That spiritual sunrise in that sacred old city had begun to shine already in the uttermost parts of the earth. But as I have said, it had to shine first in the hearts of a few followers. It had to shine so effectively that they were willing to risk their lives in the belief that witnessing it to others would bring results.

III.

A lie will not do as much to the world as the story of the resurrection of Jesus Christ has done. But that sunrise, or dayspring, may be darkened with clouds of doubt today unless it shall directly into the hearts of those who love him, and give them a new courage and a new faith.

As a young man, I have often come home to my father's house late at night, and have felt hungry for the fresh ripe fruit in the apple orchard. On dark, cloudy nights I have sought it from the trees. There they were, so far as my eye could detect, nothing but leaves.

Yes, from Christmas to Easter we have gone over the whole life of Jesus; we have recognized the fact that so far as the pages of history are concerned the "dayspring from on high hath visited us"; and now from Easter to Pentecost Sunday let us set ourselves to the task of opening the windows of our individual lives to the shining within ourselves of that ancient, yet ever new Sunrise!

Let us seek to see in what ways we may make risks for the sake of that "dayspring from on high." Let us seek to see how we may cause the visitation to be extended as the disciples extended it.

And if, and when there are days of darkness, even the thick black darkness of night, crowding upon us let us know that on the tree there is more than leaves—that there is real fruit, and that "the dayspring from on high" will reveal it to us.

Again that "dayspring from on high" will drive out darkness and doubt; we who may be weak in our witness for him will be mighty through him both in deed and in word. We may never see the sunrise over the sacred city of Jerusalem, but we shall see it rise over a New Jerusalem where "the city hath no need of the sun, neither of the moon to shine in it; for the glory of God did lighten it, and the Lamb is the light thereof . . . and the kings of the earth do bring their glory and honor into it."

Until that time may we hear him saying, "Ye are the light of the world."

Let us not forget that life is brief; that time hurries, and that what we do to make our memories of earth beautiful in heaven, and heaven itself more populous forever, must be done at once.—The Presbyterian Record.

COMMUNION WARE.

Individual Service.

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM.

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A.

- Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses $7.00
Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses 6.75
Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses 6.50
Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10. 2.25
Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10. 2.25
Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim. 1.60

(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)

SILVER-PLATED.

The Silver-plated Ware is of the very highest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.

- Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses.$22.00
Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85. 11.00
Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85. . . 16.00
Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling). $22.00
Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90. . 16.00
Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90. 14.00

- Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow Rim. $ 9.00
Bread Plate No. 4—Broad Rim. 9.00
Filler—Silver Lined. 6.00

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street

Richmond, Virginia

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

We have mailed to the superintendents of the Sunday Schools a copy of our plan of organization for our Thanksgiving offering and a copy for each teacher. We trust each teacher will begin now to get his or her class enthused over raising a large Thanksgiving offering this year. Start in time to sell something to get money to put in the offering. One of the little boys at the Orphanage got a little job to do some work for a lady in town and on the following Sunday contributed a good portion of what he made to the Sunday School. That little boy has but little chance to make money, but he gladly contributed his mite.

Every little boy and girl can contribute something to earn a few dimes to help the little fellows here. Give the little fellows a chance in your school to do something between now and Thanksgiving and you will be surprised at the results.

Some years ago I knew a little girl five years old who was interested in the Orphanage children and wanted to help them. She would go down the street with her mother shopping, and carried a Thanksgiving envelope with her and asked those whom she met to give her some money for the orphans, and she raised twelve dollars. She was given a chance to do something and she accomplished something worth while.

We received the following letter a few days ago and we give it here as it comes unsolicited and from one who spent a day and night with us to see the Orphanage as it is:

Corapeake, N. C., October 9, 1933.

Mr. Chas. D. Johnston,
Elon College, N. C.

Dear Mr. Johnston:

I feel ashamed of myself for waiting so long to write you and tell you of my trip to Elon on Homecoming Day. It is such a busy time on the farm.

I certainly did enjoy every minute that I was at the Orphanage and must say that you have a very nice place for the homeless children. Everything is so clean and plenty to eat, besides so much courtesy. All of these put together couldn't give anything but a nice enjoyable time.

I am glad there is such a nice home for the fatherless and motherless and homeless children, so that they may be taken good care of and given the right kind of training.

I had never seen our Orphanage before, but since I have seen it, and the way it is carried on, should a boy or girl of my church or community have to go there, I will feel that they will be cared for in the right way and get the right kind of training. I don't think anyone could say too much for the Orphanage after seeing it as much as I did.

Wishing you a better success in the future, and may the children be cared for as well as they are now, I remain,
Sincerely yours,
B. B. FRANKLIN.

We are always glad to have people visit us and see what we are trying to do here for the fatherless and then when they go back to their church, tell them something of the impressions the Orphanage made on them.

Begin now to work for the Thanksgiving offering in your church and Sunday School.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON, Supt.

REPORT FOR OCTOBER 19, 1933.

Brought forward $ 9,622.67

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

North Carolina and Virginia Conference:

Apple's Chapel	$ 3.77
Greensboro, Palm St.	6.00
Durham	15.35
Salem Chapel	1.60
New Lebanon	5.90

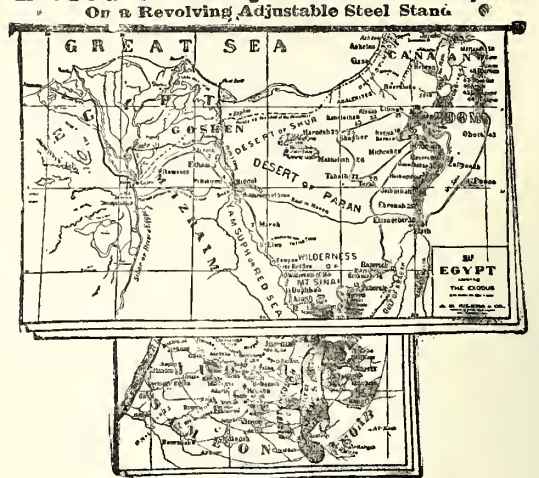

Eastern North Carolina Conference:
Piney Plains	$ 7.75
Oak Level	2.51
Antioch	2.25
	12.51
Western North Carolina Conference:
Burlington	$ 28.33
Pleasant Cross	1.50
Pleasant Ridge	2.06
Ramseur	3.00
Seagrove	2.50
Ether55
	37.94
Valley Virginia Central Conference:
Leaksville	$ 1.69
Timber Ridge	1.34
Mayland	1.00
	4.03
Alabama Conference:
Beulah	4.47
Special Offerings.
Refund on freight	$ 17.10
T. B. Roberts, support children..	24.00
	41.10
Total for the week	$ 132.67
Grand total	$ 9,755.34

NOTICE OF CONFERENCE MEETING.

The Eastern North Carolina Conference will hold its annual session with the Wentworth Christian Church, at McCuller's N. C., November 21st and 22nd, beginning at 10 o'clock, A. M. All churches are urged to send up full delegations, all delegates and ministers are requested to be present at the opening session and remain until the close of Conference.

W. C. WICKER, President,
Eastern North Carolina Conference.

Eilers Sunday School Maps.

The first 5 maps are in Set No. 1, with stand,
Price $ 15 00

Set No. 2
8 Maps,
Price $ 20 00

Five large Maps, in 6 Colors 26x37, on linen finished Cloth. Mounted on a folding steel stand, which can be regulated, so that Maps may be seen to the best advantage. This set contains data for thorough Bible Study. Its large print and cheerful Colors makes this set very instructive and attractive. Contains the five thoroughly up to date Maps necessary to the study of Bible History. — New Testament Palestine. — Old Testament Palestine. — Roman Empire and Bible Lands, showing Paul's Travels by Colored lines. — Lands of the Old Testament, from the Great Sea, to the Persian Gulf. — The Exodus, Egypt, showing by Colored lines the wanderings of the Israelites.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN
1536 East Broad Street
Richmond, Virginia

HOLMAN SUPERIOR TEACHERS' BIBLES

Authorized Version—Self-Pronouncing The Best Editions of the World's Best Book

For Adults, Teachers, Preachers, Students, and All Who Would Study the Word of God Intelligently

BOLD BLACK TYPE—COMPACT SIZE 4½x6¾ INCHES—WILL FIT THE COAT POCKET

Part page specimen of Holman Boldblack Type Bible
ST. MATTHEW, 5. Christ's sermon on the mount.

13 And leaving Naz'a-réth, he came and dwelt in Ca-per'na-úm, which is upon the sea coast, in the borders of Záb'u-lon and Néph'tha-lim:	A. D. 31.	934 CHAPTER 5.
14 That it might be fulfilled	CHAP. 4.	3 Who are blessed, 13 The disciples called the salt of the earth, and light of the world; Christ's example, etc.
	Is. 9. 1, 2. Luke 4. 14.	AND seeing the multitudes, he went up into a moun-

THIS NEW HOLMAN TEACHERS' BIBLE. Pronouncing Text. Bold Black Type is a PRONOUNCED SUCCESS. The latest Bible with NEW HELPS that are quite comprehensive and consist of an Illustrated Bible Dictionary, Concordance and additional aids all under ONE ALPHABETICAL INDEX. Also Fine Maps on Coated Paper, and a specially prepared BIBLE READING COURSE, intended to stimulate and maintain interest in the Bible. Imported Bible paper is used to improve opacity and keep down bulk. By this means you get the benefit of full Biblical information without the physical discomfort of handling a heavy volume.

STYLES AND PRICES—BIBLE PAPER EDITION
4612. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges.....		$4.00
4630. Same as 4612, with extra leather lined covers.....		4.75
THIN INDIA PAPER EDITION
With Helps as described above. Size 4½x6¾ inches. One inch in thickness
630X. Egyptian Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings, red under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker.....		7.00
633X. Algerian Morocco, divinity circuit, leather lining to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, extra quality binding.....		8.00

EXTRA LARGE PRINT TEACHERS' BIBLES

Large 8 Vo. Size—8x5½ inches—1600 Pages, including 400 pages of Bible Study Helps

Part Page Specimen of Print

ST. MATTHEW, 5. Christ's sermon on the mount.

15 The land of Záb'u-lon, and the land of Néph'tha-lim, by the way of the sea, beyond Jór'dan, Gal'i-lee of the Gén'tiles;	A. D. 31.	2 And he opened his mouth, and taught them, saying,
	Is. 9. 1, 2. Luke 4. 14.	3 Blessed are the poor in spirit: for their's is the kingdom of heaven.

CONTAINING COMPLETE HELPS TO BIBLE STUDY, INCLUDING ALL OF THE FOLLOWING FEATURES
A New Practical Course in Bible Reading, A Treasury of Biblical Information. The most carefully compiled, thorough and attractive form in which valuable Biblical information has ever been prepared. Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary Containing 150 illustrations, concise definitions and textual references on nearly 50,000 subjects. A Practical Comparative Concordance, with nearly 50,000 references. Four Thousand Questions and Answers on the Old and New Testaments. A valuable Help to all Bible Readers.

STYLES AND PRICES
4712. Divinity Circuit (overlapping covers), French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, silk head bands, and silk marker.....		$5.00
812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament, Old Testament Passages alluded to by Christ, various prophecies relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above on 4712 and same large Self-Pronouncing type.....		6.00
733X. Holman India Paper, Genuine Morocco, leather lined, silk sewed, divinity circuit, round corners carmine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and helps as above.....		10.65

All styles sent Postpaid at above prices—Thumb Index 50 cents extra

Extra spacing between words and lines makes this Bible very easy to read.

A Story for the Children

GIVING.

Monty Price became a Christian when he was quite a youth; and, as he sang the consecration hymn:

"Take my silver and my gold,
Not a mite would I withhold,"

Monty really meant it!

He hadn't any gold, but he earned twenty shillings in silver every week. Out of that he had to give his widowed mother as much as she wanted, and she wanted a good deal; but he had made up his mind to give God one-tenth of everything he earned.

In ten weeks he had a pound saved. Just then the people at the chapel got up a scheme to build new Sunday Schools, and it was well they did, for they were needed, and Monty never forgot how glad he was when he was able to say he would give a pound towards it. His mother was present at the meeting when he not only promised it, but handed it over, and when she got home she was quite angry.

"It's far more than you can afford, you silly boy," she said. "You know you'll want it before the winter to get yourself an overcoat."

"Don't worry, mother!" was his cheerful reply. "That overcoat will come all right!" And it did.

He was going through a small passage in an old-fashioned street leading from Holborn, in London, when he caught sight in the window of an old furniture shop of a small metal pot which looked very dirty. He took it up and examined it carefully. It had a beautiful shape, but my, it was grimy, too grimy to touch.

"I don't think you'll sell that," he said to the man. "It's far too dirty!"

"I don't suppose I shall. But it came in with a lot of other things, and I may get a few pence for it."

Monty pricked up his ears, and at once offered the man sixpence, which the latter gladly accepted.

Monty took the pot home, and the first thing he did was to wash it thoroughly, and when he had dried it, he looked at it again.

Yes, there was no doubt about it, it was beautifully engraved. If only he could bring those lines up!

So he stood the pot in hot water with just a little soda in it, and when he took it out most of the dirt in the lines had come away. Then he rubbed some grease into it. Then he got rid of the grease with more hot water, and by this time the beautiful lines began to show up very clearly. But it was not enough for Monty. He took a very fine penknife and deliberately set to work to trace every one of those beautiful lines more clearly still.

It took a long time, but when he had finished he polished it up with some metal polish and a bit of washleather, and there at last, it stood, a really beautiful thing. He gave it to the bazaar, and to his delight it took the fancy of a rich woman who was very keen on brass work, and she gave him two guineas for it.

That sacrifice of Monty's time and trouble was a real gift, and it made his heart glow. But it did more than this, it opened his eyes to the value of other old things he might pick up and restore in the same way, and by the time winter came he had made so much money at it that he could have bought two or three overcoats.

This convinced even his mother, and, as the years passed on, Monty got more and more money, and gave more and more away, she never grumbled a bit. The more he gave, the more he seemed to get. Something was always happening to help Monty. It seemed as if some invisible hand were pushing him along. He called it "God blessing me," and I think it was as good an explanation as any other.

That was the spirit of Barnabas.—By Wolfe Street in Baptist Times.

CONFERENCES WILL MEET.

The Eastern Virginia Conference will meet with Holy Neck Christian Church, near Holland, Va., on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, November 1st, 2nd and 3rd. Opening session 10 o'clock Wednesday morning.

The Western North Carolina Conference will meet with the Ramseur Christian Church, Ramseur, N. C., on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, November 7th, 8th and 9th.

The North Carolina and Virginia Conference will meet with Union Christian Church, Alamance County, N. C., on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, November 14th, 15th and 16th.

The Eastern North Carolina Conference will meet on Tuesday and Wednesday, November 21st and 22nd. Place to be published later.

The Georgia State Conference will meet with the United Church, LaGrange, Ga., Tuesday and Wednesday, October 31st and November 1st. Rev. J. H. Dollar, president of the conference, is also pastor of the entertaining church.

The man who toots his own horn soon has everybody dodging when he approaches.—Boston Transcript.

ELON COLLEGE

AN ACCREDITED COLLEGE

of the

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING.

ELON COLLEGE, founded by the Christian Church in 1889, has fully justified the faith and hope of its founders during its 42 years of operation. Its graduates from the four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree, number 980, now living, 122 of whom are in the Christian Ministry and full-time Christian service. The majority of these are members of our own denomination. In addition, 449 are in educational work and are an active influence in the lay leadership of the Christian Church.

THE CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING, and the definite religious atmosphere of the College, provide the very best facilities available for training for religious leadership, and offer the Church its finest opportunity to train the young people of the denomination to assume active leadership both in the ministry and laity of the local churches.

FALL TERM OPENS SEPTEMBER 7th.

Address—

C. M. CANNON, Registrar

Elon College. - - - North Carolina

Home Atmosphere—Reasonable Rates—Clean Athletics—Christian Spirit

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr
A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Congregational-Christian Church.

Central Publishing Co., Inc., is complying with the President's Code

BOARD OF EDITORS.

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D. Editor
E. C. GILLETTE, D. D. Associate
S. C. HARRELL, D. D. Contributing
C. R. RAYMOND, D. D. Contributing
ELISHA A. KING, D. D. Contributing
W. C. WICKER, D. D. Contributing
J. T. KERNODLE Managing Editor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Year $2.00
Six Months 1.00

Trial Subscriptions: Five or more new subscriptions sent in at one time by pastor or president of any church organization, three months for 40c each.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Change of Address: Be sure to give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

All news matter and items to be published in "The Sun" should be addressed to J. O. Atkinson, Editor, Elou College, N. C., and should reach him not later than Friday preceding date of publication. If more convenient, news from Congregational Churches may be sent to E. C. Gillette, Associate Editor, 117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla. Emergency notices will be received at the Richmond Office up until Tuesday of week of publication.

All remittances for subscriptions, renewals, advertising, etc., books for review, and other matters of business should be addressed to J. T. Kernodle, Managing Editor, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

Notices: Obituary and marriage notices, limited to 125 words, published free. All over 125 words, 1c a word, cash with notice. No notices should exceed 250 words.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows date of expiration, and change on label will appear the first or second issue of the month following renewal, provided it was received before the 25th. No other receipt will be sent unless requested. Please notify the Richmond Office if label is not changed as above.

OBITUARIES

HESTER.

On July 17, 1933, God in his love and wisdom called Mrs. Dora Lee Hester to mansions above. We, the members of the Ladies' Aid and Missionary Society of Long's Chapel Church, of which Mrs. Hester was a most loyal and faithful member, wish to offer the following resolutions:

1. That the members of the Aid and Missionary Society feel that her going from us was the will of our heavenly Father, who doeth all things well.
2. The Society feels that we have lost a true and faithful member, always loyal to her church which she loved so well. She will be greatly missed and long remembered for her good deeds.
3. That her children have lost one from their circle whose life was a benediction. With sympathy we commend them to the Lord, who promised to never leave nor forsake us.
4. We extend to the church, the Society and her dear family our deepest sympathy.
5. That these resolutions be recorded on our minutes, a copy sent to the family, and a copy to "The Christian Sun" for publication.

MRS. P. R. WEAVER,
MRS. W. E. BARNETTE,
MRS. J. A. WYATTE,
MRS. J. WALTER JOHNSTON.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

We, the members of Johnson Grove Church and Sunday School humbly bow in submission to God's will in removing by death from our midst one of our most loyal and faithful members, Mr. Alex Bradshaw. Mr. Alex, as he was familiarly called, had served as Treasurer and Deacon of the church, and superintendent of the Sunday School for twenty years, and taught the Men's Bible Class for twenty years. Forty years of loyal and faithful service to Johnson's Grove Sunday School and Church.

Therefore, be it resolved:
1. That we, as members of Johnson's Grove Church and Sunday School seek to emulate his noble example, that we keep before us the memory of his loyalty and devotion to Christ and his teachings. records, a copy sent to "The Christian Sun" and a copy sent to his sister. 2. That our heavenly Father remain always with his loved ones. Grace and strength protect by all that was good in his life. 3. That a copy of these resolutions be spread on the Church and Sunday School records, a copy sent to "The Christian Sun" and a copy sent to his sister. M. H. DOYLE,

H. V. THORNTON,
MRS. B. F. HANCOCK.

PIEDMONT COLLEGE

Located in

"The Blue Ridge Highlands"

FALL TERM BEGINS
SEPTEMBER 13.

An accredited college with an enviable reputation for superior classroom instruction, and wholesome student life.

Fully recognized and accredited in its home State, and in such neighboring States as North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Tennessee and others. Standard courses leading to the A. B. and B. S. degrees.

Cost for Board, Room and Tuition, including also Entrance, Activity, and Infirmary fees reduced to $273.50 for the College Year. Personal expenses as low as student and parent wish.

All who seek an "A" grade college training for their sons and daughters in an atmosphere of Christian culture, and at minimum cost, are invited to write for the college catalogue and admission blanks.

Address: DEAN J. C. ROGERS,
DEMOREST, GEORGIA.

Southern Seminary Foundation

(Successor to Atlanta Theological Seminary.)

AFFILIATED WITH

Vanderbilt University

The Foundation and the other Foundations that are affiliated with Vanderbilt University School of Religion comprise the only Interdenominational Theological School in the South. Through this affiliation the students enjoy the rights and privileges of Vanderbilt University.

DEGREES.

Candidates for degrees are required to have completed their college courses.

The degree of Bachelor of Divinity is offered to qualified students who complete the required courses.

Vanderbilt University also offers the degrees of Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy, in accordance with the regulations established in its several departments.

MORE THAN A SCHOOL OF THEOLOGY.

Because of our affiliation with Vanderbilt, our relations with other nearby colleges where our students can take courses without tuition, and the cooperation of the American Red Cross and other social agencies in the city, we prepare students for many types of Christian service.

Come to Nashville, the Educational Center of the South, and prepare for Christian leadership. A Graduate School open to both men and women, with opportunities for self-help.

For information write

WILLIAM JAMES CAMPBELL, President,
330 BUTTRICK HALL, VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY,
NASHVILLE, TENN.

SOUTHERN UNION COLLEGE

FRANK E. JENKINS, Acting President.

NEXT SCHOLASTIC YEAR WILL BEGIN
SEPTEMBER 6th.

* * * *

STRONG FACULTY : STRONG COURSES
LOW EXPENSES : THOROUGHLY
CHRISTIAN.

* * * *

A Large Attendance in Prospect.

For prospectus and full information, write

DEAN MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD,
WADLEY, ALABAMA

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Representing the Southeast Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXV.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, OCTOBER 26, 1933.

NUMBER 43.

•• THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY ••

The Rockefeller Plan of Control.—

The Liquor Control Plan of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., one-time "Dry," contains the following recommendations: State control and monopoly of liquor sales; elimination of profit; liberalization of control of beer and wine; avoidance of high taxes, taxing for control rather than for revenue; rigid control of liquor advertising; abolition of license systems; and the avoidance of an attempt to be bone dry.

Deladier Resigns.—

The French Cabinet, headed by Premier Deladier, resigned on last Tuesday, after being refused a vote of confidence by a vote of 328 to 241. The premier went down to defeat fighting for a balanced budget for the French Government, and his defeat was probably brought about by his insistence that the salaries of government officials be cut. The entire socialistic ballot was thrown against him.

The Farmer Must Be Better Off.—

According to figures sent to the White House during the past week, the average prices which the farmer received for his products from March to October of the present year were 32 per cent higher than they were for the same period of 1932. Prices of the things which he buys have gone up in the same period only 11 per cent. These figures are for the entire nation, and there may be certain sections in which they do not hold good, but taking things as a whole, the farmer's condition must be somewhat improved.

William Doak Victim of Heart Attack.—

William N. Doak, labor leader, and Secretary of Labor in the Hoover cabinet, died at his home at McLean, Va., on October 23rd. His death occurred in his 51st year. Doak was legislative representative of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen from 1916 until his appointment to the cabinet, and was opposed in that appointment by William Green because his union did not affiliate with the American Federation of Labor. He was the first Secretary of Labor to be born in the United States, his two predecessors, Senator Jas. J. Davis, of Pennsylvania, and William B. Wilson, having been born in the British Isles.

Deposit Insurance.—

January 1st is the dead line for banks to qualify to offer deposit insurance to their customers. Application blanks were sent out to the various banks on September 16th, and one month later 2,725 out of the 8,509 non-member State banks had returned their application for membership in the fund. Others are returning theirs at the rate of 200 a day. Wall Street takes the rather gloomy view that there will be many banks that cannot qualify, but the Administration does not agree. The policy in determining qualification is expected to be lenient, and "the test will be solvency rather than liquidity," we are informed.

District of Columbia Would Be Dry —

Strange as it may seem, the District of Columbia will be continued to be governed by the Volstead Act, even though the Eighteenth Amendment be repealed. Attorney-General Cummings is the authority for the statement that "he is of the opinion that after repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment" the present dry law would still be in "full force and effect" in the District of Columbia, Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands and the Canal Zone. There is, of course, small doubt that the Volstead Act will be rescinded by the next Congress.

Moses' Grave Marker Found.—

The Franciscan archaeological expedition now working on Mount Nebo claim that they have found a stone which was said by early Christians to have marked the grave of Moses. The Bible states that he was buried on Mount Nebo after having led the children of Israel within sight of the Promised Land, and a church was established on this mountain some time in the fourth or fifth century, A. D. This church, we are told, was visited by St. Sylvia of Acquitain, an early Christian pilgrim, and the stone found in front of the pulpit was pointed out to him as the tomb of Moses. The above is the story as the writer found it, and he does not vouch for its truth.

North Carolinians Might Consider This.—

Those "Drys" in North Carolina who have decided to stay at home next Tuesday week, might well consider the following: "Hard liquors are to be sold in Virginia through a system of State dispensaries . . . and in all probability there will be no limit on the amount that may be purchased." In Virginia, there has been appointed a Liquor Commission to work out the system to be used in dispensing liquor, and the quotation above is given as the probable recommendation of that commission. Beer, ale, wine and champagne are likely to be sold by private licensees. These, also, will have no limit in quantity. There is little choice between the above and the old time bar. Don't blame the wets if you stay at home and they do something that you don't want done.

The New York Mayoralty Fight.—

Entering its last fortnight, the campaign for the Mayoralty election in New York City waxes warmer and warmer. The Tammany candidate must be enjoying the viciousness with which the Fusion nominee, Fiorello H. LaGuardia, and the independent Democrat, Joseph V. McKee, are attacking each other. Among other things, the religious issue has been introduced into the campaign. It is quite a pity that Mr. McKee did not signify that he wanted the post of Mayor before the fusionists decided upon LaGuardia, or remain out of the campaign. Either of these candidates would be preferable to Mayor O'Brien, and with the other out of the race, would have run a good race. Only by barest chance or a stampede can either hope to win without the other's support. It looks like Mr. O'Brien will keep his job. The Tiger's claws are still sharp.

A Bear Story.—

On an August visit to the Montana Summer Assembly grounds on the Boulder River, Supt. Claton S. Rice discovered that the assembly hall had been broken into. He wrote at the time, "Recently a great grizzly bear has been terrorizing that section, and may have broken into our cabin, but I can't see why he should want to sleep on a mattress." The rest of the story comes from a local newspaper: "After providing a three-week reign of terror to residents along the upper Boulder River, Old Scarface, ex-king of the Yellowstone Park grizzlies, was killed Friday. Sheriff Floyd Bailey and Oscar Falling of Big Timber trapped the huge silver-tip grizzly that weighed between 800 and 1,000 pounds. The death of Old Scarface, chased out of the Yellowstone Park last spring when a younger male defeated him in combat, was not accomplished until he had caused the killing of a horse by a marksman who mistook it for Scarface. The bear was trapped Friday morning at the Jarrett cabin, two or three miles above the Fleming ranch."—Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty.

An Undivided Denomination.—

There seems to be at least one denomination in our country that is not divided on questions of faith. All other denominations, of which we have any knowledge, have a liberal and a conservative wing. The differences are more pronounced in some denominations than in others. The United Presbyterian denomination seems as near a solidarity in opposing liberalism and all its implications as can be found. Because it found the theology and trend of "Re-Thinking Missions" so distinctly rationalistic it rejected it as a whole, refusing to concede its values along practical lines. The United Presbyterian ministers in Buffalo and vicinity have issued a statement affirming their unwavering faith in the virgin birth of Christ, the deity of Christ and the atonement wrought by his blood shed on Calvary. The statement also says, "Furthermore, there is no division among the ministers of the United Presbyterian Church on these doctrines." In such a day as ours it is good to hear of one undivided denomination. Beyond all question, the divided condition of our leading denominations goes far toward explaining the deficits in our missionary treasuries.—Watchman-Examiner.

NOTES-PERSONALS

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

Dr. and Mrs. Lewis H. Keller have taken residence at Penney Memorial Foundation, Penney Farms, Fla. Dr. Keller was formerly Extension Board Secretary for the Southeast, later becoming President of Atlanta Seminary. Dr. Keller will be available for occasional supply preaching. The Congregational colony at the Penney Memorial is steadily growing.

Rev. D. M. Spence, Lillington, N. C., one of our good Elon College graduates, and also a graduate of the Vanderbilt School of Religion, Nashville, Tenn., will be glad to correspond with a church or churches now open for and desiring a pastor. Prior to beginning his post-graduate work at Nashville, Brother Spence was pastor at Henderson, N. C., and at Ocean View, Va., at both of which places he was held in high esteem.

From Dr. G. O. Lankford comes the following: "Mrs. Lankford, Wilbur and I arrived at Memorial Home Community, Penney Farms, Fla., on Friday, October 20th. We have been most cordially received, are comfortably and pleasantly situated and I am ready for that rest and recreation in Florida's balmy breezes and invigorating sunshine, that I hope will return me in vigor and strength to the work of the ministry which I love so much."

Rev. R. E. Ward, of the Mt. Airy Circuit, M. E. Church, South, writes with deep appreciation: "Rev. H. C. Caviness held a two weeks' meeting at Salem Church on the Mt. Airy Circuit, which meeting closed September 10th. Bro. Caviness is a great preacher and Mrs. Caviness does wonderful work with the women and young people. There were thirty-five professions in the meeting and fifteen gave their names for church membership. The meeting was a great blessing to the whole community."

On a recent Sunday, Rev. Russell J. Clinchy, pastor of Mt. Pleasant Congregational Church, Washington, D. C., was the preacher at the 11 o'clock hour at the Elon College Church. Dr. Clinchy's visit, though brief, was greatly enjoyed and his message was an exceedingly timely one from the topic, "Great Needs of a Modern Era." The manuscript, on request, was given us and we are pleased to print the same in THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and it certainly will more than repay any SUN reader to take time to go carefully through this sermon preached from the text: "Make me as one of thy hired servants." All of us need discipline of our spiritual lives, and in this sermon, Dr. Clinchy speaks grippingly of that discipline, of its restraints and its conquests.

Dr. Martyn Summerbell, president, Palmer Institute, Starkey Seminary, writing under date Lakemont, N. Y., October 13th, sends the encouraging news: "Our school is doing well with the fine class of students," and then a further note is given touching a matter of interest to some SUN readers: "Am just back from Fall River, Mass., where the directors of the Christian Camp Meeting Association met Tuesday, the 10th, Dr. Sargent of Providence, president. Routine business was transacted and arrangements made in extenso for the next summer, both for the Association and for the Summer School, which is held early in July. As is well known this is one of the most popular beach properties on the Atlantic Coast, with hundreds bathing every day during the season. Plans were presented for considerable improvement in the approach to the beach and the arrangement of the bath-houses. As usual there was a full attendance at the meeting and a harmonious session."

The Christian Century, October 11th, has the following interesting paragraph: "Dr. M. Ashby Jones, noted Baptist minister, will assume the pulpit of the Central Congregational-Christian Church, Atlanta, on October 1st. This announcement will be of wide interest for many reasons. Dr. Jones, long a leading thinker and outspoken advocate of social application of the Gospel, retired two years ago from the pastorate of the Second Baptist Church, St. Louis. He has been living in Atlanta since that time. The invitation from the Congregational church pulpit committee stated the case as follows: 'While Dr. Jones is a Baptist minister, a former pastor of the Ponce de Leon Baptist Church here, his teachings have been so liberal and his activities so largely interdenominational, that his congregations both here and elsewhere have been made up of many with no regular church affiliations. That this will likewise be the case at Central Congregational Church is the expressed wish of the church.' Of interest in the acceptance of this invitation to become guest preacher of the church is the fact that Dr. Jones will be returning to his old pulpit, since the present church building of the Congregational Church was purchased from the congregation of the Ponce de Leon Baptist Church about a year ago. Dr. Jones succeeds the late Dr. William T. McElveen, who died last April."

REPLENISHED.

Last Sunday, October 15th, my automobile at Bethlehem Church was moved by someone, and I know not by whom.

To my great surprise and delight, it was found. Yes, it had been moved right up to the church door. But that was not all. It was packed full of various and sundry kinds of food, suited even to the appetite of an epicure. Sugar, honey, ham, molasses, flour, preserves of various kinds, and various kinds of jelly, canned and uncanned fruits and canned vegetables, white and sweet potatoes, box of socks and toilet articles, money, and little Robert Faucette, bless his heart, gave pop-corn and peanuts.

Saturday, at quarterly meeting, Sister R. V. Moore, treasurer, paid me a nice amount of money on salary. I tell you it did not look like hard times to Mrs. Patton and me. The truth of it is, the blessed Lord is so good to people that many of us do not know how to appreciate his loving benedictions.

I stood upon the rear bumper of the car, called the large audience, standing around, to attention, and began to try to talk. I tried to thank the people; I tried to tell them how Mrs. Patton and I were so grateful; but as I spoke, the tears fell, my voice was choked with deepest emotion, my heart overcome with thankfulness. So, I just stepped down, knowing that the gratitude of the receiver is a prayer to God for the giver, and God hears it.

Into that loaded car I crawled, and was going to start. And, lo! One came up and said, "Are you going?" And he brought me another sack of flour. I started, winding my way through the crowd, and behold, here came Brother Clyde Iseley with one dozen cans of canned goods. What was I to do? Mrs. Patton had not yet gotten into the car. What was she to do? Walk?

Well, we went home with brother and sister John Cantrel for dinner. Oh, my, what a dinner! We enjoyed that dinner; I'll say we did!

But the biggest, sweetest, most lasting gift of all was the gift of love. Things that are seen are temporal, but the things that are not seen are eternal.

Love lifts the fallen, sustains the weak at heart, and spreads man's pathway with flowers and his table with plenty and his soul with salvation.

Some of the packages bore the names of the donors, but upon many there was no mark. I would like to mention here the names that I have, but space will not permit.

May God's richest benedictions rest upon these dear, good people of Bethlehem and community, and may they finally receive a crown of glory.

J. W. PATTON.

PROGRAM.

Following is the program of the Sixty-Third Session of the Western North Carolina Christian Conference, to be held at the Ramseur Christian Church, Ramseur, N. C., November 8-9, 1933:

FIRST DAY.

Morning Session—10 O'clock.

Call to order, by the President, Rev. E. C. Brady.
Devotional exercises, Rev. M. A. Pollard.
Address of welcome, Mrs. T. A. Moffitt.
Response, Rev. T. J. Green.
Enrollment of ministers and delegates.
Reception of visitors.
Report of Program Committee.
Report of Executive Committee.
Appointment of Special Committees.
Annual sermon by the President.
Communion service, Dr. Stanley C. Harrell, Convention President.
Adjournment.

Afternoon Session—2 O'clock.

Call to order.
Devotional service, Rev. J. U. Fogleman.
Report on Evangelism, Rev. M. A. Pollard.
Convention Resolution, Dr. Stanley C. Harrell.
Report of Nominating Committee.
Report of Committee on Foreign Missions, Rev. T. E. White.
Address, Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Mission Secretary.
Report of Committee on Social Service, Rev. J. U. Fogleman.
Reports from ministers and churches.
Report of Committee on Home Missions, Rev. H. V. Cox.
Miscellaneous business.
Adjournment.

Evening Session—7:30 O'clock.

Program in charge of the young people.

SECOND DAY.

Call to order, by the President.
Devotional service, Rev. H. V. Cox.
Enrollment of ministers and delegates.
Reception of visitors.
Reading of minutes of previous day.
Report of Committee on Religious Literature, Rev. T. E. White.
Report on Sunday Schools, Geo. T. Gueter.
Report on Christian Endeavor, J. Roland Farrell.
Report on Education, Rev. T. E. White.
Address, Dr. L. E. Smith, President of Elon College.
Benediction.

Afternoon Session—2 O'clock.

Call to order.
Devotional service, Rev. T. J. Green.
Our Orphanage, Supt. Chas. D. Johnston.
Report on Superannuation, I. H. Foust.
Report on Apportionments, W. H. Freeman.
Reports of Special Committees.
Miscellaneous business.
Reading of minutes.
Final adjournment.

PROGRAM.

The One Hundred and Thirteenth Annual Session of the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference will meet at Holy Neck Christian Church, Holland, Va., November 1-3, 1933. Following is the program for the three-day session:

FIRST DAY—WEDNESDAY.

Morning Session.

- 10:00 Call to order by the President. Song service conducted by Rev. J. F. Morgan. Devotional service, by Rev. H. S. Harcastle. 10:30 Enrollment of ministers and delegates. Welcome—By Miss Mary Rawles Jones. Response, by Dr. J. W. Manning, Vice-President. Reception of visitors. Report of Executive Committee. Appointment of Special Committees. 11:00 Report of Committee on Home Missions, by Col. J. E. West, Chairman. Address by Rev. H. S. Harcastle. Discussion and vote on report. Announcements. 12:00 President's Address. Communion service conducted by Dr. W. M. Jay. Adjournment for lunch.

Afternoon Session.

- 2:00 Devotional service, by Rev. R. A. Whitten. Digest of Church and Ministerial Reports, by Dr. I. W. Johnson, Secretary. Report of W. E. MacClenny, Treasurer. 2:30 Report of Committee on Stewardship, Rev. R. L. House. Address. 3:00 Report of Women's Missionary Conference, by the President. 3:15 Report of the Committee on Foreign Missions, by Dr. W. D. Harward, Chairman. Address, by Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Mission Secretary. Announcement by Committee on Entertainment. 4:30 Adjournment—Benediction. Evening Session. 7:30 Song service, conducted by Rev. O. D. Poythress. Devotional service. 8:00 Sermon, by Rev. John G. Truitt.

SECOND DAY—THURSDAY.

Morning Session.

- 9:30 Call to order. Reading of minutes and enrollment. Song service, conducted by Mr. W. H. Baker. Devotional service, by Rev. R. E. Brittle. 10:00 Report of Committee on Religious Literature, by Dr. Charles Eldred Shelton, Chairman. Address, by Dr. Charles Eldred Shelton. General discussion and vote on report. 10:50 Report of Historian, Mr. W. E. MacClenny. 11:00 Report of Committee on Education, by Dr. I. W. Johnson, Chairman. Address, by Dr. L. E. Smith, President, Elon College. General discussion and vote on report. 12:00 Devotional period, by Rev. F. C. Lester. Adjournment for lunch.

Afternoon Session.

- 2:00 Devotional service, by Dr. Elwood W. Jones. 2:10 Report of Committee on Ministerial Ethics, by Rev. O. D. Poythress, Chairman. 2:30 Consideration of Southern Convention Resolutions, by Dr. S. C. Harrell, President. 2:50 Report of Committee on Temperance and Moral Reform, by Dr. W. M. Jay, Chairman. Address. General discussion and vote on report.

- 3:30 Report of Committee on Nominations. Report of Committee on Christian Education, by Rev. J. E. McCauley, Chairman. Address, by Rev. J. G. Truitt. Discussion and vote on report. Miscellaneous business. 4:30 Adjournment with benediction. Evening Session. 7:30 Song service, conducted by Mr. W. H. Baker. 7:45 Address, "The Christian Orphanage," by Mr. Chas. D. Johnston, Supt. 8:15 Sermon, by Rev. R. Lee House.

THIRD DAY—FRIDAY.

Morning Session.

- 9:30 Call to order. Devotional service, by Rev. T. N. Lowe. Reading of minutes. 9:50 Report of Collector, by Mr. R. C. Norfleet. Report of the Christian Missionary Association, by Rev. R. Lee House, President. 10:10 Report of the Committee on Evangelism, by Rev. J. F. Morgan, Chairman. Address and general discussion. Report of Committee on Memoirs, by Mr. W. E. MacClenny, Chairman.

- Report of Committee on Superannuation, by Dr. L. E. Smith, Chairman. Report of Committee on Apportionments, by Mr. A. L. Jolly, Chairman. 12:00 Devotional period, by Rev. O. D. Poythress. Adjournment for lunch.

Afternoon Session.

- 2:00 Devotional service, by Rev. C. E. Gerringer. Report of Committee on Place for Next Session, by Mrs. J. A. Williams, Chairman. Report of Committee on Finance. Report of Committee on Resolutions. Miscellaneous business. Announcement of Standing Committees. Brief devotionals. Adjournment.

NOTICE.

The Eastern Virginia Christian Conference meets at Holy Neck Christian Church, Wednesday, November 1st, 10:00 A. M. Delegates and visitors expecting to remain over night, please notify J. E. March, Route No. 1, Holland, Va. Those coming by train and desiring transportation from Holland to the church, notify the undersigned. N. G. NEWMAN, President.

Keep THE SUN Shining Mail Your Subscription TODAY!

Why not send THE CHRISTIAN SUN to your friends for the ensuing year, and they will be reminded weekly of your thoughtfulness and interest?

THE SUN needs new subscribers badly, and the members of the Christian Church in the South need THE SUN just as badly. You who read the paper keep in touch with your church's activities and interests. Wouldn't it be a wonderful thing if you would help others to become acquainted with the things that you know about?

For your convenience we are printing a blank below. Just fill out this blank and pin your check or a money order for $2, for each subscription you wish sent, and we will do the rest.

As a token of our appreciation of your cooperation, we will advance your own subscription date three months for each yearly subscription you send in.

Of course, if it happens that the person to whom you send the paper is already a subscriber, we will advance their subscription one year, and will notify them that you have paid same.

SUBSCRIPTION BLANK.

December....., 1932.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

Dear Sirs:

Please enter the name of.....

City....., State....., R. F. D. or St.....

on your subscription list for one year. I enclose $.....to pay above subscription and for.....additional ones written on the margin of this blank. Please advance my subscription three months for each of these subscriptions, and send greeting cards to each of these subscribers.

Name

Street or R. F. D.....

City and State.....

My own subscription expires.....

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

ASSOCIATE EDITOR

E. C. GILLETTE

117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla.

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

W. C. WICKER C. REXFORD RAYMOND

S. C. HARRELL ELISHA A. KING

THE PRINCIPLES OF OUR CHURCH.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

THE RESPONSIBILITY OF RIGHTEOUSNESS.

The call to righteousness is the challenge of responsibility. One never makes an adventure in righteousness without shouldering responsibility. And the more righteous the cause, the more weighty the responsibility. When our Lord commissioned his followers to go forth and make disciples of all the nations, he laid upon them and their successors the most weighty responsibility ever placed upon the shoulders of mankind. The church is still having to carry that responsibility. It has meant adventure, hazard, danger, torture, self-denial and death. The only institution on earth strong enough to bear up under the weight of such a responsibility is the church. The only reason the church is strong enough is because it is sustained by the power and presence of our Lord. This is the reason why Missions have called down upon themselves so much criticism and abuse, and explains why those in the church and out of it are indifferent to Missions. They are not willing to bear the responsibility. They excuse themselves. They shirk. They ignore. They criticize. However, our Lord does not lift the responsibility, for responsibility carries both resources and rewards. In order to share the rich resources of our Lord, and have the rewards of his fellowship and presence, we must share with him the burden of responsibility that he has laid upon us. "How can I," asks one, "be responsible for the condition and the need of the heathen on the other side of the globe? What have I to do with relieving that need?" The reply to that inquiry is unmistakable. No human being laid that responsibility upon another human being, but our Lord Christ did put that responsibility upon us in the most emphatic command that ever fell from his lips.

"We have heathen here at home. We have the poor and the needy at our very doors. We have beggars and fatherless children and those in want of food and clothing around about us." Of course, we have. Our Lord Christ knew that, and said: "The poor ye have with you always, but me ye have not always." Though our Lord rebuked those who said such things in his day, many of his professed followers are excusing themselves from assuming the responsibility the Lord laid upon them by still repeating the old slogan and the old excuse of the poor and needy around about us. The poor and needy were crying aloud in Christ's day as they cry aloud yet. Still, in face of this and knowing this, he said: "Go, preach, teach my gospel, not only here in Jerusalem, not only around here in Judea. That is not enough. If you are to share my presence and have the power to sustain the onslaught of wickedness and the wiles of the world, you must be courageous enough, bold and daring enough, to go to the uttermost parts." This was the call to high adventure in the name of the Lord, an adventure in righteousness which was to receive the rich rewards of his blessed power and presence. The call of righteousness, I repeat, is a call to the burden, and also to the bounty and, furthermore, to the benefits of responsibility.

J. O. A.

EUROPE PROTESTS.

England protests, Scotland emphatically protests, France protests, and threatens. And they have a right to protest. They put (their brewers did) $5,000,000 to be used in breaking down prohibition in the United States, and the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. Now, when victory seems to be assured, as a reward for their merciless propaganda, President Roosevelt is reported ready to place an embargo on foreign liquor in order to give the breweries of America a free and open market for their brew, so as to get revenue, as soon as the sale of whiskey is legalized. Several nations of Europe protest on the ground that they have gone on manufacturing their liquors and holding the same against the day when it could be legally shipped to America, and they do not now propose to be defeated, especially since they have largely paid the bills. Reports come from France that if this embargo is placed on shipments of liquor from the French breweries into the United States, the United States may not expect its next payment due in January on the war debt, for the simple reason that France was counting on the revenue from its liquor shipments, in a large part, to pay this installment of its national debt. So, there you are.

Meanwhile, stocks in breweries in this country are soaring, and the distillers of liquor are showing great activity and accumulating stock and machinery for a great increase in manufacture as soon as the Eighteenth Amendment is repealed.

Meanwhile, the bootleggers are reported to be happy, as well they may be, since in all reason their numbers and their trade will be greatly increased under repeal. The Government is declaring its object in bringing back liquor is to increase revenue in the form of taxes from liquor. This will make liquor, legally, much higher in price than the same quality made by the bootlegger could sell for. If taxes are as low as $2.00 per gallon, the bootlegger can sell the same grade of stuff $2.00 cheaper in the gallon than the one can who abides by the law in manufacturing and selling. But this is only half the story. Every one knows that when whiskey is legally sold and there is an open market, the appetite for liquor will be keener and more widespread. And the bootlegger rejoices even now that he is to share in the sale of his product with the increased demand that will naturally come when the manufacturing and sale of liquor is legalized. No wonder the bootlegger rejoices and is happy and is everywhere begging his friends and associates to go to the polls and vote for repeal.

It is all a sickening, gloomy, heart-rending mess that the lovers of rum and the greedy for gain have led us into. We see from the papers that many churches have called upon their members to pray for the dry cause. Bishops in the Methodist Church (South), for instance, the Baptists in their conventions and associations, Presbyterians and Christians in their gatherings have passed strong resolutions against repeal and have prayer earnestly that our people may be spared from the chaos and the curse that the legalized sale of liquor will surely bring. Has one heard of a group of wets, who are clamoring for repeal, calling upon any of their number to pray that the wet cause may prevail? Has one seen where any group of wets have gathered themselves together and petitioned the God of righteousness and the benevolent Creator of us all to guide them and direct them in their propaganda and in their plea for the wet cause? Has one heard of prayer meetings, assemblies, gatherings in the name of the wets, who, in opening their meetings or in closing them, invoke light and wisdom from on high to guide them and sustain them in bringing back the legalized sale of liquor? One day when this mania "for repeal" is over, some of these questions will come home to us, and we will wonder how it all happened and what led us to undo what the devotees of sobriety and temperance had taken a half century or more to do.

J. O. A.

REPEAL AND REFORM.

There is no argument that will stop the tidal wave of the repeal mania. Millions of wet money started the tide rolling and it rolls. One might as well try to sweep back the ocean tide with a broom. Repealists, of course, are using the plea, "We need and must have temperance and not prohibition." Let us hope we shall have temperance. Heaven knows that is a needed virtue in the world today. But what have those who have led the repeal movement ever done for temperance? Who began and who have been the leaders and agitators for repeal? What leaders have we followed in bringing about repeal? Cale C. Burgess, of Raleigh, speaking at Elizabeth City, October 8th, gave the facts showing who have been our leaders and why:

"Before the Eighteenth Amendment," he declared, "forty foreign nations were selling the United States millions and millions of dollars in liquor each year. They admitted that their sales were cut 75 per cent during the first five years of prohibition. They met in London and organized the International Association Against American Prohibition. They raised a campaign fund of $5,000,000 and said: 'We will spend this money in a merciless fight to destroy prohibition in the United States.' Strange to say, it looks as if the American people are about to permit this foreign association to achieve its ends.

"But they would not have succeeded without help here at home. A few multimillionaires, brewers and distillers in the United States organized to help foreign nations in their fight against the Eighteenth Amendment. Nearly a million a year is contributed to control the press, including both magazines and newspapers, news agencies as well as journalists, to put out propaganda that liquor laws are not enforced and that prohibition is a failure."

And so, however good a thing repeal may turn out to be for the United States, and we are told by Postmaster-General Farley, that it is to be one of the saving graces of the present situation, we will not have Mr. Farley and the present administration to thank, but the International Association Against American Prohibition, of London, and a few multimillionaires, brewers and distillers in the United States. Not arguing now for or against repeal and the good or ill it will do, one can but wonder how any good thing, anything of virtue, sobriety or temperance can come from following such a leadership as that which instituted and, with their millions, have carried on the propaganda and the campaign for repeal. What reforms have repealists ever brought about in this world?

J. O. A.

BECOME A SPECIALIST.

If I were writing to ministers only, I would say, make a study of some one subject and master it. There is much satisfaction in knowing everything about something. Ministers, as well as lawyers, are expected to know something about everything, but I have in mind the mastery of some one thing, some interesting field of knowledge. Perhaps it's botany, possibly it may be art (either painting or sculpture) or archæology. Perhaps one might specialize in music. In other words, it is worth while to cultivate a hobby that may grow into a specialty, making the person an authority in some important department of knowledge.

This idea is splendidly illustrated in the case of my friend Dr. J. Edward Kirby, of Raleigh, N. C., who became interested in studying the development of Puritanism in the South. The results of this study, covering several years, are to be found in a volume of 144 pages entitled, "Puritanism in the South," published by the Pilgrim Press in 1908. Since then he has continued his investigations.

Each year, here in Florida, we hold a ministers' Convocation and invite some minister who has a real message to give his brother ministers, to come and lecture to us. This year we invited Dr. Kirby. He gave us five splendid lectures on "The Growth of Religious Independency in the South," and as a result everyone of our ministers understands, better than ever before, the task of the Congregational and Christian Churches in this Southland. I am using Dr. Kirby as an illustration of what can be done by a minister who magnifies his calling and realizes the value of such research.

This does not detract from one's ministerial efficiency or serve as an obstacle to his spiritual usefulness; rather it enhances his value to society.

A layman may do the same thing, as many of them have done, making themselves doubly valuable to the church. Somewhere in the Bible, you know, it says, "This one thing I do." Perhaps that means specialize—know everything about something.
E. A. K.

face value and in the light of all problems concerned, giving the material advantage its proper consideration along with other advantages as well as disadvantages.

The moral point at issue is a friendly relation with all peoples of the world if the United States is to be the nation to lead all others in a program of world peace. That this nation is qualified in spirit and character to promote such a program no thoughtful mind can fail to comprehend. In this respect the United States is to be a missionary to the world, and as such, should have and maintain friendly and cordial relations with every nation.

Prejudice still abounds in the human heart; lack of national confidence is yet in great evidence; underlying suspicion among individuals as well as nations is far from being removed. But as the human race progresses morally, educationally, and religiously these barriers will be broken, and it is to be hoped at this time that their elimination has sufficiently progressed so that Russia may be recognized by our Government.

A LETTER OF INTEREST.

San Diego, California,
October 12, 1933.

Mr. John T. Kernodle,
Dear John T.:

You may be interested to know that I attended the San Diego Association of Congregational Churches, on October 9th, held at Lemon Groves, a small settlement about ten miles from San Diego. Practically all ministers were present, twelve churches being represented by from three to fifteen delegates. I spoke on the subject, "The Significance of the Union of Congregational and Christian Churches to the Great Commission and to the Prayer of Our Lord 'That They May All Be One'."

Chaplain Elder of the Naval Hospital, San Diego, Calif., and my wife were also present.

The convention was a good one, the discussions were good but calculated to make one sad, for there was a distinct note of something lacking to make the influence of the church felt among the people, to induce them to attend church and to manifest a consciousness of the reality of God in their souls; and the saddest thing was that nobody was able to put his finger upon what was lacking.

I am sending this letter to you that mention be made in THE SUN of our attendance at the convention, for it might be of some interest to the people East to know that the Christian Church was given a place in their platform.

Very truly yours,
H. E. ROUNTREE.

MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION.

The Eastern Virginia Congregational-Christian Ministerial Association held its regular monthly meeting in the First Christian Church, Portsmouth, October 16th. Among the guests were: Dr. Frederick L. Fagley, of New York City; Dr. W. Knighton Bloom, of Washington, D. C.; Dr. L. E. Smith and Miss Priscilla Chase, of Elon College, N. C.

The morning session was devoted to a "Minister's Retreat," conducted by Dr. Fagley. Following the devotional period, Dr. Fagley spoke on the theme "The Enduring Quality of Spiritual Resources."

Dr. L. E. Smith presented the needs of Elon and spoke concerning an intensive campaign, as suggested by the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees to raise $25,000.00. It was voted by this Association to cooperate with and support the College in this effort.

R. A. WHITTEN, Secretary.

UNCLE SAM—PEACE MISSIONARY TO THE WORLD.

By TIMOTHY THOMAS.

Many church people will have occasion to express themselves on the Government's contemplated recognition of Russia. The issues involved are manifold, delicate, far-reaching and vital. Two of these issues are outstanding—commercial advantage and moral influence. The church, as an institution, is primarily interested in the latter.

To Understand Russia is first to understand her history, but even a brief of that is not permissible in the space here. We should remember, however, that she has had a long and troublesome history, dating back to the Grecian period.

Russia was once a Slavic empire. Since 1917, it has been a confederation of socialist republics, occupying most of Eastern Europe and all of Northern Asia. Officially, it is now known as the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics. There are seven capitals to embrace these republics. The total population is greater than that of the United States. Moscow is the capital of the largest republic, the population of which is a hundred million.

We are labeled Christian in the United States because of the ideals and teachings of our founders and forefathers. Russia may not be labeled Christian, but that does not necessarily mean that all Russian people are not Christian. The peoples of that land are today in their ideals what they have been taught, just as we are because of our teachings. Be it said to the credit of our own government that one of the points of understanding, and doubtless a definite agreement in case of restored relations with the Russian people, is the control of propaganda which may be contrary to our tenets and teachings. The Russian ideals do not fit in with ours, but this should not be the basis of continued official separation. Any official recognition of Russia should not be construed as expressing or implying our approval of her socialistic or religious doctrines and teachings.

Trade advantages would have their telling effect, no doubt; and in the case of any Japanese aggression, the United States would have a strong ally in Russia. A consensus of opinion so far on the problems involving official recognition is that our leaders will decide the issues on their

SUBSCRIBERS TO THE CHRISTIAN SUN

These Pens are of standard make, and will give good service. If you are in need of a Fountain Pen, order from us. Postage paid and Pens guaranteed by the manufacturer.

MEN'S PENS—Capitol, $2.00; Mercantile, $2.50; Cardinal, $3.00. LADIES' PENS, $2.00.

COMBINATION OFFER—To a new subscriber or for renewal, $2.50, either Gentleman's (Capitol) Pen or Ladies' Pen, with guarantee of manufacturer. And to "Sun" subscribers, not in arrears, any Pen at one-fourth off. Address: THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 EAST BROAD STREET, RICHMOND, VIRGINIA

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

"Follow me, and I will make you fishers of men" (Matt. 4:19). That was a great challenge. But Jesus knew his own power. And as he watched Simon and Andrew casting a net into the sea, he measured the possibilities of these two fishermen. He discovered their skill, their energy and their patience.

Fishing is more than an innocent pastime. It is a great industry. Thousands of people go out in their boats to gather food for millions of people. Fishermen must have equipment, and they must know something about fish, their habits and their places of abode. The art of catching fish with hook and line involves a knowledge of bait as well as many other things. All fish do not take the same kind of bait. Big fish are attracted by large bait. Small fish take small bait. Bait must be attractive and acceptable to the fish. The successful fisherman must fish. Dropping a line overboard, and waiting, may attract a few fish, but the most successful method is to go after them, until you find them. Success may not come until the last hour on the lake, but one should fish until the last opportunity passes, hoping for good luck.

Jesus knew the fundamental principles of good fishing. He knew how to fish for men. In the kingdom of God, fishing for men depends upon following Jesus Christ. "Follow me, and I will make. . ." is the first lesson in this great school of the Master. How soul fishermen need to follow Jesus! How little do we know, and how insignificant is our power in this great soul task! But what infinite possibilities in this field to stir our souls and thrill our hearts. "The harvest truly is plenteous, but the laborers are few." Only a small percentage of the church members seem to be actively interested in fishing for new members. Here is an opportunity to be winsome for the kingdom. To test your own life and your own attitude, get out a calendar and mark the last date when you really tried to win some one for Christ and the church. Mark all the possible dates you can recall. You may be surprised. And, yet, every day may be a good day for fishing for men. Who knows when you may find one who is seeking salvation?

Fishing for men should be the chief objective of all church members. Christians should be warm hearted, cordial and sincere in their attitude towards others. Every effort should be directed to the one aim of winning the soul to Jesus. Some church members do not seem to care whether other people are saved or lost. They assume an attitude of indifference. If people unite with their church, they hesitate to give them a handshake and a cordial welcome to their fellowship. Now, this is not following Jesus. The Master rejoices when the wandering sheep returns to the fold. "Rejoice with me, for I have found my sheep." There is much room in the church for cultivating the spirit of rejoicing with others. It is a great joy to be saved. And it is thrilling to be an instrument, in the hands of God, to win others from death to life.

"He that winneth souls is wise." Wisdom is not an essential qualification in making money. Some very ordinary people have become rich, and this will occur again. But it requires wisdom to win souls. That is the highest art and the sublimest effort to which the soul may aspire. For this end Jesus came into this world. For this purpose he lived and died. "The Son of Man is come to seek and to save that which was lost"

(Luke 19:10). Jesus prepared himself for this work. When the opportunity came he gave himself to this cause without any reservation. Follow him and fish for men. Seek to win them. Seek to bring them into the church. Seek to train them for this glorious work of becoming fishers of men. I. W. JOHNSON.

A CLUB THAT COUNTS.

A little more than a year ago we organized a Dollar-a-Month Club for Elon College. The purpose of the Club was to give support to the College. A plan for advance was laid and appeals for membership made. The first few months of the Club, members joined rapidly. The number increased until we had passed the 600 mark in memberships. This number is far short of the original goal, but this membership has meant a great deal to the College. If others who are interested in the College would join, this, of course, would mean additional strength. However, $600.00 would more than pay three professors' salaries. If we could increase the membership to 4,000 members this would meet the entire faculty budget. It does seem that there are 4,000 people in our entire church who could and would give $1.00 a month toward the College.

Now that conditions are improving the time would seem ripe for all the friends of the College to put forth every possible effort to induce new members to join and pay their dues regularly. Our expenses at the College are monthly. This plan of support will provide funds according to our needs.

Objection is raised that a Dollar-a-Month is too small a gift for an institution like Elon College. We would welcome larger gifts but until we, ourselves, get in the habit of doing what we can, it is not likely that larger gifts will be possible. Support for the College will likely come by the promptings of the Lord. He will hardly influence others to give until we have exhausted our own resources. Let us not despise small gifts, if small gifts are all that we can bring. We can hardly expect others to give largely unless we, ourselves, have given according to our ability.

I am in favor of the Dollar-a-Month Club and I am calling on the members of the church, the Alumni of the school, and the friends of the College to put forth united effort that we may make memberships in the Club take a turn upward as we go into the winter season.

A number of our members have been sending in their dues recently. If you are behind in your payments this is a splendid time to catch up. Notices will be mailed out to members who are in arrears. If you, my dear reader, are behind with your dues, payment of the same would be greatly appreciated. Our needs at the College are keen and pressing. November and December are among the most expensive months for us. Winter supplies are to be purchased and other expenses are rather heavy.

I am appealing to those who are not members of the Club to join with us and to those who are members, but are in arrears with their dues, to assist us as early as you can by making payment.

The following have sent in payments since school opened:

H. L. Barney, New York, N. Y.....	$ 6.00
J. W. Barney, Elon College, N. C.....	2.00
Mrs. Annie Staley Calhoun, Suffolk, Va.....	6.00
Dr. and Mrs. W. A. Harper, Nashville, Tenn...	25.00
R. H. Peel, Gasport, N. Y.....	3.00
H. E. Rountree, Charleston, S. C.....	4.00

Zac T. Walker, Virgilina, Va.....	1.00
Miss Nellie Flossie White, Norfolk, Va.....	2.00
Alfred Apple, Elon College, N. C.....	1.00
Mrs. J. P. Barrett, Elon College, N. C.....	2.00
Mrs. H. L. Bondurant, Norfolk, Va.....	2.00
Mrs. Mary V. Chapman, Suffolk, Va.....	3.00
B. L. Coggins, Suffolk, Va.....	2.00
Class No. 3, Rosemont S. S., Norfolk, Va.....	1.00
Dr. P. H. Fleming, Burlington, N. C.....	12.00
Mrs. Willie Rawls Gatling, Suffolk, Va.....	8.00
Mrs. W. E. Gladstone, Norfolk, Va.....	2.00
M. S. Harrell, Holland, Va.....	2.00
Rev. and Mrs. H. S. Hardcastle, Norfolk, Va...	5.00
R. E. Hedgepeth, Holland, Va.....	1.00
Mrs. Job G. Holland, Holland, Va.....	1.00
Mrs. J. T. Jones, Holland, Va.....	1.00
Wm. Jay, Holland, Va.....	2.00
Junior Philathea Class, Suffolk, Va.....	6.00
Mrs. Sue Jones, Durham, N. C.....	6.00
Junior Dept., S. S., Norfolk, Va.....	1.00
Mrs. E. R. Laine, Windsor, Va.....	5.00
Ladies' Bible Class, Holland, Va.....	2.00
Men's Bible Class, Holland, Va.....	2.00
Dr. & Mrs. C. W. McPherson, Burlington, N. C.	15.00
Mrs. N. G. Newman, Holland, Va.....	5.00
R. M. Norfleet, Holland, Va.....	1.00
J. B. Robertson, Burlington, N. C.....	10.00
J. D. Rawls, Holland, Va.....	2.00
Mrs. F. H. Taylor, Suffolk, Va.....	2.00
Z. Turner and Family, Suffolk, Va.....	12.00
Truitt Philathea Class, Greensboro, N. C....	2.00
Miss Edith Walker, Burlington, N. C.....	3.00
James Walton, Griffin, Ga.....	1.00
W. C. Wampler, Harrisonburg, Va.....	5.00
Mr. and Mrs. Holland Ballard, Holland, Va...	2.00

If, when you receive your statement, there is any mistake will you please write me at once? We try to keep our records straight, give proper credit, and use money sent in to the very best advantage. L. E. SMITH, Pres.

FLINT HILL REVIVAL.

Our first revival after the organization of the church was held at Flint Hill Christian Church, four miles east of Biscoe, N. C., beginning Sunday, September 17th, and closing Tuesday, September 26th.

Rev. Ferman Solomon, a Baptist brother from Carthage, N. C., was secured to do the preaching. Bro. Solomon is a very interesting and forceful preacher of God's Word, and is extremely interested in the salvation of the young people of the country, as well as a firm believer of the older church people living a Godly life and using the means that God has blessed them with to support the church and its work.

God blessed the meeting with 21 conversions, mostly young people, who made their way to the altar, weeping over their sins in the old fashioned way and that without much pressure save the power of the Holy Ghost. There were 18 new additions to the church as a result of the meeting, and on Sunday, October 1st, the pastor had the pleasure of administering the ordinance of baptism by immersion to 16 candidates.

The dedication services of this church were conducted by our Brother T. E. White, of Sanford, N. C., on the 5th Sunday in July. He is expected to serve the church as pastor the coming year.

God has graciously and wonderfully blessed the church since its organization, as well as the efforts put forth by several brethren from Biscoe some months before the organization was established, who had a burning desire to do something in the Master's service, went out in the hedges and byways and Flint Hill Christian Church is the result of their efforts.

A short historical sketch of the origin of the church was prepared by Brother O. H. Lambert, of our Biscoe Church, who together with Brother S. P. Deaton, a Baptist brother of Biscoe, was the first to become interested in religious services for the community.

REV. W. C. MARTIN, Pastor.

Biscoe, N. C.

WHY ARE YOU HERE AS AN OFFICER?

By REV. R. L. HOUSE, Pastor,

First Congregational-Christian Church.

1. Because some person or persons had confidence in you, you have been nominated and duly elected. Your reputation in respect to character, and in regard to ability was taken into consideration. And someone had enough confidence in you to nominate you. I pray that you may never prove unfaithful to that confidence. Your past record has been worthy of commendation and emulation, and this splendid record paved the way to your election.

2. Possibly you are an officer because someone sensed the possibilities of your life. The first pastor of the Newport News Christian Church at one time in his ministry saw possibilities in a young man and made him superintendent of Sunday School. His faith was justified. That man has already held positions as professor in Columbia, Yale and Duke Universities. There are great possibilities in some of these officers. And with that in view you have been elected to an office.

3. You are an officer because there is work for you to do. There are no figure-heads in this church. If you have been elected to an office, it is because there is something to be done. Let no one feel that just because his position is small that it is not worth filling. Anyone who takes the attitude that his job is too small for him, at once reveals the fact that he is too small for the job. Christ reminds us of two brothers: one promised to do a job and failed to do it; the other didn't promise to, but went and did it. Now I think the Congregational-Christian Church has the right to expect that you serve promptly and faithfully, or resign immediately. Now, I'm serious in that. If a person holds a position and does nothing about it, the church is handicapped. But if a person absolutely will not do anything, then the least thing one could do is to resign and give someone else a chance.

4. You are an officer here to set an example. Ten men could have saved the city of Sodom. I declare to you that oftentimes the unquestioned example of one person may be instrumental in saving a church or a Sunday School. In a time when so many are careless, indifferent and irresponsible, it is the chance of a lifetime for you to set an example that will be as a shining light in this church and community. I am trusting that you will set an example by being punctual, by being sincere and dependable. The privilege is yours of conducting your office in such an exalted manner that you may be the superb example of a workman who need not feel ashamed.

5. Moreover, you are here as an officer to set up a standard, a precedent. That, my friend, is one of the highest privileges of life. Someone will come after you. And I pray God tonight that you will fill your office in such a unique way and to such a high degree of efficiency that your successor may feel that he has something to live up to; a reputation to uphold, a standard which must not be lowered. If so, you shall have not lived in vain.

When Elisha was about to become Elijah's successor he came and requested a double portion of Elijah's spirit. That was the greatest tribute ever received this side of Eternity! I bid you look down the avenue of time. Some day you must lay aside the duties which you have now assumed. Someone else will take them up with one of two feelings. Either he will be disgusted with your own indifference and inefficiency, or in eternal gratitude for the noble example you have set.

6. You are here as an officer because you had first become affiliated with the church in some way. You are not only a member of the church, you are the church! Some people call me Mr. House and some call me Mr. Church. That's all right. I am Mr. Church, and so are you. All that I do is a reflection on the Congregational-Christian Church. Let us realize now that when we indulge in questionable conduct it does not only affect our own character, but also drags the name of this church down to the same level.

7. And, finally, we are here to make this a better church. We labor here under some very definite handicaps, but that is the test of a real Christian. This isn't the biggest church in town, but what does that matter unless you had rather ride an elephant than a horse? I am unable to understand the apologetic attitude of those who refer to "our little church." After all, if it is little, whose fault is it? It may be little in size, but not in spirit. It is big enough to train the children and young people in the way of the Lord. It is big enough to win souls to Christ. Little church! It is big enough and strong enough to share in the support of Elon College, and the fatherless and motherless children at the Christian Orphanage. It is big enough to send out a minister of the Gospel to proclaim the Way Everlasting. Its strength has been felt by the missionaries in the far places of the earth. How can you say "little church?" The deep injustice of your accusation should blast your lips beyond expression or seal them in the anguish of silence. This is not a perfect church, but it does have its virtues. And we are here to emphasize them, to proclaim them. We are here dedicated to the high purpose of making this church a better church, and thereby a bigger church.

Newport News, Va.

SHALL I PRAY ON?

For years I've prayed, and yet I see no change
The mountain stands exactly where it stood;
The shadows that it casts are just as deep;
The pathway to its summit e'en more steep.

Shall I pray on?

Shall I pray on with ne'er a hopeful sign?
Not only does the mountain still remain,
But while I watch to see it disappear,
Becomes the more appalling year by year.

Shall I pray on?

I will pray on. Though distant it may seem,
The answer may be almost at my door,
Or just around the corner on its way,
But whether near or far, yes, I shall pray—

I will pray on!

—Edith L. Mapes, in Sunday School Times.

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5½ inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

Nos. 01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges $2.75

01603 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, head-band, book-mark $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4½ x 1¼ inches.

Type in Junior's Bible
2 Take the sum of all the of the children of 157a-el, years old and upward, thro

Nos. 1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine Bibles $2.95

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5½ x 3½ inches.

Specimen of Type

2 My soul longeth, yea, even faint- eth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God.

10 Mercy and truth gathered together; righteousness shall kiss each other. Truth shall sprin

Nos. 02112. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6¼ x 4½ inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed.

1 Gen. 15. 1. 2 Ps. 56. 1. 3 57. 1. 4 or, all

Nos. 07523x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07523x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x $5.00

OUR LEADER

Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8½ x 5½ x 15/16 inches.

Specimen of Type

8 9 20 Jō-hōi'ā-chin was 6 years old when he began t

Nos. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, leather lined to edge, silk round corners, red under edges, silk

hear

A UNIQUE GIFT BIBLE

With Basket Weave Binding

The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges. With references. Printed on Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible. $5.50

No. 03255x

As No. 03255x, with concordance. No. 03276x $6.50

Oxford TEACHING Bibles

Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date helps conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7¼ x 5 x 1½ inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave; death shall feed on th

Nos. 04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and hand-some Bible $4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Only one inch thick.

0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

MISSIONS
 REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary

PRAYER.

Great God, our Father, thy love and mercy are never failing. Continually thou art seeking to lead and help all whom thou hast called to be thine own. We praise thee that forever Jesus is interceding for his faltering ones, and that through Jesus thy mercy flows into every trembling, trusting child of thine. We pray for faith, for light and for love, to do whatever is thy precious will. In Jesus' name.—Amen. "L."

WE DO OUR PART.

That was the theme of the 21st annual session of the North Carolina Woman's Missionary Conference at Turner's Chapel, Sanford, N. C., Friday, October 20th. And the good women burdened, beaming and anxious, from all over the State, and several from Virginia, gathered in their annual session to hear their reports from district meetings, churches and societies, to learn whether they were doing their part, and how, in the coming year, they might the better do their part. It is safe to say that all of the women who attended that conference and the sixteen ministers who gathered with them to get inspiration, and the dozen or more men who came along as chauffeurs or helpers, will all be better and will be more anxious to do their part after the experience of that good and glorious day.

Miss Ruth Sargent of Southern Pines, in conducting the devotionals at the beginning, felt that the women had met to wrestle with God, even as Jacob wrestled, and that the whole missionary enterprise was a wrestling with God, that his strength might be made manifest, and that his will might overcome and be done throughout all the world. If the women really meant to conquer in the conflict of their missionary endeavor, they would have to wrestle with God, because after all the cause of missions belongs to God, the cause is his, the "call" was from him, the strength was his, and if we are to prevail in the holy task to which we are called, we must wrestle with God and have his blessing and approval. Our missionary strength and guidance must come from God and can only be effectual as we prevail with God and God is realized in expressing his will through us. It was a fitting devotional period.

There was a very large enrollment at this session of the conference, some members coming as far as two hundred miles and not a few coming one hundred miles or more to enjoy the fellowship, the inspiration and the blessings of this one-day conference.

Four out of the seven district superintendents were present, and certainly gave stimulating reports of the work done in their districts. One of the outstanding and exceedingly helpful events of the day was the report of the literature secretary, Mrs. W. T. Scott. Hers was a report that reported. She laid before the conference, in an exceedingly concise and illuminating manner, the character of the rich literature now available for all societies, and especially of the Mission Study Books which are recommended and which are available for all societies. In no year of our missionary history has the literature on Missions been so rich, so varied and so informative. If one remains ignorant of the magnitude of the world-wide movement for Christ, and the thrilling experiences that men and women are having in carrying on this movement for world-wide brotherhood and fellowship, one will certainly have to ignore much of the very best literature and many of the best volumes that are coming from the printing presses of the day. Missionary literature is no longer pious platitudes for saints, women and children (if it ever was that); the missionary books of the present are among the best volumes that one can read of heroic adventure, of glorious endeavor, of splendid achievement. Mrs. Scott, in her report, certainly must have impressed all present with the worth and merit of the literature on Missions.

Mrs. O. H. Paris made a report and a plea for the Cradle Roll and Mrs. W. H. Carroll emphasized the necessity of the spiritual life in each society. Mrs. W. R. Sellars, the faithful and efficient treasurer, was burdened at her report, lacking some $500.00 of showing as much collected this year as last, and made a plea for the women to begin now and not wait till the second or third quarter to pay in their dues and make their contributions to their societies. She plead with the women that we could not afford to further retreat, and that in order to stop the retreat the women must discover the weakness in their lines that caused the retreat and plan an advance. Mrs. C. H. Rowland, the president, gave an inspiring message, calling upon the societies, one and all, to do their part and for every member in every society to determine within themselves that "the line shall not break where I stand." It was a thrilling appeal to a great body of women for individual effort to face about and to go forward in the great task to which we are called in Missions. The morning session closed with an address by the Mission Secretary, on the topic, "The Responsibility of Righteousness."

A bountiful luncheon was spread and an hour of fellowship was enjoyed, it having been announced that while twenty-five cents was charged one for lunch, the money would go to help complete the church building. Turner's Chapel has certainly erected a beautiful brick structure and one that would do credit to any community. The interior is not yet finished, though seated and made possible for regular service and worship.

In the afternoon, Rev. W. T. Scott insisted in a helpful address that "We Do Our Part in the Home Field," and Rev. A. G. Swartz that "We Do Our Part in Other Lands." His was a plea that while we have demands for material and physical relief at home, we do not forget to do our part in the spiritual task of carrying the gospel to other lands. Mrs. W. R. Sellars was again called to the floor to lay before the Conference "Plans and Programs for Doing Our Part in 1934." She stated that while they had not reached the goal the past year, the Board had recommended the same apportionments be on all societies, and we begin at once to raise our apportionments so that we shall next year reach our goal. A very interesting discussion followed, after which the report was unanimously adopted, all present feeling under the inspiration of the discussion that the societies would reach their goals and go forward in achievements for the coming year.

It was a glorious October day, the feeling of fellowship was delightful, the sixteen pastors present gave inspiration to the occasion, and all seemed to be in a most happy frame of mind in the house of the Lord, as we took counsel together as to how to go forward in the fields of conquest and righteousness for God.

J. O. ATKINSON, Mission Sec'y.

A dead church never represents a living Christ.

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.
WEEK ENDING OCTOBER 21, 1933.

Sunday Schools.

Previously acknowledged	$ 319.27
Third Ave., Danville, Va.	9.40
Berea (Nansemond), Driver, Va.	5.00
Happy Home, Ruffin, N. C.	2.90
Mt. Auburn, Manson, N. C.	4.20
Berea (Norfolk), Norfolk, Va.	6.50
Roanoke, Ala.	1.00
Morrisville, N. C.	1.36
Flint Hill, Star, N. C.	1.00
Hopedale, Burlington, N. C.	1.01
Liberty (Vance), Henderson, N. C.	2.62
Total	$ 354.26

Specials.

Previously acknowledged	$ 32.57
Burlington S. S., Burlington, N. C.	51.60
Total	$ 84.17

Coin Card Offering.

Previously acknowledged	$ 26.00
Class No. 2, Auburn S. S., Manson, N. C.	1.00
Caroleigh Church, Raleigh, N. C.	1.00
Total	$ 28.00

Summary.

Previously acknowledged	$ 430.64
Sunday School, Regular	34.99
Specials	51.60
Coin Card Offering	2.00
Total to date	$ 519.23

The cause of Missions is that cause instituted and carried on by our Lord that he may give spiritual relief and salvation to hearts that are hungry and souls that perish. Will you help now in this time of great need?

J. O. ATKINSON, Mission Sec'y.

OUR UNALTERABLE CONVICTIONS.

"After retrenchment and retreat—better planning and deeper consecration for our Unfinished Task." These are the words of courage and of conviction. Some of the greatest victories of all time have been won after retreat. Sometimes retreat has been necessary in order to collect scattered forces and to better plan for a braver and more determined attack and for a bolder and more determined onslaught.

It cannot be that we of the churches will continue to retreat. Our mission work at home and abroad has suffered till the heart can stand it no longer. Cutting budgets, decreasing goals, lower standards will not cure and will not save. They will only cause further retreat and retrenchment. We wish every SUN reader would carefully digest the words that Rev. Raymond Calkins, D. D., writes in behalf of our American Board in its world-wide task:

"The American Board was born of the conscience and deep spiritual convictions of our Congregational Churches in America. That conscience and those convictions remain today unaltered and unalterable. We believe that in Jesus Christ and in him alone full salvation is to be found for human life and for human society. Believing this, it is impossible to keep to ourselves our best possession. We must share with our brethren everywhere the 'good news which is for all people.'

"The changes which have come are on the circumference only. They do not touch the center of the missionary motive, of the missionary enthusiasm which are the same today as when our first missionaries went forth in faith: The heralding of the good tidings that in Jesus Christ is to be found redemption from sin and misery, and the power to recreate the human soul into the likeness of God.

"The American Board is today sounding this ultimate Christian message in all of its missions all over the world. The churches must and will give to it loyal and unstinted support. At this crisis in the moral history of mankind, we cannot be less Christian than were our fathers over a century ago."

THE GUEST BOOK: PIONEERS.

By ARTHUR W. BARWICK.

If one did nothing more than look at the pictures on the striking cover of the new Guest Book, gathered as they are from widely scattered sources, it would be time well spent. They make one want to pick up the book and see if the contents are as interesting as the cover.

One is not disappointed. Rightly, it begins with youth, with an emphasis on young people's conferences and what is being accomplished in the training of the youth of today for the leadership of tomorrow.

The work of a home missionary in Nebraska gives an intimate story of what Congregationalists want to know about their work in our own country. The idea of definite goals, with planned effort to realize those goals within a given time is surely something new in home missionary activity to most people.

If the story "When Christ Takes Root" were the only one in the book it would be worth all effort expended on this issue. It illustrates the ultimate aim of missions—"the development in every land of independent and self-supporting churches, devoid of sectarian divisions"—as being realized in Japan, and "Vanishing Denominationalism" does the same for India.

At Boulder Dam is being exhibited a bit of real home missionary statesmanship and Christian cooperation. When seven Protestant denominations can get together and support a great church in a town large enough to support but one adequately, it is a long step in advance.

The book would not be complete without the story of the older pioneers who have had their day on the firing line and who should now be resting from their strenuous labor. We are not proud of the way we have neglected these old soldiers of the cross.

Read your story of the "Pioneers." The writer is going to see that it gets into every home in his parish.—Missionary Herald.

A Story for the Children

THE ROMANCE OF INK.

If you were asked what was the greatest traveler on earth, what would you say? You might say the steamships, or the railway trains. But no, the greatest traveler of all is ink. At first you think that ink is a very common thing. It is, but that is why there is so much romance about it. Ink is the greatest traveler on earth. It goes everywhere, into all countries. Let's see some of its travels.

After it is made in the factory it is packed in boxes, and shipped to the stores where it is sold. It goes by railways, trucks, and automobiles to the stores in the country. And in this day it is shipped by steamships to other countries, and from there it rides again to the stores. Many boxes of ink ride on a camel's back for miles in some strange country. In some places it is carried on an elephant's back for miles in other countries. In some places it is carried by the natives to the stores. In South America the llama, a sheep-like animal, carries the ink over mountains to the people who use it.

This is not all the journeys it gets. The one who buys this ink carries it to his home. Then it goes in letters to the mailman, and to long journeys over the sea and on the land, wherever the sender wishes it to go.

Ink goes on every long exploration to far-away places, and records the trip. It went to the North Pole in the big balloon-airship, and even down to the South Pole with Commander Byrd.

When we use a bottle of ink it travels thousands of miles for us, unless we spill it on our clothes, or on the floor.—Chester W. Colburn in Junior Weekly.

The Conscience of America Protests!

The arch-enemy of every good impulse of mankind lurks stealthily in the background and whispers. He would gloat in ghoulish glee to see the rotten apple dropped into the good barrel. The conscience of America protests!

In the first fifteen weeks of beer nearly $500,000,000 was diverted from the channels of useful industry. Milk was the first to suffer. (Statement from Business Men's Prohibition Foundation.)

"The liquor traffic is a cancer in society, eating out the vitals and threatening destruction, and all attempts to regulate it will not only prove abortive but will aggravate the evil; there must be no attempt to regulate the cancer; it must be eradicated; not one root must be left behind."—Abraham Lincoln.

No nation, people or community ever drank itself into prosperity, and none ever will.

Every dollar spent for beer and whiskey weakens by that much the spender's buying power to purchase the useful products of industry.

The saloon business, no matter by what name it is called, is a destructive enemy of all other lines of business.

The liquor traffic has always and everywhere made a few immensely rich and the many degradedly poor.

Prohibition has a cash value of two billion dollars to the purchasing power of the country. You can't cure business depression by turning the stream of the people's money into a parasite business like the liquor traffic.

Prohibition has outlawed the biggest and worst enemy of all legitimate businesses. Let us keep such an enemy forever outlawed in North Carolina.

Merchants, farmers, laboring men, business men of every calling, let's work against the whiskey business now, and vote against it in November.

From United Dry Forces, Raleigh, N. C.

THE BOY WHO RECOMMENDED HIMSELF.

A gentleman advertised for a boy to assist him in his office, and nearly fifty applicants presented themselves to him. Out of the whole number, he selected one and dismissed the rest.

"I should like to know," said a friend, "on what ground you selected that boy, who had not a single recommendation."

"You are mistaken," said the gentleman, "he had a great many. He wiped his feet when he came in, and closed the door after him, showing that he was careful.

"He gave his seat instantly to that lame, old man, showing that he was kind and thoughtful.

"He took off his cap when he came in, and answered my questions promptly, showing that he was polite and gentlemanly.

"He picked up the book, which I had purposely laid on the floor, and replaced it on the table, showing that he was orderly. All the rest stepped over it. He waited quietly for his turn, instead of pushing and crowding.

"When I talked to him, I noticed that his clothing was tidy, his hair neatly brushed, and his finger nails clean. Do you not call these things recommendations? I do."—Selected.

We would see Jesus.—Bible.

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."

REV. F. C. LESTER, Editor, 505 S. Main St., Norfolk, Va.

NOT MUCH OF A WEEK.

Did you ever feel that way? If so, you know something of how I feel this Friday night after spending most of the week in bed—a week in which I had expected to attend the Leadership Training School at the Christian Temple, visit a number of new homes in this city by the sea, prepare two sermons for Sunday, assist in a funeral, hold the annual meeting of the church, think out the talk I am to make at the Tidewater C. E. Convention which meets in Norfolk next Saturday night and Sunday, get my material for this page ready in time so the printer will not have to wait for it, and perhaps do a few other odds and ends that might bring a bit of happiness to someone. But these things have gone undone, and I just now thought, "It hasn't been much of a week."

But has the week been wasted? I wonder. Dr. Frederick L. Fagley, of New York City, told our group of Eastern Virginia preachers on Monday about the radio of the soul. He told of ministers in the Catholic and Episcopal Churches who gather for days at the time and have no speaking. They simply sit quietly together in their house of worship and give the soul a chance to commune with each other. Perhaps some of you who read this will experiment with the radio of the soul until you can tell the restless world how to get spiritual strength from the radiating souls of their Christian friends. We have not yet learned what Jesus meant when he inquired who had touched him and gave as his reason for knowing that someone had touched him the fact that virtue had gone out of him. As I heard Dr. Fagley talk I received something more than the words he spoke. His words are mostly forgotten, but there remains more courage, faith, hope, and love because I shared with this man the hours of worship.

From Monday until Friday a cold has kept me down. I have been too stupid to talk, and my eyes too weak to read much. But there has been an excellent opportunity to think, to rest, to pray. When everything moves so rapidly it is impossible to get all the beauties of life. Now I visit old friends at Schultsville, N. Y., where I preached during student days, or wander through those ancient halls of learning at Yale. Or I go again to Seattle for the union of Congregational and Christian Churches. Or why not sit on the shores of the Pacific and see the new moon sink to rest beyond the western sea? Or why not rest in the springtime shade while listening to the beautiful music that rings out from the Singing Tower in Florida? Or if one prefers, one may play snowball on Pike's Peak in the middle of June.

Who can say that to remember interesting places, people and circumstances is to waste time? Perhaps it is then that we really live. Here is a true story:

About five years ago I shared with a neighbor preacher the task of taking a woman and four children out of a cabin in the woods where they had been left by a drinking husband and father. For weeks at a time they had no food. We succeeded in getting the children in an orphanage. The woman spent several days in my home. She had clung to a worthless husband and starving children until her mind was about to slip. She was hungry, and weak, and worried. She had been beaten, and starved, and neglected by the one who had promised to love and keep her. But it was not easy to leave him forever.

For days we tried to help her forget the tragedies life had brought to her and to bring to her a new hope for life. After she had learned to eat a little, she left us and started out alone. We lost track of her until recently.

Today she came to visit us. She looks young again. There is gayety in her voice. She is well dressed. She is happy about the children who were in the orphanage. She now has one in school and is paying her way. She has money saved. Maids and butlers serve her. She is a nurse for an invalid in one of the fine homes of Norfolk. It is a blessing to have her come into our humble home.

No week is worthless in which an angel of mercy comes to your home bringing sincere friendship and appreciation. Happy, indeed, are those whose experiences have been such that many weeks can bring these benedictions. Out of such experiences grow prayers of appreciation that rise up from the hearts of those who have time to pray to him who guides in the destinies of those who seek his way. Prayer becomes natural in the presence of those whose lives have been transformed because of their belief in a God of love, even though human love has been a complete failure.

And to pray is to live. Then perhaps this week has meant more of life than some in which there was more activity. Who knows?

COMMERCE AND MISSIONS—ALLIES OR ENEMIES?

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC FOR OCT. 29, 1933.
Scripture: Acts 19:21-29.

(For daily Bible readings, see THE CHRISTIAN SUN for October 12, 1933.)

In selecting the hymns remember "The Old Rugged Cross," "Dear Lord and Father of Mankind," and "'Tis So Sweet to Trust in Jesus."

"The saddest thing for a heathen people is to come into contact with civilization without Christianity."—James Alexander.

The cause of Christian missions had to win its way against great odds. As late as 1796, three years after William Carey arrived in India, it was moved and seconded by the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland that "To spread abroad the knowledge of the Gospel amongst barbarous and heathen nations seems to be highly preposterous." In the year 1812 the East India Company made a standing order for the deportation of all newly arriving missionaries which was mercilessly enforced. Such obstacles as these have to be gallantly faced by those who, hearing the call, go to serve; they have and are giving their lives in overcoming these obstacles.

FACTORS THAT ALLY MISSIONS AND COMMERCE.

1. The missionary as an aid to commerce. "The missionary is the representative of a higher civilization. His teaching and his manner of living create wants and introduce goods. He lights his house with a lamp, and straightway thousands of the natives become dissatisfied with a bit of rag burning in a dish of vegetable oil. So foreign lamps are being used by millions of Chinese, Japanese, and Siamese and East Indians. Clocks, bicycles, and sewing machines are similarly introduced." Arthur J. Brown, in the Foreign Missionary.

2. Missionary training aids in readjustment. "As the commercial prosperity of the white man develops, greater and greater demands for more workers and more skilled workers follow. The teaching of English, French, or Portuguese is demanded by the pupils, for these are essential qualifications for advancement. The trades, such as printing, carpentry, building, which the white man requires are taught to apprentices. A new idea of a house, of clothing, of food, of family life, of home, may be born more naturally from the things that they see than from the lessons taught in school and church."

3. Combating the slave trade. "In the heart of Africa, David Livingstone saw with his own eyes what a trade in murder this traffic carried on. He helped the West to appreciate that not by policing the coast, but by occupation and administration of the interior and by the development of legitimate commerce, would it be most effectively checked. The call for legitimate trade was answered by several trading companies who found in commerce a holy instrument for Africa's redemption."—The New Africa.

4. A concrete illustration. (From a recent article in The Literary Digest). "The heathen are happy as they are: why bother them?" So says the cynic on Christian missions. But he entirely disregards the fact that civilization, as represented by commercial firms seeking markets for the white man, is still pushing vigorously into less civilized countries, and uprooting the customs, tradition, religion and working methods of the people. The cynic never condemns these agencies for forcing themselves and their wares upon a native people.

"The Christian missionary, on the other hand, desires only to help these people to meet the new conditions of life to the best advantage and to help them in developing an adequate religious foundation. Reminding us of 'all this quotes an American missionary in East Africa, thus:

"In our community, which we call the Chikore Larger Parish, we are educating the hearts, hands and heads of more than two thousand five hundred children, not to mention their fathers and mothers. Jesus said that he came that people might have life; he came to save for life, not for death. We desire to give the African life, a life of hope instead of despair, of health instead of sickness, of knowledge instead of ignorance and superstition, or industry instead of idleness, a God of love instead of the fear of evil spirits; a monogamous home instead of a polygamous kraal, and the principles of Jesus so that they may build a Christian church, African in form and spirit."

These things shall be—a loftier race than e'er the world hath known shall rise,
With flame of freedom in their souls, and light of knowledge in their eyes.
They shall be gentle, brave and strong to spill no drop of blood, but dare
All that may plant man's lordship firm on earth, and and fire, and sea, and air.
Nation with nation, land with land, unarmed shall live as comrades free;
In every heart and brain shall throb the pulse of one fraternity.
New arts shall bloom of loftier mold, and mightier music fill the skies,
And every life shall be a song when all the earth is paradise.
—John A. Symonds.

NORTH CAROLINA AND VIRGINIA CONFERENCE ARRIVALS.

Those coming by train or bus to the North Carolina and Virginia Christian Conference which meets at Union, November 14th, will get off at Burlington, N. C., and if they desire transportation from Burlington to the church they will please notify J. H. Wilkins, chairman of the Transportation Committee, Burlington, N. C., the time of their arrival, and arrangements will be made to meet them. Trains and busses will be met only upon notification.

P. H. FLEMING, Pastor.

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE.

WORLD'S TEMPERANCE SUNDAY.

LESSON V.—OCTOBER 29, 1933.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Love worketh no ill to his neighbor; love, therefore, is the fulfillment of the law."—Romans 13:10.

LESSON TEXT: Romans 13:12-14; 14:7-9; 15-21.

The "wets" are insisting that the liquor problem should be returned to the States, and to the cities and the counties of the States. The "drys" insist that the liquor problem is not only a national problem, but a world problem. "World's Temperance Sunday"—there is a challenge in those words. The Kingdom of God involves, not only a nation in which there is no legal status for liquor, but a whole world in which it shall be an outlaw. The liquor traffic is doomed. As the kingdom of righteousness increases, the liquor traffic shall decrease. Those of us who believe in sobriety, and righteousness, have not lost the campaign; we have simply lost one battle. We shall win eventually. It is going to be a long, hard, slow process. But we shall win eventually. God is for us. He is against the liquor traffic in every form. The time will come when he will find enough people to do his will in this matter, and then—and not until then—the liquor traffic will be struck down.

The Day is at Hand.

The race has made progress slowly and painfully. There have been many evils that it has tolerated, either because the race did not recognize them as evils, or because the race did not have the moral resources to rid itself of them. But those who were instrumental in writing the Eighteenth Amendment into the Constitution, thought that "the night was spent, the day is at hand." They thought that the race, at least the American people had passed out of the night of darkness and ignorance as concerning the true nature of alcoholic beverages, and had come into the day of knowledge of their true nature. It would seem that the fact that alcohol is a poison, a habit-forming poison, that we live in a machine age, that life is becoming more complex and inter-related and inter-dependent, and that the use of liquor is contrary to the spirit of Christ, and a sin against personality—for these and other reasons it seemed that the day had come. But alas, the American people are still in the night, in the darkness as concerning this monster evil. One tragic factor in the whole situation was the failure of the American people, and the church people, to see the moral issue involved. One becomes somewhat concerned about a nation that will respond to the appeal to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment "because of party loyalty or regularity," or "for revenue." The drys must begin all over again the tedious process of education or enlightenment. We are not nearly so well educated in morals as we are in science.

Not in Rioting and Drunkenness, Not in Chambering and Wantonness, Not in Strife and Envyng.

Rioting and drunkenness go together. Chambering (sexual sin), and wantonness (licentiousness) go together and with drunkenness. Strife and jealousy (envyng) are the natural fruitage of drinking. Drinking is the root of all kinds of evils.

In Good Form.

The words, "Let us walk honestly," really mean, "Let us walk in good form." It is quite the thing now to drink. It is considered good form to drink, according to the etiquette of many. But it is bad form from the standpoint of God.

When one thinks of Jesus Christ and drinking, one somehow feels that for the Christian, at least, total abstinence is the only good form. We need to fear this one thing when liquor becomes legal—drinking will become respectable. As a matter of fact, it ought to be considered bad form for the Christian to drink.

None of Us Liveth to Himself.

There has been so much said about "State's rights" and especially about "personal liberty." It is a lot of bunk, and the folks who insist upon either know it is bunk. In the presence of a great Social Evil, how dare any man, especially any Christian man, talk about personal rights. One drunken driver on the road becomes a menace to every other driver on the road. The evils of liquor cannot be kept within the bounds of an individual's life, or the boundaries of a State. The governing principle of a Christian should not be his personal, selfish interests or tastes, but the greatest good for the largest number.

For Whom Christ Dies.

Human personality takes on new significance and new value in the light of Christ's death on the cross. No man is worthless in the light of that tremendous fact. The man who sells liquor to another man, or the man who gives another man a drink, is doing a terrible thing in the light of the Cross.

Not Meat and Drink, But Righteousness and Peace and Joy in the Holy Spirit.

The Kingdom of God does not consist of the physical appetites. It is a spiritual kingdom, a realm in human life, right here in the world in which we live, where the will of God is done. It is righteousness—the realm where men do the right, and where they do the will of God; it is peace—war has no place in it; it is joy in the Holy Spirit—a clean, wholesome, pure, unselfish, loving joy. Joy in the Holy Spirit leaves no aftermath of regret, no body of pain. It is the happiness experienced in having the Divine Presence in all human endeavors.

The Things that Make for Peace—The Things that Edify.

Intemperance promotes quarreling, bickering, strife, confusion, dissension, trouble, fighting. It does not edify. There is nothing about it that permanently enriches life, that builds character, that promotes godliness, that ennobles human life. It debases, deludes, destroys.

Anything Whereby Thy Brother Stumbleth.

One must consider his influence on others. One must think of those who will be caused to stumble by something which they can do in comparative safety. One's responsibility for others is a serious fact in life. "Am I my brother's keeper?" said Cain with a sneer. Perhaps not our brother's keeper; but we are our brother's brother. And that is something to think about.

The Larger Aspects of Temperance.

Of course, temperance is an inclusive word. One can be intemperate in word, in work, in pleasure, in many things. But just at present we need a great deal of teaching on temperance as applied to drinking. The writer believes that for the Christian at least temperance here means abstinence.

LIBERTY VANCE HOMECOMING DAY.

Liberty Christian Church wants all old and new members and friends to be present with her Sunday, October 29, 1933, to unite with us in worship and fellowship.

A cordial welcome awaits you, and the day will not be complete without your presence.

S. E. MADREN, Pastor,
MISS MARGARET ALSTON,
President W. M. U.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 16-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $4.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3/4 x 5 3/8 inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3 3/4 x 5 3/8 inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps $2.50

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5 3/8 x 8 3/8 inches and 1 3/8 inches thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With Concise Bible Dictionary combined Concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Lavanant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold $4.75

RED-LETTER EDITION.

With All the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands; title stamped on side and back in pure gold $3.25

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations; special book for Sunday Schools 95c

Any of the above Bibles sent postpaid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN
1536 East Broad Street Richmond, Virginia

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy

"O Lord, I beseech thee, let now thine ear be attentive to the prayer of thy servant, and to the prayer of thy servants, who desire to fear thy name, and prosper, I pray thee, thy servant this day."

MONDAY.

A CONTEMPTIBLE GIFT.

"But unto Cain and his offering he had not respect."—Gen. 5:5.

Why was Cain's gift contemptible? Halderman says, "Because he denied any difference between himself and God; because he denied that he was a fallen man and needed to be reconciled to God; because he did not recognize that the ground he used was cursed; asserting that any ground was good and should be acceptable to God."

There are those who deny that man is a fallen being, but claim that human nature is inherently good, and that by culture, man can bring himself to acceptance unto God. This is the cursed ground of man's life. There are some things that are sinful, judged of God, condemned and set aside, and one cannot indulge these things and offer them to God for blessing. To offer our own righteousness, our mere human goodness, to indulge the pleasures of sin for a season and then say, "What harm? Everything is good and sin is what you make of it," denies God's judgment and tramples under foot his word, because we offer him that which he has himself condemned. What can "consecration" mean, if it does not mean the acceptance of God's will and way, and living the conformed and the transformed life in him to the best of our ability?

Prayer—

"I am thine, O Lord,
I have heard thy voice,
As it told thy love to me,
But I long to rise in the arms of faith
And be closer drawn to thee."

—Amen.

TUESDAY.

THE ACCEPTABLE GIFT.

"And the Lord had respect unto Abel and to his offering."

"And the Lord said . . . if thou doest well, shalt thou not be accepted."—Gen. 4:4, 7.

Abel offered a slain lamb, and the above text is the record of God's blessing upon him. What is the difference between his offering and Cain's? He believed just the reverse of the things said about Cain. His offering of the slain lamb was a real sacrifice—a blood sacrifice, the symbol of his own heart's devotion.

Thus it is affirmed that the difference between the two men was not in the difference of the men but in what they offered—the blood of the lamb. Cain's offering neither represented his own sacrifice nor the blood sacrifice.

Remember then that the difference of acceptance or rejection before God all hinges on the question of the blood of the lamb.

And so it has been throughout all ages. It was the difference between the Egyptians and the Children of Israel on the night of the passover; it will be the difference between the saved and the lost to the last; and it is the difference between heaven and hell.

Prayer—O Lord, our Father, help us to see and understand and preach Christ and him crucified in all that we do and say. This we ask for Jesus sake.—Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

"And Cain went out from the presence of the Lord, and dwelt in the Land of Nod."—Gen. 4:16.

We are told that Cain himself named this land which he occupied, Nod. That is to say, "Vagabond." A vagabond is now what he is before the Lord, so he dwells in the land of the vagabond.

We are told further that the type of civilization which Cain established was society, music, art, manufactories, polygamy and murder. It is not to be believed that music and art and business are godless and result only in immorality; but it is believed that culture and embellishments alone cannot produce a godly civilization, nor a perfect society. When God cursed Cain he told him that "When thou tillest the ground, it shall not henceforth yield unto thee her strength."

If these things be true, it would not be hard to look into present-day conditions and put the finger on some of our failures. Statesmen labor and patriots die in the cause of national welfare and recovery, but stable society does not follow; crime is rampant, sin flaunted in public gaze beggars description, drought is impoverishing, and starvation knocks at the door right in the midst of plenty. Only the church cries, "Turn to God," but the church pews are vacant and the church treasuries are empty, for civilization does not believe that such is the answer. It is the great fight between the flesh and God. The man of the flesh lives for this world. The man of God worships God and lives for his spirit in the world to come, looking for a city whose foundation and whose maker and builder is God.

Prayer—O Lord, we are so guilty of living apart from thee, and we do not know how to pray. "O Lord, have mercy upon us sinners."—Amen.

THURSDAY.

THE PLACE OF PRAYER.

"Then began man to call upon the name of the Lord."—Gen. 4:26.

This is the first mention of prayer in the Bible. According to the Scriptures, it must have been the first instance of prayer in human kind. It was under the rule of Seth, whom God gave Eve as a substitute for Abel, and it appears to be the first step of civilization to bring up a society according to the will of God.

Prayer is the first expression of every soul that turns to God. When Paul was converted it was said of him, "Behold he prayeth"; when Jesus turned from his work, "He continued all night in prayer." This is not because prayer is mandatory in Christian experience, but it is because the first thing that claims a new born soul's cry is the claim and authority of the Lord upon it. It is the first look toward heaven; it is the first rung of the ladder heavenward; it is the pressure of the heart-springs coveting the companionship and fellowship with God. He who is born again and for a vision of these things is compelled to pray. Without prayer, there is no vision.

Prayer—Dear Father, though we do not know how to call upon thee, and are ashamed to offer thee our sinful selves, we are thankful that thou art calling us, and through Christ we may come to thee for succor. O God, bless us with thy companionship every day. In Jesus' name we ask it.—Amen.

FRIDAY.

WALKING WITH GOD.

"Enoch walked with God."—Gen. 5:24.

Walking with God signifies a lot, and yet not more than is plain and possible in everyday life. It signifies:

1. Believing in God and loving God in life.
2. Committed to God's will.
3. Going in God's direction.
4. Keeping the mind in harmony with God through constant prayer.
5. Listening to God through spirit, through his word, through the voice of conscience, through the claims of love, peace, gentleness, meekness, justice and righteousness.
6. At ease in God's presence.
7. Pleasing God.
8. Allowing no separation from God.

Prayer—Our Father, we want to walk with thee. We want to feel thy spirit, thy passions, thy love, thy life as it is in Jesus. Grant this this day. We ask for Jesus sake.—Amen.

SATURDAY.

WOULDN'T SAY "HELLO!"

"Love suffereth long."—Read I. Cor. 13:1-7.

Divorce court judges have to listen to tragic stories. One woman's husband wouldn't say "Hello" to her when she had a terrible toothache. When she was blue he would go around the house singing, just to tease her; and when she felt happy he was blue. And so the testimony went.

It doesn't take much to make a happy household. It is usually just a matter of saying "Hello." It is usually just such little bits of sympathy and cheer and comfort and comradeship. It costs nothing but thoughtfulness and not much of that; but, alas, how often it is forgotten!

It is easy to slide down the hill. Injured feelings soon become mean suspicions and mean suspicions soon slip into the divorce court. And it is not easy to climb up again on to the heights of sunshiny affection. Just a little application of the thirteenth chapter of I. Corinthians.

Prayer—Christ of love, may we love one another. Plant thy gentle spirit in our breasts. Make us kind in the little ways which are the big ways.—Amen.

—AMOS R. WELLS.

SUNDAY.

THE DEATH GRIP.

"Ye will not come to me that ye may have life."—Read John 5:30-40.

A man jumped into a river, seeking to commit suicide. A letter carrier jumped after him to save him. The drowning man locked his arms around the would-be rescuer in a death-grip that was impossible to loose. Life line and life preservers fell short. Finally, rescuers reached the two just in time to save their lives, but the end is not always so fortunate.

A fatal instinct prompts this death grip whenever a rescue from spiritual death is attempted. The sinner welcomes the opportunity of company in his death. Ministers and evangelists often meet this hostility. But what else can be expected? Did not the Son of God himself meet it? And is not the servant as his Lord?

Prayer—Let us stretch out grateful hands toward thee, our Saviour, like Peter when he was sinking in the waves. Let us not be bent upon our own destruction, but yearn for eternal life from thee.—Amen.

—AMOS R. WELLS.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Preacher

GREAT NEEDS OF A MODERN ERA.

By REV. RUSSELL J. CLINCHY.

"Make me as one of thy hired servants."
Luke 15: 19.

Of all the requests which the Prodigal Son could have made of his father, there was only one he wanted to ask, and he pleaded, "Make me as one of thy hired servants." When he was in the far country he was under no restraint. He wanted to be free, and by free he meant the absence of any necessity. With that license he played fast and loose, giving vent to every desire. But after every want had been appeased he found he only wanted one thing, "Make me as a servant."

That was the recognition of the demand of the spiritual nature of man for a discipline that is as rigid and as vital as the discipline imposed on any other sphere of life. Sometime, sooner or later, life has a way of going about the task of making us serious and thoughtful. It gives us a chance for foolishness, if we insist upon being so foolish as to want such a chance, and then it pulls us up short with either satiation or disgust, as it did with the prodigal son, as if to say, "It is enough."

We seemed to have arrived just now. A short while ago one of our leading newspapers opened one of its editorials by saying, "We had grown flabby. We had let the money changers become our monarchs. Then the crash. We have learned; at least for a while, we have learned."

It was only recently that Walter Lippmann was outlining some of our modern problems, and he mentioned the same thing when he said this. "There remains one other thing, which in a sense, underlies everything else, and that is the problem of the individual himself who tries to take his part in the solution of these matters. The constant danger is that the disorder in the outside world will produce disorder in our own spirits."

Then if that be our problem the future depends upon whether we have the ability and the insight to perceive that the request we must make of life is the one which Jesus saw that the boy must make of his father—that of desiring with his whole heart the self-discipline of his spiritual life. Jesus saw that amid the license of the far country the soul of the boy was at loose ends, at the mercy of every whim and desire. He could meet no problem of life with any hope of solving it, or no antagonist of the spiritual life with the hope of conquering it. It was not the desire to return to his father's house which made the difference in him. That could have been just a sentimental homesickness with no real power in it. The change from weakness to strength came with his desire and willingness to place himself under the constraints of discipline.

The necessity for this is obvious in the realm of the physical and the mental. The demands for the discipline of the physical body are enforced by the edicts of pain and disease and no one can ignore their laws for long. We may decide that we shall not discipline ourselves regarding exercise, and cleanliness and nourishing food, but it is not for long.

The task is a bit more difficult mentally, but the very necessity of learning how to keep alive and keep our places in the working world, forces us to at least a limited discipline of mental attainment. But if we wish to go beyond the average, both in the physical and the mental areas, we well understand that such accomplishment can only be won by the earnest and constant discipline of our bodies and our minds. Have you read what discipline even a prize fighter undergoes to secure brute strength? Why even a monk in a cell is a novice in self-discipline compared with him! Or there was John Stuart Mill who was considered to have the best equipped mind in the Victorian Age. But Mill read and studied so constantly that he never allowed himself a day's vacation from reading and study until he was 25 for fear of breaking the habit of work. We know what it takes to achieve power in body and mind.

But consider what we rely upon for spiritual resources. We are, of course, only thinking of those who are actually aware of their need of spiritual resources, for those who are not aware of them would not even depend upon these ways. But those of us who are so conscious of the great spiritual problems of life that we have come in contact with the church need to remind ourselves that we have not placed ourselves under a spiritual discipline comparable to our physical and mental discipline.

Consider from where we seek our spiritual resources. Mostly, of course, from our inheritance. We had a father or a mother, or a family circle, that was deeply ingrained with a sense of spiritual and moral reality, and we still seek to live upon that inheritance. But think of a boy who went out to try for his college football team with no physical stamina of his own, but only the plea that his father had played on that college football team twenty years before! Well, most of us are trying to play the game of life on the memory of the spiritual power our fathers possessed.

Or we attempt the other endeavor of grasping at spiritual resources at random. Suddenly life brings us up against stark reality, and we know that we must secure power. We thrust out toward God and seek to secure something immediately. We are like a boy who dallies and plays through all the school year, and then suddenly the day of examination looms ahead of him. He crams for the examination hoping to secure something which will enable him to meet it. So do we. We pray in a storm, we repent when an earthquake strikes us, we attempt to know God when our human power fails. Then we find that the power we received is only that which can be secured from a random thrust in a moment of necessity.

Or else we are deluged into believing that moral and spiritual power is something which is in the atmosphere as a general sort of experience and does not, therefore, have to be a particular and a personal one. It is just here that most of us face disaster in possessing a great spiritual consciousness. The general atmosphere in which most of us live has a vague moral and spiritual tinge and we somehow feel that we absorb it. It is part of the danger of living in what is nominally called a Christian community, because we then lead ourselves to believe that we really have a Christian sense of things. We take on the protective coloring of environment. If we were calling ourselves Christian with the kind of lives we have while living in the frank honesty of the utter paganism and materialism of ancient Rome, we would readily discover our lack of moral and spiritual integrity. But we are part of a general vague atmosphere which goes under the name of Christian and which gives just enough normal adherence to spiritual names and forms to give us the sense that we are therefore Christian.

This has been made so apparent for us in the examination of our business leaders before the Senate investigating committee. These are not what we call bad men. There is nothing in their personal lives which would ostracize them from society. Every one of them nominally calls himself a religious man because he is part of the general atmosphere which is supposed to be moral and spiritual in name. But Mr. Lippmann has again reminded us that "the shocking thing about the Mitchell testimony, for instance, was not merely what was revealed about his conduct, but something much more disturbing than that. The general character of Mr. Mitchell's operations had long been known to the banking community, and Mr. Mitchell was, nevertheless, permitted to continue as a banking leader. That was utterly destructive of confidence. But how can confidence be restored? Not merely by laws, for laws cannot be written and enforced which will automatically produce a banking system worthy of confidence. Beyond the laws there must be bankers whose code is higher than those laws."

(Continued on page 15.)

COMMUNION WARE.

Individual Service.

ALUMINUM.

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A.

- Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses $7.00
- Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses 6.75
- Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses 6.50
- Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
- Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
- Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim..... 1.60

(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)

SILVER-PLATED.

The Silver-plated Ware is of the very highest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.

- Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses.$22.00
- Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85. 11.00
- Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85... 16.00
- Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling). $22.00
- Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90.. 16.00
- Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90. 14.00

- Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow Rim.....$ 9.00
- Bread Plate No. 4—Broad Rim..... 9.00
- Filler—Silver Lined..... 6.00

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street Richmond, Virginia

Christian Orphanage

Dear friends:

The Christian Orphanage is the champion sweet potato raiser this year. It has harvested and stored 675 bushels (winter food). Our largest one weighed seven and one-half pounds. We had sixteen that filled a bushel crate. I believe if we could have had rain during the month of September we would have probably made a thousand bushels. But the weather was very dry during the entire month.

We are short on corn and oats. It has been so dry this year that our corn for the crib was almost ruined and we had to take most of our corn to fill the silo. I am happy that some sections have had good seasons and the corn crop is good. If these sections would send us some corn and oats it would make us happy. This suggestion is for the men.

I have one for the good women, too. We are short on sheets. They will wear out. It takes quite a lot of sheets to keep the beds nice and clean. Don't forget.

Have you started to form your organization for your Thanksgiving offering in your church? We hope our churches and Sunday Schools will put some enthusiasm in the offering this year. Make a real offering—the Orphanage needs it!

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON, Supt.

REPORT FOR OCTOBER 26, 1933.

Brought forward	$ 9,755.34
Sunday School Monthly Offerings:
North Carolina and Virginia Conference:
Elon College	$ 12.50
Lawrence Memorial Bible Class...	2.25
Third Ave., Danville	9.40
Mt. Zion	1.21	25.36
Eastern North Carolina Conference:
Fuller's Chapel	$ 2.58
Mt. Auburn	4.25
Clayton	1.00
Cary	1.00
Damascus	1.57
Liberty Vance	4.48	14.88
Western North Carolina Conference:
Flint Hill	$.55
Wentworth	7.17
Shiloh	1.00	8.72
Eastern Virginia Conference:
Holy Neck	$ 5.73
Berea, Norfolk	6.50
Wakefield	1.77
South Norfolk	5.64
Cypress Chapel	5.14	24.78
Valley Virginia Central Conference:
Winchester	$ 3.53
Newport	1.37	4.90
Alabama Conference:
Mt. Zion		2.57
Georgia and Alabama Conference:
Vanceville		1.00
Special Offerings.
W. D. Hall, Ruffin, N. C., Happy Home Church	$ 5.00
Mrs. Dalton, support children...	12.50
Porterville Christian Church, Eaton, Ill.	1.08
Damascus birthday offering.....	1.17	19.75

Thanksgiving Offering.
Mrs. J. E. Vincent, Suffolk, Va.....	10.00
Total for the week.....	$ 111.96
Grand total	$ 9,867.30

CONFERENCES WILL MEET.

The Eastern Virginia Conference will meet with Holy Neck Christian Church, near Holland, Va., on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, November 1st, 2nd and 3rd. Opening session 10 o'clock Wednesday morning.

The Western North Carolina Conference will meet with the Ramseur Christian Church, Ramseur, N. C., on Wednesday and Thursday, November 8th and 9th.

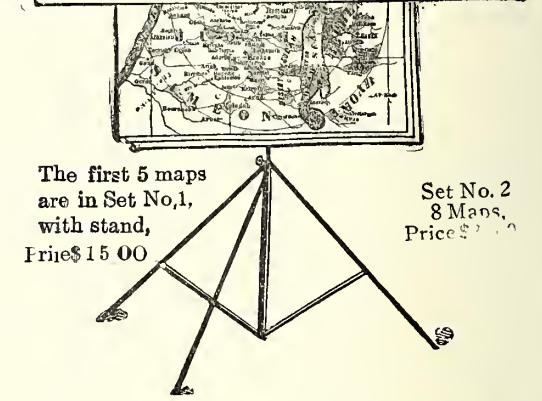

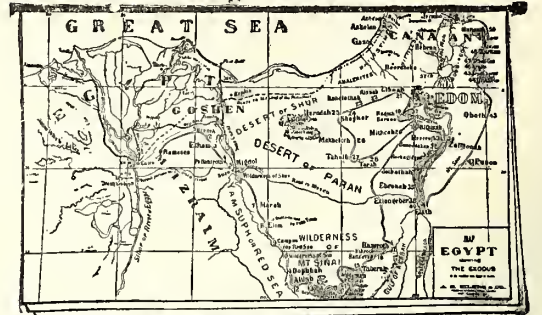

The North Carolina and Virginia Conference will meet with Union Christian Church, Alamance County, N. C., on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, November 14th, 15th and 16th.

The Eastern North Carolina Conference will meet on Tuesday and Wednesday, November 21st and 22nd, at Wentworth Christian Church, McCuller's, N. C.

The Georgia State Conference will meet with the United Church, LaGrange, Ga., Tuesday and Wednesday, October 31st and November 1st. Rev. J. H. Dollar, president of the conference, is also pastor of the entertaining church.

There are sermon tasters—those who love to hear preaching and know how to listen; and there are sermon critics—those who do not enjoy preaching and cannot listen because they are cynics. The one type is spiritually minded, the other spiritually without any mind at all.—The Christian-Evangelist.

Eilers Sunday School Maps.

The first 5 maps are in Set No. 1, with stand, Price $15 00

Set No. 2 8 Maps, Price $20 00

Fine large Maps. In 6 Colors 36x57, on linen finished Cloth. Mounted on a folding steel stand, which can be regulated, so that Maps may be seen to the best advantage. This set contains data for thorough Bible Study. Its large print and Cheerful Colors makes this set very instructive and attractive. Contains the five thoroughly up to date Maps necessary to the study of Bible History. New Testament Palestine, — Old Testament Palestine, — Roman empire and Bible Lands, showing Pauls Travels by Colored lines. — Lands of the Old Testament, from the Great Sea, to the Persian Gulf.—The Exodus, Egypt, shown by Colored lines the wanderings of the Israelites.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN
1536 East Broad Street Richmond, Virginia

HOLMAN SUPERIOR TEACHERS' BIBLES

Authorized Version—Self-Pronouncing The Best Editions of the World's Best Book

For Adults, Teachers, Preachers, Students, and All Who Would Study the Word of God Intelligently

BOLD BLACK TYPE—COMPACT SIZE 4 1/2 x 6 3/4 INCHES—WILL FIT THE COAT POCKET

Part page specimen of Holman Boldblack Type Bible

ST. MATTHEW, 5. Christ's sermon on the mount.

13 And leaving Naz'a-réth, he came and dwelt in Ca-pér-na-úm, which is upon the sea coast, in the borders of Zab'u-lon and Neph'tha-lim: 14 That it might be fulfilled	A. D. 31. 934 CHAPTER 5. 3 Who are blessed. 13 The disciples called the salt of the earth, and light of the world; Christ urgeth on them a good example, etc. CHAP. 4. Isa. 9. 1, 2. AND seeing the multitudes, he went up into a moun-
--	--

THIS NEW HOLMAN TEACHERS' BIBLE, Pronouncing Text, Bold Black Type is a PRONOUNCED SUCCESS. The latest Bible with NEW HELPS that are quite comprehensive and consist of an Illustrated Bible Dictionary, Concordance and additional aids all under ONE ALPHABETICAL INDEX. Also Fine Maps on Coated Paper, and Bible paper is used to improve opacity and keep down bulk. By this means you get the benefit of full Biblical information without the physical discomfort of handling a heavy volume.

STYLES AND PRICES—BIBLE PAPER EDITION

4612. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges.....	$4.00
4630. Same as 4612, with extra leather lined covers.....	4.75

With Helps as described above. Size 4 1/2 x 6 3/4 inches. One inch in thickness

THIN INDIA PAPER EDITION

630X. Egyptian Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings, red under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker.....	7.00
633X. Algerian Morocco, divinity circuit, leather lining to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, extra quality binding.....	8.00

EXTRA LARGE PRINT TEACHERS' BIBLES

Large 8 Vo. Size—8x5 1/2 inches—1600 Pages, including 400 pages of Bible Study Helps

Part Page Specimen of Print

ST. MATTHEW, 5. Christ's sermon on the mount.

15 ^b The land of Zab'u-lon, and the land of Neph'tha-lim, by the way of the sea, beyond Jor'dan, Gal'i-lee of the Gen'tiles;	A. D. 31. 2 And he opened his mouth, and taught them, saying, 3 ^b Blessed are the poor in spirit: for their's is the kingdom of heaven.
--	--

CONTAINING COMPLETE HELPS TO BIBLE STUDY, INCLUDING ALL OF THE FOLLOWING FEATURES

A New Practical Course in Bible Reading, A Treasury of Biblical Information. The most carefully compiled, thorough and attractive form in which valuable Biblical information has ever been prepared. Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary Containing 150 illustrations, concise definitions and textual references on nearly 50,000 subjects. A Practical Comparative Concordance, with nearly 50,000 references. Four Thousand Questions and Answers on the Old and New Testaments. A valuable Help to all Bible Readers.

STYLES AND PRICES

4712. Divinity Circuit (overlapping covers), French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, silk head bands, and silk marker..	$5.00
812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament, Old Testament Passages alluded to by Christ, various prophecies relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above on 4712 and same large Self-Pronouncing type.....	6.00
733X. Holman India Paper, Genuine Morocco, leather lined, silk sewed, divinity circuit, round corners carmine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and helps as above	10.65

All styles sent Postpaid at above prices—Thumb Index 50 cents extra

THE SUN'S PULPIT.

(Continued from page 13.)

We must recognize that with the possession of this code which is higher than our laws we need the possession of a recognition of the unity of our social life. Whether we like it or not, we now realize that we are living in a world in which we are all bound together as closely as though we were living on the same street, and that we cannot live that way unless we give thought to it. We can live in a wilderness without thought of others, but we cannot live that way in the modern world. On all sides this is recognized and we have all kinds of plans and blueprints for it. They range all the way from those of the liberal based on persuasion to those of the Communist based on compulsion. But they all pre-suppose the fact that the social and economic traffic of an inter-dependent world must be planned and guided by wisdom and by insight.

These are the two necessities of life in the modern world, therefore, the possession of a code which is higher than our laws, and a plan for social advance which includes all of us. But the mere mention of these needs brings us to the realization that they demand for their accomplishment something which we do not possess—the power of self-discipline. Jesus recognized where the secret of such possessions lay when he said: "Such things come by prayer and fasting." That is a dedication of oneself to the ideal by the discipline of one's mental and spiritual nature. It is the lack of such ability which leaves us so helpless today, not the lack of knowledge or of technique. Our schools, our radio talks, our pulpits, our magazines, our scientists, are all pouring out their instruction to us today as to what we should do, and how we should do it. And they believe if only the way is announced, mankind will organize and carry out the program. What they forget is that though the proclamation may be made with clarity, the power necessary to incorporate it into life comes only with the prayer and fasting of eternal discipline, and we have not been willing to give either ourselves or our social order, over to such discipline. The consequence, is, then, that when we are called upon to face the stern demands of life for a code that is higher than our laws, and the creation of a social order that is aware of our common relation, we find ourselves unable to control either our natures or our social action along any other line than that of selfish desire and individual action. Prayer and fasting in the interest of spiritual and social discipline are as alien to most of us as the ritual of a Chinese temple.

Our prayer and fasting would begin, then, with the command over our wants and desires. It is obvious that either we control our wants and desires or they control us, but what is harder for us to appreciate is how easily our necessities grow without our being aware of them.

How truly Jesus touched the reality of our need when he said that the disciplines of the spirit are obtained only when we prayerfully consider them, and create a fact from the multitudinous desires so that we can give attention to them. We have failed to use the ideas of prayer and fasting with the broad comprehension that Jesus gave to them. We think of prayer as the repeating of certain words, and of fasting as the cessation from food and drink at certain periods. These efforts, good in themselves, do not create great discipline of life. We grow into great energies of spiritual and mental power only when prayer has pierced through all the extremities of life and given us a new appreciation of values; when we have fasted from all the great lures of self-interest and action on individual motives, and from all the tawdry and worthless wants. Out of such prayer and such fasting arises life which is fused with those spiritual disciplines which Jesus possessed so that power lay within his hands to say, "Not my will, but thine, be done."

That is why a newspaper can tell us we are flabby, and in reality speak to the church and say that it has allowed the age to grow flabby and soft. We have allowed them to think that religion is beautiful incense and rich soft color, and have forgotten to point to John the Baptist crying in the wilderness, "Repent ye, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand." Above all we have forgotten to point to Jesus alone on the mountain-side through the whole night receiving that power and insight which comes only through prayer and fasting.

That is the spiritual discipline which holds on till death, even with the endless moral earnestness of George Whitefield. There is that glorious description of Whitefield on the evening he died.

He had poured forth his great life through all the long years. He had preached for two hours that morning, and then that evening, being too weak to stand, he started up the stairs to his bedroom with his candle in his hand. But the crowd thronged the hallway, eager to hear the man they loved. "Preach to us," they cried, and the broken frame of the old man blazed again with the undying fire of his spirit, and holding the candle aloft, he made his voice speak of the faith which burned within him. The candle burned lower and lower, and as the light flickered and went out George Whitefield sank down upon the stairs.

The candle of the Lord is in our hands, and life asks that we will dedicate our lives to the eternal spirit of God until the light for us goes out.

ELON COLLEGE

AN ACCREDITED COLLEGE

of the

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING.

ELON COLLEGE, founded by the Christian Church in 1889, has fully justified the faith and hope of its founders during its 42 years of operation. Its graduates from the four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree, number 980, now living, 122 of whom are in the Christian Ministry and full-time Christian service. The majority of these are members of our own denomination. In addition, 449 are in educational work and are an active influence in the lay leadership of the Christian Church.

THE CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING, and the definite religious atmosphere of the College, provide the very best facilities available for training for religious leadership, and offer the Church its finest opportunity to train the young people of the denomination to assume active leadership both in the ministry and laity of the local churches.

FALL TERM OPENS SEPTEMBER 7th.

Address—

C. M. CANNON, Registrar

Elon College, - - - - North Carolina

Home Atmosphere—Reasonable Rates—Clean Athletics—Christian Spirit

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr
A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Congregational-Christian Church.

Central Publishing Co., Inc., is complying with the President's Code

BOARD OF EDITORS.

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D.....Editor
E. C. GILLETTE, D. D.....Associate
S. C. HARRELL, D. D.....Contributing
C. R. RAYMOND, D. D....Contributing
ELISHA A. KING, D. D...Contributing
W. C. WICKER, D. D.....Contributing
J. T. KERNODLE....Managing Editor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Year$2.00
Six Months 1.00

Trial Subscriptions: Five or more new subscriptions sent in at one time by pastor or president of any church organization, three months for 40c each.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Change of Address: Be sure to give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

All news matter and items to be published in "The Sun" should be addressed to J. O. Atkinson, Editor, Elon College, N. C., and should reach him not later than Friday preceding date of publication. If more convenient, news from Congregational Churches may be sent to E. C. Gillette, Associate Editor, 117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla. Emergency notices will be received at the Richmond Office up until Tuesday of week of publication.

All remittances for subscriptions, renewals, advertising, etc., books for review, and other matters of business should be addressed to J. T. Kernodle, Managing Editor, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

Notices: Obituary and marriage notices, limited to 125 words, published free. All over 125 words, 1c a word, cash with notice. No notices should exceed 250 words.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows date of expiration, and change on label will appear the first or second issue of the month following renewal, provided it was received before the 25th. No other receipt will be sent unless requested. Please notify the Richmond Office if label is not changed as above.

MARRIAGES

HILLIARD—GUPTON.

Miss Thelma Gupton and Mr. Walter Hilliard were united in marriage by the writer on Wednesday, October 4, 1933, at the home of his brother, Mr. J. F. Hilliard, Cary, N. C.

The bride wore a pretty frock of dark blue triple crepe, with black accessories. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Gupton, Louisburg, N. C. The groom is the youngest son of Mr. W. A. Hilliard, also of Louisburg. Their many friends wish for them much success and happiness.

H. C. HILLIARD.

OBITUARIES

BLACK.

William Henry Black was born in Guilford County, October 15, 1864, and died September 10th. He was the son of the late John and Sarah Ann Hudson Black.

He was quiet and unassuming in all his ways, tender in his home and to his family, and kind and obliging in his community and to his neighbors.

He was a faithful, liberal and devoted member of the Providence Memorial Church, and his presence and influence will be greatly missed.

He was buried in the cemetery that surrounds his church and his funeral was conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. G. C. Crutchfield, his pastor, and Rev. J. M. Perman of the Friends Church.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Jennie Black, two daughters Mrs. L. G. Freeland and Mrs. W. A. Rich; two sons W. Z. and Paul Black, and five grandchildren, all living in Graham. Three sisters, Mrs. Mary R. Steele of Graham, Mrs. J. A. Smith of Snow Camp, and Mrs. P. T. Ballard of Greensboro. Two brothers, C. J. and T. D. Black of Liberty.

T. E. WHITE.

COUNCILL.

Catullus Councill was born in Nansmond County, Va., May 24, 1861, and died September 15, 1933, at his home in Portsmouth, Va. He was married to Miss Rosa Holland, of Holland, Va., and seven children blessed the home, on Columbia Street, Sunday afternoon, September 17th, by the writer and Dr. N. G. Newman, pastor of the Holy Neck Church. The body was interred in the family lot in Oak Grove Cemetery, Portsmouth, Va.

Early in life, Brother Councill united with the Holy Neck Christian Church. R. A. WHITTEN.

PIEDMONT COLLEGE

Located in

"The Blue Ridge Highlands"

FALL TERM BEGINS
SEPTEMBER 13.

An accredited college with an enviable reputation for superior classroom instruction, and wholesome student life.

Fully recognized and accredited in its home State, and in such neighboring States as North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Tennessee and others. Standard courses leading to the A. B. and B. S. degrees.

Cost for Board, Room and Tuition, including also Entrance, Activity, and Infirmary fees reduced to $273.50 for the College Year. Personal expenses as low as student and parent wish.

All who seek an "A" grade college training for their sons and daughters in an atmosphere of Christian culture, and at minimum cost, are invited to write for the college catalogue and admission blanks.

Address: DEAN J. C. ROGERS,
DEMOREST, GEORGIA.

Southern Seminary Foundation

(Successor to Atlanta Theological Seminary.)

AFFILIATED WITH

Vanderbilt University

The Foundation and the other Foundations that are affiliated with Vanderbilt University School of Religion comprise the only Interdenominational Theological School in the South. Through this affiliation the students enjoy the rights and privileges of Vanderbilt University.

DEGREES.

Candidates for degrees are required to have completed their college courses.

The degree of Bachelor of Divinity is offered to qualified students who complete the required courses.

Vanderbilt University also offers the degrees of Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy, in accordance with the regulations established in its several departments.

MORE THAN A SCHOOL OF THEOLOGY.

Because of our affiliation with Vanderbilt, our relations with other nearby colleges where our students can take courses without tuition, and the cooperation of the American Red Cross and other social agencies in the city, we prepare students for many types of Christian service.

Come to Nashville, the Educational Center of the South, and prepare for Christian leadership. A Graduate School open to both men and women, with opportunities for self-help.

For information write

WILLIAM JAMES CAMPBELL, President,
330 BUTTRICK HALL, VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY,
NASHVILLE, TENN.

SOUTHERN UNION COLLEGE

FRANK E. JENKINS, Acting President.

WINTER QUARTER WILL BEGIN
NOVEMBER 29th.

* * * *

STRONG FACULTY : STRONG COURSES
LOW EXPENSES : THOROUGHLY
CHRISTIAN.

* * * *

The Adult Education Department is growing rapidly, with over 60 already enrolled.

For prospectus and full information, write

DEAN MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD,
WADLEY, ALABAMA

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Representing the Southeast Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXV.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 2, 1933.

NUMBER 44.

.. THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY ..

U. S. to Buy Gold in World Market.—

Unless there is a reconsideration of the present move to buy gold in the world market, a money war seems imminent. The administration seems determined to carry out its program, and Federal Reserve officials have been busy working out details. Meanwhile exponents of the various economic schools have been shaking their heads and predicting disappointing results, while slumping markets showed the opinions of the country's stock and grain traders.

Expensive Wall Paper.—

Because his house needed papering and he could not afford to have the work done, Vernon Jepson, 89-year-old Confederate soldier is said to have used his collection of postage stamps, numbering over 500,000, for this purpose. It may have seemed a foolish idea, but he went through with it, nevertheless, and now those walls are valued at $25,000. For a year he labored at his task and slowly the walls took on new life. Today the house is said to look as if it had been done in Moorish arabesque or Egyptian mosaic. We are told that tourists visiting St. Cloud, Fla., may take a peep at this curious display for the small sum of ten cents.

NRA Taken Into Court.—

On Monday of this week the Federal Government's right to deny contracts to persons who have not given affirmative compliance was challenged from two different quarters. A temporary injunction restraining the Secretary of the Treasury from awarding a postoffice annex in New York City was granted to the Geo. F. Driscoll Construction Company. This company's bid was $112,800 lower than that of the next lowest company, but was thrown out because of alleged non-compliance with the re-employment agreement. The injunction was made temporary. The other case mentioned is that of a Ford dealer who was low bidder for trucks to be used by the C. C. C. This company contended that it had complied with NRA provisions, and that if it were barred from competitive bidding, approximately 5,300 manufacturers who supply parts and equipment for motor units would also be barred.

The Last of the Morioris.—

Any boy who has read the books of adventure and history written by Geo. A. Henty, will remember with a thrill his story of the Morioris and the early settlers in New Zealand. In a recent issue of The Literary Digest is a story of the passing of the last of the pure blooded members of this aboriginal tribe. "Tommy Solomon," it says, "has eaten himself to death, and it is a grief to ethnologists, for Tommy was the last of the Morioris. It is a grief also to the New Zealanders, who rejoiced whenever Tommy, a resident of Chatham Islands, visited the mainland. Adorned with feather and sharks' teeth, he was a sight." At home, he was lord of 2,000 acres of sheep land. He was rich, but could hardly be reckoned happy, for he was by nature a sociable fellow, and it was his lot to see the small remnant of his people waste away. Donald J. Cowie, writing in The Mid-Pacific Monthly, says that "The Morioris, like the extinct Tasmanians, were a race of their own." Nobody knew where they came from, and now, with the exception of half-breeds, they are gone. As said above, to ethnologists, the extinction of any race, no matter how small, is a tragedy. They know that it is always possible for the littlest of data to turn out to be of immense scientific value.

Five Hundred Millions for Wrappers.—

It costs over $500 millions to wrap up the packages that Mr. Citizen buys during the year. Indeed, in some instances the wrapper costs more than its contents. On the face of it, this would probably seem absurd, as the merchant is not in business to sell the container, but the candy, perfume, or other article which it contains. Yet, in many instances, it is almost impossible to sell these very articles without dressing them up on a manner that appeals to the eye. Every man, woman and child in the United States pays, in the course of a year, not less than $5.00 for boxes, tin cans, bottles, paper containers, and wrapping materials of various kinds. The biggest single item is for tin cans, the cost of the empty containers alone reaching the sum of nearly $200 millions. This is a comparatively modern method of packaging as there was formerly great prejudice against the use of tin for fear of poisoning, and perhaps there were thousands who were poisoned while tin-canning was in the experimental stage. The pure food laws together with the National Canners Association, have made this practically a thing of the past, and the danger of poisoning from tin cans has been reduced practically to the vanishing point. The second largest sum spent for packaging is for corrugated boxes, amounting to around $80 millions. Besides the corrugated variety there are numerous other kinds of boxes, including the folding variety, the expensive fancy candy box, and the paper "can" used generally for ice creams and other such commodities. Glass is perhaps the oldest of our "wrappers" and it still plays a most important part, the bottle bill of today reaching above the $75 million mark. The latest comer in the field is possibly cellophane with its bill for $20 millions. And its popularity is still growing. And last, but not least, is our old standby, the brown kraft wrapping paper which is found in every corner grocery as well as in the larger marts of commerce. It costs the merchants and manufacturers who use it $33,882,000 a year.

Will It Be An Empty Shell?—

In 1935, there will be completed in the city of Geneva the great palace of the League of Nations, which is now being built at an estimated cost of $9,000,000. In 1935, unless they change their minds, both Japan and Germany will withdraw from the League. Nominally they are still members in good standing, because withdrawal from League membership requires an advance notice of two years. But suppose they do not change their minds, what will be the result? The Peace Palace at the Hague, given by Andrew Carnegie, was dedicated just one year before the outbreak of the world War. Will the dedication of the League Palace precede a similar catastrophe? Speaking of the recent meeting to advance the cause of peace, a contemporary says: "A parallel is provided in the book of Genesis: 'And they said, Go to, let us build us a city and a tower whose top may reach unto Heaven.' Like the Tower of Babel the Peace Palace, or its mission, was overtaken by a confusion of tongues. Is this to be the fate of every edifice created to penetrate the Heaven of peace?" The League of Nations had its inception in the brains of a few idealists as early as 1914, while there was yet a possibility of averting what became the world's greatest war. While America yet remained neutral, the idea began to grow, and found the support of such men as William Howard Taft, Elihu Root, and President Wilson. When peace was finally declared, it was brought to the front by the American President and was vigorously supported by such men as Lord Robert Cecil of England and General Smuts, the great South African leader. It received its first, and perhaps hardest, blow when the Congress of the United States refused to ratify the work headed by President Wilson. It killed Mr. Wilson, though the League survived. Three years later, the next blow to the League was given by Premier Mussolini in the Corfu incident, and still a heavier blow fell when it was unable to back up its words in the aggression of Japan in the undeclared Sino-Japanese War. In regard to this the Manchester (England) Guardian, says: "A check to Japanese aggression . . . would have created an immensely important precedent. . . . Instead, another sort of precedent has been created. The aggressors of the future feel that they can always count on the conflicting policies of the nations. . . . The States which fear aggression feel that they have lost their only international guaranty." This attitude doubtlessly greatly increased the mutual distrust between Germany and her neighbors, and likely indirectly brought about the last blow to fall upon the League, that of Germany's withdrawal. Will there be an effort to revive the disintegrating League, or will its palace be completed only to become an empty shell?

NOTES-PERSONALS

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

Our deep and sincere sympathies are extended to our friend and beloved brother, Rev. Ellwood W. Jones, pastor, Christian Church, Franklin, Va., who is bereaved in the passing away of his good wife, Friday, October 20th. Mrs. Jones, like her good husband, had won the high esteem of the people who knew her at Franklin, and in her death a distinct loss is felt.

Rev. Carr E. Gerringer, Wakefield, Va., was a visitor at Elon College and the editor's office, October 24th. Brother Gerringer was on a visit to see his mother who resides near Elon and who for some weeks has been quite ill, though reported improving now. Some weeks ago Brother Gerringer served notice on his present pastorate that he would not return after the close of the present Conference year, and, though his churches insist that he remain, he feels that the time has come when a change should be made. He has endeared himself to the people of the Wakefield-Ivor pastorate during the six years of service there and they are reluctant to give him up.

Elon College Church and community enjoyed a rare treat last week in the form of an intellectual and spiritual feast furnished by Rev. S. D. Gordon, the great "Quiet Hour Man," and one of the outstanding ministers of America. Dr. Gordon came on Sunday night and remained through Thursday, speaking twice daily to the great joy and delight of the people who were fortunate enough to hear him. Surely, this man walks with God, and the interpretation of God's infinite love and our Saviour's saving and redeeming power, as revealed in his public talks, inspire the soul and bring the heart to sincere worship and devotion.

Rev. E. B. White, Windsor, Va., writes: "It is a pleasure to report that the fourth Sunday morning service at the Windsor Christian Church was impressive and inspiring. The pastor preached his farewell sermon to a large congregation. We are profoundly grateful to our host of friends for their expressions of regret at the severance of our pastorate with the Windsor Church. It was very kind of the people to pay tribute to our humble work in the life of the community and interest in the schools, as a member of the Community League and Red Cross Chapter and as a member of important committees. We deeply appreciate the loyal support of Messrs. L. Bailey, chairman of our official board, and S. T. Ballard, church treasurer. These brethren possess those noble qualities characteristic of a good citizen and a faithful church member. We close our pastorate with love in our hearts. May the Lord bless the good people of Windsor.

Hon. Clyde R. Hoey, ex-congressman and a noted democratic leader and campaigner, declared in a great address before 2,000 people in the city auditorium of Raleigh: "I will follow the President in the N. R. A. and plow up my cotton, but I am unwilling to plow up my convictions of a lifetime at the behest of any man." And since the repealers are declaring that their opposition to "the saloon" is termed "obnoxious to wets as well as to dries," Mr. Hoey suggested "the appellations 'Personal Liberty Filling Station,' or 'States Rights Laboratory.'" But whatever the name of the place in which it is sold, "liquor will make you just as drunk as if it were sold in a plain old barroom." He wondered if such signs as the following would be displayed on every grog-shop: "Be patriotic; Don't Be a Slacker; Buy Liquor and Help the Government." Since the Government is estimating that it will collect seven hundred million dollars annually in taxes from the sale of liquor, Mr. Hoey wonders how many drunkards' graves will have to be filled and how many homes wrecked, and how much human misery will have to be brought about in order for the Government to collect anything like that much in revenue.

Rev. Daniel Albright Long, D. D., died at the home of his son, Florence, S. C., October 26th, after an illness of some months. He was 89 years of age. The interment was in Linwood Cemetery, Graham, N. C., not far from the home from which he went several years ago on a useful and an illustrious career as student, minister, college president and Christian statesman. For a half century he was a college president, having served first as president of Graham Normal College, Graham, N. C. (which in reality was the predecessor of Elon College); then of Antioch College, Yellow Springs, Ohio; Union Christian College, Merom, Ind. He was president for one or more terms of the American Christian Convention. Surviving Dr. Long are his wife and the following sons and daughters: Mrs. D. K. Wolfe, of Denver, Colo.; Mrs. Charles M. Belvin, of Raleigh, N. C.; Mrs. Albert Kernodle, of Burlington, N. C.; and J. C. Long, of Florence, S. C. Dr. W. C. Wicker, with several ministers of the Christian and other denominations was in charge of the funeral exercise from Graham Providence Christian Church, and a large company gathered to pay respects to this honored and greatly beloved man. THE SUN's editor was in another State when the death and funeral occurred, and thus was prevented from being present to join with other friends of sorrow in paying homage to the memory of a beloved friend and brother.

The Suffolk Christian Church Bulletin, October 8th, Rev. John G. Truitt, minister, carried on its front page the following: "One year ago Rev. William Wesley Staley, D. D., saint and sage of Suffolk, for fifty years the faithful friend and former pastor, was called to his eternal home. It is right and proper that we pause and thank Almighty God for these fifty years of loving service. The flowers today are from the Ever-Ready Circle and are in memory of Dr. Staley." The two inside pages of the bulletin carried the program for the morning and evening worship with announcements for the week, and the Sunday School record, September and October, 1932 and 1933, the record showing a gain from 486, October 1, 1932, to 618 October 1, 1933. And on the final page of the bulletin, these interesting facts show that Brother Truitt was not altogether idle: "During the pastor's first month he called on 151 homes; 26 shops and offices; the two hospitals ten times, seeing 82 patients; held 23 personal conferences with the church officials, or teachers; received as guests in his study 18 different ministers; attended 50 meetings, most of them of various and sundry organizations in his church; preached 8 sermons, made 4 prayer meeting addresses, and three addresses outside his church: city high school, Franklin Missionary Society, and Gates County Sunday School Convention; wrote 5 sermons for THE CHRISTIAN SUN; weddings, 1; funerals, 1; and still had time to fish with Dr. I. W. Johnson on Lake Kilby.

A REAL COMMUNION SERVICE.

The Rev. Everett H. Sperow, a Congregational minister who has four academic degrees and is professor in Southern Union College, as well as pastor of the Wadley Christian Church, through his fine Christian spirit and ability, is able to do unusual things. At the close of the morning worship in Wadley Church, October 29th, he officiated at the sacrament of the Lord's Supper, assisted by the Rev. Mr. Lester, pastor of the Wadley Baptist Church.

To make it interdenominational, the Methodist mode of coming up to the altar in groups was used. A part of the communion service was lent by the Wadley Southern Methodist Church, and the pastor of the Wadley Northern Methodist Church was in the large congregation and took the sacrament.

PROGRAM.

Following is the program of the Sixty-Third Session of the Western North Carolina Christian Conference, to be held at the Ramseur Christian Church, Ramseur, N. C., November 8-9, 1933:

FIRST DAY.

Morning Session—10 o'Clock.

Call to order, by the President, Rev. E. C. Brady.
Devotional exercises, Rev. M. A. Pollard.
Address of welcome, I. H. Faust.
Response, Rev. T. J. Green.
Enrollment of ministers and delegates.
Reception of visitors.
Report of Program Committee.
Appointment of Special Committees.
Report of Executive Committee.
Annual sermon by the President.
Communion service, Dr. Stanley C. Harrell, Convention President.
Adjournment.

Afternoon Session—2 o'Clock.

Call to order, by the President.
Devotional service, Rev. J. U. Fogleman.
Report on Evangelism, Rev. M. A. Pollard.
Convention Resolution, Dr. Stanley C. Harrell.
Report of Committee on Foreign Missions, Rev. T. E. White.
Address, Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Mission Secretary.
Report of Committee on Social Service, Rev. J. U. Fogleman.
Reports from ministers and churches.
Report of Committee on Home Missions, Rev. H. V. Cox.
Report of Nominating Committee.
Miscellaneous business.
Adjournment.

Evening Session—7:30 o'Clock.

Program in charge of the young people.

SECOND DAY.

Morning Session—9:30 o'Clock.

Call to order, by the President.
Devotional service, Rev. H. V. Cox.
Enrollment of ministers and delegates.
Reception of visitors.
Reading of minutes of previous day.
Report of Committee on Religious Literature, Rev. T. E. White.
Report on Sunday Schools, Geo. T. Gunter.
Report on Christian Endeavor, J. Roland Farrell.
Report on Education, Rev. T. J. Green.
Address, Dr. L. E. Smith, President of Elon College.
Benediction.
Adjournment.

Afternoon Session—2 o'Clock.

Call to order, by the President.
Devotional service, Rev. T. J. Green.
Our Orphanage, Supt. Chas. D. Johnston.
Report on Superannuation, I. H. Faust.
Report on Apportionments, W. H. Freeman.
Reports of Special Committees.
Miscellaneous business.
Reading of minutes.
Final adjournment.

PROGRAM.

The North Carolina and Virginia Christian Conference will hold its One Hundred and Eighth Annual Session at Union Christian Church, Union Ridge, Alamance County, N. C., November 14-16, 1933. Following is the program for the three-day session:

FIRST DAY—NOVEMBER 14th.

Morning Session.

- 10:30 Conference called to order, by Dr. C. H. Rowland, President.
Devotional service, Rev. L. L. Wyrick.
- 10:50 Roll call of ministers and churches.
- 11:05 Welcome address, Dr. P. H. Fleming.
Response, Rev. G. C. Crutchfield.
- 11:25 Report of Program Committee.
Report of Executive Committee.
Report of Treasurer, Dr. W. Waldo Boone.
Appointment of Special Committees.
Reception of visitors.
- 11:50 Address of President, Dr. C. H. Rowland.
- 12:30 Adjourn for lunch.

Afternoon Session.

- 1:45 Conference called to order.
Devotional service, Rev. J. F. Apple.
- 2:00 Report of Committee on Religious Literature, Rev. W. T. Scott, Chairman.
Address—"The Opportunity of the Christian Press," Rev. Dale O. Sander.
Discussion of "The Christian Sun's" problems, led by Mr. John T. Kernodle.
General discussion and vote on report.
- 3:00 Report of Committee on Stewardship, Rev. Dale O. Sander, Chairman.
Address, Rev. W. T. Scott.
General discussion and vote on report.
- 3:45 Miscellaneous business.
Report of Entertainment Committee.
- 4:00 Adjournment.

Evening Session.

- 7:30 Youth Fellowship Program, Rev. J. Everette Neese, presiding.
Hymn, "Does Jesus Care?"
Prayer, Miss Birdie Rowland.
Poem, "He Careth."
Announcements.
Special music by Elon Singers, directed by Prof. Dwight Steere.
Psalm 142:4, Rev. J. Everette Neese.
Elon Quartette.
Hymn, "Jesus Calls Us."
Benediction.

SECOND DAY—NOVEMBER 15th.

Morning Session.

- 9:30 Conference called to order.
Devotional service, Rev. J. S. Carden.
- 9:45 Reading of minutes; enrollment of delegates.
- 10:00 Report of Nominating Committee.
Report of Committee on Apportionments.
- 10:20 Consideration of Southern Convention Resolutions.
- 10:40 Report of Home Mission Board, Mr. W. B. Truitt, Chairman.
Address, Rev. Milo J. Sweet.
Receiving of memberships for Christian Missionary Association.
General discussion and vote on report.
- 11:30 Report of Committee on Foreign Missions, Rev. C. E. Newman, Chairman.
Remarks by Chairman.
Address—"The Responsibility of Righteousness," Dr. J. O. Atkinson.
Report of Woman's Missionary Conference, Mrs. W. P. Lawrence, Secretary.
General discussion and vote on report.
- 12:30 Adjourn for lunch.

Afternoon Session.

- 1:45 Conference called to order.
Devotional service, Rev. J. L. Neese.

- 2:00 Report of Committee on Sunday Schools and Christian Endeavor, Rev. G. C. Cruchfield, Chairman.
Address—"Today's Youth and Tomorrow's Citizens," Rev. W. T. Scott.
Ten-minute talks on Christian Endeavor work, Mr. W. T. Dunn and Miss Frankye Marshall.
General discussion and vote on report.
- 3:00 Report of Committee on Education, Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Chairman.
Address—"Forty-Two Years' Experience in a Christian College," Dr. J. U. Newman.
Address—"Our College," Dr. L. E. Smith.
- 4:00 Report of Entertainment Committee.
Adjournment.

Evening Session.

- 7:30 Program under the auspices of the Christian Orphanage, Elon College, N. C.

THIRD DAY—NOVEMBER 16th.

Morning Session.

- 9:30 Conference called to order.
Devotional service, Dr. P. H. Fleming.
- 9:45 Reading of minutes and pastoral and church letters.
- 10:10 Report of Committee on Superannuation, Mr. C. D. Johnston, Chairman.

- General discussion and vote on report.
- 10:30 Report of Committee on Moral Reform, Rev. J. F. Apple, Chairman.
Address, Mr. L. P. Rippey.
General discussion and vote on report.
- 11:20 Report of Committee on Resolutions.
Report of Committee on Memoirs.
Report of Collectors.
Report of Auditing Committee.
Reports of all other special committees.
- 12:00 Closing service (to be arranged).
Miscellaneous business.
Final adjournment.

The Western North Carolina Conference will meet with the Ramseur Christian Church, Ramseur, N. C., on Wednesday and Thursday, November 8th and 9th.

The North Carolina and Virginia Conference will meet with Union Christian Church, Alamance County, N. C., on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, November 14th, 15th and 16th.

The Eastern North Carolina Conference will meet on Tuesday and Wednesday, November 21st and 22nd, at Wentworth Christian Church, McCuller's, N. C.

Keep THE SUN Shining Mail Your Subscription TODAY!

Why not send THE CHRISTIAN SUN to your friends for the ensuing year, and they will be reminded weekly of your thoughtfulness and interest?

THE SUN needs new subscribers badly, and the members of the Christian Church in the South need THE SUN just as badly. You who read the paper keep in touch with your church's activities and interests. Wouldn't it be a wonderful thing if you would help others to become acquainted with the things that you know about?

For your convenience we are printing a blank below. Just fill out this blank and pin your check or a money order for $2, for each subscription you wish sent, and we will do the rest.

As a token of our appreciation of your cooperation, we will advance your own subscription date three months for each yearly subscription you send in.

Of course, if it happens that the person to whom you send the paper is already a subscriber, we will advance their subscription one year, and will notify them that you have paid same.

SUBSCRIPTION BLANK.

December, 1932.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN,
1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

Dear Sirs:

Please enter the name of.....
City....., State....., R. F. D. or St.....,
on your subscription list for one year. I enclose $.....to pay above subscription and for.....additional ones written on the margin of this blank. Please advance my subscription three months for each of these subscriptions, and send greeting cards to each of these subscribers.

Name

Street or R. F. D.....

City and State.....

My own subscription expires.....

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

ASSOCIATE EDITOR

E. C. GILLETTE

117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla.

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

W. C. WICKER

C. REXFORD RAYMOND

S. C. HARRELL

ELISHA A. KING

THE PRINCIPLES OF OUR CHURCH.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

PORTRAITS.

God is the original portrait painter. So, says Dr. S. D. Gordon, the nationally known "quiet hour" man, who has been giving a series of talks at Elon College the past week. And there are four portraits of God.

One is in the budding, the blooming or the fading colors of lawn and forests about us. God, in making the bounty and the glorious display of color in leaf, branch and flower, was painting a portrait of himself.

The second portrait is in the soul of man. When man is tempted to do wrong, there is something within him that tells him so. When he ventures to do right, there is something in him that approves. Teachers call it the moral sense, preachers call it the spiritual impulse, but our experience tells us that it is God.

The third portrait God painted of himself is Jesus the Christ. If we want a portrait of God in human form expressed in the limitations of a human being, we have that portrait in his Son, Jesus Christ. "He that hath seen me, hath seen the Father, for I am in the Father and the Father in me."

The fourth portrait God painted of himself is the Bible. The Bible, beginning with Genesis, in which we find God brooding over the waste of waters and of chaos, reaches out to have a personal touch with man and then to let man have a personal touch with him. We think of the first chapter of Genesis as a description of creation; we should think of it as the writer of it intended we should, viz., God reaching out to touch man, man reaching out to touch God. The power of the personal touch. The Book all the way through is a portrait of God as he touches man, as he deals with men and women, as he feels out after them and as they feel out after him, that the two may have a personal touch.

What all of us need, according to Dr. Gordon, is to do some picture hanging. One student at Yale went to another student's room one day and gave him Hoffman's painting of the Christ. The student visited had various pictures hanging on his wall, pictures from many sources, pleasing display for the eye to look upon and luring to the flesh; but with hesitation, meditation, he hung up on his wall the new picture that was presented. The visiting student called again the next day, and to his surprise found that the one to whom he had given the picture of the Christ was on the step-ladder taking down all the other pictures. Then he said, "When I hung up the picture of the Nazarene on my wall, all these other pictures seem out of place, and I am taking them down."

What the student world, what the world of mankind needs today, is to do some picture hanging—hang up in the gallery of one's heart and life a portrait of our Lord. It will help to keep the heart pure and make the life strong.

J. O. A.

HONORING A SUCCESSOR.

One mark of Christian courtesy is to honor one's successor. This applies to every phase of church life and good citizenship. If a pastor has served a congregation well, and for a cause leaves that congregation for other fields, it is only a mark of Christian courtesy that he wish his successor well and do everything within his reach to help and not hurt his successor. The surest mark of one's own success is that a work one has done shall go on to higher proficiency through the years after one has left it. The successor should have a free hand and the full fellowship of his predecessor, and he will have, if that predecessor has wrought well and still has a heart for the work he has done, instead of an envious mind and an ambition for his own name to be exalted. Workers pass out and die, but no worker should be afraid if he has done well his work while the responsibility was upon his own shoulders.

The same is true of any official in church or Sunday School. If a superintendent has wrought well and hands over the work to another, it is but Christian courtesy, and certainly is the proper thing to do, that he get behind his successor and follow the new leader in his work for the school. If a teacher in the school has had his period of effort with a class and another has been chosen, it is a mark of broad-mindedness and Christian grace for the retired teacher not to sulk in tent or remain from class or school because a successor has been chosen. He can help build up the work which he himself has tried to do by being a faithful student in the class and helping to hold up the hands of the new teacher.

Our way, our creed, our conduct in serving others may be the best for us while in that service, but this by no means argues that ours is the only way, the one way, the infallible way. We should bear in mind at all times that our Lord said, "I am the way," and it behooves us to seek that way and try to follow it, but not to monopolize it and crowd others out of the way.

J. O. A.

A TRUE PROPHET.

In 1916 the Hon. Robert N. Page, at that time and for several years prior thereto, a congressman from the Seventh North Carolina District, resigned as a member of the National House of Representatives and retired to private life. Since Mr. Page could not convince his colleagues in Congress of the danger to which he foresaw they were headed, he resigned in protest against a loan to the allies of a half billion dollars by American capitalists, and the sale of munitions by American manufacturers to warring nations. Being a Methodist layman and a pacifist of a pronounced type, he could not bring his conscience to allow him to remain in and with a body whose votes and decisions, as he saw the matter, inevitably led to war. All this comes to mind afresh now because of the recent death of this beloved statesman of prophetic vision. Congress proceeded, as Mr. Page foresaw it would, and the war came on as he had prophesied. In our fine flurry of fervid patriotism, we were plunged into the world's greatest holocaust of a "war to end war." War is not yet destroyed, however, and there are more troops in training, more equipment in store, more active preparation and greater outlay for war now among the nations of the world than there were prior to 1914. War does not end war.

Other prophets than Mr. Page have lived, plead and prophesied and yet militarism in its madness flourishes and the spirit of greed and selfishness is still extant in the world. However, we are constrained to believe that there is a growing multitude who live in the faith that the prophet's vision and plea will yet be realized:

"And he shall judge among the nations, and shall rebuke many people; and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruninghooks; nations shall not lift up the sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more. O house of Jacob, come ye, and let us walk in the light of the Lord."

J. O. A.

THE EARLY CHURCH.

It is a good thing, once in a while, to meditate upon the past. We learn much from the history of the world, or we should learn much. The larger portion of the Bible is history. We read about the doings of the Hebrews and we make their history into text-books for use in our Sunday Schools. And the New Testament is largely history, and we divide that into sections to study. We can do little better and when we do try, the effort does not produce the results we hoped for. The drift then is toward the Bible for source material with other so-called secular history thrown in for side-lights and illustrations.

When I stood in the Colosseum at Rome and looked down at the iron bars and gates where, in my imagination, I could see the hungry lions, and then up at the seats where thousands of people used to sit and enjoy (?) the martyrdom of the Christians, I wondered how any of them (the Christians) could have faced such trial of their faith. Naturally, I asked myself, What do we have to face today for the test of our faith? It is a question still. Each Christian must answer for himself.

Since I have returned I have read a book, "The Sign of the Cross," by Wilson Barrett, which brought to my mind in a vivid and gripping manner the experiences of these early Christians. The book is the story as made into a Paramount motion picture by Cecille DeMille. Doubtless many of my readers have seen it in motion picture form. I have not, but I think I would rather read the story than to see it enacted. If you, my reader, have never seen the stage production or read the book, I urge you to do so, for it will give you a rather clear conception of what it cost to be a Christian in the days that Nero was Emperor. It will also reveal the secret of the power and progress of the pure life over against the unholy environment of Roman life. The story is interesting as a story, and written true to fact. Read it!

E. A. K.

It is far better to light the candle than to curse the darkness.

Who's Who in the Alabama Conference.

WHAT ALABAMA MINISTERS AND LEADERS ARE DOING.

The Alabama Conference of Congregational and Christian Churches ranks third in the Southeast in the size of its church membership, Virginia and the Carolinas being in first and second places.

The five district units of the Conference—the North, East, Central, South and West Florida Associations—register fifty ministers and ten licentiates. Besides these, half a dozen beginners are “liberated preachers,” or laymen who have been given the privilege to preach locally by local churches. These are “liberated” to use their gifts for the period of one year ordinarily, but have no right to administer the sacraments or to perform marriages.

One of the ministers and two of the licentiates are women. No woman has been “liberated.” They feel free to express their gifts in speech without being expressly permitted so to do.

One minister, REV. A. H. SHEPHERD, went to his heavenly reward in August. In October at the combined annual meeting of Christian and Congregational Churches, at New Hope Christian Church, he was given a touching memorial service. He was a preacher of real piety and of great heart. He will be especially remembered as he conducted the communion services at New Hope Church on July 26th, during his revival meeting which was the day when the Elder family had its annual dinner in the church yard at New Hope. His son, OLIN SHEPHERD, was licensed at Wadley on October 29th; when WORTH BURGESS was also licensed at this time.

Some of the retired ministers are unable to be in the annual district and State meetings, but four of them who are most active are inspirations to the younger men: REV. ELMER H. BUTLER, formerly State superintendent, who is now the treasurer of Thorsby Institute and is perennially bright and interesting as a speaker; REV. SAMUEL LONG, who lives near Midland City and wore himself out in a South Alabama circuit before the days of automobiles and who is today the songful superintendent of the Christian Hill Sunday School (his son is the pastor of the church); REV. HENRY T. MCKAY, the father of four ministers; and REV. THOMAS J. REYNOLDS, of Lineville, who can say “Amen” and “Praise the Lord” most heartily and beautifully.

REV. R. A. MCKAY, son of Rev. Henry T. McKay, is from Tallassee, and is one of the most ardent workers for temperance in Alabama. He has built a number of churches.

Two ministers of the North Association who are temporarily without fields by reason of the over-supply of ministers are very useful. REV. ANNIE C. MOATS lives up on Chandler's Mountain, where she is active in the leadership of the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Society. REV. MATHIAS D. MORGAN was for many years moderator of the association, and acts as a general helper of the churches.

As active pastors many are leading lives of fine devotion.

REV. C. W. CARTER, who lives at Truett and has three churches, is greatly loved in East Alabama. He is the moderator of the Alabama Conference of Congregational - Christian Churches.

REV. JOHN D. DOLLAR, rich in faith and humor, has four churches and has moved back to his farm at Rock Stand. His father was a loved pioneer preacher of the Alabama Christian Conference. His eldest son, C. CARL DOLLAR, who is also a member of this Conference, is a promising theological student who worked in West Florida last summer and is now completing his course in the School of Religion of Vanderbilt University.

REV. H. M. GRAY, who belongs to the Georgia Conference, but lives at Langdale, Ala., is an efficient church builder, both literally and in morale. In spite of the lingering hard times, he has organized a campaign to build a nice edifice for the Langdale Christian Church. He is pastor also of the Mt. Olive Congregational Church and of the Richland, Ga., Christian Church.

REV. J. H. HUGHES is the pioneer preacher of the Pisgah Church on Sand Mountain in North Alabama. He faithfully stays by the work which has been the mountain project of the Alabama Christian Churches.

REV. G. D. HUNT, who was the general missionary of the Alabama and Georgia Christian Churches for the year 1929-30, is well known for his influential leadership and constant service to the cause. He is pastor of the largest Alabama Christian Church, located at Lanett, and is always promoting Christian education through Southern Union College, the Summer School, or the Christian Life Conference. His son, REV. G. STALEY HUNT, is making a record as a theological student at Vanderbilt.

REV. G. ROY WALKER, Brother Hunt's son-in-law, who is a ministerial licentiate, is pastor of McGuire's Chapel, near Daviston.

REV. W. T. MEACHAM succeeded the lamented REV. A. H. SHEPPARD as pastor of New Hope Church, the oldest Christian Church in Alabama, and also at Bethany, which was Brother Sheppard's home.

DR. WILLIAM T. MORGAN, who has been a lecturer on vocational subjects, and who was also a major during the World War, gave up his church in Birmingham and with Mrs. Morgan has charge of the Adult Extension Department of Southern Union College. This work is reaching out effectively into East Alabama communities. It is also providing education by correspondence for students who are preparing for the ministry and for other vocations.

REV. JOHN TAYLOR continues his service at the Spring Hill and Shady Grove Christian Churches.

REV. CHARLES W. HANSEN, of Georgia, is the new pastor of the industrial church, Lowell Christian, of Roanoke, and is also preacher at Mt. Zion. The pastor of the First Christian Church of Roanoke is MILLARD STEVENS, from Noon Day Church, who is a promising student and leader in Southern Union College.

REV. G. H. VEAZEY, the moderator-elect of the East Alabama Association, has for five years been the invaluable secretary of the Alabama Christian Conference, and represents many progressive tendencies in it. The East Alabama Association, with its twenty-six Christian and six Congregational Churches, is quite the largest and most influential district unit.

REV. JAMES I. BARKER, of Tallassee, has a thriving industrial church housed in an attractive building at Tallassee and is also pastor of the Balm of Gilead Church.

REV. JOSEPH P. BEAN, who has been both a Christian and a Congregationalist, is the kindly and spiritual pastor of Caver's Grove and Dingle's Chapel Christian Churches, and of Miller-ville-Bethel, Cragford-Mt. Carmel, and Steele-Mt. Lebanon Congregational Churches. His son, REV. ZENAS BEAN, who is active in young people's work, is pastor of the live Wesley Chapel Church in the North Alabama hill country.

REV. GEORGE H. BELL has a group of churches near Brantley in South Alabama, and is preparing another church, Live Oak, for the association fellowship.

REV. P. BLACKWELL is pastor of the Little Creek Church, which has the problem of farm tenancy, and of the Indian Creek Church in South Alabama.

REV. J. C. BROWN is building up Bethany Church of Phenix City.

REV. S. F. COMMANDER, in West Florida, and REV. ALERT W. STONE, of Talladega, who has the Oak Hill Church, are mail carriers, and devoted pastors. Both were once school teachers. Brother Stone stands firm for his duty. Brother Commander is a large man with a great heart, who ministers to a scattered and needy rural area in West Florida and has a boy preacher, GOSPER LINZY, under his wing.

REV. WALTER H. CURL has seen Friendship Church at Trinity grow into strength and build a good house of worship, and is the approved pastor of Mt. Moriah Church, not far from Muscle Shoals.

REV. J. MARION DOPSON, of Eclectic, who has been pastor in that section for some years, had the misfortune to lose his home by fire, but has rebuilt it near his church, Watson's Chapel.

REV. MARK L. HARGRAVES now lives in Birmingham, and ministers to the Houston-Liberty Hill Church, which has grown larger under his leadership.

REV. N. A. LONG, with his four churches in South Alabama, is doing notable work for the young people of his four churches and of this section, in the young people's summer camp, which has been named “Sealacoon.” This means South Alabama Conference for Young People.

REV. WILLIE G. MILLER, of West Florida, is the veteran active preacher of the Conference. He has been at it nearer fifty than forty years. His children and grandchildren are the leading element in Dorcas Church.

DR. TREVOR MORDECAI, who is surely one of the great preachers of America, has resigned from the Congregational Community Church of Birmingham, which he made a leading church of the city, and has taken the New Smyrna Church for a short pastorate. The Birmingham Church has secured DR. ARTHUR W. DYCKER, of Cambridge, Mass., as its minister.

REV. A. CALVIN NELSON, of Central Alabama, has organized a new church in the hamlet of Seman. Since the parish parsonage was built near East View Church with its vista of many miles of valley, that organization has grown in size and power.

REV. MARION M. ROWE, the big, friendly preacher, has been pastor of Robertson's Chapel, near Arley in North Alabama for a number of years.

REV. CHARLES W. SMITH, of Haleyville, Ala., who speaks of himself as an Irishman and has built a number of churches and parsonages, and is now moderator of the North Association, is having the time of his life in North Alabama. His son, GERALD SMITH, who is an effective student summer service worker, is a ministerial student at Piedmont College.

REV. DAVID SHEPHERD, with an ideal name for a pastor, is the loved minister of United Church, Phenix City, in which he has recently become the full-time pastor. He is from Elon and Vanderbilt and is steadily recruiting a good constituency in this beautiful church built by Rev. Charles W. Smith.

REV. MARION L. THRASHER is the musical pastor, with the deep bass voice, of the important Andalusia Church circuit in South Alabama. BASCOMB WORLEY, one of his parishioners, is the popular pastor of Glenwood-New Bethel Church.

(Continued on page 14).

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

Another Conference year has closed the record of its history. During the past week two very important Conferences were held within the bounds of the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference. On Tuesday evening, beginning at 8 o'clock, the Young People's Missionary Conference was held in the Holland Christian Church. Mrs. E. L. Beale, the superintendent of the Young People for the year 1933, was present and made a very encouraging report of her work. Miss Sarah Norfleet Daughtrey is the efficient president of the Conference. These two capable leaders, with the other officers, prepared and presented a very inspiring program. The church was filled with an enthusiastic group of young people who are interested in the forward looking plans of the church of Jesus Christ. Every person who had a part on the program was well prepared. The congregation enjoyed the occasion. The future of the church is safe when our young people enter into the high privileges offered them in these glorious days of youth.

On Friday, October 27th, the Woman's Missionary Conference was held at Cypress Chapel. About three hundred and fifty delegates attended the sessions. Mrs. R. T. Bradford was the acting president, and she presided with grace and dignity. Owing to the illness of Mrs. L. W. Stagg, Mrs. I. W. Johnson acted as secretary, pro tem. All the officers had written reports which were well prepared. The president's address on "Excuses or Reasons," was well prepared and effective in presenting a concrete example of some of the excuses given for not participating in church work.

Dr. J. O. Atkinson, mission secretary, delivered an excellent address on the "Romance of Responsibility." His treatment of this theme was timely, original and striking. He made a strong plea for the development of a larger missionary interest and effort in our churches.

Rev. John G. Truitt gave an inspirational address on "The Open Window." He is a fluent and forceful speaker, and carries his audience with him, as he portrays the plea and purpose of Jesus Christ for a spiritual church.

The treasurer's report showed that the societies raised a grand total of $5,148.00 during the year, including special gifts and offerings. The total for 1932 was $5,359.79. The 1933 total was only $211.79 less than 1932. Considering the financial conditions in many parts of the Conference, that is a favorable showing. Quite naturally it was more difficult to secure large offerings during the present year.

The spirit of the conference was optimistic and hopeful. The women of the church far excel the men in their missionary spirit and interest. Their eager faces and deep interest should challenge the men to larger interest and activity. If the young men can be enlisted in the Young People's Societies, the men of the future will be more deeply interested in the missionary work of the church.

The Eastern Virginia Christian Conference will be in session at Holy Neck, when this letter is sent out to the SUN subscribers. Pastors and people have faced many trying situations during the year now closing. The church is the greatest sufferer in a financial depression. People will buy new cars, in a time such as this, and then plead their inability to help the church. People usually find a way to do what they want in gratifying their own pride and desires. Thousands of church members have not given a dollar during the year to support their church. It would be conservative to estimate that there are three thousand members in the Eastern Virginia Conference who are among this number. Some of these people attend church, enjoy the music, the fellowship and ministry of the church and expect other people to pay the cost of the same. The people who fail to do their part are the losers. Those who give gain by their giving. It is more blessed to give than to sit back in a church, supported by others, with a conviction that you are too stingy to do your part. All glory to those faithful ones who can say: "We do our part!"

I. W. JOHNSON.

THE ELON COLLEGE CHURCH PROGRAM.

We have at Elon what we call our College Community Church. Its membership includes Christian people from the community, the College faculty, and the student body. It is a regular church with all the departments of a modern church organization. Our Sunday School, the Missionary Society, and the Christian Endeavor, all function normally and efficiently. The church belongs to the North Carolina and Virginia Conference.

At the request of the Pastoral Committee and by vote of the church, I became pastor September of last year. I accepted this additional responsibility with the understanding that I be required to preach but one Sunday in the month and that I be permitted to supply the other three Sundays with ministers whom I might select.

During last year we brought to the College a number of outstanding Christian leaders of the South and East, and Middle West. Among those who spoke for us were Dr. Henry Louis Smith, President Emeritus of Washington and Lee University; Dr. C. H. Rowland, of Greensboro; Dr. Albert W. Palmer, of Chicago Theological Seminary; Dr. Chas. Emerson Burton, Secretary of the National Council; Dr. Brewer Eddy, of Boston; Dr. Harry K. Eversull, of Cincinnati; Dr. J. M. Rowland, of Richmond; Dr. Campbell, of Nashville, and others.

We have adopted the same program for the ensuing year. So far we have had as our speakers, Mr. Hermon Eldredge, of Dayton, O.; Dr. Russell J. Clinchy, of Washington, D. C.; Dr. J. M. Rowland, of Richmond; and Dr. S. D. Gordon, of Winston-Salem, N. C. Dr. Gordon is an international figure and one of the most influential spiritual leaders of this day. He is the author of a number of books and has lectured in nearly every country of the world. He is known as the "Quiet Hour Man." We were most fortunate in having Dr. Gordon for a series of talks. He arrived Sunday evening in time for Vespers, and remained with us through Thursday, speaking twice daily. Dr. Gordon has a style of his own. He has an interpretative understanding of the Scriptures that is refreshing and most helpful. The faculty, the student body, members of the community, all enjoyed his messages greatly. I feel that his coming into our midst was not only an inspiration but a great blessing to all who came under the influence of his ministry.

I am making this report that those who have sons and daughters here may know something of the efforts that we are putting forth to administer to and develop the better side of the lives of the students. It is impossible for the students of Elon to come in touch with our religious programs without being influenced by them. It is a good thing and the duty of the College to look after the mental and physical lives of its students. It is also the duty of every college to administer to the spiritual lives of its students. We have taken every precaution to perform faithfully and efficiently our duty to the physical and mental lives of our students, but, at the same time, we are not neglectful in the least of their social and religious needs.

We invite and urge all parents who possibly can to attend our Sunday morning services sometime during the year, spend a while on the campus, that they may observe for themselves the conduct and attitude of the students, also that they may come in touch with the spirit and discover the atmosphere of the school. These are difficult days to influence youth for the higher and better things of life, but we welcome the task and are doing our best along these lines.

Our list of speakers for the remainder of the year has not been completed, but we do have quite a number of influential speakers already engaged. Those who are interested may rest assured that we will be presenting, constantly, religious programs at Elon that will make lasting contributions to those who share in these privileges.

L. E. SMITH, President.

HOW ARE YOU VOTING?

We hear people saying today that the Eighteenth Amendment was illegally adopted, but the answer has been clearly stated by the Supreme Court of the United States. I quote from the National Conference of Organizations Supporting the Eighteenth Amendment the following paragraphs:

"The Eighteenth Amendment was adopted by the orderly processes of government. It could be repealed only by the same orderly processes. There is no provision for a referendum under the Federal Constitution. The American form of government established by the Constitution is a representative government of the people through the sovereign States associated for the common good. Having won the Eighteenth Amendment there is no occasion for the dry forces to join in any movement by referendum or other process for its repeal.

"Believing as we do in the Eighteenth Amendment and the laws pursuant thereto, as the best governmental policy devised for dealing with the liquor problem, we are definitely and unequivocally opposed: First, to the submission of any amendment which would weaken or repeal in whole or in part, Amendment Eighteen, or to any national referendum thereon as contrary to the American principle of representative government. Second, to the submission of any part of this national constitutional policy to either a binding or a non-binding referendum which would tend, either directly or indirectly, to weaken or nullify the said prohibition amendment. Third, to any procedure or program which would, directly or indirectly, assist the enemies of the prohibition policy in their efforts to repeal, weaken, or nullify that amendment, or the laws pursuant thereto, or which would tend to encourage lawlessness, or make more difficult the enforcement and observance of the prohibition law."

That prohibition was illegally adopted is nonsense. It may not be perfect in its enforcement, but we know it is better than open saloons. If "the people are drinking now as much as ever," as we hear some people say, they are doing it in the bushes; and if that is true, then let us leave it there. Are you praying for divine guidance in casting your vote? How would you vote if Jesus should go with you to the polls?

J. EVERETTE NEESE.

Elon College, N. C.

SUBSCRIPTION PAYMENTS IN OCTOBER.

- Z. T. Alger, Stanley, Va. Mrs. S. M. Atkinson, Richmond, Va. Escar L. Carden, Route 1, Roanoke, Ala. Rev. C. W. Carter, Wadley, Ala. D. C. Carter, Liberty, N. C. Dr. J. T. Clack, Abanda, Ala. Vance Daniel, Route 1, Chapel Hill, N. C. J. R. Daughtrey, 354 W. 13th St., Norfolk, Va. Mrs. E. A. Dollar, Route 2, Malone, Ala. Rev. J. D. Dollar, Roanoke, Ala. Mrs. W. C. Dunn, Route 2, Rocky Mount, N. C. H. W. Dunson, Route 3, Box 18, Roanoke, Ala. Mrs. S. W. Elder, Roanoke, Ala. J. D. Evans, Route 2, Ruffin, N. C. Mrs. W. H. Floyd, Abanda, Ala. Mrs. J. W. Freeman, 220 Spring St., Winston-Salem, N. C. Mrs. H. W. Gillespie, Haw River, N. C. Mrs. T. S. Graves, 218 E. Bragg St., Greensboro, N. C. Rev. H. M. Gray, Langdale, Ala. J. E. Harris, Route 3, Suffolk, Va. W. J. Harry, Route 2, Glenn, Ga. M. H. Hayes, Wise, N. C. Mrs. J. T. Hopper, Route 2, Ruffin, N. C. W. H. Hudson, Youngsville, N. C. Mrs. L. F. Johnson, 131 Mountain Road, Rutherford, New Jersey. Mrs. W. C. Joyner, Route 3, Suffolk, Va. S. B. Lea, 1809 Angier Ave., East Durham, N. C. Mrs. D. A. Long, 108 Guerry St., Florence, S. C. Mrs. N. H. Lucas, R. F. D., Benson, N. C. Mrs. W. J. Muse, Gore, Va. J. W. Neighbors, Benson, N. C. J. W. Payne, Wedowee, Ala. Miss Celeste Penny, 232 McCauley St., Chapel Hill, N. C. Mrs. Martha Piper, Route 6, Burlington, N. C. J. A. Roquemore, Lanett, Ala. Dr. C. H. Rowland, 315 N. Edgeworth St., Greensboro, N. C. Miss Louise Savage, 35 Faculty Apts., University, Va. W. G. Sharpe, Route 1, Wentworth, N. C. Mrs. A. H. Sheppard, Glenn, Ga. David W. Sheppard, Route 2, Glenn, Ga. Mrs. G. E. Spangler, 720 W. 28th St., Norfolk, Va. Dr. E. H. Sperow, Wadley, Ala. Mrs. G. L. Stephens, Lanett, Ala. R. L. Summers, Route 1, Elon College, N. C. J. U. Sutton, Brown Summit, N. C. Mrs. J. C. Taylor, Route 3, Suffolk, Va. L. F. Troxler, Altamahaw, N. C. W. W. Tuck, Virgilina, Va. Rev. G. H. Veazey, Wadley, Ala. G. Roy Walker, Route 3, Wadley, Ala. Dr. C. M. Walters, Burlington, N. C. Rev. R. L. Williamson, Eastham Route, Charlottesville, Va. Mrs. R. B. Wood, 711 Virginia Ave., Norfolk, Va. Mrs. Sallie Wyatt, Burlington, N. C. W. E. Wyrick, Denim-Station, Greensboro, N. C.

could not put at least a dollar bill in that letter if no more.

If you happen to be one of those to whom we have written, will you not be at least as fair to your church as you are to those others with whom you deal? When you joined the church you pledged your support to it—we are not asking that you do more than that.

To those who have sent in their remittances during the past month we wish to express our appreciation. Please check the list below and see that we have your name and address correctly recorded.

Sincerely yours, JOHN T. KERNODLE, Managing Editor.

BACK TO ELON!

Why not have a ministers' conference at Elon in conjunction with the Summer Training School? The majority of our ministers attend some such conference. Why not have one of our own? We could have at least one outstanding man to lecture during the week. Then we certainly have men of our own who might be heard with profit.

This would be a means of developing as well as displaying talent.

Not only ministers, but also laymen, would be attracted to this conference. Because of its easily accessible location, it would doubtless be attended by ministers of other denominations.

Let the young and the old meet together at Elon. The conference would boost the Training School, the Training School would boost the conference. Both would advertise and boost the College. Let's start a movement, "Back to Elon!"

R. LEE HOUSE. Newport News, Va.

NOTICE OF CONFERENCE MEETING.

The Eastern North Carolina Conference will hold its annual session with the Wentworth Christian Church, at McCuller's N. C., November 21st and 22nd, beginning at 10 o'clock, A. M. All churches are urged to send up full delegations, all delegates and ministers are requested to be present at the opening session and remain until the close of Conference.

W. C. WICKER, President, Eastern North Carolina Conference.

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5 1/2 inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

Nos. 01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges $2.75

01603 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, head-band, book-mark $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4 1/8 x 1 1/4 inches.

Type in Junior's Bible 2 Take the sum of all the of the children of Is'ra-el, years old and upward, thro

No. 1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine Bibles $2.95

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5 1/8 x 3 3/8 inches.

Specimen of Type

My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for thee, living God. Mercy and truth together; righteousness has kissed each other. Truth shall sprin

No. 02112. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6 1/4 x 4 1/8 inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

Behold, O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed. For a day in thy courts is better than seven days in any other place.

No. 07523x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07523x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x $5.00

OUR LEADER Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8 1/2 x 5 1/2 x 1 7/16 inches.

Specimen of Type

8 9 'Jē-hōi'-ā-chīn was 9 years old when he began t

No. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, leather lined to edge, silk round corners, red under edges, silk

hear

A UNIQUE GIFT BIBLE

With Basket Weave Binding

The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges. With references. Printed on Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible. $5.50

No. 03255x No. 03276x with concordance $6.50

Oxford TEACH Bibles

Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date helps, conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7 1/4 x 5 x 1 3/8 inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave: death shall feed on th

Nos. 04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and handy some Bible $4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Only one inch thick.

0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

During the past month personal letters have been written to over four hundred persons who have been receiving THE SUN in their homes for three years or more without remitting for same. Of this number less than five per cent have at this writing even replied to the more than generous offer that was made to hold them on the list. We do not believe that 95 per cent of those to whom we wrote would refuse to pay their grocery man, or their doctor, or any other of their just debts. Why they should make an exception where their church is concerned is more than your writer can understand, and yet it is so.

The last paragraph of the letter sent out said: "If you cannot pay anything at present, at least write me and let me know why. I do not want a single member of our church who wants THE SUN to be without it." There are none who could not heed this request, and certainly very few who

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary

PRAYER.

Lord of life, open our hearts to receive the Spirit. Feed thou our souls lest they perish. May no moments of the Sabbath Day, given as it is for bodily rest and spiritual refreshment, be thoughtlessly or mistakenly dissipated. Turn myriads of feet to thine earthly courts and grant that there the yearning soul may find not emptiness nor confusion nor perversion but, through the imparting by God's ministers of his holy truth, may all be strengthened and constrained to walk no longer after the flesh but after the Spirit. For this we humbly pray. L.

ADVENTURING WITH CHRIST IN MISSIONS.

That was the significant topic of the Twenty-First Annual Session of the Eastern Virginia Woman's Missionary Conference, at Cypress Chapel, Nansemond County, Virginia, October 27th. The great theme ran through all the reports and found expression in all the public addresses and plans of the day. In opening the conference with a worship period, Mrs. H. S. Hardcastle laid upon the hearts of the great audience, that filled the building to capacity, the call of our Lord to the courage of adventure. Our Lord himself was an adventurer, opening up some new field of service and devotion each day of his life, and if we are to know the joy of his fellowship, we shall have to make adventures with him into the great unexplored territory of our own lives and of the world.

The district superintendents, in making their reports laying before the body their programs, emphasized the fact that our Lord goes before and calls us to follow, and bids us to come out into the high places in his name and in his strength.

The departmental reports were of the same tone and tenor, all of them emphasizing the need of bold and fearless adventure with Christ in his missionary call and leadership. Mrs. H. P. Harrell, in reporting the work of Life Memberships and Memorials, encouraged her co-laborers with the thought, in preparing the fund to help support retired and disabled ministers and returned missionaries, that they were making a venture of love and gratitude for those who had gone forth and served well in the name of their Lord. Mrs. O. M. Cokes, reporting for Spiritual Life, emphasized the spiritual foundation and background of missions, declaring that the real force in our mission work is spiritual, and if this is neglected even missions become a cold and a hollow pretense.

Mrs. E. M. Beale, reporting for Young People's Work, told of the marvelous meeting of the young people in their recent annual session at Holland, Va., and of a great audience gathered to hear the young people put on and execute a program with an efficiency and an enthusiasm that the body of adults who heard could not be expected to put on. She declared that our young people have not turned their backs upon religion and righteousness, but that they were ready and anxious to serve and to go forward in a real venture for their Lord. Mrs. F. M. Nelson, in reporting for the Cradle Roll, made a plea that the societies look after the babies in the homes, that through the ministry of these innocent ones their mothers would be led into adventures for Christ, and that as these little ones grew up they should be taught the way of righteousness through the leadership of our Lord.

Mrs. W. M. Jay, in reporting for the publicity work of the Convention the past year, urged that societies give to the press and the public the benefit of their work.

Mrs. R. T. Bradford, president, used as her subject, "Excuse or Reason," and by actual demonstration to the delight of the great audience, showed that one great hindering cause for missions was not reason but excuse. "And they all with one accord began to make excuses," when invited by their society to make an adventure even in the field of official service for their Lord.

Mrs. W. V. Leathers, the capable treasurer, made a great report, showing that while the Conference had not reached its goal the past year, they had raised and passed on to the treasurer, $5,115.84. The goal set for the year was $6,000.00. Later in the day the Conference voted to reduce the goal the coming year to $5,500.00, with the faith that in so doing they would raise that amount and possibly enjoy the inspiration of going over the top as they made a new venture the coming year for our Lord.

Mrs. E. L. Beale conducted a most interesting memorial service in honor of the eleven members of societies in the Conference who had passed over the past year, particularly emphasizing and paying beautiful tribute to the memory of Mrs. J. B. Gay, the president of the Conference, who, since the meeting a year ago, had been called to the heavenly home. The entire audience stood a moment in silence in memory of their fallen president and leader.

A brief address was then made by the Mission Secretary, who used as his topic, "The Romance of Responsibility," using "Romance" in this connection in the same sense as "Adventure," and employing the term "Responsibility" in connection with that responsibility assumed when one ventured out into the field of righteousness.

A bountiful luncheon was served by the entertaining society, church and community.

The afternoon of the great day was filled with business items, with an open forum, special music, reports of committees and an inspirational address by the Rev. J. G. Truitt, who used as his topic, "The Open Window." The speaker emphasized the fact that if we look with Christ out through the open window of our hearts and souls, we would find the people who were in the greatest need and would go forth in obedience to the command of our Lord, a great adventurer, in his name to help relieve that need in feeding the hungry hearts of the world.

Mrs. J. E. Cartwright was made president for the coming year; Mrs. L. W. Stagg, secretary, and Mrs. W. V. Leathers, treasurer. Dr. I. W. Johnson introduced the officers, but because of the lateness of the hour and pressure of time a formal installation service was not held. It was a great and a triumphant day in behalf of a great and triumphant cause.

J. O. ATKINSON, Mission Sec'y.

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.

WEEK ENDING OCTOBER 28, 1933.

Sunday Schools.

Previously acknowledged	$ 354.26
Richland, Ga.	1.00
Linville, Va.	4.11
Piney Plains, Raleigh, N. C.	2.00
Newport News, Va.	12.00
Shiloh, Ramseur, N. C.	1.00
Mt. Pleasant, Cameron, N. C.	2.70
Spring Hill, Waverly, Va.	1.00

Lebanon, Semora, N. C.74
United Church, Lynchburg, Va.	6.03
Pleasant Ridge, Ramseur, N. C.	4.82
High Point, N. C.	3.00
Holy Neck, Holland, Va.	6.14
Durham, N. C.	9.23
Ether, N. C.52
Palm Street, Greensboro, N. C.	6.00
Noon Day, Wedowee, Ala.	1.50
Timber Ridge, High View, W. Va.	1.93

Total $ 417.98

Individuals and Churches.

Previously acknowledged	$ 52.80
Concord, Altamahaw, N. C.	9.00
Christian Temple, Norfolk, Va.	400.00

Total $ 461.80

Specials.

Previously acknowledged	$ 84.17
Catawba Springs S. S., Raleigh, N. C.	6.00
C. E. Society, Holland, Va.	1.00

Total $ 91.17

Coin Card Offering.

Previously acknowledged	$ 28.00
Mt. Pleasant S. S., Classes No. 3 and 4, Cameron, N. C.	2.00
Mrs. E. L. Gray's S. S. Class, Waverly, Va.	2.00
Mrs. R. T. West's S. S. Class, Waverly, Va.	1.00
Mrs. J. E. West, Suffolk, Va.	1.00

Total $ 34.00

Summary.

Previously acknowledged	$ 519.23
Sunday Schools, Regular	63.72
Individuals and Churches	409.00
Specials	7.00
Coin Card Offering	6.00

Total to date $ 1,004.95

J. O. ATKINSON, Secretary.

MISSIONARY REPORT.

The N. C. C. Woman's Mission Board, submits the following report for the fourth quarter, 1933:

Women's Societies.

Antioch	$ 2.30
Bethlehem	7.40
Burlington	278.84
Caroleigh	1.00
Carolina	10.00
Catawba Springs	17.30
Christian Light	2.25
Durham	33.20
Elon College	64.55
Graham	20.00
Greensboro	99.45
Hank's Chapel	15.70
Haw River	9.62
Henderson	55.00
Hopedale	10.00
Howard's Chapel	10.00
Ingram	3.05
Liberty (Vance)	46.25
Long's Chapel	5.00
Lynchburg	10.00
Monticello	14.50
Mt. Auburn	9.00
Mt. Bethel	5.00
Mt. Zion	7.50
New Lebanon	4.00
New Hope	3.30
Palm Street, Greensboro.	5.55
Park's Cross Roads	*8.00
Pleasant Grove	15.75
Pleasant Hill	7.20
Pleasant Ridge	14.50
Pleasant Union	6.80

Piney Plains	16.50
Raleigh	63.10
Ramseur	10.55
Randleman	2.00
Rocky Ford	2.06
Reidsville	25.00
Salem Chapel	1.00
Sanford	36.00
Shallow Well	44.00
Turner's Chapel	5.00
Union Ridge	10.00
Union, Virgilina	18.90
Wake Chapel	28.50
Youngsville	10.00
.....	1,074.62

Young People's Societies.

Bethlehem	$ 3.15
Burlington	25.90
Burlington, Junior	17.86
Durham	26.29
Greensboro, Junior	2.25
Henderson	10.00
Ramseur	10.00
Reidsville	10.00
Sanford	3.00
.....	108.45

Willing Workers.

Burlington	$ 7.00
Durham	16.69
Durham, Junior	9.94
Elon College	13.75
Reidsville	10.00
Virgilina	1.23
.....	58.61

Cradle Roll

Burlington	$ 17.66
Durham	13.90
Elon College	15.00
Greensboro	1.00
Park's Cross Roads	2.00
Raleigh	10.00
Sanford	2.50
Wake Chapel	3.17
.....	65.23
Conference offering	14.83

Total $ 1,321.74

MRS. W. R. SELLARS, Treas.

MISSIONARY NEWS NOTES.

By MRS. W. M. JAY.

WINDSOR.

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Windsor Christian Church, reports a pleasant and profitable year in many ways.

The World Day of Prayer was observed by the society using an impressive program of original make-up. They also conducted a Wednesday night prayer service with good results as to attendance and interest. One of the most enjoyable meetings they held was the one at which Mrs. B. D. Jones, district superintendent, was the guest speaker. She, as usual, gave them many words of helpfulness and inspiration and they are looking forward to having her back again.

This group also sponsored the Crucible Campaign with good results. They have raised their apportionment through sacrificial giving, and sent in a special offering. Mrs. S. T. Holland is the president of this society, and Mrs. A. P. Beale is secretary.

PORTSMOUTH.

The Junior Missionary Society of the First Christian Church, Portsmouth, held a public program September 21st, with Rev. P. Rowland Wagner as the speaker. Each Junior had a part on the program also, and the evening was one of profit and uplift.

They held their meetings regularly, using the

A Story for the Children

WHEN THE WORLD WANTED TO PLAY.

By HELEN LATIMER ANDERSON.

"I'm tired of washing dishes, of dusting and making the beds. I'm not going to help you today, mother," said Nell. "Mary and Margaret don't do any work at home and have so much more time to play than I have. I'm going to play with them today."

"All right," said mother, "you try your own way for the day. I want none but willing helpers about me."

Nell picked up her doll and her skates and gaily ran out to join Mary and Margaret, who always could play. They skated and had lots of fun until Nell fell down and hurt her knee and started to run to her house so mother could doctor and bandage it just as she always had, but she stopped when she remembered that she wasn't helping mother today and couldn't ask her to stop and bandage her knee. It would have felt better, but—

"Oh, well," she thought, "it will soon stop hurting if I just go on and forget it." Turning to Mary and Margaret, she said, "Let's play dolls now."

Nell's doll had pretty dresses that her mother had made for it, but the other girls had only the dresses that they could make.

"Mother hasn't time to sew for our dolls," said Mary, "she has too much else to do."

Nell thought how tired their mother always looked, and wondered if she could not look better and have more time for them if they helped her sometimes as she helped her mother, but she didn't say anything because she was not helping her mother now.

They had a good time, but Nell grew tired of her play before the day was over. Of course, she wouldn't say she was not having as much fun as she thought she would have, since she had been the one who had thought playing all the time would please her best.

At night when she told mother goodnight, she felt a little bit sorry that mother looked tired, but she went on to bed without telling her so, and after falling asleep, she had a dream.

The little moon fairies said:

"We're tired of oiling our lamp and hanging it out each night. Little Nell is playing all the time. Why can't we just play, too?" So they didn't shine out.

The little star said:

"We've been shining every night for years and years and we're tired. Let's stop and play and not shine out tonight," and they put out their lights, but, oh, what a dark night that was, without any moon and stars!

The raindrops came along and said:

"We want to play, too. We've always been so busy making things grow that we haven't had time for play. Let's drop our work and join in the fun," and they didn't rain any more.

The trees and the flowers said:

"If the rain isn't going to fall on us, why should we try to grow and bloom when we might be having our games?" and they didn't grow any more.

All along the street that had been shaded with lovely green trees there were only old stumps with dead branches. In the flower beds around the house and out in the garden where lately bloomed flowers of beautiful reds and pinks, purples and gold had been, now there were withered stalks to show where they had grown.

What a strange place that was, without any green trees and growing flowers, and Nell didn't like it at all; and the darkness frightened her. Suddenly waking, she called:

"Mother, oh, mother, I'm afraid!"

"I am here darling," said mother, as she held Nell's hand in hers.

"Oh, mother! I thought you might have stopped mothering me, too," said Nell, as she told of the dreadful dream.

Then she told of the day spent entirely in play and of how tired of play she had grown before night; and she cried:

"Mother, I'm sorry you were so tired tonight because I didn't help you at all. I'll help you tomorrow, just see if I don't. I know now that play isn't fun if I play all the time. There is work to be done and if I don't do my share someone else must do more. I guess the moon and the rain, the stars and the flowers would like sometimes to play, too, but they just keep on working, knowing that their jobs must be done and nothing and nobody can do their parts for them. How bad it would be for us all if they did stop their work to play!"—Presbyterian Advance.

SUBSCRIBERS TO THE CHRISTIAN SUN

These Pens are of standard make, and will give good service. If you are in need of a Fountain Pen, order from us. Postage paid and Pens guaranteed by the manufacturer.

MEN'S PENS—Capitol, $2.00; Mercantile, $2.50; Cardinal, $3.00.

LADIES' PENS, $2.00.

COMBINATION OFFER—To a new subscriber or for renewal, $2.50, either Gentleman's (Capitol) Pen or Ladies' Pen, with guarantee of manufacturer. And to "Sun" subscribers, not in arrears, any Pen at one-fourth off. Address: THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 EAST BROAD STREET, RICHMOND, VIRGINIA

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."

REV. F. C. LESTER, Editor, 505 S. Main St., Norfolk, Va.

THE COURAGEOUS CHRIST.

Yesterday I looked for a long time at a beautiful picture of Jesus in a window of one of our churches. The Master is portrayed as the good shepherd and in his arm is a little lamb and close by his side are other sheep. It is a familiar and beautiful characterization of Jesus, but it does not show the courage which was evidently a characteristic of Jesus. Artists have failed in large measure in portraying the strength of character which was his.

Physical Courage.

Jesus had more physical courage than most men of his time or of ours. When a storm arose and everybody was scared almost to death, he slept quietly until they awoke him and then said, "why are you afraid; where is your faith?" He alone dared touch a leper. Crazy men who lived in the graveyard didn't frighten him. If you doubt his physical courage try turning over the tables of Jewish money changers and see how quickly your courage fails.

Mental Courage.

The mind of the Master dared what most men feared. The people of his time thought in terms of what had been said already. The preachers quoted what others had said without daring to add one thought of their own. But when Jesus stood up to preach he said, "It hath been said by them of old time . . . but I say unto you." The things that he said were often exactly opposite to what people had thought. Most of us are too lazy to think; it is much safer to agree with what has been said. Jesus' own family thought that he was crazy and his neighbors led him out to the top of the hill expecting to cast him down and kill him. But Jesus never quit challenging people in his thoughts. He even stood in the temple and argued with the preachers and lawyers of his day until their fury could be satisfied with nothing but his death. His thinking ran ahead of his time by many centuries and he had the courage to speak his mind.

Moral Courage.

But the greatest courage of the Master was in the moral realm. I know young people who have not the courage to associate with those outside of their own circle. Sometimes good people are left out of fraternities, sororities, and other groups simply because they do not have the proper heritage and no one in the group has the moral courage to break over the standards set by the group. It took courage for Jesus to go to the home of a hated tax collector and sit down to eat with the common rabble without even washing his hands according to the proper ceremony. It took moral courage for Jesus to talk with a foreign woman whose reputation was bad while he sat at Jacob's Well waiting for the disciples to bring food. It took moral courage for him to heal on the Sabbath Day when all the leaders of the church were saying to the sick that they should come on a week day to be healed. It took moral courage for Jesus to say to the preachers of his day, "You are hypocrites, whited sepulchres, teaching one thing and doing another." It took moral courage for this young man of 30 years to face a cross and say, "Not my will, but thine be done." It took moral courage to leave in the hands of ignorant and unlearned men who would still swear and fight on occasion the responsibility of building a kingdom of love on earth. But Jesus had all the courage necessary to set his face steadfastly toward Jerusalem and to walk in any path that needed to be traveled.

The physical, mental and moral courage of the Master of Galilee has neither been equalled nor surpassed. Facing all the sin, crime, and despair that man has been able to accumulate, the Master sets himself to the task of blotting out all the unlovely and building here on earth the Kingdom of God.

YOUTH MEETINGS IN VIRGINIA.

On Tuesday night of last week some four hundred young people, their leaders and friends packed into the Holland Christian Church for their annual Missionary Conference. They represented twenty-one local societies with 500 members. They had given to missions this year $1,020.00, which is an average of two dollars each. Two societies gave the same as last year and seven societies increased their gifts. The theme, "Building a New World Together With God," was discussed in a dignified, instructive, and inspiring way by Miss Sarah Norfleet Daughtrey, Miss Doris Eure, Miss Priscilla Chase, Mrs. E. L. Beale, Miss Mary Rawls Jones, Mr. Earnest Beale, Jr., and Rev. H. S. Hardcastle. It was a great meeting, and is a complete denial of the oft-repeated statement that young people are interested in nothing good.

Saturday and Sunday, last, goodly numbers of our own young people joined with other churches in the Tidewater C. E. Convention held in Norfolk. Local Christian Church people shared largely in the plans for the convention. Mr. C. E. Warrington of First Church was toastmaster at the banquet held in the Nansemond Hotel at Ocean View, Saturday evening, at which time Rev. H. S. Hardcastle was the principal speaker. This writer had the pleasure of sharing in the Sunday afternoon program. All Sunday services were held in the First Disciples Church. Such meetings give a wonderful opportunity for young people to learn how to cooperate with other denominations in building right programs for the churches and individuals.

THE AWFULNESS AND FUTILITY OF WAR.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC FOR NOVEMBER 5,

Scripture: II. Sam. 12:29-31.

(Consecration Meeting.)

Daily Bible Readings.

Monday—A Massacre. Num. 31:1-11.

Tuesday—A Raid for Spoil. I. Sam. 30:1-5.

Wednesday—War's Debauch. I. Sam. 30:8-18.

Thursday—Common Cruelties. II. Kings 8:7-15.

Friday—The Principle of Vengeance. Rev. 13:10.

Saturday—A Prophet's Dream. Hos. 2:18-20.

A WORSHIP PROGRAM.

Theme: "For the Peace of God's World."

Prelude—"Now Every Morning is the Love," or "Lord of All Being, Throned Afar."

Invocation—First stanza of "My God I Thank Thee," in unison.

Hymn—"Come, Thou Almighty King."

Scripture Lesson—(By one reader) II. Sam. 12:29-31; (by a second reader, for contrast), Ps. 24:1-5.

Prayer—Close the worship period by prayerfully humming one verse of "Holy, Holy, Holy."

"Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in Heaven."

America's light should brighten the world; is the light made brighter by fighting? Has war ever really settled anything? Doesn't it unsettle everything?

We are greatly depressed when we read in the morning papers that ten persons have been killed by automobiles in our State during the week, that there has been a fire in which five people lost their lives, that a criminal gang shot a policeman, that a serious disease has taken a toll of fifty lives during the summer. We use every possible means for prevention and cure. Yet this calamity of war takes its lives by the millions. Some people say that nothing can be done about it. Suppose people had said that about diphtheria. Should not the intelligence of mankind find a cure for war just as it has found a preventive for diphtheria? Why should it not be regarded as a matter of the greatest heroism to work for the cure of war as it has been to seek the cure for cancer?

Ten million known dead soldiers in the last war! Does that sound like a civilized method of solving difficulties? If it were not so unspeakably tragic, it would seem downright silly. Some one has said that what the world needs is to realize how absolutely silly and stupid this whole business of war is. By what kind of reasoning is it murder to kill one man, while it is regarded as not only justifiable but heroic to share in the killing of five million men? War is organized, systematic, inexcusable crime.

Whatever the last war solved, it did not eliminate the international jealousies and fears and selfishness that have given rise to every preceding war. You cannot end war by war. You cannot end hatred by hatred. You cannot make righteousness by the methods of unrighteousness.

What are the costs of war, in money and in man-power? The World War was fought at the cost of 42,000,000 lives, including soldiers and civilians. A population as great as that of France or Italy, or two-thirds that of Germany was wiped out. Who won the World War? No nation won it; every one lost it. "From now on," says Thompson in "Building the World Society," "all great wars will always be lost by all the combatants."

What would be the nature and the probable result of another world war? No doubt it would be largely fought in the air, using aircraft controlled by wireless and gas released in quantities sufficient to kill thousands of workers in a great city. Almost before mobilization of an army could begin one nation or the other would be attacking strategic cities, navy-yards, arms and in ammunition factories, and other vital points. The existence of a new gas is announced. This gas immediately attacks the walls of the lungs, hardening the capillaries so that blood flows into the lungs, but cannot flow out. It might be fatal in twenty seconds.

Was Napoleon accurate and up to date when he said: "I doubt if war ever really settled anything. It unsettles everything."

"Though I speak with the tongues of men and of angels, and have not love, . . . these three; but the greatest of these is love." Why not make our weapon—LOVE?

WESTERN N. C. YOUTH AT CONFERENCE.

The program of the Western North Carolina Conference states that the young people will have charge of the program on Wednesday night, November 8th. Think of it! Conferences turning over a whole session to the young people! Here is a real challenge to the youth of that Conference. Now is your time to make good, young friends. And here's a big bet that they will present a real program. Here's hoping that every youth in that Conference will try to get to that meeting, share in the program, and show the older people that youth is ready to carry responsibilities.

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE.

PAUL IN JERUSALEM.

LESSON VI—NOVEMBER 5, 1933.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty."—II. Cor. 3:17.

LESSON TEXT: Acts 15:1, 2, 6, 22-31.

The average Christian knows but little, if anything about the Council in Jerusalem, which is the subject of the lesson today, but he ought to know something about it, for it was one of the most important Councils that has ever been held. What the Continental Congress did in singing the Declaration of Independence for the American people, the Council of Jerusalem did for the Christian people of all time. For the issue at stake was really Christian liberty. On the surface the problem seems simple and insignificant. Paul and Barnabas knew that it was fundamental to Christianity and significant for all time to come. They were not fighting a battle to end war, but they were fighting a battle to guarantee Christian liberty. Unless we understand that we miss the point of today's lesson, and it will appear commonplace. If we understand that, today's lesson will take on new meaning.

The Question of the Issue.

Paul and Barnabas had been preaching that a man was saved by faith in Jesus Christ, without any dependence upon, or obligation to the Mosaic law. His thesis was that a man was saved by grace through faith, not works. But these Judaizers who had come down to Antioch insisted that a man must become a Christian by becoming a Jew, that is in a religious sense. A man must be circumcised if he were to become a Christian. They would say that no matter how much faith a man had in Christ, or how fully he had yielded his life to Christ, he could not be saved until he had been circumcised, until he had fulfilled the Mosaic law. It was a vital issue, deep and far-reaching. Indeed Christianity had come to the cross-roads, or to the battle-field. Was Christianity a religion of law or of spirit? Was a man to become a Christian by performing or submitting to rites or ceremonies, or were rites and ceremonies simply outward expressions or inner changes? The Judaizers said, "Except ye be circumcised after the manner of Moses, ye cannot be saved." Paul said, "Circumcision has nothing whatever to do with a man's salvation. Salvation is a matter of personal trust in Jesus Christ."

The Council.

An agreement was impossible, so Paul and Barnabas wisely decided to refer the matter to the apostles and elders in Jerusalem, those who had known Jesus personally, those who by virtue of their age and experience, would be able to give them light on this perplexing problem. It was a fine spirit that characterized these men to do this. It is a mark of true nobility. They accordingly went up to Jerusalem, called the apostles and elders together and made known to them the troublesome question and asked for an opinion on it. It is always a good thing when men who have differences get together in a spiritual atmosphere to consider things.

The Facts in the Case.

Things waxed warm—the word tells us "and when there had been much disputing—but there were certain stubborn facts which the Judaizers could not get around. First of all, there was Simon Peter's experience with the Gentiles. He had gone into the house of Cornelius, and while he was yet speaking, the Holy Spirit came upon Cornelius and his household, and he had a first-hand experience of God. Peter said that God had not made any difference between the Gentiles of Cornelius' household and the disciples—God had purified their hearts by faith. But neither Cornelius or his household had been circumcised. Point number one against the Judaizers.

Then Paul and Barnabas got up and told what God had been doing among the Gentiles during their ministry among them. Men and women were being changed—there was no doubt about that—and God was manifesting himself with miracles and wonders—they were being saved just as completely as were the disciples themselves. But Paul and Barnabas had not insisted upon circumcision and it had not been practiced at all. Point number one against the Judaizers.

Finally James got up and reminded his hearers that God in the prophets had explicitly said that he would visit the Gentiles, and call out of them a people for his name. God was confirming his prediction and his promises in a marvelous way. Point number three against the Judaizers. There was nothing else to be said.

The Abiding Principle.

The principle pronounced at the Council of Jerusalem has an abiding and universal application. The Council did not, of course, establish the principle. God established that. They simply proclaimed or pronounced it. In essence it is this: a man is saved, he comes into right relations with God, through faith, not by works or rites. Salvation is the gift of God, an expression of his grace, and it comes not through works of the law, but through faith, and faith in the sense of personal trust.

It needs to be stated that although the principle was pronounced here, it was not without opposition. Paul had to fight the battle again and again. And Martin Luther had to fight the whole thing over again during the Reformation. And today there are those who are Judaizers in spirit and in practice—they make salvation a matter of works of the law.

Some Teaching Points.

There are so many interesting side-lights in this lesson that passing reference ought to be made to them.

1. Christians should seek to adjust their differences in a spiritual atmosphere.
2. Changed lives are Christianity's unanswerable arguments.
3. God makes no difference between Gentiles and Jews.
4. The possession of the Spirit of God is the essential thing.
5. The Christian is free, not to do as he pleases, but as he ought.
6. Men are saved through the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ.
7. Proper respect should be shown for the feelings of others.
8. Paul and Barnabas were men who had hazarded their lives for the Lord Jesus Christ.
9. There are always those who would trouble others, and subvert their souls.
10. Unity of spirit is a source of joy.

NOTICE.

The Educational Committee of the Eastern North Carolina Conference will meet at Wentworth Church, McCullers, N. C., November 21, 1933. Any one having business with the Committee will take due notice.

Respectfully,

E. M. CARTER, Chairman.
Youngsville, N. C.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 16-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $4.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3/4 x 5 3/4 inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3 3/4 x 5 3/4 inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps $2.50

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5 3/8 x 8 1/2 inches and 1 3/8 inches thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With Concise Bible Dictionary, combined Concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Lavanant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold $4.75

RED-LETTER EDITION.

With All the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands; title stamped on side and back in pure gold $3.25

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations; special book for Sunday Schools 95c

Any of the above Bibles sent postpaid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN
1536 East Broad Street Richmond, Virginia

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy

MONDAY.

PRAYER.

Eternal God, increase our faith. We are children of sires who have walked through difficult days and have not been confounded. Steady our souls. Be to us also what thou hast been to them—a citadel, a fortress, a high tower. Lay hold upon our strength and courage, and so increase our confidence that we may gird ourselves again for the conflict. Enlarge our love. Give us the gracious and generous eye, with power to discern the soul of beauty in things that are unbeautiful. Beneath the surface of human life, crude and vulgar, grant us the insight of friendliness and generosity to see the possibilities of beauty, and, like thy Son, may we help bestow upon thy struggling people power to become the sons of God. So may some soul, baffled and distraught, anxious, cast down, and hard bestead, be lifted into the peace of God that the world cannot give and cannot take away, and into the victory that comes by faith.—Amen. —Selected.

TUESDAY.

THE POWER OF MEMORY LANE.

"I have prayed for thee that thy faith fail not."
—Luke 22:32.

One John Paton of the New Hebrides tells us a story of a most vital memory of his. When he left home to start life, the journey had to be made by foot, and his father accompanied him for the first few miles of the way. At length they came to the parting. Both were so stirred with emotion that they could scarcely speak. All that the father could say was, "Goodbye, my boy, God bless you." He says, "I wrung his hand and hurried away." But after he had gone a distance he turned around to get a last glimpse of his beloved father. He beheld his father, "with head uncovered," where he had left him. He says, "I knew he was praying for me, and that sight has never left me."

Paton tells of how this memory has helped him in hours of trial and temptation, in foreign experiences as a missionary when he was face to face with death. That picture of father, silhouetted in the golden frame of memory, has ever been to him a constant inspiration and a defense.

Your writer has a memory lane like that, too; it is the lane of the old home and the last glimpse of dad on the front porch, as he said, "God bless you, boy."

If the memory of an earthly father can be so much to one, how much more can our heavenly father be to us—a memory that never leaves one who has truly known him, a memory that brings back his help in every time of need with reinforcement of faith and courage.

Prayer—Our Father, which art in heaven, reveal to us daily what thy presence means all along the way. If thou art praying for us, O what it must be to lean on thee. Grant us a vision of thee and thy help through Jesus Christ, our Lord, now and forever.—Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

LOUD SILENCES.

"Be still and know that I am God."—Psalm 46:10.

"Commune with your heart and be still."—Psalm 4:4.

Some silences of life are more impressive than its voices. God seems to have understood that this fact is taken for granted by his people that which he tells them is this: In the deep silences of one's life the voices of noblest ambitions, highest inspirations, tenacious determinations, are heard. He means to tell them further that only in the grand silences of life does one come to hear God's voice and know him. Recall: It was in the calm that Elijah heard "the still small voice." We have stood upon the brink of the Grand Canyon and contemplated the grandeur of the red and the gold, the relentless sun and indescribable halo of it all. To us it was as the burning bush to Moses, the voice of God, where "deeps call unto deeps." The voice of God seemed to quiver through the silence, and the heart received a new faith and a new courage as we turned to meet the inevitable tests and trials of the day.

One does not have to go to the Grand Canyon to hear God's voice and feel his power. He who has a sense of the purpose, the beauty and the service of nature around him will hear that voice. He who has a daily heart-touch with God and has Christ grafted in his soul will hear that voice in every call and claim of life. "Let God speak or we die."

Prayer—Dear Father and our God, ever give our souls for good and bestow upon us thy grace. Teach us how to put our trust in thee. We seek to dwell "under the shadow of thy wings." We want to realize that we live because Christ lives and that we will live forever. In Christ's name, we ask it.—Amen.

THURSDAY.

"I WILL BE WITH THEE."

"When thou passest through the water, I will be with thee."—Isa. 43:2.

"I will never leave thee nor forsake thee."—Heb. 13:5.

"Not with injoyful care
Nor with unpraiseful prayer
We live below;
Assailed by pain and sin,
We yet are born to win
The holy heaven wherein
No evil grows.

"God of the peaceful heights,
Thy word of promise bright
Spans the rough seas;
A rainbow fair to view,
As broad, as bright of hue,
And all souls may come through Traveling to thee."

—Lynch.

Prayer—Cover our lives, dear Father, in that way that we shall ever be conscious of thy presence, and give unto us consistent living in our fragmentary lives. When all things else have faded out of view, may thy promises burn with saving light along our way. This we ask for Jesus' sake.—Amen.

FRIDAY.

LIFE'S MOST PERFECT UNITY.

"I am the way, the truth, and the life."—Jno. 14:16.

"Grow in grace and the knowledge of the Lord and the beauty of holiness."

Christianity is something that grows with increasing volume and keeps all its parts summed up in a believer's life. It is said that the crown of Christian living is the same at the end as it was when the first sense of forgiveness appeared. The feet that climb the steeps of God at last are the same feet that took the first step forward at conversion. This is why one loves to look back and thank God for his blessings. The great difference is: the riper and the deeper experiences.

A young Christian faces the being of God, God's care, Christ the Saviour, the atonement and immortality, as matters of faith for him to embrace. The ripened Christian finds that he has brought all these along with him, and he no longer holds them as a matter of faith, but he feels them as a part of his nature. They have become forms of his life; they are realities; they fill him with reverence; they clothe his acts with spirit; they are his inspiration; they become his motive power; that which he once aspired to on the mountain top, in his ripened life, has become achievement. The young Christian may boast of dogmas; the ripened Christian boasts of life. There is unripe and ripened fruit, and both are natural in their places. So it is with our Christian experience. Press on, beloved. There are heights to reach, goals to win, crowns to wear, and a God to know. "Be thou faithful unto death and I will give thee a crown of life."

Prayer—Our Father, there is repose in our contemplations, but in all one word sufficeth—"Christ." Amidst all the varied experiences of life, "Love" stands out as the finest and best. O, then, God of love, make us loving and then at last like Christ.—Amen.

SATURDAY.

ELUSIVE BERYLLIUM.

"They shall suck the abundance of the seas, and the treasures of the sand."—Read Deut. 33:13-19.

Beryllium is potentially one of the most useful metals in the world, if we could only get at it. It is common enough, too, for there are millions of tons of it reachable—if one could only discover the chemical formula or mechanical process that would unlock the chain that binds it so closely. It is in the same plight that held aluminum before 1885. Beryllium is nearly a third lighter than aluminum, resists all acids but hydrofluoric, is hard enough to scratch glass, forms remarkable alloys, rivals steel in strength—but the cost of getting it from the ore is prohibitive.

The world fairly teems with undiscovered potencies, with powers and riches which some day man will seize upon. Back in the days of creation the Lord bade man subdue the earth and have dominion over it, but man has been slow to exercise his mandate.

Prayer—Is it not, O God, because we are not near enough to thee? Is it not because we do not clear our minds with thy wisdom and fill our souls with thy spirit? Thou art ready and eager for us to grasp thy proffered wealth. Help us, we pray thee, to be worthy of it. In Christ's name. Amen.

SUNDAY.

TALKING WITH ONE'S SELF.

"I communed with mine own heart."—Read Ecc. 1:12-18.

A radio man has sent his own voice from Schenectady clear around the world by way of Java, and back to himself at Schenectady again, his words making the circuit of the globe in an eighth of a second. He talked to himself about the feat which he was accomplishing.

That is what every writer and preacher and teacher does in his speaking or writing: he is simply talking to himself about the things that interest him, in the hope that they will interest others. The best talkers are those who have something worth while to say to themselves, and so to others. Their communion with their own heart is so elevated that it rewards whoever "listens in." But if we are not worth the eavesdropping, people vote us a bore and turn the dial to some other speaker.

Prayer—The best of all our talk with ourselves, our Father, is our communion with thee. Not around this world but all the way from earth to heaven and back again—what a radio circuit is that!—Amen.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Preacher

THE LIFE THAT LOOKS UP.

By JOHN G. TRUITT.

"And when Jesus came to the place he looked up."—Luke 19:5.

Somewhere I have read a commonplace parable of a man who went always looking for something on the ground. During his life he had found bushels of rusty nails, and worthless bolts, screws, pins, buckles and a very few coins, and little of anything of value. So long had he looked on the ground that his body had become bent, and his whole posture was a stooping one. It is useless to say he died a pauper. His was a life that looked down.

I want to tell you now about a life that looked up. A man whose body stood beautifully erect, whose forehead faced upward, and whose chin was lifted. Wherever we see a picture of him, the artist has pictured him with a lifted face—even in prayer, when other faces are wont to be bowed, his is lifted toward the heavens. This should be so for there were no sins to cloud his brow or iniquities to drop his eyes. The psalmist has said: "Mine iniquities have taken hold of me, so that I am not able to look up." It was not so with the man of our meditation.

I have chosen for a text, Luke 19:5: "And when Jesus came to the place he looked up." To the place where Zaccheus was watching from a sycamore tree. This is not such a striking sentence when we first look at it, but upon further examination it begins to live, and move in our imaginations. Jericho was not Jerusalem, nor Bethlehem, nor even Nazareth. Jericho was a hard-headed business man's town, and oftentimes a hard-hearted business man's town as well.

In this town lived a wise little old merchant by the name of Zaccheus. It had been rumored that Jesus was in town. Zaccheus had heard of him, and was very anxious to meet a member of his own race who had made such an impression on the common people. He went out and looked for him, but was told that he had just vacated the city. Having ascertained the road he would travel on, Zaccheus cuts across the way. Knowing Jesus would be surrounded by a multitude, he climbed a tree in order that he might get a good look at this so wonderful a man. Already it seems he was about ready to give his heart to the gracious stranger. We cannot know the things that must have prepared Zaccheus for the meeting. We only know the results.

In the first place Zaccheus wanted to see Jesus. It is one of the finest, cleanest wishes on earth. For it the cultured Greeks made their way to Jerusalem, and approaching the bodyguard of Jesus, they said: "Sirs, we would see Jesus." And I doubt not that many of us would give almost all we know to have that wish realized. Philip wanted to see the Father, knowing that that would suffice. Jesus taught him that to really see Jesus would be sufficient. Well, Zaccheus wanted to see Jesus. May our best selves cry out within us with the desire to see Jesus.

In the second place Zaccheus went where he thought Jesus would be. And he placed himself in the right palce of mind, heart and body to see him. Zaccheus was not chasing a squirrel in that sycamore tree, or trying to gain a new knowledge of its leaf, or branch structure; nor was he looking idly off into space, but instead of any of these things he was seeking to see Jesus. It is the way of spiritual insight. It must be wanted, sought, made ready for. You nor I will ever have the companionship with the eternal which is so necessary for our fullest development, until we learn to want, seek, look for it.

In the third place, we find that Jesus came to that place. You may call it an accident, or an incident. Whatever you call it, Jesus came into Zaccheus' full view, clear, open, plain to be seen. Have you ever come to that place so common in deep depression, "Is there a God? Is there anything to Christianity, or the Christian religion?" Have you ever come to that place so common in hours of deep trial? When you came to that place, did you do what Zaccheus did? Seek him, and get into the place to see him, and attend to the matter of seeing him with all your mind, body, and strength? Once Thomas was in that plight. And Thomas, either of his own accord, or from persuasion of his fellows, or from force of habit put himself in the place where Jesus was likely to come. And although he attended with doubt supreme, in the midst of the hour of meeting, he fell prostrate at his Lord's feet, saying, "My Lord, and my God." Jesus is found of them that seek him. He meets his own in the appointed Galilee! Wherever people gather together to meet him, he is in their midst, and that to bless.

In the fourth place Jesus not only came to the place but he looked up. What a blessing in the uplifted eyes of Jesus! Eyes lifted up to meet Mary's in the manger; eyes lifted up to recognize the descension of the dove-form Spirit that approved his life decision; eyes lifted up to heaven when a brother lay dead in the tomb at his sisters' feet; eyes lifted up after he considered the sins of the poor sinner and had written them in the sand; eyes lifted up through the night in Gethsemane to God as his hardest battle was being fought; eyes lifted up on Peter to save him from the remorse of his awful denials; eyes lifted up through his own life blood as from thorn-made scars it ran down his face—yea, eyes lifted to God for us: "Father, forgive them." Those same eyes he lifted to see the man who wanted to see him. That is a promise and a prophecy I wish I could burn on your very hearts of need this day. The eyes of God are lifted for you. They are searching out your need if you will but put yourself in the place of reception. "My God will supply your every need, according to his riches."

In the fifth place Jesus not only lifted his eyes, but we are told, "and saw him." What a searching; yet beautiful comfort that. He saw him! Saw his need, saw his want, saw his hope, saw his faith, saw his possibilities, saw his worth, saw his wealth, saw his plight before the eternal God. Jesus saw him. Can we not pray, "O, Jesus, see us! See us as we are." It is something to know that Jesus is willing, anxious and ready to see us. Yea, that he is eagerly seeking to see us. He saw Zaccheus.

Just as I am, without one plea
But that thy love was shed for me,
And that thou bidst me come to thee,
O Lamb of God, I come.
Just as I am, thou wilt receive,
Wilt welcome, pardon, cleanse, relieve;
Because thy promise I believe,
O Lamb of God, I come, I come.

In the sixth place, he not only saw him, but he bid him come—to come down with haste, "for today I must abide in thy house." There is the whole Gospel couched in that call. "Come down to me that I may come home with thee!" Remember that: Jesus wants us to come to him in order that he may come to us. That he may live with us. That he may go to our homes. A man who has only that "abroad" brand of Christianity and has it not in his own household is not a Christian at all. A man who accepts Jesus in the presence of the people, and at the place of meeting and does not carry him away with him to his home, and place of daily living and serving, is courting the eternal disapproval of both God and man. He is blighting the progress of the church, and belittling the Kingdom of God. "Zaccheus, come to me, that I may come to you." "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." Rest, thank God, in your own home, and in your own soul—a peace and a power that passeth knowledge!

And when Jesus and Zaccheus went off together, "they all murmured, saying, that he has gone off to be a guest with a man that is a sinner." Perhaps "sinner" meant that he was not orthodox according to the orthodoxy of the times or maybe it more than likely meant that he was a Jew who like Matthew had turned servant to
(Continued on page 15.)

COMMUNION WARE.

Individual Service.

ALUMINUM.

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A.

- Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses $7.00
- Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses 6.75
- Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses 6.50
- Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
- Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
- Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim..... 1.60

(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)

SILVER-PLATED.

The Silver-plated Ware is of the very highest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.

- Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses.$22.00
- Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85. 11.00
- Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85... 16.00
- Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling).$22.00
- Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90.. 16.00
- Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90. 14.00

- Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow Rim.....$ 9.00
- Bread Plate No. 4—Broad Rim..... 9.00
- Filler—Silver Lined..... 6.00

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street Richmond, Virginia

ALABAMA CONFERENCE.

(Continued from page 5.)

REV. FLOYD M. PRICE, of Piedmont and Vanderbilt and is steadily recruiting a good constituency recently gone to the Garden City and Steppville. Mt. Grove Churches. MRS. PRICE is from South Carolina also, and is a trained nurse from the Vanderbilt University Hospital.

REV. WILLIAM H. TILLMAN, who is connected with the well-known family of that name, has for several years been the pastor of the West Florida Associated Parishes. As an extra service he also preaches once each month at the Community Church of the resort town, New Valparaiso, on the Gulf of Mexico.

MISS MARGUERITE DAVISON, who is a licentiate, is the efficient extension service and young people's worker in West Florida, Alabama, Tennessee, and Kentucky. When she is at home she is at Thorsby.

DR. FRANK E. JENKINS, who is a member of the North Georgia Association, is acting president of Southern Union College at Wadley, and of Bowden College, at Bowden, Ga. He has given about forty-five years of able service and great devotion to the church and college work in the Southeast, having filled at times the leading general positions in both departments.

MISS HELEN C. JENKINS is Principal of Thorsby Institute, which is a high grade academy. She performs the marvel of keeping Thorsby Institute growing and out of debt.

REV. ERNEST H. SPEROW is the consecrated pastor at Wadley and a professor in Southern Union College.

MRS. FRED P. ENSMINGER, professor in Piedmont College, Demorest, Ga., since 1925, is giving up her professorship in Georgia to be with her husband, the Conference Superintendent, whose work centers at Birmingham. She is particularly interested in woman's work, of which she was the Congregational Southeastern Secretary for a few years until she became too busy with her college interest.

With all these effective leaders the Conference has promising days ahead.

PROGRAM.

The Fourth Annual Meeting of the Alabama Conference of Congregational-Christian Churches will be held at the United Protestant Church, Thorsby, Ala., November 7-9, 1933. Rev. Jos. E. Each is pastor, and Rev. C. W. Carter, moderator. Following is the program:

Theme—"God's Husbandmen,"

TUESDAY.

Evening Session.

- 7:00 Address of welcome, Rev. Joseph E. Each. Response, Judge Louise O. Carlton, Birmingham, Ala.
- Address, President William J. Campbell, Southern Seminary Foundation, Nashville.
- Conference sermon, President Henry C. Newell, Piedmont College, Demorest.

WEDNESDAY.

Morning Session.

- 8:30 Devotional service at Thorsby Institute, Dr. W. Knighton Bloom, Washington, D. C.
- 8:50 At the church: Organization, reports of officers and committees, appointment of committees, business.
- Address, "God's Farmers," Secretary A. W. Sparks, Church Extension Boards, Dayton, followed by three-minute talks by Revs. Zenas Beau, C. W. Carter, J. D. Dollar, M. L. Hargraves, J. H. Hughes, J. D. Hunt, N. A. Long, R. A. McKay, C. W. Smith, M. L. Thrasher, W. H. Tillman, and G. H. Veazey.

Afternoon Session.

- 2:00 Woman's meeting in charge of Mrs. G. L. Stevens and Mrs. E. W. Butler.
- Address by Mrs. F. P. Ensminger, Birmingham.
- 4:00 Address, "Our Schools," Miss Helen C. Jenkins.

Evening Session.

- 7:00 Devotional service, Rev. Floyd M. Price, Garden City.
- 7:20 Address, Dr. W. Knighton Bloom.
- Missionary program: "The American Indian," an exhibit and play.

THURSDAY.

Morning Session.

- 8:30 Devotional service at Thorsby Institute, Pres. Wm. J. Campbell.
- 8:50 At the church: business.
- 9:10 Round Table: The church ministering to the people, led by Supt. F. P. Ensminger, Birmingham, with talks by Revs. Messrs. W. N. Archer, J. P. Bean, George H. Bell, J. P. Blackwell, S. F. Commander, W. H. Curl, J. M. Dopson, H. M. Gray, Samuel Long, W. T. Meacham, M. D. Morgan, A. C. Nelson, Millard Stevens, John Taylor, and Rev. Annie C. Moats.
- 11:30 The Lord's Supper, administered by Dr. W. Knighton Bloom.

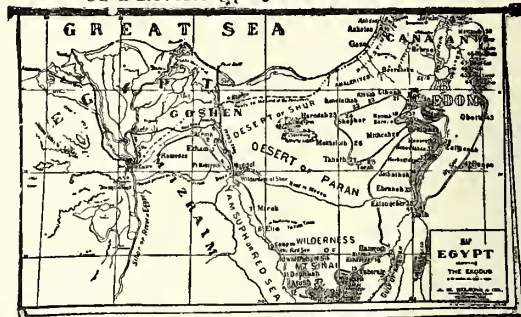

Evening Session.

- 2:00 Business.
- 3:00 Inspection of Thorsby Institute.
- 7:00 Young People's Program in charge of Miss Marguerite Davison.
- Address, Rev. David W. Shepherd, Phenix City.

One delegate to the Conference may be sent for every 50 church members or major fraction thereof. One representative from each Sunday School, Woman's Society and Young People's organization is invited. Delegates are requested to notify Rev. Jos. E. Each, Thorsby, Ala., of their expected arrival.

Eilers Sunday School Maps
On a Revolving Adjustable Steel Stand

The first 5 maps are in Set No. 1, with stand, Price $15.00

Set No. 2 8 Maps, Price $10.00

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street

Richmond, Virginia

HOLMAN SUPERIOR TEACHERS' BIBLES

Authorized Version—Self-Pronouncing

The Best Editions of the World's Best Book

For Adults, Teachers, Preachers, Students, and All Who Would Study the Word of God Intelligently

BOLD BLACK TYPE—COMPACT SIZE 4 1/2 x 6 3/4 INCHES—WILL FIT THE COAT POCKET

Part page specimen of Holman Boldblack Type Bible
ST. MATTHEW, 5. Christ's sermon on the mount.

13 And leaving Náz'a-rèth, he came and dwelt in Cà-per'na-um, which is upon the sea coast, in the borders of Záb'u-lon and Nèph'tha-lim:
14 That it might be fulfilled

A. D. 31. 934 CHAPTER 5.
3 Who are blessed. 13 The disciples called the salt of the earth, and light of the world; Christ urged on them a good example, etc.
CHAP. 4. AND seeing the multitudes, he went up into a moun-

THIS NEW HOLMAN TEACHERS' BIBLE. Pronouncing Text, Bold Black Type is a PRONOUNCED SUCCESS. The latest Bible with NEW HELPS that are quite comprehensive and consist of an Illustrated Bible Dictionary, Concordance and additional aids all under ONE ALPHABETICAL INDEX. Also Fine Maps on Coated Paper, and a specially prepared BIBLE READING COURSE, intended to stimulate and maintain interest in the Bible. Imported Bible paper is used to improve opacity and keep down bulk. By this means you get the benefit of full Biblical information without the physical discomfort of handling a heavy volume.

STYLES AND PRICES—BIBLE PAPER EDITION

- 4612. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges..... $4.00
- 4630. Same as 4612, with extra leather lined covers..... 4.75
- THIN INDIA PAPER EDITION
With Helps as described above. Size 4 1/2 x 6 3/4 inches. One inch in thickness
- 630X. Egyptian Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings, red under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker..... 7.00
- 633X. Algerian Morocco, divinity circuit, leather lining to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, extra quality binding..... 8.00

EXTRA LARGE PRINT TEACHERS' BIBLES

Large 8 Vo. Size—8x5 1/2 inches—1600 Pages, including 400 pages of Bible Study Helps

Part Page Specimen of Print

ST. MATTHEW, 5. Christ's sermon on the mount.

15 The land of Záb'u-lon, and the land of Nèph'tha-lim, by the way of the sea, beyond Jor'dan, Gal'i-lee of the Gén'tiles;

A. D. 31. 2 And he opened his mouth, and taught them, saying,
3 Blessed are the poor in spirit: for their's is the kingdom of heaven.

CONTAINING COMPLETE HELPS TO BIBLE STUDY, INCLUDING ALL OF THE FOLLOWING FEATURES

A New Practical Course in Bible Reading, A Treasury of Biblical Information. The most carefully compiled, thorough and authoritative form in which valuable Biblical information has ever been prepared. Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary Containing 180 illustrations, concise definitions and textual references on nearly 50,000 subjects. A Practical Comparative Concordance, with nearly 50,000 references. Four Thousand Questions and Answers on the Old and New Testaments. A valuable Help to all Bible Readers.

STYLES AND PRICES

- 4712. Divinity Circuit (overlapping covers), French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, silk head bands, and silk marker... $5.00
- 812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament. Old Testament Passages alluded to by Christ, various prophecies relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above on 4712 and same large Self-Pronouncing type..... 6.00
- 733X. Holman India Paper, Genuine Morocco, leather lined, silk sewed, divinity circuit, round corners, examine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and helps as above..... 10.65

All styles sent Postpaid at above prices—Thumb Index 50 cents extra

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

Our little children need clothes; they need shoes; they need food. I repeat this in this letter because of the fact that our income this week from our churches and Sunday Schools was only $46.82, and the total from all sources was only $86.37.

We have been your servant, as superintendent of the Christian Orphanage, your church's institution, for seventeen years. We have been happy in the work. It has been a real joy to be with the little children and minister to their needs, because they needed a home like this, and training.

The most interesting part of the work is to take a little helpless tot and see it grow and develop from year to year until it reaches the age limit, and then go out in life and make good. It was helpless and without a chance. It makes good because you gave it a chance through this institution.

It makes my heart glad to go into a man's office and see one of our girls there holding a splendid position as a stenographer or doing some other line of work that carries a responsibility. She is there because you gave her a chance and she measured up to your expectations.

It makes me happy to visit different towns and find our boys holding good positions—positions of responsibility. You, through your Sunday Schools and churches, gave them a chance. They have come up to your expectations.

I have been happy in the work because you have been so faithful to contribute to help us carry on the work and made it possible for us to pay our bills at the end of the month.

This year has been one of our hardest years. The income has been below normal. We have been forced to use up our surplus. This is the first month in the seventeen years that we could not meet our bills in full. It is the first time in our service here that we just felt a little bit blue. We hope and pray that you will do your best in your church and Sunday School at the Thanksgiving season to raise a splendid offering. Set a goal and then strive to reach it.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON, Supt.

REPORT FOR NOVEMBER 2, 1933.

Brought forward $ 9,867.30

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

North Carolina and Virginia Conference:
United, Lynchburg	8.37
Eastern North Carolina Conference:
Pleasant Hill, (J)	2.53
Western North Carolina Conference:
Mt. Pleasant	$ 2.42
Smithwood	1.53
Zion	1.92
	<hr/>
	5.87
Eastern Virginia Conference:
Spring Hill	$.76
First, Richmond	5.08
	<hr/>
	5.84
Valley Virginia Central Conference:
Mayland	$ 1.00
Linville	5.54
	<hr/>
	6.54
Alabama Conference:
Noon Day	$ 1.50
Pisgah	1.45
	<hr/>
	2.95
Georgia and Alabama Conference:
Ambrose	14.72

Special Offerings.

Refund on gasoline by State.....	$ 37.55
Mrs. J. O. Atkinson, for meat....	1.00
Mrs. L. M. Clendenin.....	1.00
	<hr/>
	39.55
Total for the week	$ 86.37
	<hr/>
Grand total	$ 9,953.67

THE SUN'S PULPIT.
(Continued from page 13.)

the Roman government, for in a verse above we are told that "he was chief among the publicans, and he was rich." Or it could have meant just as well that he was a poor, repentant sinner in the latest sense of the word; whatever it meant, let us rejoice that Jesus stopped a journey to Jerusalem to spend the day with him.

And finally, the friendship made a new Zaccheus. For Zaccheus now says, "Behold, Lord, I am going to give half of all I have from now on." Lord Jesus, I am going to be a partner with you. You can take what I have and make it a mighty investment in things that never die. You, O Jesus, are my chance to see that my money is never tainted, or tarnished. I will give five-tenths from now on! And Zaccheus adds: "If I have taken anything from any man by false accusation, I will restore unto him four dollars for every one." And what did the great heart of Jesus say? "This day is salvation come to you, for you are now a true son of Abraham." Our race can be proud of you! Our religion can be proud of you! Our church can be proud of you! Now you are valuable in God's world!

ELON COLLEGE

AN ACCREDITED COLLEGE

of the

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING.

ELON COLLEGE, founded by the Christian Church in 1889, has fully justified the faith and hope of its founders during its 42 years of operation. Its graduates from the four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree, number 980, now living, 122 of whom are in the Christian Ministry and full-time Christian service. The majority of these are members of our own denomination. In addition, 449 are in educational work and are an active influence in the lay leadership of the Christian Church.

THE CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING, and the definite religious atmosphere of the College, provide the very best facilities available for training for religious leadership, and offer the Church its finest opportunity to train the young people of the denomination to assume active leadership both in the ministry and laity of the local churches.

FALL TERM OPENS SEPTEMBER 7th.

Address—

C. M. CANNON, Registrar

Elon College, - - - - North Carolina

Home Atmosphere—Reasonable Rates—Clean Athletics—Christian Spirit

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Congregational-Christian Church.

Central Publishing Co., Inc., is complying with the President's Code

BOARD OF EDITORS.

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D. Editor
E. C. GILLETTE, D. D. Associate
S. C. HARRELL, D. D. Contributing
C. R. RAYMOND, D. D. Contributing
ELISHA A. KING, D. D. Contributing
W. C. WICKER, D. D. Contributing
J. T. KERNODLE Managing Editor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Year $2.00
Six Months 1.00

Trial Subscriptions: Five or more new subscriptions sent in at one time by pastor or president of any church organization, three months for 40c each.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Change of Address: Be sure to give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

All news matter and items to be published in "The Sun" should be addressed to J. O. Atkinson, Editor, Elon College, N. C., and should reach him not later than Friday preceding date of publication. If more convenient, news from Congregational Churches may be sent to E. C. Gillette, Associate Editor, 117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla. Emergency notices will be received at the Richmond Office up until Tuesday of week of publication.

All remittances for subscriptions, renewals, advertising, etc., books for review, and other matters of business should be addressed to J. T. Kernodle, Managing Editor, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

Notices: Obituary and marriage notices, limited to 125 words, published free. All over 125 words, 1c a word, cash with notice. No notices should exceed 250 words.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows date of expiration, and change on label will appear the first or second issue of the month following renewal, provided it was received before the 25th. No other receipt will be sent unless requested. Please notify the Richmond Office if label is not changed as above.

OBITUARIES

AYSCUE.

Miss Margelia Ayscue was born November 3, 1869, and fell asleep June 18, 1933. Age 64 years, 7 months and 15 days. She leaves to mourn their loss, a mother, Mrs. B. F. Ayscue; two brothers, O. W. and T. F. Ayscue; and one sister, Mrs. L. L. Stainback, all of Route No. 6, Henderson, N. C., and life-long residents of Franklin County.

The deceased professed faith in Christ at the age of twelve, and united with the Liberty Christian Church, where she continued to be a faithful and devoted member all of her life. Owing to her poor health, she was unable to attend church very much for the last few years of her life. She was kind and loving to all of those with whom she came in contact, and was much devoted to her home. Indeed her life is missed by the people of the community.

The funeral was conducted by the writer, assisted by Revs. H. E. Crutchfield and C. E. Newman, after which the body was laid to rest in Liberty Cemetery to await the resurrection morn.

May God's richest blessings be upon the immediate family and bereaved ones.

S. E. MADREN.

APPLE.

Mrs. Mary Wagoner Apple was born October 5, 1858, and departed this life October 3, 1933, lacking two days of being 75 years of age. On September 2, 1877, she was married to Mr. Andrew Apple. Eleven children blessed their home, seven of whom have preceded her to the spirit world with her husband.

Those who survive and mourn their loss are: four children, Mrs. H. A. Buisick, Mrs. G. C. Hardy, Mrs. Lester Chrisman, Mrs. F. L. Rumbley; two sisters, Mrs. Isabella Apple and Mrs. Susan Brown, together with many other relatives and a host of friends.

Mrs. Apple was a loving mother and an excellent neighbor, being highly esteemed by all who knew her. She professed faith in Christ in early life, and joined the church at Apple's Chapel, where she remained a faithful and loyal member until death.

She was laid beside her husband in the church cemetery to peacefully await the resurrection morn. The floral offerings were beautiful and the crowd was evidence of her Christian influence.

from the pulpit of her home church.

May the Lord comfort the bereaved.

L. L. WYRICK.

The man who builds up family life, creating a happy home, is playing a writer, assisted by Rev. J. F. Apple, man's part in the world.—Anon.

PIEDMONT COLLEGE

Located in

"The Blue Ridge Highlands"

FALL TERM BEGINS
SEPTEMBER 13.

An accredited college with an enviable reputation for superior classroom instruction, and wholesome student life.

Fully recognized and accredited in its home State, and in such neighboring States as North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Tennessee and others. Standard courses leading to the A. B. and B. S. degrees.

Cost for Board, Room and Tuition, including also Entrance, Activity, and Infirmary fees reduced to $273.50 for the College Year. Personal expenses as low as student and parent wish.

All who seek an "A" grade college training for their sons and daughters in an atmosphere of Christian culture, and at minimum cost, are invited to write for the college catalogue and admission blanks.

Address: DEAN J. C. ROGERS,
DEMOREST, GEORGIA.

Southern Seminary Foundation

(Successor to Atlanta Theological Seminary.)

AFFILIATED WITH

Vanderbilt University

The Foundation and the other Foundations that are affiliated with Vanderbilt University School of Religion comprise the only Interdenominational Theological School in the South. Through this affiliation the students enjoy the rights and privileges of Vanderbilt University.

DEGREES.

Candidates for degrees are required to have completed their college courses.

The degree of Bachelor of Divinity is offered to qualified students who complete the required courses.

Vanderbilt University also offers the degrees of Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy, in accordance with the regulations established in its several departments.

MORE THAN A SCHOOL OF THEOLOGY.

Because of our affiliation with Vanderbilt, our relations with other nearby colleges where our students can take courses without tuition, and the cooperation of the American Red Cross and other social agencies in the city, we prepare students for many types of Christian service.

Come to Nashville, the Educational Center of the South, and prepare for Christian leadership. A Graduate School open to both men and women, with opportunities for self-help.

For information write

WILLIAM JAMES CAMPBELL, President,
330 BUTTRICK HALL, VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY,
NASHVILLE, TENN.

SOUTHERN UNION COLLEGE

FRANK E. JENKINS, Acting President.

WINTER QUARTER WILL BEGIN
NOVEMBER 29th.

* * * *

STRONG FACULTY : STRONG COURSES
LOW EXPENSES : THOROUGHLY
CHRISTIAN.

* * * *

The Adult Education Department is growing rapidly, with over 60 already enrolled.

For prospectus and full information, write

DEAN MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD,
WADLEY, ALABAMA

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Representing the Southeast Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXV.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 1933.

NUMBER 45.

•• THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY ••

Mr. Green Wants Still Shorter Hours.—

Further shortening of work hours is proposed by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, who now advocates 30-hour weeks in NRA codes. Mr. Green reports that unemployment has been reduced between March and September by 3,600,000, leaving something over 10,000,000 yet unemployed. He also estimates that the workers' buying power would have been raised nearly 31 per cent, but for a rise in the cost of living, which has held it down to 20.5 per cent. Opponents of NRA claim that this increased employment was due to the fact that many stocks had been depleted and had to be replenished, regardless of NRA

Johnson Off to the West.—

In an effort to clear away some of the opposition which has been massing against the NRA in the farm belt, General Johnson left Washington for the west on Sunday of this week. Bad weather prevented his using the air service, and he sped as far as Chicago on the Liberty Limited. He expected to be picked up there by an army transport plane for a swing which would include Minneapolis, Des Moines, Omaha, Kansas City, Fort Worth and Louisville. Because of this emergency tour, it was necessary to leave many difficult problems for his assistants, as well as a number of codes for the President to sign. Mean-time not less than three deaths and destruction of thousands of dollars' worth of property have resulted from disorders in the farm belt.

Ford Lays Off 9,000 Men.—

On last Friday the Ford Company announced that all of its workers would have to be laid off, 9,000 at a time, for seven-day periods, in order to bring the average working hours of his plant within the 35-hour maximum fixed by the automobile code. It said that Ford did not wish to do this but was compelled to do so by the "new prohibition against work in this country." The Ford Company has been working a 30-hour week. Mr. Johnson made the following statement shortly after the one issued by Ford: "If Mr. Ford wants to give work to any of these 9,000 men he says he is laying off on a minute, we will be glad to consider an exception permitting him to continue them all in his employment." If an exception is made here, where will exceptions stop? What will Mr. Green say to this?

China Opens Museums.—

According to recent reports the Chinese have recently taken an increased interest in museums. We are told that many of "the lovely old palaces in Peiping are now used for museums, and contain splendid collections, among them Sung ceramics that cannot be approached elsewhere." The Temple of Heaven, also in Peiping, is being restored by a Chinese association for the preservation of ancient objects of art. The Siccawei Museum, located at Shanghai, has had its modest quarters replaced by a magnificent structure, and while primarily concerned with natural history, it "contains a remarkable collection of Chinese arts and crafts, both ancient and modern." The museum movement, while still in its infancy in China, is being backed with much enthusiasm by the younger generation, who have brought back modern ideas from abroad.

Useless Chromium.—

Possibly the most useless of the elements, considered by itself alone, is that crumbly, grayish stuff called Chromium. But mix it with other metals and it becomes one of the most valuable of the elements. Mixed with them it imparts a toughness that makes them almost indestructible. And, further, it adds the most valuable of metallic virtues, enabling them to withstand rust, stain and corrosion. Chrome-nickel-steel is composed of approximately 18 per cent chromium, 8 per cent nickel, and 74 per cent steel. Of it are made flatware, kitchen sinks, milk cans, battleship armour plates, and many other things. Chromium is also used for plating other metals. Copper coated with chromium will not turn green, silver will not tarnish, and iron will not rust. Even platinum jewelry is often given a chromium wash to keep it from turning dark and protect it from scratches.

Insull and the Greeks.—

The refusal of Greek authorities to allow the United States to extradite Samuel Insull, former public utilities magnate, has raised the ire of the State Department. A curt note from the United States Government calls such action a "clear violation of the American-Hellenic treaty of extradition," and says that the Greek position is "utterly untenable." The note cabled to the American Minister at Athens, Lincoln MacVeagh, continues that the Government "finds it difficult to reconcile this unusual decision with the admission of competent authorities that the fugitive committed the acts with which he was charged and that these acts are illegal and fraudulent, both in the United States and in Greece." The note continues that, in the light of this second refusal to surrender Insull to the United States, it must ask for a termination of the treaty between these countries at an early date.

Nature Invented Them First.—

From a recent issue of Popular Science Monthly comes the reminder that nearly all of the "inventions" of mankind have their counterpart in the field of nature. Indeed, had mankind been a student of nature, there is little doubt but that he would have made some of his own devices thousands of years before he did. Since their creation, nature has equipped many of her creatures for chemical warfare. Look under the small stones in damp places and your search will probably sooner or later be rewarded by hearing a distinct "pop" and seeing a tiny cloud of bluish smoke float away. Look closer, and you will see there a small beetle. "Had he been annoyed," we are told, "by one of his natural enemies, the cloud of noxious gas would have allowed him to escape while his enemy was temporarily out of commission." There are some ants that are able to throw a spray of formic acid from their mouths for a distance of five or six inches. Yet man only discovered these means of defense and converted them to means of destruction, during the World War. There are other animals, but not the porcupine, that throw projectiles, and there is a fish found in India, that "shoots" its daily supply of food, by drawing into its mouth a supply of water and expelling it with such force that the insect resting on plants overhanging the water is in dire danger of death, for he rarely misses his aim. The hypodermic syringe has been used by man for only a few decades, yet the snake has made use of it for ages unnumbered. The various insects, including bees, wasps and mosquitoes, use the hypodermic needle with great effectiveness, as many can testify. The hunter's trap has been used for many years, first crude, then becoming more nearly perfected, but throughout many parts of North Carolina can be found a small miniature of man's invention which nature has used for many years. It is sometimes called "Venus' Fly Trap," and woe betide the unlucky insect that ventures on its petals. Boulder Dam is great news to us mortals, but the beaver thinks it nothing new at all, and he dug canals for water transportation long before man conceived the same idea. Our contemporary suggests that one might think oneself safe in saying that man was original when he built the skyscraper. Yet the termites of Africa anticipated him long ago. "These insects, popularly called white ants, construct their buildings of clay. . . Under the domed roofs are floors upon floors of apartments . . . a city under one roof. The Empire State building is only 200 times the height of a six-foot man, while the termite's skyscraper is over 500 times as tall as its quarter-inch builder." Only recently has man made use of the cooling effects obtained by the evaporation of carbonic acid or ammonia. Nature antedated him since creation. We are also reminded that our modern systems of air-conditioning have been used, in principle, since the first bees came into existence, and that "no matter how original a human invention may seem, it is certain that nature thought of it thousands of years ago."

NOTES-PERSONALS

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

The November Missionary Herald carries this item of interest about our own Dr. White: Dr. Matthew J. W. White has gone to Davac to take charge of the mission hospital. Dr. Herbert C. Brokenshire has left, and over a hundred Cagayan people gave him a farewell party, the ladies presenting Mrs. White with a lovely Filipino dress."

Chaplain H. E. Rountree, Mrs. Rountree and Miss Susie Elder, sister of Chaplain W. W. Elder, U. S. N., attended services at the First Congregational Church at San Francisco, October 29th. Dr. Jason Noble Pierce, pastor. Chaplain Rountree says that Dr. Pierce has a great work in San Francisco, a strong constituency, and liberal supporters. He has an attractive and excellent program, and the church is not only taking on new life, but increasing in attendance and membership. Dr. Pierce is popular in this fair city, and his opportunities are great.

Our heartiest congratulations to Rev. A. R. VanCleave, pasctor, Winchester Christian Church, and our best wishes to the bride, formerly Miss Jewell Vester Truitt, known to many SUN readers. The occasion is receipt of the following: "Mr. and Mrs. Egbert Truitt announce the marriage of their daughter, Jewell Vester, to Rev. Albert Ray VanCleave, on Wednesday, November 1, 1933, Glen Raven, N. C. The officiating minister, uncle of the bride, was Rev. F. C. Lester, Norfolk, Va. After November 10th these happily wed will be at home, No. 12 West Clifford St., Winchester, Va."

From many who were present, the report comes that the Young People's Missionary Conference at Holland, Va., Tuesday evening, October 24th, was truly a great Conference—great in attendance, great in program and great in enthusiasm. The audience filled the large auditorium of the Christian Church to capacity. Miss Sarah Daughtrey, Newsoms, Va., presided, and every person on the program responded, being ready and willing, as well as thrilling, for the part assigned. It is reported that the young man, Rev. H. S. Hardcastle, who was not reached on the program until about 10 P. M., held and delighted his audience with his great message. Our young people in the Eastern Virginia Conference are doing things.

Sunday, November 12th, is to be recognized throughout the Protestant world as Reformation Sunday, which commemorates the 450th anniversary of Martin Luther's birth. Every thoughtful reader is prepared to agree most heartily with the Christian Herald in saying: "So vital is the life of Martin Luther, so vivid and present its influence, that with difficulty we realize that he was born four hundred and fifty years ago. Another has said: 'Columbus discovered a new world; Copernicus, a new heaven; Luther discovered a new God, a God gracious for the sake of the work of Christ.' However judged and, indeed, however much despised, Luther is one of the colossal figures of the human race, at once a superlative mind and a superlative spirit. Perhaps one of the most discriminating tributes ever paid to him was voiced by the Catholic statesman, Lord Acton of Cambridge, who said: 'Luther broke the chain of authority and tradition at the strongest link. It was an awakening of a new life. The world revolved in a different orbit, determined by influences unknown before.'"

THE SUFFOLK GAME.

We have a football team at Elon College that we are proud of. The boys not only play ball, but a majority of them are studious and try to do their college work. They are young men of good habits and of clean characters.

Some weeks ago there came an invitation from the city of Suffolk to play the Elon-Randolph-Macon game there. This was unusual, but as this was Elon's home game we had the authority to suggest to Randolph-Macon that they meet us on the Suffolk gridiron; the Randolph-Macon team agreed, and the game was announced for Suffolk and was played Saturday, October 21st. Our team arrived in Suffolk on Friday. The Men's Bible Class of the Suffolk Church, served the boys a delicious and bountiful banquet, then Roy Richardson arranged passes for them to the movies. Saturday morning the whole town was open to the team. Our friends in Suffolk gave them such a cordial welcome, treated them so royally, and in every way made them feel so perfectly at home that they went on the field with the spirit to win, and they did. The score was 26 to 0. This is the first time Elon has ever defeated the Randolph-Macon team. The team is not entirely responsible for the victory, for our friends in Suffolk made a decisive contribution to the game itself. The cordiality and hospitality accorded the team by the friends of the College in Suffolk really inspired the boys to play. It means much to a team to be conscious of a spirit of confidence back of it and this is what Suffolk gave.

I am sending this bit of news through the paper that you may see that this is precisely what Elon College needs. As the friends at Suffolk backed the team in this athletic contest, so we need the friends of the College in Suffolk and everywhere else, to back us in our entire program. We need your encouragement, we need your confidence, and we need your help. We have a good faculty, a good student body, in fact, we have a splendid school, but to attempt to go on without the support of our friends is futile. In fact, if our friends are not willing to go with us, why should we go? Why the effort? The College does not exist for itself, but it does exist for its friends. If we were only serving ourselves we would have no right to serve and would close our doors tomorrow, but we are serving the church and the nation. We are serving our day and generation with the hope that our influence may carry through to generations yet to come. We feel that every member of the Congregational and Christian Churches in the Southeast will want to join with us in this march of service to the church and the nation. We feel that ministers, laymen, and friends alike will now want to sacrifice, if needs be, that their interest may be expressed in a substantial way. We appreciate your sympathy, but now we need your material assistance. You will be given an opportunity to render this assistance in a very definite way. I hope and pray that you may respond.

L. E. SMITH, President.

PROGRAM.

The North Carolina and Virginia Christian Conference will hold its One Hundred and Eighth Annual Session at Union Christian Church, Union Ridge, Alamance County, N. C., November 14-16, 1933. Following is the program for the three-day session:

FIRST DAY—NOVEMBER 14th.

Morning Session.

- 10:30 Conference called to order, by Dr. C. H. Rowland, President.
Devotional service, Rev. L. L. Wyriek.

- 10:50 Roll call of ministers and churches.
11:05 Welcome address, Dr. P. H. Fleming.
Response, Rev. G. C. Crutchfield.
11:25 Report of Program Committee.
Report of Executive Committee.
Report of Treasurer, Dr. W. Waldo Boone.
Appointment of Special Committees.
Reception of visitors.
11:50 Address of President, Dr. C. H. Rowland.
12:30 Adjourn for lunch.

Afternoon Session.

- 1:45 Conference called to order.
Devotional service, Rev. J. F. Apple.
2:00 Report of Committee on Religious Literature, Rev. W. T. Scott, Chairman.
Address—"The Opportunity of the Christian Press," Rev. Dale O. Sander.
Discussion of "The Christian Suu's Problems," led by Mr. John T. Kernodle.
General discussion and vote on report.
3:00 Report of Committee on Stewardship, Rev. Dale O. Sander, Chairman.
Address, Rev. W. T. Scott.
3:45 Miscellaneous business.
Report of Entertainment Committee.
4:00 Adjournment.

Evening Session.

- 7:30 Youth Fellowship Program, Rev. J. Everette Neese, presiding.
Hymn, "Does Jesus Care?"
Prayer, Miss Birdie Rowland.
Poem, "He Careth."
Announcements.
Special music by Elon Singers, directed by Prof. Dwight Steere.
Psalm 142:4, Rev. J. Everette Neese.
Elon Quartette.
Hymn, "Jesus Calls Us."
Benediction.

SECOND DAY—NOVEMBER 15th.

Morning Session.

- 9:30 Conference called to order.
Devotional service, Rev. J. S. Carden.
9:45 Reading of minutes; enrollment of delegates.
10:00 Report of Nominating Committee.
Report of Committee on Apportionments.
10:20 Consideration of Southern Convention Resolutions.
10:40 Report of Home Mission Board, Mr. W. B. Truitt, Chairman.
Address, Rev. Milo J. Sweet.
Receiving of memberships for Christian Missionary Association.
General discussion and vote on report.
11:30 Report of Committee on Foreign Missions, Rev. C. E. Newman, Chairman.
Remarks by Chairman.
Address—"The Responsibility of Righteousness," Dr. J. O. Atkinson.
Report of Woman's Missionary Conference, Mrs. W. P. Lawrence, Secretary.
General discussion and vote on report.
12:30 Adjourn for lunch.

Afternoon Session.

- 1:45 Conference called to order.
Devotional service, Rev. J. L. Neese.
2:00 Report of Committee on Sunday Schools and Christian Endeavor, Rev. G. C. Crutchfield, Chairman.
Address—"Today's Youth and Tomorrow's Citizens," Rev. W. T. Scott.
Ten-minute talks on Christian Endeavor work, Mr. W. T. Dunn and Miss Frankye Marshall.
General discussion and vote on report.
3:00 Report of Committee on Education, Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Chairman.

Address—"Forty-Two Years' Experience in a Christian College," Dr. J. U. Newman.
 Address—"Our College," Dr. L. E. Smith.
 General discussion and vote on report.

4:00 Report of Entertainment Committee.
 Adjournment.

Evening Session.

7:30 Program under the auspices of the Christian Orphanage, Elou College, N. C.

THIRD DAY—NOVEMBER 16th.

Morning Session.

9:30 Conference called to order.
 Devotional service, Dr. P. H. Fleming.
 9:45 Reading minutes. Pastoral and church letters.
 10:10 Report of Committee on Superannuation, Mr. C. D. Johnston, Chairman.
 General discussion and vote on report.
 10:30 Report of Committee on Moral Reform, Rev. J. F. Apple, Chairman.
 Address, Mr. L. P. Rippy.
 General discussion and vote on report.
 11:20 Report of Committee on Resolutions.
 Report of Committee on Memoirs.
 Report of Collectors.
 Report of Auditing Committee.
 Reports of all other special committees.
 Miscellaneous business.
 12:00 Closing service. Final adjournment.

PROGRAM.

Following is the program for the One Hundred and Eighth Annual Session of the Eastern North Carolina Christian Conference, to be held with Wentworth Church, McCullers, N. C., November 21 and 22, 1933:

FIRST DAY—NOVEMBER 21st.

Morning Session.

10:00 Called to order by the President.
 Song service, conducted by Geo. M. McCullers.
 Devotional service, Rev. T. Fred Wright.
 10:30 Enrollment of ministers and delegates.
 Welcome, B. L. Brown.
 Response, Rev. S. E. Madren.
 Reception of visitors.
 Report of Executive Committee.
 Appointment of Special Committees.
 11:00 Address by Rev. Stanley C. Harrell, D. D., President, Southern Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches.
 11:30 Sermon by Rev. George N. Edwards, Pastor, Circular Congregational Church, Charleston, South Carolina.
 Communion, conducted by Rev. E. M. Carter.
 Adjournment for lunch.

Afternoon Session.

1:30 Devotional service, Rev. Robert Kimball.
 Ministerial reports and church letters.
 Report of Treasurer, W. J. Ballentine.
 2:00 Report of Committee on Stewardship, Rev. J. Lee Johnson.
 Discussion and vote on report.
 Report of Committee on Religious Literature, Rev. B. J. Howard.
 Discussion and vote on report.
 2:30 Report of Committee on Evangelism, Rev. M. T. Sorrell.
 Discussion and vote on report.
 Report of Committee on Social Service, Deacon J. A. Kimball.
 Discussion and vote on report.
 3:00 Report of Committee on Apportionments, Prof. L. L. Vaughan.
 Discussion and vote on report.
 Report of Committee on Finance, Deacon K. B. Johnson.
 Business session.
 3:30 Report of Committee on Entertainment.
 Adjournment.

Evening Session.

7:30 Called to order by the President.
 Song service, conducted by Geo. M. McCullers.
 Devotional service, Rev. H. C. Hilliard.
 8:00 Report of Committee on Youth Fellowship, Rev. Robert Kimball.
 Young people's program on Youth Fellowship.
 Sermon, Rev. L. E. Smith, D. D., President of Elon College.

SECOND DAY—NOVEMBER 22nd.

Morning Session.

9:30 Called to order by the President.
 Song service, conducted by Geo. M. McCullers.
 Devotional service, Rev. H. E. Crutchfield.
 Reading of minutes of previous day.
 10:00 Report of Committee on Home Missions, Rev. T. Fred Wright.
 Discussion and vote on report.
 Report of Committee on Foreign Missions, Rev. R. A. Whitten.
 Report on Woman's Missionary Work, Miss Margaret Alston.
 Address—"Our Mission Work," Rev. J. O. Atkinson, D. D., Missiou Secretary, Southern Convention.
 Vote on Foreign Mission report.

11:00 Report of Committee on Education, Rev. E. M. Carter.
 Discussion.
 Address—"Our Educational Needs," Rev. L. E. Smith, D. D., President, Elon College.
 Vote on adoption of report.
 Adjournment for lunch.

Afternoon Session.

1:00 Devotional service, Rev. D. M. Spence.
 Report of Committee on Nominations.
 Election of delegates to the Southern Convention.
 Election of Officers of Conference.
 1:30 Report of Committee on Sunday Schools and Christian Endeavor, C. H. Stephenson.
 Discussion and vote on report.
 Report of Committee on Music, Geo. M. McCullers.
 Discussion and vote on report.
 2:00 Report of Special Committees.
 Report on collection at this session.
 Selection of place for next session of Conference.
 Announcements of Standing Committees.
 Unfinished business, order Annuals, etc.
 3:30 Closing devotional service, Rev. J. A. Denton.
 Adjournment.

Keep THE SUN Shining

Mail Your Subscription TODAY!

Why not send THE CHRISTIAN SUN to your friends for the ensuing year, and they will be reminded weekly of your thoughtfulness and interest?

THE SUN needs new subscribers badly, and the members of the Christian Church in the South need THE SUN just as badly. You who read the paper keep in touch with your church's activities and interests. Wouldn't it be a wonderful thing if you would help others to become acquainted with the things that you know about?

For your convenience we are printing a blank below. Just fill out this blank and pin your check or a money order for $2, for each subscription you wish sent, and we will do the rest.

As a token of our appreciation of your cooperation, we will advance your own subscription date three months for each yearly subscription you send in.

Of course, if it happens that the person to whom you send the paper is already a subscriber, we will advance their subscription one year, and will notify them that you have paid same.

SUBSCRIPTION BLANK.

December....., 1932.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN,
 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.
 Dear Sirs:

Please enter the name of.....
 City....., State....., R. F. D. or St.....,
 on your subscription list for one year. I enclose $.....to pay above subscription and for.....additional ones written on the margin of this blank. Please advance my subscription three months for each of these subscriptions, and send greeting cards to each of these subscribers.

Name

Street or R. F. D.....

City and State.....

My own subscription expires.....

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

ASSOCIATE EDITOR

E. C. GILLETTE

117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla.

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

W. C. WICKER C. REXFORD RAYMOND

S. C. HARRELL ELISHA A. KING

THE PRINCIPLES OF OUR CHURCH.

- (1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
- (2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
- (3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.
- (5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

SOUTHERN CONVENTION AND CHURCH UNION.

The Southern Christian Convention may not have accomplished much, but it has accomplished something. In fact it has accomplished enough to prove its worth and merit and to reveal its value as a going concern. CHRISTIAN SUN readers everywhere are fully aware of that fact, which need not have been stated here but for the impression in some quarters that there is a tendency or disposition to weaken the powers of the Convention and decrease rather than increase its activities and usefulness. To weaken the Convention or in any way destroy its power and usefulness would be to weaken the interests and enterprises of the Convention which have been born and reared through the travail, the suffering, the anxiety and the prayers of those who through the years have been united by the common burden and common task of the Convention.

The Convention owns, by right and title, THE CHRISTIAN SUN, Elon College, all the property and invested interests of the Mission Board, and the Christian Orphanage. The Convention does more than operate these, but these are its very own, both legally, morally and spiritually. All of these need a stronger and ever increasing conventional power to sustain them, and to speak of weakening the Convention or destroying its influence would mean the weakening of these institutions which have made us what we are.

The Convention, in its last session at Burlington, fully realized this fact and took steps to enlarge its borders and to increase its functions and activities rather than restrain, release or in any way disintegrate. To this end, a resolution presented by Dr. I. W. Johnson, secretary of the Southern Convention, was unanimously adopted, to-wit:

"That the charter which reads, 'The name of the Corporation is the Southern Christian Convention, Incorporated,' be amended to read: 'The name of the Corporation is The Southern Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches Incorporated, and this shall be the successor of the Southern Christian Convention, Incorporated.'"

That it certainly cannot be interpreted as excluding any of the powers or organizations heretofore constituting the Southern Convention.

And then to make the matter perfectly clear in detail as being inclusive rather than exclusive, Dr. Johnson's resolution contained Item 2 as follows:

"That the charter be amended so as to provide that any Conference or Association of the Congregational Churches within the States Virginia, the Carolinas, Georgia, Alabama, or elsewhere may be entitled to representation in this Convention on the same basis as Conferences of the Christian Churches, and are hereby invited to so affiliate with this Convention."

That resolution provides for letting others into the Convention, but certainly cannot be interpreted as inviting any to leave the Convention or even suggesting that any withdraw from the Convention.

During the sitting of the session of the Convention that unanimously adopted the above resolution, the following was adopted by the Congregational Advisory Board of the Southeast, then in session at Burlington:

"The Advisory Board, by unanimous decision, endorses the action of the Southern Christian Convention in adopting the following in its morning session on April 28th, namely: (The Johnson resolution as quoted above).

This would seem to make the matter clear, unmistakable, and convincing, that both our Christian constituency and our Congregational constituency unanimously agreed that the Southern Convention should not decrease but increase.

The Executive Committee was instructed to work on plans and details of co-ordination and cooperation, to the end that the hands and the power of the Convention, owning and operating enterprises and property rights of the Southern Convention should not only be safeguarded, but should be increased and strengthened.

No committee that this writer has worked with and no official of our Congregational constituency or of our Christian constituency have expressed the intention or the desire, hope or expectation, plan or purpose of weakening the powers of our Convention or decreasing its influence and its activities.

Through the years our Christian Church has preached, taught and prayed for union, and when the opportunity came for union that opportunity was embraced emphatically and with sincerity, as well as with unanimity of purpose and plan. But at no time and at no place, as far as this writer knows, has there been one official act that would indicate disintegration, dissolution or destruction of power and of property rights and interests. The union of our Congregational and Christian forces did not contemplate disintegration but integration, not destruction but construction, not a weakening of any hand that helped, but the strengthening and the conservation of every interest and enterprise of their constituent bodies and directing councils.

We are builders in the high and holy venture, so far as within us the power lies, in yielding to the petition of our Lord: "Holy Father, keep through thine own name those whom thou hast given me, that they may be one, as we are."

J. O. A.

THE EASTERN VIRGINIA CONFERENCE.

This Conference was meeting last week in its 113th annual session at historic Holy Neck Church. The secretary of the Conference is Dr. I. W. Johnson, who will give to SUN readers many interesting items discussed by the body and resolutions adopted. This writer was particularly interested in the history of the church, and received from that history so many suggestions and such quickened inspirations that he is anxious to pass that history on to CHRISTIAN SUN readers. This sketch was presented to the Conference in its opening hour by a member of Holy Neck Church, Miss Mary Rawles Jones:

"Holy Neck is in the wide open country, Nansemond County, Va., six miles south of Holland, distinguished as a place of worship for more than two centuries. The Friends had a meeting house here as early as 1728, an Episcopal Chapel was built in 1747, at which the following clergymen ministered: Revs. William Webb, John Agnew, Patrick Lunan and John Burgess. Near the close of the 18th century, Rev. James O'Kelly preached here and Holy Neck Christian Church was organized. The present Secretary's book contains complete records since 1829.

"The facts prior to this were obtained from the records of the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference, which conference had its origin in a movement begun at Holy Neck, May 18, 1818, and completed at Cypress Chapel, on September 25, 1819.

"In the early days this church was ministered to by local and traveling preachers. Rev. Joseph Thomas, the "White Pilgrim," preached here in 1808, Rev. Isaac N. Walter attended the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference here and preached in 1848. Revs. Nathaniel Tatem, Francis Williamson, and Burwell Barrett, were traveling preachers of the Eastern Virginia Conference and Holy Neck would of course be included in their itinerary.

"During the last 115 years, Holy Neck has had the following pastors: Revs. Francis Williamson, Benjamin Bullock, Uriah Rawles, Lewis Craven, William R. Stone, Robert Rawles, R. H. Holland, Thomas Bashaw, C. A. Apple, J. P. Barrett, C. J. Ralston, M. L. Hurley, C. H. Rowland, B. F. Black, W. M. Jay, G. D. Estes and N. G. Newman.

"At least four church buildings have been erected at Holy Neck. The Chapel, 50 by 26 feet, built in 1747, was used eighty-seven years. This was replaced in 1835 by a building 45 by 35 feet, which served until 1888, and was succeeded by a much larger and more modern building. The present building was erected in 1916, and is a modern structure with Sunday School rooms and lighting and heating plants.

"There is no certain historic data on the origin of the queer name Holy Neck. W. E. McClenny, Nansemond County historian, believes it is derived from the Indian word "Huskenor," the name of the places where the Indians educated their medicine men. There is a tradition that they had a "Huskenor" near this place.

"Holy Neck has sent out from its membership the following ministers: Revs. Uriah Rawles, William A. Jones, Robert Rawles, R. H. Holland, J. H. Jones and C. C. Jones. It was the mother of the following churches: Hebron (now Holland), Bethany, Franklin, Sarem and Berea (Nansemond). It also contributed members to the organizations of Liberty Spring, Newport News and other churches. The Eastern Virginia Conference has been entertained by Holy Neck eleven times — 1823, 1825, 1834, 1843, 1848, 1854, 1865, 1889, 1904, 1920 and 1933.

(Continued on page 8.)

NEW LIFE AT THE DEAD SEA.

By REV. ELISHA A. KING, D. D.

If you were to ask the average person what he knows about the Dead Sea he would probably tell you that it is in the southern part of Palestine and that it is reputed to be very salt and surrounded by a dreary waste. That is something we pay little attention to. You may be surprised when I tell you that I have had a copy of George Adam Smith's "Historical Geography of the Holy Land" in my library for many years and have consulted it often, but found the pages describing the Dead Sea still uncut! But since I have been on the shores of that sea my interest has been aroused and now I have cut those pages.

My visit to the Salt Sea, as it is called in the Bible, was such a surprise in many ways that I feel I must share these discoveries with you and draw from them a lesson entirely worthy of our consideration.

The River Jordan, which makes the Dead Sea possible, rises in the north at Banias out of a cavern and flows along about thirty feet in a little stream twelve feet broad and three feet deep. No one would ever dream that such a small beginning could become the most unique of all the rivers of the world. There are hundreds of other streams larger, more useful, or more beautiful, but Dr. Smith reminds us that there is none which has been more spoken about by mankind.

The Jordan has many peculiarities, for example, it rises 1,700 feet above sea level, born from the snows of Mts. Hermon and Lebanon, and flows down into the small lake known as "The Waters of Merom." When we say it flows down nothing usual is meant. It falls 680 feet in less than nine miles and then through a delta of its own deposits glides gently into the Sea of Galilee. The beautiful Galilee does not keep this water very long, but passes it on to the Dead Sea sixty-five miles away.

Once upon a time, a long, long time ago, the whole of Palestine was under water. Then great volcanic upheavals came and pushed up the land, but the center fell in, leaving a groove in the bottom of the old sea, a bed or ditch, as deep below the level of the ocean as some of our coal mines are, some of the deepest in the world. The river flows in this ditch varying from 90 to 100 feet broad, a stream of muddy water varying from three feet in depth to ten or twelve at various points. In its rush to the sea its descent in 65 miles is 610 feet. The name Jordan incorporates this phenomenon for it means "Down-comer." Near the lake of Galilee it falls 40 feet a mile.

In commenting on this Dr. Smith says, "There may be something on the surface of another planet to match the Jordan Valley; there is nothing on this." No other part of the earth, uncovered by water, sinks to 300 feet below the level of the ocean. Here in Palestine there is a rift more than 160 miles long, and from two to fifteen miles broad, which falls from the sea level to as deep as 1,292 feet below it at the coast of the Dead Sea, while the bottom of the latter is 1,300 feet deeper still. If there had not risen a diagonal ridge of limestone at the southern end of Palestine during the volcanic period, then there would have been one long lake from the Sea of Galilee to some fifty miles south of the Dead Sea and perhaps including the Red Sea.

The River Jordan meanders through the land flowing 200 miles to make what in a straight line is only 65 miles. On leaving the Sea of Galilee the water is clear, but soon becomes laden with soft marl which it washes away from its banks and deposits in the Dead Sea. Writers describe the river as an unpleasant, foul stream between poisonous banks. However, the water is clear enough when caught in a container and allowed to settle. It is not so muddy as the Missouri River which, as you know, settles in containers and when properly filtered is good to drink. Innumerable thousands of pilgrims have been baptized in the waters of the Jordan. It has been made sacred by Christians everywhere because Jesus was baptized in it. (I brought home a flask of the sacred water for baptismal purposes, perhaps at Easter.)

This fast flowing stream does not look very attractive as I saw it at modern Jericho, just before it entered into the great chasm where it dies. But one who has also seen Damascus and the source of its life, the River Abana (now called Barada) cannot help but contrast the two. Out of the center of a great mountain range the Abana flows eastward through the plains, gives life and beauty to Damascus and then spends itself in the desert lakes. You will recall the incident of the cure of Naaman's leprosy as recorded in II Kings, fifth chapter. A little Israelite slave girl who had been captured in a Palestinian raid, serving in the home of Naaman, the leper, ventured to suggest a cure. She insisted that the Prophet Elisha could cure her master. Naaman went, you recall, and Elisha told him to bathe seven times in the River Jordan and his leprosy would depart. But Naaman was greatly incensed and said, "Surely Abana and Pharpar, the rivers of Damascus are better than the waters in Israel. Could I not wash in them and be clean?" He was angry and drove away, preferring the leprosy to the humiliating act of bathing in the Jordan. It is easy to understand his feelings after seeing the rivers. But Naaman's servants brought him around to reason and he bathed in the muddy water and was cleansed.

As remarkable as the Jordan River is, the Dead Sea is even more so. This remarkable body of water is forty-seven miles long by nine and one-half miles wide. Its surface is 1,300 below the level of the Mediterranean Sea! The ride from Jerusalem to Jericho and the Dead Sea is a most thrilling sensation. You begin at Jerusalem, 2,500 feet above sea level and ride down grade, plunging, as it were, 1,300 feet below sea level. The distance is only twenty-five miles. On the way to this desolate region one drives through a barren, rocky section of Palestine that he never dreamed could exist anywhere in the world. One sees everywhere weird symbols of forsakeness and desolation. Dr. Smith refers to the whole area of the Dead Sea as an awful hollow, a bit of the infernal regions come up to the surface, a hell with the sun shining on it.

The lake is fed chiefly by the Jordan River, but four or five other streams flow into it. Much of this water is salt gathered up from nitrous soil and fed by sulphurous springs. There are hot springs on the bottom and on the shore are found deposits of sulphur and petroleum. The Jordan itself pours into the lake a daily average volume of water estimated at six million tons. The rainfall does not exceed five inches in a year. When Dr. Maltbie Babcock was there the thermometer registered 132 degrees! He said the Sea looked like a beautiful Central Park Lake. Its waters are blue and from external appearances an innocent inland lake.

But this lake contains 11,600 million tons of salt and the Jordan adds to that each year 850,000 tons. There is no outlet. 250 feet below the surface the minerals are heavily saturated. There is sodium chloride, potassium chloride, magnesium bromide and chloride, calcium chloride and calcium sulphate. The water that flows into this huge sink cannot escape by means of a river outlet as is the case in the Sea of Galilee. Some of it climbs up to heaven to be purified through the processes of evaporation where often very severe thunder showers occur. This stagnant water is dead. Fish cannot live in it. Men can hardly swim in it because he floats upon the surface unable to submerge his body in the brine. Ocean water is also salt, but contains only from four to six per cent while the Dead Sea holds twenty-four to twenty-six per cent. Upon this dreary land around this salt sea there were once five cities, viz., Sodom, Gomorrah, Admah, Zebolim and Bela or Zoar.

I have said enough about this natural wonder of the Jordan and the Dead Sea to indicate what one should expect when he visits it. I was prepared to see the worst and to feel depressed. We left Jerusalem about four in the afternoon so as to reach the Sea in the shade of the mountains as the sun sank into the west. As we approached the northern shore near Jericho, I was surprised to observe evidences of a commercial activity that were astonishing indeed. We drove under an arch on which was the name of a new town, viz., "KALLA." Here was a small "building boom" going on with two large tenement or apartment houses nearly completed. Other smaller houses were being erected. There was much activity and the working men seemed to be much interested in their work. There were other kinds of buildings some distance away in the form of shacks. But what struck me as more strange was the "Resort" that flourished there. There was a small central building which maintained an outdoor soda fountain, and a dance floor, an eating pavillion, supplied with Victrola music. There was a section of bathing houses, a gasoline launch for pleasure parties. These activities were carried on by Arabs. Many automobiles were there and a number of people. It is a resort within a two-hour ride from Jerusalem where tired and weary people go for rest and recreation after sundown, returning later in the cool of the evening.

Here indeed was new life at the Dead Sea. I could not help but contrast the ideas, death and life. The reason for this new life is new interest in this salt sea. I was careful to tell you about the chemicals found in this salt water so that you would appreciate the fact that a commercial organization has been formed to extract these ingredients for business purposes. The commercial spirit has struck that region and naturally a new town is the result. It may be that something of the old activity once enjoyed by the cities of the plain will be revived.

One who has a homiletical instinct could not gaze upon these marvelous objects without seeing more in them than just salt and bromide. There spread out before me was a vast area of land, water and marshy ground. If one were to open his Bible at such a spot he could busy himself for some hours re-peopleing this great plain with cities, peoples, kings, prophets and priests. One could devote several hours to the weird story of the tragedy of Masada where the Romans walled up a fortress of refugees from Jerusalem. The whole area is full of ghosts of the imagination, but the one thing that is impressed upon a thoughtful onlooker is that this sea is dead. Living, roaring snow-water from the pure snows of the mountain tops in northern Palestine comes down the world's deepest gorge and plunges into this old sink to perish. It produces a strange feeling in one who has a sense for such things. While it is true that commercial activity is found on its banks, and while the ingenuity of man may extract minerals from the water, it remains true that this sea is still dead.

Some years ago I came upon a little poem that affected me strangely and expressed what I felt to be the teaching of Jesus in regard to the unselfish life. Dr. John Watson (Ian Maclaren of the "Bonnie Brier Bush" fame) once said that

(Continued on page 7.)

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

It will be of interest and concern to the members of the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference to give consideration to the following report of the special committee on Elon College, which was adopted at the recent session held at Holy Neck Church:

"We, your committee on Elon College, beg leave to recommend:

"1. That we, as a Conference, take recognition of, and endorse, a recent action of the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees of Elon College, authorizing a campaign to raise $25,000.00 for Elon.

"2. That our Eastern Virginia Conference assume $12,500.00, as its share; and that $5,000.00 of this sum shall be raised through our local churches, and that the president of the College, himself, be requested to raise the remaining $7,500.00.

"3. That each local church raise its share on the basis of 50 cents per member; and that all monies sent in from the Dollar-a-Month Club, fifth Sunday offerings, special offerings, etc., shall count on the church's share.

"4. That a committee on Elon College shall be named in each church by the pastor, consisting of himself and two or more other members, whose duties it shall be to direct this campaign in his local church, collect the money and send the same through the local treasurer to Elon College.

"5. That we recognize January and February as Educational Period, and the second Sunday in January as Elon College Day.

"6. That the Executive Committee of the Conference be, and is hereby, constituted an Elon College Committee whose duties shall be to see that the above recommendations are put into effect. That the campaign shall begin January 1, 1934.

Signed by the Committee,
John G. Truitt,
W. M. Jay,
Mrs. W. V. Leathers,

Another resolution adopted by the Conference under the consideration of Southern Convention Resolutions, is the following:

"Resolved that we express our thanks to, and desire to cooperate with, the Executive Board and the Committee of Ten of the Convention, in their efforts to unify and coordinate the work of the Congregational-Christian Churches in the Convention, in keeping with all plans previously adopted by the Conference and Convention, looking to this end."

The Committee on Superannuation submitted the following recommendations which were adopted, as amended:

"Your Committee, therefore, recommends:

"1. That the churches of this Conference which have paid their Conference apportionments in full be appreciatively commended for their cooperation and generous spirit.

"2. That all churches that have not raised their apportionments in full be requested to make an additional effort within the next month to meet the Conference requirements.

"3. That the churches of this Conference join in with other churches of the General Council of Congregational and Christian Churches throughout the country in soliciting and receiving a Christmas offering for the benefit of our aged and dependent ministers and their families; that this Christmas offering be received and forwarded to Dr. J. O. Atkinson, who in turn, is requested to forward same to Dr. Lewis T. Reed, Executive Secretary of the Board of Ministerial Relief, 287 Fourth Avenue, New York. Dr. Reed will disburse the same in full according to the request of the Board of Superannuation of the Southern Convention.

"4. That the churches be requested to receive offerings for this fund once a quarter at communion service. Signed L. E. Smith, J. M. Darden, J. A. Williams." I. W. JOHNSON.

THE EASTERN VIRGINIA CONFERENCE.

The Christian churches of Eastern Virginia met in their 113th annual session with the Holy Neck Christian Church, November 1st to 3rd, inclusive. There are forty-six churches in the Conference with a total membership of more than ten thousand. Sixteen of the churches have full time ministers; others are grouped in pastorates. Two of the strongest churches in the denomination are Suffolk and the Christian Temple at Norfolk. The writer has been a member of this Conference for fourteen years and has not missed an annual meeting during this time. The session of this Conference which closed November 3rd, was one of the greatest, if not the greatest session, that I have had the privilege of attending. The church was filled almost to overflowing for every session.

The main topic for the opening day was "Missions." Colonel J. E. West of Suffolk, who is chairman of the Home Mission Board for the Conference, made the report. Rev. H. S. Hardcastle, pastor of the Christian Temple of Norfolk, gave an address on "Home Missions." Dr. W. D. Harward, chairman of the Foreign Mission Board for the Conference, prepared the foreign mission report, which was read by Rev. J. M. Roberts, who is a member of the committee. The Conference always hears Dr. Atkinson gladly and profitably.

Matters of business and routine pertaining to the work of the church and plans for the future, usually occupy the Conference during the day sessions. Evenings are given over to devotional services; usually some member of the Conference preaches. It was a pleasure, indeed, for the Conference to have Rev. John G. Truitt, pastor of the Suffolk Church, preach the first evening. Mr. Truitt was not a stranger to the Conference, he having served the First Church at Norfolk some years ago. We are glad to welcome him back into our midst and to have the benefit of his ministry. For this service, the Conference was delighted with the presence of one of the finest spirits and most loyal souls of our denomination, Mr. Brock Jones. Brother Jones is a member of Holy Neck Church. Nothing gives him greater pleasure than to attend the worship services of his church.

The program for the second day was planned to bring to the attention of the delegates the need for a better type of literature to be read in our homes and distributed to the public. Dr. Chas. Eldred Sheldon, chairman of the committee, read the report and delivered a most interesting and timely address. Dr. Sheldon always brings a worthwhile message. The committee on education presented its report to the Conference for action. Dr. I. W. Johnson is chairman of the committee. His report was prepared, mimeographed, and distributed to the audience. This report dealt largely with the educational funds of the Conference and with determining the rules by which ministerial students belonging to the Conference might receive assistance from this fund. Under the report, which was adopted, no ministerial student may receive aid from the fund until he has successfully passed his first year in college and then he must make an average grade of 80 on all of his work. The total maximum loan available for any ministerial student is $500. The committee felt that this should be a sufficient amount to extend to any one individual, during his college career, preparing for the ministry.

Mr. Aubrey Todd and Mr. Lansing Grainger, who are now ministerial students at Elon College, are members of our Conference. They should be encouraged by the action of the Conference in their behalf. It is hoped that our Conference will be of the greatest help and encouragement to those among us whom God may call into his service.

Pending the adoption of the report, the writer spoke on Elon College and the Christian Church, emphasizing the fact that the College is a child of the Convention and as such, deserves and should receive the whole-hearted support of every member of the church. Dr. J. E. Rawles, of Suffolk, a member of the Board of Trustees and patron of the College, gave a most unusual address. Speaking out of the conviction of his soul and the fullness of his heart, he moved the entire Conference. The report was adopted. A special committee to draft resolutions in behalf of Elon College was then appointed by the president, Dr. N. G. Newman. Rev. John G. Truitt, Rev. Wm. M. Jay, Dr. J. E. Rawles, and Mrs. W. V. Leathers were appointed on the committee and requested to report to the Conference in the afternoon. In its report the committee recognized and approved the plan of the Board of Trustees of Elon College to launch a campaign to raise $25,000.00 for the College and requested our Conference to assume as its share $12,500.00; $5,000.00 of this amount was divided among the churches of Eastern Virginia on an approximate basis of 50 cents per member.

Pending the adoption of this report, Mr. J. M. Darden of Suffolk, out of the goodness of his heart and the generosity of his soul, authorized the writer to draw a draft on him for $600.00 in settlement of a $6,000.00 claim against the College. This statement and expression of interest on the part of Mr. Darden moved the Conference to an emotional expression of appreciation. Not in my experience as a member of the Eastern Virginia Conference have I felt such warm interest in behalf of our College. The people seem to have a feeling of great concern and a mind to care for the College.

The evening of the second day was given over to the Orphanage and the services of worship and devotion. Mr. J. M. Darden, chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Orphanage, gave a most interesting and helpful address and so did Uncle Charlie. His heart is so completely in the work and he is so genuine himself that everyone throughout the church is glad to hear him speak in behalf of the Orphanage.

Rev. R. L. House gave one of the most interesting and unusual sermon-addresses that we have ever had delivered to our Conference. At the close of the second day when everyone was weary of meetings, reports, etc., he held his audience completely, kept them interested, and delivered to them a great sermon. The Newport News church is fortunate in having Brother House as pastor.

There were many other items of great interest to the church brought before the Conference: such as temperance, superannuation, Christian education, etc. The total amount raised by the Conference this year will exceed the amount raised last year, which the writer thinks is most commendable.

As I think of this session of our Conference, it occurs to me that there was a spirit of reverence, devotion, and earnestness that characterized every session. The ones asked to take part on the programs responded cheerfully and effectively. The spirit and fellowships were helpful and uplifting. Everyone interested should be greatly encouraged. May these days of depression result in the conscious deepening of the spiritual life upon the part of the church as a whole. Elon College is greatly encouraged by the steps taken by our Conference.

The Western North Carolina Conference meets Wednesday of this week. L. E. SMITH.

450th ANNIVERSARY OF MARTIN LUTHER'S BIRTH.

In recognition of the key significance of Martin Luther for Protestantism as a whole, the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America has issued a statement describing him as "one of the few really indispensable men in the history of human progress." The Council appeals to all Christians today to "emulate his utter trust in God's grace, simple loyalty to Christ, passionate sincerity of conviction and courage and outspokenness in witnessing." The Federal Council's pronouncement also lays emphasis upon Luther's permanent contribution to Christian thinking through his insistence on "the free exercise of conscience" and declare that our social and international life today must have "a new hold on the essentials of Christianity as set forth by Jesus Christ and those like Luther who have understood his meaning for the world."

The full statement, as issued by the Federal Council under the authority of its Executive Committee, is as follows:

"November 10th of this year of our Lord 1933 marks the 450th anniversary of the birth of Martin Luther, one of the few really indispensable men in the history of human progress. His clear vision of the essential elements of true Christianity, and his fearless courage in standing by his convictions made him God's man and humanity's prophet as no other in his day and few in any day.

"Martin Luther reopened to the individual soul the Holy Shrine of God's presence. He made men see that the eternal realities are to be found through the free exercise of conscience, sensitivity to the indwelling spirit of God and the full personal appropriation by a living faith of the saving and transforming grace of God in Christ.

"The world today is waiting for a revival of genuine religion. Obviously, it is not sufficient either to be tied fast to the moorings of past faith and order, or, on the other hand, to become negative, uncertain and colorless. It is not sufficient to be content with formal orthodoxy, social respectability and business success as evidences of godliness. The economic order, with its dangerous tendencies to serve the private interest of the few, or to rely on force as the only hope of justice for the many; the political order, with its rampant nationalism threatening to break the world into fragments, with the growing determination of the nationalist State to make religion nothing more than a submissive department of the government; the whole social life of humanity, wandering in a desert of disillusionment—all need above everything else a faith by which just men can live, a new living sense of God as the supreme concern, a new hold on the essentials of Christianity as set forth by Jesus Christ and those like Luther who have understood his meaning for the world.

"It has been truly said that 'history shows no kinglier man than this Thuringian miner's son.' Well may all who profess the Christian faith emulate utter trust in God's grace, simple loyalty to Christ, passionate sincerity of conviction, courage and outspokenness in witnessing, which alone can give to the world the spiritual motive without which it now lags and would ultimately fail."

NEW LIFE AT THE DEAD SEA.

(Continued from page 5.)

condensed into one word the essence of sin—of all sin—is Selfishness. We know that a river or a lake has no personal consciousness, though the Egyptians worshipped the Nile and thus attributed to it powers of personal life. Yet children personify material objects and enjoy their phantasy. So do poets and preachers. Perhaps we all do. I do not know who wrote these words, but I do know they convey a great truth:

I looked upon a sea; 'twas bright and blue;
Around its shores were life, and verdant hue.
'Twas fed by many rills with fountain source
On Hermon's snowy peak, whence Jordan's course.

But Galilee's blue sea lives not alone,
Because it gets these streams as all its own.
It lives because it gives its waters blue
To other shores, and then is filled anew.

I looked upon a sea, and lo! 'twas dead,
Although by Hermon's snows and Jordan fed.
How came a fate so dire. The tale's soon told;
All that it got it kept, and fast did hold.
All tributary streams found here their grave,
Because this sea received, but never gave.

O sea that's dead! teach me to know and feel
That selfish grasp and greed my doom will seal.
And Lord, help me my best, myself to give,
That I may others bless, and like thee, live.

To be a Christian is to have new life in the soul. Christ lives in each one who believes in him. St. Paul said, "I am dead, crucified with Christ, that is, as to the old life. Yet, I live." These words reveal the secret of Paul's wonderful life. The new life which Christ gives provides us with power to overcome selfishness. Newness of life was his watchword and to him Christianity was a life, not a philosophy or a profession. "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

Miami Beach, Fla.

When I go window-shopping (when I do!)
I get much comfort out of noting how many things are there that I don't want.—Milton Lee.

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5 1/2 inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

- Nos. 01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges $2.75
- 01603 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, head-band, book-mark $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4 3/4 x 1 1/4 inches.

Specimen of Type
2 Take the sum of all the of the children of Israel, years old and upward, thro

- No. 1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine Bibles $2.95

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5 1/2 x 3 3/4 inches.

Specimen of Type

2 My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God. 10 Mercy and truth gathered; righteousness kissed each other. 11 Truth shall spring

- No. 02112. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6 3/4 x 4 3/8 inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, "O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed. 10 For a day in thy courts is better

- No. 07523x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07523x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x $5.00

OUR LEADER

Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8 1/2 x 5 1/2 x 1 5/16 inches.

Specimen of Type

8 ¶ Jē-hōi'-ā-chīn was 6 years old when he began t

- No. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, leather lined to edge, silk round corners, red under edges, silk

A UNIQUE GIFT Bible

With Basket Weave Binding

The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges. With references. Printed on Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible. $5.50

- No. 03255x
- As No. 03255x, with concordance. No. 03276x $6.50

Oxford TEACHING Bibles

Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date helps conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7 1/4 x 5 x 1 3/8 inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave; death shall feed on th

- Nos. 04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and hand-some Bible $4.35
- Oxford India Paper Edition Only one inch thick.
- 0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary

PRAYER.

Lord of life, open our hearts to receive the Spirit. Feed thou our souls lest they perish. May no moments of the Sabbath Day, given as it is for bodily rest and spiritual refreshment, be thoughtlessly or mistakenly dissipated. Turn myriads of feet to thine earthly courts and grant that there the yearning soul may find not emptiness nor confusion nor perversion but, through the imparting by God's ministers of his holy truth, may all be strengthened and constrained to walk no longer after the flesh but after the Spirit. For this we humbly pray. L.

POWER OF CHRISTIANITY IN THE WORLD.

World statistics of religious bodies provided by the Lutheran Almanack for 1933 show that out of a world population of 1,958,213,801, the Eastern Orthodox Church has, in round figures, 127¼ millions, the Roman Catholic Church 297¾ millions, Lutherans 62½ millions, Baptists 11½ millions, Congregationalists 2 1-3 millions, Episcopalians 11 2-3 millions, Methodists 15½ millions, Presbyterians 16¼ millions. The total Christian population is 588 millions. Mohammedans number nearly 219 millions and the Jews 15 millions, leaving 166 millions of the world's population unclassified. The aggregate expenditure of the Foreign Missionary Societies is over $50,000,000.

But the power of a movement cannot be seen by its statistics. Nineteen hundred years ago, there were only five hundred Christians. They now number nearly one-third of the human family. They will increase more rapidly in the future. Christianity has always made progress by its message, which is salvation by Jesus Christ. Even those who may not believe are forced to admire him, and admiring goodly numbers go on to believe, to love, and to follow.

There is every encouragement to keep all of the Christian work full-tide, both at home and in foreign lands. In these doubtful days, the opportunity is greater than ever, for the gospel reveals the true way and gives man the life worth living. All the future belongs to Jesus Christ. He will win mankind as his own and there is no church so small or insignificant that it may not be a factor in this divine conquest.

The figures above reveal the fact that there are many seams in Christ's Kingdom. Yet the different bodies are tied together in him. If all seek to fulfill his will they cannot be against each other, but their influence will unite in one great stream, which will be the river of life for all races and nations.—Editorial in Christian-Evangelist.

MISSIONARIES' SERVANTS.

Industrious people in this country who do most of their own work sometimes wonder why it is necessary for missionaries to employ servants. In a recent issue of The Christian Advocate, Edward C. Perkins, a Methodist medical missionary in China, gives an interesting statement of the case from the missionary point of view. He mentions a number of "servants" whom we employ in America which are lacking in China, such as running water, adequate plumbing, abundant electric light and power, and the telephone. In contrast to this, in the part of China where he works it is necessary to pump the drinking water out of a sixty-foot well, boil it, and then put it back down in the well again to get it cooled. Because of the limited hours in which electric current is available, and its weakness, it is necessary to have oil lamps for supplementary light. Servants' legs function in place of the telephone. The purchase of food is done by long continued bargaining, at which the foreigner is uniformly less successful than a Chinese servant. Further complications are that a house cannot wisely be left without someone in it, while travel is a slow and laborious process. As even high-priced servants do not cost more than three or four dollars a month, they are a time and labor saving investment whose expense is justifiable.—John R. Scotford.

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.

WEEK ENDING NOVEMBER 4, 1933.

Sunday Schools.

Previously acknowledged	$ 417.98
Hank's Chapel, Pittsboro, N. C.	2.71
Wake Chapel, Fuquay Springs, N. C.	3.68
Damascus, Corapeake, N. C.	2.00
Holland, Va.	5.00
Wakefield, Va.	3.02
Henderson, N. C.	4.24
Pleasant Grove, News Ferry, Va.	5.67
First Christian, Greensboro, N. C.	18.32
Suffolk, Va.	25.00
Rosemont, Norfolk, Va.	10.95
Liberty, N. C.	6.23
Windsor, Va.	9.90
Fuller's Chapel, Henderson, N. C.	2.50
Total	$ 517.20

Individuals and Churches.

Previously acknowledged	$ 461.80
Windsor, Va.	10.00
Pleasant Grove, Bennett, N. C.	3.00
Total	$ 474.80

Specials.

Previously acknowledged	$ 91.17
The United Church (Cong'l-Christian), Winston-Salem, N. C.	179.25
The United Church (Cong'l-Christian), Winston-Salem, N. C.	200.00
Mrs. Siddle Boozer, Ohatchee, Ala.	1.25
Miss Anna Jim Boozer, Ohatchee, Ala. ..	1.25
Ladies' Aid Society, Richland Christian Church, Richland, Ga.	5.00
Ladies' Class, Rosemont Sunday School, Norfolk, Va.	12.50
Elm Ave. Church, Portsmouth, Va.	100.00
Total	$ 590.42

Summary.

Previously acknowledged	$ 1,004.95
Sunday Schools, Regular	99.22
Individuals and Churches	13.00
Specials	499.25
Total to date	$ 1,616.42

J. O. ATKINSON, Secretary.

Times are too hard to take the church paper? But America has more than twenty millions of automobiles and so many of them are out on the road that parking space hereabout is hard to find. The price of gas consumed in one ordinary "Sabbath day's journey" would buy the paper for a year with something left over to send it a while to someone else —Wesleyan Methodist.

TREASURER'S REPORT.

Following is the quarterly report of the Woman's Board, Southern Christian Convention, for the quarter ending September 30, 1933:

Receipts.

Valley of Virginia Central Conference:
Women's Societies	$ 16.75
Young People's Societies	13.39
Cradle Roll Societies80
	30.94
Alabama Conference:
Women's Societies	$ 41.74
Young People's Societies	4.00
Cradle Roll Societies	1.00
	46.74
North Carolina Conference:
Women's Societies	$1,090.91
Young People's Societies	108.45
Willing Workers' Societies ..	58.61
Cradle Roll Societies	65.23
	1,323.20

Eastern Virginia Conference:

Women's Societies	$1,609.00
Young Peoples' Societies	448.00
Willing Workers' Societies ...	202.00
Cradle Roll Societies	55.00
	2,314.00
Total	$ 3,714.88

Disbursements.

Home Missions:
Porto Rico—
Kindergarten	$ 61.02
General Work	417.22
	$ 478.24
Elon Orphanage	30.00
Mountain Work in Virginia ..	200.00
Ocean View Church	200.00
Raleigh Church	700.00
South Norfolk Church	400.00
	2,008.24
Foreign Missions:
General Mission Work	1,628.60
Total	$ 3,636.84

Respectfully submitted,

MRS. H. S. HARDCASTLE,
Treasurer.

EASTERN VIRGINIA CONFERENCE.
(Continued from page 4.)

"Holy Neck has church property, including a ten room parsonage, valued at $15,000.00. It has a well organized and active Sunday School, a Youth Fellowship movement, and missionary societies from the Women's to the Cradle Roll, all doing good work. It has a membership of 333, employs a pastor for his full time, and has for the past nine years raised an average of $4,177.00 per annum. The average attendance at the regular preaching services is about 100 in winter and about 120 in the summer. The church has no debts and always meets its obligations."

With such historical background and sacred influence, the 113th annual session could be nothing less than mighty and moving in its effect. Those who attended this session of the Conference will long recall not merely the informative and stirring addresses that were delivered, but the sweet fellowship and blessed communion that prevailed and bound this body together and sent its members and visitors back to their homes and churches with hands strengthened for greater efforts and hearts made stout for higher and holier tasks, that yet abide for those who are to carry on the work for 113 years to come.

J. O. A.

A Story for the Children

JERRY'S TEMPERANCE SOCIETY.

Jerry Saunders sat by the roadside one summer afternoon wondering where he should go and what he should do. On the ground, between his bare feet, was a small bundle containing his few belongings. A mile or two down the road was the county house which he had left only a short time before. Looking in that direction with tearful eyes, his mood changed, and with clenched fists, he exclaimed:

"Yes, whisky did it, an' I'm down on whisky! I'll fight it as long as I live."

He had reason to hate it, for because of it he was homeless and alone. Once he had a home in the little village; father and mother had loved and cared for him, and he had gone to school like other boys. Then came to the village a place where liquor was sold. The inevitable result followed. The home was taken from them for debt, Mr. Saunders died, and wife and mother soon followed, and Jerry was left alone. He had collected his clothes and a few things his mother had given him, and started out with no definite idea, except to get away from the unpleasant surroundings, and to do what he could against the thing that had saddened his young life. And so we find him sitting by the roadside. A voice broke in on his meditation.

"Say, young feller, what ye lookin' so sorry about?"

Jerry looked up to see who was speaking. A short distance away, under a clump of trees, sat a red-faced young man. His appearance was like a tramp.

"Ain't worryin' bout nothin', are ye?" he questioned again. "'Cause 'tain't no use to worry. Take things easy, like me."

"But I haven't any home or folks or place to go," replied Jerry, his voice breaking.

"Oh, ye haven't! Well, I haven't, either," said the tramp, coming over to where Jerry was, and sitting down beside him. "My home is wherever I happen to be."

Jerry forgot his bitterness for a moment, and turned to look at his odd companion. It was a good-natured face that he saw beaming down upon him.

"Do you drink whisky?" he asked, as he noticed the red face of the stranger.

"Well, not often, young feller, 'less somebody gives me somethin' to drink. Ginerly I don't have nothin' to buy whisky with. I've no particular hankerin' for whisky, but I can't exactly say I've jined the temperance society."

"I have," asserted Jerry, stoutly, "I just hate whisky, an' I'm goin' to do all I can against it."

"That's right, keep to yer principles," responded the other, "As I say, I aint no teetotaler myself, though I ought to be, but I ain't goin' to do anything to get anybody else to drink. If I'd had a sober father, I might have been somebody, and not trampin' around the country like this."

The stranger's experience was something like his own. "Say," Jerry said, "I've got a temperance pledge in my pocket. My mother gave it to me. I've signed it and I'm going to get all the names on it I can. Will you sign it?"

"Yes, I will," said the stranger. "I don't care for whisky, nchow, an' if jinin' a temperance society will do any good, I'll do it. I reckon my name ain't no particular good on a bank check, but it might count here."

Jerry produced the pledge card and a pencil and the new temperance recruit added his name: "Samuel Radcliffe."

"There," he exclaimed, "good-bye whisky! Jerry Saunders and Sam Radcliffe have this day formed a corporation of two agin ye. Now, young feller, what's yer history, and where are ye bound for?"

Jerry told his story to the stranger, who listened attentively.

"Well, Jerry—I'll call you that, an' my name is just plain Sam after this—we're going in here—after for temperance an' industry. We're both tramps for the time bein'; let's travel on an' see what turns up."

Jerry picked up his bundle, and the two started down the road. Near evening they came out by a strip of forest where the road ran through more open country. A short distance away stood a comfortable farmhouse.

"That place over there looks invitin'," remarked Sam. "It might be we'd get somethin' to eat if we asked for it."

They walked up the lane that led around to the back of the house. A middle-aged man with a kindly face was seated under a tree mending harness.

"Well," he questioned, "what can I do for you?"

"You might give us a job and somethin' to eat to pay for it," answered Sam.

"Tramps, I suppose."

"Was once, but not now. We're a temperance society, this boy an' me," explained Sam. "Ye see, we're travelin' over the country tryin' to down whisky an' make an honest livin' at the same time."

"Yes, I've got a temperance pledge right here in my pocket," said Jerry, earnestly. "Won't you sign it, and promise never to drink any more whisky?"

For a moment there was no reply from the farmer. He looked from one to the other, and then began to laugh.

"Well, if this isn't the most astonishing thing I ever heard of—a tramp temperance society. Yes, indeed, you shall have some supper. Come with me!"

He led the way toward the house, entered the kitchen, where a pleasant-faced matron and two girls were preparing the evening meal.

"Here, Mary," said the farmer, "I've brought you a whole temperance society, and I want you to give its members all they can eat."

He related the story as he had heard it, and the travelers were soon seated at the table, and, while they were eating, Mr. Johnson, the farmer, asked them many questions as to their history and what they desired to do.

"Well, boys," he said finally, "I can give you something to do, if you want work. As for your temperance society, that's all right, too! This evening I want you to go over to the schoolhouse with me. The young people in this district are going to hold a debating society there this evening. They are going to discuss the question: 'Which does the most harm in the world, war or whisky?' Now, I think you can give them a few facts, so I want you to go."

There was an animated meeting in the schoolhouse that night. At the conclusion Mr. Johnson introduced his proteges, and the audience listened to one very original and very brief temperance address.

"I ain't a-goin' to make a speech, 'cause I don't know how," began Sam, "but I just want ter say its a heap better to be killed by an honest bullet in an honest out-and-out war than to be stuffed full of whisky an' die like a drunkard—that's what I think. Folks have some respect fer a man while fightin' fer his country, but when a man dies a drunkard, the whole community's glad he's gone. I'm down on whisky for all time to come, an' this boy an' me have started out to do all we can agin it. Now, Jerry, you pass that pledge, an' get Mr. Johnson to sign it first."

And Mr. Johnson did sign it, as did everyone present. And so, in the little country schoolhouse, Jerry's temperance society began its work, and, through its influence, the two wanderers soon found permanent employment and a home.—Youth's Temperance Banner.

TITHING LITERATURE.

Pamphlets—Bulletins—Tabloids.

The famous Layman Literature distributed by Thomas Kane for fifty years.

The lowest-cost, most generally-approved and most widely distributed Tithing Literature in print. Non-sectarian, non-controversial, practical and readable.

"Winning Financial Freedom," is the title of an extremely convincing pamphlet which is proving very popular. Sufficient quantities to supply the members of his official board will be sent free of charge to any minister requesting this pamphlet, together with a descriptive price list of our literature.

For 80 cents, samples of all our pamphlets, bulletins and tabloids on various phases of tithing will be added.

When you write please mention THE CHRISTIAN SUN, also give your denomination.

THE LAYMAN COMPANY,
Chicago, Illinois.

SUBSCRIBERS TO THE CHRISTIAN SUN

These Pens are of standard make, and will give good service. If you are in need of a Fountain Pen, order from us. Postage paid and Pens guaranteed by the manufacturer.

MEN'S PENS—Capitol, $2.00; Mercantile, $2.50; Cardinal, $3.00.

LADIES' PENS, $2.00.

COMBINATION OFFER—To a new subscriber or for renewal, $2.50, either Gentleman's (Capitol) Pen or Ladies' Pen, with guarantee of manufacturer. And to "Sun" subscribers, not in arrears, any Pen at one-fourth off. Address: THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 EAST BROAD STREET, RICHMOND, VIRGINIA

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."

REV. F. C. LESTER, Editor, 505 S. Main St., Norfolk, Va.

"IN REMEMBRANCE OF ME."

People like to be remembered. One of the joys of Christmas time is to receive greetings from old friends. Perhaps we have almost forgotten them, but they remember and send us a card. Then we live again in the happy days that are gone with these old friends who are tried and true. When sickness comes, or grief, it is the visit of friends that brings the benediction. Gifts given and received are simply a method of remembering. On my desk are certain trinkets which are constant reminders of those who cared enough to want to be remembered.

Jesus wanted to be remembered when he was eating his last Passover Supper with the men whom he had loved. He took bread and broke it and gave to them asking them to eat of it in remembrance of him. Ever afterward broken bread would remind those men of the broken body of the Lord Jesus. Whenever they drank from the cup there would come back to mind the spilled blood of the Master. For nineteen hundred years Christian men and women have gathered about their church tables eating bread and drinking from a cup in remembrance of Jesus.

The memory of Jesus presents to our minds the greatest example of what a person should be. When we think of him we know that it is not wealth, scholarship, nor social position which brings us into fellowship with the highest and best; it is our own will, like that of the blind beggars, lepers and sinners who met Jesus on the highways of Palestine. When we think of his death and hear him say from the cross concerning those who crucified him, "Father, forgive them," it is impossible for us to do the evil which was in our hearts to do. "God was in Christ reconciling the world unto himself." Remembering Christ brings to us strengthening fellowship which makes us know that we can draw upon the resources of all good people and of God himself to sustain us in the time of trial.

We show to the world that we remember our Christ by sharing in the Lord's Supper, by seeking his fellowship and by doing his work. Remembering the Lord Jesus will bring us to the highest, purest and most useful life which it is possible for us to live.

TEN COMMANDMENTS TO SUCCEED.

Cultivate the habit of persistence which is the most necessary element of success.

Determine to do the thing you dream of doing.

Plan the first step to be taken. There begin.

Believe in yourself, believe in the thing you mean to do, and be proud of it.

Do not be turned from your purpose by your failure, nor expect too much at first. Achievement is not a swift ride in an elevator; it's a hot, hard climb up a long, steep hill.

School yourself to disregard discouragements and opposition, and to get along, if need be, without praise or approval.

Do not interfere with others nor try to direct their lives. You'll find it all you can do to make a success of your own.

Cut out all ill humors from your disposition, and disabuse your mind of the thought that you are being slighted or overlooked.

Finally, be of a cheerful countenance. More battles have been lost by frowns, and more successes won by the narrow margin of a smile than this old world dreams of.—United News.

IF YOU REMEMBER.

Whether the roses bloom or not,
Whether the wild birds sing,
If I may know I am not forgot,
That will be spring.
Whether the skies are blue or gray,
Whether the sun may shine,
If you are thinking of me today,
It shall be mine.

If you remember me, that is all,
All that I ask of fate,
Whether the shadows rise or fall,
Or soon or late.
Whether the winds shall beat about
My head, or the winds be fair,
I shall not sorrow, shall not doubt,
If you but care.

Whether the world be cold or kind,
Whether men praise or blame,
All that I ask is just to find
One man the same.
All that I need the whole day through,
Whatever the day may be,
Is to remember, and know that you Remember me.

—Douglas Malloch.

EASTERN N. C. YOUTH TO MEET.

News has just reached this office that the youth of the Eastern N. C. Conference are to share in the Conference program. The president of the Conference, Dr. W. C. Wicker, has appointed J. Ray Dickens and Robert Kimball to plan the program for this meeting. These two young preachers will doubtless plan a fine program and will suggest certain plans for young people's work which may be very helpful to those who may attend. The Conference will meet November 21st and 22nd at Wentworth Christian Church, near McCullers, N. C. Announcement of the program will doubtless be made in advance but every young person in the Conference should begin to plan to attend this meeting. When the officials of the Conference give a challenge to the youth to share in the work of the church, the youth should respond by doing everything possible to accomplish the tasks which are offered them to do. Usually youth responds in a better way than older people expect, and I have high hopes that this will be so in Eastern North Carolina.

A PROGRAM FOR PEACE.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC FOR NOVEMBER 12

Scripture: Isa. 2:1-5; Eph. 2:13-18.

Daily Bible Readings.

Nonday, Nov. 6.—"Good Will Necessary." Luke 2:8-14.

Tuesday, Nov. 7.—"Non-Touchiness." Psa. 119:165.

Wednesday, Nov. 8.—"Plan for Peace." Heb. 12:11-14.

Thursday, Nov. 9.—"Work for Peace." Matt. 5:9.

Friday, Nov. 10.—"Pray for Peace." Ps. 122:1-9.

Saturday, Nov. 11.—"Messianic Peace." Zach. 9:9, 10.

A Worship Program.

Theme: "Honoring Our Father by Loving His Children."

Call to Worship—"Hear this, all ye peoples; give ear, all ye inhabitants of the world, both low and high, rich and poor, together." "Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity." "Come together with joy and singing, that we may see and taste this good thing."

Hymn—"Rejoice, ye pure in heart."

Prayer, followed by a fitting hymn, sung softly—"Lord Speak to Me that I May Speak" or "Into My Heart."

"If thou shalt hearken diligently unto the voice of the Lord thy God . . . the Lord thy God will set thee on high above all nations of the earth."

"For thousands of years or more, nations have thought it advisable to take the best men of one country and send them out to hack to pieces the best men of another country.

"Today a large number of us question that war is not the way to settle international difficulties. 'Disarm!' is our cry; and many distinguished conferences have met to consider disarming.

"Driving the nations to disarm are five forces: economic necessity, humanitarian necessity, the convictions of millions of Christians, the certainty that wars have never settled anything, the fact that alternatives to war (conciliation, arbitration, and judicial settlement) are now available. But on the other hand there are powerful forces that are driving us on to arm to the teeth. First, the feeling of national security and desire for it. Governments have the responsibility of maintaining the independence, rights, honor and safety of their respective peoples. Every nation has the desire to be ready 'just in case something should happen.' Second, a passionate nationalism, such as seems to be sweeping Germany now. Third, the philosophy that war is inevitable.

"They say that Christ said there would be wars and rumors of wars. Well, that was right. What else could he say? But he did not place his stamp of approval on war, and he did not say that there always would be wars and rumors of wars. He was prophesying, not recommending. If you believe that war is inevitable, that belief is based on the principle that men cannot be changed. And if men cannot be changed, what place has Christ in the world? War is not inevitable if men do not want it.

"A fourth force against disarmament is the traffic in arms and munitions. Greedy men who amass millions through the manufacture of munitions are doing everything in their power to block our peace program. Fifth, many believe that we should not disarm until we get rid of the underlying causes of war. Sixth, our peace machinery is as yet weak. There is widespread skepticism as to the practical value of the League of Nations, the World Court, and the Kellogg-Briand Pact.

"What is the way out? Some say, 'Put the love of Christ into the hearts of men, and you will solve the problem.' Others say, 'Perfect the League of Nations and the World Court, build peace machinery.' Both are right but neither is right alone. The spirit of peace in the hearts of men is the basic factor, but with the spirit of peace we must have the technique of peace. Peace is not possible with either element lacking. As young people, let us strive to understand these instruments to promote peace (the League of Nations, the World Court, The Kellogg-Briand Pact, the Disarmament Conference) and watch what they are doing.

"Young people may pledge themselves not to take part in any war of aggression. 'I pledge myself to God not to take part in any war of aggression under any circumstances, even if I must rot out my life in prison or face a firing squad.' If Christian Endeavorers will take this pledge, the kingdom of God is not far away."

Waste of muscle, waste of brain,
Waste of patience, waste of pain,
Waste of manhood, waste of health,
Waste of beauty, waste of wealth,
Waste of blood and waste of tears,
Waste of youth's most precious years,
Waste of ways the saints have trod,
Waste of glory, waste of God—war.

—Studdert Kennedy.

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE.

PAUL IN MACEDONIA.

LESSON VII—NOVEMBER 12, 1933.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved."—Acts 16:31.

LESSON TEXT: Acts 15:36-17; 15.

TIME: A. D. 52.

PLACES: Philippi, Thessalonica and Berea.

In last Sunday's lesson Paul and Barnabas were found at Jerusalem fighting for religious freedom. After their victory there they returned to Antioch together with companions from Jerusalem who had decided to go with them in order to strengthen the bond between the Jewish and Gentile Christians.

Paul's missionary urge would not let him abide in Antioch, and he proposed to Barnabas that they visit Asia Minor and the churches which had been established on their first missionary journey. They disagreed, however, because of Barnabas wishing to take John Mark along, and finally separated, Paul taking Silas, while Barnabas went to Cypress with John Mark.

Paul and Silas went north-west through Syria and Cilicia, and finally arrived at Troas. While at Troas a vision appeared to Paul at night of a man of Macedonia, saying: "Come over to Macedonia and help us." And Paul tells us that as soon as he had received the vision he hastened to answer the call. He embarked at Troas and the next day reached the Macedonian seaport of Neapolis. Thence he went on to Philippi, the chief city of Macedonia.

Philippi was a most important city, with a wealth of historical background. It had been named for Philip, the father of Alexander the Great, but at this time was a "colony," that is a recognized city of Rome, whose citizens enjoyed Roman citizenship.

Paul preached here and founded the first Christian Church in Europe at this place. The "Man of Macedonia," however, turned out to be a woman, for Lydia, a seller of purple—a woman-merchant of importance—was the first convert made in Europe, and the first to be baptized on that continent. She became a steady follower of the Master and a blessing to the church.

Paul and Silas were arrested here for curing a demented girl who had become a source of revenue to her masters. They were thrown into prison, but were released by an earthquake which shook the foundations of their prison and loosened their chains. They saved the life of the prison keeper who would have slain himself thinking they had escaped, and preached in his home, where he and his entire family were converted and baptized.

Afterwards, leaving Philippi, they went on to Thessalonica where they also founded a church, and later to Berea, where the gospel was gladly received.

ASHEVILLE PASTOR ORDAINED.

Upon the invitation of the Congregational Church at Asheville, N. C., an ecclesiastical council was held October 24th at the church for the ordination of John Rae Chapman to the Christian ministry and as pastor of that church. Most of the churches of central and western North Carolina were invited to the council, which organized with the election of Dr. John Brittan Clark, of Tyron, as moderator, and Rev. Arthur Swartz, of Albemarle, as scribe. The paper by the candidate was most satisfactory and the council voted to proceed to the ordination.

The program for the ordination was as follows: Scripture lesson, Rev. Milo J. Sweet; sermon, Rev. Edwin C. Gillette; prayer of ordination, President Henry C. Newell, of Piedmont; welcome from the church, Mr. Edward D. Burchard; welcome from the churches of Asheville, Rev. R. F. Campbell, of the Asheville Presbyterian Church; welcome from the city, Mayor Wambolt; charge to the pastor, Dr. W. Knighton Bloom; charge to the people, Dr. J. Brainerd Thrall, pastor emeritus of the Asheville Church.

The whole program was of high order and in addition to the regular program was a delightful supper with Dr. Bloom as master of ceremonies, and with brief talks by several guests. Rev. Milo J. Sweet read several from a long list of congratulatory messages which had been received by the church and by Mr. Chapman.

Mr. Chapman graduated from Williams College in 1930 and from Union Theological Seminary in New York in 1933. He is well known in the southeast where he has spent several summers as a student worker. Last summer he was student pastor at the Asheville Church which resulted in his receiving a call to the church, which he accepted, having begun his service following his graduation from the Seminary. He has already made an auspicious beginning of his ministry and is greatly beloved by the people of the church.

YOUTH TRAINING.

Dr. Clarence A. Vincent, Winter Park, Fla., is taking the children of the Sunday School on a tour through the church between the hours of Sunday School and the morning service. The first day he explained the architecture of the church building, the wide open door, the vestibule, the auditorium, the classrooms, the study and the choir room and loft and their significance in the work of the church. This excursion will be followed next Sunday with an explanation of the musical service—the motor, a view of the inside of the large Austin organ, the hymns and special musical compositions, and of the chimes and echo organ.

These two excursions will be followed on two successive Sunday mornings with explanations of the financial method of the church, both as to church expenses and benevolences, and how the income is used, and on the last Sunday morning the young folks will be taken to the study and the preaching and pastoral work of the minister will be outlined to them.

When Dr. Vincent was asked how in these changing days, he has stayed so long in his different pastorates, his answer was, "the patience of the people, the preparation of new sermons, and a sympathetic touch with all ages in their many needs." He is reading a brief story to the young people who attend the morning service. Many of these are written by himself. It has been his custom every five or six years to make some changes in the church plans and work to freshen the church's life and summon more of them to share in his work. X.

NOTICE.

The Committee on Education of the North Carolina and Virginia Christian Conference will be in annual session at THE CHRISTIAN SUN office, Elon College, N. C., at 3 P. M., Monday, November 13th. Let those interested take notice and meet the committee promptly.

J. O. ATKINSON, Chairman.

I have noticed that the fellow who blows his own horn is generally out of tune with all the rest.—Milton Lee.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 16-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $4.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3/4 x 5 3/8 Inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3 3/4 x 5 3/8 Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps $2.50

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5 3/4 x 8 3/4 Inches and 1 3/4 Inches Thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With Concise Bible Dictionary, combined Concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Lavanant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold $4.75

RED-LETTER EDITION.

With All the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands; title stamped on side and back in pure gold $3.25

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations; special book for Sunday Schools 95c

Any of the above Bibles sent postpaid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street

Richmond, Virginia

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy

MONDAY.

IN SILENCE.

"But the Lord is in his holy temple; let all the earth keep silence before him."—Hab. 2:20.

Grant me this boon, O God; that in thy house I may remember that this is a house of prayer where I have come to worship thee. Let not my thoughts stray to unworthy things. Let me not dwell overmuch on the beauty of the sermon nor on its poverty—if such there be—nor overlook its spirit nor miss the message thou wouldst have me receive from it. Let me keep silence before thee, in body, mind and spirit, that I may hear thee speak. Let me know myself to be in thy presence and be still.—Amen.

Let us be faithful to his word.

TUESDAY.

LIFE BEYOND DEATH.

"If a man die shall he live again?"—Job 14:14.

Job gave utterance to the general feelings of the human soul. Humanity has never been able to part with the possibility of life after death, and so we go on hoping for the blessedness of that longing being fulfilled. The great Doctor Hastings said that he believed that death to the body would be like the release of a sentry from duty who had long stood on guard; he thinks of it as a delightful Providence releasing him from a responsibility and a burden, and allowing him to go back into the reality and the warmth of friendship.

With the Christian, however, his hopes take a more daring flight, for he thinks of God as yearning for him, as one whom he would be like and with whom he would be free from sin and temptation and thus eternally happy. He believes that God and heaven would be incomplete without his servants.

Though bleak winds blow and earth grows drear,
When Autumn's golden days depart,
We scan the skies
With fearless eyes,
For Winter brings no light to him
Who holds the Summer in his heart.
Though death's chill shadows hover near,
And billows wild about us roll,
In faith's sweet calm
We left our psalm,
For death no terror wears for him
Who mirrors heaven in his soul.

—Mary B. Sleight.

Prayer—O Lord, we are compelled to feel that something is needed to complete our lives, and we know that thou art the only one who can complete it. Without thee, our highest faculties are without function or meaning, but with thee,

The facts of life confirm the hope
That in a world of larger scope—
What here is faithfully begun
Will be completed, not undone.

—T. E. Ruth.

Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

THE MEANING OF THE FEAR OF THE LORD.

"The secret of the Lord is with them that fear him."—Psa. 25:14.

The knowledge of every great teacher is not for every pupil who sits under his instruction. That knowledge may be intended for every one, but that pupil who is of receptive mind gets it. The professor scans his pupils and is alert to discover one or any who is eager for the subject and applies himself to learn it. When found, the teacher has exquisite joy in revealing his knowledge to that person. At last when he has imparted all he knows about the subject he will look at his pupil in silence and say, "I have told you all I know... You have nothing more to learn from me." Thus a pupil enters into his teacher's secret. But bear in mind, that it is not to the critic or to the careless person whom this knowledge is imparted. The secret of the knowledge is "with them that fear."

How often we see this clause in the Bible: "Fear of the Lord."

"Ought ye not to walk in the fear of God."

"The fear of the Lord fell upon the people."

"The fear of the Lord is clean, enduring forever."

"The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom."

"The fear of the Lord is to hate evil."

"The fear of the Lord is the fountain of life."

"Fear God and keep his commandments."

"Learn to fear the Lord."

"He will bless them that fear the Lord."

This word "Fear" is not the same as our word "fear"—to be afraid of; but it is the Biblical word for entering into the spirit of, eager to learn of, desiring to know of, etc.

And so to know God and the things of God is just as natural a procedure as to know arithmetic, and obtaining knowledge of God is dependent upon the same sort of desire and the application of one's self to acquire it. It was for this reason that Jesus said, "Blessed are they that hunger and thirst after righteousness, for they shall be filled."

Prayer—Our Father, Great Teacher of the universe, with whom is all knowledge, all wisdom, all love and blessing, forbid that we shall forget thee, our teacher, and miss thy soul life. Thou art the giver of every good gift and the blesser of pious souls. Grant unto us desire, earnestness and zeal for all thy life, to seek thee daily and find thee.—Amen.

THURSDAY.

OUR MORNING STAR.

"The opening of thy words giveth light; it giveth understanding unto the simple."—Ps. 119:130.

A true devout soul had a very invigorating experience the other day. He had undertaken a noble piece of work to the glory of God. He had prayed it through, he had the promise, and he labored hard. When it was all over, it appeared to be a complete failure and that the devil had had a lot to do with it to make it so. This servant of God lapsed into a "set of the blues," was discouraged and almost dejected. In the secret of his closet he prayed and asked God for some assuring answer. As he opened the Bible, his eyes fell upon these words, "Go thy way, eat thy bread with joy, and drink thy wine with a merry heart; for God now accepteth thy works." What a beautiful answer! And the manner in which it came superceded any accident. With this assurance this soul was satisfied.

It is a marvelous thing how the Holy Spirit of God can bring to one such saving power in so small a portion of his knowledge. It is God's power unto salvation. There is something about the Bible that is complete in its separate parts and sometimes one sees all of its truth in one text as one may see all of the sun's image in a single dew-drop.

How true is he who said, "If a man were so driven about on the seas of difficulty that he could have only a board or broken piece of the ship, it would bring him safe to land."

Prayer—O Lord, our God, we are floating along life's sea and often it seems only floating. Do then, Lord, cast thy illuminating rays across the dark, rocky ocean of time, and guide our anxious souls to the desired haven. In Christ's name, we ask it.—Amen.

FRIDAY.

A SUFFICIENT REASON.

"The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul; the testimony of the Lord is sure making wise the simple."

"The statutes of the Lord are right, rejoicing the heart; the commandment of the Lord is pure; enlightening the eyes."

"The fear of the Lord is clean, enduring forever; the judgments of the Lord are true and righteous altogether."—Ps. 19:7-9.

This Scripture is a challenge to follow the perfect law, to seek the highest wisdom, to look for the most genuine and enduring pleasure, to know those judgments that make us most intelligent; to keep ourselves pure, and look unto an end that is righteous in the sight of all.

Prayer—Our Father, can we be all this? Is this thy call unto us today? Yea, even more than these. We would be thy servants in all things in every step of the way. Grant us this blessing this day. We ask it in the name of Jesus.—Amen.

SATURDAY.

PERISHABLE PAPER.

"They endure for a while."—Read Mark 4:10-20.

It is well known that most of the paper on which our newspapers are printed will crumble to dust in a few decades. The same fate attends most of our books, letters, and manuscripts. It is suggested that paper should be sold openly as belonging to one class or the other.

And we should know, also, whether the fabric of our life, our thoughts and words and acts, is perishable or permanent. What is to be the net result of our time and effort? If they are spent on perishable things, such as banknotes and men's applause and worldly pleasures, the net result will be nothing or worse than nothing. But if our life is lived with God, it will share his everlastingness.

Prayer—Ancient of days! We wish to ally ourselves with thy timelessness of endurance. We wish to reach out far beyond these fleeting moments. May the eternal years of God be ours.—Amen.

AMOS R. WELLS.

SUNDAY.

CAMERA CONVICTIONS.

"And Ahab said to Elijah, hast thou found me, O mine enemy?"—Read I. Kings 21:17-22.

Ahab was entirely ready to keep on with his sin so long as it was not discovered. It has been so in a smoke-abatement campaign in St. Louis. Householders have denied that their chimneys were pouring out black smoke until confronted with moving pictures of their chimneys in continuous action. Then they have promised to reform, begging that no more pictures be taken.

Sin hates publicity; and it would be well, before yielding to any sin, to think of the moving-pictures of the recording angel which are continually taken of our deeds and words and even of our thoughts and feelings.

Prayer—But may we refrain from wickedness, our Father, not because we fear any of its consequences, but because we love the good and wish to please thee.—Amen.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Preacher

THE GLORY OF THE CHURCH.

By JOHN G. TRUITT.

"Lift up your heads, O ye gates; and be ye lifted up, ye everlasting doors; and the King of glory shall come in."—Psa. 24:7.

I have just been reading again the stories of brave men. These new stories on the lives of the world's heroes serve only to remind us that there is yet a big place in the heart of the world for heroism. My heart thrills as I read their stories. And I ask myself the question: "What something is there common to each of them?" My answer is: "God." And what is the gate to God? I answer again: "The church." These men have won glory, and each of them recognizes the church as the great molder of the right spirit within, opening the gates of glory for them. "Lift up your heads, O ye gates; and be ye lifted up, ye everlasting doors, and the King of glory shall come in."

I covet the heroism of the earth for my Christ, for he is the world's greatest hero! He is far more than that. But whoever sets his head and heart to a great task, never willing to give up until it is finished, follows in the footsteps of Jesus of Nazareth. There is so much mediocrity in most lives. Millions have come and gone, and there is little left or done to remember them by. But not so, Jesus; nor those who have found their standards of living in him. True, all who have found their standards of living in Christ have not been heroes of world-wide fame; nay, but they have all been heroic in the hearts of many and have thereby added to the aggregate glory of God and the beauty of living. Thousands should have had a fame they have never known, and tasted a glory they have never tasted. They have been content to be little, content to be weaklings, content to fritter away their hours and days, and weeks, and months, and years with being nothing and doing less. But not so, Jesus; and not so for the true, and faithful adherents of his church, who have faithfully followed its teachings.

Who can be nothing, a weakling, a failure and find Jesus Christ as his comfort, strength, and example? What hours did he fritter away? What opportunities did he miss? What excuses did he make? He would be King of the spiritual world, knowing that out of it came the grace and glory of every other realm. And as a boy he began to know his Father's business, and set himself about it. He began early to learn the requirements of the King of glory, and one by one to meet them. The best of all past laws and prophecies he made his own, by the most faithful application; and the finest and greatest of all past heroes he studied and emulated the virtues within them. He looked like Elias or Jeremiah, or one of the prophets. He knew the Law and the Prophets and thought through to the very end of what their implications might mean, and them set himself the task of being that, and of teaching that. There was not a realm of life's vast territory that he did not seek to conquer for God. Take the realm of morality! How he walked, a King, above all its subterfuges! Take the realm of business! His is the goal of the finest Christian thinking business men of the day. Take the political realm! He is Master of the world's council tables for all time to come. Take the realm of the home! What home has not been glorified by his spirit and presence, if he has been allowed within? Or take the realm of religion! What devotees have there been like the devotees of this lowly Nazarene? Carry this as far as you will, and you will find that wherever gates have been opened for the coming of the church, it has been opened for heroism, and glory, and goodness, and God!

Briefly allow me to give you a picture of some angles which you have already seen: A struggling little country home, many miles over unimproved roads to the nearest railroad station, or market; fields small and poor, and forests fast being burned for fire wood; surrounded by small unproductive farms, with the farmers domiciled in bunglehouse log houses of the crudest type. A little school-house with one room several miles from some of those homes; high schools and colleges unheard of so far as any young people of the vast untutored neighborhood attending any of them. A young, hard-working, depressed, poor farmer woman begins to get interested in a little white church, and to feel the responsibility of motherhood. She carries her little boys to church. They asked questions. She begins to read the Bible. And to attend church in earnest. The husband and father did not object, and was always willing for the little boys to attend the Sunday School. With difficulty which only poor, poverty-ridden mothers can understand, she kept the little fellows attending Sunday School, and began to hold family prayers in her trembling, inexperienced manner. The gates are opened; heads are lifted; glory begins silently but surely to creep in. Three of the sons become ministers and school men; and the daughter a graduate of the Alma Mater of her brothers! And for good measure, the father, now proud of the past achievements, is a loyal member and active devotee of the little white church with the significant name, meaning Mountain of God's House—Mt. Bethel.

"Lift up your heads, O ye gates; and be ye lifted up, ye everlasting doors; and the King of glory shall come in."

DIVINE ACTIVITY IN BUSINESS.

By A. L. LUCAS.

It would seem that it is the universal belief that business is sick. The condition is world-wide rather than local. I do not believe that business is bad. Fear is prevalent of late—the fear of business failure. We can eliminate this fear by knowing the spiritual fact that there can be no failure in good; that the only real business is God's business, and therefore immune to failure. In God's business there is no inertia, fear, lack, or stagnation.

One of the false claims concerning this subject is that there is a so-called law of recurring cycles of good and bad business, of boom and depression, and that now we are passing through a depression. In reality there can be no recurring cycles of good and bad business. Real movements do not go back and forward, like the pendulum of a clock, from good to bad, but abide. If we would be sure that our business is not subject to failure, let us be sure that the character of that business and the manner in which it is conducted entitle it to the protection of the law of good. The test is whether it is rightful service to God and man.

It has been said that Jesus was the best business man who ever lived. We hear him saying,

"I must be about my father's business." He had no thought of failure.

Let us, then, make sure that the motives and methods of what we call our business, are fixed on a high plane of service and follow the example of the Master. In no other way can sickness in business be cured and success assured. It was Jesus who said, "Man shall not live by bread alone." This is as true of business as of man. Business is a failure when its goal is material; but it will succeed if the spirit of the Golden Rule governs its activity.

One of the best known demonstrations of the Master was the feeding of the multitude as recorded in Matthew. They took the loaves and fishes and gave to the multitude. God's law of perfect activity governs business and he inspires and rewards right motives.

I hear men saying that our economic structure has failed. I do not think so, but unless we can lay aside the garments of greed from the thing that we call business, we shall surely dig a pit from which there can be no escape.

COMMUNION WARE.

Individual Service.

ALUMINUM.

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A.

- Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses $7.00
- Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses 6.75
- Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses 6.50
- Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
- Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
- Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim..... 1.60

(For Silver Plated Plates, see under No. 90.)

SILVER-PLATED.

The Silver-plated Ware is of the very highest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.

- Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses.$22.00
- Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85. 11.00
- Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85... 16.00
- Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling). $22.00
- Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90.. 16.00
- Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90. 14.00

- Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow Rim.....$ 9.00
- Bread Plate No. 4—Broad Rim..... 9.00
- Filler—Silver Lined..... 6.00

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street

Richmond, Virginia

The Christian Orphanage - Elon College, N. C.

MAIN BUILDING—CHRISTIAN ORPHANAGE

The first child was admitted January 28, 1907. Since that date 377 children have been admitted.

The Christian Orphanage appeals to every Church and Sunday School for a Special Thanksgiving Offering during the Thanksgiving Season—Remember the fatherless children!

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

In this Thanksgiving season and until the Thanksgiving Offering is taken in your church and Sunday School, let us use this slogan: "We are going to do our part." Then after the Thanksgiving Offering is taken in your church, let us have this feeling in each and every heart: "We have done our part." We feel sure and feel it down in our heart that every church and Sunday School, knowing the dire distress in which the Orphanage is placed at this time on account of the falling off in income for the last two years, will do their very best to raise a splendid Thanksgiving offering this year.

We had the pleasure and joy of attending the Eastern Virginia Conference which met November 1st and it was a real joy to meet the good people there and to shake hands with so many friends and be so cordially welcomed. We love to go to Virginia. It is always an inspiration to mingle with the good people of that Conference because they are a most wonderful people.

We sometimes have discouragements and sometimes the clouds look dark and we cannot see beyond. But when we receive a letter like this the sun shines brighter and the pathway is more cheerful. This young lady came over from Virginia to visit us "Homecoming Day," the first Sunday in September, and on our return from the Eastern Virginia Conference I found a letter on my desk from which I quote part of what the good woman had to say:

"I have been planning to write you ever since I came back from Elon. I just had a wonderful time there, and met some of the nicest boys and girls. One girl I especially liked. I wrote and thanked her for letting us use her room. I invited her to our home, too.

"I came home all pepped up about the Orphanage. Last Sunday I made a report to the Junior Department, also downstairs to the men and women, or rather the Sunday School. The next Sunday I spoke to the Intermediate Department.

"I was mighty glad to have a chance to go to Elon. When you see for yourself, it's different. The boys and girls are trained so grand. In Sunday School I told the folks I thought lots of us needed to take lessons. You must be a wonderful man to train them so."

When the people visit us and get this kind of impression, and then write us about it, we appreciate it and it is very encouraging to us. We wish that people from every church in the Southern Convention would visit the Orphanage and see what we are trying to do here, and the kind of work we are trying to do, and I feel sure they would be more interested.

Let every church do its best raise a splendid Thanksgiving Offering this year.

Yours in the work,

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON, Supt.

REPORT FOR NOVEMBER 9, 1933.

Brought forward $ 9,953.67

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

North Carolina and Virginia Conference:

Greensboro, First$ 9.62

Pleasant Grove 5.66

15.28

Eastern North Carolina Conference:

Wake Chapel$ 6.38

Good Hope 1.00

Henderson 3.84

Western North Carolina Conference:

Liberty	1.57
Eastern Virginia Conference:
Suffolk	$ 25.00
Mt. Carmel	10.42
Holland	5.00
Windsor	29.58
	<hr/>
	70.00

Special Offerings.

A friend, support Thelma Long..	$ 20.00
T. B. Roberts, support children..	24.00
F. C. Owen, gdn, James Brown..	12.50
Colgate Palmolive Peet Co. for
Octagon coupons sent in.....	50.95
	<hr/>
	107.45
Total for the week	$ 205.52
	<hr/>
Grand total	$10,159.19

HOGS OR MEN?

The hog owners of Gadara wanted Jesus Christ to depart from their country when they found that their hogs were drowned in the sea, although a man was saved from the power of devils. They preferred their hogs to the man. They were afraid that if Christ stayed in Gadara that they would lose more hogs (Luke 8:26-37). Jesus said, "What doth it profit a man though he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" (Mark 8:34-38). With all the warnings it seems that the human family keeps on after money, and this world's goods, and the joys thereof, in preference to that which is for our eternal good. Virtue is sold, honesty sacrificed and confidence betrayed, because men love the world and the lust thereof, while they let others starve and go to hell and finally reach hell themselves.—Free Will Baptist.

ELON COLLEGE

AN ACCREDITED COLLEGE

of the

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING.

ELON COLLEGE, founded by the Christian Church in 1889, has fully justified the faith and hope of its founders during its 42 years of operation. Its graduates from the four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree, number 980, now living, 122 of whom are in the Christian Ministry and full-time Christian service. The majority of these are members of our own denomination. In addition, 449 are in educational work and are an active influence in the lay leadership of the Christian Church.

THE CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING, and the definite religious atmosphere of the College, provide the very best facilities available for training for religious leadership, and offer the Church its finest opportunity to train the young people of the denomination to assume active leadership both in the ministry and laity of the local churches.

FALL TERM OPENS SEPTEMBER 7th.

Address—

C. M. CANNON, Registrar

Elon College, - - - - North Carolina

Home Atmosphere—Reasonable Rates—Clean Athletics—Christian Spirit

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Congregational-Christian Church.

Central Publishing Co., Inc., is complying with the President's Code

BOARD OF EDITORS.

- J. O. ATKINSON, D. D. Editor
- E. C. GILLETTE, D. D. Associate
- S. C. HARRELL, D. D. Contributing
- C. R. RAYMOND, D. D. Contributing
- ELISHA A. KING, D. D. Contributing
- W. C. WICKER, D. D. Contributing
- J. T. KERNODLE Managing Editor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

- One Year $2.00
- Six Months 1.00

Trial Subscriptions: Five or more new subscriptions sent in at one time by pastor or president of any church organization, three months for 40c each.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Change of Address: Be sure to give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

All news matter and items to be published in "The Sun" should be addressed to J. O. Atkinson, Editor, Elon College, N. C., and should reach him not later than Friday preceding date of publication. If more convenient, news from Congregational Churches may be sent to E. C. Gillette, Associate Editor, 117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla. Emergency notices will be received at the Richmond Office up until Tuesday of week of publication.

All remittances for subscriptions, renewals, advertising, etc., books for review, and other matters of business should be addressed to J. T. Keruodle, Managing Editor, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

Notices: Obituary and marriage notices, limited to 125 words, published free. All over 125 words, 1c a word, cash with notice. No notices should exceed 250 words.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows date of expiration, and change on label will appear the first or second issue of the month following renewal, provided it was received before the 25th. No other receipt will be sent unless requested. Please notify the Richmond Office if label is not changed as above.

OBITUARIES

LOUDERBACK.

Benjamin H. Louderback was born November 7, 1890, and died August 30, 1933, aged 42 years, 9 months and 23 days. Brother Louderback was a son of Deacon John S. Louderback, of Newport Christian Church, who passed to his reward about eight months ago. He was also bereft of his wife about five months ago. He is survived by his aged mother, and by two sons, two daughters, three brothers, and two sisters. Deceased was held in high esteem by the Newport Church, of which he was a member, and by a host of neighbors and friends. Funeral services were held at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, September 1, 1933, conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. C. L. Hunt, pastor of the church there.

A. W. ANDES.

SUITTS.

George Washington Suitts was born May 30, 1842, and fell asleep in Jesus October 15, 1933, at his home in Rockingham County, N. C., having reached the ripe age of 91 years, 4 months and 15 days.

He is survived by the following children: Miss Sallie Suitts, Wentworth, N. C.; Mrs. W. T. Moore, Wentworth, N. C.; Mrs. John Cummings, Reidsville, N. C.; Mrs. P. T. Klapp, Elon College, N. C. eleven grandchildren, seven great-grandchildren and many friends.

Brother Suitts spent his entire life at his home place, save the years in the Civil War. He was a volunteer, a member of Sealer Boyd Camp. He professed faith in Christ in youthful days and lived consistent to that profession until the end of his earthly life. First, he joined Mt. Bethel Christian Church, later transferring his membership to Howard's Chapel as a charter member, which was organized in 1882. In a short while he was ordained a deacon by Dr. W. S. Long to which office he was always loyal and faithful as long as physical strength permitted.

On June 11, 1871, Miss Sarah K. Sharpe became his companion, to which marriage six children were born, two having preceded him to the glory world. Funeral services were conducted by his pastor, assisted by Revs. J. L. Neese and H. C. Caviness, at New Lebanon Church. Exceptionally moral and wide awake to Christian principles and advancement of church enterprises. May the Lord graciously comfort the relatives.

L. L. WYRICK.

PIEDMONT COLLEGE

Located in

"The Blue Ridge Highlands"

FALL TERM BEGINS

SEPTEMBER 13.

An accredited college with an enviable reputation for superior classroom instruction, and wholesome student life.

Fully recognized and accredited in its home State, and in such neighboring States as North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Tennessee and others. Standard courses leading to the A. B. and B. S. degrees.

Cost for Board, Room and Tuition, including also Entrance, Activity, and Infirmary fees reduced to $273.50 for the College Year. Personal expenses as low as student and parent wish.

All who seek an "A" grade college training for their sons and daughters in an atmosphere of Christian culture, and at minimum cost, are invited to write for the college catalogue and admission blanks.

Address: DEAN J. C. ROGERS,

DEMOREST, GEORGIA.

Southern Seminary Foundation

(Successor to Atlanta Theological Seminary.)

AFFILIATED WITH

Vanderbilt University

The Foundation and the other Foundations that are affiliated with Vanderbilt University School of Religion comprise the only Interdenominational Theological School in the South. Through this affiliation the students enjoy the rights and privileges of Vanderbilt University.

DEGREES.

Candidates for degrees are required to have completed their college courses.

The degree of Bachelor of Divinity is offered to qualified students who complete the required courses.

Vanderbilt University also offers the degrees of Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy, in accordance with the regulations established in its several departments.

MORE THAN A SCHOOL OF THEOLOGY.

Because of our affiliation with Vanderbilt, our relations with other nearby colleges where our students can take courses without tuition, and the cooperation of the American Red Cross and other social agencies in the city, we prepare students for many types of Christian service.

Come to Nashville, the Educational Center of the South, and prepare for Christian leadership. A Graduate School open to both men and women, with opportunities for self-help.

For information write

WILLIAM JAMES CAMPBELL, President,
330 BUTTRICK HALL, VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY,
NASHVILLE, TENN.

SOUTHERN UNION COLLEGE

FRANK E. JENKINS, Acting President.

WINTER QUARTER WILL BEGIN
NOVEMBER 29th.

* * * *

STRONG FACULTY : STRONG COURSES
LOW EXPENSES : THOROUGHLY
CHRISTIAN.

* * * *

The Adult Education Department is growing rapidly, with over 60 already enrolled.

For prospectus and full information, write

DEAN MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD,
WADLEY, ALABAMA

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Representing the Southeast Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXV.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 16, 1933.

NUMBER 46.

•• THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY ••

An Airplane Census.—

Chicago leads in the number of airplanes credited to American cities, with 287 planes, according to statistics published this month by the Department of Commerce. New York took second place with 246, while third and fourth places were held by Los Angeles and Detroit with 159 and 122, respectively. These figures do not include military planes. There was a survey made of 16,600 towns and cities, and it was found that 17 per cent of these boasted one or more planes.

Synthetic Castor Oil.—

A clipping from a daily paper tells us that castor oil can now be made synthetically. Let children beware. This latest product of the chemists' skill is said to be even better for some purposes than the natural oil of the castor bean. It has no pronounced coloration; it greatly retards rancidity in soaps, and can be used in toilet creams and face powders as well. And last, but not least, this synthetic castor oil can be produced in unlimited quantities at a low and stable price.

Will Our Oil Supply Last?—

Only recently two men were discussing the above question. One seemed greatly perturbed as to the waste of this most important natural resource. Yet there seems to be little need for worry on the part of those living today, for Dr. Gustave Egloff, of Chicago, is the authority for the statement that there is enough petroleum in known deposits to last for 30 centuries, at the present rate of consumption. There are about two million acres of oil wells producing in the United States alone, and there are 1,100,000,000 acres of possible oil land that has not yet been developed. The ratio of developed to undeveloped land in other countries is more than likely still smaller.

Athearn Leaves Butler University.—

Dr. Walter Scott Athearn, who, two years ago, left his place as dean of the Boston University School of Religious Education, to become president of Butler University, was ousted from his job last week by action of the university's board of directors. No reason was given for his removal, the board simply citing their right to remove presidents at will. Under Dr. Athearn's administration, Butler was readmitted to the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, of which it had formerly been a member, and there was also secured a $2,000,000 addition to its funds. Dr. Athearn took quite an active interest in the rebuilding program at Elon after the fire, and was consulted especially in regard to the Religious Education Buildings and program.

Michigan Becomes Rallying Point for Drys.—

The first State to vote for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, has become recently the birthplace of a new political party and a rallying point for a new onslaught against the liquor traffic. The Commonwealth Party, Howard L. Holmes, active prohibition worker of Lansing, tells us, is an outgrowth of the old Prohibition Party, built on "broader and stronger" lines. He says: "The drys of all parties can no longer hold out the excuse of objecting to the old name. If the people who want a government which will actually provide for the general welfare, will unite in their support of the Commonwealth Party, there can be no question about the future of the nation nor of civilization when the common man is given a square deal." Mr. Holmes believes that out of the confusion which now exists in most States because of lack of political leadership, will come a solidified national organization which will ultimately settle our social problems as they should be settled. Besides the organization set up in Michigan, work has begun in California, Tennessee, Connecticut and Ohio. It is expected that other States will follow.

Skyline Drive to Be Approved.—

The construction of Skyline Drive along the crest of the Blue Ridge Mountains from the northern part of Virginia to the Great Smoky Mountain National Park in North Carolina and Tennessee, has received the approval of Secretary Ickes, and its construction will undoubtedly be carried out if owners of property through which it will pass will donate a right of way of 200 feet in width. Governor Pollard, of Virginia, says: "The land is rough mountain top and is not adaptable to any other use. Those who present the Federal Government with the 200-foot strip which it needs, will find their adjoining property greatly enhanced in value. The success of the plan now depends on the hospitality of the owners of the rights of way." If the rights of way are obtained, the construction of the highway will mean the spending of around $12,000,000 in the territory through which it goes. Not only will this help greatly in the relief of unemployment, but it will add untold value to this territory.

Keeping Perfect Time.—

The writer broke his watch last Saturday. It is a good watch when it is not broken, and keeps fairly accurate time. But the substitute he is wearing gains about half an hour a day. He's possibly lucky that it gains instead of loses. Nevertheless it makes him long for one like the clock Uncle Sam has. This clock was made for the United States Naval Observatory. It is used to regulate all official clocks, and by it are correlated the time signals sent out daily from the government radio broadcasting stations. The clock is said to be so perfect a time-keeper that it will not lose or gain more than one second in five years. A contemporary tells us that it operates on a very unique principle, which it describes thus: "A slender bar of crystal quartz a few inches long is suspended in an air chamber, in which the temperature is kept constant within a few hundredths of a degree. The arrangement of the quartz bar in the chamber is such that air vibrations react on it to produce what is called an 'acoustic feedback'." We are glad to learn how Uncle Sam keeps his time, and hope that our readers are glad, too. We wish we knew how to make this watch that we are now wearing do the same thing.

A Good Samaritan.—

There died in the city of Richmond last Friday evening a Negro man well along in his seventies. Some thirty or more years ago, he was a waiter in a local hotel, and a member of a small Negro fraternal organization that had become a liability to its promoters. This of whom I am writing saw a vision. With the small sum of thirty-five dollars, which he borrowed, he started out to reclaim this organization and to help his race. By diligent application he placed this organization on its feet and accumulated a surplus of several thousand dollars. Then the True Reformers Bank failed, and with it went a great part of the savings which his industry had made possible. It was at this time that the writer first met this man. Years of honest toil, and the results wiped out. But was he downcast or complaining? Not he! Twenty years more passed away. The year 1930 came, and it found an organization that had paid out two-fifths of a million dollars to over 4,000 of his race in times when they most needed aid. And when other fraternal organizations were beginning to totter and fail, it stood like a rock before the blast. Its ledgers showed an invested surplus of $100,000.00. The three years that followed have not been so easy. Even the best investments have not been too good, but he showed more sagacity and foresight than the average, and the ship which he piloted sailed steadily on. In poor health for the past few years, he still worked on after being parted from a much loved wife. Now he has gone to rejoin her in the land beyond the blue. This Grand Secretary of the Good Samaritans, was a Good Samaritan indeed and in truth. Truly his race shall call him blessed. Though his skin was of darker hue, yet never whiter spirit soared forth to meet his Maker. The name of James W. Thompson will live in Richmond as that of a Good Samaritan to all with whom he came in contact.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY. 1955.
Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches.

NOTES-PERSONALS

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

Owing to the great amount of timely material available this week, we are compelled to omit the Children's Story. We regret this necessity exceedingly, and assure our youthful readers that their feature will be resumed in next week's issue of THE SUN.

Dr. Plyler, of the North Carolina Christian Advocate, feels editorially that: "A new day of freedom has dawned for us in the Carolinas in our fight against liquor and the liquor traffic. The pulpit still has men in the pews who stand for the welfare of our boys and girls in the effort to hedge them about from the curse of drink." Amen.

Rev. G. M. Talley, Carabonton, N. C., whom the Western North Carolina Conference ordained as an elder two years ago, finds that the demand for his services as pastor and preacher has so increased that he is constrained to resign from other business and give all of his time to the ministry. A tremendous responsibility has fallen upon his shoulders as he answers the call of the pastorate of several of the stronger churches in our Northern Conference.

"Jouett Shouse has come out in the open and advocates the open saloon. Here is what he said last Tuesday night: 'I say to you that you have got to create a place where men can gather freely and openly and respectably and lawfully and buy a single drink at retail without the expense of service and foods such as is seen frequently suggested.' What is that but a saloon? Yet the wets have been saying that the saloon must not return."—N. C. Advocate.

Mrs. J. B. Gerringer died suddenly at her home, near Elon College, Saturday afternoon, November 11th. The burial was at Shallow Ford Church, of which she had been a faithful member for many years, on Sunday afternoon, the funeral being in charge of her pastor, Rev. T. J. Green. Mrs. Gerringer is survived by her husband, by Mrs. R. P. Boone, of Greensboro, N. C., Rev. Carr E. Gerringer, Wakefield, Va., Mrs. J. J. Iseley, Mrs. George Daniely, Mrs. A. Rudd, Jack and Montford Gerringer, all of Burlington, Thurman Gerringer and Mrs. Claude Cable, of Elon College, N. C. Mrs. Gerringer was a woman of piety, consecration to her family and to her church and was held in high esteem by all who knew her. Our deepest sympathies are extended to the bereaved.

R. H. Ferrell, Middlesex, N. C., writes as follows: "Rev. A. R. Flowers was a welcome visitor to our church during the last days of October. He never fails to bring us something worth while. He is deeply interested in his work and makes it a daily study. He is a firm believer in the Bible and has made it the greatest treatise in all his study; and he has a very effectual way of presenting its truths to our youth. Bro. Flowers has a goodly number of old pupils in our town and community, who are now the men and women who are helping to shape the destiny of the youth of our age; and it is these old pupils of his who are his most loyal friends and supporters. We have great need, at this age, for more such whole-hearted workers in the kind of Christian education that he is doing. Somehow, many of our young people seem to have lost faith in themselves, as well as in many other things. They have lost the spirit of real service. Many of them are coming out of our high schools and colleges with little knowledge of how to take hold and fit into any life program. We need to help them."

NEWS FROM THE FIELD.

AMELIA.

No protracted services held here this year. Attendance good and interest encouraging at regular appointments. The spirit of unity and progressiveness prevails in a larger measure here than at any time for the past two years. A good opportunity awaits a good pastor with this good people.

DAMASCUS.

Daily meetings held here week beginning third Sunday in August. At the closing service about twenty-five people pledged themselves to "share the sufferings" of their Christ in the task of making this a Christian community.

Three additions to church membership. We are progressing and like it.

MARTHA'S CHAPEL.

We are completing unexpired term of Rev. S. E. Madren.

Protracted services began here third Sunday in July. Attendance and attention good. Five young men and one young lady were added to the church membership. The church has known and loved these splendid young people all the while, and now rejoices in their fellowship.

The goals set by this church for next year are encouraging.

MEBANE.

No protracted meetings. No additions to the membership. But—no quarrels, no lack of loyalty, no let-up in service, no loss of faith and enthusiasm.

No better people on God's earth.

PLYMOUTH.

It has been a joy to serve here since January of this year. It was a renewal of relations which circumstances interrupted at the close of my first year in the ministry. I shall always love this place and its people. The results of our work here are not to be told by the mathematician. Mental and spiritual adjustments have been made in favor of the Christ and his kingdom.

Once more I retire from this charge with all the good wishes of a friend and brother.

B. J. HOWARD.

OUR PROTECTION.

A crudely wrapped package was handed me with the question, "What do you think of that?" As I took it I sensed at once what it contained, so I was not surprised when I removed the wrappings to find a revolver in my hand. With a shudder I handed it to its owner, saying, "I do not think anything of it, and do not want to keep it in my hands." Then the owner explained that he had purchased it so that he could have the protection it afforded himself and his property.

Somehow, I have never cared for the protection that firearms might give me, and as I meditated upon the thought, I opened my Bible and looked up the word "protection" in the Concordance. The only reference given is in Deuteronomy 32:38, the marginal reading for protection being, "an hiding for you." The words are taken from the song of Moses at the close of his wonderful life, as he shewed forth God's goodness, power and vengeance. Moses compared the Rock of his salvation with the rock of the false gods of the nations round about; he trusted in the spiritual Rock that went with them and that Rock was Christ, the great Rock in a weary land, the protection, the hiding place for the great man of God.

David, the man after God's own heart, when in peril of his life prayed unto God many times, saying, "Hide me." He recognized God as his protection, as his hiding place in Psalms 32:7; and repeats it with so much confidence in Psalms 27:5. He wrote Psalms of praise and called upon all men to praise the Lord for his help in time of trouble.

The three Hebrew children boasted to King Nebuchadnezzar, "Our God . . . is able . . . He will deliver us." If we have like faith with these Old Testament characters who lived under the law instead of under grace as we do, we also know the blessedness of the secret place of the most high, the precious hiding place from all the perils of life where we may run for refuge and be safe. God never fails his trusting children, so what need have we of firearms? May we trust him and not be afraid of what men may do unto us.

"My hiding place, my hiding place,

When stormy billows roll;

My Rock, my Hope, my sure Defense

The Anchor of my soul." W.

EASTERN VIRGINIA CONFERENCE.

The One Hundred and Thirteenth Annual Session of the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference convened last Wednesday, November 1st, at Holy Neck Christian Church, and was called to order by the president Dr. N. G. Newman. For two years now Dr. Newman has been our president, and for which we are glad. Why? Well, Dr. Newman is a man of marked intelligence, which he uses in such a sane, thoughtful, considerate and gentle manner in his presiding, that he pleases everybody, which is an honor to his intellectual qualifications.

There is another member of this Conference whom we feel is so useful that we could not get along without. That is Dr. I. W. Johnson, who is our secretary. He is so efficient, gentle, genial, jolly and thoughtful of everyone's whims, fancies and wishes that he has made himself an incalculable personality.

The Conference moved in fine shape, and all of the speakers were so convincing, searching and arousing, that their hearers were desirous of giving them a tirade of Amen's. The president's address just before lunch on the first day, was excellent. He urged his hearers to yield themselves unto the earnest, persuasive pleading of him who dwelleth in the midst of the churches. After the address, the communion was served, or conducted, by Dr. W. M. Jay. In the afternoon following the report on Foreign Missions, Dr. J. O. Atkinson made an address on the missionary theme. As usual, Dr. Atkinson was at his best. That is his attitude always on Missions.

At 11 o'clock on the second day, we listened to the report of Education as given by Dr. I. W. Johnson. Following this report, Dr. L. E. Smith, president of Elon College, spoke on the needs of the College, urging the support of the College from this Conference, and the churches generally. The Conference pledged $12,500.00. After his address and by his request, Dr. J. E. Rawles took the floor, and my, what a telling, arousing flow of words came from his lips. He animated his listeners to such a pitch that when he finished there was a tumultuous handclapping, the only outward applause given any speaker during the whole Conference. The first night we had a sermon from Rev. John G. Truitt. He spoke on the guidance of the lowly Nazarene. His discourse was inspiring all the way through, and worthy of much commendation.

The second evening we had a talk from Mr. Chas. D. Johnston, superintendent of the Christian Orphanage. I wish every member of our church in the South could have heard Mr. Johnston in his pleadings for the Orphanage and telling of its accomplishments; what it has meant to the boys and girls that have been reared and trained in that institution, and have gone out into the world to fight the battle of life alone. They have all made good and are worthy of much honor. Following Mr. Johnston's talk, Rev. R. Lee House, pastor of the Newport News Church gave us a fine sermon. His theme was along the line of necessity, the desire and the importance of an earnest, persistent, persevering, heart yearning and Christ-like principles of leadership in our churches today. These two preachers, Truitt and House, so merited themselves unto us on these occasions that we feel a D. D. would not be out of order annexed to their names.

Before closing I must express the sentiments of every one I heard speak in reference to the kindness, good will, generosity, sociability extended us by the Holy Neck people, and others who may have helped them. We can recall no other occasion where their hospitality has been surpassed. Amen. M. W. HOLLOWELL.

PROGRAM.

Following is the program for the One Hundred and Eighth Annual Session of the Eastern North Carolina Christian Conference, to be held with Wentworth Church, McCullers, N. C., November 21 and 22, 1933:

FIRST DAY—NOVEMBER 21st.

Morning Session.

- 10:00 Called to order by the President.
Song service, conducted by Geo. M. McCullers.
Devotional service, Rev. T. Fred Wright.
- 10:30 Enrollment of ministers and delegates.
Welcome, B. L. Brown.
Response, Rev. S. E. Madren.
Reception of visitors.
Report of Executive Committee.
Appointment of Special Committees.
- 11:00 Address by Rev. Stanley C. Harrell, D. D., President, Southern Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches.
- 11:30 Sermon by Rev. George N. Edwards, Pastor, Circular Congregational Church, Charleston,
South Carolina.
Communion, conducted by Rev. E. M. Carter.
Adjournment for lunch.

Afternoon Session.

- 1:30 Devotional service, Rev. Robert Kimball.
Ministerial reports and church letters.
Report of Treasurer, W. J. Ballentine.
- 2:00 Report of Committee on Stewardship, Rev. J.
Lee Johnson.
Discussion and vote on report.
Report of Committee on Religious Literature,
Rev. B. J. Howard.
Discussion and vote on report.
- 2:30 Report of Committee on Evangelism, Rev. M.
T. Sorrell.
Discussion and vote on report.
Report of Committee on Social Service, Deacon
J. A. Kimball.
Discussion and vote on report.
- 3:00 Report of Committee on Apportionments,
Prof. L. L. Vaughan.
Discussion and vote on report.
Report of Committee on Finance, Deacon K.
B. Johnson.
Business session.
- 3:30 Report of Committee on Entertainment.
Adjournment.

Evening Session.

- 7:30 Called to order by the President.
Song service, conducted by Geo. M. McCullers.
Devotional service, Rev. H. C. Hilliard.
- 8:00 Report of Committee on Youth Fellowship,
Rev. Robert Kimball.
Young people's program on Youth Fellowship.
Sermon, Rev. L. E. Smith, D. D., President of Elon College.

SECOND DAY—NOVEMBER 22nd.

Morning Session.

- 9:30 Called to order by the President.
Song service, conducted by Geo. M. McCullers.
Devotional service, Rev. H. E. Crutchfield.
Reading of minutes of previous day.
- 10:00 Report of Committee on Home Missions, Rev.
T. Fred Wright.
Discussion and vote on report.
Report of Committee on Foreign Missions,
Rev. R. A. Whitten.
Report on Woman's Missionary Work, Miss
Margaret Alston.
Address—"Our Mission Work," Rev. J. O. Atkinson, D. D., Mission Secretary, Southern Convention.
Vote on Foreign Mission report.

- 11:00 Report of Committee on Education, Rev. E.
M. Carter.
Discussion.
Address—"Our Educational Needs," Rev. L.
E. Smith, D. D., President, Elon College.
Vote on adoption of report.
Adjournment for lunch.

Afternoon Session.

- 1:00 Devotional service, Rev. D. M. Spence.
Report of Committee on Nominations.
Election of delegates to the Southern Convention.
Election of Officers of Conference.
- 1:30 Report of Committee on Sunday Schools and Christian Endeavor, C. H. Stephenson.
Discussion and vote on report.
Report of Committee on Music, Geo. M. Mc-Cullers.
Discussion and vote on report.
- 2:00 Report of Special Committees.
Report on collection at this session.
Selection of place for next session of Conference.
Announcements of Standing Committees.
Unfinished business, order Annuals, etc.
- 3:30 Closing devotional service, Rev. J. A. Denton.
Adjournment.

Keep THE SUN Shining Mail Your Subscription TODAY!

Why not send THE CHRISTIAN SUN to your friends for the ensuing year, and they will be reminded weekly of your thoughtfulness and interest?

THE SUN needs new subscribers badly, and the members of the Christian Church in the South need THE SUN just as badly. You who read the paper keep in touch with your church's activities and interests. Wouldn't it be a wonderful thing if you would help others to become acquainted with the things that you know about?

For your convenience we are printing a blank below. Just fill out this blank and pin your check or a money order for $2, for each subscription you wish sent, and we will do the rest.

As a token of our appreciation of your cooperation, we will advance your own subscription date three months for each yearly subscription you send in.

Of course, if it happens that the person to whom you send the paper is already a subscriber, we will advance their subscription one year, and will notify them that you have paid same.

SUBSCRIPTION BLANK.

December....., 1932.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN,
1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

Dear Sirs:

Please enter the name of.....
City....., State....., R. F. D. or St.....,
on your subscription list for one year. I enclose $.....to pay above subscription and for.....additional ones written on the margin of this blank. Please advance my subscription three months for each of these subscriptions, and send greeting cards to each of these subscribers.

Name

Street or R. F. D.....

City and State.....

My own subscription expires.....

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

ASSOCIATE EDITOR

E. C. GILLETTE

117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla.

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

W. C. WICKER C. REXFORD RAYMOND

S. C. HARRELL ELISHA A. KING

THE PRINCIPLES OF OUR CHURCH.

- (1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
- (2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
- (3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.
- (5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

WESTERN NORTH CAROLINA CONFERENCE.

Rev. E. C. Brady, president, called the 63rd annual session of this Conference to order at 10 o'clock in the Ramseur Christian Church, Wednesday, November 8th. A large audience heard the gavel fall and almost every church and every minister of the Conference were ready to answer the roll-call. The opening exercises by Rev. M. A. Pollard were devotional in spirit and effect, and the entire Conference was in good frame of mind and heart to take counsel together in the house of the Lord about the affairs of the Conference and the church. Brother I. H. Faust, of the local church, gave a cordial word of greeting and Rev. T. J. Green, beloved minister of the Conference, gave fitting words of gratitude for the welcome and for the privilege of assembling at "this good place and this good hour." The president brought a most heartening message under the title, "Believing in Christ," for he made all of us feel that there was none other to whom we can go, since Jesus alone "hath the words of eternal life." This sermon is to be printed in THE CHRISTIAN SUN and will have wide reading. Dr. Stanley C. Harrell, president of the Southern Convention, conducted the communion service following the program and, with the assistance of Dr. C. H. Rowland, president of the North Carolina and Virginia Conference, made the service sweet, solemn, sacred.

In the afternoon, Rev. J. U. Fogleman conducted a most wholesome devotional service, calling attention to the fact that we approach Armistice Day and that our hearts should be fixed on peace and our minds should be made up to maintain peace in the name and for the sake of the "Prince of Peace."

Rev. M. A. Pollard read the report on Evangelism, which report was so pointed that the Conference unanimously voted that it be published in THE CHRISTIAN SUN. Much of the afternoon session was devoted to discussion of Convention resolutions presented by Dr. Stanley C. Harrell, in the matter of adjusting the machinery of the merger of the Congregational-Christian Churches. The final outcome of the resolutions was the appointment of a meeting at Biscoe Church, Biscoe, N. C., at 10 A. M., Monday, December 4th, at which meeting all the ministers of the Conference are especially urged to be present, and the delegates from the churches, as many as will come, in order that the ministers and the churches may learn further about the details and workings of the plans of adjustment. The president of the Convention, with his Board, and also Dr. L. E. Smith, president of Elon College, and J. O. Atkinson, Mission Secretary, were invited to meet with those assembling at Biscoe on December 4th for a frank, free and full discussion of the matter. Rev. T. E. White, chairman, made a very illuminating report for the Committee on Foreign Missions, showing the work that was being done by the American Board on the foreign field and bringing to the attention of the Conference that in our foreign work we were already completely merged and were going forward in the matter of world-wide Missions. The Mission Secretary made a brief talk on the report, following which routine business claimed the rest of the session.

An interesting program was put on at 7:30 in the evening, which program was in charge of the young people, the principle address being delivered by Rev. S. M. Penn. The attendance was good.

The Conference having only a two-day session, came together at 9:30 on the 9th, and had a busy and fruitful day for reports, of discussions and of plans for the coming year. Rev. H. V. Cox made a report for the Committee on Home Missions, which report provided that certain weak churches of the Conference be looked after by the committee and be cared for with some needful appropriation at the discretion of the committee. Again, especial attention was called to the fact of the need of a Christian Church at Asheboro, where the Conference once had a thriving church and where even now more than one hundred members of the Christian Church reside. Some day this Conference will do the right thing and build at Asheboro. In the absence of the chairman, Rev. G. M. Talley was made chairman and brought in the report on Social Service. Rev. T. E. White, chairman, made the report on Religious Literature, which report especially emphasized the need of a wider reading and better support of THE CHRISTIAN SUN. Brother George T. Gunter made the report on Sunday Schools, which report told of the Sunday School Convention held last summer, and recommended to the Conference that ministers and laity redouble their efforts in behalf of the Sunday Schools of the Conference.

Rev. T. J. Green, for the report on Education, highly recommended Elon College as worthy of the support and patronage of the entire Conference, and resolutions were adopted assuming, on the part of the Conference, $3,500.00 to be raised in the campaign for $25,000.00 now needed for immediate relief of the College. Of this amount the president of the College was authorized to secure from individuals $2,500.00 and the churches are called upon to put on a campaign in January and February to raise $1,000.00. Following the report, Dr. L. E. Smith, president of Elon College, made a most telling and eloquent plea for the support of the College, and made all who heard him realize the merit of the College and the absolute necessity of sustaining and supporting the institution if we are to endure and carry on as a people.

In the closing afternoon service, Superintendent Chas. D. Johnston gave a plea full of pathos and power for our Orphanage, calling upon all present to see to it that a liberal Thanksgiving offering is taken in all the churches and that the Orphanage needed and merited the support of the entire church. Other reports of the work, and of special committees, filled the afternoon service with spice and flavor. Brother E. C. Brady insisted that since he had had the presidency for three years, Conference elect someone else. Rev. T. E. White was elected president; Rev. E. C. Brady, vice-president; George T. Gunter (who certainly is one of the most capable and efficient of Conference secretaries), was re-elected, of course, and Brother O. D. Lawrence, the trusted and beloved treasurer, was kept at his post of duty.

Ramseur Church and people certainly took care of the Conference in royal manner. Sweet fellowship and abundant hospitality made the stay and the occasion one of delight and helpfulness.

J. O. A.

NORTH CAROLINA VOTES HER CONVICTIONS.

On Tuesday, November 7th, the voters of North Carolina again expressed their convictions in the matter of prohibition. In general elections for the past six or eight years, politics and prohibition have been terribly mixed in the voting, but this year the naked fact of prohibition, divested of all political affiliation or personal interests, stood out before the electorate. The result was one of the most sweeping victories and overwhelming majorities ever given in this State for any issue or person. Of course, there were many factors contributing to this victory, and these will be assigned according to the whims, prejudices or interests of the individual who interprets. For example, the wet press, still heedless of the verdict at the polls and heartless as to the meaning of that verdict, will say that North Carolina stultified herself, opened the field to the bootlegger, rebelled against the administration, and did all sorts of fool things to its own hurt and undoing. No one can stop such ranting. So let the ranting go on. Just put it into your thinking that North Carolina stood up in face of the world and voted her convictions. There is nothing uncertain about that.

Many elements entered into the election and not a few factors forced the voting. One of these factors was that a politician who has always wanted North Carolina to have liquor and more liquor, led the campaign for the wets. Such leadership made the friends of sobriety sit up and take notice. Another unmistakable factor, agreed to by all, was that North Carolinians take their voting seriously and do not care to have outsiders tell them what to do about it. When Postmaster-General Farley came over into North Carolina and delivered a mandate, in the name of party allegiance, to the people of this good State, that they vote for repeal, he reckoned without his host, and made friends by the thousands for the cause he opposed. Twenty-six years ago North Carolina spoke out in favor of prohibition, and all the actual findings, facts and experiences in the case have shown and do show that she made no mistake when she adopted prohibition, and she is not yet ready to go back on her decision then made, especially in the light and in the enjoyment of the fruits of that victory. And so in the face of a promise from Washington that "taxes would be reduced, that political pie would be handed out, that party loyalty was at stake," that one of our Senators had canvassed the State just prior to the election and that the other Senator was silent on the subject, and in spite of the further fact that the nation was going wet, North Carolina stood up before the world and wrote her record straight and bold and unmistakable.

When the Hon. Clyde Hoey, ex-Congressman and high in the ranks of his party, stood before a great audience at Raleigh two weeks before the election and told the people of the State that he was willing "to plow up his cotton under mandate of his President and his party, but he was not willing to violate his conscience and the convictions of a life-time, even under mandate of any person, party or platform," the State gave such applause and approval that the results from that hour could not be mistaken. And when Judge E. Yates Webb, for fourteen years in Congress and for several years now on the Federal bench, and one of the ablest as well as the best of our judges, went out over the State to declare that it was better, far better, to turn loose ratlensnakes in this good State than to bring back the open sale of liquor, either in the old saloon or at any other place of legalized sale and approval, somehow or other the best in the hearts and minds of a steady yeomanry and an honorable citizenship was awakened and proceeded to register its convictions. So, write it as you will, think of it as you may, North Carolina has registered her convictions in the matter of prohibition, and there she stands.

In this connection it is not out of place to call attention to the fact that in this State the people went to the polls and voted. Both the wets and the dries did that. The electorate of the State considered the matter of sufficient importance to call forth a decision one way or the other. If this same feeling had obtained in other States, possibly the nation itself would tell a different story, since we are witnessing for the first time in all our history a repeal of a constitutional amendment, and that repeal is brought about by a vote of less than twenty-five per cent of the voting population of the country. Figures now compiled show that instead of repeal by a majority of the registered voters of the United States, only twenty-five per cent of the electorate have voted for repeal.

J. O. A.

MEN AND MISSIONS SUNDAY.

The Laymen's Missionary Movement has designated November 19th as the Third Annual Men and Missions Sunday. While this is a nationwide movement, including all denominations, our Christian constituency in particular needs to emphasize the occasion and put on the program of the day, especially because the men of our churches are learning so little about Missions and doing so little for Missions in comparison with what our women are doing. Here, indeed, is an opportunity for our Christian pastors, pulpits and Sunday Schools to emphasize Missions and to give the men an opportunity of learning something about this mightiest movement of all time and this most momentous event in the history of the present.

The program anticipates one thousand interdenominational Men's Missionary Suppers, 6:15 to 7:45 P. M., Wednesday, November 15th, thus preparing the way for the missionary service and sermon by the pastor on Sunday, the 19th. The movement insists that it is desirable that local men be chosen to speak at the interdenominational suppers on November 15th, and in the churches on Men and Missions Sunday, November 19th. Material for speakers can be had from the Movement—No. 19 S. LaSalle St., Chicago, Ill. If any pastor or layman who is to speak on Men and Missions Sunday, November 19th, either in the Sunday School or at a church service, is in doubt about his message, here it is:

"Our message is Jesus Christ. He is the revelation of what God is and of what man, through him, may become. We cannot live without Christ and we cannot bear to think of men living without him. Christ is our motive and Christ is our end. We must give nothing less, and we can give nothing more."

This pronouncement, at least, might be made with profit in every church and Sunday School in our communion, and could certainly be emphasized with profit by every speaker.

It is not the object of the Movement to raise money, but to give information, and the program may be adopted by any and every local church and Sunday School. In fact, the one object of the program is to deliver the message, as stated above, and to bring to the attention of the church and the community the worth and the merit of this nation-wide program. Here, declares the Movement, are some facts about the program:

"It may be integrated into the program of any local church.

"It meets the need for an emphasis concerning the inescapable responsibility of laymen for the world mission of Christianity.

"It helps in the cultivation of missionary interest among an ever widening circle of laymen.

"It centers the thought of the laymen upon the work of their own missionary boards.

"It affords an opportunity for the development of lay leadership in this central task of the Christian Church.

"It offers the pastor an opportunity to inform his laymen and to inspire them to a deeper consecration of talents and possessions to the cause of Christ."

It is devoutly to be hoped that all of our pastors and Sunday School superintendents will avail themselves of this opportunity, and in some way emphasize the fact and the thought of Missions as the moving, vitalizing power and program of the church.

J. O. A.

LA GRANGE, GA., CHURCH DEDICATED.

November 5th must have been a most eventful and memorable day at United Congregational-Christian Church, LaGrange, Ga. Rev. Jesse H. Dollar is the beloved and energetic pastor, and just how he has managed to raise $5,000, and pay off that debt in less than two years, we do not understand.

The program for the day was a good one, with Rev. Milo J. Sweet, of Elon College, N. C., preaching the dedicatory sermon. The dedicatory ceremonies were in charge of the pastor. There were words of cheer and greeting from the other churches of the city, from the mayor and from the great Gallaway Mills. Of the pastor, who had wrought so devotedly to bring about the event of the day, The United Voice, a beautiful publication of the church carries this:

"Perhaps we all feel that we know our pastor very well. To know him is to love him, and the more we know about him the greater our loves grows for him.

"Looking back in his life a few years, we learn that he graduated from Elon College in June, 1925. While at Elon, he entered into every phase of college life and held places of honor in the student body. In addition to his duties at college, he was student pastor of three churches during the three years of study. After taking his A. B. degree from Elon, he entered Vanderbilt University the following September. He took his Master of Arts degree the following June, and spent the next three months doing post graduate work in George Peabody College.

"In September, 1926, he assumed his duties at Bethlehem (now Southern Union) College, Wadley, Ala., as Professor of History and English.

Leaving there the following June, he accepted a position as Associate Professor of History at Birmingham-Southern College. Resigning from that position the following June, he accepted the pastorate of the First Christian Church, Reidsville, N. C., where he remained as pastor until November, 1931, when he became pastor of the United Congregational-Christian Church, which position he assumed with faith and at which he has worked untiringly. As one result of his leadership while among us, we come to the dedication of our church."

J. O. A.

STRANGE FAMILIES.

I read a brief paragraph in Church Management some time ago in which the writer drew a picture of a "Strange Family." Just think of it, a man, father of a family, has not missed church or Sunday School in twenty-three years! His wife has a perfect record for eleven years, a son has not missed for twelve years and a daughter has attended the evening services regularly for eight years. Very few families can show as good a record though there may be many who have done almost as well. In my daily record book I have placed a newspaper clipping bearing a picture of a girl, Ethel Smith, by name, of Shelton, Conn., who has not missed Sunday School for 1,672 consecutive Sundays. Ripley thought that was something good enough for his page.

The writer of the "Strange Family" item asks, "What's the matter with this family, anyway?" He asks more questions: "Don't they ever have company on Sunday to keep them away from church?" "Don't they ever get up tired on Sunday morning?" "Don't they ever have headaches, or colds, or tired feelings, or week-end parties, or trips to the country?" "Don't they have a radio so they can get some good sermons from out-of-town preachers?" And then he wonders if they don't get tired of their preacher. And still the questions continue and wind up with this, "What's the matter with this family, and why are they so happy and cheerful?" The writer does not provide an answer but leaves it to the reader.

I suppose the writer took this method to emphasize the value of church attendance, and incidentally to point out the common excuses for not going to church with regularity. This "going to church" is a curious thing. Some people, even members, who go occasionally are often out of touch with the church program. It's hard on the preacher, to say the least. He desires to be helpful and he knows the value of his work is in the continuous efforts he puts forth and in the regular attendance of his people. When he observes that few members of his congregation are regular he is all upset about what he should preach. In the long run irregular attendance causes a preacher to say to himself, "My people do not care what I say. They think of me as just a necessary part of the program which matters little!" Then he begins to doubt his ability to feed his flock. But what a difference when he can prepare his sermons knowing quite well who will be listening! There is something very stimulating and vital about regular attendance. It blesses the pew and the pulpit, encourages the choir, and makes a deep and lasting impression on the community. Half-empty churches make for careless living and encourage disrespect for religion in the community. Let's have our churches full.

E. A. K.

To the influence of the Bible we are indebted for the progress made in true civilization, and to this we must look as our guide in the future.—Ulysses S. Grant,

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

In order to bring to the attention of the pastors and churches of the Eastern Virginia Conference the acts of the recent session, certain facts are presented herewith for information. Every pastor and every church should know what the Conference apportionments are for 1933-34. The following list will furnish this information:

Antioch, $150.00; Barrett's, $50.00; Berea (Nansemond), $100.00; Berea (Norfolk), $125; Bethlehem, $200.00; Burton's Grove, $40.00! Centerville, $30.00! Christian Temple, $800.00; Cypress Chapel, $150.00; Damascus, $150.00; Dendron, $25.00; Eure, $150.00; Elm Avenue, $75.00; First, Norfolk, $200.00; First, Portsmouth, $200.00; First, Richmond, $150.00; Franklin, $300.00; Holland, $300.00; Holy Neck, $200.00; Hobson, $10.00; Hopewell, $25.00; Isle of Wight, $40.00; Ivor, $25.00; Johnson's Grove, $10.00; Liberty Spring, $200.00; Mt. Carmel, $150.00; Newport News, $300.00; New Lebanon, $50.00; Ocean View, $50.00; Oak Grove, $50.00; Old Zion, $200.00; Oakland, $150.00; Rosemont, $250.00; Suffolk, $1,500.00; South Norfolk, $250.00; Spring Hill, $50.00; Sarem, $25.00; Union (South.), $75.00; Union (Surry), $25.00; Wakefield, $75.00; Windsor, $125.00; Waverly, $300.00; Epworth, $10.00.

A. L. JOLLY,

R. C. NORFLEET,

Committee.

The following delegates to the next session of the Southern Convention were elected: Ministers, Revs. Elisha Bradshaw, R. E. Brittle, H. C. Caviness, W. H. Garman, C. E. Geringer, H. S. Hardcastle, W. D. Harward, Robert Lee House, W. M. Jay, I. W. Johnson, Elwood W. Jones, F. C. Lester, Tillman N. Lowe, Joseph E. McCauley, J. F. Morgan, N. G. Newman, O. D. Poythress, J. M. Roberts, D. H. Spence, J. H. Warren, E. B. White, J. G. Truitt, R. A. Whitten, Joe French, L. E. Smith. Laymen, B. E. White, W. S. Barrett, A. L. Jolly, Col. J. E. West, Col. E. E. Holland, M. W. Hollowell, J. M. Darden, J. A. Williams, T. T. Byrd, C. D. West, R. C. Norfleet, Mrs. W. V. Leathers, Mrs. L. W. Stagg, W. H. Baker, C. E. Warrington, Mrs. I. W. Johnson, M. J. W. White, J. T. Kernodle, Mrs. J. M. Rabey, Dr. J. W. Manning, Mrs. J. A. Williams, Mrs. B. D. Jones, Miss Irene Cotten, Jesse F. West, Jr., R. H. Riedel, Dr. J. E. Rawls.

The report of the Committee on Stewardship included the following recommendation, which was adopted: "We recommend that the ministers of the Eastern Virginia Conference urge their people to make out their wills, in due form, leaving a tenth of their possessions to their local church, to some institution of our denomination or to some other benevolent cause which they may designate."

The report of the Committee on Religious Literature contained the following recommendations which were adopted: "That pastors and people enter into a real drive to purge our newsstands of impure literature and to make the talking pictures somewhere near decent, so that the taste and interest of youth may not be corrupted and a love for higher things be not excluded. That our pastors, Sunday School superintendents and teachers inform themselves upon the issues of our publishing houses and recommend them to young and old. The vigorous promotion of the use of our periodicals: THE CHRISTIAN SUN, The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty, and The Missionary Herald for adults. That a committee of five be appointed by the president, three of whom shall be women, to work out a plan of support of THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and submit to the next session of the Southern Convention."

The following motion was adopted: "Moved that a committee of three be appointed to be known as a Committee on Churches, whose business it shall be to aid churches in securing pastors and to aid the churches in every possible way." The president appointed the following members of the above committee: Col. J. E. West, Dr. J. E. Rawls, Mrs. I. W. Johnson.

Pastors are hereby requested to take due notice of these acts of Conference and govern themselves accordingly.

I. W. JOHNSON.

THE WESTERN NORTH CAROLINA CONFERENCE.

We are now in the midst of our annual conferences. The Valley of Virginia Conference has two sessions—the annual or main session of this Conference is held in August and a mid-year meeting is held in February. The Eastern Virginia Conference met last week and the Western North Carolina Conference this week. There are thirty-seven churches in this Conference with a total membership of 3,771. The majority of these churches are located in rural centers and include in their membership a sturdy and substantial type of citizens. The Burlington Church is by far the strongest church of the Conference and is the only church that employs a pastor for full time. This is one of the strongest churches, if not the strongest, in the Carolinas.

The Christian Church at Ramseur was host to the Conference and entertained the delegates and visitors in a most delightful way. It was the writer's privilege to serve the Ramseur Church as pastor for three years while a student at Elon. This is not a strong church, but it does have in its membership some of the finest spirits to be found anywhere. It is always a pleasure to visit the Ramseur people.

The morning of the first day, Wednesday, was given over to Conference business, with the exception of the annual sermon by the president, Rev. E. C. Brady. He delivered a very thoughtful and helpful discourse. This was followed by the Communion Service administered by Dr. Stanley C. Harrell, president of the Southern Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches.

Following a short business session in the afternoon, Dr. Harrell presented a set of resolutions designed to make effective the merger of the Congregational and Christian Churches. These resolutions were prepared by the Executive Committee of the Convention and presented to the Conference for its approval or disapproval. These resolutions occasioned considerable discussion, chiefly in an effort on the part of the Conference to secure adequate information that it might vote intelligently. The resolutions were finally referred to the Committee on Resolutions. On the following day when the resolutions were brought back to the Conference a very significant step was taken. By vote these resolutions were referred again to what amounts to an extra session of the Western North Carolina Conference.

The Executive Committee, together with Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Mission Secretary for the Convention, and the writer as president of the College, are to meet with the ministers of the Western North Carolina Conference, together with representative members from every church in the Conference with the Biscoe Church on December 4, 1933. This meeting is for the interpretation and understanding of the resolutions submitted by the Executive Committee, in order that the ministers themselves may be entirely conversant with the issues involved and that the churches may learn through their representatives just what is proposed to be done and just how they, as churches, are to fit effectively in this forward step on the part of our church. I am in favor of such a meeting. I think that it will be helpful and wholesome, both for the Conference and for the entire church.

The question of Missions was before the Conference both days. Dr. Atkinson gave two splendid addresses—one on the subject of Foreign Missions, and one on the subject of Home Missions. It is the hope that our church, as a whole, may become fervently interested in this supreme task of the church.

On the morning of the second day Rev. T. J. Greene reported for the Committee on Education. This report revealed a heart interest in Elon College and passionately appealed to the churches of the Conference to come to the rescue of the institution in its need. Pending the adoption of this report the writer had the privilege of explaining the importance of Christian Education directly by the church, itself, in an effort to train its leaders for the continued advance of the denomination and of universal Christianity. We are not yet ready to turn over the religious interests of the people to the dictates of the State. We are not yet ready to allow the State, through political machinery, to select our ministers and to dictate the policies of our churches, nor are we ready to turn over to the State the important and vital task of the church, that of training its ministry. We propose to continue to have something to say about the training of our Youth for service in our church, both from the standpoint of the pew and of the pulpit. The call is, therefore, extended to the church to arise with its prayers and with its gifts and pour out the same that our Christian College may continue the high service of training minds and developing character for the forward march of the kingdom.

The Conference, by vote, included in the report on Education a set of resolutions similar to the ones adopted by the Eastern Virginia Conference and appearing in this week's CHRISTIAN SUN under the Suffolk Letter written by Dr. I. W. Johnson, of Suffolk, Va., who is secretary of the Eastern Virginia Conference.

The expressions of interest on the part of individuals and the vote of confidence by the Conference were tremendously encouraging to the ones directly interested in the College. The people of this Conference are interested in all phases of the church's work. They are interested in the Christian Orphanage. They were delighted to have Superintendent Chas. D. Johnston present for both days. On the second day he brought a most appealing address to those present. No one can listen to the presentation of the cause of unfortunate children by Brother Johnston without being moved in heart and having a desire to open his purse and give largely for the cause that he represents.

As I think of this Conference which lasted two days only, it seems to me that one characteristic of the Conference on the part of its members was an inquiring mind, wanting to know the problems confronting the church, as a whole, and their Conference in particular, and anxious for the proper guidance that they might dedicate themselves and their possessions to the meeting of these needs to the very best of their ability.

L. E. SMITH, President.

DOES A PASTOR SERVE HIS TIME OR EXHAUST HIS CAPACITY?

By TIMOTHY THOMAS.

The United States Civil Service Commission, an agency of the National Government which passes upon the fitness and qualifications by examination of all the government personnel, has under consideration the lowering of age limits for clerical help entering government service.

This announcement from the offices of the Commission has created widespread comment. Press and private opinion on the pros and cons of the the issue is varied. Age limits for entrance that were formerly from 45 to 60 are under consideration for lowering to 40.

It is not a case of the Government discharging men and women at the age of 40, as has been made to appear by certain headlines reading, "Are Men and Women Through at 40?" "Is Life Over at 45?" etc.

There are two principal ideas behind the suggested move, the first being the difficulty of men and women entering a new field of work when past middle life; and the second, that of a huge saving to the Government on retirement pensions. The person entering government service at 50 reaches retirement age earlier and thus increases the Government's expenditures in that direction, unless the retirement age should be changed to a ratio in keeping with the contemplated age entrance requirements.

The discussion revives a question that has always been a paramount issue to all religious bodies, but a question that seemingly cannot be settled—the question, at what age should a pastor retire?

Humanity cannot be standardized because there is no standardization of physical or mental capacity, the two primary requisites with which to carry on any work in declining years.

Some pastors remain students. They are alert to every progressive movement because of their interest in all civic movements, their desire to read, and their willingness to and fondness for study. Their sermons deal with problems of today, interpreted in the light of the Scriptures and seek to apply the spirit of Christianity as it is daily needed. They realize that the hunger for righteousness in their congregations may be a hunger because of problems of the hour.

Age does not debar anyone from being a constant student. Attitude is the hitching-post to which many pastors tie their future. Some pastors are wont to dwell upon the past, to laud the virtues of our forefathers, while equally condemning what they interpret to be the sins of the present generation. It is the good, the virtue in man that lives. No man is perfect, and we do not teach our children the defects in the lives of great men, but hold up to them their virtues, their wisdom, and the exemplary things of their lives. In this way history has a kind way of leaving behind the evils of another day. The evils of the day should not be discounted, but if the philosophy of exalting the present-day good were applied more, there would be a greater attraction to that good. It is well enough for a pastor to preach upon "the faith of our fathers," but he should not fail to compliment both the faith and the courage of our young people, as well as to praise that noble host of men and women who do their best, their part, as it appears to them in the light of their teachings, their experience, and the leadership which they are called upon to follow. Pastors who make their messages negative wonder why apparent barriers spring up to check what otherwise would be a unified and glorified success for both pastor and people. Many of us have often had our patience tested to the breaking point on listening to a "sermon" condemning people for not attending church. If the truth were known it would be surprising to know how many sermons have been the means of keeping people away from church. Birds flock to a feeding place where the food is appetizing. It is no more a man's duty to attend church than it is the pastor's duty to bring a message worthy of the attendant's time. "You cannot catch flies with vinegar" is a wise saying, which has a full measure of meaning in this connection.

Denominations never will be able to set a satisfactory age limit for the retirement of their pastors. The question never will be settled in this way. But it can be settled on the basis of mental capacity, if the subject is freely and frankly and honestly gone into. Capacity in this instance does not necessarily depend upon a man's scholarship, but very heavily scores on his willingness, readiness, and ability to continue as a student and be a progressive leader. "Where there is no light the people perish" could appropriately be translated to "Where there is no leader the people perish." Leadership has its fundamentals in being able to think ahead and for the masses. Many pastors do not "move on"; they deliberately or unconsciously stand in the stream of material, educational, and religious progress and their churches leave them behind. It is frequently the local church that "moves on," not the pastor.

PLEASANT GROVE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Sometime ago a suggestion was made that each class in our Sunday School write a letter to our church paper. The task of writing the first letter was left for Class No. 4, which consists of young ladies, so rather than say we "can't" we give a few items about our plans and programs.

Miss Nannie Baker Farmer is our faithful superintendent and Jesse H. Jones our loyal secretary. Our superintendent calls on different classes to conduct Sunday School, taking charge of the program throughout. This request is met, even with fear and trembling. The officers and teachers hold council meetings each month, which are very stimulating. Plans are now being made which we hope will keep up good attendance during the winter months.

We do not wish to close this letter without mentioning our pastor, Dr. W. C. Wicker, who brings to us such wonderful gospel messages. Really, he interprets the Scriptures to his people, holding up Christ and the Cross.

CLISS No. 4, PER L. B.

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5 1/2 inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

Nos. 01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges $2.75

01603 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, head-band, book-mark $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4 1/4 x 1 1/4 inches.

Type in Junior's Bible

Take the sum of all the of the children of Is'ra-el. Years old and upward, thro

No. 1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine $2.95 Bibles

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5 1/4 x 3 3/4 inches.

Specimen of Type

My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for thee, O LORD. To Mercy and truth together; righteousness kissed each other. Truth shall spring living God. xx Truth shall spring

No. 02112. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6 3/4 x 4 3/4 inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed. 10 For a day in thy courts is better

No. 07528x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07528x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x $5.00

OUR LEADER Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8 1/2 x 5 1/2 x 1 1/8 inches.

Specimen of Type

8 years old when he began to

No. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, lined to edge, silk round corners, red under edges, silk

hear

A UNIQUE GIFT BIBLE

With Basket Weave Binding

The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges. With references. Printed on Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible. $5.50

As No. 03255x, with concordance. No. 03276x $6.50

Oxford TEACHER'S BIBLE

Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date news, conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7 1/4 x 5 x 1 1/4 inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave; death shall feed on th

Nos. 04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and handsome Bible $4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Only one inch thick.

0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

MISSIONS
REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary

PRAYER.

Lord of life, open our hearts to receive the Spirit. Feed thou our souls lest they perish. May no moments of the Sabbath Day, given as it is for bodily rest and spiritual refreshment, be thoughtlessly or mistakenly dissipated. Turn myriads of feet to thine earthly courts and grant that there the yearning soul may find not emptiness nor confusion nor perversion but, through the imparting by God's ministers of his holy truth, may all be strengthened and constrained to walk no longer after the flesh but after the Spirit. For this we humbly pray. L.

TO THE FELLOWSHIP OF THOSE WHO CARE

By DR. FRED FIELD GOODSSELL.

The American Board is in reality a fellowship. It is a fellowship of which Christ is the center and the sustaining power. It is a fellowship of those who care deeply about sharing Christ with the people of all lands. Our missionaries and their national Christian associates are the heart of this world-wide fellowship, but the officers of the Board, the Corporate Members, many pastors of our churches in many States, and many, many friends, men and women, some in great cities, some in quiet rural homes, are vital parts of this fellowship. Just think of the wonderful outpouring of prayer and heart interest that accompanied the 2,191 separate individual gifts that came to the treasurer of the Board in the summer of 1933. Many of these gifts represented unusual sacrifices. How grateful we are! Money is greatly needed, but money is a symbol, not the bond, of our fellowship. Christ is our bond. We are "in him."

Facts Which Those Who Care Must Face—

Every member of this Fellowship knows the heartaches of retrenchment. The stress and strain of millions of American homes and churches due to unemployment, diminishing income, or sudden disaster are paralleled in the experiences of the American Board this year. As I write these words (October 11th) the tension in the meeting of the Committee on Appropriations is as vivid as a storm at sea. This Committee is trying to estimate income for the year 1934 and to adjust expenditures accordingly. Of course we must think and plan realistically. We are under moral obligation to balance our budget. That means facing such facts as these:

The gifts from churches have fallen from $1,005,350 in 1927-1928 to $584,542 in 1932-1933, or 41 per cent.

Churches gave $190,902, or 24 per cent less, in the fiscal year closing August 31, 1933, than they did in the previous year.

In spite of every reasonable step the Prudential Committee could take, for the fifth consecutive year the Board has incurred a deficit. The accumulated deficit now stands at $311,714.

One-sixth of our missionaries have been retired without replacement or released since 1929.

It takes time—even a period of years—to re-adjust expenditures to a greatly reduced level of income. Missionaries who have agreed to spend their lives in Christian service abroad, who have made prolonged and careful preparation for such service and who are well launched in their work cannot be withdrawn, brought home, and released within a few months. It takes time.

Recovery May Be Slow.

We must also face the fact that recovery in terms of increasing income will probably be slow.

The most that seems reasonable to hope for during the year 1933, is that gifts should equal, not exceed, those of 1932. Our churches are trying to "stop the drop," but after the drop is stopped they will have to overcome a very natural but a very embarrassing "lag" in benevolence interest and giving before increasing income can be registered.

These facts cannot be brushed aside with the word that our work should be financed by faith. It is because it is a matter of faith that our missionaries are carrying on under very difficult conditions. It will be a still greater demonstration of faith if we can face hard facts courageously, plan more resourcefully, and pray more earnestly.

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.

WEEK ENDING NOVEMBER 11, 1933.

Sunday Schools.
Previously acknowledged	$ 517.20
Corinth, Wadley, Ala.60
Wentworth, McCullers, N. C.	4.90
Hopedale, Burlington, N. C.	1.75
Rocky Ford, Fancy Gap, Va.93
Elk Spur, Fancy Gap, Va.	1.18
Mt. Bethel, Summerfield, N. C.	1.61
South Norfolk, Va.	12.97
Smithwood, Liberty, N. C.	1.11
Winchester, Va.	4.12
Third Ave., Danville, Va.	4.70
Newport, Stanley, Va.	1.00
Zion, Sanford, N. C.	1.25
Ocean View, Va.	3.85
Pleasant Hill, Liberty, N. C.	2.45
Total	$ 559.62
Individuals and Churches.
Previously acknowledged	$ 474.80
Parks Cross Roads, Ramseur, N. C.	7.38
Pleasant Cross, Asheboro, N. C.	2.00
Cypress Chapel, Va.	3.30
United Christian, Lynchburg, Va.	5.00
Catawba Springs, Apex, N. C.	7.46
Rev. J. L. Neese, Greensboro, N. C., to credited as follows:
Palm St Church.....	$1.00
Hines Chapel	1.00
New Lebanon	1.00
Total	3.00
Total	$ 502.94
Woman's Board, S. C. C.
Received of Mrs. H. S. Hardeastle, Treas. .	$ 3,636.84
Specials.
Previously acknowledged	$ 590.42
Mebane Sunday School, Mebane, N. C.	6.28
Total	$ 596.70
Coin Card Offering.
Previously acknowledged	$ 34.00
Linville Sunday School, Linville, Va.	3.00
Total	$ 37.00
Summary.
Previously acknowledged	$ 1,616.42
Sunday Schools, Regular	42.42
Individuals and Churches	28.14
Woman's Board, S. C. C., Nov. 11, 1933..	3,636.84
Specials	6.28
Coin Card Offering	3.00
Total to date	$ 5,333.10

J. O. ATKINSON, Sec'y.

A CHRISTIAN COURTSHIP.

"REMINISCENCES."

The "Reminiscences" of Rev. S. Q. Helfenstein in THE CHRISTIAN SUN of August 31st, recalled to mind many incidents of the convention of 1878.

It was the first reunion of students and teachers of The Christian Biblical Institute. I should like to call attention to the convention at New Bedford, Mass., in 1886, four years before the reunion of the Southern and Northern Christian Church, noted by Brother Hermon Eldredge in the Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty, of July 6th. At the 1886 convention a goodly number of the Southern brethren and sisters, also representatives from the colored church, South, were present. We recall the following: Rev. W. W. Staley, Col. Savage, Rev. and Mrs. J. P. Barrett and their daughter, N. Del. McReynolds, wife and daughter, and, if my memory serves me, Rev. D. A. Long, D. D., and his brother, Dr. William Long. The convention was harmonious and happy.

During the convention a recess was taken for an excursion on Buzzard's Bay. On that occasion the sisters held a meeting on board the boat at which the first Woman's Board of Home and Foreign Missions of the Convention was chosen.

Christian love and fellowship was inspired during this meeting and the result was a happy union at the convention of 1890.

MYRON TYLER.

SUBSCRIBERS TO THE CHRISTIAN SUN

These Pens are of standard make, and will give good service. If you are in need of a Fountain Pen, order from us. Postage paid and Pens guaranteed by the manufacturer.

MEN'S PENS—Capitol, $2.50; Mercantile, $2.50; Cardinal, $3.00.

LADIES' PENS, $2.00.

COMBINATION OFFER—To a new subscriber or for renewal, $2.50, either Gentleman's (Capitol) Pen or Ladies' Pen, with guarantee of manufacturer. And to "Sun" subscribers, not in arrears, any Pen at one-fourth off. Address: THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 EAST BROAD STREET, RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

A VISIT TO THE HOLY LAND.

By ROY C. HELFENSTEIN.

Dover Delaware.

ARTICLE V.—"PALESTINE AND ITS PRESENT."

Palestine is "the land of contrasts and extremes—the land of antiquity and intrigue." Perhaps no other country in the world has experienced so many invasions, or witnessed so many battles. The geographical position of Palestine has made it a bridge, a sore of a buffer territory, between Syria to the north and Egypt to the south. Its strategic political situation in the affairs of the earlier world has made it a constant point of controversy between its stronger neighbor powers. Palestine is a unique political asset but has very little economic advantage.

It has been under various foreign rulers, but seldom under its own. In ancient times it was under Egyptian rule, Assyrian rule, Greek rule, and Roman rule. In modern times it has been under Turkish rule. But since 1923, Palestine has been under the mandate of Great Britain, with a High Commissioner having an advisory council of four Moslems, three Christians and three Jews.

The plan of government in Palestine today also includes an elected legislative assembly of twenty-two official and twelve non-official members, which assembly cooperates with the High Commissioner. Palestine is politically divided into seven districts—Jerusalem, Jaffa, Haifa, Nazareth, Nablus, Gaza and Beersheba. Women are not permitted to vote in Palestine. And males are not entitled to vote until twenty-five years of age. Great Britain will likely hold its mandate over Palestine for a long time to come in order to keep its right-of-way to India.

Palestine has been called "the Land of Religions," but it is pathetic to see how little religion there is—many religions but little religion. Religion in Palestine today concerns itself more with ceremony than with service. Freedom of worship is found in Palestine. But pathetic rivalry in worship also obtains. Mohammedans have nothing to do with the Christians; the Roman Catholics have nothing to do with the Greek Catholics; neither of the Catholic groups have anything to do with the Protestants so far as inter-fellowship or cooperation are concerned. But instead, bitter jealousy and open antagonism prevail.

Palestine is the most interesting country in the world to readers and lovers of the Bible, not because of its physical charms which are few, but because of its spiritual values which are many. In Palestine, as perhaps nowhere else in all the world, "The Dead Past" speaks to "The Living Present."

"Palestine and Its Past" is concerned largely with the historical background of the country—the origin of its peoples—their struggles and conflicts—the tragedies and dramas that have been enacted upon the stage of Palestine life for more than sixty centuries, and the places of historical and archaeological interest which are many. It is only the "Palestine of the Past" that gives meaning and interest to "the Palestine of the Present."

"Palestine and Its Present" concerns life and conditions in Palestine today—the people who live there, the government of the people, their habits and customs, and the relation of the Palestine of yesterday to the Palestine of today. Palestine and its present cannot be dissociated from Palestine and its past. The two considerations are so interwoven that at times each naturally becomes a part of the other.

The Palestine of the past stands like an unyielding sentinel over the Palestine of the present, refusing to permit changes that will make the Palestine of today too much different from the Palestine of yesterday. And thus life and conditions in Palestine have remained pretty much the same down through all the centuries.

In considering Palestine and its present, some might suppose that one would naturally deal with the Zionist Movement, or what is taking place in regard to the return of the Jews of the world to their ancestral soil. It is true one cannot present the Palestine of today without giving consideration to this unique movement in the history of the country—"the home-coming of a people after 2,000 years of exile," and what such means to Palestine and its present.

But I prefer to consider the Zionist Movement in another article on that particular topic, for Zionists can be better understood in its relation to the future of Palestine than in its relation to the present.

While Palestine, strictly speaking, has only two seasons—winter and summer—or the rainy season and the dry season—our spring and autumn months are the most favorable seasons for visiting Palestine, March 15th to May 1st, or September 15th to November 1st. However, the summer months are becoming more and more used for pilgrimages to the Holy Land by students and professors and clergymen whose work will not permit them leaving in the spring or autumn.

The spring period is the best. The pre-Easter season witnesses thousands of people from all over the world making their pilgrimage into Palestine, more people visiting Palestine in the spring than in all the other seasons combined. The majority of visitors to Palestine go in the spring because of the fact that the country is the most beautiful at that season—the hills, mountains, plains and valleys being literally covered with wild flowers of every kind and color. And flowers in Palestine seem to have a richness of color and fragrance that is found in no other land.

Another reason that makes the spring season preferable for a visit to Palestine is that the weather then is neither too warm nor too cold. Moreover, no doubt the religious celebrations such as the Passover Week in Jerusalem, and the many Christian observances during the Lenten season and especially during Passion Week and on Easter in the land and in the very setting where our Lord lived and died, have a special appeal to thousands of people.

Some people say they would not care to visit Palestine because of their fear of experiencing too many disillusionments. And rather than to see the land as it actually is, they prefer to think of it in the light of their childhood impressions or in the light of fancy and idealization.

But such an attitude is a great illusion in itself. For every disillusionment one experiences on a visit to the Holy Land—and they are many—is more than compensated for by the enlarged significance of the reality of the land in its Biblical setting. To see Palestine as it really is, and to realize that the Palestine of today gives us the picture of the Palestine of yesterday, to visit the places where the Bible characters lived, to walk where they walked, to see what they saw, to know the country in its setting, and to see first hand the various locations mentioned in the Bible in their relationship to each other, makes the Bible a more living book. Indeed a pilgrimage to Palestine makes the Bible a new book to the Bible student visitor. It makes the Bible a more readable book, a far more interesting book, and a much more helpful book because it becomes a much more understandable book. In fact, a visit to Palestine gives one a greater Bible in every way, and therefore a greater Christ, a greater faith, a greater world and a greater challenge as a Christian disciple.

All of Palestine is interesting. It is the country to which Christian, Jew and Moslem; Greek Catholic, Roman Catholic and Protestant, turn with enquiring mind and with worshipful thought.

Palestine is unique. It is different from any other country in the world. The topography of the country is different. The amber colored hills and mountains are distinctive. The homes are different. The people seem different. But they dress and act much the same as the people of Palestine have done for more than five thousand years.

The Bedouins' black tents pitched along the mountain sides, the shepherds leading their flocks to better grazing grounds, the crippled and the poor of every type sitting by the roadsides begging alms—all this as seen in the picture of Palestine of today was the same as that seen in the picture of the Palestine of yesterday. The Palestine of today so far as the mountains, the hills, the plains, the valleys, the rivers and the lakes are concerned offer the same picture as that looked upon by the Old Testament patriarchs, the prophets, the judges, the kings and the marching armies of Israel down through all the centuries of the distant past.

As I stood one morning upon the high ridge back of Nazareth, where Jesus spent his boyhood days on up to the time he was a young man, I was inspired with the thought of how he had no doubt many times climbed that same alluring elevation and allowed his eyes to sweep over those same ancient landmarks of the Bible, and how he had often gazed upon those same landmarks on which my eyes feasted, scenes so rich in both tradition and historical interest, as well as in landscape beauty. I shall never forget the splendor of the sun as it rose over the mountain, and poured its light into the window of my room in the hotel at Nazareth. Jesus must often have been inspired by the splendor of the Palestinian sunrise and sunset, for the splendor of such seems to be a distinctive asset to that country.

The excavations of the archaeologists in Palestine, revealing the habits and customs of the ancient civilization, emphasizes the fact that from the beginning of the human family people have been ruled by the same emotions of fear and trust, love or hatred, loyalty or betrayal, and that the struggle between the lower and the higher, the struggle between the noble and the ignoble, the struggle between the right and the wrong have characterized the experience of the human family from the beginning of history clear down to the present hour, and will continue so to do until the end of time.

A visit to the Holy Land offers concrete object lessons of what has happened to leaders, individual citizens, communities and cities that have ignored the claim and demand of God for right living, and these object lessons from the history of the Holy Land should be a warning to all who ignore the will of God for their lives!

(The next article will be on the subject, "The Trans-Jordan Region and the Work of the Archaeologists on Both Sides of the Jordan River.")

BACK TO ELON IS CORRECT.

I don't recall an idea that I appreciate quite so much, and that I think will prove so helpful in many respects, as the idea suggested by Bro. R. L. House, in a recent issue of THE CHRISTIAN SUN, that we have a ministers' conference at Elon during next summer.

Truly, we all will be glad to go, and certainly a worthwhile program can be arranged, and if arranged to be held at the same time as the Summer School, then every minister will be glad and anxious to go and carry several young people from his church or churches.

Yes, let's go back to Elon.

C. E. GERRINGER.

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."

REV. F. C. LESTER, Editor, 505 S. Main St., Norfolk, Va.

LOYALTY TO THE CHURCH.

Three types of people are not loyal to the church. One group will go if the weather is right, there is no company to entertain, and they feel just fine, but if anything is out of order they do not think it wise to go to church or to share in its work. They very willingly leave the responsibility of the church to other people. Another group feels that a person can be a Christian without attending a church or sharing in the work which the church undertakes. This type of person would not join the army in time of war, but would undertake to fight the enemy alone and single handed. The third group is composed of those who do not believe the church has any value. This idea has come to its full fruition in Russia today, where the church has been completely outlawed and disbanded.

But some of us still believe it is important to be loyal to the church. We believe this, first, because the church was founded by Jesus of Nazareth and is a divine institution. Jesus was more than a man. Millions of people have called him the Son of God. He said that even the gates of hell shall not stand against the church. I want to be loyal to an institution that can overcome every kind of difficulty and will live forever.

Saint Paul said (I. Cor. 12) that the church is like the human body. It is composed of several different organs, and if one organ suffers the whole body suffers. Those who have had the toothache know this is so. If I should discover a cancer in my body tonight I would not go fishing tomorrow, but would go in search of a doctor who would remove that cancer from my body. I would not want to lose an eye or an arm because of this disease. The same is true of the church. If any member of the church suffers the whole group suffers, and we should not be content until the moral disease is removed and all the members are well and strong.

Again, the church releases spiritual energies for the benefit of mankind. Jesus said, "I give to you the keys of the kingdom. Whatsoever ye bind on earth shall be bound in heaven, and whatsoever ye release on earth shall be released in heaven." The electric company supplies plenty of current to illumine the church but there is no light until someone turns the switch. God has plenty of grace and power to supply all human needs but the divine blessing comes on the human family only as human beings make the right connections and assume a proper attitude toward God. A song from the heart of a Christian may sing itself in the soul of another and from that one to another one on through the ages. A kind deed may bring relief and joy to one who will be inspired to pass along the blessings through the years to come. A prayer may release spiritual energies that will thrill the hearts of people here or on the other side of the earth and set in motion certain good impulses that will last throughout the ages.

Because the church is a divine institution made of human beings who make mistakes and need to be helped, and because we can release spiritual energies which will transform life and bring joy, it is important that each of us be loyal to the church of Jesus Christ. When the voice from on high says, "Whom shall I send and who will go for us?" our hearts should reply, "Here am I, send me."

THERE'LL COME A TIME.

Sad? Blue? Depressed? Thinking that the world is about to go to the bow-wows and carry you along with it?

Oh, sure; we will get that way occasionally. There's no disgrace in that. The reproach is in not pulling yourself out of it!

The papers tell us every day or so about some poor devil who committed suicide because he brooded too much.

He just couldn't, or didn't, try to freshen up his nerve.

If life were all gladness, we'd become tired of being glad. Old man Euripides said a mouthful in this: "Sorrow gets tired of her sadness as the wind gets tired of blowing: the prosperous are not always prosperous; change is the mistress of all things; therefore, he that hopeth is wise, and he that despaireth is a fool."

He that hopeth is wise! Today's clouds won't hold much terror in the light of tomorrow's sun. Yesterday's night of gloom seems silly in the rejuvenated courage of today's dawn. There'll come a time when you will see that present adversities are but a schooling and a preparation for happier things.

Change is the lighthouse that keeps our ship of hope from going on the rocks.—The O. H. Silkworm.

ENTHUSIASM.

Enthusiasm is like the sparkle in the sapphire—the magic something which enabled Columbus to manage a mutinous crew, and carried Cortez with a handful of men to the inner temple of the Aztecs.

The dreamer of today is the creator of tomorrow.

We never learn the joy of living until we believe in something.

If we believe in that something with all our hearts, we begin to truly live.

There are always those ready to smile at enthusiasm, but it is a happy smile that is not apart from friendly envy.

In a salesman who knows his merchandise, it is the key to fortune and the magic combination to the treasure box.—Selected.

AVOIDING SHAMS AND PRETENSES.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC FOR NOV. 19, 1933.

Scripture: Matt. 23:1-39.

A Worship Program.

Theme—"Loyalty to the God of Truth."

Prelude—"Living for Jesus."

Hymn—"Beneath the Cross of Jesus."

Scripture—

Prayer—"O Father, forgive us for our falsehoods and evasions, for the shams that we have practiced, and for the false reasons we have given ourselves for turning against thy will. Thou hast put joy, truth, and deliverance into our hearts; yet too often we have kept some corner closed against thee, some door locked against thy presence. Give us the courage to break down these barriers. Give us wisdom to know thy will and to do it. Strengthen our faith in thee, because we are willing to give all of ourselves to thee, holding nothing back, raising no sham against thy holiness. For thou art truth, our Father, and we would know thee through thy Son and our Saviour, Jesus Christ, who taught men that we might know the truth and that the truth will make us free. Grant us thy forgiveness, and bless not only us, but thy children everywhere, that all may love thee and serve thee better. In the Master's name. Amen.

Sincerity. "What does sincerity mean to us?" To deal with this question first means that we are finding a positive position on what we are to seek in preference to shams and pretenses. One group came to such conclusions as the following:

That sincerity is living honestly and openly according to the best ideals we can find. We should not try to represent ourselves as better or worse than we are. That sincerity is genuine simplicity, consisting of good motives, respect for others, reasonable and unselfish ambitions, and Christian faith. That sincerity toward God is to surrender our lives to him to the fullest extent of which we are capable, and to judge ourselves in our relations to him more rigidly than we ever attempt to judge others. That sincerity means holding convictions that we can defend, and being willing to defend not with mere words, but with our daily acts, those convictions that we hold.

"Racial Superiority." Some of us have believed that we are members of a superior race or family. "In sculpture, in drama, in philosophy, are not the Greeks our teachers? It is worth remembering that the three greatest lines of men in history were the Greek philosophers, the Hebrew prophets, and the Christian apostles, pictured in those glorious works of art, Raphael's 'School of Athens,' Sargent's 'Prophets,' and DaVinci's 'The Last Supper.'"

Shams and Pretenses. John G. was invited to visit at a private home in Chicago, a friend of the family having learned that he wanted to see the Century of Progress Exposition. But John had boasted to young friends at home that he would stay at the B—— Hotel if he decided to go to Chicago. He maintained this pretense to the extent of having lunch at the hotel one day, and sending to his friends letters that had been written on the hotel's stationery. While such deception might be said to harm nobody but himself, consider that John was acting most ungratefully toward those who were entertaining him in their home. How might the attitude of John's group of friends be said to contribute to this attitude of his?

Some final considerations.

(a) Sincerity is a quality which every decent citizen must possess. If we find any insincerity in our lives we must quickly rid ourselves of it.

(b) A first requirement is that we shall strongly believe in such virtues as are found in the Ten Commandments and in Phil. 4:8, 9.

(c) We must develop early the habits of living within our income and of being true to our inner convictions regardless of the opinions and actions of others. We shall make this our plan of life: "To my best self, be true"; "pretense in nothing, absolute honesty in everything."

(d) We shall be our own sharpest critic, and the most sympathetic friend of others who may need improvement. It is dangerous to call others "pretenders"; they may have inner struggles which we do not guess. We shall try to improve others largely by the genuineness of our own lives.

"This above all: to thine own self be true,
And it must follow, as the night the day,
Thou canst not then be false to any man."

—Shakespeare.

If you persist in playing with a pretty fire, don't squeal if you get burned by a beautiful flame.—Milton Lee.

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE.

PAUL IN ATHENS.

GOLDEN TEXT: "In him we live, and move, and have our being."—Acts 17:28.

LESSON TEXT: Acts 17:22-34.

When Paul was driven out of Berea, friends accompanied him to Athens, where he awaited Silas and Timothy. He evidently planned to wait until these, his co-workers, came to Athens before beginning his work. But his experience in Athens stirred the soul and he could not keep quiet, so with characteristic energy he began to preach and to teach, first to the Jews, and then to the larger and more cultured audience of the Athenians.

A Man Who Cared.

Luke says, "Now while Paul waited for them at Athens, his spirit was stirred in him, when he saw the city wholly given to idolatry." As he had walked through the streets of the city he had seen the temples dedicated to the gods, and the innumerable statues and altars and idols, mute evidences of idolatry and superstition, and also silent but eloquent evidence of the heart-hunger of the Athenians for real religion. There was something about the thing that tugged at Paul's heart. "His spirit was stirred in him." It made some difference to him. He cared. And he cared enough to do something about it. This is one of the most important factors in a man's life, certainly in a Christian's life—to care about the sins and the ignorance and the superstition and the heart-hunger of those who do not know the true God. This was one of the distinguishing marks of Jesus—His compassion for others. It is one of the most distinguishing marks of those who have the spirit of Jesus—caring enough for others to do something about it. Our modern world needs men and women, and young people, who care, who feel burdened by the needs of others, who have compassion for those who do not know the true God.

Epicureans and Stoics.

The Epicureans were devotees of pleasure, not necessarily of immoral pleasure, and they believed in essence that this life was all. They were materialists, and of course they did not believe in the resurrection.

The Stoics were materialists, pantheists (they believed God was everything, but not spirit), fatalists (they believed that man was caught up in unchanging law and that although God's providence was concerned with the material world, it was not concerned with persons), and they were very proud (they believed that man must and man could "grin and bear" whatever came. He did not need God.) Needless to say, Paul's preaching about Jesus and the resurrection was strange doctrine to them.

The Unknown God.

The Athenians had statues and idols to this god and that god, but they evidently had not been exactly satisfied with their gods for Paul noticed one altar dedicated to "The Unknown God." Paul knew this Unknown God. And because he knew him, he wanted everybody else to know him. He, therefore, set about to declare the existence and the character and the relation of this God to men and women. "Whom, therefore, ye ignorantly worship, him declare I unto you."

That is the mission of the missionary. The peoples of so-called heathen lands worship the same God that we worship, but to them he is unknown as we know him, and they worship him ignorantly. That very impulse to worship comes from the true and the living God. The mission of the missionary is to reveal and to make known the God who is Unknown.

It is the mission of the minister and the Sunday School worker to make known the Unknown God. It is the mission of parents. It is the mission of every disciple of Christ to seek in every way to make known to those who do not know him, the Unknown, but the KNOWABLE GOD.

It ought to be called to our attention, however, that there is a great deal of difference between knowing about God and knowing God. A great many people who can talk glibly about God, and who know all the historic facts of the life of Christ, and are familiar with Christ's teachings, do not know God or Christ. They know about him; they do not know him. Jesus says, "This is life eternal: to know thee the only true God and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent." Paul said he counted all things but loss that he might KNOW HIM. To know God personally, intimately, vitally, is life's supreme privilege and life's supreme joy.

Paul did not say everything about God in this one address, but he said some interesting things. He said God created the world and all things that are therein. He said that God was spirit and was not material. He said that God gives to all, life, and breath, and all things. He said that God was the common Father of all nations of men, and that implied that all men are brothers. He said that the very impulse to seek God came from God himself. He said that God is the very presence in which we live, not a God who is afar off and one who does not care for the world which he has made, or the children whom he has created. He said that God was not to be worshipped as a thing of gold or silver or stone, but in spirit and in truth. He said that God had been patient and long-suffering with the race—Paul uses a striking phrase, "the times of this ignorance God has winked at." He said that God commanded men to repent. He said that God had appointed a judgment day in which men would be judged in righteousness by Christ. And he said that God had given evidence of his power and of his approval of Jesus by raising him from the dead. Here are some of the fundamental and basic facts in the Christian religion. They need new emphasis in our materialistic, idolatrous, troubled age.

Some Mocked.

"And when they heard of the resurrection of the dead, some mocked." They still do. Talk to some people about the abiding spiritual realities and they mock. They relegate religion to the past, or disdainfully refer it to those who do not know any better. As for them, they know so much, that they cannot find any place for religion in their thinking or in their lives. Even Paul could not do much in Athens in this atmosphere.

Procrastination.

"We will hear thee again of this matter." Alas for those of us who are always hoping for a more convenient season to obey the truth or to follow the vision. The old saying, "The streets of hell are paved with good intentions has more truth than fiction.

Certain Believed.

God's word shall not return unto him void. Even in this cold, intellectual, materialistic atmosphere, there were those who heard and responded to the truth. Our duty is to speak the word in season and out of season. God is responsible for results. And if we sow, he will give increase.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 16-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $4.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3/4 x 5 1/2 Inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3 3/4 x 5 1/2 Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps $2.50

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5 3/8 x 8 1/2 Inches and 1 3/8 Inches Thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With Concise Bible Dictionary, combined Concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold $4.75

RED-LETTER EDITION.

With All the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands; title stamped on side and back in pure gold $3.25

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations; special book for Sunday Schools 95c

Any of the above Bibles sent postpaid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street

Richmond, Virginia

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy

"O Lord, I beseech thee, let now thine ear be attentive to the prayer of thy servant, and to the prayer of thy servants, who desire to fear thy name, and prosper, I pray thee, thy servant this day."

MONDAY.

THEME FOR THE WEEK.

(A new interpretation of Christ's temptations. Taken from E. Stanley Jones' book: "Christ and Human Suffering.")

Prayer—O Lord, our God, far beyond the borders of our opinions and practices, in mosque and temple, synagogue and church, we remember those who pray. However slender the ladder of their need, let some angel from the Divine come to succor them. O God, gather up, we beseech thee, the spiritual forces of the world to work for those without which humanity starves. We have talked of peace, yet we prepare for war; we have talked of brotherhood, and, lo, prejudice divides us; we have talked of justice, but, lo, some are too rich and many are too poor! We beseech thee to touch the deep centers of spiritual life in all of us. Let conscience speak and intellect awake and volition grow strong. May we go out into this generation, whatever our name or sign, with the strength of every church and every creed, to work for humaneness, justice and mercy. We ask it in the spirit of Christ.—Amen.

—Selected.

TUESDAY.

FIRST: SON OF GOD.

"Straightway the Spirit driveth him into the wilderness."—Matt. 1-12.

"The tempter came to him, and said, if thou be the Son of God command that these stones be made bread."—Matt. 4:3.

Jones sets forth the teachings of this temptation as follows: After his baptism, Christ must have had a strong reaction. He was driven into the wilderness to fight it out. Fight what? What he was to be to man. Being the Son of God, would he also be the Son of Man. He fought it out alone for forty days. He forgot himself and grew hungry and assayed to go back and eat. The devil said, "No! Why go back? You are the Son of God. Perform a miracle and stay on. You need not be the Son of Man."

The first temptation of a Christian soul is to claim experience apart from man and feel the proud possessor of divine grace which renders one immune to the pains, sufferings, problems, and troublesome issues of life.

If that were true, it would solve the problems of sin and suffering by its own separation from it. Since that cannot be, to attempt it produces pessimism.

So Jesus settles one question: Being the Son of God and Saviour of men, he must live among men and with men, and live the same life they live.

The way out of the world of sin is not to escape it.

Prayer—Our Father, we are often beset by temptations to forsake thee because we do not always see the reason for untoward conditions in the world. Help us to see like Jesus saw; to dedicate our lives like he did to his cause and rise through him above all sufferings and sin. This we ask for Jesus sake.—Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

THE EXALTED SON OF GOD.

"Setteth him on a pinnacle of the temple."—Matt. 4:5.

It appears that Jesus has returned to humanity to carry out this purpose of being a Saviour to man by living among men. He is in the city. He finds himself on a tower called a "pinnacle" of the temple.

Jones puts it this way: The devil says, "Well if you must be with men, do not get down on their level. Exalt yourself to the proper dignity. You are the sign of heaven, hold yourself up where you can be gazed at and worshipped. Maintain a prestige and poise by fitting the Kingdom of God. If you throw yourself down among them on their level you won't fit. The angels of heaven will lift you up again. Your place is away up and not down with the wretched multitudes."

Jesus fought this out and concluded that to consider himself above and superior to the children of men is ignoble and satanic. It is the attitude of those who are proud in position; it is the attitude of class; such never get to people. To do that meant to Jesus that he couldn't be the Son and Saviour of Man. So he said, "No, I must live with men and help them."

Prayer—Our Father, we thank thee that Jesus was man and loved us all and loves us still. That he is our Saviour, we accept him Lord, and pray that we too may be somewhat like him in our feelings in the brotherhood of man.—Amen.

THURSDAY.

HAIL FELLOW WELL MET.

"Again, the devil taketh him up into an exceeding high mountain, and showeth him all the kingdoms of the world, and the glory of them; and saith unto him, all these things will I give thee, if thou wilt fall down and worship me."—Matt. 4:9, 9.

This is the third temptation, and Jesus is still struggling with a problem. The devil says, "If you are determined to be a Son of Man, then take on their spirit, and be one with them. Go the full way, merge your spirit with theirs on every occasion. Use the methods of man in order to gain him. Use worldly methods if you would gain the world."

So, Jesus fought it out and said: "No, I will let the things that fall on man fall on me, but I will take them to God. They must find God in me. Only by being inwardly different from them can I change them. Only in life will I be with them and that to bless with a light that shows them the way to glory."

Thus, Jesus takes his place alongside man, meets everything man needs, calls on no power that is not also at man's disposal, and yet in it all be something different in a way which makes everyone feel at home in the presence of the Lord. How beautiful! We need a Saviour that is like us, that we may take hold of him; and we need him unlike us, that he may be our Redeemer. Jesus fought out his problem clear through to be both—and he won.

Prayer—Our Father, never before did we feel more strongly that "It is not by might nor by power, but by my spirit saith the Lord." Grant unto us thy spirit and we pray for love in the worship of thee every day and at all times.—Amen.

FRIDAY.

THE FOURTH TEMPTATION. A DISQUIETED SOUL.

"Sirs, we would see Jesus."—Jno. 12:21.

We are not accustomed to think of Jesus as having but three temptations, and we usually think that these covered all others. Jones gives us another one which seems quite potent.

It was when the Greeks came seeking him. This visit of the Greeks is represented as one of the most fateful moments in the life of Christ, comparable with the wilderness temptations and far more subtle. The wilderness temptations were temptations at the beginning of a career; the Greek one is a temptation which came at the zenith of a career.

This temptation is the temptation which one feels when he feels that his work is done and he should take care of himself and let down and take it easier.

The proposition of the Greeks, Moffatt says, was to beseech Jesus to come over and reside in their country and take it easy the balance of his life, and not to go madly on and let them kill him. Jesus is quoted as saying, "My soul is disquieted within me." If Jesus said that, the struggle must have been great. These saw the storm ahead. They knew he would be killed.

So it was an issue with Christ—Athens or the cross. What must he do? Which way must he go? This was a battle not with the good or the bad—it was all good. It was a battle between the good and the best, good without a cross, and the best with a cross.

Most of us would take the easier way. But suppose Jesus had? He found his answer in what seems a soliloquy, "Except a grain of wheat fall into the earth and die, it abideth by itself alone; but if it die, it beareth much fruit."

Life comes through giving life. Fruit comes through dying. Christ did not need to try to live longer. He had a work to do and to live did not matter. He would go on and teach men that they cannot accomplish a mission of good by abiding their own resources, that the price of giving must be paid. "He that saveth his life shall lose it. He that loseth his life for my sake shall find it."

The Greeks were asking him to live his life and save it, and thus save others; they were asking him to bless without bleeding, but he knew it could not be done.

Prayer—(Do pray as your own soul feels now.)

SATURDAY.

PRAYER AND RAIN.

"The supplication of a righteous man availeth much in its working."—Read James 5:13-18.

The great drought this year naturally gave rise to many discussions of the efficacy of prayer. "Of course prayer does not affect the weather," bluntly declared a distinguished clergyman. Our Saviour has promised us that whatever we ask God for, believing, we shall receive. Who was mistaken, the clergyman referred to, or the Son of God?

The real mistake lies in forgetting the condition of successful prayer, which is vital union with the Father. A prayer inspired by the Holy Spirit can not fail, for it is equivalent to a promise of God. That is why Christ's prayers were always successful: He was in absolute harmony with the Father.

Prayer—Dear Lord, may we not ask amiss. And let all our prayers end like thy Gethsemane prayer, "Nevertheless, not my will, but thine, be done."—Amen. AMOS R. WELLS.

SUNDAY.

PUT OUT FIRE.

"What fellowship have righteousness and iniquity?"—Read II. Cor. 6:14-18.

A lighted match was thrown down near a colony of big black ants in the Yellowstone National Park, causing a blaze. At once, while the rest
(Continued on page 15)

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Preacher

BE PERFECT.

By LEWIS H. KELLER.

"Ye therefore shall be perfect, as your heavenly Father is perfect."—Matt. 5:48.

It is a remarkable sentence in the world's greatest sermon. Spoken to the multitude of common people on the mountain side the command to be perfect sounds strange. And, strange enough, the sentence is the key-sentence to the Sermon on the Mount. The little adverb, "therefore," relates the text to every part of the Sermon on the Mount. Because of all the things proclaimed in this Gospel of the glad tidings the hearers are commanded to be perfect. And the command is assurance that the hearers may be perfect, in the sense in which Jesus uses the word. It is a promise, an ideal, a challenge.

The dictionary is not a highway to the interpretation of these words, "be perfect." The congregation on the mountain side did not have dictionaries in their heads or at their elbows. As a teacher and preacher Jesus was ever profound, but never academic. He spoke in the practical language of the people and they heard him gladly.

There is a comparatively recent book on happiness, in which the author uses the case-method of interpretation. Happiness is studied through the experience of some fifty people from different walks of life and from these studies conclusions are reached. Let us approach the text by a hurried glance at four Bible groups of persons.

And first, through the congregation gathered on the mountain side to hear the words of the Master Preacher of all the ages. Jesus was ever moved with compassion for the multitudes that surrounded him. And small wonder. The people were to him, not a crowd but individuals. Each upturned face meant to him a personal history, a need, a hunger, perhaps a tragedy. He saw them in the light of the age and conditions in which they lived. They were to him as sheep without a shepherd. Patriarch and prophet were dead. Israel's glorious conception of God and life had fallen upon evil times. Hillel was the hair-splitting teacher in Jerusalem. Annas, crafty and mercenary, was the ruler of the people. Judaism had become petty in its trifling ceremonies, corrupt in its government. For bread the people were given a stone; for fish, a serpent.

And now, when the people heard this sermon, they looked up to a new spiritual firmament, filled with glorious stars and radiant galaxies. Please read this Sermon on the Mount again. You seem to stand out in a new spiritual universe. Things are not what they seem. Mourners are happy. The poor are rich. The humble have a whole kingdom. The persecuted are blest. Peasants are the light of the world, the preserving salt for a decadent civilization. Prayer is simple and has wondrous power. God is Father. He clothes lilies and the souls of men. He notes the sparrow's fall. Anger becomes murder and war. The lustful thought pollutes the life, wrecks homes. Profanity coarsens and wrecks. Worry wastes. God knows your needs. Earthly treasures speed to moth and rust. Purity is vision of God.

What a vision opened up to these Galilean peasants as they hear him who spoke as never man spoke! Even now that vision revolutionizes the life of a Tolstoi and makes a Gandhi Christian. It sends its sweet but terrific challenge into homes, factories, banks, and the courts of the rulers of the world.

It was as if Jesus said to that awe-filled congregation: Be the things you see. Follow on. Grow. Face the heights. Aspire. Be perfect.

Second, and more briefly, the case of the rich young ruler. He ran and bowed low to Jesus. He wanted to know how he might find eternal life. It was the yearning of an earnest soul. Jesus interpreted his request in terms of the perfect, developed life. He said: You need not continuity, but fullness of being. Deserve tomorrow by being great today. There is no reason why you should live tomorrow when you do not deserve today. You are rich, but spending your income on yourself. See the needy folks about you. Help them. Enlarge your life to include them, to make them happy. I am establishing a kingdom of love and kindness. It is difficult. I need you. The world needs you. Think of the world as God thinks of it. Help others and thus develop a soul. Grow. Be large. Be perfect through service to others.

Third, the perfection of loyalty. David's heart was perfect with God. He was loyal to Saul who was seeking to kill him. He was loyal to Jonathan, and to his children after he had fallen in battle. He was loyal to Joab, his nephew, who plotted for the throne. Ever and in all ways he lived for Jehovah and his people. And for centuries after him all kings were measured by the loyalty of David to Jehovah. And the throne was David's forever because he was perfect in heart before God and toward man.

America and the world need most a heart trust. We have not been true to God. In the recent war we killed many millions of the choice young men of the race, burned up in death-weapons the accumulated treasures of the ages, sowed deep in the hearts of men the ugly seeds of distrust and hate. No recovery schemes from Washington politicians can save us. The nation must gather on the mountain side and hear the proclamation of human brotherhood from the lips of the Son of God. Opinions divide. Hearts unite us. We may, we must be, perfect in heart.

Fourth, there is perfection through pain. Jesus the Great High Priest of the race, was made perfect through suffering. He suffered then, he suffers now. God suffers. He carries on his heart, now and ever, the sufferings of the world. Our every sorrow and pain casts a shadow on his loving heart. He is moved by the tear of a child. Not so are heathen gods. God is perfect in suffering. Zeus, Jupiter, Diana were not.

You have known sufferers whose souls became saintly through pain. Sorrow may wreck or perfect the soul. Thorns in the flesh, stripes, imprisonments, crosses, losses, the unwanted but inevitable ills of life, may be ministering angels.

And now, according to this brief case-study, perfection is not something theological but practical. Perfection comes through life processes and not alone, if ever, in a sudden mystical experience. It comes on some mountain-side when the heart yields to the allurements of the divine message in the soul. It comes when Jesus meets us on the way and asks us to share our wealth and power with human need.

It comes when, as king or servant, we declare eternal loyalty to God and the wide human brotherhood. And it comes in ways of pain and trouble as we bow in some Gethsemane or climb some rugged Golgotha.

When Christ calls us to perfection he speaks as the artist of the soul. He came into the world with a passion to complete, beautify and redeem human life. Our weakness and imperfections challenge his strength. Our sins gave him sorrow. He appealed to that in us which desires beauty, health, wholesome, order and the things which please and refine. He is the artist of the soul and in this text he holds up to us the transcendent and alluring beauty of a personality fashioned according to the divine model. This passion for perfection may become to us the mighty urge that will drive us forward through weakness, failure and difficulties till we are changed, from glory to glory, as by the Spirit of the Lord.

When we look upon the world and see the unrealized possibilities of the human spirit, we take up the plea of the hymn:

O Master, from the mountain side,
Make haste to heal these hearts of pain;
Among these restless throngs abide,
O tread the city's streets again;
Till sons of men shall learn thy love,
And follow where thy feet have trod;
Till glorious from the heaven above,
Shall come the City of our God.

COMMUNION WARE. Individual Service.

ALUMINUM.

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A.

- Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses $7.00
- Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses 6.75
- Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses 6.50
- Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
- Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
- Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim..... 1.60

(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)

SILVER-PLATED.

The Silver-plated Ware is of the very highest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.

- Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses.$22.00
- Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85. 11.00
- Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85... 16.00
- Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling). $22.00
- Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90... 16.00
- Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90. 14.00

- Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow Rim.....$ 9.00
- Bread Plate No. 4—Broad Rim..... 9.00
- Filler—Silver Lined..... 6.00

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street

Richmond, Virginia

The Christian Orphanage - Elon College, N. C.

MAIN BUILDING—CHRISTIAN ORPHANAGE

The first child was admitted January 28, 1907. Since that date 377 children have been admitted.

The Christian Orphanage appeals to every Church and Sunday School for a Special Thanksgiving Offering during the Thanksgiving Season—Remember the fatherless children!

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

Do you happen to know that the little children in your Christian Orphanage need shoes, need clothes, and need coal to keep them and the buildings warm this winter? Do you happen to know that the income has been so small this year that we do not have money to buy these things? We are grieved much that this is true; we thought the reason that this is true is because of the fact that you did not know it. The weather is getting cold. We are like the story we once read.

A wealthy old lady who had been very close in her giving while on earth, dreamed she had died and went to heaven, and an angel was showing her around up there. They would come to one mansion and the angel would say, "That is where Mr. So and So lives, who was a poor man on earth, but was liberal with what he had and gave to the needy." She was shown many mansions and finally they came to a small insignificant house and the angel said, "This is yours and it is where you are to live." The old lady said, "Why should I be treated this way? I had a fine mansion on earth." The angel replied, "The Master Builder has done his best with the material you have sent up." I am doing my very best with the money you have sent to us this year.

I trust that the Sunday Schools and churches will give each individual an opportunity to make an offering when you take the offering in your church. Let us send up lots of material to build our mansions in the better world. We can count our blessings one by one, but how about the good deeds we do to help the fatherless, the homeless, and the needy?

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON, Supt.

REPORT FOR NOVEMBER 16, 1933.

Brought forward $10,159.19

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

North Carolina and Virginia Conference:
United, Lynchburg	$ 10.00
Happy Home	3.10
Durham	18.08
Union, N. C.	2.17
Mt. Bethel	7.21
3rd Ave., Danville	4.70	45.26
Eastern North Carolina Conference:
Mebane	$ 5.69
Lebanon	1.44
Pleasant Hill (J)	2.77	9.90
Western North Carolina Conference:
Ramseur	$ 3.00
High Point	2.60
Hank's Chapel	2.30
Burlington	40.29	48.19
Eastern Virginia Conference:
Barrett's	$.83
W. W. Staley Missionary Circle,
Bethlehem	5.00
Rosemont	10.44
South Norfolk	7.33
Liberty Spring S. S. & Classes....	7.00	30.60
Valley Virginia Central Conference:
Mt. Olivet G		1.50
Alabama Conference:
Wadley	$.45
Roanoke	1.00	1.45

Special Offerings.

Mission Board of South. Conv.....	$ 30.00
A Friend, Durham, N. C.	10.00
W. P. Perry, support Billy Perry..	10.00
Mrs. Dalton, support children.....	12.50
Rev. Herbert Scholtz	5.00	67.50
Total for the week		$ 204.40
Grand total		$10,363.59

The Educational Committee of the Eastern North Carolina Conference will meet at Wentworth Church, McCullers, N. C., November 21, 1933. Any one having business with the Committee will take due notice.

E. M. CARTER, Chairman.

THE FAMILY ALTAR.

(Continued from page 12.)

of the ants calmly continued their work, about fifty of them set out for the fire. Some were burned to death, but still others fought on and with real heroism, until the fire was all out and their homes were safe.

When all Christians contend as earnestly against evil as those tiny insects fought with fire, we shall begin to have a true Christian civilization. We have not yet resisted unto blood, striving against sin. We hire spiritual firemen to do our work for us, or we go to sleep trusting that the flames will burn themselves out harmlessly.

Prayer—A fiercer hatred of wrong, O our God! A wrath more like thy divine wrath! A courage that will not falter, for our own protection and the safety of men!—Amen.

ELON COLLEGE

AN ACCREDITED COLLEGE

of the

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING.

ELON COLLEGE, founded by the Christian Church in 1889, has fully justified the faith and hope of its founders during its 42 years of operation. Its graduates from the four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree, number 980, now living, 122 of whom are in the Christian Ministry and full-time Christian service. The majority of these are members of our own denomination. In addition, 449 are in educational work and are an active influence in the lay leadership of the Christian Church.

THE CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING, and the definite religious atmosphere of the College, provide the very best facilities available for training for religious leadership, and offer the Church its finest opportunity to train the young people of the denomination to assume active leadership both in the ministry and laity of the local churches.

FALL TERM OPENS SEPTEMBER 7th.

Address—

C. M. CANNON, Registrar

Elon College, - - - - North Carolina

Home Atmosphere—Reasonable Rates—Clean Athletics—Christian Spirit

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr
A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Congregational-Christian Church.

Central Publishing Co., Inc., is complying with the President's Code

BOARD OF EDITORS.

- J. O. ATKINSON, D. D..... Editor
- E. C. GILLETTE, D. D..... Associate
- S. C. HARRELL, D. D..... Contributing
- C. R. RAYMOND, D. D..... Contributing
- ELISHA A. KING, D. D..... Contributing
- W. C. WICKER, D. D..... Contributing
- J. T. KERNODLE..... Managing Editor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

- One Year$2.00
- Six Months 1.00

Trial Subscriptions: Five or more new subscriptions sent in at one time by pastor or president of any church organization, three months for 40c each.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Change of Address: Be sure to give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

All news matter and items to be published in "The Sun" should be addressed to J. O. Atkinson, Editor, Elon College, N. C., and should reach him not later than Friday preceding date of publication. If more convenient, news from Congregational Churches may be sent to E. C. Gillette, Associate Editor, 117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla. Emergency notices will be received at the Richmond Office up until Tuesday of week of publication.

All remittances for subscriptions, renewals, advertising, etc., books for review, and other matters of business should be addressed to J. T. Kernodle, Managing Editor, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

Notices: Obituary and marriage notices, limited to 125 words, published free. All over 125 words, 1c a word, cash with notice. No notices should exceed 250 words.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows date of expiration, and change on label will appear the first or second issue of the month following renewal, provided it was received before the 25th. No other receipt will be sent unless requested. Please notify the Richmond Office if label is not changed as above.

OBITUARIES

SHEPPARD.

Since the last session of this Conference, the Lord has seen fit in his infinite wisdom and goodness to remove from our ranks one of our best and most universally loved preachers and pastors, Rev. A. H. Sheppard. He loved his family, his church, his God, and was faithful to all. He was most humble and Godly in all his living and dealing with his fellowmen. He fell in the prime of his manhood. In his going we have sustained a very great loss, but our loss is his gain. We, therefore, recommend that we stand, and with bowed heads, acknowledge the righteousness of God's will, and his dealing with him and us. That we extend our profound sympathy to his bereaved family. That a copy of this resolution be spread on the minutes of this Conference, a copy be sent to the bereaved family, and a copy be sent to "The Christian Sun" for publication.

J. D. DOLLAR,
W. M. STEVENS,
For Alabama Christian Conference.

KITCHEN.

Virginia Ann Kitchen, daughter of the late James B. and Mary Kitchen, was born February 4, 1850, and went to her reward August 19, 1933, aged 83 years, 6 months and 15 days.

Miss Kitchen was a member of a family of seven children, four boys and three girls. She was preceded in death by her family. She is survived by several nieces and nephews.

The funeral was conducted by the writer from the grave in the family cemetery, near Wakefield, Va., in the presence of many of her friends.

God bless those who mourn for those who have gone before.

C. E. GERRINGER.

RITENOUR.

Floyd F. Ritenour was born November 16, 1884, and died October 5, 1933, aged 48 years, 10 months, and 19 days. Bro. Ritenour and wife used to attend church at Dry Run during the early days of my ministry there. Later they moved near

Washington, D. C. Bro. Ritenour united with the Methodist Church a short time before his death. He was held in high esteem by all who knew him. He is survived by his wife. Funeral services were held at Woodstock, Va., October 7, 1933.

You will never enter into the life of rest and victory, you will never know what it is to be one with the Father in Christ through the Spirit, until you have learned the divine law that life is one, that you cannot sever the secular from the spiritual—Webb-Peploe.

A. W. ANDES.

PIEDMONT COLLEGE

Located in

"The Blue Ridge Highlands"

FALL TERM BEGINS
SEPTEMBER 13.

An accredited college with an enviable reputation for superior classroom instruction, and wholesome student life.

Fully recognized and accredited in its home State, and in such neighboring States as North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Tennessee and others. Standard courses leading to the A. B. and B. S. degrees.

Cost for Board, Room and Tuition, including also Entrance, Activity, and Infirmary fees reduced to $273.50 for the College Year. Personal expenses as low as student and parent wish.

All who seek an "A" grade college training for their sons and daughters in an atmosphere of Christian culture, and at minimum cost, are invited to write for the college catalogue and admission blanks.

Address: DEAN J. C. ROGERS,
DEMOREST, GEORGIA.

Southern Seminary Foundation

(Successor to Atlanta Theological Seminary.)

AFFILIATED WITH

Vanderbilt University

The Foundation and the other Foundations that are affiliated with Vanderbilt University School of Religion comprise the only Interdenominational Theological School in the South. Through this affiliation the students enjoy the rights and privileges of Vanderbilt University.

DEGREES.

Candidates for degrees are required to have completed their college courses.

The degree of Bachelor of Divinity is offered to qualified students who complete the required courses.

Vanderbilt University also offers the degrees of Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy, in accordance with the regulations established in its several departments.

MORE THAN A SCHOOL OF THEOLOGY.

Because of our affiliation with Vanderbilt, our relations with other nearby colleges where our students can take courses without tuition, and the cooperation of the American Red Cross and other social agencies in the city, we prepare students for many types of Christian service.

Come to Nashville, the Educational Center of the South, and prepare for Christian leadership. A Graduate School open to both men and women, with opportunities for self-help.

For information write

WILLIAM JAMES CAMPBELL, President,
330 BUTTRICK HALL, VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY,
NASHVILLE, TENN.

SOUTHERN UNION COLLEGE

FRANK E. JENKINS, Acting President.

WINTER QUARTER WILL BEGIN
NOVEMBER 29th.

* * * *

STRONG FACULTY : STRONG COURSES
LOW EXPENSES : THOROUGHLY
CHRISTIAN.

* * * *

The Adult Education Department is growing rapidly, with over 60 already enrolled.

For prospectus and full information, write

DEAN MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD,
WADLEY, ALABAMA

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Representing the Southeast Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXV.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 23, 1933.

NUMBER 47.

•• THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY ••

1,600 Bachelors Ordered to Marry.—

"Following the example set by Premier Mussolini, in Italy," says an Associated Press dispatch, "the burgomaster at Frankfurt-on-the-Main, Germany, has ordered 1,600 bachelors employed by the city to get married. The order affects all city workers—officials and laborers."

Russian Receives Nobel Prize.—

For the first time in history, the Nobel Prize for Literature has been awarded to a Russian. Ivan Bunin is, however, a White Russian, and lives in France, not Russia. He has been in France since 1927. He is said to have smilingly referred to the 5,000,000 francs won by a Tarascon barber in the French lottery, when told that his prize amounted to 600,000 francs.

Whale Soup.—

Why not? Whale soup is likely to become a part of the diet of quite a large number of people, for we are told that an extract from whale flesh suitable for making soup is soon to appear in Norway and other countries as a result of a process for preparing this extract developed by a Norwegian chemist, D. A. Hansen by name. These extracts can be made for about three cents a pound, according to reports to the American Chemical Society.

A New Safety Glass.—

A new type of safety glass costing approximately half as much as the present type of glass, is now under observation. The usual type of safety glass is made by sandwiching a very thin sheet of celluloid or similar substance between two thin sheets of glass. This new type is obtained by treating a single sheet of glass in a special furnace and then cooling it. It is claimed that this annealing process causes the outer part of the glass to become extremely hard, while the inner part remains softer, thus producing a glass less liable to break or splinter. It is said that a blow violent enough to pierce the outer skin will cause the entire glass to disintegrate into small granular crystals, there being no sharp edges.

Sodom and Gomorrah Uncovered.—

Father Alexis Mallon, French priest and scientist, has recently presided at the re-discovery of Sodom and Gomorrah. The ruins of these cities are said to be the largest of any yet uncovered in Palestine, revealing the fact that they were once large and populous, with buildings as much as fifty feet in height, and many other evidences of wealth and culture. Fragments of pottery and other relics have been found dating as far back as three thousand years before Christ. These show that such rites as snake worship and human sacrifices were common among the people. Furniture was made of stone and bronze. Precious stones and pearls were used for ornaments. The Pathfinder, from which these facts are gleaned, says: "The destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah is well authenticated in history, and was undoubtedly caused by a catastrophe which is well described by the Biblical account." Explaining that oil and gas are abundant in the vicinity of these cities, it continues: "An earthquake which released oil and gas, accompanied by lightning and fire, could very well have brought destruction on these twin cities of evil, just as the Bible says."

Mr. Woodin's Leave of Absence.—

In the retirement of under-Secretary Acheson, who was "in total disagreement" with the new United States Treasury policy, and the leave of absence given Secretary Woodin, is seen a determination on the part of the Administration to have cheaper money, regardless of the fears of these officials that his stand would "react against the White House and the country." The New York Times, in commenting on the appointment of Henry Morgenthau as Acting Secretary, believes that "Mr. Morgenthau's lack of financial experience is not considered a bar," for "decision as to inflation and the power to invoke it rests solely with the President. He could inflate if he wants to, with his Treasury assistants Herbert Hoover and Ogden Mills. And he could stand for sound money if Senator Thomas of Oklahoma were his Secretary of the Treasury." The World-Telegram thinks that there is "no additional evidence needed to show that the President is deliberately experimenting with a sliding dollar in an effort to raise price-levels." However, it does not think that the public should be alarmed as yet. In this connection, there is a most timely article in the current issue of The Saturday Evening Post, by Bernard M. Baruch, which strongly opposes inflation. It becomes doubly interesting in view of the recent visit of Mr. Baruch to the White House, along with those of Alfred E. Smith, J. P. Morgan and Myron Taylor.

Tombstone Awakens.—

Such is the head of an article in the Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty, which is as follows: "Western towns have a way of waxing, waning, and sometimes waxing again. The person who gave a certain Arizona community the name of Tombstone, must have expected it to come to a desolate end. In 1920 the census-taker found 1,179 people, but by 1930 there were only 849 left. This shift in population has been reflected in the activities of our church. The pastor, Marion W. Baker, reports that since his coming in 1926 there has been a 100 per cent change in his Sunday School teachers and officers.

But just now things are waking up. He writes: 'For the present the old camp is vibrant with action. The gas pipeline from El Paso to Phoenix will pass near here, so this is the headquarters of the crews which will lay fifty miles of it. The building of new roads on either side of town is employing perhaps 100 men. The mines are more active than they have been for five years, and are shipping considerable ore. Not a habitable house in or near Tombstone is unoccupied. We are also expecting authorization from Washington for the building of the Charleston dam, a flood control project eight miles distant on the San Pedro River, which will cost $2,000,000. This development would re-inforce the climate as a basis for permanent residence. Tombstone may regain its position of forty years ago as the chief metropolis between El Paso and Los Angeles. Who knows?' Such communities constitute persistent and puzzling problems."

Heavier Water Is Discovered.—

Until recently, even the scientist would agree that water was water. Of course everyone knows that was water of different degrees of "hardness" or "softness"; water that was palatable and water that was not; water that was safe to drink and water that contained malignant germs; but pure water was a combination of two atoms of hydrogen with one atom of oxygen, and that's all there was to it. And that's all there is to it now. But the scientist comes along and tells us that the oxygen which "we" had accepted as having an immediate atomic weight of 16, may weigh 17 or 18, while hydrogen, the basic weight of all atomic weights, one, may even be double its own weight, that is, two. Thus there may be as many as nine different kinds of pure water, "each of which probably has a different freezing and boiling point and specific gravity, and different chemical and physical values." There is no reason to become alarmed about this heavy water, for the general public will not have to start drinking it immediately. Edward Pendray, writing in the Literary Digest, says that "there is only about one part of heavy water in 5,000 parts of ordinary rain water," and that because of unavoidable losses in the process, it requires about 1,200 gallons of ordinary water to produce three ounces of this new, heavier kind. The present output of the laboratory in the Princeton Department of Chemistry is a thimbleful a day. This is to be doubled as soon as possible. "Princeton now has on hand," he continues, "less than a half pint of the heavy water, and so great is the demand that the new substance has become one of the most valuable known. One hundred and fifty dollars is asked for a gram. At this rate a teaspoonful would cost nearly $600 and a quart $150,000."

NOTES-PERSONALS

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

Superintendent C. D. Johnston is making timely and appropriate appeal to all our churches and Sunday Schools for a Thanksgiving offering to the worthy cause and institution which he so ably and lovingly represents and directs. We believe that he will not be disappointed in his appeals and that the people everywhere will give glad and liberal response to this call for charity and benevolence.

An incident occurred at the session of the North Carolina and Virginia Conference at Union last week that did not occur in any of our other Conferences this fall that we recall. Rev. B. H. Watkins, Lynchburg, Va., was ordained as an elder, J. E. Neese, Sophomore in Elon College, was licensed as a probationer, and J. K. Jones, of our Danville Church, was admitted as a member of the Biblical Class.

Rev. J. G. Truitt, speaking of his Suffolk Church, says: "This church puts on a seven-day program each week of loving Christian service. It sends its minister to see the sick, to comfort the down-hearted; it maintains a Church School for more than seven hundred pupils; it offers the public an open door to the altar of God; and it seeks to serve as it should. It covets and appreciates your loyal support."

The annual Conference at Union last week was of disposition to give its treasurer, Dr. Waldo Boone, tenure for life of that important office, which he fills with such efficiency, on condition that he make his report in person at each session of the Conference and be accompanied at each session by his charming wife, who stirred the Conference to spiritual fervor by the rendering of soulful music with her violin.

Dr. C. H. Rowland, Greensboro, who has presided over the sessions of the North Carolina and Virginia Conference for eight years, was re-elected to that position, and Rev. Stanley C. Harrell, D. D., Durham, N. C., was re-elected secretary. What other Conference ever had as its faithful secretary a president of the Southern Christian Convention? If the secretary of our Conference shall show himself as capable with the gavel, as president of the Convention, as he is with the pen, as secretary of the Conference, our destiny, as a Convention, is secure in his hands.

A beautiful memorial service was held at Union Church, Jacksonville, in memory of two former pastors who had died during the late summer. Dr. George L. Hanscom and Dr. H. Samuel Fritsch. The service was held in connection with the November Communion on the Sunday nearest to All Souls Day. Four members of the church spoke in appreciation of the fine services of these two former ministers to the Jacksonville Church, and to other churches of our order. The service was conducted by Dr. Arthur E. Leonard, who is serving as interim minister of the church.

In his bulletin, Sunday, November 19th, carrying the church announcements and order of service for the day, Pastor J. G. Truitt put in a conspicuous place the following announcement: "Our church paper, THE CHRISTIAN SUN, each week, has a sermon page by your pastor, Sunday School lessons by Rev. H. S. Hardcastle, a Suffolk Letter by Dr. I. W. Johnson, and many other very interesting features. Please give your subscription, or renewal, to Mrs. W. V. Leathers." The above is very timely and should give a suggestion to many of our pastors. THE CHRISTIAN SUN endeavors to assist the pastor fifty-two weeks in the year, and it would seem fair, at any rate, for the pastor to make announcement from his pulpit about THE SUN and do something to help secure its reading in his congregation.

Very many commendations of our editorial in THE SUN, November 9th, on Southern Convention and Church Union" have come to the editor, all of which he appreciates and none of which he deserved. It is gratifying that the facts contained therein are approved by our Congregational and Christian constituency. This from our friend and associate, Dr. Edwin C. Gillette, superintendent, Florida Congregational Conference, of Jacksonville, under date of November 16th: "I read your editorial in last week's issue about the Southern Convention and Church Union,, and I heartily agree with you in it. I trust that no one thinks for a moment that any one would wish to weaken the Southern Convention. We rather wish to see it strengthened and see it thoroughly articulated in the scheme of things in the united denomination."

Mrs. S. J. McCauley died at her home, Lexington Avenue, Greensboro, Friday morning, November 17th, and was buried in the Damascus Christian Church cemetery, near Chapel Hill, Saturday, P. M., November 18th, the funeral being conducted by Dr. C. H. Rowland, pastor, First Christian Church, Greensboro. For many years the McCauleys were next-door neighbors to the editor of THE CHRISTIAN SUN, Elon College, N. C., and were not only most generous and kindly friends, but were amiable and cordial neighbors. Mr. McCauley died at his home in Greensboro some two years ago and is now followed by his faithful and loving companion. Their children were educated in Elon College while the family resided here and survive their father and mother—the three daughters, Misses Ione, Pauline and Hortense, all of Greensboro, and Bruce McCauley, of Norlina, N. C. A sister of Mrs. McCauley's also survives, Mrs. J. O. O'Daniel, of Greensboro. The bereaved ones in their sorrow have our sincere sympathy.

The North Carolina and Virginia Conference met on historic ground last week. From our church history one may read: "The organization (the Christian Church) continued with varying success until the year 1847, when the 'Southern Christian Association' was organized, which gave place to the 'Southern Christian Convention,' organized in October, 1856, at Union Chapel, Alamance County, N. C. At this meeting of the polity of the church was thoroughly discussed and reviewed, and a declaration to adhere strictly and firmly to the Principles and Government originally adopted by her founders was made. The first regular session of the Convention (after its organization at Union in 1856) was held at Cypress Chapel, Nansemond County, Va., in May, 1858. At this meeting the Educational, Publishing and Missionary interests of the church were debated and provided for." We have come a long way under the guiding hand and wisdom of the Convention since the day the same was organized at Union Ridge, in 1856, and met in first biennial session at Cypress Chapel in May, 1858. It is purely a coincidence, but one worthy of note, that the Eastern Virginia Conference met this year at Cypress Chapel where the first regular session of the Southern Convention was held and the North Carolina and Virginia Conference met this year at Union where the Convention was first organized.

THANKSGIVING.

Since the days of William Bradford it has been the custom of the American people to observe a period of Thanksgiving during the harvest time. The presidents of the United States have for a long time proclaimed the last Thursday in November as a day fitted for the American people to gather at their accustomed places of prayer and of worship for the purpose of expressing their gratitude unto the Almighty God for the increase of the fruits of field and of forest, for the evidences of peace and of prosperity throughout the land.

When we begin to make an inventory of our possessions and count the blessings that have been ours through the year usually we find abundant reasons for Thanksgiving. This year is no exception. We should be grateful unto Almighty God for life, health, and happiness. We should be grateful for the fruit of field and of forest. We should be grateful for peace and prosperity, and above all things we should be grateful for the spirit of benevolence manifested from the heart of our government in behalf of the poor and unfortunate among us. It seems that the resources of the nation are being turned toward the solution of the problem of poverty in human society. The individual who is fortunate enough to provide for himself and the needs of those dependent upon him should, indeed, be grateful, and if he is able to spare it, should not fail to contribute that the needs of others might be met.

We, of the Christian Church, have a large number of orphans comfortably housed at the Christian Orphanage at Elon College, who look to us for contributions at Thanksgiving that they may have food and clothing. Mr. Chas. D. Johnston, superintendent of the Orphanage, feels the burden of this responsibility greatly, and he and those who are associated with him are sending out appeals to all who can and will help in any way that they may be able. Food and clothing are acceptable. Just now they need money with which to provide the actual necessities for the children. This is a fine way for Sunday Schools, organized classes, churches, organizations and societies to express their gratitude for the blessings that they, themselves, have received.

The Orphanage is ours and it looks to us for support and I hope that every member and friend of the church will consider it a privilege to make a generous contribution for the Orphanage at this time. Its needs are perhaps as great, if not greater than at any time in its history. Whatever you contribute will be appreciated by the Orphanage and all concerned. It would be fine if every Sunday School and church in our united fellowship could start an offering on its way to the Orphanage on Thanksgiving—certainly not later than the Sunday following. Let's do our best at this time.

L. E. SMITH.

"He shall be holden with the cords of his sin" (Prov. 5:22). Sin always has small beginnings. A friend of mine was standing one day at the window in the house where he had been brought up as a boy. He saw a great gust of wind blow over one of the tall, stately trees. Surprised and distressed, he went out to look at the fallen giant. When he came to the broken trunk, he saw that, when a boy, one day he had chopped away some of the bark of that tree, then a young and slender stem. Water had seeped in, a center of decay had begun, and it had gone on inside the trunk secretly, while the tree grew and spread its leaves. But the weakness was there, and the time of testing brought it to light.—J. Wilbur Chapman.

A VISIT TO THE HOLY LAND.

By ROY C. HELFENSTEIN,

Minister People's Congregational-Christian Church, Dover, Delaware.

[We publish below Article No. VI of a series of interesting stories by Dr. Helfenstein on his visit to the Holy Land. The article deals with "The Trans-Jordan Region and the Work of Archaeologists on Both Sides of the Jordan Rives.—Ed. Note.]

The Trans-Jordan region is full of interest to the Bible student because of the people who came from this section of the country into the stream of Biblical history.

It was in this Trans-Jordan region where Moses paused with the children of Israel to consider whether or not they were ready to "cross over to possess the land." It was from here that Caleb and Joshua and the other ten men were sent over Jordan by Moses to spy out the land, and after coming in contact with the Canaanites, they returned with their conflicting reports to this Trans-Jordan country. Joshua and Caleb told of the wonderful land west of Jordan, its fruits and riches, and though mindful of the race of big men, the sons of Anak, who lived there, these two young men were confident that, nevertheless, the children of Israel could possess the land. It was in this Trans-Jordan region that Moses then lingered with his followers in contemplation of crossing over to the land west of Jordan and beginning the great task of trying to conquer Canaan. It was here in the Trans-Jordan country that Moses died and was left in an unknown grave. The Prophet Elijah was born in this Trans-Jordan region. It was here that Gideon fought and had his wonderful victory. It was in this region that Ruth was born. It was here that John the Baptist first preached, and here he was later beheaded because he was fearless in his preaching. Jesus frequently walked among the hills and mountains of the Trans-Jordan region ministering to the needs of the people. It was here in the country east of Jordan that Jesus called to him the little children and said "of such is the Kingdom of Heaven."

The mountains of Moab in this Trans-Jordan country figure large in Biblical events.

Only since the World War has traveling in the Trans-Jordan country been at all safe. Even now there are frequent "hold-ups" by the bandits who hide away in the caves and caverns watching their chance to pounce out upon tourist parties and other travelers passing through the country. But this region offers some of the most interesting experiences and impressions to be found anywhere in the Holy Land. No visit to the Holy Land would be complete without including at least a day's journey through the Trans-Jordan country.

How different travel is today in the Trans-Jordan country from what it was in the Bible days when Jesus and his disciples made their slow and toilsome climbs over that barren way! They had to go on foot or on donkey-back. Today the journey is made by auto in as many hours as it required days in the New Testament times. The trip is one with a certain amount of hazard that makes it different from any other trip I ever took. The sights are different from those seen anywhere else in the world. The peculiar sensation of knowing that one makes a part of the journey hundreds of feet below sea level, all these and many other unique features of the trip makes a journey to the Trans-Jordan region one never to be forgotten. To make the journey and return the same night required that we had to start from Jerusalem before five o'clock in the morning.

Leaving Jerusalem, which is 2,700 feet above the sea level, we went down past the Apostles' Spring and the ruins of the ancient Samaritan Inn, then on to Jericho in less than an hour's time. The distance over the mountains through the wilderness to Jericho is about eighteen miles. The same journey must have required an entire day of travel when Jesus walked over these rough stony hills with his twelve disciples. It was a strange feeling, I assure you, to be traveling on a road that, though taking us continually up and down mountains, was nevertheless dropping us nearer and nearer the sea level all the time, and then passing the point marked "sea level," dropping us still farther down until when we reached the Jordan River, we were 1,200 feet below sea level, and when we came to the Dead Sea where we had a good swim, we were 1,300 feet below sea level. Along the shores of Jordan and across the Jordan Valley, the land is at the lowest level of any place in all the world.

The ancient city of Jericho lay on our way to the Trans-Jordan country. A visit to this old city, climbing among its ruins and over its walls brings to one's mind the numerous Bible stories associated with the name of Jericho. The ruins of the walls which Joshua marched around with his army are still there, and the remains of the older walls dating back centuries before the Israelites came into the land may also still be seen.

Then when across the Jordan Valley and over the River Jordan, we began to climb the hills and mountains so familiar to Job the philosopher, Moses; the reformer, Elijah the prophet, and to Jesus the Redeemer of mankind.

The Hills of Gilead offered us many wonderful views. Somewhere among those hills over which we were traveling was Penuel where Jacob had his dream of the ladder and the angels. Perhaps the rock is still there that served for his pillow. Jesus and the twelve often walked along the gorges in this Trans-Jordan region, and no doubt the oleanders bloomed then also in great profusion along the River Jordan to gladden the eyes of the Master and his disciples just as they are found in such profusion there today. Somewhere along that same River Jabbok along which we journeyed, Jacob wrestled with the angel, and as Phillips Brooks put it: "Though lamed, he was able to walk straight for the first time in his crooked life."

The ancient city of Gerasa, now called Jerash, was the destination in our journey of several hours through the Trans-Jordan country. The many ruins of that ancient city offer opportunity for hours of sight seeing, reflection and meditation. (Continued on page 9.)

Keep THE SUN Shining Mail Your Subscription TODAY!

Why not send THE CHRISTIAN SUN to your friends for the ensuing year, and they will be reminded weekly of your thoughtfulness and interest?

THE SUN needs new subscribers badly, and the members of the Christian Church in the South need THE SUN just as badly. You who read the paper keep in touch with your church's activities and interests. Wouldn't it be a wonderful thing if you would help others to become acquainted with the things that you know about?

For your convenience we are printing a blank below. Just fill out this blank and pin your check or a money order for $2, for each subscription you wish sent, and we will do the rest.

As a token of our appreciation of your cooperation, we will advance your own subscription date three months for each yearly subscription you send in.

Of course, if it happens that the person to whom you send the paper is already a subscriber, we will advance their subscription one year, and will notify them that you have paid same.

SUBSCRIPTION BLANK.

December....., 1932.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN,
1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

Dear Sirs:

Please enter the name of.....

City....., State....., R. F. D. or St.....,

on your subscription list for one year. I enclose $..... to pay above subscription and for..... additional ones written on the margin of this blank. Please advance my subscription three months for each of these subscriptions, and send greeting cards to each of these subscribers.

Name

Street or R. F. D.....

City and State.....

My own subscription expires.....

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

ASSOCIATE EDITOR

E. C. GILLETTE

117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla.

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

W. C. WICKER C. REXFORD RAYMOND

S. C. HARRELL ELISHA A. KING

THE PRINCIPLES OF OUR CHURCH.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

NORTH CAROLINA AND VIRGINIA CONFERENCE.

This Conference met in its 108th annual session with Union Church, Union Ridge, N. C., November 14th-16th. This Conference, like all our other Conferences meeting recently, gave due and serious consideration to all the interests and institutions of our Convention. What a great and wise thing it is that once a year we can come together, and with united fellowship and counsel, have report from and make plans for the entire church, meaning by the word "church," not only the house in which the pastor, preachers and people worship weekly or monthly, but the entire church in its activity to the uttermost parts through Missions, to its educational interests through Sunday School and College, to its publishing department through its church paper and Sunday School literature and its benevolent expression in Orphanage and Superannuation. The word "church" means all of these, and a Conference is an assemblage of those who are interested in the church from the smallest local body up to the Southern Convention.

It will possibly interest SUN readers at this time more to have one report from the Conference of a definite type rather than a lengthy write-up of the entire program. For this purpose and because of its implications at this time, we give the report of the Committee on Education as adopted by the Conference:

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON EDUCATION.

"The church was the first in the field of higher education, and although the State has followed in this field of essential endeavor, the church still occupies the position of leadership in this field. The church realized that higher education was essential to its life, prestige and progress. The State later came to the same realization and thus began to found universities and colleges for technical training. Christian Education, however, that is to say education sponsored by the church and under the instruction and guidance of Christian men and women, is yet essential to church life, and no church with a will and a purpose to live and grow can be without its institution of higher learning. Our fathers realized this, and through prayer, self-denial and consecration and a great faith founded Elon College. It is ours and is not only the best that we have, but is absolutely essential to the church life and progress of this Conference and of the Southern Christian Convention. We cherish the College as our very own and as the one institution which has made the largest contribution in the last half century to our pulpit and to our church leadership. Moreover, the institution, because of the burden that it entails upon us, has united us in cooperation to a common task and in a blessed fellowship.

"The College is now in great need, and to relieve this need the Board of Trustees, through its Executive Committee, recently instituted a campaign to raise $25,000.00, if possible, by February 28th, for teachers' pay and current expenses. We recommend:

"1st. That our North Carolina and Virginia Conference assume $5,000.00 as its share, $3,000.00 of which is to be raised through the churches, and that the president of the College be requested to raise the remaining $2,000.00.

"2nd. That each local church raise its share on the basis of 50c per member, and that all money sent in from the Dollar-a-Month Club, the fifth Sunday offerings, special offerings, etc., count on the local church's share.

"3rd. That the annual reports to Conference show how much each local church has sent in to Elon College during the year.

"4th. That a Committee on Elon College be named by the pastor in each local church, consisting of the pastor and two more members, whose duty it shall be to direct this campaign in the local church, collecting and sending the money therefrom through the local church treasurer to Elon College.

"5th. That we designate January and February as Educational Period, during which time the churches are called upon to raise the $3,000.00 as allotted above, and that the second Sunday in January be Elon Sunday.

"6th. That the Executive Committee of the Conference be, and is hereby constituted an Elon College Committee, whose duties will be to see that the above recommendations are carried out, the campaign to begin January 1st.

"Rev. B. H. Watkins, formerly a member and licentiate in the Baptist Church, came before your committee for examination and with application from the Lynchburg Church that he be ordained as an elder in the Christian Church. After due examination and consideration of the matter, your committee recommends that the Conference at this session ordain Brother Watkins.

"J. E. Neese, formerly licensed as a local preacher in the Methodist Church, came before your committee, having transferred his membership to the Christian Church, and asked for licensure in this Conference. Brother Neese is a member of the Sophomore Class in Elon College and has given a good account of himself as a ministerial student since entering the College, September, 1932. We recommend that he be licensed as a probationer.

"Brother J. K. Jones, a member of our Danville Church, came before the committee for examination and with recommendation from his pastor and church. Your committee, after examination of Brother Jones, feels that he is a young man of promise and consecration. His need is that of educational training and equipment for the task of the ministry, and we recommend that he be accepted as a member of the Biblical Class, and that he be advised to enter school at the earliest possible date and thus secure the training essential to a fruitful and successful ministry.

"Licentiates R. H. Coble and I. T. Underwood reported for the past year and petitioned that their licenses be continued, and your committee so recommends.

"Rev. A. W. Hurst, a member of this Conference, formerly pastor of Elon College, having accepted work at Chattanooga, Tenn., requests a letter of transfer to the Conference in which he is now working, and your Committee recommends that this transfer be granted."

J. O. A.

THE COMMUNION OF SAINTS.

We hear very little these days about the Communion of Saints. It may be because we are too practical and keep our gaze upon the earth too intently. It may be because we are rather hazy about the significance of the phrase. Possibly it is because it is in "The Apostles' Creed," and we have drifted away from that formal statement. Anyhow, we do not talk much about it. However, I venture to call attention to it here. We all have a curious idea of "saints." We have, perhaps, associated age and white hair with the word. We recall some lovely people we have known, or do know, and call them saints. Well and good, but St. Paul is quite sure that saints are just ordinary Christians who are devoted to Christ and are trying to grow into Christlikeness. He never expected to be called a Saint in the sense of being singled out and canonized. He was satisfied to be listed among the common saints who are fighting the world, the flesh and the devil. According to him all good Christians are saints. In using the word "good" before the word Christian reminds me of the remark of a Mohammedan guide in a Damascus Mosque. He said, "You know there are bad Mohammedans just as you have bad Christians." I suppose so, but any Christian may qualify as a saint.

Then, of course, there are the hosts of the redeemed who have gone before, the martyrs, the reformers, the great and good of all ages who make up the triumphant Church above. From the earliest times the Christian Church has included all these with all of us who still abide here in our great fellowship of saints. The communion of saints probably means that we commune in spirit, at least, with immortal spirits. It is all a great mystery, but we must never let go of mystery, never give up the ideal, never think that this physical worldly life is all. Even if doubts assail us it is better to live with the ideal than to abandon it. This view of immortality is affirmed everywhere in the Catacombs. Christians teaching is full of it. Yes, we, the living and the dead are all bound together in Christ. But this fellowship is earthly also. All Christians are bound to Christ by golden chains of faith and "denominations" can never permanently separate the immortal spirit. What a theme this is for a communion service. When sitting about the table of our Lord, let the mind wander away into the realms of the invisible and enjoy the blessed spiritual fellowship of all Christians (saints) of all ages in heaven and on the earth. "I believe in the communion of saints."

E. A. K.

I believe the first test of a truly great man is his humility.—Ruskin.

"BECAUSE I BELIEVE IN YOU."

Some of the most momentous events and decisions of life are made not on collateral but on character. Generally, the banks, our commercial institutions, require collateral of chattels, but not always. They sometimes require character, and proceed on faith. A most interesting example of this is related in Time Magazine of November 13th:

"Twenty-three years ago a young Norfolk lawyer received a letter from a member of the Virginia Corporation Commission: 'I have carefully considered your application for a charter for your hybrid and mongrel banking institution. Frankly, I don't know what it is. It isn't a savings bank; it isn't a state or national bank; it isn't a charity. It isn't anything I ever heard of before. Its principles seem sound however, and its purposes admirable. But the reason that I am going to grant a charter is because I believe in you.'"

And so the State of Virginia, through its Corporation Commission, gave a charter to Arthur Joseph Morris, and the first Morris Plan Bank in the United States started on its career. The measure may have been hybrid and mongrel, but the man was not, and Mr. Morris still lives to recite the record of his bank:

"In 23 years the Morris Plan Bank has loaned $3,000,000,000 to 15,000,000,000 individual borrowers. Only two per cent of endorsers or co-makers were ever called upon to make good, and losses averaged less than one-half of one per cent—a loss ratio lower than that of either state or national banks."

Mr. Morris, with his unheard of proposal even to the Virginia Corporation Commission, took business by the millions from the loan sharks, to whom the small borrower had to go, and has shown to the world that character is by no means a bad asset, even in the world of hard business.

The simple fact is that since the record was made in sacred Writ, "There was a man sent from God whose name was John," to do a great piece of work in the world, good men in various lines have been coming, sometimes with "hybrid and mongrel plans" and institutions, to make business more bearable and life more interesting. It is, indeed, a great day in a man's life when another can say, "I believe in you."

J. O. A.

THE DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE MAKES A RULING.

No wonder the wet press in North Carolina is peeved at the election returns of November 7th. And no wonder that the wet press just over the line and in other States, whose papers circulate in this State, are holding up to "scorn and contempt," or at least are trying to do so, the "bone dry folks down home." They are naturally sore and much chagrined that their papers cannot circulate in this State if they carry liquor advertisements in their columns. The Department of Justice at Washington has ruled that liquor advertisements can't go through the mails into dry territory. The ruling provides that "no letter, post-card, or newspaper containing advertising or orders for liquor shall be mailed into dry States." So that is that.

J. O. A.

A merely divine Saviour could not be a Saviour for me. A merely human Saviour could not be a Saviour for me. But when a Saviour in whom deity and humanity meet, a Saviour who is at once God and man, is just the Saviour I need, and the Saviour you need, a Saviour that is able to save to the uttermost all that come unto God through him.—R. A. Torrey.

DR. DANIEL ALBRIGHT LONG.

Daniel Albright Long was born in Alamance County, May 2, 1844, the son of Jacob and Jane Stewart Stockard Long, and fell asleep at the home of his son in Florence, S. C., October 26, 1933. His was an eventful, brilliant and useful career. He was educated at the University of North Carolina, from which institution he received his A. M. degree in 1871, and from which institution, in 1876, he received the degree of Doctor of Divinity and later, from the same institution, the LL. D. degree. He began his career as teacher in the public schools of Alamance at the age of sixteen and later, with his brother, Dr. W. S. Long, founded Graham Normal College, of which institution he was president for ten lecture platform or in the pulpit. Versatile, eloquent, learned, a close student of law, philosophy and homiletics, he served eminently in the high positions to which he was called and made a vast contribution to his day and generation.

Being of a distinguished family, he was the last of the seven to go, his brothers and sisters being Mr. John Long of St. Joseph, Mo. (the father of Mrs. J. U. Newman, Elon College); Mrs. Bettie Long Clendenin, of Graham, N. C. (mother of Mrs. N. G. Newman, Holland, Va.); Dr. Wm. S. Long, founder and first president of Elon College; Jacob A. Long, distinguished attorney, Graham, N. C. (father of Mrs. S. E. Everett, Suffolk, Va.); Dr. George W. Long, Graham, N. C.; Judge Benjamin F. Long, of years. In connection with his work as teacher, he was an able and eloquent preacher, and while teaching served as pastor of several churches. From Graham he went to the presidency of Antioch College, Yellow Springs, Ohio, and then to the presidency of Union Christian College, Merom, Ind. Though giving the major portion of his time and talents to the great task of Christian Education and administrative work in the field of higher learning, he never lost interest in the ministry, and through the pulpit made lasting contributions to the church and the world. Not only honored as an educator and scholar, his church entrusted to him for eight years the highest honor within its gift, viz., that of the presidency of the American Christian Convention, over which body he presided with singular tact, merit and ability.

DR. D. A. LONG.

Dr. Long was as much at home in the field of law and parliamentary procedure as he was on the Statesville, N. C. Dr. Long is survived by his wife, formerly Mrs. Lula Price Easley, of Tupelo, Miss.; three daughters, Mrs. D. K. Wolfe, Denver, Colo.; Mrs. Charles H. Belvin, Raleigh, N. C.; Mrs. George Albert Kernodle, Burlington, N. C., and one son, J. C. Long, Florence, S. C.

The deceased was brought back for burial to the church and the place of his early service and ministry, the funeral being conducted by Dr. W. C. Wicker, Dr. P. H. Fleming, and others from Providence-Memorial Church, Graham, Friday, October 27th. A multitude gathered to pay homage and respect to his memory, and they brought their flowers to cover his mound—a tribute of love and honor to one who had reflected honor upon the place of his nativity, the church, and the county and the state which he had served with such singular talent and ability. In the death of Daniel Albright Long, the Christian Church has lost a brilliant man, a splendid leader.

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

Dr. N. G. Newman, president of the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference, has announced the following standing committees for the year 1933-1934: Executive: N. G. Newman, I. W. Johnson, Dr. J. E. Rawles; Education: I. W. Johnson, W. M. Jay, H. S. Hardcastle, J. G. Truitt, F. C. Lester; Home Missions: J. E. West, Dr. D. L. Harrell, Mrs. I. W. Johnson; Foreign Missions: J. F. Morgan, W. D. Harward, J. M. Roberts, Mrs. W. V. Leathers, Mrs. R. T. Bradford; Christian Education: J. E. McCauley, F. C. Lester, R. E. Brittle, J. F. West, Jr., W. H. Baker; Religious Literature: Dr. Charles Eldred Shelton, Elwood W. Jones, Mrs. J. W. Manning; Evangelism: O. D. Poythress, W. H. Garman, J. H. Warren, E. B. White, S. W. Phillips; Stewardship: W. M. Jay, R. L. House, C. E. Geringer, T. N. Lowe, Elisha Bradshaw; Temperance and Moral Reform: H. S. Hardcastle, Dr. J. W. Manning, Joe French, R. A. Whitten, H. W. Lee; Superannuation: L. E. Smith, J. A. Williams, J. M. Darden; Ministerial Ethics: J. G. Truitt, Col. E. E. Holland, R. T. Bradford, M. W. Hollowell, M. J. W. White; Apportionments: A. L. Jolly, R. C. Norfleet, J. T. Rawles; Collector: R. C. Norfleet; Place of Meeting: Mrs. J. A. Williams; Memoirs: W. E. McClenny.

The following record of payments on Conference apportionments for the year just closed is submitted for information: Antioch, . . . ; Barrett's, $7.00; Berea, Nansemond, $125.00; Berea, Norfolk, $60.00; Bethlehem, $200.00; Burton's Grove, . . . ; Centerville, $22.00; Christian Temple, $800.00; Cypress Chapel, $15.00; Damascus, $20.00; Dendron, $25.00; Eure, $10.00; Epworth, $5.00; Elm Avenue, $7.00; First, Norfolk, $50.00; First, Portsmouth, $140.00; First, Richmond, . . . ; Franklin, $250.00; Holland, $300.00; Holy Neck, $200.00; Hobson, . . . ; Hopewell, . . . ; Isle of Wight, . . . ; Ivor, $15.00; Johnson's Grove, $10.00; Newport News, $300.00; New Lebanon, $25.00; Liberty Spring, $200.00; Mt. Carmel, $65.36; Mt. Zion, $10.00; Ocean View, $25.00; Oak Grove, . . . ; Old Zion, . . ; Oakland, $150.00; Rosemont, $250.00; Suffolk, $1,500.00; South Norfolk, $150.00; Spring Hill, $33.00; Sarem, $25.00; Union, Southampton, $14.75; Union, Surry, $6.00; Wakefield, $25.00; Waverly, $60.00; Windsor, $100.00; Total, $5,200.11.

The following items from the Report of the Committee on Education should be of interest to the people of the Eastern Virginia Conference:

"In order to establish a policy concerning loans to ministerial students, we recommend that no applicant shall be eligible to receive a loan until he has completed the Freshman year in college, or its equivalent, and has made an average of 80 per cent on the subjects studied; and has satisfied the committee that his department in college has been becoming to the ministry."

"We recommend that all ministerial students securing loans from the Educational Fund be required to give a note, of even date with the loan, with interest at 4 per cent per annum, payable annually, beginning four years after the date of the note. Curtailment of the principal of these notes shall begin within two years after the student leaves college, and the full amount of the loan and interest due shall be payable within ten years from the date of the original note."

All outstanding notes at the present have an interest bearing clause. It is the hope of the committee that the Conference treasurer may be successful in collecting payments of interest due on these notes each year, and encourage the growth of the Educational Fund for future help and usefulness. After a few years, this Fund should be large enough to enable the Conference to increase the allowance, to worthy students, when needed.

I. W. JOHNSON.

THE COLLEGE ONCE AGAIN.

I have been intimately connected with Elon College since the fall of 1906. I spent four years studying at Elon. Since 1910 I have been an alumnus of the institution. I have tried to be loyal on all occasions and I have not failed to support the College in all special efforts in its behalf. For the last fourteen years I have been constantly in touch with the work of the institution. The majority of this period I have served as Trustee of the College. I have attended every session of the Eastern Virginia Conference since the fall of 1919, and have had the privilege of visiting the other Conferences at times. When the College was considered and a call for its support was issued, not in my experience have I witnessed a more interested attitude on the part of the public or a more hopeful expectancy for its future on the part of its most loyal friends. Seldom, if ever, do you hear a word of criticism now; invariably there are expressions of interest and sympathetic hopes on the part of friends everywhere. These facts are certainly heartening and encouraging as we face the future with its demands and responsibilities. If this interest and these hopes may be substantially expressed in material contributions the anxiety of the ones bearing the burden of the College shall be diminished and the needs of the institution shall be partially met. It is fine to be assured of the interest, sympathy, and cooperation of the churches everywhere, but since winter is here we need a bit of cash with which to buy coal, food, and clothing.

The Eastern Virginia Conference, the North Carolina-Virginia Conference, and the Western North Carolina Conference, all, in their recent annual sessions voted the heartiest of cooperation in behalf of the College, and called upon their constituents to come to the rescue of the College with generous contributions.

The months of January and February have been designated as "Educational Period" and the second Sunday in January as "Elon College Day." On "Elon College Day" the Sunday Schools and churches will be expected, and the Conferences have so voted, to put on an Elon College program—a program that will carry information about the College and bring to the people an appeal for the College.

The above Conferences mentioned passed a resolution calling on all the churches within the bounds of the Conference to undertake to raise as a minimum contribution an amount equal to fifty cents per member, that is, each church is expected to raise its share for the College on the basis of fifty cents per member. This can be done, and if done, will record a magnificent victory for the College and assure continued success for the institution.

I am now calling on the pastors, please, to organize their individual churches in order that they may succeed in the campaign that is so necessary for the life of our College. If desired the College will be glad to furnish plans and suggestions to churches or Sunday Schools that this day and this period set apart for the College may be a success.

L. E. SMITH,
President.

ROSEMONT.

The regular prayer service of the Rosemont Christian Church on Wednesday, November 15, 1933, turned out to be a beautiful surprise service in honor of the birthday anniversary of our oldest and most beloved member, Mrs. B. F. Gibson. The pastor used as the subject of the evening's service, "The Value of a Good Woman," in which he told of the great value of good women in general, and that of Mrs. B. F. Gibson, affectionately known as "Grandma" Gibson, in particular. In addition to the words of appreciation by her pastor, a large number of others of the many present expressed their love and appreciation for the guest of honor, whose life has meant so much to all who have known her.

Mrs. A. E. Richardson expressed her esteem and love for her in the following lines:

She tells us today that she is eighty,
We can scarcely believe it's the truth,
For she is one of the fortunate ones,
To whom God has given eternal youth.

So, live on, "Grandma," and love us,
And as you pass each mile;
Rosemont will be always watching
For the light of your wonderful smile.

Mrs. Gibson has been a Sunday School teacher in the Christian Church, almost constantly, for more than sixty years, and has been active in all other activities of her church, especially in the Missionary Society, during a large part of these years.

It was, therefore, indeed fitting that her church should pay her this beautiful tribute on the occasion of her eightieth birthday. "Grandma" responded most graciously to all the words of appreciation, and shook hands with all present as they left the service. We are all hoping and believing that God will spare us her beautiful life many years to come.

J. F. MORGAN.

WINCHESTER, VA.

The readers of THE SUN have had the opportunity to learn through its columns concerning some of the good fortune that his befallen me lately. I am eager that they shall know something, too, of the activities of the good people of this parish up here in the very beginning of the Virginia Valley.

It is generally known, I presume, that the Timber Ridge and Winchester Churches combined this year to form a single parish. To the writer has come the happy privilege of serving as pastor in this new parish. The reception that I received here at the beginning of my service was exceptionally pleasing. I found in each church a warm spirit of friendship and cooperation. The people of this parish have already endeared themselves to the pastor by their many expressions of good will.

The folks of these two communities have been especially kind in connection with the arrival of Mrs. A. R. Van Cleave in this community. Before her arrival, the people of the Timber Ridge community assembled at the home of Mrs. J. S. Davis, had given us a handkerchief shower. Following our arrival in Winchester, we were given a reception and miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. E. W. Cather. Here we received a large number of gifts of china, silver, glassware, linens, an Esmond blanket, and a number of other articles, even including a rolling pin. The gifts in china combined to make a sixty-piece dinner set in an Adalla design.

A few evenings after this event we were given a reception and shower at the residence of Mrs. Minnie Muse, in the Timber Ridge community. Here we received an abundance of good things to eat, together with gifts of silver and linen.

The recipients of all these favors are surely appreciative of such expressions of affection and good will. The writer can surely say with the Psalmist, "The lines are fallen unto me in pleasant places." A. R. VAN CLEAVE.

FLORIDA ASSOCIATION MEETINGS.

The fall meetings of the three Florida associations have recently been held and were well attended and there was a fine spirit of courage and confidence. The programs of all the associations were not given to the discussion of the depression, but rather to the note of challenge and of service in the present situation. The theme of the Southeast Coast Association meeting at North Miami was "What the Churches Are Contributing to Present Day Life," and the theme of the other two associations, "The Church Mobilizing for Human Needs." What the church is doing and what the church can do and what the church has to give the world, were the subjects of discussion, all tending to strengthen in the hearts of the people the sense of the vital importance of the church and its message and mission to the world. Among those speaking at all of the associations were Mrs. Marion Ballou Fisk, who spoke on "Missionary Methods and Needs," Miss Pattie Lee Coghill, who spoke on "Religious Education," and also "Missionary Education," and Superintendent Edwin C. Gillette, who spoke on "Mobilizing Our Churches for World Human Needs."

The following were elected as Moderators of the three associations: Mrs. Marion Ballou Fisk of the Southeast Coast Association; Rev. George K. Goodwin of Crystal Springs, for the South Association; and Rev. Gordon Brokenshire, of Orange City, for the East Coast Association. The Registrars elected were Rev. Harley R. Core, of Homestead; Rev. Frank J. Brown, of New Port Richey, and Rev. R. Esten Newton, of Pomona, for their respective associations.

Among the resolutions passed by the Florida South Association of churches was the following:

"We heartily commend Governor Sholtz for his appointment of Rev. C. Arthur Lincoln to the State Board of Public Welfare. We know Mr. Lincoln to be a man of large experience in welfare work, broad in his human sympathies, of sound judgment and of unflinching integrity in the discharge of his duties."

FEEDING THE HUNGRY.

By TIMOTHY THOMAS.

That we have the hungry among us no one will deny. The added pity of it is that this hunger is in a land of plenty. Nature has played a lavish hand in supplying the people of the earth with great abundance, especially during our three years of economic unbalance. Man with all his intelligence has not been able to manage properly the distribution. That failure is due in part to selfishness and greed for personal gains. God must be grieved at man's failure to distribute adequately the great store of natural resources given by nature for mankind's support, comfort and happiness.

The other day I saw and participated in what I wish thousands could see and share. In a city with a population of 500,000 there are two eating places called the "Penny Cafeteria." Each of these places is feeding 2,000 or more men, women and children each day—and at a profit to their owners. These are privately owned enterprises, modernly equipped, and conducted on a strictly business and sanitary basis. At one of these places I dined with more than 60 men and women—not all of the down-and-out class. In our group were 20 of the city's leading business men, including the superintendent of police as honor guest. For my lunch I had bread, one egg, whole wheat deliciously cooked, stewed peaches, coffee, including plenty of sugar and cream. Total cost, ten cents, with quantity buying and economy in preparation and serving making such prices possible.

This particular place opens at 7 A. M. and closes at 8 P. M. Thirty minutes to an hour before closing time the homeless and hungry line up for a long city block, and as the signal is given that the last paid meal is served, the line of men (and women) is permitted to pass by the counters and serving tables, and every particle of food—rolls, biscuits, pies, soup, coffee—everything left for the day, is parceled out free. Not a single item of food is carried over to become stale.

Twenty-five fine and handsome young men, many of whom are high school and college graduates, former men of the highway trail in quest of employment, serve as cooks, waiters and helpers. Before given employment they must pass a physical examination. They receive their meals and a small cash weekly compensation. No charity work, and the owner is making a neat daily profit.

While going through this experience—and it was a delightful one—I was thinking of the small towns and villages where the transient population is not so great. Why not a dozen families, fifty families, a hundred families, feeling the pinch of hard times band together and form a community kitchen and dining room? A little pride would have to be conquered, but what of that in a period of emergency? You cannot hide in a small town what everybody knows!

I am wondering if we are not dissipating much of our charity funds instead of putting charity on a sensible, cooperative and business basis. Every movement needs a leader, and there is a leader in every community. This article is offered as a suggestion to that leader.

Uncle Tom (alighting from an airplane): "Thanks for de two rides, boss."

Aviator: "Two rides; what do you mean? We had only one ride."

Uncle Tom: "No, sah, two rides; dat was ma first and ma last ride."

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5 1/2 inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

Nos. 01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges $2.75

01603 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, head-band, book-mark $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4 1/8 x 1 1/4 inches.

Type in Junior's Bible

2 Take the sum of all the of the children of Is'ra-el, years old and upward, thro

Nos. 1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine $2.95 Bibles

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5 1/2 x 3 1/2 inches.

Specimen of Type

a My soul longeth, yea, even faint-eth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God. no Mercy and truth together; righteousness kissed each other. 11 Truth shall sprin

Nos. 02112. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6 3/4 x 4 1/2 inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, "O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed. 10 For a day in thy courts is better than ten years elsewhere. Gen. 15. 1. Ps. 56. 1. & 57. 1. 11 For, all

Nos. 07598x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07598x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x $5.00

OUR LEADER

Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8 1/2 x 5 1/2 x 1 1/16 inches.

Specimen of Type

8 9 'Jō-hōi'-ā-chin was 6 years old when he began t

No. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, leather lined to edge, silk round corners, red under gold edges, silk

hear

A UNIQUE GIFT BIBLE

With Basket Weave Binding

The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges. With references. Printed on Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible. $5.50

No. 03255x

As No. 03255x, with concordance. No. 03276x $6.50

Oxford TEACHER'S Bibles

Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date maps, conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7 1/4 x 5 x 1 1/2 inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave; death shall feed on th

Nos. 04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and hand-some Bible $4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Only one inch thick.

0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary

PRAYER.

Lord of life, open our hearts to receive the Spirit. Feed thou our souls lest they perish. May no moments of the Sabbath Day, given as it is for bodily rest and spiritual refreshment, be thoughtlessly or mistakenly dissipated. Turn myriads of feet to thine earthly courts and grant that there the yearning soul may find not emptiness nor confusion nor perversion but, through the imparting by God's ministers of his holy truth, may all be strengthened and constrained to walk no longer after the flesh but after the Spirit. For this we humbly pray. L.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON HOME MISSIONS TO EASTERN VIRGINIA CONFERENCE.

While not underestimating the importance of Foreign Missions, the unusual conditions in America are a challenge to the church to save America, and this Conference should emphasize Home Missions as never before in its history.

While our heavenly Father has blessed the nation with a bountiful harvest, greater than our needs, our banks are filled with money and our vaults with non-taxable securities, yet, there are from eight to ten million people unemployed and many begging for bread. American leadership in business, finance, and statesmanship has utterly failed to prevent this national crisis and the nation must look to the church for a solution of our unsolved problems, that is, the principles and doctrines of the Gospel of Jesus Christ must be so preached and lived by his followers as to permeate every phase of human activity, including business, politics and social life.

The ministry of the church must proclaim with even greater emphasis the Virgin birth, the Deity of Christ, his atoning sacrifice on the cross, his resurrection and ascension, and the power of the Holy Spirit. The Christian Church should be a leader in this great Home Mission program, also, emphasizing the five cardinal principles of the church, writing and teaching its history, and laying greater emphasis on Baptism and the Holy Communion as two of the anchors of the Christian.

Having taken the name Christian as a "sufficient name for the church," we should follow in the footsteps of Jesus, especially obeying his first and second commandments, Matt. 22:37, 38, 39.

Speaking particularly of the work of the Conference, it is interesting to note that, in 1818, it was organized in this historic church. Let us pause to thank our heavenly Father for the progress we have made, review briefly our history and take courage for the future. While our growth has been slow, we have made some progress since 1833 (100 years ago), when there were ten churches, and a membership of 629. Let us compare our condition now (using 1932 figures), with 1882 (fifty-year period). Then, churches, 25; membership, 3,526; pastors' salaries, $3,194; Home Missions, $28.99; value of church property, $28,210. At the 1932 Conference: churches, 46; membership, 10,689; pastors' salaries, $35,450; Home Missions, estimated from all sources, $6,400; value of church property, $1,340,000.

As to appropriations, we recommend the usual appropriation of $1,000.00 to Christian Temple, which leaves a balance due on the pledge heretofore made.

We recommend the appropriation of $400.00 to Newport News Church to be applied on mortgage debt, and $400.00 to South Norfolk Church to be applied to interest on mortgage debt, these two appropriations to be paid on a pro rata basis, if the Home Mission Fund is not large enough to pay same in full.

Respectfully submitted,

J. E. WEST, Chairman.

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.

WEEK ENDING NOVEMBER 18, 1933.

Sunday Schools.

Previously acknowledged	$	581.09
Oakland, Suffolk, Va.		6.00
New Hope, Louisburg, N. C.		1.50
Wake Chapel, Fuquay Springs, N. C.		3.90
Turner's Chapel, Sanford, N. C.		1.32
Union, Virgilina, Va.		1.58
Leaksville, Luray, Va.		1.75
Union Grove, Seagrove, N. C.		.86
First Christian, Norfolk, Va.		8.81
Mayland, Broadway, Va.		1.00
Waverly, Va.		5.00
Monticello, Brown Summit, N. C.		13.00
Howard's Chapel, Wentworth, N. C.		2.00
Linville, Va.		5.10
Damascus, Chapel Hill, N. C.		5.10
Mt. Auburn, Manson, N. C.		3.15

Total $ 636.97

Individuals and Churches.

Previously acknowledged	$	481.47
Durham, N. C.		100.00
Mrs. H. E. Pearce, Franklinton, N. C.		5.00
"A Friend"		2.00
Union, Virgilina, Va.		2.04
Pleasant Union, Lillington, N. C.		6.50

Total $ 604.97

Specials.

Previously acknowledged	$	596.70
Piney Plains Church, Raleigh, N. C.		6.50

Total $ 603.20

Coin Card Offering.

Previously acknowledged	$	37.00
Little Beginners' Class, Pleasant Ridge Sunday School, Ramseur, N. C.		1.00

Total $ 38.00

Summary.

Previously acknowledged	$	5,333.10
Sunday Schools, Regular		55.88
Individuals and Churches		123.50
Specials		6.50
Coin Card Offering		1.00

Total to date $ 5,519.98

J. O. ATKINSON, Sec'y.

NOTICE.

Thanksgiving Programs for all the Missionary Societies this year are in the Mission Office at Elon College, J. O. Atkinson, Secretary, and are ready for distribution to the Societies on request. It is a most fitting and appropriate program, and it is greatly to be hoped that every Society will hold its Thanksgiving service and use the programs. From ten to twenty programs will be ample for each Society. The programs are a penny each, $1.00 a hundred, and should be ordered at once. The Thank-Offering in our Societies last year, be it recalled, went to Home Missions and was allocated to our mountain work in Carroll County, Va. This year the offering in the Societies will go to Foreign Missions, will count on the goal for each Society and will be sent as a Special to Foreign Missions. Let every Society in the Conference hold its Thanksgiving service.

MRS. C. H. ROWLAND, President,

N. C. Home Missionary Conf. Greensboro, N. C.

Somebody has said that God cannot keep step with a retreating church. That is because God does not walk backward. "God's movements are forward movements. "God said unto Moses, speak unto the children of Israel that they go forward." Even God's revelation of himself has been a progressive revelation. Crawfish walk backward, but they have never cut much of a figure in the world. Yet crawfish do about as well as men who walk backward.—North Carolina Christian Advocate.

It was a Jew who brought the Gospel to Rome; a Roman who took it to France; a Frenchman who took it to Scandinavia; a Scandinavian who took it to Scotland; a Scotsman who evangelized Ireland, and an Irishman in turn made the missionary conquest of Scotland. No people have ever received the Gospel except at the hands of an alien.—Southern Christian Advocate.

SUBSCRIBERS TO THE CHRISTIAN SUN

These Pens are of standard make, and will give good service. If you are in need of a Fountain Pen, order from us. Postage paid and Pens guaranteed by the manufacturer.

MEN'S PENS—Capitol, $2.00; Mercantile, $2.50; Cardinal, $3.00.

LADIES' PENS, $2.00.

COMBINATION OFFER—To a new subscriber or for renewal, $2.50, either Gentleman's (Capitol) Pen or Ladies' Pen, with guarantee of manufacturer. And to "Sun" subscribers, not in arrears, any Pen at one-fourth off. Address: THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 EAST BROAD STREET, RICHMOND, VIRGINIA

A Story for the Children

CURIOUS THINGS DONE BY INSECTS.

By PROF. JOHN HARVEY FURBAY.

Instinct is the dominating force that controls nearly all animal life. It is born with the animal and takes possession of the animal's activities at once. It is thus that our animal friends perform such complicated acts—themselves in total ignorance of how they are done. These instincts are inherited, and are independent of experience.

The most complicated instinctive behavior occurs in the insects. But all other animals exhibit interesting instincts, too. Some of these instincts seem very strange to us, and often do not appear to have any relation to the animal's welfare. However, in their usual setting, there is probably a purpose in every instinct. We shall consider some of the most interesting ones.

First, we note the perfection and wisdom of instinct. Why do butterflies seek for a certain kind of plant on which to lay their eggs? Are they aware that the caterpillars which will hatch from these eggs must have that particular plant for food? Or are they blindly led to that plant, unaware of why they go? They never live to see their own eggs hatch, and they have no way of knowing what food is used, so we must conclude that they are led by blind instinct to those plants.

Many wasps kill their prey, such as crickets or caterpillars, and then bury them in the ground along with some eggs. When the eggs hatch, the buried caterpillar serves as food for the young. Does the mother wasp know this when she buries them? Certainly not. She does not know why she does it.

The precision of instinct is also shown in these same wasps. They always sting their prey exactly in the vital nerve spot. Where did they learn that? They did not learn it. They did it perfectly the first time they seized a victim.

Why do honey bees make hexagonal cells? Do they choose this shape? Do they know that it is the most economical shape for such structures? Have they ever considered a change? Probably not. This is another example of the perfection of instinct.

When pups are born, how does the mother dog know that she must bite off the umbilical cord (navel)? She doesn't know. It is a wise instinct of which she herself is not aware. Why does she take the puppy's nose in her mouth and start the first breathing? For the same reasons.

Some Brazilian ants (atta sexdens), described by Dr. Jacob Huber, have a curious habit of carrying bits of leaves into their underground nests, where small gardens of white fungus are grown on the leaves. These ants care for the gardens carefully, and manure them from their own body secretions. The fungus serves for their food. When the queen leaves to start a new colony, she carries a little of this fungus under her tongue, so that after the wedding ceremony she can start a garden in her new nest. Such apparently intelligent procedure makes us wonder if they do not really understand what they are doing. However, a study of their activities convinces one that none of this was learned or thought out, but resulted only from instinctive motivation.

Birds, fishes, and all other animals obey similar urges from within and do not know why. Man himself performs many of his activities from the same inner promptings.

Many instincts appear to have a definite rhythm, and one act must follow another act without exception. For example, I have often watched mason wasps follow their fixed cycle of instinctive behavior on a summer day. First, the female builds a cell; second, she lays an egg in it; third, she stuffs the cell full of paralyzed caterpillars; and fourth, she seals over the cell. If the eggs are destroyed or removed from the cells as fast as they are laid, it makes no difference to Mrs. Wasp. She must go on with the cycle. So she stuffs the cells full of caterpillars, and seals the mover—even though the eggs are gone.

In a similar manner, hunting wasps paralyze caterpillars, deposit eggs in them, bury them, and then cover over the hole. If the caterpillars are taken out of the hole, the wasps will seal it up with as much care as they would if the caterpillars had not been removed. They are impelled to go on with the cycle of activity.

Spiders have a definite cycle of instinctive behavior in building their webs. If a portion of the web is completed and the spider has gone on to another phase of the web-spinning, she will not return and rebuild the first part if it is destroyed. The cycle of instinct does not permit any back-tracking.

All of these examples show the perfection and exactness of instincts, and they are directed to certain ends. They also show that instincts move in definite steps of progression, each step suggesting the next. Animals perform instinctive acts with ease and precision at the first attempt, following a clear but intelligent course of action. It is a sure path, but a blind one.—Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty.

A VISIT TO THE HOLY LAND.

(Continued from page 3.)

The imagination can scarcely conceive what the grandeur of those magnificent temples, archways, amphitheatres and palaces, now in ruins, must have been in their original settings, here, as at several other historic sites in the Trans-Jordan county, the archaeologists are making many most valuable discoveries and doing important restoration work for Bible students and students of history.

As already stated, a trip into the Trans-Jordan country even in this day, involves both dangers and discomfort. We were instructed to leave our money and all our jewelry and any other valuables in Jerusalem when we made the trip, as only two weeks before a party of English students and professors from Oxford University, while making the same trip, had been held up and robbed by the bandits. It is still a hard journey over the rough roads, down deep valleys, and up high mountains. But what a contrast between the journey now and the journey in the days of our Lord! Because of the unique topography of the country itself, and especially because of the associations of its landmarks with so many of the Bible characters, a trip to the Trans-Jordan region is greatly worth while. I shall never forget the experiences and impressions of my journey into this part of Palestine.

A visit to the Holy Land is made doubly interesting and beneficial in an educational way by visiting the museum of antiquity in that ancient land, and by hearing the archaeologists interpret the results of their excavations which bring to light the ruins of those ancient cities long hidden from the eyes of man. Visits to the sites of these excavations where the work is now going on, and seeing the findings of utensils, implements, and records left by the people of the long ago, just as they are taken from the ground, findings many of which verify Bible dates and events, and findings which throw historical light upon life in Palestine from the first days that it was inhabited by man, stirs one's imagination, makes the entire country of greater interest, and causes one to ponder on what future excavations may disclose.

The archaeologists tell us that there were numerous streams of irrigation into Palestine centuries before Abraham came into that land, and that these ancestors of the Hebrews from the North Arabian desert were a Nomad people as early as 5,000 years before Christ, making their first immigration into Palestine about 2500 B. C. The Semites have never taken strongly to farming or, in fact, to work of any kind. But being a Nomad people, wandering from place to place with their flocks and herds over the deserts until they came to Palestine, this country seemed to them a veritable Paradise.

The archaeologists, with spade, pick and shovel, in bringing to light the ruins of those ancient towns and homes, have discovered evidences that these ancestors of the Hebrews who migrated into Palestine from the North Arabian deserts, had certain religious beliefs which had to be adjusted to the new environment and the new conditions of their new home in Palestine. On the deserts they had worshipped the sun and the moon, the wind and the rain. Their religious superstition made them think that the sun was a deity so powerful that, if its displeasure were sufficiently provoked, it could shine with such heat as to destroy every living thing, and dry up every spring and stream; but that if the sun was worshipped, it could be kind in modifying its heat so as to let the grass grow and the springs to flow for their flocks that their flocks and they might live.

The archaeologists have also found evidence of the fact that sacrifice was relatively unimportant in the religions of the ancestors of the Hebrews when they first came into Palestine, likely because of the scarcity of food with which they could make their sacrifices. Archaeologists also tell us that the practice of giving the first born of man and beast in sacrificing to deity was likely a development in the early experiences of the Hebrew ancestors after they came into Palestine.

These early Semites were the Amorites, the Jebuzites, and the Moabites whom Abraham found centuries later when he came from Ur of the Chaldees into Palestine.

Abraham first tried to settle at Shechem, but was unable to do so; and hence moved on to Hebron where he made his final stand to get a foothold in Palestine.

When we stopped for dinner at the site of the ancient Shechem, now called Nablus, I leisurely strolled through those ancient streets and along the valley between those two historic mountains, Mt. Gerizim and Mt. Ebal, that looked down upon Abraham in his pilgrimage of faith as he "went out, not knowing whither he went"; and then when at Hebron, where Abraham settled for a time, I stood upon the high point of ground where tradition has it that Abraham pitched his tent overlooking the valley and the site of Hebron. And as I meditated upon the contribution of that ancient Hebrew and his posterity to Biblical history, I had a new appreciation of the meaning of faith to him, and a new realization of how little people in our day know of hardship and opposition as compared to what the early Hebrews and their ancestors experienced. From those experiences the world received its Holy Bible. What a heritage! What will be the heritage of religious idealism that our generation will leave to posterity is a question well worth considering by those of us who appreciate the significance of the contribution made by those ancient people to present-day civilization.

(N. B. The next article will be on the subject, "The Palestine Jesus Knew and Loved.")

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."

REV. F. C. LESTER, Editor, 505 S. Main St., Norfolk, Va.

I AM GRATEFUL.

Thanksgiving Day is an annual holiday for us. It started in hard times (1621), died amidst plenty, and was revived when the country was ravished by war. Since 1863 the President has always set aside the last Thursday in November as a day for thanksgiving and prayer to Almighty God for his goodness and his bounteous gifts. Unfortunately many people pay no heed to the President's request, but make the day one of feasting and pleasure only.

How can I be grateful now when ten million workers have no jobs? More people are hungry than I could feed before they starved, even if I had plenty of food and the people were in one crowd. Many of us who work receive less than half as much pay as was ours ten years ago. Crime is so rampant that some fear to travel the streets or to sleep under their own "vine and fig tree." For what can I be grateful in a world like this?

I am grateful for life in a day like this. There is so much to see, to know, to enjoy that gratitude fills my heart. My grandfather never dreamed of the riches that are mine, and for my father such riches were only a dream. When my father, who died a quarter of a century ago, went forty miles from home it was an event, but I drive a hundred miles before breakfast, and do it with ease and comfort. He got his fuel from the forest by hard labor, but I get mine from a coal bin or turn on the gas supplied by the city. In the evenings he sat for a little while by the light of a fire, a candle, or an oil lamp, then retired early and arose at dawn, but my home, office, and city are illumined at night by little effort from me, and I read, work or travel at will by night or day. He ate his vegetables, pork and molasses fresh from the farm at the cost of daily toil, but my table is supplied by fruit-growers, fishermen and farmers from all over the earth, by the courtesy of the corner groceryman, for a bit of my daily wage. For the riches of the earth which are mine to enjoy, I am deeply grateful.

On the shelves of my study are books which bring to me the wisdom of the world. Before me as I write is a map of the world, and if I want to know about China, or India, or any other country, I can turn to my shelves and gain that information. If I like, I can live with Solomon or Socrates, I can enjoy the paintings of Raphael or Michael Angelo, and the music of Bach or Beethoven are mine if I want them. For these I am grateful.

The world moves so rapidly today that it is difficult for one to understand just what is happening. The economic revolution which is taking place in America is bewildering even to those who are leaders in it. The rapidity with which the nations of the earth are being drawn together startles us. New inventions and scientific discoveries are made faster than we know how to use them. But for all of these, and for the privilege of living in a time like this, I am grateful.

The faith of all good people in all of the different religions of the earth has been and is being shaken. Things they surely believed, they no longer believe. Hopes that guided them have now faded away. But many are finding a firmer faith and to them religion is becoming a finer thing. In the midst of the turmoil, strife and anxiety the Man of Galilee goes to the home and heart of the rich and the poor, the learned and the unlearned, the white and black, to all sorts and conditions of people with a message of cheer and hope and love. For the blessings of Christianity, the joy of Christian fellowship, the privilege of working for Christ and the church, I am deeply grateful.

THANKSGIVING.

We thank thee, Lord, for life, for things
That lend to living laughter's wings;
For food and shelter; firelight;
For quiet sleep; for day and night;
For honest work; for skies and sun;
For friends and books when toil is done;
For china, gleaming blue and green;
For smiling silver; and the sheen
Of scarlet on a robin's breast;
For tiredness; for warmth; for rest;
And for the lessons taught by pain;
For all the dreams that thou hast sent
To bring us noble discontent;
For children's voices, small and clear;
For trees and flowers; and the dear,
Brown fragments of our bit of sod;
For these, for love, we thank thee, God.

—Faith Baldwin.

THANK GOD.

Thank God for life!
E'en though it bring much bitterness and strife,
And all our fairest hopes be wrecked and lost,
E'en though there be more ill than good in life,
We cling to life and reckon not the cost.
Thank God for life!
Thank God for love!
For though sometimes grief follows in its wake,
Still we forget love's sorrow in love's joy,
And cherish tears with smiles for love's dear sake,
Only in heaven is bliss without alloy.

Thank God for love!
Thank God for pain!
No tear hath ever yet been shed in vain,
And in the end each sorrowing heart shall find
No curse, but blessings in the hand of pain;
Even when he smiteth, then is God most kind.
Thank God for pain!
Thank God for death!

Who touches anguished lips and stills their breath
And giveth peace unto each troubled breast;
Grief flies before thy touch, O blessed death,
God's sweetest gift; thy name in heaven is rest.
Thank God for death!

—Author Unknown.

WHAT HAVE WE TO THANK GOD FOR?

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC FOR NOVEMBER 26.

Scripture: Psalm 103:1-5.

Theme: "Come, Ye Thankful People, Come."

Suggested Hymns: "Come, Ye Thankful People, Come," "O Jesus, I Have Promised," "This Is My Father's World."

A FRIENDSHIP MEETING.

To the Christian giving thanks should be a daily practice. Thanksgiving Day is the occasion when a nation unites in giving thanks. It is America's home-festival day, second only to Christmas as the occasion for family reunions, visits "back home," and good fellowship in the home.

Let the Thanksgiving meeting be a friendship meeting. Each member attending should bring guests with him. Perhaps the gathering may be called at an earlier hour than usual, to allow time for getting acquainted, for a hymn-sing, and possibly for refreshments, before the devotional meeting begins.

A Picture from the Past.

For a moment let us turn our thoughts from the present, draw aside the curtain of time that separates us from the past, and look at another harvest festival.

If we today might live through such a year as that experienced by the little colony of Pilgrims doubtless we should think these years of so-called depression rich indeed in values both material and spiritual.

Let us look at the founders of our national Thanksgiving. In the first place they had sought refuge in the country of Holland, where they might escape the tyrannies of the English crown and be free to worship as they pleased. But these people were proud of their English identity and, fearing to lose it among the Dutch, they formed themselves into a company and with borrowed money bargained for two ships to bring them to the New World. Virginia was their goal, but from the day they set sail, misfortune accompanied them. One of their boats was forced to put into harbor. The other boat took three months to make the crossing and was harried by storms that forced her to make a landing not in the pleasant waters of the Chesapeake, but on the rock-bound coast of New England. Stout of heart, nevertheless, the Pilgrims landed and at once fell on their knees to thank God for their safe journey.

Even then enemies stood waiting. They came in the form of foul, wintry weather; hostile natives; severe illness that forced them that first winter to bury half their number; and gnawing hunger.

At length, however, the snows melted, the spring sun shone kindly in the forest, and the undaunted Pilgrims cleared a space and planted their crops. Never have plants been watched more eagerly than these that promised life to the Pilgrims. Friendship was made with the Indians, too.

It was not a bountiful harvest the Pilgrims gathered in that fall. But it was something. Under the trees they spread their table to which they invited the Indians. It was the most festive day the Pilgrims had ever known and the most grateful.

More than a day of thanksgiving, however, it was a day of consecration to the task to which they had set themselves. Another hard winter faced them. There would be cold and sickness; there might even be hunger. But everyone who bowed his head reverently under the trees that day felt the nearness of God in all his undertakings, and all of them went away in the evening with renewed courage and hope, and a renewed vision for the months and the years ahead.

Why I Am Thankful.

(Illustrations of the type of participation that members and friends may offer.)

I am thankful for the Church. Whatever the fellowship of this society means to me, and it means much, I owe to the church that has made such societies possible.

I am thankful for my home and my family. I thank God for their love for me and their trust in me, and I resolve anew to do my best for him and for them.

I am thankful for time. I hope to learn year by year to use God's time more usefully.

I am thankful for friends. Friendship means more to me, too, because so many of my friends are those whom I have met through the church and the society, where we have many things of the Christian life in common.

(Continued on page 11.)

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE.

PAUL IN CORINTH.

GOLDEN TEXT: "I determined not to know anything among you, save Jesus Christ and him crucified."—I. Cor. 2:2.

LESSON TEXT: I. Cor. 1:10-18; 2:1-5.

Corinth was a great commercial city, the metropolis of Greece, a city noted for its wealth, its luxury, and its immorality. Paul visited it on his second missionary journey and founded a church there. While on his third missionary journey, and while at Ephesus just across the Aegean Sea, Paul wrote what we know as I. Corinthians, both to correct conditions about which he had heard, and to answer questions which the Corinthian Church had asked in a letter to him. Today's lesson is taken from this letter.

No Divisions Among You.

Paul was greatly troubled about the divisions in the Corinthian Church. Some of the members were saying that they were "of Paul," others "of Peter," and still others "of Christ." Paul takes them to task for their pettiness and their sinfulness. They were missing the heart of the thing. Their supreme loyalty should be to Christ, not to certain favorite leaders. By their divisions and contentions they were not only hindering the work of the church from within; they were making it ineffective without. He "beseeches" them in the name of the Lord Jesus, to be of the same mind and of the same judgment. Paul was not asking for absolute agreement in thinking. He was asking for unity of mind and heart as concerning Christ and his work. People who differ in theology and temperament can still be united in common loyalty and service to Christ. One of the blackest marks against Christianity has been its divisions and sects and "isms," and one of the greatest hindrances to the work of many churches is the spirit of division and dissension among the members. The devil likes nothing more than a church "fuss" or a division.

Baptism.

Paul did things decently and in order. He probably did not discount baptism. But if his words in today's lesson mean anything, he certainly did not magnify it to the place which some people give it. As a matter of fact, he not only says that he baptized only a few—he refers to two individuals and to the members of a household—he goes so far as to say that he does not recall whether he baptized anybody else (verse 16). Paul evidently felt that there were other things more important than baptism by water.

Preaching the Gospel.

"For Christ sent me, not to baptize, but to preach the Gospel." Paul believed he had a divine commission. He felt "called to preach" by Christ himself. That was his mission. And his message was "the Gospel," the good news that God loved men, that Christ died for men, that men could be redeemed by grace through faith, and that nothing could separate men from the love of God which was in Christ Jesus. Paul, of course, developed these points, but they were the heart of his message. When Paul preached he talked about God and about Christ and about sin and about redemption and about consecration and about victory here and life eternal hereafter. Preaching for Paul was serious and high business. In this day in which we live every minister needs to preach the Gospel with a new passion and a new power.

The Cross of Christ.

The sacrificial death of Christ on the Cross was the central theme of Paul's preaching. Christ died for sinners. Christ loved us and gave himself for us. Christ made it possible for us to be reconciled to God. Christ saves. It was not "the wisdom of words"; it was truth taught by the spirit of God himself.

The Preaching of the Cross—Foolishness or Power?

Paul says the preaching of the Cross is to them that perish foolishness. To the man who loves sin, the Cross is simply a lot of foolishness. To the man who tries to understand it intellectually apart from experience, it is foolishness. But to those who have yielded themselves to Christ, to those who in penitence and trust, have accepted by faith Christ's reconciling work on the Cross, it becomes the power of God. Those who have been saved from sin may not be able to explain the mystery of the Cross, but they have experienced its power.

Not With Excellency of Speech or of Wisdom.

Some preachers seem to try to see how big words they can use and how flowery language they can employ in preaching. Indeed one gathers the impression when listening to some preachers that they are more concerned with making an eloquent address than with getting across a message. All too many people make sound and motion a substitute for thought and simplicity. Every minister and teacher should work diligently to put his thoughts into simple and clear language. A sermon is designed to feed, not to entertain. A sermon is designed to reveal God, not to display one's elocutionary gifts. Paul preached simply. His sermons were not with "enticing words of man's wisdom." He did not try to show his ability as an orator; he tried to reveal Christ. And Paul had good authority for his method. Never a man spake like Jesus, and Jesus always spoke simply, clearly, concisely.

Jesus Christ and Him Crucified.

Paul knew Corinth was a rich and a wicked city. He knew that it was a hard place. But he took his stand on Christ and him crucified, and stood there. He dared not do less. He could not do more. If Christ and him crucified does not win men, nothing else will.

In Spirit and in Power.

There must have been some great meetings in Corinth when Paul preached. Because Paul honored Christ, Christ honored Paul. Whenever and wherever a man preaches the true Gospel, God gives his blessing. Whenever and wherever a teacher teaches the truth, God adds his blessing.

The Source of Your Faith?

Our faith should not stand in the wisdom of men, but in the power of God. We need the wisdom of men. Teachers and preachers can help us to find and know God. But our faith should not, indeed it cannot, stand on the wisdom of men. We need to know God at first-hand, and then to interpret our faith in terms of that personal experience. Experience first, then reason. Religion first, then theology. There are multitudes today who are not afraid of what science can do to religion, for they know whom they have believed. Their faith does not stand in the wisdom of men, but in an experience of and the power of God.

WHAT HAVE WE TO THANK GOD FOR?

(Continued from page 10.)

I thank God for my work. I accepted a job that was not what I had planned to do, but in my work I have found many reasons for happiness. While I am trying to prepare for more important work later on, I hope I am not forgetting the opportunities of today to live honestly, work efficiently, and lend a hand where I can.

Is there any person who does not have something for which to be thankful? One poet says:

Kneel always when you light a fire
Kneel reverently, and thankful be
For God's unfailling charity;
And on the ascending flame inspire
A little prayer, that shall upbear
The incense of your thankfulness
For his sweet grace
Of warmth and light.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 16-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $4.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size. 3 3/4 x 5 3/8 inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3 3/4 x 5 3/8 inches, and 1 inch thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps $2.50

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5 1/2 x 8 1/2 inches and 1 3/8 inches thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With Concise Bible Dictionary, combined Concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Lavanant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold $4.75

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations; special book for Sunday Schools 95c

Any of the above Bibles sent postpaid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street

Richmond, Virginia

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy

MONDAY.

THE POWER OF THE NATURAL MAN.

"When I would do good, evil is present with me."—Rom. 7:21.

Adam and Eve hid from God. So long as they were in hiding they refused to hear the calls of God. Paul, in his persecution of the Christians, refused to hear the voice of Jesus. In the character of Tito Melenia, George Eliot gives us a story of the ingrained habit of slipping away from reminders of duties neglected, and obligations left unfulfilled.

Honesty and truth, justice and righteousness have nothing of which to be ashamed and nothing from which to hide. Where these are the qualities, there is cleanness of soul and the word of Christ penetrates.

But there is a powerful self about us. That self is called the natural man. It is that part of us referred to by James as "naturally devilish" (Jas. 3:15). It is that body which Paul speaks of as being "sown a natural body, but raises a spiritual body," it is that part of himself continually at war with his spiritual body.

Prayer—O Lord, we confess our faults to thee and pray thy forgiveness. We would make bare our souls to thee and be moulded by thee into the Christ-like man. Suffer no deadening influence to blur our vision of what we ought to be. This day we set ourselves about to learn thy will and how we are to do it. We pray for grace to do it now and forever.—Amen.

TUESDAY.

AN UNUSUAL BLESSING.

"The good will of him that dwelt in the bush."
—Deut. 33:16.

Moses is reminiscing. He sees God's hand in the history of the race. He thanks God that he obeyed that first summons, and for the constant guidance which he had received. He proceeds to pronounce blessings upon the people which represent to him the most complete comprehension of God's love.

Here is a list of those blessings: "The precious things of heaven," "the precious things of the sun," "of the mountains," "the lasting hills," "the earth and its fulness," etc.

But the blessing that caps them all is that one pronounced in Thanksgiving for "the good will of him that dwelt in the bush." This characteristic of the dwelling of God does not occur anywhere else. It appears that it was intended to intensify the presence of God everywhere and that there is nothing too great for his power to accomplish; nothing too small for his condescension to notice and nothing too remote for his love to reach. There is a tenderness, a love, a care, a presence, an all-sufficiency, and therefore a greatness about a God who, even to the perceptions of man, "dwells in the bush."

Prayer—Dear Lord God, forgive us of our sins of ingratitude. We thank thee for everything. We commit ourselves to thee. Hold thou us fast.—Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

A THANKSGIVING CONCLUSION.

Lesson—23rd Psalm.

"Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life."—Ps. 23:6.

Moses's life had not been one of roses and downy beds of ease. But it had been a victorious life and God's good will had followed him and was with him still. The God who met him in the burning bush had never left him. The fire that burned there had never gone out in his life. The pillar of clouds that shielded them by day when pressed by the enemy and the fire by night that held the enemy back, was still with him, the same sort of protection to his life and soul.

In these days our retrospect is not the best. The way has been rough, rocky, rugged and steep. The wolf lurks at the door and poverty threatens the existence of thousands. Dost thou see the hand of God in it all? Does God's precious provisions throughout mean anything? Can we get together and out of a true spirit of gratitude pledge our faith and steadfastness to him? Job said, "Though he slay me yet will I trust him." "All things work together for good to them that love God." Even the "works of Satan are made to serve him." Paul said, "Whether living or dying we are the Lord's," and looking back over his past, said, "I have fought a good fight." Where will this Thanksgiving find us?

Prayer—Dear Lord God, be with us yet, lest we forget, lest we forget. We are trying to arrive at every conclusion of grace, love, faithfulness, and surety. O Lord, give us vision and all that we need to do this.—Amen.

THURSDAY.

THANKSGIVING DAY.

SHOW ME THY FRUITS.

Lesson—Psalm 139.

"If I ascend up into heaven, thou art there; if I make my bed in hell, behold, thou art there."
—Verse 9.

"Whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report, if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things."—Phil. 4:8.

"Show me thy fruits, this latest are of thine; for in the last is summed the first of all."

—Browning.

The Lord has shown us his fruits. Now he would have us show him our fruits. Our fruit is the consecration of ourselves. The finest expression of Thanksgiving is the offering of self at the throne of grace in humble recognition of what God has done for us.

Whatever has touched our interests, whatsoever has raised a care within our bosoms, whatsoever has been worthy of our anxiety or thought, in everything is indeed the infinite God, and may be made and should be made the subject of our Thanksgiving.

This is no small thing. It is said that the feeble pulsating of the heart may keep the life blood circulating for a while, but it requires a strong healthy heart to send the blood down into the tips of the fingers and make it circulate through the outmost, smallest branches of the veins. In like manner it takes unbounded faith in God, strongest spiritual life, and devotion to the kingdom to animate the whole course of life so that the power of godliness may reach the minutest transactions of life and bring God into the smallest matters. "As the years are made up of seconds, so every man's life is an aggregate of trifles. How are we spending our seconds?"

Prayer—O Lord, as we stand between our door and the garden, make us thankful that thou hast made the world so fair and beautiful, and that thou hast made us so susceptible to its goodness and bounty. We thank thee for the goodness of the world and that thou hast made us to love goodness. Make us faithful to its cause forever.—Amen.

FRIDAY.

SWEET MEDITATIONS.

"You to whom God was pleased to make known what is the riches of this mystery . . . which is Christ in you, the hope of glory."—Col. 1:27.

We have stood upon the edge of a grand canyon in the early morning of a glorious summer day and watched the wreathing mists that hide the mountain slopes in the distance and covered the chasms beneath. Then, under the breath of a freshening breeze the mists gradually lifted, disclosing the mountain tops which had been lost in the sky, and revealing the grand and glorious chasms of interminable depths and distances beneath. What ravishing vistas of varied and lurid beauty delighting the eyes and the soul and stimulating the imagination* What was first thought to be cloud was only mists. Their lifting made manifest the solid realities and dawning splendors of a world about us (and of which we are a part) incomprehensibly magnificent.

In our own little world we are in the midst of a thousand things of God. Often the things of this world obscure them and the holy life seems an impenetrable mystery. But when the mists have rolled away, as they do, there stands revealed, and open to our perceptions, the precious things of heaven and earth and the peace of God which passeth understanding, so that all we have to do is look and see. A glimpse has been granted as of the goodness and the purpose of God in Jesus Christ. Look and see. Eat and feed thy soul on him. Drink unto thy soul's satisfaction.—Amen.

SATURDAY.

SPIRIT OF GOD.

Spirit of God descend upon my heart,
Wean it from earth to joys above
Lift me from weakness mighty as thou art,
Teach me to love thee as I ought to love.
Teach me to feel that thou art nigh,
Teach me the struggles of the day to bear,
To check the rising tide of the rebel sigh,
Teach me the patience of increasing prayer.
I ask no dreams
No passing ecstasy,
No calmness dwelling in this vale of clay,
Just send thy angel thoughts
Through opening skies,
And take the dimness of my soul away,
O, take the dimness of my soul away.

—Geo. Croley.

SUNDAY.

SPIRITUAL REFUELING.

"Feed me with the food that is needful for me."—Read Prov. 30:1-9.

Refueling has proved one of the greatest forward steps in aviation. The feat has just been accomplished with gliders, a lunch being lowered from one glider to another, that being the only refueling necessary in that mode of flying.

Let us now arrange for our heavenly refueling, if we would make long flights with the spirit. Let us contrive ways to snatch at the power of the spirit, which is prayer, and the food of the spirit, which is the Bible. Our days may be crowded with necessary work, but what is more necessary than this refueling? Without Bible reading and prayer nothing is before us but a forced landing, which is quite sure to be disastrous.

Prayer—May we never, our Father in heaven, get out of touch with thee. With thee in reach, food and power are in reach, and we can keep going. In all our aviation may we make plans for wise refueling.—Amen.

AMOS R. WELLS.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Preacher

THANKSGIVING THOUGHTS.

By REV. J. S. WILLETT.

"Bless the Lord, O my soul; and all that is within me, bless His holy name."—Psalm 103:1.

Thanksgiving Day is an unusual holiday. It does not celebrate any great man. It is the expression of the common people. It is not a pagan holiday. It is a holiday of the people. The Pilgrim Fathers out of the deep gratitude of their hearts on that memorable first Thanksgiving Day gave expression of that gratitude to God. Gratitude is the great Christian motive. It is the only right way to think and feel. In another place the Psalmist said, "It is a good thing to give thanks." It is reasonable, it is right. There is something perverse and discordant in one who can live in God's world, unless he himself has made it a place of misery, and yet never feel the urge to kneel down somewhere, laying a sacrifice of praise upon the altar of God. Man by nature does not seem to be a creature of gratitude; not until we feel the quickening Spirit of God do we realize that every pulse of the heart that is painless, every breath of sweet air that goes to the pulsing of the heart, is a call to us to give God thanks and praise. With these wonderful bodies of ours, wherein perpetual renewal and decay goes on, as we pass through the day, we hardly realize that health is a miracle. What a preserver God is! Refreshed with the sleep of the night, needy for the new day's task; we take it all as a matter of course and the giver remains unthanked.

First, it is a good thing for ourselves to give thanks. Of all the great emotions which have the power of lifting us out of ourselves, gratitude is the greatest. We are ready to take the lowly place in the hour of gratitude, for the idea of thankfulness is that something has happened to us which was beyond our power and that was brought to us by God.

Second, it is the hour of faith, for in that hour we are living in an understanding and sympathetic world. The hard and bitter thoughts of life fall away. People are divided into two classes; those who give thanks, and those who do not. They represent two frames of mind, two moods, which really take possession of us. We either feel thankful or grudging. To be thankful is to be happy. To be grudging is like living in a prison house, cut off from the songs of life, and we can never be happy through life when we are standing on our own defense. Only when we are thinking of others can the best be realized.

Third, it is hardly possible to feel grateful to God without saying so. One may suspect a man's joy who gives no sign of it. We may perhaps feel grateful and give no manifestation of it, but we cannot enjoy the blessing of gratitude until we in some way let it out. Feelings, the very best and holiest, only turn in upon themselves and become stale unless they find expression. Expression gives to our feelings reality. A man really does not have a conviction until he has in some way declared it and maybe suffered for it. It is difficult to love some one and never do some beautiful act of service or sacrifice. Jesus asked the question, "Were not ten cleansed? Where are the nine?" The nine may have been grateful but surely it would have cheered the heart of Christ to have seen an expression of their gratitude.

It is said that that great English preacher, the sainted Dr. Hale, near the end of his life, asked God to forgive something for which he had never asked forgiveness before. He asked "God to forgive him for the sin of gloom, that his face and his voice had been gloomy and had overshadowed his life and the voice of praise and thanksgiving were so lacking." It is so easy to forget the long days and years of good things the moment the path is crossed by an adverse thing. We forget the years of unbroken prosperity in the great depression that darkens so many homes. We do not ignore the anxieties that darken many lives at this time, but we do want to remember the good things that have come. William Law, the great mystic, once asked, "Who is the greatest saint?" and his answer was, "The man who is most thankful." To live under a sense of our infinite indebtedness to God is to enjoy a fellowship with him as wonderful as it is enriching.

Gratitude will send a man on the second mile. Our thanksgiving can take the form of downright selfishness. We may express our gratitude for national and local blessings and our civilization in contrast with that of paganism, for family reasons, but if you will note closely the example of Jesus in every case where he offered thanks it was for blessings not for himself but for somebody else. In the raising of Lazarus he thanks God for what he was going to do for the family and others. At the return of the seventy he thanked God that he had hidden spiritual truth from those who thought themselves wise and had revealed it to the humble minds, even babes. This gives us a suggestion as to the broadest scope for our thankfulness, for one may have gratitude for these secular things and earthly blessings and still be without Christianity. Jesus said, "If any man come after me let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow me." The people that really help are the cheerful, hopeful, thankful people; not merely God-fearing people, but God-praising people.

Fourth, one thing God needs and requires, and one thing we can give is praise. He is not enriched by our material offerings, but praise shows a man at his best. Ingratitude shows a man at his worst. To say "the ungrateful wretch" expresses the utmost of contempt and disgust. For a life that is bereft of gratitude is a wasted, sullen, unfriendly life. "Offer unto God thanksgiving." Our tendency is to take our blessings as a matter of course. Why should not the sun shine and the harvest be abundant? We often wonder if the nine lepers out of the ten are representative of the selfishness of the unregenerated heart. It is ungrateful to think of God only in time of trial and forget in our prosperity. Nine were no sooner cleansed than they forgot. A life that refuses to complain lives on a high level, but why not go higher and insist upon gratitude for that spirit can be cultivated.

"Oh for a thousand tongues to sing
My great Redeemers' praise."

As David looked into his heart he found one blossom not developing as it should, and he sets to work to cultivate it by saying, "Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits." He refuses to blunder through life without seeing anything to thrill him or bring him to his knees in praise and adoration.

Fifth, in one way thankfulness is a matter of choice. We can if we desire deliberately cultivate hate and malice and the opposite of praise.

A dishonest man may grow as good potatoes as an honest man but he cannot grow as good a character nor build a soul. Character comes as a result of choice. The way of gratitude is not a catalogue of what we have not but what we have. Think on his benefits, not contrast our small blessings with the great benefits of others. It is so easy for us to persuade ourselves that our neighbor is getting a better deal than we. Let us learn to appraise our own wealth before looking at others. For the thankful spirit cannot exist unless there is the right sense of proportion of values, for after all the people who base their happiness on riches and on material things are the most discontented as a rule. "For a man's life consisteth not of the abundance of things that he possesseth." Paul's contentment was due to the fact that he had found the essence of life. He had discovered the Redeemer and in him was found a remedy for sin. He looked beyond the flogging, the imprisonment, the shipwreck, even death. Resurrection played a large part in his life and thinking and his soul sang its song of undying gratitude. It is not the things that bring the most joy now, but the things that will bring the most joy in the future that should have our praise now. Prof. James Orr once said, "God is shaking all things in heaven and in earth, but the things that cannot be shaken remain. God remains, the Bible remains, Christ remains, the sin and the need of the world remain, the Gospel as God's provision remains."

Sixth, some one has said that Paul's abounding joy was due to the fact that he had (1) stood fast in the Lord for good or ill, for the first essential of our happiness is submission to the will of God. (2) He had put all enmity and selfishness out of his heart and left only room for love and gratitude. (3) He refused to harbor care. Without question the great American disease is worry. Many are the victims of this disease. Paul's advice is good when he said (a) in nothing be anxious; (b) in everything by prayer and supplication (c) with thanksgiving make known your request to God." Paul fixed his mind on high things and he learned so perfectly the lesson of contentment and anything more than the barest necessities fills him with joy. A well-known minister used to walk up and down Fifth Avenue in New York at Christmas time and look into the beautiful windows and then think of the things he could do without. Perhaps trouble has come, but we ought to thank God for the troubles that have not come. During the Chapman-Alexander meetings, on one occasion a poor paralytic was wheeled down the aisle and placed before the platform. Mr. Alexander saw the man and said, "What is your favorite hymn?" He immediately answered, "Count your many blessings." That man had a vivid sense of the goodness of God.

Seventh, if the Psalmist needed to stir up his soul to bring vividly before his mind gratitude to God, surely our souls need stirring not only once a year on Thanksgiving Day, but every day. If we do not stir up gratitude in our hearts, the very abundance of our blessings will crush out our spiritual life, for a fire can die not from the lack of fuel only but also through the abundance of fuel. We must break up the crust, we must stir up the fire, we must fan it into a blaze. To lose the spirit of praise is tragic, for a thankful, singing, cheerful Christian is what this old world needs. In thinking of our thankfulness to God let us think of the amazing thought of God's gratitude toward us in that never to be forgotten chapter in Mathew, the 25th. Jesus gives us an insight of his gratitude when he said, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."—Reprint from The Wesleyan Methodist.

Do Not Forget Your Thanksgiving Offering

MAIN BUILDING—CHRISTIAN ORPHANAGE

The first child was admitted January 28, 1907. Since that date 377 children have been admitted.

The Christian Orphanage appeals to every Church and Sunday School for a Special Thanksgiving Offering during the Thanksgiving Season—Remember the fatherless children!

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

Thanksgiving will soon be here. Many of you will doubtless have turkey for your Thanksgiving dinner. Others will have good old chicken. We are wondering what we will have at the Orphanage. We would not think of asking for turkeys; but chicken would taste mighty good to us here. The good women saw to it last year that we had a real chicken dinner and our children were happy. I wonder if some of our good women will see to it this year. It will be fine for you to do this for the little children here. I feel sure you will enjoy your dinner more. If some of our churches would ship us a crate we would be very grateful. Most anybody could contribute a hen to help fill a crate for the little children here.

Now, for the Thanksgiving offering in your church! Do you realize that Thanksgiving is almost here? Just one more week. Have you laid aside your offering to put in the plate when the offering is taken in your church? Remember lots of our little fellows do not have their winter shoes because we have not had the money to buy them. We have faith in you, to believe you will make some sacrifice at this Thanksgiving season to assist your Orphanage in taking care of the little children in its care. It is a challenge to you.

We have had several inquiries as to our needs in linens. We need sheets (single and double) and towels. We are out of both.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON, Supt.

The following articles have been received since our last report:

- Mr. Vitus Holt, Burlington, N. C., 1 canning machine.
- Mrs. W. K. Holt, Burlington, N. C., 1 box of clothing.
- Mrs. J. H. McEwen, Burlington, N. C., 1 box of clothing.
- Jas. P. Montgomery Class, Burlington, N. C., clothing for Lillie Mae Hunter.
- Mrs. J. W. Holt, Burlington, N. C., 9 gallons of grapes.
- Mrs. R R Auman, Steeds, N C., 3 dresses, 1 pair shoes.
- Ladies' Missionary Society, Sanford, N. C., 1 quilt.
- Junior Christian Endeavor Society, Enigma, Ga., 1 quilt.
- Missionary Society, Durham Christian Church, Durham, N. C., 2 quilts.
- Woman's Bible Class, Burlington Christian Church, Burlington, N. C., 3 sheets, 6 towels, 1 skirt.

REPORT FOR NOVEMBER 23, 1933.

Brought forward $10,363.59

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

North Carolina and Virginia Conference:
Greensboro, Palm St.	$ 6.00
Howard's Chapel	1.00
Union, Va.	3.82
Ingram	6.00
Monticello	14.00
	30.82

Eastern North Carolina Conference:
Mt. Auburn	$ 3.15
Shallow Well	3.00
Pleasant Union	8.00
New Hope	1.00
Turner's Chapel	1.15
Oak Level	1.17
	17.47

Western North Carolina Conference:

Ether	$.82
Pleasant Cross	1.03
Pleasant Ridge	2.88
		4.73

Eastern Virginia Conference:

First, Norfolk	$ 10.31
Bethlehem	8.57
Cypress Chapel	3.97
Oakland	6.00
		28.85

Valley Virginia Central Conference:

Leaksville	1.76
------------------	------	--

Special Offerings.

Alamance County	45.00
-----------------------	-------	--

Endowments.

L. S. Holt Endowment Fund.....	150.00
--------------------------------	--------	--

Thanksgiving Offerings.

Mr. J. D. Long, Graham, N. C....	$ 10.00
Mr. A. W. Haywood, New York..	25.00
Mrs. E. J. Brickhouse, Norfolk...	30.00
A Friend	15.00
Miss Lydia Creswell, Hook's Mill, W. Va.	3.00
Mrs. Bessie Brill, Hook's Mill, W. Va.	1.00
A Friend	4.00
Mrs. H. E. Pearce, Franklinton, N. C.	5.00
Dr. and Mrs. W. C. Wicker, Elon College, N. C.	10.00
		103.00

Total for the week..... $ 381.63

Grand Total $10,745.22

ELON COLLEGE

AN ACCREDITED COLLEGE

of the

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING.

ELON COLLEGE, founded by the Christian Church in 1889, has fully justified the faith and hope of its founders during its 42 years of operation. Its graduates from the four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree, number 980, now living, 122 of whom are in the Christian Ministry and full-time Christian service. The majority of these are members of our own denomination. In addition, 449 are in educational work and are an active influence in the lay leadership of the Christian Church.

THE CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING, and the definite religious atmosphere of the College, provide the very best facilities available for training for religious leadership, and offer the Church its finest opportunity to train the young people of the denomination to assume active leadership both in the ministry and laity of the local churches.

FALL TERM OPENS SEPTEMBER 7th.

Address—

C. M. CANNON, Registrar

Elon College, - - - North Carolina

Home Atmosphere—Reasonable Rates—Clean Athletics—Christian Spirit

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr
A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Congregational-Christian Church.

Central Publishing Co., Inc., is complying with the President's Code

BOARD OF EDITORS.

- J. O. ATKINSON, D. D..... Editor
- E. C. GILLETTE, D. D..... Associate
- S. C. HARRELL, D. D..... Contributing
- C. R. RAYMOND, D. D.... Contributing
- ELISHA A. KING, D. D... Contributing
- W. C. WICKER, D. D..... Contributing
- J. T. KERNODLE.... Managing Editor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

- One Year$2.00
- Six Months 1.00

Trial Subscriptions: Five or more new subscriptions sent in at one time by pastor or president of any church organization, three months for 40c each.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Change of Address: Be sure to give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

All news matter and items to be published in "The Sun" should be addressed to J. O. Atkinson, Editor, Elon College, N. C., and should reach him not later than Friday preceding date of publication. If more convenient, news from Congregational Churches may be sent to E. C. Gillette, Associate Editor, 117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla. Emergency notices will be received at the Richmond Office up until Tuesday of week of publication.

All remittances for subscriptions, renewals, advertising, etc., books for review, and other matters of business should be addressed to J. T. Kernodle, Managing Editor, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

Notices: Obituary and marriage notices, limited to 125 words, published free. All over 125 words, 1c a word, cash with notice. No notices should exceed 250 words.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows date of expiration, and change on label will appear the first or second issue of the month following renewal, provided it was received before the 25th. No other receipt will be sent unless requested. Please notify the Richmond Office if label is not changed as above.

OBITUARIES

Johnson.

Sarah Harris, daughter of the late John T. Harris of Waverly, Va., was born October 22, 1855. On December 14, 1875, who married Thomas Wesley Johnson of Waverly, and November 13, 1933, she passed from earth to heaven.

Five children preceded her to the spirit world. She is survived by her husband, seven children, eleven grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

At the age of nine she joined Spring Hill Christian Church, and when the Waverly Christian Church was organized she became a charter member and remained faithful to her duties until death.

Funeral services were conducted in her church by her former pastor, the writer, on Tuesday, November 14th. Many beautiful flowers and a large group of people spoke silently but eloquently of the esteem in which Mrs. Johnson was universally held. Interment was made in the family plot in the Waverly cemetery.

Mrs. Johnson was a devoted wife, a loving mother, a loyal friend, a faithful church worker and a consecrated Christian who looked at life as an optimist and brought a blessing to all who knew her. May the blessings of high heaven rest richly upon her family, friends and church as they seek to make her immortal by continuing the noble life which she lived.

F. C. LESTER.

Howell.

S. R. B. Howell died at his home near Holland, Va., November 2, 1933, aged 77 years. Funeral services were conducted at Holy Neck Church by his pastor, assisted by Revs. W. M. Jay, R. A. Whitten, J. G. Truitt and W. H. Corbett. The interment was in Holy Neck Cemetery.

He leaves a widow, a son, Richard Howell, Philadelphia, five daughters: Miss Della Howell, Holland; Mrs. H. A. Brooks, Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Thos. E. Gregory, Mrs. Julian Gregory, and Mrs. E. L. McLaine, Norfolk, and five grandchildren.

Mr. Howell was a faithful and loving husband and father, a loyal and faithful church member, and a Christian of unwavering faith. He endured his long and great suffering with a calm realization and rejoiced to meet the end.

May God bless and comfort his loved ones.
N. G. NEWMAN.

Meditation is not an act of the mind only, but of the whole man, so that the Word stirs thought, and thought stirs prayer, and prayer passes into communion, and communion reveals new matter for meditation.—Mark Guy Pearse.

PIEDMONT COLLEGE

Located in

"The Blue Ridge Highlands"

FALL TERM BEGINS
SEPTEMBER 13.

An accredited college with an enviable reputation for superior classroom instruction, and wholesome student life.

Fully recognized and accredited in its home State, and in such neighboring States as North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Tennessee and others. Standard courses leading to the A. B. and B. S. degrees.

Cost for Board, Room and Tuition, including also Entrance, Activity, and Infirmary fees reduced to $273.50 for the College Year. Personal expenses as low as student and parent wish.

All who seek an "A" grade college training for their sons and daughters in an atmosphere of Christian culture, and at minimum cost, are invited to write for the college catalogue and admission blanks.

Address: DEAN J. C. ROGERS,
DEMOREST, GEORGIA.

Southern Seminary Foundation

(Successor to Atlanta Theological Seminary.)

AFFILIATED WITH

Vanderbilt University

The Foundation and the other Foundations that are affiliated with Vanderbilt University School of Religion comprise the only Interdenominational Theological School in the South. Through this affiliation the students enjoy the rights and privileges of Vanderbilt University.

DEGREES.

Candidates for degrees are required to have completed their college courses.

The degree of Bachelor of Divinity is offered to qualified students who complete the required courses.

Vanderbilt University also offers the degrees of Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy, in accordance with the regulations established in its several departments.

MORE THAN A SCHOOL OF THEOLOGY.

Because of our affiliation with Vanderbilt, our relations with other nearby colleges where our students can take courses without tuition, and the cooperation of the American Red Cross and other social agencies in the city, we prepare students for many types of Christian service.

Come to Nashville, the Educational Center of the South, and prepare for Christian leadership. A Graduate School open to both men and women, with opportunities for self-help.

For information write

WILLIAM JAMES CAMPBELL, President,
330 BUTTRICK HALL, VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY,
NASHVILLE, TENN.

SOUTHERN UNION COLLEGE

FRANK E. JENKINS, Acting President.

WINTER QUARTER WILL BEGIN
NOVEMBER 29th.

* * * *

STRONG FACULTY : STRONG COURSES
LOW EXPENSES : THOROUGHLY
CHRISTIAN.

* * * *

The Adult Education Department is growing rapidly, with over 60 already enrolled.

For prospectus and full information, write

DEAN MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD,
WADLEY, ALABAMA

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Representing the Southeast Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXV.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 30, 1933.

NUMBER 48.

•• THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY ••

The Chicago Stockyard Strike.—

The livestock handlers' strike had assumed serious proportions by Tuesday of this week. It was stated by stockyard officials that unless some agreement could be reached immediately the Chicago Union Stockyards would be closed to the shipment of all livestock. Though not yet officially closed, the stockyards had already taken on a holiday appearance. Both strikers' pickets and policemen patrolled before the main entrances, but no serious disorders had been reported.

Women of the Philippines Receive Suffrage.—

Just before the Ninth Insular Legislature adjourned, it passed a bill extending the right to vote to women on the same electoral basis as men. The bill was recommended by Governor-General Frank Murphy, and was passed with little opposition. The qualifications for voting require that one must be 21 years of age, able to read and write, and must possess property worth not less than $250.00. The Philippines are the first Oriental country to grant the right of suffrage to women.

Attendance at Chicago Fair.—

Final tabulations show that there were a total of 22,320,456 paid admissions to the Chicago Century of Progress Exposition. Besides these there were nearly a quarter-million tickets paid for which were not used. It has been definitely decided to re-open the Exposition next summer, and it is said that a number of paid admissions of slightly more than half those of this year will make the fair profitable. Approximately 80 per cent of the present exhibitors have signified that they will be on hand next year, while applications for space have been received from many other concerns as well as foreign countries.

No Competition for Doctors.—

From the Epworth Era comes the following startling information: "For the black skinned natives of Central Africa there are just 114 doctors for a total population of 90,000,000, or one doctor for each 790,000 natives. This compares with one doctor to every 759 persons in the United States. All of these doctors are missionaries. There are government physicians, but they confine their practice to foreign residents. Except where these few medical missionaries have gone, Africa is still tormented with the terror of evil spirits and dominated by the witch doctor. A glorious opportunity awaits an awakened church."

Objections to Caste.—

In a thesis presented to the faculty of the Graduate School of Cornell University by William H. Wiser, the following reasons are given for his objection to the caste system as found in Northern India: "(1) Its segmental division of society is fixed by birth and does not take account of individuals of different abilities born into the different castes. (2) Its hierarchy fixes the Brahman at the apex and the untouchable at the base, irrespective of individual I. Q.'s. (3) Its food tabus and pollution by touch prevent inter-dining and a free intercourse of human beings who may be intellectual equals, as in the case of

A Thanksgiving Prayer!

*For fertile soil and kindly skies,
 For fecund seed, for strength and skill
 To sow and harvest the supplies
 Which now our bursting garner fill,
 We give Thee thanks, O Lord!*

*For daily grace through daily prayer,
 For daily aid in daily strife,
 That we have been allowed to share
 The Wine of Heaven, the Bread of Life
 We give Thee thanks, O Lord!*

*For every wise and holy thought,
 For all of worth that we have won
 For every kindness we have wrought,
 For every kindness to us done,
 We give Thee thanks, O Lord!*

*For faith—of all Thy gifts the best—
 The vanquisher of worldly care,
 For peace amid the world's unrest,
 For hope amid the world's despair,
 We give Thee thanks, O Lord!*

*Ours is the pilgrim's changeful lot;
 Let light or gloom fall on our way,
 May we press on and falter not,
 Till in the land of fadeless day
 We give Thee thanks, O Lord!*

—LIVING CHURCH.

a low caste man with a Brahman intelligence. (4) Its civil and religious disabilities prevent men of all castes from mixing freely in the use of public services. (5) Its lack of choice of occupation takes no cognizance of potential skills or various kinds of a given caste, but arbitrarily fixes the occupational status of each by birth. (6) Its marriage restrictions prevent intermarriage on the basis of intellectual equality. (7) Its religious sanctions offer nothing to those born in the lower castes of this life."

Tenth Anniversary Postage Stamps Issued.—

The following which we copy from The Methodist Protestant-Recorder, was in turn copied from the Evangelical Christian: "To celebrate the tenth anniversary of the Fascist Government of Italy, Signor Mussolini has issued a series of new postage stamps, among them a design which has caused much opposition from the Vatican. The brown oblong 30-centesimi stamp sets forth in the center the open Bible standing on a pedestal, which rests on the wings of an eagle, symbol of inspiration. On the open page of the Bible is inscribed the word Evangelism. On the lower part of the stamp is the word Credere—to believe. In the rear of the open Bible is the Cross, not the Crucifix. On the left, before the Bible and the Cross, are the flags of Italy and the emblems of the Fascist regime, lowered in salute. The circulation of this stamp in Italy will preach a great sermon to the people, who have been taught that the Bible is a closed book to all but the priesthood of the Roman Church. The plain cross sets forth the Christ of the Cross, rather than the Cross of Christ. The Dictator of Italy is granting entire freedom for the wide circulation of the Scripture in Italy."

Governor Rolph and Lynchers.—

Not even the kidnapping and slaying of the youth, Brooke Hart, caused the front page attention that was caused by the lynching of his kidnappers and the immediately following statements from Governor Rolfe of California. There are many throughout the country who may agree with the Governor that "they made a good job of it." It is quite possible that such action will instill fear in the hearts of would-be kidnappers—and if it does, even such a crime may be excusable. Governor Rolph says that it was "a fine lesson to the whole nation. There will be less kidnapping in the nation now." The opinion of Mr. Rolph is by no means unanimous, and many who possibly agree with him, do not believe that his rather blatant statements in regard to the case have made it more effective. The News Leader of Richmond, Va., thinks that it has done vastly more to upset law and order than it can possibly do good. The Times-Dispatch says: "If any governor of an American State has delivered so direct an incitement to violence and lawlessness as Governor Rolph of California delivered yesterday, it would be difficult to call his name." It reminds us that there are two important conclusions that can be drawn from this episode: The first is that the public has been thoroughly aroused by the activities of kidnappers throughout the country, and is going to demand speedy reprisals wherever the guilty are found, either through "due process of law," or otherwise. The other is that mobs react similarly whether in the South, the North or the West. Mob violence brings out the worst in a man regardless of where it is incited. The South has borne its share of condemnation for such violence. Now criticism turns toward the West.

NOTES-PERSONALS

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

Rev. F. C. Lester would have attention called to the fact that two Christian Endeavor topics are printed this week, so that hereafter leaders may have time in making preparations for their meetings.

Rev. G. D. Hunt, pastor of the church at Lanett, Ala., is planning a series of revival services beginning the first Sunday in December. Rev. H. C. Caviness, with his good wife, are expected to do the evangelistic work.

Dr. W. A. Harper, who is located with Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn., was in Richmond the latter part of last week visiting with old friends and acquaintances. It has been quite a while since he had paid THE SUN office a visit, and we were glad to see him.

Rev. James H. Lightbourne, D. D., Troy, O., has been called to and accepted the pastorate of Burlington Christian Church. He is expected to begin his ministry at Burlington in February. He will receive glad welcome back to our work in the South, where, because of his former labors, he is so well known and loved.

Rev. Edwin E. White, pastor of the Pleasant Hill Community Church and leader in that most interesting and valuable Larger Parish service, recently visited the Jacksonville office. He was on his way to Sarasota, Fla., for a prolonged rest. His physicians had ordered him to give up all work and take a complete rest for several months. All his many friends will wish him speedy and complete recovery.

Crowded to the fullest capacity a special worship service, led by the young people of Columbia, S. C., the great old hymns of the ages were used in a way that indicated a study of hymnology. A Thursday evening service was held welcoming the pastor at large and the secretary of missions. Under the leadership of Rev. Florence L. Squires, a great work is in progress in the industrial section of this university city, limited only by lack of space and insufficient finances. In terms of the highest life values, this is one of our most important church enterprises in the entire country.

The Christian Missionary Association of the North Carolina and Virginia Christian Conference is to meet in its first annual session apart from the Conference at First Church, Greensboro, 10 A. M., Thursday, December 7th, Rev. G. C. Crutchfield, president. The Association of several years ago merged with the Home Mission Committee of the Conference and now seeks to re-establish itself as a going concern for home missionary work within the Conference. Brother Crutchfield is urging all ministers of the Conference and a delegation from each Sunday School and church to be present for this initial meeting at Greensboro. An appropriate and full program for the day is arranged, and a meeting of merit and real worth are anticipated.

The new venture at Atlanta, Ga., with Dr. D. Ashby Jones as guest preacher, has resulted in congregations that are crowding the building and commending us to the entire city. Dr. Jones insists on a strong Congregational program being inaugurated. Rev. John F. Blackburn, retired from our service, but still active in his devotion to us, writes: "Dr. Jones is not a sensational preacher, and those who come to hear him are evidently thinking people, with a large per cent of young folks. It is a great experiment, and shows that there are many people in Atlanta who are tired of narrow denominationalism will demonstrate the broad spirit of Congregationalism by contrast."

Mr. George T. Gunter, secretary, wishes especial attention of pastors and churches in the Western North Carolina Conference to the adjourned session of the Conference to be held at Biscoe Christian Church beginning at 10 A. M., Monday, December 4th. The president of the Southern Christian Convention, Dr. S. C. Harrell, the president of Elon College, Dr. L. E. Smith, and the secretary of the Mission Board, J. O. Atkinson, are invited and expected by the Conference to attend this important session for the consideration of resolutions submitted to the Conference in annual session at Ramseur and referred by that Conference to this adjourned session at Biscoe.

The First Church at Miami, under the leadership of Rev. Helen F. Lanham, enjoyed a notable occasion on the evening of November 20th. A church supper was given in honor of the forty-four new members received since the first of January, all of them fine additions to the working force of the church. At this supper also there was the burning of the mortgage which had been held for some years by the now defunct Bank of Bay Biscayne. The Building Society enabled the church to take advantage of the offer of the receiver to accept what was relatively a small proportion of the debt. Another interesting feature was a birthday cake presented to Dr. George H. Bradford, who has for several recent months been assisting in the work of the church, serving as guest preacher at the morning service, doing so without compensation. This event was a most happy one and the attendance and the presence of so many new members augurs well for the progress of this church.

Rev. J. L. Neese, pastor of Palm Street Church, Greensboro, recently held an anniversary, marking the close of the fifth year of his pastorate there. A special service was held, which was exceedingly appropriate and largely attended. In this service, he gave an outline of the work done during the five years of his pastorate there, in which time the membership of the church has grown from 113 to 365. Seven new class-rooms have been added to the church during that time to accommodate the growing Sunday School and a basement has been provided, and a heating plant installed, both for the auditorium and Sunday School rooms. On the occasion of the anniversary, talks were made by A. H. Hinshaw, chairman of the Board of Deacons; E. L. Bowling, Sunday School superintendent; Miss Ophelia Morris, president, Woman's Missionary Society, and Charlie Jones, president, Christian Endeavor Society. Congratulations to Brother Neese and to Palm Street.

On Monday morning, March 20th, twelve men from Friendship Parish, Waycross, Ga., who, with their pastor, Alan Jones, had driven 250 miles during the night, dismantled the sectional building of the former Congregational Church in Anderson, S. C., and piled the material into two great Ford trucks and a freight car. The results are in evidence today in what to all appearances is a new, as well as attractive church building, housing the activities of Williams Chapel, two miles from Waycross, one of the four points of the Friendship Parish. Situated in a beautiful fir grove with interior and exterior surroundings making for worship, inspiration and recreation, well seated, central communion table and antiphonal choir plan, the dedication services on the Sunday morning were preceded by a sunset Communion Service on the Saturday afternoon, following which the four churches of the parish and other South Georgia Association churches came forward through their representatives and paid their several missionary apportionments. Sunday morning witnessed a crowded church, processional and recessional hymns, a very happy group of people, all bills met and an offering received for missions; the dedicatory sermon was preached by Rev. Milo J. Sweet, with the pastor and others sharing.

Dr. W. Knighton Bloom, secretary of Missions for the Eastern Division and associate secretary of the Southern Convention, is ill at his home in Washington, D. C., and has been granted two months' leave of absence by the Church Extension Boards. Dr. Bloom, though not well, has been carrying on his usual vigorous program, and was making a tour visiting important places in the Southeast when he was taken seriously ill at Atlanta. He has been confined to his bed since, and the doctors ordered him to stay there for some time longer. He is having the best of care and he has every reason to believe that he will be able to resume his service at the end of the two months' leave of absence. However, his friends all over the Southeast, and elsewhere, will want him to conserve his strength and not resume his all-too-strenuous program until he has fully recovered. Dr. Bloom has the deep affection of all those who have worked with him in the Southeast and all of his friends have realized that he was working too hard; but his love for his work, especially his love for the Southeast, has kept him going beyond the limit of his strength. All of his host of friends wish him speedy and complete recovery. Dr. Bloom wishes it stated that all matters of regular Church Extension Boards' detail, including all remittances on the apportionment, be sent to the Washington office (933 Woodward Building), addressed to his assistant, Miss Winifred M. Ing, who is efficiently carrying on the office duties.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT.

The Western North Carolina Conference in annual session at Ramseur, voted to have an adjourned meeting of ministers and delegates from each church, at Biscoe Church, 10 A. M., December 4th. The matter to be considered is that of resolutions read to the Conference by Dr. Stanley C. Harrell, president of the Southern Convention, as to plan of merger of Congregational-Christian Churches. The secretary of the Conference sends the following from the Resolutions Committee:

"Your Committee asks that the Board of the Southern Convention meet with the pastors on Monday after the first Sunday in December, 1933, for a discussion of the problems involved. Also that a delegation from each of the churches attend this meeting, which will be held at Biscoe Church. (Dr. Smith and Dr. Atkinson are invited to attend.)

"M. A. POLLARD, Chairman.

Food increases working power of muscles and brain; alcoholic drinks decrease it. Food aids one enduring physical strain; alcoholic drinks hasten fatigue and lower endurance. Food maintains the warmth of the body; alcoholic drinks increase the escape of heat. Food helps to keep the body in condition to resist disease; alcoholic drinks lower its powers of resistance.—Scientific Temperance Journal.

PROGRAM.

Following is the program for the Christian Missionary Association of the Eastern Virginia Conference, to be held with South Norfolk Christian Church, December 5, 1933:

MORNING SESSION.

- 10:30 Call to order, by Rev. Robert Lee House, President. Song service, led by W. H. Baker. 10:40 Devotional service, conducted by Rev. Joe French. 10:55 Address by Mrs. C. V. Hargrove, "Gratitude for the Presence and Achievements of the C. M. A." 11:05 Response by Rev. R. E. Brittle, "Meeting the Needs of Our Conference Through a Co-operative Enterprise." 11:15 Enrollment of delegates, collection of dues, announcement of committees. 11:40 Special music, Rev. J. F. Morgan and Rev. O. D. Poythress. 11:45 Address by President, "The Spirit of the Pioneer; A Challenge to Our Faith."

AFTERNOON SESSION.

- 1:30 Call to order. Song service, led by Rev. J. F. Morgan. 1:40 Devotional service, conducted by Rev. John G. Truit. 1:55 Report of Committee on Plans. Discussion. 2:15 Special music, R. L. House and W. H. Baker. 2:20 Sermon, Rev. R. A. Whitten. 2:50 Reports of committees. Election of officers. 3:15 Closing devotional period, Rev. H. S. Hardcastle.

MY FIELD OF WORK.

BETHEL.

We closed our year's work with this church the first Sunday in November. The third week in July we held our revival meeting. We had a fine meeting. Brother Rudd Newsom led the music for us. He is a spiritual singer and a fine musician. His music was much enjoyed. The preaching was done by the pastor. There were five additions to the church. This is a good church to serve.

The pastor and his family were remembered during the year with good things to eat. We have served this church for ten years. We have accepted the work for the coming year.

MT. ZION.

The second Sunday in November closed our year's work with this church. This was one of our happiest services during the year. The church met all of its obligations.

We held our meeting the second week in July. Brother Newsom was with us here. His services were much enjoyed. There were two additions to the church.

After the service on the second Sunday in September, we went to our car and with a joyful surprise we found it loaded with good things to eat. Since that time others have brought many other things to eat.

All of these things were appreciated and enjoyed by the pastor and his family. This is a good church to serve. It does not forget the needs of its pastor. May God ever supply their needs. We have served this church for thirteen years. The church has grown in that time, from about thirty members to one hundred and forty-seven. We are to serve here the coming year.

PLEASANT RIDGE.

(Guilford County.)

We closed our work with this church the third

Sunday in October. Several years ago we served this church for two years.

Our meeting was held the fifth Sunday and week following in July. Rev. F. E. Hyde assisted us in the meeting. He is a good preacher and a fine man to work with. His sermons were enjoyed very much. There was one addition to the church.

We are leaving this church and going to Pleasant Ridge in Randolph County. Our work began there the fourth Sunday in November.

J. FRANK APPLE.

WINONA LAKE SHOWS GAIN.

The 1933 session of the Winona Lake School of Theology, of Winona Lake, Ind., which was held from July 5th to August 12th, was one of the best sessions in the history of the institution. The management reports a gain of 10 per cent over 1932, with 16 States and 3 foreign countries, and 16 denominations represented in the student body.

There were two semesters of 15 days each, and courses were offered in the following subjects: Christian Doctrine, the Minor Prophets, New Testament Theology, Old Testament, General Epistles, and New Testament Greek.

On August 12th, at 10 o'clock, the Annual Commencement was held, at which time a fine class of graduates received their degrees, all, excepting one, receiving the Masters Degree, either in Theology, or in Religious Education.

Plans have already been made for the 1934 session of the school, which will be held from July 5th to August 11th. There will be two semesters of 15 days each, as usual. The faculty for 1934 is composed of the following: Dr. John R. Sampey, Dr. Gaius J. Slosser, Dr. Samuel M. Zwemer, Dr. Wilber W. White, and the Dean, Dr. J. A. Hoffman. Courses will be given in Church History, in Old Testament Prophecy, in Comparative Religions and Missions, in English Bible, and Greek New Testament.

The new Prospectus will be ready for delivery about February 1st, and a copy may be had by addressing the Dean, Dr. J. A. Huffman, either at Winona Lake, Ind., or at his permanent address, 302 Morton Boulevard, Marion, Ind.

Make the spring right and the off-spring is more likely to be right.

Keep THE SUN Shining Mail Your Subscription TODAY!

Why not send THE CHRISTIAN SUN to your friends for the ensuing year, and they will be reminded weekly of your thoughtfulness and interest?

THE SUN needs new subscribers badly, and the members of the Christian Church in the South need THE SUN just as badly. You who read the paper keep in touch with your church's activities and interests. Wouldn't it be a wonderful thing if you would help others to become acquainted with the things that you know about?

For your convenience we are printing a blank below. Just fill out this blank and pin your check or a money order for $2, for each subscription you wish sent, and we will do the rest.

As a token of our appreciation of your cooperation, we will advance your own subscription date three months for each yearly subscription you send in.

Of course, if it happens that the person to whom you send the paper is already a subscriber, we will advance their subscription one year, and will notify them that you have paid same.

SUBSCRIPTION BLANK.

December, 1932.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

Dear Sirs:

Please enter the name of

City, State, R. F. D. or St.,

on your subscription list for one year. I enclose $ to pay above subscription and for additional ones written on the margin of this blank. Please advance my subscription three months for each of these subscriptions, and send greeting cards to each of these subscribers.

Name

Street or R. F. D.

City and State

My own subscription expires

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

ASSOCIATE EDITOR

E. C. GILLETTE

117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla.

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

W. C. WICKER

C. REXFORD RAYMOND

S. C. HARRELL

ELISHA A. KING

THE PRINCIPLES OF OUR CHURCH.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

EASTERN NORTH CAROLINA CONFERENCE.

The last of our Annual Conferences assembled in regular session at Wentworth Church, McCullers, N. C., November 21st-22nd. The two-day session proved wise in one particular, at least, viz., A very large attendance of delegates and visitors for the two full days. From the opening session of the Conference, 10 A. M., November 21st, till the time the president's gavel fell for the closing at 4 P. M., on the 22nd, the house was well filled with a deeply interested audience. Dr. W. C. Wicker is president of the Conference and had invited Rev. George N. Edwards, pastor, Circular Congregational Church, Charleston, S. C., to preach the opening sermon. It proved to be a happy selection, as Preacher Edwards brought to the Conference a most timely and telling sermon, "Sharing the Gospel Message With Others." The preacher held his large audience in rapt attention as he revealed to them the fact that from the beginning, after Pentecost, "when they had all things in common," until this day, the Christian religion was a sharing religion. And, whereas, in the early centuries, the Christian religion especially shared material blessings, since that time it had been sharing spiritual blessings, and the one distinct feature of our religion is that we share with others the gospel of the Son of God. After the sermon, Rev. E. M. Carter conducted a very impressive communion service.

The Conference had been well opened with devotional service by Rev. T. Fred Wright, and then Brother B. L. Brown, of the local church, had most fittingly made all of us feel welcome to the place and privileges of the Conference, and Rev. S. E. Madren told the local church how happy we were to be present.

Rev. Stanley C. Harrell, D. D., followed these exercises in presenting certain resolutions of the Convention Board, and the resolutions had been discussed and adopted.

The afternoon, beginning with a very appropriate service by Rev. Robert Kimball, was given over entirely to reports from ministers, treasurer and the various committees and routine work.

The evening session was devoted to "Youth Fellowship," and a very wholesome young people's program, closing with a powerful sermon by Rev. L. E. Smith, D. D.

The morning session of the second day was absorbed in the reports and discussion of "Missions—Home and Foreign," and "Education." Dr. Smith's address, following these reports, on "Our Educational Needs," was unusually effective, and Dr. C. H. Rowland, of Greensboro, made an impassioned and eloquent plea for Elon College. So effective were these remarks that some one suggested an offering, which was taken immediately for the College.

The afternoon session of the second day was devoted to routine business, with election of officers and delegates to the Southern Convention and reports of special committees, the Conference closing its annual session with an appropriate devotional service by Rev. J. A. Denton. The people of Wentworth Church and community, other churches and neighbors joining lovingly in cooperation, cared for the Conference in royal manner, abundant provision being made for all the needs of appetite and good fellowship. The Conference, judged by many individual expressions, was greatly enjoyed and was progressive in its plans for the coming year. The next annual session is to be held with Piney Plain Church, Wake County, N. C.

J. O. A.

THE VIRGIN BIRTH.

One wonders again and again why the critics seem to enjoy assailing, with ruthless hands, the Virgin birth of our Lord. Among their favorite sports is that of saying that neither Mark, who was one of the first writers of a Gospel, nor John the beloved disciple, who was the closest to his Lord, nor Paul, in all of his Epistles interpreting the Gospel, make any mention of the event, and since neither of these inspired writers refer to the matter, it must have been an invention of somebody's imagination.

One always wonders, when forced to read such learned (?) speculations, why the two writers, Matthew and Luke, who, above all others, undertook to trace the genealogy of our Lord and to give a history of his advent into the world, are not given the same credit for stating the fact as other writers of the Gospels are for not stating the fact of the Virgin birth.

Another wonder arises. Why do these critics think that the Virgin birth carries the Christ rather than that the Christ carries the Virgin birth? The most marvelous miracle is Christ himself; what he did while here in the flesh, what he has done since that day, and what those have done and are doing who believe him to be the Son of the living God. Disprove the Virgin birth (which is impossible) and one has not arrived anywhere, since the divine One stands out as powerful and as unfettered as before.

Is it a matter of mystery? Mysteries have not been solved. They multiply. Science and modern-day critics have not cleared up mysteries. They have increased their number and their magnitude. There are more mysteries in the world today, and greater ones than ever before, and as wisdom advances mysteries multiply and are magnified. The findings of the miracle of electricity, telephone and radio included, have not clarified the mysteries. They have bewildered us with the mysteries of the invisible atmosphere. So, if the mystery of our Lord's birth was destroyed, which it cannot be, he himself stands out as the most marvelous Man of all time, the immaculate Son of God, himself begotten of God, the Son of Mary, the divine One, incarnating in himself the personality and power of God and the very best that man can hope to be or become.

J. O. A.

OUR CHRISTIAN SUN.

Writing in a church paper about that church paper is like preaching to a small congregation on Sunday about the folks who are not there. This editorial, in so far as it is such, is intended for those who do not get THE CHRISTIAN SUN. The publisher of a church paper yearns for the folks who do not read it and is burdened by the folks who do not subscribe.

Church papers are having the time of their lives. The secular paper is crowding them out. The daily press comes with news fresh every morning, and because the daily press often carries church announcements and church items, the church paper is left out. If THE CHRISTIAN SUN alone suffered, it would be tragic to us as a people, indeed, and the only consolation we have in the near tragedy is that all the church papers we learn anything about suffer also and are being crowded out. The board of directors, in reporting to the North Carolina Baptist Convention, in session at Greensboro recently, said: "That with twice as many Baptists in North Carolina as were fifteen years ago, we have only half as many subscribers to the Recorder. The vast majority of our people know nothing of our denominational work. That same vast throng do nothing to make Christ known to the world. How can the Recorder aid our pastors, support our churches and advance the work of this Convention unless it is read? If we suggest Bible study or propose Christian fellowship, the vast majority of our people know nothing about it." That certainly does sound like some one talking to a Southern Christian Convention. We wonder if our Baptist friends were not copying from our records and pronouncements; but, no, they give figures of their own, which show that they are talking about Baptists and not about us Christians. Allow a further quotation from the report:

"Of the 1,074 Baptist pastors in North Carolina only 582 subscribe to the Recorder. Among the 605 Baptist ministers in North Carolina who are not pastors only seventy-nine of them see the Recorder. There are 2,278 superintendents of Baptist Sunday Schools in North Carolina, and only 317 of them subscribe to the Recorder. We have 1,085 Woman's Missionary Society presidents and only 302 of them get the Recorder. Not more than one deacon in fifteen takes the Recorder. We must reach more of our leaders with the Recorder if we are to advance in our work.

"Last year we published the Recorder at a loss of $6,500. This year our deficit is $8,748.51."

The sad part of such reading is that the church paper is essential to church life. Baptists must have the Recorder, and they know it. Christians must have THE CHRISTIAN SUN and cannot get along without it. It is essential to church life, and there is no mistake in that fact.

Every man and woman who loves his church and wants it to go forward, should take and read his church paper and hand it to other people and get other members to read it. This is our only hope.

J. O. A.

JEHOVAH'S DELIGHT.

The world may have been quite young, but that Priest of God was quite advanced in knowledge and wisdom, who, in the first book of Samuel, chapter 15:22, wrote: "Hath the Lord as great delight in burnt offerings and sacrifices as in obeying the voice of the Lord? Behold, to obey is better than sacrifice, and to harken than the fat of rams." Man, by nature, is stubborn and quite easily rebels, desiring his own way. Somewhere along the way of life, however, he must learn to obey.

The editor chanced to be visiting the Federal Prison at Atlanta, Ga., some years ago. Among other "guests" of the Government was a prisoner, an ex-Governor from one of our Western States. He was serving time for disobeying a Federal law while occupying the gubernatorial chair of his Commonwealth, and, his talents being recognized in prison, was elected editor of the prison paper. We picked up a copy of the paper printed by the prisoners and for the prisoners, and the leading editorial, written by the ex-Governor still within those walls, was entitled "Obedience." His plea was that mankind needed to learn obedience; that disobedience has led to more ills, more crime, more cruelty than any other vice known to man.

Somewhere along the line of our human pilgrimage we either have to learn, on our own account the lesson of obedience to authority, or we are taught it against our will. Samuel, indeed, was right when he said, "To obey is better than sacrifice." It is better because not to obey leads to prison walls where obedience is enforced.

In the December Atlantic, a father of seven sons and five daughters writes quite a humorous but exceedingly suggestive article on how he has managed or rather failed to manage (failed according to the present standards of teaching) that family of twelve. He and his good wife seem to have survived the ordeal and to have enjoyed the experiment immensely. A refreshing thing about the man's article is his frankness, not in trying to preach or point a moral, but in rather shamefully and apologetically relating facts from his own experience. Take a paragraph, not to be approved, of course, by CHRISTIAN SUN readers, but, nevertheless, to be read, even if in doubt. Let us read what this very happy father has to say in relating an experience:

"I have played only an inconsiderable part in the education of this twelvefold family. I have made a few suggestions and given some spankings when spankings seemed due. In the case of the oldest boy I do recall an incident which now seems insignificant. That was when he was one year old. For ten nights running, his stubborn little individuality urged him to defy society at large by standing up in his crib at bed time and howling his head off. For ten nights running, I sat beside his bed and knocked him down as often as he stood up. On the eleventh evening he suddenly saw the point, put his thumb in his mouth, and went smiling to sleep.

"He is a nice lad now and does not seem to hold any hard feelings. Perhaps our mutual respect and esteem date from far back beyond his remembrance."

Disobedience, sometimes, rebellion, shows itself early in life. But—well, Samuel wrote his book a very long time ago. "To obey is better than sacrifice." J. O. A.

MOVING.

This is moving time. Travel the highways in country or city and the moving vans are in evidence. We are turning our backs on where we were and facing toward where we are to be. In this Uncle Sam's Government leads the bewildering pace. The Government makes the front page in big head lines every day now. We have broken away from experience and trying experiments. The builders of our Government, even the statesmen of a decade ago, could not have dreamed that Government would reach its hand out to every department, business and undertaking of all our citizenship. We did not believe a few years ago that the Government should build dams for irrigation purposes or handle Muscle Shoals for nation-wide promise and profit. We have come a long way now. We rejoice in A. P. dispatches like this:

"Several large projects, including one for $80,-107.80, submitted by the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina for a golf course and other improvements, were approved and work will be started at once. Telegraphic notification of approval was sent to units which had sent in projects."

No, this is not news from a board meeting of university trustees, but from U. S. Government headquarters, all of which makes interesting reading because of the novelty of it and the consequent bewilderment.

In another column along with this A. P. dispatch from Washington comes a pronouncement by the director of the Budget Bureau in these words:

"The great middle class, which furnishes the vitality and vigor and moral tone to our body politic, must willingly carry the burden of saving itself from destruction, for continuous and prolonged budgetary inflation means its destruction."

And thus to save "the great middle class" from its own destruction, the same dispatch adds:

"The administration is understood to have agreed on a tax of from $2.50 to $3.00 a gallon on whiskey, in lieu of the $1.10 tax which is provided in the old revenue laws which take effect after the repeal of prohibition. The Government plans to raise a total of about $700,000,000 annually from liquor."

And so, we are moving.

A historian, writing of the French nation in 1789 and the terrible years that followed, said:

"Statesmanlike measures, careful watching and wise management would, doubtless, have ere long led to a return of confidence, a reappearance of money and a resumption of business; but these involved patience and self-denial, and, thus far in human history, these are the rarest products of political wisdom. Few nations have ever been able to exercise these virtues."

One wonders if that historian of long ago, was merely writing a record of a nation a century and a half ago, or was he prophesying about our nation at this time? Have we learned patience and self-denial as a part of our political wisdom, or are we altogether impatient and tremendously self-indulgent? One can hope and devoutly pray that since we are moving, we are moving toward God and not from him. J. O. A.

OUR ATTORNEY-GENERAL RULES.

Last week THE SUN stated that the Department of Justice at Washington, D. C., had ruled that no papers, cards or magazines carrying liquor advertisements would be allowed to go through the mails into dry States. The Department of Justice said this was in keeping with the Federal Statute Law and must be upheld. Following that decision, New York papers inquired of the Attorney-General of North Carolina what his ruling in the matter would be as to this State. The United Press, under date of Raleigh, November 18th, carried the following:

"Newspapers carrying liquor advertisements may have to print special editions for circulation in North Carolina.

"State laws forbid the distribution of publications containing advertisements of intoxicating liquors, Attorney-General Dennis Garland Brummitt has announced.

"In reply to queries from New York publishers, Brummitt said that they would not be allowed to deliver their publications by express, truck, baggage, or airplane service.

"Already the Post Office Department has been instructed not to accept periodicals with liquor advertisements for mailing into this State."

Again, we say, there is no wonder that the wet press outside of this good State is having somewhat to say about dry North Carolina. Let them say it to their heart's content, while North Carolina and South Carolina stand by their decision unmistakably registered on November 7th.

J. O. A.

HENRY JEROME STOCKARD.

On November 24, 1933, Peace Institute in Raleigh, N. C., honored Henry Jerome Stockard, and unveiled a portrait presented by his friends.

Stockard was born in Chatham (now Alamance) County, September 15, 1858, was educated in Graham Normal College under Drs. Wm. S. and Daniel A. Long, and later taught here for some years. In 1888 he did graduate work in the University of North Carolina, and received the M. A. degree there in 1889. In 1890 he became associate professor of English at the University. In 1896 he went as professor of English to Fredericksburg College, in Virginia, and in 1900 returned to the State as a professor in Peace Institute, Raleigh. At Peace he became president in 1907.

While he was a successful teacher, he will be best remembered as a writer, his book of poems called "Fugitive Lines," published in 1897, by G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York, is a collection of his best work. His sonnets were published by the Century Magazine, and other leading national publications, and have received much praise. His work reflects credit upon the State where literature has received all too scant praise.

In view of the presentation of his portrait, the sonnet given below by one of Mr. Stockard's friends will be of interest:

HENRY JEROME STOCKARD

By WILLIAM THORNTON WHITSETT.

The bard lies dead, but his immortal song
Shares not his hour of brief mortality;
Across the years it speaks assuredly,
A living Presence, 'mid the daily throng.

Rondel and sonnet ring across the years
For those who hold with Beauty and the Right;
And Poesy long shall keep their memory bright
Beyond the hour of our brief, bitter tears.

When gold and glamour slumber in the dust
And pomp and pride have lost their vaunted powers;
When marbles mould in mockery of fame;
The Poet's scroll impermeable to rust,
Shall sing its secrets to these hearts of ours,
And spell the laureled letters of his name.

WHAT IS A HOME?

A world of strife shut out, a world of love shut in.

A place where the small are great, and the great small.

The father's kingdom, the mother's world, and the child's paradise.

The place where we grumble the most, and are treated the best.

The center of our affection, around which the heart's best wishes twine.

The place where our stomachs get three square meals daily, and our hearts a thousand.

The only place on earth where the faults and frailties of humanity are hidden under the sweet mantle of charity.

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

The next session of the Southern Convention will meet in Suffolk in May, 1934. Many difficult problems will be submitted for consideration. The Orphanage, Missions, Superannuation, THE CHRISTIAN SUN, Elon College, and the Convention will be among these problems. Certain steps were taken, at the last session, looking towards the union of Congregational-Christian Churches in the bounds of the Convention. Since that time further efforts have been made in that direction, with an assurance of ultimate satisfaction and success. But the work is not completed.

The set-up of the Convention organization affects many of the past methods and traditions of both denominations. Because of this the Committee in charge of this work is proceeding with great care and caution. The early leaders who organized the work of the Christian Church in the South were wiser than they knew. Much of the success of the period following the Civil War, is due to the effectiveness of the Convention organization. In the recent years, there has been a tendency to enlarge the scope of the Convention. It has probably gone far enough in its approach to the churches. The time has come when the local Conferences should be delegated with a more direct responsibility and initiative in the support of the institutions and general work of the church. This will call for a revival of some financial methods and plans now in operation. It seems that all plans should look towards enlarging the work and scope of the Convention until it should include all the Conferences and Associations of the Southeast. Its territory should be enlarged. At the same time the actual work, in financial effort, should be delegated to these Conferences or Associations. Conferences should determine how much money they will raise and how it shall be distributed. The actual use of money raised should be determined by Conventional Boards, in such fields as Missions, Orphanage, Publications and Colleges. If this principle can be kept in mind, and put into practice, it will be a step forward, in the right direction.

Perhaps the most vital matter for consideration at this time is the future financial support of Elon College. The College is deeply in debt. There is no possible way for it to work out of debt, or out of its current difficulties, by hand-to-mouth financial methods of securing money. It may exist by high pressure emotional methods, but it should get out of debt. A few people who were over-confident guided the institution into this difficult situation. These people over-estimated the willingness and the ability of the members of the Christian Church to give regularly to the support of the enlarged program of the College. The leaders are not to be censured for their faith. The church people are not to be unduly criticised for their failure to meet the high expectations of their leaders. Leaders and the church supporters should be tolerant in this hour of crisis and great need.

The Convention has delayed too long the effort to pay off the indebtedness of Elon College. Intensive effort has been made each year to meet current needs. The debt has been increasing from year to year. The time has come when serious effort should be made to wipe out the entire indebtedness of the institution. Creditors could be brought into some agreement, by which a basis of settlement could be arranged. There are many people who will cooperate in such an effort. People who could give large amounts, could be induced to support this venture. All the people of this country are not bankrupt. Some people have money in the banks, if bank statements can be relied upon. I will borrow $1,000 to give to the College, if necessary, as my part in such an undertaking, if this can be done.

I. W. JOHNSON.

THE ANNUAL CONFERENCES AND THE COLLEGE.

The denominational organization of the Christian Church calls for the formation of Conferences and Convention. In the South, we have churches in Virginia, North Carolina, Georgia and Alabama. The Christian Churches in these States go to make up what we have known as the Southern Christian Convention for a long term of years. There are 232 churches in this territory. These churches are grouped into seven Conferences: The Eastern Virginia, the Virginia Valley Central, the North Carolina and Virginia, the Western North Carolina, the Eastern North Carolina, the Alabama, and the Georgia and Alabama. Each of these Conferences meets in annual session. The 1933 sessions have all been held. It was my privilege to attend the Valley of Virginia, the Alabama, or the Georgia and Alabama, but I did not attend the others.

As I think of these gatherings, the programs presented, the attendance, the interest and enthusiasm of every session, I am convinced that our church is more interested in the church, itself, her institutions, and in spiritual things than it has been since I have been connected with it. Our contributions have not been as large as in former years, but a bit in excess of the last two years; our determination for growth and righteousness is evidently more marked. There were evidences of increased interest in the cause of missions and in the demand for benevolences. The people are greatly concerned for the Orphanage and its adequate and continued support. I am interested in every department of our work, and in every need of our church. Naturally, I am interested in our educational program with particular reference to our own Elon College. The church expects me to be interested in all the affairs of our work, but it has requested that I give my particular attention and undivided efforts in behalf of the College. The College is in serious financial straits at this particular time, more serious, I think, than any other institution that we have. It needs not only the sympathy but the support of every loyal soul. We do have a great task to put the College on the basis that it deserves, but we have a great people tugging away at this task. The task is not too great for us, if every individual member and friend will do his part. I am certain of one thing—that not in my experience have I witnessed such emotional enthusiasm for the College as was in evidence at all the Conferences that I have attended. The Eastern Virginia Conference manifested its interest and took some very definite and helpful steps for the support of the College; the Western North Carolina Conference followed with similar resolutions, the North Carolina and Virginia Conference took similar steps, the Eastern North Carolina Conference expressed its interest in emotions, in resolutions, and in enthusiasm. I have never seen a body of Christian people moved to such feelings and interest for the cause of education in our church as was this Conference. Conference officials, ministers, and laymen spoke with feeling and devotion in the interest of Elon College. I feel that the fires of devotion and sacrifice for our College have been kindled upon the altars of many hearts and that we are now entering a period of sacrificial support for the College which means a new day for the educational interests of our church.

I hope that every minister will take due account of the resolutions passed by the Conferences calling on the membership of the church to support the College with its efforts and means and that he will see that Elon College Day, January 14th, is properly observed as Elon College Day, and that his church raise the amount for the College called for by the Convention.

The members of the Christian Church in the South are greatly encouraged with the addition to our Conferences and Convention of the Congregational Churches in this area. Under this plan of the merger and the action of the Southern Convention at Burlington the Congregational and Christian Churches in the South became one in organization and work. We are now the Southern Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches. We are one and should begin to function as one, sharing each other's privileges and bearing each other's responsibilities. We are one in hope and in doctrine and we must become one in cooperation and in effort.

L. E. SMITH, President.

EASTERN NORTH CAROLINA CONFERENCE.

The Eastern North Carolina Conference has closed its annual session held at Wentworth Church during the past week, and it is gratifying to know that the attendance was fine, the interest was excellent, the entertainment was royal, and the prospects for the future are bright for greater things in the work of the Kingdom. Rev. Geo. N. Edwards, pastor of Circular Congregational Church, Charleston, S. C., preached the opening sermon by invitation and handled the subject, "Sharing the Gospel," in an impressive manner. Rev. Stanley C. Harrell, D. D., president of the Southern Convention of Congregational-Christian Churches, presented and explained the resolutions prepared by the Convention Committee looking to further united effort of our merger in the work of the church.

The Communion Service conducted by Rev. E. M. Carter, presented an impressive scene when twenty-four ministers of the church presented themselves before the communion table to partake of the emblems of communion, then for twenty-one deacons to present themselves to receive the emblems, and then to present them to the entire congregation to participate in this sacred service.

The program of Youth Fellowship, conducted by Rev. Robert Kimball in the evening service, was inspiring, uplifting and instructive. The addresses by Miss Priscilla Chase and Dr. L. E. Smith, president of Elon College, were instructive and appealing to the young people of the Conference. The young people of the Conference plan to have a special meeting at an early date for organization, planning and purposing for greater things for the young people of the Conference. We expect great things to be done in this movement for the mobilization of our young people for organized activity in the work of the Kingdom.

The reports on Home and Foreign Missions and from the Woman's Mission work awakened much interest and provoked much discussion. The woman's work of this Conference in eighteen societies did more for missions during the past year than the entire Conference of forty-eight churches did on the apportionments for Convention, Superannuation, Publications, Elon College and other calls of the Convention. The trouble with many of our churches in raising apportionments is lack of a systematic method and provision according to the Scriptures to lay by in store on the first day of the week what belongs to the Lord's Kingdom.

Last year the amount raised on apportionments was ten cents per member in round numbers and the churches urgently requested a reduction in the apportionments for the ensuing year and by action of Conference the apportionments were reduced twenty-five per cent. If the churches raise the entire amount requested next Conference year it will amount to only one cent per week for each member. Surely no church will report that they are unable to meet this modest request for money to support our general enterprises and institutions of the church.

Three of the ordained ministers of the Conference changed their membership. Rev. J. C. Cummings requested that his name be dropped from the Conference roll indefinitely. Rev. R. A. Whitten requested a transfer of membership to the Eastern Virginia Conference, and Rev. H. E. Crutchfield requested a transfer to the North Carolina and Virginia Conference. These requests were granted.

Visitors and fraternal messengers were welcomed from the Congregational Churches and from the Western and the North Carolina and Virginia Conferences and contributed much to the success of the Conference by their wisdom, counsel and fellowship. W. C. WICKER.

SHORT HISTORY OF FIVE FORKS COMMUNITY CHURCH.

On the morning of January 14, 1932, the writer and Bro. S. P. Deaton in answer to a request by Mr. Elsie Britt, made a trip to the Five Forks community to ascertain the possibility of organizing a weekly prayer meeting and Sunday School. Brother Deaton being extremely interested in prayer meeting work and the writer interested in establishing a Sunday School for the underprivileged children of the community.

Unfortunately Brother Deaton was called away to another field of labor and the services of Rev. W. C. Martin were secured. The Lord blessed the efforts with a Saturday night prayer meeting, being appointed at Mr. Elsie Britt's residence on February 27, 1932. On account of illness in the homes of the writer and Brother Martin, neither was able to attend the first service, but Mr. W. A. Cagle and Mrs. Van B. Hix, of Biscoe, attended and they conducted the service. The meeting for the next two or three appointments was held at Mr. Elsie Britt's residence at which time there was manifested sufficient interest to attempt to organize a Sunday School. Mr. Will Britt offered to furnish and seat his tobacco packing house to be used for a Sunday School and weekly prayer service which he did the following week. The following Saturday night, March 26th, the prayer meeting was conducted in the tobacco packing house and Sunday School was organized and conducted in the tobacco packing house, the following day, March 27, 1932, with an enrollment of 32 pupils, which grew steadily until within a few weeks was nearly double that number. Brother Benton Britt was selected superintendent and teachers were secured from Biscoe and Five Forks community.

The last week in May, the people of the community under the supervision of Brother S. P. Deaton, erected a brush arbor in the present site of the church building. The first prayer service was conducted under the new arbor June 2nd, and on June 12th the Sunday School moved from the packing house to the arbor which was used for this purpose the remainder of the summer.

On June 19th, Rev. John M. Allred, pastor of Biscoe Christian Church, preached the first sermon under the arbor, using for his text John 3:16.

Seeing the apparent need of a revival the writer secured the services of Rev. Grady Brewer, an ordained minister of the Baptist denomination assisted by Brother S. P. Deaton to begin a series of services under the arbor which was held for eight nights starting Monday night, July 11, 1932. The Lord blessed the meeting with five new converts and great interest and on August 7th, Brother Brewer baptized four of the new converts at the Jackson Hole.

Regular monthly appointment was immediately made for preaching services by Brother Brewer one Sunday each month, and by Rev. J. C. Cummings one Sunday each month, and also by Rev. J. H. Miller, pastor of Biscoe Methodist Church one Sunday each month until and after September 26, 1932, on which date Rev. W. C. Martin, at the request of several non-members equally as interested, proposed in their hearts to have a church building.

Within a few weeks the old Flint Hill Baptist Church building was purchased and removed to the present grounds and the people of the community, both members of the organization and non-members, immediately met and erected the framing of the present church building, and on December 10, 1932, Rev. Grady Brewer preached the first sermon in the new church building.

Rev. W. C. Martin was then selected as pastor for the coming year and the delegates were promptly elected to attend the 62nd session of the Western North Carolina Christian Conference at Parks Cross Roads Christian Church on November 9, 1932, at which time the church was given the name of "Flint Hill Christian Church," and the church organization received as a member of the Western North Carolina Christian Conference.

The Home Mission Board indicated their faith and appreciation of the efforts being put forth by paying $75.00 for a good metal roof.

Brothers Ira Maness, Walter Williams and Grady Britt were elected as trustees of the property, and Brothers Benton Britt, Will Britt and Ira Maness have been elected deacons to be ordained at a later date.

God be praised and honored for the fruitful way he has blessed the efforts of his humble servants in the work. O. H. LAMBERT.

Biscoe, N. C.

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5 1/2 inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

- Nos. 01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges $2.75
- 01603 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, head-band, book-mark $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4 1/4 x 1 1/4 inches.

Type in Junior's Bible
2 Take the sum of all the of the children of Is'ra-el, years old and upward, thro

- No. 1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine Bibles $2.95

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5 1/2 x 3 3/4 inches.

Specimen of Type

2 My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God.

10 Mercy and truth gather; righteousness kissed each other.

- No. 02112. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6 3/4 x 4 1/2 inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, "O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed."

Gen. 15. 1. 4 57. 1. or, all

- No. 07528x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07528x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x $5.00

OUR LEADER Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8 1/2 x 5 1/2 x 1 5/16 inches.

Specimen of Type

8 ¶ Jē-hōi'-ā-chin was 6 years old when he began t

- No. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, leather lined to edge, silk round corners, red under edges, silk

hear

A UNIQUE GIFT BIBLE

With Basket Weave Binding

The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges. With references. Printed on Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible. $5.50

No. 03255x

As No. 03255x, with concordance. No. 03276x $6.50

Oxford TEACHING BIBLES

Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date maps, conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7 1/4 x 5 x 1 3/8 inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave; death shall feed on th

- Nos. 04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and hand-some Bible $4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Only one inch thick.

- 0778x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

MISSIONS
 REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary

PRAYER.

Lord of life, open our hearts to receive the Spirit. Feed thou our souls lest they perish. May no moments of the Sabbath Day, given as it is for bodily rest and spiritual refreshment, be thoughtlessly or mistakenly dissipated. Turn myriads of feet to thine earthly courts and grant that there the yearning soul may find not emptiness nor confusion nor perversion but, through the imparting by God's ministers of his holy truth, may all be strengthened and constrained to walk no longer after the flesh but after the Spirit. For this we humbly pray. L.

THE PASTOR ACROSS THE HILLS.

Saturday, November 11th, as the clouds hung low above blue mountain peaks, a strange car slowly rounded the curves on the old mountain trail and glided over the path across the hills that leads to my "Blue Ridge Mountain Home." A few of my friends from Eastern Virginia came to our hills. They were people whom I have long thought of as my people: Mrs. W. E. Garrison, of Windsor, Va.; Mrs. P. C. Bradshaw, and Mrs. Elisha Bradshaw, of Walters, Va.; Mrs. Bradshaw's son, Samuel, and a girl friend of Suffolk, Va.

The Bradshaws are lovingly remembered in our hills. Rev. Elisha Bradshaw was our first residing pastor at Elk Spur and a more sincere Christian has never crossed our hills.

Mrs. Garrison is not only a faithful church member, but a mother of mine. The Garrisons gave me a year in high school back when I first left the hills. They took me into their home, took care of me as they did their own child, and only hoped that I could make good in life. And may God help me to be such that Mother Garrison and all my friends can be proud they helped me. I shall ever feel indebted to these people. You who have never lived among the hills can never know how much the "home life" in a Christian home meant to me. I had never been away from these hills before, and I went from these rugged hills with their winding trails, their coarse food, and their bloody tragedies, to that home of peace and plenty, in the land of my dreams. The broad flat sweep of country, the pond lilies of the swamps, the picturesque fields of peanuts and cotton, the fresh fish to eat, the white sand and no rocks, these, all these, and more things I found so different from a rocky mountain farm. It was all so broad and free whichever way I looked. I loved that flat country, and do yet. I am still making a frantic search for words to express my gratitude and my admiration for that home in the East.

I still have a mental picture of the Garrison home. The lovely old fashioned country home with all the comforts of that part of the country! Wide, sunny screened porches. In other words, a house built back when people built houses, and not tiny cramped places in which a person has not even room to breathe. A flower garden made a bright splash of color on one side of the house and big shade trees spread their leafy arms so cool and green, on the other side. And in winter the woods on the Garrison farm were lovely. No where does holly grow quite so nice as there. And mistletoe! Oh, everyone knows how much mistletoe means to a girl at Christmas!

Another thing I remember was the piano. Lovers of music can understand how much that piano meant to me. I had never been in the same home with one before I left the hills.

Mother Garrison had a young heart and an understanding soul. She encouraged the young people in taking me into their social activities. They took me into everything, and boys and girls alike were certainly nice to me. No where have I found just such an unselfish lot of happy young people. And Mother opened the home to all my young friends. I entertained our Young People's Missionary Society just any time, and served refreshments that would stagger these hills to know the cost of. The Garrisons bore all expenses and still had patience with me. This I wonder at, as I look back and think of the bother and noise I brought into that home. They were glad that I was satisfied to give my time to the work of the church and find entertainment in the social activities of the church. While I had never known what a real church, or a missionary society, or Christian Endeavor Society was like, and I dived into it with an eagerness that was a credit to our hills. I made my blunders trying to fit into that new life but Mother Garrison was truly a mother to me and taught me all the hundred and one things that I had not known when I left the hills. They sent me anywhere I needed to go in their car. To church, to school, to the Conference, to all things unless the young people took me to something. The young people often came by for me with a car, and I don't remember ever being left out of anything. This meant they were very kind, for I had just shed my mountain brogans and had not yet gotten away from my hilly dialect. I look back to that year and feel that it will ever be a bright spot, a glorious year, like an oasis in a desert.

So when these friends came to our hills Saturday, I set my memory racing. For among the things they brought me was an Annual from the school at Windsor—"My school!" Ah, that Annual! The shadow of its name, and a shadow it is to me. Not a dark shadow cast across my path, but a shadow like I see on a mountain side at sunset, or like a shady dell. A sweet memory of the past. I know most of the places that smile out at me from the pages of that Annual.

And now I thank God for these dear friends who have ever supported the Christian Church and our mountain work. That calls to mind our Hilly Grissoms who are still working here among the hills. They are still busy here. The school is going nicely, but no high school is being taught here this year. Please never fail to pray for our Grissoms.

And I plan some day to leave my path across the hills and take "the road that runs back home." I want to see again the place that will ever be "Home, Sweet Home" to me. Our wind-swept hills send their love to the sunny wave-splashed beach of Old Virginia.

VICTORIA OF THE HILLS.

Fancy Gap, Va.

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.

WEEK ENDING NOVEMBER 25, 1933.

Sunday Schools.

Previously acknowledged	$ 636.97
Happy Home, Ruffin, N. C.	3.20
High Point, N. C.	2.40
Wadley, Ala.	.75
New Elam, New Hill, N. C.	1.54
Durham, N. C.	10.17
Berea (Nans.), Driver, Va.	5.64
Pleasant Hill, Liberty, N. C.	2.90
Rosemont, Norfolk, Va.	10.80
Roanoke, Ala.	1.00

Youngsville, N. C.	6.00
Newport News, Va.	11.00
Liberty (Vance), Henderson, N. C.	4.50
Bethlehem, Suffolk, Va.	9.75

Total $ 706.62

Individuals and Churches.

Previously acknowledged	$ 604.97
Timber Mountain, Winchester, Va.	1.00
"A Friend," Burlington, N. C.	15.00

Total $ 620.97

Specials.

Previously acknowledged	603.20
Pleasant Hill Christian Church C. E. Society, Liberty, N. C.	1.10

Total $ 604.30

Coin Card Offering.

Previously acknowledged	$ 38.00
Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Brill, Hook's Mill, W. Va.	1.00
Bethel Christian Church, New Hill, N. C.	2.00
J. E. Branch, Garner, N. C.	2.00

Total $ 43.00

Summary.

Previously acknowledged	$ 5,519.98
Sunday Schools, Regular	69.65
Individuals and Churches	16.00
Specials	1.10
Coin Card Offering	5.00

Total to date $ 5,611.73

J. O. ATKINSON, Sec'y.

ATTENTION—PLEASE!

To the Members of the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference:

At the recent Conference, J. E. West, Dr. D. L. Harrell and Mrs. I. W. Johnson were appointed as the Home Mission Committee. The Conference also adopted the following motion:

"Moved that a committee of three be appointed to be known as a Committee on Churches, whose business it shall be to aid churches in securing pastors and to aid the churches in every possible way."

The president of the Conference appointed the the above named individuals on this special committee.

As the Home Mission Committee has always performed the very work assigned to the Special Committee, in accordance with the principles and government of the Christian Church, we feel grateful for this double appointment, so as to prevent conflict and misunderstanding as to the duties of each committee. The Home Mission Committee has never imposed itself on churches and neither will the Special Committee, but we shall be glad to hear from churches needing assistance in any way, and we will assist them in any way we can, as we have always done. We are limited as to what we can do, but we will do our very best for you.

J. E. WEST,
Chairman.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

The Christian Missionary Association of the Eastern Virginia Conference will meet December 5, 1933, at the South Norfolk Christian Church. Each church is urged to secure at least one new membership. Reports will be made from each church. Let us see which church can secure the largest number of new memberships together with all old memberships paid. Come to South Norfolk and bring a large delegation.

ROBERT LEE HOUSE,
President.

BUILDING WITH CHRIST.

By MISS SARAH N. DAUGHTRY.

In a sister denomination, a group of young people were meeting. A fifteen-year-old boy picked up an attractive program in the shape of a globe on which the hemispheres of the world had been sketched. He read slowly, "Building a New World," and looking up he said, "We couldn't do that." In replacing the program on the table, he observed words on the other side. He turned it over and read, "Together With God," and looking up with a smile and a light in his eyes, he exclaimed, "Oh, that's different."

Building with Christ is different. It requires our best; and our best as we work with him will result in a changed world. We feel the selection of our theme, "Building a New World, Together With God," is one step toward the goal, the application to life through a study of some of the world builders, is the promotion of the challenge:

This world is ours to take;
This world is ours to make—
Let us build true and sure
A world that will endure;
Build out of right and truth
Reared with this tool—
Our youth.

If we would help to build a new world we must first of all build our lives anew, for "no new world can there be without new world builders. Also, no new world without the builders fashioning life."

"It must have a perfect pattern, therefore, I will take Christ, the Master Builder, as my ideal.

"I must have a blueprint for my life, therefore, I will take the Bible for my daily guide.

"I must have God's help, therefore, I will be prayerful.

"I must be kind and loving, therefore, I will do all in the spirit of Jesus.

"I must be informed, therefore, will I be studious.

"I must be a lover of God, therefore, I will love my fellowmen.

"Thus shall I be a builder that needeth not to be ashamed."

Longfellow tells us, "Life is real, life is earnest"—it is that real earnest life which we wish to properly build.

Build thee more stately mansions, oh my soul,
As the swift seasons roll!
Leave thy low-vaulted past!
Let each new temple nobler than the last,
Shut thee from heaven with a dome more vast
Till thou at length art free,
Leaving thine outgrown shell
By life's unresting sea.

Holmes so beautifully uses the life story of the nautilus; how it builds year after year in silent toil, forming larger compartments as life demands until it is ready to leave its beautiful pearly shell "by life's unresting sea."

Herbert Spencer says that life itself is the continual adjustment of internal relations to external relations.

Friends, we realize now that we have over-valued external standards.

The progressive world must cease to worship the machine god and build it. 33,000 people were killed and 1,000,000 injured by automobiles in one year. We have shown that science and wealth alone cannot give us food and peace to nourish life.

At the great Century of Progress, I saw thousands of people view the mighty spectacles of progress in every phase of making life better, more comfortable, furnishing all essentials and luxuries. I watched this same crowd turn into the Hall of Religion and to the Chapel of Meditation. Perhaps they were searching for something that would last longer than the latest invention, something which would explain the confused life around them. In the quiet of the meditation, while the carillon chimed, or the organ pealed its soothing notes, or while vested choir boys chanted inspiring tunes, these visitors were waiting "until their souls caught up with their bodies."

Meditation has brought many thoughts to the surface, given periods of time for formulating a theology. Moses went to Midian, John the Baptist to the wilderness, Paul to Arabia, Elijah to Brook of Cherith, John Milton to his Horton country home, Alfred Lord Tennyson to retirement, John Bunyan to prison, all of these, my friends, experienced a period of self-analyzation, a time of communing with God, hearing the messages of mountains, streams, and sands. D. A. Hayes of the Garrett Biblical Institute says, "Men who find life must wrestle with demons of temptations and angels of divine consolation. He must fast and pray, read, study, and meditate until truth is seen too clearly to flatter in its advocacy and until life is grounded in faith that doubt would seem impossible."

The mythical story from Anglo-Saxon literature tells us of the beautiful Phoenix, the bird which was vain because of its unequalled plumage. It lived 1,000 years, built a funeral pile, sat upon the mass of debris. The sun set fire to the pile and all burned to ashes. Out of the remains of the fire came a bird even more beautiful than the last one. Out of the buried life which shone in glamorous sin may come one more beautiful, fashioned after God's own plan.

The mob stoned Paul at Lystra and dragged him out of the city supposing him to be dead. When he regained consciousness he arose and instead of running away as fast as he could, "he entered into the city." The qualities which build life may be stoned by temptation and new influences believe them dead, but if the life is truly builded, the righteous qualities will arise and with determination enter the city, the holy temple, the body, soul and mind.

Leading scientists today are emphasizing the fact that this scientific era drives us to God more than ever before. Life is not a tragedy to escape, but a field of honor calling for daring adventure. Have we a plan for this adventure? Dr. Compton of Chicago University says that God has a plan for the universe. In the universe there is a plan for us. It is much better to fall wounded seeking to build a life according to God's pattern than to perish in one's own tent. We don't wish to be Gawain's with an unfinished task, but do we have the courage to serve as Gareth for a year and a day in order to enter a cause to right wrong and gain courage to lose ourselves in his crusade. To be a crusader our plan of building must not be based on a blueprint religion, for dare we limit God in such a stupid way?

Religion means love for all mankind. The building plan must embrace bigger and broader views.

To build we must assign things to their proper places, and remember that the center of human progress is moral growth, growth of character. Ramsay MacDonald, during his teen years, said:

"Character, that power in man which organizes his life so that the passing moment presents itself to him not as something that is to be seized for its own sake and when done with, forgotten, but simply an incident in eternity, never going to be lost, never left behind. Character which enables man to see himself, not as a reckless irresponsible individual, but as one of humanity, as a thought of God, maturing as the ages go until his humanity becomes divinity itself."

Friends, Christ said, "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God, and all these things shall be added unto you."

FOR FIFTEEN CENTS.

Just fifteen cents. That's all! Exchange it for stamps or fix it in a card and send it to the Commission on Evangelism and Devotional Life, 287 4th Avenue, New York City. Tell that Commission that you want their perfectly beautiful book of ninety-five pages of "Daily Devotions—The Valor of the Soul." In this book, you will find a devotional service for each of the ninety-three days; Scripture reference and reading, a beautiful sentiment or poem and a prayer on each page.

The book is handsomely bound in bronze, trimmed in black, and, besides being a joy to the soul on the inside, is a perfect delight to the eye on the outside. For that fifteen cents, CHRISTIAN SUN readers will get more than its editor knows anything about for the same amount of money anywhere else. The devotional services will bear going over four times consecutively, which means that for fifteen cents one may have a devotional service for every morning of his life for a year.

We do not know who is bearing the cost of this beautiful volume, but certainly the sale of it could not be expected to pay for the cover pages, much less the rich contents of the good volume.

J. O. A.

God's capacity for forgiveness is as great as his capacity for love.—H. I. Stillman.

SUBSCRIBERS TO THE CHRISTIAN SUN

LADIES' PENS, $2.00.

These Pens are of standard make, and will give good service. If you are in need of a Fountain Pen, order from us. Postage paid and Pens guaranteed by the manufacturer.

MENS PENS—Capitol, $2.50; Mercantile, $2.50; Cardinal, $3.00.

COMBINATION OFFER.—To a new subscriber or for renewal, $2.50, either Gentleman's (Capitol) Pen or Ladies' Pen, with guarantee of manufacturer. And to "Sun" subscribers, not in arrears, any Pen at one-fourth off. Address:

THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 EAST BROAD STREET, RICHMOND, VIRGINIA

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."

REV. F. C. LESTER, Editor, 505 S. Main St., Norfolk, Va.

A THANKSGIVING PRAYER.

Kind Father of all mankind, from whose bounteous hand gracious gifts are daily given to those who love thee, hear thou my prayer of Thanksgiving.

Today I count among my friends men and women, both young and old, in many States and countries other than my own, and because of their friendship, confidence and love my life is richer and happier. Some take time to say that my weak pen has brought them courage and cheer. Others put me in their daily prayers and plead my cause at the throne of grace constantly. For all of these I give thee heart thanks and bow in humility, for only thy love makes it so.

My prayer for daily bread brings blessings from afar to feed me, my family, and the friends who deign to feed with us about our dining table. For food, for home, for shelter from the cold, for all things physical that light my life and make my body safe, I give thee hearty thanks, O Lord. And for my mind that sees some beauty on life's way, I thank thee, too.

For my soul which comes from God and goes to him, I thank thee, Lord. It is my best; it is myself; and I would make it thine. In it I feel the impulse of thy love that guides me in the heavenly way. By it I am bound to kindred spirits with cords of love that are longer than earthly life and stronger than death. I give thanks to God for my "unconquerable soul."

Rejoice with me, O Lord, on this Thanksgiving Day and make me worthy of the blessings which are mine. This I pray the best I know in the spirit of Jesus.—Amen.

WESTERN N. C. YOUTH FELLOWSHIP.

Recently there has come to me a copy of the Calendar sent by the new president, Miss Lillie Horne, of Elon College, N. C., to the young people of the Western North Carolina Conference. This Calendar lists certain things that can be done by the young people in their local churches whether they live in town or country. Worship, study, service, organization and fellowship are the five things which are emphasized for each two-months' period.

For December and January the suggestions are that they have charge of a Christmas sunrise service or take a group carolling Christmas Eve or early Christmas morning, make a study of Christmas customs in different lands using the material in the group meetings. On the fifth Sunday in January have a program centered around Elon College, take an offering for the College. Get the "Guide to Achievement" from F. C. Lester, 25c, and use it in making the Society more effective and hold a "Watch-Night Party."

ALWAYS DEPENDENT.

We are always dependent upon His allowance, and we are never disappointed—it is given for every day. He will no more forget to make the sun to shine than He will forget to supply the smallest need of the heart that trusts Him. Why be anxious for the morrow? Its duties may demand greater strength than we now possess; but when the claim is made upon us, it shall surely be met. Never once has He failed us; trust, and do not fret. Post-dated checks are not cashed at the Bank of Faith. The needs of today are met, not those of tomorrow until tomorrow comes.—Rev. J. C. Carlile.

CAUSES AND CURES OF POVERTY.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC FOR DECEMBER 3.

Scripture: Psalm 82:1-8.

(Consecration Meeting.)

Prayer thoughts. We need God's grace and wisdom if we are to be true to the ideals of brotherhood and service in every-day life. The sins of self-seeking, misrepresentation, and deceit are ever with us, and while we ask for pardon we ask also for support and courage from the One who gave all for us. Our nation needs not so much prosperity, but justice; not so much profits, but honor and righteousness; and for these we pray, believing that our churches should lead the nation in a closer walk with God.

A Consecration Service. Let there be a number of prayers, testimonies, and Scripture selections that relate to sharing, stewardship, and the righteous use of one's possessions, at the conclusion of the discussion period.

Hymns. "Living for Jesus," "Jesus Calls Us," "America the Beautiful."

Causes of Poverty. Ill health, low mentality, low pay, lack of education, bad luck, changing business conditions due to increased use of machines, actual discontinuance of some forms of employment in modern life, bank failures. Notice how one of the causes affects the others. Ill health or low pay may prevent a person from securing proper educational preparation for life. Low pay may make it necessary to live in unhealthy surroundings in which poverty becomes habitual.

Everyone has seen persons of good character and real ability who had the ill fortune to pass from one job to another; employers failed; a fire destroyed the plant, etc. Do we feel that God chooses some to undergo such experiences to prepare them for future activities or as witnesses of unshaken faith? Do we feel that God is interested in the way in which we as Christians make a living, save and spend, invest? Should we pray about the choices we have to make in accepting work or investing money?

"Nine-tenths of the people now being aided in public relief were never on relief lists before the depression." On the other hand, "social workers have reported that several generations of some families have been dependent on society for their existence, a condition of inherited and almost automatic poverty."

Laziness causes poverty. Prov. 6:10, 11.

Misfortune causes poverty. Mark 12:41-44.

Cures for Poverty. Old-age insurance. The State would guarantee to every person who reaches a certain age, say sixty-five, a small income. This might be provided for through taxes.

The NRA, the present plan. Shorter hours result in more employment, steady employment creates more sales, etc. Just how does this plan seem to be working?

"Real Christian service means being a good neighbor to those in distress in one's own community." The first step toward social justice must be taken by the individual Christian in doing what lies within his power to aid less fortunate persons. The reform of society must come from the individual upward and outward. And material help is not everything. The little daily acts of love and kindness add much to the happiness of these people.

Hard work cures poverty. Prov. 21:5.

"WHAT DOES SALVATION MEAN?"

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC, DECEMBER 10.

Scripture: John 3:16, 17.

Theme—"I Believe."

Hymns—"O. Worship the King," "Hark the Herald Angels Sing," "I Heard the Voice of Jesus Say," "O, Master, let Me Walk With Thee," "My Faith Looks Up to Thee."

In former times most people thought of salvation as something to be enjoyed in heaven in the future. Today Christians are saying that, whatever else salvation may mean, it includes being "saved" now in this life. "In systematic theology salvation denotes the whole process by which man is delivered from all that would prevent his attaining to the highest good that God has prepared for him.

What do we consider salvation to mean on the basis of general secular and religious training? Let us study the Old Testament, then the teachings of Christ, Paul and other New Testament writers, and see what they taught about salvation. Do we still need salvation today?

Steps of salvation might include faith, prayer, Bible reading, etc.

Some weakness such as drunkenness or dishonesty might be taken as a starting point and ways might be considered that seem to lead out of sin and toward salvation. What are some of the things that we need to be saved from, individually, socially, etc.?

Salvation might be studied from the way hymn writers have treated the theme.

The different methods that have been used to bring salvation to individuals may be considered. For instance, the methods of the Salvation Army and rescue missions, missionary activities in other lands, religious educational programs in local churches, regular church worship. Parallel columns might be made to show God's part and man's part in the salvation of a human soul.

Salvation from sin (Matt. 1:18-21). Salvation includes eternal life (Rom. 6:23). Salvation means Christ in US (Rom. 8:1-11). Salvation means Christ's help today (Heb. 7:25). Salvation means a changed life (Titus 3:1-8). Salvation means eternal bliss (I. Peter 1:3-9).

Billy Sunday has stated again and again that he recalls vividly the exact time and place at which the Spirit of God seemed to fill his life. For him life began anew with that experience of for than forty years ago. "I never pass the place on State Street in Chicago without stopping to take off my hat, and thank God for saving and keeping me. Once a policeman noticed me, and asked if I was sick. 'No,' I said, 'I was converted on that spot many years ago, and he nodded that he understood."

Just what does the word "saved" mean? Which one of the answers seem to express what is in your minds?

Rescued from eternal torment; changed so that we never sin; brought into the church; made unselfish, kind, highly moral, and Christlike in our purposes and efforts; committed to Jesus and his way so that we have added power to overcome evil; changed into a highly useful person, devoted to Jesus in one's personal and in one's social living; spiritual deliverance from sin and death.

Do you feel that you young people are as completely committed to this way of Jesus as you should be? If not, is not the Christmas season a good time to renew your vows?

For though from out our bourne of time and place

The flood shall bear me far,

I hope to see my Pilot face to face

When I have crossed the bar.

—From "Crossing the Bar," by Tennyson.

To build a life on happiness you must have a foundation of love.

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE.

PAUL IN EPHEBUS.

LESSON X—DECEMBER 3, 1933.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Blessed are they that have been persecuted for righteousness sake."—Matthew 5:11.

LESSON TEXT: Acts 19:8-20.

Paul was a statesman in the Kingdom of God. He knew how to work in strategic places. Ephesus was the metropolis of a large section of Asia, and mission work done here would extend its influence in that section. The fact that Paul spent nearly two years and a half here, and the fact that "all they that dwelt in Asia heard the Word of the Lord," shows how strategic the place was, and how faithful were Paul's labors.

Into the Synagogue.

The synagogue was the place in which the Jews worshipped and in which they received instruction in the things of religion. Faithful Jews regularly attended its services. Jesus himself, "as his custom was," went into the synagogue on the Sabbath Day. There is a distinct and decided value in regular attendance at Sunday School and services of worship. The soul of man needs that for which the church stands, and which it seeks to supply through its teaching and its services of worship. It is a short-sighted policy that does not make provision for attendance at such services. The results cannot be measured in mathematical terms, but there is an intangible but real value for life in the long run. The writer of Hebrews was writing for all time when he said, "forsake not the assembling of yourselves together." The Sunday newspaper, the golf links, the radio service, the regular Sunday "gadding about," cannot satisfy that in man which cannot live by bread alone.

Reasoning and Persuading.

Paul's appeal was not to mere high-pressure emotionalism. He appealed to the reason. He believed Christianity was rational. He did not believe a man had to stop thinking when he became a Christian. He did not believe that reason and faith, true reason and true faith, were contradictory. "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy mind. . . ."

But Paul put his case in such a simple and appealing way that he "persuaded" people. There was the legitimate appeal to all the powers of both mind and heart and will. Christianity, when properly presented, does have a tremendous appeal.

The Kingdom of God.

Paul sought more than the conversion of individual believers. He preached "the kingdom of God," the need for a social order in which the principles and the spirit of Christ found practical expression. Injustice, war, bad housing conditions, unjust distribution of wealth, prostitution, the liquor traffic, exploitation of individuals and groups, any and all social evils must be denounced and constructively attacked. The goal of the Christian is not primarily a home in heaven; it is the Kingdom of God on earth.

Hardened and Disobedient.

Hearing the gospel is a two-edged sword. To those who hear it with open minds and obedient and responsive hearts it is a softening influence. To those who refuse to respond to it, it becomes a hardening influence. Persistent refusal to follow out the implications of the gospel hardens hearts. Jesus himself said, "Take heed how ye hear."

Speaking Evil of the Way.

Look out for the man who speaks evil of "the way," who talks about hypocrites, who knocks the church, who doubts the sincerity of others' religion, who criticizes missions, who scoffs at religion. Back of all of these things there is usually—not always, of course—but usually something wrong in the man's own life. Those whose hearts have been "hardened by disobedience" are usually those who speak evil of the way.

It is significant that Christianity was once called "of the Way." It was then, as it should be now, a way of living, the Jesus way of living. Christianity is a way of life.

All They that Dwelt in Asia Heard the Word.

Not simply through Paul's preaching. But through the personal testimony of those whom Paul had taught and reached, and who in turn, told others the good news. The world will have a great revival when those who are followers of Christ faithfully and persistently bear witness for him.

Special Miracles.

It would appear that Paul did not always have the power to work special miracles. But Ephesus was the center of magicians and charlatans and magical practices, and God gave Paul powers equal to the needs of the case. We cannot expect to work miracles like Paul, but we can expect power equal to our particular needs.

The Name of the Lord Jesus.

A group of sorcerers thought they would also exercise this strange power of healing others by invoking the name of Jesus as did Paul. But the thing did not work. It is one thing to use the name of Jesus; it is quite another thing to have the spirit and the power of Jesus. Any one can do the former; only those who have yielded themselves to Jesus can do the latter. Jesus said, "Not every one that saith Lord, Lord, but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven."

Believing—Confessing—Burned Their Books.

There were those who responded to the appeal of the spirit of Christ and who believed on him. They made public confession of him. They declared their deeds, they admitted their sins and bore witness to their wrong-doing. And then they brought their books of magic and burned them publicly. It was the best possible evidence of a complete change of heart. These books were a means of livelihood. Even if the people did not intend to use them personally probably they could have sold them to others and realized a large sum of money for them. But they had thoroughly repented. In common language they "had got religion," and religion had got them. They brought forth fruits meet for repentance. A changed man ought to give evidence of the change. One feels that if some folks were truly converted they would have to get out of the business they are in. It is in point here to raise the question as to whether a Christian would hold brewery stock or distillery stock, or make money from the liquor traffic. One thing is certain—we cannot conceive of Jesus making money out of anything like that.

Changed lives—that is the need of the hour. There is no substitute for that. The soul of reformation is the reformation of the soul. We all need such a deep-seated and thorough-going repentance that our lives shall be changed and our conduct accordingly changed.

And so he still comes to us through his Word. If we knew it better and studied it more we should find the blessed Christ ever ready to meet us through its glowing pages, and to speak to us through its exceeding great and precious promises.—A. B. Simpson.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 16-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $4.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size. 3 3/4 x 5 3/8 Inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3 3/4 x 5 3/8 Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps $2.50

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5 3/8 x 8 1/2 Inches and 1 3/8 Inches Thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With Concise Bible Dictionary, combined Concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Lavanant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold $4.75

RED-LETTER EDITION.

With All the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands; title stamped on side and back in pure gold $3.25

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations; special book for Sunday Schools 95c

Any of the above Bibles sent postpaid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street

Richmond, Virginia

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy

MONDAY.

A PRAYER.

Give me courage, Lord, I stumble
Faltering feet are mine today.
Hold me fast lest ideals crumble
Into dust along the way.
Give me faith, I Lord, I need it,
Seeming rudderless I ride.
Take the helm and guide my spirit
Through this overpowering tide.
Give me patience, Lord, I, blinded,
Stagger through the misty night.
Keep my vision fixed, clear-minded
On the stable truths and right.
Give me strength, I would not sever
One thin cord of thy control.
I would keep thee, Lord, forever
As the force which rules my soul.

—Laura Caroline Fierz.

TUESDAY.

THE POWER OF THE SILENT SPIRIT.

"Let my meditation be sweet . . . I will rejoice in the Lord."—Ps. 104:34.

"How precious also are thy thoughts, O God." Ps. 139:17.

"Let the words of my mouth and the meditation of my heart be acceptable in thy sight."

Other readings: Ps. 46:10; Phil. 4:8; Prov. 23:7.

Silent spirit, dwell with me:
I myself would quiet be,
Quiet as the growing blade
Which through earth its way has made,
Silently like morning light,
Putting mists and chills to flight.
Mighty spirit dwell in me;
I myself would mighty be,
Mighty so as to prevail
Where unaided, man must fail,
Ever by mighty hope
Pressing and bearing up.
Holy Spirit dwell with me;
I myself would holy be;
Separate from sin, I would Choose and cherish all things good,
And whatever I can be,
Give to him who gave to thee.

—Thomas Toke Lynch.

WEDNESDAY.

REASONING.

"Come, let us reason together."—Isa. 1:18.

God reasons with man on the basis of man's whole life. Man tries to reason with God on the basis of a single thing in life. In other words man points out the good or the better things in his life and says, "See this. Is a man who does these things condemned?"

Cain's offering to God was on the basis that he had brought something to God—he offered up incense, and made his fasts, and took his stand there.

God utterly rejects such reasoning.

God's answer was that it is life and the spirit that is the basis of worship. It is the spirit and the righteousness in which everything is done that God recognizes. "What doth the law require of thee but to do justly, love mercy and walk humbly with thy Lord?"

Prayer—Our Father, we are thy children. Make us so in deed and in truth. We confess that we have fallen far short of the spirit of a true child. O God, forgive us and establish our goings and comings, our lives in thy house forever.—Amen.

THURSDAY.

TOO LATE.

"Can an Ethiopian change his skin, or the leopard his spots? Then may ye also do good, that are accustomed to do evil."—Jer. 13:23.

A dark skinned man or the spots of an animal are fitting emblems of the evil spots fixed to a soul who gives his life to sinful things until, through course of habit he sins and cannot change his way.

One can hold a weight on his clutching arm until the sinews of the arm become set. If he holds long enough the time comes when he will never straighten the arm again. One can lie flat of his back long enough till there comes a time when he cannot get up. One can strap his arm to his side long enough to make it useless forever.

Character formed and engraved by habitual performance cannot be changed any more than a negro can cast his skin or a leopard whiten his spots. This has been called the "sin against the Holy Ghost," for which there is no forgiveness.

Does this utter the whole truth? Is there no hope for a habitual sinner? No doubt it is next to impossible. Experience bears it out. Old men hardened in sin rarely ever change. The Holy Spirit cannot impress them.

But that which is impossible with man is possible with God. He who created the soul and gave it a being is able to make it over and, to do so, is as much a work of creation as it was in the beginning. "Whosoever will may come." "I will in no wise cast out." "Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow." "He that is in Christ a new creature."

Prayer—Say the Lord's Prayer.

FRIDAY.

AN APPEAL TO CONSCIENCE.

"Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God."—Matt. 4:4.

All of us know that we are beings of power; power to work, power to study, power to sacrifice, powers of suffering for others, etc. What is to become of these powers if we live by bread alone and make material comfort our object? Like the arm that is not used it will wither and decay.

We are conscious beings, and also conscience beings. We have feelings, aspirations and ambitions for things higher and nobler than animal life. What will become of these powers if we merely provide for the needs of the body?

We are glad that, somehow, we believe that no life can be at its best or worthiest which is not patterned after love, self-denial and self-sacrifice for the good of others. History substantiates this. This is a capacity of the human spirit in communion with the divine spirit.

To be able to live this high life comes through obedience to the Word of God. Jesus Christ conquered at last, as he did at first, and during his entire abode on earth, by obeying the Word of God. Thus he overcame by faith and obedience, and not by power. His powers were manifested by this obedience. He was a Saviour to man not by exemption from man but by fellowship with man and his miseries. We are blind and foolish to think that we may achieve differently. Self-control and willing humiliation of self to the will of God is man's first and hardest lesson, but once learned and followed, then conscience may be one's guide.

Prayer—Our Father, make us thy obedient children. Forbid anything to shake our faith and cause us to waver. We seek thy spirit, thy strength, thy grace, thy all, to keep us forever.—Amen.

SATURDAY.

GEMS IN A DRAIN.

"As a ring of gold in a swine's snout, so is a fair woman that is without discretion."—Read Prov. 11:15-22.

A woman in a Texas town accidentally dropped down a drain, tied in a handkerchief, diamond rings worth $4,500. At once screens were so placed so as to prevent the washing of the rings through the pipes leading from the building, then the pipes were taken out, but all without result.

In the realm of the soul, we are continually throwing into the drain the most valuable things, such as purity, honor, peace of mind, love, religion, faith, mercy, eternal happiness, eternal life. There are no such gems as these.

We may ransack the hidden conduits of our house of life for these precious things we have discarded, and seek in vain. It is so easy to throw them away, so difficult to get them back.

Prayer—Our hands off the drain pipes! Sarefulness in our lives! Let us know what is most precious, and hold on to it with all our might! Let us keep our jewels out of the drains.—Amen.

AMOS R. WELLS.

SUNDAY.

SPECULATORS CONDEMNED.

"All that do unrighteously are an abomination unto Jehovah."—Read Deut. 25:13-19.

Mussolini, speaking of speculators, said: "Because of the infinite evil they express as sowers of ruin and misery, they merit the penalty of death." The wretchedness now abroad in our own land was caused in large measure by speculation. The speculation was quite in accord with the laws of man, but in utter disagreement with the laws of God.

For speculation is merely a particularly harmful mode of gambling. We invest our hard-earned savings in the securities of some business that seems as solidly founded as the Rocky Mountains, but overnight, by the skillful manipulations of financial thugs, our savings are wiped out, and we are left penniless. It is the highwayman's crime on a large scale.

The worst of it is that the evil is so commonly regarded as respectable, and that anyone may have a hand in it. So many do have a hand in it that condemning it is almost like indicting a nation.

Prayer—Grant, our Father, that we may seek no gain for which we do not give an equivalent in labor. Grant that we may not desire to profit from another's adversity. Grant that we may try to bring about stability and not feed on fluctuation. May we be creators of prosperity and not vultures that fatten on disaster.—Amen.

AMOS R. WELLS.

NOTICE.

Before subscribing to, or renewing your subscription to ANY magazines, won't you please send me a postal card giving list of magazines you are interested in. I will be glad to send special quotations and if I save you from 10 to 25 per cent, I feel sure you will give me a share of your subscriptions, thereby helping both yourself and me.

J. EDWIN HARRIS,

Suffolk, Va.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Preacher

THE PURE IN HEART.

By A. P. VAUGHAN.

"Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God."—Matt. 5:8.

In the Southwestern desert, as a youngster, I knew old timers who had taken part in defense of frontier settlements and army posts against raiding, butchering Apaches. I have listened in as those veterans recounted to each other episodes they had personally shared in, or horrors they found evidence of after forced marches to rescue settlers or wagon trains, arriving too late to do more than bury the violated fragments of the victims. Following the warpath or plunder sortie, those savages were fiends whose madness and blood-thirst had no limit. They devised and practiced tortures as amusement, for the delight the suffering of other humans furnished them. Wholly without any sense of fellow-feeling, their keenest pleasure was in cruelty for cruelty's sake. Where no material gain could come to them, often where they would lose or invite peril for themselves by it, they prolonged the agonies of mutilation, and fire on utterly helpless captives for no reason other than their own enjoyment; insensate; void of compassion. Few beasts of prey kill or torture needlessly. Head criminals of the underworld, when they have some job, some murder, or mass bombing or torture to be done, beyond the possibility for a man with any remaining shred of human sensitiveness or compassion, first starve the agent of his habitual cocaine or heroin, then, when the moment comes, feed him his drug and send him to the act full of its fiendish cunning and empty of any human mercy or moral compunction.

No being humanly sensate, no one with any heart, can see such cruelty, such darkness, degradation, monstrous evil. The last line of the image of God is erased from the mould of such creatures and only the dust remains. We can look at heartless purposed inhuman cruelty only with revulsion and abhorrence.

Blessed are the compassionate of heart; they can not see, they have no part in the torture, the fiendish violation of man.

Doomed are the merciless; they blot out the image of God in themselves and are self-destroyed.

* * * *

I turn squarely about-face, and look at the opposite moral pole. I sense and lay hold of all that I have power to perceive of human virtue and value in normal human life, in sympathetic, good-willed, generous human living. Then coming to the upper ceiling of the human best, I realize that there is room beyond, which the heart of man has not yet entered, has not yet seen. There is a goodness, a moral cleanness, a purity of motive, an understanding of others' good and devotion to that good, a perfect love, that is immeasurably farther above my best than the utter want of mercy and love in the Apache or gang fiend is beneath my tolerance. That upper realm is too high for my mind to sense, to compass and contain as yet. As yet I can not see God—"ye can not bear it now."

Here, just at the point where man can go no farther, help comes. "I myself am the Way; no one ever comes to the Father except through me. If you had recognized me you would have known my Father too; for the future, however, you will recognize him; indeed, you have already seen him. Have I been all this time among you and yet you have not recognized me? Those who have seen me have seen the Father." And to open the Way more exactly for our slow-comprehending minds, the Master adds: "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God." It is the one possible method, the one technique.

Fifteen hundred years ago Saint Augustine was finding strength and comfort in this text, and was preaching it to rouse the church to press on to the goal of God's high calling, forgetting all other objectives, serving one master only. The pure heart, Augustine said, is the single heart, wholly centered on fulfilling God's will for it. The pure heart has in it no mixed motive, no divided aim, nothing foreign to adulterate or dilute its one all-controlling purpose and effort. In its dealing with God the pure heart yields no allegiance to any other, allows no value, gives no consideration to any other. It has no other god before him. He is Lord. He is loved with the single undivided all of heart and mind and strength.

Looking at life with such a single eye, the Master said, fullness implies that the light is perceived and comprehended. With the eye fixed singly on that light and nothing else, we shall have power to see. The pure in heart shall see God.

This is the means and medium by which the heart of man can sense and sieze all graces and virtues. Everything of darkness, every alien purpose and passion is displaced, and the whole inner man is full of light. This is the only possible path toward the final requirement the Son of Man demands in human life: "Be ye, therefore, perfect as your Father in heaven is perfect." The pure in heart shall see God. "In that seeing all blessedness is included; without it there were no heaven; with it there could be no hell."

Blessed the pure in heart! The word in our common thought means entire freedom from anything that defiles or pollutes, the complete absence of every adulteration or alien substance. A pure chemical has no other ingredient in it to add to or change its composition, or to dilute it. A pure heart can have no spiritual adulterant, no impulse or motive or will with any taint, with any different quality. Any evil purpose at once destroys that purity, cancels the effort, changes the quality and result. Then you have a divided heart, divided personality, the good and evil contending, frustrating life, bringing distress and destruction.

Purity of heart might be an original innocence. There are at the throne of the Eternal "strong spirits who obey his word, servants who carry out his will" (Psa. 103:20-21, Moffatt Tr 30) who have kept pure hearts since God created them. But Jesus' "Blessed are the pure in heart" was a promise to earth-beleaguered men. For them purity of heart is not a grace-given heritage of innocence without effort or pain; rather it is a trophy of conflict, achieved at great cost. The dictionary gives us this strangely thought-compelling sentence sermon as it defines the word: "In moral and religious use pure is a strong word, denoting positive excellence of a high order; one is innocent who knows nothing of evil and has experienced no touch of temptation; one is pure who, with knowledge of evil and exposure to temptation, keeps heart and soul unstained." The pure heart is no easily won blessing. "These that are arrayed in the white robes, who are they, and whence came they?" And heaven heard the answer. "These are they that came out of great tribulation, and they washed their robes, and made them white in the blood of the Lamb. Therefore are they before the throne of God;" pure, and blessed because they see God.

Hard-won, heart purity is an increasing, progressive purity; and as it is achieved it is an increasing blessedness; it develops increasing capacity to see God. However far from Godlikeness now, if we with single eye and aim and undivided purpose press on, we will without deviation come to that goal and possess the Master's promise. We shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is. Faultless at last. Perfect as your Father in heaven is perfect.

Give me thy hand if thou wouldst know the way,
Long, steep and lone,
That leads from darkness into endless day,
Walk not alone;
And with thy hand, thy faith, and fear no more,
For I have walked the thorny way before.

—Author Unknown.

COMMUNION WARE.

Individual Service.

ALUMINUM.

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A.

- Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses $7.00
- Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses 6.75
- Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses 6.50
- Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
- Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
- Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim..... 1.60

(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)

SILVER-PLATED.

The Silver-plated Ware is of the very highest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.

- Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses.$22.00
- Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85. 11.00
- Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85... 16.00
- Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling). $22.00
- Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90.. 16.00
- Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90. 14.00

- Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow Rim.....$ 9.00
- Bread Plate No. 4—Broad Rim..... 9.00
- Filler—Silver Lined..... 6.00

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street

Richmond, Virginia

A Story for the Children

GRANDMOTHER'S STORY.

By Sarah H. Roberts.

"Please tell me a story, Grandma," said little Sallie Dean; and pulling her little stool to her grandmother's feet, she sat down upon it and looked up into her grandmother's face.

Grandmother's eyes took on the distant look they always did when Sallie asked for a story, because a story, to Sallie, always meant something about when Grandma was a girl.

"Dear child, I've told them to you over and over, but did I ever tell you about the time Father and Mother left me home with brother John to watch the turkeys?"

"It was on a Sunday morning in July, and Father, Mother, sister Clarissa, Ruth, Calista and Mehitabel, with Adam, Samuel and Daniel were ready to start for church—Father and Mother with the girls in the big wagon, and the boys on foot.

"Father drove a team of oxen, but many of the farmers drove oxen.

"Just before Father picked up the lines, Mother called out to me, 'Be a good girl, Melissa, and help John watch the turkeys; your lunch is in the cupboard—brown bread and beans, and the milk is down cellar.'

"Church in those days meant a long service, then a recess, then another long sermon with 'firstly' and 'secondly' and so on, before they would be ready to come home again.

"I sat down on the flat stone in front of the door of the log cabin that was our home; it was so quiet I could hear the rustling of the leaves in the trees and the twitter of the birds in the branches. John lay on his back under the trees in the shade.

"I felt very proud because Mother had allowed me to stay home and help John with the turkeys. Foxes and other small animals often came into our clearing and caught our chickens and turkeys, but a stick or a stone soon drove them away.

"John was thirteen and a big boy for his age, while I was ten.

"The road that ran by our home was called 'the Mohawk Trail,' and years before had been used by the Indians in traveling from one tribe to another.

"Sitting there in the warm sunshine I was startled by a sudden sound and glancing down the road I saw five men coming up the slope in single file. In a horrified whisper I called, 'John! Indians!' John started to his feet, for frontier children are trained to be alert.

"He whispered to me softly, 'Don't be afraid, Melissa, I'll take care of you; and don't you dare let the Indians know you are scared.'

"By this time they were in front of the house and turning into the yard; my heart seemed to leap into my throat and as for running, my feet were glued to the ground.

"The Indians, for such they were, walked up to the doorstep, and with a single word, 'How,' threw themselves on the grass.

"John had taken his seat by my side and was holding my hand tight in his own.

"Suddenly uttering some guttural sounds, one of the Indians rose to his feet, made motions of eating and drinking, and coming toward us he said in English, 'No hurt, hunger.'

"'Get them something to eat,' whispered John to me.

"How my trembling limbs carried me into the house I don't know. I lifted the big beanpot and carried it to the door. John took it from me and placed it in front of them. I followed with two big loaves of Mother's brown bread, and a pail of milk.

"They broke the bread in big pieces and dipping it in the milk, ate it; the beans they dipped up with their fingers. In fascinated silence I watched them. Would they tomahawk John and me, or would they, their hunger appeased, go on? My heart beat rapidly and I quivered from head to foot.

"They soon finished their meal, then, rising, the largest and—if possible—cleanest Indian came toward us. I rose to my feet; if I were to be tomahawked, I would take it standing.

"Putting his hands under my arms he lifted me until my face was level with his. I closed my eyes. But he softly rubbed his cheek on mine and said in English, 'Little Sparrow,' and put me down on the ground again. Then taking from some place on his person a beautiful beaded belt, he put it in my hands. Then, silently, without another word, they took their way down the road.

"John and I watched until they were out of sight, then John turned and grabbing my hair made an imaginary circle around it and shouted, 'Heap big Injun,' but my strained nerves giving away, I burst into tears, and he put his arm around me and comforted me.

"Not long after that Father and Mother returned, and were greatly troubled with our tale of the Indians' visit, although Indians were considered peaceful then. But after I had gone to bed that night Mother came and knelt by my bed, and I knew she was thanking the dear Lord her children were safe.

"The other children quite envied me my beautiful beaded belt, and I kept it carefully for years."

Sallie sighed as her grandmother ended her tale and said, wistfully, "I wish we had such exciting times now." But Grandmother only smiled.—Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty.

Five large Maps, in 6 Colors 36x57, on linen finished Cloth. Mounted on a folding steel stand, which can be regulated, so that Maps may be seen to the best advantage. This set contains data for thorough Bible Study. Its large print and cheerful Colors makes this set very instructive and attractive. Contains the five thoroughly up to date Maps necessary to the study of Bible History. — New Testament Palestine, — Old Testament Palestine, — Roman empire and Bible Lands, showing Pauls Travels by Colored lines, — Lands of the Old Testament, from the Great Sea, to the Persian Gulf.—The Exodus, Egypt, showing by Colored lines the wanderings of the Israelites.

Eiters Sunday School Maps. On a Revolving Adjustable Steel Stand.

The first 5 maps are in Set No. 1, with stand, Price $15 00. Set No. 2 8 Maps, Price $20 00.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street Richmond, Virginia

HOLMAN SUPERIOR TEACHERS' BIBLES

Authorized Version—Self-Pronouncing The Best Editions of the World's Best Book

For Adults, Teachers, Preachers, Students, and All Who Would Study the Word of God Intelligently

BOLD BLACK TYPE—COMPACT SIZE 4½x6¾ INCHES—WILL FIT THE COAT POCKET

Part page specimen of Holman Boldblack Type Bible

ST. MATTHEW, 5.

Christ's sermon on the mount.

13 And leaving Náz'a-réth, he came and dwelt in Cá-pér'na-úm, which is upon the sea coast, in the borders of Zab'u-lon and Néph'tha-lim: 14 That it might be fulfilled

A. D. 31. CHAP. 4. vs. 1, 2.

934 CHAPTER 5.

3 Who are blessed. 13 The disciples called the salt of the earth, and light of the world; Christ taught on these a good example, etc. AND seeing the multitudes; he went up into a moun-

THIS NEW HOLMAN TEACHERS' BIBLE, Pronouncing Text, Bold Black Type is a PRONOUNCED SUCCESS. The latest Bible with NEW HELPS that are quite comprehensive and consist of an Illustrated Bible Dictionary, Concordance and additional aids all under ONE ALPHABETICAL INDEX. Also Five Maps on Coated Paper, and a specially prepared BIBLE READING COURSE, intended to stimulate and maintain interest in the Bible. Imported Bible paper is used to improve opacity and keep down bulk. By this means you get the benefit of full Biblical information without the physical discomfort of handling a heavy volume.

- STYLES AND PRICES—BIBLE PAPER EDITION
- 4612. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges..... $4.00
 - 4630. Same as 4612, with extra leather lined covers..... 4.75
- THIN INDIA PAPER EDITION
- With Helps as described above. Size 4½x6¾ inches. One inch in thickness
- 630X. Egyptian Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings, red under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker..... 7.00
 - 633X. Algerian Morocco, divinity circuit, leather lining to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, extra quality binding..... 8.00

EXTRA LARGE PRINT TEACHERS' BIBLES

Large 8 Vo. Size—8x5½ inches—1600 Pages, including 400 pages of Bible Study Helps

Part Page Specimen of Print

ST. MATTHEW, 5.

Christ's sermon on the mount.

15^b The land of Zab'u-lon, and the land of Néph'tha-lim, by the way of the sea, beyond Jór'dan, Gal'i-lee of the Gén'tiles;

A. D. 31. vs. 1, 2, 13, 42, 7, Luke 2, 22, Mark 1, 14.

2 And he opened his mouth, and taught them, saying, 3^b Blessed are the poor in spirit: for their's is the kingdom of heaven.

Extra spacing between words and lines makes this Bible very easy to read.

CONTAINING COMPLETE HELPS TO BIBLE STUDY, INCLUDING ALL OF THE FOLLOWING FEATURES

A New Practical Course in Bible Reading, A Treasury of Biblical Information. The most carefully compiled, thorough and attractive forms in which valuable Biblical information has ever been prepared. Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary Containing 150 illustrations, concise definitions and textual references on nearly 50,000 subjects. A Practical Comparative Concordance, with nearly 50,000 references. Four Thousand Questions and Answers on the Old and New Testaments. A valuable Help to all Bible Readers.

- STYLES AND PRICES
- 4712. Divinity Circuit (overlapping covers), French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, silk head bands, and silk marker.. $5.00
 - 812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament, Old Testament Passages alluded to by Christ, various prophecies relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above on 4712 and same large Self-Pronouncing type..... 6.00
 - 736X. Holman India Paper, Genuine Morocco, leather lined, silk sewed, divinity circuit, round corners carmine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and helps as above..... 10.65

All styles sent Postpaid at above prices—Thumb Index 50 cents extra

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

We had a very welcome visitor from Ambrose, Ga., several weeks ago. I received the following letter from him, which I think will interest you. We wish our people from all our churches would visit the Christian Orphanage and see for themselves what we are trying to do for fatherless and motherless children.

Ambrose, Ga., November 21, 1933.

MR. CHAS. D. JOHNSTON,
Superintendent Christian Orphanage,
Elon College, N. C.

Dear Brother Johnston:

It afforded me great pleasure to stop over at Elon on my way to the Eastern Virginia Conference. I am more impressed now than ever before, after looking over your farm, and seeing how you manage it and operate it. In every way it certainly gave me pleasure to visit the Orphanage and see the children, and the manner in which they are cared for. I now plan on my next trip to Eastern Virginia to come by Elon, and hope to have more time with you on my next trip.

With best wishes,

Yours sincerely,
T. J. HOLLAND.

You will hardly have an opportunity to read the Orphanage letter before Thursday, which is Thanksgiving Day. If your church has not already made its Thanksgiving offering, won't you make up your mind to make your Thanksgiving offering liberal this year? We need it.

A young lady wanted to attend a ball game some time ago. She said she laid aside first for her Thanksgiving offering, as much as she was going to spend to see the ball game. What if everybody would do as much for their church's institutions as they spend for their own pleasure—what a different story could be told! The superintendent of the Christian Orphanage would not have to spend restless nights trying to plan some way to meet bills at the end of the month.

I appeal to every church and Sunday School and every individual to be liberal this year. We are counting on you.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON, Supt.

REPORT FOR NOVEMBER 30, 1933.

Brought forward $10,745.22

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

North Carolina and Virginia Conference:

Bethlehem, October-November$ 4.68
Haw River 8.85
13.53

Eastern North Carolina Conference:

Bethel, Wake$ 3.19
New Elam 1.66
Wake Chapel 8.07
Plymouth 1.85
Wentworth 7.60
Youngsville 5.00
27.37

Eastern Virginia Conference:

Berea, Nansemond$ 5.00
First, Richmond 5.39
Wakefield 1.35
11.74

Valley Virginia Central Conference:

Timber Mountain$ 1.00
Newport 1.04
2.04

Alabama Conference:

Langdale 4.15

Georgia and Alabama Conference:

Vanceville 1.00

Special Offerings.

Mrs. Dalton, support children...$ 12.50
Rent on Ellen Eunstall farm.... 100.00

Cash item	2.00
Special collection, Eastern Virginia Conference	20.00	134.50
Thanksgiving Offerings.
North Carolina and Virginia Conference:
Bethlehem	$ 14.10
Haw River	33.27	47.37
Eastern North Carolina Conference:
Good Hope	$ 2.20
Hayes' Chapel	2.84
New Elam	9.11	14.15

Mamie Kimball Perkison, Wise, N. C.	5.00
Mr. J. M. W. Hicks, New York City	50.00
Mrs. Cameron Morrison, Charlotte, N. C.	25.00
Mrs. Edward Kiger, Germantowu, N. C.	1.00
Junior C. E. Society, Enigma, Ga.	1.00	87.00
Total for the week.....		$ 342.85
Grand total		$11,088.07

Individual Thanksgiving Offerings.
Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Deuisou, Dayton, Ohio$ 5.00

The church is a recruiting station from which men should go out to fight the battles of the Lord; not a hospital in which to live idly upon his pension.—Presbyterian Record.

ELON COLLEGE

AN ACCREDITED COLLEGE

of the

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING.

ELON COLLEGE, founded by the Christian Church in 1889, has fully justified the faith and hope of its founders during its 42 years of operation. Its graduates from the four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree, number 980, now living, 122 of whom are in the Christian Ministry and full-time Christian service. The majority of these are members of our own denomination. In addition, 449 are in educational work and are an active influence in the lay leadership of the Christian Church.

THE CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING, and the definite religious atmosphere of the College, provide the very best facilities available for training for religious leadership, and offer the Church its finest opportunity to train the young people of the denomination to assume active leadership both in the ministry and laity of the local churches.

FALL TERM OPENS SEPTEMBER 7th.

Address—

C. M. CANNON, Registrar

Elon College, - - - North Carolina

Home Atmosphere—Reasonable Rates—Clean Athletics—Christian Spirit

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Congregational-Christian Church.

Central Publishing Co., Inc., is complying with the President's Code

BOARD OF EDITORS.

- J. O. ATKINSON, D. D. Editor
- E. C. GILLETTE, D. D. Associate
- S. C. HARRELL, D. D. Contributing
- C. R. RAYMOND, D. D. Contributing
- ELISHA A. KING, D. D. Contributing
- W. C. WICKER, D. D. Contributing
- J. T. KERNODLE Managing Editor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

- One Year $2.00
- Six Months 1.00

Trial Subscriptions: Five or more new subscriptions sent in at one time by pastor or president of any church organization, three months for 40c each.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Change of Address: Be sure to give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

All news matter and items to be published in "The Sun" should be addressed to J. O. Atkinson, Editor, Elon College, N. C., and should reach him not later than Friday preceding date of publication. If more convenient, news from Congregational Churches may be sent to E. C. Gillette, Associate Editor, 117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla. Emergency notices will be received at the Richmond Office up until Tuesday of week of publication.

All remittances for subscriptions, renewals, advertising, etc., books for review, and other matters of business should be addressed to J. T. Kernodle, Managing Editor, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

Notices: Obituary and marriage notices, limited to 125 words, published free. All over 125 words, 1c a word, cash with notice. No notices should exceed 250 words.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows date of expiration, and change on label will appear the first or second issue of the month following renewal, provided it was received before the 25th. No other receipt will be sent unless requested. Please notify the Richmond Office if label is not changed as above.

OBITUARIES

Burkett.

Paul Burkett, son of Mrs. Mamie Burkett, of near Edinburg, Va., was struck by an automobile near his home October 10, 1933, and instantly killed. His sudden death was a great shock to his friends and neighbors. He was 7 years, 3 months, and 19 days old. Funeral services were held at the home, October 11, 1933, and the little form laid to rest in the cemetery at Edinburg.

A. W. ANDES.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

Whereas, our heavenly Father called home our brother, John Archer Ashley, on April 27, 1933, after a very brief illness and

Whereas, the deceased was, for many years, a faithful member of this church, and was loyal until his death; therefore, be it resolved:

1. That Liberty Spring Christian Church, in conference assembled, hereby express our sorrow in sustaining such a bereavement.
2. That we record our sincere appreciation of his life, and faithful service, as a member of this church.
3. That we express our heartfelt sympathy to the devoted wife and relatives of our deceased brother.
4. That a copy of these resolutions be entered upon the records of this church, a copy sent to the bereaved wife, and a copy sent for publication in "The Christian Sun."

Respectfully submitted,

- MRS. O. L. BAKER,
- MRS. I. T. BYRD,
- MRS. E. B. RAWLES,
- MRS. F. F. BRINKLEY,
- R. E. ROGERS,
- E. F. O'BERRY,

Committee.

GERRINGER.

Mrs. Ella Ann Gerring, wife of J. B. Gerring, Route 1, Elon College, N. C., passed to her reward November 11, 1933 age 76 years, 11 months and 2 days. Surviving are her husband and nine children, forty grandchildren, and twelve great-grandchildren, many other relatives and a host of friends.

tives and a host of friends.

Burial was at Shallow Ford, where she had long been a true and faithful member, and many beautiful flowers covered her grave.

Services by the pastor and writer, assisted by Rev. Mr. Hite of the Lutheran Church, Rev. Mr. Lance of the Methodist Church, Rev. Mr. Brown of the Holiness Church, and Rev. J. W. Patton, in the presence of a very large congregation of sorrowing friends. May the heavenly Father comfort the bereaved ones.

T. J. GREEN.

PIEDMONT COLLEGE

Located in

"The Blue Ridge Highlands"

FALL TERM BEGINS
SEPTEMBER 13.

An accredited college with an enviable reputation for superior classroom instruction, and wholesome student life.

Fully recognized and accredited in its home State, and in such neighboring States as North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Tennessee and others. Standard courses leading to the A. B. and B. S. degrees.

Cost for Board, Room and Tuition, including also Entrance, Activity, and Infirmary fees reduced to $273.50 for the College Year. Personal expenses as low as student and parent wish.

All who seek an "A" grade college training for their sons and daughters in an atmosphere of Christian culture, and at minimum cost, are invited to write for the college catalogue and admission blanks.

Address: DEAN J. C. ROGERS,
DEMOREST, GEORGIA.

Southern Seminary Foundation

(Successor to Atlanta Theological Seminary.)

AFFILIATED WITH

Vanderbilt University

The Foundation and the other Foundations that are affiliated with Vanderbilt University School of Religion comprise the only Interdenominational Theological School in the South. Through this affiliation the students enjoy the rights and privileges of Vanderbilt University.

DEGREES.

Candidates for degrees are required to have completed their college courses.

The degree of Bachelor of Divinity is offered to qualified students who complete the required courses.

Vanderbilt University also offers the degrees of Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy, in accordance with the regulations established in its several departments.

MORE THAN A SCHOOL OF THEOLOGY.

Because of our affiliation with Vanderbilt, our relations with other nearby colleges where our students can take courses without tuition, and the cooperation of the American Red Cross and other social agencies in the city, we prepare students for many types of Christian service.

Come to Nashville, the Educational Center of the South, and prepare for Christian leadership. A Graduate School open to both men and women, with opportunities for self-help.

For information write

WILLIAM JAMES CAMPBELL, President,
330 BUTTRICK HALL, VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY,
NASHVILLE, TENN.

SOUTHERN UNION COLLEGE

FRANK E. JENKINS, Acting President.

WINTER QUARTER WILL BEGIN
NOVEMBER 29th.

* * * *

STRONG FACULTY : STRONG COURSES
LOW EXPENSES : THOROUGHLY
CHRISTIAN.

* * * *

The Adult Education Department is growing rapidly, with over 60 already enrolled.

For prospectus and full information, write

DEAN MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD,
WADLEY, ALABAMA

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Representing the Southeast Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXV.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, DECEMBER 7, 1933.

NUMBER 49.

.. THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY ..

"Standard Time" Golden Anniversary.—

On November 18th, the "Standard" system of time zones dividing the United States from East to West in four time areas, celebrated its fiftieth anniversary. The scheme was first proposed by Dr. Charles F. Dowd, a Saratoga Springs, N. Y., school teacher, but the credit for the plan has usually gone to William F. Allen, who was in 1883 secretary of the American Railway Association. Prior to that date what is known as "sun time" was in general use, and almost no two places had the same time. The time zones cover roughly fifteen degrees of longitude, and there is on hour's difference in time for each zone.

Long Distance Marriage.—

The Associated Press dispatches of December 2nd, carry notice of a marriage which possibly heads the list of long-distance marriages. The wedding was solemnized by telephone between Miss Sigrid Sofia Margareta Carlson, who was seated before a telephone in Stockholm, Sweden, and Bertil Hjalmar Clason, who was at the time in Dertoit, Mich. Says this dispatch, "Across thousands of miles came the voice of the bride, from Stockholm, to London, to Glasgow, to Maine, to New York and to Detroit. English operators in Scotland and England wrote down the words. The American consul in Stockholm translated them." Judge John D. Watts, with the bridegroom in Dertoit, pronounced the words which made them man and wife. The witnesses were the American consul, the telephone operators who recorded the words transmitted and the groom's brother and sister-in-law.

Horses and Mules Not Eliminated.—

Wayne Dinsmore, writing in Horse, reminds us that the horse and mule are still vital factors on the farm. He says: "In 1919 we had about 17,000,000 head of horses and mules at work in harness or under saddle on farms; in 1932 about 15,000,000 were so employed." He accounts for this decrease by the increase of tractors from 246,083 in 1920 to 920,210 in 1930. Motor trucks also increased, there being in use 139,169 and 900,385 trucks in 1920 and 1930 respectively. He states that "the horse and mule as a chief source of power, never left the farm. Some decrease occurred, it is true, but much less than is generally supposed." Mr. Dinsmore predicts the return of these animals to the first place in the esteem of good farmers, believing that "men who stick to horses and mules, planning their work wisely, raise just as much crops at much less cost."

Christmas Savings Decrease.—

Christmas savings funds distributed by the 6,000 or more banks catering to this class of savings show a decline for the present year over last year of 20 per cent. This is no doubt due to the continuance of the depression, nevertheless the amount distributed is quite sizeable, amounting to something like $350,000,000, which is divided among about eight million members. The Wall Street Journal estimates that these funds will be spent as follows: Christmas purchases, 42 per cent, or $147,000,000; permanent savings and investments, 26 per cent, or $91,000,000; taxes, 12 per cent, or $42,000,000. The next largest amount will be for speculation, amounting to 8 per cent, or $28,000,000; while mortgage amortization and interest, and insurance premiums will take 5 per cent each, accounting for another $35,000,000. Travel, education and charity, account for the final 2 per cent, or $7,000,000.

"Tommy Was a Welshman."—

Nearly every school child has learned the ditty which starts out: "Tommy was a Welshman, Tommy was a thief." This time only the first line of the rhyme is applicable, for the Tommy who is now being claimed by the Welsh is none other than Thomas Jefferson. The Literary Digest tells us that in the mountain village in the north of Wales, Glyn-Ceirog, there has recently been erected a tablet "honoring the illustrious Welshman, Thomas Jefferson." At the unveiling of this tablet, a letter from the American ambassador, Mr. Bingham, which was read to the company assembled in the Ceirog Memorial Institute, praised the part which has been "played by the people of Wales in both Britain and the United States" as "of immeasurable value and importance." A correspondent of the London Times said that "the Welshman who wrote the American Declaration of Independence" will "have a permanent place in the Institute alongside of a copy of the Declaration, gift years ago of a Welsh publisher in New York." Peter Jefferson, the father of the famous Revolutionary lawyer, was a Welshman, hence this claim to his son.

In the National Capitol.—

"Diogenes," writing in The Literary Digest, tells us: "An entirely new atmosphere has enveloped Washington . . . in which the general disposition to 'stand by the President' is giving way to positions taken on the basis of individual or group convictions." He believes it most significant that the directors of the United States Chamber of Commerce were unanimous in demanding that the President turn back to some gold basis, and their action will offer a rallying point for the "scattered and hitherto leaderless forces of opposition to the President's [financial] program." It is the opinion of political observers of both major parties that Mr. Roosevelt will have as hard a fight to defend his liberal policies as did Mr. Hoover last year in his effort to defend his conservative philosophy. The issue will, as it develops, cut across party lines, with conservative Democrats, probably led by Carter Glass, taking the field for "sound money," while the left wing Republicans will support the President. Walter Lippman is opposed to any organized opposition to the President's policy, believing that it will "inevitably degenerate into a cry that all believers in sound money must oppose the President." He reminds us that, "the fact is that if we are to have sound money, it is the President who must establish it; he will be in office another three years." On the other hand Mr. Lippmann forgets that our money problems rightly belong to Congress and have only been turned over to the Administration as an emergency matter. Mr. Roosevelt realizes this and is trying to put over as much of his program as possible before Congress meets.

Newsprint from Southern Pine.—

On Monday of the past week nine Georgia newspapers issued their regular editions on newsprint made from Southern pine. This is the first time that pine paper has been made up under the same high-speed manufacturing conditions that are present in the making of paper from Northern spruce. Three carloads of pine pulp were shipped by fast refrigerated freight to Canada for manufacture. Business Week tells us that "the pine pulp met every test for speed and strength," and that the Georgia newspapers pronounced the paper as "surprisingly satisfactory." It proved strong, soft and of fine finish, and took the ink well. Experimentation with pine as a source of newsprint began the first of 1932, under the direction of Dr. Charles H. Herty. The Chemical Foundation provided $50,000, machinery manufacturers furnished equipment at cost, the State of Georgia appropriated $20,000 and the city of Savannah a like amount. Paper made on the slower experimental machines proved satisfactory. This year the program was jeopardized by the failure of the State to continue its appropriation, but the Chemical Foundation came to the rescue with $105,000 additional, and the newspapers concerned bore the cost of sending the pulp to Canada. Two-thirds of the present amount of newspaper used is imported, mostly from Canada, but in greatly increasing amounts from Norway, Sweden, Finland and Russia. Northern spruce costs $10.00 a ton, and when the supply is exhausted it takes thirty or more years to replenish; Southern pine can be had for $3.50, and the growing time for wood-pulp pine is from ten to fifteen years. There are 150,000,000 acres of timberland available in twelve Southern States for this use, and the ultimate perfection of the processes of manufacture will make the United States permanently independent of importation of this commodity.

NOTES-PERSONALS

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

Word comes that Dr. W. Knighton Bloom is slowly recovering from his illness, though still confined to the bed. All his friends are glad to receive encouraging word with regard to his recovery.

"I have set the Lord always before me; because he is at my right hand, I shall not be moved. Therefore, my heart is glad, and my glory rejoiceth; my flesh also shall dwell confidently."—Psalm 16:8.

The pastors of our churches in Miami and vicinity lunched together with the State superintendent on a recent Monday. The pleasant fellowship and the informal talk about the progress of the work and its needs made this a valuable get-together.

A member, writing from Winston-Salem, says: "Come visit our little brown church. We love it. We have a nice, little church and a wonderful pastor." With all of which THE SUN'S editor, having visited our new church at Winston-Salem and preached there, most heartily agrees.

Rev. R. A. Whitten, pastor, First Church, Portsmouth, writes: "We are very busy putting in a steam heating plant which should have been installed ten years ago. These necessities make the work difficult during these strenuous days, but we hope to have the work completed in time for use during the holidays."

Miss Pattie Lee Coghill and Mrs. Marion Ballo Fisk were speakers at the Thankoffering meeting at Melbourne. Rev. Orville D. Ullom, pastor of the church, writes most enthusiastically about the messages which they brought. They also have shared in a meeting of the ladies representing all of the Miami Congregational-Christian Churches. This is the first of a series of group meetings of the ladies of neighboring churches, which has been planned for the winter season.

The church at Holly Hill, Fla., has arranged with Rev. Watson L. Lewis, of Ormond, to render part time service with this church. Mr. Lewis was until recently pastor of the church at New Smyrna, and prior to that pastor of the church at Daytona Beach, and is now living at his home in Ormond. He has accepted the invitation of the church committee and will not only take charge of Sunday services but will also render such pastoral service as is necessary, and as is possible with his other duties.

Rev. and Mrs. R. T. Grissom are exceedingly anxious to give a good Christmas tree and entertainment at each of our churches: The Spur and Rocky Ford, Carroll County, Va. If Sunday Schools or individuals who wish to carry real Christmas cheer to otherwise cheerless homes and hearts at Christmas time, here, indeed, is a most excellent opportunity. Mr. and Mrs. Grissom are working on a Christmas program for both of these schools, and a well laden Christmas tree—the gifts of some of our more favored Sunday Schools and friends—would add much in every way to the enjoyment of these programs.

One of the finest Christmas appeals is that of the Christmas fund of the Congregational-

Christian Ministerial Relief Fund. This fund is used to supplement the regular grants and to meet emergency needs on the part of aged ministers and missionaries and their widows. The need is increasingly great and it is hard to think of our aged servants suffering want. Remember this appeal in your Christmas distribution. Why not make a contribution in honor of parents or ministers, or beloved Christian workers who have passed on? What you might have spent for a gift for father, send to this fund in honor of him.

We congratulate our young friend, E. L. Moffitt, Jr., a graduate last June from Elon College, and now an esteemed resident of our College town. The event was at Asheville, N. C., as told in the following item from the Greensboro Daily News: "The marriage of Miss Mildred Lee Gilliam, of this city, to Emmett L. Moffett, Jr., of Elon College, took place here this morning at 11 o'clock at the First Presbyterian Church. Dr. R. F. Campbell, pastor, officiated in the presence of a small company of relatives and intimate friends." Our best wishes for a long and happy married life.

Dr. Robert E. Speer, in speaking to the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, recently used some facts and figures which apply to all denominations: "It is preposterous to hold that the church is unable to provide funds" (for its missionary and other enterprises.) Our people spend their full share of the national amusement bill, which is more than $1,000,000,000 annually, their full share of the bill of nearly $2,000,000,000 for candy and corresponding luxuries; more than $2,000,000,000 for tobacco, and $12,000,000,000 for automobiles. It is not a question as to whether or not we have the money, even in these times of depression. The issue is purely one of devotion and sacrifice."

It certainly will be worthwhile for all of our pastors, Sunday School superintendents and leaders of Christian Endeavor and prayer meeting groups to provide themselves with the 1934 Hand Book for Congregational-Christian Churches, carrying, as it does, daily Bible readings for the year; Sunday School, prayer meeting and Christian Endeavor topics; latest facts respecting the history, statistics and work of the Congregational and Christian Churches, with information concerning the National and State denominational agencies. It is a valuable booklet of sixty-four pages, in addition to substantial cover pages which carry a calendar for 1934 and Table of Contents. The book was prepared by the direction of the General Council of Congregational and Christian Churches, and one may secure a single copy for five cents; ten or more copies, four cents, by sending the price, with request, to Commission on Evangelism, Room 213, 287 4th Ave., New York City. It is worth its price many times over.

GIVING AT CHRISTMAS TIME.

When December arrives people begin to think about others. They get out a list of names whom they wish to remember with messages, cards, boxes, and gifts of various kinds. The Christmas season has become a season for gifts, for sharing, and for joy. America enters into the Christmas season with an abandoned spirit, in a measure, forgetting self and exalting others. It is a great season for generous souls.

As we enter into the festivities of the Christmas season, I wonder if we always think as reverently as we should of him who hath brought to us this season of the year and endowed us with this spirit of benevolence and generosity. In the long ago God laid the best Christmas gift on the heart of the world. When Christ was born in Bethlehem of Judea, a gift more precious than gold and more priceless than diamonds was made to man. How poor we and the world would be without this gift; how rich we are with it!

This year we are blessed with another occasion of praise and thanksgiving unto God for his precious gift to man and to the world. As we have the opportunity to share what we have of talent, time, and money expressing our appreciation to him, the Giver of all gifts, may we not fail in this opportunity or be niggardly in our giving. As we have received so let us give that the needs of others may be adequately met and that we ourselves may be prospered with blessings divine. To withhold what we have means only to dissipate our own resources and eventually to bankrupt our own treasury.

We of the Christian Church are blessed with abundant opportunities to share with our institutions that are greatly in need. Perhaps no institution or interest that we have is more acutely in need than is our own Elon College. The faculty, the ones who teach at the College, your servants, are in need of salary with which to provide the necessities of life. A gift from the reader would be greatly appreciated and would accomplish as much as any gift that you might be able to make. It is the hope and the prayer of the writer that these few words may find their way into the mind of some individual and may rest feelingly and effectively upon his generous heart and that the College, itself, may be the richer because of this Christmas message dispatched to a great people.

May the blessings of God be yours and the joy of Christmas be your share for sharing with others.

L. E. SMITH, President.

STANDING COMMITTEES, EASTERN N. C. CONFERENCE FOR 1934.

At the recent session of the Eastern North Carolina Conference, the standing committees were not announced, and they are hereby published so that they may begin work before the Christian Annual is off the press. Chairmen of the committees will begin to plan meetings at once and carry on their part of the Conference work throughout the entire year.

Executive—W. C. Wicker, E. M. Carter, J. Edward Kirby.

Education—J. Lee Johnson, Herbert Scholz, S. E. Madren, W. C. Wicker.

Home Missions—T. Fred Wright, J. F. Hilliard, K. B. Johnson, J. A. Kimball.

Foreign Missions—S. E. Madren, J. Ray Dickens, Raymond Grissom, Miss Margaret Alston.

Evangelism—M. T. Sorrell, J. A. Denton, J. E. Franks.

Sunday Schools and Christian Endeavor—Robert Kimball, S. E. Madren, H. C. Hilliard.

Social Service—J. A. Kimball, B. J. Howard, J. A. Denton.

Religious Literature—Miss Lilly Fowler, B. J. Howard, Robert Kimball.

Stewardship—J. Ray Dickens, J. Lee Johnson, Raymond Grissom.

Apportionments—W. J. Ballentine, W. A. Newman, W. M. Goodwin, J. F. Hilliard.

Finance—K. B. Johnson, J. A. Kimball, J. Walker Kelly.

Music—Geo. M. McCullers, A. P. Strickland, D. A. Mann.

Program—W. C. Wicker, E. M. Carter, J. Lee Johnson.

W. C. WICKER, President.

SUBSCRIPTIONS FOR NOVEMBER.

We present this week the largest number of new and renewal subscriptions sent in for any one month since the writer was elected as your managing editor. Unless we miscount, the list numbers 180. It is only natural that the list would be larger this month, because of the fact that four of our Conferences are held in it. However, the number is quite an improvement on the same month last year.

Quite a few of the remittances were for new subscriptions, most of these being the special "Four Months for 50 Cents" offer. We hope that these additions to THE SUN's family will like the paper and continue to give it their support. That there may be no interruption in receiving the paper the subscription will not be discontinued at expiration date unless we receive notice to that effect. This is in accordance with the special offer.

We would again call attention to the fact that the mailing list is corrected once a month. The change on your label will not be made until the first or second week after the month in which you send in your remittance. If the change is not made by the third week, please notify us immediately. No receipts are sent unless specially requested. This is not because of lack of appreciation, but because of necessary economy.

In closing, we wish to thank each and every one of you, and also those who have assisted in making this larger list possible.

Sincerely,

J. T. KERNODLE,
Managing Editor.

- Mrs. E. C. Adams, R. 6, Andalusia, Ala.
J. M. Allred, R. 3, Asheboro, N. C.
Rev. J. E. Amason, R. 2, Wedowee, Ala.
Mrs. O. T. Ashly, Mt. Airy, N. C.
Mrs. A. M. Atkinson, R. 3, Raleigh, N. C.
Miss Dora Ayscue, 328 Andrews Ave., Henderson, N. C.
Mrs. L. W. Ayscue, R. 6, Henderson, N. C.
H. Ayscue, R. 6, Henderson, N. C.
J. Ballentine, Fuquay Springs, N. C.
J. Milton Banks, R. 3, Raleigh, N. C.
Mrs. T. A. Barbee, Box 366, Suffolk, Va.
P. A. Barber, Elon College, N. C.
Rev. J. F. Blackburn, R. 1, Atlanta, Ga.
Mrs. Siddle Boozer, Ohatchee, Ala.
Miss Georgia Bradley, Mebane, N. C.
J. I. Branch, R. 2, Garner, N. C.
Geo. M. Brannon, 408 Hickory St., Sanford, N. C.
Mrs. W. S. Briggs, R. 4, Henderson, N. C.
Mrs. L. A. Brittle, Wakefield, Va.
Mrs. T. R. Brown, R. 3, Lillington, N. C.
Mrs. A. A. Buffalo, McCullers, N. C.
Mrs. W. F. Burton, Brown Summit, N. C.
W. B. Byrd, R. 1, Suffolk, Va.
Herman Capps, 4312 Colonial Ave., Norfolk, Va.
G. F. Carden, R. 3, Burlington, N. C.
H. W. Carpenter, R. 2, Wedowee, Ala.
S. W. Carpenter, R. 2, Wedowee, Ala.
Rev. W. C. Carpenter, Tifton, Ga.
Rev. E. M. Carter, Youngsville, N. C.
Rev. H. C. Caviness, 210 College Ave., Greensboro, N. C.
Mrs. T. W. Chandler, Virgilina, Va.
J. W. Check, R. 1, Ramseur, N. C.
J. H. Chrisler, Roanoke, Ala.
R. M. Cline 405 McIver St., Sanford, N. C.
Rev. R. H. Coble, R. 5, Burlington, N. C.
Geo. D. Colclough, Elon College, N. C.
Mrs. J. F. Colquitt, Thomaston, Ga.
J. E. Corbitt, Sunbury, N. C.
J. R. Corbett, Sunbury, N. C.
Mrs. D. A. Cornelison, Seagrave, N. C.
Everett Cox, R. 1, Ramseur, N. C.
J. T. Cox, Lanett, Ala.
Mrs. L. I. Cox, Elon College, N. C.
R. D. Craven, Coles Store, N. C.
W. M. Crutchfield, R. 2, Kernersville, N. C.
Dr. Warren H. Denison, 507 C. P. A. Bldg, Dayton, O.
Rev. J. A. Denton, R. 3, Raleigh, N. C.
Mrs. W. M. Dorsett, R. 2, Ramseur, N. C.
Miss Dora Edwards, R. 4, Raleigh, N. C.
Mrs. E. H. Elder, Lumber City, Ga.
Mrs. Mary Parker Eure, R. 2, Box 20, Gates, N. C.
P. W. Farmer, News Ferry, Va.
T. F. Faucette, Brown's Summit, N. C.
Mrs. Garland Felton, Roduco, N. C.

- Mrs. B. W. Fields, 2 Ellington St., Reidsville, N. C.
A. R. Flowers, Sims, N. C.
Mrs. B. F. Frank, R. 4, Harrisonburg, Va.
J. R. Foster, Burlington, N. C.
Mrs. I. H. Foust, Ramseur, N. C.
W. H. Freeman, Star, N. C.
Mrs. M. C. Fulton, 212 Maple Ave., Sanford, N. C.
J. A. Gentry, Burlington, N. C.
Mrs. Ida Gerring, Brown's Summit, N. C.
Mrs. B. F. Gibson, R. 3, Box 213, Norfolk, Va.
W. M. Goodwin, R. 2, New Hill, N. C.
E. W. Graham, R. 3, Burlington, N. C.
Mrs. M. M. Gregory, 510 Dinwiddie Ave., Berkley, Va.
G. C. Griffin, R. 2, Box 88, Windsor, Va.
Mrs. L. M. Grissom, R. 5, Louisburg, N. C.
M. L. Grissom, R. 1, Henderson, N. C.
Rev. R. T. Grissom, R. 2, Fancy Gap, Va.
Dr. W. A. Harper, 2321 W. End Ave., Nashville, Tenn.
Mrs. J. Harris, 1811 Chesapeake St., Ocean View, Va.
Mrs. J. M. Harris, 30 Farwood Ave., Asheville, N. C.
Mrs. M. S. Harry, R. 2, Glenn, Ga.
E. H. Henby, R. 6, Andalusia, Ala.
Geo. W. Hill, R. 3, Ruffin, N. C.
Mrs. W. E. Hinshaw, V-Pres., c/o Revolution Mills, Greensboro, N. C.
T. J. Holland, Ambrose, Ga.
A. M. House, Box 462, Franklinton, N. C.
Rev. B. J. Howard, 415 Cameron Ave., Chapel Hill, N. C.
Mrs. W. L. Iseley, R. 1, Elon College, N. C.
G. F. Johnson, R. 5, Sanford, N. C.
Mrs. E. P. Jones, 600 High St., Franklin, Va.
Mrs. P. P. Jones, News Ferry, Va.

- J. W. Kelley, Jonesboro, N. C.
Mrs. Dora King, R. 1, Box 67, Suffolk, Va.
J. H. King, R. 1, Union Ridge, N. C.
Dr. J. E. Kirbye, Hillsboro and Dawson Sts., Raleigh, N. C.
M. R. Kirkman, Union Ridge, N. C.
V. E. Kitchen, Roanoke, Ala.
L. L. Knight, R. 1, Box 74, Abanda, Ala.
W. G. Lamb, Randleman, N. C.
Miss Rosa Lassiter, 100 Maple Ave., E. Durham, N. C.
F. O. Leonard, R. 4, Jonesboro, N. C.
Zeb H. Lynch, R. 3, Mebane, N. C.
S. L. McClenny, Myrtle, Va.
Mrs. Doyle McFarland, R. 6, Jonesboro N. C.
A. H. McIver, McIver Street, Sanford, N. C.
Mrs. Tora McKenney, Brown Summit, N. C.
J. A. McKenzie, Randleman, N. C.
Miss Rebecca J. Macklim, Havre de Grace, Md.
Rev. S. E. Madren, R. 1, Henderson, N. C.
D. L. Mann, R. 2, Apex, N. C.
O. W. Mann, R. 2, Apex, N. C.
Dr. J. W. Manning, 1215 Bank of Commerce, Norfolk, Va.
Mrs. J. H. Massey, 2513 Club Blvd., W. Durham, N. C.
W. S. Matthews, R. 2, Jonesboro, N. C.
T. A. Moffitt, Ramseur, N. C.
G. C. Moore, Wentworth, N. C.
John A. Murchison, Liberty, N. C.
Mrs. H. P. Murphy, 203 North Ave., Suffolk, Va.
John Murray, R. 3, Raleigh, N. C.
Rev. C. E. Newman, Virgilina, Va.
E. M. Newman, R. 6, Henderson, N. C.

(Continued on page 15.)

Keep THE SUN Shining
Mail Your Subscription TODAY!

Why not send THE CHRISTIAN SUN to your friends for the ensuing year, and they will be reminded weekly of your thoughtfulness and interest?

THE SUN needs new subscribers badly, and the members of the Christian Church in the South need THE SUN just as badly. You who read the paper keep in touch with your church's activities and interests. Wouldn't it be a wonderful thing if you would help others to become acquainted with the things that you know about?

For your convenience we are printing a blank below. Just fill out this blank and pin your check or a money order for $2, for each subscription you wish sent, and we will do the rest.

As a token of our appreciation of your cooperation, we will advance your own subscription date three months for each yearly subscription you send in.

Of course, if it happens that the person to whom you send the paper is already a subscriber, we will advance their subscription one year, and will notify them that you have paid same.

SUBSCRIPTION BLANK.

December....., 1932.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN,
1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

Dear Sirs:

Please enter the name of.....

City....., State....., R. F. D. or St.....,

on your subscription list for one year. I enclose $.....to pay above subscription and for.....additional ones written on the margin of this blank. Please advance my subscription three months for each of these subscriptions, and send greeting cards to each of these subscribers.

Name

Street or R. F. D.....

City and State.....

My own subscription expires.....

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

ASSOCIATE EDITOR

E. C. GILLETTE

117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla.

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

W. C. WICKER C. REXFORD RAYMOND

S. C. HARRELL ELISHA A. KING

THE PRINCIPLES OF OUR CHURCH.

- (1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
- (2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
- (3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.
- (5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS.

The Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America is this week celebrating the 25th anniversary of its founding. Outstanding leaders of Protestantism are appearing on the two days' program. Among the other distinguished speakers is the President of the United States. The first Federal Council met in Philadelphia just twenty-five years ago and adjourned on December 8th, having in that meeting, "organized to further the movement of unity of action among the Protestant denominations in the interest of spreading the gospel." Our own lamented Dr. W. W. Staley was a charter member of the Council, having attended the first session and all the succeeding sessions held till the time of his death, a little more than a year ago. Dr. Staley believed in the Federal Council, made large contributions to its life and activity, and in return received from it an ever-increasing hope and belief that the churches (Protestantism) would come into closer affiliation and fellowship with each other and present a united front to a united enemy.

The Council in these twenty-five years has more than met the demands and expectations of its organizers and ever-enlarging constituency. The Council has done more than any other organization extant to abolish divisive, competitive denominationalism and break down sectarianism. Largely through the Council a new day of cooperation, of fellowship and of a working unity has dawned. Prior to the founding of the Federal Council, Roman Catholicism had no rival in the field of national and international demands and activities. Since the founding of the Council, Protestantism has been able to make vocal in unison the demands and desires of millions of Christians, and these demands and desires have not gone unheard or unheeded. Team work among the denominations was a thing practically unknown twenty-five years ago. Today twenty-five denominations are working together in the Federal Council under the principle of cooperative activity. Twenty-five years ago there was no world-wide organization of Protestantism, bringing the churches of the nations together. At present there is a world headquarters of Protestantism bringing the national churches into international cooperation in Christian work.

One of the distinct contributions the Council has made is its pastoral and personal evangelism seeking through cooperative effort and interdenominational conferences to deepen the spiritual life and put forth an evangelistic effort unitedly in the leading cities of the nation.

Another distinct feature of the Federal Council contributions has been that of utilizing the radio for the proclamation of the Christian message, not only by the use of outstanding Christian ministers on the Sabbath day, but by a nation-wide network of daily devotions through song and prayer. Through these twenty-five years the Council, working unitedly, has been able to reveal to mankind the best that Protestantism has to offer in the field of Christian Education, sermon and song, social and benevolent service, family worship, evangelism and all other fields of unified and coordinated Christian activity. It may be truly said that after a quarter of a century the Council is no longer an experiment, but a declaration to the world that Protestantism can really be cooperative in its efforts to evangelize a world and Christianize the nations.

Not the least of the contributions the Council has made is that of bringing into closer fellowship denominations that were almost identical and thus paving the way not only for their federation but for their unification in denominational name, purpose and polity.

J. O. A.

THE WEEK OF PRAYER.

A very fitting program and pronouncements have been prepared for the "Week of Prayer for the Churches" throughout the nations, January 8th-13th inclusive. In presenting the program, these words come first: "Grace be unto you and peace from God the Father and from the Lord Jesus Christ." How beautiful and needful such words are now, and above all how peaceful in a time when our nation is on edge and distraught in many directions. We agree further with the opening paragraph of the program: "How better can we usher in the New Year than by united prayer before the Throne of Grace, that our hearts may be cleansed by the inspiration of the Holy Spirit and that we may clearly discern the Truth and receive strength to fulfill the same in all our living?"

The topics for prayer and meditation on each day of the week are world-wide in their scope, and all center about the Gospel as the one hope and saving power of the individual and society. Of course, the program can only offer suggestions, but the suggestions are exceedingly apropos. The hope is that members of various communions will gather in a united service for prayer every evening of the week as an example of Christian unity, talking and meditating together on their spiritual needs and presenting their common petition to our heavenly Father. Or, if a union meeting is not held, possibly then each pastor will hold appropriate services for prayer and meditation in his own church and urge his people to have daily devotion at the family altar, that the spiritual life may be quickened in their home.

All our readers, we think, will agree with this declaration and invitation of the Council:

"It is a time of vast concerns. Great problems face us. We are in a crisis. But the church has had a habit of facing crises. It was so in apostolic times, and every age since then has faced exigencies hard enough and vast enough to snap its sinews, and all but break its heart. But there is standing One before the nations, who says, "All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth." "Lo, I am with you always even unto the end of the world!" He has been victorious in other ages, why not in ours? May this "Week of Prayer" help the church of the living God to consecrate itself to the noblest of all tasks—the following and the imitation of Christ, and the advancement of his kingdom on earth.

J. O. A.

A GOVERNOR BRINGS REPROACH.

The least that can be said of Governor Rolph of California is that he has dishonored the high position to which the people of his State had exalted him. A mob in California, working itself into a state of frenzy, brutally lynched two criminals. According to reports the unbridled brutality of the mob was more characteristic of barbarism than of civilization. The two criminals had kidnapped and killed a citizen, and their crime was in no way condoned. They acknowledged their guilt. Then instead of allowing the courts and the law to proceed in orderly fashion, this fiendish mob proceeded to take matters into its own hands and to present a spectacle, brutal and barbarous beyond description. Then instead of prosecuting leaders of this murderous gang, the Governor of the State boldly proclaims that he congratulates the culprits and declared that if any of them were arrested or convicted, he would pardon them.

There is no excuse for lynching. The demands of justice are not met through frenzy and lawlessness. We have come to a poor day, indeed, if any State has to acknowledge its inability to cope with crime and must resort to the methods of the savage.

The example of the Governor of California presents, indeed, a sorry spectacle to a civilized world.

Two other lynchings the past week are recorded—one in Maryland, another in Missouri. These are also deplorable outbursts of lawlessness and barbarism, but the Governors of these States, at least, made a show of some care for law and order. Mob violence inexcusable, and no State can lay claim to safety and security until lynching is abolished. It is not for man, much less for a maddened mob, to get revenge. "Vengeance is mine; I will repay, saith Jehovah."

J. O. A.

Christianity is not a voice in the wilderness, but a life in the world. It is not an idea in the air but feet on the ground, going God's way. It is not an exotic to be kept under glass, but a hardy plant to bear twelve manner of fruits in all kinds of weather. Nothing we can say to the Lord, no calling him by great or dear names, can take the place of doing his will. We may cry out about the beauty of eating bread with him in his kingdom, but it is wasted breath and a rootless hope, unless we plow and plant in his kingdom here and now. To remember him at his table and forget him at ours, is to have invested in bad securities. There is no substitute for plain everyday goodness.—Selected.

A VISIT TO THE HOLY LAND.

ARTICLE VII.

"THE PALESTINE JESUS KNEW AND LOVED."

By ROY C. HELFENSTEIN.

The cities in the Palestine of yesterday have in many instances been buried and hidden beneath the debris of the centuries. But in recent years archaeologists with spade and shovel have brought again to light those ancient habitations. One of the most interesting experiences any one interested in the Bible or in history can have is to visit the sites of one of those buried cities, which are in truth sarcophagi of ancient civilization, where excavation work is now going on and see the way in which the science of archaeology discloses the life of the past by what it finds of pottery, utensils, implements, records, etc., that are found buried in the ruins of a forgotten past.

Three of the most interesting cities from that long ago that we visited are the ancient cities of Samaria, Tell-Beitnirsim, and Jerash. These cities have been buried from the sight of man for many centuries.

The city of Samaria, built upon the mountain of Samaria was unique for its natural fortification. Here King Omri of Israel built his capital in 875 B. C. His palace has been excavated and again one can walk through its halls and down its steps. Here also Ahab and Jezebel lived and wielded their power for evil in defiance of the one true God. The temple they erected to Baal and their palace witness in the heaps on heaps of ruins now unearthed the age in which they lived. On this same site the ruins of four other cities built in later periods, each upon the ruins of the other are found. It seems almost like a dream to walk among these ruins of such a distant past, realizing that centuries ago Bible characters lived and walked among the same places where we now walk.

Then another most interesting excavation bringing to light the cities of the Palestine of the past is that at Tell-Beit Nirsim where on a historic mountain site ten different cities are found, each of the last nine being built upon the ruins of the preceding city at different dates from the time when the oldest of the ten was builded 2,000 years before Christ. What an experience it was to be with Dr. Allbright of Johns Hopkins University and Dr. Pyle of Pittsburgh Seminary, two of America's greatest archaeologists who are directing the excavation work at that place, and to hear them explain the results of the excavations as we walked through the ruins of those ten ancient cities, seeing the style of their houses in that long ago, walking upon the streets buried from the eyes of man for so many centuries, and studying the many items of interest that had been found in the homes and shops that characterized the life of those ancient peoples.

Someone may ask "How were the cities destroyed and how was another city erected upon the ruins of the one before?" The answer is that the cities may have been destroyed by earthquake or by the invasion of an enemy which was the more likely. The enemy would lay waste the buildings, take the people captive, and leave the ruins of the city to be buried in its own debris or with the sands and dirt carried by the winds. Then a century or more later another people, recognizing the advantage of the site on account of its natural protection because of being on a high hill, and because of a spring of water close by would start to build another city was buried beneath where they were building.

The pottery, the scarabs, records, utensils and implements, etc., secured by these excavations reveal many items that confirm the Biblical records and throw light on many of the references found in the Bible. Archaeology is thus making many discoveries to substantiate the Bible.

These excavations of the cities in the Palestine of yesterday reveal the fact that humanity from its earliest beginning has been actuated by the impulse of self preservation, the first law of life both for individuals and for groups.

It is a hard life we find in Palestine. It has always been so. The extreme poverty of the majority of the people, the primitive conditions found, the extremes and sudden changes in the temperature, the inconveniences in travel and the many almost inaccessible places one should visit that are off the beaten track of the tourist, these and numerous other conditions such as diet, the scarcity of water, etc., make a visit to Palestine a matter of real hardship. But the rewards of such a visit many times more than compensate the hardships experienced. In fact I can think of no country of the eighteen foreign countries I have visited on four crossings of the ocean that can at all compete with Palestine in the spiritual and intellectual rewards offered to the visitor.

To walk along the highways of which the Bible speaks, to climb the mountains to which it refers, to cross the rivers the Bible has immortalized, to visit the towns and the cities and view the landmarks that constitute the setting of the Bible itself, and to visualize the characters that lived and thought and taught and wrought amidst these settings—to see the pageantry of the centuries pass before one's imagination, and actually to see the same landscapes that our Lord looked upon, and to walk over the same hills and along the same shores where he walked, and when weary and tired purchase to sit upon the same rock on which he may have sat when weary from walking—all this gives an inspiration impossible for one to experience anywhere else in the world.

Nor is the inspiration less because there are so few authenticated spots associated with the life of Jesus. Indeed, as I have previously stated, it is better that such spots are few, because this fact makes the whole of Palestine more hallowed on account of the possibility that every spot one sees may have been hallowed by his divine presence. But there are spots which were unquestionably associated with the Master's life. Mary's Well at Nazareth, Jacob's Well at Shechem—from both of which he drank just as pilgrims to Palestine may drink today—are two such spots. At each of these historic wells I not only quenched my thirst, but also bathed my soul in the sacred memory of their association with our Lord.

Though the spots associated with the life of Jesus are few, the places associated with his life are many, such as the Sea of Galilee, the villages around the shores of Galilee and in the Galilee district, the ancient highways, the River Jordan, the city of Jerusalem, and other ancient cities, the Mount of Olives and many other Biblical landmarks. No one can visit Palestine with the open Gospels before him and ever question for a moment the historicity of the life of Jesus.

Palestine today is the same country he knew and loved. The same mountains are there that he knew so well, the same village of Nazareth where he loved to dwell, for even though portions of the old village of his day may be buried forty feet beneath the present village, the same spring on that historic hillside, the only spring in the vicinity which has been used for more than three thousand years by the people of that ancient village, the same spring where the boy Jesus and his mother along with the other mothers and children of the village went each day for their water supply is there still furnishing water for the people who every morning stand in line with their large water pots waiting their turn. And what a picture to see the humble women balancing huge water pots full of water on their heads, and walking away with measured steps and grace befitting a princess.

The same seas and streams by which the Master loved to stroll, the same valleys and plains over which he traveled, the same skies, the same beauty of the gorgeous sunsets that thrilled his heart, the same kind of people that broke his heart, the same human needs that he faced and met—all the local color and the entire setting of the Master's life is there in the Palestine of today.

(N. B.—The next article will be on "Life and Customs in Palestine.")

TAKE COURAGE.

In man's long struggle upward there have been many catastrophes, many setbacks. There have been just as many resurgences. And those resurgences have led always to something better than before prevailed.

It is like the story of the phoenix; that fabled bird of great beauty which lived somewhere in the Arabian wilderness, and at the end of every five hundred years built for itself a funeral pyre, set it aflame with the fanning of its own wings, and was then consumed. No sooner was the old bird reduced to ashes than a new phoenix rose up out of those ashes, for another career in the world.

In all the world's millions of years of history, never yet has something better failed to spring up after every debacle. Were it not for that knowledge, it would be easy just now to be pretty pessimistic. The break-down in morals is appalling. The lack of character threatens to undermine society. Yet there is no great outburst of horror. That is the most dreadful thing about it; that so few appear to be disturbed, or even to sense the gravity of the present crisis.

Yet, if the worst be argued that can be argued (and many pages of that sort of thing, and many volumes, are for your reading); there remains still the fact that the world's story is a story of progress.

Instead of being discouraged by the present state of affairs in the world, we will gird ourselves for a greater, harder struggle. Instead of drifting, we will learn to live with purpose. Instead of acting as if we had no mind, we will teach ourselves to think. We will teach ourselves to think divinely, and to act divinely, even in matters that are small.

We will do what we can, by using in our daily affairs selective and creative choice, to help forward the long development of ourselves and of our fellows to the greatest that is possible.—The Congregationalist.

MILLION TESTAMENTS CAMPAIGN.

A "Back to the Bible" movement is going forward from coast to coast among young people of the United States and Canada. More than 100,000 students have agreed to read the Bible daily, while many hundreds have made the further choice of accepting Christ. A California pastor writes: "We are greatly rejoiced over the results from the Testament distribution. Of the forty-nine cards returned to me so far, twenty-five are first acceptance of Christ. That makes a trifle over fifty per cent on the whole number.

Eight came before the session last Sunday and were received into church membership."

A Kentucky minister writes that the response amounts to a revival. Another pastor sends this remarkable statement: "One interesting thing, noticed by a teacher, was that every Jewish student requested one of the Testaments."

The same enthusiasm is noted in Canada. In high schools girls are meeting at noon and reading aloud by turns.

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

Suffolk churches observed Thanksgiving Day in a very appropriate manner. A union Thanksgiving service was held in Oxford M. E. Church, South, at 10 A. M. Rev. John G. Truitt, pastor of the Christian Church, preached a very inspiring sermon, which was heard with great acceptance by a very large congregation. Another service was held in the Episcopal Church, at 11:00 A. M., in charge of the pastor, Rev. Herbert N. Tucker. From these services many people went out to their homes, or to be guests of others, to enjoy a Thanksgiving dinner. So the day gave many people an opportunity to worship God, to give thanks to him for his great goodness, and to visit relatives and friends. People who have good health, a good appetite, good digestion and a good dinner, on such a glorious day, should be especially thankful to God.

The kitchen table and the dining room may be studied with interest and profit in these days of great human need. Sometime ago, I saw a woman come to the door and throw several cold biscuits out in the street. This woman was not rich. She was depending, at times, upon the charitable organizations of the city for daily food. Her family was small. Her actual needs were not very many. But she made many pitiful pleas for flour from the Red Cross for her family. She threw enough bread in the street that morning to give her family a splendid meal. In contrast to this incident, my wife found a few cold biscuits in the bread box, and from these made some very appetizing cakes for our breakfast. The biscuits in the street were apparently good enough to be used in the same way.

What becomes of the fragments from our American tables? What becomes of the leftovers from our daily meals? It is interesting to look into the city garbage cart even in these days of so-called great human need. Some housewives boast that they never serve anything on their dining room tables but one time. All the leftovers must go to the garbage cart in the city, or to the dogs and pigs in the country. The woman who fills the garbage can from her dining table should reflect upon the example and teaching of Jesus Christ when he fed the five thousand hungry people. Jesus said, "Gather up the fragments that remain that nothing be lost." (John 6:12.) The Scripture is not explicit as to the use made of these fragments, but it is evident that Jesus was insisting that they should be saved and used. These fragments were not the little broken pieces thrown aside by the multitude; they were the pieces not distributed to the crowd.

Think of the good food which is left over from dining rooms and kitchens and thrown out into the garbage can. This constant waste is not conducive to thrift and prosperity. Usually people who are prosperous and thrifty are very careful to see that nothing is wasted. The plan of God, since the dawn of creation, as revealed in the Bible, is to multiply and increase all the material blessings of mankind on the earth. There is no place for waste in the program of God. When food is wasted it is lost. When time is wasted it is lost. When talent is wasted it is lost. When money is wasted it is lost. When life is wasted it is lost. "That nothing be lost."

In these great days of spiritual opportunity the church should wisely inspire its members to set worthy examples of economy, efficiency and the wise use of every blessing God has bestowed upon humanity. Great blessings become a menace unless the recipients are willing to follow the example and leadership of Jesus Christ. Save your fragments of food, your little pieces of money (the change), your physical powers, your talents, your time, and invest your life in the great spiritual program of God; and, if God shall, in his good pleasure, spare you to see another Thanksgiving Day, you will be thankful that you have "gathered up the fragments that remain that nothing be lost."

I. W. JOHNSON.

THANKSGIVING AT ELON.

The College calendar only allows one day, Thanksgiving Day, as a holiday for faculty and students. It has not been the custom for some time, I understand, to hold a service of thanksgiving and praise at the College. It shall be my purpose to plan for such a service next November. The students and faculty members are not privileged to attend the service of Thanksgiving at home or other places. I think it should be the privilege of the Elon College Church and the College itself, to provide such a service, inviting all who will join with us.

This year we did do a very significant thing. We tried to express our thanksgiving in a very practical and helpful way. One of the students, Miss Jenny Bell Abernethy, of Mebane, N. C., suggested that all the students and faculty members boarding at the College do without their breakfast Tuesday morning and take the price of the same over to the Christian Orphanage as the students' Thanksgiving offering to the orphans. The students gladly adopted the suggestion and the price of the meal was taken over by a committee headed by Miss Patricia Holden and presented to Mr. C. D. Johnston, superintendent of the Orphanage. Mr. Johnston expressed to us his gratitude; then, in a letter to Miss Walker, the Dean of Women, and in another letter to me, as president of the College, he expressed his appreciation in a most beautiful way. His letter to me reads as follows:

"I just want to say that of all the offerings that I have received, and all of them have been appreciated, I hardly think I have received one that brought more joy to my heart than the one from the student body of Elon College. Not so much as to the money involved, but the beautiful spirit in which it was given.

"I have asked Mrs. Lambeth to give it some mention in the Greensboro daily and, of course, I will have something to say in my letter to THE SUN.

"I truly hope the giving in such a beautiful spirit by the students, and the Orphanage being the recipient, it will do both institutions good.

"I am so happy that the students have such a kindly feeling toward the Orphanage and we are grateful.

"I am also happy that the College has such a wonderful president, and I am hoping and praying that the people will awake and come to his rescue."

I am sure that no one, faculty or student, suffered or will suffer any ill effects from this act of benevolence made possible by self-denial. I am also sure that every individual member of the Congregational-Christian Churches in the South could easily follow the example of the students without personal injury. The students who are here find it difficult to get spending money and money for College expenses. Since they were willing and did make the sacrifice, it certainly seems that the entire membership of the church, the most of whom are comfortably situated in their homes, could follow the example and forward the price of breakfast to the Christian Orphanage that we may help to feed the unfortunate in this time of need and stress. If you have not taken your Thanksgiving offering for the Orphanage, this is a good plan to follow. You will find that people will gladly cooperate and be happy in making the offering. It may seem a little thing, but with the price of breakfast for more than 30,000 people going into the treasury of the Orphanage, the heart of the superintendent would be greatly rejoiced and everybody would be happy.

L. E. SMITH, President.

A STUDY IN CHURCH FINANCES.

During the year 1931-32 the Eastern North Carolina Conference, as revealed by the Annual, paid on apportionments $474.70 by a membership of 4,851—an average of 9.7 cents a member for the year. During the same conference year the Western North Carolina Conference paid on apportionments $1,080.95 by a membership of 3,960—an average of 27.3 cents a member. During the same year the North Carolina and Virginia Conference paid on apportionments $2,154.49 by a membership of 7,385—an average of 29.1 cents a member.

The apportionment for this year in the Eastern North Carolina Conference was 62 cents a member, in the Western North Carolina Conference it was 58 cents a member, and in the North Carolina and Virginia Conference it was 51 cents a member. It seems from this study that the Conference that had the lowest appropriation paid the highest average per member. At the recent session of the Eastern North Carolina Conference the apportionment was reduced 25 per cent, making the present average in the Conference 47 cents per member. This can be easily paid if the pastors will plan their financial system so that each member will "lay by on the first day of the week" one cent for Conference apportionments. As Rev. J. Lee Johnson said, in his report to the Conference on Stewardship, "too many fail to follow the divine plan in making contributions. We should lay by on the first day of the week rather than on the last day of the year.

There were fourteen churches during the year which is the basis of this study that paid nothing on apportionments, one church averaged $1.14 a member on Conference apportionments, one church averaged 90 cents, two 50c, two 40c, five 30c per member, and the others ranged all the way from one cent per member for the year to 20 cents.

The money raised from the apportionments is used first to pay Convention expenses, second to assist the aged ministers and their widows, in a small way, to meet the necessities of life, and is known as the Superannuation Fund, and third to pay the deficit that remains after all the income from the subscriptions to THE CHRISTIAN SUN has been used up in paying for printing and mailing. This latter item alone amounts annually to about $4,000.00. If the members of the church would subscribe for the paper in sufficient numbers we could save a great deal of this appropriation, but now we have to pay for it out of the appropriations from what is raised by the apportionments paid by the churches to Conference. Every new subscriber to the church paper reduces the amount necessary from the Convention funds for the deficit. After the above obligations are met, if anything is left, the balance goes to the support of Elon College by the action of the Convention in session at Richmond, Va.

It is devoutly hoped that every member of the Eastern North Carolina Conference during the present Conference year will feel enough interest in the Convention, the College, the aged ministers and their widows, THE CHRISTIAN SUN, or all combined, to make regular contributions weekly of at least a penny a week—enough to pay all the apportionments of your church to Conference. It is earnestly hoped that all the pastors in the Conference will set his goal to make his churches banner churches by sending up next fall to the Conference at Piney Plains all that the Conference requests in the apportionments. Now is the time to begin, if we wish to win the goal in the end of the race.

W. C. WICKER, Pres.

THE NAME "CHRISTIAN."

There has been confusion, and there is still confusion, in the minds of many regarding the use of the name "Christian" by our fellowship and the fellowship of the Disciples of Christ. It is only fair to state that the great body of the Disciples of Christ work with us in a fellowship of cooperation, but it must also be said that a group of Disciples of Christ churches centered at Cincinnati, Ohio, have consistently and persistently attempted to make capital of the merger of our churches with the Congregational Churches, and have even sent out emissaries and written many letters to our churches misrepresenting the situation and attempting to lure them away from the union by deceptive means. These letters and messengers to the churches conceal the fact of their identity and they pose as the "Christians." They have made several attempts to swing conferences of our churches, as well as individual churches, from loyalty to the union of Congregational and Christian Churches. Our General Secretary, Dr. Warren H. Denison, was requested to protest to the editor of their paper, which he did, and received a reply which approved this proselyting, and later commended it in his publication. May we repeat that the action of this Cincinnati group of Disciples is not approved by leaders in the Disciples of Christ brotherhood, but the freedom which that church accepts makes it impossible for them to do anything more than register individual disapproval of this attempt to proselyte.

An illustration to the point (and there are many others) is in our Ray's Hill and Southern Pennsylvania Conference, which united as a unit with the Pennsylvania Conference of Congregational and Christian Churches. When this merger was consummated this Cincinnati group sent their representative into that conference, and attempted to not only alienate local churches and pastors, but to take over the name of the Ray's Hill and Southern Pennsylvania Conference. Mr. A. F. Foor, president of that conference, and others protested, and finally took the matter to court. On October 4th, the Court of Common Pleas of Bedford County, Pa., rendered its decision, restraining the Disciples group from using the name in any way.

COPY OF DECREE.

"And now, October 4, 1933, the Court, after due consideration and upon agreement of the parties, grants a perpetual injunction restraining the defendants, and each of them, from advertising, holding or conducting any meetings, gatherings or conferences, or transacting any business, including the collecting of moneys, under the name of 'The Ray's Hill and Southern Pennsylvania Christian Conference,' in any Christian religious church work.

"Defendants to pay costs. No witness costs to be taxed.

"By the Court,

HENRY C. JAMES, P. J.

"The above decision was rendered by the Court of Common Pleas of Bedford County, Pa., by Henry C. James, Presiding Judge, October 4, 1933.

"(Signed) A. F. FOOR, Everett, Pa."

We regret exceedingly the necessity of calling attention to this matter, but several of our conferences and churches in many States are being approached by this group of Disciples and we feel obligated to advise them that the attempt to alienate them from their church fellowship is not inspired or approved by the Disciples of Christ, but by an independent group of that body, and that the attempt to capture our names and loyalties has been passed upon and restrained by a court decree.

HERMON ELDREDGE.

HOPE!

By DORA BYRONS.

Hope is but a candle
 Burning in the sun;
 A tiny flame that weakens
 When daylight troubles come.

Then the evening shadows,
 Dropping, one by one,
 Make the flame seem brighter,
 Until the night is done.

Hope is but a candle,
 Flickering in the sky,
 A feeble light that struggles
 When daytime storms pass by.
 Then the winds of evening,
 Softly, from on high,
 Fan the light to glowing,
 Until the breezes die.

Hope is but a candle
 In Fate's unsteady hand,
 Sometimes a treacherous taper
 We do not understand.
 But still we trust its beacon
 As those in darkness can—
 For Hope is but a candle
 That God has lit for man."

Pomona, Fla.

We will not likely do better tomorrow unless we do our best today.

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5½ inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

- Nos. 61600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges $2.75
- 61603 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, head-band, book-mark $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4¾ x 1¼ inches.

Type in Junior's Bible

2 Take the sum of all the of the children of Is'ra-el, 7 years old and upward, thro

- No. 1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine Bibles $2.95

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5¾ x 3¾ inches.

Specimen of Type

a My soul longeth, yea, even faint-eth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God.	to Mercy and truth thy righteousness: together; righteousness kissed each other.
	xx Truth shall spring

- No. 02112. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6¼ x 4¾ inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, "O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed.	Gen. 15.1.	1
10 For a day in thy courts is better	Ps. 66.1.
	57.1.

- No. 07523x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07523x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x $5.00

OUR LEADER

Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8½ x 5½ x 10/16 inches.

Specimen of Type

8 ¶ Jē-hōi'-ā-chin was 6 years old when he began t

- No. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, leather lined to edge, silk round corners, red under edges, silk

hear

A UNIQUE GIFT BIBLE

With Basket Weave Binding

The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges. With references. Printed on Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible. $5.50

- No. 03255x
- As No. 03255x, with concordance. No. 03276x $6.50

Oxford TEACH les

Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date helps, conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7¼ x 5 x 1¾ inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave; death shall feed on th

- Nos. 04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and handsome Bible $4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Only one inch thick.

- 0778x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary

FOREIGN MISSIONS GO ON.

In spite of every difficulty the number of our foreign missionaries in active service is the same as a year ago, every loss having been replaced; that communicants reported showed a continued gain in spite of the fact of the large transfers to the independent national churches; that church and Sunday School attendance have increased by thousands; that more pages of the Bible and evangelical literature have been printed than the year before; that, thanks to increased self-support, the number of national workers has gained; and that the contributions for the support of the work which have been made on the field have far exceeded the appropriations (for national workers) which have been sent by the church at home.

Foreign missions will go on. Their form may change and the methods and processes of evangelization may alter, but the basis on which the true missionary enterprise of the church rests is impregnable.

More than eighty years ago the immovable grounds of the missionary enterprise were stated in the first Manual of the Board by John C. Lowrie:

1. The origin of the missionary cause in the eternal love and purpose of God.
2. The commandment of our Lord.
3. The example of the primitive church.
4. The benevolent nature of the Christian religion.
5. The spiritual condition of man without the Gospel.
6. The events of providence in our day.
7. The seal of the Holy Spirit.
8. The certainty of final success.

Here we stand on the rock of Christ Jesus, the one and only foundation, and here we build, and all that is built here is to be indestructible and universal . . . We welcome all the signs of the times and the evidence of the progress of the church, but our trust is in God and his promises and his invincible will that his Son is to be Lord of all and that every knee in heaven and on earth and under the earth is to bow to him.

The world-wide work will go on because there is still need for it.

All over the world the hearts of men are discontented with the old satisfactions and are open to hear, whether they will accept or reject, the truth that the Christian Church is to bear. As a South American woman said, rejecting the past, "Soy campo libre—I am a free field."

Let there be no more delay. Let us not be divided and let us not be diverted, by any voice, from the primary task to which our Lord is calling us and for which the world has waited too long. "I am sorry I cannot help you now," said Dr. Henke, of Shuntehfu, to an old blind woman whose sight might have been helped in earlier years. "I cannot help you now; it is too bad that you have come so late. Why did you not come earlier?" And the old woman replied, "Why, doctor, I have been here all the time; it is you who were late."—Robert E. Speer to the Presbyterian General Assembly.

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.

WEEK ENDING DECEMBER 2, 1933.

Sunday Schools.

Previously acknowledged	$ 706.62
Suffolk, Va.	25.00
First Christian, Greensboro, N. C.	17.68
Eure, N. C.	1.00

Pleasant Ridge, Ramseur, N. C.	4.44
Holy Neck, Holland, Va.	4.97
First Christian, Portsmouth, Va.	9.32
Hopewell, Va.	1.00
Lebanon, Semora, N. C.	.76
Ebenezer, Cary, N. C.	1.00
Biscoe, N. C.	2.58
Palm St., Greensboro, N. C.	6.00
Spring Hill, Waverly, Va.	.71
Hank's Chapel, Pittsboro, N. C.	3.00
Turner's Chapel, Sanford, N. C.	1.00
Noon Day, Wedowee, Ala.	2.35
Piney Plains, Raleigh, N. C.	1.00
Ramseur, N. C.	4.00
Shiloh, Ramseur, N. C.	1.00

Total $ 793.43

Individuals and Churches.

Previously acknowledged	$ 620.97
F. O. Leonard, Jonesboro, N. C.	2.00
Christian Light, Varina, N. C.	360
Mrs. W. A. Pierce, Apex, N. C.	2.00

Total $ 628.57

Coin Card Offering.

Previously acknowledged	$ 43.00
F. O. Class, Congregational-Christian Sunday School, Columbus, Ga.	1.00
J. E. Branch's Class, Mt. Hermon Sunday School, Garner, N. C.	1.00
Roanoke Christian Church, Roanoke, Ala.	2.10

Total $ 47.10

Conference Collections.

Western North Carolina Conference (Home Missions)	$ 200.00
---	-----------

Summary.

Previously acknowledged	$ 5,611.73
Sunday Schools, Regular	86.81
Individuals and Churches	7.60
Coin Card Offering	4.10
Conference Collections	200.00

Total to date $ 5,910.24

MISSIONARY REPORT.

Report read before Eastern N. C. Conference.

Following is the financial report of Woman's Missionary Work in the Eastern North Carolina Conference for 1933:

Women's Societies.

Antioch	$ 5.82
Caroleigh	1.00
Catawba Springs	25.00
Chapel Hill	10.00
Christian Light	2.25
Fuller's Chapel	19.70
Henderson	55.00
Liberty (Vance)	100.00
Mt. Auburn	17.05
New Hope	10.00
Piney Plains	30.00
Pleasant Union	6.80
Raleigh	153.10
Sanford	58.50
Shallow Well	60.00
Turner's Chapel	23.69
Wake Chapel	42.80
Youngsville	10.00

$630.71

Young People's Societies.

Henderson	$ 10.00
Sanford	3.00

13.00

Cradle Rolls.

Raleigh	$ 10.00
Sanford	5.50
Turner's Chapel	1.45
Wake Chapel	3.17
	20.12
Total	$ 663.83

The North Carolina Woman's Missionary Conference is made up of three Conferences, the Eastern North Carolina Conference, the Western North Carolina Conference and the North Carolina and Virginia Conference. In the Eastern North Carolina Conference we have 18 Women's Societies, two Young People's Societies and four Cradle Rolls. Total amount raised by all societies in the Eastern North Carolina Conference, $663.83.

The total amount raised by the Western North Carolina Conference was $837.83. The total amount raised by the North Carolina and Virginia Conference was $1,336.42. From the District Meetings, $40.24 and Conference offering, $14.83, making a total for the North Carolina Woman's Missionary Conference of $2,893.15 for 1933.

We see from the financial report that the Eastern North Carolina Conference is not up with the other two Conferences in amount of money raised. I think the reason for that is because the Eastern North Carolina Conference is composed mostly of rural churches, and it is very hard to have organized missionary societies in country churches. Some of the churches are very weak and the members live a great distance apart. It is distressing to know that only about half of the churches in the Eastern North Carolina Conference have missionary societies. By not having missionary societies the women know little of the work we are trying to do. They seem apparently uninterested in mission work, when they should be enrolled in missionary societies. They just seem to think that a missionary society cannot be carried on in a country church. Why do they think this? Some say they live so far apart and others say they cannot get the women of their church interested in missions, and that two or three cannot have a society. But if they could only catch the missionary spirit and see that Christ included each of us when he said, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature," they would see the need of a missionary society and know how much they could help in the mission work with their prayers and means, even if they only had a few members.

The women are waiting for us to help them. And are we, who are members of missionary societies going to sit still and not help our weaker churches organize for mission work and carry on a missionary society? I think if the women only knew about the work they would be more interested and ready to help.

One way of creating more interest in missions in the country churches is through the pastors. The success of our work is due largely to the pastors through their help and cooperation; and not only to the pastors but to all the women who have labored so faithfully in their missionary societies in helping to carry on the missionary work. Another way to create more interest is through the use of the literature which has been prepared for us free by the Woman's Board and our Mission Secretary, Dr. J. O. Atkinson.

I just wish each one of you could have been present at our North Carolina Woman's Missionary Conference which was held at Turner's Chapel, October 20th. The theme, "We Do Our Part," was carried out in a very interesting and helpful way, thus making the day one of inspiration and joy.

(Continued on page 15.)

"WE DO OUR PART?"

[A layman wrote this letter, of his own accord, to his fellow associates in his church. I have purposely withheld the name of the church and the writer of the letter.—J. O. A.]

My dear Associate Member:

I begin this letter with the earnest request that, although it is a rather long one, you read every word of it—and then if you do not agree with the sentiment expressed, that you read it again, and see if you do not think I am right.

I want you to be assured that this is a purely personal letter—a letter from me to you. It is not a letter from the church, neither is it from any board, organization of the church, nor from me as a member of such board, but a personal letter out of my heart. While it is not a letter from the church, it is about the church, and our mutual interests as members of the church. I would be glad to go and sit down with you and discuss things together. That is not possible, hence I've been prompted to write to you.

I know that some of you think sometimes that I have too much to do with running things at the church. Now, if you are one who thinks so, I wish if I can, to disabuse your mind of that idea, for very surely it is an erroneous idea. All that I am anxious about is, that the things that should be done, are done. I have no desire to do them, I have no desire to receive credit for having them done, but it would delight my heart to remain in the background entirely and let someone else do all that needs to be done, and get all the credit for it—my satisfaction would come in the knowledge of the fact that they were done, and that the church and its interests here were going forward as they should.

I do not claim to more love for, nor more interest in, the church than anyone else, but because of my early and continued connection with it, I do think that I have a right to claim that I have as much interest in it as anyone else could possibly have. So rather than trying to run things I am simply doing all I can to help keep things running.

There is a very popular slogan much in evidence now—"We Do Our Part." You will observe that I have used that as a heading for this communication but that I have added a question mark after it—and that suggests the questions—What is our part, and are we, you and I, really doing our part, or are we leaving some things that we should do, for someone else to do? At this, the beginning of the Fall program, it seems to me that it is a good time for us to stop and take stock of ourselves and see where we are, and why we are where we are.

As it occurs to me, we have one big thing to consider now, and that is cooperation. Cooperation in three phases—cooperation as a church with our pastor, cooperation with each other in the work of the church, and cooperation in our financial problems.

It is to be reasonably expected that not each one of us will agree with everything that he says, nor like at all times just the way he says it, but I am quite sure in my own mind, that if each one of us will practice all that he gives us from the pulpit, we will be twice as good Christians as we are, or have ever been.

Cooperation with each other and in the work of the church if as individual members of the church we will, each one of us, get our consent to confer about our policies and problems and after we have done that, let the decision of the majority be the final decision of all, and each one unite our activities and efforts to put over those plans and policies it will be a very fine thing. So much for cooperating with each other.

Now as to cooperation in work:

There is much work that should be done. There is, for instance, the matter of music. We can't have the best choir, unless we have singers. It has seemed best to make a change in our choir. It is composed largely of our own members, many of whom are not trained singers, but they are loyally doing what they can. Are each of you doing all you can to help the choir? Some of you who are reading this could do just as well as some who are helping. If we had twice as many in the choir as we have, and there is room for that many, it would add very much to the services.

And then there is the problem of the Sunday School—one of the really great problems of the church. There are many ways we can help in that. One way in which everyone can help and help very much, is for each one who possibly can do so, to simply be present each Sunday. And, too, the superintendent is in great need of teachers and other workers. Some of you could help in that way, and be better for doing it. Won't you see the superintendent, and volunteer for any place that he can use you?

There are other things that need doing that probably could be done by smaller, or more restricted groups. For instance, to mention only two: Some months ago it became necessary to dispense with the church secretary. There are probably some who are reading these lines, who are not employed now, if so for only a part of the time, who, for lack of employment, have the time, but do not have the money to contribute as you would like to do, but you could take dictation, or use the typewriter, or be of service in the office of the pastor in helping him to make up working lists, etc., and in that way, by making this contribution of service, render a great help.

The other group I would mention are the mechanics in the various trades. Many little things need adjusting, touching up, or slight repairs needed, that the treasury does not have the funds to pay for. If your funds are short and you cannot contribute as you probably wish to do, this is a cooperative service that would help. If we are tempted to say, "Why should I give my time," if we stop one moment and consider what one group—the choir members—do, the many hours of time they give each week, besides being in their places and on time at each service, we might be able to see the matter in a different light, and be more inclined to help when and wherever we can.

And there is one place where we can all work. That is simply being in our places, and helping to fill the pews at both services every Sunday. If each one of you who gets this letter, together with the members of your family are present next Sunday, the auditorium and balcony will both be full—and I am sure it would thrill our pastor's soul, and spur him on to a degree of enthusiasm he has never experienced before. If each one would do that regularly for every service possible, our church would turn this city "upside down" for Christ.

And last, but not least—no, that is not a mistake—(there is a popular phrase, "Last, but not least," and much used)—but I purposely say, last, but least, is the matter of our finances. I do not say finances are least because I think they are unimportant. They are of great importance, but the matter of life and Christian living, and church attendance are of fundamental and supreme importance. It is so much so that I am sure if the whole membership would be faithful and regular in church attendance our finances would be adequate to meet all our needs. But my faith is not strong enough to believe that every member will do that. I am hoping, and with this communication goes an earnest prayer, that each one of you may give serious and prayerful consideration, and resolve that when it is possible, even at some sacrifice, to be in your place in the services in the future. If there are some who do not come, those of us who do, will have to take care of the expenses and financial needs of the church. Those of us who can must try and do just a little more. And if you are not contributing anything now, won't you please think it over seriously and see if you can't in some way make a weekly contribution, if it is only a small amount each Sunday. It will help very greatly. Please do not think there is anything personal in these suggestions about the contribution, for I do not know the amount of the contribution of a half dozen members of the church, but I do know this: That with the cut we have made in expenses we are not getting quite enough to meet our expenses. If you can't give much, not as much as you have been accustomed to giving, if you stop entirely that will be bad for both you and the church, but if you will give what you can and put it in weekly, it will be helpful to you and to the church.

So, I am pleading with you that first of all—come to the services of the church. If you can, and will contribute, come! If you can, but for any reason satisfactory to yourself and your Lord, you do not contribute, come anyhow! But if you cannot contribute, be sure and come, for you can render a great service by simply being in your place.

These are the sincere sentiments and wishes of one member of this church, who has at heart the best interest, both materially and spiritually, of every other member.

SUBSCRIBERS TO THE CHRISTIAN SUN

These Pens are of standard make, and will give good service. If you are in need of a Fountain Pen, order from us. Postage paid and Pens guaranteed by the manufacturer.
MEN'S PENS—Capitol, $2.00; Mercantile, $2.50; Cardinal, $3.00.

LADIES' PENS, $2.00.

COMBINATION OFFER—To a new subscriber or for renewal, $2.50, either Gentleman's (Capitol) Pen or Ladies' Pen, with guarantee of manufacturer. And to "Sun" subscribers, not in arrears, any Pen at one-fourth off. Address: THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 EAST BROAD STREET, RICHMOND, VIRGINIA

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."

REV. F. C. LESTER, Editor, 505 S. Main St., Norfolk, Va.

AFTER THANKSGIVING—WHAT?

Last week most of you who read these lines sat about your festive board loaded with America's best food, symbolized by turkey and all the fixings, and ate until you were uncomfortable. For a moment you were unaware that up the road a piece were hungry people, or that before night some human being might ravage your garbage can in search of food. You had attended church, given thanks to God, and then for a while you fed on the bounty earth offers in food, fellowship and love. I am glad that you could be so happy. But what comes after Thanksgiving?

Jesus sat with his twelve one night about the feast-table and talked of life and death. James and John were dreaming of the coming kingdom in which they would be next to the King in honor and authority. Peter probably thought of the fishing nets back on the sea of Galilee, and wondered if the markets were good. Doubting Thomas marveled at the Master, and would believe nothing possible which he could not see. Judas Iscariot fingered the silver which he soon would receive from angry enemies as the price of innocent blood. But Jesus gave thanks as he talked of bread and broken bodies that would make men strong.

And when he had given thanks, he gave the bread to them. If they knew not the full meaning of his words, 'twas no fault of his, for even then he was giving his body, mind and soul to redeem them from political intrigue, selfish greed and doubting faith. He told them of a perfect life and a heavenly home, and then offered his broken body and shed blood, in symbol, as the surety of his words. When he had given thanks, he gave himself. And so must we. It is the law of the spiritual realm. Giving thanks demands the giving of self. Gratitude to a person makes one want to fall at the feet of that person and humbly beg for a way to serve.

Then the Master said, "Take, eat." The bounty which we have for body, mind, and soul must be shared with others before we grow to the full measure of manhood. So long as hungry humans live on garbage, whether they get it from alley-cans, magazine stands, book stores, movie parlors, or low-grade church services, we cannot live in peace nor be at our best. "Give ye them to eat," said Jesus to his friends as the thousands were turning from his seaside sermon to search for food in the fish stalls of greedy merchants along the coast of Galilee. And "give ye them to eat," is still his message to those who have given thanks, for even yet there are hungry folk who need food, and faith, and cheer. Pass the bread, even if it means your broken body.

DEFIANCE CHRISTMAS CONFERENCE.

The Ninth Annual Holiday Conference of Youth Leaders of Congregational and Christian Churches will be held at Defiance College, Defiance, Ohio, December 29th to January 1, 1934.

The Key Thoughts which have been suggested are: "If God is your partner, make your plans larger," Dwight L. Moody; "I will go anywhere, provided it be forward," David Livingstone; and "Thy kingdom come, thy will be done," Jesus Christ.

Leaders in associational youth organizations are looking for ways in which to make their work more effective. State groups are seeking guidance. This conference offers an opportunity for such leaders to come together for informal discussion of their own problems and of the great opportunities and challenging tasks facing alert Christian youth today. The primary purpose of the 1933 conference is to seek the right answer to the questions: What is Youth's responsibility in the missionary program of our church today? How may that responsibility be met effectively?

When registration is received, pre-conference material will be sent to each person registering. This will include "A Philosophy of Life that Works," by Walter A. Judd. The opening discussion will center about this very interesting booklet. The program will be informal with small discussion groups, general forums, fun times, personal interviews, "Upper Room" moments of worship, sharing in "housekeeping duties," a few speeches—just to start things going—all planned to help the young people present to work out plans which will be suggestive to any group which wishes to study and adapt them to their own needs. Youth officers will be in charge. Adult counselors will share in the conference.

Two dollars and fifty cents covers cost for lodging three nights, eight meals, Friday evening through Monday morning, and all conference privileges including advance literature and report. To register, send $1.00 with your name to Rev. F. C. Lester, 505 S. Main St., Norfolk, Va. This advance payment will be credited toward your $2.50.

Last year a load of five young people from the South attended this conference, and reported that it was very helpful. Plans are under way for another car to go this year. If you are interested in being one of the passengers, please write to the editor of this page at once.

The young people who attend this conference face frankly their responsibilities as Christians, and this year the emphasis is to be on the Missionary program of the church. They will consider how to make our own discipleship genuine, how to make the church life Christ-like, what can be done for the community, for our economic, political and social life in order to make them Christian, and how the church can reach to the farthest bounds of human habitation with its message. It will be a rare privilege for anyone to share in this conference.

SUPPOSE THE WORLD WERE WITHOUT CHRIST.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC FOR DECEMBER 17.

Scripture: Luke 2:1-7; Eph. 2:11, 12.

Theme: "Confidently Trusting in Him."

Jesus says, "The Kingdom of God is within you"—not in the sky, nor somewhere in the distant future, but here and within us.

Hymns: "Love Divine," "Jesus Saviour, Pilot Me," "Where He Leads."

Prayer Thought: Are we putting trust so confidently in Jesus Christ that we are ready and eager to say, "Where he leads me, I will follow."

A World without Jesus! Have you tried to imagine what it would be like? It need not be a world of barbarians clad in skins, fighting with clubs, knowing no art. For there was art in pagan Rome, dignity and ease in Greece, and noble music and literature among the Jews who knew God as the great Lawgiver and not as the kindly Father of all mankind. Surface culture and refinement, at least for the few, would have continued without the coming of Christ to dwell among men. It is the soul in which the lack of his presence is more surely felt.

Let us now look into human life as we know it with a searching eye, watching for the Christian impulses that shine out even in unexpected places. Then we shall begin to realize what the world might be like if Christ had not come to lead and to heal and to save.

Human leadership before Christ was established on the same basis as in herds of wild beasts; that is, strength and fighting power. Lords, kings, and emperors ruled by force. Nobody seriously thought of letting the people share together in maintaining government. The hope and the aim of popular government were planted in the human mind by the teaching of Christ. The complete success of democracy will come only in that perfect commonwealth in which all love and serve the Lord.

Superstition counted for more than reason in the centuries before Christ came. The people were the subjects of the unseen and mysterious. When the Chinese took a body away for burial, they scattered paper in all directions, believing that the demons would be confused by this litter and lose track of the destination of the funeral procession.

Without Christ there would be no New Testament. What would it mean to us not to have the Beatitudes, the assurance of John 3:16; the Sermon on the Mount, the parables, the story of the resurrection, etc.? All of these writings, including of course, the epistles and the Revelation, would never have been dreamed of if Christ had not come.

When Jesus spoke with kindness, understanding, and assurance to the thief who hung beside him at Golgotha, he was beginning the ministry that Christians have given to the criminal. Christ came and by his influence began the long march of prison-reform.

Christ has stood for education. Practically every one of the older institutions of higher learning was founded as a religious institution, and many had ministers as the first teachers and presidents.

The homes of America are a Christian product. The coming of Christ did much to dignify and beautify home life. Motherhood was made an honor and a blessing. The home became the center of the religious life of the family.

Christ gives ownership of the world to us. In olden times a river made the peoples on opposite sides regard the others as foreigners and enemies. Christ made clear to man that God regards all as his children and that we should be neighbors.

Suppose Christ could be torn from you. Suppose it were possible for you to destroy your every recollection of him. What should you miss most, the church, hymns, the New Testament, the sermons, the Sunday School class or C. E. Society, religious art? By trying to determine what we should miss most that reminds us of Christ and keeps us close to him we shall better appreciate the blessings that now come to us in a Christian community.

Christianity has vitality. It has power to produce the signs of life. It has ability to raise the dead. It wakes to life whatever it touches. It is the resurrection and the life. It manifests this power to the individual. It can visualize and transform decayed and moribund character. It can take a human life imbruted and besotted and impotent, and cast its spell over the wreck until the great transformation takes place, and the soul climbs to its feet emancipated, rejuvenated, with the light of hope and the life of God. —James I. Vance.

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE.

PAUL IN CAESAREA.

LESSON XI—DECEMBER 10, 1933.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Herein do I exercise myself to have a conscience void of offense toward God and man always."—Acts 24:16.

LESSON TEXT: Acts 24:10-23; also Luke 12:4-12.

We left Paul in Ephesus in last Sunday's lesson. We find him in Caesarea in today's lesson. Some dramatic and dangerous experiences had befallen him in between times. In the first place he was involved in an uproar in Ephesus and would probably have fared badly at the hands of a mob if his friends had not got him out of the way. Then he spent three months in Macedonia and Greece before starting for Jerusalem for the Feast of the Passover. Stopping off at Miletus to say farewell to his Ephesian friends, and visiting in Philip's home in Caesarea where warning of what awaited him failed to daunt him, he finally reached Jerusalem, accompanied by some friends and co-workers, and bearing a collection for the church at Jerusalem which he had received from the churches of Europe and Asia. Trouble started as soon as he reached Jerusalem.

In order to show that he did not utterly ignore the law for Jews, he entered into a compact with four men who had taken a vow upon themselves, purifying himself according to the Jewish law, with them, and keeping his vow for seven days according to the agreement. But the Jews simply "saw red" when Paul was around, and they turned upon him in a mad fury that would have soon ended his career if he had not been rescued by the Roman soldiers. As it was he was badly handled. Furthermore a band of Jews banded themselves together under an oath not to eat until they had killed Paul. Paul's nephew overheard the plot, warned Paul, who in turn told the captain of the Roman guard, and as a result Paul under heavy armed escort was taken down to Caesarea for safe-keeping and for trial.

Five days later Ananias, the high priests and the elders, accompanied by Tertullus, an orator, came down from Jerusalem to Caesarea and brought charges against Paul before Felix, the Roman Governor. The lesson as printed today is a part of Paul's answer to those charges. It will be worth while if the readers of these notes will read the story of these events directly from the Bible, as it will give a much better understanding of the lesson.

"They Supposed."

The trouble all started when the Jews supposed that Paul had brought Greeks into the temple, that is into the section of the temple reserved only for Jews, and not accessible to Gentiles. They supposed, they took it for granted. They did not take the trouble to make sure of the facts—they simply supposed and they acted on that blind supposition. All the subsequent trouble grew out of that fact. A lot of trouble in our modern life starts in the same way. People "suppose" too much. They hear some bit of gossip, they learn some bit of scandal, they apparently get some evidence, they suppose that it is true—and they proceed to make trouble.

Before Governors for His Sake.

Christ had warned his followers that they should all be hailed before governors for His sake and it found literal fulfillment in Paul's case—here he stood before Felix, the Governor himself. And as he stood before the Governor and made his defense, he was calm, courteous, careful. One is reminded of Jesus before Pilate as he reads of Paul's attitude toward his accusers.

Not Guilty.

Paul said, "Neither can they prove the things whereof they now accuse me." He had not been in the temple disputing with any man, he had not been inciting the people against the Jewish law or customs either in the synagogue or on the streets of the city. He denied the charges, and they knew that Paul was right.

As has been suggested above there is no foundation for many things that are said against people, and many things that are done. Prejudice, passion, jealousy, envy, are terrible things. One ought to be careful not to allow such things to govern one's actions toward, or words about another.

Guilty.

But Paul says he is guilty of worshipping God, of believing all things that are written in the law and the prophets, and of cherishing faith in the resurrection. It is a great confession of faith, and it deals with some fundamental things. There are so many today who could plead not guilty to these charges. They have ceased to worship God, they do not accept the Bible as the Word of God any more, they do not believe in the resurrection. Such people do not deserve condemnation so much as they deserve pity. How empty and futile life must be for those who do not believe in these things!

A Conscience Void of Offense Toward God and Man.

Paul says he "exercises," he disciplines, himself to live in such a way that he shall always have a clear conscience, both toward God, and toward man. That is a big order. But that is the Christian's primary task. He must keep both his perpendicular and his horizontal relationships in harmony with the spirit of God. The accent should be upon the word "exercise" as well as upon the words "toward God and toward men." A man must keep his conscience sensitive by obeying what his conscience under the influence of the Holy Spirit tells him is right. Conscience must be exercised. It must be developed. It must be obeyed.

Alms to My Nation.

The European and Asian churches were poor, struggling churches, but they were willing to share with the brethren at Jerusalem. They had the true missionary spirit and the true Christ-like spirit.

A More Convenient Season.

Felix later sent for Paul who spoke to him and his wife Drusilla about the "faith in Christ." As Paul reasoned of righteousness, and temperance, and of judgment to come, Felix trembled and said, "When I have a more convenient season, I will call for thee." Men usually say that. But they know that there never will be a more convenient season. Behold now is the accepted time, says God.

That Money Would be Given Him.

Felix was looking for some graft. He thought Paul would give him a bribe to let him go. "He hoped also that money should have been given him of Paul." Our cities, our nation, is cursed in large measure by the curse of this spirit. And there are many who do not respond to the appeal of the gospel because they hope that they can make money by sticking to their present course of conduct. But what shall a man be profited if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.
Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 16-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $4.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 1/4 x 5 3/8 inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3 1/4 x 5 3/8 inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps $2.50

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5 3/8 x 8 1/2 inches and 1 3/8 inches Thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With Concise Bible Dictionary, combined Concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Lavanant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold $4.75

RED-LETTER EDITION.

With All the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands; title stamped on side and back in pure gold $3.25

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations; special book for Sunday Schools 95c

Any of the above Bibles sent postpaid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN
1536 East Broad Street Richmond, Virginia

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy

MONDAY.

IS THERE A DEVIL?

Men don't believe in a devil now,
As their fathers used to do;
They've forced the door of the broadest creed
To let his majesty through;
There isn't a print of his cloven foot,
As a roaring lion now;
To be found in earth or air today,
For the world has voted so.

But who is mixing the fatal draught
That palsies heart and brain.
And loads the earth each passing year
With ten hundred thousand slain?
Who blights the bloom of the land today?
With the fiery breath of hell.
If the devil isn't and never was,
Won't somebody rise and tell?

Who dogs the steps of the toiling saint?
And digs the pits for his feet?
Who sows the tares in the field of time,
Wherever God sows his wheat?
The devil is voted not to be,
And of course the thing is true;
But who is doing the kind of work
That the devil alone should do?

We are told he does not go about
Or a fiery dart from his brow,
But whom shall we hold responsible
For the everlasting row
To be heard in the home, in church, in state,
To the earth's remotest bound,
If the devil, by a unanimous vote,
Is nowhere to be found?

Won't somebody step to the front forthwith,
And make his bow and show
How the frauds and the crimes of the day spring up,
For surely we want to know.
The devil was fairly voted out,
And, of course, the devil is gone;
But simple people would like to know
Who carries his business on!

—Archbishop Trench.

TUESDAY.

THE HOME AND HUMANITY.

"Train up a child in the way he should go and when he is old he will not depart from it."—Prov. 22:6.

"The mercy of the Lord is from everlasting to everlasting upon them that fear him, and his righteousness unto children's children."—Psalm 103:17.

In marriage and the begetting of children, God asks a young man and a young woman to climb to the top of experience and create a tabernacle of a human being into whom he would blow the breath of life and make a man.

Suppose every child were born under this influence and with this sort of holy dedication by its parents, what a great world would come soon!

It is said that the home has a child fifty thousand hours from its birth to the age of fifteen. This is nine times as much as the school, the church or anything else has him. Is there any question as to where the responsibility of the training of the child is placed? The home is the sanctified agency for training children to be upright Christian men and women and any young married couple lacking this is in danger of putting married life on the rocks and contributing to human downfall.

We would not think of bringing an untrained nurse to the desperately sick. In fact we require training in everything, except in the greatest work of the world, that of training children. To train children right requires loving and intelligent motherhood and fatherhood, intelligent nursing which not only cares for the child but guards it against the evil one, and an education that comprehends the purpose of man in his relation to a better world.

Prayer—Our Father, we pray thee to rededicate our lives and those of our home to do thy bidding. Studying daily to show ourselves approved of God, living in a way not to be ashamed either in the life that now is and in that to come. In Christ's name, we ask it.—Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

THE NEARNESS OF THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

"The Kingdom of God is at hand."—Mark 1:14, 15.

It appears that the people who heard John and Jesus preach, understood their reference to the "Coming of the Kingdom of God" as the fulfillment of the prophecy regarding the end of time as it was and the ushering in of a new day when Christ, the Messiah, would rule and the devil would be cast out. Even the Disciples felt this way about it, clear through until the Resurrection.

But from that time until now God's people have been learning more and more that "The Kingdom of God" is a sphere in which the will of God, as an ethical power, is recognized and obeyed. It is the reign of righteousness. It is inward, spiritual, invisible, goodness struggling towards outward expression, in the glorious hope that one day the outward and the inward shall correspond. Thus it may be said to be the turning of the heart from sin and dedicating the life in loyalty and devotion to him, and is perfected when his "will is done on earth as it is in heaven."

How close is the Kingdom of God to us? The question is, how much of it is in us? If the Kingdom is in our heart, sin cannot be there.

Prayer—O Lord our God, thou who forgivest all iniquities and health all diseases, forgive us and heal us, and fill us with thy spirit, today and forever.—Amen.

THURSDAY.

WHY MAN NEEDS RELIGION.

"Build up yourselves on your most holy faith, praying in the Holy Spirit, keep yourselves in the love of God."—Jude 20:21.

Religion embraces the highest ideals known to man. Without it these ideals would perish. No secular organization preaches salvation from sin. Religion (the church) is the only one saying, "Jesus saves to the utmost."

The finest investment in the world is a dedicated life to righteousness. W. C. Pearce, forty-five years ago, was a lawyer in Chicago. He decided to put his life in the church. He did and became general secretary of the International Sunday School Association, with an influence for God all over the world. He died, having contributed a life to the Kingdom of God, came to man, and beloved by the church of God all over the world.

Prayer—Our Father, we have not much to offer thee, but we have a life, and we can give this. Help thou our feebleness, for Jesus sake.—Amen.

FRIDAY.

SIMPLE, ISN'T IT?

"If ye then, being evil, knew how to give the good gifts unto your children, how much more shall your heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to them that ask him?"—Luke 11:13.

In this passage Jesus reminds his hearers of the inconsistency of their lives as found in their goodness to themselves and their attitude toward God. He tells them that human nature is confessedly selfish, yet men are not so exclusively devoted to themselves and to their own interests as not to provide for their offspring. Yet, in their attitude toward God they are not willing to trust the Supremely Benevolent Being who as the heavenly Father will supply all their needs.

Giving to those we love is a necessary part of our happiness, one might almost say of our humanity. It is inconceivable that it could be otherwise. There is great blessing in giving. There is nothing in all human experience so free from the taint of this world as those holy moments when one has been made happy by an untainted gift. It is a vision of the majesty of God.

Prayer—Our Father, as all contemplate life, loved ones, and thee, our Father and our God, the proof of the value of prayer looms into our souls. We pray this day for a share in thy pure life and that thou wouldst make us witnesses of thee in this life, interpreting and representing thee, the all-bounteous creator. This we ask for Jesus sake.—Amen.

SATURDAY.

THE "ART" VICTIMS.

"Ye both know me, and know whence I am."—Read John 7:25-36.

A large number of wealthy persons, of art dealers, and also of art museums, including their directors, have been victimized recently by faked paintings alleged to be by great artists, but really only very clever copies. Valuable pieces of china have also been copied and sold at high prices. Millions of dollars have been made in this way, and the operations of the ring have extended over the country.

The world is full of fakers. One has need to have all one's wits about him if he is buying, and to require the best credentials and proofs in all his dealings. But there is, amid all this knavery, One who never fails, One whose word is truth. And the world is also full of men and women in whom he dwells, who have his spirit. The Christian is buoyed up with all confidence, not only in his Saviour but in other Christians. This is not a world of fakers to him.

Prayer—Dear Lord, we bless thee for thyself. We rejoice in our supreme trust. And we exult also in the truth of thy church. May we be worthy, we pray, of this goodly fellowship into which we have come, and never betray it by a trace of falsehood.—Amen.

AMOS R. WELLS.

SUNDAY.

NEW SAFE WAYS.

"A highway shall be there, and a way."—Read Isa. 35:1-10.

Men are talking now about the necessity of building sidewalks along our State highways, to keep the people out of the way of automobiles, and stop, if possible, the awful slaughter that is now going on. The sidewalks must be kept free from snow in the winter, and must be as good as the roads to walk on, or better, or the people will continue to use roads and to be run over.

"Safety first"—not our own safety, but other people's. Science is making rapid headway. We are growing rich faster than ever before. Amusement in fascinating forms is at everyone's hands. Books and education are within the reach of every child. But are there sidewalks along these highways? Are we providing for safety first? If not, they are instruments of death and not of life.

Prayer—Our Father, may we seek first the kingdom of heaven. May the interests of eternal life stand foremost in our minds. Whatever highways we build, may we build along them the Way of Life.—Amen.

AMOS R. WELLS.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Pastor.

"GOD GAVE THEM UP."

By JOHN G. TRUITT.

Text: Romans 1:24, 26, 28.

These are startling words. And we love to believe they are unusual words: "God gave them up." The very sound of them is that somebody has gone beyond the patience of God.

"God gave them up." What means then this sad refrain coming through the scripture lesson given above? "God is love." And yet "God gave them up." "We are the work of his hands."

It must take considerable to put one beyond the pale and power of God's love. The God who had patience toward a trespassing pair in the Garden of Eden and gave a promise of sure redemption; the God who had love for a sinning Israel and quenched their thirst in Sinai's desert sands;

I. In the first instance they are given over in verse 24, "through the lusts of their own hearts." "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." When a boy or girl begins to covet the things a sinning world has to offer, he or she begins to face about toward that road which leads down to where God himself will give them up.

When a home decides that the voice of the world is more to be desired as authority for their children than the sanctity of the hearthstone, it has opened the door to young feet upon the road that leads to indescribable peril. By that fireside is an old Road Guide—the Bible.

By that fireside is an old altar, hallowed by baby-knees and little prayers since before the days of Hannah's little Samuel. This altar, in many modern homes, may have lost its charm, but it has not lost its power.

II. God gave them up," we are told again in the twenty-sixth verse. In this state of being given up is great punishment. Indeed, it is the punishment. It is not the gnashing of teeth that makes hell hell; it is the outer darkness. Oh, the tragedy, the pity, the awfulness of it all is, "their foolish hearts are darkened." They refuse to see. In their self-conceited blindness they laugh at warning, and to them the Cross—earth's greatest tragedy and heaven's supreme effort in behalf of men—is "to them foolishness," "a stumbling block."

"To the lust of their bodies." But that judgment is nearly two thousand years old. Yes, but it possesses a truth which two thousand years more cannot dim. It is testified to by crowded divorce courts throughout all our land; criminal courts, insane asylums and charity homes are not denying it; and the Word of God says, "the wages of sin is death."

"Who changeth the truth of God into a lie." Very careful technical study of the Bible is a great and worthy thing. It stands the tests and scrutiny of every honest literary analysis. This is to say the original text is inspired of God—and that although a few slight mistakes of a letter or word may occur in our man-made translations, it is still equal to every honest test, and is the eternal, infallible truth from heaven.

"And they worshipped and served the creature more than the Creator, who is blessed forever more. Amen." How busy we often are today striving for the artificialities of life. How we cut off little segments of truth and mould them into a fine sounding theory and enslave ourselves to it instead of worshipping the whole truth—Jesus Christ, our Lord.

"They did not like to retain God in their knowledge." It pained them to retain him. The world will not confess it murdered the Son of God and that it was overcome by his resurrection. Away with such a gory theory as life everlasting. And so they do not retain it, and when they erase the old rugged cross they erase Christ—for he either was as described by the Gospels or he was not at all—and when they erase Christ they erase God—for Christ revealed God. "Neither knoweth any man the Father except the Son, and he to whomsoever the Son will reveal him."

God finally gave them to every sin under heaven and to the wild Satanic joy of absolute abandon in wickedness. This is indescribable. It is beyond our power to portray. It is sheer destruction; it is hopelessly without God; it is the awful and terrible condition of being "given up, given up, given up." Deeper, deeper, deeper into hell's benumbing darkness, when screams of surprise and terror cannot suffice to check feet that are slipping unhesitatingly into that awful midnight abyss of outer darkness, when nothing but God can stay their woeful progress, and even he has "given them up, given them up, given them up."

Are you still in hearing distance of the Father? Can you still feel the tug and pull of conscience? Are you tired of sin? Then turn to him, for through Christ he says: "Behold, I stand at the door and knock. If any man will hear my voice and will open the door, I will come in, and sup with him and he with me." May God bless you as you come. Amen.

COMMUNION WARE. Individual Service.

ALUMINUM.

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A.

- Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses $7.00
Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses 6.75
Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses 6.50
Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10... 2.25
Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10... 2.25
Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim... 1.60

SILVER-PLATED.

The Silver-plated Ware is of the very highest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.

- Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses.$22.00
Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85. 11.00
Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85... 16.00
Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling). $22.00
Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90... 16.00
Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90. 14.00

- Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow Rim... $ 9.00
Bread Plate No. 4—Broad Rim... 9.00
Filler—Silver Lined... 6.00

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street

Richmond, Virginia

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

The Thanksgiving offerings are coming in very nicely. We trust that every church in the Southern Convention will take a part in helping the Orphanage reach its goal of six thousand dollars ($6,000) for its Thanksgiving offering this year. We are grateful for every offering sent to us, whether large or small. If we can raise six thousand dollars for the offering, we will be able to meet the expense account for the year.

The student body of Elon College did a beautiful thing on Thanksgiving morning. It was suggested the day before that the dietitian make a calculation as to the amount breakfast would cost for the student body and that each student do without breakfast and give that amount to the Christian Orphanage as a Thankoffering. Our beloved president, Dr. L. E. Smith, and his family joined in the spirit with the student body and had a part in this most commendable loving gift. The money was appreciated greatly, but the beautiful loving spirit that prompted the sacrifice was appreciated more. It makes us feel just a little nearer dear old Elon than ever before.

This offering by the students gave us a thought. Suppose that the entire membership of the Southern Convention should make a similar sacrifice and count the cost of breakfast at 15 cents each, and gave it to the Christian Orphanage. It would amount to $4,500.00 for our 32,000 members. Each of us would be better off for the sacrifice. It would buy all the clothes for the children for an entire year and more. It would buy all the food for an entire year and more. It would more than bear the expenses of the farm for a year. It would do lots of things, and think, it is just doing without breakfast one time during the year and giving its value, 15 cents each, to the Orphanage.

May the Good Master bless each offering that we received this week and bless each one who had a part.
CHAS. D. JOHNSTON, Supt.

REPORT FOR DECEMBER 7, 1933.

Brought forward $11,088.07

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

Eastern North Carolina Conference:
Damascus	$ 1.60
New Elam	1.00
		2.60
Western North Carolina Conference:
Smithwood	$ 1.00
Zion	1.04
Shiloh	1.00
		3.04
Eastern Virginia Conference:
First, Portsmouth	$ 12.88
Suffolk	25.00
Spring Hill	1.10
		38.98
Valley Virginia Central Conference:
Mayland		3.31
Alabama Conference:
Noon Day		2.35
Special Offerings.
D. C. Owen, gdn for James Brown.	$ 12.50
A. J. Morgan, support Morgan girls	40.00
Team hire	13.50
Damascus S. S. E. N. C. Conference
Birthday Offering50
Ladies' Aid Society, Waverly Christian Church	10.00
W. P. Perry, support Billy Perry.	10.00
Mrs. Rumley, cash item	5.00
		91.50

Thanksgiving Offerings.

North Carolina and Virginia Conference:

Mt. Zion	$ 5.00
Coucord	12.50
Third Ave., Danville	60.43
Pleasant Ridge	6.00
Greensboro, Palm St.	41.00
Berea	25.00
Kallam Grove	3.00
Hebron	6.50
Union, N. C.	38.00
Hopedale	6.67
	203.60

Eastern North Carolina Conference:

Christian Chapel	$ 2.60
Caroleigh	2.16
Eure	8.00
Mt. Gilead	4.05
Sanford	32.62
Liberty Vance	90.15
Turner's Chapel	$8.75
Adult Class No. 1	4.25
	13.00
New Center	5.32
Bethlehem	1.25
Pleasant Cross	14.25
Mt. Carmel	5.72
Flint Hill	4.25
Damascus	10.60
	193.98

Western North Carolina Conference:

Antioch (G)	$ 2.75
Ether	7.00
Randleman	10.82
Hank's Chapel	4.93
Pleasant Grove	3.60
Antioch (R)	1.35
Biscoe	15.75
Spoon's Chapel	4.00
Smithwood	5.30

Union Grove	12.00
Pleasant Hill	19.40
	86.90

Eastern Virginia Conference:

Liberty Spring	$ 33.00
Hopewell	5.75
Oakland	18.00
Holy Neck	54.37
Berea, Norfolk	13.14
Ocean View	12.54
	136.80

Valley Virginia Central Conference:

Winchester	$ 15.25
Mt. Olivet G	15.00
Timber Ridge	10.00
	40.25

Alabama Conference:

Lowell	$ 5.00
Rock Springs	1.25
Pisgah	3.90
Lanett	12.50
Bethany	2.00
New Harmony	1.08
	25.73

Georgia and Alabama Conference:

Columbus Cong.-Christian Church ..	$ 12.00
Northland	4.00
	16.00

Individual Thanksgiviing Offerings.

Mr. C. A. Scott, Graham, N. C. ...	$ 5.00
Two Friends	100.00
Mr and Mrs. Floyd H. Dunn, Lynchburg, Va.	5.00
Mr. Jas. Sloan, Redlands, Calif. ...	100.00
Mrs. K. C. Rountree, Sunbury, N. C.	3.00
Mr. T. W. Trogdon, High Point, N. C.	3.00
Mrs. Dottie Armentrout, Harrison- burg, Va.	10.00

HOLMAN SUPERIOR TEACHERS' BIBLES

Authorized Version—Self-Pronouncing The Best Editions of the World's Best Book

For Adults, Teachers, Preachers, Students, and All Who Would Study the Word of God Intelligently

BOLD BLACK TYPE—COMPACT SIZE 4 1/2 x 6 3/4 INCHES—WILL FIT THE COAT POCKET

Part page specimen of Holman Boldblack Type Bible

ST. MATTHEW, 5. Christ's sermon on the mount.

13 And leaving Naz'a-réth, he came and dwelt in Cá-pér'na-úm, which is upon the sea coast, in the borders of Záb'u-lon and Néph'tha-lim:	A. D. 31.	934 CHAPTER 5.
14 That it might be fulfilled	CHAP. 4.	3 Who are blessed. 13 The disciples called the salt of the earth, and light of the world; Christ's urgeth on them a good example, etc.
	Isa. 9. 1, 2.	AND seeing the multitudes; he went up into a moun-

THIS NEW HOLMAN TEACHERS' BIBLE, Pronouncing Text, Bold Black Type is a PRONOUNCED SUCCESS. The latest Bible with NEW HELPS that are quite comprehensive and consist of an Illustrated Bible Dictionary, Concordance and additional aids all under ONE ALPHABETICAL INDEX. Also Fine Maps on Coated Paper, and a specially prepared BIBLE READING COURSE, intended to stimulate and maintain interest in the Bible. Imported Bible paper is used to improve opacity and keep down bulk. By this means you get the benefit of full Biblical information without the physical discomfort of handling a heavy volume.

STYLES AND PRICES—BIBLE PAPER EDITION

4612. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges.....	$4.00
4636. Same as 4612, with extra leather lined covers.....	4.75
THIN INDIA PAPER EDITION
With Helps as described above. Size 4 1/2 x 6 3/4 inches. One inch in thickness
630X. Egyptian Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings, red under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker.....	7.00
633X. Algerian Morocco, divinity circuit, leather lining to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, extra quality binding.....	8.00

EXTRA LARGE PRINT TEACHERS' BIBLES

Large 8 Vo. Size—8x5 1/2 inches—1600 Pages, including 400 pages of Bible Study Helps

Part Page Specimen of Print

Extra spacing between words and lines makes this Bible very easy to read.

ST. MATTHEW, 5. Christ's sermon on the mount.

15 ^k The land of Záb'u-lon, and the land of Néph'tha-lim, by the way of the sea, beyond Jór'dan, Gal'y-lee of the Gén'tiles;	A. D. 31.	2 And he opened his mouth, and taught them, saying,
	Isa. 9. 1, 2. Isa. 43. 7. Luke 2. 22. Mark 1. 14.	3 ^b Blessed are the poor in spirit: for their's is the kingdom of heaven.

CONTAINING COMPLETE HELPS TO BIBLE STUDY, INCLUDING ALL OF THE FOLLOWING FEATURES
A New Practical Course in Bible Reading, A Treasury of Biblical Information. The most carefully compiled, thorough and attractive form in which valuable Biblical information has ever been prepared. Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary Containing 150 illustrations, concise definitions and textual references on nearly 50,000 subjects. A Practical Comparative Concordance, with nearly 50,000 references. Four Thousand Questions and Answers on the Old and New Testaments. A valuable Help to all Bible Readers.

STYLES AND PRICES

4712. Divinity Circuit (overlapping covers), French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, silk head bands, and silk marker..	$5.00
812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament. Old Testament Passages alluded to by Christ, various prophecies relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above on 4712 and same large Self-Pronouncing type.....	6.00
733X. Holman India Paper, Genuine Morocco, leather lined, silk sewed, divinity circuit, round corners carmine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and helps as above	10.65

All styles sent Postpaid at above prices—Thumb Index 50 cents extra

Mrs. Ben Holden, Louisburg, N. C.	10.00
Mr. H. C. Holt, Selma, N. C.	10.00
Mr. W. E. White, Mebane, N. C.	10.00
Mrs. Mollie Hicks, Norlina, N. C.	1.00
Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Howell, Jacksonville, Fla.	25.00
Mrs. J. L. Barksdale, Sutherland, Va.	1.00
Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Strange, Union Hill, Va.	2.00
F. O. Leonard, Jonesboro, N. C.	1.00
Mrs. R. T. Holder, Washington, D. C.	25.00
Mrs. R. H. Morgan, Durham, N. C.	3.00
Mrs. E. H. Morris, Asheboro, N. C.	5.00
Mrs. Rebecca J. Macklem, Havre de Grace, Md.	5.00
Mr. J. R. Wilkinson, Jeffress, Va.	5.00
Mrs. C. H. Stephenson, Atlanta, Ga.	1.00
Mr. W. N. Reynolds, Winston-Salem, N. C.	500.00
Mr. S. J. Hinsdale, Siler City, N. C.	10.00
Mr. J. A. Dunlap, Biscoe, N. C.	1.00
Mr. R. Y. Spain, Manson N. C.	5.00
<hr/>
	846.00
Total for the week	$ 1,691.04
<hr/>
Grand total	$12,779.11

SUBSCRIPTIONS FOR NOVEMBER.
(Continued from page 3.)

- L. E. Newsom, Lucama, N. C.
- R. C. Norfleet, R. 2, Holland, Va.
- G. C. Oliver, R. 4, Raleigh, N. C.
- Julius Pace, R. 3, Mebane, N. C.
- Mrs. T. A. Parks, 321 Andrews Ave., Henderson, N. C.
- B. G. Partin, R. 1, McCullers, N. C.
- Mrs. M. E. Pharr, R. 2, Andalusia, Ala.
- Mrs. W. A. Pierce, R. 2, Apex, N. C.
- Rev. M. A. Pollard, R. 2, Liberty, N. C.
- Mrs. Arthur J. Powell, R. 2, Ruffin, N. C.
- T. G. Proctor, 209 3rd St., Sanford, N. C.
- Jno. Q. Pugh, R. 1, Franklinville, N. C.
- Mrs. A. E. Ramsey, 225 Clay St., Suffolk, Va.
- J. J. Reynolds, Merry Oaks, N. C.
- Mrs. Alice G. Rhodes, Lakemont, N. Y.
- Capt. F. T. Ricks, Raleigh, N. C.
- Miss Susie Riddick, 416 Ashton Place, Durham, N. C.
- Mrs. J. R. Rightsell, R. 2, Ramseur, N. C.
- L. P. Rippy, R. 1, Wentworth, N. C.
- W. G. Robbins, Randleman, N. C.
- G. E. Rountree, Sunbury, N. C.
- J. P. Rowland, R. 3, Burlington, N. C.
- E. T. Sanders, R. 2, Morrisville, N. C.
- Cyrus Shoffner, Liberty, N. C.
- E. Floyd Showalter, R. 4, Harrisonburg, Va.
- H. V. Simpson, 2304 Spring Garden St., Greensboro, N. C.
- Miss Olive Showalter, R. 4, Harrisonburg, Va.
- Mrs. John S. Sledge, Roanoke, Ala.
- L. H. Smiley, Warrenton, N. C.
- Mrs. Edw. Smith, Clayton, N. C.
- J. A. Stallings, R. 1, Goshen, Ala.
- J. S. Stewart, R. 6, Andalusia, Ala.
- Dr. J. T. Stewart, R. 1, Summerfield, N. C.
- M. G. Stewart, R. 6, Andalusia, Ala.
- Mrs. M. J. Stewart, R. 6, Andalusia, Ala.
- Mrs. J. A. Stout, Sanford, N. C.
- Dr. M. Eugene Street, Glendon, N. C.
- C. S. Swanson, Chipley, Ga.
- Rev. Milo J. Sweet, Elon College, N. C.
- Miss Barbara Tate, Altamahaw, N. C.
- Mrs. Sarah Tate, R. 6, Harrisonburg, Va.
- Mrs. C. C. Thomas, R. 2, Jonesboro, N. C.
- Miss Emma Thomas, R. 1, Haw River, N. C.
- Miss Rosa B. Thomas, Haw River, N. C.
- Miss Lois Tipton, 115 Stewart St., Andalusia, Ala.
- Mrs. J. H. Turner, 127 Montgomery St., Reidsville, N. C.
- Rev. L. T. Underwood, R. 1, Yanceyville, N. C.
- Mrs. L. E. Walker, R. 3, Burlington, N. C.
- Frank Watson, R. 2, Sanford, N. C.
- R. L. Watson, R. 2, Sanford N. C.
- W. L. Welch, R. 1, Bennett, N. C.
- Mrs. J. F. White, R. 1, Kittrell N. C.
- C. R. Wicker, Gibsonville, N. C.
- Martin A. Wicker, 403 Oakwood Ave., Sanford, N. C.
- Mrs. Paul Wicker, 403 McIver St., Sanford, N. C.
- W. H. Wicker, Sanford, N. C.
- J. H. Wilkins, R. 2, Burlington, N. C.

- Mrs. Geo. M. Williams, McCullers, N. C.
- J. W. Wilson, R. 1, Madison, N. C.
- Mrs. Lucy Winn, R. 1, Henderson, N. C.
- M. O. Wrenn, R. 6, Henderson, N. C.
- Rev. T. F. Wright, Sanford, N. C.
- Rev. L. L. Wyrick, Elon College, N. C.
- Mrs. M. A. Yates, 201 1/2 St. James St., Suffolk, Va.
- R. W. York, R. 2, Ramseur, N. C.

The blacksmith heats iron to a white heat to make it ready for molding. The Christian must endure hardships to fit him for opportunities and privileges of his faith. Daily annoyances teach patience, and unless obstacles are overcome there is no progress made. God's promise is to him who overcomes and what a comfort it is to know that, after many hardships, if we steadfastly conquer them. We are to receive the fruits of paradise.—Christian Advocate.

EASTERN N. C. MISSIONARY REPORT.
(Continued from page 8.)

I want you who think you cannot have a society not to give up, but strive onward and remember that the King's business requires haste. We must not give up and say "we can't." Let each strong society do what they can to help keep the weaker societies going and if they would but help in this way, and with the help of the pastors and the literature for our use, there should not be a church in the Eastern North Carolina Conference without a live, active Woman's Missionary Society. Shall we not strive then to make 1934 a year richer in work for our Master than we have done in the past?

MARGARET ALSTON.

Send THE CHRISTIAN SUN for Christmas.

ELON COLLEGE

AN ACCREDITED COLLEGE

of the

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING.

ELON COLLEGE, founded by the Christian Church in 1889, has fully justified the faith and hope of its founders during its 42 years of operation. Its graduates from the four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree, number 980, now living, 122 of whom are in the Christian Ministry and full-time Christian service. The majority of these are members of our own denomination. In addition, 449 are in educational work and are an active influence in the lay leadership of the Christian Church.

THE CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING, and the definite religious atmosphere of the College, provide the very best facilities available for training for religious leadership, and offer the Church its finest opportunity to train the young people of the denomination to assume active leadership both in the ministry and laity of the local churches.

FALL TERM OPENS SEPTEMBER 7th.

Address—

C. M. CANNON, Registrar

Elon College, - - - North Carolina

Home Atmosphere—Reasonable Rates—Clean Athletics—Christian Spirit

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Congregational-Christian Church.

Central Publishing Co., Inc., is complying with the President's Code

BOARD OF EDITORS.

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D. Editor
 E. C. GILLETTE, D. D. Associate
 S. C. HARRELL, D. D. Contributing
 C. R. RAYMOND, D. D. Contributing
 ELISHA A. KING, D. D. Contributing
 W. C. WICKER, D. D. Contributing
 J. T. KERNODLE Managing Editor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Year $2.00
 Six Months 1.00

Trial Subscriptions: Five or more new subscriptions sent in at one time by pastor or president of any church organization, three months for 40c each.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Change of Address: Be sure to give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

All news matter and items to be published in "The Sun" should be addressed to J. O. Atkinson, Editor, Elon College, N. C., and should reach him not later than Friday preceding date of publication. If more convenient, news from Congregational Churches may be sent to E. C. Gillette, Associate Editor, 117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla. Emergency notices will be received at the Richmond Office up until Tuesday of week of publication.

All remittances for subscriptions, renewals, advertising, etc., books for review, and other matters of business should be addressed to J. T. Kernodle, Managing Editor, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

Notices: Obituary and marriage notices, limited to 125 words, published free. All over 125 words, 1c a word, cash with notice. No notices should exceed 250 words.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows date of expiration, and change on label will appear the first or second issue of the month following renewal, provided it was received before the 25th. No other receipt will be sent unless requested. Please notify the Richmond Office if label is not changed as above.

OBITUARIES

ISLEY.

Edward A. Isley was born December 20, 1848, and died November 16, 1933, age 84 years, 10 months and 4 days.

He is survived by the following children: Mrs. J. V. Iugle, Mrs. Minnie Andrews, A. C. Isley, all of Burlington, N. C.; W. F. Isley of Greensboro, N. C.; Robert W. Isley, of Snow Hill, N. C., and W. Gaston, Alfred and Lawrence E. Isley, all of Indianapolis, Ind.

Burial was at Pleasant Hill, where he had long been a member, and was faithful as long as he was able to go.

Burial services were conducted by this writer, assisted by the pastor, Rev. M. A. Pollard. T. J. GREEN.

WHITT.

Miss Virgie Whitt, daughter of Joseph and Carrie Tuck Whitt, died at the home of her parents, near Oxford, N. C., Sunday, September 24, 1933, after an illness of several months. Her body was brought to Virgilina, Va., and buried in the family plot at Union Church Cemetery on Monday, September 25th, and the services were conducted by her pastor, the writer.

Miss Virgie, when a child, professed faith in Christ and united with Union Church, where her membership was at death. Her end was triumphant in the faith. She leaves a father and mother, and eight brothers and sisters.

May the blessed Spirit comfort and guide all in life's duties, and may the family circle be unbroken in the heavenly home. C. E. NEWMAN.

BARRETT.

Aurelius Wellons Barrett, son of the late John Calhoun and Mrs. Annie C. Barrett, was born January 27, 1885, and died September 25, 1933, age 48 years, 7 months and 28 days.

On June 14, 1911, he was united in marriage to Miss Carrie Lee Barrett, and to this union were born 5 children.

Mr. Barrett's illness was long, but was borne with strength and hope for a final recovery, but after all that could be done was done, he was called to his reward.

He proved himself to be a splendid husband, father, son and neighbor and was greatly loved by those knowing him.

He is survived by his mother and wife and five children, Charlotte, Hartwell, Alric, J. W. and Hubert, five brothers and one sister.

The funeral was conducted by the writer ter assisted by Rev. Amos L. Laine, and interment was in the family cemetery.

The floral offering was large and beautiful, and the crowd was large, which bespoke the esteem in which he was held. God bless these that mourn.

C. E. GERRINGER.

PIEDMONT COLLEGE

Located in

"The Blue Ridge Highlands"

FALL TERM BEGINS
 SEPTEMBER 13.

An accredited college with an enviable reputation for superior classroom instruction, and wholesome student life.

Fully recognized and accredited in its home State, and in such neighboring States as North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Tennessee and others. Standard courses leading to the A. B. and B. S. degrees.

Cost for Board, Room and Tuition, including also Entrance, Activity, and Infirmary fees reduced to $273.50 for the College Year. Personal expenses as low as student and parent wish.

All who seek an "A" grade college training for their sons and daughters in an atmosphere of Christian culture, and at minimum cost, are invited to write for the college catalogue and admission blanks.

Address: DEAN J. C. ROGERS,
 DEMOREST, GEORGIA.

Southern Seminary Foundation

(Successor to Atlanta Theological Seminary.)

AFFILIATED WITH

Vanderbilt University

The Foundation and the other Foundations that are affiliated with Vanderbilt University School of Religion comprise the only Interdenominational Theological School in the South. Through this affiliation the students enjoy the rights and privileges of Vanderbilt University.

DEGREES.

Candidates for degrees are required to have completed their college courses.

The degree of Bachelor of Divinity is offered to qualified students who complete the required courses.

Vanderbilt University also offers the degrees of Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy, in accordance with the regulations established in its several departments.

MORE THAN A SCHOOL OF THEOLOGY.

Because of our affiliation with Vanderbilt, our relations with other nearby colleges where our students can take courses without tuition, and the cooperation of the American Red Cross and other social agencies in the city, we prepare students for many types of Christian service.

Come to Nashville, the Educational Center of the South, and prepare for Christian leadership. A Graduate School open to both men and women, with opportunities for self-help.

For information write

WILLIAM JAMES CAMPBELL, President,
 330 BUTTRICK HALL, VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY,
 NASHVILLE, TENN.

SOUTHERN UNION COLLEGE

FRANK E. JENKINS, Acting President.

WINTER QUARTER WILL BEGIN
 NOVEMBER 29th.

* * * *

STRONG FACULTY : STRONG COURSES
 LOW EXPENSES : THOROUGHLY
 CHRISTIAN.

* * * *

The Adult Education Department is growing rapidly, with over 60 already enrolled.

For prospectus and full information, write

DEAN MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD,
 WADLEY, ALABAMA

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Representing the Southeast Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXV.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, DECEMBER 14, 1933.

NUMBER 50.

•• THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY ••

Oxford's 812th Mayor a Woman.—

After having elected 811 men to the post of mayor, the city of Oxford, England, turns to the fairer sex for a leader. Miss Lily Tawney, a member of the board of aldermen was recently chosen to this ancient and honorable position. Miss Tawney is said to be an expert in the field of education, and it is possibly due to this fact that she was given the honor which had for so many years have been exclusively for men.

Haiti Becomes Hispaniola.—

The Island of Haiti, comprising the Republics of Haiti and Santo Domingo, makes its appearance on the new official United States maps and in official publications as Hispaniola. This change is made in accordance with a decision of the United States Geographic Board, and gives back to the second largest island of the West Indies the name bestowed upon it by Columbus when he first discovered it on December 6, 1492. The word Hispaniola is the angelicization of the Spanish La Espanola, or Little Spain.

Future of League of Nations in Balance.—

The future of the world disarmament conference and the League of Nations, as well, will probably be decided in a series of diplomatic exchanges now in full swing in Europe. The chief problems to be settled are Italy's demand for a reformation of the League and a final effort to break the deadlock in which the disarmament conference is held. There seems no alternative to cooperation, but chaos, yet there is continued hesitancy on the part of European countries to cooperate. The vast sums being spent on armaments is one of the greatest deterrents to world recovery at the present time.

Three Stoaways Join Byrd Expedition.—

Three New Zealand youths were discovered in one of the life-boats of Rear Admiral Byrd's flagship, nine hours after it had left Wellington on the last lap to the Antarctic. The boys, all of whom were from Auckland, explained that they had tried to enlist but had been refused. One said that, "We thought we'd like to have a go at the South Pole." To have returned them to port would have cost the expedition an eighteen hour cruise. So they were assigned to deck duty on the already overcrowded vessel, whose complement numbers 95 men, besides a number of dogs and three cows.

Nudist Wedding Reported.—

The Methodist-Protestant Recorder reports the occurrence of a Nudist wedding at a colony near Elsinore, California. It says: "The bride and groom, the minister and the spectators were all completely nude. The bride explained: 'I married this way because I like the simplicity and freedom.' The groom declared that he liked to come out to the colony for the week-ends and 'romp around.' The minister who degraded his high calling by this indecent performance was the Rev. Clarke Irvine, of the Temple of Nature Church, whatever that is. Surely the whole world is going crazy, or the alleged processes of evolution have been reversed."

The Feast of Hanukkah.—

Beginning last Wednesday, the Jews throughout the world began the observance of the Feast of Hanukkah, or the Feast of Dedication. This feast lasts eight days, and is in commemoration of the victory of the Maccabees over their Syrian oppressors. The feast recalls the subjection of the Jews by Antiochus, the king of Syria, and their revolt against Syria under the leadership of Judas Maccabeus, resulting in their independence. The first celebration of the victory was the re-dedication of the temple at Jerusalem. One of the features of the celebration as now observed is the progressive lighting of candles in the home, one being lighted each day of the feast until eight in all have been lighted.

Uncle Sam to Take Inventory.—

The Bureau of the Census and the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce have been supplied with the sum of $5,415,120 with which to begin studying the important facts relative to industry and commerce between the years 1929 and 1933. These various surveys, of which there are five, will cover: First, a census to "find out what has happened to business" during the depression. This is to serve as a basis for adjustments and future planning by individual business firms. Second, a compilation of the number of persons employed, for comparison with numbers employed at other periods. Third, a survey of real property, to ascertain number of vacancies, over-crowding, rent rates, etc. Fourth, an analysis of real estate taxation in the 309 cities with populations of over 30,000. Fifth, preparation of an index of American business houses and the co-ordination of data now duplicated by various departments. All of these may be worth-while objectives, but Mr. Average American will be satisfied with the first assignment, provided the census also tell "how to bring business back" after having found out what has happened to it.

Juveniles in Virginia Jails.—

The law of the Commonwealth of Virginia provides that "Unless the offense is aggravated or the child is of an extremely vicious or unruly disposition, no court, judge or justice shall sentence or commit a child under the age of eighteen to a jail, workhouse or police station." Regardless of this law there were, during the fiscal year 1931-1932, in jail in the State 4,786 juveniles.

Frank W. Hoffer, Associate Professor of Sociology at the University of Virginia, tells us that "the number of children is increasing." He comments that, "Being placed in a jail can in no sense be thought of as a favorable experience for the development of a wholesome personality," and adds that the 4,786 children referred to above "spent over 50,000 days in jail-days of idleness. Over 18 per cent of these children were in jail from 20 to 100 days, 52 per cent were in jail for four days or less, and 105 were in jail for periods longer than three months." One boy stayed in jail for over six months, forgotten by both the judge and the community. While the juvenile court has come to be regarded in many places as a social agency rather than a criminal court, Mr. Hoffer complains that in many sections it is still run as a criminal court. Among crimes laid at the feet of these juvenile offenders are: homicide, rape, robbery, burglary, forgery, arson, and many other crimes of lesser gravity. If Virginia, and the rest of the nation as well, does not want to become overrun by criminals, something must be done to train the underprivileged youth of the land in the ways of righteousness.

Professor Warren of Cornell.—

Possibly no man in the entire country, with the exception of President Roosevelt himself, is playing a greater part in moulding its future monetary system than is Prof. George Frederick Warren of Cornell University, at present the monetary adviser of the President. Dr. Warren was born fifty-nine years ago, on a farm in Clay County, Near Harvard, Nebraska. He graduated from the University of Nebraska in 1897, receiving the degree of Bachelor of Science. He was given his Ph. D. by Cornell in 1905. The next year he married Miss Mary Whitson, of Atglen, Pa., and they are now the parents of three sons and three daughters. The same year he was married he became a member of the faculty of Cornell's agricultural school, and in 1920 became head of the department of economics. The professor's present office is No. 3087 of the Department of Commerce Building in Washington. Dr. Warren's greatest desire, possibly, is to avoid publicity. He refuses interviews and will not make speeches, yet his very silence sounds like thunder. His theories are causing today more agitation than any other one thing in America, and, strangely, some of their bitterest opposition is coming from the Department of Economics at Ithica. Dr. Warren, we are told would rather be known as a "dirt" farmer than as an economist. When at home he lives on a large farm just outside of Ithica. His welcome to this farm usually includes: "Here is the farm, here is the farmer, and here are the facts." These facts include a flock of 3,000 chickens. We suppose the farm is run scientifically.

NOTES-PERSONALS

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

Rev. G. O. Lankford, D. D., writing under recent date, declares that "Florida is great now. Am enjoying the sunshine and the glories of this fine climate." Brother Lankford is improving in health.

Brother C. J. Strickland, of Columbus, Ohio, preaches a powerful sermon in a few lines, printed elsewhere in our columns: "Teach a Dog." Look up Brother Strickland's utterance and meditate a moment on his conclusions.

Rev. T. E. White changes his address from Sanford to Bennett, N. C., having recently moved, with his family, to Bennett to be at the center of a group of six churches which he is to serve as pastor the present conference year.

Rev. T. J. Green has recently moved, with his family, from Ramseur to Elon College, N. C., thus becoming located nearer the field of service which he has accepted for the coming year. We are glad, indeed, to welcome Brother Green back to our community.

Rev. T. Fred Wright, Sanford, N. C., has been called to the Waverly, Va., pastorate, and plans to take up the work there about January 1st. Brother Wright is one of our true, tried and faithful pastors who makes good in any field of service to which he is called. The work in the Waverly pastorate will be safe in his hands, and under the guidance of his cool, calm, consecrated judgment and wisdom.

Rev. D. M. Spence has been called to, and accepted the pastorate of, Salem Chapel, Belew's Creek and Pleasant Ridge Churches, Forsyth and Guilford Counties, N. C., and has moved his residence to Walkertown, N. C., in close proximity to the field he is to serve. These are three of our good rural churches, and Brother Spence has a real opportunity for constructive service, and is a capable, consecrated man for the task.

A group of Elon ministerial students journeyed to Monticello Christian Church last Sunday evening and conducted the vesper service of the Christian Endeavor Society. The boys planned a fine program and carried it out splendidly. All who heard them thoroughly enjoyed the service and expressed a desire that the group might return some time in the future. Our churches would do well to give this group an invitation to hold evening or C. E. services. The group visiting Monticello consisted of Gipson, Kimball, Granger, Burgess, Swain, Parker and Andes.

Rev. Albert Godley, superintendent, World-wide Purity Legion, writing from his home, Tenafly, N. J., November 27th, says: "This is my 87th birthday anniversary, and I am writing pastors and others of their very important part in the mission work of the church, both home and foreign." The booklet of thirty-four pages, entitled "Social Hygiene," is full of fruit for those in need of purity and salvation. Any one sending $1.00 to Brother Godley will receive ten of these booklets for reading and distribution and will find real soul food. Brother Godley declares "there are more souls lost because of impurity than from drinking rum. If pastors do their duty, many of our young men will be saved, homes will be blessed, the church will gain active members and our whole nation will be benefitted."

Many of our wet friends and advocates of repeal have been telling us that what they and the country needed was not prohibition but temperance, and that they, the wets and repealists, were moving in the direction of temperance. Well, they seem to be moving as the following dispatch will indicate: "The scramble for desirable sites for 'liquor stores' in New York City boosted rents and the liquor control board was overrun with applications for permits to sell, which had to be accompanied by authenticated location of the place of business. It is estimated that when business begins there will be 'about 7,000 more hard liquor dispensaries' in the State of New York than in the year before national prohibition'."

Let no one think that the depression has driven the Mission Board out of the field or caused the work to close up, though, of course, decreased incomes have sorely crippled the work. This item from Dr. Merrill, executive secretary, Commission on Missions, tells a story of interest and inspiration: "The work on the field is being continued vitally and effectively. While about 60 missionaries of the American Board have been called home, 560 remain on the staff. While the American Missionary Association has had to drop about 119 teachers, 430 remain. While the Board of Ministerial Relief is giving grants to 28 less men, it still is aiding 457. While the Church Extension Boards have had to reduce their force of pastors by 19, they still have 266 pastors on their aided list. The reduced staff of the Education Society still continues its splendid service to the young people. So with the many-sided activities of our State Conferences."

AMERICA HOLDS UP HER HEAD.

By TIMOTHY THOMAS.

When the slow, but sure, processes of the depression fastened their clutches upon the nation, the pioneer spirit of America exerted itself. The people held up their heads; and while the land is yet in the throes of economic pain and distress, the head up spirit is gradually conquering and will bring us out as the victors in a great struggle.

Veiled in every sorrow, hidden in every misfortune, disguised in every calamity, there is a solace for every wounded heart, a blessing for every victim of misfortune, and a benediction for every subject of calamity.

In the long and eventful years through which we have observed Thanksgiving with increasing devotion and widespread participation, the year 1933 presents the occasion for our greatest Thanksgiving, for—

Our great National Government is faithfully functioning for every man, woman and child.

Our traditional ideals are still emblazoned upon the horizon of the nation.

Human beings are being brought face to face with the fact that each is his brother's keeper.

The doors to our institutions of learning are still wide open, giving to the youth of the land an educational opportunity. Hospitals for the relief of the suffering and the healing of the sick are still functioning.

National leaders are socially minded, thus eliminating the blight of selfishness, while nations of the world are striving for peace.

Prince and pauper strive to feed the hungry, relieve suffering, and instill courage in the hearts of the faint and forlorn.

FRUITS.

The fruit of the Spirit which the Apostle Paul writes of in Galatians 6:22, 23, is not alone the fruit that grows upon the branches; it must be a root crop first, then showing forth upon the branches; then the bloom, and after that the fruit is displayed to the eyes of the world.

The fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace—the divine love that has been begotten in us because of the love that was outpoured on Calvary in the shed blood of our Lord Jesus Christ must be deeply rooted in our hearts before it can show forth as an outward grace. Only as we know the love of Christ in his atoning power can our love be made perfect and entire.

The joy unspeakable and full of glory which the Apostle Paul writes of can and will be buried deep down in our hearts even though outward circumstances are against it, and will show forth in our outward lives so that those around us will have to admit that it is of God. The presence of Christ in our hearts gives us the fullness of joy.

The peace that passeth understanding shall keep our hearts and then our minds through Christ Jesus, for if his peace is in our hearts every thought will be brought into captivity to the obedience of Christ, who will keep us in perfect peace for our minds are stayed on him, because we trust him. In Christ we will have peace, peace flowing like a river; he bequeathed it to those who were his disciples when he talked with them just before he gave himself up to be crucified. It has come down through the ages and we too share in the inheritance.

Love, joy, peace—the primary virtues from which all other virtues emanate. The root of the righteous yieldeth fruit; if the root be holy so are the branches. Rooted and built up in Christ Jesus our Lord we will bring forth fruit unto God; for if these things be in you, and abound, they shall make you that ye shall neither be barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ. W.

MT. BETHEL.

The first Sunday in November, I filled my last appointment at Mt. Bethel Church in Rockingham County. There was a good congregation and a delightful service. I ordained Brother Tickle, a deacon in this church. He is a good man and true. I am sure he will be of great value to the church and Christian life of the community. Rev. T. J. Green is to serve this people the coming year.

When I went to my car I found it loaded with good things to eat. In the pounding was flour, preserves, jelly, sugar, soda, canned fruits and vegetables, spices, dried fruit, coffee, salmon, peanut butter, etc.

They paid full Conference assessments and over the stipulated amount for pastor's salary.

May heaven's richest benedictions attend this people, and use them in accomplishing even greater things in kingdom work.

I shall ever kindly remember this church and community, with a prayer for their happiness and a yearning desire that many more shall be added to this church who shall be eternally saved.

J. W. PATTON.

AN EXPRESSION OF THANKS.

Mrs. Newman and I wish to express our thanks to the churches of this charge for their thoughtfulness during the season of depression when money has been so very scarce among the farmers. The supplies given us for our home have meant much to us. On the first Sunday in October the people of Liberty gave us a nice pounding. Since that time we have been most generously remembered by Mrs. Nannie Bray Dixon, of Nathalie, Va.

C. E. NEWMAN.

DEDICATION OF WILLIAMS CHAPEL, WAYCROSS, GA.

It began with the annual meeting of the South Georgia Association, Friday night, October 28th. It was the climax of three years of progressive ministry in this parish. In October, 1930, our extension boards through Dr. W. Knighton Bloom, began a new type of service in Georgia. Instead of continuing the work with a minister, however good, who could give only a sermon once a month to a church, it was decided to help the churches to find the better way of securing a well trained man who could give all his time to the work of a parish of not more than four churches. In Friendship Parish, in which Williams Chapel is located, it took a full year and more to bring this about. It was done through the faith and work of our extension worker and some faithful service done by the S. S. S. men and women. It resulted finally in the calling to the pastorate of this parish, Rev. Alan Jones who is now well known to readers of this paper, for his activities in changing things through prayer, consecration, loving and being loved, serving and being served have been frequently noted in these pages. With his coming to this field, life began to move in every church. But it was at Williams Chapel (successor to our old Whitehall Church) that the hardest work was found. And it must be said, too, it was here where stirring services moved many to action. Out of it all grew Williams Chapel, as happy a band of people as any community could produce. The new fulfilled the hopes of the old in many ways. The faith of other years fruited in a complete reorganization, new faith, new people, new and larger service and finally in a beautiful new building on a new site in the very heart of the parish.

Here it was that the Association met. For a text the committee selected: "Where there is no vision, the people perish." On this Rev. C. W. Carpenter, our Christian minister and pastor of Ambrose Parish in South Georgia, preached a sermon which cheered and inspired the audience that filled the auditorium and left some to listen from the outside. This service, and in fact all the services of the Association were really a part of the dedication of this new church. The Spirit pointed toward it in every address made, and in moving among the people in an unusual way from the beginning to the end.

Dr. Bloom was present. He conducted the impressive Vesper Communion Service Saturday afternoon and preached the sermon to a crowded church Saturday night. It was said by those who have enjoyed the privilege of hearing him many times before, that here he was at his best. Although at the time he was preaching he should have been obeying his doctor's orders and been resting, yet no one knew except those who knew from close personal contacts, that he was not physically well. The Spirit of God breathed through his soul and through his body, voice and mind to bless that audience as it had never before been touched. Dr. Bloom was almost literally giving his life for the sheep. And they were looking up and being fed. His words may be forgotten, but the power of that service will long linger in the minds of folk who eagerly drank from the cup of life given by his great message.

The dedication service proper took place Sunday morning, October 29th. It began early with the Sunday School which more than filled the building. Here W. P. Williams, M. D., who gave the land on which the church is built, gave an address which was much like a sermon. When the hour came for the church service, literally hundreds were in and about the new building, our only one in South Georgia which is painted a beautiful white. And so far as known, the first time in the history of our churches in South Georgia, the large choir used the processional service, entering and taking places as they sang "Our God, Our Help in Ages Past." It was a new experience for many and as the choir sang the call to worship, "The Lord is in His Holy Temple," the reverence of this rural parish could be felt as the thronging people bowed in silence before him. The invocation was offered by Rev. Daniel Pearson, a retired veteran of our work in Georgia, whose strength of heart and hand is a delight to his host of friends. The act of dedication was led by the pastor. A thrilling historical sketch, filled with thanks to all who had helped, was read by Mrs. Effie Driggers, clerk of the church. Rev. M. J. Sweet, pastor at large, preached the sermon and Dr. Bloom led the congregation in the prayer of dedication. The service closed with benediction and recessional.

Those who are not familiar with our Georgia churches can hardly realize the widespread influence and blessing of such a service as this. From the humblest member to the energetic Sunday School superintendent, the people rejoiced and gave God thanks for his manifold blessings to the children of men. It had been a great service, a milestone not soon to be forgotten.

M. J. SWEET.

MINISTERIAL RELIEF.

A few of our churches took a Christmas offering last year for the relief of our aged and disabled ministers and the needy widows of ministers. This, indeed, seems a most appropriate and fitting thing to do, since at Christmas time we are trying to carry cheer and comfort to the needy and the deserving. Surely, none are more deserving than those who have given their lives during health and vigor, and on meagre salaries, to the cause of their Lord, to the work of the church and for the promotion of righteousness. Then not a few of our ministers have passed away and their widows look to us for relief and some help. The Christmas offering will assist in this good work.

This is in line with the work of the General Council of Congregational and Christian Churches and it may be said in passing that the full amount contributed by the churches will go to our Christian Church superannuates and the widows of superannuates. The Treasurer of this fund here in the South is the editor of THE SUN, J. O. Atkinson, who is also chairman of the Board of Superannuation of the S. C. C. Funds received will be credited, acknowledged and forwarded to the proper source of distribution.

Keep THE SUN Shining
Mail Your Subscription TODAY!

Why not send THE CHRISTIAN SUN to your friends for the ensuing year, and they will be reminded weekly of your thoughtfulness and interest?

THE SUN needs new subscribers badly, and the members of the Christian Church in the South need THE SUN just as badly. You who read the paper keep in touch with your church's activities and interests. Wouldn't it be a wonderful thing if you would help others to become acquainted with the things that you know about?

For your convenience we are printing a blank below. Just fill out this blank and pin your check or a money order for $2, for each subscription you wish sent, and we will do the rest.

As a token of our appreciation of your cooperation, we will advance your own subscription date three months for each yearly subscription you send in.

Of course, if it happens that the person to whom you send the paper is already a subscriber, we will advance their subscription one year, and will notify them that you have paid same.

SUBSCRIPTION BLANK.

December....., 1932.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN,
1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

Dear Sirs:

Please enter the name of.....

City....., State....., R. F. D. or St.....,

on your subscription list for one year. I enclose $......to pay above subscription and for.....additional ones written on the margin of this blank. Please advance my subscription three months for each of these subscriptions, and send greeting cards to each of these subscribers.

Name

Street or R. F. D.....

City and State.....

My own subscription expires.....

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

ASSOCIATE EDITOR

E. C. GILLETTE

117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla.

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

W. C. WICKER C. REXFORD RAYMOND

S. C. HARRELL ELISHA A. KING

THE PRINCIPLES OF OUR CHURCH.

- (1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
- (2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
- (3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.
- (5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

BEGINNING AGAIN.

Sometimes we have to begin all over again, even in our best undertakings. Such seems to be the case with the Christian Missionary Association of the North Carolina and Virginia Conference. This Association was once a going concern, and then an effort was made, seemingly a wise and well directed one, to have the Home Mission Board of the Conference do all the work in the Conference that properly belonged to the Association. However, as the sessions of Conference have come and gone, the un-wisdom of this decision was apparent, and the last session of the Conference, held in November, directed that the Home Mission Committee meet on December 7th, place, Greensboro, N. C., and with those who should be present, to reinstitute the Christian Missionary Association, working in and for the Conference, but not having its sessions as a part of the Conference. Accordingly, at 10 A. M., December 7th, Rev. G. C. Crutchfield, who has been named as chairman of the Home Mission Board, thus becoming the convener of the Association and its temporary president, called the Association to order at date and place given, and requested Rev. J. L. Neese, Palm St. Church, to open the meeting with devotional service. Thus began a day of intense concentration of mind and heart upon the one topic of "Home Missions Within the Conference." Not many members or delegates were present, but any lack of numbers was more than compensated for by the interest and faith of those present. Nine ministers and about that number of laymen composed the gathering, who, working as a committee, sought to lay plans to build upon in the future, especially in the promotion of church building and caring for the weaker churches within the confines of the Conference.

Rev. G. C. Crutchfield was elected president and financial secretary, and charged with the responsibility of securing memberships in the Association and stimulating interest in its work, until the Association shall convene in next annual session with our new church at Winston-Salem, Tuesday, after the first Sunday in December, 1934. Dr. C. H. Rowland was made treasurer of the organization, who, with the president and the other duly constituted officers, became the Executive Committee.

There were many very inspiring addresses made during the day—one especially by Rev. Stanley C. Harrell, D. D., acting secretary of the Association, emphasizing the real need in the Conference as that of a spiritual awakening and a deepening faith. While the country at large is showing politically a determined faith in the power to recover and to go forward materially, the churches are not exercising an equal faith in their ability to recover either financially, morally or spiritually. Their first attempt should be a "recovery act" of real spiritual power, and with such an act in full force, the rest would take care of itself.

Another timely talk was that of Rev. M. T. Sorrell of Danville, addressing the Association on "The Outreach of the Local Church." Bro. Sorrell's contention was and is that one of our troubles is self-contentment, a feeling that the local church is doing about all it can, if it just has regular preaching at the time and place appointed and goes along with its accustomed program. "The church should have a care," the speaker declared, "for reaching out through its laymen to tap the hidden resources of the community, or nearby communities, in finding places that needed service, instituting and leading cottage prayer meetings in localities remote from the church and having seasons and periods of worship through the help of the laymen in the church, in districts and places of need beyond the borders of the church congregation." The speaker convinced his hearers that many local churches were curtailing their own influence by not giving laymen something to do, and asking them to go out in the highways and hedges and either invite those at a distance to come to church, or give them a service through prayer meeting, Sunday School and preaching in their own neighborhood. The address opened up possibilities worthy of consideration by all pastors.

It was stated on the floor of the Association that so far as known not a single church had been organized the past year, or admitted to membership, in either one of the seven Conferences constituting the Southern Convention and numbering more than 30,000 church members. We seem to have lost our dynamic and initiative in the matter of church building or the organization of new congregations.

The Association declared itself ready, willing and anxious to do its part in changing this matter within the bounds of this Conference. It was a great and good day, certainly for those few who were privileged to be present. J. O. A.

THE WESTERN NORTH CAROLINA CONFERENCE.

This Conference met in adjourned session with the church at Biscoe, N. C., on December 4th. The object of the meeting was to consider certain plans and details of the merger of Congregational and Christian Churches proposed by the Executive Committee of the Southern Convention. These recommendations coming to the Executive Committee from the Committee of Ten are the same as those proposed to the other Conferences and are to be presented for consideration to the Convention when it assembles in regular biennial session at Suffolk the first week of May, 1934. The recommendations are published elsewhere in THE SUN this week.

Rev. Stanley C. Harrell, D. D., and Rev. Milo J. Sweet, of the Executive Committee, were both present at the Biscoe meeting and explained the items of the various resolutions. Some favored immediate adoption and gave good reasons for their position; others opposed on the ground that they had had no opportunity of studying the resolutions and understanding just what they meant. This latter argument prevailed, after a timely discussion, and on a rising vote the resolutions were lost. Friendly spirit and good fellowship prevailed, each speaker being content to present his position and each delegate ready and willing to vote his or her conviction, allowing one who differed in opinion and conclusion to have the same right of expression and decision. It was a worthwhile meeting, revealing the deep interest of those who attended in the work and welfare of the church, and manifesting a desire to be led of the Spirit and to pursue the right and wise course, in so far as that course could be made plain. Rev. T. E. White, the newly elected president, presided over the session, and Rev. M. A. Pollard, assistant secretary, recorded the proceedings. At the conclusion of the meeting, a bountiful luncheon was served by church and community, and good will prevailed. We have, in all our fellowship, no people more deeply concerned and loyal to the work and welfare of the church than the membership of our Western Conference. They, with the rest of us, are asking light that we may be guided in the wisest way in all our plans and purposes for the church's welfare. The local church, with its membership, is the foundation on which we build, and unless the foundation is secure the whole building is in danger. J. O. A.

THE CRISIS IN CHARACTER.

In a recent number of Harper's Magazine, James Truslow Adams writes a revealing article on the breakdown of personal character in America. His opening paragraph is arresting:

"Here in America we have talked about 'the depression' until most of us are heartily sick of the topic. However, I have not heard much discussion of the third of the three crises through which we are passing—the economic and political crises and the crisis in character."

The Adams thesis is that it will be comparatively easy to recover from the economic crisis because it is the easiest to understand, it will be possible in brief time to overcome the political crisis, but just how to overcome the crisis in character is not so apparent, and does not seem so easy.

The array of facts given would indicate beyond doubt that our deepest depression, and the one most difficult of correction, is in the field of individual character. It is, indeed, a spectacle, deplorable to behold, that Mr. Adams spreads before the American people in his printed article. What we see in big headlines about gangsters and racketeers, kidnapers and law-breakers are certainly only one side of the picture, and the less significant side. The more destructive agents and individuals have been those in high places, especially of finance. In previous depressions there emerged some individual of finance or banker of "granitelike character, with a willingness to assume responsibility that inspired and compelled confidence. But," declares he, "not one banker in the United States has emerged in these three years of depression who has shown the willingness or the power to lead out of the financial chaos and to restore confidence in personal character and responsibility." We quote again:

"The dishonesty and corruption and the failure of individual bankers is nothing new in the history of depressions and financial crises."

But:

"What is new is that not a single banker has had the ability or strength of character to become a national leader in our present crisis, and the all too many of them have acted like frightened children or boys caught in some dirty act behind the fence."

Adams does not confine his study to bankers, but declares that "the supineness of large numbers of both Houses of Congress has been notorious," and the same, he declares, "applies to State Legislatures." Nor is this all. "If we turn to the press we find the same flabbiness of fiber, when nothing worse." Quoting again, "We have come to expect that a large part of the daily press will deliberately distort news. We used to believe that certain journals would be above such debauchery. Yet one of the most distinguished in the country did not hesitate to publish false statements about certain happenings which had no appeal except sensationalism, and in doing so the paper disregarded the protests of its correspondent on the spot who, like all others who were there, knew the statements to be wholly false."

Not only in those higher up or lower down, but, declares Adams, "in the past dozen years John Doe and Richard Roe (terms for the average man) have had no right to throw stones at those higher up. The terrific stench of the Harding regime, involving the proved criminality of some of the highest officers of the national government, including even a member of the President's Cabinet, made no impression whatever on our smug complacency." And then the saddest and most sorrowful of all, Adams declares, after his array of facts, which seems to warrant his conclusion, "that moral issues appear to have ceased to make the slightest appeal to the ordinary citizen." His facts drive him to declare that "we tend to live for show, for the material things, however nobly we start out on an enterprise, and end by living on the surface of life instead of in its deeps."

However, the distinguished author does not despair. Get his final words:

"It is not a matter of committees and machinery and organization. It can come only from some noble change in the heart of the individual American man or woman, a change which one cannot predict but of which one need not despair."

All of which reminds us that when our Lord was here on earth he did not appeal to courts, to Congresses, or to Parliaments, but gathered about him some individual fishermen, sat on a well or by the seashore, and talked of individual integrity, and appealed to men and women to give their own hearts and lives to righteousness. If we are to recover from the present breakdown in character, there must be found individuals who will hear the Lord's message once more, "Ye must be born again," born to a newness of life, and the way of the eternal verities.

J. O. A.

CHURCH RECORDS.

One of our local newspapers carried a story, recently, about the efforts being put forth by our county judge to gather up marriage certificates. He says that many of these certificates are never returned by officiating ministers, probably through carelessness or oversight. The result is that many marriages are never recorded. Probably there are not a great number, but there should be none.

This leads us to say that all church records are important and should be kept from year to year in proper books or safety deposit drawers. Usually a minister keeps a careful record in a book made purposely for that kind of record. It is exceedingly awkward for any married couple to be told that their marriage has never been recorded. It may make considerable difference, legally, some day. Ministers mean to complete the records, of course. It might be a good idea for a newly married couple to take some personal interest in seeing that the return certificate is returned to the court house.

Records of marriages, baptisms, funerals and all such parish events ought to be recorded. Suitable books are provided for this purpose by denominational headquarters for very reasonable prices. Deacons, trustees and committeemen might well look into the records of their churches and cooperate with the minister in bringing all such matters up to date. It is really much more important than it may seem. Not until some crisis calls for such records do we realize their value.

E. A. K.

EXECUTIVE BOARD RESOLUTIONS TO THE SOUTHERN CONVENTION.

The Executive Board of the Southern Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches met at Elon College, June 6, 1933, in response to the call of the Chairman, Rev. S. C. Harrell, D. D. Other members of the Committee present: Rev. H. S. Hardcastle, Suffolk, Va.; Rev. Milo J. Sweet, Elon College, N. C. The Board adopted the recommendations of the Committee of Ten and instructed the President of the Convention, Dr. Harrell, to present these resolutions to the annual Conferences. The resolutions as adopted by the Committee have, as far as we are advised now, been presented to all the Conferences, the reaction and the decisions of which are to be reported to the Convention which meets in Suffolk the first of next May.

1. A Unified Treasury for the churches of the Southern Convention of Congregational-Christian Churches, and a united administration committee which will care for all the interests of all the work being done by the Christian Church and all the organizations now being supported by the Congregational Churches representing the General Council.

2. That the Christian Conference of the Carolinas and Virginia make provision for Congregational Churches to become members of said Conferences on the same basis as Christian Churches and that the present titles of Conferences in the Carolinas and Virginia be revised so as to include the Congregational Churches, this action being in line with the action of the General Council and the Southern Convention.

3. That the Congregational Churches of the Carolinas and Virginia unite with the Conference in which they naturally fall.

4. Since we understand that plans are already being worked out for the uniting of Congregational and Christian Churches in Georgia and Alabama in separate State Conferences, we recommend that the President of the Southern Convention confer and cooperate with them to the end that the action of the Southern Convention may be put into effect.

5. That in the process of uniting the Congregational and Christian work, we look to organizing the Southern Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches of a self-supporting conference of the General Council.

6. That the Conference of the Congregational Churches of the Carolinas retain its charter organization so as to hold its legal status as legal requirements may demand, but that its meetings be held at the same time and place as those of the Southern Convention and then only for the purpose of satisfying the demands of its legal status.

7. That the Executive Board request that the President of the Convention visit each of the Christian Conferences of the Carolinas and Virginia at their 1933 fall meetings and seek permission to present these or any other recommendations which may come from the Executive Board for the consideration and approval of said Conferences.

8. That the Executive Board recommend that the Boards and Societies interested in the promotion and administering of missions, ministerial relief, education, and church extension, from both the Congregational and Christian groups, get together as soon as may be, and counsel together on methods by which these various phases of the work may be unified.

9. That the results of actions taken by these Conferences with reference to the above recommendations be compiled in a suitable form by the Executive Board which shall present them to the 1934 meeting of the Southern Convention.

Now that delegates have been elected to the Convention from the various Conferences in which these resolutions were considered, it will be quite timely for them to be well weighed and their implications well studied, not only by the members of the forthcoming Convention, but by all and sundry who are interested in the great work of our Congregational-Christian fellowship.

J. O. A.

EVANGELISM.

(Report to Western N. C. Conference.)

We, your Committee on Evangelism, beg to submit the following:

1. We express our thanks to our heavenly Father for the results of the efforts put forth in the field of evangelism during the year.

2. Seeing the great need of the people for Christ and his gospel this day, we pledge ourselves, both pastors and all other Christian workers to put forth a greater effort the coming year to preach and teach the same.

3. That special emphasis be placed upon John 3:3, of the new birth, since there seems to be a letting up on the preaching and teaching of this doctrine. We fear the danger of substituting reformation for regeneration.

4. We are assured that "the gospel of Christ is the power of God unto salvation," and that "we are born not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, by the Word of God which liveth and abideth forever."

5. We recommend that individual evangelism become the great program of the church, for this effort has developed the church of today, occasioned the spiritual growth of the individual, and evidenced the obedience of the disciple to his Lord, who hath commanded us to go into the whole world and "preach the gospel to every creature." "He that is wise winneth souls," and "they that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to righteousness, as the stars forever and ever." We affirm that all wisdom which does not point men to this supreme objective in life, viz., the winning of souls, is both false and fatal.

6. Soul-winning should not be left to the pastor alone, but members of every local church should share with the pastor the responsibility of winning souls to Christ. We fear that far too many church members get so busy with the material things of the church that they forget the one essential thing—the one thing for which Christ died, and for which the church exists, namely: to save and bring men to him, and enlist them in his service.

7. The goal of evangelism is the production of Christ-like character and life in individuals and in society; through moral and spiritual conversion; by faith in and fellowship with God through Jesus Christ, his Son, our Lord and Saviour; through sharing of a brotherhood life transcending all distinctions in the new divine society, the kingdom of God on earth; and through becoming witnesses, in word and life, by the power of the Holy Spirit, of this new life to others.

M. A. POLLARD,
J. M. ALLRED,
D. R. MOFFITT,

Committee.

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

The Twentieth Century Baraca Class of the Suffolk Christian Sunday School, served a banquet in the Fellowship Hall, Friday, December 8th, beginning at 6:30 P. M. The guests of the class included Rev. and Mrs. H. S. Hardcastle, Miss Daisy Nurney, reporter for the Virginian-Pilot, Col. J. E. West, teacher of the Philathea Class, Mr. W. E. MacClenny, teacher of the Junior Baraca Class, all the superintendents and teachers of the Cradle Roll, Beginners, Primary, Junior, Intermediate and Young People's Departments, the deacons of the church, and the Sunday School officers.

More than 200 were present. The banquet was prepared and served by the Junior Philathea Class. The menu included roast turkey with gravy, dressing, cranberry sauce, creamed potatoes, garden peas, hot biscuits, celery, candied yams, coffee, ice cream and cake. Mr. Julian Daughtrey, the efficient president of the class, presided over the banquet and was master of ceremonies. Rev. John G. Truitt, pastor of the church, introduced the guests. Col. E. E. Holland, teacher of the class, delivered the address of welcome. Response to the welcome address by Col. J. E. West. Rev. H. S. Hardcastle brought greetings as a former pastor. Vocal solos and a duet were rendered by Mr. J. M. Megginson and Mr. Hall, accompanied by Mrs. J. M. Megginson, of Norfolk, Va.

The banquet was perhaps the largest of its kind ever given in the Christian Church of Suffolk. For months the class has been engaged in a membership contest. The membership has been doubled and the regular attendance has been correspondingly increased. More than 100 attendance pins were presented to members who have recently been present eight out of ten Sundays in succession. It is an inspiring privilege to meet with them in their regular class sessions, and sit under the eloquent and inspiring messages of their devoted teacher, Col. E. E. Holland. It speaks well of a church and a community when a very busy layman is willing to give his attention and devote a part of his time to the spiritual interests of his fellowmen.

The class has been organized more than thirty years. It has been active and progressive since its organization. On several occasions representatives of this class have visited other Christian Churches and rendered valuable aid in organizing other classes in the rural churches. Bethlehem, Cypress Chapel, Liberty Spring and Oakland Sunday Schools have been assisted very greatly in setting up class organizations, and have a sincere appreciation of the service rendered.

The organized class movement has done much to create a demand for separate classrooms in many churches. A Sunday School may exist in a one-room building, but it cannot do its best work, without some provision for separate classrooms. For the sake of the young people every church school should seek to provide adequate building facilities for the Sunday School. This provision should include some place for social occasions, in the interest of the fellowship of the whole church. Every church should be congratulated, when it is willing to follow the vision and leadership of those who are seeking to develop an increasing interest in the spiritual development of its young people. The Suffolk Church is to be congratulated for its real contribution to the extension of the kingdom of God.

I. W. JOHNSON.

THE CHURCH AND THE COLLEGE.

One of the greatest adventures for progress that the Christian Church of the South has ever made was the founding of an institution of higher education for the youth of the church. This institution was called Elon College. For nearly one-half a century she has been in existence, serving the church and the world unselfishly and efficiently. From her campus have gone efficient men and women into all walks of life. Elon College has projected herself in a most convincing way into the work and fellowship of the church. Wherever you find a group of Christian workers representing the Christian Church, you will find that the leadership of the group has been touched in a very definite way by the training hand of the College. A tabulation will show that 90 per cent of the ministers of the Christian Church in the South are graduates or former students of Elon.

The efforts of Elon College have not been confined to the task of training ministers. A very small per cent of the student body is preparing for the ministry; this has always been the case. In a very definite way the College has touched effectively and beneficially the laity of the church. In almost every congregation in the South you will find Elon College graduates or Elon College students. The Conference officials of all the Conferences in Virginia and Carolina are Elon College graduates or have been connected with the College in some definite way. We have only to look at the present and take a glance over the past forty years to see how definitely the work of the College has influenced the leadership of the church and contributed in a most telling way to her progress.

The College, as most other institutions and business corporations, is in need of assistance. The financial needs of Elon College are of great concern to the church that founded her. On different occasions in the past the College has appealed to the church and in every instance the church has answered her appeal and rendered the necessary assistance. The College is again turning to the church, to every individual church in the Convention for financial assistance.

The Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees has authorized a campaign in behalf of the College for $25,000.00. The Eastern Virginia Conference and the Carolina Conferences have endorsed this campaign and pledged themselves and their churches to undertake to raise the amount asked for. In most instances the local Conference passed resolutions calling upon every local church to raise an amount equal to 50c per member and then commissioned the President of the College to raise an equal amount within the bounds of that Conference by special gifts. This campaign is to begin definitely on January 1st. January 14th is to be observed throughout the church as Elon College Day. The Sunday Schools, organized classes, missionary societies, Ladies' Aid Societies, and the church itself, are all requested to put on Elon College programs stressing the needs, fruits and claims of the College. The College will be glad to furnish suggestions, programs, outlines or materials of any kind upon request. Please feel free to make your wishes known.

I am greatly encouraged by the present drift of public sentiment. Dr. Wm. Jay of Holland, Va., and Mr. Geo. Colclough of Elon College are in the field giving most of their time in behalf of the College. Every report that they make is filled with expressions of interest and good will for the College, which they have gathered from the members of the church and the Alumni in the communities in which they have gone. It has been some time since an adverse criticism has reached from any source. It seems that the church and the public have made up their minds to do something about the evident needs of the College. Will the reader of these lines take a personal interest in the cause of education for the church and begin to consider how he can best do his part in this time of need? Expressions of appreciation and words of confidence are always valuable; efforts in behalf of new students are never lost; contributions to help meet the financial needs of the institution are most acceptable. Certainly there is something you can do that will help your institution. Whatever you can do will be appreciated and mean much at this time. Be certain to use your influence to make Elon College Day a success in your church.

L. E. SMITH, Pres.

MISSIONARY ASSOCIATION MEETS AT SOUTH NORFOLK CHURCH.

The Christian Missionary Association of the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference held its regular annual session at the South Norfolk Christian Church, December 5, 1933. The President, Rev. R. L. House, pastor of the Congregational-Christian Church, Newport News, presided. The song service was led by Mr. W. H. Baker, and the devotional services at the morning session were conducted by Rev. Joseph French, pastor of Berea and Ocean View Christian Churches.

Roll call and collection of dues took up most of the morning session. The amount of money turned in for missionary work was more than $800.00, and while that was less than was raised last year, there were two churches—Rosemont Christian Church and the First Congregational-Christian Church, Newport News—which gave more than they did last year.

The address of the President, Rev. R. L. House, on the subject: "The Spirit of the Pioneer; a Challenge to Our Faith," was a most helpful message, and was enthusiastically received. At the close of his address, the delegates who had previously been given a most hearty welcome by the pastor of the entertaining church, Rev. O. D. Poythress, were directed to the social hall, where a delicious luncheon was served by the ladies of the church.

The afternoon session was featured by a sermon delivered by Rev. R. A. Whitten, pastor of the Portsmouth Christian Church, who had as his subject, "Doors That Are Never Shut," and a closing devotional service conducted by Rev. H. S. Hardcastle, pastor of the Christian Temple.

The Association accepted the invitation to meet next year with the First Christian Church, at Portsmouth.

The following officers were elected to serve the Association for the next twelve months: President, Rev. Robert Lee House, Newport News, Va.; vice-president, Rev. J. E. McCauley, Richmond, Va.; recording secretary, Rev. R. E. Brittle, Suffolk, Va.; financial secretary, Rev. Joe French, Ocean View, Va.; treasurer, B. D. Jones, Holland, Va.

The musical program of the day was made very interesting by a solo rendered by Mrs. Frank Monell, of Portsmouth, and duets by Revs. Morgan and Poythress, Rev. House and W. H. Baker.

The churches which received help from the Association by the adoption of the Committee on Plans were the following: Hopewell; Elm Ave., Portsmouth; Richmond; Ocean View; Newport News; Waverly and South Norfolk.

J. F. MORGAN.

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

We are happy at this Thanksgiving season that so many of our old boys and girls have remembered their old home. Some of the sweetest letters we have received have been from our old boys and girls, telling us what the Christian Orphanage had meant to them and how much they appreciated their old home. One of our boys who has been working for a railroad since he left here, has been out of work all summer, but got back on the pay roll two weeks ago. He wrote me a beautiful letter telling me he had but one dollar in the world and he was mailing that to the Christian Orphanage for a Thanksgiving offering. Said he could not bear the idea of letting Thanksgiving pass without making some contribution to the institution he loved. It is encouraging to us to have the children show their appreciation, if it is in a small way.

We want to appeal to every church that has not taken its Thanksgiving offering to take it and mail it in before January first, as our books close right after the first of the month for the year 1933. If any Sunday School has monthly offerings on hand, please mail them in too. We are making a big effort to reach our goal of $17,000 for the year. We just lack $2,782.89. Will you make some effort to help me reach it? Let everybody make just a small sacrifice to help.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON, Supt.

REPORT FOR DECEMBER 16, 1933.

Brought forward $12,799.11

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

Children who were reared in the Christian Orphanage and have gone out, remember the old home at Thanksgiving:

- Mr. Garner Hilliard, Manson, N. C. . . . $5.00
- Miss Allie Lee Pierce, Raleigh, N. C. . . 5.00
- Mr. Andrew Curling, Norfolk, Va. . . . 5.00
- Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Churchill, Durham, N. C. 2.00
- J. D. and Mabel Andrews, Swepsonville, N. C. 2.00
- Misses Lala and Golda Brady, Durham, N. C. $2.00
- Norwood and Elwood Tilley, Bahama, N. C. 2.00
- Mr. Walter Wicker, Greensboro, N. C. 2.00
- Mr. Coy Franklin, Durham, N. C. . . . 1.00
- Mr. Marvin Franklin, Durham, N. C. . . . 1.00
- Mr. Lee Smith, Durham, N. C. 1.00
- Mr. Frank E. Collier, Burlington, N. C. 1.00
- Mrs. Wade Ledbetter, Gibsonville, N. C. 1.00
- Mr. Hubert Stout, Mebane, N. C. 1.00
- Mr. Alton W. Cooper, Madison, Fla. . . . 1.00
- Miss Lois Rascoe, Reidsville, N. C. . . . 1.00
- Mrs. Huldah Frederick King, Burlington, N. C. 1.00
- Miss Novie Hardee, High Point, N. C. 1.00
- Mr. Earl Cates, Burlington, N. C. 1.00
- Mrs. Emma Morelan Darden, Suffolk, Va. 1.00
- Mrs. Blair Hughes, Elon College, N. C. 1.00
- Mrs. Bettie Farrell Wright, Pittsboro, N. C. 1.00
- Mrs. Eugenia Hilliard Wagoner, Elon College, N. C. 1.00
- Mrs. Pearl Gordon Partin, Raleigh, N. C. 1.00

- Mrs. Nora Watkins Perry, Graham, N. C. 1.00
- Mrs. Kathleen Thomas Smith, Durham, N. C. 1.00
- Mrs. Thelma Thomas Mitchell, Durham, N. C. 1.00
- Mrs. Ethel Rodgers, Burlington, N. C. 1.00
- Miss Mittie Lee Hunter, West Point, Ga. 1.00
- Mr. Burl Morelan, Norfolk, Va. 1.00
- Miss Elizabeth Rowland, Henderson, N. C. 1.00
- Mr. Thomas Woodson, Burlington, N. C. 1.00
- Mrs. Louretha Wall Whisnet, Newton, N. C. 1.00
- A friend 1.00
- Mr. Thomas Walton, Greensboro, N. C. 1.00

52.00

North Carolina and Virginia Conference:

- Bethel $.83
- Union, N. C. 2.36
- Durham 12.87
- Happy Home 2.90

18.96

Western North Carolina Conference:

- Providence Memorial $ 4.92
- Pleasant Hill 3.46
- Flint Hill69
- High Point 1.00
- Liberty 1.14

15.21

Eastern North Carolina Conference:

- Sanford $ 1.00
- Mebane 1.00
- Henderson 3.00

5.00

Eastern Virginia Conference:

- Union, Surry $ 3.00
- Barrett's74
- Liberty S. S. and Classes 7.00
- Berea, Nansemond 5.00

15.74

Valley Virginia Central Conference:

- Linville 4.00

4.00

Alabama Conference:

- Wadley60

.60

(Continued on page 15.)

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5 1/2 inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

- No. 01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges $2.75
- 01603 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, head-band, book-mark $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4 1/2 x 1 1/4 inches.

Type in Junior's Bible
2 Take the sum of all the of the children of Is'ra-el, years old and upward, thro

- No. 1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine $2.95 Bibles

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5 3/4 x 3 3/8 inches.

Specimen of Type

2 My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God. 30 Mercy and truth together; righteousness hath kissed each other. 31 Truth shall sprin

- No. 02112. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6 3/4 x 4 3/8 inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed. 10 For a day in thy courts is better

- No. 07523x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07523x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x $5.00

OUR LEADER

Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8 1/2 x 5 1/2 x 1 5/16 inches.

Specimen of Type

8 9 'Jē-hōi'-ā-chin was 6 years old when he began t

- No. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, leather lined to edge, silk round corners, red under edges, silk

A UNIQUE GIFT BIBLE

With Basket Weave Binding

The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges. With references. Printed on Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible. $5.50

No. 03255x

- As No. 03255x, with concordance. No. 03276x $6.50

Oxford TEACHING Bibles

Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date helps, conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7 1/4 x 5 x 1 3/8 inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave; death shall feed on th

- No. 04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and handsome Bible $4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Only one inch thick.

- 0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary

W. M. B. CODE.

(There are three kinds of codes—good, bad and indifferent—but for our part commend us, first of all, to the code of the Woman's Mission Board of Eastern Virginia as set forth as a preface to their Year Book for 1934. We commend it as a code worth living under by all the Woman's Missionary Societies of our Convention.—SUN'S Editor.):

A few women of faith and vision 20 years ago felt a knock at the door of their hearts—the knock of opportunity, a needy world. The answer to that knock is the Woman's Missionary Conference of Eastern Virginia today.

It was a challenge. During the intervening years our watchword has been forward. We have emphasized new and better organizations, efficiency methods and mergers. When we thought we were well organized, a number of church societies ceased to function. It seemed wise to lower the goal. Under stress and strain we have lost the way—the Divine way of prayer.

The uncounted changes that have taken place throughout the world in these recent years have led to a new valuation of things that are necessary and worth while.

Women around the world today are standing on the threshold of an open door—the door of opportunity—the opportunity to work for the making of a better world.

Amid the calls for service and the calls for self we stand surrounded with opportunities, in the presence of a needy world. Shall we close the door, or shall we choose the companionship of Christ in service?

We must hold fast to what has proven good, but fundamental to understanding is education. Our past accomplishments, the unusual place given to women today, the great need in all areas of life for better understanding should bestir us to larger adventures.

Let us accept the challenge of this new day which the "unfinished task" presents. Let us do our part.

Challenge: "What are we going to do about missions?"

LOOKING TO CHRISTMAS.

Dear Christian Friends:

As we look toward Christmas, we have a yearning in our hearts to make the more unfortunate ones here happy. We have been blessed in many ways. The winter, thus far, has been mild. We have had very little sickness, as compared with last year. But the people in general have found very little income.

We have planned a program that will make every one in our reach happy. Will you help us to make this Christmas a happy one for those we have learned to love here?

We received a nice box of clothing from the Young People's Missionary Society in Lanett, Ala. These will be placed on the Christmas tree.

If you have some clothes laid aside, will you remember that there are those here who would be warm wearing them during the severe winter weather that is so prevalent here?

Should your boy or girl have a doll or other toys discarded, I am sure God would bless their little lives if you mothers and fathers would tell them that out in the mountains some poor boy or girl would enjoy having such a gift for Christmas.

Would you be happy Christmas? Then don't fail to join us in spreading happiness to others. May you have health, love and happiness this Christmas tide.

Sincerely,
REV. AND MRS. R. T. GRISSOM.
Fancy Gap, Va.

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.

WEEK ENDING DECEMBER 9, 1933.

Sunday Schools.

Previously acknowledged	$ 793.43
New Lebanon, Summerfield, N. C.	7.00
Dry Run, Seven Fountains, Va.	2.91
Flint Hill, Star, N. C.40
Smithwood, Liberty, N. C.	1.18
Holland, Va.	5.00
New Hope, Harrisonburg, Va.	3.51
Zion, Sanford, N. C.	1.00
Wakefield, Va.	2.25
Winchester, Va.	4.60
Sanford, N. C.	1.00
Liberty, N. C.	1.81
Linville, Va.	4.50

Total

Individuals and Churches.

Previously acknowledged	$ 628.57
A. R. Flowers, Sims, N. C.	1.00

Total

Specials.

Previously acknowledged	$ 604.30
Burlington S. S., Burlington, N. C.	31.23
Mebane S. S., Mebane, N. C.	1.85

Total

Coin Card Offering.

Previously acknowledged	$ 47.10
Durham S. S., Durham, N. C.	5.00
Rev. & Mrs. R. T. Grissom, Fancy Gap, Va.	2.00

Total

Summary.

Previously acknowledged	$ 5,910.24
Sunday Schools, Regular	35.16
Individuals and Churches	1.00
Specials	33.08
Coin Card Offering	7.00

Total to date

MISSIONARY REPORT.

Following is the report of the Woman's Home and Foreign Mission Board, Eastern Virginia Christian Conference, year ending December 5, 1933:

Women's Societies.

	Members	Offering
Berea, Nansemond	17	$ 101.25
Berea, Norfolk	20	52.35
Bethlehem	45	155.83
Christian Temple	95	427.72
Damascus	30	92.00
Cypress Chapel	18	100.00
Dendron	10	62.00
Elm Avenue	13	40.00
First, Norfolk	15	80.00
First, Portsmouth	20	104.60
First, Richmond	9	50.00
Franklin	43	210.00
Holland	36	205.35
Holy Neck	35	153.00
Hopewell	7	15.00

	Members	Offering
Isle of Wight	15	55.00
Liberty Spring	35	207.16
Mt. Carmel	19	75.00
Newport News	29	75.00
Oakland	15	70.00
Ocean View	7	25.50
Rosemont	30	167.35
Suffolk	125	630.00
South Norfolk	16	75.00
Wakefield	14	57.30
Waverly	13	48.00
Windsor	23	80.00

Totals

Young People's Societies.

Bethlehem	43	$ 108.00
Burton's Grove	21	26.45
Christian Temple	25	35.75
Cypress Chapel	25	51.00
Dendron	15	25.00
First, Norfolk	19	14.26
First, Portsmouth	20	60.00
Franklin	24	75.00
Holland	15	46.00
Holy Neck	16	41.50
Hopewell	6	2.50
Liberty Spring	25	80.00
Mt. Carmel	36	30.00
New Lebanon	20	15.44
Oakland	58	35.00
Rosemont	15	35.00
Suffolk	46	260.00
South Norfolk	14	45.00
Spring Hill	10	20.00
Waverly (S. S. C.)	14	5.60
Windsor	14	8.93

Totals

Junior Societies.

Berea, Nansemond	32	$ 25.00
Bethlehem	14	25.00
Burton's Grove	9	2.20
Christian Temple	45	44.00
Cypress Chapel	12	20.00
First, Norfolk	20	6.37
First, Portsmouth	10	20.00
Franklin	22	60.00
Holland	30	45.00
Holy Neck	25	38.00
Liberty Spring	10	20.00
Mt. Carmel	11	15.00
Newport News	28	20.55
Rosemont	20	15.00
Suffolk	40	65.00
South Norfolk	16	15.00
Windsor	26	11.76
Waverly	11	1.54
Oakland	10	2.69

Totals

Cradle Roll Societies.

Bethlehem	20	$ 4.00
Christian Temple	42	11.00
Cypress Chapel	13	3.00
Damascus	16	1.36
Franklin	8	6.00
First, Norfolk	9	5.32
First, Portsmouth	19	2.00
Holy Neck	12	5.00
Holland	16	6.60
Liberty Spring	20	12.00
Newport News	23	2.00
Oakland	10	2.68
Rosemont	32	7.15
South Norfolk	41	3.00
Suffolk	65	6.20
Windsor	10	2.05

Totals

Rally Offerings.

Norfolk District	$ 13.00
Nansemond, Gates, Franklin District....	13.30
Waverly District	8.00
Total	$ 34.30

Summary.

Women's Societies	$ 3,414.41
Young People's Societies	1,020.43
Juniors	452.11
Cradle Roll	79.36
Rally Offerings	34.30
Gift of Mr. J. M. Darden.....	100.00
Offering Young People's Annual Meeting.	17.23
Offering Woman's Annual Meeting.....	30.16
Grand total	$ 5,148.00
Balance brought forward last year.....	251.14
Total	$ 5,399.14

Disbursements.

Mrs. H. S. Hardeastle, Treas S. C. C.	$ 5,049.00
B. D. Jones, Treasurer C. M. A.	30.00
West & Withers, premium on bond, Treas.	5.00
Printing year books, receipts, letters and programs	44.20
Delegates' expenses to School of Missions, including literature purchased for Board while there	55.00
Officers' expense items and expense Board meetings	87.55
Tax on checks88
Total disbursements	$ 5,271.63
Balance in bank, December 5, 1933....	$ 127.51

Respectfully submitted,

MRS. W. V. LEATHERS, Treas.

This is to certify that according to our records, the balance standing to the credit of the Woman's Home and Foreign Mission Board of the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference, Mrs. W. V. Leathers, Treasurer, at the close of business December 5, 1933, is $127.51.

FARMERS BANK OF NANSEMOND,
Suffolk, Va.

By A. H. HARGRAVE,
Assistant Cashier.

MISSIONARY REPORT.

Following is the annual report of the Treasurer of the North Carolina Woman's Mission Board, for 1933:

Women's Societies.

Antioch	$ 5.82
Burlington	600.51
Carolina	12.82
Caroleigh	1.00
Catawba Springs	25.00
Chapel Hill	10.00
Christian Light	2.25
Danville	6.00
Durham	210.70
Elon College	179.32
Greensboro	236.72
Hank's Chapel	44.73
Haw River	20.00
High Point	6.40
Howard's Chapel	10.00
Fuller's Chapel	19.70
Henderson	55.00
Ingram	11.05
Lebanon	6.85
Liberty (Vance)	100.00
Liberty (Va.)	1.40
Lynchburg	30.00
Monticello	22.00
Mt. Auburn	17.05
Mt. Bethel	10.00
Mt. Zion	10.00

New Lebanon	21.62
New Hope	10.00
Palm St., Greensboro	22.75
Parks Cross Roads	15.00
Pleasant Hill	19.99
Pleasant Grove	25.00
Pleasant Ridge	30.00
Pleasant Union	6.80
Piney Plains	30.00
Providence, Memorial	5.00
Raleigh	153.10
Ramseur	28.91
Reidsville	125.00
Rocky Ford	5.16
Randleman	3.00
Sanford	58.50
Shallow Well	60.00
Turner's Chapel	23.69
Union Ridge	40.00
Virgilina (Union)	50.00
Wake Chapel	42.80
Youngsville	10.00
Graham	20.00
Bethlehem	7.40
Hopedale	10.00
Long's Chapel	5.00
Salem's Chapel	1.00
Total	$ 2,484.04

Young People's Societies.

Bethlehem	$ 3.15
Burlington	25.90
Burlington, Jr.	17.86
Durham	55.00
Greensboro	5.00
Greensboro, Jr.	17.25
Henderson	10.00
Ramseur	10.00
Reidsville	10.00
Sanford	3.00
Total	$ 157.16

Willing Workers.

Burlington	$ 20.87
Durham	40.00
Durham, Jr.	25.00
Elon College	15.00
Reidsville	10.00
Virgilina	1.23
Total	$ 112.10

Cradle Roll.

Burlington	$ 17.66
Durham	25.00
Elon College	15.00
Greensboro	5.00
Raleigh	10.00
Parks Cross Roads	2.00
Sanford	5.50
Turner's Chapel	1.45
Wake Chapel	3.17
Total	$ 84.78

District Meetings.

Alamance	$ 6.15
Durham, Wake	7.86
Vance, Warren	3.51
Halifax	7.05
Randolph	3.04
Lee, Chatham	2.50
Guilford, Rockingham	10.13
Total	$ 40.24
Conference offering	$ 14.83

Summary.

Women's Societies	$ 2,484.04
Young People's Societies	157.16
Willing Workers	112.10
Cradle Roll	84.78
District Meetings	40.24

Offering at Conference.....	14.83
Balance brought forward	7.98
Total	$ 2,901.13

Disbursements, 1933.

1932.
Dec. 13. A. D. Pate Co., receipt books..	$ 4.00
Dec. 13. Mrs. J. P. Barrett, postage....	2.06
Dec. 13. Stamps on checks06
1933.
Jan. 14. Mrs. H. S. Hardeastle, Treas...	462.09
Feb. 14. Mrs. C. H. Rowland, ex. bd. mtg.	2.00
Feb. 15. A. D. Pate Co., 1933 goals....	7.67
Feb. 15. Stamps on checks06
Mar. 31. Mrs. W. R. Sellars, postage....	2.00
Apr. 21. Mrs. H. S. Hardeastle, Treas...	640.42
May 23. Miss Chase, Dist. Mtg. Exp....	6.85
July 14. Mrs. H. S. Hardeastle, Treas...	374.53
Aug. 22. Mrs. W. R. Sellars, postage...	3.00
Aug. 26. Stamps on checks06
Oct. 26. Mrs. C. H. Rowland, post. & exp.	1.50
Oct. 26. Mrs. J. P. Barrett, postage....	1.75
Oct. 26. Mrs. H. S. Hardeastle, Treas...	1,323.20
Total	$ 2,831.25
Balance	5.00
Balance tied up in bank	64.88
Grand total	$ 2,901.13

MRS. W. R. SELLARS, Treas.

Burlington, N. C.

SUBSCRIBERS TO THE CHRISTIAN SUN

These Pens are of standard make, and will give good service. If you are in need of a Fountain Pen, order from us. Postage paid and Pens guaranteed by the manufacturer.

MEN'S PENS—Capitol, $2.50; Mercantile, $2.50; Cardinal, $3.00.

LADIES' PENS, $2.00.

COMBINATION OFFER—To a new subscriber or for renewal, $2.50, either Gentleman's (Capitol) Pen or Ladies' Pen, with guarantee of manufacturer. And to "Sun" subscribers, not in arrears, any Pen at one-fourth off. Address: THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 EAST BROAD STREET, RICHMOND, VIRGINIA

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."

REV. F. C. LESTER, Editor, 505 S. Main St., Norfolk, Va.

CHRISTMAS PROGRAMS.

Christian people are now busy preparing for Christmas, the greatest church festival of the year. This is a happy season, the Merry Christmastide. For a little while we forget the problems of youth and the worries of age and live again in childhood. Children are both seen and heard at Christmas. It is their Holiday.

From field and factory, from politics and pleasure, from home and hovel, from every kind and condition of life, people now turn towards a manger-cradle containing a new-born Babe and present their gifts of gold and love and sacrifice. When they turn again to mountainous tasks, or journeys afar, they sing as they go, and marvel at the Gift from above.

Surely no Christian Church can be neglectful of the possibilities of Christmas time. Human hearts are hungry for the things that Christmas brings. The church is the sole interpreter of the message of God spoke to the world in Bethlehem long ago.

Young people should be sure that proper programs are prepared in their church so that all groups in the community will be included in the joy of the Birthday of Jesus. The children must have the central place, but young people and adults must not be left out. The aged, the infirm, the sick, the lonely need your kindly ministry of song and story as well as your gifts of food and fellowship. Don't let them be disappointed.

Read again the marvelous stories of Christ's birth as told by Saints Matthew and Luke. Sing all the carols that you can find. Meditate on what Christmas means, and can mean. Let the holy joy of it flood your own soul. Then join with your friends in radiating Christmas cheer to all in your community. Be sure that the program in your church is adequate. Christmas comes but once a year; make the most of it.

FOR ONE BRIEF STARRY NIGHT.

For one brief starry night let us forget
The clamor of the world, our loss, our fear,
And let us light the candles in our souls
This one night of the year.

Let us be shrived of self, and let us pray
Only white prayers—white selfless prayers to-night,
Lifting clean hands up to one glorious star
That is burning with holy light.

Unfailing it has shown through all the years,
While we, God knows, have wandered strangely far;
Now for this one brief night let us forget
All but his steadfast star:

All but the supreme sacrifice
Of God, the Giver, sending One to lift
The burdens from our hearts, and let us reach Glad hands to take his gift.

—Grace Noll Crowell.

CHRISTMAS CAROL SINGING.

"Carol singing, as we know it, originated more than seven hundred years ago, in the gentle child soul of little St. Francis of Assisi," says Beatrice Plumb in a charming article in the December number of Christian Herald, an article which all young people should read. Continuing she says,

"In those days religion was at a very low ebb. Heresy was abroad in the land. The services of the church were conducted in a language which the people did not understand; the Bible was locked up in an unknown tongue; what little preaching was done gave nothing to the uneducated masses."

Out of a desire to make Christmas real to the common people, St. Francis and his disciples presented a living picture of the Nativity in 1224 in the little Italian village of Greccio. Joseph and Mary were represented; living animals were gathered near a rough manger; real straw was scattered over the floor; and the Christmas story was sung in the language of the people. These villagers were delighted with the service and the records say, "They poured forth constant praise to God for his wondrous love to man." All night they sang and prayed and rejoiced. In the morning when they returned home they sang as they went. "And thus the carol, secluded in the cloister for a thousand years, was brought to the shepherd's field again."

In Bethlehem is born the Holy Child
On hay and straw in the winter wild;
Oh! My heart is full of mirth at Jesus' birth.
Let us adore the Child this Christmastide,
And offer him our hearts and souls besides;
Oh! My heart is full of mirth at Jesus' birth.

So sang one of the disciples of St. Francis in poetry which has come down through the centuries. The tune for this is the theme on which Handel built his "Pastoral Symphony."

Christmas carols in conservative England were kept to the services of the church for centuries. But once they found a real place in the program of the church there was no power to contain them. "One happy evening the singers, swept by a great wave of mounting enthusiasm, left the platform and marched down the center aisle, singing as they went. Instead of circling the church and returning to the chancel, they marched clear through the door and went parading down the streets with the entire congregation streaming after them, all lustily singing! And from that moment on, carols were on the English streets."

Why not keep them ringing on our streets, in our churches, and in our hearts at Christmas time?

THE BIRTH OF OUR KING.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC FOR DECEMBER 24.
Matt. 2:1-15.

Plan this meeting carefully and prayerfully; make it a real experience in the life of the group. Worship Service (by candlelight).

Musical Prelude—"O Little Town of Bethlehem."

Call to Worship—Isa. 9:2; Isa. 9:6.

Hymns—"Silent Night, Holy Night," "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear," (1st and 2nd verses), "Thou Didst Leave Thy Throne."

Scripture—Matt. 2:1-15.

Reading—

The earth has grown old with its burden of care,
But at Christmas it always is young;
The heart of the jewel burns lustrous and fair,
And its soul full of music bursts forth on the air
When the song of the angel is sung.

It is coming, old earth, it is coming tonight,
On the snowflakes which cover thy sod,
The feet of the Christ-child fall gentle and white,
And the voice of the Christ-child tells out with delight
That mankind are the children of God.

On the sad and the lonely, the wretched and poor,
The voice of the Christ-child shall fall,
And to every blind wanderer open the door
Of a hope that he dared not to dream of before,
With a sunshine of welcome for all.

The feet of the humblest may walk in the field
Where the feet of the holiest trod.

This, then, is the marvel to mortals revealed
When the silvery trumpets of Christmas have pealed,
That mankind are the children of God.

—Phillip Brooks.

Prayer—"May the Spirit of Christ touch our lives anew with love and joy that will bless and make beautiful our days."

Prayer Response (softly)—"Fairest Lord Jesus."

Leader—My God shall supply every need of your according to his riches in glory in Christ Jesus. Jesus said, "I came that men may have life, and have it more abundantly. I am the bread of life; he that cometh to me shall never hunger. I am the light of the world; he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life." Jesus is more than Friend; he is Saviour. He is more than a way; he is life. He is ready to be the King of our lives when we accept him.

Assign the following subjects for short talks:

1. Prayer. Jesus taught his disciples to pray. Every important recorded episode of his ministry was preceded by prayer. We are assured that our prayers may be offered directly to God. (I. Kings 8; Psalms 42, 51; Luke 11:1-13; 18:1-14; John 17; Eph. 3.)

2. Studying His Word. This is the ideal time to study one of the Gospels, perhaps Mark, dealing with the coming of Christ, his ministry of healing, helpfulness, and spiritual redemption.

3. Service. "He has no hands but our hands" to continue his unmatched ministry in meeting the daily needs of ordinary people. What has our group done during the years past, and what are we going to do in the years to come to serve the King of Kings? (Matt. 10:37, 38.)

4. Giving. First we shall give him our hearts. Then we shall be ready to give other things that would be dear to us if his claims upon our lives did not come foremost. Of what does the Christmas season remind us concerning the needs in the mission fields?

5. Loving. "A new commandment I give unto you . . ." When the chains of love bind all the world together, it will be when, and only when, we have united to make Christ King. We can help by living in the spirit of Christian love. It is our greatest possible service. (I. Cor. 13; use "love" rather than the word "charity.")

The King crowned. (Heb. 2:1-9.) Where and when was Jesus "crowned with glory and honor"? Not on the day of his entry into Jerusalem, nor on the day of his resurrection. His coronation-chair was the cross; his glory, that he tasted death for every man.

Jesus, the King of forgiveness. A young man who considered himself "down and out" one day received a letter which was an unusual event in his life. He opened it, to find a cordial invitation to a Christmas party. Surely there was a mistake. "Requests the pleasure of Mr. . . . 's presence" were the words that struck him with stunning force. When had any one called him "Mister"? The one who invited him could not know that he had been a thief. Well, perhaps he did, but like his Master forgave thieves. The "down-and-outer" attended the party, found that he was wanted, and gave his heart to the Master who could reach far enough down into life to summon him.

On the morning after Christmas are we plunged into the depths of self-seeking again? Let this be the year when the Christmas spirit carries on.

E. F.

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE.

PAUL IN ROME.

LESSON XII—DECEMBER 17, 1933.

GOLDEN TEXT: "I press on toward the goal unto the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."—Phil. 3:14.

LESSON TEXT: Acts 28:11-22, 30, 31.

Paul in Caesarea—Paul in Rome: some thrilling experiences are represented by the dashes between these two phrases. A brief summary of those experiences will help us to understand better the lesson where it begins today.

When brought to trial before Festus, the Roman Governor, Paul appealed to Caesar, i. e., he made an appeal to what in a way we could call the Supreme Court, he asked for trial at Rome. His appeal was granted and after appearing before Agrippa where he gave a stirring account of his conversion which greatly moved Agrippa, he was started on his way to Rome. Progress was slow, so slow that the ship was finally caught in the winter storm and wrecked on an island called Malta. During the trying experiences of the storm and shipwreck, Paul showed himself a man both of sound judgment and inspiring courage. And while marooned on the island for three months, Paul showed himself compassionate and made himself useful. The man had inner resources that made him master of circumstances and yet servant of all. When winter finally broke, Paul and the other prisoners were loaded on a ship which had wintered in the harbor, and the journey to Rome was resumed.

Puteoli.

"And the next day we came to Puteoli, where we found brethren." Puteoli was a long way from both Jerusalem and even from Rome. But there Paul found Christians. It meant that the members of the early church had the evangelistic passion. Everywhere they went they bore witness for Christ. And because they were faithful God made them fruitful. The church would grow more today if every Christian would be faithful in bearing witness and in personal work.

Appii Forum and the Three Taverns.

Paul spent seven days at Puteoli, and during that time news of his arrival there had gone to Rome. The Christians in Rome—here again we see the extent of the spread of faith—came down to meet Paul in the Appii Forum. When Paul saw them, "He thanked God and took courage." The fact that Christ had his witnesses in that great city, the fact that they cared enough to come a long way to meet him, a prisoner, warmed his heart and fired anew his courage. We hardly realize how much we owe to our fellow Christians. And we hardly know how much we help each other. We need each other. The knowledge that there are others serving God, that there are those who care for us, puts heart into us and helps us to keep on keeping on. That is one of the values of public worship, and he who neglects it neglects one of life's greatest means of grace.

Rome.

Paul had greatly desired to go to Rome. He undoubtedly had earnestly prayed to go to Rome. And now he was actually in Rome. But as a prisoner. Paul had an answer to his prayer, but in a way that he did not dream of. God works in mysterious ways his wonders to perform. It would seem a cruel fate and a bitter irony that Paul should have to go into Rome as a prisoner. It would seem that he could have done so much more as a free man. As a matter of fact, however, Paul did far more as a prisoner than he could have done as a free man. We would probably not have had those immortal letters to the Philippians, Ephesians, Colossians and Philemon if Paul had not been a prisoner. And Paul would probably never have had an opportunity to preach and to tell his gospel to the Roman soldiers and even to the members of Caesar's household if he had not been a prisoner. What seemed a handicap, Paul turned into an opportunity. And he himself later writes that his "bonds" had turned out rather for the furtherance of the gospel. For the Roman soldiers whom Paul touched in turn went out and witnessed perhaps in all parts of the world. If a man wants to be used by God he can be used, no matter where he is.

Paul turned first to the Jews. He called the "chief Jews" together and stated his case. There was no bitterness, and he was careful to make plain that he had nothing against his fellowmen. His appeal to Caesar was not a reflection on the Jews; it was simply a case of justice and safety. And Paul made clear that by a strange paradox he was in chains for the very thing that the Jews held dear, "the hope of Israel," that is the hope of a Messiah and the hope of the resurrection.

The leading and influential Jews had had no report concerning, or charges against Paul. They desired to hear him, for as they said the sect which he represented "was every where spoken against." It was not popular or easy to be a Christian in Rome at that time. But when the Jews heard Paul there was a division of opinion among them, and they "departed from Paul." With a heavy heart because of the unbelief of his people, but with a new sense of privilege because of his opportunity to speak to the Gentiles, turned to those who came to his house where he was a prisoner but where he had more or less freedom, and to them he preached the kingdom of God, and taught those things which concern the Lord Jesus Christ.

It is to be seen that Paul's message was both personal and social. He taught the things that concern the Lord Jesus Christ. He also preached the kingdom of God. Men are to be saved only through Christ. But they are to help to bring in the kingdom of God. A Christian is saved to serve. It is not enough simply to save individuals. Society must also be saved, the social order must be a place where the will of God is done on earth as it is done in heaven. The interdependence and interrelationship of modern life makes it all the more imperative that the social ideals and principles of Jesus find application in every realm of life.

Later.

The curtain drops on Paul in Rome. Luke tells us nothing more about Paul. From fragmentary references it would appear however that Paul was released after two years, made another missionary journey, and later was taken prisoner and suffered martyrdom in Rome. Whatever may have been the manner of his death, his influence and his spirit live on. Next to Jesus he was perhaps the world's most dominating and dynamic figure. And being dead, he yet speaketh and his good works do follow him.

NOTICE.

Before subscribing to, or renewing your subscription to ANY magazines, won't you please send me a postal card giving list of magazines you are interested in. I will be glad to send special quotations and if I save you from 10 to 25 per cent, I feel sure you will give me a share of your subscriptions, thereby helping both yourself and me. J. EDWIN HARRIS,

Suffolk, Va.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES. Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 16-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $4.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3/4 x 5 3/8 inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3 3/4 x 5 3/8 inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps $2.50

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5 3/8 x 8 1/2 inches and 1 3/8 inches thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With Concise Bible Dictionary, combined Concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Lavanant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold $4.75

RED-LETTER EDITION.

With All the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands; title stamped on side and back in pure gold $3.25

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations; special book for Sunday Schools 95c

Any of the above Bibles sent postpaid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street

Richmond, Virginia

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy

MONDAY.

DO IT WITH THY MIGHT.

"Whatsoever thy hands findeth to do, do it with thy might, for there is no work nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom in the grave, whither thou goest."—Eccles. 9:10.

"Thank God every morning that you have something to do, whether you like it or not. Being forced to work and forced to do one's best will breed in one temperance and self-control, diligence and strength of will, cheerfulness, contentment, and a hundred other virtues which the idle never know."—Charles Kingsley.

To those who have nothing to do in these days, God promises "All things work together for good to them that love him;" he promises protection, for "the seed of the righteous shall never be found begging bread," and "he that dwelleth in the secret place of the most high shall dwell in the shadow of the Almighty."

God is our keeping power; we cannot keep ourselves; but in order to enjoy his keeping we must be his, and cooperate with him and his will.

Prayer—Our Father, we pray thee, the Giver of all spiritual grace, to bless our souls with all the grace we need, so that whether at work or unemployed, we may always be found loyal and true and may find rejoicing in something of thy bounty. Forgive us of our neglects, yea, of our thoughtlessness, and save us daily. We ask for Jesus sake.—Amen.

TUESDAY.

KEEP AN OPEN MIND.

"All scripture is given by inspiration of God and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness; that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works."—II. Tim. 3:16, 17.

Geo. F. Hoffman is quoted as saying, "Keep an open mind and profit by criticism;" and Thomas Dekker said, "Work apace, apace, apace; honest labor bears a lovely face."

The following comes to us anonymously, but is appropos to our text: "Face your deficiencies and acknowledge them, but do not let them master you. Let them teach you patience, sweetness and insight. When we do the best we can we never know what miracle is wrought in our own life or in the life of another."

Prayer—Almighty and most merciful God, we acknowledge and confess that we have sinned against thee in thought, word and deed. We have not loved thee with all our hearts and souls, with all our minds and thought. We pray thee to stir within us a will to keep an open mind to thee and thy work, and to fight against our besetting sins, that, with thy help, we may overcome them.—Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

THE GREATER POWER.

"And immediately the man was made whole and took up his bed and walked."—John 5:9.

The healing of the paralytic illustrate the Lord's insight into suffering and its cause, and his readiness to heal those who obey him.

What we see in this incident is Jesus' love for suffering man and his power to heal and bless. But it has a deeper and higher meaning, viz., to impart new life to the penitent, and to give him power to sin no more. What a blessed gift in store for you and me and for all who will look to and obey him.

Prayer—Most merciful God, look thou upon us, have mercy upon our infirmities, lift us up, give us that new life, and empower us to resist sin and live righteously. Cleanse us from every mean desire, and save us from the evil way, that we may more worthily be called thy child.—Amen.

THURSDAY.

THE LOWER OR THE HIGHER, WHICH?

"Bodily exercise profiteth little; but Godliness is profitable unto all things."—I. Tim. 4:8.

Paul does not mean to disparage the good which accrues from bodily exercise, but he would remind us that the good things of this life which goes no further than the flesh is not enough. He would also remind us that it affects only the health of the individual while the exercise of Godliness in the life is profitable in all things. In every relation known to life, and to everybody with whom we come in contact.

Godliness has to do with character; it is something we can make the object of all our acts, even our own physical exercises.

There is a deeper meaning in this text, viz., that there is a spiritual life with us now as well as in that which is to come, and that nothing of this world is to be regarded merely in a low utilitarian sense.

Prayer—Almighty God, spirit of purity and of grace, whose salvation is never very far from a contrite heart, forgive us of all our low thinking, help us to hear thy calls, and make us faithful to the higher good in Christ.—Amen.

FRIDAY.

SEEING THE INVISIBLE.

"He shall give his angels charge over thee to keep thee in all thy ways."—Psalm 91:11.

"In all thy ways acknowledge him and he will direct thy path."—Prov. 3:6.

This scripture is a recognition that man is more than intellect, and that the whole personality must engage in everything with religious motives, or at least a spiritual comprehension, and the whole bent in life must be in search for truth.

Such a bent calls for a great trust in the Lord. There are two ways in which people pass through life. They pass through remembering God, or they pass through forgetting him. They who forget him are living as though this world is all they have to think about. They who remember him and trust in him, live in view of another life, although they have to die to reach it.

They who remember him, rebel against evil and continually shape their minds and their lives by what they believe. This is the way of his children.

Prayer—O Lord, merciful Father, who despisest not the sighings of a contrite heart, forgive us of our forgetfulness and sins, and grant that we may put our trust in thee, and ever serve thee in pureness of living, to thy honor and glory, through Jesus Christ our Lord.—Amen.

SATURDAY.

COLLAR BUTTONS AND MATCHES.

"The law of kindness is on her tongue."—Read Prov. 31:21-31.

A house in Auburn, N. Y., took fire the other day because when a collar button rolled under the bed the owner hunted for it with matches, which set fire to the bed. The fire department had to be called, and the house was greatly damaged.

This is a parable. It does not mean that we are to let the collar buttons go; it only means that we are to take heed how we hunt for them. It warns us not to hunt for faults with the lighted matches of sarcasm or ridicule or contempt or scorn. There is a closed and safe electric light with which to search for faults. It is the law of kindness of which King Lemuel wrote, as taught by his mother. Love is the best search-light for error. It reveals, but it does not scorch.

Prayer—May we take pattern by thee, our Saviour, our Judge. How gentle was thy dealing with sinners when on the earth; how gentle, yet how wonderfully and mercifully thou dost deal with us, thy erring brothers and sisters! May we, like thee, never hunt evil with fire.—Amen.

AMOS R. WELLS.

SUNDAY.

COVER THE FIRE.

"Ye are all sons of light, and sons of the day; we are not of the night, nor of darkness."—Read I. Thess. 5:1-11.

A young fellow in Maine, twenty years old, stole an automobile and received a jail sentence, but was placed on probation, the condition being that for two years he must not leave his home after nine o'clock in the evening.

The old custom of curfew—the word means "cover fire" as a preliminary to going to bed—is a good one for this age. We are changing night into day and day into night. We who should be sons of the light are becoming sons of the darkness. We are become a nation of street-walkers, of theater-haunters, of newsboard-watchers. We revel in the Great White Way and forget the Great White Throne.

That judge with his 9 P. M. order was a sensible man. "Early to bed and early to rise" points the way to spiritual as well as material health, wealth, and wisdom.

Prayer—Thou art the Light of the world, our Saviour. We exult in thy light. We would surround ourselves with it. We would flee from the darkness. We do not want it outside us or in our hearts. Make us children of the day, O thou God of the day.—Amen.

AMOS R. WELLS.

IF YOU TEACH A DOG TO BE VICIOUS, DON'T BLAME HIM IF HE BITES YOU.

With recent kidnappings fresh in our minds, our attention is called to the approval the Honorable Governor of California has given to the lynchers of two confessed kidnappers. Why should the Governor of California approve this mob action when for many years that State has done more to breed criminals than any other State in the Union. This is exactly what has been done through its highly boasted movie colony, wherein they have taught every conceivable trick of the criminal trade to the youth of this land; and now, just because two of its pupils learned the art well enough to enact the deed, they were taken out and killed by the very people who sponsored their training, without a thought of their part in creating characters of this kind.

We hope that, in the future, the State of California will consider the kind of seed she is planting for this nation, rather than mowing down the faulty plants that come from the seed she sows, after they have taken root. Let us also hope that, in the future, California's Governor will come to realize that it is easier to close criminal training schools than to control well developed criminal graduates.

C. J. STRICKLAND.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Pastor.

BELIEF IN CHRIST.

Delivered before the Annual Session of the Western North Carolina Conference

By REV. E. CARL BRADY, President

Text: John 6:68.

Belief in a Supreme Being has been characteristic of the best in humanity all through the ages. Mankind has ever regarded the supernatural as indispensable. All of the different living religions have a central figure whose adherents awe and reverence him or it. So in man's strife to reach the heights he has found the necessity for a belief in a power outside himself. In one age it was enough to sacrifice, but in our own age the words, faith, hope, love and work are among our most significant ideals. Since the days of Jesus obedience has been better than sacrifice.

A man may believe in Christ and not accept him. Long ago the early disciples had the desire to put Jesus at the center of their thinking. But did their attitude toward him make any difference? Was that great scholar right when he said that Christianity stands or falls, lives or dies with the personality of Jesus Christ? Was Nicodemus showing the part of wisdom when he, a ruler of the Jews, came to Jesus for instruction? We may well face the question as to whether Christ is indispensable in the world or not, and be just as clear and convincing as we can for many people are disturbed in their belief in and estimation of Christ.

And why should not men and honest seekers alike know the truth? Today there are fewer barriers that keep out questions and fewer sacred preserves where men fear to thoroughly investigate. Reformation has ever been the watchword of progress. In this progression men turned to the Bible and gave it a test. Then the church received its test of scrutiny. Even Christ himself was subjected to numerous tests. So were his disciples. Mankind in its zeal and fervor for the cause may object to these observations, but the answer comes back that nothing in existence is too sacred to be investigated by thought.

These disciples did not fear critical questioning. They did not fear the consequences in the end. The very things which caused them to doubt the untrue were the things which caused them to believe the true. The Biblical doctrines and the Biblically led disciples will finally emerge from this test and appear in a new and more radiant light, and to be sure, reunderstood, reanimated and reinterpreted, but with their central messages set free for an unprecedented service.

Diversity of opinion existed long before the Christian dispensation began. There were Literalists leaning for salvation on a text, Mystics feeling religion to be the life of God lived out in the soul of man, Ecclesiastics trusting in an authoritative organization, Ethicists believing in a moral and serviceable life, Individualists valuing inward and transforming experiences of the soul, Social Reformers looking for some unseen power to remake the world.

Nevertheless, with all the varying opinions, if you present Christ himself to any Christian he will kneel. Catholics and Protestants are the opposite poles of a vast amount of thought, but when one sings the praise of Jesus the other sings, too. The modernists and fundamentalists believe far differently, but when a fundamentalist sings, "O, Master, let me walk with thee," the soul of the modernist pulsates with the glad acceptance of Christ as Master and Lord. Christ is the master magnet of the universe holding the varied mass together. Christ is the great mountain down which the divided streams flow. But humanity considers the worth of this master and when other idols present themselves the truly redeemed of God do not forsake the idol and ideal of their lives for that which purports to be ephemeral. As the belief in Christ integrates itself into our innermost beings, as the Day Star on high grows brighter and brighter, and as the Son arises with healing in his wings the saved of earth arise and shout the praises of God until the glad hallelujahs shall fill heaven and earth.

Why should the disciples believe in Christ? Let us consider first that they were God-called men. Just before Christ ordained the disciples the record says that Jesus had gone all about their cities and villages, teaching in their synagogues, preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing every sickness and every disease among the people. But when he saw the multitudes, he was moved with compassion, because they fainted, and were as sheep having no shepherd. And in this same connection, he said: "The harvest truly is plenteous, but the laborers are few; pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth laborers into his harvest."

How elated Simon Peter, bold and impulsive, and Andrew, his brother, must have been on that memorable day when Christ was coming from the fields that were so needy and as he passed by the Sea of Galilee he saw these two humble men toiling at an humble but honest occupation. The need was pressing itself upon him and he said unto them, "Follow me and I will make you fishers of men." He didn't examine them on church history, or homiletics, psychology or theology, but he did call them. They did not stop to make abundant excuses. No doubt but that Peter could have used his persuasive appeal to good advantage had he been so minded. But instead of arguing at length and finally excusing themselves, they straightway arose and followed. Jesus to the most stupendous task ever confronting man.

Immediately after calling Simon Peter and Andrew, Jesus passed on to that part of the sea in which Zebedee and his two sons had been or were about to fish. And as Christ saw the industry of James and John as they were mending their nets he quietly bade them to leave their nets and follow him. We may conjecture that these men were poor from the fact that they were fishermen and that they were using a net which needed mending. Likewise may we suppose that these four men called from the Sea of Galilee were untaught—they were not versed in the learning of the Jews, but God often uses the simple to confound the wise. Often Christ bestows the gifts of grace upon those who have not been favored by the gifts of nature.

"And as Jesus passed forth from thence he saw a man named Matthew sitting at the receipt of customs and saith unto him: 'Follow me.'" This Jesus did as he passed where the hated publican, the hated tax collector was engaged in his business. In thus calling Matthew, Christ was calling into a more active and profitable life. The name Matthew signifies the gift of God. Perhaps this was the first time he was ever called Matthew. We should not overlook the fact that these men were busy men—busy about their calling and that Christ in thus choosing them emphasized the lesson that he taught at the age of twelve when he said, "Wist ye not that I must be about my Father's business?" That Matthew looked after Christ or had any intention of following him the Bible does not tell, but from the leverage which his position gave him we may well reason and conclude that Matthew would have been well satisfied to have remained at his seat of customs. It is common belief that tax collectors of that time and system were generally men of ill-repute, extortionate and unjust. But see Matthew as the Son of God called him into discipleship. Believe that Jesus came seeking men. Think what a day in the life of Matthew and in the history of the world. It was a day when sacred history began to breathe, a day when a gospel was born, when a new life began in his bosom that caused the angels to rejoice around the throne of God, a time when a soul was saved from death and a multitude of sins was covered. Man-like he arose and left all. Perhaps he had heard John the Baptist's burning message as he went proclaiming that the Lamb of God takes away the sins of the world. Matthew knew that he was unpopular, handicapped, ostracised and hated by the very folks who should have given him encouragement. The church of his day did not want him. The Pharisees even quarreled with Christ's disciples because he ate with the publicans. But when Christ called him he left ALL—his books, his business, his office, position, friends and home and followed him.

The call of Philip was direct. Christ "findeth Philip and saith unto him, 'Follow me.'" This was the next day after the calling of the four fishermen. Christ could not lose a day yet he could not be too hasty. In the case of Philip as with the other disciples, the beginning of Christianity is a following AFTER Christ. It is not preceding; it is not even thought of as coincidental with his ideals and ways. Primarily the way of life is a following after. "Whosoever will come after me let him deny himself, take up his cross and follow me."

Soon after the call of the disciples Christ went up on the Mount and when his disciples came to him there he taught them, saying, "Blessed are the meek: for they shall inherit the earth. Blessed are the pure in heart; for they shall see God. Blessed are they which are persecuted for righteousness sake, for theirs is the kingdom of God. Ye are the salt of the earth; but if the salt have lost his savour, wherewith shall it be salted? Ye are the light of the world. A city that is set on an hill cannot be hid. Lay not up for yourselves treasures on earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt and where thieves break through and steal. But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you." These things Christ said in making the disciples more secure. What a great call! What a splendid teacher!

Why did the disciples believe in Jesus? The tests of Jesus in the presence of the disciples is the answer to that question. If he were to be the Son of God and command the undivided following of those whom he must entrust with his work, he had to be more than man. He had to do all that he had promised them and even more. To instill in the disciples' minds the fact that Jesus was God's Son and that God will, through his Son, make the rough places smooth, and the crooked places straight, he had to do the miraculous. Often after he had performed a miracle his disciples asked concerning it and in this way we learn the purpose of the miraculous. It was thus given to them to know the mystery of the kingdom.

No sooner had Jesus begun to preach than he and his disciples went to the marriage feast in

(Continued on page 14.)

THE SUN'S PULPIT.

(Continued from page 13.)

Cana of Galilee. While there he turned the water into wine. This was the beginning of miracles in the life of Christ. This feat Christ did not that the governor was too poor to provide the necessary wine, but that his disciples might have whereof to believe on him. Those whom he had so recently called had seen him perform no miracle, yet on this occasion they had followed him, had seen the miracle and had their faith increased. The true faith has its small beginning and gradually deepens until one is ready to say with Thomas, "My Lord and my God."

He did not stop with the miracle in Cana but went never-ceasingly on. Next he cured Peter's wife's mother of a fever. This may have been a common malady. But remember that this miracle took place in the home of one of the disciples. Peter was to be the bold spokesman. Was he to be more thoroughly taught? The conditions under which he would be tried were so as by fire. Jesus was not a medical doctor. He healed by faith. He touched the woman's hand, the fever left her and she arose and ministered unto them. This act showed the kindness, tenderness, and the ability of Jesus. Such matchless compassion! Such wonderful power! Such a beautiful lesson for his disciples! This miracle shows Jesus with undisputed power over the common infirmities of life.

As Christ was passing over the sea in company with his disciples a great storm arose. Perchance he was asleep. The waves were about to engulf the ship when the disciples cried unto him, "Lord, save us; we perish." First of all, he rebuked the disciples by asking them why they were fearful. What pangs must have rushed through the mind of Jesus. He rebuked the winds and the sea and the storm subsided. The men who were with him were astonished and asked, "What manner of man is this that even the winds and sea obey him?" The Christ of God could have prevented the storm, but he must deepen the faith of the disciples.

The Master had just heard that Herod had killed John the Baptist, when he drew himself apart, as his custom was under trying circumstances, to pray. But he could not be hid. Some way the people heard about his planned secrecy. So great multitudes made their way to the desert. Truly a light set on a hill cannot be hid. As soon as he saw the conditions of those people he was filled with compassion on them. The sick were brought to him there and he ministered to their needs. We have all reason to believe that Christ saw the soul-need of these people just as much as he did the bodily infirmity. When he had finished ministering to their physical needs the day was well spent. Had Jesus not intervened the disciples would have sent the multitude away. Great distance separated them from any food except five loaves and two fishes. Think of it—five loaves and two fishes! And among five thousand men besides the women and children. A table furnished in the midst of a bizarre wilderness. Yes, God was able of those stones to raise up children unto Abraham. Bread enough and to spare. Twelve baskets full of remnants.

To add glory to glory and further show his power over the forces of the world, both seen and unseen, Christ went into the country of Gadara. Those two suffering souls met him no sooner than he came to the shore. They were possessed with such fierce devils that none dared pass that way. When they came to Jesus the evil spirits recognized him as the Son of God, and showed that they recognized that he had power over them when they asked permission to enter the swine. The terrible effect which the evil spirits had over the Gadarine maniacs and their consequent destruction of the swine must have deepened the faith of the disciples.

Perhaps the greatest miracle which Jesus ever performed on this earth was the giving of life to those who were dead. There was a widow in Nain who had an only son. When this only son died it was the cause of widespread grief. The Bible tells us that much people of the city were with her. The funeral procession was progressing toward the cemetery when Jesus saw and had great compassion. See him as he goes to the bier. How great must have been the wonder! What would he do? Did Jesus know? Did he understand? Yes, "Young man, I say unto thee, 'Arise.'" No miracle which he had performed so inspired and awed the disciples as this one. It was great to turn water into wine; great to heal from bodily infirmities; great to be master over the storm; great to miraculously feed the multitude; great to cast out devils, but none so great as to give back the prized and priceless possession.

At the time of our text men had come flocking to Jesus without stopping to count the cost. Many of his disciples came through curiosity but became genuinely interested. Many continued to follow him to see what he would do next. But when his message became displeasing, many went away and followed him no more. "Then said Jesus unto the twelve, 'Will ye also go away?'" Then Simon Peter said, "Lord, to whom shall we go? Thou hast the words of eternal life." What a choice! This choice, based on a belief in the Rock of Ages, will ever rank as one of the wisest of human or divine choices. And they had reasons. They were God-called, God-trained, God-enthused, God-inspired, God-tested men. They must not—they could not go away.

If the disciples had made the mistake of going away, to whom could they have gone? They had rest and an abiding place in him. If they had made their court to the world it would have deceived them. If they went back into sin it would destroy them. They could not go to the heathen philosophers for they were foolish. If they went back to the Scribes and Pharisees they would be misled because they made the law of none effect. If they went to Moses or the prophets they would send them again to Christ.

Christ does not call all who have an apparent anxiety to follow him. A certain scribe approached Jesus and said, "Master, I will follow thee whithersoever thou goest." Here was a man too hasty in his choice. He thought that Jesus was going to erect an earthly kingdom and that he would be ready for some position in it. How disappointed the scribe must have been when Christ said, "The foxes have holes, and the birds of the air have nests; but the Son of man hath not where to lay his head." Poor Jesus! Poor scribe!

How reasonable the disciples were. The writer was certainly correct when he said, "Without reason there could be no religion, and without religion, reason would perish within the prison of the visible and temporary. Religion is reason on her knees; faith is reason on her wings; Christianity is reason on the cross, on her way to the crown."

The church and its membership today need to place themselves in the position of the disciples. Are you troubled? Are you on the verge of turning back? Will you go with the crowd? Are you moved by mob psychology? Do you have an uncontrollable longing to go to that church or that work where the band plays loudest? Or are you satisfied to brighten the corner where you are? And are you willing to accept your task as a God-given one?

HOLMAN SUPERIOR TEACHERS' BIBLES

Authorized Version—Self-Pronouncing The Best Editions of the World's Best Book

For Adults, Teachers, Preachers, Students, and All Who Would Study the Word of God Intelligently

BOLD BLACK TYPE—COMPACT SIZE 4½x6¾ INCHES—WILL FIT THE COAT POCKET

Part page specimen of Holman Boldblack Type Bible

ST. MATTHEW, 5. Christ's sermon on the mount.

13 And leaving Náz'a-réth, he came and dwelt in Cá-pér'na-úm, which is upon the sea coast, in the borders of Záb'u-lon and Nêph'tha-lím :	A. D. 31.	934	CHAPTER 5.
14 That it might be fulfilled	CHAP. 4.	3 Who are blessed. 13 The disciples called the salt of the earth, and light of the world; shutteth up on them a good example, etc.
AND seeing the multitudes, he went up into a moun-

THIS NEW HOLMAN TEACHERS' BIBLE. Pronouncing Text. Bold Black Type is a PRONOUNCED SUCCESS. The latest Bible with NEW HELPS that are quite comprehensive and consist of an Illustrated Bible Dictionary, Concordance and additional aids all under ONE ALPHABETICAL INDEX. Also Fine Maps on Coated Paper, and a specially prepared BIBLE READING COURSE, intended to stimulate and maintain interest in the Bible. Imported Bible paper is used to improve opacity and keep down bulk. By this means you get the benefit of full colored information without the physical discomfort of handling a heavy volume.

STYLES AND PRICES—BIBLE PAPER EDITION

4612. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges.....	$4.00
4630. Same as 4612, with extra leather lined covers.....	4.75
THIN INDIA PAPER EDITION
With Helps as described above. Size 4½x6¾ inches. One inch in thickness
630X. Egyptian Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings, red under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker.....	7.00
633X. Algerian Morocco, divinity circuit, leather lining to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, extra quality binding.....	8.00

EXTRA LARGE PRINT TEACHERS' BIBLES

Large 8 Vo. Size—8x5½ inches—1600 Pages, including 400 pages of Bible Study Helps

Part Page Specimen of Print

ST. MATTHEW, 5. Christ's sermon on the mount.

15 ^k The land of Záb'u-lon, and the land of Nêph'tha-lím, by the way of the sea, beyond Jôr'dan, Gál'lee of the Gen'tiles;	A. D. 31.	2	And he opened his mouth, and taught them, saying, of the Gen'tiles;	k Is. 9. 1, 2. l Is. 42. 7. m Luke 2. 32. n Mark 1. 14.	3 ^o Blessed are the poor in spirit: for their's is the kingdom of heaven.

CONTAINING COMPLETE HELPS TO BIBLE STUDY, INCLUDING ALL OF THE FOLLOWING FEATURES
 A New Practical Course in Bible Reading, A Treasury of Biblical Information. The most carefully compiled, thorough and attractive form in which valuable Biblical information has ever been prepared. Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary Containing 150 illustrations, concise definitions and textual references on nearly 50,000 subjects. A Practical Comparative Concordance, with nearly 50,000 references. Four Thousand Questions and Answers on the Old and New Testaments. A valuable Help to all Bible Readers.

STYLES AND PRICES

4712. Divinity Circuit (overlapping covers), French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, silk head bands, and silk marker..	$5.00
812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament, Old Testament Passages alluded to by Christ, various prophecies relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above on 4712 and same large Self-Pronouncing type.....	6.00
738X. Holman India Paper. Genuine Morocco, leather lined, silk sewed, divinity circuit, round corners cambrine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and helps as above.....	10.65

All styles sent Postpaid at above prices—Thumb Index 50 cents extra

Is Christianity at its best so fickle as to be best represented by a believer today and an infidel tomorrow? Once Christians are satisfied they are not easily misled. They trust in One who will not leave them in the lurch. They trust in one who suffered the pangs of death for them and one who will snatch them back when they are slipping over the terrible precipice which means eternal doom.

The Bible says for our comfort, "The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want. Ho, everyone that thirsteth, come ye to the waters and he that hath no money, come. God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble. Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. In my Father's house are many mansions."

At a very critical moment Christ is saying to us, "Will ye also go away?" And may God grant to each of us an answer which shows as much intelligent foresight, and may we, like the disciples, cling to the eternal God as long as life is our portion at his hands.

What an important question and what an intelligent answer.

THE CHRISTIAN ORPHANAGE.
(Continued from page 7.)

Special Offerings.

Mrs. Hammond, bal on acct.....	$ 15.00
Mr. M. A. Atkinson, cash item...	.50
Mr. T. B. Roberts, support of children	24.00
		39.50

Thanksgiving Offerings.

North Carolina and Virginia Conference:
Carolina	$ 12.43
Lebanon	1.18
Bethel Ch. and Sunday School....	5.56
Greensboro, First	106.96
Happy Home	27.33
United, Lynchburg	5.00
Monticello	2.60
Mt. Bethel	20.65
Ingram	145.34
Salem Chapel	5.23
Long's Chapel	16.15
		348.43

Eastern North Carolina Conference:

Morrisville	$ 4.00
Plymouth	6.00
Antioch	4.00
Mebane	12.00
Oak Level	20.50
Henderson	19.97
Lebanon	3.28
Catawba Springs	47.88
Moore's Union	3.00
Amelia	1.00
		121.63

Western North Carolina Conference:

Prov. Memorial	$9.51
Mrs. J. H. Harden's Class... ..	1.10
		10.61
Seagrove	6.50
Zion	15.85
Randleman	12.50
Patterson's Grove	2.29
Glendon	23.28
Ramseur	20.00
High Point	10.00
Hank's Chapel	8.70
Graham	10.21
Liberty	12.96
		132.90

Eastern Virginia Conference:

Spring Hill	$ 3.00
Windsor	35.00
Union, Surry	21.00

Oak Grove	3.52
Isle of Wight	5.28
South Norfolk	42.96
Holland	118.15
First, Portsmouth	41.83
Rosemont	260.00
Franklin	53.00
		573.74

Valley Virginia Central Conference:

New Hope	$ 3.15
Mt. Olivet	1.50
Linville	28.03
		32.68

Alabama Conference:

Wadley	$ 1.50
Carver Grove	1.00
		2.50

Individual Thanksgiving Offerings.

C. E. Society, Wentworth Church, Eastern N. C. Conference.....	$ 2.52
Young People's Class, Hines Chapel Church	18.71
Class No. 3, Mt. Auburn S. S.....	7.00
Mr. M. H. Hayes, Wise, N. C.....	25.00
Mrs. J. T. Harper, Ruffin, N. C... ..	1.00
Mr. & Mrs. J. W. Payne, Wedowee, Ala.	5.00
		59.23

Total for the week..... $ 1,418.12

Grand total $14,217.23

Give THE SUN for Christmas.

ELON COLLEGE

AN ACCREDITED COLLEGE

of the

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING.

ELON COLLEGE, founded by the Christian Church in 1889, has fully justified the faith and hope of its founders during its 42 years of operation. Its graduates from the four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree, number 980, now living, 122 of whom are in the Christian Ministry and full-time Christian service. The majority of these are members of our own denomination. In addition, 449 are in educational work and are an active influence in the lay leadership of the Christian Church.

THE CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING, and the definite religious atmosphere of the College, provide the very best facilities available for training for religious leadership, and offer the Church its finest opportunity to train the young people of the denomination to assume active leadership both in the ministry and laity of the local churches.

Address—

C. M. CANNON, Registrar

Elon College, - - - North Carolina

Home Atmosphere—Reasonable Rates—Clean Athletics—Christian Spirit

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr
A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Congregational-Christian Church.

Central Publishing Co., Inc., is complying with the President's Code

BOARD OF EDITORS.

- J. O. ATKINSON, D. D..... Editor
- E. C. GILLETTE, D. D..... Associate
- S. C. HARRELL, D. D..... Contributing
- C. R. RAYMOND, D. D.... Contributing
- ELISHA A. KING, D. D... Contributing
- W. C. WICKER, D. D..... Contributing
- J. T. KERNODLE... Managing Editor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

- One Year$2.00
- Six Months 1.00

Trial Subscriptions: Five or more new subscriptions sent in at one time by pastor or president of any church organization, three months for 40c each.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Change of Address: Be sure to give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

All news matter and items to be published in "The Sun" should be addressed to J. O. Atkinson, Editor, Elon College, N. C., and should reach him not later than Friday preceding date of publication. If more convenient, news from Congregational Churches may be sent to E. C. Gillette, Associate Editor, 117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla. Emergency notices will be received at the Richmond Office up until Tuesday of week of publication.

All remittances for subscriptions, renewals, advertising, etc., books for review, and other matters of business should be addressed to J. T. Kernodle, Managing Editor, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

Notices: Obituary and marriage notices, limited to 125 words, published free. All over 125 words, 1c a word, cash with notice. No notices should exceed 250 words.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows date of expiration, and change on label will appear the first or second issue of the month following renewal, provided it was received before the 25th. No other receipt will be sent unless requested. Please notify the Richmond Office if label is not changed as above.

MARRIAGES

TUCK—WILKERSON.

At my home, Virgilina, V., November 2, 1933, I united in marriage Mr. Edward Snead Tuck of White Plains, N. Y., and Miss Willie Lewis Wilkerson of Nathalie, Va. Both of these young people are members of Liberty Church and have been among our most active workers in all enterprises of the church. Mr. Tuck was the superintendent of the Sunday School before going to New York some three years ago. He is the son of the late John W. and Nannie Tuck of Helena, N. C. The bride is the youngest daughter of Mrs. John Wilkerson of Nathalie, Va.

After spending a few weeks with relatives in Person County, N. C., and at Nathalie, Va., they will go to White Plains, where Mr. Tuck holds a position with the Chevrolet Motor Co. The best wishes of a large circle of relatives and friends go with this excellent couple of young people in their new relations.

C. E. NEWMAN.

OBITUARIES

PIERCE.

Mary A. Nance Hoover Pierce was born September 25, 1843, and died October 14, 1933, age 90 years, 20 days. She was married to Alson Hoover, April 17, 1860. To this union were born eight children, all of whom are living, as follows: Mrs. Isam Nance, Asheboro; Thomas Hoover, Rhode Island; W. Harris Hoover, Asheboro, Route 3; Andrew I. Hoover, Asheboro, Route 3; Ivey Hoover, High Point; Mrs. H. K. Rush, High Point; Mrs. Haze Harris, Denton; Casey W. Hoover, High Point. She has 37 living grandchildren, 21 great-grandchildren, 1 great-great-grandchild. Two brothers and one sister survive her. They are Alfred Nance, Asheboro, Route 2; Watson Nance, Cid, N. C.; Mrs. Frank Cameron, Denton, N. C. Her husband died April 12, 1900. Later she married Ivey Pierce. There are no children to this union. Mrs. Pierce held her church membership with Pleasant Union Christian Church since the church was first organized. She was faithful to attend to her children was that she was ready to meet her Lord, and was submissive to his will. Funeral services conducted by the writer, assisted by Dr. J. D. Williams, Rev. Elliott R. I. Williams and W. O. Smith. B. H. LOWDERMILK.

PIEDMONT COLLEGE

Located in

"The Blue Ridge Highlands"

FALL TERM BEGINS
SEPTEMBER 13.

An accredited college with an enviable reputation for superior classroom instruction, and wholesome student life.

Fully recognized and accredited in its home State, and in such neighboring States as North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Tennessee and others. Standard courses leading to the A. B. and B. S. degrees.

Cost for Board, Room and Tuition, including also Entrance, Activity, and Infirmary fees reduced to $273.50 for the College Year. Personal expenses as low as student and parent wish.

All who seek an "A" grade college training for their sons and daughters in an atmosphere of Christian culture, and at minimum cost, are invited to write for the college catalogue and admission blanks.

Address: DEAN J. C. ROGERS,
DEMOREST, GEORGIA.

Southern Seminary Foundation

(Successor to Atlanta Theological Seminary.)

AFFILIATED WITH

Vanderbilt University

The Foundation and the other Foundations that are affiliated with Vanderbilt University School of Religion comprise the only Interdenominational Theological School in the South. Through this affiliation the students enjoy the rights and privileges of Vanderbilt University.

DEGREES.

Candidates for degrees are required to have completed their college courses.

The degree of Bachelor of Divinity is offered to qualified students who complete the required courses.

Vanderbilt University also offers the degrees of Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy, in accordance with the regulations established in its several departments.

MORE THAN A SCHOOL OF THEOLOGY.

Because of our affiliation with Vanderbilt, our relations with other nearby colleges where our students can take courses without tuition, and the cooperation of the American Red Cross and other social agencies in the city, we prepare students for many types of Christian service.

Come to Nashville, the Educational Center of the South, and prepare for Christian leadership. A Graduate School open to both men and women, with opportunities for self-help.

For information write

WILLIAM JAMES CAMPBELL, President,
330 BUTTRICK HALL, VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY,
NASHVILLE, TENN.

SOUTHERN UNION COLLEGE

FRANK E. JENKINS, Acting President.

WINTER QUARTER WILL BEGIN
NOVEMBER 29th.

* * * *

STRONG FACULTY : STRONG COURSES
LOW EXPENSES : THOROUGHLY
CHRISTIAN.

* * * *

The Adult Education Department is growing rapidly, with over 60 already enrolled.

For prospectus and full information, write

DEAN MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD,
WADLEY, ALABAMA

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Representing the Southeast Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXV.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, DECEMBER 21, 1933.

NUMBERS 51-52.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN WISHES EACH OF YOU A VERY MERRY CHRISTMAS and A HAPPY NEW YEAR.

Christmas Day!

By WILLIAM THORNTON WHISETT.

*Again the night when shepherds kept
Their watch o'er drowsing flocks that slept
On far Judean plain;
Again there burneth pure and bright
One gleaming star as on the night
Of the angelic strain.*

*'Tis Christmas Eve with Christmas cheer
To close another fleeting year
Of pain and pleasure bent;
And Mary's Son proclaims Good-will
And Peace, His words are echoing still
From gracious heaven sent.*

*Would we the season keep aright
In spirit of the Holy Night
When peace possessed the earth?
Then selfishness be cast away,
And in our hearts from day to day
The lessons of His birth.*

NOTES-PERSONALS

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

A Merry Christmas to everybody, and may God bless us all.

No CHRISTIAN SUN next week. The editor, managing editor, printers and all will join the rest of the world in keeping Merry Christmas.

Have you prepared for Christmas by reading Charles Dickens' "Christmas Carols"? If not, one wonders if you really are prepared in spirit for the happy event.

If all churches taking a Christmas offering for ministerial relief will send same to J. O. Atkinson, treasurer, Relief Fund, Elon College, N. C., it will reach its destination promptly.

Dr. G. O. Lankford is finding health and recuperating, with his family, at Memorial Home, Penny Farms, Fla. There is where Christmas cards and greeting from friends will reach him.

The ministers of three of our Conferences: Eastern Virginia, North Carolina and Virginia, and the Western North Carolina, now have active ministerial associations meeting monthly to discuss preaching, ministerial and church problems. They are worth while meetings.

Remember—will one and all remember—the Week of Prayer for the churches, January 8th-13th, inclusive? Surely if in any time the church ever needed a week of prayer, it is now. The program for the week is beautifully prepared this year. Copies may be had at 10 for 25c, 20 for 50c, etc., by addressing the editor of THE SUN, Elon College, N. C.

Comes this victorious decision from a loyal Sunday School: "This year we have decided to send all offerings taken at our Sunday School to Missions and the Orphanage, and we will make other arrangements for our local expenses, literature, etc. We decided to try this plan. It will be a greater incentive if the children know that all the offerings they make in the Sunday School go for the benefit of others and not to purchase something for themselves." This school sets other schools a noble example in teaching its pupils that others than ourselves are to be considered when an offering is made. Query: Why will parents buy books for their children to study in the day schools of the week, and then on Sunday let those same children contribute their pennies, nickels and dimes to buy books or literature for study at Sunday School?

Dr. Lewis T. Reed, general secretary of the Congregational Board of Ministerial Relief, writing under date of December 13th, says, "The Christmas Fund (for ministerial relief) is rolling in in rather good volume. By tonight I think we should be able to report that we are close to $40,000.00. The Christian Church contributions have thus far been small, but Christian Churches are in the habit of taking church collections which may be taken on any one of the next three Sundays, so that I am still in hopes we shall get some money." Evidently, our Congregational brethren believe in giving some relief to aged and infirm ministers, who have worn themselves out for the Gospel on small salaries, and for the care of their widows. Some of our churches are taking the Christmas offering for this good purpose.

The Sunday School Times points out a significant fact. On the wall of Bethany Church, in Philadelphia (where the late John Wanamaker, of mercantile and Sunday School fame, lived and labored), is a white marble tablet just inside the door, and on the tablet are engraved these words: "In Loving Memory of John Wanamaker. 'By reason of him many went away and believed in Jesus.'" These are the words of John concerning Lazarus, and the Times notes the facts that those who knew Mr. Wanamaker and his great work are not out of place here. The highest type of life does not attract to itself, but points to the life of Him who is the resurrection and the life. Many volumes may be written on Mr. Wanamaker, but none will pay him higher tribute than this epitaph on the white marble tablet inside the door of Bethany Church, Philadelphia.

GOD'S WILL AND MINE.

I asked the New Year for a motto sweet,
Some rule of life with which to guide my feet;
I asked and paused, He answered soft and low:
"God's will to know."

Will knowledge then suffice, New Year, I cried,
Or has the question into silence died?
The answer came: "Nay, but remember, too,
"God's will to do."

Once more I asked: "Is there more to tell?"
And once more again the answer sweetly fell:
"Yes, this one thing all other things above—
"God's will to love."

And now, Dear Lord, as thou hast given me
To start another year—it shall be with thee
That I will walk—and let my life-light shine.
Thy will be mine.

—Author Unknown.

THE GEORGIA CONFERENCE.

Two outstanding personalities, genuine hospitality, an address by the president of Piedmont College on, "Can College Students Be Religious?" followed by the empanelling of a jury made up of four young people from the College and four men selected from the audience and their discussion of the theme; the consideration and action of the Conference on "Shall Georgia become an independent and separate Conference, functioning through the General Council and the Extension Boards of the Congregational and Christian Churches," characterized and in some sense dominated this meeting of the Georgia Conference.

The personalities were Dr. W. Knighton Bloom whose winsome spirit, clear thinking and inspiring messages fittingly gave the keynote in the opening sermon of the first day, and his review and forecast given under the title: "A Glance Backward—then Following the Gleaning Tomorrow," brought memories of achievements past and hopes for victories to come vividly to the minds of all, and made the road look brighter and brighter to the perfect day.

The second personality to whom all were looking from the beginning, closed the Conference on Wednesday night. It was Rev. M. Ashby Jones, D. D., guest preacher of Central Church, Atlanta. It was reported as a wonderful sermon, worthy of such a pulpit, when vision, candor and fearless presentation of truth are so much needed.

The hospitality breezed through an address of welcome by the pastor, Rev. J. H. Dollar, and breathed throughout the days of the Conference. All were cared for happily and well.

The address by President Henry C. Newell, of Piedmont College, fearlessly dealt with the "Vitality of Present Day Religion," the theme for the evening. His specific topic under the above was, "Can College Students be Religious." He fearlessly faced "The Old Time Religion," some sing so much about, and the kind of religion actually good enough today. It was on the program that he empanel a jury to consider and bring in a verdict. Four college students: Ina Adams, Dorothy Grigsby, John Ensminger and Chandler Adams, accidentally all from Piedmont College, were brought to the jury box. Four men from the audience were impanelled: James Mahaffey, C. L. Butler, Mr. Farrar, Prof. G. O. Burrage. These four laymen freely questioned the four students, who gave a good account of themselves in every way. It was a most interesting session and closed with everybody convinced that college students could not only be religious, but positively are religious in the highest sense of the term.

The question as to whether or not Georgia should become a separate and independent Conference of Congregational and Christian Churches brought forth a good deal of discussion. It was finally voted that Georgia become a separate Conference, but this action should not go into effect till the Southern Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches should confirm it at the meeting next spring.

It should also be noted that the women of the Conference perfected their organization and held a very interesting and valuable session by themselves. This organization is new to Georgia, having been organized only a year ago, but it is drawing the women together in a splendid way, and fine spirit.

Rev. Lawrence L. Stanley, our oldest Congregational pastor, in length of service, in Georgia, was very appropriately elected moderator. James Mahaffey, a prominent layman, was elected as scribe for a second year. Rev. M. J. Sweet was elected conference superintendent, registrar and treasurer for one year. The invitation of the Vanceville Christian Church to the Conference to meet with it October 30th and 31st in 1934, was accepted.

For local purposes, the Congregational Conference met by itself for a short session and elected Rev. T. L. Leverett, moderator, and Alan Jones, scribe. It was also voted to permit the board of directors to use the Cedartown fund, amounting to $600.00, to assist the Columbus United Church for a short time under restricted conditions.

M. J. SWEET.

LET'S PLAY SANTA CLAUS.

One of the loveliest benevolences in which our Congregational people take part is playing Santa Claus, through the Christmas Fund, to the great family of the Congregational Board of Ministerial Relief. The aged and the disabled, the widow and the fatherless—all are remembered through this blessed fund. From the Christmas Fund of last year 804 Christmas checks were sent out and since January 1st, 795 emergency checks have met calls of distress from pensioners and others in the ministry who, because of reduced salaries or unemployment, were unable to carry the expense of sickness and hospital care, or even of daily food and shelter for their families.

"The generosity and devotion of those who make the gift possible surely is a wonderful thing," wrote the mother of two small boys last Christmas. "It does make God's love seem very real and very near, and it brings new courage and fresh hope to troubled and lonely hearts." The Christmas Fund of last year has been a great bulwark of defense in these days of distress; it will be more needed than ever before in the days to come.

LEWIS T. REED.

:: JUST A LITTLE BIT OF CHRISTMAS ::

IF WE SHOULD MISS CHRISTMAS.

By FREDERICK K. STAMM.

If I had to lose one jot or tittle of the written record of Jesus, I should not like it to be the story of the Nativity. Suppose it is, as some claim, a myth. It is a good one. It takes in the whole world—the Magi, in all their splendor; the Inn, where no one was thoughtfully kind enough to make a place where the weary Mother could bear her child; Shepherds on the hills whose hearts were attuned to Divine voices; the Manger where life's commonplaces were touched with heaven's love and compassion; the weary travelers, whose hopes and dreams were centered in the Dayspring from on High; the Holy Family, Mary, Joseph and the Babe; the Son of Man, whose prophetic utterances to a chilly world pierced his hands and feet to a lonely cross outside a city wall, a forgotten Man, whose clear truth and righteous judgment were yet to turn the world upside down. They are all there.

What if, on the way we take at this blessed Christmas tide, we should fail to tarry at Bethlehem and take a look at childhood's helplessness; or turn in at Nazareth and dream with the Carpenter of a new world where personality, rather than profits, counts; where God's sovereignty, rather than man's power and achievement, is deified; or if, before the day's journey is ended, we had not knelt on the hill called Calvary and marveled at the sweetness on the Saviour's brow, beheld the radiant glory of his face, and our hearts made humble by the overflowing grace of his lips. What if there is no revealing of a God who is joyous and gentle, at once eternal and humble, just and merciful, nestling in the heart but new things are no balm for aching hearts,

A changing world has given us new things, no rest for weary, jaded spirits, no comfort in loneliness, no incentive for love to our neighbor, and no ethical mandate for the soul. It is only by God's coming to earth, and man's spirit lifting itself in gladsome surprise at his approach, that greed and selfishness of any sort shall find their permanent banishment from the lives of men.—The Congregationalist.

WHY CHRISTMAS?

What is back of Christmas? Why all the lighted trees, the gifts, the happy children, the home-comings of the older ones? Why do we close the stores, the schools, the factories, ease off the terrific pressure and the metallic clanking of our modern life, and under the spell of the twinkling lights in the home explore the kingdom of love, led on, like the shepherds of old, by the mystic song of the angels? Why does this season cast a spell over us, until meanness seems out of place, hate is outlawed, and kindness seems the natural attitude of the day?

We have seen the sun at eventide flood the world with its gold and crimson, making the bare earth an altar, the stark skyscraper an attending priest, the tinted clouds its altar boys; making even the waves of the erstwhile dull gray ocean to chant its Te Deums in the gigantic and glorious cathedral of the west. So Christmas comes, and with the sound of the carols a mood comes over us that touches the hard facts of life with a new light and even the humblest home has a new splendor. But why such a mood?

If one journeys far enough to find the answer he will come upon the reality that is back of this glorious and startling assertion of Paul: "Seeing God hath shined in our hearts, to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ." Yea, truly, God, who is the creator of the universe, came near to his children that morning and they saw the light of his glory in the face of that Bethlehem Babe. This is where Christmas starts and ultimately this is why Christmas is. Back of the trees and the lights, back of the stillness and the peace, back of the mood of good will, is the light on that Baby's face.—The Christian Herald.

A GIFT.

One stood on the street in a large city recently and watched a throng crowd the stores and streets, arms filled with Christmas gifts. Practically all were remembering friends and loved ones and it seemed that each was taxing his memory lest someone should be forgotten on Christmas morn.

As one stood there one wondered if there would not be One whom many would fail to remember. Our heavenly Father sent a Gift to the world, some two thousand years ago, that has never grown old or lost its value. He gave to us his only Son, yet there are those who are so negligent they have never accepted this Gift.

It is the joy of being remembered that counts at Christmas, and we can remember God and show him the service of our lives.

The gift we share with others multiplies our own joys. This is especially true in sharing the gift "Jesus." There are people who are not dying of hunger, but are dying of despair. Are we sharing this Gift with others and broadcasting the message sent to us by his angels of "Peace on earth, good will toward men"?

A WONDERFUL GIFT.

There came a wonderful gift to the earth in the long, long ago,
To open the hearts of people that they a dear Father might know.
It was just a Babe, this wonderful gift, and in a stall of a manger He lay,
But He was Messiah, Redeemer, and King, who brought a lost world—"The Way."

The Wise Men and Shepherds received Him with joy; o'er hills and plains they traveled—
Seeking to worship the Virgin's Son, and at the Star in his course they marveled.
At last came a message, and in their hearts a new hope was born forsooth,
So they hastened to Bethlehem, and, lo, found Him as the angels declared—"The Truth."

There was never a gift so precious as He, and none is so good today,
He is ours if we earnestly seek Him, and He'll enter our hearts to stay.
Oh, you, who are weary of toiling, and burdened with worldly strife,
Look to Him; He's a Friend and a Brother; yea, He's even more—"The Life."

LELIA B. PAYNE.

Greensboro, N. C.

ADVENT.

Hark! the glad sound! the Saviour comes,
The Saviour promised long:
Let every heart prepare a throne,
And every voice a song.

He comes, the prisoners to release,
In Satan's bondage held:
The gates of brass before Him burst,
The iron fetters yield.

He comes, from thickest films of vice
To clear the mental ray,
And on the eyes oppressed with night
To pour celestial day.

He comes, the broken heart to bind,
The bleeding soul to cure:
And with the treasures of His grace
To enrich the humble poor.

Our glad hosannas, Prince of Peace,
Thy welcome shall proclaim:
And heaven's eternal arches ring
With thy beloved name.—Amen.

—Philip Doddridge.

CHRISTMAS NIGHT.

On Christmas Eve, for one still night,
We turn our faces to the Light;
We let our weary thoughts arise
To meet His angels in the skies,
Perhaps our only song this year.

On Christmas Eve we will forget
The trials and sorrows we have met;
And see, alone, that gleaming star,
That led the Wise Men from afar;
It will guide us if we but pray,
Perhaps our only prayer today.

On Christmas Eve, 'tis then it seems
That living is but tangled dreams,
We rid our hearts of earthly care
And find the angels singing there,
For one still night, almost divine,
A Star into our souls will shine.

DORA BYRONS.

Pomona, Fla.

I WONDER!

Holly and wreaths and mistletoe,
And the tramping of feet on crisp, white snow;
Baubles and toys and tinsel-wrapped things,
But who hears the song the angel sings?

I wonder!

Gay gifts are ready and candles flare,
"Merry Christmas" floats out on the midnight air,
While the heavens gleam with a radiant light,
But who seeks the star in the East tonight?

I wonder!

O Christ of the Bethlehem stable, lo,
We would again thy presence know,
We, too, would mend our restless ways,
We, too, would join in hymns of praise,
And wonder!

—Jessie Kemp Hawkins.

GOD'S CHILDREN ALL.

"Come, let us go," the shepherds said,
"And see this wondrous thing."
Straightway they went, star-radiance led,
And hailed a Child as King.

And ever since we track their feet
To childhood's cradle throne,
Where God Immanuel stoops to meet
And crown each child his own.

In every son of man we see,
Though faint and dim-described,
The image of divinity,
Horizons high and wide.

May naught that image ever mar,
The vision circumspect,
And none inflict a heedless scar
Upon the soul of man!

—R. B. Eleazer,
in M. P. Herald.

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

ASSOCIATE EDITOR

E. C. GILLETTE

117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla.

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

W. C. WICKER

C. REXFORD RAYMOND

S. C. HARRELL

ELISHA A. KING

THE PRINCIPLES OF OUR CHURCH.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

CHRISTMAS BEGINS.

(Luke 2:8-21.)

"And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flocks by night.

"And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them; and they were sore afraid.

"And the angel said unto them, fear not; for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people.

"For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.

"And this shall be a sign unto you; Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger.

"And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host, praising God, and saying:

"'Glory to God in the highest; and on earth, peace, good will toward men.'

"And it came to pass, as the angels were gone away from them into heaven, the shepherds said to one another, 'Let us go now even unto Bethlehem, and see this thing which is come to pass, which the Lord hath made known to us.'

"And they came with haste, and found Mary, and Joseph, and the babe lying in a manger.

"And when they had seen it, they made known abroad the saying which was told them concerning this child.

"And all they that heard it wondered at those things which were told them by the shepherds.

"But Mary kept all these things, and pondered them in her heart.

"And the shepherds returned, glorifying and praising God for all the things that they had heard and seen, as it was told unto them."

WISE MEN THESE.

For nineteen hundred years now, wise men and women have been seeking Jesus. The world has not always called them wise, nor has the world laid riches at their feet, or heaped honors on their heads. Like the wise men from the East, not even their names are known. Wisdom of the world and heaven was theirs, and is theirs. They have created for the world the spirit of Christmas, and have spread good-will throughout the earth.

Banks, books, business would have us drive hard at our tasks, and without ceasing. The wise men knew better, and they know better now. Some of them, many of them, dwell in huts, in tenements, in poor dwellings. The world itself may have played them a sorry trick, or left them afflicted, needy, distressed. But their wisdom is manifest, in that they seek Jesus, for they have seen the Star and have had a vision.

We cannot get around their wisdom. Like close-fisted, hard-hearted old Scrooge of Dickens' marvelous story, there are yet some who will act as if Christmas is a "humbug" and its spirit a myth. Let them be. The wisdom of the wise, the spirit of the day, and the very ghosts and phantoms that walk by night on Christmas will show them their folly and reveal to them the wis-

THE UNDIMMED STAR.

Whatever light may be
Whatever glories shine,
The star that gleamed o'er Bethlehem
Burns still, and more divine!

Whatever dreams men dream
Of peace and world made fair,
Hearts, hoping, at one shrine they pray,
And that a stable bare.

Whatever creeds are spun,
Whatever science holds,
Triumphant is the Manger-Babe!
Love reigns as love unfolds.

Whatever challenge rings,
Whatever voices cry,
Life's best is only linked with Him,
For Christ can satisfy.

—Frederick A. Earle
in M. P. Herald.

dom of the wise. The spirit of Jesus, of good-will, of peace on earth, will prevail on Christmas Day and make it a season of joy and gladness. "When they saw the star, they rejoiced with exceeding great joy." The Star is still visible to the wise ones, though invisible to the wicked. And so the Herods, the wicked ones of earth, will have to inquire, but they can only inquire until they deny themselves of or renounce the world's wickedness and waywardness, and join the company of the wise who seek him.

Whole families will rejoice in happy reunions, and the song of angels will again burst through the night air to amaze the faithful shepherds, and all who are faithful and in their hearing the heavenly host will again sing, "Glory to God in the highest, on earth peace, good-will toward men."

The company of wise men has increased from three to millions, who, in one way or another, will now press forward through Christmas night with their gifts, love gifts of gold and frankincense and myrrh, for now as of old he attracts the wise, and the wise will seek him out to do his will and sing his praise.

This is Christmas. Glory to God in the highest, and may he lead and bless us all.

J. O. A.

A FAIR ADJUSTMENT.

Things, in a measure, get evened up. The world has a way of doing that. It is another way of saying that there is compensation in life. Cold is biting, but how sweet the warmth of a glowing fire. Tears are bitter, but how happy the smile of contentment, the laughter of delight. "It is a fair, even-handed, noble adjustment of things," declares Charles Dickens, "that, while there is infection in disease and sorrow, there is nothing in the world so irresistibly contagious as laughter and good humor." Laughter is contagious. It would not be fair, it would not be noble, if disease were contagious and brought us pain and sorrow, unless laughter and joy were contagious and brought us happiness and joy.

And so the world will catch the glad gleams of delight at Christmas, not only from the songs of angels and the twinkling stars, but the whole family will laugh with the laughter of the one that is happy.

We may not have much of this world's goods to distribute to others, but we can, if we will, in the spirit of this glad season, distribute our own feelings of good-will, our own joy of living, and loving, our own gladness and gratitude, at being alive and in a world like this. The Christmas spirit is contagious through the joy of glad laughter.

J. O. A.

A NOTABLE ADDRESS.

It is noteworthy that in a great meeting of ecclesiastics and laymen in Washington last week (the Federal Council of Churches), the palm of victory in speech making, according to the secretary and press reports, went to a layman, viz., Secretary of Agriculture Wallace. His address was declared to be the supremely high point of the three day-time sessions, and the report says:

"Many who heard Mr. Wallace felt that his message was one of the most arresting addresses given in any church program in many years." The impression left by the picture of this distinguished public official (member of the President's Cabinet) pleading for "changed hearts" as the only ultimate cure of our economic situation was moving in the extreme. Laying aside his manuscript, he called upon ministers and other teachers to devote themselves to making unselfish hearts, eager and willing to serve the common good, while others in public life develop the changed social machinery to match the changed hearts.

Every reader must know that the social machinery cannot stabilize American life, nor can any economic program change individual hearts.

Quoting once more:

"The inspiring quality of Mr. Wallace's address, to which he gave the title, 'Statesmanship and Religion,' can hardly be conveyed without an appreciation of the religious quality of his own personality. As his address showed, he has been profoundly influenced both by the Old Testament prophets and by the life and teaching of Jesus. He appealed to his hearers not to assume that the dogmas of competition and of selfish individualism—which he characterized as a "dog-eat-dog philosophy"—must prevail in human society. His point of view may be summarized in this quotation:

"I know that the social machines set up by this administration will break down unless they are inspired by men who in their hearts catch a larger vision than the hard-driving profit motives of the past. More than that, the men in the street must change their attitude concerning the nature of man and the nature of human society. They must develop the capacity to envision a cooperative objective and be willing to pay the price to attain it. . . . The religious keynote, the economic keynote, the scientific keynote of the message must be the overwhelming realization that mankind now has such mental and spiritual powers and such control over nature that the doctrine of the struggle for existence is definitely outmoded and replaced by the higher law of cooperation. Then the vision of Isaiah and the insight of Christ will be on their way toward realization."

Secretary Wallace knows, with the rest of us, that the man in the street will not and cannot change his attitude unless his heart is changed from the motivating power of selfishness to that of unselfishness through the pursuit of righteousness. At any rate, this distinguished layman, brought up in a Christian home and fed on the words of the prophets and the rich fruits of the Old and New Testaments, through his childhood days, gave the preachers and the world a message and an example worth thinking about. If Secretary Wallace knows as well how to manage the Department of Agriculture as he does how to preach and plead for the souls of men, the country need have no fears about one department, at least, of our national government.

J. O. A.

THE PRIVILEGE OF WORK.

A friend of mine has gone to work for the City. He takes a big hoe every morning and starts out with a gang of workmen to clean and improve the city streets. He has never done such a thing before. He never did that kind of work any where at any time. He has worked with his hands, of course, writing, drawing maps and pictures, lettering and such things. He has taught school and canvassed and done numerous other things, but never has he worked in a "gang" under a boss, steadily out under the sun. He has been out of work for many months with a diminishing purse and a discouraged spirit, but this new work has come to him as a godsend. He can work now at honest, hard work, wholesome labor and is paid for it in good money. What a blessing! He will be able to meet his insurance premium and some other obligations. Work with him is a great privilege.

Another friend came to see me the other day. He solicits for a tailor and sells good tailor-made suits, but business has dropped off and he is working for the city also. He feels it is a good way to turn an honest dollar. These two men do not feel humiliated. They do not feel ashamed to be found in the large company of workers. They are glad of the chance and moreover they have found many other men of parts working with them side by side. Some are architects and some one thing and some another, all brought into the same fellowship by the same need—the need for work and the desire to work for pay. The Federal Aid is surely doing a world of good. It is making men feel honorable in working. It has no flavor of "charity" and there is connected with it no disgrace.

How many there are yet who will not work to earn a living! The other day a woman made a demand on a welfare society for money to pay rent and provide food. She had a husband, able-bodied and strong, but unemployed. When the welfare worker offered real work provided by the city she declared that her husband would never do that! Well, there you have it. Work is honorable and when offered by the government and paid for in good money it ought to prove a privilege and a benefit to all who need it. Especially is this true when the labor expended is constructive and adds to the benefit of city or state where it is performed. Let no man who is able to do so decline to earn an honest dollar with the Federal Aid or any other wholesome labor offered by a welfare society. E. A. K.

A VISIT TO THE HOLY LAND.

"LIFE AND CUSTOMS IN PALESTINE."

By ROY C. HELFENSTEIN.

[This is the eighth in a series of delightful and illuminating articles, by Dr. Helfenstein, Minister of the People's Congregational-Christian Church, Dover, Del.]

In every country of the old world the people have the custom of extending greetings and well wishes to their friends in a very expressive manner unique to each country. For instance, in Germany when a group sits down at a table to dine, each greets the other, "I hope you have a good appetite." When they meet on the street, they say "May God greet you." In Syria, when parting from each other, they say, "May you live forever." In Palestine the greeting among the Arabs which largely predominate the population is "Rif Habuk," which is our way of saying "How do you do?" The reply given is "Mapsut Hamadour Allah," or "Good, thanks to God." So in every country expressive greetings and partings peculiar to the country are heard continually by a visitor as he passes among the people.

Palestine has a population of 1,050,000, according to the latest census. Of this number, there are 175,000 Jews, the rest, or four-fifths of the total population, being mainly Arabs. The Hebrew University at Jerusalem gave us the information that during the two years since the census was taken, the Jewish population has increased 15,000 largely due to immigration in connection with the Zionist Movement.

The number of Jews in Palestine before the Zionist Movement began was considerably less than the figures given in the census. Jerusalem, the principal city, has a population of 90,000, sixty per cent of whom are Jews.

When we speak of the Life and Customs in Palestine, we naturally have in mind the rank and file of the people. Of course there are a number of natives of the more cultured class, as well as a number of foreigners in the cities of Palestine whose life and customs differ but little from that of their relatives living in this country. But the vast majority of the people of Palestine live in villages and in the open country. And it is them we have in mind when thinking of the life and customs of the land.

However, the condition of most of the natives who live in the cities of Palestine is but little better, if any, than that of the peasant class. Their home conditions are practically the same, their life and customs differ only in reference to their pursuits for a livelihood.

In the cities many of the native Palestinians make their living in "buying and selling to get gain," there being great numbers of little shops and stores in every center of population. The Jews in Palestine run true to form in regard to their commercial proclivities. Many of them are in business. Their cousins, the Arabs, follow close seconds in this realm of interest. Others in the cities are engaged in various kinds of hand-crafts, such as silversmiths, pottery makers, shoemakers, wood-workers, stone cutters, etc. The day laborer in the cities gets thirty to forty cents a day. The tradesman or skilled laborer and mechanic gets fifty cents to a dollar a day. Servant help in the better homes can be secured for two to three dollars a week. But the rates at the first-class hotels, which are largely supported by visitors from the western world, are practically seventy-five per cent of what the same accommodations would cost in our country. Of course the hotels patronized by the natives have very low rates.

The people in the country and villages largely make their living by keeping flocks of sheep and goats or by farming and fruit growing. Herding sheep and goats offers employment to a great many of the people. The sheep provide wool for clothing and meat for food. The goats provide hair for cloth, milk for the family and for sale, hides for various purposes, and meat for food. Because of the fact that the goat serves more purposes than the sheep, goats are more numerous than sheep, though there are great numbers of flocks of sheep.

It is nothing uncommon to see a shepherd lad leading a flock of two hundred and fifty large black goats up the mountain paths to find a grazing spot. But the shepherds of sheep seldom have more than a hundred and fifty to two hundred sheep in their flocks. Another reason that goats are more numerous is that they can climb steeper ascents than can the sheep, and thus find grazing patches which are impossible for the sheep to reach. The goats are also hardier and need less attention, though both animals have to be constantly protected from the wild animals such as hyenas, wolves and jackalls, the which are a constant danger to the flocks, and a constant concern to the shepherds. The shepherd life in Palestine today is a most interesting study, and to talk to the shepherd through an interpreter rewards one with much valuable information that throws light upon many of the Psalms and the words of Jesus.

Goats furnish seventy per cent of the milk supply of Palestine. And, while goat milk has no cream, it is nevertheless much richer than cow's milk and therefore naturally has much greater food value. It is especially good for babies and growing children. A dozen goats can be kept in Palestine much more cheaply than can a single cow, hence few cows, proportionately, are found in the smaller villages of Palestine, where nearly every family has its goat. Herdsmen go to the various homes to gather the village goats each morning and take them out into the country to herd them through the day. This same practice is found even in the cities. Then at evening time, the flocks are brought back, the goats being taken from the herd by their owners as the flock is driven by the house or shop. The wife or one of the children will milk the goat, after which the goat will be privileged to go about the home as he may wish, for the goat in Palestine, though not a sacred animal, as is the cow in India, yet because of being a source of sustenance for life, the goat is a privileged animal in the Palestinian home. Why shouldn't it be, they reason; it provides milk for the family, and besides is a pet for the children, in addition to providing material for cloth for the family needs. Besides the goat herds going out from the villages and cities, there are thousands of herds owned by the peasant folk in the country who are engaged in the stock raising business.

But the flocks of sheep in Palestine make a far more interesting picture than do the flocks of goats which are so numerous. The sheep flocks make a most interesting picture as they are seen climbing the mountain side or while feeding on top of a hill while their shepherd stands silhouetted against the sky, keeping guard with rod and staff in hand, his "umbaz" or skirt fluttering in the breeze. Then, too, there is something appealing about the expression on the sheeps' faces and eyes as you pass the flocks along the roadside, or watch them drinking at a watering place, their docility and gentleness, their plaintive cry when hurt or frightened, their characteristic bleating expression, their look of contentment, and the graceful lines of their bodies, all these make the flocks of sheep in Palestine to be of unusual interest. It is not strange that artists have so often chosen a flock of sheep and the shepherd on his homeward way at evening time as an object for painting.

(Continued on page 7.)

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

It may be of interest to SUN readers, in the Eastern Virginia Conference, to give some facts and figures from the church reports for the year 1933, as submitted to the recent session of the Conference. The church reports for the year showed that 291 new members were received on confession of faith during the year; 108 members were received by letter. Losses were shown as follows: By death, 95; by letter, 87; by dismissal or revision of church roll, 896; total gains for the year, 399; total losses for the year, 1,078. The net loss in membership for the year was 679. Present membership of the Conference is 9,909.

For Conference apportionments the churches paid $5,200.11; for Missions, $7,620.00; for Orphanage, $2,490.00; for other benevolences, $4,807.00; for pastors' salaries, $30,990.00; for other expenses and building equipment, $42,459; total raised for all purposes, $93,566.11. Total value of church property in the Conference, $1,271,300.00.

These figures, in comparison with previous years, show a decided decrease in membership and amount of money raised. For the year 1932 the churches received 500 new members, and raised for all purposes $115,619.66. These facts are not presented to strike a note of pessimism, but to suggest a challenge for the year 1933-34. It may not seem possible during the new year to increase the amount of money raised for all purposes. Although it is possible to make a decided gain in that direction. Very few people, or very few churches, did their very best during the year just closed. But there is one phase of the past year's record which should call us to renewed effort to go forward in the work of the churches. There is no valid reason why the Conference should lose so many members in one year. The largest item in the losses is under the head of "dismissal or revision of the church roll." Of course, it is evident that the revision for the year 1933 was unusual in the gross loss of members.

Now winning souls for Christ, and the church, can be done during a depression as easily as in times of prosperity. The need is always great. The opportunity is evident in many places. In some of the rural districts the churches have very limited fields for growth in membership. But it does seem possible that in every church there is a great opportunity to seek to cultivate the love and loyalty of the present membership of the churches both in the rural and in the town and city churches. The church has not discharged its full responsibility when it has received a person into its fellowship. The work has just begun when that point is reached. The records show that a very large per cent of the church members do not contribute to the current expenses or benevolent funds of the church. Who is to blame for this condition? The new members are not always to blame. Quite naturally they often wait for a personal invitation to participate in the work of the church.

Sometimes the fault lies with church officials, including the pastor and the older church members. They are busy people and do not always take the time and display the interest in the church and the new members to present the claims and opportunities to every member. For obvious reasons the work is put off until a more convenient season, which sometimes never comes to many people. In the meantime, the new members, or the members who live too far from the church to attend the regular services, begin to drift. A few Sundays at home, or at some attractive place of amusement, and the devotion to the church begins to wane. The person whose soul was hungry for rich spiritual fellowship, begins to feed upon the husks which the swine eat; and the sun begins to set at noon-day, and all the promise of glorious growth and service ends in failure and disappointment.

Set your mind and heart upon the inactive members in our churches, and hold them for real service in the kingdom of God. We should not lose them. We should pray to win many new members this year.

I. W. JOHNSON.

ELON AND THE ASSOCIATION.

In the South we have an association of universities, colleges and secondary schools. The institutions constituting this association are required to meet and sustain certain standards. These requirements have to do with equipment, faculties, and endowment. The purpose of the association is to raise the standard of instruction given by institutions and schools in this particular area. Elon College is on the approved list and enjoys the support and commendation of the association. This means much to our school. At the recent meeting of the association held in Nashville, Tenn., the committee greatly encouraged us by its attitude and counsel. However, we are exhorted and warned to improve our financial conditions if we are to continue to enjoy prestige with the association. I am sure that the Alumni, the members of the church, and the friends of the College will be glad to rally to our support. Already there is increased evidence of interest in Elon throughout the church.

Our appeal for a Christmas offering this year resulted in considerable increase over last year and indications are that a more united effort in behalf of the College will be put forth in January and February than we have had in years. Every conference in North Carolina and Virginia has by vote assured its pro rata share of the $25,000.00 to be raised for the College this spring. The amount to be raised directly by the churches themselves requires an average contribution of fifty cents per member. A number of churches have already assured me that their quota would be raised.

I received a check in the morning mail from Brother T. J. Holland, paying in full what the church at Ambrose, Ga., would be expected to pay on a basis of fifty cents per member. It would be most encouraging, indeed, if a large number of the churches would follow the example of the Ambrose Church. Brother Holland was the first interested member to write in and suggest that the churches and Sunday Schools of the Convention join the Dollar-a-Month Club. He sent in his membership and has kept his dues paid regularly.

Miss Priscilla Chase of the Board of Christian Education has been most helpful in working out a program for Sunday Schools, Christian Endeavors, and Young People's Societies for their meetings on Elon College Day, January 14th. These programs are being prepared in the office and will be mailed out in a few days. It has required some thought, effort, and expense to get these programs to the various organizations of the Convention. It is our hope that everyone receiving these programs will see that they are used. These organizations can help tremendously in bringing the College effectively before the church and securing full cooperation on the part of all for the support of the College. If you are interested in the program and your Sunday School, Christian Endeavor, or Society does not receive a program, please drop me a card and I will see that one is forwarded at once.

January and February are fine months to present the claims of the College in our church.

We have made our offerings to the Orphanage and Ministerial Relief. I trust they have been generous. The offering for Missions does not come until later in the spring.

In keeping with the plan of the Convention, the College is to receive the major emphasis during this period. The Sunday Schools, churches, societies, pastors and people alike will join hands and hearts in a consecrated effort for Elon.

Elon College is our College. We have built it. It has served us. It is not only a responsibility, but it is a privilege to support it. It is my hope and prayer that every one will see that he has some part in the College offering during the College period.

L. E. SMITH, President.

HOLLAND LADIES' AID ANNIVERSARY.

Monday night, November 20th, a very significant social event was held at the Holland Christian Church. It was sponsored by the Ladies' Aid Society of the church, which had just celebrated its 33rd anniversary.

About 175 members and visitors were present and a full program of social events was carried out by many who were there. It was no money making affair, but a coming together for a social good time. Every organization in the church was asked to come prepared to put on a stunt which they did in a fine way. It is hoped to make this an annual event.

The Ladies' Aid Society was organized by Mrs. W. V. Leathers, November 13, 1900, with the following officers: President, Mrs. I. A. Luke; vice-president, Mrs. A. T. Holland; assistant secretary, Mrs. Floyd Williams; treasurer, Mrs. M. O. Holland; corresponding secretary, Miss Maggie Holland. Others who were also charter members were: Mrs. R. H. Reidel, Mrs. Job G. Holland, Mrs. R. H. Holland, Mrs. Billy Parker, Mrs. R. W. Holland, Miss Tina Holland, and Mrs. F. D. Carr.

Mrs. G. D. Overman is the present efficient president of the society, and a splendid program of activities has been outlined for the coming year. The pastor gave a short history of the society, calling attention to some of the outstanding accomplishments of the past, such as purchasing a pipe organ for the new church at a cost of $1,800, a new piano, and paying off a recent note of $500 on the parsonage debt.

A lot of new shrubbery has just been planted about the church building. W. M. JAY.

TIMBER RIDGE MEETINGS.

An inspiring meeting on Sunday night, December 10th, brought to an end the series of evangelistic services held at Timber Ridge Christian Church. The audience on the closing night filled the church to overflowing. The entire series was marked by a large attendance and great interest. The evangelist, Mrs. Margel Spencer, of Culpeper, Va., occupied the pulpit throughout the meetings. This evangelistic effort resulted in a large spiritual increase to the whole church. The visible result of the meetings was the winning of twenty-three who surrendered their lives to the Master for the first time and the reconsecration of five others. There were twenty-six additions to the church fellowship. The Rev. A. R. VanCleave is pastor of the church.

A VISIT TO THE HOLY LAND.

(Continued from page 5.)

The shepherds of Palestine arise at daybreak so as to take their flocks to the grazing grounds in the cool of the day. Sometimes they have to walk several miles before they find good pasture land. It is a beautiful sight to see the shepherd leading his flock. The shepherds in Palestine always go ahead of the flock when going out in the morning in search of a good feeding place. In the evening when returning home, the shepherds follow the flock so as to watch the stragglers, and to protect the sheep from the wild beasts which try to steal up behind the flock. But in the morning, as stated before, the shepherd always goes ahead to lead the way, and to frighten away any wild animals or serpents that might be hiding along the way. Jesus knew so well this practice. How often he had seen the shepherds leading their flocks out to graze for the day. How the picture of it all impressed him, as it impresses any visitor to Palestine today, for the shepherd's life is one of the unique things about Palestine. Recall the words of our Lord in his appealing discourse on the Good Shepherd as he portrayed the practice of every faithful shepherd in Palestine of his day and of our day. "He called his own sheep by name, and leadeth them out. And when he putteth forth his own sheep, he goeth before them, and the sheep follow him, for they know his voice." As one sees the shepherds with their flocks in the Bible lands today, so many of the passages of the Bible come tripping into the mind. It was a great delight to learn about the shepherd life direct from the shepherds in Palestine who lived off the beaten path of travel, and to have our questions answered through our interpreter—a native who had studied in the missionary school in Jerusalem.

The shepherd's life in Palestine is a hard life today, just as it has always been. His hours are long and his responsibilities exacting. He is responsible for finding good grazing ground each day for his flock, and the fact that scores of other shepherds in his vicinity are on the same quest, makes his task the more difficult. He must keep his sheep or goats from getting into the fields of grain, here and there along the way. And this is a real task as there are very few fences of any kind in Palestine. So he has to train every member of his flock to follow him straight by the fields of hay or grass, and the garden patches that look so tempting. You can imagine the difficulty of his task in keeping a hundred or more sheep together, for if one should leave the flock and enter the forbidden field, all would start to follow immediately, the which seems so characteristic of sheep and "some people." Then the shepherd would have to pay a heavy damage according to the law of the land, there being a heavy penalty imposed upon any shepherd for allowing his sheep or goats to enter another person's field. And he has to pass right by scores of such fields unprotected by fences every day as he takes his flocks to the various spots for pasturage.

But a little guttural warning sound from the shepherd's throat as they near the field seems to hold the tempted members of the flock from straying into the field and to keep the flock together. If one of the flock starts to break away from the others as if to enter the inviting field of grain, a word from the shepherd if spoken in time is enough to make it scamper back to the fold. "They know his voice."

You can scarcely find a shepherd in all of Palestine who has had years of experience who will not show you scars on his hands and arms received from the sharp teeth of the wolf or other wild animal when he was trying to defend some lamb in his flock with his rod and staff from these murderous enemies of his flock. "The good shepherd giveth his life for the sheep. It was so in Jesus' day. It is so today. The shepherds in Palestine gladly give their own lives for the safety of the sheep. And they are as proud of the scars they received from combats with the wild animals while defending their flocks as the German students are to show their scars received in their dueling or as the soldier is of wounds received in battle.

At times the grazing gets so poor near where the shepherds live, that they are required to take their flocks far into the mountains several miles from home, carrying along food provisions for the week, returning at the end of the week. At such times, the different shepherds herding in the same vicinity bring their flocks together at night around a little campfire, for the nights are very cool in Palestine, each flock huddling together in separate units. They know the group to which they belong. And the shepherds spend the early evening hours in relating their experiences of the day, telling stories, and playing wierd tunes on their crude-looking shepherd reed flutes—quite similar no doubt to the simple flute on which the lad David played when he tended his father's, Jesses' sheep in the long ago on those same hillsides and over those same mountains where shepherds watch their flocks today. As darkness falls like a mantle over the group of shepherds and their sheep, they take turns watching over the flocks—one shepherd awake in the center, and one awake outside the ring of huddled sheep on guard against wild beasts and on guard against sheep robbers who watch their opportunity to snatch away sheep from the sleeping flocks, the same as chicken thieves operate in our own country, practicing their thieving under the cover of darkness. Thus today, as yesterday, "keeping watch over their flocks by night," the shepherds of Palestine protect the otherwise helpless sheep, for a sheep is the most defenseless of all animals.

(The next article will be on "More About the Life and Customs in Palestine.")

Lord, never was a magnet so powerful to draw to itself the hard steel, as thou, the Lord, lifted up on the cross, art powerful to draw unto thee the hearts of men.—Henry Suso.

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5½ inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

Nos. 01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges $2.75

01603 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, head-band, book-mark $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4¼ x 1¼ inches.

Type in Junior's Bible — 2 Take the sum of all the of the children of Isra-el, 70 years old and upward, thro

Nos. 1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine Bibles $2.95

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5½ x 3¾ inches.

Specimen of Type

a My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God. 10 Mercy and truth gather; righteousness/ kissed each other. 11 Truth shall spring

Nos. 02112 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6¾ x 4½ inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed. 10 For a day in thy courts is better a Gen. 15, 1 b Ps. 56, 1 c 57, 1 d or, all

Nos. 07523x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07523x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x $5.00

OUR LEADER

Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8½ x 5½ x 1½ inches.

Specimen of Type

8 ¶ Jē-hōy'-ā-chin was 6 years old when he began t

Nos. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, leather lined to edge, silk round corners, red under edges, silk

A UNIQUE GIFT BIBLE

With Basket Weave Binding

The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges. With references. Printed on Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible. $5.50

Nos. 03255x

As No. 03255x, with concordance, No. 03276x $6.50

Oxford TEACHERS

Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date helps, conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7¼ x 5 x 1¾ inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave; death shall feed on th

Nos. 04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and handsome Bible $4.35

some Bible Oxford India Paper Edition

Only one inch thick.

0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary

A HIGHWAY FOR OUR GOD.

Isaiah was writing. Centuries afterwards another was writing to the Hebrews. Since then, and all in between, others have been writing with their lives and with their blood. All had one thing in common—they heard a voice, saw a vision and won a victory. These are the bravest of the brave. There was no blast of trumpet or sound of bugle calling them. Theirs was a different call—a call from within, which is to say from above, to venture out to their death; to show men how to live. They never made the headline on the front page, and in history, written by man's feeble hand, they have received scarce notice. But we think of them now as Christmas approaches, for every year, through the centuries, areas for Christmas celebration have been enlarged through their activities.

One comes to mind now (the annals of the heroic are full of them). This one went to an island of cannibals. They told him before he went what his fate would likely be. Undaunted he went. After a few brief months, in his daring for righteousness, where righteousness was not wanted, those to whom he had gone decided they would rather have his flesh to roast and eat than his words and works of love. The news came back that this man had been slain, his body eaten; and then the Board that sent him out, said: "Who will go for us?" And that man's son said, "I will go." He went. After a few months he suffered the fate of his father, and again the Board said, "Who will go for us?" A dozen young men, hearing a voice, heeding a vision, said, "We will go." A half dozen of them went. And this explains why the peoples, to whom they went, became Christians and will this year celebrate Christmas, as they have done for several years past now. The vision and the voice won the victory and gave them Christmas.

Such lives as these another has described with words that cannot be excelled:

"Who through faith subdued kingdoms, wrought righteousness, obtained promises, stopped the mouths of lions? Quenched the violence of fire, escaped the edge of the sword, out of weakness were made strong, waxed valiant in fight, turned to flight the armies of the aliens. Women received their dead raised to life again; and others were tortured, not accepting deliverance; that they might obtain a better resurrection. And others had trial and cruel mockings and scourgings, yea, moreover of bonds and imprisonment: they were stoned, they were sawn asunder, were tempted, were slain with the sword; they wandered about in sheepskins and goatskins; being destitute, afflicted, tormented (of whom the world was not worthy); they wandered in deserts, and in mountains, and in dens and caves of the earth."

There are men and women still in the earth and still going forth to subdue kingdoms, work righteousness, obtain promises; all in obedience to a vision and a voice, and they will keep on doing this sort of thing in ever-increasing numbers till this whole world shall know and acknowledge him who gave us Christmas and about whom the angels sang. There are fifty thousand of them in the world today, I mean out in fields afar, and they are there at the sacrifice of all that we call comfort and pleasure. They are there in obedience to the voice that bids them do and dare beyond their strength and beyond all earthly computation. There are today 36,500 churches with four million communicants, and adherents swell the number to eight and one-half million, who have been won to the ways of righteousness and peace on earth by those who saw a vision and heard a voice. They are distributing twenty-five million copies of the Bible a year in 855 languages and dialects. Nearly three million pupils are being educated in over 500 missionary schools ranging from kindergartens to great universities, half of this number being students in colleges and universities founded and carried on by missionaries. There are today 104 leper asylums, 32 schools for the blind and 361 orphanages—out in pagan lands, lands where they are learning of the love and lifting power of their Lord, only through men and women who have heard the voice. These men and women did not go out for money. They did not go out for prestige nor for power. There is not any explanation of them except that of Paul, who had a vision, heard a voice, and was not disobedient. J. O. A.

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.

WEEK ENDING DECEMBER 16, 1933.

Sunday Schools.

Previously acknowledged	$	828.59
Rocky Ford, Fancy Gap, Va.		1.56
Elk Spur, Fancy Gap, Va.		.75
Richland, Ga.		2.00
Caver's Grove, Newell, Ala.		1.00
Mt. Bethel, Stokesdale, N. C.		1.43
Morrisville, N. C.		1.25
Hines' Chapel, Gibsonville, N. C.		3.00
Wadley, Ala.		1.00
Mayland, Broadway, Va.		1.00
Union Grove, Seagrove, N. C.		.65
Leaksville, Luray, Va.		1.79
Mt. Gilead, Louisburg, N. C.		1.65
Total	$	845.67

Individuals and Churches.

Previously acknowledged	$	629.57
Marvin Gunn, Reidsville, N. C. (Happy Home Church)		1.00
Ebenezer, Morrisville, N. C.		1.90
Mr. W. B. and Mrs. Sallie Madison, Wentworth, N. C. (Howard's Chapel Ch.)		5.00
Total	$	637.47

Coin Card Offering.

Previously acknowledged	$	54.10
Y. P. Class, No. 2, Mt. Auburn S. S., Manson, N. C.		1.00
Total	$	55.10

Summary.

Previously acknowledged	$	5,986.48
Sunday Schools, Regular		17.08
Individuals and Churches		7.90
Coin Card Offering		1.00
Total to date	$	6,012.46

ONE UP FOR THE GIRLS.

Co-education is growing in India and the Feminist movement is one of the significant phases of the Indian National awakening, says Dr. A. J. Saunders of American College, Madura. This college has been cited by the Lindsay Commission as one of the "mother Christian colleges" in India, Madras Christian College being the other. Last year three young women were admitted to American College. They carried off several important prizes. This year there are ten women students.

MISSIONARIES.

Nkol Mvolan, meaning "Hill of Help," is a presbyterian station in Cameroons, West Africa. There, deeper in the jungle than any other Presbyterian missionaries, Dr. and Mrs. George W. Thorne tend the bodies and souls of blackamoors, some of whom still vividly remember their cannibal fathers and cannibal mothers.

Last Sunday night and the Sunday before, a short-wave broadcasting station in Pittsburgh took a half hour of worship to thousands of Presbyterians, Baptist and Methodist missionaries in every land. The Thornes in their house of thatch heard the words of scripture and a prayer in their own language; and also a sermon by Bishop Adna Leonard who concluded that the U. S. in the midst of all its troubles needed, even more than new laws, "the . . . spiritual note which will lift up Jesus Christ as the burning center of the church's faith to you devoted missionaries who are carrying the gospel of the Son of God to the Christless millions of the earth."

The Thornes waited expectantly through the service, and presently they heard: "To Dr. and Mrs. George Thorne . . . Fred and Mary join us in wishing you a happy Thanksgiving. It is our prayer that you may be able to carry your heavy load with faith and courage."

Other missionaries got messages, too. In a snug hacienda in Caracas, Venezuela, Presbyterian Dorothy Parnell got "from mother and father and Sister Harriet" this message: "Five minutes after you have heard this message read Hebrews 13:20-21. We will read it in unison with you, though the seas roll between us." The Parnells read:

"Now the God of Peace, that brought again from the dead our Lord Jesus, that great shepherd of the sheep . . . make you perfect in every good work to do his will . . . through Jesus Christ; to whom be glory for ever and ever.—Amen."

Next Sunday and many Sundays to come, worship and messages will go forth from Pittsburgh at 11:30 P. M., E. S. T.

U. S. friends can listen in on KDKA and part of the N. B. C. network.

Meanwhile there was drawing to a close last week a nation-wide re-affirmation of faith in Jesus Christ and his final command: "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost."

A team of 20 missionaries, sponsored by no less than 84 different denominational boards, set out last September for a tour of 29 major U. C. cities. Everywhere, audiences crowded upon them—a total last week of 300,000 people. Heading the team were Dr. Eli Stanley Jones, famed as an evangelist to high caste Hindus and author of "Christ of the Indian Road," and Hankow's Bishop Logan Herbert Roots, able and deeply beloved churchman. Potent speakers have also been President Herman Chen-en Liu of Shanghai University, whose grandfather became a Christian; well-poised Miss Wu, whom all China knows as the president of a handsome women's college at Nanking; and Dr. Charles Roger ("Charlie") Watson, Cairo-born president of the American University at Cairo.

The team was in Oklahoma City last week, on the last leg of their trip which is to end in Philadelphia December 15th. As they have in other cities, they began their first day by breakfasting with the Oklahoma churchmen who had made arrangements for their visit. Then followed a crowded mass meeting at the First Presbyterian Church. Later the Team deployed to speak in separate churches. Finally another mass meeting in Oklahoma City College auditorium where students presented a missionary play, "Ba Thane."—Time.

THE FUTURE OF THE AMERICAN BOARD.

We all thank God for the work of the American Board since its organization in 1810. There are many aspects of its history in which we take legitimate pride. It has functioned on a magnificent scale with unwavering loyalty to its purpose to make Christ known around the world. Generation after generation in lands afar will rise up to call our fathers and mothers blessed because of sacrificial service and sacrificial giving in the name of Christ.

The present, however, is no time to plead the cause of foreign missions by pointing with pride to the past. We are faced with such momentous issues at the present moment that nothing short of rethinking the principles and practices of our entire enterprise gives reasonable hope of commendable achievement in the future of a quality and on a scale which will match in our day the faith and courage and devotion of our predecessors in theirs.

This sense of the necessity for incisive and conclusive thinking about our task grows out of no feeling of panic or discouragement. It is the natural result of the development of western civilization and of world forces. We are probably no more at a crisis than our fathers have been at several other periods since the American Board came into being. The demand of the hour is to do as they have done—combine undying faith in our Lord Jesus Christ with eternal vigilance, clear thinking and courageous action.

If there is any one demand of the present moment which seems to overshadow all others, it is the question of how best to achieve our purpose. Today it is not enough to say that "Jesus Christ is our message." We may take that for granted. In one form or another—in the field of education as well as of social action, of medical service as well as of the production of Christian literature, in fact in all fields of endeavor—it is necessary to demonstrate how Christ serves men who are wrestling with the old as well as the new forces of evil.

A glance at the lengthening list of important books dealing with the conduct of the modern missionary enterprise in field after field underscores the demand for discriminating, diligent reconsideration of the way in which we should go about our task of making Christ known. The future of the American Board in no small measure depends upon our facing the realities with which these books deal. The greatest peril we face is to assume that foreign missionary work in the future is to be just what it has been in the past. Motives and fundamental convictions need not change but situations and relationships do change. Today they are changing so rapidly that it behooves us of the American Board, particularly of the staff and of the Prudential Committee, to make new and adequate plans for serious study.

At a recent informal meeting of several members of the Prudential Committee and several members of the Cabinet, a number of definite suggestions were made, looking toward a definite, united effort to undergird our administrative activities with more thorough study of the nature of the problems, chiefly of technique, with which we are constantly dealing. I venture to bring together these suggestions in a plan for study during the next twelve months. This plan assumes that members of the Cabinet and Prudential Committee and many of our missionaries and their national associates will undertake systematic study and research.

1. The Prudential Committee should make available to every mission a set of the Laymen's Foreign Missions Inquiry and in some cases more than one such set. In addition to these volumes, a carefully selected list of other important books should be made available.

2. The Field Committees and Home Base Committee—sub-committees of the Prudential Committee—should be asked to lay plans for careful study of all available, pertinent material dealing with their respective fields, with a view to a preliminary report on or about December 11, 1933. Their report should consist, first, of preliminary findings and, second, of carefully framed questions for further study.

3. A meeting of all the Field Committees with Messrs. Douglas, Fisher and Petty, and others of the Laymen's Foreign Missions Inquiry should be arranged some time in December to review the preliminary findings and the questions for further study.

4. These preliminary findings and questions for further study should be sent to our missionaries in the field before January 1, 1934, with the request that they be carefully studied on the field with every available resource and with a view to reports which should be in the hands of the Board at Boston not later than April 15, 1934.

5. Soon after April 15th there should be meetings of the various sub-committees on Fields and Home Base in which the reports from the missions would be studied and a preliminary draft made of recommendations for Prudential Committee action in October 1934.

6. During September and early October 1934, the various sub-committees should put in final form their recommendations, if any, for the plenary meeting of the Prudential Committee.

7. In connection with the plenary meeting of the Prudential Committee in October 1934, an additional day should be taken to bring together the results of the year's study and to outline and institute such changes in policy as may seem timely.

8. In order to facilitate the study by the various Field Committees, I suggest that in addition to the foreign secretaries especially concerned in each case, the following secretaries be assigned as co-opted members:

- China—Miss Calder, Mr. Outerbridge.
- Japan and Micronesia—Dr. White, Dr. Bell, Mr. Case.
- India—Miss Seabury, Miss Cushing.
- Africa—Miss Keith, Miss Widber.
- Near East—Miss Uline, Dr. Ward.
- Philippines and Catholic Countries—Dr. Bell, Miss Keith.
- Home Base—Dr. Eddy, Mr. Belcher, Dr. White, Miss Seabury, Dr. Merrill.

9. In addition to these studies field by field, we should probably look forward another year to topical studies, for example, medical work in all our missions, missions and industrial problems, education and government, etc. F. F. G.

ANGEL ANNOUNCEMENT.

By REV. W. W. STALEY, D. D.

(Luke 2:8-18; 2:16-17.)

[Editorial Note.—The following outline was used in delivering a Christmas sermon at 11 A. M., December 22, 1889, in the Christian Church, Suffolk, Va., by the late, lamented Dr. Staley, then pastor. It would be difficult to pack more of a real Christmas message into less space than is found in this outline, left among his unpublished papers.—J. O. A.]

"And they came with haste and found Mary, and Joseph, and the babe lying in a manger. And when they had seen it, they made known abroad the saying which was told them concerning this child."

Shepherds in fields keeping watch over their flocks by night—the angel of the Lord came upon them and the glory of the Lord shone around them; and they were sore afraid. The angel said: "Fear not"; this is a sign, "Ye shall find," and suddenly with angels multitudes of the heavenly host, when angels had gone away, said one to another, "Let us go," and "they came in haste."

I. Divine revelations contain opportunities of present and eternal import.

The angel revealed a new fact: the Babe was born. A Saviour born. Christ existed before the world was made—"in the beginning was the Word" (John 1:1-2). "With the glory I had with thee before the world was" (John 17:5). Jesus is a photograph of God.

II. Divine revelations accepted and used confirm human faith and glorify God. "They came in haste and found Mary, and Joseph, and the Babe lying in a manger." Mary and Joseph exalted humanity—the most honored and happiest family in Bethlehem that night, because Jesus was with them. The world excluded them, but they were with Jesus in the stall. The wise men came with gifts.

III. Divine revelations superior to all other claims upon humanity. "Left their flocks."

(1) A Saviour born unto you; (2) Men need a Saviour; (3) They returned, glorifying and praising God for what they had heard and seen. They found it just as the angel had said.

IV. Divine revelations tested in human experience should be made known to others. "They made known abroad the saying which was told them concerning this child." (1) By words; (2) By works. Christmas should make men rejoice and spread good news of salvation.

SUBSCRIBERS TO THE CHRISTIAN SUN

These Pens are of standard make, and will give good service. If you are in need of a Fountain Pen, order from us. Postage paid and Pens guaranteed by the manufacturer.

MEN'S PENS—Capitol, $2.00; Mercantile, $2.50; Cardinal, $3.00.

LADIES' PENS, $2.00.

COMBINATION OFFER—To a new subscriber or for renewal, $2.50, either Gentleman's (Capitol) Pen or Ladies' Pen, with guarantee of manufacturer. And to "Sun" subscribers, not in arrears, any Pen at one-fourth off. Address: THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 EAST BROAD STREET, RICHMOND, VIRGINIA

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."

REV. F. C. LESTER, Editor, 505 S. Main St., Norfolk, Va.

THE MOST FAMOUS BRIDE AND GROOM.

Who were they? Where did they live? What made them famous? No, it was not the Lindberghs who fly over the earth and are known and respected by people everywhere. Neither were they king and queen of some great country, although they were of royal lineage.

At Christmas time you should know them well. Joseph and Mary were the two. Scripture tells us but little about them before their marriage, and not a great deal afterwards. Joseph was an honorable man who would not bring disgrace on womanhood, a man who followed the trade of a carpenter, and obeyed the voice of God. He was descended from the house of David, Israel's greatest king. To the city of Jerusalem he went to the feasts annually with his wife and children. His home was in Nazareth, and the journeys were long, but Joseph was faithful to his family, to his church, and his God.

Mary was probably from the same royal house of David. We do not know. She was devout, she knew her Scriptures, she loved her children, she was loyal to all that was good. She was a virtuous woman, whose price is far above rubies. Around her head the imagination of the centuries has placed a halo, and to her name many bow down in worship. But the picture of Mary given in the Gospels, the only authentic record, is of a lovely human personality, the best type of mother.

The honeymoon of this noble couple was made several months after their marriage. They went from Nazareth to Bethlehem, a distance of about eighty miles, which is not far by automobile or train, but is quite a journey for those who walk, or ride on donkeys. They were among the lowly who traveled on foot, and could find no place in the inn. Nobody paid much attention to them on their way, or when they arrived. But angels sang of the birth of a Son, shepherds came in wonder to see, and Wise Men from afar brought offerings of gold and frankincense and myrrh to present in their worship of Mary's infant Son.

For nineteen centuries people have reveled in the beauty of the Bride and Groom whose first-born son changed the history of the world. Throughout the world this week and next thousands of people will pose as Joseph and Mary by improvised manglers, while millions will worship the Babe of Bethlehem. Honest Joseph and humble Mary from far-away Nazareth were the most famous Bride and Groom the world has ever known, and are surpassed in their majesty only by their most worthy Son, Jesus.

THE NIGHT BEFORE CHRISTMAS.

'Twas the night before Christmas. On the hills hard by Bethlehem shepherds watched their flocks. In the streets of the city travelers sought refuge from the chilly night, hostlers selected their guests according to their ability to pay, hucksters cried their wares, and beggars asked for alms. Business went on as usual, and very few cared how many Josephs and Marys made their beds among the cattle.

But scholars from the East inquired of Herod in Jerusalem concerning the place of the birth of the King of the Jews. Informed by the priests that Bethlehem was the place, the Magi hastened on the remaining six miles to the City of David. The guiding star led them to the cave where were Joseph and Mary, and the new-born Babe lying in a manger. With royal gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh, they adorned the trough of cattle, and with gladness they worshipped the little Lord Jesus. Shepherds came from the fields with angel messages, and returned glorifying God for what they had heard and seen.

Away in a manger, no crib for his bed,
The little Lord Jesus laid down his sweet head;
The stars in the sky looked down where he lay,
→ The little Lord Jesus, asleep on the hay.

So sang Martin Luther four hundred years ago concerning the night before Christmas.

On Christmas Eve, 1818, Joseph Mohr, assistant priest at Oberndorf, Germany, and Franz Greuber, a humble schoolmaster sang their newly composed "Silent Night" to the accompaniment of a guitar. Two years before James Montgomery, the son of a Moravian divine in England, caught the message of "Angels from the Realms of Glory," and called on all the world to "Come and worship, worship Christ the new-born King." In 1739 Charles Wesley, the founder of Methodism, wrote, "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing," and a year later the Jewish musician, Mendelssohn, set it to music.

"O Come, All Ye Faithful," has been the call of the church since the thirteenth century, when Bonaventure, a friar, bishop, cardinals, and other holy men chanted it as they marched into the Christmas service. The tune was written for the King of Portugal by the Chapel Master, one Marco of Lisbon, to be used as offertory by the choir as the people brought their offering to the Babe of Bethlehem.

It came upon the midnight clear,
The glorious song of old,
From angels bending near the earth
To touch their harps of gold;

"Peace on earth, good will to men,
From heaven's all gracious King,"
The world in solemn stillness lay
To hear the angels sing.

These beautiful words came from the pen of a Unitarian minister, and the music is by Richard Willis, an American composer.

One of the most loved of all the Christmas carols is "O Little Town of Bethlehem," by America's beloved Phillips Brooks of Boston. Beatrice Plumb says this is "a memory set to a dream tune." Three years before the writing, young preacher Brooks had spent Christmas at Bethlehem. When the poem was completed he asked his church organist and Sunday School superintendent, Lewis Henry Redner, also a young man, to set the words to music for the Christmas celebration. Young Redner readily agreed, but found no time until Saturday night, when he was too exhausted to write a line. In the night he was awakened by what he calls "an angel strain." Note by note he caught the music, and then joyously recorded it.

Since the angels sang in Bethlehem's plains long ago, joy has come to earth at Christmas time. Jews and Gentiles, priests and preachers, Methodists and Moravians, rich and poor, shepherds and scholars, people in every walk of life, sing of the Christ at Christmas. Let no frivolity, nor even Saint Nicholas, take the place of Jesus on the night before Christmas.

IMPORTANT HAPPENINGS OF 1933.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC FOR DECEMBER 31.
(Romans 8:28.)

Make this a watch-night service. Let the discussion period come first, then as the old year rings out and the new in have your worship program—a short, impressive worship period. The time between the evening church service might be a joyful few hours spent in going from home to home for brief prayer-meetings, or in a time of a fellowship, musical or get-together program. Colored covers of the magazines that present reviews of the world, and covers of the Christian Endeavor World will make an attractive decoration for the room.

Discussion Period—(Assign short talks to be taken from the following):

1. The Century of Progress opening on May 27th, has afforded great opportunities for recreation and education.
2. The Thirty-Fourth International C. E. Convention held at Milwaukee in July. The message of the Convention, "I Will be Christian." (Christian Endeavor World, August.)
3. A year of changes in government.
4. Aviation. Air Marshal Balbo and his squadron of Italian aviators visited Canada, the United States, and the Exposition, signaling the bringing of nations closer together by air travel. The Lindberghs made numerous flights in 1933, to help draw the people of the globe into closer relationship.
5. The repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.
6. What kind of a year has it been for my church? A life-work offered (Acts 16:1-5); an important meeting (Luke 24:13-32); a new vision of Christ (Matt. 17:1-9); a meeting with Jesus (Mark 10:46-52); a tragedy (Matt. 27:19-25); Sudden conversion (Acts 9:1-9).

Worship Period—Theme: "Beginning Again."

Hymns—"Day is Dying in the West," "An Evening Prayer," "The Morning Light is Breaking."

Thoughts—Study Scriptures given above. Have you had a new friendship established which has brought blessing to you? Have you taken Jesus into your confidence so that you could tell him the things dearest to you? Has your heart burned within you at his reply? Whoever pays the price can join the inner circle. But it takes renunciation and sacrifice and unlimited faith. The best visions are earned, not bestowed. Every day in 1933 has witnessed many complete reversals in living, with sin put aside and Christ accepted. In each case that experience is the outstanding event of the year and will dominate all the future. Let us pray for those who were reborn this year.

HAVE WE THE BEST FOUNDATIONS FOR LIFE?

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC, JANUARY 7, 1934.
Matt. 7:24-29.

(Consecration Meeting.)

Call to Worship—

God is the refuge of his saints,
When storms of sharp distress invade;
Ere we can offer our complaints,
Behold him present with his aid.

Zion enjoys her monarch's love,
Secure against a threatening hour;
Nor can her firm foundation move,
Built on his truth, and armed with power.

—Isaac Watts.

Hymns—"My Hope is Built," "How Firm a Foundation," "O God, Our Help."

In this first meeting of the New Year, all Christian Endeavorers should face frankly the foundations for the building of life as they have laid them in their own lives. Some are building on pleasure, others on prestige, and others on profit. Jesus said such a foundation was like sand, and we have seen many human structures fall in recent months because they were built on such insecure foundations.

(Continued on page 15.)

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE.

The writer of these notes takes this means of bringing the Season's Greetings to all those who may read these notes. To one and all he extends best wishes for a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.—H. S. H.

A VISION OF WORLD PEACE.

LESSON XIII—DECEMBER 24, 1933.

GOLDEN TEXT: "The earth shall be full of the knowledge of Jehovah, as the waters cover the sea."—Isaiah 11:9.

LESSON TEXT: Isaiah 11:1-9.

This is the Christmas lesson, but it does not deal with the stories centering around the birth of Jesus. It deals, instead with the theme of world peace. At first sight it would appear that the Lesson Committee might have done better. But a little thought will show that the Committee was wise after all. The story of Jesus' birth is well known to all. The implications of Jesus' birth are not so well known. The Committee has done well to remind us that if the ideals and the spirit of him who was born in Bethlehem nineteen hundred and thirty-three years ago, found application and expression in the world, it would usher in world peace and brotherhood and good will. It may be that we have not taken this Babe quite as seriously as we should have taken him.

It is significant that when the prophets spoke under the impulse of the Holy Spirit, they referred to the One Who Should Come as the Prince of Peace. He was to be called Wonderful Counsellor, the Mighty God, the Everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace (Isaiah 9:6). Furthermore when the angels announced his birth to the wondering shepherds they said, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men" (Luke 2:14). And Paul says, "The kingdom of God is not meat and drink, but righteousness, and peace, and joy in the Holy Spirit" (Romans 14:17). The Christmas season ought to be a time when we think of peace in all its phases and as applying to all of life.

The world today needs the message of peace. To be sure the nations are not at actual war. But there is suspicion and jealousy and hate and ill-will between nations that causes the war clouds to hang heavy over the civilized world at this Christmas season. And because this is true men go on talking about "greater navies" and the "largest armies" and the "strongest air force." And because this is true nations go on spending uncounted millions for military purposes, although the nations of the world are practically bankrupt, and broken economically because of the effects of the World War. And because of this the agencies designed to promote international peace and good will have been seriously threatened during the past few months. The Babe of Bethlehem would not find himself in a world at peace if he were to come into the world this Christmas season.

The same spirit of unrest prevails in large measure within nations. There is unrest and uncertainty abroad. There is instability and fear. People, from leaders down to the last man, do not know what is coming next, and like Herod they are "troubled at these things."

And how true it is that in so many human hearts there is restlessness and the lack of peace. There are so many troubled hearts, so many burdened hearts, so many divided lives. Faces wear a strained look, minds are distracted, nerves are frayed. When all the returns are in, one has to face the fact that there is need for some word about peace for the nations and for the individual. And that word is Christ, the Prince of Peace.

So far as the actual text of the lesson is concerned, it is a figurative, poetical description of the person and program of the One Who Should Come, that is Christ. In this beautiful and symbolic language there are set forth many phases of Christ's character.

A Branch Out of the Stem of Jesse.

Christ was a lineal descendant of Jesse. That family tree had in a way been cut off. But out of the root came one who was the true vine. In a real sense Christ was the son of David, using the word as a term for descendant of.

The Spirit of the Lord.

The Spirit of the Lord did rest upon him and abide in him. Jesus himself claimed that the prophecy to that effect had found literal fulfillment in him. And his ministry and his life gave abundant evidence that God dwelt in and worked through him. The spirit of wisdom and of understanding—he knew all things; the spirit of knowledge and of the fear of the Lord—he knew God at first-hand experience.

Judging in Righteousness.

Men judge unfairly. Christ knows our frame, he remembers that we are dust. He judges with righteous judgment. We shall all have justice, but we shall have more; we shall have mercy.

The Rod of His Mouth.

The prophet pictures the Messiah as smiting the earth with the rod of his mouth, and slaying the wicked with the breath of his lips. His words are quick and powerful and wickedness cannot permanently stand up against them.

Righteousness and Faithfulness.

He was sinless, here once at least was a perfect man. He was faithful in all things that the Father had committed into his hands. Righteousness, faithfulness, what a combination of great words!

The Golden Era.

In poetic language Isaiah foretells the coming of the Golden Age. It is an age of peace, peace which involves even the animal world. It is particularly an age in which children shall be safe. The present world is far from safe for children. There is not so much danger from animals, but children today are subject in many ways and in many forms to evils and forces more deadly than the animals mentioned by the prophet.

The Knowledge of the Lord.

Jesus said that the world did not know either God or him. It is because men do not know God that they do the things they do. In the Golden Age men shall know God for themselves, his knowledge shall cover the earth as the waters cover the sea—there shall be a universal knowledge of him.

World peace is not yet. Indeed it is a great way off. But we must not be weary in well doing, for in due season we shall reap if we faint not. As much as lieth in us, let us live at peace with all men.

THE LIFE OF PAUL.

LESSON XIV—DECEMBER 31, 1933.

GOLDEN TEXT: "I have fought the good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith."—II. Tim. 4:7.

LESSON TEXT: Phil. 3:1-14.

As we come to the end of the old year, and stand on the threshold of a new year, we should be thinking about our ideals and our goals in the spiritual life. For after all is said and done about New Year's vows and resolutions, they do have a legitimate place in life. Alas for the man or woman who does not from time to time, renew old vows, and take new ones. We need to be brought face to face with ourselves in the light of the ideal, and in the light of the imperfections and short-comings there revealed we need to set ourselves again to new standards of living, and to new measure of service.

How fortunate then, that on this the last Sunday of the old year, we have as our theme "The Life of Paul." We have been studying the man and his work during the past quarter, and we are in a position to sum up his qualities and to estimate his character. There was about the man much that we need to embody in our characters and to express in our service. His life suggests some ideals for the New Year.

To be sure it is folly to think that all of us can be like Paul in some ways. God has not given to us his brilliant mind, his genius for organization, his statesman-like grasp of things, his ability as a writer, his environmental setting, and other factors which entered into Paul's training. But there are qualities in Paul's life which we can covet for ourselves, and which we can develop by the grace of God. These notes will suggest a few of these qualities.

Courage.

One of the most striking qualities of Paul's character was his unquestioned courage. He was not afraid of physical danger. Again and again he kept a cool head and a stout heart when the "going was rough." But it was in the realm of moral and spiritual courage that Paul excelled. He allowed nothing to swerve him from duty, he followed truth wherever it led him, he bore witness under all circumstances, he refused to compromise his ideals no matter where he was. The man was one of the world's greatest moral heroes. And we can well pray that we shall have more of his spirit of courage as concerning the things of Christ and the church. We are too often moral cowards. We need courage.

Enthusiasm.

Perhaps the theologian would say that Paul had a great spiritual passion. I use the term enthusiasm. Call it whatever you will, Paul had something that all of us need—interest in and enthusiasm for Christ and his kingdom. The man was dynamic in his activities, he was forever taking advantage of his opportunities for speaking a good word for, or doing a good work for Christ, or he was making opportunities. He seemed to get a real "thrill" out of the thing. He had the power to fire others because he was on fire himself. We need more of Paul's enthusiasm. People can get so excited about and enthusiastic over so many things, but they seem to be dull and indifferent about religion and the work of the church. How interested are you in the work of the kingdom? How enthusiastic are you in your religious life?

Humility.

Paul was a great man. He knew he was a great man. But he did not boast about it, and he did not make capital of it. He remembered the humility of Jesus, and he embodied in his life to a remarkable degree the spirit of Christ himself. He did not boast of his race or his family or his religious heritage. He was not among his people as one who was to be served. But with a spirit of humility that could not be spoken against he became all things unto all men if by any means he might win some. He who would be great must be humble. We are so often careful about exalting ourselves, and so careless about being clothed in the spirit of humility.

(Continued on page 14.)

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy

CHRISTMAS DAY.

THE BIRTH OF JESUS.

"And she brought forth her first-born son; and she wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger, because there was no room for him in the inn."—Luke 2:1.

The story of the birth of Jesus is not only beautiful, but true and convincing. The one to whom the heavens have opened, from which he has received forgiveness from sin and hope, finds no difficulty in believing.

The one who, through a span of years, has been led by Christ's light does not ask for proof of the Christ. The one who has exposed his life to the living of the Christ life knows his own shortcomings and unworthiness, and has no difficulty in making room amid the crowding thoughts and affairs of everyday life for the presence of the Lord. He then knows that flesh and blood are the temple of the Holy Spirit, and realizes the kinship he has to God, and is happy despite untoward conditions and circumstances.

How much room are you giving him in your life? How much room is society giving him today? How much room is our government giving him? What are we all missing by not giving him room?

There seems to be plenty of room for wealth, ambition, politics, pride, show, pleasure, trade, dissipation, powers, armies, navies, wars; but for the Christ he has hardly gotten out of the stable.

Once again we are reminded that the eternal Son of God was born and that in him, and all that he represents, is God, and thereby a divine living for each of us, there to abide and work until he has redeemed the mind and set up the kingdom of righteousness.

This is the Christ whose birth we celebrate this day. Make all celebration worthy of him.

Prayer—

Spirit of God descend upon my heart,
Wean it from earth to joys that dwell above,
Lift me from weakness mighty as thou art,
Teach me to love thee as I ought to love.
Teach me to feel that thou art always nigh,
Teach me the struggles of the day to bear,
To check the rising tide, the rebel sigh,
Teach me the patience of unceasing prayer.
I ask no dreams, no passing ecstasy,
No ceaseless dwelling in this vale of clay,
Just send thy angel thoughts through opening skies
And take the dimness of my soul away.

TUESDAY.

THE JOY IN CHRIST.

"Behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy which shall be to all people, for (because) there is born to you this day in the City of David a Saviour which is Christ the Lord."—Lk. 2:10-11.

Centuries have rolled by since that eventful night when Jesus was born. The good news has been heralded by thousands and thousands during the passing years. Each year it gathers momentum until now from all parts of the world the grand chorus resounds, filling the air with its message of joy and hope, faith and love.

The coming of Jesus was a joy to the people, then, because it was the good news the Jews had been looking for throughout the ages—the hope of a Saviour from all their national troubles. That good news was broadened to "all people, the high and the low, the rich and the poor, the right and the wrong, etc."

The joy of it all lies in the word "Saviour." Man has long despaired of power to save himself. The Saviour takes up the cause of ruined humanity and saves it. He delivers man by forgiving his sins, endowing him with the Holy Spirit, healing the sick, feeding the hungry, comforting the afflicted, and, to every soul who sincerely looks unto him, he speaks as he spoke to the sinner on the cross, "This day shalt thou be with me in Paradise." Anywhere and everywhere this happens, the great burdens which crush humanity are lifted.

On wings of love he came to save
To pluck pale terrors from the grave,
And on the blood-stained Calvary
He won for man the victory.

—N. T. Carrington.

Prayer—Our Father and our God, Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, thy Son, we rejoice that thou hast given us Jesus whose blessings we need not hide from our brothers. Put out our little selfishnesses, Oh, our Father, extinguish the joys of pride and worldly pleasures, take away the walls that keep us from seeing human misery and out of the darkness let Jesus shine for all and make thou us this new year evangelists of him unto all the world.—Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

THE RELATION OF JESUS TO MANKIND.

"Behold my mother and my brethren."—Matt. 12:49.

It is noted that Christ, throughout his sojourn in this world, cherished for everybody a feeling so singularly fraternal that it won for him the title "The Brother of His Fellowmen." Looking upon a multitude he said, "Behold my mother and my brethren." Nor did he merely say this. At all times he seemed to make all feel that they were unspeakably dear to him. He was a lover of mankind. Even in the moral outcast he found something good. His purity quickened even robbers into a desire to share with him in his kingdom of righteousness. He was a blessing to all men because his sympathy flowed to any place where there was need. He loved men not for the place they held nor for what they possessed, but because of what they were capable of and would like to be.

Thus he mingled with men at their feasts, in their work, and in their joys and sorrows. To him the Father's kingdom was in the heart of man, and thus none was without the pale of his objective. His work was to build into the character of man the true motives and principles which rule the world in righteousness, and he staked everything upon it, even his own life. In all that he ever said and did he thus honored the Father and revealed that the destiny of man is union with God and each person also with him a Son of God.

Prayer—O Lord, our Father, live thou with us and in us this new year so that we can truly feel and truly say that we know Jesus as Saviour and know thee as Father. Give us the life ideal in him and a perfectly God-like life.—Amen.

THURSDAY.

THE BUSINESS OF THE BOY JESUS.

"The Son of Man is come to save that which was lost."—Matt. 18:11.

We are told that the word lost as applied by Jesus to a soul refers to the "true meaning and ends of life." He says that the sinner is like a sheep that has wandered away into the mountain, or like the prodigal son who banished himself from his home and father.

As Jesus undertook the task of saving the lost, he addressed himself particularly to the work of a new character. This work was that of making the soul new. He described it to Nicodemus as to be "born again." The new version says, "Ye must be born from above." The particular sins to which he referred pointedly as being the morass in which the soul was lost and from which the soul needed to be saved, were pride, hypocrisy, resentment, and unmercifulness. Nothing was so sinful to him as a selfish and merciless heart; the worst sins to him were the sins of disposition. His dealing with the self-righteous Pharisees who cloaked their deceit and selfishness under an ostentatious religiousness was one of the few instances in his career in which he got rough.

All sin has its seat in the heart and is manifested in a perversion and a corruption of the will. Christ came to change all this, to release man's heart from its evils and give it a freedom which truth, light, love and life brings. That freedom and that character consists in a sonship to God, and in a moral kinship like unto himself. His emphasis was upon the good life which opens before every man, and, through him any one and every one could be saved from all his sins by recovering the good life. The only salvation from evil is the realization and the desirability of good. Jesus is the epitome of that good, Saviour and God. Will we accept him this Christmas time and live for his eternal goodness this year?

Prayer—Our Father, and our God; we confess our faults and our sins. Like Paul, when we would do good evil is present with us. We feel the strong pull of many things that make us sin. We pray for that salvation of thy Son, our Saviour, that saves us from sin and makes us God-like, for today, tomorrow, and always.—Amen.

FRIDAY.

CHRISTIAN CHARACTER.

"The blood of Jesus Christ . . . purge your conscience from dead works to serve the living God."—Heb. 9:14.

The Christian world has reached a stage of development where it is fairly well agreed as to what are the principal qualities and duties of the Christian life.

It may be true that some people who profess genuine Christian character and represent the pillar—work of the church—are selfish, prejudiced and sectarian in their conduct; and it may be true that all of us still have too much of these traits in us; but it is agreed everywhere to a greater extent than ever before in the history of the world, that love, joy, peace, long suffering, gentleness, meekness, sympathy, humility, patience, tolerance, and charitableness are the coin which pass current for Christian character, it matters not where it is found, whether in the lowest or the highest strata of life, or whether one be a Daniel, or a Dago.

On the other hand, selfishness, hatred, bitterness, strife, envyings, murders, drunkenness, adultery, and lasciviousness, and their kindred, are admitted by all to be un-Christian. They are as unlovely and repulsive when seen in the life of Christians as they are in the moral pervert.

The coming of Jesus brought to the world sufficient fruit of the spirit for mankind's union with him, and he brought to us also by contrast sufficient perceptions of devilishness and the works of the flesh, that we all might be delivered from them.

Never before in the history of the world, we feel sure, did these traits both of Christian character and of the sinful character stand out in the plain sight of us all as they do now; and thus

(Continued on page 15.)

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Pastor.

CHRISTMAS DAY.

By A. P. VAUGHN.

"Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men."—Luke 2:14.

We must and do accept this angel song as the prophecy and promise of heaven, certainly to be fulfilled in its time in the world of men.

When peace shall over all the earth
Its ancient splendors fling,
And the whole world give back the song
Which now the angels sing.

That pledge is legal tender behind which, to redeem it, are all the resources of the spiritual realm. However insolvent human institutions today may seem in justice, the root, and peace, the fruit of good will, heaven is not bankrupt, nor the eternal impoverished. However confusing the dust and smother, the wrecking and reshaping of human social structures now, the Kingdom is building, not collapsing. It is rising on ever broader foundations that can not be shaken, rising ever higher, ever more beautiful. Of the increase of that government in righteousness and justice there shall be no end.

The present fires of world-wide distress, the flux of long-solidified social institutions, the boiling turbulence of social elements are making us ready for a remoulding of mankind through all its strata, into forms and institutions more in accord with fundamental justice; and only because of such justice, making possible a lasting peace and good will among men.

How pitifully slow man has been in learning the oneness of God's creation, the essential co-ordination of all his creatures, necessary and basic if his good plan is to be realized. How stubbornly we refuse this A. B. C. of wisdom, that only justice can fruit in well-being, that only good will can build up, only cooperation can profit men.

In limited measure we hold the rudimentary principles of this life, because line upon line God has patiently taught us their use in practice. God made the family a tiny natural laboratory wherein we might study, close at hand, in relations that we cannot escape and on a scale small enough for our powers to compass and master, the fact that, in practice, conflict is disaster; that good will alone is profitable; that unlimited cooperation, all for each and each for all, is essential; that love is elemental law. This we have proved by innumerable exhaustive experiment, resulting in certain failure when we disregard the law, in glorious success and blessing when we obey it.

But there we stick at the rudimentary lesson. We seem to have no will to venture the proved method on a wider field, no courage to put the law into effect in its wider scope in the human family. Here by habit we cling to the code of conflict and war.

"Man's extremity is God's opportunity—God's only opportunity it would seem, man being what he is. At the present moment man is at his wit's end because his policy of conflict and greedy getting, followed so whole-heartedly, has brought upon him such repeated and constant disaster, that he can find no faintest promise of escape. He is forced to see and acknowledge that war is only and always destruction. His code is nullified by its results; his will to power, his trust in might are futile. That is utmost extremity.

But man is not yet ready willingly to learn and accept the lesson. At a dozen points on the world's horizon war would blaze instantly but for one thing, the deathly fear of the certain deadliness of war. Not for the honor due God's law, not the impulse of dominant good will, nor the diluting and disappearance of hatred keeps peace today on any continent, but the fear of the cost of war, levied against every living soul.

Can the late acknowledgment of this reality become at last God's opportunity, and the final factor to turn men's wills to real acceptance and observance of his law?

During the present year the world stage has presented awe-compelling arrangements of the human scene in startling vivid color, panoramas of vast fear, with piling thunder-heads of conflict threatening all the treasures that mankind has accumulated through ages of slow climbing. It has also shown vistas of new hope with the widening sun-rays of justice and equity applied in most practical everyday working relations of industry and trade, to relieve the needs of multitudes that walked in darkness, to guide our feet into paths of peace.

No month has passed during 1933 that the civilized world has not gasped with shock at the audacities of Hitlerism in Germany. The outrage of hard-bought human liberties, rights and equalities; the utter blindness of men in sudden power to the moral sanctions upheld by world opinion and world practice; the arrogant proclamation of the superiority of the group in power over every other race, every other shade of opinion and social control, and the cold-blooded crushing out of all opposition; the absolute throttling of school and press, and the shackling of religion and faith to the chariot wheels of political conquest and tyranny—these are but a few of the frightful lines and features that make up that picture. To realize how black it is one has only to read again the words of that great German, Gustav Stresemann, at the time he was singing the Locarno treaty: "Together with the devastations of the World War, one fact emerges—that we are linked to one another by a common fate. If we go down, we go down together; if we wish to scale the heights we cannot do so in conflict with each other, but only by a community of effort. In this common effort must be sought the foundation of the future."

If there be any virtue, if moral law has any command in human society, if the hand of a righteous God still has potency in the affairs of men, the policies and practices of the Hitler regime have no stability, no foundation in the human future. They have no place in tomorrow's program unless man is to surrender all he has won in a long, painful, hopeful climb, and turn backward into night and the pit whence he was dug.

Yet even above this midnight darkness the sudden radiance of a heavenly host shines out anew. Above the clangor of armorers forging battle-gear, and the rumors of war, the angel song still lifts and overcomes the tumult of the night. "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men."

Still through the cloven skies they come
With peaceful wings unfurled,
And still their heavenly music floats
O'er all the weary world:

Above its sad and lonely plains
They bend on hovering wing,
And ever o'er its Babel-sounds
The blessed angels sing.

God's material creation is integrated into oneness, a universe. From galaxy to galaxy natural laws command, and are obeyed. Throughout God's creation of spiritual beings a like oneness is inherent; only by coordinated cooperation his kingdom must cohere, each creature in his place, attaining honor as he fulfills his function as a member of the whole body. "With God there is no respect of persons," no partiality or discrimination between one and another because of station or position or material possession. When men learn to imitate God in his obedience and unvarying observance of moral law, the world-old wrong of special privilege will end. Our government was founded on the principle that every man is equal before the law. That was new theory and ideal; and its practice has been very difficult, and often lacking.

But mark this; the present formulating and enforcing of recovery codes, without partiality or discrimination, throughout the United States, has been the greatest attempt to do away with special privilege, for the common good of all, since human society began—the most concerted, carefully organized and widely accepted attempt.

We are definitely, intentionally turning in vast multitudes to find and use moral social law scientifically. And we are finding, and will find, that it is the same law that God revealed to men, and his prophets have proclaimed to men for ages past. It is the same law that Jesus gave us as basic in all human actions and relations. It is the seed of that kingdom of the Child, the Prince of Peace, the Son of Man; the seed which shall awake and grow in man to mature and fruit in kingliness. Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end in that kingdom, to establish it and to uphold it with justice and with righteousness, from henceforth even for ever. The zeal of Jehovah of hosts will perform this. And this is the law of the kingdom, the law of its essence, the law by which it coheres, the great and first law: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy being; and the second is like unto it, thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

Grow then, Sons of Men, "rooted and grounded in love." There is no other soil. From the root of love alone can justice fruit, in individual life and in all social relations. From the root of justice alone can come the fruit of peace, between individuals, between groups, between nations and races. So the kingdom increases without end, alike in earth and heaven. So the prophecy of the angels must and can be realized, and the will of God be accomplished in earth as it is in heaven. Glory to God in the highest; and on earth peace, good will toward men."

And ye, beneath life's crushing load,
Whose forms are bending low,
Who toil along the climbing way
With painful steps and slow—

Look now! For glad and golden hours
Come swiftly on the wing;
Oh rest beside the weary road,
And hear the angels sing.

For lo, the days are hastening on,
By prophet bards foretold,
When with the ever-circling years
Comes round the age of gold;

When peace shall over all the earth
Its ancient splendors fling,
And the whole world give back the song
Which now the angels sing.

You will never enter into the life of rest and victory, you will never know what it is to be one with the Father in Christ through the Spirit, until you have learned the divine law that life is one, that you cannot sever the secular from the spiritual.—Webb-Peploe.

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

Our Thanksgiving offerings have come in very encouragingly this week, as our financial report shows. We are doing our best to reach $17,000 by December 31st. Several of our old boys sent us offerings this week. They graciously remember their old home at the Thanksgiving season.

Our financial report this week carries us up the ladder to $15,883.65 for the year. We just lack $1,116.35 of reaching our goal of $17,000. The climbing is a little hard, and it will take some pushing to help us reach it. How many of our church members really want to see us reach it? How many will be so interested that they will mail us a personal check to help push us up to the goal. Just one more united effort, one more good push and we will reach the goal. We plead for you to come to our rescue, quick.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON, Supt.

REPORT FOR DECEMBER 21, 1933.

Brought forward $14,217.23

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

North Carolina and Virginia Conference:
Durham	$ 14.34
Hines' Chapel	6.00
New Lebanon	7.80
Ingram	6.00
Greensboro, Palm St.	6.00
40.14
Western North Carolina Conference:
Pleasant Ridge	2.50
Eastern Virginia Conference:
Mt. Carmel	$ 6.41
Johnson's Grove	1.00
7.41
Valley Virginia Central Conference:
Leaksville	$ 1.57
Timber Ridge	3.09
4.66

Special Offerings.

Cash item	$ 2.75
Senior Philathea Class, Suffolk, Va., to buy Christmas treat for children	10.00
Mrs. Dalton, support of children	12.50
Rev. C. R. Dierlamm	2.50
Andrew N. Johnston, for sheep	20.00
Missionary Society, Henderson Ch.	5.00
52.75

Thanksgiving Offerings from Children Who Have Gone Out.

Lawrence Fields, Elon College, N. C.	$ 5.00
Chester Hunter, Elon College, N. C.	5.00
10.00

Thanksgiving Offerings.

North Carolina and Virginia Conference:
Salem Chapel	$ 3.00
Shallow Ford	9.70
New Lebanon S. S.	$32.15
Baracca Class	5.00
Philathea Class	3.75
40.90
Mt. Bethel	8.51
Hines' Chapel	22.00
Durham	150.12
234.23
Eastern North Carolina Conference:
Poplar Branch	$ 1.00
Fuller's Chapel	40.00
New Hope	4.12
Piney Plains	23.25

Moore's Union60
Shallow Well Ch. & S. S. ..	$ 1.89
Young Men's Bible Class ..	2.25
O'Kelly Bible Class	10.55
14.79
Mt. Auburu	16.75
Wentworth	25.00
125.51

Western North Carolina Conference:
Big Oak	$ 5.53
Burlington:
S. S. Offering	$ 35.85
S. S. Offering	161.49
S. S. Offering	573.00
Church Offering	25.07
795.41
Total in cash	$ 795.41
Pledges	1,205.00
2,000.41
Total cash & pledges ..	$2,000.41
800.94

Easteru Virginia Conference:
Christian Temple	$279.00
Men's Bible Class	21.00
300.00
Mt. Carmel	35.30
Waverly	3.13
338.43
Valley Virginia Central Conference:
Antioch	$ 10.75
Timber Ridge	2.00
12.75

Alabama Conference:
Wadley	$ 2.95
New Hope	4.75
Noon Day	4.40
Roanoke	10.00
22.10

Individual Thanksgiving Offerings.
Mr. A. M. Long, Lillington, N. C. ..	$ 5.00
Ladies' Aid and Missionary Society, Longs' Chapel Church	5.00
Geo. D. Colelough, Elon College, N. C.	5.00
15.00
Total for the week	$ 1,666.42
Grand total	$15,883.65

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

(Continued from page 11.)

Optimism.

Paul was a true optimist. He did not blindly blink his eyes to the facts of life. But he had unquenchable hope. He had abounding joy. The words joy and rejoice occur and recur again and again, especially in his later letters which were written out of the most difficult period of his life. Paul's joy or optimism was founded in his deep faith in God and in his rich and living experiences of Christ. He felt that in these surties of life he was adequate to all the demands that life could make upon him.

Sense of Need.

Paul was never satisfied with himself. He never felt that he was as good as he ought to be. He never felt that he had outgrown the Christian life. He was constantly "pressing on" toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus. He looked upon the Christian life as a growth, as development toward perfection, as increasing Christ-likeness. He believed he could be better and could do more. Unlike so many professing Christians he was not contented, complacent, and hence dead spiritually. What a difference it would make in our lives if

HOLMAN SUPERIOR TEACHERS' BIBLES

Authorized Version—Self-Pronouncing The Best Editions of the World's Best Book

For Adults, Teachers, Preachers, Students, and All Who Would Study the Word of God Intelligently

BOLD BLACK TYPE—COMPACT SIZE 4 1/2 x 6 3/4 INCHES—WILL FIT THE COAT POCKET

Part page specimen of Holman Boldblack Type Bible

ST. MATTHEW, 5.
Christ's sermon on the mount.

13 And leaving Náz'a-réth, he came and dwelt in Cá-pér'na-úm, which is upon the sea coast, in the borders of Záb'u-lon and Néph'tha-lim: 14 That it might be fulfilled	A. D. 31. 934 CHAPTER 5. 3 Who are blessed. 13 The disciples called the salt of the earth, and light of the world; Christ urgeth on them a good example, etc. CHAP. 4. AND seeing the multitudes, he went up into a moun-
--	---

THIS NEW HOLMAN TEACHERS' BIBLE, Pronouncing Text, Bold Black Type is a PRONOUNCED SUCCESS. The latest Bible with NEW HELPS that are quite comprehensive and consist of an Illustrated Bible Dictionary, Concordance and additional aids all under ONE ALPHABETICAL INDEX. Also Fine Maps on Coated Paper, and a specially prepared BIBLE READING COURSE, intended to stimulate and maintain interest in the Bible. Imported Bible paper is used to improve opacity and keep down bulk. By this means you get the benefit of full Biblical information without the physical discomfort of handling a heavy volume.

STYLES AND PRICES—BIBLE PAPER EDITION

4612. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges.....	$4.00
4630. Same as 4612, with extra leather lined covers.....	4.75
THIN INDIA PAPER EDITION One Inch In thickness
630X. Egyptian Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings, red under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker.....	7.00
633X. Algerian Morocco, divinity circuit, leather lining to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, extra quality binding.....	8.00

EXTRA LARGE PRINT TEACHERS' BIBLES
Large 8 Vo. Size—8x5 1/2 inches—1600 Pages, including 400 pages of Bible Study Helps

Part Page Specimen of Print

ST. MATTHEW, 5.
Christ's sermon on the mount.

15 ^kThe land of Záb'u-lon, and the land of Néph'tha-lim, by the way of the sea, beyond Jór'dan, Gál'i-lee of the Gén'tiles;	A. D. 31. 2 And he opened his mouth, and taught them, saying, 3 ^bBlessed are the poor in spirit: for their's is the kingdom of heaven.
---	--

CONTAING COMPLETE HELPS TO BIBLE STUDY, INCLUDING ALL OF THE FOLLOWING FEATURES
A New Practical Course in Bible Reading, A Treasury of Biblical Information. The most carefully compiled, thorough and attractive form in which valuable Biblical information has ever been prepared. Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary Containing 150 illustrations, concise definitions and textual references on nearly 80,000 subjects. A Practical Comparative Concordance, with nearly 50,000 references. Four Thousand Questions and Answers on the Old and New Testaments. A valuable Help to all Bible Readers.

STYLES AND PRICES

4712. Divinity Circuit (overlapping covers), French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, silk head bands, and silk marker..	$5.00
812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament, Old Testament Passages alluded to by Christ, various prophecies relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above on 4712 and same large Self-Pronouncing type.....	6.00
733X. Holman India Paper, Genuine Morocco, leather lined, silk sewed, divinity circuit, round corners carmine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and helps as above	10.65

All styles sent Postpaid at above prices—Thumb Index 50 cents extra at the New Year's season we should make a vow to do those things which would help us to grow in grace.

Friendliness.

It is true that Paul made many enemies. But it was not his responsibility. And he had a tremendous capacity for friendship. His letters abound in reference to his personal friends. And he always showed the friendly spirit toward those with whom he came in contact, until they made friendship impossible. We will do well to seek to be more friendly in all relationships of life.

Prayerfulness.

Paul's rich, abounding Christian life had its origin, of course, in his dramatic experience of Christ on the road to Damascus. But it had its continuing freshness and power as a result of his prayer life. He was a man of prayer. His powers were quickened, and his life was vitalized through prayer. Paul gave more time to the dynamics of life than he did to the mechanics of life. There are many things that we can do during the coming year, but we should see to it that we do not neglect the more important for the lesser. It is not by might nor by power that the work of the Lord is done, but by his spirit. We have access to the same Spirit as did Paul.

It should be said in closing that these qualities of character which found such full expression in Paul's life, can be ours. There is not a one of them which is not possible to us. And if we yield our lives to Christ as Paul did, and if we keep fresh and vital our fellowship with Christ as Paul did, we shall increasingly develop these and other Christian qualities of mind and heart.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES.

(Continued from page 10.)

It is better to build on high ideals, loyalty, faith, love, and things of this type, for then life is secure; it matters not how great the storms may be.

It is well to look ahead during the coming year and plan for the things that are to be done. Since this first meeting is a consecration meeting, a real effort should be made to have all members present and to prepare a program that will include everyone in it.

THE FAMILY ALTAR.

(Continued from page 12.)

never before was the Christian's message of the Christ more needed than now, nor was there ever a greater opportunity to apply it. Do you believe this? What can we do about it in our little sphere of life?

Prayer—Our Father, help us to embrace thy kingdom in our hearts, to be one with thee and thy thought; to take in the Christ-child life in our lives this new year.—Amen.

SATURDAY.

MRS. PEABODY WANTS TO KNOW.

"Who is on my side? Who?"—Read II. Kings 9:30-37.

Mrs. Henry W. Peabody is a dry worker with a vim. She has just left Massachusetts for Florida, in disgust at the action of her State in voting for the repeal of the State prohibition enforcement act. It is said of her that when she hails a taxi she always asks the driver whether he is absolutely sober and then whether he believes in prohibition. If his answer to the last question is "No," or is hesitating, she hails another taxi.

This would be a far better world if the friends of righteousness all had Mrs. Peabody's grit. If newspapers, for instance, knew that advocacy of intoxicants and of wet candidates would certainly lose them half their subscribers and half their advertising patronage, the campaign of newspaper lies against prohibition would cease with startling suddenness. But Christians, sad to say, lack backbone.

Prayer—May we stand for the right, thou God of right! May we dare to speak out. For then, we know, thou wilt be with us, and thy blessing will dwell in our souls.—Amen.

SUNDAY.

ABOUT DRESSING UP.

"Buy the truth, and sell it not."—Read Prov. 23:15-23.

A certain young man, a few weeks ago, was arrested and sent to prison for wearing the uniform of a sailor in the United States Navy when he had no right to do so. He was asked why he did it, and made the revealing reply, "I was going to see my girl, and she likes uniforms."

The desire to please is almost universal; but not so common is an appreciation of the fact that truth pleases, but lies, in the end, never do. This, which is the case sartorially, is still more emphatically the case with reference to the mind and the soul. Never pretend to be wiser or better than you are. You are sure to be found out in the end, and the result is disaster and shame. Know what you are and appear what you are. If you are dissatisfied with what you are, improve it in a genuine fashion, and not with contemptible and futile make-believe. Keep out of uniforms that do not belong to you.

Prayer—Lord Jesus, thou art the Truth. Help us, thy followers, also to be the truth, exemplifying it in all that we do and say. Then shall we have truth's permanency, and truth's high success.

ELON COLLEGE

AN ACCREDITED COLLEGE

of the

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING.

ELON COLLEGE, founded by the Christian Church in 1889, has fully justified the faith and hope of its founders during its 42 years of operation. Its graduates from the four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree, number 980, now living, 122 of whom are in the Christian Ministry and full-time Christian service. The majority of these are members of our own denomination. In addition, 449 are in educational work and are an active influence in the lay leadership of the Christian Church.

THE CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING, and the definite religious atmosphere of the College, provide the very best facilities available for training for religious leadership, and offer the Church its finest opportunity to train the young people of the denomination to assume active leadership both in the ministry and laity of the local churches.

Address—

C. M. CANNON, Registrar

Elon College, - - - North Carolina

Home Atmosphere—Reasonable Rates—Clean Athletics—Christian Spirit

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Congregational-Christian Church.

Central Publishing Co., Inc., is complying with the President's Code

BOARD OF EDITORS.

- J. O. ATKINSON, D. D.....Editor
- E. C. GILLETTE, D. D.....Associate
- S. C. HARRELL, D. D.....Contributing
- C. R. RAYMOND, D. D....Contributing
- ELISHA A. KING, D. D...Contributing
- W. C. WICKER, D. D.....Contributing
- J. T. KERNODLE....Managing Editor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

- One Year$2.00
- Six Months 1.00

Trial Subscriptions: Five or more new subscriptions sent in at one time by pastor or president of any church organization, three months for 40c each.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Change of Address: Be sure to give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

All news matter and items to be published in "The Sun" should be addressed to J. O. Atkinson, Editor, Elon College, N. C., and should reach him not later than Friday preceding date of publication. If more convenient, news from Congregational Churches may be sent to E. C. Gillette, Associate Editor, 117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla. Emergency notices will be received at the Richmond Office up until Tuesday of week of publication.

All remittances for subscriptions, renewals, advertising, etc., books for review, and other matters of business should be addressed to J. T. Kernodle, Managing Editor, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

Notices: Obituary and marriage notices, limited to 125 words, published free. All over 125 words, 1c a word, cash with notice. No notices should exceed 250 words.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows date of expiration, and change on label will appear the first or second issue of the month following renewal, provided it was received before the 25th. No other receipt will be sent unless requested. Please notify the Richmond Office if label is not changed as above.

OBITUARIES

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

Whereas, Deacon James L. Pierce, a beloved and honored member of Liberty Spring Christian Church, has been called from labor unto reward; and

Whereas, we desire to record our sincere appreciation of his life and labor, and express, in some measure, our sorrow and sympathy, therefore, be it resolved:

1. That we bow in humble submission to the will of our Father in heaven, and give thanks for the long life and faithful service of our departed co-worker.
2. That we record our appreciation of the consecrated life of our brother; and, especially emphasize his faithful service as a deacon of the church, for he sought to be fair and impartial and carefully guarded the spiritual interests of the church to which he was devoted.
3. That we express to the family of the deceased our heartfelt sympathy.
4. That a copy of these resolutions be entered upon the records of the church; a copy sent to the family, and a copy sent to "The Christian Sun" for publication.

Respectfully, submitted,
MRS. O. L. BAKER,
MRS. I. T. BYRD,
MRS. E. P. RAWLES,
MRS. F. F. BRINKLEY,
R. E. ROGERS,
E. F. O'BERRY,
Committee.

BELL.

Mrs. Lucy Faison Bell, relict of the late H. H. Bell, and daughter of the late Robert and Fannie Faison, was born October 29, 1859, and fell asleep October 8, 1933, at the age of 73 years, 11 months and 9 days.

Mrs. Bell was a member of a family of 18 children: 15 boys and 3 girls. Four of these died in infancy, 14 living to maturity, she being the last member of her family.

On April 16, 1884, she was united in marriage to Henry H. Bell, and to this union were born five children—one boy and four girls.

Early in life she united with Elberon

Christian Church and remained there until the end, living a beautiful life and making for herself many friends by her unusually fine Christian character.

Her funeral was in charge of the writer assisted by Rev. W. A. Orser, and interment was made beside her husband at Rocky Hook M. E. Church Cemetery.

Mrs. Bell is survived by three daughters, Mesdames W. H. Atwill, Jr., Norfolk; C. M. Ellis, Wakefield; W. H. Cokes, Elberon; one son, Mr. H. H. Bell, Jr., of Elberon.

C. E. GERRINGER.

PIEDMONT COLLEGE

Located in

"The Blue Ridge Highlands"

FALL TERM BEGINS
SEPTEMBER 13.

An accredited college with an enviable reputation for superior classroom instruction, and wholesome student life.

Fully recognized and accredited in its home State, and in such neighboring States as North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Tennessee and others. Standard courses leading to the A. B. and B. S. degrees.

Cost for Board, Room and Tuition, including also Entrance, Activity, and Infirmary fees reduced to $273.50 for the College Year. Personal expenses as low as student and parent wish.

All who seek an "A" grade college training for their sons and daughters in an atmosphere of Christian culture, and at minimum cost, are invited to write for the college catalogue and admission blanks.

Address: DEAN J. C. ROGERS,
DEMOREST, GEORGIA.

Southern Seminary Foundation

(Successor to Atlanta Theological Seminary.)

AFFILIATED WITH

Vanderbilt University

The Foundation and the other Foundations that are affiliated with Vanderbilt University School of Religion comprise the only Interdenominational Theological School in the South. Through this affiliation the students enjoy the rights and privileges of Vanderbilt University.

DEGREES.

Candidates for degrees are required to have completed their college courses.

The degree of Bachelor of Divinity is offered to qualified students who complete the required courses.

Vanderbilt University also offers the degrees of Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy, in accordance with the regulations established in its several departments.

MORE THAN A SCHOOL OF THEOLOGY.

Because of our affiliation with Vanderbilt, our relations with other nearby colleges where our students can take courses without tuition, and the cooperation of the American Red Cross and other social agencies in the city, we prepare students for many types of Christian service.

Come to Nashville, the Educational Center of the South, and prepare for Christian leadership. A Graduate School open to both men and women, with opportunities for self-help.

For information write

WILLIAM JAMES CAMPBELL, President,
330 BUTTRICK HALL, VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY,
NASHVILLE, TENN.

SOUTHERN UNION COLLEGE

FRANK E. JENKINS, Acting President.

WINTER QUARTER WILL BEGIN
NOVEMBER 29th.

* * * *

STRONG FACULTY : STRONG COURSES
LOW EXPENSES : THOROUGHLY
CHRISTIAN.

* * * *

The Adult Education Department is growing rapidly, with over 60 already enrolled.

For prospectus and full information, write

DEAN MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD,
WADLEY, ALABAMA

