our lives, and of our world.

Dr. Elbert Russell, of Duke University and professor of the Old Testament in the divinity school there, has recently joined the United Church, of Raleigh. Dr. Russell said in joining our Church at Raleigh that he believes in Christian union, and since the United Church is practicing it better than any Church he knows, he was anxious to place his membership in that Church.

Surrounded by members of his family and loved ones, Mr. J. W. Carlton, of Richmond, enjoyed his eighty-seventh birthday on February 2d. We are happy to report that Mr. Carlton is recovering nicely from his recent prolonged illness. Long may he live to brighten the lives and cheer the hearts of his host of friends.

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, Elon College, N. C.

Contributing Editors

W. W. STALEY

W. A. HARPER

R. C. HELFENSTEIN S. C. HARRELL

PRINCIPLES OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

- (1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
- (2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
- (3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of Church membership.
- (5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

MEN AND CAUSES.

There are two elements that enter into Christian service—persons and causes. The first thing in Christianity is a person. Jesus Christ is the first element that enters to Christian experience. "In the beginning, God." In the beginning of Christian life, Christ. He comes first in experience. We give Him our heart, and He gives us new spiritual life. Before regeneration man "is dead in trespasses and sins"; but after regeneration man is a "new creature." "Ye must be born again" is a requirement for salvation. Religion is a personal experience that realizes a change of heart. In the natural birth, nothing is manifest in the beginning but a personal relation. It is mother and child. In religion it is Jesus and believer. Personality is a big factor in all human relations; but personal relations are only a part of man's obligations.

If the child that is born live, it is more than a personal relation as the child grows. Obligations grow out of that sweet personal relation, and son must serve mother in obedience to her will, in supplying her necessities, in helping to reward her sufferings and her love. The same is true of the man born of the Spirit. It comes to be more than a heart relation, a personal experience, a child of God. As the Christian grows, his obligations increase. Service is added to faith and love. After a time the Christian life becomes more than experience of regeneration; it becomes a life of work for the cause of Christ. The Church is the field in which the Christian must work. Jesus said: "My Father worketh hitherto, and I work"; and then He said to His disciples: "Go work today in my vineyard." The cause of Christ is the important thing in real Christian service, but all must be done in His name. He is the Head of the Church.

Many members of the Church determine their loyalty and their service by their feelings toward persons. One man can raise more money than others. They like the man. The cause is hid behind the man. One person has a greater appeal than another. The true idea is to give to the cause and not to the man. Some people have a mind of indifference toward the Church, and while in that state of mind neglect to give or withhold from the cause that needs and claims their help. It is difficult to separate the man and the cause, but one should never prevent service for the other. The cause is the most important thing, and devotion and loyalty suggest support of the cause, though the man who represents the cause may be false. Men die, but causes live. Jesus died, but His cause increases in interest and value as the centuries roll on in their course.

It is important for members of the Church to study the leading causes that need support, and set aside for each cause what he can afford to give. For the next three months missions will be the cause to which special offerings must be made, or that cause will suffer. Missions is a main cause for Christianity to maintain and enlarge. If the mission cause die, the Church will wane. It was the command of Jesus: "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." What He said unto His disciples then He says unto His disciples now. One cannot be a faithful Christian and not believe in missions, and he cannot do his part unless he contributes to the cause of missions. It is not so much a strong appeal as a strong sense of obligation to missions that members of the Church need. The need is great. The obligation is plain. The reward is sure. The success of Christianity means success for the world. It is true that God sends the rain upon the just and the unjust alike, but He does not send His approval upon the faithful and the unfaithful alike. He sends His rain upon the farmer's field that works and the farmer's field that does not work; but He sends the harvest upon the field of the farmer that works.

A MASTER BUILDER.

Mr. John Wilbur Jenkins has written in his volume entitled "James B. Duke, Master Builder" (published by Geo. H. Doran Co., New York City; $4.00), an account of one of the master-minds of our day.

Mr. Duke devoted his energies to business, amassed a fortune, and became, as his biographer says, a master builder. He would have gone to the top in any vocation to which he had devoted his remarkable energy and organizing ability. His university will, a hundred years from now, no doubt assure him a safe place among the half-dozen really constructive master men of this generation.

James B. Duke believed in work, and never tired at it. He had a woman's reputed intuition in his capacity at seeing straight through a situation, and his intuitive judgment rarely was in error. Success in his opinion was fifty-one percent energy and only forty-nine per cent ability and training, and yet so highly did he value training that he founded a university to train ministers, teachers, engineers and other professional men.

Mr. Duke believed in saving and in investing for profit. His advice to younger men was to save half their income, no matter how small it might be. Saving, he knew, was the foundation of economic independence and of success in business enterprises. He lived hard and saved and invested according to his best judgment. He always felt that he would be a rich man, though born to straitened circumstances, and he was determined to do good with his money. He laid up treasures on earth, but not for himself. That is the way he read Christ's injunction, and undoubtedly he was right.

Mr. Duke had none of the spirit of the gambler in business. He did not play the stock market nor deal in futures. He made millions, but he rendered a service for the profit he took, and at no time in his career was he a parasite on industry. His organizational ability enabled him to enrich himself and his associates, nor did he impoverish those who consumed his products.

I have often heard men speak of James B. Duke as stern, selfish, hard-hearted. They did not understand what he had in mind. He did not give to every enterprise that appealed to him for assistance, else he could not have accumulated the fortune that made Duke University possible, to say nothing of his great benefactions to hospitals, orphanages, rural Churches and veteran ministers of the gospel. His final accounting of his stewardship is his vindication. Mankind's verdict on this master builder must be favorable. Many a poor boy in high school or college reading Mr. Jenkins' book will be inspired to go forward. Another Poor Richard has lived and wrought and enriched our social heritage. He is depicted fairly in this biography. W. A. H.

EXPANDING HORIZONS.

Some years ago, in a Conference address, I had occasion to tell about a man who would not give for Christian education because he believed more in home missions than in colleges. When the home mission secretary called upon him hopefully, he refused to give for that purpose, since the home Church needed the money. When the chairman of the finance committee of his home Church called upon him, he was unable to give because his family needed even more than he could supply. His wife then appealed to him for a convenience in her home that would greatly lighten her labors. He declined to make this investment because, as he said, he needed every dollar he had for himself.

This is no parable. This is oftentimes fact, and though such a man may have his name on the Church book, is he not more a pagan than a Christian? I have known other men who, prior to their entrance into the fellowship of the Church, were hard-hearted and stingy and selfish who have become generous to their families, liberal to their local Church and deeply concerned for the enterprises of the kingdom as represented in Christian colleges, home and foreign missions, orphanages and welfare work, and other calls for assistance in the name and for the sake of Christ.

It is beautiful, too, to see the growth in spirit of these changed men. Their rich and happy experiences are written unmistakably in the radiant expressions of their countenances. When the horizons of life expand it is because the heart has first expanded. When the horizons of life expand, the line of vision is expanded and the interests of life are correspondingly enhanced. Expanding horizons mean expanded vistas of beauty and charm and liveliness in life and character.

The man with a muck-rake has no horizon, but the man whose interests are world-wide, whose horizons have expanded, sees not only the beautiful landscape as it stretches out in every direction around him, but he looks up at the stars and beholds the complete beauty of the handiwork of God in the firmament about as well as on the earth beneath.

Isn't it a pity that so many Christian people, as they think, deny themselves the beauties and the joys and satisfactions of the expanded spiritual horizons? Isn't it a pity that they are limited and narrow in their interests and their concerns for the enterprises of the kingdom?

But thank God for the men and women whose hearts have been stirred, whose countenances have been lifted and whose eyes have been made to behold the expanded horizons of the spiritual realm. They are the light of the world. They are the salt of the earth. They are the messengers of Jesus Christ. They are the evangelists of that coming day when the kingdoms of this world shall have become the kingdom of our Lord and of His Christ. W. A. H.

UNITY CONFERENCE.

By PETER AINSLIE, D. D.

1. We of the Baltimore Conference of the Christian Unity League, holding membership in twenty-five communions and citizenship in eleven States and Canada, recognize the desirability of such freedom in the Church of God as will enable diverse groups to give expression to distinct emphasis in doctrine, worship and operations. We agree, likewise, that geographical, cultural, and racial differences may require diversity in administrative organization.

But we believe that, if the prayer of our Lord is to be fulfilled, the unity of all His disciples must be visibly expressed. Only as the disciples of our Lord are united and share with one another the spiritual insight and experience, which each can contribute, can they fully explore the mind of Christ and understand His will. Only a united Church can evangelize the world. Only as the Church exemplifies the spirit of brotherhood can she effectively promote that spirit throughout the range of human relationships. The flagrant sins against brotherhood, both public and private, which threaten to disrupt the national and international, industrial and social life of our day, contribute a challenge to all the communions of Christendom to come together in an organic unity for the weal of mankind.

While we keep this ultimate aim of a visible unity of all disciples continually in mind and affirm our purpose to labor for it, we recognize that important differences of conviction, particularly as to the nature and authority of the Church, present in these times grave difficulties in the way of its achievement. Nevertheless, we earnestly and persistently seek common understanding and agreement with those who differ from us and urge such communions as already stand on approximately the same ground to press toward the closest possible forms of unity as a step toward the fully inclusive unity for which we hope. It is our conviction that there is a most urgent need that immediate steps should be taken to develop conviction and such forms of organization as will enable these churches to express their fellowship in Christ, which already exists, and to contrive to carry out a common strategy without encroachment upon essential spiritual liberties.

2. The Baltimore Conference of the Christian Unity League desires to express its firm conviction that the World Conference on Faith and Order, held at Lausanne, August 3-21, 1927, marked a great step forward in the progress of Christian unity and that its significance cannot be overestimated. Viewed as an isolated event, it may have seemed to those who did not carefully follow its deliberations to have emphasized the differences obtaining between the various communions of the Church rather than their agreements. Viewed as a step in a long series of events in the history of the movement toward unity, it marked a great step forward. Even as a manifestation of the deep and growing desire for unity and dissatisfaction with the divided condition of Christ's Church, it had marked significance. But it was more than these. It was the first gathering of practically all the Christian communions of the world, except Rome, to discuss the possibility of increasing oneness. Out of it came a new understanding on the part of the different Churches of each other's point of view that will make all future efforts toward unity more effective and more fruitful of events. A study of the reports adopted for presentation to the Churches for study and discussion will reveal an agreement on faith and doctrine, and even upon sacraments and orders, that would have been impossible a generation back.

We, therefore, urge upon the various Churches the careful study of these reports, and we heartily concur in the recommendation of the business committee of the World Conference on Faith and Order that regional conferences be arranged all over the country with the Lausanne reports as the basis of discussion. We also urge that, in the holding of these regional conferences, or any other conferences which the Christian Unity League may hold, women and representatives from the youth movement be given places on the program.

3. The Baltimore conference recognizes that the statement in the doctrinal formulas of the Churches and their ways of government and of worship were largely based upon the results of Biblical interpretation and theories of origins of Christian institutions, as held at the time the statements were prepared; for example, in the first four centuries and in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries.

We are convinced that during the nineteenth and the first quarter of the twentieth century decided progress has been made in the discovery of new sources in the use of sounder and more trustworthy methods of biblical interpretation and in the way of historical study of the origin and valuation of Christian creeds and institutions.

We believe that the cause of Christian unity would be furthered if representative scholars of the different Churches would be appointed on commissions, who would devote themselves to the study of the great issues set forth relating to faith and order of the Churches in the reports of Lausanne, and assemble in accessible forms the accredited results of biblical interpretation and historical study.

We, therefore, recommend that the Baltimore Conference of the Christian Unity League submit this matter to the continuation committee of the World Conference on Faith and Order.

4. We also recognize the great service the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ has rendered American Christianity in giving expression to the practical unity we already have in the channel of co-operative service. Working together is essential to a common understanding, and to further unity. Such an instrument of mutual action has the advantage of potential leadership, which is more than being a channel of intercommunication.

We, therefore, recommend to this organization, as it prepares for its twentieth anniversary, a study of its possibilities to effect a fuller unity of its constituent communions. We submit the suggestion that equal effort should be made by the council to interest various communions in one another as is now made to interest them in common tasks. This might mean the creation of a commission on unity, with an employed secretary, whose ministry would point to a goal beyond the present organization and lead the way.

5. The Baltimore Conference of the Christian Unity League confesses the conviction that the spiritual children of the Western Churches, as they are being organized into Churches in foreign lands, know little and care practically nothing for the differences of Western denominations.

Therefore, this conference urges all Churches everywhere to minimize their denominational differences and to expect their foreign representatives to promote Christian unity in every feasible way. And we desire to express our gratitude to God for the stimulus from the foreign mission fields to Christian unity in the homelands.

6. The Baltimore conference recognizes that the denominational schools are becoming less denominational and that in some instances, particularly on the foreign mission fields, they are becoming interdenominational. We, therefore, urge that all denominational schools will not only bring on their faculties persons of other denominations, which already is being done, but that they will take steps, if need be by the change of their charters, to bring on their boards of trustees persons of other denominations, until gradually the denominational school will be controlled by several denominations instead of by one. By such a method, the whole denominational school system would tend toward a fuller Christian interpretation.

We also recognize the disadvantage in educating young men for the Christian ministry in denominational seminaries apart from other young men who are being educated in seminaries of other denominations; and, therefore, desire to express to those in control of denominational seminaries (1) that they consider the possibility of immediate steps in establishing a course in Christian unity where those of other denominations may speak to their students in the interest of a united Christendom from different angles, and (2) that they consider seriously the possibility of unifying theological seminaries for the educational and spiritual equipment of the young men who are being trained to become ministers of Christ.

It is further recognized that, as a factor in the Church's education for unity, the denominational papers may, to the advantage of this cause and the coming of Christ's kingdom, publish more contributed articles and news items from other denominations, thereby widening the outlook for a larger fellowship and helping to prepare the way for a united Christendom. It is hoped that the denominational press may gradually become interdenominational both in editorship and in ownership.

7. In view of the frequent references in this Conference of the Christian Unity League to the sacraments and intercommunion, we express the conviction that every instance of intercommunion is a convincing testimony to the world of the unity of Christ's Church, and we would express the hope that such testimony be more and more frequently manifested as a recognition of the equality of all Christians before God.

8. In consequence of the urgent need of a Christendom united in brotherly love, we call upon the Churches of the world to follow the example of our Lord in praying for the oneness of His disciples, in order that His gospel may triumph in all nations and among all races. We further urge that prayer, as a factor in bringing the unity of Christendom, be diligently studied as any other factor and that it also be practiced by intercommunion groups until the whole Church be brought in penitence to find the will of our Lord for the unity of His disciples.

The city of Greensboro is at this time enjoying a series of co-operative evangelistic services from February 19th to March 2nd. Three Churches are co-operating—First Christian Church, Dr. C. H. Rowland, pastor; Friends, Rev. Milo S. Hinkle, pastor, and the First Reformed Church, Rev. H. A. Fesperman, pastor. Rev. O. D. Poythress, of South Norfolk, Va., is leading the song service. These evangelistic services are insisting on a friendly fellowship, united service and a joint appeal. From February 19th to the 22nd the services were held in the Christian Church; from February 23rd to the 27th, in the Friends Church, and from February 28th to March 2nd in the Reformed Church. Here is a practical illustration of Christian union in a most vital phase of the Church's life.

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

Archibald Atkinson Turner was born in Nansemond County, Virginia, on June 1, 1862, and died at his home on North Street, Suffolk, Va., December 17, 1927, age 65 years, 6 months, and 16 days.

He was married to Ida Grace Barnes on September 6, 1888, just after the big Suffolk fire that destroyed the entire business part of the town. There was born unto this happy couple ten children—Ruth Rebecca, married Georgh H. Howell, and has two children; Ida Staley, deceased; Doris Mayo, married F. C. Copeland, and has two children; Hope and Carroll, twins, deceased; Floyd A., married Olive Johnson, and has one child; Moses, deceased; Mary Wilson, deceased; Barnes A., married Mabel Jackson; Perry Everett. His companion, five children, and five grandchildren survive him.

Bro. Turner united with the Suffolk Christian Church on December 2, 1877, and remained a faithful member for fifty-one years and five days. He was 14 years, 6 months, and 10 days of age when he joined the Church. For more than fifty years he was a regular attendant at Sunday School and Church services. All of his living children are members of the Suffolk Christian Church. His father and mother were members of the same Church before him. His love for his Church was deep and abiding. He was a man of convictions and loyal to his convictions.

He was a member of the Masonic order and the Knights of Pythias. He was true to these orders and his record in them was characteristic of his simple but sincere life in all of its associations. He was whole-hearted in all relations, and did not hesitate to stand by what he believed to be right, under all circumstances.

He espoused the cause of temperance when saloons were popular and deacons drank without losing their standing as members of the Church. He was really a pioneer in the field of temperance, and never wavered in his attitude on this subject. It was that kind of men that gave this nation prohibition. A little story may not go wrong here. A. B. Covington, who resided on North Street, near Bro. Turner, years ago, and was buried from Union Church, January 31st of this year, entertained a tramp for two nights. The tramp said he wanted work. Bro. Covington told him Mr. Turner might employ him, but would not if he drank. The man went to see Bro. Turner, who asked him if he drank. He said, "No, I am such a temperance man that I will not allow a barber to put bay-rum on my face when he shaves me." Bro. Turner told me that from that day he never used bay-rum, as he would not allow a tramp to be more temperate than he was. When local option and State option, and the nation voted on this subject, Bro. Turner was a successful worker for the cause, because he had lived what he advocated.

His occupation was paper-hanging. He, no doubt, entered more residences, knew more house-keepers, and decorated more homes than any person who ever lived in Suffolk. His reputation was as clean as his life, and he filled a place in the city that remains in the work which he did. His life honored Christ, served not only his family but his city and his generation. He sought no honors, aspired to no conspicuous position in society, but, with his companion, built a Christian home and a Christian character that remains in memory. His children rise up in his praise, and his kindred and friends say, amen. Such men and such members witness for Jesus Christ and help to plant Christianity firmly in society.

W. W. STALEY.

ELON LETTER.

Progressive Richmond.

I hardly knew the First Christian Church of Richmond on Sunday morning last when I found myself on Grove Avenue, at Sheppard Street. I had to look twice to be sure that the beautiful educational building which had been erected since I last saw our Church there was really a building and not a mirage.

But when I had found Dr. Ryan, the pastor, and we had gone through the building from the basement throughout, I was more than pleased with the reality. The new Sunday School building of the Christian Church in Richmond was not constructed to meet the theoretical requirements of experts, but to meet a definite situation; and from the way the Sunday School is growing in interest and efficiency, there is no question but that the garment has been cut to fit, so to speak, and that provision has been made to meet the particular needs of our people there.

One of the most pleasing features of the Sunday School of our Richmond Church is the delightful orchestra with twenty or more pieces which for the opening and closing exercises. A pit in front of the superintendent's platform has been constructed for them, and they fill it to the overflow. Prof. Carr, their director, has the ability to inspire those whom he instructs and to elicit their enthusiasm. The summer school, which is to meet at Elon College in June, would do well to have this orchestra come over for a day—and here's hoping that they may come.

The intermediate class in the Richmond Sunday School deserves special mention. The intermediate class in most Sunday Schools is a graveyard, but in this Sunday School it is the very opposite. It has twenty pupils, and on Sunday twenty of them were present, and for a period of six months there has not been a single absence in this class. It is the most remarkable intermediate class of my acquaintance. The explanation is found in the teacher, Mrs. John T. Kernodle, known during her Elon days as Miss Virgie Beale. Those who know "Miss Virgie" will not be surprised that she is able to hold the interest continuously, even of intermediate boys and girls.

I spent the day with our First Church in Richmond and had the pleasure of speaking at both the morning and evening services, as well as of attending the Sunday School. It was "Educational Day," and the quota of $375 was readily raised. Several of the members told me that they look forward to the time when their children would be through high school and could be at Elon.

The new Sunday School addition to the Church has entailed an outlay of some $50,000, with some money yet to be spent for equipment. This is a very remarkable achievement for the faithful group of worshipers who gather there from week to week. They are enthusiastic for the Church and attend its services with evident satisfaction of mind and heart.

But it is easy to understand when you come to know intimately the spiritual leader who presides over the congregation, nor do I fail to include also the pastor's faithful and efficient life companion. Dr. and Mrs. Ryan will inspire any Church to sacrifice and to go forward. They radiate enthusiasm. Their own sunshiny dispositions and optimistic outlook are a contagion that infects the entire membership. The devotion of their people for them is pleasant to behold.

In the afternoon I had the pleasure, in company with Dr. Ryan, to call to see our venerable brother, J. W. Carlton, who has been so ill recently, but who was able to be seated in front of a window in his residence and to talk with us when we called to see him Sunday afternoon. Bro. Carlton is representative of what we know as the Southern gentleman of the old school—gracious, hospitable, courteous, devout, concerned for his family, his friends and the kingdom of God. It is an inspiration always to be in the presence of such a high-souled Christian gentleman as he, and the brief time we were permitted to spend with him was gone all too fast.

The Southern Christian Convention is to be congratulated upon having chosen Richmond as the place in which to hold its approaching session. The plant is adequate to provide for the public session and the committee work of the Convention, and to care for the serving of meals without the necessity of having to go down-town for lunches and dinners. And a more hospitable congregation cannot be found in the entire Church. The Convention evidently faces what would appear to be a very successful session.

W. A. HARPER.

BETHLEHEM LETTER.

The Paramount Need of the Christian College.

There are about 500,000 students in our American institutions of higher learning; that is to say, out of every 225 people in America, one is engaged in securing a higher education. The importance of safeguarding the religious welfare of these prospective leaders of thought and activity must be apparent.

China may be in the midst of great changes and troubles, but she seems to have an eye to education, nevertheless. There are said to be 250 normal schools in that country, with 28,000 students, and 5,000 of their graduates are now teaching in graded town schools. Three hundred and fifty junior high schools give special attention to equipping teachers for primary country schools.

Some facts are very striking at times, and doubly so when compared or contrasted. This country never had as large a college population, but at the same time its prison population also was never so large, and the latter is growing faster than the former. Of the 5,000 persons daily in the hands of New York police, nearly one-fourth are boys under sixteen. From such come a large proportion of our criminals.

The president of one of the great State universities has said if he could have his way he would have every one of the thousands of students going to his institution spend at least a year or two in one of the smaller Christian colleges before losing himself in the great crowds that throng the modern universities.

The purpose of the Christian college, with its few hundreds, differs from that of the universities, whose students are numbered in tens of thousands. Men and women are or should be educated to enable them to co-operate with the scholars and leaders of the country in the enterprises of the modern social order, and where that order is defective, to make it Christian. But a university, with its ten or twenty separate colleges under its wings, often shows a tendency to value the fruits of education from a materialistic point of view, putting the emphasis on practical and money-making education, as compared with the older forms of intellectual discipline, moral culture, and refinement of life. The small liberal arts college is satisfied if it can fit a student not so much for a job, which is only a part of life, but for life itself. In a word, it is character-building—character after the mind of Christ.

Just as it was half-century ago, the small college is still the backbone of higher education in the United States. Most of our great universities grew out of the small Christian college. The conservation of the best educational and religious traditions by the less pretentious, but not less vital institution promises to bring the small college into greater favor than for some time. This tendency is becoming more pronounced as Christian parents object to certain tendencies in the larger and independent schools.

Our age seems to have more knowledge than education—more data on many things than ability to interpret them. People acquire a certain amount of information on some subject, but instead of "thinking through" it, they seize upon some attractive but superficial idea and view the whole matter from that angle. A scientific profession is simply a kind of exalted trade, the preparation for which in the technical school is often mistaken for an education.

Elon and Bethlehem are our own Christian institutions, and their effectiveness for the establishment of Christian principles throughout the South will depend upon the loyalty of their constituency. They are our colleges. Let us build and support them.

Wadley, Ala.

S. L. BEOUGHIER.

DOVER, DEL.

With the many surprises in gifts during the past five years to People's Christian Church, Dover, Del., that the pastor has announced from outside friends and from the members in appreciation of the loyalty and progressive activity of the membership, perhaps none have come with greater surprise than the one announced at Sunday evening's service—that of the installation of the marvelous auditorium electric Orthophonic, the cost of installation being approximately $10,000, and the further fact that People's Christian Church is the first Church in the world to have such an instrument installed.

The pastor of People's Christian Church, Rev. R. C. Helfenstein, D. D., surprised the entire congregation gathered in the Community Hall Sunday evening to celebrate the eighteenth anniversary of the organization of the Boy Scouts of America, and also the observance of Lincoln's birthday, by having the instrument which was secretly installed during the week, played, unannounced.

The Boy Scout band had rendered a delightful sacred concert, and an interesting program of music and worship had been given. And just as every one was expecting the service to close, the instrument played forth in a perfectly exquisite manner "Adeste Fideles" as sung by the 2,500 male voices of the Associated Glee Clubs of America. The audience was spellbound, wondering whence the beautiful strains of music were coming, as the instrument had been secretly installed during the week by a large number of workmen from the factory, and the apparatus being concealed behind the curtains on the stage of the Community Hall of the Church.

One man expressed himself after hearing the instrument that it sounded like the music of a heavenly chorus. The effect of surprise, of joy and satisfaction was beyond the power of words to describe. Then after the selection had been played, the pastor, Dr. Helfenstein, explained that the reproducing instrument to which they had just listened was the very last word in the science of reproduction. The superb tone qualities of the instrument and its perfect range of volume have to be heard to be believed.

The pastor stated that for the past two years he had hoped and planned to have a reproducing instrument installed in the Community Hall to use in connection with the educational program of the Church, but only recently was he able to decide what kind it should be. Last fall Dr. Helfenstein arranged with a friend to place one of the new instruments in People's Church. This gives the Church a great asset to the already splendid equipment. The instrument also has the attachment of an eight-tube radio.

The pastor announced that it was his plan to have Sunday afternoon programs with the great music masters, interspersed with radio numbers of Christian gatherings. The first program will be given next Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, to which the public is cordially invited. The gift is most sincerely appreciated by People's Church; it being the first Church in the world to have such an instrument makes it a double source of appreciation.

At the service Sunday evening, just before the closing prayer was made by Dr. Helfenstein, he called for a rising vote of thanks and appreciation to the donor for the gift, which was responded to unanimously in an enthusiastic manner. Several of the officials of the Church then requested that Dr. Helfenstein also be given a rising vote of thanks for his part in securing the gift, as it was forcefully pointed out by one of the officials of the Church that it was through the vision of Dr. Helfenstein for greater service to the Church and the community that the idea of having such an instrument was conceived and that enabled the Church to have such installed as a part of its equipment. This new asset to the equipment of People's Church brings the valuation of the building, equipment and grounds up to $260,000.—Delaware State News.

CHRIST CAME TO SAVE THE LOST.

BY MRS. ELLA BRADY.

"For the Son of Man is come to save that which was lost."—Matt. 18:11.

The greatest mission of the Lord Jesus Christ to earth was to save lost mankind. The words of our subject which were spoken by Him reveal this fact as well as other Scriptures. He came according to the will of our Heavenly Father, because He so loved the world that He desired its salvation above every other interest He had in us. We should always love and appreciate John 3:16, which says: "For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life." This precious verse is enough to touch the hardest heart, it seems to me, and it is enough to keep every heart tender. It declares the love God had for the world; and realizing that we are a part of the world, it should thrill our very soul. God proved His love for us through the sacrifice of His dearly beloved and only begotten Son on the cruel cross of Calvary. To be lost is a most fearful thing. Few, if any, who are fully awake are aware of the woefulness of the lost condition of a human soul. The business of the enemy of our souls and lives is to benumb our consciousness and sense and lull us to sleep in sin so we shall not become alarmed about ourselves and flee to Jesus Christ for salvation. Consequently, he is rocking the world in the cradle of "carnal security," endeavoring all the time to dull the sense to the exceeding sinfulness of sin and the consequences that follow. Paul tells us, "The wages of sin is death" (Rom. 6:23). James also tells us, "Sin, when it is finished, bringeth forth death" (James 1:15). Such statements are enough to awaken and arouse every sinner to a sense of his lost condition, causing him to flee to the feet of Jesus, repenting of all his sins with a deep and godly sorrow that he may find mercy, pardon and redemption. Sinners, do not neglect your soul, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness" (Matt. 6:33). "What shall it profit any one if he gain the whole world" and go into the presence of God unprepared and lost? This is a time when men are struggling and clamoring for money and riches, and the worldliness of the world, such as we have never seen. But how much is it all worth to a soul when he faces death and judgment? If a man could gain the world he could not pay his way into heaven with it. If he comes before God he will be turned away unless his sins are pardoned and his soul cleansed through the blood of Jesus Christ. A rich man here will be a pauper at the judgment if he is without the love and grace of God in his heart and soul. A pauper here, so far as the wealth of the world is concerned, will be rich in heavenly things if he goes up to meet God in the triumphs of faith and salvation. He can shout with the heavenly host forever, "praising Father, Son and Holy Ghost."

Jesus could have set up an earthly kingdom in all probability and ascended the throne as the mightiest Monarch of all the world, to the putting down of all other kingdoms and powers. This was really what Jews wanted Him to do, and because He didn't they rejected Him. "He came to His own and His own received Him not" (John 1:11). Doubtless, He could have become a champion earthly ruler, with the praise of men heaped on Him and having all the luxuries the world could afford, but not so. Such would have defeated the plan of redemption. He chose the humble way. He was meek and lowly. He chose to suffer at the hands of men in order to save them, rather than have the applause of men and let them die in sin. He was a "Man of sorrow." He was afflicted, He suffered, He wept, He died, all for our sake. "As many as received him, to them gave He power to become the sons of God, even to them that believed on His name" (John 1:12).

Reader, have you accepted Him? If not, do so today; don't delay any longer; repent now. He is still tenderly saying, "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest" (Matt. 11:28). Hear Him now; come and be saved. He loves you, and came all the way from heaven and died on Calvary that you might be saved. If He is knocking at the door of your heart, soul and life, O let Him come in! Don't turn the Saviour away. "The Son of man is come to save that which is lost."

LOOKING FORWARD.

Yes, we are looking forward to our missionary rallies which will begin the first Sunday in April. But the great question is, are we ready? Have we district leaders done our part in visiting Churches and societies? Have we explained to them the purpose of the rallies? Have we been helping them to get better organized? Have we told them we were depending on them for a good report and a large delegation? And have we been working and praying as we should? If so, then we are ready and our rallies will be a success. I trust that we district leaders realize the responsibility that rests on us in behalf of the missionary work and, too, I feel that we young people of the Alabama Conference have a golden opportunity before us for doing a work that is worth while.

The Master has need of us. We can't afford to waste our time in idleness. So let's line up our forces and help fight the battle of the great Christian warfare. Let's hear the call of God to His Church to pray: "Ask of me and I will give thee the nations for thine inheritance and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possessions." Young comrades, when we hear and answer this call we can then look forward, feeling and knowing that our missionary work in the Alabama Conference has been a success, because we have heard the call and obeyed. RUBY RAE ORR,

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Field Secretary.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

The pastors of the Christian denomination will please note the following minutes:

"Meeting of executive committee of Mission Board of Southern Christian Convention, held at the residence of Mrs. W. J. Lee, Nansemond County, on Saturday, January 21, 1928, at 3 o'clock P. M. Present: J. E. West, J. M. Darden, John A. Williams, Mrs. M. L. Bryant, and Dr. J. O. Atkinson, secretary of the board.

"Object of the meeting: To provide for missionary offering and render assistance to Dr. J. O. Atkinson, secretary, so that he would feel free to take vacation granted by the board. Tentative call on each local Church was made for one-sixth of pastor's salary. This was to be the minimum request.

"Mr. J. M. Darden and Mrs. M. L. Bryant were appointed a committee to present plan to the next Conference of Eastern Virginia Ministers, and Dr. G. O. Lankford and Dr. C. H. Rowland were appointed a committee to present the plan to the Conference of N. C. Ministers."

"The Ministers' Association of the Eastern Virginia Conference, in session in Norfolk, Va., on February 20, 1928, approved the matter of the special drive for missions presented by Mr. J. M. Darden and Mrs. M. L. Bryant in trying to raise at the various Churches in the Conference not less than one-sixth of the pastor's salary for missions and each pastor pledged his support.

"A motion was made and carried that all pastors who had services on the first Sunday in March were to preach a special missionary sermon. The following pastors and workers have pledged to give their services free to go to the various Churches to assist the local pastors when called upon: Dr. W. W. Staley, Rev. O. D. Poythress, Rev. H. C. Caveness, Rev. J. G. Truitt, Mr. J. M. Darden, Mrs. M. L. Bryant, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Leonard Davis."

We realize the great work and the untiring efforts of our beloved, Dr. J. O. Atkinson, secretary and treasurer of our Mission Board, and knowing that his physical condition will not permit him to go out in the field at the present time, we now call upon every pastor of our denomination to personally represent the cause of missions.

The meeting of the Ministers' Association on the 20th was one of the most enthusiastic meetings I ever attended, and I have faith in our pastors and our denomination that they will not let missions lie because our beloved secretary is not able to get out in the field.

Missions have done great things for our denomination, not only in this country, but in the foreign countries. I could mention many of these great things, but many of you are so familiar with them it is not necessary.

I feel that there has never been a time that each one of us was called upon more than now to go out and do personal work to keep alive missions, whose foundation has been so well established by our secretary, and I appeal to each pastor to work for this great cause. Let us prove our love and appreciation of the great work of Dr. Atkinson. This is a great work and for a great cause—the advancement of our denomination and the kingdom on earth. If we will get this in our hearts there can be nothing but success ahead of us.

Remember, I am with you in this great work. Command me and I will give you my best. If any of you want any one to go to your Church to assist you in this campaign, please advise me and some one of those who have offered their services will gladly go.

Now, let us all go into this work whole-heartedly and we will reach the goal.

J. M. DARDEN,
Acting Secretary.

FIVE REASONS.

BY DR. W. W. STALEY.

("Why I Like the Christian Church Best," an address given at the Ministerial Association of the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference on February 20th, and published at the association's request.—Editor.)

1. Because it is scriptural in origin, liberal in principles, Christian in spirit and history. The Antioch Church was the first Church composed of Jews and Gentiles, and the disciples there were first called Christians, and, as I believe, by divine inspiration. That name really points to the unity of all believers.

2. Because it contains no element of sectarianism or human pride. Its numbers are small, its wealth is limited, its social prestige is Jesus-like, and its membership is humble and true to Christ. Humility is a Christian grace, and Jesus lived His life and wrought His work among the lowly, but planted the seeds of sincerity, faith, and patience among men. And the Christian Church seems to me to follow Him.

3. Because the Christian Church grants liberty without license, liberty in thought with proof of character. It is democratic in its position, spiritual in its relations, and strong in its convictions. Individuality marks its way of life, tolerant toward others, and willing to co-operate in all good work with all good men and women. It does not claim to be better than others, but it does claim the right of private judgment in matters of religion.

4. Because it insinuates its Principles into other denominations, and causes them to feel the necessity for unity, and this grows into independent steps toward an answer of the prayer of Jesus, "that they all may be one; as Thou, Father, art in me, and I in Thee, that they also may be one in us: that the world may believe that Thou hast sent me" (John 17:21). Other denominations recognize the position of the Christian Church, but do not admit it to others or to the Christian Church.

5. Because it suggests an open door to Christian unity. In all of its history it has stood for unity. It has helped to open this door through Christian Endeavor, co-education, Christian journalism, Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, and its friendliness toward all Christian movements. It is in harmony with Protestantism in its work of evangelism, missions, education, charity, and benevolent institutions. It has more heart than head, more faith than money, more love than numbers, more hope than success, more influence than reputation, and more power than is yet known.

PORTO RICO LETTER.

Our young people's work is progressing nicely. Weekly I visit our different Churches and societies, and I always return to Ponce with new hope and inspiration for our work.

Last week I had the privilege to attend the Temperance Union conference, which was held at San Juan for three days. The spirit of brotherly and sisterly love and co-operation which I found among the different delegations was a great encouragement for the increase of wholesome citizens in America and its outlying possessions. These people are waking up from this sleep of ignorance about the destruction of liquor, and becoming stronger in their faith toward the W. C. T. U., which is doing a wonderful work within the different parts of the country. At the conference we had the privilege to listen to wonderful and forceful speakers of the island, which created a new inspiration and life in the mind and body of the different delegations.

There are many of our Americans who are great stumbling-stones to our Porto Rican friends, religiously, morally and socially. However, I feel sure that the banners of the Christian folks will march victoriously through all these conflicts by the help of our Father.

I enjoyed the conference sessions to the fullest, and had the opportunity to make many friends among our Americans who are missionaries in the different parts of the island. I also was happy to find a friend of my father's, who is the Y. M. C. A. secretary at San Juan. I was entertained at his beautiful home. I also learned that he was a worker under my home-town Y. M. C. A. for years in India. All these interesting and pleasant conversations and meetings with friends made my trip almost perfect.

At every gathering I find some of my family's friends or some of my own which I had met some time during my college or teaching periods. Our Ponce Church is working under a systematic program. Our Christian Endeavor is doing nicely, the young people are drawing closer to the Church and appreciating her value. Our little folks' group, which we call Sunbeams, are doing fine. I work with them every Saturday afternoon. We enjoy the songs, games, Bible stories, and the hand-work.

Last week I spent one full day at our country work at Arris and Fortunne, and visited twenty-one families, where I was almost worshiped by our poor families as I gave them some necessary clothing sent by our people in the States. Every article was greatly appreciated. It added a ray of sunshine on the dirty but pretty faces of the little folks as well as the big folks. We held fourteen services, partly in English and partly in Spanish. I sincerely hope that many of our missionary societies will help by sending clothing. We would appreciate your help, as there is always a need for such.

I am also grateful to Mr. and Mrs. Morton for their help in making it possible for me to enjoy an American home life. They are always helping me to start my work. Kindly remember us in your prayers.

VICTORIA E. ADAMS.

A RADIO "S O S."

A few nights ago I lay in bed listening in over radio to a banquet program in one of the large hotels in New York City. The city officials and other dignitaries were entertaining President Cosgrove of the Irish Free State. Even over radio the spirit of the occasion could be felt. It was one of good will, and everybody was happy.

Scintillations of Irish wit prevailed. Typical Americans were anxious to show to a foreign visitor of note what a real American welcome is like. The toastmaster had announced the preliminaries and had introduced the first speaker, an Irish-American minister, who was speaking on "What the World Owes to the Irish." He was hitting a responsive chord, and what he was saying was being well received. Suddenly and without a word of warning, the announcer broke in: "Beg pardon, but Station WJZ is signing off for an 'S O

S.'” Instantly practically every radio station on the Atlantic coast went dead. The papers next morning told the story. A ship was aground off the Jersey coast. Out on the air, through the darkness and storm of the night, the call of “save our ship” was coming. Human life was in danger. The nationality of the ship was not a consideration. It was an “S O S” call, and that was sufficient. Indeed, of sufficient importance to make even the entertainment of a foreign diplomat of no consequence, so far as the absent public was concerned.

That same evening before retiring I had watched one of Uncle Sam's giant airships, with several airplanes with brilliant flares, searching the waters of Hampton Roads for a boy that had been lost. A lad in his teens had left his home in Hampton, telling his mother he was going out to shoot ducks. He has never yet returned, and what became of him remains a mystery. The social or financial standing of the lad's parents was not a consideration when the report became circulated that he was missing. Hundreds volunteered their services, expensive ships left their regular duties and joined in the search. The resources of the government were placed at the disposal of the stricken family and friends. Airplanes and dirigibles scanned the waters of Hampton Roads, even out to sea. The loss of money and time was not thought of. Radio broadcasted the news. Letters of cheer and comfort from everywhere came to the grief-stricken mother. A bright boy with a life before him was lost—and that was sufficient to arouse a whole city, a community, and part of a nation to action.

Incidents like these touch a responsive cord in the human heart. Whether it is a great ship driven ashore on a stormy night or a mere lad battling with the winds in a storm-tossed row-boat makes no difference if life is at stake. But if it be a human soul adrift upon the ocean of time—that's different. We're too busy, business calls us elsewhere, and we haven't the time. We excuse ourselves with the argument that that is the duty of the minister and the mission worker. About us everywhere are souls adrift upon the ocean of life, eventually to become derelicts in the maelstrom of sin. Just how far are we as members of the Church concerned? Whose business is it, anyway?

S. M. SMITH.

WHAT DO WE CALL HIM?

BY REV. J. LEE JOHNSON.

We love that old song, “Take the Name of Jesus with You”; also this of later date, “Jesus, Jesus, Sweetest Name I Know.” These surely will never grow old. Yet in our common use of His name do we not handle it somewhat unbecomingly, or, better, do we handle it “as becometh saints?” Let's make His word our judge. Haven't we got into the habit of saying, Jesus this, Jesus that, and Jesus the other? Not only when speaking of Him, but when speaking to Him do we not address Him, “Jesus.” Let's examine the word a bit.

In John 13:13, we read: “Ye call me Teacher and Lord; ye say well, for so I am.” Should we not heed this injunction which fell from His lips? Imagine Him saying, “Ye call me Jesus: ye say well.” When He would ride into Jerusalem, He sent His disciples after a colt; and should any one ask why they loosed him, they were told to say, “The Lord hath need of him.” Again imagine Him saying to His disciples, “Say, Jesus hath need of him.” No, He never taught His disciples to so use His name, and they never so used it. Did they follow His injunction to call Him Lord? Let the Scripture speak, looking at a few verses here and there. When Peter saw Him walking on the water, he said, “Lord, if it be Thou,” etc. Again, “I am a sinful man, O Lord”; and again, “Lord, Thou knowest all things,” etc. “Thomas saith unto Him, Lord, we know not whither Thou goest,” etc. Again he said, “My Lord and my God.” John said, “It is the Lord.” At the last Passover, our Lord said, “One of you shall betray me”; then “began every one of them to say unto Him, Lord, is it I?”

These quotations could be multiplied to show that the apostles never once addressed Him “Jesus,” but in keeping with His own injunction called Him Lord.

Now we would notice that Judas, who “is a devil” (demon), never called Him Lord, yet seems to have respected Him to that extent that he never addressed Him as Jesus. In John 14:22 we read, “Judas saith unto Him, not Iscariot, Lord.” Note how careful the Spirit is to inform us that this Judas who called Him Lord was not the one that betrayed Him; for mark well the Scripture and its marvelous accuracy, “No man can say that Jesus is the Lord but by the Holy Spirit” (1 Cor. 12:3). Judas Iscariot “having not the Spirit,” could not call Him Lord. When at the last Passover table “every one began to say, Lord, is it I?” could Judas help using the same words? But he did help it, and this demon-possessed man said, “Rabbi, is it I?”

Now, please note what the enemies of our Lord were wont to call Him. “And hearing the multitude pass by, he asked what it meant, and they (the multitude) told him that Jesus of Nazareth passeth by.” A demon-possessed man said, “What have I to do with Thee, Jesus, Son of the Most High God?” In the synagogue at Capernaum, a demon cried out, “What have I to do with Thee, Thou Jesus of Nazareth?” His enemies almost always called Him Jesus, but never Lord.

But some may call to mind Matt. 1:21, “Thou shalt call His name Jesus.” This is clearly His earthly name, His name in humiliation; and note it is distinctly said, “for He shall save His people from their sins.” But once we have come to a realization of our acceptance through Him, shall we then call Him Jesus? Nay, verily. He, thank God, becomes our adorable Lord. This is very clear from Acts 2:36, when the inspired apostle says: “Therefore (in view of Christ's death, resurrection, and ascension), let all the house of Israel know assuredly that God hath made that (not this) same Jesus, whom ye crucified, both Lord and Christ.” Note carefully “that same Jesus” is now “Lord and Christ.”

But why, then, do we have throughout the New Testament the apostles using the word Jesus so frequently? Ah! that is one of the wonderful marks of Divine inspiration; that the Holy Spirit is really the Speaker, for “all Scripture is God-breathed.” To illustrate, if I were to meet the honored governor of North Carolina on the street, would it be becoming in me to say, “Good morning, Augus? Surely not, but ascribing honor due him, I would say, “Good morning, Governor.” But on the other hand, would it be anything of impropriety should Mrs. McLean say, “Good morning, Augus?” Of course not, and the difference is in equality of relationship. So, while it is not becoming in us to speak of our Lord, who occupies His high, priestly office, as Jesus, it is perfectly natural that the Holy Spirit, one with Him, should so address Him. I say again, what proof of inspiration?

Let me point to one Scripture that bears out this thought. I refer to Phil. 2:10-11, where the Spirit, speaking of His humiliation and exaltation, says: “That at the name of Jesus every knee should bow . . . and every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord to the glory of God the Father.” Note the Spirit, by the apostle, says, “At the name of Jesus,” but declares that “every tongue” should confess Him Lord.

Beloved, let us so confess Him always, remembering that He said, “Ye call me Lord: ye say well, for so I am.” Let us, who are so unworthy, be careful how we use “that worthy name,” and “give unto the Lord the glory due unto His name.”

Fuquay Springs, N. C.

RECOMMENDED BOOKS

The following educational helps and books have been recommended by Dr. W. P. Minton, Secretary of Foreign Missionary Department, and Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Mission Secretary, S. C. C. Acting upon the advice and recommendation of these two recognized and earnest missionary workers, The Christian Publishing Association has stocked the following books, which are moderately priced and can be supplied on receipt of order:

FOREIGN MISSIONARY BOOKS

- New Paths for Old Purposes—By Margaret E. Burton. In cloth, $1.00; paper $.60
- The Nursery Series—Ah Fu (a Chinese river boy), Kembo (a little girl of Africa), The Three Camels (a story of India), Asa (a little Boy of Nazareth), board backs, each $.60
- Our Japanese Friend—By Ruth Isabel Seabury, in cloth only $.75
- Young Japan—By Mabel Gardner Kerschner, in paper, each $.40
- A Straight Way Toward Tomorrow—By Mary Schaeffler Platt, cloth, 75c; paper $.50
- “Straight Way Towards Tomorrow” has been prepared especially for Missionary Societies.

HOME MISSIONARY BOOKS

- The Adventure of the Church—By Samuel McCrear Cavert, cloth, $1; paper $.60
- Indian Playmates of Navajo Land—By Ethel M. Baader, cloth $.75
- The Better American Series—Junior Home Mission Courses, cloth $.75
- The Story of Missions—By Edwin E. White, cloth, $75; paper $.50
- Please Stand By—By Margaret Applegarth, in cloth, 75c; paper $.50
- Nine Home Mission Stories—For teachers to tell Primary pupils, paper $.25
- The Upward Climb—By Sarah Estella Haskin, in cloth only, each $.75
- In the Vanguard of a Race—By Mrs. L. H. Hammond, in cloth, $1.00; paper $.75

A SERIES OF SIX BIG FOREIGN MISSION BOOKS

- China, Japan, India, Africa, Near East, and Latin-America—Per set in cloth, $6.00; paper, $4.00; cloth, $1.25; paper $.75

ANY OF THE ABOVE OR OTHERS MAY BE SECURED FROM

All books sent postpaid.

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

INTERNATIONAL UNIFORM SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE.

Lesson X—March 4, 1928.

JESUS AND THE TWELVE.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to the whole creation."—Mark 16:15.

LESSON: Mark 1:16-30; 2:13, 14; 3:13-19; 6:7-13, 30.

DEVOTIONAL READING: Rom. 12:1-8.

The number twelve has but little significance in itself, but when it is capitalized and "the" is put before it, it immediately becomes immortal. The twelve—what a wealth of association and inspiration those two words beget within the heart of Christians in all lands and in all times. The lesson today is about Jesus and the twelve, their call, their training, their mission, their ministry. Dr. Bruce has written an entire book—it is a most helpful book, too—on "The Training of the Twelve," so there is no possibility of treating the subject fully in one lesson. Certain interesting facts can be set forth, however, which have a practical application to our lives.

"And calleth unto Him whom He would." Jesus called men—red-blooded, out-of-door men, men of vigor and of enthusiasm. He called busy men, calling them away from the tasks of their every-day livelihood, and promising them new vocations in spirit if not in actual practice. "Come ye after me, and I will make you to become fishers of men," He said to those who were already fishers. He called men of varied and even of sharply contrasting temperaments. Peter, quick-tempered and quick-spoken, but loyal and enthusiastic and whole-hearted; James and John, sons of thunder, fiery; Philip and Andrew, quiet, thinking, sound; Matthew, a business man; Thomas, rather sober, and slow to believe, but loyal at all costs, and so on down the list. One of the wonders of all time is the fact that Jesus could take these men of such varied temperaments and outlooks and handle them and use them. We call Him Master, and we do well, for such He is indeed. Furthermore, Jesus called men to personal allegiance to Him. He did not ask them what they believed, at least not at first; He simply asked them to follow Him. Here is the heart of Christian discipleship.

Why did Jesus call the twelve? There are several answers. "He appointed them, that they might be with Him. He wanted companionship and friendship. It was going to help tremendously to have a small group with Him in the work to which He was giving Himself. Furthermore, He wanted them to be with Him so that He might train them. He saw that it was going to be impossible for Him to succeed in His short ministry, or to succeed alone. He, therefore, got together this little band and trained them and schooled them in the things that they ought to know, and shared with them His fellowship and imparted to them the inspiration which came from that fellowship. He also called them "that He might send them forth to preach. They were to come to Him and to learn of Him, that they might go for Him. They were to be the channels through which the water of life which He gave so freely was to reach the dry and thirsty hearts of humanity. Freely they were to receive, freely they were to give. Today, as always, Jesus gives to us that we may give to others. He also called them, that "they might have authority to cast out demons." Vested in these men of humble spirit and of limited education in the technical sense, there was that spirit and authority which would cast out of the lives of men and of society those evil forces and powers that mar character and hinder the kingdom of God. And today as then, those who follow the Master and have His spirit have a power that often they know not of, a power that breaks down the strongholds of evil and wrong.

"And He called unto Him the twelve, and began to send them forth by two and two; and He gave them authority over unclean spirits." There was wisdom in the Master's policy of sending them out two by two. There is increased confidence and strength and power of achievement in such effort.

He sent them out on a venture of faith. They were to take nothing for their journey. This does not mean that ministers or Christian workers should not be prudent and fore-sighted. In this particular case, the men were to make a hurried evangelistic tour of Galilee. The Master was using the old, old principle that the way to learn to do is by doing. They were fledglings, and He was teaching them to learn to fly, to use their wings. The provision which God would make for them on this journey would deepen and confirm their faith.

He sent them out to cast out demons, to heal the sick, and to preach that men would repent. They were to minister to those who were sick for the gospel has a message and a ministry to the body as well as to the spirit. They were to drive out the evil spirits that find embodiment in the hearts of men. They were to declare the good news of the gospel and to proclaim that men should repent.

It is quite likely that they went with much fear and with many misgivings, but they went. It is also likely that they made some mistakes, but they kept on. And because they were faithful in that which the Master had committed unto them, He committed more unto them, and it was these who began and who wrought so well in that movement which "has turned the world upside-down."

We cannot be of the original twelve, but we can be like them in that we can spend time with the Master and learn of Him, and then having learned of Him and having received power from Him, we can go out and cast out the evil spirits in the world, bring help to those who are sick and weak, and proclaim the good news of the Father's love and the Saviour's redeeming power.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Sunday, March 11, 1928.

TOPIC: "How Can I Help Others to Follow Jesus?"—1 Pet. 3:8-16.

Some Bible Hints.

The quality of our life and character is the best argument for Christianity and leads people to Jesus (v. 8).

People observe how we meet adverse circumstances, and if our faith enables us to act in a big way they are drawn to Christ (v. 9).

With our tongues we can either lead people to or drive them away from Christ. Our words are important (v. 10).

If we have the meekness and gentleness of Jesus, people will feel the influence of a divine spirit in us and want to know about it (v. 15).

Suggestive Thoughts.

It is only as we ourselves follow Jesus that we can draw others to Him. We are like an open book which the world reads.

Paul believed in intercessory prayer. He prayed for others, asked prayer for himself. To be a soul-winner we must learn to pray for those we seek to win.

We can help others to follow Jesus by helping them to understand Him better. That means that we ourselves first understand Him—and this is a big task. But it can be done.

In writing to friends, we may tactfully speak of divine things, of spiritual blessing, of strength given in weakness, and so forth. People are interested, more than we think.

A Few Illustrations.

We cannot shine unless we are luminous. A sun without sunbeams might argue without effect about light until doomsday. Shine! Seek Christ in the heart.

The man who sits on the top of the steeple and thinks he will lead people to follow Christ is mistaken. We must get down among men, as Jesus Himself did, to help them.

A lawyer who does not know the law is useless in a law court, and a Christian who knows little or nothing about Christ cannot be very helpful to anybody. We need to study as well as follow Jesus.

A street car without electric current is helpless enough, and so is a Christian who is not enbued with the Spirit. Power to win souls is got in silent communion with God.

To Think About.

Why should we be anxious to help others to follow Christ?

How have others helped us to follow Jesus?

How did Paul help men to follow Christ?

YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONGRESS.

The first meeting of the Western North Carolina Young People's Congress was held at the Pleasant Hill Church on Saturday and Sunday, April 2-3, 1927. The spirit of the meeting was so good, the hospitality of the Pleasant Hill folks so fine, and the program so splendid, that those present voted to continue the work and elected the following officers: president, Julia Woodson; vice-president, E. H. Thompson; secretary-treasurer, Lizzie Lawrence Farlow; Dr. G. O. Lankford, Mrs. I. H. Faust, and J. H. Harden, counselors.

The congress was divided into four districts, with the hope that the local Churches could be more effectively reached and all the Churches brought in touch with the work. Rallies were held in each district in November at the following places: Ether, Ramseur, Hanks Chapel and Liberty. At Ether, Nannie Bell Allen was elected president of the district; at Hanks Chapel, Rowland Farrell was elected president; and Dwight Lankford, president at the Liberty meeting.

The second congress meeting was held at the Seagrove Christian Church on Saturday and Sunday, December 10-11th. For several reasons the attendance was not as large as had been expected, but those present were enthusiastic over the meeting and entered heartily into the program. At each session, a two-minute speech on the Elon Chautauqua was made and a resolution was passed at the last session urging each Church of the Conference to send at least one delegate to the 1928 session. Let us hope that every Church in the Conference will respond.

Geo. D. Colclough, Elon Alumni secretary, met the high school students present for a conference, and Dean A. L. Hook gave an illustrated lecture on the college at the Saturday night meeting. The Sunday morning session was presided over by E. A. McPherson, a member of the Burlington Church and a student at Elon College, and opened with a worship service conducted by Miss Essie Mae Cotten. Dean Hook taught the class of boys at the regular Sunday School hour, using the theme, "What Shall I Do with My Life?" and Miss Cotten and Miss Coghill taught the girls' class, using the same subject. After a talk by Galen Elliott on "The Christian Endeavor Society at Work," Dr. C. H. Rowland delivered an address on "Young People and the Church."

During the Sunday afternoon session, which was presided over by Geo. T. Gunter, the following officers were elected: E. H. Thompson, Pleasant Hill, president; E. A. McPherson, Burlington, vice-president; Lizzie Lawrence Farlow, High Point, secretary-treasurer; Pauline Scott, Ramseur, assistant secretary-treasurer; counselors: Dr. G. O. Lankford, Burlington; Mrs. I. H. Faust, Ramseur, and Dr. M. E. Street, Glendon.

It was voted to hold annual meetings of the congress on the second Saturday and Sunday in October. Rev. J. C. Cummings closed the session with a sermon. Such meetings as these should mean more interest in kingdom work and more people actively engaged in it.

PATTIE COGHILL,
Field Worker.

BIBLE STUDY.

BY MRS. M. S. RICHARDS.

Let us consider this subject from the angle of its effect on the mental, moral, and spiritual development of individuals.

A woman widowed during the War Between the States, and living in that part of Virginia where property was almost wholly destroyed, was left in practically destitute circumstances with four children to rear. She soon learned to rely on one son more than any one else. This boy was always dependable and always bright, even in the dark days. The family looked back later to a time when the mother had just cornmeal enough to bake in one large griddle cake and divide between her four children for breakfast. This boy was bright and cheery and usually managed to do some odd job for his neighbors that would yield the family another meal or two.

The mother of this family was a Christian. She loved books and was a great reader. The Book of books had a prominent place in her home and in her life, and so also in the lives of her children.

The boy grew older. So pressing was the need of money in this poor home that, though his sisters attended the village school regularly, the boy felt he could spare but little time from work. Nine months was all the school life he knew. For three years he attended the village school for three months each year—the three cold, winter months of each year.

He grew to manhood; he married. He had a family of children. All of his children have memories of a certain room in his home where he sat at his desk, with an open Bible before him. He would arise early before the rest of the family were astir and go to this room to read and to pray alone. It was in this room the family met often for family prayer. He did not seem an uneducated man to his family. This man of nine months' schooling was the superintendent of the Sunday School his family attended, and quite a leader in Church work. Liberal-minded and full of interest in his fellow-men, this man of nine months' schooling could speak well and interestingly before an audience of people. His English was, as a rule, faultless, and the wording of his petitions beautiful when in prayer to his Heavenly Father. Now, why?

I would unhesitatingly say because of his daily association with the most beautiful English there is—the King James Version of the Bible. I would add that for this reason he loved his fellow-men; for the same reason he had an abiding desire to see others made new beings in Christ, and was instrumental in bringing many to a saving knowledge of their Saviour. This man, because of his Bible study, was morally clean, strong, good, mentally alert, and broad-minded, spiritually a leader in his Church. Of him his pastor said when he conducted his funeral service, "Know ye not that there is a prince and a great man fallen this day in Israel?"

A young woman had a Bible class to teach. It was a class of women. They challenged her to Bible study as nothing else would have done.

Many a week would have gone by with but little or no real study of God's Word had she not felt forced to prepare an acceptable lesson for her class of women. Many were her days of weakness, once almost turning away from her task because of her feeling of unworthiness and failure and a sense of sin or lack of spiritual development

(Continued on Page 14.)

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Minion Bold-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 7-8x7 Inches, and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

2152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.75

India Paper Edition, Size 4 7-8x7 Inches, 1 1-10 Inches Thick.

2152X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$6.00

Bourgeois Type, Size 5 3-8x8 Inches, and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

2167—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.00

2172—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.50

2172A—Same as above, with Apocrypha.....$5.00

2173—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges.....$6.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3-4x3-8 inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3 3-4x3 3-8 Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps.....$2.50

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations. Special book for Sunday Schools.....95c

Minion Type, Pocket Size, 4x6 Inches, 1 1-2 Inches Thick.

With 32 full-colored illustrations; also 25 outline maps through the text and 12 colored maps.

133—Bound in cloth, round corners, red edges, title stamped on side in pure gold.....$1.60

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 15-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.00

Minion Black-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 3-4x7 Inches, 1 1-2 Inches Thick.

Printed from clear, large, black-face type, 32 full-page illustrations in sepia and colors, 4,000 Questions and Answers, Harmony of the Gospels, How to Study the Sunday School Lesson, 25 outline Maps, 12 full-page colored Maps.

4152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold.....$3.25

AMERICAN STANDARD VERSION. TEXT BIBLES.

Printed from Easy-Reading Type, on Good Bible Paper, for Sunday School and Church Use.

Minion Type, Size 4x6 Inches, 1 1-2 Inches Thick, 25 Outline Maps, Bound in Black.

101—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, title stamped on back in pure gold...$1.10

112—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title on back in pure gold.....$2.75

India Paper Edition, Only 7/8-Inch Thick.

112X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.75

Reference and Text Bibles also in minion, briefer, bourgeois, long primer, pica and English type.

Thumb index cut on edge, 50c extra; name printed on any Bible in gold, 40c extra; extra wording, 40c per line.

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Briefer Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5 3-8x8 1-2 Inches and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With concise Bible dictionary, combined concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.75

RED LETTER EDITION

With all the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands, title stamped on side and back in pure gold.....$3.25

Any of the above Bibles sent post paid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 E. Broad St., - - - Richmond, Virginia.

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY REV. H. E. ROUNTREE,
One of Our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"Call upon me, and I will answer thee, and shew thee great and mighty things, which thou knowest not."—Jeremiah 33:3.

MONDAY.

GOD'S CARE FOR YOU.

"Are not two sparrows sold for a farthing? And one of them shall not fall on the ground without your Father . . . But the hairs of your head are all numbered . . . Fear ye not, therefore, ye are of more value than many sparrows."—Matt. 10:29-31.

How can God care for us so personally? Answer: How does a librarian know the library? To him every book of the many thousands there has a special association. He knows them by name, author and contents. The more he knows, the less he sees the books as a whole. Does not God know us infinitely better than a librarian knows his books?

How does an engineer know his engine? The average man sees just the enormous mass of machinery, but the engineer knows every part of it—screw, lever, piston, valve. The more he knows about the engine, the less he sees it in bulk and the more he sees and cares for every minute part. Is not God infinitely more acquainted with His universe and cares? Ignorance sees the mass; knowledge sees the detail and cares the more. It is this that God cares.

Prayer.—Our Father, Thou who knowest the stars, who numberest the hairs of our head, who watchest the sparrows fall, we believe that it is Thy will that none of us should perish. We would not perish, Lord, and we dedicate our lives to Thee this day wholly to Thy care. Amen.

TUESDAY.

LOVE INCLUDES THE PARTICULARS.

"Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."—Let. 19:18.

"If I (the Lord) have washed thy feet, ye also ought to wash one another's feet."—Jno. 13:14.

God has a purpose for the universe and a purpose for us. We did not just happen. One has said if we just happened, "God is a living seamstress, sewing without a thread. The universe and the centuries are the cloth, but there is no thread to bind them."

We are God's workmen. We are co-laborers with Him. Can this be so without His love? And if it is so important to Him that He has given us an example of His love expressed in so small a thing as the washing of feet, is it not true that we must know that He cares and wishes us to do likewise? Can a father love his family without loving each one in particular and wishing that each would obey his will? Is not God infinitely more loving and careful about the little things?

Prayer.—Our Father, do away with our doubts. We enthrone the vitality of prayer and now dedicate our lives to Thee. As we go about our business, increase the consciousness that we are a part of Thy great plans. Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

NATURALNESS OF PRAYER.

"Oh, Thou that hearest prayer, unto Thee shall all flesh come."—Psa. 65:2.

You may shut up the fountain of prayer in your life and think it is gone, but it is like the waters of an artesian well, walled up with modern concrete, the water still seeks through the overflows.

In the crisis of one's life, man calls upon God. The streams of nature long held back and flowing underground of the life prove stronger than the artifice of man, and those God-given impulses break out, and man prays. A soldier coming from battle said, "I have never prayed before, but I prayed then. I guess everybody prayed. (Read Psalm 107:23-28.)

Prayer.—Our Father, who art in heaven, and who art on earth and who art with us, be with us more and teach us to come to Thee. Teach us to pray. We know not what is best for us, but Thou knowest. For that we pray. Amen.

THURSDAY.

WE ARE OUR OWN GREATEST ENEMY.

"Oh, that my ways were established to observe Thy statutes."—Psa. 119:5.

Prayer is the very highest energy of the human mind. At the lowest it may be crude, but at his best, man prays spiritually and gloriously, and the spirit makes it intelligent. There is nothing better than the deepening and purifying power of prayer, and one cuts himself off from the elemental function of the soul when he denies himself the tendency to pray.

Hunger cannot exist without food. Breathing cannot exist without air. Falsehood cannot exist without truth. Prayer cannot exist without God.

Prayer.—Our loving Father, forbid that we shall neglect the gift that is in us to pray. We pray for the gift, for the blessing, for the glory, and for all it should mean to us. Amen.

FRIDAY.

COMPLEX DEDICATION.

"I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice."—Rom. 12:1-5.

Much of the value of an exhortation like this is derived from the character of the man who utters it. It would do little good for a coward to urge others to be heroic; or for a selfish man to urge others to be sacrificial; or for a crafty schemer to urge others to be sincere.

This call to entire dedication partakes of the sacrificial spirit of the man who uttered it. We catch the note of sincere heroism in it. He had given himself in unstinted service to Jesus Christ. Many times he describes himself as the servant of the Lord Jesus. Paul pleads for this dedication of ourselves upon the ground of God's mercies. His unfailing mercies lay us under obligation to give ourselves back to Him unreservedly. Jesus Christ had all there was of Paul. He had presented his body a living sacrifice.

Prayer.—By one of the parents, asking that the members of the household may realize, in their own lives and experience, the joy of Christian fellowship, and of unity with the great army of believers throughout the world—one body in Christ.

SATURDAY.

COURAGE AND ACTION WIN THE DAY.

"Why sit we here until we die?"—2 Kings 7:17.

The Christian life is one great adventure. We have a very old proverb which says: "Nothing ventured, nothing won." This is equally applicable to the Christian life and of every field of holy endeavor. Some would defend the spirit of progress by giving us another proverb: "A rolling stone gathers no moss." There are only two things wrong with that—we are not stones, and the acquisition of moss is not the true aim of life.

In Genesis we are told (Gen. 11:32) the days of Terah were two hundred and five years; and Terah died in Haran. How different from the words in the beginning of the twelfth chapter: "Now the Lord said unto Abram, Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred." So Abram departed, as the Lord had spoken unto him. To die where we were born (in the religious life) is a spiritual and moral tragedy.

We are not only called out—we are led out. Possibly early in the year we made a new start. The Christian life has much for us that may be realized here and now; there is something better for us every day. The path of the just is as a shining light which shineth more and more unto the perfect day.

Prayer.—By one of the parents, asking that we may have a fuller faith in the Divine leading of our lives, realizing that if we serve God with all our hearts, He will make straight and safe the paths that lie before us.

SUNDAY.

SUNDAY IDEALS.

A young man entered an office and asked for work. He re-enforced his request with a recommendation from his pastor.

The man at the desk read it and smiled. "Your minister knows you on Sunday," he said superiorly; "but you are to work for us on week days. Can't you bring a recommendation from somebody who knows how you live and act during the week?"

The story has made the rounds of the papers in the form of a joke, and no doubt it has received smiles and chortles of applause. There is truth in the criticism. We know well that Sunday ideals sometimes are looked upon as a deep parade, to be forgotten when the uniform is taken off.

Nevertheless, the truth in the criticism of the man at the desk is only a half-truth; hardly that. What we do on Sunday does affect the work of the week, and the minister's recommendation does count. The Bank of England asks applicants for a position how they spend their Sunday. Does that furnish a key to character? It certainly does. The young man who is faithful in worshipping God and meditating upon the great truths of life with God's people, whose Sunday is a re-creation of fundamental forces, will soon be different from his chums who use Sunday for indulgence in shallow pleasures.

Prayer.—Lord's Prayer, all the circle joining.

The Stewardship Council announces that the Churches of America last year gave for all purposes $488,479,078. The United Presbyterian Church gave the largest amount per capita, which was $38.04. The Southern Baptists gave the smallest amount per capita, which was $10.80. The Christian Church came near the bottom in the list, giving $14.45 per member. It is stated that this enormous sum of money was given by one-half of the enrolled members of the Church. It is also stated that the Church members do not give a fourth of the tithe of their income for the Church. If the Christian Church was to give four times what it is giving, we would have $57.80 for each member; whereas we now have only $14.45. It would appear that the Churches of Christ need a revival in giving, though the surest way to have this revival is for them to give themselves individually first of all to Jesus Christ.

NOTICE.

Those expecting to attend the Christian Endeavor Union to be held at Sanford, March 10-11th, will please notify Miss Stella Stout, Sanford, N. C., at their earliest convenience. This will aid the committee in providing entertainment and otherwise ministering to the comfort of visitors.

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

The measles gave us a real visit indeed, and about sixty children had them. With careful nursing we had no complications, and practically all our children are out again. They hit us at a good time—when the weather was rainy and cold, and it was not much trouble to keep the children in. We find if we keep children indoors till they are entirely well we seldom have much trouble. Nine years ago we had a scourge of measles and all the children had them; all the children who did not have them at that time are now just recovering. So it will be a number of years before we can have another scourge of measles. It makes all of us who have the responsibility feel like taking a long breath.

Pneumonia is one disease we dread very much in our work. It does its work so quickly. We had one very serious case about a year ago, and the girl was confined to her room for eighty-eight days, and for several weeks we had but little hope for her recovery; but by careful nursing she recovered. This winter, so far, we have had no pneumonia at all, and we are hoping and praying that we will be spared this spring.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON,
Superintendent.

REPORT FOR MARCH 1, 1928.

Brought forward $2,503.75

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

N. C. & Va. Conference:

Ingram $ 3.00
Third Avenue, Danville 5.32

8.32

Western N. C. Conference:

Liberty $ 2.50
Hank's Chapel 3.05
Burlington 50.80

56.35

Eastern N. C. Conference:

Wake Chapel $ 9.56
Liberty (Vance) 5.28
Damascus 1.50

16.34

Eastern Virginia Conference:

Holy Neck $10.00
Elm Avenue 5.37
First, Norfolk 9.24

24.61

Valley Virginia Conference:

Winchester
Alabama Conference:

Antioch 2.10

2.10

Special Offerings.

Boone Bible Class $15.00
C. M. Howard, support children... 10.00
Mr. & Mrs. C. C. Howell, Jacksonv'e. 150.00

175.00

Grand total $2,791.91

BOARD OF RELIGIOUS EDUCATION MEETS.

At the called meeting of the Board of Religious Education, in Raleigh, in December, when Dr. C. H. Rowland was elected chairman of the board, the following report was made by C. H. Stephenson, treasurer, for the period from August 1, 1927, to December 1, 1927:

Balance in bank Aug. 1..... $ 80.57

Receipts.

Eastern Va. S. S. & C. E. Conven.. $850.00
Elon College, advert'g Chautauqua. 100.00
Fuller Chapel S. S. (Children's D.) 5.28

Liberty S. S., Liberty, N. C..... 7.00
United Church S. S., Lynchburg... 3.86
First S. S., Greensboro, N. C..... 25.00
Hopewell Church, Hopewell, Va... 2.00

993.14

Total balance and receipts $1,073.71

Disbursements.

Farmers' Bank, Holland, loan.... $250.00
E. T. Holland, expenses 10.00
Typewriter Sales & Service Co.... 10.25
J H Lightbourne exp. acct..... 26.00
Central Publishing Co., printing... 231.35
Christian Pub. Ass'n, Elon 74.03
S. L. Beougher, Chautauqua..... 10.00
Miss Pattie Coghill, salary—Oct... 100.00
November 100.00

811.63

Balance in bank Dec. 1..... $ 262.08

ROSEMONT.

The Young People's Society of the Rosemont Christian Church held a most beautiful social in the new Men's Bible Class room on the evening of February 14th. The room was most attractively decorated, presenting a lovely Valentine setting. Games were played, contests were enjoyed, and at the conclusion delicious refreshments were served.

This society also held a most interesting service on Sunday evening, February 12th, when the subject was "Choosing a Life Partner." The plan of the leader consisted of a brief talk by the pastor and a written exercise on "Some characteristics I want my life partner to have." These answers were then read before the society and proved most entertaining. Most of the answers showed that for a life partner a Christian was wanted, and all showed that people of clean and strong character were wanted as life partners. In other words, the meeting proved that these young people were possessed of high ideals and ambitions, which, if followed, cannot but lead them to lives of great usefulness.

The services of the Rosemont Church Friday, February 12th, were all good. The pastor presented the cause of Christian education as represented by Elon and Bethlehem Colleges in a most helpful sermon at 11 A. M., using as his subject, "Soul Culture." At night the pastor spoke to a most attentive audience on the thought, "Sin No More, Lest Worse Things Come." The choir rendered during the day two beautiful anthems which brought forth many expressions of appreciation, and Miss Dorothy Roane sang very effectively just before the evening sermon the solo entitled "A Clean Heart."

MRS. J. F. MORGAN.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES.

We should be glad to furnish your Sunday School the following supplementary supplies, cash to accompany order:

Improved Uniform Series International Lessons.

1. Bible Lesson Picture Roll, 21x32 inches, per quarter $1.25
 2. Sunday School Superintendent (to accompany the Picture Roll), per quarter..... .15
 3. Pupils' Lesson Stories, per quarter..... .06
 4. Little Bible Lesson Pictures, per quarter.. .05
- Group Uniform Series, Primary Course.
1. Group Bible Lesson Picture Roll, 16x20 in., per quarter 1.00
 2. Group Pupils' Lesson Stories, Primary, per quarter07
 3. Group Lesson Pictures, per quarter..... .04

In making order, be explicit and name the quarter for which supplies are wanted; thus: first quarter, January to March; second quarter, April to June; third quarter, July to September; fourth quarter, October to December.

SEND ORDERS TO THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

COMMUNION WARE

Individual Service

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A

- Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses $7.00
Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses 6.75
Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses 6.50
Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim..... 1.60
No. 2—Broad rim 1.60

SILVER-PLATE

The Silver-Plated Ware is of the very lightest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.

Style No. 85

- Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses $22.00
Base No. 1—Silver-plate; fits Silver Tray No. 85 11.00
Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85... 16.00
(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)

Style No. 90

- Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 33 plain glasses.
Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses
(this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling). $22.00
Base No. 2—Silver-plate; fits Silver Tray 90... 16.00
Cover No. 4—Silver-plate; fits Silver Tray 90.. 14.00

- Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow rim $ 9.00
No. 4—Broad rim 9.00
Filler—Silver lined 6.00

Send Orders to THE CHRISTIAN SUN,
1536 E. Broad St., - - - Richmond, Va.

Kiddies' Korner

MADGE MOFFITT WHITESSELL, Editor.

Dear Children:

If you have read THE CHRISTIAN SUN this week you know what a real calamity has befallen our Orphanage at Elon—an epidemic of measles and whooping-cough. Either disease alone is something to be dreaded, but together they are terrible. Now is the time when you can do so many nice things for these dear little children. Send them letters or fruit or anything you have, that they may feel your sympathy and help. Mr. Johnston must be a marvel to be able to care for so many sick children, but if we can help, the blessing will be twofold. Don't put it off, but right now while it is fresh in your minds remember them and write the "Kiddies' Korner" what you did.

We are going to see our little grandson tomorrow. He is five months old, weighs twenty-one pounds, is twenty-eight inches tall, and has two teeth and is precious. We have his name on our missionary cradle roll, and when we have the picnic for the babies next summer we want him to come. We are also spending Sunday in High Point, with your editor. She will write to you real soon, as she has organized her work very successfully and will have more time. Will send you a story next week.

Yours sincerely,
MRS. T. A. MOFFITT.

Ramseur, N. C.

BIBLE STUDY.

(Continued from Page 11.)

in her own life. But in this dark hour, the conviction came to this woman that her one hope of growing stronger spiritually, of coming into closer fellowship with her Saviour, lay in keeping her work and fighting on toward higher levels in her own heart and life, and praying for the same things for her class as for herself.

Bible study keeps many from sin, many from selfishness, many from narrowness, many from bitterness. It creates in the hearts of many love, tolerance, sympathy, generosity, a sense of stewardship, a desire to serve.

A young married woman watched and cared for her tubercular husband to the end. She saw his spirit leave the earthly tabernacle for its heavenly home. After all was over, she took up life again with a burden of debt and a dear little son to rear. She belonged to "The Comrades of the Quiet Hour." For years she had been giving at least fifteen minutes of each day to Bible study and prayer. This woman is earning just a small salary, but one-tenth of it is given regularly to her Lord's work. Why?

I would say because of hours of Bible study. She became so permeated with God's truths, so filled with His Spirit, so desirous of doing her best for her Lord, that she just felt impelled to tithe. It seems that all who tithe testify to a sense of blessedness, to a feeling that they are the Lord's and that He cares for His own. This young widow received a legacy of $1,000.

What a wonderfully helpful thing it would be if groups of Christ's followers would get together for courses of Bible study. Members of the different Churches constantly have opportunities offered them for Bible study. How pitifully few avail themselves of these opportunities! Just at the present time, the Moody Bible Institute, of Chicago, is offering "The Mountain Peaks of Prophecy Course." This course gathers the prophecies from their different sources and follows them through to fulfillment.

Would not this be an interesting study for a class of Church people? Besides the mental stimulus received from such courses of Bible study, there is always a new lot of spiritual truths learned.

Henry S. McCready, in a sermon of his, published in the Congregationalist, said: "In this day we must acknowledge the high cost of spiritual growth. Most of us have busy days, filled with activity because there is so much that is really worth while, we think, offered us on every side. In the realm of material things, prices soar and demands keep apace. Is there the same passion for things of the spirit?"

All Christians who are developing spiritually have learned that it is absolutely necessary to save a little bit of each day for a study of God's message to them. May the number of Christians increase who have this conviction and act upon it!

Winchester, Va.

BETHLEHEM COLLEGE.

By G. S. HUNT.

A pray'r from the heart of an earnest man,
Untiring efforts and a willing hand,
A mighty faith in the mercy of God—
And Bethlehem College rose from the sod.

Weakly and feebly as a tender babe,
Slowly, but surely, her steps were made;
Strengthened and guided by the hand of love,
A dream fulfilled to the dreamer above.

Not a great mansion of silver and gold,
But a hope for young and a faith for old;
Bearer of light in the way of all truth,
The patron saint of a glorious youth.

Corner-stone laid in the hope and the love
Of a Church's faith in the God above;
A prayer to Him its fate to insure,
And a plea to you to make it secure!

OXFORD BIBLES
An Oxford $3.50
Teacher's Bible only

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

The best recommendation of the OXFORD TEACHER'S BIBLES is the fact that over 3,000,000 copies have been sold. The wonderful helps they contain save your time because they are alphabetically arranged, making reference easy. They take the place of many books about the Bible, and can be depended upon, being written by eminent scholars. The Helps contain 32 graphic illustrations, besides 15 beautifully colored maps. The text is the Authorized or King James version, with over 50,000 centre column references.

These Are Genuine OXFORD Teacher's BIBLES

EASY-TO-READ EDITION

Size 7 1/4 x 5 x 1 1/2 inches

Specimen of Type

17 And there was a very sore battle that day; and Abner was beaten,

- | | | |
|-------|--|--------|
| Nos. | | |
| 04451 | Moroccoette, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges | $3.50 |
| 04453 | French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and handsome Bible | 4.35 |

Oxford India Paper Edition

Same as above, but printed on the famous Oxford India paper used only in Oxford Bibles. Only one inch thick.

- | | | |
|-------|--|--------|
| Nos. | | |
| 0773x | French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition | $7.50 |

RED LETTER EDITION

- | | | |
|-------|---|------|
| 05453 | As No. 04453 with words of Jesus Christ in red. The red letter feature adds greatly to one's understanding of the Bible | 5.00 |
|-------|---|------|

Oxford India Paper Edition

- | | | |
|--------|---|------|
| 05453x | Same as No. 0773x with words of Jesus Christ in red. A gift edition which is sure to please | 8.00 |
|--------|---|------|

SELF-PRONOUNCING EDITION

All proper names and difficult words divided into syllables and accented so they may be correctly pronounced. Sizes 8 1/2 x 5 1/2 x 1 1/2 inches.

Specimen of Type

6 And A-hi'-shar was over the household; and Ad-o-ni'-ram the son of Ab'-da was over the tri-

- | | | |
|-------|--|--------|
| Nos. | | |
| 04521 | Moroccoette, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges | $5.00 |
| 04523 | French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A real student's Bible | 6.00 |

Oxford India Paper Edition

Same as above, but printed on the famous Oxford India paper which is used only in Oxford Bibles. Only 1 1/2 inches thick.

- | | | |
|-------|---|--------|
| 0923x | French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A Bible of superior quality | $9.00 |
|-------|---|--------|

Improved Thumb Index on any style at 50 cents extra

OBITUARIES.

LYNCH.

Deacon Albert Anderson Lynch departed this life February 7, 1928, aged 68 years, 6 months and 4 days. Bro. Lynch had been a member of the Christian Church for some forty-five years. His membership at the time of his death was with the Church at Mebane, N. C., where the funeral services were conducted. Bro. Lynch had been twice married, and leaves five children by his first wife—Sam, Walter, Mrs. Leroy Thomas, George and Frank—to mourn their loss; and also leaves his second wife and two daughters, Katie and Ada, and his brother Frank also to mourn their loss.

Bro. Lynch had been in declining health for some two years. Before his departure he spoke of his willingness to meet God. God bless the bereaved. The funeral was conducted by the writer at Bro. Lynch's request, assisted by Rev. Bro. Hurley, of the M. E. Church. P. T. KLAPP.

STRICKLIN.

Peter Stricklin passed to his reward on February 1, 1928, in his sixty-ninth year. He was a member of New Lebanon Christian Church, Rockingham County, N. C. He was a good neighbor and Christian gentleman, and had the confidence of those that knew him. He leaves a widow, Mrs. Alice Stricklin, and eight children (six boys and two girls)—Billie, Bert, Hermon, Pauline, Claud, Sam and Gilbert C. Stricklin, Mesdames Elwood and Boyles.

His suffering was severe for several months before the end came, but he died in triumphant faith of the Saviour's love, praising Him and praying for his family. Funeral services were conducted by the writer, his pastor, assisted by the pastor of Shiloh Methodist Church, in Alamaue County, where the remains were laid to rest in the cemetery. May the God of all grace comfort the bereaved and bring them together in that home above.

J. W. KNIGHT.

ARNOLD.

Bro. Alexander Wade Hampton Arnold departed this life January 13, 1928, aged 63 years, 11 months and 28 days. He was married to Bettie Liles January 25, 1883, and she preceded him to the spirit land some two years since, and to this union were born fifteen children, eleven of this number remaining to mourn their loss.

Bro. Arnold was a member of New

MISSIONARY PAGEANTS.

Two Masters—By Bertha Cooper Fraser. One of the very best ones published. Price10 cents
The Cross Triumphant—Forty people; about one and one-fourth hours long. Price35 cents
The Missionary Clinic—Price.....10 cents
Aunt Tillie Learns to Tithe—Stewardship. Price15 cents
The Betrothal of Mai Tsung—By Kyung Shien Sung and Vida Sutton. A Chinese love story of a boy and girl who became Christians. About 1 hour long. Price25 cents
Order from:

Pattie Coghill,
Literature Superintendent, North Carolina Woman's Board.

Hope Christian Church, Frankliu County, home, near Holland, Va., February 18, 1928, aged 74 years. The funeral services were conducted at Holy Neck Church by the writer, assisted by Rev. L. F. Pamlette, pastor of Holland Baptist Church. The burial was in the Holland cemetery.

P. T. KLAPP.

WEST.

James Judson West died at his late

Mr. West leaves a widow, who was Miss Mariah L. Howell; four sons—Hillard C. West, Whaleyville, Va.; J. Littleton West, W. J. and Hudson A. West, Holland, Va.; four daughters—Mrs. J. E. Schuyler, Roanoke, Va.; Mrs. David Lankford, Franklin, Va.; Mrs. Alfred Howell, Holland, Va., and Mrs. I. K. Howell, Portsmouth, Va., and twenty-nine grandchildren. The deceased had been a member of Holy Neck Church since early life. May the peace of God that passeth all understanding keep the hearts and minds of his loved ones in their sorrow. N. G. NEWMAN.

CHAPMAN.

Phoebe Catherine Chapman was born November 11, 1854, and died January 3, 1928, at the age of 73 years, 1 month, and 22 days. Sister Chapman was reared at Linville, and in her younger life held membership with the Christian Church there. She is survived by five sons and three daughters. Funeral services were held at Lyndale Mennonite Church January 5, 1928. A. W. ANDES.

ELON COLLEGE

CO-EDUCATIONAL

SECOND SEMESTER OPENS JANUARY 4, 1928

A few additional Students may be accommodated at that time, preferably members of the Christian Church.

SOME OF THE ELON COLLEGE BUILDINGS

ELON COLLEGE offers superior educational advantages to the members of the Christian Church. The buildings are new, equipment new and of the very best type, laboratory facilities equal to any college in the South; member of the Southern Association of Colleges, strong Christian faculty, and fine Christian atmosphere prevailing on the campus. Special courses in religious education and Christian work are offered to train laymen and ministers in the work of our denomination.

For Catalogue and View-Books, address

C. M. CANNON REGISTRAR,

ELON COLLEGE, - - NORTH CAROLINA

"Christian Character First and Always at Elon College"

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rve. Daniel W. Kerr.

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Christian Church.

BOARD OF EDITORS

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D.....Editor
W. W. STALEY, D. D.....Associate
W. A. HARPER, LL.D.....Associate
REV. S. C. HARRELL.....Associate
R. C. HELFENSTEIN, D. D...Associate
REV. S. M. LYNAM.....News Editor
P. J. KERNODLE.....Managing Editor

Subscription Rates

One Year$2.00
Six Months 1.00

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT
RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Post-office at Richmond, Va., July 25,
1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows the date of expiration. Change in the label will appear on wrapper the first week of month following renewal, provided it is received before the 25th.

Change of Address: Give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

When subscriptions are made for friends, state whether paper is to be stopped at end of the year.

Remittances: Make all remittances for subscriptions and renewals to "Editor Christian Sun," Elon College, N. C.

Remittances for advertising and other business matters will be addressed to the "Managing Editor," 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond, Va.

Advertising Rates: "Want Ads," 2 cents a word an insertion. Display rates quoted upon request.

Notices: Obituary and Marriage notices, limited to 100 words, are published free of charge. All over 100 words, at 1 cent a word. Remittance should accompany copy. Write names distinctly.

DEMPSEY.

Mrs. Annie Jane Dempsey departed this life February 3, 1928, being nearly 74 years of age. She and Mr. John P. Dempsey were married nearly fifty-two years ago. She was a devout member of Hines Chapel Church for many years.

"Asleep in Jesus, blessed sleep,
From which none ever wake to weep;
A calm and undisturbed repose
Unbroken by the last of foes."

She was buried from Hines Chapel Church, which was more than full of friends, loved ones and kindred who were present at the last rites. The casket was slowly lowered to its last resting-place, while the model prayer of our Lord and Master was repeated in concert. The grave was then closed and covered with fragrant flowers in various designs. She is not dead, but sleepeth, and shall in the eternal springtime of the sweet by and by come forth and live forever in the beautiful city of our God.

J. W. PATTON.

FORD.

On January 27, 1928, the great Gardener visited His garden and went into the home of Bro. and Sister Marshall Ford, of Auburn Christian Church, and gathered for Himself and heaven a bud when He took out of its earthly tabernacle the spirit and claimed it for a heavenly purpose the life of their darling baby, little Dartha Allen Ford. She was only 15 months and 27 days old. Her stay on earth was short, but her life in the better land will never end. May the parents be able to say in their hearts, "The Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord."

J. A. DENTON.

LEDBETTER.

William Ledbetter died at his home, Sanford, N. C., February 5, 1928, aged 77 years, 6 months and 2 days. Bro. Ledbetter was for a long time a member of Lee's Chapel Christian Church. For the past two years the writer was his pastor and always found him interested in the subject of religion. He leaves to mourn their loss five children—four daughters and one son. May the Lord comfort the hearts of these until they meet their loved ones in glory.

J. A. DENTON.

OXFORD TEACHERS' BIBLES

An Oxford Teachers' Bible has references and 300 pages of helps that are a mine of information to Bible students. The helps are arranged in alphabetical order, like a dictionary. They are accurate, comprehensive and up-to-date. A few styles are listed here. Many others are described in our Bible catalogue, mailed upon request.

04403 [This size print] Bound in French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, size 6 7/8 x 4 3/4 inches$4.00

0623x [Same Bible as 04403] Printed on Oxford India paper. Only 1 inch thick.....$6.00

04453 [This size print] French Morocco leather binding, overlapping covers, 7 1/4 x 5 in. $4.35

0773x [Same Bible as 04453] Printed on Oxford India paper. A remarkably thin and light Bible. (Only 1 inch thick)$7.75

05453 [Same Bible as 04453] With the words of Jesus Christ printed in red$6.25

05453x [Same Bible as 0773x] With the words of Jesus Christ printed in red$8.75

04523 [This size print] A self-pronouncing Oxford Bible. Bound in French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, size 8 1/2 x 5 1/2 inches... $5.50

0923x [Same Bible as 04523] Printed on Oxford India paper, only 1 1/2 inches thick...$9.75

ORDER FROM

"THE CHRISTIAN SUN"

Richmond, Va

BETHLEHEM COLLEGE

WADLEY, ALABAMA

A JUNIOR COLLEGE AND HIGH SCHOOL.

Where Opportunity Awaits the Student of Very Limited Means.

GIRL'S DORMITORY.

Bethlehem College, Wadley, Ala., will open September 5, 1927. This institution is a Junior College and High School, which is co-educational, where scholarship ranks high and expense is low. It is thoroughly Christian, absolutely non-sectarian, and vitally American. A school where opportunity awaits the student of very limited means—$68.00 pays all college expenses, except books, board and room. Board, $15.00 per month, and room $3.00; total expenses for a term of nine months, $250.00.

Bethlehem College is training some of the best stock of America for Christian leadership, to be used by the nation and the world. Here is a great challenge and asset for students who wish to prepare themselves to serve in a worth-while way. The work on the new Administration Building is progressing nicely, and we will be able to begin our college work in this building when school opens this fall.

For catalog and other information, address S. L. Beougher, President.

HOLMAN BIBLES

FOR CHILDREN

PICTORIAL BIBLES WITH HELPS

The text is self-pronouncing, by the aid of which children can learn to pronounce the difficult Scripture proper names.

Specimen of Type

27 And the boys grew: and Esau was a cunning hunter.
5 And the streets of the city shall be full of boys and girls playing in the streets thereof.

Size, 5 3/4 x 3 1/2 inches. With beautiful photo views of scenes in Bible lands distributed throughout the text. Also maps of Bible lands in colors. Also new Practical Helps to Bible Study, especially designed for instructing children in scriptural information.

No. 9111. French Seal Leather, overlapping covers, round corners, gold edges, gold titles.

Our Price—Post Paid. 2.30

COLORED PICTURE EDITION

Portraying in natural colors, scenes and places taken from nature and life in the Holy Land.

No. 9211. Same as No. 9111, but with Beautifully Colored Pictures.

Our Price—Post Paid. 2.40

FOR INTERMEDIATE SUNDAY-SCHOOL SCHOLARS

Large Clear Black Type. Self-Pronouncing, containing Helps to Bible Study, 4000 Questions and Answers, Maps in Colors, and Presentation Page. A Beautiful Gift Bible.

Specimen of Type.

22 And the prophet Isaiah, and said unto thyself, and mark, and for at the return of t

Size, 7 x 5 inches.

No. 215. Divinity Circuit Style, Bound in French Seal Leather, round corners, red under gold edges, with silk head bands and purple silk marker, gold titles, etc.

Our Price—Post Paid. 3.10

No. 3215RL. Red Letter Scholars' Bible, same Bible as No. 215, with all the Sayings of Christ, printed in Red, and with Red and gold INLAID PANEL SIDE TITLES, also Beautifully Colored Pictures.

Our Price—Post Paid. 3.45

Holman Self-Pronouncing

VEST POCKET TESTAMENTS

Clearest Print in
Smallest Size
4 3/8 x 2 3/4 x 3/8 inches

Specimen of Type.
AND the third day there was a marriage in Cana of Galilee; and the mother of Jesus was

2133K. Bound in durable Morocco Grain Semble Leather, flexible limp, gilt titles60

2113. French Morocco, genuine leather, flexible limp, gold titles, rounded corners, gold edges..... .70

2115P. French Morocco, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, with the Book of Psalms included$1.10

ILLUSTRATED VEST POCKET TESTAMENT

With Pictures of Holy Land Scenes

2814. French Morocco, limp, gold side title round corners, red under gold edges85

RED LETTER VEST POCKET TESTAMENT

With all the words of our Lord printed in red.

13RL. French Morocco, flexible limp, gold side title on red panel, gold edges.85

15RLP. French Morocco, overlapping covers, flexible, gold side title on red panel, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included $1.25

INDIA PAPER VEST POCKET TESTAMENT

Thin as a Wafer

2136XP. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, with Psalms included $2.25

Send Your Orders to

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 E. Broad Street

RICHMOND . VIRGINIA

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Official Organ of the Southern Christian Convention.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXX.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, MARCH 8, 1928.

NUMBER 10.

THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY

BY REV. S. M. LYNAM.

Membership Teaches Oneness.—

Church membership trains us to live and work together for the kingdom. It makes a family of us, and we want to make our group effective. It gives us pride in our Church to make it attractive. A fly does not light on a red-hot plate.

Lagging in Missions.—

It is hardly possible now to pick up a religious publication which is not discussing the lack of support for missionary endeavor. It is disclosed now that the Methodist Foreign Mission Board has three hundred and twenty-one fewer missionaries at work now than it had in 1923. Of the 1,002 now on its list, 114 are cut off from appropriations and are serving charges, teaching schools, and in various ways supporting themselves until there are funds sufficient to return them to work on the field. This lagging in missionary endeavor while congregations erect gigantic and costly Churches is indicative of the sort of thing Mr. E. Stanley Jones is charging us with.

A Good-Will Dinner.—

In Richmond, Va., was held recently a dinner of importance. At the gathering were a hundred and fifty Jews and a similar group of Protestants and Catholics. The dinner was sponsored by a committee of self-appointed ministers of the three groups. The speakers were Dr. Peter Ainslie, of Baltimore, who supported a similar dinner in his city in December; Rabbi Mendoza, of Norfolk, and U. S. Senator Ransdell, of Louisiana. Governor Harry F. Byrd presided and suggested that every city of Virginia follow Richmond's example. This sort of dinner is being held in many cities of the United States and Canada. Rabbi Ferdinand M. Isserman dined a large group of Jews, Protestants and Catholics recently in Toronto at which the feeling of co-operation and brotherhood was stressed. They were seeking a common denominator on which all could agree.

The Greatest Americans.—

Since H. G. Wells began to name great men, it has become fashionable to name the greatest men in one country or another or one phase of endeavor or another. Rev. John Haynes Holmes, pastor of Community Church, New York, recently named the ten greatest Americans from his pulpit. Here is the list: Lincoln, Emerson, Thoreau, William Lloyd Garrison, Theodore Parker, Robert E. Lee, Walt Whitman, Mark Twain, Charles W. Eliot, and Eugene V. Debs. Nobody, and least of all Mr. Holmes, would expect everybody to agree to this list, but it would be interesting to lay aside all our prejudices and seek to see the true greatness in every man, and then compile our own list of great Americans. It might help us, too, to see further into many causes and movements than we ever saw before. That would do us good spiritually, no doubt.

Indicts Professional Christianity.—

In a closing address at the meeting of presidents, deans and pastors of colleges and others, held February 17th to 19th, President Clarence C. Little, of the University of Michigan, said some strong things. We are not expecting every one to agree with Dr. Little, but we believed them worth thinking about, and so we are outlining them. Dr. Little drafted a number of subjects on which the activity of Christians differ from their belief. He took up death and said that though we believe in a happy immortality, we continue to keep alive people who are suffering with incurable diseases. Our birth he strongly indicted a social order which brought into being thousands of unwanted children in our cities. He spoke of law enforcement and called it hypocrisy and cant. He rapped the worship of wealth in our Churches and blazed away at those who support parties that are guilty of bad faith in politics and corruptness in practice. He spoke strongly, deploring the "me first" attitude in international relations. And last of all, he talked about the spirit in the Churches which would be well expressed in the phrase, "You must think as I think." Dr. Little is pleading for saner tolerance, and for readjustments which may somehow rectify the perilous social position we now occupy. We must think about things sometimes which may not be at all pleasant to us.

Ministerial Antecedents.—

There is a widespread belief that the lives of ministers are so hard and unpleasant and the homes so bleak because of lack of money that the sons of ministers refuse to follow in the footsteps of their fathers. A recent survey shows that this is a fallacy, and that ministers' sons do become ministers, and that the remainder come from the homes of leading members. The survey was made by the clergyman's committee of the American Eugenics Society, and for the purpose a hundred of the leading preachers of the country were selected. Men like Henry Sloane Coffin, Harry Emerson Fosdick, Dr. S. Parks Cadman, and many another famous in the country's religious life. It was discovered that two-fifths of these were the sons of ministers, and that many of the remainder were the sons of deacons and elders. Three had local or lay preachers for fathers, and one had a Quaker preacher for a mother. Only four reported that their parents were not much interested in the Church, and one of these made the vital distinction that while they were not interested in the Church, they were interested in religion. One of the men answering had a long line of direct succession of Presbyterian ministers dating back to the seventeenth century, and another an unbroken succession of Moravian ministers going back to 1740. This survey reveals that out of the homes of ministers and of the leading members of the Church come the recruits for the ministry.

The Same Voice Speaks.—

The man who wrote "The Christ of the Indian Road" has written again. This time it is "The Christ of the Round-Table." The first book cast a spell of power about the readers, and made itself one of the most talked-about books on religious subjects. It enabled many to approach India without a feeling of hostility, and gave us the feeling that perhaps the Christian traffic with India was not all on one side. Now Mr. E. Stanley Jones reminds us that India wants Christ, but he is not certain that we of the West are able to impart Him. He calls attention to a request by the founder of the Mongol Dynasty in the thirteenth century for a hundred wise Christian teachers, but the Church was too busy with a controversy, and only two went, and they demanded submission to the papacy, which was refused. Mohammedans seized the opportunity, and today seventy million Moslems stand as a monument in India to that negligence of the Church, because the Mongol Dynasty of China, with its new religion, invaded India. At Rome, in the thirteenth century, the Church degenerated into rigid ecclesiasticism. In Germany it sank into dogmatic theology, in England it took the form of imperialism, and in America he feels it may become mere rotationism. He tells us in this last book that at the close of the World War India bent forward eagerly to hear the great word the Protestant world seemed about to utter, and it heard fundamentalism, modernism, larger and finer and more comfortable Churches, and the menace of the papacy. India expected Western Christendom to ask for a cross; we asked for comfort. She wanted Christ and we gave her a controversy; she desired a fullness of power and we gave her fear of the pope. Mr. Jones rather scathingly remarks that "we Protestants have swept crucifixes out of our Churches and put in cushions," and this, in his thinking, is not without a profound significance. At any rate, there are thoughts that come out of India which are challenging and provocative of a deep meditation on our own fitness to be the bearers of the message of our Lord to the Eastern world. We need the humbling of a great love and of earnest prayer to make us better able to realize the opportunity and the task that await us in India and in all the world.

NOTES-PERSONALS

Dr. C. C. Ryan is to be assisted by Rev. J. F. Morgan, of Norfolk, in the evangelistic services to be held at First Church, Richmond, beginning next Sunday.

Dr. L. E. Smith, pastor of the Christian Temple, Norfolk, Va., was in Richmond the first of the week in the interest of the Southern Christian Convention, which meets May 1st.

There are many Churches in the Southern Christian Convention that have members willing to subscribe for THE CHRISTIAN SUN. Will not some one collect these names and send to the editor.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN wishes to congratulate Dr. R. C. Helfenstein on the appearance of the People's Church Messenger, a real magazine, giving reports of the work of the Church and outlining its programs.

Rev. W. J. Edwards, who for several years has been living at Ether, N. C., has moved to High Point. His address is 211 Ward Street. Bro. Edwards is one of our faithful pastors. He always delivers a spiritual message.

Rev. P. T. Klapp sends $5.00 for the college offering—a personal offering. Bro. Klapp is the oldest active minister in the Christian Church, South. He says: "I have no work, and hence no salary, but I want to make my offering to the colleges."

Rev. A. H. Sheppard, Columbus, Ga., in a private letter to THE SUN regrets that he could not attend the Pastors' Conference. He has been ill since Christmas, but is now able to resume his work. Bro. Sheppard reports that his field of labor is making good progress.

There is being held at Jerusalem, March 24th to April 8th, a session of the International Missionary Council. This is the first world gathering of missions since the Edinburgh meeting of 1910. It bids fair to be the most important missionary gathering ever held in the history of the world. It will be held on the Mount Olives.

Mrs. Nannie L. Hawkins, Hurdle's Mill, N. C., has been reading THE CHRISTIAN SUN for many years. She says: "I think it ought to be in every member's family. I intend taking it as long as I live. I hope you will continue the sermons. I live some distance from my Church, and it is a great comfort to me to read our Church paper."

Rev. A. W. Andes certainly believes in advancing the interests of THE CHRISTIAN SUN. He has personally subscribed for THE CHRISTIAN SUN for one month for ninety-three of his members, and wrote each of the ninety-three a personal letter, urging that the paper be subscribed for at the end of the month. This is co-operation of a very practical character.

If there is any Church in the Southern Christian Convention that does not have a pastor and that wishes to have preaching services, if they will notify THE CHRISTIAN SUN office, Elon College, N. C., effort will be made to send a preacher. If there is a Church without a pastor that wishes to employ a pastor, inquiry addressed to the same place will receive prompt attention.

Rev. H. W. Elder, who continues ill in the hospital at Plains, Ga., has accepted the invitation of the acting editor to write a message to our people during the mission season. Bro. Elder has given himself to the missionary work of the Christian Church. He says this may be his final message to our people. I am sure that it will be read and heeded.

We begin in this week's SUN "The Convention Forum." It is earnestly urged that every member of the Christian Church will accept the open forum column as an invitation to him or to her to give expression to the ideas that should properly claim the attention of our Southern Convention when it meets. It is well for the whole Church to think on these issues.

A mutual friend who sees Dr. Atkinson every day gives this encouraging word: "Now regarding Dr. Atkinson and his health, I will say that he is making very good progress every day. We are daily together, and I hold him in high esteem and will do everything in my power to make his stay pleasant and profitable." This will certainly be encouraging news to our people.

The Churches of the country have certainly made their voices heard by the Congress now in session, and it seems certain that the naval building program at first outlined by the Secretary of the Navy and the committee on naval affairs will be very much changed when final action is taken. We believe in the separation of Church and of State, but we also believe that the Church should make its mind known to the State. This seems to be good American doctrine.

The winter school of religious education was conducted the past week at Franklinton Christian College for our colored people. Those who took part in the school were Dr. W. W. Staley, Mr. Hermon Eldredge, Miss Pattie Coghill, and W. A. Harper. Bro. J. W. Sellars was present also and lent his inspiration by giving an additional $100 to the library to which he had already given $250 and 150 books. Bro. Sellars also decided that he would fit up the library by tinting the walls and furnishing it with tables and chairs. An oil painting of Bro. Sellars was presented to the library by President Henderson, of Franklin College.

A new international quarterly magazine, entitled Stockholm, has just been published in three languages—English, German and French. If the writer of the article uses English as his native language, his article is printed in full in that language and then summarized in both German and French. This same custom is followed with reference to other contributed articles. The purpose of the magazine is to give regular and systematic expression to the progress of Christian union throughout the world from the standpoint of "life and work." The subscription price is $2.50 a year. The subscription agency in America is the Chicago University Press, Chicago, Ill.

Dr. Edward F. Green, president of the Country Life Academy, at Star, N. C., writes: "I am very much interested in President Harper's report to the board of trustees of Elon, as printed in the last number of THE CHRISTIAN SUN. Especially am I interested in the suggestion relative to the getting together of the Christian and Congregational bodies. I shall be thankful for any suggestion that may lead to a larger understanding concerning what we should do." The Christian Church is beginning to believe that the Congregationalists evidently mean what they say when they talk Christian union and educational co-operation.

Evidently, the Congregationalists have seen a great light. They have, no doubt, found that light beaming from the prayer of our Lord for the oneness of His followers.

We quote the following item from the Portsmouth Star, February 20th: "Last evening, in the Craddock Methodist Church, the large congregation that packed the Church to capacity heard the gospel message in song and sermon presented in such a manner that hearts were stirred and souls of the inner man touched. The famous gospel pianist, Sam Leonard Davis, and his wife, Pauline Allen Davis, sang and played sacred melodies with the fragrance of a Saviour's love until their hearers caught a new vision of the cross. Listening to a man who has never been permitted to see the beauties of this world, but whose touch on a piano of the ordinary type could peal forth with such exquisite music, somehow one sensed a feeling that the 'heavenly host' were present and that such sweetness of tone could be sounding only from a resplendent organ. Among the several special selections played by Mr. Davis was the rendition of 'The Old Rugged Cross.' With a sweet, clear voice, Mrs. Davis sang 'I Will Not Forget Thee' and 'Christ Returneth,' Mr. Davis singing in refrain of the latter. Under the direction of Mrs. Davis, the choir sang sweetly, 'Have Thine Own Way, Lord.' Mrs. Davis delivered a direct and forcible message on 'Prayer,' taking as her text Acts 4:31: 'And when they had prayed, the place was shaken where they were assembled together; and they were all filled with the Holy Ghost, and they spake the word of God with boldness.' The speaker, in her discourse, pointed out the importance of prayer, emphasizing the fact that prayer today has as much power with God as it did in the days of the early Christians. Those assisting in the service were Rev. G. S. Reamey, Rev. J. A. Sawyer, Rev. A. A. Whitmore, and Mr. J. M. Darden, of Suffolk, Va."

OUR CONVENTION FORUM.

Dr. Lankford Sees Great Problems.

I have your letter of the 27th in reference to "What shall we undertake for the kingdom and the Church at Richmond?" Briefly, I wish to suggest that emphasis should be given the following matters:

1. A definite emphasis upon a deeper and an ever-deepening spiritual life as the basis of all our endeavors in and through the Convention.
2. A due recognition of our stewardship of life and money.
3. Commit the Convention solidly and wholeheartedly to the idea and effort to raise the $1,000,000 endowment for Elon College.
4. Thoroughly arouse our people to the imperative necessity of a larger missionary program.
5. More definite and aggressive steps than ever before toward Christian union.
6. A program that will deal with our problems right where they are and as they are.

G. O. LANKFORD.

NOTICE.

The district missionary rallies of the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference will be held as follows:

- Waverly District—Richmond, April 3rd.
- Norfolk District—First Church, Norfolk, Va., April 4th.
- Franklin District—Antioch Christian Church, April 5th.
- Suffolk District—Berea (Nansemond), April 6th.

MRS. L. W. STAGG, Sec'y.

REVOLVING CROSS AT DOVER.

BY H. C. TAYLOR.

With the surprise gift three weeks ago to People's Christian Church, Dover, Del., of a $10,000 auditorium electric Orthophonic and Radiola machine from Mr. Eldridge R. Johnson, formerly of the Victor Talking Machine Company, which was a genuine surprise and greatly appreciated by the members and congregation of the Church, a second gift was made last Sunday to People's Church which not only serves as an ornament to the Church, but a most appropriate memorial to a deceased member—that of a revolving illuminated electric cross, given by Mrs. Clara Ridgeway Hazel, a member of People's Church, in memory of her late deceased husband, Mr. James H. Hazel, a charter member of the Church and a deacon and a trustee of the Church up to the time of his death three years ago, and a most loyal and devoted member of the Church.

With the installation of a small cross on the inside of the Church some months back, the idea of a revolving cross on the tower of the Church, as seen in many of the cities on the Pacific coast and in the West, was conceived in the mind of Mrs. Hazel, and after consulting with the pastor and an official of the Church as to the installation of such a cross, an order was sent for a ten-foot revolving illuminated cross, from a firm in San Francisco where the cross was invented by Dr. William L. Stidger, pastor of Calvary M. E. Church, of San Francisco.

The cross was ordered early in January, but coming from the Pacific coast, naturally it took considerable time to reach here. It arrived in Dover about the middle of the present month. As soon as the cross arrived, plans were at once started for its installation, and being completed last week, it was dedicated last Sunday evening with most appropriate services, a special dedicatory program being prepared by the pastor of People's Church, Rev. R. C. Helfenstein, D. D.

The cost of the cross and installation was considerably over $900. Prior to the dedication services, which took place in front of the home of the donor, Mrs. Hazel, who lives opposite the Church, Dr. Helfenstein, at the close of the evening services, told of his visit to the Pacific coast some few years back and of having seen the revolving illuminated cross on many Churches of all denominations, expressed a wish that some day People's Church might have such a cross on its tower. One of the official members of People's Church at that time, unknown to pastor or people, began an inquiry as to the securing of such a cross, but in view of other gifts contemplated at that time, did not go further with the project.

Noticing the simplicity and significance of the small cross erected in the auditorium of People's Church some weeks back, Mrs. Hazel thought of the revolving cross from the tower of People's Church, and within a few days afterwards set about to secure one, soliciting the aid of an official of the Church to make the purchase and look after the installation. Mrs. Hazel, like the pastor, had seen the electric cross on Churches on the Pacific coast while on a visit there some year or two back with her brother. The dedication services, which were most impressive, were held on the porch of Mrs. Hazel's home after the evening services Sunday. The program included a special dedicatory service prepared by Dr. Helfenstein, with response by the members of the Church. At a given signal, electric current was turned on and as the cross began to revolve the services began, closing with the singing of the hymn, "In the Cross of Christ I Glory." A dedicatory prayer was made by H. C. Taylor, one of the deacon's of the Church, followed with the benediction by the pastor, Dr. Helfenstein.

The revolving cross can be seen every evening from dusk until midnight, sending out its rays all over Dover and at the same time giving forth the message of the cross as it is intended, that of the memory of Him who suffered and died for man's redemption. The revolving cross is the only one in Delaware, and is said to be the only one of its kind on any Church this side of Oil City, Pa.

Dover, Del.

Dedication Service, Celebrating Gift of Cross.

Words by the pastor, Dr. R. C. Helfenstein:

Tonight it is our very great privilege to accept the gift of a beautiful revolving illuminated cross, the cost of installation of which was approximately $500.

This beautiful and significant gift to our Church, given as a memorial by one of our loyal and devoted members, is most sincerely appreciated by the membership of People's Christian Church and by all the Christian people of the community for whom the cross is the symbol of God's forgiving love, and of His saving power as revealed in the sacrifice of Christ upon the cross.

The cross is the emblem of Christian faith, and as such has a place not only in the heart of every Christian, but also should find a place upon the tower of every Protestant Church.

In appreciation of this inspiring gift, we now pause solemnly to dedicate the revolving illuminated cross on the tower of our Church:

Pastor: To remind the people of this community and all who pass this way of their personal relation to God as expressed in the upright part of the cross,

People: We dedicate our revolving illuminated cross.

Pastor: To remind the people of our community and all who pass this way of their social obligations in life and their relation to their fellowmen as revealed by the arms of the cross,

People: We dedicate our revolving illuminated cross.

Pastor: To witness through the working hours in the day of Christ's constant presence with those who trust in Him,

People: We dedicate this cross.

Pastor: To flash the message of Christ's love through the darkness of the night, and to remind all of the cordial invitation People's Church gives to those who wish to worship here,

People: We dedicate our revolving illuminated cross.

Pastor: In the name of Christ, to the glory of God, to the honor of the Church, and to the service of mankind,

People: We dedicate our revolving illuminated cross.

Song: "In the Cross of Christ I Glory."

Dedicatory prayer, by Herman C. Taylor: Almighty God, Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, Maker of all things, and Judge of all men, we gratefully acknowledge the manifold blessings and mercies Thou hast bestowed upon us from time to time, and above all we thank Thee for thy dear Son, Jesus Christ, who shed His most precious blood on the cross for our redemption and made it possible for us to be co-workers with Him in our day and generation in all that pertains to Thy kingdom.

As we dedicate this cross to Thy glory and the remembrance that Jesus died on the cross, may we ever be mindful, as we look on this symbol of deliverance from sin, that we should ever seek to emulate His life by serving others, and that as He died to make men bold, so we should strive to make men free by preaching and teaching the gospel He taught when here on earth.

Bless, we beseech Thee, our Father, the donor of this illuminated cross. May she ever rejoice in the thought of having given an emblem that shall forever shine forth, both day and night, in kingdom service and to the glory of God and His dear Son.

We thank Thee for the life of the man in whose memory this cross is given. May it ever be the beacon light to guide not only the followers of the lowly Nazarene, but to those who know Thee not, with the hope that somehow, or in some way, in looking on the cross, its meaning may result in the bringing of many to the feet of Him who suffered and died on the cross.

This petition we make in Thy dear name and in the name of Jesus Christ, our Lord and Saviour. Amen.

ELM AVENUE, PORTSMOUTH.

We have had much sickness among our little flock since last we wrote, and two deaths. The first was a dear, consistent member, Sister Terwillinger, wife of Bro. Charles Terwillinger. After one week of illness, she passed over the river to the glory world on December 16, 1927, leaving her husband and one little lad, Charles, Jr., aged ten, besides mother, father and a host of friends. Her funeral was held in Elm Avenue Church, conducted by Bro. T. N. Lowe, pastor. May God ever watch over and guide husband and son.

The next one was Bro. J. A. Baker, who died February 19, 1928. With Bro. Lowe by his side, he looked up in his face and gave an ethereal smile and just went to sleep at 8:45 A. M. He was stricken with paralysis five months ago. He never regained his strength. He was a constant and very patient sufferer. God wonderfully blessed him. During our revival last fall, he attended every service, but was never able to come any more. His death was typical of his life: so was his funeral. It was conducted at Liberty Spring Church by Bro. T. N. Lowe, assisted by our former pastor, Dr. W. D. Harward, Rev. J. S. Wallace, of Elm Avenue M. E. Church, and Dr. W. W. Staley. Dr. I. W. Johnson, pastor of Liberty Spring, sang a solo. Interment was made in the family cemetery, in the county.

Our Church is just about the same as it was when last we wrote. The holidays and severe cold are over now, and we are praying for a spring awakening. God says in all things be exceedingly glad and rejoice, and "lo! I am with you even to the end of the world."

We want our people to be workers. We need faith with work, and work with faith. So let's wake up and be about our Father's business. With Bro. Lowe as our earthly shepherd, Jesus as old elder Brother, and God as our Father and Guide, there is nothing that we cannot accomplish. Let's put on the breastplate of righteousness with the whole armour of God and go to work for Jesus. Let's pray more. That is the key of true service and heaven. Bro. Lowe reports he has found that our little Church has twenty-one tithers. Thank God for that many, and may God bless them so they can give more.

MRS. PERCY F. TURNER.

"It isn't raining rain to me:

It's raining daffodils!

In every dimpled drop I see

Wild flowers on the hills.

The clouds of gray engulf the day

And overwhelm the town—

It isn't raining rain to me:

It's raining roses down."

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, Elon College, N. C.

Contributing Editors

W. W. STALEY

W. A. HARPER

R. C. HELFENSTEIN S. C. HARRELL

PRINCIPLES OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

- (1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
- (2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
- (3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of Church membership.
- (5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

LAYMEN AND THE CHURCH.

Laymen are of more importance than they have been accustomed to think. The last twenty-five years have opened the eyes of the Church on the subject of laymen in the Church. The "Laymen's Movement" called attention to this subject in a new way and aroused the laymen to a sense of their obligation in a way unknown before. At sixty-nine conventions in 1905, 102,000 men registered at one dollar each; and, in Washington city, 1,325 men registered at five dollars each. These great meetings worked their way into the thought and conscience of laymen as tides creep up the estuaries and rivers.

The Church is composed chiefly of laymen—men and women who make the Church, and the ministers, too. There were laymen before there were ministers. Abraham was a layman of great power and great wealth; but his wealth did not interfere with his religion, and his religion did not interfere with his wealth. He and others founded the Church 400 years before there was a priest or a minister.

Joseph was a great layman, a poor slave, a prisoner in jail, but he remained true to God, became prime minister of Egypt and saved two nations from starvation by interpreting the king's dream and carrying out the meaning of that dream.

Moses was a layman and he led a nation out of bondage to a land flowing with milk and honey. When laymen move in obedience to God's will, seas open, mountains speak, and pillars of cloud and fire lead bondmen to liberty, and exiles to happy homes.

Philip was a layman who taught the Ethiopian treasurer the way of life in Christ Jesus, and sent him on his way rejoicing.

Laymen should not only examine themselves as to their spiritual life, but as to their capacity for work, and their financial ability to support the cause of the Church.

Laymen have usually underestimated themselves as to their capacity for religious work, and depended too much upon ministers, and thereby stifled their own spiritual development and retarded the real work of the Church. Laymen ought to assert themselves in all the activities of the Church, as they do in business, politics, and industrial interests. They ought to choose their way, their work, and their service. They ought to increase the number of givers as well as increase their gifts.

They owe a debt to outsiders, to put into others their thought, their judgment, and their work in all the activities of the Church. "No man liveth to himself," and the laymen ought to keep the Christian way of life before men and women outside.

Laymen should carry into the business of the Church their experience in business outside of the Church. In doing this they would increase the activities of the Church, its efficiency, and awaken a new interest in their own lives. Laymen ought to look into the future and so plan and carry on the work of the Church that it would go forward in their day and live after them. The work of Jesus, though done on a small scale, as it appeared to men, continues through the centuries with increasing power and usefulness among men, and it will continue until the kingdoms of this world become the kingdom of the Lord and His Christ. If laymen would do more, ministers could do more than they have ever done. Ministers are as helpless without the faithful help of the laymen as military leaders would be without soldiers. The army is one—officers and soldiers working together. The Church is one—ministers and laymen working together. The time has come when laymen are needed in all their Christian experience, business experience, and support as never before.

THE MISSION PERIOD.

Beginning with March 1st and continuing for four months, we enter the special mission period of our Southern Church. It is not to be inferred, however, because we have set aside a certain period for missions that every period of the Church year is not also an opportunity and a challenge for missionary effort. The mission period, however, is the time of special emphasis on this enterprise to which Jesus commissioned His Church when He commanded them to go into all the world.

During this period it is hoped that ministers will preach sermons with missionary application; that Sunday School teachers in every department will find opportunities to emphasize the missionary teaching of the lessons they present; that Church prayer meetings, the women's auxiliary societies, and all the groups and gatherings of the people of the Church will keep steadily in mind the importance and likewise the privilege of intelligent understanding and generous support for the home and foreign mission objectives of our Church.

It is also hoped that during this four-month period every member of every Church will be brought face to face with the missionary claim and challenge in such a way as to induce him to make such an offering for the Lord's work in this field as the Spirit shall lead and suggest.

According to the benevolence program of the Southern Christian Convention, all money raised through the Women's Missionary Societies of the several grades, all money raised through Sunday School offerings for missions, all membership fees in Conference Missionary Associations, and all special and personal gifts for missions less than $5,000 shall be credited toward the quota assigned each particular Church. In addition to these items, the Acting Secretary of Missions, Bro. J. M. Darden, requests each Church during the four-month period to receive an offering for missions that shall be equivalent to one-sixth of the pastor's salary. He promises to send speakers to any Church desiring it to aid in the effort to raise this money. The missionary cause in our Church, as in all Churches, is in great financial need. There is no opportunity that offers itself at this time to our Churches that will bring greater joy and satisfaction of heart to the people than a liberal response to this missionary call—a response so liberal that it will discharge all the obligations of our Mission Board and leave a surplus in the treasury for a larger undertaking for the kingdom.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN calls upon the ministers and the laity of our Churches to be earnest in prayer for the success of the missionary offering during the 1928 season.

W. A. H.

THE PRICE OF HEALTH.

BY DR. S. Q. HELFENSTEIN.

Some one has said, "Strange we never prize the music till the sweet-voiced bird has flown." It is also strange that people never prize health until they have lost it. There is another fact that is equally strange. Some there are who seem to think that sickness is something thrust upon them, independently of what they do. It has been said that "Every one is the architect of his own fortune." May it not be said with equal propriety that every one is the architect of his own health? The acceptance of this fact will enable us to see the need of constant vigilance in guarding one's health. Is health worth what it costs? Ask the millionaire, whose wealth brings him no surcease from suffering and who would gladly give millions for perfect health.

Ask the victim of restless wakefulness who resorts to drugs to secure a little sleep. Ask the strong, vigorous young man who has conquered his appetite, subdued his craving for unwholesome food, and is in the enjoyment of jubilant health. Each of these will tell you that health is worth all it costs.

Why are some in poor health and others in apparently good health? There are many erroneous views relative to the subject of health. There is the view which some hold that health is the result of a mysterious providence and is bestowed independently of what one does. Those entertaining this view are not apt to be on their guard against unhygienic methods of living. The science of correct eating doesn't seem to trouble them. Appetite, momentary physical pleasure is the governing factor in the selection of their bill-of-fare. There seems to be no desire to avoid starch poisoning or rheumatic conditions from lack of proper selection and balancing of foods. The blood stream becomes sluggish from over-indulging in cereals and a heavy protein diet of meats, while neglecting such foods as the succulent vegetables and fruits which are efficacious in cleansing and replenishing the blood stream with life-giving elements.

Others have the idea that health can be restored when lost by the use of medicines, but more and more people are learning that drugs have no curative power that is of any permanent value, and that nature must do the work of healing; and the best assistance we can give nature is proper, wholesome food, properly selected and intelligently appropriated and intelligently assimilated. Some destroy their health from lack of mastication; others from over-indulgence, wrong methods of eating, or eating out of season. That old "saw" still seems to be applicable, "many are digging their graves with their teeth." In the book of Ecclesiastes is a statement that is very suggestive. "Blessed art thou, O land, when thy king is the son of nobles, and thy princes eat in due season, for strength, and not for drunkenness." While Rome's princes were temperate and ate for strength, their country flourished; but when night was turned into scenes of revelry, Rome's senators ate for mere pleasure, the beginning of the end was already at hand. When Cicero invited Caesar to join him in one of those pleasure-seeking events, Caesar intimated that he would like to repeat the process. Of course, Cicero knew that meant that he would like to repeat the process. Of course, Cicero knew that meant that he would have to provide two suppers instead of one. "Woe to thee, O land, when thy princes eat in the morning!" When men lose their health conscience, they are on "the toboggan" to ill health. A noted physician asks: "Have you a health conscience? If you have and it pricks you, heed it. Health means joy instead of despair; success instead of failure; life, often, instead of death. If you have ever known the full joy of feeling alive, of doing, value your health. Without it your faculties are deadened; you do not live, you merely exist, and life becomes a dreary burden. Health is a priceless asset. Its possession makes all earthly power and happiness possible. Without it, life lacks snap, enthusiasm, initiative. Money becomes meaningless, for it cannot buy for you the one thing you most desire—health."

Perhaps you have read of a millionaire who, despite his countless millions, had to eat toast and milk for his Thanksgiving dinner, while his servants feasted on turkey and plum pudding. In that case, who was the real millionaire? He is truly rich who enjoys jubilant health. Have you ever made a survey and made an estimate of what per cent of the people you know are in the enjoyment of health? Have you ever studied to find out the agencies and customs that tend to break down and lessen health? Of course, the "drug habit" ultimately undermines health. The thought of health through nature may astonish us, but those who seek health by natural means are not disappointed. Another quotation from Dr. Vilet says: "The generations to come will wonder how we could have been dupes of the drug habit, a monstrous mistake. Today, we use our best effort to get well. The generations to come will concern themselves only with how to keep well." And this they will do by a knowledge of nature's curative treatment. Few people now entertain the view held in the past, that health is largely independent of one's own acts. Health results from wisely selected, properly prepared, and rightly balanced food, appropriated at suitable times, and intelligently assimilated in requisite amounts. He who has learned the "science of eating" is on the highway to health if he practices what he knows. He will become a stranger to "pains and aches." Every subjective pain and ache are either a petition or a protest. A petition for some food element which the system needs and is not getting, or a protest against food the system does not need. People past the three-score line do not need a diet of heavy protein which growing children and active young people do, and instead of eating heartily of meat and eggs, they should limit themselves to small amounts, say two or three eggs a week. Otherwise, they may have to suffer from stiffness of joints and rheumatism, for the system has no means of storing surplus amounts of protein and organs have to overwork in its elimination, and pains and aches follow.

With an ever-growing knowledge of health methods and food values, may we not look for the time when people will regard it a disgrace to be sick? With the help of health magazines and the instruction of food experts, one ought to be able so to live as to keep free from colds, for colds result from wrong methods of living. Colds are nature's effort to rid the system of poisons, generated through either willful or ignorant violation of the laws of health. It is the health-seeker's business to avoid those violations and thus keep free from colds; for each one should strive to be of the greatest value to himself and to the world in which he lives. To this end, one needs health—full, jubilant, abounding health—which makes one want to do things, and fills with vigor, vitality and preserved power that insures against weakness and resists disease. "Beloved, I wish above all things that thou mayest prosper and be in health, even as thy soul prospereth."

Dayton, Ohio.

WHY WE NEED CHRISTIAN EDUCATION.

BY REV. J. E. McCAULEY, B. D.

There has not been a time since Christ came into the world but that Christian education was needed. There has not been a time in the history of the Christian religion when it was more needed than it is at the present. This need is not because the people are worse than they used to be, nor is there a lack of interest in religion; but because there is a greater demand for the youth to be prepared for the multifarious problems that are to be confronted in life. The Atheistic Society of America and the non-Christian movements the world over are trying to undermine our youth. Christian education is the only offset for such evils.

In the early Christian centuries, education was taken care of by the process of catechizing the new-comers into the Church. Those who were to be leaders were educated under a tutor or in a school designated for a particular training.

The type of education that the youth of the nation receives always determines the type of citizens the nation will have. Greek education was divided into two types. The Spartans trained their youth to become athletes and soldiers; as a result of such training, there is nothing left but the records of how they fought and destroyed humanity. The Athenians trained their youth in philosophy, art, and aesthetics; as a result, they gave to the world a contribution in this field that has been unsurpassed by any other nation. The Romans insisted on training their youth for soldiers, lawyers, and the practical things of life. Thus they conquered the known world and gave to posterity a system of law. Now, then, as we come to the Christian era, with its form of catechizing and tutoring, we find that this, too, made a contribution to the advancement of civilization. But with the onrush of pagan ideas and religions, the dark ages brought about the practice of educating the Christian worker in the monastery. This type of education meant to them a salvation by means of seclusion and self-satisfaction. But the Greek, Roman, and medieval type of education have passed into oblivion. In this age we face a different problem from any of the preceding ages.

An individual cannot be secluded from the rest of the world. The means of travel, radio, newspaper, and modern conveniences bring us in contact with the whole world in just a few seconds. We must educate our people to meet and cope with the world problem. No education but a Christian education can fulfill this demand. The school is the place where the thought-life of our country is directed. It has been in the schools of higher learning that most of the progressive moves have taken place and borne fruit. Since the tree is to bring forth fruit of its kind, it behooves us, as Christian individuals, to see to it that the right kind of environment is thrown around our children in educating them. There are progressive moves that have taken place in the schools which have resulted in world movements. Also there are movements which have originated elsewhere and gone into the schools that they might receive impetus. Those movements are as follows:

First, the Reformation had its origin in the educational institutions of its day. Such characters as Martin Luther, John Calvin, Thomas Cranmer were the recipients of the thoughts and courage that came to them while studying in the various institutions of their day. From these three grew the Reformation, Calvinism, and the English Prayer Book. John and Charles Wesley organized the "Holy Club" while in school at Oxford. This later became the mother of the Methodist Episcopal Church. It was while Samuel J. Mills was in Williams College that he organized the Society of Brethren, out of which grew the world's missionary movement. It is the student movement all over the world at the present time that is likely to revolutionize the world's thinking in regard to world peace. Such movements as these have been a direct result of the thinking of the students who have been in a wholesome environment. A direct contrast with such movements as mentioned above is the Atheistic Society of America.

In the May number of World's Work, an article appeared, entitled "Atheism Beckons to Our Youth." Below we give some of the aims of the officers of the society, who are Mr. Charles Smith, president, and Mr. Freeman Hopwood, secretary, both of New York. "We are going to undermine the Churches of America as certainly as time comes," said President Smith. He claims that all the people in America who are not affiliated with some religious body are atheists, which number amounts to forty million. He claims that there are a hundred thousand who are professed atheists. The society has a nine-fold goal toward which it is working, viz: "(1) All Churches should be taken; (2) chaplains in Congress, legislatures, and the army and the navy shall be done away with; (3) appropriations of public money for sectarian use shall be stopped; (4) bootlegging (their phrase) of Bible and religion into the schools of America shall cease; (5) no religious festival or fast shall be recognized by the State; (6) the Bible shall no longer be used to administer an oath; (7) Sunday as a religious Sabbath shall no longer be enforced by law; (8) 'Christian' morality shall be done away with; in its place shall be natural morality, equal rights and impartial liberty; (9) 'In God we trust' shall be taken off of coins."

This society was organized outside of the school, but recognizing that the schools are the logical places to get its stronghold if it is to live, it has made every effort possible to get into the institutions of our country. There are twenty institutions of learning in the United States which have atheistic societies. There are a few in the high schools of some of the large cities, but they are mostly in the State and city universities. There are only one or two denominational colleges or universities in the group. At the time of the writing of the article, the organization was only eighteen months old and had made the progress I have already shown. The officers claim that within a period of three hundred years there will not be a Church in the United States. This society wants to rule the Church out and plant such principles as the nine articles of atheism in its place. Their purpose is to educate from God and teach that there is no God, rather than help the youth discover God and restate a faith in Him. The question comes, then, what are we to do about such conditions?

I do not think we should be so badly alarmed over the situation, yet it does claim our attention. (Continued on Page 13.)

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

I have been here at Franklinton Christian College for five days, speaking with Hermon Eldredge to the faculty and students and twenty-two negro preachers who attended. We have private rooms in the Bishop Cottage.

The following white people have been here during our stay. Miss Pattie Coghill, her sister Mabel, and her brother's wife. Miss Pattie delivered good messages to the students. Dr. W. A. Harper, president of Elon College, who delivered a telling address; Rev. E. M. Carter, of Youngsville, N. C.; J. W. Sellers, of Warsaw, Ind., spending the winter with his son-in-law, Rev. Geo. T. Stephens, in High Point; A. H. Call and wife, of New York Western Christian Conference. Dr. C. H. Rowland, of Greensboro, and Rev. Stanley C. Harrell, of Durham, N. C., were expected here to assist Bro. Hermon Eldredge, who represents the Board of Christian Education and has charge of this week's meeting here; but Bro. Rowland was detained by union meeting in Greensboro, and Bro. Harrell by a funeral. All regretted their absence and the loss of their addresses. J. W. Sellers has made a valuable contribution to the college library and is interested in the success of the institution.

This Christian Church college, founded in Franklinton thirty-four years ago, and located in this new place with new buildings thirteen years ago, is on the Seaboard Air Line Railroad and the concrete highway, one mile from Franklinton, N. C. Rev. J. A. Henderson is president, with six teachers, who help him to care for the work. There are 156 students, of whom 104 are young women and 52 young men. There are thirteen in the senior class who expect to graduate at the close of this session.

On Wednesday night eighteen young women of the student body gave the pageant, "The Call of Youth," which appeared in the Sunday School Herald some time ago. It was well rendered and the audience was large and appreciative. I attended some of the classes and found the work in good shape by both teachers and students. There seems to be an air of good behaviour throughout the institution, great respect for President Henderson, and for one another.

One thing attracts attention here—the unfinished dormitory, which is badly needed to house students and to prevent decay in the building itself. If some liberal soul would give a few thousand dollars for this purpose it would reward the donor by increased usefulness of the college and endless good in the years to come.

Two things stand out boldly in Franklinton College—the deep religious feeling among faculty and students, and the great singing in the chapel meetings. Religion and music run together, and both are found in the negro race as in no other race. One of the greatest assets in the Southern States is the religious nature and life of the negro race. Pure spiritual religion in that race creates an atmosphere that is breathed unconsciously by the white race and helps to keep religion dominant in Southern society. No two distinct races on earth dwell together in such friendly relations and peace as the white and negro races in the Southern States; and President Henderson and his faculty are doing all they can to cultivate and extend this relationship.

W. W. STALEY.

ELON LETTER.

It is the custom of the Christian Church, acting through its general Board of Christian Education, to conduct summer schools in every college and educational institution of the denomination. The summertime does not fit in ideally with the program of our colored people in the South, most of whom are farmers and are exceedingly busy during the summer. The Board of Christian Education, therefore, has, for the past several years, been conducting a winter school at Franklinton for our colored people. It is the custom of the college during this school to invite the ministers of the colored Christian Conference to come as guests of the college and as members of the winter school of Christian methods. In this way, both the student body and the ministers are able to get full advantage of the special school.

This year, Mr. Hermon Eldredge was in charge of the school, and was assisted by Dr. W. W. Staley throughout the week. Rev. Stanley C. Harrell, of Durham; Miss Pattie Coghill, of Henderson, and Dean A. L. Hook and the writer, of Elon College, also took part in the school. Mr. J. W. Sellers, of High Point, was present and greatly rejoiced the hearts of all by his further evidence of interest and concern for the library there.

The Franklinton School is different necessarily from our other religious schools. Textbooks are not placed in the hands of pupils for study, but the lecture method throughout is used. But the lectures bear upon vital Christian themes and aim not only to give information to those who attend, but to motivate them in Christian principles. It was certainly interesting to see how these leaders of the colored race not only drank in in their genuinely appreciative spirit the addresses that were given them, but how also they took notes so as to be able to refer to them later. There is no question about the permanent value of such a school of religion as the Board of Christian Education conducts each year at Franklinton. It is one of the best investments that the board can make of its funds.

Rev. J. A. Henderson, president of Franklinton, and his teachers are earnest and consecrated Christian men and women. They have sensible views of the Christian life and of the relations that should exist between the two races. They also have the right idea as to the kind of education which our colored people need at this time, education in practical things, though presented in such a way as to motivate the life in Christian ideals.

The singing of the student body and of the school quartet was a genuine inspiration. I think it would be a fine thing for the quartet to go to the General Board meeting in Dayton next fall and sing, and then to make a tour of the Churches on the way to the General Board meeting and on the return. These young people at Franklinton not only have talent, but they have the right spirit, and they will give the school the kind of prestige it needs to fasten it all the more securely upon the heart's affections of our people.

The financial needs of Franklinton are great. The dormitory that was begun some years ago is still incomplete for the lack of $20,000. The current expense of the school, however, have been met promptly and a high grade of work in the standard high school is being done. We should certainly feel gratified that our colored people are able to send their children to such a Christian institution as Franklinton is and that it should be a privilege and a pleasure to us to help them make it even more worth-while in their life and program. This is a genuine home mission enterprise and should be accepted as such by our people generally.

W. A. HARPER.

BETHLEHEM LETTER.

Life has but two ends—the cradle and the grave. We enter this world with nothing and leave it with no more. In our travels through life we may accumulate possessions which we proudly call our own. At first they are little more than playthings, but as time goes on they are to us in keeping with the years. When we reach that period that we are able to acquire possessions through our own efforts, they take on value.

The normal man is prone to follow his instincts and add to the quantity of his possessions. This habit has grown until in many cases it has become the sole object in life. Man does not instinctively desire to serve his fellow-man. By nature we are selfish, and nothing but the contact and absorption of the religious teachings of Jesus Christ can make us unselfish. We may acquire a secondary instinct, which is a desire to do good and to be good, and if we foster this we are likely to become good Christian citizens.

As we travel toward the end of life we are traveling side by side with millions of people. We meet no one going the other way, but all traveling in the same direction; and from day to day many of our fellow-travelers step aside to enter their last resting-place. The possessions they have acquired are left as they step into the grave; others who are not yet ready to slip away gather up the things and add them to what they already own, thus carrying them along until they, in turn, deposit them all by the grave-side as they find their final resting-place. The endless possessions move on through the centuries, always from the cradle toward the grave.

While we take nothing material with us out of this world, there is something else we have acquired as we have journeyed along the road of life which we do take into eternity; it is the record of what we have earnestly striven to accomplish. Jesus left for us a glorious record of his life which is an example for us. His was a fully consecrated life—a perfect example of what His followers should aspire to work out in their own lives. Every thought and every action was entirely devoted to the cause for which he came, namely: to redeem the human race.

Christ led a wholly consecrated life. Everything He did was consecrated. Everything He owned was consecrated. Money is neither good nor bad. It has an influence which may be either. Its function is to do the will of him who has it in his possession; therefore, its influence depends entirely upon the spending inclinations of the possessor. There is no way in which we can so nearly approach His perfection as in the consecration of our money, for, having decided to do so, we have but to send it on its high mission, and very little effort on our part is required thereafter. Money is one thing we cannot take with us anyhow, and what we do with it as we go through life makes or mars the only thing we can take with us, namely: the record of our lives' work. There is another side to the question, which is the Divine side—that when we give we get. In order to get we must give, and the more we give the more we get.

Our colleges, which are teaching the power of Jesus Christ to save and raising up and developing leadership in His name, are crying out all over this Southland for money. They need it, for they are so constituted that they cannot earn it. God has given to you and to me the power to earn it—perhaps I had better say, to acquire it—and we do. The trouble with the most of us is that we keep more of it than we need. Let us, then, consecrate it. We cannot take it with us. If we leave it for others to spend, our purposes may be defeated. Not to consecrate our money may condemn us, and by giving largely we get largely. If the money of the Southern Christian Convention folks was consecrated, our colleges would get all the funds needed to meet all present and future demands. Pray that God will lead to the consecration of our money for the sake of Elon and Bethlehem Colleges. Amen.

S. L. BEOUCHER.

Wadley, Ala.

TUNING IN ON GOD'S WAVE-LENGTH.

By S. M. SMITH.

There come times in the lives of most of us when we seem to rise to heights of almost supernatural strength. In times of danger, a person will sometimes accomplish feats of strength which under ordinary circumstances would be impossible. The minister, in the midst of a sermon, finds himself suddenly inspired, he soars away into flights of oratory he has never before known, his congregation is powerfully moved. A friend of mine tells me of an experience that is not uncommon. He retired at night very much concerned about a problem in engineering which had to be solved right away in order for him to complete a job in contract time. Before going to sleep he dismissed it from his mind with the feeling that somehow everything would work out all right. He awoke the next morning to find, on the table in his room, the problem worked out in detail in his own handwriting. He had gotten up in his sleep and done the work without knowing it. He observed that in working out the problem he had employed certain principles of higher mathematics with which he was not supposed to be familiar.

The question is, where did he get the knowledge and ability to do this? What source of power did he contact? Where does a man get the physical strength to enable him to carry a piano from a burning building without assistance? What fountain-head of power does the minister or public speaker tap that makes it possible for him to sweep beyond himself and carry his hearers with him until they break forth into shouting or a pandemonium of applause. Somewhere there must be such a source of power. Under certain circumstances we evidently contact it. Is it possible for us to learn to contact it at will? Suppose we could! There would be little or nothing in life we could not accomplish. What is this great source of power? Where is it located? By what method of procedure can we contact it?

Some call it universal mind. Others call it Divine mind. Some say it pervades the universe and can be contacted if we only know how to tune in. By whatever other name it may be designated, this great power is, after all, none other than God Himself, the Divinity within us, which we contact through our subconsciousness by tuning in on the Divine wave-length.

The greatest fact in human life is the coming into a conscious, vital realization of our oneness with this Universal Mind, this Infinite Source of all power, and the opening of ourselves to its divine inflow. Christ said, "I and my Father are one." So it is our privilege to be. Christ realized His oneness with the Father and made the most of it when He needed extraordinary power. We do not. Were we able to tune in at will and contact this divine source of power, nothing in life would be impossible of attainment.

"Greater things than these shall ye do," Christ said to His disciples as they marveled at His miracles. That is exactly what is meant in the Scripture, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you."

When I was a boy I attended the Baptist Church near my home. The old minister, a devout soul and learned in his day, preached a great deal about heaven and hell. According to his theology, heaven was a far-away place in the skies where a stern God sat upon a great white throne and meted out judgment to those who had died, while angels entertained Him with heavenly music. For a long time that was my conception of heaven. But how much more it means to me now when I remember the words of the Master when He said, "Say not, Lo here nor lo there; know ye not that the kingdom of heaven is within you?" He could have said, "Come ye into a conscious realization of your oneness with the Father's life. As ye realize this oneness, you find the kingdom, and finding this kingdom and establishing it in your own life, all things else shall be added unto you."

Our parents constituted the instrumentality through which we came into physical being, but the highest life, which is the physical plus everything else, comes only from God.

One day some friends came to Christ and told Him that His mother and His brethren were waiting outside to see Him. "Who is my mother, and who are my brethren?" he asked. He did not mean to be disrespectful toward those of His own family. He explained by reminding them that He considered those who did the will of His Father as being more definitely related to Him than those of His own flesh and blood.

When we refer to self, we use the capital letter "I." That's good grammar. But none of the other personal pronouns are capitalized. For a long time I couldn't understand why this was. My explanation now is that when we say "I," we refer not to the person, but to the Deity within. Suppose we realized that every time we referred to self! To do away with all sense of separateness, and to recognize at all times this oneness of self with the Divinity within, is the spirit of all Christ's teachings. The prophets, sages, seers, and great spirits of the past were those who grasped the significance of this teaching and appropriated it. It is our privilege so to be and do.

CRUSADE OF YOUNG PEOPLE.

Evangelism, world peace and Christian citizenship will be the points of emphasis in the nationwide movement of Christian youth which will begin on Easter Sunday, April 8th. The Christian Endeavor groups and other young people's organizations in this section and throughout the country will be united in the crusade with Christ as the new movement is named.

Twenty-five denominations and leaders in religious education and citizenship are associated with the International Society of Christian Endeavor in the crusade, which was inaugurated at the Cleveland convention of the international society in July, 1927. Before 17,000 young people gathered in this convention, Rev. Daniel A. Poling, D. D., international president, presented the challenge of the three-fold loyalty of youth to great tasks of the Christian Church, in the fields of personal living, good citizenship and law observance and international brotherhood and peace. Following the approval of the program by the young people, three commissions were formed to study the possibilities of evangelism, world peace and Christian citizenship as ideals for a North American movement of youth of the Churches.

The crusade actually takes form throughout the continent on Easter Sunday, April 8th, when it will be inaugurated with early morning prayer-meetings arranged by interdenominational groups of young people in co-operation with the various Churches and Sunday Schools and Christian Endeavor Societies. The devotional emphasis of these meetings will be on an enlarged service for young people in their individual Churches and in carrying the message of the Church among their friends. The crusade will have as its further objectives the study and practice of patriotism in the use of the ballot by those entitled to vote, the observance of all laws, and fulfillment of every citizenship obligation. In the broader field of international good will, the crusaders will seek to understand the viewpoint of other peoples and to break down some of the barriers of prejudice and jealousy. The Christian Endeavor organization in particular is a world-wide fellowship, having 4,000,000 members in 100 countries of the world. The Sunday Schools and denominational bodies likewise have international affiliations that will enable them to advance this objective by a closer fellowship among those similarly affiliated in other nations.

Young people's leaders have been impressed with the development of the Christian crusade ideal since it was proposed in Cleveland by Dr. Poling. The address which gave to the crusade its name and the other general policies and plans outlined in the International Christian Endeavor Convention was discussed in young people's summer conferences and in fall institutes of Christian youth groups, with a resulting demand for information, literature and speakers for young people's mass-meetings. When the three commissions had met in December, setting forth certain objectives for the crusaders, an inter-denominational central committee was formed and definite plans for extending the usefulness of young people to the Churches were made. One of the first purposes will be to enlarge the force of young people connected with the Churches of America. In spite of unfavorable comments made by some concerning the young people of today, it is doubtful if the Churches have ever had available so large a youth force for recruiting new members and engaging in citizenship and welfare work as they now possess. The new crusade will energize and educate this youth force so that its usefulness to the Churches and communities will doubtless be greatly increased. In view of this new movement within the Church, Easter 1928 will have a real message of reconsecration and spiritual power to several million young people.—International Society of Christian Endeavor.

PLEASED.

May I, as a new subscriber, be allowed to express my appreciation of the spiritual help I am getting through THE CHRISTIAN SUN, all of which I enjoy?

There are several articles I would particularly like to mention that appeal to my hungry soul, viz: (1) Rev. J. G. Truitt's weekly messages are most interesting and inspiring; (2) Rev. H. S. Hardcastle's Sunday School Lessons are very helpful to me in my daily study of the Bible; (3) the Family Altar, conducted by Rev. H. E. Rountree, is also worthy of being commended. How I wish we had more family altars in the homes of every country! I am very glad to read that our dear Bro. Dr. Atkinson is improving in health.

I read with much interest our Porto Rico Letter from Miss Adams. May God continue His loving care over her, giving her grace and courage to keep in the work He has given her to do.

Yours in Christ,

E. D. PAPZEAN.

The missionary cause suffers from the emotional mood. We do not need oratory, but facts. Rousement is good, but it should come after information.—Anon.

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Field Secretary.

MISSION PERIOD.

The Southern Convention, in session at Durham in 1926, divided our Church calendar year as follows: January, February—college period; March, April, May, June—mission period; July, August, September, October—religious education period; and November, December—Christian Orphanage period.

The object of this Church year was that the four major interests of the Church might be emphasized in our pulpits and Sunday Schools on some Sunday or Sundays in the period named and take an offering from every member in the Church for the object named in that period. So now the mission period is upon us.

It is hoped and believed that our pastors are going to use this mission period and see to it that every Church in the Convention shall teach, preach, emphasize missions and give to missions. The reason why four months were given to missions was on the supposition that two months and one offering would be given to home, and two months and one offering to foreign missions. However, the Mission Board deemed it wise, in order to avoid so many offerings, to ask for one offering which is to be divided equally between home and foreign missions, unless any individual making the offering shall specify differently.

This year the Mission Board has set a goal for each Church which certainly seems to be reasonable and one that every Church can reach, viz: for every Church to make its mission offering at least one-sixth the amount of the pastor's salary.

Since we know that missions, which means giving the gospel to those who haven't that blessing, is at the foundation of all Church progress and power, we hope every Church will measure up to this goal and that many will go over it.

J. M. DARDEN,
Acting Secretary.

HISTORY OF MISSIONS.

BY REV. P. T. KLAPP.

Christian missions is the greatest subject, or enterprise, in the whole world. There are many enterprises in the world that are of great value to this business and commercial age, but none worthy to be compared with the Christian mission enterprise. Its mission first of all is to evangelize the world, and therefore there is nothing to compare with it, and it has done more to civilize the world than any other influence; yes, it has done more to open commercial intercourse with the nations of the world than all other institutions.

Now, let us notice wherein it does otherwise pay to invest in missions. There is not a line of legitimate industry in the United States that has not been financially benefitted by Christian missions. There never has been an investment that made better returns in dollars and dimes than the meager sums given to foreign missions. For an illustration, the missionaries opened up Japan to trade, commerce, improvements and progress, and an immense advantage in trade to our country followed. The export trade of the United States to Asiatic countries was almost nothing before the missionaries taught them who and what we were and what we had. Our exports to Asiatic countries in 1905 was about $127,000,000, and it is now increasing by leaps and bounds. Our purpose in using this illustration is to enable the Christian Church of North Carolina to see what their investments in missions has meant to them as a denomination.

Up to 1883, the Christian Church had made very little progress, and that was mainly due to a lack of interest in missions. In 1883, the Christian denomination had but one Church in a town in North Carolina, and that was Hayes Chapel, Garner, N. C. About this time the Christian Church in North Carolina caught a new vision of her responsibilities and opportunities in Christ's kingdom; and from 1883 to 1925 we have organized Churches and erected houses of worship in the following cities and towns, viz: houses of worship and their value—Raleigh, $150,000! Durham, $50,000; Youngsville, $2,500; Burlington, $100,000; Greensboro (First), $40,000; Greensboro (Second), $6,000; Reidsville, $20,000; Danville, Va., $8,000; Henderson, $6,000; Sanford, $5,000; High Point, $3,000; Chapel Hill, $10,000; Franklinton, $8,000; Haw River, $4,500; Clayton, $6,000; Ether, $2,500; Seagrove, $2,500; Graham, $25,000; Keyser, $1,000; Mebane, $3,500.

Now, the value of this Church property gained from our home missionary funds from 1883 to 1925 is valued at $354,000. This does not include the value of the Church property held by the Christian denomination previous to 1883; neither does it include the value of our Church property gained in the rural districts during this same period.

On the third Sunday of April, 1884, the writer of this history, as pastor, gave to his congregation an account of the heathens who would kill, roast and eat their own little children as we would a turkey, and this was for the lack of the salvation of Christ; hence our responsibility. When we closed the service and went out on the Church yard, a man whose name was Roney Womack, who could not even write his own name, came to us and said: "If that statement you made is true, here is all the money I have—thirty-five cents. Take it and use it to send the gospel to them for their relief, and if our people will not use it that way, give it to some Church that will use it for them." The statement made by this brother caused a desire to come into the heart of the writer of this history that the Christian Church should no longer fail to obey God, but to accept the full commission of preaching the gospel to every creature.

We decided in our mind to try to get our coming Conference to take up the work of foreign missions. We became so burdened about it and interested in it that we mentioned it to three of our brethren—Revs. D. F. Jones, S. B. Klapp and J. D. Wicker—and found them in sympathy with us. We set to work and raised from April to November $100.26. The North Carolina and Virginia Christian Conference met that same fall, November, 1884, with the Christian Church at Poplar Branch, Moore County. During this Conference, on Saturday, the writer offered this resolution: "Resolved, That we set apart Monday, at 11 A. M., as a special hour to consider the advisability of entering into the foreign mission fields"—and this resolution was adopted by the Conference.

Saturday night following, Rev. D. F. Jones and the writer spent the night in prayer and study, and drew up a paper memorializing the Southern Christian Convention, which was to and did meet with the Church at Mt. Auburn, May, 1886, to elect a board on foreign missions, whose duty it should be to consider fields for work and to accept or appoint missionaries for the field. The Convention adopted this memorial and appointed the following brethren on that board: Revs. P. T. Klapp, W. G. Clements, W. T. Herndon, A. Moring, and M. J. W. White. Rev. D. F. Jones and wife accepted the appointment for Japan, and sailed from New York, by way of England, and reached their destination safely in 1886.

Up to 1884, the Christian Church in the South had no college, but it was being advocated. It was, at that time, thought by some of our strongest brethren, if we succeeded in establishing this work in the foreign mission fields it would be the defeat of the desired college; but, instead, we believe that it opened the way for the forthcoming needed college, for we believe that the liberality of the Christian Church has increased more than 100 per cent since 1884. Now the Christian Church has and owns a standard and a first-class, well-equipped Elon College, with a strong faculty, doing a fine work in the education of our people. We say just here, we do not teach evolution as referring to the origin of man at Elon College. We believe that God made man, a perfect man, in His own image and after His own likeness.

At the Conference held at Oak Level, November, 1883, there was an order made that four hundred circular letters be printed and sent out to raise money to aid the brethren of the Raleigh Christian Church in building their house of worship. In 1884 or 1885, Captain S. P. Read introduced a bond system, the amount of which was to be paid in five years—annually in five equal payments. Then later the North Carolina and Virginia Conference organized a missionary association, with a membership fee of $5.00, and still later this association was reorganized, with a membership fee of $10.00, or lifetime membership fee of $25.00. Then the Conference held at Berea, N. C., November, 1914, elected a board of home missions, whose duty was to direct the distribution of the money coming into their hands. Rev. L. I. Cox was the financial agent of this board, and from this board a number of Churches in rural districts received financial assistance.

Now, let's compare our numerical and financial standing as it was in 1883 with our numerical and financial standing as it is in 1925. In 1883 the Christian denomination had only two Conferences in North Carolina, sixty-six Churches with membership of 5,173, and the value of Church property was $20,410. Now in 1925 we have three Conferences, 114 Churches, with a membership of 12,648, and value of Church property is $712,365, adding to this the value of our Elon Christian College property, we have a financial standing of $1,611,370, which shows our financial standing at the present to be a total of $2,323,735, with an annual income of $808,393, which gives the Christian Church in property values in North Carolina a grand total of $3,131,028. We have tried as best we could to work out and give you a true history of what missions has meant to the Christian Church in North Carolina since 1883.

Elon College, N. C.

BRO. ALLRED ENCOURAGED.

My Churches are doing fine work this year. The prayer meetings at High Point and Randleman are really inspiring. The people get happy and are not ashamed to shout. The Sunday Schools at all three of my Churches are doing fine work.

We have taken the offering for the colleges in my Churches and gave the people the opportunity to satisfy their conscience. We tried to make clear the need of this offering and asked our members to pray over the matter and mind the Lord. The offering, however, has not reached the amount asked for by the Convention. I do not know why. The Master knows why. If our people were more concerned for saving souls, I feel they would be more sure to reach financial goals. The financial business of a Church would be settled if the membership was really devoted to the great work of saving souls. Such a Church will have already given itself to God, and it will be easy for them to give money.

Christians who have the habit of prayer give up worldly pleasures that do not conform to the will of God. The Lord has said that some things that are highly esteemed with men are an abomination in His sight. We need to be more on our knees so that we may receive power; and after the Holy Ghost has come upon us, and not before, we shall have results in our Christian life. That is why we do not have any more results. We lack power.

My Christian friends, if that be true, let us seek that power that we may reach the hearts of men and women. Christians have freely received from God, and they should freely give back to Him and to His Church. Our ministers and teachers need to be filled with the Spirit, so that they will know how to tell others about it.

I verily believe when God calls a man to preach, if that man will tarry till he is filled with the Spirit, there will be no need for higher learned folks to write and tell him what to preach about on certain occasions. The Spirit will lead him to know what to preach on.

Faith comes by hearing, and hearing by the Word of God. When people get filled with the Spirit, begging for money will be over, for they will bring money with gladness in their hearts and lay it at the apostles' feet to be used according to the needs of the Church.

Jesus did not say ignorance was the way; neither did He say that learning was the way. He said, "I am the way, the truth, and the life." Learning is wonderful, but life is better. He came that we might have life and have it more abundantly. We should all work in the Spirit of Christ, that we may realize that we are debtors both to the wise and to the unwise.

Brethren, pray for me, that I may be filled with the fullness of God's love.

J. M. ALLRED.

OUR STEWARDSHIP.

By MRS. R. J. NEWTON.

Do you ever stop to think of the great need of missionary work in the world? Do you know that two-thirds of all the people on earth still worship false gods? There are a billion, six hundred million people in the world, while the Christians of all denominations and creeds number less than six hundred million. More than a billion worship false gods. This is nearly twice as many as the number of even professed Christians; perhaps ten times as many as true Christians. Eight hundred million worship at heathen shrines. One hundred and fifty million are Animists—the lowest of all pagans, who worship animals and the forces of nature. This is the situation two thousand years after Christ said, "Go preach the gospel to every creature." Some say it does not make any difference. God will take care of the heathen. It does make a difference whether people are Christians or not. The whole history of the world proves it. The whole situation of the world today demonstrates it. Something is radically wrong, and will continue to be wrong until we come back to God's plan for carrying on His work. Yes, until we who call ourselves followers of Christ and God's stewards, realize that we should make the promotion of His kingdom our first consideration. Christian people declare the Bible to be their only rule of faith and practice, yet in the matter of Christian finance, many have ignored its plain teachings and have tried every plan devised by man. Man's plan may succeed, but God's will never fail. The Bible designates two sources of financing—tithes and free-will offerings. The tithe should be paid as cheerfully as any other debt. It is a solemn thing to handle trust funds when they belong to God, for one day He will say, "Render an account of thy stewardship." The recognition of our responsibility to God as stewards of everything we are and have—life, time, talent and possessions—is fundamental to a real Christian experience. Are we using all for the glory of God or are we using our opportunities for material things and worldly pleasure? The heathen bows down and worships wood and stone and puts us to shame by giving his best to the god he worships. Then, it seems to me, that we who worship the true and living God should come back to His plan for extending the kingdom on earth and bring Him the best of what is not ours, but of what He has entrusted to us while here on earth. Some say tithing was a part of the Mosaic law, binding only upon Jews. The Ten Commandments were also the Mosaic law, yet when some one steals our car or kills our child we are ready to accept the Mosaic law as just and divine and want full punishment inflicted. Christ says, "I came not to destroy, but to fulfill the law." The tithe has from Abraham to the prophet Malachi, in the Old Testament, and Jesus and the apostles in the New Testament as its endorers. Then, if we are Christ's redeemed disciples, the law of tithing is just as binding on us as it was on the Jew. We do not find where the law of tithing has ever been repealed.

If all our Church members would pay the tithe (Jesus said pay; the Pharisee said I give tithes) our colleges would be well endowed and our missionary treasuries would be filled, ready to send out missionaries as fast as they could be prepared. God's plan was to save the world through Christ and redeemed men and women, who were to carry Christ to the world. Some one is responsible for the millions now in darkness. "Lord, is it I?"

The missionary passion does not rest on the heathen's desire for the gospel. It rests on our obligation as followers of Christ. Upon us rests the duty of evangelizing the world. Others gave it to us, it has made us what we are, and no Christian should be content until the gospel had gone to those in darkness. The salvation of the world is the cause for which Christ came, served, suffered and died. True Christians should exalt this cause.

What are we doing to help the cause for which He died? As stewards, we owe God at least part of our time, talents and money. How much you should give, you and God alone knows. The highest compensation from tithing is spiritual. It enriches the life by a happy realization that you are a co-worker with God—one of His trustees. Oh, that we as a Church might wake up! Read Mal. 3:8-10, and believe God's wonderful promises.

BRO. ELDER ON MISSIONS.

Though I am cut out from regular work, my interest is not abated. We are now in the mission period of our benevolence program. I hope the ministers of the Georgia and Alabama Conference will endeavor to inform their members about the needs of our mission work and that they will arrange upon a certain day during the mission period to have mission talks by several.

I suggest that the pastor preach before this special day a mission sermon. Let him at this time announce the Church's quota, and then on the day set for raising the money let some one stand with him in the pulpit and take down the names and amounts offered for this purpose. Let the minister start the ball rolling by heading the list himself. It will be well for him to see a few members before hand and have them ready with a liberal subscription as soon as the opportunity is offered.

In all such matters of money-raising there is nothing like getting a good start. It is with our pastors as to how much we will receive on any such occasion. If they plan well for it, they will reap good results.

I call upon every pastor in the Georgia and Alabama Conference by all means to get busy and to prepare to go over the top in the mission offering, Ga.

H. W. ELDER.

RECOMMENDED BOOKS

The following educational helps and books have been recommended by Dr. W. P. Minton, Secretary of Foreign Missionary Department, and Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Mission Secretary, S. C. C. Acting upon the advice and recommendation of these two recognized and earnest missionary workers, The Christian Publishing Association has stocked the following books, which are moderately priced and can be supplied on receipt of order:

FOREIGN MISSIONARY BOOKS

- New Paths for Old Purposes—By Margaret E. Burton. In cloth, $1.00; paper$.60
- The Nursery Series—Ah Fu (a Chinese river boy), Kembo (a little girl of Africa), The Three Camels (a story of India), Asa (a little Boy of Nazareth), board backs, each60
- Our Japanese Friend—By Ruth Isabel Seabury, in cloth only..... .75
- Young Japan—By Mabel Gardner Kerschuer, in paper, each..... .40
- A Straight Way Toward Tomorrow—By Mary Schauflier Platt, cloth, 75c; paper50
- "Straight Way Towards Tomorrow" has been prepared especially for Missionary Societies.

HOME MISSIONARY BOOKS

- The Adventure of the Church—By Samuel McCrea Cavert, cloth, $1; paper$.60
- Indian Playmates of Navajo Land—By Ethel M. Baader, cloth75
- The Better American Series—Junior Home Mission Courses, cloth.... .75
- The Story of Missions—By Edwin E. White, cloth, $75; paper..... .50
- Please Stand By—By Margaret Applegarth, in cloth, 75c; paper.... .50
- Nine Home Mission Stories—For teachers to tell Primary pupils, paper25
- The Upward Climb—By Sarah Estella Haskin, in cloth only, each.. .75
- In the Vanguard of a Race—By Mrs. L. H. Hammond, in cloth, $1.00; paper75

A SERIES OF SIX BIG FOREIGN MISSION BOOKS

- China, Japan, India, Africa, Near East, and Latin-America—Per set in cloth, $6.00; paper, $4.00; cloth, $1.25; paper.....$.75

ANY OF THE ABOVE OR OTHERS MAY BE SECURED FROM

All books sent postpaid.

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

INTERNATIONAL UNIFORM SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

BY REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE.

Lesson XI—March 11, 1928.

JESUS FEEDS THE MULTITUDES.

GOLDEN TEXT: "I am the Bread of life; he that cometh to me shall not hunger, and he that believeth on me shall never thirst."—John 6:35.

LESSON: Mark 6:31-44; 8:1-10.

DEVOTIONAL READINGS Ezekiel 34:11-16.

"And he saith unto them, Come yourselves apart into a desert place and rest a while." The Christian worker, in common with other workers, needs to get away from his work occasionally. The Master Himself is authority for this statement, as the words quoted above indicate. He needs to get away for the sake of perspective as well as for rest and recreation in the sense of recreation. In spite of the fact that there are so many things that need to be done, all of them seemingly important, it is well to drop everything occasionally and get away from it all, both for seeing things in their proper relation and for getting rest. Every minister owes it to himself and to his congregation to get away perhaps for a day once in a while as well as for a vacation, even if it is a brief one. Every Church ought to make it possible for its minister to have a little change, a little relief from the routine, an occasional opportunity for study or attendance at summer conferences, or some such recreational activity. In the long run, a man will do more and better work. It should be said, too, that when a Church does give a minister a vacation he should hold it in sacred trust, using it in such a way that he will be refreshed physically, mentally and spiritually.

What has been said about ministers is true of business men, professional men, and especially of mothers and housewives. What a difference it would make in the lives of so many poor, tired mothers if they could get away from everything for a while!

"And He came forth and saw a great multitude, and He had compassion on them because they were as sheep not having a shepherd." The word compassion means "to feel with," or "to suffer with." Jesus had, to a marvelous degree, the power to put Himself in the other person's place, to feel with him, to suffer with him. We lose so much in life because we overlook the fact that when we have temptation, or sorrow, or trouble, or perplexity, or death, the Master enters sympathetically into our lives and shares our experiences. We have not an high priest which cannot be touched with our infirmities, but one like unto us. Therefore, He knows how to help those who are in trouble. The Sunday School teacher who thinks that the members of his or her class are unresponsive, who feels what seems to be the futility of the efforts put forth, must keep in mind that Jesus had to deal with the same discouraging situation. Not only were there many things which He could not tell them; there were many things which He did tell them which they did not understand and to which they did not respond. Let us not be weary in well-doing. Like the Master, we shall reap in due season if we faint not.

"His disciples said, Send them away . . ." But He answered, "Give ye them to eat." How often do we, like the disciples, send away those who are hungry, not only for material or physical things, but for the bread of life? And how often we do it, when, all unknown to us, we have that which the multitude needs. Let us learn one thing: if the needs of the world are to be met, they must be met through the generosity of those who have received from the Christ. God does not give us to hold, but to use. It is not what a man has, but how he got it and how he uses it, that blesses or damns his soul.

"Five barley loaves and two fishes." What a meager supply for such a large crowd! And yet when this meager supply was brought to the Master and consecrated to His use, He made it overabundantly adequate to meet the needs of that multitude. Alas! that so often we do not give anything because we think we do not have anything worth giving. How God could use even what we think is a paltry sum if we would only give it as unto Him. How glad He would be to get the supposedly trivial sums which we Americans and we professing Christians spend on chewing gum, and soft drinks, and cosmetics, and movies, and pleasure-gasoline in one year! And how He could feed the world on the gospel, the bread of life, if He had that which we have! There seems to be a deepening conviction on the part of an ever-increasing number of thinking people that being a Christian is something more than a man's manner of life, as important as that is—it also includes a man's attitude toward and use of money.

"And He took the five loaves and the two fishes, and, looking up to heaven, He blessed and brake the loaves." How thankful the Master was, even for the little things of life! What a central place gratitude had in His life! Like Him, we can find often, even in our most straitened circumstances, that for which to be thankful. Paul says it is the will of God that we be thankful.

"And He gave to the disciples to set before them." God gives to us, that we may give to others. Money, education, influence, capacities, strength, everything we have and are is a trust to be used not selfishly, but for others. God meets the needs of men through men.

"And they were all filled." As I recall it, the word here indicates that they were satisfied. God, through Christ, can meet the deepest needs of men in a way that satisfies. One of the most pathetic and most universal facts of life is the hopelessness in which men and women seek satisfaction in the things that can never, never satisfy. Christ alone can give that which satisfies the hunger and thirst of men after that which our hearts crave.

"And they took up the broken pieces, twelve basketfuls, and also of the fishes." There was no waste. And strange, strange, strange indeed! there was a basketful for each disciple. Strange! No, not strange, for there are multitudes today who will bear testimony that no matter how much they give for others, they still have enough for themselves. Under the blessing of God, nine-tenths will go farther than ten-tenths used for self. Freely we have received, freely let us give. And as we measure, it shall be measured unto us.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Sunday, March 18, 1928.

TOPIC: "What Are the Real Values of Church Membership?"—Col. 3:8-17.

Some Bible Hints.

To belong to a society, one of whose great aims is to transform character, is a real benefit, a real help (v. 8).

The Church places before us a new ideal, Christ, and can be satisfied with nothing less than a life lived in His spirit (v. 10).

The Church stands for human brotherhood, overleaping the bounds of race and nationality. Christ in any man gives him a place in the company of the redeemed (v. 11).

The Church is a family whose members are expected to be kindly, gentle, truthful, meek, long-suffering, and so on. It is valuable to have this standard before us to shame our failure (vs. 12-14).

Suggestive Thoughts.

The Church is the home of the highest things. It stands for beautiful character formed on the model of Jesus' life (Col. 3:14-17).

We are so forgetful that without the Church we should forget the beautiful life we are called to live. The Church forever challenges us.

Church membership places responsibilities upon us. It is not good for us to wander through life footloose, carefree, careless. God harnesses us to great tasks.

As a Church member we enjoy rights and privileges—we belong to Christ, the Church's Head; we fellowship at His table; we find sympathy when in trouble.

A Few Illustrations.

What is the value to a hungry man of a good dinner table? The Church provides divine nourishment, and members have a right to it.

Church membership gives us a vision of the needs of others and is an antidote against selfishness. It prevents us from shriveling into uselessness.

Men give up many things to enter school or college. As Church members, we belong to God's school of training for the life beautiful. It prepares us for life beyond death.

As Church members, we are members of the greatest life-saving crew in the world; saving not bodies only, but souls, bringing them out of death into life.

To Think About.

What induced you to become a Church member? What good has your Church membership done you?

Why should all Christians be Church members?

YOUNG PEOPLE'S PROGRAM.

The following is the program of Church and Sunday School Institutes of the North Carolina and Virginia Conference, to be held March 20th to 29, 1928:

Morning Session—10 o'Clock.

Theme—"Builders Together."

Devotional Service—Dr. C. H. Rowland.

Address—"Building Through Daily Vacation Bible School," Mrs. C. H. Rowland.

Address—"Building with Children and Young People," Pattie Coghill.

Benediction.

Afternoon Session—2 o'Clock.

Devotional Service—Pastor.

Address—"Building Together in the Church," Dr. C. H. Rowland.

Round-Table Discussion—"How We May Better Build Our Work," led by Pattie Coghill.

Closing Song and Benediction.

Evening Session—7:30 o'Clock.

Worship Service—Young People.

Address—"Building Through Co-operation," Mr. W. B. Truitt.

Address—"Building a Christian World," Mrs. C. H. Rowland.

Closing Service.

The program of the series of Church and Sunday School Institutes to be held in the North Carolina and Virginia Conference the last of March has been planned with the hope of reaching as many of our Churches of the Conference as possible. The program will present many phases of Sunday School and Church work. Dr. C. H. Rowland is president of the Conference and interested in the whole program of our Church. Mr. W. B. Truitt is a Sunday School enthusiast and for years has been a teacher in his own Sunday School. At the present time he is president of the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention. Mrs. Rowland has helped to conduct several very successful daily vacation Bible schools and has long been connected with the mission work of our Church. What these people have to say should be most instructive and helpful. These institutes should promote fellowship as well as a greater efficiency in work.

Below are the tentative places and dates of the institutes:

Long's Chapel—Tuesday, March 20, 1928. Churches in this group: Hopedale, Mt. Zion, Haw River, Union Ridge, Long's Chapel.

Brea—Wednesday, March 21, 1928. Churches in this group: Bethel, Shallow Ford, Bethlehem, Concord, Berea.

Monticello—Thursday, March 22. Churches: Hines Chapel, Apples Chapel, Reidsville, Monticello.

Mt. Bethel—Friday, March 23. Churches: New Lebanon, Happy Home, Howard's Chapel, Mt. Bethel.

Belew Creek—Sunday, March 25. Churches: Salem, Pleasant Ridge, New Hope, Belew Creek.

Liberty (Va.)—Tuesday, March 27. Churches: Hebron, Lebanon, Union (Va.), Liberty.

Pleasant Grove—Wednesday, March 28, 1928. Churches: Pleasant Grove, Ingram.

Danville—Thursday, March 29.

PATTIE COGHILL,
Field Secretary.

A PRAYER FOR TEACHERS.

By GLENN FRANK.

O Lord of learning and of learners, we are at best but blunderers in this God-like business of teaching. Our short-comings shame us, for we are not alone in paying the penalty for them; they have a sorry immortality in the maimed minds of those whom we, in our blunderings, mislead.

We have been content to be merchants of dead yesterdays when we should have been guides into unborn tomorrows.

We have put conformity to old customs above curiosity about new ideas.

We have been peddlers of petty accuracies, when we should have been priests and prophets of abundant living.

We have counted knowledge more precious than wisdom.

We have tried to teach our students what to think instead of how to think.

We have thought it our business to furnish the minds of our students, when we should have been laboring to free their minds.

Give us to see that a student's memory should be a tool as well as a treasure chest.

Help us to see that all facts are dead until they are related to the rest of knowledge and to the rest of life.

May we know how to "relate the coal scuttle to the universe."

Help us to see that education is, after all, but the adventure of trying to make ourselves at home in the modern world.

May we be shepherds of the Spirit as well as masters of the mind.

Give us, O Lord of learners, a sense of the divinity of our undertakings.

The wisdom of the world can be distilled into a few simple principles—and these principles are everlasting. They are fundamental, the fruits of the experiences of all the generations that have ever lived. To be born with the power to recognize them, or to achieve that power, is to become wise. This power of understanding—of "seeing"—is one of the great forces in the world. With a nation it is vital. Progress comes in proportion to the number of minds that "see." The tremendous support which is won for great projects comes not so much because the people are convinced by laborious arguments, but because with swift and accurate insight they are given understanding.—Ex.

One day when I was with Mr. Hicks, the painter, I saw on his table some high-colored stones, and I asked him what they were for. He said they were to keep his eye up to tone. When he was working in pigments, insensibly his sense of color was weakened, and by having a pure color near him he brought it up again, just as the musician, by his test fork, brings himself up to the right pitch. Now, every day men need to have a sense of the invisible God. No nature is of such magnitude that it does not need, every day, to be tuned, chorded, borne up to the ideal of a pure and lofty life.—Henry Ward Beecher.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Minion Bold-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4-7-8x7 Inches, and 1-3-8 Inches Thick.

2152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.75

India Paper Edition, Size 4-7-8x7 Inches, 1-1-10 Inches Thick.

2152X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$6.00

Bourgeois Type, Size 5-3-8x8 Inches, and 1-3-8 Inches Thick.

2167—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.00

2172—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.50

2172A—Same as above, with Apocrypha.....$5.00

2173—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges.....$6.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3-4x3-8 inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3-4x3-8 Inches, and 1 Inch Thick. -

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps.....$2.50

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations. Special book for Sunday Schools.....95c

Minion Type, Pocket Size, 4x6 Inches, 1-1/2 Inches Thick.

With 32 full-colored illustrations; also 25 outline maps through the text and 12 colored maps.

133—Bound in cloth, round corners, red edges, title stamped on side in pure gold.....$1.60

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.$3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 15-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.$4.00

Minion Black-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4-3/4x7 Inches, 1-1/2 Inches Thick.

Printed from clear, large, black-face type, 32 full-page illustrations in sepia and colors, 4,000 Questions and Answers, Harmony of the Gospels, How to Study the Sunday School Lesson, 25 outline Maps, 12 full-page colored Maps.

4152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold.....$3.25

AMERICAN STANDARD VERSION.

TEXT BIBLES.

Printed from Easy-Reading Type, on Good Bible Paper, for Sunday School and Church Use.

Minion Type, Size 4x6 Inches, 1-1/2 Inches Thick, 25 Outline Maps, Bound in Black.

101—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, title stamped on back in pure gold...$1.10

112—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title on back in pure gold.....$2.75

India Paper Edition, Only 7/8-Inch Thick.

112X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.75

Reference and Text Bibles also in minion, brevier, bourgeois, long primer, pica and English type.

Thumb index cut on edge, 50c extra; name printed on any Bible in gold, 40c extra; extra wording, 40c per line.

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5-3/8x8-1/2 Inches and 1-3/8 Inches Thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With concise Bible dictionary, combined concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.75

RED LETTER EDITION

With all the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands, title stamped on side and back in pure gold.....$3.25

Any of the above Bibles sent post paid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 E. Broad St., - - - Richmond, Virginia.

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY REV. H. E. ROUNTREE,
One of Our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"Call upon me, and I will answer thee, and shew thee great and mighty things, which thou knowest not."—Jeremiah 33:3.

MONDAY.

WHAT IS PRAYER?

Text: Psa. 22:1-5.

We will begin by stating what prayer is not. It is not duty, for duty is a debt. It is not begging, for it is not asking for something we want when in greatest need of it. It is not talking to ourselves or to some one else. It is not a pastime and an exercise of words. But it is a relationship in which we stand to God. It is an appreciation of God which makes us practice His presence. It is a fellowship with God in which we speak to Him and He answers us. It is a discipline of our souls in which we practice working for His desired end. It is the judgment seat where we bring what we have done with what He has given us, that we may test it by His divine ideals.

Thus the prayer life is a condition in which is reflected ourselves. We take exercises, not for the money we get out of it, but to keep our bodies in shape. We exercise ourselves in prayer, because it strengthens the fiber of our sympathies and brotherliness, because it gives us strength in temptation, because it disciplines and enlarges the mind, because it sweetens the disposition. Therefore, in prayer we should forget the idea that we have something to do for ourselves.

When the Master prayed He met somebody who was real to Him because He prayed. Can we thus make God real to us?

Prayer.—Our Father, teach us to pray. Make our relation to Thee like the joys of family love. Give us the patience of unceasing prayer. We know our friends are won only by time and testing, and found true, and we know we are not true to fall short of this in our prayer life to Thee. Oh, forgive us and save us! Amen.

TUESDAY.

A WORD ON PRAYER.

I have come to see that the Lord Jesus meant just exactly what He said when He spoke those words in the seventh verse of the fifteenth chapter of John: "If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will and it shall be done unto you."

But we must remember that there are conditions which every praying soul must fulfill if an answer is to be given. What are these conditions? Look for yourselves, for they are clearly stated in God's Word. The discerning soul can plainly see that all the conditions here mentioned may be included in the one word "abide."

Conditions of Prevailing Prayer.

1. Contrite humility before God and the forsaking of sin (2 Chron. 7:14).
2. Seeking God with the whole heart (Jer. 29:13).
3. Faith in God (Mark 11:23, 24).
4. Abiding in Christ (John 15:7).
5. Obedience to God's will (1 John 3:22).
6. Dependence on the Holy Spirit (Rom. 8:26).
7. Importunity (Mark 7:24-30).
8. Ask in accordance with God's will (1 Jno. 5:14).

9. In Christ's name (Jno. 14:13, 14, etc.).
10. Must be willing to make amends for the wrongs done to others (Matt. 5:24).

Causes of Failure in Prayer.

1. Sin in the heart and life (Psa. 66:18; Isa. 59:1, 2).
2. Persistent refusal to obey God (Prov. 1:24, 28; Zech. 7:11, 13).
3. Formalism and hypocrisy (Isa. 1:2, 15).
4. Unwillingness to forgive others (Matt. 11:25, 26).
5. Wrong motives (James 4:3).
6. Despising God's law (Prov. 28:9).
7. Lack of love and mercy (Prov. 21:13).
8. Feeling that prayer is unnecessary.
9. Feeling that it is impossible.

WEDNESDAY

THE PRAYER OF A CONVERTED MAN.

"Lord, what wilt Thou have me to do?"—Acts 9:6.

A young convert and his Lord. God had laid hold on Paul and yoked him to the great reality of Christianity and Paul's willingness to be shown, to be taught and accepting the truth in spite of what others think about it, is the best evidence of a strong character, a strong mind. His cry, "Lord, what wilt Thou have me to do?" expresses a fountain of devotion, a bulwark of brave endurance and readiness to be used. Many are ready for the field, but not the forge. Many are ready to do something, but not to suffer. Paul was like Jesus a little, "My meat is to do the will of Him that sent me."

Prayer.—Our Father, by Thy Spirit show us Thy way, Thy will, and help us to say, here, Lord, take me as I am. Give us devoted hearts and a clear insight into the deep things of Thy heart. Forgive us our sins and save us. Amen.

THURSDAY.

WHAT MANNER OF LIFE?

"Only let your manner of life be worthy of the gospel of Christ."—Phil. 1:27.

"For me to live is Christ."—Phil. 1:21.

The name "Christian" means "Christ's man," "follower," "fellow-worker," "member of His family." And when it is applied, that is what it should mean to every one. A certain teacher once was asked, "Do you hold that Jesus Christ is a personal reality in every-day life?" He replied, "No; it holds me."

Our daily living should be such that we may forget that the supreme ambition is to die right, but that it is to live right. Count upon it, if we cannot be friends with Christ now, we will be strangers then. Read Matt. 7:22, 23, and also the story of the five foolish virgins.

Prayer.—Oh, dear Lord of our souls, we pray for a real fellowship with Thee. We pray for Thy guidance, so that we may walk the living way of the cross to glory. O God, regenerate and renew us this day and every day, so that we may bear the cross for Him and light the path of men to glory. Amen.

FRIDAY.

THE SUNLIT WAY.

"The path of the just is as the shining light, that shineth more and more unto the perfect day."—Prov. 4:10-18; John 8:12.

The underworld is dark, the upper world of right is sunlit. Every normal being wishes to walk the sunlit way.

The light of our life does not depend upon outward conditions. Poverty, low mentality, sickness are handicaps; but it is the inner life that we live which determines the sadness or the joy. "The path of the righteous is light." "Life does not consist in the abundance of the things which we possess"; for the supreme thing is not what we have, but what we are. The light comes into the soul when Christ is received into the heart. As I look back to the days of my childhood, it always is the same vision—coming out from the dark cloud that hung over the years—until Christ came into my life. The light grows brighter and brighter. Youth is beautiful; maturity is still finer; and old age is Beulah Land, all aglow with the light! The "perfect day" will become ablaze with the spiritual brightness of God, when our dull sight is transformed by the "Light inaccessible and full of glory."

Prayer.—By one of the parents, asking that we and our children, and all whom we can influence, may be led to walk in the light, looking unto Jesus who is Himself the Light of the world.

SATURDAY.

EARNESTNESS IN RELIGION.

"From the days of John the Baptist until now, the kingdom of heaven suffereth violence, and the violent take it by force."—Matt. 11:11-19.

Great natures are serious, earnest, intense. Men like Moses, Hosea, Paul, Luther, Galileo, Gladstone, laid siege to life's difficulties with solemn and earnest intent to conquer. Jesus was no exception. "My Father worketh hitherto and I work," He said.

The great epochs and crises of history call for earnest men. Then even common men become heroes. During the Crusades, the children caught the contagion of courage. Women have proved to be heroines in our wars, visiting the battlefields while the atmosphere was reddened by the flames of war, and the bombs fell around. Whole peoples are made bravely earnest by a great crisis.

Religion appeals to the deepest feelings and principles of mind and heart. Unbelief, love of sin, love of the world, self-will, and pride, spiritual indolence and indifference are serious hindrances to progress in the divine life. The rewards of well-doing demand the exercise of earnestness to obtain them. "So run that ye may obtain." Love requires a fine glow of soul. The peril of our day is indifference. Our difficulties, our dangers, the nature of man, of worship and of God demand that we be earnest in religion. "The violent take it by force."

Prayer.—By one of the parents, asking that we may be inspired with courage and confidence to make progress in the Christian life, and that our faith may be abundantly strengthened.

SUNDAY.

KEEPING NEAR TO GOD.

"It is good for me to draw near to God."—Psa. 73:25-28.

Many of us have experienced the truth of this wonderful statement, but to some it is a strange word. It is evident that we need the old reality back again, the reality of God's presence. Then may we say: "My soul, wait thou only upon God."

It is good for us to draw near to God, both in public and private worship, for it is only as we enter into His presence that we begin to understand the true meaning of life. Keeping near to God will mean that we keep very close to life.

We may draw near to God not only through our worship, but through His Word:

"When quiet in my house I sit,
Thy Book be my companion still;
My joy Thy sayings to repeat,
Talk o'er the records of Thy will,
And search the oracles divine,
Till every heart-felt word is mine."

Let us keep the motive in mind, "that I may declare all Thy works." We shall learn to serve others if we keep fellowship with God.

Prayer.—Lord's Prayer, all the circle joining.

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

The spring season of the year is always a happy season of the year to us. When the cold, bleak weather subsides and the air becomes balmy and fresh, and the frogs begin to croak in the little streams, and the many little birds of different kinds and colors begin to twitter and sing in the trees and seem to be perfectly at home on the lawn, and all nature seems to take on new life and new energy—we know that God is love. He made such a beautiful world for us to live in, and filled it with such beautiful things to make our life here happy, pleasant and joyful. The mocking bird comes in the early morning with his joyful song as we awake from the night's sleep. Then, too, the beautiful flowers greet us on every hand, perfect, sweet and fragrant. No painter's brush can equal them in all their beauty, fragrance and sweetness. How thankful we should be to the God who has been so kind and good to us? What beautiful lives we should live! clean, honest, upright and humble. How faithful we should be in our service to Him! Faithful to Him in visiting the sick, the afflicted, the widow in distress, the fatherless. Faithful in carrying the gospel message to those who have not heard or accepted the Christ in our homeland. Faithful in sending the message of Jesus to those in heathen lands who know not His saving power. What great things could be accomplished in His name if we would but show our appreciation of His great love by rendering unto Him our lives, our all.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON,
Superintendent.

REPORT FOR MARCH 8, 1928.

Brought forward $2,791.91

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

N. C. & Va. Conference:

Elon College$ 6.25
Hebron 2.00
Pleasant Ridge 1.61
Reidsville 5.92
Liberty 1.60

17.38

Western N. C. Conference:

Zion 1.50

Eastern N. C. Conference:

Amelia$ 3.35
Henderson 4.47
Morrisville 2.00
Pleasant Hill 2.34
Sanford 4.54
Christian Light 2.63
Oak Level 1.82
Pleasant Union 8.76

29.91

Eastern Virginia Conference:

South Norfolk$ 9.17
Bethlehem 3.71
Holland 9.00

21.88

Valley Virginia Conference:

Mayland 1.91

Special Offerings.

W. A. Raseoe, support of Lois.....$15.00
Chas. D. Johnston, guardian..... 60.00
Club House Boys, one sack guano... 2.50
T. B. Roberts, support children..... 40.00

117.50

New Building Fund.

M. W. Hollowell, Portsmouth, Va..... 20.00

Grand total $3,001.99

WHY WE NEED CHRISTIAN EDUCATION.

(Continued from Page 5.)

I have an idea that when Mr. Smith and Mr. Hopwood are dead and gone and the Atheistic Society has been forgotten, just as the atheistic movement of Yale College, which took place about 1735, has passed into oblivion, to all but the careful student of history, the Church will be stronger than it is today. Jesus said that He would build His Church upon the bold confession of Peter, "and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." I believe this with all my heart; but even with this promise, He did not expect us to quit work and not carry on the task He has given us to perform. Neither does He expect us to try to rear our children in Christian homes and send them to institutions of higher learning, where they will be exposed to teachings that are non-Christian. This is the point that we should be alarmed over. For this reason, we need Christian education in our colleges and universities.

Another reason why we need Christian education is that about the age that most young people are in college there comes a period of doubt in the religious life. In institutions where the various sciences, classics, and history are being taught, and no Christian education along with these subjects, the person often gets away from his belief in God and early rearing. Without the influence of a Christian teacher and environment, the faith of the youth may never be restated. Instead, he may go the way of the atheist. But if he is given Christian education with the other subjects, he will become a stronger Christian by having had the experience of coming into contact with the teachings of science, provided the teachers are Christians. We need Christian education as a safeguard for all the offsets that are thrown around our youth. I am glad that Elon, our denominational college, supplies such a need.

The equipment that Elon has for a Christian educational program is equal to that of the larger institutions of our country and surpasses that of the small colleges. I give this statement from men of the faculty of three of the leading institutions of the South. These men have been to Elon and made a personal inspection of the equipment. The faculty of religious education at Elon will compare favorably with the faculty of religious education of our graduate schools. The courses for training in Christian education are open to all of the Elon students. With such equipment and opportunities as Elon offers, together with the work she has done in the past, we may feel sure that those who are under her care are being guarded against the prevailing dangers of the age.

Vanderbilt Univ., Nashville, Tenn.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES.

We should be glad to furnish your Sunday School the following supplementary supplies, cash to accompany order:

Improved Uniform Series International Lessons.

1. Bible Lesson Picture Roll, 21x32 inches, per quarter $1.25
 2. Sunday School Superintendent (to accompany the Picture Roll), per quarter..... .15
 3. Pupils' Lesson Stories, per quarter..... .06
 4. Little Bible Lesson Pictures, per quarter.. .05
- Group Uniform Series, Primary Course.
1. Group Bible Lesson Picture Roll, 16x20 in., per quarter 1.00
 2. Group Pupils' Lesson Stories, Primary, per quarter07
 3. Group Lesson Pictures, per quarter..... .04

In making order, be explicit and name the quarter for which supplies are wanted; thus: first quarter, January to March; second quarter, April to June; third quarter, July to September; fourth quarter, October to December.

SEND ORDERS TO THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

COMMUNION WARE

Individual Service

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A

- Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses $7.00
Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses 6.75
Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses 6.50
Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim..... 1.60
No. 2—Broad rim 1.60

SILVER-PLATE

The Silver-Plated Ware is of the very lightest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.

Style No. 85

- Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses.$22.00
Base No. 1—Silver-plate; fits Silver Tray No. 85 11.00
Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85... 16.00
(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)

Style No. 90

- Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 33 plain glasses.
Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling). $22.00
Base No. 2—Silver-plate; fits Silver Tray 90... 16.00
Cover No. 4—Silver-plate; fits Silver Tray 90... 14.00

- Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow rim$ 9.00
No. 4—Broad rim 9.00
Filler—Silver lined 6.00

Send Orders to THE CHRISTIAN SUN,
1536 E. Broad St., - - - Richmond, Va.

Kiddies' Korner

MADGE MOFFITT WHITESELL, Editor.

Dear Children:

It seems that my schedule continues to run late, in spite of our good Dr. Harper, who is doing his best to get my letters in on time. I am sending you a story, which I hope you will like; also two little poems borrowed from "Charity and Children." The story is a contribution from a little girl of the Methodist Church. I'm sure you will appreciate her kindness to you in this way.

With all good wishes, I am,

Sincerely,

MRS. T. A. MOFFETT.

Ramseur, N. C.

WHEN PATTY FOUND A CHUM.

By Beulah Rose Stevens.

Patty Drew walked past the new house where a family had just moved in. It was the only house near her home, and she was thinking how nice it would be to have neighbors and maybe—O, maybe a chum!

All at once she stopped and her heart felt very queer. On the door was a sign—a red sign—and the black letters said, "Scarlet Fever."

"O dear!" cried Patty, running in to mother. "Now, if there is a chum, I can't see her for O ever so long!"

That night the paper said: "We are glad to welcome Mr. Wayne Williams and his family to their beautiful new home on Riverside Drive, but we are sorry to record the illness of little Marian. We trust the small invalid will soon be out."

Days will pass and weeks fly by, so one day Patty stopped short again at something she saw at the new house. It was a small, pale face, but it smiled down at her from an upper window. The hair was cut short, but it would grow again. Patty waved a greeting, and a weak little hand was raised for an instant. Patty raced home to tell her mother.

"Why, it was almost like really calling on her, motherdy!" she cried happily. "Our hands said 'Howdy!'"

After a little she came to her mother with a new idea. "O mother, if Marian is well enough to sit up, I can write to her and send her things, can't I?"

"Why, yes. How nice that will be," mother agreed. "But of course you know it wouldn't be safe for her to answer."

"No, I'll just imagine her letters. That will be fun, too."

"And you must send her only things that can be burned, you know."

"O yes, that's what I meant—paper dolls and some of my picture-books and things like that."

Many things traveled to that upstairs room during the weeks while Marian was getting well. Then there came an exciting message—a big, heavy, square envelope just like the invitations mother got sometimes.

"Dear Little Miss Patty,—Will you please come to a party for two under the magnolia? It will be at 3 o'clock. Marian is well again now, and will be so glad to see you. Your grateful friend (signed) Mrs. Williams."

"May I dress up like a real party?" begged Patty. And on went the dainty white frock.

She found a bright rug spread under the great magnolia tree that was full of lovely big satin flowers. And on the rug there was the cutest table with the whitest of cloths and pretty cups and bowls.

But Patty stopped short. There was a boy sitting there. "Where's Marian?" she asked in a disappointed tone. "I thought you meant the party was for her and me, Mrs. Williams."

The boy chuckled as if he just couldn't help it, and Patty liked him on the spot. "I'm Marian," he said, "and the party is for us." Patty stared, giggled—and then how she laughed!

"And I sent you paper dolls, and my celluloid baby, and stuff to make dresses for it—Oh, Oh!" Marian joined her gay laugh. "It was just all right!" he declared. "I wish I could show you those dresses. It was all such fun! I felt like—like a masquerade party, you know. And I'm going to play dolls with you and house and school, and you're going to run and jump and climb and play ball with me. Why, mother and daddy lived next-door when they were little, and they say it's lots more fun to be chums than two boys or two girls."

"I just believe it will be!" cried Patty happily, as she sat down to her custard smothered in-whipped cream.

TITHING LITERATURE AT LESS THAN COST.

During the last five years, the Layman Company has circulated more than one hundred million pages of pamphlets advocating tithing, either free or at less than cost.

They now offer to send, postage paid, a package containing 38 of these pamphlets, aggregating 500 pages by 33 different authors, for 50 cents. They include "Thanksgiving Ann" and one other in playlet form; also a "Tithing Account Book" with plain directions for use, and "Adventures in Tithing," a 96-page book. The price is less than the cost of production.

Please mention THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and also give your denomination. Address The Layman Company, 740 Rush Street, Chicago, Ill.

Reporters may help us by studying brevity in expression. So many other people want space that no one should spread his matter out over unnecessary space.

OXFORD BIBLES

An Oxford $3.50
Teacher's Bible only

"The
Oxford Bible
is the Bible
par excellence
of the world"

The best recommendation of the OXFORD TEACHER'S BIBLES is the fact that over 3,000,000 copies have been sold. The wonderful helps they contain save your time because they are alphabetically arranged, making reference easy. They take the place of many books about the Bible, and can be depended upon, being written by eminent scholars. The Helps contain 32 graphic illustrations, besides 15 beautifully colored maps. The text is the Authorized or King James version, with over 50,000 centre column references.

These Are Genuine OXFORD Teacher's BIBLES

EASY-TO-READ EDITION

Size 7 1/4 x 5 x 1 1/4 inches

Specimen of Type

17 And there was a very sore battle
that day; and Abner was beaten,

Nos.
04451	Moroccoette, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges	$3.50
04453	French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and handsome Bible	4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Same as above, but printed on the famous Oxford India paper used only in Oxford Bibles. Only one inch thick.

(Weight 13 oz.)

Nos.
0773x	French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition	$7.50

RED LETTER EDITION

05453	As No. 04453 with words of Jesus Christ in red. The red letter feature adds greatly to one's understanding of the Bible	5.00
-------	---	------

Oxford India Paper Edition

05453x	Same as No. 0773x with words of Jesus Christ in red. A gift edition which is sure to please	8.00
--------	---	------

SELF-PRONOUNCING EDITION

All proper names and difficult words divided into syllables and accented so they may be correctly pronounced. Sizes 8 1/2 x 5 1/2 x 1 1/4 inches.

Specimen of Type

6 And A-hi'-shär was over the household: and Ad-o-ni'-räm the son of Ab'-dä was over the 'tri-

Nos.
04531	Moroccoette, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges	$5.00
04523	French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A real student's Bible	6.00

Oxford India Paper Edition

Same as above, but printed on the famous Oxford India paper which is used only in Oxford Bibles. Only 1 1/4 inches thick.

0923x	French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A Bible of superior quality	$9.00
-------	---	--------

Improved Thumb Index on any style
at 50 cents extra

OBITUARIES.

HOWELL.

On January 26, 1928, Mrs. M. J. Howell quietly passed away from this life to the great beyond, at the age of 74 years. She suffered much, but endured her sufferings patiently. For many years she professed a living faith in Christ, and she lived a beautiful Christian life. The services were conducted by the writer, at the North Highland Christian Church, where she was a member for many years. The beautiful flowers and the large congregation attested the high esteem in which she was held by the people. May the dear Lord bless her husband, children and friends.

A. H. SHEPPARD.

DOFFLEMYRE.

George W. Dofflemyre was born April 18, 1853, and died February 1, 1928, aged 74 years, 9 months, and 14 days. He was a highly respected citizen of Luray, Va., and well and favorably known throughout Page County, as was evidenced by the large congregation that gathered for the funeral at Leaksville, February 4th. He is survived by his widow, who is a faithful member of the Newport Christian Church, and by five sons.

A. W. ANDES.

LEADERS OBEY FIRST.

"If you two girls were boys," said Uncle Frank, "I think Marian would stand the better chance of becoming the general of an army." His twelve-year-old niece, Margery, turned questioning eyes on him. Her twin sister, Marian, had just run upstairs in answer to mother's "Come up here, girls."

"Yes," continued Uncle Frank, "people who are advanced to positions of command are those who have learned first to obey. Marian went at once in response to mother's call, and mother is still waiting for Margery."

Margery was off like an arrow.

Perhaps the girl who drops into slack habits of obedience hardly realizes how much she is limiting her own future. If we cannot make ourselves obey at all, how can we lead others? Positions requiring leadership and control have to be given to those who themselves have first learned to obey. Be a general in your own heart. Make yourself drop at once the thing you are doing to do the thing which you are asked to do.—Queen's Gardens.

MISSIONARY PAGEANTS.

Two Masters—By Bertha Cooper Fraser.

One of the very best ones published.

Price 10 cents

The Cross Triumphant—Forty people; about one and one-fourth hours long.

Price 35 cents

The Missionary Clinic—Price.... 10 cents

Aunt Tillie Learns to Tithe—Stewardship. Price 15 cents

The Betrothal of Mai Tsung—By Kyung

Shien Sung and Vida Sutton. A Chinese love story of a boy and girl who became Christians. About 1 hour long.

Price 25 cents

Order from:

Pattie Coghill,

Literature Superintendent, North Carolina Woman's Board.

A MOTHER'S LOVE.

Truly, a mother's love never dies. The animal loves its offspring till it is able to care for itself, but the human mother's love grows with increasing years, because it is immortal.

One of Admiral Dewey's sailors, at the battle of Manila, accidentally dropped his coat overboard. It contained a photograph of his mother. He was forbidden to rescue it. But he jumped overboard and saved it. After he had been put in irons for disobedience, the admiral asked him why he risked his life to save his coat. When told about his mother's photograph, the eyes of the admiral filled with tears and he clasped the boy in his arms. Orders were immediately given for his release. The great Dewey said: "A boy who loves his mother enough to risk his life for her picture, cannot be kept in irons on this fleet."—Bible Champion.

Darwin, the scientist, could never master any language, his father accused him of being interested only in dogs, shooting, and rat-catching, and he said he would be a disgrace to the family.

Jesus said: "Blessed are those who hunger and thirst for goodness, for they will be satisfied."

MARRIAGES

SHIRKEY—DERROW.

On Wednesday, February 15, 1928, there came to my home to be united in matrimony Mr. Dorman W. Shirkey and Miss Ursula F. Derrow. They were accompanied by several immediate relatives of the bride, who witnessed the ceremony. Both of the contracting parties are from the Concord Church neighborhood, and will live there, where the groom is employed.

A. W. ANDES.

ELON COLLEGE

CO-EDUCATIONAL

SECOND SEMESTER OPENS JANUARY 4, 1928

A few additional Students may be accommodated at that time, preferably members of the Christian Church.

SOME OF THE ELON COLLEGE BUILDINGS

ELON COLLEGE offers superior educational advantages to the members of the Christian Church. The buildings are new, equipment new and of the very best type, laboratory facilities equal to any college in the South; member of the Southern Association of Colleges, strong Christian faculty, and fine Christian atmosphere prevailing on the campus. Special courses in religious education and Christian work are offered to train laymen and ministers in the work of our denomination.

For Catalogue and View-Books, address

C. M. CANNON REGISTRAR,

ELON COLLEGE, - - NORTH CAROLINA

"Christian Character First and Always at Elon College"

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rve. Daniel W. Kerr.

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Christian Church.

BOARD OF EDITORS

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D. Editor
W. W. STALEY, D. D. Associate
W. A. HARPER, LL.D. Associate
REV. S. C. HARRELL. Associate
R. C. HELFENSTEIN, D. D. Associate
REV. S. M. LYNAM. News Editor
P. J. KERNODLE. Managing Editor

Subscription Rates

One Year$2.00
Six Months 1.00

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT
RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Post-office at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows the date of expiration. Change in the label will appear on wrapper the first week of month following renewal, provided it is received before the 25th.

Change of Address: Give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

When subscriptions are made for friends, state whether paper is to be stopped at end of the year.

Remittances: Make all remittances for subscriptions and renewals to "Editor Christian Sun," Elon College, N. C.

Remittances for advertising and other business matters will be addressed to the "Managing Editor," 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond, Va.

Advertising Rates: "Want Ads," 2 cents a word an insertion. Display rates quoted upon request.

Notices: Obituary and Marriage notices, limited to 100 words, are published free of charge. All over 100 words, at 1 cent a word. Remittance should accompany copy. Write names distinctly.

BAKER.

We, the undersigned deacons of Elm Avenue Christian Church, of Portsmouth, Va., wish to pay a tribute of love and respect to one of its oldest and most faithful members, Bro. Junius Adolphus Baker, whom God in His infinite love and wisdom saw fit to remove from our midst on February 19, 1928. We have lost a true friend and a Christian fellow-worker. Therefore, be it resolved:

1. That we keep ever in memory the splendid spirit of co-operation and untiring efforts which he manifested so earnestly, discharging his duties as a deacon and member of our Church.

2. That we extend our sympathy to the family and trust that his gentle influence and life of devotion may be a guide to them in all the years to come.

3. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to The Christian Sun for publication, one sent to the family, and a copy be spread upon the minutes of our Church.

J. W. FELTON,
J. H. WILSON,
C. C. MONTCASTLE,
E. L. WILLOUGHBY,
O. G. PORTER,
Board of Deacons.

FARRELL.

Mrs. Meta Farrell, of Moneure, N. C., departed this life January 27, 1928. She would have been 54 years old March 5, 1928. Meta was the youngest daughter of Horace and Mary Ann Bridges. She married Bro. T. E. Farrell about thirty-one years ago. To these were born eight children—four boys and four girls. All of these, with father, survive her.

Sister Farrell was converted at twelve years of age and joined the Methodist Church. After her marriage she moved her membership to Zion Christian Church, where her husband was a member, and remained a most consistent and faithful member until the end.

Sister Farrell had been real feeble for a number of years. She fully realized that her earthly stay was short, but often expressed herself as being ready, at her Master's call, to meet her sainted parents and loved ones in the heavenly home. We believe that mother's example, earnest consecrated and faithful prayers, will be rewarded in the lives of her dear children whose grief was so heart-rending when the earthly farewell was expressed. The funeral was conducted by the pastor.

J. E. FRANKS.

BETHLEHEM COLLEGE

WADLEY, ALABAMA

A JUNIOR COLLEGE AND HIGH SCHOOL.

Where Opportunity Awaits the Student of Very Limited Means.

GIRL'S DORMITORY.

Bethlehem College, Wadley, Ala., will open September 5, 1927. This institution is a Junior College and High School, which is co-educational, where scholarship ranks high and expense is low. It is thoroughly Christian, absolutely non-sectarian, and vitally American. A school where opportunity awaits the student of very limited means—$68.00 pays all college expenses, except books, board and room. Board, $15.00 per month, and room $3.00; total expenses for a term of nine months, $250.00.

Bethlehem College is training some of the best stock of America for Christian leadership, to be used by the nation and the world. Here is a great challenge and asset for students who wish to prepare themselves to serve in a worth-while way. The work on the new Administration Building is progressing nicely, and we will be able to begin our college work in this building when school opens this fall.

For catalog and other information, address S. L. Beougher, President.

OXFORD TEACHERS' BIBLES

An Oxford Teachers' Bible has references and 300 pages of helps that are a mine of information to Bible students. The helps are arranged in alphabetical order, like a dictionary. They are accurate, comprehensive and up-to-date. A few styles are listed here. Many others are described in our Bible catalogue, mailed upon request.

04403 [This size print] Bound in French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, size 6 3/4 x 4 3/4 inches$4.00
0623x [Same Bible as 04403] Printed on Oxford India paper. Only 1 inch thick.....$6.00

04453 [This size print] French Morocco leather binding, overlapping covers, 7 1/4 x 5 in. $4.35

0773x [Same Bible as 04453] Printed on Oxford India paper. A remarkably thin and light Bible. (Only 1 inch thick)$7.75

05453 [Same Bible as 04453] With the words of Jesus Christ printed in red$6.25

05453x [Same Bible as 0773x] With the words of Jesus Christ printed in red$8.75

04523 [This size print] A self-pronouncing Oxford Bible. Bound in French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, size 8 1/4 x 5 1/2 inches... $5.50

0923x [Same Bible as 04523] Printed on Oxford India paper, only 1 1/4 inches thick...$9.75

ORDER FROM

"THE CHRISTIAN SUN"

Richmond, Va.

HOLMAN BIBLES

FOR CHILDREN

PICTORIAL BIBLES WITH HELPS

The text is self-pronouncing, by the aid of which children can learn to pronounce the difficult Scripture proper names.

Specimen of Type

27 And the boys grew: and Esau was a cunning hunter.
5 And the streets of the city shall be full of boys and girls playing in the streets thereof.

Size, 5 1/2 x 3 1/2 inches. With beautiful photo views of scenes in Bible lands distributed throughout the text. Also maps of Bible lands in colors. Also new Practical Helps to Bible Study, especially designed for instructing children in scriptural information.

No. 9111. French Seal Leather, overlapping covers, round corners, gold edges, gold titles.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 2.30

COLORED PICTURE EDITION

Portraying in natural colors, scenes and places taken from nature and life in the Holy Land.

No. 9211. Same as No. 9111, but with Beautifully Colored Pictures.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 2.40

FOR INTERMEDIATE SUNDAY-SCHOOL SCHOLARS

Large Clear Black Type, Self-Pronouncing, containing Helps to Bible Study, 4000 Questions and Answers, Maps in Colors, and Presentation Page. A Beautiful Gift Bible.

Specimen of Type.

22 And the prophet Isaiah, and said unto thyself, and mark, and for at the return of t

Size, 7 x 5 inches.

No. 215. Divinity Circuit Style. Bound in French Seal Leather, round corners, red under gold edges, with silk head bands and purple silk marker, gold titles, etc.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 3.10

No. 3215RL. Red Letter Scholars' Bible, same Bible as No. 215, with all the Sayings of Christ printed in Red, and with Red and gold INLAID PANEL SIDE TITLES, also Beautifully Colored Pictures.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 3.45

Holman Self-Pronouncing

VEST POCKET TESTAMENTS

Clearer Print in Smallest Size
4 3/4 x 2 3/4 x 3/8 inches

Specimen of Type.
AND the third day there was a marriage in Cana of Galilee; and the mother of Jesus was

2133K. Bound in durable Morocco Grain Semble Leather, flexible limp, gilt titles$60

2113. French Morocco, genuine leather, flexible limp, gold titles, rounded corners, gold edges.....$70

2115P. French Morocco, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, with the Book of Psalms included$1.10

ILLUSTRATED VEST POCKET TESTAMENT

With Pictures of Holy Land Scenes

2314. French Morocco, limp, gold side title round corners, red under gold edges$85

RED LETTER VEST POCKET TESTAMENT

With all the words of our Lord printed in red.

13RL. French Morocco, flexible limp, gold side title on red panel, gold edges.$85

15RLP. French Morocco, overlapping covers, flexible, gold side title on red panel, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included$1.25

INDIA PAPER VEST POCKET TESTAMENT

Thin as a Wafer

2136XP. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, with Psalms included$2.25

Send Your Orders to

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 E. Broad Street

RICHMOND . VIRGINIA

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Official Organ of the Southern Christian Convention.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXX.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, MARCH 15, 1928.

NUMBER 11.

THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY

EXCEPT MY PROPERTY.

BY BISHOP HENDERSON.

The most sensitive spot in the surrender of the whole life to God is my property. Perhaps it is because my property provides me with material comfort, selfish satisfactions, and gratifies personal tastes and appetites. It may be that my property represents so much of myself, so much of my toil, so much of my blood, so much of my time, so much of my strength that it is my other self. In any case, it is more difficult to consecrate my property to God than it is to consecrate my prayers. It means more of a conflict to surrender my property and put it at God's disposal to use for the building up of His kingdom than to surrender my sins and put my personal influence at God's disposal to use at His will. Many a man will surrender his mind to God who will not surrender his money. Many a man will surrender his pride to God who will decline to surrender his property. There is something about that piece of land which tempts a man to say, "That land is mine. I paid my money for it. It is mine." Such a man has never paid any heed to God, who said centuries ago, "For the land is mine" (Lev. 25: 23). It now becomes a contest of who owns the land. The struggle continues when a man claims to own his income, whether it comes from the factory, the shop, the office, the store, the stocks, the banks, or the mine. The fight is on. The question for decision is, "Who is owner: God or myself?" If God is the owner of all things, then I must surrender to God as the owner of my property as well as the owner of my personality. But it is not a tea party; it is a conflict severe and often long. Always man is tempted to except his property from the surrender. I cannot make an exception of my personal sins. God says to me that the terms are "immediate and unconditional surrender." When I begin to condition my surrender, then I begin to compromise. Compromise with God is fatal.

I must not be regarded as irreverent when I express my conviction of how multitudes of people sing songs of surrender with very decided reservations. Frances Ridley Havergal has written for us one of the most effective hymns of consecration in our entire hymnal. But note how many of our people sing it:

"Take my love; my Lord, I pour
At Thy feet its treasure store
(Except my property).
Take myself, and I will be Ever, only, all for Thee
(Except my property)."

My readers will protest that this ruins the hymn. Certainly it does. It ruins the harmony. It breaks the metre. It destroys the rhythm. But that is exactly what happens when I leave my property out of my surrender to God. If Christ is to be Lord of my life, I must crown Him Lord of my property as well as the Lord of my personality. How futile and how faithless to sing:

"All hail the power of Jesus' name,
Let angels prostrate fall;
Bring forth the royal diadem,
And crown Him Lord of all
(Except my property)."

Men would not dare to sing it in this fashion. But that is the way countless members of the Church live the truth of the hymn called "Coronation." It is no worse to sing it with the lips than it is to say it with the life.

My Tithe Is the Token of My Surrender.

The conflict between God and myself is a struggle for the mastery of my life. My property is a barrier to the full ownership of God over all my life. My property is the battleground on which God must win or lose. God does not care to control my property for the sake of getting my property. He made the earth; it belongs to Him. He made the silver and the gold; they belong to Him. But God has a great ambition to get hold of me and secure my consent to make Him the absolute owner of my life. When I acknowledge God as the supreme Owner of all my life, when in "immediate and unconditional surrender" I yield myself to the unqualified control of God and pledge God that I will administer my property in the interests of the kingdom of God, then my tithe becomes my token of such immediate and unconditional surrender to God. My tithe is a constant reminder to me that I have surrendered my all to God. It is my love token to the Master of my life. This is the spiritual significance of the tithe. It marks an epoch in my spiritual career. It is the record of a completed transaction. It is the daily evidence that I am owned by another.

In one of our Churches there is reputed to be an official member who claims to be a tither. It has never been made clear to me why this man ever began to tithe his income. He is an employer. He claims he does not know his exact income, and therefore it is very difficult to tithe. And so he hit upon the novel device of taking the income of one of his employees as a basis, and this Methodist layman tithes on the basis of what he pays his employee. Aside from the tragic dishonesty to God involved in this kind of a procedure, this is on a par with seeking forgiveness from God by confessing other people's sins. What God demands is a personal surrender of my personal life, including my property, and God has set the standard that one-tenth of my income is the actual token that my surrender is real and complete. My tithe is a personal acknowledgment of a personal debt to God; my tithe is a personal token of a personal surrender to God. This makes my tithe a daily test of vital spirituality. There came to me a short time ago this statement from one of my preachers. It tells the story of a surrender to God that grows sweeter as the days go by. This is what he says:

"I began tithing my income soon after I became a Christian in 1894. Under the teaching of a faithful minister, I saw the tithe as a duty and a privilege. When I was married in 1899, we started a 'cash account book' with cash on hand of $4. Our income at that time averaged about $30 per month; but after every item of income the first entry in the paid-out column has been the tithe. By doing this we were able to pay our regular apportionment to the Church budget, and gave more to the benevolences than to the local Church, which was an unusual thing in the Church of which we were members.

"After about six years, owing to an expensive move, the added expense of two children, and a small loss in a property investment, we were involved in some debt. Under the advice of another pastor, we abandoned the tithe and set aside a certain amount—about 5 per cent of our income—for the Lord's work. The last we heard of this minister was that he had utterly failed in his work and was out of the ministry. Our income at this time was $50 per month. Soon after this we began considering the ministry, which we entered in April, 1909. We started with a reduced income, $500 per year, and with the debt increased by reason of purchasing our horse and outfit, but concluded we must return to the tithe. We couldn't preach a gospel practice which we were not observing. From that time on, the tithe has again been the first item in the paid-out column after every item of income, whether of regular salary or of extra fees. The income has gradually increased from $500 to our present salary of $1,300. With the exception of one advance of $50 in a move, the balance of the increase has been on the charges where we have served. It has been a joyful privilege to set aside and administer the tithe. It has meant some measure of self-denial, but it has blessed our spiritual life. I have not hesitated to preach to others a Christian duty and privilege we were observing ourselves. Each one of our three children has a tithe box into which they put the first tenth of any income of their own.

"God has seen us through on the nine-tenths. The debt involved in the beginning of our ministry has recently been paid. While we have no investment except what we are investing in the education of our children, we are joyful in the Lord, and expect to continue paying His share of our income into the work of the kingdom."

The tithe was the token of a full surrender to the ownership of God. Have you that token? Your tithe is your token. Pay God what you owe Him, and get it.—Christian Advocate.

NOTES-PERSONALS

Rev. G. D. Hunt writes that Rev. H. W. Elder, from whom he has just heard, thinks he is slowly improving. This will be acceptable news to our people.

Mrs. Jos. E. Liskey, Harrisonburg, Va., renews her subscription to THE SUN and expresses her hope that it may continue to shine in many homes.

We are pleased this week to present a message direct on "Missions" from Rev. B. W. Morton, active missionary of the Christian Church, Ponce, Porto Rico.

Mrs. A. O. Bridgers, Wendell, N. C., in subscribing for THE CHRISTIAN SUN, says: "I cannot get along in the reading line without my Church paper."

Rev. R. A. Whitten, who is spending his vacation in Florida recuperating, writes from St. Augustine that he feels quite much improved. Bro. Whitten's family is with him.

Dr. J. Edward Kirby, pastor of the United Church, of Raleigh, and his son, and Bro. Herbert A. Carlton, were visitors on Tuesday, March 6th, at the college and the Orphanage.

Mr. W. A. Newman, of Henderson, N. C., was a visitor in Richmond the past week and made a pleasant call at THE SUN office. He is much interested in the enterprises of the Church.

Dr. W. W. Staley preached for Hopewell Christian Church last Sunday to a good congregation. He came to Richmond Monday to visit some of the sick, and while here made a visit to THE SUN office.

Dr. C. C. Ryan is holding a pre-Easter revival service at First Christian Church, Richmond, Va., assisted by Rev. J. F. Morgan, who is doing the preaching. The congregations are good, and interested and pleased with the preacher.

Mrs. J. A. Williams has returned from Lakeview Hospital, where she has recently undergone treatment. Mrs. Williams is very much improved and is again taking hold of her work as president of the Woman's Board with renewed zeal.

Mr. John H. Sittig, Harrisburg, Ill., Route 3, renews his subscription and says he is particularly pleased with the weekly sermons in THE CHRISTIAN SUN by Rev. John G. Truitt, and similar teachings, all of which he endorses.

It is stated by the general secretary of the New York Bible Society that during the year 1927 849,706 volumes of the Scriptures, in 67 languages, had been circulated among immigrants, seamen, prisoners, etc., of all nationalities, including many thousand Bibles placed in hotels.

The Church will greatly sympathize with Rev. J. F. Morgan, pastor of Berea and Rosemont Churches, in the death of his father. Bro. J. P. Morgan was a faithful and devoted Christian. He will be greatly missed in the Big Oak Christian Church, where he was a pillar and an inspiration.

A good friend in Orlando, Fla., who is in daily association with Dr. Atkinson, writes: "He is making wonderfully rapid progress. His cheeks are taking on a ruddy tint, and I am satisfied that in two or three weeks he will be almost himself again. We are having chats every day, and it is a pleasure to be with him."

Please note the growing interest in our Convention Forum. We have several messages this week, and hope to have more next week. Let the people express themselves. The Christian Church is a democracy, and the voice of the people should be heard.

Miss Lucy Dickerson, of Durham, N. C., whose father was for many years a deacon in our Church in that city, continues to take the paper, even though her father has passed over the river. She does not see how she can do without THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

Packages of literature to be used by our ministers in connection with the mission offerings this year are being mailed out from the mission office this week. Any minister who desires more literature sent can get the same by applying to the Mission Secretary's office at Elon College, N. C.

Mr. Hermon Eldredge represented the Christian Church at the Religious Education Association, Philadelphia, Pa., March 6-8th. This is the twenty-sixth annual meeting of this association, which was founded in 1903 by William Rainey Harper, at that time president of the University of Chicago.

Mrs. W. V. Leathers has been elected to fill the place in the Southern Christian Convention of the Woman's Board as superintendent of literature, succeeding Miss Gertrude Brown. Mrs. W. M. Jay has been appointed editor of field notes for the Woman's Mission Board for the Southern Convention.

The brotherhood will deeply sympathize with Rev. J. F. Burnett in the death of his devoted wife on Monday, March 5th. She was buried in Dayton, Ohio, on Thursday, the 8th. Dr. Burnett himself has been ill for some time. In Mrs. Burnett's passing, the Christian Church has lost one of its most active women leaders.

Dr. W. D. Harward has undertaken the pastorate of the Mt. Carmel Christian Church. Dr. Harward's brethren in the ministry and his host of admirers in the Church will rejoice to know that he has recovered his health sufficiently to undertake this service. The Church is fortunate to secure him as pastor. Mt. Carmel is one of our strong and forward-looking rural Churches in Eastern Virginia.

The North Carolina State Prison issues a monthly paper entitled "The Prison News." The issue of March 1st is certainly a valuable publication. Its editorial on "Advice to Newcomers" is certainly to be commended, and its additional editorial on "Some Reasons Why," in explanation of the increase in the State prison population, certainly gives food for thought. The prison last year showed an income in the way of profit to the State of $67,898.80. It is doubtful, however, if the State ought to profit at the expense of its prisoners.

Dr. L. F. Johnson, so favorably known to the Churches of our Southern Christian Convention, preached for the Newport News Church on the first Sunday in March. Dr. Johnson is now working for the college in the Eastern Virginia Conference, collecting pledges that have been made and in other ways helping the local congregations to reach their quotas in the "appreciation offering." Any courtesy accorded Dr. Johnson in either of these connections will be service rendered the college and the cause of Christian education, and will be most heartily appreciated.

Revs. W. T. Scott and A. H. Hook, who have completed their work at Yale for the B. D. degree, are doing graduate work in Union Theological Seminary, New York City. They will finish their work in New York in June. Two Christian Churches will be fortunate to secure their services. They are splendid young men, devout, consecrated and thoroughly prepared.

The General Board of Christian Education of the Christian Church is recommending that the young people's societies, beginning with the Sunday evening of March 11th and continuing through Easter, use each Sunday evening's program for evangelistic messages and support this method of service to the Church by personal work. It is certainly a special idea, and we commend it heartily to our young people.

The acting Mission Secretary, J. M. Darden, is ready to supply a minister or speaker on missions for any Church anywhere in the Southern Convention for any Sunday that is desired. He should be addressed at Suffolk, Va. Bro. Darden is carrying into the mission campaign that wonderful energy which has made him the successful business man that he is. Let all the Churches rally to his assistance.

The radio is being used now in a very large way for broadcasting religious programs. The Federal Council of Churches, the New York Federation of Churches, and the Bedford branch of the Y. M. C. A., of Brooklyn, have formed a joint committee for broadcasting religious programs on a national scale. Already the National Broadcasting Company, with thirty-seven stations, is sending out these programs from New York City and its environs. It is the expectation that in very large cities broadcasting centers will thus be established by these religious bodies for broadcasting religious news. Surely the air is to praise God!

There are thirty-nine Sunday Schools in the Christian Church that have more than 300 members. The largest Sunday School is that of Troy, Ohio, with 1,120 members; the second is that of Suffolk, with 815, and the third is the school of the Christian Temple, at Norfolk, 753. In addition to these two schools in the Southern Convention that have more than 300 members, there are the following schools having the numbers placed after each: Elon College, 581; Burlington, 450; Old Zion (Norfolk), 439; Greensboro, 350; Newport News, 350; Durham, 345; Reidsville, 325; Rosemont, 315; First (Norfolk), 303—a total of eleven schools having more than 300 members in the Southern Christian Convention.

Dr. W. Knighton Bloom, secretary of missions, eastern division of the Congregational Church, Washington, D. C., writes that he is anxious for an opportunity to co-operate with the Board of Religious Education by having the young people of the Congregational Church attend the summer school of Christian methods to be held at Elon College June 23-30. He says: "Some of us have been hoping that there might be a possibility of a participation on the part of Congregationalism. If so, then we are hoping that eventually there may result a united young people's conference of the youth of the two Churches in the Carolinas." And then he asks, "Would your committee be willing for us to have a Congregational group to meet each day for one hour, the remainder of the time, of course, participating in your own program?"

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

LITTLE FOLKS IN LANDS AFAR.

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Preacher.

"Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not: for of such is the kingdom of God."—Mark 10:14.

At the close of this sermon, fourteen of our beautiful little girls are going to give us a pantomime—"I Think when I Read that Sweet Story of Old." And as their sweet little faces are turned toward heaven, I want us to visualize millions and millions of other little children whose wide, deep, longing little eyes are lifted toward a heaven hard and cold with superstition, ignorance, hunger, and dead-cold gods who have no beautiful hands and warm, loving arms. Millions and millions of them standing upon their cubby little feet waiting for Christ, waiting for Christian fathers and mothers, waiting for pretty songs and living prayers, waiting for some one who deep down in the very fiber of their soul knows Jesus Christ and will "take them up in his arms, put his hands upon them, and bless them."

Jesus would have us see their faces tonight as we look upon the faces of our own dear children. A light that never was on land or sea is in our souls, and we shall be held to account by our Lord if we do not see those millions from Siberia, Mongolia, India as they shall pass in review before our eyes; there are millions from Japan, the Philippines, and countless other islands of the sea; there they are from Arabia, Abyssinia, Egypt, and Libya traveling over the burning sands of their tropical countries and lifting their little faces in unending rows to God; from the Sudans, the Cameroons, Uganda, Kenya, and Angola they continue to come calling as they come for the Christ, picking up a cry now two thousand years old: "Sir, we would see Jesus"; from Nigeria, Liberia, Algeria, and Morocco their never-ending line grows, little children, little boys and girls, bright and ready for life at its best—but their mothers are picking some of them up and throwing them into ugly rivers hard by, and their fathers are burying some of them alive, and together their parents are submitting them to child-marriage and many other customs that burn their little faiths and break their little hearts. O God, police their little paths to Thee! Police them with Good Samaritans, garnered and gleaned from Christian places and Christian sources from all over the earth, for the next generation is looking for the end of a lane that leads to the Holy One of Israel. But there are still millions of others yet unmentioned; yea, and unloved by Christians, in that line of little folks from fields afar. From the Falkland Islands to Mexico, from Patagonia to Peru, they are lining up and looking out for a freedom that makes them free indeed. From Alaska to Labrador do they fill the ever-increasing bread-line, waiting for the "true Bread which comes down from heaven." As I see these millions they haunt me to my knees, and I wonder if there is any such thing as "Christian luxury" as long as these children stand in that line! Oh, what a chorus—

"I wish that His hands had been placed on my head,

That His arms had been thrown around me,
And that I might have seen His kind look when He said,

'Let the little ones come unto me.'"

Millions and millions of inarticulate, dumb little lips pick up that chorus, and yet the gospel is two thousand years old.

aspects. Before we come to those, let us get the

Our text suggests a picture that has three setting. Jesus is standing at the door of God's house; He is surrounded by God's people, and especially His own disciples; He has been telling them so many things adaptable to their adult minds, and doing so many things for the good of their sickened bodies, until they have all gotten it fixed in their heads that He is a Friend of grown folks; but this is no fault of Jesus', for hitherto He has tried to teach them better; for once before "He sat down and called the twelve and saith unto them, If any man desire to be first, the same shall be last of all, and servant of all. And He took a child and set him in the midst of them, and when He had taken him in His arms, He said unto them, Whosoever shall receive one of such children in my name, receiveth me; and whosoever shall receive me, receiveth not me, but receiveth Him that sent me." Again He had said, "Unless you shall become as a little child, you shall in no case enter into the kingdom of heaven."

Now, while Jesus was there, many mothers who had in this way or that either seen Him or heard of His wonderful works, desired that the whole life of their little one should be consecrated to Him, and that He should be Lord of their lives from childhood. It was a big wish from mother-hearts, and not from disciples' heads. It was a wish that fitted exactly into the thinking of Jesus, but was entirely too unselfish and Christ-like for His closest followers. Hence we come to the first aspect of the story: "And His disciples rebuked those that brought them." That is one of the hardest indicements of the New Testament, but we may certainly appreciate what these men became by the fact that they recorded of themselves so honest an account of their conduct.

Men who had sat at the feet of Jesus now stood in the way of little children coming to Him. It is a hard fact, and it will bring criticism if we make an analogy between them and the Church of today, but if the Church of today is worthy of the name it bears, it will mend its conduct, take its rebuke, record its sin and reach out a helping hand to millions and millions of little folks who will cling eagerly to it. These disciples did not merely stand passively in the way of the little children, "but they rebuked those who brought them." A man told me the other day—and he is a member of this Church, too—that we should not send money to others when it was so badly needed at home; that we should not send missionaries to others when they were needed here; and then he said something so original it provoked a smile: "Charity begins at home." If men could stand in the presence of Jesus and bear their arms against eager, humble mothers, do we wonder at the Church today! But they were held to strict and immediate account for that, and I wish to say that, according to the teaching of Scripture, we live today in a brighter light than that which fell upon them, even in the very presence of Jesus, and that we shall certainly come to know that "the axe is laid at the root of the tree, and that we bring condemnation and death upon ourselves in that we cry, "Lord, Lord!" and do not keep His sayings.

That brings me to the second aspect of this story: "But when Jesus saw it He was much displeased." So far as I recall just now, this is the only time in the New Testament this phrase is so used. Disciples turned away from Him, denied Him, betrayed Him, forsook Him, and failed Him in the hour of approaching death, but the phrase "much displeased" is not brought into play is describing it, and the fact that it occurs here shows that the disciples came to learn how greatly disappointed Jesus was, and how true was their repentance. There is more real heartache in that phrase than the Church for two thousand years has ever dreamed of—and it has had a lot of time to dream, for it has spent much of that time in sleep! Because we are not surprised that Jesus was displeased, we confess that we know we should not refuse the gospel of Jesus to all the children throughout the world, and yet the whole matter is today a most unpopular subject. Mission boards by the score are making retrenchments and reducing their programs because the funds came sparsely in; and Churches are wondering what is the matter.

That heartache of Jesus Christ is very much alive today. For instance, Jesus enters the heart and life of some missionary so impellingly that he goes with complete obedience into some mission field, he works there with a love and zeal that only a devout follower of Jesus can know, he wins a big place in the hearts of hundreds and hundreds because he represents more than himself; for fifteen years he struggles onward against the odds which the disciples at home make for him, and then eventually he is ordered home by his mission board because of lack of support! Fancy that! Picture it, if you are brave enough. Picture it if you can think in fine enough spiritual way. What is that missionary to do? Some of them then have to go on and leave their Church, as their Lord has in such cases done, and fight their spiritual battles alone. Did I say alone—no, for Jesus has said, "And lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world." But there is the ever-present heartache whether they return home and leave those begging millions behind or whether they try to go on without the support of the Church.

This brings me to the third aspect of the picture: "Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not; for of such is the kingdom of God." Are suffering? Are we? Yes, we are suffering quite a great deal, but for our sins, and not our Saviour! Suppose this sermon is turned back twenty or thirty years. Twenty or thirty years ago millions of little children were looking for life under Christian environment. Today those ten million sleep in an daround and out and beyond Flanders' field! "And Jesus was much displeased." Oh, horrors of war! Are we suffering? I repeat it: yes, but not for our Saviour! "Let the little children come unto me." They came—ten millions of them; but oh, the tragedy of it! Mahomedanism teaches war; Christianity teaches peace. Christians have taught the Mahammedans how to fight, and the "unspeakable Turk" is unspeakable in the little he knows about the finesse of war as compared to his Christian brothers! Go count those ten million boys. Are they pagans or Christians? Did they live in Asia and Africa, or Europe and America? Are we suffering? Yes, for our sins, but not for our Saviour! It took two thousand years well-nigh of the preaching of the Prince of peace to bring about so great a war among Christians and even dragging good pagans into it. Ah, but saying "Lord, Lord" without keeping His command is mockery, and such Christianity makes for bloodshed rather than peace.

But there is a postscript to this story, which becomes the joy of the whole picture: "And He took them up in His arms, put His hands upon them, and blessed them." There are enough children living today, ready to be taught anything they are taught, to keep the world from war, and answer the phrase of Jesus, "for of such is the kingdom of God." Oh! will the Christian world take them up in its arms and put its hands upon their heads and bless them? Will we do our part of it? If we will we shall suffer for our Saviour and our sons and daughters and God's little folks in lands afar, and be pardoned of our sins. Amen.

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, Elon College, N. C.

Contributing Editors

W. W. STALEY

W. A. HARPER

R. C. HELFENSTEIN S. C. HARRELL

PRINCIPLES OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

MISSIONS AND MONEY.

Burns wrote, "Money makes the mare go"; and this pen says, "Missions make the Church go." If money fail, missions fail; and if missions fail, the Church fails. The mission of the Church is to do missionary work, and that requires men and money. Real men are like money—they have no value except in going into service. The duty of money is to go, and the duty of men is the same. The first and main thing Jesus required of His apostles was to go and to preach the gospel to every creature; and that was missionary service. From that day until this, the gospel has prospered as men have gone forth to preach the gospel of the kingdom and to say, "repent." There is too much preaching in this day to Church members and not enough to outsiders. And even in the Church there is too much preaching of learning and not enough of the gospel. What the people need, and what the people really want, is the gospel. "It is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth." That is the reason Paul exhorts ministers to "preach the Word." Jesus sent the twelve out to preach.

When the Church was established they preached in Judea, Samaria, and the uttermost parts of the earth. It was missions—not home and foreign missions. Salvation is for all or it is for none. The gospel is for the world or it is not for our home. The sun shines for all and Jesus is the Light of the world. The blood of Jesus Christ cleanseth from all sin, and that means that it is for all sinners. God so loved the world that He gave His Son to die, that all might be saved. The Church cannot preach a gospel that does not embrace all. The spirit of Jesus Christ and the spirit of the Church must be the same. All the members of the Church are under this obligation to carry the gospel to the ends of the earth. That is a big task, but Jesus Christ has promised to be with us to the end. There is no escape from this obligation, and there is no reward unless the command is obeyed.

March, April, May and June have been designated as mission months in the Churches of the Southern Christian Convention. The Mission Board has named as the goal for each Church to raise as much as one-sixth of the pastor's salary. If the salary of a pastor, with once-a-month preaching, is $300, the sum asked for would be $50. If the salary for full-time preaching is $1,200, the sum for missions to be raised by that Church during these four months would be $200. If the salary is $3,000, the sum asked for missions is $500. This seems to be a simple method of equalizing this call for missions, and Churches that have been aided by mission funds have this opportunity to make some return by helping others. The Seventh-Day Adventists pay, per member, for missions, 60 cents per Sabbath, which is $31.20 per member per year. Our people can pay what is asked for missions during these four months and feel all the better for doing it; but they will not do it if they neglect to think and pray about it, and wait till the end of the period to begin it. The need is great, Dr. Atkinson is out of the field for the time, and we are able to do it, and we suffer loss if we neglect to do our part.

JESUS, MISSIONARY.

Jesus was a Missionary, not only in the general sense that He came as a representative of heaven and the only begotten Son of His Father, to be the interpreter to men of the love that God has always felt for His offspring. In gratitude and reverent appreciation of His coming in this capacity, we often say that God only had one Son, and He made Him a Missionary.

Jesus was a Missionary in many other particulars and without intent or attempt to itemize all the concrete instances in which He was a Missionary, we may indicate a few as follows:

He was a Missionary to children when He commanded His disciples to suffer the little children to come unto Him and to forbid them not, taking them to His arms and blessing them.

He was a Missionary to young people when He looked upon the rich young ruler and loved him.

He was a Missionary to the home, when He became the intimate Guest and personal Friend of Levi, the Publican, and of Mary and Martha and Lazarus in their Bethany home.

He was a Missionary in the realm of Christian education, when He called His disciples to Him and sent them out two and two, and in other ways trained them to be the founders of His Church and the human medium through which His messages and teachings could be transmitted to all generations.

He was a Medical Missionary, when He healed the sick.

He was a Missionary to the poor, when He preached the gospel to them.

He was a Missionary to His neighbors, when He returned to Nazareth and on the Sabbath opened the Book to them and expounded His mission.

He was a Foreign Missionary, when He rendered service to the Syro-Phoenician woman in her distress and when He visited in cities beyond Jordan.

He was a Country Missionary, when He went from place to place and when He preached His great Sermon on the Mount.

He was a City Missionary, when He preached in Jerusalem and wrought mighty works in Capernaum.

He was an Evangelistic Missionary, when the multitudes hung on His words and declared that no man ever spake as this Man.

He was a practical missionary, when He went about doing good.

We are the disciples of our Lord. We should emulate Him in our life. Should we not, too, be missionary in our attitude, in our interest, in our service and in our benevolence? W. A. H.

HAS THE CHURCH A WORLD MESSAGE?

By ROY C. HELFENSTEIN, M. A., B. D.

The enlarging conception of the inclusiveness of the love of God and of the supremacy of the gospel of Jesus Christ has given the Churches of all denominations a new viewpoint in their missionary program. No denomination welcomes this new viewpoint in missionary enterprise more than does the Christian Church, for the position and principles of the Christian Church find eloquent expression in this new viewpoint of missionary program and project.

What the Christian Church has been holding before the world for more than a century and a quarter, the different denominations are now endorsing in their missionary viewpoint, namely: that Christians should be united in love and service, instead of divided by creeds and ceremonies. From every section of the Church universal we hear the expressions of hope that sectarian barriers shall be absolutely obliterated upon the foreign field, and that all denominations forget their denominational interest in seeking the larger interests of Jesus Christ in mission lands.

Verily, it seems that the Christian Church has come to the kingdom for such a time as this to lead the way in proclaiming the larger message of Christian faith in the program of world missions. Never was the message of the Christian Church more needed than it is needed today in the foreign mission field. Never was it more welcome on the home field. For years, missionaries have lamented the denominational competition on the foreign field. For years they have hoped and prayed for denominational co-operation. For years they have recognized that "Christian" is a sufficient name for missionaries and for Churches in the foreign field, and that divisive and sectarian names are a stumbling-block to native converts.

The hour of opportunity for the inclusive fellowship championed by the message of the Christian Church has struck. The day of advance is here. What a tragedy that the Christian Church does not have the man-power and the money-power to proclaim on every foreign field its message of the larger fellowship in Jesus Christ! But what a glorious opportunity is ours to use the man-power we have and the money-power we have to proclaim just as far around the world as we can that message of Christian liberty, Christian co-operation, and Christian unity, and the larger Christian fellowship in the interest of a greater Christian service!

The salvation of every local Church is wrapped up in our denominational missionary program. And as a denomination, we cannot remain a Church and cease to go forward in missionary service. No Church can live, no denomination can live without missionary interest and activity. And no person can remain Christian and be indifferent to the call of world missions.

By reason of the world condition today, and by reason of the religious situation today, foreign missions is no longer merely a part of the Christian program. It is the very life of Christianity itself, and such being true, it is the only remaining hope for world brotherhood and world peace, for the dream of world peace can never be realized until Christ has been enthroned in the hearts of the peoples of the world.

Modern inventions and modern economic conditions are bringing the East and the West closer together physically every year. Foreign missions constitute the greatest opportunity of the Church to bring the nations closer together spiritually. Modern transportation and modern communication have made the world into a neighborhood. That fact being true, unless the Church of Jesus Christ shall pray as it never has prayed, give as it never has given, and sacrifice as it never has sacrificed, to the end that this world neighborhood shall be made into a world brotherhood, the increasing physical nearness of the East to the West will prove a peril instead of an advantage. Geographical proximity may prove disastrous to both the East and the West unless they have spiritual fraternity in Jesus Christ.

As followers of Jesus Christ, it is our supreme privilege as individuals and as Churches to follow Him to the lands across the sea to make known the gospel, which is God's power to save. Jesus Christ was the first Christian Missionary. He had the world viewpoint in His program of salvation. And every person who calls Christ Lord and Saviour is expected to share Christ's missionary vision and passion. No person who believes in Jesus Christ or who sincerely claims to be a Christian can say that he does not believe in missions, for Christ and His mission program are so inseparably related that it is impossible to believe in one without believing in the other.

There are some who feel that because of the tendency toward nationalism and independence on some of the foreign fields that less emphasis should be laid at this time on foreign missions. But they are wrong. We may need a new emphasis, but that new emphasis should be stronger than the old emphasis has ever been. The internal social and religious conditions of the foreign field are a challenge to the Churches of America to show just how Christian they are. Are they willing to sacrifice purely for the glory of God in the service of His kingdom? Are they willing to leave their denominational competition and rivalry on the home field? Are they willing to give their money and their prayers without thought of denominational reward? Are they willing to co-operate with Christians of every name and creed in the task of making Christ known, if need be, even through a national Church over which they would have no control? The message of the Christian Church is a challenge to the Christian people of the world to be willing to do that very thing. No member of the Christian Church can be indifferent toward his or her responsibility in making it possible for our Church to lead not only in missionary idealism, but also in missionary practice.

We cannot practice these ideals without the offerings and the prayers of the members of the Christian Church. It is not enough for people to believe in foreign missions. They must show that they believe in missions, and demonstrate how much they believe in missions by the amount of the offering they give to missions.

The Principles of the Christian Church, if we took them seriously, would make us one of the leading missionary Churches of the world instead of our continuing as we have for years, satisfied to be counted among the stragglers who follow far behind in missionary zeal and per capita giving.

World missions need the message of the Christian denomination. And we, every member of the local Christian Churches, constitute the Christian denomination.

Let's make this the "banner year" in missions for our beloved Church. Let's give the world our message—the message of Christian co-operation in kingdom building, and the challenge of sacrificial service—for the glory of God and the salvation of mankind.

OUR CONVENTION FORUM

Bro. P. J. Carlton Says:

Not having attended any of the Conventions in the past, I am not in position to say what should be brought before the approaching session, other than that we should undertake to strengthen what we have already done. I would like to see the affiliation of the Congregational Church and our Church if we can safeguard our interests. I will be leaving for England just before the Convention meets.

Richmond, Va.

P. J. CARLTON.

Bro. T. J. Holland Says:

We are all aware that some very important matters must come up before our approaching Convention. They will require the very best thought of our very best leaders. In regard to our Church and the Congregationalists, our people from every section of the Church heartily endorse the movement for the union of these two Churches. The Congregationalists seem anxious to unite with us, and I do not feel that we should shut them out. I understand that they are willing to accept our Principles and do not reject our name. It will give us greater strength to unite with them and will be one of the greatest movements our Church has undertaken since the founding of Elon College. I think that our union with the Congregationalists will be the beginning of union with others, such as the Free-Will Baptists.

Ambrose, Ga.

T. J. HOLLAND.

Rev. E. M. Carter Says:

If there is anything that concerns us, more than another, at the approaching session of the Southern Christian Convention, it certainly must be the matter of our publications. We should give the very strictest attention to this matter.

Youngsville, N. C.

E. M. CARTER.

Dr. D. A. Long Writes:

In my opinion, the first thing for our Convention to do is to devise ways and means to pay its debts.

Second, to take from all its institutions the self-destroying power of contracting debts.

Third, to impress as far as possible the importance of teaching two facts—that missions, both home and foreign, is the only way to the salvation of souls, and that the highest liberty for the citizen is the reign of law.

Florence, S. C.

D. A. LONG.

Prof. M. W. Hook Suggests:

I am listing below a few important objectives for the coming session of the Southern Christian Convention:

1. The endowment fund of Elon College should be materially increased.

2. Bethlehem College should be aided in every way possible in becoming fully accredited and established on a firm financial basis.

3. Action should be taken to put our missions on a better financial foundation.

4. Everything possible should be done to promote Christian unity in general and union with the Congregational Church in particular.

I think that the coming session might well be counted a record-making time if any one of the above were well accomplished; but we must not be satisfied with doing one thing when so many issues are confronting us. I am particularly anxious that Bethlehem College shall come in for her due share of consideration.

Elon College, N. C.

M. W. HOOK.

Rev. B. J. Earp Suggests:

1. Merger with the Herald. One of the things that the coming session of the Southern Christian Convention should do is to merge THE CHRISTIAN SUN with the Herald of Gospel Liberty. For years the financing of THE SUN has been the concern of a number of individuals in our Southern Church, and we cannot afford to let its shining rays of light die. I should be absolutely opposed to letting it die. But it does seem to me that the merger would help in a partial way at least to solve our financial problem in respect to this publication. I believe the money spent this way by holding to THE SUN independently and publishing it independently of the rest of our publications could be used to better advantage to further the kingdom of Christ.

2. Harmony with program of the General Convention. It is the conviction of the writer, and has been for some time, that the whole Church should undertake the same thing at the same time. Take for example "missions." I read the Herald of Gospel Liberty, and there I see a program outlined for teaching missions in February. I pick up THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and there I read of a plan and program for education period in February. I believe the Convention should fashion its program so as to fit in with the program of the General Convention, or else slow down on "Christian unity."

3. Formulate some plan for closer affiliation with other denominations. We have talked about our broad Principles. We have said that we stand for Christian unity until we have gotten into the habit of it. I am wondering if, in the eyes of a God of justice, some of us are not about as narrow and selfish as many of the other denominations that might be pointed out! Let us live by and for the Sixth Cardinal Principle of our dear Church or change it. Let us go on record as being actually willing, as far as possible, to co-operate with other denominations and organizations, groups or individuals, who recognize and confess that Jesus is the Christ, and who desire the coming of His kingdom on earth. Let us not think that the denomination that we call the Christian Church is the only Church, but only a part of the Church, the great kingdom of God on earth. While it is not right for us to urge union with other denominations until it is done through the General Convention, yet I believe that many of us should begin to learn to appreciate the position and respect the beliefs and policies of other denominations with which we may have chance to be associated or affiliated, ever remembering the seventeenth chapter of John, when Jesus so earnestly interceded for the unity of His followers.

Winchester, Va.

B. J. EARP.

BOARD OF RELIGIOUS EDUCATION'S FINANCIAL REPORT FOR JANUARY, 1928.

Balance in bank, Jan. 1. $ 124.00

Receipts.

Western N. C. Con., G. T. Gunter. . . $ 8.00

Eastern N. C. S. S. & C. E. Con. . . . 124.67

Bethlehem Church, Bible School. . . 1.50

134.17

Total balance and receipts. $ 258.17

Disbursements.

Miss Pattie Coghill (Jan. salary) . . $100.00

Miss Pattie Coghill (Feb. salary) . . 100.00

Balance in bank, Mar. 5. 58.17

$ 258.17

C. H. STEPHENS, Treas.

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

Curtis Albert Shoop, son of Rev. James and Sarah Hoy Shoop, was born at Valley View, Pa., September 6, 1867, and died at his home on Bank Street, Suffolk, Va., January 17, 1928, at the age of 60 years, 4 months, and 10 days. Mr. Shoop was educated at Lebanon Valley College, in Pennsylvania, and took his business course at Poughkeepsie College, in New York. He came to Suffolk, in 1888, and associated himself with Harper & Jones, in the hay and grain business; and later in the same business with Charles E. Holland as business manager. He finally sold his interest in this business, now Holland & Beamon Company, and, with N. R. Withers, organized the Shoop-Withers, handling coal, ice, hay and grain. This firm operated successfully for many years, and, in 1906, Shoop and J. T. Benthall organized the Benthall Machine Company, which became the world-renowned manufacturers of peanut-pickers. His name and this machine are known throughout the peanut world. Of this business he was secretary and treasurer. He was president of Cooper-Riddick Company, Suffolk Clay Company, the Chamber of Commerce, director in many corporations, and a leading spirit in the development of Suffolk for nearly forty years. Leading officials, bankers, manufacturers, and merchants regarded Mr. Shoop as one of the foremost men in the city in all that pertained to the commercial, social, and religious life of Suffolk.

Mr. Shoop was married to Miss Bertha Zimmerman, of Enterline, Pa., on December 26, 1889, and they lived happily together for 39 years and 21 days. Their children are Virginia, now Mrs. John T. Phillips, with two children, John T., Jr., and Sarah Hay; Ethel, now Mrs. Bernard W. Godwin, with Bernard W. Godwin, Jr.; Elizabeth, now Mrs. Browning Dixon. He is survived by his devoted wife, three daughters and their husbands, and three grandchildren. His father, the Rev. James Shoop, now 87, survives and came to his funeral from Pennsylvania. He is also survived by three brothers and two sisters.

Mr. Shoop united with the Suffolk Christian Church May 10, 1891, and his wife and children all became members of this Church and good workers. He was elected superintendent of the Sunday School October 13, 1897, and filled that important office efficiently until November, 1915. In this service, that same sound judgment, attractive personality, and winsome manner that made him successful in business made him successful as superintendent of the Sunday School and won for him the esteem and support of teachers and pupils.

Upon the death of W. H. Jones, the successful banker and loyal Church member and chairman of the committee on finance in the Church, C. A. Shoop became his successor and held that position and discharged the duties of that office faithfully to the day of his translation from the Church militant to the Church triumphant. In addition to this local Church service, he was a valuable member of the board of trustees of Elon College, as well as liberal contributor to its financial support. The Church has lost a model member, the city a model citizen, his friends a model friend, his family a model husband and father. His thirty-nine years of residence in Suffolk were full of good words, good service, and good help for the city, the commercial and industrial integrity of the community, and a personal witness for Jesus Christ. He combined all the elements of a good man, a good citizen, and a good Christian. His name is a rich legacy and his life an inspiration.

W. W. STALEY.

ELON LETTER.

The Christian college should not only prepare its students to be interested workers as laymen and laywomen in their local Churches; it should not only prepare those who have chosen the ministry as their life-work for effective service in their high calling—it should also motivate certain members of its student body to give themselves to missionary effort. A college ought to be judged by its successes in all these directions, and it ought not to fail to render service in any one of these particulars. All of them are vital to the success of a denomination and to the kingdom's progress.

Rev. D. P. Barrett was the first Elon alumnus to enter upon foreign missionary work. Early in the year 1901, after he had spent a graduate year in special preparation for his missionary calling, he sailed for Porto Rico, where, with only two brief furloughs for twenty-seven years, he has represented the Christian Church in that Catholic island. He has seen our work there grow from nothing to its present situation, and truly he is part and parcel of all that he surveys there that is related in any way to the Christian Church.

Rev. T. E. White later went to the island of Porto Rico as a foreign missionary and served there for nine years. Returning to America because of conditions of health in his family, he gave himself to a very effective ministry until, because of his superior knowledge of the Spanish language, he was called to a professorship in his alma mater, where he is rendering a splendid service at this time.

Wallace C. McCloud offered his services to the Mission Board of the Christian Church for work in Porto Rico. Funds were not available at that time to commission an additional missionary, and so Bro. McCloud and his wife went to the island and spent two years as teachers, assisting in our work there.

Mr. Victor M. Rivers, a native of Porto Rico, was given the opportunity by the college to earn his way as a student, and after his graduation returned to his native land and served as director of the young people's work in our Porto Rican mission. He is now rendering fine service to his fellow-citizens in his native land as teacher of English in high school. His Christian example is a real help to his people.

This past September, Miss Victoria Adams, a native of Syria and graduate of Elon, went to Porto Rico under appointment of the General Mission Board. She is now active in the work there.

In our Japan mission field, two workers have been graduated from Elon and returned to their native land as assistants in the Christian Girls' School, at Utsunomiya, Japan. Miss Toshio Sato, as she was known during her Elon days, was financed in her education at Elon by that splendid Christian man, Bro. J. Beale Johnson. She is now Mrs. Kameichi Kato, but she is active still in the work of our Christian Girls' School. Miss Chiyo Ito is also actively identified with Mrs. Frye in her excellent work of Christian education in connection with the Christian Girls' School.

In addition to these missionaries, motivated and trained for their life-work in the Christian Church, Elon is proud to have afforded to the Methodist Protestant Church two of its outstanding missionaries. Rev. J. C. Auman, whose wife was also an Elon student and known during her college days to a host of friends as Miss Sadie Parrish, is president of the Christian Boys' College, Nagoya, Japan. Rev. J. P. Minnis is also a missionary of the Methodist Protestant Church in Duhlia, India, where he is engaged in general missionary work and connected with the Christian Training School for native Indian workers.

Elon also has prepared two fine young women for missionary service in the Presbyterian Church—Miss Monte Scarborough and Miss Mitchell Ferguson.

None of these missionaries, with the possible exception of Misses Sato and Ito, of Japan, came to Elon with the thought of engaging in missionary work. They were fine Christian young people, but the impulse to give themselves to Christian service in foreign missionary effort came to them under the influence of the college spirit and instruction. Elon is happy to have been the human situation out of which the decision arose in the minds and hearts of these young people to become heralds of the cross and crusaders for Christ in the non-Christian lands.

There have been several other Elon students in whose minds and hearts there arose an impulse during their college days similar to the one which has sent these noble Christian workers to foreign lands, but considerations of health in some cases and the financial inability on the part of our Mission Board to send them out in the case of others led to disappointment in the realization of their aspiration and hope. There are others now fully prepared for effective missionary service who are anxious to go out under appointment by our Mission Board.

Elon is happy to have rendered this service to the cause of missions in the way of personnel. May the day never come when our Church will need missionaries and our college has prepared no young people to meet the demand!

W. A. HARPER.

BETHLEHEM LETTER.

STEWARDSHIP AND OUR COLLEGES.

A Christian should live a life of such fellowship and vision and power and initiative that every day of it is one of high purpose and consecrated endeavor. His life is an opportunity for service, to do constructive work in the world which shall effect the lives of his fellows, and which shall abide when he has gone hence.

His money is a part of his equipment for his life-work—an effective working unit. Money is stored-up energy, like the sunlight in coal. As such, it can be converted into thought or labor. It can be directed into intellectual processes, as in funds to support our schools and colleges. The use of money is really a question of the use of life, because it is concerned with the use of a distinct power—a true part of life's resources.

Character is indicated every day in our gifts. We think we would give a great deal to our schools and colleges if we had a million dollars, but we would use it in just about the same way as we are using what we have now, only it would be much more difficult for us to give as large a proportion as we do at present. The things one seeks reveal his preference; the methods one uses reveal his principles; the things one enjoys reveal his tastes; the things for which one sacrifices make known the objects of his devotion.

Our possessions are a gospel trust, and this is true whether the amount committed to us is great or small. Our possessions can never do their best work until they are used to sound out the gospel message to others through the Church and her colleges. We need to put our living and our giving on a scriptural basis and commit ourselves to a minimum of expenditure for self and a maximum of gift to the kingdom. Whatever enlarges opportunity in life either for development or service is a worthy expenditure, such as special study, through our colleges, or enlargement of equipment for work, or the securing of a suitable environment. To be God's man, to do His will, to preach the gospel, to spend on self that we may be more and do more in the great work, is to insure a proper balance between that used on self and used on others.

The direct object which God seeks through stewardship is to develop and enrich personality. No act of giving is as necessary to the kingdom as it is to the giver, nor as beneficial. Through giving, the mind is informed and the judgment convinced, the heart is aroused, the will is brought into subjection, our moral consciousness arises to the best that is within us and our noblest and finest impulses soar high above the worldly and temporal. Self-gratification is the high road to acute dissatisfaction, but self-denial is the way to self-mastery. The danger of earthly treasure is not so much that the man will get too much of the money as that the money will get too much of the man.

Giving is a high duty, but it is also an absolute necessity to the Christian. Covetousness is a secret sin—an insidious disease of the soul. What can be sadder than the spectacle of men with their minds richly informed, their hearts profoundly stirred, their judgment approving Christian giving, their nobler impulses all toward it, feeling the ought, the obligation, yet allowing themselves to smother every generous impulse, reject every appeal of mind and heart, deny every vision of the high things and selfishly cling to their money to the hurt of their souls.

The impulse to give to our colleges is born of the Spirit. Not to act on the impulse is to quench the spirit. To have what we want is riches, but to be able to do without for the sake of financing our colleges is power.

Wadley, Ala.

S. L. BEOUGHIER.

SOME OBSERVATIONS.

By Mrs. W. M. Jay.

The Woman's Board of the Southern Christian Convention recently created a new office—that of Convention editor—and I have been asked to fill that place. Editors have been elected in the different Conferences, and these editors are to get in touch with all the societies in regard to their activities and forward such information to the Convention editor, who will have it published in THE CHRISTIAN SUN and Herald of Gospel Liberty. The local societies are urged to send their news items to their respective Conference editors, so that we may have something to put in each issue of our papers. If you have had a good meeting or have tried a new plan, or have a problem, perhaps it would help some other society, or they in turn might be able to help you. Let's make this our page where we can talk together.

Observance of the "World Day of Prayer" for missions is the latest thing to which our minds have been turned, and I am hoping for some glowing reports soon from the Conference editors.

Through Mrs. J. M. Fix, editor of Eastern Virginia Conference, we have the following items:

The younger women of the Missionary Society at Christian Temple, Norfolk, organized a new group known as the "Victoria Adams Circle," with twenty present at their second meeting. Miss Adams visited this Church in September, just before sailing for Porto Rico, and out of this personal contact grew this new and thriving organization.

Their pastor, Dr. Smith, taught the study book,

"The Adventures of the Church," at their regular midweek prayer service, giving one chapter each week, and they report a great success from the standpoint of interest. The other study book, "A Straightway Towards Tomorrow," is being taught in the circles. They are also planning to celebrate the fifteenth anniversary of the organization of their society with an open meeting at the Church soon.

The Woman's Missionary Society, of Suffolk, celebrated its sixteenth anniversary recently with an attractive program and social hour in the fellowship hall of the Church, using the Valentine effect for decorations. Mrs. W. H. Yates presided at this meeting and interesting reports were made. Mrs. R. L. Smith had charge of the devotional period, and all present responded with some part. Mrs. J. A. Williams, president of the Woman's Board of the Southern Christian Convention, gave an inspiring address on "Women, the Helping Hand." Special music was rendered by a male quartet, followed by a pageant entitled "A Missionary Clinic," which was very effective and helpful. A silver offering was taken for missions and the total amount for the evening, including dues and collections, was $101.55. Delicious refreshments were served to about 138 members by Mrs. H. P. Murphy and her committee.

The "World Day of Prayer" for missions was observed by the Elon College Community Church on Friday, February 24th, under the supervision of the Woman's Missionary Society, directed by Mrs. W. M. Jay. The interesting program, with the theme, "Breaking Down Barriers," was rendered under the following divisions: Thanksgiving, Confession, Intercession, and Consecration. The pastor and many others assisted in these services, which were presided over by Mrs. Jay. Rev. and Mrs. D. P. Barrett were present and added to the service.

A special feature of the program was the music, which was entirely in keeping with the subject, and Mrs. J. L. Foster and Mrs. J. W. Barney, assisted in this, the hymn, "Have Thine Own Way, Lord," was beautifully rendered by Mrs. Barney.

The services were among the most beautiful and impressive ever held, and all present seemed to feel that they had gained much by having dropped their duties of actual labor and enjoyed the genuine fellowship of love, prayer and service for even this brief period of time and mingled together to unite in prayer, knowing that throughout the world prayers were being offered for world peace and brotherly love.

Mrs. Boyd Richards, Virginia Valley Central Conference, sends us the following news item. The Conference, in meeting at Leaksville, Va., added the department of spiritual life, with Miss Ora Scott as superintendent. She is pushing this work and trying to promote a deeper spiritual life among the people.

On Saturday, March 3, 1928, at Bethlehem Christian Church, New Market, Va., there was a joint meeting of the members of the Woman's Mission Board and also the superintendents of spiritual life of the Virginia Valley Central Conference. Mrs. B. R. Richards presided over the meeting with her usual grace and dignity. There was no speech-making, but after a short period given to worship and devotion, a few things very vital to our work here was agreed upon. In the absence of Mrs. B. F. Frank, who was detained because of illness, Mrs. R. C. Myers acted as secretary and recorded the minutes. Miss Verdie Showalter read the treasurer's report, which showed that the second quarter of our Conference year was far better in its financial achievements than the first one. Mrs. K. H. Sale led the discussion of "How Spiritual Life Programs May be Put On." Literature was given to the superintendents present, and arrangements made to send it to those who were absent.

Mesdames B. R. Richards, R. A. Larrick, A. W. Andes, and B. F. Frank and Miss Verdie Showalter were elected as our official representatives to meet with the Woman's Board of the Southern Christian Convention. It was decided to divide the Conference into five districts and some time in June to hold five missionary rallies, one for each district, instead of holding just one rally for the whole Conference as heretofore. It was also decided to hold a mass-meeting of all the Conference women just prior to the annual Conference instead of during the sitting of Conference, as heretofore.

This meeting was a step forward in missionary work in the bounds of this Conference, and here is hoping for larger activity on the part of the women. The pastors and their wives who were in attendance were Rev. and Mrs. A. W. Andes, Rev. and Mrs. B. J. Earp, Rev. W. B. Fuller, and Rev. and Mrs. W. T. Walters. Each of the ministers offered suggestions and took part in the discussions. Rev. A. W. Andes read the opening Scripture lesson, while Rev. W. B. Fuller offered the opening prayer.

HOPEWELL, VA.

"That we may know the power of His resurrection" (Phil. 3:10). "For now is Christ risen from the dead and is become the first fruits of them that slept" (1 Cor. 15:20). The Easter message of love, joy and hope, "so old yet ever new," which comes into our hearts each Easter-tide and urges us to a greater work for our Lord and Master is filling our hearts at this time, and we pray that all hearts may be blessed and take on new life. The winter of sickness and sorrow is past and everything is teeming with new life. Especially is it so with our little Church at Hopewell. Though there has been much sickness among our members during the winter, God has been good, and we are rejoicing that we can all meet together again and lift our voices in praise and gratitude to our Heavenly Father.

Our Sunday School has an average attendance each Sunday of almost one hundred. An Easter program is being prepared by some of the scholars and with the help of the choir and our pastor an inspiring program will be given on Easter Sunday morning. Our midweek prayer services have been especially interesting and helpful for the past month, as our pastor, Rev. D. D. Nash, has taken the old hymns as his subject for discourse. They have taken on new meaning and bless us.

The contract for the new Church building has been let to a local contractor, and we will soon see our hearts' desire for a Church home taking shape. Plans are under way to break ground for the new building next Saturday, March 17th, at 3 o'clock, God willing. Mr. J. M. Darden will have charge of the program, and we expect Dr. W. W. Staley and Mr. and Mrs. Sam Davis to be with us, and we hope many others of our Conference friends will plan to be with us for this happy occasion.

Other denominations in Hopewell are planning to build in the near future, and we, as citizens of Hopewell, ask your prayers for our city, that, as it grows industrially, the spiritual life will also grow and that sin and evil may be put down.

R. H. W.

Never fear when the Lord bids you go down to the way "which is desert." The moment you set your foot in the wilderness, you are the Lord's guest, and He ever keeps His table right royally furnished.—Guy Mark Pearse.

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Field Secretary.

PASTORS PROMISE QUOTA.

I have received reports from the following pastors that their Churches will raise their quota for missions: Rev. John G. Truitt, First Church, Norfolk, Va.; Rev. H. C. Caviness, First Church, Portsmouth, Va.; Rev. H. S. Hardcastle, Suffolk, Va.; Dr. I. W. Johnson has given me every assurance that his Churches will raise their quota.

I am very happy to have these reports, and I hope to have more. We must talk missions and we must work missions, as you know there is not but one Church now being built by the Southern Christian Convention, and this is Hopewell. If we wish to grow as a denomination, we have to build Churches. We have grown to a membership of thirty thousand, but for the lack of funds we cannot even send one missionary to the foreign field this year.

I appeal to each pastor and to the members of the Christian Church just at this time to raise at least their quota of one-sixth of their pastor's salary for missions. I have printed envelopes for the offering, and if any pastor desires these and will notify me I will gladly send them; or if you want some one to come and speak to your congregation to assist you in this great work, I will be glad to send them. If I can serve you, command me.

J. M. DARDEN,
Acting Secretary.

WELLONS MEMORIAL CHURCH.

Work has begun on our new Church at Biscoe. We might have become discouraged if this long delay had been made known to us when we organized in September, 1925, but we have patiently worked and waited for a day to dawn when we would have a house to worship in. Oh, how beautiful is the light of that day as it is beginning to shine in its reality. I have been told by other ministers (not of our denomination) that I had undertaken a hard task, that they feared I would never finish; but today I am rejoicing in the work we have started here. It is the undaunted trust we have in our little flock of members we have here who have expressed themselves as we must and we will have a Christian Church in Biscoe that so encourages us.

There are several things that we are proud of. First, the name. At the time we organized, the oldest living minister of the Christian Church consented for us to use his name in naming our Church. I refer to Uncle James W. Wellons. He had expressed on another occasion that he hoped that if it be the good Lord's will, he might attend and help in the dedication service. If any Church or person who knew Uncle Wellons wishes to have a part in building this place of worship, send all contributions to O. H. Lambert, Biscoe, N. C. We will send the names of all contributors to THE SUN. Following is a letter written by Uncle Wellons:

"Greensboro, Oct. 21, 1926.

"Dear Bro. Martin,—I was so glad to get your letter and that you are doing a good work. Go ahead. Your life is before you, and there is a lot for you to do. I remember you so kindly, and if you want to use my name for a Church, I feel that I would be honored. My health recently is better than it has been for some time. I have no one at the home now to write for me, and am unable to write myself, but I am always glad to hear from my friends and will answer when I get some one to write for me. I may be able to preach another sermon on my birthday, January 1st. I will be governed by the weather and my health. Yours in Christ, (Signed) J. W. Wellons."

W. C. MARTIN, Pastor.

SUNDAY SCHOOL MISSIONARY OFFERINGS FOR FEBRUARY.

First Christian Church, Greensboro, N. C.	$ 15.26
Bethlehem, Imberville, Va.	2.77
Wadley, Ala.	1.87
Hobson, Va.	4.04
Windsor, Va.	4.86
Third Avenue Church, Danville, Va.	5.57
Oak Level, Youngsville, N. C.	2.75
Henderson, N. C.	1.47
Pleasant Grove, News Ferry, Va.	5.78
Dendron, Va.	14.13
Ether, N. C.	3.94
Vanceville, Brookfield, Ga.	1.46
Seagrove, N. C.	1.64
First Church, Winchester, Va.	4.78
Pleasant Ridge, Ramseur, N. C.	2.00
First Church, High Point, N. C.	6.85
Linville, Va.	4.52
Antioch, Zuni, Va.	2.00
Timber Ridge, High View, W. Va.	1.75
First Church, Norfolk, Va.	7.99
Suffolk, Va.	12.50
Ramseur, N. C.	4.78
Leaksville, Luray, Va.	1.94
Graham Providence Mem'l, Graham, N. C.	1.52
Zion, Moncure, N. C.	1.50
Liberty (Vance), Henderson, N. C.	5.61
First Church, Portsmouth, Va.	9.71
United Christian, Lynchburg, Va.	2.34
Mt. Olivet (G), March, Va.	2.35
Ether, N. C.	3.63
Parks Cross Roads, Ramseur, N. C.	2.00
Pleasant Ridge, Guilford College, N. C.	.91
First Church (Berkley), Norfolk, Va.	9.46
Wake Chapel, Fuquay Springs, N. C.	5.00
Berea (Nans.), Driver, Va.	5.15
Elm Avenue, Portsmouth, Va.	6.07
Pleasant Hill, Liberty, N. C.	1.71
First Church, High Point, N. C.	2.61
Mayland, Broadway, Va.	2.25
Newport News, Va.	9.00
Oakland, Suffolk, Va.	5.00
Oak Level, Youngsville, N. C.	1.23
Randleman, N. C.	3.14
North Highlands, Columbus, Ga.	1.15
Bethlehem (Nans.), Suffolk, Va.	2.82
Union (Southampton), Courtland, Va.	1.34
Dry Run, Seven Fountains, Va.	1.87
Holy Neck, Holland, Va.	8.00
Durham, N. C.	16.00
Lebanon, Semora, N. C.	2.21
South Norfolk, Va.	9.17
Wentworth, McCullers, N. C.	5.18
Wakefield, Va.	3.01
Elon College, N. C.	12.50
Bethlehem, Timberville, Va.	1.75
Palm Street, Greensboro, N. C.	5.60
Holland, Va.	9.00

Total	$ 274.44
Burlington, N. C.	50.97
Woman's Bible Class, Norfolk, Va.	12.50

Self Denial Offering.

Previously acknowledged	$4,243.99
Mrs. H. W. Allen, Marion, La.	1.00
Mrs. S. J. Smith, Corbett, N. C.	2.00
Mrs. I. T. Byrd, Holland, Va.	5.00
A. F. Hozier, Norfolk, Va.	10.00

Total to March 1, 1928..... $4,261.99

Summary.

Sunday School regular	$ 274.44
Specials	63.47
Self-denial offering for February	18.00
Mountain work	1.75
Woman's Board	1,677.19
Total	$2,034.85
Check to R. W. Malone, Treas.	2,034.85

J. O. ATKINSON,
Mission Secretary.

FROM PORTO RICO.

Nearly thirty years ago, the first missionary came to Porto Rico with the gospel and the open Bible, and in the next five years following, eight different evangelical denominations found themselves working together for the spread of the gospel in this pearl of the Antilles.

The first years that our missionaries spent here were filled with hardships of different kinds. The necessity to learn the language when so few knew any English, the backward living conditions, the difficulties of gaining the first converts, and afterwards native pastors, the climate and all the different hardships that people in a different climate fall heir to were theirs. A big step was made when the first native pastors began their work, for the Americans (as all the missionaries were called) never could reach the people as well as one of their own.

Twenty-five years have passed, and many are the changes that have taken place in that time. Little by little the towns and villages have been reached by the gospel, and preaching-places established in every settlement, and a native pastorate has been organized. Not only that, but schools of training to train the pastors, Bible women, kindergarten teachers and nurses are working realities. A union seminary, training schools for girls to prepare them for pastors' assistants, and Protestant hospitals all are helping to make the evangelical Church in Porto Rico a reality and a power in the land. How may we build best for the future? What we do now will influence the future.

Many forces are at work these days to awaken the national consciousness of the different people throughout the world that have in the past been willing to be submerged. India, China, Korea, Philippines, Mexico are all working and agitating for more self-expression and are demanding a larger share in their own Church affairs. Porto Rico is not far behind, for the people are requesting more self-government, and such desires are being found also in the Church.

With many of the native Churches self-supporting, and the majority raising something to help their pastoral support, it is only natural that they should have more responsibility than they had in the beginning. With seven different denominations, missionaries are at the head or directing the mission at present, but is it right that they should endeavor to establish American Churches in Porto Rico, with all the different ideas of religious education, without it being tempered by the needs and ideals of the Porto Rican people?

All Christians in all lands may commune together on the essentials, but each country must have its own ideas of the non-essentials. A few days ago I read where a resident of United States was deploring such a denomination as the United Church of Canada, and he said he felt it would be against their democratic teachings to have a "United Church of United States." How be it, I am satisfied that the United Church of Canada is of value for Canada, whereas something else may be desired in the United States; so it is here in Porto Rico.

The time is past when the missionary may come and endeavor to put his ideas and training in American schools at work here. The present demands that the missionary submerge himself so as to work through the ideals and desires of the national organization. Far better would it be for the national Church if the missionary would concentrate his efforts through training the young leaders in the schools and seminary, so that they may take the best and apply it to their own people as they know better what they need.

The success of the National Evangelical Church depends on those at home who will make it possible to train the leaders of the future, and it depends just as much on the missionary today on the field that they may work through the present organization as a leaven rather than as a separate force. A Porto Rican national evangelical Church is bound to come. What are you going to do to help it be of the greatest value in the kingdom of God?

Ponce, Porto Rico.

B. W. MORTON.

IN THE GARDEN.

As we listen to people sing the song entitled, "In the Garden," with so much fervor, we often wonder what their thoughts about the song are, if they have any. We sing the old hymns and the newer songs many times without realizing the meaning of the words we sing; and the words are the picture around which the frame is placed, the jewel inside the setting.

Those who have read about Ira D. Sankey, the great composer and singer of gospel songs, know that he fitted the music to the words of the song; and how God did bless mankind as he sang the words into their hearts! In writing about the song, "In the Garden," we would like to analyze it, if we may, and get a little meaning of our own, perhaps not exactly as the author felt, but perfectly legitimate in itself. We have read how this song has been called "sentimental twaddle," if any may call this little sketch by such a name. We bear them no malice, we only pray that they may know the blessing of walking and talking with Jesus.

"I come to the garden alone,
While the dew is still on the roses,
And the voice I hear,
Falling on my ear,
The Son of God discloses.

"And He walks with me, and He talks with me,
And He tells me I am His own;
And the joy we share as we tarry there,
None other has ever known."

The early morning, before the cares of the day harass and vex us, we go to the "beautiful garden of prayer" and walk and talk with our God to get the strength and inspiration needed for the work of the day.

A garden of roses—a think of beauty and sweet perfume—yet we cannot always go to enjoy the fragrance and the beauty, for to have it a thing of beauty, much time and care must be spent to keep it beautiful, and scratched hands and aching backs are many times noticed more than the beauty and perfume. So, after our early morning talk, we go into our garden of toil. Jesus said, "My Father worketh hitherto, and I work." He, too, knows the toilsome, weary way, and He walks beside us, if we will let Him, and helps us to keep sweet when everything seems to go wrong. And we can have sweet communion with Him, so that the things that irk will lose their sting and we can sing praises instead of speaking harsh words. Oh, how blessed that we can know that He is truly walking beside us!

"I'd stay in the garden with Him,
Though the night around me be falling;
But He bids me go—
Through the voice of woe,
His voice to me is calling."

"I'd stay in the garden with Him." Do we realize the full meaning of that line? Jesus' garden was Gethsemane, where He gave His all unto His Father's hands to do with as He would. It was there He said, "Not my will, but Thine, be done." We need to stay in that garden, and we need to have Him stay with us and strengthen us so that we may live such surrendered lives that He can work in and through us to His glory.

Oh, that men might mean just what they sing in that line, that His kingdom might come upon earth; but we hinder the coming of the kingdom because we do not truly say, "Thy will be done in (earth) me."

The night fell for Jesus when Judas Iscariot came to the garden and betrayed Him with a kiss and He was led away to trial. Our night comes when trouble, disaster or death comes into our homes and we are overwhelmed. Yet if we have indeed walked and talked with Him along the way, He is still near, and we need only to "lean our head on His loving breast and He will give us rest." Rest? Yes, the rest that He alone can give. "All things work together for good to them that love God." We may not be able to understand the "why," but He sees, and knows, and cares, and gives us the strength to go on with Him when we cannot go on alone. Praise His name. May His will be done.

Hopewell, Va.

MRS. W. A. WARNER.

MISSIONARY MEETING.

Program for the missionary rally of the Alabama Woman's Conference, to be held at Spring Hill Christian Church, April 1, 1928.

Morning Session.

Call to Order—By District Leader.
Devotional—By Rev. C. W. Carter, Pastor.
Hymn—"I Go Where You Want Me to Go."
Scripture—Luke 10:1-11, by Mrs. L. C. Smith.
Enrollment.
Reports from Societies.
District Leader's Message.

Address—"The Missionary Need in the Alabama Conference," by Miss Alma Mitchell.

Discussion—"Chain of Prayer for Our Work," led by Mrs. O. H. Orr.

Solo.

Address—"The Youth and the Church," by Rev. C. W. Carter.

Special Offering.

Appointment of Committees.

Adjourn for Lunch.

Afternoon Session.

Call to Order—By District Leader.

Devotional—By Mrs. C. H. Mitchell.

Presentation of Goals—By Mrs. W. M. Melton, Pres.

Address—"What Missions have Done for Our Denomination," by Dr. S. L. Beougher.

Discussion—"What Our Districts are Doing," by District Leaders.

Discussion of Problems in the Societies, led by Mrs. O. H. Orr.

Reports of Committees.

Election of Officers.

Adjournment.

RUBY RAE ORR,
District Leader.

THE HEATHEN DIE.

By G. S. HUNT.

(With apologies.)

In mission fields the heathen die,
While still unheeding, you and I
Securely rest in self-content
And count the moment wisely spent
To breathe a prayer into the sky.
We have the Truth, the Light, the Way,
But still we linger day by day,
And care not if the heathen die
Away from God.
From all around we hear their cry,
And see those people as they lie
On beds of pain,
Give them the Light,
That they may know the Way and Right;
And when you pray for men to go,
Be sure your help will make it so.

RECOMMENDED BOOKS

The following educational helps and books have been recommended by Dr. W. P. Minton, Secretary of Foreign Missionary Department, and Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Mission Secretary, S. C. C. Acting upon the advice and recommendation of these two recognized and earnest missionary workers, The Christian Publishing Association has stocked the following books, which are moderately priced and can be supplied on receipt of order:

FOREIGN MISSIONARY BOOKS

New Paths for Old Purposes—By Margaret E. Burton. In cloth, $1.00; paper$.60
The Nursery Series—Ah Fu (a Chinese river boy), Kembo (a little girl of Africa), The Three Camels (a story of India), Asa (a little Boy of Nazareth), board backs, each60
Our Japanese Friend—By Ruth Isabel Seabury, in cloth only75
Young Japan—By Mabel Gardner Kerschner, in paper, each40
A Straight Way Toward Tomorrow—By Mary Schauflier Platt, cloth, 75c; paper50
"Straight Way Towards Tomorrow" has been prepared especially for Missionary Societies.

HOME MISSIONARY BOOKS

The Adventure of the Church—By Samuel McCrea Cavert, cloth, $1; paper$.60
Indian Playmates of Navajo Land—By Ethel M. Baader, cloth75
The Better American Series—Junior Home Mission Courses, cloth75
The Story of Missions—By Edwin E. White, cloth, 75c; paper50
Please Stand By—By Margaret Applegarth, in cloth, 75c; paper50
Nine Home Mission Stories—For teachers to tell Primary pupils, paper25
The Upward Climb—By Sarah Estella Haskin, in cloth only, each... .75
In the Vanguard of a Race—By Mrs. L. H. Hammond, in cloth, $1.00; paper75

A SERIES OF SIX BIG FOREIGN MISSION BOOKS

China, Japan, India, Africa, Near East, and Latin-America—Per set in cloth, $6.00; paper, $4.00; cloth, $1.25; paper$.75

ANY OF THE ABOVE OR OTHERS MAY BE SECURED FROM

All books sent postpaid.

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

INTERNATIONAL UNIFORM SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE.

Lesson XII—March 18, 1928.

JESUS TEACHES SINCERITY.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Keep thy heart with all diligence; for out of it are the issues of life."—Prov. 4:23.

LESSON: Mark 7:1-23.

DEVOTIONAL READING: Psa. 24:1-6.

Sincerity—what is it? Well, the derivation of the word is very suggestive. It comes from two Latin words, "sine" which means "without," and "cera" which means "wax." Sincere or sincerity, then, means "without wax." But what does it mean to be without wax? It appears that in the olden days when an artist was doing some sculpturing, if perchance he should make a false blow or if he should make a flaw in his workmanship, he would take wax and fill in the flaw and then dust it over with the powdered stone which came from his work. If, however, he was fortunate enough to produce a piece of statuary or an image that had no flaws, and consequently no wax on it, he would stamp it "sine cera." Without wax meant that it was without false work; it was a genuine article; it was what it appeared to be; it was the "real thing." By that process through which so many words go, these two Latin words, "without wax," have come to mean in English, "sincere," real, true, genuine, unassumed.

Now, Jesus had a passion for sincerity or reality. He was, of course, an Idealist—the world's greatest Idealist—but He was also a realist, in the sense that He liked reality, genuineness, frankness, truth. There was no sham, or "put on," or artificiality about Jesus, and He uncompromisingly demanded sincerity of His followers, not only in religion but in every realm of life. He was very generous and forgiving toward the weaknesses of men, but insincerity brought upon itself His scathing denunciation. The words which He spoke against insincerity and hypocrisy still burn with the heat of His indignation.

The group which seemed to come in for the most pointed and scathing denunciations of Jesus were the Pharisees and the scribes. He called them fools and blind guides and likened them unto thieves and whited sepulchres, and even murderers. But His favorite word for them was hypocrites. Again and again He referred to them as hypocrites, and thereby hangs another tale, for, like sincerity, hypocrisy or hypocrite has a suggestive meaning. It seems to come originally from two Greek words, which mean "behind a mask," and was used later as a term to denote acting or playing. When a person sees another person on the stage, playing the part, say of Hamlet, he knows that he is not Hamlet; he is representing some one else; he is not what he really appears to be. It is significant, therefore, that Jesus applied this term to the Pharisees and the scribes so often, for it very clearly emphasizes the fact that Jesus held them up as those who were parading themselves as something which they were not. They were actors, they were playing a part, they were putting on. And they were doing this in the last place in which one ought to find it, but as a matter of fact in the first place in which one does find it. Because people like to "put the best foot forward," there is always the danger that people will try to appear to be something that they are not, and that they will try to appear better than they really are. Indeed, hypocrisy is a very subtle thing; so subtle that a person may even be an unconscious hypocrite. Furthermore, there is a hypocrisy that makes one seem worse than he is as well as a hypocrisy that makes one seem better than he is.

The lesson deals with a form of hypocrisy as manifested in the attitude and action of the scribes and Pharisees. They appeared to be so scrupulously religious about everything, when, as a matter of fact, they were not religious inwardly at all, or at least not in any vital sense. They would hold up their hands in holy horror at the thought of eating with ceremonially unclean hands, or of eating ceremonially unclean foods, while at the same time they would be harboring an unforgiving spirit, bigotry, pride, hatred, self-sufficiency, an unmerciful spirit, and other things that were the denial of real religion. They went even so far as to make the traditions, the opinions of the scribes about the law, take precedence over the law itself. And because they were insincere in so much that they said and did, they called down upon themselves the scathing denunciation of Jesus.

How much "make believe" there is in the world today! Not in the sense of fairy tales which we tell to children, but in the realm of so many, many things. So-called solid mahogany turns out to be veneer. All-wool turns out to be cotton, and poor cotton at that! What seems to be a pretty complexion at a distance, upon inspection is seen to be a "make-up." What seems to be a prosperous home is simply a colossal bluff, existing by buying things that never can be paid for.

In home life, in business, in school, in social circles—there is so much artificiality in so many social circles—in politics, in religion, everywhere—how much of this sickening and disgusting thing we see! How we need men and women, boys and girls who will ring true! Sincerity is no mere adornment of the temple of character; it is one of the great foundation-stones of the whole structure of the life that abides. As some one has said, the keynote of a really great life is "B natural." We cannot all be great, or rich, or brilliant, but we can be sincere; and if we are to approximate in any way at all the Master, we must make this quality the foundation of all that we build into our lives.

Lesson XIII—March 25, 1928.

RECRUITING FOR THE KINGDOM.

GOLDEN TEXT: "And they that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament, and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars forever and ever."—Dan. 12:3.

LESSON: John 4:34-42.

DEVOTIONAL READING: Isa. 55:1-11.

The kingdom forces must be recruited. Faithful members of the Church of long standing are called to their reward. Indifferent and careless members drop out of active service. The law of growth in the kingdom demands that the forces of righteousness become larger and more active and more powerful. New life is needed to give new impulse to the work. For these, and a number of reasons that could be given, the forces of the kingdom must be recruited. A Church must win people or that Church will eventually die. Evangelism is no elective course in the school of the kingdom; it is a required course. Whatever method is used—and there are several forms of evangelism, all of which have a place in kingdom strategy—some method must be used for recruiting the forces of the kingdom.

The verses of the lesson as printed are a part of that thrilling story of Jesus and the Samaritan woman at Jacob's well near Sychar. There is perhaps nowhere in the gospels a story that shows so clearly and simply the Master's consuming passion for winning people to a saving knowledge of God through Him, or His consummate tact in doing that which His consuming passion prompted. How that Man of Galilee, tired and weary, disdaining the artificial barriers that men had set up in regard to a rabbi talking to a woman, overleaping the racial prejudice and even hatred which characterized the Jews and the Samaritans, avoiding a futile quibbling over matters of theology, and showing a gentleness and at the same time a frankness and firmness that brought the woman to a sense of need and a hunger for reality, how He did this is a story that sends the blood coursing faster through one's veins, and makes one wish that he had more of the spirit of the Master. And then, the woman, having found a new peace, went and brought other Samaritans to hear the man that "told her all that she had ever done." The words of the lesson have to do with the story from this point on.

"My meat is to do the will of him that sent me, and to finish his work." And that is the central mission of our lives—to do the will of God. The trouble with so many, many people, all of us to more or less extent, is the fact that we neither seek to do the will of God in the large outlines and purposes of our lives, nor do we try to do His will in the details of our lives. Life according to Jesus had definite objectives and purposes and meanings, and a man can never come into the real fullness of life unless he has found the will of God and has given himself to trying to do it.

"Say not ye, There are yet four months, and then cometh the harvest?" One of the greatest weaknesses of the average person is the tendency to "put off." Ah! the things we are going to do, but never do. And nowhere is this dangerous and damnable thing more prevalent than in the realm of religion and Church activity. So many of us are saying to ourselves that we are going to speak to this one or to that one when we have our revival, or when the time is more convenient. Jesus would say that the harvest is not four months off, but that today right where we live and work there are opportunities for evangelism. Any time is harvest time for those who have their eyes lifted up to the fields already white unto the harvest, and who lift up their eyes unto the hills from whence cometh their help.

"And he that reapeth receiveth wages, and gathereth fruit unto life eternal." There is perhaps no more rewarding form of kingdom service than personal evangelism. And its rewards are for the life that now is and for the life that is to come. There is going to be a richer life both for the individual members of the Church and for the Church itself when men and women set themselves with whole-hearted purpose to evangelism.

"One soweth and another reapeth." "Other men labored, and ye are entered into their labors." Every man is debtor to the ages. The things we enjoy now we owe to others. The things we accomplish are often the fruitage of seed-sowing on the part of others, some of them whom we have never seen and do not know at all. The only way a man can pay his debts is to do for the coming generations what past generations have done for him. It takes faith and it takes a lot of grace sometimes to start something or to do something which we know will never come to fruition in our lives, or for which we know we will never receive any reward or praise. But it is a law of life.

"And many of the Samaritans of that city believed on him for the saying of the woman which testified." It sounds so simple that it hardly sounds true. Think of it—because one woman, who apparently had been known as a disreputable character, bore simple testimony to this man Jesus, many others believed on Him. But that thing is happening all the time. The man who can tell in a sincere way what Jesus Christ has done, and what Jesus Christ means to him, is helping other men and women to believe in Christ. Where there is reality in personal testimony there is power. The weakness of the "experience" or "testimony meeting" of other days was not its testimony, but in the fact that so often there was nothing vital about the testimony because the experience about which it testified was a think of the past and not a present reality.

"Now we believe, not because of thy sayings, for we have heard Him ourselves and know that this is indeed the Christ, the Saviour of the world." To believe because of what another has said is good, but to believe because one has had an experience of the living Christ in one's own heart is best. And one's testimony and one's efforts at personal evangelism are never complete until men can say in a personal and convincing way, "I know that this is indeed the Christ, the Saviour of the world, and my Saviour."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Sunday, March 25, 1928.

TOPIC: "What is My Share in the Missionary Enterprise?"—1 Thess. 1:1-10. (Missionary meeting.)

Some Bible Hints.

Like Paul, we can remember in loving prayer our friends on the mission field (v. 3).

The gospel message must be accompanied by the power of the Spirit, and in this we in America can have a share (v. 5).

We can be encouragers of missionary converts, praising them, helping them (v. 6).

We can organize missions so that every convert becomes a missionary—a volunteer, who will carry the word afar (v. 8).

Suggestive Thoughts.

Missions demand my interest first of all. If they have not that, they will get little else. We must know the facts about missionary work.

Missions demand my thought and my prayers. If we merely think about missions when the pastor preaches a missionary sermon, our share in them will be very small.

Missions demand my money. They are the Church's big business, and capital is needed. The interest paid is in spiritual blessing, in world outlook, in human sympathy, and a reward in heaven.

My share in missions perhaps will be my life. Some people are giving their lives. Interest, thought, money, prayers, are small compared with the dedication of life to missions.

A Few Illustrations.

I can help to fill a wonder-bag for a missionary—gifts, letters, toys for children, suitable clothing (not cast-off garments), and so on.

I can help to spread a knowledge of missions first by getting a real knowledge of the facts; and, second, by telling the story to others. I can read missionary books and thus equip myself.

I can help in supporting a missionary, perhaps a native worker. Missionary societies will gladly assign such a worker. The Christian Endeavor Society may undertake his support.

I can become a Christian Endeavor tither, and give rather than raise money for missions. I can find a worthy purpose, propose it, work for it, help it along. For instance, the support of an orphan.

To Think About.

Why is indifference to missions so great?

Why ought we to have a share in the missionary enterprise?

What part in the missionary enterprise has our denomination?

COMING EVENTS.

March 20-29.—Series of Church and Sunday School Institutes in the North Carolina and Virginia Christian Conference.

April 28-29.—Children's Division Institutes, Henderson, N. C., for the Churches of Vance, Warren and Franklin Counties, Eastern North Carolina Conference.

May 31-June 1.—Valley of Virginia Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention, Mt. Olivet (G), Mr. R. A. Larrick, Winchester, Va., president.

June 12-13.—Western North Carolina Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention; place undecided; Mr. C. A. Walker, Burlington, N. C., president.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Minion Bold-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 7-8x 7 Inches, and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

2152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.75

India Paper Edition, Size 4 7-8x7 Inches, 1 1-10 Inches Thick.

2152X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$6.00

Bourgeois Type, Size 5 3-8x8 Inches, and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

2167—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.00

2172—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.50

2172A—Same as above, with Apocrypha.....$5.00

2173—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges.....$6.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3-4x3-8 inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3 3-4x5 3-4 Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps.....$2.50

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations. Special book for Sunday Schools.....95c

Minion Type, Pocket Size, 4x6 Inches, 1 1-2 Inches Thick.

With 32 full-colored illustrations; also 25 outline maps through the text and 12 colored maps.

133—Bound in cloth, round corners, red edges, title stamped on side in pure gold.....$1.60

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.$3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 15-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.$4.00

Minion Black-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 3-4x 7 Inches, 1 1-2 Inches Thick.

Printed from clear, large, black-face type, 32 full-page illustrations in sepia and colors, 4,000 Questions and Answers, Harmony of the Gospels, How to Study the Sunday School Lesson, 25 outline Maps, 12 full-page colored Maps.

4152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold.....$3.25

AMERICAN STANDARD VERSION.

TEXT BIBLES.

Printed from Easy-Reading Type, on Good Bible Paper, for Sunday School and Church Use.

Minion Type, Size 4x6 Inches, 1 1-2 Inches Thick, 25 Outline Maps, Bound in Black.

101—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, title stamped on back in pure gold...$1.10

112—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title on back in pure gold.....$2.75

India Paper Edition, Only 7/8-Inch Thick.

112X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.75

Reference and Text Bibles also in minio, briefer, bourgeois, long primer, pica and English type.

Thumb index cut on edge, 50c extra; name printed on any Bible in gold, 40c extra; extra wording, 40c per line.

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5 3-8x8 1-2 Inches and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With concise Bible dictionary, combined concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.75

RED LETTER EDITION

With all the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands, title stamped on side and back in pure gold.....$3.25

Any of the above Bibles sent post paid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 E. Broad St., - - - Richmond, Virginia.

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY REV. H. E. ROUNTREE,
One of Our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"Call upon me, and I will answer thee, and shew thee great and mighty things, which thou knowest not."—Jeremiah 33:3.

MONDAY.

GUIDING PRINCIPLES OF DAILY PRAYER.

"Pray without ceasing."—1 Thess. 5:17.

One of the important guiding principles that makes prayer a delight is: do away with the idea that prayer is a duty and realize it for what it is—an unspeakable privilege.

Not that prayer is not a duty, for it is the duty of duties; but we can realize what prayer means to us and can have joy in it only as we cease to think of it as duty and appreciate it as a privilege. Otherwise there is a strain to it. Prayer must be a free spontaneous outgoing of the soul, and this cannot be if thought of merely as prayer.

Another guiding principle that makes prayer a delight is, use the experience of others who join in prayer to God and pray alone in the quiet somewhere. Jesus told us to go in a closet and shut the door, and when ye do so unless you leave father and mother, and wife and children—that is, unless you get away from them, away from life a while—"ye cannot be my disciples." He means to teach that the quiet aloneness of prayer is necessary preparation for the joy of it and for the fellowship with others. Fellowship with others sets limits to growth because we adjust ourselves to our environment. It cost much to break with those we admire and love. But if one has the power of prayer within, it fires the hidden possibilities God has given him and inspires him to dare to be true even amidst a reverse judgment among dearest relations.

Another guiding principle that makes prayer a delight is: Realize that God is inexhaustible. There is nothing, however great, where you can stop and say: "All of God is here, and there is nothing so small but that it contains a revelation of God." To realize these things, prayer is a joy, God is satisfying and every experience leads on to more wonderful things in store for them who put their trust in Him.

Prayer.—Our Father in heaven, make prayer real to us. From our thoughts inward may we find the joy of Thy fellowship. Help us to discover Thy expectancy and to enthrone prayer and Thyself in the central place in our lives. Amen.

TUESDAY.

RESPONSIBILITY AND DUTY.

"Where art thou? Where is Abel, thy brother?"—Gen. 4:9.

These are God's questions. One places responsibility, and the other describes duty. Almost all of life is associated with the thought of family, the home, the hearth, the nursery, childhood, sisters, brothers, mother, father. "Where art thou?" If God meant to teach anything, it is that we are responsible for one another. To speak thoughtlessly, angrily, exhibit irritability or impatience, to say nothing of the far more generous things of life, must influence their lives and mar the image of God in them.

To declare ignorance and claim irresponsibility is begging the question. That is a kind of refuge in falsehood, an insult to God, and a hardening of the soul to defiance of God.

We sometimes say, "Oh, well, I have done no one any harm." Salving the conscience. But that is a Cain excuse which brought upon his head God's curse, and it applies to every one who disclaim any responsibility for others. Think and pray over this.

Prayer.—Our Father, what is the best thing we may do? Oh, may we know Christ! how to call on Him! how to trust in Him! O that we may love God and man and love our neighbors as ourselves. Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

PURITY AND VISION.

"Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God."—Matt. 5:8.

To be pure means making the reality of the kingdom of God our chiefest desire and endeavor; it means mingling with folks and in the affairs of the world, but untouched by shame or wrong. It means occupying ourselves with honorable interest. It means to be just as pure in the darkness as in the light, when alone as when in society. In the presence of the vulgar, to love the clean and the noble. In the presence of cruelty or dishonesty, to love the sacrificial and heroic. In the presence of need, to love sympathy and helpfulness. The happiness of the world depends upon pure manhood. A realization of God depends upon a pure life, and to see God depends upon a pure heart.

Prayer.—Dear Lord and God, in all the adventure and romance of our daily way may we be without sin. May our lives radiate with the bloom of purity even to our innermost thoughts. Lift us to the larger outreaches of Jesus and show us Thyself. Amen.

THURSDAY.

THE SIN OF BEING TOO BUSY.

"As I was busy here and there he was gone."—1 Kings 20:40.

On the walls of one of our prisons is a motto: "The worst day in the life of a young man is the day he gets the idea that he can make a dollar without doing a dollar's worth of work for it."

It is a mighty late day to teach this in a prison. Why not every one know this and bring up the children that way?

Many a charge in life is undone, many a responsibility is undischarged, many a blessing is missed, because we were too busy. A prisoner may escape while the guard fills his pipe. Often we become unworthy of our duties while we play. Much of our bad luck began when we first began to practice deception, taking it for granted that all things were all right.

Shakespeare says, "Ofttimes excusing of a fault doth make the fault worse by the excuse." Pope said, "An excuse is worse and more terrible than a lie, for it is a lie guarded, and he who tells a lie is not sensible of how great a task he undertakes, for he must be forced to invent twenty more to maintain it."

The man of our text says merely, "I was busy." That was his only sin. A man told me once that he had so many other things to look after, his business slipped.

So it goes. Folks are too busy to go to Church, to read the Bible, to pray. Read the parable of the marriage supper (Matt. 22). Read the parable of the foolish virgins (Matt. 25). Read the parable of the rich man (Luke 16). Then remember that "Whosoever forsaketh not all that he hath, he cannot be my disciple." We are on the wrong scent in pursuit of happiness. It consists not in getting, but in giving. Care for thy soul.

Prayer.—Our Father, show us our duties. Give us keenness of discernment to know the most important to the soul and to life. Give us the courage to sacrifice the lesser for the greater and be approved in Thy sight. Amen.

FRIDAY.

OUR RESPONSIBILITY FOR OTHERS.

"Am I my brother's keeper?"—Gen. 4:6-9.

"Where is thy brother?" is God's call to us all. But who is thy brother? We answer the question with another: "Who is not thy brother?" God has in a wonderful way knit all men together. Every life is in some way touching, influencing, reacting upon some other life. Cain tried to beat a retreat from the responsibility of his great crime. But violated law stood at the bar of his soul, and, with the thunder of silence, kept saying: "Thy brother! Thy brother!" This question of God expresses the law that we are responsible each for the other's welfare, and Cain knew it as well as we.

But this law of life concerns not only what we do or leave undone, which acts directly on our brother, but also the example we set. I was driving last winter across an ice-bridge. I said to the driver, "Do you need to keep so far from the channel?" "I could go nearer," he replied, "but I don't want to make a road." I thought of the multitudes in the Christian world who are not so considerate.

A hotel-keeper, a former parishioner, cared greatly for cards. They were the one diversion in the home. One day he discovered that his two young sons were inveterate gamblers. He had made the road, the boys had gotten out on the thin ice and then in the current. Then there was the case of a mother who believed in the public dance. "To the pure, all things are pure," she frequently said. The infrequent dances she attended never seemed to harm her morals or dim her spiritual luster. But she made a road; her daughter got out on the thin ice and then in the treacherous current. We are our brother's keeper. Let us beware of making a road!

Prayer.—By one of the parents, asking that we may fully realize our responsibility for others whom our example may lead into moral and spiritual disaster.

SATURDAY.

THE GARMENTS OF THE SOUL.

"Awake, awake! put on thy strength, O Zion! put on thy beautiful garments, O Jerusalem, the Holy City!"—Isa. 52:1-7.

The world has always pictured religion as gloomy and forbidding. Sombre garments and long faces and terrible words have often given occasion for such a judgment. But God loves the bright and the beautiful, and He brings into our soul the greatest possible joy, and that eternal. He has clothed the earth in beauty, and spread over it a canopy of wondrous loveliness.

Scientists now tell us that every human body has around it an aura, something like a halo. In a higher sense, every soul is clothed with a spiritual garment, not so much seen as felt. And the garments of holiness and unselfish love are admired by all. Strength of character and loveliness of spirit are supremely winsome; and we can grow into these garments of the soul by fellowship with Christ, and by daily living the graces of His Spirit. In this way, best of all, we commend Christ to those that do not know Him: "By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another."

Prayer.—By one of the parents, asking that those who are earnestly seeking the Christian life (Continued on page 13.)

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

It seems that in our report for January 19th the three following items were left out, under the heading "New Building Fund":

Class No. 1, Holland, Va.....	$ 5.00
Men's Brotherhood Bible Cl., Holland, Va..	79.25
Mrs. W. J. Tucker, Gold Leaf, Va.....	2.00

Total	$ 86.25
-------------	----------

In making out our weekly report, we make an original copy for our record and also a carbon copy for THE SUN. Our copy shows these three items, but they failed to appear in THE SUN.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON,
Superintendent.

REPORT FOR MARCH 15, 1928.

Brought forward	$3,001.99
-----------------------	------------

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

N. C. & Va. Conference:

Long's Chapel	$ 6.66
Greensboro, First	13.29
Happy Home	2.47
	22.42

Western N. C. Conference:

Seagrove	$ 1.32
Pleasant Hill	5.60
High Point	3.70
Ramseur	10.00
	20.62

Eastern N. C. Conference:

Mebane	$ 1.25
Lebanon	2.05
Catawba Springs	8.80
Plymouth, Feb.-Mar.	9.80
United, Raleigh	4.68
	26.58

Eastern Virginia Conference:

Oakland	$ 4.00
First, Norfolk	7.78
Mt. Carmel	4.21
First, Richmond	13.63
Rosemont	36.00
Suffolk	25.00
Franklin	10.00
	100.62

Valley Virginia Conference:

Bethlehem	$ 2.08
Linville	4.89
Leaksville	2.23
	9.20

Georgia and Alabama Conference:

North Highlands	1.03
Northern Sunday School:
Lincoln Church, Lincoln, Kans.....	1.00

Special Offerings.

M. T. Dowd, support children.....	$11.91
R. B. Wicker, support Edna.....	15.00
Mrs. W. H. Keyser, Leaksville, Va..	1.00
Luttie Keyser, Leaksville, Va.....	1.00
Hopewell Church, Hopewell, Va....	10.00
M. Y. Wilson, support children.....	40.00
	78.91
Grand total	$3,262.37

DAMASCUS.

The Woman's Missionary Society of Damascus Church met Sunday, March 4th, with Mrs. J. E. Corbitt, with good attendance. All seem to be willing workers for the good cause. They are planning to have a "hen party" Friday night before the third Sunday. We have a fine group of young people.

The Young People's Society meets on the third

Saturday night, and always have good programs, which will lead to great usefulness in the Church. We have a good attendance at Sunday School under the leadership of our much-beloved and faithful superintendent, J. E. Corbitt. He is always on time and in his place.

The new year has made some changes in the work of the Church. Financially, the Church work is better than it has been in some time; everything is moving on nicely for the upbuilding of God's kingdom. We have as our pastor, Rev. E. B. White, of Dendron, Va., an able leader. He seems to be the right man in the right place, and his sermons are filled with the spirit of Christ. The Church is taking on new life, with preaching every third Sunday at 11 o'clock. Rev. White still holds his charge at Dendron, Va. We pray that all may press forward to the mark of the high calling in Christ Jesus our Lord who has blessed us so graciously.

MRS. ALMIRA HINTON.

FAMILY ALTAR.

(Continued from page 12.)

may be stimulated and encouraged by the assurance of Divine recognition from Him who never fails to help.

SUNDAY.

"UNTIL THE DAY DAWN."

"And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes."—Rev. 21:3-5.

"Until the day dawn." These words are engraved on a headstone marking a small grave that lies out on a sunny hill-slope. They tell the story of a happy family, of a dearly loved son, of a sickness that ended in death, of a faith in the Master that overcame death by looking beyond its darkness to the light of the eternal morning that shall break at last.

There are, no doubt, many such graves upon the hill-slopes of our land. And there are also many hearts that ache with grief and pain. How many of these who mourn have glimpsed the dawn from afar, and have supplanted grief with trust?

For the benefit of those who have not yet had this experience, let this be said: there is a refuge in such faith that is not to be found elsewhere. Grief may be forgotten in the hurry of the day, or drowned in a surfeit of worldly emotion; but its only cure is in a lively hope that looks forward to that fair day when God shall be with His children and they shall see Him face to face.

Prayer.—By one of the parents, asking that we may realize the lessons of comfort and assurance in God's Word. Pray for the faith that overcomes.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES.

We should be glad to furnish your Sunday School the following supplementary supplies, cash to accompany order:

Improved Uniform Series International Lessons.

1. Bible Lesson Picture Roll, 21x32 inches, per quarter	$1.25
2. Sunday School Superintendent (to accompany the Picture Roll), per quarter.....	.15
3. Pupils' Lesson Stories, per quarter.....	.06
4. Little Bible Lesson Pictures, per quarter..	.05

Group Uniform Series, Primary Course.

1. Group Bible Lesson Picture Roll, 16x20 in., per quarter	1.00
2. Group Pupils' Lesson Stories, Primary, per quarter07
3. Group Lesson Pictures, per quarter.....	.04

In making order, be explicit and name the quarter for which supplies are wanted; thus: first quarter, January to March; second quarter, April to June; third quarter, July to September; fourth quarter, October to December.

SEND ORDERS TO THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

COMMUNION WARE

Individual Service

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A

Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses	$7.00
Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses	6.75
Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses	6.50
Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10.....	2.25
Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10.....	2.25
Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim.....	1.60
No. 2—Broad rim	1.60

SILVER-PLATE

The Silver-Plated Ware is of the very lightest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.

Style No. 85

Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses.	$22.00
Base No. 1—Silver-plate; fits Silver Tray No. 85	11.00
Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85...	16.00

(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)

Style No. 90

Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses.
Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling).	$22.00
Base No. 2—Silver-plate; fits Silver Tray 90...	16.00
Cover No. 4—Silver-plate; fits Silver Tray 90..	14.00

Breda Plate No. 3—Narrow rim	$ 9.00
No. 4—Broad rim	9.00
Filler—Silver lined	6.00

Send Orders to THE CHRISTIAN SUN,
1536 E. Broad St., - - - Richmond, Va.

Kiddies' Korner

MADGE MOFFITT WHITESELL, Editor.

Dear Children:

As measles seem to be the order of the day, I am sending you a "measles" story. We all feel so glad that our Orphanage children, so far, are doing nicely. Let's hope they get along without any real trouble. How many of you sent them a little "sunshine"? Write to the Korner and tell us all about it.

With best wishes, I am,

Sincerely,

MRS. T. A. MOFFITT.

Ramseur, N. C.

A TWO-LEGGED SUNBEAM.

By Frances F. Wright.

Bettina was the color of a ripe-red tomato. She was hot, and she was thirsty, the cover was wrinkled, her eyes hurt her, the rash that covered her face and body was stinging like red pepper. Measles, she decided, was the worst disease a person could have, the very worst! However, Bettina had never had any other disease but chicken-pox, so she wasn't a very good judge of ailments.

She began to cry in a fretful, whimpering way: "Mother, I want my lemonade now!"

"In a minute, dear!" called mother. Her voice was sweet and cool and quiet, almost as refreshing as lemonade itself. How it could be, I do not know, for the more energetic twin had just pulled over a pitcher of milk. While she was mopping that up, the less energetic twin fell backward out the kitchen door and knocked all the breath right out of his body. She was washing his face with cold water and kissing and bandaging him when Polly came in the back door.

There was something about Polly that made everybody feel better the minute she came in sight. She was not specially pretty. She was just a healthy, quiet, cheerful-looking child, with oversized new teeth. But her eyes had an interested, what-can-I-do-for-you expression in them; her lips curled up in a way that made your own ashamed to stay turned down; her voice was gay without being loud. O well, I guess that's enough about Polly!

When Bettina's mother looked up and saw her coming in, she said: "O Polly, I'm so glad to see you. But wait! Have you had the measles?"

"Yes'm," said Polly; "both kinds. I came to see if Bet's getting along all right."

"Well, she's lonely," said mother; "and no two sticks were ever as cross as she is today!"

Polly laughed and said: "Well, I believe I can uncross her!" She went into Bettina's room. "Good morning, little redskin!" she said.

"O Polly," wailed Bet, "measles is a horrible disease! I'm about to die." She looked so very much alive lying there, red and angry, that Polly burst out laughing. Polly could even laugh at you without making you mad. In fact, her laugh was so full of mirth that Bettina couldn't help laughing a little too.

"Here," said Polly, "roll over and let me smooth your sheet. I had to do that forty-seven times a day when Sissie had measles." Bettina was glad to roll over, and Polly drew the sheet tight and smooth and tucked it firmly under the mattress. For her age, Polly is more capable than any child I ever saw. I suppose that comes of being the oldest in a family of five children. Polly used to laugh and say earnestly: "I never will be the oldest again! It's a great mistake to be the oldest!"

When the bed was comfy, mother came in with a beaded pitcher of lemonade and two glasses. "Bless us, it's a party!" cried Polly. "And I wore my faded pinafore!" Bettina even got to feeling that it was a party. The dimples that had been sulking out of sight for a week now twinkled a moment in each cheek.

The day, which had started out as drearily as ever a day did, got brighter and brighter. When the twins got fussy for a nap, it was Polly who put them side by side in the hammock and sang and rocked them off to sleep while their mother got lunch ready in peace. When the fever began to rise and Bettina grew restless and cross again, it was Polly who got out the favorite story-book and read "The Three Wishes," while her mother sponged her off with cold water. Polly cut out a puzzle for her to put together when she felt like it. Polly hunted up two delightful pages of paper dolls for her to cut out. Just before she got ready to leave, Polly went out and got a handful of bright flowers and set them in a jar by the bed, where they nodded in the friendliest way.

Then she said she must go. Bet made her promise to come again tomorrow; the twins clung to her as tight as if she had been a big stick of candy; and their mother said, in her sweet, tired voice: "O Polly, Polly, how nice it is to have a little two-legged sunbeam for a neighbor!"

NOTICE.

The district missionary rallies of the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference will be held as follows:

Waverly District—Richmond, April 3rd.

Norfolk District—First Church, Norfolk, Va., April 4th.

Franklin District—Antioch Christian Church, April 5th.

Suffolk District—Berea (Nansemond), April 6th.

MRS. L. W. STAGG, Sec'y.

OXFORD BIBLES

An Oxford $3.50
Teacher's Bible only

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

The best recommendation of the OXFORD TEACHER'S BIBLES is the fact that over 3,000,000 copies have been sold. The wonderful helps they contain save your time because they are alphabetically arranged, making reference easy. They take the place of many books about the Bible, and can be depended upon, being written by eminent scholars. The Helps contain 32 graphic illustrations, besides 15 beautifully colored maps. The text is the Authorized or King James version, with over 50,000 centre column references.

These Are Genuine OXFORD Teacher's BIBLES

EASY-TO-READ EDITION

Size 7 1/4 x 5 x 1 1/2 inches

Specimen of Type

17 And there was a very sore battle that day; and Abner was beaten,

Nos.
01451	Moroccoette, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges	$3.50
01453	French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and handsome Bible	4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Same as above, but printed on the famous Oxford India paper used only in Oxford Bibles. Only one inch thick.

Nos.
0773x	French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition	$7.50

RED LETTER EDITION

05453	As No. 04453 with words of Jesus Christ in red. The red letter feature adds greatly to one's understanding of the Bible	5.00
-------	---	------

Oxford India Paper Edition

05453x	Same as No. 0773x with words of Jesus Christ in red. A gift edition which is sure to please	8.00
--------	---	------

SELF-PRONOUNCING EDITION

All proper names and difficult words divided into syllables and accented so they may be correctly pronounced. Sizes 8 1/2 x 5 1/2 x 1 1/2 inches.

Specimen of Type

6 And A-hi-shär, was over the household: and Ad-ö-ni-räm the son of Ab-dä was over the 'tri-

Nos.
01521	Moroccoette, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges	$5.00
04523	French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A real student's Bible	6.00

Oxford India Paper Edition

Same as above, but printed on the famous Oxford India paper which is used only in Oxford Bibles. Only 1 1/4 inches thick.

0923x	French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A Bible of superior quality	$9.00
-------	---	--------

Improved Thumb Index on any style at 50 cents extra

OBITUARIES.

MORGAN.

My father, Joseph Pleasaut Morgan, was born April 23, 1853, and died March 3, 1928, age 74 years, 10 months and 10 days. On April 4, 1875, he married Miss Sarah Ann Morgan, and to this union were born thirteen children—four girls and nine boys. One girl and two boys preceded father to their heavenly home several years ago, leaving to mourn their loss my mother, Sarah A. Morgan, and my sisters—Mrs. E. W. Freeman, Rockingham, N. C.; Mrs. Dock Williams, Candor, N. C.; Mrs. Benson Thompson, Albemarle, N. C., and the following sons: E. B. and E. V., Asheboro, N. C.; G. R., of Spies, N. C.; R. I., of Parkersburg, N. C.; N. J., of Carthage, N. C.; S. A., of Newport News, Va., and J. F., of Norfolk, Va. He also is survived by one sister, Aunt Elizabeth Monroe, and four brothers—Uncles Mark, Raleigh, Jim, and Frank Morgan.

We buried Father in the family lot, on the old home-place, near Spies, N. C., on the afternoon of March 5th. A large number of relatives and friends were present at the funeral, which was conducted by the Rev. J. H. Buffalo, pastor of Carthage M. E. Church, South.

The expressions of sympathy were many and beautiful. The following telegram was read at the grave, and was greatly appreciated: "Rev. J. F. Morgan, Star, N. C.—The members and friends of Berea Christian Church extend to you and your loved ones our heartfelt sympathy, love and prayers. (Signed) Berea Christian Church." We all appreciated this and the other messages of sympathy so much.

Father was a good man, one of the salt of the earth. He was a member of Big Oak Christian Church and died in the faith. His last message to the family was, "I am going home to heaven in a little while." We are all grateful to have had such a father, and we want to continue to honor him by living such beautiful lives as to enable us to meet him in his new home and form that new circle which shall never be broken.

J. F. MORGAN.

WHITLEY.

Inasmuch as our Heavenly Father, in His great wisdom, has seen fit to remove from our midst the wife of our beloved friend and class-mate, Elisha Whitley;

Whereas, in her death the First Chris-

MISSIONARY PAGEANTS.

Two Masters—By Bertha Cooper Fraser. One of the very best ones published. Price10 cents
The Cross Triumphant—Forty people; about one and one-fourth hours long. Price35 cents
The Missionary Clinic—Price...10 cents
Aunt Tillie Learns to Tithe—Stewardship. Price15 cents
The Betrothal of Mai Tsung—By Kyung Shien Sung and Vida Sutton. A Chinese love story of a boy and girl who became Christians. About 1 hour long. Price25 cents
Order from:

Pattie Coghill,
Literature Superintendent, North Carolina Woman's Board.

tian Church of Portsmouth, Va., has lost one of its loyal and devoted members; be it resolved:

1. That while we mourn the loss of our friend, we bow in humble submission to the will of Him that doeth all things well.

2. That her life and influence has been a blessing to us and to her community; that her Christian fortitude and patience be an inspiration to us to live closer and do more for the Saviour whom she loved and trusted.

3. That we extend to the family our sympathy, and ask our Heavenly Father's blessing upon them in their loss, and that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family and to The Christian Sun and be spread on the minutes of the Men's Bible Class.

C. F. RUDD.

C. J. HEATH.

R. W. HOLLAND, JR.

"Perseverance," that's what we want!

If we don't succeed today, we'll get at it all the harder tomorrow; and if we don't get it then, we'll go at it the next day, and every day of the week. If we don't succeed in January, we'll go at it in February; and if not in February, in March, and no let-up in summer.—D. L. Moody.

It's true we cannot reach Christ's fortieth day;

Yet to go part of that religious way

Is better than to rest.

We cannot reach our Saviour's purity;

Yet we are bid "Be holy e'en as He"—

In both let's do our best.

—G. Herbert.

"We must never make the mistake of assuming that the gospel of Jesus Christ is an American institution. It is for the world, and it is ours now to be a servant among the nations in carrying the blessed glad tidings and heal the broken peoples of earth."

ELON COLLEGE

CO-EDUCATIONAL

SECOND SEMESTER OPENS JANUARY 4, 1928

A few additional Students may be accommodated at that time, preferably members of the Christian Church.

SOME OF THE ELON COLLEGE BUILDINGS

ELON COLLEGE offers superior educational advantages to the members of the Christian Church. The buildings are new, equipment new and of the very best type, laboratory facilities equal to any college in the South; member of the Southern Association of Colleges, strong Christian faculty, and fine Christian atmosphere prevailing on the campus. Special courses in religious education and Christian work are offered to train laymen and ministers in the work of our denomination.

For Catalogue and View-Books, address

C. M. CANNON REGISTRAR,

ELON COLLEGE, - - NORTH CAROLINA

"Christian Character First and Always at Elon College"

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rve. Daniel W. Kerr.

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Christian Church.

BOARD OF EDITORS

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D. Editor
W. W. STALEY, D. D. Associate
W. A. HARPER, LL.D. Associate
REV. S. C. HARRELL, Associate
R. C. HELFENSTEIN, D. D. Associate
REV. S. M. LYNAM, News Editor
P. J. KERNODLE, Managing Editor

Subscription Rates

One Year$2.00
Six Months 1.00

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT
RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Post-office at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows the date of expiration. Change in the label will appear on wrapper the first week of month following renewal, provided it is received before the 25th.

Change of Address: Give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

When subscriptions are made for friends, state whether paper is to be stopped at end of the year.

Remittances: Make all remittances for subscriptions and renewals to "Editor Christian Sun," Elon College, N. C.

Remittances for advertising and other business matters will be addressed to the "Managing Editor," 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond, Va.

Advertising Rates: "Want Ads," 2 cents a word an insertion. Display rates quoted upon request.

Notices: Obituary and Marriage notices, limited to 100 words, are published free of charge. All over 100 words, at 1 cent a word. Remittance should accompany copy. Write names distinctly.

AUSTIN.

Horace Newman Austin died at the home of his sister, Mrs. Herman Rawles, Suffolk, Va., February 29, 1928, aged 27 years. The funeral services were conducted at Bethlehem Church by the writer, assisted by Dr. W. D. Harvard and Rev. G. A. Pearce. The burial was in the Church cemetery.

The deceased leaves a father, J. W. Austin, Suffolk, R. F. D.; one sister, Mrs. Herman Rawles, Suffolk, and two brothers, W. D. and W. C. Austin, Suffolk, R. F. D. Horace had been a cripple from childhood, but bore it with Christian grace. He was bright and ambitious to be worthwhile in life and gladly rendered such service as his physical condition permitted. He was a member of Bethlehem

Christian Church and died calmly trusting Christ as his Saviour. May our Heavenly Father bless and comfort his loved ones.

N. G. NEWMAN.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

Resolutions in memory of our deceased class-mate, John C. Savage, who passed away December 15, 1927:

Inasmuch as our Heavenly Father, in His great wisdom, has seen fit to remove from us our beloved friend and fellow-member;

Whereas, in his death the Men's Bible Class of the First Christian Church of Portsmouth, Va., has lost one of its loyal and devoted members; be it resolved:

1. That while we mourn the loss of our dear brother, we bow in humble submission to the will of Him who doeth all things well.

2. That his life and influence has been a blessing to us and to the community, and his influence continues to radiate through the lives of his family.

3. That the Christian fortitude and patience with which he bore the many years of suffering be an inspiration to us to live closer and do more for the living Saviour in whom he trusted.

4. That we extend our sympathy to the family and may the sweet assurance that he has gone to receive his crown comfort and heal their broken and sorrowing hearts.

5. That a copy of these resolutions be sent the family, a copy to be sent to the Christian Sun, and be recorded in the minutes of the Men's Bible Class.

C. F. RUDD.

C. J. HEATH.

R. W. HOLLAND, JR.

OXFORD TEACHERS' BIBLES

An Oxford Teachers' Bible has references and 300 pages of helps that are a mine of information to Bible students. The helps are arranged in alphabetical order, like a dictionary. They are accurate, comprehensive and up-to-date. A few styles are listed here. Many others are described in our Bible catalogue, mailed upon request.

04403 [This size print] Bound in French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, size 6 7/8 x 4 1/2 inches$4.00

0623x [Same Bible as 04403] Printed on Oxford India paper. Only 1 inch thick,$6.00

04453 [This size print] French Morocco leather binding, overlapping covers, 7 1/4 x 5 in. $4.35

0773x [Same Bible as 04453] Printed on Oxford India paper. A remarkably thin and light Bible. (Only 1 inch thick)$7.75

05453 [Same Bible as 04453] With the words of Jesus Christ printed in red$6.25

05453x [Same Bible as 0773x] With the words of Jesus Christ printed in red$8.75

04523 [This size print] A self-pronouncing Oxford Bible. Bound in French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, size 8 1/2 x 5 1/2 inches... $5.50

0923x [Same Bible as 04523] Printed on Oxford India paper, only 1 1/2 inches thick...$9.75

ORDER FROM
"THE CHRISTIAN SUN"

Richmond, Va

BETHLEHEM COLLEGE

WADLEY, ALABAMA

A JUNIOR COLLEGE AND HIGH SCHOOL.

Where Opportunity Awaits the Student of Very Limited Means.

GIRL'S DORMITORY.

Bethlehem College, Wadley, Ala., will open September 5, 1927. This institution is a Junior College and High School, which is co-educational, where scholarship ranks high and expense is low. It is thoroughly Christian, absolutely non-sectarian, and vitally American. A school where opportunity awaits the student of very limited means—$68.00 pays all college expenses, except books, board and room. Board, $15.00 per month, and room $3.00; total expenses for a term of nine months, $250.00.

Bethlehem College is training some of the best stock of America for Christian leadership, to be used by the nation and the world. Here is a great challenge and asset for students who wish to prepare themselves to serve in a worth-while way. The work on the new Administration Building is progressing nicely, and we will be able to begin our college work in this building when school opens this fall.

For catalog and other information, address S. L. Beougher, President.

HOLMAN BIBLES

FOR CHILDREN
PICTORIAL BIBLES WITH HELPS

The text is self-pronouncing, by the aid of which children can learn to pronounce the difficult Scripture proper names.

Specimen of Type

27 And the boys grew: and Esau was a cunning hunter.
5 And the streets of the city shall be full of boys and girls playing in the streets thereof.

With beautiful photo views of scenes in Bible lands distributed throughout the text. Also maps of Bible lands in colors. Also new Practical Helps to Bible Study, especially designed for instructing children in scriptural information.

No. 9111. French Seal Leather, overlapping covers, round corners, gold edges, gold titles.

Our Price—Post Paid 2.30

COLOR PICTURE EDITION

Portraying in natural colors, scenes and places taken from nature and life in the Holy Land.

No. 9211. Same as No. 9111, but with Beautifully Colored Pictures.

Our Price—Post Paid 2.40

FOR INTERMEDIATE SUNDAY-SCHOOL SCHOLARS

Large Clear Black Type, Self-Pronouncing, containing Helps to Bible Study, 4000 Questions and Answers, Maps in Colors, and Presentation Page. A Beautiful Gift Bible.

Specimen of Type.

22 And the prophet Is-ra-el, and said unto thyself, and mark, and for at the return of t

Size, 7 x 5 inches.

No. 215. Divinity Circuit Style, Bound in French Seal Leather, round corners, red under gold edges, with silk head bands and purple silk marker, gold titles, etc.

Our Price—Post Paid 3.10

No. 3215RL. Red Letter Scholars' Bible, same Bible as No. 215, with all the Sayings of Christ printed in Red, and with Red and gold INLaid PANEL SIDE TITLES, also Beautifully Colored Pictures.

Our Price—Post Paid 3.45

Holman Self-Pronouncing

VEST POCKET TESTAMENTS

Clearcut Print in Smallest Size
4 3/8 x 2 3/4 x 3/8 inches

Specimen of Type:
AND the third day there was a marriage in Cana of Galilee; and the mother of Jesus was

2133K. Bound in durable Morocco Grain Semble Leather, flexible limp, gilt titles$60

2113. French Morocco, genuine leather, flexible limp, gold titles, rounded corners, gold edges.....$70

2115P. French Morocco, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, with the Book of Psalms included$1.10

ILLUSTRATED VEST POCKET TESTAMENT

With Pictures of Holy Land Scenes

2814. French Morocco, limp, gold side title round corners, red under gold edges$85

RED LETTER VEST POCKET TESTAMENT

With all the words of our Lord printed in red.

13RL. French Morocco, flexible limp, gold side title on red panel, gold edges.$85

15RLP. French Morocco, overlapping covers, flexible, gold side title on red panel, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included$1.25

INDIA PAPER VEST POCKET TESTAMENT

Thin as a Wafer

2136XP. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, with Psalms included$2.25

Send Your Orders to

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 E. Broad Street

RICHMOND . . VIRGINIA

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Official Organ of the Southern Christian Convention.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXX.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, MARCH 22, 1928.

NUMBER 12.

.. THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY ..

BY REV. S. M. LYNAM.

Harmony.—

A certain prominent minister, when asked the secret of his long and useful pastorate of a certain Church, replied, "Harmony." This is a Christian grace of far-reaching power, and one that every minister should studiously and prayerfully cultivate. The Lord fill us with love that "suffers long, and is kind."

The Longest Tunnel.—

On February 26th, the Moffat Tunnel was opened, and so was brought to completion the longest tunnel in North America. The Moffat Tunnel is more than six miles long and pierces the continental divide west of Denver. When the western connections are completed, the tunnel will shorten the transcontinental journey by about 180 miles.

Porto Rico.—

The worst living conditions in the United States exists in Porto Rico, according to a report by Dr. George Luther Cady. His report was based on a tour of inspection by nine prominent Congregationalists. Dr. Cady is familiar with the living conditions of the under-privileged classes in various parts of the country. Poverty makes it impossible for the people to provide sanitary conditions. Diseases are uncontrolled in any adequate fashion. There is a dearth of religion in the island, only one-fourth of the population being affiliated with any Church. The population numbers about 378 persons to the square mile. The schools are able to provide for only half of the school population, and the children run loose on filthy streets. According to Dr. Cady, the conditions are appalling, and the Christian Church is responsible for seventy thousand people in this island. As we think and plan missions, we should think and plan specifically with the need in mind.

With the Drys.—

In replying to Senator Borah's letter, Mr. Hoover was not as sweeping as some of the other candidates have been, but he said: "I do not favor the repeal of the eighteenth amendment. I stand, of course, for the efficient, vigorous and sincere enforcement of the laws enacted thereunder. Whoever is chosen President has, under his oath, the solemn duty to pursue this course. Our country has deliberately undertaken a great social and economic experiment, noble in motive and far-reaching in purpose. It must be worked out constructively." This statement definitely places Mr. Hoover with the drys, and those familiar with the activity of Mr. Hoover can readily understand what an efficient, vigorous and sincere enforcement of prohibition would mean to him. He is facing now his first test of candidacy at the polls in Ohio, and we trust he may find a hearty response to his declaration from the American public. Prohibition is facing one of the crucial hours, and we must rally to retain the ground we have gained. Prohibition has not made a Utopia, but it has vastly improved conditions, and we dare not slip back to old ways, as Ontario, Canada, has done. In Ontario, drunkenness has increased and bootlegging is just as much in evidence as ever it was under the temperance legislation. The dry forces have to start all over again to do their work, because the Christian men and women of the province did not stand by in the hour of need.

A Deserved Defeat.—

When Secretary Wilbur and the admirals laid their navy bill before the committee of the House it asked for a program of naval building which would give the United States seventy-one new ships of various types within the next five years, costing about $725,000,000. The bill carried with it a provision for presidential suspension in case a disarmament agreement should be reached. The committee immediately proceeded to strike out this provision, and left it to provide for full completion within five years. Then the storm fell. Petitions from large organizations and from individuals who spoke for large sections of the American people poured in, and the committee paused to consider the temper of the American people who would not be thrust into a gigantic naval-building race by the jingoists. The bill has been reported at least to the House and it provides for sixteen ships instead of seventy-one; for an expenditure of $274,000,000 instead of $725,000,000, as in the first proposal. The parties who stood for big navies have had a well-deserved defeat, and one which the army and navy men may well remember. The American people have definitely shown that they do not want admirals and generals chasing about looking for potential enemies and seeking through vast military preparations to provoke wars.

A Changed Idea.—

When Mr. Thomas J. Kelley became head of the Manufacturers' Association, of Hartford, Conn., he was opposed to prohibition. Since that time he has undergone a complete reversal of opinion. He has issued some interesting facts in pamphlet form. During the year he points out that more than 43,000 men and women lose their jobs in that area, and it is interesting to note that for that part of the number occurring over two months only fifteen were discharged for intemperance, or in the run of the year about eighty-five persons out of more than forty thousand would be discharged for intemperance. He has definitely established by investigation the fact that the conditions of living for the factory worker and his family are much improved under the eightteenth amendment. He points out that his efficiency as an industrialist has been materially raised, and that in many other ways the eighteenth amendment has helped the worker. He believes in prohibition and does not think that the law should be altered to please those who feel that their personal liberty has been infringed. If the worker has weaned himself away from alcoholic drinks, may we not hope that those who are educationally cultured will do the same? Mr. Kelley is positive that the bootleggers of the Hartford district are not finding their customers among the workers. Studies of this kind should be given wide publicity in these days when the nation may be called upon to select a dry or a wet candidate for the presidency of the United States and so give expression to the national convictions on this vital issue. The Church must step in and make sure that the children of the next generation are born into a world free from alcoholic beverages.

A Significant Pilgrimage.—

During this coming June, the Congregational Church of the United States will be host to a pilgrimage of twelve hundred Congregationalists from Great Britain. They have chartered the White Star liner Celtic, and during that voyage it will be known as the second Mayflower. During the visit, which will last from June 11th to June 16th, a significant service will be held at Plymouth Rock. There the Congregational Church in the United States and in Great Britain will reconsecrate itself to the principles of the Pilgrim faith. Shrines of Congregational interest will be visited in the cities of Boston, New York and other cities. In Brooklyn the members of the pilgrimage will visit the Plymouth Church, made famous by Henry Ward Beecher, known in England for his visit there during the Civil War on an anti-slavery campaign. The National Council of Congregational Churches is providing the entertainment for these delegates of good will. The purpose of the visit is to cement a closer friendship and a deeper understanding of the British and American Congregationalists.

The vast majority of the Congregationalists of the world are in America and Great Britain. In America there are about 915,000, and in Great Britain about 480,000. This body of Christians have made large and abiding contributions to the cause of democracy, and it is hoped that the friendship and good will established by this pilgrimage by bringing England and America closer together. Every Congregational Church in the United States is asked to have a direct part in this pilgrimage by corresponding with one of the visitors from the other side through its minister. This will enlist the interest and helpfulness of the whole Church in the project. It is hoped by those promoting the visit that the correspondence thus begun may continue through the years.

NOTES-PERSONALS

Rev. H. E. Crutchfield, pastor of Liberty Church (Vance), was in Richmond recently on pastoral duties and made THE SUN office a pleasant call.

Miss Chiyo Ito is now Mrs. N. Kato. Her address is 52 Shioiri, Yakosuka, Japan. She is still identified with the work of the Christian Girls' School, of Utsunomiya.

Bro. Chas. D. Johnston, superintendent of the Christian Orphanage, was in Richmond the past week and attended the services of First Church. He is much improved in health.

Dr. W. M. Jay has been called to the bedside of his aged mother, near Pittsburgh, Pa. Mrs. Jay is in her seventy-ninth year. The Church will sympathize greatly with Dr. Jay in this hour.

Dr. G. O. Lankford is to give the baccalaureate sermon at the Congregational School, at Star, N. C., on March 30th. The Star people are to be congratulated for the privilege they will enjoy of hearing a real sermon.

The revival services which have been in progress at the First Christian Church, Richmond, Va., conducted by the pastor, Dr. C. C. Ryan, assisted by Rev. J. F. Morgan, of Norfolk, Va., will come to a close Thursday evening.

Dr. R. C. Helfenstein has been assisting Dr. L. E. Smith, pastor of the Christian Temple, in a series of evangelistic services. The services began on the morning of March 12th. We have not learned the results, but are sure that the Temple is enjoying a spiritual feast.

Rev. E. B. White writes: "I am enjoying my course of Bible study with the Moody Bible Institute. I had the pleasure of preaching to a fine congregation at Damascus Sunday. These good people are showing a magnificent spirit of co-operation. I preached for Bro. Garman at night. We had a great service."

The ministerial students of the college have been giving programs in various places recently in reach of the college. Drs. Fleming, Lankford and Rowland have each spoken in highest terms of the programs they give. We have a fine body of ministerial students in the college, and they promise much for our future leadership.

Rev. E. M. Carter has been awarded a scholarship by the School of Religion of Vanderbilt University, and will attend the Rural Church Conference, to be held there April 9-20. Bro. Carter has been honored in this way before by Vanderbilt University, and regards this Conference as one of the most important held in the Southern States each year.

The Church will sorrow in the death of Mrs. Susie V. Fry, veteran missionary of the Christian Church in Japan. At her own expense, Mrs. Fry has conducted for years, in connection with our Japan mission, a girls' school. She was a tireless worker and rejoiced to sacrifice for the cause of Jesus Christ. Our sympathies go out to Bro. Fry in his sad bereavement.

Rev. W. C. Martin writes that the work on our new Church in Biscoe, known as the Wellons' Memorial Christian Church, is progressing nicely, and that they hope to have it finished before Conference this fall. Any person who feels inclined to send a contribution to assist in the building of this Church in memory of Uncle Wellons should send the same to Rev. W. C. Martin, Candor, N. C.

Dr. Daniel Albright Long had the unique experience of being invited to preach in the Protestant Episcopal Church of Florence, S. C., recently. Dr. Long preached from the text: "And He said unto them all, if any man come after me let him deny himself and take up his cross daily and follow me." The Morning News Review, of Florence, speaks in the very highest terms of Dr. Long's sermon.

Rev. R. E. Brittle has been called to be the pastor of the Cypress Chapel (Virginia) Christian Church, Eastern Virginia Conference. Bro. Brittle is a senior in Elon College. He will preach once a month at this Church until his graduation, and then he will become all-time pastor. Cypress Chapel is one of our strong Christian Churches in the open country. Here's wishing the pastor and the people good success.

The Piedmont Ministerial Association met at Elon College on Monday, the 12th, and spent a profitable day together, lunching with the college students at noon and attending chapel, which Dr. P. H. Fleming conducted. The association voted to meet at the college the second Monday in April also, which will be Easter Monday. It is a pleasure to the college to welcome the brethren here for this meeting or for any other.

Mr. Amos Lassiter, Suffolk, Va., Route 1, says that THE CHRISTIAN SUN is the first paper that he ever read. He is still reading it. It was in 1858 that Bro. Lassiter became a reader of THE CHRISTIAN SUN. So that he has been reading it for seventy years. Do we have any other seventy-year readers of THE CHRISTIAN SUN? If so, will they please report? We think Brother Lassiter should be placed on the honor roll.

Rev. H. C. Caviness, of our Portsmouth Church, writes that his Church will go over the top in the mission offering and that he is having splendid success in his meeting. Over 800 people have been reached in the first three weeks. Many have been saved and added to the Church. Family altars in many cases have been established. Bro. Caviness is faithful and an effective evangelist and pastor.

The Executive Committee of the Southern Christian Convention held a session in the city of Norfolk, at the Y. M. C. A., on Monday, the 19th, and made out the program for the approaching session to be held in Richmond, Va. The approaching session of our Convention is a most important one. The Church should be earnest in prayer for the divine guidance in meeting and solving the problems that must be faced at this session.

Dr. A. Liggett Lincoln, New York City, and Mr. J. Earl Massey, New York City, two alumni of Elon College, will represent their alma mater officially at the inauguration, respectively, of President-elect Robinson, of New York University, and Dean-elect Russell, of teachers' college, Columbia University, during the present month. These two worthy alumni will represent their college well on these important academic occasions.

Mrs. A. W. Sparks, wife of the Home Mission Secretary of the General Convention of the Christian Church, Dayton, Ohio, has recently undergone an operation. She is resting easily at this time and the hope is that she will soon be entirely well.

We just have another encouraging word from a good friend who is in daily association with Dr. Atkinson. He says: "Dr. Atkinson dined in my home today and we had a most delightful chat in my study. He is getting a real ruddy color, and in two weeks will be himself again." This will be most encouraging word to our people.

Rev. Morgan L. Williams, director of religious education of the Northern Baptist Convention, in speaking of the work of Elon College in religious education, says: "So far, in my investigations I have found no institution that has faced our common problem of training leadership as Elon College has faced it."

The Hopewell Christian Church will break dirt for its new house of worship Saturday, March 24th, at 3 o'clock P. M. Bro. J. M. Darden, who is now Acting Mission Secretary, will be master of ceremonies. Dr. W. W. Staley, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Leonard Davis, and others will assist. Bro. Davis will lift the first shovel of dirt. A telegram just received from Bro. Darden reads as follows: "Will break ground for the Christian Church at Hopewell Saturday, 24th, at 3 o'clock P. M. (Signed) J. M. Darden."

Dean N. W. Walker, of the department of education of the University of North Carolina; President J. W. Jenkins, Piedmont College, Demorest, Ga., and Dr. W. D. Weatherford, president of the graduate college of the Y. M. C. A., Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn., have been recent chapel speakers at Elon College. It is the part of wisdom for colleges to bring in noted speakers from other institutions to address chapel exercises. Following their chapel talks, these distinguished leaders have held personal conferences with the students and discussed with them their life problems.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Sykes, of Ivor, Va., celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Sunday, the 26th of February. A large number of relatives and admiring friends honored these saints of the Lord on their happy day in their career. Rev. C. E. Gerringer, pastor of Mrs. Sykes, was present and acted as master of ceremonies. Rev. A. K. Lamden, pastor of Mr. Sykes, was also present and conducted the devotional exercises. A beautiful meal was served these devout Christian people, and a gift in gold was also provided them as an expression of appreciation. Mrs. B. H. Lane was largely responsible for the success of the occasion.

Rev. R. A. Whitten, who has been spending a month in Florida recuperating and resting, writes from Orlando that he has seen Dr. Atkinson and that they have been out-riding together, and adds: "We rejoice to find him on the road to recovery, and our earnest prayer is that God may continue His blessings upon him and that he may soon be able to take up his important task in our Church." Bro. Whitten expects to return to his pulpit not later than the first Sunday in April. In his absence, members of the college faculty have conducted services for him at Reidsville and Monticello. The following brethren have assisted in this work: Prof. S. A. Bennett, Dr. T. C. Amick, Dr. W. M. Jay, Prof. T. E. White and W. A. Harper.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

THE GREAT INCENTIVE.

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Preacher.

"The Lord is my Shepherd."—Psa. 23:1.

Why did they do it? The great and good men of the earth have suffered so many things that have caused them to be branded by their contemporaries as foolish. Why did they do it? What was the great incentive? What strange power led them on? What is it that makes their names live after them? And why do teachers repeat them to their pupils? Paul says, "We are fools for Christ's sake," and so often the world wishes to reply, "Yes, you are a fool, indeed, if you are a fool for Christ's sake." For so many of the world and so much of the world have not and has not learned anything very great about doing things for Christ's sake.

Stephen started out to do something for Christ's sake. "And they stoned Stephen, calling upon God and saying, Lord Jesus, receive my spirit. And he kneeled down and cried with a loud voice, Lord, lay not this sin to their charge." Why did he do it? Didn't he know he would be stoned if he kept on following the gleam which had flooded his very soul with light and daring? When he was about to be stoned, why did he not recant?

"The Lord is my Shepherd."

"And what shall I say more? For time would fail me to tell of Gideon, and of Barak, and of Samson, and of Jephthae; of David also, and Samuel, and of the prophets; who through faith subdued kingdoms, wrought righteousness, obtained promises, stopped the mouths of lions, quenched the violence of fire, escaped the edge of the sword, out of weakness were made strong, waxed valiant in fight, turned to flight the armies of aliens. Women received their dead raised to life again." Up to this point in this quotation we may be assured that there is every indication of great sacrifice, but always there was rich reward. There are plenty of folks who would not mind today subduing kingdoms, obtaining promises, escaping the edge of the sword, being made strong in weakness, or of having power over the forces of death. All of that is well and good. We do not have to search for an incentive there, but what makes the remainder of the quotation possible: "And others were tortured, not accepting deliverance (why didn't they accept it), . . . and others had trial of cruel mockings, and scourgings; yea, moreover, of bonds and imprisonments. They were stoned, they were sawn asunder, were tempted, were slain with the sword; they wandered about in sheepskins and goat-skins, being destitute, afflicted, tormented; of whom the world was not worthy; they wandered in deserts, and in mountains, and in dens and caves of the earth." Why did they do it?

Why did Paul write to Timothy and caution him to "endure hardness as a good soldier of the cross?" Or why did he so live his own life as to write to the Church at Corinth and say: "Of the Jews, five times received I forty stripes save one. Thrice was I beaten with rods, once was I stoned, thrice I suffered shipwreck, a night and a day I have been in the deep; in journeyings often, in perils of waters, in perils of robbers, in perils by my own countrymen, in perils by the heathen, in perils in the city, in perils in the wilderness, in perils in the sea, in perils among false brethren; in weariness and painfulness, in watchings often, in hunger and thirst, and in cold and nakedness."

Somewhere Stephen must have seen Jesus and loved Him. Paul must have given Jesus all the devotion of His soul from the very hour he saw Him on the Damascus road. It must have been that God's love for them had been perfected in their reciprocation of His love. We have repeated so often the text: "For God so loved the world," etc., that we have become quite content with God's loving us, and have not thought so much about loving Him in return. We wonder how nine of the ten lepers could go on without thanking Jesus for healing them, and yet the Church of which we are a part has a hard time maintaining its prestige in the community and the world. We wonder why people two thousand years ago could have so little real respect for righteousness as it was incarnated in Christ, and yet we allow the Church to become a laughing-stock for the lack of sheer loyalty on our part. Have we seen the Father? Do we love Him?

Stephen must have been human, and no doubt, therefore, wanted somewhere to miss the sufferings of death, but he loved Jesus; he must have wanted to turn back, but the Lord was his Shepherd, and the Lord was leading on. Stephen was not satisfied with all the love coming from the Lord, without his showing a divinely begotten love within himself in return. A man of Paul's mettle must have wanted to do something very human about it when the Jews began to beat him about the fifth time. Or the third time they beat him with rods he must have wanted to call on the great Roman eagle to put a stop to their malicious manhandling of one of their own brethren; but Paul loved Jesus. How often in the pain, suffering, hunger, and nakedness he must have wanted some of the comforts about which the world is clamoring so greatly today, but he had abandoned himself completely to Christ. And he had a consciousness that he was "a pattern to others for Jesus," as he told Timothy.

No task was too large, no sacrifice too great for those who in the fullest sense of the word could say, "The Lord is my Shepherd." Hungry, they said, "I shall not want"; naked, they sang, "I shall not want"; imprisoned or stoned, they whispered the sweet refrain, "The Lord is my Shepherd; I shall not want." What was the great incentive for this sort of loyalty? Ah! what, but love! Love asks no sweeter reward than the privilege of loving. Human love seeks to serve the person loved; looks eagerly for every opportunity to remind that person of that love; and feels that life is at its fullest when finest opportunity for serving the one loved is offered. The larger the souls, the loftier and purer their love; and the more willing and anxious they are to make sacrifices commensurate with the requirements in expressing that love.

Something of that sort of love for Christ must have been in the soul of Ignatius. Ignatius, a disciple of the beloved apostle John, did not turn back when he saw martyrdom coming as his lot. He had learned to love Jesus by association with one who had lain his head upon His breast; and that love would not allow him to lament his lot, even though it led him to death itself. Shame on me if I shall flinch at some little call of the Christ to show my love and loyalty to Him. Shame on me if I shall not be willing to go without something that I wish personally to have if by that denial I can show myself a lover of Jesus Christ. Shame on me if I shall not even suffer want before I shall miss the opportunity of looking into the face of my Lord and saying, "He restoreth my soul."

Along with Ignatius, I link the name of Polycarp. He was the last witness of the apostolic age. He told the proconsul of Asia Minor that he had served Jesus for six and eighty years, and that from Him he had experienced nothing but love and mercy. It is recorded of Polycarp that he joyfully went to the stake, and praised God amidst the flames that he had been counted worthy of martyrdom for Christ. Ah! Polycarp knew a companionship and a love which made the Christ his Lord, and he could say of Him: "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil, for Thou art with me." Fourteen hundred years later, when John Huss, with his hands bound behind him, and his neck fastened to a stake with a chain, was asked to recant, he replied, "I shall die with joy today in the faith of the gospel which I have preached."

Sometimes when I think of these, and the great incentive of love for Christ which led them on, I should like to tabulate a list of last words of some folks today before they quit Christ and the Church. I should like to propound Paul's question to some of them: "Ye did run well; what has hindered you?" And I think we would all be ashamed of ourselves for some of the answers which we would give: "I slept too late," "Have gotten out of the habit," "There's a fellow there I do not like," "The preacher hurt my feelings," "It's money every time I go," "Have to work late Saturday night," "Can get better sermons over the radio," "Not financially able," "Do not have any one to go with," "The music is poor." Such answers are neither hot nor cold; they make a mockery of Christ and completely evade the issue.

When the makers of such answers die, their minister may read over their stiffened form, "The Lord is my Shepherd; I shall not want," but where is the life of real loyalty to Christ which should be an abiding testimony that in all things they did make the Lord their Shepherd? We cry, "Hard times," when "hard hearts" is a better description of the facts; we seek bank accounts, when beautiful characters are more to be desired; and we excuse ourselves from Church on account of the service, when we have never once thought of the Saviour.

But, on the other hand, let us be heartened by the fact that there is ever an increasing number of those who do really make the Lord their Shepherd, and follow His leadings. Let us join that host, and if we shall seek to join we must be assured that we join out of our love for Him, and that we are to manifest that love at whatever the cost.

PROGRESS IN FOREIGN MISSIONS.

THE OLIVE G. WILLIAMS MEMORIAL CHAPEL, PORTO RICO.

At Salinas Playa, the little village out from Salinas, on the seacoast, where Miss Williams used to gather the children to teach them fancy-work and the Bible, this little chapel was built as a memorial to her years of faithful service as a missionary of the Christian Church to Porto Rico. The money for the chapel and its complete furnishings came from voluntary individual gifts of the women of the Christian Church.

During the entire time that Miss Williams served as a missionary in Porto Rico, her salary was furnished by the Christian Temple, of Norfolk, Va. Since her death and the sending of Miss Victoria Adams to that island, the Temple Church has assumed her salary and general support of her work to the extent of twelve hundred dollars a year.

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, Elon College, N. C.

Contributing Editors

W. W. STALEY W. A. HARPER
R. C. HELFENSTEIN S. C. HARRELL

PRINCIPLES OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

PREACHERS AND THE CHURCH PAPER.

The preachers are on the field. The Church paper goes to the field. There should be a closer contact between the preacher and the Church paper than now exists. There are several reasons why this is true. Personal contact creates personal interest. Personal interest contributes to all other interests. People speak to people they know. The only means of local Church contact with Churches in other sections is the minister and the Church paper. This suggests a wider use of the Church paper. This can be reached best through the pastors of the Churches; and there is one good way in which this can be accomplished. That way is for the pastors to write for the Church paper and report what their Churches are doing. Do not report what they are not doing. Negatives do not make progress.

If the pastor of a Church will report what his Church has done through its auxiliary societies, its Sunday School, its prayer-meetings, its benevolent collections, with just enough of persons mentioned to give the report local interest, it would work a revolution in local work and in subscriptions to the Church paper. A man reads in the paper what he writes himself. He reads that first. Watch a man or woman who has written something for the paper, when he opens it, and he will invariably hunt for his piece. The same is true when something is written about a person; that person will read that with an interest unknown to others. Jesus Christ was very personal in His relations and His work for men. "Follow me," was the key to His ministry. He touched men and women and healing entered into those who touched Him. "As many as touched Him were made whole." It was the personal contact with Jesus that counted most. This personal touch, this printed touch, this co-operative touch, counts beyond measure. The paper can be made a channel of blessing when pastors and Churches write their service in sending to THE CHRISTIAN SUN what is being done in the local Church.

One thing should be considered in this service. All matters reported should be as personal, as helpful, and as condensed as possible. Real information in as few words as possible is what counts among the people. Such reports, sent in by ministers, would keep them in touch with one another as well as in touch with their people, through the paper. The paper is useless without readers, and readers are few without interest. It is, no doubt, true that no regular reader of THE CHRISTIAN SUN fails in loyalty, liberality, and love for the Church; but the number can be increased, the personal interest enlarged by simple contact through the paper. The Church needs a wider expression of views through its paper, and that can be accomplished by all the ministers sending in brief reports of what is being done in their Churches. A few writers cannot make a good Church paper any more than a few people can make a good Church. The Church needs people, and the people need the Church. The Church paper needs subscribers and readers, and the people need the paper.

WANTED: A DISTURBANCE.

Indifference to the needs of the enterprises of the Church or a sort of blind confidence that God in His own time will provide for these enterprises threatens the very perpetuity of the Christian program in America today. There is not a denomination that is not struggling with overdrafts in its various departments, and this in spite of the fact that budgets have been pruned down to the lowest possible minimum and new commitments involving additional expenditure of money have been ruthlessly excluded.

What we need is a disturbance. We must somehow shake the individual Christian up so furiously that he will never settle down again into an attitude of complacency or of indifference with reference to his Church.

"My people do not know, my people have not considered," complained the Lord long years ago, with reference to Israel. And because they were unwilling to learn and did not care to consider, the Hebrews, with their fine, spiritual insight, have become wonderers and vagabonds on the face of the earth, men without a country and without an inheritance in the earth that they can call their own. Such a situation is sad, but inevitable.

Would that the word might be spoken by some prophet of the Lord in this day in the Christian denomination that would disturb the members of our local Churches from their lethargy or from their blind and unwarranted optimism with reference to the growth of the kingdom, and instill in them a sense of personal responsibility for the progress and development of the kingdom of Jesus Christ!

Do not the men and women of the Christian Church know that the progress of the kingdom of Jesus Christ rests upon the individual member? Are they not aware that His kingdom will languish in our day unless each individual Christian renders his becoming service for its growth and development? Will our people not take steps to find this out? Will they not consider the consequence? What can we do to disturb them? Woe unto those who are at ease in Zion!

Wanted: A disturbance!

W. A. H.

WHERE IS THE FALLING OFF?

Reports are constantly being broadcast of a falling off in contributions for mission work. It does not seem to be confined to any particular denomination or board. If there is any mission program that is receiving adequate support, it has not been announced through the columns of the press. And according to present standards it would have a distinct news value, in that it would be very unusual.

We are, of course, concerned especially with the situation that confronts our own Mission Board. In making the budget for the mission work of the year, the board stated that they had cut the appropriations to the very lowest possible figure. They had considerably reduced the estimates of those on the field who had made the closest possible allowance to adequately take care of the needs. And now it seems that we are not even meeting the requirements of the budget.

If there has been any attempt to find out where the failure is taking place, that effort has not been given any publicity. Is there a falling off all along the line? Are all sections of our Church giving less this year for missions than they have heretofore? Are some Conferences and Conventions cutting down on their support of the mission work? Is it a falling off among the large contributors, the small givers, or both? Is the failure confined to the rural Churches or to the city Churches, or are both manifesting a diminishing interest? If we are going to determine the cause of this falling off and provide means to counteract it, we should know just how widespread it is.

A comparison of the total amounts raised by the various Conferences and auxiliary bodies of the Southern Christian Convention in 1926 and in 1927 shows that in the main there was a considerable increase. Only one Conference report shows a decided falling off in the amount raised in 1927 as compared with 1926. The other Conferences far exceeded in their increase the amount of the decrease in the Conference referred to. We have been comparing only the total amounts raised in the various Conferences. It may be that of the total amount raised, a smaller per cent went to missions last year than has gone to that cause in previous years. It is almost impossible to tell from Conference statistics just how much money was actually devoted to a specific enterprise.

In so far as we have been able to appraise the situation, the responsibility for the falling off cannot be laid upon the shoulders of the women of our Church. They are better organized than they have ever been before. They are putting on a more adequate program of missionary education every year. The statistics of the amount of money raised by the women's organizations show a substantial gain from year to year. The Sunday Schools that give regularly to missions are making larger contributions. And no Sunday School that has adopted the plan of giving one Sunday's offering a month to missions has discontinued these offerings. Or at least we have not heard of any Sunday School that has discontinued mission support.

Among the issues that will confront the Southern Christian Convention at its approaching session, none will be more momentous or more important than the support of the missionary enterprises of the Church. The question of adequate financial support for missions depends upon an adequate program of missionary information and education. In order to outline an adequate program of missionary education, we will need to know just where our present program is breaking down, and where it is failing to function. If the failure is due to the scheme of organization, then let us see if we cannot work out a more adequate plan of organization. If the ministry have not been presenting the cause of missions as they should, it is certain that they would welcome any one who would point out to them a more excellent way.

It will require considerable study to bring to us the facts suggested above concerning our mission work throughout the Church. But any interested reader can easily find out just what is being done for missions by his own local Church. And he can determine whether or not that is sufficient to meet what the Lord has a right to expect from His Church. We can most certainly look up the facts as to what we as individuals have been doing for missions. It may be that in an honest facing of the facts, we will have to lay a part of the responsibility for the falling off at our own doors.

THE CHALLENGE OF CHRISTIANITY.

By R. C. HELFENSTEIN, M. A., B. D.

Christianity calls men and women, boys and girls to believe the truth about God, about Jesus Christ, about the Bible, about human personality, and about the present life in its relation to the life to come. Christianity does not ask any one to believe every teaching about these different factors of religious faith, but it calls every one to believe the truth about each.

Belief is a rational response to truth. It is not a mere assent to teachings, to theories, and to doctrines. It is a discriminating evaluation and acceptance of the truth. The Church has too often failed to realize that the challenge of science along material lines is the same as is the challenge of religion along spiritual lines. The fact is that science has no monopoly upon the so-called scientific method of which we have heard so much the past twenty years and which is so important. The scientific method involves observation of phenomena, conditions and relationships; a securing of facts about the same; a proper classification of these facts; a true evaluation of these facts, and correct judgment in the use of these facts. That is the method of science in the material world. That is the method of Jesus in the spiritual world.

Just as no college or university can give an education to students, so no Church or other religious organization can give religion to men and women or boys and girls. The school puts its students in touch with opportunities to experience an education. So the Church puts people in touch with opportunities to experience religion. Every worshiper in the Church of Jesus Christ is challenged to be an explorer in the realm of faith—to seek and to find that he may know “the unsearchable riches of God in Christ Jesus.”

Christianity throws out an intellectual challenge to all who would be followers of Jesus Christ. It calls us to believe in the Bible as the progressive revelation of God's personality, God's love, and God's wish for mankind. Christianity does not even ask that we believe the illogical theories that have been propounded about the Bible. The Bible does not claim that the book of Genesis is an anticipation of modern science. Christianity does not ask us to accept the Bible as an authority on either history or science. But the Bible does claim to be an authority on religion. It gives to the world the growth of the religious concept in the mind of the most religiously inclined race among men. But we misuse the Bible if we contend for its literary infallibility, its historical infallibility, or its infallibility upon subjects entering into the province of science. Christianity challenges its devotees to practice discrimination in their appreciation of the diversified historical, moral and spiritual data given in the Bible, and to be able to judge between those portions of the Bible that present the Christian viewpoint of God and of life and those portions that are sub-Christian if not anti-Christian. Christianity challenges us to read and study the Bible with discrimination, that we may appreciate the historical development through which the people of Bible times passed in their quest for God and truth. Christianity challenges its devotees to study to show themselves approved, workmen that will have no occasion to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth—able to recognize those portions of the Bible that are below the standards of Jesus, and those portions that represent the standards of Jesus.

It is a sin against youth to try to make them think that the whole Bible is Christian. Only the New Testament claims to be Christian. Portions of the Old Testament are manifestly un-Christian. It is a sin against youth to hold out the idea before them that all the Old Testament characters would classify as saints today. Many of them who were saints in their day would not qualify for membership in any Church of the Christian denomination today. Even King Solomon would not be permitted to enter a respectable community today to make it his residence with his multiplicity of wives and his retinue of concubines.

All the Old Testament characters have to be studied in the light of the day in which they lived. And I have never been quite able to understand why the Church has tried so hard to find something good about many of the Old Testament characters, and at the same time wink with indifference at the glaring badness their lives disclosed. Just because these characters are given us in the Bible does not make it sacrilegious to point out their shortcomings. Christianity challenges us to do that very thing—to recognize and protest against the ideals and characteristics portrayed in the lives of Bible characters that are contradictory to the Christian ideal, just as well as to recognize and appreciate those ideals that would meet the approval of Jesus.

A ten-year-old daughter of a minister came
(Continued on Page 9.)

OUR CONVENTION FORUM

Bro. McCauley says:

I think the following items should claim the attention of the Richmond Convention:

1. Inasmuch as the standards of the Southern Association of Colleges are being raised gradually, the actions of the Convention at Norfolk should be supplemented so as to meet the rising emergencies.

2. Since the budget of the Church is in progress in some of our Churches, but is not effective in a number of our weaker ones, further effort should be made to solicit our whole constituency in this all-important phase of work.

3. Some definite action should be taken toward uniting the whole Christian Church with the Congregationalist. We have talked unity for years; now the time for action is ripe.

Nashville, Tenn.

JOS. E. MCCAULEY.

Dr. Wicker says:

The coming Convention should make for provision for taking care of the financial needs of our colleges and formulate policies to prevent future obligations beyond the reasonable growth of our financial liberality.

Provision should be made for THE CHRISTIAN SUN as an advertising medium for all our institutions by diverting a certain percentage of the collections for these institutions and departments to take care of the deficit after the income from subscriptions. THE CHRISTIAN SUN does not exist for itself, but for these institutions and departments, and it is legitimate for them to pay for their publicity.

Provision should be made to prevent contracting obligations in our missions beyond our reasonable income. A continuous appeal for money to meet crises in missions savors of bad business policy and shakes the faith of our constituency in the stable management of the missionary movement.

Provision should be made for a larger concrete expression of our doctrine on Christian union if we mean union when we write and speak about Christian unity. We have Christian “unity” now with all evangelical Churches, but if it is desirable, we should provide for Christian “union.”

Provision should be made for the General Alumni Association of Elon College to nominate one-half the trustees of the college and for the board of trustees to elect one-half of the newly elected members for these nominees.

Provision should be made to prescribe a reading and study course for ordained ministers in the Southern Christian Convention, with examinations and certificates of proficiency indicating the successful completion of such courses. The minister who does not do systematic study for continuously keeping pace with the progress of the age becomes a drone and cannot continue to be a leader among those who are forging ahead in our educational system and reading the best literature of the age.

Elon College, N. C.

W. C. WICKER.

Dr. Warren H. Denison says:

Enlist and Unify Our Church Forces.

I am happy to state my deep conviction in THE SUN's “Convention Forum.” As a member of the Convention, I feel that there are two things that should claim our supreme attention:

A. Enlistment: The work of our next biennium, as I see it, leading up to 1930, the anniversary of Pentecost, should be an outstanding attempt to enlist all of the forces in our Churches in the activities of the Church. One-half of the names on our Church rolls give nothing to the support of the local Church; two-thirds give nothing to the benevolent work of the Church; three-fourths do no active Church work; only one-third are consistent, regular attendants at their own Church services; one half of those uniting with the Church are gone in about five years; and only a small proportion of our Churches furnish enough ministers to supply their own need. In view of these facts, it becomes our business to re-enlist those indifferent ones. It can be done, and I should like to see that enlistment the main work now for the biennium. This is a duty both for the sake of the persons themselves as well as for their service to the Church and humanity. It will be the greatest program we can undertake, and will need the most careful plans we have ever put forth.

B. Unify Our Forces: I am thoroughly convinced that we should make Christian statesman plans to condense, unify and strengthen our forces and agencies as a people, such as merging THE CHRISTIAN SUN with the merged Herald of Gospel Liberty, the Journal of Christian Education, the Christian Missionary, into one great paper, such as entering into closer and more equitable financial and other relationships with the activities, and organization of the General Convention, such as consolidating our agencies both for the saving of overhead expenses, for strengthening our weak agencies, and by thus making ourselves worthy of a union with other bodies outside ourselves.

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

The Mission Board, under the guidance of J. M. Darden, in the absence of Dr. J. O. Atkinson, who is recreating at the Florida Sanitarium, Orlando, Fla., has set as a goal for missions during the mission period—March, April, May, June—one-sixth as much as the salary of the minister who serves the Church. This sum is asked from every local Church in the Southern Christian Convention. That is a simple plan and should be easily worked. If the Church pays the pastor $300 per year, the sum from that Church would be one-sixth of $300, which is $50; if the salary is $1,200, the sum asked for missions would be $200; if the salary is $3,000, the sum would be $500. At first thought, this might seem a heavy demand upon the Churches; but a careful analysis of the situation will reveal the reasonableness of such a call. A hundred members, paying a salary of $300, would have to pay, on the average, only 50 cents per member. A Church of a thousand members, paying their pastor $3,000, would simply pay, on the average, the same sum, 50 cents per member. The difficulty, in most cases, will be to get all the members to contribute. That is the weak point in Church membership everywhere and on all subjects. Burdens fall on Churches because a small part of the membership carries the whole load. What the Church needs is to realize that it is the army of the Lord; and when an army moves, all the soldiers must be in line, unless incapacitated. In that case, members of the Church would be excused from giving. To give, as the Lord prospers, is the scriptural rule; and that is a just rule.

I have worked out, from the "Christian Annual," what each Conference in the Southern Christian Convention pays its ministers. This is taken from the reports of the pastors as to their salaries.

Alabama Conference, total	$ 5,644.00
Georgia and Alabama Conference, total...	3,894.00
N. C. & Va. Conference, total.....	13,253.00
Western N. C. Conference, total.....	8,681.00
Eastern N. C. Conference, total.....	11,799.00
Eastern Virginia Conference, total.....	48,968.00
Valley Virginia Conference, total.....	6,963.00

Total paid pastors $99,202.00

Divide the $99,202 by 6, and the result is $16,535; that is to say, if all the local Churches in the Southern Christian Convention will pay one-sixth as much for missions during the mission period as they pay their pastors, the sum total will be $16,535. If all the 135 ministers would pay $10 each, it would make $1,350, and that, subtracted from $16,535, would leave only $15,185 to be raised by 32,472 members, which would be only about 75 cents per member. No matter how the question is figured out, it can be done if the people are willing to give; and all would feel better to see the goal reached. Nothing would do more to restore Dr. Atkinson to health and his place as Secretary of Missions than to see the goal reached.

W. W. STALEY.

ELON LETTER.

GOOD-FELLOWSHIP AT SANFORD.

It has been my pleasure to be invited to several Churches of denominations different from our own to speak at the men's luncheon clubs. These clubs have been springing up all through this section of North Carolina quite rapidly. Some Churches have them once a week, others once a month, and others at infrequent times.

These luncheon clubs are fashioned after Rotary, Kiwanis, Monarch, Lions, Civitan and other civic luncheon clubs. A great many men in all the Churches in every city are not members of these civic clubs, and they miss the good-fellowship that naturally gathers around such a club. The Churches, therefore, have felt that here is opened a door of service to them, and so they have appointed luncheon hours for all their men, including their boys from fourteen years, in some cases, up. The women of the Church serve a meal at a reasonable price, on which they do not expect to make very much profit. Usually they serve as good a meal for 50 cents as an ordinary luncheon club would get for a dollar, so there is not much room for profit; but whatever profit comes is used by them for Christian work in the Church.

At these men's luncheon clubs there are singing and addresses, either by speakers invited from outside or by the membership of the Church, and ordinarily a period of general discussion at the close in which quotations and answers are in order respecting the topic that has been presented.

The first of these clubs in the Christian denomination which I have been privileged to attend meets in the Sanford Christian Church on the second Tuesday night in each month. I attended the fourth monthly luncheon and was thoroughly delighted with the spirit that animated the men who came, with the spirit of the fine group of Church women who served the meal, and with the meal itself. They did not know that I was coming, and I did not know that I was going. I just happened to be in Sanford and learned of the matter and "dropped in," so to speak.

I have always been deeply impressed with the value of such fellowship gatherings of the men of the Church. The idea is different from that of "Church night" in that only men gather around the luncheon table. "Church night," too, has its place in the social life of a congregation. I am satisfied, too, that the men's luncheon clubs offer a fine opportunity for Christian fellowship of the highest type, and I was glad to have the privilege to sit in with our Sanford club at its fourth monthly luncheon.

Our Sanford Church is doing its best to develop a well-rounded program of Christian life and service for its membership. It wishes to put its weight of influence behind the whole program of the whole Church. It is committed to the idea of a budget for local expenses and benevolences, and wishes to support every enterprise, both locally and general, in a proportional manner.

The president of the Sanford club, known as the Good-Fellowship Club, is Mr. J. U. Gunter, who is responsible for the development of the idea in our Church there. Let us hope it will spread to other Christian Churches. The idea is fine.

W. A. HARPER.

STUDY OR STAGNATE.

Observation and contact with ministers in my own and in other Churches have revealed great differences in progress, quickened imagination, vividness of thought, clearness of perception and aptness of illustration. Some deal in glittering generalities, some in platitudes, some in abstract generalizations, and some in ignorant tirades against scientific truths which they had never studied. There are others, however, who study and keep pace with the best thought of the age in which we live. They read the latest books on religious subjects, the maturest volumes on science, the finest developments in psychology, and the latest creations in literature.

The difference is largely due to the difference between those who are storing their minds with the best thought of the age and those who "finished" when they graduated or failed to graduate from college. There are too many men among us who are living from hand to mouth in the ministry. They hardly ever read a book apart from the occasional reading they do in preparing a sermon when they have worn out their last production from some patent outlines of sermons.

Our Church ordains many of our candidates for the ministry when they have applied for admission to the biblical class, spent a time of probation in this relationship, passed a blundering examination on the minimum requirements for licensure, which is often too minimum, and applied for ordination. Too often they make no systematic study of the required subjects prescribed for those who seek ordination. The educational committee is forced to recommend the candidate for elder's orders by the pressure of popular sentiment, provided the applicant is a good talker, and he is ordained before he is qualified, and since there is no other requirement for study for the better qualification of the ordained minister, he proceeds to stagnate for the lack of study.

In two sections of the Southern Christian Convention, namely: in the Eastern Virginia Conference (the Tidewater Christian Ministers' Association) and in the North Carolina and Virginia Christian Conference (the Piedmont Christian Ministers' Association) have been organized for the express purpose of mutual improvement among the active ministers of the Christian Church who may desire to associate themselves together for such purpose. The former association has been in active operation for twenty-seven years, and continues to meet monthly to the great advantage of its membership and of the Churches which they serve. The latter association has been operating for several years, and the members are doing valuable work, with a growing interest among those who have become members; but there are some who should be members of these associations who have no concern whatever. It is noteworthy, however, that some of the ablest ministers among us are active members of the association.

Of course, it is possible for a minister to do private study to great advantage, and most of our study must be done privately. Mutual discussion as mind sharpens mind aids much in stimulating thought and provoking further study. Those who do neither private nor co-operative study in groups, as in the associations, must of necessity stagnate and dry up eventually. Stagnation usually breeds disease, and they soon become pessimistic, morose, have melancholia, and declare the world is growing worse because it moves on and leaves them with the miasma of death issuing in poisonous gases to contaminate all their environment. They are like a dried-up spring to a thirsty traveler. The thirsty come to them expecting to find refreshing waters to renew their strength, but stagnation and miasma and malarea issue from the dried-up fountain.

The Southern Christian Convention should outline a strong four-year course of study for ordained ministers, which should be revised from session to session and kept up to date with standard works, and provide certificates of efficiency to be awarded publicly at each session of the Convention to those who have completed in a satisfactory manner the work of one or more years.

W. C. WICKER.

AMBASSADORS FOR CHRIST.

By H. V. Cox.

"Now, then, we are ambassadors for Christ, as though God did beseech you by us: we pray you in Christ's stead, be ye reconciled to God."—2 Cor. 5:20.

Our text sets forth very clearly the duty of the minister, the motive and object of the ministry. We attempt to write the thoughts we have received on this subject; it is after spending most of a night in prayer to God to hasten the day when our subject would be more real than it appears to be at present; and as we are brought to our knees under the weight of this responsibility we are shown what our equipment must be. So this brings us to the fundamental principles that qualify us for ambassadorship.

First, "Ye must be born again." Nicodemus, to whom our Lord spoke these words, was a teacher, a leader, and master of his people, but knew nothing about the way of life. But listen to what our Lord said to him: "Marvel not that I said unto thee, Ye must be born again." He didn't say you ought to be, but He said "ye must." I fear that is the trouble today. So many are trying to teach and lead without having first becoming a follower of the Lord Jesus. Our Lord said to Simon, "Follow me, and thou shalt catch men." Now, when we receive the new birth, we are told we then become the "children of God and heirs of God, and joint heirs with Christ," our citizenship is removed from earth to glory. We become pilgrims and strangers in a foreign land; and this gives us the name "ambassador."

Having thus been born from above, what is the next step in our equipment to put us on the firing line? "The passport." Many know what the passport means to our diplomats that we send to foreign countries to represent our government, but are strangers as to what it means to an ambassador for Christ. But the words of the apostle Paul still ring true and come to you and me as ambassadors for Christ with the same meaning as they did to the disciples at Ephesus, when He said, "Have ye received the Holy Ghost since ye believed?" This is what it takes to put and keep us on the firing line for our Lord. It seems of late we have forgotten the meaning of the word "tarry" after our Lord had chosen and commissioned His disciples to go into all the world and preach the gospel; He said to them to "tarry ye in the city of Jerusalem until ye be endued with power from (home) on high."

But why was this power needed? "But ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you." Here is the secret of our ambassadorship. Our Lord knew human nature; He knew we would have to die out to self and self-interests before we could or would represent Him. So He has made provision by which the temple (our body) can be cleansed in order that the Holy Ghost might take up its abode there. Then the power will be given to witness for our Master. Thus being equipped for ambassadorship and on the firing line, what are some of our duties? We are to represent home. When an ambassador fails to represent his home government, he is removed from that post. Why was he removed? Because he had become attached to that nation and had lost interest in home and his fellow-citizens. How much truer is this in the Lord's work! They belong to the government that they are representing, and are not their own, and are forbidden to receive any gifts from a foreign government or take any interest in it in any way; and this is so much like our Lord's words spoken by Paul when he said: "Ye are not your own, for ye are bought with a price; be not ye the servants of men." I fear that many who call themselves ambassadors for Christ today are taking their orders from men instead of using that "radio" which Daniel used when he wanted to know the will of the Father in regard to a certain command that a man had given. And it seems to me that we are falling short of doing what our Lord has commissioned us to do by substituting the letter for the spirit, activity for power, Church membership for the new birth, and consequently we have a form of godliness, but no power.

Our Blessed Lord told us these things would be, "and because iniquity shall abound, the love of many shall wax cold"; and Paul finishes the sentence by saying: "Seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving and being deceived." Brethren, isn't it time that we are doing what Paul told the Ephesians, "Awake, thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light?" and do what we can in "redeeming the time, because the days are evil," for if we neglect the means of grace our Lord has for us, by refusing to die out to the things of the world, that will hinder us from making the race successful; we will be crying out for "the mountains and rocks to fall on us, and hide us from the face of Him that sitteth on the throne" in that day when we come to stand before the great white throne.

But how sweet it will be when the home-going time comes to be able to say, with Paul, "I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand; I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith." This is a wonderful testimony to be able to leave with our friends. Don't you want to be able to say the same? I do, and by submitting myself to our Lord's plan of redemption, I am expecting to, and as the old song goes, "'Tis a sweet and glorious thought that comes to me, I live on." That thrills my soul and gives me courage to press on and finish my course.

In closing, I want to give you the testimony of my little sister, who was called home in the fall of 1903. She was an ambassador for Christ at the age of thirteen years. At the time of her going, I did not know what it meant. But, thanks be to God, I know now what she was talking about. The night the summons came to Sister Myrtle, she said to us all, "I must go home." We said, "Myrtle, you are at home." "No, I am not, but I am going. I see grandma and grandpa at home, and I must go and be with them." This Grandpa and Grandma Cox she had reference to had died some fifteen years before Myrtle was born. But she saw them in the spiritual world. I believe, just as much as I believe I am writing these lines, and as I write I can hear her voice afresh and can see her with the eye of faith beckoning me to come home when I shall have finished my course. This is real to me, and I am praying that we all will be true to our Lord, to do His will, so we can meet together around His throne in that praise-meeting that will never end.

Ramseur, N. C.

A CORRECTION.

As secretary of the Alabama Conference, I feel something should be said as to some mistakes that appear in the printed minutes.

When the minutes of the Conference were published in THE SUN, I wrote to Dr. P. J. Kernodle and pointed out the mistakes, and felt sure he would correct the mistakes. When I received a copy of "The Annual" I found that no correction had been made. I wrote to Dr. Kernodle again, and expected to find a statement in THE SUN. That did not appear, neither have I heard from him.

I regret exceedingly that the report of the committee on superannuation is in such a mess. It is Rev. C. M. Dollar, and not Rev. Carl Dollar, whose name should have appeared. Rev. Carl Dollar is very much alive and in school at Elon. He is not married. How that report got in that condition, I cannot imagine. There are other mistakes in spelling names of delegates.

The ministerial list was not published as I sent it in. I sent the same list to the Secretary of the General Convention, and that is printed as I sent it. Men's names appear who are not even members of the Christian Church: Mr. Knowles and S. R. Waldrop. Presley Ingram has never been recommended for license. The addresses are all mixed up.

Of course, the corrections cannot be made now, but think of the mess the records of the Conference is in!

I regret it, and want to apologize with all my heart, and wish so much the corrections had been made.

E. M. CARTER.

Secretary Alabama Conference.

We are extremely sorry that mistakes appear in the minutes of the Alabama Conference. We are, however, holding the "copy" for those who desire to inspect it.—P. J. K.

Elon College is certainly looking up high this year for the commencement orator. According to press dispatches in all the papers in the country, no less a personage than Calvin Coolidge, President of the United States, has been invited to give the literary address at our college on May 29, 1928. Here's hoping that President Coolidge will accept. He was taught in his boyhood days in a Sunday School in the Christian Church. It is fitting, therefore, that he should give the literary address at one of our colleges.

COMING EVENTS.

March 20-29.—Series of Church and Sunday School Institutes in the North Carolina and Virginia Christian Conference.

April 28-29.—Children's Division Institutes, Henderson, N. C., for the Churches of Vance, Warren and Franklin Counties, Eastern North Carolina Conference.

May 31-June 1.—Valley of Virginia Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention, Mt. Olivet (G), Mr. R. A. Larrick, Winchester, Va., president.

June 12-13.—Western North Carolina Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention; place undecided; Mr. C. A. Walker, Burlington, N. C., president.

June 21-22.—North Carolina and Virginia Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention, Durham, N. C., Mr. W. B. Truitt, Greensboro, N. C., president.

June 23-30.—Young People's Summer School, Elon College, N. C.

July 1-7.—Bethlehem Summer School of Christian Education, Wadley, Ala.

July 10-11.—Eastern North Carolina Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention, Catawba Springs, Prof. L. L. Vaughan, Raleigh, N. C., president.

July 17-18.—Eastern Virginia Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention.

PATTIE COGHILL.

EASTER PAGEANTS.

The Rock—By Mary P. Hamlin. An Easter play in three acts, for Churches with plenty of ability to put on good plays and pageants; about two hours long. Price50 cents
The Call to Service—By Marshall N. Gould. Adapted for use of small or large groups; especially good for young people. Price12 cents
Life Victorious—By Margaret Slattery. Beautiful worship service with an Easter dialogue for ten girls. Price10 cents
Why Didn't You Tell?—By Anita B. Ferris. Fine for children. Price15 cents

Pattie Coghill

Literature Superintendent, N. C. Woman's Board.

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Field Secretary.

MISSIONARY BOARD MEETING.

The Woman's Mission Board of the North Carolina Christian Conference met in Durham, N. C., on March 6th, and arranged the schedule for the annual district rallies, and formulated a program for these one-day mission meetings.

The schedule, giving the district, place of meeting, date, and district leader, is as follows:

Halifax District meets at Hebron Church on Wednesday, April 11, Miss Pattie Adams, Ingram, Va., district leader.

Guilford District meets at Monticello Church, Thursday, April 12th, Mrs. L. P. Wicker and Mrs. R. A. Harden, of Greensboro, district leaders.

Alamance District meets at Mt. Zion Church, Friday, April 13th, Mrs. J. J. Henderson, Graham, N. C., district leader.

Randolph District meets at Shiloh Church, Saturday, April 14th, Mrs. I. H. Foust, Ramseur, N. C., district leader.

Lee-Chatham District meets at Grace Chapel Church, Thursday, April 19th, Mrs. Doyle McFarland, Jonesboro, N. C., district leader.

Wake-Durham District meets at Wake Chapel, Friday, April 20th, Mrs. L. L. Vaughan, Raleigh, N. C., district leader.

Vance-Warren District meets at Oak Level Church, Saturday, April 21st, Miss Margaret Alston, Henderson, N. C., Route 1, district leader.

Morning.

Theme—"In the Service of the King."

"As my Father hath sent me, even so send I you" (John 20:21).

"Go ye, therefore, and teach all nations" (Matt. 28:19).

Call to Order—By District Leader.

Enrollment and Reports of Societies.

Special Music.

Address—Rev. D. P. Barrett, Missionary, Porto Rico.

Offering.

Appointment of Committees.

Devotional Service—Miss Pattie Coghill, Leader.

Adjournment for Lunch.

Afternoon Session.

Song Service.

Round-Table Discussion—"How Shall We Interest All the Members of the Local Church in Missions?" by Miss Pattie Coghill, Leader.

Reports of Committees.

Election of Officers.

Announcements.

Discussion—"Special Needs in Our District"; or a Pageant.

Adjournment.

MRS. S. C. HARRELL.

MISSIONARY ACTIVITY.

By MRS. M. L. BRYANT,

Pres. Woman's Societies, First Church, Norfolk.

The Willing Workers and Young People's Missionary Society of First Church, Norfolk, furnished the program for the evening of entertainment on the occasion of the woman's annual birthday party, given February 23rd. In this combination we had all three of our groups of mission workers engaged at one time.

The program had six numbers, and began with a pantomime using the beautiful old hymn, "I Think When I Read that Sweet Story of Old." This was splendidly done by fourteen members of the Willing Workers, who were arranged in a single row that stretched completely across the front of our altar. Following this, ten of our Willing Workers gave a playlet entitled "Won't You Walk Into My Parlor." The children of other lands, dressed in costume, invited our own American girls into their parlors and gave them talks on their own customs and religion.

Next, our junior high school group pantomimed the "Star-Spangled Banner," followed by a playlet, "Aunt Polly Joins the Missionary Society," given by six of our young business girls. After this, our group of Maury High School girls gave a lovely pantomime, using the hymn, "O Zion, Haste."

"Aunt Tillie Learns to Tithe" was our closing play, and was given by a large group of our young people, assisted by Mrs. R. D. Hall, of the Woman's Society. In all, we had nearly fifty girls and young women to take part in the program.

The Woman's Society had arranged twelve tables, beautifully decorated, in our Sunday School room, each table marked with the name of a month. At the conclusion of the program, which was given in our main auditorium, our pastor invited all persons in the audience who had birthdays in January to rise, and followed by the table hostess, they were given seats at that table. This plan was followed until all the tables had been filled and many served who could not be seated.

Every guest was asked to make an offering of a penny for each year of their age. We discovered that we had an offering that represented sixty-three hundred years, and besides the good program, good-fellowship, joy of working and planning together, we had added $63 to our mission fund.

Personally, I believe in subscribing our Church budget, and hope to live to see the day in my Church when it is done, but this mingling and working together on such occasions as this means a great deal to some lives.

Norfolk, Va.

MISSIONARY RALLIES.

District missionary rallies for the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference will be held in Richmond, (First) Norfolk, Antioch, Berea (Nansemond); superintendents: Mrs. O. M. Cockes, Mrs. H. C. Caviness, Mrs. J. A. Williams, Mrs. B. D. Jones; time: April 3rd to 6th.

Morning Session.

Theme—"Increasing Power for Increasing Obligations."

Call to Order 10:30.

Hymn—"More Love, O Christ, to Thee."

Devotional—Richmond, Rev. C. C. Ryan; Norfolk, Rev. J. F. Morgan; Antioch, Rev. J. M. Fix; Berea, Dr. N. G. Newman.

Minutes.

Message of Superintendent—"The Effect of the Personal Inner Life on the Home and the Church."

Special Music.

Address—"The Greatest Need of Porto Rico," Dr. D. P. Barrett.

Recognition of Societies.

Our Work Told by Story.

Appointment of Committees.

Offering.

Adjournment.

Afternoon Session.

Devotional—Richmond, Rev. C. E. Gerringer; Norfolk, Rev. T. N. Lowe; Antioch, Dr. W. D. Harward; Berea, Dr. I. W. Johnson.

Address—"Our Duty to Porto Rico," Mrs. D. P. Barrett.

Special Music.

"Evangelism the Duty of All"—Richmond, Rev. F. C. Lester; Norfolk, Mrs. Lee Britt.

Antioch and Berea—Miss Glennie Sims, Missionary to China.

Open Forum—(Let us discuss our problems).

Reports of Committees.

Closing Service.

PROGRAM.

Program for missionary rally of the fourth district, to be held at Rock Stand Christian Church, April 26, 1928, Roanoke, Ala. Meeting called to order by superintendent at 10 A. M.

Song—"Where He Leads Me, I Will Follow."

Invocation—By Mrs. W. C. Beverley.

Address—"We're Glad to Have You," Miss Lera Allen.

Address—"We're Glad to Be Here," Miss Annie Huey.

Enrollment of Delegates.

Address by Superintendent.

Address—"Does Missions Pay," Rev. J. D. Dollar.

Appointment of Committees.

Adjourn for Noon Hour.

Song Service.

Devotional—Mrs. D. Duke.

Pageant—By Roanoke Junior Missionary Society.

Address—"How to Keep Young People Interested in Missions," Mrs. J. H. Swint.

Address—"How a Missionary Society Helps the Church," Miss Timie Mae Hunt.

Address—"How to Reach Our Mission Goals," by President Mrs. W. M. Melton.

Reports of Committees.

Song and Benediction.

MRS. V. E. KITCHENS, Supt.

MRS. J. B. SWANN, Sec'y.

MISSIONARY MEETING.

Program for the missionary rally of the Alabama Woman's Conference, to be held at Spring Hill Christian Church, April 1, 1928.

Morning Session.

Call to Order—By District Leader.

Devotional—By Rev. C. W. Carter, Pastor.

Hymn—"I Go Where You Want Me to Go."

Scripture—Luke 10:1-11, by Mrs. L. C. Smith.

Enrollment.

Reports from Societies.

District Leader's Message.

Address—"The Missionary Need in the Alabama Conference," by Miss Alma Mitchell.

Discussion—"Chain of Prayer for Our Work," led by Mrs. O. H. Orr.

Solo.

Address—"The Youth and the Church," by Rev. C. W. Carter.

Special Offering.

Appointment of Committees.

Adjourn for Lunch.

Afternoon Session.

Call to Order—By District Leader.

Devotional—By Mrs. C. H. Mitchell.

Presentation of Goals—By Mrs. W. M. Melton, Pres.

Address—"What Missions have Done for Our Denomination," by Dr. S. L. Beougher.

Discussion—"What Our Districts are Doing," by District Leaders.

Discussion of Problems in the Societies, led by Mrs. O. H. Orr.

Reports of Committees.

Election of Officers.

Adjournment.

RUBY RAE ORR,
District Leader.

THE CHALLENGE OF CHRISTIANITY.

(Continued from Page 5.)

home from Sunday School, being much disturbed. She asked her father why it was that the Bible said that God told people to do things that were contradictory. "Tell me, father, why it is that in the Old Testament God told the people to kill their enemies, and in the New Testament Jesus told people to love their enemies?" The wise father took the little girl on his knee and, beginning at the first of the Old Testament and going through to the New Testament, told her the stories of God's dealings with His people. And when the father finished the story of God revealing Himself in Jesus Christ, the little girl looked up with a smile of understanding satisfaction into her father's face as she said: "Why, papa, I see now. God grew better as He grew older, didn't He?"

To her childish mind the difference was explained in her thought of God as having grown better with the years of experience, instead of the difference being explained by the development of the people as they came to understand God better. "God is the same: yesterday, today and forever." The Bible gives to the world the story of the development of the religious ideals and consciousness of men—the climax of the development being the recognition that God was in Christ reconciling the world unto Himself, and that God is a Christ-like God.

Thus Christianity challenges us to appreciate the Bible as a progressive revelation of the person, mind, and heart of God, and that the final and ultimate revelation of God is in the life and love of Jesus Christ. Whenever any teaching about God in the Bible or out of the Bible makes God less good than was Jesus Christ, that teaching should be recognized as un-Christian.

Some people foolishly contend that the Bible is authoritative on every subject of human thought. But the Bible does claim to be authority only in the realm of religion. The chief end of the Bible is to tell about God and the ways of God, His love for men, His demands upon men, His struggle in securing man's redemption from sin, and His call to men to co-operate with Him in building a kingdom of God—a kingdom of love, truth and happiness—upon the earth.

That is the purpose of the Bible, and it accomplishes its purpose. Christianity would have us read the Bible with an open mind and with a discriminating mind. In it you will see some stagnant pools as warnings to us. But in it also you will find rivers of living water along which grow the trees and the fruits of eternal life.

Our appreciation of the Bible should not rest upon any particular theory of its inspiration. The Bible was inspired as it was inspired, regardless of how men may think it to have been inspired. It is the Bible itself that we should appreciate, and not some theory of its inspiration. It is the most marvelous document ever compiled, not because it was compiled in any particular manner, but because of its content—the marvelous story of man's search after God, and of God's response to man. As Coleridge put it, "The argument for the inspiration of the Bible is the fact that it inspires us."

If the authority of the Bible rested upon its literary infallibility, the writers themselves would have had to be infallible, the translations would have had to be infallible, the printers who printed it would have had to be infallible, and its readers would have to be infallible in order to read it and interpret it aright. The theory of verbal inspiration that some people contend for thus falls by the weight of its own claim. Moreover, it is a useless theory. It is not a question as to the nature of the inspiration men had who wrote the Bible. The question is "What use are we making of the inspiration the Bible gives to us?" The proof of its inspiration is found in no theory, but in the fact that it inspires men today with a desire to know and love God and to serve Him and His world.

The fact that there are certain historical and literary contradictions in the Bible in no way discounts the primary message of the Book. And we do the Bible itself an injustice if we deny that those contradictions are in it.

For instance, Matthew, in chapter 27, quotes a verse from the Old Testament, stating that it was from Jeremiah, when the quotation is not from Jeremiah, but from the 11th chapter of Zechariah. Again, Mark refers to something that David did in the days of Abiathar the high priest. Turn to the account in 1st Samuel and you find that Abimelech was high priest at the time referred to. Paul, in the 10th chapter of 1st Corinthians, refers to a certain slaughter of Israelites, and states that there "fell in one day three and twenty thousand." When we turn to the 25th chapter of Numbers, where the occurrence is recorded, we find the figures given as "twenty and four thousand." These and numerous other historical inaccuracies, if not contradictions, illustrate the utter futility of allowing one's appreciation of the Bible to rest upon any idea of its literary or historical infallibility. "The letter killeth, but the spirit maketh alive."

The inscription on the cross of our Lord was one inscription—not four. And yet no two of the four gospel writers record the same words. Mark says that the inscription read, "The King of the Jews." Luke says the inscription read, "This is the King of the Jews." Matthew says the inscription read, "This is Jesus, the King of the Jews." John says the inscription read, "Jesus of Nazareth, the King of the Jews." Now, the fact is, that inscription was made up of certain words, and no others. Three of the four versions cannot be the exact inscription. And yet all four mean the same thing. The reason the gospels record the inscription differently is that freedom was exercised in recording the words of the inscription, it being realized that the idea the inscription conveyed, and not the wording, was the important thing. Those who contend for the verbal inspiration of the Bible have a difficult time in reconciling this and many similar discrepancies in wording. Christianity insists that the authority of the Bible is in its message and in the Christ it proclaims, and not in the wording of the message.

The intellectual challenge of Christianity calls us to study the Bible, to get the facts about the making of the Bible, and the facts presented in the Bible; to classify those facts as to their historical accuracy and their moral and spiritual significance; and to evaluate those facts and use them in our judgments of moral and spiritual values in facing the problems of life.

If we respond to this intellectual challenge of Christianity as regards the use of the Bible, it will become a much greater Book to us, a much more wonderful Book, a much more useable Book, and a much more divine Book.

At a meeting of the All-China Methodist work in Shanghai, which no bishop or missionary of the Church attended, the Chinese Methodists voted to ask that steps be taken to make the Chinese Church independent and self-supporting, but to continue an organic relationship with the Methodists in America and other parts of the world. The Chinese want Chinese bishops, and they wish to have turned over to them the property of the mission gradually, so that the Church might come to assume self-support as rapidly as possible. This sentiment has grown out of the Nationalist movement, and it will be considered at the meeting of the general conference of the Methodist Church at its meeting in Kansas City in May. There is a feeling that the Church in the East must be made indigenous and be an outgrowth of the life of the people. The action of the all-China gathering is in full accord with this feeling now manifest throughout the East.

RECOMMENDED BOOKS

The following educational helps and books have been recommended by Dr. W. P. Minton, Secretary of Foreign Missionary Department, and Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Mission Secretary, S. C. C. Acting upon the advice and recommendation of these two recognized and earnest missionary workers, The Christian Publishing Association has stocked the following books, which are moderately priced and can be supplied on receipt of order:

FOREIGN MISSIONARY BOOKS

- New Paths for Old Purposes—By Margaret E. Burton. In cloth, $1.00; paper$.60
- The Nursery Series—Ah Fu (a Chinese river boy), Kembo (a little girl of Africa), The Three Camels (a story of India), Asa (a little Boy of Nazareth), board backs, each60
- Our Japanese Friend—By Ruth Isabel Seabury, in cloth only..... .75
- Young Japan—By Mabel Gardner Kerschner, in paper, each..... .40
- A Straight Way Toward Tomorrow—By Mary Schaffler Platt, cloth, 75c; paper50
- "Straight Way Towards Tomorrow" has been prepared especially for Missionary Societies.

HOME MISSIONARY BOOKS

- The Adventure of the Church—By Samuel McCrea Cavert, cloth, $1; paper$.60
- Indian Playmates of Navajo Land—By Ethel M. Baader, cloth75
- The Better American Series—Junior Home Mission Courses, cloth.... .75
- The Story of Missions—By Edwin E. White, cloth, $75; paper..... .50
- Please Stand By—By Margaret Applegarth, in cloth, 75c; paper.... .50
- Nine Home Mission Stories—For teachers to tell Primary pupils, paper25
- The Upward Climb—By Sarah Estella Haskin, in cloth only, each.. .75
- In the Vanguard of a Race—By Mrs. L. H. Hammond, in cloth, $1.00; paper75

A SERIES OF SIX BIG FOREIGN MISSION BOOKS

- China, Japan, India, Africa, Near East, and Latin-America—Per set in cloth, $6.00; paper, $4.00; cloth, $1.25; paper.....$.75

ANY OF THE ABOVE OR OTHERS MAY BE SECURED FROM

All books sent postpaid.

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Sunday, April 1, 1928.

TOPIC: "What Happens when Young People Dare to Follow Christ?"—Luke 9:57-62; Matt. 4:18-20. (Consecration meeting.)

Some Bible Hints.

Desire to follow Christ is not enough; God calls for deeds (v. 57).

Those that dare to follow Christ must not think of creature comforts. They must endure hardships, if need be (v. 58).

Following Christ must be more than a temporary impulse. More enthusiasm! It is a stern matter, a life principle, self-immolation (v. 61).

Jesus does not reject any offer to follow Him; but He bids us count the cost. He wants not rash disciples, but thoughtful and determined followers (v. 62).

Suggestive Thoughts.

If Christians dared to follow Christ there would be a tremendous transformation of character and life for the better. The influence of that is incalculable.

Every disciple of Christ would be an evangelist and proclaim the kingdom of God while illustrating in himself its principles and life.

The world would be forced to take sides for or against Jesus. Indifference would be impossible. The sheep would be separated from the goats.

The Church would for the first time in history have funds enough to carry on its home work and send the gospel to the ends of the earth. If we give ourselves to the Lord, our money follows.

A Few Illustrations.

A praying Church means a pentecostal Church—Christians filled with the Spirit, dynamos of the kingdom.

The thing that often hinders our following Christ fully is reluctance to break with the world. We look back longingly, like Lot's wife.

Every Christian would feel himself a steward of God, would give generously, would serve faithfully, would put the things of the kingdom first in his life. "Seek ye first the kingdom."

Paul dared to follow Christ. What followed then? A consecrated life. A soul aflame. Absolute dedication to the cause of Christ.

To Think About.

What hinders young people today from daring to live Christ's life?

What do you understand by following Christ? Is it possible to follow Christ fully today?

DAILY VACATION BIBLE SCHOOLS.

Some mighty fine young people have volunteered to help put on daily vacation Bible schools in Churches where help is needed. They will give their services and the Churches will only be expected to furnish them entertainment while there and pay the expenses of transportation to the Church and return. Is your Church interested in having some one come for a week or ten days and conduct a school for you, or in having some one come for two or three days and train your teachers and help you get started? If so, let us know as soon as possible so arrangements can be made.

The fine thing about daily vacation Bible schools is that they can just as easily be conducted by small schools as large ones. They have been held in Churches with a membership not more than twenty-five. They are equally fine for town and country. They cost very little—sometimes not more than a couple of dollars. Many Churches and individuals are willing to invest many times this amount in their boys and girls. Textbooks are used only by the teachers. You can use as teachers your regular Sunday School teachers and college and high school students home for vacation.

INTERNATIONAL UNIFORM SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE.

Lesson I—April 1, 1928.

JESUS THE SUFFERING MESSIAH.

GOLDEN TEXT: "If any man would come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me."—Mark 8:34.

LESSON: Mark 8:27-9:1, 9:30-32, 10:32-34.

DEVOTIONAL READING: Isa. 63:7-9.

"He asked His disciples, saying unto them, Who do men say that I am?" Jesus was interested in what men thought about Him. He did not care, of course, in the sense that He was seeking flattery, but He did care in the sense that He wanted to know how they interpreted His character and His mission.

"And they told Him, saying, John the Baptist; and others Elijah; but others, One of the prophets." Here is one of the greatest tributes ever paid to Jesus, for it reveals His many-sidedness of His character and His different appeal to different people. Elijah, John the Baptist, one of the prophets, say for instance Jeremiah, or Ezekiel, or Hosea, or Amos, or Isaiah—how varied in temperament these men were! How different in their lives and their message! And yet the Master was so versatile and so comprehensive in His character that when men tried to describe Him they had to liken Him, now to the one, and now to the other, these people differing widely in themselves.

"But who say ye that I am?" Religion for Jesus was a personal matter. After all, it does not make so much difference what others may think about Jesus, so far as we are concerned. The thing that makes a difference is what we think about Jesus. What we think about His character, what we think about His power to forgive sins, what we think about His power to save, what we think about His claim upon our lives, what we think of Him personally—these are the things that count. Religion never becomes vital until it becomes personal. What others think about Jesus and the attitude of others toward Jesus is secondary to what we think about Jesus and what we do with Jesus.

"Peter answered, and saith unto Him, 'Thou art the Christ.'" The Christ means the Anointed One and is the Greek word for the Messiah, "the One who should come." When Peter said, therefore, Thou art the Christ, he said that Jesus was indeed the One to whom they had looked forward, the One who because of His life and His ministry, God had anointed as His Messiah. Here was the fulfillment of the prophets and the hopes of the Jews. God was amongst them in the person of this man, the Christ, the Messiah.

It is interesting to observe how this came about. When Peter and the disciples followed this Man, they did not follow Him as the Son of God. They followed Him as Teacher, as One who attracted their attention and won their devotion. But as they walked with Him, as they heard Him teach and preach, as they beheld His works, as they felt His spirit, there deepened within them the conviction that He was more than the Son of man; this Man was the Son of God. And when Peter said, "Thou art the Christ," he was giving expression on behalf of the disciples to the central and significant factor about the person and work of Jesus—He was the Son of God, God manifested in the flesh.

It should be added that here is a simple and practical and effective test for all honest seekers. One does not have to take another's word about the Christ. Let any man who honestly desires to know the truth about Christ, follow Him sincerely and consistently; let him try to keep company with the Master, let him try to live the Master's way of life, and he will come—he cannot help coming if he is sincere—to the conviction that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God. Jesus said, "If any man will do His will, he shall know of the doctrine." When the disciples went out at first to do personal evangelism, their appeal was on this very point. "Come and see," they said. We will go much further, and we will do much better, if in all our Christian service we lift up the Christ, for if He be lifted up, He will draw men unto Himself. If we can persuade men to come and see, Christ will gladly assume the responsibility for results.

"And he began to teach them that the Son of man must suffer many things, and be rejected by the elders, and the chief priests, and the scribes, and be killed, and after three days rise again." Think of it, the Master has just been hailed as the Christ, the Son of the living God, and here He is telling them "openly" that He will be treated shamefully and scornfully; be rejected even by the religious leaders, yea be killed! The idea of such a thing! Why, it is preposterous! And Peter tells Him so in no uncertain terms. Why such a thing, says Peter is a denial of the thing we have just affirmed. The Messiah is to establish all things; He is to bring back the glory that was Israel's; He is to set up a grand and gorgeous kingdom; He is to exalt the Jews about all nations, and subdue their enemies and humiliate them. No, no! a thousand times no! The Messiah is not to be humble, to be mistreated, to be put to death.

Ah, Peter! little didst thou know of the inner secret of the Messiahship. Little didst thou interpret the secret of redemption. Not as a king, but as a suffering servant was the Christ to establish His kingdom. Not by way of an earthly crown, but by way of a cruel cross, was the Christ to come into His glory. Like so many, many people today, Peter would take from religion the sterner aspects, the rugged virtues, the element of vicarious suffering.

"If any man would come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me. For whosoever would save his life shall lose it; and whosoever shall lose his life for my sake and the gospel's, shall save it." It looks like a senseless slogan of an impractical idealist, but as a matter of fact, it was one of the soundest and most practical sayings which He who spake as never man spake, ever uttered. One can establish as the center of his life, self, and living only for that self, he will lose the real meaning of life. On the other hand, there is a larger self for which men can live—a self that includes others; that has expanding horizons; that shares the experiences of others; that loses itself for the things that are worth-while. And by no miracle, but by the operation of well-established laws, in the very process of losing one's self, one finds his true self.

"For what doth it profit a man to gain the whole world and forfeit his life?" There are eternal values which must be considered. He is shortsighted indeed, who will spend himself on things that pass away, instead of seeking those values which abide.

The daily vacation Bible school article in this issue was written by Mrs. Grace Stewart, assistant to Dr. C. H. Rowland, pastor First Christian Church, Greensboro, about the school held in their Church last summer. This was a fine school and enjoyed by pupils and teachers. Is not such a school a real investment in building Christian character in boys and girls?

This is the first of a series of articles to be published in THE SUN on the daily vacation Bible school.

PATTIE COGHILL.

FIRST, GREENSBORO.

Our daily vacation Bible school was rather small, only about sixty children attending in all, and it ran for only two weeks. It was divided into three groups of departments, as follows:

Kindergarten department (ages 3-5, with one adult superintendent and two intermediate girls as helpers). One girl played the piano and the other girl was secretary, while both helped with the hand-work. Milk and crackers were given to all the children just before the play period, and this gave a splendid opportunity to teach a table grace and little "sharing" ideas that a child coming from a home where there are no other children do not enjoy. The whole theme in this department was "Sharing."

Primary department (ages 6-8, with one adult superintendent and several helpers). This group took as their project "Japan." A whole cut-out Japanese village was made, much to the delight of the children. "Jesus Loves Me" was taught in Japanese, and now they often want to sing it in Japanese. I feel sure that this project has helped them to love all God's children better.

Junior department (ages 9-12, with one adult superintendent and several helpers). This group took as their theme, "Good Citizenship and the whole program carried out this theme. For hand-work, the girls made aprons for the Elon Orphanage. The boys made book-shelves for the junior Church song books.

Missions played a most important part in our this, and conducted a period in each department whole program. Mrs. Rowland had charge of every day. The children looked forward to her stories, and I'm sure that she made us all feel more interested in our brothers and sisters across the sea.

Another thing that the boys and girls looked forward to with a great deal of pleasure was the playground period under the direction of Miss Carlotta Johnson, who stressed "Fair Play."

The hand-work was one of the things that the children took very seriously, and it was there that they learned to do things for others. Special work assignments helped to maintain interest over Saturday and Sunday, and a treat on Friday kept up the attendance during the week.

A picnic for all on the last afternoon of the school was a big get-together. The expense of this school was less than ten dollars. All the workers were volunteers, and most of the material was contributed by friends. The closing program was one of worship in song, Bible stories and dramatization. An offering for "others" was taken. The hand-work was exhibited and turned over to the places for which it was intended.

I think it is well worth any Church's while to have a small school. To have learned to know the two intermediate girls who helped me in the kindergarten department was worth all the effort I put in the school.

I found that you cannot begin too early on your programs, nor plan too carefully if you are to get the very best results. I believe it should be made a real Bible school where the Bible is really taught and memory work stressed, because this is the "golden age" period of the child. You can get closer to the child in a two weeks' D. V. school than you can in a whole year of Sunday School; and I love the real gospel songs, too—songs that help us to express the very best that is in us.

Above all, I believe in making your program foursquare. We tried to develop these youngsters of ours mentally, religiously, socially and physically, and we did try to place some of the responsibility of the work on our young people, whom we found ready and waiting to help.

MRS. GRACE STEWART.

NOTICE.

The district missionary rallies of the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference will be held as follows:

Waverly District—Richmond, April 3rd.

Norfolk District—First Church, Norfolk, Va., April 4th.

Franklin District—Antioch Christian Church, April 5th.

Suffolk District—Berea (Nansemond), April 6th.

MRS. L. W. STAGG, Sec'y.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Minion Bold-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 7-8x 7 Inches, and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

2152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.75

India Paper Edition, Size 4 7-8x7 Inches, 1 1-10 Inches Thick.

2152X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$6.00

Bourgeois Type, Size 5 3-8x8 Inches, and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

2167—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.00

2172—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.50

2172A—Same as above, with Apocrypha.....$5.00

2173—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges.....$6.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3-4x3-8 inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3 3-4x5 3-4 Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps.....$2.50

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations. Special book for Sunday Schools.....95c

Minion Type, Pocket Size, 4x6 Inches, 1 1-4 Inches Thick.

With 32 full-colored illustrations; also 25 outline maps through the text and 12 colored maps.

133—Bound in cloth, round corners, red edges, title stamped on side in pure gold.....$1.60

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 15-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.00

Minion Black-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 3-4x 7 Inches, 1 1-4 Inches Thick.

Printed from clear, large, black-face type, 32 full-page illustrations in sepia and colors, 4,000 Questions and Answers, Harmony of the Gospels, How to Study the Sunday School Lesson, 25 outline Maps, 12 full-page colored Maps.

4152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold.....$3.25

AMERICAN STANDARD VERSION.

TEXT BIBLES.

Printed from Easy-Reading Type, on Good Bible Paper, for Sunday School and Church Use.

Minion Type, Size 4x6 Inches, 1 1-2 Inches Thick, 25 Outline Maps, Bound in Black.

101—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$1.10

112—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title on back in pure gold.....$2.75

India Paper Edition, Only 7 3-8-Inch Thick.

112X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.75

Reference and Text Bibles also in minion, brevier, bourgeois, long primer, pica and English type.

Thumb index cut on edge, 50c extra; name printed on any Bible in gold, 40c extra; extra wording, 40c per line.

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5 3-8x8 1-4 Inches and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With concise Bible dictionary, combined concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.75

RED LETTER EDITION

With all the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands, title stamped on side and back in pure gold.....$3.25

Any of the above Bibles sent post paid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN
1536 E. Broad St., - - - Richmond, Virginia.

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY REV. H. E. ROUNTREE,
One of Our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"Call upon me, and I will answer thee, and shew thee great and mighty things, which thou knowest not."—Jeremiah 33:3.

MONDAY.

I LOOK NOT BACK.

I look not back; God knows the fruitless efforts,
The wasted hours, the sinning, the regrets.
I leave them all with Him who blots the record,
And mercifully forgives, and then forgets.

I look not round, for then would fears assail me;
So with the tumult of earth's restless seas.
So dark the world, so filled with woe and evil,
So vain the hope of comfort
or of ease!

I look not in, for then am I most wretched;
My self has taught on which to stay my trust.
I look not at my failures and shortcomings,
And weak endeavors crumbling into dust.

I look unto the radiant face of Jesus,
For there my heart can rest, my fears are stilled,
And there is joy, and love, and light for darkness,
And perfect peace, and every hope fulfilled.

—Selected.

Let us pray that God make all things need in us. Life and the world turns up new every day. Since there are so many that love to live with all things, old works, old experiences, thank God for new days, new paths, new ways, new things, and a new chance to live life anew. Pray that God make us new every day. May He give us a spirit of humility instead of one of pride.
May He give us tenderness instead of sharpness, one of breadth instead of narrowness, of freedom instead of constraint, and of obedience instead of lawlessness. Then look not back, but press on toward the mark of the prize of the high calling.

TUESDAY.

WHAT DR. JOWETT LEARNED.

In reviewing his first pastorate, which was at Newcastle, Eng., Dr. J. H. Jowett said: "I have learned this lesson 'that sin is mighty, but God is mightier'; I have learned that man is impotent to redeem himself; I have learned that no man need be regarded as beyond redemption; I have learned that for the ruined life there is restoration, a power, a peace, and a joy unspeakable; I have learned that the care and the misery of this Church are in the homes where Christ is absent; I have learned that the happiest and most beautiful homes connected with this congregation are the homes of the redeemed. These are the lessons of my ministry.
Upon the experience of these severe years of labor,
I declare with a glad and confident heart that Jesus has power and willingness to redeem everybody."—Ex.

Let us acknowledge that God can do all things for all people, and that He will give us what we ask in His name; that we may always be found in Him, true, growing in grace and the knowledge of God always.

WEDNESDAY.

GREATNESS.

*"He that is greatest shall be your servant."—
Matt 23:11.*

Some folks think greatness consists in intellectual ability, assertion of brain-power, physical mastery, influence over others, survival of the fittest.

But the Scriptures say that it is serving, impoverishment of self to help others to be something better. It is not accumulating, but seeking others' good. Jesus has given us heaven's example in giving up heaven's position, laying aside kingly vestures and took upon Him the form of a servant and was in the likeness of ordinary man.

It is glorious to have His words, His healings and His love, but it is more glorious that He had the hands and the lips to speak and the heart of a brother to feel. He lived with folks because His life must find expression, because He could not confine His comforts to His own heart. He must minister and not be ministered unto. To know a want was to give it. To know a truth was to speak it.

Prayer.—Our Father, we seek to walk Thy way today. Give unto us to hear Thy voice along that way. May we take all our cares to Thee and give us Thy courage and friendship. Amen.

THURSDAY.

ROBBING GOD!

"Yet ye have robbed me."—Mal. 3:8-10.

How robbed Thee? "In tithes and offerings," said Jehovah. How little today is being spent in the interest of the kingdom of Jesus when compared with the vast sums spent for cosmetics, cigarettes, etc. The fire burns low on our altars, as in the prophet's day. Little wonder God is saying today, "Can a man rob God? Yet ye have robbed me."

There are ways in which God is being robbed other than in tithes and offerings. He is being robbed of His time. The Lord's Day is specially His, and men appropriate God's time when they use the day for personal pleasure and for matterial profit. And God is being robbed in the lamentable absence of that fine spirit of adoring love which expresses itself in true worship.

But in all these things, men rob themselves as well as God. In withholding our gifts, we deprive ourselves of the blessedness of giving. In robbing God of His time, we destroy our own
"palace beautiful." The soul that does know worship has robbed itself of infinite good.

Prayer.—By one of the parents, asking that we may all be deeply touched with the spirit of generosity, and strive to aid in the advancement of the kingdom.

FRIDAY.

THE FAITH OF JOSEPH.

*"I die: and God will surely visit you."—Gen.
50:24-26; Ps. 145:4.*

Careful study of the closing chapters of Genesis and a comparison with our own day, will quicken the faith of all. In early centuries the world believed in many gods. And what a diversity of deities! Some chiseled out of rock; some hewn from a tree-trunk; others molded of clay, to say nothing of sacred animals in which some pagan deity was said to reside.

Joseph was a man of strong convictions. When death drew near, his faith in God was unabated.
Believing that God would never fail even the unborn generations, the now aged man calls his children to him and gives them these reassuring words: "I die: and God will surely visit you!"
So certain is he that God will not leave His people in Egypt, that he directs the embalming of his own body, to the end that it may be ultimately taken for burial in the promised land. What a contrast history affords! In those far-off centuries, a little group pitted, religiously, against the whole world. Today the faith of Joseph is the faith of every enlightened country. Joseph died rejoicing in his faith in the God who would lead future generations from glory to glory. Every page of history attests that the patriarch was correct.

Prayer.—By one of the parents, thanking the Father for the care He has vouchsafed to His people in every age, and asking that our faith in Him and in Jesus Christ, our Saviour, may greatly increase.

SATURDAY.

"CHRISTIAN" MEANS "CHRIST-LIKE."

"For I have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done to you."—John 13:15.

Put to yourself the question: "Are you a Christian?" Probably almost without exception, those whose eyes fall on this would unhesitatingly reply: "Yes, I am a Christian." Now change the form of the question a bit, yet leaving it essentially the same. This time ask yourself: "Are you Christ-like?" If I am not mistaken, most of us would not answer this quite so readily. I think we would show a little confusion. If we were thoroughly honest with ourselves, I wonder if we would not have to say: "No, I am not Christ-like."

It is not a matter of concern that a word has to such an extent lost its significance that we apply it with little regard for the fullness of its meaning. It is, however, a matter of concern that discipleship, which the word was first used to denote, has lost its meaning.

Might it not be helpful if, instead of using the word "Christian," we used for a while the term
"Christ-like?" It would seem out of keeping:
the Christ-like Church, a Christ-like nation, a Christ-like civilization, a Christ-like man. But it might help us to make those things which we carelessly call Christian indeed Christ-like, which is part of that which Christian implies.

Prayer.—By one of the parents, asking that we may have constantly before us the divine example as our model and guide. Ask in Jesus' name.

SUNDAY.

MY CHURCH AND I.

My Church is the place where the Word of God is preached, the power of God is felt, the Spirit of God is manifested, the love of God is revealed, and the unity of God is perceived.

It is the home of my soul, the altar of my devotion, the hearth of my faith, the center of my affections and the foretaste of heaven.

I have united with it in solemn covenant, pledging myself to attend its services, to pray for its members, to give to its support, and to obey its laws.

It claims the first place in my heart, the highest place in my mind, the principal place in my activities, and its unity, peace and progress concern my life in this world and that which is to come.

I owe it my zeal, my benevolence and my prayers. When I neglect its services, injure its good name, I lessen its power, I discourage its members and I chill my own soul.

I have solemnly promised, in the sight of God and men, to advance its interests, by my faithful attendance, by reading the Holy Bible, by never neglecting its ordinances, by contributing to its support, by meeting with my fellow-members, by watching over their welfare, and by joining with them in prayer and praise and service, and that promise I this day renew, before God my Father, Christ my Redeemer, and the Holy Spirit my Sanctifier.

(Continued on page 13.)

Christian Orphanage

REPORT FOR MARCH 22, 1928.

Brought forward	$3,262.37
Sunday School Monthly Offerings.
N. C. & Va. Conference:
New Lebanon S. S.	$ 2.00
New Lebanon Baracca Class.....	2.00
Happy Home	1.88
Haw River	14.54
Greensboro, Palm Street	5.60
Elon College	6.25
Durham	19.60
	51.87
Western N. C. Conference:
Ether	$ 2.00
Randleman	5.40
	7.40
Eastern N. C. Conference:
Youngsville	$ 2.00
Oak Level	2.70
Piney Plains	2.60
Mt. Auburn	6.12
	13.42
Eastern Virginia Conference:
Hobson	$ 1.67
South Norfolk	9.68
Berea, Nansemond	20.00
Wakefield	3.18
Cypress Chapel	3.67
Union, Southampton	1.00
Liberty Spring	12.00
	51.20
Valley Virginia Conference:
Dry Run	$ 2.68
Timber Ridge	1.95
Antioch	17.44
	22.07
Alabama Conference:
Noon Day50
Endowments:
L. S. Holt Endowment.....	150.00
Special Offerings.
Class of Haw River S. S.	$ 5.00
G. W. Fogleman, Burlington.....	12.00
	17.00
Thanksgiving Offering:
First, Norfolk	60.00
Grand total	$3,635.83

LOYALTY SPEAKS.

BY GEO. D. COLCLOUGH.

Some time ago I was talking with Mr. A, who has sent several children to Elon and has others preparing for the same institution. He told me in the conversation that all his children were going to Elon (I might say he emphasized the word "going"). I asked why he was so definite in his statement concerning the institution that his children should get their higher education. His reply was that if his children had to get an education without the principles of Christianity as a basis, he did not want them to go to college.

In the conversation, Mr. A stated that he not merely wanted his child to go to Elon for the good of the child, for that would be a selfish purpose—the thing he really had in mind was the future. He said: "I believe that my children are going to be as successful as the average person in life. Some of them may be wealthy some day, and if not they will have children to go to college and friends seeking a college education. I know enough about college graduates to know that they will feel partial to their alma mater. So if I can get my children to graduate at Elon I feel that I have helped send students there for years to come. Not only have I sent students there for years to come, but I have linked them with the institution that needs their support. They are going to have their influence in the community where they live, and I want that influence to be for Elon."

"As I see it," continued Mr. A, "it is either send my children to Elon or rob my denominational school." I asked what he meant by robbing his school by merely sending a child to some other institution. He replied: "Let us take for example that I let my boy go to a school that does not stand for the principles of Christianity as Elon does. I have not only taken a student away from Elon, but taken from it all the influence that boy may have, and all the influence that those he may influence have. It would be a serious offense, as I see it, for I would not alone be depriving Elon of this influence, but would be lining it up with an opposite force, which makes it the more serious."

Until I talked with this gentleman I had never thought of the matter in just that light. And I wonder just how many of our alumni and Church members that mean to be loyal fall down at this point. Probably they desire that their child go to Elon, but respect the groundless wishes of a seventeen or eighteen-year-old child more than the principles of their Church.

As I listened to this gentleman talk I thought of one or two members of the Christian Church that are planning to attend some other college next fall. These young people give for their excuse various things. One told me that he had a classmate and very close friend that was going to attend another school and was persuading him to go along too. This boy had never stopped to think that he was admitting his own weakness in permitting this boy to induce him to go to his school. Why didn't he reverse it, and induce his friend to come with him to Elon?

If you are a high school graduate and considering going to college, if you have a child that is going to college this fall, or if you know of some worthy young person that is planning to enter college, you should use your influence to bring them to Elon, for, as Mr. A says, it is a matter of helping or depriving your college.

(Continued from page 12.)
"There is only one life—it will soon be past;
Only what is done for Jesus will last."
—Rev. J. J. D. Hall.

Let us pray for the profound truth that we belong to God, and that our talents are given us by Him and are to be used for Him.

Were the whole realm of nature mine,
That were a present far too small;
Love so amazing, so divine,
Demands my life, my soul, my all. Amen.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES.

We should be glad to furnish your Sunday School the following supplementary supplies, cash to accompany order:

Improved Uniform Series International Lessons.

1. Bible Lesson Picture Roll, 21x32 inches, per quarter	$1.25
2. Sunday School Superintendent (to accompany the Picture Roll), per quarter.....	.15
3. Pupils' Lesson Stories, per quarter.....	.06
4. Little Bible Lesson Pictures, per quarter..	.05
Group Uniform Series, Primary Course.
1. Group Bible Lesson Picture Roll, 16x20 in., per quarter	1.00
2. Group Pupils' Lesson Stories, Primary, per quarter07
3. Group Lesson Pictures, per quarter.....	.04

In making order, be explicit and name the quarter for which supplies are wanted; thus: first quarter, January to March; second quarter, April to June; third quarter, July to September; fourth quarter, October to December.

SEND ORDERS TO THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

COMMUNION WARE

Individual Service

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A

Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses	$7.00
Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses	6.75
Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses	6.50
Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10.....	2.25
Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10.....	2.25
Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim	1.60
No. 2—Broad rim	1.60

SILVER-PLATE

The Silver-Plated Ware is of the very lightest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.

Style No. 85

Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses.	$22.00
Base No. 1—Silver-plate; fits Silver Tray No. 85	11.00
Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85...	16.00
(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)

Style No. 90

Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 33 plain glasses.
Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain-glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling).	$22.00
Base No. 2—Silver-plate; fits Silver Tray 90...	16.00
Cover No. 4—Silver-plate; fits Silver Tray 90..	14.00

Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow rim	$ 9.00
No. 4—Broad rim	9.00
Filler—Silver lined	6.00

Send Orders to THE CHRISTIAN SUN,
1536 E. Broad St., - - - Richmond, Va.

Kiddies' Korner

MADGE MOFFITT WHITESELL, Editor.

Dear Children:

Now, that the wonderful spring days are just around the corner, all of you are thinking of outdoor sports. How many of you have a pony? My story for you this week is about a little girl who wanted a pony very much and finally got it.

We are invited over to High Point tomorrow afternoon, to take dinner with your editor. She is temporarily directing the choir in the M. P. Church there and has a lovely program planned for Easter, which keeps her very busy.

Best wishes to you.

MRS. T. A. MOFFETT.

Ramseur, N. C.

AT THE END OF THE STRING.

By Frances F. Wright.

Did you ever want anything so much that you dreamed about it at night? Jane did. And what she dreamed about was a pony. For a whole year Jane had wanted a pony more than anything else in the world!

When Christmas-time came, she wrote three letters to Santa, begging him to bring her a pony. But for some reason, he didn't bring it. Perhaps he thought Jane was too little to ride a pony (she was only six then), or perhaps he couldn't find the kind Jane wanted—"a little black-and-white spotted one, please, dear Santa," she had said.

Anyway, he didn't bring it, and Jane tried very hard to be satisfied with her new doll buggy and her kodak. But she couldn't forget the pony. And now it was almost her birthday. Next week she would be seven years old, but she felt sure she would not get a pony, because she never got presents, except little ones, on her birthday.

She always had a cake, though; a beautiful white one, with the right number of candles on it, all stuck into pink candy roses. It looked just the same every year, except, of course, there was one more candle every time.

I should have told you before, that Jane had planned so long for a pony that she had actually saved enough money to buy a saddle and bridle! Or almost enough.

You see, every night that Jane went to sleep by 8 o'clock, daddy gave her a penny. And she dropped them into her little bank. And in one year she saved three hundred and sixty pennies! Because she missed going to sleep on time only five nights. So that made three dollars and sixty cents.

Then daddy gave her two baby pigs that had no mother. Jane fed them buttermilk several times every day. And they grew so big and so fat that daddy said he would like to buy them. And he did, and paid Jane three dollars for each of them. And you see, that made nine dollars.

Then mother gave Jane all the eggs she could find at the barn to sell for herself. And in a year she had sold five dollars and forty-five cents worth. So that made fourteen dollars and forty-five cents Jane had! She hadn't told any one what she was saving it for until just the day before her birthday.

She was sitting in daddy's lap, and he said: "Jane, how much money have you saved by now?"

Jane said: "I counted it today, daddy. I have fourteen dollars and forty-five cents."

"Good for you!" said daddy. "I didn't know you had so much. And what are you going to buy with it? Or are you just going to keep it?"

"No, daddy," said Jane; "I'm going to buy a saddle and bridle with it."

Daddy laughed. "O mother!" he called; "Jane is going to buy a saddle and bridle with her money!"

Mother came out with twinkling eyes. "Dear me!" she said; "what a forehanded little girl we have! She gets the bridle and saddle before she gets the pony!"

"Now, Jane," said mother the next day, "it's time to light the candles."

O how thrilled Jane was! She lighted them one by one until all seven were burning like little stars on her beautiful cake.

"And you may cut it, dear. You are big enough now."

Jane proudly cut the first slice. As she did so she discovered a card, baked into the cake! And a string tied to the card! The card said, "Follow the string."

Jane saw then that the string went across the table and out under the door. She jumped up and followed it. Mother and daddy followed too. The string went across the porch and around the house. Jane ran after it, and just as she turned the corner she almost bumped into the darlinest pony you ever saw—"a little black-and-white spotted one," sure enough!

Jane ran to him and hugged him. She laughed and danced and ran and hugged daddy, then mother, then the pony again! And before she could go back to her birthday dinner she took him a big lump of sugar and said: "That's what I'll name you, too—"Sugarlump," because you love sugar lumps, and because you are the sweetest birthday present anybody ever had, I know!

Dr. C. H. Rowland, in charge of the program of the Summer School, June 23-30th, has invited Dr. W. Knighton Bloom to have part in the school, as representing the Congregational Church. It is hoped that Dr. Bloom can accept the invitation.

OXFORD BIBLES

An Oxford $3.50
Teacher's
Bible only

"The
Oxford Bible
is the Bible
par excellence
of the world"

The best recommendation of the OXFORD TEACHER'S BIBLES is the fact that over 3,000,000 copies have been sold. The wonderful helps they contain save your time because they are alphabetically arranged, making reference easy. They take the place of many books about the Bible, and can be depended upon, being written by eminent scholars. The Helps contain 32 graphic illustrations, besides 15 beautifully colored maps. The text is the Authorized or King James version, with over 50,000 centre column references.

These Are Genuine OXFORD Teacher's BIBLES

EASY-TO-READ EDITION

Size 7 1/4 x 5 x 1 1/4 inches

Specimen of Type

17 And there was a very sore battle
that day; and Abner was beaten,

Nos.
04451	Moroccoette, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges.	$3.50
04453	French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and handsome Bible.	4.37

Oxford India Paper Edition

Same as above, but printed on the famous Oxford India paper used only in Oxford Bibles. Only one inch thick.

Nos.
0773x	French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition.	$7.50

RED LETTER EDITION

05453	As No. 04453 with words of Jesus Christ in red. The red letter feature adds greatly to one's understanding of the Bible.	5.00
-------	---	------

Oxford India Paper Edition

05453x	Same as No. 0773x with words of Jesus Christ in red. A gift edition which is sure to please.	8.00
--------	---	------

SELF-PRONOUNCING EDITION

All proper names and difficult words divided into syllables and accented so they may be correctly pronounced. Sizes 8 1/2 x 5 1/2 x 1 1/2 inches.

Specimen of Type

6 And A-hi-shär was over the household: and Ad-ö-ni-räm the son of Ab-dä was over the tri-

Nos.
04521	Moroccoette, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges.	$5.00
04523	French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A real student's Bible.	6.00

Oxford India Paper Edition

Same as above, but printed on the famous Oxford India paper which is used only in Oxford Bibles. Only 1 1/4 inches thick.

0923x	French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A Bible of superior quality.	$9.00
-------	---	--------

Improved Thumb Index on any style
at 50 cents extra

OBITUARIES.

THOMAS.

Little Margaret Thomas, age 12, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alton Thomas, Sanford, Route 2, was suddenly killed in a school-bus accident on January 9, 1928. Funeral services at the home and interment in the family cemetery on the following day. This grief-stricken family was joined in its sorrow by one of the largest gatherings of people I have ever witnessed at a funeral. Six of Margaret's school-mates bore the casket containing her body to its resting-place.

God forbid that this child shall have died in vain.

B. J. HOWARD.

FOISTER.

The Chapel Hill Christian Church lost its oldest and a very consecrated member in the passing of Bro. J. P. Foister at the home of his daughter, Mrs. H. D. Leigh, in Chapel Hill, on February 26, 1928. Bro. Foister was buried on what would have been his 78th birthday. He lived and died in a triumphant faith in God, undimmed devotion to the cause of right and friendliness to all people. His body was laid to rest by the side of that of his wife, who preceded him, in the family plot at Mt. Gilead. Four sons and two daughters and other

B. J. HOWARD.

WATSON.

Col. Lindbergh to re-son, a member of the U. of Shallow Well Cemetery the following afternoon. Sister Watson was about 68 years of age. She was a very consistant member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

The largely attended funeral services were in charge of Rev. O. I. Hinson and the writer.

B. J. HOWARD.

MORGAN.

Martha's Chapel Christian Church lost another valuable member in the passing of Bro. W. A. Morgan on February 6th. His fatal illness was of short duration. The entire community will miss this public-spirited citizen. A congregation that far more than filled the seating capacity of his Church at his funeral was

MISSIONARY PAGEANTS.

Two Masters—By Bertha Cooper Fraser. One of the very best ones published. Price10 cents

The Cross Triumphant—Forty people; about one and one-fourth hours long. Price35 cents

The Missionary Clinic—Price.....10 cents

Aunt Tillie Learns to Tithe—Stewardship. Price15 cents

The Betrothal of Mai Tsung—By Kyung Shien Sung and Vida Sutton. A Chinese love story of a boy and girl who became Christians. About 1 hour long. Price25 cents

Order from:

Pattie Coghill,
Literature Superintendent, North Carolina Woman's Board.

of the honor and respect in which he was held.

Two sons and two daughters and several grandchildren survive him.

B. J. HOWARD.

MORGAN.

After an extended illness, Miss Fannie Morgan, age 60, departed this life at her home, near Fearrington, N. C., on February 3, 1928. Her faith in God was triumphant.

She was a member of Martha's Chapel Christian Church. There her funeral and burial services took place on the day following her death.

B. J. HOWARD.

YOUNG MERCHANT.

A merchant at 7 years of age! In the bazaars of Constantinople, one often finds a lad of tender years with a tray across his breast, held over the shoulder by a string. Herein is displayed needles, pins and other notions. Our field-workers asked a Turk to ascertain the age of several of such young merchants. They averaged 7 years. Darting in and out of the bazaar crowd, they shrewdly ply their trade. Their master hires them for a mere mouthly pittance. They must sell a certain amount daily, or earn a beating in lieu of supper.

They are characteristic of life in areas of intense population pressure. Where the birth rate crowds the bread supply, one finds coolie standards of living. That is why millions upon millions from the Mediterranean basin would pour into America were our country not protected by the Johnson quota act. One's heart bleeds for these lads. One must remember, however, that to break down our protection would result in destruction of our standards of living without helping them. For, as President Wilbur, of Stanford University, well says: "For each immigrant that moves out, a baby moves in."

Subscribe for The Christian Sun.

ELON COLLEGE

CO-EDUCATIONAL

SECOND SEMESTER OPENS JANUARY 4, 1928

A few additional Students may be accommodated at that time, preferably members of the Christian Church.

SOME OF THE ELON COLLEGE BUILDINGS

ELON COLLEGE offers superior educational advantages to the members of the Christian Church. The buildings are new, equipment new and of the very best type, laboratory facilities equal to any college in the South; member of the Southern Association of Colleges, strong Christian faculty, and fine Christian atmosphere prevailing on the campus. Special courses in religious education and Christian work are offered to train laymen and ministers in the work of our denomination.

For Catalogue and View-Books, address

C. M. CANNON REGISTRAR,

ELON COLLEGE, - - NORTH CAROLINA

"Christian Character First and Always at Elon College"

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rve. Daniel W. Kerr.

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Christian Church.

BOARD OF EDITORS

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D. Editor
W. W. STALEY, D. D. Associate
W. A. HARPER, LL.D. Associate
REV. S. C. HARRELL. Associate
R. C. HELFENSTEIN, D. D. Associate
REV. S. M. LYNAM. News Editor
P. J. KERNODLE. Managing Editor

Subscription Rates

One Year$2.00
Six Months 1.00

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT
RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Post-office at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows the date of expiration. Change in the label will appear on wrapper the first week of month following renewal, provided it is received before the 25th.

Change of Address: Give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

When subscriptions are made for friends, state whether paper is to be stopped at end of the year.

Remittances: Make all remittances for subscriptions and renewals to "Editor Christian Sun," Elon College, N. C.

Remittances for advertising and other business matters will be addressed to the "Managing Editor," 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond, Va.

Advertising Rates: "Want Ads," 2 cents a word an insertion. Display rates quoted upon request.

Notices: Obituary and Marriage notices, limited to 100 words, are published free of charge. All over 100 words, at 1 cent a word. Remittance should accompany copy. Write names distinctly.

LANE.

Mrs. W. H. Lane died suddenly at her home, in Sampson County, on January 7, 1928, at the age of 52 years. Funeral services, and interment took place the day following her death, at Shallow Well Christian Church, of which she had been a member for several years. The high esteem in which this good woman was held by those who knew her so well when she was a resident of Jonesboro a few years ago was much in evidence at her funeral.

Her husband and several children survive. To them may the Comforter of souls be very real.

B. J. HOWARD.

WHITEHURST.

Mrs. Alice Eudora Whitehurst passed away early Tuesday morning, March 13th, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. R. Guynn, Deep Creek, Va. She was 71 years, 7 months of age. She was a member of Berea Christian Church, Great Bridge, Va., and had been from early childhood. She lived a quiet, unassuming life, always willing to suffer wrong rather than retaliate. She was buried in Berea Cemetery by the side of her husband, Jerome B. Whitehurst, who preceded her to the grave in the spring of 1894. She leaves to mourn her loss two brothers and two sisters, three children (two sons and a daughter), also eighteen grandchildren and three great-grandchildren. Peaceful be her rest.

A BROTHER.

MADDOX.

Bro. Thomas B. Maddox succumbed to the ravages of a complication of diseases in a hospital at Sanford, N. C., on February 5, 1928. He was 52 years of age. He was a member of one of the most prominent families of the Moore Union section. For several years he and his brother, the late W. C. Maddox, were in the mercantile business under the firm style Maddox Bros., at Moneure, N. C.

Bro. Maddox had been a member of Moore Union Christian Church since boyhood. He was widely known, and much enjoyed as a singer of gospel hymns, and for his compassion for the unfortunate. His aged mother, four brothers and one sister survive.

B. J. HOWARD.

BETHLEHEM COLLEGE

WADLEY, ALABAMA

A JUNIOR COLLEGE AND HIGH SCHOOL.

Where Opportunity Awaits the Student of Very Limited Means.

GIRL'S DORMITORY.

Bethlehem College, Wadley, Ala., will open September 5, 1927. This institution is a Junior College and High School, which is co-educational, where scholarship ranks high and expense is low. It is thoroughly Christian, absolutely non-sectarian, and vitally American. A school where opportunity awaits the student of very limited means—$68.00 pays all college expenses, except books, board and room. Board, $15.00 per month, and room $3.00; total expenses for a term of nine months, $250.00.

Bethlehem College is training some of the best stock of America for Christian leadership, to be used by the nation and the world. Here is a great challenge and asset for students who wish to prepare themselves to serve in a worth-while way. The work on the new Administration Building is progressing nicely, and we will be able to begin our college work in this building when school opens this fall.

For catalog and other information, address S. L. Beougher, President.

OXFORD TEACHERS' BIBLES

An Oxford Teachers' Bible has references and 300 pages of helps that are a mine of information to Bible students. The helps are arranged in alphabetical order, like a dictionary. They are accurate, comprehensive and up-to-date. A few styles are listed here. Many others are described in our Bible catalogue, mailed upon request.

04403 [This size print] Bound in French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, size 6 7/8 x 4 1/2 inches $4.00

0623x [Same Bible as 04403] Printed on Oxford India paper. Only 1 inch thick.....$6.00

04453 [This size print] French Morocco leather binding, overlapping covers, 7 1/4 x 5 in. $4.35

0773x [Same Bible as 04453] Printed on Oxford India paper. A remarkably thin and light Bible. (Only 1 inch thick)$7.75

05453 [Same Bible as 04453] With the words of Jesus Christ printed in red$6.25

05453x [Same Bible as 0773x] With the words of Jesus Christ printed in red$8.75

04523 [This size print] A self-pronouncing Oxford Bible. Bound in French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, size 8 1/2 x 5 1/2 inches... $5.50

0923x [Same Bible as 04523] Printed on Oxford India paper, only 1 1/2 inches thick...$9.75

ORDER FROM
"THE CHRISTIAN SUN"

Richmond, Va

HOLMAN BIBLES

FOR CHILDREN
PICTORIAL BIBLES WITH HELPS

The text is self-pronouncing, by the aid of which children can learn to pronounce the difficult Scripture proper names.

Specimen of Type

27 And the boys grew: and Esau was a cunning hunter.
5 And the streets of the city shall be full of boys and girls playing in the streets thereof.

With beautiful photo views of scenes in Bible lands distributed throughout the text. Also maps of Bible lands in colors. Also new Practical Helps to Bible Study, especially designed for instructing children in scriptural information.

No. 9111. French Seal Leather, overlapping covers, round corners, gold edges, gold titles.

Our Price—Post Paid 2.30

COLORED PICTURE EDITION

Portraying in natural colors, scenes and places taken from nature and life in the Holy Land.

No. 9211. Same as No. 9111, but with Beautifully Colored Pictures.

Our Price—Post Paid 2.40

FOR INTERMEDIATE SUNDAY-SCHOOL SCHOLARS

Large Clear Black Type, Self-Pronouncing, containing Helps to Bible Study, 4000 Questions and Answers, Maps in Colors, and Presentation Page. A Beautiful Gift Bible.

Specimen of Type.

22 And the prophet Is'ra-el, and said unto thyself, and mark, and for at the return of t

Size, 7 x 5 inches.

Reinforced Style, Bound in red corners, red under and purple silk

3.10

Inter Scholars' Bible, with all the Sayings of, and with Red and gold DE TITLES, also Beautifully Colored Pictures.

Our Price—Post Paid 3.45

Holman Self-Pronouncing

VEST POCKET TESTAMENTS

Clearer Print in Smallest Size
4 3/8 x 2 1/4 x 3/8 inches

Specimen of Type.

AND the third day there was a marriage in Cana of Galilee; and the mother of Jesus was

2133K. Bound in durable Morocco Grain Semble Leather, flexible limp, gilt titles60

2113. French Morocco, genuine leather, flexible limp, gold titles, rounded corners, gold edges..... .70

2115P. French Morocco, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold es, with the Book of Psalms $1.10

11 A-hi TATED VEST POCKET TESTAMENT

With Pictures of Holy Land Scenes

2814. French Morocco, limp, gold side title round corners, red under gold edges85

RED LETTER VEST POCKET TESTAMENT With all the words of our Lord printed in red.

13RL. French Morocco, flexible limp, gold side title on red panel, gold edges. .85

15RLP. French Morocco, overlapping covers, flexible, gold side title on red panel, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included $1.25

INDIA PAPER VEST POCKET TESTAMENT

Thin as a Wafer

2136XP. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, with Psalms included $2.25

Send Your Orders to

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 E. Broad Street

RICHMOND . VIRGINIA

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Official Organ of the Southern Christian Convention.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXX.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, MARCH 29, 1928.

NUMBER 13.

THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY

By REV. S. M. LYNAM.

President Signs Alien Bill.—

President Coolidge recently signed the alien property bill which provides for settlement of awards made to nationals of Germany and the United States, as made by the Mixed Claims Commission. They include payment for property destroyed by the Germans before the United States entered the World War, largely because of the sinking of the Lusitania, the Sussex and other ships, and the seizure of American property in Germany; also for the seizure by the United States of ships' radio stations and other property of the Germans.

National Permission.—

The Congress has passed and the President has signed a bill permitting Col. Lindbergh to receive foreign decorations. No official of the United States government or member of the army and navy can accept foreign decorations without this national permission. Col. Lindbergh has found himself in this position, but now he has the permission, and doubtless he will be showered with foreign honors and decorations. Mrs. Lindbergh is sharing largely in the honors of her illustrious son. She visited Mexico City by air at Christmas time, and at Easter she will be the guest of the Ontario Educational Association, meeting in Toronto, Ontario. Mrs. Lindbergh will come to Toronto from Detroit by air.

Money for Lindbergh.—

The twenty-five-thousand-dollar award of the Woodrow Wilson Foundation for outstanding achievement in the field of international peace went to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh recently. The award has been given to Sir Robert Cecil and Elihu Root. These winners were 63 and 83, respectively; Lindbergh is 25. The famous flier has taken a place with distinguished company. The presentation of the award and the gold plaque was made by Norman B. Davis. Col. Lindbergh has laid aside the pomp and ceremony of greatness and gone back to the old-time vocation of air mail pilot. His first trip was not a successful one after his return. With him he carried a hundred thousand letters, especially mailed for the purpose of having Lindbergh take them from St. Louis to Chicago.

Two Conventions.—

The Republican National Convention will meet next June 12th in Kansas City, Mo. The convention will hold its sessions in a big hall with a seating capacity of eighteen thousand. The hall was built to accommodate the Democratic convention which met in that city in 1900 and named as candidate for the presidency William Jennings Bryan, of Nebraska. There are now a number of presidential possibilities, and who will be selected by the Kansas City convention to bear the party standard will be a matter of surmise for a month or two more. The Democratic National Convention will meet in Houston, Texas, on June 26th. The Democrats will meet having the advantage of knowing who the Republicans have named. The quadrennial presidential election is known abroad as our great national sport, and until November the press will devote much space to the political situation in the country.

In a Christian City.—

It has been announced by Daya Hewaviarne that a temple to Buddha would be built in London. There will be no effort made to attract converts. The temple will simply serve the Buddhists now resident in London. The priests will wear orange robes and fly the Buddhist flag, which has six colors—blue, red, yellow, white and orange and a combination of the other five colors, because when Buddha found the full truth after his days of meditation under the bo tree, he found himself surrounded by an aurora of these six wonderful colors. This will be the first Buddhist temple in the busy city of London. This announcement recalls that the finest Mohammedan mosque in the world is not in a Moslem land, but in Los Angeles, Calif. Into the Christian lands have come the other faiths, and when they are next to us, little is done to convert them to Christianity, but we are anxious to send missionaries to far places. This we should do, but we ought not to neglect the man who lives near to us.

Refused License.—

The department of marines of the Canadian government, which has in charge the regulation of the radio broadcasting of Canada, has recently refused licenses to the radio stations of the International Bible Students because of the controversial nature of the lectures broadcasted. This refusal of new licenses for these stations brings into the field the whole question of the purpose of broadcasting. The International Bible Students declare that they will argue the question before the Canadian Parliament at Ottawa, and they state that they will present a petition to the House of Commons, signed by a million people. To this end, they will put forty of their lecture staff in the field to secure signatures if necessary. They feel that radio programs of any nature should be broadcasted freely, and that the controversial nature should have nothing to do with limiting broadcasting stations. They hold, too, that the refusal of the department to grant a renewal of license is an abridgment of free speech. There is involved in this matter a principle which will have to be settled in Canada and the United States.

New National Park.—

Five million dollars of the Rockefeller millions will go into the perpetuating of the surface grandeur of the Great Smoky Mountains. Ten million dollars will be required to purchase and create a park of six hundred square miles of western North Carolina and eastern Tennessee. This group of mountains contains the highest peaks east of the Rockies, with the exception of Mount Washington and Mount Mitchell. There are bears and deer. The bears are black instead of grizzled, and the deer frisk white tails instead of the black tail familiar in the West. The new Southern park will be advertised as a rival of Yellowstone, Glacier and Yosemite. It will be accessible to three-fourths of the country's population. There are no roads, and until recently no accurate maps of the region had been made. This fact was accomplished by use of airplanes. The remaining five millions not given by the Laura Spellman Rockefeller Foundation has been made up by the Legislatures of North Carolina and Tennessee and by public subscription. In the park can be found every tree known from Georgia to the St. Lawrence, and its great domes are fringed with the balsam tree.

A Cure for Leprosy.—

One of the greatest announcements of the medical profession in years has just been made. A cure for leprosy has just been perfected. It is made by extracting the oil from the dried fruit of the hydnocarpus tree. For ten long years scientists have been busy perfecting the remedy. Previously the medicine could not be used because it blocked the veins and choked off the blood stream. The germ of leprosy exists in the blood stream as well as in the organs and tissues, and consequently something which could be injected directly into the blood stream was needed. Hitherto the disease has been treated by injecting chaulmoogra oil into the muscles, which was only an indirect method. In early stages the new remedy is 100 per cent efficient, and 30 per cent efficient in advanced cases. No disease has ever been so dreaded as leprosy, and according to experts it is now increasing rapidly. It is not infectious and is not carried by air or water, but it is contagious and is transferred by contact. The British Empire Leprosy Relief Association, under whose auspices the discovery has been made, will establish relief stations throughout the empire. There are 416,000 lepers in the British empire, it is reported. The relief association's work will include the planting of the hydnocarpus tree in all the possessions, that the remedy may not die out. Edward of Wales is the president of the organization.

NOTES-PERSONALS

Much good matter is left over each week for lack of space. Be patient.

Mrs. Dora R. King, Suffolk, Route 1, in sending in her subscription to THE SUN, says: "I just feel as if I can't do without the paper."

Mrs. J. A. Williams, president of the Woman's Board, sends a message from her heart to the women of our Church in this issue. Her message applies equally to men, and here's hoping that they will all read it.

Mrs. T. A. Cox, Ramseur, N. C., is distributing mission literature among the women of her Church and any one desiring literature for this mission period can receive it by addressing the Mission Secretary, Elon College, N. C.

The Seventh Day Adventists, with a membership of 120,000, are a remarkable people in their zeal for missions and for healing. In three years they have sent out over 500 missionaries and are conducting forty sanitariums.

Dr. W. M. Jay is still at the bedside of his aged mother. The doctors do not hold out any encouragement to him for her recovery. The prayers and sympathy of the brotherhood will be with Dr. Jay in this time of anxious care and heartache.

Dr. W. H. Boone, president of the Elon General Alumni Association, and George D. Colclough, secretary of the association, report the organization of two local alumni associations the past week with good membership in both cases—at Durham and at High Point.

Rev. A. R. Flowers, according to a private communication, has been doing special work among the young people of the Free Will Baptist Church in Georgia. Bro. Flowers is an adept in giving personal advice to young people in respect to their religious and life's problems.

Prof. L. L. Vaughan has an important announcement in this week's paper in regard to the business of the Woman's Board of the North Carolina Christian Conference. Mrs. Vaughan's many friends will earnestly pray that she may soon be fully restored to health and strength.

Mr. J. T. Cross, a layman of the Christian Church, Holland, Va., is deeply interested in the circulation of THE CHRISTIAN SUN. He has recently sent in a group of names who are good prospects for taking the paper. There is nothing that builds up the spiritual life of the home like the Church paper.

Interest in our Convention Forum continues to grow. This is as it should be. We hope that the membership of the Church and that the officers in charge of our various enterprises and the committees will express themselves fully and freely in the Forum, as well as individual members. Keep the good work up.

Special attention is called to the Elon Letter of this week. The facts that are given in that communication represent a large amount of work, and they are highly suggestive of a program of conservation for the denomination. We hope that every reader will give this matter thoughtful attention.—Managing Editor.

Mrs. E. L. Gray, Waverly, Va., is in the Lakeview Hospital, Suffolk, Va., having recently undergone an operation there. Mrs. Gray is one of our earnest and devoted Christian workers in the Waverly Church. She and her son, Mr. Garland Gray, will have the deep sympathy and prayers of their many friends for her speedy recovery.

Mr. J. Dolph Long, attorney, Graham, N. C., and an Elon alumnus, gave the third address in the Vocational Guidance Series before the Elon students on Friday of last week. Mr. Long's subject was "The Law and Its Opportunities as a Profession." He is the type of man that would dignify any profession. It was an inspiration to the students to hear him.

Dr. Atkinson writes that he is pleased with the institution in which he is recuperating "from cellar to garret." He speaks particularly of the religious atmosphere of the place, and says that the service is agreeable and efficient. He adds this encouraging word: "I am improving all the time. I am convinced that a loving Father guided me to this wonderful sanitarium."

The American Bible Society is doing a remarkable work in making the Bible available for the blind. A Bible in ink-print can be bought for less than a dollar, but the Bible for the blind costs over $80 and covers twenty-one volumes. The society, however, sells the complete set for $21—$1.00 a volume. It is able to do this by contributions from individuals and from the small profit it makes on the large volume of its sales of other Bibles.

The Elon Alumni of Atlanta, Ga., organized themselves into an Elon Alumni Association on Friday evening, the 23rd of March. They held their banquet in the Henry W. Grady Hotel, Atlanta, in the private dining-room. Charles E. Sumner was elected president; Lloyd P. Byrd, vice-president; Mrs. F. M. Dunaphant, secretary, and W. L. Monroe, treasurer. The executive committee consists of these four officers and W. S. Wicker and F. M. Dunaphant.

The cuts, with the descriptions accompanying them, which begin in THE CHRISTIAN SUN this week and will continue for nine weeks in all, have been supplied us by Dr. W. P. Minton, Foreign Mission Secretary, Dayton, Ohio. It is hoped, through these cuts and the accompanying articles, to create interest in foreign missions. We are thankful to Dr. Minton for his kind co-operation in sending them. Whenever you ask Bro. Minton for assistance, it comes.

The miserable habit of lynching shows a steady decrease in the United States, we gladly note. During the year 1927, forty-one States had no lynchings at all and there were only sixteen lynchings in the entire country. This means that there were fourteen less lynchings in 1927 than in 1926. This heathenish custom should disappear entirely from our nation's practice. We have laws and courts to administer justice. Mob violence is dangerous to democratic institutions.

Hanks Chapel Church, Chatham County, N. C., is engaged in the rebuilding program. This is one of the historic Churches of the Christian denomination. The chairman of the building committee is Bro. L. J. Riddle, and of the finance committee, Bro. Herbert C. Farrell. The address of both of them is Pittsboro, N. C., Route 1. Any person who is inclined to send a contribution for the remodeling of this grand old Church should address the one or the other of these brethren, enclosing check.

Dr. J. Edward Kirbye, Mr. H. A. Carlton and President Harper, of Elon College, and Dr. S. L. Beougher, of Bethlehem College, have gone to Atlanta to confer with the trustees of the Atlanta Seminary with reference to feasible plans of co-operation between the Christian and Congregational Churches in their educational work in the South. A full report will be given later in THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

Dr. Warren H. Denison, Secretary of the General Convention of the Christian Church and also Secretary of Stewardship, suggests that we should have a half-dozen demonstration Churches to specialize on stewardship and to show in a practical way what can be done where pastor and people will study and practice Christian stewardship. He desires that these should be volunteer Churches, and that some should be in cities, some in towns, and some in the open country. There should be at least three of these Churches in the Southern Convention. Let those who will volunteer address Dr. Denison direct, C. P. A. Building, Dayton, Ohio.

The Waverly Christian Church, Rev. F. C. Lester, pastor, has issued a very impressive statement of the "Benevolence Budget" as it applies to that Church for the year 1927-28. Bro. Lester concludes his statement by saying "that the amount expected is $3.20 per member and that the additional amount needed is $3.33 per member, which will make a total of $6.53 per member," and then he adds: "In 1926 the United Presbyterians gave $15.59 per member. Do the Presbyterians and seventeen other denominations love the Church, the Christ and the world more than we? They give more—much more." It seems that such faithful presentations as Bro. Lester is giving his people ought to help our benevolence program tremendously.

Let us call particular attention to the splendid mission literature available for the asking at this period, as follows: "Missionaries of the Christian Church," by Miss Victoria Adams; "Six Weeks with Foreign Missions"; "Songs in Japanese," "Autumn Leaves from a Missionary's Diary," by Martha R. Stacy; "Thanks for the New Home," by Mrs. Mary E. McKnight; "Where Your Money Goes"; "A Typical Busy Day on the Mission Field"; "From Miss Takashi"; Notes from a Porto Rico Diary," by Miss Olive G. Williams"; "Sharing"; "The Good News Institute"; "One Way of Salvation," and "Ministry for Christ in Porto Rico." Any who desire this literature may secure it by addressing the Mission Office, Elon College, N. C.

NOTICE.

The district missionary rallies of the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference will be held as follows:

- Waverly District—Richmond, April 3rd.
- Norfolk District—First Church, Norfolk, Va., April 4th.
- Franklin District—Antioch Christian Church, April 5th.
- Suffolk District—Berea (Nansemond), April 6th.

MRS. L. W. STAGG, Sec'y.

NOTICE.

The Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention of the Georgia and Alabama Conference will meet at Beulah Christian Church, Phoenix City, Ala., April 28-29, 1928.

W. M. CROWDER,
LaGrange, Ga. Secretary.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

ACCOUNT GIVING.

By REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Preacher.

"Give an account of thy stewardship.—
Luke 16:2.

It was one of Jesus' finest congregations to which He was speaking when He related the parable containing our text. In the beginning of the discourse we read: "Then drew near unto Him all the publicans and sinners for to hear Him." It is refreshing to find publicans and sinners drawing near Jesus to hear, rather than to accuse; for in the next sentence we read: "And the Pharisees and scribes murmured." His accusers were always near. In the finish of the discourse we read: "Then said He unto the disciples"; and again: "And the apostles said unto the Lord, Increase our faith." Hence, from these verses we see that it was a great group gathered about Him, and in the main in a friendly and docile one. Sinners, publicans, Pharisees, scribes, disciples or believers, and followers in general, and then the select group known as apostles.

Five classes of folks mingling together under the spell of five beautiful pictorizations of stewardship. It was as though for five successive times He pressed deeper into their thinking the principle of stewardship, and each time He made them see the Owner of all, for if we turn the coin of stewardship over we will see on the other side the stamp of ownership. Over and over again He kept saying to them: "God is Owner; you are stewards, and the day of account giving is coming."

In the parable of the lost sheep we see a good shepherd making good his trust and finding that sheep at all cost; next we see a woman stewardess over the gifts presented her, and making good under testings of her stewardship; and then the beautiful stewardship of the parent over his child, and the loving culmination of the same. He follows that parable with one showing forth the general principle of stewardship, and based specifically upon material things held in trust; and then, in conclusion, He cites an instance of miserable failure on the part of "a certain rich man which was clothed in purple and fine linen, and fared sumptuously every day." It is a bold but beautiful array of citations of how the principle of stewardship works which causes one to cry out with the apostles: "Lord, increase our faith."

Were there shepherds in His audience that day? Or those who followed the daily round of honest toil? They saw pictured before their eyes as only Jesus Himself could picture it what they in their own lives would like to be. An ideal was held before them which they could never forget. They would turn to their tasks on the morrow with the picture of a shepherd intrusted with sheep, and that shepherd being faithful to the task of herding those sheep to the very last one, and to all of that was added the beautiful reflection that there was rejoicing in heaven over that task faithfully performed and done. They would set about their daily toil, knowing that heaven was interested in every movement of it, and that they did not labor alone, nor in vain. O happy shepherds and followers of the daily rounds of toil, who heard the Saviour that day! No doubt, some of your lambs were lost after that, but sweet was the task of finding them. No doubt, some of your toil was bitter and long after that, but sweet was your consciousness of the abiding words of the Christ who spoke of faithfulness and subsequent rejoining. Indeed, daily toil is not separate from Christian living, and a man may find his fullest life in daily service, and repent of abusing the stewardship of honest labor.

The very task we have is a stewardship. A young fellow came into my study a few days ago, told me about his mother being sick with tuberculosis, about his brothers and sisters being in children's homes, and about the place he had to work, and the money he was earning with which he might help to bring a ray of sunshine into a poor stricken mother's heart. I gave him my hand and my friendship. I took him in my car and carried him to see his mother, where we had long conversation and earnest prayer that he might hold out faithful to the stewardship placed in his hands. Will he hold out faithful? His mother, knowing the tenderness of his years and the lack of proper training, was afraid he would not "stick to his job." She wanted him to. If he stays by his task and herds the sheep to the very last one, the angels in heaven will rejoice, indeed. The very tasks we have are stewardship—a treasury over which we will have to give account. The fireman, mail-carrier, policeman, street-sweeper, teacher, lawyer, physician, or preacher who loses his position by sloth, or misapplication, is committing a sin which will not only bring suffering upon himself, but also upon little children and make his name a disgrace among men who engage in honest toil.

Were there those in that audience who had been intrusted with the beautiful treasury of friendship? A friend is a valuable thing; and Jesus, speaking of the insignia of friendship being lost, pictures a woman searching for that piece of silver until it is found. Ten other pieces she has, but too many real friends she cannot have, and so she searches for the lost tenth one until she finds it. It must have been that there were those in that day who, like some in this, could treat lightly the treasury of a true friendship. If so, they had held up before them in unforgettable terms what they would like in the matter of holding their friends to be. An ideal was set before them which would send them on paths of repentance and confession, and bring to their bosoms long lost friends. This parable must have hit home, for we hear Jesus saying in the very close of this day's teaching: "If he trespass against thee seven times in a day, and seven times in a day turn again to thee, saying, I repent; thou shalt forgive him."

Where are our friends? What do they say about us today? How many of them have we bruised and hurt and lost? Can we not hear the Christ saying to us: "Give an account of thy stewardship?" Many of us may wish Jesus had said: "Give an account of his or her stewardship," for it may suit the bent of our poor, sinful souls to render the account of his or her doings rather than our own. How easy it is to say: "Oh, I'm all right. I treated him all right. He mistreated me." And just when we think we are full of our own rightness, and have so much goodness toward others that we have to tear down our barns and build larger moral bins, we hear the Lord say, "Thou fool! knowest thou not that this night thy soul shall be required of thee?" Oh! may we be faithful stewards of our friendships, knowing that in this, too, there is joy in the presence of the angels in heaven.

In his group of hearers that day, all were intrusted with the stewardship of family life; many of them with the stewardship of parenthood; and all of them stewards of their places in the family circle. A son finds himself far from home, alone, poor, and outcast, so far as his companions were concerned. In such a plight, he is called upon to give an account of his stewardship of the love and parental devotion over which he was a steward. Had he improved and appreciated it, or had he allowed it to suffer loss? Many a son in among his hearers saw his own picture, and eagerly followed the course of the story. Then there was the father in the story. He had improved the love which he bore his son, and now it has been fanned to white-heat. He had shapherded every resource of his soul in pouring out his love for his son. The picture is an engaging one, and how the fathers who had given themselves to things of the material world rather than to love for their children must have seen themselves anew under the light of it.

But the son comes to himself, and makes a good account of his stewardship of love by returning to his father's house penitent, and ready to serve him in order that he may remain in the circle of his loving care. There is great rejoicing in that home, and in heaven besides, for is not a good and true home a very annex to heaven itself? Can we render today a good account as sons and daughters, and fathers and mothers? O mother, give an account of thy stewardship. O father, give an account of thy stewardship. O son, and daughter, give an account of thy stewardship. O husband, wife, brother, or sister, give an account of thy stewardship. God is the Owner of the treasures of love which He has placed in your hands. What is becoming of them? At least it is hoped that we may take the parable and carry it away with us, seeing the ideals up to which we may strive.

Another parable was offered to show the principle as has been said of stewardship, and of ownership. The steward in this parable was intrusted with material things. And so are we, that we know full well—and how miserably poor is our account we oftentimes are able to make of that stewardship! But think of the higher things, too, with which we are intrusted. For instance, the gospel. Ah! preachers, teachers, Christians, all: give an account of thy stewardship. Or take again, the Church—the very body of Christ upon earth. How often we have pressed thorns upon its brow by our man-made notions and humanly concocted theories! How its truths and treasures have been hidden by our whims and fancies, and its very progress and on-going been blasted by our sheer indifference or antagonism. Will the kind of religion we are living and the Church we are planting in our community be worth passing on to the next generation?

When we see a Church building, do we think of Jesus, a lowly Nazarene; or do we think of Methodism, or Presbyterianism, or suppers, or bazaars, or half-hearted attempts on the part of folks to profess one thing and live another? When we see a Church building, do we think of Jesus and a long, unending line of followers, living like Him, and sacrificing like Him, and talking like Him? Oh! custodians of the heavenly things on earth, give an account of thy stewardship, and may God grant that that account may be rich and full of the triumphs of the cross! May we who gather here today be finer, and nobler by far than the one who was "clothed in purple and fine linen," and may our works of love and obedience cause our Christ to see of the travail of His soul in our day and be satisfied.

NOTICE.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Leonard Davis, of Norfolk, Va., will be at Antioch Christian Church, Isle of Wight County, Sunday A. M. April 1st. Mrs. Davis will speak on "Missions." Mr. J. M. Darden, of Suffolk, Va., will speak on "Missions" at Isle of Wight Christian Church Sunday afternoon, April 1st.

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, Elon College, N. C.

Contributing Editors

W. W. STALEY

W. A. HARPER

R. C. HELFENSTEIN S. C. HARRELL

PRINCIPLES OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

- (1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
- (2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
- (3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of Church membership.
- (5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

THE RICHMOND CONVENTION.

The twenty-eighth regular session of the Southern Christian Convention will meet in the First Christian Church, Richmond, Va., on Tuesday, May 1st, of this good year 1928. The 32,472 members of the Churches are entitled to 162 delegates—one delegate for every 200 members. The seven Conferences have all elected their delegates, and it is important for all who have been elected to attend. In case any delegate-elect has died, the Executive Committee can select some one to fill the vacancy. It is very important to have a full representation at the Convention for the whole time. Presidents of Conferences can render a valuable service to the Convention and the Conferences by giving personal attention to this matter of attendance. A Convention is not a Convention unless the people are there.

This will be one of the most important session of the Convention ever held. Questions of finance, union, missions, education, publications, and budget will not only claim the attention of the Convention, but require superior wisdom to solve these problems; and they are vital to the life and usefulness of the Church in the years to come. Human wisdom alone cannot solve kingdom questions; but God can furnish that wisdom in answer to prayer. It is important for all the pastors and their Churches to pray earnestly for divine guidance as they approach this session and these questions. Kingdom motives must be in the heart of the Convention, and then the Holy Spirit will inspire the mind of delegates to act in harmony with the divine purpose. There has never been a time when God's help was so much needed in the Convention; and there never was a time when the Church had such opportunity for doing good. Hard problems develop great workers, and great workers are needed in this age of progress.

The committees that have charge of different subjects carry great responsibility, and should get busy in the preparation of their reports. These subjects all require thorough study, careful decision, and condensed expression. This Convention will have little time for the making of speeches; condensation, concrete expression, will be required to finish the work in the allotted time of the session. President L. E. Smith and his executive committee not only have a heavy burden to carry in the making of the program, but a great opportunity for serving the cause of Christianity through the Convention. To solve the question of finance alone is more than mathematics. It is a question of faith, of courage, of liberality, and co-operation. Many of the great characters of history died in the fight or before the purpose was accomplished. The cause of Christianity was very small when Jesus was crucified; but it is today the largest enterprise in the world. We should keep in mind that we are not working for our day alone, but for eternity. All that is holiest and best should be put into the Church, and the only way to get the whole membership of the Church in touch with one another is through the Convention.

The improved Richmond Church will open its doors wide, and Dr. C. C. Ryan, pastor, and his congregation will open the door of their hearts wider to welcome and receive all who attend; and all delegates and visitors should notify Dr. Ryan of their coming, so that ample provision can be made for their entertainment. Company without notice is often a burden. Harvests are not reaped without seeding and cultivation, and there can be no great Convention without adequate preparation.

THE DYNAMIC OF MISSIONS.

There is something inherently wrong with the Church in America, that it gives such niggardly support to the missionary enterprise. There is something radically wrong, inherently wrong, with the individual Christian whose support of missions is niggardly.

This wrong will not be found in the lack of information, nor will it be remedied by information. A knowledge of conditions in the mission lands is desirable, but it should be in the form of adding fuel to a flame already brightly burning. It will not serve the purpose of kindling the missionary fire.

We must look deep down into the heart and the experience and the appreciation of the Church and of the individual Christian in order to explain the situation in which we find ourselves today with reference to the missionary program. It lacks dynamic.

What is the dynamic for the missionary enterprise? It is the proper evaluation and appreciation of God and of man and of their inter-relationships entering into the making of a program for the individual and for the institutions that minister to his or her life.

Who is God? He is the Spiritual Father of every man and woman and child in the world. He is more than this. He is the loving, forgiving, sacrificing Spiritual Father of every man, woman and child in the world. And He loves one and all with the same passionate devotion; nor does His affection waiver in its intensity or in its redemptive purpose at any time.

Who is man? He is the child of God—this loving, forgiving, sacrificing Spiritual Father of whom we have just spoken. And since he is the child of this Spiritual Creator, he is brother to every man, woman and child in the world and under obligations so to live and to order his life that he may meet the duties devolving upon him as the child of his Spiritual Father and as the brother of all of the human beings. He cannot be content or satisfied with being any other kind of man than his spiritual heritage suggests as proper for him.

Herein lies the dynamic of Christian missions and of every other Christian enterprise undertaken in the name and for the sake of Jesus. When we bring Christian men and women to the point where they appreciate all that God is and all that He expects man to be, there will be no question as to the success of the missionary cause. The coffers of the Church will be filled with money and a spirit of optimism and progress will possess the Church, and every heart will rejoice when the spiritual dynamic inherent in God's nature and man's relationships has taken possession of the men and women who call themselves Christian.

What we need is love for God and love for brother-man, appreciation for God and appreciation for brother-man, a spirit of sacrifice for God and a spirit of sacrifice for brother-man commensurate with the obligations devolving upon Christians in terms of their divine origin and destiny. When we have this we will have success in the enterprises of the kingdom, and lacking this we shall continue to make poor and paltry response to the urgent claims of the kingdom.

We have not given ourselves to the Lord. We have not accepted the obligations of our brotherhood for all men, and so we lack dynamic for our Christian life. And so, too, missions and the other enterprises of the kingdom languish rather than flourish.

There is money enough in the hands of the members of the Christian Church to put every enterprise of the Church on a solid basis and to bring rejoicing to those responsible officially for the success of these enterprises. We have money for other things, and do not fail to indulge ourselves in the comforts and conveniences and sometimes the luxuries of life. For these things, we have the dynamic of self-interest and personal happiness and ease, but we lack the dynamic of love and the appreciation based on love for God and for His kingdom and for brother-man when it comes to responding properly to the support of Christian causes.

Is this indictment too severe? Let every man and woman and child who reads this editorial search his or her own heart and experience for the answer.

W. A. H.

A REFRESHING BOOK.

In these days of theological speculation on the one hand and dogmatic declarations on the other hand, it is refreshing to listen to "Christ at the Round-Table," as interpreted by E. Stanley Jones, author of the recent volume bearing that title.

Humanity wants an authority for what it believes about God and the nature and destiny of the soul, and that authority must be something more than the pronouncements of theologians or the ipse dixit of any school of thought.

Dr. Jones, in "Christ at the Round-Table," makes Christ reveal Himself as the authority for the religion which He taught and which He was. For him, Jesus is more than a Teacher of religion. He is the one authoritative Teacher of religion. For him, Christianity is more than "a religion"; it is the one true religion. To him, "Jesus is Religion." To him, "the whole endeavor of moral and spiritual progress is to get men from a religion to the religion; in other words, to bring men to Christ. Jesus is God's final unfolding."

For those who have been trying to think their way through to an understanding of Christ's relation to God and to man, and from this understanding to work out a satisfying theory for the authority of their faith, Dr. Jones' new book will offer a rare inspiration.

ROY C. HELFENSTEIN.

OUR CONVENTION FORUM

President Beougher writes:

I have read with interest the things proposed for consideration by the coming Convention in THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and do not know that I can add anything to them; but I want to, if possible, give some of them greater emphasis.

1. Endowment for our colleges. If steps are taken to raise $1,000,000 for Elon College endowment, steps should also be taken to raise $250,000 endowment for Bethlehem College. By request, Bethlehem College turned over to Elon College the $100,000 in bonds voted by the Convention, leaving Bethlehem nothing but the $12,500 note given by the Convention as endowment; but this, as was said, aided materially in getting Elon into the Southern Association of Colleges. We were glad to help Elon in this way, but the time has come when something must be done for Bethlehem.

I was certainly pleased with the suggestion made by Prof. M. W. Hook that "Bethlehem College should be aided in every way possible in becoming fully accredited and established on a firm financial basis"; but I looked in vain for some little mention of Bethlehem College among other suggestions made by founders and locaters of Bethlehem College. Why? Was it a mistake to found and locate the college at Wadley? Has the school served its usefulness? Has all interest centered in Elon College? Do our leaders now see that Elon College is all the Convention needs or is able to support, that nothing is said in our public meetings and in THE CHRISTIAN SUN for or against Bethlehem? If the Convention thinks that our plant at Elon College can meet the educational needs of our people of this Southland, and that Bethlehem College should close, I am one that will vote with the Convention, and yet none have put more into the institution than we have.

2. Christian union. The publications, colleges and missions of the Convention should all head-up in the General Convention of the Church, sustaining the same relation and polity as all the other regional Conventions. If not, why not? First, unity among ourselves. The Convention must take some forward action regarding union with the Congregational Church, and then educational institutions, or remain silent forever on the great question of denominational union. We should begin to put into practice what we preach, or our preaching will become vain and we will be left to ourselves, while the great movement of Christian union will pass us up and leave us behind looking foolish.

3. Financial system. The whole financial system of the Convention should be readjusted so that it would be impossible for any department of Convention interest to receive over-emphasis or more financial support than its service rendered to the general cause of humanity through the Church, regardless of designated gifts. In other words, the time has come when the Convention should break up the traditional policy that loyalty to the Church consists in giving all support to one enterprise of the Church, while all others suffer. The Convention should establish one general treasury in which to deposit all money collected by the whole Convention for the various departments of Convention work and then distribute on the percentage basis. More favorable plans for one department than another, and designated gifts are responsible for some of our work receiving support out of proportion to all the other work, while some suffers desperately. For example, Bethlehem College was put in the annual benevolent budget for $10,000 last year and Elon for $37,500. Elon and the whole Church rejoiced, including Bethlehem, that she was able to raise her whole quota, but how many in the entire Convention have been pained and sick at heart because Bethlehem only received out of the whole offering last year less than $225; that her teacher's salaries of last year are not more than half paid and that current expenses are still unpaid, and that up to date we have received less than $225 from college offering this year and only a small amount has been paid on teachers' salaries. Again I quote from Prof. M. W. Hook, first president of Bethlehem College, a man who has the courage and interest to speak for the institution: "I am particularly anxious that Bethlehem College shall come in for her due share of consideration." But Bethlehem College cannot wait for new plans made by the Convention, which may become effective a year hence—she must have at least $10,000 by the time the Convention meets.

The Orphanage has the best appeal of any of the Convention departments, and she will go to the Convention with a clean slate, having raised her full quota and some besides; but how about our missions department? She will come up at the time of the Convention deeply in debt, depressed and discouraged, all because our people have not had their consciences quickened and their intellects educated to give to the cause of Christ as a whole and have it percentaged to the departments allowing them to stand or fall together as a whole, I cannot see that one department has any more reason for living than another, or living any better than another. Our religious education department is living at a dying rate this year, and last year closed up altogether for the same reason. If one department is worthy of our support all are likewise worthy. Until our people can manifest a universal interest in the affairs of the Church through their giving, the Convention must take some steps to protect all the work of the kingdom of Christ on earth.

4. Institutional debt contracting. I notice that Dr. D. A. Long writes that "the Convention should devise ways and means to pay its debts," and that "the Convention should take away from all its institutions the self-destroying power of contracting debts." I understand that the Convention has no money to pay these debts, and any plans that may be devised will throw the work of raising the funds on the institution that has contracted the debt, and that debts that are wisely contracted are not self-destroying, but if I remember right we already have a ruling to that effect. I feel quite sure that the colleges are willing to have a ruling like that and will abide by the same if all departments abide by it and would be willing unless something unforeseen came up to have our outlay circumscribed. This might do the Mission Board some good also, as it does not seem wise to make such large appropriations to a few Churches when it might be giving to many Churches, and by giving them a few thousand dollars, limiting the appropriation to any one Church to not more than $15,000. This would start the work in Birmingham, Ala.; Alexander City, Ala.; Atlanta, Ga., and Montgomery, Ala. This has thrown the Mission Board badly in debt, as well as the colleges, undertaking too much on the faith of our people being willing to finance our worthy projects.

I am hoping and praying that the Convention will be a record-making time for all our enterprises.

Wadley, Ala.

S. L. BEOUGHIER.

Bro. Carpenter makes a motion:

I have said for some time that the biggest obstacle in the way of Christian unity is the preachers. I believe further that the greatest force for Christian unity is coming from the ranks of the laymen in spite of the indifference of the preachers. They believe in using a little business sense in matters of religion—doing as much for the kingdom as possible with as little possible waste. Most of us preachers are too idealistic. Things must go according to our notion, if it is wasteful. We forget that the Lord taught economy as well as ideals.

Six persons in last week's SUN—three laymen and three preachers—were giving their opinions as to the most important questions to be considered at the Richmond Convention. Every layman mentioned the question of uniting with the Congregationalists as one of the most important questions. Only one of the preachers considered this as a question worthy of consideration by the Convention. This does not show that they are opposed to it, but it does show that they do not consider it a most important question. This is the condition I find generally among our preachers. Not long ago a very powerful preacher, who holds a position of high honor in our Church, told me concerning this question that he could not see any particular benefit from it.

I believe that THE SUN should be merged with the Herald of Gospel Liberty, or some Congregationalist paper in the same territory, and stop this deficit every year and realize a profit instead. There are those who think that the Southern Convention would not receive as much recognition in the merger as they would probably want. I love THE SUN as dearly as any one. The merger will combine the editorial staffs of two great papers, and it does not take a philosopher to see the benefits derived therefrom. The other merger will combine the forces of two great denominations, and the benefits are easily seen. Consolidation is a great thing for schools, publications, Churches and every thing else that has tried it. I believe the idea should be uppermost in all matters coming before the Convention.

Let's get behind this union movement and quit preaching one thing and practicing another. Too many regard it as a thing to be talked about—an ideal visualized. But nothing but selfishness may keep it from being realized. If the preachers want it we may have it; otherwise, the laymen may not find it so easy. Instead of staying with the Church and trying to remedy defects that were harmful, preachers of former times followed the policy of withdrawing and persuading some of the flock to follow and start a Church of their own. This has been divisive, wasteful, and has bred selfishness and prejudice that has kept millions out of the kingdom. The people are so fed up on this until the Church of God is having a hard time recruiting herself. This thing has cost the Church millions of dollars and the kingdom millions of souls. God pity us!

If we lie still, as usual, the Convention will come and go and we will be no nearer Christian union than before.

I move that THE SUN be merged, if possible, with the official organ of the Congregationalists of this territory, and that we ask for a general convention, composed of delegates from every Conference of each denomination, and vote on the matter of union; and, if carried, reorganize and go forward. If I can get a second, the president will put the question. If the president puts the question, it will carry. If I don't get a second, the motion will be lost. We are waiting for a second. Who will second the motion?

Ambrose, Ga.

W. C. CARPENTER.

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

A little study of what the Churches of the Southern Christian Convention did in 1926-1927 may inspire the members to undertake more. It is said that "figures do not lie," and what is here said is in figures. The figures here given may not represent the whole truth, but they represent the truth so far as reported in 1927.

There are seven Conferences in the Southern Christian Convention, and all of them reported to their Conferences, at the last sessions, a few more members than the year 1926. The following table represents, in totals, what was reported in 1927:

	Members.	Total Paid.
Alabama Conference	2,624	$ 9,929.07
Georgia and Alabama Conference	2,162	15,370.00
North Carolina & Va. Conference	6,287	56,260.25
Western North Carolina Con....	3,715	27,374.23
Eastern North Carolina Con....	4,945	35,311.51
Eastern Virginia Conference....	11,174	263,774.00
Valley Virginia Conference....	1,565	11,249.80
Totals	32,472	$419,268.86

A division of the total sum of money paid by the total number of members reported shows the sum of $16 paid per member during that Conference year. The presumption is that money was raised by separate organizations and individuals not included in the reports sent up to Conference; but this is the sums as reported. The total paid for benevolences was $68,007.28, and the sum for pastors' salaries was $72,697.50. So far as I could figure out, about 109 ministers were serving Churches for whole or part time. To divide the total sum paid by the number of ministers in pulpits gives approximately $700 as the salary for each pastor. Many conditions enter into this matter of salaries. When reduced to the question of the average sum paid per Church member on salaries, it is about $2.25 a year. This shows that salaries are only a small part of what Church members pay. If the total paid per member is $16 for the year and the sum paid on salary is $2.25, it appears that salaries are only a little more than one-seventh of the total expense of the Church. In other words, Churches pay more for other purposes than they are accustomed to think. Many Churches wonder how they can pay their pastors; but a little consideration shows that it is only a small part of their expense. A clear analysis of Church expenses might suggest the ease with which ministers' salaries might be increased to the advantage of their ministry and no real burden on the Church. Churches might pay more on salary and demand more service on the part of the pastor. It is too true that many in the pulpit are preachers only, and not pastors. This age needs real preaching and pastoral service. The people need the gospel as never before. When people were illiterate, a very simple sermon did the work; but in this age of education a sermon must present Christ in a way that shows Him as superior to all else. Pastoral visits must contain more of His spirit than when social and moral conditions were low. There never was a time when it required so much hard work to do the work of a pastor. He must be more, do more, and ought to be paid more. Christianity was established by the preachers. It must be maintained by ministers and the future will go forward or backward as they go backward or forward. Pay them more, that they may be able to buy more books, and then require them to study and to work more.

W. W. STALEY.

ELON LETTER.

I have made a comparative study of the home mission situation of the Christian Church, based on the "Annuals" of 1893 and of 1928, covering a period, therefore, of thirty-five years.

According to the "Annual" of 1893, there were in the Southern Christian Convention 151 Churches, with 14,991 members and with Church property valued at $145,563. At that time there were Churches in cities and towns as follows: In Virginia—Dendron, Berkley, Franklin, Holland, Suffolk, Waverly and Windsor; in North Carolina—Burlington, Graham, High Point (died and another Church erected in its place in the same city later), Randleman, Morrisville, Raleigh, Durham, Lexington, and Staley's; a total of sixteen in all.

According to the "Annual" of 1928, there are in the Southern Christian Convention 234 Churches, with 31,672 members, holding property valued at $2,648,226. At this time we have Churches in cities and towns as follows: In the Valley of Virginia—Leaksville, Winchester; in Georgia and Alabama—Roanoke, Wadley, Columbus, LaGrange, Lanett, Richland; in Eastern Virginia—Norfolk (South Norfolk, First Church, Christian Temple, Old Zion), Portsmouth (Washington Street and Elm Avenue), Richmond, Holland, Franklin, Newport News, Ocean View, Suffolk, Wakefield, Waverly and Windsor; in North Carolina—Danville (Va.), Durham, Elon College, Greensboro (First Church and Palm Street), Haw River, Reidsville, Virgilina (Va.), Burlington, Graham (Graham and Providence Memorial), High Point, Ramseur, Randleman, Seagrove, Liberty, Raleigh (United Church and Caroleigh), Cary, Chapel Hill, Clayton, Franklinton, Henderson, Morrisville, Sanford and Youngsville; a total of forty-nine in all.

During the thirty-five years, therefore, there has been a net gain in members of 16,681, or 111 per cent; in property, $2,502,663, or 1,720 per cent; and in Churches, 83, representing a gain of 55 per cent.

During this same period, there has been losses in a number of the Churches, totaling twenty-six, as follows: In Virginia, 3—Bethany, Providence and Norfolk Mission (later becoming the Memorial Temple and merger with the Christian Temple); in Georgia and Alabama, 2—Union Chapel and Union Grove; and in North Carolina, 21—Egypt, Goshen Chapel, Lexington, Mt. Vernon, Palmyra, Spilena, Sage Garden, Walnut Grove, Winder, Spoon's Chapel, Brown's Chapel, Macedonia, Mt. Union, Christian Union, New Bear Creek, Staley's, Clover Orchard, Bethany, Center Grove, Keyser (Addor), and Pleasant Grove (J). It is worthy of note that only one of these Churches was in a city, that in Lexington; and only two of them were in towns, Staley's and Keyser (Addor). It is also worthy of note that these Churches did not contribute according to the records of the "Annual" to the general enterprises of the denomination in any manner commensurate with their members. The "Annual" shows that they paid their pastors indifferently and gave mere pittance to the Conferences of which they happened to be members. If these twenty-six Churches had remained alive and had shown an increase that corresponds to our other Churches, we would have had 260 Churches, where we now have 234. Our membership would have been about 36,000, and our property values invested in Churches would have totaled about three million.

Two lessons are to be drawn from this situation. It pays to plant Churches in centers of population, and Churches will die unless they become benevolent and generous in their support of the general enterprises of the Church. The members of our Churches may not like to be thus lectured on financial matters, but this is not a lecture. It is a citation of facts, and there is no arguing against a fact. If our Churches that are now living a half dead and half alive existence will profit by the experience of these dead Churches, they may expect to grow and to thrive in the years to come; otherwise, they may expect to pass out. It is sad, but it is so.

The largest internal gain has been shown in the Eastern Virginia Conference. In membership, this Conference shows a net gain of 6,651, or 145 per cent; in Churches, a gain of 15, or 47 per cent, and in property values, a net gain of $1,621,188, or 2,400 per cent. And this Conference has been more liberal than any other in its support of the general enterprises of the Church. The remarkable growth in the Virginia Valley Conference is due to the support of a missionary in that Conference and the building of the Winchester Church there largely through the influence of the Eastern Virginia Conference. Evidently, it pays to give if the record of the Eastern Virginia Conference is any criterion to go by.

There is one other factor that must be considered in this connection, and that is the contribution which has been made in the organization of new Churches by those who are trained at Elon College, excluding the Valley Virginia Conference Churches (except that of Winchester) which were organized by Dr. W. T. Herndon as missionary, and those of the Georgia and Alabama Conferences in which Rev. H. W. Elder has done such signal work as missionary and organizer. We find in a great majority of the other new Churches that they have been organized by those who were trained at Elon, and even in the Valley Virginia Conference the solidifying of the work of Dr. Herndon, and the founding of the strongest Church in the Conference are the achievements of Elon graduates working in that Conference. The influence of the college in Georgia and Alabama has been relatively weak because it is so far removed; but even there, one of the strong city Churches was founded by an Elon graduate in the person of Dr. Lankford, and Bethlehem College there had as its first president an Elon alumnus.

Coming now to the Eastern Virginia Conference and the North Carolina Conference, we find that Elon-trained men have been responsible for the founding or signal development, or both, of the following strong and growing Churches: Christian Temple, Dr. L. E. Smith; Elm Avenue, Portsmouth, Dr. W. D. Harward, First Church, Portsmouth, Dr. J. W. Harrell; Richmond, Dr. W. T. Walters; Hobson, Dr. I. W. Johnson; Newport News, Drs. N. G. Newman and W. C. Wicker; Oak Grove, Rev. J. M. Roberts; Ocean View, Rev. O. D. Poythress; Rosemont, Dr. G. O. Lankford and Rev. J. F. Morgan; South Norfolk, Revs. Herbert Scholz and O. D. Poythress; Wakefield, Rev. H. E. Rountree. In the North Carolina Conferences: Berea, Rev. L. I. Cox; Greensboro, First Church, Rev. L. I. Cox, and Greensboro, Palm Street, Dr. L. F. Johnson; Liberty (Va.), Rev. C. E. Newman; Monticello, Rev. L. I. Cox; New Lebanon, Rev. L. I. Cox; Reidsville, Rev. L. I. Cox; Bennett, Rev. T. J. Green; Biscoe, Rev. W. C. aMrtin; Glendon, Rev. J. Lee Johnson; Ramseur, Rev. L. I. Cox; Franklinton, Rev. B. F. Black, and Henderson, Rev. C. E. Newman—a total of twenty-four out of thirty-five Churches founded.

It is hoped that the membership of the Church will read and ponder well these facts and pray earnestly that our Churches and individual members may come to such a sense of their privilege and opportunity in Christian service as to induce the membership of every one of our Churches to profit by the experience of the past thirty-five years. It is also hoped that our people will come to appreciate our college in its preparation of home missionaries, as well as of foreign missionaries, pastors and lay workers in our Churches generally.

W. A. HARPER.

FRANKLIN, VA.

Even though the sun has been shining brightly and our work has been going forward rapidly since our arrival last October, we have been self-fish enough or else so modest that we have just let its rays encircle our own little community and said nothing of our progress to those outside the reach of the Franklin Christian Church. We have tried to "let our works so shine that we would not have to say very much about them, but now comes the repeated request that we send our sun-rays from Franklin into every home in which THE CHRISTIAN SUN is a guest.

Instead of beginning our sun-rays with a general letter, we are giving a brief report of the second quarterly conference of the Church for this year, as it appeared in the Church bulletin for Sunday, March 11th. The Church work has recently been organized into ten different departments with an individual at the head of each through whom all matters relative to that specific department are handled and reported.

The Quarterly Conference.

"Seeth, thou, a man diligent in business; he shall stand before kings" (Prov. 22:29)—were the words of Scripture with which the second quarterly conference of the Church was opened on Wednesday evening. In all that was said and done, there seemed to be diligence in going about "our Father's business."

Our director of religious education reported increased interest among the teachers of the Sunday School and that a number of them were finishing a course, supervised teaching and planned worship programs were put in effect.

Our department of missions reported 55 members in the Woman's Missionary Society, 30 young people, and 28 Willing Workers, with a total amount contributed through these organizations to missions during the past quarter of $132.95 over against a total amount of $58.36 last quarter.

Our department of music reported well attended choir practices, the ordering of 100 new song books for the Sunday School, and a special program of sacred music rendered Sunday evening, March 4th to an audience of about 400.

The department of finance and stewardship reported two sermons of stewardship, thirty individuals participating in a stewardship class, and the enrollment of thirty-seven tithers during the quarter. Over $1,200 raised for the building fund and about $700 for missions and Christian education.

The department of home visitation reported ten members at work, having visited 130 homes during the quarter and 175 pastoral visits.

Department of spiritual life and worship reported four family altars and no homes without a Bible.

Department of publication reported sixty subscribers to religious publications, and a campaign launched by the Woman's Missionary Society to secure new subscriptions to THE CHRISTIAN SUN. The pastor was appointed to write a weekly letter to THE SUN, in which the work of the Franklin Church would be published.

The department of membership reported 247 active, 30 non-resident, and 6 new members.

The department of social life reported nine socials and two pageants.

The department of evangelism, consisting of twenty committeemen, has mapped the town in sections, and each individual is on the look-out for opportunities to do personal evangelistic work.

Church attendance for January averaged 119.

Church attendance for February averaged 128, over against 88 for February last year. The loose plate offerings are three times greater than they were a year ago, it was reported. "We are growing; let's keep on."

JOSEPH W. FIX, Pastor.

TRAVEL IN FLORIDA.

By REV. R. A. WHITTEN.

After leaving Daytona Beach, we drove down the coast toward Miami. Not far south of Indian River City we traveled for some distance along the famous Indian River. At one point we turned into a private road for fifteen miles, following a course along the banks of this river. The scenes are much better imagined than described. Traveling southward, on the left is the beautiful river. Near the banks along the shore could be seen ducks in large numbers. Some were regular dark-colored ones and some white; pelicans, storks and other water fowls. The government prohibits shooting any of these birds.

As one drives along the banks of the river on this road in the shade of the beautiful trees, which are covered by the lovely moss so plentiful in this section, contrasting with the green leaves, while the morning sun sends forth its beams upon the bosom of the quiet waters and casts its rays here and there through the branches of the trees, one gets a glimpse of nature at her best.

Now and then fish can be seen flirting up out of the stream as if full of life and aware of the beauty of its happy surroundings. We were told that a great many fish inhabit this river, and that one would be allowed the privilege of trying to tempt the appetite of the finnish tribe. We have no fish tale here to relate, however.

On our right were orange groves, grape-fruit groves and other tropical fruits growing and ripening in a most profuse manner. It is in this section along the Indian River that the finest flavored and choicest oranges and grape-fruit in the world are grown. The fame of the Indian River fruit is too well known for me to even mention, but after having the opportunity to sample it right from the orchard we can but speak of its delicious flavor. Along this stretch of road, through the little towns of Cocoa and Rockledge, can be seen many beautiful missions among the large groves.

At Palm Beach we rested for the night. Early next morning we drove across the bay. Entering Royal Palmway, one becomes infatuated with the marvelous display of nature's beauty. On either side of this wide thoroughfare and in the center are large, massive palms, the prettiest we've ever seen, while beneath them are the most beautiful and fragrant flowers—varieties too numerous to mention—all uniting in a grand array to present the most gorgeous spectacle to the eye as one drives on toward the beach, where the waves of the great Atlantic flash like diamonds before a mornning sun.

The palatial homes, fine and expensive Church buildings, together with the most modern hotels with Venetian gardens, all combine to make Palm Beach what is said to be one of the most beautiful and lovely spots of the earth.

Miami has been built with great expectations. She stretches herself along the coast for forty miles. The most beautiful part of this city is that development known as Coral Gables. Millions of dollars have been invested in the erection of splendid business buildings and excellent homes of the more expensive type. Coral Gables is known as the beauty spot of Miami.

We spent about one week in Miami, and enjoyed all the thrills of a surf-bath daily. We found the weather extremely warm for a Tarheel and decided to embark for cooler quarters.

ABOUT RICHMOND.

It was my happy privilege to be with Dr. C. C. Ryan and his good people of the First Christian Church, Richmond, Va., in a series of evangelistic meetings from March 12th to 23rd. It was my first visit to our Richmond Church, and I am simply delighted with the work and the prospects of our Church there. We have a beautiful plant; the Sunday School equipment is among the best to be found anywhere, and both the Richmond school and Church are enjoying a healthy growth and are surely becoming a mighty force for righteousness in the capital city of old Virginia.

Dr. Ryan is doing a most commendable work as the pastor and leader of our Richmond Church, in which he is most ably assisted and greatly inspired by his devoted companion, Mrs. Ryan. My home, during my stay in Richmond, was with Dr. and Mrs. Ryan. I was never treated more kindly in any home. Both were simply lovely to me, treating me at all times better than I deserved.

The members and friends of the Church were also very kind and lovely to me, and even though the sermons were poor and uninteresting, they were appreciated. I am sincerely grateful for all this kindness. I have been greatly blessed personally by my stay with these good people, and can only hope that my sojourn with them may do them good.

J. F. MORGAN.

Norfolk, Va., Route 3.

COMING EVENTS.

March 20-29.—Series of Church and Sunday School Institutes in the North Carolina and Virginia Christian Conference.

April 28-29.—Children's Division Institutes, Henderson, N. C., for the Churches of Vance, Warren and Franklin Counties, Eastern North Carolina Conference.

May 31-June 1.—Valley of Virginia Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention, Mt. Olivet (G), Mr. R. A. Larrick, Winchester, Va., president.

June 12-13.—Western North Carolina Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention; place undecided; Mr. C. A. Walker, Burlington, N. C., president.

June 21-22.—North Carolina and Virginia Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention, Durham, N. C., Mr. W. B. Truitt, Greensboro, N. C., president.

June 23-30.—Young People's Summer School, Elon College, N. C.

July 1-7.—Bethlehem Summer School of Christian Education, Wadley, Ala.

July 10-11.—Eastern North Carolina Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention, Catawba Springs, Prof. L. L. Vaughan, Raleigh, N. C., president.

July 17-18.—Eastern Virginia Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention.

PATTIE COGHILL.

EASTER PAGEANTS.

The Rock—By Mary P. Hamlin. An Easter play in three acts, for Churches with plenty of ability to put on good plays and pageants; about two hours long. Price50 cents
The Call to Service—By Marshall N. Gould. Adapted for use of small or large groups; especially good for young people. Price12 cents
Life Victorious—By Margaret Slattery. Beautiful worship service with an Easter dialogue for ten girls. Price10 cents
Why Didn't You Tell?—By Anita B. Ferris. Fine for children. Price15 cents
Pattie Coghill

Literature Superintendent, N. C. Woman's Board.

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Field Secretary.

DO WE CARE?

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE.

One of the essential qualities of a genuine Christian life is a concern for others. It is quite possible for a man to be a Church member or even a nominal Christian and yet have little if any concern for others, and especially for those who are outside the small circle in which he moves. But one never can become a genuine Christian in the finest sense unless he develops and expresses a concern for others. This concern for others lies at the heart of the gospel. It was central in Jesus' teachings, it was the dominant motive of His ministry and His life, it is the explanation of His death. Jesus has such a real and deep compassion for or concern for others that He was willing to give Himself to save others. If being a Christian means the reproduction of the character and the expression of the spirit of Jesus, then we can never become Christian in the fullest sense unless we have a concern for others and unless we have so deep a concern that we want to do something about it.

Now, missions is simply the organized concern of the Church of Christ for others. It is a concern of individuals expressing itself through the Church for others. And it is so deep and vital that it disregards space, overleaps racial and religious barriers and prejudices, sees the worth in all men, and sacrificially gives itself in a magnificent effort to share with others the riches of Christ—all because it cares. The man who does not believe in missions reveals his inadequate conception of Christ's purpose and passion, and also reveals the poverty of his own soul.

One of the most important factors about a concern for others is that it shall find expression. Our concern for others should prompt us, should drive us, to do something about it. There is a sound strategy in missions that asks that missions be supported as well as studied, for giving to missions is a very practical and very helpful way of expressing our concern for others. The special offering for missions which the Mission Board of the Southern Christian Convention is asking—an offering equal to at least one-sixth of the local pastor's salary—offers every member of the Christian Church to develop a Christ-like quality, a concern for others.

There is a distinct challenge this year, for not only is there an acute financial problem confronting the board, but our beloved Mission Secretary has been obliged to give up his active work for the time being, and at the time when he was needed most. It so happens, however, that Mr. J. M. Darden, a man of leadership, energy, enthusiasm, and liberal spirit, has consented to help out during the emergency, and he is doing splendid work. He needs and must have, and he has a right to expect the hearty support and co-operation of the ministers of the Southern Christian Convention and, through them, of the members of the Christian Church. The ministers of the Eastern Virginia Christian Ministerial Association, in a recent session, voted unanimously to support him and to co-operate with him and his co-workers in raising as a minimum at least one-sixth of the salary paid the pastor of the local Church.

It may well be that God is challenging us through the situation caused by Dr. Atkinson's condition. It is perhaps not saying too much that there is no other one thing that will buoy up his spirit and aid him toward recovery than the knowledge that we have each stood in our place and played the part of men and women in expressing, through our gifts, our concern for those who have a claim to our interest and our means.

PROGRESS IN FOREIGN MISSIONS.

At Salinas Playa, the little village out from Salinas, on the seacoast, where Miss Williams used to gather the children to teach them fancy-work and the Bible, this little chapel was built as a memorial to her years of faithful service as a missionary of the Christian Church to Porto Rico. The money for the chapel and its complete furnishings came from voluntary individual gifts of the women of the Christian Church.

During the entire time that Miss Williams

THE OLIVE G. WILLIAMS MEMORIAL CHAPEL, PORTO RICO.

served as a missionary in Porto Rico, her salary was furnished by the Christian Temple, of Norfolk, Va. Since her death and the sending of Miss Victoria Adams to that island, the Temple Church has assumed her salary and general support of her work to the extent of twelve hundred dollars a year.

INTEREST IN MISSIONS.

I called a meeting of the pastors in the neighborhood of Raleigh on Monday, March 19th, at 10 o'clock, in Dr. Kirby's study. Present: G. O. Lankford, Stanley Harrell, D. P. Barrett, J. E. Franks, E. M. Carter, S. E. Denton, J. Lee Johnson and J. Fuller Johnson.

We discussed the mission period and had a wonderful meeting. Each pastor was deeply interested and gave me every assurance that they would raise the quota at their respective Churches. It is certainly encouraging to me to have the good brethren take such an interest in the absence of our Secretary, Dr. J. O. Atkinson.

I wish it were possible for me to visit every Church in the full Conference, or at least to call meetings of all pastors in the various sections; but, with other duties, it is impossible for me to do so. I appeal to each and every pastor to do their full duty and make a special effort to raise the quota at the various Churches.

Remember that I am with you in the great work, willing to serve in any way I can, and if you need me, command me.

Hoping to hear favorably from each and every pastor,

Yours in the work,

J. M. DARDEN,
Acting Secretary.

A MISSIONARY OFFERING.

The Mission Board has set a minimum standard of one-sixth of the pastor's salary for a special mission offering for home and foreign missions. This is reasonable. It is the least we can do with to reduce our deficit and do a minimum amount of regular mission work. It will take more than this to open new fields and extend our borders.

Practically all mission boards have a large deficit. Our deficit has been reduced considerably, but is still large for us. We are conducting our affairs on a business basis and are determined to get out of debt. I appeal to every minister and member of the Church to be liberal and raise the minimum standard for each Church. The gospel of Jesus Christ is a missionary appeal. We must do our part in the evangelization of the world. We have the men and women to do the missionary work. We must have the money. Will you help us?

J. E. WEST, Chairman,
Mission Board of S. C. C.

MISSIONS.

By REV. G. H. VEASEY.

The message of Jesus was meant for us all,
Regardless of color or race:
The heathen will readily hear the great call
And accept on the terms of God's grace.

The gospel of Christ will atone for all sin,
No matter how vile it may be.
If only the heathen could know of Christ's love—
A wonderful Saviour is He.

There are millions now dying in darkness and shame
Who never have heard of the One
That saves every person that calls on His name—
God's only immaculate Son.

A call is now ringing from over the sea:
Come over and help us, they cry,
And tell of a Saviour who's willing to save
The heathen before they shall die.

Christ gave the commission while here upon earth
To carry the gospel to all,
And promised His presence should go all the way
With those who would answer the call.

I wonder sometimes what our Saviour would say
Should He visit this country today,
And see how our money and talents are used—
To missions we've nothing to pay.

There's a law of God's word that never has failed.
Some men don't accept it today:

Because it condemns them for what they have done,

It does not apply now, they say.

This law of the tithe is as binding today
As it was when the Jews led the race.
If we are not robbers, our tithes we will pay,
And bravely our duty we'll face.

OFFICIAL NOTICE.

Due to the continued illness of Mrs. L. L. Vaughan, all matters with reference to the Woman's Board has been referred to Mrs. Stanley C. Harrell, Durham, N. C., who is vice-president. Any one wishing information concerning rallies or other work of the board should communicate with Mrs. Harrell.

Mrs. Vaughan is slowly improving, but it will be some time before she will be able to resume her work in connection with the Woman's Board.

L. L. VAUGHAN.

MISSIONARY BOARD MEETING.

The Woman's Mission Board of the North Carolina Christian Conference met in Durham, N. C., on March 6th, and arranged the schedule for the annual district rallies, and formulated a program for these one-day mission meetings.

The schedule, giving the district, place of meeting, date, and district leader, is as follows:

Halifax District meets at Hebron Church on Wednesday, April 11, Miss Pattie Adams, Ingram, Va., district leader.

Guilford District meets at Monticello Church, Thursday, April 12th, Mrs. L. P. Wicker and Mrs. R. A. Harden, of Greensboro, district leaders.

Alamance District meets at Mt. Zion Church, Friday, April 13th, Mrs. J. J. Henderson, Graham, N. C., district leader.

Randolph District meets at Shiloh Church, Saturday, April 14th, Mrs. I. H. Foust, Ramseur, N. C., district leader.

Lee-Chatham District meets at Grace Chapel Church, Thursday, April 19th, Mrs. Doyle McFarland, Jonesboro, N. C., district leader.

Wake-Durham District meets at Wake Chapel, Friday, April 20th, Mrs. L. L. Vaughan, Raleigh, N. C., district leader.

Vance-Warren District meets at Oak Level Church, Saturday, April 21st, Miss Margaret Alston, Henderson, N. C., Route 1, district leader.

Morning.

Theme—"In the Service of the King."

"As my Father hath sent me, even so send I you" (Johu 20:21).

"Go ye, therefore, and teach all nations" (Matt. 28:19).

Call to Order—By District Leader.

Enrollment and Reports of Societies.

Special Music.

Address—Rev. D. P. Barrett, Missionary, Porto Rico.

Offering.

Appointment of Committees.

Devotional Service—Miss Pattie Coghill, Leader.

Adjournment for Lunch.

Afternoon Session.

Song Service.

Round-Table Discussion—"How Shall We Interest All the Members of the Local Church in Missions?" by Miss Pattie Coghill, Leader.

Reports of Committees.

Election of Officers.

Announcements.

Discussion—"Special Needs in Our District"; or a Pageant.

Adjournment.

Mrs. S. C. HARRELL.

MISSIONARY RALLIES.

District missionary rallies for the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference will be held in Richmond, (First) Norfolk, Antioch, Berea (Nansemond); superintendents: Mrs. O. M. Cockes, Mrs. H. C. Caviness, Mrs. J. A. Williams, Mrs. B. D. Jones; time: April 3rd to 6th.

Morning Session.

Theme—"Increasing Power for Increasing Obligations."

Call to Order 10:30.

Hymn—"More Love, O Christ, to Thee."

Devotional—Richmond, Rev. C. C. Ryan; Norfolk, Rev. J. F. Morgan; Antioch, Rev. J. M. Fix; Berea, Dr. N. G. Newman.

Minutes.

Message of Superintendent—"The Effect of the Personal Inner Life on the Home and the Church."

Special Music.

Address—"The Greatest Need of Porto Rico," Dr. D. P. Barrett.

Recognition of Societies.

Our Work Told by Story.

Appointment of Committees.

Offering.

Adjournment.

Afternoon Session.

Devotional—Richmond, Rev. C. E. Gerringer; Norfolk, Rev. T. N. Lowe; Antioch, Dr. W. D. Harward; Berea, Dr. I. W. Johnson.

Address—"Our Duty to Porto Rico," Mrs. D. P. Barrett.

Special Music.

"Evangelism the Duty of All"—Richmond, Rev. F. C. Lester; Norfolk, Mrs. Lee Britt.

Antioch and Berea—Miss Glennie Sims, Missionary to China.

Open Forum—(Let us discuss our problems).

Reports of Committees.

Closing Service.

MISSIONARY MEETING.

Program for the missionary rally of the Alabama Woman's Conference, to be held at Spring Hill Christian Church, April 1, 1928.

Morning Session.

Call to Order—By District Leader.

Devotional—By Rev. C. W. Carter, Pastor.

Hymn—"I Go Where You Want Me to Go."

Scripture—Luke 10:1-11, by Mrs. L. C. Smith.

Enrollment.

Reports from Societies.

District Leader's Message.

Address—"The Missionary Need in the Alabama Conference," by Miss Alma Mitchell.

Discussion—"Chain of Prayer for Our Work," led by Mrs. O. H. Orr.

Solo.

Address—"The Youth and the Church," by Rev. C. W. Carter.

Special Offering.

Appointment of Committees.

Adjourn for Lunch.

Afternoon Session.

Call to Order—By District Leader.

Devotional—By Mrs. C. H. Mitchell.

Prescution of Goals—By Mrs. W. M. Melton, Pres.

Address—"What Missions have Done for Our Denomination," by Dr. S. L. Beougher.

Discussion—"What Our Districts are Doing," by District Leaders.

Discussion of Problems in the Societies, led by Mrs. O. H. Orr.

Reports of Committees.

Election of Officers.

Adjournment.

RUBY RAE ORR,
District Leader.

"Maroon and Gold," the college newspaper at Elon, is sponsoring a series of vocational guidance talks by men and women distinguished for success in various professions and callings. It is a splendid idea, and we congratulate the college students upon their foresight and wisdom.

RECOMMENDED BOOKS

The following educational helps and books have been recommended by Dr. W. P. Minton, Secretary of Foreign Missionary Department, and Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Mission Secretary, S. C. C. Acting upon the advice and recommendation of these two recognized and earnest missionary workers, The Christian Publishing Association has stocked the following books, which are moderately priced and can be supplied on receipt of order:

FOREIGN MISSIONARY BOOKS

New Paths for Old Purposes—By Margaret E. Burton. In cloth, $1.00; paper$.60

The Nursery Series—Ah Fu (a Chinese river boy), Kembo (a little girl of Africa), The Three Camels (a story of India), Asa (a little Boy of Nazareth), board backs, each60

Our Japanese Friend—By Ruth Isabel Seabury, in cloth only75

Young Japan—By Mabel Gardner Kerschner, in paper, each40

A Straight Way Toward Tomorrow—By Mary Schaeffer Platt, cloth, 75c; paper50

"Straight Way Towards Tomorrow" has been prepared especially for Missionary Societies.

HOME MISSIONARY BOOKS

The Adventure of the Church—By Samuel McCrea Cavert, cloth, $1; paper$.60

Indian Playmates of Navajo Land—By Ethel M. Baader, cloth75

The Better American Series—Junior Home Mission Courses, cloth.... .75

The Story of Missions—By Edwin E. White, cloth, 75c; paper..... .50

Please Stand By—By Margaret Applegarth, in cloth, 75c; paper.... .50

Nine Home Mission Stories—For teachers to tell Primary pupils, paper25

The Upward Climb—By Sarah Estella Haskin, in cloth only, each.. .75

In the Vanguard of a Race—By Mrs. L. H. Hammond, in cloth, $1.00; paper75

A SERIES OF SIX BIG FOREIGN MISSION BOOKS

China, Japan, India, Africa, Near East, and Latin-America—Per set in cloth, $6.00; paper, $4.00; cloth, $1.25; paper.....$.75

ANY OF THE ABOVE OR OTHERS MAY BE SECURED FROM

All books sent postpaid.

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

NOTICE TO YOUNG PEOPLE.

INTERNATIONAL UNIFORM SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

BY REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE.

Lesson II—April 8, 1928.

THE RESURRECTION.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Because I live, ye shall live also."—John 14:19.

LESSON: Mark 16:1-20.

DEVOTIONAL READING: 1 Cor. 15:20-26.

If Christ be not risen from the dead! Have you ever thought what it would mean if we learned that Christ really had not risen from the dead! It would make Him out either a rank impostor or a self-deceived man, for He predicted and confidently believed that He would rise from the dead. If He be not risen from the dead according as He said He would, how could we have any faith in Him? Or if He be not risen from the dead, how could we have a vital Christianity? What advantage would we have over any other religion if we had only a dead hero instead of a living Christ? How would we explain the change which came over the disciples if they had not been convinced that Christ rose from the dead? If they knew that He had not come alive from the tomb, if they had taken away His body themselves, how could they ever have gone out to live the lives they did and to do the work they did, if they knew that they believed what they knew to be a lie? Or if the enemies of Christ got possession of the body, why did they not produce it and silence forever the claim of the disciples that their Lord had risen from the dead? If the whole thing were a frame-up, why is there the difference in the details of the resurrection story, which in themselves seem to point to their genuineness. One thing is certain—if Jesus Christ did not rise from the dead, if He did not give indisputable evidence to His contemporaries that He was alive after His passion, the world has had perpetrated upon it the most colossal and disastrous hoax imaginable. If Christ be not risen from the dead, our faith is vain and we are of all men most miserable.

It is interesting to note that none of the gospel writers tell how Christ rose from the dead. But all of them assert that Christ did rise from the dead. Here, as elsewhere in regard to many great truths, the main thing is the fact, and not the explanation of the fact. There are many things that we would like to know about the resurrection, about what took place when Jesus rose from the dead, but there is only one thing that we need to know—that Christ rose from the dead. A man who is not prepared to accept that truth could never be convinced, no matter how much argument was presented; the humble heart which accepts the fact by faith needs no argument. Here, after all, is the heart of the matter. Men and women of intelligence and sound sense feel that Christ rose from the dead because the living Christ has touched their lives and because they have had vital fellowship and union with Him. To those who know the Christ and who trust the Christ, there is no miracle that He rose; the miracle would have been that He did not rise. For the man who accepts the Great Miracle—the Miracle of Christ Himself—there is no difficulty in accepting the other miracles. Let a man set about the challenging task of living as if Christ did rise from the dead, and he will soon come to a knowledge of the fact that Christ is alive from the dead.

The same principle holds true in regard to the ascension. How far up did Christ go? What became of Him? What became of the clothes He was wearing? These and many other questions might be asked, and we would be glad to have an answer to them; but they are not at all vital. The writers of the gospel gave the fact that really is necessary—they told in simple terms that the Christ went back to that spirit world which gave Him; and because of that fact, He is always and everywhere available and accessible. No longer is He subject to the limitations of the flesh. As a conscious, eternal, living Spirit, He is nevertheless real, and wherever men draw nigh unto Him He draws nigh unto them and causes their hearts to burn within them. We have none else to whom we can go. He alone has the words of eternal life.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Sunday, April 8, 1928.

TOPIC: "Why We Believe in Immortality."—1 Cor. 15:16-23. (Easter.)

Some Bible Hints.

The resurrection of Jesus is better supported by proof than most ancient historical events (v. 16).

If Christ did not rise, then Christianity is based on a lie. But a lie like this would not lead the men that invented it to die for it (v. 19).

Jesus did rise from the dead. Hundreds of people saw Him (v. 6). All could not have been deceived at once (v. 20).

The only fitting end to such a beautiful life of power as Jesus lived is the resurrection. Death could not hold Him. He had power to break its bands (v. 24).

Suggestive Thoughts.

In nature there is a law of continuity. Nothing is wasted. It is impossible to think that personality, the highest creation of God, should not continue, but be snuffed out.

I believe that there is something in the world that lasts. It is not matter, for that changes constantly. It is personality, consciousness, love, thought, for which the world exists.

There are people so interested in this life that they give no thought to the next. Engulfed in materialism! We must direct the thought to the beyond.

Carnegie believed that death was but a step from this world into another world, perhaps a better. That is true. Life goes straight on. Jesus says, "He that believeth shall never see death."

A Few Illustrations.

Professor James said that if there is no life beyond death, then this life is like a silly moving-picture film, that might as well be run backward as forward, because there is no meaning in it.

Kant says that "immortality is a dream that all men dream together, and that all must dream." That is not an accident. God meant it so.

The preaching of Jesus had at its very heart the doctrine of immortality. He believed in it. And He was an expert in spiritual things. I prefer to follow His judgment than the opinions of men today.

Death is not merely a dumping-place. If it were, God could not look humanity in the face. If you believe in God, you cannot but believe in immortality.

To Think About.

What convinces you of immortality?

Would this be a rational world if death were the end? Why?

What effect on morals has the doctrine of immortality?

How many of you would be interested in a "Life Service" declamation contest if it could be arranged for young people of the high school age (14 to 19) in the Southern Christian Convention?

This is the idea: The group of young people from the various sections of our Church who met in Dayton, Ohio, December 28-30, 1927, discussed "Life Service," and the suggestion was made by the department of evangelism and life service, through Nelson Urbon, that plans for a "Life Service" declamation contest in our Church be made. The suggestion was approved, and after much discussion the following committee was appointed to work out plans: Rev. McD. Howsare, Nelson Urbon, and Lucy Eldredge.

"Life service is twofold in its meaning (report of committee): (1) The broad meaning of helping every youth to face the choice of his life-work in the spirit of seeking the place where he can make his life mean most to God and to the world; and (2) the setting forth of the opportunities offered to youth today by full-time Christian work as a vocation in the ministry, missionary and religious education fields, and similar work."

Such a contest should stimulate interest in the proper choice of life-work. Every young person must face this. We need your help in getting the plans before all our young people. After you have read the report of the committee, will you help us by writing, first, your idea of the whole plan; and, secondly, any and all suggestions you have for promoting such a contest; and, third, if you are interested in entering the contest or know any young people who might be interested.

Report of the Committee.

First: That the plan of a "Life Service" declamation contest (similar to the Ohio "Peace" declamation contest) be heartily approved as a means of bringing this vital matter before the youth of our Church.

Second: That the purpose of such a movement is to create and foster a larger interest on the part of our young people to do their utmost by prayer, investigation, meditation and service to discover the place in life where they may be of the largest use in the kingdom of God, recognizing that all work may be Christian in spirit and contribute to the building of a Christian world order, and to give special emphasis on the opportunities offered to young men and women today by the Christian ministry and other forms of full-time Christian vocations.

Third: That the Department of Evangelism and Life Service and the Young People's Division of the Department of Christian Education be asked to unite in helping the young people of the Church to promote this work.

Fourth: That the hope is in the future to have a denomination-wide "Life Service" declamation contest for high school students, an oratorical or essay contest for older young people on the subject of "Life Service," with preliminary contests in local Churches, districts, congresses, up to finals in regional Conventions and in the next General Convention.

Fifth: That since the idea is new and time is short this year to make necessary preparations and do necessary publicity work, that in 1928 an effort be made to secure the co-operation of several congress groups in the experimentation with a life service declamation contest, rules for which are suggested below, with the purpose of beginning to create an interest in the matter and for trying out the suggestions to help in making plans for the denomination-wide contest later in which all will join.

Sixth: Suggestions for 1928 "Life Service" declamation contests:

Plan 1. "Life Service" declamation contest in young people's congress, with preliminary contests in each local Church, the winners from each Church competing in a district contest at some district meeting, and the district winners to compete in the whole congress at the annual rally or at the annual conference session. Rules suggested below.

Plan 2. That where a congress does not find it practicable this year to conduct local Church contests, that a beginning be made by having a contest in each district in a regular district meeting, with contestants from various Churches, and the winners here compete in the congress rally or annual Conference session, as above. Rules suggested below.

Plan 3. That a congress may wish to simply put on a "Life Service" declamation contest during its annual rally or for its annual Conference young people's session, and that young people from various sections of the Conference may take part in this way in "Life Service" declamations at such a program.

It is hoped that all these plans may be tried out by different groups in order that their success and the interest aroused may guide in planning the work in future years.

Seventh: Rules for 1928 contests (to be modified in the future in the light of your experience).

A. Who? That the "Life Service" declamation contests be entered by boys and girls of high school age (approximately 14 to 19).

B. What? Declamations will be furnished. Leaders of our Church will co-operate in the preparation of this material, and from a number of declamations the contestants may choose their selections. As far as possible, an effort should be made to have a variety of declamations in each contest in order to give the full life-service message. This material will be available by March 15th and may be secured for 10 cents a copy (including a number of declamations).

C. Awards. The principal award will come in a declamation which carries over a great life message to speaker and hearers. Arrangements for awards for denomination-wide contests will be made later. For 1928, it is suggested that some recognition be given to local and district winners in the form of a bronze pin or button, and that the congress, if possible, send the winner of the Conference contest to a summer school for young people, with some contribution toward his or her expenses, or to a young people's conference or rally in their State, cost of such awards to be met from offerings taken at the contest.

D. When? It is suggested that such contests be planned to take place (local, Church, district, Conference) within a period of two or three months to maintain largest interest. The date of your annual congress or Conference will affect this. The month of April is the month suggested for emphasizing evangelism and life service especially and for launching such a movement.

E. How many? There should be at least three contestants in every contest.

F. Eligibility? Any young person of high school age in a Christian Church, Sunday School, or Christian Endeavor, or other group is eligible.

G. Judges. Three judges should be adults, vitally interested in the contest.

Eighth: Program for the contest. The "Life Service" declamation contest in this experimental year suggests some splendid material for district and congress programs. With the declamations, a suggested worship service to precede the declamations will be sent, and the meeting may close with a brief statement (not more than four or five minutes) by a minister or other friend of young people, stressing the importance of the matter. If desired, cards with a life consecration pledge may be given to the young people to take home with them to sign in whole or in part after thought and prayer.

Ninth: Follow-up. Every effort will be made to give young people who desire special help in choosing their life-work and those who make definite decisions all the aid possible. The Department of Evangelism and Life Service and the Young People's Division of the Department of Christian Education has a list of young people of the Christian Church who have signified that it is their purpose to make the growth and extension of the kingdom of Christ the controlling principle of their lives, and special material will be sent to them from time to time. It is hoped that many other Christian Church young people may join this life service friendship circle in the months and years to come. The Christian life service flag is a method for the local Church to keep in touch with the development of young people who have volunteered for full-time Christian service. Full information regarding this on request.

PATTIE L. COGHILL,
Field Secretary.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Minion Bold-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 7-8x 7 Inches, and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

2152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.75

India Paper Edition, Size 4 7-8x7 Inches, 1 1-10 Inches Thick.

2152X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$6.00

Bourgeois Type, Size 5 3-8x8 Inches, and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

2167—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.00

2172—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.50

2172A—Same as above, with Apocrypha.....$5.00

2173—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges.....$6.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3-4x3-8 inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3 3-4x3 3-8 Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps.....$2.50

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations. Special book for Sunday Schools.....95c

Minion Type, Pocket Size, 4x6 Inches, 1 1-2 Inches Thick.

With 32 full-colored illustrations; also 25 outline maps through the text and 12 colored maps.

133—Bound in cloth, round corners, red edges, title stamped on side in pure gold.....$1.60

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.$3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 15-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.$4.00

Minion Black-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 3-4x 7 Inches, 1 1-2 Inches Thick.

Printed from clear, large, black-face type, 32 full-page illustrations in sepia and colors, 4,000 Questions and Answers, Harmony of the Gospels, How to Study the Sunday School Lesson, 25 outline Maps, 12 full-page colored Maps.

4152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold.....$3.25

AMERICAN STANDARD VERSION.

TEXT BIBLES.

Printed from Easy-Reading Type, on Good Bible Paper, for Sunday School and Church Use.

Minion Type, Size 4x6 Inches, 1 1-2 Inches Thick, 25 Outline Maps, Bound in Black.

101—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, title stamped on back in pure gold...$1.10

112—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title on back in pure gold.....$2.75

India Paper Edition, Only 7 1-2-Inch Thick.

112X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.75

Reference and Text Bibles also in minion, brevier, bourgeois, long primer, pica and English type.

Thumb index cut on edge, 50c extra; name printed on any Bible in gold, 40c extra; extra wording, 40c per line.

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5 3-8x8 1-2 Inches and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With concise Bible dictionary, combined concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.75

RED LETTER EDITION

With all the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands, title stamped on side and back in pure gold.....$3.25

Any of the above Bibles sent post paid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 E. Broad St., - - - Richmond, Virginia.

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY REV. H. E. ROUNTREE,
One of Our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"Call upon me, and I will answer thee, and shew thee great and mighty things, which thou knowest not."—Jeremiah 33:3.

MONDAY.

SELF-CONTROL.

"Add to your knowledge, temperance (self-control)."—1 Cor. 9:19-27; 2 Peter 1:6.

Self-control is an essential element in Christian character. It is not limited to the idea of temperance in drinking, but in all the actions of life. It is the grace of holding back. It is the control of power—brakes on the machine. It enables one to refrain from evil, to hold back when lust or wicked companions cry, "Go on!" It is not simply inaction. It is more than an element in our success—it is essential in our character. The securing of it is a Christian problem. Self-control is affected by the amount of our work—an umpire makes about 225 decisions in two hours, and does nothing the rest of the day. A mother makes 100 decisions every hour, and does everything else all day! Control is also affected by one's temperament and by bodily conditions.

The Christian goes forth daily to represent Christ, and the duty of self-control is ever upon him. There are notable places in life today where self-control is needed. The drug habit may be induced by lack of self-control. The question of amusements can only be settled by the self-disciplinary control of every Christian. When we are attacked we must ask what cause we have given and guard against heedless acts and words. In sorrow—there, too, we have need of Christian self-control, lest we act only as those who "have no hope." Nations need self-control, so that mob passions or policies do not prevail. The control of power—this is a great need in our day, for "if drunk with sight of power," we may loose every demon of wildness, lust and destruction! Which thing may God forbid!

Prayer.—By one of the parents, asking that we may attain to those qualities which are essential to the fuller development of the Christian life, and that we may count no personal sacrifice too great to that end.

TUESDAY.

BETWEEN SUNDAYS.

"Be ye doers of the Word, and not hearers only."—Jas. 1:2-25.

In this age of hearing and not doing, this sounds like a modern injunction. It is the same as saying that "Faith without works is dead"—that Sunday religion only is useless and sickening—we must not only receive, but give. Some one has said that the great value of literature is what lies between the leaves. Transferred to the realm of religion, we can say that the value of religion lies between Sundays. Going to Church, worshipping God, understanding the Word on Sunday is necessary, but unless we carry its truth into our common lives we are like unto those of whom Paul speaks, "having the form of godliness, but denying the power thereof." It is not how we sing and pray on Sunday, but how we buy and sell during the week.

Prayer.—Our Father, may we realize the duty of carrying our religion with us in all the activities of life, and make us real servants of Thine and co-workers with Jesus to make all things right in real living. Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

THE SECRET OF PREVAILING PRAYER.

"Go again."—1 Kings 18:41-44.

The apostle says this also when he says, "pray without ceasing."

One of the happy facts of religion is that nobody has a monopoly on it and God has no respect of person in coming to Him. A poor man may be as rich as the rich man in riches in heart-life. There are three forms in the same neighborhood. When it rains it is on all three alike, as a rule; but in the matter of religion, the showers of blessing come only upon him who is persistent in seeking God and living close to Him. Some one has said the difference between Esau and Jacob was that Esau was not a praying man, and Jacob with all his faults was always striving with God.

While Elijah kept at the throne of God, praying, he told his servant to "Go again," looking for the answer to his prayer, and this was kept up until the rain came. We certainly need to learn that lesson.

Prayer.—Our Father, of all love and mercy, give us the grace of earnest and persistent prayer. And as Thou dost watch over us and guard our souls, guard us from selfishness in our prayers. O God, hear us, we plead. Amen.

THURSDAY.

THE COMFORT OF EARNEST PRAYER.

"But thou, when thou prayest, enter into thy closet, and when thou hast shut thy door, pray to thy Father which is in secret."—Matt. 6:5, 6.

Many years ago a Kentucky town was visited by a scourge of cholera. The plague was severe, and in most cases fatal. Nearly every home had one or more deaths. The wife of the Methodist minister was alone with her children. Her husband was in a distant town, conducting a revival. She sorely needed her husband's comfort and counsel, but fearful that he might fall a prey to the cholera she did not ask his return. In her distress of mind she turned to the Word of God. She opened her Bible at the 91st Psalm. When she came to the 9th and 10th verses, it seemed like a ray of light was shining around her: "Because thou hast made the Lord, which is my refuge, even the most High, thy habitation, there shall not evil befall thee, neither shall any plague come nigh thy dwelling."

With Bible still open, she went into the little "prayer-room." She spread the Book on a chair, and, with her finger touching the tenth verse, poured out her heart in supplication. She afterwards told a friend that when she arose and went about her duties, all anxiety, all fear, all nervous apprehension had left her. It turned out as she believed. The plague abated, her husband returned safely and all was well.

"He that dwelleth in the secret place of the Most High shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty."

Prayer.—By one of the parents, thanking God for His goodness and asking that our hearts may be fortified with faith, and that the Comforter may delight to abide with us. Ask in Jesus' name.

FRIDAY.

THE JOY OF CONTENTMENT.

"Blessed are they that dwell in thy house."—Psa. 84:1-5.

We often think others are happier than we are, and that they have better circumstances and greater opportunities. The poor wish they were rich, and the rich man wishes he could go back to the little cottage in the quiet of the hills, with nature in its glory, and begin all over again. The tired mother, with children at her skirts, wishes she had social opportunities, and the social woman wishes she had—well, the most of them wish they had children grown up without her having the sacrifice of bearing them: at any rate, she envies the tired mother her happiness.

The psalmist teaches us that every one may be happy in his place if that one is willing to pay the price for it. Happiness is from within. Paul's secret was being content. Anything was well when he had done his best. By the Spirit of Christ, he mastered all circumstances, and in jail could sing and find happiness as well as in the garden of God. He turned the jail into a garden and held a revival meeting.

Prayer.—Our Father, our strength is in Thee. In Thy wisdom grant unto us power to use our opportunities for good, and in good we shall be content. Amen.

SATURDAY.

THE CHURCH NEEDS A REVIVAL.

"O Lord, receive Thy work in the midst of the years."—Psa. 85:1-13.

The word "revival" is distasteful to many. Today there is danger of forgetting the things for which the revival stood. Stripped of all its trappings, its human elements, it stood for the duty of the soul to God, for the joy of the Christian life and its service, and for the dangers which lie in delaying our recognition of these things.

We shall need courage to overcome the prejudice against revivals. They have been greatly blessed of God in the history of Judaism and of the Christian Church. They have occurred in the history of science and in the progress of business. It is possible, in a high and holy sense, to promote a revival in the Church. It is good for a man to accept a higher quota of service for his own soul. Any revival in the Church must begin with the minister. It must then include all the officers, of every sort, in every organization of the Church. The rank and file must likewise face their responsibilities. All of these groups must do it together.

The first need of the Church is better Christians! Any revival must, therefore, fulfill the twofold purpose of the Christian life—(1) the culture of Christian character; (2) the conquest of non-Christian lives: that is, the winning of other men and women to lives of loyalty to Jesus Christ, as was done in the beginning. Each one of us in the Church must set out to find another one whom we may help or lead to follow the Master. The search may begin in our own home, our own Sunday School class, our own school, our own office, our own community. Who will join in the prayer: "Lord, send a revival and begin in me?"

Prayer.—By one of the parents, asking that the united forces of Christian America may seek, by earnest and continued prayer, a great revival.

SUNDAY.

CHRIST THE RECONCILER.

"God was in Christ reconciling the world unto Himself."—2 Cor. 5:17-21.

In Jesus we have a living picture of God in His love for mankind.

In His touch with man in what He did, folks saw what God was and His life was that all men might be saved. When He wept it was over those who were turning wilfully from the truth that saves, or it was at the tomb with those that wept. But that was not merely with the human Jesus. It was God weeping over His children who despised the truth of righteousness and rejected His wooings. What patience our Saviour had toward the faithless! But that was not merely the goodness of a good man; it was God in His infinite love and patience watching and waiting for the heart of man. What suffering He endured in

(Continued on Page 13.)

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

When I was a little boy, I read in some little reader this verse: "Little drops of water, little grains of sand make the mighty ocean and the pleasant land."

That little verse did not mean as much to me then as it does now. Every little raindrop makes the branches, the creeks, the rivers and the mighty ocean. Every little raindrop doing its part; if one failed, the mighty ocean would be short that one. "Little grains of sand make the pleasant land."

And how true it is! Pick up a handful of sand and see the tiny specks that go to make up the sand you hold in your hand; though tiny specks of grit, yet each one has its place, and if just one failed to fill its place and do its duty, this great world in which we live would lack that much of being complete.

In our great army and navy, every man is expected to fill his place and do his full duty, and if one man fails, then the army lacks that much of being perfect. In big business organizations every man is on his job and every man is expected to do his duty. If we, as members of the Church and Sunday Schools, would just realize that the success of building up God's kingdom on earth depends on us as individuals and realize each individual has a duty to perform as important as the grain of sand, as the little drop of water or the soldier in the army, and that if we fail to do our individual duty the cause suffers that much and falls short of being complete.

What a great change would come about during the mission campaign if every Church member, every Sunday School member would do their duty as Christians. The offering would be fifty thousand dollars, and every member of our denomination would be the richer. And our dear Dr. Atkinson would be so happy that he would forget he had ever been in feeble health.

I often think if we could just get all our Sunday Schools and Churches to realize that each member has a place to fill and a duty to perform, and get them to take their place and do their duty, the monthly offerings to the Christian Orphanage would be so liberal that we would not have to deny fatherless and motherless children a home when they appeal to us for a home and shelter. Let each of us realize that we have a place to fill, and if we, as individuals, fail, the work suffers that much.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON,
Superintendent.

REPORT FOR MARCH 29, 1928.

Brought forward $3,635.83
Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

N. C. & Va. Conference:

United Church, Lynchburg.....$ 2.06
Reidsville 5.00

Western N. C. Conference:

Pleasant Cross$ 2.20
Shady Grove 1.00
Hanks Chapel 2.35
Zion 1.00

Eastern N. C. Conference:

Christian Light$ 3.50
Sanford 3.05
Auburn 4.50
Shallow Well 1.00
Pope's Chapel 1.50
Wentworth 7.58
Turner's Chapel80

21.93

Eastern Virginia Conference:
Holy Neck$10.00
Bethlehem 3.60
Berea, Norfolk, Jan.-Feb.-Mar..... 10.64

24.24

Special Offerings.

Mrs. H. A. Culver, for E. Farrell...$45.00
Sale of cows110.00
Rent 10.00

165.00

Grand total $3,860.61

PROGRAM.

Program for missionary rally of the fourth district, to be held at Rock Stand Christian Church, April 26, 1928, Roanoke, Ala. Meeting called to order by superintendent at 10 A. M.

Song—"Where He Leads Me, I Will Follow."

Invocation—By Mrs. W. C. Beverley.

Address—"We're Glad to Have You," Miss Lera Allen.

Address—"We're Glad to Be Here," Miss Annie Huey. Enrollment of Delegates.

Address by Superintendent.

Address—"Does Missions Pay," Rev. J. D. Dollar.

Appointment of Committees.

Adjourn for Noon Hour.

Song Service.

Devotional—Mrs. D. Duke.

Pageant—By Roanoke Junior Missionary Society.

Address—"How to Keep Young People Interested in Missions," Mrs. J. H. Swint.

Address—"How a Missionary Society Helps the Church," Miss Timie Mae Hunt.

Address—"How to Reach Our Mission Goals," by President Mrs. W. M. Melton.

Reports of Committees.

Song and Benediction.

MRS. V. E. KITCHENS, Sup't.

MRS. J. B. SWANN, Sec'y.

(Continued from Page 12.)

Pilate's hall and in Calvary! But that was not mere suffering at the hands of enemies. It was God bearing the burden of human iniquity, that men might, through His mercy, find salvation.

So Christ's efforts are God's efforts. We behold Him and know that He will not withhold from us anything needful for our redemption or for our eternal reconciliation with Him.

Prayer.—Our Father above, make us new creatures in Jesus. Give us abundant faith in Thee and in Thy acceptance of us and in Thy forgiveness of our sins, and we may be one in Thy Spirit and will forever. Amen.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES.

We should be glad to furnish your Sunday School the following supplementary supplies, cash to accompany order:

Improved Uniform Series International Lessons.

1. Bible Lesson Picture Roll, 21x32 inches, per quarter $1.25
 2. Sunday School Superintendent (to accompany the Picture Roll), per quarter..... .15
 3. Pupils' Lesson Stories, per quarter..... .06
 4. Little Bible Lesson Pictures, per quarter.. .05
- Group Uniform Series, Primary Course.
1. Group Bible Lesson Picture Roll, 16x20 in., per quarter 1.00
 2. Group Pupils' Lesson Stories, Primary, per quarter07
 3. Group Lesson Pictures, per quarter..... .04

In making order, be explicit and name the quarter for which supplies are wanted; thus: first quarter, January to March; second quarter, April to June; third quarter, July to September; fourth quarter, October to December.

SEND ORDERS TO THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

COMMUNION WARE

Individual Service

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A

- Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses $7.00
Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses 6.75
Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses 6.50
Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim..... 1.60
No. 2—Broad rim 1.60

SILVER-PLATE

The Silver-Plated Ware is of the very lightest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.

Style No. 85

- Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses.$22.00
Base No. 1—Silver-plate; fits Silver Tray No. 85 11.00
Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85... 16.00
(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)

Style No. 90

- Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses.
Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling).$22.00
Base No. 2—Silver-plate; fits Silver Tray 90... 16.00
Cover No. 4—Silver-plate; fits Silver Tray 90... 14.00

- Breda Plate No. 3—Narrow rim$ 9.00
No. 4—Broad rim 9.00
Filler—Silver lined 6.00

Send Orders to THE CHRISTIAN SUN,
1536 E. Broad St., - - - Richmond, Va.

WHERE SHALL WE FISH?

"Follow me, and I will make you fishers of men." Peter, James and John knew how to take fish from the Sea of Galilee and sell them in the market-place. Jesus taught them how to go into the market-place and take men alive for the kingdom of God.

All Christians are agreed that it is the business of the Church to win people to Christ—to take living men for Christ and His kingdom. It is the command of the Master, and also the exalted privilege which He offers to those who have labored with the dead things of earth in an attempt to win the daily bread. We are to be fishers of men.

But where shall we fish? This is important. There may be some trout in the mountain brooks or chubs in the lowland streams, but the big fish—where are they? Where shall we fish?

"Launch out into the deep and let down your nets for a catch," said the Master to three skilled fishermen, who had toiled all the night and had taken nothing. They knew the waters; they had fished among the familiar all the night; and they knew how to fish. But they had failed. In the gray dawn when they were ready to roll up the nets and go home with nothing to sell, Jesus said to them, "Launch out into the deep and drag in the fish." And they did.

Later they stood with their companions at the dawning of the Christian era wistfully watching across the sea of life, wondering where to fish. The night had been long and the struggle hard, but they had taken nothing. Gethsemane and Calvary were close and real. Where could they fish for men and be successful? The Master answered: "In Jerusalem, Judea, Samaria, and to the ends of the earth." "Launch out into the deep and let down the nets for a catch."

For the Christian Church, there is meaning in this message of the Master. Fish around the edges where the water is shallow and safe. Begin at home. Build your Churches and equip them well for yourselves and children. In the center of things, where you live, is the place to begin (in Jerusalem). Look out for your neighbors also (in Judea). Among them you are to be witnesses. The man next-door may be won to Christ and the Church. The community must be taken alive for the kingdom of love. Don't forget the outcasts, the socially impossible, those who are not in your class, those who seem to be no better than dogs (the Samaritans). These will be directly in your path. You must "needs go through Samaria," and the message must go to them. Then "launch out into the deep." Go to the ends of the earth, making disciples.

Out there the sea may be rough. Launching out into the deep is difficult and dangerous. Men do not want to be caught in the dragnet of love. Governments and religions often oppose the efforts. It is much easier and safer to fish around the edges; and all too often we have stayed close to the shore.

But never again can we be comfortable in our own beautiful Churches until we have "lunched out into the deep." The smug satisfaction of a generation ago is gone forever, for we know the command of the Master. There is no criticism of other fishers of men, but youth knows that out in the deep is the place to fish. We have toiled as a Church for a century and more, but have taken little, for we have fished in the shallows and where it was safe.

It is now time to "Launch out into the deep and let down the nets." At Easter we will do it. Then we will obey the command. We will seek for life where we have found little. We will drag for money at the command of the Master. We will give of our cash, of our prayers, our love and our life in order that men can be taken alive for Jesus Christ, our Lord and Master, in far-away

Japan and Porto Rico.

"We have toiled all night . . . nevertheless at Thy word I (we) will let down the net."—Luke 5:5.

Waverly, Va.

F. C. LESTER.

FATHER'S REMARKS.

We often hear some one say that the young people have gone astray. I will admit that the young people are going astray. What has caused them to go astray? I want to tell fathers and mothers some of the things that are causing the young people to live such a life.

The first thing is that the fathers and mothers have failed to do their duty in their homes. One is that they have failed to have their family altar and ask God to guide them in all their ways. The home training is left off. God's Word says, "Train a child up in the way you would have him to go, and when he is old he will not depart from it." Instead of the fathers training their children, they are setting traps for them. I want to tell you some of the traps that they set. Who prepared the dance hall? Who prepared the pool-rooms? Who prepared the bathing holes? Who prepared the shows? All of these places are prepared by fathers and mothers. Fathers and mothers will stand up and say the young people are going astray, when they have set the traps to catch them in. There are many children today that have never heard their fathers pray a prayer at any time. But how can we expect the fathers to do any better when the preachers will come to your home and never think to pray with you? When I was a boy, when preachers came to the homes he never left without prayer. I don't understand why this is happening today unless the preacher is taking part with these traps. The saddest thing I ever have seen is the father standing between their children and heaven.

E. B. MATKINS.

OXFORD BIBLES

An Oxford $3.50
Teacher's Bible only

"The
Oxford Bible
is the Bible
par excellence
of the world"

The best recommendation of the OXFORD TEACHER'S BIBLES is the fact that over 3,000,000 copies have been sold. The wonderful helps they contain save your time because they are alphabetically arranged, making reference easy. They take the place of many books about the Bible, and can be depended upon, being written by eminent scholars. The Helps contain 32 graphic illustrations, besides 15 beautifully colored maps. The text is the Authorized or King James version, with over 50,000 centre column references.

These Are Genuine OXFORD Teacher's BIBLES

EASY-TO-READ EDITION

Size 7¼ x 5 x 1½ inches

Specimen of Type

17 And there was a very sore battle
that day; and Abner was beaten,

- | | | |
|-------|--|--------|
| Nos. | | |
| 04451 | Moroccoette, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges | $3.50 |
| 04453 | French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and handsome Bible | 4.35 |

Oxford India Paper Edition

Same as above, but printed on the famous Oxford India paper used only in Oxford Bibles. Only one inch thick.

- | | | |
|-------|--|--------|
| Nos. | (Weight 18 oz.) | |
| 0773x | French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition | $7.50 |

RED LETTER EDITION

- | | | |
|-------|---|------|
| 05453 | As No. 04453 with words of Jesus Christ in red. The red letter feature adds greatly to one's understanding of the Bible | 5.00 |
|-------|---|------|

Oxford India Paper Edition

- | | | |
|--------|---|------|
| 05453x | Same as No. 0773x with words of Jesus Christ in red. A gift edition which is sure to please | 8.00 |
|--------|---|------|

SELF-PRONOUNCING EDITION

All proper names and difficult words divided into syllables and accented so they may be correctly pronounced. Sizes 8½ x 5½ x 1½ inches.

Specimen of Type

6 And A-hi'-shar was over the household: and Ad-o-ni'-ram the son of Ab'-da was over the 'tri-

- | | | |
|-------|--|--------|
| Nos. | | |
| 04521 | Moroccoette, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges | $5.00 |
| 04523 | French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A real student's Bible | 6.00 |

Oxford India Paper Edition

Same as above, but printed on the famous Oxford India paper which is used only in Oxford Bibles. Only 1½ inches thick.

- | | | |
|-------|---|--------|
| 0923x | French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A Bible of superior quality | $9.00 |
|-------|---|--------|

Improved Thumb Index on any style
at 50 cents extra

A MESSAGE TO WOMEN.

The richest treasures are hidden deepest. The diamond and gold nugget are buried deepest in the earth, the pearl is hidden in the depths of the sea, yet we may use the gold and wear the jewels though we never dive with the pearl fishers and never burrowed in a gold or diamond mind. Missions are God's thoughts and ways of finding the most precious souls. He only asks for co-operation, that all might have a part and enjoy the blessings.

Realizing the inadequacy of methods and goals to meet present needs of both home and foreign missions, and that all nations are easily accessible, with more means and more workers the mission work might be indefinitely increased to help the millions who are yet in darkness and the spiritual need at home. The Lord has left the work of carrying His message to the world in the hands of His followers. I wish the world could see the cross, and know the love of the living Christ, don't you? The world need not be in darkness, not even in one place, if all Christians would be faithful in supporting missions in three ways—first, in service; secondly, with their money; thirdly, by definite prayer. It will be then that obstacles will be removed, hearts will be opened, goals reached, and God's precious treasures—the souls of men and women—will be saved.

MRS. J. A. WILLIAMS,
Franklin, Va. President Woman's Board.

THE HOME INFLUENCE.

BY MISS MYRTLE VICKERS.

Give the boy and girl an unlimited allowance and turn them loose with an automobile, and wait for a call from the police headquarters. If they run true to form, you won't have long to wait. Youth, money and automobiles all make for speed. When the brakes are applied, it is by an outside hand, and most frequently by an unfriendly one. We all remember the two Chicago boys who are now serving a life sentence in the penitentiary. They were sons of wealthy men. They were college boys, law students. By their own admission, they killed a fourteen-year-old boy. They enticed him into their automobile, struck him over the head, burned his face with acid to prevent identification, stripped the body, and dumped it in a swamp. One of them telephoned the parents of the victim that the boy had been kidnapped and was being held for ransom. A frantic father raised ten thousand dollars to rescue his son, who had been dead for twenty-four hours. A lost address saved the money, and the finding of the boy's body saved him the anguish of uncertainty, but increased his burden of grief.

But why did they want to kill and kidnap? They had all the money they could reasonably want. They were indulged with an automobile and kept what hours they desired. They played the part of the young blood of fiction. So they must have killed and kidnapped because they were satiated with all the novelties that wealth could bring them within the law or on its fringes. The law took its course, and they are paying for this crime. They represent a type. It is a type in which we are deeply concerned. This crime is epochal, but it emphasizes the waywardness of youth. It is an added indictment against parents and the home. When children veer too far from the right course we must look behind them for the reason. Such defects in character are not spontaneous.

In the age of speed, things are topsy-turvy, and no place is it so emphasized as in the home of today. The father, too busy making money, and the mother, too busy with social duties, neglect the child as it gets on in years, and it soon becomes a stranger in its own home. It isn't the child's fault; it is the fault of the parents who believe that their duty to their children is done when they feed them, clothe them, send them to school and then to college. A parent's duty is never done until death relieves them.

When the family obligations were disregarded, the home began to disintegrate. When God is forgotten, Satan gets the upper hand. When parents disregarded the religion of Christ and indulged in questionable pastimes and pleasures, the home fires went to pieces. History teaches that nations were built on true religion, and that progress was brought about by living the religion of Jesus Christ; but history teaches that in prosperity God is forgotten.

Our nation is the greatest and richest today, and we are following the same course of nations since the world begun. We are depending on our resources making our rules of society, forgetting from whom our blessings come, tearing down the home. Are we headed for a fall? No nation can survive long with the sin going on that we have today. We find warning in the Bible, but the Bible is not read as it once was. This is sin. The child which honors its parents rarely ever goes wrong, and parents who maintain a home in all that implies have the confidence and respect for their children.

Ambrose, Ga.

Subscribe or renew for THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

ELON COLLEGE

CO-EDUCATIONAL

SECOND SEMESTER OPENS JANUARY 4, 1928

A few additional Students may be accommodated at that time, preferably members of the Christian Church.

SOME OF THE ELON COLLEGE BUILDINGS

ELON COLLEGE offers superior educational advantages to the members of the Christian Church. The buildings are new, equipment new and of the very best type, laboratory facilities equal to any college in the South; member of the Southern Association of Colleges, strong Christian faculty, and fine Christian atmosphere prevailing on the campus. Special courses in religious education and Christian work are offered to train laymen and ministers in the work of our denomination.

For Catalogue and View-Books, address

C. M. CANNON REGISTRAR,

ELON COLLEGE,

NORTH CAROLINA

"Christian Character First and Always at Elon College"

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rve. Daniel W. Kerr.

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Christian Church.

BOARD OF EDITORS

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D. Editor
W. W. STALEY, D. D. Associate
W. A. HARPER, LL.D. Associate
REV. S. C. HARRELL. Associate
R. C. HELFENSTEIN, D. D. Associate
REV. S. M. LYNAM. News Editor
P. J. KERNODLE. Managing Editor

Subscription Rates

One Year$2.00
Six Months 1.00

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT
RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Post-office at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows the date of expiration. Change in the label will appear on wrapper the first week of month following renewal, provided it is received before the 25th.

Change of Address: Give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

When subscriptions are made for friends, state whether paper is to be stopped at end of the year.

Remittances: Make all remittances for subscriptions and renewals to "Editor Christian Sun," Elon College, N. C.

Remittances for advertising and other business matters will be addressed to the "Managing Editor," 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond, Va.

Advertising Rates: "Want Ads," 2 cents a word an insertion. Display rates quoted upon request.

Notices: Obituary and Marriage notices, limited to 100 words, are published free of charge. All over 100 words, at 1 cent a word. Remittance should accompany copy. Write names distinctly.

HAMILTON.

Funeral services for Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Hamilton, age 84, were conducted Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, by Rev. J. M. Roberts, of Windsor, Va., at Eure's Christian Church, Gates County.

Mrs. Hamilton had no immediate relatives, and for more than a quarter of a century she had lived in the family of Hon. T. A. Eure. Ten months ago she fell, and as a result she was an invalid, with a dislocated hip, from then until her death last Monday afternoon. Mr. Eure's family, neighbors and friends did all that could be done to make it comfortable for her until the end came.

The active pallbearers were Darden

Eure, Tazewell Eure, Thad A. Eure, Jasper Turner, John Paul Turner and Thurman Copeland; honorary: W. D. Langston, Joshua Mullen, Elijah Harrell, M. E. Turner, Thomas Howell, and C. C. Copeland.

Mrs. Hamilton, known by all who knew her as "Miss Bess," was one of the oldest residents of this section of Gates County.

JONES.

Whereas, it has pleased Almighty God to call Bro. Paul P. Jones, our fellow-deacon, from our midst; and whereas, we are bowed in sorrow and grief; be it resolved:

1. That the community has lost one of its most worthy and pious citizens.

2. That his widow and children have sustained an irreparable loss, while his memory and example is a precious heritage.

3. That our Church has lost one of its most faithful workers and one whose place cannot soon be filled.

4. That we, the board of deacons, have lost a friend and fellow-worker, one whose joy was to serve.

5. That a copy of these resolutions be placed on the Church minutes, a copy sent to the bereaved family, and a copy published in The Christian Sun.

R. D. THOMPSON, SR.

C. D. S. FARMER.

J. H. FARMER.

W. O. FARMER.

GEO. C. TALBERT.

"I will give unto him that is athirst of the fountain of the water of life freely" (Rev. 21:6).

BETHLEHEM COLLEGE

WADLEY, ALABAMA

A JUNIOR COLLEGE AND HIGH SCHOOL.

Where Opportunity Awaits the Student of Very Limited Means.

GIRL'S DORMITORY.

Bethlehem College, Wadley, Ala., will open September 5, 1927. This institution is a Junior College and High School, which is co-educational, where scholarship ranks high and expense is low. It is thoroughly Christian, absolutely non-sectarian, and vitally American. A school where opportunity awaits the student of very limited means—$63.00 pays all college expenses, except books, board and room. Board, $15.00 per month, and room $3.00; total expenses for a term of nine months, $250.00.

Bethlehem College is training some of the best stock of America for Christian leadership, to be used by the nation and the world. Here is a great challenge and asset for students who wish to prepare themselves to serve in a worth-while way. The work on the new Administration Building is progressing nicely, and we will be able to begin our college work in this building when school opens this fall.

For catalog and other information, address S. L. Beougher, President.

OXFORD TEACHERS' BIBLES

An Oxford Teachers' Bible has references and 300 pages of helps that are a mine of information to Bible students. The helps are arranged in alphabetical order, like a dictionary. They are accurate, comprehensive and up-to-date. A few styles are listed here. Many others are described in our Bible catalogue, mailed upon request.

04403 [This size print] Bound in French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, size 6 1/2 x 4 1/2 inches$4.00

0623x [Same Bible as 04403] Printed on Oxford India paper. Only 1 inch thick.....$6.00

04453 [This size print] French Morocco leather binding, overlapping covers, 7 1/4 x 5 in. $4.35

0773x [Same Bible as 04453] Printed on Oxford India paper. A remarkably thin and light Bible. (Only 1 inch thick)$7.75

05453 [Same Bible as 04453] With the words of Jesus Christ printed in red$6.25

05453x [Same Bible as 0773x] With the words of Jesus Christ printed in red$8.75

04523 [This size print] A self-pronouncing Oxford Bible. Bound in French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, size 8 1/2 x 6 1/2 inches...$5.50

0923x [Same Bible as 04523] Printed on Oxford India paper. Only 1 1/2 inches thick...$9.75

ORDER FROM
"THE CHRISTIAN" SUN"

Richmond, Va

HOLMAN BIBLES

FOR CHILDREN
PICTORIAL BIBLES WITH HELPS

The text is self-pronouncing, by the aid of which children can learn to pronounce the difficult Scripture proper names.

Specimen of Type

27 And the boys grew; and Esau was a cunning hunter.
5 And the streets of the city shall be full of boys and girls playing in the streets thereof.

Size, 5 1/4 x 3 1/2 inches. With beautiful photo views of scenes in Bible lands distributed throughout the text. Also maps of Bible lands in colors. Also new Practical Helps to Bible Study, especially designed for instructing children in scriptural information.

No. 9111. French Seal Leather, overlapping covers, round corners, gold edges, gold titles.

Our Price—Post Paid 2.30

COLORED PICTURE EDITION

Portraying in natural colors, scenes and places taken from nature and life in the Holy Land.

No. 9211. Same as No. 9111, but with Beautifully Colored Pictures.

Our Price—Post Paid 2.40

FOR INTERMEDIATE SUNDAY-SCHOOL SCHOLARS

Large Clear Black Type, Self-Pronouncing, containing Helps to Bible Study, 4000 Questions and Answers, Maps in Colors, and Presentation Page. A Beautiful Gift Bible.

Specimen of Type.

22 And the prophet Isaiah, and said unto himself and mark, and for at the return of t

Size, 7 x 5 inches.

No. 215. Divinity Circuit Style, Bound in French Seal Leather, round corners, red under gold edges, with silk head bands and purple silk marker, gold titles, etc.

Our Price—Post Paid 3.10

No. 3215RL. Red Letter Scholars' Bible, same Bible as No. 215, with all the Sayings of Christ printed in Red, and with Red and gold INLAID PANEL SIDE TITLES, also Beautifully Colored Pictures.

Our Price—Post Paid 3.45

Holman Self-Pronouncing

VEST POCKET TESTAMENTS

Clearest Print in Smallest Size
4 3/8 x 2 3/4 x 3/8 inches

Specimen of Type.
AND the third day there was a marriage in Cana of Galilee; and the mother of Jesus was

2133K. Bound in durable Morocco Grain Semble Leather, flexible limp, gilt titles60

2113. French Morocco, genuine leather, flexible limp, gold titles, rounded corners, gold edges..... .70

2115P. French Morocco, Divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, with the Book of Psalms included$1.10

ILLUSTRATED VEST POCKET TESTAMENT

With Pictures of Holy Land Scenes

2814. French Morocco, limp, gold side title round corners, red under gold edges85

RED LETTER VEST POCKET TESTAMENT

With all the words of our Lord printed in red.

13RL. French Morocco, flexible limp, gold side title on red panel, gold edges. .85

15RLP. French Morocco, overlapping covers, flexible, gold side title on red panel, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included$1.25

INDIA PAPER VEST POCKET TESTAMENT

Thin as a Wafer

2136XP. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, with Psalms included$2.25

Send Your Orders to

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 E. Broad Street

RICHMOND - VIRGINIA

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Official Organ of the Southern Christian Convention.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXX.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, APRIL 5, 1928.

NUMBER 14.

THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY

AN EVANGELISTIC CRUSADE.

By REV. H. C. CAVINESS.

In writing about the work of the First Christian Church, of Portsmouth, Va., there is just one actuating motive; that is, the glory of the Lord Jesus, and one hope, that this article may provoke many to pray in the spirit of God for His work here and elsewhere in the earth. In that marvelous book, the Acts of the Holy Spirit, we read, "I kept back nothing that was profitable unto you, but have shewed you, and have taught you publicly, and from house to house" (Acts 20:20)—Paul's résumé of the work done at Ephesus).

And may we look for a moment at history's page for a perfect picture of this city. Ephesus lay one mile from the Icarian Sea, in the beautiful Asian meadow, on the banks of the Cayster. Its buildings were under the protecting shadow of Coressus and Prion, in the neighborhood of the delightful Ortygian Groves. Its haven has once been among the most commodious in the Mediterranean Sea, but partly silted, through a mistake in engineering, yet always thronged with vessels from the then so-called civilized world. It lay at the meeting-point of great roads which led northward to Sardis and Troas; southward to Magnesia and Antioch, thus commanding easy access to the great river valleys of the Mermos and Meander, and the whole interior continent. Its seas and rivers were rich with fish, its air was salubrious, its position unrivaled, its population multifarious and immense. Its markets glittered with the products of world art; it was the "Vanity Fair" of Asia. This city, doubtless, furnished the exile of Patmos, St. John, the local coloring, through God's Holy Spirit, for that marvelous description depicted in Rev. 18:12-13, in which he sums up her many possessions, including as slaves the "souls of men." Here at Ephesus the Temple of Artemis reeked with the congregated pollutions of Asia. This temple was the banking-house of the merchants.

Into this city of wealth and power, profoundly religious with the religion of idolatry, filled with sin and electric with sorcery, came the great apostle of God—despite the adversaries—through Christ Jesus. A victory was to be obtained which must always be a marvelous miracle of God's grace, for here Paul met face to face the daring, naked opposition of the spirit world (Eph. 6:12; Acts 19:13), and the massed movement of all the dominion of hell (Acts 19:29). Yet Paul here conquered gloriously through Christ (Rev. 2:1-7). That Church was planted which invoked the great words of approbation uttered by our Lord Christ in Rev. 2, and occasioned that Alpine epistle to the Ephesians. And how? Again, we repeat, how was it done? How was the victory won? The answer is found in Acts 20:20. "I kept back nothing that was profitable unto you, but have shewed you, and have taught you publicly, and from house to house." 2 Cor. 5:14: "The love of Christ constraineth us."

But what of Ephesus now? Ah! here one reads of supreme tragedy. The candlestick has for centuries been removed. The squalid Mohammedan village which is nearest the old city site does not count one Christian in its insignificant population; its temple is a mass of shapeless ruins; its harbor is a reedy pool; the bittern booms amid its pestilent and stagnant marshes, and malaria and oblivion reign supreme over the place where the wealth of ancient civilization once gathered around the scenes of its grossest superstitions, and its most degraded sins. A perished city and a perished Church (a local Church, not the true Church, the body of Christ; thank God that Church shall never perish (Matt. 16:18)). A city which could not be saved by the Church as a finality, because it had passed under the cooling process of the city's protection (Acts 19:40-41), and in Acts 20:1 we see Paul immediately taking his departure when the Church made her compromise with the city. As another said, "The English Church was far safer under Marian persecution than the time of Elizabethan patronage; Methodism was not nearly so much in danger when it was the scorn of Sydney Smith and his ilk as it was when received at the king's court." So, may we never rejoice at the patronage of the world, for it is by the friction of persecution that the gold of God is made to flash and flame; the Church persecuted has always been the medium of purification and power; the world patronage it has received has been its peril and cause of paralysis.

So, intensely conscious of this truth, we have sought no favor of the world since becoming pastor here; caring nothing for its plaudits or applause, and have scorned its methods so much in vogue in many Churches—methods which are being used to add names to Church registries, with little or no effort to secure a membership regenerated and redeemed by the blood of the Lamb of God; seeking in every way to keep out the "mixed multitude," but to bring in His sheep, now strayed, lost and helpless, who shall hear His voice (John 10:16).

Believing much in mass evangelism, and in God's continued use thereof—for assuredly the gift of evangelism would not have been included among God's gifts to men had it not a part in His program (Eph. 4:11-13), and we spent a portion of each year in this great field, always welcoming an opportunity, when of the Lord, to engage in this great effort, one of the supreme conditions agreed upon by us and our Church before accepting its pastorate being that we were to continue in the field of evangelism from time to time while in Portsmouth, elsewhere than in this city—but profoundly conscious that personal or house-to-house evangelism is the supreme need of our Church life today; that this was the Pauline method; that it was first inaugurated by Christ, exemplified by His first commission, and when appropriated by the Church in any age of her history has always been the medium of its supreme contribution to the glory of Christ, believing that this method of personal evangelism was the secret—and through the Holy Spirit—the source of power possessed by Phillip, who, we believe, led the first Gentile convert into the Church after Pentecost (Acts 8:37-38); therefore, the First Christian Church of Portsmouth, through God, hath committed herself to a task, stupendous and mighty, under the leadership of the Holy Spirit, to evangelize the city, and we don't mean a stereotyped kind of cold, Christian formality, in which Church members are the objective, an action which will make a good report upon the Conference floor, but a house-to-house method of vital, Christ-energized soul-seeking; reclamation of wandering sheep, and revitalizing of churchmen and churchwomen, predicated upon God's power in His holy Word, God's Holy Spirit, and much prayer; and only one objective: His glory (1 Cor. 10:31).

Mr. L. E. Huber, a graduate of the Moody School, in Chicago, a man of God, is assisting the pastor in this work. A Church census is, too, being taken; every home is being entered (if possible); the Bible being read, prayer being had; the unsaved urged to join Jesus Christ; then, after such conversion the Protestant Church of candidate's choice is presented and such Church informed of the confession, through its pastor; family altars are urged as God's establishment, and order for all Christian homes; tithing and Christian giving pointed out as essential to growth in grace and medium of blessing to others; Church attendance urged in every instance, and in each home suitable gospel tracts are distributed, together with a copy of the gospel of John, as edited by James E. Ely, of Garden City, Kans.—a publication we cannot recommend too highly for use by all Churches and personal workers, regarding it as superior to all other editions now extant. An alphabetical list of every name and home is being kept, which list will be practically invaluable to Churches of the city when compiled, and this record carries a complete Christian census of each home.

This work began in February this year. In the first three weeks 800 people were reached, approximately; a score of confessions of Christ were made in the homes, and several expressing desire for Church affiliation, many family altars erected, and homes vitalized through God's power and His (Continued on Page 15.)

NOTES-PERSONALS

It is a great pleasure to include in THE CHRISTIAN SUN this week a contribution from the beloved Foreign Mission Secretary of the General Convention, Dr. Wilson P. Minton.

President Edward F. Green, of the Country Life Academy, Star, N. C., was a visitor to Elon College on Friday, the 23rd. The school at Star is to hold its commencement on the 30th.

Encouraging word comes with reference to the organization of a Christian-Congregational Church in Birmingham, Ala., where Rev. J. H. Dollar is in charge. Here is hoping that the enterprise will meet with good success.

Mr. W. C. Edge, of the Pickens County High School, Reform, Ala., in renewing his subscription to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, speaks in highest terms of the paper, and says: "THE CHRISTIAN SUN is a source of inspiration to us."

Mr. J. W. Winfree, Virgilina, Va., in renewing for THE CHRISTIAN SUN, says that his father, C. H. Winfree, took the paper when he was a little boy. He is now 76 years old. He feels sure that he has been reading it for seventy years.

Mrs. W. H. Carroll, in renewing for THE SUN, expresses her appreciation for the paper. Mrs. Carroll says: "In my judgment, no family in the Southern Christian Convention should be without THE CHRISTIAN SUN; it is a fine paper for the price."

Owing to an epidemic of measles in the neighborhood of Monticello Church, Mrs. S. C. Harrell announces that the Guilford District Missionary Rally has been postponed from April 12th until April 21st. Let all who are interested take notice.

The Virginia Christian Endeavor Union will hold its 1928 convention in Roanoke, Va., June 21-24th, inclusive. It is planned to have an exhibit of Church papers and other literature, and especially helps for young people interested in Christian Endeavor and other Church work.

Some weeks ago we announced that Rev. A. W. Andes had hit upon a unique way of securing new subscribers in his field, that he had decided to send the paper for a month to ninety-three people, paying for it himself. The fruit of that effort has just begun to appear. Six of these persons have become permanent subscribers to the paper.

Bro. J. M. Darden, Acting Mission Secretary, writes: "I was at Liberty (Vance) last Sunday, March 25th, and I do not believe I ever had as many people at one Church to tell me they were readers of THE SUN and enjoyed it so much. One gentleman told me he had had it in his home for over thirty-five years."

Rev. R. A. Whitten has returned to his field of labor, after a month's vacation spent in the South, much of it in Florida, in an effort to regain his health and strength. He was able to fill his pulpit on the fourth Sunday in March, both at Reidsville and Monticello. Bro. Whitten is a deservedly popular pastor and is greatly beloved by his people. He is a preacher of power because his life is consecrated and his chief thought is for his Master's kingdom.

The brotherhood will deeply sympathize with Dr. W. M. Jay in the death of his mother, on March 24th, near Pittsburgh, Pa. Mrs. Jay was in her 79th year. Her body was interred on Monday, the 26th, at her old home near Everett, Pa.

Bro. J. A. Williams and wife were visitors to the college on Sunday, the 25th. Bro. Williams is trustee of the college and Mrs. Williams is president of the Woman's Board of the Southern Christian Convention. Their loyalty and devotion to the Church and its enterprises is an inspiration.

Bro. J. M. Darden, Acting Secretary of Missions, reports that he and Mr. and Mrs. Davis were at Antioch and Isle of Wight Christian Churches Sunday, April 1st, and that these congregations have raised their quotas of the mission fund. It is hoped other Churches will report this week. Well done.

The story of "An Evangelistic Crusade" as related by Rev. H. C. Caviness, for our Portsmouth Church, should have a wide reading. There is no question but that an evangelistic program is the hope of the kingdom's growth and of the progress of every enterprise of the kingdom. Bro. Caviness is burdened with the situation in his city of 60,000 people. Let the Church pray that he may be wonderfully blessed and that the kingdom may be prospered.

The International Missionary Conference met in Jerusalem on March 24th, and will be in session till April 8th. The conference has been in process of forming since the summer of 1926. It is a conference of great significance for the foreign missionary enterprise, and the Christian people of the world are called to pray that it may be successful in laying plans and outlining principles that should influence Christians in the support of the foreign missionary enterprise throughout the world.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN rejoices to know that Rev. J. D. Dollar has so far recovered his health that he is able to resume his pastoral duties again with his accustomed vigor. The Dollar family in our Georgia and Alabama work has been represented by a preacher in every generation. Bro. Dollar is himself the son of a Christian minister, and his son, Rev. C. C. Dollar, is a junior at Elon College this term. That is what we call the true apostolic succession.

We have the official announcement from Hopewell, Va., with reference to the Church building project there. Hopewell is a growing city of Virginia, and we have a fine group of Christian men and women associated together at that place. Let us continue to hear from Hopewell. This infant Church, which has been meeting without a building, is 100 per cent in paying its subscriptions to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and it has been contributing regularly to the Orphanage, to the colleges and to missions. Surely we need more such Churches.

The ministerial students of Elon College continue to give very successful and appropriate programs in Churches nearby. Rev. T. J. Green reports that they rendered splendid services at Hines Chapel the first Sunday night in March, and at Apple's Chapel the second Sunday afternoon in March. On last Sunday they gave programs, both morning and evening, in the Gibsonville Churches. Any Church that would like the services of these young men should address Rev. C. C. Foushee, president Ministerial Association, Elon College, N. C.

The Julius Rosenwald fund has built 4,000 schools for negroes in the Southern States. On April 4th, at 10:30 o'clock in the morning, the Berry O'Kelly County Training School for negroes is to be dedicated at Method, N. C., three miles west of Raleigh. Mr. Rosenwald himself is to be present. Mr. Rosenwald is a Jew and is head of the Sears-Roebuck Co., a great firm of Chicago. But this man has the spirit of Christ, and it is hoped that a large concourse of Christian people will honor him when his 4,000th school is dedicated.

The Social Service Commission of the Federal Council of Churches has issued a statement through its industrial secretary, Mr. James Myers, calling attention to the fact that conditions in the coal fields are distressing. Mr. Myers says: "In the chaotic conditions in the coal fields and the bitterness of the suffering, extreme economic theories and loss of faith in religion find easy root. The situation presents a mighty challenge to the Churches. A widespread and effective response through distinctly Church circles would go far toward demonstrating to these miners that the Church has not lost its interest in the masses and their needs."

COMMITTEE MEETING.

The Southern Christian Convention's especially appointed Committee on Men's Work will meet in the Suffolk Christian Church Monday, April 9th, at 10 o'clock, to work on the report which they are requested to bring to the coming sessions of the Convention in Richmond. This committee met during the Pastors' Conference at Elon College in January and outlined for itself a course of investigation looking toward the meeting scheduled for Monday, April 9th, in Suffolk. Members of the committee are John G. Truitt, chairman; Dr. W. A. Harper, Dr. W. H. Boone, Jr., J. M. Darden, and Jesse F. West, Jr. Any one who desires to meet that committee may feel at liberty to do so at the above time and place. Suggestions are cordially invited.

JOHN G. TRUITT.

RICHMOND CHURCH.

To the Brotherhood of the Southern Christian Convention:

The First Christian Church of Richmond, Va., has invited the Convention to hold its next session with us May 1st to 3rd. We are glad the invitation has been accepted by the Executive Committee, and we are now arranging for your entertainment and comfort.

The plan as arranged is that we furnish lodging and breakfast free, and the sum of 40 cents per meal be charged for dinner and supper. All the meals will be served at the Church, but the breakfast is free. Our Church membership is scattered over the city, and the lodging of the Convention will not be any easy one. Visitors will be cared for as far as possible. If you are a delegate to the Convention or the Women's Auxiliary and expect to come and desire entertainment, won't you please write to the pastor by April 20th, that we may know as near as possible how many we will need to provide for. If you are coming and have friends in Richmond with whom you expect to stay, please write and tell the pastor. If you care to stay at a hotel, you will find many good ones in the city.

We are glad you are coming, and we will do our best. And when you get here we will be glad to say, "They who have turned the world upside-down have come hither also." Please write me if you are coming.

C. C. RYAN.

3206 Grove Ave., Richmond, Va.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

LIVING PALMS.

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Preacher.

"The righteous shall flourish like the palm tree."—Psa. 92:12.

Many centuries ago, palm leaves were laid in the path of Jesus. He not only "led captivity captive," but He rode above victory itself. The great common people came to wave them at His triumphal entry into Jerusalem; but they beheld His glory and strewed them a carpet beneath His feet. They came out to see a king; they beheld a King of kings. And instinctively they allowed Him to ride upon the emblems of victory which they meant to wave above His head. What a beautiful pageant! What a wonderful prophecy of things to come, and a sign of things that are!

It was victory over victory. It used to bother me a great deal when I read in the 37th Psalm: "I have seen the wicked in great power, and spreading himself like a green bay tree." To me it seemed to mean that the wicked were the prosperous, and that they were possessing the wealth and beauty of the land. I had seen great oaks standing alone in the edge of a field, or close a farm home, and uninterrupted by other trees they had spread their long branches over great spaces. How beautiful and wonderful they were, and how the memory of many of them stirs my soul today. I imagined a "green bay tree" was a thing of just such grandeur and beauty—a "green bay tree" seemed to me a "great bay tree," and I believe I have often quoted it so. I thought there was nothing greater than the way the wicked flourished, and accordingly I was sometimes likely to think of a rich man as being a wicked green bay tree. Ignorance draws its conclusions, and erroneous conceptions lie deep in our thinking.

Pious people have often explained many things with the words in question. And never once did I stop to ask myself what sort of a tree was this bugaboo of a "green bay tree"; and how often I was ready to conclude with the question: Why, oh why, do not the righteous flourish? "A little learning is a dangerous thing"; for the very first psalm had told me that the righteous "shall be like a tree planted by the rivers of water; that bringeth forth his fruit in his season," and I ought to have compared the troubling statement about the "green bay tree" with the one used for our text today: "The righteous shall flourish like the palm tree." I did not know that the green bay tree gave off continuously a sickening sort of odor, and never grew to be much of a tree after all! Those who have been to the Holy Land and studied the tree in its native haunts, and its history and records as found there, tell us that it grows sometimes thirty, or forty, or more feet high and is sickly exotic. At its best, it falls into a lesser group of trees and is characterized as "sickly exotic."

How flourishes the palm tree? There are more than one hundred and fifty different kinds. "The general habit of the palm, with its columnar trunk often buttressed at the base, sometimes rising more than a hundred feet and crowned by a rosette of huge leaves, is well known." So reads the New International Encyclopedia, and continues: "Some species produce leaves fifty feet long and eight feet wide. Humboldt estimated the number of flowers on a single palm to be about six hundred thousand." It is interesting to know where this tree will flourish. I quote from the same source: "Some of the species found in tropical America grow in mountain regions bordering upon the limits of perpetual snow. The coconut palm, which is by far the most extensively distributed, grows in maritime, others in island districts. Some grow on dry and sandy ground, others in rich alluvial soil, and some in swampy situations; some in open districts, others in dense forests. Some species are generally found singly, some in groups; some cover tracts of country in which no other tree appears."

Furthermore, it is interesting to observe that the palm tree is useful: "There is almost no species of the palm which is not capable of being applied to some use, and in economic importance the family is excelled by no other family except the grasses." Speaking of the palms of Palestine, the late Dr. John D. Davis, of Princeton, says: "The domestic uses of the palm are numerous. The leaves are employed for covering the roofs and sides of houses, for fences, mats, and baskets. When the tender part of the spathe is pierced, a sweet juice exudes, from which sugar is obtained by evaporation, and arrack by fermentation or distillation. The fruit which is produced annually in numerous clusters and great abundance, constitutes its chief value." Palm trees live to be two hundred years old, and differing from most other trees continue growing and bearing fruit throughout their whole life-time. They are endogenous; that is, growing from within, and the heart is sturdier and stronger than the outer side.

So David, the poet of God and sweet singer of Israel, compares the righteous man to a palm tree, and the wicked man to a green bay tree—tall, graceful, straight, beautiful stands the palm, the most picturesque of all trees, growing and bearing fruit throughout the decades of its life and leaving a lovely memory for a large community when it is gone. The palm tree grows everywhere, practically speaking. In every land and clime and country, the righteous may be found. There is no place too difficult for the Christian. Is it a dry, wind-driven desert? Here and there the traveler finds the stately palms pointing to God and the goal of the traveler, and indicating that there is help in its shade, amid its boughs fruit, and that at its roots water may be found. And thus everywhere one may find a disciple offering a cup of cold water in the name of his Lord. From the swamplands of lake and sea, from the islands of the oceans, and the sands of the Sahara grow the queenly sentinels of God's infinite and universal love. Yea, and those who know the Lord shall cover the earth as the waters cover the seas. No wonder "they took branches of palm trees and went forth to meet Him, and cried: Hosanna."

The palm tree is useful. Nothing is said of the usefulness of the "green bay tree." We cannot forget its exotic, sickly odor. But if it is food we wish, we may turn to the palm, or shade, or wood, or building materials; it is never found wanting. Do we wish medicine, oil, grease, or water, it is ready to serve us to the very extent of its life. Fans for our Church, designs for the silver and gold coins of the East, and tokens of triumph for all are but a few of the hundreds of uses to which the palm tree is put. It is the most universal servant among the trees. How like Christ; how like the Church; how like the true Christian! When the world's chief Suffering-Servant entered into Jerusalem, no wonder "they took branches of palm trees and went forth to meet Him, and cried: Hosanna."

The palm tree is endogenous. The palm grows from within. The people were looking on the surface of things for the kingdom of God; they learned from Jesus that the kingdom of God is from within. They were trying to keep forms, laws, and customs; they were to realize that they should "keep thy heart with all diligence, for out of it are the issues of life." They were washing the outside of cup and platter, when the inside held the issues; they were legislating against what went into their mouths, not realizing that it was that which sprang up within which made great or small. They looked at the rough exterior of a seaman, and called him unlearned, not knowing that he had learned from the world's Great Teacher. They kept the law with their lips while their hearts were far from God. The righteous shall be endogenous, therefore it is no wonder that "they took branches of palm trees and went forth to meet Him, and cried: Hosanna."

The palm tree is not maturity bound. Most trees get their growth and hold it for awhile, bearing an ever lessening amount of fruit until they finally perish away. Not so the palm tree. This principle of growth from within causes it to renew its strength, and to continue to grow as long as it lives, bearing an ever-increasing amount of fruit. When did Jesus reach His maturity and begin to go down-grade? Ah, when indeed! "Whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst; but the water that I shall give him shall be in him a well of water springing up into everlasting life." "In Him was life; and the life was the light of men." And His last day on earth saw Him forgiving His enemies and saving to the utmost the most completely lost of all who cried unto Him. No wonder "they took branches of palm trees, and went forth to meet Him, crying: Hosanna."

For His pathway into the hearts of men we are to be living palms, permitting Him to tread majestically through our lives into the lives of others. Whenever one dies in the Mohammedan faith, a palm branch is laid upon their grave. The dying palm branch speaks all too eloquently of the tragedy of having lived without Christ. We are not to place dying palm branches upon the graves of those whom we would serve, but we are to set Christ forth in our own citadels of our souls in such way as those who see our lives may cry: "Hosanna! blessed is the King of Israel that cometh in the name of the Lord." Let us lay our victories beneath the feet of Jesus, and then He will find His way into the souls of others.

DENDRON, VA.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Dendron Christian Church entertained between seventy-five and one hundred of the Church members on February 24th, in the Town Hall. A very delightful salad and sandwich course was served, followed by ice cream and cake. Following the supper a number of interesting speeches were made. Speakers for the occasion were Mayor Carlton Holladay, Mr. W. H. Pursell, and Rev. E. B. White, pastor. Mrs. E. T. Atkinson, president of the Ladies' Aid Society, welcomed the guests very cordially and gave a short history of the society and its work.

We have a very active Young People's Society that meets twice a month. They always have splendid programs, and a great deal of interest is manifested at these meetings. Our young people have high ideals, and if followed cannot but lead them to lives of great usefulness.

We have a good attendance at Sunday School, under the leadership of our faithful superintendent, Mr. E. T. Atkinson. Our pastor is an able leader. We are planning a special Easter program. Everything is moving on nicely for the upbuilding of God's kingdom.

MRS. MARVIN RICHARDSON.

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, Elon College, N. C.

Contributing Editors

W. W. STALEY

W. A. HARPER

R. C. HELFENSTEIN

S. C. HARRELL

PRINCIPLES OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

- (1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
- (2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
- (3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of Church membership.
- (5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

FLORIDA—WITH OBSERVATIONS.

(Editorial Correspondence.)

Orlando, Fla., March 31, 1928.

In reply to a letter I had written a friend, he says, "Verily, the lines have fallen to you in pleasant places." They have. I did feel a little tired, somehow, but I knew I was not very sick. Still the doctors (three of them) said I must get away to Florida, or somewhere, and die down awhile. Theirs was really a welcome message, for I had been wanting for years to fall in with the tide of humanity and visit Florida in winter.

And so one verse of the 23rd Psalm has a new meaning for me now—"He maketh me to lie down." A fact. Sometimes our loving Heavenly Father just makes us lie down. We become a little worn from wearing, grow rather tired of ourselves and of the world in fact. Then the Father, in love for us, graciously says, "Lie down awhile." We obey; and then to our utter amazement, as well as to our unspeakable joy, we discover that the pastures and places about us are very, very green, that the waters are very still, that the whole prospect is glorious and inviting. And then, lo and behold! the soul and the body too are restored. I am writing these lines now out of a restored soul and a renewed body. And the pastures have been so green and the waters so still all the while. For a loving Lord led, and the divine hand guided me to this wonderful place.

Only four days now, and it will be two months since I was deposited, by Dr. Staley and the good Lord, at the Florida Sanitarium and hospital, Orlando, Fla. It seemed at the time an accident; I know now it was a Providence, that I landed here.

This sanitarium is a religious institution; nay, in very truth, a Christian institution, if I know aught of the majesty and meaning of that word

Christian. Like forty other institutions of similar kind and character in this country, the Seventh Day Adventists own, control and operate it. Well, in naked truth they have found their work and have struck their pace. If they are not teaching the rest of the Christian world something, both by example and precept, then I don't know my left hand from my right. They believe with all their might in the "ministry of healing"—the body as well as the soul—and they believe also that this whole wide world should hear and should have the gospel of the Son of God. To this end, these people are spending and being spent. And the results of their services, their sacrifices, and their devotion are nothing less than wondrous. I have met and mingled with people, patients, here, from Maine to California, from New York to Cuba, from Chicago to Cleveland and New Orleans, of all persuasions—Jews, Catholics, Free Thought, Scientists, and all denominations—but up to this good hour I have yet to hear one human being complain of the service, the treatment, or the management of this institution. They just simply set your mind right and your soul right—and then go to work with all zeal, skill and fervor to get your body right. The first thing one hears on awaking in the early morning is the melody of the good old hymns sung "in the spirit" by nurses, helpers, doctors in a chapel which is a part of the sanitarium. They begin the day with a song, and then, believe me, they carry the spirit of song, of joy, of gratitude, of glad and happy service into every task and toil and undertaking of the day. Service! Well, if you want a bundle of sunbeams, radiant with the glow of gladness, to burst into your room, just ring for a nurse, call for an errand boy, converse with the scrub-woman, or send for your physician. If either or all don't kindle a spark of gratitude in your heart and make you feel like you are in the care and company of friends and of those who really care, then I don't know. All the non-religious, indifferent, soulless hospitals on this planet ought to send, from their staffs, delegations now and then to these sanitariums run by Seventh-Day Adventists, and let them learn a few things about how to make folks happy while they heal them, and give them sunshine when the days are dark and gloomy. The Adventists are certainly making a contribution to the art and the ministry of healing, and are making this sick world better and happier while they do it. There is no sham, there is nothing shoddy about their methods. They simply give the best that modern medical science and skill can give—and then add to it all the spirit and the atmosphere of Him who went about doing good. God bless them in their wonderful work!

Then, the most amazing contribution these good people are making to world uplift is their unbelievable work in the field of foreign missions. Their year-book for 1928 shows a membership in all lands of 274,331. Of this number, 116,832 live in North America; 87,243 live in Europe. Yet this denomination—one of the smallest numerically—sent out 216 foreign missionaries in 1926, and in the last three years have sent out over 500 missionaries. Think of a denomination giving for evangelistic work $73.37 per capita! For foreign missions per capita $23.43. Look at this: If we Christians—125,000 of us—were to give to foreign missions as the Adventists do, our annual contribution would be $2,928,750. And yet we are glad to set our goal at $75,000 a year, and do not even reach that! And the Adventists send out more missionaries in any one year than we have sent out in a century. May God in heaven have mercy upon us, and lead us into the light of His glorious love for all peoples of all the earth.

Florida is beautiful now. The orange blossoms are in full fragrance. A revelry of color greets and gladdens the eye and cheers the heart at every turn. The mocking bird and the Bob White tell us spring is here, and, to quote a note of gladness and of good cheer met here, "It is getting to be time" for all sick folks to be well now—and go home and go to work. I think in two more weeks I will make my dear, good physician here—one of the best and most skilled I have ever met—ashamed of himself for advising me to stay till May 1st, and I will be back with the friends and loved ones, at home and about, who with their dear letters and messages of hope have done so much to give me a new lease on life and to make me grateful that I am living, and happy to be living for a work and with a people I love as I do my own life.

J. O. A.

LIBERALITY AND PROSPERITY.

Liberality is the soul of prosperity. The close person can never be prosperous. Liberality embraces not only the matter of money, but opinions, attitudes, judgments, and all social and religious associations. The liberal person shares with others all his possessions, whether of time, talents, or money. A close person may accumulate money in a long period of saving, but he is never prosperous. "The liberal soul shall be made fat; and he that watereth shall be watered also himself." "The liberal deviseth liberal things; and by liberal things shall he stand." "He which soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly; and he which soweth bountifully shall reap also bountifully." "The field is the world," not simply the earth-world, but humanity as well. Men sow thoughts as well as seed; money as well as corn and wheat. The business world is a field in which men put their judgment and their money. What men keep remains the same; what they place in the keeping of others brings a harvest. The best place to give money is to causes, rather than to individual men. The place to give to men is where there is necessity. "He that giveth to the poor, lendeth to the Lord." But the best gift is that which is given to the Lord and His cause.

The Church is the great institution into which money may be given liberally with great results. Christianity has increased the wealth of the world by improving the character and co-operation of men and nations. The limit to progress is the limit of liberality. People complain of taxes; but values are created by taxes. The saloon became rich when heavily taxed. The tobacco tax after the Civil War made millions for manufacturers, and farmers as well. Take the tax off of tobacco and the industry would die. The same is true of real estate. There would be no good roads were there no tax on cars and gas. It is by tax that all citizens enjoy alike the benefits of roads, schools, safety and trade. It looks like a hardship, but it is a blessing for all.

The Church can no more grow and do her work without money than the State. All members of the Church should give of their time, their money, and their service to the support of the Church. It is not a question of how much one should give; but all should give. Contributions to education, missions, orphanages, the poor, and the support of the local Church are a necessity, and will richly reward the givers. The member who gives as the Lord has prospered him stands high in the kingdom, though his gift be small. The citizen who pays ten dollars' tax has all the protection of a citizen who pays a thousand dollars' tax. The member who gives ten cents a Sunday, if that represents his ability to pay, is entitled to the same credit as the member who pays five dollars per Sunday. The question of obligation and benefit is not how much does the member give, but does he give? The period or the question-mark answers the question of liberality. The giving members are the useful members. The liberal givers are the prosperous members. They not only prosper in their feelings, their reputation, and their growth in grace, but in their business. A stingy congregation can never be a prosperous congregation. A stingy denomination can never be a prosperous denomination. The farmer who keeps his seed can never reap a harvest. If he is a good farmer, he puts his best seed in the ground. A good Christian puts his best in the Church; and the more he puts in, the more he gets out. If there is one thing needed in the Church, it is that all the members pay money systematically into the Lord's treasury. A savings account in a good bank not only takes care of the money put in, but increases it through the whole year. God's Church not only takes care of all men give, but increases it, for it is treasure laid up in heaven. It may not seem to pay a large interest, but the final account will show great gain.

SOME MISSIONARY FACTS.

When our General Convention met at Urbana, in 1926, every heart rejoiced that the Foreign Mission Department could announce that the deficit had been cleared entirely. At the meeting of the General Board, in the fall of 1927, however, a deficit of more than $10,000 was reported, which has since then increased to $16,000, according to a statement just received from the Foreign Mission Secretary.

Reference is made to the report of the Foreign Mission Department of the General Convention in the November, 1927, issue of the Christian Missionary. In explanation of the deficit which occurred, four reasons were given in that report. Since many readers of THE CHRISTIAN SUN may not have access to that magazine, it will be well to abstract these reasons and state them briefly. They are as follows:

1. The falling off of receipts for missions of all denominations throughout the country is due to a change of attitude toward the foreign missionary enterprise.

2. A great wave of building Churches, parsonages and religious education buildings in the Christian Church has temporarily reduced the offerings for missions.

3. The emergency at Defiance College, which necessitated a great personal campaign for funds the same week of the foreign mission offering.

4. The fact that practically every Sunday throughout the last of February and through all of March, in 1927, proved to be days of very inclement weather over a large section of the Church in the North. This inclement weather alone reduced the offerings for foreign missions to 25 per cent below normal on the regular day set for foreign missions; and on the Sunday following that day, the same cause brought the offering down to 50 per cent below normal.

These facts are set forth as showing why our General Mission Board is suffering from a deficit at this time, and at the same time with the hope that the facts will create such interest in our Church that liberal offerings will be made to meet the challenge of Acting Mission Secretary J. M. Darden, for each Church to raise, in addition to what it is giving for missions and other possible sources, what is being asked for the missionary enterprise during the missionary period upon which we entered the first of March. He is asking each Church to raise one-sixth of the pastor's salary additional. Let's do it.

The need that challenges our people at this time is compelling for the heart that is devoted to the advancement of Jesus' kingdom, and when the facts are known, if the heart is not stirred to generous giving, then let each individual member seek earnestly in prayer to know why. Surely the field was never whiter for harvest in the interest of missions in the Christian Church than at this time, and we are the laborers to enter into that field and to garner the harvest. W. A. H.

MULTIPLYING MINISTERS.

That we need more ministers in the Christian Church is no less true with us than it is with other denominations. We certainly pile on a few leaders a multiplicity of obligations and responsibilities that no mortal man or men can carry and perform as efficiently as if fewer tasks were imposed on some of our leaders. One of the greatest troubles with the method of administration in the Christian Church is that the tendency is and has been, since my first acquaintance with the Church, to get a few men in the saddle and ride them to death. This method leaves some, I will not say many, potential leaders undeveloped, undiscovered, and unused until all their ambition, their hope, their aspiration for advancement and development in the ministry of the Christian Church evaporates or is diverted to other channels.

One reason for this situation is not the fault of anybody, but grows out of a situation. The Church has comparatively a small constituency and the leaders in charge are not ambitious to pile upon themselves responsibilities, obligations, duties, tasks and burdens, but they are so solicitous and anxious about the success of the immediate enterprise or obligation that it shall succeed, with least possible uncertainty, that some leaders in charge will combine their influence and commit the task to some other overworked but successful worker.

This is not the best way in which to develop the largest number of the possible leaders in the Church. When a young man graduates from our college for the ministry, he starts with the same academic preparation for success in the ministry as every other graduate, but all do not develop, after leaving college, equally because of difference in environment, difference in responsibility placed upon them, and difference in the sympathetic or unsympathetic supervision and direction given them by the older and more experienced leaders in the Church.

Some study and grow after they leave college, but are they not encouraged, directed, and stimulated by the sympathetic supervision of those who have won their spurs? Would it not be possible to commit tasks and duties to more of the young men, earlier in their ministerial life, supervise and advise them in meeting these responsibilities, and thereby stimulate them to assume greater tasks with the experience in the laboratory of service that would enable them to become real leaders?

There is an increasing number of our young men developing into leaders as fast as we increase their opportunities and give them encouragement. Our method of ministerial supply, which is the law of the survival of the fittest, makes it imperative for us to provide some means of encouragement, stimulation and supervision, so as to get the best results in increasing the number of active and capable ministers.

With some systems of administration, close, systematic, sympathetic supervision of young ministers is provided by the system. Sometimes this system may seem exacting, domineering, arbitrary, but it gets results and develops a larger number of competent leaders than the system that has no method of supervision and direction till the young men get properly oriented in their ministerial life. I would not favor or suggest that we should have anything arbitrary and dominating, for, in my mind, such supervision is contrary to Christ's teaching of Christian liberty, but I would favor some improvement in our method, or lack of method, in giving or not giving any supervision and direction to those who are aspiring for leadership in the Christian ministry. Our philosophy should be to put a larger number of our ministers to work by dividing the responsibilities of the Church among them, rather than pile all the burdens they can carry upon the shoulders of the few and snuff out their strength and usefulness when they should be in the prime and vigor of their manhood and usefulness.

The World Unity Convention has just been organized, with offices at 4 East Twelfth Street, New York City. The purpose of the organization is "to maintain facilities for promoting those ethical, humanitarian and spiritual ideals and principles which create harmony and understanding among religions, races, nations and classes, and for co-operation with established educational, scientific and religious bodies working for these ends." It is prepared to function through "(1) Public World Unity Conferences, (2) the World Unity Magazine, (3) a summer institute of world unity." It seems that we will have organizations for every purpose under the sun.

OUR CONVENTION FORUM

Bro. W. A. Newman says:

As my mind turns to the Southern Christian Convention that is to meet in Richmond, Va., on May 1st, I think that the greatest thing the Convention can accomplish will be to put in action what we have been talking all our lives and what we claim as one of our greatest essentials, and that is union.

I cannot now call to mind where God ever called a man to talk only, but once, that was when He told Moses that He would give him Aaron to talk for him. So now let's talk less and do more. As so much has been said about the Congregational and Christian Churches uniting, and at several Conferences and at the Convention the subject has been much discussed, and no difference of any consequence has been found to exist between the two denominations, I think now is the opportune time for some definite action to be taken to bring together the two denominations. I think some of the leading members of the Congregational Church should be invited to the Convention, and there let them express themselves as to how this union may be brought about. Then have a committee appointed to draw up a motion to that effect, and let it come before the Convention for action.

May our thoughts and prayers be centered upon one thing—that is, doing God's will. If it is His will that we should be united, let's make a sacrifice, if need be, as to name or any other insignificant thing, for I do not think we should let any small obstacle hinder us in doing greater things. Christ teaches us in His Word that we all should be as one Church, His Church.

As to the major motions that were passed at the Convention in Norfolk four years ago, and in Durham two years ago, if they have proved to be wise decisions, let's press them forward for greater results. If these motions were not wise, then may we amend them for better results.

Henderson, N. C.

W. A. NEWMAN.

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

There are some people who win a place in human society by reason of faithful service in the community. Among that worthy number may be given the name of Cornelius Hammel Chapman, who was born in Isle of Wight County, Va., on March 22, 1847, and died at his country home in the same county on March 22, 1928, exactly 81 years of age. He had resided on a splendid farm all these years and had cultivated his wide acres with success. This farm was the Chapman homestead, and he had dwelt in that house for fifty-one years. This estate is near Isle of Wight Courthouse, one of the historic spots in Virginia.

He married Miss Hannah Godwin, the sister of Charles Godwin, of Chuckatuck, in Nansemond County, and they lived together for fifty-seven years. He was a planter of the conservative type, and bore the marks of a Virginia gentleman.

There were born unto them ten daughters and one son. The son and one daughter, Miss Nellie, passed away before the father. He is survived by his wife and nine daughters—Mrs. T. J. Christian, Newport News, Va.; Mrs. T. L. Pierce, Baltimore, Md.; Mrs. W. D. Ballard, Crozet, Va.; Mrs. E. R. Barrett, Norfolk, Va.; Mrs. J. C. Hebditch, Havre de Grace, Md.; Mrs. J. W. Jones, Smithfield, Va., and Misses Daisy, Maud and Ethel Chapman, of Isle of Wight County, and one brother, Benjamin P. Chapman, Smithfield.

Mr. Chapman was a member, and the oldest deacon, of the Christian Church at Isle of Wight Courthouse. He and his family have made a remarkable record as workers in that Church, and the history of that Church will be enriched by his works, which do follow him. It is impossible to correctly estimate the value of a Christian family in the Church.

The active pallbearers were nephews, nephews-in-law, and sons-in-law; and the honorary pallbearers were twenty-five noted friends. The services were conducted in the home by Revs. W. W. Staley, W. D. Harward, and G. A. Pearce, at 11 A. M., March 24, 1928. A large company of relatives and friends were sympathetic in attention, while the singers rendered comforting hymns. No service is more touching than a service in the home where neighbors gather to bring their flowers, to express their feelings, and to weep with them that weep. Rev. G. A. Pearce, pastor at this time of the courthouse Church, read the Scripture; Rev. W. D. Harward, former pastor, offered prayer. The flowers were many and beautiful. The day was bright. The hope of all was sure that this pilgrim of more than foreshore years had entered into rest.

The final services were held in the cemetery at Central Hill Baptist Church, where his dear son and daughter had been placed before him.

Not only the home and the Church, but Isle of Wight County will miss this good husband and father, good member and deacon, and good citizen, and true friend. "A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches, and loving favor, rather than silver and gold." There is nothing better than a good country home where a Christian family lives, loves and serves. Cities are great, and great things are accomplished by the millions who crowd the streets and shops; but a sweet country home is a beauty-spot and a joy among the teeming millions of earth. Brother Chapman saw many springs blossom out and many harvests gathered in, but he has gone where the flowers never fade, where there are no graves, and no farewells.

W. W. STALEY.

ELON LETTER.

As the Easter season approaches, instinctively the heart turns to a consideration of the meaning of the Christ and the worth-whileness of the Christian program. Too often we take for granted the way of salvation, and enjoy its blessings without serious concern with reference to its obligations upon us.

At this time it is not my purpose to discuss these matters, important as they are and necessary as it is that we should think upon them and arrive at appreciative conclusions. I shall at this time undertake to study briefly why we should be Christians; or, to put it more concretely, this Elon Letter shall concern itself with a brief statement as to why I myself try to be a Christian.

1. I try to live the Christian life because I am not strong enough nor wise enough to do the best alone. The Christian life is a way of help for the life that is struggling to do its best. Because I need help, therefore, I endeavor to live a Christian.

2. Because I am anxious to realize the highest values in each life situation, I must have standards in terms of which I should judge the consequences of every experience. The Christian life is a life lived in accordance with standards, and for this reason, too, I endeavor to be a Christian.

3. I have noticed that the best people are Christians, and that they try to live by Christian standards. It is sometimes urged that good people are outside the Church and that bad ones are in it. This is all too sadly true, but it is also true that a preponderating number of the good are in the Church and a corresponding number of the wicked are outside. Evidently, it helps good people to try to be Christians, and so I try to be a Christian.

4. I have thought the matter through with great care, and decided that it is my duty to associate myself with the best influences in my community. Of all the institutions that minister to our life, the best, so far as my observation goes, is the Church of Jesus Christ. So I have connected myself with His Church and endeavor to live a Christian.

5. I have studied other religions, many of which are dead, and ten of which are alive today in the world. I have studied them as to their doctrines and as to their outcomes in individual and social character, in personal life and in institutions, in organizations and civilization. My study of these religions has convinced me that Christianity answers by far the most satisfyingly the great issues of life; issues that must be answered if there is to be soul-peace and heart-satisfaction and life-enlargement; issues that relate to the person of God, the nature of man, the world and our destiny. Because I have found the answers of Christianity with reference to these great issues thoroughly satisfying and transcendentally superior to the answers given them by any other religion, I am doing my best to live the Christian life.

6. I have found help in perplexing situations, and light for dark hours, and guidance where the way was rugged and unmarked in my endeavor to live the Christian life. And because I have experienced help and light and guidance, I have come to love the Christian way and rejoice that it is my privilege, weak and ignorant and evil as I am, to try to live the Christian life.

W. A. HARPER.

BETHLEHEM LETTER.

"S O S" call: Must have at once, for Bethlehem College, $10,000!

The after-emergency drive is now on for finances for Bethlehem College, and since the institution is fostered by the entire Convention, and our needs are so urgent, and the college is in the annual budget for $10,000, and the Convention and Finance Board have ruled that the whole territory is open for a canvass by Bethlehem College until her quota is raised, our workers will take the field at once, and any and all courtesies shown them will be highly appreciated by Bethlehem College and her friends.

The college was in the budget last year for $10,000, and received less than $225 as her share from the offerings, and as there was no follow-up drive made by Bethlehem, on account that it was not thought advisable, since one follow-up drive had already been made by Elon College, we closed our work badly in debt, and it has continued to increase ever since. Our teachers have had hardly money enough to keep soul and body together this year, but they are still with us because they are loyal to the Christian Church; but something must be done to relieve the financial condition soon or close the doors with a large debt upon us.

I am sure if the people of means were to realize how hard the folks at Bethlehem are struggling to keep the work going here and the heavy load they are carrying, they would give at least one-half the amount we are asking for themselves. We are hoping and praying that the Lord, whom we serve and whose we are and for whose cause we are training leadership, will open the hearts of some of our large, consecrated givers and direct them to put some of their money down here in this institution of learning, where God knows it is as much needed as anywhere and will yield as much increase and be appreciated even more.

Men of wealth are more and more devoting a part of that wealth to the general good, and as the government permits deductions from income tax not to exceed 15 per cent of the taxable basis, we are hoping that our friends will, when they desire to take advantage of that ruling, turn that amount, or part of it, over to Bethlehem College, and also persuade their affluent friends to do likewise. You may know some philanthropist who would be glad to help a cause so worthy. If you can interest any such, rest assured it will be appreciated. The average man, after all, desires to do the most good he can to and for his fellow-man. The only account upon which we can hope to draw when we have pierced the veil is the good we have done our fellow-man.

Up to date we have received from the college offering less than $225, but we are informed that a large number of Churches have not yet sent in their offering. We hope that they will do so just as soon as possible, for we are needing the money badly; but in the meanwhile we will be working on our $10,000 quota, which, as you can readily see, is a long way off. We need at least one man or woman who will start off with at least $5,000. Who will it be? God help that person to come to the aid of Bethlehem at this time. We shall be glad to report in THE CHRISTIAN SUN from time donations made to this fund.

S. L. BEOUGHIER.

Wadley, Ala.

REVIVAL MEETINGS.

The evangelistic campaign at the Christian Temple closed Sunday night, March 25th. The Church began preparation for the meeting some weeks ago. Organizations were formed and committees appointed. Dr. R. C. Helfenstein, of Dover, Del., was invited to lead the Church in these meetings. For two weeks Dr. Helfenstein spoke to constantly increasing audiences. No special advertisements, no unusual features other than the plain, practical preaching of the old gospel. The people came in good numbers. The gospel is still the most attractive thing yet given to the Church, the faithful presentation of which never fails to attract. Never before in the history of our Church have we had a series of sermons more carefully thought out, more logically arranged or more effectively given than the series brought to us by Dr. Helfenstein. Every message was complete, replete with the Spirit, and brought a heart-appeal to the listener. Our people of the community enjoyed Dr. Helfenstein so much, and will wish for his return.

It is difficult to estimate the benefits of a meeting like this; they cannot be tabulated. There were forty-four decisions for Christ and requests for membership in the Church, the most of whom were received into the Church yesterday. Others will be received next Sunday and on Easter. Splendid results, when you consider the fact that we had but five Sundays since last September that we have not received members into the Temple. We are constantly expecting our program to bear fruit.

Perhaps the greatest benefits of the meeting is being realized within the Church itself. The fires of God began to burn upon the altars of our hearts. It was by far the best meeting for the Church we have had in years. Dr. Helfenstein is doing a great work in Dover for the denomination and for the kingdom at large. May God bless him and increase his kind among us.

L. E. SMITH, Pastor.

WAVERLY CHURCH.

Easter, with its attending thoughts of joy, love and sacrifice, will soon be here. Services will be held in our Church every night of Easter week. Thursday, April 5th, Communion service will be held, and on Easter Sunday morning a sunrise service will be conducted. On Sunday morning men members will be received into the Church.

Our Christian Endeavor Society is an example of what young people can do when once they have found out what they want and in which way to direct their efforts and desires. Plans are now under way to divide our society so that by the first of April we expect to have a lot of young people waiting to join either the senior or junior society. We want to open both societies with new officers, ideas, plans, zeal and an eagerness to make each society the best possible. We want each society to be large and active. The first of April is a specially good time to start the two societies, because the first service will be just before Easter. An attractive program can be worked out that will help to arouse the interest of members and visitors.

The Young People's Missionary Society is by no means inactive. They have already raised their apportionment and are still working. But work isn't the only side that the young people think about. They have socials and study classes, too. A new interest similar to that which is gradually creeping through the whole Church has crept into our Young People's Societies. They are eager for more things to do! They want to accomplish worth-while tasks.

RUTH KNOLLER.

HOPEWELL.

Dr. Staley, Mr. and Mrs. Davis and myself met the Hopewell people at their temporary place of worship on Saturday, the 24th, promptly at 3 o'clock. Dr. Staley presided over the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis gave a musical and song service; prayer was offered by Rev. T. N. Lowe. Rev. Mr. Wood, of the Episcopal Church; Rev. Leake, of the Baptist Church, and Rev. Baldwin, an evangelist, were present.

After the services, all of the pastors, with the entire congregation, proceeded to the lot, where the new Church will be erected. It was a wonderful day, a wonderful service, and everybody was happy. I am glad to say that the pastors of the other Churches rejoiced with us, and were just as happy over the event as the members of the Christian Church. We appreciate their presence and the service rendered.

The Hopewell people were overjoyed to think and know that they were going to have a house of worship of their own in the near future. They would appreciate any assistance any member of the Christian denomination, or friend, might render in the building of this Church. They have the lot paid for and over $1,000 in the treasury. The members of the Christian denomination at Hopewell are to be congratulated on the great work they have done and are doing at Hopewell to build a Christian Church. They have a great future before them, and may God bless them in their efforts.

J. M. DARDEN.

Picture showing breaking of ground by Bro. Sam Leonard Davis, of Norfolk, Va., for the new Christian Church at Hopewell, Va., on Saturday, March 24th. Reading from left: Rev. O. D. Poythress, Rev. Leake, Dr. W. W. Staley, Sam Leonard Davis, Rev. D. D. Nash (Pastor), Rev. T. N. Lowe, and Rev. Cook, who took part in the services.

CROSS ROADS IN MISSIONS.

By DR. WILSON P. MINTON, Sec'y

Foreign Mission, General Convention, Christian Church.

In view of the Principles of the Christian Church, I am profoundly convinced that we have a message which ought to be given to the whole world. It is a fact that a million souls in Japan and seventy thousand in Porto Rico have been definitely allotted to the Christian Church to win to Christ. If we do not win them they will hardly be reached, as the territory in which they live has been given to us to cultivate, and no other denomination is attempting to reach these people. But in addition to this fact that we are responsible for a large number of souls, it is true in a very peculiar way that the Christian Church has the message of Christian unity to bring to the world. And the world needs that message today as never before. It is waiting for it. Especially is this true on the foreign mission field, where the multiplicity of denominations only tends to confuse and bewilder the young Christians over there. Missionaries of various denominations are beginning to see that they cannot hope to win the world unless somehow the forces now working as separate units are brought together to work as one in Christ. Here is the opportunity of the Christian Church.

We profess to believe in the unity of Christ's followers. We have been preaching and teaching that for many, many years. Now we are face to face with the opportunity to practice on the mission field that which we have talked about for so long. It is manifestly not only our duty to win men and women to Christ in Japan and Porto Rico, but to become an outstanding leader in these countries in bringing together the divided forces of Christendom into one solid body of believers in and workers for Christ.

But, brethren, we cannot hope either to win the souls committed to our care or to bring the followers of Christ together until we first of all demonstrate our ability as a people to do a piece of foreign mission work that is really worthy the name. We have not done this yet. We have, it is true, gradually built up a good work in the two countries mentioned. We have added workers and converts and property, and in spite of serious financial handicaps we have been able to make some very commendable progress. But we have not yet attempted a task commensurate with our ability as a people. How can we expect others to listen to our plea for Christian unity on the foreign field for the sake of larger and more effective service to benighted people, until we demonstrate by our own enlarging activities that we have a right to speak? That is the crux of the situation.

Right now we are facing a still further reduction in our overseas work unless sufficient funds are speedily in hand to take care of the deficit and running expenses. The Japan mission will hold its annual session in May. I have written them that I would check up on the financial situation about the first of May, and if the funds received up to that time are not sufficient to warrant the continuation of the program we have approved for this year, I will cable them to begin at that time to make cuts in the work for 1928. The

(Continued on Page 11.)

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Field Secretary.

TO OUR PASTORS.

As you know, our Convention meets on May 1st, and the chairman of the Mission Board has requested that I make a report on missions at this Convention. I am very anxious to make a good one, and I do hope that as many of you as possible will raise the quota at your respective Church or Churches and forward the pledges and money collected to me on or before April 30th, so that I can make a full report. If you have to wait for the last Sunday in April to take the offering on your regular preaching date, please wire me on the 30th at my expense.

I do not know, of course, when you intend to take your missionary offering, but I know you will choose the best date. It just occurred to me that it would be most fitting to take this offering on Easter Sunday, or the nearest possible date thereto. How better can we celebrate the resurrection of our Lord than to make a liberal offering to missions to give the gospel of His resurrection to those who have not been blessed with that gospel? If we really appreciate that event—the greatest single event of all time—we should show our appreciation by sending the good news to those who wait in darkness till we do send it to them.

We gave our offering of Thanksgiving to our children at the Orphanage last fall to show our gratitude to God for His bounty to us during the year. Now, let's give an offering of love and obedience to our Lord to show our gratitude to Him for having given Himself for us and conquered death and the grave for our sakes.

I hope you will consider this, and by all means let's give one-sixth as much in this offering as we pay our pastors for preaching the gospel here and to us.

May I count on you?

Yours in the work,

J. M. DARDEN.

Suffolk, Va.

MISSIONARY MEETING.

Program for the missionary rally of the Alabama Woman's Conference, to be held at Bethany.
Morning Session.

Call to Order by District Leader.

Devotional—Mrs. W. J. Harry.

Hymn—"I Go Where You Want Me to Go."

Scripture Reading—John 20:21; Matt. 28:19; Mrs. W. S. Hood.

Enrollment.

Reports from Societies.

Address—"The Missionary Need in Alabama Conference," Mrs. J. W. Lee.

Discussion—"Chain of Prayer for Our Work," Mrs. W. H. Floyd.

Appointment of Committees.

Duet—"Marcie and Boveen," Hamlin.

Adjournment for Lunch.

Afternoon Session.

Call to Order by District Leader.

Devotional—Mrs. L. H. Houze.

Presentation of Goals—Mrs. L. H. Lisle.

Address—"How to Make Missionary Work More Interesting in Our Local Church," Rev. G. D. Hunt.

Discussion—"What Our Districts are Doing," Mrs. J. W. Collier.

Reports of Committees.

Election of Officers.

Song.

Adjournment.

MRS. J. W. COLLIER,
District Leader.

PROGRESS IN FOREIGN MISSIONS.

We sometimes hear the objection made to foreign missions that it costs too much and that most of the money given never gets to the field, and what does get there is poorly used. The facts are that 86 cents out of every dollar of Christian Church gifts to foreign missions actually is used right on the foreign field. The other fourteen per cent is equally well used for foreign mission work in missionary education here, 3 per cent; co-operative foreign mission enterprises, 3 per cent, and administration, 8 per cent, all of which is vital to the work.

On the field in Japan and Porto Rico the money is most economically used. We challenge you to show any Church in this country rendering more service than this building at Narugo, in the Sendai field. It cost us $1,150. It is the parsonage in which the native worker lives. It is used five days a week as the building for the Christian kindergarten shown in the foreground. It is sometimes used as a night school where working boys come to study the English Bible. And besides all this, it is used for the regular Sunday School and preaching services on Sunday and the prayer meeting on a week night. This combination parsonage-preaching place-kindergarten building is an economical investment of which we are justly proud.

HOW EXTRAVAGANT IS OUR FOREIGN MISSION WORK?

SHARING THE GOOD NEWS.

By MRS. E. L. BEALE.

In this day of modern inventions, the whole world has become one neighborhood. A voice speaking in California may be heard in London, and one may go today from New York to Tokyo in less time than it took his grandfather to cross the State of New York. The whole world has become our neighborhood.

We are eager and glad to carry on extensive commerce with any race or nation. The Standard Oil Company has encircled the globe. The slogan of one tobacco company is a cigarette in the mouth of every Chinese. We are anxious to share such things as oil and tobacco with any or all of our neighbors, but are we so willing and glad to share our Christ?

Jesus told us when He was here among men that we should love our neighbor as ourselves, and can we honestly say we do when we withhold from any of our neighbors Christ and all the blessings that Christ brings into a life? Do we not somehow feel that these blessings we enjoy are principally for us, the white people? Are we just as willing for our brothers, regardless of race, to come in and share and share alike with us? Are we glad to give to our neighbors who have been brought into such close proximity to us by modern science, these same blessings, or do we feel that we are God's favored people and that a large per cent of these blessings are for us? Do we not in most instances give to our neighbors what we have left after all of our desires are satisfied?

Today the Christian Church is responsible for 1,700,000 souls in Japan and Porto Rico. If we, the members of the Christian Church, fail them, they have no other way of knowing about the Christ who died for them.

At this time when special emphasis is being placed on foreign missions and our Mission Board is making a plea to every member of this Church of ours, let us consider it a privilege to share the good news with those who have not heard. Let us in this period when thoughts turn to the cross and to the supreme sacrifice made by our Saviour, be willing to deny ourselves so that we may be able to come with an offering that will be "holy and acceptable in His sight." Let us so fill our hearts with the love of God that we may see in every human being the image of God and recognize in every face, regardless of race or color, our brother. When we have done this, surely we will share the good news with those who are less fortunate than we.

"Ye shall be my witnesses."
Franklin, Va.

EARLY DIAGNOSIS CAMPAIGN.

You may have tuberculosis! Let your doctor decide.

This is the slogan of the campaign that has as its purpose the discovery of unknown and unrecorded cases of tuberculosis in the city of Richmond, and the education of the people along lines of care and prevention.

Tuberculosis, when taken in time, is one of the most easily cured of the chronic diseases. The insidiousness of the disease in attacking the body and developing to an alarming degree before the victim is aware of it, results in the appalling number of incurable patients in our sanatoria. How, then, shall we go about correcting this fault?

The answer lies in the campaign name and slogan—have an early examination; let the doctor decide.

The doctors of Richmond are backing the movement for early diagnosis, and stand ready to teach and to help those who are willing to be examined. If you have any of the following symptoms you are in danger: too easily tired; loss of weight without apparent reason; indigestion, with restlessness and irritability; a cough that hangs on; spitting blood. All or any of these do not mean that you have tuberculosis. "Let Your Doctor Decide."

There will be conducted after March 19th a series of free health clinics where you may at any one of ten different stations throughout the city have a free examination.

PORTO RICO LETTER.

The study of the human nature is one of the interesting, also fascinating, subjects in our educational program. For the last five months I have been studying with a great interest the habits, customs and the characteristics of these good people, which has helped me to be able to make my future plans as to how deal with them. Yes, they are very hard to be classified as a race, due to their admixture. Yet this hospitality and friendly attitude toward one another, and especially toward the stranger, makes them a distinguished people. I have learned to love them and have cultivated a great desire of doing all that is in my power to help them to see the highest things in life, and I am in hopes, through the help of our Heavenly Father, that when I begin my regular work I would be able to accomplish the purpose for which I came.

A few sketches from my diary will give you further light on my life here.

February 16: Took my language lesson, wrote an article and translated in Spanish, and learned ten new words. In the afternoon the leaders for the C. E. service came to get some help in making the program for the evening. As it is very hot until 4:30 P. M., it is necessary for me to stay in. Therefore, I start making visits after 4:30. Today I had a very delightful visit with only one poor family. It was a sad story to listen to, but I enjoy it to the fullest, and I was happy that I could help the mother a little with my broken Spanish. Indeed, my visiting is helping me to learn the language fast. I try to learn ten words daily, and practice them as I talk to these people. Attended a meeting at night.

February 17: Dona Ielfina called at 7:30 A. M. We started to walk to the country, where we were invited to spend the day. It was a very hot day, but we enjoyed the morning breeze. When we reached there, a real Porto Rican dinner was waiting for us. I enjoyed it greatly, as there were many new dishes which I had not seen nor eaten before. After dinner we had a very interesting, also impressive, song service, which the whole family enjoyed.

As it was necessary for me to be in Ponce at 3:30 to have my Sunbeam Class, we left this good family at 2:30 and reached the Church in time for the classes. There were fifteen dear little smiling faces anxiously waiting to begin. On Saturday afternoon the little Sunbeam Class enjoyed a very interesting program, led by the different members of the class. Then a program of hand-work, songs, stories and games always follows our devotional service.

From 5 to 6 P. M. I had opportunity to prepare my teaching outline for the evening program. At 7:30 P. M. my training class started. Here we set aside ten minutes to offer special prayer for our beloved Dr. Atkinson, so that he may receive his health and again take up his good work. After our prayer service, we continued with our lesson study.

Sunday, February 19th was a full day from morning till evening. I had a large number in my Bible class.

February 22nd, as you remember, was the fifteenth anniversary of our Ponce Church, but I am sorry to say we were not able to have our special service on that day. On this day the young people's congress of the whole island held a one-day conference at Ponce, which was one of the most interesting conferences I have witnessed since I have been on the island. There were present over 100 enthusiastic young men and women representing the different Protestant Churches.

Indeed, it is encouraging to see the youth of the island trying to lift their ignorant race. The time is at hand when the youth will be the salvation of this island from unclean social and moral living. Therefore, it is up to our Christian leaders to try to introduce the ideals of higher life in connection with educational programs.

It is necessary to forget the old, old methods of approaching the people of many years ago. The youth of the island are no more ignorant. They are ready to undertake the best that is in life if they are led by Christian leaders. Why not give our young people in our Churches an opportunity to develop Christian leadership? Let us also specially pray for our young people's societies.

February 24: A very successful program was given for the celebration of our fifteenth anniversary. Many gifts were presented to the Church by the different members. A wall clock in particular was presented, and special speeches and music were enjoyed. We need your prayers.

Ponce, P. R.

VICTORIA E. ADAMS.

AN OPEN LETTER.

Dear Cousin Oscar:

